Last week in the rain I attempted to catch a bus from David Jones to Taylor Square - previously there were many buses to choose from just across the road but now the buses are divided up at stops along Elizabeth St - I had to walk to William St but there was another elderly lady like me who was in a WHEELCHAIR by the time she reached the bus stop she was drenched - bit hard to pilot a wheelchair and hold up an umbrella - another example of the lack of care and respect the current Transport minister and Premier have for the bus users of Sydney and the Eastern Suburbs.
