INTRODUCTION

This paper has been prepared as a preliminary analysis of the results of the 2003 New South Wales election. It contains details of voting for all Legislative Assembly districts, excluding Londonderry, where a supplementary election will be conducted on 31 May following the death of the sitting MP and Labor candidate Mr Jim Anderson. The paper also includes details of the primary votes for the Legislative Council.

A final version of this paper will be prepared after the Londonderry poll when more information on two-party preferred votes and distribution of preferences in both houses becomes available.

For each Legislative Assembly electorate, full details of primary and two-candidate preferred votes are provided. The format and calculations used in the electorate results are as follows.

First Count: The votes shown for each candidate are the total primary votes received. Percentage votes are calculated as a percentage of the formal vote for each electorate. Swing is calculated by subtracting the percentage vote received by a party at the previous election from the percentage received at the current election. Where the parties contesting the district differ from the previous election, 'ghost' candidates (indicated by "...") have been included representing candidates not contesting the current election. As a result, all primary swings add to zero, subject to rounding errors.

Final Count: Represents the two-candidate preferred count after the final distribution of preferences in an electorate. All votes that did not indicate a preference to the two remaining candidates are included in the total listed as Exhausted. Two-candidate preferred percentages are calculated by dividing the two-candidate preferred vote by the votes remaining in the count, that is the formal vote minus the exhausted vote. Two-candidate preferred swings are shown compared to the final candidates from the previous election. Where the party composition of the final two candidates differs from the previous election (e.g. Tamworth), ghost candidates appear and more than two swing figures are shown.

Two-Candidate versus Two-Party Preferred results

To win an electorate, a candidate must receive more than 50% of the vote after the distribution of preferences. The distribution of preferences is performed by successively excluding candidates with the lowest primary vote and distributing that candidate's votes as preferences to other candidates remaining in the count. At the end of the count, the vote for the two final candidates is referred to as the 'two-candidate preferred vote'.

In most electorates, this will be the same as the 'two-party preferred vote', representing the final distribution of preferences between candidates representing the Labor Party, and the Liberal and National Party Coalition. However, there were 13 electorates at the 2003 New South Wales election that did not finish with two-party preferred counts. Five finished as National/Independent contests (Coffs Harbour, Dubbo, Northern Tablelands, Port Macquarie, Tamworth), three as Liberal/Independent contests (Albury, Manly, Willoughby), three as Labor/Green contests (Keira, Marrickville, Port Jackson) and two others as Labor/Independent finishes (Bligh, Wollongong).

Two-party preferred counts are not available for these electorates. In the past, two-preferred party counts have been made available at a later date.

By-Elections and Sitting MP Indicators

By-elections have been ignored in preparing the results for each electorate, and all swings are shown compared to the results of the 1999 election. Details of the four by-elections conducted between 1999 and 2003 can be found on page 40.

An asterisk "*" is used to indicate any candidate who was a sitting Legislative Assembly MP. In Port Macquarie, Independent MP Rob Oakeshott is shown as the sitting MP despite originally being elected for the National Party. In Tamworth, the National Party's John Cull won the seat at a by-election on 8 December 2001 and is shown as the sitting MP.

Note that in both seats, swings are measured against votes for parties and candidates as they contested the 1999 election. In Port Macquarie, this means Mr Oakeshott's 1999 vote is shown as the vote for the National Party, while he is shown as having no historical vote. In Tamworth, results of the by-election have been ignored.

Australian Labor Party and Country Labor

At the 2003 election, 22 Labor Party candidates nominated as Country Labor. In this publication, this distinction has been ignored, and all candidates are shown as representing Labor or the ALP. When the final version of this publication is prepared, more detailed analysis of the two parties will be provided.

Disclaimer

All results are based on preliminary details made available by the NSW State Electoral Office. However, responsibility for all calculations and omissions is taken by the author. Note that due to rounding errors, some tables do not add to exactly 100%.

Acknowledgements

My thanks to the NSW Electoral Commissioner, Mr John Wasson, for all his assistance in providing the results of the state election. My particular thanks go to Ms Monica Floyd and Mr Terry Jessop of the State Electoral Office, and Mr Ian Brightwell of Hansen Technologies for their assistance in providing election results in computer readable format.

Note: In the seats won and change columns, Londonderry has been assumed as retained by the Labor Party. A total of 661 candidates nominated for the Legislative Assembly election on March 22, though the eight candidates who originally nominated for Londonderry have been excluded from the above table. Excluding Londonderry from the 1999 state wide totals, the swing column for the major parties would be Labor (+0.65), Liberal (+0.03) and National (+0.75). If the Londonderry roll is excluded from the 2003 totals, the turnout is 92.02%.

Liberal Party gains from Labor Party (1)	South Coast
National Party gain from Labor Party (1)	Clarence
Independent gains from National Party (1)	Tamworth (See Note)

NOTE: While Tamworth was won by Independent Tony Windsor in 1999, it has been classified as National Party held based on the result of the 8 December 2001 by-election. At the 1999 election, Port Macquarie was won for the National Party by Rob Oakeshott. He resigned from the party and sat as an Independent from March 2002, and he has been classified in the above tables as being re-elected at the 2003 election.
