Comments and Feedback

This publication has been prepared with reference to the electoral maps made available by the Electoral Districts Commission. However, without access to registered voter lists indicating where people cast their vote, and given the scale on some maps, re-allocating booths to new electorates is an imprecise science, especially where booths have to be split. Comments and suggestions on the transfer of polling places is most welcome. Messages can be e-mailed to me at green.antony@abc.net.au.

SUMMARY OF POLITICAL CONSEQUENCES

- The redistribution sees the abolition of Lachlan west of the mountains and the creation of Wollondilly, a new outer-metropolitan seat on Sydney's south-west fringe. The shift towards Sydney created by this change sees the electorate of Southern Highlands abolished, but a seat called Goulburn re-created from parts of Burrinjuck and Southern Highlands.
- The National party lose a seat with abolition of Lachlan, but notionally gain the seat of Murray-Darling, which on the new boundaries is changed from a Labor seat with a 6.7% margin to a National Party seat with a margin of 1.4%. A similar political change occurred at the two previous redistributions, but on neither occasion did the National Party win the seat at the subsequent election. After the 1990/91 redistribution, new boundaries for Broken Hill gave the seat a notional National Party majority, but the seat was won by Labor at the 1991 state election. After the 1997/98 redistribution, the new seat of Murray-Darling had a notional National Party majority, but the seat was won by Labor at the 1999 election.
- Labor loses Murray-Darling based on the new boundaries, but 2003 election results indicate that the new seat of Wollondilly is a notional Labor seat.
- With the number of seats held by each party remaining unchanged, the Coalition still need to gain 9 seats from Labor to deprive the government of its majority, and gain 12 seats from Labor to have more seats in the Legislative Assembly. Overall the Coalition need to gain 15 seats to form majority government, with some of those seats needing to be gained from Independents.
- To gain 9 seats, the Coalition needed a 9.1% swing on the old boundaries compared to 8.7% on the new boundaries. A gain of 12 seats needed a 9.6% swing on the old boundaries and 9.7% on the new boundaries. This suggests the new boundaries have had little impact on the chances of the Coalition winning the next election.
- Labor's position has been significantly strengthened in Camden 8.7% (up from 5.4%), Cessnock 19.1% (15.5%) and Heathcote 12.3% (8.7%). Labor's position is weakened in Kiama 8.3% (down from 16.9%), Lake Macquarie 11.6% (14.5%) and Londonderry 10.9% (15.3%). Labor's position is also slightly strengthened in its two most marginal seats, Monaro 4.4% (up from 3.3%) and Tweed 4.0% (3.8%).
- The National Party's position is strengthened in Burrinjuck 12.4% (up from 4.1%) and Clarence 5.3% (1.6%). The position is weakened in Lismore 8.1% (down from 12.8%).
- The re-creation of Goulburn has the potential to create a dispute between the Liberal and National Parties. This occurred with changes to electorates around Goulburn at the two previous redistributions.
- There has been a re-arrangement of boundaries on the Central Coast, resulting in the old Labor-held electorate of Peats being re-named Gosford, while the seat previously known as Gosford is now called Terrigal and has a notional Liberal majority. This results in the electorate named Gosford switching from Liberal to Labor, but this is balanced by the abolition of Peats and creation of Terrigal.
- Other changes to electorate names include Balmain (previously Port Jackson), Castle Hill (The Hills), Oatley (Georges River), Shellharbour (Illawarra), Sydney (Bligh) and Toongabbie (Wentworthville).
- Of the six Independent held seats, Manly, Tamworth, Port Macquarie and Northern Tablelands see only minor change. Bligh is re-named Sydney but the position of sitting Independent MP Clover Moore does not appear to be weakened. Dubbo has had significant change, losing Wellington and gaining Forbes, making it hard to calculate a new margin. This publication does not take into account the result of the Dubbo by-election.

INTRODUCTION

This publication contains estimates of the political impact of the finalised New South Wales state electoral boundaries, released by the Electoral Districts Commission on 21 December 2004. This publication updates and replaces estimates based on draft boundaries, published as Parliamentary Library Research Service Background Paper No. 4/04.

Estimates of new margins have been calculated by re-assigning votes from the 2003 state election to match the new electoral boundaries. The following notes provide an explanation of how the results have been re-calculated as well as how to read the tables provided.

A Caution on Using New Boundary Estimates

Moving votes to new electorates is based on the assumption that votes were cast for parties rather than candidates. This is a reasonable assumption as long as it does not forget that a high profile candidate in a particular electorate can increase the vote for a party. There are also special difficulties with Independent candidates, where it is almost impossible to calculate their level of support in areas added to an electorate. While I have made some attempt to do this with the tables beginning on page 71, these calculations are highly speculative.

Re-allocating votes to new boundaries also overlooks the varying level of intensity in party campaigning from electorate to electorate. For instance, in the new electorate of Murray-Darling, the Labor Party vote is likely to be higher in booths from the old Murray-Darling, where the Labor Party ran an active campaign, than in the booths transferred from the safe National seat of Murrumbidgee, where the Labor Party's campaign was more subdued.

Above all, the re-calculated figures should not be viewed as predictions of future results, or even past outcomes. On the calculations in this paper, it appears the number of seats held by all parties remains unchanged on the new boundaries compared to the 2003 election result. This is a reasonable observation, but cannot be asserted as a fact, as it overlooks the candidate and campaign intensity factors noted in the previous paragraphs.

The next election will be decided by the relative level of support for candidates and parties at the time of the next election, and by the campaign fought on the new boundaries. Re-calculating the results of the 2003 election to match the new boundaries merely provides a guide to the key marginal seats where the next election is likely to be decided.

A note on Two-Candidate Preferred Counts at the 2003 Election

To win an electorate, a candidate must receive more than 50% of the vote after the distribution of preferences. The distribution of preferences is performed by successively excluding candidates with the lowest primary vote and distributing each candidate's votes as preferences to candidates remaining in the count. At the end of this process, the vote for the two final candidates is referred to as the 'two-candidate preferred vote'.

In most electorates, this will be the same as the 'two-party preferred vote', representing the final distribution of preferences between candidates representing the Labor Party and the Liberal and National Party Coalition. In 79 electorates at the 2003 New South Wales election, the final two-candidate preferred count was also the two-party preferred count.

In the 14 electorates that did not finish as two-party contests, the New South Wales Electoral Office conducted separate two-party preferred counts. In Albury, Bligh, Keira, Manly, Marrickville, Port Jackson, Willoughby and Wollongong, the count was conducted between Labor and Liberal candidates. In Coffs Harbour, Dubbo, Northern Tablelands, Port Macquarie and Tamworth, the count was between Labor and National Party candidates. In Londonderry, where the Liberal Party did not contest the supplementary election, the count between Labor and Independent candidates has been used as the two-party preferred count.

Note that the vast number of exhausted preferences in some of these two-party counts will affect the accuracy of the two-party calculations in some of the new electorates.

The new electorate summaries beginning on page 11 are derived from these two-party preferred counts by booth. Separate estimates based on two-candidate preferred counts can be found on page 71.

Calculating the Redistribution

Following the 2003 election, a database was prepared of the election results in each polling place. This database included the primary and an estimated two-party preferred result for each booth. Two-candidate preferred counts have also been used where appropriate.

Decisions on transferring booths to new electorates have been made using the maps provided by the Electoral District Commission. Where it appears that the catchment area for a polling place has been divided by a new boundary, results for that polling place have been split between the new electorates. A check has been made to ensure that the number of votes transferred correlates with the number of electors transferred. This has been done using the enrolment tables provided in the Commission's report.

Declaration votes have been distributed to new electorates in proportion to the number of electors transferred. For instance, 91.9% of electors in the electorate of Monaro remained in the re-drawn electorate of Monaro, while 8.1% were transferred to Bega. Declaration votes for Monaro, including normal votes cast at Sydney Town Hall, have been distributed to each of the new electorates in the same proportion.

However, the relative proportion of votes transferred for each party have been weighted according to the vote in the booths transferred. As a first step, the ratio of declaration votes to booth votes in the old electorate was calculated, as in the following example.

Monaro

	Booth Results	Declaration Votes	Ratio
Labor	45.85%	41.78%	0.9113
National	42.48%	43.48%	1.0237
Greens	7.69%	9.48%	1.2334
Independent	2.70%	3.38%	1.2522
One Nation	1.29%	1.87%	1.4549

These ratios were then applied to the votes transferred to new electorates. For instance three booths were transferred from Monaro to Bega. The number of voters transferred was 8.1% of the enrolment of 47,441, and so 8.1% of the Declaration votes have been transferred. The above ratios have been applied to the percentage party votes for the booths transferred, as shown below.

Monaro Transfers to Bega

	Booth % Vote	Declaration %	Adjusted %
Labor	30.08	27.41	26.79
National	56.28	57.61	56.32
Green	9.39	11.58	11.32
Independent	2.42	3.03	2.96
One Nation	1.84	2.67	2.61

In this case, the Labor vote in booths transferred to Bega was 30.08%, as opposed to 47.02% for the booths remaining in Monaro. Applying the ratio of 0.9113, the Labor percentage of Declaration votes to be transferred is 27.41%. After rounding so the percentages add to 100%, this becomes 26.79% of formal declaration votes. So of the 8.1% of declaration votes transferred to Bega, 26.79% will be Labor Party votes, as compared to the 41.78% Labor vote in the overall Declaration vote for Monaro.

This process may seem unduly complex, but it ensures that the declaration votes transferred reflect the political complexion of the areas involved. In the case of Monaro, the Declaration votes transferred to Bega will have a lower proportion of Labor votes than those that remain in Monaro. Overall, the sum of the declaration votes transferred to Bega and the new Monaro will equal the total declaration vote for the old Monaro.

Reading the Tables

Summaries of party vote for each new electorate can be found in tables beginning on page 11. The format for these summaries is explained in the following table.

BEGA (Roll: 45594)
PRIMARY VOTE			2-CANDIDATE VOTE		VOTES FROM
ALP	12480	30.4%	15439	45.3%	Bega	38961	93.3%
LIB	14818	36.1%	16892	49.6%	Monaro	3057	79.8% **
NAT	1687	4.1%	1750	5.1%	-- TOTAL --	42018	92.2%
GRN	4168	10.2%			Formal	41036
CDP	507	1.2%			Informal	982	2.3%
ONP	745	1.8%
OTH	6631	16.2%

The first line contains the name of the electorate, and the enrolment at the redistribution date of 21 October 2003. The first two columns contain total primary and two-party preferred votes and percentages, calculated by adding up the transferred booth and declaration votes.

The third column provides information on the votes transferred from the old electorates. In the case of Bega, it lists the number of votes transferred from Bega and Monaro. This is the total of the booth and declaration votes transferred, and includes both formal and informal votes. It is not the number of electors transferred.

The percentage figure on the right is the number of votes transferred expressed as a percentage of the number of electors transferred. In general, I have aimed to keep this figure around the same percentage as the relevant figure for each existing electorate. (A table comparing 2003 votes cast with electorate enrolments on 21 October 2003 can be found on page 77.) In general this percentage is kept in the range 85-95%. Where the value is outside of this range, "" appears on the listing.

The detailed listings beginning on page 30 provide listings of booths transferred for each new electorate. Separate sub-totals are provided for votes transferred from each old electorate. Consider the following example from the listing for Bega.

BEGA	VOTES	2-CANDIDATE			PRIMARY VOTES

%		45.3	49.6	5.1	30.4	36.1	4.1	10.2	19.2

The lines beginning "Transfers " indicates from which electorate votes have been transferred. The figure in brackets (41761) is the number of electors transferred from the old electorate of Bega, as provided by the Electoral Districts Commission.

In this example, the next four lines list the names of the polling places that have been transferred from the old electorate of Bega to the new. Where one of the transferred booths has been divided, a percentage figure is included next to the booth name. The percentage of Declaration votes transferred is indicated in the same way.

The column headed VOTES is the total votes transferred, and includes informal votes. It is not the sum of the formal votes on the line. Note that because of ballot papers with 'exhausted' preferences, the total primary and two-party preferred votes may not be equal. A total of votes and percentage votes for each party is provided, representing the sum of the booth and declaration votes transferred. A total is provided for each old electorate from which electors have been transferred, as well as a total vote for the new electorate.

Independent Held Seats

It is impossible to be certain of support for the six sitting Independent MPs in areas added to their electorates. An attempt has been made to calculate possible new margins for these seats, and details can be found on page 71. These estimates are highly speculative and should be treated with caution. Similar two-candidate estimates are provided for the electorates of Balmain and Marrickville, which based on 2003 results would finish as a contest between Labor and Green candidates.

By-Elections

The results of the Dubbo by-election have NOT been incorporated into the analysis in this publication.

Name	Margin	Name	Margin
Lachlan	NAT 21.2	Goulburn	LIB 4.5
Southern Highlands	LIB 7.6	Wollondilly	ALP 4.6

Note: At opposite ends of the Hume Highway, Lachlan has been abolished in the rural mid-west while Wollondilly has been created on Sydney's south-west fringe. This has involved the city of Goulburn being removed from Burrinjuck and a new seat called Goulburn being created. As the old seat of Southern Highlands has roughly been divided between Goulburn and Wollondilly, it is shown as an abolished seat while Goulburn and Wollondilly are new seats. It could be argued that Goulburn is Southern Highlands re-named.

Re-named Electorates (8)

Note: The re-drawing of the boundaries around Gosford means that while a seat called Gosford remains, the old Gosford has been re-named Terrigal, while the old electorate of Peats has effectively been re-named Gosford. That is why Gosford appears in both columns of the above table. It is underlined to highlight this change in party status.

ESTIMATED TWO-CANDIDATE PREFERRED MARGINS

Estimated two-candidate preferred margins have been calculated by first adjusting primary votes in areas added to electorates. In the tables that follow, the preliminary totals are taken from the tables on previous pages, while the adjusted totals have been calculated as explained in the accompanying notes. After adjusting the primary totals, estimated two-candidate preferred margins have been calculated using the published distributions of preferences from the 2003 election.

BALMAIN

Estimated Labor margin versus Greens : 7.1%

Primary votes from Port Jackson and Drummoyne have been accumulated and a two-candidate preferred margin calculated by distributing votes according to the published distribution of preferences for Port Jackson. Primary totals have not been adjusted, as the same parties contested both seats.

DUBBO

Estimated Independent margin versus National: 0.3%

Areas of Lachlan and Orange have been added to the electorate. Using a comparison of upper and lower house votes for Dubbo, 10% of the National Party primary vote in the new areas has been allocated to Independent Tony McGrane, along with 55% of the Labor vote and 25% of the Green vote. A two-candidate preferred estimate for the adjusted primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Dubbo. Note that these calculations probably underestimate the support for an Independent MP in the areas added to the electorate. (This analysis ignores the result of the Dubbo by-election.)

Preliminary Totals	33.7	43.8	15.7	2.7	4.1
Adjusted Totals	37.6	42.6	13.2	2.6	4.0

MANLY

Estimated Independent margin versus Liberal: 1.2%

A small area from Wakehurst has been added to Manly. Using comparisons of upper and lower house votes for Manly, 10% of the Liberal primary vote in this new area has been allocated to Independent David Barr, along with 55% of the Labor vote and 45% of the Green vote. A two-candidate preferred margin for the new primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Manly.

Preliminary Totals	32.1	41.0	12.9	8.5	5.6
Adjusted Totals	33.1	40.8	12.3	8.2	5.6

MARRICKVILLE

Estimated Labor margin versus Greens: 10.0%

Small areas have been added to Marrickville from Canterbury and Bligh. The areas from Bligh include votes for Independent Clover Moore. 70% of Moore's vote has been allocated to the Greens and 30% to Labor. A two-candidate preferred margin for these new primary totals has been calculated by using the published distribution of preferences for Marrickville.

Adjusted Totals	48.0	29.2	12.8	0.0	10.1

NORTHERN TABLELANDS

Estimated Independent Margin versus National: 30.0%

Areas of Barwon and Tamworth have been added to the electorate. Using a comparison of upper and lower house votes for Northern Tablelands, 60% of the National Party primary vote in the area added from Barwon has been allocated to Independent Richard Torbay, along with 80% of the Labor vote. For the Tamworth areas, votes for Independent Peter Draper have been added to Torbay's total. A two-candidate preferred margin for these new primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Northern Tablelands.

PORT MACQUARIE

Estimated Independent Margin versus National: 31.9%

Areas from Oxley have been added to the electorate. Using a comparison of upper and lower house votes for Port Macquarie, 62.5% of the National Party primary vote in the areas added has been allocated to Independent Rob Oakeshott, along with 75% of the Labor vote and 45% of the Green vote. A two-candidate preferred margin for these new primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Port Macquarie.

SYDNEY

Estimated Independent Margin versus Labor: 15.0%

Along with the name change from Bligh to Sydney, areas have been added from Heffron and Port Jackson. Using a comparison of upper and lower house votes for Bligh, 40% of the Labor Party primary vote in the areas added has been allocated to Independent Clover Moore, along with 25% of the Liberal vote and 50% of the Green vote. A two-candidate preferred margin for these new primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Bligh.

TAMWORTH

Estimated Independent Margin versus National: 1.9%

Areas from Barwon and Upper Hunter have been added to the electorate. Using a comparison of upper and lower house votes for Tamworth, 17% of the National Party primary vote in the areas added has been allocated to Independent Peter Draper, along with 55% of the Labor vote. A two-candidate preferred margin for these new primary vote totals has been calculated using the published distribution of preferences for Tamworth. Note that these calculations probably underestimate the support for the Independent MP in the areas added to the electorate.
