Living in the southwest and working close to the Sydney airport not only do I have to leave home at least an hour and a half early to make sure I make it on time to work as the motorways are heavy with traffic but also the tolls are so expensive which take a big chunk out of my income which should be spent on my family and children. We pay enough taxes in this country not to be charged these high fees. On average I spend $150 on tolls per week if not more. With the increasing prices of other living expensive it is very hard to continue to manage.
