When I was 2 weeks postpartum I went to the ED department for swelling and high blood pressure, they then sent me a Doctor in training that had no idea what they were doing and kept asking me questions I had already answered, I was there for 12hrs waiting and my blood pressure was that high they thought I was going to start seizing.

No one started my on any blood pressure lowering tablets while I was waiting to try and bring it down and it wasn't until I threatened to leave that they actually did something.
