Scope of this guide

This guide is not intended to be a comprehensive listing of all available grants in New South Wales and Australia. This task is as large as it is complex since funding opportunities constantly change, while the range and number of opportunities on offer vary across different sectors. For instance, the series of grants identified in section 3, are indicative only across the ten subject areas reviewed by the guide. Similarly, the grants and sponsorship opportunities listed in section 4 are derived from a select number of private organisations.

Grant selection

Selecting the right grant for the needs of your local community is one of the most important factors when securing funding. A number of grant bodies recommend that applications should only be made to those organisations that match your project. To assist in this process, it is recommended that you contact the funding body about your application prior to submission. The majority of the funding bodies referenced in this guide provide additional information in their application guidelines or Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) sections on their websites. It should be noted that this guide also includes information on grants where the 2018 submission deadline has passed. This has been included to alert readers to the possibility that the new round of funding will most likely occur around the same time in 2019.

2018 edition changes

Additional sub-sections on education, gambling and homelessness have been included to increase the number of selected subject areas covered in the guide. The number of private companies covered in section 4 has been increased to reflect a broader range of funding opportunities, while a redesigned section 6 divides local government funding opportunities into metropolitan and regional sub-sections. The contents of this section have also been updated to reflect the impact of recent council amalgamations in NSW.

All links are current as of the data of publication (20 June 2018). As funding opportunities constantly change, it is recommended that the enclosed links provided in this guide are monitored regularly throughout the year.
