I have been a professional shooter for the past 18 years in that time i have seen 2 major droughts, i have seen cruelty at its best when there is far too many kangaroos and near to no food and no water, kangaroos laying under trees too weak to get up ants eating them alive and fox's eating there crutches out while they are still alive crows Peking there eyes out while still alive, farmers having to take matters into there own hands so there stock can have a chance to survive, as quick as farmers would put feed out for there stock the kangaroos would devour it, i have witnessed and have footage of baby joeys where there mothers have discarded them from there pouch so they can servive them self, roads littered with dead and dying kangaroos joeys still alive in there pouches or beside them for days left for the heat and the hawks and feral animals to finnish them off
