Please remove from curricula all “lessons” which refer to matters which are rightly in the parental domain to impart to their children. I mean matters of faith, sex education and political persuasion. The education system has been dominated by Left ideology for far too long eg LGQBT and gender dogma is pushed for no reason than to indoctrinate. It’s brainwashing such as Lenin envisaged to capture young minds. It has no place in school learning. Please return the thrust of education to teach those things that teachers train in but parents might not have knowledge of, such as maths, history, sound English grammar foundation, science, literature. It’s up to PARENTS to instruct life style choices. Nothing to do with schools. Curricula has been hijacked by the Left to replace learning that should broaden minds and impart knowledge with political ideology to serve a party view that has nothing to do with parental wishes. Currently, it also is corrupting young minds which should be free to discover sexual orientation or choices in adult years, not childish ones.
