INTRODUCTION

This paper has been prepared as a preliminary analysis of the results of the 2007 New South Wales election. It contains details of voting for all Legislative Assembly districts, summary tables analysing estimated two-party preferred swing, and an overall summary of results for the Legislative Council.

A final version of this paper will be prepared at a later date with more detail on the two-party preferred vote, as well as analysis of preference distributions. As at previous elections, separate publications will be produced with details of two-candidate preferred counting by booth, as well as detailed analysis of the Legislative Council.

Format for Results

For each Legislative Assembly electorate, full details of primary and two-candidate preferred votes are provided. The format and calculations used in the electorate results are as follows.

First Count: The votes shown for each candidate are the total primary votes received. Percentage votes are calculated as a percentage of the formal vote for each electorate. Swing is calculated by subtracting the percentage vote received by a party at the previous election from the percentage received at the current election. Where the parties contesting the district differ from the previous election, 'ghost' candidates (indicated by "...") have been included representing candidates not contesting the current election. As a result, all primary swings add to zero, subject to rounding errors.

Final Count: Represents the two-candidate preferred count after the final distribution of preferences in an electorate. All votes that did not indicate a preference to the two remaining candidates are included in the total listed as Exhausted. Two-candidate preferred percentages are calculated by dividing the two-candidate preferred vote by the votes remaining in the count, that is the formal vote minus the exhausted vote. Two-candidate preferred swings are shown compared to the final candidates from the previous election. Where the party composition of the final two candidates differs from the previous election (e.g. Newcastle), ghost candidates appear and more than two swing figures are shown.

New Electoral Boundaries

All results from the 2003 election have been adjusted to match the new electoral boundaries used for the 2007 election. Details of the redistribution can be found in "2004 NSW Redistribution: Analysis of Final Boundaries", NSW Parliamentary Research Service Background Paper No 1/05.

By-Elections and Sitting MP Indicators

By-elections have been ignored in preparing the results for each electorate, and all swings are shown compared to the results of the 2003 election, adjusted for the new boundaries. Details of the five by-elections conducted between 2003 and 2007 can be found on page 35. Note that in the case of Pittwater, while some tables refer to it as an Independent held seat, swings are shown compared to the 2003 election, not the 2005 by-election. In Dubbo, the vote recorded for the late Tony McGrane at the 2003 election is used as the comparison figure for his successor Dawn Fardell.

A distinction has been drawn between which party is notionally assigned as holding a seat and who is the sitting MP. An asterisk "*" is used to indicate any candidate who was a sitting Legislative Assembly MP. Both Steven Pringle in Hawkesbury and Bruce Gaudry are shown as sitting MPs, though both contested the 2007 election as Independents. Peter Black is shown as a sitting MP in Murray-Darling, though as pointed out in the publication, Murray-Darling had become a notional National Party seat on the new electoral boundaries.

Two-Candidate versus Two-Party Preferred results

To win an electorate, a candidate must receive more than 50% of the vote after the distribution of preferences. The distribution of preferences is performed by successively excluding candidates with the lowest primary vote and distributing that candidate's votes as preferences to other candidates remaining in the count. At the end of the count, the vote for the two final candidates is referred to as the 'two-candidate preferred vote'.

At the 2007 election, the formal distribution of preferences produced 21 districts where the final contest was a two-candidate rather than two-party preferred contest. In Charlestown, North Sydney and Shellharbour, alternative two-party totals were available from the initial scrutiny of votes. However, in the other 18 districts, estimates have had to be made, based on past records of preference distributions. Seats where estimates have been used are indicated in the table of two-party preferred votes on page 25.

The NSW Electoral Commission will conduct two-party preferred counts for information purposes at a later date after all material has been returned from Election Managers. These totals will be published in the final version of this publication.

Australian Labor Party and Country Labor

For this preliminary analysis, all candidate who contested the 2003 election as Country Labor candidates have been classified as Labor candidates. A distinction between the two parties will be included in the final version of this publication.

Disclaimer

All results are based on preliminary details made available by the NSW State Electoral Office. However, responsibility for all calculations and omissions is taken by the author. Note that due to rounding errors, some tables do not add to exactly 100%.

Acknowledgements

My thanks to the NSW Electoral Commissioner, Mr Colin Barry, for all his assistance in providing the results of the state election, and in particular the Electoral Commission's Ian Brightwell for making the data available in electronic format.

Liberal gain from Labor (1)	Port Stephens
Liberal gain from Independent (1)	Manly (plus Pittwater, see note below)
National gain from Labor (1)	Tweed (plus Murray-Darling, see note below)
Independent gain from Labor (1)	Lake Macquarie

Note: The Liberal Party regained Pittwater, having lost the seat to an Independent at a 2005 by-election. The National Party defeated sitting Labor MP Peter Black in Murray-Darling, but the seat is not shown as a National gain as on new electoral boundaries, it would have been National held based on 2003 election results.

All seats are shown based on two-party preferred margin, though seats held by Independents are clearly indicated. Underlining indicates seat that changed party at the 2007, including Pittwater gained by an Independent at a 2005 by-election. The sitting Labor MP for Murray-Darling was also defeated, though the new boundaries gave the seat a notional National Party majority. ‘+’ indicates a two-party swing to Labor, ‘-’ a two-party preferred swing to the Coalition.

Notes

All seats held by the Labor, Liberal and National Parties have been classified by their two-party preferred margin. Seats with a margin less than 6% are classified as marginal. Seats with a margin between 6% and 12% are classified as safe. Seats with margins above 12% are classified as Very safe. Pittwater has been classified as an Independent seat based on the result of the 2005 by-election.

REGIONAL SUMMARIES

The following tables summarise the election result for different regions of the state. All electorates have been classified into three broad regions, Sydney, Hunter/Illawarra and Country. These regions are further subdivided as follows.

Seats that changed party at the election are shown underlined. In addition, the sitting Labor MP for Murray-Darling was defeated, though the new boundaries meant the seat had an notional National Party majority.
