This is an additional submission. Yesterday I went to the Theatre Royal. I went to Elizabeth Street to catch a 396 bus home. I went to the usual stop Elizabeth Street/ Martin place but could not find the stand for the 396. The stand for 396x was there but not 396. I have been catching buses all my life since the original trams stopped . Never have I seen such confusing public transport. The bus stop in fact was near the corner of King Street. No shelter no seat just a post. The next stop is a huge distance away near Park Street. These distances are ok for athletes but not for older people or indeed little kids. Everyone I have spoken to is distressed about these shocking bus changes. We lost all of our amazing red metro cross country buses which Nathan Rees put in and now we are all suffering.
