The cost of the M2 toll from Kellyville to the city is quite frankly ridiculous. A round trip is approximately $28, which is very expensive for families who have to travel from the North West to make appointments in the city or when commuting. The Metro line was a welcome addition to transport links from the North West, however it's approximately 30 minutes slower than driving to the city, but there is little alternative when the cost of toll roads is so high.

We pay taxes to fund our infrastructure, yet have to pay a fortune for privatisation of roads. Tolls should decrease with the age of the road and should be capped in price.
