To whom it may concern,

Road construction on any level in NSW borders on embarrassment compared to other modern developed cities of the world. I have travelled extensively to many cities across South East Asia, Europe and North America.

Here in Australia road construction on this level of public infrastructure investment is centred on building pinch points and favoured toward balance sheets of civil engineering companies with the sole aim of emptying the pockets of NSW motorists.

How things possible in our times is bordering on criminal.

Yours sincerely,
