Comments and Feedback

This publication has been prepared with reference to the electoral maps made available by the Electoral Districts Commission. However, without access to registered voter lists indicating where people cast their vote, re-allocating polling places to new electorates is an imprecise science, especially when polling places need to be split between electorates. Comments and suggestions on the transfer of polling places is most welcome. Messages can be e-mailed to me at green.antony@abc.net.au.

INTRODUCTION

This publication provides an assessment of the political impact for the final determined New South Wales electoral boundaries, proclaimed on 18 September 2013. The final boundaries contained only minor adjustments to the draft boundaries released on 17 June 2013. The new boundaries will apply from the 2015 election.

It must be stressed that this publication does not provide predictions for the 2015 election. The estimated margins provided in this publication are best thought of as possible results of the 2011 election had that election been fought on the new boundaries. The estimates cannot take into account the difference in candidate and campaign effort that would have occurred if the 2011 election had been fought on the new boundaries. The difficulty of splitting polling place catchment areas to match new electoral boundaries, as well as allocating declaration votes to new electorates, means the estimated margins should be treated as approximations.

CALCULATIONS AND METHODOLOGY

To calculate the political impact of the new boundaries, the results of the 2011 election have been re-assigned to match the new electoral boundaries. This requires a series of assumptions to be made as part of the calculations. These assumptions concern whether votes are cast for candidates or parties, how to transfer polling places between old and new electorates, and how to deal with the declaration vote from old electorates.

Candidate versus Party Vote

An assumption has been made that votes are cast for parties rather than candidates. This is a reasonable assumption, but ignores the importance of popular sitting members. A well-known sitting member may poll higher than his or her party would have with a different candidate. New electoral boundaries can see areas added to an electorate where the party vote was not influenced at the last election by the presence of the sitting member.

The role of sitting Independent members is even more difficult to take into account. None of the Independents elected at the 2011 election contested the areas added to their electorates by the redistribution, making it difficult to calculate precise two-candidate preferred margins.

Transferring Booths to Match the New Boundaries

The Electoral Districts Commission released lists of all transfers of enrolment between old and new electorates. The transfer of polling place results from old to new electorates has been guided by the enrolment transfers as well as the published maps. Where the transfers and maps suggest the catchment area of a polling place should be divided, an estimate has been made to divide the results of a polling place between new electorates.

Dealing with the Declaration Vote

For calculation purposes, all declaration votes (pre-poll, postal, etc) and votes cast at Sydney Town Hall (except those in the Sydney electorate) have been accumulated into a single total and transferred to new electorates.

These accumulated totals have been transferred to new electorates in proportion to the transfer of enrolment from old to new electorates. However, the vote by party in the declaration vote has been weighted to reflect the vote by party in polling places transferred between electorates.

As an example, the old electorate of Marrickville has been abolished and divided between the new electorates of Newtown and Summer Hill. The polling places in those parts of Marrickville transferred to Summer Hill voted more strongly for the Labor Party in 2011 than polling places transferred to the new electorate of Newtown. As a result, in dividing the declaration vote between Summer Hill and Newtown, the patterns of polling place results is reflected in the declaration vote transferred. Summer Hill has been allocated a higher proportion of Labor vote and lower proportion of Green vote from the divided declaration vote than has been transferred to Newtown.

Variations from Draft Boundaries

Compared to the draft boundaries, changes were minor and confined to changes in five areas between the following electorates.

- Goulburn and Monaro
- Blue Mountains and Hawkesbury
- Kiama and South Coast
- Oxley and Myall Lakes
- Charlestown, Lake Macquarie, Newcastle and Wallsend.

None of these changes had significant impact on estimated margins.

By-elections and Changes in Party Membership

Calculations in this publication are based on 2011 election results. They do not use the results of the five by-elections held since the 2011 election in the National-held electorate of Clarence (November 2011), Labor-held Heffron (August 2012), Independent held Sydney (October 2012) and Northern Tablelands (May 2013), and Liberal-held Miranda (October 2013).

The Northern Tablelands and Miranda by-elections resulted in changes in party status. The calculations for both seats are based on the 2011 results, but the margins shown in the electoral pendulum on page 5 have been calculated in the following manner.

The Northern Tablelands by-election was won by the National Party. The electoral pendulum has been adjusted to list the seat as National rather than Independent held. The margin shown is a National two-party preferred margin versus Labor based on the results of the 2011 state election.

The Miranda by-election resulted in Labor gaining the seat from the Liberal Party. The Labor margin based on the by-election was 5.1%, but the redistribution calculations indicate that Miranda is 2% stronger for the Liberal Party on the new boundaries. Applying this difference to the by-election result, Miranda is shown as being Labor held with a margin of 3.1%.

Two-Party Preferred versus Two-Candidate Preferred Results

The two-candidate preferred count for an electorate is defined as the final count of votes between the two remaining candidates after the exclusion and distribution as preferences of votes for all other candidates. At each stage of the distribution of preferences, the candidate with the fewest votes is excluded and his or her ballot papers re-examined to determine the candidate with the next available preference. To achieve victory, a candidate must receive more than 50% of the total two-candidate preferred vote. Where a candidate achieves more than 50% of the vote before the final distribution, the two-candidate preferred count is continued to completion for information purposes.

The two-party preferred count represents a distribution of preferences between candidates representing the Labor Party and the Coalition. Candidates are again excluded based on lowest progressive vote, though at some point the second lowest candidate is excluded to retain candidates representing Labor and the Coalition. The two-party preferred count plays no part in determining the winning candidate but is used for information purposes.

In most cases, the two-party preferred result will be the same as the two-candidate preferred result. At the 2011 election, 66 of the electorates finished as two-party preferred contests between Labor and Coalition candidates. A separate 2-party preferred count was carried out in the other 27 electorates, allowing a 2-party preferred margin to be calculated for the 93 new electorates. The estimated new 2-party preferred totals for are shown on the listing for each new electorate in this publication.

Calculating new 2-candidate preferred totals was more complex. The most difficult example was Newtown, which includes transfers from three existing electorates, Heffron, Marrickville and Sydney. At the 2011 election, Heffron finished as a Labor-Liberal contest, Marrickville as a Labor-Green contest, and Sydney as a Liberal-Independent contest. The transferred first preference votes produce a contest between Labor and the Greens. The estimated new margin has been calculated by assuming the preferences of Clover Moore had been distributed 25% to the Greens and 10% to Labor, and distributing all other votes using the actual preference count for Marrickville.

In Balmain and Lake Macquarie, new two-candidate preferred totals have been estimated by applying the 2011 preference distribution to the new first preference totals. Other electorates, such as Davidson and Sydney, did not produce amalgamation problems and sensible two-candidate preferred totals have been provided. Some new electorates, Goulburn being the best example, produce totals with separate Liberal and National entries in the two-candidate and two-party preferred totals. These cases can be resolved by adding the Liberal and National votes together.

Polling place two-party and two-candidate preferred results can be found in my publication "NSW Legislative Assembly Election 2011: Two-Party Preferred Results by Polling Place", Background Paper No 1/2012, NSW Parliamentary Library Research Service.

Electorate Name Changes

Of the 93 Assembly electorates, 86 retain the same name, though some of those electorates have undergone extensive boundary changes. Seven electorate names have disappeared, and seven new names appear or re-appear on the state's electoral map.

For the purposes of this publication, I have treated two electorates as being abolished. These are the rural electorate of Murrumbidge, and I have also treated the inner city seat of Marrickville as being abolished, with Marrickville forming the basis of two new inner-city seats, Newtown and Summer Hill. The Electoral Districts Commission chose to treat Summer Hill as a successor seat to Marrickville. Both seats are listed as abolished electorates on page 107.

The other name changes have come about to reflect changed geography. Burrinjuck becomes Cootamundra, Menai becomes Holsworthy, Murray-Darling becomes Murray, Smithfield is now known as Prospect, and Toongabbie is re-named Seven Hills.

Throughout this publication the new names for electorates will generally be used.

SUMMARY OF THE POLITICAL IMPACT

Party Composition of Legislative Assembly based on Old and New Boundaries

	Seats Held By Party					Total
	Liberal	National	Labor	Green	Independent
Old Boundaries	51	18	20	1	3	93
New Boundaries	53	17	18	2	3	93
Including by-elections	52	18	19	2	2	93

The above table reflects the following changes –

- The National held seat of Murrumbidgee has been abolished.
- The Labor held seat of Toongabbie has been abolished and replaced by the notionally Liberal seat of Seven Hills.
- The Labor seat of Macquarie Fields becomes notionally Liberal held on its new boundaries.
- The Labor seat of Marrickville has been abolished, replaced by a new Labor seat in Summer Hill, and the notionally Green-held seat of Newtown.
- The Liberal seat of Smithfield has been replaced by Prospect.
- The Liberal seat of Menai has been replaced by Holsworthy.
- National held Burrinjuck has been replaced by Cootamundra.
- National held Murray-Darling has lost Broken Hill to Barwon and been re-named Murray.
- The Independent held seat of Northern Tablelands was won by the National Party at a May 2013 by-election.
- The Liberal held seat of Miranda was won by the Labor Party at an October 2013 by-election.

The most politically significant changes in margins for electorates are as follows –

- Campbelltown moves south, its Liberal margin doubling from 3.4% to 6.8%
- Heathcote loses parts of the Illawarra and moves west of the Woronora River, its Liberal margin increasing from 12.9% to 19.0%.
- The abolished seat of Menai had a Liberal margin of 21.0%, but the new seat of Holsworthy has an estimated Liberal margin on 10.7%.
- The Labor margin in Kogarah increases from 1.9% to an estimated 5.4%.
- Major boundary changes to Londonderry see the Liberal margin decline from 12.3% to an estimated 5.3%.
- The Labor margin of 1.5% in Macquarie Fields becomes a notional Liberal margin of 1.8% on the new boundaries.
- The Liberal margin in Oatley increases from 0.5% to an estimated 3.8%.
- Toongabbie was held by Labor with a margin of 0.3%, but the new seat of Seven Hills has a Liberal margin of 8.8%.
- Wollondilly moves south out of Campbelltown, its Liberal margin increasing from 14.7% to an estimated 21.6%.

On the new boundaries, a swing of 14.7% is required for the Coalition to lose 25 seats and its parliamentary majority. Taking account of the Northern Tablelands by-election result, this is the same swing as was required for 24 seats on the old boundaries.

Counting Miranda as a Labor seat, the swing required for the Coalition to lose its majority becomes 12.5%.

DETAIL OF NEW LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DISTRICTS

Format for Listings

For each new electorate, a summary of total vote by party is provided, as well as detail of the transfers between old and new electorates brought about by the redistribution.

The summary table includes an entry for all parties that contested polling places within the boundary of each new electorate. The table includes a total and percentage of first preference vote, two-candidate preferred vote and two-party preferred vote. Where an electorate includes transfers from electorates with different combinations of two-candidate preferred contestants in 2011 (eg Albury), there may be more than two parties listed under the two-party and two-candidate preferred totals.

The final line of each summary table shows the calculated total votes transferred to the new electorate as a percentage of the total enrolment at the date of the redistribution.

After the summary table, a series of totals are provided that correspond to transfers of enrolment between old and new electorates. There is a separate listing and total for each transfer that involved polling places. Transfers in from an old electorate are listed first, followed by transfers out of the existing electorate into new electorates. (A number of enrolment transfers that did not involve polling place transfers have been excluded from the listings.)

Auburn includes transfers from the following old electorates

	2-PARTY PREFERRED		PRIMARY VOTES

This example shows the transfers from the old electorate of Auburn to the new electorate of Auburn. The full listing for Auburn also includes transfers from the old electorate of Granville to Auburn, and transfers out of the old Auburn to Bankstown and Lakemba.

Each entry shows the total number of enrolled voters transferred, as well as the calculated number of votes and the total transferred votes as a percentage of the enrolled voters.

Below this is a list of all booths that form part of the transfer. Booths that have been split are shown with a percentage indicating the proportion of the booth transferred. A percentage of declaration votes transferred is also shown. Totals of two-party preferred and first preference votes are shown with each transfer. Where a transfer includes an area that finished as a two-candidate preferred contest in 2011, a separate two-candidate preferred total is also provided under the party transfer totals.
