I would like to submit the following after becoming aware of the amount of sick or injured animals that are arriving from farms to abattoirs. It is shocking to me to see the state that some of the livestock arrive in. Some of the cattle and sheep are unable to bear their own weight and a small number are so debilitated that they died during transportation or had to be put down on arrival. We as people of this nation wouldn't allow this to happen if it were people being transported. So why allow this practice for stock? We light of this occuring we need greater oversight and tougher penalties to prevent this from happening.
