To Whom It Concern.

RSPCA has an appalling record of putting animals to death - you just need to read the stats that they themselves publish! RSPCA cannot both rescue animals, to kill them and function as a watchdog for other animals, such as chickens - when on packaging they will say RSPCA approved. They are at odds with themselves. RSPCA are a business and are about making money before saving lives. They need to be more of an organisation that we can report animal cruelty to and they actually do something. No one seems to have any power when it comes to animals in distress - the Police say they can't do anything, and so does the RSPCA, so what use are they?

Regards AWL, at least they are no kill. They send special coaches to smaller town doing free micrchipping, desexing etc. You don't see the RSPCA doing anything like that. RSPCA used to give desexing vouchers to help those who had financial issues, but in my town at least, this doesn't happen any more.

Personally as a person who helps rescue animals as best I can, I would love to know where all donated money goes within both organisations, but most especially the RSPCA, as their reputation has turned over the last few years.

It should be considered to look into the smaller organisations too. as I know for a fact there is at least one given charitable status when submissions had been made to stop them, due to animal abuse, but no-one listened.
