I wish to express my support to legalise cannabis in New South Wales. It is a safe compound that helps people with all sorts of conditions from anxiety and depression to helping with pain for terminally ill people. CBD and THC are both important medically.

I would also like the NSW government to legislate to allow citizens to grow a limited number of plants for their own use.

I have been to Canada recently and the cannabis shops allow people to buy edibles and other products safely. The government of Canada benefits from this as much as the citizens. The system works and Australian governments would do well to look at how effective the legalisation process has been in Canada and other jurisdictions in the world.

Mr Minns, you may not have had this as an election promise but believe me, the people of NSW would benefit from the legalisation of all cannabis products and the growing of household amounts of the plant.
