Most major cities around the world have decriminalised cannabis use.

It's really concerning that Australia is so behind re this.

There are multiple statistics that state alcohol use is far worse than the use of marijuana so how come we are still not on the right side?

I personally don't use it at all, however I've done extensive research re the benefits of it, I currently work in drug and alcohol. There is so much research re this however we still choose not to do what benefits a lot of people.
