I have raised two children who have both attended and completed their schooling through the NSW public education system. Both have in the past complained about teachers continually pushing their political views to their classes. One example was my brother was standing for One Nation in a previous federal election. My son was singled out in class by his teacher and the class told that One Nation is a racist organisation. Another example was that my son also was disciplined for kissing a girl yet gay children at the school could kiss and more untouched by the teaching staff. I found that the school constantly promoted socialist and politically correct views and would single out any student that challenged them. This needs to stop.
