I believe the current laws are inadequate and lack transparency. Puppy Farms must stop. Terrified and anxious animals, kept in sometimes squalid conditions. Female dogs used to breed over and over and over again, never to know their offspring, the feel of grass under their paw. The current laws are lacking.

If you look at the laws being passed through the WA Government, that is a great place to start. There's a clear picture of where the animals are, their welfare, breeders registrations, welfare checks etc etc

Our furbabies are just that, part of our family and they deserve better than what is their current lot
