I am the Managing Director of an interior design company. We are commercial retail designers and work in the interior retail & hospitality sector. We have become aware of recent changes to the Design and Builder Practitioners Act, introduced on 1st July 2021 for all work on Class 2 Buildings.

The changes require all designers, builders and specialist engineers, to register with the new Compliance Declaration Scheme. However, with the current registration requirements, I, as a qualified designer (Bachelor's degree - Interior Design & Interior Architecture) and our qualified shopfitters that we work with (Trade Certified) are unable to meet the registration requirements.

Under this new regulatory framework, as it stands, our company which has been operating for over 25 years in this sector, will be restricted in our trade, unable to undertake the work that we have always undertaken.

We request that the new registration framework be reconsidered to address the current exclusion of Shopfitters & Interior Designers. I welcome the opportunity to discuss this further.
