You won't ban it but please vote to control it. Licence all puppy breeders and check stringently.

In a car park at Brooklyn six months ago, I saw a very big van pull up and open the back to reveal it stacked with cages with little puppies. Then cars started to pull up to pick up their dogs. Maybe they came from caring puppy breeders but I doubt it.

I took on a 'westie' which was actually a poodle cross that had come from a puppy farmer and after a few years of loving care it snapped to being a desperately angry dog, whom I loved but crept around clearing children adults and dogs out of its way. It was a lucky one. What happens to these dogs damaged by careless breeding? What about the parents used for breeding then discarded to pounds?

Please licence and monitor.
