 767. Was not the timber ordered according to the drawings, and then found to be useless without building a stone or brick wall as a foundation? Yes.
 768. With reference to Mr. Drewett—do you consider him to be a proper person to have charge of a room; you say he is nervous and eccentric in his character? I do not.
 769. Is he a disagreeable person to work with? At times.
 770. Have you known him to be often absent from the office? Yes.
 771. Have you ever known his pay to be stopped for being absent? It never was stopped.
 772. Have you been absent from the office? Yes.
 773. Was your pay stopped? Yes.
 774. How many days were you absent? Two days.
 775. Were you ill at the time? Yes.
 776. Did you produce a doctor's certificate? No.
 777. Your two days' pay was stopped because you were absent? Yes.
 778. During your experience as a public officer, have you ever known the pay of any one to be stopped for absence? My father's pay was stopped, and Mr. Fearnside's pay was stopped once.*

779.

* Revised:—My father was the only one excepting Mr. Fearnside; he was paid by the day, consequently all holidays were stopped.

779. Have you known any other person's pay to be stopped? No.
780. Is it the rule in your department for the officers to have free tickets for the railway? It is not now; it was when I was first connected with the railway; a free pass was considered as a portion of the salary.
781. The free pass was afterwards cancelled, and you had to pay the same as other persons? No, I was then residing at Newtown, but I moved over to the North Shore, and the free pass being then of no use I gave it up.
782. Do you know whether free passes are now withheld from all persons connected with the department? Yes.
783. Was Mr. Mann frequently absent from the office? Yes, very frequently.
784. When you say very frequently, was it four or five or ten times a year? Oftener than that; he has been away a week at a time.
785. For eight or ten times in a year? I should think so.
786. Did you ever know his pay to be stopped during the time he was absent? It was never stopped.

Mr. W. A.
Trenrouse.

20 Oct., 1863.

FRIDAY, 27 NOVEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. ARNOLD,
MR. DALGLEISH,

MR. MORRIS,
MR. TIGHE.

J. LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Rae, Esq., again called in, and farther examined:—

787. By the Chairman: Can you give the Committee a statement of the estimated cost of the Menangle Bridge, and of the actual cost, shewing the extra works over the specification, and the amount paid for the extra works? I will furnish it to the Committee. (Vide Appendix.)
788. You have in your office two sets of plans for the Campbelltown extension, one prepared by Mr. Brady, and one by Mr. Whitton and his staff? Yes.
789. Will you furnish the Committee with both sets of those plans? Yes.
790. In furnishing the Committee with plans of Menangle Bridge, have you also sent in plans for the iron work, or merely plans prepared in this Colony for the piers? I cannot state without referring; but whatever I have in the office on the subject I shall be happy to furnish.
791. Will you also state whether these plans were designed and made in the Colony, or whether they were sent from Great Britain; if they were prepared in the Colony, the name of the officer who planned them? Yes.
792. The working plans of the extension on the Northern line, from Singleton to Lochinvar, have you them in the office? I presume so.
793. Have you the working plans from Blacktown to Penrith in your office? I presume so; I will furnish all, so far as I possibly can.
794. Will you furnish the Committee with the names of the whole of the officers in your department, the dates when they entered the department, the salaries they received when they entered, the amounts of increases received, and the dates of such increases? Yes. (Vide Appendix.)
795. Will you also state the names of those who were employed in the Railway Office, before the railway was handed over to Government? Yes.
796. Have you a time-book in your office? There was one, I believe, for some time, but it was given up.
797. Why? I am not aware that there was any particular reason. I would not say positively that it was ever in use since the separation of the Department of Lands and Works; it was talked of, and intended to be carried into operation, but was never carried out, I believe, since then.
798. For some considerable time it was there? Yes; I think it fell into disuse, as many things of the kind do. I know of no particular reason for it.
799. Was it through not being looked after? Yes, I think so; it has been spoken of recently again; it has been suggested that we should have it.
800. There is a time-book in most other public offices? It is not general in the public offices, I believe; but since Mr. Holroyd has been appointed it has been talked of as advisable in our office.
801. The returns which have been sent in with reference to special trains are not so complete as the Committee desired—you cannot give the names of the persons who ordered them? I cannot; but I have given instructions that, in future, an account shall be kept of the names of those who order special trains.
802. Has it not been kept at the railway stations? It has not. I got the information as to the number of special trains used from Mr. Scott, who stated that it had not been considered necessary to keep an account of the names. The moneys received by the accountant were accounted for in the same way as any other money—so much money for special trains; but I may mention that special trains are never given gratuitously to any party, the Governor or any one else, except when used for railway purposes; for instance, if His Excellency opens a new line I call that for railway purposes.

John Rae,
Esq.

27 Nov., 1863.

- John Rae, Esq.
27 Nov., 1863.
803. Supposing a special train is ordered for the Governor? If the Governor wants a special train he pays the same as any one else.
804. Supposing it is ordered by the Minister? Supposing it is ordered by the Minister; if the Governor is invited upon some public occasion, such as the opening of a line, of course he does not pay.
805. Is an account kept of it? An account is kept of the train, but no money is paid.
806. Have you given a list of such trains? Of every special train; every train out of the ordinary course is included in that return.

Mr. William Anthony Trengrouse again called in and farther examined:—

- Mr. W. A. Trengrouse.
27 Nov., 1863.
807. By the Chairman: How long was your father absent from duty? I think two days.
808. Was he ill? Yes.
809. Mr. Barton I believe has good health? Very good health.
810. Have you ever seen Mr. Drewett copying drawings from books? Yes.
811. What drawings were they? Bridges principally.
812. Who has charge of the drawings? Mr. Drewett has charge of some; my father had charge of all the working plans; my father was continually using these working plans for descriptions and notices.
813. Are the whole of the plans in the office accessible to the officers? Not the whole of them; a great many of them were locked up—I do not know for what reason.
814. What plans were they? Trial surveys; some plans my father did were put away, because they should not be seen.
815. What drawings were they? Drawings of the Campbelltown extension.
816. Are the plans properly kept? No.
817. Have you known considerable time to be lost in searching for particular plans? I have known days to be lost, and then the plans not found.
818. If the plans were properly kept you would be able to lay your hand upon them directly? Yes.
819. Are most of the plans so badly kept? All except the working plans.
820. Were not a large number of the plans of trial surveys of the different lines, previous to the arrival of Mr. Whitton, executed by your father? Yes, most of them.
821. Have these plans been used since? Yes.
822. Were they generally found to be correct? Yes.
823. Do you know by whom those surveys were made? Mr. Rowland and Mr. Twynam.
824. Are those persons employed in the department now? I think Mr. Twynam is a surveyor in the Lands Office.
825. Where is the other? I cannot say.
826. Do you know why he left? I do not know. Mr. Brady did a great many of the plans as well.
827. Who are engaged in the trial surveys at the present time? Messrs. Mann, Burrows, Micklethwait, and a great many of the sappers are out.
828. Is not Mr. Barton supposed to have charge of those surveys? Mr. Barton is supposed to have charge of the trial surveys.
829. Does not he spend much of his time in Sydney? The greater portion of his time.
830. Is it not supposed that the person who has charge of trial surveys should spend the greater portion of his time in the field instead of in Sydney? Yes.
831. Have you any idea what time he has been in Sydney during the present year? I could not say. During the time I was in the Works Department he was there nearly the whole of the time.
832. And you left in May? Yes.
833. Do you know whether he attends pretty regularly at the usual hour in the morning? No, he does not.
834. What are the office hours at that office? 9 is the proper hour to go there, and 4 to leave.
835. What is the usual time at which Mr. Barton makes his appearance? At 10, half-past 10, and 11.
836. At what hour used he to leave? At any time he thought proper.
837. Have you known him to be absent the whole day? Yes.
838. During the time he was in Sydney? Yes.
839. I presume when he is in Sydney he is expected to attend at the office? Yes.
840. Have you heard that he has been enjoying himself upon the harbour in a sailing-boat during the time that he should have been engaged in his duty at the office? Yes.
841. Do you know that he keeps a boat for his pleasure? Yes.
842. And uses it during office hours? Yes.
843. Do you know who has charge of the trial surveys during his absence? I cannot say. I suppose it is left with the parties out in the field.
844. I understand that Mr. Barton has charge of the whole of the trial surveys connected with the three different lines? With the whole of them.
845. Have you ever been engaged on plans laid before the Executive Council for their approval? Yes.
846. Have you much difficulty in compiling them? Sometimes.
847. Have you found them incorrect as to lengths? Yes.
848. Have you ever known those plans disagree with the working plans? Yes, most of them disagree.

849. Whose fault is that? I should say it was Mr. Barton's fault.
850. How did you get over the difficulty? In the best way I could.
851. Did you succeed in getting over it? I could never make the plans agree one with the other; you are told to do one thing and you have to do it.
852. Suppose you complain of their not agreeing? I did complain about it in one case, and I was told to follow the centre line of the railway.
853. Did that bring you right? No, a long way out. There was land proclaimed on one side of the road that was not required at all; the line was not within half a mile of it.
854. Who prepared this trial survey? These plans were made from two different surveys, both done by the sappers.
855. Under whose direction? I could not say.
856. Who had charge of the sappers at the time? I think Sergeant Quodding.
857. How long was this ago? I do not know the time. I know they were done by the sappers; they were old plans.
858. Have you had anything to do with the recent extensions from Picton to Goulburn, and Penrith to Bathurst? Yes.
859. Have you found those trial surveys correct? I found mistakes in the surveys from Penrith to Bathurst, towards Shepherd's toll-bar.
860. In what respect have they been incorrect? On one plan land has been taken on the other side the road that has not been required, because the land on the working plan did not come up to the road for half a mile.
861. Have you found any other mistake? There have been a great many mistakes as regards the mileage.
862. Is that of great importance? There have been several chains left out, between one contract and another. The mileage has commenced one mile from Penrith on the plans.
863. Then there was a gap? A gap of some few chains between one. I do not know the number of the contract; it was up at Penrith.
864. The levels might differ so much as to render it almost impossible to continue the lines? I could not say about the levels.
865. Supposing there is a gap—supposing one contract stops at a given point, and the survey for the next contract commences several chains from that—in a country so mountainous as the western country may there not be a great difference in the levels? Yes; but then there was one contract made to such a point, and the drawings did not shew that point was to be again taken up—the whole of the survey or mileage being omitted from Proctor's lane to the other side of the Nepean River, being several chains in length.
866. Was it included in the trial survey? I do not know.
867. What width of land is generally surveyed upon the line, or what width is plotted on the plans? On the Western Road, about three miles.
868. Then the whole of this three miles is surveyed across the line? Yes.
869. At what intervals? At every chain; sometimes at every half chain.
870. Right up the line? Yes.
871. Does that occur throughout the whole of the line? Yes.
872. Do you know whether short lengths have been taken, or whether there were any cross sections taken at all? No, it is generally taken at every chain, or where the country is very rough at every half chain, or even less.
873. I believe you did not give any evidence before Mr. Whitton? No, I believe Mr. Whitton said it was not fair to Mr. Hall I should give any evidence.
874. Why? I cannot state the reason. My father told Mr. Whitton his son knew as much as, if not more than, himself, and that he had better give his evidence. Mr. Whitton's reply was, that it would not be fair to Mr. Hall to have me up.
875. Did you not, for years, have a free pass on the railway? Yes.
876. Do you get that pass now? Not now.
877. Did you ever hear of a fight taking place between Mr. Hall and Mr. Dearing? Yes.
878. Was that during office hours? Yes, about 12 in the morning.
879. Were you examined before Mr. Arnold? Yes.
880. Did you give Mr. Arnold any information with reference to that fight between Mr. Hall and Mr. Dearing? I think I did. I will not be certain.
881. What was the cause of that fight? I cannot state the cause of the fight exactly; I was not in the room at the time; I was up-stairs when we heard the row.
882. Did you go and see what was the matter? No, we heard the stools knocked over; and in the course of the day I heard that Mr. Hall had a fight with Mr. Dearing; Mr. Dearing's lip was cut and bled; I believe they fought three rounds.
883. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you see a letter in the newspaper, signed by Mr. Dearing, denying that he ever fought in the office? I heard about it, but I did not see it.
884. Stating that what Mr. Gardiner had written, about fighting taking place in the office, was false? I did not see it, I heard them talking about it; but it is true that the fight did take place.
885. By the Chairman: You have no doubt about that? I am sure of it. Mr. Dearing wanted to state that the fight took place after office hours, but I never stopped after 4 o'clock; and Mr. Dearing that afternoon walked with me as far as King-street, and said he thought of speaking to Mr. Whitton about it.
886. At what time did it occur? About 12 o'clock in the morning.
887. Did you ever hear of any other fight? No.
888. Between Mr. Goodchap? Yes, there was a fight between him and Mr. Forde.
889. Do you know at what time this occurred? I think after lunch time.
890. Did Mr. Goodchap or Mr. Forde indulge in spirits or wine do you know? I cannot say; I was never much connected with Mr. Goodchap or Mr. Forde.

Mr. W. A.
Trenrouse.
27 Nov., 1863.

- Mr. W. A. Trengrouse.
27 Dec., 1863.
891. Do you know what was the cause of quarrel? It was a disturbance about which room they were to have, when we were removing from the old to the new offices.
892. Have you ever known Mr. Hall to idle away his time? Yes.
893. In conversation with the servant women in the next house? Yes.
894. Did this happen during office hours? Yes, during office hours.
895. Where was he standing? Standing on a box at the time.
896. This box was in the yard? No, in a room that was occupied by my father.
897. Was there a window which looked into the next yard? Yes.
898. And he used to occupy his time in talking to the women in the next house? Yes.
899. Did this occur often? When he had a chance.
900. Was it often—daily, weekly, or monthly? I have seen him there five or six times.
901. Was this in the long room? The room at the end of the long room.
902. How long was he thus engaged each time? Perhaps 10 minutes.
903. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall go round the room and collect money to send for drink? Yes.
904. Did this take place often? About the end of every month that took place; Mr. Hall termed it "Raising the wind."
905. Used he to send the money for drink? No.
906. Then what was the use of collecting it? He used to put the money in his pocket, and send an order for the drink.
907. From whom did he collect this money? Sometimes Mr. Fearnside would give him a shilling, and my father, to get rid of him, after he had been bothering him the whole morning, would give him a shilling. Mr. Mann would sometimes give him sixpence, and I would do the same.
908. There was a general collection? A general collection.
909. Used you to take a portion of the drink? Very seldom.
910. Did you ever? Once or twice; but I never cared about spirits in the day time.
911. Did he, after these collections, ever send for anything besides spirits? No.
912. Always for spirits? Yes.
913. Have you seen your father assist in drinking these spirits, for the purchase of which he contributed? My father has taken some with his luncheon.
914. Did your father partake of the spirits that were sent for? Yes.
915. Did you ever know him to partake of spirits, for the purchase of which he had not contributed? Yes.
916. Often? Not very often.
917. Have you ever heard that Mr. Hall had been charged with committing a serious offence? Yes.
918. While he should have been engaged in the performance of his duty? Yes.
919. Do you know what was the nature of the offence? Rape, I believe it was.
920. Have you ever heard that a similar offence was attempted by him near South Creek? Yes.
921. Did Mr. Hall refuse to go on the line for sometime after for fear of the consequences? Yes; I believe the navvies threatened him.
922. If they caught him on the line they would serve him out? Yes.
923. Have you ever seen Mr. Barton and Mr. Hall drinking together? Yes.
924. Was that during office hours? Yes, from one window to another; Mr. Barton was up-stairs, and Mr. Hall in the long-room.
925. Pledging each other? Yes.
926. Were they drinking spirits? Mr. Hall had spirits; I cannot say what Mr. Barton had.
927. Have you any doubt what Mr. Hall was drinking? I know Mr. Hall was drinking spirits.
928. At what time was that? In the morning.
929. Was it after Mr. Gardiner had complained of Mr. Hall's conduct—of his drinking in the office? Yes, about two or three days after that.
930. Was it in consequence of Mr. Hall's having succeeded in upsetting the complaint made by Mr. Gardiner? I think it was done out of bravado, on their part.
931. Have you any means of knowing that Mr. Whitton was aware of this drinking going on in the office? He was aware of it; he spoke to Mr. Hall about it only three weeks after Mr. Hall was engaged in the office.
932. Have you heard him speak to any one in the office about it? Yes, he spoke to Mr. Micklethwait; he stated in the office that Mr. Whitton said he would not have spirits brought into the office.
933. Did you hear him? I heard Mr. Micklethwait mention it in the office.
934. Do you think Mr. Whitton was aware that they often had drink in the office? Yes.
935. Was it generally known in the office? It was known in the whole office.
936. That Mr. Hall used to drink a great deal of spirits? Yes.
937. Have you been witness of any other ungentlemanly conduct on the part of Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait? The conversation has been disgraceful sometimes.
938. Anything else besides conversation? Ransacking drawers.
939. In what manner? On one occasion I had a lot of private papers in my drawers—I had to leave my room for a few minutes to go to my father, when Mr. Hall took off his boots, went to my drawers, which he ransacked, and read my private letters.
940. Did you complain of this conduct? No, I did not speak about it.
941. Why not? It was of no use. Mr. Whitton would not take any notice of it.
942. Did you ever complain to Mr. Whitton? I did once or twice, and I found out that Mr. Whitton did speak to Mr. Hall once about his conduct to me.

943. Was he generally offensive to you? Not to me only, but to most in the office.
944. Mr. Hall? Yes.
945. Mr. Micklethwait? Mr. Micklethwait was a pleasant person to be with.
946. Do you know of any survey that was made between Sydney and Parramatta, for the purpose of disproving Mr. Brady's integrity? Yes.
947. By whom was this survey made? By Mr. Micklethwait.
948. By whose directions? Mr. Whitton's, I suppose.
949. Do you know anything of Mr. Gardiner's ability—what were his duties in the office? The first time he was in the office he was employed in getting out designs of bridges.
950. Do you consider him to be of a quarrelsome temper? No, he was very quiet.
951. Have you ever seen him drink in the office? Never; I have only seen him take water.
952. Is he not very quick in making calculations? Very quick.
953. Have you had an opportunity of seeing Mr. Robertson's work? Yes.
954. Is he a good draftsman? He is a very good draftsman.
955. Is he attentive to his duties? He is.
956. Does he attend regularly? Yes.
957. Have you ever known him to be absent on any occasion from the office? Never, without leave.
958. Have you known him to be called on to check quantities when Mr. Drewett could not? Yes.
959. On more than one occasion? On two or three occasions I have known him to be called in.
960. Do you know what was the work? It was taking out quantities for bridges.
961. Mr. Drewett was receiving a salary of —? £500 a year.
962. And Mr. Robertson was receiving a salary of —? I think £100.
963. Did Mr. Robertson ever check your quantities? Not that I am aware of.
964. Are there any drawings in the office done by yourself or by Mr. Robertson? Yes.
965. Can you name them? The Menangle viaduct; Mr. Robertson did the greater part of the detail.
966. Is Mr. Robertson as good a draftsman as Mr. Drewett? I consider him a much better and neater draftsman.
967. Is he as good a mathematician? I think Mr. Drewett understands very little of mathematics.
968. Does Mr. Robertson? He is a mathematician.
969. In what then is Mr. Robertson inferior to Mr. Drewett? I do not think him inferior; I think he is much superior.
970. Although Mr. Drewett is receiving £500 a year and Mr. Robertson £100? —
971. How long has Mr. Robertson been in the office? I think about three years.
972. He entered at £52 a year? Yes.
973. How long did he remain before his salary was increased to £100? I think his increase commenced last year.
974. Do you know of any of the junior clerks entering the office at £150 a year? There is one, I believe, on the present estimate. I cannot say that there are any others.
975. Do you know of any junior clerk having entered at £100 a year? No.
976. Can you shew any of the works of Mr. Robertson and of yourself? (Plans and elevations of the Menangle viaduct were exhibited to the witness who marked the drawings made by himself and Mr. Robertson.)
977. One set of plans is not taken out by one draftsman and completed by him? No.
978. For instance, you have had to do with most of the plans on the different lines? Yes.
979. And Mr. Robertson has also? —
980. And Mr. Drewett? He does very little in that way.
981. What does Mr. Drewett do? Most of his time is spent in running up and down stairs and talking.
982. Is he considered the head of the room? He is considered the head of the draftsmen.
983. And gets the highest salary? Yes.
984. Have you had an opportunity of knowing anything of Mr. Micklethwait's habits? In what respect?
985. Drinking? I have seen a little, but he is not in town much.
986. Is he in the field? In the field.
987. Have you seen any of his work? I have seen a little of it, not much.
988. Do those persons who are engaged as surveyors in the field send in an ordinary amount of work? No.
989. Is it considered in the office that those gentlemen who are in the field do as much work as they certainly ought to do? I cannot say. There is not any* work sent in from the field.
990. Do you know how many there are in the field? I could not state; there are a great many sappers out.
991. Have you ever seen Mr. Micklethwait drinking in the office during office hours? Yes.
992. Often? Yes, always when he is in town.
993. Always drinking in the office? Yes.
994. Have you known him to drink to such an excess that he was unable to go on with his work? Yes, and to be obliged to go home on account of it.
995. At what hour in the day? Two or three in the afternoon, ashamed to be seen in the office.

Mr. W. A.
Trengrouse.

27 Nov., 1863.

* Revised :—Very little.

- Mr. W. A. Trengrouse.
27 Nov., 1863.
996. How used he to go—did any one take him home? No, he staggered along by himself from the office.
997. Have you known this to occur often? Not very often.
998. Do you know Mr. Gardiner's statement with regard to his drinking to be correct? Quite correct.
999. Have you ever seen any of the work brought in by Mr. Micklethwait? I have seen a portion of a section done by him at Singleton—a few miles.
1000. How was that performed—creditably? Far from it.
1001. Was it correct? I could not say.
1002. Had you anything to do with it? I had to make a tracing of it.
1003. Then you did not test the accuracy of his work? No.
1004. Has he charge of a staff of men? Yes.
1005. Do you know how many? I do not.
1006. Have you ever heard of him that he drank hard? I was out with him a short time when he was making a survey of the Sydney line to Parramatta.
1007. Used he to drink then? Yes.
1008. Have you seen him in the field so as to be incapable of performing his duty? Not in the field.
1009. Have you ever known him neglect his work in consequence? He has left off work early and let the men go.
1010. At what time? Perhaps 3 or 4 in the afternoon.
1011. You have not known him absent himself a whole day from his work? No.
1012. Were there not plans in the office done by Mr. Rowland and Mr. Twynam? Yes.
1013. Shewing the surveys of the Northern line? Yes.
1014. For beyond the present extension of railways? Yes.
1015. Were those surveys completed before the present staff arrived in the Colony? Yes.
1016. Were those gentlemen first-class surveyors? Yes.
1017. Were these plans well executed? They were.
1018. Were they much used in the office? Frequently in use.
1019. Have these surveys been adopted? In some cases, I think.
1020. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is there much variation from their surveys in the present line? I could not state; I have never compared them.
1021. By the Chairman: Have you ever seen any contractors give money to any person in the office to send out for drink? Yes.
1022. What was his name? Mr. Croshaw.
1023. To whom did he give it? To Mr. Hall.
1024. Have you seen this only once? Only once.
1025. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he give the money to Mr. Hall, or throw it on the table? He threw it on the table and Mr. Hall took it.
1026. Have you seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Fearnside drinking in the office? Yes.
1027. By Mr. Morris: At other than luncheon times? Yes.
1028. By the Chairman: Did Mr. Hall send the money for this drink—do you know at what part of the month this was? I could not say; there were a great many contractors in the room at the time.
1029. Do you know any of their names? No, I do not.
1030. Had the contractors to come into this long-room to make out the quantities? Yes.
1031. Of course they got mixed up with the draftsmen? Yes.
1032. And they enjoyed themselves all together? Yes.
1033. How much money did Mr. Croshaw throw on the table? Half-a-crown.
1034. You say you have seen Mr. Fearnside and Mr. Mackay drinking during office hours? Yes.
1035. Have you ever known Mr. Mackay to be kept from the office through drink? Yes.
1036. For what period? I have known him to be away for a day.
1037. More than once? Once or twice.
1038. What were Mr. Mackay's duties in the office? Assisting Mr. Hall.
1039. What were Mr. Hall's duties? Architectural drawing.
1040. That consists in drawing railway stations? Yes.
1041. That is the whole of the architectural drawing he has to do with? Yes.
1042. Who does the most towards those drawings—Mr. Hall or Mr. Mackay? Mr. Mackay does the principal part.
1043. What does Mr. Hall do? Take out the quantities and write the specification.
1044. I presume the specifications are mere copies one of another? Copies.
1045. A boy just out of school could copy one in a day? There would be a little alteration about the size of the timbers.
1046. A schoolboy could write the quantity in a day? Yes.
1047. With reference to taking out quantities—have you known Mr. Hall to be a week or ten days taking out quantities in a station? I could not say the time; I have known him to be a long time.
1048. Was the time he was occupied in taking out quantities, noticed throughout the office? Yes.
1049. It is a very simple thing to take out quantities—could you not do it in a few hours? Yes.
1050. Has not Mr. Hall, previously to the present time, received the praise for doing these drawings? Yes.
1051. Does Mr. Mackay attend to his duties? No.
1052. Is he slow at his work? Yes, very slow.

1053. With whom did you see Mr. Fearnside drink in office hours? Mr. Hall.
 1054. With any one else? No.
 1055. Have you seen him in such a state as not to be fit to do his duty? I have not.
 1056. Have you ever seen him in the small room at the end of the office conversing with women? No.
 1057. What were Mr. Fearnside's duties? Getting plans and sections ready for the contractors—taking out the quantities.
 1058. He does not draw plans? He finishes them.
 1059. Is he not one of the sappers? He is.
 1060. What salary does he receive? £300 a year I think.
 1061. What are Mr. Doherty's duties in the office? Principally tracing.
 1062. He is not a very good draftsman? Passable.
 1063. Not so good a draftsman as either Mr. Robertson or Mr. Drewett? No.
 1064. Is he not considered a good field engineer? I believe he is.
 1065. Have you heard it stated in the office that he was? I have heard Mr. Gardiner talking about it.
 1066. Do you know whether he was ever sent into the field? Not while he was in the Works Department.
 1067. Do you know whether he was engaged in the field on railways in America? He was I believe; I believe he was chief engineer on a line in America.
 1068. Have you ever seen him drink in the office? Occasionally.
 1069. Is he attentive to his duties generally? Yes.
 1070. Have you seen him drink to the extent of not being able to perform his duties? No.
 1071. Have you seen him come into the office late in the day, and leave early in the afternoon? No.
 1072. Have you known him to be absent from the office for any time? No.
 1073. Do you know if your father has spoken to Mr. Whitton about this drinking in the office? He has.
 1074. Have you heard the answer he got? Yes, to mind his own business.
 1075. By Mr. Arnold: You heard that answer from Mr. Whitton? Not from Mr. Whitton.
 1076. By the Chairman: Did you hear it about the time that your father made the complaint to Mr. Whitton? Directly my father came from him he spoke about it.
 1077. Your father had been to complain to Mr. Whitton, and when he came back to the long-room he said, that was the reply given by Mr. Whitton? Yes.
 1078. You have already said that you had occasion to complain, and did not get a satisfactory answer? Yes.
 1079. Was there a gentleman there of the name of Budgeman? Yes.
 1080. Where is he now? In England at present.
 1081. Do you know why he left the service? He could not put up with Mr. Whitton's conduct.
 1082. In what way? He was such a very hasty temper.
 1083. Looking to the number of persons engaged in your office do you think they have done a fair proportion of work? No.
 1084. Do you know how long Mr. Drewett was engaged on the plans he made for the Menangle viaduct? I could not say; the drawings have been in hand three years.
 1085. Do the officers keep a journal of the work on which they are engaged? Yes.
 1086. I suppose Mr. Drewett's journal will shew the time he has been engaged on these drawings? Yes.
 1087. Did Mr. Drewett make up the quantities of the Menangle viaduct? I think not.
 1088. Who made up the quantities? I cannot say.
 1089. Did Mr. Gardiner make up the quantities? I do not know.
 1090. Did you make out the quantities of your own drawings? Sometimes.
 1091. Of the drawings you made of the Menangle? Of the wood work.
 1092. Do you know of large quantities of earth being removed from a cutting near Menangle Bridge, and finding that a mistake had been made, of its being taken back again? I do not.
 1093. Were the designs of the Menangle Bridge made here or in England? I could not say.
 1094. The whole of the designs of the iron work were made in England—were they not? There were some tracings sent out from England with regard to the Menangle viaduct, but I could not say what they were for; I only just caught sight of them.
 1095. Where are those tracings? Still in the office.
 1096. Do you know anything about the weight of iron required for bridges of a certain strength? No, I never had occasion to go into it.
 1097. Do you know any gentleman in the office who can calculate the strength of iron bridges? Mr. Gardiner is the only one I believe in the office.
 1098. Does it not require—in laying the permanent way in a curve—some nice calculation to know the proper height to elevate the outer rail? Yes.
 1099. Is there any person in the office who could make that calculation? I cannot say.
 1100. Is it not the fact that the tramway had to be taken up no fewer than four times, simply because there was not an officer in the department who could make the proper calculation? I do not know.
 1101. Is it not the fact that the tramway was taken up four times? I could not say.
 1102. Were you not in the habit of going over the Pitt-street tramway? Very seldom.
 1103. I thought you lived at Newtown? I did, but I have not within the last two years.
 1104. By Mr. Morris: In what way are you employed in the Survey Department? In compiling maps.
 1105. Has any other work been sent to you? Yes.

Mr. W. A.
Trengrouse.

27 Nov., 1863.

1106.

- Mr. W. A. Trengrouse.
27 Nov., 1863.
1106. What description of work? I have not been doing any work of any consequence—I have been doing all sorts of work.
1107. Have you been able to perform all the work that has ever been sent to you? Yes.
1108. Has any work been sent to you that you have been found incompetent to perform? Not any.
1109. Nothing with regard to plotting work from a surveyor's book? No.
1110. Are you competent to plot work from a surveyor's book? I have had very little to do with that; I had a little of it while I was in the Work's Department.
1111. In your evidence you say that there has been a great deal of drinking in the office—was not this drinking generally at the time of luncheon? Not in particular; it was as much in the morning and afternoon as at the time of luncheon.
1112. Do the officers go out to lunch, or have they it in the office? In the office—some go out.
1113. Is it the rule of the office to go out, or to have it in the office? They are not allowed to go out.
1114. Is it the practice to go out, in the Land's Department? We are allowed to go out in the Lands.
1115. By Mr. Dalgleish: In the Works they drank at any time they could get it? Yes.
1116. By Mr. Morris: In the Lands Office there is no drinking at all? Never.
1117. Is it a harder worked department than the Works? Much harder.
1118. By Mr. Dalgeish: Does Mr. Drewett spend much time in reading the newspaper? Yes.
1119. And in conversing on politics? Yes.
1120. By Mr. Tighe: You said Mr. Hall refused to go upon some line—to whom did he make the refusal? He spoke to them in the office—I do not know whether he spoke to Mr. Whitton.
1121. Did he speak to any superior, who had authority, or did he merely state that he did not wish to go? He stated it in the long room.
1122. He stated that he had refused to go? Yes.
1123. That he had refused Mr. Whitton? Yes.
1124. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you remember when Mr. Gardiner was first engaged in the Works Department? Yes.
1125. What work was he then engaged upon? Designing bridges.
1126. In what kind of way did he execute that work? Very well indeed.
1127. Are those designs of bridges still in existence? I cannot say.
1128. Were they adopted? I cannot say.
1129. At that time were the railways projected to be carried out on a much more expensive scale? Yes.
1130. Were his designs for first-class lines? Yes.
1131. Did you ever hear his work found fault with during the time you were in the office? No.
1132. Had you an opportunity of hearing if it had been? Yes.
1133. Was Mr. Whitton in the habit of visiting the room in which he was engaged? Yes.
1134. Was Mr. Whitton in the habit of visiting the room where Mr. Gardiner was employed, when he was engaged the second time as a tracer? Very seldom; perhaps he was not down for two or three months.
1135. On the other occasion, when he was there in the first instance, and engaged in designing bridges, Mr. Whitton was frequently with him, examining the work he was employed upon? Yes.
1136. Were they iron bridges that Mr. Gardiner was engaged in preparing? Iron bridges.
1137. Have you seen any of the work that was performed by Mr. Gardiner when he was employed by the Lands Department? No.
1138. Is Mr. Gardiner, from your knowledge, capable of plotting from a surveyor's book? He is.
1139. Is he a correct draftsman—surveyor's draftsman? I could not say.
1140. From what you have seen of his work you would say that he is a neat mechanical draftsman? He is.
1141. How do you account for a person capable of performing such work as Mr. Gardiner was, being kept to tracing? I could not say.
1142. Do you think it was because he could not do any better? No, it was not on account of that.
1143. Simply as a means of obtaining a living? Just to get a living he took it.
1144. You say you never saw Mr. Gardiner take anything in the office but water? Never anything but water and biscuits.
1145. Have you ever heard him promoting a quarrel between other people, or quarrelling with other people himself? No.
1146. Was he not rather of a jocular disposition? Yes.
1147. When persons in the office were almost inclined to quarrel would he not turn the subject of contention into a joke? He would try and pass it off.
1148. Was he in any respect of a quarrelsome disposition? I never saw him so.
1149. You have had ample opportunity of judging? Yes.
1150. You have known other persons to quarrel and fight in the office, but have never known Mr. Gardiner to do so? Yes. Sometimes Mr. Hall would press Mr. Micklethwait on, and one word would bring on another, and then the two would pitch on Mr. Gardiner, and have a fight or quarrel. Mr. Gardiner would simply turn round and go on with his work.
1151. You were not in the office during the greater part of Mr. Gardiner's engagement in the long-room? No.

1152. This back room you describe as being the one in which your father was at one time employed, is the room in which Mr. Hall and Mr. Fearnside have been described as sitting on the ruins of Carthage? Yes. Mr. W. A. Trengrouse.
1153. Was it understood by this that they were sitting there in a state of stupid drunkenness? Yes. 27 Nov., 1863.
1154. Have you seen these persons sitting in this little room, and heard Mr. Hall described as Marius sitting on the ruins of Carthage? Yes.
1155. In what condition were they when they thus sat? Mr. Hall was anything but sober. Mr. Fearnside—I could not say that he was drunk—but he was not far from it.
1156. Was Mr. Hall in the habit of making indecent gestures, and using indecent expressions in the office? Yes, frequently.
1157. By Mr. Tighe: Was Mr. Whitton aware of that? I could not say.
1158. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you seen him using a stick in an indecent manner? Yes, I have.
1159. Has he made indecent and improper observations to the girls? Yes.
1160. If Mr. Gardiner has complained about Mr. Hall using indecent expressions, is that complaint substantially correct? Yes, it is.
1161. He has been guilty of making obscene motions to these girls when they have been in the shed? Yes.
1162. The girls had no escape from his obscenity except by going into the house? No.
1163. Have you known them to complain? I could not say.
1164. By Mr. Arnold: Who were these women? I cannot say. They were servants at the next house.
1165. Are they there now? I cannot say.
1166. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are perfectly sure that a charge of rape was preferred against Mr. Hall at Penrith? Yes.
1167. Upon whom? I could not state. I have heard the young lady's name.
1168. Was it upon a navy's wife? In one case it was a navy's wife; in the other it was a respectable young person who lived in Penrith.
1169. Was he brought up at the police office in one case? Yes.
1170. By the Chairman: On the first establishment of railways in the country you and your father did the whole of the plans? Yes.
1171. That is, the whole of the plans connected with the railway from Sydney to Parramatta—thirteen miles; the extension to Liverpool—nine miles; the farther extension to Campbelltown—thirteen miles; and from Newcastle to West Maitland—twenty miles? Yes.

WEDNESDAY, 2 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. ARNOLD,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. TIGHE.
JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. John Doherty called in and examined:—

1172. By the Chairman: When did you enter the Railway Department? In August I think it was, 1862. Mr. John Doherty.
1173. Were you engaged to do any particular duties? No. 2 Dec., 1863.
1174. What kind of work were you put to? Tracing plans and sections.
1175. When seeking employment in the department, what position did you apply for? Constructing engineer or surveyor, or anything else that was to be done.
1176. Did you apply to the Engineer-in-Chief in person? I did.
1177. Did you shew him certificates which would prove you were a competent and experienced railway engineer and surveyor? I did.
1178. Did you shew him certificates as to your abilities as a draftsman or plan tracer? No, I did not; I never did much in drawing, except pencil designs of the work I had to do.
1179. Before you entered the Railway Department of New South Wales were you engaged in the field? Both in the field and in the office in America.
1180. More in the field? More in the field.
1181. Did you tell this to Mr. Whitton? I did.
1182. But you were put making tracings and drawings from the time you entered the department? Yes.
1183. What pay or salary did you get? 10s. a day.
1184. Did the Engineer-in-Chief give you to understand you were to remain at that salary? No, he told me he would give me the first position he could find that my professional abilities entitled me to.
1185. What position did he lead you to expect? After he had examined me, he told me there was a gentleman about going to the Mauritius, and if he left he would give me his position.
1186. Did he name the person? It was Mr. Barton I found out afterwards.
1187. What position did Mr. Barton occupy in the department? Engineer of surveys.
1188. And Mr. Whitton led you to believe that when Mr. Barton left the Colony he would place you in his position? Yes.
1189. He is chief engineer of trial surveys? Yes.
1190. After it was found that Mr. Barton would remain in the Colony, did Mr. Whitton make you any further promises? Not for a long time, till Mr. Drewett came to me, I think it was in July last; he never made me any promise since.
- 1191.

Mr. John
Doherty.
2 Dec., 1863.

1191. What promise was made to you then? He sent Mr. Drewett to me, after I had found some errors in work I was doing. Mr. Drewett expressed his surprise and pity—that I should remain in the department so long without having something better to do. He advised me to go and see Mr. Whitton. I told him that Mr. Whitton had my papers, and had made me promises, and that I should wait until I saw whether he was going to fulfil his promises or not.

1192. Did you hear anything further? Nothing further since, nor have I made any application.

1193. When did this occur? I think in July.

1194. Was that before or after Mr. Gardiner reported the proceedings in the office? Yes, some months after.

1195. Then they did not express any pity at the position you held until after Mr. Gardiner made his report? No, it was several months.

1196. Did you mention this to any of the other draftsmen? He told me not to mention it —

1197. Mr. Drewett told you not to mention it? Yes. I told it to Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Robertson after I had had this interview. I thought it an uncalled for thing for a draftsman to offer me any position.

1198. Are you sure he was authorized to say this—did he say he was authorized by Mr. Whitton? I am not sure, but I think he was, because afterwards he went to Mr. Whitton, and I heard them talking, but I could not hear what was said.

1199. How far were you from where they were speaking? They were in the room below, and the door was open, because it was warm weather.

1200. Had you any further conversation with Mr. Drewett about it? No.

1201. And you mentioned this directly afterwards? Yes, to Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Robertson.

1202. Did he at any future time speak to you on the subject? Never.

1203. Did you trace any iron girder bridges? Yes.

1204. Did you remark anything peculiar about the drawings? I found the plan and elevation did not agree, and I drew Mr. Drewett's attention to it, and shewed him how the defect could be remedied.

1205. Did anything further take place? I never had any more tracings to do for the bridges.

1206. By Mr. Dalgleish: They did not give you any more girders to trace? No, not after that.

1207. By the Chairman: To what did you attribute these errors? To the incompetence of the parties that did not take the tracings off properly from the other drawings that I saw them copying there.

1208. Do I understand that these were merely tracings from drawings sent from England? Yes, everything in the office was done in that way.

1209. Then all the drawings for the iron work come from England? Yes.

1210. And all the draftsman in the Works Department here does, is merely to trace off these drawings? Yes.

1211. And they made a mistake even in the tracings? Yes.

1212. After you discovered the mistake they never gave you any more tracings of that kind? No, I was put to other work—the distribution of material.

1213. Did you advise them to make the necessary alteration? Yes.

1214. Do you know whether they did it? I do not know; I suppose they did, because the thing would look so ridiculous.

1215. Have you done any other kind of work but tracing since you have been in the office? Yes, I have placed the distribution of material upon the sections.

1216. Did you remark anything peculiar in these disposal sheets? Yes.

1217. Will you inform the Committee what it was? The very long haul—placing cuttings in embankments in some places a mile distant; I thought that absurd, injurious to the contractors, and wrong every way.

1218. And not beneficial to the country? No, decidedly the other way.

1219. By Mr. Dalgleish: You objected to the length of haulage? The length of haul in taking material from cuttings into embankments. They have a rule here that I never saw adopted in any other place, of making the cuttings and embankments agree in quantity—balance each other.

1220. By the Chairman: No matter how far the haulage may be? No matter how far the haulage may be. In one place I observed the haul to be a mile and some distance; I drew Mr. Gardiner's and Mr. Robertson's attention to it; we were in the same room together.

1221. Would it not be much cheaper for the Government to make the cuttings smaller, and make up the embankments from side cuttings? That would depend on the nature of the ground.

1222. Speaking of these long hauls —? These long hauls are always injurious to the interests of any party constructing railways.

1223. What would you call moderate haulage? Half a mile.

1224. When the haul would exceed half a mile, would it not be much cheaper for the Government to make up the embankments from side cuttings, if the land in the immediate neighbourhood afforded proper material? Yes, it would be cheaper.

1225. By Mr. Dalgleish: Could you give some data to shew that it would be cheaper? I am not prepared to do that now. The habit of making the cuts and fills agree is carried out generally in England, and in all parts of the settled countries of Europe, because land is dear, and they do not wish to deface the country by making side cuts to supply the banks ; but in America, where the land is cheap —

Mr. John
Doherty.

1226. By the Chairman : Or in New South Wales ? Or in New South Wales, where land is cheap, it is an absurdity to carry material ten feet if you can do it cheaper. The plan adopted in the United States of America is to make a fixed price for a haul of half a mile, or 880 yards, and for every additional 100 yards over that length an additional penny per cubic yard ; then the next 100 yards two pence per cubic yard ; and so on, until the price of hauling becomes greater than the price of borrowing from the sides.

2 Dec., 1863.

1227. By Mr. Tighe : Does it not require more plant for these long hauls ? Of course.

1228. And therefore greater capital to take the contract ? Yes.

1229. By the Chairman : Do you know what particular contracts these disposal sheets refer to ? I do not know whether it was on the Western or Southern line, it is so long ago now.

1230. Did you inform Mr. Barton of the errors ? I did, about the disposal sheets and the profile, and shewed him how it ought to be fixed up ; he looked at it a good while, and told me to go and fix it up—that he had not time then.

1231. When did this occur ? A few days before Mr. Drewett came to me and told me I should ask Mr. Whitton for a better place than I had.

1232. Then Mr. Drewett shortly after this advised you to apply to Mr. Whitton for a better position ? Yes.

1233. Did you have anything to do with Mr. Barton's surveys ? Nothing further than seeing the plans and tracings sometimes.

1234. Did you remark anything about these plans ? Yes, the curvatures.

1235. What was peculiar ? The curves were very sharp, but probably that could not be avoided ; but the curves come in against each other without having a piece of straight line to counteract the motion of the train—to allow the train to get into equilibrium.

1236. A sort of S curve with the two ends placed together ? Yes.

1237. You think it was necessary to have a short piece of straight line to steady the train before it went on the adverse curve ? Yes, I know it is necessary.

1238. Is it not also necessary for the outside rail to be raised considerably more than the inside rail ? Yes.

1239. And therefore you cannot get into the adverse curve without a piece of straight line between the two ? No. When two reverse curves meet at a point, it is necessary that the outward rail should be elevated in each case, and between the points of junction there ought to be a straight line to allow the train to regain its equilibrium before it commences on the other curve. If not, there is an absurdity.

1240. By Mr. Dalgleish : It is not absolutely impossible to turn from one curve to the other ? No, not absolutely impossible.

1241. But it is impossible to do it at a high speed ? Yes.

1242. It is possible to do it at a slow speed ? Yes.

1243. What is the highest speed at which it would be safe to travel on such an S curve ? About eight or ten miles an hour.*

1244. Could you go as much as that ? I think you might go as much as eight or ten miles an hour, if the rails were properly elevated, but then there would have to be a piece of straight line between the two curves.

1245. Without a straight piece between the two curves, could you do it at all ? Yes, you could do it, but there would be a jerking motion in the train. They would not elevate the outside rail in that case, because if they did there would be a jog of five or six inches where the curves met.

1246. So that if you went above the pace of a bullock dray, it would be sure to throw the train off ? Yes.

1247. By the Chairman : You say you have not had anything to do with Mr. Barton's surveys ? Nothing more than seeing tracings of the plans.

1248. Is that the only objection you can find to them ? I have seen other plans that I had nothing to do with, that I could raise a great deal of objection to in the surveys ; there was four or five times too much surveying about the plans for the interest of the country.

1249. Did you point out these defects to Mr. Barton ? In the curves—no.

1250. Did you mention it to any other person in the office ? I mentioned it to Mr. Micklethwait once.

1251. He is engaged on the trial surveys ? Yes.

1252. Did you speak about it to anyone else ? I spoke of it generally in the office.

1253. Did you shew how it could be avoided ? I shewed Mr. Micklethwait.

1254. Did he think there was any need of improvement ? No ; he said they had adopted that plan, and knew what they were about.

1255. Do you think they understood what you were referring to ? I do not think Mr. Micklethwait understood what I was talking to him about.

1256. Why are you led to suppose he did not understand you ? I drew out a pencil plan of it, and when it came to the point of making trigonometrical calculations he could not do it ; he did not understand it.

1257. Was this during office hours ? Yes.

1258. Where did this occur ? In the long-room, where all the draftsmen were.

1259. When ? About the latter end of December, 1862.

1260. In what year were you first professionally engaged on railways ? I was engaged professionally in 1845 as principal assistant on the Edinburgh and Perth Railway, in Scotland.

1261. How long were you on that railway ? A year, making surveys.

1262.

*NOTE (on revision) :—This speed relates to curves of ten chains radius.

- Mr. John Doherty.
2 Dec., 1863.
1262. After that where were you engaged? After that in America, in every portion of railway surveying and constructing, from assistant to chief engineer.
1263. What was the nature of the first works you were engaged on in America? I was first engaged in building a plank road in Ohio.
1264. Did you complete that work? Yes.
1265. What was the next work you were engaged on? As division engineer on the Belfontaine and Indiana Railroad.
1266. What does the term "division" engineer mean? An engineer who has charge of fifty or sixty miles of railway. One has fifty miles and another fifty miles, and so on. He makes the surveys, profiles, estimates, and superintends the construction.
1267. What you call "profiles" we call sections? Yes.
1268. You had charge of fifty miles of this railway? Yes.
1269. You were the head engineer? Yes, I was of fifty miles only.
1270. Did you remain on that railway till its completion? Yes, till the railway was finished.
1271. How long did that take from the commencement of the survey till the completion of the railway? I think about two years and four months.
1272. What was the length of the railway altogether? About 158 miles.
1273. And they completed 158 miles in two years and four months? Yes.
1274. Who designed the bridges and viaducts on that railway? Every division engineer designs his own bridges. The designs of the bridges are all issued from the Patent Office in America. It is a mere copying of the Patent Office reports. They are submitted to a test by the Patent Office in Washington.
1275. Engineers there have not to calculate the strength of the bridges? No, that is done in the Patent Office to insure safety to the public. They are mere copies of the plans, and any deviation that is made is in the material or the distance of the span.
1276. After this railway, where were you next engaged? On the Marietta and Cincinnati Railway.
1277. What position did you occupy? I was assistant on that road, in charge of the construction of twenty-five miles—very heavy work.
1278. How long were you there? Ten months.
1279. Was that line finished during the time you were there? Yes, finished complete.
1280. When was it begun? It was begun about a year and a half before I went on the line.
1281. Were you engaged on any railway after that? Yes, on the Tainsville and Columbus line.
1282. What was the length of that? Fifty miles.
1283. What position did you occupy there? Resident engineer.
1284. Did you remain and complete that work? Yes.
1285. Were you engaged on any other railway after that? Yes, on the Illinois Central Railroad.
1286. How long were you engaged on that? Eight months.
1287. Did you remain until it was finished? No, I resigned on that road; my wife got sick, and I had to return home.
1288. To Great Britain? No, to Cincinnati, Ohio. The Minister has the acceptance of my resignation on that road.
1289. What Minister? The Minister for Works. I gave it into the hands of Mr. Rae.
1290. It is in the hands of the Works Department now? Yes, all the letters referring to these places are in the hands of the Works Department.
1291. Your letters and certificates? Yes.
1292. Did you make the survey of any portion of that railway? No, it was made before I went there; I superintended the construction.
1293. What were you engaged on after that? The Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap, and Charleston Railroad. I surveyed that road in the State of Tennessee, and made a reconnoitring survey in Kentucky and North Carolina.
1294. What length was it? 109 miles was surveyed.
1295. What sort of country was it? That is the roughest country in America.
1296. Was there anything to equal our mountains? I have never been in the mountains here; I have never been out of Sydney.
1297. What time did it take you to make the survey of 109 miles? It took two months to make the reconnoitring survey—taking the angles and elevations, measuring the distance by carriage wheels, and finding out all the difficulties, to see whether a railway could be constructed or not. The distance altogether was 300 and some odd miles, and it took us some ten months to make the survey.
1298. How many persons were engaged as engineers? Two assistants; one with the transit, and one with the level; sometimes two with the levels.
1299. How many altogether? There were fourteen in the party.
1300. Were the whole fourteen civil engineers? No.
1301. How many were engineers? Two, properly speaking; one was a leveller, and levelling is a mechanical operation.
1302. The others were labourers? Yes.
1303. How many lines do you think you ran? I do not know how many lines we ran; but we were in the habit of making our surveys at the rate of two miles a day, with all estimates and plans complete.
1304. Did you remain on that railway until it was completed? I remained until the report was made and the surveys were completed. They found they could not raise money enough then, then, but they have built a portion of it, I understand, since I left. I started off then for another part of the country.

1305. Where were you engaged after that? On the Houston and Texas Central Railroad.

1306. Did you make the survey of that line, or any portion of it? No, it was made before I went there. Mr. John Doherty.

1307. Did you superintend its construction or completion? Twenty-five miles.

1308. Had you any other civil engineers under you? Two.

1309. What were you engaged on after that? As chief engineer of the New Orleans, Houston, and Texas Central Railway. I made the survey and report, which was adopted by the president and directors; but a new line of policy was started with the directors, and I got a letter from the president stating that the work was done properly. That letter is now in the hands of the Minister for Works.

1310. How long did you remain there? I remained some four months on that road, and made a survey of it.

1311. How much did you survey during that time? Ninety-four miles. I made the survey, plans, and estimates, and reported on it.

1312. How many of you were there? Myself and two assistants, and some eight or ten men, or perhaps twelve.

1313. What were you engaged on after that? As County Surveyor and City Engineer of Sacramento, California, elected by the people.

1314. How long did you hold that office? During my legal term of office—one year.

1315. After that had expired where were you next engaged? Here, in New South Wales.

1316. Then you came direct to this country after you left California? I did.

1317. By Mr. Dalgleish: The country was distressed at that time in consequence of floods? Yes, the country was in a bad fix then on account of the war.

1318. By the Chairman: California? Yes.

1319. There was no occupation to be had? There was not much occupation to be had, except I would wait a year, and I could not wait a year for any place.

1320. What place were you put to work in when you first entered our railway department? In the long-room, called the drawing-room.

1321. What are the names of the others who worked in that room during your time? Mr. Trengrouse, senior, Mr. Trengrouse, junior, Mr. Hall, Mr. Fearnside, Mr. Mackay, Mr. Telmon, Mr. Gardiner, and myself.

1322. How many? Eight.

1323. Did you see anything improper going on there? Yes, drinking brandy and beer, and arguing politics.

1324. Did you ever see any excessive drinking during office hours? Yes.

1325. Will you name the parties who drank to excess in that room? I saw Mr. Micklethwait, Mr. Hall, Mr. Fearnside, and Mr. Mackay—he drank less than any of them.

1326. Did you ever see Mr. Gardiner drink during office hours? No, I never saw him take a glass.

1327. Did you ever see him drink any quantity of intoxicating drink at luncheon? No, there were only four who drank anything.

1328. Did you see Mr. Trengrouse, senior, drink at all? He was only a few days in the room while I was there.

1329. By Mr. Arnold: Who were the four that you say were the only persons who drank anything? Mr. Hall, Mr. Micklethwait, Mr. Fearnside, and Mr. Mackay.

1330. By the Chairman: Did you see Mr. Trengrouse, junior, drink any? No.

1331. Did you see Mr. Telmon drink any? No.

1332. All the excessive drinking was carried on by Mr. Hall, Mr. Micklethwait, Mr. Mackay, and Mr. Fearnside? Yes.

1333. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you seen other people drink in the office? No, I did not, except they drank a little in the anteroom; they used to drink some there I think. Telmon, Gardiner, and them I never saw take a drop of anything.

1334. By Mr. Morris: Did you ever see Mr. Trengrouse, senior, take anything? No, he was only there for a few days after I went there; he moved to another room.

1335. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was Mr. Trengrouse, junior, there when you were there? Yes; I never saw him drink a drop.

1336. By the Chairman: In your evidence before Mr. Arnold, you say the messenger, Fitzgerald, brought in drink to the office? I did.

1337. Did you ever see this messenger's evidence? I saw some of it in the newspapers.

1338. He says in that evidence that he brought in drink to most of the draftsmen, and not above a glass to each daily? He never brought a drop to any but those I have mentioned.

1339. What description of drink did he bring in? Brandy and beer.

1340. To whom did he bring the most? To Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait.

1341. How much have you seen this messenger bring in at a time? About a bottle of beer and a bottle of brandy was the most I have seen taken in at a time.

1342. How often during the day? Only once. Mr. Hall used to take in a bottle himself.

1343. Did you see any person else bringing in any drink besides Mr. Hall, and that brought in by the messenger? I think Mr. Fearnside used to bring it in, but I cannot positively say that. They always had it in their drawer.

1344. Who do you mean? Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside; they sat next each other.

1345. Mr. Mackay always had drink in his drawer? Yes.

1346. And Mr. Fearnside? Yes.

1347. Mr. Hall? Mr. Hall always had it.

1348. And Mr. Micklethwait? Mr. Micklethwait always had it.

- Mr. John Doherty.
2 Dec., 1868.
1349. In what manner used they to bring it in—openly in their hands? Sometimes Mr. Hall would bring it in in a paper parcel.
1350. Did you often see this occur? Daily, for a long time after Mr. Trengrouse went up-stairs.
1351. Used they do it before Mr. Trengrouse went up-stairs? No, I did not see much of it before Mr. Trengrouse went away—except beer. Mr. Hall might have brought in some brandy. I do not think he could live without brandy; when he came in in the morning he would be all nervous and shaking.
1352. Did you ever see Mr. Micklethwait bring drink into the office? I did; I have seen him pull a bottle of brandy out of his pocket.
1353. Did those who used to drink in the office take any particular time to drink? From about 10 o'clock to 3; they would drink nearly all the time, but not in a business drinking way, except after 1 o'clock; they used to take a little before 1, and then after 1 they began it heavy.
1354. Where was the drink generally kept? On the table. Mr. Hall used to put up a sheet of paper on the table, and put a bottle of brandy there, and say he would have to "Take the Malakoff"; they had the beer underneath—that was "The Redan."
1355. Used what they drank in office hours to have any effect upon them? Yes, a very marked effect. Mr. Hall used to commence and act I do not know how many things; I never could know them.
1356. Any Shakesperian characters? Yes; he would be calling out, "A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse."
1357. Did he act "The stallion"? Yes; I did not know what that was till I got acquainted with it afterwards; he would be throwing out his legs and neighing like a horse.
1358. By Mr. Dalgleish: You mean to say that if it had been said he was acting "The stallion" you would not have known what it meant? I had never seen that before, nor "The scissors grinder." Mr. Whitton explained to me what "The scissors grinder" was.
1359. By the Chairman: Was this what they called "Suffolk Punch," imitating a horse? Yes, that is what I understand now.
1360. Did you often see these performances in the office? Almost daily, while in the long-room.
1361. You say you have seen him act "The scissors grinder"? Yes.
1362. Very often? Nearly daily.
1363. Have you ever seen him perform "The walking boss"? Yes; he would square himself up and walk round, pretending to represent his "Friend John."
1364. Who was his "Friend John"? Mr. Whitton. He would make it appear as if he had charge of the room.
1365. What used he to do? He would walk round and say he was "The walking boss," pretending to represent "John." Then he would go to his place again and commence something else—some other antic.
1366. He would look over the work done by the officers in the department, and ask them what they were doing—in fact he would do what he thought Mr. Whitton ought to do? Yes, he said he was representing his "Friend John."
1367. Mr. Whitton? Yes.
1368. By Mr. Tighe: He was caricaturing him? Yes.
1369. By the Chairman: Have you ever seen him in the character of "Richard the Third"? Yes.
1370. "Shylock"? Yes.
1371. Did you ever see him perform the "Taproom Toper"? Yes.
1372. What was that? He would stretch out his arms, roll up against the table, and so on, and then go and sit down and take another drink, saying "Pouring spirits down would keep the spirits up."
1373. Did this occur often? Nearly every day.
1374. Did he represent the whole of these characters every day? Nearly every day.
1375. Did you ever see him perform in this way when he was thoroughly sober? No.
1376. Then you mean to say he was drunk in the office nearly every day? I do.
1377. Scarcely a day passed? Scarcely a day passed but what he was drunk.
1378. By Mr. Arnold: You mean Mr. Hall? And Mr. Micklethwait.
1379. By the Chairman: Did you ever see a fight in the office between Mr. Hall and any person? No, I saw Mr. Hall challenge Mr. Gardiner to fight.
1380. Did you see anything between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering? No, that occurred before I came here; Mr. Mackay told me about that.
1381. You were speaking of his challenging Mr. Gardiner to fight—was this during office hours? Yes.
1382. Do you know the reason of his challenging Mr. Gardiner to fight? I do not.
1383. By Mr. Dalgleish: What time of the day was it? I think about 2 o'clock.
1384. By the Chairman: After lunch-time? After lunch-time.
1385. Had he been performing any of the usual characters? Yes, he had got through all the usual characters.
1386. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you certain it was not after 4 o'clock? No, it was not after 4 o'clock.
1387. By the Chairman: Have you observed Mr. Hall endeavouring to draw the attention of the servant girls in the adjoining house? I have seen him in there once or twice.
1388. In where? In the anteroom.
1389. How often? I have never seen him more than two or three times in there.
1390. How long used he to remain there? He would sometimes be in there about half an hour.
- 1391.

1391. Did he see you observing him? No, he could not see me observing him; I went in to close down the window on account of the draught; he had the window open looking at the girls and conjuring, or whatever they called it.

Mr. John
Doherty.

1392. He used to amuse you with a little conjuring now and then, by way of a change? He had a stick that he used to put under his collar to say that he was well manned in every respect.

2 Dec., 1863.

1393. Was this when he was talking to the girls? Yes.

1394. Did you see anything else when he was trying to draw the attention of these girls? It would take me a month to think it all over. He used to be in there, but I never saw anybody with him but Mr. Fearnside.

1395. How long was Mr. Micklethwait in the office? He was there only a few weeks; he came in to plot up some work.

1396. What time was he there last in the office? About the beginning of the year—January.

1397. Was he always sober when he came to the office in the morning? Tolerable sometimes, but he never went away sober.

1398. Did you ever see him come to the office in the morning tipsy? Yes.

1399. Often? I think about twice.

1400. Was he generally drinking during office hours? Yes; in the office.

1401. Who did he drink with? With Mr. Hall; sometimes with Mr. Fearnside; sometimes with Mr. Mackay.

1402. What peculiar effect had the drink on Mr. Micklethwait? He would walk round by the table and hold on by it; and he would get into a stupid state and have his head resting on the papers he was drawing on.

1403. Did he drink to the same excess as Mr. Hall did during office hours? I do not think he could stand as much as Mr. Hall, but he drank enough to make him stupid, and so that he would not be able to do his work. He did not say much about it; he took it in a very business-like manner.

1404. Who? Mr. Micklethwait.

1405. Did he keep regular hours—did he come in the morning at regular times? No.

1406. Did he attend to his work when he did come? I do not think he was ever a full half-day in the office.

1407. Used he to leave early in the afternoon? Yes; he would leave whenever he pleased.

1408. Used he to neglect his work when he was there? Yes.

1409. Did any person in the office seem to have any command over him? No.

1410. Did he not seem to fear the Engineer-in-Chief? No.

1411. Did he ever speak to you of Mr. Whitton? He told me he was a schoolfellow, and that he could do as he liked with "John."

1412. Did you ever hear him use indecent language when under the influence of drink? Yes; he told me one day about some very immoral practices they were guilty of at Cockatoo, and I told him not to mention such things to me; he told me the people in this country were the most demoralized on the face of the earth.

1413. You did not want to hear any such conversation? No.

1414. Is it true he threatened to attack Mr. Gardiner during office hours? Yes; he challenged him to fight—put his fist up to his face, and told him he was determined to give him a good beating.

1415. How did this occur? They had some conversation. I do not know what the result of it was. I did not pay any attention, further than to see him coming up and telling Mr. Gardiner he would whip him.

1416. Was it in consequence of any argument they had in the room? Yes; there was some argument I do not know anything about.

1417. When did this occur? In the latter end of December, or early in January; I never kept any notes of time.

1418. At what time of the day? I think about 3 o'clock.

1419. Do you know what Mr. Gardiner said in reply to his threats? Mr. Gardiner said he would not fight or quarrel in the office with anybody.

1420. Was Mr. Micklethwait sober at this time? No.

1421. Did you find an offensive smell in the room when you were there? No, nothing stronger than beer and brandy.

1422. Do you know it is said there was an offensive smell from the water-closets there? It was said so, but I never felt any offensive smell.

1423. Was the water-closet attached to the room? No, they were about fifteen feet apart, I think.

1424. Were the water-closets higher than the room? No, lower.

1425. Were not some disinfectants used there? There was some chloride of lime strewed over the room, and it made it far worse than the smell of the beer and brandy.

1426. Was this used for a long time? It was used for two or three mornings, and Mr. Gardiner objected to it.

1427. Was it before or after Mr. Gardiner objected to the use of chloride of lime that Mr. Micklethwait attacked him in the office? I think it was after, but I am not certain of that.

1428. Do you know whether it was before or after that that Mr. Hall challenged him to fight? It was before that.

1429. Do you know whether Mr. Gardiner reported the conduct of Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait to Mr. Whitton? Yes, I have seen him do it.

1430. Did he ask your advice on the subject? No, he asked nobody's advice.

1431. Not to your knowledge? Not to my knowledge.

Mr. John
Doherty.

2 Dec., 1868.

1432. Do you think it was from personal animosity to them that Mr. Gardiner reported it? No, I think it was only from the circumstance that took place then.
1433. What circumstance? Their talking between themselves I think about some money matters.
1434. Were you present when he wrote this report? I was at one side of the table, and he was at another table on the opposite side.
1435. Did you remark any manifestation of feeling during the day Mr. Gardiner handed in his report? I saw no manifestation of feeling on the part of Mr. Gardiner; I did on the part of the others; Mr. Gardiner staid by himself.
1436. Did Mr. Gardiner consult with any person in the room previous to answering Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait's minutes? No.
1437. Do you know whether Mr. Micklethwait consulted with any person before he answered Mr. Gardiner's? Yes; he and Mr. Hall and Mr. Fearnside were together.
1438. You have said Mr. Fearnside drank to excess in the office? Yes.
1439. How did he conduct himself when under the influence of drink? He became a great politician, arguing the political topics of the day.
1440. That was when he was "in a state of beer"? Yes. He always had a newspaper and read it in the office.
1441. I suppose he took a very strong side in politics? Yes.
1442. Did he read the newspapers during office hours? Yes.
1443. Who discussed politics with him? Well, he brought everybody into some discussion or other.
1444. Did he favour the company with a few political speeches occasionally? Not very long speeches, no further than giving his opinion.
1445. Did he give any lectures on politics? No.
1446. Did he ask your opinion on political questions? Yes, nearly every day he asked my opinion on the American question.
1447. Used he to ask the opinion of most of the officers of the department? Yes.
1448. Did he lose much time in this way? About a couple of hours a day I should think.
1449. Used he also to lose his time reading the papers? Yes.
1450. Where used he to keep his drink? In his drawer.
1451. Did he drink alone or was he joined by others? Generally by Mr. Mackay, who was sitting beside him.
1452. Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait, Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside, used to drink together? Yes, and at times they would all drink together.
1453. Did you observe whether he often visited the small room? Yes.
1454. Would he remain there alone? Yes.
1455. What was that small room kept for? A store-room.
1456. Were there any boxes in the room? Yes.
1457. Have you seen him sitting drunk on those boxes? I have seen him sitting and making a short speech, representing that he was "Marius on the ruins of Carthage."
1458. Used you to see him stand on these boxes? I did.
1459. What was he doing then? I do not know what he was doing exactly; I suppose he was looking over at the servant girls on the other side.
1460. What brought you in the small room? I went in there to shut down the window on account of the draught.
1461. Was he looking out of the window? Yes.
1462. Did he remove then? Yes, he objected to shutting the window. After drinking their liquor, the atmosphere became very sultry for them and they could not stand it.
1463. Used Mr. Gardiner visit the small room? No; he was on the other side, and the draught could not affect him.
1464. Did Mr. Telmon visit the small room? No, I never saw him go in there.
1465. Have you seen Mr. Mackay there? Yes, but I never saw Mr. Mackay doing any acting.
1466. Used Mr. Fearnside ever drink so much as to be unfit for duty? After he had done his politics he would go on with his work a little, but he would be unfit, for anybody is unfit for duty in a public office that will take two or three drinks, on account of the sedentary employment.
1467. Did Mr. Fearnside bring in his own drink, or did he send the messenger for it? Sometimes he sent the messenger for it; at other times he would carry it in in his coat-pocket.
1468. How many messengers brought drink into the office? One, Fitzgerald.
1469. You say Mr. Mackay drank during office hours? Yes.
1470. Did he drink so as to become unable to do his work? Yes.
1471. How much have you seen him drink during the day? I have seen him drink a good big glass of brandy and two glasses of beer at the same sitting—at the same time; he would become very talkative about his small domestic arrangements, and tell us about his family at home, and about his wife and children.
1472. He would become very communicative? He would become very communicative all at once.
1473. What did he generally drink? Beer and brandy.
1474. Used he to read the newspapers during office hours? Yes.
1475. Did he discuss subjects that appeared in the newspapers? No.
1476. Did he idle much of his time during office hours? He idles a great deal; he always talks to everybody that comes in there—he talks to all the contractors, and everybody he can get a chance with.
1477. Have you ever heard the nature of his conversation with the contractors? After we removed removed to the other office Mr. Telmon came up one day, and he told me Mr. Mackay was talking very disrespectfully of Mr. Gardiner and me to some of the contractors, and that one of the contractors had told him that was a very ungentlemanly way of proceeding, to talk in a public office in that way about parties engaged in the office.

Mr. John
Doherty.

2 Dec., 1863.

1478. Did you ever hear any of this conversation yourself? No.
1479. Did he ever speak to you about Mr. Gardiner? Yes, often.
1480. Well, or ill? Always in the very worst terms.
1481. Was he then on speaking terms with Mr. Gardiner, when he used to speak so disrespectfully of him behind his back? Yes.
1482. What reason could he have for being so inveterate against Mr. Gardiner? All the office are against Mr. Gardiner—all those who were implicated in the drinking.
1483. Was anybody but those who were drunkards in the department opposed to Mr. Gardiner? Not that I know.
1484. Have you ever heard Mr. Gardiner speak in the same disrespectful terms of Mr. Mackay? No, I never heard him speak in disrespectful terms of anybody.
1485. Did you ever see Mr. Mackay acting during office hours? No; nobody but Mr. Hall, and sometimes Mr. Fearnside.
1486. Did Mr. Trengrouse, junior, often visit the store-room? Very seldom.
1487. Did you ever see him drink anything? I never saw him drink a drop.
1488. Did he read the papers, or indulge in politics, during office hours? No.
1489. Were you changed from the long-room to another room? Yes.
1490. Was this after Mr. Gardiner had reported the conduct of these other officers to Mr. Whitton? Yes.
1491. Was any other person moved after that report? Yes; young Mr. Trengrouse, and Mr. Gardiner, and I were put into one room with Mr. Robertson.
1492. Who was then left in the long-room? Mr. Telmon, Mr. Hall, Mr. Mackay, and Mr. Fearnside.
1493. Were those persons, who were accused of improper conduct, removed? No, they were still left in the long-room.
1494. Were yourself, Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Robertson, and Mr. Trengrouse, removed to separate rooms, or were you all placed in one room? To one room.
1495. Could Mr. Hall, Mr. Nicklethwait —? Mr. Nicklethwait went to the country before we were removed.
1496. Could Mr. Hall, Mr. Mackay, and Mr. Fearnside have acted in the room to which you four were removed, in the same manner as they did in the long-room, without being heard by Mr. Whitton? No, they could not have acted in the same way. We were over the room occupied by Mr. Whitton, and Mr. Whitton must have heard them if they had been put there, and had gone on in the same way.
1497. Do you know the reason why you were removed so far away? No; I suppose it was to allow them to carry on their acting alone and untrammelled.
1498. There was then no person left in the long-room except those who indulged —? Except Mr. Telmon.
1499. Have you seen Mr. Telmon drinking there? No.
1500. Did he ever make use of bad language? No.
1501. Or behave in any way unbecoming a gentleman? I never saw Mr. Telmon behave in a way unbecoming a gentleman.
1502. Who had charge of the long-room while you were there? Nobody.
1503. Do you mean to say there was no person in the room who had any authority over the others? I do.
1504. Who was the principal draughtsman? Mr. Drewett.
1505. How often did Mr. Drewett visit the long-room while you were there? About four times.
1506. What did he do on these occasions? He sometimes came in looking for a plan, and sometimes he would come in and look round, and walk out again.
1507. In what way were you supplied with work? I went to look for it myself—when I had finished a plan I took it to Mr. Drewett, and asked for something else.
1508. Do you know whether, when Mr. Hall was out at work, he would go and look for more? I do not.
1509. Did you ever know him to be idle for weeks because Mr. Whitton did not send for him? I have known him to be whole days idling in the office, when he would not do any kind of drawing at all.
1510. How often used you to go to Mr. Drewett's room? Probably about twice a week; when I would be done with a tracing, I would carry it up and ask for more work.
1511. Did you ever see any drinking going on in Mr. Drewett's room? Yes, I have seen him and Mr. Barton drink together.
1512. During office hours? Yes.
1513. Have you remarked Mr. Drewett under the influence of drink during office hours? Well, not much; what you might call a little jolly.
1514. Did you ever see Mr. Barton under the influence of drink? Yes, I did.
1515. In office hours? In office hours.
1516. By Mr. Tighe: Was this frequently the case? Mr. Barton was not in the office more than half the time; I do not think he was half the time in the office.
1517. By the Chairman: Have you seen him under the influence of drink in the office? Yes.
1518. More than once? More than once, but not to a great extent.
1519. Did it make him unfit for his work? Of course it made him unfit for his work.

- Mr. John Doherty.
2 Dec., 1863.
1520. Did he often visit the long-room while you were there? I think about three times.
1521. Did Mr. Mason often visit the long-room while you were there? About four or five times.
1522. What did he do? Walk in, look round, and walk out again; sometimes he would look at Mr. Hall's plans and walk out again, and say nothing to anybody.
1523. He is principal assistant engineer? Yes.
1524. Did he seem to have any command in the office? Not the least.
1525. Are you aware of the work done by Mr. Mason? Yes, I believe he measures the work in the field, and estimates the work done by the contractors.
1526. When you say "estimates" it, how do you mean—do you mean that he tells the value of it? No, I suppose he measures it, and then gives the quantity of earthworks done.
1527. Could Mr. Mason have observed the persons who were drinking in the long-room? He could not, except those three or four times he called in; it was impossible for him to know they were drinking, except he came in suddenly; they were in the habit of listening to every footstep and putting their bottles away. Mr. Mason could not have seen anything about it.
1528. Was there any great intimacy between him and Mr. Micklethwait? Yes, I believe there is great intimacy between them.
1529. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know it of your own knowledge? Of my own knowledge I do not know it; I am not sufficiently acquainted with either of them.
1530. By the Chairman: Do you think Mr. Mason ever saw Mr. Micklethwait the worse for liquor? I am certain he did; he could not have helped it, because Mr. Micklethwait was so often in their rooms that it would have been impossible but that he should have seen him.
1531. Did Mr. Whitton visit the room while you were there? Never but once.
1532. What was the nature of his visit? He came in and said some words to Mr. Mackay and went out.
1533. Which office are you speaking of? The long-room in the old building.
1534. The things you have spoken of occurred at the old office? Yes.
1535. How long were you there? From August—till the office was changed.
1536. By Mr. Arnold: That was only a short time? Five months; it may be more; I do not recollect what time they changed.
1537. By the Chairman: Do you think the disorderly conduct you have described could have been carried on if Mr. Whitton had made it a rule to visit the long-room once or twice a week, or more frequently than he did? Of course it could not have taken place if he had visited the room.
1538. Did the draughtsmen seem to care for any person seeing them in that state, with the exception of Mr. Whitton? They did not care.
1539. Did they seem to fear any person reporting them? No, they did not seem to fear anybody.
1540. Did they seem to care whether Mr. Mason or Mr. Drewett would report them? No.
1541. Why did you not report this improper conduct, which you had so often observed in the office? Because I did not want to get dismissed; I had to try to live till I got my family back to America again; I could get no employment.
1542. Were you afraid if you did report this conduct you would be dismissed? I knew it very well.
1543. Did Mr. Gardiner incur the displeasure of the department in consequence of having reported that disorderly conduct? He did.
1544. Was he in ill favour before that? No. There was always some ill feeling about that. They said he was too clever.
1545. Did he always behave in a becoming manner? He always behaved in a very gentlemanly manner.
1546. Were you ever reprimanded before you were suspended? Never.
1547. What reason was assigned for your suspension? None.
1548. By Mr. Dalgleish: You had a letter of suspension? Yes.
1549. Did that letter state no reason? No, the note said I should be suspended until the decision of the Executive.
1550. Do you expect to get paid for the time during which you have been suspended? Of course I do expect to be paid; I have never absented myself from my place of residence since.
1551. By the Chairman: You do not feel justified in entering into any other employment? I cannot; my papers are with the Government.
1552. Did you hear anything about your suspension till you got notice of it? The only thing I knew about it was that Mr. Fearnside came into the room, laughed very heartily, and said "Gardiner would soon have more company."
1553. Did Mr. Drewett speak to you about the notice? No.
1554. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you ever applied for your salary since? No.
1555. Do you not think you ought? It is four months now, and I am beginning to want it very bad.
1556. By the Chairman: Have you heard nothing from the Works Department or the Government since you were suspended? Nothing.
1557. Did you undergo an examination before you entered the department? Yes.
1558. Who examined you? Mr. Whitton.
1559. What was the nature of the examination? He drew out a curved line on a sheet of paper, and asked me how I would lay out that curve; I told him how I would do it, and he seemed satisfied.

- 1560. What was the next question? He asked if I could estimate work, and I told him I could.
- 1561. Did he give you anything to estimate? No.
- 1562. What was the next question he asked? He asked if I had had any charge of works, and I referred him to the papers he had in his possession.
- 1563. Did he ask if you were a draughtsman? I do not think he did.
- 1564. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he ask if you ever met with an honest contractor? No, he did not ask me that.
- 1565. Have you ever known tape measures of unusual length used in measuring sub-contracts? Never.
- 1566. Did you ever hear of it? I heard a conversation this morning to the effect that they were used in this country.
- 1567. Where did you hear that? I heard it from Mr. Fowler. I heard Mr. Fowler say there were long tapes used in this country to measure sub-contractors work.
- 1568. By Mr. Arnold: Then they are used by contractors to measure the work done by sub-contractors under them? Yes.
- 1569. By Mr. Tighe: Tapes marked in that manner are sometimes sold in the shops? I never heard of it till this morning.
- 1570. By the Chairman: You never heard of long tapes being used by any officers of the Government? No, I never heard anything about long tapes until this morning.
- 1571. Did Mr. Whitton give you anything to estimate? No.
- 1572. What was the next question he asked you? He asked me if I was in the habit of superintending construction. I said I was. He asked me where, and I referred him to my letters in his possession. He read them over and he was satisfied.
- 1573. Did he promise you any particular position after your examination? He did; he said he would recommend me for the place of a gentleman that was going to the Mauritius —Mr. Barton.
- 1574. Would you consider that examination a proper test of engineering ability? No, I would not.
- 1575. What was your opinion of Mr. Whitton's abilities from the nature of your examination by him? Well, I thought he did not know much about his business.
- 1576. You say all the papers you have relating to your career in America are in the hands of the Government? Yes.
- 1577. What position does Mr. Barton hold in the railway department? Engineer of surveys.
- 1578. Are you aware of the duties he performs? I am not aware of the duties he performs in the field.
- 1579. What duties does he perform in the railway office? He takes out the quantities of earthwork, in which he was assisted sometimes by Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Trengrouse, junior, when I was there.
- 1580. Does he take them out correctly? He took them out all from paper; that is not the correct manner of taking out these works; by figures is the way to take out anything.
- 1581. How would you do it? I would do it by figures.
- 1582. You say he has been assisted in his calculations by Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Trengrouse, junior? Yes.
- 1583. By Mr. Dalgleish: How do you say Mr. Barton does it? From paper.
- 1584. How do you mean from paper? He plots the cross-section and then measures it by scale and finds out the area of that space, after it is plotted, from the figures; that is the way it is all done.
- 1585. By Mr. Arnold: That is not the correct way, you say? Of course it is not the correct way; everything ought to be done by figures.
- 1586. By Mr. Dalgleish: How much more time would be occupied in one calculation than in the other? The time is lost on the ground in levelling away outside the railway.
- 1587. By the Chairman: Surveying land outside the railway? Yes.
- 1588. By Mr. Dalgleish: This is one of the things you alluded to when you said previously that more work was done than was necessary? There is five or six times the work done that ought to be done.
- 1589. By Mr. Tighe: Did you ever see this done before? That is the old way they used to do in England, but that arises there from the dearness of land, in consequence of which they are obliged to make cross-sections to see where they will run the railway; but in a big country like this it is different.
- 1590. Is it entirely done away with now? It is everywhere else in the world but here.
- 1591. Then the opinion of the profession is unanimously in favour of your method? Of course; it speaks for itself. The way we do, it is done in the field-books on the ground. The acting engineer is bound to give a copy of that to the chief engineer, a copy to the assistant, and to keep a copy himself; then all three calculate these quantities, and they are always at hand for the contractors.
- 1592. By Mr. Dalgleish: And they check each other? They check each other. They have the whole of the plans here done over with cross-sections.
- 1593. By the Chairman: Three miles on each side of the railway? I do not know how much it is.
- 1594. By Mr. Dalgleish: In America they locate the line upon the ground, as it were? Yes, right off, without having any further surveys.
- 1595. By the Chairman: Should not the engineer for trial surveys be in the field during the surveys, to determine the line in the best position for the railway? Certainly; that is his place.

Mr. John
Doherty.
2 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. John Doherty.
2 Dec., 1863.
1596. Would the most highly competent engineer find out the best position for a railway if he was not constantly in the field? Not except he had competent persons to assist him, he could not.
1597. May not a person be a first-rate land surveyor, and entirely incompetent as a railway surveyor? Yes, he may survey land as well as anybody, but know nothing of grades and curves, because it is a different branch.
1598. Having had a good deal of experience as a railway engineer, do you know anything about the qualifications of the sappers? Yes, they are very good surveyors—land surveyors.
1599. Do you think the sappers and the young men now engaged upon the railway are proper persons to be entrusted with laying out our lines? No, I think not, except after undergoing considerable instruction.
1600. Do you know whether Mr. Barton had had much experience as a railway surveyor? I do not know. I know nothing about his experience, only from what I have seen of the plans and sections.
1601. Do you think the sappers a useful class of men to have on the railway? I think they are for the surveys after the line is located, to survey the land on either side.
1602. Do you think they have the necessary scientific knowledge? No, they do not know anything about railway surveying, except they are otherwise instructed than what they know as sappers and miners.
1603. Do you think the persons now engaged, from what you know of them, are likely to find the best line to our western country? I have not been out in the country, and I am not personally acquainted with any of them, except Mr. Micklethwait; but from what I have seen of the plans, all I can say is what I have said already, that there is four or five times the amount of work done that is necessary.
1604. You mean the plans sent into the office? Yes, the first trial survey requires no survey whatever, but to have the line faithfully marked out.
1605. By Mr. Arnold: How are you to find it out? By the engineer's experience and instruments.
1606. By the Chairman: Do not railway surveyors in America run centre lines in the field before they make cross-sections? Always.
1607. The centre line is the first thing that is run? That is the first thing. There is no surveying whatever done on the centre line but to mark it out; the angles are taken twice, and everything is checked by the levellers, the rod-man, and the man that keeps the chain; everything is checked, but there is no surveying done whatever until the centre line is finally adopted; then the surveys are made afterwards, the land lines shewing what land they take up on either side where the company require property for the uses of the railway.
1608. Then in America the practice is mark the centre line, embracing the curves, and it is finally determined before the survey? Yes.

---

THURSDAY, 3 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. LUCAS,		MR. STEWART,
	MR. TIGHE.

Mr. John Doherty again called in and farther examined:—

- Mr. John Doherty.
3 Dec., 1863.
1609. By the Chairman: Are you aware whether the practice in this Colony differs from that which you described at the close of your last examination, as prevailing in America? It does.
1610. In what respect? In making a vast number of cross-sections, as far as I can see from the plans, at every chain as they proceed with the survey.
1611. I have heard that Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton adopted this practice of having surveys and sections made at random so as to allow Mr. Barton to lay down the centre line in the office at Sydney? I know the centre line is laid down in the office from pieces of wood—curves.
1612. These pieces of wood are cut out to shew the radius—they are known as French curves? Yes.
1613. These pieces of wood are marked to shew a radius of five chains, ten chains, twelve chains, and so on, and the radius is marked upon the plan from these pieces of wood? Yes, they put the pieces of wood upon the plan and mark it by them.
1614. By Mr. Dalgleish: That is what you call "fudging in"? Yes. It is impossible from the curves laid down in the office for any man to lay them on the ground as they are laid down in the office.
1615. In consequence of their being laid down by these pieces of wood, and not in the usual scientific manner? The usual scientific manner is to lay them down upon the ground.
1616. Do you consider such a system creditable to any professional department? No.
1617. Would this practice be tolerated in any first-class engineering department? Not in any place I have been in for the last four-and-twenty years.
1618. You are confident in the correctness of your judgment when you say it is impossible for the chief engineer for trial surveys to perform his duty by remaining in his office? I am.
1619. You believe that his proper position is at the head of his staff in the field? I do.
- 1620.

1620. Are you aware what portion of his time Mr. Barton spends in his office? I am not aware of how much time he spends in the office. I have seen him there may be two weeks at a time.
1621. Have you any doubt that the best position for the curves and the central line of a railway could be found in the field? The field is the proper place for that—that is the place where it must finally be laid down.
1622. Should not the chief of the trial surveyors be experienced in railway surveying? The head of the trial surveyors ought to be experienced; also the parties running the line ought to be able to try the height they are at every interval of the line, and the angles they make, so as to determine the nature of the curvature and the gradient.
1623. If the centre line of the railway were determined, then sappers and land surveyors would be very useful men in the field? They would be very useful men in making surveys of property on either side of the line; for surveying only, unless they were taught civil engineering.
1624. You do not think they are all desirable men to lay down gradients or to take curves? No.
1625. Then you think, if there were two or three really competent railway surveyors, one at the head of each party, the inexperienced persons now engaged in our trial surveys would become useful men? Yes.
1626. You do not think they possess the requisite knowledge without having a man accustomed to railway surveys at their head? No, they would require some mathematical knowledge, and then, after a short time, they would become useful.
1627. You consider that the greatest difficulty is to lay down the location of a railway? Yes, that is the great point in engineering.
1628. That is, to find the best gradient? Yes, and also the best curves, because the whole value of a railroad is its gradients and curves.
1629. Do you think there is any difficulty in finding a sufficient number of men in the Colony capable of performing this work? Not the least.
1630. Do you know any men who are now out of the department who are capable? I do know many young men who would be well qualified after a few months.
1631. Do you think there are a sufficient number of persons now in the department who are qualified? I do not know one in the department.
1632. You do not know one engineer in that department who is competent to find out the centre line of a railway? I do not—one who is in the department at the present time.
1633. What leads you to form that opinion? I form it from the plans and sections.
1634. You have seen the plans and sections that have come in from the different surveyors? Yes.
1635. Have you seen none of those plans that have been creditable to the persons engaged in taking them? The best plan I have seen in point of curves is one that was sent in by Mr. Bennett.
1636. Is he the present engineer for roads? Yes. While I give that answer about the staff, I mean those who are now connected with the department. I am not acquainted with the ability of persons who are in the field farther than from what I have seen of their maps and profiles.
1637. What you call profiles we call sections? Yes.
1638. From the maps and sections sent in to the office by persons engaged in the field, you believe that they are not qualified to perform the duty for which they are appointed? I do.
1639. By Mr. Morris: Is that answer consistent with your previous answer, that you are not able to speak of the ability of these officers in the field? I am satisfied from the manner in which they send their maps and plans into the office, that they are not able to find the centre line in a proper scientific manner.
1640. By Mr. Dalgleish: You have not seen the plans and sections of all who are engaged in the field? I have not.
1641. By Mr. Morris: What I apprehend you mean to say is, that you are not able to judge of all in the field, but only of those whose plans and sections you have seen; and as far as you are able to judge from those plans and sections, none of those people are able to find the centre line of a railway? In a proper scientific manner.
1642. By the Chairman: Have you seen the plans and surveys of the extension from Penrith to Bathurst? Yes.
1643. Are they such as you describe? They are the worst plans I have ever seen; the worst feature in them is that the curves are end to end without having a straight piece between them, and the grades meet one another without having a curve between them.
1644. They come to a sharp point without having a curve? Yes. If the grade runs up, there ought to be a curve at the end to give the train an easy motion, to avoid jerking.
1645. And with respect to the S curves, they run one into another without having a straight line between them? Yes. With reference to the grades, the same power that will take a train up a straight line, will not convey it round a curve at the same elevation.
1646. By Mr. Dalgleish: You want about a third more power? I am not prepared to say the power, but the principle is a common sense one.
1647. By the Chairman: Are these the only objections you have to these plans and sections of the Western extension? There is too much surveying—too great a scope of country.
1648. Have you observed that with one or two exceptions, there are no rivers to hinder the progress of an ordinary railway survey? There are very few rivers.
1649. I believe it is usual to make what is called a transverse or longitudinal survey of a hill

Mr. John
Doherty.
3 Dec., 1853.

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1863.

hill country before laying down a permanent survey? Yes; if I have trial lines through a country, provided there are four or six or any number of lines, if on one of these the country is considerably rougher than the others, I would take it transversely, and I might take a few cross-sections at a particular cut; but it is not necessary to cross-section all the trial lines; it would be a needless expenditure of the public money.

1650. You would take a longitudinal survey all through? Yes.

1651. You say that you have had very long experience—something like fifteen or sixteen years in America and in Scotland—in railway surveying? Yes.

1652. How much do you suppose these trial surveys should cost per mile? From my experience in America, I should think that trial surveys should be got up for £7 or £8 a mile. I know that in America they never cost more than £5 a mile.

1653. We will suppose a railway to be taken over the roughest country that it is possible for a railway to be made over, where the gradients are as high as one in forty, and where the cost of construction would be as much as £20,000 a mile—what do you think should be the cost of a trial survey in such a case? Not more than £8 a mile, unless the provisions for the party have to be brought from a long distance; but in an ordinary country it would not be more than that.

1654. By Mr. Stewart: Take the labour required, irrespective of the distance the provisions have to be brought? The labour should cost about £8 a mile.

1655. By the Chairman: How long should it take to make each ten miles of such trial survey? From three to four weeks. I have done as high as two miles a day for five months.

1656. How many persons were with you? We made up twelve or fourteen—we had to camp out.

1657. By Mr. Stewart: You had a gang with you? Yes.

1658. By the Chairman: What sort of country is that? The roughest in America—East Tennessee, including Cumberland Gap, Kentucky, — Lake, and North Carolina.

1659. Did you ever see the plans and sections of Grose Valley? I have seen them once or twice.

1660. From the opportunities you have had, would you be able to form an opinion whether an experienced railway engineer would be likely to be misled in such a way by such ground as to cause time and money to be needlessly expended upon a survey of it? When I first saw the plans I said to Mr. Robertson, "The man must be mad, or must want to waste the public funds."

1661. Do you think a practical engineer would allow £10,000 to be spent upon such a survey as that? No.

1662. What would you say of an engineer who would allow £30,000 to be spent upon such a survey? I should say a prison would be too good a place for such a man. I call it nothing but robbery.

1663. Do you think he knew anything about railway surveying? I do not.

1664. Or if he did, that he must have intentionally wasted the public money? He could not be sane and be an engineer and do it.

1665. Looking to those plans, do you think there has been a regular curve laid down upon that survey? I have seen the plans once or twice; I remember there was an S curve, like a winding staircase, with the railway crossing it. Mr. Robertson or Mr. Gardiner shewed me the plan.

1666. Did you ever see such a plan before? Never in my life, either in England or America.

1667. Do you think it was practicable to carry out the railway, as laid down in that plan? I think not, as far as I can recollect; if I saw the plan now I should be better able to speak about it.

1668. Do you think, from the plans, that the surveying is correctly made? The fixings of the rivers and low grounds may have been correct, because the sappers are, generally speaking, good surveyors.

1669. Good land surveyors? Yes; but as to the manner of putting in the hills, I never saw such work in my life in any map, either geographical, governmental, or otherwise.

1670. By Mr. Stewart: Altogether defective for railway purposes? Entirely so.

1671. By the Chairman: Is there anything in the plan to indicate that it was performed by a competent railway surveyor? Nothing whatever.

1672. Then from your evidence one would imagine that there was no competent railway surveyor engaged? I would swear there was not; I said at the first it was a great humbug—that the man must be insane to spend so much money on such a survey. Hills were shewn by a round mark, as no man ever put them in a railway survey.

1673. It shewed that the work had been done by a land surveyor rather than by a civil engineer? Yes.

1674. You say land surveyors know nothing about locating a railway? Nothing, excepting what they may know theoretically.

1675. Do you know whether Mr. Barton possesses the mathematical or professional knowledge necessary to enable him to check the correctness of any plan or section? I do not.

1676. You know nothing of his qualifications as a mathematician or a practical engineer? I do not.

1677. From the plans you have seen you think he does not possess these qualifications? From the plans I have seen I know he has not, but I have never conversed with him upon these subjects.

1678. You merely draw your conclusions from the plans you have seen, and you believe that he

he has neither the mathematical nor professional knowledge he should possess as the leader of trial surveys? I believe so.

1679. Has his manner of laying down and determining curves given you any idea of his proficiency in railway surveying? He laid down these curves in his own room roughly, and then I used to see Mr. Fearnside lay them down neatly afterwards—Mr. Fearnside is a neat draughtsman—and then I have observed him take a French parabolic curve and connect the curves where they would not meet on the paper, so to confine himself as nearly as possible to the centre line Mr. Barton had fixed. The parabolic French curve is an instrument which has all kinds of curves on it. I know that was wrong, for they do not lay down any parabolic curves on the road; therefore I say the curves on the ground are not laid down as they are on the paper.

1680. It may be that an engineer, having laid down these curves in his office, will find when he comes to put the curves on the ground that he cannot do so? That is what I mean.

1681. From the manner in which these plans are carried out, what would you think a fair salary for a gentleman possessing the engineering skill of Mr. Barton? I have different views of salaries from what are generally entertained here. I think every surveyor ought to have £300 a year at least, but I know he is not worth another penny.

1682. What position does Mr. Mason hold in the department? The position of principal assistant.

1683. Are the duties he now performs such as should devolve on an assistant engineer? No.

1684. From your experience in railway works, what duties do you consider should fall upon the chief assistant engineer? The chief assistant engineer should be at the head of everything in the field—assist in the office sometimes—see that anything that required to be particularly done, or that was difficult, was properly done—to see the work measured up on the ground where there was any difference of opinion—to see that the plans were properly carried out. The chief assistant is supposed to be the colleague of the chief engineer.

1685. What were the duties which Mr. Mason was chiefly engaged upon when you were in the office? I believe, estimating the work done by the contractor. I have seen some sections that he got up.

1686. What did you think of those sections? They were got up in a business-like way, but very rough—what any surveyor would do.

1687. Did he superintend the designs of any bridge? There is no designing done in the office.

1688. Where is it done? It is compiled from drawings from England—from books.

1689. Do you mean that the whole of the designs of the different bridges are taken from engineering works which are in the office? I do, as far as I know. I have seen the plan of the bridge at the Menangle, which was sent out at the time the iron was sent out.

1690. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you here at that time? No, but I have seen it in the office.

1691. By the Chairman: The whole of the ironwork of that was made in England? Yes.

1692. By Mr. Dalgleish: You know that only by hearsay? I have seen the plan.

1693. Is it marked as done in England? Yes, it is marked as having been made at Birkenhead.

1694. By the Chairman: The only plans then that were done here were those with reference to the piers and tressle-work leading to it? Yes.

1695. Do you know who was engaged on those plans? Mr. Drewett, Mr. Robertson, and Mr. Trengrouse, junior.

1696. Were Mr. Robertson and Mr. Trengrouse, junior, constantly employed on it? Yes, they did the greater part of the drawing.

1697. What did Mr. Drewett do? He used to do some tracing, and some connecting of the drawings.

1698. Did he superintend the plotting of railway plans? No, Mr. Robertson, he and Mr. Trengrouse got most of the nice drawings in the office to do.

1699. Is Mr. Robertson a good draughtsman? Yes, very.

1700. Does he do his work quickly? Yes, Mr. Robertson and Mr. Trengrouse did all the bridge drawings.

1701. It has been reported that Mr. Robertson is very slow—is that the fact? No, it is not; he is very quick, as quick as any young person I ever saw in my life.

1702. Do you know anything of his qualifications as a mathematician? Yes.

1703. We have heard that he is superior to Mr. Drewett? Yes, I believe he is much superior. I have seen Mr. Drewett bring out a bridge to him to complete the tressle-work.

1704. That is, to take out the quantities? Yes.

1705. Have you ever heard him called in to correct any of Mr. Drewett's calculations? I have. I have heard Mr. Drewett call him in and tell him he wanted him to check.

1706. Mr. Robertson has been in the receipt of £100 a year? Yes.

1707. And Mr. Drewett has been in the receipt of £500? Yes.

1708. Was Mr. Robertson always steady at his duties? Yes, he was always early at his work. I was there never later than ten minutes past 9, and I always found Mr. Robertson there.

1709. Was he always one of the last to leave? Yes; he never left until it struck 4.

1710. Did you ever find him idle at his duty? Never in my life.

1711. He was always engaged? Yes.

1712. Was he a quiet young man? A quiet gentlemanly young man.

1713. Did you ever see him fight or drink? Never.

1714. Did you ever hear a complaint against Mr. Robertson until he was suspended? I never heard a word against Mr. Robertson.

1715. You never saw Mr. Mason make any plotting of a railway section? No; he has a room to himself, and I do not know what he does, only that I have seen some of his sections.

1716.

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1865.

Mr. John
Doherty.
3 Dec., 1863.

1716. Are they superior to any others in the office? No, just the same.
1717. What would you consider a fair salary for a person who could do such work as that done by Mr. Mason? I should suppose £300 would be enough, he being only a surveyor.
1718. With reference to the duty of measuring, should not that be done by the resident engineer? It ought to be done by the assistant—the man who lays out the cross-sectioning. The resident engineer ought to have a book of these cross-sections, and the chief engineer ought to have one also. The assistant should measure the work; it should be checked by the resident engineer, and, in case of any dispute with the contractor, then it should be the duty of the chief engineer to go with his assistant and measure the work in the presence of the contractor, to satisfy all parties.
1719. Supposing the resident engineer happened to be favourable to the contractor, his measurement could be corrected by the first estimate made of the survey and the final measurement? Yes.
1720. So that there could not be any possibility of corruption, as any attempt at fraud must be discovered at the final settlement? There might be for a few months, but not finally.
1721. Do you think carpenters or bricklayers would make good superintendents of a line? I think they would if they were properly educated for it.
1722. I presume that any person would, whether a carpenter, a doctor, or a lawyer, if he were properly educated? Yes. I think a tradesman in that department would learn it sooner than any one else.
1723. Have you seen Mr. Mason direct his attention to the drawings that have been done in the office? Very little.
1724. Did he visit the drawing-room very often—the long drawing-room? He was in the long drawing-room three or four times when we were in the upper part of the town—at Phillip-street.
1725. What directions did he give? I never got any directions from anybody.
1726. Then it appears that there was no person to direct the draughtsmen? No; I always called for work when I was out of it.
1727. Who gave it to you? Mr. Drewett.
1728. Did he always supply you with work directly you applied to him? Sometimes; sometimes I received work one or two hours after I applied.
1729. Did Mr. Mason ever give you any instructions? Never.
1730. Did you ever see him give Mr. Gardiner any instructions? No, I never saw him give any instructions to anybody.
1731. Did you ever see him pay any attention to the drawings drawn by Mr. Hall and Mr. Mackay? I often saw him go to the drawings of Mr. Hall; they were the only drawings I ever saw him look at.
1732. Did you ever see him look over the drawings of yourself, Mr. Gardiner, or Mr. Trengrouse? No; he might just walk round the room.
1733. He never passed any remark, or asked what you were doing? No one has ever asked me what I was doing since I have been there.
1734. Did you ever see Mr. Mason in the room during the time Mr. Micklethwait was the worse for drink? I do not know that I did. Mr. Mason was so seldom there I cannot call to recollection; he might have been there once, but I am not certain.
1735. Did you ever hear Mr. Mason make an observation about Mr. Hall being absent from the office? Yes.
1736. What was the nature of those remarks? He said there was a plan required for a station, and he asked Mr. Mackay how soon it would be done, as they were in a hurry for it.
1737. Do you know whether Mr. Micklethwait or Mr. Mason kept a journal of the work they were engaged on? I do not.
1738. Do you know whether it is the practice in the Works Department for the draughtsmen or the persons engaged in the department to keep a journal of the work performed by them? They all keep journals and hand them in at the end of the month to shew what they have been engaged upon during the month—whether they did or not I cannot tell.
1739. Did you? Yes.
1740. When you were at work in the office did Mr. Mason make his appearance at the usual time in the morning? His room was apart from ours, therefore I cannot say.
1741. Have you seen any of his work in the office? I have seen some of his sections.
1742. Do you consider him a good draughtsman? No, very inferior.
1743. Do you, from his drawings, think him a clever engineer? I do not know anything of that from what I have seen.
1744. You do not know whether he is expeditious in the performance of his duty? No; I am not acquainted with his ability, for he works in another room altogether apart from us.
1745. When you were delivering your evidence before Mr. Whitton, was all your evidence taken down properly? No.
1746. Did you make any objection to it? I did. I would not sign one of the sheets.
1747. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you ever get a copy of your evidence taken before Mr. Whitton? No.
1748. Or of that taken before Mr. Arnold? No. (The Chairman read the evidence of Mr. Doherty. Vide p. 3 of the Appendix.)
1749. Is that the evidence you gave before Mr. Whitton? That is part of the evidence, but there are several words I wanted to put in which they would not allow me.
1750. There is one point to which I would wish particularly to draw your attention in your evidence: You say, at the top of page 4, "I decline to answer the question whether I have have been seen drunk in Sydney"? Mr. Moody asked me that question. I asked was I brought up for anything. He said I was not. I replied that I would not answer the question, and I wanted it to be taken out. "No," said Mr. Whitton, "it must stand in." I thereupon refused to sign it on the grounds that I would not criminate myself for any living man. I did not sign that sheet. Afterwards I went before Mr. Rae, in answer to a note requesting to know why I did not sign that sheet. I said I objected to the manner in which the evidence was taken—that my answers were not put down in the language I used; and that words were put as my answers that I never uttered—that I refused to sign anything to criminate myself; and that I still refused. He then took the sheet to Mr. Arnold, and on his return said the Minister directed that the words should be struck out, which was done, and I signed the sheet.

1751. By Mr. Dalgleish: How is it then that your name appears at the end of this sheet, with the words still in? That is not how I had it.

1752. These words were to have been struck out? Yes, I put my pen through them twice.

1753. After you had been some time in Sydney your daughter and son-in-law were sent back by you to California? My son-in-law was sent by the American Consul; my daughter is here now.

1754. On that occasion, parting with some American friends, they say you were a little excited? Yes.

1755. On that occasion Mr. Moody might have seen you in that state? I do not know whether Mr. Moody met me or not; that was the occasion when I got a little excited, but I walked home.

1756. You were not drunk? I was never so drunk in my life that I could not walk.

1757. You conducted yourself properly? Yes.

1758. Was that in the evening or daytime? In the evening, or after night.

1759. Some person may have seen you in this excited state, and reported it to your disadvantage? Yes.

1760. At what time of night was it? I think about 11 o'clock.

1761. Is that the only time you can call to your remembrance, when you have been excited in the streets of Sydney? No, I think I have been some three or four times; and no wonder, disappointed in life as I have been.

1762. By the Chairman: You have never drank anything in the office, or during the time you have been engaged in your duties? I never drank a glass of spirituous liquors in my life while I was engaged in my work. I drank twice in the office a little brandy, for I was very bad of a bilious complaint, and had to leave the office, and go home, for fear I would be reported. I had a family to make a living for, and I was obliged to stay there whether I was sick or well. On two occasions I asked Mr. Hall for a little brandy; those were the only occasions in my life that I drank a drop while I was at my work.

1763. The other occasions to which you refer were at night? Yes, all at night.

1764. After the usual hours of business had long passed? Yes.

1765. By Mr. Stewart: In any case, when you might have been excited, it was in the evening, after business hours? Yes.

1766. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you suffered a great deal of trouble in this Colony, and been put about by being in distressed circumstances for want of work? Yes. My son-in-law had to return to America, and was sent away by the United States' Consul, leaving my daughter behind him.

1767. By the Chairman: When you were examined before Mr. Arnold did you wish to shew that those persons who were employed in the drawing-room could give direct evidence as to the conduct of the draughtsmen in that room, and also to shew that those who had given were seldom in the drawing-room, and could give evidence only from hearsay? Yes, I did; that was the meaning of my writing to Mr. Arnold, requesting that I should be allowed to give farther evidence, and when I came to that point in my evidence before Mr. Arnold, he objected to take anything farther down.

1768. Did you wish to state that Mr. Whitton was only once in the drawing-room for six months previously to the report of Mr. Gardiner? I did. Mr. Rae asked Mr. Arnold to put that down, and Mr. Arnold objected to it; then I quitted and walked out.

1769. When you found that only one-sided evidence was taken you did not wish to give any farther evidence? No; it was only one-sided evidence from the beginning.

1770. Do you now state that Mr. Whitton was only once in that drawing-room for six months? He was never there but once while I was there.

1771. Never but once for six months previously to Mr. Gardiner making that report? It must have been only four months previous to that that I was there—I was there on the 22nd August.

1772. During the four months you were there you saw Mr. Whitton there only once? Yes.

1773. Then he could know very little, personally, of the conduct of any of the draughtsmen in the department? He could not, except from hearsay.

1774. How often was Mr. Barton in the drawing-room during the same period? About three or four times.

1775. How often was Mr. Mason? Mr. Mason was, perhaps, once or twice more than Mr. Barton—I think five times.

1776. How often have you seen Mr. Drewett there? Three or four times.

1777. In reality these gentlemen could know very little of the proceedings of the draughtsmen? They could know very little unless they caught them drinking when they came in.

1778. Have you seen them come into the room when any of the persons who have been accused of drinking have been the worse for liquor? I saw Mr. Drewett once come into the room, and as soon as Mr. Hall saw him at the door he became solemn—quite acting. Mr.

Drewett

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1863.

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1863.

Drewett smiled, and walked out of the room. That is the only occasion on which I saw them come into contact.

1779. Then all the evidence these gentlemen have given with reference to the conduct of these draughtsmen must have been from hearsay? They could not know anything about it.

1780. Have you read their evidence in the public papers? No, I have not.

1781. From your evidence I infer that you do not consider Mr. Barton to be well up in the duties he has to perform? Decidedly not.

1782. You believe he spent a great portion of his time in Sydney instead of being engaged in the field? The field is his proper place—all the time he is in Sydney he is out of the line of his duty.

1783. Are you aware whether he draws the £280 a year allowed him as travelling expenses for the time he is in Sydney, as well as when he is in the field? I do not know.

1784. Have you seen him drink to excess in the office during office hours? I have seen plenty of wine on the table during lunch time.

1785. Have you seen him drinking at any other time during office hours? I had occasion to go to Mr. Drewett's room about twice a week to look for work, and I saw him once or twice having wine—I presume it was.

1786. Do you know whether he absents himself from the office while he is in Sydney? He is not there regularly.

1787. Does he come there regularly in the morning? No.

1788. Does he leave early in the evening? I think so.

1789. Do you know whether, when he is in the office, he attends to his work? I do not know. I think mostly when he is in the office he and Mr. Drewett are together. He, Mr. Drewett, and Mr. Whitton have their separate rooms. When Mr. Barton is there Mr. Drewett is seldom in his room; they are all their time together; I do not know what they are doing.

1790. You think £300 or £400 a year would be sufficient for Mr. Barton? Plenty.

1791. You say Mr. Mason, from incapacity or some other reason, does not perform his duties properly? I say the duties of chief assistant are in the field—what he is doing now is only the business of a measurer.

1792. That of a third or fourth class engineer? Surveyor.

1793. Of course, you consider him much overpaid for the duties he performs? I do; they are all overpaid.

1794. Under proper management his office could be dispensed with altogether? If the assistants in the field understood their business his office might be done away with.

1795. You consider the chief draughtsman, Mr. Drewett, inferior as a draughtsman and mathematician, to Mr. Robertson? I do.

1796. As a professional man also? Yes. I consider that Mr. Robertson ought to be in his place, except in as far as age is concerned.

1797. Still Mr. Drewett receives £500 a year, and Mr. Robertson £100? I do not know what pay Mr. Drewett receives; I never made any inquiry.

1798. Do you know whether Mr. Drewett absents himself from the office for days together? Sometimes the whole day.

1799. Is he regular in his hours in the morning? He is generally there at about half-past 9, and from that to a few minutes before 10.

1800. At what time does he leave in the evening? He generally stays in the evening till the office is closed, but he may absent himself for many hours without its being observed—his room being a different one from ours.

1801. Your evidence seems to imply that he does very little when he is in the office? Very little. The greater part of the drawing of bridges is done by Mr. Robertson and Mr. Trenchgrouse, junior.

1802. He is in the habit of drinking to excess very frequently? I never saw the man more than a little jolly.

1803. Do you think a man who is "jolly" as you call it, is qualified to perform the duties that Mr. Drewett should attend to? Certainly he is not.

1804. Do you think it shewing a good example to subordinates to be jolly? No, I think a man who drinks two glasses of anything, even of ale, is not fit for his duty in the office.

1805. You say Mr. Micklethwait does very little work there? He does not do much work.

1806. He is scarcely fit for any duty? He is scarcely fit for anything.

1807. You have often seen him the worse for liquor? Every day that he was there. I never saw him a day sober while I was in the office.

1808. Could he perform his work when he was in that state? I think if he was really sober he could not do anything.

1809. Have you seen him come drunk to the office? I have seen him come a little tipsy to the office; he has come in shivering and could not get to his work until he has had a drink or two.

1810. Would he bring the drink with him? Yes, in his pocket.

1811. Do you think, taking his salary into consideration, he performed the work in the office he should have done? Certainly not.

1812. Then you consider him a worthless public officer? I do.

1813. You do not think him a desirable person to be employed in any public office? Not in any public office.

1814. You have seen Mr. Hall drunk on several occasions? Generally speaking every day for months when he performed all these things—I do not know the names of them.

1815. He was a great idler? I do not believe Mr. Hall has done more than two hours work a day all the time he has been there.

1816.

1816. By Mr. Dalglish : Not at "scissors grinding"? Excepting "scissors grinding."
1817. By the Chairman : You have heard him make use of most immoral language? Yes.
1818. Indecent language? Yes, in acting the "tap-room toper"—I do not remember the language, but it is too bad to be written if I did remember it.
1819. He is a sort of person who would disorganize any office in which he was allowed to remain for any period? No question about that.
1820. Supposing you were the superior in the office would you allow him to remain there one day? No, I would not.
1821. Mr. Fearnside—you have also seen him drinking? I have.
1822. Have you seen him idling his time? Yes; Mr. Fearnside could be cured but Mr. Hall is incurable.
1823. I see in your evidence, given before Mr. Whitton, you say, "I never saw Mr. Trengrouse or Mr. Gardiner drink in the office, but I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside taking drink to lunch." Have you seen those gentlemen drinking only at that time? I told Mr. Whitton and Mr. Moody that I had seen those gentlemen take drink. "Oh! I suppose," said Mr. Whitton, "that was only at lunch," and it was put down in that way. I objected to it, and Mr. Moody remarked, "Do you not know the consequence if you do not sign this paper?" "I am a man, and I know the consequence," I replied.
1824. Then this statement with reference to lunch was a remark of Mr. Whitton, and you objected to its being put down as your evidence? Yes.
1825. That was not your intention? No; I stated to them broadly that I had seen them both drink in the office, so as to be totally unfit for their duties.
1826. Mr. Whitton did not take that down? Mr. Whitton did not take that down. I took the earliest opportunity to have the matter set right, as far as lay in my power, by writing a letter to Mr. Dalglish stating the circumstances.
1827. By Mr. Morris : How came you to sign this deposition or statement of yours? I was told of the consequences, and I knew if I did not sign it I should lose my bread and butter. I therefore signed it, but I took the first opportunity, and the next morning wrote to Mr. Dalglish stating the circumstances.
1828. By Mr. Stewart : Then it is not so much misrepresentation as omission of which you complained? Of misrepresentation as well as of omission, for I stated broadly that I had seen them unfit for duty, and Mr. Whitton put it down as though they had taken drink only at lunch.
1829. By Mr. Dalglish : You wrote to me complaining that the evidence given by you had been suppressed? Yes.
1830. And requesting to be examined again? Yes.
1831. By Mr. Morris : Were you not re-examined before Mr. Arnold in explanation of your evidence? No; it was glossed over.
1832. As a matter of fact, did you not state to Mr. Arnold, in explanation, that you had seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside unfit for duty from drink? (The Witness referred to the evidence, page 8.) Yes, I have explained this before Mr. Arnold—"I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside unfit for duty from drink. I never saw an office worse conducted."
1833. By the Chairman : That part of your evidence which you complain of not having been properly taken you explained before Mr. Arnold? Yes.
1834. And that appears in the 8th page of the Appendix? Yes.
1835. By Mr. Dalglish : Did you tender further evidence to Mr. Arnold to the effect that you had never seen Mr. Whitton in the office but once, which he refused to put down? Yes.
1836. By the Chairman : Did Mr. Fearnside do as much work as he should have done in that office? None of them did much work in that office—he did not.
1837. He was not only drunk but he idled his time away? Yes.
1838. Did you ever hear him make use of bad language? No.
1839. Used he to waste his time by reading the papers? Yes, and arguing politics.
1840. Mr. Mackay—you have also seen him drunk in the office? Yes, but I never heard him use bad language.
1841. Have you often seen Mr. Mackay drink in the office? Well, about daily. After Mr. Trengrouse, senior, left the room they had a regular quantity to bring in; sometimes they took a little more than they did at other times, but they were unfit for duty, and the work was not done. Perhaps where there were six draughtsmen employed there was not work enough for two.
1842. Mr. Mackay has done much of the work for which Mr. Hall has received the credit? He has.
1843. In fact Mr. Hall has done very little work in the department? Very little. Mr. Mackay has done most of the work in the architectural plans.
1844. The eight or ten draughtsmen in the department do not do the work of two? Two might have done the work that is done there, if the work had been properly fixed, and there had not been so much foolish business.
1845. In your opinion there is no discipline, no regularity, no acknowledged heads of any of the rooms in the Works Department? I never saw any one assume any superiority in the long-room—there was no head there.
1846. In any of the rooms you have been engaged in, in the various countries you have visited, have you seen such drunkenness, immorality, and idleness as you have witnessed in the Works Department of New South Wales? Never in my life.
1847. By Mr. Dalglish : Have you ever seen a room where so many draughtsmen have been employed, without a recognized head? I have never seen so many draughtsmen in one room, except in the General Valuation Office in Dublin, but there was no drinking allowed there, and

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1863.

Mr. John
Doherty.

3 Dec., 1863.

and there was a man there in every room, who was responsible for all the actions, and for any words of an irregular kind that were spoken.

1848. By the Chairman: The department here was thoroughly disorganized? No question of that.

1849. When any draughtsman required work it was difficult for him to know to whom to apply—do you think it is necessary to have different plans for every station—might not the stations be classified as No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, and so on, and one plan thus be made to serve for twenty or thirty different stations of the same class? That is the plan adopted in America.

1850. The chief engineer might put down class No. 1 station, and all that would then be necessary would be to refer to the plan of that class? Yes.

1851. If an arrangement of that kind were carried out in this country the services of Mr. Hall and of Mr. Mackay might be dispensed with altogether? Certainly.

1852. Will you look over these plans, and see whether you think it is necessary to have all these plans for one station? (The Witness referred to eight plans of the Singleton station.) It might be very well to have the front elevation and the ground plan.

1853. Is it not monstrous to shew all these mouldings upon the plan? Yes.

1854. Could they not be as well described in the specification as ogee or astragal mouldings? Yes.

1855. Do you think for a station, the erection of which would not cost much more than a thousand pounds, such detailed plans are necessary? Not at all.

1856. Do you not think they are calculated to confuse many contractors? It would not confuse them, but it is all useless. One general plan, with the elevation, the ground plan, and a cross-section would be sufficient.

1857. All the rest could be put in the specification? Yes; if there were a specification shewing the size of the rafters and everything else, the contractor could always refer to it.

1858. Besides if the plan of having class stations were adopted, the specifications might be printed? Yes.

1859. Which would get rid of one or two clerks in the department? Yes.

1860. Is it not monstrous to have these plans (referring to the same) shewing windows and folding-doors? Of course it is; one general plan and specification would embrace all the railway stations of that class in New South Wales.

1861. How many copies of these plans are drawn? I cannot tell—there are lots of them, bushels of them.

1862. By Mr. Morris: I apprehend they are tracings of those? Tracings.

1863. By Mr. Dalgleish: How long would it take a man to make a set of tracings of these? According to what they call here the "Government stroke," it would take a week to make one of these tracings.

1864. By Mr. Stewart: What time does the drawing take? I suppose one of these drawings would take thirty days.

1865. By the Chairman: There are no less than twelve or thirteen tracings of these drawings taken? I believe there are.

1866. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are not aware of how many? I am not.

1867. By the Chairman: Is it necessary to have this number of plans for any station? Certainly not; two plans would be quite sufficient.

1868. These plans need not contain one-twentieth part of the work which the plans now before the Committee contain? They need not contain one-tenth of the work.

1869. You say that according to the rate at which the work is done in the office, it would take a draughtsman about a week to make a tracing of each plan? Yes.

1870. So that to trace a set of these plans would occupy eight weeks? Yes.

1871. If there are thirteen copies and tracings to be taken from these plans, it must then of necessity occupy a draughtsman two years to prepare the necessary tracings from these plans? Yes.

1872. According to the present rate of performing work in the office, how long do you think it would take Mr. Hall and Mr. Mackay to prepare one set of plans similar to that now before you? I am unable to state farther than that I have seen Mr. Hall engaged for two weeks on a plan, pencilling in, and I have seen Mr. Mackay a full week completing the plan.

1873. Do you think, taking one with another, that a fortnight would be occupied on each plan? Yes.

1874. That would be sixteen weeks completing these plans? Yes.

1875. By Mr. Morris: How were you employed in the office—what were your duties? Tracing while I was in the long-room. The last time I was there I was at the distribution of materials—making sections.

1876. Tracing is work that could be done by boys? Yes.

1877. What was Mr. Robertson employed at during the time you were in the office? Drawing.

1878. Then it is not true, as stated by Mr. Whitton in his memorandum, that Mr. Doherty and Mr. Robertson are both only temporarily occupied in the office to make tracings? I have answered that—it is not true Mr. Robertson was all the time drawing bridges.

1879. How long were you in the office with Mr. Trengrouse, senior? Only a few days; after my arrival in the office he left and went up-stairs.

1880. How long were you with Mr. Trengrouse, junior? We have been together nearly all the time.

1881. Did you refer to Mr. Trengrouse, junior, when you said, "I never saw Mr. Trengrouse or Mr. Gardiner drink in the office, but I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside"? Yes.

1882. There was a Mr. Telmon with you in the office? Yes.

1883. Does he attend to his duties properly? He does; he keeps very closely to his work. He is all the time tracing. Mr. John Doherty.
1884. Is he a man on whose word you could rely? I think so; he is a very timid man—a Frenchman. 3 Dec., 1863.
1885. He had, I apprehend, every opportunity of knowing whether Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait were given to intemperate habits? Certainly, he was present the whole time.
1886. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you aware of Mr. Telmon having made some observations with regard to Mr. Hall smelling like a brandy cask? Yes, I have heard him say so.
1887. When Mr. Hall was passing on one occasion, and asking where the bottle of brandy was, did Mr. Telmon say he smelt like a brandy cask, referring to Mr. Hall? Yes.
1888. By Mr. Morris: How often was Mr. Quodding in the long-room—did he frequently visit it? He was down only a few times—probably four or five times; he came down to Mr. Hall about a specification.
1889. Simply on a message? Yes, about specifications.
1890. I have not quite understood from you why, when you have observed all these improprieties going on in the office—this gross neglect of duty and robbery of the public—you have not reported it? I knew from all the circumstances, from all I saw around me, that if I did report I should be dismissed immediately.
1891. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you in the habit of hearing conversations in the office, relative to the intimacy of certain persons in the office with Mr. Whitton? Yes, I mentioned that yesterday.
1892. You were led to believe those persons were intimate friends of Mr. Whitton, and had been so for years? Yes, that was from Mr. Micklethwait.
1893. You are aware that persons in the office, when they have complained to Mr. Whitton, have been told to mind their own business? I did hear that.
1894. Were you cognizant of the fact that Mr. Gardiner did send in a written complaint with regard to the conduct of some, and received no redress? Yes.
1895. And that it was circulated in the office that Mr. Gardiner was to be dismissed in consequence of having complained? Yes.
1896. This became currently known? Yes.
1897. And persons who would have given evidence if they had been called upon, were too much impressed by fear to say a word? Yes, that was the reason I did not say anything about it.
1898. By Mr. Morris: Is it not the fact that all these improprieties were going on long before Mr. Gardiner made the representation he did, and that therefore, that could not have been your reason? These improprieties were going on; but I knew, as I have before stated, that these persons were connected with the family of Mr. Whitton, and I would not report anything to get myself dismissed, and as soon as I thought I was any way safe, I wrote a letter to Mr. Dalgleish shewing him how the work was being done.
1899. Do you not think it would have been more becoming of you, as a person employed by the Government, to have acquainted some person in the department with these improprieties, rather than to inform some one out of doors? Mr. Whitton called once out in the long-room; and as I had been in the habit of doing in other parts of the world, when I had met gentlemen holding a superior position in the department to which I belonged, I said, "How do you do this morning, Mr. Whitton?" He never replied, but scowled as if I were an inferior, and from what I heard afterwards from Mr. Micklethwait, I knew to a certainty that I would be dismissed immediately; and that if I were dismissed my character would be ruined; and I was not going to return to America with my character ruined.
1900. What did you hear from Mr. Micklethwait, that led you to suppose anything of the kind? I heard from Mr. Trengrouse —
1901. From Mr. Micklethwait was my question? He told me he was a schoolfellow of John, and could do with him as he liked. "John" meant Mr. Whitton.
1902. By the Chairman: Did you hear that Mr. Trengrouse complained to Mr. Whitton? I did, Mr. Trengrouse told me himself.
1903. Did you hear what Mr. Whitton told him? He told him to mind his own business.
1904. By Mr. Morris: Do you think that is a justification of your not representing such gross misconduct as you have described to this Committee? I have taken the first opportunity.
1905. Surely you took no opportunity till you were called upon? I did. I took the opportunity of writing to Mr. Dalgleish. I was a stranger in the office, and was looked upon as a very great inferior, because I was from America; and I was oftentimes told if I did not do my tracings better I should be discharged—that I was working too fast.
1906. Who told you that? Mr. Hall and Mr. Drewett told me to take my time.
1907. Did Mr. Hall mean by working too fast that you were not doing your work well? He might mean that; he said I had a wild way of doing my work, like all the Americans. He often told me that I should take my time in order to get into the Government stroke.
1908. You are not an American as a matter of fact? No. Mr. Drewett often told me to take my time.
1909. Would it not be impossible for Mr. Whitton by merely visiting the room, even every day, to discover these improprieties unless he had some information direct with regard to them? I think if he had visited it once a day, and come at uncertain hours, it would have been quite impossible that there should have been such disorganization in the office. I think it was his duty to visit it at least three times a week.
1910. By Mr. Stewart: Do you know the length of line to be performed by the railway department? No.
1911. From your experience in private companies in other parts of the world, do you think the staff of the railway department could be reduced very considerably? I will give you an instance of how these things are managed in America. On the Illinois central rail-

- Mr. John Doherty.
 3 Dec., 1863.
- road a survey was commenced, and finally completed in little over two years and a half; there were four draughtsmen only engaged under Mr. Mason of the Mason and Dixon's line; those four draughtsmen did all the work, besides the architectural drawings that were requisite. There are models sent round to the railway companies of bridges and station-houses, and whatever suits is adopted, that is, a model of class No. 1 station, of class No. 2, and so on; the chief engineer and directors adopt some of them, and one drawing with one or two copies answers the purpose of any length of that class, and so of the others. The Illinois central railroad was over 600 miles, and four draughtsmen did all the necessary work. There was a resident engineer upon every fifty miles, and I think three division engineers. Every resident engineer had two assistants, one with a theodolite or transit, and the other a leveller. He had also a waggon, two horses, and two labourers.
1912. Then, taking the extent of line, do you think the staff employed in our railway department very considerably beyond the strength that would be employed ordinarily in America on a railway? I do not know how many there are in the field, but I know there are twice as many in the office as are requisite for the work.
1913. You think the work done in the office could be done by half the number of persons? Yes, and done twice as well.
1914. By Mr. Morris: Mr. Whitton, in his memorandum, refers to the letter you wrote with a view to publication, and which was published in the Empire—did you write that letter? I know that any one in Government employment—I learned that in the old country—has no right to write a letter respecting the department in which he is engaged to a public newspaper while he is in the service, but I believed he had a right to communicate with a member of the Legislature, and therefore knowing his relatives in San Francisco I gave the letter to my friend Mr. Dalgleish to do with it what he pleased.
1915. Did you make that representation to Mr. Whitton and Mr. Moody? I did not. Mr. Moody asked me if I had seen a letter in the Empire. I said, "Yes." "Did you sign it?" So he wrote down, "I saw a letter in the Empire of a certain date, and I signed it." I said, "Let me have that paper, upon which I wrote I saw a letter, and I have written it."
1916. You did not write it with a view to publication? No.
1917. Did they know that you had given me that letter? Yes. I never published anything in the paper.
1918. When you arrived here from California you brought some surveying instruments with you? Yes.
1919. These instruments were of a novel character? Yes.
1920. Did you explain to Mr. Whitton the new improvements that were in the instrument? I did.
1921. Did he appreciate them? He said he had too many instruments already. I offered to sell mine to him for £30, and he said he could get good theodolites from England for less. I told him I was aware of that, but that a theodolite was not so good as a transit. He replied that he did not want it. It cost me £47 in San Francisco.
1922. In measuring with this new instrument there is no necessity for chaining? No.
1923. It is especially applicable to making trial surveys? Yes.
1924. Would it be a great saving to the Colony if it were introduced here? It would be a great saving. I took it to Mr. M'Lean, the Surveyor General; he was very ill at the time, but he took a great interest in the matter and promised to send a man to see the instrument. He came down but the instrument was in the pawn office, and he could not see it unless we could pay some couple of shillings. He saw it afterwards but could not understand it.
1925. Have you the instrument still? Yes; it would be a great saving for the Survey Department in lagoons and places where you cannot chain.

TUESDAY, 7 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. ARNOLD,
MR. GARRETT,

MR. TIGHE.

MR. MORRIS,
MR. STEWART,

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Charles Bosé called in and examined:—

- Mr. C. Bosé.
 7 Dec., 1863.
1926. By the Chairman: Are you a Civil Engineer and Surveyor? I am.
1927. Where did you acquire your professional knowledge? In Denmark and Germany. I was in Copenhagen, and in Kiel—the most northern University—Germany, Schleswig-Holstein.
1928. What kind of professional work did you perform in your own country? Different sorts of work. I was surveying for roads and railways. I was surveying also for the English minister. I was also surveying the estates of other gentlemen, and doing work for the Government.*
1929. Did you come to this Colony direct from Denmark or Germany? No, I came to Victoria first—to Melbourne.
1930. Did you do any professional work at Melbourne? Yes, I did; I was doing surveys beyond the town. I made a great many sub-divisions near Melbourne. I was also connected with with Government, and assisted in computing at the Observatory, calculating the latitudes and longitudes from the Nautical Almanac, especially longitudes. I was also engaged in teaching surveying to some contractors and Government employés.

* ADDED (on revision):—I held an appointment from the King of Denmark, for the Duchies of Slesvic-Holstein, till the outbreak of the German-Danish war.

Mr. C. Bosé.

7 Dec., 1863.

1931. How long have you been in this Colony? Somewhat better than three years.

1932. What have you been engaged in since you came to this Colony? I have been engaged partly in my profession and partly in teaching. I have been surveying and sub-dividing lands and estates near Sydney—Petersham Estate, for Mr. Macarthur, and Dobroyd Estate, for Mr. Ramsay. I have been running the best trial lines for roads, and have been rectifying the previous surveys of licensed surveyors, because I surveyed both Petersham and Dobroyd, and sub-divided both after these surveyors had done the work.

1933. Have you that with you? I have, from Mr. Macarthur, one of the trustees. (The Witness handed in the same. Vide Appendix.) Previous to this I was teacher of mathematics and of foreign languages at Macquarie Fields, in Mr. Macarthur's college.

1934. Have you any certificate as to your qualification from your University? I have only a copy, which is written from memory. I had some originals, but they were lost in the office.

1935. How do you mean? I sent them from the country into the office of Mr. Robertson, and then afterwards I got back only this; but my certificate from the University, with the seal attached, that I had passed my examination as a Royal surveyor, I got not back.

1936. Did you apply for it? I applied for it several times.

1937. Do you mean to say that it was lost in the Lands Office? Yes, they told me they could not trace it—that was the word they used.

1938. And this bore the seal of the University? Of the University of Kiel.*

1939. The paper you now produce is something like a copy of that document? Yes, it is written from memory. I went to Mr. Fitzgerald's and Mr. Warburton's office, and I saw Mr. Robertson himself, but I could not obtain it.

1940. Have you any other testimonials? Yes, I have; but I have not them here.

1941. Have you been on our Western line of railway? Yes, I have been on the Western line of railway; but I was not engaged under the Government; I was teaching one of the railway engineers there. I was engaged privately, because I could not get any work here. Our profession is spoiled altogether in this country, and I could not get anything to do, so this railway engineer wanted me to give him some lessons in surveying—in the practical part of his profession.†

1942. Have you any knowledge of the manner in which our railway surveys are made? Yes, I have.

1943. Do you think they are made in such a manner as a professional engineer would make them? By no means.

1944. In what way are they not? They are defective in various ways, and shew that the rules and regulations issued by the head of the department are wrong, and that he is not a scientific man.

1945. To whom do you refer? To Mr. Whitton; because a scientific man should have penetration like the old Napoleon—like a good General—to detect whether a man had capacity or ability.

1946. You have hardly told us in what way you consider our railways defective? In various ways—firstly, the lines are in localities where they ought not to be; and secondly, if even they were in the right position, the way the work is done of laying these lines and connecting them by curves is erroneous.

1947. How do you mean connecting them by curves? Curves are used where there are obstacles; here they are used where there are no obstacles, so that there is a squandering of money, a waste of power, and an increased wear and tear of machinery.

1948. Do I understand you to mean that they make the land suit the curves, instead of making the curves suit the land? Exactly; instead of running these curves out, as a surveyor should do, in the field, being a competent man, the curves are sent out from the office into the field, and the surveyor lays off the curve from the old traverse, which may be quite erroneous, because firstly the old traverse may be wrongly surveyed, and secondly on account of hygrometrical influence the paper may be contracted, and as by contraction the circle assumes the shape of an ellipse, the distances in the map or plan do not contract equally. Thirdly, the scale being ten chains to one inch or 1:7920, all distances can only be taken off by a pair of compasses to an exactitude of say five links, provided the work is done correctly.

1949. You say that the curves are made in the office instead of being laid out upon the field, and that the land is made to suit the curves instead of the curves the land? Exactly.

1950. This in some instances will cause a great deal of expense, even if it is all practicable? It is not practicable at all, and it will cause expense, and not only so, but there will be a great waste of power. The lines are not what they ought to be; they are not in those places or localities where they ought to be. That is not the only deficiency; they have shewn a want of elementary science, and have made a curve in a plain where there is no occasion to make a curve in a distance of nearly a couple of miles. (The Witness illustrated his meaning by referring to a diagram.)

1951. I understand you to say that where it was necessary to make a curve to avoid a hill or an expensive cutting, a straight line has been made? Yes, and vice versa. The line which ought to touch the circle runs into the circle, so that if they would carry it out there would be loss of life.

1952.

* NOTE (on revision):—It bore the seal of the Commission for the examination of Royal Surveyors on it, issued in the University of Kiel; and I sent with it the certified copy of the appointment by King Christian VIII of Denmark, the previous King, and signed by all the Ministers of State (which I did not get back neither), in which I took the oath of allegiance.

† NOTE (on revision):—Theoretical and practical, for I went with him through the first six books of Euclid.

- Mr. C. Bosé. 1952. That is to say the line does not run tangent to the circle? Yes.
- 7 Dec., 1863. 1953. You say this is very disgraceful and would be likely to cost the loss of life? Yes, but I suppose the man who would lay the railway would be so clever as to see it.
1954. You depend upon the plate layers? I should say it is done in that way instead of investigating the matter upon scientific principles.
1955. From your evidence we infer that a great deal of the work of laying down the permanent line, which should be done in the field by trial surveys, is done in the office now? Yes, it ought all to be done in the field by surveyors who are competent men.
1956. Is there any other defect in our railway surveying that you have noticed? Yes, there are a great many; the methods in which they make the roads and lay out the curves is not right.
1957. Will you explain what you mean? In laying down the curves in America and other countries, they lay down the curves by a method which is not known here; they have a mathematical formula or method by deflecting angles to run the curve out by chords of an equivalent distance, say one chain. Here they make the curves by offsets at right angles from tangents. That method is not always the best; it is very erroneous in a great many ways, and, under certain circumstances—as the offsets in this method do not pass through the centre of the circles pertaining to the curves or the offsets—are not laid out radially.
1958. Have you had an opportunity of seeing the S curves on the Western Line? There is a formula of Pombala for the super-elevation of rails, for raising the convex or outer curve of the rail. This is found out by a strict formula, and this formula should be applied which introduces certain magnitudes as radius or curvatures, otherwise there will be danger of going off the rail.
1959. After you turn one curve, and before you go on to another, should there not be a straight line? Yes; or else there will be a jerk, and the train may go off the line, and there will be tremendous wear and tear.
1960. By Mr. Tighe: Is that rule not observed in making S curves on this line? I would not state anything that I do not know; that is the way it ought to be, but I am not aware whether it is so or not.
1961. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you seen the zigzag on the Western Line? No, I have not. They have used radii, which would not be admitted in England, of from fifteen to twenty chains. Brunel and Stephenson admitted only three-quarters of a mile radius for a curve near a depôt, but in mineral mines in England and abroad there are smaller curves used. On the Continent, if they can help it, they do not like to make curves smaller than fifty chains near a depôt, on account of the wear and tear and loss of velocity.
1962. Where have the engineers here made these lower curves? On the Western Line they have made curves of from twenty to twenty-five chains radius, and so on.
1963. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have they not curves of ten chains? They have down to fifteen I know.
1964. Are you aware whether they are down to ten chains? I am told so, but I would not state anything I have not seen. On the Southern Line, after running to the right and left, and squandering money in making surveys, they are now falling back upon the line pointed out years ago by Mr. Woore, a well known qualified gentleman at Pomroy, near Goulburn.
1965. By the Chairman: Do you know anything of what is the smallest radius for curves in England? I know so much as this: that Mr. Brunel and Mr. Stephenson limit the curves to three-quarters of a mile, although there are smaller curves than that in England—and the smallest curves are in mineral railroads—but at the time there were so many railways in course of construction every one passed himself off as an engineer, even though he had no idea of the elements of Euclid, and received his five guineas a day. At that time they built bridges obliquely where they ought to have been built at right angles, and committed many other frightful errors; but now-a-days an engineer should thoroughly understand the rules, so as not to squander one sixpence more than necessary. The great difficulty is not to make a railway, but to select the true line, the best and cheapest; and in order to do this he must take all the data which influence the lines; if he omit one of these, he may represent that to be the best which is the worst. It is for this reason that I would say a scientific man without practice is better than a practical man without theory. I have no interest in this question farther than that I should like to see the best man at the head of the department. I know it is wrongly carried on at present—also the land surveying, as I could shew. I was teaching a licensed surveyor who could not extract the square root. I told the Surveyor General (Mr. Adams) so, and he admitted that he could not extract the cube root, but would not admit that the surveyor could not extract the square root.
1966. By Mr. Dalgleish: This is the plan of the Great Western Railway Extension beyond Penrith, part 1—(referring to the same)—do you observe the lines of curvature there? I do. If this were done in contour, as I can shew by the best authors, you could detect at a moment the height of every mountain, and that would assist the engineer very much, as he could draw the trial lines in his office. This plan looks very well, but it is useless for practical purposes, because you do not see the heights of the hills. The surveyors do not know the method of projecting the hills, so as to be able to detect with the eye immediately the proper gradients.
1967. Are these S curves? The scale is so small that it is scarcely possible to see how they are. That (referring to the plan) appears to be a compound curve. A compound curve is two curves described by different radii, pertaining to circles which touch each other internally, going in the same direction.
1968. The last curve of the zigzag nearest Bathurst, over Knapsack Gully—I mean the curve and the curve leading to it—does that appear to be a compound curve? It is an S curve, because an S curve is composed of the elements of two circles touching each other externally, externally, but it may be a compound S curve, because on account of the small scale it is difficult to discern between a compound S curve and a single S curve. Mr. C. Bosé.

1969. A compound curve is an union of three or four curves? It may be of two; you may call it a composite curve. 7 Dec., 1863.

1970. A compound or composite curve is used in forming ovals? Yes, it is the ordinary way for mechanics; but mathematicians construct the ellipse by its known properties.

1971. For all practical purposes this plan is useless? Yes; the plan should have shewn the heights of the hills by concentric lines.

1972. By Mr. Morris: Is it not obvious that the plan is intended not as a plan from which to work, but to shew the course of the line, and the properties through which it passes? Yes, it appears to be.

1973. By the Chairman: You attribute our defective system of railway survey to the work being done in the office that should be done in the field? Yes.

1974. You appear to speak from personal knowledge concerning the want of scientific knowledge of railway surveyors who are in the field? I do. I do not want to compromise anyone, or to call names, but I know there are persons employed in the service who do not know the contents of a circle—that is disgraceful.

1975. You know that of your own knowledge? I know that of my own knowledge. I instructed some* of the railway surveyors myself.

1976. Some\* of those who are engaged in running trial surveys? Who are now in the employ of Government running trial surveys—they do not know the contents of a circle—they do not know the proximate relation between the diameter and the circumference or periphery—they do not know the numerical value of  $\pi$ —they do not know the approximations of 1.3 or 7.22, or how to find it.

1977. Have any of our engineers in this country applied to you for instruction? I was engaged to give instruction.

1978. By some of our surveyors? Yes, privately.

1979. By gentlemen who are in the receipt of large salaries? Yes, very good salaries.

1980. Are they considered competent railway engineers? Yes, some may consider them so.

1981. Did you give them instructions since they have been in the service, or before they went into the service? I gave them instructions since they have been in the service—they are now appointed under Government.

1982. Do you know how long they had been engaged as surveyors and railway engineers before they applied to you to instruct them? No, I do not understand. I was only engaged when I was up the country; but I had, previous to this, given instructions to men under Government, and to contractors under Government, with large salaries.

1983. Have you given instructions to these persons since they have been employed as Government engineers? Also I have.

1984. Up to what time? About a fortnight ago.

1985. You were giving some of them instructions a fortnight ago ———

1986. Had those persons been engaged as railway surveyors for a considerable time? No, they had not been engaged previously as far as I can ascertain, but they applied to Mr. Whitton for appointment, and got it without being examined, or even knowing the elements of Euclid.

1987. Were they appointed before you gave them this instruction, or afterwards? When they had been instructed.

1988. You have instructed none that were really in the employ of Government? Exactly.

1989. By Mr. Tighe: They were appointed by Mr. Whitton without sufficient previous examination having been made? I suppose so, otherwise they would not have shewn that deficiency in mechanics and in the elementary part of their business. I have seen different surveyors running out their lines in different directions—I mean to say, that lines which ought to coincide on the paper and in the field, or where the divergency ought to be but small, there has been a large divergency. One of the surveyors has said to me, "Will you go out and see what you make it"? I have gone out with the instruments and taken the line correctly. Afterwards he has gone out again, and said that his lines very nearly agreed with mine; whether they really did, or whether he adopted my lines I could not say. The other employé of Government has been quite out. This, I think, proves the whole department to be defectively carried on, for one surveyor is sent out after another to make a survey, and if their two lines agree they are taken for granted to be correct, whereas one man ought to know the correctness of his own line.

1990. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you mean to say that one man has been sent out to resurvey the lines of another? Yes.

1991. Do you mean to say that each man does not check his own work? He tries to do so, and he may do it for his own sake, but he runs after another man and checks his work.

1992. Do you mean that he tries to check the others work, but rarely makes his own and the others agree? Yes.

1993. Do you think it is right to make this statement, and not to give the names of the persons you refer to, as it leaves us in doubt as to other persons in the department to whom your remarks may not apply? If it is necessary for my own reputation I shall give the names, but I do not wish to do so. I expect nothing from this quarter, therefore I consider myself independent.

1994. If you have no particular objection I think it would serve the public interest if you gave the names of the officers you refer to? I should not like to do so, as I came to them privately, and I must always be a gentleman. I should like to see the

- Mr. C. Bosé. the best man in the office at the head of the department. A scientific man shews less patronage and has no jealousy, but I say that if I were in high position I would have such rules and regulations drawn out by the head engineer as that every one should be responsible for his work.* I can shew that mathematics affords every man the means of knowing whether he is right or wrong if he closes his work. He will know whether in a polygon the sum of observed angles is equal to  $(N-2) 2 R$ , or whether twice number of sides, minus four right angles, agree with his observed angles; besides the checks by intersecting lines of verification and coincidence of the magnetic needle at starting and closing.
- 7 Dec., 1863.
1995. Was it the Engineer-in-Chief you had to instruct in this way? No, it was the pupil of some other engineer who had recently been put on the staff.
1996. Was he employed upon important work? Yes, so important as laying out curves.
1997. Was it laying out curves for the contractor or laying out curves for some of the trial lines? For the trial lines.
1998. By the Chairman: Will you tell the name or names of the person or persons you have been instructing? I could perhaps do that without compromising myself; he was son of the Chief Magistrate at Singleton.
1999. By Mr. Arnold: Was it Mr. McDowell? Yes.
2000. By the Chairman: Did you ever give instructions to any other? Not to those connected with the Government here under the Railway Department; but to so-called licensed surveyors.
2001. Did you ever give instructions to any person engaged surveying in the north? There have been different persons that I have solved problems for; gentlemen who are licensed surveyors have often asked me about practical surveying problems.
2002. Have you given instructions to any other gentlemen connected with the Works Department? No.
2003. By Mr. Arnold: Only to Mr. McDowell? Yes.
2004. By the Chairman: Did you ever make application to be appointed to lay out the railway in this Colony? I did when I first came to the country.
2005. Did the Engineer-in-Chief take down your address? I think so. I was introduced to Mr. Whitton, I think, by Mr. Arnold.
2006. When was this? About three years and a half ago.
2007. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say you were introduced to Mr. Whitton by Mr. Arnold? I think so.
2008. By the Chairman: Do you know Mr. Arnold? I should say so.
2009. Would you recognize him if you saw him? I should say so—perhaps it was not Mr. Arnold—it was a gentleman near Mr. Whitton's room who introduced me—I took him to be Mr. Arnold. I could not say exactly; however I was introduced to Mr. Whitton at that time.
2010. Did Mr. Whitton ask you any questions as to your qualifications? I suppose he did.
2011. Did he? Yes; he asked me what work I had done, and I shewed him my testimonials.
2012. Had you those testimonials which you have since lost in the Lands Department? Yes.
2013. And you presented them to him? Yes.
2014. He took your address down, so that, if your services were required at any time, you might be sent for? Yes, he put down my address.
2015. Did you ever hear any more from him? No.
2016. Was it not about this time that Mr. Arnold stated, in the Assembly, that it was impossible to get qualified gentlemen as surveyors in the country? Yes; that there was a dearth—that was the expression—of competent surveyors.
2017. At the same time you had shewed Mr. Whitton these testimonials from the University in Germany? Yes.
2018. Do you remember the conversation that took place between yourself and Mr. Whitton on that occasion? No.
2019. Did you then consider that Mr. Whitton was qualified to judge whether you were a scientific man or not? No. He would have selected a better staff in the field if he were a qualified man. I know he is not. He would examine his staff—would subject them to a fair public examination.
2020. In consequence of the appointment of such inefficient persons in the field, you think he is not a well qualified engineer himself? By no means. "Tel maître, tel valet"—"As the master, so the servant"—is an old French proverb.
2021. Have you during your stay in the Colony met any qualified gentlemen, fit to be employed as railway engineers? I have, no doubt; it is rather a queer question. I have not found many; still they would be obtainable, if the department liked to get qualified men.
2022. You do not think they are numerous in the Colony? If these things were conducted properly they would come forward.
2023. Have you met them yourself? Yes, I have met clever men.
2024. Can you name them? There are not many, for there is no scope here for them.
2025. Do you think there are a sufficient number of highly qualified gentlemen in this country to carry on the whole of our railway surveys—men who are not now connected with the Railway Department? Yes, I think there are.
2026. Under the present management of the Railway Department, do you think these persons can get employment? No; it seems to me that, at present, it is all discord; the right man is placed in the wrong place, or wrong places are given to right men; for instance, a man who would make a good practical man in the field is put into an office and made made a drudge of. A high engineer does not think much of drawing, though he can make his drawings near enough to be correct; he does not rejoice in the excelling of drawing; he is a man of genius—a high mathematician; this man is made a draughtsman of, and is beaten by youngsters. He has the lowest work given to him, and is used as a tracer in the office, when he might be a very good and efficient man in the field, and Government might benefit by his service there. It is the same in the Lands Department. The Surveyor General asked me if I could trace; I said I could not trace, but if he wanted the higher branches in the field I could do it. In this liberal community the most stupid men are sent out to the field, or as I think it should be interpreted, the most obsequious man. I should like to be confronted with Mr. Whitton. I have no jealousy whatever, as I think I may very shortly leave this Colony; it is of no interest to me, but I should like to see a public examination here, and I should like the Chinese bow before a superior man—the Chief Engineer should be the highest man in the department.

* NOTE (on revision):—Instead of checking each other.

Mr. C. Bosé.
7 Dec., 1883.

2027. You say that men who would have been useful men in the field, and who are nearly useless in the office, have been kept in the office, while useless men have been sent into the field? Yes.

2028. That is the fault of the management of the department of course? Yes.

2029. Do you know anything of the system of railway survey in Victoria? Yes, I have been assisting in laying out curves there and calculating curves trigonometrically.

2030. Do you think the system of railway surveying in Victoria is superior to ours here? Yes, it is deficient in many ways, nevertheless it is superior to ours, for instance, in the minutiæ of pegging out, the practical part of the work is better done. I know the minutiæ, as I have calculated most of the curves at Ballarat; they are calculated on trigonometrical calculus; it is an inferior calculus which every engineer ought to know, but they do not. The work here will not stand, because it is not done cheerfully; the men are paid but 10s. a week for their rations in the field, and they do it carelessly.

2031. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do they not receive £1 a week and their rations? I made a mistake; the surveyor is allowed 10s. a week for the rations of each man, and it is to the interest of the surveyor not to give too much rations to the men, and the consequence is that there is not much work done; there is no ambition in the department.

2032. By the Chairman: Do you know who determines the nature and magnitude of the curves? No, I suppose that is done by some genius in the office; every surveyor ought to do it in the field himself. There seems to be a mania for curves—a desire to make a curve where there ought to be a straight line.

2033. Then the surveyor receives from the office information where, and how, he is to lay the curve? Yes.

2034. Then this system of laying down curves upon the ground will not test the accuracy of any former survey? No it cannot.

2035. Is it possible to make the best line of railway under the present system, or is it mere chance? It is possible; but I will point out that it is not possible in certain instances, to choose the absolute best line. If I have to make a line from here to Victoria, and go direct there, instead of round by Van Diemen's Land, a priori, the straight line is best; but in other cases it is not so, and the engineer must find out what he cannot find out unless he be a mathematician, because the merely construction of the railway, after the line has been chosen, is not very difficult; but the highest investigating talent is required to make the selection between two or more lines, therefore all authorities and practical men* (Mr. Woore asserted the same when the surveyors were running their lines near Goulburn), agree that the Engineer-in-Chief ought to be in the field himself—the selection and laying out of the line is the most difficult operation. How many data influence the priority of one line to another, even the mean value of the gradients, does not always decide, that is—the length of one line multiplied by the force of traction of that line has to be compared to the analagous data of another line, in order to establish the priority of one of the lines; but there are exceptions on account of unequal traffic, saving of capital, which influence all this and without being able to discuss algebraic mechanical formulas—the engineer will never be sure to select the proper lines.†

2036. By Mr. Dalgleish: I think you said you had instructed only one railway surveyor? Only one here in this country.

2037. By the Chairman: Has it ever to come to your knowledge, that the surveyor or engineer, in laying down these curves, as directed from the office, has found that the ground would not fit the curve, and that it has been impossible to lay it down as directed from the office? Yes, it has been so; curves have been laid down wrongly.

2038. Can you give us an instance? Yes; on the plans where this large curve is with the straight line running into it, about eight miles from Merriwa, between Mudgee and Merriwa.

2039. By Mr. Tighe: You must have seen both the plan and the ground to be able to say that? It was not necessary to see the plan at all. I saw the curve before me on the ground, and that there was a straight line running into the curve.

2040. And you conclude from that that the plan was made in such a way? Yes, I had reason to.

2041. By the Chairman: What plan would you adopt for our surveys? I would send out competent men, and the men who had to make the survey should make the curves themselves, and run the centre lines.

2042.

* MEMO (on revision) :—Already Professor Gregory, twenty years ago, advocates this principle in his popular written work on "Railway Engineering."

† MEMO (on revision) :—The value of each particular gradient, reckoning in one direction with its proper sign + or minus, and multiplied by its corresponding length, having been calculated, then the difference between the sum of all the positive, and that of the negative ones being divided by the length of the whole line gives the mean value, and two lines have to be compared to that effect.

Mr. C. Bosé. 2042. You think the curves should be laid out in the field in the place where they would absolutely be laid down, instead of being laid down on paper in the office? Yes. These curves ought to be calculated analytically, for every calculation with abstract numbers is far more correct than plotting work, because you get the exact numbers in the result which ultimately may be set off in the field. That shews the great deficiency of the present system, because if the man at the head of the department were really scientific, he would have done as I have indicated; but I have heard that Mr. Whitton has said, "Calculate that curve," making a sweep with his hand upon the paper. It should not be laid out graphically on the paper and then transplanted on the ground, on account of the accumulating errors in the construction on account of the frailty of the human senses, but by calculating analytically and laying out the curves upon the ground you would have them correct. This rule is even adhered to in the excellent Survey Departments of France and Prussia, in the lower branches of surveying. The Cadastré Français, in a volume concerning rules and regulations, and called "Recueil Methodique," and in the modern survey of the Prussian Rhenish Provinces, the contents of fields are ascertained by lines and co-ordinates actually measured or calculated, but not allowed to be taken from the plan, by a pair of compasses; but in railways it is still more necessary that the utmost accuracy should prevail.

2043. Do you think a person not possessed of sound knowledge of mathematics can be a competent railway surveyor? No; there was a time when it might not have been insisted upon. When we speak of Telford—he was not well acquainted with the first rules of algebra.* But what are the Stephensons or the Brunels? They are not such great men; they are not like Newton; they are only followers, making use of the principles others have discovered, and sometimes making great blunders; but I say that now-a-days a man must be a first-rate mathematician otherwise he cannot be an efficient man as the head of a department; he will be shewn up by his subordinates, and that is a disgrace. If he is not a practical man—if he knows the principles of mathematics—he cannot go far astray. In olden times mathematics was everything, and I would recommend that every legislator should be a mathematician. In some countries, as in Sweden and Denmark, they put over the Hall of Legislature, "Med Law Cygges Land." † That is what the Conqueror said, and I would write the same over the House of Assembly—"No one allowed to enter here without Mathematics." I should put that up instead of what is put up by some of the sham professors in Melbourne—"The time of a scientific man is valuable, therefore, traveller, do not annoy him unnecessarily."

2044. Then, if I understand you, it is necessary that the Engineer-in-Chief in this country should be highly qualified, in order that he might select competent gentlemen for his staff? Yes; if he has no practice, if he has theory. It is better to have no practice with theory, than to have practice without theory. He can make his own practice if he understands theory. If the head of a department is a scientific man he will choose the best men that present themselves to him. If he is a thorough-bred mathematician he will detect his men à coup d'œil.

2045. By Mr. Arnold: Do I gather from you that persons who are not mathematicians are competent to conduct an examination or investigation of this kind? I think not; they ought to be mathematicians themselves.

2046. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you consider that the members of this Committee, not being mathematicians, are capable of making an examination into the circumstances attending the railways of this Colony? Yes, I should say so; for vox populi, vox Dei, and I am in favour of a public examination ———

2047. By Mr. Tighe: I think you hardly understand the question—is it necessary that the gentlemen who are now around you should be mathematicians? Yes, I think they ought to be; but it is not absolutely necessary, for they may select questions from books—certain books of mathematics may be put in their hands with questions and the answers to them, and if the gentlemen under examination are confined to ———

2048. By Mr. Morris: To whom did you refer when you said you thought they ought to be mathematicians themselves—did you refer to this Committee, or to those who should examine the candidates? I did not refer to the Committee, but to those who should examine the candidates. I should think it preferable that they should be mathematicians, though I think it may be possible without knowing mathematics to find out the best man. Those should know mathematics who had to select questions for candidates.

2049. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know for what purpose this Committee has met? To investigate into the deteriorated state of the public works.

2050. Do you consider it necessary that the members of this Committee should be mathematicians? No, not at all.

2051. Did you mean that when you answered Mr. Arnold's question? No, I took a different view of it—I thought he referred to the examination of candidates. The Committee are quite competent to detect errors in the department.

2052.

* NOTE (on revision):—Because he was not sufficiently educated; but even he tried to get an elementary knowledge of mathematics, as his biographer tells us, because he saw the necessity of knowing it. And how many rich contractors, to some of whom I gave general practical lessons, have told me that they would give half their fortune to be mathematicians. Furthermore, I know by experience, and will be borne out by others, that what is well understood will never be forgotten. And how awkward appear those engineers and surveyors who are not mathematicians, when they use those vile compiled books, which state in long phrases certain formulæ, which, besides they are obliged to assume for true, they never will remember.

† NOTE (on revision):—Which means, "With laws Countries are ruled." That is what the old Danish Conqueror, Waldemar, said, who caused the Danish law to be issued, and his motto is above the portico of the Legislative Assembly in Copenhagen.

2052. You say you have met persons in this Colony who are men of talent, and capable of conducting railway surveys, who are not employed by the Government? Yes. Mr. C. Bosé.
2053. How many have you known? I could not say; besides I should not like to make myself responsible for any other man. 7 Dec., 1863.
2054. Do you know Mr. Martin Gardiner? I have seen him here, but I never saw him before.
2055. You have seen him where? In town.
2056. Do you know anything of him? No, I do not want to know anything more of him; I have nothing to do with him; I go my own road. I only have seen some of his writings, but I have not had time to investigate them myself. I think he is a highly bred mathematician, a good engineer and surveyor by what I can guess from the papers he has published in connection with the Philosophical Institute of Victoria. I was a member of that Institute, and was at that time computer of latitudes and longitudes at Melbourne.
2057. By Mr. Morris: Have you ever attempted to work out any of the problems which appeared in Mr. Martin Gardiner's papers that were read before the Royal Society—the problems of Appolonius? Not of his, but I have seen some of his writings in the library at Melbourne, and they were submitted to me by the librarian to give my opinion upon them.
2058. Did you give your opinion about them? No.
2059. Have you read the work? I have read some of it.
2060. What is your opinion of it? I think, from what I can see, Mr. Gardiner is a man of deep study; but I would not compromise myself by making myself answerable for any one, and it is not genteel to ask questions. I have read the best works in English and Continental languages on these subjects, and find no time in Australia to apply to deep studies.
2061. By Mr. Stewart: Without knowing anything of Mr. Gardiner, do you assume, from what you have seen of his writings, that he is a man of high scientific character? Yes.
2062. By Mr. Arnold: As a railway engineer? Yes, for the reason that if a man has never done a railway before in his life, if mathematics has become incarnate in him, he will be a better man than another who is not a mathematician. The want of mathematical knowledge is often surprisingly seen in surveyors and engineers by working with wrongly adjusted instruments, because their knowledge of adjustment is a practical manipulation, when once forgotten, they cannot find out again; they do not submit it to diagrams which are retained by the senses, and by applying mathematics on these diagrams they are able to find out all the adjustments; therefore the divergency of the lines by different surveyors, as they do not pay sufficient attention to the investigation of their instruments, which they cannot, without a sound reasoning—without mathematics; but the great evil is that they do not stamp the proper man here; they are not recognized. I should be better off in any despotic country than I am here.
2063. Do I understand you to say that a superior man would have a better chance here if the Government were of a more despotic character? In democratic countries, like America, you will find that pure sciences or arts are never recognized. You will also find that in France, in the time of Louis the 14th, the greatest writers flourished; also under the most despotic government, as Spain, some of the highest names in the literary world have risen. America has produced no great men, except Washington and Franklin, who were both mathematicians. There can be no doubt that the best scientific men are more patronized at Home than here. The best men could easily be discovered here if a proper examination were made; and those are the men who should be put into office. I should easily cut the "Gordian knot"—it may be done.
2064. By Mr. Stewart: Do you assume that in America they do not get the best men? No, in America it is different. Here it is the privilege of Government to put any surveyor they think fit into office,* but there ought to be a previous examination. That country is the most civilized where its officers combine the greatest amount of theoretical and practical knowledge.†
2065. By the Chairman: Would you be willing, by submitting to a fair competitive examination as to the practice and theory of your profession, to shew your competency? Yes.
2066. Before any number of gentlemen in the Colony? Yes.
2067. By Mr. Arnold: Do I understand you to mean by an answer you gave to one of the last questions I asked you, that in your opinion the most accomplished mathematician would be the most competent railway engineer? Decidedly; I mean to say if one is without mathematics and one with mathematics, the one with mathematics will be better than the other without; he will be the laughing-stock—he will be the mouse in the claws of the cat—he will be shewn up by the subordinates in his office; but the other will detect any errors in the mode of carrying on the work. But he ought to be a theoretical and practical mathematician at the same time. It ought to be the same with a professor of the university; he ought to be a practical as well as a theoretical mathematician.

2068.

* ADDED (on revision):—Here it is the prerogative of Government Departments to put any surveyor they think fit.

† NOTE (on revision):—In taking a review of the civilized states development, great philosophers arrived at the conclusion that the touchstone of a well-conducted Government is, the management of the Public Works and Survey Department. I say that it is acknowledged now that the issuing of a code of laws is easier than to base the Public Works and Survey Department on scientific principles. As a proof is quoted: The Emperor Justinian allowed ten years to the legislators to issue the "Pandects," which, through the efficacy of the lawyers, were finished within three years; whereas the English and French Public Works Departments have made trials for more than twenty years, and suddenly a new discovery shews new data which had been omitted in the first instance.

- Mr. C. Bosé. 2068. Did you not say just now that if you were to choose between pure theory and pure practice, you would prefer pure theory? Yes.*
- 7 Dec., 1863. 2069. Do you know anything of Mr. Gardiner as a practical railway engineer? No, I have not seen him working on railway, but I know he has been on a railway in America, in Canada; and I know by what I have seen that he is a practical man for calculation and for devising the best methods of running lines and curves and so on, otherwise I do not know much of him.
2070. By Mr. Morris: In determining the best line of railway is it necessary that the trial surveys should be of the most careful and minute description? It all depends upon whether there is anything to be taken up; sometimes there is nothing to survey—they are mere rough bush lines.
2071. Trial surveys are mere rough bush lines? I mean there are in a great many localities no houses, no rivers, no streams. All the work depends upon the levelling; there is no survey to be filled; it is confined to the line itself.
2072. By Mr. Arnold: Are you acquainted with the history of our eminent engineers? Yes, I know a little.
2073. Have not many of our railway engineers risen to great eminence in their profession, whose knowledge of mathematics has been very slight? Stephenson was a good mathematician, for he solved problems; and all the best engineers have been mathematicians. A man cannot be a good engineer without knowing mathematics.†
2074. Pure mathematics? Pure and applied. But we must not take these as great men, like Newton; they are not originators of problems; they have made a great many blunders. Even Stephenson and Brunel are not perhaps equal to many men who are running about obscure. What is Brunel, for instance? There are men now, who are quoted in English scientific writings, who have made discoveries in machinery, who are unnoticed here. Such men as Mr. John Phillips,‡ whose name is quoted in scientific mechanical publications in England, for whom I was writing to Sir R. Murchison; he suggested the latter part of it; it was about the origin of the Ballarat gold fields; and he is not treated with that consideration by Government which he deserves, on account of jealousy in high quarters.
2075. Do you know Mr. Hawkshaw, the great railway engineer? No.
2076. Do you know whether he is a great mathematician? No.
2077. Do you know anything of Mr. John Fowler? No, I suppose he is known only in England.
2078. Who do you consider the greatest railway authority of the present day? I cannot say, for they are all at loggerheads. For instance, as to the selection of two lines to find out the absolute best line —
2079. I am asking you who you consider the greatest railway authority of the present day? No one can say.
2080. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is Rankin? He is a great man and a scientific man.
2081. By Mr. Arnold: Who do you consider the greatest railway authority of any day? No man could say.§
2082. You could not name any one that you think an authority? Not the greatest.
2083. Can you name any? This gentleman mentions Mr. Rankin. Others have erroneous methods; they have written; they have compiled; but no man can say that they are great authorities.|| Baker, for instance, is a teacher. No one could say which is greatest. In America, in some places, they make better railways than here or in Victoria; and there may be greater men in America or Victoria than in England, because they have introduced in England the tramway from America.
2084. Can you tell us of any great railway authority in America? There is one, Rainer, but he is of German descent; I cannot say—I was never in America. I think there is no man recognized as an authority in this sphere, because they are all at loggerheads; they cannot prove in some instances that one set of rules is better than another.
2085. Do you remember that as a rule, the greatest railway authorities have been eminent as pure mathematician? Yes, I think Stephenson.
2086. Was an eminent mathematician? Yes, I think he was a good mathematician.
2087. A pure mathematician? Not pure, I mean practical mathematician. I refer to applied mathematics.
2088. This question I am addressing to you—you will observe to find out how far you would prefer theory to practice? I mean to say he was a good mathematician, was able to investigate the bearing of formulæ in mathematics, on mechanics, optics, catoptrics, dioptrics, * ADDED (on revision):—But that I say, because pure practice is no food for a scientific mind; it is doing the same thing over and over again—est siempre el mismo verso as a Spanish proverb says, and therefore my inclination is decidedly for theory; although individually thus inclined, I know the value of practical knowledge.

† NOTE (on revision):—A great many engineers have risen to wealth, but not through mathematical knowledge only. Some have risen in the world by patronage of a despotic or democratic government; some have risen through the efficiency of their staff; some through bribery or nepotism. That they have performed creditable structures was not always a merit of their own; it was done through having large means at their disposal, through the efficacy of their staff, and that tuitive instinct to put the right men in the right place.

‡ INSERTED (on revision):—Who made many discoveries in mining engineering. He invented and improved the mining theodolites machinery for raising diggers in the coal mines; a gentleman of very extensive knowledge, as well in mechanical as in civil engineering.

§ ADDED (on revision):—And it is quite a philosophical question. We cannot compare them on a par. Who is greater, Cæsar or Napoleon?—or even Hannibal or Scipio? Cæsar was the greatest at his time, as Cicero says, because he was the first statesman, the first conqueror, the first historian, and only second in rhetorics—but who will decide?

|| INSERTED (on revision):—They are not like Vauban, who is considered the greatest engineer of all times; but he was a high mathematician, and his principles have held good through centuries because they were based on mathematics; for instance, his formulæ for stone walls or fortifications are still adhered to by the best engineers, civil and military.

dioptrics, dynamics, hydraulics, or as applied for purposes in common life; he could discuss a mathematical formula, say Pothnot's problem, or the problem of the four points in plain trigonometry, and even with reference to the curvature of the earth.

Mr. C. Bosé.

7 Dec., 1868.

2089. Do I understand you to say that you think the best mode of determining the most eligible railway engineer would be by subjecting him to a mathematical examination? First to a theoretical, and then to a practical mathematical examination. I would make it a rule to examine him in the higher branches; at least I do not say the highest branches up, applied to astronomy, as Laplace's Mécanique Céleste, but he ought to be capable of discussing and investigating formulæ by an analytical process, and apply them on engineering; without this he is always in the dark, or be able to investigate the scientific works compiled for the Royal Engineers in England par ordre de la reine. We in Germany do not call it the higher branches, but in England it is so called. I see it in Baker's elementary work, he calls elementary science "higher surveying." I studied five years in college, and took two degrees. I am not aware that any surveyor in this country has studied mathematics theoretically and practically; but I have studied it, and passed my examination as a practical and theoretical mathematician.

2090. Before you came to this Colony had you any experience in the superintendence of railways? Yes, not the superintendence of the whole work, but I was doing work on railways and other roads, and investigating them;* and I know that railways in Germany are now built better than most of the English railways. They go upon the principle that it is better to invest a large sum of money at once than to have to go to a great expense afterwards.

2091. Would you think a person who had taken a high position as a pure mathematician, the person it would be desirable to entrust with the superintendence of railways? Not a pure mathematician; but he must know practical mathematics, such as Chambers has written a book about. [Chambers "Practical Mathematics."] He must know mechanics, but mechanics cannot be understood without mathematics; therefore he must know both pure and applied mathematics.

2092. How would you suggest that the examination you speak of should take place? I should think it belongs to the department of Professor Pell, as a man representing the University of a great nation; but if he has only taken his degree in an English University, he is not fit for such an office.

2093. Are you aware that Professor Pell occupies the highest position as a mathematician in this Colony? But I doubt very much if he is. I say there is no mathematician here; there is no great mathematician in England now.

2094. You do not think Professor Pell would be a competent person to conduct the investigation? He might be—I do not know—he ought to be.

2095. Who would you have to test him? That is rather awkward to say. I think any man might test him, who would step forward and put the questions to him in an assembly like this.

2096. Then do I understand you to say that, before you would submit candidates to an examination by Professor Pell, you would have him examined? Yes.

2097. Who should examine Professor Pell? I should not mind doing it myself.

2098. That, I presume, would imply that every one was satisfied with your competency? I would put the questions, and if he did not answer them I would answer them myself, so that I would not leave a vacuum.

2099. By Mr. Stewart: You assume that this examination would take place before a body of people? Yes.

2100. By Mr. Arnold: A common jury would you have, or a special jury? I do not know yet.

2101. Perhaps you would have a jury of members of the Assembly? I should not mind doing it myself.†

2102. Then do you think that would be the most satisfactory way of obtaining an eligible man for our railway surveys and superintendence? Yes; public competitive examinations, fairly conducted, not sham examinations, as in Victoria.

2103. Professor Pell occurs to you as the most competent person to make this examination? No; I say the professor of an University ought to be, from his position, but he is not.*

2104. Why do you think he is not? Because he is not able; he does not know engineering; he is not a man who has written. I am not aware that he has written any books.

2105. Would you consider yourself a competent person to conduct the examination? I should not like to answer that question.

2106. Would you consider any person in this Colony more competent? There may be; I do not say that I am complete at all. I am only examined here; I do not say whether I am competent.

2107. We must have some one—who would you suggest? I do not know.

2108.

* NOTE (on revision):—I was doing this on a road line extending twenty-five miles, under the Royal Engineer's Department, who are really men of the very highest attainments. I surveyed not only all the parishes and estates through which this line passed, but valued the losses in lands—permanent and temporary losses—and besides had to calculate the large sums for indemnification, which was sent in to the Exchequer at Copenhagen. The Committee for this consisted of the Chief of the Royal Military Engineers, Colonel Dau, and Captain Lesser; and I did the whole work of measuring and the calculating of the sums of indemnification, under the name of Commissionaire for Expropriation.

† NOTE (on revision):—That means putting questions in pure and applied mathematics; and as I should act without patronage or nepotism, the Committee would have the fairest chance, and not be deceived.

‡ NOTE (revised):—Suppose he is not.

Mr. C. Bosé. 2108. You do not think any person is competent? No, not if it is carried out as it ought to be.*

7 Dec., 1863. 2109. After all this plan of your's you then admit to be impracticable? No, it is possible to find out the men. By public examination I think proper men will be found out if the examination is conducted fairly, but I do not say Mr. Pell is a man competent to conduct it; he may be and he ought to be competent, but I do not know the gentleman. He ought to be competent to conduct the mathematical examination. As to the practical part I have known first-rate professors in pure mathematics who did not know instruments and the making and adjustments of them. When I was examined in the field, one line was given on a high hill; from that line, which was measured minutely, I had to get larger lines by triangulation; no chain was used, and signal placed in the field. The professor came out to visit me, but he did not know the practical part; the practical part belonged to the Surveyor General if he is a scientific man and above square and cube root; the practical part is alone so extensive that a professor in the Home Universities cannot embrace it at the same time; but, in a new Colony like this, I say the professor at the University ought to combine theoretical and practical mathematics in order to have engineers and surveyors examined, because the Colony would greatly benefit by it materially; her resources would be better known and developed.

2110. Do I understand you to mean this, that you think Professor Pell would be the most fit man, or that he would not be the most fit man to conduct an examination as to the qualification of a railway engineer? By what I have said you ought to know that he would not.

2111. Who do you think would be? The Surveyor General, the Professor of Mathematics, and the Chief Commissioner, ought to be the men. One man alone would not be sufficient. Professor Pell would have only to examine in his own department.

2112. What would you propose as the most satisfactory way of conducting the examination you suggest? A public examination.

2113. Conducted by whom? I leave that to you; I could not tell. It should be by the Professor of Mathematics; it should be also by the Surveyor General if he were competent for the surveying part, and by a highly educated civil engineer who should be Engineer-in-Chief.

2114. By Mr. Stewart: Then you would have three examiners? Yes.

2115. By Mr. Arnold: In filling vacancies would you suggest that the majority of these three should nominate the candidate? That is not the way I should do it. I should have two degrees, as in the University. That is the wrong way in competitive examination as in Melbourne. There there were thirty men (they were not examined in the field), and the examination was continued for eight days, from 8 or 9 in the morning till 4 in the afternoon, without being allowed to leave the room. It was not a viva voce examination, but the answers were written. I answered all the questions, of which there were a great many; but it was a sham examination, as it appears the application and papers of one of the candidates had not been even opened, as he proved it to be the case in the Melbourne press. The Minister promised investigation into the affair, but the candidate returned Home in disgust. He told me so himself, when on the point of embarkation.

2116. I am asking you as to the best mode of filling vacancies in the Railway Department. I understood you to say that the best way of filling them was by competitive examination, and that this examination should be conducted by three officers. I now ask you, in case they should differ, how you propose that the election should be determined? The examination ought to be public, and the questions and answers might be written down, and the public voice could then check them. It ought to be decided by points what predicates should be given.

2117. The public voice would have nothing to do with that? Suppose there were something wrong—that one party was patronized; that is the worst, in these Colonies, that merit is not encouraged because there is too much patronage.

2118. Do you mean that you would not trust to the fairness of these Boards, or whatever you might call them? No, I would not.

2119. How do you think vacancies for appointment in the Railway Department ought to be filled up? At these competitive examinations certificates should be given to the successful candidates, who should be put into these vacancies, and as higher vacancies occurred they should, after a further examination, be promoted to them.

2120. How would you get over the difficulty that I think would arise—suppose these three officers differed in opinion, how would you arrive at a decision—by lot? They may decide by lot; but they could not differ so much if the candidate put down his answer—it would be seen whether his answer were correct or not.

2121. If they did differ would you take the opinion of the majority? Yes, I might; but there is a better way—let the answers be written, and do not let the examiners know the writers, and then let the examiners put down the number of points for each correct answer.

2122. How would you arrive at a determination, supposing there were a difference? I never gave it much thought.† I think there might be some means devised—the way they conduct the examination at the University, as I have described.

2123. By Mr. Tighe: Is it there decided by the majority? Yes; but not who shall have the situation—who shall have the character.

2124. Who appoints after that? The Minister.

2125. The Minister can appoint no one who has not a certificate? Not the Minister, but the Engineer-in-Chief. All that is required is an honest man to conduct the examination.‡

2126.

* NOTE (on revision):—You may not find the non plus ultra of engineering talent in the Colony (that is what I mean). I did not say "impracticably"; I say it is possible.

† INSERTED (on revision):—But by publishing the answers and investigations of the candidates; that is to say, by printing questions and answers, the examiners would be checked in their decision.

‡ NOTE (on revision):—No surveyor is allowed practice in Germany unless he has passed the examination at the College or University; so these men are all stamped, and lose their appointment if they are reported to operate grossly erroneously. They are matriculated and attend the lectures, especially of the Professor in Mathematics; besides, they practice in the field.

2126. By Mr. Arnold: Have you any mode of gauging his honesty? No. I think the best man to conduct such an examination is one who has no interest at stake. He ought not to take the questions out of a book, but to let them flow from his own thoughts, and, with the answers of the candidates, be published afterwards. This would be a guarantee for the genuineness of the questions. If I were to sit down here to put questions to the Engineer-in-Chief, or to Mr. Pell, I should gather my thoughts, and try to put them in such a form as that they might be printed. If these questions were nonsense or trash I would compromise myself. A fool may put a great many questions which a wise man cannot answer. I would be willing to examine these gentlemen on these terms. I would put a great many questions to them; and there are many gentlemen who know me well, know that I am competent, for I have studied the best literature in English, French, and German. I should bring out the best man. I should go into the science of adjusting, and even of making instruments, for a surveyor ought to know that better even than an instrument maker.
2127. Do you think Mr. Whitton would be a competent person to examine? No, I do not think he would.
2128. You would require somebody to examine him first? I do not know him; that is to be found out.
2129. Who should examine the examiners? I should like to examine them before the public, and have all the questions put down on paper. There should not be any reference to books, but the questions should be printed, and the public at Home and abroad might then decide, not as to the competency of the gentleman, but as to the fairness of the examination, and exercise their own critics. I should propose that as the best way to bring out a man's qualifications, and the only one.
2130. Mr. Whitton would then have to be examined to see whether he was competent to sit upon this board of examiners? No, I mean that I should examine him before he was competent to be the Engineer-in-Chief.
2131. You say you would examine the professor of mathematics? I mean, to test the Engineer-in-Chief he ought to know mathematics as applied to surveying; I am quite sure he does not.
2132. It comes back to what I say, that in order to determine whether he was competent you would submit him to examination? No man would do that, for I am too obscure a person; that would be nonsense.
2133. I understood you to say you think Mr. Whitton would not be competent? Yes.
2134. In order to determine whether he was competent, you say you would submit him to an examination by yourself? Yes, but it is ridiculous—I just threw out the hint. At the same time I guarantee that I would not compromise myself, for I would not put any that I could not answer myself. I should not like to make myself the laughing-stock of the Colony, and I would answer the questions if they could not.
2135. By Mr. Dalgleish: Has not the party who examines a great advantage, inasmuch as he can prepare, at his leisure, questions which the person under examination has to answer instantly? Yes, if he prepares.
2136. By Mr. Arnold: Do you know all the three gentlemen occupying the official positions to which you would entrust these competitive examinations—Professor Pell, Mr. Whitton, and Mr. Davison? No, I do not; I have seen them perhaps.
2137. Do you know enough of them to be able to say whether you would think these persons competent to conduct an examination of the kind you suggest? From what I have said in my evidence it may be seen that I do not recognize Mr. Whitton as a man to examine others. As to Mr. Davison, the Surveyor General, he is not a scientific man; he may understand surveying, but he is no scientific man, you are quite aware of that.
2138. I am aware of nothing. I am examining you to see what your opinion is? They are no scientific men at all.
2139. Thinking these three men would not be competent, who would you substitute for them? I could not say, because I am only giving my opinion, which is of no value whatever.
2140. When you take time to consider of the matter, does it occur to you that there are difficulties in the way which you have not thought of? Yes, there are difficulties as to the trustworthiness of the men.
2141. Do I understand you to mean that you think personal preferences would creep in even in influencing the decision of a Board such as you speak of? Yes.
2142. You also say that you think these examinations should be conducted in the presence of the public? Yes.
2143. Do you think the public are free from personal preferences in the selection of candidates? I think upon the whole—vox populi vox Dei—the public have no interest in the advancement of the material welfare of these officials.
2144. Do you think the public would be competent to form an opinion upon the professional qualifications of mathematicians? I think there would always be critics who, besides the questions and answers being published, would decide, who would listen to the discussion of certain formula.
2145. Would you have the examination entirely vivâ voce? Not at all; I would have it both vivâ voce and written.
2146. And you would publish the papers? Yes; and I would have demonstrations on the black board in the vivâ voce examination; but I should confine myself not to out-of-the-way problems, but to those that were practically useful, in order to test the capacity of the candidates; but then there should be superior questions, to decide on which side the balance goes down. I should introduce, especially for the Engineer-in-Chief, to find out the best man for the head of that department. I should examine him in the higher branches.
- 2147.

Mr. C. Bosé.
7 Dec., 1863.

Mr. C. Bosé. 2147. Do you think any person of high reputation as an engineer would care to submit himself to an ordeal of that kind? That is a question—I very much doubt it; everything would be at stake.*

7 Dec., 1863.

2148. Do you believe that any eminent engineer of the present time, as Brunel, Stephenson, Hawkshaw, Fowler, or any eminent foreign engineer, would submit to a competitive examination of that kind? Not in this Colony; I think not; they would have everything at stake.

2149. Then any association of persons engaged in railway works, establishing a competitive mode of appointment, must necessarily forego the hope of getting such men as are generally regarded as being at the head of their profession? These men would not come out to the Colony unless they were patronized. No, they might submit to an examination, or they might not.

2150. Do you think they would, or that they would not? I think we are turning in a circle. They would come out if they were appointed at Home with a large salary, perhaps.

2151. What is your own opinion of the thing—do you not think the result of a competitive examination between a young man, fresh from his studies, and of a man who had become rusty in the theories of his profession, but who had gained his reputation, would be favourable to the young man? This fresh man would have no practical knowledge, though he might have considerable scientific attainments; but this rusty man, if a good mathematician, will have the principles of mathematics incarnate. They will be so deeply rooted that he will never lose them. Give him a figure, and he writes it down and demonstrates from it; for instance, he will demonstrate the formulæ for the frustum of cone or pyramid; he will know Simpson's rule in mechanics; to arrange the nonius and vernier of an instrument to read 5 seconds (theodolite), and how it has to be divided; he will know and prove the proportions between a circle and an ellipse; to find analytically the distance between a cutting and embankment, without the use of a pair of compasses; to know the strongest piece of wood to cut out of a cylinder; to know the proportion between the different stereometrical bodies and algebra, at least, inclusive of Carela's formula; the strength of building materials, or know Pothenok's problem analytically, geometrically, or trigonometrically, or demonstrate Newton's binomial formula; the equation and construction of conic sections, or the method of the least square for the repetition of angles.

2152. These are all elementary questions of mathematics? Yes; though they be, I would begin at the beginning.

2153. Do you not think such questions as you have suggested would be more readily answered by a schoolboy, who was engaged upon them day by day, than they would be by a mathematician of a high class, who had not continually kept up that branch of his studies? No.† I should be satisfied if Mr. Whitton could answer those questions—elementary questions though they be—because if these things are not properly digested he knows nothing of mathematics; he cannot know the higher branches. Bonneycastle lays it down that an elementary thing properly digested is far superior to a half knowledge of higher mathematics.

2154. That is not an answer to my question? You want to demonstrate—you may belong to the opposite party—I do not know —

2155. What party do you allude to? These questions might be answered by a schoolboy. I say these questions cannot be answered plain as they be by gentlemen who have taken their degrees in the English Universities. I have had friends M.A.'s from Cambridge and Oxford; they may answer some of these questions but not all. Living on terms of official equality with them as a teacher, I took great interest to dispute, to exchange my thoughts with these gentlemen who had taken their degrees in England, and, notwithstanding their efficiency, they were not examined in the application of mathematics on practical subjects. Nor could the Engineer-in-Chief answer those questions. I stand by my word because they have not got the books. I judge a man by his books.

2156. By Mr. Dalgleish: As a matter of fact, can a man who is not a first-class mathematician read the modern works on engineering science? No, he cannot.‡

2157. He must understand the calculus of plane and spherical trigonometry? Yes, the higher branches of mathematics; but here, as I mentioned to the Surveyor General, they cannot extract the cube and square root.

2158. If Mr. Whitton cannot read Macqueen, Rankin, and Weisbach he is not a proper person for chief engineer? No.

2159. By Mr. Arnold: Are you engaged in engineering works of any kind? No.

2160. What are you doing now? I am engaged in writing something for myself, because I am intending to go. I have been advertised for through the press of Victoria, and I expect to come in for some competency at Home. I am told so, but I do not know yet. I am writing about the departments of the Colony.

2161. Have you been employed on railway works in this Colony? I was computing in Victoria, but not under the N. S. W. Government. I can produce a letter from Capt. Clarke who knew me in that Colony.

2162. Have you ever been engaged on railway works in this Colony? No, I have not.

2163. You have had no experience of railway works in this Colony? No, except when I have been on them and given instructions to a gentleman who was engaged. I went into the field with this gentleman; he did the work himself, but I rectified parts of it.

2164.

* ADDED (on revision):—But if they have confidence in their knowledge they will come forward, perhaps; but I doubt in this Colony, whereas in the old country they might—yes.

† INSERTED (on revision):—If he knew the investigation of these matters, if he really comprehended mathematics, he ought to answer them as a practical engineer—he ought not to forget.

‡ NOTE (on revision):—This is demonstrated by Castle. He says, one-third of the cases before the Courts in Canada were cases of incorrect measurement, because the surveyors were not acquainted with the rules of Euclid. (See Castle, surveying, &c.)

2164. What I want to know is, what experience you have had of railway works in this Colony? I have not been engaged on railways here, as I was kept out. I was teaching at the Rev. Mr. Macarthur's, at Macquarie Fields. Mr. C. Bosé.
7 Dec., 1863.
2165. You have never been employed on railway works? Not here.
2166. You made an application for employment about three years and a half ago? Yes.
2167. What opportunities have you had of forming an opinion as to the quality of the work done? From my antecedents, knowing from practice and theory that it is wrong.
2168. What is wrong? I mean the carrying out of the works.
2169. How have you gained any information as to the plans, for instance with reference to this Mudgee line? I saw the work done in the field, and without the plans I could see that the work was done wrong; and if I saw the plans without seeing the field, I could tell whether the work was done wrong.
2170. Are you sure that the works of which you speak, or the plans of which you speak, had been finally determined upon by the Engineer-in-Chief? I could not say that.
2171. Do you know that the works of which you are speaking are those which the Engineer-in-Chief proposes to adopt? I do not know; but I know that it is of no use to make wrong plans and surveys and afterwards to make them right, or, if not, to try to make them right.
2172. Upon whom does your criticism reflect, upon the competency of the Engineer-in-Chief, or upon the competency of those officers immediately engaged in these surveys? Upon both, but primarily to the Engineer-in-Chief, because he should have selected better men.
2173. Under whom is this survey going on to Mudgee? I do not know, I think there is a new officer. He told me, "I should like to go through these things with you, but I must look out for myself. *I am to be dismissed on the 1st January."
2174. Mr. M'Dowell told you that? Yes; I told him some practical things connected with these matters, but especially pure mathematics; but he is a very serious gentleman, and takes a great deal of care, and will turn out a first-rate man as a subordinate.
2175. You think he will? Yes, I think he will. He is not exactly to be blamed, because he does his work as well as any one, and the plans, I presume, were sent out from the office; but I think there are worse people who have been longer in the department, because I have seen men who ran out lines in different directions.
2176. Do I understand you to say that your doubt of Mr. Whitton's competency arises from his having employed incompetent persons in the superintendence of this particular survey? Yes, but not only that, he may be incompetent himself, to judge him by the plans sent out from the office.
2177. I am not speaking of that now, I am speaking only of his incompetency, as shewn in this particular survey? Yes, he ought to have competent men—men who had been subjected to some examination.
2178. Do you know Mr. Brown, who was entrusted with that survey? Yes, I have seen him.
2179. Do you know whether he is a competent person to conduct a railway survey? I do not know; I have not seen anything of him; I have no idea; but I should say, without disputing his capacity, he is a better man than a great many. I have seen him; I have talked to him; I have been through his camp when he was near Mudgee.
2180. Have you formed any opinion as to his competency for that position? I think he is a gentleman who is pretty competent, at least I should take him to be better than most of the others in the department; he might be a better man than Mr. Whitton himself; from what I have seen I should take him to be so.
2181. What opportunity have you had of forming an opinion of the comparative qualifications of Mr. Whitton and Mr. Brown? Only from the public voice.
2182. Who are the incompetent persons engaged on the survey of the railway from Muswellbrook to Mudgee, to whom you have alluded? I could not say that; I would not drive a man out of his billet; I have no interest in the matter, and even if I had I would not do it.
2183. You do not think Mr. Brown incompetent for his position? No.
2184. You think him competent for his position as superintendent of that survey? I do not know whether he has the superintendence of that survey or not. I think he is a competent person; he is a gentleman who is popular and well liked.
2185. Do you not think it advantageous that a person employed in superintending a survey should be associated with persons in whom he has confidence? Yes, I think so.
2186. Then if all the persons under him have been selected or recommended by him—do you think that that would relieve the Engineer-in-Chief from the responsibility you appear to attach to him in that particular matter? If that be the case, but I thought the Engineer-in-Chief must recommend them himself; he ought to be responsible for the work; Mr. Whitton should select the men.
2187. You place me and these gentlemen at a disadvantage, as you refuse to specify the persons to whom you refer? I can only say the work is wrong; I do not know who has done the work; that can be found out by reference to the plans.
2188. What is it you say is wrong about the work? A great many things; the curves instead of being laid out upon the field have been laid down in the office —
2189. I am speaking of the work done in the field by these surveying parties—is that wrong? Yes, that is the very thing; the curves are sent out from the office right or wrong, upon a small scale, say 10 chains to 1 inch, or approximately 1 to 8,000, that is, 1 foot in the map represents 8,000 in the field, and are then laid upon the ground by methods that ought not to be adopted, and not by trigonometrical formulæ.

2190.

* Revised:—No; he said the work had to be left off at the specified time.

Mr. C. Bosé. 2190. Have you any other objection to make with reference to the accuracy of the work, except such as arise from directions, which you say are improper, from the office? Yes, the carrying out of the work. There are a great many other errors in this work. The lines are not run as they ought to be, and the minutiae are not properly attended to; it is too much on the cheap system; mere bush pegs are put down which may be easily obliterated.

7 Dec., 1863.

Note (on revision):—The Petersham Estate had been previously surveyed by other surveyors but they gave no satisfaction to the trustees, because whole allotments had been lost and could not be accounted for.

THURSDAY, 10 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. GRAY,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. LUCAS,		MR. STEWART,
	MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse called in and examined:—

- Mr. N. Trengrouse. 2191. By the Chairman: How long have you been in the Railway Department? Now nearly ten years; I think about three months short.
- 10 Dec., 1863. 2192. Were you there before the railway was handed over to the Government? Yes, some time before.
2193. What salary had you when you entered? £250 per annum.
2194. What salary had you when you were suspended? £350.
2195. What was the nature of your appointment? I was engaged as draughtsman.
2196. Who was the Engineer-in-Chief when you were appointed? Mr. Wallace.
2197. Had he an assistant? Yes, Mr. Brady was there when I went, as second in command.
2198. How many officers were there at that time engaged? Do you mean those in the principal office?
2199. Yes? There was only myself as draughtsman; there were but three in all—Mr. Wallace, Mr. Brady, and myself.
2200. Were you the only draughtsman? I was the only draughtsman at that time.
2201. Were you found competent to do the whole of the work required? I imagine I must have been, because there was never any complaint made about my work.
2202. Was there any complaint made about your work? None whatever; rather the opposite.
2203. May I ask how you obtained your appointment? It was from an advertisement in the papers; but when I applied I feared I should be rather late, because I found that when I saw it, it was the third time it had appeared; however, on applying, I saw Mr. Wallace, and he told me he was afraid it was too late, because they had had several applicants, and had selected one who was partly engaged, but I had a small book of drawings with me which I did in England, and, although they did not bear exactly on the requirements of a railway department, after seeing them they said that would be quite sufficient; they knew a person who could draw after that style was the person they wanted.
2204. Did you know any persons in the Government then? No, not at that time.
2205. You were really unknown to any person? Yes; that is, as regards interest or influence.
2206. How long had you been in the Country then? I have previously stated that I have been in the Country eleven years, but I find I have been twelve years.
2207. What were your office hours? From 10 till 4. I was then told, without asking about it, that at any time I wanted to go out I could do so; we had from 1 till 2 for refreshment; but of course having that advantage I would have been sorry to stoop so low as to take any advantage of it.
2208. Were you fully occupied during those hours? Yes, I had plenty to do, inasmuch as I was allowed to take work home in the evening, for which I was paid at the rate of time and a half—that is, three days for two.
2209. Were you engaged upon any other work but drawing? Yes, I had a deal of writing to do; it was writing principally that I took home to do.
2210. Not the plans? No.
2211. Did you do any writing during the office hours? Yes.
2212. Have you been engaged in any other office as draughtsman, except the Department of Works, since you have been in the Country? Yes, I have been engaged in two other offices; the first was Mr. Sherwood's office—he was an engineer. I got out a portion of the drawings for Tooth's brewery—the ironwork in connection with that building.
2213. What was the nature of your duties in the Railway Office—were you employed merely as draughtsman or as architectural surveyor as well? Draughtsman only; but I did designs for stations.
2214. Had you then ever been in business on your own account? Yes, I was in business on my own account as draughtsman, and I have done some of the largest maps that have been done in the Colony; one of the first was the Waterloo Estate for Sir Daniel Cooper.
2215. Is that the one hanging up in Sir Daniel Cooper's room? I do not know whether it is hanging up now; it must be very much faded now of course.

2216. How many years have you followed the profession of a draughtsman? It must be now between thirty and thirty-five years altogether.

Mr. N.
Trenghouse.

2217. What railway lines were open to the public on your appointment? There were not any open at the time I was appointed.

10 Dec., 1863.

2218. What line were you first engaged on? The Liverpool line, I think.

2219. Did you do any of the drawings for the Sydney and Parramatta line? No; they were complete, and the line almost ready to be open when I entered.

2220. Were you able to make all the drawings required in the department at that time? Yes; there was no one else in the office to do it.

2221. How long did you perform these duties single-handed? I think it must have been six or eight months.

2222. Before you received any assistance? Before I received any assistance.

2223. Who was engaged to assist you at last? My son.

2224. At what salary? 10s. a day, equal to £156 a year.

2225. When he first entered the department? Yes; he was forward in drawing then, because I had instructed him previously.

2226. How long was this before the staff was sent for by Sir William Denison to England? A little better than two years, I think.

2227. Did you and your son then continue to do the whole of the work required as draughtsmen in the Railway Department? Yes, the whole of it.

2228. How long had Mr. Wallace left before the staff arrived? I think it must have been something like twelve or fifteen months.

2229. Who acted as Engineer-in-Chief after Mr. Wallace left the Country? Mr. Brady then took his position and carried on the works.

2230. Do you know anything of his abilities, or do you think he was competent to be at the head of an engineering staff? Mr. Brady's abilities I consider were far superior to any one I have known in the Colony—many of his trial survey plans are in the office—I may almost term them specimens of the manner in which the work is done by him, as well as various drawings of station buildings, and also one intended for a terminus, that was not acted upon. I do not refer to the present wooden building; and as regards expedition I never saw any one so quick at figures or at any work.

2231. We have a lot of plans here—have you seen them? I have looked over a few of them.

2232. Have you seen any of Mr. Brady's? I have not seen any of his here.

2233. I have heard it stated in the Assembly that your abilities as a draughtsman were scarcely worthy of consideration—are there any of your drawings in the office? There are.

2234. Are there any here? There are some here.

2235. Will you shew the Committee some of your drawings? (The witness selected certain plans from amongst a number lying in the Committee room.) This (referring to a book of drawings) is a set of plans intended for the Campbelltown line; these were made before the present staff came out; this comprises the whole of the drawings supposed to be required for the Campbelltown line—embankments, cuttings, bridges, occupation gates, &c. On one sheet you will observe there are four drawings, but according to the method at present adopted each drawing would occupy one sheet, for which there is no occasion.

2236. By Mr. Stewart: How long, on an average, would each of these sheets take you to prepare? I think about two and a half or three days to each sheet. I am considered by some to be slow at drawing, and by others fast.*

2237. By the Chairman: Do you see any plans there (referring to the plans in the room) done by the staff that came out from England that is called Mr. Whitton's staff? (The witness selected certain plans.)

2238. Are those for the same line of railway? Yes.

2239. By Mr. Stewart: These were acted upon? Yes, these are the working drawings. Now I shew four designs on one sheet, where these only shew one or two, which is of course a saving of time as well as paper.

2240. By the Chairman: These are the drawings done by the staff that came from England? Yes, part of them.

2241. Whose is this (referring to a particular drawing)? That is mine; I remember, not long after this particular drawing was done, I was told Mr. Whitton had a great mind to tear it up; I inquired why, and was told Mr. Whitton should say there was no occasion of getting up drawings in that style; but I found afterwards it was because this one drew a little more attention than some others in the book.

2242. By Mr. Stewart: How much more time would be required to do one of these sheets than one of those you shewed us? I should imagine these would take something like 20 per cent. more time.

2243. This would take more than a week then? Yes.

2244. By the Chairman: This (referring to a sheet of drawings) is for the station house you proposed for Campbelltown? It is built. This is the residence of the station master.

2245. Do you shew the whole of the drawings required for this station house on one sheet? Yes.

2246. How long did it take you to do this plan? I should say a week.

2247. How long would it take you to take out the quantities? Perhaps half a day.

2248. By Mr. Stewart: You could get all the quantities from what is placed on this one sheet? Yes.

2249.

* ADDED (on revision):—But I should much like to test the former with any one in our office.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse. 2249. By the Chairman: This (referring to another sheet of drawings) is the passenger station? Yes.
2250. And you shew all required for that station upon this one sheet? Yes.
- 10 Dec., 1863. 2251. Do you remember how long it took you to do this plan? Perhaps eight or nine days.
2252. And you shew everything required for the information of the builder on this plan? Yes.
2253. By Mr. Stewart: The plan you have just alluded to, shewing the station master's residence, indicates on one sheet all that would be necessary for practical purposes? Yes.
2254. And the same remark will apply to the second sheet having reference to the station? Yes. I think it is an insult to the mechanics of this Colony to give quarter full size sections of doors, skirtings, and so on, which would imply that they do not know how to get out a skirting or the panel of a door without all this instruction.
2255. This plan occupying eight days to make would afford as much information for practical purposes as a plan occupying eight weeks? Yes, quite so.
2256. Then all the additional labour would be quite useless? Yes. The object was merely to fill up the paper and make it look showy.
2257. It is only necessary to describe the character of the mouldings you want to any mechanic in the trade? That is quite enough.
2258. By the Chairman: For instance, if you wanted a door made, instead of wasting a day in making drawings of it you would merely describe it in the specification? Yes.
2259. Do you not think it very desirable, instead of getting drawings out for every station house, that there should be drawings of different classes—1, 2, 3, 4, and so on—so that the Engineer-in-Chief could select different class station houses for different localities, and in that way one set of drawings would be sufficient for twenty, thirty, or forty station houses? I think it would be very desirable; it is the plan adopted in England.
2260. It would be a great saving of time and expense? Of course it would be. The foundations only would differ, but all above the surface of the ground would be the same. The difference of excavation and foundations might be added or deducted as the case may be.
2261. After the first plan and specification were made, a number of specifications might be printed, and in that way an immense deal of clerical as well as professional labour would be saved? Yes, the specification would be the same for all above the ground.
2262. Are not levels generally selected for station houses? Yes.
2263. And the difference in the foundation would be merely the difference in the description of earth to be excavated, which could be added in writing to the printed specification? Yes, at the end.
2264. By Mr. Stewart: Has it been the system here to have sets of plans for each station in the Railway Department? Yes, I do not think there has been a station put up but what there has been a separate set of drawings for it.
2265. By the Chairman: The same thing could be done with gates, and to a great extent with bridges, fencing, and all that sort of thing. If regular plans were kept in the office for these things, they could be adopted in different parts of the country for the different lines? Yes, that could be done. Of course bridges are determined by the section, but all above a certain height could be the same, whether they were a mile or a quarter of a mile long.
2266. If this system were carried out, then fully half the labour of the department could be saved? It would quite save the services of one or two officers.
2267. Look at these plans of the stations at Singleton and Penrith, and say whether they are not nearly copies of each other? Yes, they are all the same.
2268. Is not a great deal more shewn there than is necessary for practical purposes? Yes, there is a great deal too much detail.
2269. Is it necessary to shew mechanics the different timbers in the roof—for instance, the rafters, and so on? No.
2270. Would you not describe that in the specification? Yes.
2271. Would not these elaborate drawings tend to confuse a great number of our contractors? I believe it tends to make the works cost more than they should.
2272. By Mr. Stewart: What amount of labour do you think is bestowed on this sheet? I should say it would take a fortnight.
2273. This is merely one of the set? Yes.
2274. How many sheets are there to make this one complete? Eight sheets to complete the dwelling and goods warehouse.
2275. And each would take a fortnight? This would take a fortnight.
2276. Then it would take two months for each building? Four months for each set.
2277. By the Chairman: It is necessary to have tracings of all these, is it not? Yes.
2278. How many sets of tracings are made for each of these stations? Two sets; the inspector and the contractor have each a set.
2279. Does not Mr. Whitton have a set? No, not of these, only of the plans and sections of the lines.
2280. There are only two sets of tracings of these? Only two sets of tracings.
2281. How long do these tracings take? I should think the one I referred to as taking a fortnight to make in the first place, would take nearly a week. The tracings would take about half the time the others would, or a third, perhaps.
2282. So that each set of tracings would take about two months, or about eight to complete the drawings and tracings? Yes.
2283. The plans you drew for a station house, which detailed all that you think necessary for the information of a contractor, would take you eight days to make and the tracings four days, or twelve days in all? Yes, about that.
2284. And you think all the time that it has taken over twelve days, to make these other plans, is a waste of public time and money? I do indeed. 2285.

2285. Were those drawings which you shewed the Committee made before Mr. Whitton's staff arrived in the Colony? Yes, completed. Perhaps it would be as well I should here state that these drawings were ready and waiting to be carried out when Mr. Whitton came here; he saw them and, using his own words, he said "he never saw drawings more beautifully got up in his life." I am only just mentioning this to shew the contrast between what he then said and what he now says of my abilities.
2286. Did your son commence making drawings soon after he went into the department? Yes, very soon after; for a short time he was engaged about the writing—relieved me of that duty, and then afterwards he commenced on the drawings.
2287. How long has Mr. Whitton been here? I think seven years in January next.
2288. How many persons were in the department as draughtsmen before you were suspended? Within six months before we were suspended there were ten.
2289. Do you know what opinion was formed of the staff when they arrived here—of their abilities? I can hardly say; I know there was some talk about them by myself and others in the office. Of course, considering they had just come from England, with all the late railway improvements, I felt this as much as any one, and was only too anxious for them to commence their duties; when they did I was at once relieved of all apprehension—I entertained no fear nor doubt after seeing their performances.
2290. When they first came out, you thought they would be able to do the work in so superior a manner that you would be displaced? Yes, their having just come from London.
2291. But afterwards you were not at all afraid? No.
2292. Did they soon commence their duties after their arrival? Not so very soon. Just coming off a voyage they took some time before they did commence. They were all introduced to me, and I made them acquainted with the plans and arrangements of the office. I suppose they were something like two or three months making themselves acquainted with the plans; it was naturally the first thing they would do, and of course they were anxious to get all the information they could, which I think was got more from the plans than on the ground.
2293. When did they commence to receive their pay? From the time they were engaged; before they left England.
2294. How many were there of them? Five, with Mr. Whitton.
2295. Do you know whether their passages were paid? Yes.
2296. And all their expenses? They had their expenses paid them afterwards; £30 each I think was paid them for wine and other things which were not allowed them on the passage; they made application for it after their arrival, and something like that amount was allowed them.
2297. By Mr. Tighe: For each man? For each man.
2298. By the Chairman: Your pay commenced from the day you commenced work? Yes, I commenced the day following my engagement; in fact, they wanted me to commence at once; I could not do so, because they had no drawing boards; I had to find my own drawing boards, and so on.
2299. What extension did they commence on? The Campbelltown line was the first.
2300. About what time was this after their arrival? I think they commenced with the drawings about three months after. I should observe, the first thing Mr. Drewett did as a draughtsman, was to get out some designs for drawing boards; there were none in the office, except my own. I thought it strange that, coming from England, they had not provided drawing boards on the most improved principles. After that Mr. Drewett made a drawing for a press for the drawings; it was put up and had to be altered, as the drawers could not be got out. After this Mr. Drewett commenced the first station drawing he did, for Honey-suckle Point, near Newcastle; that drawing took him, I think it was five weeks—a two-roomed weatherboard building. I should imagine that drawing cost the Government something like £70 or £80.
2301. How much was the house worth altogether? Perhaps £150, and the platform another £100. I should remark that when the drawing was finished there was scarcely any of the original surface of the paper left, as there was very little that had not been erased two or three times. Mr. Whitton was three or four days about it, and Mr. Mason about the same time. That (referring to a plan among those in the room) is a copy of it merely; the original is quite a curiosity.
2302. In what way? The way in which it is cut up—so scratched out and erased.
2303. By Mr. Morris: So that scarcely any of the original surface remains? Yes. I should state that Mr. Drewett was three days attempting to get out the quantities.
2304. The quantities of this thing? Yes. I say "attempting," because he could not do it.
2305. Who did it? Mr. Mason did it afterwards.
2306. By the Chairman: This Mr. Drewett is the chief draughtsman? He goes by that name.
2307. Receiving £500 a year? Yes.
2308. By Mr. Stewart: Should you assume at that time that he had not had practice in that way? No, I think he was not accustomed to station drawings; he was more accustomed to bridge drawings.
2309. He had not had practice in that character of drawings? No, at least I should imagine so from the execution of his work that he had not; he could not have had in fact, for in some other drawings Mr. Mason has done nearly half of them.
2310. By the Chairman: A gentleman having any pretensions to draughting, surely it would not take him anything like five weeks to draught such a thing as that? That was the time he was about it. A man of course, to be a draughtsman, should have some mechanical knowledge; and in fact he ought to be a mechanic himself, because no one can make a drawing of anything without having the design complete and finished on his mind before he commences to draw it.

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.

10 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
10 Dec., 1863.
2311. A building like that, surely a draughtsman could design it and complete the plans in two days? Yes, he should be able to do so; or at the outside in three or four days.
2312. And any carpenter or mason could take out the quantities of a thing like that in two or three hours? Yes; I would not hesitate to say, I could go with three men and put it up in a fortnight.
2313. The whole building? Yes.
2314. By Mr. Stewart: What length is the building? About forty-three feet.
2315. By the Chairman: Then that was the first drawing Mr. Drewett did after he arrived in the Country? Yes, after making the designs for the drawing boards and the press.
2316. The press which would not open? They could not get the drawers to work.
2317. What was the width of the building we have just been speaking of? 10 ft. 5 in., and the verandah 4 ft. 9 in.
2318. By Mr. Stewart: Merely a weatherboarded building? Yes.
2319. What was it roofed with? A shingled roof and corrugated iron verandah.
2320. By the Chairman: That was the first plan Mr. Drewett made after he was engaged in architectural drawing? Yes; the next was a set of plans for the Campbelltown line.
2321. Was the survey of the Campbelltown line made before they came here? Yes, the plan, section, and set of drawings, were all complete before they came here.
2322. Were any of these plans that you made or the survey made by Mr. Brady acted upon by Mr. Whitton's staff? All the plans of trial surveys that were in the office have been acted upon; they have been a key to all the present surveys. In the case of the Southern line, I believe Mr. Brady's line has been adopted till they come to Picton. I do not believe that if a tracing were taken off Mr. Brady's line and laid on the present line, you would scarcely perceive the thickness of the line out anywhere; but when it gets to Picton Mr. Brady's line goes towards the east, while that of the present staff turns towards the west. Mr. Brady's route would have dispensed with the tunnel altogether.
2323. But they abandoned the drawings? Yes, they did, but could not with the plan and section--those being proclaimed they were bound to act upon them. Mr. Whitton's reason for doing away with these drawings was, that the bridges being laminated arches were out of date, and not considered of good construction; but now they are being used at Singleton and several other places. I do not see why, after being said to be out of date ten years back, they should again be brought into use.
2324. You say you and your son were engaged on the new drawings as well as the old? Yes; I think I have pointed out some of mine.
2325. Were there many plans done in the office at that time? A great many plans, because the trial surveys had been in progress a long time.
2326. You say Mr. Brady's trial surveys were generally found to be correct. Yes, very. There is a plan in the office--there was, at all events--of a survey of his from Sydney to Goulburn, both plan and section.
2327. As far as they have adopted his surveys they have been found to be correct? Yes; I never knew him in fact to make a mistake.
2328. Where was Mr. Brady at this time--how was he engaged? When Mr. Whitton came out he took the position of Engineer-in-Chief, and Mr. Brady was then employed on the line, I think, as Superintendent of Locomotives; he also had the management of the line.
2329. Did he appear to give satisfaction? Well, he could never give Mr. Whitton satisfaction, otherwise I do not see any one but would be satisfied with him, for he was very efficient.
2330. Do you know why he could not give Mr. Whitton satisfaction? I think it was nothing but professional jealousy; it could be nothing else.
2331. Do you consider Mr. Brady a superior man to Mr. Whitton as a professional man? If I wanted any skilful work done I should certainly have sent to Mr. Brady for that purpose.
2332. Were his trial surveys considered of very much value in the office? They were very much used.
2333. And always found to be correct? I never knew them to be otherwise.
2334. And you say he was also very expeditious in his work? Yes; he would take home as much work in the evening, or rather bring it in the morning, that would take some in our office two days to perform.
2335. Then you considered him a very valuable public officer? He was.
2336. Do you think that was the opinion of all who had the opportunity of testing his qualifications? Of all that were in any way disposed to speak justly of him.
2337. Are there any of his drawings in the office now? Several; some of the best drawings in the office are his; the drawing of the viaduct across Long Cove, just beyond Petersham, in particular was very beautifully executed.
2338. Do you know how long it took him to do that? I do not.
2339. I have heard that immediately after Mr. Whitton arrived in the Country he placed a spy over this gentleman--do you know whether that is true or not, or do you know anything of it? Yes, I am sorry to say it is true, because the party himself told me--the party who was instructed to watch him--Mr. Richardson.
2340. Richardson was placed by Mr. Whitton as a sort of spy over Mr. Brady? To watch him--to watch his every action were I think about the words of the instructions given him.
2341. Do you think Mr. Brady was aware of this? He was, because Richardson, as soon as he was told to do this, went and told Mr. Brady what his instructions were; he told him he was directed to watch everything he did; Mr. Brady said, "All you have to do, Richardson, is to be sure and give a faithful return of everything you see me do."
2342. You say Mr. Richardson told you this? Yes.
2343. And he told Mr. Brady also? Yes.

2344. By Mr. Stewart: Was the viaduct you have just alluded to made before Mr. Whitton came to the Colony? Yes, the Parramatta line was completed and open before Mr. Whitton came, and also the line to Liverpool. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
2345. You have heard no complaint of that viaduct? Of course bricks were not made twelve years ago like they are now, and I believe since Mr. Whitton came out a few of the bricks had crumbled away. Mr. Whitton I believe had two timber longitudinals laid over the viaduct on which the rails rested. 10 Dec., 1863.
2346. Was not that the viaduct that Mr. Flood in former days drew the attention of the House to its bad construction? I think not.
2347. By the Chairman: That was the skew bridge in Erskine-lane at Newtown? Yes; it fell down afterwards.
2348. Who was the Engineer-in-Chief in those days? Mr. Wallace. Its falling down was on account of the bad quality of the bricks and mortar; there may have been some neglect on the part of the officers of the department in reference to the quality of the mortar.
2349. It is standing now? It was built a second time.
2350. On the same principle? Yes. I think cement was used instead of mortar.
2351. The principle was not defective? No.
2352. In the specifications at that time, for skew bridges, was not common mortar allowed to be used instead of cement? Yes.
2353. Going back to this matter about Mr. Brady and Mr. Whitton—do you know whether Mr. Whitton found out that Richardson had informed Mr. Brady? No, I think not; had he been aware of it Richardson would not have remained in the department, I should say, another day. But Mr. Whitton is well protected on all the lines as regards his own men; he has a man from England, well known to him at Home, to protect him on all the lines.
2354. To let him know secretly anything that takes place? Yes.
2355. Is it true that the line from Sydney to Parramatta was surveyed by Mr. Whitton's instructions, to see if Mr. Brady had favoured the contractors or committed any fraud? Yes, it was, soon after Mr. Whitton's arrival.
2356. By whom was this survey made? By Mr. Micklethwait.
2357. Are the plans in the office? I do not know; I do not remember ever having seen them; but they ought to be; of course he had no business to make a survey without plotting it.
2358. Are you aware that anything improper was discovered? Nothing whatever; I know he was suspected, and that he felt it most acutely; it was supposed that he had allowed the contractor to charge for some few thousand yards of earth-work more than should have been allowed.
2359. Can you form any idea of the cost of this survey to the Government? I think it must have taken some three or four months, and that must have cost £300 or £400.
2360. Do you think Mr. Whitton has many of these persons on the lines to give him this secret information? There is one on every line.
2361. Is he an officer favoured by Mr. Whitton? Yes, none can give him greater satisfaction than those who make complaints.
2362. Do you think this spy system was the cause of Mr. Brady resigning? I think it was one of the causes, but he was otherwise ill-used; for instance, after being in the service so long, and having been Engineer-in-Chief, he was given Pitt-street to survey, and to take the cross sections for the tramway; that would be rather degrading when there were so many in the office who should have done this work instead of him. Notwithstanding, he did it and in a very short space of time; I think he did the whole in a fortnight; he made the survey, cross sections, and plotted it. I know he astonished them in the office.
2363. At the general rate they do work in the office, how long would it have taken them to do that—how long would it have taken Mr. Micklethwait, for instance—Had Mr. Micklethwait the same salary as Mr. Brady? Mr. Micklethwait did not come out till some time after.
2364. What salary was Mr. Brady receiving at the time he was surveying Pitt-street for the tramway? £750, and Mr. Mason was getting £700. The £50 was taken off Mr. Brady's salary, I believe, so that he should not be above Mr. Mason.
2365. Is Mr. Mason quick at his duties? He is supposed to be quick. He would not have a thing of that sort to do; but those whose duty it would fall to I think would take two months to do it.
2366. What Mr. Brady did in a fortnight? Yes; but Mr. Brady acted differently perhaps in many respects from what they would have done—for instance, he commenced this work very early in the mornings, to avoid the frequent interruptions of the traffic; in fact, any one doing a job of that sort should embrace the early morning for it. But supposing he had taken his average time, I should say he would do it in one-fourth the time they would.
2367. It was Mr. Micklethwait that was instructed to make the survey of the line to Parramatta? Yes.
2368. Was it not about that time that the accident occurred through which Mr. Want lost his life? Yes, it was at the same time, because Mr. Micklethwait was near the spot when it occurred; my son was with him, and was the first, I believe, who went and fetched brandy, after the accident, for those who were injured.
2369. Do you know if there was an officer of the name of Richardson then on the line? That is the same party I have just referred to.
2370. Was he on the line at the time of this accident? Yes, he was the inspector at the time, I believe.
2371. Do you know whether this gentleman, Mr. Richardson, reported the dangerous state of the line at this particular place? I have heard it stated that he made this report to Mr. Whitton,

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.
10 Dec., 1863.

Whitton, I think, two or three times, and it was taken no notice of, and at the same time he said that if it was not paid attention to an accident must occur at that spot. I think it was on account of the sudden change of the curve, and also the line not being sufficiently raised on the outer rail—not giving the proper slope for the equilibrium of the carriages and train.

2372. And it was this that Mr. Richardson said would cause some serious accident? I believe that was the reply.

2373. Mr. Richardson told Mr. Whitton that unless the outer rail of this curve was raised considerably, an accident would occur? I will not be certain whether that was the reason he gave, but he said it was at that particular point the accident would occur.

2374. Do you know anything about a Mr. Morgan on the line? Yes, he was one of the men from England.

2375. Do you know anything about his taking a gang of men, and altering, at night, this portion of the line, after the accident? He did, I believe, take a gang of men there, but as to the time I do not know; I heard the object was to prevent any one ascertaining the direct cause of the accident.

2376. Did you hear whether he altered the rails as had been previously suggested by Mr. Richardson? I cannot answer that question to be certain about it, but I believe the rails were altered to such a position that had they been so before, the accident would not have occurred; I have heard that the rails were so altered that it would have prevented the accident had it been done when suggested by Mr. Richardson.

2377. By Mr. Morris: In what year was this? About five years and a half ago. There is a plan somewhere, which I got out, shewing the carriages in their tumble-down state.

2378. By the Chairman: And shewing the locality of the accident? Yes.

2379. Was not this plan got up as a key to the inquiry that was made? Yes.

2380. Did you ever hear that this man Richardson was requested to make some statement that was not in accordance with facts with reference to the accident? He was dismissed, I believe, for what he did say, but he has stated that had he told what he was requested to say by Mr. Whitton he would not have been dismissed. It was put in that way to him—that he was to make some excuse for it that should not reflect upon Mr. Whitton; he was to talk the matter away—give some other reason for it.

2381. Mr. Richardson, however, stated some facts before the Committee —? Yes, I think he adhered to what he had originally proposed to Mr. Whitton when he found it was in an insecure state.

2382. And he was dismissed shortly after the investigation? I think within a few days after.

2383. I think this occurred shortly after Mr. Brady resigned? Mr. Brady had resigned before the accident occurred. I think I should, now that we are speaking of Mr. Brady, state to you what has been said of Mr. Brady by Mr. Whitton—that he would never rest until he had got Mr. Brady out of the railway office, and he swore he would never leave him till he had hounded him out of the Colony.

2384. How do you know this? I was told by a gentleman who heard Mr. Whitton say it.

2385. Who was the gentleman? Mr. Nealds. It shews to what an extent Mr. Whitton will go when he once entertains an ill feeling towards any one.

2386. There were five gentlemen known as Mr. Whitton's staff who arrived from England? Yes, five altogether.

2387. Are they all in the office now? All but one—Mr. Bridgman.

2388. How long did he remain in the office? Hardly twelve months.

2389. Why did he leave so soon? I may say he was a decided gentleman—a nephew of Sir William Denison—and he could not put up with Mr. Whitton's (I think I may use the term) insolence; he was so annoyed by him that he would not remain, and went Home again, I think, within twelve months.

2390. What was the nature of his duties? Draughtsman. I have pointed out some of his drawings; he used to take the drawings up after they were supposed to be completed—he was rather artistic—and used to touch them up to give them effect. I do not mean to say that was all he did.

2391. Was not Mr. Whitton's staff engaged for a term of years? They were all engaged for three years with the exception of Mr. Whitton; I think there was no time stated with him.

2392. Do you know at what salaries they were engaged? Mr. Whitton, £1,500; Mr. Mason, £600; Mr. Drewett, £500; Mr. Barton, £400; and Mr. Bridgman, £400.

2393. Then all of them came out at a higher salary than you were receiving? Yes, the lowest had £50 a year more than I had.

2394. Have you had any increase since their arrival? Not since their arrival. My increase of £100 took place before I had been in the service twelve months. At the time of my engagement they stated that the salary was very low, and would probably be increased, and after seeing what I could do they raised it.

2395. Since these gentlemen arrived here you have never had an increase of salary? None whatever.

2396. Nevertheless you are competent to do any work these gentlemen could do? I have never had to return anything given to me yet.

2397. Did not some of these gentlemen have an idea of constructing the railway fences out of sawn timber—sawn posts and rails—all through the Country? I believe the first specification that was drawn out was so worded—that all the timber was to be of sawn stuff, both posts and rails.

2398. Whose idea was this? I do not know, unless it was Mr. Whitton's.

2399. I suppose the timber was to be imported—something like the signal posts? It could not have been that, for it was to be ironbark; that makes the idea more novel still, of course.

2400. Unless they meant to send the ironbark to England and re-import it again? They do things of that sort sometimes in this Colony. It would have been a very good speculation for a sawyer to set up a saw-sharpener if they had attempted to cut out all that stuff in that way.

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.

10 Dec., 1863.

2401. Do you know any person in the department who knows anything of the qualities of our colonial timber? I cannot speak as to that question. Of course they have tables of the different strengths and qualities of timber, because that was got out for them by Captain Ward; but whether they can go out into the bush and select timber I do not know.

2402. What are Mr. Drewett's duties in the office? He is engaged as draughtsman.

2403. Is he a quick and good draughtsman? That I cannot say he is, although it is true, since he has been in the Colony, he has very much improved; as to being quick, he is the opposite, in my estimation.

2404. You think he is very slow? I do not consider him very slow, but he is slow.

2405. His salary is much higher than yours? Yes, his salary is £150 a year more than I was getting when I was suspended—as much as myself and son together.

2406. He was brought out from England to do the work you were then doing at £350 a year? The same work.

2407. Who got out the station buildings' drawings prior to Mr. Hall's appointment? I got out most of them.

2408. On what drawings is Mr. Drewett mostly engaged? Bridges principally.

2409. Have your son and Mr. Robertson made bridge drawings? They made, I think I may say, most of them in the office.

2410. Who made the drawings for the Menangle bridge? All in the office have been connected with those at different times.

2411. Do you know how many sets of plans were made for this bridge? I think three distinct sets were made, but there has never been any plan of the bridge completed in the office. The two first were for Mr. Whitton's inspection, to say which he would select.

2412. Do you mean that those plans were finished, or merely that sketches were made of them? They were drawn out roughly, for him to say what they should be as regards stays and diagonals.

2413. Two sets of these were drawn out to see which Mr. Whitton would approve of? Yes.

2414. How long would each of these occupy in drawing—how many men were engaged on them? Mr. Drewett was principally engaged about that; Mr. Mason, being assistant-engineer, gave instructions, and Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton had something to do with it—these three would consult together.

2415. And Mr. Drewett would get up the drawings? Yes, just a sketch of the supports, the piling, truss-work, and so on.

2416. How long would these take him, each set? I can hardly say; I was not in the same room with him; I should say there was something like five or six months bestowed upon them.

2417. Five or six months in getting up these two sets? The whole of them, and other persons in connection with them afterwards; that was before they determined on having a stone and iron bridge.

2418. Merely to select which would be the best? Yes.

2419. And Mr. Drewett was engaged entirely on these plans, and Mr. Whitton, Mr. Mason, and Mr. Barton, occasionally? Yes, Mr. Drewett was occupied the whole time, I do not mean to say without intermission, because other things would come in between.

2420. For the bridge that was decided upon at last, only the drawings of the piers were made in this Country? That is all.

2421. The whole of the plans for the ironwork, as well as the calculations for the strength of the girders, were made in England? All that was done, I think, was to give a sketch of the river, with the position of the abutments and the two centre piers, and from that it was left for them to make the calculation at Home; I never saw anything about the ironwork done here.

2422. Can you inform the Committee the time these plans were in hand—that is the plans for the bridge at last decided upon, independent of the plans that took six months to prepare that were not adopted? I cannot answer that question with any certainty; I believe the drawings are not completed at the present time.

2423. How long was Mr. Drewett occupied over it? Over twelve months altogether in connection with the bridge.

2424. Who was assisting him? Five or six; almost all in the office—there was Mr. Telmon, Mr. Robertson, my son, Mr. Braddock, I think Mr. Mackay, Mr. Gardiner—nearly all in the office.

2425. Was your son assisting him? Yes.

2426. How long? I could not possibly say.

2427. Do you know how long Mr. Robertson was engaged in that way? I made a rough calculation at one time of the cost of the plans for this bridge; I made it come to over £1,100 for labour paid for making the drawings.

2428. How long do you think it should have taken a good draughtsman to make these plans? I should say a couple of months ought to have completed them.

2429. One man? Yes, to complete the drawings for a bridge suitable for that place.

2430. Do you think you could have done them in two months? I do; I do not mean to say I should have made the calculation for the strength of the iron girders.

2431. They did not do that? No.

2432. Could you do in two months what has cost the Country, according to your estimate, £1,100 in salaries? I could, if I had proper instructions in the first instance.

2433.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse. 2433. Such instructions as an Engineer-in-Chief should be able to give to a draughtsman? Yes.
- 10 Dec., 1863. 2434. And you were receiving £350 a year? Yes.
2435. What would it cost at that rate? About £60.
2436. However, these plans ought not to have cost above £100? No. Of course if a draughtsman gets instructions to do a thing three or four different ways, he is not to be blamed for a thing of that sort.
2437. Is this the manner in which these gentlemen creep over their work generally? I believe it is; I do not see that any of them are killed with work.
2438. Have you ever heard Mr. Drewett speak disrespectfully of Mr. Whitton? It would not do for me—I should not like, in fact, to state things I have heard him say.
2439. Are you on good terms with Mr. Drewett? I must acknowledge we are not on such good terms now as we were; we used to be on good terms, but latterly he has chosen to speak disrespectfully of me, so I am informed, calling me “an old cut-throat,” and that sort of thing: of course it is very childish. I have heard him say, speaking of Mr. Whitton, “he is a great fool, and I do not think he actually knows what he wants himself.” That I have heard him state of Mr. Whitton, when he was about the Menangle drawings. This was in reference to the proper batter that should be given to the outside piles. Mr. Whitton wanted the batter altered. These piers are very high, something like seventy feet, and Mr. Whitton directed him to give them a difference of only eight inches in the whole height. I think the batter given is generally one in eight, but in addition to this he directed to be added eight inches only in the whole height.
2440. About an eighth of an inch to a foot? Yes.
2441. Which was perfectly ridiculous? You could not see it, and as to calculating the difference of pressure, you could not do it.
2442. Do you think a batter of one in eight was sufficient for a structure so high as that? I will not be quite certain whether that was the batter given there; that is the average batter given to others; it should be considerably more there.
2443. Is that the average batter given to bridges throughout the line—one foot in eight? Yes.
2444. Can you assign any reason for Mr. Drewett's ill feeling towards you? I cannot assign any other reason than that I think it is professional jealousy, or it may be that I stand in the way of his getting an increase.
2445. How can you stand in the way of his getting an increase? Because I believe he has been twice put down for an increase, and it has been struck out by the Minister; I suppose he could not with propriety increase his salary, knowing mine was so low.
2446. Have you ever been put down for an increase? No, although Mr. Whitton assured me he would do all he could for me in that respect. I thought at that time his promise could be relied upon; he asked me “what salary would I like”? I said, I should like a salary more equal with the others who could perform the same duties as myself. Up to the present time, however, I have had no increase.
2447. Is there not a large library in the Works Department, of books of recent date, embellished with bridges and other drawings? I believe they have a very good collection—large works that have been recently published.
2448. I believe Captain Martindale imported a great many of these? Yes; I believe they have the best library of the kind in the Colony.
2449. Have you seen any of these books used in getting up drawings? Yes, I have seen Mr. Drewett using them; and as soon as I went into his office the book was immediately closed. I suppose he did not wish me to see what he was doing.
2450. Mr. Drewett being chief draughtsman in the department, is he not expected to take the time and see that the others do their duty? I have been told that he has been so instructed.
2451. Is he in the habit of attending his office early in the morning—is he more regular in his attendance than others? He does not come at the proper time—he is more frequently late.
2452. Is he not in the frequent habit of absenting himself for days together from his office? Yes, he is often away from the office. His health is none of the best; he is very nervous and excitable; and that may account for his strange manner at times.
2453. Does he leave earlier in the afternoon than others? I do not know that he leaves earlier than the others. I should remark that he is more punctual to his duties when Mr. Whitton is known to be in Sydney.
2454. By Mr. Morris: Is not Mr. Whitton always in Sydney? No, he is down the lines occasionally; sometimes away a week or a fortnight at a time.
2455. By the Chairman: You mean to say that “When the cat is away the mice will play”? This knowledge is taken advantage of in that office. I do not believe there is a day when it is known Mr. Whitton is away but what Mr. Drewett comes late in the morning and goes home to dinner, which is strictly prohibited; Mr. Whitton has threatened to dismiss any one who does it.
2456. Is Mr. Drewett the best draughtsman in the office? No, I cannot say yes to that.
2457. Is he the best mathematician in the office? I believe he knows nothing about mathematics.
2458. Does he do more work than any other in the office? Certainly not—he does less. He has a strange way of running about the office with a book and pencil in his hand; why he does it I do not know.
2459. In what does his superiority to any of the others consist? I do not know; I am not aware that he has any scientific or good qualities.

2460. Is he as good a draughtsman as Mr. Robertson? No.
2461. Or as good a mathematician? I should think not.
2462. Does he do as much work as Mr. Robertson? Not one half.
2463. Is he as useful in the office in any capacity as Mr. Robertson? I should say decidedly not. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
10 Dec., 1863.
2464. And yet Mr. Robertson has been in the office for two years at £52 a year, and last year at £100, and Mr. Drewett five years at £500? That is the fact. Mr. Robertson can shew better sections and get out better views to give an idea of work than Mr. Drewett can.
2465. Better in every respect? Yes, and as regards the amount of work they do, there is no comparison.
2466. Then I suppose in justice they should change places—Mr. Robertson should have the £500, and Mr. Drewett the £100? That would be the proper change to make as regards the abilities of the two and the value they are in the department.
2467. From your experience and knowledge of the work and abilities of Mr. Drewett, do you think him worth to the public more than £150 a year? I do not, considering the amount of work he does.
2468. Are the Committee to understand then that Mr. Drewett, although a junior in the office in point of service, yet receives a high salary, is inferior to any of his subordinates either in ability or in the amount of work he performs, is irregular in his attendance, and intemperate in his habits? As regards the latter I do not know much about it.*
2469. Have you never seen him drinking? Yes, I have seen him drink.
2470. Have you seen him the worse for drink? Yes, I have.
2471. What have you seen him drink? Both wine and brandy.
2472. At what hours? The times I have seen him drink have been mostly at luncheon, but I have seen him drink at other times.
2473. Have you been at work in the same room with him? Only at the first—on his first arrival, for perhaps twelve or eighteen months.
2474. Have you had any opportunity to know whether he is in the habit of drinking in working hours? No, I have not many; my duties of late have not called me much into the room where he is engaged.

FRIDAY, 11 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. GRAY,		MR. STEWART.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse called in and further examined:—

2475. By the Chairman: From what you said yesterday, it would seem that the only qualification of Mr. Drewett for his present position is being a favourite with his Chief? Yes, I think it is more that, and the fact of his being appointed with him at Home, than anything else, considering the amount of work he does. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
11 Dec., 1863.
2476. Is there not a rule in the office against going out to lunch? It is strictly prohibited.
2477. But Mr. Drewett, you say, often goes out to lunch? There is scarcely a time when Mr. Whitton is away but what he does so.
2478. Has Mr. Drewett a son in the office? He has in the Roads Branch—not in the Railway.
2479. Has Mr. Mason a son in the Works Department? In the Roads Branch; he was in the Railway Department, but he left that and went to the Roads.
2480. Do you know the salary Mr. Mason's son gets? I do not know what he gets now; he is made a bridge inspector now I believe.
2481. What is his age? I think two or three and twenty.
2482. Do you know what salary Mr. Drewett's son gets? He was getting, I think, £60 or £65 a year.
2483. Do you know why Mr. Mason's son left one department to go into the other? I have heard some reason given for it. I think Mr. Whitton and he could not agree together.
2484. Mr. Whitton and Mr. Mason's son? Yes; he always had a dislike to him from the time he came out; in fact the remark he has made, if I may make use of it, was that he was more suited to be a boatman or drayman, or something to that effect.
2485. Mr. Whitton said so? Yes; that he was more fit to be a waterman or drayman than to be attached to the office; Mr. Drewett told me this.
2486. I do not know whether I asked you whether Mr. Drewett was in the habit of absenting himself from his duties for days? He is often away portions of the day; he is in the habit of complaining of having severe toothache and things of that sort.
2487. Have you known him frequently to be absent for the day altogether? Yes, he has been away for days together.
2488. You have said in your evidence, that you made one set of plans complete for the Campbelltown extension? Yes, I stated that I made the plan and the set of drawings; the section I did not do.
2489. Who did the section? That was done before I went to the office. I do not know who did it—it was signed by Mr. Brady. 2490.

* INSERTED (on revision):—All but the last remark is quite correct.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
11 Dec., 1863.
2490. Do you know why they were not acted upon? The only reason given for the set of drawings being dispensed with was, as I think I have previously stated, that the bridges were supposed to be of an inferior class, being laminated arches—they were out of date, was Mr. Whitton's remark, and not suited to the Colony.
2491. Have they not used this description of bridge on the Singleton line? Yes, and there are several on other lines.
2492. Do you know of anything that would make them suitable for the Singleton line and not for the Campbelltown line? Nothing at all, but it is not customary for one engineer to have anything to do with the drawings of another. In this case the line had been proclaimed, and could not be interfered with, but the section was deviated from; they reduced the height of the embankments.
2493. The section taken by Mr. Brady? Yes; and from the fact of doing so—I suppose to reduce the cost—the line became inundated.
2494. If Mr. Brady's original section had been carried out, the line would have been raised above flood level? I do not believe the water would ever have reached it, because he had considerable experience in the Colony, and knew the nature of the floods.
2495. Was the Campbelltown line the first that Mr. Whitton and his staff commenced on in the Colony? Yes.
2496. Have you ever heard what this mistake of Mr. Whitton's cost the Country—altering the section? I have heard it stated that it cost something like £20,000, because a large portion of the embankment was washed away; they had to construct several open viaducts, beside that, as the traffic was not stopped, they had to make a temporary road.
2497. If Mr. Brady's original plan had been carried out that would not have been required? I believe not.
2498. Do you know when Mr. Hall entered the service? About five years since.
2499. What was he first engaged on? The first work he did was tracing.
2500. How long was he engaged in tracing? I think it must have been for about two years before he commenced drawings.
2501. After he commenced drawings, what drawings was he engaged on? I think the first drawing he did was the Parramatta station.
2502. That must have been about three years ago? About that time.
2503. Since which he has been engaged on station drawings exclusively? Yes, since that he has taken up most of the station drawings.
2504. Has he had any person to assist him in these station drawings? Mr. Mackay has assisted him throughout—in fact he has done the greater portion of the stations.
2505. And what has Mr. Hall done, then? Sometimes he has been on the line; he got out the first station, and from that most of the others were merely pencilled off, I think.
2506. You saw the drawings for the Singleton and Penrith stations—whose work were they? All that I saw was Mr. Mackay's. In fact Mr. Hall cannot see to do any fine work.
2507. Then Mr. Hall and Mr. Mackay had been engaged for the last three years in making station drawings and supervising their construction? Yes, I think the whole of that period.
2508. Mr. Hall has been receiving—what salary? Up to the commencement of the present year he was getting £350, and the whole of this year he has been in the receipt of £400.
2509. And what does Mr. Mackay receive? £200.
2510. How did Mr. Hall conduct himself in the office? With anything but propriety, considering he is so advanced in years, or even if it was otherwise as regards age.
2511. Was this known to all the persons in the department? Yes, it must be known to all of them, because he used to amuse most who came into the office.
2512. Did Mr. Mason come into the office on any occasion? Not whilst he has been acting improperly.
2513. Did you ever see Mr. Whitton and Mr. Mason together in the office? I have.
2514. Have you seen anything occur immediately after they left? Do you refer to the drinking?
2515. Yes? I remember soon after Mr. Hall came into the service—I think about two or three weeks—he and Mr. Micklethwait had been drinking; they sent out for brandy, and Mr. Mason came into the office, I do not know what for; he remained about half a minute. I could see from his manner that he perceived brandy had been used in the office; he immediately went down stairs, and in about sufficient time for him to go to Mr. Whitton's room, and tell him of it, Mr. Whitton came into the office, and remained about a quarter of a minute; he had not been gone down a minute before the bell rang, and the messenger came for Mr. Micklethwait to go to Mr. Whitton; he went, and returned laughing. Mr. Hall was then sent for, and after he came up it seemed, from what they said, that they had been censured for drinking brandy in the office.
2516. How do you know that Mr. Whitton had censured them? Mr. Micklethwait told me and others of it, and laughed about it.
2517. They did not seem to care much about the censure? No.
2518. Had it any beneficial effect on the conduct of these gentlemen? I think not.
2519. Did you see them indulging in drinking shortly after that? Yes, from that to the present time.
2520. Is this one of the cases which you refer to in your "supplementary evidence," when you say Mr. Whitton and others must have known of these drinking habits of these gentlemen? That is one of the occasions I refer to.
2521. You say that other officers of the department also knew that Mr. Whitton had censured Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall? Yes, because he made it known afterwards.
2522. You said in your "supplementary evidence" to Mr. Arnold that Mr. Whitton had not correctly taken down your statement—can you remember those portions he omitted?

- One portion was, after I had stated what I had seen take place in the office, he put his fingers in his waistcoat pocket* and asked me if I did not think it my duty to make the circumstance known to him before; I told him no, I did not, because on a previous occasion I had mentioned the circumstance to him, and he then suggested to me that it would be better if I attended to my own duties and minded my own business. This portion was omitted.
2523. Mr. Whitton refused to take that portion of your evidence down? It was omitted, and I believe if that had been inserted I never should have been in the position I am now; I never could have been suspended.
2524. Was it not the reason that you were suspended, that it was alleged against you that you had not made known these circumstances before? I believe there is nothing else they can trump up against me.
2525. How long is it since you brought under the notice of Mr. Whitton the conduct of these gentlemen? It was two years and a half or three years ago.
2526. Afterwards, of course, you were very careful what you said about the conduct of those in the office? It was hardly likely I was going to subject myself to similar treatment again.
2527. Can you give the Committee the exact words you made use of to Mr. Whitton on that occasion—when he asked you whether you did not think it your duty to acquaint him of it before? I hardly know whether I could do that just now. He asked me, throwing himself back in his chair,† if I did not think it my duty to make him acquainted with the irregularities in the office, having known what I had then stated, and I told him what I have previously stated.
2528. That you had done so? That I had previously done so; and I told him the terms in which he had answered me. I think I have the date that I told him of it, because I thought it was treatment that I did not deserve, and I was determined to take notice of it.
2529. Was Mr. Hall at variance with any other officer in the department? There is scarcely an officer in the department but what he has been months together without speaking to or they to him.
2530. Was he considered a clever, quick, and correct draughtsman? Well, I do not think any of those qualities could be attached to him; for instance, I do not see what has been required to bring out any ingenuity as an architect.
2531. The station buildings on the line are of the most simple structure, are they not? They are all plain brickwork; there may be a few with—I cannot say enriched mouldings, because there are nothing but common ogee mouldings. If they were to get up buildings such as those now being carried up in Pitt-street north, or such as the University, then some credit might be attached to a man's ability.
2532. Have you heard of a charge of a very serious nature having been brought against Mr. Hall, at the Police Office at Penrith? Yes, I have heard of it having taken place.
2533. Did this take place while he should have been engaged on his duties, inspecting the station house at Penrith? Yes, the stations or line.
2534. Have you heard the nature of this charge? The first charge I believe against him was for rape; but I believe it was reduced to the lesser offence, that of assault with intent, for which I believe he was tried.
2535. He was charged before the Magistrates? Yes.
2536. Do you know whether he was committed? No, he was not committed, but it was a very close shave.
2537. I believe there was some disagreement between the Magistrates? Yes, they were divided in opinion; one-half considered he was guilty. I was in Penrith some short time since and made inquiries, and was told it was known by all there that it did take place, because his character was well known in Penrith.
2538. Have you ever heard of the same officer having been accused of some similar offence at South Creek? Yes, I have heard that a servant girl there was—the word they used was—"rushed" by him; that he ran after and seized hold of her.
2539. What was the result? The landlord happened to step in just in time and separated them. I do not know whether it cost him anything to get off that matter or not, but that was a very near escape for him.
2540. Have you heard that he was absent from his duties in consequence of a threat made by the navvies that they would personally chastise him if he came on the works again? I have heard that they threatened, if they caught him on the works again, they would annihilate him.
2541. Have you heard of his having absented himself—? He was in the office two days, I think it was, evading the officers who were serving this summons upon him; in fact Mr. Mason at the time asked me if I knew why Mr. Hall was in the office; he said he thought it very strange that he should be there when he ought to have been on the works. His health was not good, and I believe Mr. Whitton allowed him to be on the line for a time to recruit his health. It was during that time this occurred.
2542. Are gentlemen in that department allowed to make drawings, or supervise the construction of works for their own benefit for private parties? It is not allowed now, although I have done some little work myself; and Mr. Whitton told me he had no objection to its being done, so long as it did not interfere with the duties of the office.
2543. Do you know whether Mr. Hall made the drawings and superintended the construction of a large building at Newtown? He did.
2544. Did you hear that he sued the owner of the building for £30, balance of the commission for the construction? Yes, he told me he had agreed with him to make the drawings

* ADDED (on revision):—Throwing himself back in his chair.

† ADDED (on revision):—At the same time placing, I think, a finger and thumb of each hand in his waistcoat pockets.

Mr. N.
Trenrouse.
11 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
11 Dec., 1868.
- drawings and superintend the erection of the building, at the rate of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on account of his holding a Government appointment, but it seems it cost him more than 5 per cent., something near 8.
2545. I have heard the gentleman who owned the building gave him £80, and then he summoned him for £30 more? Yes, he did so; and that £30 was for a clerk of works that he charged for, though he was never near the place.
2546. That was a direct imposition? Yes, decidedly.
2547. He was nonsuited? Yes, he did not recover.
2548. Do you know whether he lost two or three days from his duties, in prosecuting this claim of his? I cannot say the length of time, but it was several days.
2549. How long ago was this? About three years and a half.
2550. Have you heard of Mr. Beazeley—a public officer—drawing plans and superintending private buildings? I believe he did something of the sort at Balmain; I have only heard it mentioned in the office.
2551. Do you know whether Mr. Whitton was aware of these gentlemen performing these works? He must have known of Mr. Hall having done that work; I do not know whether he knew anything about Mr. Beazeley—he may have known, but still he is not in connection with this staff.
2552. Do you know whether he reprimanded Mr. Hall for doing this work? Not that I know of.
2553. Did you ever superintend any private buildings? I made a set of plans for a schoolhouse, in connection with the church I attend at Newtown.
2554. What did you receive? I did mine gratuitously.
2555. Then you received nothing for it? Nothing at all.
2556. You did it for the benefit of the neighbourhood? Yes; the minister of the church knew I was connected with the Railway Department, and he thought I could have no objection to give my donation in the shape of labour instead of cash, which suited me very much better.
2557. What did that building cost? £1,400.
2558. Did you make any other drawings for the church? This was for the schoolhouse. I made drawings for a gallery in the church.
2559. Did Mr. Whitton know of this? Mr. Whitton heard I was making these drawings.
2560. Did he say anything to you? Yes; I had occasion to go up to him once—which is very seldom, for I do not see him more than three or four times in the year—I happened to go up this time, and he spoke to me about it. He said he had been informed that I was making drawings for a schoolhouse, and added, “Do you know it is against the rules?” “No,” I said, “I do not.” He then replied, “Although you have made the drawings I have a great mind to prevent your superintending the construction of it.” I remarked, if I chose to devote my time to that sort of thing instead of, as many in the office did, to the billiard-table, I should have been allowed to do so without the interference of any one.
2561. He did not censure Mr. Hall for undertaking this large work, for which he received £80? I believe not.
2562. You say there was a Mr. Mackay engaged with Mr. Hall in making drawings for the station houses? Yes.
2563. Do you think Mr. Mackay is an expeditious or good draughtsman? He is a good draughtsman, but he is slow—very slow. Even if he were to pay full attention to it he is not at all speedy; but he is so given to discussion, to talking, that I may say quite half the entire day is lost in that way, and unfortunately he cannot work and talk at the same time.
2564. You consider a large amount of time is wasted by these two gentlemen? A very large amount.
2565. Whom do you acknowledge as your superior in the office? Mr. Whitton is the only one I ever had anything to do with. I have sometimes received instructions from Mr. Mason, but that was during the first two or three years after their arrival in the Colony.
2566. You say you do not often come into contact with Mr. Whitton? That was when I was connected with the drawings. At the present time Mr. Moody is the chief clerk under Mr. Rae, and all papers after being opened are given to him, and he distributes them to the different parties whose duty it is to perform certain work. These papers come from him to me.
2567. I believe Mr. Mason ranks next to Mr. Whitton? Yes.
2568. What are his principal duties? I think the only thing he does now is measuring up work for payment; he used to do different duties in the office, but now I think he does nothing but measuring up.
2569. Then he must be away from the office most of his time? I think he must be away seven or eight months out of the twelve.
2570. Do you think if Mr. Whitton should be suddenly called away, the railway works would come to a stand? Decidedly not; my opinion is that they would progress very much more rapidly.
2571. Do you think the Colony has been much benefited by this new staff that was sent to England for? I certainly cannot see in what respect, because, looking at the amount of work that has been done since they have been out, divided amongst so many, it is very small, considering there were so many plans in the office to assist them on their arrival in this Colony.
2572. Do you know the difference between the salaries they receive here and the salaries they were engaged at at Home? Mr. Mason was engaged at Home at £600; he is now receiving £700. Mr. Barton came out at £400, and is now receiving £600, and is down for another £100.

2573. Mr. Barton also receives £280 a year for expenses, does he not? Yes, it was voted last year, and he receives it whether he was present or away from Sydney, so that virtually he has £880 a year. Mr. Barton had an increase twice in one year. Mr. Bridgman, who has left the service some time since, came out at £400, and had no increase. Mr. Drewett came out at £500, and he has had no increase.*

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.

11 Dec., 1863.

2574. By Mr. Gray: In receiving these increases, was any alteration made in Mr. Barton's standing in the office—was he shifted to a higher grade? In name only.

2575. By the Chairman: Not in duties? Not in duties.

2576. By Mr. Morris: He is the head of the department of trial surveys? He is said to be.

2577. By the Chairman: He was at the head of that department when the trial surveys were made in the Grose some years ago? Yes; the fact is, it is left so much to the Sappers that you can hardly call him the proper head.

2578. Is there not a great want of discipline in the department; for instance, I have heard days have been lost in seeking plans—particular plans that have been required? I have known plans to be searched for two days together, and then not found. In fact there is no discipline at all; I do not think it is understood hardly in the office.

2579. Have you not heard that there has been great loss of time in seeking up documents? Yes, almost everything. They do not appear to have anything properly arranged.

2580. Who has charge of these drawings? I had charge before the present staff came out; I then had them all numbered, and a corresponding number in a book, which was indexed, and a description of the plan written opposite the number. I still have a large number of plans in the office; these I require for my particular duties, and I have all arranged on shelves.

2581. Who is expected to have charge of the plans that you have known days lost in seeking? Mr. Drewett; he has charge of all the plans, independent of the working plans which I use.

2582. I find in the Estimates that there are but five draughtsmen set down for the Railway Department—how are these extra five paid;—you say there are ten draughtsmen actually engaged, and only five are accounted for on the Estimates—from what fund are the other five paid? Salaries of the other five come out of the contingent sum of £2,000.

2583. Have there been ten draughtsmen engaged in the office for a considerable time over one year? Yes, for the last three and a half or four years.

2584. And still there are only five placed on the Estimates, though ten are engaged? Yes.

2585. Do you know whether a large number of tracings are sent to England? I think there must be a large number sent.

2586. Why do you think so? On account of the work that has to be done in England; they must get the sections before they are in a position to carry it out, or send it out here, complete. I think there were tracings of a very large map sent Home, the object of which I cannot imagine, without it is to shew the large amount of work the present staff have done since they came out here—the immensity of the Country, and the difficulties they have to contend with. It is a very large tracing of the whole of the survey on the Southern line.

2587. What is the object of sending it? I think only to shew the difficulties they have to contend with.

2588. A sort of professional advertisement? Just to shew their ability, I think. What makes me think this particular tracing is sent Home is this: About two years since inquiries were made for this tracing, and it has not been seen for some time, I believe; and from that fact, I think it has been sent Home to England.

2589. By Mr. Stewart: Was that a copy or the original? That is the copy; the original took a very long time to do; this in question took over twelve months.

2590. By the Chairman: Who did this? Mr. Telmon did most of it, and my son did some of it.

2591. Was it really required? I should think not. It is 4 feet 6 inches wide, and 50 or 60 feet long altogether.

2592. Mr. Telmon was engaged upon it about twelve months—and your son, how long was he engaged? Perhaps two or three months.

2593. Who else? I could not say; there are one or two who have now left the office, who were also engaged on it. It was made, of course, in a great number of sheets.

2594. What do you consider the cost of that piece of tracing? Mr. Telmon is getting but a small salary, though he has been there so long, and is a man of some ingenuity; he receives 10s. a day, or about £150 a year. It may have cost £250.

2595. It was not at all required to carry out the works? Not the least.

2596. Do you not think that, if the office were in a proper state of discipline, a great number of persons could be dispensed with? That is my opinion; I should think at least 15 or 20 per cent. of labour could be dispensed with.

2597. Had Mr. Whitton anything to do with the first telegraph posts put up in the Colony—I refer to those clothes-prop affairs? Mr. Whitton had to do with them.

2598. What had he to do with them? I do not know unless he was applied to to get a drawing of these posts. I think there were three made to shew the iron ring on the top, and some tracings were afterwards made.

2599. How many tracings? Three or four.

2600. Three drawings and three tracings? Yes.

2601. What was the use of them? To shew the contractors who supplied the posts what sort of sticks they required.

2602. That they wanted clothes-props or something similar? They were simply long poles, about six inches at the base and four at the top.

2603.

* NOTE (on revision):—The salaries paid this new staff here are in most cases nearly 500 per cent. more than they were receiving in England.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse. 2603. Common poles cut out of the bush? That is all.
- 11 Dec., 1863. 2604. And they made plans of these things? Yes.
2605. What was the cost of these plans? Perhaps with the time taken up in consultation what they should be, and the time the drawings took, it may have been some £10 or £15.
2606. Is Mr. Whitton much on the railway works? No, he is not; I consider not near so often as he should be.
2607. Do you know whether he ever goes over the trial surveys previous to a line being adopted? I do not think he does in all cases. I think he is mostly satisfied with the plan presented to him.
2608. By his subordinates? Yes. I do not think he goes over it on all occasions.
2609. Is not a great portion of his time taken up in writing minutes—have you had an opportunity of knowing? Yes, a great deal of his time is taken up in that respect.
2610. I have heard that a great portion of his time is taken up performing Mr. Rae's duties—is that true, or do you know anything of it? Not from my own knowledge can I speak to that fact, but I have heard it spoken of by others in the office as being the manner in which he is mostly engaged. It is said, "He does all Rae's work—Rae has no trouble at all—it is all done for him." If any question is asked they say directly, "How can you expect Rae to know anything about it?"
2611. By Mr. Gray: What sort of work is this? Any reports or answers required for explanation, duties which, if the Commissioner knew anything of railway business, should be answered by him, because they are questions not at all connected with engineering ability.
2612. By the Chairman: Then in reality Mr. Whitton does work that should devolve upon the Commissioner? It is so stated in the office.
2613. Do you think this is from a desire to have the whole of the works and the management of the railway in his own hands? Yes, I conceive it is nothing but that he shall be considered to have the sole and entire charge of the whole of the works.
2614. Do you think Mr. Rae is competent to perform those duties which Mr. Whitton does for him? I should say not.
2615. Then in that case Mr. Rae is hardly fit for his position as Commissioner for Railways? I have heard that stated by many parties in the office. I have come in contact with Mr. Rae but very seldom myself; it is hardly to be expected he should know much about railways, considering he never saw one till they were opened in this Colony; from that fact he cannot know much about them.
2616. What duties does Mr. Rae perform? A great many papers that come to me from Mr. Rae come in connection with land notices. All that I ever see upon them of his is "Submitted, J.R.," such a date, or "I recommend, J.R.," such a date. I see very little of Mr. Rae's work, either on papers or correspondence.
2617. Is it not usual in England, when an Engineer-in-Chief has constructed a line, that he hands it over to a manager? Yes, that must be the custom, because it is hardly likely an engineer in England, or anywhere else, should have anything to do with it after it is completed. You may just as well say an architect after he has completed a house for a proprietor should come and superintend the domestic arrangements. Of course his duty should be only to look after works in progress.
2618. Of course it is not necessary that the manager of a railway should be a civil engineer? Certainly not; he should rather be a good mercantile man.
2619. A good business man would be better than a civil engineer? Yes, it is a thing altogether apart from a civil engineer's duties. I cannot see how it will be by-and-by, when there are so many miles made—whether he can attend to the whole of them.
2620. Do you not think an engineer having so many distinct lines under his command would be much better employed in the field occasionally than be continually in the office, doing the duties Mr. Whitton now does? I think it would be a great benefit to the Colony if Mr. Whitton were to devote the whole of his time to the three lines now in progress.
2621. As Engineer-in-Chief rather than as Traffic Manager and Commissioner? Yes, because being so engaged in these matters must absorb a great portion of his time and distract his attention from the construction of the lines, which I am sure require his undivided attention.
2622. Were not a great many mistakes made by the Engineer-in-Chief in the construction of the line of railway to Penrith as well as that to Campbelltown? I do not know whether they should exactly be termed mistakes or not, but there has been a great exhibition of errors in judgment or calculation, if any, on the Western line, as regards culverts and viaducts.
2623. By Mr. Gray: Who was Engineer-in-Chief at that time, Captain Martindale or Mr. Whitton? Captain Martindale was Commissioner; Mr. Whitton was Engineer-in-Chief.
2624. By the Chairman: Captain Martindale was considered to do the office work and the regulation of the railways, and Mr. Whitton the construction of the lines? Yes; according to the Act there must be a Commissioner.
2625. Is it not the fact that, for any mistakes that may have occurred on the railways, Mr. Whitton is responsible, not Captain Martindale? Mr. Whitton decidedly, not Captain Martindale.
2626. I have heard that there have been a great number of alterations on the railways—for instance the viaducts on the Great Southern line from Menangle to Picton. If you had the plan could you shew where these alterations were? I think all the alterations could be exhibited on the section. What I now refer to are the culverts; I think most of them were increased in size.
2627. That is on the Penrith line? Yes.
2628. Was not the viaduct at South Creek increased from 300 feet to 1,200?

I cannot remember now the difference of length, but I know in many of them there is a wide difference; in some instances I suppose 500 per cent. added to their length.

2629. Was this done after the railway was let to the contractor or before? Afterwards.

2630. Then, of course, the Government would be the loser, and have to pay for the alteration? Well, I believe in England if a thing of that sort occurred, the moment they deviate from the original contract the contract is null and void.

2631. I do not know whether that portion of the Menangle line is in the room—could you see, and tell us where the alterations are? (The witness selected a plan.) This is the working section of the line from Lochinvar to Singleton; there will not be so many on this as on the others.

2632. Which others—on the Picton line or the Western line? The deviations are marked on the Picton section.

2633. Are they marked there? There are some here I see, a three feet culvert altered to a bridge, with three 20 ft. openings, at 27 m. 44 ch.

2634. Will you state the other alterations on that section? A 3 ft. culvert to an 8 ft. culvert at 27 m. 20 ch.; a 4 ft. culvert altered to a bridge with five 20 ft. openings, at 29 m. 42 ch.; a 2 ft. culvert altered to a 5 ft. culvert, at 29 m. 64 ch.; 3 ft. culvert to a bridge, with twelve 12 ft. openings, at 30 m. 3 ch.; a 4 ft. culvert to a bridge, with seven 20 ft. openings, at 30 m. 28 ch.; a bridge with four 20 ft. openings, increased to twelve 20 ft. openings, at 31 m. 53 ch.; a 4 ft. culvert to a 5 ft. culvert, at 31 m. 19 ch.; a 2 ft. culvert to a 3 ft. culvert, at 31 m. 39 ch.; a 2 ft. culvert to a 3 ft. culvert, at 31 m. 58 ch.; a 3 ft. culvert to an 8 ft. culvert, at 31 m. 79 ch.; 2 ft. culvert to 3 ft. culvert, at 35 m. 14 ch.; 5 ft. culvert to a bridge with six 20 ft. openings, at 35 m. 79 ch.; 5 ft. culvert to 8 ft. culvert, at 37 m. 45 ch.; 5 ft. culvert to 8 ft. culvert, at 39 m. 26 ch.; 2 ft. culvert to 3 ft., at 39 m. 75 ch.; 2 ft. culvert to 5 ft. culvert, 40 m. 63 ch.; 2 ft. culvert to 3 ft., at 41 m. 49 ch.; 5 ft. culvert to a bridge with four 12 ft. openings, at 43 m. 2 ch.; 2 ft. culvert to a bridge with six 12 ft. openings, at 44 m. 45 ch.; 5 ft. culvert to a bridge with seven 12 ft. openings, at 45 m. 7 ch.; here is an extra bridge with eight 12 ft. openings, at 45 m. 49 ch.; a 2 ft. culvert altered to a bridge with six 12 ft. openings, at 47 m. 30 ch.; a 2 ft. culvert to a bridge with six 12 ft. openings, at 47 m. 58 ch. I think there are about the same on the other lines, both Southern and Western.

2635. There are the same mistakes made on the Southern and Western as you have pointed out on the Northern? I think about the same, rather more perhaps.

2636. Were those alterations made after the lines were let to the contractors? I think so. That could be ascertained of course.

2637. After the lines were let of course these alterations would be an additional expense to the Government? Yes, because all extras are charged by the cube foot; all contractors give in a schedule of prices, and any additions or alterations that are made are paid for accordingly; in fact, you cannot carry on railway works without acting upon a schedule of prices; you cannot let a line without it, because the first time you have an alteration to make, this schedule is at once brought into operation.

2638. Unless it were done in that way the contractor would be placed in a position to ask what he pleased? Yes, just the same as Mr. Rhodes did when he was here; he had what prices he liked, not having in the customary way signed the bond.

2639. If a contractor took a contract for a lump sum, and there were any deviation from the original plans and specifications, he could throw up his contract, and demand measure and value for the whole of his work? He could, because even if there are extras, and he agreed to do them, he would demand a good sum in the absence of a schedule. That has been proved at Penrith, in reference to the goods warehouse.

2640. There was a mistake made in that—was there not? There was a mistake made in the drawings, and in consequence he got out of the contract.

2641. He ordered his timber according to the drawings, and when it was got out it was found too short, and they had to erect a wall to meet the difference? Yes.

2642. It was found that if the building had been put up of the lengths given in the drawings, the engines or goods wagons could not go in? Not according to the drawings. The mistake was made in the drawings, although the figures were correct. When a contractor takes out quantities he invariably takes out his rule and measures them off by the scale, and in consequence of the drawing not being of the proper size, he made a mistake of something like two feet.

2643. By Mr. Gray: How long it since the first drawings for this railway were made—the alterations on which you have pointed out? I cannot say; I cannot remember the date; but I believe it took place after the contract was accepted, and I think after it was commenced.

2644. Do you say the first drawings were made after the contract was accepted? No; I thought you asked me when the alterations were made.

2645. Can you tell us whether these alterations in the viaducts were made since the large floods we have had here, or not? Yes, most of them. Perhaps I have not answered that correctly. The first large flood that took place I think was in 1859, and then alterations were made in one of the sections that was connected with the Menangle Bridge; but I believe when that was done the Western line had not been touched.

2646. By the Chairman: The first drawings of the Western line had not been commenced? No.

2647. By Mr. Gray: Are you aware whether these alterations of the culverts, and so on, were made in consequence of those floods shewing a higher rise than had been anticipated? That was known before the Western line was commenced, I think.

2648. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was not a large part of the Western line remade in consequence of these floods in 1859? I cannot remember.

Mr. N.
Trenghouse.

11 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
11 Dec., 1863.
2649. By Mr. Gray: Are you aware — ? There was a portion, I believe, of the Western line carried away, now it is mentioned to me, when the line was commenced, and some of the culverts were altered and made larger, that is to say, where there was a five feet culvert there was another five feet culvert commenced beside it.
2650. Was any of the Northern line injured by these floods? I do not remember.
2651. Then if the Western line had to be altered on account of the floods, the first drawings must have been made before the floods took place? That I cannot speak of.
2652. Could they have commenced the railways at all without the drawings? No.
2653. Then of course the drawings must have been made before the floods? It may not have been that very large flood that affected the Western line. It may not have been at that time. I do not think the Western line was commenced when that high flood was known at Menangle. Dates would shew.
2654. Are you aware whether the alterations which occurred in the culverts and water-courses on the Southern line were made in consequence of these floods? I know the Menangle Bridge was kept up either five feet or seven feet higher than the original drawing on account of the floods, but that affected the stonework only, of course.
2655. By Mr. Dalgleish: That is the section of the Western line you have been speaking of (Produced)? Yes.
2656. By Mr. Gray: Does that section shew the date? There is no date. This is the working plan. (Produced.) There is no date or name on either of these.
2657. By the Chairman: Then these are not the proper plans? Yes, this is the working plan I have had to use in doing my work.
2658. Ought it not to be signed by the Engineer-in-Chief and by the contractors? Yes, it should.
2659. That is the working plan for the extension from Parramatta to Penrith? Yes.
2660. Is that the portion Sir Morton Peto & Company had? Yes, from the Blacktown Road on to the Cross Roads, I think.
2661. Perhaps that is the reason the plan is not signed, because Sir Morton Peto's agent refused to sign the agreement? I do not remember seeing a plan in the office with their name attached to it.
2662. That may be the reason why their signatures were not attached to the plan? It may be.
2663. In other cases the names of the contractors and the Engineer-in-Chief are on the plans? Yes.
2664. By Mr. Gray: Are you aware whether all these alterations, enlarging the culverts and viaducts, were made in consequence of the floods having shewn them that there was likely at times to be a greater rise of water than they had previously estimated? Well, I cannot of course answer to that; that is to say, whether it was the reason they did so; I do not know.
2665. Is it likely to have been the reason? I think it is likely.
2666. By the Chairman: These mistakes were mostly connected with the culverts, were they not;—were there any other mistakes in these lines, with the exception of the culverts? I think that is all. There was a mistake in laying out the line, the extension into Penrith; it is hardly worth noticing; they were some five feet out in making the survey; the points did not agree.
2667. Do you mean five feet out in the level? No, in the position on plan; they commenced the survey from Proctor's-lane to meet the line already surveyed, and they were some five feet out at the junction of last contract.
2668. By Mr. Dalgleish: So that if the two lines had been formed, as they went on, by the survey, they would have varied five feet where they should have met? Yes, they would require a sharp curve to connect each other.
2669. The width of the gauge? Yes, just the width from centre to centre; and this was in a short length too; had it been a long length it might have been a quarter of a mile out.
2670. By the Chairman: I do not suppose it would have been a very difficult matter for a scientific man to have ascertained the watershed of these places where the culverts had to be altered? Decidedly not.
2671. Would you not suppose an Engineer-in-Chief, before he laid down these culverts, would have run over the land to get some idea of the watershed, and calculate the size of the culverts necessary to carry off the water that would fall? It ought to have been done at the time the survey was made, or after the line was determined upon; and any experienced man, with anything like an eye, from walking along the centre line, could almost arrive at the watershed and calculate the size of the culvert from it.
2672. Do you know how the sizes of these culverts were ascertained? The only way I have seen it done is, that after the section was completed they would take the section and go through it, and put down a three-feet culvert here and a bridge there, as the appearance of the section would seem to warrant; while, at the same time, a place that in the section would appear deep would have no collecting ground, and in another apparently small water channel it may have a collecting area of ten, twelve, or twenty miles.
2673. Do you mean to say the whole of these culverts were arrived at in this random manner? I do not say the whole of them were, but I have been by when parties have arrived at some of them in this way.
2674. By Mr. Gray: What is the general way of estimating the size of culverts—taking the area of the collecting ground and estimating the quantity of water by the ordinary rainfall, as ascertained by statistics? Yes.
2675. But in case an extraordinary rainfall takes place, such as has never been known before, may not the very first engineer be out in his estimate, even with all the care he may take?

take? I do not see that there could be the wide difference shewn by these alterations; for instance, putting a 10-ft. culvert where a 2-ft. culvert would do, or altering a 2-ft. culvert to a bridge of several 20-ft. spans.

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.

2676. By the Chairman: He would not make so gross a mistake as putting a 5-ft. culvert which it was afterwards necessary to alter into a bridge of five 20-ft. openings? Certainly not; no one's eye could deceive them so far.

11 Dec., 1863.

2677. Do you not think the proper course, instead of laying the culverts down, as you say they do in the office, at random, would be for the surveyor to ride or go over the watershed and ascertain the probable collection of water? They cannot by possibility have any other way of doing it; no one can form an opinion of a piece of land without seeing it, not to say a word about the collecting area, except by either having it surveyed or by looking at it. Any one accustomed to that kind of duty could judge what space of collecting ground there was.

2678. At any rate there could not be the wide difference shewn in the instances you have given from the section? No.

2679. Were not some of the culverts on the present line partly completed before the alterations were made? I have—there were; that was on the Western line, I think.

2680. Then of course the cost of these alterations fell upon the Government? Yes, any deviation had to be paid for by the Government.

2681. Do you know whether any of these difficulties or mistakes were pointed out to the Engineer-in-Chief, or any of his staff, by persons unconnected with the Government? I have heard it was a resident I think at Parramatta, who, whilst the culverts were being constructed, stated he was satisfied they never would carry the water away, and I think from that information they were increased in size, from 5 ft. to 10 ft., which would give four times the area.

2682. Was there not something very peculiar in the alterations made at Harris's Creek, on the Southern line—was not that enlarged very much indeed—was there not a very small culvert originally intended for that locality? I think there was a 5-ft. culvert, which was altered to a 10-ft. culvert.

2683. These mistakes have occurred both on the Southern and Western lines, and also on the Northern line? I believe on all three lines.

2684. Are there more engineering in these extensions than on the line between Sydney and Parramatta? No, there are no engineering difficulties at all in connection with any of the works yet done, but there has been a little more skill required in connection with these last works, than on those between Sydney and Parramatta.

2685. These great mistakes occurring on the whole of our lines do not reflect much credit on the Engineer-in-Chief, or his staff? No, indeed, they certainly do not.

2686. You think it would be more beneficial to the public if Mr. Whitton would attend more to his professional duties than to Mr. Rae's duties? Yes; of course it all depends upon the Engineer-in-Chief as to the direction they shall take, and this regulates the cost; therefore, if that is neglected it must fall heavily on the Colony.

2687. In all large works in the old country is it not considered the first duty of the Engineer-in-Chief to examine and test the foundations of large works? It is always the custom everywhere, and of course should be carried out, because the whole superstructure depends upon them.

2688. Do you not know that in all large works, the foundation is left open till it is inspected by the Engineer-in-Chief? Yes, and if a contractor happens to have commenced any portion of the foundation before the engineer has inspected it, he is made to take it up again.

2689. I see by the written evidence sent in to the late Minister for Works, that you had occasion to complain of mistakes in some of the drawings, preventing you from going on with your work? That was in the proclaimed plans, where land had been shewn on the side of the line that was not actually required at all; and having of course to get out these notices, to make the owners acquainted with the amount of land to be taken from them, I was unable to get on with my work.

2690. Then I understand that since you have been taken off the drawings you have been confined to the land—giving notices and drawings of the land taken up by the railway? Yes, to the owners. I think it was partly because I was more acquainted with the plans and the localities that the lines were going through, that this was given to me; or it may be that Mr. Whitton saw I was before any of his staff in carrying out my duties, and that this minor work would be a check upon me, and give them an opportunity of getting up to the style in which I did my drawings and my work generally.

2691. What was the nature of your duties in reference to these? In the first place the line has to be gazetted forty-one days, and notices have to be got out and served on the owners and occupiers of land.

2692. Who got them out? I got out the whole of them. After that a copy had to be made for the arbitrator, and two for the deeds—the deeds are in duplicate. I have to do the whole.

2693. You have to do the deeds? That is, the transfer of the plan of the land taken on the two deeds.

2694. How many copies of each of these drawings have you to make? I think it is twenty-six.

2695. You mean to say you have to make twenty-six copies of every piece of land taken for railway purposes? I have to make fourteen copies of every bit of land taken for railway purposes.

2696. Is it necessary to make so many copies? The number could, I think, be reduced by six.

2397.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
11 Dec., 1863.
2697. Will you mention what you make the fourteen for? There is a tracing, first of all, for permission to enter upon the land—that is, where they require it before the forty-one days have expired; a notice for the owner, and a notice for the lessee—there are sometimes two or three lessees; a notice for the occupier; a duplicate for the owner, and one for the lessee; a duplicate for the occupier; copy of plan for the valuer; copy of section for the valuer; plan for arbitration; duplicate tracing for transfer of plan on the deed; and copy for the deed book.
2698. What are those you think could be dispensed with? The duplicate for the owner, the lessee, and the occupier; the duplicate for arbitration, the tracing for transfer, and the copy in the deed book. The working plans themselves are duplicates, and we only act upon them; therefore there is no occasion for making a second plan.
2699. Is your time fully occupied? My time is fully occupied, having the whole of this to do. I am now speaking as though I were in the office.
2700. You now stand suspended? Yes.
2701. Are you otherwise engaged? I am not.
2702. Why not? Because I am an officer of the Government, daily awaiting their pleasure.
2703. Have you applied for your pay? I have not.
2704. Why do you not apply regularly every month, the same as if you had been engaged in the office? From the fact of being suspended I did not think it would stand over so long as it has done, and therefore I did not make application. I have received no salary since July.
2705. By Mr. Gray: Was it in July you were suspended? The 26th August. The reason I have received no pay since July is that they stopped five days pay in the month of August, and I declined to take the balance.
2706. By the Chairman: Why did they stop five days pay in August? They stopped it from the date of suspension.
2707. By Mr. Gray: Is there any rule in the Government service with regard to paying or not paying salary during the time of suspension? I believe not.
2708. Is it not usual, that when an officer who has been suspended is afterwards reinstated, his arrears are paid up, and if he is dismissed he receives nothing from the time of suspension—is there any rule to that effect? I am not aware of it.*
2709. By the Chairman: Do you know of a case that was lately brought before the District Court, in which a gentleman who had been suspended recovered the whole of his salary from the time he was suspended until he received notice of dismissal? Yes.

TUESDAY, 15 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,
MR. GARRETT,

MR. MORRIS,
MR. STEWART.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse called in and further examined:—

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.
2710. By the Chairman: I see by your written evidence sent in to the Minister, that you have had occasion to complain of some mistakes, which prevented you from going on with your work—will you explain what those mistakes were? There was one occasion on which I had to complain in reference to the Western line; it was the proclaimed plan from which I was then working; it did not agree with the working plan, so much so that I could not go on with my work correctly. The land intended to be taken in the first instance, was not taken, therefore the two plans did not agree by, I should think, the width of something like two or three chains or more. This was pointed out to me, and I made a complaint to Mr. Barton about it.
2711. Then you mean, that if the workmen had been started on two different parts of this line, where they should meet, the lines would be several chains apart from each other? Yes, that may have taken place had they commenced the work.
2712. Would there have been any alteration in the level? That would depend upon the nature of the ground.
2713. Suppose the ground were not level? In that case there might be a difference of several feet.
2714. In the level? Yes.
2715. What was the nature of your duties in the office since you have been taken from the drawings? I have been getting out the notices to be served on the owners, lessees, and occupiers of land, and also getting out descriptions, and making tracings of plans, for the valuer, and things of that sort.
2716. Were not these more clerical duties than professional ones? No, it would not rest with any clerk to do work of that sort, because a person must have a knowledge of drawing to get it out, and also to get out the descriptions.

2717.

* ADDED (on revision):—If such were the case, no act could possibly be so unjust, for why should any officer be purposely kept under suspense a year or so, even though he deserved it, at the same time having done no wrong, and then be told his services were dispensed with, after having daily waited on the Government the whole time of his suspension?

2717. Then you drew the plans of the land required by the railway, as well as giving out the notices? The plans were drawn by the surveyor, and I had to make tracings from them. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
2718. How many tracings were you required to make? I stated before that I had to make fourteen copies myself of every bit of land taken for railway purposes, but altogether there are twenty-seven copies made, or rather twenty-seven different times the land taken for railway purposes is copied. I omitted to mention some of the above last time. 15 Dec., 1863.
2719. How many times is it necessary to copy it? With reference to my portion they could be reduced by six, that would leave copies to be made eight times only. I have to make fourteen copies now. I could mention those I did not give in before. The first is the plotting—a four chain plan; then there is reducing the same to ten chains; this is for proclamation; then a duplicate of that; there is a copy of the working plan and a copy of the working section for Mr. Whitton; then the same for Mr. Mason; two for the Inspectors; and two for the contractors; that makes twenty-seven.
2720. Now how many are absolutely necessary, do you think? I think those for Mr. Whitton could be dispensed with, because there are the working plans in the office at any time he would require to look at them.
2721. How many do you think could be dispensed with altogether? That would be eight altogether.
2722. Then still they would require nineteen? Yes.
2723. Can you tell the Committee why this work was allotted to you? I cannot assign any reason for it, more than that I think Mr. Whitton wanted to keep me back as much as possible. I know, on comparing the drawings—I do not say it of course in the way of boasting—there was such a wide difference in the manner I did my work and that in which Mr. Drewett did his, that I think my present duties were allotted to me in order Mr. Drewett should have a chance of perhaps overtaking me, as regards my abilities in drawing; or it may be that I should not be in a position to demand an increase of salary, on account of the minor nature of the work given me to do.
2724. Then the work you have to perform should be done by the very lowest hand in the department? It could be done by a junior, but of course he must be conversant with plans.
2725. Was your time fully occupied? Yes, quite occupied.
2726. Did you require an assistant? I applied for assistance, but I could not get it.
2727. Did you require assistance? Yes, I required assistance, because I had to write off the descriptions in a book, and then copy them again; of course when first made out it is boy's work to copy them from mine, as I have to keep copies of all these things.
2728. Can you say how many plans are made of the railway lines, including the working plans, contractor's plans, notices, deeds and all? Twenty-seven.
2729. How many plans are made of the line? They would be all plans in connection with the line, with the exception of four sections; that would be twenty-three plans and four sections.
2730. Similar work to this is required for all the three lines? Yes, all the lines—all the land that is taken in fact.
2731. Were there not some errors in some plans, which was the cause of some minutes passing between you and Mr. Whitton? Yes, those were the plans I referred to, on the first portion of the Western line, on the other side of the Nepean River. I knew the land was shewn on the plan on the opposite side of the road to that on which it was intended to take it.
2732. Could you point out those errors on the plan? I do not think the plans are here.
2733. Did you report this to Mr. Whitton? Yes, I was obliged to; I could not get the plans altered, therefore I could not go on with my work, and was compelled to mention the circumstance to him. I should think a minute passed between us six or eight times on the subject.
2734. Was the plan altered? No, the plan was not altered—that is, the plan from which I was working; but after the Christmas holidays, when I returned and took up the plan to continue my duties, I found another plan had been put there, and the one I had previously been using taken away. It was placed just in the same position as the one I had left when I went away; it was rolled up from both ends to come to the middle of the plan, just as I had left the other on the table.
2735. What could have been the object? I suspect it could only have been to throw any blame, should any blame be attached to any one, on myself.
2736. Did you ever hear who changed the plans? No; I could never find that out.
2737. By Mr. Stewart: Was this an incomplete plan? They were supposed to be the plans laid before the Assembly, but they did not agree; there were three plans, and neither agreed one with the other, though they should all agree.
2738. By the Chairman: And they changed the plan you had been working on? Yes, they put another in its place.
2739. Did this occur in the long drawing office? No; that was up-stairs, in the room I was moved into afterwards, which had been Mr. Cowlshaw's room.
2740. How came you to be moved into this room? I think it was that I should perhaps be more accessible, being in the main building, and on account of its being a spare room; but it may be perhaps that I should not see what was going on in the long-room.
2741. Was not this Mr. Cowlshaw's room? Yes; Mr. Cowlshaw had only left it a day or two before.
2742. How came Mr. Cowlshaw to move from it? Mr. Cowlshaw could not stand the cold; it was a very cold room, and he was at home occasionally from ill health, caused it was said by his having taken cold there.
2743. Was there any fire-place in the room? No, no fire-place; it was only a small place 9 feet by 7 feet, or 9 feet by 8 feet. 2744.

- Mr. N. 2744. It was not considered too cold for you? No, of course not.
 Trengrouse. 2745. It was quite good enough for you? Yes.*
 15 Dec., 1863. 2746. Who moved you there? Mr. Whitton; he sent down a note or memorandum to say that I was to move up there at once, or at my earliest convenience, or something of that sort.
 2747. Was the room Mr. Cowlshaw was moved into a better one than that? Yes; there was a vast difference.
 2748. Brussels carpet and so on, I suppose? Yes.
 2749. Things that were not in the room he moved from? No; there was only a piece of floor cloth there.
 2750. How is it this gentleman has a room to himself? He has not a room to himself, he is in the room with Mr. Moody.
 2751. Are the clerks' duties in the Works Department considered of more importance than those of the professional men? Well, I should imagine it is so considered, for the salary of many of them is very much higher, and from the fact of there being such great care taken, and their comfort so much studied. I do not think there is a room where a clerk is that is not carpeted.
 2752. The whole of the room carpeted and a hearthrug at the fire-place, I suppose? Yes, and gig mats for their feet in some of them.
 2753. Afraid they might catch cold? I suppose so.
 2754. Have the professional men got these things? No, I suppose they are considered to be more hardy from the nature of their work.
 2755. Are the duties of the clerks connected with the Works Department more arduous than those of the professional men? Not at all; I should say they are not equal to the duties in a mercantile house.
 2756. But the salaries are higher than those of the professional men? Yes, in many cases.
 2757. I suppose most boys leaving a good school would be capable of performing most of the clerical duties in that department? Yes, when they had learnt the routine of book keeping, which they would probably do before leaving school; the duties are very similar to mercantile duties—they all have reference to sums of money.
 2758. I do not suppose they are considered to kill themselves with work? No, I should consider rather the opposite, considering the number there are.
 2759. By Mr. Garrett: Do you think there are too many? I do indeed.
 2760. By the Chairman: From your experience in the office, do you not think a great number of the clerks might be dispensed with without injuring the efficiency of the office in any way? I do think so.
 2761. Have there not been some places made for particular persons in that department? I have heard that spoken of in the office.
 2762. Could you name the individuals? Well, I could do so, but I had very much rather not.
 2763. The Committee would very much rather you would? It would affect them you see.
 2764. That matters not, Mr. Trengrouse; the Committee wish to have the information; we want the truth; we want to arrive at the state of the department as far as we can—the efficiency of the department; if you decline to give the information, say so? There is the Record Department, the duties there used to be performed by one clerk.
 2765. How many are there now? There are three now.
 2766. Are the duties more extensive than they used to be? They would not change so suddenly as that it would be necessary to put two additional clerks there in a short space of time.
 2767. Do you know who introduced them, or whose friends they are? I have heard that one was placed there by Mr. Rae, and the other by Mr. Arnold.
 2768. What are their names? I cannot tell you that.
 2769. By Mr. Garrett: What is the name of the gentleman who was there originally? Mr. Ford.
 2770. By the Chairman: Do you know the names of those who are there now? One is Mr. Elyard; I do not know the name of the other; he is a lad about seventeen or eighteen.
 2771. How long is it since this increase took place in the number? I should think it must be two years since, somewhere about that time.
 2772. But Mr. Ford was found competent to perform the duties before this increase to the department? Yes, quite so.
 2773. Is it not the custom when a salary is increased to allow the lucky fellow who receives the increase also an assistant? Well, I have known that take place; that has taken place with reference to Mr. Quodling—he had an increase of £50 a year, at the same time there was an assistant allowed at, I think, £100; now he is down again—at least last year he had another increase; he has had an increase three years in succession.
 2774. Who has? This Mr. Quodling; but there is another assistant down, or two, I forget which.
 2775. Four individuals to do the work Mr. Quodling used to do before he got an increase of salary? Yes, I think there are two more in the office since I have left; I know there is an additional one.
 2776. Then they go on the principle, the more pay the less work? I do not see what they can have to do. Mr. Quodling does little else but run about the offices. I do not know whether it is necessary he should do so; but he is known there as “Mr. Whitton's policeman.”†

2777.

* ADDED (on revision):—My having been so long in the service.

† ADDED (on revision):—From this fact it may be requisite.

2777. I presume they become astonished at their own importance after they get an increase or two? That is the great evil of it.

2778. And of course directly they get a good salary they must have a fag to do their work? I believe they do less work from the moment their salary is increased.

2779. What are Mr. Cowlshaw's duties? He is termed valuer; he values the whole of the land required for railway purposes.

2780. What salary is he getting? £600.

2781. Do you know how long he has been in the department? Five years or five years and a-half.

2782. Does this £600 include travelling expenses? No, it is independent of that.

2783. Could not a man of ordinary capacity perform those duties, do you think? I should say he could.

2784. Do you know what travelling expenses are allowed Mr. Cowlshaw? He used to get £150, but two years since it was reduced in the Assembly to £75; now he is down for £100, but I think it does not matter, his expenses are paid, what he charges.

2785. Is he mostly in or out of the office? I think about eight months out, and four months in.

2786. Do you think this gentleman has his time fully occupied valuing the lands taken up by the railways? Yes, I should say his time is fully occupied when out, but I cannot see how it can be when in the office.

2787. Then if that is the case his duties would not occupy above eight months in the year? Of course when in the office he has to draw up his reports upon his valuation of properties.

2788. I suppose that would occupy the best part of four months? The greater portion of the time.

2789. Then we may say he is pretty well occupied? Yes, nearly the whole time.

2790. There is another gentleman of the name of Moody in the same office with Mr. Cowlshaw—what is Mr. Moody supposed to do throughout the day? He assists Mr. Rae—at least I think he is there specially to wait on Mr. Rae.

2791. By Mr. Morris: He is the chief clerk? Yes, I think he is chief clerk of railways.

2792. By the Chairman: What are his duties? After the letters are opened by Mr. Rae they are given to him to distribute the different communications to the parties whose business it is to carry them out.

2793. I believe he is considered to be more of a Commissioner than Mr. Rae—that he has considerable influence over Mr. Rae? Well, I have often seen persons wanting to see Mr. Rae, when he has had the greater portion of the conversation with the party who came to see Mr. Rae. He appears to have considerable command over him; in fact, I have heard him say himself that he has got Mr. Rae completely under his thumb—not exactly in those words, but he has said, "I have got Rae that way," putting his thumb on the table so.

2794. How long has he been in the department? I think five years or five years and a-half.

2795. Do you think he is a person in whom implicit confidence can be placed, from what you know of him? Well, I do not think much of him myself; I should like to have but very little to do with him; he is not particular as to what he says, at all events, in deviating from the truth; that I do know.

2796. Do you know what salary he is receiving now? £100 a year.

2797. Do you know what he received when he first joined the Works' Department? I do not remember the salary he entered upon.

2798. Do you know what occupation he followed before he joined the Works' Department? I think he was in Mr. Justice Wise's office before he came to our department.

2799. He came here from Melbourne—did he not? I think to Sydney he did, or whether it was to any other part of the Colony I do not remember. I know he has been at Melbourne.

2800. Do you know what occupation he followed there? I do not know that he followed any occupation but that of a policeman.

2801. He was a detective in Melbourne—was he not? Yes, I believe he was.

2802. And then when he came here he went as clerk to Mr. Wise, and through his influence got into the Works' Department? I do not know about that. He was porter or messenger to Mr. Wise, or something of that sort—he used to carry his bag.

2803. Did he not take very active measures in the dismissal of Mr. Nealds? Yes, I believe he was the person principally referred to when they wanted to get information up.

2804. When they want to get up a case against an individual, Mr. Moody is mostly employed? Yes.

2805. Is not this the gentleman that Ridley complains of meeting before he went in to give evidence, telling him to be very careful what he should say, and that it would be better for him at some future time? Yes, the same party.

2806. Then before a case of dismissal is to be got up, he is found to be a very useful person? Yes, he is considered to be au fait at all those matters.

2807. This same gentleman, I believe, took a trip to the Fitz Roy Mines on one occasion? Yes, he was sent up there.

2808. By whom was he sent? Well, I cannot say by whom he was sent; I know he saw parties out of doors in connection with it; I do not know who sent him, or whether he was sent by the Government or not.

2809. Did you hear whether he surveyed these mines, and made a report upon them? Yes, he did so; he reported on the state they were in, and what he thought would be required in money to complete them, before they could make any iron there.

2810. Do you think now he was sent by the Government—that he was appointed by the Government

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.
- Government to go and make a survey of these mines, or was it by a private company? I should imagine he was sent by the Government—I mean those, of course, in the office—and I know parties out of doors, at least I have heard so, were also interested in the matter.
2811. What interest could the Government have in these mines that they should send one of their high salaried officers to inspect them—I am speaking now of the Government, not of individuals in the office? I do not know I am sure, unless it was to be in a position to make their own iron required for carrying on the railways.
2812. This is private property—I am not speaking now of any person connected with the department, but of the Government? That is the only reason I can assign. There may be parties in the Government who wished to secure these mines to themselves in connection with others out of doors.
2813. There may have been parties connected with the Works Department—? Just so—officers of the department.
2814. They might have sent Mr. Moody up to make a report that they might receive benefit from buying up the shares? I think buying the whole of the works. I know he made a very high calculation of what would be required besides the plant that was there and what had been already done. My idea was that it was done with the object to make the shareholders believe they never could raise sufficient money to complete the works, and that being so they would let other parties get it into their own hands.
2815. That was the object of his report, to make the affairs of the company appear as bad as possible to dishearten the shareholders? Yes, it was, because I saw a party afterwards who told me his valuation was just about double the amount required to complete the works.
2816. How long was he away from the office on this business? Two or three weeks.
2817. Did he receive his usual Government salary during his absence? I am not aware.
2818. Do you know whether he was paid by the company? That I cannot tell; he may have had some present made him perhaps—at least I know he had.
2819. You know he had a present made him? Yes.
2820. From whom—was it from the company or other individuals? It was from parties out of doors.
2821. Were these persons shareholders in the company? I think it was some who wished to get the mines into their own possession—two or three individuals.
2822. And they made Mr. Moody a present for this report? Yes.
2823. Do you know the names of these gentlemen? I think Mr. Dean gave £50.
2824. Did Mr. Mort give anything? I heard Mr. Mort and another gentleman gave £100; I think it was £150 he had from them.
2825. These gentlemen were not connected with the company? I should imagine they would be.
2826. Were they connected with the Fitzroy Mining Company at the time? No, not then, but I think they were the parties who wished to secure the mine for themselves.
2827. Who performed Mr. Moody's duties in the office during his absence on this occasion? Mr. Forde; the duty would devolve upon him in the other's absence.
2828. Was it not expected that if these three gentlemen got possession of the mines Mr. Moody was to get an appointment? I have been told he paid more attention to that particular matter than he did to the duties for which he was sent, to secure a situation for himself.
2829. Are not Mr. Moody's duties solely to wait upon the Commissioner? He does little beyond that; in fact I think those are all his duties.
2830. You spoke of his misrepresentations—do you know whether he has made any misrepresentations with reference to his brother officers? Do you mean as regards the way in which they carry on their duties?
2831. Yes? He has every opportunity of doing so, being so intimately connected with Mr. Rae.
2832. Do you know whether he has done so? He has with reference to myself.
2833. He has misrepresented you? Yes.
2834. To whom? To Mr. Rae. I sometimes get minutes down in connection with land plans—perhaps I have the papers down four or five different times,—and on two occasions I found he had made a minute with reference to myself, which was anything but proper—in fact it was decidedly false.
2835. What was it? A plan had been sent down for—I think it was for the arbitrator—and in the minute returning it I said it was the third plan made for the same occasion. He wrote on the minute again to say my remark was uncalled for. I wrote back again; he then wrote a long article on it, upon which the remark was made by Mr. Arnold, "Seen—may be put away." Now, an act of this kind may be very damaging; I should not have seen it,* but that I happened to get the same documents again, and I happened to see his minute with them.
2836. Were any of the officers of the department afraid of him? There are some of those immediately under him that seem to dread him more than one would imagine without they saw it.
2837. Has he not been up before Mr. Arnold for some immoral conduct? I have heard he has.
2838. Have you heard the nature of the charge? To speak plain in the matter, it was a connection he was supposed to have with women—that is, other than his wife.
2839. What was the result of the investigation before Mr. Arnold? I have heard that Mr. Arnold

* Revised :—Known this piece of treachery.

- Arnold treated the matter very lightly, and said it was no business of his, or something of that sort; that these things ought not to be brought before him.
2840. Do you know what Mr. Moody's occupation and pay were with Mr. Justice Wise? I never heard. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1868.
2841. Have you heard whether there exists good feeling between Mr. Whitton and Mr. Moody? I believe not; I have heard that at one time in particular they were very much opposed to each other, although they are always transacting business together.
2842. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know that of your own knowledge? No.
2843. It is mere matter of hearsay? It is only what I have heard.
2844. By the Chairman: Have you ever made any application for an increase of salary? I have repeatedly—that is, almost annually.
2845. To whom did you apply? I have spoken to Captain Mann when he was Commissioner, and I spoke to Captain Martindale soon after his arrival in the Colony, but I found that by having done so I gave great offence to Mr. Whitton.
2846. By your having applied to Captain Martindale instead of to Mr. Whitton? Yes, I had previously applied to Mr. Whitton, and could not get it, and then I applied to Captain Martindale; I was told by Mr. Micklethwait that Mr. Whitton should say he never would forgive me for having done so—that I had so offended him by having applied to Captain Martindale.
2847. Do you think this prevented you receiving the same increase that other officers in the department have received? Well, I think so. This same gentleman, Mr. Micklethwait, has told me Mr. Whitton was never known to forgive any one that he took a dislike to, or who gave him offence, even in England—he never knew him to do so.
2848. What is your salary? £350.
2849. And Mr. Drewett's? £500.
2850. Has Mr. Drewett received any increase since he came to the Colony? He has not received any increase; still he has been recommended twice by Mr. Whitton, and struck out again.
2851. You have a free pass to travel by railway? I had; I have never paid anything for travelling on the lines since they have been opened. It was considered to be part of my salary.
2852. Do you pay now? When I travel I do, which is very seldom.
2853. At whose instance was the free pass stopped? I think it was at Owen's, the station master; I can only say I have heard so—that it was Owen and Mr. Moody who put their heads together to try and stop it. There are minutes in the office proving that it was part of my salary. It was brought forward in Captain Martindale's time, but could not be taken away from me.
2854. You were elected one of the first councillors in the Marrickville municipality? Yes.
2855. Are you one of those councillors now? No, not at present.
2856. Why? I found I could not devote the time to it that it required.
2857. Was there any objection made in the department? Yes, there was an objection raised by Mr. Whitton. The council meet fortnightly, in the evening, at 7 o'clock, so that the duties then could not interfere with my official employment; but four times a year the quarterly meetings are held at noon to make up the accounts. I attended on one of these occasions, having spoken to Mr. Mason, and I left at 11 o'clock. This always takes place on a Saturday, when the office closes at 1 o'clock, so that really I was only asking for two hours. On another occasion I spoke to Mr. Whitton, but he objected to my going, unless it was on important business; I said it was important, and told him what it was. "Well, he said, "I object to your going, for you have done enough already for that municipality without my "permission."
2858. What did he refer to? To save the municipality all the expense I could I compiled a map or plan of it, shewing all the streets and sub-divisions, and while engaged on this I remained in the office on one occasion from 4 to 6 o'clock, and used a pentograph belonging to the office to increase a plan. That came to his knowledge.
2859. You did not do it in the office hours? No.
2860. Did you use Government paper or any Government material? No; I buy all my own paper, and get receipts for it.
2861. Who is chairman of that municipality now? Mr. Halligan.
2862. Is he not an officer in the Works Department? He is.
2863. What office does he fill? That of clerk to the Minister.
2864. Did you ever hear of any objections to his attending those duties that they prevented you from fulfilling? Not the least; he can go, I believe, when he likes.
2865. Then it was the individual that filled the office, they objected to, not the duties he was performing? Yes, I suppose so; that appears to be my misfortune.
2866. You were chairman of the municipality for some considerable period? I was requested by some to act as chairman, but declined taking the office, because I knew I could not get away to attend to the duties.
2867. What did you save the municipality by compiling the map? I should think it would have cost them £15 or £20.
2868. You never have heard of any complaint of Mr. Halligan filling the office that they would not allow you to do? No.
2869. Mr. Halligan is a very high paid public officer—is he not? I think his salary is not high—£450.
2870. How many increases has he received? I do not know.
2871. What office does he fill in the department? Chief Clerk to the Minister.
2872. Does he attend pretty regularly to his duties? I believe he does not; he is in and out occasionally—I do not know whether his duties require it or not. 2873.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.
2873. Do you know whether he attends regularly in the morning? I do not think he is often there before 10 o'clock.
2874. Does he get leave of absence pretty often? I do not know that he requires to ask permission.
2875. Why not? Being the head of that department, I think he can go in and out when he likes.
2876. Can he absent himself for a week at a time? No, I do not mean for that length of time—only for the day perhaps.
2877. Have you ever known him to be absent in case of sickness? I have.
2878. You have a Mr. Goodchap in the office? Yes.
2879. How long has he been connected with the department? I think he has been connected with the Government many years; he was in the Lands Department before he was transferred to this.
2880. What salary is he in the receipt of? I will not be certain whether it is £300 or £350.
2881. Do you know whether Mr. Halligan was in any other public office before he joined the Works Department? Yes, I think he was also in the Lands.
2882. Do you know why he left that office? No, I am not aware.
2883. Is there a time-book in the Works Department? Not at the present time; there used to be one.
2884. Why was it discontinued? I think the reason of its being discontinued was, that it was not signed by all parties. I do not think above half signed, and then it fell off by degrees.
2885. Did they refuse to sign? I think not. I do not think any one in particular looked after the time-book to see that it was kept up.
2886. There is a time-book kept in some other of the public departments? Yes, in the Auditor General's, and also in the Registrar General's Office, I think.
2887. And in the Central Police Office? I am not aware.
2888. Is it not a very excellent test as to the regularity of officers attending their work in the department? It is so, because it tends to make them more punctual. The proper way to keep the book would be, that ten minutes or a quarter of an hour after 9 there should be a line drawn close under the signature of the last officer, so that no one could sign coming after the prescribed time; it would be a very good plan and a good check.
2889. And then every three months the time-book could be made up, and would be a good test as to the regularity of the attendance of the gentlemen of the department? It ought to be made up, and a balance struck, at least four times a year, to shew who exhibited any zeal for the service.
2890. Was it not the high paid officers of the department who refused to sign this? I think Mr. Barton never signed; it was the high paid ones; it would not do for the others to object.
2891. It was because the high paid officers objected that it was discontinued? I think it was.
2892. I suppose if the juniors had refused to sign they would have been dismissed the service? Yes; I think they would not have remained very long after.
2893. Then, if that is the case, it appears the higher they are paid the more irregular they are in attending their duties? I think above all they should attend regularly to set the example, because one hour of a high paid officer is equal in cost to a day almost of the juniors.
2894. Have you heard them say that Mr. Hall was very clever at his profession? I have heard that stated.
2895. You remember Mr. Hall living at Newtown when he was doing this building? I do.
2896. Do you remember any person discovering some very great errors in Mr. Hall's construction of the roof—a publican named Seale? Yes; a friend of the proprietor of the house came to look at the progress of the building, and found that the roof was completed, or said to be completed, ready to get the slates on, and he told the proprietor that if he attempted to cover it in in that state it would all come down. There were no ties to the principals, consequently the whole pressure was outwards on the walls.
2897. That did not speak much to Mr. Hall's ability as an architect? No, indeed.
2898. Do you think a boy, who had been apprenticed to an architect for twelve months, would have committed such an error? I should think not. There was also a mistake in the cellars, that is perhaps hardly worth talking about. It was a large square bank puddled all round, and of course as soon as it became wet it expanded and pressed the sides in.
2899. Referring again to the Menangle Bridge, I have been told there was a large amount of earth removed from a cutting, before commencing the bridge, which had to be taken back again and replaced—do you know whether that is true? Yes, there was a great deal taken from the northern approach to the bridge—taken too low—and had to be replaced.
2900. I presume that was another mistake of the engineer's? I do not see whose mistake it could be, without it was the chief or district engineer.
2901. Do you know what was the cost of taking away this earth, and replacing it again? I do not think it was so very much; something like 3 or 4,000 cubic yards, which would cost some £400 or £500 perhaps.
2902. I suppose that is considered a trifling amount by engineers and draughtsman—£400 or £500; they think very little of making mistakes which only cost £400 or £500? Well, I imagine there are a great many mistakes that cost that amount.
2903. Do you mean to say there are so many great mistakes that £400 or £500 seems a mere trifle in your estimation? Well, it does in my estimation.
2904. Do you know whether the contractor was paid extra for this work, or was it measured in his general work? I think it very likely he would; if it was a mistake of any of those in connection with the Government he would be paid extra for it.
- 2905.

2905. If it was measured up in his general work, that would prevent the mistake from being discovered? Only the party who measured up, the Engineer-in-Chief and the clerk perhaps, would know it. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
2906. How did you come to hear of it? I forget now; I was told of it, and ascertained afterwards it did occur. 15 Dec., 1863.
2907. By Mr. Dalgleish: Who are the parties that could give us correct information on that subject? Mr. Mason could; I think he measured up on that line.
2908. Is there any one out of the office that ought to be able to give us correct information on the subject—the contractor? I do not know, I should think he would not say anything about it.
2909. By the Chairman: Who would not say anything about it? I suppose the contractor would not.
2910. It would be difficult then to get the information? Yes, I think so; of a mistake of that kind.
2911. How did you hear it? I forget now who it was that told me.
2912. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you satisfied it is true? I feel quite satisfied.
2913. Can you suggest any one in the office who ought to be able to afford us that information? Mr. Mason ought—I think he measured up that work.
2914. By Mr. Morris: His field-book would shew? It would be his measuring-book; it would not shew it without it was expressly mentioned.
2915. By the Chairman: Did you hear that this was reported to Mr. Whitton in any way? No, I never heard it was reported to him.
2916. Did you report it to him? No.
2917. Do you not think that every person who hears of this system of mistakes—perhaps not fraud—should report to the Engineer-in-Chief? There was no occasion for my doing that; he must have known it; nothing occurs on any of the lines that he does not know.
2918. Because he has spies you say? He is so protected on each of the lines by men who came out from England that he knows everything that occurs. He has Bewick on the Northern line and Morgan on the Southern and Western.
2919. Mr. Whitton, on the part of the Government, guaranteed to find and build proper foundations for the piers of the Menangle Bridge? Yes, he did.
2920. Do you know what this cost the Government in excess of Mr. Whitton's estimate? I never heard; a very large sum of money I believe.
2921. Could not these foundations have been as easily contracted for as those of the Penrith Bridge? Yes, I should think the borings on that occasion could have been ascertained more easily than those for the Penrith Bridge.
2922. There were also some mistakes in the foundation of the Penrith Bridge—were there not? Yes, as regards the depth; they have had to go some fourteen feet deeper than was anticipated or ascertained—seventeen feet instead of three feet.
2923. Were not borings taken for the piers of the Penrith Bridge? I believe for all of them; there must have been, because the depth is shewn on the cross section.
2924. Do you know by whom those borings were made? I think it was by Mr. Morgan—under his direction I believe.
2925. Who had charge of the men? He had charge of the men.
2926. Was it not considered that, at a distance of three feet below the surface of the earth, a good foundation could be found? Yes, it is so shewn, that they would come on good bed rock.
2927. Shewn in the cross sections? Yes.
2928. But they found they were compelled to go down seventeen feet? Yes, fourteen feet lower than they anticipated.
2929. The cofferdam was constructed for a depth of three feet? Yes. Some fear was entertained about the cofferdam collapsing, and they had to put large beams across.
2930. In that case there would be a sacrifice of life? Yes.
2931. It would be more likely to collapse while the men are at work at it—shaking it—than during the night, when everything is quiet? Yes, of course.
2932. In the Old Country is it not considered the special duty of Engineers-in-Chief to look to the foundations of their most important structures? Yes, I believe after the foundation is got out to the depth required, it is left open for the Engineer-in-Chief, to go down and inspect it, to see whether it is a proper foundation.
2933. Do you know whether the Engineer-in-Chief attended while Mr. Morgan was boring to ascertain these foundations? I am not aware.
2934. Who has suffered from this engineering bungle? I cannot see that the contractor will suffer; he must be paid surely.
2935. He contracts to perform certain works shewn on the plan, and it is there shewn that there is a solid and good foundation where the foundation is expected—of course he will have to be paid for all he does below that? Yes.
2936. Will it not, in fact, break the contract altogether? No, not if it is done by any schedule of prices, whether it is much or little.
2937. Has the contractor taken it at a schedule of prices? I think it likely.
2938. Would it be likely a contractor would have tendered at the same price for work seventeen feet under the water as for work three feet under? No; the prices have to be increased for every foot they go down.
2939. Speaking of engineering bingles on the lines, they can be very easily rectified by adding a few thousand pounds to the contractor's account, and the public be none the wiser? Of course it could be managed. No one has a right to doubt but what the measurements are

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.
- are all accurate and measured only once. No one could possibly know whether this difference of depth was added to the value of the building or the quantity.
2940. Is there not a great width of land shewn on the plans where the surveys are made along the line? In some places four miles are shewn.
2941. On each side of the line? Two miles on each side of the line. That is on the smaller ten chain plans.
2942. Have you seen the plans for the extension from Penrith to Bathurst? Yes.
2943. What is shewn on those plans? A width of four miles is shewn on some of those plans.
2944. That they have surveyed? I do not know that it is surveyed.
2945. It is shewn on the plan? Yes.
2946. What is the use of shewing it unless it is surveyed? I suppose it is to shew the large amount of work they do, or to fill up the paper.
2947. By Mr. Morris: As a matter of fact they could not have surveyed the Bathurst line two miles on each side—it is impossible? Yes, in some places.
2948. By the Chairman: Does not the line keep side by side with the main road? It is on the road a great portion of the way.
2949. Who made this survey? I think it was the sappers.
2950. If the land is not surveyed, how do they arrive at its features? From the maps they get from the Lands Office, and sometimes from memory.
2951. Was the present mode of getting up Lapstone Hill Mr. Barton's idea? He takes the credit for it; but it was first suggested by seeing the Illustrated Times, or the Illustrated News, where it was given in a plate.
2952. By Mr. Dalgleish: It is the celebrated American zigzag? Yes; I never heard a word of it until that book came to the office.
2953. By the Chairman: You say the sappers have made most of the surveys for all the lines? I believe so.
2954. Do you know what salaries they are getting? I do not know; they are very different from what they used to get when connected with the Government as sappers.
2955. Do you know anything of the survey of the Grose? Nothing more than having seen the plan.
2956. Was this made by the sappers? Yes.
2957. Can you say under whose great engineering skill this survey was directed? Mr. Barton had charge of the sappers at that time. I suppose it was under Mr. Whitton's instructions.
2958. Do you know the total length of the Grose Valley? I am not certain about it, but I think I heard it was about forty miles.
2959. What length did the sappers survey? I cannot answer that question. I have forgotten what it was, although I have seen the plan; the plan would exhibit it.
2960. Do you know whether the report is true that they got so bewildered that they could not find their way out? I have heard that they were a long time before they could find their way out.
2961. Did you ever hear how much powder was consumed in blasting before the survey could be made at all? Nothing more than I was told that several tons of powder had been used in blasting the rocks to cause the survey to be made.
2962. Have you heard the cost of the survey? I have heard it cost £30,000.
2963. Were any cross-sections taken? Yes, there must have been by the plan shewn.
2964. Do you know at what intervals? I do not know whether it was at less than at every chain or more.
2965. Do you know whether Mr. Barton was there much of his time? I do not know; I do not think he was.
2966. Have these plans been made use of in any way? No.
2967. Then this survey which cost £30,000 is perfectly useless? Quite so, as far as railway matters are concerned.
2968. Has Mr. Barton been in the office the greater portion of this year? I think nearly the whole of the first four or five months this year he has been in the office.
2969. Who has charge of the sappers during the time he is in Sydney? I believe they are left to themselves, any more than that one is appointed to be at the head of the others.
2970. Do you know what salary Mr. Barton was engaged at in England? £400.
2971. He is getting now—what? £600.
2972. Besides £280 for travelling expenses? Yes, that is paid this year.
2973. Do ever you see the printed Estimates? I do sometimes.
2974. Have you seen those for 1864? I have seen those got up by the late Ministry.
2975. Can you understand why the officers and salaries in your branch are so changed about in the Estimates every year? Well, I cannot account for it more than that it should be to confuse the thing, so that they could not be ascertained or understood.
2976. Has not Mr. Barton been receiving £600 and £280, together £880, for the whole year, whether engaged in the field or in the city? For the whole of this year.
2977. And still he has been at home above half his time? I think he has been in the office quite half or more than half this year.
2978. I see in the Estimates for this year two assistant engineers, at £700 each—are not these intended for Mr. Barton and Mr. Mason? Yes.
2979. Then it is intended to increase Mr. Barton's salary £100, making, with travelling expenses, nearly £1,000 a year? It would.
2980. What is Mr. Barton supposed to do when in Sydney, or at the office? When at work he is generally getting out quantities of the earthwork.

2981. Are these supposed to be important or difficult calculations? Not at all.
2982. Have you ever seen Mr. Barton drunk in the office? No, I cannot say I have seen him drunk. Mr. N.
Trengrouse.
2983. Have you ever seen him drinking spirits or beer during office hours? Yes, I have seen him drinking both. 15 Dec., 1863.
2984. Have you ever seen him in that state from drink that he could not perform his duties? I do not remember having seen him in that state. I have seen him very much bloated in his face, flushed a great deal; but he often goes away immediately after luncheon, and it may be from that fact I have not seen him so.
2985. How much is the most you have ever seen him drink in the day, in the office.—Any questions I may ask you, do not answer them unless it is from your own knowledge, not from hearsay at all; if you do not know of your own knowledge, say so.—How much is the most you have seen him drink during the day? I have seen him drink three or four times in the course of the day.
2986. You say you have seen him leave the office immediately after lunch—does he go in and out as he likes? Yes, I think no one has any control over him in that respect.
2987. Nothing can be said to him for leaving the office at any time during the day? I should say not. He has often said to me, "I am going out somewhere for Mr. Whitton;" he has repeatedly said that to me when he has been about leaving the office.
2988. Would that be on professional duties? I imagine not; it was some private matter—that was my opinion at the time.
2989. What has been the salary for a second engineer for trial surveys—I see it has been omitted from the Estimates altogether for 1864? The salary is £500; that is Mr. Micklethwait; and £280 for expenses.
2990. £780 altogether? Yes.
2991. Is that the gentleman who, with Mr. Hall, caused most of the insubordination in the office? Yes, those are the two.
2992. What is the meaning of twelve "District Engineers," set down in the Estimates at £573 each? I cannot understand that; it is altogether a fresh term; I think it is meant for the inspectors on the lines.
2993. Is Mr. Micklethwait to be one of these? I expect so.
2994. Then these twelve district engineers is a new creation? Yes, as regards the term; the duties of course are the same.
2995. Are the duties the same as those of line inspectors? Yes, it must be meant for the same parties.
2996. They do not appear in any other Estimates but those for 1864? No, I think this is the first time they have been designated in that way.
2997. I presume the appellation of district engineer conveys a much higher title, and that is an excuse for an increase in their pay? It is the name only—the duties are the same. When Mr. Whitton first came out, I should remark, he distinctly objected to anything of the sort as district engineer, because Mr. Brady, I believe, was on the line at one time, and also Mr. Francis Bell up in the north. I have heard him myself say he objected to any district engineers at all.
2998. By Mr. Stewart: He held for line inspectors? Yes.
2999. By the Chairman: What salary have the inspectors of ways and works received up to this time? I think they have different salaries; there are some at £350, £400, and £450—I think so—the Estimates will shew.
3000. They have merely changed the name on purpose to increase the salary? I imagine it must be that.
3001. They will have to perform the same duties as district engineers as they have as inspectors of ways and works? Yes. I see they are set down at £500, making a sum of £6,000.*
3002. It will be an increase of from £170 to £200 per annum for each person? They are all set down for an increase; whether they get it or not of course I cannot say.
3003. Can you tell me why these four inspectors or district surveyors are required for each of the three lines? I cannot.
3004. I see by the Estimates for the last three years, that a clerk in Mr. Whitton's office has had an increase of £50 each year;—do you know whether Mr. Whitton recommended him for a further increase this year? I do not know of my own knowledge—you say I must not mention what I have heard.
3005. By Mr. Dalgleish: You may say anything in explanation? He was set down, I believe, by Mr. Whitton, and struck out by the Minister.
3006. By the Chairman: What is the name of this favoured officer? William Quodling.
3007. What did he enter the service at? I think £250 or £200—I will not be certain.
3008. Then I see on the Estimates he has an assistant at £100 a year, and an increase of £50 is down again this year? I believe it is the same.
3009. And another £25? I think he had £50 last year, and I believe he is down for another £25 this year.
3010. And I see there is another to be appointed at £150? Yes, that is the one I spoke of just now; I believe there are two others in the office, making four altogether.
3011. Who is the assistant draughtsman set down at £100 a year for the present year? Mr. Robertson.
3012. Mr. Robertson entered the office at £52 a year? He did.
3013. And these young clerks enter at £100 and £150? Yes; there is one down this year as assistant to Mr. Quodling at £150.
- 3014.

* NOTE (on revision):—This is exclusive of expenses and forage allowance.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
15 Dec., 1863.
3014. What do you think of Mr. Robertson as a professional draughtsman? I think him a very clever young man.
3015. Do you think him a superior draughtsman to Mr. Drewett? Yes, I think his work is superior.
3016. Do you think he is superior to Mr. Drewett as a mathematician? Yes.
3017. Does he attend more regularly to his duties, and perform more work than Mr. Drewett? Yes, both; because he is very punctual to his time, and I know he is very attentive.
3018. Do you know anything he is inferior to Mr. Drewett in? I do not.
3019. Then you consider him superior, in every respect, as a professional man, to Mr. Drewett? I do think so.
3020. And this young man was kept in the office for two years at £52 a year, whereas they take junior clerks and give them £150 a year directly they enter the office, to do such work as any boy from a respectable school could perform? Yes. A clerk has nothing but copying to do at first, but Mr. Robertson can compile his work.
3021. Mr. Robertson must have been engaged for many years as a draughtsman before he entered the department? He was engaged with Mr. Blackett in architectural drawings; he brought some specimens of his work, which Mr. Barton shewed round the office, saying what a clever young lad he was—drawings of the University; they were so well done that some of the draughtsmen would scarcely believe they had been done by him.
3022. And although they were receiving junior clerks in the office at £150, they never thought of recommending the increase of this young man's salary? No, he was there for two years at £52 a year.
3023. And one year at £100? Yes, for the present year he is set down at £100, I think.
3024. How long has Mr. Robertson been in the department? About three years or three and a half years—I cannot say exactly.
3025. Do you know whether any of these juniors, who were received in the office at £150 or £100 a year more than a professional man like Mr. Robertson was receiving, are relatives of any persons in the department? I am not aware that they are. One, I believe, who is set down for the first year in Mr. Whitton's office as assistant to Mr. Quodling, is brother to Mr. Thomas, now in the Roads Branch.
3026. Do you know at what salary Mr. Quodling entered the office? I cannot say—either £200 or £250.
3027. What was his age when he entered the department? I suppose about twenty or twenty-one.
3028. How long has he been there? He must have entered at £200, because he has had three successive increases, and has now £350.
3029. How long has he been in the department? I do not know; I think about five or six years.
3030. By Mr. Stewart: Then he was two or three years at £200? Yes.
3031. By the Chairman: Have you seen anything of Mr. Micklethwait lately? I have not.
3032. Have you heard anything of him? Yes, I saw a gentleman last week who was in his company about three weeks since.
3033. Has he been at the office lately? No, he saw him up in the north.
3034. What is he doing there? He has charge, I believe, of the surveys there. I am not aware but what he is still carrying on the surveys. I think he has a staff of men.
3035. Have you ever seen him drinking in office hours? Yes, I have frequently.
3036. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you say you saw a gentleman that saw him in the north? Yes.
3037. Did he make any report of him? I asked him if he had seen Mr. Micklethwait recently; he said he had; I asked how he was getting on, and he said "I do not think the poor fellow will trouble anybody much longer;" I asked him what he meant, and he said, "He is so ill."
3038. By the Chairman: Was that all that passed? That was all that passed in relation to him.
3039. Have you seen him drinking in office hours? Yes, frequently.
3040. To such an extent that he could not perform his duties? It must be from drinking; he used to leave often at 2 o'clock.
3041. Has this occurred often while he was on duty? It has repeatedly.
3042. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he drink early in the day? I have seen both him and Mr. Hall commence at half-past 9.
3043. Have you observed whether he was able to take a glass steadily to his head and drink it? No, very seldom.
3044. His hand shook? Yes.
3045. In such a way that he had to take both hands? Yes, at times.
3046. By the Chairman: Have you seen any of his work lately? No.
3047. Have you heard he has got past work this year? No, I have not heard that.
3048. By Mr. Dalgleish: Can any one whose hand shakes in the manner you have described, act as a surveyor? Decidedly not, because he could hardly take hold of the screw when he wanted to regulate the levels.
3049. By Mr. Stewart: I suppose this stimulant was taken so early in the morning to steady their hands? Persons in the habit of drinking to excess, I believe, cannot do anything till they take some drink in the morning.
3050. By the Chairman: This is from drink—not from age? Yes.
3051. How do you account for his promotion as district engineer at an increased salary? It would not be an increased salary to him, because he has at the present time £500 a year.
3052. Was not Mr. Mann up in the north for several weeks lately? Yes.
3053. Have you heard what he was doing there? I have not.

3054. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say Mr. Micklethwait gets £280 a year besides his salary— what is that for? Expenses for board and lodging, and all who are in the receipt of that sum should keep three horses. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
3055. Is not the sum of £280 allowed in lieu of equipment? Yes. 15 Dec., 1863.
3056. Then I find he gets 15s. a day as well? No, I think that is included in the £280. I know in the Estimates there is a note at the bottom of the page stating how the £280 is made up.
3057. By the Chairman: Have you heard what Mr. Mann was doing there? I do not know.
3058. Have you heard Mr. Mann make use of obscene and disgusting language in the office? Yes, I am sorry to say his language was often of a very low character.
3059. Have you ever seen him at his work? I have seen him at his work, but he did but little throughout the day.
3060. What is his salary? He was getting £156 per annum before he left to go into the field.
3061. By Mr. Dalgleish: Now he has £300 and £280 travelling expenses? Yes.
3062. By the Chairman: How long has he been in the office? About six years, I think.
3063. What does he do when he is supposed to be out in the field? He is connected with making the trial surveys.
3064. Where had he any experience as a surveyor, to go in the field? I cannot say.
3065. Do you believe he has had any experience as a surveyor? I should say he was not equal to get the work out with that accuracy required.
3066. How old was he when he came to the office—about? I think about sixteen.
3067. And was he taken on at sixteen, at £150? I think the first year he was there he had no salary.
3068. But the second year he had £150? When his salary commenced it was £150, but because my son's salary was £156, his was made £156 also, so that he should not be subordinate to my son.
3069. Was he as valuable an officer as Mr. Robertson? I should think not.
3070. Did he know anything of his profession when he went to the office? Not much.
3071. Do you know whether Mr. Whitton and Mr. Mann's father are very intimate? They are very so; they exchange visits with each other.
3072. Do you know whether Mr. Barton is also very intimate with Mr. Mann? Yes, both Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton.
3073. Can you account for the difference of salary given to Mr. Mann and Mr. Robertson? Well, I cannot; it is not at all events for professional ability; it must be, I suppose, on account of the intimacy between Mr. Whitton and his father.
3074. You cannot otherwise account for it? No.
3075. It cannot be for his professional abilities? It cannot be that. Some surprise has been expressed in the office by Mr. Whitton's staff, that his salary was not increased before; and the reply has been, "Oh, it does not matter, his time will very soon come." It was thought he would have been increased or promoted long before he was.
3076. Does not Mr. Barton keep a very fine sailing boat? Yes, he has a boat.
3077. Do Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton very often visit Cockatoo in this boat? They visit Cockatoo; I do not know whether it is in this boat.
3078. In office hours too? I am not aware.
3079. Do you know Mr. Whitton was away from office for a month or so? He was away for some three or four weeks, said to be ill.
3080. Do you know whether he was then seen sailing about in Mr. Barton's sailing boat? He has been seen sailing about; my son told me he had seen him.
3081. Was this during office hours? Yes.
3082. Mr. Barton was with him? Yes.
3083. Was Mr. Barton away from ill health then? No, not during the time Mr. Whitton was.
3084. Have you ever seen Mr. Mann drinking in the office? I have.
3085. Have you seen him the worse for drink? No, I cannot say I have seen him the worse for drink; he has been flushed.
3086. What have you seen him drinking? Brandy and beer.
3087. In your evidence already given, you say you have seen Mr. Hall drinking to excess in office hours;—what quantity have you seen him drink during the day? I have seen Mr. Hall drink a bottle of brandy in the course of the day, and also take beer with his luncheon.
3088. Besides his bottle of brandy? Yes, he used to have beer to his luncheon, because he considered it was a greater zest or relish than the brandy.
3089. How much beer used he to take? A pint; sometimes a bottle, that is of bottled ale; mostly he sent out for a pint of draught ale.
3090. By Mr. Dalgleish: You know he drank a bottle of brandy a day? I do. Perhaps I may remark that Mr. Whitton asked me how I knew it was brandy; I told him by the smell. He then asked how I knew the bottle was full; I said it was hardly likely the bottle would be corked and sealed without it was full. He asked me how I knew he drank it all; I told him it was hardly likely he would send for another the following morning if he had not drank the whole of it.
3091. Was that taken down? No.
3092. By Mr. Stewart: Was this French brandy or Martell's? Principally he used to take dark brandy.
3093. At all events you saw that the bottle was sealed, so that it would be a bottleful? Yes.
3094. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say he was in the habit of sending out for brandy? Yes.
- 3095.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse. 3095. Who did he send? Fitzgerald, the messenger.
- 15 Dec., 1863. 3096. By the Chairman: You have seen Fitzgerald's evidence? I have.
3097. Is that true? No, it is as false as anything could be.
3098. Was this Fitzgerald in the habit of daily bringing in drink to officers in the department? Yes, I have seen him coming in with a basket with four or five bottles in it at one time.
3099. For different officers? Yes.
3100. He says in his evidence he has only brought but two bottles, one for Mr. Micklethwait and the other for Mr. Hall? Yes.
3101. That must be untrue? Yes.
3102. Used he daily to bring in drink for Mr. Hall? I never knew Mr. Hall to be in the office without sending for drink of one kind or other.
3103. Have you seen drink brought in to Mr. Barton? I have.
3104. What quantity? A bottle sometimes, and sometimes a flask.
3105. What is the most you have seen brought in for him at one time? I have known him to have had brought in a bottleful and this flask; he has also had wine in, in a case; that I have not seen myself, but I know he has had it in.
3106. A dozen case? Yes.
3107. Do you know whether this has occurred often? No, I do not think it has occurred often.
3108. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall so stupefied with drink that he could not go on with his work? Yes.
3109. Have you ever seen spirits brought in, in the morning, by any of the officers? Yes, I have.
3110. By whom? Before 10 o'clock, by Fitzgerald.
3111. Have you seen it brought in by the officers themselves? Yes, I have seen spirits brought in a flask, and sometimes in a lemonade bottle.
3112. Who have you seen bring it in in the morning? I have seen Mr. Micklethwait bring it in that way; Mr. Hall has brought it in a medicine bottle that would hold something like half a pint.
3113. I ask by whom did you see these spirits brought in in the morning? By Mr. Hall, Mr. Micklethwait, and Mr. Fearnside.
3114. Three of them? Yes.
3115. Then after he consumed the bottle that he brought in his pocket, I suppose he would send for more? Yes, I have known that to be done.
3116. Was a bottle of brandy his usual daily allowance? I have known him to take it three days in succession.
3117. A bottle each day? Yes.
3118. Have you ever known him ill from taking too much drink? He was away some eight or ten weeks, and it was rumoured in the office that it was on account of his taking so much drink.
3119. How many weeks? I think it was eight or ten.
3120. Has he frequently absented himself from his duties? Yes, for a day or two together.
3121. That is of frequent occurrence? It may occur perhaps once in a month, or once in two months.
3122. Have you seen any of the contractors coming to the office give money to Mr. Hall to send out for drink? Yes.
3123. Will you mention their names? I have seen Mr. Croshaw do so.
3124. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he give him the money, or throw it down on the table? It was a half-crown thrown down on the table.
3125. Then it might have been denied as having been given to any particular person? Yes, that might have been said; but it was done in that way—perhaps Mr. Croshaw was on one side the table and Mr. Hall on the other.
3126. By the Chairman: Was there any other contractor who gave money in that way? Not that I am aware of. I know Mr. Croshaw denied having sent for the drink, and he did not send for it, he threw the money on the table, and Mr. Hall sent out and got two bottles of ale or porter with it; Mr. Croshaw left the room for a short time, and when he returned both bottles had been emptied by Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall—by his manner he expressed disappointment at not having had some of it.
3127. No other officers of the department partook of any of it? No. There were several contractors in the room at the time. I believe it was the time the plans for the Penrith bridge were lying for inspection. There were eight or ten contractors in the office altogether—some I had not seen in the office before at all.
3128. Did this take place in the office, and during office hours? Yes, in the morning.
3129. Was Mr. Hall in the habit of collecting, from the officers in the department, money to send for drink? Yes, he was; he has come to me, and I have given him a shilling towards 4s. 6d. for a bottle of brandy; in fact he has so pestered me, coming three or four times in the morning, that I gave him the shilling more to get rid of him than anything else.
3130. Used he to send the money when he sent for the drink? He did not; he used to put the money in his pocket, and write an order for the bottle of brandy. He used to term that "raising the wind." I stated that to Mr. Whitton in my evidence.
3131. What part of the month was this in? It was mostly towards the end of the month, when he became short of funds I suppose.
3132. By Mr. Dalgleish: When he was in "Short's Gardens"? Yes.

3133. By Mr. Stewart: Where was the drink obtained? I think it was in George-street at a spirit merchant's. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
3134. By the Chairman: Do you mean to say he sent an order to a spirit merchant for a bottle of brandy? Yes. 15 Dec., 1863.
3135. By Mr. Stewart: As a sample? Well, that is the way it is delivered, until, I suppose, the dozen has been had, and then it is charged.
3136. By Mr. Dalgleish: What spirit merchant was it? I could not reply to that question.
3137. Do you know? I do not know. Mr. Gorkill I think it is—I will not be certain.
3138. You are not sure where it was from? No.
3139. By Mr. Stewart: It would occupy the messenger some time if he had to go that distance? Twenty or twenty-five minutes.
3140. By the Chairman: Mr. Hall had two reasons for soliciting subscriptions—one was to get money and the other to get grog? Yes.
3141. It appears he was not at all particular how he obtained money? No; when a person would resort to such means as that to get a few shillings, he would not hesitate to receive money from contractors.
3142. I have heard he received money from contractors for giving them the quantities? I do not know whether it is true, but in the case where it was suspected he had done so, the time the party has been in the office to take off the quantities would not have been sufficient had he not been supplied with the quantities.
3143. By Mr. Dalgleish: Can you name any particular contractor? Mr. Jamieson.
3144. By the Chairman: Has this Mr. Jamieson any work on the lines now? Yes, he has the Morpeth station.
3145. Have you heard of Mr. Hall having been promised or having received money for certifying without measuring up the work? I have not heard that he has received money, but he made about the first attempt to get it, or to feel a contractor's pulse whether he was inclined to do anything of the sort. Mr. Micklethwait told me this.
3146. What did he do? He was measuring up work with Mr. Gibbons, I think it was, and he said to him, "Mind, I have admitted that work to be two or three hundred feet more than it is."
3147. Mr. Micklethwait told you this? Yes, Mr. Whitton told Mr. Micklethwait. It appears that Mr. Gibbons told Mr. Whitton of it, I believe, the next day, and Mr. Whitton told Mr. Micklethwait. Scarcely anything takes place but what the one tells the other, Mr. Whitton and Mr. Micklethwait.
3148. Then I understand you to say that Mr. Gibbons told Mr. Whitton next day? Yes, that Mr. Hall put it to him in that way.
3149. And Mr. Whitton told Mr. Micklethwait, and Mr. Micklethwait told you? Yes; he said Mr. Whitton had a good mind to dismiss him there and then for attempting a thing of the sort.
3150. By Mr. Dalgleish: Then you know he had Mr. Hall up before him for something? I did not say he had him up, but Mr. Micklethwait told me he had a good mind to get rid of him there and then, or something to that effect.
3151. By the Chairman: Was there not something that occurred between him and Mr. Graham, a contractor? Yes, with reference to the Burwood station.
3152. In reference to lock furnishing? Yes.
3153. Have you heard of any other contractors having been what they call sounded as to their liberality? No, no one but those I have just mentioned.

WEDNESDAY, 23 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse called in and further examined:—

3154. By the Chairman: Is it true that Mr. Hall idled a great portion of his time during office hours? Frequently he did not work more than half the day. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
3155. What do you mean by frequently? Almost daily. 23 Dec., 1863.
3156. And you mean to say that, during the time he was in the office, he did not work above half his time? He did not.
3157. Have you ever seen any of his performances in the long room? I have.
3158. What have you seen? I have seen "The storming the Malakoff," as he termed it—"The Redan"—"The Scissors-grinder"; I have not seen "Shakespeare" performed.
3159. Have you seen any other performance? I have seen both ale and spirits planted under rolls of papers, and on going to them he used to term it "Storming the Garrison," and "Storming the Redan."
3160. Have you seen him perform the "Tap-room Toper"? Frequently—to perfection.
3161. "Suffolk Punch"? I have not seen that.
3162. You were not in the long room for the last five or six months you were in the office? Not for a longer period than that; I must have been up-stairs six or nine months. This took place when the long room was at the old building.
3163. I suppose when Mr. Hall was engaged in these performances, it prevented the other draughtsmen in the office performing their work? Yes, that was the great evil of it; of course it drew their attention, and therefore not only his own time was wasted but that of others.
- 3164.

Mr. N.
Trengrouse.
23 Dec., 1863.

3164. Do you know whether any of these exhibitions took place while any of the contractors were in the room, taking out quantities? I do not know that any of these particular performances took place on that occasion, but he was frequently singing and whistling nearly all day. I have seen contractors look up with astonishment at the noise he made—they could not go on with their calculations; in fact, there were two who left the office in consequence of the noise he made.

3165. Could you name them? I could not—there were so many in the room at that time; they were strangers to me—I do not think I had seen them before.

3166. Of course, when contractors go in to take out quantities, they want to have everything quiet, so that their calculations may not be interrupted? Yes, of course; even from their own talking one with another, it is almost as much as they can do to take out quantities correctly.

3167. Have you ever heard Mr. Hall speak disrespectfully of Mr. Whitton and his staff? I have heard him say that he never saw a more ignorant set of fools in his life, and could not think how they came to be sent out from England to perform such duties here.

3168. That was the nature of his remarks? Yes, those were about the words he used.

3169. I have been told you were present at the railway station when Mr. Hall, in a drunken state, made some threat against Mr. Holt—were you? No, I was not present; I heard of it; it did not occur at the station. Mr. Holt was on his way to the station; Mr. Hall, who was in a drunken state, called out after him, saying that he would give any one £20 who would shoot that fellow, pointing at and after Mr. Thos. Holt.

3170. Did you hear whether Mr. Holt heard him? No, I believe he did not.

3171. Whom did you get your information from? Mr. Gardiner; he was present at the time.

3172. Did Mr. Gardiner tell you he had heard the expression? Yes.

3173. When did Mr. Gardiner tell you this—was it before you were suspended? Yes, some considerable time.

3174. Before Mr. Gardiner was dismissed from the office? Yes, several months.

3175. I have also been told that Mr. Hall used to lose a good deal of his time in waiting for Mr. Whitton to approve of his work? He has done so. The longest time I have known him to wait in that way has been a week.

3176. Do you mean to say he did nothing during that week? He did no work at all, but walk about the office and pretend to be at work at his drawing.

3177. Where was Mr. Whitton at this time? In Sydney, and in the office.

3178. Do you mean to say that Mr. Hall waited a week for Mr. Whitton to approve his work, without applying to Mr. Whitton for other work? He did so. I spoke to him about it, and asked him why he did not go and see Mr. Whitton, as was his duty to do. His reply was that he should not run after Mr. Whitton; it was his duty to come and see what was going on in the office, and give the officers an opportunity of putting any questions they wished.

3179. How often did Mr. Whitton visit the long room? Whilst Mr. Gardiner was there I have known Mr. Whitton to come perhaps every day in the week, but after he left I have not known him to come down there for months together.

3180. Do you know why he attended so regularly while Mr. Gardiner was engaged there? I can hardly say why that occurred, without it was to see how Mr. Gardiner was getting on. This was the time he was getting out the cost of the different lines, before the money was voted by the Assembly.

3181. Mr. Gardiner was engaged in the duty of calculating the cost, or estimating the cost of the different lines? Yes, he got out all the bridges—designed them in fact.

3182. Is it not a most highly qualified engineer that is generally selected to perform those duties? Yes, he must be, otherwise he could not do it.

3183. At the time Mr. Gardiner was making these estimates, do you know what salary he was receiving? £400, I think.

3184. Was not Mr. Mason considered the Chief Assistant Engineer? He was.

3185. Was it not Mr. Mason's duty to perform these duties that were cast upon Mr. Gardiner, instead of Mr. Gardiner? Yes, I certainly think it should have been performed by him, because at that time there was not much work going on, therefore he was not required on the works.

3186. Do you think it was considered in the office generally, that Mr. Martin Gardiner was the most competent person in the office to perform these duties? From the fact of their being given to him, I suppose he was.

3187. Do you suppose that if Mr. Whitton had considered Mr. Mason reliable and fit to perform those duties, he would have selected Mr. Martin Gardiner to do it? I cannot tell what object he had in doing it certainly.

3188. As a professional man, do you not think so? Perhaps he thought Mr. Gardiner would get them out more speedily, and at the same time more correctly.

3189. Do you think Mr. Mason is competent to perform the work that Mr. Martin Gardiner was selected to perform—from your knowledge of Mr. Mason? I do not know; I could not answer that question.*

3190. Nevertheless, although Mr. Mason is considered Chief Assistant Engineer and receives a considerably higher salary, he was engaged in inferior duties to those Mr. Martin Gardiner was performing? Decidedly he was at that time.

3191. Did you ever see Mr. Arnold in the long room? I saw Mr. Arnold there but once during the whole time he was Minister, and I do not believe he was there more than that time.

3192. Did ever you hear of Mr. Hall's reasons for leaving England? No.

3193.

* ADDED (on revision):—But my opinion of Mr. Mason is, that of the staff who were sent from England, Mr. Mason is decidedly the most efficient officer in every respect.

3193. Had Mr. Whitton taken down your evidence as you gave it, there would have been no reason for suspending you, I presume? Decidedly not.
3194. There was never any complaint made against you? I never heard of any.
3195. You always performed the duties given you? I never returned anything that was given me, on account of inefficiency.
3196. Did you hear the reason why they suspended you? The only reason I see now is from the printed evidence and Mr. Whitton's report, wherein it is stated that, having a knowledge of the disorganized state of the department, I had not made it known to him; for this only I believe I was suspended.
3197. It was not your duty to make it known to him while there was a superior officer in the room? It was not my duty, but I should have done so, and had in fact previously, when I was treated as I have before stated for so naming it. I consider every one holding a Government appointment should see that the duties are performed with as little waste of time as possible.
3198. Did you keep a journal of your time? Yes, we were all instructed to keep a journal.
3199. Do you know whether Mr. Barton kept a journal of his time? I do not know; he certainly should do; if he does not, the object for which they are kept cannot be arrived at.
3200. What is the object of these journals? I imagine the object is to ascertain the cost of the different lines, or even the different contracts; the whole of the time is debited to the different works, so that each one shall shew the labour connected with it. Of course if Mr. Barton does not give his time in, that object is done away with altogether.
3201. Of course if the journals are not kept by all, they are perfectly useless as regards the cost of the lines? Yes.
3202. Is it not understood that officers allowed £280 a year as travelling expenses should keep three horses? It is so mentioned in the Estimates.
3203. Mr. Mann is getting this allowance? Yes.
3204. Do you know whether he keeps any horses? I have never heard that he does, but on the contrary.
3205. Does Mr. Barton keep any horses? He has one I know—whether he has any others I am not aware.
3206. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Barton keeps a pleasure-boat, does he not? Yes, he does.
3207. By the Chairman: Perhaps that is considered equal to keeping a horse? I do not know.
3208. It is very near as expensive? Well, it costs as much as six very good horses would.*
3209. Being only half his time in the office, he requires a pleasure-boat perhaps as much as he does horses? Yes.†
3210. I do not know whether I asked you before whether Mr. Mann usually attends the office at the ordinary hours? He comes more frequently late than at the proper time.
3211. Is it not the fact that his usual hour of attendance is between 10 and 11? He is seldom there before 10 o'clock.
3212. Does he not frequently absent himself for a week at a time? He has done so.
3213. Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton must have known of these irregularities? Yes, Mr. Whitton knows when every one is absent. To prove what I have said with reference to his knowledge of these matters, I will state a circumstance that occurred. I left one afternoon at ten minutes to 4 o'clock—I wanted to see a party in Pitt-street who leaves his office at 4. The next morning I had not been in the office half an hour before I was told of it by Mr. Whitton.
3214. So that he must know the movements of —? That is a proof he knows every minute we are away.
3215. Have you ever heard of Mr. Mann being snubbed for his irregularities? Never.
3216. Mr. Mann occasionally makes use of disgusting language in the office? He does.
3217. Do you know whether Mr. Mann knew anything of his profession before he entered the office? I think he could not have known much. There is another matter I should like to mention with reference to being absent from the office. I was in the habit of going to the bank once a month, I told Mr. Whitton of this, and although I went only once a month, he objected, and said I ought to get an agent to perform my duties. I think this should be noted, to shew the feeling he had towards me. At the same time he must have forgotten he has all in the office and three messengers to wait upon him, and yet my going out once a month, for half an hour, was objected to by him.
3218. This mode of carrying on the duties—some officers kept strictly to their time, and others as irregular as they think proper—must create great dissatisfaction? It does naturally so.
3219. According to your statement, all that a man has to be is a favourite with Mr. Whitton, and he can do as he likes in the office? It is very near this.
3220. Do you not think an office kept as you describe his office to be kept, a disgrace to the Colony? Decidedly so, and a great waste of time and money as well.
3221. Can you tell me what length of time Mr. Martin Gardiner has been in the office altogether? I think it must be about two years.
3222. Was it during his first engagement that he was estimating the cost of the railways? Yes, his first engagement.
3223. What other duties had he to perform on that occasion? I think that was all he did.
3224. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you not state that he designed some iron bridges? Yes, he could not arrive at the quantities without first designing them.
- 3225.

* ADDED (on revision):—To purchase, as he paid over £200 for this boat.

† ADDED (on revision):—Very likely, but being in a boat he is not so likely to be known as riding about on a horse.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
23 Dec., 1863.
3225. By the Chairman: Is not that considered the duty of a very highly qualified civil engineer? It is.
3226. If Mr. Whitton was not well satisfied as to the qualifications of Mr. Martin Gardiner, he would not have set him, I presume, to such work as this? Decidedly not—of course he would not think of doing it.
3227. Then, in fact, Mr. Martin Gardiner was selected to perform the most important duties of the whole of the Railway Department? He was. I consider the duties he performed were much before that of securing the best route for railways in the Colony.
3228. Did Mr. Martin Gardiner get up the calculations as to the cost of the different lines, or was he confined to one only? I think it was the whole of them.
3229. Was any other gentleman in the office selected to do this work besides Mr. Martin Gardiner? I believe not.
3230. Had he any assistance? No, I think he did it all himself.
3231. There is an immense amount of work in these calculations? Yes, a great deal.
3232. Did you not give us a statement that Mr. Hall was some three weeks engaged in taking out the quantities of one of those small stations on the line? No, I think not; he could not have been that length of time in taking out the quantities of a station.
3233. How long do you think he was—you were present, I believe, when he was taking out the quantities of one station, so I am informed? It may have taken him four or five days—perhaps a week.
3234. If it had taken Mr. Gardiner the same length of time in proportion, I suppose he would have been seventeen years calculating the cost and taking out the quantities of our three main lines? I do not think he is equal to it.
3235. Who? Mr. Hall.
3236. I say if Mr. Martin Gardiner was so slow in his calculations in proportion to the work he was employed on, how long do you think it would have taken him to take out the quantities of our three main lines? I think it would have taken him years, but I cannot say how many.
3237. Do you think he could do it in ten years? It is a mere matter of guess.
3238. What do you think? It would take him several years, at all events.
3239. By Mr. Dalgleish: I suppose your answer simply amounts to this, that you cannot answer the question? Well, I cannot. It certainly would take years.
3240. By the Chairman: You must know it would not require above a day to take out the quantities of one of these stations? It ought not to.
3241. Could you not do it in half a day? Some of them. In revising my evidence I find I omitted to mention the following, and now claim permission to name it:—I was asked if I had been in business on my own account; I then stated I had been, as a draughtsman; but I have done mechanical work in Sydney—I put up the revolving shutters for Farmer, Williams, & Giles, Pitt-street. This, I think, should be mentioned, because it will shew that beyond my being a mere tracer, as represented, or even a draughtsman, I know something of mechanical operations.
3242. I believe you have the plans you speak of—will you shew them to the Committee? (Plan produced.) This is the sketch I got up roughly for the occasion, just to give an idea of their appearance.
3243. This is a design? Yes, for patent curvilinear shutters. I have put many of them up in England. I believe I am the only one in Sydney who understands these shutters.
3244. You are speaking of the time they were put up? Yes; there have been no others put up in Sydney, except a short length in King-street, near the theatre, which I did also.
3245. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are not these Bunnett & Cope's patent, with the difference that these are wound round a vertical shaft, while Bunnett & Cope's revolve round a horizontal shaft? Yes, with the exception of mine being of cedar and Bunnett & Cope's iron.
3246. Upon a chain? Flat hinges; there are five tiers of hinges upon these.
3247. Are these your designs—I do not mean the drawing; I see these are termed "Trengrouse's Improved Curvilinear Shutters"—were you the designer of them in England? No, I improved upon them.
3248. You did not design them in the first place? No, I made improvements on the apparatus for working the shutters.
3249. Do you produce this as a specimen of your drawing, as well as —? No, I do not produce it as a specimen of drawing. That was only roughly done, to give an idea before I secured the order for the work. Here (producing a plan) is one of my last drawings for a proposed gallery in the church I attend.
3250. This is a proposed gallery for the Newtown Congregational Church? Yes. It has not been completed yet.
3251. Was this designed by you? Yes, and was done gratuitously.
3252. It is your own design? Yes.
3253. The column appears to be something similar to the column in the Hall of the Legislative Assembly, under the Speaker's Gallery? I am not aware that it is so; I have put up similar columns in England.
3254. Do you produce this as a specimen of your drawing? I put it in as such now.* It has been done about eighteen months.
3255. By the Chairman: When you say Mr. Martin Gardiner got out the estimates, do you mean that he made the drawings or sketches of bridges and viaducts? Yes, he made the whole of them.

3256.

* INSERTED (on revision):—But never considered I should have to do so after ten years' service, or I would have exhibited something very different.

3256. And calculated their various strengths, strains, and proportions? Yes.
3257. And then got out the cost? He did.
3258. Are any of these drawings in the office? I believe they are; they should be.
3259. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you seen them at any time? Yes.
3260. By the Chairman: What do you think of them as drawings—or were they mere sketches, merely to shew the idea? There was very little time bestowed upon them—only sufficient to enable him to arrive at the cost.
3261. By Mr. Dalgleish: Simply hand sketches, figured instead of being made to scale? They were made to scale.
3262. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Gardiner considered quick at his work? I consider him very quick.
3263. Do you know how long it took him to work up the cost of these lines? I cannot be certain as to the time; I believe it was five or six months—it was a very short space of time.
3264. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he complete them in that time? Yes, because they were wanted in a hurry.
3265. By the Chairman: Do you know whether it was his estimates that were laid before the Assembly? I am not aware whether he got out the last estimates.
3266. I am speaking of the first estimates for the first class lines? Yes.
3267. It was Mr. Gardiner's estimates that were laid before the Assembly, and of course received the approval of Mr. Whitton? Yes, it was.
3268. Since which an inferior kind of railway is being carried out at much less cost? As regards costing much less I cannot answer that question; I very much doubt their reduced cost.
3269. It was stated in the House that it would cost less? Yes.*
3270. Do you know how long it took him to work up the cost of these three lines? I think about five or six months. It was done in a short time.
3271. Do you think there is another officer in the Country capable of getting up the cost as Mr. Gardiner did in the same time? I do not think so, neither do I think they would get it up in double the time.
3272. And so accurate? And so accurate.
3273. During the time you were in the long room, did you ever see Mr. Gardiner drink any spirits or beer? The whole of the time I was in the long room I never saw him drink anything but water.
3274. Was he considered of a quarrelsome disposition? Not at all—rather the opposite.
3275. Was it not considered in the office that Mr. Gardiner possessed high engineering attainments? That was my opinion of him; whether the others entertained the same I do not know.
3276. Did you ever hear any of the other officers venture an opinion? No, I have not, but I have heard that he once offended Mr. Whitton, by suggesting some improvements in reference to the line he was taking out, which I believe operated against him.
3277. Have you ever known him to fail in performing any of the duties given him in connection with the railway? I have not.
3278. Is he a first class draughtsman? I should consider him to be so. I have seen but one or two of his drawings; they were done as well as any one need wish a drawing to be.
3279. I presume there are drawings of his in the office? There are some there.
3280. Then all that Mr. Arnold said about Mr. Gardiner's inefficiency was false, and most unjust to Mr. Gardiner? Quite so.†
3281. And I presume the great objection, according to your evidence, is that Mr. Gardiner is too well up in his profession for some persons who stand very high in the office? I think that is the only objection. It has been said in the office that as soon as it is ascertained that an officer knows a great deal, or "too much" as it is termed, steps are taken to get rid of him.
3282. He becomes unpalatable to the head of the department, simply because he is not well up in his professional duties himself? Just so.
3283. Do you think this feeling does exist in the head of the department? I think there is nothing more likely.
3284. Of course you are referring to Mr. Whitton? Yes, most decidedly.
3285. Do you think Mr. Barton and Mr. Mason also have the same feeling? No, I do not think they would entertain the same feeling as Mr. Whitton does in that respect.
3286. Have you heard this remark made in the office by any officers of the department? Yes, I have.
3287. By whom have you heard it repeated? Mr. Micklethwait. I should say it was from Mr. Hall I heard it, but it emanated from Mr. Micklethwait.‡
3288. Do you know what was said respecting this? I do not know more than I have previously stated—that when an officer is supposed to "know too much," they consider his services ought not to be retained.
3289. Do you think that any of this jealousy had reference to Mr. Gardiner's superior engineering abilities? I certainly do.
3290. Do you know whether Mr. Gardiner has committed himself in any way to deserve Mr. Whitton's feeling towards him? I do not, more than I have stated about his suggesting improvements in connection with the work on which he was engaged.

3291.

* ADDED (on revision) :—That may be, still it is not all truth that is stated in the Assembly; there is one Member I know would not hesitate at anything, however false.

† ADDED (on revision) :—And a gross libel, both as regards Mr. Gardiner and myself.

‡ ADDED (on revision) :—Mr. Drewett has also told me, that Mr. Whitton had (as he said) a "great down" upon Mr. Gardiner.

Mr. N.
Trenrouse.

23 Dec., 1863.

- Mr. N. 3291. Then it is rather dangerous for any officer in the Railway Department to suggest any Trengrouse. improvements in the lines? I consider it very so.
- 23 Dec., 1863. 3292. No matter how beneficial it may be to the public, or how it may decrease the expense of constructing the line, if he makes a suggestion it is the first step to his removal from the office? I believe from the time any improvement is suggested, the party so doing it is out of favour altogether with the Chief.
3293. I presume after an officer has been once treated in this way, he is not likely to make any suggestion as to the improvement or alteration of the railway, but will let matters go on just as the Chief or his favourites may wish? I think it very unlikely they would. I know I should be the last to do so under the same head, after the treatment I have received at his hands.
3294. Do you not think this is the most effectual way of preventing any improvement in our railway construction? I do not think a better course could be suggested than that.*
3295. Do you not think it was one of the reasons for the dismissal of Mr. Gardiner, that he lectured in the Philosophical Society respecting the absurd curves and gradients in our railways? I think that was the principal cause of his being removed.
3296. Had not this lecture reference to many successive sharp S curves? Yes.
3297. There are several objections to this class of curve? Yes, they are most objectionable; because you cannot travel over them with any speed without danger of going over altogether.
3298. One I believe is, that when a train gets about two-thirds round the curve, being the point where the outer rail shall be most elevated, the equilibrium of the train requires to be immediately reversed — ? Yes, that is the operation it would require.
3299. To travel upon the opposite curve? Just coming about, as you have said, two-thirds round the curve, of course you get the greatest impetus; then you want to reverse the equilibrium of the train †
3300. Which, if you put it above the pace of a bullock dray, will throw the whole train off the line? Yes, it must throw it off.
3301. By Mr. Dalgleish: When the train is passing over two opposite curves, the inclination of the carriages must be reversed—when it is traversing the right hand curve the carriages are inclined to the left, and when traversing the left hand curve then they incline to the right,—if it is an S curve, with the two outside curves reversed? The carriages lean the same way as the curves are going; when on the right hand curve they would lean to the right, and when they come to the left would lean to the left; they must lean with the curve, right or left.
3302. By the Chairman: Because the outer rail is the highest by several inches? Yes.
3303. The sudden rock from one side to the other would throw the train off the railway, unless it was going at a very slow pace indeed? Yes.
3304. By Mr. Dalgleish: I think you misunderstood what I said—I was not alluding to the elevation of the rail—I simply stated that when a train was traversing two opposite curves the inclination of the carriages must be reversed? Yes, so far as the coning of the wheels would admit.
3305. I think that was the question I put before? Yes, it may have been, but I did not understand it so.
3306. Then you misunderstood what I said? Yes, I must have done.
3307. By the Chairman: Another objection to these sharp curves, I believe, is the immense pressure of the wheel flanges always acting against the rails, causing the engine to be of much greater power than required? Yes, that is another objection; because the tension from the first carriage must draw those following it heavily against the side of the rail.
3308. And, of course, it must require an engine of greater power than if the curves were properly constructed? Yes.
3309. By Mr. Dalgleish: As a matter of fact, should the flanges touch the sides of the rails or edges of the rails at all? Not at all.
3310. Should not the elevation of the outer rail, and the coning of the wheels, act in such a way as to prevent any friction from the locomotive or carriages, excepting a little on the leading wheels? Yes. ‡
3311. The only thing an engineer has to do, is to properly attend to the disposition of his rails, and to have his wheels of proper cone to take the curves? Yes.
3312. By the Chairman: Of course it wants nice calculation to understand how much the outer rail should be elevated in these curves? It does.
3313. Is not the greatest evil to be dreaded that the train will get off these lines altogether, and of course kill or injure a great number of passengers? These reverse curves are the point to be dreaded, unless they go at a very slow pace, provided they have not a piece of straight line between each of the reverse curves, to allow the engine and carriages to right themselves again.
3314. Do you know the radius of the sharpest curve on our lines? I think eight chains is the sharpest curve on our lines.
3315. You say this danger could be obviated by a piece of straight line, even if it was not more than two chains between the two curves? That would prevent it.

3316.

* ADDED (on revision):—And it is impossible to ascertain the loss to the Colony that must accrue from such ignorance.

† ADDED (on revision):—At once, having entered upon the opposite or reverse curve. This cannot be done at anything like proper speed.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—Were the outer rails in all curves properly elevated, according to their radii, it would have the effect mentioned by you; no doubt the wheels are properly coned, being made under the supervision of Mr. John Fowler.

3316. It would give the engine time to steady itself before it went on the reverse curve? Just so, and to regain its perpendicular. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
3317. Do you know whether they are trying to alter the original plan of our lines so as to meet this objection? I cannot speak positively to that effect; I have heard that it is being done. 23 Dec., 1863.
3318. Is not this the difficulty that Mr. Gardiner at once saw, and wished to bring before the public, before it was too late to rectify? That was the sole cause of his lecturing at the Philosophic,—to point out these errors and take it up in time, as it cannot be well altered afterwards. It could be altered, of course, but it would entail heavy cost, as the line would have to be widened in places.
3319. What Mr. Gardiner wished to prove to the Colony, even at the cost of his situation, was that the speed of travelling on our railways would be only half what it would be if they were properly constructed? That was the object he had in view, I know, because he spoke to me about it.
3320. By Mr. Dalgleish: And also that it would be dangerous to life and property? Yes.
3321. By the Chairman: If they attempted above half-speed some frightful accident and perhaps great loss of life would be the result? That must occur in consequence of the present way of constructing the lines.
3322. In consequence of these absurd curves? Yes.
3323. Is it not usual for the Railway Department, in laying down these curves, instead of finding the proper elevation for the outer rail by calculation, to run trains over them until they find they answer? I do not know whether they adopt that system here, but of course it should be done by calculations.
3324. Do they not do so instead of making calculations—did they not adopt that plan on the Pitt-street Tramway? I was going to observe that I should hardly think they did so, because the outer rail in the curve near the terminus was elevated four different times before they found it sufficient to prevent the car going off. It went off three times, and at the fourth alteration it was found to remain on; from this fact I suppose they considered they had arrived at the proper height it should be.
3325. If they had adopted the proper plan, by engaging a scientific man to make the calculations, it should have been done at the first laying? Yes, it should have been done at the first laying, of course, if cost is now any consideration.
3326. Was there no officer in the department at the time, qualified to make the calculation to find the necessary height for the outer rail to be elevated over the inner? I should imagine there would not be, as that method was not adopted.
3327. Was Mr. Gardiner in the department then? Yes, I think he was.
3328. What was he engaged at, at that time? I do not think he could have been in the office at that time. I think that was before he was engaged—I cannot answer that question.
3329. Do you think there was an engineer in the department qualified or capable of making the calculation? There may have been, certainly, but if there was it was great neglect of duty on his part that it was not done properly in the first place.
3330. By Mr. Dalgleish: You simply do not know whether there was or not? I do not.
3331. By the Chairman: I presume if there was, the proper mode of laying down the rail would have been adopted? I should think so.
3332. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had Mr. Whitton charge of laying down that tramway? Yes, he had everything to do with it. Mr. Drewett occasionally superintended its construction.
3333. Were the plans drawn in his department? Yes.
3334. What officer drew them? I did something towards them, Mr. Drewett did also.
3335. What officer took the levels? I think it was the sappers' levels that were acted upon.
3336. Who laid down the curves? That was also done by them I think, or by Mr. Micklethwait.
3337. Were they laid down in the office on paper, or simply laid in the middle of the street? They were laid on paper.
3338. Then the proper elevation should have been given on the plans? Yes, on the working transverse section.
3339. At the centre of each curve? Yes.
3340. Was that done? I do not know—I do not think it likely.
3341. By the Chairman: You do not know whether this is the usual system adopted in the Railway Department, in reference to all the curves on the three lines? As regards running carriages over the curves to find the proper elevation of the outer rail?
3342. Yes? I do not know whether that is the system adopted.*
3343. I believe that was not the only mistake that took place in that simple job—the tramway? It is not, because at the first commencement there was a mistake made in laying down the rails—the present inner edge of the rails should be on the outside.
3344. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was that a mistake, or was it done intentionally? I never heard it was done intentionally.
3345. Did you not hear it was done for the purpose of allowing the common railway carriages to run on the rails? Yes, I have since heard it was done for that purpose; but it does not answer the purpose, for I see they continue to bring the bar-iron on carriages.†
3346. What carriages? Timber carriages and drays through the streets.
3347. Not on the rail? No.

3348.

* ADDED (on revision):—Should it be, this must be the only part of the world such science is brought into use.

† NOTE (on revision):—The current report was, that this excuse was raised to cover the first mistake of laying the rails inside out.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
23 Dec., 1863.
3348. By the Chairman: Was not the circumstance of the outer rail not being properly elevated the cause of the accident by which Mr. Want lost his life? I have heard that was the cause.
3349. Have you ever seen Mr. Doherty drinking spirits or beer during office hours? No, I have not.
3350. Did he conduct himself with propriety in the office? Yes, decidedly so.
3351. Was he in the habit of wasting his time at all? No, I consider him very attentive to his duties, and he did a large amount of work.
3352. What was his principal work in the office? I have never seen him doing anything but tracing.
3353. Is he not a surveyor and engineer? Yes.
3354. Is he not in receipt of a very low salary? Yes, I think it is only 10s. a day.
3355. Do you think his services are of equal value to the Government with Mr. Mann's? Yes, very much more so.
3356. Nevertheless Mr. Mann gets double the salary? About double.
3357. Besides £280 a year for travelling expenses? Yes.
3358. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you much in the long room while Mr. Doherty was there? Not many months.
3359. Were you frequently in the room, so as to have opportunities of forming a judgment on your own knowledge of the circumstances of which you are speaking? With respect to what I am now speaking to, I was in the room the whole of the time; he was working next to Mr. Hall for some months.
3360. By the Chairman: As you have been in the habit of travelling on the Southern line from the time it was first opened, you must have seen Mr. Nealds, the late Traffic Manager, very frequently? Yes, I have seen him repeatedly—that is, twice a day, morning and afternoon.
3361. During this long period, have you ever seen him the worse for drink? I have not.
3362. Do you know anything of his business habits? Well, my opinion of Mr. Nealds is that he is a man of great business habits, and one in every respect suited to be Manager of the traffic on the railways.
3363. Will you explain anything you have seen which led you to that conclusion? I have been with Mr. Nealds, and sometimes walked with him from the office in the afternoon up to the railway, or rather I have attempted to do so, as I have been obliged on several occasions to leave him or be too late for the train, as he was in the habit of stopping all the laden drays on the road, that he met in his walk from the office to the station, arguing why they did not bring their goods down by the railway.
3364. He was anxious to draw the custom to the railway? Yes, he exhibited a great amount of zeal for the interest of the Government, more than I have seen in any officer.
3365. He received a salary of £500 a year, did he not, with one per cent. on the receipts until his salary attained £700 a year? Yes.
3366. Then it was Mr. Nealds' interest, of course, to draw as much traffic to the railway as possible? Yes, and at the same time it was equally beneficial to the Government. I have known him stop three or four on the road.*
3367. I believe you have already stated that Mr. Fearnside can take a full quantity of drink at short intervals throughout the day? Yes, I have seen him frequently drinking through the day.
3368. By Mr. Dalgleish: I think I understood you to say that he took more than a full quantity? He took considerably more than I should have liked to take.†
3369. By the Chairman: You say his duties consisted principally of lettering plans? Yes.
3370. I am told he takes three times as long to do this simple duty as he should do? From the style in which they are done I consider it is a waste of time; there is no occasion to take such pains.
3371. Mr. Fearnside, it is said, occupies a good deal of time in reading the newspapers and discussing politics? Yes.
3372. Is it true he occupies the largest portion of his time in reading the newspapers and discussing politics, instead of lettering the plans? No, I should not say he devoted the greater portion of the day to that amusement; perhaps it may be twenty-five per cent. of his time.
3373. I should imagine it does not require a great degree of professional ability to letter plans? Not at all.
3374. Do you not think they could find boys just leaving school, to do this work for £50 or £60 a year, for which Mr. Fearnside gets £1 a day? Yes, a boy could do it, because they are first put in pencil by the surveyor, and then in ink by Mr. Fearnside.
3375. What other duties does Mr. Fearnside perform? I have seen him mostly engaged on the sections—figuring—scarcely anything beyond that.
3376. Do you think Mr. Fearnside, as an officer of the Government, is equal to Mr. Robertson? Decidedly not.
3377. Do you think he is to be compared in any way to Mr. Robertson? Well, he is not as a draughtsman.
3378. In any capacity? As to his surveying abilities I do not know.
3379. He is not surveying in the office? No.

3380.

* ADDED (on revision):—In one afternoon. This per centage is now abolished, and with it the zeal once carried out. This, if anything would, must exhibit great lack of proper management.

† ADDED (on revision):—And much more than enabled him to perform his duties properly.

3380. Do you not think justice would require that their salaries should be reversed—Mr. Robertson to get £1 a day, and Mr. Fearnside £100 a year? Yes, as regards the duty they perform. Mr. N. Trengrouse.
3381. I have heard also that Mr. Mackay is also ready to discuss any topic that is started? 23 Dec., 1863.
Yes, he loses a large amount of time in discussing different topics.
3382. Does Mr. Mackay lose as much time in talking and reading the newspapers as Mr. Fearnside? He does in talking—more than Mr. Fearnside even.
3383. He does not read the papers? Not so very much.
3384. He cannot talk and work at the same time? He cannot.
3385. He is a bit of a newscarrrier and tattler in the office? Well, it is not safe to say much to him—in fact, he has acknowledged that he cannot avoid making things known that come under his knowledge.
3386. The result of all that has been done in this matter is, that of the three persons who have been the sole cause of all the disorganization in the office, two have been acquitted altogether, and the third, though suspended, has been reinstated—I am speaking of the persons complained of by Mr. Gardiner? It is a decision far beyond my comprehension that the parties who were the sole cause of the disorder* and waste of time† should be exonerated, and those who have given truthful evidence, beneficial to both the service and Colony, should suffer for it.
3387. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Hall was discharged, was he not? No.
3388. He was suspended? Yes, but his dismissal was not recommended as ours.
3389. Was your dismissal recommended? Yes, at the same time as my suspension.
3390. By Mr. Tighe: Your dismissal was recommended, for not complaining of Mr. Hall's conduct? That was the excuse Mr. Whitton used.‡
3391. You were recommended to be dismissed for not complaining of Mr. Hall's conduct, but Mr. Hall was retained in office, although his conduct was so bad that you were to be dismissed for not complaining of it? Yes, that was Mr. Whitton's version.
3392. By the Chairman: You did complain? Yes, two or three years ago.
3393. Can you mention the month? It was in February, 1861.
3394. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you keep a diary? Yes, I do.
3395. Did you note that matter? I did in my own private diary. Being so treated on that occasion by Mr. Whitton, although uncalled for, I was determined I would make a note of it, in case it should be at any time again introduced.
3396. What is the entry in your diary? I have it down here: "I spoke to Mr. Whitton"—
3397. By the Chairman: Is this a copy from your diary? Yes, very nearly a copy. "I spoke to Mr. Whitton about the drinking and disorganization"—in February, 1861, this was, when he threatened to stop a week's pay from my son.
3398. By Mr. Dalgleish: It is not entered there what Mr. Whitton's answer was to you? No; the reply made by Mr. Whitton I should never forget.
3399. By the Chairman: His answer was what? That he would suggest it would be better for me to mind my own business and attend to my own duties.
3400. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you seek Mr. Whitton for the express purpose of complaining to him at the time of the conduct of the officers in the long room, or was it for the purpose of complaining of the stoppage of a week's salary from your son—which object did you seek him for? It was about the drinking and insubordination I went to see him.
3401. And the stoppage of your son's salary? That arose from it; I knew nothing of this previously.
3402. What was the cause of your son's absence at that time? He wanted to be away for the day, and spoke to Mr. Mason about it; Mr. Mason, I think, referred him to Mr. Whitton, who was engaged at the time with Mr. Wilcox; my son, having spoken to Mr. Mason, he left. Mr. Whitton told me he intended making an example of my son, and had given instructions to Quodling to stop a week's pay from him.
3403. By the Chairman: How long was your son absent? I think it was a day.
3404. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he stop a week's pay for it? Yes; a minute was written respecting it. My son would not receive his salary on account of this week being stopped; he said he had no objection to the day being stopped that he was away. Mr. Whitton, finding he would not receive the reduced amount, then suggested to Mr. Arnold that he should receive his full pay and be at once dismissed. After this my son saw Mr. Arnold, and he recommended him to take the reduced amount and retain his appointment, which he did.
3405. Were there minutes to that effect? Yes.
3406. The documents will be in existence in the office now? Yes, if not lost. Mr. Whitton wrote a minute to say he found he had no authority to stop his pay; that being the case, he would recommend that his full pay should be given him, and his dismissal take place at once. The minute will shew this.
3407. By the Chairman: Did you ever know Mr. Whitton to make such an example of other officers? No. I argued with Mr. Whitton that he ought rather to make an example of an adult, as my son might be said to be only a boy at that time. Things had taken place much more than he had ever done.§ Mr. Micklethwait afterwards remarked in the office that Mr. Whitton should say Mr. Mason ought to have allowed him to go, and not referred to him.

3408.

* ADDED (on revision): Drunkenness.

† ADDED (on revision): In the office.

‡ ADDED (on revision): But the evidence of others will prove that I had named it to Mr. Whitton. Mr. Hall himself made this fact known to Mr. Gardiner, abusing me for having done so.

§ Revised:—This, in my opinion, did not even call for censure—his having spoken to Mr. Mason; but what have others done that have been only laughed at in the office!

- Mr. N. 3408. Have ever you been absent from your office through sickness for any length of time?
Trengrouse. Yes.
3409. Was your pay stopped? When I was away two days it was stopped.
- 23 Dec., 1863. 3410. Were you ill at that time? Yes.
3411. Did you send in a medical certificate? No.
3412. Is there any order in the office with reference to medical certificates? I believe the rule is, that after being absent two days you are required to send in a medical certificate, but I do not think it is required otherwise. Many persons are ill for a day or two, who, by lying by and taking medicine, can get themselves round again without a medical man.*
3413. Did you ever know any person's pay to be stopped with the exception of yours and your son's? I have never known it.
3414. You were the only two that were selected to make an example of? The only two.†
3415. What is the longest time you have been absent from the office? Three weeks on one occasion. In that time I sent in two medical certificates.
3416. How often have you been absent from your office when you have been in good health? Not at all without permission.
3417. How often have you received leave of absence? Only on one occasion for any length of time. I should never think of stopping away without speaking about it; and I should be very sorry to stay at home on pretence of illness when the fact was otherwise.
3418. How long is it since your pay was stopped for being absent for two days? I think in June last.‡
3419. Are officers in the department often ill? I think there is mostly some one away.
3420. Do you know whether they on all occasions send in medical certificates? I think it very unlikely. This rule applies only to a certain few.
3421. I presume they should be in the office—the medical certificates? Yes, of course they would retain them—that is, all they get.
3422. You do not know of any rule about sending in medical certificates? No; the only thing I can ever understand is, that after being away two days, a medical certificate is expected if the illness still continues.
3423. Do you know if any portion of Mr. Telmon's evidence was omitted by Mr. Whitton, or if anything was said that did not appear in his evidence? Yes, I am aware of a portion being omitted, and I think it is important it should be taken down. Mr. Telmon, after having been up-stairs and examined, came into my office. He was very much annoyed about the reception he met from Mr. Whitton. He told me the first question Mr. Whitton put to him was, "So, Mr. Telmon, you have been in Mr. Trengrouse's office this morning, I understand?" Mr. Telmon's reply was that he had. "And I suppose you have been through your rehearsal?" He said he did not know what he meant. "As to what you were to say—the evidence you were to give—when you came up before me?" Mr. Telmon told him he had not heard a word about it, more than that I had told him the evidence was going to be taken on that morning. This portion to my knowledge was omitted; I know not how much more.
3424. Mr. Telmon told you this? Mr. Telmon told me this immediately he came down, and expressed himself much hurt at the suspicion of Mr. Whitton.
3425. On Mr. Telmon's returning to the long room, after his examination by Mr. Whitton, did not Mr. Hall keep talking very loudly, so loud that Mr. Telmon should hear, saying that Mr. Telmon's evidence was cooked, and would not be believed? Yes, I heard him saying so, and it annoyed Mr. Telmon very much, so much that he did very little work that day. This was done by Mr. Hall to annoy him §
3426. Mr. Telmon, I suppose, was aware of the insubordination in the office? Yes, he must have seen most of it.
3427. Was Mr. Robertson on the permanent staff, or merely employed temporarily? He is one of the permanent staff, and entered down at a separate salary with the others.
3428. And takes a portion of all the drawings in the office? Yes.
3429. And does them as carefully as any officer in the department? Quite so.
3430. Can you tell me what is meant by "easing" the curves and gradients on our railways? I cannot make that out. Of course the meaning of easing a curve is to make the radius very much larger. That cannot be done without taking more land for the line.||
3431. By Mr. Dalgleish: According to the present system of carrying on our railways, even that could be done? They must take more land to do it effectually.
3432. To ease the curves, you naturally suppose, would be to make the curve extend over a greater space? Yes.

3433.

* ADDED (on revision):—If it be the rule to send in these certificates on the first or second day, reference to the journals of some of the higher paid officers will prove that there must be a large number of these certificates in the office.

† ADDED (on revision):—Perhaps from having been the longest in the service.

‡ NOTE (on revision):—I very much regret having submitted to it.

§ NOTE (on revision):—The fact of Mr. Hall's thus annoying Mr. Telmon is a further proof of Hall's character and guilt in this inquiry, as he suspected Mr. Telmon had spoken the truth before Mr. Whitton, and stated what he had actually seen and knew of Hall, which would have condemned him, but instead of the truth, he said he saw nothing wrong in the office, which is decidedly false.

|| NOTE (on revision):—Not long since, I saw an article in the Herald, wherein it was stated that £5,000 or £6,000 per mile had been expended in easing the "curves and gradients in our railways." What I believe to have been done is, to make the curves sharper, for the purpose of introducing a piece of straight line between each reverse S curve; therefore, saying the curves have been eased is simply absurd, as they have been made worse. By doing this they could have said the line had been eased, but surely not the curves or gradients, or even at any additional cost; but this ought to have been seen in the first place.

3433. And to ease the gradient, to make the cuttings deeper or the embankments higher? Yes, which I believe has not been done.

Mr. N.
Trenrouse.

3434. That is what you consider the Committee would be justified in understanding by "easing" curves and gradients? Yes, I do not see how it can convey any other idea.

23 Dec., 1863.

3435. By the Chairman: Can you tell whether it is customary, or a wise plan, to alter the gradients after the sections have been made and the contract let? No, but that is done in some instances. Of course it alters the designs of all the bridges if you make the embankments higher—it makes all the piles longer; and from that fact they ought to be larger.

3436. And of course there is a considerable increase in the cost of constructing the railway? Yes. Besides, an alteration of that kind would annul the contract if it were taken for a lump sum.

3437. By the Chairman: Do you know what our railways were to cost per mile, according to Mr. Whitton's calculation, before they were commenced? £8,000 or £9,000 I think.

3438. Do you know what they have cost? £12,000 or £14,000, according to the statement of the Herald.

3439. Do you know what they actually do cost? Well, no, that is another matter altogether; I do not know how that can be ascertained, that is, out of doors.

3440. It can be ascertained if proper discipline is carried on in the office, and every man keeps a proper journal; and there is also an account of the money paid for the different lines? Yes, if you can get that information correctly.

3441. Do you know that the railway which was to cost this small sum has cost above £19,000 per mile? That must be the Picton line you refer to, as I see in the Herald the sum of £90,000 for the Menangle Bridge was not distributed over the line, which is thirteen or fourteen miles in length. That of course ought to have been distributed on the last, as on the first cost given in.

3442. All bridges and viaducts should be taken into the calculation? Yes, of course.

3443. If you give in an estimate, and take out some of the most extensive works, you may make the cost per mile appear to be a very small sum indeed? Yes, naturally so.

3444. By Mr. Dalgleish: In fact it would not be an estimate at all? No, but it may be considered by some to be near enough.

3445. Are you aware, of your own knowledge, that such information cannot be afforded by the office? They have the means of giving the information in the office; I cannot say they would not do it, of course.

3446. By the Chairman: Have you ever heard what Mr. Whitton's estimate for the Menangle Bridge was? Not to be certain;*

3447. Have you heard that the foundation alone has cost more than Mr. Whitton estimated for the bridge complete? I have heard the foundations, together with the day work, has cost as much as the bridge should have cost complete.

3448. Was not a gradient of 1 in 30 the lowest Mr. Whitton said could be worked with profit? I think that was the gradient stated; but according to what it is stated they have now done, eased the curves and gradients, I suppose they have made it very much easier now.

3449. By Mr. Dalgleish: How made it much easier? Made the gradients much more easy, at an additional cost.

3450. By the Chairman: Are you aware whether there are any defects in the first portion of our railway made in the Colony? No, I do not see that it is more defective than the portion of the line that has been made under the present management. I see they are taking up some of the sleepers, but I think even the present railways that have been so recently made, after the sleepers have been down some twelve years, will get rather rotten.†

3451. A great portion of them were imported wood—were they not? Not for the first contract.‡

3452. By Mr. Dalgleish: Has not a large portion of the line been taken up—the Barlow rails? No; the Barlow rails extend, I think, the whole distance from Sydney to Liverpool, except at short intervals.

3453. By the Chairman: Are you aware that spotted gum is being used in the Singleton Bridge, instead of ironbark, as specified? Yes.

3454. Have you heard what that will save the contractor? I have heard it will save about one-seventh of the amount.

3455. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is spotted gum considered equal to ironbark? No, decidedly not.

3456. By the Chairman: Is it not considered a very inferior wood indeed, as far as strength and durability are concerned? Yes, in both respects.

3457. Would the previous contractor who had that bridge be allowed to use this inferior wood instead of ironbark? I think it is hardly likely.

3458. By Mr. Dalgleish: Who was the previous contractor? Mr. Heritage.

3459. What description of bridge is it? A laminated arch.

3460. By the Chairman: Is it true you were the first to complain if your beer and luncheon were not ready, as stated by Fitzgerald in his evidence? That portion may be true in his evidence, because sometimes he did not come in with the luncheon till, perhaps, half-past 1, and then any one coming in after that time—Mr. Whitton, or Quodling, for instance—seeing us at luncheon, would not know but what we had commenced at 1, instead of half-past, so that we should be set down as having devoted too much time to our luncheon.

3461.

* ADDED (on revision):—but not one half it is now said to cost.

† NOTE (on revision): The first stations put up have also been disrated; but it should be borne in mind, that when our railways were being carried on by shareholders, £100 had to be more considered than £5,000 has at the present time.

‡ NOTE (on revision): Lines. All importations are of a much more recent date; such as now take place would not then have been entertained.

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
23 Dec., 1863.
3461. You had something to do with Mr. Martin Gardiner, with reference to offering him a situation, or asking whether he would be inclined to accept a situation in the Roads Branch of the Works Department, I believe? I forget the circumstance now, even if I did.
3462. Did you not ask Mr. Gardiner whether he would accept an office in the Roads Branch, and leave the Railway Department? I do not remember that.
3463. You do not remember making any suggestion at all to Mr. Gardiner about accepting an office in the Roads Branch? No.
3464. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you ever the power to make such an offer? No.
3465. By the Chairman: Did anybody speak to you, and ask you to make an offer of that description? No.
3466. Did Mr. Micklethwait ever suggest to you to say to Mr. Gardiner, that he had better accept an office then vacant in the Roads Branch? I could not speak with any certainty to that question.
3467. Will you consider the question—this evidence will be sent to you to revise, and will you tax your memory with reference to it, and let us know what occurred, or if it did occur, and by whose suggestion you made the offer or suggestion to Mr. Martin Gardiner, and also Mr. Martin Gardiner's reply thereto? Yes, I will.*
3468. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you given the Committee the number of officers employed in the Railway Office before it was handed over to the Government? I have—the draughtsmen. I do not know the number of officers altogether.
3469. What number were there? Two.
3470. What length of line did they make the drawings for? From Liverpool to Campbelltown.
3471. What length of time was that line in construction? I forget now. The line was carried out by the present staff after the Government had taken it.
3472. Were there no more than two draughtsmen at any time prior to the Government taking the line? Not to my knowledge. There was no one there when I was engaged; Mr. Brady used to do the drawings then, and I did them afterwards.
3473. The two draughtsmen there at that time did all the drawings required for the line? Yes, all required.
3474. The work was never stopped or kept back in consequence of the shortness of the staff of draughtsmen? Not that I am aware of. The contracts were not called for that portion of the line until the present staff came out. The drawings were completed just before they arrived.
3475. How many draughtsmen were employed on the line between Sydney and Parramatta? I do not know—that was before my time.
3476. There was no work in actual progress when you were in the office? Yes, the Sydney and Parramatta and also the Newcastle line was being carried on, but the drawings were all made before these lines were commenced.
3477. Then, in point of fact, the drawings you made for the extension were never used? Only the plan and section, but the section was deviated from. The plan having been proclaimed could not be deviated from. The line however could not be improved upon.
3478. You have already given evidence as to the alterations which took place on that section? Yes.
3479. Have you already stated that Mr. Gardiner was not considered to be quarrelsome? Yes.
3480. But rather the contrary? Yes, quite the reverse.
3481. Do you remember a fight taking place between Mr. Deering and Mr. Hall? Yes, I was present.
3482. At what time? I think at noon.

3483.

*ADDENDUM (on revision):—Having considered these questions, I do now remember that such an offer was made to Mr. Gardiner by myself. This was done at the request of Mr. Micklethwait, and of course for Mr. Whitton. This conversation took place about the 9th of January, 1862. About four months after I removed into the office up-stairs, Mr. Micklethwait, on coming into my room, asked me if I knew what Gardiner had been up to, then telling me that Gardiner had written to Mr. Whitton, complaining about his (Micklethwait) and Mr. Hall's conduct in the office; and that having done so, Mr. Whitton was determined that Mr. Gardiner should be got rid of. Mr. Micklethwait told me there was a vacancy, or would be shortly, in the Roads Branch of the Department; did I think Mr. Gardiner would accept it if offered to him. I told him it was difficult to give an opinion, considering he was to be so treated for making these facts known—acts that were so disgraceful and damaging to the department. Beside considering Mr. Gardiner had left Melbourne expressly to fill the appointment he then held, which vacancy was advertised, I thought it very unlikely he would give way and consent to the removal, as by so doing it would be an acknowledgment of having done some wrong. Mr. Micklethwait then said it was a very unpleasant business, and asked me if I had any objection putting the question to him, Mr. Gardiner at the same time remarking, "You must be aware the complaint will not affect us." I told him I would, and did so a day or two after. Mr. Gardiner was very indignant at this, and said, did I or Mr. Whitton think he was such a low serf to accept these or any terms for only having performed his duty; after being brought from Melbourne, to hold an appointment in the Railway, was he to submit to such treatment and insult from such a set of drunken and immoral fellows as those two were, who did nothing but obstruct the duties of the office; no, as long as he held any appointment he was not going to shrink from his duties; and would let Mr. Whitton know what gentlemanly treatment was, and how an office ought to be conducted, if he, Mr. Whitton, was ignorant in these matters, as well as in many others already exhibited before him. Mr. Gardiner concluded by saying, if Mr. Whitton were to offer him any appointment at double his salary, apart from the Railway, he would not accept it, and should expect some redress through the Minister, he only having performed his duty in making this disgraceful conduct known to the head of his department. *I mentioned the substance of this to Mr. Micklethwait, who replied, "I am sorry for him, and can only say he is a great fool for his pains."

N. TRENGROUSE.

3483. If Mr. Deering has published a letter in the papers stating that such a fight did not take place, has he departed from the truth? Quite so.
3484. Do you know a Mr. Charles Brown? Yes, I do.
3485. Was he in the Works Department at one time? Yes.
3486. Was he considered to be a competent officer? Well, I believe he was.
3487. Have you heard that he has complained of Mr. Micklethwait's conduct, or do you know that he has complained of Mr. Micklethwait's conduct to Mr. Whitton? Yes, he has done so.
3488. Do you know what was the cause of his complaint? I have heard it was on account of money he had lent him at different intervals whilst out in the field.
3489. Do you know for what purpose he lent him this money? I have heard it was to purchase a horse, and also to pay men's wages.
3490. Do you know what the amount was? Something like £80.
3491. Before he could get this money returned had he to complain to Mr. Whitton and ask his interference in the matter? He did do so.
3492. Mr. Micklethwait was his superior officer at this time? Yes, he had charge of the surveys in the north.
3493. Do you know whether Mr. Micklethwait has been in a state of intoxication when on duty in the field? No, I do not, of my own knowledge; I have heard so.
3494. Do you know that he has been absent from his duties in consequence of excess in drink at any time? I have heard so.
3495. I ask if you know it? Well, I have never been over to his house when he has been ill. It has been stated in the office that drink was the cause.
3496. You know he has been the worse of liquor when he ought to have been employed on his duties in the office? Yes.
3497. You know he has been unfit to perform his duties in consequence of excess in drink? Yes.
3498. Do you know that Mr. Telmon has told Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall that they have smelt like brandy-casks when they have been in the office? Not of my own knowledge; I have heard it stated; that must have taken place after I left the long-room.
3499. While you were in the long-room were they in the habit of using chloride of lime, to disguise the smell of liquor? I have seen it used on two occasions.
3500. The small room that has been alluded to as the room to which Mr. Hall and Mr. Fearnside retired when under the influence of liquor, was the room you formerly occupied as an office? Yes.
3501. Did that room look out on the back premises of any gentleman? Yes, Dr. Macfarlane's, I think.
3502. Was the window at a convenient height—easily seen over? The sill of the window was about level with the top of the wall they had to look over.
3503. What was the distance from this window to the yard you speak of? About five or six feet.
3504. Have you heard Mr. Hall use indecent expressions to females in the yard you allude to? No, I was removed up-stairs at that time.
3505. Have you seen him make indecent motions? I have seen this.
3506. Have you seen him make indecent gestures in the office amongst his fellow draughtsmen? Yes, I have seen most abominable imitations made by him.
3507. Some of the draughtsmen in the office were very young men? Yes, my son and Mr. Mann.
3508. And you have seen indecent gestures used by Mr. Hall before these young men? Yes.
3509. And heard him use indecent language? Yes, most disgusting.
3510. Language that you do not feel yourself justified in repeating? Yes, I should not like to repeat it.
3511. You say you have not seen him enacting "Suffolk Punch"? No, I have not seen this. I have since heard what it is.
3512. By the Chairman: Of course, if any person in the office, Mr. Drewett should be considered the superior officer, from his receiving the highest pay? Yes, as regards salary alone.
3513. You do not consider yourself senior to Mr. Drewett? No, he is my senior as regards salary, but decidedly not in any other sense of the word.

Mr. N.
Trenrouse.

23 Dec., 1863.

TUESDAY, 29 DECEMBER, 1863.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. MORRIS.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Whitton, Esq., called in and examined:—

3514. By the Chairman: You are Engineer-in-Chief for Railways? I am.
3515. Do you hold any other appointment? No, no other appointment.
3516. Did you hold a similar appointment in England? I was Engineer to the Oxford, Worcester, and Wolverhampton Railway Company. Before giving evidence in this matter, I should wish to ask the Committee if they would oblige me by allowing me to see the whole of

J. Whitton,
Esq.

29 Dec., 1863.

J. Whitton, Esq.
 29 Dec., 1863. of the evidence that has been taken, or that may be taken by them, in order that I may give a general reply to the statements that have been or may be made; for it must be evident to the Committee that I cannot reply to the statements until I have the evidence before me, and I do not think I am asking too much in making this request. All the evidence having been taken on one side, I should wish to have witnesses examined before the matter is closed.

In answer to a question from the Chairman, the witness stated that he wished Messrs. Mason, Barton, Drewett, Quodling, Mackay, Telmon, Fearnside, Hall, and Micklethwait to be examined.

The witness withdrew.

The Committee deliberated.

The witness was again called in.

The Chairman stated that the Committee had come to the conclusion of leaving the main examination of the witness until the latter part of the inquiry, although they would not bind themselves not to call other witnesses subsequently, but that Mr. Dalgleish wished now to put a few questions with reference to the ordering of locomotives, and some other matters apart from the main subject.

3517. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know Mr. John Fowler, of England? I do.
3518. Is he one of the moneyed partners of Messrs. Manning, Wardell, & Co.? I am not aware that he is, and I do not believe he has any connection with them.
3519. Do you know Mr. John Leather, contractor? Yes.
3520. Do you know if he is one of the moneyed partners in the firm of Manning, Wardell, & Co.? Not that I am aware of; and so far as my knowledge extends, I have no idea that he has any connection with them in any shape. I may observe that I am not on intimate terms with Mr. Leather; I have not met him perhaps more than half-a-dozen times; I have simply met him accidentally.
3521. Was the order for the last bogie engines sent to Messrs. Manning, Wardell, & Co.? Yes.
3522. What was the price of those engines? I do not know. I can ascertain from the office. £2,500 each.
3523. Was the workmanship on them good? I believe it is; I have had no serious complaint; I have heard that some of the buckles for the springs were defective, and some other slight defects, which is often the case in new engines.
3524. Are Manning, Wardell, & Co. considered to be first-rate makers? They are.
3525. How many engines have been imported direct from them to this Colony for the public service? That I cannot tell without reference, but I think about ten.
3526. Have these engines been completed for your orders sent direct to that firm? Yes, orders sent direct to that firm.
3527. Is Mr. John Fowler the gentleman who examines the locomotive engines for this Colony? Yes.
3528. If he is a moneyed partner in that firm do you think it proper he should be so? If I had had the least suspicion of such a thing, I should not have ordered them from those works, but I do not believe he has anything to do with that Company, and from the fact that I know he is one of the proprietors of large iron works near to Chesterfield. I believe the whole of his time is taken up by them and in the practice of his profession.
3529. I am given to understand that Mr. John Fowler is one of the moneyed partners of Manning, Wardell, & Co.? I do not believe anything of the sort.
3530. Have you any reason to disbelieve it? Well, I have no reason to disbelieve it any more than I may have to disbelieve any other statement that may be made to me with reference to the private transactions of any other person.
3531. Do you know of any reason whatever why he should not be? I know of no reason why he should not be—
3532. It is not a dishonorable thing? I see no dishonor in being connected with a large firm, but I do not believe anything of the sort. I believe the statement to be utterly untrue. It is the first time I ever heard of it, or had the least idea of anything of the kind.
3533. By Mr. Morris: If Mr. Fowler had been a partner, do you think it likely you would have heard of it? I think so, for I know of most of Mr. Fowler's transactions, and I never heard anything of the kind. I do not think Mr. John Fowler has anything to do with these works, but I can ascertain, and I will do so.
3534. By Mr. Dalgleish: From what firm was the Menangle Bridge ordered? Messrs. Peto, Brassey, & Co.
3535. Was it tendered for by large firms in England? No.
3536. Were tenders called for it? No, an arrangement was made with their agent here for building the masonry for the Menangle Bridge, and I wished to arrange with him the price for the iron-work; but he said he was not aware what the cost would be, and preferred leaving it to his firm in England, to be decided by them. He asked that some one should be appointed on behalf of Government to arrange the price.
3537. Who was so appointed? Mr. John Fowler. Mr. Fowler was not appointed direct from the Colony, but by Captain Galton, R.E., to assist him in making these arrangements in England. He was not appointed by the Government, or with my knowledge.
3538. Were the designs for the bridge made here? Yes.
3539. Who made them? They were made under my superintendance.
3540. Who made them? Mr. Drewett.
3541. Have you the original sketches? The original drawings are in the office.
3542. Were not rough drawings made, in the first instance, for your approbation? No; the drawings of the bridge generally were sent them, with instructions that the bridge should be —

3543. I think you misunderstand me—were there no rough designs or drawings made of this bridge, in the first instance, before you approved of one ultimately? I have no doubt there were. J. Whitton,
Esq.
3544. Are they in existence? That I do not know. 29 Dec., 1863.
3545. Should they be in existence? I do not think it is at all necessary. In making drawings of bridges, many designs are frequently made before the exact drawing is decided upon; but I do not think many sketches were made in this instance.
3546. Of this bridge you say you have the original drawings, and that they were made by Mr. Drewett? The original drawing for the bridge—are you speaking of the iron-work or the masonry?
3547. The iron-work? The detail drawings for the iron-work were made in London.
3548. Will you explain what the detail drawings are? I consider the detail drawings of the iron-work to be the strength, size, and arrangement of all the plates in the bridge, and the manner in which they are to be put together.
3549. Do you allow matters of that importance to be done out of your department, and without your concurrence? The arrangement with Mr. Fowler is this, that he is to provide the whole of the detail drawings and specifications, and they are to be done to his satisfaction; it was therefore unnecessary for me to prepare working drawings here.
3550. Is that included in his commission? Yes.
3551. What commission does he receive? Two and a half per cent. on iron girder bridges and on rolling stock, and one per cent. permanent way materials.
3552. The Menangle Bridge would be included in the iron girder bridges? Yes.
3553. In what iron-works is Mr. Fowler largely interested? He is interested in the iron-works at Whittington, near to Chesterfield.
3554. What manufactures are carried on there? Armour plates for ships.
3555. Bridges? Not that I am aware of.
3556. Is the Menangle Bridge unusually heavy for a structure of that kind? I do not think it is; it is a strong bridge; but I think there are bridges on other lines quite as heavy as the Menangle Bridge.
3557. The same weight per foot? Yes, as nearly as possible, with less spans.
3558. Would that be any criterion of the justness of the proportions of this bridge? No, but it would shew that other bridges are made of the same strength.
3559. Do not bridges require to be made heavy in proportion to the badness of the quality of the iron? On the assumption that bad iron is ever used in bridges, it is so.
3560. If there is good, better, and best in iron, there must be some iron used in bridges better than others? Yes, and I should assume that the iron used in the Menangle Bridge is the best.
3561. Have you any reason to assume that it is so? I have nothing to give me the impression that it is not.
3562. Have you any reason to assume that it is the best? I assume that it is the best, from having passed the inspection of Mr. Fowler in London, and I have seen nothing since the bridge came out to lead me to a contrary belief.
3563. In what way did you try this bridge? I tested it with locomotive engines.
3564. In what way? The arrangement was simply this: that two loads were taken over the bridge; there were two lines of way; on one line of way there were two locomotives and a train of wagons, on the other line three other locomotives, which were stationary. The locomotives with the train of ballast wagons ran at a speed of twenty miles an hour over the bridge, and the deflection taken with a spirit level, and also by means of a wire stretched across the bridge.
3565. What length of the span did this occupy? The whole span. I tried the three different spans, and the locomotives extended nearly over the whole span at each opening.
3566. How many tons weight was there upon each opening? About 236 tons.
3567. Will you also state how many tons that would be upon every foot in the length of the span? I think the rolling load is about three tons.*
3568. I want both the stationary and rolling loads? The stationary load 0·70 tons per foot run; the rolling load about 0·80 tons per foot run.
3569. Can you tell me what is the maximum proof for the plates and angle-irons of every square inch section of the openings of the bridge? About twenty-five tons per square inch before fracture.
3570. Will you also tell me what is the weight of the bridge and permanent way over each span? About 362 tons.
3571. What strain of tons per square inch section of the iron does the weight of the bridge, including the permanent way, cause in the bottom plates of the centre span, between the piers? A little more than two and a quarter tons.
3572. What was the greatest strain on the three middle bottom plates, owing to the testing load you put upon the bridge? 354 tons, exclusive of the weight of the bridge and permanent way.
3573. Can you tell the maximum of strain in tons per square inch section of iron on the bottom plates, in the middle of the central span of the Menangle Bridge, during the time it was tested by you? I think about three tons; I cannot speak from memory.†
3574. What do you argue from the deflection;—you say the deflection was very little—is that any sure test of the strength of the bridge? I think so.
3575. Do the best engineers of the present day agree with you in that opinion? I believe they do.

3576.

* Revised.—The effective rolling load was rather more than a ton and a half per foot.

† Revised.—A little more than three tons and three-quarters.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
29 Dec., 1863.
3576. Is there not great difference between the strength and stiffness of a bridge? Strength means stiffness as well. If a bridge be stiff it will be strong.
3577. In all instances? Yes, I think in all.
3578. Is not the deflection that is shewn by a load passing over a bridge an indication of stiffness only? Yes.
3579. Is it an indication of anything else? Yes, it is an indication of strength also.
3580. Am I to understand that you consider, then, that it is impossible for one wrought-iron bridge to be weaker than another, and at the same time not to deflect so much as this? It would depend upon the weight of the iron, and the way the bridge was put together. It is quite clear that with large deflection there must be considerable motion every time a train passes over the bridge, and that this has a tendency to destroy the * bridge.
3581. Is the rivetting of the Menangle Bridge a weak part of that bridge? I do not think it is.
3582. Have you given any thought to that matter? Yes.
3583. You consider the rivetting of the Menangle Bridge equally strong with the other portions? Yes. I think it is an exceedingly strong bridge altogether.
3584. Is the rivetting strong in proportion to the bridge? I think it is.
3585. What is the amount of rivet bearing in the section through the bottom plates, where they are connected with each other? That I do not remember.
3586. Did you ever go into it? Yes, I have gone into the whole strength of the bridge repeatedly.
3587. Will you be kind enough to state what it is? The sectional area of the rivets in the bottom cells is about forty-five inches.
3588. Can you tell the proper proportion between rivet bearing and available plate bearing, so as to ensure equal strength in the plates and jointings? The proportion used in bridges is about one to four.
3589. There are common rules for all these things—are there not? † Yes; but it is impossible for me to carry the details of all the works I am engaged upon, in my head, and to answer questions at a moment's notice.
3590. Does not the same rule that applies to the strength of the Menangle Bridge apply to all others? To all iron bridges of the same proportion and design.
3591. It is iron bridges we are considering—can you tell us what amount of tensile strain in tons per square inch section of iron will extend throughout iron plates, to the limits of their elasticity? About fifteen tons, ‡ without injuring the iron; §
3592. Is it the practice of engineers to design wrought-iron girder bridges, so that the weight of the bridge with the permanent way and an additional load of a ton and a half per foot run distributed over the whole length of the bridge, would cause at most only a quarter of an ultimate bearing strain upon any square inch section of the iron? There is no invariable rule with engineers. I never found two engineers adopt the same system.
3593. Has not Fairbairn ——? Fairbairn is now out of date; he wrote in 1850 or 1851. It has been found necessary since that time greatly to increase the areas of Fairbairn.
3594. Is Macquorne Rankine considered a first-rate authority? As a professor of mathematics.
3595. Are not his rules followed in practice? I do not think they are.
3596. Have not Fairbairn's bridges been found to be too heavy? I do not know that they have.
3597. Have they not often been found fault with for being too heavy—has he not been considered a massive bridge builder? || Sometimes he may have been found fault with, and the reason may have been because he made his own bridges, and he might have been suspected of making them heavier than necessary in order to increase the amount of the contract. It is now found necessary to increase very considerably the areas of Fairbairn's formula.
3598. What are the respective areas of the bottom and top booms and angle-irons taken at the centre of the span? About 119 inches each.
3599. Have you ever known Fairbairn to advocate such scantling of iron as is placed in the Menangle Bridge? I say it has been found necessary to increase considerably the area beyond the formula of Fairbairn.
3600. Can you point to any such areas? I can only point to information derived from Home.
3601. Can you place the Committee in possession of such information, as I have always understood that his work was too massive and too heavy? The only information I have is private, which I cannot place before the Committee.
3602. I am afraid the Committee will not be able to take that as an authority; you cannot give the Committee any information derived from well known authorities? I have seen no authorities on the subject.
3603. Does Fairbairn advocate such dimensions as those in the Menangle Bridge? I do not think he does. I think Fairbairn's areas are less than the areas of the Menangle Bridge.
3604. You are aware that Fairbairn has been charged with making his bridges far heavier than was necessary for the work they had to perform? I am not; I say he may have been, because he was the maker of his own bridges.
3605. He is reputed to have been the maker of these heavy bridges? It may have been so.

3606.

* INSERTED (on revision):—elasticity of the material in the † Revised:—Yes, but it is usual to leave them to the manufacturer, who is well acquainted with all such details.

‡ Revised:—From about eight to fifteen tons.

§ ADDED (on revision):—dependent, of course, upon its quality.

|| Revised:—I am not aware that he has.

3606. Can you point to any scientific work or formula for bridges where the weight is greater than in those of Fairbairn's? I do not know that I can; I have not referred to any for the purpose. J. Whitton, Esq.
3607. Will you refer? I will see if I can find anything of the kind, but it has not occurred to me to look for it. 29 Dec., 1863.
3608. If Fairbairn gives the heaviest formula and makes the heaviest bridges, and this bridge is heavier than his, what is the inference? I am not aware that Fairbairn makes the heaviest or strongest bridges. I believe many makers in England make heavier bridges.
3609. Can you point to any who have made bridges heavier in proportion to the span than the Menangle Bridge? I think I can find weights equal to the Menangle Bridge.
3610. You say Macquorne Rankine is only a theorist? I believe he is; he never built a bridge that I heard of. The only bridge that I know of that was built by a professor was over the Severn, at Worcester, and that had to be* re-constructed and made heavier.
3611. Was that a railway bridge made by Macquorne Rankine? No, built by Professor Gordon.
3612. Is not Macquorne Rankine considered an authority in railway works? He is an able mathematician.
3613. Is he not considered an authority in proportion and strength of materials? He is considered an able mathematician.
3614. That is not the question—I ask you whether he is not considered an authority as to the proportion and strength of materials, and quoted largely by every engineer in Europe? I do not know that he is; I know that he is considered a very able man, but whether his formulæ are ever acted upon I do not know.
3615. You see his works quoted by every engineer of eminence in the present time with reference to the construction of their works—do you not? I have not seen that; I never saw his name quoted by an engineer.
3616. Is his name quoted on the Transactions of Civil Engineers, on many occasions? Not that I am aware of. As an authority upon the strength of plates I have not seen it.
3617. Do Macquorne Rankine's proportions in any way approach the proportions of the iron-work placed in the Menangle Bridge? I do not know; I never saw his proportions.
3618. Are you acquainted with him as an author? No, excepting so far as I have seen reports in different journals and notices of his books.
3619. What is the entire weight of iron in the 486 feet of the Menangle Bridge? The total weight is about 960 tons.
3620. Do you acknowledge Herbert Latham as an authority upon weight or proportion for bridges? No, I do not.
3621. Do you acknowledge Hodgkinson as an authority? Yes.
3622. Do you acknowledge Tait as an authority? Yes, he is† an authority ‡
3623. Are you aware whether any one of these engineers, in calculating the strength of bridges, or in making designs for bridges, have designed plate girder bridges for spans of 150 feet which are less than half the weight upon every foot run? § There never was a bridge built with the same span of half the weight ||or anything approaching to it. With reference to the authorities you quote—Tait and others—they are possibly great mathematicians, but they never built bridges; they are authorities merely as writers.
3624. Is Hodgkinson only a writer? He is only a mathematician; he never built a bridge in his life.
3625. Did he not assist Stephenson in every bridge he built? Yes,¶
3626. Did he not assist Fairbairn? Yes; he worked out the whole of the calculations, but he never built a bridge.
3627. In what way can you say a man who assisted in building the Menai Bridge—one of the greatest works of our times—is not an authority upon weight and proportion in bridge building? There is a vast difference between making experiments and making formulæ to calculate the strength of bridges, and being practically engaged in the construction of bridges. He simply makes out certain formulæ from experiments.
3628. Having had this experience—having had an opportunity of testing iron in this way, and in this way making himself an authority among engineers—having had an experience such as engineers can never obtain—can you point to any engineer having the unquestionable knowledge on this subject that Hodgkinson possessed? Engineers would have the advantage of the experience they would gain from the failure of bridges.
3629. How many instances of that kind can you point out—of wrought-iron bridges that have been built and proved failures? One over the Severn, at Worcester.
3630. That was found necessary to be strengthened, and was built by a professor of whom I never heard before? Professor Gordon.
3631. Have I quoted his name? No.
3632. Is he acknowledged as an authority equal to any of the names I have quoted? I believe he is as good a mathematician as most of them.
3633. Has he had as good opportunities of obtaining practical information as Hodgkinson? No man in the world I believe has.

3634.

* Revised :—Strengthened before being opened for traffic.

† INSERTED (on revision) :—considered

‡ ADDED (on revision) :—on mathematical formulæ.

§ Revised :—I never knew, &c.

|| INSERTED (on revision) :—for a double line of railway,

¶ ADDED (on revision) :—in making experiments only.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
29 Dec., 1863.
3634. Hodgkinson, at the Menai Bridge, had opportunities which no other man in the world could have obtained for testing the strength of iron? With the exception of Clarke.
3635. I am perfectly willing to take Clarke as an authority—will you give the sections that these engineers give as necessary to bridge over spans of 150 feet, the weight of the bridge per foot run calculated from their formulæ, and the weight of the Menangle Bridge per foot run, side by side? I will do so if I can; at the same time I must say, before my evidence had been taken on this matter I think I should have seen the other evidence that has been taken, in order that I might reply to it.*
3636. I am asking these questions not in consequence of any evidence given here, but in consequence of statements I have made in the House with regard to the strength of the Menangle Bridge; and I think it necessary, now the matter is before the Committee, to justify the course I have taken: if you object to the examination I will not pursue it? I have no objection.
3637. Are you aware that Macquorne Rankine, H. Latham, Tait, Hodgkinson, Clarke, and most of the great calculating and practical engineers in Europe, have designed plate-girder bridges for spans of 150 feet, which are something less in weight than one ton for every foot in length of the bridge? I never heard of such a thing.
3638. It is possible? I do not think it is, to make a safe bridge.
3639. Will you look at these authorities, and see whether they have not given this formula? I will, if I have them; I have not got them all, I know.
3640. Are you aware that iron bridges for spans of 150 feet, when designed according to strict scientific principles, will bear a weight of 230 tons, and weigh only 160 tons? I am not.
3641. And not have a particle of the material strained or crushed beyond the elasticity of the iron? I am not aware of it.
3642. Is it not the fact, that when inferior iron is used in girder bridges, it becomes necessary to have the thickness greater than would be necessary were the iron of superior quality? No doubt—to obtain the same strength of bridge.
3643. Are you aware that the testing weight put upon the Menangle Bridge is entirely inadequate to determine whether the iron was the worst or best quality? It would not be desirable to make such a test.
3644. Is it not usual? No; I never knew a bridge with the same spans tested with the same weight as that put upon the Menangle Bridge.
3645. Was not the weight with which the Menai tube was tested greater, in proportion to the span, than that with which the Menangle Bridge was tested? I am not aware what the loads were; but a far heavier strain was put upon this bridge than is ever likely to be put upon it in practice.†
3646. The best iron will bear a strain of twenty-two tons per square inch section, and the inferior will break under a strain of sixteen tons? It depends entirely upon the quality; it may be very bad or inferior quality, and very bad iron would not stand such a strain.
3647. Very bad is not used in bridges? No.
3648. I am supposing the case of such iron as is usually employed in bridge building—the best and inferior quality so used: would you be willing to load the Menangle Bridge to cause a strain of sixteen tons? I should be very sorry.‡ You could not test the bridge without destroying the fibre of the iron.
3649. Not if it is the best iron? No; I never knew a bridge to be tested to that strain. The plates may be tested at that strain before they are put into the bridge.
3650. Did you test the plates before they were put into the bridge? No, they were tested by Mr. Fowler, in England.
3651. Did it never occur to you to test these plates, when the bridge was of such a remarkably heavy character? I did not look upon the bridge as of enormous strength or enormous weight.§
3652. My opinion is, that it is a bridge of enormous weight, and I should like you to furnish the Committee with the names or positions of any bridges of similar weight? I think I can find you one in Victoria about the same.||
3653. I would rather you went somewhere else than to Victoria—I believe that is one of the worst places you can go to. You say Mr. Drewett designed this? Yes, under my superintendence he made the drawings of it.
3654. Who was it designed the bridge? I designed it.
3655. I understood you to say that Mr. Drewett designed it? He made the drawings under my superintendence; nothing is done except under my superintendence in my office.
- 3656.

* NOTE (on revision):—According to Clarke, the top and bottom areas would be 216 inches, and depth of girder 9 feet 6 inches. According to Fairbairn, the top and bottom areas would be 158½ inches, and depth of girder 11 feet 6 inches. Specification sent to England by me for this bridge states that the breaking weight of the bridge was to be 1,800 tons, and the total depth 11 feet 6 inches, which would give a sectional area of top and bottom of 158½ inches. The top and bottom areas of the Menangle Bridge are 233 inches, and depth 12 feet 6 inches.

† NOTE (on revision):—I find that the test employed at the Britannia Bridge, by Captain Simmons, Government Inspector, consisted of a train of coal wagons, weighing 248 tons, being a little more than half a ton per foot of span. The test employed at the Menangle Bridge was one and a half ton per foot of span.

‡ Revised:—You could not test the bridge with a weight equal to sixteen tons per square inch, without running a great risk of destroying the elasticity of the iron.

§ Revised:—I did not look upon the bridge as of such enormous strength or enormous weight as to require any further test than that applied to it.

|| NOTE (on revision):—Turndale Viaduct, Victoria, weighs 1 ton 19 cwt. per lineal foot, with a span of 120 feet. Bridge over Salt Water River, at Melbourne, weighs 2¼ tons per lineal foot, with a span of 200 feet.

3656. I am not speaking of superintendence? I order the drawings to be made of a bridge of certain strength and certain proportions. J. Whitton, Esq.
3657. You did not furnish a design to Mr. Drewett to work to, but told him to make a bridge of certain strength and certain proportions? Yes. 29 Dec., 1863.
3658. Then do I understand you to say that you did not design the bridge? I gave the strength and proportion.
3659. By Mr. Morris: You did not sketch it? I put it upon a piece of paper.
3660. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is not a sketch of this nature a matter of some importance? I do not know that it is a matter of much importance; it is simply put upon a piece of paper, and sent up-stairs.
3661. I presume it would be done on paper. If Mr. Drewett makes a bridge at variance with the design you have given him, is it not important that the sketch with the sizes and weights marked upon it should be kept, in order that Mr. Drewett might be shewed where he had erred? The drawings never go out without my supervision. I did not make the detail drawings of this bridge, that is, of the iron-work, for, as I have already stated, they were not made in this Colony.
3662. Did you not give him the size and strength, the cross-section and length, and a rough outline of the design? Yes.
3663. Is not that original sketch or drawing among the papers of the office? No, certainly not.
3664. Ought it not to be there? I think not. I make* thirty or forty sketches a day of things to be done.
3665. Till you have decided what is to be done: but after you have decided, and a certain design has been drawn out, is that allowed to be thrown into the waste paper basket? The sketches are not kept; they never are.
3666. Do you think they ought not to be kept? I never saw them kept in my life. The drawings themselves are in the office, and can be referred to; the sketches are simply for the information of the draughtsman at the time.
3667. By the Chairman: After the drawing is made, the sketches may be destroyed? They always are.
3668. They are kept till the drawing is made? Yes.
3669. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was the drawing and original sketch returned to you when Mr. Drewett had finished with them? The drawing was brought to me.
3670. Not the original sketch? I do not remember.
3671. You did not compare the drawing with the original sketch, to see if Mr. Drewett had carried out your instructions? I do not remember. With regard to the iron-work, we did not make detail drawings in the Colony, simply because Mr. Fowler was paid to do so, and no man has had more experience of wrought-iron girder bridges than he has; it would therefore have been useless to make detail drawings in the Colony.
3672. Did it never occur to you that you ought to have had the interest of the Colony in consideration as much as or more than Mr. Fowler? No man has shown more interest in the Colony than myself.
3673. Mr. Fowler has a direct interest in making the bridge heavy? I do not think he has.
3674. Does he not get a commission, and the more tons weight the more the commission? Yes.
3675. There could be no such unconscious influence to operate upon you, in making out the details of the bridge as might bear upon Mr. Fowler; you must admit that a person having a pecuniary interest in a matter of the sort may, unconsciously to himself, be prejudiced? I do not think so. I should be sorry to impute anything of the kind to Mr. Fowler, or to any upright man.
3676. I am not imputing anything to Mr. Fowler; but it is possible for a person interested in this way to look more favourably upon a bridge that would bring him a larger amount of commission than another? I do not think an honest man would do so.
3677. Such an influence could not have had weight with you? † Nor do I think anything of the kind entered into Mr. Fowler's head.
3678. Does it not occur to you that the contractors, Messrs. Peto & Company, have a direct interest in making the bridge as heavy as possible? They have an interest in making it heavy; ‡
3679. Did you not think that you, being placed between the public and the contractor, ought to have furnished the detail of this bridge, to secure the public interest? No, I did not think so. Mr. Fowler having been appointed to act for the Colony, it was no part of my duty; and, as I said before, it would not be possible to have a person better qualified to judge of such a bridge than Mr. Fowler.
3680. Will you furnish the Committee with a copy of the instructions Mr. Fowler has received from the Colony? I am not certain that Mr. Fowler has received any instructions from the Colony.
3681. Will you furnish the Committee with a copy of the letter that was sent to Mr. Fowler, when the drawings for the bridge or the order for the bridge was sent them? Yes.§
3682. Have not the contractors a direct interest in making the bridge heavy? Upon the assumption that they were paid so much a ton no doubt they would have, but they were paid a lump sum for the bridge, which was £29,000, and not at per ton.

3683.

* Revised:—numerous

† Revised:—Nor do I think anything of the kind had with Mr. Fowler.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—but they had nothing to do with designing it.

§ NOTE (on revision):—Specification and copy of letter to Mr. Fowler appended. (Vide Appendix.)

J. Whitton,
Esq.

29 Dec., 1863.

3683. Were there no calculations made for the bridge of so much per ton? I do not know what calculations they made; I say their contract was for a lump sum.
3684. The designs would be furnished to these people? Yes.
3685. And they would know the weight? Yes.
3686. The weight could be calculated to a pound? Yes, but whether the thickness of the plates they put in would increase the price I cannot say. It might* suit their convenience to put in heavier iron than was necessary, because they might have the iron on the ground from a previous contract; it does not follow that they increased the price.
3687. Then my impression that the bridge was built for the purpose of clearing an iron yard might be correct? Yes, possibly it might; and on the opposite side, your impression that they increased the strength of the bridge to increase the price might be incorrect.
3688. If they increased the weight on account of the quality of the iron, did they not decrease the strength? I think not.
3689. Cannot you make a bridge so heavy as to weaken it? Yes, and you may make it so light that it will tumble down.
3690. If it tumble down before it is built it is not a bridge? But it might tumble down after.
3691. You say you think the rivets are strong enough in proportion to the plates? I think they are.
3692. Did I ask you if you would be willing to load the bridge at sixteen tons to the square inch? Yes.
3693. Do you think if the plates would withstand that weight the rivets would? It is a test no one would think of putting upon any bridge. You could not put such a test upon the best kind of iron without† destroying the iron.
3694. I think I can shew you that tests of that kind have been applied? ‡I never heard of such a thing in my life. No one would test beyond four to five tons per square inch.
3695. Who calculated the weight of iron-works for bridges during Capt. Martindale's time? I am not certain that I did not take them out myself; I think I did.
3696. Mr. Gardiner did not do it? I do not think he did.
3697. Did he take out any of them? Mr. Gardiner simply made drawings from sketches given to him; he had nothing whatever to do with designing any of the bridges. Mr. Gardiner, I think, made a drawing of a wrought-iron girder bridge, but it was never used nor was the drawing ever completed.
3698. Did Mr. Gardiner make drawings of such bridges as enabled him to get at the weight of the iron-works of intended bridges? I do not think he did. I know there are very few wrought-iron girder bridges in the whole of these lengths. I may explain Mr. Gardiner may have made a sketch of one or more wrought-iron bridge, but I am not clear that he did.
3699. What was Mr. Gardiner employed upon in the office in the first instance? In making drawings, and very rough ones they are, of the viaducts for the different extensions; but the whole of the strengths were given to Mr. Gardiner, and the general form of the viaduct to be adopted.
3700. Have you the drawings or the sketches you gave Mr. Gardiner to make the other drawings from? They never are kept in any engineer's office in the world. Original sketches are never|| given out of the office.
3701. They are the original designs which are given to the draughtsman to make the complete drawing of? The sketch for the original design is never kept.
3702. I have always known them to be kept? My experience is the reverse.
3703. So there is nothing now to shew whether Gardiner was employed upon such calculations or not? There are these drawings.
3704. They will not shew whether you supplied him with the information, or whether he was employed to make the sketches and calculations himself? If my statement cannot be taken I can call sufficient witnesses to shew it.
3705. I am not questioning your statement; I ask you if there is any record in existence? No, but I can bring sufficient witnesses.
3706. You say you always gave him instructions concerning the dimensions and details of the iron-work? I am not speaking of iron bridges.
3707. It was iron bridges I was talking about? I said in reply to that, that I was not aware that there were more than two bridges, if there were two, on the whole length of the extension; and I have no recollection that Mr. Gardiner made the detail drawings of them, nor do I believe he did.
3708. If Mr. Gardiner did make the detail drawings of them, did you furnish him with the information and details to make them from? Not of the iron-work, but I do not think any were made.
3709. They were not made, but were intended to be made for a first-class line? I believe such drawings were never made.
3710. Did Mr. Gardiner ever ask you for instructions about these bridges? I do not think he did, simply because the instructions were given by Mr. Barton—not for the iron-work—do not misunderstand me—I believe the only drawings made for a wrought-iron bridge were made by Mr. Barton.
3711. Then you have not any of the calculations that were made by Mr. Gardiner for iron bridges, in the office? If we have they are here.

3712.

* INSERTED (on revision):—(in consequence of the loss of two spans of this bridge at sea), in order to save time,

† Revised:—in some degree injuring it.

‡ Revised:—I never heard of such a thing. I should think no practical man would test beyond four to five tons per square inch of section.

|| Revised:—never kept in the office.

3712. The calculations? Not the calculations. I have no calculations of Mr. Gardiner's; I have no recollection of them, nor do I believe he made them for these bridges. J. Whitton, Esq.
3713. You have no papers to shew that Mr. Gardiner was employed in any such way in your office? There is only one sketch for a wrought-iron bridge of 120 feet span. It was never completed, nor do I believe that any quantities were got out for it* 29 Dec., 1863.
3714. You are not aware that the quantities were got out? I can only see from the drawings; if they are not upon the drawings they were not got out.
3715. You do not remember any conversation you had with Mr. Gardiner about the weight of these bridges? No, certainly not.
3716. Have you any recollection of suggesting to him that 50 per cent. should be added to the weight? Never. Why should 50 per cent. be added to the weight?
3717. I presume you thought it was too light? Never in my life. Mr. Gardiner would not have been the person I should have consulted if I had wished for information upon that subject.
3718. Was Mr. Gardiner employed in the long-room on his first engagement? I think he was.
3719. Did you visit that office often? Yes.
3720. Two or three times a week? Sometimes two or three times a day.
3721. Have you visited the long drawing-room frequently lately? No.
3722. Two or three times a year? When I have found it necessary.
3723. I say have you visited it two or three times a year? It might be more; I may have visited it two or three times a month, or I might not. When I found it necessary.
3724. You do not remember anything particular about Mr. Gardiner at that time—any conversation you might have had with him, with regard to American surveying or American engineering? I never had any conversation with him of that kind in my life. He spoke to me about the experience he had had in America; that was the only conversation I had with him with reference to anything of the kind, and that was at the time I engaged him.
3725. Did he not speak to you of some superior mode of surveying to that employed in the Colony? He never spoke to me about anything of the kind. From my experience of the work done by him I should think he was the last person who would do so.
3726. Did he say anything about railway curves at that time? No.
3727. You never had any conversation with him about railway curves? Never.
3728. You never told him you would not be dictated to by him? Never. I should think it a piece of great impertinence in him if he were to attempt to do so.
3729. You never had any conversation with regard to the establishing of an Institute for Civil Engineers in the Colony? Never; he told me he wanted to get a lectureship in some institution if he could.
3730. Did you examine Mr. Gardiner, prior to his being admitted into your department, in the first instance? No, I do not think I made any particular examination of Mr. Gardiner. I asked him a few questions about staking out curves.
3731. You had some conversation with him about laying out curves? Staking them out simply—in reference to his knowledge whether he could stake out a curve.
3732. Do you remember the questions you ask candidates for admission into your office? No.
3733. Did Mr. Gardiner answer your questions satisfactorily? Yes, he gave the formula for setting out a curve.
3734. Did he give a formula you were acquainted with? I suppose he did, or I should have asked him the question again.
3735. Did he shew you a short method of calculating tangents to curves? Not that I am aware of.
3736. Did he not shew you a new method he had of calculating? No, I remember no new method at all; I saw he could make the calculations for it.
3737. Did he not offer to calculate lines by two methods during the time you were calculating one by the old? Nothing of the sort.
3738. Was it part of your examination of Mr. Gardiner at that time to ask him if he had ever known an honest contractor? Never; I never said such a thing to Mr. Gardiner.
3739. If Mr. Gardiner has stated so he was wrong? Decidedly; why should I talk to Mr. Gardiner of dishonest contractors?
3740. You are aware you advertised for engineers who could stand an examination, and that if they stood an examination satisfactorily to you, they would get permanent situations? I am not aware of that. The advertisement was put in because at that time it was understood that we should go on with the extensions. When it was afterwards determined the works were not to be gone on with, I made no further examination.
3741. Did you recommend Mr. Gardiner for a situation in the Lands Department? I think there was an application for a surveyor. I am not positive whether Mr. Gardiner applied to me, but I think I wrote a minute to the effect that I had no doubt Mr. Gardiner would do his work satisfactorily.
3742. Did you give Mr. Gardiner an excellent character prior to his leaving? No, not very. I said his work had been done satisfactorily, but it was very simple work.
3743. Did you consider his work to be satisfactory? Yes; they were rough drawings to enable the quantities to be taken out, and his calculations were correct.
3744. That was all that was required? Yes; but when I came to examine them afterwards I was astonished to see in what a round-about way the quantities were taken out.
3745. Was not Mr. Gardiner quick at that work? I am not aware.

3746.

* ADDED (on revision) :—by Mr. Gardiner.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
29 Dec., 1863.
3746. What do you mean by a round-about way of taking out the quantities? Going through a great amount of algebraic formula without any necessity.
3747. Perhaps you will point out what you mean by a round-about way of taking out these quantities? They are written on the sections.
3748. Will you refer to any particular drawing, and point out where it is so? (The witness referred to several drawings.) There are a number of dimensions here that will shew it.
3749. Will you specify the drawing? It is marked No. 13; it is the drawing of a viaduct.
3750. Will you point out the round-about mode in which the calculations are made? I say there are far more figures than are necessary—by taking out the average width of the piers the quantity might be arrived at.
3751. Is it more than necessary to shew the quantity of work in the entire viaduct? *Yes, I could have taken out the quantities with one-tenth of the figures.
3752. By the Chairman: Could you have taken them out in one-tenth of the time? I do not know the time that was occupied in taking them out.
3753. By Mr. Dalgleish: Could you have taken them out in a shorter time than Mr. Gardiner was engaged in calculating them? I do not know how long he was.
3754. Is it more fully carried out here than it would be by any first-class engineer? I do not know what a first-class engineer might do; I should not use so many figures.
3755. Are these pencil figures by Mr. Gardiner? I suppose they are.
3756. They are not your figures checking his calculations? No.
3757. Nor any officer of your department? I do not think so.
3758. Then the only fault you have to find with this is, that Mr. Gardiner has gone more fully into the matter than he need to have done? I found no fault with Mr. Gardiner. You were speaking of a mode by which he could take out the quantities quickly, and I said that more figures were used here than were necessary.
3759. Could you have given Mr. Gardiner a better character than the one you gave him? I gave him a good character; I had no fault to find with Mr. Gardiner then. When he was in the department the work he was engaged upon was simply making these drawings, the dimensions of which were all given to him. I do not think I had a word with Mr. Gardiner during the time he was in the department.
3760. You say Mr. Gardiner was very correct? I say I believe he was generally correct. I have checked his calculations, and I think there are some errors marked in some of these drawings; but any man is apt to make some mistakes in taking out from drawings of this kind.
3761. By the Chairman: They are mere errors in calculation? That is all, or it might be an error in the dimensions.
3762. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were the drawings of the Nepean Bridge made here? Yes.
3763. Were the quantities taken here? The quantities of masonry were taken out here.
3764. The detail drawings? Not the details of every plate.
3765. It was not the details of every plate you alluded to when you spoke of the Menangle Bridge? I had no details at all of the Menangle Bridge.
3766. Did you ever know a drawing made out with the detail of every plate upon it? Those drawings I furnished the other day had the detail of every plate. Engineers, as a rule, very seldom give more than the general plans and areas.
3767. And rivet bearings? No, I think not; that is generally left with the manufacturers.
3768. Is not that mentioned in the specification—the rivet bearing? I think not.
3769. Is not that an important matter? Yes, no doubt; but it is concluded that the men whose special business it is to manufacture these bridges are fully acquainted with these details.
3770. Is it not the object of a specification to leave nothing to possibility or chance? † It is, for a person has been appointed in England whose duty it is to inspect the work before it is sent out, and therefore nothing is left to chance.
3771. Who has the contract for the last locomotives that were sent for from here? Stephenson has got the contract for nine, and Byers, Peacock, & Company for the other nine.
3772. At what prices? I think the prices are £2,450 each at the works.
3773. Is not engine-work dearer at the present moment in Great Britain than it has been for the previous six years? No; the manufacturers have very little to do. Mr. Stephenson had scarcely got an order for locomotives when he got this contract.
3774. Are not the prices of machinery higher? I have not found it so particularly.
3775. Is there any reason why Mr. Charles Fowler could not have imported these engines to this Colony at a profit? Yes, I think a very strong reason.
3776. Without any private reason, could he not have imported these engines at a profit? I think not.
3777. What is the freight? About £500 each.
3778. Would not that be a profit? No, there would be the insurance, freight, delivering in Liverpool, and delivering in Sydney.
3779. Is Mr. Fowler's commission added in the price you have given? No.
3780. It has to be added? It would have been added in any case.
3781. Is it not possible that Mr. Fowler could have made better terms with the contractor? Not at all; I believe there is not a manufacturer in England would have taken a contract from Mr. Charles Fowler.
3782. Would they not take the contract if he were backed by a merchant, and would he not have made a profit on the engine? No merchant would back him.
3783. Would these engines cost as much as these merchants were assured by persons in your department they would? The cost was never mentioned to merchants by me.

3784.

* Revised:—No, but

† Revised:—Yes, but in this instance

3784. By the Chairman: You say the cost was never mentioned to merchants—to whom do you refer? I presume Mr. Dalgleish alluded to Messrs. Willis, Merry, & Company. Mr. Willis came to me and asked me if I thought he could get them out at the price mentioned in the tender. I said he had no business to ask that question, that I would give no opinion about the engines, nor did I give any. J. Whitton,
Esq.
29 Dec., 1863.
3785. Do you know whether Mr. Rae had any conversation with Messrs. Willis, Merry, & Company? Mr. Rae was present when I was speaking to Mr. Willis. Mr. Willis called upon Mr. Rae, and Mr. Rae sent for me. I expressed no opinion as to the worth of the engines or as to Mr. Fowler's ability to get them out.
3786. Have you heard whether Mr. Rae had any other interview with Messrs. Willis, Merry, & Company? Not that I am aware of.
3787. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you any reason to suppose that Mr. Gardiner is a person of quarrelsome disposition? I have every reason to suppose it.
3788. From your own knowledge? Of my own knowledge I have seen little of it.
3789. At one time you saw him three or four times a week? * Of course, from the fact of Mr. Gardiner quarrelling with almost every person in the department, and of his having been dismissed from the service in Melbourne, I have sufficient reason —
3790. Are you aware that it is true that he was dismissed from Melbourne on account of his quarrelsome disposition? I can produce the whole of the documents from Melbourne.
3791. Were they sent to you? I obtained them.
3792. Will you tell how you obtained them? It is hardly necessary I should do so.
3793. Did Mr. Deering obtain them from Melbourne—did Mr. Deering go to Melbourne to obtain information in this matter? Certainly not.
3794. Are you aware of persons in your department writing letters to different people in the country, asking them to give information respecting Mr. Gardiner's moral character? I am not aware of their having made inquiry as to his moral character. The only instance I am acquainted with is, where a letter was written to Mr. Dalgleish and shewn to Mr. Holroyd.
3795. Do you state it as a matter of fact that Mr. Gardiner was discharged from Melbourne on account of being of a quarrelsome disposition? For insubordination.
3796. Insubordination does not always imply a quarrelsome disposition? It was under similar circumstances. The Committee will form their own opinion as to whether he is quarrelsome or not.
3797. You are aware that these persons who have already spoken of Mr. Gardiner, have spoken of him as a person of anything but quarrelsome disposition? Which persons are those?
3798. All those who have given evidence before the Committee? All those boys out of my office.
3799. Some boys, and one old man—is it not probable that you may get the truth from boys as well as from old men? They have told untruths in other respects, and when a person tells an untruth in one thing we may expect him to do so in another.
3800. By the Chairman: Whom are you alluding to? Robertson and Trengrouse.
3801. By Mr. Morris: Is the contract for the Nepean Bridge taken? Yes, for the bridge at Penrith.
3802. That is an iron bridge also? Yes.
3803. What is the weight of that bridge in comparison with the weight of the Menangle Bridge? I do not remember the weight of the Nepean Bridge at Penrith; I think it is about 1,200 tons.
3804. Is the relative strength of the two bridges the same? † They are proportionally strong.
3805. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is not one almost a fac simile of the other? Yes, as to design.
3806. One bridge is taken from the other? Not exactly.
3807. By Mr. Morris: The Penrith Bridge has been ordered in England? It has.
3808. Has the contract been taken for it? It has.
3809. At what rate? About £37 10s. per ton, including everything, and fixing complete.‡
3810. Is not that considerably lower than the tenders offered in the Colony? By nearly £10,000 than the lowest tender.
3811. With regard to commission agents—when an agent purchases for another, is he not paid the same per centage whether he purchases at a high or a low price? I do not know what is done in commission cases, but I apprehend you can depend only on the character of your commission agent to make purchases in the best way.
3812. By Mr. Dalgleish: If Mr. John Fowler is the owner of these large iron-works which I understand to be a manufactory for rolling plate iron, may he not have a direct interest other than that which he has in the supervision of these bridges? § Not unless he orders the iron from his own works, which I am sure he cannot.
3813. What kind of iron is manufactured at these works? Armour plates for ships.
3814. How long have the works been established? Not more than five or six years.
3815. There were few armour plates rolled six years ago? No.
3816. I think they roll a great deal of iron used in ship building? Perhaps they do.

WEDNESDAY,

* Revised:—I have formed my opinion from the fact of Mr. Gardiner quarrelling with many persons in the department, and of his having been dismissed from the Government service in Melbourne under similar circumstances. This I think is a sufficient reason for such a conclusion.

† Revised:—They were ordered by me proportionally strong.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—The total contract amount is £41,750.

§ Revised:—No, I think not.

WEDNESDAY, 13 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,
MR. MORRIS,MR. STEWART,
MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Charles Fowler, C.E., called in and examined:—

- Mr. C. Fowler, C.E.
13 Jan., 1864.
3817. By the Chairman: You are a civil engineer? Yes.
3818. How long have you been in the Colony? Nearly five years.
3819. During your residence in the Colony you have had occasion to visit the Works Department very often, I believe? Yes.
3820. Have you been in that portion of the department known by the name of the long drawing-room—a wooden building? Yes, I have been in there and made tracings of plans, and also taken quantities for contractors, to enable them to make estimates.
3821. Have you been there often? Yes, a number of times.
3822. Have you seen any drinking going on in the department? Well, I have not seen much drinking going on, because, to a certain extent, of course, it was kept out of sight whilst I was there.
3823. Have you seen any of the officers the worse for drink? Yes.
3824. Can you name any? I have seen Mr. Hall several times palpably the worse for drink.
3825. Any other? I have seen Mr. Micklethwait palpably the worse for drink several times.
3826. Have you seen any other the worse for drink? I have not seen any other clerk in the office exhibit any symptoms that I could detect of having indulged in drink.
3827. Have you seen drink brought into the office? I have seen the messengers take it in.
3828. How often—more than once? Yes, many times. I should say, however, that that was chiefly at lunch-time, about 1 o'clock.
3829. Do you know what they were taking in? Well, they generally had it in a carpet bag; I certainly have seen bottles of brandy going in.
3830. Have you seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait the worse for drink more than once? Yes, I have seen Mr. Hall several times—I should say at all events three or four times, perhaps oftener—when he was palpably the worse for drink. I have seen Mr. Micklethwait so bad in the morning, at 10 or 11 o'clock, that he was palpably the worse for drink. One afternoon in particular, I recollect seeing him the worse for drink, inasmuch as he went up to Gardiner, insulted him grossly, and challenged him to fight.
3831. Were you present? I was; I was tracing plans; he was fighting drunk, you may call it.
3832. Have you seen any performances, such as “Suffolk Punch,” or the “Scissors Grinder”? I have never seen any.
3833. Do you know an officer in the department of the name of Moody? Yes.
3834. Do you know anything of him? Mr. Moody is a man whom they employ in the capacity of a detective.
3835. Have you seen Mr. Moody watching and listening at the door, to hear what was going on inside? Yes; I will mention a particular instance:—One day I went in to see Mr. Rae on business, and coming out of his door on a sudden, I caught Mr. Moody behind the door which came out of Mr. Moody's office into Mr. Rae's office, with his pencil and paper, taking notes of the conversation which had been going on between Mr. Rae and myself. I had seen the man several times employed in that capacity during Captain Martindale's time, listening behind the doors and taking notes of conversations.
3836. Conversations which were going on in Captain Martindale's room? Yes.
3837. With any contractor or gentleman who went there to transact any business? Yes. On this occasion I complained to Mr. Arnold, and declined to see Mr. Rae in future on business. I told Mr. Arnold the reason why I declined to see Mr. Rae again on business—that I had caught this man listening behind the door and taking notes of the conversation; I told him I did not consider it a respectable way of doing business. Mr. Arnold hung down his head in silence. Some time afterwards I asked Mr. Moody who was the successful tenderer for a work three or four days after tenders were sent in; he replied to me, “None of your people.” I asked him what he meant by the expression, as I did not know that it was his business to inquire who were my clients. I afterwards had a correspondence with Mr. Arnold on the subject of Mr. Moody being employed as a detective. I do not know whether the Committee have that correspondence; no doubt it can be produced; I have not a copy.
3838. You brought under Mr. Arnold's notice the conduct of Mr. Moody in listening as a spy? Yes, and making it his duty to inquire my business.
3839. Have you seen any quarrelling in the department? None beyond what I have mentioned.
3840. By Mr. Tighe: Who is this Mr. Moody? The chief clerk. I think he was once in the police force as a detective or something of the kind. I have heard Mr. Rae and Mr. Whitton abuse Captain Martindale in no measured terms for employing this man in this capacity, and then when he is gone they employ him in the same capacity themselves.
3841. As an eavesdropper, you mean? Yes, actually going behind the door to listen to conversations. In the old office the plan of the room will easily explain how the thing was done. (Witness explained by sketch.) Of course, a man who will consent to play the part of

- of eavesdropper will say anything that he is required to say. He was there for that purpose—not the slightest doubt about it. Mr. C. Fowler, C.E.
3842. What salary is Mr. Moody receiving? £450.
3843. By the Chairman: Do you think any man could command the respect of those in the department who would submit to that course of eavesdropping? I should say not. I have heard many persons speak of him as being employed in this capacity, and certainly not with anything like respect, but the contrary. 13 Jan., 1864.
3844. As a matter of fact, you saw him in the act of taking a position which could have no other object than taking notes? Yes, distinctly on that occasion; I mention it peculiarly, as being my own affair. I have seen him many times similarly employed when Captain Martindale was there.
3845. You saw him in a position where he could have no other object? I caught him in the fact.
3846. Then you could have no confidence in any communication you had with the office afterwards being confined to yourself and the officer with whom you held communication? No; I declined to see Mr. Rae on business after that, and I am not aware that I have seen him on business since.
3847. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say you know Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
3848. You have seen him in a state of intoxication? Yes, in the office.
3849. Do you know a person of the name of Charles Brown, formerly in the Works Department? Yes.
3850. Do you remember on one occasion calling with Mr. Brown at my house? Yes.
3851. I was absent? You were absent.
3852. You met me in the street as I was returning home? We did.
3853. Do you remember introducing Mr. Brown to me at that time? Yes.
3854. What did Mr. Brown say—did you not introduce him to me in these words—"This is Mr. Brown, a gentleman that is acquainted with Mr. Micklethwait"? Yes.
3855. Did he not answer in these words—"Yes, I know all about him; I was with him on a survey; he was very frequently intoxicated; he owed me a large amount of money, and it cost me a great deal of trouble before I could get it returned"? Yes, words to that effect.
3856. "I had to complain to Mr. Whitton before I could get it returned"? Yes, he also made that statement.
3857. He stated that Mr. Micklethwait was frequently incapacitated from carrying on his work, owing to drink? Yes.
3858. You were present when he volunteered all these statements to me? Yes, I was present.
3859. I did not ask him to give me any such information? No; I made the remark that he was acquainted with Mr. Micklethwait, and he immediately volunteered the statement.
3860. Are you aware he afterwards denied making such a statement, and wrote a letter in the press, denying it? He wrote a letter, published in the press, tantamount to denying it—backing out of it, at all events.
3861. Have you seen Mr. Micklethwait the worse for drink in the office? Yes, on the occasion when he challenged Mr. Martin Gardiner to fight.
3862. Did you observe what passed prior to that—if any provocation had been given by Mr. Gardiner? I heard Mr. Micklethwait, in conversation, address some words to him; but I was occupied in my own business, and did not pay particular attention; and then I heard him challenge him to fight.
3863. Did you hear of Mr. Gardiner having written a minute to the head of the department—Mr. Whitton—on the subject? I have heard since that he did so.
3864. Was it the same occasion that you refer to? Yes, I believe it was the same occasion.
3865. Have you seen any of the other officers of the department, when on duty, the worse of liquor? None, except the two I have mentioned.
3866. Do you know Mr. Fearnside? Yes.
3867. Have you seen him the worse of drink? No.
3868. You have seen brandy coming in there by the bottle, yourself? Yes.
3869. Have you heard other parties, who have had access to the office where the draughtsmen were—contractors and others—complaining of the way in which the business was conducted there—the disorderly conduct of the draughtsmen in the room? I do not recollect hearing any conversation of that kind.
3870. Are you a brother of Mr. John Fowler? Yes.
3871. Do you know if Mr. John Fowler is an iron-master in England—the owner of large iron-works? Yes, near Chesterfield.
3872. What description of iron does he manufacture principally? I really have not heard much about it lately. There are smelting furnaces, and a rolling-mill; but whether they roll rails or what they roll I do not know.
3873. Do you know if Mr. John Fowler is a partner of the firm of Manning, Wardell, and Company—the money partner—the person who supplies the money to carry on the works? I do not know that he is the money partner; all that I know about it is that he and Mr. John Leather lent them some money to start the concern.
3874. Do you know yourself that he lent them money to start the concern? I merely know from common report.

[Witness recalled.]

3875. I asked you if you knew Mr. Micklethwait personally? Yes.
3876. Do you know him sufficiently well to know if the condition of his body—the tremor of his limbs—would enable him to perform his duties as a draughtsman, or as a surveyor in the

Mr. C. the field, efficiently? He has not been in a fit state to perform the duty of a draughtsman
 Fowler, C.E. for two or three years back. I never saw a confirmed drunkard have shaky hands worse than he has; and I have no hesitation in saying those shaky hands are produced entirely 13 Jan., 1864. from drink.

3877. Have you had ample opportunity of observing him? Certainly.

3878. Can Mr. Whitton be ignorant of these matters? No, Mr. Whitton is as perfectly well aware of it as I am.

3879. Has he not been staying with Mr. Whitton for a time? Yes, Mr. and Mrs. Micklethwait have been staying with Mr. Whitton lately.

3880. Were they not schoolfellows? I think they were; at all events they were together in Mr. Billington's office at Wakefield.

3881. Was Mr. Micklethwait sent for by Mr. Whitton? I do not know whether he was sent for, or came out afterwards; at all events when he came out he was immediately employed in the department.

3882. At what salary? £780 a year.

3883. Would the condition he is in unfit him for duty as a surveyor in the field? I should say, from what I have seen of him, that for the last three years he could not have done six months' work—certainly he could not as a draughtsman, and I should say very little in the field. A man in his emaciated state must be continually drunk or suffering a recovery.

3884. By the Chairman: Does it not require a very steady hand to regulate the instruments? Certainly. In fact, the man in the morning cannot do anything until he is three-parts drunk. I have seen him so bad that he could not get his pencil point to the paper.

3885. By Mr. Dalgleish: Then he positively could not put down proper notations of his survey? Certainly not.

3886. From your practical experience as a surveyor in the field, you think him incapable of performing those duties when he is in that condition? Unquestionably.

3887. By Mr. Morris: How do you know that Mr. Micklethwait is so much given to drinking? Because I have seen him and met with him frequently. Three or four years back I have seen and met him with Mr. Whitton. Mr. Whitton has seen him drunk many times, and frequently complained of his drinking, and said he would kill himself by drinking to excess. I have seen him frequently indulge in drink very largely myself, and have noticed his emaciated appearance. I have not seen so much of him lately.

3888. Is Mr. Micklethwait a man who could stand much drink at all? I should say, from what I have seen of him, he could stand a frightful amount of drink.

3889. Could you not see him under the table yourself? I have been with him of an evening, and he could take his drink as well or rather better than most men.

3890. Supposing you had had his duties to perform during the last three years, could you have performed them—have you yourself always been of such steady habits that you could have performed these duties? I never lost half a day in my life through drink.

3891. You are not yourself given to drink at all? ———

(Mr. Dalgleish objected. Witness requested to withdraw. Witness recalled.)

3892. By the Chairman: Have you any ill feeling against Mr. Micklethwait? No, not against him particularly or individually; I do not like the conduct of the department; I have been treated very badly by the department generally, as will be seen when the circumstances come out about my tender for locomotive engines. I am glad the Honorable Member (Mr. Morris) made the remark he did about my habits. I have no doubt he has heard reports about my drinking. In that department it is a common practice, when any person is supposed to be objectionable to them, to set the whole machinery agoing to lie and slander away his character. There is Mr. Rae, and Mr. Moody, and Mr. Whitton, and his todies and sycophants, and if they see a man going into a public-house to have a glass of beer with a contractor, for whom perhaps he has been doing some business, they go and slander him. *They have reduced this almost to a science. I have no doubt the Honorable Member has heard reports of this kind; but if the Honorable Member will look at me he will see I have not much injured my constitution by drinking.† If I do go with a contractor and take a glass with him, I do not see that it is a serious matter.

3893. Have you an office of your own in Sydney? No.

3894. You are engaged by different contractors to take out quantities and make tracings? Yes.

3895. These people do not live in Sydney, and generally put up at different hotels, where you occasionally accompany them? Yes, and I very frequently dine with them, perhaps at a restaurant or hotel.

3896. You may remain there for hours making up your calculations? Certainly.

3897. Did any person ever see you the worse for liquor in the streets of Sydney? I should say he never did. Mr. Arnold mentioned something of the kind in the House, in his low vulgar way—he called me a public-house loafer. I am glad, therefore, the Honorable Member put the question. I know it has been talked about, and I am glad of the opportunity of denying it. Even if it were true, that is a very different thing from drinking in a public office.

3898. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you ever known drinking allowed in any public office? No, I do not think it is allowed in the Lands Office—I do not think it is allowed to come in. I think it very objectionable, the sight of the brandy-bottle in a public office.

3899. Have you ever seen a bottle of brandy publicly exposed in the long drawing office? Not publicly exposed, certainly not.

3900.

* Revised:—They have reduced this to a system, I might say almost to a science, if there be anything scientific about the department.

† INSERTED (on revision):—My hands are not shaky.

3900. By the Chairman: Can any person approach the long drawing office without being seen from any portion of it—I mean in the old office—Could any person approach from the main building to the long drawing-room without being seen? Any person in the long-room could see him just as well as you can see a person going through this yard out of this building. It would be quite possible for all that has been alleged to go on there, without Mr. Mason, Mr. Barton, Mr. Quodling, or others, seeing it. There were certain telegraphic communications made, so that it would be kept out of sight.

Mr. C.
Fowler, C.E.

13 Jan., 1864.

3901. By Mr. Morris: You say Mr. Whitton was aware of Mr. Micklethwait's habit of drinking to excess? He was; and I say further that I have had conversations with Mr. Whitton in which he has spoken strongly against Mr. Micklethwait's excessive drinking, saying how foolish it was of him with the complaint he had on his chest—that he would kill himself. I say, three years ago I have seen his hand so shaky that it was impossible for him to do any work.

Mr. William Mackay called in and examined:—

3902. By the Chairman: You are a draughtsman in the Works Department? I am.
3903. How long have you been in the department? Since 21st June, 1860.
3904. What have you been engaged at there? At one time on station drawings; at another time line drawings; anything.
3905. Chiefly on station drawings? Yes, a considerable portion of my time.
3906. You have been assisting Mr. Hall? Yes.
3907. Have you ever seen any drinking in the department? I have seen beer taken; a little of one thing or another, but nothing of any consequence.
3908. At what time during the day? I know for certain at lunch-time, but I would not like to be certain I have seen it at any other time.
3909. Would you say drink has not been taken at any other time of the day, only at lunch-time? No, I would not say so.
3910. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you principally employed on stations during the time you were in the office? Yes, the greater portion of my time I have been.
3911. What part of the work did you perform? Sometimes a portion of the pencillings, sometimes the inking, sometimes the colouring—nearly always the writing and finishing up the plans.
3912. By the Chairman: Have you seen any drinking going on at any other time than at lunch-time? Well, I have.
3913. What have you seen—what description of drink? I have seen brandy used and I have seen beer used.
3914. At other times? Yes, but the exact time I would not be certain of.
3915. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall the worse for drink in the office? No.
3916. Have you seen Mr. Micklethwait so? No.
3917. Have you seen bottles of brandy brought into the office at any time? Yes, two or three, one of which was to take home myself.
3918. Who brought the brandy in? The messenger.
3919. Which messenger? The only one that brings any—Fitzgerald.
3920. You have seen him bring brandy in? Yes.
3921. Mr. Hall occasionally goes out to measure work—does he not? He does.
3922. Have you heard of his having been the worse for drink during the time he has been measuring? No.
3923. Did you hear of a charge being brought against Mr. Hall at Penrith? I heard of it.
3924. Did you hear what was the nature of that charge? Yes.
3925. What was the nature of it? Some misconduct with some of the women up there.
3926. Do you know whether Mr. Hall remained in Sydney some time after that? No, I do not know. It all happened before I came to the office; I only heard of it afterwards.
3927. Has not the Penrith station been put up since you were in the office? Yes.
3928. Did not this occur during the time the Penrith station was being put up? No, if anything of the kind happened at that time I never was aware of it.
3929. You know Mr. Robertson? Yes.
3930. Was he engaged in your room? He was.
3931. Do you know what work he was engaged at? No, I could not tell.
3932. Have you seen him engaged at plans? Yes.
3933. Would you know Mr. Robertson's work if you saw it? I would not like to be sure about it.
3934. Did you ever see him engaged about the Menangle Bridge? I do not know, I am sure, because those bridges were not drawn in the room I was in.
3935. However, you have seen Mr. Robertson engaged otherwise than in tracing? I have.
3936. What sort of draughtsman is Mr. Robertson? I would not like to express an opinion, because I have seen so little of his work; I have not been beside him while he has been doing drawings.
3937. Did you write a letter to Mr. Moore? I did.
3938. Is that the document (shewing a letter to witness)? Yes, that is mine.
3939. This is to endeavour to get some information from Mr. Moore as to the conduct of Mr. Martin Gardiner? Yes.
3940. What was your reason for writing such a letter? My reason for it was this:—Mr. Gardiner accused me of misconduct in the office, and of being confined through the effects of drink at home. I heard from two of our surveyors that he himself had

Mr. William
Mackay.

13 Jan., 1864.

Mr. William
Mackay.

13 Jan., 1864.

not been conducting himself properly; and I thought, as this person had given the information to them, he would not object to do it again. I did not do it to injure Mr. Gardiner, but for my own defence.

3941. If Mr. Gardiner happened to have misconducted himself, would that make your case any better? I looked at it in this way—that if he accused me of a thing and did it himself, his evidence was not worth much.

3942. If Mr. Gardiner had committed himself, that would be no reason why you should commit yourself also? I considered his word on that account would be of little value. If I accused a person of drinking, and had committed myself in the same way, I would consider my word of very little worth.

3943. By Mr. Morris: Your object was to throw discredit on the character of Mr. Gardiner as a witness? Yes, for the reason that he had been guilty, as I was informed, of the same thing of which he accused me.

3944. By the Chairman: Then according to that view, because a man is a drunkard he has no right to accuse another of drunkenness? No, I do not say that.

3945. By Mr. Morris: You mean that under such circumstances his testimony is not worth much? That is my meaning.

3946. By the Chairman: What did you mean by saying in this letter you were sure this person would not only oblige you but other officers in the department;—what other officers did you mean? He has accused others besides myself.

3947. Did you see Mr. Moore's letter to Mr. Dalgleish? I did.

3948. Then you see Mr. Moore in this letter denies he had ever known Mr. Kennedy? He does, I believe.

3949. And says that he never knew anything against Mr. Gardiner's character? Yes, I believe that is his answer.

3950. Could you shew any of Mr. Robertson's work there (shewing a plan to witness)? I do not know Mr. Robertson's work sufficiently to say.

3951. Do you think Mr. Robertson is capable of doing such drawings as this? I dare say he is capable of doing the drawings, but I have seen so little of his work I cannot say whether any of this is his. I do not mean any disrespect to Mr. Robertson, or to say that he cannot do it.

3952. By Mr. Morris: Have you not been in the same room with Mr. Robertson? No. At first he was in the same room, and for a short time some time ago; but I have not been continually in the same room with him.

3953. By the Chairman: Have you at any time seen Mr. Hall performing any of those things that have been spoken of—"Suffolk Punch," "The Scissors Grinder," and some characters of Shakespeare? I have seen Mr. Hall do what I would not be astonished to see any person do—I might do it myself. I have heard him say, "My name is Norval," repeating a little bit of Shakespeare, or a little of something else—I might say it myself. I would not consider, if Mr. Hall did so, that he either wasted his time or occupied much of the time of others.

3954. Have you seen Mr. Hall paying much attention to the females in the adjoining yard? No.

3955. Is there not a small room adjoining the drawing-room? Yes.

3956. Have you seen him frequently in that room? I have.

3957. Have you seen what he has been doing there? No, I cannot say I have particularly noticed.

3958. Cannot the gentlemen engaged in the long-room see or hear any person who may be approaching that room before they enter? Yes, they might hear, but not see, unless purposely watching.

3959. No person can come to the room without being seen or heard before they enter the room? Not always.

3960. What do you mean by saying "not always"? Sometimes they can come without being heard. I have seen the door opened on many occasions, and have not known the person was coming till the handle turned in the lock.

3961. If they are on the watch in the long-room they can see or hear any person before he enters the room, as he comes across from the main building? Yes, if a person walks firmly or heavily we can hear it, but a person walking quietly on some occasions we do not hear.

3962. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall collecting round the room for the purpose of sending for a bottle of grog? Yes, I have.

3963. Have you seen any contractor give or throw money on the table for the same purpose? No.

3964. By Mr. Morris: Did Mr. Hall send the money or send a note for the grog? I do not know.

3965. Do you wish to leave the Committee to understand that you have never seen any amount of improper drinking in the department? I have not.

3966. And you have never seen any person under the influence of drink there, so that he was not able to perform his work? Never.

3967. You have never seen Mr. Hall, or Mr. Drewett, Mr. Barton, or Mr. Micklethwait so? No.

3968. How came you to write a letter to Mr. Moore, in which you state you have received information from Mr. Kennedy with regard to Mr. Gardiner, when Mr. Moore distinctly denies he ever spoke to Mr. Kennedy in his life? Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Jamieson came to our office, and in speaking of this affair told me Mr. Moore had given them this information regarding Mr. Gardiner, and told me they got the information from him when they were purchasing a horse.

3969. Who is Mr. Kennedy? One of our surveyors.

3970.

3970. And who is Mr. Jamieson? Another.
3971. They both told you Mr. Moore had made these statements, with regard to Mr. Gardiner, which he so distinctly denies? Yes, I sent a copy of Mr. Kennedy's letter to the Minister for Public Works along with that; I kept the original.
3972. Did Mr. Kennedy write you? Yes, he wrote to say Mr. Gardiner did owe Mr. Moore upwards of £40, for moving his camp backwards and forwards and for rations; and he told me that Mr. Moore did not give him authority to use his name. Besides this, when they were in the office they told me that Mr. Gardiner himself indulged in drink, and that he did not bear a very sober name up there; whether it was Mr. Moore that told them this or not I do not know.
3973. Nevertheless we have Mr. Moore's denial? Is the letter I enclosed to the Minister along with that?
3974. By the Chairman: No? I did enclose a copy of Mr. Kennedy's letter to me. I should never have moved in the matter in such a way if I had not heard that. Mr. Moore was a person whose name I never heard.
3975. By Mr. Morris: Have you been in the habit of drinking wine or spirits in the office—how much in a day? I think everything I have drunk in the office would go into a quart bottle, since I have been in the office.
3976. I ask how much you ever drank in a day? I am not aware that I have drunk more than one glass of brandy in the office, because I am not a drinker.
3977. By the Chairman: You see Mr. Moore says in his letter: "As for Mr. Kennedy I know him not, never saw him, and never mentioned Mr. Gardiner's name to him or any other person, for or against his character"? When I saw that, I thought something must have gone wrong, because Mr. Kennedy's letter was there to prove that he had, and I believe Mr. Kennedy.
3978. By Mr. Morris: Is Mr. Kennedy in the employment of this Government? Yes; he is up in the north, I believe.
3979. During the time Mr. Gardiner was in the office, have you seen anything in his conduct to which objection might be taken? I have seen him in every respect indulge in the same merriment, and to the same extent as any one else.
3980. As far as I understand from you, the extent of the merriment was not very great, and therefore that would not be creditable to Mr. Gardiner? No, I do not say it was; but he has made it a charge, and I say that to the extent it was indulged in he himself was a sharer in it.
3981. Did you ever see him drinking brandy in the office? Before Mr. Gardiner left the office the first time, he drank with Mr. Hall every day—for a considerable time after the quarrel with Mr. Deering.
3982. Was not that only beer at luncheon? I could not state what it was.
3983. Have you not stated so, as a matter of fact, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that you saw them drinking beer at luncheon? I supposed it was beer; I would not like to be certain.
3984. "I have seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner taking beer together at lunch-time; indeed "it is usual for most of the officers to take beer for lunch; I have taken it as well as "others"? Yes.
3985. Whatever may be Mr. Gardiner's faults, it is not fair for you to try to insinuate he has faults? I do not mean to insinuate anything about Mr. Gardiner.
3986. Mr. Hall has been accused of drinking, and the Government is satisfied he has been drinking to excess—now the inference is, that if Mr. Gardiner was in the habit of drinking with Mr. Hall, he is quite as bad? That was some time ago—before Mr. Gardiner left the office the first time.
3987. Are you a judge of draughting work—making plans? I know a little of it.
3988. Do you consider Mr. Drewett a good draughtsman? Yes.
3989. Have you ever seen any of the work he has done? Yes, I have seen his work.
3990. By the Chairman: Do you know if that is his work (shewing a drawing to witness)? I do not know whether that is his work or not. It is not like it now, at all events. This has not been done since I have been in the office. I would not like to say who did it.
3991. By Mr. Morris: Do you call Mr. Hall a good draughtsman? He is a pretty fair draughtsman.
3992. As a matter of fact did you not do most of the work? I did my share; I do not think I did more than my share.
3993. By the Chairman: Do you know your own work when you see it? Yes.
3994. Who did the most of the work in that (one of the plans of the Penrith Station)? That is my work.
3995. Who did the next drawing? That is my lining and my writing, but not my colouring.
3996. Whose colouring is it? Mr. Hall's.
3997. Look at the next? That is mine.
3998. By Mr. Morris: The colouring is yours there? Yes, the whole of it.
3999. By the Chairman: Look at the next—whose is that? This is my inking and my writing.
4000. And Mr. Hall's colouring? Yes.
4001. Look at the next? That is mine. I do not do the pencillings; at least, I do a part of the pencillings sometimes.
4002. Whose is that; that is Mr. Hall's colouring? Yes, and my inking I think.
4003. And your writing? Yes.
4004. By Mr. Morris: Mr. Hall did not generally do any of the writing? No. This is Mr. Hall's (referring to one of the drawings).
4005. All Mr. Hall's? Yes.

Mr. William Mackay.

13 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. William Mackay. 4006. Your duties seem to have been as assistant to Mr. Hall? Yes.
 4007. Could you describe to the Committee a twelvemonth's work that you and Mr. Hall did in the shape of draughting? No, I could not.
- 13 Jan., 1864. 4008. How many plans of stations could you turn out in twelve months between you? I could not say.
 4009. Could you turn out more than three? Oh yes.
 4010. How long did it take you, now, between you, to turn out the plans for that station? I might give a guess, but I could not be certain.
 4011. How much more than two months would it take you? I think two months would cover it all.
 4012. You think the two of you could turn out that set of plans in two months? Yes.
 4013. Not including the copies? No; the copies do not take long.
 4014. How long would they take? That sheet (referring to a sheet of drawings) might almost take a week to finish.
 4015. Then, to make copies of all these plans would take you three or four weeks at that rate? No, they are not all so elaborate as this. The difficulty in these two is the stoppage of the different parts between the timbers.
 4016. By the Chairman: Can you tell me why such elaborate drawings are required at all? I cannot say; I am only told to do it.
 4017. By Mr. Morris: Would it not appear, then, that to make a complete set of these plans—originals and copies—would take you and Mr. Hall about three months? That would cover copies and all very easily.
 4018. Do you take out quantities? No.

---

Mr. Hyacinthe Telmon called in and examined:—

- Mr. H. Telmon. 4019. By the Chairman: You are engaged as assistant draughtsman in the Works Department? Yes.
 13 Jan., 1864. 4020. What room do you work in? In the draughtsmen's room.
 4021. The long-room, where contractors go to take out quantities? Yes.
 4022. How long have you been working there? About three years and a half.
 4023. You know Mr. Hall? Yes.
 4024. You know Mr. Micklethwait? Very slightly; only by sight.
 4025. Has he not been in the office much while you have been there? I have seen him there, but he was so very occasionally there, and his visits were so short, that I cannot say I know him; I know Mr. Hall better, because I had occasion to see him every day.
 4026. Have you seen Mr. Hall drink anything in the department? Mr. Hall used to drink ale during his lunch, and the ale was brought in some bottle—a rum bottle or a gin bottle; I have seen ale used during the lunch, and if it was not all consumed, the remainder was consumed during the afternoon.
 4027. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall drink any spirits in the office? I could not swear as to spirits—I know the ale was used.
 4028. Did you ever see Mr. Hall bring in anything in the morning? I have seen Mr. Hall sometimes using a physic bottle—such a bottle as could be carried in the waistcoat-pocket. It has been perhaps twice—very occasionally—that I have seen the physic bottle used.
 4029. Have you ever seen Mr. Micklethwait drink anything in the office? Mr. Micklethwait during lunch would drink as any reasonable man would drink—no extra drinking of any kind—merely in moderation.
 4030. Did you ever see any quarrelling in the office? Yes, I have seen quarrelling.
 4031. Who with? I have seen Mr. Micklethwait quarrelling with Mr. Gardiner, and Mr. Gardiner quarrelling with Mr. Hall.
 4032. Was Mr. Hall quarrelling with Mr. Gardiner? Well, for a certain time I could not call it quarrelling; it was not a quarrel, but rather an argument.
 4033. Did you ever hear Mr. Hall challenge Mr. Gardiner to fight? I have heard threatening, that some reports had been circulated, and Mr. Micklethwait asking Mr. Gardiner from whence came the reports he had circulated about him.
 4034. I am not speaking of Mr. Micklethwait, but of Mr. Hall—did you ever hear Mr. Hall challenge Mr. Gardiner to fight? I could not say; there may have been some threatening, I cannot say it was a fight.
 4035. Did ever you say that Mr. Mackay wasted his time talking to contractors? No, never.
 4036. Did you ever see Mr. Mackay reading the newspaper in the office? I have seen him read the paper perhaps during lunch.
 4037. But during office hours? No, I could not bring such a charge.
 4038. Did you ever see Mr. Hall collecting round the room money to send for drink? No, never.
 4039. Were you always there when Mr. Mackay was there? Yes.
 4040. I suppose if Mr. Mackay saw Mr. Hall collecting money to send for drink, you would see him also? I have never seen such a thing.
 4041. You know the messenger Fitzgerald? Yes.
 4042. Did you ever see him bring drink into the office? I have seen him bring in the drink for the lunch.
 4043. At no other time? No. This drink was brought in in square bottles, perhaps about a pint for each, and sometimes in an old brandy bottle, and in different kinds of bottles, and used at lunch.
 4044. Have you never seen any drinking going on only at lunch-time? Only at lunch-time.

---

Mr.

Mr. William Henry Quodling called in and examined:—

4045. By the Chairman: You are a clerk in the Works Department? Yes.
4046. Mr. Whitton's clerk? Yes.
4047. What are your duties? I keep the accounts of the engineering branch—the contractors' accounts, the accounts for the working of the lines—both locomotive and permanent way, the salaries, and all accounts connected with the engineering branch.
4048. You said, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that you were continually backwards and forwards amongst the engineering draughtsmen? Yes.
4049. Do you mean in the long draughting room? Yes, at one time, but not so much lately.
4050. How far is this long-room from the room which you occupy? It is fifteen yards, I suppose; I have not measured it.
4051. It has no connection with your room? No, my room is at the back of the main building—I can see it.
4052. Can you see anything going on inside? No, not from my office.
4053. How often does your duty lead you into this drawing-room? Lately not much; formerly I used to be there continually.
4054. Why continually? Taking tracings and plans in there, and to obtain information for the Engineer-in-Chief.
4055. What do you mean by continually? Several times a day; that is some years ago.
4056. How often have you been in the long drawing-room in the last twelve months? Not more than twenty or thirty times, I dare say.
4057. Then you have not been there above once in two or three weeks? Sometimes twice in a week.
4058. I believe the only duty you had in the long-room was collecting the journals? I never collected the journals; they were brought to me.
4059. Who brought them? Sometimes one and sometimes another; sometimes one gentleman in the office would bring up the lot.
4060. Then in reality your duty did not take you to the long drawing-room above once in a fortnight or three weeks? Latterly it did not.
4061. I am speaking of about the time the charge was brought by Mr. Gardiner as to the disorganized state of the Works Department—You were much oftener in the room than Mr. Barton or Mr. Drewett? No.
4062. I presume it would have been your duty, if you had wanted anything with reference to the long-room; to go to Mr. Drewett? I generally went to the person who could give the information.
4063. Direct? Yes.
4064. Whom did you consider the head draughtsman? Mr. Drewett.
4065. Generally, when absent from your own room, you were in Mr. Barton's or Mr. Drewett's room? No, I cannot say I was.
4066. Were you in any office previous to entering the Works Department? Yes.
4067. What office were you in? I was in the Audit Office at Hobart Town; previously I was in the Comptroller General's Office, in the Convict Department there; and before I left England I was in the Audit Office of the York and North Midland Railway.
4068. What age were you when you entered the Works Department? Two or three and twenty.
4069. You said, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that you never saw any drinking going on in the office, unless at lunch-time, and then only beer;—now, may there not have been a good deal of drinking going on in the long-room without your knowing anything about it? There might have been.
4070. Not being there very often, of course you could not see what drinking was going on there—is not that the fact? Yes.
4071. Were you often in the long-room when they were taking their luncheon? Yes, I remember being in it a good many times—in and out.
4072. How did you know they were taking only beer at that time? I did not see anything else; there was no secret made of what they were taking.
4073. Cannot persons who are in the long-room either hear or see any person approaching it from the main building, before he came to the door? I do not think they could.
4074. Why not? Because the windows are high and the room stands above the level of the yard; you have to go up steps to the door.
4075. How far was the long-room from the main building? About fifteen yards. Do you mean the present offices?
4076. I am speaking of the old offices;—all the questions I am asking you have reference to the disorganized state of the department at the period when Mr. Gardiner brought the complaint against the department—I do not want to go further back than that? Then I did not thoroughly understand you; I have been answering you more with reference to the present offices. In the old offices I was backwards and forwards more frequently than in the present offices.
4077. I am speaking of the six months previously to January, 1863;—was not the long drawing-room situated, in respect to the main building, something similar to what it is with reference to the present one? Yes, much the same, but the door was at the end in the old building.
4078. Any person coming from the main building to the long drawing-room, at the old offices, could be seen approaching? I think not.
4079. Or heard? They could be heard perhaps.
4080. Were there not windows? I think the windows were too high to be seen out of, unless a person were purposely looking out.

Mr. W. H.
Quodling.

13 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. W. H. Quodling.
13 Jan., 1864.
4081. How high were the windows from the floor? Four or five feet, I think. I think the windows are frosted—I am sure they are, the lower sash.
4082. The lower sash is frosted? Yes.
4083. However, that is the only thing you misunderstood me with reference to—the answer as to the building—there was no other part of my examination you misunderstood? All through I thought you referred to the present offices.
4084. How does that affect the examination? I was more frequently in the long-room at the other building.
4085. On an average did you enter the long-room once a week? I would sometimes be for a month and not go into it; at other times I might be in two or three days in succession.
4086. A memorandum has been handed to me to the effect that the lower panes were not frosted in the old office—are you sure they were? I cannot say for certain; I cannot call it to mind; I know the present windows are frosted.
4087. Of course you do not see the messengers every time they go in and out? No, of course not.
4088. Is there a time-book in the office? No, not at present.
4089. Of course you could not tell whether the messengers brought in drink or not? I know one messenger, Fitzgerald, used to bring in ale and things for luncheon.
4090. There was nothing to prevent gentlemen in the department from bringing in drink with them when they came in the morning? No.
4091. Of course they would not report it to you if they did? No, nor to anybody else.
4092. By Mr. Morris: Have you any personal acquaintances in the long-room from whom you could have heard these things? Such things are generally talked of if they occur.
4093. Who would have informed you, do you think? The general gossip of the office I think would have led to it. I was acquainted with all in the room.
4094. Were they intimate friends of yours? No.
4095. By the Chairman: Do you ever recollect Mr. Hall addressing you as “William,” and asking you to take a nobbler with him? He might have done so; he has often called me William.
4096. With reference to these performances in the office, have you heard anything of them? Never, till it was spoken of in the House.
4097. Was it not reported by Mr. Gardiner in his minute to Mr. Whitton on the 5th January? Not that I am aware of; I do not know what Mr. Gardiner’s minute of the 5th January is.
4098. I presume you never assisted Mr. Hall in any of his performances? No, I never knew he performed.
4099. Have you heard anything of Mr. Hall being tried in Penrith, or being brought up before the Court for any offence? I have heard something of the kind, but nothing definite; I cannot say I heard he was tried.
4100. Not tried; charged before the Magistrates? I have an indistinct recollection that I heard he got into some difficulty, at Penrith, about a woman.
4101. Is Mr. Hall often absent from illness? He was a good deal.
4102. Have you anything in the office to shew the times he was absent from illness? His journals.
4103. Nothing else? Nothing else.
4104. Then we must take his journals for it? Yes.
4105. Do you remember Mr. Hall being absent for some weeks on one occasion? Yes.
4106. Was his pay stopped during that period? No; it is not customary to stop pay from officers of the Government, absent from sickness.
4107. It has been done in your office? Yes, but not to persons absent through illness.
4108. Can you tell me any person whose pay has been stopped for absence? Yes, I can tell you two or three.
4109. Persons on the regular staff, paid by annual salary; I do not mean men paid by the day? I recollect Mr. Mann had his pay stopped for a week, for absenting himself without permission.
4110. Was he paid an annual salary then? Yes.
4111. How long was he absent? A day or two; it is some years ago; I do not remember exactly.
4112. Will you look up any such cases, and let us know the particulars? I will.*
4113. Have you seen wine brought into the department? Yes.
4114. In what quantities? I have seen a dozen of wine come in.
4115. When persons are absent from the department from illness, are they required to send in medical certificates? Medical certificates have been sent in.
4116. Is it a rule in the office, that any gentleman who is absent and says it is through sickness is required to send in a medical certificate? I do not know that there is any particular rule; I know medical certificates have been sent in where officers have been absent some time.
4117. What becomes of these medical certificates? I do not know that any care has been taken of them.
4118. Have you known Mr. Micklethwait frequently absent from his duties? I know he has been absent occasionally; I cannot say how frequently.
4119. Have you ever seen Mr. Micklethwait the worse for drink? Never.

4120.

*NOTE (on revision):—June, 1859, Mr. Mann, one week. December, 1859, Mr. Higham, one week. February, 1861, Mr. W. A. Trengrouse, one week. March, 1862, Mr. Richardson, five days. May, 1863, Mr. N. Trengrouse, two days. May, 1863, Mr. W. A. Trengrouse, three days. May, 1863, Mr. Hall, two days.

4120. Have you ever heard of his being the worse for drink? I cannot say I have heard of his being the worse for drink. Mr. W. H. Quodling.
4121. Have you ever heard of Mr. Hall being the worse for drink? No; excepting, of course, what has been stated here, and reported in the papers. 18 Jan., 1864.
4122. I am speaking of other sources than what you have heard through the papers or from the statements of Mr. Martin Gardiner? No, I have not.
4123. Of course you are absent occasionally from your office? Yes.
4124. Do you think it necessary, when you are absent, to get a certificate from a medical man? I was only absent once, for more than one day, from illness, and that was for a week.
4125. Did you send in a certificate? No.
4126. Then there is no rule as to medical certificates? I am not aware of any.
4127. Will you inquire? Yes.*
4128. By Mr. Morris: Did you ever hear any complaints against Mr. Gardiner while he was in the department? No, I cannot say I did.
4129. Against his efficiency in performing his duties? No.
4130. Have you heard it talked of in the office that Mr. Gardiner was extremely good in taking out quantities? No, I never heard it said.
4131. You never heard him spoken of one way or the other? No.
4132. The fact is, I suppose, you do not hear much that goes on in the office at all? Not very much, only what I may glean or learn from others.
4133. Are you in a room by yourself? No, there is a clerk with me.
4134. The fact is, that the grossest irregularities might have been going on in this long-room, or any other room, without your knowing a bit about it? Without my personal knowledge they might.
4135. It would be almost unlikely you should hear of it at all? I think I should hear.
4136. If you did hear of any of these irregularities, would you communicate with Mr. Whitton? Yes, instantly.
4137. You would consider that to be your duty? Yes.
4138. By the Chairman: That is according to circumstances, I suppose—Supposing you were in a room where there were several other persons, who were superior to you in pay and position, would you then communicate with the head of the department if your superiors did not? I think I should if there were any great irregularities; I have not been in that position, but I have a feeling that I would do so if I thought there was anything wrong.
4139. By Mr. Dalgleish: You said just now you had seen wine taken into the office at times? Yes.
4140. In what quantities? I have seen a dozen, I think, at a time.
4141. Who was it for? Mr. Whitton sometimes gets it in, and Mr. Barton sometimes.
4142. Have you ever seen brandy taken into the office? I cannot say I have.
4143. Are you sure you have not? I do not remember any; I cannot call it to mind at present.
4144. You are not sure you have not seen brandy there? I have no recollection of it; I cannot call to mind any single case; I do not deny there might have been some brought in, but I do not remember it.
4145. Do your duties take you much in the office where the draughtsmen are employed? Formerly they did; not much lately.
4146. How long ago? Three or four years ago.
4147. You know Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
4148. Have you known him absent from his duties when in Sydney—absent from the office when in town—for a lengthened time? I do not remember.
4149. Do his hands shake? I have seen them shake.
4150. Very much? I have not seen Mr. Micklethwait for a long time now.
4151. When you did see him—I am not talking about when you did not see him? I have seen his hands shake.
4152. Considerably? Yes.
4153. What were his duties when he was in the office? Well, I really do not know what his exact duties were.
4154. If his duties were to be employed as a draughtsman, would the shaking of his hands interfere with that duty? I presume it would.
4155. What was the cause of his hands shaking, do you know—did you ever hear—have you never been told it was in consequence of drinking? I have heard so.
4156. It was commonly reported? Yes.
4157. What is his general appearance—does that bear it out? He has a flushed appearance.
4158. Have you never seen him drink brandy? I cannot say I have; I do not call it to mind.
4159. Have you seen Mr. Hall's hands shake? I have not noticed Mr. Hall; I have not noticed that his hand does shake.
4160. But you have observed that Mr. Micklethwait's does? Yes.
4161. And you cannot remember if he was any lengthened time absent from his duties when he was in Sydney? No; his journals will shew. Each officer keeps his own journal.
4162. Is there any check on these journals? No.
4163. Would they shew if an officer were absent half a day or three-quarters of a day? Yes, they would say "On leave," or "A holiday," or whatever it might be, if absent.
4164. You never heard anything derogatory to the character of Mr. Martin Gardiner in the office? No.
4165. Did you find he was a quarrelsome man? I thought him disagreeable.

4166.

* NOTE (on revision):—The Engineer-in-Chief is not aware of any rule on this subject.

- Mr. W. H. Quodling.
13 Jan., 1864.
4166. What do you mean by disagreeable? In his manner. When he first went to the office I nodded to him—bowed to him—and he never took any notice.
4167. Anything else? No; I never had much to do with Mr. Gardiner.
4168. Did you ever know him to interfere with other people—to be quarrelsome in his disposition? No.
4169. When you were in and out of the office, did you find Mr. Gardiner attend to his duties? I was never there long enough to say.
4170. Were you never long enough in the office to see whether the parties there were generally attentive or not? No, not to form an opinion.
4171. By the Chairman: Has Mr. Moody been absent from the office lately? Yes.
4172. For what period? I cannot say the exact time.
4173. When did he return—do you know? I do not know when it was.
4174. Did you ever hear Mr. Moody boast of having any influence over Mr. Rae? No.
4175. You gave evidence before Mr. Whitton? Yes.
4176. What did you mean by saying you were necessarily backwards and forwards in the long-room—does your evidence then bear out what you have just been saying? Lately I have not been there so much.
4177. During the whole period of Mr. Gardiner being employed there? I have been in and out. I saw they had beer for lunch, but I never saw any drunkenness.
4178. Were you there sufficiently to know whether any person had been drinking brandy or not? I did not see it.
4179. You say you would either have seen or heard of it if it had been going forward? Yes.
4180. Did you volunteer to give evidence before Mr. Whitton? I was asked.
4181. Who asked you? We were all called in, one after another. I do not know that I was asked particularly.
4182. Every person in the department was called? I think every one in the department was examined.
4183. You know Mr. Deering? Yes.
4184. Have you heard that Mr. Deering has fought in the office? No, I heard there was a skirmish between him and Mr. Hall.
4185. Mr. Gardiner reported it? Yes, in his statement.
4186. You did not hear of it previously? No.
4187. Did you hear of any other persons fighting in the office? No.
4188. Mr. Goodchap? Yes, I heard of that.
4189. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Goodchap and who? Mr. Forde.
4190. Was any notice taken of that? I believe Mr. Rae said something to them.
4191. By the Chairman: He made up the matter? I believe Mr. Rae spoke to them; I do not know what he did.
4192. By Mr. Dalgleish: It was not taken official notice of? I do not know that it was. It was not in the engineering branch.

---

THURSDAY, 14 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. STEWART,
MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Edwin Barton called in and examined:—

- Mr. E. Barton.
14 Jan., 1864.
4193. By the Chairman: You are an officer in the Department of Public Works? I am.
4194. What position do you hold in that department? I am Engineer in charge of Trial Surveys.
4195. Do your duties take you often from the office? Yes, very frequently.
4196. Taking the whole year through, what time are you absent? I could not say. The occupation of one year is so different from that of another. Perhaps I might be engaged in the office, making estimates, for a considerable portion of the year; and then I may be absent from Sydney for six months together, on trial surveys. I have just now been absent from Sydney for about five months.
4197. You gave evidence before Mr. Whitton, a short time back? I did.
4198. In reference to Mr. Gardiner's charges, relative to the disorganized state of the Works Department? Yes.
4199. Were you much in the office during the six months preceding the 29th July last? I will not say that I was much in the office, but I was there frequently.
4200. Were you not absent for months at a time? When—on that occasion?
4201. Yes, for the six months prior to the 29th July last? I do not remember.
4202. Were you not absent from the office during the greater part of the time during which the circumstances referred to by Mr. Gardiner took place—you know the matters I allude to? Yes, I have read Mr. Dalgleish's statement of the matter in the newspapers.
4203. Had these things occurred whilst you were in Sydney, they would have been reported to you? I do not know that they would have been reported to me.
4204. Might they have occurred without your knowledge? They might, but if they had occurred I should imagine that I should have been told something about them.

4205.

4205. Who by—by the three or four gentlemen who are implicated in this charge? No, by the person making the charge. I imagine he would make it to me or to the Engineer-in-Chief. Mr.
E. Barton.
4206. The charge was made to the Engineer-in-Chief? I am aware of the fact. 14 Jan., 1864.
4207. And in your absence from Sydney? Yes, I believe so.
4208. During the time you were not absent on trial surveys, and when you were employed in the office, how often did you go into the drawing-room or long-room as it is called? There was no specified time for my visiting the room. I merely went there whenever it was necessary to look after work that I required, or whenever I wanted a plan or drawing connected with work on which I was engaged.
4209. Then it might happen that you would not enter that room for a month at a stretch? It might; but even if I do not go into the room, I can see from my window the persons who go in and out of that room. My room was then directly opposite the drawing-room; now, however, it is down-stairs.
4210. That change has been effected since these matters have been reported? Yes.
4211. Then, from your window you could see the persons who went in and out of the drawing-room? Yes, quite well.
4212. That being the case, you would be sure to notice if any of them had been drinking? Yes, I think so—if they had been drinking to excess. The ground is rather rough just there. I should have been sure to notice if any of them stumbled, or walked irregularly.
4213. Then you have seen no drunkenness? No.
4214. But these things that have been described may have gone on when you were away from Sydney? They may, of course.
4215. Or even when you were in Sydney, since you say that you did not go into the long-room for a month at a stretch sometimes? I will not say that, because there are so many people continually going in and out of the long-room, that it is certain that these things must have come to light, if they had been carried on. They would have been sure to be talked about amongst so many.
4216. And you see they have come to light? Yes, but they have been a long time about it.
4217. The evidence that you gave on this matter, to the Engineer-in-Chief, would lead any person reading it, to suppose that you were generally in the office, and that nothing of the kind stated by Mr. Gardiner could have gone on without your knowledge; but now you admit that, even when in Sydney, you are not often in the long-room, and that besides that, you are sometimes absent from Sydney for six months together? I cannot say what view might be taken of my evidence, but I would state that I spoke only of what I knew from my own knowledge, and of that alone.
4218. By Mr. Dalgleish: The office you refer to as that in which these scenes took place was known as the long-room? I am not aware that I have referred to any office.
4219. In your evidence before Mr. Whitton you refer to an office—what was the name by which it was generally known? That was the long-room that I referred to.
4220. You state, in that evidence, that you were constantly in the room, and that you must have known it if any such irregularities as these had occurred? Yes.
4221. Were you, as a matter of fact, so frequently in the room as that you must have known of the existence of these irregularities? I have been very frequently indeed into the room. The tracings of plans made for me are done there, and I am constantly in and out of the room, looking after them.
4222. Can you give us any idea of how often you went into the room? I was there a great number of times. I cannot say how often, but it was very frequently, and I never saw anything of the kind referred to.
4223. Nothing of the kind ever went on when you were there? Nothing.
4224. Do you think it probable that such scenes would be enacted in your presence? I do not.
4225. If they had even been in the habit of occurring, is it likely that the parties concerned would have allowed you to see them? It is not probable that they would have done so.
4226. You say that if they had occurred, you would have been sure to have heard of it—who would have reported them to you? Every person in the room.
4227. To whom do you allude? To all.
4228. To Mr. Fearnside? Yes, to him and to every person in the office.
4229. But Mr. Fearnside is implicated in this charge? He is.
4230. And so is Mr. Hall? Yes; but I allude to all in the office—to Mr. Trengrouse, sen., and Mr. Trengrouse, jun., and the others.
4231. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall the worse for drink? Never.
4232. Have you ever seen him drink? I have.
4233. Have you seen him drink brandy? Yes, occasionally. He used to have it for his lunch.
4234. Have you ever seen him drink brandy at other times than at lunch? I may have done so, perhaps just previously to his lunch.
4235. Have you seen him drink brandy at any other time than at lunch and just previously to it? I have.
4236. Frequently? No.
4237. How often? I cannot say.
4238. Twice? It is not possible for me to say how often, but certainly not what I understand by the word "frequently."
4239. Will you then be good enough to explain to the Committee what you understand by the word "frequently"? I take it to mean constantly—a dozen times.

- Mr. E. Barton.
14 Jan., 1864.
4240. During the time of Mr. Gardiner's last appointment were you constantly in the drawing-room and not in the field? I think not.
4241. Is your evidence given before Mr. Whitton calculated to convey that impression to a person reading it? That I do not know.
4242. Will you read it over and say what impression you think it is likely to give? I cannot possibly say what impression it is likely to make upon the mind of another; I can only speak for myself.
4243. What is the impression that it makes upon your mind? Simply this, that if such things were occurring I did not see them.
4244. Is it not rather this: that you were constantly in the office, and that you never saw anything of the kind, and that, consequently, nothing of the sort could have taken place—is not that the way in which this evidence reads? I think not.
4245. Were you, as a matter of fact, constantly in the office? I was constantly going in and out of the office.
4246. When you say you were constantly in the office, to what office do you refer? To the long-room.
4247. And was the time referred to, that at which these drunken scenes are said to have occurred? That I cannot say, for I do not know what time is referred to.
4248. Was Mr. Gardiner then engaged in the long-room with Mr. Hall? Yes.
4249. Did any report reach your ears of a complaint having been made to Mr. Whitton of Hall's misconduct, during Mr. Gardiner's first engagement? No, not during his first engagement. I do not know of any report having been then made.
4250. During his second engagement did any report reach you? Yes, that is the one I allude to.
4251. Do you understand this evidence you have given, to refer to the first or the second engagement of Mr. Gardiner? To the second engagement.
4252. Then this evidence you have given, that you were constantly in the office at that time, is calculated to mislead any person reading it? I do not know; I can only say it was not so intended.
4253. As a matter of fact, were you constantly in the office and not in the field? Some years I am much more in the office than in the field.
4254. But the inquiry upon which you were examined had reference to matters that took place within a few months of the date of the inquiry? Yes.
4255. And the evidence you gave had reference to that particular time? Yes.
4256. Then does it, I again ask you, convey a correct impression of the real fact? Yes, I think so; but I have told you already, that during the second engagement of Mr. Gardiner I was frequently in the field.
4257. It is upon that very time that I am now questioning you; and I ask you again, whether, during the period of Mr. Gardiner's second engagement, when these scenes of drunkenness that he has reported, were said to have occurred, during the last part of 1862—you were constantly in the office? I was much in the field at that time, and was not constantly in the office.
4258. So that this passage in your evidence, that you were constantly in the office, is calculated to mislead the House and the public? No, I think not. I did not pay particular attention as to the time specially alluded to in the charges, but gave my evidence in regard to the whole period of Mr. Gardiner's engagement.
4259. Was the inquiry a general one, ranging over the whole of that period? There was no particular date to which I was referred.
4260. Did you not know what the charges were that you were called to give evidence upon? Yes; but in giving my evidence on the inquiry, I gave it as to the whole period of Mr. Gardiner's employment in the office. And in regard to my saying that I was constantly in the office, I may point out that it was not necessary for me to go into the long-room to see the persons engaged there, as I could constantly see them going in and out, from my window. My window was no distance from the long-room, and I was often in the habit of speaking to gentlemen engaged there, without going into the room at all. I might thus say that I saw them constantly, and never saw any drunkenness.
4261. In what way do you come to that conclusion? Because I was constantly meeting them in the road or passage leading from the office, or seeing them going out or in, or meeting them after work, when they were going home, and I never saw a person amongst them incapable of discharging his duty.
4262. Then I may infer from what you have said, that this evidence given before Mr. Whitton does not include that portion of time which is referred to by Mr. Gardiner in his complaint? No. During that time I was not so frequently in and out of the long-room.
4263. Why did you not state that to Mr. Whitton when you were giving your evidence? Because I was not asked the question.
4264. Did you not say anything but what you were asked on that occasion? I was called upon to state what I knew, and I made a general statement.
4265. But why not separate the time more clearly, so as to make a difference between the first and second engagements of Mr. Gardiner? I could not do so in a general statement, nor did I think it material that I should.
4266. If any person outside your office were to read this, would he not come to the conclusion that when you were not in the field you were constantly in the office, where these things are said to have occurred? I say that I was only in the room from time to time.
4267. But does not this statement of yours, made before Mr. Whitton, include all the time you were in the office? No, I think not.
4268. Would it not lead a person, unacquainted with the circumstances you now state, to believe believe that when not in the field you were constantly in this room? I did not intend to include or to exclude any portion of time; I merely spoke generally.

4269. Have you yourself been in the habit of drinking in the office? Yes.

4270. May I ask what you drank? Yes; I drank sherry and sometimes colonial wine.

4271. I do not, by these questions, desire in any way to wound your feelings, nor do I ask from idle curiosity; but it has been given in evidence before this Committee that you were in the habit of having wines sent in to you to the office, in quantities, and that is why I put the question? Yes, I know that such evidence has been given; and also that I have been in the habit of drinking to such excess as to incapacitate me for the proper discharge of my duties. In regard to this I have only to tell the Committee that whoever said so has told a most deliberate falsehood, and that during the whole time I have been employed in the department I have never taken drink of any kind to excess.

4272. It has been stated in evidence that you had wine sent in to you by the dozen? Yes, I have—colonial wine. I have had that by the dozen at a time—twice.

4273. Do you know of any public office, either here or elsewhere, in which parties engaged in them are allowed to take wine or other liquors, either at luncheon or at any other time? Yes; when I was in Mr. John Fowler's office, in England, we used to do so. I was in the habit of taking wine for my luncheon when in that office. That is the only public office I have ever been in; but I have never heard of one in which the gentlemen employed are not allowed to take something for luncheon if they do not go out for it.

4274. But it has been said that drink has been taken at other than lunch hour, and more particularly in the case of Mr. Hall? It is not likely; except perhaps it may have been once or twice. He might have been a little ill, and have taken some sherry at other times than the lunch hour.

4275. Do you remember the report that was made by Mr. Gardiner of the discreditable conduct of Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait towards himself? Yes, I know that a report was made.

4276. Was that report referred to you? No.

4277. Does your position in the department warrant that such a report should be referred to you? No, I think not. If the report was made to the Engineer-in-Chief he might perhaps refer to me as to its correctness; but this would not follow necessarily.

4278. You are aware that certain minutes passed between officers of the department on that occasion? No, I only know that a report was made.

4279. You knew that a complaint had been made that Mr. Hall was in the habit of drinking during office hours? Yes.

4280. Did you, after you were aware that this complaint had been made, stand at the window of your room with a glass of wine in your hand, hobnobbing to Mr. Hall at the opposite window? No; that is, I do not know what you understand by the term "hobnobbing"; but I did this:—I took a glass in my hand and went to the window facing the room in which Mr. Hall was, and bowed to him as I drank it, in the way that persons usually do when they take wine together at dinner.

4281. Then, with a glass of wine in your hand, you went to the window and bowed to Mr. Hall at the opposite window? Yes. There was no wine in the glass.

4282. Now, do you not think that that course of conduct was calculated to encourage Mr. Hall in his drinking habits? It was certainly not done with that intention, nor can I see how it could possibly have that effect.

4283. You are his superior officer? No, I have nothing to do with him. He is in the Architect's branch, and my work is confined to trial surveys.

4284. Surveys of extensions of existing lines? Yes.

4285. In looking after the consolidation of existing lines and the formation of branches? Yes.

4286. Let me ask you now, frankly, did you believe the report made by Mr. Gardiner to be true? I believe that there was some little truth in it, but not to the extent stated by Mr. Gardiner.

4287. Do you believe that, at the time the complaint was made, evidence could have been brought to prove it? I cannot say.

4288. Was there any attempt, at the time the complaint was made, either to prove or disprove the charges? I do not know what steps were taken by the Engineer-in-Chief, but I presume that there was an inquiry of some kind.

4289. I believe you made the trial surveys along the Valley of the Grose? They were made by the sappers and miners, but under my direction.

4290. Does Mr. Micklethwait drink? Yes.

4291. To excess? I never saw him drunk, but * I believe he takes more than is good for his constitution.

4292. What liquor does he generally drink? I cannot say; but very likely it is brandy or beer.

4293. Does he take these at other than lunch-time? Yes.

4294. Does not his hand shake very much? Yes, but that is not from drinking; it is an hereditary complaint, and he told me that his father had it before him. I know that he has always been afflicted in the same way. When he came out to the Colony his hand shook precisely the same as it does now.

4295. Did he drink then—brandy? Yes, and I believe he has done so all his life.

4296. Do you think that a man having this complaint—as you say, an hereditary one—would be able to perform the delicate duties of a draughtsman; or that, if employed in the field,

Mr.
E. Barton.

14 Jan., 1864.

* Revised:—perhaps

Mr.
E. Barton.
14 Jan., 1864.

field, he would be able to set his instruments with that nicety that such things require? I do. His duties have mainly been levelling, surveying, and making plans. He is not a good draughtsman, and never was, but he is a very good surveyor.

4297. By the Chairman: Have you ever heard of him making any mistakes? No.

4298. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you a pleasure yacht? Not a yacht, but I have an open boat of about seven tons burden.

4299. Have you been in the habit of passing in that boat the time which should have been employed in the office? No.

4300. Has Mr. Whitton ever been in the habit of going trips with you in that boat, and during office hours? He has been with me in the boat upon several occasions, but only once in office hours, and that was when he was ill.

4301. I again have to say to you that I put these questions with no view to insult you, but because evidence has been given before us on the subject;—You have not, then, been in the habit of going out yachting with Mr. Whitton during office hours? I have not; but as I told you before, I went once during office hours with Mr. Whitton. He was very ill indeed at the time, and Dr. Ward said that it would very likely do him good to have a sail in the harbour; he went out accordingly in my boat, and I took upon myself the responsibility of absenting myself from the office, in order to accompany him in the afternoon.

4302. Do you know Mr. Gardiner? Yes.

4303. Personally? Yes.

4304. Did you ever know him to be quarrelsome in the office? No, but I know him to be a very disagreeable man.

4305. Do you know this personally, or from what has been told you? I do not know it personally, except from his manner whenever I have come near him. I have met him occasionally, and have said, "Good morning," or bowed to him, and he has never taken the slightest notice, except perhaps in the most formal manner. He has always been particularly stiff and reserved towards everybody.

4306. Was that after the report he made respecting Mr. Hall's conduct? Before as well as after, but more particularly after.

4307. Has there not been some jealousy or ill feeling shewn towards Mr. Gardiner during the period of his last engagement? No, I think not; I have had none, nor do I think that I ever exhibited any.

4308. Perhaps neither jealousy nor ill feeling is the proper word to use;—but was there any feeling against him shewn in the office after his second engagement? No, I think not.

4309. You have yourself personally nothing to say against Mr. Gardiner, or against his character, during the time he has been in the office? No.

4310. Have you ever known him drink? Yes.

4311. During the time of the office? I never saw him drink during office hours; I have heard that he did.

4312. Is he a good mathematician? Yes, I should think so.

4313. He has been employed under you? Yes.

4314. And you always found him correct? Yes, but it was only very simple work that he had to do, such as multiplying out quantities.

4315. But was he correct in the work with which he was entrusted? Yes, but I have heard of errors that he has committed; but generally I believe him to have been correct.

4316. Was not great search made over all his work, in order to discover errors if possible? I do not know of any.

4317. Do you not know that his work was carefully gone over in order to discover errors? I do not; the errors were not in my branch, and I do not know of them personally, except only in the case of the Mudgee Road. I was going in that district, with the Engineer-in-Chief, and I had tracings made of his plans; wherever I found that errors existed I had them marked out, not with any reference to Mr. Gardiner, but solely to prevent their being followed in future.

4318. By the Chairman: Can you call to your recollection whether, when you were in the office, you had work to do that took you more frequently than usual into the long-room, from the 1st July to the 31st December, 1862? I think I had, but I cannot call the time to my recollection, or what I was employed on.

4319. Do you keep a journal? Yes, but it is only a private one.

4320. Could you refer to that, and tell us how you were employed during the last months of 1862, so that we may be able to judge whether you would be likely to be much in and out of the long-room? I do not think I could ascertain that from my journal, which is solely a private one.

4321. Can you say, with anything like certainty, that from the 1st July to the 31st December, 1862, you were three times in the long-room? I think I may venture to say that.

4322. Do you think you were more times than that? I could not say; I kept no count of the number of times, but I went in whenever I thought it necessary to look after the work upon which they were engaged.

4323. Taking into consideration the fact that your evidence was given in order to prove or disprove certain charges made by Mr. Gardiner against the officers of the department, and that those charges referred to a specific time, would not anybody reading that evidence be led to believe that it referred to the period when Mr. Gardiner charged the officers of the department with drunkenness? Well, perhaps he would.

Mr. John William Drewett called in and examined:—

4324. By the Chairman: What position do you hold in the Works Department? I am chief draughtsman. Mr. J. W. Drewett.
4325. What room do you work in? In the back room of the second floor—in the engineers' department. 14 Jan., 1864.
4326. How far is that from the drawing-room, or the long-room as it has been termed;—and here I would mention to you that the questions I put will have reference to the old office, and to the room occupied by you there in the latter part of 1862? From my room, including the stairs, would be about fifty or sixty feet.
4327. Then, taking the stairs into account, you would have to go that distance to reach the long-room from your office? Yes, down the stairs and across from the house to the office would be quite that distance.
4328. How long have you been in the Colony? About seven years.
4329. You were engaged in England to come out to this Colony? Yes.
4330. And your salary was paid from the day you were engaged? No, from the day we sailed.
4331. And your passage to the Colony was paid? Yes.
4332. With an allowance for wine on the passage? Yes, I think there was some allowance.
4333. What was the first work upon which you were engaged after arriving in the Colony? I scarcely recollect; I was doing very little for the first week or two. I was engaged in making arrangements.
4334. Did you draw this plan of the Honeysuckle Station (plan produced)? No, that is not my drawing.
4335. Do you know who drew it? I cannot say.
4336. Is this your drawing (second plan of the Honeysuckle Station produced)? No, it is not.
4337. You gave evidence before Mr. Whition, in relation to a charge brought by Mr. Gardiner of drunkenness and disorganization in the Works Department? I did.
4338. Do you know Mr. Micklethwait? I do.
4339. How long have you known him? Ever since he has been in the Colony; I do not know how long, but five or six years.
4340. Have you seen him the worse for drink? No.
4341. Does he drink? I believe he does.
4342. In pretty good quantities? I have never seen him drink any great quantity.
4343. Have you seen him drink in the office? Yes, at lunch-time.
4344. At any other time? No, I think not.
4345. How often were you in the long-room during the last six months of 1862? Not very frequently. I have very little to do with the officers engaged in that room.
4346. Were you in that room, on the average, once a month? Yes, I think I was.
4347. Were you oftener than that? Yes, perhaps I may have been there once or twice a week.
4348. You can say positively that you were in the long-room, on an average, once or twice a week? Yes.
4349. You know Mr. Hall? Yes.
4350. Did you ever see him drink? Yes, at lunch-time.
4351. Have you ever seen him drink at other times? I think not.
4352. At what times were you in the habit of visiting the long-room—was it always at lunch-time? At different times. There were no stated times; but in case I wanted a plan or anything that was in that room, I went and got it.
4353. When you went to the room, could not any person see you approaching it, and so remove any evidences of drinking before you reached it? No, I think not.
4354. Mind, I am speaking of the old room, and not of the present one? I am aware of it, and I do not think that any person could see me approach, as the windows were frosted so that they could not be seen through.
4355. That is in the present room? In the old room they were not; then they were so high from the ground that parties inside would not see me.
4356. What height were they? About four feet six inches; and then again the building itself was on piles about eighteen inches above the ground.
4357. That would prevent you from seeing inside, but any person inside, raised up on the floor, could look down and easily see any person approaching? Yes, but there is a difficulty in the way of his doing so. The building itself is eighteen inches higher than the ground outside, and the window is four feet six inches above the base of the building; and then the drawing table is placed close up against the window, so that the persons engaged must work on the opposite side of the table from the window, and being at a distance from it would not be able to look down upon a person outside.
4358. They would of course work with their faces towards the light? Yes, of course, from the opposite side of the table.
4359. Facing towards the window, they would naturally be in the best position for seeing out of it, and of observing any person that approached? I do not know that they would be, being so far from the window.
4360. But standing on the floor, which is above the base of the building, and being thus raised up above the persons outside, could they not easily see, from the window, any person coming towards the room? I am not sure that they would do so.
4361. Is it not, however, a fact that, standing on the floor and facing the window, they would be able to look out into the yard? Yes.
4362. And the window was not frosted? No.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

14 Jan., 1864.

4363. Have you seen Mr. Hall under the influence of drink? No.
4364. Have you ever heard of his having been so? When Mr. Gardiner reported it I heard of it.
4365. Not before then? No.
4366. Did you ever take any drink in the office yourself? Very seldom indeed. The most I took was a glass of ale at my lunch, and this not more than once or twice a month.
4367. Have you ever taken more than that? Yes, I have had a little wine occasionally—a little sherry.
4368. Have you ever seen Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink, out of the office? No.
4369. You have never heard or witnessed any of the performances that are said to have taken place in the long-room? No.
4370. Have you had opportunities of seeing Mr. Gardiner's conduct when he was engaged in the department? No.
4371. Have you ever heard of or seen him drinking in the office? No, except that he would take his beer occasionally with the others.
4372. Have you ever seen him drunk? No.
4373. You being the head draughtsman, his work would of course always come under your observation? No, not always.
4374. Have you ever had to find fault with his work, or have you heard complaints made of it? Yes, I have heard complaints made of surveys of his.
4375. Where from? From the Roads Department.
4376. Of your own knowledge, do you know of anything in his conduct to give cause of complaint? No.
4377. Did you hear the explanation he gave in reference to these mistakes with which he was charged by the Roads Department? I did not.
4378. But in the Railway Department you have heard of no complaints? No.
4379. I believe he was considered to be a good mathematician? Yes.
4380. Was he not also considered to be a good engineer? I do not know; I have never heard him spoken of as a good engineer.
4381. Have you ever heard it said that he was not a good engineer? I have not.
4382. You know nothing of his qualifications as an engineer? Nothing whatever.
4383. Might not all this drinking you have described have gone on in the long-room without your knowledge? Certainly it might.
4384. Could not these gentlemen who have been charged with excessive drinking in the department have brought spirits or wine in with them in the morning, without your knowledge? Yes, anybody might do so.
4385. And even during the day might not the messengers have brought in drink to the long-room without your knowledge? Yes, any person might do so—the messengers or any other person; but I am not aware that they did so.
4386. Then you cannot, of your own knowledge, say that the charges brought by Mr. Gardiner are untrue? No, I cannot say so.
4387. Do you keep a journal? Yes.
4388. I believe it has been sent in to this Committee? I believe so.
4389. How do you make it up—daily? Not always.
4390. Do you not occasionally leave it to the end of the month? I have done so, sometimes.
4391. And then you have made it up from memory? Yes, and private notes. I knew what I had been engaged upon during the month, and I entered it up.
4392. Do you happen to know if that is the way in which officers of your department generally make up their journals? Yes, I believe so.
4393. Did you make any statement before Mr. Whitton that was not taken down in the evidence laid before Parliament? Not that I am aware of.
4394. At what time do you generally come to your office in the morning? Soon after 9.
4395. And at what time do you leave it? At all times—between 4 and 5 o'clock.
4396. There are very often several officers of the department left behind at the office when you leave? Yes.*
4397. What are the hours during which you are supposed to be employed? From 9 o'clock till 4.
4398. Is there not a rule in the office that the gentlemen engaged in it shall not go out to lunch? I believe there is a regulation of the kind; but I do not know if there is any distinct rule about it. It is generally understood that parties should not go out to lunch; but I never saw any circular or rule to that effect.
4399. Do you go out to lunch? Very seldom indeed.
4400. You have gone out, however? Yes, but very seldom—perhaps two or three times in the course of a year.
4401. Did you know Mr. Whitton before he came to the Colony? I did not.
4402. Who engaged you in England? I do not recollect the name of the person.
4403. Was it Colonel Galton? I think not. It was a person with some such name as that.
4404. By Mr. Dalgleish: Where were you employed before you came out to this Colony? I was with Messrs. Brunel in the first instance.
4405. Has your pay ever been stopped for being absent from the office? I never was absent from it without leave or sending a note. 4406.

4406. Have you not been absent through illness? I have.
4407. And has not your pay been stopped on these occasions? No.
4408. Do you know any instances of persons having their pay stopped for being absent from the office? Not when they have been absent through illness.
4409. By Mr. Tighe: When you have been absent from illness, have you not been called upon to furnish a medical certificate, to shew that your absence was unavoidable? No, I have never been absent more than one or two days at a time.
4410. And in that case a medical certificate is not required? No. I might be a little unwell—too unwell to go to the office—and yet might not require the assistance of a medical man. In that case a certificate is not expected.
4411. By Mr. Lucas: Your assertion that you were ill has never been called in question? No, I do not imagine that it has been.
4412. And it is not necessary to furnish a medical certificate unless the person is ill for a week or two? No.
4413. When you are absent for a day or two no certificate is required? No.
4414. In that case the gentleman's word that he is ill is not questioned? No, it never has been in my case. It does not follow that because I am too unwell to attend the office, that therefore I employ a medical man; and I may also say, on the other hand, that I have been under medical treatment for weeks together, and yet have not been absent from the office.
4415. Might not any person who was engaged in drinking in the long-room, and being on the watch for any one who might require to enter the room, have time to hide a bottle and the other evidence of drinking, before the other person could get from the main building to the long-room? I think he might.
4416. So that drinking might be carried on to excess in the long-room without any other persons than those engaged in that room having any knowledge of it? Yes, it might.
4417. And you, not being so engaged in the long-room, cannot say of your own knowledge that drinking was not carried on there to excess? I am certainly not aware of it.
4418. And you say that you never heard of the performances that took place there? Not until I saw Mr. Gardiner's statements.
4419. By Mr. Dalgleish: You remember Mr. Gardiner making a report to the Engineer-in-Chief, of the conduct of Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait towards him? I do.
4420. Was that report referred to you for information? No.
4421. Are you not accounted to be the chief draughtsman in the office? I am.
4422. Have you not charge over the other draughtsmen—the gentlemen engaged in the long-room? I had not at that time.
4423. Have you now? I have.
4424. When did you first obtain charge over them? Ever since Mr. Gardiner made his statement.
4425. Previously to that were you not considered to be in charge of them? No, I was not.
4426. Who had charge of them at that time? They were more particularly engaged by the engineers. Mr. Barton had charge of them for some considerable time.
4427. Mr. Barton was frequently absent? Yes.
4428. And who had charge of them in his absence? No one.
4429. Who gave them their work? Mr. Barton.
4430. Were you not in the habit of giving them their work? No.
4431. You had no control or charge over them? No.
4432. So that the report of Mr. Gardiner was not referred to you? It was not.
4433. When you first read that report, did you believe the statements contained in it to be true? I do not think that I formed any opinion upon the subject. My opinion was not asked for, and I did not feel myself called upon to form one.
4434. Have you, since then, formed any opinion upon the subject? I have not.
4435. Do you believe now, from circumstances that have come to your knowledge, that those statements are true? I do not know.
4436. Will you oblige the Committee by trying to know—by endeavouring to make up your mind and trying to say whether you think those charges are true or not? I believe this, that Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait had a quarrel, and that in consequence of the quarrel this report was made.
4437. I do not ask you that, but I wish to know whether you consider this statement to be true? I do not know in what way you mean.
4438. Did you not see the minutes on the papers that passed in your office? I did not.
4439. Were they not hung up publicly in the office? No; at all events, I did not see them.
4440. Did you not see them published in the newspaper? I did not see them anywhere.
4441. However, you say you believe that Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall offered to fight Mr. Gardiner? I do not think it went so far as that; I did not hear that they fought.
4442. Would it not have been easy, at the time the charges were made, to have brought forward evidence either to prove or disprove the allegations in the report? I believe it would.
4443. Were any steps taken to procure such evidence? Yes, I believe that Mr. Whitton did take some steps.
4444. What steps? The charges were referred to Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall, for their report on them.
4445. Do you know what further action was taken in the matter? I cannot tell what further was done. The matter was entirely in the hands of the Engineer-in-Chief.
4446. If Mr. Whitton had believed the charges to have been disproved, would he have kept Mr. Gardiner in the public service for an hour afterwards? I cannot say; I cannot tell what Mr. Whitton would have done.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

14 Jan., 1864.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

14 Jan., 1864.

4447. But I mean, from your knowledge of the public service, would Mr. Gardiner have been kept in the public service an hour after his charges had been proved to be false—would he not have been immediately suspended, for making false charges against his brother officers?
Yes, I think he would.
4448. Was he so suspended? No, he was not.
4449. You know Mr. Barton? Yes.
4450. He occupied part of your room when he was in town? Yes.
4451. Do you remember upon one occasion Mr. Barton drinking to Mr. Hall—taking wine with him, as it has been called—across from your window? No, I do not know that he did so.
4452. I may inform you that Mr. Barton, in his evidence, has acknowledged that he did so, and therefore it is much better that you should answer frankly, not only this, but every other question that the Committee may feel it to be their duty to put to you. Did he drink to Mr. Hall from the window? He may have done so, but I do not remember it.
4453. As a matter of fact, could you not see into the long-room from your window? Yes, partly.
4454. Sufficiently to see each other from behind the table that was at the window? Yes.
4455. Does not this shew that you are incorrect in supposing that a person in the long-room could not see or be seen, in the position in which you have described them to be, in a former part of your answer? They might see me from the long-room if I was at the window, but not without.
4456. You know Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
4457. Did you say you had never seen him drink? No, I say I have seen him drink.
4458. Have you seen him elevated by drink? I think not.
4459. Have you seen him the better for drink? I think I have.
4460. Have you seen him the worse for drink? I have not.
4461. Have you seen him drunk? No.
4462. Will you define to the Committee what you consider to be the worse for drink—What, in your opinion, entitles you to say that a man is drunk? I say that a man is drunk when he is incapable of performing his duties.
4463. How much brandy have you seen Mr. Micklethwait drink at one time? I cannot say; I never watched him.
4464. Have you seen him drink? I have.
4465. How much? I cannot say.
4466. Have you seen him drink a bottle? Yes, I dare say I have, but not at one time.
4467. Have you seen him drink half a bottle? Not at one time.
4468. Have you seen him drink a tumbler or a glassful? Yes, I have seen him drink a glassful—what you call here a nobbler.
4469. Have you seen him take a glassful more than once? Yes.
4470. Of brandy? Yes.
4471. Shortly—one after the other? No, at different times altogether.
4472. On the same day? No, on different days.
4473. You say that upon one occasion you saw a person pouring water on the back of Mr. Micklethwait's head? Yes.
4474. Have you any idea what this was for? I cannot say.
4475. Were you not told what it was for? I think I was.
4476. And what were you told—what did they say it was for? When I inquired what was the matter, I was told that he had had a rush of blood to the head.
4477. Who told you this? Mr. Micklethwait.
4478. You saw him then yourself upon that occasion? Yes.
4479. And that was what he told you—that he had had a rush of blood to the head? Yes.
4480. Did you take particular notice of him? No; I was flurried, and thought some accident had occurred.
4481. In your opinion, had he been drinking? I cannot say.
4482. You saw him and remarked him? Yes.
4483. And you tell this Committee that you cannot say whether he had been drinking? I cannot say.
4484. We must have a direct answer to the question, one way or the other. Had he been drinking you must have discerned it, under the circumstances, and I now ask you again—Had he, in your opinion, been drinking on that day? I think it possible he had.
4485. You might just as well have given that answer at first. How much brandy have you known him drink at one time in the office? I cannot tell; I have never seen him drink brandy upon more than one or two occasions. I have never seen him drink, in the usual sense in which that word is understood, but I believe he did drink.
4486. What did you mean by saying, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that when you saw the water being poured on Mr. Micklethwait's head, he was not under the influence of drink? I do not think that he was.
4487. You have seen him drink? Yes.
4488. And drink brandy? Yes.
4489. Then your evidence before Mr. Whitton is incorrect? No, I think not.
4490. But you say there that Mr. Micklethwait was not under the influence of drink? I do not think he was.
4491. You have, however, just told the Committee that you think he was? I could not have said so.
4492. In answer to my question, you said you thought he had been drinking at the time you saw the water poured over his head (Evidence read over to witness)? I must have misunderstood your question.

4493. Have you never drunk brandy in the office yourself? I may have done so upon one or two occasions, but I have never been in the habit of drinking brandy.
4494. Have you ever drunk brandy in your office with Mr. Barton? Not frequently, but we may have done so once or twice.
4495. At lunch-time, I suppose? Yes.
4496. And not at other times? No.
4497. Were you in the habit of keeping a private stock of wine in the office? No.
4498. Was Mr. Barton? He had a dozen, or it may have been two dozen, of colonial wine brought to the office for him upon one occasion.
4499. Have you had any conversation with your brother officers as to what was to be said here? No.
4500. Nor yet as to what was not to be said? No.
4501. At the time that Mr. Gardiner made his report, or shortly afterwards, did he come up to your office, and complain to you of the conduct of his brother officers, in placing upon his desk a plan marked all over with the word "error"? I think it must have been some time after that, that he made his report.
4502. Are you sure? No; now I remember, it was after he had made his report.
4503. Did you mark the word "error" on that plan? No.
4504. Did you place it on Mr. Gardiner's desk? No.
4505. Did you cause it to be placed there? No.
4506. Were you aware that it was to be placed there? No; I heard it spoken about, and I did all I could to dissuade them from putting it there. I tried to keep it away from him, as I did not wish to hurt his feelings.
4507. Mr. Gardiner complained to you that a plan he had drawn had been written all over with the word "error," and had then been placed on his desk? He did.
4508. Did he use any violent language to you? He used menacing language to me.
4509. What was it? He threatened to publish my work, with a series of remarks relating to it, in the public press.
4510. And he used all this threatening language to you? Yes.
4511. Were you alone at the time? I was.
4512. Where was Mr. Robertson? He was then in the next room.
4513. Could what Mr. Gardiner said have been heard in the next room by Mr. Robertson? I think not, if the door was closed.
4514. Was Mr. Gardiner much excited at what he considered to be this insult put upon him? He was.
4515. And spoke in a loud tone of voice? Yes, he did, very angrily.
4516. He threatened what he would do to you? Yes.
4517. And to publish you and your works in the newspaper? Yes.
4518. What did you say to this? I told him that I had nothing at all to do with it; that all I had done had been to carry out the instructions I had received, and that I was obliged to do so; that the plans had been placed in my hands by the Engineer's Department, and that these errors were marked on the copies when I received them.
4519. They were his plans that had thus been placed in your hands with the word "error" marked on them? Yes.
4520. And this occurred after his complaint had been made? Yes, some time after.
4521. Was there not a feeling against him prevalent in the office, after he had made this complaint to Mr. Whitton? I do not know that there was.
4522. Was there no ill feeling towards him on your part? Yes, I think there was.
4523. On account of this complaint? No; but because he treated us with contumely; when we passed him and wished him good day, he never looked up, or spoke, or did anything.
4524. Did his not looking up to you, or not speaking to you, interfere in any way with the performance of his duties? No.
4525. Is that any valid reason, then, why there should be any ill feeling towards him in the office? I think not.
4526. You never had occasion to find fault with his work? I never did.
4527. Have you ever known him drink? No.
4528. With regard to Mr. Micklethwait—does his hand shake? I have seen his hand shake.
4529. Does not his hand always shake? No, not always.
4530. You have seen him drink? Yes.
4531. Was he capable of conveying a full glass of liquor to his mouth, and drinking it without spilling? I have never seen him do it.
4532. You never saw him convey a glass of spirits to his mouth? Yes, I have seen him on a few occasions, but never a full glass in the way you describe.
4533. On these occasions did not his hand shake very much? No, not that I recollect.
4534. Then, when you say the water was poured over the back of his head, it is your opinion that he had been drinking? I am not quite clear that he had, but he might have been drinking.
4535. Had you seen him drinking on that day? No, I had not.
4536. But you believe him to have been so? Yes.
4537. Was it accidentally that you saw this water poured on to his head? No; I was informed of his being unwell, and went to see him.
4538. Seeing that you only went there because you had been informed, could the whole thing have been done without your knowledge? It might.
4539. Was not this done prior to an interview he was about to have with Mr. Whitton, and in order to make him fit to meet that gentleman? I cannot say.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

14 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. J. W. Drewett.
- 14 Jan., 1864.
4540. Can you not tell by the date whether it was likely that, at that time, he would have an interview with Mr. Whitton? No, I have nothing to guide me as to the time.
4541. Could you not tell by a reference to your official journal or diary, whether it would be likely that about that time he would require to have an interview with Mr. Whitton? I think not, for I do not recollect about the time even that it occurred.
4542. But as you only saw this because your attention was called to it, such a thing may have occurred often for anything you know? It may.
4543. And without coming to your knowledge? Yes.
4544. With regard to that character that you produced just now, who is it from? It is not a character, but merely a statement I have drawn out to be laid before the Committee.
4545. By the Chairman: Mr. Robertson worked in your room? He did.
4546. Is he a good draughtsman? Yes, a tolerably good one.
4547. Are there many men in the department who are better draughtsmen than he is? They are all good draughtsmen.
4548. Are there any in the office who are better than he? Yes, Mr. Fearnside is a better draughtsman—considerably better.
4549. Are there any of Mr. Fearnside's plans in your office? There are; and there may, most likely, be some of his in this room.
4550. Then, you consider Mr. Fearnside to be a better draughtsman than Mr. Robertson? Yes, as a plan draughtsman.
4551. Were there any others better than he? I have said that he was a very good draughtsman, but he had not been long in the office; and he never had a drawing-pen in his hand until he joined us.
4552. Will you explain what difference there is between a plan draughtsman and such a one as Mr. Robertson is described to be, drawing designs for bridges and such like—will you define the difference? I hardly know how to do so.
4553. Is there any difference? Yes, there is a difference, but it is very little.
4554. If there is a difference, you can surely point it out? A plan draughtsman is able to plot out a surveyor's work, but a bridge draughtsman cannot.
4555. Can you plot out a surveyor's work? No.
4556. Can Mr. Robertson? He cannot.
4557. You are sure of this? Yes.
4558. Will you read this certificate (paper marked A. placed in witness' hands)? Yes.
4559. It is from Mr. Blackett, one of the most eminent of our Sydney architects? It is.
4560. Will you look at these drawings (two of Mr. Robertson's drawings handed to witness)? Yes, they are very nicely done indeed; I have seen them before.
4561. By Mr. Dalgleish: Looking at those drawings—what do you mean when you say that Mr. Robertson never had a pen in his hand until he came into your office? I only know that he told me so himself. He said that everything in Mr. Blackett's office was done with the pencil, and not with the pen.
4562. Might not a man who could not possibly line out a drawing be quite capable of inking it in after it had been lined out? Yes, I think he might.
4563. A draughtsman incapable of lining out a drawing would be able to ink it in after it was lined out? I think not.
4564. Provided you had a drawing to make—say of a bridge—would you give it to a junior hand to line out with pencil, or would you leave him to ink it in after it was drawn? I would leave him to ink it in.
4565. You would draw the plan, in the first instance, with the pencil yourself? Yes.
4566. And then give it to the junior hand to ink in? Yes.
4567. Then, does not this shew that it is to the inferior hand that the inking in is entrusted, and that the man who can ink in may not be able to line out the drawing in the first instance? Yes.
4568. Did you say that Mr. Robertson had never inked in a drawing until he came to your office? I certainly understood him to say so.
4569. By the Chairman: But these two plans that were shewn to you are inked in? I see that they are.
4570. And you regard them as very fair drawings? I do.
4571. Then you admit that Mr. Robertson is as good a draughtsman as you have in your office? No, I think not; he is not so good as some in our office.
4572. Who was better than he? Young Mr. Trengrouse was better.
4573. Who else? Mr. Trengrouse, senr.; they were both better than Mr. Robertson.
4574. Who else? Mr. Fearnside.
4575. Could he draw such things as these? I do not know; I never saw him engaged upon anything but plan drawing.
4576. Are there any others in the department better than Mr. Robertson? I do not think there are.
4577. Are you better? I was considered a very fair draughtsman some years ago.
4578. Was he not engaged upon the whole of the plans for the Menangle Bridge—I mean those that were done in the Colony? I think it very likely he was.
4579. Did he not do the principal portions of the drawings for the Penrith Bridge? No, he did not.
4580. Who did the principal work upon the drawings for this bridge? I did.
4581. How many of the plans was Mr. Robertson engaged in? He may have been engaged in the whole of them—more or less.
4582. Is he a good mathematician? I am not aware.
4583. Was he attentive to his duties? Yes, very.
4584. Had you any cause to complain of his conduct at any time? No.

4585. He worked in your room? He did.
4586. And you never had cause to complain either of his work as a draughtsman, or of his conduct as a gentleman? No, I never had cause of complaint against him; on the contrary, I always esteemed him very highly, and I have invariably said so.
4587. Did he do his fair proportion of the work of the department? Yes.
4588. Did Mr. Robertson do any portion of this plan (plan of the Penrith Bridge produced, No. 1)? Yes, I think he did; I think he put in the trusses to the two end piers.
4589. Do you know that he did the whole of this plan? I do not.
4590. Do you know that he did not? Yes, because there is a good deal of it that I know was my work.
4591. Did he do this portion of the plan? I think he did. At all events, I think he made the top caps of the eastern and western piers of the bridge.
4592. Is not the whole lining of this bridge his work? I do not think it is.
4593. Is there no record in your office to shew who does one part of the work? No.
4594. Is there nothing in your office from which it can be discovered what each man does? No.
4595. Do not the journals kept in your office shew this? No, they only shew the work upon which we are engaged, and do not specify that one man did this and another did that.
4596. Is it usual for one part of a plan to be done by one officer and another part by another? Yes, it is frequently the case.
4597. Did you do anything of this (plan No. 2, Penrith Bridge, produced)? I believe that the whole of this central portion of the work is mine, with the exception of the caps.
4598. Who did them? I believe they were put in by Mr. Robertson.
4599. Whose work is this (plan No. 3, Penrith Bridge, produced)? I think I made this, with the exception of the caps, which were done by Mr. Robertson.
4600. Is this Mr. Robertson's work (plan No. 4, Penrith Bridge, produced)? I believe I pencilled the greater portion of this, but the expansion rollers were Mr. Robertson's work.
4601. By Mr. Dalgleish: What kind of rollers are they? Cast-iron.
4602. Are they correctly shewn here? Yes.
4603. Do they lie along the length or across the breadth of the bridge? Along the length, with the sleepers on them.
4604. By the Chairman: Who did this (plans of iron-work of Penrith Bridge, No. 1, produced)? That is only a tracing of the other plan, No. 1, that we have just seen.
4605. Who made it? I do not know who did it; I cannot call to mind just at this moment.
4606. Did Mr. Dogherty do it? Yes, I think he did.
4607. It is very well done—is it not? Yes, but it is nothing particular.
4608. Is it not well done? Middling.
4609. I should have thought it very well done? I do not think that it is so very well done.
4610. Have you any better in your office? Yes, many.
4611. Whose drawing is this (plan No. 2, iron-work of Penrith Bridge, produced)? It is mine.
4612. Partly done by Mr. Robertson? No, that is all my work.
4613. In looking at these plans, can you tell, by inspecting them, which is your work and which Mr. Robertson's? No, I cannot.
4614. There is no difference between your work and his? Not sufficient to distinguish the one from the other. In line drawing it is hard to tell one hand from another.
4615. By Mr. Dalgleish: What, according to your view, is a line draughtsman, and what a plan draughtsman? A plan draughtsman would not be able to do such a thing as this.
4616. Would not an efficient plan draughtsman be able to get up such a drawing as this? No, I think not.
4617. By the Chairman: You have said that this plan was yours; but will you, upon reflection, say that you did the half of it? Yes, I say that I did the whole of it, or nearly so. The lines are principally mine throughout the work, but the writing is Mr. Robertson's.
4618. How can you define what is yours and what his—is it from memory? Yes, it is only from memory.
4619. And not from any difference between your work and his? No.
4620. Then his work is, to all intents and purposes, as good as yours? It is very good.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.
14 Jan., 1864.

Mr. Louis Robertson called in and examined:—

4621. By the Chairman: How much of this plan did you do (plan No. 2, iron-work, Penrith Bridge, shewn to witness)? I did the greater part of it.
4622. Can you shew us the lines you executed? No, I could not tell the lines made by myself from those made by another.
4623. But you did, at least, half the lines of this drawing? Yes, fully the half of the lines, and all the lettering.
4624. Who made the figures? I did some of them, but the most of them were done by Mr. Drewett.
4625. Who did this (plan No. 3, iron-work, Penrith Bridge, produced)? It is my work. Mr. Drewett may have done some of it, but I did the greater part.
4626. Did you do the pencilling, or did you merely ink it in? I did the greater part of the pencilling.

Mr. L.
Robertson.
14 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. L. Robertson. 4627. And the lettering and figuring? They are all mine.
 4628. What part of it did Mr. Drewett do? He did some of the lining. I cannot tell exactly, but I think that the cross-section of one of the girders of the bridge was his work.
 14 Jan., 1864. 4629. Is this your work (plan No. 4, iron-work, Penrith Bridge, produced)? I did the most of this—the printing, figuring and all.
 4630. Who did the lines? I did the most of them.
 4631. Did Mr. Drewett do any of this? Yes, some of it.
 4632. Can you say from memory, how much he did or what parts he did? No.
 4633. Did you both work at the one board? No.
 4634. How did you manage—did you each take a part of the plan alternately? There would perhaps be two or three plans working at the same time, and they would be on different boards, so that he would be doing one whilst I was at work at the other.
 4635. The tracings produced were done by Mr. Gardiner? Yes.
 4636. Do you consider them to be good tracings*? Yes.

NOTE (on revision):—The first question asked and answered is omitted in the above report of the evidence. The question was—How much of this drawing did you do (general drawing of Penrith Bridge)? Answer—All of it.

Mr. J. W. Drewett called in and further examined:—

- Mr. J. W. Drewett. 4637. By the Chairman: You have heard what Mr. Robertson has said, that he did the half of this No. 2 plan, if not more—that as regards the figuring that was yours, whilst the printing was all his;—the difficulty, however, is that, like you, he cannot decide upon which is your work and which his? I saw with regard to this No. 2 plan, iron-work, Menangle Bridge, that I did the greater part of it—that I arranged the whole of the plating, and that it is very likely that as I arranged it, he inked it in.
 4638. By Mr. Dalgleish: What does this part of the plan shew? It is a distorted section of the bridge, to shew the thickness of the plates.
 4639. What particular arrangement of plating is shewn here that should make the plan so difficult? It is not the difficulty, but it takes a long time to do.
 4640. Is it necessary to have all the row of plates shewn in this way—is it not a waste of work to have more than sections of the plates shewn? It must be done by some one.
 4641. This is not a working drawing? Yes, it is; it is what we use as a working drawing.
 4642. But it is not such a drawing as you would put into the hands of a man to work by? Yes, but it might have to be enlarged for that purpose.
 4643. Then, not being a working drawing, it is a waste of labour, being a mere repetition of the same line of plates throughout? No, they vary in thickness and length as they approach the centre of the bridge.
 4644. By the Chairman: If you had given half the bridge, from the end to the centre, would not that have been sufficient? Yes, I think it would have been.
 4645. Then the time employed upon the other half is all lost time? No, I think not, for it makes the plan more complete.
 4646. But for the sake of the work, is it necessary to give more than the half of this? I think not; but it is more convenient for the workman to have it as it is.
 4647. By Mr. Stewart: What would be the time that this plan would occupy you to complete, if you were engaged upon it alone? I cannot say.
 4648. Could you do it in a week? No, certainly not.
 4649. Would it take you a month? I dare say it would.
 4650. And how long would it require to make a tracing from it? It would take a week at any rate.
 4651. By the Chairman: How many copies of this have to be made? Only one copy.
 4652. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you anything in your journal to shew how long you were occupied upon this particular plan? No.
 4653. Now, could you do such a plan as this in less than two months? It is almost impossible to say how long it would take. There is no doubt an immense deal of work on it.
 4654. Do you think you could do it in less than two months? I could not say.
 4655. By the Chairman: And now with regard to this plan (plan No. 3, iron-work, Menangle Bridge, produced)? I say that I did the whole of it, except putting in the rivets and the writing. Mr. Robertson and I may have put in the rivets between us, but I did the whole of the lining, and I think it very likely that I put in the rivets, and that he coloured them.
 4656. By Mr. Dalgleish: Would not this also have been equally well shewn, for all practical purposes, if only half the plan had been given? No, I think not.
 4657. Are they not the same? No, every section varies, from the piers right over to the centre.
 4658. By the Chairman: Whose work is this (No. 4 plan, iron-work, Penrith Bridge, produced)? I did this; and I believe nearly the whole of it.
 4659. What did Mr. Robertson do? He did the writing and the riveting, and I believe that he rounded these rollers for me.
 4660. Who else was in this room besides you and Mr. Robertson? We were there alone latterly.

4661.

* NOTE (on revision):—This question was addressed to Mr. Drewett, and answered by him.

4661. But during the time these plans were being executed? There was no one but him and me at that time.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

4662. Is he not quite competent to do any work of this kind of himself? Yes, to draw them under instructions.

14 Jan., 1864.

4663. Is he not capable of himself to do any of the work shewn on these plans? Yes, I think he is, of drawing it under instructions.

4664. I want no qualification, but a simple answer—is he qualified to do of himself any of the work shewn on these plans? Yes, if he is directed.

4665. What do you mean by saying if he is directed? I mean if instructions are given him, or sketches shewn him, as to how the work is to be done.

4666. Who made the sketches for this work, in the first instance? There were no sketches for the work of this bridge.

4667. Is it not a copy of the iron-work from the Menangle Bridge? Yes, to a great extent.

4668. Did you not copy it from the plans for that bridge? Yes.

4669. Then, if he had these plans before him as you had, what do you mean by saying that he could not have got out the work without directions? I mean that he could not have got out the work without he had further directions than on these plans, of the other bridge.

4670. But if he had the plans of the Menangle Bridge, as you had, could he not have got up these plans? I think not.

4671. Why? Because he has not had the same experience as I have had.

4672. But he would have the copy? Yes, but this is not an exact copy of the Menangle Bridge.

4673. In what does it differ? It differs both in height and length.

4674. Could he not carry out the proportions, in the same way that you did? Yes, if they were given to him; and that is why I say he would require directions.

4675. And who gave you the proportions? Mr. Whitton.

4676. Supposing you had not been in the office, and that Mr. Whitton had given him the same instructions that he gave you, would he not have been competent to prepare these plans as they now stand? I do not think he would.

4677. You have acknowledged that he is as good a draughtsman as any in your office? Yes, perhaps he is.

4678. And yet you think he is not capable of getting out such a plan as this, without instructions? That is my opinion.

4679. Do you want the same instructions that Mr. Robertson would require, in order to get out a plan of this kind? No, I think not.

4680. Could you have done it without instructions from Mr. Whitton? I might have done so.

4681. But Mr. Robertson could not? No.

4682. He is as good a mathematician as you? He may be so.

4683. And yet, in your opinion, not as capable as you to take out the necessary proportionate measurements? I think not.

4684. Why not? Because he is only a young man, and has not yet had the experience I have had.

4685. You have seen this certificate from Mr. Blackett as to his capabilities—you have been shewn plans that he has drawn, and you acknowledge that he is as good a draughtsman as yourself—can you now tell me any one thing in which you consider him to be inferior to yourself? I do not like to say, for it is not pleasant to have to draw comparisons with one's-self.

4686. You never had occasion to find fault with him? No, I never had.

4687. Is there any one in your office whom you would have preferred to assist you rather than Mr. Robertson? No, I think not; I always had the highest opinion of him.

4688. Do you know the amount of salary he was receiving when he left? Yes.

4689. What was it? One hundred a year.

4690. How long had he been receiving that salary? I cannot tell.

4691. Had he been receiving it for the twelve months prior to leaving the office? Yes, I think so.

4692. Do you not know that he was for some time upon a salary of £52 a year? Yes.

4693. Was that a fair remuneration for a young man with his qualifications? I do not think it was, and that was why I tried to get his salary increased. It was upon my recommendation that his salary was increased from £52 to £100 a year.

4694. Do you think that he could do, and did, as much work as any other officer in the department? I think he did a fair share of the work.

4695. Then the other officers in the department who received such high salaries were overpaid if he was fairly paid? He could not expect, upon just coming into the office, to get the same salary as those persons who had been many years in it, and were acquainted with all the business. He had only been three years in the profession, and I have been nearly thirty years in it.

4696. Is it not a known fact that there are many young men, with only two or three years experience of their profession, whose services are worth far more than those of men who have been a lifetime at it. The public pay for duties performed without troubling themselves whether they are performed by a young or an old man; and if he did as much work, and as well, as any other officer of the department, he was entitled, as far as the public was concerned, to receive the same salary as others? He would have had a rise of salary had he remained.

4697. And do you consider the miserable rise he would have had would have been at all equal to the work he performed in the department? As I said before, he could not expect to be at once put on the same footing as the older officers of the department.

- Mr. J. W. Drewett.
- 14 Jan., 1864.
4698. You receive £500 a year, I believe? Yes.
4699. Have you ever had a rise of salary? No.
4700. That was the amount at which you were engaged? Yes.
4701. And Mr. Robertson did the same work as you? No.
4702. He did the same amount of work as you and others? He did his fair share of work.
4703. You have been asked about Mr. Micklethwait—did you ever see him when his hand did not shake? I have.
4704. As a general thing does his hand shake? No, I think not.
4705. You recollect when he arrived in the Colony? Yes.
4706. Did his hand shake then? I think not.
4707. Then if Mr. Barton says that Mr. Micklethwait's hand is always shaking, he is mistaken? I do not know; I have never seen his hand always shaking.
4708. If he says it is an hereditary failing that Mr. Micklethwait has, he is also mistaken? I cannot say; I have not been much with him.
4709. You acknowledge, however, that one of the few officers who was superior to Mr. Robertson as a draughtsman was Mr. Trengrouse, junr.? Yes, I thought both he and his father superior to Mr. Robertson.
4710. Both the Messrs. Trengrouse? Yes.
4711. Mr. Trengrouse, junr., is now in the Lands Department? He is.
4712. Then if Mr. Arnold says that Mr. Trengrouse, junr., is only fit to do tracings, it is an injustice to that gentleman? I do not know that he did tracings.
4713. I wish you to answer my question—If Mr. Arnold has said that Mr. Trengrouse, junr., and Mr. Robertson were only fit to make tracings, he has been guilty of an injustice both to Mr. Trengrouse, junr., and Mr. Robertson? I think it was an injustice.
4714. You have seen, in looking through the plans of the Penrith Bridge, a reference to a tracing by Mr. Gardiner? Yes.
4715. Do you consider that tracing to be well done? Yes, very well done.
4716. And that tracing of Mr. Dogherty's? No, I do not consider that to be well done.
4717. What is the matter with it? It is not well lined in; it is not clear—not what a draughtsman would consider a good tracing.
4718. Are you sure, with reference to the plans for the Honeysuckle Station, that neither of them is yours? Yes, I am quite sure.
4719. What work were you engaged upon when you first came to the country? I cannot say. I was making arrangements in regard to my work, for the first week or two; but I believe that the Honeysuckle Station was about the first work I was engaged upon.
4720. These plans that were shewn to you, are plans for the Honeysuckle Station? I am aware of it, but neither of them is mine.
4721. Where is your plan? Unfortunately the original plan cannot be found. We have hunted for them all over the office, but they are not to be found. These plans have been sent to the Committee in mistake, by some officer who did not know exactly what the Committee required.
4722. Who sent them? I do not know.
4723. Were they not sent by Mr. Rae? They have been sent from his office, but not by him.
4724. How would they come to be in the office if they were not originals? They would be there with the other plans, and then the officer who made the search, seeing they were plans of the Honeysuckle Station, and that plans of that station were required, he would naturally, not knowing the purpose for which the Committee required them, send up these.
4725. Were there not some alterations made in the plan drawn by you? I do not remember, but I think not.
4726. I am informed that there were. Now, will you put these plans up to the light, and see if there are not in one of them many alterations and erasures? In one of them there does not seem to be any, but the other has undoubtedly been much altered.
4727. And very materially altered? Yes.
4728. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is this not an office plan? Yes, but it is not an original.
4729. How has it been altered? I do not know, but I believe it was made and altered before I came to the Colony.
4730. Is it dated? This one is dated the 13th January, 1857. I was not in the Colony at that time.
4731. By the Chairman: But the Honeysuckle Station was the first work you were engaged in after you came to the Colony? I cannot say positively that it was the first, but it was about the first.
4732. It is a building something like this? Yes, it is a weatherboard building, as in this plan.
4733. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was not a drawing of the Honeysuckle Station the first drawing you made after you came to the Colony? I think it was.
4734. What was the second? That I cannot tell.
4735. But you can find out by a reference to your memoranda? I do not know that I can; I am afraid not.
4736. I look to the report from the Engineer-in-Chief to the Under Secretary for the Works Department, signed with the initials J. W., and with the date 28/8/63, and I find this passage:—"The duties upon which Mr. Trengrouse has been employed are, to make "tracings of land plans required for notices to owners and occupiers of land taken for "railway purposes, and also to copy on deeds plans of land purchased." Is this true? Yes.
4737. Does this state the entire truth in regard to the services that Mr. Trengrouse, senr. was capable of rendering in the department? I cannot tell.
- 4738.

4738. You are the chief draughtsman in the department? Yes, but I have had nothing to do with him since I have been in the department.

4739. But you have given an opinion before this Committee in regard to his capability? Yes.

4740. And have informed us that he is a better draughtsman than Mr. Robertson? Yes, as a draughtsman.

4741. Does this report of the Engineer-in-Chief give a truthful account of his qualifications? I think so.

4742. You say he is a good draughtsman? Yes.

4743. Does not this report give an opinion that he is not a good draughtsman? No, I think not.

4744. Are there not many things that he might have been more advantageously employed upon than those that were given him to do? Yes.

4745. As regards Mr. Dogherty and Mr. Robertson, in so far as the first part of a subsequent sentence is concerned, that they "were both only temporarily employed in the office to make tracings,"—is that true? Yes, I believe so.

4746. Was Mr. Robertson employed in that way? That was what he was engaged for.

4747. That is not what I ask you—I ask you if he was so employed? Not latterly—certainly not.

4748. How long is it since he was so employed? I cannot tell.

4749. How long do you think it was? It might have been for about three months before he was suspended.

4750. Just recollect yourself, and say how long it is since Mr. Robertson was last employed upon tracing copies of plans? I do not think he has been so employed for the last twelve months.

4751. What do you mean then by saying that it is only within the three months prior to his suspension that he was not so employed? I meant that within the three months he had certainly not been so employed, and that he might have been before that.

4752. Then, as he had not been employed in tracing for the twelve months prior to suspension, was not this report of Mr. Whitton's calculated to give a false impression? I think not.

4753. Was it not calculated to mislead me, or any other Member of the Assembly who read it, as to the nature of Mr. Robertson's employment in the department? He was not engaged upon tracing at the time he left the office, but that was what he was engaged for.

4754. So that when he left the office he was not so employed? No, nor for twelve months previously.

4755. Was it not rather for eighteen months previously? Well, it may have been.

4756. He was three years in the office? Yes.

4757. And for half that time was not employed on tracing? Yes.

4758. Then this statement about his being employed upon tracing is incorrect? I do not think that it was intended to be so.

4759. But I ask you the fact—Is the statement correct or incorrect? It is true that he was engaged to make tracings, but that for the last twelve months, at all events, he was not so engaged.

4760. So that because he was engaged three years ago to make tracings, you would desire to continue on that engagement up to the present time? No, I do not; I say that he was not employed upon tracings for the last twelve months.

4761. Then, is this statement true or is it untrue? I believe it is true in so far as regards the purpose for which Mr. Robertson was employed.

4762. But, as a matter of fact, he was not so employed for some time back? No, not for the last eighteen months that he was in the office.

4763. Is the statement true as regards Mr. Dogherty? It is quite true.

4764. So that by mixing the truth and the error together, an appearance of veracity is given to the whole statement? It is certainly perfectly correct with respect to Mr. Dogherty.

4765. By the Chairman: Was not Mr. Robertson on the permanent staff? No, I believe not.

4766. Are you sure of it? I am not positive, but I believe not. Before he was suspended he was put down for an increase, and to be placed upon the permanent staff.

4767. Will you say that his salary was not placed on the Estimates for last year? I do not know certainly, but I think not.

4768. If he was not on the permanent staff, where would be the necessity for suspending him, since his services might have been dispensed with at any moment? I think not; he was appointed by the Executive Council, and they only would have authority to dismiss him.

4769. Would not this paragraph of Mr. Whitton's letter or report, referred to by Mr. Dalgleish, lead one to suppose that Mr. Dogherty and Mr. Robertson were employed in the office, at the time it was written, in making tracings? It might give that impression to a person unacquainted with the office.

4770. Do you think Mr. Whitton himself knew how Mr. Robertson was employed? I think he must have known.

4771. Was it true that Mr. Robertson was employed upon tracings at the time that letter was written? No.

4772. Not on the 28th August, 1863? He was not.

4773. Instead of that he was employed upon some of the best work in the office? He was.

4774. In reference to Mr. Hall—do you know anything of his ability as a draughtsman? I do.

4775.

Mr. J. W.
Drewett.

14 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. J. W. Drewett.
14 Jan., 1864.
4775. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say that Mr. Robertson has not the necessary experience or skill to make such plans as those of the Penrith Bridge, by himself? I say I think not.
4776. Have you yourself that necessary skill? I have.
4777. Can you calculate the strain upon the centre girder of such a bridge as that we have seen here to-day? No, I cannot.
4778. Could you take out from the drawings the quantities of iron and wood? Yes.
4779. Have you ever been engaged in similar works before you came to this country? Yes, for twenty-three years.
4780. Where? When I was in the office of the late Mr. Brunel.
4781. Upon what bridge drawings were you employed? Upon the Suspension Bridge at Westminster; upon the Chepstow Bridge, on the South Wales Railway line; and the Albert Bridge, on the Cornwall Railway at Saltash; and a compound road, river, and railway bridge, on the Great Western and Brentford Junction Railway.
4782. Do you know whether Mr. Robertson was capable of calculating the strain upon the centre of a bridge? I do not know whether he can or cannot.
4783. You are not aware that he cannot? No, I am not.
4784. Have you ever had any conversation with him in order to discover his proficiency in this respect? I have not.
4785. Are you aware that he is a very good mathematician? I am not.
4786. Can you read engineering works in which the formulary is used—works in which the calculus signs are employed? I cannot.
4787. Such works as those of Macquorne Rankine? * Yes, I have read such works occasionally.
4788. And you can take out the quantities and weights from a drawing? Yes.
4789. Have you always found Mr. Robertson to be truthful in his intercourse with you? Yes, I have never heard it said that he was other than truthful.
4790. Have you always found him candid in his dealings with you? Yes; I have had only very few conversations with him, but I had never to find any fault, either as regarded his truth or his candour. I always thought very highly of him, and have never failed to say so.
4791. Have you ever given him directions as to the way in which he should enter his work in his journal? No, I should never think of doing anything of the sort. Sometimes, however, the work in the office is so very general that it may have been difficult to define it, and he may have consulted me, as being longer in the office.
4792. You have never been in the habit of defining it for him? No; but as he was only new in the office, he may have asked me what he should say in this or that case, and I may have answered him, and told him to put it down as general office work.
4793. So that when he put down in his journal that he had been engaged upon general office work, he may actually have been at work upon some of these drawings and bridges? I do not know that; but there are many things that we have to do in the office that we do not know how to designate in any other way.
4794. Do you think he would tell a wilful untruth as to the way in which he was employed in the office? No, I think not.
4795. And you think the Committee would be justified in believing his statement? Yes, I do not believe that he would knowingly state anything wrongfully.
4796. He might be mistaken, but would not wilfully state an untruth? No; I had a very high opinion of him, and on that account I have invariably treated him with marked kindness.
4797. By the Chairman: In the Estimates for 1864, I see there is an entry for an assistant draughtsman, at £100 a year—that was intended for Mr. Robertson, I presume? Yes, it appears so.
4798. All that appear here on the Estimates are on the permanent staff? That I do not know.
4799. The £2,000 subsequently put down for contingencies serve to pay those who are not on the permanent staff? Yes, I believe so.
4800. So that if he had not been on the permanent staff, his salary would not have appeared specified in this way? Probably not, but I cannot say positively how that would be.

FRIDAY, 15 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. GARRETT,		MR. STEWART.

JOHN LUCAS, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

William Mason, Esq., called in and examined:—

- W. Mason, Esq.
15 Jan., 1864.
4801. By the Chairman: What is your position in the Railway Department? Chief Assistant Engineer.
4802. Next to Mr. Whitton? Next to Mr. Whitton.
4803. You measure up the whole of the works? Not the whole of the works—the works on the Western and Southern lines.
4804. Not on the Northern? Not on the Northern. On the Western line, up to Penrith—not beyond Penrith; and on the Southern line, up to Picton—not beyond Picton.
- 4805.

* Revised:—No, I have not read such works.

4805. You gave evidence with reference to the disorganized state of the Works Department, before Mr. Whitton? Yes. W. Mason,
Esq.
4806. You are generally out on the works? Probably one-third of my time I am out on the works. 15 Jan., 1864.
4807. The other two-thirds —? The other two-thirds in the office.
4808. I presume, when in the office, you are making up the quantities—are you not? Sometimes; and I am engaged with various works in the office besides.
4809. Have you a room of your own? I have.
4810. I suppose you are generally engaged in that room? I am always engaged in that room when in the office.
4811. And you say you are engaged in various works during the time you are in the office? Yes.
4812. Will you enumerate some of them? Examining drawings and making drawings, getting out original designs, and various other things.
4813. How far is your office from Mr. Drewett's? Mr. Drewett's is on the second floor, and mine is on the ground floor.
4814. In the present office? Yes.
4815. Please confine yourself, in the questions I may ask you, to the old office—not to the present office, because you must be aware that this examination has reference to the conduct of the department while in the old office? My office was next to, on the same floor as Mr. Drewett's, at the old office.
4816. And you say you are fully one-third of your time on the line? I should think about that, as near as I can tell—probably more.
4817. How long does it take you to work up the quantities, measuring one-third of your time? That depends upon the amount of the work done. There is working out the quantities and making out the contractors' certificates. The whole together would take on the average about a week, exclusive of the measuring.
4818. How long would the measuring take you? Probably a fortnight altogether.
4819. And then a week for taking out the quantities? I mean making up the quantities.
4820. Half your time is taken up with measuring and working out the quantities? Sometimes I have done it in a week, sometimes in less than a week; it is just according to circumstances. Sometimes I have not been obliged to go through to the end of the works, as there was no work done beyond a certain point, and consequently I have done it in less time.
4821. Do you know the different gentlemen's work in the department? Yes.
4822. Will you tell me who drew that plan (showing a plan to witness)? I do not know that I can tell by the drawing; I could not say by this drawing whose work it is; it is impossible for any one to tell.
4823. Were you often in the long drawing-room? At one time I was.
4824. Please to confine yourself to the last six months of 1862? In the last six months of 1862—No.
4825. You were absent a great deal of your time during the last six months of 1862? Not more than I have stated—about the same—one-third of my time.
4826. You were very seldom in the long drawing-room during that period? I have not been much in the long drawing-room during that period.
4827. Have you ever seen any drinking going on in the department? I have seen them take beer at lunch-time—never at any other time.
4828. Have you seen them take spirits at lunch-time? Never.
4829. You being seldom in the room, they might take it unknown to you? Such a thing is possible.
4830. Is it not probable? I should not like to say it is probable; it is possible.
4831. During that period I have been informed that you were not, on the average, in the long-room above once a month? It might be so, from the fact that I have no immediate supervision over it.
4832. You only being there not oftener than once a month, may not any person there have been drunk twenty days out of the month without your knowing it? Certainly he might.
4833. And any amount of spirits or beer might have been taken into the room without your knowledge? It might have been certainly, without my knowledge.
4834. I see in your examination before Mr. Whitton you say, "I have never on any occasion seen drinking or drunkenness in the office; I am necessarily backwards and forwards amongst the officers, and if such cases as are alluded to in the newspapers of 29th July had taken place, I should either have seen or heard of them:" Now, how can you reconcile the evidence you have given here to-day with the evidence you gave before Mr. Whitton? I have been backwards and forwards in the office, and I think I should have seen it if it had been the case.
4835. You acknowledge now that you were not there more than once a month during this period—did you not understand that this examination had reference to the charges brought by Mr. Martin Gardiner against the department? Yes.
4836. Would not any person reading over this evidence consider that your remarks had reference to the period I have mentioned? I do not know what they might think about it.
4837. Will you just read it and say whether you would not have been led to that conclusion, knowing this report had been made by Mr. Gardiner with reference to this period. From the tenor of your evidence there, would you not conclude that the gentleman giving that evidence was referring to the time that the charge was made? I do not think it is contrary to what I have stated, that during the time I have been in the habit of going into the office I have never seen anything of the kind.
4838. Is the evidence taken down here as you gave it? It is.

W. Mason,
Esq.

15 Jan., 1864.

4839. When you say you were necessarily backwards and forwards, and if such a thing had occurred, you must have seen it? I do not say how often.

4840. But you say you must have seen it, and now you acknowledge you were not there more than once a month, and that they may have been drunk twenty days out of the month without your knowing it? It is possible it might be so when I was not there; I merely stated the fact that I never saw anything of the kind.

4841. Then, in reality, you know little or nothing about the proceedings in the office during the period referred to in the charge of Mr. Gardiner? Nothing more than what I have stated.

4842. How far was the long drawing-room at the old offices from the main building? Probably about fifty or sixty feet.

4843. And any person approaching the drawing-room could be seen from it directly they left the main building—any person standing or walking in the long drawing-room could see any person approaching? That would depend upon what position they were placed in in the long drawing-room.

4844. That is a plan of the place, is it not (showing a plan to witness)? Yes, this appears to be a plan of the building.

4845. Any person then in the long drawing-room could see any one approaching directly he left the main building? No, I think not, for there is a projection here—a kitchen. If you will allow me, I will make a small sketch of it. (Witness explained by a sketch.)

4846. Then directly any person passes this kitchen they can be seen from the long drawing-room? I dare say they can when they come to the top of these steps; if a person was looking out there they could be seen from these windows.

4847. Or working at the tables? I do not know about working at the tables; it is possible they might; I could not say.

4848. Supposing they were looking out of the window, they would have time to hide any bottle, or anything of that sort they might have been using, before a person could approach? That I do not know; it would depend upon their expedition; under ordinary circumstances it is probable they might.

4849. And, of course, if these gentlemen who are employed in the office saw you, or Mr. Barton, or any person, approaching, and there was any drink about, I presume they would hide it? Probably they might, as they would be fully aware such a thing would not be allowed.

4850. By Mr. Stewart: What is the distance between the end of the kitchen and the entrance to the door of the long-room? Probably from thirty to forty feet.

4851. That is, from the door of the long-room to the part where a person approaching could first be seen? There is a pathway to be taken off; probably the distance would be thirty feet where they would rise up the steps so that they could be seen.

4852. By the Chairman: Was the door always open? Sometimes open and sometimes shut. I generally found the door open in the summer time.

4853. Of course you have had opportunity of knowing the abilities of the different draughtsmen you have had in your department? Yes.

4854. What sort of a draughtsman was Mr. Robertson? He was a very fair draughtsman, that is, in copying drawings—he was a very good hand at copying drawings; he was not what I should call an experienced draughtsman.

4855. Was he a good draughtsman? Well, I could say he was a good draughtsman, as far as making or copying drawings goes, but he was not an experienced draughtsman.

4856. Is it not the duty of yourself or Mr. Whitton to give a rough design of any drawing made in the office? Yes.

4857. Could not Mr. Robertson make a plan from your design? If it was something simple probably he might; but if it was anything of which he never before had experience, I do not think he could do it. There is a difference between being a draughtsman and an experienced draughtsman. A man experienced in bridge drawing, for instance, may, if you give him a rough sketch, make a complete plan, whereas an inexperienced draughtsman would have to ask particulars as to all details; he could draw it, probably, as far as drawing goes, but he would have to ask what he was to draw.

4858. Had not Mr. Drewett an opportunity of knowing Mr. Robertson's qualifications as a draughtsman? Yes.

4859. Suppose Mr. Drewett says he is equal to any draughtsman in the office? I do not know what Mr. Drewett may have said.

4860. Do you know anything of the qualifications of Mr. Trengrouse, senior? Mr. Trengrouse is a very fair draughtsman—a very pretty draughtsman—but I could not say whether he has ever had much experience in bridge drawing. He could make a very handsome drawing.

4861. Have you seen Mr. Martin Gardiner's drawing? I have.

4862. What do you think of his qualifications? I know very little of Mr. Gardiner; I have not spoken to him on more than two or three occasions; on one occasion it was to give him a tracing to make, and on another occasion it was to tell him to work out some quantities—to check some of my quantities, or to work them out—I really forget which.

4863. Did he do them satisfactorily? Yes. It was a very simple tracing, and the quantities he had to work out were simple multiplication and addition; but he did them very satisfactorily.

4864. You know Mr. Micklethwait? I do.

4865. You say here you have known him twenty years? Yes, I have known him since 1843 or 1844.

4866. Have you ever seen him the worse for drink? Never.

4867. In the office or out? Never, in the office or out.
4868. Do you know whether he does drink? I have heard it said, but I am not aware of it personally.
4869. During the time this charge was made he might have drunk to excess? Such a thing is possible, but I am not aware of it.
4870. Did you ever call Mr. Whitton's attention to the state of Mr. Micklethwait during office hours on any occasion? I do not remember ever having done so.
4871. Will you say you did not do so? No, I did not; I do not remember ever having done such a thing.
4872. You may have done so? No, I can state positively I never did call attention to his state.
4873. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall the worse for drink? Never.
4874. Did you ever hear of a charge being brought against him at Penrith? Yes, I have.
4875. Was he absent from the office for any period at that time? He was acting at the time as Inspector on the works at Penrith. I suppose this took place during the time he was on the works.
4876. Did you ever hear of any similar charge against him at South Creek? No.
4877. What was the charge at Penrith? I believe it was a charge of an attempt at rape that was preferred against him. I do not know it as a fact, and I have not seen anything in the papers of it; I have merely been told so.
4878. Do you remember ever remarking to the officers in the department that he stank of drink? Never.
4879. Did you ever hear of Mr. Martin Gardiner drinking in the office? Never.
4880. Did you ever hear of Mr. Dogherty drinking in the office? No.
4881. Did you ever hear anything against the characters of Mr. Robertson, Mr. Trengrouse, Mr. Gardiner, or Mr. Dogherty, in the office? I never heard anything against the characters of those gentlemen.
4882. Do you know whether any complaint was ever made against them, as to the manner in which they performed their work? I dare say there may have been; there was never any made to me.
4883. You have not heard it? No complaint has been made to me; there may have been to Mr. Whitton.
4884. You have not heard it? I have not heard of any, excepting that I think I have heard Mr. Drewett state different things—that they had not done so-and-so.
4885. Who had not? Some of these parties.
4886. Can you mention which one of them? I really do not remember now. He has possibly said, if I remember right, that they have been a long time over doing certain things, when I have complained of the work getting on so slowly—and that kind of thing.
4887. These complaints have not been made to you? The complaints would not be made to me, inasmuch as I had nothing at all to do with them.
4888. By Mr. Dalgleish: Who had? Mr. Whitton.
4889. Who under him? Mr. Drewett, as having the supervision of a portion of the office lately, and Mr. Barton, as having the supervision of the other part—Mr. Barton, the whole that relates to the Trial Survey Department, and Mr. Drewett the remainder.
4890. By the Chairman: Do you know Mr. Fearnside? I do.
4891. What is he generally engaged upon? I believe he is generally engaged upon the working sections—writing the working sections, as a writing draughtsman. When there is not work of that kind he does tracing, or any ordinary work that happens to require to be done in the office.
4892. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is Mr. Fearnside considered to be what is called a good plotter of work—is he capable of plotting surveys? I am not aware.
4893. Is he employed in that way? He is not employed in plotting surveys.
4894. Is he what is commonly known as a plan draughtsman? A plan draughtsman; he is not an architectural draughtsman or a bridge draughtsman.
4895. Can he make plans from field books? From what I have seen him plot I should imagine he could.
4896. By the Chairman: Of course you have a thorough knowledge of his qualifications as a draughtsman? I have, from seeing his work.
4897. Comparing him with other draughtsmen in the department, do you think he is equal to the others? He is much superior as a plan draughtsman to any other we have in the office.
4898. As a writing draughtsman? As a writing draughtsman, very much superior.
4899. Supposing he had a bridge or any other structure to do, do you think he is as good a draughtsman as Mr. Robertson or Mr. Trengrouse? For drawing a bridge, no—it is quite out of his line, but for writing he is superior to any of them.
4900. You would not put him on work that you would put either Mr. Robertson, or Mr. Trengrouse, or Mr. Drewett upon? Certainly not.
4901. By Mr. Dalgleish: Writing is only an ornamental part of the plan? I think it is useful as well.
4902. It is more ornamental than useful? No, I cannot admit that, because the figures might be made in such a way that what was meant for a 1 might be called a 7.
4903. As long as they are made plain that is sufficient? Yes.
4904. With other draughtsmen it is necessary to have accuracy? Certainly; and it is absolutely necessary to have accuracy in this work also. I mean to say that figures made in a plain handwriting are, practically, as good as though they were printed like a book, provided they can be read.

W. Mason,
Esq.

15 Jan., 1864.

- W. Mason, Esq.
15 Jan., 1864.
4905. By the Chairman: What sort of draughtsman is Mr. Mackay? He is an architectural draughtsman.
4906. He has been so engaged since he has been in the office? He has been engaged almost exclusively on station drawings.
4907. Have you seen Mr. Mackay take anything to drink? Never, excepting at his lunch.
4908. But in reality, you cannot tell of your own knowledge whether drinking has been going on in the department or no? So far as I have seen whilst I have been in the office, I say I have never seen any of it.
4909. By Mr. Morris: Have you heard whether Mr. Micklethwait has the reputation of being a drunkard? Well, I have heard so.
4910. From gentlemen in the office? Yes, I have heard it from gentlemen in the office, and on several occasions I have heard so.
4911. Has he the appearance of a man who suffers from excessive drinking? Well, I have not seen him for the last twelve months.
4912. By Mr. Dalgleish: When you last saw him? When I last saw him—no, I do not know that he has; he had not then.
4913. By Mr. Morris: Is he not a very nervous man—do his hands shake, as a man does after being engaged in excess? I have not seen him in that state, with the exception of once, and then he told me he had a very bad bilious attack, which was the cause of it.
4914. Nevertheless, you have heard he has a reputation as being a man who drinks to excess? I have heard so.
4915. You have heard it from gentlemen in the office? No, I have not heard it from gentlemen in the office.
4916. By the Chairman: Have you heard the same of Mr. Hall? Yes, I have heard it said of Mr. Hall, but not by gentlemen in the office.
4917. By Mr. Morris: You said, a little while ago, that you had heard from gentlemen in the office that Mr. Micklethwait was given to drinking? I beg pardon—I misunderstood the question if I did.
4918. You have not heard it then from gentlemen in the office, but from people out of doors? From people out of doors.
4919. By Mr. Dalgleish: As Assistant Engineer, was any report from Mr. Gardiner, complaining of an assault or threatened assault, or of misconduct, on the part of his brother officers, referred to you? Never.
4920. How soon after Mr. Gardiner reported that conduct to Mr. Whitton, did you become aware of the fact that he had so reported? I really do not remember the time that elapsed between.
4921. Were you in the office at the time, or in the country? I really do not remember; I remember hearing of it some short time after—possibly a week or a fortnight.
4922. From your position in the office it was only reasonable that that minute paper should be referred to you for your report? These things are generally referred to Mr. Whitton. If the matter had been referred to me, I should only have had to refer to Mr. Whitton.
4923. When you heard of that report sent in by Mr. Gardiner, did you believe Mr. Gardiner's statements to be true? I did not know what Mr. Gardiner's statements might be; I had not come to any conclusion.
4924. You were unaware of the nature of the statement? I was aware of the nature of the statement after I heard of it.
4925. Did you believe that complaint to be true? I really do not know what I believed at the time; I cannot say.
4926. Do you consider that, if an investigation had been held at that time, evidence could have been brought forward to have proved or disproved the statements made by Mr. Gardiner? I should think so.
4927. Was there any inquiry made then? I believe not.
4928. You say Mr. Gardiner has done work for you while he was in the office? I say on only two occasions I gave work to Mr. Gardiner.
4929. What description of work did you give him? One was, making a small tracing—a very small job, which he could do in about ten minutes; and the other was, working out the quantities of some earth-work from my measurements—merely multiplying and adding them up.
4930. Was there anything in the quantities Mr. Gardiner took out less difficult than in taking out quantities in general? There is a difference between "taking out" and "working out" quantities. In the one case the quantities are taken out from the sections, and in the other worked out from those dimensions. "Working out" quantities from measurements is less difficult than "taking them out."
4931. Was there anything less difficult in working out the quantities that you gave Mr. Gardiner to work out, than in working out quantities in general—than there is in any other quantities that have to be worked out? No, I am not aware that there was; it is all simple multiplication and addition in that case.
4932. Then why did you particularize the quantities which Mr. Gardiner worked out as being merely multiplication and addition? Because these are quantities that anybody could work out.
4933. Do you not employ a large portion of your time in doing the same kind of work? The greater portion of my time is employed in getting out original designs for bridges and other works, getting out contract sections, arranging for contract drawings, arranging stations and station sidings, and the general work of the office.
4934. Do you work out your own quantities? I generally do; it was only on that one occasion that I gave them to Mr. Gardiner. I invariably work out my own quantities, taken from sections and also from measurements.
- 4935.

4935. Have you any reason to believe Mr. Gardiner could not take out quantities as well as work them out? No.
4936. Do you remember Mr. Gardiner's first engagement? Yes.
4937. Were you in the same office with him then? No, I have an office to myself.
4938. Do you know in what way he was employed? When I saw him at work he was employed drawing sketches of bridges.
4939. Original designs? Original designs—and taking out quantities from those sketches.
4940. That is the part you say is more difficult? Well, that is more difficult than common multiplication and addition.
4941. Have you any reason to suppose the work he did at that time was incorrectly done? I cannot suppose anything about it, because I had nothing to do with it; it never came to my hands. He was under the supervision of Mr. Barton at that time. I had nothing to do with it, and had no means of checking whether it was correct, or whether it was well done or badly done.
4942. You say you have known Mr. Micklethwait about twenty years? About twenty years.
4943. And during the whole of that time you have had no knowledge that Mr. Micklethwait drank? I have heard that he drank.
4944. You have no knowledge of it? No personal knowledge.
4945. You have never seen him drink a glass of brandy? I have seen him drink sometimes.
4946. Have you ever seen him drink a glass of brandy in the office? Never.
4947. Have you seen him drink beer in the office? Never.
4948. Have you seen him drink brandy when in the field? I have.
4949. On duty? Yes, not here, but in England. I have never had occasion to go out with him here in the field.
4950. Do his hands shake now? I have not seen him for the last twelve months; I cannot say what his hands do now.
4951. Did his hands shake at any time during the last three years? No, he was always competent to do his work.
4952. And his hands have been always steady? Yes, as steady as most people's.
4953. Then if Mr. Barton says his hands do shake, and that he conceives he has an affection of the nerves, he is mistaken? Mr. Barton may have been speaking of the present time—
4954. No, of three years back—he says his father was affected in the same way—did you know his father? No.
4955. Do you know Mr. Hall? Yes.
4956. Have you seen him drink brandy in the office? I have seen him taking something to his lunch—what it was I do not know.
4957. Were you in the habit of taking your lunch in the long-room with the draughtsmen? Never.
4958. Did your duty call you down there at lunch-time? I might occasionally go there at lunch-time.
4959. Have you seen Mr. Barton drink in the office? I have seen him take a glass of wine to his lunch.
4960. Never at any other time? Never at any other time.
4961. You have never seen Mr. Hall drink brandy, excepting at lunch-time? No, I am not aware that I have.
4962. And you have never seen him drink to excess? No.
4963. Have you never seen him the worse or the better for liquor? No.
4964. Is Mr. Drewett a good draughtsman? Yes, I believe Mr. Drewett to be a very good draughtsman; he is a man of great experience.
4965. Is he a man of great ability? He is a man of very good abilities as a draughtsman.
4966. Do you think he could calculate the strains for an iron bridge? I am not aware.
4967. Would it be his duty, as chief draughtsman—? It would not be his duty, as draughtsman, to calculate those things.
4968. Do you think he could take out the quantities in a bridge correctly? I should think so; he has taken out quantities correctly.
4969. From whom did you hear of this charge against Mr. Hall at Penrith? I heard of it from a gentleman in Penrith.
4970. Connected with the railway? No, the landlord of the inn where I was staying.
4971. Did you hear at the same time that he was addicted to drunkenness? No.
4972. Did you hear that he was the worse for liquor at the time he attempted this? No.
4973. If he was sober that would be an aggravation of his offence? Well, I suppose so. A man might commit these things being sober as well as under the influence of drink.
4974. Upon whom was this rape committed? I am not aware. I heard the attempt was upon one of the navvies' wives.
4975. One of the workmen's wives under his charge? No.
4976. Who was working on the works of which he was Superintendent? Yes. The navvies were under the charge of the contractor.
4977. I think you have already stated that you were not so much backwards and forwards amongst the draughtsmen in the long-room that, had such things as were reported occurred, you must of necessity have known them? I have been backwards and forwards, I could not say how many times.
4978. Once a month, you think? Yes, within the last six months.
4979. Was that backwards and forwards as any one reading your evidence before Mr. Whitton would suppose? I think so; I have stated nothing beyond the fact.

W. Mason,
Esq.
15 Jan., 1864.

- W. Mason, Esq.
15 Jan., 1864.
4980. What do you mean by saying you have met Mr. Micklethwait when he has had the opportunity of drinking to excess, but has not done so? I met him very often in England, and have been connected with him in getting up railway plans in England for companies; and it is usual, at the closing of these things and lodging the plans, to have a dinner.*
4981. Have you been brought into contact with him in that way in this Colony? Not in this Colony, only so far as stopping a night occasionally at the same hotel.
4982. Do you know Mr. Deering? I do—I just know him, that is all.
4983. Is he in your department now? No.
4984. Has it come to your knowledge that he has been to Melbourne to collect evidence against Mr. Gardiner? I am not aware; I have heard it was stated so.
4985. Where did you hear that it was stated so? I really forget now; I do not remember who told me. I think I heard that it was stated to that effect. I merely know Mr. Deering by sight; I never spoke to him beyond saying "Good morning."
4986. Were you brought much in contact with Mr. Robertson? Yes, I saw a good deal of him.
4987. Was he truthful and candid? I think so.
4988. You have no reason to suppose he would state anything beyond the truth? I do not know what he might state; I have no reason to suppose he would be guilty of falsehood—none whatever.

---

Mr. Edwin Horner Fearnside called in and examined:—

- Mr. E. H. Fearnside.
15 Jan., 1864.
4989. By the Chairman: You are in the Works Department? Yes.
4990. How long have you been so engaged? Seven years altogether—five in the Royal Engineers, and two years since in the Railway Department.
4991. In the office in Sydney? Not always.
4992. How long have you been in the office? About twenty months.
4993. Then you came about the middle of 1862? In March, 1862.
4994. What have you been engaged at? Preparing plans and sections for the construction of the railways.
4995. You do most of the writing on the plans, I believe? Yes, and plotting also, when there is any plotting to be done.
4996. Who else writes besides you? I think I do the most part of it.
4997. Your duties are confined to that portion of the work? Generally so, and preparing proclaimed plans.
4998. Do you know Mr. Hall? Yes.
4999. He has been engaged in the office during the whole time you have been there? Yes, until he was suspended.
5000. Have you seen him drink in the office? I have seen him have beer for lunch.
5001. Did you ever see him drink brandy? I have, on one or two occasions.
5002. Not oftener? Not oftener.
5003. At what time of the day? Generally at lunch-time.
5004. You never saw him drink brandy at any other time? Never—and after 4 o'clock.
5005. Did you ever see him make collections in the office to send out for brandy? Never.
5006. I suppose you would have seen it if he had? It might be done without my knowledge.
5007. Did he ever ask you to subscribe towards it? No, I was never asked anything of the kind.
5008. Did you ever see a bottle of brandy brought into the office? No; I have seen bottles brought in at lunch-time, but I cannot say what they contained—brandy or ale.
5009. Have you never taken any yourself? Yes, I have sent out for ale occasionally for lunch.
5010. Have you taken it at any other time but during lunch? I have, after 4 o'clock. I generally sent for a pint, and kept a glass to take before I started home.
5011. Have you seen Mr. Hall endeavouring to draw the attention of the servant-girls at the adjoining houses? No.
5012. Have you never done so yourself? No, never. I do not know that there was any way of doing so.
5013. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall performing "Suffolk Punch"? I never heard of such a thing. I remember him making a noise with a scale on the table for a second or two on one occasion; that was called the "Scissors Grinder," I think; it was during lunch-time.
5014. When did you first hear of the drinking and disorganized state of the office—you say here (evidence before Mr. Whitton) "I never heard anything of the like in the office till I read the newspaper of the 29th July last"? I never heard it till Mr. Gardiner made the reports.
5015. What do you mean by giving this answer:—"I never heard anything of the like in the office"? I never heard anything of it before Mr. Gardiner reported it. I knew there was a disagreement between Mr. Hall and Mr. Trengrouse; I was aware of that the first day I went into the office; but there never was any report made of it; it was jealousy or something of the kind.
5016. You are not allowed to go out of the office, for lunch? No.

5017.

---

* ADDED (on revision):—I have also stopped at the same hotel with him in England for weeks together.

5017. Do you remember Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner quarrelling? Yes, on one occasion—one evening about 4 o'clock. I did not hear the whole of it.
5018. Did you hear Mr. Hall threaten to thrash Mr. Gardiner? Yes, there was something said to that effect.
5019. Why? Something Mr. Gardiner had been saying to him—calling him some names.
5020. Have you ever seen any bottles of brandy brought into the office? I have seen bottles brought in at lunch; I cannot say what they contained—generally beer, as far as I know; there may have been brandy in some of them.
5021. You have never seen any brandy taken in the office? No, not during the working hours.
5022. Have you ever heard that Mr. Hall used to take drink outside the office? I do not know, I am sure; I never heard it outside.
5023. You know Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
5024. Did you ever see him the worse for drink? Not that I am aware of.
5025. Have you seen him take brandy or beer? Yes, the same as others, at lunch-time.
5026. You have never seen any person take drink in the office, except at lunch-time? That is all—or after 4 o'clock, when about leaving.
5027. And that is the only quarrel you have heard of in the office—the quarrel between Mr.
Gardiner and Mr. Hall? That is all that occurred while I was there.
5028. Did you ever hear of any quarrel taking place between Mr. Goodchap and —? ?
No, I was not in their department.
5029. Did you ever hear of any quarrel between Mr. Deering and Mr. Hall? No, that was before I was there.
5030. You have no doubt that, if drinking had been going on in the long-room, you must have known of it? I think I should.
5031. Neither you nor any other person in the office ever took drink, except at lunch-time, and perhaps a glass after 4 o'clock? Some of the engineers used to come down usually once a day, and if it had been done they would have seen it.
5032. Who used to come down once a day? Mr. Mason or Mr. Barton.
5033. Once a day? Once or twice a day.
5034. Suppose these gentlemen say they have not been there oftener than once a month, who is telling the truth, you or they? I will not say for every day.
5035. I suppose the remainder of your evidence is as true as the remark you have made about these gentlemen coming down once or twice a day? I say usually; they may not come down so often.
5036. By Mr. Morris: Do I understand you to mean that Mr. Barton and Mr. Mason had the habit of regularly visiting the office every day or every week? I mean usually, of course; not that they came every day without exception. When they are there it is usual for one of them to come in once or twice a day—more so some months ago than latterly.
5037. By the Chairman: During the last six months of 1862? Yes.
5038. By Mr. Morris: When you say “yes,” what do you mean—do you mean they were not so regularly in the habit of coming then? I think they were more so.
5039. That was about the time that Mr. Gardiner refers to, when he says there was so much drunkenness going on? That would be about the time; I think they were down almost every day about that time.
5040. Have you any journal or memoranda by which you could test the accuracy of your memory? No; I can only say it was generally so, because the work I was engaged on then was for Mr. Barton or Mr. Mason, and one of them—whichever I was working for—came down to see how I was getting on with it.
5041. The work you did was specially for Mr. Barton or Mr. Mason? Yes, I received instructions from Mr. Mason or Mr. Barton, and they came to see what I was doing.
5042. By Mr. Dalgleish: You were not regularly in the habit of going up to see them?
No, I may have gone occasionally.
5043. You could not have made a mistake—you did not go to see them instead of them coming to see you? No.
5044. By Mr. Morris: Is it true or not, that you used to join Mr. Hall in what he called “storming the Malakoff”? No, it is false; I never heard the name.
5045. Nor in performing “Suffolk Punch”? No, I never heard those names till I saw them in print; in fact, I did not know the meaning of them.
5046. By the Chairman: Do you keep a journal? In the office—yes.
5047. How do you make up your journal? I usually make it up every evening, entering what I have been doing during the day.
5048. Is that the system with other officers? I believe so.
5049. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is this journal a public or private document? Public.
5050. By Mr. Morris: Were you in the habit of taking wine or spirits with you into the office, and keeping them in a drawer covered with paper? Some months ago I was very unwell and was away for a week. The doctor who attended me asked me what I drank usually at lunch or dinner. I said I took a little ale, and he told me not to take any more ale, but to take brandy and water; and instead of sending out for the brandy, I used to take a little with me to the office, in a small pocket-flask.
5051. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did that doctor prescribe for you? Yes.
5052. Did he give you a medical certificate? Yes, it is in the office now.
5053. By Mr. Morris: The medical certificate, I apprehend, was with regard to your illness?
Yes, it did not state anything about drink or diet, of course.
5054. Who is your medical man? Dr. Bligh, of Paddington.
5055. By Mr. Garrett: I suppose this medical certificate was given to cover your absence?
I got it for that purpose, but I was not asked for it; I merely got it and sent it in on my own account.

Mr. E. H.
Fearnside.

15 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. E. H. Fearnside.
15 Jan., 1864.
5056. By Mr. Morris: Was Mr. Robertson very attentive to his duties in the office? So far as I saw, he was.
5057. Was Mr. Gardiner very attentive to his duties also? He was, generally speaking.
5058. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Robertson a good draughtsman? I cannot say much of that; I did not understand the work he was at.
5059. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that it is usual to take beer at lunch? Yes.
5060. Did you ever see Mr. Dogherty take beer at lunch? I believe he did; he has taken it with me.
5061. Have you ever seen Mr. Gardiner take beer? No.
5062. Have you ever seen Mr. Telmon take beer at lunch? Not that I am aware of.
5063. Have you ever seen Mr. Robertson take beer at lunch? I was not in the room with him.
5064. I only asked you if you had seen him take beer at lunch? I did not.
5065. Why did you not state that when you gave your evidence before Mr. Whitton—why did you not make these exceptions—did your assertion cover the whole of the gentlemen in the office? I did not give the names of those who did or did not; I said it was usual with the whole of them.
5066. Was it not in the office and during office hours, that Mr. Hall threatened to assault Mr. Gardiner? It was after 4 o'clock.
5067. Were you ever in the office after 4 o'clock? Frequently.
5068. What doing? I used to work up to 4 o'clock, and then go and wash my hands.
5069. Were the hands not in the habit of being washed before 4 o'clock? Not generally.
5070. Was it not the frequent practice to have the time-pieces out as it drew near 4 o'clock, watching for the time? Those that had them would look at them perhaps.
5071. Have you a distinct remembrance of the quarrel between Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner? I believe several of them had left the office.
5072. That is not my question—Have you a distinct remembrance of the quarrel between Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner? I have—I remember they had a quarrel.
5073. You have a distinct remembrance of it? I did not hear the whole of it.
5074. You have a distinct remembrance of the quarrel? Of what I heard of it.
5075. Are you perfectly clear that it was 4 o'clock or after 4 o'clock? I believe it was about five minutes after 4 o'clock.
5076. Are you sure it was not in the middle of the day? I am certain it was not.
5077. In what way did this quarrel begin? I cannot say.
5078. What time did you become cognizant of it? I was in the room, at the end of the long-room, washing my hands, so that I do not know the commencement of it. Mr. Hall stood at one side of the drawing-table, and Mr. Gardiner at the other —
5079. Was not the drawing-table placed close to the windows? One was, and one was on the opposite side.
5080. Which was it they stood at? The one at the back. They were having some words. I did not take a great deal of notice, but I heard Mr. Hall say, "If you call me that again I will give you a thrashing," or something of that sort.
5081. You are perfectly clear about the time? Yes.
5082. Was Mr. Micklethwait mixed up with the quarrel at all? I do not think he was; I will not be sure whether he was in the office at the time at all.
5083. You say, in your evidence here (referring to printed papers), that Mr. Gardiner called Mr. Hall a "pot-house bully"? Yes.
5084. Why did he call him a "pot-house bully"? I do not know.
5085. You know of no reason for it? No.
5086. Did Mr. Hall, before that, threaten to assault him? Not that I am aware of.
5087. Then you first became aware of the quarrel when Mr. Gardiner called Mr. Hall a pot-house bully? They were at it before that; they were talking together when I was in the adjoining room.
5088. The first thing you were aware of was Mr. Gardiner calling Mr. Hall a pot-house bully? Those were the first words I heard distinctly. He said, "If you say that again I will give you a thrashing."
5089. Was not that threatening to assault Mr. Gardiner? Yes, it was sufficient to arouse any man's temper.
5090. Did Mr. Hall, in the first instance, threaten to thrash Mr. Gardiner? He may have done so without my knowledge, when I was in the other room. I walked out of the office when I heard that.
5091. Where to? Away from the office altogether. Some of them had gone, I believe.
5092. If we have evidence to shew that this occurred in the middle of the day —? If it did it must have been on another occasion.
5093. Have you heard of any other occasion? I have not.
5094. Have you and Mr. Gardiner had any words? We have had a few words together, but nothing to signify.
5095. What do you call nothing to signify? He was talking about England and Ireland —
5096. Was it not about the famine in Galway amongst the fishermen? No, nothing of the kind; I never remember hearing such a thing. It was something about poaching; Mr. Gardiner stated there was a law in England that would hang a man for shooting a hare. We had some discussion about it, and, in fact, I said it was false; he immediately came up to me, and I thought he was going to assault me; and I said, if he could not keep his temper I would not have anything more to say to him.
- 5097.

5097. Did you not say "that is a lie"? No, I never made use of that language; I am not in the habit of doing so.

5098. Did Mr. Gardiner ever speak to you after that quarrel? Only connected with the duties.

Mr. E. H.
Fearnside.

15 Jan., 1864.

5099. You say, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that you remember Mr. Hall acting a little mimicry—what mimicry was it? With a scale—he had a scale on the table, and made a noise with his mouth, something like one of those wheels you have seen going round.

5100. Do I understand you to say that is the only acting you have seen him doing in the office? That is all.

5101. Have you ever been in such a condition in the office as not to be able to see what he was doing? No.

5102. Have you ever drunk in the office more than one glass of brandy in a day? Never.

5103. You have never drunk brandy except at lunch-time? Yes, I have at 4 o'clock.

5104. You are quite sure it was 4 o'clock before you drank it? Yes, quite sure—or lunch-time.

5105. You never saw any other person drink brandy in the office, except at lunch-time or after 4 o'clock? No.

5106. You never saw Mr. Hall drink brandy, except at lunch-time or after 4 o'clock? No.

5107. Did you ever hear of him drinking in the country? No.

5108. Did you ever hear of him having committed an assault on some woman in the country? I have heard some rumour of it.

5109. In the office? No, I do not think it was in the office; there might have been some conversation in the office about it.

5110. You never acted yourself? No.

5111. You never sat asleep in the small room adjoining the long drawing-room? No, I did not.

5112. You are quite certain you have never been in such a condition from drink as to lose your memory in the office? Never, in the office or out of it.

5113. You are aware these charges have been made against you? Yes.

5114. You were in the Sappers—were you not? Yes.

5115. Were you employed in the survey of the Grose Valley? I was thirteen years in the Sappers, and was never brought up for drinking the whole time, and I was under very strict officers the whole time.

5116. You were in the survey of the Grose Valley—were you not? No, I think I was the only one who was not there.

5117. Are you quite clear about these superior officers of yours having been in the office once or twice a day? Yes, to the best of my belief and remembrance they usually came down, when in the office, once or twice a day.

5118. Is it probable you would forget the circumstances of time and place? I do not think it is.

5119. You are perfectly clear about it? Yes.

5120. So that if they have said the contrary, they must have been mistaken? At the time this occurred they did so; I will not say latterly.

5121. Have you seen any contractors coming to the office? Yes.

5122. Have you ever seen any of these contractors give or put money on the table to send for drink? No.

5123. Have you ever known them send for drink? Never.

5124. Do you think it is possible brandy may have been sent for without your knowledge? It may have been, but I do not think it could; I do not believe it could.

5125. How many bottles have you been aware of coming in at once? That must depend upon the number of parties who sent out for beer for lunch.

5126. You know that is not an answer to my question. How many bottles have you been aware of coming in at one time? I have seen three or four come into the room I was in.

5127. No more? No.

5128. Never more? Never more.

5129. How many were there that drank in the office—there was yourself? Myself, it was only four or five times a month that I sent out.

5130. Then there was Mr. Hall? Yes, Mr. Hall, always Mr. Trengrouse—there might have been other parties in there; for instance, Mr. Kennedy, a surveyor, was there a few days, and he sent out for it for a short time; then I think Mr. Mackay sent once or twice, not more I think.

5131. That would be six bottles. You are not aware of any other persons that sent out? Mr. Micklethwait used to send for beer for his lunch.

5132. Did each man have a bottle to himself? I generally used to have it myself. Sometimes Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall would have it together.

5133. That would be five bottles then, if they had it together? I never took particular notice.

5134. Have you ever seen Mr. Micklethwait drink brandy in the office? I have seen him take it the same as Mr. Hall.

5135. Never except at lunch-time? No.

5136. Were you more constantly in the office than Mr. Barton? Yes.

5137. And you had more opportunity of seeing Mr. Micklethwait drink brandy at other times than lunch-time, than Mr. Barton had? Yes, I think so, because he was working with me for some time, and I should have seen it then.

- Mr. E. H. Fearnside.
- 15 Jan., 1864.
5138. So that if Mr. Barton has seen him drink brandy in the office at other times, he must be quicker of sight than you? He may have had other opportunities than I had.
5139. Did Mr. Micklethwait's hands shake very much? I have noticed them, but I thought it was some complaint he suffered from; I know he was always complaining of illness.
5140. Did his hands always shake? I do not think they did; I cannot remember exactly; I know when he was down he was always complaining of illness—nearly the whole time he was down. I do not know what he was suffering from.
5141. Did you ever see Mr. Hall make a little mimicry with a stick? I have not.
5142. By Mr. Garrett: Except what you described just now? That is all—with the scale.
5143. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did Mr. Hall keep any bottles in the office? I am not aware.
5144. Medicine bottles? I have seen him taking medicine there.
5145. What sized bottles? The usual size.
5146. Medicine bottles are of all sizes—are they not? I suppose about a two ounce bottle—it would hold perhaps two or three wine glasses—the usual medicine bottle.
5147. You have never seen him with a large bottle of brandy? No.
5148. You have never known a large bottle of brandy to be in the office? Do you mean a full bottle?
5149. The usual brandy bottle? Yes, I have.
5150. You have known a bottle of brandy to be in the office? Yes, Mr. Hall has had one.
5151. When was that drunk? I cannot say.
5152. Was it drunk at lunch? Some of it; I cannot say what Mr. Hall did with it, but I have seen him with it, and after 4 o'clock he took it with him, I suppose.
5153. Have you seen more than one brandy bottle there? I cannot remember that I have.
5154. It might always be the same? I did; I saw one the first week I was there.* After 4 o'clock he had a bottle, and wanted each one to take some. That is the only time I have seen it taken. I have not seen it taken during office hours. I have not taken it myself during office hours, and have not seen it taken.
5155. Do you remember a minute paper being in the office, written by Mr. Martin Gardiner, to the Engineer-in-Chief? I heard something about it, but I was out at the time.
5156. Did you see it when it was returned? No.
5157. Did you see the minute written by Mr. Micklethwait and Mr. Hall? No.
5158. You never saw these minute papers at all? No.
5159. Did you hear of them at the time? I heard something of the kind.
5160. Did you hear whether the complaint made was true or untrue? No.
5161. Were these minute papers in reference to the fight that you say took place at 4 o'clock, or after 4 o'clock? I do not know what they were in reference to; I did not see them.
5162. Did you hear? No.
5163. It was not a matter of conversation in the office? No, not that I am aware of.
5164. No one conversed with you on the matter? No.
5165. Nor you with other people? No.
5166. Did you ever know chloride of lime used in the office? Yes, I think on one occasion.
5167. You remember Mr. Hall making a disturbance about a bottle of brandy that he lost? No.
5168. You were not in the office when he did so, if it was done? No.
5169. You have no remembrance of Mr. Hall storming about the room, asking for his bottle of brandy? No.
5170. Did you ever hear Mr. Telmon say he smelt like a brandy-cask? No.
5171. How much brandy have you known Mr. Hall to drink at one time? I never saw him drink more than a glass; he would pour out what he required and take it; I suppose it was about a glass.
5172. What did he pour it into? A tumbler, and put water with it.
5173. By Mr. Garrett: Was the tumbler half full? No, I do not think it was; I did not take particular notice.
5174. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you never heard Mr. Hall enacting "Richard the Third"? No.
5175. You never heard him make any allusion to "Out damned spot!" or anything of the kind? No.
5176. You never heard him enact the "Walking Boss"? No.
5177. And you never heard him sing "The rubies that garnished his nose"? No.
5178. You never saw him roll his eyes about and twist his nose in a comical manner? No, I do not remember it.
5179. Was he addicted to such language as "You are a liar," "You are another"? Not that I am aware of.
5180. You never heard him use such an expression? No.
5181. Did you ever hear him call Mr. Whitton "the big potato"? Yes, I have heard that; Mr. Gardiner was the first that brought that up in the office.
5182. What makes you think Mr. Gardiner was the first that brought that up? I believe, if I remember right, it was he whom I first heard using it; I did not understand the meaning of it when I first heard it.
5183. Was it Mr. Gardiner or Mr. Hall that was in the habit of using this expression? Both, I believe.
5184. Did you ever hear him talk about "wiping John," or "sucking John"? I cannot say I did.

5185.

---

INSERTED (on revision):—brought by Mr. Trengrouse, jun., after being married.

5185. Was he in the habit of speaking of Mr. Whitton as "John"? I think I have heard him call him "John." Mr. E. H. Fearnside.
5186. You say you never saw the female servants in the next yard? No, I did not know there were any in the neighbourhood that could be seen; there were no windows overlooking that I am aware of. 15 Jan., 1864.
5187. I will ask you once more with regard to the visits of these superior officers—Are you perfectly clear upon the subject, that either Mr. Mason or Mr. Barton called in your office in the long-room during the last six months of 1862—during the time of the reported disturbances in the office—as often as you say? Perhaps it was later again.
5188. Just tell us what the time you allude to was, when these gentlemen were in the habit of coming in once or twice every day? I went in March, 1862, and it would be from March, 1862, for about six months.
5189. In the first instance, I understood you to say, they were not as regular in their attendance as they were afterwards? They have not been latterly, I said.
5190. What do you mean by latterly—fix the time when these gentlemen were there once or twice a day? Within the last six months they have not been so frequently as before.
5191. Then prior to the last six months they were there more frequently and more regularly? Yes, at the time when these disturbances were said to take place.
5192. And that regularity was once or twice a day? I do not say every day.
5193. As a rule? Yes, as a general rule.
5194. Just tell us what you mean by a general rule? I will not say every day, but as a general thing they were there say four days out of the six.
5195. Four days out of the six they were there twice a day? I cannot say positively twice a day.
5196. Fix your own meaning to the term "generally"? I believe they were there four days out of every six.
5197. Four days out of six they would be there twice a day? No, I cannot say that.
5198. Once a day? Yes, I believe they were—either the one or the other.
5199. Either the one or the other was there four days out of six? Yes.
5200. That is to say, if Mr. Barton was out of the office Mr. Mason would come down, and if Mr. Mason was out of the office Mr. Barton would come down? I was either doing work for Mr. Barton or Mr. Mason, and whichever it was that I was doing work for, it was usual for him to come down; if I was doing work for Mr. Barton Mr. Mason would not come down to see the work.
5201. By Mr. Garrett: Were Mr. Mason and Mr. Barton frequently absent from the office for days together? I cannot say; I believe they are.
5202. What are those gentlemen's duties? They go out on the line, I believe, to measure up work.
5203. In pursuance of their duty, they may have been absent sometimes for days together? Yes, I believe so; I do not know when they are out or when they are in.
5204. Have you any ill feeling towards Mr. Gardiner? Well, I cannot say I have any bad feeling against him; I do not know why he should accuse me; I never had any ill feeling towards him more than any other.
5205. By Mr. Dalgleish: He is not the only one that has accused you? I believe so; I believe no one else has.
5206. By Mr. Garrett: Has this charge against you been investigated by Mr. Whitton? Yes.
5207. What was the decision? I do not know what the decision was.
5208. You remain in the service still? Yes.
5209. By Mr. Morris: Who were in the office, besides yourself, at the time of the quarrel between Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner? I will not be sure whether any one was there; I think Mr. Trengrouse, junior, was there.
5210. Was Mr. Dogherty there? I will not be sure; I dare say Mr. Dogherty would be there; he and Mr. Gardiner generally used to go out together; very likely he would be there.

TUESDAY, 19 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,	MR. STEWART,
MR. MORRIS,	MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Matthew Jamison called in and examined:—

5211. By the Chairman: You have been engaged as a contractor on the railway? I have. Mr. M. Jamison.
5212. On what works? Stations principally.
5213. Have you been in the Works Department, taking out quantities and looking at plans? 19 Jan., 1864.
- Yes.
5214. Often? I dare say a dozen of times.
5215. Do you know Mr. Hall? I do.
5216. Do you know Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
5217. Do you know Mr. Fearnside? No, not by name.
5218. Do you know Mr. Martin Gardiner? No, not by name.

5219.

- Mr. M. Jamison.
19 Jan., 1864.
5219. Did you ever see any drinking going on in the Works Department? Never in the office. I have been in the office at lunch-time, and have seen them taking a glass of ale sometimes.
5220. At any other time besides lunch-time? No, not that I am aware of.
5221. Has Mr. Hall been overlooking any of the works you were performing on the Railway? Yes.
5222. Did you ever see him drinking during the time he was so engaged? Well, I do not know that I could term it drinking; I have seen him take a glass.
5223. Have you ever seen him take enough to make him unfit to perform his duties? I cannot say I ever saw him unfit for his duties.
5224. How much is the most you have seen him drink in a day? I could scarcely tell you that—I could give no distinct idea.
5225. What work was it you were performing? I built three stations.
5226. Were you charged anything for the lock furniture? That was paid according to the clauses of the specification; the contractor has to pay a certain amount for the furniture.
5227. There is some money deducted from his contract on that account? There was some money deducted, but the money paid did not come up to the amount named in the specification.
5228. But the money was deducted from you, nevertheless? Yes.
5229. Did you give a cheque for it? I did.
5230. Who did you give the cheque to? Mr. Hall.
5231. What was the amount? For two stations—£55.
5232. Do you know what was deducted or allowed by the Government? £55 was the amount in the specification.
5233. And how much did you give? I paid £55.
5234. What was the actual cost? That was for two stations; the actual cost for the one in question at the time was £18 17s. 6d., and £25 was the amount in the specification.
5235. Then there was £6 2s. 6d. overcharged? Yes.
5236. Did the Government get the benefit of that? No.
5237. Who got the benefit of it? I do not know, unless it was Mr. Hall.
5238. Who did you give the cheque to? Mr. Hall.
5239. Payable to himself? Payable to Iredale & Company.
5240. For how much? £55.
5241. Do you know how much Mr. Hall paid? Yes.
5242. How much? If you will allow me to explain—when I came to get settled for the Picton Station, the engineer would not pay me unless I produced the ironmongery accounts, and I never had seen them. I went and got a copy from Iredale & Co., and they did not come to the amount I had paid Mr. Hall by £6 2s. 6d., and he deducted that from the amount of money coming to me.
5243. Who did? The Engineer-in-Chief did.
5244. The Engineer-in-Chief deducted how much from you? £6 2s. 6d.
5245. By Mr. Dalgleish: You had paid that previously? I had paid the £55 that was mentioned in the specification. The amount for the Singleton Station was £30, and the ironmongery account for the Singleton Station came to £30. I had not paid it at this time, but I paid for the two stations in one cheque—£30 for the Singleton Station and £25 for the Picton Station. I got no receipt or account further than that was the amount I was to set aside, as it were, under the specification for ironmongery; and when Mr. Hall asked me for it I paid him.
5246. By Mr. Morris: £55? £55. Then, when I came to get settled for the Picton Station, the Engineer-in-Chief wished me to produce these accounts, and I could not, and I went and got a copy from Iredale & Co., but instead of £25 for the Picton Station it was only £18 17s. 6d., therefore the Engineer-in-Chief deducted the difference between £18 17s. 6d. and £25 from the money coming to me.
5247. By the Chairman: Then you had to pay the £6 2s. 6d. twice over? Yes.
5248. Did Mr. Hall ever refund you that money? No.
5249. By Mr. Morris: Did Mr. Hall pay Iredale & Co.? Yes.
5250. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you any knowledge at this time that the amount charged by Mr. Hall for ironmongery was in excess of the amount supplied—did you know that an amount of ironmongery had not been supplied equivalent to the amount you paid? Mr. Hall asked me to pay the ironmongery bills—or rather, he would not give me a certificate for the money till I did pay them. I asked how much they came to, and he said they came to within a shilling or two of the amount in the specification, and so I gave him a cheque for £55.
5251. By the Chairman: But afterwards you found out they came to £6 2s. 6d. less than £55? Yes.
5252. By Mr. Dalgleish: You relied previously on Mr. Hall's statement, that the ironmongery account came to within a shilling or two of £55, and you paid it on coercion, he threatening that he would not give you a certificate till you did pay it? He did not threaten; he said he could not give me a certificate till I did pay it.
5253. Have you got the cheque you paid? Yes.
5254. Have you it here? Yes.
5255. By the Chairman: Will you produce it, if you please? (Cheque handed in.)
5256. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know if that cheque was ever paid into Iredale & Co.'s credit? It was; I asked Mr. Iredale's man if Mr. Hall had paid him the cheque, and he said yes.
5257. And did they give Mr. Hall the balance—the difference between the cheque and the amount? I did not ask that.

5258. By Mr. Stewart: You did not have occasion to get the other bill for £30? It is all included in that; I got it for the satisfaction of the Engineer.

Mr.
M. Jamison.

5259. Did that correspond with the amount in the specification? Yes.

5260. By Mr. Morris: Did this cheque go to your credit with Iredale & Co., or to Mr. Hall's credit? To Mr. Hall's credit; the ironmongery was charged against Mr. Hall, not against me.

19 Jan., 1864.

5261. By the Chairman: Did you inform Mr. Whitton that you had already paid Mr. Hall? I did.

5262. When was this? About four weeks ago I think, when I was getting settled for the Picton Station; he would not pay me until he had the accounts.

5263. You did not inform Mr. Whitton until four weeks ago respecting this ironmongery? No, he did not ask me.

5264. About four weeks ago you got settled with for this Picton Station, and when you were being settled with you explained this matter? Mr. Whitton would not pay me until I produced these bills.

5265. Then you informed Mr. Whitton that you had paid Mr. Hall? Yes.

5266. What did Mr. Whitton say? He said I was as bad as Mr. Hall; I had no business to do it.

5267. Did you tell him Mr. Hall refused to give you a certificate till you had done so? No, I do not think I told him that.

5268. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you tell him your specification warranted you in paying any accredited agent of the Government this sum of money? I told him that—or any other of his agents, according to the specification.

5269. By Mr. Tighe: Did you send Mr. Whitton no explanation of the circumstances of Mr. Hall demanding it of you? I will explain how it happened. This Picton Station was about six months from the time it was finished before it was paid for; I was often at the office, and one time that I called, Mr. Whitton asked me had I paid for the ironmongery; I said "Yes"; he said, "How much did it come to?" I said, "Within a shilling or two of the amount." The next time I came, he asked who I did pay this ironmongery account to; I told him Mr. Hall; then he asked me for the account; I said I never had seen an account; he asked me then how I knew it was within a shilling or two of the amount; I told him that Mr. Hall had told me so; then he refused to pay me any money until I produced the accounts. I went then and got copies from Mr. Iredale out of the books and gave them to Mr. Whitton—not the original accounts, but copies out of the books.

5270. By Mr. Morris: Did it not occur to you that it would have been a much more business-like way for you to go to Iredale & Co. in the first instance, before paying Mr. Hall? It might.

5271. It would have left both you and Mr. Hall open to much less suspicion? —

5272. By Mr. Dalgleish: You had no need to have any knowledge where this ironmongery came from? I had nothing to do with it; the Government were to provide it, and if less I would have an amount deducted on account of it.

5273. I presume you have Mr. Hall's receipt for the amount? No, I crossed the cheque instead of getting a receipt.

5274. By Mr. Tighe: According to your agreement, if this ironmongery had been a less price than was mentioned in the specification, who would have been entitled to the difference, you or the Government? The Government.

5275. Did the accounts, when you had them rendered to you, correspond with the amount named in the specification, or was there any difference? One was right, £30; the other was £6 2s. 6d. short.

5276. Which money the Government was entitled to get, according to your agreement? Yes.

5277. By Mr. Dalgleish: So that now you are £12 5s. out of pocket by this ironmongery account? Yes, I paid it to Mr. Hall in the first instance, and it was deducted again.

5278. By Mr. Stewart: Is it supposed that any amount that the ironmongery costs less than the specification is for the contractor's benefit? No, if the amount does not come to what is in the specification, the Government deduct the difference off the contractor's account.

5279. You have to pay the amount mentioned in the specification, whether the quantity is supplied or not? Yes.

5280. By the Chairman: In point of fact, you have paid £61 5s. for iron-work which cost but £48 17s. 6d.? Yes, that is right.

5281. By Mr. Morris: You have been very frequently in the long-room at the Works Department? Only when I was taking out quantities of works.

5282. How often would that be—once a week? No, I do not believe I have been there above twelve times.

5283. At what periods? Perhaps two or three months between the times.

5284. How long ago were you in the habit of going there? At the time I was doing the Singleton Station I only came to Sydney once a month, and sometimes I went there, sometimes I did not.

5285. Then you would not be there very often? No.

5286. Have you much intimacy with the officers of the department? No, I have not.

5287. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are very unwilling to give any evidence against Mr. Hall or any other officer of the department? I cannot say I am willing.

5288. You could say a very great deal more about them if you were willing;—you could give the Committee a great deal more information about their habits of intemperance, if you thought it your duty to do so? I might if I told every little incident that happened—I might make a speech of it.

- Mr. M. Jamison.
- 19 Jan., 1864.
5289. Where did you first know Mr. Hall, and in what capacity? At the Penrith Station.
5290. In what way did you make his acquaintance? He came up to set out the buildings.
5291. How long a time was he employed on that? I think he was there three days.
5292. Who assisted him? The clerk of works that was there and Mr. Micklethwait.
5293. Was Mr. Micklethwait sober when he was at that employment? I could scarcely answer that.
5294. Was he perfectly sober, in your opinion? I might have seen him with a glass or two in, and he was as sober when he had a glass or two as when he had none.
5295. Had Mr. Hall "a glass or two in" on that occasion? Well, I never saw him take it; he might have had a glass in; he seemed like a little jolly.
5296. Did he condemn your materials? He did.
5297. Did he condemn the whole of them? He condemned the bricks and sand and stone.
5298. Was it good stone? The stone proved to be superior to Pymont stone, the stone he condemned there.
5299. The bricks—were they good? The bricks were brought from Newtown—the best bricks.
5300. Were they used afterwards in the building? They were.
5301. Although he condemned them. What was the occasion of their being used afterwards—were they not proved to be good? As good bricks as could be got.
5302. You demurred to his condemnation of them? I would have stopped the job if they had not been allowed.
5303. Did this condemnation delay the work? It stopped us for a time.
5304. Had you at that time ever asked Mr. Hall to drink—to take grog? No.
5305. He had never had any from you? No.
5306. Do you know a gentleman that was foreman for Peto, Brassey, and Betts, at the South Creek Station? Yes.
5307. What was his name? There were two or three foremen there.
5308. Do you know Mr. Parkinson? Yes.
5309. You got acquainted with him at South Creek? Yes.
5310. Did Mr. Parkinson inform you that he was acquainted with Mr. Hall for a great length of time? No, I cannot say he did.
5311. Is there any relationship between Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Hall? I think they came from the same place.
5312. Did you receive any hint from Mr. Parkinson that a glass of grog would be acceptable to Mr. Hall? I would receive a hint like that from anybody.
5313. Can you remember whether you received a hint of that kind from Mr. Parkinson? I would not like to say positively.
5314. Did you receive any hint of that kind from any of your fellow contractors or persons engaged on the works? I would not like to say.
5315. Did you receive a hint from any person—not to mention names at all—Did you receive a hint from any person that a glass of grog would be a way of rendering matters agreeable with Mr. Hall? I believe I did.
5316. Did you act upon the hint? Well, I did not.
5317. But you caused it to be acted upon? I do not know that I caused it to be acted upon; I put myself in a position that, if I thought I could get things settled, I did not care about a glass of grog.
5318. A glass of grog was no object to you? No, of course not.
5319. Did Mr. Hall get grog afterwards when he came to visit the works on which you were employed? He stopped in a public-house.
5320. Did you put yourself in a position to have him supplied with grog? We generally had a drop of grog on the work, and when he saw it he could take a glass if he liked.
5321. Did he generally see it when he came? I do not know about that; sometimes he did not.
5322. Did he generally drink when he came after that—was Mr. Hall in the habit of drinking when he came on to the work after that? I never saw him drinking to excess; I have seen him take a glass.
5323. And it was there generally for him to take if he liked? I never offered it to him.
5324. Did he take it? Well, I dare say he might.
5325. Did he take it, as a matter of fact? Yes, he did take a glass.
5326. Did he condemn your work afterwards in the same manner that he condemned it previous to this arrangement? Well, the condemning did not last very long, because I took means to get it settled.
5327. Did he condemn your work after the grog was on the premises, in the same way that he condemned it before it was there? I do not think that is a fair way to put that question.
5328. By the Chairman: After you treated him, or had grog brought to the place, did he ever condemn any of your work? Oh, yes, I had work condemned up to the last day I had connection with him; that is, he would not have it in one way, he would have it in another—not the same wholesale condemnation as it was before.
5329. By Mr. Dalgleish: That is precisely the question I asked before—whether he condemned your work in the same way after the grog was there as before? I do not see what the grog had to do with it.
5330. At the time this wholesale condemnation was going on, there was no grog on the premises? Yes, there was.
5331. He did not see or know of it then—did he help himself? I believe he did see it.
5332. Was he asked to take it? Yes, he was.
5333. And refused? And refused at first—that was in the first instance, when he was laying out the foundation.
- 5334.

5334. When he came to mark out the ground? Yes, it is customary to have a glass of grog on such occasions. Mr.
M. Jamison.
5335. Did he refuse it then? Yes.
5336. And he condemned your work? Well, he said the materials were not good enough. 19 Jan., 1864.
5337. Did you ever give him the means of buying grog? No.
5338. You never gave him money to buy grog with? No.
5339. Did you ever pay his grog score? No.
5340. In what way are we to understand the means by which he obtained grog afterwards when he was in the habit of taking it—how was it offered to his notice—in what way did he get it? I have seen him send for it himself for lunch if he was up there on the work. Generally when he was there we did not go home for any dinner, and we had lunch there too.
5341. When the grog was sent for in this way, did he pay for it or you? Sometimes he paid for it, sometimes I paid for it.
5342. Who paid for it as a rule? I could not say who paid for it as a rule; I think we paid about share and share alike. It was generally bottled porter or bottled ale, or a glass of brandy, for lunch.
5343. Did you see Mr. Hall at any time on your works the worse of what he had had to drink? I cannot say whether he was drunk or not.
5344. How long were you at Penrith? Four months.
5345. Were you at Penrith when Mr. Hall was thrown out of a dog-cart? Yes.
5346. Was he drunk or sober then? I do not know; I cannot tell whether he was drunk or sober.
5347. You heard, did you not, whether he was drunk or sober—you must have heard it talked of—it is not a large town, Penrith—everybody knows everybody else's business? It was not in Penrith it happened.
5348. It was on the road from Penrith? No, it was on the mountains somewhere.
5349. When he was driving from Penrith? Yes.
5350. Well, was he drunk or sober? I do not know where to draw the line.
5351. Did you ever see Mr. Hall perfectly sober? That is a question I could not answer, for his face is about the same at all times.
5352. Did you ever see him when he had not been drinking or had not had drink prior to your seeing him? I have seen him in the office; I would not suppose he had been drinking then.
5353. I am confining my questions to the time he was on the works when you were the contractor? Well, I could not draw the line; I could not tell whether he was or whether he was not.
5354. I did not ask you to draw the line—I ask if you have seen him when he has not had drink? How am I to know?
5355. When he has not had the appearance, or smelt of brandy? I suppose always when he came up there he had a glass or two.
5356. You know it is very creditable to you not to wish to do Mr. Hall any injury, but at the same time you are not doing him any good by not answering these questions. Did you see Mr. Micklethwait frequently when you were there? Mr. Micklethwait was not very long there—only a week or two.
5357. Were you brought in contact with Mr. Micklethwait much while you were there? Yes, every day.
5358. Did his hands shake? I could not answer that.
5359. Had he the appearance of a sober man? He is always much alike—something like the other one.
5360. Did he drink more than Mr. Hall? I do not know that ever I saw him drink at all.
5361. Have you seen him the worse for liquor? I don't know that ever I have.
5362. Have you ever seen him perfectly sober? That is the very thing I cannot answer—the line between sober and the worse for liquor.
5363. I don't want you to draw the line—I only want your own opinion? ———
5364. By Mr. Tighe: Did he seem to be in the slightest degree under the influence of liquor on any of the occasions when you saw him? I could not tell, because the men are both pretty red-faced; some men you can tell whether they are drunk or not, but these men you could scarcely tell.
5365. Then it was matter of doubt whether they were sober or under the influence of drink when you saw them? Yes, unless I saw them drinking; their faces were always about the same shade.
5366. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you any reason to believe, when you paid Mr. Hall Iredale's account, that he had not actually incurred the whole cost which you paid him? I might have thought so to myself, but I had no business with it.
5367. Did Mr. Hall make this demand directly upon you for this amount of money? He told me Iredale & Co. wanted to get the money, and asked me to pay it.
5368. Did he ask you pay him or to pay them? I rather think he said pay them.
5369. And how was it you happened to pay him? I asked him how much it came to, and gave him a cheque for it.
5370. Did you know that Iredale & Co. had supplied the ironmongery? I knew they supplied one of the jobs; I did not know who supplied Picton at that time, any further than he told me.
5371. The ironmongery was sent on to the work, addressed to you? Yes.
5372. From the Government? Yes.
5373. Therefore, when the Government officer in charge of the work made a demand on you for the payment, you felt perfectly justified in paying him? Yes.

- Mr. M. Jamison.
19 Jan., 1864.
5374. By Mr. Morris: Without a receipt or without a statement of account? I took the precaution of crossing my cheque.
5375. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you compelled to pay this amount of money by your contract, under any circumstances? Yes
5376. What was the next work you were employed at? Singleton Station.
5377. In the North? Yes.
5378. Did Mr. Hall come there? Only once.
5379. Did he stake the ground out there? No.
5380. How long did he occupy in staking out the ground at Penrith? I think it was three days.
5381. Could you have done it yourself in half a day? I could do it in half an hour, I should think.
5382. Had he Mr. Micklethwait to assist him at the time? Mr. Micklethwait gave the figures off the rod, and he wrote them off.
5383. Was Mr. Micklethwait there during the three days with Mr. Hall? He was up and down the bit of line, but he was not always at the station.
5384. Have you been carrying on contracts since Mr. Hall has ceased to have any connection with them? Yes.
5385. Is there any difference now, in the manner in which the work is conducted, to what there was under Mr. Hall? I do not know which way you mean.
5386. I ask, is there any difference in the mode in which the present Government surveyor performs his duties, to what there was in Mr. Hall's performance of the same duties—is there any difference between the two gentlemen, in the mode in which they perform their duties? Yes, there is a difference.
5387. In whose favour is the difference—in favour of Mr. Hall? In favour of me.
5388. In what way? In this way: The engineers superintending the works since Mr. Hall had anything to do with it come and go over the work, and never speak to me at all unless there is something wrong; they are never there above a few minutes.
5389. Do they ever drink with you? No.
5390. Or do they ever help themselves to drink? No.
5391. Have they the same appearance as Mr. Hall—are they ever jolly when on the work? No, they are rather white-faced looking.
5392. Was Mr. Hall ever employed on the work to your knowledge, without he was what may be termed and is commonly known as "jolly"? He was always jolly when I saw him.
5393. That is to say, he had always had a little drink? Well, I don't know about that.
5394. Is that what you understand by "jolly"? I cannot tell whether he had drink, because he was so much alike at all times.
5395. By Mr. Morris: Probably Mr. Hall's natural disposition is a lively one? He is a lively jolly sort of individual.
5396. By Mr. Tighe: You say they were three days over a job that might be done in half an hour? I ought to explain that again; because he was there I suppose to see us starting with the work; he might have been inspecting us on the work, and had nothing to do with the setting out.
5397. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did he actually set the work out in half an hour, or did he take three days to set the work out? The setting out of the work was done perhaps in a few minutes. He set out the cross walls too.
5398. Did he do it all at once, or did he take three days to it? It was all done at once, but in setting out a building we have trenches to dig afterwards. All we want in setting out a building is a face line.
5399. You said Mr. Hall was three days in setting out the building—what are we to understand? I did not mean that he was three days in setting out the building; he came there to set out the building and was there three days.
5400. By Mr. Morris: Might he not have had other work to do? He might.
5401. By Mr. Dalgleish: What was he doing these three days? Standing looking at us sometimes.
5402. By Mr. Tighe: Had he any one else with him from the office here in Sydney? Not that I am aware of.
5403. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know whether he is allowed travelling expenses? No, I do not.
5404. By Mr. Stewart: What did you mean by saying there is a difference in favour of the contractor now over the period when Mr. Hall had the control—what is the difference you allude to? The difference is this: that when Mr. Hall was inspecting the work, when he came there he used always to stop a day if he came near the work; I always worked myself, and when he was there I could not attend to my work.
5405. Then, in fact, his being there longer than was necessary was an obstruction to you or any other contractor in making the necessary progress? Yes.
5406. If he had satisfied himself in one hour instead of a day or two, the difference in the time would be in favour of the contractor? Of course it would.
5407. By Mr. Morris: Have you seen much of Mr. Micklethwait about Singleton or on the Northern line? I saw him at Singleton when I started with the work there.
5408. For how long a time had you the opportunity of observing Mr. Micklethwait? Not long; he went on the other extension shortly after I went up.
5409. A week or two? About a week.
5410. During that time, as far as you were able to judge, were Mr. Micklethwait's habits those of a sober man, or of a man given to drinking to excess? I was in no position to know: I lived in a tent on the work, and he lived in another part altogether.

5411. You did not come in contact with him in business? No.
5412. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was Mr. Hall a sober man by repute or a drunken man by repute? Well, I do not know what you call repute—everybody knew he liked a glass.
5413. By Mr. Morris: What is the reputation of Mr. Micklethwait in that respect—you may have heard of that up at Singleton? There is very little said about him, because he is more in the bush—never about buildings like Mr. Hall.
5414. Have you heard whether he is given to drinking? I may have heard rumours.
5415. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you a partner on your contracts? Yes, on the Picton one.
5416. What is his name? Andrew Eaton.
5417. What is his address? St. Leonard's, North Shore.
5418. Did Mr. Hall ever ask you to send for drink? No, he never asked me to send for drink.
5419. Did he ever ask you if you had drink on the premises? I do not recollect.
5420. But he caused you a great loss of time when he came to inspect the buildings? Well, I would not say a great loss of time.
5421. What do you mean by saying you could not go on with your work when he was there? I can get on better now than I did then.
5422. You say when he came there he would be there a day, and you could not work—how was that? When he comes to inspect a building he generally asks the contractor to follow him, and he will walk all over it fifty times while he is there; in fact, you must attend to him to hear anything he has got to say; and the reason I drew the distinction with the other engineers is, that they look over the work themselves.
5423. And if anything is wrong, they find fault with it in the same way that an architect would? Yes.
5424. Did Mr. Hall conduct his business in the same way that an architect would or does? Some architects are the same; they will go over the work the same as Mr. Hall.
5425. You cannot tell the Committee whether Mr. Hall was sober or "jolly" for the principal part of the time that he was on the works, when you had an opportunity of seeing him? No, it is a hard question for me to answer; he was always about the same.
5426. By the Chairman: Can you remember the date when you put in the foundation of the Penrith Station, when Mr. Hall was there those three days you spoke of? No, I cannot remember the date.
5427. Have you any memo. at home that would refresh your memory? Yes, I could get it through my pay-sheets.
5428. This evidence will be sent to you to revise;—will you put down the dates? Yes, if I can I will; I might not be positive by them to a day when he was there.*
5429. It was the day you say you were digging the trenches and laying out the foundation? Yes.
5430. It would be the day you commenced the work there? I think I can tell.
5431. By Mr. Dalgleish: How long was Mr. Hall laid up after he got this accident on the mountains near Penrith? I could not be sure; I think six or seven weeks.
5432. Was this accident the subject of conversation in Penrith or on the works? All knew about it.
5433. When it was the subject of conversation, was it considered that Mr. Hall was drunk or sober when this accident occurred? I cannot tell what anybody else was thinking about.
5434. What did you think? I thought he had got a glass in him, no doubt; I do not know that he was tipsy.
5435. By Mr. Tighe: A glass would not have led to the accident any more than if he had been perfectly sober? —
5436. By Mr. Dalgleish: What you mean by a glass is a glass too much—is that what you mean? No.
5437. By Mr. Tighe: A glass would not make him drunk? He might have been perfectly sober. It was a rein that broke, I believe, and he got tumbled out.
5438. That would not be attributable to his taking a glass? No.
5439. By Mr. Dalgleish: What we are to understand is that he may have had a glass in, but he was not the worse for drink? Yes.
5440. You have never seen him the worse for drink? I cannot draw the distinction.

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald called in and examined:—

5441. By the Chairman: You are a messenger in the Works Department? Yes, in the Railway Branch.
5442. How long have you been so? Four years, next March.
5443. Were you a messenger there during the year 1862? Yes.
5444. Have you been in the habit of bringing drink into the office? Yes, for lunch.
5445. Have you been in the habit of bringing drink into the office at any other time? No.
5446. You never brought in any wine, beer, or spirits, to any person in the office, only at lunch-time? I brought wine once for Mr. Trengrouse, and sherry wine for Mr. Barton.
5447. How much? I ordered a dozen for Mr. Barton, and took it by bottles, one a week; and I brought Mr. Trengrouse two at once, and he told me it was to take home.
5448. You ordered a dozen for Mr. Barton, and brought it in, a bottle at a time? Yes.
- 5449.

* NOTE (on revision):—Started the job on the 18th of May; Mr. Hall came on the 19th of May, 1862.

- Mr. T. Fitzgerald. 5449. Where did you get it from? Mr. Corkill, a wine-merchant in George-street.
5450. Did you pay for a dozen? Yes.
5451. Did you ever see a dozen brought in at once? No.
- 19 Jan., 1864. 5452. You are sure you have never brought in drink only as you have stated? Yes, I brought in one bottle of brandy last year for Mr. Hall, and one bottle this year for Mr. Micklethwait—the beginning of the year, when he was going to Newcastle.
5453. That is all the brandy you have brought into the department? Unless for lunch; I have brought in a glass occasionally for different gentlemen.
5454. I am speaking of other times than lunch? No.
5455. Can spirits be brought in without your knowledge? I dare say it could; I do not know.
5456. Any of the gentlemen could bring it with them in the morning? Yes, I dare say they could.
5457. Or if they went out during the day, they could bring it in themselves? Yes.
5458. You say, in your evidence before Mr. Whitton, that you got Mr. Micklethwait a bottle of brandy and he went to his boat—what time was this? Last January. I did not see him from that day till about three weeks or a month ago, when he came back from the Hunter.
5459. What time of the day was it? I got it in the morning. When I went round for the orders for lunch, about 12 o'clock, he told me he would want to take it with him that night; that he would bring it home and take it with him to Newcastle.
5460. I see you say in your evidence, that if any person says you have brought brandy into the office at any other time it is not true? Yes, unless for lunch.
5461. Have ever you seen Mr. Hall the worse for drink in the department? No.
5462. Have ever you seen Mr. Micklethwait the worse for drink in the department? No.
5463. Were you much in the draughtsmen's room? Yes, I used to go in very much, because I used to have to bring in minute papers, and to get deeds and plans for the Record Clerk.
5464. If any person has given evidence before this Committee that you have been in the habit of bringing in spirits at other times than you have stated, it is untrue? Yes.
5465. Did ever you take an order for a bottle of brandy? No, only verbally, and then I paid for it.
5466. Then you would not require an order? No.
5467. Did ever you take an order from any of the gentlemen in the department, for brandy? No, I have taken wholesale orders for their houses, but it was in a letter to Mr. Corkill, Lloyd's Gateway.
5468. There are other ways they can get drink in the department without getting it through you? I cannot say for that.
5469. You say they can bring it in with them in the morning? I dare say they could.
5470. Without your knowledge? They may.
5471. Or some person may go out in the day-time and get it? They are not allowed out—not to lunch.
5472. They may go out and come back again? I have never known them to do that.
5473. By Mr. Morris: Is it true, that you stated to Mr. Trengrouse that you were absolutely ashamed and afraid of fetching such quantities of beer and spirits as you were in the habit of doing, and that you would discontinue it, whether you offended Mr. Hall or not? I never said anything of the kind.
5474. Then, as far as you are able to judge, these charges made against the department, of excessive drinking being carried on, are not true? No.
5475. Are you in these rooms every day? Yes, because I used to go round and ask the gentlemen what they would have.
5476. How often? I used to be there sometimes six or seven times a day. I used to go round only once for lunch, and then I would get all the orders.
5477. Did you ever hear Mr. Hall singing, or performing "Suffolk Punch," or those other things that he is charged with doing in the office? No, I never heard him sing or anything else.
5478. One would suppose you would have every opportunity of doing it? Yes, because I generally go in to get the orders and bring in their lunches at 1 or a quarter to 1.
5479. Are you the only messenger connected with the Railway Branch? I am the only one in the Railway Branch. There are two others—one in the Works and one in the Roads Branch.
5480. Have these other messengers any opportunity of knowing what is going on? They might have brought in things when I was away.
5481. Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether they did or not? No.
5482. Have they never told you? No, they never told me. I was only one week away—a week I was ill.
5483. By Mr. Tighe: Could a dozen of wine or spirits be brought into the office without your knowledge? No.
5484. Then if Mr. Barton says he has had a dozen at one time in the office, does he state what is not true? He might have wine brought in without my knowledge.
5485. Do you not say a dozen could not possibly be brought in without your knowledge? I cannot say for that. I did not order it. I have ordered a dozen of wine and paid for it, and then taken it one by one—from this merchant.
5486. By Mr. Stewart: Do you say that was only on one occasion? That was the only wine I brought in for him in that way; but I brought him a flask of sherry sometimes—a shilling's worth.
5487. What used they usually take for lunch? Some has sherry, some has beer, some has a nobbler of brandy.

5488. Their orders do not amount to bottles of spirits? No; I have brought in bottles of beer.
5489. By Mr. Morris: Does the wine-merchant or publican with whom you deal, keep an account against the office? No.
5490. You pay for what you bring? Yes.
5491. Do you always deal with one place? Yes, one publican.
5492. Who is he? The woman is dead now; she kept the "Star Inn," at the corner of Hunter-street and Phillip-street. I do not know where the man is now that used to serve me; I have not seen him lately.
5493. By Mr. Tighe: If the wine-merchant's man brought a dozen of wine to the office, could he bring it in without your knowledge—are you not always in the doorway? Do you mean in this office, or the old office?
5494. The old office? At the old office we had a room, and we could see mostly all that came in, but I used not to be always there, because I had to go messages.
5495. By Mr. Morris: Who is the housekeeper? My mother is the housekeeper, and I assist her. I have never seen any cases of wine, or anything like that.
5496. By the Chairman: Then if Mr. Barton says he has had two or three cases of colonial wine in, it is untrue? I cannot say for that.
5497. By Mr. Dalgleish: It was a dozen of sherry that was taken in by a bottle at a time? Yes, and I have brought in colonial wine too by bottles.
5498. How is it you did not say anything about that when you were giving your evidence before Mr. Whitton? I answered every question that was put to me.
5499. Were you not asked whether you were in the habit of taking spirits and wine into the office by the dozen? I did not bring it in by the dozen.
5500. Did you not bring it in by the dozen actually, only day by day? Yes, I did.
5501. Why did you not state that when you gave evidence before Mr. Whitton? I stated in the evidence before Mr. Arnold, that I brought a bottle of wine occasionally for Mr. Barton—dry sherry.
5502. By Mr. Dalgleish: What do you mean by "occasionally"? Once a week. I ordered a single dozen, and then brought it in one by one.
5503. By Mr. Tighe: That would take you twelve weeks, at that rate? I did not bring it all in twelve weeks, because Mr. Barton was in the habit of going out of town. I knew the merchant, and could get it as he wanted it.
5504. By Mr. Dalgleish: You were always in the habit of taking money when you went to purchase this beer? Yes.
5505. And you went round to all the officers and heard what they wanted? Yes.
5506. Did you ever bring any for Mr. Gardiner? No, I do not remember bringing anything for him.
5507. Did you ever bring anything for Mr. Telmon? Yes, I think once or twice I brought him a pint of ale.
5508. Did you ever bring anything for Mr. Doherty? No.
5509. Did you ever bring anything for Mr. Robertson? No.
5510. Why did you not make these exceptions when you were giving evidence before Mr. Whitton and Mr. Arnold? I was not asked; I answered every question.
5511. Were you not asked if you were in the habit of bringing in liquor for the gentlemen in the long-room? Yes.
5512. Why did you not make these exceptions? I did not think it was necessary.
5513. Did you ever bring in as much as five bottles of liquor at a time? No.
5514. If Mr. Fearnside has said you have done so, is it true? Five pints of ale I might have brought in different bottles. I might have done that, because there are so many gentlemen there.
5515. Just give us their names? I used to bring a pint of ale for Mr. Trengrouse—when his son was there, three glasses; I used to bring a pint of ale for Mr. Fearnside occasionally, not every day; I used to bring a pint of ale for Mr. Hall regularly every day. You only mean the gentlemen in the Engineer's branch?
5516. The Engineer's branch—the branch you are giving evidence about. Have you a good memory? Middling. I used to bring generally a little bottle of porter or ale for Mr. Wade —
5517. Is he in the same office? He was then; he is district engineer at Singleton Bridge. And Mr. Mann generally a little bottle of ale.
5518. How long was Mr. Wade in the office? He only used to come occasionally.
5519. How often did you bring liquor for him? About six or seven times.
5520. When he was in the long-room? Yes.
5521. Is that within the last nine months? No, I do not think it is.
5522. Has Mr. Wade been in the office for the last nine months? I think he has, but I am not sure.
5523. You say you have a good memory? Yes, middling.
5524. You remember such a thing, for instance, as that at the latter end of December last year you brought in a bottle of brandy to Mr. Hall? Yes.
5525. Was there anything particular about that bottle of brandy, that you remember it so well? It was the only bottle of brandy that I brought for Mr. Hall.
5526. It was just before you were going to leave the office, you say? I think I made a mistake there.
5527. How is it you could have made this particular mistake, in this particular way—you gave your evidence very clearly—"It was just before he was going to leave the office"—which of the statements are we to believe? That is not right.
5528. By the Chairman: The evidence you gave before Mr. Whitton is not right? Not about that.

Mr. T.
Fitzgerald.
19 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. T. Fitzgerald.
19 Jan., 1864.
5529. By Mr. Tighe : Can you account for that mistake in any way? No, I cannot; I might have made a mistake at the time.
5530. You cannot account for it? No.
5531. By Mr. Dalgleish : You brought a bottle for Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
5532. When was that? That was the usual time when I went round before dinner.
5533. Why did you say it was because he was going to Newcastle? He told me that.
5534. What did you mean by saying "I got it for him and he went to the boat"? I took a berth for him that same day, and I did not see him from that day till about a month or six weeks ago.
5535. How do you know he went to the boat? I took a berth for him and did not see him since, and I saw letters going for him afterwards.
5536. What did Mr. Micklethwait do with the brandy? He told me he wanted it while he was going to Singleton.
5537. And you brought a bottle of brandy to the office to Mr. Micklethwait? Yes.
5538. At dinner-time? Yes.
5539. Do you know that he took that brandy with him to Singleton? No, I do not.
5540. Did you ever bring both beer and brandy for Mr. Hall on the same day? No.
5541. Did ever any other messenger bring brandy or beer into the office, to your knowledge? I cannot say; some days I would perhaps be out at 1 o'clock, and they might have brought it in then; there are two other messengers, and if they were sent out they would have to go.
5542. Did you ever bring drink in to Mr. Gardiner at all? No.
5543. You say you were in the habit of taking minute papers into the long-room? Yes.
5544. To whom? Mr. Trengrouse.
5545. Was Mr. Trengrouse in the long-room at that time? Yes, he was in the long-room; it was partitioned off, and there was a door that led from the drawing-room into his room, and used generally to be open.
5546. Was not Mr. Trengrouse up-stairs with the plans? He was a little while.
5547. Was he up-stairs at that particular time? I cannot say.
5548. You have a good memory you say—was he up-stairs at that particular time? What time?
5549. The time we are speaking of? No, I think he was in the long-room.
5550. Where were the plans kept? In a little room off the long-room.
5551. Were not the plans kept up-stairs? They were for a while, but not very long.
5552. What do you mean by "a while"? Well, I do not think they were up there more than three or four months.
5553. How many months ago is it since these plans were kept up-stairs? I dare say it is fifteen or eighteen months ago; that was in the old office.
5554. It is the old office I am speaking of. You say the woman of the house where you used to get the drink is dead? Yes.
5555. Who is the man you spoke of? I do not know his name, except that he was called "Charley."
5556. Did he serve you? Yes, and there was a young woman that used to serve me—Miss Griffiths I think her name was; her father was an actor, I believe; her mother married again and kept the public-house.
5557. Who did you order the wine, brandy, or ale from, when you ordered it for the gentlemen to their own houses? Mr. Corkill.
5558. Who did you order it for? Mr. Trengrouse, Mr. Micklethwait, and Mr. Hall.
5559. What quantities did you order? I do not know; it was in a letter.
5560. By Mr. Tighe : You only supposed it was an order? I generally knew, because if it was a bill I would wait for the receipt; he used to enclose it, and I knew no more about it.
5561. By Mr. Dalgleish : Then the only thing you knew was that you took notes to Mr. Corkill, and brought notes back? Yes.
5562. They might have been private notes for what you knew? They might have been.
5563. And you never took any beer or brandy into the office, except at lunch-time? No.
5564. You are quite sure that, except on these two occasions, you never took bottles of brandy into the office? No, unless a glass at times for lunch.
5565. Did you never bring more than a glass? No.
5566. Did you never bring a glass of brandy to Mr. Fearnside? I cannot say; I may have done; I think once or twice he said he was ill, and I brought him a glass of dark brandy.
5567. You never brought a bottle of pale brandy? No.
5568. You are quite sure there are no other mistakes in your evidence, excepting the one you have alluded to? No.
5569. Why did you not correct that mistake? I did not think it mattered much. I never brought drink any time, except for lunch.
5570. Have you seen a copy of your evidence? No.
5571. Have you taken empty bottles out of the office? I have.
5572. What bottles were they? It was generally the bottles I brought the beer in in the morning.
5573. By Mr. Tighe : Any other bottles? No.
5574. No wine bottles? I dare say I did when they were empty.
5575. By Mr. Dalgleish : Have you ever taken out an empty brandy bottle? No.

WEDNESDAY, 20 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. MORRIS,
MR. GARRETT,		MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. John Williams Deering called in and examined:—

5576. By the Chairman: You are a surveyor—are you not? Yes.
5577. In what department? In the Surveyor General's now.
5578. How long have you been in the Surveyor General's Department? Three years.
5579. You were in the Works Department previously? I was.
5580. How long were you there? About four monthis.
5581. During the time you were in the Works Department how were you engaged? In the drawing office.
5582. What was the nature of your work? Making the Southern plans and sections for the House.
5583. The extension from Pictou to Goulburn? Yes.
5584. You have not been in the Works Department for the last three years? No, I have not.
5585. During the time you were there, you had some quarrel with Mr. Hall? Yes, I had.
5586. Did it come to a fight? No, it did not.
5587. There were no blows struck? No blows were struck.
5588. During the time you were engaged in the Works Department, were you at all absent in the field? No, we were too busy in the office.
5589. How long have you been in Sydney? I have been in Sydney five weeks.
5590. Have you been to Melbourne since that? No, I was in Melbourne before that. I had leave of absence from the department. I was in the Lachlan District previous to that.
5591. For how long did you obtain leave? The customary time of three weeks, but actually I had only a fortnight.
5592. During that time you went to Melbourne? Yes.
5593. What have you been doing during the last five weeks? Plotting my Lachlan surveys, and have been engaged in various ways in the office.
5594. Have you a staff on the pay-sheet? I have no staff at all.
5595. Had you a staff before you were called to Sydney? Yes, but I was not called to Sydney.
5596. By Mr. Garrett: You are not in the Works Department now? No.
5597. By the Chairman: Did you dismiss them before you came to Sydney? Yes; I had only one man with me through the Lachlan survey, although entitled to five.
5598. Who recalled you from the Lachlan? My work was finished, and I was not recalled.
5599. Then it is because your work was finished, and not on an invitation to Sydney, that you left the Lachlan? Yes. The Lachlan was not my district. I was sent out to survey the pre-emptives in the bushranging district. Two licensed surveyors had made some difficulty about it, and I, being a staff surveyor, was called upon to go through the whole of the Weddin country. I surveyed some 3,000 acres of pre-emptive, and when I had finished I came down.
5600. Then you were not recalled to Sydney by any letter? No, as several times before stated.
5601. You have been in Melbourne, I believe? Yes.
5602. Were you on leave of absence during the time? Yes, it was a pleasure trip.
5603. Did you collect any information respecting Mr. Martin Gardiner? I heard it, but I did not go at all out of my way to collect it*. I called upon the Engineer-in-Chief, Mr. Higginbottom, and stated that I wanted to see the railway, and he gave me a free pass; and in the course of conversation he asked me about the Works Department here, and the name of Mr. Gardiner was mentioned, and his being dismissed from the Victorian service.
5604. Was that a private conversation? Yes, it was; but it was perfectly well known that the correspondence relating to Mr. Gardiner's dismissal is in the books of the department.
5605. Did they give you any extracts from the books of the department? No, but all that Mr. Martin Gardiner did is on record there.
5606. Did you get any extracts from the books in Melbourne? No, I made none.
5607. Did you get any in any way—any memorandum from officers in the department—any documentary evidence? I did not—not a line.
5608. All you know is what you learned from this private conversation? Yes, and what I heard others say.
5609. By Mr. Dalgleish: I understood you to say that you got your information from the books? If I did I did not mean to say so—I say it was in the books.
5610. By the Chairman: How do you know that unless you saw the books? Because it was told me. I have not seen the books at all.
5611. Then that part of your evidence is hearsay? Yes, it is hearsay.
5612. Of course during your absence your salary was paid? Of course it always is.
5613. Were your expenses paid? No.
5614. Do you intend staying in Sydney any time? No, I am going away to Albury at once; I have simply to obey my instructions.

Mr. J. W.
Deering.

20 Jan., 1864.

5615.

* NOTE (on revision):—This was in answer to the questions, "Will you state the particulars?"—"How was Mr. Gardiner's name brought up?"

- Mr. J. W. Deering. 5615. Which is your district? Albury is to be my district; I have never been there yet.
5616. Are we to understand that your business to Melbourne was of a private nature? Purely.
- 20 Jan., 1864. 5617. Were you requested to seek any information respecting Mr. Martin Gardiner's conduct, by any one? No; what I heard was heard accidentally in the Railway Office I think.
5618. Have you communicated to persons in Sydney the information you received in Melbourne with reference to Mr. Martin Gardiner? I mentioned it to Mr. Whitton, and as a Government officer it was my duty to do so.
5619. And to Mr. Barton? I think I did partly—I did not tell him all.
5620. Do you think you have a right to use a private conversation which occurred between you and the Engineer-in-Chief in Melbourne? I do not say what I heard about Mr. Gardiner I heard from the Engineer-in-Chief.
5621. What you heard of Mr. Gardiner you heard in a private conversation? No, it was not private when everything I heard is on record.
5622. How do you know it is in the books? I was told so; and I know it is the practice in a Government department to keep a record of such proceedings.
5623. You say you never saw the books—how then do you know that it is in the books? I believe it.
5624. Why? I was told it.
5625. You say you know it is in the books, but if you have not seen it how can you know it? Because I believed the gentleman who told me.
5626. Then it is mere hearsay? It is hearsay, certainly.
5627. When you came back you communicated this mere hearsay, or the information you had got, to Mr. Whitton, to the prejudice of Mr. Martin Gardiner? Privately; it was a private conversation.
5628. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you convey any documentary evidence to Mr. Whitton, from Melbourne? Not a line of any sort.
5629. By the Chairman: Do you consider that the conversation which took place between you and Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton, respecting the conduct of Mr. Gardiner in Melbourne, a private conversation? Yes.
5630. Of course you did not consider that they had any right to make use of it? Yes, I did. I make a distinction between a private and a confidential conversation. There was no confidence, and there never was, between Mr. Whitton and myself, in any way, except confidence in him as head of the department.
5631. You say you have no personal knowledge whether the statement is true or not? No, I could not take oath of it, certainly not.
5632. Will you tell us how this conversation originated between you and Mr. Higginbottom, with reference to Mr. Gardiner—was it you who brought up Mr. Gardiner's name first? Mr. Higginbottom. I called upon him with reference to railways there, having been on railways a good many years. He said to me, "The department in Sydney has been getting into some trouble, has it not?" and asked me the particulars. I told him, and of course in telling him, Mr. Gardiner's name was mentioned.
5633. And then the conversation ensued as to Mr. Gardiner's conduct in the Works Department there? Yes; it was not a conversation, because very little took place—Mr. Higginbottom told me very little. He said Mr. Gardiner was in his department. I said I knew he was, and asked was he on the staff; he said, "No, he was not"; he said Mr. Gardiner had made himself very objectionable, it was advisable to remove him from the department—something of that sort.
5634. Do not say "something of that sort," tell us what he said? He said "he was dismissed from my department."
5635. You said just now that he considered it was advisable to get rid of Mr. Martin Gardiner? I do not know that he said those words, but he conveyed that meaning.
5636. That it was advisable —? Afterwards he said more, but he seemed as if he did not wish to say any more, neither do I now. That is all that took place.
5637. That is all the information you received in Melbourne respecting Mr. Gardiner? No, I met other Government officers there, and knowing I belonged to this Government, they mentioned to me certain occurrences. They were some of the railway officials —
5638. Will you mention their names, so that this Committee may communicate with them? No, I do not know the name of one, excepting Mr. Higginbottom, because I did not meet them in the office.
5639. That is all you got from Mr. Higginbottom? Yes.
5640. That is all you conveyed to Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton? No, it is not.
5641. Did you tell Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton the source whence you received that information? I did not.
5642. You gave Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton all the information you received from various Government officers, the names of whom you cannot remember? I cannot, because I met them only once at the hotel where I was staying.
5643. Do you not think you ought to have got the names of those gentlemen who gave you information against the character of any individual, before you repeated it? I did not think much about it at the time; and what Mr. Gardiner did in Melbourne is in the public records.
5644. Thinking about it now, do you think it was right and just in you to repeat to Mr. Whitton and Mr. Barton certain information you received in Melbourne, from persons to whom you were never introduced, and whose names you were unacquainted with, such information affecting the character of another gentleman; would you like any other gentleman to treat your character in that way? I should think I was perfectly open to it, if I had had acted as Mr. Gardiner did—it was nothing against his private character; and as a Government officer I only did my duty.

5645. It did not refer to his private character? No.

5646. A man's public character is very dear to him, particularly to a person in Mr. Gardiner's position, who depends upon his public character for his bread;—do you think it just that a person's character should be trifled away? I think not, and it was no trifling cause; but anything I said might be proved by applying to the Government there.

5647. By Mr. Morris: The circumstances connected with Mr. Gardiner's removal from the Railway Department will appear in the correspondence in the office? Yes.

5648. Did you so hear it? I did so hear it, but I have never seen it.

5649. By the Chairman: Have you lunched in the Works Department since you left it? Never.

5650. Have you been in the long-room since you left it? Never.

5651. Have you ever been absent from your duties from sickness? Never.

5652. Have you been absent on leave of absence? No, only this last time, during the whole time I have been in the service.

5653. Have you ever known any public officer's pay to be stopped when he has been absent from illness? Never; I have been nine years in the Government service, and never heard of such a thing.

5654. You gave evidence before Mr. Whitton? Yes.

5655. Did you give evidence before Mr. Arnold? No.

5656. I see that in your evidence you say, "I most positively state that, so far as relates to the time I was in the office, the whole is without foundation and not true; I worked next to Mr. Hall, and I never saw him wasting his time or drinking, except at lunch-time";—did you, during the time you were giving your evidence, remind Mr. Whitton that you had not been in the office at all for three years? I spoke of the time when I was in the office.

5657. You could not state what took place afterwards;—would it not have been better to have stated that you referred to three years ago? That is a mere matter of detail; I think it is plain English.

5658. It is as it appears here; but did you not know that Mr. Gardiner's charge against the office referred to circumstances that had occurred within the three years? I understood that.

5659. Do you not then distinctly see that the evidence given by you before Mr. Whitton had no reference to that part of the charge brought by Mr. Gardiner? The circumstances were so intermixed—about beer being brought in and that sort of thing —*.

5660. When Mr. Gardiner was in the office on a previous occasion he made no charge of disorganization and of drinking; it was not until after he had left and gone back again that he made the charge? Exactly; after he was suspended.

5661. Then your evidence did not refer to that period at all? I could not help it, I simply answered the question †.

5662. Mr. Gardiner was in the office at the time you had the fight? I do not acknowledge the word "fight"; there was a quarrel.

5663. You do not acknowledge that it came to blows? It did not; I have contradicted it before.

5664. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you aware that Mr. Hall says it did? I am not.

5665. Mr. Hall in his evidence says he slapped your face? If 50,000 gave evidence to that effect, I say he did not. There is nothing extraordinary in having a quarrel in an engineer's office, or any other office.

5666. Are they generally quarrelsome? No, but there is generally more fun going on ‡ in an engineer's office than in any other.

5667. By the Chairman: The evidence you gave before Mr. Whitton had reference to things which occurred above three years since? Yes.

5668. You know nothing whatever of the conduct of the gentlemen in the office since that? Nothing whatever.

5669. By Mr. Morris: Have you seen the evidence given by Mr. Gardiner—written evidence sent to Mr. Arnold? No.

5670. Will you look at paragraph 19—(The witness read the same)—Is that a correct statement of what occurred between you and Mr. Hall? No.

5671. In what respect is it incorrect? It says we fought three rounds, which we did not.

5672. Did you fight one round? No.

5673. Did you come to any wrestling? No, not wrestling—pushing.

5674. You had a dispute—a quarrel? Yes, it was a quarrel.

5675. And you closed with one another—put hands upon one another? Yes, we put hands upon each other; I think he pushed me.

5676. Were you struck in the face? No.

5677. Was your face cut? It was not—decidedly not. I reported the matter at once to Mr. Barton §—I think it was to Mr. Barton; I will not be positive.

5678. Mr. W. A. Trengouse says you were fighting—that your lip was cut and that it bled? That is false. I believed there were malicious people in the office, and therefore I went and reported it at once.

5679.

* Revised:—The circumstances in Mr. Gardiner's charge referred partly to the date at which I was in the office.

† Revised:—It could not refer to a time at which I was not in the office.

‡ Revised:—freedom

§ INSERTED (on revision):—knowing there were malicious persons in the room, who would exaggerate.

Mr. J. W.
Deering.

20 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. J. W. Deering.
20 Jan., 1864.
5679. It is no very unusual thing in any office for disturbances to occur? No, especially in an engineer's office.
5680. Why? Because professional draughtsmen are not like clerks; they have different sorts of habits and ways; and it is as common as possible in London to send out for beer when they want it.
5681. I am not alluding to that? Well, as to quarrelling, it is nothing unusual to have quarrelling in an office.
5682. Did Mr. Higginbottom, when you were in Melbourne, tell you whether he had sent to Mr. Whitton the papers concerning Mr. Gardiner's removal from the Railway Department? No, he did not.
5683. During the time you were in the Railway Department was there drinking to any great excess? I am sure there was not; we sent out for ale at 1 o'clock only.
5684. Was there much brandy or spirits drunk? I never saw it. Mr. Hall used to bring a glass of brandy in a bottle, because he did not like ale.
5685. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you say Mr. Hall did not like ale? Well, he brought brandy.
5686. By Mr. Morris: Mr. Hall brought spirits? Yes, instead of sending out for it.
5687. Have you had opportunities of observing Mr. Micklethwait's habits? Yes.
5688. Has he the appearance of a person given to excessive drinking? He had not at the time I knew him.
5689. Did not his hands shake very much? No—I have not seen him for three years.
5690. At that time, your impression is that he was not given to excessive drinking? Yes.
5691. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Micklethwait in the office at the time you were there? Yes, a great deal in the office—I was never in so strict an office before.
5692. By Mr. Morris: Who was the head of your room when you were there? Mr. Barton.
5693. Did he visit it regularly? He was always in the office.
5694. Did he supervise the work? Yes, he knew everything that was going on.
5695. By the Chairman: Did you say that Mr. Barton was regularly in the office? Yes, we were very busy with the plans for the House.
5696. By Mr. Dalgleish: You were employed in Adelaide before you came to the Colony? Yes.
5697. Do you know a gentleman of the name of Braddock? Yes, I know such a person.
5698. Did you find him a draughtsman in the Railway Department of this Colony when you were employed there? Yes.
5699. Did you take steps to compel Mr. Braddock to pay some money he owed in Adelaide? Yes, I mentioned it to him; I did not take any further steps. A friend of mine, to whom the money was owing, asked me.
5700. Did you not get some legal process out against him? No, certainly not.
5701. Was not such a process sent here through information supplied by you? No, neither do I think the money is paid now.
5702. Did you not inform Mr. Hall with regard to the steps you had taken in reference to Mr. Braddock? Yes, I did.
5703. Mr. Hall informed Mr. Braddock of the conversation you had had with him about the matter? Yes.
5704. Mr. Braddock upbraided you in the office with breaking a promise of secrecy you had made regarding that? Yes, but I had made no such promise.
5705. And complained very bitterly of your deceitful conduct in the matter? No, he did not.*
5706. Did you not state at the time you knew who had told him, and that he was no gentleman? Yes.
5707. And Mr. Hall asked if you referred to him? Yes.
5708. Is it not the fact that when you said you did refer to him, Mr. Hall assaulted you? I do not know what you mean by assault. It is not sufficiently definite; the word has a very wide meaning.
5709. Then you cannot answer that question? No, I have answered it in my former evidence to Mr. Lucas.
5710. Did not some one interpose to prevent Mr. Hall continuing his assault upon you? No.†
5711. No one? No one.
5712. And you state that there was no such thing as a fight? No, there was not.
5713. That is to say, blows struck? There were not.
5714. Did Mr. Gardiner make any observation at that time in your hearing, with regard to your conduct? Not with regard to my conduct. He said "Go it, Hall!" and wanted to get up a fight.
5715. Did he say anything else? I did not hear him.
5716. He did not say that your conduct was more becoming a bailiff than a gentleman, and that you richly deserved the beating you had? No, I did not hear him.
5717. Mr. Gardiner never spoke to you from that time? He never spoke before, or I to him, I believe.
5718. You gave evidence before Mr. Whitton? I did.
5719. You volunteered that evidence? Because my name had been brought up in the matter.
5720. You volunteered that evidence? Yes, I did.
5721. Did you write a letter in the Empire? I did.
5722. In that letter you state that Mr. Gardiner is quarrelsome? Yes.

5723.

* ADDED (on revision):—And my conduct was the opposite of deceitful.
† ADDED (on revision):—And I object to the word "assault."

5723. When did you know Mr. Gardiner to quarrel? I think he quarrelled with most in the room.

5724. You are perfectly certain of that? It is so long ago that I could not state instances, but my general impression is that he is a quarrelsome man,*

5725. What do you mean by your general impression—can you mention any instances of quarrels that have taken place in the office, between Mr. Gardiner and any other person? He quarrelled with Mr. Mackay.

5726. When? I cannot state when.†

5727. Were you in the office? Yes, and my impression is that he was not on good terms with any one in the office.

5728. Will you give some particular instance to justify your statement that Mr. Gardiner is quarrelsome; you have mentioned Mr. Mackay—what was the instance? I could not give the particulars. I had my work to attend to and could not attend to them.

5729. Can you give any instance? No, I repeat, not in detail.

5730. Did he quarrel with you? I consider he did when he said "Go it, Hall!" he wanted to see Mr. Hall fight.

5731. When you and Hall were fighting? When we were quarrelling.

5732. Any other instance? No.‡

5733. If every other person in the office have said they never knew Mr. Gardiner to be quarrelsome, they must be wrong and you right? I think it is very unlikely they have said so.

5734. Can you give a single instance of Mr. Gardiner quarrelling with any one? No, I have made no notes of what transpired in the office, as others did.

5735. I am not asking you if you have made notes; but you have given evidence before Mr. Whitton, and have written a letter to the Empire, stating that Mr. Gardiner was a quarrelsome person? I believe he is.

5736. Is this your letter (the following letter was read)—"To the Editor of the Empire.—
"Sir,—Referring to a letter in your issue of this morning, signed 'Martin Gardiner, C.E.,' in which my name has been most unwarrantably introduced by that person, I beg to contradict most positively the assertions therein contained. I never had, and never wish to have, the least connection with Mr. Gardiner, C.E., as, owing to his quarrelsome disposition, and other reasons, he was much disliked in the department at the time I had the honor of holding an appointment in it. Mr. Gardiner, C.E., seems totally unable to discern the liberty he has taken with the name of one with whom he holds no acquaintance. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, JOHN W. DEERING. Sydney, 8th August."? Yes, that is my letter.

5737. In what way do you justify the statement that Mr. Gardiner was a quarrelsome person? He quarrelled with me.

5738. By whom was he disliked in the department? By everybody.

5739. You say "and other reasons"—What reasons have you beyond those you have given publicity to? I do not know.

5740. By Mr. Morris: You know full well that he was disliked? Yes, I know that full well. He was also much disliked in Melbourne, and was reported to be a most quarrelsome man.

5741. What was the letter Mr. Gardiner wrote in the Empire that occasioned this letter from you? Perhaps you have it—it was for mentioning my name and dragging me into the matter, which he had no right to do; I had no right to be dragged into his quarrels by the neck.

5742. This was relating to matters not absolutely personal to you, but it seemed almost necessary that your name should be mentioned on account of other matters being connected with it—Is this the letter you complain of (the letter was read)? —

5743. Is that letter of yours strictly true? Strictly true, or I should not have written it.

5744. That you did not fight? Yes.

5745. Then those who have given evidence upon this subject are wrong? Yes, some who gave evidence were not in the room; Mr. Mackay was in the room, but at the other end.

5746. You say that Mr. Mackay, and no one else, interfered—Mr. Mackay says:—"I never saw fighting in the office, but I once heard quarrelling between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering; I interfered and prevented; but Mr. Gardiner quarrelled with me afterwards for interfering in the matter, saying that Mr. Hall was quite right"? So he did; he said Mr. Hall was quite right—he wanted to get up a fight; that made me dislike him.

5747. You have a dislike to Mr. Gardiner? Yes, I have, and I dare say he has to me.

5748. Mr. Hall states:—"I recollect on one occasion having some words with Mr. Deering, and I slapped his face"—Then Mr. Hall, who is one of the principal parties, gives false evidence? Mr. Mackay bears me out in what I have stated.

5749. Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse was in the office—was he not? No.

5750. Mr. Trengrouse says:—"I have seen blows exchanged between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering in the office; it was in consequence of Mr. Deering saying Mr. Hall was no "gentleman"? He was not in the room.

5751. Are you quite sure he was not in the room? He was in the adjoining room.

5752. Might he not have been in the long-room at the time that took place, though his duties were generally performed in the adjoining room? I do not believe he was in the room.

5753.

* ADDED (on revision):—and that is also the feeling in Melbourne.

† ADDED (on revision):—I made no notes as others did.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—I kept no notes as others did; I had my work to attend to.

- Mr. J. W. Deering.
20 Jan., 1864.
5753. By the Chairman: The room you refer to is a small room at the end of the long-room? Yes.
5754. Could he see from the door of that room? Yes, if he kept it a little open and peeped through, but not if he was attending to his work.
5755. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Trengrouse could see from his own room without being in the room? No, his back would be in the opposite direction, if he was attending to his work.
5756. Could you be quarrelling with Mr. Hall, and at the same time observing whether Mr. Trengrouse was looking or not? If he said he was I would not contradict him, but I do not think he was.
5757. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Trengrouse, junior, in the room? No, he was away; he was in another room altogether, and in another building.
5758. What room was he in? Mr. Drewett's.
5759. Are you thinking of Mr. Trengrouse, junior, or of Mr. Robertson? Of Mr. Trengrouse, junior.
5760. He was in Mr. Drewett's room? Yes, he used to trace for Mr. Drewett.
5761. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know Mr. Robertson? Yes.
5762. Is he a respectable man? I never spoke a word to him in my life; he is quite a junior.
5763. Mr. Robertson says:—"I remember the circumstance of the fight between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering; I heard the noise occasioned by the scuffle, and heard it spoken of in the office by Mr. Drewett and others?" He was in Mr. Drewett's room;*
5764. Along with Mr. Trengrouse? Yes.
5765. Did you walk home with Mr. Trengrouse that night? No, and never did on any occasion.
5766. Did you see him? No, I never spoke twenty words to him.
5767. At what time did this fight take place? About 2 o'clock, I think. I went and reported the matter to Mr. Barton.
5768. Was it not before lunch? It might have been; I would not be particular to an hour—the matter was so trivial.
5769. It was not 4 o'clock? I am quite sure it was not.
5770. If evidence has been given to that effect, it is wrong? Yes, because I remember coming down and going on with my work again. I reported it to Mr. Barton at once; I said it was a trifling matter, but I reported it because I believed there were malicious people in the office.†
5771. Did Mr. Barton take any steps in the matter? He said, "Do you wish me to report it to Mr. Whitton?" and I said it was too trifling. He may have forgotten the circumstance now, as I should have done but for that letter. I have been on good terms with Mr. Hall since, and have met him within the last three months.
5772. By the Chairman: You have been friendly the last three months? When I have met him.
5773. Did you leave the office immediately after the quarrel? No, I came down and went on with my work.
5774. How long did you remain in the office after the quarrel—how many weeks? I suppose it was a month.
5775. What was your object in leaving the office? I was only on the temporary staff, which was disbanded.
5776. What was your salary? £300 per annum.
5777. You went into the Survey Department? Yes.
5778. What do you get there? £300 and allowances, an equipment in accordance with the Estimates.
5779. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you ever see Mr. Micklethwait drink in the office? Never, except at lunch.
5780. You never saw any one drink, except at lunch? Never.
5781. You were in the office about three months? About four months.
5782. By the Chairman: Could you fix the day on which you left? I believe the 31st December, 1860. I would not be certain—it was about the end of the year, but the date is on the records of the department.
5783. By Mr. Dalgleish: What engineer's office were you in, prior to being in the office in Adelaide? In England, at Mr. Hammel's.
5784. What age were you then? I was very young—about 17.
5785. Was drinking and quarrelling usual in that office? Not drinking to excess.
5786. Was drinking at all? Yes.
5787. What office were you in after that? The Adelaide City and Port Railway—the first line started.‡
5788. Were drinking and quarrelling prevalent there? I do not think we had any quarrels there, but we sent out for ale if we wanted it at any time—about 11 o'clock generally.
5789. What office were you in after that? The Central Board of Main Roads—in the Engineer's Department.
5790. Were drinking and quarrelling prevalent there? Not prevalent, but we had a quarrel there. 5791.

* ADDED (on revision):—and I deny positively that he could have heard anything of the few words that passed between Mr. Hall and myself. Mr. Robertson's statement is untrue.

† ADDED (on revision):—who would magnify the affair, for their own purposes.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—The Surveyor General's, the Great Northern Railway, the Waterworks Department, the Colonial Architect's, and Central Board of Main Roads, testimonials from all of which are in my possession.

5791. "We"—who? I say we—it was a dispute all through the department.
5792. Had you a quarrel? I was mixed up in it unavoidably.
5793. In something of the same way as Mr. Gardiner might have been in Melbourne? Not at all—it was very different.*
5794. Was it about a private matter you quarrelled? Yes, partly.
5795. Do you seriously say that civil engineers are more given to quarrel in their offices than clerks? I believe they are.
5796. And that they are allowed to drink in their offices? Yes; and so does everybody, in moderation.
5797. With the knowledge of their employers? Yes, they are allowed to drink a little;†
5798. Was Mr. Whitton aware that you were going to Melbourne, and that you intended to inquire into the antecedents of Mr. Gardiner? I do not think he was. I started two days after I came from the Lachlan;‡
5799. Was Mr. Barton, or any other officer of the department, aware that you were going to Melbourne, to make inquiries into this matter? No, I did not go to make inquiries into Mr. Gardiner's affairs; as I have repeatedly stated, I went for pleasure. I think I should need something to do, to go to Melbourne to inquire about Mr. Gardiner.
5800. From whom was it you obtained your information about Mr. Gardiner at Melbourne? It was a simple conversation that took place.
5801. With whom? One or two gentlemen I met in the hotel where I was staying; and Mr. Higginbottom said he was dismissed from the department;§
5802. Did Mr. Higginbottom say that he personally knew Mr. Gardiner? No, he said it was in Mr. Darbyshire's time—the former Engineer-in-Chief.
5803. Did he inform you that Mr. Gardiner was reinstated after due investigation? No.
5804. Was the inquiry, when concluded, in any way against Mr. Gardiner's character, or in favour of it? Against it, most decidedly; he was dismissed;||
5805. Are you aware that he was to have been reinstated, and that a letter to that effect is in the possession of Mr. Gardiner? If so I am glad of it for his sake,¶
5806. If this information can be obtained, I presume the information you have given to Mr. Whitton is not of much value? I do not suppose it is of the least value; I merely mentioned it, and what I stated is on record in Victoria.
5807. Did you mention the way in which you had received it? I said I had heard it.
5808. He naturally supposed you had heard it from good authority? Yes, he might; and so I did.
5809. You have a personal feeling against Mr. Gardiner? I do not care a bit about him.
5810. You said just now — ? I said I did not like him, but I would not go out of my way to injure him. Mr. Gardiner occupies a very small portion of my thoughts, and I should not have mixed myself up in this matter but for this letter and my duty as a Government officer. All the information relating to Mr. Gardiner is to be obtained in Melbourne, and in my opinion it will not redound to his credit.
5811. You have no other means of forming that opinion than hearsay, obtained from people of whom you have no knowledge, to whom you have not been introduced? That is all; but the record of his conduct is to be obtained from the Victorian Government.

Mr. J. W.
Deering.
20 Jan., 1864.

Mr. Henry Trump Harris called in and examined:—

5812. By the Chairman: You gave evidence before Mr. Arnold in the case of Mr. Hall? I did.
5813. You were engaged as a sub-contractor on the railway—were you not? Yes.
5814. In what capacity? For plumbing and painting of the Cabramatta siding gate-house.
5815. How long were you so engaged? I was up there about five weeks, off and on.
5816. During the time you were there how many times did you see Mr. Hall? Five or six.
5817. I see you say that it was always expected, when Mr. Hall visited the works, that a bottle of grog should be sent for? It was always got for him the day previous—that is, when he was expected; he generally came up on Thursday, and Parkinson used to go down and get a bottle of brandy and some tarts.
5818. That is, he prepared a lunch? He got a feed for him against he came up.
5819. What description of drink did he take? When Parkinson went to fetch it from Parramatta it was generally brandy; once or twice he came unexpectedly, and directly he came it was sent for.
5820. What was sent for? Rum. We used to send to Lansdowne Bridge for it.
5821. Who used generally to pay for it? Mr. Parkinson used generally to pay for this; sometimes I paid for it. We used generally to have grog ourselves, but not brandy.
5822. Did you ever know Mr. Hall to pay for it? No, he does not understand paying; I never knew him to pay for anything.
5823. Have you seen Mr. Hall the worse for drink during the time he was engaged in inspecting

Mr.
H. T. Harris.
20 Jan., 1864.

* ADDED (on revision):—I supported my department, and Mr. Gardiner did the opposite.

† ADDED (on revision):—but Government officers are kept so strictly to their departments, that any slight refreshment, even to a biscuit, has to be sent for.

‡ ADDED (on revision):—and I deny any premeditated intention, or otherwise, of inquiring anything respecting Mr. Gardiner.

§ NOTE (on revision):—but I have answered this question frequently.

|| ADDED (on revision):—and I again state that I instituted no inquiry.

¶ ADDED (on revision):—for the other matters did him no credit.

- Mr. H. T. Harris. inspecting the work? Yes, I have certainly seen him the worse for drink. I have known him drink three-quarters of a bottle of brandy before he has gone away.
- 20 Jan., 1864. 5824. During what period? He generally came up about 11 o'clock, and went by the return train, sometimes at half-past 2, sometimes at half-past 4.
5825. He used to drink three-fourths of a bottle of brandy in three or four hours? Yes.
5826. Did you take any? Yes, I have had a nobbler out of it.
5827. Did Mr. Parkinson partake of it? Mr. Parkinson might have drunk at dinner out of it. Mr. Hall used to stick to it at the tent till it was all gone.
5828. Do you mean that he used to help himself without invitation? Yes; it used to be put in the tent, and when he came up he would sing out and inquire where the grog was.
5829. After he commenced inspecting the works, used he to go over to the tent? Yes, and stay there; the inspection did not occupy ten minutes.
5830. He used to remain in the tent by himself drinking? Yes; we would sometimes go in and have a yarn with him, and then leave him and go on with our work as usual.
5831. He would help himself to the grog? Yes.
5832. How do you know that? Because I have seen him many a time.
5833. Have you often seen him, when on the works, the worse for drinking? I have seen him once or twice much the worse for drink. When I gave my evidence before Mr. Arnold I had a dispute about his being drunk. I am rather particular about when you call a man drunk.
5834. When do you call a man drunk? I do not call a man drunk so long as he is able to walk about. Mr. Rae was of opinion that a man is either drunk or sober. He has always been able to walk, but not as I should consider fit to superintend his work as a Government officer ought to do.
5835. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did this discussion take place when you gave evidence before Mr. Arnold? Yes.
5836. Does it appear in the evidence that purports to be yours before Mr. Arnold? I gave up giving evidence—it was so partial; in fact, I made up my mind not to give any more evidence. They put certain questions, and would not have any answers unless they suited them.
5837. By the Chairman: Read that (handing the printed evidence to witness)—that is said to be the evidence you gave before Mr. Arnold—and inform the Committee of anything you see omitted from that evidence? This is the evidence I signed my name to. That is what was on the paper, but you must understand that there was only put on the paper what they liked.
5838. Did you say anything that has been omitted from that? Lots was said that I could not recollect—perhaps I was talking five minutes, and they did not put down ten words.
5839. In substance, is it correct? As nearly as I can remember.
5840. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you say that Mr. Hall was drunk? Yes, what I should consider drunk;* he was not, in my opinion, capable of looking after the business; but Mr. Rae says a man must be either drunk or sober—he cannot be half-way between it.
5841. By the Chairman: On every occasion when Mr. Hall was present, there was either a bottle of brandy sent for the day before, or grog sent for as soon as he arrived? Yes.
5842. And he partook of the greatest portion of it? Yes, it was sent for expressly for him.
5843. Has Mr. Hall ever favoured you in any way? No, he had no occasion to favour me; in fact, I had nothing to do with Mr. Hall.
5844. You were a sub-contractor? Yes.
5845. Under Mr. Parkinson? Yes, under Mr. Bryant; Mr. Parkinson was looking after it for Mr. Bryant.
5846. Do you know whether Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Hall were very friendly? Yes, most contractors are very friendly with Mr. Hall when there is any job going on.
5847. Why? Mr. Hall soon gets acquainted with them; there seems to be an intimacy between them as soon as a job is commenced. I heard that Mr. Parkinson knew Mr. Hall before he came on the job.
5848. Did you hear whether Mr. Parkinson had known Mr. Hall in England? I think he did.
5849. Have you heard? I have heard him speak of knowing him in England; whether he knew him as a friend, or only on a job, I cannot say.
5850. You wrote a letter to Mr. Trengrouse with reference to Mr. Hall's drinking habits, did you not? Yes. (The Chairman read the same. Vide Appendix, p. 9.)
5851. With reference to these other things "not very creditable"—what do you mean? I do not think it is right for a Government officer, when he is getting out a specification for a job, to take out the quantities and send them to a contractor.
5852. Have you ever known Mr. Hall to do so? Yes, on two occasions. I do not know whether one was for Parramatta and one for Newtown, or whether they were both for Parramatta; but I happened to be at Mr. Parkinson's when a long envelope, addressed to him, came; and when he had opened it, he said, "Here are the quantities of such and such a job—the old man has sent this." He used to call Mr. Hall "the old man." I do not think it is fair to take out the quantities in that way and send them to a contractor.
5853. Other contractors have to do that themselves? Yes, and the work connected with the Railway Department is difficult to take out, as they cube everything but inch stuff.
5854. You were present when this document came? Either when the document came or when Mr. Parkinson opened it; it was in a long envelope, addressed "On Her Majesty's Service."
5855. When he opened it he said it was the quantities which the old man had sent him? Yes. 5856.

* Revised:—No, not what I should consider drunk, but 5856. And that is how he styled Mr. Hall? Yes.

5857. You have never known any other contractor receive these favours, have you? No, I never knew it was usual for such things to be sent out of a Government office.
5858. That you consider discreditable? Yes; and another thing that I consider discreditable is, that if the poorest labourer would shout, Mr. Hall would drink with him and be his companion. I do not think it was the thing for a Government officer receiving £300 or £400 a year, to be drinking grog with a man who received but 30s. or £2 a week.
5859. Have you known that? Yes.
5860. With a labouring man? Yes; when I say labouring men, perhaps they might be mechanics.
5861. With men working on the job—he was willing to drink with any person that invited him? Yes.
5862. Did you ever see him refuse? No, never.
5863. And you have often seen him accept? Yes; in fact, so long as there was any grog about, Mr. Hall was “Hail fellow, well met” with any one.
5864. Have you read Mr. Parkinson’s evidence? I have read what Mr. Arnold said about doubting my evidence and about Mr. Parkinson’s evidence, but I do not know whether this is the same as was published in the newspaper.
5865. There it is—you see he contradicts you in many things (handing the same to witness)? This is a whole heap of untruths from beginning to end. Mr. Parkinson always went (the day before Mr. Hall came up) in the dog-cart to Parramatta, seven or eight miles, for the sole purpose of getting brandy for Mr. Hall. I have known when Mr. Hall has not come up that the brandy never was touched. Mr. Parkinson says here, “I never saw Mr. Hall drink spirits before he commenced work.” I have seen him drunk, though not on the building. I have seen him at Mr. Bryant’s, at Newtown.
5866. Mr. Bryant was the contractor? Yes, I think Mr. Bryant was, in reality, the contractor; I have seen Mr. Hall when I have gone over to Mr. Bryant’s on a Sunday morning; he has gone to Mr. Parkinson’s to dinner, and I have then seen him again at Mr. Bryant’s in the evening.
5867. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is Mr. Parkinson still a Government contractor? I do not know; I believe he is.
5868. By the Chairman: It is not likely that a contractor, who had received favours such as you describe to have been given by Mr. Hall to Mr. Parkinson, would give evidence which would condemn the Government officer who had so favoured him? No, certainly not. I have heard Mr. Parkinson say, “I do not expect I shall get this job—the old man’s price is too low for me.” He must therefore have known pretty well what Mr. Hall had worked the job up to.
5869. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you heard these observations before the tenders have been sent in? Yes.
5870. Mr. Bryant was a very large sub-contractor? Yes.
5871. Mr. William Bryant? Yes.
5872. He was the sub-contractor for the whole of the masonry of the Menangle Bridge? Yes, he came out from England, and did the whole of the brick-work at Newtown Bridge. Mr. Hall was often up at Mr. Bryant’s; I have seen him there three or four Sundays running. It was a house of call for any one who liked to call. I have known Mr. Hall to be there in the morning, then to go to Mr. Parkinson’s to dinner, then to Mr. Bryant’s, and spend the evening there, and I have seen them all jolly well right in the evening.
5873. By Mr. Morris: Have you been a sub-contractor under Messrs. Parkinson and Bryant? I was at that time.
5874. Did Mr. Hall find any fault with your work? No, I did my work according to the specification.
5875. How came you to say “at least I know he never favoured me”? I was asked the question:—“Do you think he favoured the contractors?” I said I did not know, but that I knew he never favoured me. I was then asked, “Do you think you would give me a bottle of brandy unless you got something in return?” I said, “I do not insinuate anything; I state facts; you may draw your own inference.”
5876. How long is it since this occurrence took place? About two years ago.
5877. Did you learn these circumstances, with regard to Mr. Hall sending the quantities to Mr. Parkinson and these other matters, in a confidential private manner? It came out first in the way of business.
5878. You would have felt yourself justified at any time in mentioning these things? Yes, I have spoken to Mr. Trengrouse many times about Mr. Hall’s drinking habits.
5879. Has Mr. Trengrouse made inquiries of you concerning Mr. Hall’s habits? We were for some time in the same department, and afterwards, when I have seen him, I have spoken to him of Mr. Hall.
5880. How long ago is it since you informed Mr. Trengrouse of Mr. Hall’s conduct? Perhaps twelve months ago. I was very much annoyed when he came to me and said he had made use of my name, for I was not pleased to be dragged into the matter.
5881. Do you think, from what you have been able to observe, that the public service has been injured by Mr. Hall’s conduct? Yes.
5882. Did it not occur to you, that you should have mentioned these circumstances to the proper authorities? Certainly not; a pretty mess I should have got into if I had wanted a job afterwards.
5883. And you think you are bound to consider yourself before the interest of the public service? Yes, you do not stand a chance of getting a leather medal if you do not look after yourself.

- Mr. H. T. Harris. 5884. Mr. Trengrouse, twelve months ago, was well acquainted with your suspicions of Mr. Hall? Only about his drinking habits.
- 20 Jan., 1864. 5885. About these quantities? No, not a soul in the country but these gentlemen. I am not very well pleased with Mr. Trengrouse for bringing me down here.
5886. You have been an unwilling witness throughout? Yes; I was loth to give my evidence before Mr. Arnold, till he humbugged me and got more than I intended to say.
5887. By Mr. Dalgleish: Any one who gives evidence against Government officers is not very likely to get employment from them? Not only Government officers but others; but I think it perfectly right that Government should know it, and that men like Mr. Hall should not be kept in the service; for it was well known that unless he was well fed and fattened the work did not go on well.

THURSDAY, 21 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. GARRETT.
JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Andrew Eaton called in and examined:—

- Mr. A. Eaton. 5888. By the Chairman: You were a Government contractor—were you not? Yes.
- 21 Jan., 1864. 5889. What works were you engaged on? I was engaged at Penrith Station, Singleton Station, and Picton Station, along with Mr. Jamieson.
5890. Were you partners with Mr. Jamieson? Yes, on those stations.
5891. Were you constantly on the work? Well, I was generally on the work until the roof was on; I was on the work steady till the masonry and brick-work were done.
5892. Was Mr. Hall inspecting the work? He was inspecting the Penrith Station; he came there occasionally.
5893. Were you present when he came? Generally I was.
5894. Did ever you see him drinking on the works? No, not that I am aware of.
5895. Did you never see him taking anything to drink? I do not remember doing so.
5896. You have not seen Mr. Hall drinking during the time you were there? I am not certain.
5897. Are you not certain whether you have seen a man drink or not—cannot you remember, or is it that you do not wish to give the evidence—is that the fact? I would rather not answer these questions.*
5898. By Mr. Garrett: You say you have never seen Mr. Hall drinking—you have stated that? No, I have said I am not certain.
5899. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall the worse for liquor? Not to my knowledge.
5900. Is it not a common practice to take liquor on the works, when they are being examined and passed? There is drink sometimes on the works, such as when they are starting, or when the roof is on.
5901. Was Mr. Hall present on any one of those occasions? He was there at the setting out of the work; but whether he was there at what is called the rearing, when the chimney-tops were got up, I am not certain.
5902. Was there any drinking going on at the setting out of the work? I do not remember seeing any.
5903. Who provides the drink on these occasions? The contractor, generally, for the men.
5904. Did you do it then? Either Mr. Jamieson or myself did it.
5905. Do you recollect whether you did provide any at the setting out of the work? No, I did not.
5906. Was there any spree at the finish of the brick-work? There was some drink at what we call the rearing, that is, when the chimney-tops were finished.
5907. That was provided by the contractor? Yes.
5908. Was Mr. Hall present? I do not think he was, but I do not remember.
5909. You cannot state any occasion on which you saw Mr. Hall the worse for liquor on the works? I cannot.
5910. By the Chairman: Have you seen architects—such men as Mr. Hume and Mr. Bibb, for instance—drink with the contractors? I never did.
5911. Is it usual, in private contracts, for the person who supervises the work, to drink and make himself—“Hail fellow, well met” with the contractors and workmen engaged on the building? It is not.
5912. By Mr. Garrett: Did you ever see Mr. Hall make himself “Hail fellow, well met” with the men on the works, or with the contractors? I have never seen him drinking with any of the men on the works.
5913. Was Mr. Hall there frequently? He came up generally when there was a measurement to take place; that was once a month; perhaps he might have been a week or so longer sometimes.
5914. Did he remain any time? He generally came up on the one day and went down on the next.
5915. How many visits of this character did he make to the works? He might have been perhaps four times while I was there, but I am not certain.

5916.

NOTE (on revision):—I understood all those questions to allude to Mr. Hall when on the works.

5916. Do you recollect, on any of these four occasions, that Mr. Hall appeared to be the worse for liquor? Not to my knowledge. Mr. A. Eaton.
5917. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you any interest in Government contracts now? No. 21 Jan., 1864.
5918. Do you intend tendering again for Government work? Well, I intend to do so.
5919. Do you think any evidence you might give before this Committee would tend to injure you in the eyes of Government officers? Well, I don't know; I should think not.
5920. Do you think it would? Well, I should scarce think so.
5921. Whence arises this hesitation in answering the questions then, with regard to the conduct of a Government officer—you could tell a great deal more if you liked, could you not? Every answer I have given has been the truth.
5922. Could you not say a very great deal more if you liked? Well, I don't know; I am answering all the questions you put to me, giving direct answers.
5923. If you wished to give information, could you not give a very great deal more information on the questions that have been asked you? Well, I do not think so.
5924. How long was Mr. Hall at Penrith when he set out the work? He was up two days, and I saw him on the work on the third morning; but he was not setting out the work all the time. The first day Mr. Micklethwait gave us the centre pegs of the line, and the height of the rails, and the front line; and in the afternoon I went to the quarry with Mr. Hall away up in the mountains. The next morning we took the front line again, and the centre line; Mr. Micklethwait made his man drive the pins so that we had the front and centre lines; and Mr. Hall stopped till we dug out some of the foundation, till he saw what bottom there was, and made us set out the walls. He appeared again on the work, either before or after breakfast on the third day.
5925. What did Mr. Hall say about the quarry? He pointed out one bed of stone pretty well down to the bottom, and said we should get nothing but that—that would do; but then there were about twenty feet of rock above it.
5926. Was the stone he condemned good stone? I considered so.
5927. Was it equal to Pyrmont stone? I considered so.
5928. Did you get the opinion and judgment of other persons, on the stone? Different parties that used to come round thought it was good.
5929. Has it been used since in public buildings? I believe Mr. Watkins is using it for the viaduct somewhere about the same place.
5930. Were your bricks condemned? Yes, wholesale.
5931. Were the bricks condemned, afterwards used? Yes.
5932. Without any alteration? Without any alteration.
5933. Was anything else you had there condemned? I do not remember anything particular that was condemned, only the bricks.
5934. No timber? There was some timber condemned, but there is always some, more or less.
5935. Was it a general condemnation of the timber or only of particular pieces? Not general; it was at the beginning that there was most condemning.
5936. At this time Mr. Hall had never taken any drink on the work? He had not.
5937. Did you ever receive any hint that a little drink would conciliate Mr. Hall? I do not remember.
5938. Do you think, if you were to try, you could remember—as a matter of fact, was such a hint given to you or your partner Mr. Jamieson? I do not remember any hint being given to me; I may have heard of such a thing.
5939. Was that hint acted upon? There was sometimes drink on the works.
5940. And Mr. Hall could get it if he liked? If he pleased he could, when there was any.
5941. Without your knowledge? Either with or without our knowledge.
5942. It was there so that he could take it without observation—it was kept in the tent? Yes, in a little hut where the plans and tools and that were kept.
5943. He had full liberty to go and come? Yes. The Clerk of Works, Mr. Robertson, went in and out.
5944. Was there any sensible diminution in the bottle after Mr. Hall had visited the place? I never paid any attention to that.
5945. Can you conscientiously tell this Committee Mr. Hall never drank on the works? He might and he might not.
5946. Be kind enough to give a direct answer. It is disagreeable, I know, but it is as disagreeable for us as for you? He might and he might not; I cannot give a more direct answer.
5947. As a matter of fact, did he not drink on the work? I cannot say he did not.
5948. Can you say he did? I cannot answer that question.
5949. Do you remember Mr. Hall meeting with an accident somewhere on the mountains? I heard of it.
5950. Did you hear who was with him when that accident occurred? Yes.
5951. Was it your partner? I object to answer that question.
5952. Has it come to your knowledge that Mr. Hall met with an accident on the mountains, when driving? I heard so—a small accident.
5953. Did it lay him up for some weeks? That I cannot say, because he had done our measurement.
5954. He had done your measurements for the works? He had taken our measurement for that time.
5955. Not finished up altogether? No.
5956. And you object to answer whether it was your partner that was in the trap with him or not? Not being there, and not knowing anything about it, I cannot answer that question.
- 5957.

Mr. A. Eaton. 5957. Well, has it come to your knowledge that your partner was in the vehicle with him? I cannot answer that question at all; not being there I do not know who was with him, for 21 Jan., 1864. certain.

5958. I ask whether it has come to your knowledge? That is hearsay evidence, so that I cannot answer it.

5959. Can you answer it by hearsay evidence obtained from your partner? I do not think that is a fair question to ask of me. Mr. Beatson was with him.

5960. Who is Mr. Beatson? The publican he lived in the house with, so I believe; but it is hearsay evidence.

5961. By Mr. Garrett: Mr. Beatson lives in Penrith? He did at the time I was there.

5962. By Mr. Dalgleish: After Mr. Hall had access to this tent or hut where the brandy-bottle was, was any such wholesale condemnation passed upon the materials at your building as had been the case previously? Well, I think the principal thing that stopped the wholesale condemning was, that after Mr. Whitton and some gentlemen came up, when the foundation was ready for the floor, they were very well satisfied with the work. Our agreement with Martin Gibbons was, that any bricks that were condemned should be at his loss; and he threatened to go to the Engineer-in-Chief, and if he would not take notice of it, to the Minister for Works.

5963. By the Chairman: And then the bricks were passed? Yes. I asked the Clerk of Works to point out the bad bricks, and he would not do so.*

5964. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was the Clerk of Works the cause of the wholesale condemnation of the bricks and materials in the first instance? I should consider the Clerk of Works was going by instructions.

5965. And who did he obtain those instructions from? From Mr. Hall, I should suppose.

5966. The reason why he did not point out which bricks were to be condemned was that the bricks were pretty well of equal quality? † He could not point them out.

5967. By the Chairman: The bricks were actually good? They were the best Newtown picked bricks.

5968. By Mr. Dalgleish: So that there was no possibility of condemning them on their merits? There was not.

5969. Were you employed on the Picton Station? Yes.

5970. Was that begun after the Penrith Station? Yes; the Singleton Station was done after the Penrith one, and then the Picton Station.

5971. Was Mr. Hall at Singleton? He was not. I believe he was at the last measurement, but I was not there then.

5972. Did the work go on more agreeably at Singleton than at Penrith? It did, rather.

5973. Was it conducted in a more business-like manner? Well, I liked the way it was conducted better.

5974. For what reason? Mr. Bewick never spoke to us—unless bidding us good morning—except to give us some directions about the work. There might have been a little timber or a few bricks condemned, but nothing to speak of; we removed them at once and had no trouble.

5975. He did his duty? Yes.

5976. You had a Clerk of Works on behalf of the Government, at Penrith—continually there? Yes.

5977. And the same at Singleton? Yes.

5978. But the conduct of Mr. Bewick was quite a contrast to the conduct of Mr. Hall? I do not know how to answer that question. I liked the conduct of Mr. Bewick better than that of the other.

5979. Was the conduct of the one opposite to that of the other? I do not know how to answer those questions at all.

5980. You could answer them if you liked? Not well. I might like the ways of one gentleman better than those of another.

5981. Can you explain the difference in the conduct of the two men? I cannot give any explanation, only that I liked the ways of Mr. Bewick; I liked Mr. Bewick better to come on the works than I did Mr. Hall.

5982. Did Mr. Bewick take the liberty of going into your hut? No; the Clerk of Works and Mr. Bewick had an office of their own there, where the plans were lying.

5983. Was the office where the plans were, in the Clerk of Works' quarters? Just across the line from where the station was built.

5984. Had the Clerk of Works an office at Penrith? Not of his own.

5985. What office did he use? No office, only a small place Mr. Jamieson put up to put his tools in, and the plans were sometimes lying there; he could go in there to look at the plans.

5986. Mr. Jamieson lived there? No.

5987. Mr. Jamieson says he lived in a hut on the works? He lived in a house in a paddock adjoining the works.

5988. Was Mr. Hall ever there? I never saw him there.

5989. Was the brandy kept there? I do not know, I am sure; I never saw any brandy kept there.

5990. Was it kept amongst the tools? Sometimes; if it was about the works it was there.

5991. As a matter of fact, was ever the hut without brandy or rum when Mr. Hall visited the works? Yes.

5992.

* ADDED (on revision):—That was when two or three truck-loads were condemned.

† Revised:—Yes.

5992. After you had received the hint that brandy or spirits were acceptable to Mr. Hall? Mr. A. Eaton. I did not say that I got notice of that.
5993. You said you had received a hint? I said I might have heard so.
5994. Did you hear? Well, I cannot give a direct answer; I might have heard, and I might not.
5995. After you might have heard that drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall, was drink ever wanting when he visited the works? Yes, he has been on the works and no drink there, more than the first time.
5996. Is that an answer to the question—I asked was drink ever wanting after you were aware that drink was acceptable to him—not the first or second time? Mr. Hall has been up there and no drink on the works.
5997. That is not the question—After you were aware that drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall, was it ever wanting when he visited the works? I am not aware that I said I knew drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall.
5998. I do not ask you even that, but I take it for granted that you knew that drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall; and I say, after you knew that drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall, was the place ever without drink when he visited it? Yes.
5999. After you knew that? Well, I did not say I did know, but I say he has been there and no drink on the works. You are making me assert what I have never said.
6000. I said I took it for granted you knew drink was acceptable to Mr. Hall, because you have answered these questions or refused to answer them, so as to leave only one impression, that Mr. Hall did drink, and that you knew it—I do not think you said you never saw Mr. Hall drinking? I did not say I had seen him drinking, or that I had not; I said I did not remember.
6001. You seem to have a bad memory;—did you ever receive quantities, or letters, or any communication from Mr. Hall, giving you information of the quantities contained in a building? Do you mean before we contracted for it?
6002. Yes? Never.
6003. Did you ever receive it afterwards? Never; not unless it was that Mr. Jamieson, I believe, had to see Mr. Hall's quantities in the office, when he gave in his own for settlement, to see how they compared; but as regards quantities for contracting, or anything of the sort, we never did.
6004. By the Chairman: Who took out the quantities for you when you were about to tender? Mr. Jamieson did for the carpenters' work, plastering, and slating; and I used to take out the quantities for the masonry and brick-work.
6005. Then you used to tender for the masonry and brick-work, and Mr. Jamieson for the other work? Yes. We never got quantities from Mr. Hall, nor did he ever give us a hint one way or the other.
6006. I think it is only fair to you to mention that no statement of the kind has been made with special reference to yourself or your partner; but it has been stated that, as regards the ironmongery for Picton Station, Mr. Hall received from your partner £6 2s. 6d. more than it actually cost, and that the £6 2s. 6d. was again deducted from your account by the Engineer-in-Chief? Yes.
6007. Although you had already paid it to Mr. Hall? Mr. Hall had a crossed cheque from Mr. Jamieson for the amount.
6008. According to the specification, £55 was to be allowed for the ironmongery for the two stations? Yes.
6009. And Mr. Jamieson gave Mr. Hall a crossed cheque for the amount, £55? Yes.
6010. When you went to get your money from the Government, you were compelled to shew the bill for the ironmongery from Iredale & Co.? Yes, we went and got a copy of the account from Iredale & Co.
6011. The ironmongery only came to £48 17s. 6d.? Yes.
6012. Mr. Whitton then deducted from the money to be paid to you £6 2s. 6d., to make the iron-work come up to the allowance in the specification? Mr. Jamieson told me so.
6013. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you see the Engineer-in-Chief with regard to the matter? I did not; it was Mr. Jamieson.
6014. Did Mr. Jamieson tell you the Engineer-in-Chief had said he was as bad as Mr. Hall in the matter? He never told me so.
6015. By Mr. Garrett: With regard to the condemned bricks that were afterwards used—you state that Mr. Hall condemned the bricks? I stated that the Clerk of Works condemned the bricks.
6016. Not Mr. Hall in the first instance? He might have done so when he was there, but as the Clerk of Works was there regularly it was he that condemned them.
6017. How do you know Mr. Hall gave the directions to the Clerk of Works—did you hear him? Not about the bricks; but when anything was to be done, I have heard him giving Mr. Robertson instructions how to do it.
6018. You never heard Mr. Hall give the Clerk of Works any instructions as to the condemnation of the bricks? Never.
6019. With regard to the subsequent using of these bricks, do you know whether the Clerk of Works acted under instructions from Mr. Hall? I do not.
6020. Have you any reason to believe he did? I do not know how it was.
6021. You say Mr. Martin Gibbons threatened to go to the Minister for Works? To go to the Engineer-in-Chief, and if he would not allow them to be used, then to go to the Minister for Works.
6022. Do you know whether Mr. Martin Gibbons did go to the Engineer-in-Chief? Not to my knowledge he did not, because the Clerk of Works could not point out the bricks that he said were bad so that we could throw them on one side, and so it passed off.

- Mr. A. Eaton. 6023. They were used immediately afterwards? Yes. The reason of it was that some of them got snicked, and they were objected to, as they were for the front. After that, Martin Gibbons sent up his own team and drew them from South Creek.
- 21 Jan., 1864. 6024. Mr. Hall was not present when Mr. Gibbons was remonstrating against the bricks being rejected? He was not.
6025. By Mr. Dalgleish: Who condemned the stone? Mr. Hall.
6026. Not the Clerk of Works? Not the Clerk of Works. The Clerk of Works was with Mr. Hall.
6027. As a matter of fact, who condemned the bricks first? I could not answer that question.
6028. Was it not Mr. Hall? The first two trucks of bricks that came up the line came from Parramatta. I went down to South Creek to see if they were there, and Mr. Hall was at South Creek Station and condemned them—those that came from Parramatta.
6029. Were those bricks used? They were taken up to Penrith, and 250 that were picked out we gave to a man there; the rest were used.
6030. By Mr. Garrett: At whose suggestion were they used? We picked out all the bad ones they could point out—250.
6031. You used the balance under approval? Yes.
6032. Of the Clerk of Works? Yes.
6033. By Mr. Dalgleish: Who did you give the bad bricks to? I do not know his name; we got liberty to go through his paddock to the station.
6034. It was not any person doing Government work? No.
6035. By Mr. Garrett: Was the stone condemned by Mr. Hall afterwards used? We did not quarry it.
6036. You did not go on with it? No.
6037. By Mr. Dalgleish: It has since been used, to your knowledge, for building viaducts for the railway? Yes, out of the same quarry.
6038. By Mr. Garrett: Had Mr. Hall anything to do with these viaducts? Not that I am aware of.
6039. By Mr. Dalgleish: As a matter of fact, was not the wholesale condemnation of your materials by Mr. Hall very near compelling Mr. Jamieson and you to relinquish your contract? No.
6040. Did you not go to your sureties, in Sussex-street—to Mr. Cox, of Cox's Wharf, and to Mr. Forest, the timber-merchant—and tell them that if this system of wholesale condemnation of good material was to continue, you could not possibly go on with the work? I never did so.
6041. Did your partner? Not to my knowledge.
6042. By Mr. Garrett: With regard to the bricks—you say two trucks were condemned by Mr. Hall? Yes; he said we must not bring any more of the same sort, but he would allow us to use them if we picked out the bad ones.
6043. And you picked out 250? Yes, about that.
6044. The remainder were used? Yes.
6045. By the Chairman: How many were in these two trucks? 4,000.
6046. By Mr. Garrett: What other bricks were condemned? Those that came from Martin Gibbons; I had to stop at South Creek and pick out ten or twenty—any that shewed the least red—out of 2,000, before they came up to the works.
6047. Then the balance was used? The balance was taken up.
6048. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were these the bricks condemned in the first instance? No, what were condemned in the first instance were those from Parramatta.
6049. Parramatta burnt bricks? Yes.
6050. The bricks you spoke of being condemned in the first instance were on the ground, were they not? They were in the trucks when Mr. Hall saw them at South Creek Station.
6051. Were they not on the ground at all before they were condemned? No. He said we could take out all the red ones, but bring no more from the same place. It happened in this way:—When I went to see after the bricks, I saw Mr. Hall at South Creek Station and asked him to look at them; he did so, and said that they would not do at all, but as we had brought them up, we must pick out all the red ones and we might use the others, but we were not to have any more from the same place.
6052. By Mr. Garrett: How many of these were there? 4,000 altogether.
6053. By Mr. Dalgleish: South Creek was as far as the line went at that time? Yes.
6054. By Mr. Garrett: Was there any drinking about that transaction? No.
6055. By Mr. Dalgleish: You did not ask him to have a nobbler? No.
6056. By Mr. Garrett: With regard to the stone—you say that was objected to and never used? We never quarried any more; only the first few pieces we got we used them in.
6057. What quantity of timber was condemned? I could not say. There was very little timber on the ground till the brick-work was finished.
6058. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know Mr. Parkinson? Yes, I know him by being at South Creek, looking after the bricks.
6059. He was the contractor or sub-contractor for the South Creek Station? Yes, for Peto & Co.
6060. Had you any conversation with Mr. Parkinson about Mr. Hall? I might have had; it is likely his name might have been brought up if we have been talking together.
6061. You might have received a hint from him that drink would be acceptable to Mr. Hall? I cannot say I did.
6062. Did you or did you not? Not to my remembrance, I did not.
6063. By Mr. Garrett: With regard to the difference between the conduct of Mr. Bewick and and the conduct of Mr. Hall, you cannot describe the difference you allude to? I only said Mr. A. Eaton. I liked Mr. Bewick's ways better; I said I would rather have Mr. Bewick over me than Mr. Hall.

21 Jan., 1864.

6064. Do you think Mr. Hall is equally well qualified to discharge his duties as Mr. Bewick? Well, as far as I am a judge I should suppose so; I do not know of any difference; both appear to be fit for their duties.

6065. Did Mr. Hall, as a matter of fact, place any extra or unusual impediment in the way of the performance of your contract? Well, we had to get the material different from what we expected, but I suppose that was our look-out; we were bound to get the quality of stone approved of by the engineer.

6066. By the Chairman: The only objection made by the supervisors of the work to Martin Gibbons' bricks, was that they were snipped a little? Yes, and any red ones, or that he would not have them; he would have them picked out before they came on the works.

6067. Did you pick out any of Martin Gibbons' bricks? Yes, I picked them out at South Creek Station, any of the worst of them.

6068. You said they were condemned at Penrith? Yes.

6069. The objection made to these bricks, at Penrith, was because they were snipped a little? That was one objection.

6070. What was the other? If there happened to be any red ones.

6071. I thought you said it was impossible to pick any out at Penrith—I presume it was on the ground that Martin Gibbons' bricks were objected to by the surveyor? Yes.

6072. And you have already said that Mr. Martin Gibbons asked them to pick any out, and they could not do so? Yes.

6073. Consequently the only objection at Penrith was the snipping of the bricks—there were some of them snipped? There were some of them snipped.

6074. Were they not carted from the kiln to the railway station? Yes.

6075. Then packed in trucks, and taken to South Creek? Yes.

6076. Then removed from the trucks into the cart, and carted to Penrith Station? Yes.

6077. Now, is it possible—no matter how good the bricks were, with this transhipping—so many loadings and unloadings—is it possible to take bricks without snipping? It is not.

6078. And it is well known to the surveyors that there are no bricks to be got along the line equal to the Newtown bricks? Newtown bricks are called the best.

6079. Cannot a red brick be equal to a spotted brick? It can.

6080. Supposing you were building a house for yourself, and there were two kilns of bricks equally burnt, one without spots and one with, which would you select—the brick without the spot, or the brick with? The brick without the spot; the spot is ironstone, and water goes through them.

6081. Wherever there is a spot there is a hole in the brick which collects the water, retains it, and hence damp walls? Yes.

6082. There are no holes where there are no spots? No.

6083. And no soakage through the bricks? Only the soakage from outside the bricks.

6084. By Mr. Dalgleish: Then the best bricks were rejected? I cannot say that.

6085. Did you have any bricks burnt at Penrith? Yes.

6086. Were those bricks condemned? I picked some out of the centre of the kiln—any that they would pass—and as soon as Mr. Robertson said they were not good enough I stopped them carting;—out of a 30,000 kiln we got perhaps 10,000.

6087. By the Chairman: The fact is, the soil at Penrith is not fit for brickmaking? There are some very good bricks at Penrith.

6088. Not spotted bricks? No.

6089. Then they would not be accepted? The best of them were accepted for the inside walls.

6090. In reality are they not better for outside walls? I think they are quite as good.

6091. Have you heard of Mr. Hume rejecting spotted bricks for outside work? I have heard it said so.

6092. Mr. Hume is considered the most experienced architect in the Colony? He is counted one of the most experienced.

6093. By Mr. Garrett: Was all the timber brought to the ground at the time it was examined and condemned? No, it would keep coming as the building was going on.

WEDNESDAY, 27 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. MORRIS.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. George Hall called in and examined:—

6094. By the Chairman: You have been some time in the Railway Department? I have. Mr. G. Hall.

6095. What period? Five years last October.

6096. Latterly you have been engaged as architectural draughtsman—have you not? Yes. 27 Jan., 1864.

6097. How long? I think nearly the whole time, with the exception of the first eighteen months or so.

6098. You had an assistant, Mr. Mackay? I had, for about two years.

6099. The last two years? The last two years.

6100.

- Mr. G. Hall. 6100. Your duties were confined to the architectural department? Quite so.
6101. There was a report made to the Minister with reference to drinking in the department, in which you were accused of drinking to excess—was that the case? No, not to my knowledge.
6102. Of course you could not drink to excess without your knowledge? No.
6103. Did you ever drink during office hours? Yes, every day at 1 o'clock.
6104. During office hours; then the drinking was confined to lunch-time? Yes.
6105. Did you ever drink anything at other times than luncheon? I may have done; I cannot remember.
6106. How used the drink be brought into the department? By the messenger boy.
6107. Did you ever bring any in yourself? Yes.
6108. Frequently? No, not frequently; I have several times, but only in small quantities.
6109. And you have never drunk to excess in the office? Never. The drink, I may observe, that I have brought in, has been when I could not drink the beer the boy brought us; it would be about a glass of brandy instead of taking the bad beer; that was only occasionally.
6110. It is also stated that you have drunk during the time you have been engaged in surveying the works at the stations—is that true? Well, the station building at Cabramatta was so far removed from any public-house or place of refreshment, that I used to take something there; but where I could get to an hotel I always went to the hotel to dine.
6111. And you have taken drink at Cabramatta? Yes, to save the time of going three miles to the nearest public-house.
6112. How much have you taken in the day? About two glasses perhaps.
6113. Of spirits? Of spirits.
6114. Not more? Not more; necessary refreshment, that was all.
6115. Have you taken any at the station-house at Penrith? Yes, I think I have; I sent for some there when I was measuring; instead of leaving the work I sent for some lunch and some beer, in order to save time.
6116. Could you inform the Committee how much you have taken in a day there? No, I could not.
6117. Did you meet with an accident up there? I did; I was thrown out of a buggy.
6118. Who was with you? Donald Beatson.
6119. Was there anybody else? No.
6120. No person else but Donald Beatson? Yes, I think Jamieson, the contractor, was there; I had forgotten him.
6121. Had you anything to drink that day? Yes, we had some lunch at Wascoe's.
6122. Were you, or was the person driving, the worse for drink? Certainly not.
6123. Where did the accident occur? Coming down to the station at Penrith, from Lapstone Hill; the horse ran away.
6124. Did it occur between the bottom of Lapstone Hill and the river? No, nearer to Wascoe's, on the top of the hill.
6125. Were you injured by the fall? Yes, very much; the wheel went over my leg. The rein broke, and we both tried to haul on one rein.
6126. Were you absent from your duties? No, I had finished my day's work and was waiting for the train to come down at night.
6127. You set out the foundation for the station at Penrith? I did.
6128. How long were you there setting it out? About half a day.
6129. It is also stated that you were charged before the Court with some offence in Penrith—is that true? Yes, it is true that I was charged with one.
6130. What was the nature of it—because we have had two or three versions of it? I can tell you the right one. I entered a tent on the line for a drink one very hot morning—it was very hot indeed, and I had walked all that distance from South Creek. Coming away, the woman said, "Are you not going to leave me something?" I was going to give her a shilling for a drink of water I had had; "No," she says, "I will not take it, you must leave a note"; I, of course, refused to do so; she then said, "You will hear of this;" I went away then, and certainly did hear of it. That is all I knew of it till I was summoned.
6131. To the Penrith Court? Yes.
6132. What charge was laid against you? Assault.
6133. With intent? With intent.
6134. Did it last any time—the trial? The whole day.
6135. Were there many persons present? Yes, a crowded Court.
6136. Were there any witnesses? Yes.
6137. And the result? It was dismissed.
6138. It is also stated that some similar affair—although it did not go so far as a charge before the Court—took place at South Creek? I never heard of it before, and those who state it state a falsehood.
6139. There was never anything between you and the landlord of a public-house, with reference to your conduct to a female? No, not at South Creek.
6140. Nor any other place? No. When the case was heard at Penrith, Mr. Riley, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Jamison, the late Member for the Nepean, were there, and they expressed their opinion that a more disreputable case was never brought before the Bench.
6141. I suppose that will appear on the depositions? I suppose so. Mr. Brooks was clerk.
6142. It is also stated—a charge is made—that you wasted a good deal of your time in the office, performing the "Scissors Grinder" and "Suffolk Punch," and characters from Shakespeare—is that true? No.
6143. That is not true? No. I may have made quotations from Shakespeare during the half-hour of luncheon-time, such as, "He who steals my purse, steals trash"; but not to the detriment detriment of the business or the Government time; in fact I did not know what "Suffolk Mr. G. Hall. Punch" meant until I made inquiry; I really did not know the meaning of it till I read it in the papers, and then I made inquiry; I was as ignorant as you were of "Suffolk Punch" 27 Jan., 1864. until I took the paper up.

6144. Did you draw the plans and supervise the construction of a building at Kingston, for Mr. Hinchcliffe? I did.

6145. What per centage did you receive for that? 5 per cent.

6146. Did you sue him for a balance at the District Court? I did.

6147. You were nonsuited? I was nonsuited for want of evidence.

6148. Is there not a rule in the service, that persons engaged in the Government departments are not to practice professionally? I believe there is.

6149. You knew this? I did not, nor was I gazetted at the time I drew the plans for Hinchcliffe's house; I was then only a temporary servant of the Government; Captain Martindale said he did not know whether I should be taken on the staff.

6150. You were merely temporarily employed when you drew these plans? At that time.

6151. Have you ever taken out quantities for any contractor? No, never, not here.

6152. Please to understand that my questions are confined to your public duties in the office—you have never taken out quantities for any contractor? Never.

6153. Have you given any contractor information as to the quantities of any work? No.

6154. Have you given any information to one contractor that you would not to another? Never; they have all had equally the same information.

6155. Did you ever send a letter to Mr. Parkinson with quantities in it? Never.

6156. Did you receive a cheque for £55 for the ironmongery for two station-houses at Singleton and Penrith? Yes, I did.

6157. Did you pay for that ironmongery? I paid the cheque to Mr. Iredale; it was a request from Mr. Jamieson that I would pay Iredale & Co., and I did so.

6158. What did the ironmongery come to? That I forget.

6159. Did it come to £55? Yes, with what Mr. Jamieson got himself it must have done.

6160. Did you hand a cheque for that amount to Iredale & Co.? I did.

6161. Did they return you anything? No. Mr. Iredale can be sent for.

6162. Then you never received any money, directly or indirectly, with reference to this ironmongery? No.

6163. You merely handed over the cheque to Mr. Iredale? That was all. In fact the Picton Station is not wound up yet, as far as I am concerned. You will find in my last certificate that there is credit given to the Government for the whole of the ironmongery until the final completion of the work—until the final certificate.

6164. Mr. Jamieson before the Committee stated that the ironmongery only came to £48 17s. 6d.? Then he had to find the difference.

6165. And he gave you the cheque for £55? That is true; he did.

6166. Before Mr. Whitton would settle up with him, he was compelled to go to Iredale & Co. and get the account for the ironmongery, and Mr. Whitton stopped £6 2s. 6d. because it only came to £48 17s. 6d., although he had already given you a cheque for £55, the amount which the specification was to be allowed for iron-work? I know nothing about that; Mr. Whitton had no right to stop anything of the kind, because the difference Jamieson had to find himself, and did find himself. Had there been any difference in the amount of the ironmongery, at my winding-up I should have shewn it, but I have never had the opportunity, and of course I could not.

6167. You merely handed over Mr. Jamieson's cheque to Mr. Iredale? That was all.

6168. And received nothing from Mr. Iredale, or from any other person, in return for it? No.

6169. Then Mr. Whitton had no right to stop this £6 2s. 6d.? Well, when I say no right, he would not have stopped it had he had the explanation I am now giving to you. Mr. Whitton knows well I had had no opportunity of winding up the account.

6170. The specification said there should be £55 worth of ironmongery, or that £55 should be allowed —? No, let me correct you there. You are alluding to two stations—Singleton and Picton. The Singleton Station was wound up, and the amount for ironmongery there was equal to the amount specified. The Picton Station has never been certified for by me, and I have had no opportunity of winding up the work. The ironmongery might not come to £25, and the difference was provided and paid for by Mr. Jamieson. But in my last certificate there is £25 credited to the Government, deducting the whole of the ironmongery as not being provided.

6171. Mr. Jamieson, however, had given you a cheque for the amount, which you handed over to Iredale & Co.? He had; he said he was going away to the north, and asked me if I would be kind enough to pay Iredale for the ironmongery; I said I would rather he would pay it himself.

6172. You knew very well that Mr. Jamieson had done all that his specification required him to do? Most decidedly.

6173. And if Mr. Whitton stopped £6 2s. 6d. on account of the ironmongery, that was an injustice to Mr. Jamieson? Mr. Whitton would not have done so had he had the explanation I am giving you. I cannot say it was an injustice of Mr. Whitton's; Mr. Whitton acted in ignorance.

6174. It was an injustice to Mr. Jamieson? Decidedly it was; Mr. Jamieson has paid the money twice over, because the ironmongery provided beyond what Mr. Iredale supplied fully came up to the amount.

6175. Then Mr. Jamieson paid for some of it himself? He found it from his own stores.

6176. Then Mr. Jamieson found a portion of this ironmongery three times over—first, the quantity he supplied from his own store; secondly, the amount paid to Iredale & Co.; and, thirdly,

- Mr. G. Hall. thirdly, the amount he had stopped from him by Mr. Whitton? Yes, the difference must have been paid twice over.
- 27 Jan., 1864. 6177. Three times—first, he supplies the quantity from his own store; secondly, he pays Iredale & Co.; and thirdly, Mr. Whitton stops it? Yes, that would make three times.
6178. By Mr. Dalgleish: Which Mr. Iredale is it? Robert Iredale.
6179. Opposite the Cathedral? Yes.
6180. By the Chairman: How often have you seen Mr. Moody in the long drawing-room? I really cannot say how often—several times. He had business with Mr. Trengrouse, senior, occasionally to bring in some papers; he has been in for that purpose—not without.
6181. He really had no other business in that branch only any business he may have had with Mr. Trengrouse? Not that I am aware of; I do not know anything at all about their business.
6182. Mr. Trengrouse latterly was out of that room? He was in the room adjoining the long-room.
6183. After that he was removed altogether to another room in the main building? For a short time.
6184. And did not come back again? Yes, he did.
6185. Was Mr. Trengrouse working in the long drawing-room when he was suspended? In the room adjoining the long drawing-room—that place in Phillip-street.
6186. I am speaking of the old building? At the time he was suspended he must have been at the new building.
6187. Was Mr. Trengrouse working in the main building for some months previous to these charges being made by Mr. Gardiner against you and others in the department? He was working in the room adjoining the main building.
6188. Not in the drawing-office? Not in the drawing-office itself.
6189. A room that was occupied previously by Mr. Cowlshaw? No, that was up-stairs in the main building.
6190. He was employed there—was he not? For a short time.
6191. Was he not at work in that room until the departments were removed? I think he was; I am sure I cannot tax my memory to tell you certainly.
6192. You have not seen Mr. Moody in the room unless he came for some business with Mr. Trengrouse? Really I am not aware that I have; I do not notice everyone that comes in and goes out of the room.
6193. Was Mr. Barton often in that department? He used to come in when he had any business there; I really cannot tell you how often.
6194. Was he there once a month? Decidedly oftener.
6195. Do you not know he is absent sometimes for three months at a stretch? Well, of course he could not come in when he was absent.
6196. Used he not at times to be absent for three months at a stretch? Yes.
6197. Could you give the Committee any idea how often he used to visit the long drawing-room when he was engaged in the office? I should say, as an average, once a week.
6198. How often used Mr. Mason visit the long-room? Perhaps twice or thrice a week, according to what work he had to direct.
6199. He was often absent from the department also? He was often absent for one or two days perhaps, measuring up work.
6200. Of course you know Mr. Micklethwait? Quite well.
6201. Did you ever see him the worse for drink in the department? No, I have never seen him the worse for it.
6202. Was he in the habit of taking more than you thought did him good? Not to my knowledge.
6203. In fact, you have never seen any excessive drinking in the office? Never, either by Mr. Micklethwait, myself, or any other man.
6204. And what drinking there was, was confined to luncheon-time? Nearly so. If it was very hot, at 11 o'clock Mr. Micklethwait and myself used to have a glass of brandy, if we had it; we never sent out for it then; that would be what I call taking it medicinally.
6205. Do you remember a quarrel between you and Mr. Deering? A few words; it hardly amounted to a quarrel.
6206. Did it come to blows? I pushed him.
6207. Did you slap him in the face? I might have slapped him in the face, for which I was very sorry afterwards; if a man were to call you no gentleman, perhaps you would do the same; it was nothing of importance.
6208. I see there is a complaint made about Mr. Graham, in reference to the allowance of £5 for ironmongery—will you explain that to the Committee? I will, exactly as it occurred. In the specification for Burwood Station £5 was included for ironmongery, to be selected by the Engineer-in-Chief or his agent. I selected the ironmongery; I took Mr. Graham to Mr. Robert Iredale, and I said, "Mr. Iredale, this is Mr. Graham, he will want a few locks and bolts, and things, for the station-house he is building for the Government." Young Mr. Robert Iredale called me on one side and said, "Is that the Graham of the Glebe?" I said, "I believe it is, but I really know nothing about the man, except that he has a contract under the Government." He said, "They would rather not trust him." "Well," I said, "Mr. Iredale, you know me; you will trust me, will you not?" He said, "Yes, you can have anything you like to order; but it must be booked in your name." I said, "Book it in my name, and I will see that you are paid." In the course of time, when the building was finished, I asked Mr. Graham repeatedly to go and pay that bill, and he said he would when he got his money. He said, "Do not deduct it from my money, because you know I have had a very bad contract; I will pay it as soon as you give me my money." I then certified certified for his account, and he went up-stairs, drew the cheque, and the next time I saw him in the street, he laughed at me and said I might pay it myself. Mr. Iredale afterwards sent the bill to the office to me, and I paid it to save annoyance. Mr. G. Hall.

27 Jan., 1864.

6209. Then Mr. Graham has never paid that bill? Mr. Graham has never paid a farthing of it; I paid it myself; and yet I am not only accused of doing more than my duty, but also of participating in some portion of that money, which I deny most distinctly.

6210. A Mr. Harris here says, that at Cabramatta Station he has seen you partake of drink which was sent for, and that whenever you went to the station, or when you were expected to go there, they always provided spirits? Not for me.

6211. And that it was kept in a tent opposite, where you used to go? One very hot day I went to the tent and took a glass of spirits—it was so exceedingly hot; and as in such cases I leave home at 9 o'clock and do not get back till 6, it is surely necessary to take some little refreshment. One day I did go there for a glass of spirits, and Harris has magnified that to a bottle, which is most absurd, and not only absurd, it is false and cruel.

6212. Had you any quarrel with Mr. Gardiner while he was in the office? We had a few words.

6213. Did you challenge him to fight? I did, and if he used the same provocation I would do the same again.

6214. Did you threaten to knock him down? I did. Mr. Gardiner said I was a low pot-house bully. If that was not enough to make any gentleman threaten to knock him down it was a pity. But no gentleman would ever use such language.

6215. Mr. Deering also told you you were no gentleman? He used some such words.

6216. It is in your evidence—did you scratch his lip on that occasion? I think not; in fact I am sure I did not.

6217. Did you see any blood at all? I did not.

6218. Then, if it has been stated to the Committee that there was blood on his lip or gums, it is untrue? I believe it is untrue; I never saw any.

6219. By Mr. Morris: Did Mr. Graham receive from the Government the whole amount of his contract for the Burwood Station, including the £5 which was to have been deducted for ironmongery? Decidedly.

6220. Who has paid this £5 to the Government? No one that I am aware of.

6221. Surely the Government ought to get it? They ought to get the difference between the value of the ironmongery and the amount stated in the specification.

6222. Surely you are liable for that? I do not see that. I ought to have deducted it from Mr. Graham's bill. I am blamed for exceeding my duty, and I will admit I did exceed my duty; but it was an act of kindness—of charity, I may almost say—because the man had lost a deal of money by the contract; he had taken a £600 contract for £400. He said he would pay for the ironmongery if I let him have the difference. I never promised him I would do it, and he did not know till he got the money that I would do so.

6223. By the Chairman: Mr. Graham did some extra work on this station? Yes.

6224. Was he paid for that? He was, to the utmost value.

6225. Was the extra work included in the last payment for that contract, or was it a separate payment? It was included in the last payment—the final certificate.

6226. That was the certificate in which you should have deducted the £5? Yes, or the difference; had Mr. Graham paid the bill I should have deducted the difference.

6227. By Mr. Dalgleish: If he had paid the bill, to whom would he have paid it? Mr. Iredale.

6228. If he had paid the £5, to whom would he have paid it? To Mr. Iredale, if the ironmongery had come to £5.

6229. Under any circumstances? He would not have paid it to any one; credit should have been given the Government for the difference between £5 and what the ironmongery came to; it should have been deducted from his money.

6230. By Mr. Morris: Then I understand you to adhere to your statement made before Mr. Whitton, and also before Mr. Arnold, that there has been no drinking to any excess whatever in the Railway Department? Not to my knowledge there has not.

6231. You yourself never were intoxicated, or drank to any great excess during office hours? Certainly not.

6232. What was the ground of your quarrel with Mr. Gardiner? He made an impertinent observation in the office; I made some reply, which brought forth from him that I was no gentleman, but a low pot-house bully; what was previous to that I thought was a joke, and should have passed it as such, but language of the latter description is anything but a joke, and I will not take it from any man.

6233. It has been stated here in evidence that, during something like twelve months, the only amount of work, in the shape of making plans of stations, that you and your assistant have done, would be about for three stations, and that that is really the whole amount of work you have given to the public? During the last twelve months?

6234. Not the last twelve months, but during twelve months? It must be quite the reverse of that.

6235. How many plans of stations have you made during twelve months? That I cannot tell you. I may observe that I have within the last fortnight sent in to Mr. Whitton a report of everything I have done since I have been in the service of the Government, including holidays and Sundays, and absence from illness or on leave. It contains everything the Committee could desire on that subject.

6236. How long might you have been preparing the plans for the Singleton Station? If my memory serves me rightly, about forty-six or forty-eight days. That report, I pledge my honor and word, is a correct and faithful report. If it is not before the Committee, I request it may be sent for.

6237.

Mr. G. Hall. 6237. It has been stated that a most unnecessarily long time was occupied in making the plans and specifications of the Singleton and Penrith station-houses—in fact, of all the station-houses? The drawings are there; the plans and specifications will speak for themselves. Those who make that assertion speak either from ignorance or wilfulness.

27 Jan., 1864.

6238. It is said you occupied weeks in doing what might have been easily done by a competent person in days? They could not; I deny it. I have been in the profession twenty years, and I think I should know.

6239. They say, for instance, that it cost a very large amount of money indeed, calculating your time and Mr. Mackay's time, in making out the plans of some small station on the Northern line — ? Yes, I know the one you allude to—Branxton.

6240. When the cost of putting up the building was only about double what it cost for making the plans? What was the amount it was said to have cost for making the plans?—£700 I am told out of doors—that is absurd. These are the facts of the case: An order was given by Mr. Arnold to Mr. Whitton, and by Mr. Whitton to me, to prepare plans for certain accommodation, naming the accommodation required. These plans were drawn, and an estimate made, but Mr. Arnold said it was too much money, and that he would not be justified in spending it for the object. I was then set to make plans of a cheaper kind: they also came to too much money; and then I had a definite order to make plans not to exceed a certain amount. I did so; and that was the third set of plans made for that one station.

6241. By the Chairman: Are these three sets in existence? They should be in the office. Three sets of plans and estimates were made before the work was adopted. Without any egotistical feeling on my part, I can safely say no man in the department has worked harder than I have done.

6242. By Mr. Morris: How long would it take you to take out the quantities of a station? Singleton Station took a week, and I worked very hard to do them in that time. If you send for one of my estimates, you will find everything is in detail, down to a hinge or a lock. It is a most responsible, intricate piece of work—taking out quantities for a building.

6243. In the evidence of Mr. Trengrouse, junr., I find the following questions and answers:—"Who does the most towards those drawings—Mr. Hall or Mr. Mackay?—Mr. Mackay does the principal part. What does Mr. Hall do?—Take out the quantities and write the specification. I presume the specifications are mere copies one of another?—Copies. A boy just out of school could copy one in a day?—There would be a little alteration about the size of the timbers. A schoolboy could write the quantity in a day?—Yes. With reference to taking out quantities—have you known Mr. Hall to be a week or ten days taking out quantities in a station?—I could not say the time; I have known him to be a long time. Was the time he was occupied in taking out quantities noticed throughout the office?—Yes. It is a very simple thing to take out quantities—could you not do it in a few hours?—Yes." What I want to know is, do you take so long a time in doing what, by this evidence, can easily be done in a few hours? Certainly not. Would it be at all likely? That boy is talking about what he does not understand at all. I will take out quantities with any man in Sydney, and as quickly as any man in Sydney. You have the dimensions to square—put it into bill shape, and money up—you have to go through the building from digging to roof. If you sent to the office for a bill of my quantities you will see how I did it.

6244. Do you not think a very unnecessary amount of trouble is expended on these drawings and specifications? No, I do not.

6245. Is there not a great deal more than is done by ordinary architects? That may be, but my endeavour has been to guard the Government against bills of extras—to have everything explicitly stated. One of my bills will bear me out.

6246. By the Chairman: Nevertheless there have been extras—at the Burwood Station, for instance? That is only when there are deviations from the plan, which are not included in the plan at all. For instance, at Burwood, the nature of the ground, when dug out, made it necessary to go two feet deeper than the drawings shewed. The drawing was made for the opposite side to where the building now stands. If the building had been put on that side, the foundation would have been found deep enough. I had a trial hole made on that side, but not on the opposite side where the building was eventually erected. There was a petition sent to the Minister, praying to have the station removed to the opposite side; hence the extra work in the foundation, which would not have been necessary had the building been erected on the site for which it was planned.

6247. By Mr. Morris: Do you know the reason you have been suspended? No.

6248. Has it never been stated to you by the Government? No. I always understood I never was intended to be suspended, and that Mr. Arnold made a mistake in writing my name in the minute. All I saw was a minute paper with three names written on it—mine the first.

6249. It has not been specifically stated to you why you have been suspended? No.

6250. Is it true, as stated by Mr. Graham in his evidence, that you were drunk on the platform of the Sydney Station? No, certainly not true.

6251. When he was speaking to you about the building at Penrith, about 7 o'clock in the evening? No, I do not remember any circumstance at all about speaking to him—not on the Sydney platform. He certainly never saw me drunk on the Sydney platform, nor did any other man.

6252. Is it true you assigned as a reason for retaining the balance of the £5, that you had been allowed no travelling expenses? I never did; I never retained anything.

6253. Mr. Graham says he was to have paid you the £5, but he refused to do so because you cheated him? It is not correct; there was no understanding about the £5, except that he was to receive the difference himself. The animus of Mr. Graham is quite apparent. Had Mr. Graham been allowed to do what he liked and work as he liked, there would have been no complaint from Mr. Graham. Mr. G. Hall.

was

27 Jan., 1864.

6254. Are you in the habit of drinking at the expense of contractors? No, never. I frequently pay for the contractors' lunch myself. What drinking there has been has been at lunch, and has almost invariably been out of my own pocket.

6255. Did you never drink in the tents or habitations of these men? No, only at Cabramatta—the one I have referred to, where it was too far for me to go to a public-house, and I used to send for refreshment.

6256. Who paid for this? I did, and sometimes Mr. Parkinson did—the party who was managing the work for the contractor; but I believe I almost invariably paid for it myself.

6257. You sent for it to an hotel? Yes, the nearest hotel.

6258. Did you keep an account at the hotel? No, I never kept an account at an hotel; I always sent the money.

6259. It has been stated that on one occasion you collected a sum of money, in the long drawing-room, to send for a bottle of brandy, and that when you had collected this—which you called “raising the wind”—you put the money in your pocket and sent an order for the brandy? It is not correct; the man that states that states an untruth.

6260. Do you remember collecting money in that way at all? I remember on one occasion collecting and sending the money; I sent the money enclosed in an envelope.

6261. In what shape was this money? In silver—half-a-crown, perhaps, or shillings.

6262. Then it would be rather bulky? No, not very; it was only 4s. 6d. worth.

6263. By whom did you send it? By the messenger boy, Fitzgerald.

6264. By Mr. Dalgleish: What time of the day was this? About 12 o'clock, previous to the lunch hour; that would be in lieu of us having the pint of beer each that we generally had.

6265. By Mr. Morris: Have you ever, on any occasion, taken small quantities of spirits to the office with you? I have taken a small flask of brandy to the office when the beer has been so bad that I could not drink it.

6266. Have you not found it necessary, or thought it necessary, to drink brandy and water in the office at other times than at lunch? Yes, at one time I was recommended by Dr. Hansard to do so; he said it was quite necessary.

6267. Have you done this openly? Oh dear! yes; there was no disguise about it.

6268. You have never attempted to disguise that you had brandy in these flasks? Certainly not. I was not in the habit of doing it; it was only after an illness I had had.

6269. Has it never come to your knowledge that Mr. Micklethwait is given to drinking to excess? Not from my own experience; I have heard it, but I did not prove it.

6270. Have you been much with Mr. Micklethwait? It is when he is in the office I am chiefly with him; but his occupation is more in the country, on the survey.

6271. By the Chairman: Were you allowed travelling expenses when you travelled from the office? Yes, when I stopped out a whole night, or two or three days, but not when I went to a place like Burwood, where I would go in the morning and come back at night.

6272. When you went to Penrith or Picton —? Yes, decidedly; that might take two or three days.

6273. You had travelling expenses when you went to Penrith? Yes.

6274. How much per day? £1 per day.

6275. Did you pay your own railway fares? Always.

6276. Had you not a free ticket? No, not when I was allowed travelling expenses. I had a free ticket when I went to Burwood, or when I could get back in the day.

6277. How were the journals you kept in the office made up—daily, or at the end of the month? If I was engaged on one set of drawings for a week at a time, I would make the journal up at the end of the week; but if I was engaged during the week on several different works, I would jot them down in my journal every day as I finished them.

6278. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you a distinct remembrance of the quarrel with Mr. Deering? No further than I have already stated. I know there were some words occurred in the office, but I did not take much notice of them.

6279. What was the occasion of the quarrel with Mr. Deering? Something about money between him and a gentleman named Braddock, who was in the office then, but it was no quarrel of mine.

6280. This Mr. Deering had obtained some law papers or taken some law process against Mr. Braddock? I think his brother had.

6281. What is Mr. Deering's brother? That I cannot tell you.

6282. Did you hear at that time what he was employed as? I did.

6283. Was he employed as bailiff at some of the Courts? No, I think it was in the Survey Office I understood.

6284. Was it Mr. Deering or his brother that was so employed? The brother I understood. I really cannot remember what the nature of the quarrel was; I know it was something that did not interfere with me.

6285. What occasion had you to take up this quarrel? I should not have done so, had not Mr. Deering made an observation about me during the quarrel with Mr. Braddock.

6286. That observation he made in consequence of your having repeated a conversation or some confidence he had reposed in you? No, I said, “This is not a place for you, gentlemen, to discuss your private quarrels, to the interruption of business; I beg you will be quiet or let it cease till 4 o'clock”; then some other observations took place; but it led to Mr. Deering's saying, “Hall is no gentleman”; I said, “If you say that again I will knock you down”; he said it again, and I immediately slapped his face.

- Mr. G. Hall. 6287. Who interfered to prevent the quarrel proceeding any further? Young Mackay. Gardiner tried to urge it on all he possibly could, saying "Go it, Hall!" and using other such expressions.
27 Jan., 1864.
6288. Did he endeavour to interfere in any other way? No, only by laughing. He did not interfere to prevent it.
6289. Mr. Deering is a much less man than you? Yes; hence my regret in having ever thought of slapping him.
6290. He is rather lame, is he not? I was not aware of it at the time; that increased my regret; I would not have lifted a finger against him had I been aware of it.
6291. How long had Mr. Deering been in the office then? I cannot tell you.
6292. Had he not been some months? Yes.
6293. Could he possibly have been lame during that time and you not have known it? Yes, decidedly, I did not know it.
6294. If Mr. Deering says you did not slap his face, he says that which is not true? I did slap his face as I have said.
6295. Could any person receive a slap in the face without knowing it? I should hardly think so.
6296. Did you ask Mr. Jamieson for this money, to pay the ironmongery account? No, I did not.
6297. Was the ironmongery account put down to Mr. Jamieson's name or yours? I believe it is in my name.
6298. Is not the ironmongery always put down in your name? I think you have named the only three occasions where the account has been in my name.
6299. Were the specifications always made out in the same way—with the same provisions with regard to the ironmongery? There was always an amount stated.
6300. In the same way as this? Yes.
6301. Was the ironmongery obtained in the name of the Commissioner previously? No, never, I think; I do not remember having ordered it in the name of the Commissioner.
6302. It was always put down in your own name? On these three occasions it was.
6303. On no other occasion? I cannot remember any.
6304. As this ironmongery was put down in your name, and as Mr. Jamieson had never received an account of it, how did you expect Mr. Jamieson to pay for it? Because the amount was included in the specification. It is always the contractor's duty to pay for the ironmongery.
6305. Had he to pay these accounts before he could be settled with? He had not; it was his own request; he said he would draw the cheque for the two accounts, as he was going away to the north and would not be back for some time.
6306. You did not ask him? No.
6307. If he has said you asked him to pay these accounts, he has said that which is untrue? He has.
6308. Were your accounts with Mr. Jamieson with himself or with his partner? With himself.
6309. His partner was not present on this occasion? No.
6310. How does it come to pass that this account was given to Mr. Jamieson at all, seeing that the ironmongery was not obtained in his name? I do not know how it comes.
6311. How was it necessary you should take Mr. Graham to the ironmonger's, to shew Mr. Graham to Mr. Iredale, when you were in the habit of having the ironmongery accounts in your own name? I was not in the habit of it; the habit was to have it booked in the contractor's name.
6312. The account for the ironmongery at Singleton was previous to both the others? Yes.
6313. On that occasion did you take Mr. Jamieson to Mr. Iredale? Yes, I took him to Mr. Iredale's, I believe.
6314. Did you ask him to trust Mr. Jamieson? I cannot tell you; I cannot remember that I did.
6315. What necessity was there to take Mr. Jamieson there? So that Mr. Jamieson might select the articles he wanted—shew what hands he wanted the locks to be on, for instance, right or left.
6316. Did you not know whether right or left hand locks were required? Yes, I might have known by looking at the plans.
6317. Then why take the contractor? I cannot tell you why, except that it is the custom to do so.
6318. According to the specification, had you or the contractor to find the ironmongery? The Commissioner.
6319. Was the Commissioner in fact you? I found it on behalf of the Commissioner.
6320. Then if you found the ironmongery, on behalf of the Commissioner, and you knew what was required, why was it necessary to take the contractor there at all? I do not know that I did require to take him there, but it arises from the custom, in order that he may see what the ironmongery is, and what he will have to fix.
6321. Does not the contractor know what he will have to fix from his specification and drawings? No, the ironmongery is not specified in detail; we do not particularize every lock or bolt. An abstract of the necessary quantity is made, with the probable value, as near as can be ascertained, and the total amount of that is included in the specification.
6322. You make out these amounts? Yes.
6323. How was it you came to be so far out in your amounts, that the ironmongery for a station that only cost £2 you valued at £5? There was not so much required as I thought there would have been.
6324. What do you mean by you thought there would have been—you knew precisely what would be required—two hinges for each door, one lock, and so on—have you so bad a judgment ment that you form an estimate of more than double on so small a matter as that? It <sup>Mr. G. Hall.</sup> appears so in that instance. I can only explain it by the fact of my not having made an estimate at all, but that seeing there were so many doors and so many windows, I just put <sup>27 Jan., 1864.</sup> down £5 as sufficient to cover the cost.

6325. Did you say the Commissioner had to find this iron-work? Yes.

6326. Then what necessity was there to take Mr. Graham to Iredale & Co's. at all? Only to introduce him, and tell them Mr. Graham wanted so much ironmongery.

6327. Was it Mr. Graham, or the Commissioner, that wanted the ironmongery? Well, of course, the Commissioner wanted the ironmongery in the building.

6328. Then what necessity was there for you to ask Mr. Iredale to trust Mr. Graham? I never did ask him.

6329. Was it Mr. Graham or the Commissioner that wanted it? The Commissioner.

6330. Then what necessity was there to ask for Mr. Graham to be trusted at all? He was not asked to be trusted by me.

6331. What necessity was there for Mr. Graham going there at all, or what necessity was there for Mr. Graham asking credit, seeing that the Commissioner had to find this iron-work? Not any necessity; I say it arises from custom that the contractor always goes.

6332. In this case the Commissioner was bound to find the ironmongery, and the Government had money in hand belonging to Mr. Graham up to the last moment? Yes.

6333. To what amount? I do not know.

6334. Far beyond the value of the ironmongery? Yes.

6335. What necessity was there, then, for you to ask Mr. Graham to settle this account, when you had this money of his in hand? Not any.

6336. What necessity existed for your asking Mr. Jamieson to pay you his ironmongery account, or to pay the Government, when the Government had in hand far beyond the value of it in money, belonging to Mr. Jamieson? I did not ask Mr. Jamieson to pay his ironmongery account.

6337. What made you receive payment of the ironmongery account from Mr. Jamieson before the settlement of his accounts with the Government? From his own wish and desire—his own spontaneous request, not mine. He said, "As I am going away to the north I will pay them both." The Singleton Station had been put up and settled for; it was only the other one that was not settled for.

6338. Was the Singleton Station settled up and paid for, without deducting the amount of the ironmongery account? There was no necessity to deduct the amount.

6339. Where did this conversation between you and Mr. Jamieson occur? In the office; he saw the ironmongery account for the Singleton Station in the office.

6340. This cheque was not handed to you at Penrith? No.

6341. By the Chairman: If the Singleton Station was squared up for, what was the necessity for Mr. Jamieson giving you a cheque for £55? That included the Singleton and Picton Stations. Singleton was wound up and paid for, and Mr. Jamieson said he would give a cheque for the two.

6342. Where was the necessity for giving you a cheque for £55, to include the ironmongery for Singleton Station, if the Singleton Station had been paid for? The ironmongery had not been paid for—I mean the main building.

6343. Still he owed the money to Mr. Iredale? Yes; and I believe the very day he gave the cheque was the day he drew the balance for Singleton Station.

6344. If Mr. Jamieson has said you refused to give him a certificate till he paid the bill—? It is untrue. He said he would pay the bill if I would let him have a certificate.

6345. By Mr. Dalgleish: Why did you make out the specifications with respect to the ironmongery in that particular way? To reserve to ourselves the power of superintending the quality of the ironmongery.

6346. Why did you ask Mr. Jamieson to pay you the whole amount that the Government could claim from him for ironmongery, before you knew that amount was due? I never asked Mr. Jamieson to do so.

6347. Why did you accept from Mr. Jamieson the whole amount that was liable to be stopped from him by the Government, before the completion of his contract? Because he said he was going to the north, and he should not probably return for a month; and during that month it was supposed the Picton contract would be wound up and settled for.

6348. What was he going to do at the north? To build something up there—not Government work.

6349. Was the Singleton Station settled for at this time? That was the day it was settled for, I believe.

6350. Was there some dispute about the Singleton Station? No.

6351. Did you condemn Mr. Jamieson's materials when you first went up to Penrith? No; I may have rejected some pieces of timber.

6352. Did you make a wholesale condemnation of bricks there? No.

6353. Were the contractors very near giving up their contract in consequence of the wholesale rejection of materials? I was not aware of it.

6354. Did you condemn some stone they had excavated from a quarry? No, never.

6355. How long a time did it take you to set out the work? About half a day.

6356. How long were you at Penrith Station then? I think a day.

6357. You were not there three days? Not at the station; I was requested by Mr. Whitton to go and look for a stone quarry.

6358. Did you find one? Nothing satisfactory.

6359. Was one pointed out to you by Mr. Jamieson? Yes, one was.

6360. Did you condemn that? Yes.

- Mr. G. Hall. 6361. Are you aware that the present contractors for the viaduct on the Western line have obtained their stone from the same quarry, and that it is considered not to be inferior to 27 Jan., 1864. Pymont stone? No, I am not aware of it, nor do I think they have obtained their stone from that quarry—I presume you are speaking of Knapsack Gully?
6362. I am speaking of the quarry Mr. Jamieson pointed out to you—Mr. Jamieson informed the Committee that the viaduct is now being built from it? I am not aware of that fact, nor do I think it is the case.
6363. You did not cause a wholesale condemnation of bricks at Penrith? No.
6364. If Mr. Jamieson has said so, he has said that which was untrue? Yes.
6365. If his partner has said so, he also has said that which is untrue? He has. I had no opportunity to condemn Mr. Jamieson's bricks; there was a Clerk of Works there, and I only went up once a month.
6366. I am speaking of the time when you first went up, when the materials were on the ground? There were no materials on the ground then—not a stick—not a brick; when I staked the buildings out there was not a thing on the ground.
6367. Did you wait till the foundations were dug out? Not that day.
6368. Did you the next day? I went up the next week, when they said they were ready to begin.
6369. On what occasion was it you were up the country with Mr. Jamieson—was it the occasion of your having passed this building? No.
6370. It was not on the occasion of your having passed the building at Penrith? No.
6371. Or signed any of his papers? No. The occasion would be that I had more time before the train started than I knew what to do with.
6372. How is it you come to take jaunts to the country along with contractors? That was the only occasion.
6373. How came you to do so on that occasion? I had more time than I knew what to do with, and Donald Beatson offered to drive me to Lapstone Hill, which I had never seen till then. It was no premeditated affair.
6374. You did not remember that Mr. Jamieson was with you at first? Not at first I did not; but on reflection I remembered that he was asked by Donald to go, and he did go.
6375. Did Mr. Jamieson ever provide drink on the works at Penrith, in a hut where the plans and tools were kept, and where you had access? Yes, very likely.
6376. Have you drunk there? I may have done; I really cannot remember whether I had drink there or not; I would sooner say I had than I had not.
6377. Was anything said about drinking, before the Court, when you sued for the money for those houses at Kingston? Yes, a great deal was said.
6378. Charges of drunkenness were preferred against you there? Hinchcliffe's brother said he had seen me at his brother's house, drinking brandy and water. It was true Hinchcliffe used to ask me to his house, thinking, no doubt, to get some information for his brandy and water.
6379. Were you laid up a long time with this accident at Lapstone Hill? Not a long time.
6380. How long? I forget how long.
6381. Six weeks? Not so long as that.
6382. By the Chairman: I understood you to say you lost no time in consequence of that accident? No, I did not intend to say that.
6383. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you been drinking that day? At my lunch I had had some beer.
6384. There would be nothing remarkable in a person travelling having beer more than once? Well, I had been drinking, but not to any excess.
6385. Did you know this person that has been called Parkinson, in England? Yes, quite well; I knew him when he was an apprentice.
6386. Did you never write a letter to that person—never send even an envelope to him—one of the usual Government envelopes, printed "On Her Majesty's Service" and containing in that envelope the amount of the quantities of a building that was to be tendered for? No, never to Mr. Parkinson, or any other man, any such envelope.
6387. If any one has said he has seen such a letter —? That I sent, he states an untruth.
6388. You have never been in the habit of making any of these representations, with which you have been charged, in the office—"Suffolk Punch," the "Scissors Grinder," and those other matters which have been mentioned—"Storming the Malakoff," and so on? I did not know the title till I saw it in the papers; that was the first I heard of the name.
6389. Have you enacted the "Scissors Grinder"? I may have played on the table with a scale, that is all; and that has only been during the half-hour for lunch.
6390. You have read all the statements that have been made with regard to what you have occupied your time in—"Shylock," and all those things? I have read what appeared in the papers.
6391. And these things are all untrue? As far as I am concerned they are, unless that I have occasionally quoted from Shakespeare, such things as, "He who steals my purse steals trash, &c." If you make that an enactment of Shakespeare's Shylock, or any other play, I will plead guilty.
6392. Have you ever made any enactment of "Any Oder Man"? I think not; I may have done.
6393. Or the "Walking Boss"? I do not know the meaning of that.
6394. You have never used that expression with reference to Mr. Whitton? I have heard it used.
6395. Were you in the habit of calling Mr. Whitton the "Big Potato"? No, but I have heard another man call him the "Big Potato."

6396. You never have done so? No.
6397. If Mr. Fearnside has said so he is mistaken? If Mr. Fearnside has said so, he has been taking me for some other person there.
6398. Have you ever talked of "wiping John" or "sucking John," or such expressions as that? Certainly not.
6399. Did you ever take a bottle of brandy to the office? No, not a bottle of brandy; I have taken brandy in a flask.
6400. Have you ever sent for a bottle of brandy? Once.
6401. Have you ever seen any contractor place money on the table, to send for drink, when he has been in the office, taking out quantities? Yes, once.
6402. Who? Mr. Croshaw, on one occasion, threw down 2s. and asked the boy to bring him a bottle of beer.
6403. Was it 2s. or half-a-crown? 2s., I think; I am not sure. He asked the messenger to bring him a bottle of beer when he came in. He was there taking out quantities for himself.
6404. Did Mr. Croshaw drink the beer? No; he was called out before 1 o'clock, and did not return that day.
6405. Who drank it? Mr. Micklethwait and myself, the next day.
6406. I presume it was still Mr. Croshaw's beer? Yes.
6407. Had you any authority to drink the beer? No, we did it as a joke; and laughed at him when he came the next day.
6408. Have you known Mr. Gardiner take drink in the office? I have seen him drink once or twice, but not to any excess.
6409. What have you seen him drink? Half a glass of beer perhaps, or some spirits and water, weak—Mr. Gardiner was a most abstemious man.
6410. Are you quite sure you have seen him drink either beer or brandy? Yes, I have seen him drink beer or brandy occasionally; in fact, I think he has taken at my solicitation both beer and brandy.
6411. Did you ever see Mr. Telmon drink in the office? Nothing but water or some made wine.
6412. Was Mr. Gardiner quarrelsome? I thought him a quarrelsome man.
6413. Did you always consider him quarrelsome? No, not at first.
6414. Did you ever lose a bottle of brandy in the office—did any one take a bottle of brandy away from you? No, they took a portion of a bottle and put it in a drawer somewhere; that was only for a short time.
6415. You went in search of it? I asked for it, and it was pointed out to me.
6416. Did you ask Mr. Telmon? Yes, I think I did.
6417. Did he say he smelt something like a brandy-cask? He said he smelt something like brandy. It happened to be in his drawer that it was put, and it was he that pointed out the drawer to me.
6418. Was it something like brandy, or something like a brandy-cask, that he said he smelt? I do not know what he said.
6419. It caused a laugh amongst the people in the office? Yes, very likely.
6420. You have never seen Mr. Micklethwait drink to excess? No.
6421. Have you seen him under the influence of liquor in the office? I have seen him take more than might be good for him, but that has not been in the office.
6422. Have you seen him in the office, under the influence of liquor that he may have obtained out of it? No, never.
6423. Was Mr. Micklethwait up on the line when you were employed on the Penrith Station? He was up with me the first time.
6424. Did Mr. Micklethwait drink then? No more than was necessary.
6425. How much would you consider necessary? That would depend upon a man's capacity. Mr. Micklethwait would take a couple of glasses of beer to his lunch, and then have a glass of brandy and water after.
6426. I think you have said already, that you are perfectly sure you neither have had, nor expect to obtain from Mr. Iredale any portion of the £55 paid to him by cheque? I have already stated so.
6427. I wish you could make that matter a little more clear—how it comes that this payment was made at all? I cannot make it any clearer than I have endeavoured to do; I have given you an exact statement of the facts.
6428. There is no misunderstanding in the matter, that the Commissioner was bound by the specification to provide the ironmongery? It is so stated in the specification.
6429. What is the usual time to make these deductions? At the finishing of the work.
6430. At the final close? The final certificate.
6431. When Mr. Jamieson made this statement to you that he was going to the north, and therefore he would pay you this money, did it occur to you that Mr. Jamieson would have to be in town again to receive the balance due to him? No.
6432. You were aware he could not be settled with without coming to town again? Yes.
6433. Are you aware that Mr. Whitton has made some very severe reflections on Mr. Jamieson, for having paid you that money at all; he says he is as bad as you? I am not aware of it.
6434. And you cannot give the Committee any other information with regard to the letter of Mr. Graham about this ironmongery? I can give you no further information.
6435. Have you seen Mr. Graham's answer to your letter that you addressed to Mr. Arnold? No, I have not. I understand he obtained a certificate from Mr. Lassetter's.
6436. You had better read it (Letter read—See Appendix to Evidence given by John Rae, Esq.,

Mr. G. Hall.

27 Jan., 1864.

Mr. G. Hall. Esq., 13th October, 1863)? In reference to his inquiry, he never inquired at Mr. Iredale's at all, and it is perfectly untrue that he did not know which Iredale's it was, because I took him to Mr. Robert Iredale myself. In his letter he is referring to calling at Mr. Lassetter's but Mr. Lassetter does not know me. He has never called on Mr. Robert Iredale since.

27 Jan., 1864.

6437. What do you mean by saying in your letter—"such ironmongery, I may add, is invariably procured on my order, and is paid for by the contractor. In this instance "Messrs. Iredale & Co. refused to trust Mr. Graham, and charged the account to me";—who do you mean by Iredale & Co.? Robert Iredale & Co.

6438. Are Robert Iredale & Co. usually designated "Iredale & Co."? No, I believe not.

6439. Then if Mr. Graham inquired of the firm called "Iredale & Co.," he was justly entitled to do so from the terms of your letter? I cannot see that he was justly entitled to go to the shop where he knew he did not procure the ironmongery; he knew where it was ordered.

6440. If you ordered it, what need had Messrs. Iredale & Co. to trust Mr. Graham? Every need. In these cases I order the ironmongery, and it is booked to the contractors. The contractors always pay for the ironmongery.

6441. Have they to pay the ironmonger or the Commissioner? The ironmonger. The contractor sees the account, takes it in his hand, and pays the ironmonger.

6442. What has the contractor to do with the account at all—did you ever furnish the ironmongery accounts to Mr. Jamieson? For Singleton Station—decidedly.

6443. You furnished that account to him? I shewed it to him in the office. The Picton Station was not settled for, as I before stated.

6444. Did any conversation such as this occur between Mr. Jamieson and yourself—did you ask Mr. Jamieson to pay you the amount of money for the ironmongery? For Singleton—yes.

6445. For both? No, not for both; how could I, when Picton was not wound up and settled for?—Singleton was, and I asked him to settle that bill.

6446. Did you tell Mr. Jamieson the ironmongery accounts for the two stations were within a few shillings of the amount mentioned in the contract? Not the two; the Singleton one.

6447. You will understand I am asking about the two—we have no evidence of their being separate? They should not be blended.

6448. They were paid for in the same cheque, were they not? In Mr. Jamieson's cheque.

6449. Is that the cheque that was paid to their account (handing witness the cheque produced by Mr. Jamieson)? It looks like it.

6450. Did you pay it in? Yes.

6451. What did you pay it for? These two bills.

6452. Did they give you the bills? Yes.

6453. You say they gave you no change? No.

6454. Then why did you pay £55, instead of £48 17s. 6d.? I believe Mr. Jamieson had had some other ironmongery from the same establishment.

6455. Can you explain to the Committee how you came to pay a cheque for £55, instead of £48 odd, and get no money back, you having the accounts before you? I cannot explain that.

6456. Do you think a sober man would do it? I do not think I should. That is the cheque I paid to Iredale & Co.

6457. How did you come to pay them a cheque for £55, when you only owed them £48? I cannot tell you.

6458. The account was in your name, you say? Yes, it was made out in my name, I believe.

6459. Can you expect us to understand it if you cannot explain it yourself? The difference would have been accounted for on winding up the Picton Station.

6460. Can you expect us to understand it if you cannot explain it yourself? Certainly not.

6461. What has the winding up of the Picton Station to do with your paying the ironmonger upwards of £6 in excess of what he had bills against you for? I must confess, nothing.

6462. Then all that has been said about the settlement of the Picton Station has nothing whatever to do with it? It cannot have had, because the ironmongery for the Picton Station was paid before the contractor's accounts were made up, at Mr. Jamieson's own request; and whatever difference there would have been between what was required and what it came to, would have been deducted from the account.

6463. Then with regard to these three ironmongery accounts—Singleton, Burwood, and Penrith—you cannot explain to the Committee satisfactorily how, in one instance, the £5 account has been left unsettled by the contractor, and was not deducted when the Government settled his accounts? I have already explained how that happened.

6464. There ought to have been £5 deducted? There ought to have been.

6465. And with regard to paying Iredale & Co., you cannot explain how it was that you paid them £6 odd more than they had accounts against you for? I could not have done it; they must have had accounts to that amount; they must have had accounts against me to that amount.

6466. You are perfectly sure of that? Yes, I think so.

6467. Then we will have to look for our information to them? Yes. There must have been accounts due to them to the amount of £55, or I should not have given them that cheque, on Government account.

6468. By Mr. Morris: Not on account of the work for which Mr. Jamieson contracted? No.

6469. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you any other account in your own name at Iredale's? No, not for the Government.

6470. Had you a private account? Yes.

6471.

6471. To what amount? A few pounds.
6472. So that your private account may have been blended with this public one? It may have been. Mr. G. Hall.
27 Jan., 1864.
6473. And the balance of this cheque may have been carried to your private credit with Iredale & Co.? Possibly so.
6474. That would have been the same as if you had received the money from Iredale & Co.? If it has occurred so, it would.
6475. By the Chairman: If the Clerk of Works at Penrith, or any other station, had condemned materials, it was his duty to report to you? No; to Mr. Whitton, the Engineer-in-Chief.
6476. I thought the Clerk of Works was under you? No, he is appointed by the Engineer-in-Chief.
6477. Did he, at South Creek Station, draw your attention to any bricks intended to be used at Penrith Station? The Clerk of Works did to one cart-load that was passing.
6478. I am speaking of the contractor—did he, at South Creek Station, draw your attention to any bricks which they were about to use in the construction of the Penrith Station? No.
6479. Did anybody else? The Clerk of Works drew my attention to one cart-load that was passing out on the road.
6480. Did you make any remark? Yes, I told Mr. Robertson not to allow such bricks to be used.
6481. Have you at any time, in the drawing-room, collected subscriptions for the purpose of sending out for drink? Only on one occasion, which I have already mentioned. I did not collect subscriptions—three or four of us joined.
6482. Did you send the money, or an order? I sent the money enclosed in an envelope.
6483. By Mr. Morris: You were not in the habit of doing it monthly—at the end of every month? No, certainly not.
6484. If Mr. Trengrouse, junior, states it to have been your habit, he is not correct? He states what is not true.
6485. Has it come to your knowledge that Mr. Barton is given to drinking to excess? I should say decidedly not; Mr. Barton would take about a bottle of sherry a week to his lunch, as an average.
6486. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you ever lunch with Mr. Barton? Yes, frequently.
6487. Where? In the office.
6488. In the long-room? No.
6489. Where? In the small room adjoining.
6490. Was Mr. Barton in the habit of lunching there? Yes, at that time.
6491. What time? Two or three years ago.
6492. Had Mr. Barton a room of his own then? Not then—he has now.
6493. Had not Mr. Drewett and he a room to themselves? Sometimes he would work in Mr. Drewett's room, sometimes in the long-room, according to the space he required for the plans he was at work upon. The table in Mr. Drewett's room was only a small one.
6494. Did you ever condemn any bricks burnt at Penrith? No, I only condemned that cart-load I met on the road when I was walking with the Clerk of Works from Penrith to South Creek.
6495. Did you know that bricks burnt at Penrith were used? No, I did not know that even.
6496. By Mr. Morris: Mr. Trengrouse, junior, says, in answer to question 939:—"On one occasion I had a lot of private papers in my drawers—I had to leave my room for a few minutes to go to my father, when Mr. Hall took off his boots, went to my drawers, which he ransacked, and read my private letters."—Is that true? No, it is abominable—a most iniquitous falsehood.
6497. What can be the grounds of this statement? I have no grounds to suppose but malice, envy, and hatred. I never took off my boots in the office on any occasion.
6498. You never read any of his private letters? No; if Mr. Trengrouse, junior, states so, he states what is not correct.
6499. Did Mr. Whitton ever expostulate with you on your conduct in reference to Mr. Trengrouse, junior? No, never; he never had occasion.
6500. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you remember the occasion of Mr. Gardiner's making a minute which was sent up to Mr. Whitton? Yes, I think I do.
6501. Was the statement true? I do not know what the statement was now.
6502. Complaining of your conduct? Yes, I know it was complaining of my conduct, myself and Mr. Micklethwait.
6503. Do you remember whether it was true or not? Decidedly untrue; there was no cause for Mr. Gardiner to complain of our conduct.
6504. Did Mr. Whitton cause any inquiry to be made otherwise than from yourselves? I do not know; I know we had the minute and had to report upon it.
6505. You say it was decidedly untrue? There was no necessity for Mr. Gardiner to make any complaint.
6506. You said the minute was untrue? No, I did not say the minute was untrue. If Mr. Gardiner stated in that minute that he was in the habit of seeing me make myself drunk, it is decidedly untrue; that, I believe, if my memory serves me right, was the purport of that minute.
6507. Do you remember Mr. Micklethwait having cold water poured on his head? Frequently, and so have I; I have frequently seen him bathe his head in the hot weather, and very necessary too.
6508. Have you seen him have other people to do it? No, he did not get other people to do it.
- 6509.

- Mr. G. Hall. 6509. I ask you, have you seen him have water poured over his head? No, I have not seen him have water poured over his head; I have seen him frequently bathe his own head.
- 27 Jan., 1864. 6510. In cold water? In cold water.
6511. Did you ever see him the better or the worse for liquor on these occasions? No, it has been from excitement, from the heat of the weather.
6512. Not from excitement from spirituous liquors? Not from excitement from spirituous liquors; excitement from his work, and the heat of the room.
6513. Is his work exciting? I should say so, decidedly.
6514. What is he? A surveyor and engineer; he had to be out in the field, and then bring his work in, and plot it, which I think very exciting work.
6515. By Mr. Morris: Have you ever read the evidence given by Mr. Gardiner on the inquiry into the conduct of the officers of the Railway Department? No, I have never seen it; all I know of it is what I have heard out of doors.
6516. When were you suspended? On the 26th August, I think it was.
6517. Then you have never had a copy of the evidence of Mr. Gardiner, which was given after you were suspended? No; all I know about Martin Gardiner's evidence is what I have heard out of doors.
6518. Did you ever write a reply to Mr. Graham's letter? No, I did not know he had written a letter till I saw it in the Empire.
6519. I observe that Mr. Rae states, "I have read Mr. Graham's letter, and Mr. Hall's reply"? That was a very unfaithful statement of Mr. Rae's. Mr. Graham was sent for unknown to me; I had not an opportunity of facing Mr. Graham; I did not know anything about Mr. Graham being near the place till I was sent for some time afterwards.
6520. That letter of Mr. Graham's, of 24th September, was never sent to you? No.
6521. By Mr. Dalgleish: How did you peruse Mr. Graham's statement? By a note that I received.
6522. Did you give a written reply or a verbal reply to that? That is my written reply (referring to a letter, dated 21 September, 1863, signed George Hall. See p. 12 of Appendix to Evidence given by John Rae, Esq., 13 October, 1863.)
6523. By Mr. Morris: Did you give a reply to Mr. Graham's letter? No, I did not know he had written that letter. The only thing I saw was Mr. Graham's evidence, handed to me in the office; then Mr. Rae wrote me that short note, and I attended at the office. I consider it was most unsatisfactory to have one man there and not the other.
6524. By Mr. Dalgleish: Your letter in reply to this from Mr. Rae, asking if you wish to be examined, does not contain such a wish? I had expressed the wish personally to Mr. Rae, previously to that letter.
6525. How is it that you have written this letter without any reference to £2 being about the amount of money due for the ironmongery? Because I did not consider it necessary.
6526. Is it not perfectly evident that any one reading this letter would take it for granted that the £5 mentioned by you in the early part of it was the amount due, and that you had paid this £5? No one would draw that inference.
6527. Could they draw any other? I think they might.

THURSDAY, 28 JANUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. GARRETT,
MR. MORRIS.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Alexander Graham called in and examined:—

- Mr. A. Graham. 6528. By the Chairman: You live at the Glebe? Yes.
6529. You have been a contractor under the Works Department? Yes.
- 28 Jan., 1864. 6530. You were a contractor for a station-house? Yes.
6531. Where? Burwood.
6532. You know Mr. Hall? I do.
6533. Did he supervise the construction of that building? He did.
6534. Was there not a provision in the specification for that station-house that £5 were to be added by the contractor for ironmongery? No, that £5 should be deducted at the completion of the contract.
6535. Did you supply that iron-work yourself? I supplied the greater portion of it.
6536. Where from? I supplied most of it from Crawford's on Brickfield Hill, and from other shops; I bought it as I wanted it.
6537. Did you give Mr. Hall any amount for the iron-work? No, I did not.
6538. Did you accompany Mr. Hall to Iredale & Co.'s? I never did.
6539. Did you accompany Mr. Hall to Robert Iredale & Co.'s? No.
6540. Did you accompany Mr. Hall to any ironmonger's shop to select or speak of any iron-work whatever? None whatever.
6541. If Mr. Hall has stated that you accompanied him to Iredale & Co.'s, and that he introduced you as Mr. Graham, a Government contractor, who required ironmongery for a station-house, and that they did not know you and refused to trust you—is that true? No, it is not true.

6542. Did any ironmongery come from Iredale & Co.'s to the station? Yes.
6543. What was it? I have a list of the articles here that came, but from which Iredale & Co. they came I do not know. The prices I have put down at what I reckon to be the value of them. (List handed in. Vide Appendix.)
6544. I see in the first instance there are two Carpenter's 6-inch locks, 9s.; were they Carpenter's, or imitation Carpenter's? Real Carpenter's locks.
6545. You value them at 4s. 6d. each? Yes.
6546. Imitation Carpenter's locks would cost about 3s. each—that is the full value? I think that is above the full value.
6547. Four pairs of butt hinges—were these iron? Yes.
6548. And you have allowed 8d. per pair? Yes.
6549. And of course that is the value of first class iron butts? Yes, that is the value, the very highest value.
6550. Five sash fastenings—what description of fastenings were they? They were good—the usual spring fastenings.
6551. And you have allowed 1s. each for them? Yes.
6552. One door-spring—what description of spring was that? One of those long door-springs—
6553. A long iron one with a little wheel at the end of it? Yes.
6554. That you have allowed 2s. 6d. for? Yes, that is what I gave for one myself, of the same kind.
6555. Two latches, 3s.—what description were they? Bed-room latches, worth about 1s. 6d. each.
6556. Had they a spring underneath? I do not think they had.
6557. A little brass handle ———? Yes ———
6558. With a spring above the latch to keep it in its place? No, I do not think they had those.
6559. These must have been very common indeed then? No, I do not think they were common ones; I think they were just the ordinary bed-room locks, because inside you could fasten them with a spring.
6560. Two brass handles, 3s. ———? They were handles and latches for a water-closet door, to fasten inside.
6561. You consider that the full value? Yes.
6562. The value of the whole of the ironmongery, then, supplied to the station in this way, amounted to £1 5s. 2d.? Yes.
6563. Did Mr. Hall ever ask you to pay for these? No, not that amount; he asked me to pay him £5.
6564. Are you sure he asked you to pay £5 for the ironmongery supplied from Iredale & Co.? Yes, quite sure.
6565. And this was all you received? Yes.
6566. There was other ironmongery used besides this? Yes, a great deal more.
6567. Where was that supplied from? A portion of it from Crawford's, Brickfield Hill, a portion from Macintosh's, and a portion from May's, opposite the Railway Station.
6568. You got it just where it suited you? Yes.
6569. Could you give the Committee any idea as to the cost of that extra iron-work? The cost I laid out was £6 2s. 6d.
6570. Besides this £1 5s. 2d.? Yes.
6571. Then the ironmongery for the Burwood Station would cost £7 7s. 8d.? Yes; but then in that is included nails and everything that would be supplied by an ironmonger.
6572. Do you consider that nails are included in the clause of the specification having reference to ironmongery? No, I think not.
6573. Taking the nails from the price you paid, what do you think would be the cost of the ironmongery you supplied yourself, independent of this £1 5s. 2d.? Well, I could not exactly say. The nails would be a very good item in it.
6574. I want you to confine yourself to what you considered ironmongery when you were tendering? What I consider ironmongery is what I state—nails, and everything that would be supplied by an ironmonger. In making out my estimates I put down a lump sum for that. In this case I estimated it at £8.
6575. The specification only required £5? They were to supply £5 worth, and to deduct £5 for it.
6576. Is it not that the Commissioner reserves to himself the right of providing the ironmongery? Just so, to the extent of £5, and deducting that from the contract money.
6577. Then you consider that if you shewed him an account which included nails in your ironmonger's bill, he could not deduct anything from the amount of your tender, if it exceeded £5? I consider he ought to have deducted what was actually provided by the Government.
6578. Did he so deduct it? No, he deducted nothing at all.
6579. Are you sure that Mr. Hall asked you to give him a cheque for £5 to pay for this £1 5s. 2d. worth? Quite sure.
6580. There is no mistake about it? No mistake whatever.
6581. What did you tell him? I said, "All right; we will not fall out about that; get me my certificate as soon as you can." I never said positively I would give it him, because I never intended to give it him.
6582. But you adopted this course because you thought he would give you some trouble before he would give you a certificate? Yes, I was very much afraid of it.
6583. In Mr. Hall's position, if he had refused you a certificate, could he not have put you to a great deal of trouble? Certainly.

Mr. A. Graham.

28 Jan., 1864.

6584.

- Mr. A. Graham.
28 Jan., 1864.
6584. Was it not in his power to condemn your work altogether? Certainly, his power was absolute in that case.
6585. Is it not a fact that a person who has the supervision of works, particularly architectural works, can make a difference of from 20 to 25 per cent. in the manner in which the work is carried out? Yes, certainly he can.
6586. On the one hand, if he allows a contractor to scamp his work, he may save from 10 to 12 per cent.; and on the other, if he exacts that which he may have the power by law to exact, he can make it cost 10 per cent. more? Yes, decidedly he can.
6587. So that the manner in which an architect supervises his work may make a difference of fully 25 per cent. to the contractor? No doubt.
6588. Contractors being placed in that position, are very anxious to get their certificates the best way they can? I was not anxious to get mine the best way I could, but I was anxious to get it.
6589. That was the reason you made this answer to Mr. Hall—"Give me my certificate as soon as you can, and we will not fall out about it"? Yes.
6590. Did he give you a certificate in consequence? Not to me; he put it through the office.
6591. In the usual way? In the usual way, and with the usual delay.
6592. You received your money? Yes.
6593. Were there any extras? Yes; I did about £50 worth of extra work, and he did not pay me up within £30 of my extra work.
6594. Did he condemn it? No, he did not measure it sufficiently.
6595. What was the extra work? It consisted mostly of brick-work.
6596. That would be a very simple matter to measure? Yes; it was cube measurement—by the cube yard, and the excavation the same.
6597. Then they do not measure railway work by the rod? No, not the usual colonial measurement, but by the cube yard. I gave in a schedule price, so much per cube yard, and I should have been paid at that rate for the extra work. The extra work arose from the building being put down three or four feet lower than was intended, in order to get a good foundation. It caused more excavation and more brick-work; and he did not measure it up within the amount I have named. I also substituted box frames for common hardwood frames, at his request.
6598. Did he make you no allowance for the box frames? He made me no allowance; he said I had a right to do them.
6599. Did the specification say you were to do them? No.
6600. Was there any other alteration? No, no other material alteration.
6601. Were there jumps in the foundation? No, the foundation was level all round.
6602. Then by sinking a hole anywhere he could have got the proper depth? Yes, one hole would have given the proper depth.
6603. Or he might have sunk a dozen? Yes.
6604. Was it before or after this measuring up took place, that he asked you to give him a cheque for the £5 to pay for the ironmongery? Just at the time.
6605. Had he made up and given you your quantities before he asked you for this £5? No, he had not.
6606. Then after you promised to give him the £5, he did not make any alteration in the measurement of the work? I never asked him, not till after I got my money; I did not object to it, because I was not quite aware of it.
6607. Do you not think you had a right to make objection before you received your money? No, I was not quite aware of it; I did not measure the work myself at first.
6608. Did you afterwards? Afterwards I did.
6609. When you accepted the amount you gave a receipt in full? Yes, with the understanding that it was not a final receipt. When I saw what the amount was, I knew he had not measured my work properly, and I said to Mr. Moody, "Is this a final receipt?"; he said, "No, it is not." "Very well, then," I said, "I will sign it." He said I had more money coming to me.
6610. Did you sue the Government? Yes.
6611. Were you successful? No, I was nonsuited.
6612. For what reason? For the reason that I had signed this final receipt. The Judge said that had it not been for signing this receipt, he would have allowed me for some of the extras. This is a report of the case. (Extract from newspaper handed in. Vide Appendix.) It is a pretty correct report, except in reference to the witnesses disagreeing; it was the witnesses for the defence that disagreed, not my witnesses. Mr. Moody came up and denied he had ever said anything of the kind; and the Judge considered it a final certificate and receipt, and nonsuited me.
6613. Are you sure of the words made use of by Mr. Moody, when you asked him if it was a final receipt, that it was not a final receipt, and that there was more money coming to you? I am quite sure; I had my brother there, and took him as a witness.
6614. Did you produce him as a witness at the trial? I did; but Mr. Moody came in last, and the Judge said he considered it a final receipt, and therefore he could not allow me anything.
6615. Mr. Moody contradicted your statement? Yes, he denied it in toto.
6616. Then when you accepted the money, and when you promised Mr. Hall the £5, you were not aware that he was not paying you for the whole of the extras you had done? No, I was not aware; I left it entirely to himself; I took no part in the measurement.
6617. Have you ever seen Mr. Hall drinking at the station-house? Yes, I have. But perhaps I might just tell you how this talk about the £5 arose.

6618. If I have omitted to ask you anything, the Committee of course are very anxious for any correct information you can give us on this point, and if you make any statement we should thank you for it? The £5 arose in this way. It was the last day he was out there measuring up. He went over the building and took his items, but he did not make them up there; he made up his calculations in the office. After he had done measuring he said, "What about this £5 for ironmongery?—I shall have to deduct this from your contract;" said I, "You have not found £5 worth;" said he, "Never mind, it has to be deducted;" I said, "Had you not better give me the exact amount and I will pay it? deduct the exact amount; it is not fair to deduct £5 if you have only found £1 worth." "Well," he said, "I must deduct it." "Very well," I said, "Just do as you like about it." So after a while he said again, "What about this ironmongery?—you seem to be very dull of understanding." "What do you mean by that?" said I. "Well," he said, "Don't you know I have been at some expense coming out here?—don't you know I am not allowed travelling expenses?—it has cost me £3 10s. coming out here;" I said, "Is that what you mean?—if that is it, we will not fall out about it." "Well then," says he, "You give me a cheque for £5, and after that I will send a certificate up." We had some further conversation about his getting no travelling expenses; and on a Saturday morning I went to the office; he shewed me a memorandum of a certificate; I looked at it and was dissatisfied with it, but I said nothing, and I did not give him the cheque. I left the office, and did not see him any more till I got my money. After that I told him I would not give him the £5; he said he would get it; I said, "You may get it if you can; I am going to try to get £30 more against the Commissioner"; then he said he would urge the Government as much against me as he could. That was all I heard of the matter until he shewed a bill for £4 19s. to my brother for ironmongery.

6619. From Iredale's? I think it was from Iredale's he said. He told him that was what I owed. My brother said, "You know where he lives—you had better speak to him about it. Says Mr. Hall, "I shewed it to the Chief, and he said I ought to sue him"; my brother said, "That is just what you ought do."

6620. He did not sue you? He did not. It was that very thing that made me bring it out—to see whether he had laid out that amount in ironmongery—just a shilling less than ought to have been deducted? I knew very well he did not.

6621. Have you ever seen him drinking during the time he was inspecting your work? Yes.

6622. Where? On the works.

6623. During the usual working hours? Yes.

6624. At other times than luncheon-time? Yes, many times in the course of the day.

6625. Have you seen him the worse for drink? Yes, I have.

6626. So that he was not capable of performing his duties? I could not say I ever saw him incapable of performing his duties.

6627. Where have you seen him the worse for drink? I have seen him so at the Railway Station when he came from Penrith; then he was drunk.

6628. Had he been inspecting works then, do you know? He had been at Penrith—that is all I know. He had been there two or three days, because I had been waiting for him to get an advance of money.

6629. What time was this? When the last train came in—about 7 o'clock in the evening.

6630. Have you ever seen him drinking on the works at Burwood? I have seen him drinking in the public-house close by.

6631. Have you seen him visit that house often? Yes, very often. He stopped there about a fortnight when the works first commenced.

6632. Who laid out the foundation for you? He laid it out.

6633. How long did it take him? I suppose a couple of hours.

6634. What was he doing there for a fortnight? He said he was watching the works—watching the foundation; a great deal of it was underground.

6635. It was necessary some person should be there? Well, I should think not.

6636. Would an architect in private practice—Mr. Hume for instance—be there in a similar case? No, I should think not—not unless he got some special payment for it.

6637. There is no question that, if he was dissatisfied with the manner in which the foundation was done, by digging a hole a couple of feet long, he could have ascertained whether it was properly done—whether proper mortar and materials were used—There was no necessity for him to be there? I should think not.

6638. Have you ever seen an architect attend to a building in that way? Never in my life.

6639. How much do you suppose you have known him to drink in a day, or how many visits do you suppose you have seen him make to this public-house? A great number; he was there almost continually, either there or at the building.

6640. He had a right to be at the building? Between the building and the public-house his time was taken up.

6641. When you say he made a great number of visits, how many do you mean? I could not estimate.

6642. Did he go there ten times a day? I dare say some days he has; merely backwards and forwards; he was acquainted with the publican there.

6643. Of course you saw the plans and specifications? Yes.

6644. What do you think the plans and specifications, and the supervision of that work, cost the Government? I should think they could not have cost the Government under 40 per cent.

6645. 40 per cent. upon the cost of the building? Yes, if you take into consideration the cost of Mr. Hall's time, and the cost of the plans.

Mr. A.
Graham:
28 Jan., 1864.

- Mr. A. Graham.
28 Jan., 1864.
6646. The cost of private architects is 5 per cent.? Yes.
6647. They draw the plans, supervise the construction, give certificates as the work proceeds, and also the final certificate, and their charge is 5 per cent.? Yes.
6648. And you think the plans and supervision of the Burwood Station cost 40 per cent.? Yes, I think so, from my observation.
6649. By Mr. Garrett: What was the total cost of the building? £500 18s. was the amount I received. That (handing in a paper—vide Appendix) was how I received my payments; and the last one being the largest amount, I was compelled to take it and lose £30.
6650. You were obliged to take it because you had £246 7s. 11d. coming to you, according to Mr. Hall's certificate? Yes.
6651. Did he condemn any of your work? No.
6652. Where do you take out the quantities when you go to tender? In the long drawing-room.
6653. Have you often been in that room? Yes, I have.
6654. Within what period? Well, I was in it the year before last, mostly from July to December.
6655. 1862? Yes.
6656. Did you ever see any drinking going on in the department? No, I cannot say I did.
6657. Do you remember seeing Mr. Hall there during that time? Yes, I have seen him there.
6658. All the contractors go there to take out quantities? Yes, I believe so.
6659. Did any of the draughtsmen ever give you the quantities? No, never.
6660. Were you the contractor for the Penrith Station? I was, for the Penrith goods warehouse.
6661. Was there not a mistake made in the drawings? Yes, there was.
6662. You ordered the timber according to the drawings or figures—which? According to the drawings; there were no distinct figures in this part.
6663. And when the timber was delivered, it was found to be too short? Yes.
6664. The engines and goods vans could not go in underneath? Just so; the doors would have been too low.
6665. To rectify the mistake, they had to raise the stone foundation? It was a concrete foundation.
6666. You had to raise it? No, the timber was got longer.
6667. The timber first brought was condemned? Yes.
6668. Whose loss was that? I stopped the job in consequence.
6669. Who finished it? My sureties finished it.
6670. You declined to go on with it in consequence of this blunder? Yes; my sureties preferred going on with it to going to law. I have an action now against the Government about it. I laid out £250, and I consider the mistake was on their side.
6671. Was there a scale put down on the plan? Yes.
6672. And you ordered your timber of lengths according to the plans? Yes.
6673. By the scale? Yes.
6674. And when the timber was cut and on the ground, it was found to be too short? Yes.
6675. Did they want you to go to the expense of raising the foundation? Yes, that was what they wanted. They drew out an amended plan, which would have made an additional expense to me of £100, and they were not going to pay me for it; so I stopped the works.
6676. You were compelled to give up the contract in consequence? Yes, the contract was taken out of my hands when the time was up—three months.
6677. Were you to perform the whole of the work in three months? Yes.
6678. Was it the goods warehouse only that you had? Yes.
6679. What was the contract? £1,380. The second contract has been a year in completion; it is only just now finished, in fact.
6680. Referring back to Mr. Iredale, you are certain you never went with Mr. Hall to any ironmonger, with reference to any iron? Quite certain. It is a gross falsehood. In fact I do not know that I have ever been in that Iredale's shop at all, opposite the Old Burying Ground.
6681. When Mr. Hall was speaking to you in reference to travelling expenses, were you under the impression that he wanted this £5 for himself? Most decidedly—the balance of it; he stated plainly he did want it for himself.
6682. By Mr. Morris: Did Mr. Hall certify that ironmongery to the amount of £5 had been supplied in accordance with the contract? Not that I am aware of.
6683. Then how was it £5 was not deducted from you, if he did not so certify? That I cannot tell.
6684. By the Chairman: Mr. Hall gave you the usual certificate that you had performed your work according to the plans and specifications? They do not give them to the contractors; they put them into the office. He gave the usual certificate.
6685. By Mr. Morris: You were aware the £5 would not be deducted from you by the Government? Yes, after Mr. Hall told me.
6686. When you first promised to give Mr. Hall the £5, did you fully intend so to do? So far as that goes, I would have had no objection to give him the £5, and made no secret of it either.
6687. Did you intend to give it him? If he had done me justice I would have given it him.
6688. Is this statement you made before Mr. Arnold or Mr. Whitton correct:—"I led Mr. Hall Hall to suppose I would give him £5 at the completion of the work"? I do not think that is exactly correct. I led him no more than to believe I would consent.

Mr. A.
Graham.

6689. Did you not sign that statement? I signed that. I led him to believe I would by appearing to consent to his proposal.

28 Jan., 1864.

6690. If you had found his certificate satisfactory to you, you would have given him this money? I would, and made no secret of it either.

6691. Were you aware that Mr. Hall had not selected, on behalf of the Government, ironmongery to the amount of £5? Yes, I was aware.

6692. Consequently you were aware Mr. Hall would pocket the difference in case you paid the £5 to him? Yes, I was well aware of it, at least from what he said.

6693. Were you aware that Mr. Hall was committing a gross breach of duty, not to say fraud, upon the Government, in certifying that £5 had been expended on account of ironmongery, when only something less than £2 had been expended? But he never certified that.

6694. He must have certified that? No, it was not mentioned in the certificate in any shape.

6695. Practically it was, inasmuch as no deduction was to be made from your contract for it? It would have been no fraud upon the Government at all if I had given Mr. Hall £5, and he had paid Mr. Iredale the amount due for ironmongery; it would only have been so much out of my pocket and in his.

6696. By the Chairman: Simply because you had put the quantity in the building that you were compelled to put? Yes.

6697. By Mr. Morris: Nevertheless the Government had not selected this ironmongery beyond the amount of £2? The ironmongery was to be found, not selected.

6698. In this particular case was not the Government to find you the ironmongery? Yes.

6699. How much did they find you? They found £1 5s. 2d. worth in my estimation; I have never seen any account of it.

6700. Consequently the Government were defrauded out of the difference between £5 and £1 5s. 2d.? No, there was no defraud on the Government at all. Mr. Hall has been defrauded in this case—if he has paid this money he has been the loser.

6701. Is this evidence of yours before Mr. Arnold correct: "This £5 was intended by the specification to be deducted for iron-work supplied, but only a portion of the iron-work was found, and no deduction was made"? Yes, that is quite true.

6702. Consequently £5 ought to have been deducted? That would have been £5 they would have got the better of me.

6703. That would have been your own fault in not conducting the matter in a business-like way?

6704. By Mr. Dalgleish: If the Government had found the ironmongery, they would then have been entitled to have stopped £5 only, although the ironmongery might have cost £7 or £10? No; the real meaning is that they were to find ironmongery to the value of £5, and deduct £5, or deduct the real value of what they found.

6705. By Mr. Morris: They were to deduct £5 in any case? No.

6706. By the Chairman: Your specification went to compel you to place £5 worth of ironmongery—or pay £5 for the ironmongery—in the building? No, that is not the meaning. The meaning is that they were to have the privilege of purchasing to that amount; anything above that amount I was to purchase myself.

6707. Then if you purchased £5 worth of ironmongery, and Mr. Hall was satisfied with that ironmongery, of course that was fulfilling that clause of the specification? Just so.

6708. By Mr. Morris: Suppose the whole of the ironmongery in the building had really cost only £3, the Government nevertheless would have been entitled to deduct £5 from you? No, I cannot see that.

6709. The fact, with regard to this £5, is, I apprehend, simply this, that Mr. Hall expected a bribe, and that you promised to give him one—is not that the long and short of it? I do not think there was any bribe in it, because he had measured up my work and had made as much as he would make of it.

6710. Nevertheless you expected he had measured it in a way satisfactory to you? Certainly, I expected he had measured it up justly.

6711. Was Mr. Hall entitled to £5 for any work he had done for the public, or you, in a legitimate way? He might have been. It is very easy for an architect to put £5 into a contractor's pocket without putting it out of any other person's.

6712. How is it possible to put 10 or 20 per cent. into the pocket of a contractor without taking it out of some one else's pocket? I will tell you. A troublesome architect can put a contractor about very much in many ways. He need not give him particular directions; and then when a thing is up, he may tell him to pull it down again; whereas, by first giving proper directions and seeing it put up right, of course there is a saving of money to the contractor without loss to any one.

6713. As a matter of fact, was not the job completed when you promised to give Mr. Hall this £5? Yes.

6714. But you had not got your certificate? No.

6715. When you found the certificate was not satisfactory to you, you would not pay Mr. Hall? No, I would not give it him.

6716. Did you represent this matter to the Railway Department, or the Commissioner? No, I did not; nor would I have done so now, if he had not shewn this bill for £4 19s. to my brother, and then I said I would write to Mr. Arnold to inquire the truth of it.

6717. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you got that bill? No, he kept the bill; he merely shewed it to him. My brother told him he knew where I lived and he had better sue me.

6718.

- Mr. A. Graham. 6718. By Mr. Morris : With reference to the matter you had before the District Court, how could Mr. Moody say you had more money coming to you for this Burwood contract, if Mr. Hall had not certified for extras to an amount beyond what was paid you? That I cannot tell—all I can tell is that he did do it.
- 23 Jan., 1864. 6719. By Mr. Dalgleish : Were you employed in the Penrith Station yourself? I was the contractor for the goods warehouse.
6720. Have you seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait up at Penrith? No, I do not know Mr. Micklethwait at all to my knowledge.
6721. Have you seen Mr. Hall the worse for liquor at Penrith? No, I was not very much up there—I may mention that they spent more money in defending the Burwood case than would have paid me, if their time was of any value. They had four men up there for two days.

Mr. Peter Graham called in and examined :—

- Mr. P. Graham. 6722. By the Chairman : You are a brother of Mr. Alexander Graham? Yes.
6723. Do you know Mr. Hall? I do.
- 25 Jan., 1864. 6724. Did he shew you a bill for ironmongery lately? Yes; not lately—a little before he was suspended.
6725. What was the amount of the bill? £4 19s. I had not the bill in my hand.
6726. How do you know it was £4 19s.? He told me so.
6727. He did not shew you the bill? He shewed it me in his hand, saying, "Here is a bill your brother owes me, £4 19s., for ironmongery I got for him." I told him I knew nothing about it—that is was no business of mine. He said, the Chief recommended me to sue him. I said, "It is the best thing you could do."
6728. Who did you understand him to mean by the Chief? The Engincer-in-Chief.
6729. You have no doubt about the amount he stated? No—£4 19s.
6730. Were you connected with your brother, in the building? No, but I have done the contract at Penrith.
6731. Was Mr. Hall often on the works at Penrith? He was once or twice there during my time.
6732. How long was he there—for what space of time? Generally about half an hour each time. Of course he was in the neighbourhood the whole day, from the fact that he could not get away; he came at 10, and left by the last train. There are only two trains—one to and one from Penrith.
6733. Although in the neighbourhood the whole day, he was on the building about half an hour? About half an hour.
6734. Did you see him the worse for drink? No, I never saw him the worse for drink.
6735. Did he condemn any of your material? He did; he was pretty bounceable; a very tyrannical man I thought.
6736. Not at all a pleasant man? By no means. I consider him very tyrannical to a contractor; the faults he found were what I should consider, as a tradesman, very childish.
6737. Frivolous? Yes, not substantial. It appeared to me as if he had made up his mind to find fault, which of course comes unpleasant to a contractor.
6738. Who was clerk of works up there? Mr. Robertson.
6739. Where is Mr. Robertson now? Well, I think he is at Penrith. I may safely say that, between Mr. Robertson and Mr. Hall, I was a very great loser, simply by their unnecessary interfering in matters and condemning material; for instance, they let in timber that I would not let in myself as a matter of conscience, and there was timber they condemned that I would consider was really first class.
6740. Do they know anything of timber? Well, I should think not.
6741. Do you think they know one timber from another? I think not.
6742. Then, I presume, they would pass a piece of turpentine wood, which is worthless, because it looks well, and object to a piece of ironbark? Exactly. I asked the inspector there the question. I entered into a contract with some sawyers there. It is a most difficult thing to get timber at Penrith. I had £500 worth of timber to get, and you cannot get that quantity in a day's time. I went to the expense of getting a lot, and the timber I got was blue gum, a good sample—indeed I may say, Halley and Clyde, who are good judges in these matters, pronounce it excellent timber, and a sawyer in Parramatta, King, a very old sawyer, and an experienced hand, said it was beautiful* timber; and yet that timber was condemned on me.
6743. What timber did you at last use? I may say all sorts of stuff; I do not know what it was—a shrivelled sort of timber.
6744. Apple-tree? No, I never saw anything like it before; in fact the sawyers did not know what it was called.
6745. Was it as good as the other? By no means. I kept a sample of the timber he condemned.
6746. Did you keep a sample of the timber he passed? It was in the building. It was the means of my losing £100, by condemning the timber, and I had no redress. When this timber was condemned, I asked him what it was called, but he did not give it a name.
6747. What was his objection to it? When it was first brought, it was passed in a sense—he had no objection to it; but I fancied some rival sawyers put something in his head, that it was bad timber, and a few days after it was condemned. Indeed I had the timber partly worked. When it was laid on the ground I asked him would it do, and he said yes.
- 6748.

* Revised :—good

6748. Your brother first had the contract? Yes.
6749. He threw it up in consequence of a mistake? He threw it up in consequence of a defect in the plan; when they came to work the plan it would not work.
6750. Could you shew me why? I can shew you distinctly why. I put the question to Mr. Hall, and he could not answer me. I may say, in putting up the building I was bound to go in direct opposition to all of them and the plans.
6751. By Mr. Dalgleish: The officers? Yes. I asked them which they would have—the figures or the scale—and they wanted me to take neither. As a matter of course, I was bound to take either one or the other.
6752. Were they both wrong? Yes, they are. (Plan produced.) This is drawn on an eighth scale. If you measure this, and take the figures that are here (looking at the section of drawing No. 1, Goods Warehouse, Penrith), from the bottom of the foundation to the bottom of the bottom plate is 1 ft. 6 in., and from that to the level of the line of the railway is 4 ft.; then 3 ft. 4 in. to the top of the stage, and from the top of the stage to the bottom of the tie-beam is 12 ft.
6753. By the Chairman: The plans are drawn to an eighth scale—now what does it measure? 19 ft. 6 in. by the scale.
6754. What are the figures? The figures added together would make 20 ft. 10 in., being 1 ft. 4 in. difference between the scale and the figures.
6755. And your brother ordering these studs according to the scale, when they came in they were sixteen inches short? Yes. When I came to work the studs, I asked which I should take—the scale or the figures. They said the figures. By using the figures the luffer work shewn on the plan does not come in over the gates; this gate, instead of being there (pointing to the plan) is tight up against the plates—there is an eighth of an inch instead of 1 ft. 9 in.
6756. By Mr. Morris: Did Mr. Hall ever appear to expect some gratuity or other —? Well, I thought so when he presented me that bill.

Mr. P.
Graham.

28 Jan., 1864.

---

Mr. Robert Iredale called in and examined:—

6757. By the Chairman: You keep an ironmongery establishment in George-street? Yes.
6758. Did you supply any ironmongery for any of the Government Railway Stations—the Picton Station and the Singleton Station? I believe we did.
6759. What was the amount of the bill? I have not had time, since receiving your summons, to go into particulars, but I have taken out the sum total. The Singleton Station is charged £30, and the Picton Station £18 17s. 6d.
6760. Have you received payment? Yes.
6761. How much? The whole.
6762. Did you receive a cheque for £55? I could not say.
6763. Was the amount paid by a cheque for £55? I cannot say. I see (referring to a memorandum) there is a small amount here. It strikes me forcibly there were some more items that I have not had time to go into, for the Burwood Station—a small amount.
6764. By Mr. Dalgleish: Whose name was the Burwood Station account in? Well, we put it down for the Railway.
6765. By the Chairman: No particular name? No.
6766. To whose was the £18 17s. 6d. charged? They are all down in the Railway account, with a marginal reference, I see, in our ledger, for the Singleton Station, and for the Picton Station.
6767. You supplied some for the Burwood Station? Yes.
6768. To what amount? £1 8s. 9d.; but it strikes me forcibly that there was something more. I have not the items—I have not had time to go into the matter particularly.
6769. The gentleman who performed the work as contractor for the Burwood Station has given us a list of the articles he received from your establishment; and not knowing the prices, he has valued the whole at £1 5s. 2d.? Well, I have it here £1 8s. 9d. I only took the memorandum out at the last moment, believing there was something more for the Burwood Station than that.
6770. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know Mr. Hall? Yes, I have known him many years.
6771. By the Chairman: Had he any private account with you? Yes, he has had a private account with us ever since he came to the Colony.
6772. You do not know how this money was paid—If I produced a cheque could you tell if it had passed through your hands? If you could shew the accounts, they could tell you perhaps.
6773. If I shewed you the cheque? A cheque would not do.
6774. By Mr. Dalgleish: If it was a crossed cheque? There are so many crossed cheques coming through our hands.
6775. By the Chairman: You have no doubt the goods supplied to Picton Station amounted to £18 17s. 6d., and no more? I have very little doubt of that. But, as I said before, I have not had time to go all through the account, to see if there are not some more small items.
6776. Do you know anything of that (crossed cheque for £55, drawn by Matthew Jamieson, handed to witness)? I cannot call it to mind.
6777. By Mr. Morris: Do you know the drawer of the cheque? I do not remember him personally, and yet it is possible I do know him. There are a number of individuals that I know, but do not know their names. I have not the least doubt I have spoken to Mr. Jamieson, but I cannot say I remember him by name. There is another individual who very often comes for goods—his name is Parkinson; he may be called Jamieson for all I know, but I always looked upon him as Parkinson. He has very often looked in on these accounts.

Mr. Robert
Iredale.

28 Jan., 1864.

6778.

- Mr. Robert Iredale.
28 Jan., 1864.
6778. By the Chairman: He has no connection with either the Singleton or Picton accounts. If any person came into your establishment to pay these bills for Singleton and Picton Stations, which amount to £48 17s. 6d. for the two, and presented you that cheque, I suppose you would give him the balance? Well, I should think so.
6779. And you have no doubt you did not accept the whole of that cheque for the payment of these two accounts? Not of these two accounts.
6780. You cannot say whether that cheque passed through your hands? No, it is quite possible it may have passed through my hands.
6781. And you cannot say who paid these accounts? Well, I think I could venture to say it came through Mr. Hall, but I would not take my oath on the subject.
6782. You have no doubt Mr. Hall presented you that cheque for the payment of these accounts, and you gave him the balance? It is quite possible Mr. Hall presented that cheque, and quite possible I gave him the balance; and it is quite possible I did not.
6783. There is no doubt you did not keep the full amount, £55, to pay £48 17s. 6d.? Not to pay £48 17s. 6d. certainly.
6784. Then of course the person who presented that cheque received the balance, either by cash or by credit, in some way or other? Well, as far as credit would go, I do not suppose he would receive it in credit. It is generally the case that, when a cheque is handed over for a larger amount than the account comes to, the difference is given in cash, or if cash has not been at hand I have known a cheque drawn for the balance.
6785. That is the usual course of business? Yes.
6786. And you can see no reason why there should be an exception in this case? No.
6787. By Mr. Morris: Is there any mark on that cheque by which you could ascertain whether it ever passed through your hands? No.
6788. Could you ascertain whether that cheque was ever credited to you? That I could do.
6789. Probably you would be kind enough to do that, and add it to your evidence? I will.*
6790. Has Mr. Hall any account with you at present? I do not think there is any account standing between us at present—I am not sure. He has never had a very great deal to do with us—only a very pounds now and then. I did not look into his account to see whether there was any balance left.
6791. How long is it since Mr. Hall paid his own private account last? I will ascertain by the books.†
6792. Do you know a contractor of the name of Graham? I do not.
6793. By the Chairman: Have you been paid the amount for the Burwood Station, £1 8s. 9d.? I do not think I have; I am not sure, but I will let you know.‡
6794. By Mr. Morris: If it has not been paid, to whom do you look for payment? It will stand against the Railway Department, I suppose.
6795. By the Chairman: Who gave you instructions to supply these goods, do you know? Mr. Hall and the party described as the contractor.
6796. You do not know whether he was the contractor? The party described as the contractor. Mr. Hall would say, "This is Mr. So-and-so;" of course I spoke to them as Mr. Jamieson or Mr. Graham, or whoever they were.
6797. Do you know whether Mr. Alexander Graham, the contractor for the Burwood station, was ever in your place? It is possible he may have been; it is very possible my son has seen and spoken to him.
6798. I should like you to ascertain whether Mr. Graham has been there? I think my son and Mr. Graham have been in conversation together in regard to these contracts.
6799. Mr. Alexander Graham, you will remember, if you please, because there are two Messrs. Graham. This is Mr. Alexander Graham who says he never was in your establishment in his life? ———
6800. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you ever allowed Mr. Hall any commission on orders which he has brought to the shop? Certainly not.
6801. It is usual to allow commission to persons who bring orders? It may be if I send a traveller out to go round the country; then I pay him a commission for his services; but an individual in a situation I never give a commission to in that way.
6802. Under any circumstances, you have not been in the habit of allowing Mr. Hall any commission? No.
6803. Are there any other contracts that you have supplied the iron-work for, on account of the railway authorities, besides those mentioned? We have supplied, I think, for the Penrith Station.
6804. Perhaps you will be kind enough to give us the particulars of the iron-work for the Penrith Station, and, if paid, by whom? I did not know that I can say who paid the accounts, because all we do is just to receipt the bill and enter the cash received in the book. §
6805. You hold the Government responsible? I hold the Government, or the authorities under the Government, responsible.
6806. You do not hold the contractors themselves responsible? It all depends upon whom they are. For instance, with regard to one of the Grahams—I do not know whether it was Alexander or not—there was a doubt expressed as to the propriety of giving him credit, and I did not feel at all comfortable in doing so.
6807. By Mr. Morris: How long ago is that? Some time ago. Whether it was for the Burwood Station or some other station I do not know.
6808. Will you be kind enough to ascertain whether it was Alexander Graham or his brother with regard to whose credit the doubt was expressed? I will.

6809.

* ADDED (on revision):—Yes, we did receive a cheque for £55.

† ADDED (on revision):—There is still a small account standing against him.

‡ Revised:—No, we have not been paid.

§ ADDED (on revision):—The amount credit to the Penrith Station, £26 10s.

6809. Do you allow any discount on these railway accounts? No, I do not look upon it that the Government desires a discount; I make the same charge to the Government as to any ordinary person. We only allow discount to storekeepers, who take large quantities of goods, and have their profit to make upon them. I would charge the Government the same as I would a builder. Mr. Robert Iredale.
28 Jan., 1864.
6810. Do you not allow builders a discount? No; I make the price to a builder as low as possible, and I treat the Government in precisely the same way, and always have done.
6811. Did any Government official ever ask for a discount on account of the Government? Not to my knowledge. I think you can take that as a positive answer. I do not know that any Government officer ever asked me for a discount, and I do not know that ever I have given one. We have supplied some large quantities for the Wollongong and Kiama Harbour Works—they are the principal items I have had to do with the Government, and I can solemnly say no party in that branch of the service ever had a farthing.
6812. By Mr. Dalgleish: If the account for the Burwood Station was put down to the Government or to the Railway Department, in what way would the solvency or insolvency of Mr. Graham affect you? I do not know that it should affect me.
6813. If you look to the Government for payment, the solvency or insolvency of the contractor could not affect you? No, but the Railway Department might refuse to pay it.
6814. I presume you have assured yourself as to whether you are right or wrong in supplying these things to the Railway? I have always been perfectly assured in supplying these matters, with the exception of that one instance of Mr. Graham; though if the contractors were to fail, and there were no funds in the Railway Department to meet these accounts, then we would have to do the same as with other parties—put up with the loss. I have not lost anything yet.
6815. Have you made any inquiry at the Railway Office, to see whether you were authorized in putting down these accounts to their debit? I did not see that it was necessary when Mr. Hall and the contractor came together.
6816. Do you know that Mr. Hall and the contractor did come together—the contractor denies it? All I can say is that I saw a party there, and Mr. Hall said, "This is Mr. So-and-so." If Mr. Jamieson was now before the Committee I would not know him.
6817. It is not Mr. Jamieson—it is Mr. Graham? Well, it is only that one instance I am alluding to. I could not tell now whether it was the Burwood Station or whether it was Alexander Graham; but my son came to me and spoke to me about a Mr. Graham.
6818. Do you know whether a person represented as Mr. Graham was in your shop at all? I am not positive, only through the communication made to me by my son.
6819. Has Mr. Hall been at your establishment within the last week or fortnight? I saw Mr. Hall last week or the week before.
6820. Did he make any reference to this matter? I just spoke to him and said, "How are you getting on?" He said, "They are still busy with me, but how it will turn out I cannot tell." I said, "I understood you were going home to England." He said, "Oh! no." It was a younger son of mine who gave me the information. I was surprised, and made inquiry of another party, who said he was not going.
6821. Did Mr. Hall make any mention of the probability of your being called before this Committee? No; I had no idea of it either, until I received your summons yesterday.

THURSDAY, 4 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. STEWART.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Scott called in and examined:—

6822. By the Chairman: You are in the Government employ? Yes, as locomotive Mr. W. Scott. foreman. 4 Feb., 1864.
6823. Have you anything to do with the passenger carriages? Yes, with repairing them and so on—not with the traffic.
6824. Can you manufacture carriages in this country? I do not see why we could not.
6825. Do you remember the number of carriages imported here during the year 1861—five composite carriages and ten third class carriages? Yes.
6826. Would there be any difficulty in manufacturing carriages similar to those, in this country? I cannot see any difficulty.
6827. What do you think first class carriages would cost manufactured in this country? I could scarcely say without going into it; I have no doubt it would be a little over the cost of importing them.
6828. Could you not say within £50? No, it would be impossible to do that without going into it.
6829. Do you think they would cost £600? Well, it is impossible to say, without going into every item.
6830. Will you prepare this information for the Committee, that is to say, the cost of manufacturing the different descriptions of carriages in the Colony, with breaks and every-thing

- Mr. W. Scott. thing complete, including the cost of importing those portions of the carriages which cannot be conveniently manufactured in the Colony? Yes.*
- 4 Feb., 1864. 6831. There are also thirteen low-sided wagons, and four passenger break vans? Yes.
6832. By Mr. Dalgleish: Could you manufacture locomotive engines in the Colony? I have no doubt but what we could; I do not see any difficulty in it; but not with the conveniences we have now.
6833. What additional conveniences would you require? We should want some large shops built.
6834. Have you ever expressed a desire to build engines in the Colony with the present conveniences? Not with the present conveniences—not without additional buildings; in fact we could not do it.
6835. If additional buildings were erected, and the necessary tools obtained, would there then be any difficulty? No, I cannot see any, unless the wheels, and I do not doubt but what we could overcome that.
6836. It is customary, even in large manufactories at home, to obtain wheels from regular wheel-makers? Yes, and axles the same. We have no difficulty in making axles now; we have made several; we have made no crank axles yet, but we are in a position to make them.
6837. That is since the large tilt-hammer has been taken from its position in the paddock and erected in the works? Yes, we have manufactured about fifteen axles since.
6838. Would there be any difficulty in your working up and rolling the old iron on the establishment, for tire-irons? I never saw that in practice to be of any use. It was tried at Wolverton with the steam hammer there. It would require a set of rolls.
6839. I said to roll it—not to hammer it? Well, I do not know; I have had no experience in that. It was tried at Wolverton, but did not succeed; they could do it, but it cost more than a new tire.
6840. That difficulty would not be experienced with rolls? I never had any experience with rolls.
6841. What engines have you on the line at present? Fourteen in all.
6842. Who are the makers? Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, are by Stephenson; No. 5 by Hawthorne; 6 and 7 by Fairbairn; and 8 to 14, by Manning, Wardell, & Co.
6843. Does that include the Northern Line? No.
6844. What engines are on the Northern Line? Seven—eight, I believe, with the one they have just purchased from Peto & Co.
6845. Who are the makers of those? The first four are by Fairbairn, and three by Manning, Wardell, & Co. The one purchased from Peto & Co. was made by their own firm at Birkenhead.
6846. Of course the whole of these engines have come under your supervision at different times? Yes.
6847. And you can give the Committee a correct idea of the relative merits of the makers of the engines, as exemplified by the engines under your control? Yes.
6848. Which engines have done the most work with the least repair—can you give it in the same order in which you have already named them? It is impossible to get at that without going through the books.
6849. I do not ask you to give it absolutely correct, but from your knowledge of the engines, you must have an idea which of them have done the most work with the least repair? I believe those engines of Stephenson's have given the most satisfaction —
6850. They are coupled engines? Yes, with the additional expense of making new boilers for them.
6851. How long did they work without wanting new boilers? From 1855 to 1861—six years.
6852. That is not very bad work for boilers? A boiler ought to last from ten to twelve years. These boilers were injured with bad water.
6853. Before they came under your control? Partly so. I was running one of them, No. 1, for some time; and it did more work, I believe, than any other engine on the line. We were not using bad water at that time with this particular engine.
6854. Was there any apparent cause for the damage to the boilers—was there galvanic action? Yes.
6855. Was it at the landings of the shell? Yes, particularly round the angle iron by the smoke box—it was completely cut through.
6856. What do you attribute that to? I do not know, unless it was from the action of the water.†
6857. Were there copper pipes in the boiler? Yes, and copper stays; where the stays have been fixed, the galvanic action going on is not so bad as on some other parts. The boilers are in the paddock now, and can be seen and examined.
6858. The boilers are as difficult to make as any other part of a locomotive? The boilers and wheels are the most difficult.

6859.

* NOTE :—First class composite carriages, equal to those imported, could be manufactured in the Colony, including the cost of importing wheels, axles, and springs, at £528 each; the greater the number the cheaper they could be done. Third class, £374 11s. Horse-boxes, £209 3s. Wagons, £137.

† NOTE :—I attribute the cause from the action of the water on the iron, the continual expansion and contraction going on in the heating and cooling of the boiler; it was principally at the landings, and particularly all round the water space at the angle iron next to the smoke box, which was completely cut through; these are the parts where there is the least elasticity in, and must have opened the grain of the iron, and allowed the corrosive nature of the bad water to work into the plates at those parts.

6859. And you have already manufactured new boilers for these four engines? Yes, we Mr. W. Scott. have got the fourth in hand now, nearly finished.
6860. I presume the fitting up of new boilers almost necessitates the refitting of the engines? <sup>4 Feb., 1864.</sup> Yes.
6861. Have you made any material alterations in refitting them? Yes, we have made some; for instance, they formerly had indian-rubber springs, and we have taken the whole of them off and put on steel springs.
6862. You have put ordinary springs on them? Yes.
6863. Do you find that to be an advantage? Yes, a great advantage, both for the engine and the road.
6864. Which are the next best engines on the line, according to your experience? I do not see that there is any great difference between Fairbairn's and Manning, Wardell, and Co.'s—these last two we have had.
6865. I want you to go through them generally—not to make any exception in favour of only two engines. Has Manning, Wardell, and Co.'s work been satisfactory on the whole? It has been rather light, but that is the only objection. No. 13, which we have taken in now, has run 10,733 miles.
6866. By the Chairman: Without any repairs? With only slight repairs—she has had one set of new piston packing.
6867. By Mr. Dalgleish: What description of engines are Fairbairn's? They have three good engines at Newcastle, but the two we have here are very inferior; we have more trouble with them than with all the rest of the engines put together.
6868. What description of engines are they? They are outside cylinder, with a 5 ft. 6 in. driving wheel.
6869. Two wheels coupled? No, single wheels. We have more trouble and more complaints with these engines than with any other engines on the line.
6870. To what do you attribute that? One thing is, that the tubes are too small, and have great difficulty in generating steam.
6871. They were not constructed for burning coal? No, I do not think they were, and therefore they sooner choke up. They are badly fitted up on the slides—slide bars and slide blocks—too complicated altogether; the small ends of the connecting rods and slide blocks are too close to the leading wheels.
6872. Are they some of the recent patents? I never saw any engines of that description previously.
6873. Are the whole of Fairbairn's on the same principle? No.
6874. Then which of the engines are you alluding to now? Nos. 6 and 7 on the Sydney line. Manning and Wardell's engines are preferred far before them; in fact, if they can get Manning and Wardell's they will not run the others.
6875. The men on the line? Yes.
6876. Manning and Wardell's are the newest? Yes.
6877. That accounts for the preference probably? No, I think not. Nos. 8 and 9 are about five years imported.
6878. Are any of these engines fitted on the bogie principle? No.
6879. Have not Manning, Wardell, and Co.'s engines failed in the axle blocks? No, I have not had any broken these two years.
6880. Nor the cranks? We have had three axles broken—driving axles.
6881. Those of Manning, Wardell, & Co. have one driving wheel? Yes. Nos. 6 and 7 have had three of their axles broken as well.
6882. Which are 6 and 7? Those two of Fairbairn's. One duplicate wheel we had for them, and the whole of three axles to put in new.
6883. Do you know anything of the bogie engines just brought out from Manning, Wardell, & Co.'s, for the Northern Line? I have just seen them.
6884. Have you any notion what repairs they have had? We have been obliged to send up several sets of piston packing for them, and also axle boxes and bottom caps for axle boxes.
6885. They are nearly new engines? Yes, they are new engines.
6886. How old? I should say not above eighteen months.
6887. Is it usual for engines to require this new piston packing so frequently? There must be some cause for it. The pistons are rather heavy.
6888. Have the axle boxes for these engines failed? I believe they have had one or two broken; they have had one new set sent up.
6889. Is it usual, in engines proportionately fitted, for the axle boxes to give way so soon? The reason is that these are tank engines, and the whole weight is thrown on the bottom of the axle boxes. It would be much preferable to have the spring on the top of the box, where you can get at it, but in these you cannot, for the tank is all round.
6890. What is the weight of these tank engines? I do not know the exact weight, but I should say they are about 35 tons.
6891. There are no tenders to tank engines? No; the whole of the water is carried on the engine, and the whole weight suspended by these springs.
6892. Are you not too heavy in your estimate? I have here the correct weight of ours, which are about the same size of cylinder:—The engines weigh about 26 tons each, and the engine and tender about 42 tons.
6893. Engines of the same class as the bogie engines on the Northern Line? Yes, the same size of cylinder and wheels of the same size, but they are tender engines. The engines weigh 22 tons 16 cwt. 2 qrs. empty, and 26 tons 6 cwt. 2 qrs. loaded; and the tenders, empty, weigh 8 tons 13 cwt., and 14 tons 10 cwt. 3 qrs. full of water and coal; the engine and tender together, 40 tons 17 cwt. 1 qr.

- Mr. W. Scott. 6894. Do you think the tender would make 10 tons difference? Not quite so much—about 7 tons difference.
- 4 Feb., 1864. 6895. When loaded and full of water? Yes.
6896. Have you any tank engines on the Southern Line? Yes, two passenger engines.
6897. But not so heavy as those on the Northern Line? No.
6898. What is your estimate of the weight of the two bogie engines? I should say 7 tons added to the weight of the engines—about 31 tons* altogether.
6899. That is not an unusual weight, is it? But you have got the whole of the strain dragging on to the axle-boxes; if these axle-boxes are allowed to knock at all, they are very apt to break. They are suspended from the axle-boxes with wrought iron straps cast in them to strengthen them.
6900. Are Manning, Wardell, and Co. considered the best makers in England? They were not in existence when I left England. They used to be the firm of Wilson, and used to turn out very good engines.
6901. They were very cheap makers? Yes, I dare say they were rather under Stephenson and Sharp.
6902. You have made various alterations to the engine works lately? Yes, we have made several alterations.
6903. You have done away with the open fires for heating tires? Yes.
6904. Do you find that to be a saving? A great saving.
6905. As well as giving greater safety? Yes, and there is no trouble with it; we can bend as many now in a couple of days as will last nearly six months.
6906. You can bend as many now in two days as you could formerly in as many weeks? Yes. There was a great waste of wood in heating tires in the open air.
6907. And a very great waste of time? Yes.
6908. Do you find any decided advantage from the erection of the tilt-hammer? Yes. At the present time, with the new boiler we are putting in for No. 2, we are making a new set of motion right through.
6909. About how much expenditure would be required to enable you to manufacture locomotives? I could scarcely tell.
6910. You could supply that information? I could make a rough estimate. It is out of my line.
6911. I do not speak of the buildings—independent of the buildings. You will supply it? Yes, as near as I can.†
6912. Do you know a person of the name of Hall? I know him by sight.
6913. Has he been employed where you have had an opportunity of seeing him? He merely came to make a sketch of the addition we had made there lately; he made the drawings for it. That was the only opportunity I had of seeing him.
6914. What time of the day did you see him? The first time I saw him he came round with Mr. Whitton about 10 or 11 o'clock.
6915. Was he there by himself at all? He was, afterwards.
6916. Was he employed there the whole day? No, he came about 10 or 11 o'clock, and was making measurements till about 2, I dare say it would be; and once or twice afterwards he came for a short time.
6917. Was he always sober when you saw him? Yes.
6918. Have you been brought in contact with Mr. Micklethwait? No; I know him by sight, and that is all—merely passing up and down the line.
6919. You have not been brought much in contact with either of these officers? No.
6920. Do you know if the orders have been sent home direct to Manning, Wardell, & Co., for these engines? No, I do not know anything at all about that.
6921. It is out of your department? Yes.
6922. You have had a machine brought out for weighing engines? Yes.
6923. Is that an expensive machine? Not very expensive—cost, in England, £150.
6924. Is it very useful? Very useful for adjusting the weight on the wheels; you can take the weight on each separate wheel, and put any required weight on the driving wheel. It enables you to adjust the springs.
6925. Are you aware that in Victoria they are building their own engines? I am not; I have heard they have been building some carriages, but I have not heard of their building locomotives; I have generally understood that they have a great number in hand, more than they actually require.
6926. You have not heard that they are building locomotives for the New Zealand line there? No, I have not.
6927. What additional expense, if any, would it be to build the engines here instead of importing them? That I could hardly say, but I should say they could be built at a little over what they could be imported for, taking a number of them.
6928. Could you not give us an estimate as to what it would cost to build here engines similar to those imported, distinguishing the different descriptions of locomotive? I will as near as I can.‡
6929. There have been some engines lately imported for the Windsor line? Yes.
6930. Are those expensive engines? No, they are very simple. There is a very good class of work in them, light, but very simple.

6931.

* Revised:—33 tons.

† NOTE:—The additional tools that would be required to manufacture to any extent would cost £1,000.

‡ NOTE:—By manufacturing, say not less than six, I would undertake to build them at £2,700 each.

6931. Could you not have manufactured these engines at the works, with the conveniences you then had? We might have made shift to make these two, but it might have cost more than importing them, making only these two. Mr. W. Scott.
4 Feb., 1864.
6932. You have an engine called the "Governor General"? Yes.
6933. You have not any other engine like her at present? No, she is the only one of that class.
6934. You are doing some extensive repairs to that engine? We have been obliged to make patterns for new cylinders.
6935. Does not that virtually involve the remanufacture of the engine? Yes; we must make two patterns—the right and left sides, and we can get a couple of dozen cast from the same patterns.
6936. When you have the drawings and templets made for one set of cylinders, they will do for a large number? Yes.
6937. And every one you make you could manufacture more cheaply than the first? Yes, by making a number of them.
6938. So that the reconstruction of this engine will almost cost as much as a new engine? No, only the cylinders.
6939. Who is the manufacturer of that engine? Hawthorne.
6940. Has it come to your knowledge that patterns were made expressly for that engine? No, although I have the man that was employed putting it together in Hawthorne's shop, and who was sent for by Mr. Randle to superintend its erection. I have heard him say that she has a 12-inch stroke, whereas those engines generally have only 11-inch stroke, so that it is quite possible they may have had to make a new pattern.
6941. You know the Menangle Viaduct? Yes.
6942. Have you had much experience of railway bridges in England? None at all.
6943. Then you could not give the Committee any opinion whether that bridge is heavier than is generally the case? No, I could not.
6944. By Mr. Stewart: In reference to building railway carriages, would there be any difficulty in procuring workmen competent to do the mechanical part of it? No, there are plenty of good workmen in the Colony at present.
6945. Do you recollect some first class carriages being damaged a few years ago, coming out? Yes.
6946. Could not the workmanship of those carriages be performed in the Colony at that time? I have no doubt they could with additional buildings.
6947. I speak now of individuals competent to perform the work? There is plenty of mechanical labour.
6948. Quite equal to any part of the work in those carriages? All, with the exception, say, of the wheels and springs.
6949. Then if a coachbuilder stated that there was only one man in the Colony equal even to repair those carriages, that would not be correct? No, I am sorry to say there are too many men out of employment.
6950. Do you think the bodies of those carriages could not have been built here at a less rate than the cost and freight and expenses? I believe so.
6951. With the exception of the mountings that are not usually produced at the place where those carriages are manufactured? Yes.
6952. With that exception they could have been produced here, with the labour then available, at a price not much, if any, over cost, freight, and expenses? Yes, I believe they could.
6953. There is no deficiency of mechanical skill for any part of the work required? No, there are always more hands requiring employment than there is employment for.
6954. Then all that would be necessary is to extend your appliances? Yes.
6955. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you give the highest rate of wages at your establishment? I do not know that we give the highest rate, but I think we have about the best men that are to be got; they are all paid very well.
6956. Do the workmen in other establishments not get higher wages? That I cannot say.
6957. Do you find any difficulty in obtaining mechanics at all? None at all.
6958. Are there not always a great number of persons applying for employment? Yes.
6959. Do not men prefer to work in your shop, in consequence of there being some idea of its being permanent, for less wages than what they are willing to work for in other establishments? Yes, there is not the least doubt of that. There have been parties applying from several establishments whenever there has been a vacancy, but Mr. Whitton has always objected to take men from any private firm unless their employers give them permission to go.
6960. By Mr. Stewart: What is the rate of wages you give? One blacksmith is paid 16s. a day; he works the tilt-hammer, which is very heavy work.
6961. By Mr. Dalgleish: In England do not some of the men that work the tilt-hammer get double wages? Yes, where there is full employment for the tilt-hammer.
6962. And they generally get so much a pound as well? Yes.
6963. Do you give any commission? No.
6964. Then the man you have is actually under-paid? There is not constant work for the tilt-hammer here; it may perhaps be only at work one week in three months. We have another at 14s., another at 12s. Amongst the fitters the best paid has 13s. The average wages are about 12s. 6d.
6965. By Mr. Stewart: What is the rate for men working in wood? About 10s. in the carriage department.
6966. That would be about the highest wages you are paying? Yes, with the exception of the foreman.

Mr. W. Scott. 6967. And for these wages you have no difficulty in supplying yourself with the best class of workmen? No, we have got some very good workmen, and have never had any difficulty

4 Feb., 1864. in finding them as yet.

6968. Would the necessary expense of increasing the workshop accommodation be very considerable? Yes, it would require very extensive premises.

6969. By Mr. Dalgleish: There is plenty of room there? Yes.

6970. By the Chairman: Perhaps you would inform the Committee what you suppose it would cost to make the necessary improvements to put you in a position to manufacture everything required for locomotives? It would be merely guess-work on my part with regard to the buildings. As for tools, we should not require a great many more tools than we have at present.

6971. What do you suppose the buildings would cost? I should say, including the necessary buildings for the manufacture of engines and carriages, tools and roads, and other things, it would cost £20,000 altogether to put us in a position to make our own engines and carriages.

6972. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was there not a sum of £10,000 voted for sheds—was that ever expended? I do not think it was.

6973. The expenditure of £20,000 would put you in a position to manufacture carriages and locomotives, and to do all the work in the Colony required for the railways? Yes.

6974. By Mr. Stewart: You are aware that the expense of freight and other charges is more than the original cost of the carriages—second class especially? Yes, so I understand; that is on account of their being such bulky packages.

6975. Looking at it in that way, do you not think it would be more economical to make them here? Yes. We should have a better article, at all events, manufactured on the spot, because when once put together it would be ready for use.

6976. By the Chairman: As regards the imported carriages—after they have put them together in England, they have to take them all to pieces to pack them? Yes.

6977. That does not benefit them? No.

6978. But has rather a contrary effect? Yes.

6979. If manufactured in New South Wales they would be put together once for all? Yes.

6980. By Mr. Dalgleish: You have made trucks here? Yes.

6981. Would there be any difficulty whatever in manufacturing springs, by having a few appliances? No, we have to manufacture them now.

6982. By having a few tools obtained for special purposes, could you not manufacture almost as cheap as you can import them? No, I do not know that we could. Even in England they can buy springs manufactured cheaper than they can get the steel and make their own springs, for this reason, that where they manufacture bars there are a deal of waste pieces of steel, and they can work them up into springs almost as cheap as they can send the steel to you.

6983. By Mr. Stewart: Then, even in large establishments in England, a great deal of the work is obtained from other places? Yes.

6984. I suppose you are aware that in England the Railway Companies do not often manufacture their own carriages? No, they are generally supplied by manufacturing firms that do nothing else but make these things.

6985. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do not some of the Companies make their own? Yes, some of them do.

6986. By Mr. Stewart: Can you inform us what time it would take up to put a carriage in a state to run on the line, after its arrival here, from the time of its being landed on the Circular Quay? Yes, it may be done in six days.

6987. By Mr. Dalgleish: You have made horse-boxes here? Yes.

6988. And cattle-trucks? No.

6989. By the Chairman: Will you furnish the Committee with the cost of those horse-boxes? I dare say I can get it, but they were not manufactured in my time.

6990. By Mr. Dalgleish: What is the name of the carriage foreman? Bingham.

6991. He was employed by Mr. Wright, the great carriage manufacturer? Yes, he was one of Wright's first-class hands.

6992. This information you will obtain from Mr. Bingham? ———

6993. By the Chairman: On the whole, do you consider these carriages of first class workmanship? They are very fair work—not finished off so well as the first carriages were, but still they are good strong work.

6994. Quite good enough? Yes.

6995. The workmanship is sound and good? Yes.

6996. By Mr. Stewart: A large proportion of the work in building these carriages is of the lowest class of coach-building work? Yes.

6997. It is merely the finishing that requires a better class of workmen? Yes. In place of rounding the mouldings off they were left square, which made them look much plainer than the first imported.

6998. By the Chairman: But they are sounder and better for that? Yes; in fact, Bingham says they are better than the first lot.

6999. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you speaking of imported carriages, or carriages manufactured here? Imported carriages.

7000. A great deal of the work is done by machinery? Yes.

7001. And, I presume, if the carriages were manufactured here the machinery would be imported for the purpose? Yes.

7002. By the Chairman: The machines required are all simple and inexpensive? Yes.

7003. And any carpenter who can finish up a panel can do any of the work required? Yes.

FRIDAY, 5 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. GARRETT,
MR. STEWART.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Whitton, Esq., Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, called in and examined:—

7004. By the Chairman: In your evidence, when before the Committee before, you said you had some documentary evidence as to the character of Mr. Martin Gardiner? I merely said I had papers from Melbourne stating that Mr. Gardiner was dismissed from the public service there.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
5 Feb., 1864.

7005. The Committee wish to have these papers before they examine Mr. Gardiner, as otherwise they might have to summon Mr. Gardiner again after you have given your evidence? I ordered them to be copied this morning, and I expect them to be here in ten minutes. I will forward them in immediately.

Mr. William George Ainsworth called in and examined:—

7006. By the Chairman: You are in the iron trade in the city of Sydney? Yes.

7007. You are also a shareholder in the Fitz Roy Iron Mines? I am.

7008. Do you remember Mr. Moody proceeding to your mines? Yes.

7009. Do you remember the time? He left Sydney on the 25th October, 1862.

7010. Was it at your invitation, or at the invitation of the directors of the mines, that he went? No.

Mr. W. G.
Ainsworth.
5 Feb., 1864.

7011. Do you know at whose instance it was? Perhaps I had better explain the matter. We were at that time in treaty with Messrs. Mort, Smith, and Smart, for the purpose of getting an advance of money for proceeding with the works. In our first arrangement with them there was nothing said about their seeing the works, but afterwards they wished to view the property, and they made an arrangement to meet us there on the Tuesday—that would be on the 28th October. We were given to understand then that Mr. Moody was going up to look over the property on their behalf.

7012. It was arranged that Mr. Moody and these gentlemen should meet you there on Tuesday, the 28th October? Yes.

7013. Did you, after that, hear that they were going up on the Saturday previous? We did.

7014. Did they give you notice of their intention to do so? I believe Mr. Chalder met one of them casually on the Saturday, and was told by him that they were going that evening, which deranged our arrangements.

7015. That would enable them to get there before the time appointed to meet the directors? Yes.

7016. Did you start at once for the mine when you heard this? We did; we left on the Saturday evening, and arrived there on the Sunday morning, about 3 o'clock. We stopped at Ford's "Fitzroy Inn," and Mr. Chalder and I went to bed. We had to get a letter sent to Mr. Davy, to tell him that an alteration had been made in the time, and to get him to come up.

7017. The alteration was made unknown to you? We knew nothing of it till mid-day on Saturday. At Ford's, where we were sleeping, I got up early, and hearing some one asking for Mr. Hughes, I went out and saw Mr. Moody.

7018. Do you know anything of a letter that was sent to Mr. Hughes by Mr. Moody? When Mr. Hughes came Mr. Moody spoke to him, asking if he had got a letter he had sent him; Mr. Hughes said he had not. Mr. Moody then said to me that he wanted to have a little conversation with Mr. Hughes. After they had been over the works, and Mr. Moody had returned to where he was stopping, at "Rush's Inn," the mail from Berrima brought a letter addressed to Mr. Hughes, which was delivered to Mr. Hughes that evening—Sunday evening. Mr. Hughes did not shew it to either of the others, but handed it across to me.

7019. What was the purport of that letter? Is it necessary for me to tell that?

7020. Certainly? The purport was, that he (Mr. Moody) should like to have an interview with Mr. Hughes before Mr. Hughes saw the directors.

7021. Mr. Hughes was your manager at the time? He was acting on our behalf at the time. That letter is in existence, and I have not the least doubt it could be produced, if wanted.

7022. Then Mr. Moody wanted surreptitiously to get an interview with Mr. Hughes before he saw the directors? Yes, that was the purport of the letter.

7023. And taking that circumstance into consideration, with the fact that they started from Sydney on Saturday instead of Monday, it tended to make the directors believe —? I considered it was not a proper plan of carrying out such an arrangement as that which had been entered into.

7024. Mr. Moody went over the works? Yes. Mr. Davy came up on Sunday afternoon, and Messrs. Mort, Smart, and Smith went over the works that afternoon, and on the Monday following we went again over the works, and went into the coal measures. They were stopping at Rush's—not at Ford's with us. After Mr. Mort had seen the place on Monday, he said it was not worth anything like what we had said, and they went away, the whole of them apparently rather annoyed at the appearance of the property. We were sinking a shaft at

Mr. W. G.
Ainsworth.

5 Feb., 1864.

at the time, for the purpose of getting specimens of coal. I remained there till the Tuesday evening, when I came away, leaving Mr. Moody there. I believe he remained until the following Friday or Saturday. I am pretty positive I had a letter from Mr. Chalder, written on the Wednesday, in which he stated that Mr. Moody and Mr. Davy had been over to Mr. Oxley's on the Wednesday, and were waiting to get a specimen of the other seam of coals. We had a specimen of the anthracite, but not a specimen of the lower seam. The whole of them were back on the Sunday following.

7025. So that Mr. Moody was away from Sydney from Saturday till —? I am pretty sure he was there till Friday, and I believe they all came down together.

7026. After their return Mr. Moody gave in a report to Mr. Mort? I should say something like six or seven days elapsed after he returned before the report was given.

7027. Then from the day he left Sydney till the report was given in, something like a fortnight must have passed? Yes; I would not say exactly.

7028. Was not the estimated cost of bringing the mines into effective operation something like £60,000 odd, according to Mr. Moody's report? £64,000.

7029. Was not that four times as much as it will actually cost the Company? It will not cost £14,000 to develop what they have done. I may tell you that Mr. Hughes, our manager, gave in his report that it would cost £15,000, while Mr. Moody said it would be £64,000. When I saw Mr. Mort again on the subject, he said he had no opinion of Mr. Hughes, and could not put any confidence in what he said, because Mr. Moody's estimate was £64,000, while Mr. Hughes' was only 15,000. I said perhaps there was some difference in what was proposed to be done in the two reports—that perhaps Mr. Moody proposed to do a great deal more than was at all necessary for developing the work—and asked if he would give us a copy of the report, but he declined to do so. I think either Mr. Smart or Mr. Smith was in the room, and said he did not see that they ought to give a copy of the report—it was their report, and they had paid for it, but we were welcome to look at it.

7030. What inference did you draw from that? There was no other inference to be drawn, but that they had paid Mr. Moody for it.

7031. Did not the directors think it was a cooked report, intended to prevent them from going on with the mines—was not that the feeling of the directors? It was the feeling of myself individually, and I believe the others expressed a similar feeling, but not so strongly as I did myself. My impression is, that the amount was made so heavy for the purpose of making us sell our property at less than its value.

7032. You were not backward in expressing that opinion, I believe? Not at all. I read the report through, and there were a lot of things introduced into it that were not at all necessary for developing the iron mines for instance, it proposed that 100 houses should be built, a schoolhouse, a library, and other matters—all for the purpose of swelling up the amount.

7033. You have no doubt of the reason why it was swelled out to that amount? No doubt in my own mind, but I could not of course say what was the reason. When I had read the report, I told Mr. Mort I was more than ever convinced that we were correct, because I could see that it was made up for the purpose of making it appear that we had misled them.

7034. Your feeling was also the feeling of the other directors? Yes, in a measure. They looked on it that there were a lot of things introduced that were quite unnecessary.

7035. Did you ever hear anything about the amount Mr. Moody received for this report? That was a thing I was told by some one, that Mr. Moody received £100, but whether he did or not I cannot say. I cannot recollect who told me.

7036. You have no doubt you did hear that Mr. Moody received £100 for it? Yes.

7037. Did you ever hear that Mr. Dean paid him another £50? Yes, I heard that Mr. Dean had a copy of the report. Messrs. Mort & Co. made some other proposition which we declined; and after that we went to Dean & Co., and Mr. Dean, I am told, gave £50 to Mr. Moody for a copy of the report. I have not the least doubt it is correct, but who told me I cannot say.

7038. You know Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse—he is a countryman of yours? Yes.

7039. You come from the same place? Yes.

7040. You have been often in conversation with Mr. Trengrouse? Yes, he occasionally comes over to my place after office hours—once a month perhaps.

7041. During the time he has been in your store, has the question of the Fitzroy Mines been talked of? Yes. Coming from the same town, we ask one another how things are getting on; and these Fitzroy works have been brought up, and I may have told him what I have told you now.

7042. You have no doubt you told him you heard that Mr. Moody received £100 from Mort & Co. and £50 from Mr. Dean? I perfectly recollect that I have told him, but it would not be at one conversation. It is very possible the first conversation was just after Mr. Moody had returned.

7043. And you may also have told him the feeling you had as to the intention of Mr. Moody in swelling out the cost? I have expressed myself in this way, that Mr. Moody had introduced a lot of unnecessary items, and that that was the means of breaking off the arrangement.

7044. Did you ever say to him that you thought it was done for the purpose of getting the property into the hands of those gentlemen who were in treaty with you? I might have done so. I felt very strong on the subject with regard to those gentlemen; I felt that they were attempting to get our property at much less than its value, knowing our position, and that we were in debt.

7045. Did you ever hear from any person that any gentleman connected with the Works Department wanted a share or interest in these mines? I was up at Mr. Moody's office one day, day, and Mr. Moody seemed to imply that we did not do right—that we ought to have given somebody something to have pushed the matter ahead for us; but he did not mention names.

7046. Who did you think it was? I had my own private opinion, but I must decline to answer that question. Mr. Moody said we ought to have made our arrangements very differently, and we should never go ahead unless something of the sort was done.

7047. You understood him to mean that you ought to have given some person something? That we ought to let a certain person have something very cheap. I drew that inference.

7048. You are now carrying on the mines with an expenditure of about £14,000, I believe? Since we were in treaty with Mr. Dean, we have leased the mines to a person of the name of Lattin, from Melbourne, to carry on the mines, giving him the right of working them for twelve months, in consideration of his putting the works in proper order, so as to be capable of producing a certain amount of iron per week from the ore; and if at the conclusion he succeeds, we are to give him 2,000 of our paid-up shares, but if he does not succeed he is to get nothing. From a conversation I had with him, I believe he will spend from £12,000 to £13,000.

7049. And that is all that is required for the development of the mines and bringing them into the necessary working order? Just so.

7050. Have you ever had any further conversation with Mr. Moody? No; this was some time since—soon after Mr. Lattin had to do with the matter.

7051. Did you ever hear how it came about that Mr. Moody, being a Government officer, should be selected to report upon these mines? I cannot understand it. It rather astonished us at the time. Some of us thought at first the Government was very kind and paternal, and willing to do all they could to assist us.

7052. Did you think so after you had seen his report? No.

7053. Did you ever hear it hinted in such a manner that you would mention it again—without requiring proof of the matter—that any gentleman in the Works Department felt an interest in these mines, or wished to have an interest in them? No, I only heard it at that time. He was just like a great number—saying we should not succeed and so forth, and ought to do so-and-so, and ought to have had some persons of influence who were willing to go into the matter. I do not believe he meant Mr. Mort and those gentlemen.

7054. Who do you think he meant? I have my own impression, but I should not like to say what it is.

7055. Was it your impression that it was anybody connected with the Works Department? My impression was that Mr. Arnold was meant.

7056. Did ever you mention this conversation to Mr. Trengrouse? No, not this last conversation. I have no recollection that I ever said a word about this last conversation.

7057. By Mr. Stewart: You understood Mr. Moody to suggest that some persons in a station that would enable them to bring the mines into notice should be interested? Yes.

7058. You had no hint at names? No, I have given you almost exactly word for word what he stated; what Mr. Moody's meaning was I cannot tell.

7059. Did you think Mr. Moody's valuing of your property at that high rate, a matter that was influenced by some person beyond a fair valuation? He did not value our property; he stated that it would cost so much to put it in working order. It made a vast difference to us, for we had made an arrangement with Messrs. Mort & Co. to advance us £20,000—£5,000 to pay the debt, and £15,000 to carry on the work; but when Mr. Moody reported that it would cost £64,000, these gentlemen immediately withdrew that offer. They made us a subsequent offer, which I would not listen to myself.

7060. By the Chairman: After they received Mr. Moody's report, they made you other offers which would have enabled them eventually to get three-fourths of your property into their hands? Yes.

7061. By Mr. Stewart: Was any feeling of doubt created in your mind, in consequence of the peculiar mode of communicating with your agent or representative there? Well, I thought it extraordinary that Mr. Moody should wish to see Mr. Hughes before Mr. Hughes should see the directors; I thought it was not exactly what it ought to be.

7062. By Mr. Garrett: When Mr. Moody asked Mr. Hughes whether he had received a letter from him, were you present? Yes. I have not the least doubt the letter can be produced, if necessary. The reason that the letter did not reach Mr. Hughes sooner was that Mr. Moody had directed it to Mittagong, and the Mittagong letters go on to Berrima and come back in the evening.

7063. By the Chairman: Will you append that letter, or a copy of it, to your evidence, if you can obtain it? I will.*

Mr. Thomas Richardson Iredale called in and examined:—

7064. By the Chairman: You are connected with the firm of Robert Iredale & Co.? Yes.

7065. Do you remember supplying some ironmongery for the Burwood Station? I do.

7066. Do you remember Mr. Hall bringing a gentleman to your shop, whom he introduced as Mr. Graham, the contractor for that station? I remember Mr. Hall bringing a party into the shop; I am not exactly certain he said his name was Graham. He brought a party in, saying he wanted some goods for the Burwood Station. Then I understood from him afterwards, they were to be charged to the Railway.

7067. Nevertheless he led you to suppose that was Mr. Graham? I cannot exactly say that.

7068. You see the gentleman sitting beside you (Mr. Peter Graham)? Yes.

7069. Was he in your establishment the other day? Yes, yesterday morning. 7070.

* NOTE (on revision):—Mr. Hughes has mislaid the letter, but will send a copy from memory. As soon as I receive it I will forward it.

Mr. W. G. Ainsworth.

5 Feb., 1864.

Mr. T. R. Iredale.

5 Feb., 1864.

Mr. T. R.
Iredale.

5 Feb., 1864.

7070. Had he another young man with him? Three of them came—two first, and the other afterwards.

7071. This gentleman was present at the time? Yes.

7072. Was either of the three then present, the person who came into your establishment with Mr. Hall at the time he said there was some ironmongery wanted for the Burwood Station? I could not say; I do not know either of the three.

7073. Do you think either of those three was the person? I could not say positively; it is so long ago, and I did not take particular notice.

7074. I thought you said he was an elderly person? The one I referred to at the time was an elderly person. It was neither of those three that came into the shop yesterday.

7075. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was not Mr. Graham's name put down in your books? I have not turned up the entry, but I believe if I did I would find it charged to the Railway Department.

7076. Was there no entry made to shew that Mr. Graham was connected with it? I could not say; I have not looked to the books, and it is so long ago that it has escaped my memory.

7077. Will you be kind enough to give that information, when you return your evidence? Yes, I will turn the book up and see how it was charged.*

7078. Are you certain it was not charged to Mr. Hall? That I cannot say.

7079. Was Mr. Hall in the habit of bringing persons to your establishment as customers? Only for the Railway.

7080. How many persons has he brought to your establishment as customers for the Railway? I think only another party, Mr. Jamieson and his partner—I do not know what his partner's name was. It was when he had the Singleton Station.

7081. Was the ironmongery obtained for the stations they were at work on, put down to them or to the Railway Department? To the Railway.

7082. Not to Mr. Hall? I cannot exactly say.

7083. Will you fill in that information as well? Yes.†

7084. Have you any remembrance of Mr. Jamieson's account being settled? No, I do not receive any money at all for any account.

7085. Who does receive the money at your establishment? It is generally paid in the office, sometimes in the shop.

7086. Is there a cashier? No regular cashier.

7087. No one who takes that sole duty? No.

7088. By Mr. Garrett: Do you recollect what Mr. Hall said when he brought this person? No, I have no recollection of it.

7089. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you say you would not trust Mr. Graham? I told him I would not trust Mr. Graham, but I did not say which Mr. Graham.

7090. Did he ask you to trust Mr. Graham? I cannot exactly say. He may have asked the question—would I put the goods down to Mr. Graham or would I charge them to the Railway Department; I am not certain.

7091. Has Mr. Hall had any conversation with you relative to this inquiry? No, I have not seen him for some time; I have seen him certainly in the street, but not to talk to him about this matter.

7092. Mr. Hall has a private account with you? Yes, he had one; I believe it is settled.

7093. Long ago? I am not positive whether it is settled or not; that is done in the office.

7094. Was it an extensive account? I could not say; I do not know the amount of his account.

7095. Was he in the habit of letting his account run for a length of time? I could not say that either.

7096. Will you furnish that information to the Committee? I will.

7097. Do you know any other contractor in Sydney of the name of Graham? This party was not a contractor—the one I mean; he used to do work, and I thought perhaps he would become a contractor. I did not know the man; I knew the name well enough at one time.

7098. Who do you mean? The Graham I refer to.

7099. What is he? I do not know what he is now; he was a carpenter.

7100. Working on his own account? That I could not say; he used to get goods from us.

7101. From you or from Mr. Lassetter? From the old firm.

7102. Did he pay you? I cannot remember just now; I know there was some noise about it.

7103. By Mr. Garrett: Did you know that the person whom Mr. Hall brought was named Graham? No, I did not.

7104. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know whether Mr. Hall brought you the same person of the name of Graham that you knew before very well? No, it was not the same party, nor either of those three gentlemen, that came yesterday.

Mr. Peter Graham further examined:—

Mr. P.
Graham.

5 Feb., 1864.

7105. By the Chairman: You were examined here the other day? Yes.

7106. You were at Messrs. Robert Iredale & Co.'s yesterday? Yesterday morning.

7107. With two of your brothers? No, one—Alexander.

7108. Mr. Alexander Graham, the contractor for the Burwood Station? Yes.

7109. You went there to see if either of you was the person that went with Mr. Hall at the time he ordered these goods? Yes.

7110.

* NOTE (on revision):—It is charged to the Railway.

† NOTE (on revision):—It is charged to the Railway.

7110. What did Mr. Iredale say? First I went in, and he said I was not the person; then my brother came in, and he said he was not the person, but the person that was introduced to him was a much older man. I think he said he never saw either of us before. I may just state that I am positive that there is not another Graham that has had a contract under the Railway Department but me and my brother, and I do not think there is another contractor of the name in Sydney.

Mr. P.
Graham.

5 Feb., 1864.

7111. You do not know another Graham? I do not.

7112. You are sure there has been no other Graham a contractor under the Railway Department, within the last two or three years? Yes. I have something additional to state about the plans, if necessary, and that is, that the amended plan for the goods warehouse at Penrith would not work, and that the building has not been put up to either plan.

7113. You are speaking of the Penrith goods warehouse? Yes.

7114. Would it have been impossible to erect the building according to the plans? It would be impossible to erect it according to the first plan.

7115. Would it be impossible according to the amended one? Not exactly impossible, but there would be a difference; it would be impossible within a few inches.

7116. That was the fault of the person who drew the plans? I imagine so.

7117. At least they found it so when they paid you the contract money? Yes.

7118. They found you had done all you could to carry out these plans? I had to do all I could in a practical way, and shut my eyes to the plans.

7119. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was the amended plan to scale or figures? Both.

7120. And it will not work either way? It would not work by the figures.

7121. Would it work by scale? It would not work by scale either.

7122. By the Chairman: Looking over these plans (Penrith passenger station and goods warehouse)—you see there are eight of them—do you think all these plans are required for buildings of this nature? I think not.

7123. If Mr. Hume, or any other architect in the Colony, had the drawing of plans for that building, would he give half the drawings, or is it necessary to give half the drawings produced in these plans? Not within my experience.

7124. Do you not believe that, with many of our colonial contractors, a good deal of this drawing would tend rather to confuse than to explain? Yes; a man requires a good deal of knowledge to arrive at the meaning of a plan of that description.

7125. Would Mr. Hume, or any person else, give a full sized window on a plan of this description? Not within my experience.

7126. Take these following doors and the mouldings shewn upon this plan;—could not the whole of these have been given much better and much clearer, and better understood, in the specification? In my opinion they could.

7127. And save a great deal of expense? Yes, and be more convenient to the contractor, both in tendering and performing.

7128. These plans tend to confuse rather than clear up the matter for the contractor? They do.

7129. Is it not usual and much better to give in a specification in two lines, what it would take two days to shew on the plans? Yes, and the contractor would understand it better. After all said and done, this goods-shed is but a common building—a common rough construction.

7130. All that was necessary for it could have been shewn on one sheet? Yes.

7131. Instead of which it is now shewn on four sheets? Two—the goods warehouse.

7132. It could be shewn on one plain sheet of half the size? Yes.

7133. You merely want the elevation and ground plan? Yes, and a cross section.

7134. Take this sketch, shewing the roof joistings;—do you not think a great deal of time was unnecessarily wasted on this plan? I do.

7135. Is it required at all by builders? No.

7136. Does it give as much information as could be given on one sheet of foolscap in a specification? By no means.

7137. Would not that tend to confuse most contractors? Yes, I think it would.

7138. Does it in any way protect the Government? Not in my opinion in any way; because, when a roof is described in the specification and a plan of section, a builder who understands his business will always take his own lines and work independent of all this. I took my own lines for goods warehouse, Penrith.

7139. By describing the roof in a specification, you can shew as much on half a sheet of foolscap as it has cost days to shew on this drawing? Yes, Mr. Bibb, Mr. Hume, Mr. Hilly, Mr. Mansfield, and other architects, describe it in a general way; and it is found very convenient, and works well.

7140. You never saw anything of this kind from them? No.

7141. And they try to protect their constituents as well as a Government officer? They do, and more so; they have generally an agreeable settlement.

7142. Do not all these elaborate plans tend to confuse contractors, and cause them to tender higher than they would do under an ordinary specification? They do. In building this goods warehouse, I may say I took very little notice of these plans in a practical way. I may further say that, in putting up the gates, I could not take my size off the plans to get the gates made, but had to wait till I prepared my openings, because the gates were figured 13 ft. 4 in. on the plan, and I had to make them 13 ft. 7 in.; so that if I had made them according to the figures I should have had to make them again.

7143. Here is another portion of the plans—plan of the roof timbers and floor;—is this necessary? I think not. The detailed skeleton is not, I consider; I am pretty certain I did not put them in according to that.

Mr. P.
Graham.
5 Feb., 1864.

7144. And the surveyor passed them as you put them in, knowing you could not follow out the plan? Yes.

7145. What do you see upon this plan that is necessary (referring to drawing No. 1, goods station, Penrith)? As a rough building I would consider that the ground plan and the external walls shewing the openings would be all that would be necessary; that is, for the ground plan. Then the plan of the timbers and floor I would also consider is necessary to shew the tressels.

7146. By Mr. Dalgleish: Could not the floor and the tressels, as you have termed them, have been shewn on the ground plan equally effectively? They could.

7147. By the Chairman: Can you see any occasion for the plan of the roof timbers at all? I can see no occasion for it whatever.

7148. By Mr. Dalgleish: The studding could be given on the ground plan? Yes.

7149. And the openings on the ground plan? Yes, you might say it could be all embodied on the ground plan.

7150. Even if it had been necessary to have given all this information, could it not all have been shown on the ground plan? It might. All you want is the section and the ground plan, and generally an elevation is given for effect.

7151. By the Chairman: Not because it is wanted? No.

7152. That is all you can see on this plan that is really required? And perhaps this detailed section of the eaves and framing of the roof.

7153. Then the remainder of the plan is perfectly worthless? I consider it is. I may say that such plans as these of the goods warehouse were the means of putting me to a great expense in copying them—I was bound to copy them all.

7154. By Mr. Dalgleish: When you were here before, you said that timber had been used in the building at the Penrith Station that you considered to be wholly unfit for the purpose? Yes.

7155. Who was it that condemned or approved the timber for that building? The Inspector of Works, Mr. Robertson.

7156. Did Mr. Hall at any time interfere with regard to the quality of the materials, or direct Mr. Robertson in any way? I think he did once, but I am not positive; he was there such a short time that he had not much opportunity of seeing much about the timber.

7157. Do you consider that timber was put in the building which is rotten? I do consider it the worst timber I ever saw; if the building had been left to my own discretion I would not have put it in.

7158. Did any other builders of reputation see this timber? Mr. Sutherland, the Member, was passing, and he saw it.

7159. Is he a practical man? Yes.

7160. What was his opinion of the timber? His opinion was, that the timber that was put in the building was bad, and that that was rejected was good. I referred, in my former evidence, to Messrs. Halley and Clyde, and to an old experienced sawyer at Parramatta.

7161. Have you any samples of that timber by you? I have of the timber that was condemned—two 19-foot pieces, 8 by 8, at Penrith.

7162. Have you any samples of the timber put into the building which you consider so bad? It is there to speak for itself in the building.

7163. How long do you think it will last in the building? I thought it was pretty near done before it went in. The timber that is in the building can be seen, because it is a skeleton building.

7164. Is Mr. Robertson a tradesman? I should think not from his manner.

7165. By Mr. Stewart: What was the reason given for condemning the timber? Only that he did not approve of it. In working out this plan there were an immense lot of things I had to do that were not shewn, and in the settlement they would not pay me for it.

7166. By the Chairman: In consequence of not being shewn on the plan? Their argument was that it was all necessary; but I should say that what is not distinctly shewn on the plan and specification, the contractor has a right to be paid for. When I make a tender I take what is on the plan and specification; I do not pretend to plan or specify when tendering; and if a door is put in 6 feet, and it is necessary afterwards to make it 7 feet, I think I ought to be paid for it. It cost me £6 or £7 to make copies of these plans.

7167. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you copy them yourself? I did.

7168. Could you have done it for £6 or £7 if you had had to do it for any one else? I do not know that I could; but I copied them at night and any time that I could spare.

7169. Do you think £12 would have paid you to copy the whole of these plans, working regular hours? I do not think it would.

7170. By the Chairman: It is only latterly they have adopted the plan of making the contractor copy the plans for himself? I am not aware.

7171. By Mr. Stewart: What was the cost of this building, according to the contract? £1,380.

7172. Is it not usual for an architect who condemns wood to give you the reasons why? It is generally; but the power of these people has been such that they give a contractor no reason.

7173. Is that calculated to prevent contractors giving in contracts? It would prevent me, so much so that I would sooner go and sell cabbages almost than do a contract under the same surveyors. When I came to make the studs I asked which would I take, the figures or the plan; none of them answered which; I was in a fix to know which I should take.

7174. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know at what rate your brother took the Burwood Station? From his accounts, I believe, he earned about £8 a week at it.

7175. What was the amount of his tender? I do not know exactly—something like £450.*

7176.

* Revised:—£500.

7176. Do you know the amount of the Government estimate? I think it was £100 or £150 in excess. Mr. P. Graham.
7177. Did your brother lose money by that contract? By no means.
7178. Do you think he would be very glad to take another at the same price? I believe he would. I had particular opportunity of knowing about that contract, because I was assisting him a little at the time. I have no doubt if he had finished the Penrith contract he might have lost a little by it; but I know that, as to the Burwood Station, he made about £8 a week by it, after paying all expenses; and of course that is not bad pay. 5 Feb., 1864.
7179. Out of a £450* job? Yes.
7180. How long did he occupy on the job? I think about three months—I really do not know exactly.

WEDNESDAY, 10 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. STEWART,

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. William Forde called in and examined:—

7181. By the Chairman: You are engaged in the Works Department? In the Railway Branch. Mr. W. Forde.
7182. You know Mr. Moody? Yes. 10 Feb., 1864.
7183. Do you remember him paying a visit to the Fitz Roy Mines? Yes.
7184. You were in the office at that time? I was.
7185. Were you engaged in his room with him? No.
7186. Who is your superior officer? Mr. Moody.
7187. Do you remember him coming back? I do.
7188. Do you remember he prepared a report in the office on the state of the Fitz Roy Mines, after he came back? No, he did not prepare it in the office.
7189. Are you sure of that? Positive.
7190. Had you anything to do with the preparation of that report? I wrote out the report myself from his draft.
7191. Where did you write it? In the office, after office hours; I wrote from 5 till 7 o'clock—it took me two hours.
7192. Did you do the whole of it in two hours? I did.
7193. You are sure you did not do any of it during office hours? Positive.
7194. Who paid you for it? Nobody.
7195. Did you do it at the request of Mr. Moody? Yes.
7196. Do you know how Mr. Moody prepared the draft—where he prepared it? He prepared it, I think, from his own experience.
7197. Where did he prepare it? At home, I believe. He brought it to me in the afternoon. We had been very busy all day—if I remember rightly it was a mail day.
7198. Are you sure Mr. Moody did not prepare that report in his office? I am almost certain—I can safely say he did not; I do not think he wrote a word of it in the office. He is a very particular man in that respect.
7199. Do you know how long it was after he returned from the Fitz Roy Mines that you copied that report? I think it was two or three days afterwards.
7200. Are you sure it did not exceed a week after? I am almost positive it did not.

Mr. Martin Gardiner called in and examined:—

7201. By the Chairman: Are you a civil engineer? Yes. Mr. M. Gardiner.
7202. Where did you learn your profession? In Ireland. I took out my diploma from the Queen's University, as a civil engineer. 10 Feb., 1864.
7203. Under whom did you study? Under Professor Blood.
7204. Have you the diploma with you? Yes.
7205. Will you produce it? (The witness produced the original, and handed in the following copy):—

“QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY IN IRELAND.

“(Queen's College, Galway.)

“WE, the President and Council of the Queen's College, Galway, hereby certify that Mr. Martin Gardiner has diligently pursued the course of study prescribed in the Queen's University in Ireland and is duly qualified to act as Assistant Civil Engineer.

“EDWARD BERWICK, President.

“J. P. O'TOOLE, D.D., Vice-President.

“WILLIAM NESBIT, { Dean of Faculty and Member of the College Council.

“JOHN MULCAHY, { Dean of Faculty and Member of the College Council.

“HUGH LAW, { Dean of Faculty and Member of the College Council.

“W. B. BLOOD, C.E., &c.” This

* NOTE (on revision):—the £450 should be £500.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
10 Feb., 1864.

This was the first diploma of the kind that was ever given from the University—I was the first student that completed the Civil Engineering course—and a special meeting was called to give it me, or it would have been on parchment; I was going to America at the time—getting a position there, and therefore they called a special meeting to give it me. Before being there I studied in other engineering schools, one of which was Mr. Fox's engineering school at Castle Pollard.

7206. How long were you there? Two years.

7207. I see in this diploma it says you were duly qualified to act as assistant engineer? Yes, it was necessary that I should be two years with an engineer, and send in a certificate to the University, before they would regard me as a thorough engineer. I did send such a certificate from America, from Mr. Gzowski, to have my name registered as a man that followed his profession as a civil engineer.

7208. Was Professor Blood a professor of mathematics? No, a professor of civil engineering. He is Engineer to the Queen's University in Ireland. He has the power of entering on all works constructed in Ireland and explaining them to the students. While in Galway, I had access to the docks building there, railways, canals, and everything else. We did the work on the ground, and made our plans and surveys. It was full practice—in fact such practice as no man can ever have on works.

7209. And you completed all the necessary — ? I completed all the course of study. I may mention that I commenced studying engineering, to be an engineer, when I was about ten years of age.

7210. Were you acquainted with manipulations of the theodolite and levels? Yes, at Mr. Fox's school we had the use of instruments. There were instruments there that cost £120.

7211. Did you confine your studies exclusively to engineering? Entirely to engineering, although I competed and took prizes in other subjects.

7212. What was the first engineering work you were engaged on professionally? On the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway, Canada.

7213. Was that railway constructed by the Canadian Government? No, when I went out there first, it was under construction by the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway Company.

7214. Had not the Government anything to do with it? Not then.

7215. Afterwards? Yes, afterwards the Government made advances of money.

7216. Did you remain on that railway until it was opened for traffic? Yes, I remained stationed at Sherbrooke until the opening through my section, and until the track was laid entirely to Portland. The permanent way was being ballasted when I left.

7217. Were you not employed by Sir Morton Peto & Co., as Engineer on the railways under their construction in Canada? Yes; during the time I was Assistant Engineer on the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway, I received a letter from the agent of Peto & Co., requesting me to become an Engineer on the railways that were being constructed by them, and I took that offer. I have the letter with me. (Letter read as follows):—

“ QUEBEC AND RICHMOND RAILWAY.

“ Contractor's Office,
“ Danville, 25th June, 1853.

“ My dear Sir,

“ I am in receipt of a letter from my friend, Mr. Blackie, C.E., who makes “ favourable mention of you to fill a situation as assistant on our works.

“ I think you would be qualified to undertake the duties I wish you to perform.

“ If convenient, I should be glad to meet you at Richmond on Tuesday next, when I “ would explain to you fully what I require, and think there would be every probability of “ our effecting an arrangement, which I trust would be mutually satisfactory.

“ I shall be in Richmond on Tuesday, by 12 or 1 o'clock as near as I can say, or “ probably earlier, so that you could return to Lennoxville same evening if you desired to “ do so.

“ I am &c.,

“ JOSEPH B. MOORE.

“ Mr. Gardiner, C.E.,
“ Lennoxville.”

I was then stationed at Lennoxville, a short way above Sherbrooke.

7218. Then you did not seek employment under that firm? No.

7219. Did not Sir Morton Peto bring out a large engineering staff from England to carry on his railways in Canada? Yes, a very large staff, but the greater number of the engineers were found to be incapable when they were put to work.

7220. In what way were they found to be incapable? Incapable as bushmen. They were chiefly draughtsmen that he brought out, and put them in such positions as they had never filled before. They brought out about seventy, according to report in the papers at the time,*

7221. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know they brought out seventy? No, unless through report in the papers. I know they brought out a large staff.

7222. By the Chairman: Did you see it mentioned in the papers that they brought out a staff of seventy? Yes, seventy, between clerks, surveyors, engineers, and other assistants.

7223. Do you think it was possible for Sir Morton Peto to get a staff in England competent to carry on the railways they undertook? Yes, but I dare say from where they were recommended they could not well have refused to take them, for they came from Brunel's office and and other places, which made it the interest of the firm to take them. I saw letters recommending several of them. Some were put on as engineers that I know did not know how to use the theodolite, for I had to lend the instrument until they got taught the use of it.

* Including agents, engineers, draughtsmen, clerks, &c.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

7224. Who was it that made the drawings for the works under your charge in Canada? <sup>10 Feb., 1864.</sup> The general drawings came from England, but I had to make all the detail drawings for the works under my charge, such as drawings for piers of bridges and culverts, but the iron-work was done in England, and the drawings came out with the work.

7225. The same as they do to this country? No, not the same as they do here.

7226. Where is the difference? In this country there is a nominal supervision of the iron when it comes, and of the kind ordered; but there, there was none—they were allowed to do as they liked.

7227. In Canada? In Canada they had it all in their own hands.

7228. What portion of the Grand Trunk Railway were you employed upon? Quebec and Richmond.

7229. Until its final completion? Until its final completion.

7230. Have you any documentary evidence to that effect? Yes; this is from the Chief Agent of the Canadian Railways. (Letter read as follows):—

“ GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY OF CANADA.

“ Contractor's Department,

“ Tibbet's Cove,

“ Quebec, 23 December, 1854.

“ Dear Sir,

“ The bearer, Mr. Gardiner, has been acting as Assistant Engineer on the first and fourth districts of the Quebec and Richmond section, and is now thrown out of employment by the completion of that line.

“ I have always found him diligent and attentive on the works under his charge, and if you have anything for him to do in your district, I have every reason to believe you will be well pleased with his conduct.

“ Yours truly,

“ JAMES RECKIE.

“ J. Hodges, Esq.”

This was written with the intention of getting me to be Assistant Engineer on the Victoria Bridge that was building at Montreal, but the gentleman that was written to was gone to England when I arrived in Montreal; he had gone about a fortnight before, so I went to Upper Canada to Mr. Gzowski again.

7231. Were you engaged there any length of time? Yes, to complete the two years for my certificate to the Queen's University. I spent part of my time with Mr. Gzowski, and he gave me permission to go to Peto & Co., and then I came back to him for the time required to complete the two years.

7232. Did you do anything else in Canada? Yes. The railway works were at that time stopped all through Canada, and I undertook to survey a township in Upper Canada, along with the Provincial Surveyor, and to lay out a large village in the township of Artemisia.

7233. By Mr. Dalgleish: Why were the railways stopped? On account of the Crimean war. They could not raise money under 15 per cent. I may mention that before I left Peto & Co., I was appointed as Engineer on the Troispistoles Railway. I was appointed Division Engineer there over three others, and was written to to go on to the works.

7234. By the Chairman: Have you that letter? No, I lost it in Victoria.

7235. Where were you next employed? When I got to Quebec the works were stopped, so I continued in the office working as a draughtsman for about two months, until I found the works were not likely to start, and then I went to Upper Canada to Mr. Gzowski.

7236. By Mr. Dalgleish: What do you mean by lost in Victoria? I lost some of my letters there by sending them round to different persons, applying for situations, and I never got them back; I really do not know where that letter was lost.

7237. By the Chairman: Where were you next employed? In Victoria.

7238. How long were you in Victoria? I think I was about three years in Victoria altogether.

7239. When did you come to this country? I came to Victoria in 1857, and to this Colony in 1860.

7240. What position did you hold in Victoria? First I applied for a position as assistant engineer on railway works, and I was told there was no chance for any stranger, for they had more men than they wanted. I requested to have my name put upon the books, so as when a vacancy might occur I would get an appointment, but the Engineer-in-Chief would not permit my name to be put on the books. I then got some other person to speak in my favour, and the name was put on, whether he wished it or not, by Capt. Clarke.

7241. How were you employed? After having this done, I got temporary employment in the Roads Department, as superintendent or inspecting overseer of roads, and I remained in that employment until I got a letter, stating that I had an appointment in the Railway Department as draughtsman.

7242. Did you give satisfaction in your professional capacity? Yes, in the Roads Department.

7243. And also as draughtsman? And also as draughtsman. I was plan draughtsman in Victoria.

7244. How long were you in that department? I think about a year in the Railway Department.

7245. Did you plot work from the surveyors' books? Yes.

7246.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
10 Feb., 1864.

7246. Did you do that satisfactorily? Yes, very.

7247. Were the plans done in Victoria as well as plans are done in this Colony? They were done far more accurately. We calculated all the work the surveyors sent in, and projected it on to a base line, so that there could be no mistake.

7248. That is not done in this Colony? No, it is not done in a proper manner here.

7249. Did you find the surveyors' work properly done there? Not always; I often had to send their work back to have it corrected or checked, or lines run, so that I could guarantee its correctness; I should not say often—sometimes; it did not happen very often.

7250. When you sent it back, did you do so on your own responsibility? No; I went to the Engineer-in-Chief and told him, and he at once said I was to write to the surveyor and tell him what to do. So then I wrote to the surveyor stating what I required measured, so as to check his work.

7251. You went to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways? Yes.

7252. By Mr. Dalgleish: What was his name? Mr. Darbyshire.

7253. By the Chairman: Was he a qualified engineer? He was not an engineer at all, but he was a good surveyor—a practical and scientific surveyor.

7254. Did he understand the science necessary to judge of the abilities of railway surveyors? Yes.

7255. Did he approve of your work? Yes.

7256. How do you know? I got two advances of £50 each in less than a year, so that was a sign my work was approved of.

7257. What salary did you enter at? £200—a lower salary than I had when in the Roads Department. I gave up the higher salary to take the lower on account of having had experience as a railway engineer, and I felt confident I should rise in course of time to a higher position than I could on the Roads.

7258. Was it through the influence of the Engineer-in-Chief that you obtained these increases? No, against his will; because he refused even to enter my name on the list to be called on.

7259. Who was it interested themselves for you? I met a gentleman in Victoria that told me to apply to Mrs. Caroline Chisholm, as she had great influence with Capt. Clarke. I did so, and she went to Capt. Clarke and spoke for me; and Capt. Clarke had my name put down in the book. Were it not for that I would not have got employment there, nor do I think Mr. Darbyshire would have any man that had experience.

7260. Why? The most of the men he appointed had very little experience. I know I was teaching some of them, and got a guinea a lesson for teaching them during the time they were assistant engineers.

7261. Did you get an opportunity of shewing your abilities as a constructive engineer? No, though I wrote to the Engineer-in-Chief asking permission to do so.

7262. Had you practice as a plan drawer or plotter, before you entered that department? Never, unless at college.

7263. Then you were really put at work that would not be so beneficial to the Colony? It was work such as should be given to inferior men—plotting from surveyors' books.

7264. Did you tell the Engineer-in-Chief you were more a constructive engineer than a plan drawer? I did.

7265. Did he ever promise to give you any higher kind of work? No, he never made any verbal promise to me; in fact, he as much as told me he would not.

7266. In consequence, you were dissatisfied with your position? Yes.

7267. That was the cause of your coming to this Colony? No, that was not the cause.

7268. By Mr. Dalgleish: What was the cause of your leaving the Government employment in Victoria? I did not leave the Railway Department in Melbourne; I was put out unjustly by Mr. Darbyshire afterwards.

7269. What do you mean by unjustly? Without reason.

7270. Will you explain to the Committee? Before explaining that, I may mention that after I wrote the letter to Mr. Darbyshire, asking to be employed in a capacity where I might have a chance of shewing my engineering ability, I wrote another letter concerning railway curves. Mr. Darbyshire himself published a small work on "railway curves" when in England, but the system he advocated was the old system, and not at all adapted to the requirements of new Colonies such as Victoria or New South Wales; and I wrote him a long letter, shewing him the improvements that might be made on his system. He never answered that letter. That was a very short time before I was put out of the Railway Department. After writing this letter, I found that two or three persons, who were in the same room working with me, commenced to act as my enemies without any reason; and an employé in the Railway Department told me he had heard that the person in charge of the room where I worked had reported something against me to Mr. Darbyshire, in a letter. He never let me know he reported anything concerning me, and as he and I were good friends at the time, I went into the room and asked him did he do so, and he said yes, and that he would do it whenever he liked. I asked him what he did say, or what it related to, and he told me to find that out—that he would not tell me. I told him that such conduct was very wrong on his part, and that I would try and get removed from the room, as I did not consider my position safe where he had charge; so I went to the chief draughtsman, Mr. Adams, who had then entire control of the office, and I asked him to change me from that room into another. Mr. Adams did so; he changed me as I desired. I told him my reason for wishing to be changed, and he changed me as I desired. After working in the other room until the following Monday—that was two or three days—from Thursday till Monday—Mr. Darbyshire entered the room where I was at work, and at once demanded of me why I was there, or what I was doing. I told him that I got changed from the other room into that by

by Mr. Adams. He asked what reason had I for getting changed. I told him that Mr. Martin's conduct was such that it was far better that he and I should not be in the same room —

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

7271. Mr. Martin was the man you have said had charge of the room? Yes. He said, "Go back directly," and he walked out of the room. I went back directly to the old room, and when I entered there I found Mr. Martin, as usual, discussing, I think, something about Swedenborg with the others, and very noisy in the room, and he commenced laughing at me when I went back. So I requested him to have silence in the room, and to permit me to work; as he took it upon himself to report my conduct, I would expect he should conduct himself properly in the room. He said no, he would talk as he liked, and as long as he liked, and of anything he liked; and worked himself into such a passion that he commenced jumping on the little platform where he was standing —

10 Feb., 1864.

7272. Was this person right in his head? No, I believe not.

7273. By the Chairman: Do you know that he was not? Yes.

7274. By Mr. Dalgleish: Has he ever been in a lunatic asylum? Yes.

7275. Where? In England.

7276. By the Chairman: How do you know? He told me so himself, and shewed me papers that would prove it.

7277. By Mr. Dalgleish: What was it that he held peculiar views about? Chiefly about religion and bomb-shells—those were the things he was on constantly, but religion chiefly. He was a great believer in Swedenborg, and Williams, of America, and was always fighting, he said, with the Rev. John Reid—I do not know whether it is the Rev. John Reid that is here or not; but we heard many days how he took down the Rev. John Reid, and shewed him up as a humbug. He said he had been dead for two hours—that his spirit was in the other world, and that his spirit came back again. I consider that no man without some monomania would have such ideas; but on other points he was very logical.

7278. What about the bomb-shells? No matter what came on the tapis he would improve it, and when the Armstrong guns came out, he would insist that I should make calculations concerning bullets he was making, with ramrods on the top of them and exploding material inside. He wrote to General Macarthur concerning them, and General Macarthur, to humour him, gave him an interview, but of course it came to nothing, for there was nothing in it that was not known dozens of years. And when I refused to make these calculations he became excited —

7279. Was that before he reported you? Yes, immediately before.

7280. By the Chairman: Had you not better go on with your statement? Returning to the statement: After he said he would not quit his noise, and would speak as long as he liked, and whatever he wished, no matter how I would like it, I told him I would complain to Mr. Darbyshire, and have it stopped. He told me to do my best; so I went out, and entered Mr. Darbyshire's room, and explained the matter to him, and requested him to come and speak to Mr. Martin. I told him that I did not want to give any annoyance in the office, and that it was my wish to be removed out of that room; but if I was compelled to stop there, the result certainly would be annoyance to myself and to Mr. Martin, and the whole office, as I certainly would not suffer him to act in such a manner, when at the same time he was reporting my conduct, which was unblamable. Mr. Darbyshire said he would not interfere—to go back to the room, and he would give me no satisfaction—in fact he laughed into my face, and told me he would not interfere with private quarrels. I went back to the room as desired, and when I entered, Mr. Martin was speaking of these cannon balls, explaining them to a person that came from another room—I forget his name—I think he was a young man that came from Tasmania; and when he saw me coming in, he became louder in his explanations, and made as much noise as possible. I went to work, and I found, from his cutting remarks, that I could not be sure of the work I was doing, so I requested him again to drop them and let us have peace in the room. He said he would not—what satisfaction did I get from my complaint? I told him I would certainly report the office to the Minister for Works if he did not drop it, and not only that, but I would report the scandalous charges made in that office concerning Mr. Gavan Duffy, who was then on a sick bed, given over by the doctors, and shew the state of the office—that I was not going to be injured by him when I was doing nothing wrong. He said if there was anything said against Mr. Duffy I said it myself, and to do as I liked—what did he care about me? So I went to Mr. Darbyshire again and went into his room, and asked him to interfere or to change me out of the room. *(Mr. Martin became so violent that he had his hands up as high as his head and clenched, although not making a stroke at me—in fact he was foaming at the mouth, and working himself either into a mock passion or a real passion, I could not say which.) Mr. Darbyshire refused to interfere, nor would he change me out of the room. After coming out I wrote in a note to him, asking permission to absent myself that half-day so that I might report the matter to the Deputy Minister for Works, Mr. Horne, the Minister for Works being sick. He would not answer my note, but sent out a verbal message that I was to find my own time to do it. I felt so annoyed at such treatment that I became unwell and excited, so much so that I knew if I went back to the room the result would be a quarrel, if I were attacked in the same manner; and I knew the regulations in the Government service in Victoria are such, that any person who strikes a blow in any department is put out—in fact both parties are put out, and knowing that, I did not wish to enter the room again, seeing that I was irritated and all these men inside were irritated because I was reporting their conduct; so I made a minute that remains there still on the office book, stating that I was too unwell and excited to work for the remainder of * NOTE (on revision):—This part, within parentheses, was in reply to a remark made, and not in answer to the question.

Mr. M. Gardiner. of that day, and that I would absent myself for the afternoon. I then went to the Minister for Works and made a complaint, and for doing that I was dismissed the department. They called it insubordination.

10 Feb., 1864.

7281. Was the charge of insubordination made against you? Yes.

7282. Will you look at these documents (documents from Victoria with reference to the dismissal of Mr. Gardiner—Vide Appendix to Mr. Whitton's evidence)? The latter part of this charge was never preferred against me:—"As Mr. Gardiner has thus set an example of insubordination which cannot be permitted to go unpunished, and as he has on other occasions exhibited a want of industry and general inattention to business, I have the honor to suggest that his services may at once be dispensed with." The latter part of the charge must have been what was reported against me by Mr. Martin; and, as my work would have clearly shewn, I was ten times more attentive than Mr. Martin himself, and of course upset the charge altogether; it was not preferred against me or one word said about it.

7283. Look at your own letter;—is that a true statement of what occurred? Yes; it was written closer to the time than what I have stated at present, and therefore is likely to be more minute.

7284. Did Mr. Hodgkinson make any inquiry into the matter? Yes; but the report he gave in was not exactly the same, perhaps, as he gave afterwards verbally to another Minister for Works.

7285. You have read those documents;—was there any further investigation into this case of yours afterwards? Yes.

7286. What was the nature of the investigation? When Mr. Francis came into power (another Minister for Works), I appealed to him for justice. I got Mr. Robert Stirling Anderson, a Member of the House, to speak to Mr. Francis concerning the matter, and I went to Mr. Hodgkinson himself to ask him what report he made concerning me. He said he never recommended my dismissal.

7287. He has here—(referring to the documents last mentioned)? No; he only says my conduct was such, &c. Perhaps he was compelled to say it, because he told me a different story.* They might have transferred me from that to a different department, or have done many things they did to other men.†

7288. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did Mr. Hodgkinson ever give you a letter of character? Not of character, but of engineering ability.

7289. By the Chairman: There was no question about your abilities? No, because my work was all thoroughly checked, and found to be well done.

7290. Do you not consider this sentence tantamount to recommending your dismissal:—"I have arrived at the conclusion that, on the 7th March, Mr. Gardiner left the railway office before noon without leave, under circumstances not only calculated, if tolerated, to impair the authority of the Engineer-in-Chief, but to render the maintenance of discipline among his professional subordinates impossible"? I do not consider that should have caused my dismissal from the public service, but that they should have had me transferred to another department, perhaps.

Mr. Dalgleish here interposed an objection to the line of examination.

7291. Do you not think that sentence tantamount to recommending your dismissal? It may be on the paper, but Mr. Hodgkinson had another opinion that he expressed to me.

7292. Mr. Hodgkinson could not have dismissed you? He would have the power of recommending my dismissal.

7293. Mr. Hodgkinson was only appointed by the Minister for Works to inquire into the charge made against you? I never denied the charge of leaving the office; I never said I did not do so.

Mr. Dalgleish again objected to the line of examination. Witness withdrew. Committee deliberated. Witness recalled.

7294. You said you thought this was not tantamount to recommending your dismissal, but that you might have been removed to another department? Yes, that might have been done.

7295. You were going on to state about some subsequent examination or inquiry? I got Mr. Anderson, who was Member for Emerald Hill, to speak to Mr. Francis, when he was Minister for Works; and he did speak, and I went to Mr. Hodgkinson to ask him what kind of a report he made against me, or how it was I got dismissed on such a case as that. He told me I might refer the Minister to him—that he thought my conduct, under the circumstances, was highly creditable.

7296. Was it from information you gave him that he thought it was creditable? No; but that he thought I had done nothing wrong in the department, that should have had me dismissed. So I did speak to Mr. Anderson, and tell him to have Mr. Francis speak to Mr. Hodgkinson, and Mr. Francis did speak to Mr. Hodgkinson, and called for the papers and read them over, and made a minute in my favour.

7297. How do you know? He told me himself.

7298. Did you ever hear any person else speak of that minute? No, not unless Mr. Francis; but of course he would not tell anything but the truth about it. Mr. Francis, when he told me he made the minute in my favour, told me to call on him again in about a week or so; I called on him as he desired, and he told me he would speak to Mr. Higginbotham about having me put back in the department. Mr. Higginbotham was then Engineer-in-Chief, Mr. Darbyshire having been compelled to resign on various charges. Mr. Darbyshire was accused of being more intimate than he should be with the contractor, Mr. Bruce.

7299. Has that anything to do with your affair? No; I merely state it to shew that Mr. Darbyshire was put out, and that Mr. Higginbotham was Engineer-in-Chief at the second time I called on Mr. Francis.

7300.

* NOTE (on revision):—This latter portion was in reply to a question asked by Mr. Dalgleish.
† Revised:—Done for other persons.

7300. Just keep to what has reference to your own case. You have no doubt there is a minute——? He said he made a minute in my favour; and the second time I called, he said he was going to speak to Mr. Higginbotham to have me reinstated. At this time I was in correspondence with Capt. Martindale, having seen advertisements in the papers calling for competent men to come up to the Railway Department here. When I saw these advertisements I wrote up here, and I got a letter in reply, about the day I saw Mr. Francis last, stating that if I would come up at my own risk and expense and stand a creditable examination, I would be recommended for an appointment here. I consulted with my friends, and they advised me to come up here, to avoid all trouble with the department in Melbourne, as they did not treat me well before. I took that choice, or I would have been back that week.

7301. By Mr. Dalgleish: How do you know? Because Mr. Francis told me he was going to speak to Mr. Higginbotham to have me put back. I may mention another fact about Mr. Francis: that while speaking with Mr. Francis about my case the first time, Mr. Darbyshire entered the room, and Mr. Francis called him and asked had he anything to say against me, and he said he knew nothing about the case but just as he had been told. Mr. Francis told him to repeat his words, and I think he wrote them down. I know Mr. Francis told Mr. Anderson, the Member for Emerald Hill, that in Mr. Darbyshire's conduct towards me he had acted with great duplicity.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

10 Feb., 1864.

7302. By the Chairman: How do you know that? Mr. Anderson told me himself.

7303. You entered into correspondence with the Railway Department here? Yes, I saw advertisements of theirs in the Melbourne papers, calling upon competent men to send in applications for the positions of draughtsmen and surveyors, and I wrote up, asking the terms, and received a letter back which said nothing at all about temporary employment, nor did the advertisements speak of temporary employment, for if they did I would never have come.

7304. Will you read the letter you received? (Letter read as follows):—

“ Railway Branch,
“ Department of Internal Communication,
“ Sydney, 31 May, 1860.

“ Sir,

“ Referring to your letter of the 22nd instant, offering yourself as a candidate for an appointment as a railway surveyor and draughtsman, in pursuance of an advertisement in the daily papers inviting applications to be made to this Government for appointments of that character by duly qualified persons, I am directed to inform you, all gentlemen desirous of entering the scientific branches of the department of Internal Communication, have to undergo an examination before they are recommended for appointments. If you, therefore, choose to visit Sydney at your own risk and expense at once, and should you pass a favourable examination, you will be recommended for an appointment in the capacity referred to.

“ I have, &c.,
“ R. MOODY,
“ Chief Clerk.”

I wrote a letter in answer to that, of which the only copy I have is one I made from memory; whether it is absolutely correct or not I cannot say, but it is as to the sense, and most probably as to the words. (Letter read as follows):—

“ Corner of Dryburgh and Victoria Streets, “ North Melbourne, 6 June, 1860.

“ Sir,

“ I have just received your letter, informing me of the preliminary examination which must be passed by candidates for employment in the scientific branches of the Department of Internal Communication.

“ I shall endeavour to be in the next steamer, as I feel confident of making a creditable examination both in the theoretical and practical branches of my profession.

“ R. Moody, Esq.,
“ Chief Clerk, &c.”

“ I have, &c.,
“ MARTIN GARDINER.

7305. Did you visit Sydney? Yes, with the understanding that I was to undergo an examination, and that if I made a creditable one I would get an appointment of course.

7306. Who examined you? Mr. Whitton.

7307. Did you make a creditable examination? Yes, in every respect. He told me so; and he went to his drawer and pulled out a list, shewing me the salaries voted for the year, and that the highest salary was £400, with £280 expenses if in the field. He said he would give me that, and that he was very sorry he had not it in his power to give me higher; that I should get a good deal higher in course of time, and that he would take the first opportunity of recommending me for a higher salary at the next Estimates. I never knew it was temporary at the time, or I would not have accepted it.

7308. What was the nature of the examination? He asked me for my certificates and I shewed them, taking care to keep back the scientific ones, as I had found them act against me elsewhere. He asked me was I an engineer; I said I was. He asked for my diploma; I shewed it him, and he said it was a formidable document; I said it was a creditable document. He then took out a small model of a bridge and asked my opinion of it; I told him my opinion of it was, that it was very good for spans of 15 or 20 feet, and heights of 20 feet or so, but that if the bridge was a large one it would require bracing—for small bridges it was a good serviceable bridge, and would last a long time. Then he asked me, was I a mathematician; I said, yes. He asked did I understand railway curves;

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
10 Feb., 1864.

curves; I said, yes. He asked me:—Given the radius of a curve, and the angle that the two tangents make with each other, to calculate the length of the tangent; and of course I did it at once for him—without logarithms, by a simple multiplication—without opening a log book at all. He said, I could not do it without logs. I said, yes, I could. He said, “It is impossible, but you have the right answer at any rate; how you got it I don’t know.” I told him I could work out two such questions by my method while he would be looking for his logs. Then he said, “You are a first class mathematician.” I said, yes, I thought I was. He said, “Are you sure you are?” I told him it was my own opinion, but men’s opinions of themselves were not always correct. “Well,” he said, “I think you are; and I will recommend you for so-and-so;” and he said he would rise me as soon as he could. He never spoke the word temporary. If he did at the time, I would have sued the Government for my expenses.

7309. Did he make any observations about the nature of the work he wanted you to do? He said he did not want a surveyor or draughtsman—it was a civil engineer he wanted. He asked me if I understood getting out bridges. I told him, “Yes; bridges of iron, wood, or stone.” He said he would put me to getting out some bridges—that he was in a great hurry, and that if I would work hard, and have the work done in time, he would recommend me.

7310. Did you tell Mr. Whitton that you had written any papers on railway curves? No, I took very good care I did not.

7311. Why? Because I found it acts against a man if he knows anything of science. I found out from Mr. Whitton’s own examination before the House, or a Committee—I bought it in a printed paper at the Government Printing Office—that he was no scientific man, and therefore I did not shew him any papers.

7312. Do you think they would have acted against you? I believe it would. If I had shewn him these papers, it is my firm belief I would never have got an appointment.

7313. That is merely your opinion? I have had good reason for it since.

7314. What reason? Because as long as he thought I was not a scientific man, he was a great friend of mine; but when he found I was, he was not so great a friend, and my services were soon dispensed with.

7315. Did you form any opinion of Mr. Whitton’s professional attainments, during the examination you underwent? I was convinced he was not anything of a mathematician, from his observations, and he told me, in fact, himself, that he did not read the higher branches necessary for those calculations.

7316. Under whose directions did you work? The only directions I got were the spans of the bridges and the sections to plot from, but no other directions worth speaking of.

7317. What was the nature and extent of the works you were engaged at, during your first appointment? I did a great deal of work during my first appointment. I got out sketches and estimated the bridges and viaducts, for the three extensions then contemplated, for first class railways.

7318. Did you make any drawings or detail of iron-work? Yes, I made those drawings, although I knew Mr. Whitton did not wish I should make them. He came and told me he wanted the weights of the iron got out. I told him I could not take out those weights without making sketches of the details. He told me if it was possible to do so, to try and get them. I told him these were not in any books I had, and I could not do it without making the sketches. He then said, “Make them as rough and as fast as you can.” He was down generally once a day, every day I was in the office, getting out these bridges, and always stood over me and was asking questions concerning the work I was doing.

7319. Did he ever give you any instructions concerning angle irons, or anything of that kind? No; I asked him one day—he was civiler to me at that time than to any other in the room—what strain he wished for the working load on the iron; whether it should be greater here than in England; he seemed not to understand what I meant. I asked him whether he would have  $4\frac{1}{2}$  or 5 tons for the greatest working strain that could come on the bridge. He considered a while and asked me what I would think. I told him, to be on the sure side, I would have only  $4\frac{1}{2}$  tons, because one fourth of the bearing strain is generally considered the greatest working strain. He seemed to be entirely unconscious of that, became a little red in the face, stammered out something, and told me to do as I liked. So then I calculated  $4\frac{1}{2}$  tons as the greatest strain.

7320. You are aware that Mr. Whitton denies that you got out any details of drawings of iron girder bridges? He may deny it, but the evidence is clear that he was aware of it, because he was down there every day. I saw one of those drawings on the table here, furnished by the Railway Department I suppose.

7321. Is there any manner in which you could prove your statement to be true? The dimensions of the bridges that came out from England are entirely different to the dimensions I have used. Mine are not half the weight of his, and they are as strong.

7322. Could you point that out to the Committee? I will explain the matter. In iron girder work the rivetting is always the weak part in bridges. The rivets for the bridges that came out from England are the same as the rivets I used in the bridges I designed there; the rivet bearing is no stronger, and the surplus iron that is in the Menangle Bridge, for instance, is of no use whatever; in fact, it is detrimental, for it acts as a dead weight straining the rivets. If I take two pieces of cast-iron and put them on supports 3 feet apart, and connect them in the middle with two small rivets and put a weight on top, with these small rivets, they may not bear a pound; but if I put two weaker pieces of iron and the same rivets I have a stronger bridge, and perhaps ten times as light. The deflection of a bridge has nothing whatever to do with its strength. Deflection and stiffness are two different things. I have no doubt the Menangle Bridge is stiffer than what I have got out, and than such as are used in India and elsewhere, but it is no stronger and it is more costly.

In

In consequence of the extra weight of iron in the Menangle Bridge alone, if my design for the 150 feet span were used, it would save £20,000, at Mr. Whitton's prices, for the iron.

7323. And your bridge would have been as durable and as strong? It would have been as durable and as strong, and as strong as those on the Indian Railways, and they are found to be strong enough.

7324. They have been in existence for some time? Yes, for a number of years.

7325. Did Mr. Whitton supply you with any sketch of the works during that time? Never with a sketch of any iron-work. I think he supplied me once with a sketch of an abutment of one of the stone viaducts—a little rough sketch—the only thing he ever gave me. It is on one of the papers somewhere; I saw it on one of those sketches of my own. It is not worth mentioning—just what a child would do—merely that he was making a remark and drew a pencil sketch across one of them.

7326. By Mr. Dalgleish: Perhaps it would be as well if you pointed out to the Committee what portion of the work is yours? All of it is mine; and this (referring to a number of drawings) is only a small part of what I have done there—at least I do not see all I have done in the Railway Department.

7327. By the Chairman: Do you mean to say all the sketches you have drawn for the extension of the lines are not here? I think the most of them are not here—there were fully double the quantity. About half of them are here. I miss a great many; and I think, from the numbers, that these belong to the Western Line alone. I do not see the Southern ones at all.

7328. Did you complete the estimates for the stone-work and iron-work for the first class railways? Yes; I plotted the ground work, made the calculations, and everything else, and was never checked.

7329. And estimated the cost of the work? It would not take five minutes to estimate the cost at so much a yard or ton. I gave them the exact quantities.

7330. Did you have the bridges completed long before your services were dispensed with? Yes, some time; I think I had them done in about five months. I did the earth-works afterwards, and made a reduced copy from Mr. Woore's railway section.

7331. Are we to understand that Mr. Woore's surveys were made use of in the Railway Department? Yes.

7332. How did you know they were Mr. Woore's work? Because they were marked as Mr. Woore's.

7333. Were they of much use to the department? They would be of great use in getting the best line. Of course a section over any part of a country would facilitate finding out the best line; because a man, before setting to work to do his own survey, would know how much ground he had to trace* in a certain length. Whether they adopted Mr. Woore's exact line I cannot say; but it must have been of great service, and they made use of it.

7334. Are you aware Mr. Barton denies having made use of Mr. Woore's surveys? I heard he denied having them at all in the office.

7335. You know they have made use of them? Yes.

7336. And that they have been of great service? They must have been of great service.

7337. By Mr. Stewart: If it is denied, it is an incorrect statement? Certainly.

7338. By the Chairman: Did you do any other kind of work? With the exception of calculating the earth-works after Mr. Campbell's services were dispensed with—his services were dispensed with a few weeks before mine. He was getting a less salary than I was getting then. I was put to finish up the earth-works after getting up the masonry and iron-work.

7339. Did you receive a notice previous to your services being dispensed with? I received a notice, about a month before the time, that at the end of the year my services would be dispensed with; and two or three others received the same notice; Mr. Deering was one—he entered the Lands Department, I think, as a licensed surveyor.

7340. I think you stated in one of your letters to the Empire, that you obtained the opinion of counsel as to whether you could enforce the conditions mentioned by Mr. Whitton? Yes. After I received this letter I went to Mr. Whitton and asked how it was I was going to be got rid of now, after being so serviceable and working so hard—and I put him in mind of his promise to me. He pretended† to have forgotten his promise altogether; but as I was going out of the room, he called me back and said he would recommend me the first opportunity, but that at present they were going to reduce the staff, and that it was not in his power to hold me on. Then I went to Mr. Martin, who was then after setting up to be a Member, and was beaten at the election; he told me I could not carry out my case in law, because I did not protest in the beginning, but that if I got a Member to bring it into the House it would be the best plan, and he would advise me to do it.

7341. Did you complain to Capt. Martindale about the manner in which you were treated by Mr. Whitton? I did; I went first to Sir William Denison, and complained to him, and he gave me a letter of introduction to Capt. Martindale. Capt. Martindale said it was very unfair, but that he would do what he could; and that he would recommend me for a position in the Roads Department.

7342. Did you receive any appointment? No.

7343. Did you get an appointment to make some surveys before you had finished in the Railway Department? Yes.

7344. Who recommended you for that appointment? Mr. Whitton.

7345. Did he recommend you verbally, or in writing? In writing.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

10 Feb., 1864.

THURSDAY,

* Revised:—ascend or descend.

† Revised:—seemed

THURSDAY, 11 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. GARRETT.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Martin Gardiner called in and again examined:—

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.

7346. By the Chairman: I think the last question I asked you was whether you did not get an appointment to make some survey before you finished in the Railway Department? Yes, a survey of Cherry Tree Hill.

7347. Who recommended you for that appointment? Mr. Whitton.

7348. Did he recommend you verbally, or in writing? I saw the minute.

7349. Did not Mr. Arnold make a statement in reference to that in the House? Yes, he said that Mr. Whitton told him that he did not recommend me, and that I gave no satisfaction when I was there; but he made that statement on Mr. Whitton's authority—not on his own.

7350. But he said so? Yes; that "Mr. Whitton had assured him on his word of honour" that that was the fact.

7351. Did Mr. Arnold make any other statement on the authority of Mr. Whitton? Yes, I think all the statements he made were on the authority of Mr. Whitton; he could not know anything of the circumstances but what he was told.

7352. Those statements were prejudicial to your character? Yes, very; so much so that I have not a chance of getting an appointment outside the Colony unless these things are cleared up.

7353. Will you enumerate them? He said I did not give satisfaction at first—that Mr. Whitton did not know the work I was engaged on, as he very seldom visited the office, and only knew of me by hearsay, from what inferior officers told him. Mr. Arnold said Mr. Whitton assured him of that; and I did not contradict him, because I did not know whether he did so or not.

7354. Did he not impute to you dishonesty in regard to money lodged to your account? Yes, but I think he partly drew back out of that statement when I published my explanation in the Empire.

7355. What is your explanation? The whole of it has been published in the Empire, and it states all concerning that transaction. I can get the letter if you think it necessary.

7356. Could you not give to the Committee a short statement of the facts? Yes. After making a survey of Cherry Tree Hill, and a rough traverse along the Mudgee Road, I came to town to give up the appointment; but Mr. Collett requested me to make a survey along the Goulburn Road, and I went up to Goulburn. Just as the survey was started I received a telegram from Mr. Collett, the Commissioner for Roads, stating that money to the amount of £98 and upwards had been paid by mistake to my account, and requesting that I would send him a cheque to that amount. The moment I got this telegram I drew out a cheque for the amount demanded, and posted it that evening. The next day, however, I went to Goulburn and telegraphed to him to know when it was that this money was lodged to my account.

7357. To whom? To Mr. Collett. I waited in Goulburn for a reply, but received none. On that day or the next, I cannot say which, I sent a second telegram, again inquiring how it was this money was lodged to my account, or whether it was lodged before a certain period, because, if so lodged before the time I mentioned, it would appear upon my bank book, which was made up to a certain date. I wished therefore to know whether he was not in error, and stated that I awaited a reply. I received no reply to my telegrams. I then telegraphed to the bank to stop payment of the cheque until further orders from me. After I sent this telegram to the bank I used no more cheques for the payment of anything. I continued on the survey as far as Gunning, as I agreed to do. But before then I wrote to Mr. Collett, stating that I was only to proceed as far as Gunning; and when I had done to Gunning I wrote a letter, stating that I resigned, and that I would hold on the men if he wished to send another surveyor in my place, as it would save expense to the Government. I brought my men back to Goulburn on foot, and I went to the Manager of the Commercial Bank; I shewed him Mr. Collett's order on me for £98, and told him I did not know what amount I had in the bank; I said I did not wish to pay my men in cheques under the circumstances, and I asked him for the loan of £20 to pay the men. He said I was a stranger, but that I was so candid in shewing him the difficulties of my position, and in telling him that I was going down to town to resign, that he would give me £20 on his own responsibility, as he could not be deceived in me—that I was honest—although it was a thing that he would not do for other persons that applied to him. I do not know the Manager's name, but of course he can be appealed to. I paid the men out of that £20; came to town and resigned. I went to the bank and found that there was some extra money paid in to my account, but that the £98 was not paid in to my account; some was held back.

7358. From the £98? Yes; I went up to the office and found that the Roads Department had not lodged my pay up to a certain date; I was then about £22 short. The extra money lodged to my account had been lodged by the Survey Department, I having been transferred previously from the Survey Department into the Roads Department. I at once called upon the Surveyor General, Mr. McLean, and gave him a cheque to the full amount.

7359. Of what had been paid in to your credit? To the full amount paid in to my credit.

7360. How long was this after you received the telegram from Mr. Collett? It might have been a month.

7361. It was the first opportunity you had? Of seeing my bank account and paying this money. If I had got an answer from Mr. Collett, to the telegram I sent to him, I would not have disputed the payment; but I had good reason to be cautious in the matter, because, on a previous occasion, money that should have been paid to my account by the Survey Department was not paid up to date, and I overdraw my account in the bank through that; but the Surveyor General, Mr. McLean, when he heard of the matter, had the money at once lodged to my account.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

11 Feb., 1864.

7362. The telegrams you sent from Goulburn must be in possession of the Works Department? Yes, they are Government telegrams; I know I did not pay for the last of them.

7363. Then there was no foundation for the charge of dishonesty in connection with this transaction? None. It was the reverse; I put myself in difficulties; I went borrowing money so that not the least shadow of doubt should exist; I did not pay my men in cheques, as I had previously done.*

7364. Is there not a person of the name of Kennedy in the Railway Department? I saw a person once whose name was said to be Kennedy, but I do not know him.

7365. Do you know that he and another person have been making inquiries as to your character and proceedings on the roads? I have heard so.

7366. Do you owe any money to any person on the Mudgee Road? No.

7367. You made a survey of that road in 1861. Yes, I made a rough traverse.

7368. Was it not immediately after that, that the new road over Cherry Tree Hill was made? Yes, after. There was a complete survey of Cherry Tree Hill.

7369. Do you know any person of the name of Moore? Yes, beyond Cherry Tree Hill.

7370. Do you owe him money? No, not that I am aware of.

7371. Did you owe him any money at the time you were engaged in the neighbourhood? No, not that I am aware of. If the men owed for anything in the shape of supplies, I would not pay them (the men) until their bills were paid.

7372.

* ADDED (on revision):—The letter which I inserted in the Empire is as follows:—

(A.)

“THE WORKS DEPARTMENT.

“To the Editor of the ‘Empire.’

“Sir,

“As I consider my character impugned by a statement made by Mr. Arnold (as reported in the columns of your paper), during a debate on a petition which I presented to the House of Assembly, I request you will permit me to explain the matter in your columns.

“I went to Goulburn in 1861, to take a traverse and levels of the road from Goulburn towards Albury. While camped near Goulburn I received a command from Mr. Collett, the Commissioner for Roads, to transmit him a cheque for upwards of £90, as money to such amount had been lodged to my credit in the Bank of New South Wales, through some misunderstanding between the Survey and Roads Departments. The same hour I received that command I wrote out the cheque for the full amount, and sent the foreman to post it for Mr. Collett. When the foreman returned to camp from the Post Office in Goulburn, he reminded me of cheques I sent when the money I counted on was not lodged to my credit until after their presentation. The next morning I went to the Telegraph Office, and sent a telegram to Mr. Collett, asking to be informed as to how it happened that I was overpaid, and (I think) stating that I awaited a reply. I awaited some hours, and then sent a long telegram (charged to the Government account by the telegraph clerk), asking was the money paid into the bank before or after the date of the latest settlement of my bank book, and stating that I awaited a reply. I got no reply to either telegram, and it was then, and not until then, I telegraphed to the bank to stop payment of the cheque. And I received no answer from the bank, and remained, until my arrival in Sydney, under the impression that the bank authorities disregarded my warning. However, immediately, after this my health commenced to fail, and I wrote to Mr. Collett, stating that such was the case, and requesting him to send another surveyor in my stead, as I would do no further than Gunning. I then traversed and levelled the road to Gunning, and returned, with all my men, to Goulburn.

“I considered that my account at the bank (after receiving Mr. Collett’s command) did not warrant me to pay the men, as I usually did, by means of cheques; so as there was no branch of the Bank of New South Wales in Goulburn, I went to the Commercial Bank, and explained the position. I was in, to the Manager. I shewed him Mr. Collett’s command; I told him the Bank of New South Wales did not answer my telegram; I told him I was going to Sydney, to resign my position or appointment as road surveyor; and I requested him to advance me £20, so as to enable me to carry out my intentions.

“The Manager of the bank (whose name I do not know) then said that, under the circumstances, he would not advance money to a perfect stranger, but that I having acted with such candour in shewing him the difficulties of my position, he would, on his own responsibility, give me the £20. I got the £20; I paid the men; I came to Sydney, and handed my banking account to Mr. Collett, so that he might see reason for my telegrams. I went the next day the bank opened, and found that some £20 or £23 less than the stated surplus was to my account. I made inquiries, and was told it would not be lodged until I gave the cheque for the £98. I then drew out a cheque to the full amount demanded in favour of Mr. McLean, the Surveyor General, and I sent it to him. I may also mention that when I arrived in Sydney, Mr. Collett expressed surprise at my presence, and said he sent me a letter (which I never received) telling me to continue on the survey. I resigned my position, and told him I would not continue under him.

“The other statement made by Mr. Arnold, viz., that I said myself and family “were starving,” is false. I never said such to any man, nor would I state such if it were to procure me a higher salary than is now paid to Mr. Arnold himself. I told him that I was not able to procure employment, and that all my money was spent; and that I saw no prospect of being able to hold out until Mr. Whitton should recommend me. I told Mr. Whitton the same thing. But I would rather die than disgrace myself by making the statement attributed to me by Mr. Arnold. The rest of what Mr. Arnold states of the interview is true; but not the whole truth, as I will soon clearly prove. However, I will here state that I did then believe Mr. Arnold was sincere in wishing to forward my promotion; and I still believe he was then well disposed towards me; but he is now most unreasonably false in his statements; I do not say he is designedly false.

“As to my ability as a civil engineer, I will soon demonstrate that to the people of this Colony.

“I am, Sir,

“Yours truly,

“MARTIN GARDINER, C.E.

“July 29th, 1863.”

- Mr. M. Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.
7372. Did the party of men under your charge conduct themselves properly? Yes, those on Cherry Tree Hill.
7373. Did not the others do so? No, I had to discharge some of them for drunkenness and insubordination. It was wet weather, and I could not get them to work more than two days in a week. During the idle time, when there was wet weather, they would go to the taverns, to drink. When sober I had no trouble with them; but when they were drunk (and sometimes they would be drinking for weeks), I could not get them to work.
7374. There were some complaints of errors having been made in the survey, I believe? They were errors of chainage, which arose from sickness on my part, as I was disabled from rheumatism, and could not stand over the men when they were chaining. I had therefore to depend upon their returns. Although they both brought a tally on paper, they must have combined to make them the same in order to deceive me. They were not always drunk.
7375. It was owing to their conduct that the errors arose in the chainage? As much as to my sickness. But however they conducted themselves, if I had not been sick I would have seen that the chainage was right. I told Mr. Collett that I had no check of the work. He said this was unsatisfactory. I said it was his own fault, as I had asked him for permission to run check-lines. He said it was unnecessary, as he intended to send a leveller over the work.
7376. Did you certify to the correctness of the chainage? No, I refused.
7377. Were you asked to do so? Yes, by Mr. Collett, and I refused.
7378. Did you give any reason for your refusal? Yes, that the survey was not done according to the principles I held to be correct.
7379. The work on Cherry Tree Hill was correct? Yes, because * I estimated the cuttings and did everything else necessary. It was a piece of engineering, and I had to find the best road. The other was a mere traverse.
7380. It was a more difficult work than that in which the errors of chainage occurred? Yes, such work as traversing could be done by a boy.
7381. Was it difficult to find the best road over Cherry Tree Hill? It was comparatively difficult.
7382. Do you consider that you found the best possible road? I am convinced of it. I made the survey, checked the work, and guaranteed its accuracy.
7383. Was not that work which Mr. Whitton had recommended you to perform? Yes, the work over Cherry Tree Hill.
7384. That was after your services were dispensed with in the Railway Department? Yes.
7385. What reason was given for dispensing with your services in the Railway Department? That the Government refused to carry on the first class railways as fast as it had been thought they would have done.
7386. Did the Engineer in Chief of Roads approve of the road you surveyed? No, but he had not his own way in the matter. Mr. Collett approved of mine in preference to his.
7387. That is, in preference to the road of the Engineer-in-Chief for Roads? Yes.
7388. Do you know the reason why Mr. Collett adopted your road in preference to that laid out by Mr. Beazeley? Yes. The Parliament voted only £2,000 for the making of this road over the mountain, and Mr. Beazeley assured Mr. Collett it could not be done under £8,000, and that my estimate was only guess-work. Mr. Collett asked me if I could do it for £2,000. I said for less, and do it well. He told me to cross-section it, and he would come up and see it. I did so. He saw it, and approved of it highly. It was done for £1,600 or £1,700.
7389. Although the Engineer-in-Chief for Roads said it could not be done under £8,000? Yes, and not then done well.
7390. Had you any dispute about this road? I had not, but Mr. Collett and Mr. Beazeley had a very hot dispute.
7391. Did you interfere in the quarrel in any way? No, not a word.
7392. And the Engineer-in-Chief and the Commissioner settled the matter by adopting your recommendation? Yes, my work.
7393. Did the Engineer-in-Chief inspect the road before calling for contracts? Yes.
7394. That is, after you had laid it out? Yes, after I had completed it.
7395. Was the Commissioner a civil engineer? Not a professional engineer; he has a good knowledge of works.
7396. Do you believe in his engineering capacity? As far as roads are concerned; but I do not think he understands engineering † as well as Mr. Beazeley.
7397. When were you dismissed from the Works Department? I think about the 14th July, 1863.
7398. What reason was given for your dismissal? No reason that I am aware of. I did not get a letter stating the reason; I merely got one stating that I was dismissed.
7399. And no reasons were given? No reasons were given.
7400. How long was it from the first time you heard that you were to be dismissed until the time when you were dismissed? I think Mr. Whitton's minute recommending my dismissal was on the 14th July, 1863; and I got no official account concerning the dismissal until late in August.
7401. What was the first communication—by letter? No.
7402. Verbally? I wrote to Mr. Whitton that I was sick and had a pain in my face, so that I could not stoop, and asked for permission to absent myself for a day or so.
7403. When was this? About the time I was dismissed. That letter was not answered. I went to Mr. Quodling, the clerk, and he brought out Mr. Drewett's minute paper, and it had * INSERTED (on revision):—I was empowered to use my own judgment in the survey of Cherry Tree Hill.

† Revised:—surveying.

had a minute of Mr. Whitton's upon it, stating that he suspended me and recommended my dismissal. I think, as nearly as I can recollect it, Mr. Quodling said, "that was enough for me." I said, no, I would expect to get an official letter, stating that I was suspended; it would not do for me to leave the office on being shewn a minute like that. I then went up to my room, expecting to receive a letter. On going next day to the office, I wrote to Mr. Whitton in order to get an official letter concerning the matter. He sent me back my former letter with his minute upon it—"Mr. Gardiner is well aware that he has been suspended, and that he has no business in the office.—J.W." The letter upon which this was written was this:—

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

11 Feb., 1864.

" Railway Department,
" July 15, 1863.

" Sir,
" Being incapacitated for work, owing to a pain in the face when in a stooping position, I beg to report that I must be absent from the office during this day.

" I have, &c.,
" MARTIN GARDINER."

It was addressed to J. Whitton, Esq. Then the next day I wrote him this:—

" Department of Public Works,
" Railway Branch, Engineer's Office,
" Sydney, July 16, 1863.

" Sir,
" I have seen your minute suspending me and recommending my dismissal. "Mr. Quodling, when he shewed that minute, said 'that it was enough for me,' and that " I required no answer to my note asking for leave of absence. I respectfully request that " you will inform me officially whether I am suspended or dismissed.

" I have, &c.,
" MARTIN GARDINER."

It was addressed to J. Whitton, Esq., Engineer-in-Chief for Railways. In answer to this he sent me back the minute I have referred to, but it was written on the face of my former letter. 7404. You received back your former note, asking for leave of absence, and there appeared this minute upon it? Yes; after this I heard no more of the matter until August. On the 5th of that month I wrote a letter, of which this is a copy:—

" Ivy-street, Shepherd's Paddocks,
" August 5, 1863.

" Sir,
" Mr. Whitton's minute of the 15th July, informed me that I was suspended " from the temporary position I held in the Railway Department. I have awaited since then " for an official notice as to whether his minute, advising my dismissal, has been finally " decided upon, but I have received no such notice. As I abstain from seeking any other " employment until officially notified of my dismissal, I think it right to inform you, that I " will expect to be paid my salary up to the date of such notice. My address is already " known to the department.

" I have, &c.,
" MARTIN GARDINER."

" To the Commissioner for Railways."

7405. Did you receive any answer to that? Yes, I received this:—

" Department of Public Works,
" Railway Branch, Sydney,
" 6 August, 1863.

" Sir,
" In reply to your letter of the 5th instant, relative to your suspension from the " duties temporarily performed by you in this department, I am directed by the Commis- " sioner to inform you, that a letter, a copy of which is enclosed herewith, was posted in due " course on the 18th ultimo, and which contains the notice you require.

" I have, &c.,
" R. MOODY,
" Chief Clerk.
" Martin Gardiner, Esq.,
" Ivy-street, Shepherd's Paddock,
" Sydney."

They sent it to me first, and not to my address, although they had my address in the office on the books. The letter, a copy of which was enclosed in the one I have just read, was as follows:—

" Department of Public Works,
" Sydney, 18 July, 1863.

" Sir,
" The Engineer-in-Chief for Railways having reported that he suspended you " from the performance of duty, on the 14th instant, and submitted to the Secretary for " Public Works the circumstances under which he had conceived it to be his duty to adopt " that course,—I am directed to inform you, that the Secretary for Public Works, having " given the matter his consideration, has approved of the course pursued by Mr. Whitton, " and has recommended to His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, that " your services as temporary draughtsman in the Railway Branch be dispensed with from " the date of your suspension."

This is signed "JOHN RAE." It remained in the Post Office for some time, and the envelope is marked "Not known by the letter carriers."

- Mr. M. Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.
7406. Why did you not bring that envelope? I did not think of it.
7407. The letter you produce and read, is the one conveying your dismissal? Yes,* I find I was dismissed on the 15th August.
7408. What was the nature of the letter that was to go through the Post Office? The letter informing me of my dismissal.†
7409. But you did not receive this until after the 6th of August? No.
7410. How did you receive it—did you call at the Post Office for it? I called at the Post Office for the one lying there for me.
7411. And then you received this? Of course I did; but I received a copy of it before that, on the 6th of August.
7412. They had written letters to you previous to that, and had sent them to your address? Yes; I gave my address to Mr. Quodling, the clerk.
7413. And they had written letters to you and sent them to your address previously? I cannot be certain,‡ but I know they had my address. When I first went to the office, Mr. Whitton told me to give my address to Mr. Quodling, to put on the books.
7414. They wrote to you to your address, previous to posting this letter for you? Yes.
7415. And you lived in the same place? Yes; I had this letter delivered to me at my address:—

*“ Department of Public Works,
“ Sydney, 1 July, 1862.*

“ Sir,

“ In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 12th ultimo, offering your services as a Superintendent of Permanent Way and Works, I am directed to inform you that appointments to these situations have now been made.

“ I have, &c.,

“ JOHN RAE.

“ Mr. Martin Gardiner,
“ Ivy-street,
“ Sheppard’s Paddocks.”

7416. You received the letter informing you of that appointment, at your own address, but the one to dismiss you they sent to the Post Office? They sent to give me notice that the thing was left to the Executive.
7417. What other correspondence had you? Some time after, I got a letter stating that I was dismissed.
7418. By the Executive Council? Yes; this is it:—

*“ Department of Public Works,
“ Sydney, 11 August, 1863.*

“ Sir,

“ Referring to my letter of the 18th ultimo, I am now directed to inform you, that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of your services, as temporary draughtsman in the Railway Branch of this Department, being dispensed with, from the date of your suspension from duty by the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, viz., the 14th ultimo; and Mr. Secretary Arnold desires me to add, that your services are dispensed with accordingly.”

7419. Where does it come from? From John Rae. It is dated the 11th August, and I received it a few days after.
7420. They never informed you of the reason for your dismissal? Never informed me of the reason why I was dismissed.
7421. Did you read any papers before the Philosophical Society? Yes, immediately before Mr. Whitton recommended my dismissal. I had advertisements in the papers, stating that I was about to read a paper on the best way of laying out railway curves.
7422. Before reading this paper, or advertising that you were about to read it, was any complaint made against you? I never heard of the like. I think I never gave occasion.
7423. No fault was found with the work you performed in the office? I never heard of it.
7424. Did you perform your work to the satisfaction of your superior officers? They always expressed satisfaction at what I did.
7425. You made some complaint, in reporting the conduct of some of the officers of the department to Mr. Whitton? Yes, in January, 1863.
7426. How long was it after this that you proposed reading these papers? Perhaps five or six months.
7427. Were the whole of the statements you made in that report of the conduct of these gentlemen true, about them drinking and neglecting their work? Yes, and there were many other things I might mention, but I did not wish to do so. I have a copy of the report I sent to Mr. Whitton here. It is as follows:—

*“ Railway Department,
“ 5 January, 1863.*

“ To the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways:—

“ Sir,

“ I have the honor to call your attention to the disorderly conduct of two of the officers of your department, who have endeavoured to create pugilistic rows in the office; I refer to Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait. Some three weeks have now passed since

“ Mr.

* Revised:—No.

† Revised:—suspension.

‡ Revised:—I am certain of it.

" Mr. Hall offered to distinguish himself by a fight with any weapons, but particularly with fists, because he was an 'Englishman'; and, as this has been followed up on last Wednesday by offensive threats from Mr. Micklethwait, I think it only due to my own character and to that of the department, to request that a stop may be put to such conduct. I have not the least doubt that these discreditable acts, as well as many others I do not mention, are entirely owing to the intoxicating drinks in which these gentlemen constantly indulge during office hours."

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.

" I have, &c.,
" MARTIN GARDINER."

7428. Have you anything to add? There may be other things, but I do not wish to mention them.

7429. Did you give evidence before Mr. Arnold? I sent in written evidence.

7430. The whole of the statements you made were correct? All correct. But one thing requires correction. Writing about Mr. Micklethwait, I should have mentioned that he was a day or two absent from the office before he returned. I say in paragraph 9, "The next day after this happened, Mr. Micklethwait threatened to assault me." I should have said, "The next day after this happened, that he came to the office," because he was one or two days absent. That is the only thing I have to correct.

7431. You produced a number of certificates to Mr. Whitton when you were first engaged? Yes.

7432. I see Mr. Arnold says in his speech in the House, "In the first place, he was employed because he believed, from his certificates, that he was competent to do the work entrusted to him; but when he was found incompetent —;"—Were you ever found incompetent? No; I have Mr. Whitton's certificate to prove that I gave every satisfaction. This is it, dated the 14th December, 1860:—"Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 11th instant, I have to state that you have been employed in this department for upwards of five months, principally in making drawings for bridges and viaducts for the proposed railway extensions. During this period you have given every satisfaction; and I regret that, in consequence of the work upon which you were engaged having been completed, your services cannot be retained in this department." This is signed by John Whitton.

7433. Were you not then engaged in designing bridges and viaducts for superior railways? Yes, and to calculate their contents.

7434. They were considered too expensive a class of works for this Colony? According to my ideas and knowledge of engineering, I know that, if carried out, it would have cost £50,000 a mile over the Western Road.

7435. You performed those duties at the request of Mr. Whitton? At his request.

7436. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you say you received this certificate whilst you were engaged in the Railway Department? Yes, but I had received notice to leave before I wrote to him, and was suspended. When he promised to put me on as permanent engineer, I required a certificate, and this was the answer to my application.

7437. By the Chairman: That was after you heard your services were to be dispensed with? Yes.

7438. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you got the letter you sent to Mr. Whitton? No; it was after seeing him about his verbal agreement with me, that I wrote the letter, as he seemed offended that I should ask him to stand to his word. He could not deny that I gave satisfaction. I wish to make this observation: that after standing my examination with Mr. Whitton, I would not have accepted the letter* had I been put to surveying, or put to making plans or sections. I got this letter as a matter of form. By his certificate it is shewn that I had been employed as engineer,† and I had the following, stating that I was a trial surveyor:—

" Railway Branch,
" Department of Internal Communication,
" Sydney, 28 June, 1860.

" Sir,

" I am directed by the Commissioner to inform you, that you have been appointed a Surveyor in the Trial Survey Branch of the Department, on trial, with salary at the rate of £400 per annum, and £280 allowance while engaged in the field, on the understanding that the appointment is temporary and liable to be cancelled without notice."

This is signed by Mr. R. Moody, the Chief Clerk, and addressed to myself. I thought it would always be proof that the employment ‡ I took was a merely formal thing to enable me to obtain a salary, as no salary was voted for the work I performed.§ When I shewed this to Mr. Martin, the lawyer I consulted, he said my case would not be so good in law as it would be in the House. If I had known I should be treated as I was, I would have sued the Government, and have gone back to Victoria, where I had a position, instead of remaining here.

7439. You produce the original of that letter? Yes, and hand in a copy.

7440. Then Mr. Arnold goes on to say—"But being found incompetent also for this work, he was entrusted with still more inferior work, and at a smaller rate of remuneration"? The work on Cherry Tree Hill was not much inferior, as it required the services of a civil engineer.

7441.

* NOTE (on revision):—of appointment as a trial surveyor in temporary employment,

† Revised:—designing engineer for bridges and viaducts,

‡ Revised:—Mr. Whitton told me that this letter which § INSERTED (on revision):—and that he was sorry it was not in his power to get me a higher one then.

- Mr. M. Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.
7441. Whilst they give their opinion that you were incompetent, Mr. Whitton gives you a certificate that you were competent? Yes.
7442. By Mr. Garrett: What was the work at Cherry Tree Hill? To survey it and find the best road over it. I had to cross section the road and give an estimate concerning it.
7443. By Mr. Dalgleish: You have a copy of your instructions with you;—will you read it? Yes, my instructions were as follows:—“Your first duty will be the measurement of trial sections at and in the vicinity of Cherry Tree Hill, which forms the greatest obstruction to traffic between the Main Western Road and Mudjee; and on the number and extent of these sections, which should embrace the principal existing tracks, you will be left to the exercise of your own discretion, being at liberty, however, to make a provisional report and apply for further instructions at any period. Having arrived, from your sections, at a conclusion as to which of the lines which you may survey are most promising, it will be necessary that you should take cross sections of these at such intervals as the lie of the ground may appear to render desirable; and you should then prepare a contoured plan of the country so sectioned, on a scale of four inches to one mile (vertical scale of 40 ft. to 1 inch), and transmit them to me with a full report on the subject in question. Ere the completion of this duty, you will receive further instructions in regard to the general survey of the road; and as early as practicable, instructions for working plans and sections of Cherry Tree Hill. You will report to me, at the end of each month, on the enclosed form, your rate of progress.” This is signed “A. G. McLEAN.”
7444. By the Chairman: You performed that work to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Roads, and the road was adopted? Yes, and it was adopted.
7445. Mr. Arnold says—“He was entrusted with still more inferior work, and at a smaller rate of remuneration; and after Mr. Gardiner had been found incompetent, his services were dispensed with in this Colony, and he went again to Melbourne”? I gave satisfaction in tracing too.
7446. Until you received this notice of suspension, no fault was found with your work? No fault. I told Mr. Collett I would not guarantee the chainage on the Mudjee Road. I was right in that case. Errors have been found in the chainage, which however could not have escaped us—a man was going over the work as I was leaving. I would not have done that traverse, and wished to come down to town to give up surveying altogether, as I was suffering from acute rheumatism, were it not that Mr. Collett insisted on having me do it, as he was in a great hurry to proclaim the road, to appease the clamour of the Mudjee people.
7447. Previous to your leaving the office, and after making a report of the conduct of some of the officers, was not this plan, with the errors in the chainage marked upon it, placed on your board? It was brought up by Mr. Drewett. A tracing was made, and these errors marked in blazing red letters. Mr. Drewett pitched the tracing on the table just as I looked at him. I knew what was being done before that, Mr. Doherty having come up to me and told me that they were making tracings of my survey and marking the errors, and that Mr. Fearnside and Mackay had put other papers over them so that he might not see them. When I went to the place where they were at work, they also put their papers over these tracings, so as not to let me see what they were doing. I took the papers off, and seeing no errors but those of chainage, I did not care. I knew what was doing; it was intended as an insult to me. I did not say anything about it, and when Mr. Drewett left them on the table, I merely went out and asked him why he did it. I did not see any great harm in the errors.
7448. What did Mr. Drewett say? He was kind to me, and always was so. He said it was not his fault—that he had to do many dirty little things he did not wish to do, and told me to ask Mr. Barton about it. I thanked him, went away, and told Mr. Doherty that it was not Mr. Drewett’s fault.
7449. What had Mr. Drewett or Mr. Barton to do with it? Mr. Drewett had nothing to do with plans of this kind.
7450. But what had Mr. Barton to do with them in the performance of his duty? The levels having been taken by another surveyor after I made the traverse, if he had a section it would help him in traversing the country to ascertain the heights, because I believe the levels were taken from the railway at Bowenfells. These errors could not have affected him at all, because it was a rough traverse. It is never considered correct until checked and guaranteed; and this work was never checked. It was checked by the leveller in the chainage afterwards. I would, if asked, have made a correct copy of the traverse without charging anything for it. It has nothing to do with a man’s incompetency. I was sick. It is work that a boy could perform. All the instrument work I guarantee correct.
7451. Mr. Arnold says, in reference to Mr. Whitton:—“Mr. Whitton said it was impossible in an examination to do more than satisfy himself up to a certain point, and that he could not absolutely certify as to his qualifications”? *I could examine any man twice as good as myself, and find out whether he is a good man† even in half an hour’s examination.
7452. Mr. Arnold also says:—“Mr. Whitton did not employ Mr. Gardiner in the field. Mr. Whitton had reason to believe that Mr. Gardiner would be more suitably employed on some other service required at that time”? Mr. Whitton had reasons to the contrary; because my certificates shew that I was best in the field, and that I had not been employed so much in the office as in the field. Here is a certificate from Clement Hodgkinson, Deputy Surveyor General of Victoria, in which he says:—“Dear Sir,—As you state that you are about to proceed to Sydney with a view to employment as a railway surveyor, I beg to assure you that, in my humble opinion, your qualifications for such employment are
“ of

* INSERTED (on revision):—Mr. Whitton might find it impossible, but † Revised:—competent person,

“ of the very highest order. As a member of the Royal Society of Victoria you have not only contributed to the ‘ Transactions ’ of that Society some valuable information on professional subjects, but also some papers displaying profound knowledge of the higher branches of mathematics and great originality and genius.” This letter is signed—“ CLEMENT HODGKINSON, Deputy Surveyor General and Member of the Board of Science of Victoria.”

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

11 Feb., 1864.

7453. Have you any other certificates you wish to put in? Yes. This is a certificate I forgot to mention yesterday, from Francis Bell, Engineer-in-Chief to the Melbourne and Essenden Railway. It states:—“ Mr. Martin Gardiner, while with me, made survey and several trial sections of the extension of the Melbourne and Essenden Railway, from Essenden to Donnybrooke—a distance of eighteen miles. I have much pleasure in testifying to his ability in the field, as well as to his neatness and accuracy in making his plans, and have great confidence in recommending him as fully qualified to undertake such duties.” I made a survey of that railway up to Donnybrooke, but funds being short the road has not been made since. This is another certificate which I wish to hand in; it is from Mr. Dibbs, and reads as follows:—“ As trustee in the assigned estate of the late A. C. Davison, contractor, of Newcastle, I had occasion to engage Mr. Martin Gardiner, C.E., to survey the Red Head Railway, and to measure the works done by the contractor. It affords me much pleasure to testify to the satisfactory manner in which Mr. Gardiner performed his work as a railway surveyor. In the trial relating to these works (the Assignee in Davison Estate v. the Newcastle Copper Company), held in the Supreme Court, in Sydney, in August, 1862, Mr. Gardiner shewed his thorough practical knowledge in railway matters; and I may add, that it was chiefly owing to his professional services that the contractor was enabled to prove the justness of his claims.”

7454. Who is Mr. Dibbs? He is a merchant, and brother to the Manager of one of the banks—the Hon. Mr. Robey's son-in-law.

7455. By Mr. Dalgleish: And was trade assignee to the estate? Yes.

7456. By the Chairman: And he employed you? Yes.

7457. Have you any other certificate of your competency? Most of my certificates are for high science, and it is of no use handing them in.

7458. Mr. Arnold also, in his speech, went on to say—“ He hardly remembered on what data he arrived at the conclusion that it would be undesirable to employ Mr. Gardiner where the services required great accuracy”;—do you know of any person being employed to do the work you could not do? A man who can calculate and check his work must be more correct than one guided by mere measurement.* I gave up the traverse of the Mudgee Road, which I did not finish or check,† but I never gave up work from inability to complete it with accuracy.

7459. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you give up the work on the Mudgee Road? ‡ I did not wish to do that work—I wished to resign after doing Cherry Tree Hill; and Mr. Collett said he was in a great hurry with the traverse of the Mudgee Road; he wished to have it proclaimed, and told me to get a rough traverse of part of it. He said I need not take levels, and said, “ Give me a rough traverse to tell what lands it runs through, and you need not on that account be careful to check or remeasure.” He determined afterwards on having it levelled, but I would not level it for him, because he did not allow me to do so at first. § I was after coming to town to give up altogether, and he said I might as well do the Goulburn Road. I said the weather was so rainy that I appeared to have taken a long time to do the work I had been on, but that I was ill. I said, however, that I would undertake the line from Goulburn to Gunning. The reason that I did not certify to the traverse of the Mudgee Road was, because I had not his instructions || The following is my appointment for the Southern Road, between Goulburn and Albury,¶

“ Department of Public Works, Road Branch,
“ Sydney, 19 September, 1861.

“ Sir,

“ I am directed by the Commissioner to inform you, that the Secretary for Public Works has been pleased to appoint you as Surveyor on the Southern Road, between Goulburn and Albury, at a salary of £580 per annum, including equipment allowance; and I am to request that you will attend at this office to-morrow, Friday, the 20th instant, for the purpose of receiving the Commissioner's instructions.”

It is signed, “ S. G. SHAIRP, Chief Clerk.” With regard to the Mudgee ** Road also, the Commissioner gave me no instructions. He wished me to take verbal instructions. I asked him and pressed him for written instructions, because I wanted to work exactly by orders as in the case of Cherry Tree Hill, but he refused. He did not give me written but verbal instructions; and when this letter in my hand was written, Mr. Collett knew I was half-way up to Goulburn, and he sent the letter to my address in Sydney when I was

was

* INSERTED (on revision):—and I can both calculate and plot work geometrically.

† INSERTED (on revision):—although I done as much of the traverse as Mr. Collett asked me to perform.

‡ INSERTED (on revision):—No; I done as much of it as I agreed to do.

§ NOTE (on revision):—What I meant to say is, that I would not have returned to level it if he asked me, but he did not ask me to do so, because the levels had to be carried from the railway at the other end near Bowenfells, and were carried by the surveyor working from Bowenfells towards Mudgee. The levels are not necessary in proclaiming a road, although the levels chainage is a check on the traverse chainage.

|| Revised:—I had his instructions not to check it, and that rheumatism hindered me from superintending the chainmen.

¶ INSERTED (on revision):—which shews that Mr. Collett was well aware that it was owing to his own mismanagement that I could not certify to the accuracy of the chainage on the Mudgee Road traverse.

** Revised:—Goulburn.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.

was gone. That was one of the reasons why I resigned* after doing to Gunning. I might have continued on up to Albury but for his telegram about the money. The rheumatism also took me when I went up, and being unwell, I was unable to eat damper and meat; I wrote down stating this, and resigning.†

7460. By Mr. Garrett: Have you a copy of the letter in which you resigned? No,‡ Mr. Collett, when I came to town, said he never expected to see me. He said he had written a letter to me; I said I had not seen it. I think he was displeased with me about the telegrams, and in such case,§ the sooner a man resigns the better.

7461. By the Chairman: You performed that work satisfactorily? It was rough work; I made the traverse and took the levels as Mr. Collett ordered; but his system is not such as I would approve of.

7462. Is it not—the drawing of bridges and viaducts, and calculating the quantities—a most important work? Yes.

7463. Mr. Arnold says—“He was put to work of an inferior kind—drawing bridges and calculating quantities”? That was the work Mr. Whitton said he was sorry he could not give me a higher salary for. This work is generally done, elsewhere, by the Engineer-in-Chief.

7464. And you were selected to do the work? Yes.

7465. And you did it correctly? I did it correctly. It requires a knowledge of the integral calculus and of mechanics to draw iron-work in detail; that I possessed, which many civil engineers do not, although they may be good in other points.

7466. A letter was read in the House, by Mr. Arnold, from the Superintendent of Roads, stating that the plan and section prepared by Mr. Gardiner, for practical purposes, were not worth the paper on which they were drawn? They may not be worth so much to such men as the Superintendent of Roads, but they would be worth it to such as knew how to use them. Superintendents do not know how to use the instruments, and plans and sections are of no use to them. When I met the Superintendent he would not speak to me at Goulburn, because Mr. Beazeley was my enemy, as Mr. Collett, at an ulterior period, adopted my work in preference to his.

7467. Mr. Arnold also says—“The Hon. Member (Mr. Dalgleish) seemed to place great reliance upon a certificate, in favour of Mr. Gardiner, from the Queen’s College, Galway, “which he could not produce”? I did produce it, and I saw it in Mr. Arnold’s hands in the House.

7468. He held the document in his hand, although he said you could not produce it? Yes.

7469. Mr. Arnold says you told him that you were desirous of pursuing scientific studies, and were quite willing to accept a very inferior position, and do work in the office in any capacity in which your services could be made available, and that you would rather have a small salary for work of this kind, in order that you might have your evenings to yourself in the neighbourhood of the libraries? I may explain that matter. I did go to Mr. Arnold, and said I preferred having half the salary I got when in the field, if I could be in the office until I had revised some scientific papers of mine, which were being printed in Melbourne. he did not state the reason which I gave—it was to superintend the printing of my papers.

7470. Mr. Arnold continues—“Notwithstanding all that, he had the position he desired, and then made himself so obnoxious in the office that the higher officers would have no communication with him”? That is not true; they were all kind to me—Mr. Barton, Mr. Mason, Mr. Drewett. They never refused to do their official duty on my account, and had no reason to do so.

7471. Then you have nothing further to add, with reference to the evidence you sent in to Mr. Arnold as to the disorganized state of the department. No; I had a clearer knowledge then of what occurred than I could have now, so that I have nothing further to add.

7472. Have you been engaged in your profession since the 11th August? No.

7473. Did you receive any pay from the day you were first informed that you were suspended, until the day you received the letter from John Rae, informing you that the Government had dismissed you? No, Mr. Rae said I had no right to it, and I said, “If so, I do not ask for it.”

7474. You have done no work since then? I did not wish to look for work, being accused of dishonesty and incompetency. It is useless for me to look for work until these things are settled.

7475. By Mr. Garrett: With regard to the resignation of the work on the Mudgee Road, you returned from the work and gave it up? No; the other surveyor was on the other end of the line when I had the traverse of half of it done; he came on with his traverse and got instruments to level over mine. I told Mr. Collett to have the level over mine to check it,|| so that Mr. Collett was not left in the dark, as to the probability of errors being made in the chainage whilst I was suffering from rheumatism.

7476. You considered the work completed then? No, I had to do that to please Mr. Collett. If I had had my own way, or had influence in the office, I would have objected to make such a traverse, but I could not do so; and Mr. Collett being in a hurry to have the road proclaimed, * Revised:—persisted in my resolution of resigning.

† Revised:—I might have continued on up to Albury but for his telegram about the money, and that the rheumatism also retook me when I went up the country; and being unwell I was unable to eat damper and salt junk, and I wrote down to Mr. Collett stating this, and resigning.

‡ INSERTED (on revision):—but the letter is an official one, and must be in the Roads Department; and I may state, that I wrote it before I moved my camp from Goulburn; so that I gave long notice of my intentions.

§ INSERTED (on revision):—when an irresponsible head of a department becomes an enemy.

|| Revised:—I told Mr. Collett that the chainage, which I would not certify to, could be checked when the levels were being carried over it, claimed, I made the traverse as he ordered it. When I was down, after making the new road over Cherry Tree Hill, seeing that surveying did not agree with me, that I was bad from rheumatism, and that I would prefer a situation in town,* I saw Captain Martindale, and he promised me one. He asked me about the scientific papers, which he gave to Mr. Arnold, and Mr. Arnold acknowledged the receipt of them from the Governor on my account; but I never asked him whether he did it to serve me.† Before making this traverse of the Mudgee Road, I attempted to get rid of the surveying; but as I did not get a permanent position,‡ I was compelled to take up the traverse work. This is the Governor's letter, in answer to one which he ordered me to write to him:—

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

11 Feb., 1864.

“ April 30th, 1861.

“ Sir,

“ I am desired by His Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of date April 26th, and to state, in reply, that he has mentioned your wish to the Secretary for Works; more than this His Excellency cannot do, as he has no power over the patronage of places, which rests entirely with the Colonial Ministers. His Excellency wishes you all success in the publication of your work.”

It is signed “ F. TURVILLE, Private Secretary.” Then I received the following letter from Mr. Arnold, through Mr. Rae:—

“ Department of Public Works,
“ Sydney, 8 May, 1861.

“ Sir,

“ I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 26th ultimo, to His Excellency the Administrator of the Government, and to thank you for the book enclosed therein, of which you are the author, entitled “ Improvements in Fundamental Ideas and Elementary Theorems of Geometry.” Signed “ JOHN RAE.”

Some time after I got that letter, I wrote to Mr. Arnold, asking him to give me such employment as might enable me to superintend these scientific papers; and he wrote me a letter back, telling me that he did not see what connection Apollonius had with his department, as much as saying that he did not want geometrical science in his department. The work of his department, however, without it, is but guess-work and quackery; it is the back-bone of such work as surveying and engineering.§

7477. By Mr. Dalgleish: In giving evidence yesterday you spoke of Mr. Darbyshire—you said that he was not a civil engineer? Not a professional engineer—not trained in a College of Engineers, or brought up as a professional civil engineer.

7478. Was he competent to perform the work he took in hand? I should say he was.

7479. As competent as many of those who might be regarded as more scientific engineers? Very likely.||

7480. Was he a good mathematician? A tolerably good one.

7481. You spoke of railway curves made by him;—were there errors in them? They were not correctly laid down.

7482. You said he never made you false verbal promises? He never did.

7483. Did he make false promises to you at all? He wrote me one letter which I consider a false promise.

7484. Have you got that letter now? It was in answer to a letter to him, asking him if he would recommend me; and he wrote back, implying that he would recommend me the first time after that when they required the services of a competent engineer in Victoria. Well, when I had an opportunity of obtaining an appointment of that kind, I appealed to Mr. Darbyshire, and he refused to give a favourable report concerning me. I wrote to the Roads Department to ask how it was I did not get the position, and I was informed that Mr. Darbyshire did not give a favourable report of me. That letter also is in the department. I sent these letters in to the Minister for Works, to shew how Mr. Darbyshire had treated me.

7485. Were you employed in any other than Government Railway works in Victoria? I was employed on the Essenden works, by Mr. Bell.

7486. Is it a private company? Yes; but like some others in Victoria, it broke down.

7487. Did you give satisfaction when engaged on that line? Yes; Mr. Bell is here, and can state that for himself.

7488. Have you any document to prove it? Yes, I have Mr. Bell's certificate, which states that “ Mr. Martin Gardiner, while with me, made survey and several trial sections of “ the * Revised:—I got an interview with the Governor-in-Chief, and made a request that he would interpose his authority, and presented him with some scientific papers, &c.

† Revised:—but I never asked the Governor to present Mr. Arnold with the papers.

‡ INSERTED (on revision):—promised by Mr. Whitton,

§ NOTE (on revision):—This is Mr. Arnold's letter:—

“ Department of Public Works,
“ Sydney, 22 August, 1861.

“ Sir,

“ In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 17th instant, applying for such employment in this department as may afford you opportunity of revising the proof sheets of the first part of your various restorations of the works of Apollonius, now about to be published, I am directed to inform you that, as that celebrated geometer of the Greek school has no apparent special connection with this department, the Secretary for Public Works cannot, in his official capacity, recognize the importance of the work in which you are engaged.

“ I have, &c.,

“ JOHN RAE.

“ Martin Gardiner, Esq.,

“ 4, Hill's-terrace, Riley-street.”

¶ Revised:—Yes, he is a more competent engineer than any Member of the Institute of Civil Engineers whom I am acquainted with.

- Mr. M. Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.
- “ the extension of the Melbourne and Essenden Railway, from Essenden to Donnybrooke—“ a distance of eighteen miles. I have much pleasure in testifying to his ability in the “ field, as well as to his neatness and accuracy in making his plans, and have great confidence
“ in recommending him as fully qualified to undertake such duties.”
7489. The reason why your services were not retained on the Melbourne and Essenden line was, that the works were given up? The company became bankrupt, and did not extend the line over the extension survey which I made, and which was approved of.
7490. You adhere to your evidence given before Mr. Arnold, as to the drunkenness and fighting in the department? Yes, to every part of it.
7491. Have you nothing further to add in respect of those statements? I may add to it, but I think what I gave in includes enough.
7492. You will be prepared to swear to the truth of the statements you have made? Yes, every one of them. As far as I can judge, they are correct; others might differ in opinion with me upon some of the matters.
7493. These things are matters of fact, known to you from your own observation? Yes, and all are true. These are copies of the minutes that transpired between Mr. Drewett and Mr. Whitton, and I thought it was connected with my dismissal. Mr. Drewett writes :—
“ Sir,—I beg to report to you the conduct of Mr. Martin Gardiner, who came into “ my office this morning in a very excited manner, and asked me why certain notes of errors
“ had been made on the tracings of a survey made by him for the Roads Department. I “ told him I had nothing whatever to do with it, but was merely carrying out my instructions,
“ at the same time referring him to yourself or Mr. Barton. He also, in a very threatening “ manner, told me that he had made notes of what he termed my errors from the office plans,
“ and which he intended to publish in the public press. After such conduct, I respectfully “ request that I may be relieved from giving Mr. Gardiner any further instructions.”
This was written to Mr. Whitton, and Mr. Whitton sent it to me for my answer. This is my reply :—“ Sir,—In answer to Mr. Drewett’s letter, I have to state that I did go to speak “ to him, concerning the manner in which the tracings of traverses of roads made by me
“ have been marked. I said I did not wonder at errors of chainage, as I had no check
“ on the chainmen, but that I certainly did not consider it was right to mark ‘error,’ where “ it was well known I sketched by sight. He then said it was not by his orders these “ things were done, but by Mr. Barton’s; and after further excusing himself, he added the “ words: ‘ My position often compels me to do many little dirty things I don’t like to do.’
“ I then thanked him, and said that if I was only empowered to mark ‘errors’ on
“ the plans in this office, I could cover them over with big red letters, for that I was well “ aware of such errors, and that I would soon call Mr. Arnold’s attention to the matter. I
“ then left the room. I was not excited, nor did I speak or act in any other than a pleasing “ manner.—I have, &c., MARTIN GARDINER.” Now, with regard to these minutes, I would wish to make a few observations. Mr. Drewett states that I said I knew of errors on plans made by him. Now he made no such plans at all in the office, and I was well aware of it; so that I could not have spoken of that. There is incorrectness on the face of that statement, and he must have been excited when he wrote it. I did not mention about publishing in the press, for I had at the time a letter written to Mr. Arnold about curves and other things.
7494. Will you, if you find that letter, hand it in as an appendix? Yes; I had it written two or three days before that. The first advertisement, about my reading the paper to the Philosophical Society, was on the 8th July, and this transaction was on the 13th July, and two or three advertisements appeared before that occurred. I knew of nothing wrong in his work. The only thing I found wrong was the projection of a bridge, which I corrected at his request.
7495. Do you know Charles Brown? Yes.
7496. What is he? A surveyor. I did not know him to speak to, although he came up to speak to me as I was standing near the Empire Office. He told me of Mr. Micklethwait’s drinking, and borrowing, and spending the men’s money; and he said he would prove this if I would call him.
7497. Did he tell you that he informed me of the fact? Yes, I heard him promise to give you letters, stating all about Micklethwait’s drunken and gambling habits.
7498. Did he not promise to substantiate all he said, in writing? Yes.
7499. Did you hear me tell him that I would not take any notice of what he said, unless he did so? Yes.
7500. Mr. Brown urged me to make statements in the House on his work at that time? Yes, and you told him to furnish you with them in writing, and sign his name to them.* I put a letter in the paper to see what he was going to do, and he denied that he ever stated the

* INSERTED (on revision) :—And you told me so likewise when I requested you to make the statements relating to the conduct in the office. This I have already made known in the following letter published in the Empire :—

“ THE DISORGANIZED STATE OF THE WORKS DEPARTMENT.

“ To the Editor of the Empire.

“ Sir,

“ As Mr. Arnold has characterized the speech made by Mr. Dalgleish, on Tuesday night, as “ ‘ a complete tissue of misrepresentations from beginning to end,’ I think it due to Mr. Dalgleish, as “ an honorable gentleman and a Member of the House of Assembly, to state that I supplied him, in “ writing, with all the facts comprising the substance of his statements as respects the officers of the “ Railway Department, and their conduct during office hours; and I re-assert that these statements are “ all true, and that they will, if necessary, be proved too on oath by more than one witness.

“ But, sir, I am sorry to be compelled to say—and my honor and conscience compel me to say it—
“ that it is Mr. Arnold’s own speech that is truly an unwarrantable tissue of wilful misrepresentations.

“ Mr. Arnold stated that I only discovered the misdeeds in his department after I was dismissed the like. However, his letter in reply will shew I was right, because he speaks about the money he lent, and that it was a year after he lent it that he got the money from Mr. Micklethwait.

Mr. M.
Gardiner.

7501. Did you hear him state that Mr. Micklethwait was so far gone from the effects of 11 Feb., 1864.
drink as not to perform his work? He told me that week after week he was drunk.

7502. Did you hear him make some statements to me? Yes, in answer to some question, I heard him say Mr. Micklethwait was drunk and unable to work.

7503. And that is the statement I asked him to put in writing, and sign his name to it? Yes.

7504. Did you see Mr. Brown and Mr. Fowler in my house one morning? When I went in, they were just going out of the door; and you said if I had been there one minute sooner I should have found Brown and Fowler there, and that Brown told you something about Mr. Micklethwait in the field, which I did not know of.

7505.

"from the public service. My answer is, I appeal to Mr. Bennett, of the Empire, to whom I communicated the facts immediately after their occurrence, and who advised me not to take any step in the matter at that time, but to wait the opening of Parliament and get a Member to bring the matter before the House, for inquiry.

"Mr. Arnold asks how it happened that I have been unable to retain a permanent situation in the University of Melbourne? My answer is—I have never had a situation there.

"Mr. Arnold asks why I did not retain a permanent situation under the great Engineers in England? My answer is—I was never employed in England.

"Mr. Arnold asks why I did not retain a permanent situation on the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada? My answer is—he has asked this question in defiance of my certificates, which were read before him, testifying that I held my appointment to the completion of the lines on which I was engaged as Engineer; and with the knowledge that Jackson, Brassy, Peto, and Betts had no permanent appointments to give away, such as are at the disposal of the Government of this Colony.

"Mr. Arnold stated that when Mr. Whitton first violated his promises to me, I did not remonstrate.

"My answer is—I did remonstrate. I complained of it to Mr. Arnold himself, and got no redress. I complained of it to Sir William Denison, the Governor General, and he said no better could be expected from the 'incapable' Engineer for Railways. I went to the present Honorable Member for Orange, and asked his opinion as to whether I could enforce the agreement in the Law Courts, and got advised to bring it into the House of Assembly; and it was only after a renewal of Mr. Whitton's promises I refrained from presenting my petition at the subsequent opening of Parliament.

"Mr. Arnold stated that it was before proceeding to Melbourne I obtained the certificate from Mr. Whitton; but he took care not to mention the true facts, viz., that it was nearly a year after receiving it that I went to superintend the printing of scientific papers; and that it was immediately after Mr. Whitton again reassured me that on my return I should be recommended for an appointment as Assistant Engineer on the Railway works. And I told the Honorable Secretary of the Royal Society of Victoria (Dr. Macadam), that I had a place before me on my return to Sydney, and that nothing brought me to Melbourne but to superintend the printing of my papers read before the Royal Society.

"Mr. Arnold stated that Mr. Whitton told him, that during the time I was making drawings and estimating the entire masonry and iron-work of the three first-class railway extensions then contemplated, that he (Mr. Whitton) never saw me. I answer by stating that it can be clearly proved, by more than one witness, that during the whole time I was at that important work, Mr. Whitton came down to the room in which I worked (when not absent from the department) at least three times each week, and conversed with me about the work on which I was engaged.

"Mr. Arnold stated that after Mr. Whitton 'got rid' of me he did not recommend me for other work. I state that he did, and that it was through his recommendation I got under Mr. M'Lean; and there is a minute paper relating to this matter.

"Mr. Arnold stated that I was found incompetent to perform the work I was first appointed to discharge, and that it was on this account I was put to work of an inferior kind—'that of making drawings for bridges and calculating quantities.' His statement in this matter is also at utter variance with fact. I was never tried as a railway surveyor; but, after passing the burlesque of an examination, where the principal question was,—'Did you ever know an honest contractor?' I was offered my choice of going direct on to the railway works under construction, as Assistant Engineer or Superintendent, or, if working in the office, as the sole framer and estimator of the bridges and viaducts. And I chose the latter position, because it was of far higher grade than a 'Railway Surveyor' or 'Superintendent,' and that in a well regulated office it would be considered the next position to that of Engineer-in-Chief.

"And I refer the Minister for Works to the detail drawings (in pencil) I made for iron tubular girder bridges, of spans of 200, 150, 120, and 100 feet, and to those of plain I girders for 60, 40, and 20 feet, where all the thicknesses and sizes of plates, angle-irons, &c., are exhibited; and I request him to compare my designs (made according to the principles laid down by Professor Rankine, President of the Institute of Civil Engineers in Scotland) for openings of 150 feet, with that of Mr. John Fowler, for the Menangle Bridge, and see how much superior my design is, as respects strength and lightness, though it would be upwards of ten thousand pounds (£10,000) cheaper than Mr. Fowler's.

"Mr. Arnold states, on the representations of Mr. Whitton, and his late subordinate, Mr. Bennett, and of their favourites, that I am incapable as a railway surveyor and as draughtsman, and even as a tracer of plans.

"My answer is—I am prepared, at one hour's notice, to compete against Mr. Whitton and Mr. Bennett as a railway surveyor, or to compete against any one of the staff Mr. Whitton brought from England; and I challenge these gentlemen to meet me at the next meeting of the Philosophical Society, at which I am to read a paper, entitled—"The correct scientific method of forming railway curves and railways, with an exposition of the injurious effects of the system now adopted in this Colony."

"And if Mr. Arnold wishes to prove my ability as a draughtsman, I sincerely request of him that he will permit me to replot from the surveyor's books, the plans of the first and second contracts on the extensions of the Great Western Railway (which I will perform without pay or recompense of any kind), so that I may prove myself superior to every man in his office as a correct and neat draughtsman.

"Mr. Arnold stated that Mr. Whitton gave him an assurance, 'upon his word of honor,' he never saw either Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait in the slightest degree affected by drink; but I assure him, on my word as a gentleman, who considers honesty and truth the only claims to the title, that independent of my testimony, there can be clear proof brought forward on every point on which I have accused them.

"Mr. Arnold stated that I said my family 'were starving'—that I wrung a certificate from Mr. Whitton through dishonorable means, and used it dishonorably—that I acted dishonestly concerning money lodged by mistake in the Bank of New South Wales. I refer Mr. Arnold to my statement in the Empire of the 30th July, and I ask him to act as a true gentleman would act under the circumstances—to publicly retract those cruel and unjust slanders.

"I remain, Sir,

"Yours truly,

"MARTIN GARDINER, C.E."

"July 31st.

- Mr. M. Gardiner.
11 Feb., 1864.
7505. Did not Mr. Brown expect a Government situation when he contradicted your letter? Yes, I think so. He told me he had got one, and was going to work soon. I found, on inquiry, that he had not got one. He came up to me, when I was near the Empire office, and asked me to do a surveying problem for him which he was unable to do, and I did it on the spot for him. He then told me about Micklethwait.
7506. As to the fight between Hall and Deering—did you see it? Yes; and may observe, when the first examinations into the matter took place, the circumstances connected with the fight were kept back by Mr. Deering and his friends; but I remember the circumstances.*
7507. Did you see any blood about Deering? Yes, his mouth was out, and there was a good deal of blood about him.
7508. How long did they fight? They had three tussles. The first blow was a slap in the face that Hall gave Deering without notice—for he never told him he was going to strike him, nor did I think he was going to do so. The stools were knocked down,† and Deering struggled to get free, but caught between the table and the wall, and an office stool or two behind him fell, making a great noise; then Deering turned round and put up his arms in defiance to fight; Hall again held him down on the table and punched him two or three times on the head; that was the second round. Deering then came out round the table, got into the centre of the floor, and Hall followed and struck him a couple of blows on the body, when he was caught round the neck by Mackay, who pulled him away from Deering; then some others interfered. It was a regular stand-up fight.
7509. But you are perfectly clear that you saw blows? Yes, it was a good strong fight; and after the fight Deering came over to me, and asked if I would prove that Hall struck him first without notice. I said that I saw the whole thing, but I gave‡ no evidence in the matter on any account, for I thought his conduct towards Braddock was more becoming a bailiff than a gentleman, as Braddock had no money to pay any debt, and he knew it well. I never encouraged Hall to strike Deering, for he struck him before I was aware he would strike him; nor did I ever insult Deering in any manner that I am aware of.
7510. It has been stated to the Committee by some gentleman—by Mr. Barton I think, and also by Mr. Mason—that when they met you you would not speak to them? I never refused. I nodded to Mr. Mason; but if a gentleman in the position of Mr. Whitton, did not recognize me, I did not recognize him, because I think the person in the highest position should first recognize the subordinate; it might be considered insulting in me to salute him without such previous recognition. I think I saluted them very often when I saw them looking at me. I never insulted them, nor do I think they should be displeased with my conduct towards them, as far as I am able to judge. Of course, after reporting Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait, I did perhaps keep more distinct from them than before, because I saw there was a change in their feelings towards me.
7511. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are perfectly sure as to the statement with regard to the advertisement that Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait shewed you? Mr. Hall gave the advertisement into my hands until I had made such changes§ in it as would make the thing appear more ridiculous, but I refused to do so.
7512. It was inviting persons to call on Mr. Whitton as civil engineers, and stating that carpenters would be preferred? That is one.
7513. And another was that none but carpenters need apply? I think one was written by Mr. Micklethwait, and one by Mr. Hall, but they were both together. I said to Mr. Hall they would not print that in the Herald—it would be too great an insult to the department. But the advertisements did not go into the paper, although Mr. Hall got the paper to see if they were there.
7514. Were they sent? I am not certain. I know Micklethwait was looking after a messenger to send them by. And I know they did not go into the paper, because Mr. Hall brought the paper next day and could not find them. He brought the paper in which he thought they would appear, but they were not in it.
7515. By the Chairman: During the time when you first went to the office, had you any conversation with Mr. Hall or any other person in the department, with reference to Mr. Trengrouse? Mr. Hall took me on one side and cautioned me against Mr. Trengrouse, before I was three days in the department. He told me if I were seen making free with him I should be a marked man, and I kept him at a distance.
7516. Did he tell you why? He said he was a spy and would tell everything. The last time I went to the department, Mr. Hall told me that Mr. Trengrouse did report their conduct.
7517. To whom? To Mr. Whitton. He told me to beware of him and not to speak to Mr. Trengrouse.
7518. And you did keep away from Mr. Trengrouse at first? Yes, I did not speak to him once a month.||
7519. And you are certain Mr. Hall told you that Mr. Trengrouse had reported them to Mr. Whitton? Yes, and I know that Mr. Hall used to take off his boots when he went to see if Mr. Trengrouse was writing anything to Mr. Whitton.
7520. He told you that Mr. Trengrouse had reported their conduct to Mr. Whitton? Yes, and when I first went there he told me to beware of Mr. Trengrouse, and that I should be a marked man if I was too free with him.

* ADDED (on revision):—shewing that I had a better memory of the transactions.

† INSERTED (on revision):—Hall caught hold of Deering's head, and held it under his left arm,

‡ Revised:—would give

§ Revised:—in order that I might make such change

|| ADDED (on revision):—during my first engagement, but I declined to shun him during my last engagement.

THURSDAY, 18 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. STEWART, | MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Whitton, Esq., again called in and further examined:—

- 7521. By the Chairman: You are Engineer-in-Chief for Railways? I am.
- 7522. Do you hold any other appointment? No, no other appointment.
- 7523. I think, if I remember rightly, you have stated what appointment you held in England before you came here? I did.
- 7524. How long have you been Engineer-in-Chief to this Colony? A little over seven years.
- 7525. Have you anything to do with the traffic management? No, I have not. When I say I have nothing to do with it, I may explain that I am consulted occasionally, and that when I am, I give my opinion; but I do not consider that I have properly anything to do with the traffic management.
- 7526. Did you not appear as the accuser against the late Traffic Manager, Mr. Nealds? No, I do not think I did; I think I had better explain how that occurred. In my official position as Engineer-in-Chief certain matters were reported to me with reference to Mr. Nealds, into which I thought the Minister should make inquiry. I wrote a memorandum to the Minister, informing him what I had heard, and suggesting that he should inquire into the matter. Instead of the Minister inquiring into the matter, which I supposed he would do, it was referred to the Executive, and a Committee was appointed to investigate. On the Committee being appointed, I did appear before them, to state what I had heard with reference to the subject, but Mr. Williams appeared on behalf of the Government, to conduct the inquiry.
- 7527. Were you not present during most of the examination? I was, and examined a great number of witnesses, simply because Mr. Williams was not there; and a very unpleasant duty was put upon me by the Minister, which, in my opinion, should have been performed by himself—namely, to conduct the inquiry. Having heard that Mr. Nealds had been guilty of embezzlement on the railway, I felt it to be my duty to report it to the Minister.
- 7528. Do not you think, if the Minister had left you out of the matter, and had himself examined the persons you named, it would have been better? Most undoubtedly; and I complained to the Minister of what I considered to be the unfair treatment to which I had been subjected.
- 7529. In reality, ought not the persons who gave you the information, to have given it to Mr. Rae, the Commissioner? I do not know whether they did give it to him or not, but at all events, the matter was reported to me, that certain rents of a house at Penrith had been received by Mr. Nealds for a considerable period, and had not been returned with the traffic receipts and other things.
- 7530. Was not that a matter of inquiry for the Commissioner of Railways rather than for yourself? It might have been, but I think I should have neglected my duty to the Government if I had known these things and had not reported them. In reporting it I imagined the Minister would inquire into the matter himself, without appointing a Commission at all; but, as the Government had done so, I was bound to bring forward all the evidence I could.
- 7531. Your duties were to supervise the construction of railways? My engagement with the Government is simply to lay out and construct the railways of the Colony. On my arrival here I found not only that the management was exceedingly bad, but that there were no books kept of any kind or sort, to shew in detail the expenditure of the railway; and, in my opinion, it was such a disgrace to the department, that I prepared new forms for all the books, and they have been kept to the present time. I undertook, in addition to my ordinary duties, to take charge of the maintenance of the railway, to keep all accounts of the department, of repairs to the rolling stock, repairs to the permanent way. I felt it was then my duty to do so, but I intended only to do so for a short period, but I have continued to the present time.
- 7532. In reality, you are acting as Commissioner of Railways as much as Engineer-in-Chief for the construction of railways? I do not profess to act as Commissioner for Railways.
- 7533. Nevertheless you are doing the duty? I do not think it is the duty of the Commissioner to keep the accounts of the lines.
- 7534. But you say your duty is to supervise the construction of railways; when they are constructed you hand them over to the management of the Commissioner? No doubt that is strictly my engagement; but I have been doing about four times what I engaged to do, without receiving any additional pay.
- 7535. While you are so engaged, you cannot give the necessary time to the construction of these three different lines? I have given every possible attention to the construction of the different lines.
- 7536. If you were not engaged in the management of the railways, you might give more time to their construction? I am hardly engaged in the management of the railways. I say that when I came here I found proper books were not kept, that I prepared the forms, and have since had a sort of general charge, and have kept all the accounts belonging to the locomotive department and permanent way.
- 7537. In reality, is not that the business of the Manager of Railways rather than of the Engineer-in-Chief? It is the business of the parties appointed to take the different branches.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
18 Feb., 1864.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
18 Feb., 1864.
7538. If your time were fully occupied in the construction of these three different lines, and you had not to interfere with the management, would it not be to the public benefit? I cannot say that it would be much to the public benefit, but I should spend much more time on the line if I had not to remain in Sydney on various matters. I have all the accounts of all the branches to certify, and if I am not in Sydney the money frequently cannot be paid. I am away occasionally for three weeks or a month together.
7539. When you are employed in the management of the railway, you must neglect the construction to a certain extent? No, I do not neglect the construction.
7540. Do you not think your time would be better employed in supervising the construction, than in interfering in the management of railways? I do not interfere in the management of railways, but I have undertaken these duties because there was no one else to take them. I think several things connected with the department require remodelling. It certainly is no part of my duty to keep all these accounts, as I have explained on many occasions to the Minister.
7541. You were examined with reference to Mr. Quodling's case, were you not? No.
7542. Had you anything to do with that case? Nothing whatever.
7543. How long were you engaged on that case of Mr. Nealds? I really do not know; the papers will show; but I think fully a month.
7544. The whole of your valuable time was taken up for a month in investigating that case, which really did not belong to your duty? It did not belong to me at all, and I think it was a very improper thing for the Minister to throw it upon me, simply because, in the discharge of my official duty, I had reported what had been stated to me.
7545. In fact you had reported what you had heard, as it would be the duty of any other officer in the department to report matters of that sort to his superior officer? Certainly, I should have felt myself to be culpable, if I had known these things to have taken place and had not reported them.
7546. In the same way that it would have been culpable in one of the guards, if these things had come to his knowledge, if he had not reported it to his superior officer? Yes.
7547. There is no doubt that the case of Mr. Nealds had nothing to do with railway construction? Nothing at all.
7548. I suppose all the plans and sections for the railways are prepared in your office? All of them.
7549. Including the plans for bridges? Yes, everything.
7550. How long do you consider a fair time for preparing a complete set of working plans and sections for the Menangle Bridge? I find Mr. Trengrouse states, in his evidence, that the cost of the drawings of that bridge was £1,100. I have had the whole taken out, and I find the total cost—including the copies sent to England of the drawings for the wooden viaduct, the copies of that wooden viaduct sent to the contractor, the drawings for the masonry, the copies sent to Mr. Wilcox of the bridges first directed, the copies made for the inspectors—the total cost was only £350, or about 8s. 10d. per cent. upon the actual cost of the bridge; and these extra drawings were necessitated in consequence of the rising of the flood.
7551. How long was the time actually taken by you in preparing these plans? I could not say; I am engaged upon such a variety of works that I cannot say how long I am engaged upon any particular one.
7552. How did you arrive at the expense? I took from the journals the time of every person employed upon the Menangle Bridge. My time is not charged to anything, I have so many matters to supervise.
7553. Did you design this structure? Yes.
7554. And these plans were prepared under your direction? Yes, all of them, with the exception, as I stated before, of the details of the iron-work.
7555. Was not the greater portion of these plans designed in England? No.
7556. None of the iron-work? The general drawings were sent home to England; and, as I stated before, the details were prepared by Mr. Fowler in London.
7557. The drawings of the iron-work were prepared here? Yes, the general drawings; but the details of every plate were made by Mr. Fowler, and they were increased in strength beyond the area I sent home. He has the power of doing so, independently of me.
7558. Did you design this yourself? Yes, I did.
7559. Who prepared the plans? Mr. Drewett.
7560. Who was engaged in this besides Mr. Drewett? Several in the office, and in making tracings; I do not know the names of those who were engaged in making tracings, or in copying.
7561. The Committee have been informed that there have been great alterations made in the plans of the present lines, after contracts have been taken? Alterations have no doubt been made, and which were necessary, in consequence of the floods of 1860; for instance, at Menangle, the flood waters were 10 feet higher than they had ever been known before. I have got from Sir William Macarthur an account of the floods in the Menangle district from 1817; and he states that the floods of the River Nepean, in the year 1860, were from 8 to 10 feet higher than they had ever been known before; and therefore, finding it was necessary to provide accommodation for the flood water, I did so, and was not deterred by any false delicacy, from altering my original plans.
7562. We find that very great alterations were made in the viaducts and bridges along all the lines; for instance, a 5-foot culvert was altered to a bridge of six or seven openings 20 feet wide—do you think that necessary? Yes, I think that necessary. I went into the North immediately after the flood, and found that the course of nearly every creek had been entirely diverted, and that where it had been necessary to put in only a 2-foot culvert the main body of a creek ran. I therefore altered the bridges, and had culverts where they were found necessary.
- 7563.

7563. Before deciding upon the size of the culverts, did any one go over the watersheds, to calculate the quantity? No; even if the quantity were calculated it would result in failure. To know the height of flood-water is a better guide than can be obtained from the watershed.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

18 Feb., 1864.

7564. Could you have made such a mistake as to put a 4-feet culvert where a bridge of six or seven openings of 20 feet was required, if you had looked at the watershed? I do not call it a mistake at all. In every instance, before plans have been decided upon, I have been over the country, and have had the flood-level taken of every creek or stream as far as they could be obtained; but it must be evident, if the flood-water in the North rose from 8 to 10 feet higher than it had ever been known to do before, it would have been impossible, from information previously obtained, to decide what would be the proper area for bridges or culverts.

7565. How many times was the viaduct at Eastern Creek altered? Once.

7566. What was the extent of the alteration? The extent of the alteration, I forget the extra length, but I think it was increased four times—first, simply for this reason, that the creek, from the height of the flood-water, took an entirely different channel, and left the old one; the consequence was that I was obliged to provide for this increased waterway by lengthening the viaduct.

7567. Rope's Creek, Eastern and South Creek, were also altered? They were all enlarged from the same cause.

7568. Do you remember how much South Creek was enlarged? I do not; it is all in the drawing.

7569. Was there not a great complaint made by the contractor for the goods warehouse at Penrith, on account of the plans being incorrectly drawn? There was no great complaint made about it.

7570. Did not the contractor throw up his contract in consequence? He did not, but he did not carry out his contract. When the time within which the work should have been completed had expired, the work not having been done, I advised the Commissioner to cancel the contract, and it was done.

7571. Was there not some mistake in the length of the studs? The mistake was entirely the contractor's. The specification states distinctly that the figures are to be taken in preference to the measurement, by scale attached to the drawings. The contractor measured them from the drawings, and they were about 18 inches too short; and to meet him, rather than compel him to get new studs, I told him that, if he would put 18 inches of additional concrete, the studs might remain as they were. There has been no claim made by the contractor for extras on the goods shed, and the whole thing has been paid up. The contract was for £1,380, and the sum paid, including extra works for fixing the crane, &c., amounts to £1,427. The statement that Government lost £150 by blundering in the drawing is utterly untrue.

7572. By "blundering in the drawing"—has that been stated? It is stated in the evidence of one of the witnesses, that some inaccuracy or error in the drawing has cost Government £150. It never cost one penny.

7573. Would a draughtsman make such a blunder in his drawing as that the difference in the length of a stud, between the figures and the scale, would vary 18 inches? It might happen so—in this case it did. It is the first time I have known it; but the contractor had no right to measure from the scale attached.

7574. Is it not a general rule for tradesmen, where a drawing is made to scale, to take out their rule and measure? I do not think it is usual; they should not do so, but act according to the specification.

7575. It is in evidence before us that the contractor asked the clerk of works which he should take—the figures or the drawings—and could get no answer? I know nothing of that; it was never reported to me. The contractor came to me about it, and I pointed out myself that the figures on the drawing were correct; and there was a clause in the specification which stated that, in all cases, the figures on the drawing should be taken, and not the scale attached. I also told him that rather than he should be at any loss in reference to the timber he had ordered, that if he would raise the sills by concrete, I would allow the timber to be put up in that shape.

7576. Was it put up in that shape? Yes.

7577. Do you know that it is impossible to build the station-house according to your plans? Which plans?

7578. The plans for the goods warehouse in Penrith? No.

7579. The Committee have been shewn by the contractor and clerk that it is impossible, for there is louvre work over the doors, and if you take the height of the doors, the height of the studding, the louvre work would disappear altogether? I know nothing of that; it has been built according to that drawing.

7580. It was explained by the contractor —? He may explain what he pleases, but I should prefer my own observation. No complaint was made by the contractor or any other person that any alteration was necessary.

7581. He had to alter the doors—to reduce the length of the doors, in order to place the louvre board over them? He could not reduce them; they are made only 14 feet, and an engine could not be got through a less size than that.

7582. The mistake was got over by dwarf walls? Rather than the contractor should lose by the timber he had ordered, I allowed him to use the studs, on condition of his putting on 8 inches of concrete and raising the sills.

7583. You have no doubt that there is that mistake in the plan—that the scale does not correspond with the figures? I know it does not, but I did not at the time.

7584. Was this attended with an additional cost to the contractor? I do not think it was; he had the choice of putting on the concrete or of using studs of the proper length.

7585.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
18 Feb., 1864.
7585. If no mistake had occurred, which would have been the most expensive to the contractor—to purchase timber of the proper length, or to use timber 18 inches shorter and build a dwarf wall? I think about the same. At all events no claim has been made by the contractor for anything extra, and we have a building for £1,380 worth £2,000. The sureties, I believe, lost about £700 by it.
7586. By Mr. Stewart: Did the contractor give it up? It was cancelled on my recommendation, because the contractor appeared to take no steps to finish the work, and the sureties finished the contract. They were told that the work would cost about £1,500 to complete, and their bond was only £250. If they had paid that sum they would have escaped, but they took the advice of the contractor. I was told the other day that they lost about £600 by it.
7587. By the Chairman: Have you any idea what the alterations in the works at these three creeks—Eastern, Rope's, and South Creeks—cost? The cost is on a schedule of prices for the whole of the contract; there is no alteration of the contract.
7588. What is the additional cost of constructing these viaducts, as they are at present constructed, over that originally contemplated? I do not know; it is easy to tell from the drawings; it was a matter that could not possibly be foreseen till the floods happened; and when the floods did come I felt it to be my duty to provide against any future contingency of the same kind.
7589. Will you furnish the Committee with the difference of cost? The total extra cost is £4,679.
7590. The contractor did not suffer from the alteration, simply because he was paid by a schedule of prices? He did not, but the Government would have suffered in future time if I had not made that provision.
7591. At whose recommendation was it that the Penrith Station was placed where it at present stands? At mine.
7592. Of course you examined the country around there? I did.
7593. Was it pointed out to you, by an old resident at Penrith, that a much better route could be found on the other side of the town? It was not pointed out to me by any particular person; but a number of storekeepers and publicans in Penrith thought it would be better if I would allow the traffic to pass their own doors, than if I put the station at the other end of the town.
7594. I am speaking of putting the bridge further up the river? The crossing of the Nepean?
7595. Yes? It was pointed out by Capt. Russell that the best place for a bridge was where the road must pass through his own estate; I did not think so.
7596. Is not the river much narrower there? It may be a little narrower there, but the road would have been utterly impracticable; we could never have got up Lapstone Hill by that route. After crossing the river we now go over the plains and ascend a spur of 1 in 30.
7597. How far is that from the present bridge? About a mile.
7598. How much further up the river would the proposed bridge be than the present one? I should think nearly a mile and three quarters.
7599. Is it half a mile? I find, on reference to the plan, that it is upwards of two miles.
7600. Do you know where there is a rock in the centre of the river? Yes.
7601. Do you think that is half a mile? I think it is.
7602. Still you would have half a mile of level country from that, before you commenced the ascent? Yes, you would; but instead of running up a spur of the mountain you would take the mountain direct, at an incline of 1 in 10, or have to come back to where we start.
7603. I am informed that the bridge at that point would not require to be above one-third the length of the present? In any case, assuming that the bridge would not require to be half the length, it would be thoroughly impracticable—I mean that no person in their sober senses would recommend that it should be constructed there at all.
7604. Was your attention ever drawn to a portion of the Nepean River where there is a rock in the centre? Yes, Mr. Russell drew my attention to some place up the river, but I had had levels taken here (referring to the plan). Captain Russell's proposition was, that the bridge should cross opposite Knapsack Gully, but I found it impracticable.
7605. It would not have been impracticable to have got up the spur you now ascend, if it had been a mile up the river from the present bridge? It was so far impracticable that I could not think of recommending it. We should have had two crossings of the main road, and must have. It was impracticable to take the line pointed out by Capt. Russell.
7606. I do not know about Capt. Russell—I am directing your attention to the plan before the Committee. Was not a line pointed out to you by an old resident? Yes, it was to cross Knapsack Gully.
7607. By Mr. Stewart: What did he point out as the advantage to be derived from crossing there? I could not understand that there would be any advantage; the only advantage I could see was, that it would take the road through his property. Mr. Russell only said that it was a better place to build a bridge.
7608. Did he point out any grounds upon which he thought it better? No, he only said that we could get a good foundation in the middle of the stream.
7609. By the Chairman: If you went up here (referring to the plan) that would be two miles up the river; but that stone in the river is not two miles up? I do not know.
7610. Speaking from memory, I do not think it is above half a mile above the old bridge? My impression is, that it is somewhere about here (pointing out the position on the plan).
7611. Then from the point that Mr. Russell pointed out to you, you did take levels? I think the levels had been taken before by the sappers, but I think I had some additional levels taken.
- 7612.

7612. What length of viaduct is there on this side the bridge, between the bridge and the station-house? I think about a quarter of a mile; it is all viaduct from Proctor's-lane, to the embankment on this side of the Nepean. J. Whitton,
Esq.
7613. Can you furnish the Committee with the cost of that viaduct? The estimated cost is £7,375 7s. 11d. 18 Feb., 1864.
7614. You could not state, from memory, whether the greater portion of that viaduct would have been saved if the line had been carried up the left side of the town? No, I cannot.
7615. Have you any data in your office which will enable you to give that information? I do not know that I have.
7616. Before you called for tenders for Penrith Bridge, were not borings made? Yes.
7617. By whom? By Mr. Robinson, the Inspector there.
7618. Was Mr. Robinson a civil engineer? No, he was the Inspector there; he had borings taken across the river at the position of every pile, cross borings were taken, and all these borings were returned to me as rock. I spoke to Mr. Moriarty, who built the bridge alongside there, and he told me that the foundation of his bridge was rock, and as all the borings were returned to me as rock, I assumed that they were rock. When the cofferdam was being put in, it was found that the bottom of the river was closely packed with boulders, and on the removal of those boulders it was found that the foundation was a distance deeper.
7619. 14 feet? No, only 8 feet.
7620. Only 8 feet below that shewn in the original plan? 8 feet below the level shewn in the working plans—the average was 8 feet 2 inches.
7621. By Mr. Stewart: The fact is, that the whole of the parties engaged were deceived as to the bed? No doubt of it.
7622. By the Chairman: The fact is that the borings were found to be incorrect? They were returned as rock when they were not, but I do not know that much blame could be attached to those who made the borings, for it was impossible to find it out without putting in a dam.
7623. Mr. Robinson is not an engineer? No.
7624. Is it not usual to entrust these borings to an engineer? No, to the Inspector.
7625. Where is Mr. Robinson now? I do not know.
7626. Has he left the department? Yes.
7627. Was he Clerk of Works at the Penrith Station? Yes.
7628. Was there any other officer connected with your department with Mr. Robinson when he was taking these borings? No. I might remark that Mr. Trengrouse states, with his usual accuracy, that these borings were taken by Mr. Morgan. Now, as he could not have the slightest knowledge by whom they were taken, it was rather indiscreet, to say the least of it, to give a positive opinion on such a matter.
7629. Do you think he did give positive information—did he not rather state it as a matter he had heard? I think a man giving evidence before this Committee, or any other committee, should be well aware of the facts upon which he professes to give evidence.
7630. The Committee were aware that he was not in a position to know, and we took his statement upon this matter as information he had received in the office; and I may state that he made some statements to the Committee as hearsay, and that another gentleman afterwards said he had given him the information? It may not be true for all that.
7631. In justice to Mr. Trengrouse, I must say that he made that statement knowing that yourself or Mr. Morgan would be examined, and would set the Committee right? I do not think it was a proper way for Mr. Trengrouse to give his evidence; and many of his statements are so utterly false, that, considering he says he has had access to the papers of, and has a perfect recollection of whatever has taken place in, the department, for the last seven or eight years, I think he must have known them to be false.
7632. Then the contractor had to go 8 feet lower than was shewn in the plans and specifications? There was a doubt expressed as to what the foundation might be; and a provision was made in the specification, that for any extra depth the contractor might have to go below that shewn in the drawings, he should be paid a certain price per cubic yard.
7633. That being an additional depth, would not the price be higher than for the other? He charges per cubic yard for excavation, including cofferdams and keeping out the water.
7634. Has there been the same error in boring for the other piers as in boring for No. 1 pier? It is a mistake over which I had no control—it is an accident.
7635. It is an error? The others are the same depths no doubt.
7636. And of course there would be the same work in the foundations for the other piers? Yes.
7637. Have you any idea what would be the additional cost to the Government? I have not at present.
7638. Could you give it to the Committee? I cannot give it to the Committee till the work is actually done; I can simply give an approximation.
7639. Will you furnish the Committee with that? Yes.
7640. The other piers as well as No. 1? They are all about the same.
7641. And, of course, being so much higher, the foundation will be increased in size, will it not? The foundation is increased in size.
7642. Corresponding with the battle of the piers? Yes.
7643. You were never present yourself during the boring of this foundation? I was not.
7644. Of course you were there before the foundation was put in? I was there when the cofferdams were in. The foundations are kept dry only by pumping, and it is only occasionally you can get down at all; at the times I have been there it has not been so.
7645. In England are not well-known engineers employed to superintend such work as boring for foundations? If the District Engineer is on the work he takes it; if not, it is left to the Inspector.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
18 Feb., 1864.
7646. Is it not considered the special duty of the Engineer-in-Chief to see to the foundation of such very extensive works? No, I never knew it to be so in my life; he simply gets the borings.
7647. Is it not, in England, usual in foundations for the most extensive works on lines to be left open for the inspection of the Engineer-in-Chief? No, for the District Engineer. It depends upon the nature of the foundation; if it is one where there is any difficulty it is inspected by the Engineer-in-Chief.
7648. In such a matter as this at Penrith? There was not considered to be any difficulty there.
7649. By Mr. Tighe: Is it not necessary that a civil engineer should have some knowledge of geology? To a certain extent it is, and most of them have, I presume.
7650. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Morgan sent for to England? No.
7651. Was he appointed in this country? Yes.
7652. Did you know Mr. Morgan in England? He was four years with me as Inspector before he came here.
7653. As an Inspector of railway? As Inspector of station buildings, station yards, and bridges.
7654. He is a builder, is he not, by profession? He was a carpenter, but was with Brunel a number of years before I left.
7655. Was it not Mr. Morgan who made the alteration in the portion of the line where Mr. Want was killed? He made some repairs. That matter was gone into by the Committee appointed to inquire into the railway accident.

---

MONDAY, 22 FEBRUARY, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH,		MR. STEWART,
MR. MORRIS,		MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Whitton, Esq., again called in and further examined:—

- J. Whitton, Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
7656. By the Chairman: I think, when you were previously before the Committee, my last question was whether Mr. Morgan was not employed in making some repairs on the railway, previous to the accident by which Mr. Want was killed? He was employed at that time as Inspector, and whatever repairs were made were explained to the Committee which then sat—but I do not know what repairs you allude to.
7657. There were some alterations made in the rails? There were some alterations made, but not till after I had seen them.
7658. Nevertheless he made the alterations that were made? They were under his instructions; they were generally repairs of the line, and had nothing whatever to do with the accident.
7659. Did any person on the line draw your attention to that portion of the line previous to the accident, and say, that if some alterations were not made in the line, an accident would occur? Never; it is a most gratuitous falsehood. Richardson, the person who is stated to have drawn my attention to it, was appointed as Sub-inspector of the permanent way, and I had not spoken to Richardson at least four months before the accident, and I have never spoken to him since.
7660. Returning to the Penrith Bridge—If the contract for the bridge had been let at a lump sum instead of a schedule of prices, would that have affected the contract? Not at all, if proper provision had been made for extras, which has been in the present contract.
7661. Have you made any calculation of the strength necessary to carry the supposed traffic over the bridge? Yes.
7662. Could no bridges of sufficient strength have been designed without involving the expenditure of so large a sum as that which has been laid out upon the Penrith Bridge? I do not think so.
7663. The plans of that bridge were completed in your office? They were.
7664. You said that Mr. Robinson was not to be blamed for the mistake of the borings in the bed of the river? I believe he took every reasonable precaution a man could take to ascertain the foundation, and his return was that it was rock.
7665. You stated, I think, when you were last before the Committee, that it was impossible to tell whether it was solid rock until the cofferdam was put down? I said unless a cofferdam had been put down, or the rock had been bored through—or what was assumed at the time to be rock—it could not have been ascertained.
7666. If it had been a solid rock, as represented by the borings and plans, would it not have continued to the side of the river? It was continued to the side of the river—Yes.
7667. Would it not have been easy to have ascertained, by digging a trench on the side of the river? That could not have been done, because it is all gravel, and you could not get down to the bed of the river without the water percolating through.
7668. Did I ask you how many times you were present during the time the borings were going on? I am not aware that I was asked that question; I said I had been there, but was not there while the borings were being made.
7669. Was that about the time the case was going on against Mr. Nealds in Sydney? I am not certain whether it was or not; it might have been.

7670. What are the duties of the Engineer-in-Chief? His duties are of course to superintend the construction of all works required on the railways, to superintend the preparation of the drawings, the laying out of the lines, and the construction of the works.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

22 Feb., 1864.

7671. Particularly foundations? Foundations of course included.

7672. Do you not think it would have been much more for the benefit of the country, if you had attended to the foundation of that bridge, instead of to the matter of Mr. Nealds? If I had known there was the slightest idea that the bottom was not rock, of course I should have taken means to ascertain; but as I did believe it was rock, as a bridge alongside had been built on rock, and as this was so reported to me, I assumed it to be so, and took no further steps in the matter.

7673. You never took any borings further up the river, did you? No.

7674. You are going up the country to-morrow, are you not? Yes.

7675. Will you look at that rock I was speaking of, and see how far it is up the river? I have sent to ascertain the distance Capt. Russell's crossing is from the bridge.

7676. I am speaking of the rock in the river? I do not know where that is. Have you seen it?

7677. Yes? I will endeavour to ascertain.

7678. When were the tenders for No. 1 Contract on the river called for? ———

7679. Were these plans designed in your office? They were.

7680. When did the plans for the Menangle Bridge arrive from England—the details for the iron-work done there? I cannot tell you exactly.

7681. Were the details for the iron-work for the Penrith Bridge done in your office? Not all the details—only the areas; the general areas were sent home, and the strength of the bridge.

7682. Far more in detail than the plans for the Menangle Bridge? No; I think sufficient information was sent—the breaking weight and the sectional areas.

7683. But as much in detail as the Penrith Bridge? I think not; I think more drawings were made for the Penrith Bridge.

7684. Chiefly copies from the Menangle? Not exactly copies—they were of similar construction.

7685. Who made those drawings? Mr. Drewett.

7686. Who assisted him? I do not know. I dare say some one in the office assisted him in inking the plans, or in making copies.

7687. Do you think Mr. Robertson assisted him? I think so. If he did so he must have copied, because he could not have designed them.

7688. Mr. Drewett cannot distinguish his work from Mr. Robertson's? He might not be able to tell which were inked by him, but any one might ink the pencil lines.

7689. Mr. Drewett speaks of Mr. Robertson as a draughtsman? He may be able to make drawings, but that is not what I should call an experienced draughtsman; he can draw and make lines.

7690. What do you mean by an experienced draughtsman? A man who has been accustomed for a number of years to get out the details of drawings of bridges and other works.

7691. Do you mean the sizes? Yes, and the manner in which the work should be put together.

7692. You generally supply the sizes, do you not? In all cases.

7693. Then I presume you would not want a very experienced draughtsman to carry out your designs? It wants an experienced draughtsman to ink them.

7694. Is not Mr. Robertson a very good draughtsman? Yes, he draws very nicely.

7695. He has been engaged on most of the plans in your office? Simply in copying them.

7696. He has done to these plans the same as Mr. Drewett and the other draughtsmen do? I do not think he has. I should not have placed a drawing in Mr. Robertson's hands, and told him to get out the quantities.

7697. Were not the designs for the Penrith Bridge copied from the Menangle? They are not exact copies; the general design is pretty nearly the same, but many alterations were made.

7698. What is the nature of the alterations? The Penrith Bridge was not, in some respects, so strong as the Menangle.

7699. Less iron? Less iron.

7700. Are the spans the same? They are larger.

7701. The spans are wider? Yes.

7702. Still there is less iron in them? Yes.

7703. Then, in reality, the iron-work of the Menangle Bridge is heavier than necessary? Yes. I stated to the Committee when I was here before, that I had sent home the sectional areas and the general drawings, but that the strength had been increased in England by Mr. John Fowler, who had stated in a letter to me that it was necessary to make them stronger than was originally proposed by Mr. Fairbairn.

7704. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you that letter from Mr. John Fowler? I have a letter, I think, from Mr. Fowler's secretary.

7705. Stating that it was necessary to alter your plans? Stating that it was found necessary to increase the strength of wrought iron bridges beyond the formula of Fairbairn.

7706. Will you send that letter in? It is a private communication.

7707. A private communication on a public matter? I do not correspond with Mr. Fowler on public matters.

7708. Do you think it was Mr. John Fowler's duty to alter your designs? I consider that Mr. Fowler was appointed in England to attend to these things.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

22 Feb., 1864.

7709. Mr. Fowler was not appointed to design these bridges? To superintend them in England.

7710. To superintend them in England? Yes, and to make any alteration he thought desirable in them.

7711. Can you shew these instructions? They were in reality sent to Captain Galton.

7712. Can you shew the instructions sent to Captain Galton? Yes. I said in matters of detail he was at liberty to make such alterations as he thought desirable.

7713. Do you consider the altering the strength of a bridge matter of detail? I do. If, from his experience of similar bridges in England (which was very great), he knew that some which had been put up had proved failures, I think he was justified in altering the strength.

7714. Can you shew where the original bridges put up have been failures? No, I said before I could not.

7715. Will you place that letter before the Committee? I do not know that I have it now; it is a private communication, if not from Mr. Fowler, from his secretary.

7716. You cannot shew such a letter? I do not intend to produce private correspondence.

7717. You consider it private? I do.

7718. By the Chairman: The details for the iron-work for the Menangle Bridge were drawn in England? The details were.

7719. In whose office were they compiled? I cannot say; I assume in Mr. Fowler's, but I do not know.

7720. You say that the plans of the Menangle Bridge were not so much in detail as the Penrith;—will the Colony have so much commission to pay on the Penrith as on the Menangle Bridge? The arrangement with Mr. Fowler is, that he shall be paid  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. for inspection and furnishing such detail drawings as he may consider necessary, to the contractor in England, so that whether he inspects only or furnishes detail drawings, the amount to be paid is the same.

7721. Is the commission of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. upon the manufacturer's first price? Upon the price at which the works are let to the contractor? Yes.

7722. Is there any per centage upon other charges? Nothing that I am aware.

7723. What will be the manufacturer's cost for the Menangle Bridge? The total cost for the Menangle Bridge is £29,000 for the iron-work, including fixing.

7724. Then Mr. Fowler's commission will be something like £625? I did not go into the matter.

7725. Mr. Fowler also had a commission upon the rolling-stock imported into this Colony? Yes.

7726. In fact he has a commission upon all the goods imported for the railway, whether rolling-stock or permanent way? Yes; for a considerable time the commission was given to Mr. Barker, and then Capt. Galton changed it to Mr. Fowler.

7727. For what amount of importations has Mr. Fowler commission? I have not the least idea.

7728. Can you give it? The Commissioner might; I do not receive all the invoices. Indeed I think the Committee asked for that previously.

7729. Have we persons in the Colony competent to design iron bridges? No doubt of it.

7730. Did you ever tell Mr. Arnold, the late Minister for Public Works, that no one in your office was capable of designing and of computing the strength of iron bridges? Never.

7731. How many persons have you in your office who are competent to perform these works? Myself and Mr. Mason can do that work, at all events.

7732. Has Mr. Mason ever done any? Done any what?

7733. Iron bridges? He never built one on his own account.

7734. Did he ever design any, or make any drawings? It was hardly necessary; the drawings have been made by Mr. Drewett in the office.

7735. Who designed them? All that have been designed have been designed by me.

7736. Did Mr. Gardiner design any? No.

7737. Was he asked to design any? Not by me; nor do I know that he designed any, excepting that I think he got out in pencil a portion of a rough iron bridge of 160 feet span, but he never calculated the quantities, nor were any weights got out that I am aware of.

7738. Why was it not completed? I do not know; because it was not required, I presume.

7739. Was he asked to design it? I really do not know; if he were, he would be ordered by Mr. Barton.

7740. I suppose Mr. Gardiner would not commence to design a bridge unless he had some directions? I presume not.

7741. Do you not think a bridge more suited to our circumstances might have been built over the Nepean River, at a much less cost? I do not think so; so far as the masonry is concerned, I do not think less would have done; probably there might have been some little reduction in the iron of the Menangle Bridge. If the instructions I sent home had been followed, we should have had a lighter bridge.

7742. What will be the expense of the present structure? I think about £80,000, including the approaches on either side.

7743. What do you call the approaches—the viaduct? The timber viaduct is very lengthy.

7744. About a quarter of a mile? The total length is 1,423 feet 5 inches, excluding the bridge.

7745. That will be nearer half than a quarter of a mile? No, it is only a little over a quarter of a mile.

7746.

7746. Have you ever heard of any irregularities on the part of the present Traffic Manager? J. Whitton, Esq.
No, I do not interfere at all with the traffic management now.
7747. Not at all? No.
7748. Has any charge been made to you about it? None. I do not remember anything of the kind. In fact no one would report it to me; they would go to the Commissioner. 22 Feb., 1864.
7749. Does the Commissioner report to you? Papers are forwarded on to me, which the Commissioner receives; but I have no recollection of anything of the sort.
7750. Who recommended Mr. Owen to his present appointment? I think I recommended him to some extent, by saying I thought him the most suitable person I knew in the Colony, for the appointment, and the Commissioner also recommended him.
7751. Do you know whether Mr. Owen was promised the appointment before Mr. Nealds was dismissed, on condition that a vacancy occurred? I do not think Mr. Owen could have been promised anything of the kind, for he could only be recommended to the Minister; no one else would have the power to appoint.
7752. Did you ever know the Minister to refuse an appointment to any one recommended by you, either in the traffic or any other department connected with the railway? I know the Minister has often refused to appoint persons recommended by me.
7753. Owen did collect evidence in reference to Mr. Nealds' case, did he not? He was engaged upon the railway, and was called upon, among other officers, to state what he knew in reference to the mismanagement of the railway.
7754. Do you know a person of the name of Lewton? Yes.
7755. Is he under your orders? He is under Mr. Trotter; he is Inspector of the permanent way on part of the Southern Railway.
7756. Was it with your recommendation that Mr. Ridley was dismissed? No, I had nothing to do with it.
7757. Had you any minutes referred to you with respect to his dismissal? Nothing.
7758. Minutes are referred to you to report upon, with reference to all branches of the railway? Yes, they are. I must qualify that to some extent; not all minutes—some are.
7759. For instance—all irregularities with reference to the traffic department? With reference to the running of trains.
7760. The general management of the railway? A great many papers are forwarded to me, but not all minutes; anything with reference to the delay of trains.
7761. Is not that in reality the business of the Commissioner? I do not know; so long as the locomotive department is under me the papers are forwarded to me, that I may send instructions to the drivers to prevent a repetition of the delay.
7762. I thought you were Engineer-in-Chief for the construction of railways? Yes, not for the working. When papers are sent to me, I write upon them what I think should be done with them.
7763. If you were to perform your own duties merely of Engineer-in-Chief, and you were relieved of duties that do not belong to you, could you not give a greater amount of attention to your actual duties? I should give greater time to them if I were not detained in Sydney by various causes.
7764. Is not the management of the railway more the business of a man of business, than of the Engineer-in-Chief? No doubt all that is wanted for the manager of a railway is a good commercial or business man.
7765. Would not a good commercial man be a better manager of a railway than the Engineer-in-Chief? I do not profess to manage the railway.
7766. But you acknowledge that a great portion of your time is taken up in managing the railway? In replying to communications connected with the management of the railway, and in keeping accounts,
7767. Which should be kept by the Commissioner? By some one else, by the Locomotive Superintendent, not by me. They ought to be kept in one instance by the Superintendent of the Permanent Way, and by the Locomotive Superintendent in the other.
7768. We find that one entire month of your time has been taken up in investigating this case of Mr. Nealds? I dare say it was fully a month.
7769. Of course it would have been better employed in the construction of railways than in attending to the prosecution of Mr. Nealds? I was badly employed, no doubt; but as far as I was personally concerned, it was no choice of mine.
7770. Does a day pass without your having to report upon some papers that are sent to you? I do not think a day passes without my reporting upon something.
7771. Sometimes several? Yes, a great many sometimes.
7772. Which properly should not come to you at all? Which I do not want.
7773. I do not say which you do not want, but which ought not to come to you at all? I think they ought not to come to me at all if there were others to attend to them.
7774. In fact, they belong to the duty of the Commissioner? Probably these duties should devolve upon the Commissioner to a great extent.
7775. When these duties are sent to you, you report upon them;—give your opinion? I do.
7776. Have you ever refused, on any occasion, to report upon any paper sent to you? No, I do not think I have.
7777. In reality you perform the duty of Engineer-in-Chief and of Commissioner of Railways? I cannot say that I perform the duty of Commissioner for Railways, for they are entirely different appointments; but I do give an opinion upon the papers sent to me—upon all papers thought by the Minister to be advisable to send to me, and send them on.
7778. Without wishing to be personal, I would ask you who selected you for the office of Engineer-in-Chief—who recommended you for the appointment? Lord Stanley, President of the Board of Trade.
- 7779.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
7779. Do you know by whose advice? I really do not know. There were a number of applications, I believe, sent in for the appointment, and among others was mine.
7780. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know to whom the applications were sent? Capt. Galton, who is the Secretary to the Board of Trade.
7781. So that the appointment really rested with him? I do not know that at all.
7782. By the Chairman: Do you know whether Mr. John Fowler had anything to do with your appointment? I do not know that he had—not beyond what any other person would have who had given me testimonials.
7783. Would you state for what purpose the weighbridge was put on the station at Redfern—I mean the weighbridge between the shed and the store? The engine weighbridge?—For the purpose of weighing each wheel in an engine, to ascertain how it is weighted.
7784. At what expense was that done? I do not know what was the cost of the building; the weighbridge itself cost about £150. It is a very necessary thing, and ought to have been put down some time ago.
7785. Will you state the cost of the building and of the weighbridge separately? The cost of the weighbridge and fixing was £378 1s. 1d., and the cost of the house, £156 2s. 1d.,
7786. Are there no other means of ascertaining the weight of engines? There is no other means of ascertaining the weight upon each wheel of an engine; sometimes there may be 6 tons upon one wheel and 4 on another.
7787. This tests the weight upon each wheel? Yes; the engine is put on, and each pair of wheels is weighed separately.
7788. By Mr. Dalgleish: It is impossible almost to balance an engine thoroughly after repairs, unless there is some means of ascertaining the weights? There is no other means of balancing an engine.
7789. By the Chairman: There are a number of turntables at the station; are they not required? Not at present; but they were here before I came.
7790. Are not a number required at Newcastle, for the coal traffic? Not at present; there are a number at Newcastle now. It is not advisable to make station arrangements by which turntables are required. It is advisable to avoid using them, if possible, but in a limited space we are obliged to use them sometimes.
7791. What is the value of the stock at present exposed in the Sydney Station yard? That I cannot tell.
7792. Could you give the Committee the information when you return your evidence? I do not think I could; the Commissioner might give it.
7793. Will you ask the Commissioner for it? I will.
7794. And also the amount of goods imported, upon which Mr. Fowler has had a commission? I believe that question was asked previously. The ordering of the rolling stock, which has been so much spoken of, I had nothing whatever to do with.
7795. Capt. Martindale ordered that? Capt. Martindale and Mr. Nealds together.
7796. Will the stock now in the yard be required for the public service during the next five years—is it likely to be? I do not think the turntables will be required for the next ten years. It is a very large stock, and was here before I came to the Colony. Where they were intended to be used I have not the least idea.
7797. There is an immense lot of stock, other than turntables, which will not be required for many years? The principal part of the stock, with the exception of the turntables, consists of wheels and axles.
7798. Some time ago, going over the yard at the back of the workshops, I saw an immense lot of stock—bolts, straps, and other things—the boxes containing which had burst and were decaying—they have since been removed—what has become of them? I presume they have been removed into the stores.
7799. By Mr. Dalgleish: There was a lot of small pumping engines, I believe? They came out a short time since.
7800. A lot has been there for years? I think not for years; they may have been out two years; I do not remember any.
7801. By the Chairman: Does this stock improve by exposure to weather or keeping in stores? Certainly not.
7802. Then the purchase of this stock long before it was required, was a double loss—loss of interest, and depreciation in the value of the stock from exposure to weather? No doubt.
7803. You had nothing to do with ordering a great portion of this stock? I had not.
7804. It was either here before you came or was ordered by Capt. Martindale? The carriages were ordered by Capt. Martindale; I do not think much other stock.
7805. Who ordered this stock? I presume it was ordered in the time of the Railway Commissioners—at the time Mr. Wallis was here.
7806. There was a large lathe, and a poppet table—what has become of them? We have been fitting up the machinery in the shops lately, but I do not know of any lathe having been lying there.
7807. It was lying near the rails for some time? It has been erected in the shops, I think. It was not lying there a long time, I think.
7808. Since Capt. Martindale left the Colony, you ordered the whole of the machinery, did you not—you sent the requisitions to the Commissioner or Minister? Yes.
7809. Such machinery as you state to be required, is, as a matter of course, ordered? Yes.
7810. The whole of these orders emanate from you now? Yes.
7811. What has been the cost of altering the third into second class carriages? That I cannot tell; I can ascertain.

7812. Will you supply that information? I will.*
7813. Upon whose advice was that alteration made? I really do not know. I think it appeared to be the general impression that it would be desirable to have two classes instead of three. On the Northern Line there were only two classes, and it was thought desirable to have but two here. J. Whitton,
Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
7814. You do not know who suggested the alteration? I do not know who suggested it, but the order would be from the Minister, no doubt.
7815. Is there a person of the name of Fitzmaurice in the Railway Department now? Not now, I believe.
7816. How long has he been dismissed? I really do not remember; I should think eighteen months ago, or he might be in the Railway Department now without my knowledge; but I do not think he is there.
7817. I mean a man of the name of Fitzmaurice, who gave evidence in Nealds' case? Yes.
7818. He was in the Railway Department then? Yes, he was.
7819. He is now dismissed, is he not? Yes, I believe he is; I know he was dismissed; whether he has since been employed on the railway I do not know.
7820. In the report made by you to the Under Secretary for Works, you say—"The duties upon which Mr. Trengrouse has been employed, are to make tracings of land plans required for notices to owners and occupiers of land taken for railway purposes, and also to copy deed plans of land purchased; his services, therefore, can be readily replaced"—Was not Mr. Trengrouse, senior, a very good draughtsman? No, I do not know that he is a very good draughtsman; he made some neat drawings, but he is not what I call a first-rate draughtsman.
7821. Is he not as good a draughtsman as any in your office? There may be a difference of opinion upon that point; some may say a man is a good draughtsman because he can make a neat drawing; I do not call a man a good draughtsman merely because he can make a very neat drawing.
7822. Would not Mr. Barton be a judge of a good draughtsman? He is a good draughtsman.
7823. Mr. Mason? Mr. Mason is a good draughtsman.
7824. Mr. Drewett? Yes. I say that Mr. Trengrouse's are very neat drawings, but I should not call Mr. Trengrouse an experienced draughtsman. I believe Mr. Trengrouse's first experience on railways was obtained in this country.
7825. Did Mr. Trengrouse ever make any mistake in the drawings made by him for the Railway Department? I really do not know.
7826. Did he not always give satisfaction during the time he was employed in the Railway Department as a draughtsman? So far as his drawings were concerned; he has made very few drawings since he came into the Railway Department; his only drawings have been drawings of land plans and making tracings.
7827. Making tracings is merely boy's work? In making land plans it requires something more than a boy; the person who does this work must be able to cast the quantities.
7828. Did not Mr. Trengrouse do this very satisfactorily? I cannot say very satisfactorily; there were a great many complaints respecting the work done.
7829. In what way—was it incorrect? No, the complaints were as to the length of time he took to get out these plans.
7830. Did any one speak to Mr. Trengrouse on this subject? I have no doubt he has been spoken to repeatedly.
7831. By whom? Mr. Cowlishaw and Mr. Moody. I have had many complaints. Now the work is done more expeditiously.
7832. Who does the work now? Mr. Mackenzie.
7833. Is he appointed, or taken on temporarily? He is appointed temporarily; it was impossible that things could stand still, and he was appointed temporarily.
7834. Is that the kind of work upon which you put your best draughtsmen? It is not exactly the work I should put my best draughtsmen to; it is work to which I should put a person who had some knowledge of land plans and of casting quantities. At the time Mr. Trengrouse was appointed I believe he was not very efficient in calculating quantities.
7835. If he were not very efficient in calculating quantities, why was he put into a position where the greatest nicety was required? Mr. Trengrouse's manner was so offensive to other gentlemen that they refused to give him instructions, and therefore it was necessary that Mr. Trengrouse should be put to some particular duty where it was not necessary that he should come in contact with other officers.
7836. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you say that some of the plans Mr. Trengrouse made were incorrect? No, I did not say that.
7837. By the Chairman: In what way was Mr. Trengrouse offensive to other gentlemen in the department? In some cases asking permission to go out, and on being refused going without leave.
7838. Was any complaint made to the Minister about his conduct? No written complaint was made to the Minister, but I have repeatedly spoken to him about Mr. Trengrouse.
7839. Did you not think it was your duty, if Mr. Trengrouse left the office without leave, to complain to the Minister of his conduct? I ought to have recommended his dismissal, no doubt.
7840. Is there any record in the office of any complaint having been made against Mr. Trengrouse during his ten years servitude in the office? Mr. Trengrouse has been only eight years in the department.
7841. He was two years connected with the railway before it was turned over to Government? I think Mr. Trengrouse was only appointed in 1855. 7842.

* The amount is £401 14s. 2d.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
7842. He was appointed before the railway was turned over to Government? I think he was with the Commissioner, but not with the Company; I think his appointment with the Commissioner was dated 1855.
7843. Is there any record in the office of any complaint having been made against Mr. Trengrouse during the whole of that period? I think there are some papers—some complaints with reference to one or two plans, but nothing of importance.
7844. Was there anything of sufficient importance to justify his dismissal? I think going out without permission was.
7845. But that is not on record? It is not on record.
7846. That matter was passed over? Yes.
7847. Did Mr. Trengrouse ever complain to you about the insubordination of the department? Never; and you will find in Mr. Trengrouse's evidence he states distinctly he never did complain to me; that is in the evidence which he signed.
7848. I see in the evidence, and it is corroborated by two or three witnesses, that Mr. Trengrouse did on one occasion make some complaint to you, with reference to the disorganized state of the department? He never did; the first I heard of it was in Mr. Gardiner's letter to me.
7849. Mr. Gardiner, in his evidence (page 6, Appendix) states:—"Mr. Hall informed me, some ten or twelve months ago, that Mr. Trengrouse complained to Mr. Whitton about the disorderly state of the department, but that 'honest John' would take no notice of the complaints; he also told me that Mr. Whitton was as heavy a drinker as himself, and a great man for singing at small tea-parties?" Mr. Gardiner may state that; I do not dispute Mr. Gardiner's statement, but at the same time I say distinctly it is untrue; Mr. Trengrouse, when he was giving his evidence, was asked by me whether he had ever reported to me, and he said no.
7850. In Mr. Trengrouse's evidence now, he says he did report to you? He does now, but he did not before.
7851. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were not complaints made at the time, that this evidence was incorrectly taken down? Not a single complaint was made by him.
7852. Did not Mr. Doherty refuse to sign his statement unless some alterations were made? Yes, he was asked whether he had been seen drunk in Sydney streets more than once, and he refused to sign unless that was erased.
7853. Mr. Doherty said he had not? No. I asked the question whether he had or not, and he declined to answer the question, and refused to sign unless that were taken out of the paper.
7854. Did he not refuse to sign it because there were other matters in it? No.
7855. By the Chairman: He says here:—"I decline to answer whether I have been seen drunk in Sydney streets?" Yes, he refused to sign it unless that were erased.
7856. By Mr. Dalgleish: That was implying that he had been seen drunk in Sydney streets? I believe he has; the question was whether he had been seen drunk in Sydney streets on more than one occasion.
7857. Do you think he was temperate in the office? I do not say he was not, but I heard that he had not been temperate elsewhere, and therefore I asked the question whether he had been or not.
7858. Who was it read the evidence to the witnesses? They read it over themselves; it was placed in their own hands. I am not positive that all read their evidence over themselves—I think they did; but if not, it was read over by Mr. Moody to them before they signed.
7859. Were their answers put down in full? Not entirely, but very nearly; things not relevant to the matter were not put down; but I do not know any instance, except in the case of Mr. Robertson, where it was not put down; at all events they had the opportunity of putting anything in they pleased before they signed.
7860. They had the opportunity of putting in anything they pleased? Yes, certainly; there was no objection made to their putting in anything.
7861. But there were objections to take out what was asked? I think nothing was asked to be taken out, except in the case of Mr. Doherty.
7862. By the Chairman: Have you ever heard that Mr. Hall was in the habit of taking more drink than was good for him? I never heard of it until Mr. Gardiner's letter to me.
7863. Did you ever hear that Mr. Micklethwait was? I have seen it stated so by a number of witnesses here and also in the papers; but I may say this of Mr. Micklethwait, that I have known him seven-and-twenty years, and I have never known him to be drunk in my life.
7864. Nor the worse for drink? Nor the worse for drink. I do not say he never has been, because I have not always been with him.
7865. One of the charges brought against Mr. Nealds was, borrowing money from a subordinate officer? Yes, that was one charge.
7866. Did not a person named Brown bring a charge of a similar nature against Mr. Micklethwait? Brown had lent money to Mr. Micklethwait, but he did not bring a charge against him; he simply stated that Mr. Micklethwait owed him some money, and he got it all paid, I believe.
7867. There was no charge made against Mr. Micklethwait? No charge against Mr. Micklethwait.
7868. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did Mr. Brown never write to you about that? I do not believe he did.
7869. By the Chairman: Are you sure? I will not be positive; I do not believe he did. I think Mr. Brown called upon me about it.
7870. You did not call upon Mr. Micklethwait to explain anything about it? I do not think I did. I think I saw Mr. Micklethwait on one occasion with reference to it, and he told

- told me that he did owe Brown some money—that there had been some accounts between them—lending each other money—and that he did owe Mr. Brown some money.
7871. Was it not money borrowed by Mr. Micklethwait to pay his men? I do not know what it was borrowed for; I think for the purchase of a horse.
7872. At the same time Mr. Micklethwait was Mr. Brown's superior officer? He was.
7873. Did you know a gentleman in your department of the name of Mann? Yes.
7874. How long has he been there? I think he was engaged in 1857.
7875. What is he now? A surveyor, and assists in staking out the Goulburn line.
7876. Where did he learn surveying? With his uncle, some years before he came into the department.
7877. How old was he when he came into the department? I think about seventeen or eighteen.
7878. He could not have learned it many years previously? I believe he had been at Goulburn with his uncle.
7879. Is he a good surveyor? Yes.
7880. Have you seen any of his work? He is now staking out the Goulburn line.
7881. By Mr. Dalgleish: His brother or himself? Himself; his uncle is not engaged in the department.
7882. By the Chairman: At what salary did he enter the department? He entered without salary at all.
7883. How long did he remain in the office, without salary? I think about eight months probably; I do not remember exactly. I think he came into the office about February, and received salary in September or October.
7884. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was the brother employed as a railway surveyor? No.
7885. Was he ever engaged as a railway surveyor? Not that I am aware.
7886. How then could he learn railway surveying from him? Railway surveying is not different from other surveying. His uncle was in the Survey Department at Goulburn.
7887. By the Chairman: Do you know what salary he first received from the department? £150 a year.
7888. What does he receive now? £300.
7889. What allowances? £280 a year—the allowance fixed for the Survey Department.
7890. That is £580 a year altogether? Yes.
7891. Have you seen any of the work sent by him into the office? The sections are partly plotted by him, but his work is in the field; there is not much work of his that goes into the office, for the reason that he stakes out on the ground.
7892. Have you ever had any complaints against him? No. There was some small complaint about his being absent from the office, for which some pay was deducted.
7893. No complaints about his work? No.
7894. Here is a letter from Mr. Brown, which says:—"Mr. Micklethwait did borrow a large sum of money from me, while engaged on the Northern Railway surveys; but I am equally bound to say that he returned me the full amount; and although I experienced the greatest difficulty in getting it back, it was not from any dishonorable intention on Mr. Micklethwait's part, as is insinuated in Mr. Gardiner's impertinent letter. It is also true that about a year after my leaving the department, I did complain to Mr. Whitton, privately, that Mr. Micklethwait was not making provision for the return of the money I had lent him, and of which, at the time, I had urgent need"—I presume that is the time when Mr. Brown spoke to you? Yes; that bears out what I state—that Mr. Brown did complain to me; I cannot say positively that I did not receive a letter from him.
7895. In one case such a matter was considered to be of sufficient importance to bring the person charged before a Board, in another it was not? The two cases were entirely distinct. Mr. Micklethwait had not power over Mr. Brown to increase his salary or to give him emoluments, but Mr. Nealds had in the case of Cotton.
7896. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was not Mr. Brown Mr. Micklethwait's subordinate officer? Yes, but only to this extent—that he acted under the directions of Mr. Micklethwait; Mr. Micklethwait had nothing to do with his pay.
7897. Mr. Micklethwait could have reported upon his conduct? If he had done so, of course an inquiry would have been instituted.
7898. It is stated that Mr. Micklethwait had not paid the money until twelve months after Mr. Brown was out of the department, and then not until pressure was brought upon you to cause him to pay? When it was known to me that this money was owing, I took the first opportunity of speaking to Mr. Micklethwait upon it.
7899. You felt it was a matter you had something to do with officially? I felt it to be a disgraceful matter for one person in the department to be owing another money.
7900. Did you ask Mr. Micklethwait for an explanation, whether the money was received by him to be employed for Government purposes? I believe it was to purchase a horse, but I do not know it as a matter of fact.
7901. It was not to pay his men? I do not know that it was.
7902. Did you recommend the acceptance of Mr. Micklethwait's resignation? Yes.
7903. You knew that he was one of the parties named as taking part in the disorderly conduct in the Department of Works? I knew he was, but at the time I knew that Mr. Micklethwait's illness precluded him from doing as much work as I thought it desirable should be done, and therefore I thought it advisable his resignation should be accepted.
7904. You know that the rest of the persons who are suspended will have to be paid during the period of their suspension? Yes.
7905. It would have been no worse to have paid Mr. Micklethwait than the rest? I thought it was enough to have to pay four or five persons who were doing no work.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
7906. Are you aware that Mr. Micklethwait refused to attend the Committee when summoned? I do not know; I know that he was too ill to attend the office.
7907. And that on another occasion he did not answer the summons? I do not know.
7908. He has been seen in Sydney since? I believe he has been in Sydney.
7909. By the Chairman: Mr. Micklethwait often visits your place, does he not? He lives on the North Shore, but he is generally up the country; he has not been in Sydney more than three or four months during the last two years.
7910. You said, in your previous evidence before the Committee, that you sent to Messrs. Manning, Wardell, & Co. for some engines? Yes, I did.
7911. Did you send direct to them? Yes.
7912. Why were not tenders called for the supply of them? The number sent for in the first instance was small.
7913. There were eighteen? The order was not sent to Messrs. Manning, Wardell, & Co., for the eighteen. I gave the order direct, because I believed that, by so doing, we should get engines of a better class than we should by public tender.
7914. In your previous evidence I see the following questions and answers:—"How many engines have been imported direct from them to this Colony, for the public service?—That "I cannot tell without reference, but I think about ten"? They were ordered at different times; the first order was for two. I think they were all sent out in two's, at different times. One order, I think, was for four.
7915. When orders are sent to England, for goods, at the present time, are tenders called for, for them? Yes, I believe so, in all cases. I do not know what they do in England; I have not the least doubt they are.
7916. In your previous evidence you said you did not often visit the long-room? Recently I have not.
7917. When Mr. Gardiner was employed in the long-room, you visited there very often you say? That was during the time the drawings were being made for the bridges and viaducts, for the extension.
7918. Sometimes two or three times a day? Yes, sometimes.
7919. You have not visited the drawing-room frequently latterly, have you? No, there has been no work of that kind going forward.
7920. Was it very particular work that Mr. Gardiner was engaged upon, that you found it necessary to visit the drawing-room two or three times a day? It was not to visit him only, but others—I generally looked at Mr. Gardiner's work. I see that Mr. Trengrouse has stated that the whole of the estimates for the extension were made by Mr. Gardiner; now Mr. Gardiner never made an estimate for the extension, during the whole time he was in the department.
7921. Did he not make the calculations? He simply made the calculation for the viaduct. The whole of the chief calculations, which is nine-tenths of the work, was done by Mr. Barton. The estimates were made by Mr. Barton and myself entirely.
7922. By Mr. Dalgleish: What is meant by making the estimates as it is stated there? Mr. Trengrouse gives the Committee the impression that the whole of the estimates, the earth-works, culverts, and masonry, were calculated and moneyed out by him.
7923. By the Chairman: What difficulty is there in moneying out a thing when the quantities are given? But the quantities were not taken out by Mr. Gardiner, except for the viaduct.
7924. When the quantities are taken out, any one can form the estimate? I think the most difficult thing is to get out the prices.
7925. If the prices per cubic yard for masonry, per ton for iron-work, and so on, are known, and the quantities are known, the estimate can be made by any one? These were estimates made previously to advertising for tenders. Mr. Gardiner had not taken out any of these quantities—
7926. By Mr. Dalgleish: If such estimates appear upon the drawings, who will have done them—If the work is not only estimated for—the quantity of stone and iron-work—but also the moneying out, will it not appear from the drawings, by whom it has been done? Yes.
7927. It appears upon the drawings that Mr. Gardiner has estimated for these things? If so, the price must have been given to him by Mr. Barton.
7928. To get out the contents is termed getting out the estimate; the moneying is only one part? To make a complete estimate, the quantities of all the earth-work must be taken.
7929. Mr. Trengrouse has not said that Mr. Gardiner did this? Mr. Trengrouse said the estimates were made by Mr. Gardiner, and that the Assembly approved Mr. Gardiner's estimate. He is asked, Q. 3265—"Do you know whether it was his estimates that were laid before the Assembly?" and he answers, "I am not aware whether he got out the last estimates. 3266. I am speaking of the first estimates for the first class lines?—Yes. 3267. It was Mr. Gardiner's estimates that were laid before the Assembly, and of course received the approval of Mr. Whitton?—Yes, it was." I say it was not.
7930. Does that allude to anything more than the viaduct—does that allude to the whole line? It alludes unquestionably to the whole of the estimates; he does not in any way qualify what he says.
7931. By the Chairman: It was intended to be confined to the bridges? It does not appear so here.
7932. By Mr. Stewart: Would it be correct if it were confined to the bridges? He certainly got out the quantities for the bridges.
7933. By the Chairman: I intended it to apply only to the bridges, and I believe the answer was given with that understanding; it was well known to myself and every other Member of the Committee, that Mr. Gardiner was not employed in making the general estimates?
Then

- Then there is the reply to another question:—"3271. Do you think there is another officer in the country, capable of getting up the cost as Mr. Gardiner did, in the same time?—I do not think so, neither do I think they would get it up in double the time." That is simply a gratuitous assumption on the part of Mr. Trengrouse, on a matter of which he knows nothing; he could not do it himself, and therefore could not have any opinion.
7934. By Mr. Dalgleish: How many bridges did Mr. Gardiner get out? I do not know.
7935. Did he get them out for 200 feet span? Not that I know.
7936. Mr. Gardiner has stated in his evidence that he made detailed drawings in pencil, for iron tubular girder bridges of spans of 200, 150, 120, 100, and 50 feet, and plain I girders for 60, 40, and 20 feet; that all the thicknesses and sizes of the plates, angle irons, &c., were exhibited; and that this design for a bridge with openings of 150 feet, made according to the principle of Professor Latham, was superior for strength and lightness, and £10,000 cheaper than the Menangle Bridge made by Mr. John Fowler;—did he make such designs? I never saw them—I do not believe he did; if he did they must be among the sketches sent up here; I have never seen them.
7937. Mr. Gardiner states that there are designs made by him which have been coloured, which are not here? I wish he could point them out. I have not interfered with the drawings, but have given instructions to forward all the papers ordered by the Committee.
7938. They may not be aware that these drawings are Mr. Gardiner's? I believe all the drawings have been forwarded.
7939. Do the officers in your department keep a journal of the work they do? Yes.
7940. Would Mr. Gardiner's journal shew the work he had done? I should think it would.
7941. Would it shew the difference between the iron and stone bridges he was employed upon? I cannot say.
7942. Would it shew the number of viaducts or bridges he was employed upon? I do not think so. I think it would simply say, "Engaged upon bridges." These drawings I have never seen, nor do I believe they were required for the work he was then engaged upon. The only drawings for iron bridges were two designed by Mr. Barton over the Wollondilly.
7943. By Mr. Morris: If Mr. Gardiner had been making these bridges would he have been wasting his time? I never gave instructions to have them done.
7944. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you not in the office at that time about two or three times a day? I was.
7945. Did you not say that Mr. Barton knew more about this matter, and gave instructions? Yes.
7946. Did Mr. Barton do anything more than give the elevation and section of one of the iron bridges? I think two or three—I think there were two crossings of the Wollondilly. If the drawings were made, there can be no question that they are in the office, unless they have been taken away by some one who has no business with them. I can only say I have never seen them, nor am I aware that such drawings have ever been made.
7947. There would be drawings for the first class line at that time, which were changed? Yes.
7948. Would bridges of those spans have been necessary for this line? I do not think so; I think there were only two crossings of the Wollondilly.
7949. Did you ever intend to make iron bridges? No; stone bridges were generally adopted throughout, and iron girders only for large spans. There may be some on the Bathurst line for small spans. I have never seen the drawings said to have been made by Mr. Gardiner.
7950. You do not say such drawings do not exist? I do not, but I have not seen them.
7951. By the Chairman: Is not designing bridges and taking out the quantities, considered important work? Yes. The sketches were given to Mr. Gardiner; he had simply the inking of them.
7952. If Mr. Gardiner was not employed upon important work, how was it that you visited the long drawing-room several times a day while he was there? There was a great deal of work going on there, and I was anxious to get it forward for the Assembly, and I wanted to see the progress made. It was not only to see Mr. Gardiner that I went there.
7953. Did he ever speak to you of a superior mode of surveying to that employed in the Colony? No.
7954. You say in your previous evidence—"He never spoke to me about anything of the kind. From my experience of the work done by him, I should think he was the last person who would do so"—what did you refer to? I was referring to the survey made by Mr. Gardiner of Bathurst Road. Mr. Gardiner says it is a hand sketch. A great number of errors are marked on that plan, and Mr. Gardiner does not shew that those errors do not exist. He says if they do, it must be the fault of the chainmen.
7955. Were these errors in chaining done before he was engaged to draw these plans and take out the quantities? It was afterwards—after he was employed in the Railway Department in making this.
7956. Did you ever find any errors in the work of Mr. Gardiner done in your office? No; I do not think Mr. Gardiner's work was particularly checked.
7957. You do not know under what circumstances these errors appeared in the chaining? I have only seen Mr. Gardiner's explanation.
7958. By the Chairman: The errors that you speak of, were made after he had been employed in your office the first time? Yes, I believe so.
7959. How was it then, that you referred to them in the answer you gave to the question—"Did he not speak to you of some superior mode of surveying to that employed in the Colony?" when you said, "He never spoke to me about anything of the kind. From my experience of the work done by him, I should think he was the last person who would do so";—because if he made any suggestion of the kind, it would be before you had any knowledge

J. Whitton,
Esq.

22 Feb., 1864.

knowledge of the errors you speak of? Yes; but at the time I gave my answer I knew of those errors, and that was the reason why I say that he was the last person to do so.

7960. What do you mean by saying that he was the last person to do so? I mean that I did not think him capable of offering an opinion on the best mode of surveying.

7961. Did he ever say anything to you on the subject of railway curves? I think I have already answered that question in my previous evidence.

7962. Was ever any complaints made to you of the amount or quality of his work, prior to his reporting to you the ill conduct of the officers of the department? I do not know that any complaint of the kind was made.

7963. For what was he dismissed? For insubordination. He threatened to strike Mr. Drewett. He went into Mr. Drewett's room in the most excited manner, and was very violent, and threatened to strike him. Mr. Drewett complained of this, and Mr. Gardiner was dismissed.

7964. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Drewett does not state that—he does not say that Mr. Gardiner threatened to strike him? Perhaps I was wrong in saying that. The evidence was, I think, that he went into the room in a most excited manner, and that he put his hands up in such an excited way that Mr. Drewett did not know whether he was going to strike him or not.

7965. By the Chairman: Were any complaints ever made to you relative to Mr. Gardiner's conduct, before this complaint of Mr. Drewett's? I do not know that there were. I am aware that Mr. Gardiner fancied that I seized upon this as an opportunity to dismiss him; but there is evidently a mistake in this. If I wished to discharge him I could have done so at any moment, by the mere stroke of a pen, and I need have given no reason for it. He was only temporarily employed; and the moment the exigencies of the service no longer required his employment, a mere minute of mine would have been sufficient to discharge him. I am the sole judge of what extra temporary assistance is required in the department.

7966. If that was the case, and that you could have dismissed him with the stroke of a pen, why was his case brought before the Executive Council after your inquiry? Because of his insubordinate conduct towards Mr. Drewett.

7967. But you say you could have dismissed him by a stroke of the pen, if you considered his services to be no longer required;—could you not have done the same after the inquiry, without sending his case to the Executive? No; because his appointment having been approved by the Executive, the papers must go before them before he could be dismissed.

7968. Have you ever heard of any other falling-out in your department—for instance, did it ever come to your ears that Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering once fought? There could not have been much quarrelling in the department. When you come to consider that I have now been seven or eight years in office, and that this is the only case that has ever been brought under my notice, it cannot be said that the department is very quarrelsome.

7969. But you thought it necessary to dismiss Mr. Gardiner, simply because Mr. Drewett thought he might have been threatened; how did it happen that you did not dismiss Mr. Hall or Mr. Deering, who actually fought? Because I never heard of the thing occurring. I knew nothing about it until Mr. Gardiner's letter appeared in the paper. No report was ever made to me, and I was not aware that there had been any fighting at all, and consequently could not have dismissed either party.

7970. If the fact of this fighting had been reported to Mr. Drewett, ought he not to have reported it to you? I am not aware that it was reported to him.

7971. But if he says it was reported to him, ought he not to have reported the circumstance to you? You will always have disputes in a large department in which a number of persons are employed. Arguments are sure to arise, and differences of opinion will follow, resulting in occasional misunderstandings that are better not taken notice of. I know that if I undertook to inquire into every petty little case of difference of opinion that arises in the department, I should have nothing else to do. When any of these misunderstandings have been mentioned to me, I have generally censured the parties and suffered the matter to drop. My whole time would be taken up with inquiries if I went into these cases.

7972. So that in one case you consider that to be quite sufficient to warrant you in dismissing an officer, which in another you pass over with a censure? The cases I allude to are those of petty squabbles only.

7973. But in the case of Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering fighting? I have already said that I never heard of it until I saw Mr. Gardiner's letter in the paper; and then again, in the next place, Mr. Gardiner was employed under Mr. Drewett, and as he chose to quarrel with his immediate superior, from whom he was to receive his orders, I thought that the business of the department could not be properly carried on if such a state of things were allowed to exist.

7974. Do you consider then, that that which you would only meet with censure in a permanent officer of the department, is sufficient to warrant the dismissal of one who is only temporarily employed? I consider that we must have subordination in the Government departments, as the only way by which we can get the business satisfactorily performed; and that if a person, whether temporarily employed or otherwise, will not be subordinate to the officer above him, who is responsible for his work, it is impossible that the duties can be efficiently carried on in the department where this is allowed to exist.

7975. Did you ever censure Mr. Gardiner? No.

7976. Had you done so, do you not think that that would have quite met the offence of which he had been guilty, without going to the extreme length of dismissing him? I do not know; but the question hardly arises, for when he was dismissed, the work of the department was getting very slack, and the probability is that if he had not been dismissed then, he would have been shortly after, from there not being sufficient work to employ him.

7977. How long after he was dismissed was it before another officer was appointed in his place? None were appointed until the others were suspended.

7978.

7978. How long was this after Mr. Gardiner's dismissal? I really cannot say.
7979. How many officers employed as draughtsmen had you in your department at the end of July, 1863? I do not remember how many.
7980. There are five set down on the Estimates? Yes, I dare say.
7981. And had you not ten draughtsmen employed? Very likely, but I really cannot say positively.
7982. How do you account for the fact that you should have ten employed, whilst salaries for five only are voted? The five are regarded as permanent officers, and then there is a temporary vote for occasional assistance when necessary, and the others would be paid out of this. We do not consider persons to be engaged in the department when they are paid out of this temporary vote, and they are taken on only when they are wanted by the pressure of business, and are dismissed at any moment when their services are no longer required.
7983. Was not Mr. Robertson on the permanent staff of your department? He was.
7984. How do you account then for saying, in your report to the Minister for Works, that Mr. Robertson was only temporarily employed in the department, in making tracings? I do not remember the exact words now, but I think that what I said was that he was "principally" engaged in making tracings.
7985. No, the word used is "temporarily"? I do not remember.
7986. Instead, however, of his being only temporarily engaged, it appears from the evidence given before this Committee, that he was occupied upon all the best work of the office; and Mr. Drewett says that not only did Mr. Robertson do his fair share of work, but that his work was quite equal to that of any other gentleman in the department, and that he (Mr. Drewett) could not tell his work from that of Mr. Robertson? Yes, but that work was simply making lines, and would not present much difference.
7987. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is not all drawing nothing more than making lines? Yes, but I make a wide distinction between this copying and the making of designs.
7988. By the Chairman: But you make the designs from which Mr. Drewett, as well as Mr. Robertson works? Yes, as I do in all cases.
7989. Do you not think Mr. Robertson to be a better mathematician than Mr. Drewett? No, I do not; I know nothing about his mathematical knowledge.
7990. By Mr. Dalgleish: But did you not inquire? I did not.
7991. Did you not ask him as to his capabilities, before receiving him into the Government service? I merely asked him a few questions, as to the work upon which he had been previously employed.
7992. By the Chairman: And that was all that was done? That was all that I required to know.
7993. You assumed, I suppose, that he was not a mathematician? I did not; I never thought about it. It was not my business to inquire as to his mathematical attainments, and I did not wish to know about them. He was engaged for certain work in the department, and all I required to know was whether he was capable of performing that work.
7994. Then, as I understand you, what you say in your report that he was only temporarily employed in making tracings, is a mistake? Yes, certainly; he was on the Estimates. He came into the department as a mere boy, to make tracings, and without any pretensions to anything more than that. Mr. Blakett was anxious to get him something to do, and asked me to take him into my office, and I did so.
7995. Have you seen a certificate from Mr. Blakett, in regard to Mr. Robertson's qualifications? I have.
7996. Do you happen to know at what salary Mr. Quodling entered your department? Yes, at £250 a year.
7997. Whilst Mr. Robertson entered it at £50 a year? Exactly; but I had better explain this. Mr. Blakett asked me if I would take young Robertson, who was then a mere boy, at £50 a year. He said he was a promising youth, but that he could not afford to give him anything, and was anxious that he should do something for himself. I spoke to Mr. Arnold upon the subject of the application, and he agreed to the arrangement that was proposed, that Mr. Robertson should be taken on at £50 a year. You must therefore remember that he came into the department as a boy, with little if any experience, and without any knowledge whatever of railway works.
7998. Now, supposing the two offices to be vacant, that of Mr. Quodling and that recently held by Mr. Robertson, which would you be able to fill the easiest with a competent person? That of Mr. Robertson, without a doubt. I question very much if I could get a man in the Colony equal to Mr. Quodling, to fill his place if it were vacant.
7999. Do you know that when he came into your department, he had previously been entrusted with the drawing of several important designs? No, I knew nothing at all about him, and took him, as I have already said, on the recommendation of Mr. Blakett.
8000. Do you consider that you were acting with injustice in taking on Mr. Robertson at £50 a year, whilst you engaged Mr. Quodling at £250? Certainly not; Mr. Quodling's position is a very important one, and one, as I said before, that I should find it difficult to replace him in; whilst Mr. Robertson's was a very simple one, requiring no previous study, nothing, in fact, but a knowledge of drawing. Besides this, Mr. Quodling was a man of five and twenty at least, whilst Mr. Robertson was only a boy of fifteen or sixteen.
8001. You say his position required no previous study, but he must have studied in order to learn the art of drawing? Yes, to that extent.
8002. And you thought it quite fair to give him £50 a year, whilst Mr. Quodling had five times that amount, though entering the service at the same time? Yes, under the circumstances; but then it was not for me to do anything beyond accepting his offer, and as he proffered to come in at £50 a year, it was on that ground the Minister accepted his services.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

22 Feb., 1864.

- J. Whitton, Esq. 8003. Do you not think that his services were worth more than this £50 a year? Yes, possibly.
8004. Mr. Drewett says that he has upon several occasions recommended him for an increase, but he has been unable to get it for him? That may be.
- 22 Feb., 1864. 8005. By Mr. Dalgleish: What experience had Mr. Quodling* when you took him on, more than Mr. Robertson? Nominally he was a land surveyor; but railway surveying is like all other surveying, requiring only a knowledge of how to use the instruments.
8006. What difference was there between them? Why, he could use instruments of all kinds, the theodolite, circumferenter, and others. He told me also that he had been out in the field with his uncle, and that his uncle was prepared to state that he could survey very well, when he left his uncle at Goulburn, where he had been engaged on the southern extension.
8007. By the Chairman: Then you took him on the recommendation of his uncle? No, I had not seen his uncle; I went only from what he told me himself. I had better explain the whole circumstances: I took him on, in the first instance, without any salary, until I could find out his capabilities; and I sent him out for this purpose, with Mr. Barton, on to the Menangle Extension. He was out in the field with Mr. Barton, and that gentleman informed me that he could survey very well. Upon this he was regularly employed, in the October following, and was paid a salary, I think, of £3 a week.
8008. I think you said that Mr. Trengrouse was on bad terms with all the other gentlemen in the office? I did not go so far as that. I said that his superior officer in the branch in which he was engaged had declined to give him instructions, because of the bad temper he evinced; and that in consequence of this, I thought it better to put him upon the work on which he has latterly been engaged.
8009. Did you ever hear of his falling out with any other person in your department than with Mr. Hall? No; but I know that before he was put to that work, Mr. Mason refused to give him any further instructions, because of his † disagreeable temper.
8010. Was this given to you as a reason? It was.
8011. And was it placed on record? No, I did not think it necessary.
8012. But you have done so in other cases? Only where I thought it was warranted, as in that case of the going out. The case you allude to was totally different.
8013. By Mr. Dalgleish: That was a different case, I presume, to the one in which the record was made by Mr. Drewett on which Mr. Gardiner was discharged? No; and I have already said, that if a record had been made of the other case I should have felt it to be my duty to recommend Mr. Trengrouse's dismissal.
8014. Mr. Trengrouse refused to do certain work he was directed to perform? Something of the kind.
8015. But Mr. Gardiner did not? No.
8016. In Mr. Trengrouse's case you were only asked to relieve the officer from giving him instructions? That was all.
8017. And in Mr. Gardiner's case a formal complaint was made to you? Yes.
8018. By the Chairman: Do you think that was a sufficient ground to warrant his dismissal? Certainly. If a man refuses to take orders from his superior officer, all subordination is at an end, and there is quite sufficient to cause his immediate dismissal.
8019. But Mr. Gardiner did not do this? He may not in so many words have refused; but if he conducted himself in an offensive manner to his superior officer, by threatening him or otherwise, it is an equally serious offence.
8020. Did you see the evidence given by Mr. Gardiner, after Mr. Drewett's explanation of the circumstances? I did not.
8021. Well, he says that he went into Mr. Drewett's room, for the purpose of asking an explanation from him relative to a plan on which "Error" was marked in large letters, that had been placed on his desk in front of him. As this was a plan that he had made, he was naturally very much annoyed at the circumstance, and went to ask an explanation from Mr. Drewett? I did not see this.
8022. You are aware that this plan of his, with "Error" marked on it, was placed before him? No, I never heard that it was, nor do I think it was.
8023. Are you aware that Mr. Drewett, in his evidence, says that it was laid before Mr. Gardiner? I am not; this is the first I have heard of the circumstance.
8024. Were you not informed that Mr. Gardiner said that this plan had been placed before him solely for the purpose of insulting him? No. I tell you that I have never heard of this before; and I do not think it could have been the case, because if it had, it would have been sure to have been mentioned by Mr. Gardiner in his statement.
8025. It was that alone that led Mr. Gardiner into Mr. Drewett's room, to ask an explanation from him, and Mr. Drewett's answer to his complaint was, that he was only acting according to orders? I do not see how this could be, because the plan was not in our department at all; it belonged to the Roads Branch, and was not required in any way in Mr. Gardiner's room.
8026. Here is the evidence given by Mr. Robertson on the subject:—"Were you present when Mr. Gardiner spoke to Mr. Drewett on that occasion?—I was not in Mr. Drewett's room, but I was in the room with Mr. Gardiner when he went to Mr. Drewett to speak to him. On that occasion Mr. Drewett brought some tracings of Mr. Gardiner's plans with "Error" marked on them in large red square letters, and put them on the table before him. What plans were they?—Some plans, I think, referring to the Mudgee Road.
- "Were

* NOTE (on revision):—Judging from the reply given to this question, it must refer to Mr. Mann and not to Mr. Quodling.

† Revised:—going out of the office after he was requested by Mr. Mason not to do so.

- “ Were they plans connected with the Railway Department?—No, the Roads Department. J. Whitton, Esq.
 “ Were they plans that Mr. Drewett had any control over?—We had nothing to do with those plans. They must have been searched out and put there for the purpose of irritating Mr. Gardiner?—I cannot say they were searched out; I believe they were put there for that purpose, for there was nothing to be done to them. Was Mr. Gardiner much excited?—He did not appear to be much excited. Were you in the same room as Mr. Gardiner?—Yes, at that time. Did Mr. Gardiner speak to you about the matter at that time?—He said something about it after he came out from Mr. Drewett; he said Mr. Drewett was a good fellow; he had nothing to do with this (meaning the error), and referred him to Mr. Barton. He exonerated Mr. Drewett from having had anything to do with it?—Yes. When Mr. Gardiner spoke to Mr. Drewett, was he excited—did he use any loud language?—I could not hear any loud language, though his door was open, and his door was next to ours. I heard the murmuring of voices, but it did not sound as if there was any loud talking.” I think there must have been some mistake. We received these plans from the Roads Department. I recollect now sending for them for some business in my department in connection with the Mudgee Road. The plan we received had the word “Error” marked on it; and as I had ordered tracings to be made from it, I was asked if I would have the word “Error” marked on them also. I said yes, that it would be much better to do so, as the tracings might fall into the hands of others who did not know their history, and might be assumed to be correct. But the plan was given in to the long-room, to copy, and Mr. Gardiner is engaged in the upper room, so that it would not have come before him at all, and that is why I think there must have been some mistake.
8027. No, there is no mistake at all; the plan was laid before him, on the desk where he usually sits? I should like to have some further information on the subject before I say any more on it.
8028. Now, assuming this to be correct, do you not think that it was sufficient—if not to justify his conduct, at all events to palliate it, considering that he was under the impression that it had been done for the purpose of insulting him? Yes, perhaps so, if that was his idea; but I cannot understand why the plans should have been placed before him.
8029. You see by the evidence I read, that this witness says that it was admitted that the plans were placed before Mr. Gardiner, that he himself saw them, and that Mr. Drewett explained the matter to Mr. Gardiner, satisfactorily I presume, since Mr. Gardiner declared that it had not been Mr. Drewett's fault that the thing was done? Still the plans had no right in that room.
8030. And Mr. Drewett says that he acted under orders—now who would give him orders on this point? No one, I would imagine, would give him instructions to place the matter before Mr. Gardiner—it was not his work.
8031. By Mr. Dalgleish: But Mr. Drewett said that he had placed them before Mr. Gardiner, and that he had instructions to do so? Then he should have also said who gave him the instructions.
8032. Under these circumstances, do you not consider that these facts, which you now hear for the first time, are quite sufficient to explain the cause of Mr. Gardiner being so excited when he went to Mr. Drewett? Yes, I think so.
8033. Would not you have had the same feeling of annoyance if you had been placed in similar circumstances? No doubt I would.
8034. You were not aware of any of these circumstances which you now hear for the first time? I certainly was not aware of them, and I must say that I am astonished that I have not heard of them before.
8035. Was there not an allusion to it in the complaint made by Mr. Gardiner to you? I am not aware—I think not; but if there was, it must have escaped my attention.
8036. In the evidence given by Mr. Gardiner, he makes this statement:—“These are copies of the minutes that transpired between Mr. Drewett and Mr. Whitton, and I thought they were connected with my dismissal. Mr. Drewett writes, ‘Sir,—I beg to report to you the conduct of Mr. Martin Gardiner, who came into my office this morning in a very excited manner, and asked me why certain notes of errors had been made on the tracings of a survey made by him for the Roads Department. I told him I had nothing whatever to do with it, but was merely carrying out my instructions, at the same time referring him to yourself or Mr. Barton. He also in a very threatening manner told me that he had made notes of what he termed my errors, from the office plans, and which he intended to publish in the public press.’” This is not the statement that was laid before me by Mr. Gardiner; I never saw this before. But I again say that I think there must have been some mistake about it, because the plan was not in his office at all.
8037. Did you call upon Mr. Gardiner for an explanation of his conduct? I did, and he sent in a written explanation.
8038. Then, as to that instance of his going to Mr. Drewett in the excited manner that is described, you deny that he had any reason for it, and affirm that the plan was not placed before him; I cannot do that; I cannot say that the thing is not true, because I have no knowledge of the facts; but I say this, that I have great doubts of its correctness.
8039. But we have the evidence of Mr. Drewett, as well as that of Mr. Gardiner, in support of the fact that the plans were laid before him? Yes, but he does not say anything about it in his minute to me. It may have been that Mr. Gardiner saw them, not because they were placed before him, but because they were open on the office table when about to be traced.
8040. Did you read over the evidence taken, a copy of which has been sent to you? A great deal of it.
8041. Did you read that of Mr. Doherty? I did not. 8042.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.
8042. He gives evidence very similar to what I have already read—that Mr. Gardiner went very excitedly to Mr. Drewett for an explanation, and when he returned said that Mr. Drewett was a good fellow and that it was not his fault; and Mr. Doherty adds, that he thought it very strange that after this a complaint should be made to you? This matter was not mentioned to me—it is the first time I have heard of it.
8043. There were plans in your office drawn by Mr. Gardiner, and with the word "Error" written across them? There were, but they were not in my department; they were in the Roads Branch.
8044. By Mr. Dalgleish: You received them from the Roads Department? Yes.
8045. And was the word "Error" written on them when you received them? Yes.
8046. It was not done in your office? No. I had "Error" marked on the tracings that were made in my office from these plans; but the word was marked on the original plan before it came to my office at all.
8047. By the Chairman: You had tracings made from that plan? Yes.
8048. Although they were incorrect and "Error" was marked on them? Yes; but that can be very readily explained. I may say, however, that it would have been impossible for me to mark the words on the plan, as it was not mine, but that of the Roads Department; and if it had been correct and there had been no error, Mr. Gardiner would have denied that there was in his reply.
8049. He never denied it—he would not certify to the correctness of the plan, when called upon to do so by the Commissioner of Roads? That I am not aware of.
8050. Are you not aware that many of these plans sent in by the surveyors in the Roads Branch are only made by sight? If that is the case, they should not be sent in and marked as surveys.
8051. This was not sent in as a survey? I beg your pardon, for the figures are marked on the traverse, shewing that it purports to be a survey, and not a mere sketch by sight.
8052. But suppose that he got instructions to make a rough survey of this particular kind? I should like to see such instructions.
8053. But if he had such instructions, verbal or otherwise, would he be accountable for errors of this kind? That I cannot say; I only know that the errors exist.
8054. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you make a tracing from the plan? Yes, and took it with me to Mudgee.
8055. Of what use would it be to you, if it was a tracing from an incorrect plan? It was near enough for general information, though it would not have done to work by. I only wanted it for my personal guidance in following the roads, and I had the word "Error" marked on it, to prevent its falling into other hands, who would assume it to be correct and work by it.
8056. Were any check lines run to ascertain whether it was correct or not? That I do not know. It was not in my department, and I only know that I received it with the word "Error" written on it.
8057. Were there no means of rectifying these errors? Of course there were means, and I may say that if Mr. Gardiner knew there were errors in his plan, he should himself have rectified them.
8058. Are you aware that this is the only plan upon which the word error has been marked in that office? I am not.
8059. I mean in the Department of Roads, from which you received this? No, I have no means of knowing this.
8060. By the Chairman: You know the late Commissioner for Roads? Yes.
8061. He was not an engineer? He was not.
8062. Now, from what you knew of him, was he not a man who would be likely to say to his surveyors to run out a line of road in such a direction, without being too particular in measuring? I really cannot say what instructions he might give.
8063. But is it not likely that he would have said something of the kind—that they were to make a rough sketch, without being too particular? If instructions were given to lay out a line of road, there would always be inclines to measure and lines to be marked; and if a surveyor sent in a plan with the gradients and distances marked on it, it would naturally be assumed that the inclines had been correctly measured and the distances chained, and that where figures were set down they should at least be correct.
8064. Is it not usually the practice with surveyors to leave the chaining to the men? No; they have the arrows in their hand and they count them themselves, as a check, as they proceed.
8065. Is it usual for the surveyor to take the arrows? No, but they take the change of arrows. They are ten in number, and he takes the number with every change. A man would never be able to tell his lengths at all unless he did this.
8066. But might not the surveyor depend upon his men? If he chooses to be so careless as that, he must take the responsibility and be answerable for any mistakes that occur.
8067. There could hardly be any error if the arrows are correctly returned, whether by the men or the surveyor himself? There may not be, but a surveyor should keep count himself, and not trust solely to his men.
8068. If the surveyor were suffering at the time from a severe attack of rheumatism, would not that be an excuse for his trusting to his men? There is no excuse for a man who undertakes to do a duty and does not perform it correctly.
8069. Supposing the work to be forced on an officer where he was disinclined to undertake it, and that afterwards he should have to contend against a severe attack of rheumatism, might it not be very possible that errors would occur for which he would be accountable, but for which some excuse was to be found in the circumstances of the case? He might have an excuse excuse; but I know neither under what circumstances he went up there nor those under which he made the survey. There is the plan with an error marked on it, and there can be no excuse for the incorrectness after he has professed to survey the road.

J. Whitton, Esq.

8070. You are aware that he refused to certify to the correctness of the plan? I have heard so in this room. 22 Feb., 1864.

8071. Are you aware whether he signed it or not? I was not aware that it was usual for a surveyor to sign his plans.

8072. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is his name on the plan in any way? That I do not know.

8073. Then how do you know he made it? I do not know; but I think, if I remember rightly, that there was written upon the face of it in pencil, the words "Surveyed by Mr. Martin Gardiner." I think so, but will not be sure.

8074. Was this written by himself? That I do not know.

8075. By the Chairman: Then for all you know, it may have been written by some one else? It may have been; I could not say who did it.

8076. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was any inquiry made for any erroneous plans that had been made by Mr. Gardiner, whilst in the Roads Department, to be furnished by them to your department? The only inquiry that was made was for the plan of the Mudgee and Bowenfels Road. I was going up in that direction with reference to the Mudgee Extension, and I required to see a plan of the road, for my guidance. I asked for the plan, which I heard was in the Roads Department, and when I got it I found it was marked with these errors. Tracings had to be made from it, and in making those tracings I directed that the errors should be marked on them as they were on the original plan; my object being, as I have already explained, to prevent the plans from being taken as correct in the event of their falling into other hands.

8077. If a correct plan of this road had been taken, should not the Roads Department have furnished you with that correct plan, in answer to your application? I do not know that any other plan was taken.

8078. But if there had been—if a person had been sent over the same line, to correct the errors, within six months after Mr. Gardiner had made his survey, should you, do you think, have been furnished with the correct or the incorrect plan? With the correct plan certainly.

8079. Then as you were not furnished with the correct plan, there must have been some object in sending you the incorrect one? I do not know what object there could be.

8080. Were there any levels taken? I do not know.

8081. Would you not want them if you went up on railway business? No, my eye was sufficient for the purpose for which I went up.

8082. Then you did not want the levels? No, I could judge of them myself sufficiently for what I wanted.

8083. But would it not have been a better guide to you if you had had the correct levels? No. The road was utterly impracticable for a railway line; and knowing this, I was aware that levels would have been of no use.

8084. Do you know that the hills were marked in upon these plans after they were in the office, and that no such hills were made on them by the surveyors, who furnished nothing more than a rough outline of the road, according to instructions? No, I do not know; I gave him no instructions.

8085. But according to directions given by Mr. Collett? I cannot say what directions Mr. Collett gave.

8086. However, the correct plan, and not the incorrect one, is that which should have been furnished to you? Yes, if there were one.

8087. Could Mr. Bennett give the Committee any reason why the incorrect instead of the correct plan was furnished to you? That I do not know, but I should imagine not. He would probably know nothing about it.

8088. No application then, was made by you, to have supplied to you any incorrect work of Mr. Gardiner's that there might be in the Roads Department? No. The only application I made was to be furnished with the plan of the road between Mudgee and Bowenfels.

8089. Who gave you the information that there was such a plan in the Roads Department? Mr. Barton, I think.

8090. Was anything said at that time about Mr. Gardiner having been the person who surveyed that line? I think not.

8091. By the Chairman: Then, as I understand you, you had not heard, previously to your examination of to-day, of this plan with the errors marked on it having been placed on the desk before Mr. Gardiner? I had not.

8092. If it had been so placed before him, he would be very likely to regard it as having been done to insult him? Yes.

8093. And would not that in some way account for his conduct in going, in the excited way spoken of, to ask an explanation from Mr. Drewett? It would; but I am surprised that it was not mentioned before, and that he said nothing of it in his minute to me.

8094. This, however, would to some extent explain his conduct? Yes, to some extent it would.

8095. And would make it appear a hardship to him, that under such circumstances he should be dismissed? I do not know that there was much hardship in the matter.

8096. Why, do you think, now you have heard the circumstances, that he had nothing to justify his conduct in some degree? I deny that anything of the kind occurred. If it had, he might have stated it to me when I held an inquiry, and might have offered it as a reason for his conduct.

8097. But supposing it did occur, and that this plan were put on his desk before him, and that he, as you admit he might do, regarded it as intended to insult him, would he not be likely

J. Whitton, Esq. likely to consider, if he was afterwards dismissed, that an injustice had been done him? Probably he would, under such circumstances.

22 Feb., 1864. 8098. You were asked by the Committee, the other day, a question in reference to some documents received from Melbourne: will you now explain how they came into your possession? I must answer now as I did then—that I must most respectfully decline to state to the Committee how they came into my hands.

8099. Do you know that some of the gentlemen in your department are endeavouring to collect information, in Melbourne and elsewhere, relative to the moral character of Mr. Gardiner? That question was asked me on the former occasion, and I then answered that I had only seen one letter on the subject.

8100. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were you asked that question on your last examination? I was.

8101. Are you sure? Yes, quite.

8102. Who by? I do not remember, but I think by you. Either by you or the Chairman; and I then informed you of the only instance I knew of a letter having been written.

8103. By the Chairman: Who is Mr. Kennedy? One of the sappers.

8104. Was he engaged in the Grose Valley survey? I do not know, very likely he was, but I do not know.

8105. Were you engaged upon that survey? I had something to do with it.

8106. You were there? Yes.

8107. Do you think it practicable to carry a line up the valley of the Grose? No doubt it is practicable. It had been generally supposed that the line by the Grose was the only one by which a railway could be taken to Bathurst. Capt. Martindale, when Commissioner for Railways, said, that as Sir Thomas Mitchell held the opinion that this was the only line by which a railway could be carried to Bathurst, it would be advisable to have the route surveyed; it was surveyed, and it is certainly not impracticable.

8108. Had the present line—the one now adopted—been surveyed at that time? No, I think not, but I am not sure.

8109. Seeing that the line by the Grose is not impracticable, why did you discontinue the survey? There were two or three reasons for it. First, because the line by the Grose would have been a very expensive one, and would have required very heavy works. There were very good gradients for a few miles, at each end of the valley, to the Darling Causeway, and then we had steep gradients and heavy works; it was then thought advisable to abandon the valley, and to take to the line of the road.

8110. I see that Mr. Arnold, in his speech in the House, says that Mr. Gardiner was employed in the field, but that he was taken from that work, and employed upon other minor services in the office—what did he mean by that? I do not know; but perhaps it might have been this: that perhaps it was thought advisable at the time to get out the Estimates as quickly as possible, and that the work in the field being completed, it was thought better to put Mr. Gardiner to office work, rather than employ him in the field, where the work was not so pressing.

8111. And then, when he was employed in the office, he was found incompetent to perform the work he was put to, and was discharged? I do not know what you are alluding to.

8112. I am alluding to Mr. Arnold's speech in the Assembly—he said that Mr. Gardiner was put to office work, was found incompetent to perform it, and was dismissed? He was dismissed on the first occasion because there was no work for him to do.

8113. And not because you found him incompetent? No.

8114. But Mr. Arnold says that Mr. Gardiner being found incapable in the field, he was taken from that and put to work of an inferior kind, such as making drawings of bridges, and calculating quantities —? No; the sole reason of his being taken from the field was, that the field work, or all of it that was most pressing, was completed, so that the Estimates were the first thing wanted—we were waiting for the Estimates. If they had been passed, there would have been a considerable amount of work in the field, but as they were not, there was nothing to go on with, and his services were dispensed with.

8115. Then he was not found incompetent, but on the contrary, did his work satisfactorily? Yes, all such work as he was employed in.

8116. It is not true then that, having failed in the field, he was put to inferior work in the office, and that even at this he did not give satisfaction? No, that is not correct; Mr. Arnold must have been incorrectly informed when he made that statement. I may mention, however, in regard to Mr. Gardiner's surveying capability, that there is a report from Mr. Moggridge, the officer employed on the survey of the main road between Yass and Goulburn, in which he says that plans of portions of that road, made by Mr. Gardiner, are not worth the paper they are drawn on, that they are altogether valueless, and that he believes the line was never surveyed at all.

8117. But Mr. Arnold spoke of him as being employed in your office, and not in the Roads Department. He says that Mr. Gardiner was found incompetent to perform the work in your office, and that being found incompetent he was dismissed—was this the case? The whole of his employment in my office, the first time he was engaged, was that of making drawings and taking out quantities. His next employment was in the Survey Department.

8118. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was it not upon your recommendation that he was taken into the Survey Department? To a certain extent it was. I said that I believed he would be able to do the work required of him.

8119. Have you lately seen a copy of the letter you gave him? Yes, I know the contents of the letter quite well.

8120. Do you know that he got a similar letter when he left the Survey Department? I do not.

8121. By the Chairman: When you were here before, Mr. Graham was pointing out some plans plans of a railway station that were erroneous, and you said you regarded it as impossible that there could be any error in the plans. I think, too, you said that the louvre lights had been erected over the door? I said I had received no report on the subject of the change, and that if it had been made it was without my knowledge. I find now that the height of the doorway has been increased from 12 feet, as marked in the drawing, to 13 feet 4 inches, and that in consequence of this change there was no room for the lights over the door, and they have been omitted.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.

8122. Were you speaking of the drawing or the figuring? Of the figures.

8123. Would the scale of the drawing and the figures work together? I did not try; but there was a discrepancy between the two, I believe.

8124. I think you said that the goods shed could have been made correctly from the figures on the drawing? Yes.

8125. Mr. Graham says that it could not? The answer to this is, that the shed has been built, and I have had no complaints.

8126. You said, I think, that the luffers were over the doorway? Yes, I thought it had been constructed in accordance with the drawing.

8127. And now you know that it is not so? No, the doorway has been altered.

8128. So that the drawing was incorrect, and this alteration had to be made in consequence? There was a discrepancy between the scale and the figures. There was an order given to Mr. Graham, in consequence of his informing me that, owing to his measuring from scale, he had cut his uprights 18 inches too short, that he should either put in new timber, or raise the concrete of the basement 18 inches higher all round. I gave him the option of doing which he chose, but he did neither; he did nothing himself, for the contract was taken from him and given to his sureties. When they undertook the work, they sold off all the timber that had been cut too short, and put in new of the full length. Having done this, the additional concrete was not put in.

8129. Do you not think it too bad, for a gentleman like Mr. Hall, who receives a large salary for what are expected to be, and ought to be, valuable services, should make such a mistake as this, as not to have the scale and the figures of his plan correspond with each other? This is the only instance of a mistake made by Mr. Hall that has occurred since he has been in the office. He is a very good draughtsman, and very careful over his work. This is the only mistake that I know of his having made.

8130. Do you think that Mr. Hall did his fair share of work in the office? Certainly.

8131. Was it Mr. Mackay or Mr. Hall who did the chief part of the work? Mr. Mackay copied the plans, and Mr. Hall designed them.

8132. Are you sure of that? I have reason to suppose so.

8133. Have you had opportunities of knowing that it was so? Yes, I have seen them at work.

8134. Constantly? I did not stand over them and watch them; but I have seen sufficient to justify me in saying that Mr. Hall designed and Mr. Mackay copied the plans.

8135. In most of these cases, could you not do without any drawings at all? The more you have the work set out by drawings, the less difficulty you have with contractors. In the absence of drawings you get into all sorts of difficulties.

8136. For instance, in the case of a window, would it not be better to describe it in writing than to draw it? There is less chance of a misunderstanding by drawing it as well.

8137. But it is the time that it takes up? Of course, if you have drawings it will take time to make them.

8138. There is a set of drawings for the goods station at Penrith? Yes.

8139. Do you think that was necessary? Certainly. If I did not think so I should not have directed them to be made.

8140. But do you think that all the detail taken in by those drawings was necessary? I do.

8141. They must have been very expensive, as compared with the value of the work? The cost is nothing compared with the difficulties you have with contractors, and which these drawings save.

8142. Could you not describe a door as correctly in writing as you could shew it by drawing? Yes, no doubt.

8143. You could set out the height and width, the number and size of panels, the kinds of moulding and architraves, and so forth, so as to give as correct an idea of it as by drawing? No doubt.

8144. Then where is the necessity for having a drawing of it? It entails additional labour certainly, but it has the great advantage of preventing difference of opinion between the department and the contractor. Where there is a drawing there is no room for difficulty.

8145. Do you not think, that if you had class station houses—say stations of the first, second, and third class—and that you had drawings of each of these classes, you would be able to make these drawings applicable to all stations? You could not do this, because you must have a set of drawings appended to every contract.

8146. But if you had these class station houses, all you would have to do would be to copy them, or make the contractors copy them? The contractors do that now.

8147. By Mr. Dalgleish: What we mean is this: Would it not be better, rather than to make fresh drawings for every station, to have three classes of stations, and to have the same design for every station of the same class; thus, having a station of the third class already built, if you require to put up another station of the same class, you would only have to take the plans of the former building? That could not be done, for you require to have different arrangements at different stations. The nature of the ground, of the accommodation required, and many other things, have to be taken into account.

8148. All these are minor points that might be provided for. You have already something like a classification of stations? Yes, but we have to copy the plans for them.

- J. Whitton,
Esq.
- 22 Feb., 1864.
8149. Could not the contractor do this? He might, but there are not a sufficient number of them to meet all cases.
8150. Are not the Penrith and the Singleton Stations very nearly a copy of each other? Yes, very nearly.
8151. Then when you advertised the Singleton Station, could you not have called for tenders for a building similar to that erected at Penrith? You could not do this, because the foundation of the Singleton Station is a very different piece of work to that at Penrith; besides this, the drawings of the work have to be attached to the contract, and require to be kept together.
8152. Do not the drawings remain in your office? Yes.
8153. Then suppose the drawing of the Penrith Station to be in your office, could not the contractor tender to build a house in accordance with that drawing, although in a different place? It would be difficult, because in all instances you must furnish the contractor with a complete copy of the plans of the work he has to perform.
8154. And you would do so, because you would have the plan in your office—you do not allow them to be taken away? No; but on this plan you suggest, there would be this drawback, that you would not have the drawings of the building signed by the contractor and his sureties, as we now have them, when they are appended to the contract.
8155. But if the plans were known and marked, or referred to as being of a particular class of station, would not that be sufficient? In dealing with contractors, especially in this country, it is better to have everything as clear as possible.
8156. Suppose a contractor knows that you require to erect a station of the second class; you have the general plan for stations of that class open to his inspection, he sees it, and can tender for the station you want, on the plan you have shewn him, just as well as if you drew a plan specially for the purpose? There are no plans that are all the same; there is something different in every one of them.
8157. Why should this be so? Because in almost every instance the foundation is different, and drawings have to be made to suit the ground on which the building is erected. Then again, the plans have to be altered according to the conveniences that are required.
8158. I quite admit that the foundation will in most instances be different, but that is a very trifling thing, that may always be added to the plan without affecting the building itself. For instance, taking the Singleton Station house—the building itself—what difference is there between that and the Penrith Station building? None.
8159. Is there any great difference in the foundation? Not much; but the main thing is what I have already stated, that we must have different drawings for each work to attach to each contract, so that we may have them signed by the contractor and his sureties, who thus accept them and are bound by them.
8160. But you make these copies that are signed, in your office? Yes.
8161. And you compel the contractor, if he requires them, to make tracings from them himself? As a general rule, but sometimes we make them ourselves.
8162. If you had class stations, could you not make a tracing of class one, two, or three, as you might require; you then call for tenders for the erection of a station of the class required; the plans would only need to be traced, and the specification being all the same for each class might be printed, and so save an immense amount of clerical work? If you did print the specification every station would require to be precisely the same, and this would not be at all suitable; they all vary in some way, more or less, and I think that the Singleton and Penrith Stations are the only two in the Colony that are alike.
8163. But why should they not be all alike? Because the arrangements are required to be different, the ground on which they are built is different, and the amount of convenience is different.
8164. You could make different classes of stations to provide the different amount of convenience requisite at different places? Even then you would have to make the drawings different, to suit local objects or requirements.
8165. How many different classes of stations have you now upon that portion of the railway that has been completed? There are many different classes; some of which have a dwelling-house attached for the station masters, and some have the dwelling-house detached, whilst others are not provided with any dwelling-house.
8166. What difference is there between the Burwood and the Picton Stations? They are very different. In the Burwood Station the house is detached, but at Picton there is no house for the station master.
8167. Is that a convenience or otherwise to the station master, to have his residence a hundred yards away from the station? I think it objectionable to have a station master residing at the station.
8168. Then you would have them all away? I would.
8169. And why have you not done so? Sometimes the Minister will not allow of it.
8170. But I ask your own opinion? I have said that I consider it would be more advisable to have them away from the station.
8171. And does the Minister interfere with you in a matter of this kind? He is always shewn the plans before they are finally adopted, and it is then that he suggests any alteration.
8172. With regard to this plan drawn by Mr. Hall, are you aware that the building is not even now built in accordance with the plan? I am not aware that there is any difference from the plan, with the exception I have mentioned, that the lights are not over the door.
8173. You are not aware that it was impossible to construct the building, even on the amended plan? No.
8174. By the Chairman: Can you shew me where the necessity was for having this plan of the roof of the building? Yes, it was quite necessary to have it, if you wished to have the plans complete. 8175.

8175. Is there a private architect in Sydney who would have thought it necessary to draw this amongst his plans? I think they all do it.
8176. The plan produced is the amended plan? It is the one I spoke about when I alluded to my having given him the option of putting in an additional 18 inches of concrete, to raise the foundation, or of providing new timber; but he did nothing at all, and the result was, that his contract was cancelled, and the work was let to his sureties; they completed it, and instead of the concrete, as shewn here, they put in fresh timber in place of that which had been cut too short.
8177. Was the building completed in accordance with this plan? Not with this, but with the original plan, with the exception of the door-way, as I have already explained.
8178. By Mr. Stewart: This plan was not used, because the sureties preferred to furnish fresh timber rather than find the additional quantity of concrete? It was not used.
8179. By Mr. Dalgleish: Would you have made the contractor do this additional work at his own cost? Certainly.
8180. When the fault was not in the contractor, but in the drawing? No, the fault was entirely his own.
8181. How do you make that out, when you admit the discrepancy? Because the specification states distinctly that the figures on the plan are to be taken, and that the work is to be performed, with reference to heights, depths, &c., in accordance with the figures on the plan attached. Now, if he had acted on this, and had taken the figures on the plan, there would have been no mistake, for they were correctly marked; but instead of that he must go and take them from the scale, which happened to be wrong, and in this way he got 18 inches short in his lengths. When he told me of this I consented, rather than that he should be at the loss of all this timber, to give him the option of putting in the concrete; but he did not do this, and the end was that his contract was cancelled.
8182. You say that the specification states that the contractor is to take the figures on the plan? Yes.
8183. What is the use of getting out all these elaborate plans, if they are not to be depended upon in this the most important particular to the contractor? The figures were all marked correctly, and if the contractor was told to take the figures only he should have done so.
8184. But why should you have the figures marked on the drawing, when it is drawn to scale? It must be figured for reference, and besides that, it saves the contractor the time and trouble of measuring by scale.
8185. By Mr. Stewart: Was there a mistake? The drawing did not measure with the scale. There had been a mistake in the scale, but the figuring was all correct.
8186. The idea that the contractor seems to have had was, not that the plan was figured correctly, but that it was not drawn correctly? I did not know about that, but when I found there was this mistake, and that he had cut the timbers short, I gave him the option of putting in more concrete, in order to make his timber available, and that he should not be at the loss of it.
8187. By the Chairman: Do you think that the contractor was to blame—was not this discrepancy between the figuring and the scale likely to confuse him? No, I think not; he should have gone by the figuring, and there would have been no mistake.
8188. By why should he not have taken the scale as a guide? Because the figuring saves him time; and as to the error, this is the only instance in which a mistake has been made in drawing.
8189. Could the building have been erected by following the figuring? I have no doubt of it.
8190. He says it could not? I have no doubt about it myself.
8191. He says it could not, for many reasons—first, the doors were too low? You are alluding to the two side doors, in which we had arranged for some alterations.
8192. However, has the building been put up to the scale or to the figures? It is put up in accordance with the figures.
8193. The contractor says not? Well, there may be some slight difference, but not sufficient to make any material alteration.
8194. By Mr. Dalgleish: But 3 inches in the height is not a slight difference? No, a difference of 3 inches would make a considerable alteration.
8195. Do you bind a contractor to make such an alteration as 3 inches would be at his own expense? He was not required to do so; all he was asked to do was to put it up in accordance with the drawing.
8196. It has never reached you that there was a very material difference between the building and the drawing? No, except as I say, when the timbers were found to be short. I authorized an alteration, but my offer was not accepted.
8197. By the Chairman: Do you think it would be right to cause the contractor to be at the loss of the timber, after his making the inquiry, on discovering the discrepancy, of whether he was to work by the figures or by the scale, and that an answer was refused him? I think myself that there was nothing at all right about the contract altogether. Mr. Graham took it at about £700 less than he ought to have done, and there was not much chance of anything being right.
8198. But still he carried it out? No, his contract was cancelled; the sureties paid the money for the work. Mr. Hill, one of his sureties, paid the money.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
22 Feb., 1864.

TUESDAY, 1 MARCH, 1864.

Present:—

Mr. STEWART, | Mr. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. John Doherty called in and further examined:—

- Mr. J. Doherty.
1 Mar., 1864.
8199. By the Chairman: You have been examined before? Yes.
8200. Do you remember anything of a plan prepared by Mr. Gardiner, with "Error" marked on it? I remember a plan that I saw in the long-room; I saw on the plan, "Mr. Gardiner's survey," and it marked with large red letters, "Error."
8201. Where did you see that? In the long-room, where I was mounting a tracing.
8202. Do you know how it came to the long-room? I do not know how it came there; I worked in a room up-stairs.
8203. Did you hear anything said of this plan by any gentleman in the office? I remarked to Mr. Gardiner, on my return to the upper room, that I saw a plan of his marked "Error," and asked him what the plan was. I do not know whether he went down, but in the course of the day Mr. Drewett brought the plan into the room—or plans—I think there were two or three of them—and threw them in a very abrupt manner on the table, in presence of Mr. Gardiner.
8204. Before Mr. Gardiner, so that he should see them? Yes.
8205. Was this after you saw the plan in the long-room down-stairs? Yes.
8206. What occurred, do you know? Mr. Gardiner talked about the plan; he looked at it, and he talked considerably about the plan. He went in afterwards to Mr. Drewett's room, but what they said there I do not know.
8207. That was just about the time Mr. Gardiner was suspended or dismissed? I think a day or two previously.
8208. But you have no doubt as to Mr. Drewett throwing this plan, with "Error" marked on it, before Mr. Gardiner? I saw him do it.
8209. Do you know anything of the plans? No.
8210. That is all you know of the transaction? Yes.
8211. By Mr. Stewart: Throwing these plans down in this way—was that calculated to create a feeling offensive to the person concerned? It certainly was. If a man threw a plan before me in that way I should be as mad as anybody could be, of course.
8212. It was a very offensive way of calling his attention to a matter that might have occurred in his work? Yes.

THURSDAY, 10 MARCH, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. TIGHE,
MR. STEWART, | MR. MORRIS.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Whitton, Esq., Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, called in and further examined:—

- J. Whitton, Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.
8213. By the Chairman: You wish to make some reply to the evidence given before the Committee with reference to your department? I do; and, with the permission of the Committee, I would commence with the evidence of Mr. Nicholas Trengrouse. I may say that, in order to shorten the explanation, I do not intend to notice all the small matters connected with this evidence, but only those points that may be thought important. I may also say that I have not yet seen the whole of the evidence that has been given before the Committee. The first question asked of Mr. Trengrouse is numbered 2191. "By the Chairman: How long have you been in the Railway Department?—Now nearly ten years; "I think about three months short." The length of time he has been in the department is eight years last September. I would not have noticed that except for the evidence that follows.
8214. By Mr. Tighe: I think I understood Mr. Trengrouse at the time to say that he had been ten years altogether employed on the Railway, including the time when the Railway was not in the hands of the Government? Mr. Trengrouse's appointment is entered on the books as having taken place in September, 1855; whether he was employed before that I could not say. The next question I wish to notice is with reference to the plans attached to the bonds:—"2264. By Mr. Stewart: Has it been the system here to have sets of plans for each station in the Railway Department?—Yes, I do not think there has been a station "put up but what there has been a separate set of drawings for it." That is true; they have been all made in separate sets; but it is impossible to make use of one set of these drawings for three or four different contracts, as each contract must have a set of plans attached to it, which must be signed by the contractor and his sureties, and they have been so. Question 2292 is with reference to the time of arrival and employment of the assistants that came out with me from England:—"Did they soon commence their duties after "arrival?—Not so very soon. Just coming off a voyage, they took some time before they "did commence. They were all introduced to me, and I made them acquainted with the "plans

- “ plans and arrangements of the office. I suppose they were something like two or three months making themselves acquainted with the plans; it was naturally the first thing they would do, and of course they were anxious to get all the information they could, which I think was got more from the plans than on the ground.” Mr. Trengrouse says they took some months to make themselves acquainted with the plans. Now the fact is, they arrived on Thursday, 15 January, and they commenced work on the Monday following.
8215. By Mr. Dalgleish: Would they not be at work when examining the plans, and making themselves acquainted with the nature of the work? They were not examining the plans; they went on the ground immediately, on the Campbelltown line, and made the surveys.
8216. By the Chairman: Were there any journals kept in those days? I think the journals were commenced a few months after their arrival.
8217. But there are no journals to shew the time they commenced their work? Yes, there are.
8218. Of what nature? There is a journal kept by Mr. Mason, shewing the time he commenced work, and the time they were re-staking the Campbelltown line. His journal shews that they arrived on the 15th January, and commenced work on the Monday following.
8219. I can only say that among the journals I have found none that went back to within a considerable period of that time? No, it is a private journal kept by Mr. Mason.
8220. Not a public document? Not a public document. Extracts may be had from it, no doubt, if the Committee wish; I do not think he has any objection to any one seeing it. Mr. Trengrouse is asked “whether their passages were paid,” to which he answers “Yes”; and then follows the question:—“2296. And all their expenses?—They had their expenses paid them afterwards; £30 each I think was paid them for wine and other things which were not allowed them on the passage; they made application for it after their arrival, and something like that amount was allowed them.” The amounts were as follows:—Mr. Mason, £19 14s.; Mr. Barton, £10 15s.; Mr. Drewett, £14 14s.; and Mr. Bridgman, £10 15s.; making a total amount of £55 18s., instead of £120, as stated by Mr. Trengrouse.
8221. By Mr. Dalgleish: There is not anything here about £120? Four times £30 make £120.
8222. Did Mr. Barton come from England? Yes.
8223. I thought he was employed in Victoria? Yes, he was, in 1851 or 1852.
8224. By the Chairman: Did he leave the department here? No, he was in England at the time he was engaged to come out here. He left Victoria in 1854 or 1855, in consequence of the illness of his father. “2299. What extension did they commence on?—The Campbelltown line was the first. 2300. About what time was this after their arrival?—I think they commenced with the drawings about three months after.” Now, No. 3 Contract for the Campbelltown line was let in April, and they only arrived in January, therefore all the drawings and surveys for it were completed in that time.
8225. By Mr. Stewart: About three months? About three months. But the whole of the drawings were finished at that time.
8226. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was the line let in one length? No.
8227. Were both lengths let at the same time? No. Then with reference to “2322. Were any of these plans that you made, or the survey made by Mr. Brady, acted upon by Mr. Whitton’s staff?—All the plans of trial surveys that were in the office have been acted upon; they have been a key to all the present surveys. In the case of the Southern line, I believe Mr. Brady’s line has been adopted till they come to Picton. I do not believe that if a tracing were taken off Mr. Brady’s line and laid on the present line, you would scarcely perceive the thickness of the line out anywhere; but when it gets to Picton Mr. Brady’s line goes towards the east, while that of the present staff turns towards the west. Mr. Brady’s route would have dispensed with the tunnel altogether.”
8228. Have you the tracings of the two lines? Yes.
8229. Are they here? I do not know that they are; I believe all the plans have been sent up here. What I wish to say is, that the line as constructed is entirely different from Mr. Brady’s line; the two lines scarcely come together anywhere; and no trial surveys made by Mr. Brady have been acted upon anywhere.
8230. By the Chairman: Would the line surveyed by Mr. Brady have carried the railway above flood levels between Campbelltown and Liverpool? If the Committee will allow me, I will come to that very shortly.
8231. By Mr. Dalgleish: Will you explain the following question:—“2323. But they abandoned the drawings?—Yes, they did, but could not with the plan and section; those being proclaimed, they were bound to act upon them.” Is that the case? Yes.
8232. Then the line could not have varied a very great deal, I presume? The Campbelltown line did not vary; it had been surveyed, and working plans and sections had been prepared, and having been proclaimed, it was not considered advisable to make any alteration in it.
8233. Did you do away with the drawings for bridges that had laminated arches, as stated? Yes, I did, but not at all for the reason suggested in this evidence; I did away with them simply because I thought them more expensive than necessary, and had they been constructed, they would have been much lower with regard to the floods than the bridges put up, and their destruction would have been inevitable. They had 50-feet spans, the arches springing very low down in the creek, and would have been washed away if they had been put up. I did not do away with them because I considered them “old-fashioned.”
8234. Are you using them now at Singleton? Yes.
8235. For the Singleton Bridge? Yes.
8236. Was not the late flood at Singleton above the spring of the arch? Up to the springing of the arch.

J. Whitton, Esq. 8237. Was it not above it? I think not.
 8238. The contractor told me it was? It may have been; but I intend to raise the bridge 6 feet.*
 10 Mar., 1864. 8239. I am informed by residents in the neighbourhood that it is several feet below flood level? It is not, so far as I am informed; but I am going to raise it 6 feet† higher. The floods there have been very high, and with a very strong current—such a current has not been seen before. I will now refer to the questions numbered from 2328 to 2343, and also from 2353 to 2362, which all have reference to the same subject. After the very high character which Mr. Trengrouse has here given of Mr. Brady, the Committee will probably be rather surprised to learn that Mr. Brady did not resign his appointment with the Commissioners, but was summarily dismissed, for signing false certificates for Mr. Randle, by which Mr. Randle received thousands upon thousands of pounds from the Commissioners, on these certificates, not one penny of which he was entitled to; and that must have been within the knowledge of Mr. Trengrouse at the time he made this statement to the Committee. The matter was one of considerable notoriety at the time, and there are Parliamentary Papers with reference to it. I have the whole correspondence here, but there is one letter which perhaps the Committee will allow me to read.
 8240. Has it been printed? No, this is correspondence which has never been before Parliament; but there is one paper (a letter from Capt. Martindale to the Under Secretary for Lands and Public Works, dated 6th January, 1859) which has been laid before Parliament and printed, and which shews that in four cuttings on the Sydney and Parramatta Railway, Mr. Randle was paid £9,097 6s. 3d. for work which he never did. The letter I wish to read is as follows:—

“ Railway Department, “ Sydney, 23 November, 1857.

“ Sir,

“ Shortly after assuming the direction of the Railway Department in this Colony, I found that there was not that cordial co-operation existing between the Engineer-in-Chief, Mr. Whitton, and one of his subordinates, Mr. Brady, that is necessary in every branch of the public service.

“ Mr. Brady was at the time General Manager and Locomotive Superintendent as well as resident Engineer on the Great Southern Line; and as the matter was not so urgent as others that pressed upon my attention, I allowed it to stand over for a time.

“ When, however, I commenced an examination into the condition of the Traffic Department, I found that Mr. Brady’s services, in the mixed capacity above named, were unnecessary, and I had reason also to be dissatisfied with the management. The Commissioners, on my recommendation, removed him; but in consideration of his past services and of his experience and ability, determined to employ him as an assistant engineer only.

“ To do this it was necessary to place Mr. Brady under the immediate orders of Mr. Whitton, as the Commissioners held the head of each branch of the department immediately responsible to themselves for the proper conduct and employment of all their subordinates.

“ I found, however, that Mr. Whitton was unwilling to be thus responsible for Mr. Brady, and on further inquiry learned that, from an examination of some of the railway accounts, Mr. Whitton felt unable to place the necessary trust in Mr. Brady.

“ It was impossible to continue to employ Mr. Brady without such an investigation as should shew how far this feeling was just; and some questions were therefore put to Mr. Brady on the 22nd September last, in reference to the accounts of the Sydney and Parramatta Railway, the replies to which were not satisfactory.

“ The inquiry has since been pursued, and the general result is as follows:—

“ 1st. The earth-work on the Sydney and Parramatta line was let at per cubic yard.

“ 2nd. The work done was never measured on the ground, to ascertain the quantity that should be paid for.

“ 3rd. Yet certificates were given to the Board that the accounts were made out from actual measurement.

“ 4th. In defence of this Mr. Brady alleges that, by the expression ‘actual measurement’ was meant measurement from drawings; that Mr. Wallace by personal examination satisfied himself the work charged in the accounts was done, and that though he (Mr. Brady) was entrusted with the compilation of accounts and signed them with Mr. Wallace, yet he was only a subordinate and cannot be held responsible.

“ The Commissioners are of opinion that actual measurement cannot be understood to mean measurement from plans and sections, as stated by Mr. Brady, and that the engineers could not properly satisfy themselves what amount of work should be paid for, without measurement.

“ It further appears that, for bridges and culverts, &c., the contractor made an estimate in detail of the quantity of the work to be done, and after adding one-tenth for contingencies, agreed to do each particular service for the total amount.

“ But it does not appear that any measurements were taken to ascertain that the amount of work shewn in drawings and in estimates was done, or to deduct a proportionate sum from the contractor in cases where it was not done, although additions were allowed where additional work was done.

“ Generally

* Revised:—3 feet 9 inches.

† Revised:—3 feet 9 inches.

" Generally it appears that the amount of the original tenders was paid, and that there are no records of measurement having been taken to ascertain if the work had been actually done. J. Whitton, Esq.

" Mr. Brady states in explanation, that Mr. Wallace satisfied himself the work was done, and then felt justified in certifying the accounts were made from actual measurement. 10 Mar., 1864.

" The explanation is not satisfactory to the Commissioners, and they have no means of ascertaining how far Mr. Brady and Mr. Wallace were justified in the course they pursued.

" They have therefore to request that the late Directors of the Sydney and Parramatta Railway Company may be called on to furnish a reply to the following questions:—

" Were the Directors aware that by 'actual measurement,' their engineers simply meant measurement from drawings; or were the certificates passed under the impression that the work had been actually measured?

" Had the Directors any understanding with the engineers, that, provided they were satisfied with the work, it was a matter of indifference whether the quantity contracted for was done or not; or did the Directors give the engineer power to commute one description of work for another, at prices to be arranged between contractor and engineer—as less excavation in rock, to be paid for in place of more in soil, &c., &c., and vice versa—and that the amount of the original tender, or shewn on the original drawing, might be certified for and paid?

" How far would the Directors consider Mr. Brady responsible for the accounts he compiled and certified to during Mr. Wallace's stay in the country?

" There is reason to apprehend that large sums have been paid to Mr. Randle under these circumstances, which he would never had obtained under a more efficient system; and it becomes a question whether, however laborious the task may be, the work on the Sydney Railway should not be remeasured, to see what this excess has been.

" I have, &c.,

" B. H. MARTINDALE,

" Chief Commissioner."

" Request the Chief Commissioner to have the work on the Sydney Railway remeasured forthwith, and write to the late Directors, requesting answer to the questions suggested.—T.A.M. 28 Nov., 1857."

8241. By the Chairman: Who was in charge of this work at the time it was executed? Mr. Wallace and Mr. Brady.

8242. Mr. Wallace was Engineer-in-Chief? Yes.

8243. Who measured this work? It seems no one measured it.

8244. Who certified? Mr. Brady and Mr. Wallace. Mr. Brady furnished the accounts as District Engineer, and Mr. Wallace signed them. Whether Mr. Wallace was aware the works had not been measured I cannot say.

8245. Was there a general estimate, with the number of yards in each cutting, marked in the plans? The quantities on the sections were taken out from the drawings. The quantities paid for were the quantities copied from the drawings, but the works were never measured to shew that the work had been done. The line was kept up in some places as much as 4 ft. 6 in. in the cuttings more than it ought to have been, and paid for as if it had been taken out. I am very sorry to have been obliged to refer to this matter, but I could not avoid doing so, after the manner in which Mr. Trengrouse has spoken of what he supposes to have been my feelings towards Mr. Brady.

8246. The only error of Mr. Brady was in taking the quantities from the drawings instead of from actual measurement? The error was that his certificates were signed as having been compiled from actual measurement, when no measurements were in reality taken.

8247. By Mr. Dalgleish: Then there appears to have been collusion on the part of Mr. Brady, in allowing the contractor to keep the line higher than the sections shewed? I do not say it was collusion; I say he never took any steps to ascertain whether the work had been done; whether or not he knew it had not been done I cannot say.

8248. If he had attended to his duty must he not have known it? Certainly he must. The works were never measured from beginning to end.

8249. By the Chairman: But the quantities were paid for as they appeared upon the drawings? Yes.

8250. By Mr. Dalgleish: Whether done or not? Yes. The way in which I discovered this matter was this: I had heard a great many reports as to different matters that had taken place between Mr. Randle and Mr. Wallace—whether they were true or not I did not know—but, as Mr. Brady was to be placed under me in the Railway Department, I turned to the Railway accounts, and immediately saw that the quantities shewn on the sections of all the cuttings were copied exactly into the certificates, and I then knew the certificates must be false, because it is impossible to measure cuttings of this kind to within a yard.

8251. Who measured up these works afterwards? Mr. Micklethwait.

8252. Was Mr. Micklethwait at that time perfectly sober in his habits? I never saw Mr. Micklethwait intoxicated in my life, nor do I believe Mr. Micklethwait has ever drunk one-tenth as much as those men some of whom have come forward to give evidence against him. There is another letter in this correspondence, stating that a letter was forwarded from the Office of Lands and Works to the late Directors of the Sydney Railway Company, enclosing a copy of the questions contained in Capt. Martindale's letter (which I have just read), with a request that they would have the goodness to furnish answers thereto. This is their letter in reply:—

" Forbes-street,

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

"Forbes-street,
"19 December, 1857.

"Sir,

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ult., requesting replies to certain questions which have arisen in connection with an investigation into the accounts of the Sydney and Parramatta Railway.

"On the receipt of that letter, I communicated with those of my colleagues on the late Railway Board who were in Sydney, and went with them to the office of the Railway Commission, to ascertain the precise meaning of some of the questions which were not clearly understood. Having obtained the required explanations, and having referred to the documents deposited in that office, I beg now to send the following replies:—

"1. The Directors understood by measurement 'actual measurement on the ground,' and the certificates were passed by them under the belief that the works had been so measured.

"The Directors had no understanding with the engineers, that provided they were satisfied with the work, it was a matter of indifference whether the quantity contracted for was done or not; nor did the Directors give the engineer power to commute one description of work for another, at prices to be arranged between the contractor and the engineer. The Directors expected and understood that no work would be certified for but such as had been done in accordance with the contracts approved and authorized by the Board.

"The Directors recognized no divided responsibility as respects the works or accounts of work, but their dependence was placed on the Engineer-in-Chief (Mr. Wallace) alone. He was held answerable for everything connected with the business of his office, and his certificate only was acted upon or received by the Board. But, as a subordinate officer, Mr. Brady is undoubtedly responsible for the correctness of his own work, and must thus be answerable for accounts compiled and certified to by himself, whilst acting under Mr. Wallace.

"I have, &c.,

"FRANCIS L. S. MEREWETHER.

"The Honorable

"The Secretary for Lands
"and Public Works."

"This may be forwarded to the Chief Commissioner of Railways.—B.C., 22 Dec., 1857. M.F.

"I regret to have to record my opinion that Mr. Brady's services ought to be dispensed with after the 31st instant. I should be glad to discuss the further steps to be taken in this matter with Capt. Ward.—B.H.M.—28/12.

"Agreed to.—I would read Mr. Merewether's reply to Mr. Brady, and inform him that, as under, that the Commissioners cannot place any confidence in him, they must dispense with his services from 1st proximo.—E.W.W.—28/12."

Then there is a letter from Mr. Rae, as Secretary to the Commissioners, informing Mr. Brady that, in consequence of the recent investigation, they would have no further occasion for his services after the 31st December, 1857. Mr. Brady wrote in reply as follows:—

"Sydney, 6 January, 1858.

"Gentlemen,

"Having been abruptly discharged from the Railway Department, and being compelled, in consequence, to leave this Colony for Melbourne, in pursuit of professional employment, I beg most respectfully to request that you will be pleased to submit to the Government my claim for three months salary, as a compensation for such dismissal.

"By an agreement entered into between myself and the Honorable Charles Cowper, Esq., the Chairman and Managing Director of the then Railway Board, it was expressly stipulated that my engagement, after the expiration of one year, should be terminable only upon three months notice on either side. (See letter from Railway Office, Sydney, dated 14 September, 1852.)

"Without dwelling on the suddenness of the dismissal, I beg confidently to submit and base my claim on the Government upon equitable grounds as well as upon this express agreement, and on either ground I respectfully submit my claim to consideration and compensation.

"I beg that any replies to this communication may be addressed to me, under cover, to Adam Wilson, Esq., Official Assignee, Exchange Corner, Sydney.

"I have, &c.,

"JOSEPH BRADY.

"The Commissioners

"for Railways."

"Refer to Solicitor; but the Commissioners are of opinion Mr. Brady is not entitled to any compensation, having been dismissed for improper conduct.—B.H.M.—7/1.

"8/1.—To Mr. Barker.—J. R.

"I am of the same opinion.—WM. BARKER."

After this correspondence, and after the whole of this matter must have been in the full possession of Mr. Trengrouse, I cannot see how the Committee can place any further reliance upon his statements.

8253. Do you know this was within Mr. Trengrouse's knowledge? There cannot be a doubt that Mr. Trengrouse must have been perfectly cognizant of all this.

8254. Were all these matters made public? So far public that they were in the newspapers.

8255. This correspondence? Not the correspondence; but the document laid upon the Table of the Assembly was published in the newspapers.

8256. Was his dismissal published? No, it has not been printed.

8257. How could Mr. Trengrouse know it? I have not a shadow of a doubt he knew it.

8258. Considering what took place in reference to this matter, do you think Mr. Randle ought to be employed again by your department? I do not employ Mr. Randle; it is not in my power to employ him or not employ him. 8259.

8259. By the Chairman: Mr. Randle has been employed since? He has, but not by me. J. Whitton, Esq.
 8260. Who do you think was most to blame, Mr. Wallace or Mr. Brady? Well, it is difficult for me to say. If Mr. Wallace was aware these works were not measured up, of course he was to blame; but there can be no question they were both to blame. This at all events was a public document; it was laid upon the Table of the House and printed. Perhaps I may read it. 10 Mar., 1864.

“ SYDNEY AND PARRAMATTA RAILWAY.

“ The Chief Commissioner for Railways to the Under Secretary for Lands and Public Works.

“ Railway Branch,
 “ Department of Internal Communication,
 “ Sydney, 6 January, 1859.

“ Sir,

“ With reference to B.C. minute of the 11th ultimo, on the subject of certain “ frauds represented to the Secretary for Lands and Public Works as having been traced in “ the formation of the Railway from Sydney to Parramatta, I have the honor to report that, “ from measurements of four cuttings, the results of which are appended, it appears that, “ taking the price paid for earth-work at 3s. 9d. per cubic yard, as fixed by the Board “ minute of the 28th December, 1853, a sum of £9,097 6s. must have been paid to the “ contractor for 48,519 cubic yards of excavation not actually performed.

“ There can be little doubt but that a further investigation would lead to the “ discovery of further discrepancies between the amount of work performed and the amount “ paid for.

“ I have, &c.,

“ B. H. MARTINDALE.

No. of Cutting.	Quantity actually excavated.	Quantity paid for on Engineer's Certificate.	Quantity paid for in excess of quantity actually excavated.
	c. yds.	c. yds.	c. yds.
9	8,050	9,984	1,934
10	13,837	17,444	3,607
15	41,282	58,314	17,032
19	64,854	90,800	25,946
	128,023	176,542	48,519

“ 48,519 c. yds. @ 3s. 9d. = £9,097 6s. 3d.”

That paper was laid on the Table of the Assembly, and was printed in the newspapers of the Colony. Whether Mr. Trengrouse knew of these things or not—and there cannot be a shadow of a doubt he did—before he came here and said I appointed spies over Mr. Brady (which is totally and utterly untrue), and that I tried to bring charges against Mr. Brady, and could prove nothing whatever, he should have taken some trouble to ascertain whether his statements were true or false. My own impression is quite clear on the subject. I have not read the whole of these papers, but I have no objection to their being printed if the Committee wish it. (Papers handed in.)

8261. By Mr. Tighe: From his answers to questions 2355 and following questions, Mr. Trengrouse does seem to have had some knowledge of this? Yes, there cannot be a doubt the whole of this was within his knowledge; he must have known of this parliamentary paper, which was published in the newspapers of the Colony. Therefore, if Mr. Trengrouse will come here, and deliberately tell the Committee untruths with respect to this matter, I cannot see what confidence the Committee can place in any further statements made by him. With reference to question 2337—“ Are there any of his drawings in the office “ now?—Several; some of the best drawings in the office are his; the drawing of the “ viaduct across Long Cove, just beyond Petersham, in particular was very beautifully “ executed.” To shew how very carefully the drawings have been prepared for the Long Cove Viaduct, the whole of the internal spandrels were omitted, and after the line was laid and ballasted, they found the pressure of the ballast forced out the outside spandrels, and they had the road to take up and all the spandrel walls to build, at a cost to the Commissioners of £959 9s. 3d. If Mr. Brady had been such an efficient draughtsman as Mr. Trengrouse says he was, he certainly should have known that all viaducts should have internal spandrel walls, and that if they are not put in, the outside ones must be forced out. I do not think this shews his great efficiency in making drawings.

8262. By the Chairman: Mr. Trengrouse says they were “ beautifully executed ”? There was nothing beautiful about them.

8263. Was there any defect? The defect was in omitting the spandrel walls.

8264. By Mr. Dalgleish: Were they omitted in the drawings? They were not built, and he superintended the works.

8265. By the Chairman: Were they in the drawings? I will not speak positively, but the drawings are here I think. I believe they are omitted. At all events the fact is, they were not built. I beg pardon;—here is a memorandum from Mr. Wallace, for the Chief Commissioner, which says, “ these walls were not originally shewn on the plan, nor were they thought necessary.” Perhaps I had better read the whole—both the memorandum of the Chief Commissioner and Mr. Wallace.

" Additions to Long Cove Viaduct,—£959 9s. 3d.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.

" THE Commissioners request that the Engineer-in-Chief will explain, for their information, the particulars of the above item, in the measurement up to the 31st December. The Long Cove Viaduct is entered as a finished work, and the total amount of the contract for its completion carried out; the Commissioners therefore do not understand why they are called upon to pay the additional sum. Mr. Wallace will remember that when certain works were in progress at the viaduct, after the line was opened, and to which this charge appears to have reference, he gave the Commissioners to understand that they were being executed at the cost of the contractor.

" GOTHER K. MANN,
" 9th Feb., 1856."

" Memorandum for Chief Commissioner, 12th Feb., 1856.

" ADDITIONS TO LONG COVE VIADUCT.

" THE particulars of the expenditure of the £959 9s. 3d. are as follows:—

	" £	s.	d.
" Rubble in internal spandrel walls, 8,680 feet, @ 2s. ...	868	0	0
" Wrought iron in tie rods, 2,439 lbs., @ 9d. ...	91	9	3
	£959	9	3

" These walls were not originally shewn in the plan, nor were they thought necessary; it was found, however, that during the excessively heavy rains, the large amount of water taken in by the mass of ballast, caused a pressure upon the outer spandrels, which endangered their safety; and in order to guard against accident, I ordered the inner spandrels to be built and tied together, thus taking the pressure off the outer spandrels or face-walls.

" I perfectly recollect that when the longitudinal and cross timbers were being laid down by the contractor, I told the Commissioners that it was done at his own expense. No allowance has been made for this portion of the work in Mr. Randle's accounts.

" JAMES WALLACE.
" 11th Feb., 1856."

8266. By Mr. Dalgleish: What has this to do with the statement made by Mr. Trengrouse; Mr. Trengrouse says only that this plan was beautifully executed? It simply shews that it was very improperly executed.

8267. The question I ask is this: What has your explanation to do with the execution of the drawings—the drawing is only a general elevation I presume; now is it possible to shew spandrel walls in a general elevation? I am not prepared to adopt that statement at all, that it is only a general elevation.

8268. Mr. Trengrouse says, "the drawing of the viaduct across Long Cove in particular, was very beautifully executed"—now the drawing of the viaduct is only the general plan? It is the whole of the details of the plan. I should never look upon a drawing as being beautifully executed if I found that drawing incorrect.

8269. Mr. Trengrouse seems to be speaking of it merely as a specimen of skill in execution—that this drawing is a piece of beautifully-executed work? There is nothing very beautifully-executed about it; but I have thought it necessary to refer to this, because it is more with reference to Mr. Brady's general ability that Mr. Trengrouse is speaking, and I simply want to point out that the plans for this viaduct, of which Mr. Trengrouse speaks so highly, were inaccurate.

8270. By Mr. Morris: From question 2331 it is evident his intention was to shew that Mr. Brady was "superior to Mr. Whitton as a professional man"? That is evidently the whole intention of his statements:—"2341. Do you think Mr. Brady was aware of this?—He was, because Richardson, as soon as he was told to do this, went and told Mr. Brady what his instructions were; he told him he was directed to watch everything he did; Mr. Brady said, 'All you have to do, Richardson, is to be sure and give a faithful return of everything you see me do.'" The thing is utterly and totally untrue. It is utterly contemptible to speak of my appointing a spy over anybody; and as to my having given Richardson instructions of this kind, it is utterly false. I never gave any such instructions either to him or to any other person, nor have I ever received a private document of any sort from any official on the works.

8271. By the Chairman: If you refer to question 2342, you will see I asked Mr. Trengrouse whether Richardson told him this, and he said yes? I do not think that improves the matter at all. He gives that as his authority. Well, who is Richardson? A man dismissed from the Railway Department; and indeed it is somewhat remarkable that every man you find giving evidence against the department is a man who has been dismissed from it, or who has been disappointed in getting some appointment or advantage he expected to get.

8272. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is Mr. Robertson in that category? He was recommended for dismissal by me.

8273. By the Chairman: In your own evidence you said he was a very fine young man? So I did, but still Mr. Robertson has made statements that are untrue.

8274. By Mr. Dalgleish: He had given information before his dismissal. You say every man who has given evidence against the department has been either dismissed or disappointed;—has Mr. Robertson been either dismissed or disappointed? No doubt he has, and his information has been given since he was dismissed.

8275. By the Chairman: He gave evidence before Mr. Arnold and Mr. Moody, previous to his being recommended for dismissal? All his statements were made after he was suspended. J. Whitton, Esq.
8276. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Gardiner made his statements to me before he was dismissed or suspended, and so did Mr. Doherty? Still they have all been here giving evidence since. 10 Mar., 1864.
8277. These statements were all made in the House before they were suspended? It is possible they may have been.
8278. By the Chairman: The evidence they have given here is only corroborative of what they have given before? It is only corroborated by themselves. Here is a question by Mr. Stewart:—"2344. By Mr. Stewart: Was the viaduct you have just alluded to, made before Mr. Whitton came to the Colony?—Yes, the Parramatta line was completed and opened before Mr. Whitton came, and also the line to Liverpool. 2345. You have heard no complaint of that viaduct?—Of course bricks were not made twelve years ago like they are now, and I believe since Mr. Whitton came out a few of the bricks had crumbled away. Mr. Whitton I believe had two timber longitudinals laid over the viaduct on which the rails rested." Now I may inform the Committee that a more scandalous piece of work than the Long Cove Viaduct was never carried out in any country; and as Mr. Brady had the superintendence of that, I do not know how far Mr. Trengrouse's recommendation may assist him to any further employment. It has been with the greatest difficulty we have kept it together. We have had the pieces bolted up.
8279. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is it at the present moment unsafe? It is very carefully watched, and I do not see how any accident could occur without its shewing some symptoms beforehand. The whole of the piers were nearly all filled up only with rubbish, but I have had nearly all the joints raked out and poured liquid cement into them.
8280. By the Chairman: They are buckled with timber, are they not? They have cracked considerably, and are bolted now with timbers. "2359. Can you form any idea of the cost of this survey to the Government?—I think it must have taken some three or four months, and that must have cost £300 or £400." Mr. Trengrouse no doubt wished to give the impression that the enmity he says I shewed towards Mr. Brady had caused me to recommend the Commissioners to make this survey, and that not only was I unable to prove anything against Mr. Brady, but that I have thrown away £300 or £400 in making a useless survey —
8281. By Mr. Morris: Is the answer to question 2360 true:—"Do you think Mr. Whitton has many of these persons on the lines to give him this secret information?—There is one on every line. 2361. Is he an officer favoured by Mr. Whitton?—Yes, none can give him greater satisfaction than those who make complaints." That statement is utterly false. There is no inspector on any line—no district engineer on any line—that ever furnished me with any private information of any kind or sort, nor would I receive it. Every document received from them is in the office, and may be seen by any person at any time.
2362. Do you think this spy system was the cause of Mr. Brady resigning?—I think it was one of the causes, but he was otherwise ill-used; for instance, after being in the service so long, and having been Engineer-in-Chief, he was given Pitt-street to survey, and to take the cross sections for the tramway; that would be rather degrading when there were so many in the office who should have done this work instead of him. Notwithstanding, he did it, and in a very short space of time; I think he did the whole in a fortnight; he made the survey, cross sections, and plotted it. I know he astonished them in the office." All that is untrue. Mr. Brady never made a survey for the Pitt-street Tramway. He copied the plan from the Corporation map, and took the levels of Pitt-street; but not under my direction, because, finding out what I did with reference to Mr. Brady and the Sydney Railway accounts, I would not notice him nor give him any instructions. The instructions for the Pitt-street Tramway were given by Captain Martindale—it was no scheme of mine at all. I never gave him any orders respecting it. I would not notice him, nor did I from the time I found out what I did about the Sydney Railway accounts.
8282. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you the plan and section for this line? They are in the office.
8283. Will you send them? Yes.
8284. By the Chairman: Was this plan executed by Mr. Brady? The plan was drawn by Mr. Brady from the Corporation map.
8285. By Mr. Tighe: Was this after he was discharged? No, it was pending the inquiry; but as I knew the facts about the Railway accounts for six or eight months before the matter was taken up by the Commissioners, I refused to recognize Mr. Brady at all.
8286. By the Chairman: Will you look at question 2364:—"What salary was Mr. Brady receiving at the time he was surveying Pitt-street for the tramway?—£750, and Mr. Mason was getting £700. The £50 was taken off Mr. Brady's salary, I believe, so that he should not be above Mr. Mason." Do you know whether that is true? I am not positive, but I think it very likely Mr. Brady was receiving £750. I do not remember that anything was taken off Mr. Brady's salary, but I could ascertain. Mr. Trengrouse speaks of the other assistants in the office as being not very quick at their duty, and says that Mr. Brady did this work on the tramway in a fortnight, by getting up early in the morning and so on. Now all the work Mr. Brady did was taking the levels, which would be only work for one day.
8287. By Mr. Dalgleish: What is the length of the tramway? I think it is over two miles. Then, as to the accident on the Sydney and Parramatta Railway alluded to in the following question:—"2371. Do you know whether this gentleman, Mr. Richardson, reported the dangerous state of the line at this particular place?—I have heard it stated that he made this report to Mr. Whitton, I think, two or three times, and it was taken no notice of, and at the same time, he said that if it was not paid attention to an accident must occur at that spot. I think it was on account of the sudden change of the curve, and also the line
- " not

J. Whitton, Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.

“not being sufficiently raised on the outer rail—not giving the proper slope for the equilibrium of the carriages and train”? That statement of Mr. Trengrouse’s is utterly false. In the first place, the accident did not occur on a curve at all, but on a perfectly straight line; therefore it was not in consequence of the outer rail not being sufficiently raised. And as to Richardson coming to me, it is utterly absurd—Richardson was a sub-inspector, and he dare not have come to me; if he had any report to make, he must have made it through the officer above him; nor did he, as a matter of fact, ever come to me. There is not a shadow of truth in these statements about Richardson. Richardson never suggested anything of the kind to me, nor ever came near me for any such purpose. And if he had done so, how did it happen that he did not inform the Committees that made inquiry about the accident, that he had warned me. The truth is I had not spoken to him for four months before the accident, nor have I ever spoken to him since.

8288. By Mr. Morris: You remember at the time the Committees were sitting with regard to this accident, they were not at all satisfied with the explanations given with regard to the repairs made, without your knowledge or the knowledge of the Commissioners, in the neighbourhood of the place where the accident occurred? With reference to that, I simply wish to say that Professor Pell wrote to me with reference to these repairs of the line, and my reply to him was, that before the line had been touched by any one I had seen it, and carefully examined it, and was satisfied there was nothing in the condition of the permanent way to cause the accident.

8289. By the Chairman: There was a Commission appointed, and also a Committee? Yes, a Committee of the Assembly and a special Commission.

8290. Were these repairs made before the Committee of the Assembly viewed the line? Yes; the repairs of the line are going on daily.

8291. By Mr. Dalgleish: Are you sure there were no repairs done to it before you saw it? They told me not. I went up immediately after the accident. No repairs could have been done to it, I feel satisfied.

8292. By the Chairman: You know there is evidence to shew that there were? I think you cannot shew me any evidence which states that the line was repaired before I saw it.

8293. By Mr. Dalgleish: Will you look at 2374 and 2375:—“2374. Do you know anything about a Mr. Morgan on the line?—Yes, he was one of the men from England. 2375. Do you know anything about his taking a gang of men, and altering, at night, this portion of the line, after the accident?—He did, I believe, take a gang of men there, but as to the time I do not know; I heard the object was to prevent any one ascertaining the direct cause of the accident.” Is that true? If the line was altered at night, as stated, after the accident, it must have been altered after I saw it, because I went up on an engine with Mr. Martin, the present Premier, and Capt. Martindale, and we saw it immediately after the accident.

8294. How long would it take to take a jump out of the line? It would take a very short time to do it; but still there would be some evidence that men were employed to do it—it could not have been kept secret.

8295. Will you just say how long it would take to do it? Half an hour or an hour for an ordinary slack. At all events, if it had been done there must have been some one who saw it done:—“2380. Did you ever hear that this man Richardson was requested to make some statement that was not in accordance with facts, with reference to the accident? He was dismissed, I believe, for what he did say, but he has stated that had he told what he was requested to say by Mr. Whitton he would not have been dismissed. It was put in that way to him—that he was to make some excuse for it that should not reflect upon Mr. Whitton; he was to talk the matter away—give some other reason for it.” Nothing can be more infamous than a statement of that kind. If I had asked Richardson such a thing, would he not have told the Committee after he was suspended. The thing is utterly absurd, and not only that, but it is much worse. Of course it is only a suggestion of mine; but I think it would be a very good thing if evidence could be taken on oath before such Committees as this, and some severe punishment awarded to those who come here and make false statements. It would put an end to this if that were the case.

8296. I presume you would not have made some of your statements quite so strongly in that case? I presume I should.

8297. With regard to Mr. Robertson being only temporarily employed, for instance? I find I am perfectly correct about that. He was appointed originally as a temporary appointment, and liable to dismissal without notice.

8298. That is not the way in which the matter appears on the minute? Mr. Arnold’s minute says Mr. Robertson’s engagement is to be only temporary, and liable to be cancelled without notice.

8299. By the Chairman: And then with respect to your statement that he was only engaged on tracings—it appears he has been engaged on the best drawings in the department? He has been employed on tracings whenever there were any tracings to do, the same as others. Then in answer to question 2383, there is a statement by Mr. Trengrouse to this effect:—“I think I should, now that we are speaking of Mr. Brady, state to you what has been said of Mr. Brady by Mr. Whitton—that he would never rest until he had got Mr. Brady out of the Railway Office, and he swore he would never leave him till he had bounded him out of the Colony.” I have only to say it is utterly untrue. I think the documentary evidence I have produced here to-day shews that I had a very different feeling from that, and a much better reason at all events. There are a great many things in this evidence that I could remark on, but it is really not worth my while to refer to them. I pass on to “2397. Did not some of these gentlemen have an idea of constructing the railway fences out of sawn timber—sawn posts and rails—all through the country?—I believe the first specification “that

"that was drawn out was so worded—that all the timber was to be of sawn stuff, both posts and rails." Now there is a copy of the first specification drawn here, so far as my knowledge serves me, in Mr. Trengrouse's own handwriting, and there is no sawn stuff mentioned in it. In England it is all sawn timber; and I do not think there would be anything very serious in it even if it had been so. "2401. Do you know any person in the department who knows anything of the qualities of our colonial timber?—I cannot speak as to that question. Of course they have tables of the different strengths and qualities of timber, because that was got out for them by Capt. Ward; but whether they can go out into the bush and select timber I do not know." Well, I can only say they were not got out at all by Capt. Ward for me, but for himself, and were published.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.

8300. You took the strengths from those published by Capt. Ward? Yes.

8301. Then the only objection you have to that answer is to the words "for them"? Yes.

8302. By Mr. Dalgleish: The fair inference from the answer is that they were got out by Capt. Ward, because it could not be done by "them"? It is.

8303. The method of obtaining the strengths of timber is very simple? Very simple. Mr. Trengrouse says a good deal about the drawings of the Menangle Bridge—how many sets were prepared, and how many sketches for the bridges—and he states at last that the total cost as he made it out, was about £1,100 for labour paid for making the drawings. (See 2427). I have had the time taken out of all the persons employed upon it, and I find the total cost was £350 or 8s. 10d. per cent. on the cost. The first set was made for a low level, which we supposed would have been sufficient; then drawings were made for an iron bridge, and afterwards for a timber bridge. A good deal has been said about the delay, because Mr. Rhodes could not get the drawings. It was for this reason: Immediately after Mr. Rhodes had taken the contract, he insisted upon having the drawings for the Menangle Bridge. As I knew he did not want these drawings, I knew he must have some other motive beyond the mere desire to push on the work, and therefore I withheld the drawings. At a meeting which took place between Mr. Cowper, Mr. Robertson, Mr. Want, Mr. Flood, Mr. Rhodes, and myself, Mr. Rhodes then stated that his intention was to charge 6½d. a pound for the iron-work of the bridge, and it turned out that that was the sole reason why he insisted on having the drawings. I kept them back simply because I believed that to be his intention, as that would have made the iron-work cost £60 a ton instead of £29, which would have made a difference in the cost of the bridge of about £30,000. Afterwards, when Mr. Rhodes refused to go on with the Menangle Bridge unless he was paid at the rate of 6½d. a pound for the iron-work, I made drawings for a timber bridge, well knowing he would never build it, because his price for timber was only 5s. per cubic foot, and he could not build it for less than 8s. or 9s. I knew, therefore, that he would soon come to reasonable terms, and he did.

8304. He had a good price for brick-work? He had.

8305. Something like £35 a rod? I think about £3 a yard.

8306. By Mr. Dalgleish: What do you get brick-work done at now? I think we have had it done ourselves at £1 16s., and we are paying from about £2 5s. to £2 12s. While on this subject, I may inform the Committee it has come to my knowledge that, in Victoria, the contractors got hold of their drawings in the way Mr. Rhodes wished to do, and in some instances the Government have had to pay £80 a ton for wrought iron work. Resuming the subject of Mr. Trengrouse's evidence, it would be utterly impossible for me, in a week almost, to go through the whole of it and notice every incorrect or false statement, and therefore I do not think I will trouble the Committee with all of them, but I will select a few. There is one statement here, with reference to Mr. Drewett, which I will notice:—"2470. Have you seen him the worse for drink?—Yes, I have." Of course I cannot deny that Mr. Trengrouse may have seen him so, but I can state that I do not believe anything of the kind. Mr. Drewett is a most abstemious man in every respect; scarcely a day passes that he is not with me, and I never saw anything of the kind.

8307. Of course you know you cannot deny anything of this kind? I can state my experience of Mr. Drewett, in opposition to that of Mr. Trengrouse. I simply want to say that, so far as I know Mr. Drewett, I think him utterly incapable of allowing himself to become the worse for drink. I see him two or three times a day, and I never saw anything of the kind, nor do I think it at all likely he ever could have been in that state.

8308. You are absent in the country at times for two or three weeks together? Yes.

8309. And of course you could not answer for what might have occurred in your absence? No, I simply wish to say I never saw anything of the kind, nor do I think it at all likely it occurred. The next point I shall notice is with reference to the plans for the Campbelltown line, commencing at 2492, which question refers to the bridges with laminated arches.

"2492. Do you know of anything that would make them suitable for the Singleton line and not for the Campbelltown line?—Nothing at all, but it is not customary for one engineer to have anything to do with the drawings of another. In this case the line had been proclaimed, and could not be interfered with, but the section was deviated from; they reduced the height of the embankments. 2493. The section taken by Mr. Brady?—Yes; and from the fact of doing so—I suppose to reduce the cost—the line became inundated.

"2494. If Mr. Brady's original section had been carried out, the line would have been raised above flood level?—I do not believe the water would ever have reached it, because he had considerable experience in the Colony, and knew the nature of the floods. 2495. Was the Campbelltown line the first that Mr. Whitton and his staff commenced on in the Colony?—Yes. 2496. Have you ever heard what this mistake of Mr. Whitton's cost the country—altering the section?—I have heard it stated that it cost something like £20,000, because a large portion of the embankment was washed away; they had to construct several open viaducts; beside that, as the traffic was not stopped, they had to make a temporary road. 2497. If Mr. Brady's original plan had been carried out, that would not "have

- J. Whitton,
Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.
- “ have been required?—I believe not.” I simply wish to state that where the bridges were washed away, Mr. Brady’s levels were adopted. I do not think there is more than a few inches difference in the levels, and I believe the difference is in favour of my section. The only alterations made in the Campbelltown line were in the designs for the bridges, together with some trifling variations in gradients. There was no alteration where these bridges were swept away, and I am sure that if Mr. Brady’s bridges had been erected there, they would have shared the same fate. The amount voted by Parliament for the line was £138,000, and I saved about £50,000 in its construction. I did it that much within the estimate. Therefore, instead of throwing away £20,000, I saved the country £50,000. The sections are both here, and I believe will be found not to differ very much.
8310. Was there not a large expense in reforming this line? Simply in consequence of the floods.
8311. By the Chairman: The matter was before the House just after the flood, and if I remember right, there was an amount voted for the purpose? No, the cost of flood repairs, both on the Sydney Railway and the Campbelltown line, was all paid out of the savings on the vote for the Campbelltown line.
8312. What amount did they cost? That I cannot say just at present; I made the statement some time ago. There is a published paper on the subject. They are all mixed up together—the Campbelltown and the old Sydney lines.
8313. The repairs on the old Sydney line were trifling—only at one or two places? The repairs to the permanent way are constant and very heavy.
8314. I am speaking of the repairs in consequence of the floods? I do not remember now, but I have stated the amount before. There were two bridges rebuilt, and temporary bridges constructed to carry the traffic for the time. The statement that the section was deviated from is not correct.
8315. You are not prepared to say the cost of repairing these lines, in consequence of the damage done by the floods, did not amount to £20,000? I think it was considerably less than £20,000 for both lines. But that does not affect the question. The statement made by Mr. Trengrouse is that I altered the levels, and in consequence the floods swept away the line; and that I threw £20,000 away; the fact being that the levels were not materially altered, and that I saved £50,000 in the construction of the line.
8316. If Mr. Brady’s levels had been adopted, would not the most of the Campbelltown line have been taken free of floods? It was Mr. Brady’s line entirely that was adopted. The centre line was kept all along.
8317. And the levels also? No, I do not say the levels were adopted all along the line, but in these places where the bridges were swept away, there was only a few inches difference, if any, and I believe the difference was generally in favour of my section.
8318. By Mr. Dalgleish: In no case were they altered to make the embankments lower or the bridges lower? No; the damage was all done at Macquarie Fields, and my impression is that there was not more than a few inches between Mr. Brady’s levels and mine. My impression is that throughout the whole of Macquarie Fields there is a few inches in favour of my line.
8319. You resurveyed the line? We restaked it.
8320. And you did alter the levels? The levels I believe have been altered in several places on the line, but not where the bridges were washed away by the floods.
8321. How was it you did not alter the levels where these injuries took place? Because at that time I was perfectly strange to the Colony, and I assumed that Mr. Brady and Mr. Wallace, who had had some experience of the country, would have ascertained the height of the floods at Macquarie Fields. It was all perfectly new to me.
8322. Is it not usual with engineers or surveyors, who go to survey new country, to endeavour to obtain from the oldest residents there what the highest flood levels have been? It is always done. But I may say that this flood which did the damage was higher, by 10 feet, than any flood that had ever been known in the Colony before.
8323. Were not the culverts and bridges necessarily altered almost along the whole length of that line—for instance where there had been a 5 feet culvert a 10 feet one was put in, and where there was one culvert two were put in, and so on? Yes, that I have previously referred to. It was occasioned entirely by the increase in the floods. I had a memorandum from Sir William Macarthur, giving the heights of floods from 1817, and this flood was from 8 to 10 feet higher than any that had ever been known before.
8324. Would it not have been cheaper to have made a bridge at Harris’s Creek than that immense embankment? No, simply because the earth-work must have been excavated to get the gradients; and therefore, if I had not put it in the bank, it must have been tipped to spoil.
8325. You had a long lead? We paid nothing extra for the leads.
8326. The length of the leads would be taken into consideration when the contract was taken? I think the cutting in this case runs close to the bank.
8327. Is there not a very small culvert there for such an immense drainage? It is not an immense drainage, and I have not the least doubt the culvert is quite sufficient.
8328. By the Chairman: The watershed is nothing to be compared to that at South Creek? No, South Creek has a very large area, but Harris’s Creek has a very small one indeed. There is very little gathering ground, and you are nearly at the head of the creek there. I think the highest water we have had in it has been 10 feet.
8329. By Mr. Dalgleish: Above the culvert? No, it has never been above the culvert since the culvert was built—at least not to my knowledge—and I have always got information from the inspectors on the lines when these things have occurred.
8330. By the Chairman: I suppose it is the duty of the inspectors to keep you supplied with this information? Yes, the instructions to the District Engineers are, that on occasion of any heavy rainfall, they are to go and ascertain the heights of the floods, and send them down to me; and also to report if they consider any alterations required in the size of the culverts or bridges, judging from the area of the flood waters they see there. All these statements made by Mr. Trengrouse, with reference to drinking in the department, I do not intend to go into at all, because what I might say could only be my opinion as to the facts. I will go on to "2522. You said in your 'supplementary evidence' to Mr. Arnold, that "Mr. Whitton had not correctly taken down your statement—can you remember those portions he omitted?—One portion was, after I had stated what I had seen take place in "the office, he put his fingers in his waistcoat-pocket and asked me if I did not think it my "duty to make the circumstance known to him before; I told him no, I did not, because on "a previous occasion I had mentioned the circumstance to him, and he then suggested to "me that it would be better if I attended to my own duties and minded my own business. "This portion was omitted." Now Mr. Trengrouse's printed evidence shews most distinctly he said nothing of the sort.

J. Whitton,
Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.

8331. He questions the correctness of that? He signed it after reading it over. I can only state Mr. Trengrouse never did mention that to me, nor did he ever suggest anything of the kind—drinking, fighting, or any impropriety—until this inquiry took place; and in his printed evidence he says he never did report it or consider it his duty to do so.

8332. You know he questions the correctness of that? He may do now, because he was dismissed for not giving the previous information.

8333. What was he suspended for? For being in possession of information of this kind and neglecting to make it known. I presume he thinks that if he can shew he did make it known, that will alter the character of the suspension. A number of questions follow on that, which I do not think it necessary I should notice.

8334. Mr. Trengrouse says, in a note just handed to me, that "Mr. Moody read over the evidence, and that falsely"? If Mr. Trengrouse asserts that, I have nothing more to say to it. I asked him the question, and he answered that he had not reported it previously, and that was taken down. And without being positive, I have no doubt he read the evidence over himself, and I am quite positive he signed it.

8335. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are aware all these persons say the evidence was read to them, but they never had it in their hands? Then they state that which is untrue.

8336. Mr. Doherty said so? Mr. Doherty read his evidence four or five times; and I believe—I do not wish to state it as a positive fact, but my own impression is—that every one of them read his evidence himself; that Mr. Moody read it and handed it to them to sign, and that before they signed they read it over again themselves.

8337. By the Chairman: It is not the usual practice for persons to read their evidence themselves in that way before they sign? No, but my impression is that it was so. I am quite positive about Mr. Doherty.

8338. By Mr. Dalgleish: Have you become cognizant of the irregularities charged against Mr. Hall being true? Which irregularities?

8339. With regard to his drinking, and with regard to his obtaining money on account of the Government, and keeping it? Those are matters that I should be glad to go into—with reference to the money transactions with Mr. Jamieson; but I have not become more cognizant now than I was before of Mr. Hall's drinking. I have not seen him in that condition, nor do I know of any person in connection with me who has ever seen him the worse for drink.

8340. Did you know that Mr. Hall had been thrown out of a dog-cart? Yes.

8341. Are you aware that he was then with Mr. Jamieson, the contractor? He went with Mr. Jamieson to look for some stone—that was the object of his going, I understood.

8342. No, this was when the line was complete? I never heard of but one instance of his being thrown out of a dog-cart or injured.

8343. He did not state here that he was engaged on duty at all; and the contractor that was with him refused, when giving evidence, to say that Mr. Hall was in the dog-cart with him? I never heard of but one instance.

8344. The contractors that have come here to give evidence with regard to his drinking have stated they would rather not be asked the question, and decline to answer? Yes, I have read the evidence of Jamieson and Eaton.

8345. By Mr. Stewart: Nothing of the kind has come to your knowledge personally? No. Mr. Hall was recommended by me for dismissal some considerable time ago, and I did not think it necessary to take any further notice of it.

8346. By Mr. Dalgleish: How was it Mr. Micklethwait's resignation was accepted before he was examined before this Committee? He sent in his resignation, and as I knew he was very ill indeed I recommended the Commissioner to accept it. That would make no difference to his being examined before the Committee.

8347. Are you aware he has refused to attend? I know that on the first two occasions of his receiving summonses he was ill in bed and could not get out.

8348. By the Chairman: On the last occasion I heard from the best authority that he was in the Railway Office, and sent an excuse that he was ill and could not attend? That I know nothing about.

8349. By Mr. Dalgleish: Could you give any explanation of how he obtained this money from Mr. Brown, and how it was he did not pay the money back till you brought some pressure to bear upon him? I really do not know any reason. I understood from him that he and Mr. Brown had made payments for each other, and that there was a sort of running account. Mr. Brown mentioned it to me, and the moment I heard of it I suggested to Mr. Micklethwait the advisability of paying the money. But it is not at all times agreeable, nor is it my duty to interfere in such matters, between officers of the department, except so far as they might injure the public interest.

8350.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.
8350. Mr. Micklethwait was Mr. Brown's superior officer, was he not? Yes, to a certain extent. Mr. Brown had one district to survey and Mr. Micklethwait another, but instructions were generally sent to Mr. Micklethwait to forward on to Mr. Brown; the correspondence was carried on with Mr. Micklethwait.
8351. Where is Mr. Brown now? I do not know.
8352. He is not in your department? No, he has not been in the Railway Department for a considerable time. Returning to Mr. Trengrouse's evidence, there are a number of small things here which I do not wish to trouble the Committee with. As to Mr. Hall having been sent for the benefit of his health on the line to Penrith, that was not so; he was sent there because I had no one else to send.
8353. By the Chairman: Do you know how long Mr. Hall was absent from illness? He was absent a considerable time.
8354. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was he paid during his absence? He was.
8355. By the Chairman: Something like 150 days? I think not so much as that; I will not be positive; it was taken out the other day, and I think it was something like 120 days.
8356. By Mr. Dalgleish: You are aware that he was employed on private buildings while he was in the department? I heard of one instance of it, and I told him if I heard it again I should recommend his dismissal. I am also aware that Mr. Trengrouse was employed in the same way, and I spoke to him also about it.
8357. By the Chairman: Are you aware that Mr. Hall was doing it for pay, and Mr. Trengrouse was doing it gratuitously, for a school-house? If that excuse were allowed, they might all say the same. I was aware that Mr. Trengrouse did a great deal of work for the Municipality of Marrickville, I think it was.
8358. I am speaking of the plans he drew for the Congregational School-house at Newtown? Those I did not know anything about, and the first I saw of it was in his evidence here.
8359. By Mr. Dalgleish: What did you hear he was employed on? I heard that he made plans for the Municipality of Marrickville, and put up some revolving shutters somewhere in town.
8360. By the Chairman: Was that during the time he was in your office? I believe so. I think an action was brought by Mr. Trengrouse against somebody for some work he had done.
8361. Was it during the time he was in public employment? It must have been, because it was since I came to the Colony.
8362. Do you know whether he received any payment for what was doing at Marrickville? I do not.
8363. He did not do it during office hours? I do not know when he did it.
8364. By Mr. Dalgleish: You do not profess to exercise any control over your officers out of office hours? I do not; but I do not think a man who takes work home at night is a fit man to attend to his work during the following day.
8365. Do you not think a man may very usefully devote a few hours to improve himself in his own profession by practising at home? He may do that if he pleases.
8366. Could he not do that by making a plan for a charity? I see no difference between that and making a plan for pay; but it is one of the regulations that no officer shall take private practice.
8367. By Mr. Morris: It means for pay I presume? It is very difficult to find out whether it is for pay or not, if you once admit the principle.
8368. By Mr. Dalgleish: Has not Mr. Trengrouse always done the work he has been put to do in the office? There have always been very great complaints about the slow way in which he has done his work; and, judging from the notes he has taken of other people, he must have spent a good deal of his time in that way, which should have been devoted to his own duties.
8369. By the Chairman: He was engaged in making plans of land taken for the railway? He was.
8370. Did he not perform the whole of those duties? Yes, but they are not very onerous.
8371. Were any of his duties behindhand? I have had repeated complaints from Mr. Cowlshaw that he could not get plans he required.
8372. Are they on record? I think some of them are.
8373. Complaints made by whom? I will not be positive whether by Mr. Moody or Mr. Cowlshaw.
8374. What had Mr. Moody to do with complaining of Mr. Trengrouse? When plans have been required for deeds, they have had to be returned to Mr. Moody to send to the solicitor, and if they have not been done in time, Mr. Moody would very often come to me and say he had not been able to get the plans.
8375. Was there any delay more than was absolutely necessary? Well, I do not know what delay might take place; probably they might have been done quicker.
8376. Are there not many different plans to be made of each piece taken? Yes.
8377. Something like fifteen or sixteen? I do not know the number.
8378. By Mr. Dalgleish: On how many occasions did you know Mr. Trengrouse take the time of the other persons employed in the office? I do not know any occasions, but from his statement that he knows the cost of different drawings he must have taken the time, or must have guessed it. He reported, at the time of his examination, that the cost of the drawings for the station building at the junction was something like 20 per cent. on the cost of the work; I have had it taken out since, and I think it is  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.
8379. Then he is not very accurate in his statements? He is not; I think I have shewn that clearly to-day.
8380. By the Chairman: Is there any statement which he gives on his own authority which is inaccurate? I look on all these as being on his own authority. I do not think any man has a right to come and make statements unless he is prepared to shew their truth.

8381. He is prepared to give his author? I do not think that makes any difference at all; he ought to satisfy himself of their truth before he makes the statements. J. Whitton, Esq.
8382. By Mr. Dalgleish: With regard to the leave of absence or employment of Mr. Hall on the line, how do you say Mr. Hall was employed after he had been ill—on the line somewhere at Penrith? I was not aware of Mr. Hall being ill at that time; I sent him down to Penrith as inspector on the first length from Penrith towards Blacktown, simply because I had no other person to send, but certainly not for the benefit of his health. At question 2578, Mr. Trengrouse speaks of the difficulty of finding plans in the department. Mr. Trengrouse is perfectly right in saying that plans have been searched for a very considerable time, for on several occasions, when plans have been searched for and could not be found, Mr. Trengrouse has stated they were not in his room, and I myself have gone into his room, when everything else had been exhausted, and found them there. Therefore there is no doubt about plans having been sometimes difficult to find. "2585. Do you know whether a large number of tracings are sent to England?—I think there must be a large number sent. 2586. Why do you think so?—On account of the work that has to be done in England; they must get the sections before they are in a position to carry it out, or send it out here complete. I think there were tracings of a very large map sent home, the object of which I cannot imagine, without it is to shew the large amount of work the present staff have done since they came out here, the immensity of the country, and the difficulties they have to contend with. It is a very large tracing of the whole of the survey on the Southern Line. 2587. What is the object of sending it?—I think only to shew the difficulties they have to contend with. 2588. A sort of professional advertisement?—Just to shew their ability, I think. What makes me think this particular tracing is sent home is this: About two years since inquiries were made for this tracing, and it has not been seen for some time, I believe; and from that fact, I think it has been sent home to England. 2589. By Mr. Stewart: Was that a copy or the original?—That is the copy; the original took a very long time to do; this in question took over twelve months. 2590. By the Chairman: Who did this?—Mr. Telmon did most of it, and my son did some of it. 2591. Was it really required?—I should think not. It is 4 feet 6 inches wide, and 50 or 60 feet long altogether. 2592. Mr. Telmon was engaged upon it about twelve months—and your son, how long was he engaged?—Perhaps two or three months." Now the tracing which Mr. Trengrouse states here, was sent home, was a tracing made to lay on the table of the House. 10 Mar., 1864.
8383. By the Chairman: He says he thinks it was sent home? I think he has no business to say he "thinks" such things at all. The tracing was made of the line from Picton to Goulburn, to lay on the table of the House, in compliance with the Act of Parliament, to the effect that, before any works are proceeded with, the House shall approve the plans and sections. And that very plan was the plan made to lay on the table of the House. I have never sent a plan of any kind or sort home, not even a map of the Colony, nor have I sent a single thing, with the exception of one tracing of a timber viaduct at Menangle, and the plans of the Menangle Bridge, and the bridge at Penrith.
8384. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know who sent home a plan and description of the Menangle Bridge to the Engineer? No, I do not.
8385. You are aware it appears in a late number of the Engineer? I am.
8386. It appears to have been obtained officially? They may have been obtained in England, or from Mr. Wilcox or some of his people. But I have never sent any information of this kind home to any newspaper, nor have I ever sent any plans home.
8387. Do you ever lay tracings on the table that are not mounted? No, I think not.
8388. Were these tracings mounted? Yes, I believe so. I do not think we ever lay plans on the table that are not mounted. Mr. Trengrouse it seems is not at all positive about it, but it pleased him to insinuate that this thing had been done, without the slightest knowledge on his part that it had been done.
8389. Do you observe question 2597—Is that true? About what the Committee are pleased to call "clothes-props"—I can only say on lines in England I have seen much worse "clothes-props" used. I did the work for the Telegraph for nothing, and I do not know that there is any particular objection to the design. I had a good deal of trouble about the Telegraph at one time.
8390. By the Chairman: Were any plans made of these things? There was a plan made by Mr. Trengrouse, with a hoop on the top, to give to the contractor.
8391. By Mr. Dalgleish: It is the best plan, on all occasions, to furnish contractors with a drawing of the article to be made? Yes, I think so; I do not know how you can ask a man to give you a price, unless you shew him what he is to do. This was a plan made to attach to the specification, to shew what the contractor had to do. In answer to 2608, Mr. Trengrouse says, he does not think I go over the country on all occasions before adopting a line. As Mr. Trengrouse can have no knowledge of what I do when I am away, I do not see how he can arrive at the conclusion that plans are ever adopted without my going over the ground. As a matter of fact, they never are, and in many instances I go over the ground a great number of times before a plan or section is adopted.
8392. By Mr. Dalgleish: You observe all this is asked from him? His proper course then would have been to have told the Committee he did not know, instead of which, he goes on speculating about things he knows nothing about.
8393. Do you do all Mr. Rae's work? Certainly not.
8394. Has Mr. Rae any trouble? I do not know. If he had to deal with the people I have to deal with, he would have a great deal of trouble.
8395. Does he do all his own work? I believe he does.

- J. Whitton, Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.
8396. By the Chairman : You have acknowledged you do interfere with the traffic management? I beg your pardon, I have not admitted anything of the sort.
8397. You admitted you were engaged for a month in the prosecution of Mr. Nealds? I admitted that I had certain things to prove, which ought to have been done by the Minister.
8398. You have also admitted that things have been referred to you which ought to have been done by Mr. Rae? I say probably they might have been; but I only interfere so far as to give my opinion on questions about which I am consulted.
8399. I have had a note put into my hand by Mr. Trengrouse, in which he says Mr. Barton informed him that he proposed sending home an elaborate plan, as he purposed becoming a Member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, and Mr. Trengrouse believes this large plan was sent home as a specimen, with a view to his nomination? I cannot tell what Mr. Barton may have told Mr. Trengrouse, only I say that no plan of that kind has been sent home with my knowledge or my sanction.
8400. May it not have been sent home without your knowledge or your sanction? No, I am quite sure it would not. No officer, particularly one in Mr. Barton's position, would have sent home such a plan without my consent.
8401. I am given to understand this set of tracings was never mounted? We have no plan of the dimensions referred to by Mr. Trengrouse—50 feet long by 4 feet 6 inches in width—except the plan of the Goulburn line.
8402. Then I suppose it must be the Goulburn line that he alludes to? Then I distinctly say it was not sent home.
8403. Do you say no set of plans were made of that line which were not mounted? That I cannot tell. I cannot conceive that any set of tracings could have been made of the Goulburn line without being mounted. I am quite sure the plan never was sent.
8404. Can you tell the Committee where these tracings now mentioned can be found. It appears that Mr. Campbell and others can be named who were employed upon them? If Mr. Trengrouse will state what line it was, I will have inquiry made, but I cannot on a vague statement of that kind.

---

Mr. N. Trengrouse (being present in the room) further examined :—

- Mr. N. Trengrouse.
10 Mar., 1864.
8405. By the Chairman : You have heard the evidence given by Mr. Whitton—can you explain to the Committee what plan it was? There was but one plan got up of that great length and style; it must be that of the Southern line.
8406. Did you ever see it yourself? Yes, it was twelve months about; I think it was.
8407. Did you see the plan yourself? Yes, repeatedly, daily.
8408. By Mr. Dalgleish : Was it ever mounted? I believe not.
8409. At what time was this plan that you allude to made? About two or three years ago.
8410. By the Chairman : When you say it was twelve months about, was it continuously? Nearly all that time.
8411. By Mr. Dalgleish : Then, if one set of tracings similar to that have been mounted, and laid on the table of the House, that must be the plan you have seen? I do not know; I think it was the original that was laid on the table of the House; I will not be certain about it.
8412. By Mr. Morris : Then there was a copy made of it, to which you refer as having been sent home? Yes. Mr. Mason asked me about two years ago if I knew where this particular set of tracings were, or had I seen them lately. I told him I had not seen them for a long time. He said they had been searched for, and could not be found, and it was a strange thing what could have become of them. They were in my room for some time on a top shelf.
8413. Is that the reason why you infer they were sent home? Yes.
8414. Merely that conversation? Yes; because Mr. Barton told me it was his intention to send home an elaborate plan, as he purposed to become a Member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, and he must send home something stylish to be seen by them. (A tracing of the Goulburn line was here produced.) This is not the plan.
8415. By the Chairman : Are you sure that is not the plan? Yes; it is nothing like it; Mr. Telmon does not work like this.
8416. Would you know it from Mr. Telmon's work? I should, more than anything else. I should hardly think there is a foot square on the paper but what there are features on the plan I refer to.
8417. By Mr. Dalgleish : Can you say this is not the plan? I do not believe it is.
8418. Can you say positively? I cannot say positively; I say it is not the plan of Mr. Telmon's that I refer to.
8419. This is not the plan you refer to as having been made in the office with the intention, according to your conversation with Mr. Barton, of being sent home to England? It is not.
8420. By the Chairman : Was the plan you allude to about the same length and width as that? Yes, 4 feet 6 inches is the widest paper we have. I believe it to have been a fair copy of the original we had in the office.
8421. By Mr. Dalgleish : Was it on tracing paper? Yes.
8422. Is it possible two plans of the Goulburn line could have been traced in the office without your knowing it? Yes.
8423. I think you have previously said nothing of an extensive character could go forward in the office without your knowing it? I do not remember saying that.
8424. I think you said something to that effect? I do not remember it.

8425. How many persons were employed on the tracing you speak of? Mr. Telmon did the principal portion of it; my son was on it two or three months, perhaps more; Mr. Campbell, who was dismissed for drinking, was another; and I will not be certain of the others
8426. Mr. Campbell dismissed for drinking—that is the first we have heard of that? I have not mentioned his name in connection with that subject before.
8427. Who dismissed him? Mr. Whitton, I believe.
8428. Was it for drinking in the office? I think it was out of the office. He used to drink and stop away for some days together.
8429. Did he drink in company with any of the other persons in the office? I do not remember seeing him drinking in the office.

Mr. N.
Trenrouse.
10 Mar., 1864.

John Whitton, Esq., examination resumed:—

8430. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was any other copy of the plan referred to made besides this one? I am pretty certain that is the only copy that has ever been made of that line, except short lengths made out for the District Engineers.
8431. Were they made out on this scale? No, some were made out on a scale of 10 chains, and some 4 chains.
8432. By the Chairman: What is this? 10 chains.
8433. By Mr. Dalgleish: Is it usual with civil engineers, when they apply for admission to the Institute, to send to the Institute such works as have been mentioned? It is not. The usual course is for some one to propose you as a member, and at the same time state where you are employed, and the work you are engaged on, and that you have for a certain number of years been employed on important public works which would justify your admission as a member of the Institute. You then have to get four or five others to second the nomination, and you are balloted for.
8434. Has Mr. Barton, to your knowledge, made any application to be admitted? Not as a member; as an associate he did, a considerable time ago, immediately after he came to the Colony.
8435. By the Chairman: Do you know that of your own knowledge? I know he has applied to be admitted an associate.
8436. By Mr. Dalgleish: Do you know whether he has made any application to be admitted as a member? I am positive he has not, for, in the first place, he would have to get a certificate from me, and the papers would come out to me to be signed. Nor do I know that Mr. Barton ever had any intention of applying to be admitted as a member.
8437. By Mr. Morris: What are these mistakes in calculation that are spoken of in question 2622? With reference to culverts and viaducts.
8438. By the Chairman: That is referred to in 2634? Yes. All that I have to say about this is that the plans and sections were made for the state of things that existed at the time the surveys were made, that is, in accordance with the flood levels that had up to that time been taken; but in consequence of the floods of 1860 being higher by 10 feet than any ever known before, I at once made the necessary alterations. I went over the lines and took the area of every creek as I came to it, and then on the spot made the alterations I conceived to be necessary. I think I should have been very much to blame, knowing these things to have taken place, if I had not taken every precaution.
8439. By Mr. Morris: It is stated, in Captain Martindale's report, that the cost towards making good the unusual damage, amounted to £5,051 10s.? In a paper laid before the Assembly, with reference to the Campbelltown line, I gave the entire cost; the total cost, including all flood repairs, was not more than about £9,000 per mile. Mr. Trenrouse could have no means of knowing the cost of these repairs. The alterations on the other lines were made for the same reason. I should like to make a remark respecting the following piece of evidence:—"2666. By the Chairman: These mistakes were mostly connected "with the culverts, were they not—were there any other mistakes in these lines, with "the exception of the culverts?—I think that is all. There was a mistake in laying out the "line, the extension into Penrith; it is hardly worth noticing; they were some 5 feet out "in making the survey; the points did not agree. 2667. Do you mean 5 feet out in the "level?—No, in the position on plan; they commenced the survey from Proctor's-lane to "meet the line already surveyed, and they were some 5 feet out at the junction of last "contract. 2668. By Mr. Dalgleish: So that if the two lines had been formed, as they went "on, by the survey, they would have varied 5 feet where they should have met?—Yes, they "would require a sharp curve to connect each other. 2669. The width of the gauge?— "Yes, just the width from centre to centre; and this was in a short length, too; had it "been a long length it might have been a quarter of a mile out." This shews the errors people will get into by making statements about things they are entirely ignorant of. The difference in the centre lines is what he alludes to. The line at present being constructed is the down-line; as far as Penrith Station, beyond this point to the west side of the Nepean, the up-line is being constructed, to give the road traffic the left-hand or down side of the bridge; and immediately we get off the bridge I have changed the centre line again from the up-side to the down-side; and that is the 5 feet 6 which Mr. Trenrouse calls an error. The two centre lines do not meet within 5 feet 6 inches.
8440. By the Chairman: Which would appear to be an error? If a man gives an opinion he should know what he is talking about.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

8441. Mr. Trengrouse, being a draughtsman, cannot be expected to understand these matters so well as an engineer? Mr. Trengrouse should not offer opinions about things of which he is thoroughly ignorant.

8442. By Mr. Dalgleish: Was it Mr. Micklethwait who made this survey? No.

8443. By Mr. Morris: Is it a point of Mr. Trengrouse's duty to overlook these maps? He has nothing whatever to do with them; he would be far more usefully employed in getting up his own work. This survey was made by the sappers.

8444. We have had some evidence to shew that Mr. Micklethwait was employed on that line? He was employed staking out that portion from the end of Peto's contract, on the Western line, to Proctor's-lane, below the Penrith Station.

8445. By Mr. Dalgleish: It is stated this mistake took place between Proctor's-lane and Parker-street? I do not know of anything of the kind there. If Mr. Trengrouse does know, it is a pity he should not make himself intelligible. As the change in the centre line that I have mentioned is the only one I know of, and as it was a very likely mistake for him to fall into, I have no doubt that is what he means.

8446. Mr. Micklethwait marked out this line for construction? He marked out the line from the end of Peto's contract to Proctor's-lane.

8447. If the mistake took place in the survey from Proctor's-lane to the junction of Peto's work, I presume it must have been an error of Mr. Micklethwait's? If any such error ever existed.

8448. Are you aware such an error did not exist? I am not aware it did.

8449. Have you inquired? I have not; but I think it is a very unlikely thing I should not have known it if it had.

8450. The surveyors would have had it in their power to have shielded each other and kept that information from you? I do not think they could very well. Indeed, if I had found any man attempting to shield a thing of that kind from me, he would not have staid many days in the department. Mr. Trengrouse refers again to an alleged discrepancy of several chains on the Western line:—"2711. Then you mean, that if the workmen had been started on two different parts of this line, where they should meet, the lines would be several chains apart from each other?—Yes, that may have taken place had they commenced the work. 2712. Would there have been any alteration in the level?—That would depend upon the nature of the ground. 2713. Suppose the ground were not level?—In that case there might be a difference of several feet. 2714. In the level?—Yes." Now whatever error there was on the plan could not have been an error on the ground, because the line was all staked out on the ground, and the workmen worked from the stakes on the ground. At the same time I do not admit that the error was there; and as far as the levels were concerned, certainly errors on the plan could have nothing to do with the levels, because the working section was taken and the centre line was staked out. There is another extraordinary statement of Mr. Trengrouse's at "2734. Was the plan altered?—No, the plan was not altered—that is, the plan from which I was working; but after the Christmas holidays, when I returned and took up the plan to continue my duties, I found another plan had been put there, and the one I had previously been using taken away. It was placed just in the same position as the one I had left when I went away; it was rolled up from both ends to come to the middle of the plan, just as I had left the other on the table." That is an extraordinary statement. It is impossible for anybody to contradict such a thing, but I cannot see who could have done anything of the kind; and if anything of the kind had happened, I think Mr. Trengrouse might have made some inquiry to ascertain who did it. Then there are some questions with respect to the hardships Mr. Trengrouse had to undergo in a cold room without a fire "2741. Was not this Mr. Cowlshaw's room?—Yes; Mr. Cowlshaw had only left it a day or two before. 2742. How came Mr. Cowlshaw to move from it?—Mr. Cowlshaw could not stand the cold; it was a very cold room, and he was at home occasionally from ill health, caused, it was said, by his having taken cold there." I asked Mr. Cowlshaw about that, and he says there was nothing of the kind—he never was at home from ill health from any such cause.

8451. Is Mr. Cowlshaw a permanent officer in your department? Yes.

8452. What is his position? His position is that of valuer of land required for railway purposes.

8453. Have any minutes passed with your office lately with regard to ticket printing? None through my office.

8454. Have any come to your notice—have any been sent from you to the Railway Department about ticket printing? No. The Government Printer called upon me the other day, to ask if I could lend him a man, a fitter, to erect an embossing machine they have got out from England, and I directed Mr. Scott to send one up to assist him in putting up the machine. That is the only communication I have had in reference to tickets. There is something said by Mr. Trengrouse about Mr. Quodling and his repeated increases; and the examination goes on:—"2776. Then they go on the principle, the more pay the less work?—I do not see what they can have to do. Mr. Quodling does little else but run about the offices. I do not know whether it is necessary he should do so; but he is known there as "Mr. Whitton's policeman." I simply wish to say there is not a better officer in any department of the Government service than Mr. Quodling, nor a man who does more work; and instead of decreasing his pay, I should be very much inclined to increase it if I could. He is a most valuable officer. Then with reference to Mr. Cowlshaw:—"2782. Does this £600 include travelling expenses?—No, it is independent of that. 2783. Could not a man of ordinary capacity perform those duties, do you think? I should say he could." I do not see how Mr. Trengrouse can attempt to give an opinion on Mr. Cowlshaw's abilities as a valuer. I believe he is as good a man as can be got for the office, and I am quite sure

Mr.

Mr. Trengrouse must be thoroughly ignorant of his duties, and therefore I do not think he should attempt to underrate him in order to say something disagreeable about everybody in the department. Then he wants to make it appear, a little lower down, that Mr. Cowlshaw is only engaged two-thirds of the year, but from questions of the Committee he admits afterwards that he is fully employed. There are some remarks about Mr. Moody which I leave Mr. Moody to attend to himself.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

8455. Where is he? I do not know.

8456. By Mr. Morris: He is not in your department? He is not in the office, that I am aware of. I think he got leave of absence from the Minister some time ago, on account of his health, and I have not seen him since.—“2844. By the Chairman: Have you ever made any application for an increase of salary?—I have repeatedly—that is, almost annually. 2845. To whom did you apply?—I have spoken to Captain Mann when he was Commissioner, and I spoke to Captain Martindale soon after his arrival in the Colony, but I found that by having done so I gave great offence to Mr. Whitton. 2846. By your having applied to Captain Martindale instead of to Mr. Whitton?—Yes; I had previously applied to Mr. Whitton, and could not get it, and then I applied to Captain Martindale. I was told by Mr. Micklethwait that Mr. Whitton should say he never would forgive me for having done so—that I had so offended him by having applied to Captain Martindale.” Now that is utterly untrue; what offence could he possibly give to me by applying to Captain Martindale?

8457. Have you not, out of your official capacity, shewn a great deal of kindness to Mr. Micklethwait and his family on many occasions? Undoubtedly I have.

8458. And, in fact, placed them under considerable obligations of gratitude to you? Yes, I think so.

8459. Do you think it likely then, from what you know of Mr. Micklethwait, that he would make a statement so damaging to you as that you “were never known to forgive any one you took a dislike to or that gave you offence”? Of course it is impossible for me to say what Mr. Micklethwait would say, when Mr. Trengrouse asserts it; but I do not believe it. There is another matter I wish to refer to:—“2899. Referring again to the Menangle Bridge, I have been told there was a large amount of earth removed from a cutting, before commencing the bridge, which had to be taken back again and replaced—do you know whether that is true?—Yes, there was a great deal taken from the northern approach to the bridge—taken too low—and had to be replaced. 2900. I presume that was another mistake of the Engineer’s?—I do not see whose mistake it could be, without it was the Chief or District Engineer. 2901. Do you know what was the cost of taking away this earth and replacing it again?—I do not think it was so very much; something like three or four thousand cubic yards, which would cost some £400 or £500 perhaps.” I will explain how that was. The line originally was to be taken over the Menangle Bridge at a lower level, by 10 feet, than the present bridge; there is a short cutting before you come to the viaduct; this cutting was taken out for the lower level; and when the line had to be raised 10 feet higher, to give the same gradient, a small amount of excavation had to be put in again, which amounted to 1,400 yards. Therefore it was no mistake at all, nor was it a fraud.

8460. By the Chairman: It was merely because you were taking the bridge over at a higher level than you at first intended? Precisely. All these things, in the way they are stated, would give the public the impression that there was some collusion between me and the contractor. The next thing is with regard to the Penrith Bridge. Mr. Trengrouse states, at 2922, that “they have had to go some 14 feet deeper than was anticipated or ascertained—17 feet instead of 3 feet.” It is only 8 feet deeper; but I explained the whole of that the other day. There is one question, 2939, which I have no right to complain of, of course, but it certainly puts a very ugly complexion on matters: “2939. Speaking of engineering bumbles on the lines, they can be very easily rectified by adding a few thousand pounds to the contractor’s account, and the public be none the wiser?—Of course it could be managed.” If the Committee are in possession of any evidence whatever that would justify any examination of all papers and documents that have passed through my hands, I should be very glad if they would make it. I name that, because it shews the effect the evidence of Mr. Trengrouse must have had on the Committee at the time of his examination. “2951. Was the present mode of getting up Lapstone Hill Mr. Barton’s idea?—He takes the credit for it; but it was first suggested by seeing the Illustrated Times or the Illustrated News, where it was given in a plate.” Such evidence as that is perfect nonsense. Every one must have known of zigzags having been used in America for a very considerable time—long before I came here or Mr. Barton came here. Therefore the idea was not Mr. Barton’s, nor was it copied from the Illustrated News. There is another remark, about drinking in the office, which I do not know that there is any occasion to speak about, except so far as Mr. Barton is concerned (2982). I have known Mr. Barton since 1847, and I have never seen him the worse for drink. To say that a man is flushed is most extraordinary evidence of his having taken too much wine or beer. Mr. Trengrouse says (2984), “I have seen him very much bloated in his face, flushed a great deal.” It is very difficult for a man to rebut a charge of that kind.* “2992. What is the meaning of twelve ‘District Engineers,’ set down in the Estimates at £573 each?—I cannot understand that: it is altogether a fresh term; I think it is meant for the Inspectors on the lines. 2993. Is Mr. Micklethwait to be one of these?—I expect so. 2994. Then these twelve District Engineers is a new creation? Yes, as regards the term; the duties of course are the same. 2995. Are the duties the same as those of Line Inspectors?—Yes, it must be meant for the same parties.” 8461.

* NOTE (on revision):—I look upon such statements as beneath contempt.

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

8461. By the Chairman: I can only say I had information that you intended one of these situations for Mr. Micklethwait? I did recommend him for one of them; I never attempted to deny that. At the time I recommended him, he was the best man I could get, some eight or nine months ago. He has not been appointed; Mr. Bollard is on that length. Mr. Trengrouse suggests that these District Engineers are precisely the same as the Inspectors at £400. Now when I first came here, the length of line was not sufficient to justify the appointment of District Engineers, for I could always send some one to set out the line and give the levels; but now the lines are so far from Sydney, and require daily attention, I have felt it necessary to appoint District Engineers, giving them twenty or thirty miles each; but they are not "merely Inspectors"—they are men who can level, set out, measure up, all the works, and take general charge of the contracts.

8462. I can only say I heard, from persons connected with your own office, that the duties were exactly the same—that they were not required at all—and that you intended to appoint Mr. Micklethwait as one and Mr. Morgan as another, and that was the reason I put those questions? Mr. Micklethwait has not been appointed, nor will he be.

8463. The person who told me said that Mr. Morgan was not an engineer—that he was a carpenter and always employed as a carpenter till he came out here, and that he had no experience as a railway engineer? He was employed before he came out here, on the Oxford and Worcester line, under me, and previous to that he was some time with Mr. Brunel. He has been out here now four or five years. He had charge of the Picton line, and has since been appointed District Engineer from Penrith up to the end of the first contract; and I am quite sure any person who ever came in contact with him, with reference to the works on the line, will have a very high opinion of him indeed, as a thoroughly practical man. Mr. Morgan has been exclusively employed on railway works for seventeen years.

8464. By Mr. Dalgleish: Can he perform the duties of an engineer? He does; he measures all the works, sets them all out, and superintends them in every way as an engineer.

8465. Levels? Yes; in positions of that kind you require men you can depend upon—men you can trust. With reference to other points in Mr. Trengrouse's evidence, if I thought the Committee had any doubt upon many of them, I would have some remark to make on almost every question. The Committee will much oblige me—if they can place any confidence in any statement made by Mr. Trengrouse that I have not replied to—if they will give me the opportunity of doing so. As to my being out in Mr. Barton's sailing-boat during office hours, at a time when I was away from the office—"said to be ill"—(3079, 3080)—this is one of those paltry things that Mr. Trengrouse is so fond of suggesting. I have not been more than two months absent from work since I have been here, and assuming I was at home for a fortnight and wished to go out in a sailing-boat, surely I could do so if I thought proper.

8466. By the Chairman: The information I received was that Mr. Barton had a sailing-boat, and spent a large amount of his time in it when he should have been in the office? I do not remember whether it was in office hours, but I have been perhaps half-a-dozen times in a boat with him. There is another matter with reference to Mr. Hall:—"3145. Have you heard of Mr. Hall having been promised or having received money for certifying without measuring up the work?—I have not heard that he has received money, but he made about the first attempt to get it, or to feel a contractor's pulse whether he was inclined to do anything of the sort. Mr. Micklethwait told me this. 3146. What did he do?—He was measuring up work with Mr. Gibbons, I think it was, and he said to him, 'Mind, I have admitted that work to be two or three hundred feet more than it is.'" Mr. Hall had been measuring the Blacktown Station, and after his quantities came in, I heard from Mr. Mason that Mr. Gibbons had told him Mr. Hall had made this remark. Without saying a word to Mr. Hall, I sent for his measuring books, and went through the whole of the dimensions myself, and I sent Mr. Mason over to measure the same work, and his dimension book and measurements corresponded within 2 or 3 feet in the whole work. 8467. The matter was reported to you? Yes, that he had made that remark. If I had found his dimensions disagreed with the actual measurements I should have dismissed him at once.

8468. Do you not know Mr. Trengrouse and Mr. Micklethwait were at one time very intimate—on friendly terms, in fact? I believe they were.

8469. And up to the present time? Up to the present time for anything I know.

8470. By Mr. Dalgleish: Did you make a confidant of Mr. Micklethwait? Never. It is just possible Mr. Micklethwait may have been saying something to me at some time or other in reference to Mr. Hall, and I may have said I had heard this in reference to him.

8471. Did you make any inquiry into the conduct of Mr. Hall with regard to the lock furniture for the Burwood Station? Yes, and on that I recommended his dismissal.

8472. By the Chairman: Did you deduct £6 2s. 6d. from the contractor for the Singleton and Picton Stations, that being the difference between the amount named in the specification, that was to be allowed for ironmongery, and the actual amount paid for it? I did.

8473. Did it come to your knowledge that the contractor had already given Mr. Hall a cheque for £55—the full amount? It did not come to my knowledge until I requested to have the bills sent in; Mr. Jamieson at first told me most distinctly he had never paid one farthing to Mr. Hall, and that he had paid the cheque himself direct to Iredale & Co.; but some time afterwards he came and told me he remembered he had paid this cheque to Mr. Hall. The moment I heard that, I told him what my views were on the matter, and that I thought him as bad as Mr. Hall.

8474. By Mr. Dalgleish: You say you recommended the dismissal of Mr. Hall? Yes.

8475.

8475. It does not appear so from the printed papers? It does appear somewhere. "I have read Mr. Graham's letter and Mr. Hall's reply. I have also seen Mr. Hall on the subject; and, as I consider his explanation most unsatisfactory, I recommend that his services be dispensed with."

J. Whitton,
Esq.

10 Mar., 1864.

8476. Is that yours? Yes.

8477. Is it not Mr. Rae's—it is signed J.R.? It is wrongly printed; it is mine. Mr. Rae would not have recommended that. Immediately after I had read the letters, I sent for Mr. Hall and I asked him to explain the matter to me, and, as I considered his explanation very unsatisfactory, I at once recommended his dismissal. There can be no question in my mind that he intended to have received the difference, and did receive the difference, between £55 and the amount expended; and whatever explanation he may give of it, he cannot explain it away. If there is anything the Committee would wish to ask me with reference to points I have not gone through, I should feel obliged by their doing so. There are many matters into which Mr. Trengrouse enters—such as reverse curves; but as Mr. Trengrouse is not responsible for these things and I am, I should be very sorry to attempt to argue such questions with such a man. He gives his opinion about things that he can know nothing about, and therefore I will not waste time with him.

8478. By the Chairman: You know nothing against Mr. Trengrouse's evidence, where he has stated as positive facts things which he knows of his own knowledge? I think the whole of his evidence is hearsay; I think it is utterly worthless from beginning to end. I do not know that he says a single thing that he knows of his own knowledge. There is one very extraordinary matter here, which may serve to shew the value of Mr. Trengrouse's evidence:—"3462. Did you not ask Mr. Gardiner whether he would accept an office in the Roads Branch, and leave the Railway Department?—I do not remember that." 3463. You do not remember making any suggestion at all to Mr. Gardiner about accepting an office in the Roads Branch?—No. 3464. By Mr. Dalgleish: Had you ever the power to make such an offer?—No. 3465. By the Chairman: Did anybody speak to you, and ask you to make an offer of that description?—No. 3466. Did Mr. Micklethwait ever suggest to you to say to Mr. Gardiner, that he had better accept an office then vacant in the Roads Branch?—I could not speak with any certainty to that question. 3467. Will you consider the question—this evidence will be sent to you to revise,—and will you tax your memory with reference to it, and let us know what occurred, or if it did occur, and by whose suggestion you made the offer or suggestion to Mr. Martin Gardiner, and also Mr. Martin Gardiner's reply thereto?—Yes, I will." It is an astounding thing that Mr. Trengrouse did not, when examined by the Committee, remember a single thing about this; and yet, when he gets his evidence to revise, he writes a long note, giving every detail of the conversation.

8479. The fact is I was informed Mr. Trengrouse did do this, and that Mr. Micklethwait was the person who suggested it to him; and I have no doubt Mr. Trengrouse made the offer to Mr. Gardiner? Then on whose authority he made it I cannot tell. I never had any conversation with any person on such a subject.

8480. I further knew Mr. Trengrouse was very intimate with Mr. Micklethwait, and he thought he would injure Mr. Micklethwait by stating this, and that was one reason why he did not give the evidence here. I was forced to press the question very strong on him on that account? It is insinuated that I requested this suggestion to be made by Mr. Micklethwait for the purpose of getting rid of Mr. Gardiner. Is it not utterly beyond belief that a man should be here and know nothing about this, and go home and give a long account of it?

8481. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Trengrouse states he kept a diary, and by referring to that diary he refreshed his memory? Can Mr. Trengrouse produce his diary with that memo. in it? There is one matter in reference to my last examination that I wish to name to the Committee. It has been stated by several witnesses that plans of the Mudgee Road, with "Error" marked on them, had been laid on Mr. Gardiner's table for the purpose of annoying him. I then stated to the Committee that I had no knowledge that this had been done, nor did I think it could have been done; and on making inquiry I find that the plans never were in Mr. Gardiner's room, and as he sat here the whole of my examination and heard the discussion with the Committee, he might very well have told them the plans were not laid on his table at all, but he went down stairs to see them; they were never in Mr. Gardiner's office.

8482. I can assure you there is a mistake somewhere, because the whole of the witnesses have told us positively the plans were on Mr. Gardiner's table, and put on his work? I simply say, if they have made that statement, it is incorrect.

8483. Mr. Gardiner informed me of the matter almost as soon as it occurred the same day? They were never there.

8484. I believe you must be misinformed—Mr. Drewett himself admitted it? I told you at the time that if Mr. Drewett admitted it he made a mistake, but you will find, by referring to his evidence, that he gives one answer to two questions; one as to the word "Error" being on the plans, and the other as to whether these plans were laid on Mr. Gardiner's table; he intended his reply to be to the question as to the word "Error," and I think the statement that the plans were not laid on his table is strongly corroborated by the fact that Mr. Gardiner in his letter to me makes no mention whatever of these plans having been laid on his table. If they had been, I think it would have been one of the first things he would have mentioned.

8485. By the Chairman: We have had Mr. Doherty here for the express purpose of questioning him about this, and he says the plans were put on Mr. Gardiner's table? From the general inaccuracy of Mr. Doherty's statements, I do not think he can be relied upon in that.

8486. By Mr. Dalgleish: Of course you will observe that this is a matter on which you cannot speak from personal knowledge; and we have had these very officers on this very question,

- J. Whitton, Esq.
10 Mar., 1864.
- question, and surely we cannot be expected to take your opinion in contradiction to their evidence? Of course the Committee will exercise what discretion they please; but I assert it as a fact that the plans were never there; they were always in the office down-stairs, and were mounted in the office. By whom were they laid on Mr. Gardiner's table?
8487. By Mr. Drewett? Mr. Drewett denies it flatly.
8488. Mr. Drewett has acknowledged it? I beg your pardon. If you read his evidence carefully, you will see it will not bear that construction. I think it would be very easy for a person under examination, like Mr. Drewett was, to make a mistake.
8489. By the Chairman: I will refer you to Mr. Drewett's evidence:—"4501. At the time that Mr. Gardiner made his report, or shortly afterwards, did he come up to your office and complain to you of the conduct of his brother officers, in placing upon his desk a plan marked all over with the word 'Error'?—I think it must have been some time after that, that he made his report. 4502. Are you sure?—No; now I remember, it was after he had made his report. 4503. Did you mark the word 'Error' on that plan?—No. 4504. Did you place it on Mr. Gardiner's desk?—No. 4505. Did you cause it to be placed there?—No. 4506. Were you aware that it was to be placed there?—No; I heard it spoken about, and I did all I could to dissuade them from putting it there. I tried to keep it away from him, as I did not wish to hurt his feelings." That seems very clear? It does; but he does not mean it. I was astonished when I read it; but I believe, if you come to inquire into the matter, you will find they were never laid on his table at all. With reference to Mr. Fowler's evidence, I beg to put in a letter written by him to Mr. Wilcox, clearly asking for money to be given to him to enable him to leave the Colony, and intimating that if the money were not given him he had got such statements to make as would reflect upon the character of myself, Messrs. Peto, Brassey, and Betts, and Mr. John Fowler—things that would never be forgotten. (Original letter produced and copy handed in. Vide Appendix.) I have yet to learn what revelations he has to make that would affect the characters of any of the parties mentioned. There is a receipt appended to this that he gave to Messrs. Peto, Brassey, and Betts, in full satisfaction of his claim against them, and afterwards he applies to them for the balance of the account.
8490. By Mr. Dalgleish: That would be to the date of the document? He has done nothing for them since. I may conclude the evidence I have been giving to day, by saying again, that if there is anything I have omitted to reply to, upon which the Committee desire any explanation, I shall be very glad to afford it.

TUESDAY, 22 MARCH, 1864.

Present:—

MR. DALGLEISH, | MR. TIGHE.

JOHN LUCAS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Charles Fowler, C.E., again called in and further examined:—

- Mr. C. Fowler, C.E.
22 Mar., 1864.
8491. By the Chairman: You see that document (handing a paper to witness—vide Appendix)? Yes.
8492. You acknowledge that to be yours, and you handed it to a Member of the Committee the other day? Yes, and asked him to read it before the Committee.
8493. The whole of the statements there are true? Yes. This is Mr. Want's writing at the back, and this is Mr. Fraser's writing.
8494. What do you mean by at the back? It is on a letter written by me to Mr. Want; the corner is turned down, and there is a memorandum on the back—"I believe the within statement to be correct. R. J. WANT."
8495. This is in Mr. Want's handwriting? Yes.
8496. The statement is in your own? Yes, a statement of facts and circumstances within my own knowledge.
8497. By Mr. Dalgleish: Mr. Want is the Solicitor for Messrs. Peto, Brassey, and Betts, or their agents? Yes, and he has been from the first.
8498. The other letter is from Mr. Fraser, the Accountant to Messrs. Peto, Brassey, and Betts; Yes, he was in the same position, when Mr. Rhodes was here, as Mr. Spiller is now, and knew all about the matter.
8499. Mr. John Fowler is your brother? Yes.
8500. Is he the builder of the Torksey Bridge over the Trent? Yes.
8501. What is the weight of that bridge per foot run—of the iron permanent road and everything connected with the bridge? The net weight of the iron-work is 1,800 cwt. per foot forward; the girders are 10 feet deep—
8502. There is no wood-work about the bridge? There is no wood-work about the bridge; it is calculated to carry four times the weight that can ever come upon it; that is, locomotive engines loaded and coupled together on each roadway and the sleepers and rails.
8503. What is the weight of the Menangle Bridge per foot forward? I have been told 960 tons for three 150 feet each—or, including the piers, 480 feet; taking the entire weight at 960 tons, that would be 2 tons per foot forward exactly; that is double the weight that there is the slightest necessity for.
8504. How many more iron bridges do you know Mr. John Fowler to be the consulting Engineer for? I will speak of two; the Gainsborough Bridge, where the span is two 154 feet feet arches, and the weight per foot forward is a little over 20 cwt.; that was the first design—the Torksey afterwards.

8505. Was there any dispute with regard to the Torksey Bridge, between the Commissioners for Railways and the Engineer? Yes.

8506. Who gained the victory? We did.

8507. The Engineer? Yes.

8508. The Commissioners held the bridge to be too light? Yes.

8509. And the bridge was subjected to very severe trials, the decision of the Commissioners was overruled by the Board of Trade, and the bridge was ordered to be opened for traffic? Yes.

8510. Has that bridge been open for traffic ever since? Yes.

8511. How many years is it since that was built? Since 1848.

8512. Has that bridge ever been stopped, or has any accident ever occurred? No.

8513. Is it not quoted by engineers as an example of iron-bridge building? It is quoted as an authority.

8514. The Gainsborough Bridge is a little more than a ton per foot forward? Yes.

8515. Not more than 21 cwt.? About a ton per foot forward.

8516. Is there any other bridge you know, that Mr. John Fowler was consulting Engineer for? There were several of 80 feet.

8517. Of large span? I do not know of any others particularly, but I recollect these two bridges remarkably well, inasmuch as the Gainsborough was the first bridge of large span of wrought iron that was put up before the Menai tube, and there were various experiments as to the shapes of models; and from these experiments, which I investigated, I deduced formulæ for completing the Gainsborough Bridge, which are used to the present day. Torksey and Gainsborough are used as models. There was this discussion about it: Capt. Tyler reported about it. We had a discussion on the matter among the Civil Engineers; that discussion came under the consideration of the Board of Trade, and they certified the decision of the Civil Engineers, most of whom calculated the strength of the bridge. I may mention Robert Stephenson, Bidder, Brunel, Hutton, Gregory, Fairbairn, and others; and they all reported that the bridge was fully equal to carry a load of four times the weight that could ever possibly come upon it. Their decision was taken to the Board of Trade, who set aside the report of their own officers, and opened the bridge.

8518. Can you account in any way for the immense weight of the Menangle Bridge? I cannot account for it; I can only suppose things. I do not know whether the iron is of good quality, or whether it is *ship's plates, coming from Birkenhead Works. If it is good iron the quantity of metal put in is absurd.

8519. Would not the increased weight of the iron give a higher commission to the person who had charge of the work? Of course, if he were paid by a per centage, the greater the cost the more the commission.

8520. Are you aware that Mr. John Fowler is the proprietor of large iron works in England? Yes.

8521. Was he the proprietor of these iron works when he designed the Gainsborough Bridge? No.

8522. Was he when he designed the Torksey Bridge? No; the Torksey and Gainsborough were designed by me nineteen years ago; of course he certified them.

8523. Was he the possessor of these iron works at that time? No, he has not had them above seven years.

8524. Have you heard that Mr. John Fowler and Mr. Leather are the moneyed partners of the firm of Manning, Wardell, & Co.? Yes, I believe them to be so. I have no doubt about it, that they found the money to start them, for it was a matter of common conversation with the family. Leather married one of Wardell's daughters. I have no doubt about it.

8525. Do you know that the greater part of the engines that were ordered before the last order—you remember that —? Yes, I remember that remarkably well.

8526. Were ordered direct from Manning, Wardell, & Co., without competition? I believe the engines for the Windsor line were; I think you have that in evidence before the House.

8527. If you do not know, say so —? You mean the bogie engines.

8528. The bogie and other engines? Yes. I do know it from Mr. Willis, of the firm of Willis, Merry, & Co. They were sent direct, and the excuse for their outrageous cost was, they had to make new patterns.

Mr. C.
Fowler, C.E.
22 Mar., 1864.

* NOTE (on revision):—A very inferior description of iron.

DISORGANIZED STATE OF PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

APPENDIX.

(To Evidence given by John Rae, Esq., 13 October, 1863.)

A. No. 1.

Minute for the Executive Council.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 17 October, 1863.*

THE Secretary for Public Works, under the circumstances disclosed in the accompanying papers having reference to the inquiry made into the alleged disorganized state of his department, recommends to His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, that Messrs. Hall, Trengrouse, Doherty, and Robinson, be dismissed the public service.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Clerk of the Executive Council.—B.C.—JOHN RAE.

Withdrawn from the consideration of the Council, at the request of the Honorable the Secretary for Works.

A. G. C. BUDGE,
Acting Clerk of the Council.

19 Oct., 1863.

Engineer-in-Chief to Under Secretary.

I FORWARD, for the consideration of the Honorable the Minister for Works, the evidence (accompanied by a report) taken by me, with reference to the alleged disorderly conduct of certain officers in my department. Mr. Trengrouse states that, although he was aware drinking was carried on to excess in the department, by Mr. Hall, and that many of the performances which are stated to have occurred took place daily, yet he did not mention this matter to any one nor did he report it officially.

The evidence of Mr. Trengrouse is either true or not true—if true, he is highly culpable in not reporting such occurrences to me—if not true, his conduct deserves severe condemnation; and, in either case, I consider his services should be dispensed with.

I may mention that Mr. Trengrouse is only partially supported in his statements by Mr. Doherty; and twelve witnesses, including Mr. Mason, Mr. Barton, and Mr. Drewett, state that they have never seen such occurrences as described by Mr. Trengrouse.

The duties upon which Mr. Trengrouse has been employed are to make tracings of land plans required for notices to owners and occupiers of land taken for railway purposes, and also to copy on deeds plans of land purchased; his services therefore can be readily replaced.

Mr. Hall is an excellent architectural draftsman, and has rendered valuable assistance to the department; and unless the charges against him be sustained by further evidence, I shall not feel justified in recommending his dismissal.

Messrs. Doherty and Robertson (who are both only temporarily employed in the office to make tracings) have each written letters with a view to publication, and which were published in the Empire newspaper of the 11th August, reflecting on officers in this department; and as insubordination of this kind is in direct contravention of one of the printed rules of the service, and cannot be permitted without great injury to the public service, I recommend that their services be at once dispensed with.

J. W.—28/8/63.

Submitted.—J.R.—29/8/63.

Prepare minute for Executive Council, recommending dismissal of Messrs. Trengrouse, Doherty, and Robertson.—W.M.A.—29/8/63.

*Railway Department, Engineer's Office,
Sydney, 24 August, 1863.*

Sir,

In compliance with the instructions of the Honorable the Minister for Works, I have made an inquiry into the charges of drunkenness and fighting, &c., which were stated by the Honorable Member, Mr. Dalgleish, in his place in Parliament, to have occurred in this department.

The following witnesses have been examined:—

George Hall,	William Mackay,
Nicholas Trengrouse,	Hyacinthe Telmon,
John Doherty,	William Quodling,
Louis Robertson,	William Mason,
William Drewett,	John William Deering,
Edwin Barton,	Thomas Collins,
Edwin Fearnside,	Thomas Fitzgerald, } Messengers.

Mr. Hall was the first witness, and it will be seen from his evidence that he positively denies the truth of all the statements made by Mr. Dalgleish with reference to himself.

Mr. Trengrouse states that he has seen Mr. Hall drink "a bottle of brandy in a day, besides beer"; and that this brandy was brought into the office by Fitzgerald, the messenger. On referring to the evidence of Fitzgerald I find the following:—"I recollect on one occasion being sent for a bottle of brandy by Mr. Hall; it was on the Saturday at the latter end of December last year; Mr. Hall told me "he wanted it to take home—it was just before he was going to leave the office; I did not see any one taking any portion of it; Mr. Micklethwait also, on one occasion (but I forget when it was) asked me to get him a bottle of brandy, as he was going by the boat to Newcastle; I got it for him and he went to the boat; I never got any other bottles of brandy, and if any person has said so it is not true; I have never seen any one fetching beer or spirits to the office."

The messenger who is stated to have brought these bottles of brandy into the office, and which it is asserted Mr. Hall drank, directly contradicts Mr. Trengrouse's statement; and it is somewhat singular that Mr. Trengrouse is entirely unsupported by any other officer of the department except Mr. Doherty.

Mr. Doherty says:—"I have seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait once each challenge Mr. Gardiner to fight; I don't know the words used, nor the occasion of the challenges; I have seen Mr. Micklethwait stagger, and, as I thought, from drink; I have seen many bottles of brandy in the office, and had some about twice; I have never seen Mr. Trengrouse or Mr. Gardiner drink in the office, but I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside taking drink to lunch. "I

" I have seen Mr. Hall under the influence of drink frequently, and I have seen Mr. Micklethwait once or twice; in my opinion they were not capable of properly performing their duties.

" I have formed my opinion of Mr. Hall's incapacity to perform his duties because I have seen him go into the ante room and wash and bathe himself.

" I am unable to define or give a reason for supposing Mr. Micklethwait was incapable of performing his duties; I say it was 'my opinion'; I have seen a bottle of brandy and one of beer brought into the office and drunk by Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; I mean I have seen it brought in, but I don't know whether it was all drunk or not.

" I have seen beer brought into the office at lunch-time, and drunk by other gentlemen.

" I have seen Mr. Hall perform the 'Scissors Grinder' in the office; I don't know anything about 'Suffolk Punch'; I don't know what it means."

Mr. Louis Robertson states—" I have seen Mr. Micklethwait unable to do his work from the influence of drink once; I judged from seeing Mr. Micklethwait's face being redder than usual, and from his outward manner, and from having poured water upon the back of his head; Mr. Drewett was in the office with us."

Mr. Drewett states—" I recollect Mr. Micklethwait some time back (on one occasion only) asking Mr. Robertson to pour water upon the back of his head, but it was not in my opinion because he was under the influence of drink; I have never seen Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink, nor have I seen any other person in the department under the influence of drink in office hours. I had never heard anything of the office performances until I read of them in the newspapers."

One of the charges made by Mr. Dalgleish, and in my opinion by far the most important charge, was that of drunkenness against Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; I have taken the evidence of fourteen witnesses, whose names are appended, and not one has ever seen either Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait drunk, and only three of these state that they have seen Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink.

Mr. Trengrouse says—" I have never seen any one intoxicated, but I have seen Mr. Hall with more drink than he should have had."

Mr. Doherty says—" I have seen Mr. Hall under the influence of drink frequently, and I have seen Mr. Micklethwait once or twice."

Mr. Louis Robertson says that he has seen Mr. Micklethwait unable to do his work from the influence of drink once.

Therefore Mr. Doherty and Mr. Robertson state, that they have seen Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink each once, and Mr. Trengrouse and Mr. Doherty state that they have seen Mr. Hall under the influence of drink frequently; eleven witnesses state that they have never seen either Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait affected by drink in the office or during office hours.

I wish to draw the Minister's particular attention to the evidence of Mr. Trengrouse, who has exhibited such a strong feeling towards Mr. Hall as, in my opinion, to render his evidence utterly worthless

The evidence of Mr. Doherty also is somewhat remarkable: he has seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside taking drink to lunch, but he has never seen Mr. Trengrouse or Mr. Gardiner drink in the office.

Mr. Trengrouse, however, states that he has taken brandy or beer at lunch in the office daily.

The peculiar reasons assigned by Mr. Doherty for supposing Mr. Hall to be under the influence of drink are worthy of special attention; as relates to his belief that Mr. Micklethwait was under the influence of drink, he is unable to give any explanation as to how he formed that opinion.

The charge of drunkenness brought against Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait appears, from the evidence taken, to be a pure fabrication.

Another charge made by Mr. Dalgleish in his place in Parliament is, that Mr. Hall enacted in office hours a part called the "Suffolk Punch."

It will not be necessary for me to say more with reference to this matter than that not one of the witnesses examined ever heard of the "Suffolk Punch," until after reading the speech of the Honorable Member as reported in the Sydney Morning Herald of the 29th July.

The statements as to the performances called the "Redan," the "Malakof," the "Tap-room Toper," and "Storming the Garrison," are not corroborated by any of the witnesses examined except Mr. Trengrouse, whose evidence I have previously referred to.

The performance called the "Scissors Grinder" has occasionally taken place at lunch-time. Mr. Fearnside says, " I recollect on one occasion at lunch-time that Mr. Hall for a few seconds only was acting a little mimicry, but it was only for a few seconds, and I never saw it but that once."

Mr. Trengrouse states—" I have seen him (Mr. Hall) performing the 'Scissors Grinder,' generally beginning about 1 o'clock, and continuing at intervals throughout the day—lasting about ten minutes at a time."

Mr. Doherty states—" I have seen Mr. Hall performing the 'Scissors Grinder' in the office; I don't know anything about 'Suffolk Punch'; I don't know what it means."

It appears therefore that, out of fourteen witnesses, three only have heard this performance, and Mr. Fearnside has only heard it once during a period of eighteen months; it is difficult therefore, to believe that it has been of such constant occurrence as stated by Mr. Trengrouse.

The following evidence has been given, with reference to the charge of fighting which was stated to have occurred in this department:—

Mr. Trengrouse, who has been in the department ten years, states—" I have seen blows exchanged between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering in the office; it was in consequence of Mr. Deering saying Mr. Hall was no gentleman."

Mr. Deering, who is not now in the department, states—" I recollect an instance occurring when some few words took place between myself and Mr. Hall, but the circumstance was so trivial that I thought no more about it; it was not fighting at any rate."

Mr. Fearnside states—" I recollect Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner quarrelling after 4 o'clock; Mr. Hall threatened to thrash Mr. Gardiner, as Gardiner had called him a 'pot-house bully.'"

Mr. Trengrouse has therefore, during a period extending over ten years, heard one quarrel in the office, which he considers was a fight, and only one other instance of quarrelling is known to any of the witnesses examined.

Mr. Dalgleish also stated that Mr. Micklethwait was "subject to delirium tremens;" I append medical certificates on this matter, shewing that such statement is utterly without foundation; in justice to Mr. Micklethwait I may state that I have known him for nearly twenty-seven years, and I never saw him intoxicated; Mr. Mason has known him for about twenty years, and he never saw him intoxicated, and from my knowledge of Mr. Micklethwait, I find it impossible to believe the statements made with reference to him.

The whole of the evidence taken by me has been signed by the witnesses, and is hereto appended.

Mr. Gardiner was requested to attend to give evidence, but declined to do so.

Not finding any evidence requiring in my opinion an explanation from Mr. Micklethwait, I have felt it unnecessary to request his attendance in Sydney, from Muswellbrook, where he is now employed.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WHITTON.

John Rae, Esq.,
Under Secretary for Works.

Charges

Charges against Mr. Hall and others, as reported in the "Sydney Morning Herald" of 29 July, 1863.

George Hall states:—I have read the reports in the Sydney Herald of 29 July, relative to my being intoxicated, &c.; I state I have never been intoxicated during office hours, nor have I ever in the office enacted the parts of "Scissors Grinder," &c., as alleged; nor did I even know the meaning of the "Suffolk Punch" until explained to me after the publication of the Herald; the "Tap-room Toper" I know nothing of, nor did I ever perform it; I admit that on several occasions I have for perhaps two or three minutes endeavoured to amuse the people at lunch time, but only at that time; the titles are new to me; I never heard anything of the terms "storming the garrison," as applied to drinking in the office; nor did I ever hear anything about the "Malakof" or the "Redan"; I state it is a pure fabrication; I never used the words, nor have I ever heard them so applied, until after the publication of the Herald; I say it is not true that I ever drank a bottle of brandy or even a bottle of beer in the office during any day; it has not been my general practice to use stimulating drinks during office hours, except for a short time during sickness, when acting under medical advice, I used to drink not more than a glass of brandy during the day, and that I may add was only at lunch time; the messenger who has always procured this brandy for me, can no doubt give information on this matter; I state that the whole of the officers, with one or two exceptions, take beer or some other stimulating drink for lunch, but I never saw it taken to excess; I have seen Mr. Gardiner take beer as well as the other gentlemen; I never challenged to fight in the office, but I once threatened to knock Mr. Gardiner down; I now recollect I did say I would fight him; it was under very strong provocation, he called me "a low pot-house bully"; I did not strike him, nor did I attempt to strike him; I recollect on one occasion having some words with Mr. Deering, and I slapped his face; he said I was no gentleman; I have no recollection of any other instance of quarrelling, and I say I never threatened to fight or challenged any other person except as above mentioned; I have never seen any officer under the influence of drink during office hours, nor at any other time; I say, with reference to the whole of the charges made by Mr. Dalglish, that they are without foundation, and not true; I never saw a bottle of brandy hid in a roll of drawing paper in the office, nor have I ever heard of such being the case until I read it in the newspaper.

GEO. HALL.

George Hall, recalled:—I heard the statements of Mr. Trengrouse read, and so far as they relate to myself, I say that the statements made are untrue and without foundation; I have never received from contractors brandy or any other drink when measuring up works, nor have I ever requested that brandy or other liquor should be sent for; I deny that money has been collected and pocketed by me; I deny that I ever sent an order for a bottle of brandy out of the office; I did on one occasion send for a bottle of brandy at Christmas time; it was the last Saturday in last year; that is the only bottle I have sent for; I paid for it; Mr. Trengrouse's statement that I am in the habit of being made helplessly drunk at Newtown is a wilful and malicious falsehood; I deny that I have ever been drunk at Newtown.

GEO. HALL.

Nicholas Trengrouse:—I have been in this department near ten years; I have read the Sydney Morning Herald of 29th July, wherein certain charges are preferred against Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait; I have never seen any one intoxicated in the office, but I have seen Mr. Hall with more drink than he should have had; I have known him to drink a bottle of brandy in the day besides beer—the ordinary bottle is what I refer to; I have seen Mr. Hall with brandy and blood running out of his nose; I have seen Mr. Hall frequently go to his bottle to drink; I have seen Mr. Hall send for a bottle of brandy, and I have seen him drink the whole of it in one day; this was when I was in the large room; I have no doubt the bottle was finished; I never had the curiosity to look at it; it has been sent for day after day; Mr. Hall is very clever at mimicry; I have seen him performing the "Scissors Grinder"; generally beginning about 1 o'clock and continuing at intervals throughout the day—lasting about ten minutes at a time; I have seen him performing "Punch and Judy" during office hours—generally in the afternoons; I have seen this going on for years, but I have never mentioned it to any one, nor did I ever report it; I have known contractors stop in their calculations and look up with astonishment at the noise made by Mr. Hall, but I do not know the names of any one of them; I have taken drink in the office daily—brandy or beer at lunch; Mr. Hall has requested contractors to send out for drink, which has been brought into the office; I never had any of it; Mr. Croshaw is one of the contractors who has sent out for drink; I state that Mr. Hall expects, as a rule, a bottle of brandy to be ready or to be sent for when he goes out to inspect buildings; I have not seen it, but I have been informed of it, and I declined to give up my authority; I state I have been informed by Mr. Harris of Newtown, painter; Mr. Harris stated to me that Mr. Hall expects to have a bottle of brandy, under the circumstances stated by me, from the contractors, and when the brandy has not been ready it has had to be sent for; Mr. Hall has frequently raised, by subscription in the office, 4s. 6d. for a bottle of brandy, which has been sent for and drunk in the office; I have subscribed more than once, to get rid of the annoyance of being so often pestered by Mr. Hall; I have seen blows exchanged between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering in the office; it was in consequence of Mr. Deering saying Mr. Hall was no gentleman; Mr. Hall's drunken habits are so well known that his friends at Newtown have refused to acknowledge him—some having been in the habit of giving him so much brandy as to render him quite helpless, so that they may have him carried away; I decline to give up my authority; I have never seen Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink in the office, or during office hours; I have seen a bottle of brandy hid under a roll of paper, and I have heard the terms "Malakof" and "Redan" frequently used in reference to drink in the office; I have heard and seen Mr. Hall "storming the garrison" as he termed it,—i.e., rushing wildly upon his bottle; I never considered it within my province to mention these things to my superior officer; I am the longest in the office; Mr. Hall has tried a good deal to injure me.

N. TRENGROUSE.

Mr. Trengrouse recalled, states:—The bottles of brandy mentioned by me as having been brought into the office, were brought by Fitzgerald, the messenger; I wish to add more than one contractor has brought in spirits, but I do not mention names; I decline to mention names; when the money has been subscribed for brandy, it has been generally about the last week of the month; the money has been pocketed by Mr. Hall, not sent for the drink; an order has been sent for it on the spirit merchant.

N. TRENGROUSE.

John Doherty:—I have read a letter in the Empire of August the 11th; it was written and signed by me; I have seen Mr. Hall once, and Mr. Micklethwait once, each challenge Mr. Gardiner to fight; I don't know the words used nor the occasion of the challenges; I have seen Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait each drinking brandy and beer, and I believe the challenges were given under the influence of drink; I have seen Mr. Micklethwait stagger, and, as I thought, from drink; I have seen many bottles of brandy in the office, and had some about twice; I never saw Mr. Trengrouse or Mr. Gardiner drink in the office, but I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside taking drink to lunch; I have seen Mr. Hall under the influence of drink frequently, and I have seen Mr. Micklethwait once or twice; in my opinion they were not capable of properly performing their duties; I have formed my opinion of Mr. Hall's incapacity to perform his duties because I have seen him go into the ante-room and wash and bathe himself; I am unable to define or give a reason for supposing Mr. Micklethwait was incapable of performing his duties; I say it was my opinion; I have seen a bottle of brandy and one of beer brought into the office, and drunk by Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; I mean I have seen it brought in, but I don't know whether it was all drunk or not; I have seen beer brought into the office at lunch time, and drunk by other gentlemen; I decline to answer whether I have been seen drunk in Sydney streets; I have seen Mr. Hall performing the "Scissors Grinder" in the office; I don't know anything about "Suffolk Punch"—I don't know what it means.

of

J. DOHERTY.

Louis Robertson states:—I have read a letter in the Empire of 11th of August; that letter was written and signed by me; I have seen Mr. Micklethwait unable to do his work from the influence of drink once; I judged from seeing Mr. Micklethwait's face being redder than usual, and from his outward manner, also from having poured water upon the back of his head; Mr. Drewett was in the office with us; I only remember that one occasion; I know of no other instance in the department of seeing any one under the influence of drink in office hours.

LOUIS ROBERTSON.

Mr. Robertson recalled, states:—I have never seen or heard anything of the performances of the "Suffolk Punch," &c., referred to in the newspapers, until after they were published.—L.R.

John William Drewett states:—I recollect Mr. Micklethwait some time back (on one occasion only), asking Mr. Robertson to pour water upon the back of his head; but it was not, in my opinion, because he was under the influence of drink; I have never seen Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of drink, nor have I seen any other person in the department under the influence of drink in office hours; I had never heard anything of the office performances until I read of them in the newspapers.

J. W. DREWETT.

Edwin Barton states:—I am assistant engineer in the Railway Branch; I have been in the department about seven years; I have read the statements made by Mr. Dalgleish, as reported in the newspaper of 29th July last, relative to drunkenness, &c., in the Railway Branch; for some years I was constantly in the drawing office when not in the field, and I state that I never saw or heard anything of the performances alluded to, and I have never seen drinking to excess in the office; had such happened I should have taken such steps as would have prevented a recurrence.

EDWIN BARTON.

Edwin Fearnside states:—I have been in the drawing office for the last eighteen months; I have never during that time seen any one in the drawing office under the influence of drink; I recollect on one occasion, at lunch time, that Mr. Hall, for a very few seconds only, was acting a little mimicry, but it was only for a few seconds, and I never saw it but that once; I know nothing whatever about the "Suffolk Punch," the "Malakof," or the "Redan," and never heard anything of the like in the office; I have read the newspaper of the 29th July last, and I deny the statements therein made about certain performances and drunkenness having taken place in the office; it is usual to take beer at lunch time, all very nearly take it; there is no time allowed to go out for lunch; I recollect Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner quarrelling after 4 o'clock; Mr. Hall threatened to thrash Mr. Gardiner, as Gardiner had called him "a pot-house bully"; I have never seen bottles of brandy brought into the office, but I have seen a little brandy taken, and have taken it myself in sickness, but I never used it nor have I ever seen it used to excess; I never saw Mr. Hall take a bottle of brandy in a day, nor do I believe he could have done so; I never saw him incapable of doing his duty in the office, or at any other time.

EDWIN H. FEARNSIDE.

William Mackay states:—I have been in the drawing office about three years; I have read the newspaper of 29th July, where certain charges are made against Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait; I have never seen Mr. Hall nor Mr. Micklethwait nor any other person under the influence of drink in the office; I know nothing whatever of the "Suffolk Punch," the "Scissors Grinder," the "Malakof" or the "Redan," and never heard anything about those matters until after they appeared in the newspapers; I never saw Mr. Hall neglecting his duty to carry on the performance stated, nor have I ever seen him empty a bottle of brandy in a day, nor do I believe any person has done so in the office; had it been so I must have seen it; I never saw fighting in the office, but I once heard quarrelling between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering; I interfered and prevented, but Mr. Gardiner quarrelled with me afterwards for interfering in the matter, saying that Mr. Hall was quite right; I never saw Mr. Micklethwait the worse for liquor; I have seen him take beer at lunch, but not at any other time; I have seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Gardiner taking beer together at lunch time; indeed it is usual for most of the officers to take beer for lunch; I have taken it as well as others; I can state positively that I have never seen Mr. Micklethwait acting in any way unbecoming a gentleman; he has always been sober and steady when I have seen him.

WILLIAM MACKAY.

Hyacinthe Telmon states:—I have been in the drawing office about three years; I have never during that time seen any one in the room intoxicated or under the influence of drink; I have never seen drink taken to excess; I have seen people taking drink with lunch, but I never saw a bottle of brandy brought in; if Mr. Hall or Mr. Micklethwait had taken a bottle of brandy I should have seen it; I never saw or heard anything of drunkenness amongst the officers; I never saw Mr. Hall wasting his time giving performances in mimicry; I have seen him sometimes at lunch making people laugh only for a few minutes.

HYACINTHE TELMON.

William Henry Quodling states:—I am clerk in the Engineer-in-Chief's Office; I have been in the department nearly six years; I am necessarily continually backwards and forwards amongst the engineers and draftsmen; I have never upon any one occasion seen drinking or drunkenness in the department, except that I have seen beer taken at lunch time; if any person had been in the habit of getting drunk, or drinking a bottle of brandy in a day, I think I should have either seen it or I should have heard of it; I have never heard anything about such matters; I had never heard anything about performances during office hours, until they appeared in the newspapers; I mean the "Suffolk Punch," the "Malakof," the "Redan," &c.

W. H. QUODLING.

William Mason states:—I am principal assistant engineer in this department; I have been in the office about seven years; I have never on any occasion seen drinking or drunkenness in the office during that period; I am necessarily backwards and forwards amongst the officers, and if such cases as are alluded to in the newspaper of 29th July had taken place I should either have seen or heard of them. I may also add, with respect to Mr. Micklethwait, that I have known him for the last twenty years; and although I have during that time met him frequently, and on occasions when he had the opportunity of indulging in drinking to excess, yet I can most conscientiously say that I have never once seen him intoxicated.

WILLIAM MASON.

John Williams Deering states:—I was formerly a draftsman in the Railway Branch for about three months; I have seen the statements made in the newspapers of 29th July, relative to drinking and fighting and certain performances in the drawing office, and I most positively state that, so far as relates to the time I was in the office, the whole is without foundation and not true; I worked next to Mr. Hall, and I never saw him wasting his time, or drinking except at lunch time; no time was allowed allowed to go out for lunch; I recollect an instance occurring when some few words took place between myself and Mr. Hall, but the circumstance was so trivial that I thought no more about it; it was not fighting at any rate; I have been in many offices in the Government service for the last ten years, but I have not been in one so strictly kept as the Railway Office; I have not spoken to Mr. Hall for nearly three years, and I came voluntarily to make this statement.

JOHN WILLIAMS DEERING.

Thomas Collins states:—I am principal messenger in the Railway Office; I have never been asked to get bottles of brandy or beer by the gentlemen in the drawing office, nor have I ever got any; I never saw or heard of bottles of brandy being sent for; if it had been so I must have known it, as Fitzgerald is accountable to me when he leaves the office; I know he gets beer for lunch, but I never heard of his getting a bottle of brandy at lunch-time; it is possible that a bottle may have been sent for without my knowledge, but it could not be the practice; I have never seen any officer under the influence of drink.

THOS. COLLINS.

Thomas Fitzgerald states:—I have been in the Railway Office as messenger for more than three years; I have read the newspaper of the 29th July; the statements made about drunkenness I know nothing of, nor have I seen any of the performances; I have never seen any officer under the influence of drink in office hours; I have been in the habit of getting the beer required for lunch by the gentlemen, but it has always been at lunch-time; I have never been asked to get it only at lunch-time; very nearly all the gentlemen get a glass of beer or spirits, but not often spirits; I have got brandy for Mr. Hall, Mr. Micklethwait, and Mr. Trengrouse, but only a glass at a time, and that was for lunch; I recollect on one occasion being sent for a bottle of brandy by Mr. Hall—it was on the Saturday, at the latter end of December, last year; Mr. Hall told me he wanted it to take home; it was just before he was going to leave the office; I did not see any one taking any portion of it. Mr. Micklethwait also on one occasion (but I forget when it was) asked me to get him a bottle of brandy, as he was going by the boat to Newcastle; I got it for him and he went to the boat; I never got any other bottles of brandy, and if any person has said so it is not true; I have never seen any one else fetching beer or spirits to the office; I have often ordered wine and brandy and ale for the gentlemen, to go to their homes; I have taken orders for Mr. Trengrouse, Mr. Hall, and Mr. Micklethwait; I never carried an order for a single bottle, and I paid for each bottle; I have mentioned I never paid but for two; if anybody has said I carried orders for bottles of brandy instead of money it is not true; I never carried bottles of beer except for lunch.

THOS. FITZGERALD.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 26 August, 1863.

Sir,

I have read the evidence taken in the inquiry by the Engineer-in-Chief, into certain alleged disorders in the Railway Branch of this Department, and I am amazed to find that practices therein described could have existed so long without the attention of the Minister being called to them.

I shall bring the matter at once under the notice of the Executive Council, and meanwhile direct that Messrs. Robertson, Trengrouse, and Doherty, be suspended from further duty.

I remain, &c.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Prepare minute for Executive Council—then forward to Mr. Whitton.—J.R.—26/8/63.

Seen.—J.W.

Minute for Executive Council, 29/8/63.

No. 1.

Examined by Mr. Arnold:—

4 September, 1863.

Henry T. Harris:—The statement in my letter refers to what took place at Cabramatta; I was doing the plumbing and painter's work; Mr. Hall used to come to inspect the work occasionally; Mr. Parkinson was generally there to represent the contractor; this is the only job I allude to; it was always expected, when Mr. Hall visited the work, that a bottle of grog should be there; I mean when Mr. Hall was expected a bottle of grog was always got ready—sometimes brandy, sometimes rum; it was sometimes there and sometimes sent for; generally paid by Parkinson; the spirits were drunk while the inspection was going on; it was not confined to meal time; it was drunk principally by Hall, Parkinson, and myself; there was more drunk than I think was right for a business man; while engaged in inspection I would not like to say whether Mr. Hall was sober, but a bottle of spirits was drunk, of which Mr. Hall and Mr. Parkinson took the largest part; Parkinson sent for the drink to a public-house generally; I can't say that Mr. Hall ever asked spirits to be sent for; when Mr. Parkinson was not there, Mr. Hall has gone to the box where the spirits were kept, to look for refreshment; I have seen Mr. Hall on these occasions take spirits from the box, and I have done so too; I don't mean to insinuate that Mr. Hall favoured the contractors in consequence, at least I know he never favoured me.

Examined by Mr. Hall:—

I was not there at the commencement of the building, but about five weeks in all, from the commencement of my work; at the final measurement of the work I think I was present, but left early in the day; I did not walk from Cabramatta to Liverpool after the measurement was over; I know that on every occasion on which Mr. Hall was present there was a bottle of spirits, during the time I was there; you visited the building three or four times while I was there; I do not know that Mr. Hall favoured the contractors, but people don't generally treat others without expecting something in return.

HY. T. HARRIS.

5 Sept., 1863.

Martin Gardiner will send his evidence in writing in the beginning of the week.

Thomas Parkinson:—I was partner of the contractor for the work at Cabramatta, and was present all the time it was going on; Mr. Hall inspected the work; I am not aware that it was the practice to provide spirits for Mr. Hall on those occasions; spirits were used by myself, Harris had his share; Mr. Hall took lunch with us, and drank spirits with us; I never saw him drunk in my life; he did not drink to excess; he was never unfit for his work; he did not drink more than myself; this drink was never sent for for Mr. Hall—it was provided for myself; he never induced or expected us to provide spirits for him; the drink certainly never was provided for him; I don't think he partook of spirits on every occasion he was there—I feel certain he did not; there were other workmen at the building, bricklayers and labourers; Mr. Bryant, the contractor, is since dead; I have been foreman under Peto & Co. when Mr. Hall has inspected; I have never seen Mr. Hall unfit for his duties, or in such a state as to excite observation.

Examined by Mr. Hall:—

I don't believe it was customary to provide a bottle of spirits for you when you came to inspect works; I never saw it.

We usually had a supply of spirits at Cabramatta; when Mr. Hall arrived it was not usual for him to take a glass of spirits; the drinking was confined to meal times; I never saw him drink spirits before he commenced work.

THOMAS PARKINSON.

Evidence

Evidence given by Martin Gardiner, in an inquiry into the conduct of Officers of the Railway Department.

(Evidence concerning Mr. Hall.)

1. He brought in small bottles of brandy to the office, in his pockets.
2. He sometimes brought in rum in the same manner, and at other times he brought in a mixture of brandy and laudanum.
3. And besides the small bottles just mentioned, he brought in, on an average, about two or three full bottles of pale or dark brandy each week, from the time that Mr. Trengrouse (senior) was removed from the wooden house into the large house, until the removal of the department to the new offices now occupied; these large bottles he brought in papered, as if they were other kinds of packages than bottles.
4. He sent the messenger regularly for beer, and sometimes for dark brandy or rum.
5. Strangers (on two or three occasions) brought him in bottles with a seal on top and labelled with Martel's brandy labels.
6. The large bottle of brandy he planted in a box in the small room attached to the end of the drawing room; and, after drawing the cork (I never yet knew him to be without a corkscrew) and taking a full half-tumbler of it, he covered it over with old rolls of drawings and other papers.
7. He kept the small bottles on a shelf in the same room; they were marked "Mixture. Three teaspoonfuls to be taken daily." But I saw him often drink the entire contents of one of them daily, from between 10 and 12 o'clock.
8. He usually commenced to drink his brandy immediately after entering the office, at about a quarter after 9 o'clock; and he commenced his daily antics and gambols at about 10 or half-past.
9. When he planted a bottle of brandy beside him on the table, he usually covered it over with a roll of drawing of one of the stations, and in such a position it was known by the name of the "Malakof," and the square gin bottle, in which he kept his beer, was known as the "Redan."
10. I remember, on one occasion (during the time he was in the small room, looking after the servant girls) I took the "Malakof" out of the roll, and placed it behind one of the drawing-boards. He walked up, as usual, to "storm the garrison," and not finding the bottle, he became furious, and commenced searching round the room; and when he approached to where Mr. Telmon was working, and asked about the bottle, Mr. Telmon snuffed up his nose, and observed that he smelled something like a brandy cask.
11. He always advocated drink, and advised me to leave off cold water, and join him in "keeping spirits up by pouring spirits down." He termed his drinking, "imbibing from the fount of inspiration, and leading a rigorously spiritual life." And, under the influence of drink, he assumed the following various dramatic and comic characters:—"Richard the Third," "Shylock," "Out, damned spot," (not Macbeth's spot), "The Scissors Grinder," "The Suffolk Punch," "Any oder man," "The Tap-room Toper," "The walking Boss." And he sometimes sang, "The rubics that garnished his nose, jolly nose!" at the same time that he rolled his eyes and twisted his nose like indiarubber.
12. He was also fond of conjuring during office hours, particularly with the smooth round top of his walking-cane. He took the top of his cane in his hand, and acted so as to make it appear that he had a hold of something which he could shew out at his breast, or out under his shirt-collar.
13. His language was often of a very low description, particularly in his impersonation of the "Tap-room Toper"; it consisted of—"You're a liar; you're another; you're a damn infernal liar; you're a damn infernal b——r," &c. And, in boasting of his great ability as a comic actor, he was accustomed to say, "it came out of him spontaneously, like a cow s——g."
14. He termed Mr. Whitton "John," or "The Big Potato"; and when, after seeing Mr. Whitton, he called it, "wiping John," or "sucking John." I remember one occasion, when I advised him to go up stairs, and give "John" a blowing-up (for breaking through the private compact he told me they made, so as to be able to crush unruly contractors), he came back pale and angry, and said he would never "wipe up John again." I requested to know what had happened, and he said, "I have wiped up John's —— with a broken bottle, and cut him so severely that he will never let me at it again"; and then he added, that "no doubt he took that as the unkindest cut of Hall." And in respect to this affair I may remark that, if Mr. Whitton saw Mr. Hall on that occasion, then Mr. Whitton saw Mr. Hall well intoxicated, no matter what he says to the contrary.
15. He and his office companion in drink (Mr. Fearnside) were many times compelled to shut themselves in the small room at the end of the office, when so unsteady as to be unfit for work; and whenever I entered and saw them lying on the boxes in a bloated state, Mr. Hall told me that the tableau vivant before me was "The grand histrionic act called sitting Marius on the ruins of Carthage."
16. I often caught Mr. Hall standing on the boxes in the small room, endeavouring to draw the attention of the servant girls of an adjoining house.
17. I saw Mr. Hall and contractors go into the small room, where Mr. Hall kept his brandy planted, and I heard clinking of a bottle and glasses, and have no doubt they drank together inside.
18. Mr. Hall, at various times (when under the influence of brandy), knocked himself against me as if he wished to have me fight him in the office; and on one occasion (which I officially reported to Mr. Whitton, but got no redress) he threatened to strike me, and wanted to have a pugilistic set-to in the office, because I advised Mr. Doherty not to take any notice of his immoral language, which he evidently brought from the tap-rooms.
19. I have already adverted (in the Empire) to a fight which occurred in the office about three years ago; but I will now give the history of the cause of that act:—When Mr. Deering entered the Railway Department, he found before him a draughtsman of the name of Braddock, who came from Adelaide. Mr. Deering informed a party in Adelaide of Mr. Braddock's presence in the department, and took steps to compel Braddock to pay some money he owed in Adelaide; Mr. Deering told Mr. Hall what he had done, and Mr. Hall informed Mr. Braddock, and then Mr. Braddock upbraided Mr. Deering with letting the matter transpire; Mr. Deering said that he knew the person who gave the information to Mr. Braddock, and that he was no gentleman to break trust, as it was told him in confidence; Mr. Hall asked did Mr. Deering refer to him; Mr. Deering said he did, and that he (Mr. Hall) was no gentleman; Mr. Hall then, without giving notice, attacked Mr. Deering; they fought three rounds, and were separated; and, although Mr. Deering may think he was a match for Mr. Hall, I am still of opinion that he came off second best in that encounter.
20. Mr. Hall told me, about a year ago, that Mr. Whitton heard of how he "polished off" Mr. Deering, and that he told him he would be doing right to "clear the whole pack out of the long room"—meaning all the draftsmen who were not brought from England by Mr. Whitton.
21. Mr. Hall informed me, some ten or twelve months ago, that Mr. Trengrouse complained to Mr. Whitton about the disorderly state of the department, but that "honest John" would take no notice of the complaints; he also told me that Mr. Whitton was as heavy a drinker as himself, and a great man for singing at small tea parties.
22. I will also remark that it was only after the removal of Mr. Trengrouse (senior) from the wooden house into the large house, that drinking and buffoonery became the predominating characteristic of the wooden house, in which all the scenes complained of took place; the day on which Mr. Trengrouse was removed, Mr. Hall squared up and down the room, crowing like a cock, and saying that he had got rid of him at last; indeed, previous to this period, there was not either acting or drinking to one-fourth the extent that took place afterwards.
23. Mr. Hall often assured me that Mr. Whitton told him (and that Mr. Barton also told him) that he (Mr. Whitton) recommended Trengrouse's dismissal on account of his complaints about himself (Hall) and Micklethwait, and that "he (Mr. Whitton) would insist on the dismissal of both the old and young fellow (Trengrouses) on the first opportunity."

(Evidence

(Evidence concerning Mr. Micklethwait.)

1. Mr. Micklethwait brought in brandy and rum to the office.
2. He drank to excess daily in the office, and sometimes he came to the office in the morning very much under the stupefying influence of liquor.
3. He drank, from the brandy planted in the small room, turn about with Mr. Hall, and sometimes they drank together in the room, and poured cold water over each other's heads in order to keep down the effects of their potations.
4. He was often thoroughly intoxicated in the office, and unable to express his ideas in an intelligible manner; he often fell asleep over the work before him, which he was too drunk to perform; he was often compelled to stagger away from the office before the usual hour to quit work.
5. He went on some occasions to the water-tap, and let the water pour over the back of his head, before going to see Mr. Whitton; he was generally advised by Mr. Hall.
6. He told me he was a schoolfellow of Mr. Whitton's, and that Mr. Whitton was beginning to forget old times, and to grow aristocratic; and he advised me (in December, 1862) to insert advertisements in the papers, calling on candidates to send in testimonials to Mr. Whitton as applicants for the positions of assistant engineers, and stating that carpenters would be preferred; he was drunk at the time.
7. On the morning following the acts mentioned in 6, he wrote out a form for an advertisement, calling on persons to apply to Mr. Whitton for the positions of civil engineers, and stating that carpenters would be preferred, and another stating that none but carpenters need apply; Mr. Hall handed the forms to me, and requested that I would make any improvement I thought desirable, as they (Hall and Micklethwait) were about having one of them inserted in the papers; I refused to make any change. In speaking afterwards to Mr. Robertson of this matter, he informed me that he saw Mr. Micklethwait shew a similar advertisement to Mr. Drewett, and that Mr. Drewett advised him not to insert it in the papers.
8. The smell of the beer and brandy grew so strong, during Mr. Micklethwait's stay in the office, that he himself introduced the practice of sprinkling chloride of lime over the room.
9. While under the influence of drink, he walked up to where I was at work and threatened to assault me; and, as I made this the subject of an official report to Mr. Whitton (on the 5th of January), I think it right to relate the circumstances under which it occurred:—Some few days before the occurrence, I heard Mr. Hall make the following observation in the office: "I wonder how a married man like Mr. Hall, who has a family of grown-up daughters, can use such disgraceful language about women." Immediately after Mr. Hall made the remark, Mr. Mackay came over to me and said that Micklethwait was as mean a fellow as Hall himself, for that he told Hall the very words which he (Mackay) was after telling him in confidence when at tea with Mrs. Micklethwait on the evening of one of the preceding days. I asked him why he told anything to Micklethwait but what he was prepared to tell every one. He said he "pumped" it out of him, but that he was not so soft as to let him "pump" what he invited him to tea for, viz., the loan of some money. I then advised him to take care of whatever little pence he had got, and not to allow himself to be "pumped" by Micklethwait again. In a few moments after this, Mr. Micklethwait entered the office, and leant on the table with Mackay in a confidential manner, and during the conversation which ensued between them. Mackay looked down to where I was sitting, and made the sign of "pumping" with his hand behind his back. He was observed, and, as the sign was known, some merriment ensued. The next day after this happened Mr. Micklethwait threatened to assault me (at between 3 and 4 o'clock), after coming out of the small room from Mr. Hall; and I may remark that when I demanded of him what it was that caused him to act in such a manner, he went direct to Mackay and Fearnside to inquire of them what I said of him, and they told him that I said nothing about him. They (Mackay and Fearnside) told me afterwards that it was some contractor or other who told Mr. Micklethwait that I was laughing at him during the time he was speaking to Mackay. It was at Mackay's "pumping" I was laughing, as I felt confident Micklethwait could pump him, in spite of his resolve to "keep his sucker dry in future."

(Evidence concerning Mr. Fearnside.)

1. Mr. Fearnside brought in brandy to the office.
2. He also sent for beer by the messenger.
3. He was Mr. Hall's constant companion in "storming the garrison," from 10 to 4 o'clock every day they were together in the office.
4. He was very often half stupefied from beer and brandy during office hours, and when too unsteady for work, he went into the small room and poured water over his head, and then sat down on the boxes in the manner that Mr. Hall styled "Marius on the ruins of Carthage."
5. He also, in his jolly condition from drink, made a practice of standing on the boxes with Mr. Hall, and endeavouring to draw the attention of the servant girls of an adjacent house. On such occasions the anticipations and observations made by himself and Mr. Hall were as disgraceful as ridiculous, and such as no sober man, particularly married men, should make.

(Evidence concerning Mr. Barton.)

1. I often remarked him what I consider very jolly from strong drink, and leaving the office before the usual time.
2. I saw him at a window of the large house, with a glass to his mouth hob-nobbling down to Mr. Hall, who stood with a glass of brandy (nearly half a tumblerful) in his hand before a window of the long wooden house or office. This was on the 5th of January, just three days after I sent in the letter to Mr. Whitton complaining of the conduct and drinking in the office.
3. I never saw Mr. Barton in the wooden house but twice, from the 1st of August, 1862, to the end of the year 1862, and whether he had any charge of the office is unknown to me.

(Evidence concerning Mr. Drewett.)

1. I saw him what I consider heady six or eight times.
2. I called Mr. Robertson's attention to Mr. Drewett's appearance, on one occasion when I considered him rather stupid from drink, and I observed that he stank strongly of drink.
3. I saw him drinking beer about four or five times during the month of June.

(Evidence concerning Mr. Telmon and Mr. Robertson.)

I never saw Mr. Telmon or Mr. Robertson taste any spirituous drinks.

(Evidence concerning Mr. Mackay.)

1. He drank a little beer at his lunch-time, sometimes a little wine, and sometimes brandy and water.
2. He did not drink one-tenth part the amount which either Hall, Micklethwait or Fearnside drank, but what he did take had the immediate effect of giving him head-ache, and of rendering him unable to do much work in the afternoon.
3. He had sometimes to absent himself from the office, in consequence of the injurious effects brandy had on his constitution.
4. I do not think, as far as I could judge, he drank as much as would injure a strong man or any person having a strong constitution.
5. He often accepted drink from Mr. Hall.

MARTIN GARDINER,

P.S.

P.S.—I have promised to the Hon. the Minister for Works to attend at the office on any day which may be named, in order to answer any questions relating to my evidence; and I will expect (as consented to by him) to be furnished with a full account of what other persons may have said concerning me, so that I also may have questions answered and remarks recorded before the closing of the inquiry.

MARTIN GARDINER,
September 8th, 1863.

Submitted, 9/9/63.—J.H.

W. A. Trengrouse:—I have been eight years in the Railway Office; I have seen spirits brought into the office nearly every day since Mr. Hall's appointment, commencing about 11; sometimes brought by Fitzgerald, sometimes by the boy Garvan; I have seen it brought in bottles and in Mr. Barton's flask, for Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; my father and Mr. Mackay have occasionally had it; I have seen spirits drunk before lunch-time by Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait only; Fitzgerald's evidence is not true in regard to the quantity of spirits brought into the office; he has brought in spirits before lunch; I have often seen Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait in a state unfit for the performance of their duties, and obliged to go into the small room to bathe their heads with cold water; the drinking in the office was habitually excessive on the part of Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait only; I never made any complaint of this; I spoke to Mr. Whitton once or twice about Mr. Hall's conduct in the office, but not about the irregularities referred to in the Assembly; it referred to his improper interference with tracing paper entrusted to me, and jeering me on some occasions; I have seen Mr. Hall fill a small bottle from a larger one of brandy which had previously been sent for by Mr. Micklethwait; I have frequently seen bottles of brandy brought in by Fitzgerald—often one bottle a day—three days in succession; frequently for Mr. Hall only, when Mr. Micklethwait was absent; Fitzgerald's statement to the contrary is entirely untrue; Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside have both seen and spoken of this; Garvan would also know, as he has himself brought bottles of brandy; on one occasion Mr. Mackay sent for a bottle of brandy, borrowing the money from Mr. Hall, some time last year; on the following day, Mr. Mackay being absent ill, Mr. Hall went to his drawer and drank the whole of the brandy, which Mr. Mackay observed on the following day; Mr. Mann and I informed him that we had seen Mr. Hall drink it; towards the end of the month Mr. Hall was in the habit of collecting money from the clerks in the long room for a bottle of brandy, putting the cash in his pocket, and sending an order for the brandy; it was sent to McCorkell, George-street; this was continued up to the time of our removal from the last offices, as a constant practice; I have seen the "Scissors Grinder" performed repeatedly by Mr. Hall, generally after lunch, and during office hours; I have seen him on the table spouting Shakespeare, interfering with the business of the office; this was seen by all in the office; I have seen Mr. Croshaw pay Mr. Hall 2s. 6d. for one bottle of ale and one of porter, which were sent for, and, I think, brought by Fitzgerald; in the mean time Mr. Croshaw left the office, and when he returned he found both bottles had been emptied by Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; there were a great many contractors present, also Mr. Mackay, Mr. Fearnside, Mr. Telmon, and myself; Mr. Hall was in the habit of drinking a pint or a bottle of ale for lunch, and afterwards drinking brandy off and on all afternoon, generally about half a tumbler at a time; I have seen him walking about the office for a week at a time doing nothing; when asked by Mr. Micklethwait or Mr. Fearnside why he did not wait on Mr. Whitton for instructions, he replied that it was Mr. Whitton's duty to wait on him.

By Mr. Trengrouse:—Mr. Croshaw was asked by Mr. Hall to give the money for the beer; during Mr. Hall's absence from the office no brandy was sent for, except a glass for father or Mr. Fearnside, or Mr. Mackay; I don't remember the names of any of the contractors except Mr. Croshaw, but a great many were present.

WILLIAM A. TRENNGROUSE.

5 September, 1863.

Mr. Doherty, in explanation of his evidence taken before Mr. Whitton:—Since my evidence I have learned what "Suffolk Punch" means, and I dare say that I have seen Mr. Hall performing this feat repeatedly during office hours, both during and after lunch time; it was calculated to disturb the business of the office, and did so; it was nearly of daily occurrence, with other theatrical actions; this took place in the long room, where Mr. Trengrouse, junr., Mr. Mackay, Mr. Fearnside, Mr. Telmon, Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Trengrouse, senr., and myself, were engaged; Mr. Trengrouse, senr., was afterwards removed up-stairs; I have seen Mr. Mackay and Mr. Fearnside unfit for duty from drink; I never saw an office worse conducted; I have known the room smell so strongly of spirits that Mr. Micklethwait has used chloride of lime to purify it; the spirits and beer brought into the office I believe were brought by the messenger Fitzgerald.

JOHN DOHERTY.

Fitzgerald:—I never said that I was absolutely ashamed and afraid of bringing such quantities of spirits into the office, and that I would cease doing so whether it offended Mr. Hall or not; at lunch time I never brought more spirits than a single glass for one gentleman, but I have brought a bottle of dry sherry for Mr. Barton occasionally, and a bottle of port and sherry for Mr. Trengrouse, senr., who said it was for his son to take home; Mr. Trengrouse has been in the habit, for two or three months past, of asking me if I heard any one saying anything about him I would let him know; I said I would not; I used to bring the spirit at lunch time in a flask or ginger beer bottle—the former for Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait, the latter for Mr. Trengrouse; I brought it mostly for the former two, but never more than a glass at a time for each; I never went more than once a day; I know the quantity in the flask, from the money I paid for it; when the draught beer was bad I have been sent occasionally for bottled beer by Mr. Hall, Mr. Trengrouse, and Mr. Micklethwait—never more than a bottle between two in a day; I never went out for spirits or beer except for lunch, with the exceptions I have named in my former evidence; Mr. Trengrouse was the first to complain if his beer and luncheon were not ready, which consisted usually of a pint of ale and some biscuits or pies; I should not know the flask in which the spirits were brought.

T. FITZGERALD.

No one ever talked to me of giving evidence, or said to me that my situation depended on the evidence I should give.

T. F.

14 September, 1863.

Alexander Graham:—I have been a contractor for the station-house at Burwood, and part of the goods warehouse at Penrith; I have met Mr. Hall frequently inspecting these works; he was in the habit of drinking—on two occasions, I think, to excess, once at Burwood and once on the Sydney platform, after coming from Penrith; there was a public-house near Burwood where he went frequently to drink; I do not think he was incapacitated for the performance of his duty; he was not stupid; I was with him part of the time; he took six or eight glasses of rum and brandy; he is of a strong constitution and can stand a good deal; he is a most domineering man over the work, and did me out of about £20 or £30; I sued the Government in the District Court, but was non-suited; we both had drink together at Burwood, and Mr. Hall I think paid the greater share; instead of paying 90 per cent. he paid me only 50 per cent. on the work; on the Sydney platform he was thoroughly drunk; I was speaking speaking of the building at Penrith; he walked unsteady, and was evidently intoxicated; this was after office hours, about 7 o'clock; he was not so drunk as to be noticeable by the public unless he was spoken to.

Mr. Trengrouse:—I led Mr. Hall to expect that I would give him £5 at the completion of the work; he asked me for this, and I should have given it to him if he had measured it fair; this £5 was intended by the specification to be deducted for iron-work supplied, but only a portion of the iron-work was found, and no deduction was made; I believe the portion found was supplied by Mr. Hall, and if so he was a loser to that extent; he assigned as a reason for retaining the balance of the £5, that he was allowed no travelling expenses, and I believe that he intended to keep the balance for his own use; this is the only instance of anything like dishonesty that I know about Mr. Hall.

ALEXANDER GRAHAM.

—
Picton, 26 August, 1863.

Sir,

In reply to your letter asking me if I ever sent out for brandy or other intoxicating drink for Mr. Hall from the drawing office, I have the honor to state that I never was solicited nor did I ever send out for drink of any kind for Mr. Hall or any other officer of the department.

I have, &c.,
AMB. CROSHAW.

To the Commissioner of Railways.

—
1 September, 1863.

Sir,

I have the honor to lay before you certain facts relative to the investigation now pending and my suspense consequent thereon. In the first place I beg to state that, not receiving a reply to my letter of the 26th instant, I was introduced to Mr. Charles Cowper, by Mr. Thomas Holt, and informed him of my case; by his direction I now address you. Mr. Cowper instructed me to write you the substance of my conversation with him, and I trust that a simple statement will remove the ill impression that now exists against me.

I stated to Mr. Cowper that I was not aware of any charge brought against me, and could only surmise that my offence consists in not reporting the irregularity in the office; but in reply to Mr. Whitton's question as to why I had not done so, I answered, because upon my reporting certain insubordination some two and a half years since, Mr. Whitton censured me and intimated that I had better attend to my own business; I therefore considered that I should be wrong to make a second report.

I submit that it would have been more just to me had I been allowed an opportunity of rebutting any charges, before my dismissal had been recommended to the Executive.

I remarked upon the very irregular way in which the evidence was taken, and stated that my son, who knew as much or more of the conduct of the officers in the drawing room than I did, was not requested to give evidence, but upon my calling Mr. Whitton's attention to this, he said that it would be unfair to Mr. Hall, as my son was no longer in the same department; yet one gentleman from the Lands Department, with whom Mr. Hall had fought in the office, was examined.

I further stated that it was well known and was a frequent subject of conversation in the office, not long since, that Mr. Micklethwait was suffering from two several attacks of delirium tremens, and that it was generally thought that he could not recover.

I mentioned that Mr. Hall had only lately returned to duty, after about ten weeks absence on sick leave, and that it was currently reported that his illness had been brought on by hard drinking.

I said that the evidence given by Messrs. Mackay and Fearnside had been elicited under the fear of dismissal, as they were well aware of the excessive drinking in the office. I was induced to mention this, as I understood that both had contradicted my statements.

I maintained that Mr. Whitton had been all along aware of the propensities of both Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait; this information I obtained from Mr. Micklethwait himself.

Having understood that the messenger who usually fetched the luncheons to the office had contradicted my evidence, I informed Mr. Cowper that, on several occasions, this young man had told me that he was absolutely ashamed and afraid of fetching such quantities of spirits, and that he would discontinue doing so whether he offended Mr. Hall or no.

I was charged by Mr. Whitton with taking notes; this I admitted, alluding to the journal which all draftsmen are directed to keep, and also to my own private journal or diary, which I have kept throughout my life, but have never used in any way against the Government.

I believe this is the whole substance of my conversation with Mr. Cowper, and if I have omitted anything it is unintentional.

I beg to enclose a letter received 29th ultimo, corroborating my statement relative to Mr. Hall's custom when visiting buildings in progress. I respectfully request your consideration of this statement, which I am ready to substantiate, and trust that I may obtain at your hands the justice which is now denied me.

I have, &c.,
N. TRENGROUSE.

To the Under Secretary for Public Works.

Submitted, 3/9/63.—J.R.

Acknowledge, and inform Mr. Trengrouse that I shall be ready to hear any evidence he may wish to adduce, referring to the charges which have been made against officers of the Railway Office, and appoint (to-morrow) Friday next, at 10 o'clock, for the purpose. Also write Mr. H. T. Harris, Frederick Terrace, Newtown, requesting his attendance at same time. Also inform Mr. Hall to same effect.

W. M. A.—3/9/63.

Mr. Rae has informed Mr. Hall, through Mr. Whitton.—3/9/63.

Mr. Trengrouse, Mr. Harris.—3/9/63.

—
Frederick Terrace, Newtown,
August 29, 1863.

Dear Sir,

In reply to your inquiry respecting Mr. Hall's drinking habits, I can only confirm what I have previously stated to you; that is, while Mr. Hall was inspecting the station work on which I have been engaged, it was always the custom to have a bottle of spirits, when he was expected on the building, for him; and if not there, I have known it sent for. This fact is known to more than myself. Rum was mostly fetched. I could state other not very credible things respecting Mr. H., but the above being the whole asked for by you, I refrain from saying more.

Mr. Trengrouse.

I remain, &c.,
HY. T. HARRIS.

*Ivey-street, Sheppard's Paddock,
3 September, 1863.*

Sir,

I refused to give evidence before Mr. Whitton and Mr. Moody, because I had no confidence in such a tribunal, particularly as I have charges to make against both one and the other; but I think it proper to inform you that I am willing to give evidence before yourself, or before any other disinterested gentleman who may be appointed to take evidence.

And as all the statements made in the House of Assembly by Mr. Dalgleish were supplied to him in writing by me, previous to the debate on the 28th of July, I feel bound to re-assert that each and every one of them is true, and to state that I am prepared to prefer formal accusations (including those made, on my authority, by Mr. Dalgleish) against the department, and the conduct of the officers of the department, provided I be permitted to conduct the inquiry into the worth of such accusations either before yourself or any personally disinterested tribunal you may be pleased to appoint.

I have, &c.,

MARTIN GARDINER.

To the Honorable W. M. Arnold,
Minister for Works.

Received, 4/9.

Mr. Gardiner saw the Minister on Saturday last, and agreed to send his evidence in writing.—
7/9/63.—J.R.

*St. Paul's, Sydney,
4 September, 1863.*

My dear Sir,

In the course of my parochial visiting this afternoon, I happened to call on Mr. Hall of your department. During our conversation, I heard that the charge had been brought against him, not only of general intoxication, but of having been so specially under the influence of liquor, as to have had in May and June last a severe illness directly consequent thereon. As I had visited Mr. Hall, in my capacity as clergyman of this district, at that very time, I at once felt how cruelly unjust was the charge. The result of this conviction has led me of my own accord, and quite unsolicited by Mr. Hall, to venture to address you on the subject. I wish to state that, having had opportunities of seeing Mr. Hall at the time, and having had conversation both with his wife and medical attendant during his illness, I am in a position to express my firm belief that the charge is entirely without foundation. As to Mr. Hall's general habits, I am not sufficiently intimate with him to be able to speak with the same confidence as I can with reference to the special charge. But this much I can say, that were he as addicted to intoxication as his accuser alleges, I must have heard of it. He is a neighbour, and during the illness of his son, some few months ago, I was frequently in and out of his house; and I could not well have avoided becoming acquainted with such habits, were they really in existence. I do not believe what has been said—I think it is a calumny resting on no foundation whatever.

I remain, &c.,

ALFRED H. STEPHEN,
Incumbent, St. Paul's, Sydney.

John Whitton, Esq.,
&c., &c.,

*174, Cumberland-street,
Sydney, 4 September, 1863.*

Sir,

Having heard on yesterday that you were about taking evidence on the inquiry now pending, I feel it my duty to request that you will permit me to be re-examined, so that I may state what I do know concerning the office.

I have already given evidence before Mr. Whitton; but some of my evidence was not recorded in a faithful manner, and statements were entirely omitted, and things were written down without my consent, so that I consider it only proper to request a fair hearing.

I have, &c.,

JOHN DOHERTY.

Honorable W. M. Arnold,
Minister for Works.

Received, 4/9. Examined on 5/9/63—J.R.

4 September, 1863.

Sir,

In reference to the enquiry which has taken place in the Railway Department, I beg to state that the evidence written down by Mr. Moody as my evidence does not contain the whole of my statements which I made upon that occasion. Also, not being aware of the general nature of the enquiry at that time, I have not given my evidence in full as such an enquiry demands. Believing that my suspension was the consequence of the omission of part of my statements, I trust that you will kindly give this your consideration, being anxious to have justice done to others as well as to myself.

I have, &c.,

LOUIS ROBERTSON.

To the Hon. W. Arnold,
Minister for Works.

Received, 4/9. Submitted—J.R.—7/9/63.

Mr. Robertson has sent a written statement, which is placed with the evidence taken before the Minister.—J.R.

8 September, 1863.

Sir,

In reference to my letter of the 4th instant, I forward the enclosed paper containing questions and statements omitted from my evidence, and also supplementary evidence, which was not asked for, but which I believe ought to have been given, owing to the general character of the enquiry.

I have, &c.,

LOUIS ROBERTSON.

To the Hon. W. M. Arnold,
Minister for Works.

Received, 9/9.

Questions and Statements omitted from my evidence given before Mr. Whitton, on the 19th August, 1863.

1. I was asked by Mr. Whitton if I wrote the letter which appeared in the Empire, with my name attached? I said that I did write it.
2. Mr. Whitton said it looked like a letter written by Mr. Gardiner and signed by me. I stated that it was written by me in answer to a letter from Mr. Gardiner; but I was not aware that my letter was intended to be published, until I was told it was in the Empire. Mr. Whitton then said it was nothing of the sort, but that it was written by me to help Mr. Gardiner to get up a charge of drunkenness.

3. Mr. Whitton then looked at my letter in the Empire, and said that he saw that I stated that Mr. Fearnside was not able to calculate the middle ordinate of a curve, and he asked me to shew him how I calculated the middle ordinate of a curve. I then wrote out the algebraic formula indicating the method of finding the ordinate, and handed it to Mr. Whitton.
4. Mr. Whitton asked me how long I had known that? I stated that I knew that a year ago, and that I understood geometry, algebra, and trigonometry.
5. Mr. Whitton then asked me to tell him on what occasion did Mr. Fearnside require the use of the middle ordinate? I stated that I saw him go to Mr. Gardiner to get it done. Mr. Whitton then said that Mr. Fearnside did not require to know anything about the middle ordinate, or the forty-seventh proposition of the first book of Euclid.
6. Mr. Whitton asked did I ever see Mr. Gardiner drinking? I said no.
7. Mr. Whitton asked did I ever see Mr. Gardiner drink a glass of water? I said that I did not.
8. I was asked by Mr. Whitton did I ever see any one drinking in the office? I said that I saw Mr. Barton.
9. I was asked by Mr. Whitton did I ever see Mr. Barton drunk? I said that I did not.
10. I was asked by Mr. Whitton if I ever saw anybody else drinking in the office? I stated that I saw Mr. Drewett.
11. I was asked what I saw Mr. Barton and Mr. Drewett drinking? I stated that I had seen them drinking wine and beer.
12. I was asked by Mr. Whitton did I ever drink anything myself? I stated that I was a teetotaller; but upon one occasion, being unwell, I drank a glass of wine in the office.
13. I was asked by Mr. Moody if I knew anything about "Suffolk Punch"? I stated that I did not, because my place was in Mr. Drewett's room, and not in the office where "Suffolk Punch" was said to be acted.
14. When I stated to Mr. Whitton that I saw Mr. Micklethwait under the influence of liquor, I also stated that upon that occasion I poured water over the back of his head, which latter statement was not recorded until I insisted on having it written down. I also stated that Mr. Micklethwait complained of going to sleep over his work, which was not put down in the written evidence.

LOUIS ROBERTSON.

Supplementary Evidence.

I have been working in the same room with Mr. Gardiner for the last six months that he was in the department, and during that time, and ever since he first came into the department, I never saw him behave in any manner insulting to either Mr. Mason, Mr. Barton, or Mr. Drewett; but this I know, that Mr. Drewett and others have always been very bitter against Mr. Gardiner.

There is a great enmity existing on the part of Mr. Hall and Mr. Drewett against Mr. Trengrouse, senr., and this has existed for a long time. I have repeatedly heard them speak of him as "the old fool," and upon one occasion as an "old cut-throat."

I remember the circumstance of the fight between Mr. Hall and Mr. Deering. I heard the noise occasioned by the scuffle, and heard it spoken of in the office by Mr. Drewett and others.

Shortly after Mr. Gardiner reported the disorderly conduct of Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait, I saw Mr. Barton lift his glass, with wine in it, above his head, and make gestures to Mr. Hall, in the drawing office in the yard, signifying that he was drinking to him.

LOUIS ROBERTSON.

8th Sept., 1863.

9 September, 1863.

Sir,

I respectfully submit the following evidence, in addition to that taken before Mr. Whitton, on the 19th ultimo.

Having stated in my report of the 1st instant that I was prepared to substantiate what I have therein stated, I beg to say, with reference to my charge of excessive drinking by Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait, that about four or five months since, knowing Mr. Micklethwait had been ill for some considerable time, I asked Mr. Drewett, when he was in my office, if he had heard recently how Micklethwait was? He replied, "A little better, but considering the way he (Micklethwait) had carried on of late, it was a wonder he had not long since been dead." I said, "You refer to his excessive drinking?" He replied, "Yes." He then said, there was another in the department who would soon be as bad as Micklethwait was if he did not leave off drinking.

About the same time I asked Mr. Barton if he had heard of Micklethwait lately? He replied, "Yes—was getting better, but at times was very strangely seized, viz.—after being out in the field about an hour, he became perfectly blind; was in that state placed upon his horse by the men, and taken home."

Mr. Micklethwait has himself told me of Mr. Whitton's knowledge of his drinking more than once; he has stated to me that the Chief has had more angry words with him on this account than anything else, and that at times he (Mr. Whitton) did not speak to him for two or three weeks together. I asked him if Mr. Whitton was also aware of Mr. Hall's drinking propensities. His reply was, "Did I think the governor was such a fool as not to know this; and also that little matter which took place at Penrith?"

During Mr. Hall's last illness Mr. Mackay was sent up to his house more than once; on his return he has spoken to me of his interview, viz.—"That on entering Mr. Hall's room, he (Mr. H.) "put on his well-known hypocritical long face, but after a minute or so his assumed sickness was "forgotten, and he was as well as ever." Mr. Mackay's opinion was that nothing whatever was the matter with Mr. Hall, beyond what would be produced by his usual hard drinking bouts.

I have recently been informed that Mr. Hall's dismissal was not recommended, and that the charge brought against me on which my dismissal was recommended, was, for having a knowledge of the insubordination under investigation and not disclosing the same. I again assert I have made it known to Mr. Whitton about two and a half years since. I also stated this when my evidence was being taken down before Mr. Whitton, but this portion was omitted by him.

I also complained to Mr. Whitton of the large amount of time uselessly bestowed upon the drawings, more particularly those for the stations and goods warehouses, and that I believed there was scarcely a drawing made that did not needlessly cost the Government nearly one-fifth of the value of the building. Mr. Whitton's reply was, "That was a matter of opinion."

I have known Mr. Hall to remain idle a whole week, waiting for Mr. Whitton's approval of station drawings. On my asking him why he did not try and see Mr. Whitton, his reply was, that it was no business of his to run after Mr. Whitton, but it was his (Mr. W.'s) duty to come and see what was going on in the office, and give any one an opportunity of asking any questions.

I have been informed, both in and out of our office, that considerable time has been bestowed in looking for a circular said to be in existence, respecting the withholding from the head of the department any knowledge of insubordination. If such a circular is still in force, why is not every officer, on being taken into the public service, made acquainted with its contents? I have never been informed of such rules. I have also been told that this instrument has been brought to bear against my evidence, and has condemned me. But if so, is such a document intended to condemn me and shield others on the same charge? Why was the knowledge of this insubordination withheld from the Minister for Works? He should have been made acquainted with the fact, say two and a half years since, since, or even before that period; or why was action not taken in the matter when Mr. Gardiner complained by minute to Mr. Whitton, as far back as January last? All the insubordination was known to Messrs. Barton and Drewett. Why should it not devolve on them to speak of the great irregularities which have taken place? I am obliged to speak thus now in self-defence.

I must further remark that I may unavoidably have displeased some in our office, by pointing out errors I have discovered in the plans at various times. Of these I was compelled to speak, as they affected my own work. Minutes respecting some of these discrepancies which passed between Mr. Whitton and myself are now in the office. Before I close, in justice to myself, I must add that I think there can be but very few in the public service who have had to contend with such treatment as I have received, though faithfully performing my duties. It is now seven years since my salary was increased, although at present low.

About two years since I asked for three weeks' leave of absence, the first I have ever solicited, although having then been in the service nearly seven years. After several minutes had passed between Mr. Whitton and myself, he recommended that it should not be allowed; but Mr. Arnold, seeing my request was anything but unreasonable, sanctioned my application. For this, I have been informed, Mr. Whitton recommended my dismissal.

Not long since my free pass on the railway was taken from me, although this free pass formed part of my salary, which minutes in the office will prove. I was at home ill two days in June last; this time was deducted from my salary. Sickness often occurs with other officers, but I very much question if their pay is stopped. About the middle of July last, during the very cold weather, from which I suffered severely, I obtained permission from Mr. Whitton to have an old stove put up in my office. The following day I found it was lighted; and wishing to be secure against accident by fire occurring in any part of the building, which is of wood, I wrote to Mr. Whitton, suggesting—"Would it not be advisable to inform the Insurance Company of our having the stove put up, to guard against risk?" The next day no fire was lighted, and, upon inquiry, I was informed by the messenger that Mr. Whitton had given instructions not to light it again, so that I had to submit to further severity from the cold. Had I not drawn attention to the risk, and the place been burned down, who would then have been blamed? Many other facts I could relate shewing the treatment I have had to contend with.

I will now close by saying that I do think my integrity and business habits worthy of some consideration. My first appointment I held for a period of nineteen (19) years, at an engineering establishment in Bristol, and have been connected with both the Great Western and Exeter lines: I remained with this firm until their dissolution. I have been engaged at Liverpool, under Captain Morgan, R.N., making drawings and assisting in converting three American mail steamers into war steamers, viz., the "Britannia," "Cora," and "Acacia." I have been in this Colony ten years last April; I have held my present appointment nearly nine years; and my son, who was also in the Railway Department (but now in the Lands Office) for a period of eight and a quarter years.

I have not heard the evidence given in by other officers respecting this inquiry, thereby losing the chance of rebutting any charges that may have been made against me.

I respectfully request that the evidence of Mr. Alexander Graham, builder, of 30, Glebe-street, Glebe, who has expressed a wish to make a few statements, may be taken.

N. TRENGROUSE.

To the Honorable the Minister for Works.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 18 September, 1863.

Ask Mr. Hall if he wishes to examine Mr. Graham on his evidence of 14th instant, which Mr. Hall has perused, or whether he has any statement to make in explanation of Mr. Graham's allegations.
J. R.

Wrote Mr. Hall, 18/9/63.

Sydney, 21 September, 1863.

Sir,

In reply to your letter of the 18th instant, in reference to statements made by Mr. Graham that he was to give me the balance of an amount of £5 allowed for ironmongery, I have the honor to state, for the information of the Hon. the Secretary for Public Works, that in the specification alluded to, it is provided that the Government shall select ironmongery not exceeding the value of £5; such ironmongery I may add is invariably procured on my order, and is paid for by the contractor; in this instance Messrs. Iredale & Co. refused to trust Mr. Graham, and charged the account to me. I informed Mr. Graham that I should have to deduct it from his certificate, but he expressed a wish to pay the account himself, and I certified for his work, including the ironmongery, on the faith of his stating he would pay the account, which he afterwards refused to do, as he alleged I cheated him in his certificate of about £30. To save annoyance I paid the ironmongery account, but I distinctly deny that it was upon any understanding that I was to be bribed for passing his work, which must be obvious from my certificate being so much under his expectations, and for which he took legal proceedings against the Commissioner, and failed.

I still adhere to my statement that I have never been the worse of liquor in office hours, and I submit this is a most scurrilous and unwarrantable accusation.

I have, &c.,
GEO. HALL.

Submitted, 21/9/63.—J. R.

Mr. Whitton, for consideration and report.—W. M. A.—B. C., 25/9/63.

I have read Mr. Graham's letter and Mr. Hall's reply.

I have also seen Mr. Hall on the subject, and as I consider his explanation most unsatisfactory, I recommend that his service be dispensed with.

J. R. 1/10/63.

Prepare min. for Executive Council, recommending dismissal of Messrs. Hall, Trengrouse, Doherty, and Robinson.

W. M. A. 3/10/63.

Min. for Executive Council, 7/10/63.

Department

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 15 October, 1863.

My dear Cowper,

Will you be good enough to place the enclosed with the papers recommending the dismissal of Hall, Trengrouse, &c., as it appears to have dropped out?

Yours truly,
JOHN RAE.

30, Glebe-street, Glebe,
24 September, 1863.

Sir,

I see by the report of Mr. Hall's letter, in yesterday's Herald, as read by you in the House of Assembly, in answer to my statement in reference to the ironmongery for the Burwood station, that Mr. Hall assigns as a reason that Iredale & Co. refused to trust me. Now, sir, this is without any foundation whatever, because I never asked Iredale & Co. to trust me, nor authorized any other person to do so; and a reference to the clause in the specification would at once shew I did not require to do so, because it states that the ironmongery shall be found (not selected, as stated by Mr. Hall) by the Commissioner, and deducted from the contract; therefore the finding of the ironmongery was the Commissioner's, not mine, although I found the greater portion myself, as I can prove by my bills. I never saw a bill of this ironmongery, and never knew from whom it came till I saw it at the Burwood station, and then I saw Iredale & Co.'s name marked on it. I should have liked to have seen Mr. Hall clear this matter up in a better way than by a mean retaliation of this kind, because it is a matter of figures as well as bare statements—a sort of mathematical problem that can be easily settled. I did not push myself forward to make these statements—I might have done so months ago if I had been so inclined. I might have made a use of it in the action I brought against the Commissioner, and, as I was afterwards told, turned the balance in my favour, but I declined to take the responsibility of throwing Mr. Hall out of his situation, supposing I was able, because I believe no persons could afford to pay for his extraordinary talents but a Government.

I think I stated my willingness to attend before Mr. Hall, and even regretted he was not present; therefore, the writing and reading of his letter was not fair—less so on your part for reading it in public, because you ought to have been able to state you inquired and found the letter true. Now, sir, the smallest inquiry in reference to Iredale & Co. and the specification, would prove it untrue.

I hope, sir, you will clear this matter up, and see who is wrong in it; and also you will give this letter the same publicity you gave the other. I have inquired of Iredales, and they seem to know nothing of either Mr. Hall or me.

I have, &c.,
ALEXANDER GRAHAM.

The Honorable W. M. Arnold,
Secretary for Works,
Phillip-street.

A. No. 2.

STATEMENT of Amounts received for SPECIAL TRAINS, from 1st January, 1861, to 30th June, 1863, inclusive.

	Northern.			Southern and Western.			TOTAL.
	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
1861.
March .. .. .	20	0	0	.....
May .. .. .	30	0	0	.....
July .. .. .	107	14	3	16	10	0
" .. .. .	26	12	6	84	5	6
August .. .. .	27	5	0	20	12	6
October .. .. .	.....			19	10	0
" .. .. .	.....			54	16	9
November .. .. .	35	8	3	18	6	0
	247	0	0	214	0	9	461	0	9
1862.
February .. .. .	.....			29	10	0
July .. .. .	.....			13	0	0
August .. .. .	.....			49	14	0
September .. .. .	65	18	0	25	0	0
" .. .. .	.....			5	5	0
October .. .. .	.....			30	0	0
" .. .. .	.....			24	15	0
" .. .. .	.....			6	15	0
December .. .. .	.....			41	5	0
	65	18	0	225	4	0	291	2	0
1863.
May .. .. .	.....			3	15	0
" .. .. .	.....			30	2	6
June .. .. .	14	14	0	41	1	3
	14	14	0	74	18	9	89	12	9
							£	841	15	6

R.C.W. 28/10/63.

GREAT

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY—SPECIAL TRAINS.

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1861.
13 July ..	Newcastle to East Maitland .. .. .	Passenger.
26 " ..	West Maitland to Lochinvar .. .. .	Do.
29 " ..	Wallis Creek do. .. .. .	Do.
19 August ..	Newcastle to Hexham .. .. .	Goods.
3 September	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Do.
9 " ..	Do. Honeysuckle Point .. .. .	Do.
17 " ..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Do.
23 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Do.
2 October ..	Do. Honeysuckle Point .. .. .	Do.
3 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Telegraph plant.
7 " ..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Passenger.
8 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
9 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
10 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
17 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Timber.
18 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Goods.
28 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Timber.
29 " ..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Goods.
2 November..	Honeysuckle Point to Minmi .. .. .	Do.
4 " ..	Newcastle to West Maitland .. .. .	Passenger.
7 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Timber.
26 December..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Passenger.
26 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Do.
27 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
27 " ..	Do. East Maitland .. .. .	Do.
28 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
30 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
1862.
1 January ..	Newcastle to Lochinvar .. .. .	Passenger.
1 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
3 " ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Goods.
3 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Do.
4 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Passenger.
13 " ..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Rails.
18 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Goods.
20 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
23 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Passenger.
27 " ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Do.
27 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Do.
6 February..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Goods.
11 " ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Passenger.
11 March ..	Do. Branxton .. .. .	Do.
23 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
3 April ..	Do. Lochinvar .. .. .	Do.
17 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Testing Ironbark Creek Bridge.
21 " ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Passenger.
5 May ..	Do. Branxton .. .. .	Do.
23 " ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Do.
24 " ..	West Maitland to Branxton .. .. .	Do.
26 July ..	Newcastle to East Maitland .. .. .	Do.
4 August ..	Do. Branxton .. .. .	Minister for Works.
10 November..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Passenger.
10 " ..	Do. Honeysuckle Point .. .. .	Do.
26 December..	Do. Branxton .. .. .	Do.
1863.
1 January ..	Newcastle to Branxton .. .. .	Passenger.
1 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
2 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
26 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
26 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
6 April ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Do.
7 " ..	Do. Branxton .. .. .	Minister for Works.
1 May ..	Do. West Maitland .. .. .	Goods.
6 " ..	Branxton to Singleton .. .. .	Passenger.
6 " ..	Newcastle to do. .. .. .	Do.
7 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
7 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
7 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
20 " ..	Do. Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
20 " ..	Do. Wollombi Road .. .. .	Passenger.
20 " ..	Wollombi Road to Singleton .. .. .	Do.
21 " ..	Newcastle to Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
21 " ..	Do. Wollombi Road .. .. .	Passenger.
21 " ..	Wollombi Road to Singleton .. .. .	Do.
22 " ..	Newcastle to Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
22 " ..	Do. Wollombi Road .. .. .	Passenger.
22 " ..	Wollombi Road to Singleton .. .. .	Do.
22 " ..	Newcastle to Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
23 " ..	Do. Wollombi Road .. .. .	Passenger.
23 " ..	Wollombi Road to Singleton .. .. .	Do.
23 " ..	Newcastle to Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
25 " ..	Do. Honeysuckle Point .. .. .	Do.
26 " ..	Do. Singleton .. .. .	Passenger.

APPENDIX.

15

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY—SPECIAL TRAINS—continued.

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1863.
3 June ..	Newcastle to Singleton .. .. .	Passenger.
4 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
5 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
9 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Goods.
10 " ..	Do. do. .. .. .	Do.
11 " ..	Do. Wallsend .. .. .	Passenger.
1 July ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Goods.
7 " ..	Do. East Maitland .. .. .	Minister for Works.
3 August ..	Do. Waratah .. .. .	Goods.
19 " ..	Do. East Maitland .. .. .	Rails.
2 September.	Do. Singleton .. .. .	Passenger.
8 " ..	Do. Hexham .. .. .	Do.
8 " ..	Hexham to Singleton .. .. .	Do.
28 " ..	Newcastle to do. .. .. .	Do.

A. No. 3.

REGISTER of Draftsmen employed in the Engineering Branch of the Railway Department.

DATE OF APPOINTMENT.	NAMES OF OFFICERS.	DESIGNATION.	SALARY OR RATE OF PAY.		REMOVED, &c.	DATE OF RESIGNATION.	REMARKS.
			Yearly.	Daily.
			£	s. d.
11 June, 1856	J. W. Drewett .....	Draftsman .....	500	0 0			Salary voted on Estimates.
16 Sept., 1855	Nicholas Trengrouse	Do. ....	350	0 0	Suspended	26 Aug., 1863
18 Oct., 1858	George Hall .....	Do. ....	400	0 0	Do. ...	26 Aug., 1863	Do.
1 Jan., 1858	W. A. Trengrouse	Assistant Draftsman	200	0 0	Resigned ...	19 May, 1863	Do.
21 June, 1860	Louis Robertson ..	Do. do. ....	100	0 0	Suspended	29 Aug., 1863	Do.
21 June, 1860	William Mackay ..	Do. do. ....	200	0 0			Vote for Temporary assistance.
28 Feb., 1860	Hyacinthe Telmon	Temporary Draftsman		10s.
2 Aug., 1862	Martin Gardiner...	Do. do. ....	200	0 0	Dismissed	14 July, 1863	Do.
22 Aug., 1862	John Doherty .....	Do. do. ....		10s.	Suspended	26 Aug., 1863	Do.
16 Mar., 1861	E. H. Fearnside ..	Do. do. ....		20s.			Do.
3 Sept., 1863	G. A. Tillett .....	Draftsman .....	300	0 0			Voted on Estimates.
2 Sept., 1863	K. M'Kenzie.....	Do. do. ....	300	0 0

RETURN of Draftsmen employed in Branches of Public Works Department.

Name.	Date of Appointment to present Situation.	Date of first Appointment in the Public Service.	Salary now received.	From what Fund paid.	Remarks.
HARBOURS AND RIVERS.
Ed. Forde .....	1 Jan., 1862	1 Jan., 1862	Per annum. £ 400	Voted on Estimates	Also acts as Chief Surveyor.
F. T. Rose .....	15 Dec., 1859	15 Dec., 1859	300	Do.
O. Roszbach ....	12 Sept., 1860	12 Sept., 1860	300	Do.	Temporary.
G. Morell.....	5 Jan., 1863	5 Jan., 1863	200	Paid from Vote for Dredge, Newcastle.
J. Skinner .....	19 Feb., 1863	19 Feb., 1863	200	Do.	Temporary.
ROADS.
V. De St. Remy ..	21 Jan., 1863	25 Aug., 1859	500	Voted on Estimates	Mr. St. Remy acts as Assistant Engineer.
J. H. Thomas....	21 Jan., 1863	21 Dec., 1853	400	Do. ...
E. Chirade .....	26 Mar., 1863	26 Mar., 1863	200	From Votes for Works on which employed.	Temporary.
— Holloway ....	1 Oct., 1863	1 Oct., 1863	52	Voted on Estimates	Boys.
W. Drewett, junr.	1 Oct., 1863	1 Oct., 1863	52
W. Davidson, junr.	.....	.....	.....	.....	Volunteer—boy.
COLONIAL ARCHITECT'S BRANCH.
Alfred Cook.....	24 April, 1854	24 April, 1854	300	Voted on Estimates	Voted on Estimates
R. Yarwood.....	18 May, 1862	18 May, 1862	300	Voted on Estimates

A. No. 4.

A. No. 4.

15 December, 1862.

THE BOARD appointed to investigate the charges brought by Mr. Whitton, the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, against Mr. Nealds, the Traffic Manager of the Southern and Western Railways, having met and considered the evidence adduced before them in support of those charges, and the arguments urged by the learned counsel for Mr. Nealds, now beg to make their report.

The following are the charges which were brought against Mr. Nealds :—

- 1.—The working of the meat traffic from Liverpool.
From minute paper marked charge No. 1, it will be seen that the meat from the Liverpool slaughter-houses was not weighed either morning or evening, from the 13th March to about the middle of October. I have been informed, and shall be able to prove, that about this time Mr. Nealds was borrowing money from the lessees of the slaughter-houses.
- 2.—Cheques exchanged for cash at the Sydney booking office.
Mr. Nealds has been in the habit of exchanging his cheques for money from the booking office at the Sydney station, and on presentation the cheques have been returned dishonored.
- 3.—Money transactions with Mr. Dawson, an auctioneer holding sales on the railway premises at Sydney station.
From minute paper marked charge No. 3 it will be seen that Mr. Nealds did constantly recommend that accommodation should be given to Mr. Dawson beyond that given to other persons using the railway, and that Mr. Dawson did use the platform at Sydney for auction sales for a considerable time without any charge being made—the charge decided upon by Captain Martindale being abandoned on Mr. Nealds' recommendation. During this time Mr. Nealds was borrowing money from Mr. Dawson.
- 4.—Borrowing money from a man of the name of Cotton, now employed on the railway as watchman at Penrith.
Cotton has had a pass monthly from Ashfield to South Creek and back, which has not been given to any other watchman or porter; and that previous to his employment by the Commissioner he was allowed to pass free along the railway for a considerable time. Mrs. Cotton has also been allowed to travel free by a pass on blank paper signed by Mr. Nealds.
- 5.—Detention of train at Sydney station, and charge by Mr. Nealds of obstruction on the part of Scott with reference to horse boxes.
This matter is fully stated in minute paper marked charge No. 5. Reports on this matter have been made by Mr. Nealds, and as all the minute papers on the subject have been seen by him, I do not consider it necessary to give any further particulars.
- 6.—As to the duties and general employment of the extra men charged in Mr. Nealds' time sheets.
Extra men have been constantly employed at Sydney and Newtown, unloading billet wood and other timber, principally at Sydney, for Mr. Jolly, and no charge has been made for this service in accordance with the regulations, and generally that the services of the extra men charged in Mr. Nealds' time sheets have not been required for the purpose of the traffic. Some of these extra men have also been employed cutting billet wood at Mr. Nealds' house. Occasionally time has been charged in the sheets for which the men did not work.
- 7.—Rent of a house at Penrith.
On referring to minute paper 62/666, relative to the house called the "White Horse Hotel," at Penrith, I find Mr. Nealds had instructions on 3rd July to procure a tenant for these premises; and from Mr. Fitzmaurice's letter, dated 28th October, 1862, it appears this house was let on the 26th July, and up to 4th October the rents were regularly forwarded to Mr. Nealds. No portion, however, of this money has been paid to the accountant.
- 8.—Porters at Parramatta.
Mr. Aldrich wrote to Mr. Nealds, about three months ago, stating that he could dispense with two porters at Parramatta station, but no notice was taken of this by Mr. Nealds, and the porters remained.
- 9.—Season tickets.
Under the regulations, season tickets, if held by two persons in one family, a reduction in price is made of 25 per cent.; if held by four members of the same family, the reduction in price is 50 per cent. These tickets, I am informed, are issued to persons at Newtown at a reduction in price who are not members of the same family, yet no report on this matter has ever been made by Mr. Nealds.
- 10.—General mismanagement.
  - A. Minute paper 61/407. Special train for His Excellency delayed at Liverpool.
  - B. Minute paper 60/866. Wythes' goods lost at Liverpool station, and for which the Government had to pay £175.
  - C. Minute paper 61/259. Holdsworth's account at Liverpool, timber invoice, "on service," and should have been paid by consignee.
  - D. Minute paper 62/1254. Pratt, a porter at Blacktown, suspended by station master for drunkenness, and reinstated by Mr. Nealds without inquiry or report.
  - E. Minute paper 62/1243. Report from Mr. Owen relative to passes granted by Mr. Nealds to parties not in the Railway Department.
  - F. Minute paper 62/1260. Recommendation from Mr. Owen to reduce staff of porters, sixteen can be dispensed with, reducing the cost of working the line £2,300 per annum, to which must be added the cost of the extra men, whose services are not required.
  - G. Mr. Nealds has on many occasions been intoxicated when on duty.
  - H. Paper marked 62/1279. Memorandum from accountant, with reference to goods having been sent by passenger train at goods rates from Sydney to Penrith for Mr. Hellyer. Mr. Hellyer has since stated that at about that time he was suing Mr. Nealds for the recovery of a debt.

To be continued if necessary.

J.W.—30/10/62.

Supplementary Charges.

1. As to two coats borrowed by Mr. Nealds from the lost property room, worn by him, and not returned.
2. Papers connected with the investigation before Captain Ward, as to a statement by Mr. Nealds that certain ironwork of carriages was imperfect, and Captain Ward's report thereon.

REPORT.

REPORT.

1. With reference to the charge that Mr. Nealds permitted the lessees of the Liverpool slaughter-houses to send their meat without having it weighed, and that about that time Mr. Nealds was borrowing money from the lessees, the Board find the charge not proved. It appears that some time before the weighing of the meat sent in the morning was discontinued by direction of Mr. Nealds, he had borrowed £50 from two of the members of the meat company; this money was repaid in December, 1860, and the meat continued to be weighed until the March following. The discontinuance of the weighing appears to have arisen in consequence of some squabble between the men in charge of the meat and the porters of the railway. The weighing was resumed by order of the Commissioner, in October, 1861. In November following Mr. Nealds borrowed the sum of £20 from Mr. Neale, one of the lessees. The Board are of opinion that there was no necessity for the discontinuance of the weighing of the meat sent by the morning train, but that there was no material loss of carriage (the weight being furnished by the company). We do not find that the money lent by two members of the meat company was given as a consideration for any peculiar benefit to be enjoyed by the company, nor that there was any loan existing during the period the weighing of the meat was discontinued.

2. The second charge is, that Mr. Nealds exchanged his cheques for cash at the Sydney station, and that the cheques so changed were dishonored. From the evidence there appears to have been a usage for the clerks at the station to take cheques in payment of fares, and occasionally to change cheques for persons whom they knew, and it would seem that the clerks were personally responsible for the payment of the cheques so taken. Mr. Nealds had his cheques changed, and on some occasions they were returned to the accountant, there not being sufficient funds to meet them. It appears that such cheques were paid on being again presented. The Board are of opinion that the non-payment of the cheques might be, and probably was, the result of accident, and that there is no serious ground of complaint against Mr. Nealds in the matter.

3. By the third charge it is alleged that Mr. Nealds gave certain advantage to Mr. Dawson, as to selling produce on the platform, not enjoyed by any other person, and that during the time such advantage was enjoyed, Mr. Nealds was borrowing money from Mr. Dawson. It does not appear by the evidence that Mr. Dawson did enjoy any peculiar advantage as to selling from the railway platform; several persons were in treaty to sell in the same manner, and two persons had commenced to do so, but the bulk of this trade centred in the hands of Mr. Dawson, and the other traders who had commenced gradually retired. It is admitted by Mr. Nealds that he had borrowed money (£30) from Mr. Dawson, but it is not established that any connection existed between the loan of this money and Mr. Dawson selling on the platform; but on the contrary, Mr. Dawson's letters tend to shew that he was not satisfied with some arrangements made by the Commissioners on the recommendation of Mr. Nealds, thereby rather negating any improper understanding with Mr. Nealds. Although the charge made is not established, the Board consider that as Mr. Dawson only commenced selling from the platform, without payment, as an experiment, it was Mr. Nealds' duty to have brought the matter under the notice of the authorities before he allowed the practice of using the platform for holding sales, without payment, to become permanent. The Board are also of opinion that although charges No. 1 and 3 have not been proved, yet Mr. Nealds, by borrowing money from persons using the railway, as Messrs. Dawson & Neale and Mr. Dawson were, placed himself in such a relation to those persons as rendered it almost impossible for him to perform his duty as traffic manager, where the performance of his duty was likely to clash with the interests of the persons to whom he was under pecuniary obligations.

4. The fourth charge is, that Mr. Nealds borrowed money (£50) from a man named Cotton, a porter employed on the railway, and improperly gave passes to Cotton, his wife, and son. The Board are of opinion that this charge is established. They report that Mr. Nealds disregarded his positive instructions, in issuing passes on blank pieces of paper instead of on the printed forms, in not making a return of the passes issued, and that the issuing of these passes to Mrs. Cotton and her son were clearly an abuse of the limited power given to the traffic manager, in the issuing of free passes. The Board are also of opinion that the borrowing of money by the traffic manager from a porter employed under him was entirely at variance with his duty, and highly irregular and improper.

5. Charge No. 5 has reference to the detention of the quarter past 10 o'clock train, on the 28th July last, on account of horse boxes not being ready. It appears that Mr. Nealds was at the station about ten minutes before 10 o'clock, on the morning of the 28th July, and that it was reported to him that certain horse boxes which were wanted were refused by the carriage inspector. It also appears that there was some trifling obstruction on the loop line which these horse boxes would have to traverse to come into the station. The Board are of opinion that Mr. Nealds did not use those exertions to procure the horse boxes and to remove the obstruction on the loop line which he ought to have used, and the Board think that Mr. Nealds' conduct in the matter shewed want of energy and indifference.

6. The first portion of the sixth charge refers to the employment, at the expense of the Government, of extra men at the Sydney and other stations, in unloading billet wood, and more particularly for Mr. Jolly. As far as the case of Mr. Jolly is concerned, the charge is unsupported by evidence; no preference appears to have been given to Mr. Jolly over other persons consignees of billet wood. There is no doubt that extra men were employed in unloading the timber trucks, and the object for doing so appears to have been to obviate a deficiency of B trucks—the ones ordinarily used for the conveyance of timber. The Board are of opinion that extra men were employed to an extent not absolutely necessary, and that some blame is to be attached to Mr. Nealds for improvident management in this matter. The second portion of charge No. 6—that the extra men were employed cutting billet wood at Mr. Nealds' house—the Board consider is established. On the occasions that these men were employed for any period extending from one to three hours, it does not appear that their time was deducted from the time charged to the Government, but when employed for half a day or longer the head porter directed the man not to enter such half day or other time in the time-book. It is not proved that Mr. Nealds was aware that the time—from one to three hours—which the men were employed by him was charged to the Government, but the Board consider Mr. Nealds greatly to be blamed in not seeing that the men working for him were not paid by the Government. It appears also that the regular porters have been occasionally employed by Mr. Nealds, at his house, cutting wood. To the third portion of charge No. 6—that occasionally time had been charged in the sheets for which men did not work—as far as this applies to the extra men above alluded to, the matter has been already disposed of, but to any further extent the charge is not established.

7. The 7th charge is connected with the letting of the house at Penrith. From the evidence, it is shewn that a house belonging to the Railway Department required a tenant, and thereupon the Commissioner wrote a minute that Mr. Nealds was to let the house to the best advantage. Mr. Nealds then had a conversation with Mr. Moody, the Chief Clerk, and Mr. Cowlshaw, the valuator, and there is some uncertainty as to what passed: Mr. Cowlshaw's recollection of the conversation being that it was agreed that Mr. Nealds should himself become the tenant, at a weekly rent of 10s; Mr. Moody's, as far as he remembered it, being that Mr. Nealds was only to collect and be responsible for the rents; Mr. Moody's observation being "We shall look to you (Nealds) for the rents." It is clear that Mr. Nealds was himself uncertain whether he were the tenant or not, and we think Mr. Nealds is to be blamed for not having that uncertainty cleared up by a reference to the Commissioner. Mr. Nealds let the house to some persons employed on the railway, at a rent of 15s. a week. The Board consider that Mr. Nealds, being uncertain whether he were the agent of the Commissioner for receiving the rent, or the tenant, by assuming himself to be the tenant and letting the house at a higher rent than as tenant he would have paid, is highly censurable.

8. The 8th charge, which amounts to one of improvident management in not dispensing with two porters at the Parramatta station, the Board consider is not sustained.

9. The charge No. 9—as to season tickets having been obtained at the reduced rate by persons who were not members of the same family, without any report by Mr. Nealds—the Board consider is not substantiated as inculpating Mr. Nealds. Assuming that family tickets were issued to persons who did not come within the meaning of the words of the regulations, “members of the same family,” the matter was not brought under the notice of Mr. Nealds. The Board beg to report that they consider the words of the regulations as to family tickets very indefinite, and likely to lead to misunderstandings between the public and the Railway Department.

10A. The charge 10A relates to the detention of a special train, on the occasion of the visit of His Excellency the Governor to Sophienburg. The Board are of opinion that Mr. Nealds is free from blame in the matter.

10B. It appears to the Board that the charge 10B, relating to the loss of Wythes' goods at Liverpool, had been inquired into and decided; they therefore refrain from re-opening the case, and make no report on the subject.

10C. The charge under this head is, that Mr. Nealds allowed the contractor for the supply of timber to the railway (which by the contract was to be delivered free in Sydney) to consign it marked O.H.M.S., thus avoiding the payment of carriage. This charge involved a second one,—that if Mr. Nealds was not cognizant of the irregularity, that he ought, in the discharge of his duty, to have been aware of it. The Board are of opinion that the first portion of the charge is not established. A person named Holdsworth had taken the contract to supply the timber for the bridges, &c., and that contract had been transferred to a Mr. Bossley, residing near Liverpool. Up to about March, 1861, the timber had been consigned by Bossley to Holdsworth, and the carriage had been regularly collected by a Mr. Flygg, the clerk in the goods department at Sydney. In March an alteration was made, and the timber was consigned O.H.M.S. This must have been done by the clerk at the Liverpool station, who, having since left the Colony, could not be called as a witness. At this time Mr. Flygg, who had heretofore collected the carriage, left the office of goods clerk, and Mr. Owen took his place. Mr. Owen, it seems, was not aware that the timber supplied under the contract was to be delivered in Sydney with freight to be paid, and therefore the carriage of this timber was not charged against the contractor. Had Mr. Flygg continued as goods clerk the error must have been immediately detected. To suppose that Mr. Nealds was cognizant of the timber being marked O.H.M.S., when he knew it ought to have been consigned to Holdsworth with carriage to be paid, it would have to be assumed that he colluded with the station clerk or the consignor to take advantage, in the change of clerks at Sydney, for the purpose of defrauding the revenue. There is no evidence to supply such an allegation. On the contrary, it is disproved by the fact that Mr. Owen had been assisting Mr. Flygg in the office before taking the latter's place, and there would therefore have been every reason to suppose that he was aware that the carriage of timber supplied under the contract had to be collected in Sydney. As to the further charge—that Mr. Nealds ought to have been aware of the irregularity—the Board are of opinion that great laxity in the supervision of the business of the railway is shown by Mr. Nealds, in not having made himself aware of what was taking place with reference to the carriage of this timber. As to the charge arising out of the minute papers in the above case—that certain timber was sent from Liverpool to Sydney for the use of the Gymnasium, consigned O.H.M.S.—it appears that this timber was supplied to Mr. Nealds on behalf of the Committee of the Gymnasium, by Mr. Bossley, who supplied the timber for the railway. Under what circumstances this timber was marked O.H.M.S. no evidence was given; the clerk who so marked it having, as has already been mentioned, left the Colony. As the carriage of the timber marked O.H.M.S. is charged to the store account, and not simply passed without payment, when this timber came to be delivered to private persons in Sydney, the error in charging to that account must have been discovered. There is no evidence to connect this irregularity with Mr. Nealds, and when it was discovered the carriage was paid.

10D has reference to the charge that Mr. Nealds improperly allowed a porter at the Blacktown station to return to duty, having been suspended for drunkenness. It appears from minute paper that the charge made against the porter was not that of drunkenness, but coming to the station with his face cut and unfit for duty. The Board are of opinion that although it would have been desirable for Mr. Nealds to have obtained further information in the matter than that afforded by the station master's report and the porter's answer, yet that Mr. Nealds, in considering a suspension of the porter efficient punishment for the charge then before him, was at the most only guilty of an error of judgment. As it was immaterial to this charge whether the porters were really drunk or not, and as the Board had no authority or desire to inquire into the conduct of persons other than Mr. Nealds, evidence which was effected to establish that the porter was intoxicated was rejected.

10E. The charge 10E is that Mr. Nealds improperly gave passes enabling clerks and workmen in the Telegraph Department to travel free of charge. From the evidence it appears that these passes were only given to such persons when on duty, and that this had been the practice for three or four years. The Board are of opinion that Mr. Nealds is not to be blamed for having continued a system which it might reasonably have been inferred had come under the notice of the authorities, and from not having been stopped, had received their sanction. The charge as to the passes to Cotton, included in 10E, has already been disposed of.

10F. Charge 10F is that Mr. Nealds did not reduce the staff of porters employed on the railway, as he ought to have done. Since Mr. Nealds' suspension a considerable reduction in the number of porters has been made. As it is obviously impossible to ascertain correctly whether the alteration will work well, the Board refrain from reporting that Mr. Nealds is blamable in not having made the reduction.

10G. The charge 10G alleges that Mr. Nealds has on many occasions been intoxicated when on duty. The evidence in support of this charge is conflicting in some particulars, and rather confused. After a very careful consideration, the Board are of opinion that, during the last four years, there have been two occasions on which Mr. Nealds has been intoxicated. It is however right to add that the statements of witnesses are, in some respects, contradictory as to what occurred on either occasion. The Board do not consider that any charge of general insobriety on the part of Mr. Nealds is established.

10H. By charge No. 10H it is alleged that Mr. Helleyer was allowed to send goods by passenger train, and that Mr. Helleyer at the time was suing Mr. Nealds. The evidence shews that, on one occasion, the regulations as to sending goods by passenger train, and that, if sent, they should be paid for as parcels, were departed from by Mr. Nealds, Mr. Helleyer being allowed to send some sugar by the passenger train. The circumstances under which Mr. Helleyer was allowed this accommodation may be considered as almost justifying Mr. Nealds' management in the matter. The implication conveyed by the last part of the charge the Board report to be in no way sustained.

With regard to the supplementary charge brought against Mr. Nealds—that he borrowed two coats from the lost property room, wore them and did not return them—the Board are of opinion that the charge is proved. They consider Mr. Nealds' conduct in the matter highly censurable, both on account of the impropriety of the act, and of the very bad example set by the traffic manager to his subordinate officers. As to the charge in the minute paper against Mr. Nealds of stealing the coats, this clearly is without foundation.

The Board perused the papers connected with the inquiry before Capt. Ward—sent to them by the Minister for Public Works—and they have nothing to add to the decision arrived at by Capt. Ward.

27. The matter of the meat not being weighed? Yes, directly. I wish to refer you to the paper which states it; it was on the statement of the goods clerk that it was disallowed. (Letter dated 12th November, from the station master, read.)
28. What steps did you take when this was pointed out to you—that the meat was not weighed? I immediately gave orders that it should be weighed, and when any obstruction was on the line, or chance of the train being delayed, it was passed, and the weight taken from the way-bill; this is done now and it is customary elsewhere. The reason Mr. Owen gave for not weighing the meat was, as I understood from these letters, was that he was prevented by the butchers themselves, and that the guard threatened to knock him down.
29. When this occurred, and the guard threatened to knock him down, did you take any steps in the matter? Yes, I went to the butchers and remonstrated with them against any obstruction being thrown in the way of the weighing, and at the same time I stated that in cases where the meat was late, or there was any difficulty or delay in the train coming in, that the way-bills should be taken as the weight; of course reference could have been had to sale books, which are always open.
30. It appears from these letters that you took summary proceedings with the subordinate officer? Yes, directly; but it was Mr. Owen's wish that he should not be punished any further.
31. Now with respect to these money transactions—will you state, for the information of the Board, what occurred when you borrowed this £20 from Mr. Neale? I was sitting in my office, or rather the office appointed for the traffic manager of the Sydney station, and Mr. Neale, who was waiting for the train, walked into the office. While I was sitting there, a letter was brought to me requesting the payment of £20, and I threw the letter down with an exclamation of impatience; Mr. Neale then said "What is the matter?" I said "Look here!" and handed him the letter, and he read it. His observation was, "Well, don't let that trouble you; I have plenty, and surely one brother (mason) can assist another; give me your cheque, and here is mine."
32. By the Chairman: That was in November? Yes.
33. By Mr. Owen: Have you got any cheque butt or document to shew it? Yes, I have got the butt of the cheque to shew it. (Cheque butt put in and marked.) That was the time I gave Mr. Neale a cheque for his cheque.
34. And you discontinued weighing the meat because Mr. Owen had reported to you in some cases it was impracticable? Yes.
35. That impracticability was owing to obstructions on the line? Mr. Owen reported to me that the curve was so sharp that the train could not get round.
36. Did you give any orders on that report? I reported this immediately. This was reported to the Commissioner—with regard to the impracticability.
37. What did you say to Mr. Owen about this? I told him, there and then, that in the morning if there was not time, or if he had not sufficient trucks to push the meat on, that he might take the way-bills and examine the sale books, and take the weight from the way-bills.
38. There are consigning notes prepared by the consignors? Yes.
39. By Mr. Williams: From March till October you took the weights they gave you as correct? It was not during the whole of that time—only in cases of emergency; I did not order it to be done daily.
40. By Mr. Owen: You gave no distinct order that it was not to be done? Decidedly not; I should not have dreamed of giving such an order.
41. By the Chairman: You did not give an order of that kind? No, only that they might do it in cases of emergency.
42. By Mr. Owen: Considering yourself protected by their sale books which you have alluded to? Yes.
43. By the Chairman: Did you not receive a letter reprimanding you, on the 21st February, 1862—do you recollect that letter—did you receive it in this department? I have not the slightest recollection of it.
44. Did you receive it? I have not the slightest recollection of it.
45. Do you think you would recollect it if you heard it read? I don't recollect receiving any reprimand from the Commissioner except one, and that will appear hereafter.
- Copy of letter dated 21st February, read.*
- Mr. Nealds pointed out that the letter was not signed.*
46. Capt. Mayne: Copies are often taken before signature. Mr. Nealds: I don't recollect receiving it; it may have been put in my hands.

Edward Owen called and examined:—

47. By Mr. Williams: What are you? Station master.
48. Where? Sydney station.
49. What were you in January, 1861—were you at that station then? Yes, as goods clerk.
50. Had you anything to do with the meat brought down from the Abattoirs at Liverpool—did it pass through your hands at all? Yes.
51. What had you to do with it? One portion of the time I had to weigh it, but I question whether it was in 1860 or 1861.
52. Tell us what you did from the first? At the commencement of 1860 or 1861 I weighed it for a considerable time; I was then ordered not to weigh it.
53. Who ordered you? I was ordered by Mr. Nealds.
54. About when? In March.
55. Of what year? I am not positive.
56. 1861 or 1860? 1860, I believe.
57. Will the papers fix the date? Yes, there are letters of mine.
58. Could you, by seeing the letters, fix the date? Yes; it was in March, 1861.
59. In March, 1861, you received orders from Mr. Nealds to discontinue weighing the meat? Yes.
60. What were the orders? I was to discontinue weighing the meat, and receive the weight from the meat company every day.
61. They were the consignors? Yes, and the consignees too.
62. Were there any limitations to that order—was it a general order, or only to be acted upon on special occasions? It was a general order.
63. Without any restriction or limitation? Yes.
64. Without any restriction or limitation—was that your opinion? Yes, and I did only my duty in acting upon it.
65. How did you act upon it? I dispensed with weighing the meat.
66. How did you get the weights to make the charges by—was it from the consignment notes? No, they supplied us with no notes.
67. How did you get it? From a clerk under me, who went each day to the company, and they supplied me then with the weight.
68. Then until the clerk had gone to the company and brought you back some information, you did not know what the weight was? No.
69. How long did this continue? I believe until the middle of October from March.
70. Was it discontinued then? Yes.
71. Under what circumstances? I was sent for by the Commissioner, and I was informed there were great irregularities on account of the weighing of the meat, and that the Government had been defrauded of the revenue for the meat, the company having given us wrong weights.

72. Well, what did you do then? The Commissioner took it up in a very severe manner, and said it was very irregular, and that I was to inform my superior officer, the station master, Mr. Read, that he ordered it to be weighed in future.
73. Has it been weighed in consequence? Yes, ever since.
74. Every day? Yes.
75. Have you had any difficulty in weighing it every day? I have not weighed it myself.
76. Have you seen it weighed? Yes; there seems to be no difficulty whatever in weighing it.
77. Do you know whether it was stopped, in the first instance, in consequence of your having given a suggestion of the difficulty of the curve? No, it was never stopped on that account.
78. Did such a reason for stopping it exist? The reason why it was stopped was on account of the obstruction I received in weighing it.
79. By whom? From the butchers—from the meat company's men.
80. How did they obstruct you? They obstructed me by unhooking the trucks, and passing them over the weigh-bridge into the meat shed; at other times the train overshot the weigh-bridge.
81. Did you report it to anybody? Yes, to Mr. Nealds.
82. When about was this? About a day before the meat was discontinued being weighed.
83. Was there any more difficulty in weighing the meat at the time you discontinued doing so, and the time of your recommencing it—would it not have been as easy to weigh the meat then as now? I think it would be quite as easy, if it were not for the obstruction from these men.
84. Was there no means of preventing that obstruction? I could not prevent it; it was not in my power to do so.
85. On the day following your report of this obstruction, you received a general order from Mr. Nealds to discontinue weighing, and to take the weights from the meat company? Yes.
86. Had Mr. Neale and Mr. Davidson anything to do with the meat company? Yes, they were partners.
87. By Mr. Owen: When you were appointed, were you not to see to the management of those goods that came down in the morning—the weighing the meat was usually under your charge? I was appointed to weigh the meat during the time I mentioned.
88. When did you first report this obstruction to Mr. Nealds? The day before the weighing the meat was discontinued.
89. Do you know whether Mr. Nealds took any steps on your report? Yes, he took steps.
90. What steps did he take? He went to see Mr. Davidson, and arranged with him that he should report to us what the weight of the meat was.
91. And that you might dispense with weighing it? Yes.
92. And you were to get the weight from Davidson? Yes.
93. By Capt. Mayne: Mr. Davidson is one of the partners? Yes, he is one of the partners, and so is Peisely.
94. By Mr. Owen: Who took this weight from Davidson—who had to see the way-bills, and matters of that kind, &c., relative to the weight of the meat? A young man under me of the name of Flynn.
95. Did you investigate every morning whether he did receive them? He received it every afternoon. He did not supply me with the weight, but the station master. My position was changed; it was not my business to see to the weight.
96. He received the way-bills every afternoon? A statement of the weights.
97. How did you hear of this enquiry in October, 1861? What enquiry?
98. Before the Commissioner? I was sent for by the Commissioner.
99. What did you state to the Commissioner? I stated about the weighing of the meat, and the reason why it was dispensed with.
100. Did you point out to the Commissioner that it was customary to take these consigning notes here as in England? Yes, I said it was customary to receive these notes in England.
101. By Mr. Williams: In the manner you were then taking them? Yes; I said it was customary for the sending stations to receive them. We were the receiving station, but in England it is the custom for the sending station to supply the weight—the consignors, and not the consignees.
102. Did the consignors supply the weight in this case? That is a question; some of the partners were at Liverpool and others at Sydney.
103. Then the custom in England is not for the same persons who send and receive to give the weight? The consignees and consignors are usually different people.
104. By Mr. Owen: Is it the invariable practice of the railways in England to weigh the goods sent to consignees, and that the goods should have been weighed by the receiving station? It is not; it is the invariable practice of the railways to weigh the goods, but in some cases they receive the weight from the senders, and they take these weights for granted.
105. Is it not the invariable practice for railways to weigh? No.
106. By Mr. Moriarty: On what occasions do they deviate from that practice? In the coal traffic.
107. And such other traffic as there would be a chance of any diminution in the weight? Yes.
108. Is the coal traffic the only one in which they make this difference? That is the only one I know of.
109. Is it not customary generally to take the size of the truck in calculating the weight? No; the coal merchants generally weigh the truck in the weigh-bridge, and the tare of the truck is printed on the truck. The tare is then deducted from the gross weight, and both tare and gross weight are entered on a label, and this label is then fixed in the truck, and the consignee checks the weight received from the consignor by means of this label.
110. How is this label arrived at? The trucks are of the same construction.
111. And capacity? They are not.
112. By the Chairman: Do you know the custom with respect to meat? That is superior goods traffic—mineral traffic is the only traffic the Railway Companies take the weight of the sender. In all other descriptions it is weighed by the Railway Companies.
113. Do you know anything of the custom with regard to meat traffic? I never had any connection with meat traffic before. I believe there are no railways in England where the meat is carried as it is here.
114. By Mr. Owen: When you speak so positively of mineral traffic being the only one in which it is customary to take the weight of the sender—do you speak from your own knowledge? I speak from my own experience.
115. What did the Commissioner say when you made this statement? He said it was highly irregular not weighing the meat, and it was no difference what the custom was in England; and the order he gave was, that the meat was to be weighed, and that the weigh-bridge had been placed there for that purpose.
116. And from that time it has been weighed? Yes.
117. By the Chairman: Has there been any obstruction by the butchers since October? No; but it is not the same meat company that was at that time. The company that was then carrying meat was dissolved, and a new company has sprung up.
118. By Mr. Owen: Before that, was not the butcher who used to come down with the meat changed? No butcher; he was travelling until the meat was discontinued weighing.
119. After the obstruction was raised he was changed? The obstruction took place in March; he was changed in October.
120. The man who made the obstruction was carried on during the whole time the weighing the meat was discontinued? Yes, until the company dissolved and a new company sprung up.

121. Do you know by whom the enquiry was originated to the Commissioner? No; complaints were given, but he gave me no men's names.
122. Had you any means of checking the weight? None.
123. By the Chairman: Had you any access to the sale books? What sale book? that is a peculiar question.
124. Suppose a question had arisen as to the weights, could you not have checked it by the sale books—had you access to the sale books of the old company? I had not; I am not aware of it.
125. By Mr. Williams: Where were the sale books kept? I do not know anything about the sale books.
126. By Mr. Owen: Did you ever see the sale books? I saw books about, whatever they were I don't know.
127. By Mr. Williams: Did you examine them? No.
128. Where were the books you saw? In the possession of the butchers—made up by them.
129. And whether they were sale books you don't know? No.
130. By the Chairman: During this time, from March to October, were there any complaints made of the butchers to the Commissioner, that they did not return the full weight of the meat? No, I never made any complaint; no complaint was made to me.
131. You did not know anything about it? No.
132. By Mr. Williams: The only information you had was the return they themselves gave? Yes.
133. By Mr. Owen: Was it not your duty as goods clerk, to see in cases of suspicion, to see that the weight of the goods was correct? It was not my duty unless ordered by my superior officer, who had always ordered me to dispense with weighing it. If I had any suspicion it was my duty to lay it before my superior officer.
134. By the Chairman: Who were the persons that obstructed you in weighing? A man who was engaged by the butchers to push these trucks into the meat shed, and who unloaded the meat.
135. The servant of the meat company? Yes.
136. By Capt. Mayne: Could they be interested in any way, or were they interested, if the meat company had given you incorrect returns? I cannot say.
137. Were they merely their men? Yes; I don't know their arrangements.
138. Could their obstruction to the weighing have arisen from mere idleness or want to save time? I cannot say.
139. By the Chairman: Were either Mr. Neale or Mr. Davidson present when the obstruction was offered? No.
140. By Capt. Mayne: You find no difficulty in getting round that curve now? No, not the slightest.
141. By Mr. Owen: Was there ever any difficulty in getting round that curve? No.
142. By Capt. Mayne: You have not employed any extra men? No.
143. By Mr. Owen: Did you not report to Mr. Nealds that it was not possible to get round that curve with the meat unless in a long train, especially when the old engines were used? No, never.
144. Did you ever make any report of the kind? I reported that I could not push the trucks myself, or something of the kind.
145. Have you got that report? I never made it in writing.
146. By Mr. Moriarty: When did you make the report? It was about October—the middle of October—when the meat was being weighed again; not before.
147. You did not state it when you suffered the obstruction? Never.
148. By Mr. Owen: For what purpose did you make that statement? It was pointed out to me by the clerk, that in the morning he was not able to push these trucks across the curve, and I suggested that a party should be got up to assist in pushing the trucks and weighing the meat.
149. By Mr. Williams: What time is the meat received in the morning? At half-past 5 o'clock.
150. Is not the truck pushed round the curve by the engine? Sometimes.
151. By Capt. Mayne: Was Mr. Nealds usually present when the meat came in? No.
152. Have you ever seen him there? No, never.
153. And you think that it is not by his own experience that he could have made a statement that they could not get round the curve, and the difficulty occasioned in doing so? I cannot say.

---

Mr. Nealds examined:—

154. By Mr. Owen: Will you explain to the Commissioners the difficulty which you spoke of, on the report of Mr. Owen, of getting the trucks over the sharp curve? That statement was induced upon the notice of Mr. Owen to myself. He stated that the engine could not get the meat trucks into the shed in consequence of the sharpness of the curve, and unless we had a long train it could not be done except by hand. What I mean by a long train is this, that when the meat vans are detached from the engine, to be placed in the meat shed, then the engine is backed on the railway, and pushes, by means of a long train, the meat vans into the shed over the curve. It is of frequent occurrence that engines attempting to get round this curve get off the line.
155. That is what you referred to? Yes.
156. And it was necessary, in order that they should get up to the weighing machine, that this curve should be passed? Yes, it must be passed.

---

James Davidson called in and examined:—

157. By Mr. Williams: What are you? Carcass butcher.
158. Formerly in partnership with Mr. Neale? Yes.
159. Had you anything to do with the Meat Company at the Liverpool Abattoirs? Yes, I have now.
160. In what year? It was commenced in 1860, in October.
161. Do you know Mr. Nealds, the traffic manager? Yes.
162. Did you ever lend him any money? Well, Thomas Neale did—between us.
163. He was your co-partner? Yes.
164. He was one of them? Yes.
165. How much did you lend? £50.
166. When? I think about January, 1861; I have no memorandum of it.
167. How came you to lend this £50 to Mr. Nealds—how was it brought about? Mr. Neale came and asked me if I was willing to lend it—if I would join him in lending it.
168. Your partner came and asked you whether you would join him in lending it? It was nothing to do with the firm; it was privately between ourselves.
169. What did you do? I lent it.
170. What security did you get for it? Security?
171. Did he give you any acknowledgment or promissory note? He was to name a certain time; I think he was to pay it back in a month or two.
172. He gave you no written acknowledgment of it? No.
173. Did Mr. Neale give you any reason why he should lend £50 to him—you and him together? No.
174. Are you a private friend of Mr. Nealds? Mr. Neale knew Mr. Nealds better than I did.
175. Did you know anything of Mr. Nealds except in his public capacity as traffic manager? No.
176. Was this £50 ever repaid? Yes.

177. When? I think about two or three months after it was lent.
178. In what way? Mr. Nealds gave me a cheque for it.
179. On the bank? It was some person's else cheque.
180. Not his own cheque; did you know whose cheque it was? It was some female's I think, but I am not positive it was a female signature.
181. You cannot fix the date of that payment? No, I can't; I never kept any memorandum of the circumstance at all; I never made any.
182. Is not that rather unusual? No—a single thing like that; I frequently lend money myself and make no memorandum. We lend money to one another in our own trade, and it may go on six or twelve months; we know we are certain of the money.
183. Did you charge any interest on this loan? No.
184. Can you tell me the name of the person who signed the cheque? No; I know it was presented at the bank and paid.
185. What bank? I don't know; I gave it to the clerk.
186. You received a cheque and don't know on what bank it was drawn? I think it was a lady's signature.
187. You think it was a woman's signature? Yes.
188. Can you fix the month at all? No, I have not the slightest thing to guide me by.
189. Might it be July or August? When it was paid?—It could not have been so far as that; it might have been earlier than that.
190. Was that the only transaction you had with Mr. Nealds? The only one.
191. Did you ever hear from Mr. Nealds of any obstruction being given to weighing the meat that came down from you—was any complaint made to you? Well, there was a quarrel one morning with a clerk and some of our men.
192. No formal complaint was made to you? Yes, Mr. Nealds spoke to me about it. He said several of your men have quarrelled with our people about weighing the meat, and it must not occur.
193. That was all that passed between you? Yes, that was all at that time.
194. By Capt. Mayne: Did you pay that cheque you got from Mr. Nealds, in payment of the £50, into your own account at the bank? No.
195. Did your clerk pay it in? No, he got the cash for it.
196. It was drawn upon a bank? Yes.
197. By Mr. Williams: Who was the clerk? Mr. Philip Milligen. He would not recollect it.
198. Was it by a cheque you lent the £50? No, Tom Neale drew the cheque.
199. On your own bank? Yes.
200. Did you or he give the cheque? I saw him write the cheque.
201. On what bank? The Joint Stock Bank, I think.
202. On his own account? Yes.
203. You say Mr. Milligen could not remember this repayment? No, he has got a very bad memory, and would not recollect this repayment. He knew nothing about the repayment; I merely gave him the cheque to get cashed for me.
204. By Mr. Owen: Was this cheque drawn on a private account or on the account of the firm? Private account; none of the rest knew nothing about it; none of the firm only me and Mr. Neale.
205. What did Mr. Neale say to you on that occasion? He merely came and said Mr. Nealds had asked him to lend him £50 for a short time, and whether I would join him in lending it, and I said I did not mind.
206. When did you enter into partnership with Mr. Neale? In October, 1860.
207. How soon was this after the partnership? About two or three months after, as nigh as possible.
208. Would it have been one month? I think it was about that; it might have been.
209. Some time in November or December? Yes, I think so.
210. Did Mr. Nealds state, either at the time of borrowing the money or the payment, anything about weighing the meat? Oh no.
211. When was it Mr. Nealds saw you about this obstruction—this quarrel? I think it was between the time of borrowing the money and before the payment.
212. Will you swear to that? No; I am almost positive it was.
213. Will you swear you did not receive the payment of this money in January, 1861? I would not swear it; I don't think it was.
214. Was any arrangement come to between you and Mr. Nealds about weighing the meat? Yes; Mr. Nealds said he would take the weight we gave in, and we were to allow them to weigh it whenever they chose, and they would take the book weight for the weight.
215. Were they to have any check by the sale books? No, there was a general average of what the meat was every day; there could not be much difference. I used to give them the weights morning and evening; it was frequently weighed when I did not know it, and it mostly tallied; it was weighed and I did not know it.
216. It was frequently checked? Yes.
217. By Mr. Moriarty: By whom was it checked? By whoever weighed the meat. Their men checked it so far; when I gave in the weight in the morning they said it was quite right.
218. It had been weighed by the railway people in the morning? Yes; Mr. Nealds came to me and said complaints had been made that we had frequently given in short weights, and I told Mr. Nealds to go over the books, and he could go up to Liverpool and take the weights of the Inspector of the cattle slaughtered at Mr. Atkinson's for the average of the weights, or if he chose he could look to the books there if he had any doubts about it.
219. By Capt. Mayne: When was it you told him this? When he came to speak to me about it.
220. About last November? About October or November.
221. By Mr. Moriarty: Mr. Nealds made a complaint to you that there had been a report about short weights being given in? Yes, and since then it has always been weighed.
222. By Mr. Owen: Do you remember any occasion when the meat trucks had been pushed beyond the weighing machine, and had to be taken back and put on the weighing machine? Yes, it has been done once or twice.
223. By Mr. Moriarty: During what period did that occur? That was in 1861.
224. By Mr. Williams: About what month? Before October, 1861.
225. By Capt. Mayne: Did you yourself accompany the meat down to the railway station? No; I was always at the shed waiting for it when it came in—always in the afternoon.
226. In the morning? No, now and again in the morning.
227. He agreed to take your weights in the morning? Yes.
228. By Mr. Owen: Have you a clerk there in the morning—any one to represent you? Yes.
229. Were not all these weighings you have spoken of weighings in the afternoon—when the trucks were pushed over the weigh-bridge and had to be taken back? No; once or twice it occurred in the morning; that was when the quarrel took place.
230. And what took place after the quarrel, was in the afternoon? Yes.
231. Did it ever occur in the morning, after this quarrel had been made up? No, it was through that quarrel that the meat was allowed to be taken as having been weighed.
232. You stated that before October the meat was taken back after it had gone over to the weighing machine, and to Mr. Williams you stated it only occurred in the afternoon after the quarrel? It had frequently occurred; the men have told me so.
233. Did you know it of your own knowledge? No. When Mr. Nealds said he would give the weight it was weighed frequently.
234. By Capt. Mayne: How do you know that? The clerk told me so.

235. By Mr. Owen: What was his name? Mr. Milligen.
 236. By Mr. Moriarty: Was it generally the practice to weigh the meat in the afternoon? Yes, except very rarely, once in six months.
 237. By Mr. Owen: Do you know when it has not been weighed? When it was very dark they have done us the favour to hurry it on and take the weight from the book.
 238. By Mr. Moriarty: How many persons compose the meat company? Three now; six at that time.
 239. By Mr. Owen: Did Mr. Nealds at any time ask you personally to advance him any money? No.
 240. When you referred to your books and said they could take the weights from your books—what book do you refer to? A mere common day book. There is stated the weight of every quarter.
 241. The weights are stated separately? Yes.
 242. Did they take the weight from your books? No, I gave it in myself. I offered them to take it from the books. When I said they took the weight from the books, I mean I gave it to them from the books.
 243. By the Chairman: What do you mean by “they”? Their young men—three or four different clerks have come; Mr. Owen part of the time came.
 244. By Mr. Williams: Did you save any time by not having the meat weighed? Yes, of course I did. Sometimes no one was there to weigh it. That was what caused the quarrel—no one coming to weigh it, and after pushing it on it had to be pushed back again.
 245. You have only been told so? I don't know this of my own knowledge.

---

Edward Owen recalled and examined:—

246. By Mr. Williams: Was the meat brought down by the afternoon train ever weighed after Mr. Nealds gave the order? It was not generally weighed—very seldom.
 247. Was it weighed as a matter of rule? No; sometimes it was weighed, very generally not.
 248. Who was generally there to receive the meat when the train came in? Mr. Davidson.
 249. He was the party that usually attended? Yes.
 250. Is your recollection clear that as a rule it was not weighed? Yes. The orders were, that all meat coming down we were to take the butchers' weight of it; who weighed it is a thing I don't know.
 251. As a rule you did not weigh it? As a rule it was not weighed.
 252. By Capt. Mayne: Was it weighed at all between October and March, 1861, in the morning? Never.
 253. By Mr. Williams: You are quite clear about that? Yes.
 254. By Mr. Owen: Were you always present in the morning—every morning from March till October? There was nobody present; the weigh-bridge was locked, and the key was in the office.
 255. And the meat vans passed over the bridge without any weight? Yes.
 256. Was it locked every day from March till October,—are you prepared to swear there was not one single morning from March to October when the weigh-bridge was unlocked? I am not prepared to swear it.
 257. Who had charge of the key? It was kept in the goods office, which was opened in the morning at 6 o'clock, and the meat came at  $\frac{1}{2}$  past 5 o'clock.
 258. Will you swear it was not opened before 6 o'clock? No.
 259. Will you affirm that? I can only state what I know when I was there—it was then opened at 6 o'clock.
 260. You saw the goods office opened? Yes.
 261. Were you there every morning, from the middle of March till October, at 6 o'clock? I cannot say 6 o'clock; I cannot say to half an hour.
 262. Was the office of the goods where the key was kept—was it ever opened by any one but by you? It was opened by the head porter and me.
 263. Had the storekeeper or any other person in the station any right to take the key out? He had no right to take it out. He applies for it and gets it during the day, but he never keeps it all night.
 264. Has he done so without your permission? Not without the permission of some one.
 265. But without your permission? I cannot say, because there is a clerk that acts in my absence.
 266. Were you present when the meat train came in every afternoon, from the middle of March to October? I was not; I was at the station when the train came in.
 267. Did you entrust the management of that train to your subordinate? I was the subordinate. My superior officer took the management of the meat; he was station master at the time.
 268. By Capt. Mayne: In the morning when you were not there, would any one be there to see to the weighing of the meat? No one.

---

Mr. Nealds examined:—

269. By the Chairman: Do you recollect accurately when you repaid the £50? To the best of my knowledge it was in January, but I cannot inform you the direct date.
 270. By Mr. Williams: Did you repay it by your own cheque or by somebody else's? By a cheque not my own.
 271. Whose cheque? Mrs. Louisa Cotton's.
 272. What is Mrs. Louisa Cotton? She is the wife of a person, a watchman at South Creek. He was a late lieutenant in the navy.
 273. What is he now? Watchman.
 274. Where is he now? At South Creek.
 275. In the railway employ? Yes.
 276. What was the date of the cheque? I think it was January.
 277. On what bank? I think it was the English and Scottish.
 278. Was this the only cheque you got from Mrs. Cotton? Yes.
 279. The only cheque you got from her of any amount? Yes, the only cheque.
 280. Did you borrow any other money from her besides, or from Mr. Cotton? Never.
 281. What was Mr. Cotton at the time you borrowed this—was he in the employment of the railway then? Yes.

---

Wednesday, 5 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
 Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

The Chairman: With regard to free passes, the directions of Captain Martindale contained in this document, dated 13 October, are those which you alluded to?

Mr. Nealds: Yes.

First charge continued.

William Read called in and examined:—

282. By the Chairman: What office did you fill in March and October, 1861? Station Master at the Sydney Station. 283.

283. By Mr. Williams: Was it your duty at that time to weigh the meat coming down from the Abattoirs at Liverpool? I came to Sydney on the 7th June; and about a week or two afterwards a bother occurred at the station between the goods clerk and the guard, and this man was suspended. I had not got into seeing the meat weighed at any time. This man spoke to me, and asked me to see Mr. Nealds as to what was to be done. I saw Mr. Nealds and asked him about it, and he said he was going to send this man to Liverpool, and it would not occur again, and that we would get the weight of the meat from the butchers in the morning. Previous to this the goods clerk told me of it, and told me that Mr. Nealds told him the weight was to be taken from Mr. Davidson.
284. From the time you allude to in June up to October, was the meat ever weighed to your knowledge? In the afternoon; not that I know of in the morning; I was not there when the meat came.
285. Was it always weighed in the afternoon? Always, except when we got a special order; or sometimes when the train was late the butchers would go up and ask Mr. Nealds to run it in at once, and of course on such an order being given it has been acted upon.
286. On other occasions did you weigh the meat yourself? I have been present a few times when it was weighed.
287. You don't know whether it was weight or not—have you ever seen it weighed yourself? Yes, half a dozen or a dozen times.
288. In four months—not more? No, I did not consider it my duty to be by.
289. You stated it had been weighed in the afternoon, from June to October? Except I got a special order I never gave orders to the contrary; I always thought it was weighed.
290. Do you know it was weighed? I could not say for certain; I always understood it was weighed.
291. If you don't know it was weighed, why did you state it was weighed from June to October? The weight was always given in to me as having been weighed.
292. Given in by whom? By the clerks—first by Mr. Owen; afterwards, when another was appointed to weigh it, by Mr. Fligg.
293. Did Fligg tell you at the time he weighed the meat, that these were the weights over the weights specified? No; sometimes he has given me the gross weight and the tare of the trucks. After a time I got a book for it to be entered in.
294. Could he not have given you the weights without having weighed the meat at all? He could.
295. And you say between June and October you may have seen the meat weighed four times? I have been present half a dozen times.
296. You did not see it weighed yourself at other times? No.
297. You don't know that it was weighed? No.
298. And all the knowledge you have of the meat being weighed, with the exception of the half-dozen times you saw it, was received from Fligg, the person who brought the weights? Yes. When I first went there I got them from Owen, and afterwards from Fligg.
299. That was all the knowledge you had of the meat being weighed at all? Yes.
300. Was the meat ever weighed in the morning from the time you went to the station up to October? Not that I know of.
301. Did you at any time receive any instructions from anybody that you should not weigh the meat in the morning? The only instructions I had was that I was to take the weights from Mr. Davidson in the morning.
302. From whom did you understand that? The first goods clerk said that he had received instructions from Mr. Nealds not to weigh it in the morning. Afterwards, on speaking to Mr. Nealds about it, he said E. was sent to Liverpool, and the weights were to be given by Mr. Davidson.
303. From that time, so far as you know, the weight of the morning meat was given in by Davidson? Yes.
304. Of course you considered, when Mr. Nealds told you that the weight of the morning meat was to be given in by Mr. Davidson, that it was equivalent to an order that you were not to weigh it? Yes.
305. Were you at the Sydney station when the meat was weighed in October? Yes.
306. Did you find any difficulty in weighing the meat? No, I cannot say there was; the trucks were always weighed on the weigh-bridge.
307. And you have no knowledge that from that time any meat was brought down without being weighed? No, not that I know of.
308. You believe it was weighed on all occasions? Yes.
309. By Capt. Mayne: In the absence of weighing, was there any check applied to ascertain the quantities brought down? Yes, there was a check; I asked Mr. Owen one time, whether the weight given in in the morning agreed or tallied with the weight in the afternoon. I thought he might judge from the number of carcasses that came down.
310. Was that the only check that was applied—was there any other possible check that could be applied in the absence of weighing except that? None except averaging the number of bullocks.
311. By the Chairman: Did you ever examine the number of bullocks coming down in the morning train, as a check of the weight? Yes, once or twice.
312. How did you arrive at the weight of the beasts? I think it was three to the ton; I heard that when I was at Liverpool.
313. That was the average? Yes.
314. Did you ever hear what the weight of a bullock was from the butchers at the slaughter-houses? Yes, some years before I came down. I think that was the average.
315. When you heard of these weights, some other company or private person was sending meat down? Yes, Mr. Atkinson.
316. When the weights were given you at Liverpool by private persons, did you ask the butchers the number of carcasses there might be to a ton? Yes.
317. And the only information you have as to the weight of the beast is the weight you derived from the butchers to check their way-bills by? I did not ask to charge by; I merely asked the average weight of the beasts; perhaps no meat was going down at the time.
318. Then there are other things sent down besides beasts? Yes, mutton.
319. By Capt. Mayne: Sent by these people? Yes.
320. Anything beyond carcasses of beasts and sheep? Only carcasses.
321. By the Chairman: Did they give you the average number of sheep to the ton? No, I never took it.
322. Then your estimate is only an approximate one, seeing you did not take into account the sheep as well as the cattle? I never asked the weight of the sheep, but I think it is half a cwt.
323. Did you take into account the weight of the sheep as well that went down? No.
324. On how many occasions did you take that average? It might be three or four times.
325. By Capt. Mayne: Did you find it to correspond with the weight they gave? Yes; there might be some two or three cwt. out.
326. What was the rate charged? The charge was originally 3d., and then afterwards raised to 4½d.
327. After that system of weighing was recommenced in the middle of October, was there any increase in the receipts from this particular traffic? No, I did not perceive it; I never averaged it.
328. I suppose there are means of ascertaining that? Yes, from the books.
329. Whether there is an increase in the receipts of this particular traffic when the reweighing commenced? Yes; the number of fares are always put.
330. By the Chairman: You say you only know yourself of the weighing a few times in four months? That was only when I was on the weigh-bridge.
331. Was it your duty to look to the weighing of the cattle—the butcher's meat? Not personally to be by.

332. You say, after October, when the order was that the meat was to be weighed, it was always done—had you any other opportunity of knowing it was done than you had before? No.
333. When did the original company, Davidson and others, cease to send? I could not say.
334. By Mr. Owen: Whose duty was it to look after the weighing of those goods? The goods clerk under me.
335. It was not your duty, in fact? No, it never has been.
336. Were you aware of there being an order from the office not to weigh in the afternoon? No.
337. If there had been any order, would it have come under your notice? It must have.
338. Was it not the case that meat when sent down was sold on the platform? Yes, beside the station.
339. Were not the carcasses, when they came down in the trucks, cut up in portions, which were separately marked with their weight? I don't know whether they were marked. I have seen them weighing them.
340. That used to be the custom, was it not, when you were at Liverpool? Yes, in Mr. Atkinson's time.
341. The quarters used to have their respective weights marked upon them? Yes.
342. You could then tell as to the average weight of the animals? Yes, by taking the weights of the quarters.
343. By Capt. Mayne: Did you do so? There were no weights on those that came down from this company.
344. By Mr. Whitton: Did you ever know any difficulty in obtaining the way-bills for the meat sent from Mr. Atkinson? No.
345. Where were you stationed then? At Liverpool.
346. By Mr. Moriarty: You did not count the beasts, so as to get the average? No.
347. You don't know whether 50 or 100 came down in the train? No.

4 November.

Second charge.—Cheques exchanged for cash at the Sydney booking office.

“Mr Nealds has been in the habit of exchanging his cheques for money from the booking office at the Sydney station, and on presentation the cheques have been returned dishonored.”

Mr. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Williams: Have you ever exchanged your cheque or cheques for money at the booking office of the Sydney station? Yes.
2. When? I cannot tell the dates.
3. How often? Frequently.
4. Were any of the cheques you so gave dishonored? Yes.
5. How many? I cannot tell you. They have been returned—not sufficient funds to meet them at the time, but they were always paid.
6. Always subsequently paid? Yes.
7. What money was that you received at the booking office? I really cannot tell. I merely presented my cheque at the booking office, and asked for change.
8. Do you not know whether it was Government money? I presume it was taken as Government money. I merely asked, as one of the public, “Will you give me change for this?”
9. You asked the station master at the window or door to change your cheque? Yes.
10. And you say you don't know what the money was you got in change? I presume it must be from the Government money.
11. Are you not certain? No. Mr. Owen gave me a pound once, and he told me to get it out of his own pocket, but I did not ask the question.
12. Did you see where they got the money from they gave you? I have seen them take it out of the money bowls and tills.
13. What money is in the bowls? Money received at the window.
14. Public money? Yes.
15. Are these men who changed your cheques under your control? To a certain degree they are.
16. Were these moneys received from the traffic for the railway? Yes, I suppose they were; I believe they come from the Government money.
17. Are you not the traffic manager? Yes.
18. Did you not look after the receipts of the money taken at the different stations? No. I am generally about there—on the platform; very rarely in the booking office.
19. Do you not know where the money was put that was received from the public? In the bowls, in drawers, or safe.
20. The money you were speaking of was the money from which your cheques were cashed? Yes, I suppose so.
21. Are you not sure it was so? I don't say it was necessarily so.
22. Have you any doubt that the money that went into the bowls was public money? I suppose it was, because I know station masters put their own money in as well into these drawers.
23. Into these bowls? I presume so.
24. Do you know whether the station masters put their own money in those bowls? Frequently, when they have not got sufficient change.
25. How long were these cheques of yours dishonored before they were paid? I believe there is not a single cheque sent down to me or returned to me that has not been paid on the day it was sent.
26. What was the name of the accountant that sent it down to you? Mr. Walker.
27. In this office? Yes.
28. Can you tell me how many unpaid cheques have gone from this office in that way? I cannot.
29. By Mr. Owen: Do you know whether it is the custom of the public, or any of the public, to hand in their cheques and get payment by the station master? Yes.
30. Have you ever seen it done? Yes, frequently.
31. Can you mention any parties' names who do this? It is of such frequent occurrence. I know that Mr. Neele, of Hunter-street, has done it; Mr. Cowper (the Premier) does it almost every week; when he takes a ticket he gives a cheque for it; it is of common occurrence.
32. By Capt. Mayne: That is for passage money? Yes, or if he wants change for anything money is given if the station master knows the party.
33. Have you any control over the money department? No.
34. Are you in any way responsible for the money? No. I am simply responsible for the money in this way—if the accountant does not receive his returns or money, he sends to me to know the reason why, and to report.
35. The person who has charge is liable for this money—is not yourself? It is the station master.
36. If the station master were to take a cheque and it were dishonored, who would be liable to the Railway for it? The station master himself.
37. The station master takes this security on his own responsibility? Entirely.
38. Have you ever been refused to receive cash for your cheque by the station master? Yes.
39. By Mr. Williams: When? Some little time since, when Mr. Aldridge was station master.

40. By Mr. Owen : As soon as these cheques were returned dishonored, was this fact notified to you? Generally speaking it would not be till the following day—the day of presentation. Directly I learnt it the money was paid.
41. What has been the return when these cheques have been dishonored—no funds or not funds enough? Not sufficient funds.
42. By Mr. Williams : Can you tell us the amount of the cheques? I cannot.
43. What do you mean by not sufficient funds? Perhaps I may have given a cheque for £7 19s. 6d., and there is only £7 18s.
44. Might you not have given a cheque for £7 18s., and there was nothing there? No, you know that could not be the case, because it would not be marked “Not sufficient funds,” if the account is overdrawn.
45. It would not be, “Not sufficient funds,” if the account is overdrawn? No; if the account is overdrawn it would be, there is “no funds.”
46. If you have got an overdrawn account, is the reply “Not sufficient funds”? No.
47. As a gentleman with some experience in dishonored cheques, can you tell us what the reply would be? The answer, if there was funds, but not sufficient, would be, “Not sufficient funds,” but in cases of no funds, the answer is, “No funds.” I have been a clerk in the Union Bank.
48. You have been clerk in the Union Bank? Yes, and am quite cognizant of it.
49. When was that? In the year 1853.
50. By Capt. Mayne : In whose favour were these cheques drawn? I cannot tell.
51. The cheques alluded to? Sometimes they were in favour of myself, sometimes in favour of Mrs. Nealds, for household expenses.
52. By Mr. Williams : Will you say that, at any time any of these cheques were given by you, you had some funds in the bank? Yes, I will.
53. You are clear of that? I am clear.
54. Some funds sufficient to warrant your expecting that they would be paid? Yes, some funds sufficient to warrant my expecting they would be paid.
55. By Capt. Mayne : How often are these returns transmitted—these returns from the station masters? Daily.
56. Subsequent to the first occasion of your giving a cheque and it being dishonored, did the station master make any objection to take your cheque? Decidedly not.
57. On any subsequent occasion? No, except when Mr. Aldridge refused my cheque one day.
58. By Mr. Moriarty : If you gave a cheque, and it was dishonored, you get intimation of it on the day or the day following? On the day following it would come to this office, and then be returned to me. It would first go to the bank, and then be returned to this office, and forwarded from this office to me.
59. Are you aware, of your own knowledge, that it is the practice to cash cheques? Yes, frequently.

Robert Cooper Walker examined :—

60. By Mr. Williams : What are you? Accountant in the Railway Department.
61. Is it part of your duty to receive the money collected at the Sydney station, and for traffic? Yes.
62. How often is it brought to you? Every morning.
63. Amongst the moneys so received you sometimes receive cheques? Yes, we have cheques nearly every morning.
64. Did you ever have any cheques of Mr. Nealds, the traffic manager? Yes.
65. How often? I could not say.
66. Frequently or not frequently? Frequently.
67. Can you tell us about what amount? Various amounts—sometimes £2, sometimes £5, and they ranged as high as £10.
68. Were any of these cheques ever dishonored? Yes.
69. Can you tell how many? As nearly as I can recollect, about four.
70. About when was this—have you any exact account of it, any record of it? No.
71. When was the first? Somewhere about the time of changing the station master.
72. Tell us the date? About three months ago; I don't think we have had any since then.
73. When was the first, not the last? That will be some twelve months ago.
74. Are you sure there have been no more than four dishonored? I don't think there have been more.
75. How long did they remain dishonored on your hands? They did not remain any time on my hands.
76. Can you tell us how long they remained dishonored? No, for this reason, they are sent into the bank and passed to the Colonial Treasurer's credit; we only receive a notice that such a party's cheque is dishonored; I then call on the station master to give me the money or take it up; sometimes the party goes to the bank and takes it up, and we hear no more of it unless the cheque is not taken up. We had a case where the cheques were not taken up, and we had to stop the goods in order to get payment. His cheques were refused in consequence afterwards.
77. You have no knowledge how long these cheques remained unpaid? No; I have reason to believe they were unpaid only a few hours.
78. They might be there one day and taken up the next day? Certainly.
79. Do you know the amounts of these dishonored cheques? We could ascertain the exact amounts. We don't make any entry, because we hold the station master responsible for these cheques; we make no entry, and we look to them to furnish the money.
80. Are you clear about the number of cheques dishonored? I could not say for certain, there might be more, but Mr. Eastwood would be able to tell better than I; when he carries the money to the bank he has the notes of dishonored cheques handed to him by the teller; he could tell the exact number.
81. By Capt. Mayne : Are the cheques generally handed to you for goods traffic or passenger fares? I presume they are. They have only been cashed by the station master.
82. I mean generally? Generally for goods.
83. The ordinary cheques that you receive are made in payment of goods and for passengers? They are payments for goods, sometimes for passengers, principally for goods.
84. By Mr. Owen : Are you aware that cash is given for cheques not merely paid for traffic? Yes, in some instances it was done. If a party's salary is sent down the line the station masters cash the cheques because they are Government cheques, and return the Government cheques as cash.
85. By Mr. Williams : That is a more easy and safer mode of remitting the money? Yes.
86. By Mr. Owen : Have you ever known cheques to be cashed—not only Government cheques? Yes, occasionally I have cashed cheques myself; the Commissioner may send down to me by the messenger or a person I know very well, a cheque, with a request that I would cash it.
87. You say these cheques of Mr. Nealds were always paid? Yes, always.
88. The money was always forthcoming? Yes, I never received any notice that they were not. If they had not been paid I should have been compelled to pay them myself, or to have brought it under the notice of the Commissioner.
89. You say other parties' cheques were dishonored? There was one case of a cheque cashed for goods which was dishonored, and the goods were stopped.
90. You are referring to a case of a cheque that was not paid after being dishonored—Do you know in some case where the cheque was dishonored, and when brought under the party's notice it was paid—do you remember any case of that kind? I have no recollection.

91. Where the cheque was returned by the bank dishonored, and paid by the party without any further steps being taken? I have no recollection. We have had for traffic small cheques dishonored, besides the cheque I spoke of where the goods were stopped; in these instances we had no necessity to stop the goods.
92. You always look to the station master for payment? Yes.
93. He takes the cheques on his own responsibility? Yes.
94. By Mr. Williams: Can you tell us under whose direction the station masters are? Under the traffic manager.
95. He is their superior officer? Yes.
96. Who is the head officer at the Sydney station? The traffic manager.
97. Who is that? Mr. Nealds.
98. And these men who cashed the cheques are subordinate to him? Yes.

Charles Woodman Eastwood called in and examined:—

99. By Mr. Williams: What are you? A clerk in the accountant's department of the railway.
100. Did you receive at any time the money from the Sydney station? Yes, at all times.
101. What time of the day? In the morning.
102. Whom did you get it from? I got the bags.
103. Who gave it to you? The station master.
104. What did you do with it? I brought it down here.
105. You go to the station for it? Yes, I call at the station.
106. You receive it from the station master? Yes, and check it.
107. What do you do with it then? I then take it or send it to the bank.
108. Amongst the money so received by you do you ever have cheques? There is never a day without cheques.
109. Did you ever have the cheques of Mr. Nealds? Not for some time past—yes.
110. Frequently, or not frequently? Not very frequently.
111. How frequently? Sometimes I have not had one for a month, other times two or three.
112. Do you know of any of these cheques being dishonored? Yes.
113. How many? I am not prepared to say.
114. Were they so numerous? No.
115. Give us the number, as near as you can, from one to twelve? Since my admission, now two and a half years, and since I have had anything to do with checking the cash, I should think I had six.
116. Can you tell us the amounts? They varied from £1 to £10.
117. The dishonored cheques? Yes.
118. Do you know how long they remained dishonored? I don't think I presented them a second time. When I had notice of a cheque being dishonored I sent it to the station master, from whom the cheques are taken, and he is answerable to me.
119. And you have heard nothing more of it? Sometimes I have received the cash for the cheques.
120. In reply you have received the cash for the cheques? Yes.
121. Was that on the same day? Yes.
122. Was it always on the same day of receiving the notice? No, it could not be, because the station master would not get the notice until late in the day.
123. When did you receive the money back? The following day.
124. Did you always receive it the following day? I think I have—I might not have.
125. You cannot say whether you did or not? Sometimes I received it from Mr. Nealds himself the same day the cheque came in. The same day the cheque came in Mr. Nealds has given me the money to meet it.
126. To whom did you send these notices? To Mr. Read and Mr. Aldridge. Since Mr. Owen has been station master I have not had any.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

127. By Mr. Williams: You are station master at the Sydney station? I am.
128. How long? Since June last.
129. Have you ever cashed any cheques for Mr. Nealds? I have—a great many.
130. How many? I cannot speak as to the number.
131. What do you mean by a great many? Perhaps eight or nine.
132. For about what amounts? £3, £5, and in small amounts.
133. Do you know what became of these cheques? They were paid into the bank by the accountant.
134. Were any dishonored? Yes.
135. How many? Two.
136. Can you tell us the amounts? One for £3, and the other for £2.
137. Can you tell us how long they were unpaid? I cannot.
138. How long were they unpaid after they came back to you? Two or three days.
139. You received notice from the accountant? Yes.
140. Upon receipt of that notice what did you do? I informed Mr. Nealds of it.
141. How long was it after you were informed of it before the money was paid? I cannot say when this money was paid; I was not informed officially by any one.
142. Who is liable for these cheques which are not met? That is a question.
143. Were you not liable? I should not be liable for cheques belonging to my superior officers.
144. Who has control of the cash? I have; but I am bound to obey his (Mr. Nealds') orders.
145. Do I understand you that you are under the control of Mr. Nealds as to the payment of this money? Yes.
146. And consider yourself bound to dispose of it in any way he may direct? Yes.
147. Are you in the habit of cashing, as a matter of accommodation, cheques not in receipt of payment for traffic? Any other cheque? I am not in the habit—I have done so.
148. Would you cash Mr. Nealds' cheque if you considered yourself liable to refund it on non-payment? I would not. I was cautioned by a party who received the cheques at this office not to do so.
149. How came you to do it? Because I considered Mr. Nealds my superior officer, and the person here could not give me any orders—I am not under his orders at all.
150. And you are under Mr. Nealds? Yes.
151. Who was the person who cautioned you against receiving Mr. Nealds' cheques? Mr. Eastwood.
152. Did he give you any reason for it? Yes, he said he had no funds in the bank to meet them.
153. And he told you not to cash them? Yes.
154. And after that did you cash them? Yes.
155. And your reason was? Obeying Mr. Nealds' orders when he told me to cash them.
156. Whose money was the money in the bowls? It is the revenue—public money.
157. Money received for traffic? Yes.
158. Did you ever know any private money getting in there—money of yours—of the station master's? No, never.
159. So far as you know, is it the habit of the station masters to put their money there? No, far from it, and is very much against the regulations.

160. Now, from your knowledge of this matter, did you ever know that the station masters ever put their money in these bowls? (Mr. Owen objected to the question.)
161. From your knowledge of the practice of the station masters, do they put their money in these bowls? They do not. I have audited the accounts of every station on the line, and in every account that I have counted the money, they have never had a penny of their own more—generally less, if anything.
162. Have you been in the habit of going up the line to enquire into the accounts? I have.
163. Have you ever discovered that it was the practice of the station masters to put their own money in the bowls? Never.
164. These bowls and tills are especially for public money? Yes.
165. And, from your experience in these matters, are so used? Yes.
166. By Mr. Owen: If I were to hand you half a sovereign, and you were to give me a ticket counting 6d., how would you manage if you had no change in the bowls? If you gave me half a sovereign to pay for a sixpenny ticket, if I had no change I would give the half-sovereign to the guard, and request him to get change and give it to the party.
167. Will you assert positively that you never did yourself, or never knew a station master, to take the change out of his own pocket and give the change? I assert positively that I never gave change out of my own pocket to any one.
168. Did you ever know of it being done? No. There is a regulation on all railways in England, that parties are to provide change. There is never any necessity for it; every station has £5 to give change with, so that there is never any occasion of being short of giving change. The principal stations have £5, and the small ones £3.
169. How long have you been station master at Sydney? Since June last.
170. Have you any law or document defining your duties and liabilities? I have not; I have the regulation book, which places me under the orders of the traffic manager, and him only.
171. Do you not communicate directly to the accountant in all matters relating to money? I do.
172. Not to your superior officer on the line? No.
173. Has Mr. Nealds, or has he as traffic manager, any control over the money department? I don't understand your meaning. He has control over the station master.
174. Has he control over him in any matter relating to money? He has.
175. What control? With regard to his cheques, if he came and asked me for change I should obey his orders.
176. You would obey his orders? Yes, and if he instructed me to pay £5 I would do it.
177. Who would be liable if the cheque were dishonored? I don't know; there is an order latterly, within about a month, on account of certain persons' cheques being dishonored, that we are responsible—the station masters; before that I never heard it.
178. To whom was the application made, when the cheques were dishonored, for the payment of the cheques? The application made was that I was to see them paid as station master.
179. By Capt. Mayne: Did you receive any instructions as to your duty when you entered as station master last June? We had a book of regulations.
180. Have you got it? Yes.
181. Defining the duties of the particular officers? Yes.
182. Each particular officer? Yes.
183. How did the money come from the station masters—how did they receive the accounts? They are sent by the first train each morning, in locked boxes.
184. Who would be responsible for the money in these boxes—for the cheques dishonored? I cannot say; according to the resolution issued lately, the station masters.
185. The particular station master, and not the traffic manager? Yes, the station master; I mean in Sydney also.
186. So that the station master is responsible for the money? Yes.
187. And for dishonored cheques? There is an order previously; I cannot say, for the reason that the accountant accepts the cheques, and I cannot see why the station master is responsible.
188. How does he accept them? By receiving them he acknowledges on the face of our accounts that he has received so much money, and part of them are cheques.
189. By the Chairman: You trust the cheques as money—you return it as money in your returns? Yes, and I get a receipt; when these two cheques were dishonored I sent £20, and got a receipt for it, and when they were dishonored notice came to me; I cannot see how I am responsible for the cheques dishonored.
190. By Mr. Moriarty: You are responsible to Mr. Nealds for payment of this money—if he said put £20 of it in your pocket, would you do it? That is a different thing to his giving me a cheque.
191. Would you obey his orders then? There is no similarity in walking away with £20.
192. You say you are bound to obey his orders with regard to this money? Yes, everything in reason.
193. By Mr. Williams: If he asked you to hand over all the station money, would you have done so, and considered you were discharged from it? I should have.
194. By the Chairman: Mr. Nealds is not the medium of your communicating with the accountant—you sent up your money direct to the accountant, and not to Mr. Nealds? Yes, because Mr. Nealds was not there to receive it.
195. Had the traffic manager the power of suspending you? Yes, he had.
196. And taking possession of the money? Yes.
197. If he had demanded money of you without a cheque, would you have given it? Yes. He has done it on several occasions, and Mr. Nealds has got paid out of the till.
198. How did you get it back? I had to wait till I got it back.
199. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Nealds has suspended a station master? He has suspended the goods clerk.
200. By Capt. Mayne: Did you read that regulation? I did; the regulation states that all officers are placed under the traffic manager.
201. For general duty, but for a definite and responsible duty he could not go by this regulation? He has done so.
202. By Mr. Williams: Has there been an order recently on the subject of taking cheques? Yes, very lately, some three weeks or a month ago; it says we are responsible for any cheques.
203. By Mr. Owen: Was that a notification or an order? It was a general order.
204. Defining as your duty a novel duty? No, defining our responsibility for taking cheques.

Tuesday, 11 November.

Second charge—continued.

Charles F. Aldrich examined:—

205. By Mr. Whitton: Have you ever refused to cash any cheques belonging to Mr. Nealds? No, I don't remember it.
206. Have you ever refused to cash his cheques? I have no right to refuse it; I would not do so. I refused to send money up to his house by telegram on one occasion, but I don't remember a cheque.
207. By the Chairman: Is there a telegraph up to Mr. Nealds' house? No; he sent one down to me to the Sydney station, and I have this refused to do, and on another occasion he asked me to give him 10s., which I refused to do; he was then intoxicated.

Further evidence was given by this witness, but as it did not bear upon the charge it was ordered by the Board to be struck out.

C. W. Eastwood called and examined:—

208. By Mr. Owen: Did you at any time tell Mr. Owen not to take the cheques of Mr. Nealds? No, I did not; I had no power or right to do it.
209. By Mr. Whitton: But at first did you not tell him something? I told Mr. Owen to be careful about Mr. Nealds' cheques when he first came to the station.
210. And you did caution him not to take Mr. Nealds' cheques? I cautioned him about not taking them; it was the time one cheque was dishonored on Mr. Read's leaving the station.
211. You cautioned Mr. Owen about taking Mr. Nealds' cheques, and said that Mr. Nealds' cheques had been dishonored? I cautioned him against taking Mr. Nealds' cheques; when Mr. Read left the station there had been a cheque of Mr. Nealds dishonored, and I think about that time a memorandum was sent to all the station masters that they were responsible for the cheques they took.
212. Did you not inform Mr. Owen that, in consequence of some cheque or cheques of Mr. Nealds being dishonored, that he was to be careful in taking Mr. Nealds' cheques? Yes.
213. Do you remember since you were last before the Board, whether any cheques given by Mr. Nealds during the time Mr. Owen was station clerk have been dishonored at the bank? I cannot even now call to mind any time that they have been, but I stated then that they had not. I speak to the best of my memory, and even now I cannot recall to my mind the circumstance. It may or may not have been, but I cannot recall to my mind whether it has been or not; I cannot speak positively whether they were or not.

4 November.

Third charge.—Money transactions with Mr. Dawson, an auctioneer holding sales on the railway premises at Sydney station.

“From minute paper marked charge No. 3, it will be seen that Mr. Nealds did constantly recommend that accommodation should be given to Mr. Dawson beyond that given to other persons using the railway, and that Mr. Dawson did use the platform at Sydney for auction sales for a considerable time, without any charge being made; the charge decided upon by Captain Martindale being abandoned on Mr. Nealds' recommendation.”

Mr. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Williams: Did you ever borrow any money from Mr. Dawson? Yes.
2. When? I cannot tell the date.
3. In what year? 1860.
4. How much? £30.
5. Did you repay it? No, I have not.
6. It is still due—it is not repaid? He has given me a certain length of time.
7. What length of time? I cannot tell you; there is a large portion set on one side for paying it; it is not in my hands.
8. You have made an arrangement to meet it? Yes.
9. Has Mr. Dawson ever used the Sydney platform for sales? Yes.
10. When did he commence doing so? I cannot tell without referring to the paper.
11. Can you tell us the date? The negotiations began on the 4th October, 1859, but he had not the power to sell then.
12. When did he begin to sell? It was approved by Mr. Eagar on the 26th December, under an arrangement.
13. What was the arrangement? The right of sale of produce on the Sydney station.
14. What was he to pay for it—was he to pay anything for it, and did he pay anything? He did pay at the commencement.
15. Was it part of the arrangement he should pay? Yes.
16. Can you tell us what? I think it was one per cent. on the amount of sales, and 10s. a day for the use of the sheds.
17. How long did that arrangement last? (Minute paper relating to Mr. Dawson's application read by the Chairman.)
18. What was done by Mr. Dawson under it? Mr. Dawson was allowed to sell.
19. What time was that? The date is on the paper; the communication was opened in 1859, and I think it was in December, 1859.
20. Till when? I think it might be till two months ago; it might be a little longer.
21. Were these charges agreed to be paid—the charges mentioned therein? I believe he agreed with the Commissioners, not with me.
22. It was known to you? No; if you read the minutes, you will see I said in the minute I never read the minute agreeing to these terms.
23. Do you say you never knew that Mr. Dawson had to pay for the shed? I never knew it till afterwards.
24. When did you know it? I cannot tell.
25. Notice was given in December, 1859, and the result a contract. I want to know what the contract was, when it first came to your knowledge, and what was done under it? On the 17th of December is Captain Martindale's minute, and on the 29th December I wrote to Captain Martindale that it was advantageous, and the result was a per-centage was charged.
26. How do you know that? Captain Martindale told me. (Reads letter 29 December, 1859.)
27. I want to know when you first knew that? The only thing I can go by is the minute paper.
28. When did the arrangement with Mr. Dawson first become known to you? On the 29th December, 1859.
29. What was the arrangement? That there should be a per-centage charged.
30. What per-centage? One per cent., and 10s. a day.
31. How long did the arrangement continue? Not at all, for I recollect the Commissioner said the per-centage should be withdrawn, in order to induce the transport of produce to the line.
32. Was that done on your recommendation? It was done. (Refers to minute paper.) Mr. Eagar says as an experiment.
33. Was there any subsequent arrangement made as to charge? Not that I am aware of.
34. Then in fact the arrangement was never carried out—no charge was made under it? So it appears.
35. Did other people sell at the railway station? Yes; Messrs. Argent, Pritchard, and Williams, applied on the same terms, and a person named Smith, but he never sold.
36. Did they pay anything? I don't know; the money does not pass through my hands.
37. Was that a final arrangement, with regard to Mr. Dawson, to sell without charge, or was it only an experiment? They say so here; I do not recollect it so.
38. You recommended it as an experiment? No, Mr. Eagar did; and Captain Martindale approved it, and Mr. Eagar confirmed it.
39. By Capt. Mayne: Were there many parties selling under the same conditions? Argent, Atkinson, Pritchard, and Williams.
40. Did you bring this before the Commissioner? I brought it before Captain Martindale, I think.
41. Is there any proof of it? I think you will find it in the paper that Captain Martindale went through everything. (Minute paper, 26 December, referred to.)

42. By Mr. Williams: How long did you let that experiment last—was it ever brought under anybody's notice? Yes, Captain Martindale, and I believe Mr. Whitton was aware of it.
43. Did you ever tell him? I knew he was aware of it.
44. You knew Mr. Whitton was aware that Mr. Dawson was selling without paying? I think so; I cannot say positively. The object was to get traffic to the line.
45. You never brought that case under the notice of the manager? No.
46. Or the Commissioner of Railways? Yes, he frequently asked me how it was going on.
47. The present Commissioner? No, only to Captain Martindale.
48. By writing did you bring it under Captain Martindale's notice, or verbally? I cannot tell without referring to the papers.
49. By the Chairman: Have other persons used the platform without paying anything? No. Atkinson when he first held his meat sale paid £1 a day until the charge was done away with.
50. From December, 1859, have other persons sold without charge? No charge was made.
51. How many persons are there besides Mr. Dawson selling? I don't recollect any person selling besides Mr. Dawson. Pritchard and Williams, and I know Argent and Atkinson did sell there.
52. Are there any selling now? No; Mr. Dawson monopolized all the produce.
53. How long has he been the only person selling? A couple of years.
54. How long has he been selling without any charge? I think two years.
55. By Capt. Mayne: Are the sales well attended? Crowded.
56. Has it answered the expectations entertained? Fully.
57. By Mr. Owen: As soon as this arrangement was brought under your notice by the Commissioner, did you immediately suggest that the charge should be taken off? Yes, on the 29th of December.
58. And had you any interview with the Commissioner on the subject? Yes.
59. On what ground? Simply if all restrictions were taken off it would induce persons to send produce to the line.
60. Not referring to any person in particular? Yes.
61. You say it has been successful? Yes.
62. Mr. Dawson is a man having a large connection? Yes.
63. Did his sales absorb all the others? Yes.
64. Did you suggest any other improvements to be made with that view? Yes.
65. To the Commissioner, with the view of increasing the traffic? Yes, and of increasing the receipts.
66. To whom is Mr. Dawson bound, or would be bound, to pay any money—into whose hands? To the station master.
67. What other suggestions did you make to increase the traffic? During the time Mr. Eagar was Minister for Works I made another suggestion, not of a similar kind, but one which he approved generally of—that when any person sent a large quantity of goods, that we should give them a considerable discount on the total amount. Mr. Eagar, looking at it in a commercial view, approved of it.
68. At the time you made these recommendations to the Commissioner, were other persons selling besides Mr. Dawson? They were all anxious to begin; there was no one beginning at this time.
69. All in treaty? Yes.
70. And your recommendation was to apply to one as well as to the other? Yes.
71. By Mr. Williams: Are you quite clear you made the recommendation that no charge was to be made, within a few weeks of the month that the charge was to be made? Here it is, December 29th.
72. But that is 1861? 1859.
73. By the Chairman: Did any person apply to sell on the platform? Yes, Smith; but he went to Wollongong.
74. Who were the others? Argent, I believe, applied to have a sale there.
75. By Mr. Williams: Did Mr. Atkinson ever pay anything? Yes.
76. Was that discontinued on your recommendation? Not that I am aware of. I have not got the papers here. I am not aware I recommended it.
77. Did Mr. Atkinson ever lend you money? Yes, simply as a friend; not since he has been doing business.
78. By Mr. Owen: When you made these recommendations to Captain Martindale, or the Commissioner, did you state to him that charges were not made on certain other lines? Yes.
79. What was it you stated? I stated to Captain Martindale that I was aware that they held these sales on the steam-boat wharves without any charge, and I would suggest it being done here, and with a view of increasing the traffic I recommended it.

4 November.

Fourth charge.—Borrowing money from a man of the name of Cotton, now employed on the railway as watchman at Penrith.

“Cotton has had a pass monthly from Ashfield to South Creek and back, which has not been given to any other watchman or porter, and that previous to his employment by the Commissioner he was allowed a pass free along the railway for a considerable period.

“Mrs. Cotton has also been allowed to travel free by a pass on blank paper, signed “by Mr. Nealds.”

Mr. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Williams: Is there a man under the name of Cotton employed by you? Yes, there is.
2. What was he? Watchman.
3. Where? South Creek.
4. When was he appointed? At the opening of South Creek station.
5. About when? Four months ago; it may be more than that.
6. What was he paid to do? He had been a porter and greaser at the Sydney station No. 1 before he went to South Creek. He had been originally on the line, not immediately—
7. What was he immediately before that? He was up at the coal mines at the north.
8. Do you know that yourself? Yes.
9. How came he to leave that employment? I don't know. I received a letter from his superior officer up there strongly recommending him; I believe it was because he was away from his family, who were living at Ashfield.
10. Did you ever borrow any money from him? Yes.
11. Was it before he went on to South Creek? Yes.
12. How long before? I believe it was in January, 1861.
13. What was he then? He was then porter.
14. Porter and greaser? Yes.
15. And you borrowed—how much? £50.
16. What security did you give him? I did not give any security except a cheque—an acknowledgment for it.
17. Have you ever repaid it? Yes.

18. How long ago was that? The repayment extended over a considerable time; as the wife wanted the money I let her have it.
19. In small sums? Yes, £5, £10, £4, as she wanted it.
20. When was the last of these payments made? I cannot tell without referring to my books.
21. Since his appointment to South Creek station? No, before that; I think it was about six months ago or eight months.
22. What was his original appointment at South Creek? Watchman.
23. At what rate of wages? 8s. per day. He went down at 5s. a day. The Commissioner said it was too small a rate, and he would raise all the watchmen to 8s.
24. He was subsequently raised to 8s.? Yes.
25. Was that recommendation in writing of the Commissioner? No, it was done at this table, going through the pay-list.
26. A verbal communication from the Commissioner to alter the man's salary? No, not this man's— all the watchmen's salaries.
27. And did you alter all the salaries likewise? Yes.
28. Is there any portion of that money you borrowed still due? No.
29. Is any due to Mr. Cotton? No.
30. Do they assert there is? No.
31. When you repaid this amount did you take receipts from these people? No, I have for some; sometimes I gave it to the boy—the son.
32. Did you ever give Cotton a pass from Ashfield to South Creek? Yes, ever since he has been there.
33. Did you ever give it to any other watchman? Yes, every watchman on the line.
34. Is there any other watchman on the line? Yes, Harper.
35. Where at? Menangle.
36. Where does he go up from? From Campbelltown to Menangle.
37. You gave him a free pass? Yes.
38. Whom does he get it from? Me.
39. Did this man Cotton ever have a pass before he was in the Government employ? Yes; when he came to see the Commissioner (Mr. Rae) on being employed on the railway; I mean that Cotton had a pass during the time he was seeking re-appointment in the service.
40. Any other time? No.
41. Is it usual to give free passes to persons seeking employment in the service? Yes, frequently, when they are disabled in the service. This man had a rheumatic fever in the back, and lumbago, when he left.
42. Has Mrs. Cotton been allowed to travel free of cost? Yes.
43. For how long? Various times. I cannot tell.
44. When her husband was not employed? No; for she has come down when her husband was not employed, and I have paid her fare.
45. Did you ever give her a free pass before her husband was in the employ of the railway? I have freed her down—I have paid her fare.
46. By the Chairman: When Mrs. Cotton was travelling without her husband did you pass her down? Yes, I have.
47. By Mr. Williams: What was the pass like—what shape was it in—was it a written pass? Yes.
48. Written by yourself? Yes.
49. What did you say? Pass Mrs. Cotton—third class.
50. Free of cost that carried her? Yes.
51. Was it a pass to last one day? Yes; very likely an order from Ashfield to Sydney and back.
52. How often have you done this? I cannot tell. I have given Mrs. Cotton, as well as the wives of the employés, passes on the line, to come down once a week for provisions; all have that privilege.
53. Who authorized you to do that? I believe I have a discretionary power of using these passes.
54. And you do so? Yes, to our own employés or their wives.
55. What leads you to believe you have the discretionary power? I have an order which states that, "Mr. Nealds to be cautious in the use of free passes."
56. Where is the order? I have not got it here.
57. And giving it to a woman not the wife of an employé is being cautious? Perhaps it might have been incautious.
58. Did you give a free pass to any other member of that family? It was made out to Mrs. Cotton or son.
59. Then the son got a free pass too? When they wanted to come in for fresh provisions.
60. Were these passes returned to the office? I believe they were collected by the guard.
61. Did you make a statement about any of them? I have as to some, but not as to others.
62. Why not as to others—these that are not made to be returned or collected by the guards? I write passes when I come down the line and have not got my printed ones with me.
63. What becomes of these passes—how are they treated? They are torn up generally.
64. When used there is no note taken of them? Yes.
65. You have given passes to the son as well as to the wife? Yes, they were generally made to the wife as well as to the son.
66. How often? I cannot tell.
67. Once a week? I cannot say.
68. How often have you given these passes? I cannot say. It is the custom to give passes to the employés.
69. Who are the employés? Porters and station masters. I presume I am an employé, or was before I was suspended; all the officers in the department are employés. I believe some person in Mr. Whitton's department gave passes.
70. For his wife? Yes; I believe Mr. Trengrouse. The employés in the traffic department get passes from me in my department.
71. Do you know how it was Mr. Trengrouse gave these passes? No.
72. For all you know it may be part of a special arrangement? Yes.
73. By Capt. Mayne: You have spoken of an order to be cautious in giving these passes—what drew forth that order? Simply my general instructions in the first instance—my private instructions from Captain Martindale.
74. They were what as regards this? Mr. Nealds should be cautious in the use of free passes.
75. Had anything occurred previous to that? No. It was before I took up my present appointment.
76. By Mr. Williams: Was that order of Captain Martindale's ever altered? Not that I am aware of. I understood by that order that there were only three persons able to issue free passes—myself, the engineer for the time being, and the Commissioner.
77. Under what circumstances were you to give free passes? It does not state.
78. Is it not restricted? I say it is my discretionary power.
79. Did you ever make any return of these free passes? I believe they were sent in to the head office weekly.
80. Did you every week make returns? No.
81. Was there any check? The collection.
82. Some of them were torn up? Yes.
83. Of the written ones there was no check? No.
84. By Capt. Mayne: Who would have the right of tearing up these passes? I should. They would be returned to me, and put in my letter box.

Wednesday, 5 November.

Fourth charge—continued.

Louisa Cotton called in and examined :—

85. By Mr. Williams : You are the wife of? Frederick Lane Cotton.
 86. Now employed where? At South Creek.
 87. What as? Watchman.
 88. When did Mr. Cotton first enter the service of the Railway? I really could not say—some time ago.
 89. About what time? I have no idea; about two years, or more than that—I think it is more; I could not say within a few months.
 90. What was Mr. Cotton then? Porter.
 91. How long did he continue as porter, and when did he leave the railway? I really don't know; I think it was about eighteen months ago, rather more; I merely judge under circumstances; I have no idea of the date.
 92. Did you ever lend Mr. Nealds any money? Yes.
 93. How much? £50.
 94. When? In 1860—in the latter end of 1860.
 95. What was your husband then? He was a porter on the line.
 96. How came you to lend Mr. Nealds £50? I believe my husband offered it to him.
 97. Were you present—do you know it? I was not present.
 98. Who gave him the money? I wrote the cheque myself.
 99. Where had you the money? I had it in the Australian Bank.
 100. In the Australian Joint Stock Bank? Yes.
 101. What passed between yourself and Mr. Nealds when you gave him the cheque for £50? I did not give it to him—I sent it by my husband.
 102. In fact he gave it? Yes.
 103. Was the money in your name at the bank? Yes.
 104. And the conversation as to lending the money was between Mr. Cotton and Mr. Nealds, and not between yourself and Mr. Nealds? Yes.
 105. Were you present? Yes.
 106. Has the £50 been repaid? Not quite all.
 107. How much has been repaid? I think £42.
 108. Then there is a balance of £7? I think £8 is due—that is my account.
 109. How was the money repaid to you? At various times.
 110. By cheques or money? Mostly money.
 111. Received by yourself? Mostly; sometimes by myself, sometimes by my son, and on one or two occasions by Mr. Cotton.
 112. When was the last payment made to you? It was a small amount in April.
 113. In April last? Yes.
 114. Did Mr. Nealds give you any acknowledgment for the money you lent him? Yes.
 115. In what shape? In an I O U.
 116. Where is it? I have it at home.
 117. You have it still? Yes.
 118. Was he to pay you interest on this sum? Yes, Mr. Cotton said he was to give 15 per cent. interest.
 119. Have you ever had any passes from Mr. Nealds? On one occasion I did.
 120. Only on one occasion? I believe only one. I was ill.
 121. Have you not had free passes from Mr. Nealds? He gave me a pass on one occasion when I was ill; I asked him if he would kindly pass me, and I asked him when I should return it, and he said when he called for it.
 122. What sort of pass was it? It was written on a piece of paper.
 123. How long did you have it? I had it some time, because I was ill. It was about the time of my confinement of my last child. I used the pass three or four times.
 124. You used the pass repeatedly? It was another pass, I believe it was.
 125. How long did you use it? I seldom come up; I don't suppose I used it more than three or four times.
 126. Was it one or two or three months that you were in possession of it? Mr. Shore, the station master, took it.
 127. How long ago? I could not say.
 128. How long had you it in your possession—say within a week or a month? Well, I could not say; three or four weeks.
 129. Might it not be more? I really would not be certain.
 130. Do you think it was more? I don't think it was.
 131. Was that the only pass you got from Mr. Nealds? I think it was.
 132. Are you quite sure? I remember on one or two occasions asking him if he would pass me, and he has passed me.
 133. By giving you a pass? By simply passing me on.
 134. Without a ticket? Yes.
 135. That was to come to Ashfield? Yes, from Sydney.
 136. What was your husband then—was he in the railway employ? I don't think he was; he was at Newcastle when I had the written pass.
 137. He was not in the railway employ? No, not when I had a free pass.
 138. What was he doing at Newcastle? He was employed there.
 139. By whom? By Mr. Winship.
 140. How long was he away from you? I don't know.
 141. Can you not give us an approximation of the time—was it a year or a month? I rather think he went away in May and returned on the 1st August; it might have been April, I rather think it was May.
 142. You think it was April? Yes.
 143. By the Chairman : He returned in the August following? Yes.
 144. And it was during that time you had the pass? Yes.
 145. Do you know of your son having a pass free? Yes.
 146. When was that? During the same period—the time I was ill.
 147. Was that a free pass? Yes.
 148. Was your son ever in the railway employment? Never. He is only a little boy.
 149. How old is he? Ten or twelve years.
 150. How came you to give the pass up? I think Mr. Shore asked me for it.
 151. When was that about? I think it must have been the latter end of August; I go by a little circumstance that occurred.
 152. Was it after your husband returned? Yes.
 153. And at that time you were living at Ashfield? Yes.
 154. The pass was used between Sydney and Ashfield? I did not always use it; I paid on several occasions. If I was too late I sometimes used it.
 155. You used it sometimes, and did not use it on other occasions—you could, if you liked, have used it?

- it? Yes, but I did not use it because I thought I should be infringing on Mr. Nealds' intention in giving me the pass.
156. By Capt. Mayne: What were the circumstances under which this free pass was given to you? I was very late one evening, and was very ill at the time. I was taken ill at Sydney, and I was without any change, and I asked Mr. Nealds if he would pass me down.
157. Where was this? At the Sydney station.
158. Did he give you a written pass? Yes, there was no time for anything else—the train was about to start.
159. There was time to write the pass? I was in a great hurry, and I hurt my shin getting in. I should not remember this only for the peculiar circumstances that happened to myself.
160. By Mr. Moriarty: Did Mr. Nealds mention at the time that it was a general pass, or a pass for a day only? I think I smiled at the time, and said I should not give it up, and I asked Mr. Nealds how long it was for, and he said he would call on me for it. Something like these words he used, meaning that he would recall it.
161. Did he recall it? Yes, Mr. Shore did; I suppose he did.
162. Did Mr. Nealds ever recall it before Mr. Shore called on you for it? No, I did not see Mr. Nealds often.
163. You supposed Mr. Shore's calling for it was because he had been told by Mr. Nealds to recall it? I presumed Mr. Nealds had given the order, but my intention was to have returned it to Mr. Nealds myself.
164. Where was the pass written? I think it was in his own office, while I was getting in.
165. By Capt. Mayne: Has anything been said about this pass since you gave it up to Mr. Shore? No, I believe not.
166. No question has been asked you about it till to-day, by any one? No, I have seen no one, in fact.
167. Was the pass to your boy a separate pass? Yes.
168. What became of it? I believe he returned it to Mr. Shore.
169. At the same time that yours was? No, at different times.
170. By Mr. Williams: Was it a general pass that was given to your son? No.
171. It was not a special pass? No.
172. By Mr. Owen: It was a printed pass? Yes.
173. By Mr. Williams: And to yourself, written on a piece of plain paper? Yes.
174. By Mr. Moriarty: You say you had not time to get a ticket the time the pass was given to you? No; I was very ill at the time.
175. And you were late for the train? I was late, and I had no change in my pocket, and I saw Mr. Nealds in the office, and I asked him if he would give me a pass, as I was without the means of getting a ticket, it was so very late.
176. By Mr. Owen: Are you aware of the wife of any porter or servant employed on the railway having passes given to them? Never. I don't know any one. I live and keep myself so to myself that I don't know any one on the line.
177. By Mr. Moriarty: The pass was written in Mr. Nealds' own office? Yes.
178. By Mr. Owen: Do you know anything of the transaction about this money matter between your husband and Mr. Nealds? Yes.
179. Did your husband ever tell you what it was? Yes.
180. Did he inform you what it was? He merely informed me that he made the offer of it, if I remember right, to lend it, and Mr. Nealds, in the first instance, refused it.
181. Then he repeated the offer? Yes, afterwards, and he said he was very welcome to it.
182. Is it not true that this was done by Mr. Cotton when you received some money from England? Yes, it was out of that money it was lent.
183. And you were seeking for an investment for that money? Yes.
184. Are you quite sure that all that money was not repaid? Yes, I am quite certain, from my notes which I made out a long time ago, with the hope of meeting Mr. Nealds to compare notes with him. The paper I have here (producing a memorandum of an account) has been made out this six months.
185. You have not received any payment since? No.
186. By Mr. Williams: You made it out with the hopes of seeing Mr. Nealds? Yes; but when I have come up to Mr. Nealds' house he has not been in the way.
187. By Mr. Owen: When your husband was employed at South Creek where did he live—where did you live? At Ashfield.
188. What was his employment at South Creek? Watchman.
189. It was necessary for him, therefore, to go to his duty, to travel upon the line between Ashfield and South Creek every day? Yes.
190. How long was your husband out of employment by the railway? I rather think it was nearly eighteen months, but I am not quite certain. He was invalided from the line.
191. He was invalided on the line? Yes; the doctor told him that it was the constant stooping that had injured him.
192. By Mr. Williams: You understood from your husband that he had pressed the loan upon Mr. Nealds? Oh yes, on two occasions.
193. He told Mr. Nealds he would charge him 15 per cent.? No, it was Mr. Nealds' offer to give 15 per cent.
194. Have you ever asked Mr. Nealds for the payment of the balance that was due to you? Yes.
195. How long ago? Well, I don't know; I think on two or three occasions.
196. When were these occasions? Since April.
197. What did he say? I believe, on one occasion I saw him, it was late, and I had not much conversation. He said he had made out the account and given me beyond the sum.
198. That is not as you say? No.
199. And you told him so? Yes, and told him if it were so I should not have been there to ask for it.
200. By the Chairman: When the money was lent was your husband employed on the line? —

Frederick Lane Cotton called in and examined:—

201. By Mr. Williams: What are you, Mr. Cotton? Watchman, at South Creek station.
202. You were formerly a porter in the employ of the Railway? Yes.
203. When were you appointed? I think it was in July.
204. Of what year? It must have been in July, 1859.
205. How long did you continue in the employ then? I continued from July till December twelve months; I left paralysed.
206. Last December? No, December twelve months, 1860; I think that was the date of it.
207. When were you next employed by the Railway? I think it was in May I was appointed watchman at South Creek.
208. In the interval between December and your re-appointment you were not in the Railway? No.
209. We have heard you lent £50 to Mr. Nealds? Yes.
210. When? Two years last November twelve months, 30th November.
211. In the year 1860? Yes.
212. How did you come to lend him £50—what did you say to him? I had a portion of a legacy come out from England, in the Union Bank, and Mr. Nealds asked me to lend him £50.

213. Was that known to Mr. Nealds? Yes.
214. Did you ever tell him of it? Yes; I had some documents from England which I did not understand, and I asked Mr. Nealds' advice upon them; then they were sent Home again, and money came out.
215. Did you mention that circumstance to Mr. Nealds? Yes.
216. That the money came out through the Union Bank? Yes.
217. And he improved the occasion by borrowing £50? Yes, I lent him the money.
218. Did he make the application to you? Yes; he offered to give me a cheque for it the next day, but I did not require it.
219. Were you to get interest for it? Yes, I forget whether he was to give me 12 per cent. or not; I did not take any notice at the time.
220. Were you not to have had interest? Yes; I went home to Petersham to get the cheque, and when I came back I found Mr. Nealds was gone, so I took the cheque and gave it to Mrs. Nealds.
221. Has that money ever been repaid? A portion of it.
222. What part? I received £10 and £3, and the wife used to get it when she wanted it.
223. And there is still a balance due? So the wife makes out.
224. She keeps the accounts? Yes.
225. She is your accountant? Yes.
226. Did he give you any security for this money? Yes, he gave me an I O U directed to Mrs. Cotton, which I gave her.
227. Do you know where the I O U is? No, my wife has got it somewhere.
228. Mr. Nealds has not got it? No.
229. Do you know when the last payment was made—was it to you or your wife? I think the wife got the last; I know she did. I never received anything beyond the £10 and £3; she always gets the money; if it should come in a letter I should give it to her; I always give her all my pay as well as all the money I get I give to her.
230. Did you ever have a free pass on the line? Yes.
231. When? I have had a free pass since last September twelve months, when I was sick; I had rheumatism, and had to come up to the doctor.
232. What sort of a pass was it? Sometimes it was a printed pass and at other times on plain paper.
233. You had a series of passes? Yes.
234. With Mr. Nealds' name on them? Yes.
235. What became of those passes? I gave them back as the time expired and got others.
236. What time? They were issued to go sometimes for a week and sometimes for a month.
237. And at the expiration of that time you used to give them up and get a fresh one? Yes.
238. During all this time were you in the Government employ? No, I was sick.
239. How long had you passes when you were not in the Government employ? I did not require them after I was well enough to get into Sydney; about four or five months I had them; I had rheumatic fever; I caught cold on the station.
240. Had your son passes—free passes? Our little boy used to come up and down. Mr. Nealds used to pass him, and used to send him with a note for the wife for the money that was owing.
241. On account of £50? Yes, he used to pass him up and down; I was away part of the time.
242. Where? I was at Newcastle four months.
243. In what year? June or July of 1861.
244. During that time you were employed by Mr. Winship? Yes.
245. At what rate of wages were you first employed at South Creek station? 5s. a day.
246. When were your wages raised? They raised my wages about the time of the Volunteer Ball at Penrith, 27th June or the middle of July.
247. What are they now? 8s. a day.
248. By Mr. Moriarty: How long was it after you were laid up that you got these passes? I got the pass in September, when I came from Newcastle.
249. Did you catch the illness while working in the Government service? Yes, I was invalided in December when at work; I had members affected, and my fingers and toes prolated.
250. You went to live at Homebush? That was when I was greaser.
251. You were laid up for some time? Yes.
252. By the Chairman: Your employment on the railway had ceased for a time? Yes, I had a relapse of the fever, and Mr. Nealds gave me the pass.
253. By Mr. Owen: And you say you were first laid up in the employment of the Government? Yes, when I was at work on the Sydney platform.
254. Did you get a recurrence of the same illness before you were re-employed? Yes.
255. And Mr. Nealds gave you the pass to come up to the Commissioner, to be re-employed? The pass was given me when I was not sufficiently well to ask for employment till the latter end of the year.
256. When you came to Sydney, before you got a relapse of this illness, was it not your intention to seek re-employment by the Commissioner? I could not; I was too bad with the rheumatism. After I got well, then I made use of the pass to spin out the time.
257. Until you got employment? Yes. I was three or four months bad with rheumatism in my jaw, knees, and hip.
258. By Mr. Moriarty: Were they printed passes or written? Some were printed and some were written. Sometimes I would be pretty well, and then the pain would come on again. I used the passes to come and see the doctor, and latterly to see the Commissioner.
259. You got these passes from Mr. Nealds? Yes, it was at that time.
260. By the Chairman: What did you ask Mr. Nealds for the passes for? He offered to give me the passes to go up and down.
261. Were you ill at the time? I was walking lame with rheumatism, and he offered to give them to me.
262. By Mr. Owen: Are you aware of other porters having had passes given to them where they lived at a distance from the station where they were employed? I cannot say I do.
263. Do you know the watchman at Rooty Hill? Yes, P—.
264. Were you aware he had a pass to go to and fro? Yes; he was on night service, and used to go backwards and upwards the same as myself.
265. You are aware of P— at Parramatta—do you know if this person in the employment of the railway had a pass? Mr. P. used to be a watchman at Parramatta; I saw him with one.
266. Do you know Hooper at Menangle? He has only lately gone up.
267. Do you know that he has a free pass? No.
268. At the time you got this legacy from Home, did you not make application to Mr. Nealds about investing it? Not that I am aware of, because the Manager of the Union Bank wanted to do that for me. I took it out of his hands to buy some property. It was our intention to buy some property directly we got the money, which we did at Ashfield.
269. Did Mr. Nealds say he had paid the whole of the money he had of you and shew you his account? We never saw the account.
270. When you say "we," do you mean your wife—does your wife say she has not seen it? She says some money is still due to her.
271. Did not Mr. Nealds come with the account and shew it to you? He shewed me an account at the office, but it was such a distance off I could not make it out, and I told the wife of it when I went home, that that Mr. Nealds said there was his account, and she said it was impossible; she had made out the account and there was a deficiency. The first time he shewed it to me I think he made it £4 or £5 less.

272. The first account was £46, and in the second account the remaining £1 was paid up? I never saw the second account, I had not a minute to spare; it was never put in my hands to examine; we have never compared his account yet; I told my wife of it at the time; she said she had got her book and made it short; I know I received £13, and that is all I know about it.

273. Do you know that your rate of wages was raised with the other watchmen at Blacktown and Rooty Hill? The watchman at Blacktown and Rooty Hill and myself were all raised; the watchman at Rooty Hill is not there—he has left; it was raised when the night goods train commenced travelling; we got an advance two or three nights after that.

—

John Rae called in and examined:—

274. By Mr. Williams: What are you, Mr. Rae? Under Secretary for Works and Commissioner for Railways.

275. Did you ever instruct Mr. Nealds to increase the rate of wages for the night watchman on the line? I have no recollection of doing so.

276. Do you know the rate formerly paid? I think it was 5s. a night.

277. By your authority has that ever been increased? Not to my knowledge; I am not aware of having authorized any increase.

278. Do you believe you ever did? If I have done so it will be in writing.

279. You never verbally did so? I never did so verbally; I am not much in the habit of increasing the pay at all; my belief is that I have not done so.

280. And if you had, you say it would be in writing? Yes.

281. Did you make enquiries if there was any paper about this matter? I made enquiries of Mr. Moody, and he said no. My impression was that they were paid 5s., but there are so many men employed I can't say positively.

282. By Capt. Mayne: It might occur without you observing it if the instructions were given? For a considerable time the pay sheets were under the charge of Mr. Whitton, and he checked them before they came to me, and were marked with Mr. Whitton's initials. Since then a change took place and they are now checked by the chief clerk.

283. By Mr. Whitton: Will Mr. Rae state to you why I arrived at the determination to have nothing more to do with the pay sheets? I instructed the traffic manager to prepare a statement shewing the names of all parties employed at the different stations, and gave these instructions that they should be compared with the pay sheet before me to see that it corresponded with the wages fixed. But I cannot at this moment say whether these alterations took place after or before the time it was given up by Mr. Whitton, but it was after I think Mr. Whitton had given up checking them.

284. After Captain Martindale left the Colony—are you aware of the number of porters I reduced at the time? I remember we went into the matter pretty closely, and reduced a considerable number. I cannot charge my memory as to the number, but it was a very considerable number. We took every station, and saw how many we could reduce without decreasing the efficiency of the department.

285. Was seventeen the number? I may say from fifteen to seventeen.

286. During the time these pay sheets went through my hands—are you aware whether there was any increase in the numbers we allowed to Mr. Nealds, beyond the number agreed on when Captain Martindale left the Colony? I think not, never without authority.

287. I believe you remember the reasons—one of the reasons for my giving up checking the pay sheets was an attempted increase of the number I had fixed—and did I not declare, on giving up checking the pay sheets, that it was because Mr. Nealds had put down extra men? Yes, it was because the number was not down in the sheet reduced by you.

288. And stated by me as unnecessary for the working of the traffic? Yes.

289. By Capt. Mayne: And your impression is, that the increase of wages has taken place since Mr. Whitton gave up checking the pay sheets? Yes.

290. What was the check substituted when Mr. Whitton ceased to do so? The check substituted was that it was to be done by the chief clerk, but there was an interregnum for a short time after Mr. Whitton gave it up, before the new regulations were issued. The chief clerk will be able to tell you when the alterations took place (pointing to two names inserted at the bottom of pay sheet); I take it for granted that when these sheets are submitted to me they are all right.

291. And that they had gone through all the proper departmental checks? Yes, and the instructions I gave of not passing any wages except those included in this list that was prepared, I thought that it was the best check I could have of the correctness of the list.

292. By Mr. Owen: If an increase of this kind were made it could easily be ascertained—it must have been on the face of the sheets? Yes, the increase must have taken place and gone on for weeks without my noticing it.

293. If it did occur at all it would have come under the notice of the person appointed to check it? Yes, except during the short time from Mr. Whitton giving it up. I cannot tell what brought it to my notice—it must have been some increase that appeared to myself that made me ask the question. I found then that it was not checked by Mr. Whitton, and I immediately gave instructions that it should be checked in the other department.

294. Who has the regulation of the number of porters to be appointed? We expected in the first place that the traffic manager would give his aid; of course it is determined ultimately by the Commissioner, and beyond him by the Minister.

295. The number of porters during and before the time you came in office, and during Captain Martindale's time, was fixed by Captain Martindale? Yes.

296. And as soon as you came into office, it was recommended that the number should be reduced—you investigated the matter, and consulted with Mr. Whitton, and reduced the number of porters? Yes, we reduced them say fifteen or seventeen.

297. Has there been any increase of traffic since that time? Yes, I presume so.

298. The increase of traffic would oblige the increase of the number of hands occasionally? Yes.

299. When there is a sudden increase of traffic, the traffic manager has the power of appointing extra men for the time? He has that power to a certain extent, on the understanding that he reports it immediately; but when we made this alteration in the number, the traffic manager, so far as I remember, was given to understand that we would not employ any temporary men at all, if possible. In fact, it was partly with the intention of getting rid of these supernumerary hands that we took the matter up, and we endeavoured to fix the number required at every station.

300. Leaving the discretion with Mr. Nealds in case of some emergency? There might be a discretion, but we objected to the system of employing supernumerary men, because there was no check upon them.

301. Who has the power of raising the wages? No person. The Commissioner, by the Act. I invariably act, under all these cases, under the sanction of the Minister.

302. Then you investigate all the matters that are sent to you by Mr. Nealds, the traffic manager? I always investigate them.

303. Is it not quite possible that you may have had a minute sent to you, such as raising the wages on one occasion for extra trains being run, and considering it a very proper thing, that you should not have given a written answer to the matter? I am quite certain from my usual practice that I could not have done so, or that Mr. Nealds could have acted upon it. In fact a verbal instruction is not sufficient to alter the rate of wages; we invariably give them in writing. I speak to the best of my belief. I may state at the same time, that Mr. Nealds has had frequent verbal consultations with me on various subjects, but on a matter of wages I don't think I could have acted in this way without doing it in writing.
304. Mr. Nealds refers to some pay sheets shewing the number of men? There was a list made out. After this arrangement was made as to the reduction of the men, between Mr. Whitton and myself, we got a list made out and stuck to that list. Since this alteration I have called for another list.
305. By Mr. Whitton: When Captain Martindale left the Colony, was any recommendation made by Mr. Nealds for a reduction in the number of porters, or was it made by myself? By yourself.
306. Did Mr. Nealds always report when he employed extra men, or has it been his general practice? Do you mean a general report?—I don't think he has been in the habit of reporting when he employed extra men, beyond their names being included in the fortnightly pay sheet with the others. Mr. Nealds has stated to me occasionally that he has found it necessary to employ additional men. (Mr. Rae is referred to the minutes of 9 July, 1862.)
307. By Capt. Mayne: Do these lists contain the rate of wages? Yes, and the names of the porters at the different stations, and the amount of wages due to each; and it was my instructions that they should be checked with that list.
308. What was the rate of wages? 8s. at Sydney, and at South Creek 5s., for watchman. (List of 28 July referred to. List authorizing 8s., 19 July.)
309. By Mr. Williams: Can you tell us whether your attention was called to this particular rate of payment? I cannot say.
310. Was your attention ever drawn to the fact that the wages were increased by Mr. Nealds from 5s. to 8s. a day? No. My intention was that until the list submitted was in accordance with the rates previously passed that payment should not be made, and Mr. Nealds was sent for with regard to the list. You will observe that this list first submitted by Mr. Nealds is of the same date, and does not contain the names of the parties at the station. I wanted it to contain the names, and I marked it "Give the names." Presuming when this document was submitted, shewing the names, it was correct. The names are here. I find Cotton, watchman at South Creek, was in the other list at 5s., is here at 8s., but how it came I cannot say.
311. By the Chairman: Your minute referred to the names not being in the list? Yes, the first thing I said was, "I cannot pass the cheques until the list is complete."
312. By Mr. Owen: What completeness do you refer to? The accountant says the list does not agree with the pay sheet or the accounts to be paid. I said until it agreed with the pay sheet it could not be paid.
313. These accounts were, however, tendered to you and passed? I think Mr. Nealds was sent for on this occasion, and that the accountant, Mr. Nealds, and Mr. Moody, went over the matter, and satisfied me that they had found it all correct. I am satisfied there could not have been a rise from 5s. to 8s. without my remembering it.
314. Well, do you remember it? I have no recollection, but it appears that this paper was submitted before I wrote this.
315. By Capt. Mayne: You allowed the payment to take place at a rate you never intended? I have no recollection of authorizing the increase.
316. Your impression is that Mr. Moody, Mr. Nealds, and the accountant, had gone into the matter and satisfied you that it ought to be paid? Yes, that is my impression—that they checked the accounts.
317. By Mr. Moriarty: Was that the only check on the accounts? I could not say.
318. By Mr. Williams: Who furnished the accounts? It was furnished to justify the pay list. With reference to the 8s. scratched out, and query 5s., I find a minute that he has gone over the accounts and explained the deficiency. (Letter of 31 July referred to.)
319. By Mr. Owen: At any rate this paper with the marks has been submitted to you? It is not my figures.
320. Has this rate of wages continued ever since the watchman received 8s.? I presume so.
321. A number of discrepancies are alluded to, but nothing with regard to the wages of the watchman? When this list came before me Mr. Nealds was sent for, and after the thing was satisfactorily explained the account was passed.
322. By Capt. Mayne: Was this discrepancy between 8s. and 5s. brought to your notice? It was not, and I have no recollection of it being made.
323. By Mr. Moriarty: The first list that you alluded to was on the 9th of July, 1862? The following fortnight the question arose in the second list.
324. By Capt. Mayne: And the matter was gone into between yourself, Mr. Nealds, the accountant, and Mr. Moody? Yes; an explanation took place, and I was satisfied it was correct.
325. By Mr. Moriarty: Had Mr. Cotton been receiving more than 5s. previous to this? I was not aware.
326. He had been receiving 5s. before that? I believe so.
327. And in July it was down at 8s.? That list would authorize it, and I believe it has been paid ever since.
328. By the Chairman: Have you any memorandum, bearing date 17th to 19th July? No; I signed the sheets in the same manner, and I gave some instructions with regard to them. I remember on one occasion we paid the men before we got a return. I think in July I have gone over the list with Mr. Nealds.
329. By Capt. Mayne: And any discrepancy between that list and the pay sheet would be apparent? Yes.
330. By Mr. Williams: But the fact of an increase from 5s. to 8s. was not brought under your knowledge? No.
331. And not being brought? I could not find any allusion to it. (Minute of 30th August referred to.)
332. By Mr. Owen: What were those discrepancies—would it not be a discrepancy if A was removed from the station at Blacktown to Campbelltown? They are very trifling. (Read from the minute—35s.) Several of these were explained very simply, but there is nothing here about raising the wages. If it was a discrepancy of one man being removed from one station to another it would be noticed.
333. By Mr. Whitton: Might not the discrepancy be accounted for in this way—that Mr. Nealds charged a certain number of men on his pay sheet, and on his being remonstrated with by you, two men were struck out of the pay sheet? Of course a discrepancy may be very large or very small—a discrepancy of that sort would be a large one.
334. Might not the discrepancy arise in this way—that Mr. Nealds charged in his pay sheet a certain number of men, and on being remonstrated with by you, that he struck out two men on one fortnight's list, because you thought it was unnecessary to be there? Of course such a thing might occur, but I don't recollect the circumstance you allude to. I may say it was not once or twice, but repeatedly I have remonstrated with Mr. Nealds to keep down the expenditure and get rid of unnecessary porters.
335. By Mr. Owen: Were your recommendations acted upon by Mr. Nealds every time? He was slow in acting on it as I should have liked. Of course when ordered it has been done.
336. By the Chairman: One return bears date 17th of July, 1862, when you ask for the names of the officers to be given; then this one appears two days later, and there are two or three discrepancies in the the amounts on the different rate of wages between the two lists—Would there be any memorandum of yours authorizing the passing of this list? No, I don't believe there is any beyond what you have before you. The only reason I am talking of this is, I find it the same date. You can get the information from the accountant.

337. It would not have been passed unless it got your initials? The minute would have been sufficient; this minute which it refers to is my passing. If you refer to this you will find they have been acting on it, and that is their authority for doing so. But I cannot say how the 8s. got in; all I asked for was merely to have the names, in the first instance. There is another matter which has some reference to it. I find that, on the opening of the railway to Menangle, Mr. Nealds submitted a statement of what he proposed to be done. (Statement read.) This was submitted to the Minister, who marked it—"Approved, except B. the gate-keeper." This shows our usual course—that even the alteration of a few shillings was submitted to the Minister, and we got his authority before doing it. I am quite satisfied I would not authorize the increase 5s. to 8s. without submitting it to the Minister.

338. By Capt. Mayne: That is, you would not intentionally? Yes.

339. By Mr. Owen: That last alteration you refer to is a very different one to the present—it was a new station being opened, and all the staff were to be appointed and the salaries fixed? Not necessarily—we generally put a few from one station to another. But as far as the officer at Menangle is concerned, I merely mentioned it to shew what trifling things are necessary to go before the Minister. I am satisfied that I could not have authorized the raising the wages from 5s. to 8s. I would not have done it without first consulting Mr. Whitton, and I don't think I would have done it without consulting the Minister.

340. I would call your attention to the fact that, in the list of officers appointed to the Menangle station, the wages of the watchman are put down at 8s., and that is sanctioned by yourself and the Minister? Yes, on the 25th August, and authorized on the 27th August. He is called watchman and night shunter.

341. By Mr. Whitton: Would this minute, which has been sanctioned by the Minister, have been sanctioned if he had been of opinion that the rates of wages were not according to the previous pay sheets? No.

342. And if this was submitted to him, he would have taken it that these were the wages given? Yes, that 8s. were paid previously for the same duties.

R. C. Walker, accountant, called in and examined:—

343. By the Chairman: From what are the pay sheets made out, and how do you check the amounts put down? These sheets are sent in certified by the traffic manager. We then have a list authorized by the Commissioner with which we check these rates.

344. Upon pay sheet bearing date July 26, here is a statement direct from the manager, stating this to be passed. If you look at South Creek you will find 5s. paid, but put down 8s., and the words "query 5s."—is that in your writing, that 5s.? No, I think it is Mr. Eastwood's.

345. Do you remember these two accounts? Yes; they have been compared at the time, and I believe the difference it was spoken about and agreed to be passed.

346. With respect to this difference in the amount—do you recollect anything about the difference between 8s. and 5s.? This is calling attention that the amount is more than is put down in the pay sheet, and it was paid at that rate, 5s. And I believe that 8s. was allowed because it was to be increased hereafter. I think I spoke to Mr. Nealds about it at the time. Mr. Nealds said it was an after arrangement, but that he was to get the 8s. in the next sheet.

347. Did Mr. Nealds say by whose authority there was to be this rise in the salaries? I suppose from the Minister and Commissioner. He merely communicated it to me verbally, not officially.

348. Did you speak to Mr. Rae about it? No, I don't think I did; Mr. Eastwood may have done so. Sometimes he brought up the cheques, and sometimes I did.

349. And looking at the next pay sheet, of August 9, you see 8s.—3s. back pay? Yes, I suppose that has been paid on the understanding that this was to take effect from that time. We pass the sheet as it was, because it was a less amount. We should not increase it; if it was under the amount we should draw the cheque, and if any money was due to the man we should have paid it in the next pay sheet. We always draw the lowest amount.

350. On what authority was the increase made up in the next pay sheet? I suppose the pay sheet.

351. Have you any authority for the raising of the salary? There is authority. I imagine it was put in with the consent of the Commissioner. That is the authority which we would go upon, 9/7/62.

352. Do you recollect seeing that sheet, the return of Mr. Nealds, dated 17th of July? I can't say I have; I don't recollect seeing it. This is the first list I received, 19th July; I don't think any other; I recollect these names were put in afterwards. The two last names were added by Mr. Nealds in the office after the list had been sent in.

353. By Mr. Moriarty: Two items? Three items.

354. By Capt. Mayne: That is the list which differed? Yes.

355. But what Mr. Rae asked was for the list completed? The insertion of these names completes the list. Mr. Rae passed this list, dated 17 July, and says "Let the names of the officers be given." That never came to me—it only went to Mr. Moody, and it was on that list that these three names were not in when the list first came in, and Mr. Nealds put them in afterwards.

356. By Mr. Whitton: They were not in when the Commissioner sanctioned the payment of the cheques? They were not in when I got the vouchers.

357. Did you receive instructions from the Commissioner to increase the pay from 5s. to 8s. a day? No, I received no instructions; I supposed the Commissioner had authorized it to be put in.

358. Do you know that the Commissioner saw these names? They were not inserted in my presence. When I got the list from the Commissioner they were inserted.

359. After you got it from the Commissioner? It came from this room after Mr. Nealds had put it in.

360. And you say these names had been written down by Mr. Nealds in your office? Not in my office. In this list there were not these names, but afterwards they were in the list that came back to me. I think these names were put in, by the sanction of the Commissioner, by Mr. Nealds.

361. Were you present when the Commissioner sanctioned it? No, I suppose he did, as the paper came back to me officially, and with this addition to it.

362. As a matter of fact, you did not see these names inserted, and you don't know that the Commissioner sanctioned them? No, I presumed they had been authorized by Mr. Rae.

363. By the Chairman: On the presumption of Mr. Rae having authorized them you issued the cheques? Yes.

364. And that list is what you have been paying on? Yes, until recently.

365. By Mr. Owen: How did that "query" come to be placed beside the figure 8? I suppose Mr. Eastwood, in going over the sheet with the pay sheet, saw a difference, and queried it, but passed the voucher for the lesser amount.

366. What steps are taken when a query is made—is the matter laid before the Commissioner? If it were a lesser amount we should leave them to find it out, and let them call for their pay; if more we should not take any trouble to ask about it.

367. It appears in the next pay sheet there were the same figures of 8s. and 3s., to make up the deficiency in the former sheet? There was some authority; the minute paper authorizes that increase.

368. Did you say that Mr. Nealds told you that the pay would be increased next time? Yes, pretty nearly as I can recollect.

369. By Mr. Whitton : When that sheet was sanctioned by the Commissioner, do you know of your own knowledge that these names were inserted in the sheet? No, the first time it came to me with the authority they were not in.
370. Do you know whether these names were in the sheet at the time the Commissioner authorized the payment of the money? I think they were not.
371. They were not in at the time of making payment? They were in when I had the cheques drawn, but they were delayed a good bit, and we did not draw the cheques as soon as we ought, in consequence of the discrepancies.
372. If these names were not in the list at the time, how could they be referred to as discrepancies in the pay sheet? These names were put in between the time of my first and second minutes.
373. You say these were discrepancies in the list—if these names were not in the list there would not be a discrepancy? Yes, there would, because they were in the pay sheet but not in the list.

Richard Moody examined:—

374. By the Chairman : You recollect these returns coming before you? I do; it was subsequent to this return having been sent in I brought it under the notice of the Commissioner. It wanted the names by which it could be checked, the Commissioner having given orders that all persons employed at the various stations should be returned there; and as this simply stated the number at the stations it was impossible to check the people or the rates of wages, and I brought it before the Commissioner's notice, and he queried it, and on that I sent it to Mr. Nealds. He then sent in this list with it, but the list with names 19th July, marked by the accountant, had several names of porters removed from one station to another. The accountant returned it to me as not being a correct list; I then forwarded it back to Mr. Nealds for the purpose of altering it, and he came back to me with it in his hands, and he explained that the names were the names of those he was authorized to employ, but that he had a discretionary power to remove them from station to station. At the same time I recollect he pulled out a letter from the Commissioner—what it was I cannot say. He then said, "By the by, I am to alter Cotton's wages," and these names (pointing to names at the end of sheet) were put in in my office, and in my presence, these names being the three names in the different coloured ink.
375. By Mr. Moriarty : Did Mr. Nealds bring that paper back to you in the first instance? Yes; I sent it by a special messenger, knowing that unless I did, the workmen would be kept out of their wages, and Mr. Nealds was here in about an hour.
376. This list had not the names? In the first instance, when he brought it back, he put the names on in my room, and in consequence of something occurring to him in consequence of a letter or memorandum referring to Cotton's wages, which I imagined he received from the Commissioner (he had some memorandum or letter in his hands) he put it down at 8s.; and I remember from a little circumstance that occurred in the office at the time, the storekeeper made some remark to me and I queried it 5s. This was when I was going to take the paper down to the accountant. Mr. Nealds saw it on my table, and took it down to the accountant. I don't know what was done between Mr. Nealds and the Commissioner, but Mr. Nealds put these names in in my office, and went into the Commissioner's room, and after that I queried the 5s. Mr. Nealds came into my room shortly afterwards, and took the paper away to the accountant. He was rather excited at my making the mark against the 5s.
377. By Capt. Mayne : He took the list after entering the names, and went back to the Commissioner? Yes, to the Commissioner's room, and brought the list to me.
378. Can you say whether the Commissioner was in his room? I cannot say, but I should imagine he was.
379. By the Chairman : The memorandum and pay sheet were brought out by Mr. Nealds? Yes, altogether he brought out the papers.
380. Was that minute paper taken back with the sheet to the Commissioner? He took this paper, and he afterwards came and got this paper 62/843. He obtained this minute paper, 61/303, and he took it into the Commissioner's room, having previously taken 62/843.
381. When he came out of the room did he give you this paper? Yes, he left this paper and got the other; he then came back and said "It is all right," and from the remark made by the storekeeper I queried it.
382. Your query was not on the paper before the Commissioner? No, it was in consequence of the storekeeper's remark; I don't know whether I drew the attention of the accountant to it or not; I saw it was passed by the Commissioner.
383. There was no query on it when it was before the Commissioner? No.
384. The accountant had no evidence of this query being before the Commissioner? No, I did not intend it to remain there, and I was coming to speak to the Commissioner on the subject, but in consequence of Mr. Nealds taking it to the accountant I could not do so, and it must have escaped me, as there were so many things pressing to be done.
385. So you think the accountant assumed that the query had been submitted to the Commissioner, and that the Commissioner's memorandum applied to it? I could not tell that.
386. By Mr. Owen : What were the alterations which Mr. Nealds made on that paper in the office? The three names more are added in Mr. Nealds' own handwriting; he brought down data of some kind for this purpose.
387. And the figures also? Yes, they were placed there at the same time.
388. When this was done, Mr. Nealds took the paper and brought it into the Commissioner's room, and then brought it back to you and said it was all right? Yes, it was all done in about two minutes; it was a mere running in and out again.
389. And subsequent to that, in consequence of some good-natured remark made by some one, you put the query to it in order that it might be investigated? I felt it my duty to do so.

Capt. Mayne : It is the duty of any officer to take that course.

C. J. Nealds examined:—

390. By Mr. Owen : Will you state to the Board the circumstances of your borrowing this money of Cotton—how did you first ascertain that Cotton had got this legacy? I heard it from the Union Bank.
391. Will you state whom you ascertained it from? Yes, one of the clerks of the Union Bank. At that time I wanted some money for something that was very pressing, and I was informed that Mr. Cotton was expecting money; I knew this because he had consulted me upon the receipt of his former letters, and upon sending a power of attorney Home. Upon the arrival of the money the accountant, merely as a matter of conversation, said Cotton had got his money; and the following day Cotton, at the goods shed, said, "I have got my money, and you can have £300 if you like to take it; I want an investment." I then declined to have it, and it was only on his becoming very pressing that I borrowed £50 from him, to be returned as he wished it.
392. Have you any restrictions placed upon you as to granting passes? I don't think I have any particular restrictions; I think my appointment gives me the power to issue passes in discretion, provided I can shew cause why they should be issued—the same as any other person who has the power to issue passes.

393. These passes are sent in every fortnight? I return a memorandum every week, and if there is any suspicion as to the propriety of granting these passes the return is marked. If there was any pass issued where they thought it was necessary to ask about, they would query about it to me, and I know of a case in point.
394. Do you consider your discretion confined to persons in the employment of the Railway? Not exactly; I did not make a practice of giving passes to persons not employed on the railway.
395. But you did not consider you were bound to confine the passes to persons in the employment of the Railway? No.
396. Were ever passes given to the porters along the line and to watchmen occasionally? When they are going on their work. The watchmen appointed to the out stations living in Sydney would go backwards and forwards to their work night and morning, or the porters going up for extra duty, or to relieve the extra men.
397. You sometimes give passes to the wives of the porters? Yes.
398. By whom was this paper, 62,843, sent? It was made out by Mr. Bryant, clerk of the goods shed, by my orders, in consequence of a request from the Commissioner to return a list of the men employed.
399. You heard Mr. Moody state that you wrote these names and figures in his office, and then went into the Commissioner's, and when you came out you said it was all right—Will you state what took place? It is my firm belief that these names were written in this office, in the presence of the Commissioner, and I should like to ask the Commissioner a question on this point. In the presence of the Commissioner I found this discrepancy was pointed out, that three names were in the pay list which were not in this list; and I think I then referred to pieces of paper which I had in my pocket, and which I had received from Mr. Bryant, and found that three names were omitted.
400. The paper you took out of your pocket was a memorandum from Mr. Bryant that you had omitted these three names? Yes.
401. What took place then? I expressed my surprise at being sent for in a hurry; I had been about the pay list, and I thought these men had been paid. There was not a new name in the list, and they had been paid over and over again; and I said there was a thing I wanted to draw his attention to, and which I had mentioned to him before, namely, that I considered 5s. a night was too little for the watchmen, more especially as the night goods train was just about to run, and their duties would be increased.
402. What did the Commissioner say to that? He agreed to it, and thought that 5s. a night was too little, and asked me what I would give them. I referred to the list, and pointed out Ridley's name, a watchman, at 8s., and he considered that all should have alike, and it was done at the time; I then went and fetched the minute papers connected with this list from Mr. Moody's room. The reason why I took the list of names to the accountant from Mr. Moody's room, was simply because I said to the Commissioner "I want you to pass the list, because the men are waiting for their money now"; and I think I took it down to the accountant, to draw the cheque, to prevent delay.
403. And you consider that minute by the Commissioner was sufficient to authorize these payments? Most decidedly. I think you will observe by the date of this pay list that the pay list was made out at 5s., and not at 8s.—the 3s. were given after the sanction of the Commissioner.
404. By Mr. Williams: You just stated that a weekly return of passes is made to this office? I believe it is.
405. Has that ever been done by you? I think during the first fortnight in Captain Martindale's time it was.
406. Did you not receive instructions from Captain Martindale to make out a weekly return? Yes; I believe for the first fortnight it was done, and then, by the mutual consent of Captain Martindale and myself, it was dropped.
407. You stated, just now, that a list of passes was forwarded weekly to the office. Now, if you only forwarded them once or twice it clearly proves that, for nearly two years, you have sent none to the office? I did not state I sent a list.
408. Have you sent in a return of passes for the last two years? I have sent in no returns; Mr. Owen sent them.
409. Had you any instructions to do so? Yes, I had; but by mutual consent between Captain Martindale and myself, it was abandoned.
410. Did you not say a fortnightly return was made of passes? I am not aware; if I did I was mistaken. What I meant was, that there was, to the best of my belief, a weekly return of passes sent to the office.
411. Is your pass-book in Mr. Owen's possession? Not in his possession—Oh! they are now.
412. Are your pass-books in Mr. Owen's possession? They are lying in my room—they are in my private office.
413. Have you ever instructed Mr. Owen to forward fortnightly returns? No.
414. Was a form like that ever forwarded to you at the time passes were issued? Yes.
415. What does this state—(Reads form, to the effect that returns are to be made weekly)—Did you ever return any of these forms? Yes, the first fortnight.
416. You returned two in the space of two years and a half? Yes.
417. Don't you know that it is a part of Mr. Owen's duty to send in a return of these passes? I do not.
418. Is Mr. Owen a subordinate officer to yourself? Yes.
419. Did you ever instruct Mr. Owen to return them? No.
420. Were you carrying out your original instructions by not doing so? It was a mutual arrangement. I would remark, as to this omission—If there had not been such a thing between Captain Martindale and myself as an arrangement, would he not have written to me and given me strict orders to carry that out?
421. Were your pass-books, during the last two years, or at the time you were suspended, in Mr. Owen's possession? Not in his possession; they lay in the office, for the use of the traffic manager and Mr. Owen, and he could have had them the same as the other books.
422. If it is as you state, Mr. Nealds, that the lists of free passes were abandoned entirely by mutual arrangement between yourself and Captain Martindale, how did you expect Mr. Owen would make out the fortnightly returns of the passes issued by you? Simply because Mr. Owen himself told me a short time since, and, I believe, made the observation that there was a weekly return of the passes collected sent in to the office.

—

John Rae examined:—

423. By Mr. Nealds: Do you recollect stating that the goods train was about to run during the night, and that the men's duties would consequently be increased—that 5s. a night was too little—that the wages of all the watchmen should be equalized? I don't recollect the conversation alluded to with reference to this particular; I recollect you mentioned, on several occasions, that the men's wages should be raised, but I cannot—after hearing the evidence given now—I cannot remember this matter has been brought before me of raising the men's wages from 5s. to 8s.
424. It is not this one man's? I mean the circumstance of this particular time; and I cannot bring it to my memory, and I don't remember, or that I would have authorized the wages to be raised nearly double without consulting Mr. Whitton in the first place and the Minister in the other.
425. Then you believe you did not do it? I do; I remember similar conversations with Mr. Nealds.

426. Was Mr. Whitton at that time in Sydney—was he not up at the north? I am not prepared to state; I know the system I adopt in carrying on my business in matters of this kind, and I would not have altered the wages without consulting Mr. Whitton in the first instance and the Minister.
427. By Capt. Mayne: Do you recollect the circumstance as to the writing of these names in your room? I have not the slightest recollection of these names being added.
428. You heard Mr. Moody's and Mr. Nealds' evidence—have you any recollection or means of enabling you to say which ipsissima verba are correct? I have no such means if it took place in the other room; it is impossible for Mr. Moody to forget it; it appears to be fixed in his memory by some remark made by the storekeeper. I have no means of knowing, and I cannot imagine if Mr. Moody said he saw it done that he would forget it; the accountant was the first person who said it was not entered.

C. J. Nealds examined:—

429. By the Chairman: For the year, did you send in a return of the free passes? I did not.

6 November.

C. J. Nealds examined:—

430. By Mr. Whitton: When was the arrangement between Capt. Martindale and yourself come to, that you should not make any return of the free passes? I think I made the return for two weeks—the passes received for a fortnight.
431. What was the month of the year? I cannot tell you; it was in 1856 or 1857.
432. Was that a fortnight after your appointment? I don't think the passes were returned at that time; it was some time after that; I cannot tell exactly; it was about a fortnight after I received the orders to return them.
433. That mutual arrangement that you were not to make any returns was not countermanded by Capt. Martindale? Not that I recollect.

Mr. Whitton put in a minute, dated 3rd March, 1860, relative to free passes, which was read, No. 60/251.

Thursday, 13 November.

Present:—

J. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Fifth charge.—Detention of train at Sydney station, and charge by Mr. Nealds of obstruction on the part of Scott, with reference to horse-boxes.

“The matter is fully stated on minute paper marked Charge No. 5. Reports on this matter have been made by Mr. Nealds; and as all the minute papers on the subject have been seen by him, I do not consider it necessary to give any further particulars.”

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

- By Mr. Whitton*: With reference to the interruption of the traffic on the morning of the 28th July, you state that, in consequence of the removal of the turn-tables, great delay took place in starting the train? Yes.
- Will you point out the disadvantages that you laboured under by the removal of the turn-table? I had better explain that the whole of this report is simply in consequence of the station master's report to me. I was not at the station myself till 10 o'clock or a minute or two after, and on crossing the line I met head porter Higgs going after the horse-boxes near the turn-table.
- By Mr. Moriarty*: Is your present statement part of your report? Not all.
- By Mr. Whitton*: In the report you sent in, you made no reference to any statement from Mr. Owen or having received a report from him, and your report written on the form it is plain would be assumed to be the fact? It is, so far as the facts are; that statement there I believe is true so far as I can say, because it is made on a statement of Mr. Owen's to me.
- Was Mr. Owen's a written report? No—he is here. Mr. Whitton stated I was there the whole time. I went into my office, and Mr. Owen told me Mr. Whitton was there and I went down to where he was standing.
- I think you have scarcely pointed out the difficulties you experienced in reference to the turn-table? It was only a difficulty of Mr. Owen's, the station master, whose duty it was to attend to these things.
- You did not experience any difficulty? I said I came down at 10 o'clock, and Mr. Higgs was going to fetch the old horse-boxes over by the turn-table. I further state that I went to my office, and Mr. Owen informed me that Mr. Whitton was on the platform, and I then, as a matter of courtesy, walked down to where he was, and found him standing on the line by the side of a man who was putting down the turn-table. I learnt that Mr. Whitton had given orders to Lewton to a loop, in fact to remove a crane that was standing on the land for the purpose of lifting the ironwork of the turn-table. Mr. Owen further informed me that Lewton had told him he was going to rip up the loop this morning, and it could not be used; and that he had sent over the first thing in the morning for these carriages by Higgs, the porter, and they had been refused.
- By the Chairman*: Sent to where? To the carriage-shed for the horse-boxes, and subsequently he had gone himself to get permission to use them. Upon this I made my report. I may say, although it is not my duty, I assisted to get Mr. Whitton's and Mr. Barton's horses in the boxes myself. Mr. Barton had come last, and I did everything in my power to get the train away. After this—in fact, when I noticed this charge—I mentioned to Mr. Owen, and said—“Do you remember the circumstance of the obstruction of the line the morning we could get no horse-boxes?” Mr. Owen said—“Perfectly well, Mr. Nealds;” I said—“I am blamed for it;” and Mr. Owen's reply was—“That could not be, because Mr. Whitton knows you were not there; they cannot blame you in that matter, at any rate, ‘Mr. Nealds.’ This is a statement I am ready to make on oath.”
- By Mr. Whitton*: You state that on coming down to the station you saw Higgs getting out the old horse-boxes? I saw him crossing the line to get them—when I passed the opposite he was walking across.
- What was the first you heard of the horse-boxes being required? The first thing I heard of it—I had been late—was that Mr. Owen had sent out the previous day an order for all horse-boxes to be sent in by the first train, as he knew a number of horses would be going down by the train.
- Did Higgs inform you that he had been sent by Mr. Owen to ask for the horse-boxes? I understood him so; I know Mr. Owen told me he had sent him.
- Are you aware who ordered Mr. Owen to send for those horse-boxes—did Higgs inform you? Not that I am aware of; when I came on the platform I asked Mr. Owen if he had sent or been over here, and he said he had sent, and, after a long time, had been over.

13. Were you not on the platform when I arrived at the station? No, I did not know you were there till Mr. Owen told me you were there.
14. You state in your report that the horse-boxes were bespoken throughout the line? Yes.
15. By whom? I did not get the names of the persons bespeaking them.
16. On what day did you get in an account of this? I sent up to all stations to know why Mr. Owen's order had not been complied with.
17. You state here the horse-boxes were bespoken—now you knowing that the horse-boxes had been bespoken throughout the line, would it have been necessary, with that knowledge, for you to send to the station clerks to ask why they were not sent to Sydney, when you were previously told they were bespoken? I sent to know why the orders were not complied with, and the reply was, they were all bespoken, not by the station masters but by the public, who required to send down horses.
18. Then they were not bespoken previous to the 28th July? They must have been bespoken the day before.
19. If they were bespoken the day before, why write to the station masters and ask why they were not sent down? I did not know it; the horse-boxes are not bespoken of me. The public write to the station masters.
20. You give as a reason why there were no horse-boxes was because they were bespoken on the line? Yes. I may observe, as I stated before, that this report is entirely founded on the report of Mr. Owen, and Mr. Owen also informed me that every horse-box on the line was engaged, but most certainly I sent out this order, asking why it had not been complied with, in order to get it in writing, and I had it in writing.
21. What telegram did you receive from the station clerks on the 28th July, informing you that all the horse-boxes were bespoken? I did not say telegrams; I am speaking on the report of Mr. Owen, except the time when I walked up to see you on the platform.
22. On reading the report, did you give yourself any trouble to see whether they were engaged or not? I did.
23. By Capt. Mayne: You say you did take steps to see why the orders were not complied with? That was subsequent to the report. The impression you left on my mind was that it was before the report you had yourself sent messages to the station masters. I could not do that.
24. What number of horse-boxes were up the line at that time? I cannot tell.
25. Have you any knowledge of the number of horse-boxes there are? I think there are twenty-one.
26. Are you aware of the number of horse-boxes that were bespoken at the different stations on that day? I do not.
27. You naturally supposed that being bespoken, they were used? I naturally believed so, from the report of the officers subordinate to me.
28. By Mr. Whitton: After my arrival at the station before 10 o'clock, I believe horse-boxes were found, and that all the horses were loaded at the proper loading wharf? I believe not; I believe the old horse-boxes were brought on to the line.
29. Did you see any of the horse-boxes loaded in the morning? Yes, I stood there while two of them were loaded.
30. Did you see any of them loaded at the ordinary wharf? I loaded Mr. Barton's horse myself there.
31. You just now stated the horse-boxes were loaded from the platform? I understood from Mr. Owen that all the horse-boxes were loaded at the platform.
32. When I came down to the station, were not all the loaded horse-boxes loaded at the proper place? I am not aware of the fact, or that you sent for the horse-boxes.
33. Did you see any of the horse-boxes loaded from the ordinary place? I did; I helped to load up one myself.

—

Donald Vernon called and examined:—

34. By Mr. Whitton: What office do you hold in the Railway Department? Traffic auditor.
35. Can you inform the Board the number of horse-boxes that were used on the line on the 28th July, or the number of horses booked at the different stations on the 28th July? From all stations to Sydney, on the 28th July, four were booked—three on one ticket from Liverpool, and one from Campbelltown.
36. How many horse-boxes would these four horses require? Two horse-boxes only.
37. And they were all that were booked at the intermediate stations on that day? Yes.
38. How many horses booked from Sydney? Eleven.
39. You are quite positive, from the returns you had before you, that only four horses were booked at any of the other stations? Yes, I am quite satisfied from the returns.
40. By Mr. Owen: What are these returns which you have there? These are horse tickets given to the consignees.
41. Are these the tickets of the boxes generally used for the conveyance of horses along the line? I cannot say.
42. At this date these boxes were actually used, but can you say whether there might be some boxes required that were not used? I cannot say.
43. You have no means of ascertaining if horse-boxes are required and not used? Yes, we have.
44. Have you that means? Yes.
45. When you say only four horses were booked on the line, do you mean to say there were no other requirements? No.
46. You mean that only four horses went on that day? I mean only four horses were booked from all the stations to Sydney—three from Liverpool and one from Campbelltown.
47. From the intermediate stations there might be more? No other besides.
48. From one station to another? There was one from Blacktown to Parramatta.
49. That is all, so far as you can gather? Yes. I have no doubt I have got all the tickets before me that were used for outward horses that day.
50. When a person sends down to the station to say he wanted to send down four or five horses, is that requirement sent down to you—I being at Parramatta wish to send four horses, is that requisition made to you? No.
51. Then if I make that requisition and don't send my horses, you don't know whether I do or not? No.
52. But the station master is obliged to provide horse-boxes? Yes.
53. Did the station master make memoranda of this kind in that case? Not that I am aware of; he makes only way-bills and tickets of horses actually travelling on the line.
54. Mr. Nealds says that the date of this transaction was Monday, and that consequently the horses were booked on Saturday. No return tickets are considered to be returned on Monday, and the carriages are obliged to be kept for them? (No reply.)
55. How many boxes were booked on 26th for returns? Four I have had, and one missing, one for 15s.—that was on the 28th, from Sydney to Parramatta.
56. By Capt. Mayne: And were these return tickets? Yes, four, and one missing.
57. By the Chairman: Are these the whole of the returns on the whole of the line, or only one station? Yes, the whole; I know of no others being used.
58. By Mr. Moriarty: The tickets shew how many horses? The tickets may not always be collected, we have the statements of the outward station masters and the inward station masters.

59. To check them? They agree with the tickets.
 60. How many horses were on the line on the 28th, exclusive of those going out from Sydney, but including the return of Sunday? We have no means of telling what returns came back on Monday.
 61. You know how many were issued on Saturday? Yes, four.
 62. To how many different places? One to Parramatta, two to Blacktown, one to South Creek.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

63. By Mr. Whitton: You are station clerk at Sydney? Yes.
 64. On the morning of the 29th July? Yes.
 65. You remember on that morning there were a great number of horses to be sent off from the Sydney station? I do.
 66. Do you remember my arrival at the station? I do.
 67. At about what time was that? A little before 10 o'clock.
 68. Was Mr. Nealds on the platform at that time, or at the station? He was.
 69. Had you any conversation with Mr. Nealds on my arrival? Yes. I informed Mr. Nealds that you were there, and that there were no horse-boxes, and that there were a number of horses to be loaded up.
 70. Did Mr. Nealds give you any instructions as to what you should do? No.
 71. He gave you no instructions? None whatever.
 72. At that time you had loaded, I think, one or two horse-boxes on the platform? We were loading horse-boxes on the platform.
 73. What instructions did I give you with reference to these horse-boxes? To get the old horse-boxes from the back of the locomotive yard.
 74. And in consequence of that, what did you do? I went and saw Bingham, the working inspector, and told him; and he said there was no objection to them coming out, and so we went and got them out.
 75. And where were they loaded? In the usual place where we load horses.
 76. No difficulty in loading them there, was there? No.
 77. At any time previous to the Monday, had you any instructions from Mr. Nealds as to the horse-boxes that were down the line? Not any.
 78. Did he give you any orders about the horse-boxes? Neither then or ever.
 79. Did he send any message to you, in reference to the horse-boxes? He did not.
 80. Were you aware that these horse-boxes were required on the line? I was not.
 81. Are you aware that any information was received from the station masters up the line that a certain number of horse-boxes were required? Mr. Nealds informed me that was the case.
 82. What information did he give you? He said a great number of horse-boxes were up the line—most of them.
 83. Did you see any requisitions from the station clerks for horse-boxes? No, I never had any that day.
 84. Did you inform Mr. Nealds that these horse-boxes were required up the line? No.
 85. Have you any reason to suppose they were wanted up the line on that day? I cannot say.
 86. Was any application made to Scott for these horse-boxes some time before—about 8 o'clock in the morning? No, I made no application to him.
 87. You made no application to him? No.
 88. How long was it before these horse-boxes were loaded up, after my arrival at the station? About half an hour, I think.
 89. Do you know anything in the condition of the line to prevent the same course being followed before I came down? I had orders from Mr. Nealds that all horses should be loaded at the platform during the time the turn-table was out.
 90. Should you not have done exactly the same as I ordered when I came down? There was no difficulty in doing what you ordered us.
 91. And it was done? Yes.
 92. Is the platform a convenient place to load horses? No, not so convenient as the usual place.
 93. Is it not a very dangerous place? Yes.
 94. One or two of the horses fell down that day? Yes.
 95. By Mr. Owen: When did you first hear these horse-boxes were required? Before 10 o'clock, when I saw the horses on the bank.
 96. Immediately before 10 o'clock? Yes.
 97. From whom did you receive the instructions? I only saw the horses; we were short of horse-boxes, I knew that in the morning.
 98. Did you take no steps then? I did; I went to the working inspector, and asked him to let the old horse-boxes be sent out of the locomotive yard, and he said they were not allowed to be loaded.
 99. By the Chairman: Whom did you go to? The working inspector; his name is Nichol.
 100. By Mr. Owen: What steps did you then take? I informed Mr. Nealds when I saw him.
 101. When was that? He was at the station at a quarter to 10 o'clock.
 102. You told him you had made application for the old horse-boxes, and they were not to be got? Yes.
 103. What was then done? Mr. Whitton advised that they should be got, and I went to Bingham, the superior officer, and he said we could have them—there was no difficulty in the way of having them.
 104. At whose suggestion did you go to him? At Mr. Whitton's. He did not suggest that I should go to Bingham; I said "Shall I act in the matter?" Mr. Nealds did not appear to take any notice, he told me to act in the matter, and I went to Bingham, and he said we could have them—there was no difficulty in the way.
 105. How long was Mr. Nealds at the station before that? Five or ten minutes.
 106. Whose duty is it to see to all these matters? The manager's.
 107. Have there been any new regulations since 1861? Not to my knowledge.
 108. And under these regulations you say it is the duty of the traffic manager to look after the horse-boxes and starting the trains? It is my duty to start the train.
 109. Do I understand you to say, it is the duty of the manager to get the horse-boxes ready and to get them loaded? No.
 110. Whose duty is it? My duty. I understood you to ask whose duty it was to provide these horse-boxes in Sydney, and my answer was the manager's.
 111. That is to get them attached down the line? Yes.
 112. To whom are the requisitions for horse-boxes generally made? They are sent by telegram, addressed to Sydney.
 113. Does it not state to whom? We generally get them; I get them.
 114. When any delay takes place in the train starting is it not your duty to report it to the traffic manager? Yes.
 115. Did you report it to the traffic manager? I did.
 116. By Mr. Moriarty: After you found you could not get the carriages in the first place, did you inform Mr. Nealds of that fact? Yes.
 117. What time was it? At a quarter to 10 o'clock, perhaps a little more.
 118. By Mr. Owen: At what time did the train start? At a quarter past 10 o'clock.
 119. By the Chairman: Was that on the 28th July? Yes.
 120. By Mr. Moriarty: You informed Mr. Nealds that you could not get the horse-boxes in consequence of the sub-inspector refusing to give them to you? Yes.

121. By Mr. Owen: Although you knew you could not get the horse-boxes, you made application to Mr. Bingham? It was about a quarter to 10 o'clock I made application to the inspector.
122. Whom did you report to as soon as you heard you could not get them? The only person I had to report was to Mr. Nealds, and I did so as soon as I saw him.
123. Whom did you report this fact to first? To Mr. Nealds.
124. Before you did to Mr. Whitton? Yes.
125. And what answer did Mr. Nealds make to your report? He took no notice of it.
126. And you then went up to Mr. Whitton? Yes.
127. By Mr. Moriarty: That was when you asked him whether you should act? Yes.
128. What did you mean by that? I meant to take the horse-boxes whether they liked it or not.
129. Why did you not do that at half-past 8? Because I could not, these men would not allow me to take them away. Mr. Whitton is his superior officer, and when he said I might have them I got them.
130. By the Chairman: Did you say these men are under the charge of Mr. Whitton, and not of Mr. Nealds? Yes.
131. So that when the inspector of carriages refused to let you have them, Mr. Nealds could not help you? Not to my knowledge.
132. How was it you did not send to Mr. Whitton for the order to use these carriages? I did as soon as I saw him.
133. That was just before the train was leaving? It was about ten minutes before.
134. When you found at half-past 8 o'clock you had not enough horse-boxes, and the inspector of carriages would not allow you to get them, why did you not then send to Mr. Whitton? I am not allowed to communicate with Mr. Whitton or the Commissioner.
135. By Mr. Whitton: When Mr. Nealds is not there, is it not usual to make all applications to the locomotive foreman for all stock required on the line? Yes, I think so.
136. Is any application made to me for locomotive stock? No.
137. Has Mr. Nealds not authority for applying for any rolling stock required? Yes.
138. By Mr. Owen: Why did you not make application to Scott? Because I did not think it right to do so.
139. By Mr. Moriarty: But you thought it right to do so afterwards? Yes.
140. By Mr. Owen: When Mr. Nealds is away on duty on the line, how do you act? I act in his place.
141. By Mr. Whitton: You have the power, in Mr. Nealds' absence, of ordering any description of rolling stock for the traffic on the line? Yes.
142. By the Chairman: Why then did you not order this man to bring over the horse-boxes? I did order him.
143. At what time? At half-past 8.
144. You took action in the matter at half-past 8, as far as you could, by ordering the horse-boxes, and reporting to Mr. Nealds on his arrival that he took no action in the matter? Yes.
145. Immediately on Mr. Nealds' arrival? I cannot say.
146. How long after? I cannot say when he arrived.
147. But when did you report it to him? It was about a quarter past 10.
148. By Mr. Moriarty: When you reported to Mr. Nealds that you had applied for the horse-boxes and could not get them, you thought Mr. Nealds would reply and act, but when he did not you applied to Mr. Whitton to set them right? Yes. These old horse-boxes, four of them, when the new rolling stock came out, were put away. I think we have seventeen or nineteen horse-boxes—quite sufficient to work twice the traffic we had.
149. By Mr. Owen: When you found that these horse-boxes were refused at a little after 8 o'clock, and knowing that there were seventeen or eighteen about the line, why did you not make application to the out stations? —
150. Why did you not make applications to the out stations on Saturday? I had no means till Monday morning. I might have sent up by the train, but it is not my place to do it.
151. And does the station sending send for horse-boxes? Yes.
152. What length of time elapsed between reporting the matter to Mr. Nealds and Mr. Whitton? I stated before—I went from Mr. Nealds to Mr. Whitton.
153. Straight across? Yes.
154. By Mr. Moriarty: You found Mr. Nealds refused to give any authority or take any steps? He made me no answer—he took no notice of what I said.
155. By the Chairman: Do you recollect having some conversation with Mr. Nealds after this, when Mr. Nealds said Mr. Whitton blamed him for the detention of the train? Mr. Nealds never made such a statement to me.
156. Did he make any statement of the kind to you? No.
157. By Mr. Owen: Did he say to you he had been reprimanded? Never.
158. Did he say that the matter had been reported to the authorities? He said a minute had been written, Mr. Whitton's report, and the Commissioner had laid it before the Minister, and he would not take any notice of it, and it was going to be put by.
159. What did you say to that? I said nothing; it is not my business.
160. Did you say that Mr. Nealds could not be blamed for it because Mr. Whitton knows that you were not there? I deny it; I said nothing of the kind.
161. Where was this conversation held? I think it was on the platform.
162. Was there any one present? Not to my knowledge.
163. At the time of this delay, was there not a crane on the loop? There was a crane just off the crossing, and Mr. Lewton said he was going to pull up the line; he told me he was going to make use of the line, and we could not put any horse-boxes down it.
164. Was it not the case that they were taking up the turn-table and putting down a new one? There was a travelling crane.
165. The crane you are speaking of could be easily removed? Yes.
166. No difficulty in removing it? I think it could be removed in two or three minutes.
167. By Mr. Moriarty: Could these horse-boxes be easily removed? Much the same; they are about the same weight.
168. By the Chairman: This report is not correct—no application was made for the horse-boxes? Application was made to Bingham about 10 o'clock.
169. Whom was it you applied to first? To Nicholls.
170. By Mr. Moriarty: Was Scott there then? No, I did not see him, I was on the station platform; I saw the other man.
171. Had you then any idea that so many horse-boxes would be required? No, not the slightest idea we should have so many horses.
172. You were not very particular about it? No.
173. When you found there were so many, and Mr. Nealds being on the platform, you reported it to him? Yes.
174. Where was Mr. Nealds when you made the application about the carriages? In his office.
175. When you brought it to Mr. Nealds' notice, what did you gather from him? My impression was that he did not care what we did about them.
176. By Mr. Owen: Did you tell Mr. Owen, when you first made the report, that Mr. Whitton was at the station? I did.
177. By Mr. Whitton: Was Mr. Nealds there before I arrived? I think he was.

6 November.

Sixth charge.—As to the duties and general employment of the extra men charged in Mr. Nealds' time-sheets.

"Extra men have been constantly employed at Sydney and Newtown in loading billet wood and other timber, principally at Sydney, for Mr. Jolly, and no charge has been made for this service in accordance with the regulations; and generally, that the services of the extra men charged in Mr. Nealds' time-sheets have not been required for the purposes of the traffic. Some of these extra men, as well as ordinary porters, have also been employed cutting billet wood at Mr. Nealds' house. Occasionally time has been charged in the sheets for which the men did not work."

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Williams: Have you had considerable traffic on the Southern Railway line, in the carriage of billet wood and timber? A very great deal.
2. Brought from all parts of the line to the Sydney station? Yes.
3. To Newtown and Sydney? Yes.
4. How did this timber come down—in the trucks of the railway? Yes.
5. Who loaded and unloaded it? Generally speaking the parties themselves—the consignors or consignees; if not they paid for it.
6. Have you ever had any men employed at the Sydney and Newtown stations unloading these trucks? Frequently.
7. At whose cost would this unloading be made? When extra men have been employed it is at the Government expense, unless it is that the unloading has been delayed by the consignees beyond the time allowed for the use of the trucks, then the consignees are charged with the amount.
8. What are the Government regulations as to loading and unloading at these stations? When it is done for the convenience of the consignee the consignee pays; but in cases where there is a very large amount of traffic, and a constant demand for trucks—such a demand that trucks cannot be supplied fast enough—it is necessary for the benefit of the traffic to unload these trucks immediately, in order that they may be got away by the next goods train.
9. How many men have you employed unloading? Various numbers—one, two, three, four, five, and six—according as they were required.
10. Do I understand you to say that the only case where the unloading has been done for the consignees and has not been charged, is where you have done it for the convenience of the line? Yes.
11. Did you do it on any other occasion? Yes.
12. How often has this happened? I cannot say.
13. Was it of constant occurrence? Yes, constant.
14. Daily? No.
15. Did you ever make any charge for unloading? Frequently; when the trucks have been delayed by the consignees unnecessarily, I have instructed the goods clerk to charge the unloading.
16. Do you know the 23rd regulation? Yes.
17. I will point out. (Regulation 23rd read.) Was that the regulation under which you unloaded? No.
18. Is timber goods of the first class? Yes.
19. Although timber came under this regulation, you loaded and unloaded it constantly without making any charge? Yes, in the cases I mentioned.
20. And the reason you give us—what is your reason? For the benefit of the traffic, in order that we might have trucks to carry on the traffic.
21. Would you not have had trucks to carry on the traffic without doing that? No.
22. On all these occasions? On all these occasions.
23. And you have never loaded or unloaded at the cost of the Government, except to get possession of the trucks? Just so.
24. Whom was the timber principally consigned to—who is the largest consignee in Sydney—is it not Jolly & Co.? No, I think the largest consignee is Taylor; for billet wood and small stuff, Jolly & Co. I don't think Jolly is the largest. A man of the name of ——— I cannot tell what is his name, but the goods clerk can—is the largest billet wood dealer. Jolly's is a general trade.
25. Where is Jolly's yard? It is down by the line.
26. On part of the railway premises? Yes, he hires part of the railway premises.
27. Were not most of these loadings and unloadings of his timber and into his yard? No; he (Jolly) has very rarely had any unloading; it is only when the benefit of the traffic required it that he has had any unloading. When the usual traffic required it, and we wanted the trucks in a hurry, we may have sent to unload the trucks, not otherwise.
28. What men were employed in this loading and unloading? Extra men; sometimes extra men of the permanent way when they could be spared.
29. And when they could not? Extra men.
30. Can you tell what time elapsed without the employment of extra men? I cannot. Where extra men were employed, the goods clerk or head porter came and asked me whether they might employ them.
31. Was that of frequent occurrence? Yes.
32. How often? I cannot say.
33. How often during the week? I cannot say.
34. Did any week elapse without your doing so? Hardly; you can find out by reference to the pay sheet.
35. Did you ever send extra men on this work without application at all? Yes, frequently I directed men. I have come from my office with a requisition for trucks to be sent on to out stations; the guards inform me there are no trucks to take back to those stations requiring them, and I have directed the head porter to employ men to get the trucks unloaded at once.
36. Were the men so employed always employed on the railway works, and no other? Yes, to the best of my knowledge and belief; I am not always able to state.
37. You never employed these men to cut wood for you? Not when they were employed by the Government. I have sometimes asked a man, when standing on the platform, to go up to my house and cut up some wood.
38. How often has that happened? Frequently.
39. Were these extra men or ordinary porters? Sometimes they were ordinary porters that I sent up at meal-times or at night.
40. You sent up to your house sometimes these extra men and sometimes ordinary porters? The ordinary porters never, except at meal-time or in the evening.
41. You are clear upon that? Yes, to the best of my knowledge and belief.
42. Was your order limited as to any time—was it not "Go up"—Did you ever say "Go up in your spare time"? No, I never took away a man from his duty to do that.
43. Did you ever pay any men so employed for the time they were not employed in doing their duty? No, not to my knowledge.
44. Have you ever inserted the names of men in your pay-sheet, and it was found difficult to find the men, and the money has been sent to the station? Never. Perhaps I may observe, I don't make out the pay-sheet, it is only brought to me for signature.

45. Who gave directions? They are sent to the different stations to make out.
46. Have you nothing to do with the pay-sheets? They come to me, and I certify them.
47. Who furnishes the information from which the pay-sheets are made out? The station master makes them out himself.
48. They have no statement to make them out from? They have, or their clerks. I don't know.
49. Did you exercise any supervision over the pay-sheet at the Sydney station? I examine the time-book frequently.
50. You never gave in men's names that could not be found? Never gave in men's names—how could I?
51. I should have thought, having the general supervision, that it was probable you could? I have simply to employ.
52. Are extra men ever employed without your order? Frequently, when I am not there.
53. Whom by? I presume by the station master.
54. But should not the fact of their being employed become known to you? It would become known to me when I see the book every fortnight.
55. Then you do exercise the supervision? I am obliged to do so when I certify the sheet.
56. And did you certify the sheet without knowing whether the men were employed or not? I certified them and I looked at the time-book. I then certified on the strength of the station master's report to me.
57. Then your certifying is a mere form as far as your knowledge goes? I believe it is the same way as other sheets are certified in the office.
58. Who is responsible for the correctness of their returns—you or the station master? I am directly to the Commissioner; the station master is responsible to me.
59. In what return does the amount of time of the extra men employed up and down the line appear? In the extra list made out at the Sydney station.
60. How does the Sydney station master know that? From the return of the head porter.
61. From every station? From the Sydney station.
62. How does he know it? Because he sends the men away when there is an order.
63. Who gives the order—whose duty is it? The station master, if I am not there.
64. But if you are there? The station master frequently.
65. Whose primary duty is it if you are there? The requisition does not come to me—perhaps I don't know anything of it.
66. It is your duty to send these extra men up the line? Yes.
67. Whose duty is it to know how the men have been employed on the line and to make a return? The station masters on the stations to which they go.
68. They certify to that? No, I certify to all the lists.
69. In what way do you make yourself acquainted with the way the men are employed before you certify? Should the station master—take Campbelltown for instance—require three men, he writes for them, but should only two be sent for the work, notice is sent back at once that only two men were sent, either to me or to the station master to whom ever the application is made.
70. Does the station master at each station certify how long these men have been employed? No.
71. How do you arrive at the amount they are to be paid—what check is there on their return? Simply the station master—if they were not there he would report it to me.
72. Then he does make a return? Yes.
73. If they are not employed—suppose the men were employed for two days but claimed for three, how would it be detected? I don't see how it could occur.
74. Tell us how it would be detected? Simply by the head porter's book.
75. Is not the head porter's knowledge confined to the coming and going back? Yes.
76. If a man is sent away, from the head porter's book he would appear to be employed till he came back? Yes.
77. But he might not be employed on railway work? No.
78. How do you check that? Because the station master would send back word that he had only been employed half a day, if they had finished their work.
79. Do the station masters make perfect returns or casual returns? They make a return every fortnight, in order that the pay list may be seen to agree. Formerly the pay sheets were all made up by a clerk in the Sydney station, from returns furnished to the Sydney station; but during the last three months the station masters have to make out their own lists, initial them, and forward them to me for certificate.
80. By Mr. Whitton: Do the station clerks make regular returns of the time at which the extra men are employed at their stations? Yes, by their application in the first instance for men to be employed at their stations, and they subsequently report if these men are not forwarded for the work to be done.
81. Assuming the men are sent to do a certain description of work, do the station clerks send to you a return of the time the men are at work at the station? No, not more than I have already stated.
82. That is they do not send it? Just so.
83. By Mr. Owen: How long is the consignee or consignor allowed for the unloading of the goods? Twenty-four hours.
84. You say there is an enormous traffic of billet wood along the line? Very large.
85. Have you frequently been obliged to send up extra trucks? Almost daily.
86. If the goods have arrived within twenty-four hours—if you received a request for more trucks from any out station, and the goods are lying in the station within the twenty-four hours, what is the proper course to follow? If there are no other trucks to send, to have the trucks unloaded at once, in order to have them forwarded by the first goods train.
87. Have you the power of going to the consignees and telling them that the trucks are wanted and they must unload them? Yes.
88. That is in cases in which twenty-four hours have not elapsed? No, I cannot demand them to unload before that time; I may request it, but they have a right to the trucks for twenty-four hours.
89. Under these circumstances the unloading must be done by the Government? Yes.
90. Are there many consignees of timber and billet wood in Sydney? I believe it is in the hands of six or eight men.
91. Mr. Jolly is not the only one? No; in Sydney I am speaking of.
92. You have a discretion given you as to the employment of extra men? Yes, certainly; I could not send down to the office to know whether I am to employ extra men.
93. The matter is entirely in your discretion? Yes.
94. You say you have occasionally employed men who have been employed by the Government, to cut up timber—wood—for you? To split up firewood.
95. Did you pay these men for that work yourself? Yes, always.
96. When you have employed any of the Government official porters—when have they worked at your house? Generally at meal-times, or after-hours at night.
97. Has the fact ever been brought under your notice of time being charged in the sheets for men who did not work? Never.
98. From any person above or below you? Never. I say never, but there was a case at Campbelltown where three men went down to unload some rails at Campbelltown. The rails were the property of the Government, but without my knowledge they were removed further up the line; the men, therefore, could * Objection taken by Mr. Owen to this question.

could not be employed in that unloading, and the matter was reported to me by the station master at Campbelltown, in words to this effect:—"It was fortunate for me the men came yesterday, as we were so overpowered with business that I was obliged to put them all to work in the goods shed."

99. That is the only instance? Yes.

100. What becomes of these extra men when they are knocked off work? The men that are employed at Newtown, directly they finish their work they walk back to the Sydney station, and they see if there is anything to be done there; if there is not they are marked off their time, provided they have been half a day, or a quarter of a day; whatever it is, they get their time, as the case may be; when they are waiting, doing nothing there, they are not charged.

101. Not paid? Not charged in the sheet.

102. It is not your duty, Mr. Nealds, to investigate into all these matters, as to what the men do, and how long they are employed? I trust to the statement of the officer placed under me, as being the head of the department for the time being.

103. You say these returns pass through the station master to the head porter? The head porter returns these to the station master.

104. That is at the Sydney station? It refers to the same thing at the out stations.

105. Your duties are very numerous, are they not? Yes, very.

106. And you are expressly given, in some of the papers, a charge to place confidence in the officers under you, to give you time to carry out your other duties? Yes.

107. By Capt. Mayne: Was there a deficiency of trucks on the line for the traffic? Yes, day by day.

108. Did you ever draw attention to the fact? Yes, and a great number came out afterwards from England.

109. Was there on many of the stations this deficiency till the trucks came from England? No.

110. You say, extra men that were sent to the stations out of Sydney, as soon as they had finished their work they came back, either by train or by walking back to Sydney—Is there any memorandum furnished to you to shew when they ceased working? Yes, to the head porter; it is in the time-book of the head porter.

111. Who marks the time if in Sydney? The head porter.

112. How does he get the information when they ceased working at the out stations? They report themselves.

113. You have no check on the truth of the report? Except the knowledge that a man would not take a day unloading two or three trucks. We know they could not charge more than a certain time, or they would be reported.

114. You have no check as to when a man ceases work at the out stations? Yes, we have.

115. And they get credit till they report themselves at the Sydney station? Yes.

116. By Mr. Whitton: Assuming these men were occupied as you say, in unloading two trucks, and they left the out station for Sydney, they might spend two days on the road without your knowing whether they were employed at the station or not? Yes, I should know, inasmuch as when the station master requires extra men from the head office he writes for them, and if required for more than a day he sends on his requisition by the last train; if he requires them for a third day he sends on his requisition again; he does not send on a requisition to get men for three days, but day by day.

117. By Capt. Mayne: In the case of a single day the men are sent out to the station, you say the only check you have is their report to the head porter at the head station; but suppose they say they have occupied a whole day when they have only worked half a day, have you any check then? Yes, the station master would immediately report they were only employed half a day. They would only render their applications for half a day, that is if they only required half a day's work. We should never send out men from Sydney for half a day. If they are half a day unemployed, the station master invariably informs me that these men have been employed in the shed assisting the goods porters.

118. And they don't ask for men for half a day? No, never at the out stations, only Newtown or Ashfield.

119. Then you have that check upon it? Yes.

120. By Mr. Owen: These men are employed working under the supervision of the station master? Yes, always.

121. And if these men worked only half a day it would be known? Yes, and if either of them were slow he would be reported as unfit.

122. They work under the supervision of the station master? Yes.

123. When anything goes wrong, or the men not working, he would make a report to you? Yes.

124. How long has this system been in force? Ever since I had the management of the line.

125. How long has that been? I think it must be six years.

126. It is very well known that this is the system? Yes, perfectly well known.

127. By Mr. Williams: I presume you mean that the system is known to yourself? Yes, to every one of the department.

128. Perhaps you will name some on in the employment as parties? No.

129. If extra men went to the out stations, have you any check for the time employed? That is a different thing.

130. By Capt. Mayne: Is the time mentioned in the pay-list checked with the requisition and the head porter's list of the time? When the pay-lists come to me they are supposed to be checked by the station master.

131. How checked? They have made reference to the time-book, and also to the requisition. Besides, they of their own knowledge know when a man has been out at work and when he comes back.

132. Do they know whether it is half a day or three-quarters of a day that he is at the out station? There is no such thing as three-quarters of a day for the out stations, because a man is kept on in the goods shed after the work is done.

133. Does it ever happen that there is not this work to do? But a man sent out could not get off in this way.

134. You told us they did? Only Newtown; when there is no work to be done in the goods shed, then they immediately return to Sydney when their work is done.

135. What is the check on these men being employed at Newtown? In that case I should depend on the station master.

136. Do you get this information from the station masters? Frequently; not always.

137. You say the check is by the head porter when these men report themselves—Is there any check upon the truthfulness of their report to the head porter? There is no check, but, as I stated before, that the circumstance of a man charging a quarter of a day more than is necessary for the work would be looked upon as suspicious and his statement queried.

138. How would it be known necessarily that a man required to work at Newtown, had charged for half a day instead of a quarter of a day? Simply because the station master sends on his requisition for three or four trucks to be unloaded in the morning, and we know how long this would take to do.

139. Is the charge entered in the pay-sheet checked by the requisition which states that fact? I cannot say positively it is checked by that paper; but when the requisition comes in, the head porter is told to send a man to unload two trucks, or three, or four trucks. If five trucks are required to be unloaded for the pick up goods train, one man is not sufficient to do it. If the work only required half a day then when the man returned to Sydney it would be either half a day or just about half a day. The men employed in this way report themselves, because they sign when their work is done directly they come in. Permanent men only sign when they arrive and depart.

140. You say these pay-sheets are made up and checked by the station master? They are made up by the time-book kept by the porter, the station master puts his initials to them and hands them to me for certificate.
141. Then it is checked by the porter's time-list and requisition? I believe no pay-sheet comes to me without the station master's initials—without being checked.
142. That is the regular system? I don't know; I never saw one without the station master's initials; if I had, it would be sent back for the initials.
143. These are the instructions to the station master, that he must make up the pay-sheet from the porter's time-book, and he certifies by his initials that it is so made up? Yes; at the time the pay-sheets were made at the Sydney station, the time-books of the various stations were forwarded to me for comparison. This was before the station masters had orders to make out the sheets.
144. And the requisition for these men comes into the possession of the station master? Sometimes into mine.
145. If it does come into your possession, it is then passed into the station master's, in order to make up the pay-sheets? Yes.
146. You say the requisitions sometimes come to you, and sometimes to the station master—are these requisitions passed over to the station master to enable him to make out the pay-list? Whenever a requisition comes in I hand it to the station master or head porter.
147. Then when these requisitions are received by you, they are handed over to the station master? Yes, or the head porter.
148. Is it his duty to hand them over to the station master? I think it is.
149. Is it his duty? I presume it is. I am only speaking from what I believe.
150. By Mr. Owen: When these requisitions are sent down, they are not merely to send men for half a day, but men to do a particular thing? Yes, in cases of a large influx of goods or they are overpowered with work, they say "Please send us men to-morrow."
151. In the requisition it is stated what the men are to do? Yes, always.
152. And according to the time required for that thing to be done, you calculate the number of hands to send up—if it has to be done in a hurry you send up two or three men? Yes, I only allude to Newtown in that statement, that the station master sends for two or three men when there are more trucks to be unloaded before the pick-up train comes.
153. Did you ever insert any name in the pay-sheet? Never. I inserted Mr. Bommy. He was appointed not by me, and the reason that the money was not put in was because Mr. Rae, the Commissioner, told me that the Minister intended to give him 10s. a day, and I stated that a man just going into the office ought not to have 10s. I did not put the amount in till I consulted Mr. Rae. The only alteration I have made has been in the summary; these I have made up in the office, and if any sheets come in without my signature, it is because the sheets were made up in the office in Sydney station and forwarded in my absence, and when I have come in by the train I have gone through the additions and marked them. I know they have passed through the station master.
154. You have never made any additions to them? Never, except after asking Mr. Rae. Chedley and
155. Chedley and were the only two cases? Yes; I have made alterations for the accountant below when mistakes were found, and have copied the pay-sheets. There have been mistakes in the addition pointed out to me, and I have taken a fresh sheet and made it out.
156. Then this sheet could not have had the receipts of the men? This was before the men received their money.

James Higgs called and examined:—

157. By Mr. Williams: What are you? Head porter.
158. Where? Sydney station.
159. What are your duties generally at the Sydney station? To see the work done in a proper way and to look after the men.
160. Do you take the time of all the men employed at the Sydney station? Yes.
161. All the porters? Yes.
162. Do you take the time of the extra men? Yes.
163. How do you receive that time? If they are at work at the Sydney station they come and put down their names at 6 o'clock in the morning, when they go away to breakfast, when they come from breakfast and go to dinner, and if taken off work they put down the time; they put down their names at 6 o'clock in the morning, also at night.
164. Do they ever stay all night from Sydney? They have done so.
165. On many occasions? No, not on many occasions.
166. And the time they are at work is entered by themselves when they return to Sydney? Yes.
167. Have you any knowledge as to the time these men do work? I have no means of knowing that they have been at work, nothing more than what they say.
168. Who gives you instructions to send these men up the line? Mr. Nealds or the station master.
169. And you have no check of the length of time these men are at work? No, I have not.
170. Who returns the time that these men are employed by Mr. Nealds? I make out the time and give it to the station master.
171. Do you give it to Mr. Owen? Either to Mr. Owen or one of the clerks. Mr. Bryant generally receives it now.
172. And you return it as a correct return of the time the men have been at work? Yes.
173. On the statement of the men themselves? Yes.
174. Are you at all aware how these men are applied for—who applies for them generally? Sometimes the station masters on the line.
175. You don't know? No.
176. You have no means of checking any time given in by these men? No, I am seldom on the line myself.
177. Have you ever had any instructions from Mr. Nealds to send any of the porters at your station to cut billet wood at his house? Yes.
178. On many occasions? Several occasions; I cannot say how many times.
179. Extending over what period—how far back? I cannot say the date.
180. Is it four years? I could not say.
181. How many years—is it two, three, or five years? I cannot say for certain. It may be three years; it may be two years.
182. Have you sent porters in the day-time, on Mr. Nealds' instructions, to cut billet wood? To go off to his house, and the men told me afterwards it was to cut billet wood.
183. Was the time returned by you—was the time entered in these sheets for the Sydney station? Sometimes Mr. Nealds sent a man for half a day, and then I would tell the man not to enter the time, but if it was only for an hour or two it was entered.
184. What do you call an hour or two? From one hour to three hours.
185. Have these men never been to Mr. Nealds' house, cutting billet wood, when they should have been at the Sydney station, and the time charged to the Government? Yes, sometimes they were.
186. How many men have you sent more than once? Not more than one, if I can recollect; one at a time.

187. With reference to the employment of these extra men—do you know that these extra men have been employed at Mr. Nealds' house when they were employed elsewhere? No.
188. Have you any check on the time of these extra men? I see them there, unless I am away myself.
189. Did you ever know of the porters being employed for any other purpose except as porters when you have returned their time on the Sydney station? No.
190. Did you ever know of a man being employed to put up a house? Yes, I forgot that.
191. Did you return his time as a porter? Yes.
192. By whose orders was this man employed for this purpose? Mr. Nealds.
193. And the man was employed putting up a house? He was.
194. Cannot you recollect the number of times or how many times that you have sent porters for two or three hours to Mr. Nealds' house? I cannot say the number of times—several times.
195. Can you shew us by any of your books of the Sydney station when these men's time have been deducted when employed at Mr. Nealds' house? No, because men are often employed a quarter of a day, and then it is deducted.
196. But these men employed a quarter of a day are extra men? Yes.
197. I ask you as to the ordinary porters—can you shew on your books where the time has been deducted? I have not sent the regular men and stopped their time, it is the extra men.
198. The regular men have been sent to Mr. Nealds' house? Yes.
199. By Capt. Mayne: Have you sent the regular porters to Mr. Nealds' house for some purpose without deducting the time they might be employed there? Yes.
200. How many times? Not many occasions the regular men.
201. What length of time have the regular men been employed? Two or three hours.
202. Are you quite certain they have not been employed more than three hours? I think not.
203. On how many occasions have you sent them? Perhaps five or six times—twelve times.
204. By Mr. Williams: It may be two dozen times? No, I don't think it can be; I don't recollect the number of times.
205. How many at a time? Not more than one according to my recollection.
206. Could any men be sent from the goods shed to recall men at Mr. Nealds' house without your knowledge? They tell me they go down sometimes.
207. I ask you if any of the porters employed in the goods warehouse could be sent up to Mr. Nealds' house without your knowledge? They may have been sent there when I was told they were gone down.
208. Do you remember the names of the men you sent to Mr. Nealds' house? I believe Cook is one; Mede is one—he has left.
209. Did you ever send Ellis? It is a long time ago since Ellis was there.
210. Did you ever send Ellis? I cannot recollect; I will not say I did not.
211. You don't know how many men you sent? I could not say.
212. It has been a constant thing to send men when ordered to do so? Yes, when I was ordered to do it, I have always sent them.
213. By Capt. Mayne: How did you receive instructions to send these extra men out of Sydney? Over night, as Mr. Nealds may receive the notice from the station that a certain number of men were required to load billet wood or sleepers; and he tells me the number of men to send.
214. Did he give it you in writing? No, verbally —
215. Do you take a note in writing of the number? No, I send them next morning.
216. Do you trust it to your memory? Yes; sometimes Mr. Nealds gave me the requisition.
217. What do you do with the requisition? As soon as I have done with it I tear it up.
218. Do you never hand it over to the station-master? No —
219. Never? I will not say never.
220. Is it your duty to hand over to the station master these instructions? Not if there is nothing else written on the note but that men are required at the station. If there is anything written on the note besides, I give it back again, but it is very seldom I have it.
221. By Mr. Owen: Am I right in drawing this conclusion from your evidence, that you are the only person responsible for ascertaining the time these men work? Yes.
222. And upon your statement to the station master the accounts are made up? According to the book I send in.
223. These permanent porters you speak of as employed by Mr. Nealds—do you know what they were employed for? When sent up to Mr. Nealds' house, I cannot say. They have told me they have been cutting billet wood.
224. Were they not sent up generally, if not always, during the hours for meals, and after the day work was over? No, not in such hours.
225. Do you know whether other persons besides Mr. Nealds are in the habit of employing these porters in jobs occasionally? No; the only case I recollect was when Mr. Aldridge was removing. He had one man to assist him in loading up his furniture.
226. Is that the only instance you know of? That is the only instance I recollect.
227. Do you ever remember the employment of a man named Bell in that way? In what way?
228. In extra work of that kind besides Government work? No, I don't.
229. You say, when the extra men are sent up to Mr. Nealds, if they remain any length of time their time is struck off? If Mr. Nealds tells me to send up a man for half a day, I tell the man not to put the time down.
230. Is half the day all the time? Yes.
231. You have no quarter days? No.
232. By Mr. Whitton: Do you know these extra men do not put down the time? Yes, when I have desired them not to put it down.
233. Do you always see them write down the time? No, I can't always see, because the men don't go to dinner at the same time.
234. How do you know it then? Because I see the book. The time the men work a day I enter the next morning in a book, which I send in every fortnight.
235. You take their own return of the time? No; I take the time the men are at the station. If I told a man not to put down half a day I would not enter it if he did.
236. By Capt. Mayne: Can any of the regular men leave the station, and be absent without your knowledge? They are sometimes sent down town.
237. Without your being apprised of the fact? Yes; until I ask where they are.
238. Until you ask, you have no knowledge of their being sent away? At that time.
239. If you are not told? I find it out when I miss them.
240. Might they not be absent some time before you find it out? They might. I may be looking at work being done at one of the yard for three or four hours.
241. Who are they at the station who send these men away? Mr. Nealds, the station master, and the goods clerk.
242. And these men are under your charge—it is your duty to look after them, and see they do their work, and yet they are sent away without any intimation being made to you? Yes, at times.
243. Have you ever remonstrated about it? I cannot say I have.
244. You are looked to, to make a correct return of the men's time, and yet men are sent away without your knowledge—it may be for hours? Yes, they are sent away without my knowledge.
245. By Mr. Moriarty: I suppose you consider, if your superior officer sends away a man, he has the power to do it? Yes.

246. And you leave the responsibility with him? Yes.
247. By Capt. Mayne: Do I understand you to say that the station master's pay-sheet is made up entirely from your time-book? I suppose so; I send in my time-book. I don't know that he checks it in any other way.
248. Can he have any other check? He has the time-book.
249. Any other check but the time-book? I don't see that he has any.
250. Who enters the time in this time-book? Every man when they go to meals.
251. Is every man able to write? No.
252. Then who does it? I do.
253. Do you see these men all put their names when going to meals? No.
254. Or returning from meals? No.
255. Is there any person whose duty it is to do it? It is my duty; I go and examine the book.
256. How soon after? Very shortly.
257. By the Chairman: There is no roll call? No.
258. By Mr. Moriarty: They don't give in their time to any clerk to enter it? No, they never have since I have been there.
259. By Mr. Owen: By whom was this wooden house inhabited? The house the man was building? No one at all.
260. At the time the hut was being erected, was there not some complaint about the house you inhabited being delapidated? Yes, I have spoken about it several times.
261. And was this house intended to supply you with a better dwelling? Yes.
262. Who was employed to build the house? A porter of the name of Spencer.
263. Was he then doing the full work of the Government? He was employed as porter.
264. Was he not laid up at that time on half pay? I think he had been ill.
265. He was on half pay? No.
266. He was not doing the full complement of Government work? He had his regular day's pay the same as other men.
267. While he was doing the house? Yes.
268. Before he came to build the house? Yes; if a man is on the station I enter his salary as full; whether he had half pay I cannot say.
269. You know that before he came to do the house Spencer was on the sick list? I know he was not well.
270. Was that hut ever finished? No.
271. By Mr. Whitton: Do you know why the building of the house was discontinued? I believe orders were given to stop it.
272. Do you know who ordered it? No.

---

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

273. By Mr. Owen: Did you make any application to the Commissioner about building the hut? About the repairs of the house I did.
274. And what instructions did you receive? The Commissioner said he would give no orders, but I was to apply to Mr. Thomas, who was the engineer, to give me part of the woodwork of the old house to repair the place; and I, thinking that a slight framework put over the house would be better, had it commenced.
275. By whom? By the man Spencer, who had been for a considerable time suffering from an affection of the kidneys. He could not lift heavy weights. This was stopped, and the matter gone into after Captain Martindale went away; and by Mr. Whitton's orders the building was stopped, and it remains up to the present time on the ground; the pieces of wood have never been removed.
276. By the Chairman: Is that building in the yard? Yes, on the top of the hill.
277. By Mr. Whitton: What are the remarks I made to you when I found you were charging the man as a porter when he was building the house? I considered when you made the remark it was to Mr. Rae, and not to me, and in such a tone that I could not hear it.
278. The remark I made to you was at the station? No.

---

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

279. By Mr. Whitton: You are station clerk at Sydney? Yes.
280. You are aware there is a considerable traffic in billet wood and timber generally? Yes.
281. Principally at Sydney and Newtown? Yes.
282. Are you aware that extra men have been employed constantly to unload timber at Sydney and at Newtown? Yes.
283. What are the regulations with respect to the loading and unloading of timber? That the consignees are charged at 1s. per ton for loading, and 1s. per ton for unloading.
284. Are you aware whether that charge was made to the consignees? In very rare instances; indeed, I cannot exactly say whether it has been made once.
285. Are you very short of trucks for working the traffic of the line? We are not; we have got sufficient trucks to work three times the traffic.
286. Then you say the unloading of the timber has been at the cost of the Government? It has mostly.
287. And the consignees have not been called upon to pay that expense? No.
288. Who orders these extra porters to go to the different stations to load and unload? Mr. Nealds, through the head porter, Higgs.
289. All these men are sent up the line when requests are sent from the station masters on the line that they require the services of these men? Sometimes.
290. As a general rule is it so? I cannot say, because they are always addressed to the manager.
291. And you don't see them? I have seen one or two, perhaps more.
292. Are you aware whether goods have been unloaded in this way at any stations up the line besides Newtown and Sydney? I am aware of Sydney, but I cannot say about Newtown. I am aware that timber is unloaded at Newtown, but cannot say whether it is charged for.
293. At Sydney you know it is not? Yes.
294. Did you ever complain to the manager that you were deficient in trucks for working the line? No, not since I have been station master; not since the new rolling stock arrived; we were short of trucks before the new rolling stock arrived.
295. By the Chairman: When did the new rolling stock come out? They have been in use twelve or eighteen months.
296. It is since that time there have been plenty of trucks? Yes.
297. By Mr. Whitton: Are you aware that previous to that time the trucks on which billet wood was carried were so scarce as to necessitate the Government to unload it? I cannot say; I was holding a different position at the time at Sydney.
298. At Sydney—are you aware that it was unloaded there as they required trucks? I am unable to say.
299. Are you aware whether any demurrage has been charged? No.

300. Do you know, as station master, whether it was done as an act of kindness to the consignees, to unload these trucks for them? No.
301. Then in fact it is no act of kindness to unload it for them? I cannot say whether it is an act of kindness; they were unloaded.
302. Were they loaded as a matter of necessity? Not recently; not since the new rolling stock has arrived.
303. Did you ever previously give notice to the consignees to unload their goods? No; I was goods clerk. I was informed by Mr. Nealds that demurrage, storage, and all these things would be remitted to the consignees.
304. By Capt. Mayne: You say it never was charged? Yes; Mr. Nealds said if charged it would be remitted to the consignees.
305. By Mr. Whitton: But as it was never charged it was not remitted? Yes.
306. By Capt. Mayne: Were you ordered not to charge it? Yes.
307. By whom? By Mr. Nealds. There is a peculiar kind of truck used by billet wood people, and I have no doubt these trucks are very scarce. They are what are called high-sided trucks; and the billet wood people prefer these trucks, and refuse to get any other if they can get these; and the only way I can account for it is, in loading these trucks they carried seven or eight tons, and are only charged for six. My attention was called to it during the last few days by a letter from a locomotive foreman.
308. By Mr. Whitton: Do you know how the time of the extra men is checked when employed on the line? The employment of extra men has been in the hands of Mr. Nealds and the head porter. I have nothing at all to do with it.
309. And the requisition made for these men passes through your hands to enable you to check the time-sheets made out? No.
310. Do you ever check these time-sheets? No, but from something I saw going wrong I had occasion to check them three weeks ago, and I found that one man was paid for five days' work for which he had never been employed.
311. By Mr. Owen: I presume you have documents to prove this, in making that statement? Yes.
312. By Mr. Whitton: You found he had been paid five days for which he had not been employed? Yes.
313. Have you ever had the same man returned in your sheets for two different stations? Yes.
314. The same time for the same days? Yes.
315. And the money was sent down to this office? Yes, and repaid.
316. Do you know whether any of the porters of the Sydney station have been sent to Mr. Nealds' house? I have been informed so by the head porter.
317. By Capt. Mayne: You make up the pay-sheets? No.
318. Who does? Mr. Nealds orders the clerk at Sydney station to make it up.
319. And from what data does he make it up? The head porter copies the time-book in which the men keep their time. In the time-book the man enters his name at his arrival and departure, and at the time of his meals; and the head porter keeps another book which he makes up from this every fortnight.
320. Is there any person to see that they are correct returns? The head porter.
321. Is there any person in charge of the book to see that these entries are correct? Yes, the head porter is generally there to see the men come in the morning, when they go to meals, and when they are leaving.
322. In the interval during working hours are the men ever sent away from the station? Yes.
323. By whom? By the head porter, or by Mr. Nealds' orders.
324. When Mr. Nealds gives orders for such men to go away, are they communicated to the head porter? They are invariably.
325. Then you know that when men are sent away, it is communicated to the head porter? Mr. Nealds communicates it himself to the head porter.
326. Others have also sent men away? Not to my knowledge.
327. The head porter said so—he said that he is often away from the book, and many of the men cannot write? Many of the men cannot write.
328. Who is to enter it then? The head porter.
329. But he is away frequently? I am not aware of it. His business is to be there during the arrival and departure of the men.
330. That book—the time-book—is the only data on which the pay-sheets are made up? Yes.
331. By the Chairman: Do you occasionally send any messages in connection with the department? Yes, very seldom.
332. And you have never sent any of the porters on messages connected with the business of the department? Yes; I have sent them to the head office, by orders of Mr. Nealds frequently.
333. You being station master, have you sent them yourself? I have sent them, but I generally inform the head porter to send a man.
334. By Capt. Mayne: Whenever you send a man away, you do it through the head porter? Yes.
335. By the Chairman: You have sent them? Yes; very seldom I have got a clerk, and I generally send him.
336. When you send them you inform the head porter? I inform the head porter to send them.
337. By Mr. Whitton: Are all the porters employed at the Sydney station—fully employed? Do you mean the number of men at work?
338. Has there been sufficient employment at Sydney for the number of men you have had? Employment is found for them.
339. Are they all necessary for working the traffic? No.
- Mr. Owen objected to this evidence.*
340. By Capt. Mayne: You say a clerk in the office prepares these pay-sheets—are they brought before you? No; they are certified by the manager.
341. How are they—are they certified by Mr. Nealds that they are correct? Not certified by any one.
342. Are there no initials to shew who prepared the list? None.
343. By Mr. Owen: Was there not a general order that all station masters should make out a list and initial them? In the intermediate stations—I wrote the order myself; and the reason was that the other station master undertook the responsibility of making out these pay-sheets himself; and with reference to the Sydney pay-sheets, I would not certify them on any account.
344. When were you appointed station master? In June last.
345. Then up to June last it was the custom of the former station master to certify, but since then you refused to do it? Yes.
346. By Capt. Mayne: How do you mean certify them? He made them out—he did not initial them.
347. He acted as clerk in making them out? Yes.
348. Were they at that time in any way certified to the traffic manager? No.
349. By Mr. Whitton: Did the station masters at the out-stations generally return the time the men were employed at their stations? No, never.
350. And there is no check as to the time these men are employed? No.
351. Why did you refuse to certify these pay-sheets? Because men were employed for other purposes than their work, and because there were a number of men employed that I did not consider requisite.
352. Who ordered these extra men to be employed? Mr. Nealds.
353. By Mr. Owen: To whom did you make the remonstrance about certifying these pay-sheets? I wrote out an order for the other station masters to certify their sheets.

354. To whom did you refuse to certify? I did not refuse, but I never did certify. I was never called upon to certify them, or to have anything to do with them.
355. What kind of trucks are used generally for the billet wood—are they called B trucks? Yes.
356. Did any B trucks come out in the rolling stock from England—are the B trucks deficient on the line? Yes; and they are unsafe to load this billet wood.
357. Are they sufficient? They are not sufficient if they only are loaded with billet wood; but there are plenty of trucks able to be loaded with billet wood. In fact there are too many of them.
358. Now you are speaking of after the new rolling stock arrived? Yes.
359. Is not a copy of the bye-laws put up at the stations? I don't know.
360. Do you tell me that you have been engaged for this number of months at the Sydney station, and don't know whether there are bye-laws posted up? I have ordered some myself.
361. Were there any there before? There were only very old ones; I will not speak positively.
362. Would not these bye-laws, if put up, describe the liabilities of the consignors and consignees to pay for the loading? Yes. I have a copy of the bye-laws in my possession.
363. I am talking of a notice to the consignors or consignees? I should think so.
364. You are not certain they would announce the fact? They would if people read it.
365. I ask you whether it would be announced to the public in the bye-laws—is it published in the bye-laws? It is published in the bye-laws.
366. By Mr. Whitton: If the consignees had to pay for so much per ton, according to the bye-laws, would they object to the Government unloading at their own expense? They would object.
367. To what? To paying 1s. per ton.
368. They would object to the Government doing the work for them? Of course not. I did not understand the question. I understood you to ask a question with regard to the price.
369. If the consignee was to unload himself he would not object to that work being done by the Government? No, he would not.
370. And that in reality you say has been done? Yes.
371. That the timber that should be unloaded at the expense of the consignee has been done at the expense of the Government? Yes.
372. By the Chairman: Look at that paper—2,243 voucher—by whom is that prepared? By a young man named Bryant.
373. Your name is at the bottom? Yes, paying the men.
374. What are your duties connected with it? I pay the men according to their names and amounts mentioned in the pay-sheet.
375. And are any of these paid by you while station master? Yes, the one you handed over to me.
376. And as station master were you not responsible that the men employed on the station were required for the service? Yes, the permanent men.
377. And not for the occasional men? No, not for the occasional men.
378. Had you nothing to do with the goods department? I had the supervision of it.
379. And were not some of these occasional men employed at the goods department? Not at my request—never.
380. By Mr. Owen: Were they employed there or not? They were when they had done unloading billet wood. To make up time they were sent to the goods shed.
381. By Capt. Mayne: Were they necessarily and profitably employed there? No, they were not required.
382. By the Chairman: How was it that, when you found a number of persons were not necessarily employed, you did not bring it under the notice of the authorities? It was not my business. It is the traffic manager who is responsible for the working of the line. If he thought it was necessary, I dare not mention it; it would be very impertinent on my part if I did.
383. What was it you said about not passing the accounts if occasional men were employed? I would not certify —
384. Were you called upon to certify? I was not called upon to certify; if I had been called upon I would have refused.
385. It was not your duty? No.
386. And they have not been certified? No. It was I that wrote to the station masters to certify, because my predecessor made out the pay-sheets, and now the station masters of the intermediate stations make out their own pay-sheets.
387. You were station master, and it was not your duty to make out the pay-sheets? Yes.
388. By Mr. Owen: By whose directions did you write to the different station masters? On no one's directions. I wrote them of my own free will, and Mr. Nealds knows it well.
389. You received no directions, or suggestions, or recommendations from Mr. Nealds? I made the suggestion myself.
390. But who directed you to send the orders? No one.
391. Have you one of the general orders? No.
392. By Mr. Whitton: You sent them? I wrote it and Mr. Nealds sent it.
393. By Mr. Owen: How does it commence? I cannot remember.
394. Do you tell the Board you cannot state how the return commences? I don't know how the return commenced.
395. By Capt. Mayne: Do you mean the exact words? The instructions were to each station master to make out his own pay-sheets when extra men were employed, and these occasional men were to be entered in the sheet for the station they were employed at.
396. By Mr. Owen: From whom did you receive these instructions? From no one. It is quite right. I speak the truth. On every line I have been engaged on, the station master at the intermediate stations make out their pay-sheets.
397. By the Chairman: You say the instructions were given? I gave the instructions myself.
398. Who suggested it? I suggested it in the first instance. I suggested them to Mr. Nealds, and I wrote them because I suggested them.
399. Who signed these instructions? Mr. Nealds.
400. You took them then to Mr. Nealds to sign? Yes.
401. Then it was Mr. Nealds that signed the instructions? Yes.
402. By Mr. Moriarty: These are made out in duplicate I suppose—these sheets? No.

Joseph Middleton called and examined:—

403. By Mr. Whitton: You were a few months ago station master at Newtown? Yes.
404. Have you not a large quantity of billet wood coming to Newtown? Yes.
405. By whom was the unloading performed? Sometimes by Government servants and sometimes by the consignees.
406. How often by the Government servants? Generally.
407. Did you ever make any charge to the consignee for that service? No, never.
408. How many times has that been done—once a week or more? Four or five times a week.
409. Extending over what period? From when I first went—two years. It was on and off, sometimes more, very seldom less.
410. What were your regulations with respect to loading and unloading? That it must be unloaded by the consignee within twenty-four hours.
411. Did you ever give notice to the consignees to unload? No, I never sent to give notice. They sent to see; I had no one to send.

412. Did you make application for these extra men to be forwarded to your station? No, never.
413. Do you know by whom these men were sent? No doubt they were sent from the Sydney station.
414. Without any requisition from you to them? No requisition.
415. Did you ever make a return to the Sydney station of the time extra men were employed at your station? No.
416. By Capt. Mayne: Were you ordered not to make a charge for unloading? If unloaded under twenty-four hours I would not make a charge.
417. Was the unloading performed at the Government expense when done within the twenty-four hours? Yes, always.
418. Why was it so done? I cannot say; I suppose they wanted trucks.
419. By whose orders was it unloaded? I cannot say.
420. If the thing was in your charge? It was not in my charge because the men were sent from Sydney to unload.
421. How do you know it? Because the men came to me and told me they were sent to unload the trucks.
422. And you had your knowledge from the statements of these men? I know they were employed.
423. How do you know it except the men came and told you they were to unload it—did you allow them to do so? Yes.
424. Do you know, of your own knowledge, there was a deficiency of trucks at that time? I know there was a great cry-out they could not be got.
425. There was a great pressure and real deficiency? Yes.
426. And you presumed from that, that was the reason it was done at the Government expense—the unloading? Yes.
427. By the Chairman: Any complaint of their not being a sufficient number of trucks—would that come to you? No, but they would come to me to see if I had any trucks.
428. It would not be your duty to send for extra men? No. The senders of the billet wood at the sending station, who require fresh trucks, would apply, and the order for extra men to unload the trucks at the terminus would be sent from the sending station.
429. Is there no requisition sent? No. If there was an increase of business the persons sending would apply for trucks.
430. By Mr. Owen: It is no part of your duty to give notice to the consignees to come and unload? No; I never understood it. They had to unload at a certain time, and if they don't do it they pay for storage.
431. By Mr. Whitton: Have you always been short of trucks in working this traffic? Yes.
432. What description of trucks? B trucks.
433. Are there no other trucks? Yes; there have been laid on D trucks, not being able to get B trucks.
434. But do not D trucks answer the same purpose? Yes, but they don't carry so much, and they don't like them so well.
435. How is the weight ascertained, by the B trucks and the D trucks? By measurement.
436. Why should they prefer B trucks? I suppose because they have been used to sell them by the truck.
437. Do you make a difference in the charge between B and D trucks? Yes.
438. Then the only reason that the other trucks are not used is, the people prefer them? Yes, but the D trucks have been used very much lately.
439. Are other trucks besides B trucks and D trucks used for the purpose of traffic? Yes, the A trucks, but they would not load them.
440. You have sufficient trucks to work the traffic without the A trucks? Yes, by unloading them and getting them away quick by the next goods train.
441. Has it always been the case that you have been deficient since the new stock arrived? We have always to send them out as quickly as we get them.
442. By whose orders? General orders. The men come up to unload and we send them out.
443. From your own knowledge do you know they were required? I have no certain knowledge they were; I believe so.
444. How many trucks are there generally at the Newtown station? About seven would be the average.
445. Do you know how many trucks there are on the whole line? No.
446. Then you only know these trucks are required because men are sent up to unload them? Yes.
447. By Capt. Mayne: Was any demand made to you to return the trucks? No; the orders were sent to Sydney for empty trucks, and then from Sydney the extra men were sent up.
448. By Mr. Whitton: Have you not the telegraph to communicate with the other stations if extra trucks are required? Yes.
449. Have you ever been telegraphed to send these trucks up? Yes.
450. On many occasions? No, not often.
451. By Mr. Owen: Were not the old D trucks too short for billet wood? Not that I am aware of.
452. Is there not a break in the middle of them? No.
453. At the station at Newtown, is it not a fact that if the trucks were not removed that the other trucks arriving could not be got on to the siding? I have no room for more than eight.
454. Unless they were sent away there would not be room for the other trucks? No, there would not.
455. By Mr. Whitton: If the trucks were not removed from any other station on the line, there would soon be no room on the siding for those trucks? There is no traffic of that kind at the Newtown station.

M'Vye Faulkener called in and examined:—

456. By Mr. Whitton: You are station clerk now at Newtown? Yes.
457. How long have you been there? I think from 2nd September last.
458. During the time you have been there you have had large quantities of billet wood sent down to the Newtown station? Yes.
459. That billet wood is consigned to persons who make a profit out of it by reselling it? Not all. Some of it is sent to the brickmakers.
460. Has it been the practice since you were at the station that the trucks should be unloaded by men sent from the Sydney station? Till lately.
461. Till what time? About a fortnight; since Mr. Nealds has been suspended.
462. Before Mr. Nealds' suspension all billet wood was unloaded at the cost of the Government? Nearly all. Some trucks were commenced to be unloaded immediately the train arrived. There would be carts waiting, and it would be commenced, and men would come from Sydney the next morning and unload the remainder; not every day, but very often.
463. Have you ever sent down to Sydney a requisition for men to come down? I have sent down to let the station master know how many trucks there were there, and men would come down and unload the trucks. It appeared to me it was the general practice for men to come and unload the trucks. There were men unloading the trucks when I took possession of the station.
464. These men being sent down to unload the trucks, you had no opportunity of calling on the consignees to unload them themselves? Very often they were unloaded before the consignees could come down.
465. Have you received any instructions during the last fortnight that the consignees were to unload the trucks at their own cost? Yes, every one.

466. Do you find any difficulty in working your station now that the consignees have to unload? I get all away. I allow them their twenty-four hours; trucks that come in over night by the goods train; that may be 3 or 4 o'clock, do not go out to-morrow empty. But by the twenty-four hours allowed by the bye-laws they would be required to be emptied by the afternoon, but there is no train going out at that time, not till next day.
467. Assuming the trucks did not go out by that train, whose loss would it be? If they were not unloaded I would charge 5s. Since the late order I have always had them empty.
468. Since you got instructions that the consignees were to unload, the Government save the expense of unloading? I cautioned the people if they don't unload, I would enforce the bye-law of 5s. for every twenty-four hours the truck remained unloaded.
469. Since that time have you had any difficulty in unloading? No, I have got them all unloaded.
470. So now no extra men are sent down from Sydney to do the work of your station? No, not one.
471. Have you any idea of the number of men you have had employed during the week or day? No, I never kept any note. Sometimes one man, sometimes two.
472. Would they during the week be employed three or four days? No. If they had three or four trucks to unload, it did not take them long to unload.
473. Did you take the time? No; when they came up to Newtown to unload trucks they enquired what was to be done, and I shewed them the trucks to be unloaded belonging to two or three parties, and when they were done they reported it to me and I sent them back to Sydney, but I never kept a note of the time. Sometimes it was in the forenoon, sometimes in the afternoon—mostly in the forenoon.
474. By Capt. Mayne: When these trucks were unloaded at the Government cost, by whose orders were they done? I don't know, the men were sent from Sydney to unload them.
475. You never heard who sent the men? ———
476. Did you know what the object was? Yes, I understood it was to have the trucks empty to get away as soon as possible.
477. Was there a deficiency? I heard Douglass say, that so many trucks were used when he was sending away more of my trucks.
478. Did the station master send you any directions, or instructions to return the trucks repeatedly? No.
479. Was there more wood sent down that time than recently? I don't know that there was. Occasionally, there was a rush for trucks when the brickmakers are going to fire their kilns. Then sometimes there will be a lull, not so much wood used.
480. When the trucks were unloaded at the Government cost, was that before the late arrival of plant from Home of new trucks? I don't think there has been any material from Home since then—it is only two months.
481. What you are speaking of—does it not go back further than two months? No, only two or three days more. I went there on the 2nd September. Sometimes more timber comes in than at other times on account of the brickmakers firing their kilns. When they are making preparations it is slack.
482. Do you make application to have these men sent up? No, I have sent down to the station master to tell him how many loaded trucks I had there.
483. You have sent him notice? Yes, when the sideling was full.
484. Your intimation was with a view of getting the men sent up? Yes, because other trucks were standing where the consignees could not receive them. Very often the sideling was full, and the trucks were standing outside.
485. Did you send this notice in writing? Sometimes I have, and sometimes by the guards, to tell Mr. Owen that I had so many loaded trucks on the line. I have had eleven there.
486. And had you any empty trucks at the time to go back? No, I had all full trucks at one time, and no empty trucks to send back.
487. By Mr. Owen: It was to the station master that you always sent down notice that trucks wanted to be unloaded? Yes.
488. Is it not the custom for the sending station to send down to Sydney when they require extra trucks, and for a message to be sent into the stations for empty trucks? I don't know what the practice is.
489. Is it not a fact, before the alteration, only one kind of truck was used? Yes, B trucks.
490. That was at the request of the consignees? Yes, I believe so.
491. They can arrive at a more accurate measurement? D trucks are used, but not if they can get B trucks.
492. This alteration has caused the introduction of other trucks besides B trucks? I don't think so.
493. You still only work with B trucks, just as before? I don't think I have had on D trucks with timber since that time—generally B's. I have had D's, but not often, since I have been at Newtown.
494. How does it happen that you have since succeeded in emptying all these trucks of billet wood without assistance? I caution the consignees if it is not unloaded by the time specified in the bye-law, I will enforce the 5s. penalty for every twenty-four hours.
495. That is after the first twenty-four hours? Yes.
496. But suppose a requisition comes to you for empty trucks before the twenty-four hours, you cannot call in the consignees to unload? No.
497. What would you do then? I could do nothing. If they did not unload them they would have to be unloaded at the Government expense.
498. How could you get them unloaded? I should send down word to Sydney station master that the trucks were not unloaded, and leave him to do what he thought fit. The penalty is after the first twenty-four hours.
499. The penalty that you just now alluded to is still in force, that within the first twenty-four hours the consignee is not obliged to unload? Yes, it is still in force.
500. When was the alteration made about the extra men not being called upon to unload? I don't remember the date; recently, since Mr. Nealds was suspended; I don't remember the exact date.
501. During the last fortnight has there been a great demand for the billet wood—have the brickmakers been firing their kilns? There is just the ordinary orders.
502. You say at certain periods there was a great demand, and at others a great lull? Not a great lull; there is a slight difference in the ordinary traffic, when parties who may have five or six trucks will not have any, but other parties come in with their burning. There is sometimes for a day or two not more than two or three trucks, and then they get up to five, and so on.
503. Have any of the trucks stood loaded over twenty-four hours lately? Yes, they have.
504. And have you enforced the penalty? I could not, because the trucks are not required. Twenty-four hours would be from 3 o'clock to-day to 3 o'clock to-morrow, and then there is no train to take them away. The trucks would not be required.
505. I understood you to say that if the trucks were left unloaded for twenty-four hours, you would charge the 5s.? Yes, in case the trucks are required.
506. You say some of the wood has been left and you have not charged? The trucks have not been required; there have been a few billets left till night. The twenty-four hours would not expire till 3 o'clock, and the trucks could not go away till next morning.
507. By the Chairman: If the trucks were not wanted you would not enforce the penalty? Not if they left them in for a few hours, and took them away that day.
508. By Capt. Mayne: On whom would the loss and inconvenience fall if instead of being unloaded at the Government expense the consignees had been left to unload them within twenty-four hours, and they were to leave them longer? If the trucks were wanted, the inconvenience would fall on the Government.
- 509.

509. Would it not fall on the consignee? I don't know.
 510. I suppose these people want to put down their billet wood? Yes.
 511. The inconvenience or detention—on whom would it fall? I have heard, Mr. Douglass; he could send a great deal more billet wood if he could get the trucks.
 512. Is there no fair inducement for him to unload the trucks and let them go back? The consignor does not load these, but the consignee.
 513. Would not the inconvenience then fall on the consignee? It would fall on them in this way: that if the trucks were unloaded the party would have a difficulty in loading his cart if the timber was on the ground.
 514. Do these parties make a profit by the sale of the wood? I cannot say.
 515. Do they sell it? I cannot say.
 516. What do they apply it to? A great many to the making of bricks.
 517. When the wood is required for firing a kiln of bricks, and it not brought up—does not some loss and inconvenience fall upon them? Yes, I should think so.
 518. If the Government had not, at its own expense, unloaded these for the consignees, would it not be an inducement to the consignees to unload? I think it would if they wanted the wood; but very often the consignees do not get them, because the bricks come in at night and would be unloaded, and the men have to pick the wood up off the ground.
 519. Do you think they would prefer the wood being left in the trucks to having to lift it up off the ground? Decidedly; when thrown on the ground it is difficult to lift up the heavy blocks; it is more convenient to have them left in the trucks for the consignees to load.
 520. Would they prefer taking wood out of the trucks within twenty-four hours, or would they prefer the wood being unloaded by the railway porters at the cost of the Government, and having to load their carts afterwards? They would much prefer taking it themselves.
 521. By Mr. Whitton: Did they ever complain of the Government having unloaded the trucks? They used to say, why not leave it till we take it away. I know they grumble to take it off the ground.
 522. Then, in fact, since you got the orders to make the consignees unload them, you have found no difficulty in having trucks? They are all ready.
 523. By Mr. Owen: The person who wanted the trucks again would be the consignor not the consignee? When the trucks are empty, I don't know where they are going. The guard has orders where to leave the trucks.

George Weller called in and examined:—

524. By Mr. Whitton: What are you? I am one of the flying gang.
 525. That is one of the extra porters? Yes, extra men.
 526. Where have you been employed lately? At Menangle for these last three weeks.
 527. Were you ever employed at the Sydney station? Yes.
 528. Did you ever go up to Mr. Nealds' house to cut billet wood? Yes.
 529. On many occasions? Three times.
 530. Who were you always paid by at that time? One three-quarters of a day I was not paid for at all by Mr. Nealds.
 531. Why were you not paid for that three-quarters of a day? Because Mr. Nealds told me not to book my time.
 532. At other times who has paid you? I have booked it—it has been paid by the Government—half-a-day.
 533. What did Higgs say to you when he refused to pay you for the three-quarters of a day? I never asked him. He told me not to book my time—Mr. Nealds would pay me.
 534. And Mr. Nealds never did pay you? No.
 535. Is half a day all the time you have worked there cutting billet wood, with the exception of these three-quarters of a day? No, I have worked there two or three hours one time. I have told you the truth; I was there three times.
 536. Twice you were paid by the Government? Yes.
 537. And once not at all? Yes.
 538. By Capt. Mayne: Two or three hours—was that included in the three times? Yes.
 539. Was any one with you at the time? No.
 540. By Mr. Whitton: By whose orders were you sent to Mr. Nealds? By Mr. Higgs.
 541. What hour in the day did you go? I went at 9 o'clock the first time, and left off at 6 in the evening.
 542. That was a whole day? No; three-quarters of a day.
 543. And that was the day Mr. Nealds was to pay you for? Yes.
 544. And on the second occasion at what time did you go? I went at 2 and left off at 6.
 545. And on this occasion you were paid by the Government? Yes, I booked it myself. I was not paid for the first time. I have a large family to keep, and I thought I would book it myself.
 546. By Mr. Owen: You did not book yourself by the directions of Mr. Nealds—did you? No.
 547. Did you inform Mr. Nealds you had done so? No.
 548. The first time you complained of not having got any payment—were you told by Mrs. Nealds that Mr. Nealds would pay you? Mrs. Nealds told me that Mr. Nealds would pay me.
 549. Did you ever apply to him? She did not say I was to apply to him, but that Mr. Nealds would settle with me.
 550. At each of these times that you worked for Mr. Nealds, instead of charging him for it, you went and put your name as employed by Government? Before I left I put my name down at 2, and when I came back I booked at 6.
 551. By Capt. Mayne: Was Mr. Higgs present when you booked it? (No reply.)
 552. By the Chairman: Did you enter 2 o'clock as going away, and 6 o'clock as when you returned? Yes.
 553. Then it would appear you were away during that time? Yes.
 554. By Capt. Mayne: How was it you were paid for that time, when the return shewed you were away? I don't know.
 555. At 2 o'clock, what did you enter? I booked 2 o'clock.
 556. Do you mean you booked it as a return to duty? I booked 1 o'clock as my departure, and 2 o'clock as my return.
 557. Then what did you book at 6 o'clock? Departure again.
 558. By Mr. Owen: The first time that you went to Mr. Nealds, Mr. Nealds told you not to charge for the three-quarters of a day's work in the Government pay-sheet? Mr. Higgs told me to go to Mr. Nealds, to cut up some wood, and not to book my time, as Mr. Nealds would pay me.
 559. By Capt. Mayne: Did you ever ask Mr. Nealds for payment? No.
 560. Did he ever say anything to you about it? No.
 561. On the third time, when did you go? I don't know what the time was; it was in the evening.
 562. On what day? In the afternoon.
 563. Was it Saturday, or some other day? I cannot say.
 564. On that occasion did you mark down your departure? My time was booked at 2, when I was sent to Mr. Nealds, and when I came back I booked my time at 6. I could not say whether it was the second or third time that it was half a day.
 565. By Mr. Moriarty: Did you not apply to Mr. Nealds for your wages? I left to his own self whether he was gentlemanlike to pay me.

William Jarvis called in and examined:—

566. By Mr. Whitton : What are you? I am assistant guard.
 567. How long have you been assistant guard? Little over four months. Since Mr. Owen was station master.
 568. What were you prior to that? In the goods shed—daily porter.
 569. Were you one of the permanent staff of porters? I was.
 570. Were you ever sent to Mr. Nealds' house to cut billet wood? Yes, on two occasions.
 571. Who were you sent by? I was sent by Mr. Higgs, on both occasions.
 572. Who paid you for the time you were there? The first time I was on the extra gang—the flying gang. The next time my time was booked as if working in the shed.
 573. Then the Government paid you? Yes.
 574. How long were you there the second time? About three hours in the afternoon.
 575. Was any one with you? No.

Claudius Aikers called in and examined:—

576. By Mr. Whitton : What are you now? I am knocking about the Railway for what I can get.
 577. You are one of the flying gang? Yes.
 578. How long have you been employed in that way? Four or five months.
 579. Is that the whole length of your service under Government? Yes.
 580. Have you ever been to Mr. Nealds' house to cut billet wood? Yes.
 581. How many times? Twice.
 582. Who paid you for the time you were there? Mr. Nealds was to pay me.
 583. On both occasions? Yes; because the head porter told me not to book my time.
 584. And your time was not booked on any occasion? No.
 585. You are quite clear about it? Yes.
 586. Did you never tell any one that the time you were working for Mr. Nealds you were charged to the Government? No, Mr. Higgs told me not to book my time.
 587. Could you not have booked your time after Mr. Higgs told you not? Yes, but he would have found it out.
 588. Is he always there to see you book your time? No.

John Whitton examined:—

589. By Mr. Owen : Do you, or any of the officers employed on the Railway, ever order the men to go on messages for them? Not that I am aware of.
 590. Did you ever send a man to the North Shore for a horse? Yes, I sent him over to order the horse to be forwarded, because the steam ferry was not running across. I don't call that employing a porter to go messages; I paid him for it, and I think I have a right, being in the Government service, to send a man on a message of that kind, but not to employ them in cutting billet wood for me.
 591. Any one could have gone for the horse? There was no one else there.
 The Board adjourned to half-past 10 o'clock to-morrow, Friday.

5 November.

Seventh Charge.—Rent of a house at Penrith.

“On referring to minute paper 62-668, relative to the house called the ‘White Horse Hotel,’ at Penrith, I find that Mr. Nealds had instructions, on 3rd July, to procure a tenant for these premises; and from Mr. Fitzmaurice's letter, dated 28th October, 1862, it appears that house was let on the 26th July, and, up to 4th October, the rents were regularly forwarded to Mr. Nealds; no portion, however, of the money has been paid to the accountant.”

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Williams : As to the “White Horse Inn,” at Penrith—had you ever instructions to secure a tenant for it? Yes, to let it.
2. When was that? This was on 1st July of this year I received this minute paper.
3. What did you do? The minute was to this effect—instructions to secure a tenant, and what rent to charge.
4. Did you secure a tenant? It was understood to be let to myself; at any rate I secured a tenant.
5. Who was the party? Through the station master I let it to a person of the name of Cable; there were three persons—I cannot tell you their names—Cable and two others.
6. At what rent? 6s. I received from Cable, and 4s. 6d. from the other two.
7. Were they all tenants at the same time? Cable was before them.
8. They were all in at the same time? I received the rent from the station master—his name is Fitzmaurice; he forwarded it first to the accountant, and afterwards, on my telling him not to do so, he forwarded it by the way-bill.
9. Was any of it paid to the accountant? I can only speak from what the station master informed me—I don't know.
10. Did you ever put up a parcel directed to the accountant with money in it? No.
11. You instructed Mr. Fitzmaurice to send the money to you? Yes, directly I heard he had sent it to the accountant.
12. When was that? I think it was about the 4th or 5th of August—I could tell you by referring to my books.
13. What did you do with that money? It is in my pocket at present, but it has been locked up in my desk—the desk for the use of the manager at the Sydney Station.
14. Was any return made by you to the accountant? No.
15. Any statement of having received the money? Any statements in writing to any one?—No.
16. What is the amount of the money so received? £7 10s.
17. In what way were you authorized to receive this money? I was authorized upon this minute paper. (Reads minute paper dated 3rd July and 11th July.)
18. That was in your charge as traffic manager? I do look upon it as such, but it was not intended I should understand it as such.
19. What was it intended? I shall be able to prove that it was intended I should take the house at 10s. a week.
20. How do you gather that intention? Simply from the conversation between Mr. Moody, Mr. Cowlishaw, and myself.
21. Has Mr. Moody or Mr. Cowlishaw the authority to let the tenements of the Commissioner? I presume this is a statement of the Commissioner's, and this is to let at 10s.
22. That is you are to find a tenant—I don't see anything that you are to be the tenant? I must have understood this, and have acted with great caution in the case.
23. How? Because I did not think it was intended to be let to me, and I have received the money and did not use it.

24. If it was not let to you, how was it that you did not hand the money to the accountant? I would remark that he has not made any application.
25. Do you conceive that you are not bound to pay any money you receive unless Mr. Walker, the accountant, makes application to you? Oh no.
26. Have you reported that you let the inn? No, because that was sent down two days before my suspension.
27. Have you made any report to any one that you let those places? Simply verbally, and to Mr. Moody, on the platform.
28. When? About the 10th October.
29. You never mentioned it to any one except Mr. Moody, that you let that place? No.
30. And yet you were receiving the rent therefrom? Yes.
31. How did you expect Mr. Walker to apply for the rent to you? Because the first week's rent was paid.
32. Whom to? To the accountant.
33. If that was paid to Mr. Walker, why was not the other rent paid to him? Because it was paid to me; it was understood I had it.
34. Was not that memorandum prior to the payment to Walker, authorizing you to let it? I think it was; the first payment to Walker I think was on the 26th.
35. You tell us that the first payment to Walker was before you let it? I am not certain.
36. Can you tell us whether that paper was written before you let it? I misunderstood you. It could not be let before the 3rd, because up to that time a man was in charge for the Commissioner, and no rent paid.
37. Under that authority you let the place? Yes.
38. One week was paid to the accountant? Yes.
39. Why was it altered? Because I understood the property was let to me.
40. Did you understand that from that minute? Yes.
41. That you are not to find a tenant, but to become a tenant? Yes, if I chose.
42. And you having found a tenant for the Commissioner, became the tenant, and made him the under tenant? I had not found a tenant at the time.
43. Do you tell us that you became the tenant of the Commissioner? That is what I presume.
44. What is the fact? I thought there would be some question about it. I believe I was looked upon as the tenant.
45. Were these people tenants of the Commissioner or your tenants? They were my tenants to all intents and purposes.
46. Who was the Commissioner's tenant? I was.
47. And these persons were paying the money to you as their landlord? Yes, through the station master.
48. Why did you then keep this money for the Commissioner? Because I doubted.
49. Whether you were the tenant? Because I doubted the steps taken in the office—I have reason to doubt every step taken in the office.
50. If these men were your tenants, and this money was paid to you from your tenants, why keep it for the Commissioner? At the termination of the quarter the money would have been paid.
51. Why did you keep the money for the Commissioner if that money was your money received from your tenants? I kept the 10s. for the Commissioner; I never used the money because I simply thought there would be a question.
52. Then you had some doubt whether that minute made you the tenant? For my own part I had no doubt.
53. Then why did you act upon it? Simply because I distrusted everything that was done in the department.
54. Because you looked upon yourself as the tenant you made no return to Mr. Walker? Not until application was made and the quarter had expired.
55. You have still that money you have been getting from these men—the Commissioner's money? Yes, it is my money.
56. From what date were you to become the Commissioner's tenant—from the date you were told to find a tenant, or from the date the persons went in as your tenants? I think from the 11th, because this is the date when I was told to get a tenant.
57. Then you consider that instructions from the Commissioner to get a tenant for his lands makes you the tenant? Not in all cases.
58. Why in this case? Simply from the conversation between Mr. Moody, Mr. Cowlshaw, and myself.
59. But you have already told us that they had no authority? I have been already authorized to take houses for the men at Blacktown, and held responsible for them.
60. For the Commissioner? No, for the men.
61. That is different to taking the Commissioner's land and letting it to somebody else—that is the explanation you have to give as to the money—did you ever send any written statement that you let the house? No.
62. It was merely from the conversation that you supposed you became the tenant? Yes, from the conversation.
63. And these men became your under tenants, you being the tenant of the Commissioner, and received the money from them and held it, being the Commissioner's money? Yes.
64. By Mr. Moriarty: Did you ever acknowledge your tenancy in any way? No, nothing, except at the time of the conversation with the three gentlemen at that time; and I said "Very well," and sent down to the station master not to pay over any more of the rents of the "Penrith Inn," but to pass it through the way-bills to me.
65. You have sent the money in? No, I am waiting till the quarter expired; I did not forward any; it was the station master forwarded it.
66. Thus the 11th June; then your quarter would have expired on the 11th October? Yes, but out of that a sum has been paid to the accountant by the station master.
67. By the Chairman: If you were the tenant how was it the rent was paid—was sent up to the accountant here? Because in the first instance the station master thought it was let for the Commissioner, and subsequently I told the station master it was to be sent to me, as I had become the tenant.

George Fitzmaurice called in and examined:—

68. By Mr. Williams: What are you? Acting station master at Penrith.
69. Do you know the house called the "White Horse Hotel"? Do you refer to the house at the Cross Roads?
70. Yes? I do.
71. When was it let? It is divided into three compartments, and let to three of our men.
72. What rent do they pay? One pays 6s. and the other two 4s. 6d. each.
73. Who collected the rent? I did.
74. When did you receive the first payment? The first was made on the 26th July, 6s.
75. What did you do with it? I paid it to the accountant in my regular return.
76. Did you collect the rent after that? Ever since.
77. What did you do with the rent after that? I paid to Mr. Nealds' order—to manager.

123. Would you inform the Board what the conversation was with Mr. Nealds? My impression—I don't recollect the conversation exactly—was, that the house was let to Mr. Nealds at 10s. per week, and that Mr. Nealds was to find tenants for it, and at the same time it was understood that it was for the tenantry of persons employed on the railway, not casual persons.
124. By Capt. Mayne: Who was to pay rent for it? Mr. Nealds.
125. Suppose he did not let it, what then? From the conversation, I presume he was bound under a penalty of 10s. a week.
126. Whether he let it or not? Yes. I thought, from the conversation, Mr. Nealds was bound to the Commissioner for 10s. a week.

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

127. By Mr. Williams: As to the money you received from the tenants for this place, how was it sent down to you? It was put in the way-bill.
128. What did you do with it? I put it away at once.
129. The actual money received? Yes.
130. Where is it—is the money you have got the same money? I cannot say, because I kept my own money there also.
131. Is the money you have got now the actual money you received? No, but the actual amount.
132. The money you are now producing is not the actual money you received? Not all; a great deal of it is; I am sure the notes are.
133. What became of the money—some of the money you have is the actual money—what became of the rest? I have used it—put a note in for change of two half-sovereigns, or it may be four half-crowns for 10s.
134. I thought you intended to say that you put the money in a drawer—the actual money that came down—and that you were now returning the same money? No.
135. Then this money that came down was received by you on your own account? Yes.
136. Was the usual charge for it on the way-bill? No, it was passed through the way-bill simply as a return for me.
137. As the Commissioner's money? No, as my own money.
138. Why was it not charged the same as other parcels would have been? I don't know; I never looked.
139. And you cannot say? No.
140. Can you explain why, if this money was your money, you kept it so distinctly to give over to the Commissioner—why, if it was not the Commissioner's money, did you keep it so? I have my doubts as to the safety of anything connected with the department, and therefore I kept the money in case there should be any question mooted about it.
141. By Mr. Owen: Where did you keep this money? In the drawer in my office; in the right hand drawer as you enter inside the door.
142. You were aware you would be held responsible for this money? Most decidedly.
143. Was that the reason you kept the amount put away in your drawer? Yes, partly for that purpose.
144. Is it customary to make charges for moneys of that kind, which are connected with the working of the line, which come down? No.
145. By Mr. Williams: Did you ever ask anybody to tell you the amount of the money you so received? No, never. I wrote to Mr. Fitzmaurice to let me know the dates on which he paid me, because I had them entered, and I wanted to see whether they agreed.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

146. By Mr. Owen: Do you remember—after the suspension of Mr. Nealds—do you remember his taking some money out of the office? I do.
147. Do you remember his counting it? Yes; last Saturday he took a pocket-book out and eight notes, and stated it was money he received for the rents; he counted them, eight notes and half a sovereign.
148. Did Mr. Nealds ask you to do anything with the money? Yes, he wanted me to put it in the safe for him.
149. Did you do so? I did not.
150. Are you perfectly certain you are correct as to the amount of money he counted? According to what he stated.
151. Are you sure he did not say seven notes and half a sovereign? I understood him eight notes and half a sovereign—that is what he stated.
152. By Mr. Williams: How long was this after Mr. Nealds' suspension? That was last Saturday.
153. When was he suspended? On 17th October.
154. Who had the use of that place up to that time—Mr. Nealds had access to it? Yes.
155. Did he say who let the house when he said this money was the rent of it—did you ask him? No, he volunteered that statement, and I thought it was remarkable that I should be asked to put it in the safe.
156. You did not ask him anything about it—he volunteered the statement "Here is the pocket-book containing the notes for the house"? Yes.
157. And he asked you to put it in the safe? Yes.
158. By Mr. Owen: What were you in the office for? He called me in; he had returned to give up the keys and get out his private papers; I was there to see he took nothing else.
159. Have you ever seen Mr. Nealds go in there in the office since his suspension? He has been about again and again on the line; I cannot say.
160. Has he not always gone in with a witness? I cannot say.
161. The fact of his going in with a witness would not direct your attention? No.
162. Therefore you would not remark it? No.
163. By the Chairman: Was Mr. Nealds at this time suspended? He was.
164. By Mr. Williams: Was he about the station? He was about the station.
165. As usual? Yes.
166. After his suspension? Yes.
167. Not interfering with the business? No.
168. The office was under his control? Yes, he was about and speaking to the men.
169. By Mr. Owen: Was not Mr. Nealds always there by appointment by you? He was not.
170. Was he not there by appointment on that morning? No.
171. By Mr. Williams: Did you ever hear Mr. Nealds ask anybody as to the amount of the rent sent down? I did not hear him; one of the men under me asked me whether he should furnish a return of the rents sent down. He requested the clerk to furnish him with a return, and I refused to allow him to do so.
172. This was after his suspension? Yes, this was before the Saturday, and before the discovery of the money.
173. The inquiry about the money preceded the discovery? Yes, a week on Monday.
174. By Mr. Owen: Were you aware that Mr. Nealds was receiving the rent of this house? I was.

175. Did you make any minute of it? No minute whatever.
 176. Did you bring it under the notice of the superior officer? No; my superior officer is Mr. Nealds.
 177. I suppose you consider the Commissioner your superior officer? Yes, I do; I had no conversation with the Commissioner.
 178. Did you ever communicate with anybody else this fact? I did not communicate with any one.

8 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
 Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Charge 7—continued.

Thos. Cowlshaw called in and examined:—

179. By Capt. Mayne: What is your appointment in connection with the railway? Land valuator.
 180. When you were examined the other day, you referred to a conversation you had with Mr. Nealds, from which you collected that he was the tenant of the house at Penrith? The conversation was not with me—it was between Mr. Moody and Mr. Nealds.
 181. Can you recollect how that conversation commenced? I believe it was in connection with the minute paper. I don't recollect exactly; in fact I was writing at the time, and sitting with my back to them. I believe it was in reference to the minute paper. This matter had been under consideration for some little time before, as to the letting of the house.
 182. Who commenced the conversation—you say it was commenced with reference to the minute paper? I could not say who commenced it. There was some conversation about this minute paper, and Mr. Moody came in to see Mr. Rae about it, to the best of my recollection. I dare say the matter occupied some ten minutes or a quarter of an hour altogether.
 183. You cannot recollect who commenced the conversation—Mr. Moody or Mr. Nealds did? I cannot.
 184. What was the purport of the conversation? The discussion was as to the amount of rent, and something was said about 12s., and then 10s., and it was considered 10s. was sufficient.
 185. And what resulted from this? Mr. Nealds then said to Mr. Moody, "I am to be considered the tenant?"
 186. And what did Mr. Moody answer? To the best of my recollection, it was that "We look to you for the 10s. a week."
 187. And that was the substance of the conversation which took place between Mr. Nealds and Mr. Moody—did you take any part in it yourself? I think I did say something. I made some remark about the time of the rent commencing, and Mr. Nealds said, "Then the rent is to commence next Monday?" I think I then made the remark that it ought to commence at once, as it was let so cheap.
 188. By Mr. Moriarty: Let so cheap to whom? To Mr. Nealds.
 189. By Mr. Whitton: Had Mr. Nealds the minute paper in his hand at the time he asked the question? If he had not he had a few minutes before previously; I may state that I had not seen the minute paper at that time, because, as I observed before, I was sitting with my back to Mr. Moody and Mr. Nealds, while they were arranging this matter, and it was just as Mr. Nealds was going out that I said that I thought the rent ought to commence directly.
 190. By the Chairman: Do your duties as valuator extend to fixing the rent to be paid for the houses? No; it was a mere casual observation on my part.
 191. By Mr. Owen: What are your duties as valuator? Land valuator and valuator of buildings taken for railway purposes. I may remark that my opinion has been asked as to the value of the rent when buildings have been leased. I have a recollection that I said it was too cheap, because it had been let just previously at £1 per week.
 192. By the Chairman: You are one of the regular staff in the office? —

Richard Moody examined:—

193. By Capt. Mayne: It appears you had some conversation with Mr. Nealds with respect to the letting of this house at Penrith? Yes.
 194. Will you state what that conversation was, and how it commenced? As far as I can recollect, Mr. Nealds came in to me with the minute paper, on which he had written that he supposed he was to make the best bargain he could for the rent for a tenant, and as Mr. Rae was not then in the office, and he was anxious to get away, I, as I very frequently do, made a minute on the Commissioner's behalf—"That is what I understand."
 195. How do you mean "that is what I understand"? If you refer to the minute paper of Mr. Rae, Mr. Nealds said, "I am to make the best bargain I can for the rent." On the 11th of the 7th month Mr. Nealds brought the minute paper, on which he asked, "Will the Commissioner say if I am to let the premises to the best advantage; in fact if it is to be placed in my charge?" I then wrote, "That is what I understand," in the absence of the Commissioner.
 196. Had there been between you and Mr. Nealds, before you wrote that, any conversation respecting the minute? Not until I wrote the words "that is what I understand." Mr. Nealds having the minute paper in his hand said, "I imagine I am the tenant," and Mr. Cowlshaw then made some observation, which I don't recollect, and Mr. Nealds said "I only want it for the work-people." I then said "Whatever work-people you take it for, we shall look to you for the rent;" and then commenced the conversation between Mr. Cowlshaw and Mr. Nealds about what the rent was to be, but I did not gain it. I believe all that passed was what I have related.
 197. By Mr. Moriarty: You contemplated Mr. Nealds taking it for the people? I thought he was likely to.
 198. Are you sure those are the words you used, "that whatever work-people you let it to, we shall look to you for the rent"? Yes.
 199. Did you say whatever people you take it for or let it to? I have no doubt I said "let it to," because I know I was letting it to him as traffic manager under the minute paper.
 200. By the Chairman: Then Mr. Nealds said, "I am to be the tenant?" He made the observation in the first instance, and that made me say "Whoever you let it to, I shall look to you for the rent."

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

201. By the Chairman: At what rent did you let it at? After the first payment on the quarter it was let at 15s. a week—one at 6s., and the other two 4s. 6d. each.
 202. And you were to pay 10s. a week for it? Yes.
 203. By Mr. Moriarty: You were making a profit of 4s. 6d. a week out of it? No, 5s. a week.

Friday,

Friday, 7 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Eighth charge—Porters at Parramatta.

“Mr. Aldrich wrote to Mr. Nealds, about three months ago, stating that he could dispense with two porters at the Parramatta station, but no notice was taken of this by Mr. Nealds, and the porters remained.”

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Whitton: Did Mr. Aldrich write to you about three months ago that he could dispense with two porters at his station? Yes, in reply to a general circular I sent to every station master on the line, Mr. Aldrich said he could dispense with one porter or two for a day or so while the work was slack, but would require them when the work sprung up again.
2. Have you that letter from Mr. Aldrich? I have not. There is an answer from every station master on the line where there are porters. This circular was sent to every station master.
3. This would be sent with reference to a reduction in the permanent staff? It was with that view.
4. What was the date of the letter? Just before the opening of the Menangle station.
5. By Mr. Whitton: And the letter you sent had reference to a general reduction in the staff of porters? Yes, if possible.
6. Mr. Aldrich's reply was that he could dispense with one or two? Yes, for a day or two while the work was slack, but directly the work sprung up he would require them again.
7. That letter you have not got? I cannot find any one of those letters from the station masters.
8. From your knowledge of the work doing, did you feel justified in making any reduction of the number of porters? No, because there was a prospect of an increase directly.
9. Would there be any means of obtaining a copy of Mr. Aldrich's letter? I think so.
10. By Mr. Owen: What was it induced you to send this circular? At the time there were fresh appointments for the Menangle station, I sent this circular to all station masters, to see whether it was necessary to employ fresh men as permanent men, or whether we could not draft them from the other stations.
11. By Mr. Whitton: How many new stations were about to be opened at the time? Menangle only, at that time; Penrith had just been opened, and South Creek a short time ago.
12. How many porters would you require to be drafted from all the stations for the Menangle station? Four men were appointed.
13. How many men would you require for the Menangle station? Four men.

Tuesday, 11 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard, | Captain Mayne,
Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Charles Frederick Aldrich called in and examined:—

14. By Mr. Whitton: You are now station clerk at Parramatta? I am.
15. How long have you been there? Last March twelve months.
16. And previously to that you were station clerk at Sydney? Yes.
17. For what length of time? I think nearly two years.
18. Do you remember, some four months ago, having a conversation with Mr. Nealds with reference to a reduction in your staff? Yes, at the Parramatta station.
19. And you afterwards wrote to Mr. Nealds on the subject? He wrote to me to ask me how many hands I could work the station with, and I replied if the traffic did not increase above the present month that we might do with four hands and myself.
20. By Mr. Owen: Is that any reduction? Yes, one hand less.
21. By Mr. Whitton: What reply did you get to that? I believe I got none; I don't recollect getting any.
22. Did you reply you could dispense with one permanent hand? That is the impression I intended to convey—that I could do away with one permanent hand.
23. And you received no reply? I don't think I did; I feel confident I did not; I would not be positive; I don't remember having received any.
24. Did your letter make any reference that you could dispense with two persons, or only one? Only one.
25. By Mr. Owen: Have you a copy of that letter? No, I have not.
26. Have you got a copy of the general order that was sent round—the letter you received from Mr. Nealds? I may have—I will not be certain. What general order do you allude to?
27. You say you answered his letter? Yes.
28. What form was it—was it in a private letter or circular? Letter in the usual memo. style.
29. Can you recollect what you said in reply? I said I could work the station with myself and four hands.
30. Did you not say you could do so when the traffic was slack? Provided the traffic did not increase.
31. When was that? It was some months ago.
32. Was it the time when the work was slack? There was the usual amount of work; our best time is when the wool is coming down.
33. Was that all you stated in your letter? Yes, that is all.
34. Has the traffic increased at all at the Parramatta station? I think it is as it stood. The passenger traffic has increased slightly.
35. That is on account of the Western line being open—the Penrith line? This was at the time when it was not.
36. When this letter was sent, were not some new stations being opened up, when the line was pushed on further? It might be.
37. When the line had been pushed up further? I think it was after South Creek was open.
38. Menangle was not? I believe not.
39. And since then it has been opened to Penrith as well? Yes.
40. So there were a good many changes contemplated in consequence of these extensions? A great many alterations were required.
41. By Mr. Whitton: How many porters have you now at the Parramatta station? I have got three and myself.
42. Is the traffic now about the average you have had for some twelve months? Yes; if there is any increase it is in the passengers.
43. It is not less than it was three months ago? No.
44. With reference to those extensions, they are only ten miles, I think, altogether? What?
45. The Western and Southern—South Creek to Penrith? That is only four miles.

Friday,

Friday, 7 November.

Ninth charge.—Season tickets.

“Under the regulations, season tickets, if held by two persons in one family, a reduction in price is made of 25 per cent.; if held by four members of the same family, the reduction in price is 50 per cent. These tickets, I am informed, are issued to persons at Newtown, at a reduction in price, who are not members of the same family, yet no report on this matter has ever been made by Mr. Nealds.”

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Whitton: You are aware, Mr. Nealds, that a reduction in price is made to season ticket holders—if held by two members of one family the deduction is 25 per cent., if held by four members the reduction is 50 per cent.;—are you aware that these season tickets have been issued to certain persons at Newtown, at a reduction in price, who are not members of the family? Perhaps you will explain what you mean by members of the family.
2. I mean of the same family—the husband, wife, and child? I only know of two instances having occurred—one was Mr. Justice Wise, who applied to the Commissioner for a season ticket for himself and his clerk, when he resided at Enmore; and the other was an application to the Commissioner on behalf of Mr. Scardon, for a lodger who stayed at the same house with him, and being under the same roof, it was held they were one and the same family. I may further state that applications for these season tickets have not been made to me lately but to the accountant.
3. Has any report ever been made to you by any of the station masters, with reference to the issue of these tickets, that they have not been made to the same family? No.
4. Were you aware as traffic manager, that these tickets were being issued to parties not the same family? No. The applications for season tickets were made to the station clerk, by the station clerk to the accountant. They were formerly made to me, now they are made to the accountant direct.
5. And at no time has any remonstrance been made to you of the issue of these tickets? No.
6. Did you ever think it necessary to enquire into that matter, to ascertain whether they were members of the same family or not? What tickets?
7. These season tickets? I say I never had my attention drawn to it.
8. Did you as traffic manager think it necessary to make any enquiry to ascertain whether these season tickets were issued to the same family? I never did make any enquiry—I knew nothing about it.
9. By Mr. Owen: Who is the person deputed to issue these tickets? The accountant.
10. Who is the channel for the preparation and issuing of these tickets? The accountant.
11. To whom is the application made? To the accountant, by the station clerk.
12. Is not the station clerk the person who receives all the information about these tickets? Yes.
13. These applications about the season tickets are placed under the notice of the station clerk? Yes, they are put up in every one of the stations—they are part of the regulations.
14. Both these applications which you speak of were made direct to the Commissioner? Through me to the Commissioner.
15. And the Commissioner sanctioned them? Yes.
16. By Mr. Whitton: Are there any papers relative to these matters? Yes.
17. The station master is acting under you as traffic manager? Yes.
18. And you never had your attention called to the matter? No.
19. By Capt. Mayne: Is there any particular form in which the application for season tickets is made? Simply the applicant leaves his name at the station from which he travels, stating which he requires, whether a monthly ticket, or for a quarter of a year, or for half a year, and the class.
20. Is there any form in which that is done? No.
21. By the Chairman: Does that go through you to this office? No, it goes direct. Formerly I issued them, now all applications are sent here. Even when they come to me they are sent to the accountant, and the returns were forwarded to the accountant directly they were issued.
22. By Mr. Whitton: That regulation is only of very recent date—the applications have come to you for years past. As traffic manager, if it had come to your notice that tickets were issued to persons who were not members of the same family, you would have reported it and investigated it? Yes, decidedly.

McVye Faulkner called in and examined:—

23. By Mr. Whitton: You are station clerk at Newtown? Yes.
24. Is application made to you direct for the issue of season tickets? Yes, by the people who want them; they come and put their names down in a book, and the number of tickets and the class.
25. You are aware, of course, of the general arrangement, that to parties who are members of the same family there is a reduction in price? Yes.
26. Are you aware that any season tickets are issued at your station, at a reduction in price, to parties who are not members of the same family? They may be members of the same family, but they have not the same names.
27. What would you call members of the same family—you would not call a cousin, would you? No.
28. Then what relationship or connection exists between them? I am not aware.
29. Who are the persons you allude to? I could enumerate several from memory, but if I had the books I could do better. There is one party of the name of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Cohen, they take four third class tickets and get a reduction of 50 per cent.
30. As members of one family? Yes.
31. Are there others that you are aware of? Yes.
32. Will you name any others? Yes, Mr. Smith and Mr. O'Brien take two third class tickets.
33. Have they these tickets at a reduction in price? Yes, 25 per cent.
34. Do you remember any others? Yes, Mr. Way, I think he is a lieutenant in the Volunteers, and Mrs. Way, and two Miss Morrises. They have not them this month, but they had them last month. They take four first class tickets, with a reduction of 50 per cent. All these people were in the habit of receiving their tickets before I went; the only fresh one that has come since I took possession of the station is a party who took two tickets; he came about the 28th of last month and said he wanted three this time. I asked him the names of the parties; he said “James Murphy”—it was not the same name as his—I said “Who is Murphy?” he said “Oh! he is my son-in-law,” and as I had no proof he was not I gave him the tickets at a reduction of 40 per cent.
35. Do you call a son-in-law a member of the same family? I would not.
36. The tickets issued by you, the season tickets—did you find a list of them in the books when you took the station? Yes; the books had been in use for months before I went there.
37. Did you make any special report on the matter—that in your opinion they were not members of the same family? When I took possession of the station, I asked my predecessor whether this was right, finding that tickets were issued to members of a family who had not the same name; and I think he said he had written on the subject, but I am not positive. I am almost positive he told me this.
38. Are your books of season tickets ever examined by any person? They have never been examined since I have been there.
39. By Mr. Owen: How long have you been at this station? Since the 2nd of September.
40. Of September last? Yes.

41. By Capt. Mayne: In this case of application being made to yourself for three season tickets, you say your attention was directed by their being different names—but on being told it was this man's son-in-law what did you do? I entered the ticket and gave it him as a rule; I saw it had been done for months. I am almost positive J. Middleton told me that it was allowed—the difference of names.
42. By Mr. Owen: To whom did you apply for tickets? To the station master in Sydney, and got them back—we formerly did not.
43. How do you make application for season tickets now? To the accountant. Formerly it was to the station master.
44. Did you not make application under the old arrangement? Yes, to the station master, through the manager.
45. By Mr. Whitton: Did you ever under the old arrangement, make application for season tickets for parties who were not members of the same family? No. When I was at Homebush they were all bonâ fide members of the same family.
46. By Capt. Mayne: Have you any knowledge of what relationship there is between Mr. and Mrs. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Cohen? No. I understand they are in business together; whether they are relations or not I do not know.
47. Are Mr. Smith and Mr. O'Brien related? I don't know.
48. Are Mr. Way and the two Miss Morrisses? I can't say.
49. By the Chairman: Do you know whether they live under the same roof? No. These tickets were issued to all these people before I went there.
50. They were not issued by you? They have been issued for two months by me, but not originally.
51. The list was made out by a person before you? Yes, and as they made fresh application I copied it from the books.

Richard Moody examined:—

52. By the Chairman: Have you any recollection of any letter being sent to this office from Mr. Justice Wise with reference to season tickets? I never heard of such a thing.
53. You don't know whether there are minute papers on the subject? Nothing except the general instructions as to the issue of season tickets.
54. You have no recollection of a special application being made by Mr. Justice Wise for season tickets? No, I never heard of it; I have no recollection.
55. By Capt. Mayne: Would it be probable that such application would have come under your notice, if in the office? If in the office, I have a strong impression I should recollect it as a matter of business; all these would come before me to pass to records. It is possible a private application may have been made without my knowledge.
56. By Mr. Moriarty: Anything like an official application would be recorded in the books? Yes, but I have no recollection.
57. Have you searched the records? I feel sure, if an official application had been made by Mr. Justice Wise, I should have seen it.
- Mr. Nealds*: It was when Mr. Justice Wise was at Enmore.
- I recollect now that Mr. Nealds said Mr. Justice Wise had been speaking to him about it. I recollect Mr. Nealds came into the office and spoke of a ticket for Mr. Justice Wise's clerk, and said an application was made, but there has been no official application.
58. Was the ticket then issued? No, I never heard of it.
59. Did you ever hear of Mr. Skardon applying for a ticket for a person lodging with him? No.

— Skardon called in and examined:—

60. By Mr. Whitton: Do you remember making application for a season ticket? For a monthly ticket I have upon two or three occasions.
61. Did you ever make application to have included with yourself in these monthly tickets some person who was not in your family—a lodger? I never had a lodger—he was my servant. May I ask you if you consider a servant as a member of your family?
62. I put the question, Did you ever make application to have him included with yourself in these monthly tickets? I have.
63. To whom did you make application? My impression is I made it directly or indirectly to the Commissioner.
64. By Mr. Whitton: Was the application granted? For monthly tickets, yes.
65. For yourself and some other person? Yes, for a servant.
66. By the Chairman: Did you explain that you wanted it for a servant? Yes, I am under the impression; I cannot say I explained it to the Commissioner personally; I don't remember whether I spoke to Mr. Rae about it, but I explained it either to Mr. Rae or one of his officers.
67. In this office, or in the station? I am under the impression I explained it to Mr. Moody.
68. By Mr. Whitton: You did not explain to the Commissioner at all? I don't know that I did; I may have done.
69. By Capt. Mayne: In every case, was it for the servant that you applied for a ticket as a member of the same family? Yes, except the first time I applied; it is so long ago I hardly remember the circumstance. At that time I lived in another gentleman's house, and had rooms there. I believe I applied for a ticket to be granted for me as one of the family living in that house, and at that time it was refused me; I have only a distant recollection of it.
70. By the Chairman: To whom was that application made when you were living in this family? I really could not say; the impression on my mind is that I made it to the traffic manager, but whether I said to him or not I could not say.
71. By Mr. Owen: And that application was refused you? Yes.
72. By Mr. Whitton: Was the application made in writing? That I could not say; I really don't remember; I imagine—I think it was; I am very likely to be mistaken.
73. Was any application made by you in writing? Yes, for monthly tickets, to Mr. Moody; I think I can remember—yes, I think I have made application, in writing, for one of my servants to be joined with myself in a monthly ticket.
74. You have no distinct recollection of it? No.

Mr. Moody stated that he had searched the records, and no official application was made by Mr. Justice Wise.

The Chairman: Mr. Nealds, to whom did Mr. Justice Wise apply? Mr. Nealds: To the Commissioner, Captain Martindale, when he was living at Enmore.

A letter was written to Mr. Justice Wise by the Chairman, with regard to the season ticket he had obtained for himself and his clerk.

[The Board adjourned to half-past 10 o'clock to-morrow.]

Tuesday, 11 November.

The Chairman read a letter received from Mr. Justice Wise, relative to his application for a season ticket.

Joseph Middleton called in and examined:—

75. By Mr. Owen : You were at Newtown before the present station clerk? Yes.
 76. You had the arrangement of giving the season tickets? I had the issuing of them.
 77. Do you remember persons applying for family tickets who were not all of them of the same family? Yes.
 78. Did you take note of the circumstance? I did at once, and wrote to the manager if it should be issued, and he said yes.
 79. What did you state to the manager in your letter? I stated it was the servant of a party that required it.
 80. And was that the only time you noticed it? Yes.
 81. And ever since then you granted tickets according to your discretion? Yes, conditional with the rules.
 82. By Mr. Whitton : Did you ever make any inquiry yourself with reference to the different names of the persons who applied for season tickets? Yes, I made inquiries, and they seemed to think they were members of the same family.
 83. Did you ascertain the relationship or connection between them? No.
 84. How did you arrive at the conclusion that they were members of the same family? I had only their word to go by.

7 November.

Charge 10 A—General mismanagement.

Minute paper 61/407. Special train for His Excellency delayed at Liverpool.

Minute paper read by the Chairman.

John Rae called in and examined:—

1. By the Chairman : Do you recollect the precise date when that memorandum of yours was made? One is August, /61, and the other has got /62. It may have been 1862, because one is 29/8 and the other is 29/9, but I don't know what it is about.
 2. About the special train when the Governor went to see the alpacas? This appears perfectly correct; it was submitted on the 29/8/61, but it is not marked to be put away till 1862. It may have lain for a long time without being minuted, and to get it away I have put the usual minute "Put away."
 3. Have you any recollection of the circumstances connected with the detention of the train when the Governor went up to Liverpool? (No answer.)
 4. Was that memorandum made on the date it appears? I have not the slightest doubt of it. The paper may have been aside, and as it was seen by the Minister I merely said "Put it away." The first is the 29/9, and the other is 29/8. I am confident, unless by a clerical error, that was the proper date when it was written.
 5. The question is whether it is a clerical error—whether you mean 29th August, 1861, or July, 1862? It means 1862.
 6. By Capt. Mayne : It is a different minute? Yes; I had no conception it was so long ago.
 7. By Mr. Moriarty : It appears from Mr. Nealds' report that the matter was never submitted again? My impression is that this document was submitted from time to time by the Minister, and as there was never any decision arrived at, I saw no necessity of bringing it forward again, and I marked it "Put away." I thought the matter had dropped. I remember the thing dangled about for a long time, and being submitted to the Minister, I believe it lay with Mr. Arnold for a long time, and I asked for it to get it put away or to get a decision, and not receiving any decision, and whether he told me he would or not give any, I put it away, and minuted it "Put away."
 8. Do you know how Mr. Nealds' statement came to you? It came from Mr. Nealds in the usual way.
 9. By Capt. Mayne : Mr. Nealds' statement is, that he placed it in Mr. Arnold's hands? That he may have done.
 10. And it would be handed to you by the Minister? That is possible. It would be a matter of routine whether it was sent to me or to the Minister. The usual practice is to send it to me.
 11. By Mr. Moriarty : Are you under the impression that, as no action was taken, the explanation was considered satisfactory? I never understood the explanation was satisfactory, but the Minister did not consider the thing of sufficient moment to carry out the suggestion of Mr. Whitton. I believe he stated to me that one of the objections was, that you (Mr. Whitton) had suggested Mr. Nealds' removal to the north; and Mr. Arnold said there was an offence charged, but there was no suggestion for a dismissal, and there was nothing to act upon, and he thought if Mr. Nealds had done anything wrong it would not be advisable to send him to the north and bring down the other manager to the south; he did not think that was the proper way of dealing with the matter.
 12. By Capt. Mayne : Do I understand that was his impression before recovering Mr. Nealds' report? Before and after, and that I believe is his impression now.
 13. By Mr. Whitton : And, in fact, if Mr. Nealds' dismissal had been recommended, he would have acted upon it? Yes, that is my impression. He said, "You did not recommend a dismissal," and he had nothing to act upon; but he did not think it a proper recommendation, if Mr. Nealds had done wrong, that he should be sent to the north.
 14. By Mr. Owen : If charges are against an officer which would warrant dismissal, would not the Executive take the initiative? That is not for me to answer. I don't know what the Executive would do—I could not possibly say; I merely say what I gathered from the conversation with Mr. Arnold.
 15. By Mr. Whitton : How would it be possible for the Executive to take action in the matter, if it were not brought before their notice? Of course they could not; this never went before the Executive Council.
 16. By Mr. Owen : I mean before Ministry? No.

Tuesday, 11 November.

Mr. Whitton examined:—

1. By the Chairman : Will you now make your statement with reference to minute paper marked 61-407? This is in reference to a special train for His Excellency, late at Liverpool. This matter commenced with a letter from the Minister calling for an explanation from Mr. Nealds. The matter was then forwarded on to me for a report, and Mr. Nealds replied to my report. This report of Mr. Nealds I may say I had not read till I heard of it the other day, and it was not forwarded me to reply to it, or I should have done so—and, with the permission of the Board, I will now reply to a few of the mis-statements contained in it.

Mr. Nealds states:—"Thirdly, with regard to Mr. Whitton's suggestion that I should have run the train to Campbelltown, I have to observe that, by regulation No. 55, page 54, before a special train runs on a single line, notice should be given to station masters and inspectors of permanent way. "This was done on the occasion in question, as far as Liverpool, by targeting the proceeding train." I

I may inform the Board that this notice has been invariably set aside, and, I believe, within six months from the time the notice was issued it became a dead letter, and that special trains have run on all single lines when required without notice—on one or two occasions were very nearly causing serious accidents, by trains meeting on the single line between Parramatta and Liverpool.

Mr. Nealds goes on to state:—"By a general order for a safe working of a single line, no special " is allowed to proceed from the Junction at Campbelltown without first receiving from the latter station " a written pass stating that the line will be clear."

It is quite clear that the effect of that order would apply as much between Parramatta Junction and Liverpool as between Liverpool and Campbelltown, and no written order could have been received or had been received from the station clerk at Liverpool to say that the line was clear. Therefore, that portion of the regulations could have no effect on the working of the line, because Mr. Nealds does pass on a single line without any notice, and then brings forward the regulations to justify his neglect in not having made proper arrangements for the working of this train.

2. By Mr. Moriarty: The infringement is not sending to Parramatta or Liverpool? If the regulation was infringed in any way, it could have been done in this case as well as in the other.

3. Just as much an infringement as in this case? Yes.

4. By Capt. Mayne: You say this was an infringement? Yes; this regulation was written by myself, to prevent the incessant running of special trains on single lines without notice.

5. Is it by tacit authority that it is set aside? No authority has been given; it has been set aside by Mr. Nealds.

6. And with the knowledge of his superior officer? What knowledge the Commissioner has I don't know; I have known it myself, and have remonstrated about it over and over again. The regulations have been set aside at any time Mr. Nealds thought proper to do so—I mean with reference to these special trains. I have particularly stated that special trains should not be allowed to run without notice being given to the station masters on the line; but this has not been done, therefore there was no reason whatever why this train should not have gone on to Campbelltown instead of returning to Parramatta.

7. By Mr. Moriarty: There would have been less risk in going to Campbelltown, because he would not meet any train, but you have to overtake the goods train in going to Parramatta? The next train did not leave Campbelltown until 6.15. But if a special train could not be allowed to run without an order, Mr. Nealds would have no fear of meeting an engine coming from Campbelltown without he gave an order himself for the engine to run; for if the regulations had been strictly carried out, no person could have sent an engine without a special notice. Therefore, with a special train for the Governor, he should have got notice that the line was clear before he took the special train over the line, that is if this regulation had been carried out. Mr. Nealds then goes on—"But even admitting that I had " obtained no immediate reply, I should have considered myself open to censure had I run without " apparent cause twenty-eight miles instead of eighteen." Now, I am not very much surprised, considering the number of times Mr. Nealds has evaded questions.

8. By the Chairman: You must confine your explanation simply to facts, and not your own impression of Mr. Nealds' conduct? Mr. Nealds has given his remarks and his opinions in his report, but I do not wish to give mine if the Board do not approve of it. Mr. Nealds states that he would have run twenty-eight miles instead of eighteen. I say that is not so, and Mr. Nealds must have known it not to be the fact at the time he wrote it. From Liverpool to Parramatta is eight miles, and from Liverpool to Sophienburgh two miles, making ten miles; Sophienburgh is two miles nearer to Campbelltown than Liverpool, which is twelve miles from Campbelltown, therefore the distance is also ten miles. 9. The two distances from Sophienburgh to Parramatta and to Campbelltown are equal? Yes.

10. By Capt. Mayne: The train would have to run twenty miles in one case, and twenty in the other—two and eight miles each way, making twenty altogether? Yes. With reference to Mr. Nealds' remarks respecting the shifting of rails, they are imaginary, and it is unnecessary for me to give any explanation. He says he did not know whether there were not men shifting the rails. Mr. Nealds then goes on to say, "Mr. Whitton states that I am an obstruction to the satisfactory working of the line. This is so vague " that I find a difficulty in replying to it. But as my income in part arises from the profits of the line, " which greatly depend upon its being satisfactorily worked, it must be obvious that self-interest, if no " better principle, would induce me to forward by every means in my power arrangements introduced " for that purpose." In reference to that, I may state no order has ever been issued from this office where Mr. Nealds has pointed out anything with the least reasonable objection to its working. That he has made objections I am prepared to admit; but I do not remember any order issued from this office being carried out satisfactory by Mr. Nealds, but it has been generally made by him as obnoxious as possible to the public. Mr. Nealds' report goes on—but I have no remark to make respecting his self-interest. It is clear the line is not satisfactorily worked, and I might instance the meat traffic from Liverpool. I believe the cost of putting up meat sheds, building meat trucks, laying down sidings, and putting down a weighing machine, to have been more than the gross receipts of all the meat traffic from its commencement, so that if this be so all the meat has been carried at the cost of the Government. Mr. Nealds states he would do all he could to increase the receipts on the railway,—I should be glad to find any suggestions from him tending to increase the receipts, and at the same time giving accommodation to the public; but in every instance Mr. Nealds' recommendations go to decreasing the revenue and assisting the public, by promoting private enterprise to the disadvantage of the Government. Mr. Nealds then says—"To the assertions that I have on several occasions been " threatened dismissal, I could only remark that it is customary in all Government departments to " commit to paper the simplest matter of official detail. So serious a charge, therefore, of dismissal of " an officer in my position must, if it had been made, be found on the records of the office." That is a thorough and complete evasion, for Mr. Nealds knows that Mr. Rae and myself have told him respectively that unless he carried out the instructions sent from this office that his dismissal would be recommended. Mr. Nealds does not say he was not threatened with that; he says that the simplest matter of official detail " are put on paper." He knows that these were not put on paper, but he knows that he was told both by Mr. Rae and myself the course that would be adopted if he did not attend to the instructions sent down to him. The other matters have reference to Mr. Nealds' long service in the department, and about which I feel there is no necessity to say anything. There is one matter on which I may remark, that, as on many occasions, this paper of Mr. Nealds' was not forwarded direct to the office in the way official papers are, but Mr. Nealds had the advantage of giving his own version of the story to the Minister, and this paper appears to have remained a considerable time before any action was taken in it, and the only action then taken was the request that it should be put away.

11. By the Chairman: Does Mr. Nealds' salary depend upon the working of the line? Mr. Nealds' salary was £400 a year and a commission of one per cent. on the net receipts, but how it was ever made out I am not prepared to say.

12. By Capt. Mayne: I can speak of my own knowledge that there was a per-centage, but I don't recollect what per-centage? An increase to the salary consequent upon the traffic.

13. This is one of the reasons Mr. Nealds gives in his report, for the course he took with regard to the magnetic instruments—He says, "from their liability to get out of adjustment there is little dependence " to be placed in the magnetic instruments in use through the line, or I could have obtained the necessary pass. This must be evident to the Minister, from his experience of the previous day." Is that the case, that the electric telegraph has been found very defective in its working? I believe it has—the magnetic instruments used there. One observation I have to make, that I have nothing to do with the working of the line.

14. Has that been the fact? It has repeatedly been at the Campbelltown station, when neither instruments would work—neither the general telegraph or the magnetic one used at the stations.

C. J. Nealds examined:—

15. By Capt. Mayne: Did you try to make this communication? On the day previous Mr. Arnold had been detained and could not go on.
 16. Did you endeavour to communicate with the instruments? I endeavoured to communicate with Sydney.
 17. When this difficulty became apparent to you, did you on the line attempt to communicate with Campbelltown? I did at Liverpool when I came from Sophienburgh.
 18. Did you find that no answer was received? I found I could get no answer either way from the Junction or to Campbelltown. Mr. Arnold, the other day, had been stopped with the Commissioner for the very cause I am speaking of—he could not get any communication.
 19. By Mr. Moriarty: That was the day before? Yes, and this shewed Mr. Arnold the difficulty which I was speaking of. I did not know of the starting of the train till 12 o'clock on the day.
 20. By Mr. Whitton: But instructions were sent down the day before, and should have been carried out? They were not.

John Rae called in and examined:—

21. By Mr. Whitton: Have you any recollection of Mr. Nealds having been told by yourself on several occasions, that unless he carried out his duties on the line in a better spirit and proper manner, that his dismissal would have to be recommended? I think I have said as much as that more than once to Mr. Nealds; I have said at all events that some severe steps would be taken.
 22. Did you hear me tell Mr. Nealds so in your office? Yes.
 23. On more than one occasion? Yes; Mr. Nealds says in his report, "To the assertion that I have on several occasions been threatened dismissal, I would only remark, that it is customary in all Government departments to commit to paper the simplest matter of official detail." Was it usual in cases of this kind, to have made a remark upon a minute paper that Mr. Nealds had been threatened with dismissal? How usual?
 24. Is it customary to put anything of that kind in writing that does not go before the Minister? No, of course not.
 25. Then if it were put in writing, it must have gone before the Minister? Yes.
 26. By Mr. Moriarty: Then it was intended as a good-natured caution rather than anything else? Yes.
 27. By Capt. Mayne: But such an intimation has been made by yourself and Mr. Whitton? I have, although very rarely, had some high words with Mr. Nealds, but on several occasions I was obliged to tell him if things went on so, it would come to a serious result most probably; but it was not with the intention of bringing it before the Minister, but merely as a friendly caution to him.
 28. Do I understand that there was a caution that if he did not change in his conduct of the business you would make that recommendation? I think it may have gone to that extent. I would not like to make a distinct statement; but I recollect talking to Mr. Nealds, and hinting that things were not going on as they did, and that if they did not improve, I would have to recommend something to the Minister, or that serious things would result.
 29. Did that refer to the working of the line? Yes; Mr. Nealds considered when we used to discuss the matter; he thought he was doing right, and I thought that he was doing wrong, and I stated it as my opinion that if it did not come to be done as I wished, then it would come to serious consequences.
 30. By Mr. Whitton: Have I written letters to Mr. Nealds' subordinates, signed by you, because Mr. Nealds neglected to carry out the instructions previously given? Yes, I think there has been a case of the kind.
 31. You have yourself written direct orders to the station clerks, because Mr. Nealds refused to carry out the instructions already given? He neglected to carry them out.
 32. One order in particular was in reference to the collection of tickets? Yes.
 33. By Mr. Moriarty: And that order was made to prevent persons going by the train without paying their fares—who is responsible for that? The traffic manager. We were under the impression that after we issued the orders, that there was an intention not to carry them out in the way intended—to carry them out too strictly, merely not to make them work. We then issued further instructions to carry them out in a liberal manner, and that it was not necessary to look at the tickets at every station, but after they were satisfied that a party had got a ticket they need not bother him again.
 34. By Capt. Mayne: That order was directed to Mr. Nealds' subordinates? I don't remember.
 35. I want to know if the subsequent order was addressed to Mr. Nealds' subordinates? No, I think it was addressed to Mr. Nealds. No, it was a sort of remonstrance with Mr. Nealds that he was not carrying out the instructions in the spirit intended—I have spoken to Mr. Nealds repeatedly on the matter.
 36. There have been orders addressed by you to Mr. Nealds' subordinates, instead of to him and through him? I think there have.
 37. And you did it simply because you did not think Mr. Nealds was carrying out the instructions given? Mr. Nealds stated that he did not think these instructions could be carried out, and stated the reasons why they could not be carried out. He thought it was impossible, but he did not refuse to carry them out; and when we found they were not carried out we imagined he was like a prophet who was trying to bring his own prophecy true, and when Mr. Whitton went up on the line I made a remark that he would see whether the orders could be carried out; and Mr. Whitton, if I recollect right, said there was no difficulty in the matter, and we then addressed a remonstrance to Mr. Nealds—whether to him or his subordinates I don't remember.
 38. On other occasions there have been direct orders addressed to Mr. Nealds' subordinates? Yes, that is my impression, but I would not be sure.
 39. While on the subject, have you any doubt of the reason of that course being adopted? If it was adopted, it was adopted because Mr. Nealds was not carrying the instructions out.
 40. On other occasions? I am alluding to this occasion.
 41. You say there were occasions where you have addressed orders to Mr. Nealds' subordinates? Yes, that is my impression.
 42. If there were cases where you addressed Mr. Nealds' subordinates, what was the reason? My impression was that the reason was because we believed Mr. Nealds was not carrying out the orders; and if we could not point to any case there was a feeling that we should be obliged to do it, and I think we did it. If I am not under a misapprehension, Mr. Nealds complained of it.
 43. Mr. Nealds: I remember your writing to the guards once, and I complained of it? I remember Mr. Nealds complaining that we had communicated with his subordinates, which would not be the usual course, although I think I have a right to do it if I choose.
 44. By Capt. Mayne: There is one thing connected with the order I should like to ask a question about, and on which the papers seem to be defective. When Mr. Read communicated the intimation he had received from Mr. Arnold to Mr. Nealds, Mr. Arnold gave the intimation in your presence; now, is there any memorandum to shew that Mr. Nealds communicated this on the same day, or the next morning? I remember we distinctly told him, for fear there should be a mistake.
 45. You state that Mr. Arnold, in your presence, gave him the intimation on the 28th? Yes.

46. By Mr. Moriarty: Should you consider that a sufficient intimation to act upon it? Yes, most assuredly. If Mr. Nealds is not there I should apply to the station master, and he is equally answerable.

47. It was a verbal application? Yes; but we stated at the time what would be required, and if any alterations were made we should communicate with him.

48. By Mr. Whitton: Mr. Nealds said there was no official communication? But there was the next day; we sent it the moment we received it from Government House.

49. By Mr. Moriarty: Is it necessary to give twenty-four hours' notice about these special trains? It is not necessary—it is advisable. I think three or four hours sufficient. I remember distinctly about it, because we are always particular about the specials, and we happened to be down there on other business, and saw Mr. Read. We wanted to see Mr. Nealds, but he was on the line, so we were obliged to take the next best. The moment he came back it would be communicated to him, and in the morning I wrote to Mr. Elyard.

50. By Capt. Mayne: This does not clear up when Mr. Nealds received the intimation first? From Mr. Read?—I suppose Mr. Nealds' statement is sufficient. He said he received it at noon, on the 29th. We got this paper back (letter from Colonial Secretary's Office), and found this list of persons.

51. By the Chairman: That was the day the train was wanted? Yes; but even then there would be time enough. Mr. Nealds does not complain there was not time.

52. But if he had known the day before, he would have had more time to make his arrangements along the line? Yes.

53. All applications for special trains are made through this office? No, not necessarily; they might be made through the traffic manager himself, but they would have to come to this office.

54. Then the order which states that there shall be twenty-four hours' notice before any special train—does that mean to the traffic manager? Yes; I think the party may go to the traffic manager and get it as a matter of course. It is not a matter whether he will get the train or not, but whether he will pay for it.

55. By Capt. Mayne: Can you recollect whether there is a document from Mr. Read? My impression is that there is.

Mr. Nealds admitted that he received Mr. Read's document.

56. By Mr. Whitton: When? Mr. Nealds: Not till I came and mentioned it to him the following morning.

57. Mr. Moriarty: What time would the goods train have left Liverpool? Mr. Whitton: Half-past 1.

58. Mr. Moriarty: Mr. Whitton, you have no reason to believe that there was an intention on the part of Mr. Nealds to keep the Governor and party waiting—it was only an error of judgment? I have no idea of the intentions of Mr. Nealds, but I know if he had taken the train to Campbelltown the detention would have been avoided.

Wednesday, 12 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

William Read called in and examined:—

59. By Capt. Mayne: What is your appointment, Mr. Read? I am at present station master at South Creek.

60. Where were you stationed and held your appointment on the 28th of August, 1861, on the occasion of the special train going to Liverpool? At Sydney.

61. Did you on the 28th of that month receive some instructions as to a special train being required for the Governor and his friends. I received notice on the day previous.

62. About what hour? 1 o'clock.

63. From whom? Mr. Rae, and Mr. Arnold was with him.

64. What did you do upon that order? I informed Mr. Nealds about it directly I saw him, but when Mr. Rae told me he said there would be written instructions. I left word at the station—"Let me know when Mr. Nealds comes"; and I told him of it.

65. When did Mr. Nealds come, and when did you apprise him of it? I think it was about half-past 9 on the following morning.

66. Had Mr. Nealds been at the station the previous day, subsequent to your getting instructions? I had not seen him. I was away on leave from 7 o'clock the day previous.

67. Up to 7 o'clock you had not seen him? No.

68. What steps did Mr. Nealds take on your giving him the intimation on the 29th? If you will allow me to give you the details—When the guard of the half-past 9 train came in (who was guarding the goods train), I told him not to leave till he got instructions about the special train from Mr. Nealds. I also left word with a man to let me know when Mr. Nealds had come. Directly he came I went in and told him what Mr. Rae had said, and asked him whether he had received instructions. On his telling me that he had not, I wished to send up to this office for instructions, and I believe a man was sent and instructions were given to the goods guard.

69. A messenger was sent for instructions to this office? I believe so. I proposed that a cab should be sent off to the office immediately.

70. By Mr. Whitton: You say you told Mr. Nealds about half-past 9? Yes, it must have been before a quarter to 10.

71. At what time did the next train for Campbelltown start? A quarter past 10 o'clock or 10 o'clock. I don't know whether it was before the alteration of the time.

72. By Mr. Nealds: I want to know whether, when the 10 o'clock train had gone away, I did not walk up with a newspaper in my hand, and say, "Have you received any written instructions about this train?" No.

73. By Capt. Mayne: Do you say at 10 o'clock the train started for Campbelltown? I don't know whether it was before the alteration. The train now starts at a quarter past 10.

74. Did that train take up any instructions as to keeping the line clear? It did take instructions about the line, but it was on the return that the mistake was made —

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

75. By the Chairman: Have you anything further to state respecting the trains, after hearing the evidence? No; the Minister was quite satisfied with my explanation.

William

21. And you state that you are aware, or believe, that the contract has been handed over by Holdsworth to Boswell, and yet the timber was invoiced "On Her Majesty's Service"? Yes, I know it because this very way-bill was brought to me.
22. Was not the carriage charged to the Commissioner? Not that I am aware of; until this was brought before my notice I had not the slightest idea of it.
23. As a matter of fact, was not the carriage charged to the Commissioner? I am led to believe that by this correspondence.
24. And under Mr. Holdsworth's contract he should have paid it? Yes, it was to be delivered in Sydney.
25. Were any instructions given to any person on the line to invoice this timber "On Her Majesty's Service"? Not that I am aware of; I did not see the instructions.
26. To whom would the instructions be given? Very likely the consignor, in making out his way-bill, would simply say, "Inform the station clerk at Sydney that he had the contract, and this was Government timber, and then it would be consigned "On Her Majesty's Service."
27. And this must have occurred four or five months without your knowledge at all? Unless brought under my notice.
28. Unless some one told you that the Government were defrauded out of the traffic derived from the timber, you would never have found it out? I think if Mr. Gould, who received the timber, and made out every should have told me of it.
29. I think the particular information given by Mr. Gould was to refuse to pay for it "On Her Majesty's Service"? I am not aware he ever refused until I saw this bill; I dare say he told Mr. Fligg to collect it.
30. You have no knowledge of it? It is stated that he did collect it.
31. You, as traffic manager, knew nothing of it until brought under your notice? Yes.
32. And yet you believe that Mr. Boswell was the contractor for the timber? Yes.
33. And I understand you never told any person verbally, or by written instructions, to invoice the timber "O.H.M.S."? Most decidedly I could not have done so.
34. Who first brought the matter under your notice? Fitzmaurice.
35. In what way did he bring it under your notice? He sent down to me. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Lewton, the inspector of permanent way, had demanded some timber, which Boswell refused to deliver to them, in consequence of no order. His orders were to deliver timber "On Her Majesty's Service" to the storekeeper in Sydney, and he declined to give it.
36. Upon that memorandum of Fitzmaurice's, what steps did you take? I believe it was only a verbal communication, and I told him to write to the storekeeper for an order.
37. You are quite clear on that point? Yes, I believe so.
38. And what was done upon that—what other steps were taken? Well, Mr. Thomas came down and asked me why I could not deliver it, and I told him to go and see Gould on the matter.
39. On finding out an irregularity of this kind had occurred for so long a period, did you reprimand the station master for having invoiced it "On Her Majesty's Service"? I was not aware then that the freight was not collected.
40. Up to what time were you aware this freight was not collected on the timber? When the question was brought before me—when I was called into the room.
41. Did you, on this matter being brought before you, reprimand the station clerks for having sent the timber down "On Her Majesty's Service"? No, because I was not aware that the money had not been collected.
42. Are goods, as a rule, sent down by any of the trains "On Her Majesty's Service," without instructions from some person in authority? No, certainly not.
43. Was it not a gross piece of irregularity of the station clerk to invoice "On Her Majesty's Service" without instructions? No, seeing that the storekeeper had informed the station master at Sydney that this person had the contract for timber.
- Letter of 29th May, 1861, read.*
44. Up to that time you were not aware it was coming down free? No, I had reason to believe the freight was collected.
45. You stated just now that some memorandum came down from Fitzmaurice? I said he called my attention to it verbally.
46. Did you ever receive any memorandum from Fitzmaurice about sending it down? Yes.
47. When did you first see that (letter)? I think it was on the 30th May.
48. Was it forwarded to you? Yes, it was addressed to me, and could only come to me.
49. Did it ever come into your possession? It came to me.
50. Did it ever come into your possession? Most decidedly.
51. And on receiving this paper, what steps did you take? It was forwarded to Mr. Rae.
52. By whom was it forwarded to Mr. Rae? By myself.
53. Was there any memorandum by you on receiving this paper from Fitzmaurice? Memo. respecting Holdsworth's account enclosed from station master at Liverpool to traffic manager.
54. Whose handwriting is that word "traffic manager" in? In my own.
55. And you thought proper, after the minute was sent to you, to interline it? Yes.
56. Are you quite positive this memorandum of Fitzmaurice's, dated 30th May, 1861, was forwarded by you to this office? Yes, either forwarded or delivered to the Commissioner. I am quite certain this paper came through my hands, and that Fitzmaurice never sent a paper addressed to me to this office.
57. Is it usual for you to alter minutes after they are made by this office? Not if the minute is signed by the Commissioner; but it is only the heading part of the paper—leaving out the principal part affecting myself.
58. I think it is clear when this memorandum was made on the paper it was not known or believed that it was forwarded by yourself? How then could it come here?
59. It is not usual to enclose memorandums received from station clerks without making a memorandum on the papers themselves when addressed to the Commissioner? I frequently bring them in myself and consult Mr. Rae upon them—I frequently bring in papers from the station.
60. I think you stated, a short time ago, that money had been collected at Sydney for the carriage of timber consigned to Mr. Holdsworth from Liverpool? I understood so.
61. Will you refer to your memorandum, dated 6/6/61—(Memo. read)—Is not this the minute 61/259 which was forwarded to you with Fitzmaurice's report of 30th May, 1861, for your report? Yes.
62. From this office? Yes.
63. And you interlined the words "By Traffic Manager"? Yes.
64. And you still state that you forwarded it to this office? I don't say forwarded it; I brought—I mean to say that paper passed through my hands before it came to the Commissioner.
65. By Mr. Moriarty: It was brought by you to the Commissioner? Yes, it came to me.
66. Are you quite clear when this date was made on this minute? I have not the slightest doubt that date was put on in this office—in here, and the insertion also.

George Fitzmaurice called and examined:—

67. By Mr. Whitton: You were station clerk at Liverpool in May, 1861? Yes.
68. Do you know a person of the name of Holdsworth or Boswell? I know Boswell.
69. Consigning timber from Liverpool to Sydney? Yes.

70. To whom was the timber consigned? To Mr. Holdsworth, I believe.
71. To whom was it invoiced? I cannot remember for certain—it may have been to the storekeeper or to Holdsworth.
72. Have you no recollection that this timber, which was being sent down from Liverpool, was sent down "On Her Majesty's Service"? When I first went there it was, but I wrote down to ask if it were correct.
73. When did you write down to ask if it were correct? During the end of May or beginning of June, I cannot remember which.
74. And during that time it was invoiced "On Her Majesty's Service"? Previously to my writing it was.
75. Did any one call your attention to the fact that made you write down to Sydney? No.
76. Did you get no memorandum from any person calling attention to the fact that all timber sent down to Holdsworth should be invoiced to him, and not "On Her Majesty's Service"? Previous to my writing down?
77. Previous to your writing down? Not to my knowledge.
78. Will you explain why you wrote to Sydney, to ask if Holdsworth's timber should be invoiced to him or "On Her Majesty's Service"? Because I understood Mr. Holdsworth was the contractor, and he had to deliver to the railway, and therefore it should be delivered in Sydney and not at Liverpool.
79. But what circumstance called your particular attention to it? I cannot remember any circumstance in particular. I thought it was not correct, so I wrote down; I thought the revenue was being defrauded.
80. Had that continued—this invoicing "On Her Majesty's Service"—previous to your appointment? Yes, because I referred to the goods outward book, and found my predecessor, Mr. Brown, had.
81. Had you any communication from Mr. Gould on the subject of the timber? I recollect I received one after I wrote down in the first instance.
82. And part of that memorandum states ? Yes.
83. That is dated on 29th of May, and on the 30th of May you wrote down to the manager for instructions? That is not my first writing, I think, because I know I broached the subject in the first instance.
84. How long previous to the 29th of May? I went there on the 27th of April, and I had not been long there before I broached the subject.
85. To whom did you broach the subject? I wrote down to the manager.
86. Did you receive any reply from the manager? I believe I did, but I cannot say, or what the reply was.
87. Was the reply that it should be charged to Mr. Holdsworth, or consigned "On Her Majesty's Service"? I know that after that it was always charged to Holdsworth.
88. If the previous reply was to that effect, why did you write down for instructions as to whom to charge it? I may have received the storekeeper's memorandum before I got it from Mr. Nealds. I am not sure that I got any instructions from Mr. Nealds.
89. You say you broached to the manager some time before? Yes.
90. This was before May? Yes.
91. What was the answer sent by the manager about this timber? I cannot recollect.
92. Did you ever receive any reply to it? I cannot recollect.
93. By Capt. Mayne: So your attention was called to the matter by the storekeeper? Yes; my attention was called to it by myself in the first instance.
94. Did you report it to Mr. Nealds? Yes, I know I wrote down to Sydney—I believe it was to Mr. Nealds; whether it was to the station master I cannot say.
95. Did you keep a copy of the letter? I kept a copy of the whole of the correspondence when at Liverpool, but I must have destroyed them if they are not at the Liverpool station.
96. You are quite positive you did call Mr. Nealds' attention to the matter, previous to the letter of the 30th May? I feel certain of it in my own mind.
97. That is your writing? Yes. It refers to nothing previous by the way I have written it, but the subject was broached by me, or the storekeeper would not have known it.
98. How do you know? Because it all came down "On Her Majesty's Service" in Brown's time.
99. That is your second memorandum on the subject? Yes.
100. And you received no instructions? I cannot say.
101. Had you received any when you wrote that memorandum of 30th May? Not to my knowledge; it is so long ago I cannot remember the details.
102. If you received instructions, would you ask again for them? No, not the second time.
103. Would you have asked instructions a second time had you received instructions previously? I should say I would not.
104. By the Chairman: Are you quite certain you applied for them? I am quite certain I broached the subject first.
105. To whom? I believe to Mr. Nealds; it may have been to the Sydney station master.
106. By Mr. Whitton: Do you take instructions from a station master on the line or the traffic manager? It depends upon what they are.
107. Would you receive instructions from the Sydney station master, with reference to the invoices of goods at any station? Will you put the question in a more definite way?
108. Would you write to the Sydney station master with reference to the invoices of timber or other goods from your station? If he told me that timber was required at such station I would take his order.
109. And invoice it to the person he told you? No, I go by the consignor's orders.
110. Would you allow any goods at your station to be invoiced "On Her Majesty's Service" if directed to do so by the consignor? I would do so, but I would satisfy myself that it was correct.
111. Did you satisfy yourself in this case that it was correct? I followed my predecessor's plan, but when I thought it was incorrect I wrote down to know whether it was so or not.
112. By Capt. Mayne: How did you forward that memorandum of the 30th May to its destination? All memorandums are forwarded by the guard of the train.
113. You would have delivered that to the guard, to deliver to the manager? Yes.
114. Who was the guard—do you remember to which guard you gave it? It must have been to guard Higgs or guard McLean; I cannot say for certain.
115. Their duty is to deliver it to the person it is addressed to? To put it in the manager's box.
116. By Mr. Moriarty: Was it enclosed in a closed envelope? No.
117. By Capt. Mayne: What reply did you receive to this memorandum? I cannot remember now. I know the system of booking "On Her Majesty's Service" was altered "to pay."
118. You cannot recollect that you received any instructions in reply to your letter of the 30th May? I cannot recollect what the instructions were.
119. Did you receive any? I must have received some, or I could not have altered it "to pay."
120. By Mr. Moriarty: Did you receive one memorandum from Mr. Gould? Yes.
121. Was the alteration made before you received that from Mr. Gould? I should not have taken instructions from him; I cannot say.
122. And you cannot be certain whether it was Mr. Nealds or the station master that you previously broached the subject to before the 30th May? I could not assert which.
123. By the Chairman: After you broached the subject to either of them, were the goods consigned "On Her Majesty's Service," or did you mark them "to pay"? I forget the time; after I wrote it was made "to pay by Mr. Holdsworth, contractor."

124. After you first broached the subject? I could not say without referring to the book.
125. By Capt. Mayne: Would you have written that letter if the previous system had been altered at the time you wrote? After I first wrote, they must have been sent "On Her Majesty's Service."
126. By the Chairman: Then you are mistaken that they were invoiced the freight to be paid? I made it "to pay" after the 30th of May, and not before.
127. By Mr. Nealds: You say you receive your directions for forwarding the goods from the consignor's notes? Yes.
128. These consigning notes for timber, were they not invariably, before you got the information from Mr. Gould, consigned "On Her Majesty's Service"? For railway use.
129. About this minute paper—did you ever forward this minute paper addressed to me to the office, or might not this paper, not being sealed, come with other enclosures in an envelope? It might have, but we have no envelopes at the station.
130. You never send a paper to this office connected with the traffic except to me? I always direct everything to the manager.
131. By Capt. Mayne: What day should that letter, dated 30th May, have been received by Mr. Nealds? On the same day.
132. By Mr. Moriarty: Have you any recollection at what time of the day you wrote it? Most probably, I should say, in the afternoon, and sent it by the evening train.
133. By Capt. Mayne: Then in the ordinary course it would be received by Mr. Nealds either that day or the day following? Yes.
134. By Mr. Whitton: Did you not state, some time ago, that you always satisfy yourself as to the right these consignors had to send things "O.H.M.S." before you invoiced them? Yes, I did.
135. Have you not just stated that you took the consignor's statement as correct? I stated that I invoiced them according to the consignor's note, but I satisfied myself that the consignors were correct.
136. Did you satisfy yourself that these goods invoiced "On Her Majesty's Service" were correct? I did, shortly after I had been there.
137. That was when your attention was called to it by Mr. Gould? No, I am perfectly satisfied in my own mind that I was the first to notice it.
138. And it was because you had received no instructions on the matter after you drew attention to it, that you wrote the second memorandum of the 30th May? Yes.
139. And you wrote your second memorandum in consequence of the memorandum you received from Mr. Gould? I believe that is correct.
140. By the Chairman: What station do you refer to where this timber was sent? Sydney, or to any station on the line.
141. By Mr. Moriarty: Timber would be sent up the line? Generally to Sydney, but some is sent up for bridges as well; the greater part went to Sydney.

John Gould called and examined:—

142. By Mr. Owen: What are you? Storekeeper.
143. Were you storekeeper in 1861? Yes.
144. The goods clerk in 1861 was Mr. Fligg? I think so.
145. And subsequent to him Mr. Owen was appointed? Yes.
146. You made a memorandum, which is at present before the Board, which states, when Fligg was goods clerk he collected the freight on "O.H.M.S." timber? Yes, I see I have.
147. Did Mr. Owen continue to collect the freight on "O.H.M.S." timber? I cannot say.
148. Had Mr. Owen any orders not to do so? I don't know.
149. By Mr. Whitton: Will you look at that paper, Mr. Gould, and see if that is your writing? Yes.
150. Why did you send that to the station master at Liverpool? The inspector of permanent way reported that he could not get some wood for the bridges between Liverpool and Campbelltown that were required.
151. Was there no other reason besides that which induced you to forward it to Liverpool? I told the Inspector Lewton to go to the station master at Liverpool. He ought to apply there and get the timber, instead of the timber being sent on from Sydney, because it would save time, and take it direct, instead of having to send to Sydney again.
152. Read that memorandum of yours and see if there is no other reason? (Reads letter.) I wrote this to the station master, in consequence of the inspector of permanent way informing me that the station master refused it unless I sent an order.
153. By the Chairman: Did you state that whatever timber was sent, to whatever station, it was to be charged with freight? Yes, exactly.
154. Previous to that, against whom had the freight been charged? I was under the impression that some of the timber from Holdsworth was coming down without freight, being charged against Holdsworth.
155. By Mr. Owen: How did you come to that impression—was it under your immediate notice? The first that occurred to me was in consequence of a truck of timber which was afterwards intended to be used for the Gymnasium, and I was asked if it belonged to the store or not, and I said not, and it appears that timber was consigned "On Her Majesty's Service"; that was the first of it.
156. And did you hear any explanation of why it was so consigned? No.
157. By Mr. Moriarty: At what date was that? About the date of this.
158. And that was the only reason that made you suppose this? Yes, that was what drew my attention to it.
159. Up to that time, you had been receiving timber and allowing it to pass without freight? No, it did not come to me; it was immaterial to me who delivered it to me—I had only to receive it.
160. And it was the circumstance of the Gymnasium timber that induced you to make the memorandum to the station master at Liverpool? The latter end of it—yes.
161. By Mr. Whitton: Was it in consequence of receiving that bill from the traffic department that made you make this memorandum? I got the paper subsequently to that date.
162. The first knowledge you had of timber being consigned "On Her Majesty's Service," was when you got that note? Yes, this is the first official notice that we were to pay for it.
163. By Mr. Owen: What is the date of your memorandum? 29th May.
164. Do you remember when it was that this timber was sent down for the Gymnasium? Somewhere about that time.
165. Are you sure of it? I think so.
166. By Mr. Moriarty: It was no part of your duty to see whether freight was paid on the timber or not? No, my duty was only to receive the timber.
167. And take good care of it after you got it? Yes.
168. By Mr. Whitton: Have you previously seen this memorandum of Fitzmaurice, dated 30th May, 1861? Yes, I have seen it before.
169. Do you know how that paper came to this office? I have some impression that I brought this paper to the office.
170. Are you quite sure you brought it to the office? I got it at some place and was very glad to get it at the time.
171. By Capt. Mayne: What was the reason you were glad? Because I saw by this paper there was so much revenue lost.
172. And that made you glad? Yes, because it would be gained by the department.

173. How did it come into your possession? I must have got it from the station, and I gave it to the chief clerk.
174. What date? It must have been after this date—probably I got it from the station master, but I think I had this paper before I made the official report about it.
175. Have you any doubt on the subject? No.
176. By the Chairman: That is a very unusual thing for a minute paper to come in this way to the office—a paper addressed to Mr. Nealds to come to you—cannot you recollect how that was? When I say I had this paper, I knew the contents before I made the official report on that one (minute 14th June.)
177. By Mr. Moriarty: Is not your recollection more distinct on the matter—can you tell us the date on which you got it on? It must have been subsequent to this date.
178. By Mr. Owen: From whom did you get it? I think I must have got it at the station.
179. By Capt. Mayne: Will you look at this minute at the bottom of the paper—was that on it when you first saw it? No.
180. Look at the date—it must have been subsequent to the 30th May and 3rd June? Yes, it must have been about that.
181. By Mr. Moriarty: And you brought it here yourself? Yes, I have a recollection of bringing it to the chief clerk.
182. By Mr. Owen: Then you must have brought it before the 3rd of June? Yes.
183. Is that not an irregular practice? I don't know; I could not give an opinion on it.
184. By Capt. Mayne: Will you explain why this paper, addressed to your manager, came into your possession, and why you brought it to the chief clerk? As the party most likely to bring it under the notice of the Commissioner.
185. Your object was that it might be brought under the notice of the Commissioner? Exactly.
186. By Mr. Moriarty: And that must have been before the 3rd of June? Before that minute was made on it.
187. By Mr. Owen: Did you do this of your own accord? Yes; and I would do the same thing to-morrow if such a paper came into my hands, and I would be justified in doing so, seeing that the revenue was losing. I have already stated that I was glad of getting the paper, because freight was being lost to the revenue.
188. By Capt. Mayne: It was not done by you on the suggestion of any person? Not at that time; I suspected the revenue was losing.
189. It was not done at the suggestion of any one? It was not at that time; I don't recollect any one suggesting it.
190. By Mr. Moriarty: It being fresh in your memory that you had called the attention of the station clerk at Liverpool to the necessity of charging freight at Liverpool, and, on finding this paper afterwards, finding that it was not charged, you concluded that the revenue was losing, and brought it under the notice of the Commissioner? Yes.
191. By the Chairman: Did you have any conversation with Mr. Nealds about it? I don't recollect whether I had any conversation on that subject with Mr. Nealds.
192. By Mr. Owen: Have you the power of reporting irregularities—have you the power to do so? That is one of those questions which I would not be right to give an opinion on. I should think it any man's duty in the department, who saw anything going wrong, to report it, through the head of the department.
193. Who is the head of your department? The Commissioner.
194. But you reported through another officer? Through the chief clerk.
195. That is the routine? Yes.
196. By the Chairman: Is it not customary to forward these papers with some memorandum? I had a conversation with the chief clerk, and I explained that I had previously sent a memorandum to the station master at Liverpool.
197. Is it not usual to forward any report to the Commissioner in writing? No, I did not forward any official report. It did not come within my presence until it came back to report on.
198. The circumstances are peculiar—cannot you recollect where you got this paper? I think I must have got it at the station. Often I have been to the station master on business.
199. Who was it? I think Mr. Read.
200. Did you say anything to him about it? No; many papers came down the line, and many papers are left in the office.
201. By Mr. Owen: You took the paper? It was an open paper. I considered it so important that I brought it away with me.
202. You went in there, and rumaged among the papers, and took that one away? I went in to the station master; I go in there on business.

Richard Moody examined:—

203. By the Chairman: Do you recollect anything connected with that report of Mr. Fitzmaurice? I recollect, I believe the day after the date of the memorandum, or the second day, that the storekeeper brought this paper into me folded up, or—and I understood he got it from some one at the station—I don't recollect from whom; but he said it was very singular, in consequence of having directed a memorandum to the station clerk at Liverpool to charge those things to the contractors, and it now appeared that it had been charged "O.H.M.S."; and if that were so, then there must have been a great deal of money lost to the revenue, probably all through the year.
204. Did Mr. Gould say probably all through the year? He made a remark that gave me the impression that the revenue must have been losing.
205. Do you mean, if the goods had all been transmitted in this way the money would have been lost (both for the past and future) to the public? Yes; and immediately on receiving the paper I gave it to the Commissioner, and he put on it, "Mr. Nealds, for report." I had it then entered with the minute number, and it is in the handwriting of the record clerk, Mr. Forde, 3/6/61. It is upon that day it was before the Commissioner, and on that day it should pass to records in the books. At the time I sent this minute away, the words "by traffic manager" were not in the minute paper.
206. When did it come back? It came back on the 6/6/61, because I find on the 7th it went to Mr. Whitton.
207. Were these words there then? I cannot say.
208. What does the heading of the minute now read? It reads as a minute sent by the traffic manager.
209. Was that so? No, because it was delivered to me from the storekeeper.
210. By Capt. Mayne: Was Mr. Nealds at the office on the day on which you got that minute? I should think not, otherwise it would not have been passed through the records in that form—it would have been given to Mr. Nealds on that day.
211. Had you any conversation with Mr. Nealds on that day touching it? Certainly not.
212. By Mr. Owen: Is it customary to receive these verbal representations on any occasion? I find it extremely convenient to receive verbal communications with reference to matters of this kind, and frequently I have done so, and so does the Commissioner, but as his immediate subordinate I have to do it occasionally.
213. You have done so? Often, and with his knowledge.

214. Do you know what was done with that memorandum after it came into the office first? It remained in my possession until it was marked by the Commissioner; I know I took care of it as a matter of great importance.
215. It did not pass out of your hands? It is perfectly clear it did not, because it did not go to the records in the usual way until I got it marked.
216. As soon as that was done what did you do with it? I handed it up to the record clerk, for transmission to Mr. Nealds. My business with the Commissioner is usually from 3 to 4 o'clock; as a rule I am always last with the Commissioner.
217. So that your business paper would go to the records clerk the last thing in the evening? Generally, and that would probably account for it having been transmitted to Mr. Nealds the next morning.
218. By Mr. Moriarty: That is on the 4th? Yes. As my business is done usually late, it is found inconvenient to transmit them the same evening.
219. And this report was received from Mr. Nealds on the 6th? Yes, and went on to Mr. Whitton on the 7th.
220. By Mr. Owen: Do you generally prepare these headings to the memorandums? I generally dictate it; I do not prepare it—it is not my handwriting—it is Mr. Forde's.
221. When was it prepared? I should say on the 3rd of the month—on the night I had it transmitted to Mr. Nealds.
222. Will you swear you saw this before it went out of the office? I am sure I cannot be mistaken; it was a business I paid great attention to.
223. You gave instructions to send it back to Mr. Nealds to report on—there was nothing to require your supervision in that matter? It is a thing I frequently do.
224. And you never take any notice till the report comes in? Certainly not.
225. You did not see it again until it came back with Mr. Nealds' report? No.
226. By Mr. Moriarty: And this was forwarded to Mr. Nealds on the 4th? Yes.

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

227. By Mr. Owen: Who was goods clerk after Mr. Fligg left? Mr. Owen succeeded Mr. Fligg, having been second goods clerk under Mr. Fligg.
228. By Mr. Whitton: How long was Mr. Owen second goods clerk under Mr. Fligg? I am not certain; I should think more than six or nine months, because he was appointed in Captain Martindale's time. He was doing assistant goods clerk's work, although only paid porter's wages, 7s. a day.
229. By Mr. Owen: Before Mr. Fligg left was he not promoted to the situation of goods clerk? He was. Two accounts for timber "O.H.M.S." to Holdsworth put in, dated 26 February, £13 4s. 7d., and 20 June.

John Rae called in and examined:—

230. By Capt. Mayne: Will you explain to the Board how that document came into your possession first? I cannot state.
231. Do you remember the document? I remember the case it refers to, but I don't remember the manner in which it came into my hands; I suppose that it came in the usual way, I must have received it from the chief clerk. It has been presented to me, but by whom I cannot say; I find it marked in the usual way, "Mr. Nealds to report."
232. Was your attention drawn pointedly to the document when handed to you? I don't remember my attention was drawn to it different to any other document; but there must have been some papers with this document;—are there no papers connected with it? I find that this is addressed to the manager; I have nothing that reminds me of anything peculiar about this paper, but I remember the circumstance well enough that it refers to.
233. Is there anything in it that shews it came enclosed in any document or paper? No.
234. Does your memory serve you as to that? No, I cannot remember how it came to me.
235. Then the only thing that you can recall is that it came into your hands from the chief clerk? It must have either come from the chief clerk or Mr. Nealds, and no other way could it have come. I find the address on the back; if there was not the address on the back I should have thought it came in the usual way.
236. By Mr. Owen: The fact of the paper having been sent to Mr. Nealds to report on would satisfy you that it did not come direct from Mr. Nealds at first? My impression was that it came from the chief clerk, because I sent it on to Mr. Nealds for report.
237. Is it customary for a document addressed to the traffic manager to come to you first? No.
238. It should come to the traffic manager and then be forwarded to you with his report? That is the usual course.
239. By Capt. Mayne: Did it strike you that the document had come forward in an unusual way? I cannot remember the circumstances of it, and it is a remarkable circumstance that a document addressed to the manager, and sent from me for the manager to report, and yet I cannot remember the circumstance.
240. By Mr. Moriarty: Would you have been likely to have made that memorandum, and sent it to him for his report if he had presented it to you? It is possible, for this is marked as an official document, but if it came as a naked document it might be sent to him.
241. If he brought it to you as a naked document, and wished to make a verbal explanation, you would have sent it back to him? Yes, I never take verbal explanations.
242. There is nothing in it to make you remember it? Nothing.
243. By Mr. Whitton: If the paper had been before the chief clerk, it was his duty to lay it before you? Unquestionably to lay the paper before me.
244. By Mr. Owen: Mr. Nealds sometimes comes up to you with papers, to talk them over before he makes his report? Yes.
245. By Capt. Mayne: Would you, in case Mr. Nealds brought in that paper and gave a verbal report, have made such a minute in order to get his written report? I should have done so, but I have no recollection of a verbal report—but I should ask, if there had been, for a written report ———.
246. Would you have made that minute? Yes, I don't look on a verbal report as an explanation.
247. If a person brought you a document would you make a minute that he must make a report, and say that this document must come to me with your written report? It should be there. That is my usual course—my invariable course; when I ask for this report of Mr. Nealds the course is to go through the office—to go through Mr. Moody, and if anything is handed to Mr. Nealds it is with the understanding that he takes it in to Mr. Moody in the usual course. I don't believe this was the case, because it is addressed to Mr. Nealds to report, and it goes direct to him. I can suppose three cases. I can suppose that Mr. Nealds gave me a verbal explanation, and if he did I would still have asked him for a report, as I appear to have done.
248. By Mr. Moriarty: Supposing you had done that, would you, in addition, on the same date put your initials to the same observations on the minute paper? It is not mine. This is the document I mark on, and the minute paper sent, signed J. R.
249. By Capt. Mayne: Suppose Mr. Nealds gave you that document personally, and you required a written report, and put that minute on that document—would you then have handed it to Mr. Nealds or the chief chief clerk? If I handed it to Mr. Nealds, it would have been with the intention of his taking it to the chief clerk. I have repeatedly told Mr. Nealds that nothing is to go out of this office without the proper course, because it is inconvenient to us all, more particularly with regard to the office.

250. By Mr. Moriarty: Would you have put that minute on it without the office brand on it? I don't see the office brand on it.

251. Would it not be branded if it came from Mr. Nealds and you wished to make it an official document? I repeatedly do so in order to save time; I minute them, and hand them in to be branded, as you call it.

252. If it had been submitted to you out of the usual course, namely, brought to you by Mr. Moody, would it have struck your attention as anything unusual? I am surprised I don't remember it, because it is a remarkable circumstance. I even remember the document itself as well as possible, and yet I cannot remember how it came into my possession. I cannot imagine that I could have overlooked that it was not addressed to myself, because it is a memorandum to the manager. It is evident it has not gone through the proper course of the office, because it is deficient of the office mark; we generally stamp as a rule; I see it is stated here that it is enclosed to the traffic manager.

253. By Mr. Whitton: That document must have come into your hands before the paper was minuted? Yes.

254. By Mr. Owen: Mr. Gould stated that he got this document, but he does not state how, and that he brought it up here himself and gave it to the chief clerk, that they talked the matter over, and the chief clerk brought it in to you—on the other hand, we have the statement from Mr. Nealds that Mr. Nealds brought it up here himself and submitted it to you. We want to know if your memory serves you to say which of the two statements is correct? No, I am not a bit nearer than I was. As I said at first, the more probable way is that it came from Mr. Moody, but I don't recollect how.

255. By Capt. Mayne: If it had come to you enclosed, would there have been anything beyond what there is in connection with it? Enclosed, addressed to myself?

256. Yes, look at the head of the minute paper? Well, it is perfectly clear that before this minute was made the document was minuted by me.

257. If this minute had come enclosed from the traffic manager, would it stand in the same state as it now does? I believe it would, if this had come in the usual course to the chief clerk and been handed or brought in to me. I would have marked my initials there or here; but if marked there, it would be marked here signed—

258. Is there anything to shew that it did not come in the usual way? No, there is not.

259. By Mr. Owen: If the chief clerk had brought that document to you—the document directed to the traffic manager, and headed for the traffic manager—would it not have struck you as being strange? I have no doubt my attention was drawn to it.

260. But it need not have been if it came direct from Mr. Nealds—there would have been nothing remarkable about it? No.

261. By Mr. Moriarty: These minutes are supposed to be copies of the original documents? No, short summaries.

262. What could Mr. Nealds' object be in interlining this after it was evidently written—is such a thing customary? No, certainly not; until my attention was drawn to it I never noticed it.

263. Is it customary to have such an interlineation as that? It is not customary or proper; I think it is highly improper to alter a document without the sanction of those in authority.

264. By Mr. Owen: Let us assume a case, that Mr. Nealds did bring up an important document, and one which he drew your attention specially to. Having brought it up and got the minute, and on it being sent back to him for a written report, and the minute simply stated that the document was laid before you, and not by the traffic manager—would it not be usual for the traffic manager to state that he did lay it before you? Very improper for the traffic manager to alter it; if you allowed him to alter a minute, you don't know how far it would go.

265. By Capt. Mayne: There might be instructions in the traffic manager's own minute? Yes.

266. By Mr. Whitton: Assuming the document had been forwarded by the traffic manager, would it not have been enclosed by some paper? Yes, unless given to me by hand. I believe so, unless he brought it in his hand; but it does not follow that this comes to me so; before this minute was written this paper was in existence.

267. The paper enclosed is one on which Mr. Nealds should have reported himself—it required no instructions from you—it was no part of your duty to report on it? No.

268. If that document was in Mr. Nealds' possession, was it not that he should report on it before he came to you? Yes.

269. By the Chairman: You don't recollect the circumstance? I cannot.

270. By Mr. Moriarty: You think no verbal explanation had been offered by Mr. Nealds at the time you wrote your minute asking for an official explanation? I don't think so; I don't recollect it.

13 November.

Richard Moody examined:—

271. By Mr. Moriarty: The Board think that there is evidence that the timber received from Holdsworth up to the time of Fliggs' departure has had the freight paid for—Is it so? It was collected up to the period for which the account is sent in, otherwise there would be a debit in the books against the storekeeper's account.

272. Up to the end of February? Yes.

273. And which there was not? Yes.

274. Did all the timber go to the storekeeper? Yes; all the contract timber delivered by Holdsworth would be handed over to the storekeeper, but he had nothing to do with the freight.

275. Would it be branded "O.H.M.S."? Not branded—ticketed. It should come down the line in the way-bill, but that (way-bill) does not come into the hands of the storekeeper.

276. Can we get a way-bill? Yes.

277. We want to know whether there was any alteration in the mode of sending timber before Fliggs' departure? Mr. Holdsworth was contractor for the year 1861; consequently it is those invoices that you require, from the 1st of January to the 26th of February. (Accounts put in.)

278. Had Mr. Fligg's successor access to these invoices, or is there any documentary evidence to shew him that in Fligg's time it was paid for? No, it would not necessarily come to him. The way-bills are all filed, so that unless he went back to look at the papers he would not have had them specifically brought before his attention.

279. In such a matter, and in taking charge of such an office, would he not naturally go and see whether this timber was to be paid for? I should imagine that having been in the office previously he must have made himself acquainted with the routine.

280. Was that Mr. Owen? Yes, he was stationed there, but I do not know in what capacity he was. He was paid as a porter, and passed as a porter.

281. It seems an extraordinary thing that on this date they should stop collecting the revenue? I believe no revenue was collected when Mr. Owen took charge of it from Mr. Fligg. He found these way-bills came "O.H.M.S.," and was unable to distinguish who the goods belonged to.

282. Was the service such as to inform him what had been charged by Mr. Fligg or not? I should think not, because things had been very loose, and it is only through a new system that has been established by Mr. Owen, that we have known these things.

283. And for that the traffic manager was responsible? Yes, that is my impression, and I have had to act accordingly. It was with a wonderful amount of work that the new system was established. There was much opposition to it.

284. By Capt. Mayne: Are there any books of record at these different stations? There are, but the information is such as is taken from the way-bills. At that time there was only the way-bill book; now there are proper books.

285. Did Mr. Owen have no book of record when he succeeded Mr. Fligg, to shew how these things were done? No, he could not have.

Mr. Nealds said—I maintain there are books, and have been ever since the opening of the line. There are books by which it would be seen all that was to pay, what was paid, and what had to be paid out. I say Mr. Owen knows very well that those books are there, and before Mr. Fligg left, Mr. Owen used to be in the office, and making out accounts for Mr. Fligg.

The Chairman: Write a list of the books which you refer to.

Richard Moody, examination continued:—

286. By Mr. Moriarty: This seems to be rather unsatisfactorily explained—the first memorandum respecting Holdsworth's account is interlined by Mr. Nealds, in different ink, "by Traffic Manager"? when did you first observe it? Only when pointed out by the Board. It is one of those things that would not necessarily strike my eye in the multiplicity of papers. I have previously detected an interlineation, and the officer has been reprimanded for making it. This was a peculiar case all along.

287. Do you think that that interlineation could have been made on the 6th—on the date of Mr. Nealds' report on the subject—when the whole thing was fresh in your memory, without attracting your attention? I should think not; Mr. Nealds is in the habit of bringing papers direct to Mr. Rae, and I should not have got it direct, and I may not have seen it. It is not improbable that Mr. Rae took it to Mr. Whitton for information, and then I may not have seen it for some time.

288. The circumstances under which this paper was brought to you by Mr. Gould were peculiar—do you remember how he accounted for getting it? I believe he told me he got it from Mr. Fligg, the goods clerk.

289. But Fligg's had left? I think he was then there the goods clerk. To the best of my recollection he got it from the goods clerk; I believe he got it from the goods clerk at the station. At first I imagined that he picked it up, but my recollection afterwards is, that he said, "I have got it from the goods clerk, at the station."

290. Not the station master? He made a statement as to where he got it, but I am not distinct about it.

291. By Capt. Mayne: Did he explain why having got a document not addressed to the office or to him that he brought it here? He is a very peculiar fellow. It may strike many that his zeal carries him in a way that some people might condemn; when he brought it he threw it on my table, and said, "This is the way things are going on, and after me writing to Liverpool on the matter." I recollect the way in which he worked his shoulders. I made a remark how he got it, and he said, "I got it from the goods clerk, but I will stick to it."

292. He said, "This is the way things are going on"? Yes, and that he had written to Fitzmaurice.

293. Did Mr. Gould's manner in any way lead you to suppose he had got this paper in a way he was ashamed of? Oh! no; not at all. I certainly believed he got it from the goods clerk, who, perhaps, for the first moment, became aware of how things were being done. I merely surmised that Mr. Nealds had been to the goods clerk, and Mr. Gould had got it from him, and would not give it up; although I do not give a reason, I have a reason why I come to that conclusion.

294. The Board would like to hear the reason which led you to this conclusion? It is this: that matters of great importance have been kept from the knowledge of the Commissioner for months, and have come into the office by accident. We have found that matters have been before the traffic manager, and no reports made, and the matters have only come before us by accident, for instance, the £183 2s., for goods lost, was kept away for six months.

295. Am I to understand you that your reason was brought to your mind from the fact that information had been suppressed and kept back, in reference to important matters? Yes, and I have no doubt the Commissioner will state the same thing.

296. By Mr. Moriarty: The attention of the Commissioner does not appear to have been pointedly called to this matter? Not till I brought it before him.

297. But he has forgotten all about it? His memory is not the best.

298. Who was the goods clerk at that time? I don't recollect.

299. On the 3rd of June? It must have been Mr. Owen; I am sure I had it on the 3rd.

300. What was Mr. Brown? Station master up at Liverpool.

301. Up to what date was he station master? I could not say.

Mr. Nealds: About the end of March or April.

302. Where is Mr. Brown? He has left the service.

13 November.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

303. By Mr. Moriarty: We find that on or about the 2nd of March, a change took place in the consignments—that goods sent from Liverpool instead of being sent to Holdsworth, as previously—immediately after Fligg's departure that goods were sent down "O.H.M.S."? Yes.

304. Can you give us any light as to how the change took place? I cannot. I know I called attention to it.

305. When? About March or April.

306. To whom? To Mr. Moody, the chief clerk, or the Commissioner. I was about bringing out a new system of accounts, and I shewed that this was a very loose system of carrying things on.

307. When was this? I think it was March or April.

308. Do you remember what transpired—what statement did you make? I stated that these goods were carried. I did not know the contract was that Holdsworth was to pay freight. I called attention to the monthly account, "O.H.M.S.," and that anything might be charged "O.H.M.S.," and there was no check on it.

309. What did Mr. Rae or Mr. Moody do? Nothing further was done; not until May when there was some timber for the gymnasium, which came down "O.H.M.S.," and I said to Mr. Nealds it ought to have paid freight.

310. [The Chairman read the list of books given by Mr. Nealds?] I have none.

311. By Mr. Owen: Was there a line inspector at that time? No.

312. Was there a traffic inspector? He was dispensed with at that time.

313. By Mr. Moriarty: What was his duty? He assisted Mr. Nealds; he does what duty Mr. Nealds does.

314. By Capt. Mayne: When did you call attention to this matter? I called attention to the accounts being

- being most disgracefully kept, and a committee was appointed to inquire into it. Mr. Nealds was sent for, and this new system of accounts was afterwards adopted.
315. When did that committee meet? They met once or twice upon it; it might have been altered in the end of March.
316. By Mr. Owen: Do you know that Mr. Nealds refused to attend that committee? Yes, because he told me.
317. Will any report of that committee shew what books they found? What books.
318. By Mr. Moriarty: You say you called Mr. Rae and Mr. Moody's attention to the state of the goods' accounts? Yes.
319. Did you call Mr. Nealds' attention to it? No, I thought it was of no use.
320. Then Mr. Nealds must be ignorant of this charge in the consignments? Yes.
321. By the Chairman: Look at that letter of Fitzmaurice's—when did you see it first? I think it was yesterday.
322. You never saw it before? Not to my knowledge.

—

John Gould recalled and examined:—

323. By Mr. Moriarty: We are not clear how you came by that paper—will you explain? I could not give you any more explanation than yesterday; I cannot tax my memory better; I must have either got it from the station master, or about the station master's office.
324. If you found it about the station master's office, would not the natural course be to give it to Mr. Nealds, to whom it was addressed? No, it was an open document; I considered I had to bring it to the Commissioner—my superior officer.
325. Had you no other reason in your mind for bringing it here? The only reason was because it had reference to my memo. of a previous date.
326. Had you no other reason? No other, except I saw the revenue was being lost, and I brought it under the notice of the Commissioner to recover it.
327. On making that memo. had you any ground for making it—had you any idea of the revenue being lost? I believe I explained it was in reference to some timber for the Gymnasium. That was the first intimation I had. I might have had suspicions in my mind that it might have come in this way. What these suspicions were I could not tell. I was goods clerk there, and ought to know the way business was conducted.
328. By the Chairman: You did not get the letter from Mr. Owen? No.
329. You having written a letter, and a letter being received from the station master in consequence—is it not what would happen? That is what happened.
330. Do you not consider that, this being an answer to your previous report, it would have been transmitted to the Commissioner? When I got it I did not consider.
331. This might have been in transmission according to the proper routine, and yet you thought it was your duty to take it away and bring it to the Commissioner? Yes, I thought so because it had reference to the memo.
332. Although it was at that time in transmission? It might have been; I don't know whether it was in transmission.
333. Did you tell the station clerk that you had taken the paper out of his office? No, I may have got it from the station clerk, and I may have picked it up out of the office. I cannot tax my memory any further.
334. By Capt. Mayne: You gave it to Mr. Moody? Yes.
335. Did you tell him how you became possessed of it? I explained the nature of it in connection with my memo.
336. What do you mean by nature of it? I mean my memo.
337. Did you tell him how it came into your possession? Yes, I must have told him that I got it from the station.
338. From any one? I cannot tell whether I told him I got it from any particular person or not.
339. You had been goods clerk there previously? Yes.
340. By Mr. Moriarty: You had been goods clerk there previously? Yes.
341. And you had observed some timber coming down "O.H.M.S."? Not that timber.
342. After you had ceased to be goods clerk, you observed some timber coming down "O.H.M.S."? No. I could not say that, because I do not see the way-bills. While I was goods clerk, I saw a good many things marked "O.H.M.S."
343. Did you have reason to believe that these things were not paid for? Yes.
344. Before this memorandum which you brought under notice of the Commissioner? Yes. Having notice to the memo. of the previous matter of the timber, Mr. Fitzmaurice occurred to my mind, and finding that Fitzmaurice wrote and said that the timber was consigned "O.H.M.S.," I thought it was right to bring the matter under the Commissioner's notice at once.
345. By the Chairman: Do you know how long after the letter was written you brought it up? I think a couple of days.
346. What made you in such a violent hurry (because you found a report on your report in the office) when it might be transmitted to the Commissioner in due course? I did not think I was in a hurry. I think it is my business to take it at once if I find anything to report on.
347. By Mr. Owen: You said, yesterday, you were in such a hurry because you were delighted to find the Government were defrauded? Yes, and I say it again, because there was revenue going astray which will be recovered.
348. By whom were you removed from your position as goods clerk? I was appointed storekeeper.
349. By the Chairman: That is not an answer to the question. By whom were you removed? Captain Martindale; he promoted me from goods clerk to storekeeper.
350. At whose recommendation? I suppose the documents will shew it.
351. That is no answer to my question? I don't know who recommended me for promotion.
352. Were you on friendly terms with Mr. Nealds at the time you found this paper? I have always been on friendly terms with him, so far as he does not interfere with my duty—on the best possible terms.

—

15 November.

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

353. By the Chairman: The Board wish to know if you would like to make any further explanation in reference to the interlineation? The interlineation was made by me, I acknowledge that; but I laid the paper before the Commissioner, and I am ready to be put on oath that I laid it before the Commissioner, and since then it has been taken away. I have reason to believe I laid the paper before him on Saturday morning, and went down to Liverpool by the 2 o'clock train. The paper I took to my office, and it must have been stolen in the evening, or on the Monday morning; but I am perfectly sure I shewed the paper to Mr. Rae, and read it myself.
354. By Mr. Moriarty: When was the interlineation made? When the paper was sent down to me by the Commissioner. I made the interlineation; and seeing that I knew I had sent it before to Mr. Rae, I made the interlineation to shew that it had come from me. It is of frequent occurrence that I bring my papers into Mr. Rae, and read them over to Mr. Rae before I make any report whatever.

355. By the Chairman: How was it you did not express some surprise at the paper coming to the Commissioner in an irregular manner? In my hurry I must have fancied I left it with Mr. Rae; but seeing that memorandum is returned by Mr. Forde and not by the Commissioner, I corrected it in that way. There is not the initials of the Commissioner on the minute paper.

Wednesday, 12 November.

Charge 10 D.—Minute paper, 62/1254. "Pratt, a porter at Blacktown, suspended by station master for drunkenness, and reinstated by Mr. Nealds without inquiry or report."

The Chairman having read the papers, said—We have considered the matter, and the Board are of opinion that it has already been disposed of. We do not intend to inquire into the character of this particular person, and we don't propose to take any evidence in it.

12 November.

Charge 10 E.—Minute paper, 62/1243. "Report from Mr. Owen relative to passes granted by Mr. Nealds to parties not in the Railway Department."

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By the Chairman: In the case of a clerk in charge of the Telegraph Department—had he a free pass? Yes; when they are employed on the railway and inspecting the line, when it breaks down, or any interruption takes place. People at the stations—Parramatta, Penrith, and Liverpool—transmit and receive our messages at any time when called on to do so.
2. By Mr. Whitton: Do we pay for these messages? I believe not.
3. Do you know whether we do? I believe we do not; Mr. Cracknell said we do not.
4. Are they not charged against this department? I think not.
5. By the Chairman: How long has this gone on? Ever since the telegraph instruments have been on the line.
6. How long? Three or four years.
7. This has continued three or four years? Yes.
8. Are you aware whether it was known to the Minister or the Commissioner? I believe so—all employees are to have passes.
9. By Mr. Whitton: You say these men are not employed on the railway? I did not.
10. Are they not in the Telegraph Department? Yes, but they work on the railway.
11. Is it not a fact that at several of the stations on the railway, telegraphs have been erected, which are worked by the station clerks exclusively for the purpose of the railway? There is an electric telegraph and a magnetic telegraph at Campbelltown, also at Liverpool; but there is only an electric telegraph at Parramatta, and also at Penrith; the station masters work either of the two latter.
12. Is there any telegraph at Newtown? Magnetic.
13. That is there for the purpose of the railway? Yes.
14. Is there any at Petersham? Yes.
15. Then the station clerk you gave the passes to do not reside at Petersham? Not that I am aware of.
16. Then, in fact, you have only got these instruments at the principal stations? The magnetic at the intermediate, and the electric at the principal.
17. What is worked in Sydney? Both.
18. Are these both at Campbelltown? Yes.
19. Then you have the principal stations worked by the station clerks exclusively for the railway? When they are in order.
20. By the Chairman: How long have they been put up? Three years. The telegraph which was put up before that time was for the public generally, they received messages and received pay.
21. By Mr. Whitton: Are they receiving no pay whatever? Not from the telegraph at Sydney—not for railway messages.
22. I mean for general messages for the public, and for the departments of the public? Yes.
23. And for railway messages also? No reply.
24. By Capt. Mayne: It appears to be admitted that there were passes issued to a certain number of officers in the Electric Telegraph Department? Yes.
25. For what purpose? For the line inspector to visit the line between Campbelltown and Sydney, and Sydney and Penrith when the line gets out of order; occasionally the line gets damaged, and the circuit is stopped, and the line inspector goes down to repair it.
26. Are you aware whether these passes were restricted solely to such persons? I am not; but I intended them only for persons who worked these, and were on duty.
27. Was there any means of convincing yourself that they were on duty? The only way was seeing a man going down with his tools.
28. Was there any order given that there should be a limit to the passes? They are to be issued to those in the service.
29. By Mr. Moriarty: Are you aware that these same gentlemen who travel with your passes—what arrangement they had with reference to their travelling expenses? I am not.
30. Did they get an allowance per day on what it cost them? I believe they did not get an allowance. From what I understand, the rule in our department is, that a person who does not sleep from home does not get paid.
31. By Capt. Mayne: But he gets his actual expenses? I don't know.
32. Do not the telegraph boys travel backwards and forwards from Sydney to see their friends? I am not aware of it.
33. By the Chairman: Have you ever issued passes to persons purporting to be on duty to enable clerks to come and see their friends? Not to my knowledge.
34. By Mr. Whitton: Have they not used these passes for that purpose? I cannot say.
35. By Mr. Moriarty: Did you ever issue passes to persons on any account except on duty? No.
36. By Mr. Whitton: Were they on duty? To the best of my knowledge and belief.

Wednesday, 12 November.

Charge 10 F.—Minute paper, 62/1260. "Recommendation from Mr. Owen to reduce staff of porters—sixteen can be dispensed with, reducing the cost of working the line £2,300 per annum, to which must be added the costs of the extra men whose services are not required."

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Whitton: Some short time before your suspension you had a consultation as to whether any deduction could be made? Yes, with Mr. Owen.
2. What was the result of that conversation? About a week before my suspension I had a conversation with Mr. Owen on the reductions that could be made before leasing the line, and the observation Mr. Owen made was, that although we might make reductions in the department he would defy Mr. Whitton to make any alteration or reduction in the traffic department; this was a week before my suspension.

8 November.

Charge 10 G.—“Mr. Nealds has on many occasions been intoxicated when on duty.”

James Higgs called in and examined :—

1. By Mr. Whitton : You are head porter at the Sydney station? Yes.
2. Have you ever seen Mr. Nealds intoxicated at the Sydney station? Yes.
3. On how many occasions? Three or four times.
4. What did you notice particularly on these occasions, or any one of the occasions? I assisted Mr. Nealds out of a first-class carriage across to his office.
5. By the Chairman : About when? I cannot tell.
6. About what time—how long ago—one month or six months? It might be a twelve month.
7. Was it yesterday or ten years ago? I could not say nearer than a twelvemonth.
8. By Mr. Moriarty : Was it only a twelvemonth? I cannot say.
9. By Mr. Whitton : What did you do with Mr. Nealds when you took him into his office? I left him there.
10. Where did you leave him? Inside.
11. In what position did you leave him? I cannot say; I believe he was at the table.
12. Did you find Mr. Nealds there when you returned in the morning? I think Mr. Nealds was there on the following morning.
13. At what time did you see Mr. Nealds there in the morning? Soon after 6 o'clock.
14. On the other occasions that you have referred to? At one time at the Parramatta Junction.
15. You saw Mr. Nealds intoxicated at the Parramatta Junction? Yes.
16. Where was he then? On the platform.
17. What did you do then? I did not do anything.
18. Did you put Mr. Nealds in the carriage? Mr. Nealds got in the break.
19. Who was the guard at that time? I believe it was Robinson.
20. When was the next time you saw Mr. Nealds the worse for liquor? Before that.
21. Where at? On the Sydney station.
22. By Capt. Mayne : On the first of these occasions who was present? I believe there was a man named Meade, one of the porters who assisted me.
23. By Mr. Whitton : To take care of Mr. Nealds? Yes.
24. By the Chairman : Is Meade in the employment of the railway now? No.
25. By Capt. Mayne : Was any one else present on the first occasion? No. I cannot be sure that Meade was the man, but I believe him to be the man.
26. By Mr. Whitton : Can you recollect who was present on this occasion? Mr. Thomas.
27. By Capt. Mayne : On what occasion? At the Junction.
28. By Mr. Owen : Is Mr. Thomas in the employment now? No.
29. By Mr. Whitton : Was any one else present except Mr. Thomas? I don't recollect—I cannot say.
30. By Capt. Mayne : On this occasion, did any particular act or conduct of Mr. Nealds take place, or any particular circumstance, that fixed the matter strongly in your memory? My assisting Mr. Nealds out of the first-class carriage—a drunken man sometimes resists.
31. He did not resist your assistance? No.
32. Did he say anything to you? No.
33. By the Chairman : In what stage of intoxication was he—was he able to walk? If he could have walked, I should not have taken hold of him.
34. How did you take hold of him? By the arm.
35. By Capt. Mayne : You assisted him out of a first-class carriage? Yes.
36. Who directed your attention to assisting him? My attention was called to him.
37. Your attention was called to him being intoxicated? Being in the carriage I thought Mr. Nealds was asleep.
38. What did you do then? I touched his arm.
39. The moment he awoke, were you aware he was intoxicated? Yes, I thought so.
40. And you took him by the arm and helped him out? Yes.
41. Did he require your assistance to walk from the carriage to the office? I thought so, or I should not have done it.
42. Did he make any objection to your assisting him? No.
43. By Mr. Owen : On the first occasion, what time of the day or night was it? The last train at night.
44. What made you draw the conclusion that Mr. Nealds was drunk? I say you can see he was as soon as Mr. Nealds woke up; I thought so.
45. You thought so? Yes.
46. Mr. Nealds said nothing to you—did he? I don't recollect a word being said.
47. Then you took Mr. Nealds by the arm, and helped him into the office? Yes.
48. And left him there? Yes.
49. Was there any smell of liquor on him? No, I did not notice it.
50. On the second occasion you saw him drunk at the Sydney station? That was afterwards.
51. What train was that? That was the last train at night.
52. Do you recollect the time—it might be six years ago? No, not nearly so long ago as that.
53. What did you do then? I did not do anything at all.
54. Did you see Mr. Nealds? Of course I did.
55. Where was he? Looking over the rail.
56. And you said nothing to him—and you concluded he was drunk? Yes.
57. What was he doing? He walked along the side of the station, and went and leaned over the rails.
58. On the occasion you saw him at the Parramatta station—what took place then? Mr. Nealds got up into the break-van.
59. Without assistance? Yes.
60. What made you conclude he was drunk? By the way he laid down in the break when he got in it.
61. And you thought he was drunk? Yes, I did.
62. Did Mr. Nealds on any of the occasions tell you he was seriously ill, and ask you to send for a doctor? No.
63. By Mr. Moriarty : Did Mr. Nealds on any of the occasions stay at the Sydney station? Yes, I thought he had.
64. By Capt. Mayne : Was there a shadow of a doubt whether he was drunk or sober? No.
65. By Mr. Moriarty : You are aware Mr. Nealds is subject to rheumatism, and is lame sometimes—was it anything of that kind? No.

Mr. Vye Faulkener called in and examined :—

66. By Mr. Whitton : You are station clerk at Newtown? Yes.
67. Formerly you were station clerk at Homebush? Yes.
68. During the time you were at Homebush did you ever see Mr. Nealds in a state of intoxication? Yes.
69. On more than one occasion? Yes.
70. How many times? Twice.

71. Where did you see Mr. Nealds on the first occasion—where was Mr. Nealds? It was about two years ago, shortly after the flood of April; coming up by the last train at night, Mr. Nealds was on the engine until he came to Homebush, and he was assisted off the engine by the driver to the platform.
72. And where did you put Mr. Nealds? I put him into a first-class carriage.
73. Have you any doubt in your own mind that Mr. Nealds was intoxicated? I did not see Mr. Nealds drinking, but I could not have any doubt about his being drunk.
74. When was the second occasion you saw Mr. Nealds intoxicated? It was a few days after last Christmas.
75. Where was Mr. Nealds then? He was in a second-class carriage.
76. In what position was he? He was lying on the seat, on his back.
77. And what did you notice about him particularly? There was a special train coming from Blacktown; it was a train coming up, and no passengers. I ascertained from the guard—I wished to speak to Mr. Nealds on a private matter—and I was told he was in that carriage, and I went to him and spoke to Mr. Nealds on the subject, but I saw the state Mr. Nealds was in, and went away.
78. Was there anything particular in his appearance? I cannot exactly say the peculiar appearance he was in; he appeared as if he had been sick, or something of the kind.
79. And you had no doubt that Mr. Nealds was at that time drunk? I did not see him drinking, but he had all the appearance of a man being drunk—from his speech and appearance.
80. By Mr. Moriarty: That was a special train? That was a special train, returning to Sydney.
81. Another train had passed before? Yes, the ordinary train had just left Homebush; I stopped this train five minutes, because it was within the five minutes, and I wanted to see Mr. Nealds on a private matter, and I ascertained from the guard that Mr. Nealds was in the train, and I went to Mr. Nealds and spoke to him.
82. Suppose you had not stopped the train, do you think an accident might have occurred because Mr. Nealds had not his wits about him? Of course I would not let the train go on within the five minutes, if the Governor was in it. I don't know whether any accident might have occurred.
83. By Mr. Owen: It is your duty to see to this matter? I have always seen to it.
84. And the guard? Yes; it is the station master's duty to stop the train at the proper time, whether the guard will go on or not.
85. You say on the second occasion you saw Mr. Nealds lying on his back in the carriage? Yes, he was sick.
86. Was he sick? He appeared to have been sick. If you will allow me to give it the most vulgar term, the saliva was running out of his mouth on the floor.
87. There was no other symptoms of sickness? Only a lot of stuff running down there.
88. Might it not have arisen from his smoking? Yes, for anything I know.
89. Did you go up to Mr. Nealds? I was as close to Mr. Nealds as I am to this.
90. Did you smell any smell of liquor on him? I did not require to smell any smell of liquor.
91. Did or did you not? I did not.
92. Mr. Nealds was asleep, and you roused him up? Yes, he was asleep.
93. Did you speak to Mr. Nealds? Yes, I did.
94. What did you say to Mr. Nealds—did you put a question to him, and did Mr. Nealds answer it? He tried to answer it, but I saw, and had no doubt on my mind how it was with Mr. Nealds, and I walked away.
95. Did he answer the question? He tried to answer the question—he commenced to speak, but not intelligibly.
96. How was it not intelligible? Because Mr. Nealds was the worse for liquor.
97. Was the man's speech incoherent? What Mr. Nealds said to me was not an answer to my question, which was about getting a pass for my boys to go to Sydney school.
98. What reply did Mr. Nealds give? No answer to my question at all.
99. What did he say? He did not say anything that I could understand.
100. What did you do then? I walked away, and I said nothing to him or anybody else.
101. On the first occasion Mr. Nealds was travelling on the engine? Yes, to Homebush.
102. What was done then? When the train stopped there, I saw Mr. Nealds assisted off the engine.
103. By the driver? Yes.
104. Don't you know Mr. Nealds suffers from lumbago or rheumatism? I don't know it.
105. Did you ever see him walking lame? Yes, but I don't know what from.
106. You have seen him obliged to be helped? No; but I have seen him lame, and walking with a stick.
107. What was done then? Mr. Nealds took hold of the iron rails of the platform. I went to a first-class carriage and back, and took Mr. Nealds' hand and led him up to the door, and put my arm round him and helped him in, and he took the centre seat.
108. Did he say anything to you, or you to him? No.
109. Was there any smell of liquor? I cannot tell.
110. Did Mr. Nealds appear as if he were suffering from pain? Mr. Nealds appeared as if he were suffering from drink.
111. Did he appear as if he were suffering pain? He appeared as if suffering from drink.
112. Did he appear as if suffering from pain? I don't know whether Mr. Nealds felt pain.
113. By the Chairman: Did he appear to you as if he was suffering from pain? He appeared to me as if he was suffering from something, because he could not walk.
114. By Capt. Mayne: Were you under the impression that he was suffering from pain? No, I was under the impression that he was drunk.
115. Have you ever seen Mr. Nealds suffering from sciatica or rheumatic affection? I have seen him frequently walking with a stick, and then he was sober.
116. Was there anything that indicated that he was suffering as you have seen him on other occasions? He had all the indications of a drunken man, or a man that was drunk.
117. By Mr. Owen: You did not see him drinking on any of these occasions? No.
118. By Mr. Whitton: Did you ever see a man accustomed to smoking in the state you observed Mr. Nealds? I should say not; he was laying on his back, and the saliva was running out on the floor. I never smoke myself; it may be laziness, but he could not lift himself up to spit it out.
119. Did you ever see a man suffering from rheumatics incapable of speaking? Not unless he was paralysed.
120. By the Chairman: Has Mr. Nealds ever reported you for misconduct in any way? I don't think he has; not that I know of. I have known Mr. Nealds for the last seven or eight years, and we have always been very friendly until lately. Lately Mr. Nealds took a dislike to me; I don't know what for. It appears from a letter that Mr. Nealds recommended my removal to the north.
121. Did he state any reason? He stated that I was one of the most likely officers to be removed; knowing my large family he said it would be ruin for me to be removed, and at the same time he recommended my removal; but don't think I would tell a falsehood against Mr. Nealds on account of this. I would not tell a lie for £1,000.

James Walker called in and examined :—

122. By Mr. Whitton : What are you? Fireman.
 123. You were some time ago engine driver? Yes.
 124. Have you on any occasions had Mr. Nealds driving in your engine when he was in a state of intoxication? Once.
 125. And what did you observe particular about Mr. Nealds to induce you to suppose that he was intoxicated? I thought he was rather worse for liquor. He was sitting on the side of the tender of the engine, and I was afraid he might fall over. When we got to Homebush Mr. Nealds got off and went into a carriage.
 126. Did Mr. Nealds get off without assistance? He got out on the steps and I just caught hold of his arm.
 127. Did you ever see Mr. Nealds laying down on your tender? Once.
 128. Was that on another occasion? Yes, coming from the Masonic Ball.
 129. What did you notice particularly on that occasion? I think he had been out late; it was very nearly morning when he came down; I could not say he was the worse for liquor, because we were a very heavy load, and there was a lot of work to do, and we had to fetch meat down that morning.
 130. About four years ago something occurred—was Mr. Nealds on your tender? Yes.
 131. Tell the Board what it was? Why he was on the tender, and I was fireman with I— Mr. Lewton was on the engine at the time.
 132. Tell all that occurred? Mr. Nealds was in the way, and I asked him to get up out of the way of the side of the tender.
 133. Where was he when he was in your way? He was sitting on the wood.
 134. You asked him to get out of the way? Yes.
 135. In what state was Mr. Nealds on that occasion? He was rather the worse for liquor at that time; he was lying on the tender then.
 136. When you say he was rather the worse for liquor, was he drunk? Well, he was not sober.
 137. Was there anything particular in his manner—can you explain to the Board what it was that led you to the impression that Mr. Nealds was on that occasion, as you express it, in liquor? He seemed rather to stumble about, and people who have often been on the engine would not stumble about; and he looked rather as if he had had a drop.
 138. Did he speak to you? Yes, he said "Good day."
 139. Did he speak distinctly? Yes, he spoke distinctly—as he generally did, but he stumbled about; Mr. Lewton was on the engine at the time.
 140. By Mr. Owen : The only thing that made you draw the conclusion that he was the worse for liquor was, that he stumbled? Yes, he stumbled and went to sleep on the side of the tender.
 141. What time was it—was it a late train or an early train? It was a late train.
 142. I suppose there is nothing extraordinary in a person stumbling on an engine? No.
 143. It may have arisen from accident? No, it was rather steady; not much jerking on these new engines.
 144. But this was four years ago? I cannot say exactly; three or four years ago.
 145. At what time were the engines all —? Some of them were with indiarubber springs.
 146. On the first occasion what induced you to think he was drunk? He was sitting on the side of the tender and I was afraid he would fall off. I thought so because the porter handed him off when he got to the Homebush station.
 147. Did he ask you for assistance in getting off? No.
 148. Did he speak to you? No.
 149. Were you near to him? Yes.
 150. Did you smell any smell of liquor? Yes.
 151. Are you perfectly positive of it? Yes.
 152. You say Mr. Nealds got on the step of the tender? Yes, and I caught hold of him by the arm to see that he did not fall between the platform and the engine, and the porter handed him into the carriage.
 153. What made you think he was going to fall? Because he made a stumble just by the handrail.
 154. That was what made you think he was going to fall? Yes.
 155. Have you ever been reprimanded by Mr. Nealds? Not that I am aware of.
 156. You have had no caution from him in any matter? Only caution as to the trains.
 157. No official cautions? Not that I am aware of. I have been cautioned by Mr. Scott, my foreman.

James Robinson called in and examined :—

158. By Mr. Whitton : What are you? Railway guard.
 159. Have you ever observed Mr. Nealds on the line in a state of intoxication? I have.
 160. On how many occasions? I could not recollect.
 161. Have they been so numerous? I may say on three or four occasions I have noticed it.
 162. When was the last time you saw Mr. Nealds in that state—about what date? I should say three months ago. I am not sure of the date—it may be a little more.
 163. What did you notice on any one particular occasion with reference to Mr. Nealds? On one occasion I noticed him lying in the break-van.
 164. By Mr. Owen : Can you give the date? I could not.
 165. By Mr. Whitton : Where did Mr. Nealds get into your break-van? At the junction.
 166. Mr. Nealds came down with you from the junction to Sydney? Yes.
 167. And when you arrived at Sydney, what did you observe? My duty is to see after the parcels, and before I could come to the end of the train where Mr. Nealds was, I had no chance of seeing how he was taken out.
 168. And you never did see him taken out? No.
 169. What did you observe in Mr. Nealds conduct when he got into the break-van? I did not see Mr. Nealds placed in the break-van, but I saw him there when I got to Homebush, laying in a dangerous position, and that caused me to shut the door.
 170. And you believe at the time you saw him in the break-van that he was drunk? Yes.
 171. On what other occasion can you name that you have seen Mr. Nealds in that state? I could not mention any dates. I cannot recollect particular occasions when I have seen him. I could not say where it was, but I have seen it.
 172. You cannot remember when it was, or where it was? Yes.
 173. But you have seen him in that state three or four different times? Yes.
 174. By the Chairman : Cannot you recollect any of the circumstances of the other times where it was—was it on the platform or in the train? I cannot well recollect.
 175. How long ago was it? I could not say. I have been on the line ever since it was opened. It is so long I cannot recollect.
 176. Are there no circumstances which recall it to your mind as to the place, or the state in which Mr. Nealds was? No.
 177. Do you recollect what stage of drunkenness he was in on the other occasion—was it inability to walk—lying down? I could not say, except this one occasion.
 178. By Mr. Owen : You say you did not see Mr. Nealds helped into the break-van or get out? No.
 179. And you only saw him lying down on his back—what did you do? I shut the door.

180. Did you say anything to Mr. Nealds? No.
181. Was Mr. Nealds asleep? I should think so from the position he was in.
182. By Mr. Moriarty: What position was he in? He was laying on the broad of his back on the floor of the break.
183. Is there a seat in the break-van? Yes, there is in front, but none where Mr. Nealds was lying.
184. Is there any place where he could sit down? Yes.
185. By Mr. Owen: Is there any place where he could lie down, besides the floor? No.
186. By the Chairman: You say he was in a dangerous position? I mean by this, the sliding door slid back outside, but that he being so near the side of the door, I was afraid he would fall out.
187. And then you shut the door? Yes, I closed the door.
188. By Mr. Owen: And on the other occasion, can you specify—can you give the Board anything to shew how you came to the conclusion that he was drunk? Because I was told he was at the junction.
189. By Mr. Whitton: Have you any doubt that he was drunk? I had not.
190. Did you think when you saw Mr. Nealds that he was drunk? Yes.
191. And you believe at the different times, and at the time you stated you saw him, that he was intoxicated? Yes, previously to that time.
192. How many times do you believe you saw Mr. Nealds drunk? Four times.
193. You say four times? Yes.
194. The first time you had your doubts? I stated I had no doubts.
195. That leaves three you say you were told on the platform he was drunk—the first case in his being in the break-van and on the three other occasions you were told he was drunk? Yes.
196. By Capt. Mayne: Did you believe on the four occasions you name, that Mr. Nealds was drunk? Yes, I did.
197. By Mr. Owen: Will you give the Board any fact which would shew on what grounds you came to the conclusion that Mr. Nealds was drunk on the three occasions which you refer to? I think from the time I have known Mr. Nealds I ought to be the best party to know whether he was so or not.
198. What grounds had you for coming to the conclusion—you are not able to state any fact? No, not as to dates.
199. Was there any circumstance you could state that led you to suppose him to be drunk? No, I could not.
200. By Mr. Whitton: Was Mr. Nealds staggering, or anything in his appearance to lead you to suppose him to be drunk? Yes.
201. What was there? If you see a man four or five years, you would know very well whether he was drunk or not by speaking and walking on the platform.
202. Did you notice by his walking that something was wrong with him? Yes.
203. By Mr. Owen: Would you state what the peculiarities were? Only what I have seen.
204. What were the peculiarities? I should consider when a man is intoxicated he was not walking straight.
205. By Mr. Whitton: Was he limping or staggering about? He could not walk straight.
206. By the Chairman: Was there any smell of liquor? I was not near enough.
207. Then it was by the way Mr. Nealds was walking you judged? Yes.
208. By Mr. Moriarty: When you say he was not walking straight, do you mean with the legs or back, because Mr. Nealds sometimes walks with a stoop? I know he does; I mean with the legs.

Joseph Lewton called in and examined:—

209. By Mr. Whitton: What are you? Inspector of Permanent Way.
210. Have you ever on any occasion seen Mr. Nealds on the line intoxicated? I have. I have seen him helpless.
211. On what occasion are you referring to? I saw the head porter on the platform lift him out of a first-class carriage, and on lifting him out Mr. Nealds fell on his knees. I assisted him up, and one porter took my place and assisted him into his office, and laid him on the ground.
212. Did you see him yourself laid on the ground? I did.
213. What time in the morning were you at the station the following morning? At half-past 5 to 6.
214. And on that occasion did you see Mr. Nealds there? I saw him come out of his office just before 6.
215. Did you, from Mr. Nealds' appearance, imagine that he had been in the office all night, or been home? I could not say he had been in the office all night, but he did not appear to be clean.
216. He did not appear on the station in his usual neatness? He went into the office again, and I think one of the men took him in a cup of coffee as usual.
217. Did you ever see Mr. Nealds intoxicated or drunk in a horse-box? I saw him lying down in a horse-box.
218. On what occasion was that? I saw him at Homebush; and I saw the traffic inspector, Mr. Fitzmaurice, mount the horse-box to speak to him, and Mr. Nealds could not be seen, but I did not hear him answer him at all.
219. He was in the horse-box? In a small place attached to the horse-box.
220. On the seat? He was not lying on the seat, but on the ground under it.
221. Do you remember any other occasion seeing Mr. Nealds in that state? I saw him taken off the engine at Homebush, assisted by the driver and station master, and put into a first-class carriage. Walker was the driver.
222. And you have no doubt, at the time you named, Mr. Nealds was drunk? Well, he could not walk; he hung by the hand-rail till the station master came and put him in a carriage.
223. By the Chairman: Have you any doubt in your own mind as to his being drunk? I cannot say that Mr. Nealds was sober. He did not look like a sober man; he could not stand.
224. You have often seen Mr. Nealds, and know that he is subject to rheumatism? I don't think that arises from rheumatism; I have seen him in that way.
225. Do you think he was in that way? I have been in that way.
226. Well, what do you think about it? Well, I think it was from beer—I think it was from drink.
227. By Mr. Whitton: You have known Mr. Nealds sufficiently long to know from his appearance whether he was troubled with rheumatism or drink? Yes.
228. And you have no doubt in your own mind that it was drink? I have no doubt he was suffering from liquor.
229. By the Chairman: How many occasions have you seen this? Twice.
230. When was it—about what month? The time Mr. Nealds was taken out of the first-class carriage by the porters, I cannot say the month—I don't recollect these things.
231. Do you recollect the other occasion in the horse-box? I cannot say; I think Mr. Nealds was put in at the Parramatta old station.
232. By Mr. Owen: That was the second occasion? Yes.
233. The first occasion—what was it you saw on that occasion? I saw him taken out of the horse-box, and I saw him in the horse-box.
234. The first occasion was in Sydney? No, the other is first.
235. I want to ask you about the occasion when the head porter lifted him out? I saw Mr. Nealds put in at Homebush, and lifted out at Sydney by the head porter.

236. Did you see anything remarkable when he was put in? It appeared he was drunk; the station master said he was drunk. I saw him get off the engine and he fell down there, until the station master took him by the arm and placed him in a first-class carriage.
237. Were there any people present at the time? I cannot say—the station master was there; I don't know there was any one in particular. I ride on the engine, and very seldom get off.
238. Was it an empty train? I cannot say whether it was an empty or a full one.
239. You are manager of the train? I am not manager of the engine; I am inspector of permanent way, and look after the plate laying.
240. And you don't know whether there were any passengers? Yes, there were passengers sometimes. I go on the engine; I do not take any notice of what is in the train.
241. You say Mr. Nealds fell forward and leant on the rail? Yes.
242. Was that all he did? He stopped there till the station master took him away. When I was with him on the engine, he would have fallen off had it not been for the driver—he said so himself.
243. By Mr. Moriarty: Who? The driver told me so. I was standing on the one side and he was on the tender.
244. By Mr. Owen: When you were on the tender did you notice anything remarkable that made you think he was the worse for liquor? He was rather staggering about as a man would in liquor.
245. Did he get on the engine at the junction? I think he did.
246. With assistance? Mr. Nealds was on the engine when I got on; I got on at the junction.
247. When he was on the engine did you notice anything? I noticed he had been drinking.
248. How do you mean; did you see a tumbler in his hand? I saw he was the worse for liquor. I have known Mr. Nealds for a long time, and can tell when I see him whether anything is the matter or not.
249. What time is Mr. Nealds generally down at the station? No particular time—sometimes before the first train is in the morning.
250. What time is that? A quarter before 7.
251. Is it unusual for him to be there before 6 in the morning? I have seen him sometimes there.
252. Is it not a pretty general practice of his to take a cup of coffee? Yes, before the train goes off.
253. When Mr. Nealds comes there in the morning, does he not generally come there unshaven and unshorn? I don't know.
254. Is there anything unusual in seeing him unshorn? I think he generally washes himself when he comes down to work.
255. But when he comes down early in the morning? I don't know; I never took that notice.
256. On the second time did you see Mr. Nealds—the time Mr. Fitzmaurice went to speak to him? I did.
257. What did you see? I saw him in the horse-box.
258. Was he asleep? I don't know whether he was asleep or not.
259. Did you say anything to him? No, I stood by Mr. Fitzmaurice. He asked, "Where is Mr. Nealds." I think he wanted to speak to him something about a special, and Walker said, "He is in the horse-box." I saw Mr. Nealds lifted out of the horse-box at Sydney, and taken to his own office by two of the porters.
260. You were not near him? Yes; he was not taken out until the platform was cleared.
261. Did you notice anything? He was taken to his own office; they each had hold of one arm.
262. That was the only thing that led you to believe he was drunk? He could not walk; he would not want to be carried if he were sober.
263. But a person may require assistance who is suffering from lumbago? That is another thing; I don't know it.

George Fitzmaurice called in and examined:—

264. By Mr. Owen: Do you remember going to speak to Mr. Nealds on any particular occasion when he was lying in a horse-box at Homebush? I can recollect asking Mr. Nealds a question, whether a special would be required for certain trucks. I could not say whether Mr. Nealds was lying on the horse-box at the time; I was standing below upon the permanent way, and all I could see was his face.
265. Then he could not be lying down? Not that I know of, because I could see his face.
266. What answer did he give you? He said, "Special train."
267. Did he speak in an incoherent manner, as if he was drunk? I could not say he was drunk, but his speech was different to what it was usually.
268. In what respect? His words were brought out more in a drawling tone.
269. This was the last train? This was the last up passenger train.
270. Was that the only thing which led you to suppose Mr. Nealds was drunk? I did not say he was drunk.
271. Was that the only peculiarity you noticed? Yes.
272. And you believed he was drunk? I did not take such notice.
273. By Capt. Mayne: That is no answer—do you believe that he was drunk? I cannot recollect the impression that was made upon me.
274. You have been some time with Mr. Nealds? Four and a half years.
275. You see him constantly? The time I was traffic inspector.
276. Did you ever see Mr. Nealds in a state of intoxication? I never saw Mr. Nealds incapable of doing his duty.
277. Did you ever see Mr. Nealds drunk? That depends on the definition of the word.
278. What is your definition of the word? I believe the influence of liquor varies—laying down without being tired, and one cannot walk properly.
279. You say it varies—but what is your definition of drunkenness? When he cannot walk without falling down.
280. On this occasion had you any opportunity of judging if Mr. Nealds could walk? I had not.
281. Had you any way of knowing whether he was drunk or sober? Only by speaking to him; I was standing down on the permanent way and I saw his face through the box.
282. Was he, on that occasion, sitting down, lying down, or standing up? I don't think he could lie down and me see his face.
283. In what position was he? I could not say.
284. There are three positions—was he sitting, lying, or standing—you say he could not be lying because you saw his face? I should think it was probable he was sitting down leaning forward.
285. By the Chairman: What was he sitting on? There is a seat in these horse-boxes—the groom's box.
286. Was he sitting on that seat? I could not say.
287. By Mr. Moriarty: You asked Mr. Nealds a question? Yes.
288. Did you get any answer? I got the words "Special train."
289. Was that an answer to your question? That was sufficient for my information.
290. You considered that, at the time, a sufficient answer to your question? Yes.
291. By Mr. Whitton: When you say Mr. Nealds said "Special train," what question did you put to him? To the best of my recollection there were extra trucks to be loaded to go up the line, and would a special train be required; and Mr. Nealds said "Special train."
292. Would not Mr. Nealds, under ordinary circumstances, say "Yes" or "No"? Yes.
293. By the Chairman: And on Mr. Nealds saying "Special train" you acted? I believe I did; I knew I was satisfied with the answer, and I went on the engine. I have no distinct recollection of the affair.

294. By Mr. Whitton : Were you satisfied that the answer was sufficient that you could act upon it? I think it was.
295. By Capt. Mayne : When you received the answer what did you do? I took my place on the engine, and we went on to Sydney.
296. Did you leave Mr. Nealds in the same place you found him when speaking to him? Yes, he was in the horse-box.
297. Did you see him leave the horse-box afterwards? Not till we arrived.
298. By the Chairman : Did you not think the horse-box a strange place for the traffic manager to be in? I frequently see Mr. Nealds in the horse-box; it is not where the horses are; it is the groom's partition.
299. It is a pretty cool place? Yes, it is a place we get in to smoke.
300. By Mr. Whitton : Did you not believe, at the time Mr. Nealds replied, "Special train," that Mr. Nealds was repeating your words? I believe so—that special train would be required.

Charles J. Nealds examined :—

301. By Mr. Owen : Have you any recollection of these occasions spoken of—I think they only amount to three altogether; although some indefinite ones, take the one you are being charged with being carried from a first-class carriage into your office? I remember the circumstance perfectly well.
302. Were you drinking on that day? Nothing more than a glass of grog in the afternoon. I may mention that I frequently go away by the first train, and don't return till the last at night. Unfortunately, on this occasion, I was returning from Blacktown, and, in getting into a first-class carriage at Blacktown, the door of the carriage closed on my foot before I was fairly in, and sprained my ankle, and when I arrived at Sydney, I believe, I was asleep—I very frequently fall asleep after a hard day's work—and the porter Higgs assisted me into my office, and I put my hand upon the table and sat down in the room there.
303. Were you suffering pain? I had been, but I was asleep at the time; when I awoke up—I may also remark that I believe it is well known that when in India I dislocated my knee, and in damp weather the knee swells, and the cap is liable to swell, which causes an awkwardness in my walking beside rheumatic affliction which I have. I may make a statement that I utterly deny this charge of drunkenness in toto.
304. Before that, on the same occasion, you were said to have been riding on the engine; before you were helped into the carriage, I think it was? I am speaking of the time I was helped into my office at Sydney.
305. Well, explain what occurred on the occasion that you were assisted off the engine? I do recollect Walker giving me a hand to lift me off.
306. Had you been drinking nothing more than a glass of grog? I am not in the habit of drinking.
307. Then there is the other occasion at the Parramatta Junction? At that time it is stated I was asleep in the break-van. I had been travelling all day, and that day I had the assistant engineer, Mr. Thomas, with me, and we had been talking in the break-van; although the guard said there is a seat—there is a seat there certainly—it is a little cupboard in the compartment, but in the van itself there is no seat. Mr. Thomas and I had been talking as I was sitting in this way with my feet outside the break-van, and Mr. Thomas beside me.
308. That being the only place you could get? Yes, unless we went where the guard was; and we were having a private conversation; Mr. Thomas was with me; I turned round on my back in the inside of the break-van, and very likely fell asleep. Why is not Mr. Thomas called about this?
309. Do you remember some of the officials coming and shutting the door? I don't recollect; that is very likely when I was asleep.
310. By Mr. Moriarty : Was Mr. Thomas there the whole time? I think he travelled with me all the way to Sydney.
311. By Mr. Owen : On this occasion, when the head porter helped you out of a first-class carriage, did you fall down on your knees? No.
312. And when you were helped off the engine, what assistance was given you? Nothing; but a man put his hand upon my arm.
313. That I believe is the same occasion as the one you were helped out the carriage at Sydney, and the same time as you hurt your foot? Yes; there is no statement how I got from the Western train to the Southern train. The Western keeps some yards from the Southern at the Junction. If I was so intoxicated I could hardly have got on the train when the Southern was ahead of the Western.
314. Do you recollect Fitzmaurice coming and speaking to you? Perfectly well.
315. Had you been drinking on that occasion? No.
316. Had you been working hard on that day? Yes, and I got into the groom's box, not only to smoke my pipe out of the way, but also to read in quiet without any person being there.
317. Do you remember Mr. Fitzmaurice coming up and speaking to you? Yes; he came up within the six foot between the two rails.
318. What were you doing when he came up? Reading and smoking.
319. Did you answer Mr. Fitzmaurice? He spoke of the trucks of metal, and asked whether they should come by the regular train or by special train, and I answered by special train.
320. By Mr. Moriarty : Did you ask anybody to assist you at the Junction, when you hurt your leg at the station at Blacktown? No, I walked along the line the six foot. The reason why my leg was so painful was sitting in the carriage; my leg got hurt in getting in the carriage at Blacktown; I jumped in when the train was in motion, and the door slung to and caught me on the ankle. I got out of the first-class carriage at the Junction, and walked to the platform and got on the engine.
321. Then you got off the engine at Homebush, and was put in a first-class carriage? Yes, by Mr. Faulkner; he put out his hand to me; he does it to other passengers.
322. Did you require assistance when you came to Sydney? Yes; when we arrived there Higgs took me by the arm to my office, and I took the key out of my pocket and opened it.
323. By the Chairman : How was it you were on the engine? I frequently travel on the engine when I want to see anything.
324. By Mr. Owen : Did you ever sleep in your office during the night? Never.
325. You never passed a night there? Never.
326. I suppose when you go down to the station at an extraordinary early hour, you go before you have made your toilet? Yes, unless I am going by the first train, I never shave until I have my paper at breakfast time.
327. And you generally get a cup of coffee there? I rarely go down at 6 o'clock that I do not.
328. At what time do you breakfast? At half-past 9; I generally wait for the half-past 8 train.
329. Your duties take you a good deal upon the line? Constantly.
330. You are constantly travelling about the line? Yes.

[The Board adjourned to half-past 10 o'clock on Tuesday, the 11th.]

Tuesday, 11 November.

Charles F. Aldrich examined :—

331. By the Chairman : Have you seen Mr. Nealds, at any time, intoxicated on the line, when doing duty? I regret to say so, often.
332. During what time? In Sydney, generally of an afternoon, on his coming into the office, and generally when he came down the line by the last train.

353. In what state of intoxication was he? I should say he was intoxicated.
354. Was he able to converse? On many occasions not, I should say.
355. When were these occasions—can you specify any occasion? No, I have no recollection of the date.
356. What were you then? Station clerk at Sydney.
357. Do you recollect, on one occasion, Mr. Nealds being taken out of a carriage, and taken into his room by Mr. Higgs and some one else? I heard of it, but I was not present.
358. What means had you of ascertaining that Mr. Nealds was intoxicated—what led you to think so? By his gait. I have been close to him when he smelt very strongly of it; by his appearance and eyes, and by his speaking very loud and at random, and his way of calling the porters.
359. And you are quite sure you could not be mistaken? There could be no question; I am very sorry to have to say so, but it is true, I assure you.
360. And within six months how many times can you recollect—from your general recollection—that he has been drunk? I have seen Mr. Nealds come down from Penrith and Blacktown in a similar way on several occasions.
361. By Mr. Owen: Can you specify any occasion on which you saw Mr. Nealds drunk? No, I could not mention any particular date.
362. Or can you say how often it has occurred? I should say at least once a week.
363. Was this when you were station master at Sydney? At Sydney and Parramatta both.
364. And did you, on any of these occasions, converse with Mr. Nealds? I have asked him questions, and he spoke quite thickly to me.
365. Did he give you any intelligible answer? I only asked him a question of form. Sometimes he asked me for papers to write, and he sat down and wrote on it.
366. Is there anything else you have noticed peculiar about him? Only his gait, his thick speech, and he smelt strongly of drink.
367. Don't you know a person may retain the smell of liquor, although not at all drunk? A person's eyes and gait you can see by.
368. You are aware Mr. Nealds suffers from sciatica and rheumatism? I have heard him complain of such.
369. Have you ever seen him walk lame? Yes.
370. And I understand you to say that the only thing you noticed which led you to believe that Mr. Nealds was drunk, was on one occasion his speech was a little thick? On more than one occasion.
371. What do you call his speech being thick? The man was evidently intoxicated—I cannot explain myself better.
372. You say his speech was somewhat thick, and you judged also from his gait, and at the same time you said his speech was thick he called for some forms, which he filled up? He has generally called for some paper to write something on.
373. That is all you can say of these several occasions? Yes, I have no dates.
374. Is Mr. Nealds a personal friend of yours? No.
375. Has Mr. Nealds ever reported you? I have no proof of it; but I believe he has.
376. Have you on several occasions expressed hostile feelings to Mr. Nealds? No, I have not; I have been cautious, even if I felt it.
377. By the Chairman: Have you had any misunderstanding with Mr. Nealds? I know he had a strong feeling against me for a long time.
378. Have you had any misunderstanding with him?—Are you upon speaking terms except on duty? I never allow my duty to interfere with my feelings.
379. You have some hostile feelings against Mr. Nealds? I believe he has been the cause of my removal two or three times.

Thursday, 13 November.

Sydney Bayley called in and examined:—

360. By Mr. Owen: You are a season ticket-holder on the line? Yes.
361. You are constantly travelling up and down? Yes, daily.
362. Did you know Mr. Nealds? Yes, personally.
363. Have you ever on any occasion seen Mr. Nealds intoxicated? Never; never in the slightest degree.
364. Did you see him every day? In fact I did see him every day, except when Mr. Nealds might be away up the line.
365. How long have you been a season ticket-holder? About two years; I cannot say exactly.
366. You reside at Parramatta, I believe? Yes.
367. Did you ever travel from Parramatta to Sydney by the last train at night? I don't recollect having done so.

Alfred Stephen called in and examined:—

365. By Mr. Owen: You are a clergyman of the Church of England? Yes.
369. You know Mr. Nealds? Mr. Nealds has been a neighbour of mine, living close to me for the last three years.
370. He is a parishioner of yours? He is a parishioner, but not an attendant of my church.
371. You know him very well? Yes, I see him constantly.
372. Have you ever, at any time, seen Mr. Nealds intoxicated? Never.
373. He lives opposite you, I believe? Yes, directly opposite.
374. You have ample means of seeing it? Yes, I have ample means; I never saw it, and I think if such a thing had occurred I must be sure to have known it.
375. Did you receive any visits from an employé of the line of the name of Aldrich? I knew him some time ago.
376. Did he ever call upon you about some matter connected with Mr. Nealds? Some time ago Mr. Aldrich was in some difficulty at the railway, and called on me and asked me to see Mr. Rac. I did not like as a clergyman interfering in the matter, but I did come and see Mr. Rac in accordance with the representations made to me.
377. Were they affecting Mr. Nealds? They were to some extent affecting Mr. Nealds—certainly.
378. Did you lay them before the Commissioner? Some of them.
379. What did the Commissioner say? I do not recollect.
380. Did he not say, "I do not believe a word of them?" I thought the Commissioner was uncourteous from what I heard from Mr. Aldrich; I conceived a strong prejudice against Mr. Nealds—a prejudice I have always had until the last year or two, when circumstances caused me to change my opinion entirely, and I believe that Mr. Aldrich made an instrument of me, and I felt much hurt in consequence. I cannot recollect what the Commissioner said, but I recollect, at Mr. Aldrich's instance, on interceding for Mr. Aldrich, I remember to the best of my recollection that I repeated matters which I thought objectionable, and which it was necessary to report, to make out Mr. Aldrich's case, and the impression on my mind that there was not that attention paid to the observations I made. I don't think that this has anything to do, either here or there, because the Commissioner may have thought I had no business to come to him at all. I don't recollect having said a word to Mr. Rac about the the charge of drunkenness; I don't recollect having mentioned such a thing. I know, in interceding for Mr. Aldrich, that I came in with no intention of doing Mr. Nealds an injury, and what I did say was only stated to exculpate Mr. Aldrich from the charge brought against him, when he inculpated Mr. Nealds, but to the best of belief I never told the Commissioner that Mr. Aldrich had told me, because it was a charge I had no right to repeat, because I had not seen an instance of it. Mr. Aldrich did tell me at the time that Mr. Nealds was given to brandy and water, and that he had been intoxicated in the railway, but I did not repeat this to Mr. Rae. I know how easily such charges are made, and I have never seen him in that state.

331. By the Chairman: So Mr. Aldrich went to you and gave you that information; and you have reason to believe that he was making use of you? Yes, I believe he was, because I had a prejudice against Mr. Nealds in consequence, and I watched Mr. Nealds very narrowly. I had a good deal to do with the railway, having parcels from my relations the Cox's, of Mulgoa, continually sent down, and I have not seen what Mr. Aldrich stated to me borne out in the single instance.

332. By Mr. Whitton: Do you frequently travel by the railway? Yes.

333. Do you frequently travel by the late train at night from Parramatta? No, generally in the morning; but I have been by the late train.

334. How many times? I should say half a dozen times.

335. Then the only reason you have to suppose from Mr. Aldrich's statement is not correct in the fact that you have not seen Mr. Nealds in the state he described? Yes; and also a large proportion of the employés of the railway are members of the church; if not my congregation they are my parishioners, and I am in the habit of visiting them, and from what I know of them I think I should have heard it. I never heard but one person mention any thing, and that never went beyond this, that Mr. Nealds was fond of brandy and water. I like brandy and water myself in moderation. I think it right to say that the conversation I had with Mr. Rae that it is a pity it is brought up here, as I don't think it affects the matter.

Letter from Mr. Hill, season ticket-holder, read and put in evidence.

Edward Goggin called in and examined:—

386. You know Mr. Nealds? Yes, about seven years.

387. You see him pretty often? Sometimes two or three times a day.

388. You are a traveller on the line? Not on the railway; I generally see him between Redfern.

389. Have you ever known him or seen Mr. Nealds drunk? I have never seen a sign of drink on Mr. Nealds, and I have met him at lunch often in town.

390. You never saw that he had any habits of intoxication? I never saw the sign of liquor on Mr. Nealds.

391. By Mr. Whitton: How often have you seen Mr. Nealds? I should say three times a week.

392. You don't travel much on the railway? Not much; I very often go to Homebush.

393. Have you ever travelled by the last train from Homebush into Sydney? No; if I did I should go to Homebush.

394. And you never travelled from there by the last train at night? No.

395. By Mr. Owen: You have frequently seen Mr. Nealds of an evening? Yes, frequently at the theatre; at least, three or four times a week. I used to meet him of an evening going home, and he would frequently walk to his home with me.

Henry Richman Morgan called in and examined:—

396. By Mr. Owen: You know Mr. Nealds? I do.

397. How long have you known him? Five years.

398. Did you know him intimately? Yes; we met frequently.

399. What do you mean by frequent meetings? Every day; in fact, I have lived in Fitzroy-terrace for two years.

400. You were his landlord? Yes, at one time.

401. Did you ever see Mr. Nealds intoxicated? Never in the least.

402. Is Mr. Nealds a man given to drinking? No, I never saw him in the least.

403. You have had opportunities of judging? Yes.

404. You have seen him frequently of an evening? Yes.

405. You travel constantly on the line—was he ever in that state on duty? No, never; he is one of the most attentive men I ever knew—most indefatigable.

406. By Mr. Whitton: Where do you live, Mr. Morgan? At Petersham.

407. And you are at present a season ticket-holder? Yes.

408. And was two or three years ago? Two and a half years ago.

William Hellyer examined:—

409. By Mr. Whitton: You have known Mr. Nealds for some years? Yes; my first acquaintance was in the train, more than two years ago.

410. You are a constant traveller on the line? I am.

411. Have you ever, on any occasion, seen Mr. Nealds intoxicated? Never.

Friday, 28 November.

Present:—

Mr. Sheppard,

Mr. Moriarty.

Capt. Mayne,

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Charge 10 G—continued.

James Ridley called in and examined:—

412. By the Chairman: What are you? Night watchman.

413. On the railway? Yes.

414. Where stationed? Sydney.

415. Have you been in the habit of seeing Mr. Nealds often? Very often.

416. Have you seen him intoxicated at all? I never did.

417. How long have you been there? Ever since the line has been open. I was over the other side the first part.

418. What time does your duty as night watchman commence? At half-past 6.

419. You are always on the station from that time? I am not always on the station; I am round the premises—round the goods shed and round the carriage shed.

420. Do you remember anything about Mr. Nealds being helped out of a first-class carriage into his room? No.
421. Were you there at the time? No.
422. Did you hear any conversation at the station about Mr. Nealds being helped out of a carriage into his office? No.
423. Have you been asked to give evidence? Yes.
424. Who asked you? Mr. Nealds.
425. Anybody else? Mr. Owen in the office asked me whether I ever saw Mr. Nealds drunk or laid in the office all night, and I told him I never did. He said, "That will do," and I think last Monday Mr. Nealds came down for his things, and he asked me himself. I told him "No, I never saw you drunk, and I never saw you lying in the office all night;" and he said, "Will you go and give evidence?" and I said, "No, I will not."
426. By Mr. Williams: You told Mr. Nealds so? Yes.
427. By the Chairman: Why did you not like to give evidence? Because I said I told Mr. Owen what I know, and if they want me they will send and call me down—I should not like to go by your order. "Well," he said, "the public will know it if you went."
428. Who said so? If I went to give evidence.
429. Who said that? Mr. Nealds.
430. What further conversation did you have with Mr. Owen? That was all he asked me.
431. By Mr. Owen: When do you leave the station? At 6 o'clock in the morning.
432. Do you generally call Mr. Nealds in the morning? I call him I may say for these last two years.
433. Every morning? Yes, I rapped at the fence.
434. You generally are on the platform when the train comes in? (Question objected to.)
435. By Mr. Moriarty: Would it be possible for Mr. Nealds to stop in his office all night without your being aware of it? Certainly he could, because I tell you there is two doors; there is one outside and one inside.
436. How does that account for his being there without you knowing it? He could go out of the outside door and I would be round at the goods shed.
437. And he might go in that way? Yes.
438. Could Mr. Nealds get out of a first-class carriage by the last train and go in his office, and come out at 6 o'clock in the morning, without your being aware of it? I may say he could not; but as to coming out of a first-class carriage, he could; many times the place is thronged.
439. By Mr. Williams: And are you always there? I am not always stationed there. He could come out of a first-class carriage in a crowd of people and I not see him.
440. You are night watchman? Yes.
441. You never go to sleep there? That is not my place to do so.
442. Have you ever been to sleep on your station? I don't know about sleeping, I may be sitting nodding.
443. Well, when you are sitting nodding, would you notice the people who came in? Yes, because my dog would let me know in an instant.
444. Then you are depending on your dog as watchman? He would let me know whether anybody was about.
445. If the dog did not bark, you would be sitting nodding and would not know? Many people may come up and you may not hear them; a dog will hear twice as quick as you.
446. And if the dog does not hear you will not hear? Not till very close to me; my dog will let me know half way up the road.
447. By the Chairman: Let you know if a stranger may appear? Yes.
448. By Mr. Williams: Would he bark at Mr. Nealds? Yes.

Tuesday, November 11.

Charge 10 H.—Paper marked 62/1279. "Memorandum from accountant, with reference to goods having been sent by passenger train at goods rates from Sydney to Penrith for Mr. Hellyer. Mr. Hellyer has since stated that at about that time he was suing Mr. Nealds for the recovery of a debt."

The Chairman read the papers.

Charles J. Nealds examined:—

1. By Mr. Whitton: With reference to the paper you have just heard read, do you know on any occasion that Mr. Hellyer has been allowed to send goods by passenger trains at goods rates? Yes.
2. On how many occasions has he done that? The only occasion is this one now mentioned.
3. Was your attention drawn to the fact by the station clerk at Penrith? Yes.
4. Do you think it your duty to allow Mr. Hellyer to send them by passenger trains at goods rates? Yes; I have already given an order to that effect on the 29th September.
5. Will you state to the Board on what conditions you gave that order? Mr. Hellyer is a constant sender by the line of various things. In the afternoon as he was going up he sent a note to me, at about 2 o'clock, requesting me to allow him to send up these things to Penrith by the 5 o'clock train, as he had instructed his clerk to meet him at the station; and unless they were sent they would have to remain at the Sydney station till the following Monday. He was going down by that train himself.
6. Is it contrary to the regulations of the line that goods should go by passenger trains at goods rates? No; there are certain cases in which a discretion rests with me. In the case of large carriers—and I look upon Mr. Hellyer as a large carrier—they have frequently goods sent to make up their complement. It may be 1 cwt. of sugar.
7. Has that a tendency to increase the receipts of the line? Decidedly.
8. To send them at goods rates by passenger trains—will you explain how it increases the receipts? The simple fact of giving facility to carriers or other persons to send goods. These persons have sometimes got their 3 cwt. or 4 cwt. left behind; and if we don't do that, the next time they will come by the road. I am looking at it in a mercantile light.
9. Do you oblige any other person in the same way you do Mr. Hellyer? Certainly.
10. And you have constantly done it? Certainly.
11. Are you aware that, by the regulations, there is one charge for goods sent by goods trains, and another for goods sent by passenger trains? Perfectly aware, for all traffic.
12. Have these regulations been sanctioned by the Executive? I know they have.
13. Will you explain by what authority you have deviated from these regulations? By my letter of instructions I am to increase the traffic in every way I can.
14. Will you shew the Board any instruction to depart from any regulation laid down by the Executive? I have nothing further than this instruction.
15. And this instruction authorizes you to depart from the regulations? Yes, I should certainly say so, if it would increase the traffic.
16. That is, in fact, you have the power to change the rates sanctioned by the Executive, at any time that you, Mr. Nealds, may find it convenient to do so? I did not say so. I simply said, in case where such a departure from the regulations would tend to increase the traffic, as in the case of Mr. Hellyer, or large carriers, sending as I have already stated.

17. Then, in fact, the regulations made by the Executive with reference to goods rates, or other rates, are of little importance in working the line, or are to be set aside when you think proper? I don't say so. I think my instructions gave me a discretionary power to do so.
18. Will you point out any part of your instructions that authorizes you to alter the rates? I have already pointed out; I have given my instructions to Mr. Owen.
19. On page 7, the 18th regulation is as follows:—"All parcels and packages under 112 lbs. weight each, unless they form part of a consignment of goods exceeding that weight, will be conveyed by passenger trains exclusively, at the authorized parcels rates; and all parcels and packages weighing above 112 lbs. each, or forming part of a consignment exceeding 112 lbs., will be forwarded by goods trains, and charged at goods rates, if the words 'per passenger train' be not distinctly marked upon them." These regulations were agreed to in 1861. You have, when you thought it desirable, deviated from the regulations sanctioned by the Executive? I have sent goods by the passenger trains frequently.
20. And you consider that increases the traffic of the railway? Yes.
21. Would the goods of Mr. Hellyer have gone down by the goods train at goods rates if you had not obliged him by sending them down by the passenger train at goods rates? I think they would next week.
22. And to oblige Mr. Hellyer you sent them down by the passenger train, charging him goods rates with a view of increasing the traffic of the railway? Yes.
23. Were you at that time under any obligation to Mr. Hellyer? None whatever. Mr. Hellyer was under obligation to me.
24. Were you employing him to arrange a matter for you? No.
25. And you have had no business transactions with Mr. Hellyer? I never employed him in my life.
26. Has any one employed him against yourself? About six months ago he sent me a lawyer's letter for £7.
27. Is that the only time? The only time.
28. Would you name any other sender by the railway who has been allowed to send goods down by passenger trains at goods rates? I cannot remember the names, but the goods clerk can tell you; Mr. Owen and Mr. Carlisle can tell you; it is of frequent occurrence.
29. Then, it is of frequent occurrence to set aside the rules and regulations the Executive have issued? It is of frequent occurrence to do what I have done. When a portion of a large consignment has already been sent down the line, I have frequently sent any small balance that may perchance be left behind by the passenger as a portion of a consignment, at goods rates.
30. When you send these small balances, are they not balances that you or the goods clerk have neglected to forward? O dear, no—that is quite a mistake.
31. Then you admit you have sent these goods in passenger trains at goods rates? Yes.
32. And knowing that these regulations of the Executive are direct against doing so? Yes, acting on my own instructions.
33. By Mr. Moriarty: You consider your instructions allow you to deviate from the charge fixed—what instructions do you allude to? I allude to the general instructions I received from the Commissioner.
34. On what date? November.
35. What year? 1858, but I have paper since from Mr. Rae, stating that Mr. Nealds is to adhere to the regulations issued by Captain Martindale of such a date.
36. Is this the paper you allude to? Yes, but I have a paper from Mr. Rae, saying I am to carry out the instructions of the Commissioner (Captain Martindale), and I think I can produce it.
37. And this is the paper under which you are empowered to deviate from the orders subsequently issued by the Executive? Only in these cases which I mention. I should not take the whole consignment of goods at passengers' rates, or alter the rates. It is only in a manner of convenience for large carriers, where a part of the consignment is gone, and he is a passenger going by the train, to send the goods on, provided he could not get them taken before next week. It is a sort of inducement to them to patronize the railway.
38. By Mr. Whitton: Is Mr. Hellyer a large sender? I believe he is.
39. What was the average traffic of his per week? I cannot say; he has lived a long time there.
40. By Capt. Mayne: This is what you say authorizes you to give this convenience, according to your discretion; these are the instructions of the Commissioner:—"But he must clearly understand that he is not empowered to alter the times of the morning trains, to grant special trains, or to make any alteration or special agreement in rates or fare without previous sanction, nor to increase the expense without authority——"? I have been working under the instructions. I would not alter the rates; but——
41. It appears you have, because there is a different rate charged by the passenger and goods trains. It appears you have acted in distinct contravention of the instructions? No reply.
42. By Mr. Whitton: A recent regulation you have issued lately about vegetables going down by the passenger trains—that has not been sanctioned by any one? No; simply by that (pointing to regulations.)
43. It has not been sanctioned by the Commissioner or Executive? It is, as I read it.
44. Your opinion of the regulations gives you the power of sending vegetables by the passenger trains, and charging goods rates for them? Yes.

11 November.

George Fitzmaurice called and examined:—

45. By Mr. Whitton: You are station clerk at Penrith? Acting station clerk.
46. Do you remember, on any occasion, goods being sent by passenger train to the station at Penrith, and charged goods rates? Mr. Hellyer's goods were.
47. On how many occasions? One occasion.
48. No more than one occasion? Only one occasion I remember.
49. On that particular occasion you allude to, did you receive more than one way-bill with these goods? I did—two.
50. What were the way-bills? One was parcel, 11s. 2d. to pay; the other was goods, money paid, 5s. 9d. paid. When money was paid I delivered accordingly.
51. Did you not send back to ask in what way-bill you were to charge? I sent to Mr. Nealds to ask him on which of the two bills to charge.
52. Which was correct? I had acted on the paid bill.
53. Are you in the habit of sending goods by passenger trains, and charging goods rates for them? Not unless it is for the convenience of the traffic—such a thing as gunpowder, anything to be kept separate, or anything neglected to be forwarded.
54. It is not customary to send goods by the passengers' train, and charge goods rates? Not unless for some reason I mentioned.
55. On whose authority did you send these articles by passengers' train? I have not sent any from Penrith that I am aware of.
56. Did you ever send any on a special train? I don't remember; I know I have received gunpowder in the break invoiced as goods.

57. And you have never sent any goods through to Penrith for any one by passengers' train, and charged goods' rates? No.
58. When you sent vegetables by passengers' train, what rates did you charge? Parcels' rates.
59. On all occasions? Yes.
60. You don't understand your regulations to give you the power of sending vegetables by passengers' trains at goods' rates? No.
61. By Mr. Owen: You say that these goods are sometimes sent by passenger trains at goods' rates when neglected to be sent up—neglected by whom? Neglected by our own people.
62. Has it ever arisen when the goods are left behind by these parties—the consignors themselves—when, for instance, a person who has loaded a dray at Penrith, and he has left behind a few packages, such as sugar, or small matter of this kind—did you ever know of these small matters being sent up after him, and charged at goods' rates? I cannot remember if such consignments frequently go at passengers' rates.
63. You don't remember them going at goods' rates? No, I cannot remember it.
64. Then this is the only case you have ever known that goods have been sent up in this way? This case of Mr. Hellyer's? Yes, that is sent by passenger train, and invoiced at goods' rates—only in the circumstance I have mentioned, if we neglected to send it, it is immediately sent by the next train—or gunpowder, which is kept separate.
65. How long have you been acting as station clerk? Since the opening of the Penrith station, 7th July.
66. Were you ever before employed in that capacity? I have been goods' clerk at Sydney station, station-master at Sydney, the same at Parramatta and Liverpool, and traffic inspector.
67. By Mr. Whitton: Is Mr. Hellyer a large sender on the railway? He has sent three or four consignments, I believe, since I have been at Penrith. I don't think I have been to any station where he has sent before.
68. What might be the weight of all these consignments? This consignment was about seven cwt.
69. What has been the total weight of all the consignments from Mr. Hellyer? I think two tons would cover it.
70. How long have you been there? Since July.
71. Then in four months Mr. Hellyer has sent two tons of goods? I will not be sure without I refer to the books.
72. On gunpowder there is a special rate? Yes; 3s. is the ordinary rate.
73. By Mr. Owen: Is Mr. Hellyer and his family constantly travelling on the line? Yes.
74. Up and down every week? Yes.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

75. You are station clerk at Sydney? Yes.
76. Do you remember on any occasion goods having been sent for Mr. Hellyer by passenger train at goods rates? I have on many occasions—two or three times, I believe.
77. How did it first come to your knowledge that Mr. Hellyer was sending these goods by passenger trains at goods rates? I heard him talking to one of the guards. He asked one of the guards, "What are you doing," and he said, "I am guard of the goods train." He said, "I am not going to have my goods sent by the goods train"; the guard said, "Why," and he said he would have them sent by passenger train—he had only to speak to Mr. Nealds, and he would send them all by passenger trains at goods rates.
78. What steps did you take after you heard that conversation? I gave orders to the parcels clerk that no goods should be sent by the passenger train without a way-bill at parcels rates.
79. Did you send a way-bill at parcels rates? Yes.
80. Are you aware what rate Mr. Hellyer was charged goods rates or parcels? He was charged both, he paid goods rates at Sydney, and was charged parcels rates when the goods got up to Penrith.
81. Are you aware whether that extra amount has been paid or not? It has not.
82. You cannot state positively how many times these parcels have gone in this way? No; I believe two or three times; I cannot state positively.
83. By Mr. Owen: How often have you drawn attention to the fact that goods were going by passenger trains at goods rates? I have not drawn attention at all until I heard Mr. Hellyer say he would have his goods sent by passenger trains at goods rates.
84. Then you allowed it to continue without taking any notice of it—can you give us any clue at all to the other occasions? Yes, I dare say I can. Once or twice to Rooty Hill—when the line was extended so far; a ton or two was conveyed at goods rates in a passenger train.
85. Was that soon after the opening of Rooty Hill? Yes.
86. Then you can give me pretty nearly the time of it? No; I cannot. I have no recollection of the time when Rooty Hill was opened.
87. When the line was opened to Rooty Hill, did any goods train run there? Most decidedly.
88. Goods were carried there at goods rates? Always.
89. From the first? Yes; they went by the goods train from Sydney.
90. But did it go up to Rooty Hill? I can only state they went from Sydney by goods train.
91. Do you not know that, for a considerable period after the Rooty Hill station was open, goods trains did not run? They ran up to Parramatta Junction.
92. Did you not advise that vegetables should go under goods rates? No, I did not.
93. Did you not suggest that? No.
94. Did you ever mention that to the traffic manager? No, he mentioned it to me, and shewed me something in the regulations which mentioned something of the kind. I said it appeared to me there is a difficulty in the matter, and on that the manager gave orders that vegetables should be charged at goods rates.
95. Do you know who it was that Mr. Hellyer spoke to on the platform? Robinson and Darby.
96. Was this immediately before these goods, which we are now talking of, were sent? Four or five days.
97. What was it in reference to—were any goods being sent up there? I gathered from the conversation that he would send no more goods by goods trains.
98. I ask what was the occasion of this conversation—what was it that induced him to make the remark that he would send up no more goods? I cannot say; he asked the guard, "What are you guard of," and he said, "I am guard of the goods train"; and he then said, "I will have no more goods sent by the goods train, but by passenger trains at goods rates."
99. And then he stated he had only to speak to Mr. Nealds to get it done? Yes.
100. Will you look at that memorandum—is that your writing? Yes—"Sydney—correct."
101. Read the memorandum to which the statement is appended—62/1279? Of course, the system we
102. What does it state? That the way-bill is correct, and these goods were conveyed by the train.
103. Have with accounts is this: The two stations make a statement, and when these queries are sent to the stations, they are marked correct or not.
104. But the correctness refers to the whole of the document? 11s. 2d. to pay in as credit we will not allow Penrith to take.

104. Why, when it is correct in Sydney, is it not correct in Penrith—does it not mean to pay on 11s. 2d. ? No, it means that Sydney does not give credit to Penrith for 11s. 2d., or else the other queries would not have been asked.
105. Had you not, before you made that memorandum, received orders to admit that the money is paid you? No, not until it was too late—not until the monthly accounts had gone into the office.
106. Was it not before you received that memorandum? Yes.
107. By Mr. Whitton: Is it not a fact that goods trains did run daily to Rooty Hill, and simply took passengers as an accommodation to the public? Yes.
108. There was a goods train to Rooty Hill? Yes.
109. Then it was not a passenger train? It was a mixed train; we did not carry goods in the break, but we carried them on trucks, and the trucks were put behind the passenger train.
110. By the Chairman: Am I to understand you that the train that carried the goods was a passenger train or the goods train carried the passengers to Rooty Hill station when these goods were sent on to Mr. Hellyer? That is a difficult question to answer. I am not in a position to say whether the goods train was carrying passengers or the other positively.
111. Did you not say just now that Mr. Hellyer had his goods sent by passenger train? Yes, from Sydney. These goods were carried to the Parramatta Junction by the goods train, and there they had to wait to be carried on by the passenger train.
112. By Mr. Owen: When they started from Sydney they went by the goods train? Yes.
113. By Mr. Whitton: Were all the goods sent on to Rooty Hill invoiced at goods rates? Yes, and parcels at parcels rates.
114. By the Chairman: By what train did Mr. Hellyer's goods leave Sydney? I cannot state.
115. You said just now it was a passenger train? I cannot state Mr. Hellyer's goods were sent down in the break-van, but goods are sent by other trucks which are sent as goods rates. These goods were sent at the parcels rates and placed in the break-van.
116. By Capt. Mayne: What rates were charged for Mr. Hellyer's goods? He was charged at goods rates.
117. By whose orders? Mr. Nealds.
118. By Mr. Owen: Did you receive the order from Mr. Nealds? I did.
119. This was on every occasion? The last one; I did not receive the orders—it was the goods clerk, not myself.
120. When you were goods clerk did you not sometimes send up parts of a consignment by passenger train at goods rates? When they were left behind from our fault through not having trucks sufficient or labour; that is a long time before the new rolling stock came out.
121. By Mr. Whitton: Are you in the habit of sending vegetables by passenger trains at goods' rate? Yes, we are of late.
122. Is it in accordance with the printed regulations? I stated before that the regulations are rather vague.
123. By Capt. Mayne: What is the regulation referred to? On the thirty-fifth page it does not say anything about the charge.
124. That is the point on which you think the regulation vague—it does not state what charge? Yes.
125. By Mr. Whitton: Have you been in the habit, since you have been at the Sydney station, of sending all vegetables by the passenger trains at goods rates? No.
126. Since what time? Two months ago.
127. On whose orders did you send them? On Mr. Nealds'.
128. It was not in accordance with your former printed regulations? No.

—

William Hellyer called in and examined:—

129. By Mr. Whitton: You are a solicitor of the Supreme Court? Yes.
130. Do you remember any goods of yours being taken up by passenger train to Penrith, at goods rates? Yes, on one occasion, I believe.
131. Only one occasion? I believe only one.
132. What occasion was it? It was about November or December of last year. I had driven from — to Parramatta, and had to exchange my horse on the road; one of my horse's shoes failed him, and finding I had to bring another horse to Parramatta, it occurred to me that it would be a good opportunity of getting up some goods, and I got up 8 cwt. of sugar, not knowing but that they would go by the goods train. I told my men to meet them at Penrith and take them on that night. It was raining hard, and I did not know till I applied that would go up too late, so I applied to Mr. Nealds to allow them to go by the passenger train, and he said first of all that he could not unless I paid luggage charges; and I said it was very hard to have to pay so large a sum, inasmuch as they could take no more if it went by the goods train, and he said under the circumstances he would allow them to go.
133. That is the only case you remember? That is the only occasion I had goods taken up as luggage and charged as goods. I had some orange trees taken up once, but at luggage rates. I have had goods forwarded on, but I have no recollection of any other goods being taken up.
134. Forwarded on at the proper rates? At goods rates.
135. By passengers train? I don't know. South Creek was the station; I went to send up some goods, and I did send up two tons of flour which my dray was coming to take away, but I was afterwards informed they went on to Penrith with the goods. I got some goods at the station, and found they were left at the wrong station. I then asked for Mr. Nealds, and after waiting till the train came in—some three-quarters of an hour after—I saw Mr. Nealds, and told him that Darby had told me that he went into Penrith every night, but I found on inquiry it was only the engine; and I asked him to allow the goods to be forwarded, as I had been misled.
136. You intended to have sent them to South Creek? No; I intended to send them to Penrith, and Darby told me they went in every night, and I found they did go in, but only the engine. When I came up with the goods, I stated they were to go to Penrith, and I was told they could not go unless they go as luggage. I said "I am not going to send them as luggage," and Mr. Nealds wrote an order to Mr. Carlisle to pay the freight in an ordinary manner, and there was an end of it.
137. Did you ever come to this office in connection with the conveyance of goods? I think, after Mr. Nealds' suspension, I applied to Mr. Moody, and he said as long as it was not a large parcel it might go up in the same way.
138. By the Chairman: Do you recollect having any conversation with two guards, and stating that you never intended to send any more goods by the goods train, as Mr. Nealds would always let you send them by the passenger train—did you say that? No, nothing of the sort, it is not true—I don't know that I have. If I could see the parties I could say if I had spoken to them at all. Darby is the only person I know, and Ben, and I certainly never had any conversation with him on the matter. Darby is the only man I spoke to at the time I got the information that he went into Penrith at night.
139. By Mr. Owen: You never had a conversation that you would not have your goods by goods train, because Mr. Nealds would let you take them up by passengers train? No; I may say that what I sent in that way bears a small proportion to what I sent. I only know one instance it was forwarded by luggage, and that was on a wet day.
140. By Mr. Moriarty: Except when you got a similar permission from Mr. Moody? They did not go on as luggage. When I applied to Mr. Moody for leave to send the goods on, I said I had applied to Mr.

Read,

Read, at South Creek, asking him what charge would be made for conveying the goods from Sydney to Penrith in the luggage van, because I understood the goods train did not go through, except for contracts, and he said the same charge as if sent by luggage (passenger) train from Sydney.

141. By the Chairman : Do you recollect when these goods were sent on by luggage train you were suing Mr. Nealds on behalf of any person? No. I find it was in May, 1861, that I wrote to Mr. Nealds, on behalf of Mr. Clark Irving, for the sum of £14, and Mr. Nealds settled the matter.

142. By Mr. Nealds : It was simply a professional letter, not suing? Yes, but I have also written him a letter on behalf of Mr. Bovis for £7 or £8.

143. By Mr. Whitton : About what date was that? About five or six months since.

144. By Mr. Owen : And the same kind of letter? Yes.

145. By the Chairman : Do you know whether at this particular time it was when your potatoes were sent? No, I never saw Mr. Nealds about this at all. My son saw him. I think it was a bag of corn and potatoes. I did not see Mr. Nealds, and not having acted on it I should not remember it. These went on as goods—they were paid for as goods.

146. The bags of sugar? The bags of sugar went into the passenger train.

147. By Mr. Owen : Did the sugar go up by passenger train at goods rates? Yes.

148. How much? 8 cwt. I purchased it at Fairfax's, and brought it up to the station, not knowing that the goods train had gone up. Sugar is a perishable article, and it would not do to have it left in the wet. With regard to the other goods—my potatoes and corn—I sent my son to Mr. Nealds to say I should be obliged if he would let the goods go at goods rates by passenger train, but he refused. I wanted to save 5s. or 6s. The flour was put on a truck.

149. It was not put in a van? No, on a regular luggage truck.

Mr. Nealds : It is of frequent occurrence up to the time of my suspension, when we want to send goods away in a hurry to oblige consignors, to send the truck by passenger train, charging only goods rates for it.

Mr. Whitton : Is it in accordance with the regulations? Mr. Nealds : Decidedly so.

William Hellyer's examination continued:—

150. By Mr. Whitton : With reference to the permission given by Mr. Moody, these goods were to be sent at goods rates, and not by passenger train? Yes.

151. Did you ever state to any person in the office, at the time when one package went by passengers train at goods rates, that you were suing Mr. Nealds? No; in the course of conversation I think I stated this, so far as I know, Mr. Nealds could not make any profit by the transaction, and, although I had no right to do so, I think I said I knew that he had compounded with his creditors, and so far from me having any favour or giving him any favour, I said I had sued him.

152. That was about the time these goods of yours went up by passengers train? It was—my conversation with Mr. Moody. The time I wrote the letter, in May, 1861, was the only time I had goods sent up by the passenger train.

153. What was the date of the first letter? In November, 1861.

154. About what time was the date of the second letter? The second letter was about five months since.

155. You have nothing sent up this year by passenger train? No, nothing; I have had goods forwarded through at goods rates.

156. By passenger train? No; in fact, I inquired from Mr. Read what was the course of procedure. I thought I could send the goods on by passenger train, by paying from South Creek, but Mr. Read said I would have to pay the whole way, and I complained of it to Mr. Moody, and asked him to let the goods go through. Mr. Sheppard asked me a little time ago as to some conversation I had, and whether I did not say I would not send up my goods by goods train.

157. By the Chairman : It has been stated that you said you did not intend to send your goods by the goods train, because Mr. Nealds would let you send them by the passenger train at goods rates? I have been thinking of the occasion—it was when I was waiting for Mr. Nealds. This same evening there were two harness casks and two packages of corn. I refer to the fête day; I was asked if I was going to send them by passenger train; and I said, no, I would send them by the goods train, but I had no doubt Mr. Nealds would give me permission to let them go through.

158. By Mr. Owen : That is, from South Creek to Penrith? Yes.

159. In the same way as Mr. Moody had given you permission? Yes.

160. By Mr. Whitton : I think you stated the last goods you sent by passenger train were sent some time last year? The only goods I know of, except some orange trees, for which I paid passengers' rates.

161. You are not aware of any baskets of potatoes being sent a month ago from Sydney, by passengers train, at goods rates? No, I am not aware of it; my son attended to it.

162. Then, if you very rarely see your goods despatched from Sydney, might they not go by passenger trains at goods rates without your knowledge? No, I have always attended to the transmission of goods myself, and on each occasion that I have gone into the goods chamber where Mr. Carlisle is, and paid him the freight, I have inquired whether the goods have come, and finding they have I have arranged it.

163. And you do not know that these potatoes went in September by passenger train at goods rates? I know I asked my son to ask Mr. Nealds to let them go through at goods rates. I think there were four or five bushels of potatoes and one of corn.

164. And your request in reference to these goods was made to let them go by passenger train? I cannot say; my son will be able to tell you. I don't believe my son would ask for it if I told him not to. I told him to inquire if Mr. Nealds would let them go through at goods rates.

165. But they did go by passenger train? That I don't know; I don't know what was paid.

166. If you had to pay the passenger rates you would know? No, my son paid for them.

167. By Mr. Owen : Has there been any application for payment of a difference between goods rates and passenger rates? The station master at Penrith told me yesterday he had received instructions to collect from me some difference of freight. I said, "It is very possible you may apply for it, but I expressly directed that the goods should not be sent by passenger train." "Well," he said, "I shall have to pay it myself." But I said, "Sooner than get you into this difficulty I will pay it."

168. You stated you had some conversation with Mr. Moody, in which you said you were suing Mr. Nealds, and that so far from his receiving a bonus from you you had sued him—how did this conversation arise? I was suspicious, on my part. I conceived it was possible some slanders were directed relative to Mr. Nealds, and I said, "I hope it is not on account of the kindness he has extended to me that these charges are made"—that is how the conversation arose—and I said, "So far from his deriving any benefit from me I had sued him." I said, "I do not believe that Mr. Nealds derived any benefit from this proceeding, or it would not have been necessary for him to compound with his creditors."

169. Were you sent for by Mr. Moody? No, I came up to ask him to let the goods go through.

170. Did Mr. Moody begin the conversation with you? I dare say he might have asked me to go away. I think I spoke of it myself. I said I was sorry to find Mr. Nealds had been suspended.

Richard Darby called in and examined :—

171. By Mr. Whitton : What are you? Railway guard.
 172. Do you know Mr. Hellyer, the attorney? I do.
 173. Do you remember, a short time ago, any conversation you had with him on the railway platform, at Sydney? I do.
 174. At about what time, as near as you can remember? I think about two months—not so much I think.
 175. Was it at the time that Mr. Hellyer was sending down any goods? A short time before that.
 176. Before that? A short time.
 177. By the Chairman : When Mr. Hellyer sent down some goods what was the conversation? I think it was on a Sunday night that he met Ben, and I, and the other guard; and he was asking us how we were working—who was on day duty and who was on night duty? Ben. told him he took it one week and I the other week; he said it did not matter, he was not going to send any more goods by the goods train, but he would send them by the passenger trains.
 178. And what was said besides? One of them (Mr. Owen was by Ben) made the remark, and said that it would be expensive to send goods by the passenger trains; and Mr. Hellyer then said, "Never mind, I will talk Mr. Nealds out of that."
 179. Was that all that took place? Except that Mr. Owen said to me afterwards, "I will take care he don't get any goods taken by passenger trains without paying for them."
 180. By Mr. Whitton : Do you remember on another occasion Mr. Hellyer was down at the station, sending off some goods? I do.
 181. How long was that ago? Five or six weeks.
 182. What were the articles? Seven bags of potatoes; I think 7 cwt.
 183. Mr. Hellyer was himself present when these potatoes were sent down? I think they had gone by the passenger train that evening, but he was there wanting to pay for them by the goods train; whether they had gone or not I don't know, but he wanted to pay for them by the goods train.
 184. By Capt. Mayne : When you speak of Mr. Hellyer who do you mean? The lawyer.
 185. There are two Mr. Hellyer's—father and son—which do you mean? I don't know the son.
 186. The father you mean—the elder Mr. Hellyer, the solicitor? Yes, I do.
 187. By Mr. Whitton : And these goods were sent down by passenger train? Yes, he booked them, and I believe paid for them the same night in the office; he sat with me in the office for nearly a quarter of an hour.
 188. Do you say he paid for them? I think he did; he was waiting for Mr. Carlisle, who went over to the passenger platform to find the weight, to know what to charge him. During the time he was away Mr. Hellyer sat in the office, but whether he paid for them I would not be positive.
 189. By Mr. Moriarty : Did they go by the goods or passenger train? I think by the passenger—I am sure they did.
 190. By Mr. Owen : And you say that Mr. Hellyer, the solicitor, booked the goods himself? Yes.
 191. That is referring to the potatoes? Yes.
 192. Do you know what he said when he booked them? I don't recollect; he sat there in the office for a quarter of an hour, telling me about the fires at his place at Penrith.
 193. Did he, when booking the goods, say as to how they were to go? He said they were to go by the passenger train; but he had the privilege to pay for them at goods rates and send them by passenger train.
 194. That is booking them as goods? Yes.
 195. Was this subsequent to the conversation you and Ben had with Mr. Hellyer? Yes, after that.
 196. Was that the only occasion, that you are aware of, that Mr. Hellyer booked goods as goods by passenger train? The only occasion.
 197. Do you know whether Mr. Hellyer did ever send anything after that conversation? I really don't know.
 198. Mr. Hellyer said to you in the conversation, "I will talk Mr. Nealds over"? The words he used were, when the remark was made that it would be expensive if he sent goods by passenger trains, "Never mind, I will talk Nealds out of that."

Saturday, 15 November.

Present :—

Mr. Sheppard, | Capt. Mayne,
 Mr. Moriarty.

Mr. Sheppard in the Chair.

Minute Paper 62-290 read, relative to taking and using coats out of the lost property room.

Charles J. Nealds examined :—

1. By the Chairman : Will you state what you have to say about this matter. You heard the two memorandums of Mr. Owen and the report of Mr. Higgs? The only statement I have to make is to the first mentioned case, No. 61. I was going by the railway, and called to Higgs, who was on the platform, "Have you got a coat to lend me to throw over me?" and he threw me a coat, torn down the back, and without a sleeve also. I brought it back, and put it in my room on the platform. I have used that coat occasionally since; but, from using it in the goods' trains of a night, it got very dirty, and I sent it to be washed. It has never been worn since washed; it is hanging up, and when I returned there two days after my suspension, I saw it hanging up as it was after it came from the wash. The other coat—The day the Governor General went down the line, I jumped upon the engine, and had no great-coat, and I called out to Higgs, "Have you got a great-coat to lend me to put over my shoulders?" He gave me one, and I wore it, and brought it back, and it has been hanging in the office ever since; I don't think it has been worn twice.
 2. Did you ask Mr. Higgs to let you have a coat from the lost property room? The expression I used was, "Higgs, have you got a coat to lend me to throw over my shoulders?"
 3. What did Higgs say? He made no answer, but got me the coat, and threw it to me.
 4. By Mr. Whitton : Are you aware that the coats belonged to the lost property room? Yes, fully aware of it.
 5. They have not been returned to the room? The last one has been; they have never been out of the office, except this one, to get washed; it got dirty from the black of the engine.
 6. One coat has been returned to the lost property room? Yes; and the last day before my suspension, when the Governor went down, I borrowed it again. Higgs came to me and said, "The coat I lent you;" and I said, "Here it is." It was the day the Governor went down to Penrith that I asked him to lend me a coat, and he threw me the same coat.
 7. Since the coat has been taken out, has there been a sale of lost property at the station? I don't think there has. I see the coat is marked 61; if that is the case it will be before the sale.
 8. By the Chairman : How long is it since the first coat was taken? I cannot tell—it has been a long time knocking about; any person who has access to my office can see it.

9. By Mr. Whitton: I think the men on the line are aware that you have been wearing this coat taken out of the lost property room? I cannot answer this question.
10. Did not Morgan ask where you got it? Never.
11. Lewton? Never; Lewton asked me where I could buy such a coat, and I said for 35s. to 50s. you could get one at David Jones' for I had purchased one there myself.
12. By Mr. Owen: When are the sales of the lost property? Whenever the Commissioner may order them. We have never had but one general sale since the railway was opened, and I think that was eighteen months or two years since.
13. But you would never have a sale of goods, except when the goods have been in the lost property office for some time? Twelve months, never under twelve months; that is the general regulation.
14. You have the management of these goods in the lost property room? They are always sent into my care whenever they are found on the line, and the head porter has the key of the office.
15. By Mr. Moriarty: You did not ask him to give you a coat out of the lost property room? No, I asked him to lend me a coat; when I have not one, frequently the porters throw me one of their coats.
16. By Mr. Whitton: Did you believe, when Higgs threw it, that it came out of the lost property room? I stated so fully before.
17. By Mr. Moriarty: What regulations are those with respect to lost property? No. 5, page 3.
18. By Mr. Whitton: I believe there is a general order of the Commissioner, that all unclaimed luggage shall be sold every twelve months? I am not aware of it at any rate—I recommended to the Commissioner four or five months ago to have the things sold.

James Higgs called in and examined:—

19. By the Chairman: You recollect about the two coats? Yes.
20. Do you recollect Mr. Nealds asking you to lend him a coat? Mr. Nealds told me to get him a coat out of the lost property room.
21. What did he say? Really I cannot say as to the exact words—it is a long time ago.
22. What was the occasion of the first coat? Wet weather, I suppose—I cannot tell you.
23. Cannot you recollect what the words were? Something similar to this, "Higgs, have you got an oilskin coat in the lost property room?" I said "Yes," and he said "Let me have it"; I can't say the words.
24. You made a report to Mr. Owen? Yes.
25. Did you verbally explain to Mr. Owen, that Mr. Nealds had asked you for a coat out of the lost property room? Mr. Owen asked me if Mr. Nealds had two coats out of the lost property room, and I told him he had.
26. Did he ask you about the circumstances at all? No, he did not ask me the circumstances; he told me to make out a report of the two coats missing out of the lost property room.
27. Do you recollect anything about the other coat, when Mr. Nealds asked you for it? I think it was the time the Governor went to Menangle to see the bridge; I don't think the Governor went—some ladies went.
28. What did Mr. Nealds say to you? I cannot repeat the words—something similar to the others.
29. When was it you told Mr. Owen that there were two coats missing? He asked me about it, whether Mr. Nealds had two coats.
30. By Mr. Owen: When was this? That was since Mr. Nealds has been suspended.
31. Did you merely say he had these coats, or did you tell him on what occasion he had them? No, I did not; I simply said Mr. Nealds had two coats out of the lost property room, and they were still out of the lost property room.
32. By Mr. Whitton: The lost luggage room of the Sydney station is in your charge? Yes.
33. Were you not called in by Mr. Owen to explain where these coats had gone to, having been entered in the book? Mr. Owen asked me if Mr. Nealds had not two coats, and to make a report about them.
34. These coats are entered in your book in the lost luggage room? Yes.
35. Did Mr. Owen examine this book in the lost luggage room? Yes.
36. Did Mr. Owen ask you what became of the two coats? He told me to make out a report of what had become of the lost coats.
37. Mr. Owen looked at the book and found what? And asked me what had become of the two coats entered in the book and not in the room.
38. Have you seen Mr. Nealds wearing these coats on any occasion? One I have on several occasions.
39. Which one? The first one.
40. Was it a good coat or considerably damaged? It was a good coat at the time Mr. Nealds got it.
41. It was not without a sleeve or ripped up the back? No, not at the time.
42. Have you seen Mr. Nealds wearing the second coat on many occasions—when was it returned to the luggage room? I have not got it; it was returned once and taken out again. I told Mr. Nealds that the party had been there for the coat.
43. Did the party ever get it? He never came for it at all.
44. You said he applied for it? No, he never applied for it.
45. What did you mean by saying he applied for it? I told Mr. Nealds he had been for the coat, because I wanted to get it back to the room.
46. By Mr. Moriarty: You told Mr. Nealds that the man had applied for it, in order to get it back? Yes.
47. And it was then returned back again by Mr. Nealds? Yes.
48. By Capt. Mayne: Mr. Nealds returned the coat to you? Yes.
49. What did you do with it? I put it in the lost property room.
50. Who took it out again? Mr. Nealds asked for it.
51. Who took it out? I suppose I handed it to him; he told me to let him have the coat again, or words to that effect.
52. By Mr. Owen: Your evidence is not distinct as to this matter—what was the first step that was taken about these coats? Do you mean when he first had it?
53. No, but the investigation of the books in the lost property room—what was the first step taken? I cannot say.
54. Did you begin it? No, I did not.
55. Who did? Mr. Owen spoke to me.
56. What did he do? He looked at the book, and asked me where was the oilskin coat.
57. But merely looking at the book would not tell him where the coat was? No; he asked me where the coat was.
58. And you said? That Mr. Nealds had got it.
59. You stated before that Mr. Owen, when he examined the books, asked you did not Mr. Nealds get two coats—which is correct? Something—the same thing—I don't see the difference.
60. Which of the two statements is correct? Mr. Owen asked me if Mr. Nealds had not got the two coats out of the lost property room, and then he looked at the book; I cannot say whether it was before or afterwards.
61. Do you know how Mr. Owen came to know that Mr. Nealds had got these two coats? I cannot say how it was.
62. Were you ever informed how he knew it? I never was told it.
63. And you don't know? No.
64. By Mr. Moriarty: You did not inform him yourself? No.

65. By Mr. Owen: And when Mr. Owen asked you if Mr. Nealds had taken out two coats, what did you say? I said he had.
66. And that was all? Yes, with the exception of the report.
67. And that was all that passed between you? Yes, all between me, I believe, and Mr. Owen.
68. Does not Mr. Nealds sometimes, when going out of a wet night, borrow a coat of the porters or any official that may be about? Yes, he has had a coat from me.
69. You say you don't remember the words distinctly—are you positive he did not say "throw me a coat," or "lend me a coat"? Those were not the words; it was something similar to, "Have you got an oilskin coat out of the lost property room?"
70. Are you quite sure he did not make use of the words I said? I knew the room he meant.
71. Then you are not positive as to the words? I will not swear it; I believe them to be the words nearly like what Mr. Nealds said.
72. By Mr. Moriarty: Mr. Nealds saw from where the coat came? I am sure he knew where it came from.
73. By Mr. Owen: Can you recollect how often Mr. Nealds has worn the coat? No.
74. Did you examine the coat when you gave it to him? No.
75. Had you examined it before? Yes.
76. Do you know the kind of coat, whether it was a good coat or a bad coat? Yes, it was a good coat.
77. Are you certain that the coat was not torn at the time? No, it was not.
78. If it were torn down the back, would you have known it? I should have seen it if it had been torn.
79. How often did Mr. Nealds wear this coat? Several times.
80. What do you mean by several times? It may be twelve or twenty times.
81. You have seen him wear it all those times? I have seen him wear it several times.
82. Have you seen it since Mr. Nealds returned it? It is not returned.
83. Do you know where it is now? No, I don't.

Edward Owen called in and examined:—

84. By the Chairman: You are station master at Sydney? Yes.
85. You made a report about a couple of coats that were missing? I did.
86. When you made the report, where were the coats? I cannot say; they are not in the station.
87. Had you seen them a little before you made the report? I cannot say to seeing the same coats. I have seen Mr. Nealds wear the same description of coat.
88. Why, when you made the report, if you had not seen the coats—why did you say "they were handed over to Mr. Nealds, and worn by him ever since; one is worn out, and the other is being made use of"? I got that information from Higgs.
89. What information? That one was worn and the other was being worn.
90. Why did you say "one is worn out"? Because I got the information from Higgs that Mr. Nealds had got a new coat to replace the other; so I was informed.
91. When you asked Higgs about the coat, what did he say? He gave me all the information that is there. I asked him where the coats were, and he said he handed them to Mr. Nealds. I said to him, "Was it true, as reported to me, that Mr. Nealds had worn one, and had got another?" The reason I said this was because I had heard the guards talking of his wearing a coat; this was immediately before his suspension, and I asked Higgs if it were true that he had got this coat.
92. Higgs told you that he had given these coats to Mr. Nealds? Yes.
93. Why did you say in your reports that Mr. Nealds had stolen the coats? I did not say it.
94. (Chairman read from report.) When you made this report Higgs told you that he gave the coats to Mr. Nealds, and yet you say they were stolen from out of the lost property room? No, I consider it stealing.
95. By Mr. Owen: What position do you hold in the station at present? Station master.
96. Are you not locum tenens for Mr. Nealds, traffic manager? I am.
97. And if Mr. Nealds is deposed you will step into his shoes? I cannot say.

Minute Paper, 62/2888.

The Chairman read the Report of Board of Inquiry (Capt. Ward), and Evidence.

Acting Traffic Manager to Commissioner.

21 October, 1862.

On account of the frequent robberies taking place at this station, I had occasion to request the police to visit the station yard at night, and apprehend any person who could not satisfactorily account for himself, who might be found on the premises. Last evening, a man, named Adnum, formerly employed here, and who was suspended some time ago, and was suspected for having something to do with these robberies, was found by the police in a first class carriage, was taken into custody by them, and will be brought before the Bench this morning.

EDWD. OWEN.

Re-submit when case disposed of.—J.R., 22/10/62.

Mr. Owen, for further report.

The Magistrates discharged this man, with a caution.—EDWD. OWEN.

For information.—24/10/62.—J.R.

Seen, but I think this statement argues great negligence in the railway watchman.—W.M.A., 24/10/62.

Mr. Owen, 24/10/62.—J.R.

Seen.—EDWD. OWEN, 25/10/62.

Mr. Owen, for further report. Some steps surely are necessary to be taken on the Minister's minute, especially as the man is frequently asleep on duty.

Mr. Owen.

R.M. 6/11/62.

The watchman is certainly too old a man to be efficient, and I would recommend his removal, providing another place could be found to suit him.

EDWD. OWEN.

Submitted.—J.R., 12/12/62.

Re-submit with arrangement proposed.—W.M.A., 12/12/62.

Callaghan

Callaghan, the gateman and watchman at Blacktown, is now hopelessly ill from paralysis. Ridley may perhaps be sent in his place, as the duties are very light, and he will receive the same pay as at Sydney. Fitzpatrick, who has been in the service a long time, is the best fitted to act as watchman at Sydney; he is an active intelligent man, and in every way trustworthy.

The Commissioner.

R. MOODY. 17/12/62.

Submitted, 18/12/62.—J.R.

Appd.—W.M.A., 18/12/62.

Mr. Owen to carry out.—R.M., 19/12/62.

Ridley is instructed to proceed to Blacktown, and Fitzpatrick to take his place. Will the Commissioner please say who is to succeed the latter?

EDWD. OWEN. 23/12/62.

As a very good able man is required, perhaps Simpson, who is on temporarily, had better be put on. Mr. Owen concurs.

R.M. 24/12/62.

Appd.—J.R., 29/12/62.

*St. Paul's, Redfern, Sydney,
12 January, 1863.*

My dear Mr. Cowper,

As Mr. Arnold is out of town, and as I know him but slightly, I have ventured to write to you, to beg your kindly interference in a matter where I and several other gentlemen who are cognizant of the circumstances, believe great injustice has been perpetrated. Some few weeks since an inquiry was instituted into the conduct of Mr. Nealds, the traffic manager on the railway, and with reference to one of the charges (that of drunkenness) a man named Ridley, who had been watchman for upwards of eight years, was called by Mr. Nealds to testify that he had never seen him intoxicated. As Ridley was going up to the room in which the Commission sat, he was met by Mr. Moody, the Chief Clerk in the Railway Department, and told "to mind what evidence he gave, for it might be worse for him," or some such words. The man gave his evidence according to his conscience. The result was, that within a very short time, the man, who had been a well-conducted and faithful servant ever since the railway was opened, to whose excellent character both Mr. Walsh and myself can bear ample testimony, receives notice, without any reason given or any cause of blame (or otherwise) assigned, that he is to leave Sydney and be a night watchman at Blacktown. By this arrangement he not only is separated from his family (a large one) and his own house, which he has acquired by honest industry, but is sent to a place where the accommodation is insufficient. The case has excited much commiseration here—I would say indignation—for the man is well known and respected. His wife was told at the office the other day, that he was too old for Sydney. In reply to this, I would state that he is only fifty, and in good health. To compel him to break up his house, to sell his little place at a disadvantage, to remove his children from school, to live in a place where there is no accommodation for his family, and no place of worship, or else to resign at a time when other situations are difficult to be procured—this is carrying out the Chief Clerk's intimidating threat with a vengeance! I hope you will excuse my troubling you, but my sense of justice has been so outraged in this matter, that I cannot refrain from having recourse to any step which may have the effect of reversing this decision.

I remain, &c.,

ALFRED H. STEPHEN.

The Hon. Charles Cowper.

12 January, 1863.

My dear Sir,

I do not suppose that this case is correctly put; but can you see whether there is any foundation for what is alleged?

J. Rae, Esq.

Yours truly,
CHARLES COWPER.

Mr. Moody for report.—As far as I remember, Ridley was censured by the Minister as guilty of great negligence, long before Mr. Nealds' enquiry took place.—J.R.

Had the Revd. Mr. Stephen applied at this office, it might probably have saved him the trouble of travelling out of his legitimate sphere, to attack me on a matter upon which, at best, he has to rely on mere hearsay.

Ridley is not efficient for the duty required at Sydney. He is neither sufficiently intelligent, or active. Numerous robberies have been committed, and it has long been under consideration what to do with Ridley, as he has not shewn that aptitude necessary, either for the prevention of robberies or the discovery of the thieves; in fact he has in no instance, that I can remember, given the slightest assistance or clue to enable any case to be followed up.

The papers in reference to his removal are herewith. His removal had nothing whatever to do with any evidence given, or any matter connected therewith.

The papers are the best answer I can give.

Ridley certainly was never threatened by me. The day he was sent for I was called out from the Board Room, and found him in my room; he was in a very nervous and excited state, and he asked me what was wanted of him; I replied, "I cannot tell you what you may be asked, but you have got to tell the truth," upon that, I took Ridley in to the Board—I did not meet him upon the stairs, nor did I hold out any threat—I had not time to do so.

R. MOONEY, 12/1/63.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 12 January, 1863.*

My dear Sir,

The accompanying papers will, I think, convince you that Mr. Stephen has been, to say the least of it, rather rash in his statements with reference to the course of Ridley's dismissal. So little could the examination referred to have influenced me, that I did not even know that Ridley had been examined before the Board.

The Hon. Charles Cowper.

Yours truly,
JOHN RAE.

Mr. Stephen's rejoinder herewith. So far satisfactory.—C.C.

St.

St. Paul's,
Thursday Evening,
15 January.

My dear Sir,

I have to thank you for your kind and prompt attention to a note which I wrote with some reluctance, and with some doubt, I admit, as to how far I was justified in doing so. In justice to myself, however, I would state that the representations made to me and to others were made so decidedly and so persistently, and in one or two particulars with such corroboration (as I then deemed it), that I felt I had certain ground to go on in writing as I did. I feel now that I have been misled, for I am bound to accept the disclaimer of intimidation on the part of a gentleman of Mr. Moody's standing and repute.

I do not, on the whole, regret that I wrote to you; first, because I am now in a position to contradict the very strong statements which have been made in this and in other matters to Mr. Moody's prejudice; since the correspondence you have forwarded shews a necessity (which I shall not disclose, as your letter to me is marked "private") for a change in several of the railway subordinates, Ridley included, and explains more than one act of apparent harshness.

Secondly—I do not regret that I wrote, because the correspondence has shewn me that no representations from any quarter, and no pressure, however pertinacious, should lead me to interfere in such matters.

I shall not do so again, for I clearly see that such interference, however well-meant, may put a minister of religion into a very undesirable position.

If anything in my letter has given pain to Mr. Moody, I retract it.

I do regret one thing, and that is that I have intruded on your valuable time.

I remain, &c.,

ALFRED H. STEPHEN.

The Hon. Chas. Cowper.

St. Paul's, Sydney,
19 January, 1863.

My dear Sir,

In reply to your note of this day's date, I have the honor to inform you that, in the first instance, Ridley himself was my informant, and to the fact that he had been threatened when about to give evidence in the investigation into Mr. Nealds' conduct, and also as to the threat being carried into execution. I wrote to you, but my letter was not acknowledged. (A few lines from you in reply would have saved some annoyance, I may observe in passing.) I subsequently received a partial corroboration of Ridley's statements from my friend, Mr. Owen, the barrister, who told me that he remembered Mr. Moody leaving the room directly Ridley's coming was announced. Afterwards, in the beginning of the last week, Mrs. Ridley called upon me and repeated a conversation she had had with Mr. Moody himself, in which he practically admitted the fact, by saying, alluding to Ridley, "Why did he have anything to do with"—or, "Why did he side with (or some such expression) with a good-for-nothing fellow who received stolen goods?" viz., Mr. Nealds, as Mrs. Ridley explained the allusion to me, an allusion which she said was not denied in a second interview with Mr. Moody. At Mrs. Ridley's earnest and pressing solicitation, and believing in all this testimony, that a great injustice had been perpetrated, and the freedom of conscience most improperly interfered with, I felt warranted, as the mouth-piece of these poor people, who naturally look to their minister as their protector and friend, to write to Mr. Cowper as the only person able to interfere, with whom I was on terms of personal friendship; and the more so as an old acquaintance, whom I have always respected and still do respect (notwithstanding his expressed opinion that I have been rash, &c.), took no notice of a private letter I had sent him on the subject. I find from correspondence sent me very kindly by Mr. Cowper, that Mr. Moody denies Ridley's allegation. This is of course enough for me, though Ridley, I may state, persists in his assertion. I will make no "rash" statement in this letter, but will simply say that I believe that were the opportunity offered him, Ridley could triumphantly meet the accusations made against him in Mr. Moody's minute. He is blamed in Adnum's matter. Why? He is the person who gave Adnum into custody. He is blamed for not being sufficiently sharp and active to prevent or to discover robberies. All the robberies that have been committed at the station in Sydney, have been, I am assured on good authority second to none in this matter, committed in the day-time, and Ridley was night watchman.

However, I have no wish to travel any further from "my legitimate sphere" (as Mr. Moody has expressed it); I may have been misled, but nevertheless I did not take up the matter lightly, nor without careful enquiry from Ridley, and sifting (as far as I was able) his evidence. I have made up my mind, as I told another complainant only on Saturday, to be deaf to any further representations of alleged harsh and arbitrary treatment on the part of the railway authorities.

The complainants (and they seem to be a legion) must fight their own battles, for however much their (apparently) truthful statements may excite my sympathy, or arouse my indignation, I have no desire to expose myself to the annoyance of finding either that I have been imposed upon or that I am an unavailing advocate; still less have I any wish needlessly to lose an old friend like yourself, or to make an enemy of a person who is a perfect stranger, and of whom I have no personal knowledge whatever—Mr. Moody.

John Rae, Esq.

I remain, &c.,

ALFRED H. STEPHEN.

Minute—Commissioner for Railways to Minister for Public Works.

As it appears from the Revd. Mr. Stephen's note of 19th instant, that Ridley himself was his informant, as to the cause of his removal, and as his statement is shewn to be without foundation, I recommend that his services be dispensed with.—J.R., 20/1/63.

Appd.—W.M.A., 20/1/63.

Mr. Owen.—Seen, Edwd. Owen, 31/1/63.

Attached to every tender there must be a memorandum, signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within seven days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £50, for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 1 May, 1862.*

TENDERS will be received at this office, until noon on Tuesday, the 20th instant, from persons willing to contract for the supply of the following articles required for railway purposes:—

1. Clydesdale Chemical Company's patent mineral grease ..	12 tons.
2. Spring steel 3 x ½ (Camnells) .. .. .	1 ton.
3. Low Moor angle iron 4½ x 4½ x 1¼ at root .. .. .	2 tons.
4. Low Moor rivet iron ¾ round .. .. .	10 cwt.
5. Semaphore lamp chimneys.. .. .	50 doz.

Tenders to be endorsed "Tender for Railway Stores."

Specification and form of tender may be seen, and further particulars obtained, at the Railway Office, Phillip-street, or at the Railway Store, Redfern Station.

Attached to every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event, that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within seven days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £50 for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

*Sydney, No. 442, George-street,
20 May, 1862.*

Sir,

Referring to advertisement of 1st instant, calling for tenders for the supply of articles for railway purposes, we hereby offer to supply the best spring steel at 42s. per cwt., and best scrap rivet iron at £29 per ton.

The Honorable W. M. Arnold.

We have, &c.,
P. N. RUSSELL & CO.

THE only tender is from Messrs. P. N. Russell, for spring steel, at 42s. per cwt., and rivet iron at 29s. per cwt. The spring steel imported by the Commissioner cost with all expenses 24s. only, and rivet iron can be imported at, say 18s. Under these circumstances it would perhaps be as well to indent for the whole of these stores for which tenders have been invited.

Submitted.—J.R.

R. MOODY,
21/5/62.

Order by present mail, and decline tender.—W.M.A., 21/5/62.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 22 May, 1862.*

Gentlemen,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tender, dated the 20th instant, for the supply of spring steel and rivet iron for railway purposes, has been declined by the Government.

Messrs. P. N. Russell & Co.,
Sydney.

I am, &c.,
JOHN RAE,
Under Secretary.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 29 August, 1862.*

WAGON TYRES.

TENDERS will be received at this office until noon on Tuesday, the 9th September next, from persons willing to contract for the supply of 400 of the best Lowmoor iron carriage and wagon tyres, 9 feet 8 inches in length; 400 of the best Lowmoor iron carriage and wagon tyres, 11 feet in length; 200 solid axles, 7 feet ¾ inch in length; 200 solid axles, 7 feet 2⅜ inches in length.

Plan, specification, and form of tender may be seen, and further particulars obtained, at the Railway Office, Phillip-street.

Tenders, which are to be endorsed, "Tender for Wagon Tyres," must state the time within which it is proposed to complete the work, and at the foot of every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event, that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor, in Sydney, within seven days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £550, for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

*458, George-street, Sydney,
9 September, 1862.*

Sir,

I beg to tender for the undermentioned wagon tyres required for the public service. Amount, £6,897 sterling. Time to complete contract, eighteen months from date of tender.

The Honorable the Minister for Public Works.

I have, &c.,
J. B. HOLDSWORTH.

I propose as security for fulfilment of same, John Sands, stationer, George-street; Henry Chatto, auctioneer, George-street.

Sydney, 9 September, 1862.

Sir,

We hereby tender to supply the wagon tyres and axles, in accordance with plans and specifications seen by us, and to deliver the whole at the railway stores, Redfern, within twelve months from date of acceptance of tender for the following, viz. :—

(400) four hundred tyres, 9 feet 8 inches long, and (400) four hundred tyres, 11 feet long, for the sum of £4,161 sterling.

(200) two hundred axles, 7 feet 0 $\frac{3}{4}$  inch long, and (200) two hundred axles, 7 feet 2 $\frac{3}{4}$  inch long, for the sum of £2,311 sterling—in all, £6,472.

Should our tender be accepted, we will sign the necessary bond and give the required security.

The Hon. W. M. Arnold, M.L.A.,
Department of Public Works,
Sydney.

We have, &c.,
P. N. RUSSELL & CO.

Sydney, 9 September, 1862.

Sir,

We hereby tender, in accordance with the advertisement in the Government Gazette, of the 29th August, 1862, to supply the following, in accordance with the plan and specification exhibited at the Railway Office, for the prices following, viz. :—

400 × 3 × 36 = 2,160 0 0
400 × 3 $\frac{3}{4}$  × 36 = 2,520 0 0
400 × 3 × 35 = 2,100 0 0
6,780 0 0

400 of the best Lowmoor iron carriage and wagon tyres, 9 feet 8 inches in length, at (36s.) thirty-six shillings per cwt.

400 of the best Lowmoor iron carriage and wagon tyres, 11 feet length, at (36s.) thirty-six shillings per cwt.

200 solid axles, "bowling iron," 7 feet 0 $\frac{3}{4}$  inch in length, at (35s.) thirty-five shillings per cwt.

200 solid axles, "bowling iron," 7 feet 2 $\frac{3}{4}$  inches in length, at (35s.) thirty-five shillings per cwt.

We undertake to deliver the above within twelve months from the time we receive notice of the acceptance of the tender.

To the Under Secretary for Public Works,
&c., &c., &c.,
Sydney.

We have, &c.,
OPPENHEIMER & CO.
p. L. SAMUEL.

Railway Engineer-in-Chief's Report.

Supplies for railway purposes,—

Wagon tyres.
Axles.

The following tenders have been received :—

No. 1.	J. B. Holdsworth..	..	..	..	..	£6,897	0	0
No. 2.	P. N. Russell ..	..	..	..	..	6,472	0	0
No. 3.	Oppenheimer & Co.	..	..	..	..	6,780	0	0

I cannot recommend the acceptance of the above tenders for the supply of tyres, &c., as these articles can be imported by the Government for £5,890.

J.W.—17/9/62.

Submitted, 17/9/62.—J.R.

Approved—Let the indent be prepared for next mail.—W.M.A., 18/9/62.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 12 December, 1862.

RAILWAY TICKETS.

TENDERS will be received at this office, until noon on Tuesday, the 16th instant, from persons willing to contract for the supply of Railway Tickets, as under—100,000 plain blue.

200,000 " green.
200,000 " drab.

Tenders to be endorsed "Tender for Railway Tickets."

Further particulars may be obtained at the Railway Office, Phillip-street.

Tenders must state the time within which it is proposed to supply the tickets; and attached to every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event, that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within seven days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £50 for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 24 November, 1862.

WROUGHT IRON GIRDERS, NEPEAN BRIDGE, PENRITH.

TENDERS will be received at this office, until noon on Tuesday, the 16th December, from persons willing to contract for supplying and erecting the wrought iron girders for the bridge over the River Nepean at Penrith.

Tenders to be endorsed "Tender for Wrought Iron Girders, Nepean Bridge, Penrith."

Plan, specification, and form of tender may be seen, and further particulars obtained, at the Railway Office, Phillip-street, on and after Tuesday, the 2nd December.

Attached to every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event, that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within fourteen days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £5,000 for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

NOTE.—The time within which tenders can be received at this office for the above has been extended to noon of Tuesday, the 23rd instant.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 12th December, 1862.

442, George-street,
23 December, 1862.

WE, P. N. Russell & Co., hereby propose to supply and erect the whole of the wrought and cast iron work required for the Bridge over the River Nepean, at Penrith, in strict accordance with the plans and specification, for the sum of fifty-four thousand one hundred and seventy-eight pounds sterling (£54,178.)

P. N. RUSSELL & Co.

Sydney, 23 December, 1862.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we hereby undertake to find satisfactory security for the due performance of the contract, and to have the necessary bond executed within seven days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender.

P. N. RUSSELL & Co.

To the Commissioner for Railways.

Tender for Iron Girders.

No. 1, Napoleon-street,
Sydney, 23 December, 1862.

Sir,

I hereby propose to supply and erect the whole of the wrought iron work required for the Bridge over the River Nepean, at Penrith, in strict accordance with the plans and specification, for the sum of fifty-six thousand three hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling (£56,325.)

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM TYLER.

No. 1, Napoleon-street,
Sydney, 23 December, 1862.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, I agree to find satisfactory security, or to deposit five thousand pounds sterling (£5,000) in the hands of the Government, for securing the due performance of the work.

WILLIAM TYLER.

To the Commissioner for Railways,
Department of Public Works.

Sydney, 22 December, 1862.

Sir,

We hereby tender to supply and erect the wrought iron girders for the Bridge over the River Nepean, at Penrith, in accordance with the plans and specification, for the sum of (£80,000) eighty thousand pounds.

We have, &c.,

OPPENHEIMER & Co.,

Per L. & S. SAMUEL,
Agents.

To the Honorable
The Secretary for Public Works,
&c., &c., &c.
Sydney.

In the event of the above tender being accepted, we hereby agree to become sureties for the due performance of the contract, and undertake to execute a bond to Her Majesty, in the penal sum of (£5,000) five thousand pounds for securing such performance, within fourteen days from the usual notification of such acceptance.

LEWIS SAMUEL.
SAUL SAMUEL.

Railway Engineer-in-Chief's Report.

Supply of wrought iron girders for the Nepean Bridge.

The following tenders have been received:—

No. 1. P. N. Russell & Co.	.. .. .	£54,178	0	0
No. 2. William Tyler	.. .. .	56,325	0	0
No. 3. Oppenheimer & Co. (L. and S. Samuel, Agents)	.. .. .	80,000	0	0

No. 1 tender is at the rate of, per ton, £45 2s.

No. 2 do. do. £46 18s.

No. 3 do. do. £66 13s.

The cost of the bridge over the Nepean, at Menangle, is at the rate of £29 per ton, but this does not include freight, insurance, or carriage along the line to Menangle. I consider that £36 per ton would be a fair price for the work, and therefore cannot recommend the acceptance of any of the tenders sent in for this bridge. The total weight of iron work in the bridge is about 1,200 tons.

J. W.—8/1/63.

Submitted.—Indent may now be sent to England, I presume?—13/1/63.—J.R.

Approved.—W.M.A.—14/1/63.

Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 20 January, 1863.

Gentlemen,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tender, dated the 22nd ultimo, for the supply of wrought iron girders for the Nepean Bridge, has been declined by the Government.

Messrs. Oppenheimer & Co.,
Care of Messrs. L. & S. Samuel, Sydney.

I am, &c.,

GERALD HALLIGAN,
(For the Under Secretary.)

Department

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 20 January, 1863.*

Sir,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tender, dated the 23rd ultimo, for the supply of wrought iron girders for the Nepean Bridge, has been declined by the Government.

Mr. W. Tyler,
1, Napoleon-street.

I am, &c.,
GERALD HALLIGAN,
(For the Under Secretary.)

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 20 January, 1863.*

Gentlemen,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tender, dated the 23rd ultimo, for the supply of wrought iron girders for the Nepean Bridge, has been declined by the Government.

Messrs. P. N. Russell & Co.,
442, George-street.

I am, &c.,
GERALD HALLIGAN,
(For the Under Secretary.)

Sydney, 11 February, 1863.

Sir,

Having re-considered our tender to supply and erect the wrought and cast iron work for the Bridge over the River Nepean, we now offer to supply and erect the same in accordance with plans and specification, the Government taking the entire risk of floods, for the sum of £50,000 sterling.

As our calculations are based upon the supposition that the wrought iron work will cost £22 per ton in England, should we succeed in procuring the said iron work at a cheaper rate per ton, we will allow the Government the entire benefit of the reduction in price.

In the event of the above tender being accepted, we will find the necessary security, and sign the bonds required by the Government.

The Hon. W. M. Arnold, M.L.A.,
Department of Public Works, Sydney.

We have, &c.,
P. N. RUSSELL & Co.

I think the offer made much too high, and cannot recommend its acceptance.—J.W., 17/2/63.
Submitted.—J.R., 17/2/63.

Inform, and order from England, as recommended by Mr. Whitton.—W.M.A., 17/2/63.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 20 February, 1863.*

Gentlemen,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tender, dated the 11th instant, to supply and erect the wrought and cast iron girders for the Bridge over the Nepean, for the sum therein named, has been declined by the Government.

Messrs. P. N. Russell & Co.,
Sydney.

I am, &c.,
GERALD HALLIGAN,
(For the Under Secretary.)

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 30 January, 1863.*

To Contractors and others.

PERMANENT WAY MATERIALS, FOR RAILWAY PURPOSES.

TENDERS will be received at this office until noon, on Tuesday, the 17th February, from persons willing to contract for the supply of rails, chairs, fish-plates, bolts, nuts, and spikes, for seventy-six miles of railway.

Tenders to be endorsed "Tender for Rails, Chairs, &c.," as the case may be.

Plans, specifications, and forms of tender, may be seen, and further particulars obtained, at the Railway Office, Phillip-street, on and after Tuesday, the 3rd February.

Attached to every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two responsible persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking, in that event, that they will severally execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within fourteen days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of one-tenth of the amount of contract, for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Sydney, 16 February, 1863.

Sir,

We hereby propose to supply 393 tons, 6 cwt. of fish-plates, in strict accordance with the plan and specification, and subject to all the conditions and stipulations contained therein, at the following prices, viz. :—

269 tons, 2 cwt., to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Sydney, New South Wales, at the price of £11 10s. per ton.

124 tons, 4 cwt., to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Newcastle, New South Wales, at the price of £12 per ton.

OPPENHEIMER & Co.,
Melbourne.
Per L. SAMUEL,
Agent.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor, Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £500 for securing such performance.

To the Commissioner for Railways, Sydney.

LEWIS SAMUEL, Sydney.
SAUL SAMUEL, Sydney.

Sydney,

Sydney, 16 February, 1863.

Sir,
 We hereby propose to supply 3,192 tons of chairs, in strict accordance with the plan and specification, and subject to all the conditions and stipulations contained therein, at the following prices, viz. :—
 2,184 tons, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Sydney, New South Wales, at the price of £7 15s. per ton.
 1,008 tons, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Newcastle, New South Wales, at the price of £8 5s. per ton.

OPPENHEIMER & Co.,
 Melbourne.
 Per L. SAMUEL,
 Agent.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor, Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £2,500 for securing such performance.

To the Commissioner for Railways, Sydney.

LEWIS SAMUEL, Sydney.
 SAUL SAMUEL, Sydney.

Sydney, 16 February, 1863.

Sir,
 We hereby propose to supply 8,968 tons of double-headed rails, in strict accordance with the plan and specification, and subject to all conditions and stipulations contained therein, at the following prices, viz. :—
 6,136 tons, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Sydney, New South Wales, at the price of £9 15s. per ton.
 2,832 tons, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Newcastle, New South Wales, at the price of £10 5s. per ton.

OPPENHEIMER & Co.,
 Per L. SAMUEL,
 Melbourne.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we do hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver, at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £3,000 for securing such performance.

The Commissioner for Railways, Sydney.

LEWIS SAMUEL, Sydney.
 SAUL SAMUEL, Sydney.

Sydney, 16 February, 1863.

Sir,
 We hereby propose to supply 85 tons 10 cwt. of bolts and nuts, and 239 tons spikes, in strict accordance with the plan and specification, subject to all the conditions and stipulations contained therein, at the following prices, viz. :—
 58 tons 10 cwt. of fish bolts and nuts, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Sydney, New South Wales, at the price of £21 per ton.
 163 tons 10 cwt. of spikes, do. do., at the price of £22 per ton.
 27 tons of fish bolts and nuts, to be delivered free of all charges at the railway station, Newcastle, New South Wales, at the price of £21 10s. per ton.
 75 tons 10 cwt of spikes, do. do. do., at the price of £22 10s. per ton.

OPPENHEIMER & Co.,
 Melbourne.
 Per L. SAMUEL, Agent.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £750 for securing such performance.

The Commissioner for Railways, Sydney.

LEWIS SAMUEL, Sydney.
 SAUL SAMUEL, Sydney.

Railway Engineer-in-Chief's Report.

Supply of permanent way materials for railway purposes.

THE only tenders received are from Messrs. Oppenheimer & Co., of Melbourne.

From the statement enclosed, it appears that if the offer of Messrs.

Oppenheimer & Co. be accepted, the cost would be .. .. .	£125,783	8	0
If ordered by the Government, from England direct, the cost would be .. .. .	118,270	2	0

Loss to the Government .. .. .	£7,513	6	0
--------------------------------	--------	---	---

I recommend that the offer be not accepted, but that the articles be ordered by the Government direct from England.—J.W. 24/2/63.

Submitted.—J.R. 25/2/63.

Appd.—W.M.A. 26/2/63.

Department of Public Works,
 Sydney, 28 February, 1863.

Gentlemen,

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that your tenders (four in number), dated the 16th instant, for the supply of permanent way materials for railway purposes, have been declined by the Government.

Messrs. Oppenheimer & Co.,
 Care of Messrs. L. and S. Samuel,
 Sydney.

I am, &c.,
 GERALD HALLIGAN,
 (For the Under Secretary.)

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINES FOR PUBLIC RAILWAYS.

Copy of Advertisement in Government Gazette.Department of Public Works, Sydney, 30 March, 1863.To Contractors and others—Locomotive Engines.

TENDERS will be received at this office, until Tuesday, the 28th April, at noon, from persons willing to contract for the supply of eighteen locomotive engines, for the Northern, Southern, and Western Lines. Specifications and forms of tender may be seen, and further particulars obtained, at the Railway Office, Phillip-street.

Tenders are to be indorsed "Tender for Locomotive Engines."

Attached to every tender there must be a memorandum signed by the party tendering, and two approved persons as sureties, agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of the tender being accepted, and undertaking in that event that they will severally execute and deliver, at the Office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, within fourteen days from the usual notification of acceptance, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £6,000, for securing such performance, otherwise the tender will not be taken into consideration.

W. M. ARNOLD.

Form of Tender for Locomotive Engines.

I HEREBY propose to supply the goods engines required for the Southern, Western, and Northern Railways, to be constructed at the works of _____ in strict accordance with the specification, and to the satisfaction of the inspecting Engineer, at the following prices, viz. :—

6 (six) locomotive goods engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free of all charges, for the sum of _____ each.

3 (three) locomotive goods engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Honeysuckle Point, Newcastle Railway Station, free of all charges, for the sum of _____ each.

Name
Address
Date

To the Commissioner for Railways.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver, at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £3,000, for securing such performance.

Name
Address
Name
Address

Form of Tender for Locomotive Engines.

I HEREBY propose to supply the passenger engines required for the Southern and Northern Railways, to be constructed at the works of _____ in strict accordance with the specification, and to the satisfaction of the inspecting Engineer, at the following prices, viz. :—

3 (three) locomotive passenger engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free of all charges, for the sum of _____ each.

3 (three) locomotive passenger engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Honeysuckle Point, Newcastle Railway Station, free of all charges, for the sum of _____ each.

Name
Address
Date

To the Commissioner for Railways.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £2,000, for securing such performance.

Name
Address
Name
Address

Form of Tender for Locomotive Engines.

I, _____ hereby propose to supply the passenger engines for the Western Railway, to be constructed at the works of _____ in strict accordance with the specification, and to the satisfaction of the inspecting Engineer, at the following prices, viz. :—

3 (three) locomotive passenger engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free of all charges, for the sum of _____ each.

Name
Address
Date

To the Commissioner for Railways.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £1,000, for securing such performance.

Name
Address
Name
Address

Tenders—

Tenders—Eighteen Locomotives.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 28 April, 1863.*

The tender for the undermentioned work, one in number, is referred to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, for report.

Supply of eighteen locomotive engines for the Government Railways.

B.C.—JOHN RAE.

Mr. Fowler is not in a position to carry out the offer he has made, and I therefore recommend that his tender be not accepted.

J. W.—1/5/63.

Submitted. 2/5/63.—J.R.

Inform Mr. Fowler that upon his depositing £6,000, either in cash or Government debentures, within ten days, his tender will be accepted, and the bond prepared for signature.

W. M. A.—4/5/63.

To the Under Secretary for Public Works.

*Toogood's Hotel, Pitt and King Streets,
Sydney, 28 April, 1863.*

Sir,

I, Charles Fowler, hereby propose to supply the passenger engines for the Southern and Northern Railways, to be constructed at the works of Messrs. Sharp, Stewart & Co., Manchester, in strict accordance with specification, and to the satisfaction of the inspecting Engineer, at the following prices, viz. :—

- 3 (three) locomotive passenger engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free from all charges, for the sum of £2,880 each.
- 3 (three) locomotive passenger engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Honeysuckle Point, Newcastle Railway Station, for the sum of £2,930 each.
- 6 (six) locomotive goods engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free from all charges, for the sum of £2,980 each.
- 3 (three) locomotive goods engines, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Honeysuckle Point, free from all charges, for the sum of £3,030 each.
- 3 (three) locomotive passenger engines (bogies), for the Western Railway, to be delivered at the locomotive works, Sydney Railway Station, free from all charges, for the sum of £2,990 each.

Should the foregoing tender be accepted, we the undersigned do hereby agree to be responsible for the due performance of the contract; and we hereby undertake, within fourteen days from the date of the notification of the acceptance of the said tender, to execute and deliver, at the office of the Crown Solicitor in Sydney, a bond to Her Majesty in the penal sum of £6,000, for securing such performance.

Name	JOHN WHITE,
Address	Clarence Breakwater Works.
Name	DANL. WILLIAMS,
Address	St. John's College, Newtown.

N.B.—Should these sureties be objected to, I am prepared with others, or will deposit cash if required.

C. FOWLER.

Will Mr. White be good enough to state whether he authorized Mr. Fowler to use his name as surety?

14/5/63.—J. R.

I never authorized Mr. Fowler to submit my name as surety; nor did I know that he had done so, until informed of the fact by Mr. Rae.

14/5/63.—JOHN WHITE.

Under Secretary for Public Works to Charles Fowler, Esq.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 7 May, 1863.*

Sir,

With reference to your tender, dated the 28th ultimo, for the supply of eighteen locomotive engines for the Government Railways, I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that upon your depositing as security the sum of £6,000, either in cash or Government debentures, within ten days from this date, your tender for this service will be accepted, and the bond prepared for signature.

I have, &c.,
JOHN RAE.

Charles Fowler, Esq., to Secretary for Public Works.

*Toogood's Hotel, Pitt and King Streets,
Sydney, 9 May, 1863.*

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 7th instant, accepting my tender for the supply of eighteen locomotive engines for the Government Railways, upon depositing as security the sum of £6,000, either in cash or Government debentures, within ten days.

The terms of the advertisement calling for tenders, and the form of tender attached to the specification for these eighteen locomotives, being that the party tendering should find two approved persons as sureties, to execute a bond within fourteen days from the usual notification of acceptance, and although cash security to one-half the amount of the bond has in some cases been advertised for, I am not aware that it has been hitherto insisted upon in any Government contracts. I trust it will not be so in my case, but that the tender will be accepted according to the terms of the advertisement.

The

The alteration of the terms of the advertisement would, of course, have made a difference in the amount of my tender.

I may remark, that it is my intention not only to complete the contract within the time, but to have the best description of work. As the engines are well designed, I should like them to be superior to any yet imported to these Colonies.

Awaiting your reply,—

I have, &c.,
CHARLES FOWLER.

Charles Fowler, Esq., to Secretary for Public Works.

*Toogood's Hotel, Pitt and King Streets,
Sydney, 13 May, 1863.*

Sir,

I wish to add to my letter of the 9th instant, that I am authorized by Mr. Willis, of the firm of Willis, Merry & Co., to offer their names as sureties for the due performance of the contract for the eighteen locomotives for the Government Railways.

I have, &c.,
CHARLES FOWLER.

Will Mr. Willis be good enough to inform me whether the firm of Willis, Merry & Co. are prepared to become surety or deposit cash to the amount of £6,000, for the due performance of Mr. Fowler's contract, if accepted?—J.R.

We are not prepared to comply with the above condition.—W. M. & Co.

Charles Fowler, Esq., to Secretary for Public Works.

*Toogood's Hotel, Pitt and King Streets,
Sydney, 18 May, 1863.*

Sir,

I am requested by Mr. Daniel Williams to inform you, that the sum required to be deposited, as security for the due performance of the contract to supply eighteen locomotives for the Government Railways, is lying in the London Chartered Bank, and ready to be handed over to the Government as soon as the necessary documents are ready for signature.

This would have been arranged several days ago, if a reply had been sent to my letter of the 9th instant.

I have, &c.,
CHARLES FOWLER.

Would the Manager of the London Chartered Bank have any objection to inform me whether £6,000 has been lodged by Mr. Williams for the purpose stated in this letter?—J. RAE.—19/5/63.

The Manager states that there is not that amount to the credit of Mr. Williams, neither is there any direction to transfer any amount.—19/5/63.—G. H.

Mr. Williams to Under Secretary for Public Works.

*St. John's College,
Newtown, 18 May, 1863.*

Sir,

I am called away to-day, on urgent business, to Melbourne, and have not completed my arrangements. Can Mr. Fowler's contract for the eighteen locomotives stand over until my return, which will be about ten days?

I have, &c.,
DANIEL WILLIAMS.

Under Secretary for Public Works to Charles Fowler, Esq.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 19 May, 1863.*

Sir,

With reference to your letter of the 9th instant, complaining of your being called upon to deposit the sum of £6,000 instead of providing sureties for the due performance of your contract, if accepted, for the supply of eighteen locomotive engines for the Government Railways, I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you, that the cash deposit in lieu of sureties was required in accordance with your own offer to that effect, contained in your tender dated the 23th ultimo, for the work in question; and that, as it now appears from your letter under reply, that you are unable to comply with this condition, and as there is otherwise reason to believe that you are unable to complete such a contract, and that your offer is not of a bona fide character, your tender is declined, and your name has been noted as ineligible for future Government contracts.

I have, &c.,
JOHN RAE.

NOTE.—This letter was detained, pending decision on subsequent communications from Mr. Fowler, and was despatched by authority on the 27th May, 1863.

Under Secretary for Public Works to Charles Fowler, Esq.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 20 May, 1863.*

Sir,

With reference to your letter of the 18th instant, I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to point out to you, that it is necessary that Mr. Williams should state, in his own handwriting, that he is willing to deposit in the Colonial Treasury the sum of £6,000, as security for the due fulfilment of your contract to supply eighteen locomotive engines for Government Railways, in the event of your tender being accepted by the Government.

2. I am therefore to request that you will furnish me with Mr. Williams' address, in order that I may communicate with him on the subject.

I have, &c.,
JOHN RAE.

Charles

Charles Fowler, Esq., to Secretary for Public Works.

*Toogood's Hotel, Pitt and King Streets,
Sydney, May 22, 1863.*

Sir,

With reference to your letter of the 20th instant, I beg to inform you that Mr. D. Williams left for the neighbouring Colony of Victoria, on Monday evening last. I have written to him to return at once, and have no doubt he will arrive here by the steamer first leaving Melbourne after receiving my communication. He can arrange with you respecting the deposit.

His address is—49, Stephen-street, Melbourne.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES FOWLER.

Mr. Williams to Under Secretary for Public Works.

*43, Stephen-street, Melbourne,
June 1, 1863.*

Sir,

In reference to the security required for the contract for supplying locomotives, I wish to be informed whether the Government will accept a deposit receipt for the amount on either Bank in Sydney; or, if debentures are required, whether new ones will be issued by my tendering for the amount in the usual way?

As I propose leaving here for Sydney, on Thursday next, your reply to this I will thank you to address to my office, St. John's College, Sydney.

I have, &c.,

DANIEL WILLIAMS.

Under Secretary for Public Works to Mr. Williams.

*Department of Public Works,
Sydney, 12 June, 1863.*

Sir,

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, from Melbourne, inquiring, with reference to your proposed security for the due performance of Mr. Fowler's offer to supply the Government with eighteen locomotives, I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you that Mr. Fowler's offer to perform this service has been declined, and that an order for the engines was sent to England by the last mail.

I have, &c.,

JOHN RAE.

Indent of Locomotive Engines.

*New South Wales,
Sydney, 21 May, 1863.*

Indent of locomotive engines ordered through Edward Hamilton, Esquire, Agent for the Colony of New South Wales.

To be landed in Sydney,—
6 goods engines.
6 passenger do.
To be landed at Newcastle,—
3 goods engines.
3 passenger do.

—
18
—

To be constructed in accordance with the details and specification forwarded to John Fowler, Esq., by this mail.

JOHN WHITTON.

Engineer-in-Chief for Railways to John Fowler, Esq.

*New South Wales, Railway Department,
Engineer's Office, Sydney, 21 May, 1863.*

My Dear Sir,

By this mail an indent has been forwarded to Edward Hamilton, Esq., for eighteen (18) locomotive engines; nine of which are for goods traffic, and the remaining nine for passenger traffic.

The engines are required for the following lines of railway, viz. :—

For the Southern line, three goods engines and three passenger engines.

For the Western line ditto ditto.

For the Northern line ditto ditto.

The engines for the Southern and Western lines to be delivered at Sydney, and those for the Northern line to be delivered at Newcastle.

The goods engines (nine in number) to be of the following description :—

Cylinders, inside	.. ..	18 inches diameter.
Stroke	.. ..	24 inches.
Wheels (6-coupled)	.. ..	4 feet diameter.
Extreme centres apart	.. ..	11 feet 6 inches.
Gauge of railway	.. ..	4 feet 8½ inches.

The tenders for these goods engines are to be on six wheels, with short centres, and are each to hold not less than 1,800 gallons of water.

A detailed specification for these engines is forwarded herewith, but you are at liberty to make any alteration in details which you may think desirable.

The passenger engines (nine in number) to be of the following description :—

Cylinders, outside	.. ..	18 inches diameter.
Stroke	.. ..	24 inches.
Wheels (4-coupled)	.. ..	5 feet 9 inches diameter.
Single bogie wheels	.. ..	3 feet diameter.
Weight on 4 coupled wheels to be not less than	.. ..	22 tons.
Centres apart of coupled wheels	.. ..	7 feet.

The tender to be on six wheels, and to hold 1,500 gallons of water.

These engines, both goods and passenger, are intended to work inclines of 1 in 30, and to pass freely round curves of 8 chains radius; and it will be advisable to have every part of each different class of engines, precisely alike, so that one set of duplicates will only be required for each class.

The engines are to be constructed, both with regard to materials and workmanship, in the best possible manner. To be provided with blow-off cocks, cylinder cocks, pet cocks, water gauges, ash pandampers, buffers, sand boxes, and a full set of tools, lamp-irons, lamps, and everything necessary to render them complete in every respect.

Yours, very faithfully,
JOHN WHITTON.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINES FOR PUBLIC RAILWAYS.

D. Williams, Esq., to Secretary for Public Works.

*St. John's College,
Sydney, 9 June, 1863.*

Sir,

In consequence of certain circumstances that have transpired in connection with the tender of Mr. C. Fowler for supplying locomotive engines, in which I was named as security, I feel called upon, in justice to myself, to state the following facts:—

When Mr. Fowler's tender was accepted, as appears by your letter to him of the 7th of May last, I was prepared to pay the amount of security, viz., £6,000, into the Treasury, in any form that might be decided upon, and within the time allowed; but, being suddenly called to Melbourne, and receiving no reply to my letter of the 18th ult., I presumed that, in accordance with my request contained therein, the matter was postponed; this would further appear by your letter to Mr. Fowler, of the 20th ult., in which you intimate that a document bearing my signature, and expressive of my willingness to pay the money, would be necessary, and you requested to be furnished with my address, in order that you might communicate with me on the subject. My address was accordingly furnished to you by Mr. Fowler, but no communication was received by me from your department. Notwithstanding that the unusual course had, moreover, been resorted to, of inquiring at the bank, on a date previous to your letter of the 20th ult., whether I was possessed of the money or not. I am not aware that it is customary for depositors to inform the Managers of banks of the special objects for which the money is deposited in their hands. Acting, however, under the belief that, in accordance with the terms of your letter of the 20th ult., which Mr. Fowler forwarded to me at Melbourne, you had written, and that by some means the letter had not come to hand, I wrote to you from that place, begging to be informed in what shape the money was to be lodged; to which I have not yet received a reply.

It was only late last night that I had the opportunity of perusing the whole of the correspondence, when the extraordinary letter of the 19th May, from your department, to Mr. Fowler, first came under my notice; this, in conjunction with the other circumstances of the case, appears to leave me no alternative but to withdraw from all further part or action in the matter.

I am, &c.,
DANIEL WILLIAMS.

A. Nos. 7 & 8.

(No. 1.)

*Department of Internal Communication,
Sydney, 9 October, 1858.*

Sir,

The extension of railways in this Colony rendering it necessary to procure from England larger quantities of rails, rolling stock, and other railway materials, this Government has had under its consideration what arrangements would be best calculated to obtain only the most suitable articles in every case, and to ensure that these should be inspected by a thoroughly responsible and competent person before being shipped from England.

2. The commercial business of this Government in London is entirely transacted by Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., in accordance with the terms detailed in the paper marked B, and transmitted herewith for your information; but from the particular character of railway stores, it has appeared to the Government desirable in procuring these, to unite with that firm a gentleman specially experienced in railway matters, and at the same time of independent position, and in this view the branch firm here have concurred.

3. A conversation which I had with you previous to leaving England left upon my mind the impression that you would be willing, with the sanction of the proper authorities, to undertake this duty; and I therefore submitted to this Government that the position you have so long held in the Railway Department of the Board of Trade eminently qualified you for its performance.

4. The Government have therefore moved His Excellency the Governor General to address by this mail a despatch to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, requesting that he would use his influence with the proper authorities to permit you to make the contracts for, to inspect, and to certify for railway materials required from England for this Colony; and the Government have instructed me to place myself in communication with you upon the subject, and to offer you the appointment.

5. The services required from you, and the discretionary powers for their performance, will be found detailed in the accompanying memorandum marked A.

6. The Government have left the amount of remuneration for these services to be determined by the Home authorities, on the understanding that the entire expense of obtaining railway stores from England, exclusive of that to be incurred by Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., for railway carriage, dock dues, Customs entry, &c., under the agreement with them, shall not exceed 1 per cent. of the value of the indents contracted for and inspected by you.

7. In all cases where your services are required, duplicate indents will be transmitted to Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., and yourself.

8. Where articles of a character not requiring special inspection are wanted, indents will be sent to Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co. alone, and that firm will be charged with the entire duty and responsibility of obtaining such articles.

9. Should any circumstances prevent your accepting the offer of this Government, you are requested to be so good as to appoint a civil engineer to perform the necessary duties in your stead, until this Government can transmit further instructions to Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co.

10. In this case, however, any contracts made are to be entered into by Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., and the engineer so appointed by you conjointly, but the entire responsibility of the proper inspection of the materials supplied is to rest upon the engineer.

I have, &c.,
B. H. MARTINDALE.

Capt. Galton, R.E.,
&c., &c., &c.

Department

(No. 2.)

*Department of Internal Communication,
Sydney, 9 October, 1858.*

Sir,

In reference to my letter, No. 1, of this date, I have the honor to transmit indents marked A, B, C, D, K, L, respectively, together with a plan and specification to accompany indent L, a memorandum marked D, and copies of my letters to Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., dated 10th September last and this day.

2. You will perceive that, by my letter to Messrs. Lloyd & Co., of 10th September, that they received instructions to make contracts at once, for the articles detailed in indents A, B, C, D, K, and for twenty-one out of the seventy miles of rails specified in indent L and memorandum D, and I presume they will have carried out those instructions before this communication reaches you.

3. By paragraph 2 of the same letter, Messrs. Lloyd & Co. were directed to provide in making the abovenamed contracts, that the materials supplied should be subject to such inspection and approval as the Government should think fit, the nature of which would be communicated to them by this mail.

4. Copies of this and of other communications addressed to you this day are therefore transmitted by this mail to Messrs. Lloyd & Co., so as to place them in full possession of the views of the Government relative to contracts for and the inspection of railway materials, and they have been requested to place themselves in communication with you as to the contracts they have already made in accordance with my letter of the 10th September, and as to your arrangements for the inspection of the materials so contracted for, and in reference to the contracts for the forty-nine miles of rails remaining to be contracted for out of the seventy miles named in indent L and memorandum D.

5. You will perceive that, by my letter of the 10th September, indents E, F, G, H, I, M, were transmitted to Messrs. Lloyd & Co. in addition to those abovenamed. These are, however, for articles which it is considered Messrs. Lloyd & Co. should take the entire responsibility of obtaining and inspecting, in accordance with paragraph 8 of my letter No. 1 of this day's date.

I have, &amp;c.,

B. H. MARTINDALE.

Capt. Galton, R.E.,

&amp;c., &amp;c., &amp;c.

*Department of Internal Communication,
Sydney, 9 October, 1863.*

Gentlemen,

In reference to paragraph 2 of my letter to you, of the 6th ultimo, I have the honor now to transmit, for your information and guidance, copies of the letters and memoranda transmitted this day to Capt. Galton, Royal Engineers, Secretary to the Railway Department of the Board of Trade, by which you will be placed in full possession of the views of this Government in reference to the contracts for and inspection of railway materials ordered from England.

In reference to paragraph 11 of memo. A, I have to request that, when contracts are entered into, and materials inspected by Capt. Galton, no payment on account of such materials shall be made until after the receipt from Capt. Galton of the certificate named therein; and in reference to paragraph 4 of my letter No. 2, to Capt. Galton, of this day's date, that you will be so good as to place yourselves in communication with that gentleman upon the subjects therein referred to.

I have also to request your special attention to paragraphs 6 and 9 of memorandum D, and paragraph 8 of letters 1 and 5 of No. 2 of this day's date, addressed to Capt. Galton.

I have, &amp;c.,

B. H. MARTINDALE.

Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, &amp; Co.,

Royal Exchange Buildings,
London.

A.

MEMORANDUM for the information and guidance of Capt. Galton, Royal Engineers, in reference to the Contracts for, and inspection of, railway materials, for the Government of New South Wales.

Department of Internal Communication,Sydney, 9 September, 1858.

1. The service requested from Capt. Galton is to make contracts for, and to inspect all, railway materials procured from England for the Government of New South Wales.

2. Capt. Galton is at liberty to make contracts either by special agreement, or by tenders procured from two or more eminent firms, or by tenders obtained by public competition; the object of the Government being to obtain a thoroughly good article at a fair market price.

3. Capt. Galton is at liberty to employ any professional or other assistance he may require; provided only that the entire expense connected with the obtaining contracts and the inspection of materials supplied, does not exceed 1 per cent. of the value of the indent contracted for.

4. Capt. Galton is at liberty to deviate from the plans and specifications furnished from this department, but the Government request this may never be done unless it be considered a matter of absolute necessity.

5. The character of the inspection should be such as to enable Capt. Galton to certify that the whole of the materials supplied are in accordance with the plans and specifications, or other documents attached to each contract, and with the contract itself.

6. It is necessary to observe, that the Government is under agreement with the firm of Lloyd, Beilby, & Co., of the Royal Exchange Buildings, London, to transact, through their instrumentality, all their commercial business; a copy of this agreement is transmitted herewith.

7. The Government have been in communication with the branch firm established in Sydney; and a copy of a letter from them, relative to the making of contracts and inspection of materials for railway purposes, is attached.

8. From this letter it will be seen that the firm, while concurring in the propriety of leaving the calling for and deciding upon tenders, and the inspection of the materials supplied, entirely in Capt. Galton's hands, desire to retain the right of communicating to parties tendering the decisions of that officer. To this the Government anticipate Capt. Galton will see no objection, and they leave it to that officer to settle this and other details requiring co-operation with Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co.

9. From such co-operation the Government anticipate Capt. Galton will derive great assistance, the more so as the payment for, and the shipment and assurance of, all materials, must be left entirely in the hands of Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co.

10. The Government consider that Capt. Galton's responsibility should cease with the inspection of the materials, and they suggest that Mr. Lloyd, or some agent of Mr. Lloyd's, should be present when the final inspection of any materials is made, with the view of leaving with that firm, after such final inspection, the entire responsibility of the safe delivery in this Colony of such materials.

11. Messrs. Lloyd, Beilby, & Co. have been requested to make no payment on account of any contract until after the receipt from you of such a certificate as is named in paragraph 5, except any contract should contain a clause warranting payment on account previous to any materials being supplied.

B. H. MARTINDALE.

Capt. Galton, Royal Engineers,
&c., &c., &c.,
London.

Railway

*Railway Branch,
Department of Internal Communication,
13 June, 1860.*

Sir,

I have the honor herewith to transmit an indent for rolling stock, machinery, and materials required for the service of the Railways of this Colony.

In reference to the passenger rolling stock, the whole should be of varnished teak, with elliptical steel buffer springs.

The composite carriages should, on account of the summer sun, have double roofs, similar to those of the stock sent out from England by Messrs. Wright, of Birmingham, about 1855, for the Sydney and Goulburn Railway. Great care should be taken to give all the ventilation possible. The second-class compartments should form the ends of each carriage, and provide accommodation for one row each of passengers only, the centre of each carriage being formed into a first-class saloon, with doors in centre, sofas round, and in centre a small sofa, with movable back. The first-class might be lined with brown cloth similar to that used in the carriages manufactured by Messrs. Schackleton & Co., for the Birmingham and Shrewsbury narrow-gauge line, about 1855-6.

The fittings should be good, but plain, and without extravagance. Provision should be made to carry passengers' luggage on the roof.

The third-class carriages must be all covered, with open sides; in other respects similar to those of the best narrow-gauge construction in England.

The break-vans may be similar to those of the best construction used in the London and North-western Railway, a special object being the slight extra width of one portion, which permits of the guard looking along the whole train.

The horse-boxes may be similar to those of the best construction on the Great Northern Line, with the centre for horses and two dog-boxes; the ventilation should be particularly attended to, but without louvres raised above the roof.

The lorrys may be similar to those in use on the Great Northern Railway.

The remainder of the stock should be of the most approved description.

All draw bars and buffer springs should be of steel, as indiarubber is not found here to answer.

The whole of the stock should run on four wheels, and be built for the narrow-gauge (4-8½).

The rolling stock and machinery required for the Northern Railway should, if possible, be shipped direct for Newcastle, New South Wales.

A copy of this communication has been addressed to Messrs. W. L. Merry & Co., who will, as usual, make the arrangements for the shipment to this Colony, and will be kept furnished by me with letters of credit to the Oriental Bank, London, for payment of all indents sent.

I have, &c.,

B. H. MARTINDALE.

Capt. D. Galton, R.E.

INDENT for Rolling Stock, Machinery, and Stores required for the Railway Department,
New South Wales.

Rolling Stock—

- 15 composite carriages.
  - 36 third class do.
  - 6 passenger break-vans.
  - 21 horse boxes.
  - 51 goods waggons, 22 in. deep, with side doors.
  - 42 platform waggons.
  - 21 cattle trucks.
  - 9 sheep do.
  - 12 dry goods waggons with iron panels.
  - 21 carriage trucks.
  - 18 luggage lorrys for platform.
- (One-third of the above for the Great Northern Railway.)

Machinery—

- Lathe for turning railway wheels with 24 in. head, stock bed 15 ft. long, two compound slide rests, hand rest, drawing apparatus, &c., complete.
- A Whitworth self-acting slide and screw cutting lathe 12 in. head stocks, compound slide rests, chucks, change of wheels, and driving apparatus.
- A do. do. with 9 in. head stocks.
- A power planing machine, self-acting in the vertical, angular, and horizontal cuts, with self-acting apparatus for oiling slides, capable of planing 6 ft. in length, 3 ft. 6 in. in width, and 3 ft. in height.
- A Whitworth self-acting nut cutting and sharpening machine, fitted with Halses' patent jaws.
- A self-acting drilling machine, with cross slides and revolving table, capable of drilling holes up to 5 in. diameter.
- A do. do. for holes to 2 in. diameter.
- 2 locomotive weigh bridges, fitted with rails to 4 ft. 8½ in., to weigh 6 wheels, giving separate weight on each wheel.
- A bending machine, 8 ft. in width, for bending ½ in. boiler plates.
- A 20 H.P. horizontal engine, high pressure, with 2 strong boilers.
- 6 traversing jacks for locomotive shops.
- 12 parallel and 12 common bench vices.
- 6 crab winches, double-gear wheels, 3 ft. and 2 ft. (2 of these for Great Northern Line.)
- 18 one ton weighing machines for platforms. (6 of them for Great Northern Railway.)

Northern Railway.

- A self-acting slide for lathe and boring mill, with foundation and portable bed 2 ft. long, powerful headstocks, fixed on detached bed to turn a pair of wheels on the axle 7 ft. diameter, self-acting surfacing motion driving apparatus.
- A Whitworth self-acting 12 in. centres screw cutting lathe, change of wheels driving apparatus, &c., complete.
- A small foot lathe with 6 in. centre slide rest, hand rest, chucks, &c.
- A power planing machine, self-acting in the vertical, angular, and horizontal cuts, with self-acting apparatus for oiling slides, capable of planing 6 ft. in length, 3 ft. 6 in. width, and 3 ft. in height.
- A small slotting machine, with about 9 in. stroke, to admit an article 6 in. diameter, with traverse slides and rotary table.
- A self-acting drilling machine, with cross slides and revolving table, capable of drilling holes up to 5 in. diameter.
- A bolt screwing machine to screw from ¾ to 2 in. diameter, with die holders; 10 holders, 10 taps, and 10 pairs of dies, nut and cap holders, reversing bar, and driving apparatus, a set of master taps, &c.
- Hydraulic machine for drawing railway wheels on and off their axles.
- Fan for blowing smith's forge.
- Punching and shearing machine.

Stores—

Stores—

Locomotive repairs—

$\frac{3}{4}$  border plates, 7 ft. 6 in. X 3 ft. 6 in., 8 tons }
 $\frac{3}{4}$  do. do., 6 ft. X 5 ft., 4 tons } Low More.
 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  in. angle iron }
 6 in. X  $\frac{3}{8}$  spring steel }
 No. 6 sheet iron, 8 ft. X 3 ft. }
 No. 7 do. do., 4 ft. 6 in. X 4 ft. 6 in., 2 tons }
 700 copper tubes, 10 ft. 8 in. long and 2 in. external diameter.

India Rubber Buffer Springs—

100 11 in. long 4 $\frac{3}{4}$  outside diameter, with 2 in. hole through for carriage repairs.
 100 8 in. long 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  outside diameter, with 4 in. hole through for waggon repairs.

Iron—

Gauze wire for steam pipe joints, 5 cwt.
 Half-round wire, No. 3, 1 cwt.
 Do. No. 5, 1 "
 Do. No. 7, 1 "
 Do. No. 9, 1 "

200 navvies shovels.

Brass, Copper, and Tin—

200 axle boxes and bearings, 7 in. X 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  in., for repairs.
 Sheet brass, No. 8, 10, 12 wire gauze, 6 dozen.
 2 boxes of tin plates.
 Sheet copper, No. 8, 10, 12, 6 dozen.

Steel—

Cast, flat,  $\frac{3}{4}$  in. X  $\frac{1}{4}$  in., 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  in. X  $\frac{1}{2}$  in., 1 in. X  $\frac{1}{4}$  in., 1 in. X  $\frac{3}{8}$  in., 1 $\frac{1}{4}$  in. X  $\frac{1}{2}$  in. } 1 ton.
 Cast, square, from  $\frac{1}{2}$  in. to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  in. } Cast, octagon,  $\frac{3}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{5}{8}$  in., and  $\frac{3}{4}$  in. }
 1 ton of shear, assorted sizes.
 1 ton of best blister steel.
 Bastard files, 12 dozen of each size, 16 in., 14 in., 12 in., 10 in., 8 in., 6 in., half taper, and half parallel.
 Half-round files, 12 dozen of each size, 16 in., 14 in., 12 in., 10 in., 8 in., 6 in.
 Square bastard, 6 dozen of each size, 1 in.,  $\frac{7}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{3}{4}$  in.,  $\frac{5}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{1}{2}$  in.,  $\frac{3}{8}$  in.
 Second cut, 6 dozen of each size, 16 in., 14 in., 12 in., 10 in., 8 in., 6 in.
 Half-round, smooth, 6 dozen of each size, 16 in., 14 in., 12 in., 10 in., 8 in., 6 in.
 Smooth, 6 dozen of each size, 16 in., 14 in., 12 in., 10 in., 8 in., 6 in.
 Round bastard, 6 dozen of each size,  $\frac{7}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{3}{4}$  in.,  $\frac{5}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{1}{2}$  in.,  $\frac{3}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{1}{4}$  in.
 Cotter hole files, 6 dozen of each size,  $\frac{3}{8}$  in.,  $\frac{1}{2}$  in.,  $\frac{3}{4}$  in.,  $\frac{1}{2}$  in., and  $\frac{3}{8}$  in. thick.
 An assortment of small files, 12 dozen.
 Saw files, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  in., 1 6.
 Mill saw files.

Ironwork—

6 engine smiths' anvils, 5 cwt. each.
 Batten nails, 4 in. and 6 in., 18 cwt. each.
 Do., 1 in., 2 in., and 3 in., 14 cwt. each.
 Clasp nails, 1 in., 2 in., and 3 in., 14 cwt. each.
 Tacks, from  $\frac{1}{4}$  in. to 1 in., in packages, 2 cwt. each.
 Wood screws, assorted sizes, from  $\frac{1}{4}$  in. to 4 in., in packages, 10 cwt.
 Chain,  $\frac{1}{8}$  in., 1 ton.

Ironmongery—

6 grindstones, 36 in. diameter, and 7 in. thick.
 Augers,  $\frac{1}{2}$  in., 5 dozen;  $\frac{3}{8}$  in., 20 dozen;  $\frac{3}{4}$  in., 20 dozen;  $\frac{7}{8}$  in., 5 dozen;  $1\frac{1}{8}$  in., 5 dozen.

Fittings—

20 semaphore lamps (Thornton's.)
 24 side lamps, red and white lights.
 72 hand signal-lamps.
 72 plain hand lamps.
 12 engine head lamps.
 24 policemen's lamps.
 24 station masters' lamps.
 36 gauge glass lamps—engine.
 24 moderator lamps, No. 16.
 1 gross chimney glasses for Thornton's semaphore lamps.
 1 gross each coloured semaphore glasses, red and green.
 1 gross ruby dishes for tail lamps, 9 in. diameter.
 1 gross each red and green hand signal-lamp glasses, to fit hand signal-lamps, ordered.
 24 dozen roof lamp glasses.
 1 gross gauge glass tubes for water gauges, 15 in. long, and  $\frac{1}{8}$  in. outside diameter.

Cordage—

Canvass, No. 6, 4 bales }
 Do. No. 5, 3 do. } Brown Arbroath.
 Do. No. 2, 1 do. }
 Russian duck, 1 bale.
 Flag for packing engine, best spun, 2 tons.

Dry saltery—

Castor oil, 2,000 gallons.
 Sperm oil, 600 "
 Colza oil, 1,000 "
 Black oil, 500 "
 Linseed oil (raw), 400 "
 Linseed oil (boiled), 400 "
 Turpentine, 300 "
 Body varnish, 160 "
 Carriage varnish, 150 "
 Gold size, 130 "
 Black Japan, 130 "
 Gold leaf, 150 books.
 Soft soap, 1 ton.
 Middle green, 10 cwt.
 Bronze green, 10 "
 Brunswick green, 15 "
 Quaker green, 10 "
 Indian red, 10 "
 Venetian red, 10 "
 Vermillion (Chinese) 1 "

Dry

Dry saltery—continued.
 Drop black, 5 cwt.
 Lamp black, 5 "
 Red lead (dry), 10 "
 White lead, 1 "
 Waste—
 5 tons cotton waste, best quality.
 Moderator lamps best wicks, 50 gross, No. 16.
 Timber—
 Teak, 100 cubic feet, not less than 18 in. X 18 in., for carriage repairs.
 Cement—
 400 barrels of Portland cement.
 Catgut—
 1 coil each,  $\frac{1}{4}$  in.,  $\frac{5}{8}$  in., and  $\frac{3}{4}$  in. thick.

Submitted, B.H.M.—12/6.—Approved, W.M.A.—12/6/60.

(Per "Ottawa.")

*Railway Branch,
 Department of Internal Communication,
 Sydney, 21 July, 1860.*

Sir,

I have the honor to enclose herewith duplicate copies of letters transmitted to you by last mail, viz., Nos. 60/336, 60/337, and 60/341, and to draw your attention to the 3rd paragraph of the last mentioned letter, respecting the fittings for the composite carriages, in reference to which, in the event of the width of the carriages not permitting the centre sofa being fixed with comfort, that portion of the fittings may be dispensed with.

I forward also an indent for drawing materials, &c.

I have to notify, for your information, that by the two last, and the present mails, letters of credit, amounting to £40,000, have been sent to Messrs. W. L. Merry & Co., towards the cost of defraying the present indents, and those transmitted to you by my letters above referred to.

I have, &c.,

B. H. MARTINDALE.

Capt. Galton, Royal Engineers,
 London.

A. No. 9.

Sydney, 12 May, 1863.

Sir,

We hereby tender to construct an iron bridge over the River Hunter, at Pitnacree, in accordance with plans and specifications, and to complete the whole of the work within eighteen months from date of acceptance of tender, for the sum of thirteen thousand seven hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling (£13,725).

We are, &c.,

P. N. RUSSELL & Co.

The Honorable Wm. Arnold, M.L.A.,
 Department of Public Works,
 Sydney.

N.B.—In the event of the above tender being accepted, we will find the necessary security and sign the bond, as required.—P.N.R. & Co.

Schedule of Prices.

	£	s.	d.		£	s.	d.
1. Round pile, &c. .. .. .	0	9	0	9. Stafford's line, plate, &c. .. .. .	2	15	0
2. Guides .. .. .	0	7	6	10. Forgings, wrought-iron, &c. .. .. .	2	10	0
3. Joists .. .. .	1	0	0	11. Cast-iron .. .. .	3	0	0
4. Planking .. .. .	3	7	6	12. Coal-tarring .. .. .	0	4	6
5. Sheathing .. .. .	3	7	6	13. Tarring, Stockholm .. .. .	0	7	6
6. Timber in fenders .. .. .	0	6	6	14. Painting .. .. .	0	2	3
7. Lead caps .. .. .	0	6	0	15. Concrete .. .. .	2	10	0
8. Muntz's metal .. .. .	0	2	3

P.N.R. & Co.

Tender for Iron Bridge, Pitnacree.

*Royal Hotel,
 Sydney, 11 May, 1863.*

Sir,

I hereby offer to execute the whole of the work required in the construction of an iron bridge over the Hunter, at Pitnacree, for the lump sum of (£8,233) eight thousand two hundred and thirty-three pounds sterling, and to complete the entire work in twelve months after the receipt of notification of acceptance of tender; and I hand in two memoranda, signed by gentlemen who are willing to be my sureties, and agreeing to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, in the event of my tender being accepted. Accompanying is my schedule on which my tender is based.

I have, &c.,

FRANCIS BELL.

To the Honorable
 The Minister for Public Works.

I was one of the Contractors for the Hawthorne Bridge over the River Yarra Yarra, Victoria,—a similar bridge to this one.—F.B.

PITNACREE

APPENDIX.

111

PITNACREE BRIDGE.

Schedule of Prices.

1. Round piles, as specified, fixed, driven, and in place .. ..	@ 10s. per foot run.
2. Girders, 12 in. x 14 in., at per foot run, inch fixing scarfs, bolts, &c.	6s. 6d. " "
3. Joists, 8 in. x 3 in. and 5 in. x 3 in., 21 feet long, at per piece, including bolts, fixing, &c. .. ..	£1 each.
4. Planking, 2 inches thick, including spikes, &c., at per square of 100 feet .. ..	£4 10s.
5. Sheathing, do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do. do.	£4 10s.
6. Timber in fenders and where else required, fixed, worked, and in place .. ..	@ 5s. 6d. per cubic foot.
7. Lead caps to joists, fixed and dressed, &c. .. ..	@ 1s. each.
8. 20 oz. copper or muntz metal, including fixing, nails, laps, &c. ..	@ 2s. 8d. per foot.
9. Staffordshire plate in girders, &c., rivetted up .. ..	@ £1 15s. per cwt.
10. Wrought-iron, in forgings, bolts, nuts, spikes, &c. .. ..	@ £2 15s. "
11. Cast-iron, including borings, patterns, &c. .. ..	@ £1 16s. "
12. Coal-tarring, 2 coats, as specified .. ..	@ 10s. per 100 feet suppl.
13. Tarring with Stockholm or Archangel tar .. ..	@ 15s. " " "
14. Painting, two coats, with white lead, oil, color, &c. .. ..	@ 2s. per square yard.
15. Concrete, as specified .. ..	@ £2 per cubic yard.

FRANCIS BELL.

Fitzroy Iron Mines,
8 May, 1863.

I AGREE to become security, and to be answerable for the due performance of the contract, for the iron bridge at Pitnacree, over the Hunter River, and, in the event of Mr. Bell's tender being accepted, I agree to execute and deliver a bond, jointly with another responsible person, in the penal sum of (£1,000) one thousand pounds, when called on so to do.

BENJ. WRIGHT LATTIN.

I AGREE to become security for Mr. Francis Bell, and to be answerable for the due performance of the contract for the iron bridge over the Hunter River, at Pitnacree, and in the event of Mr. Bell's tender being accepted, I agree to execute and deliver a bond, jointly with another responsible person, in the penal sum of (£1,000) one thousand pounds, when called on so to do.

WM. HENRY WHYTE.

A. No. 10.

STATEMENT relative to Railway Stations, from January, 1861, to 1st July last.

NAME OF STATION.	Date of inviting Tenders.	Amount of lowest Tender.	Was lowest Tender accepted	Cost of Station.	Cost of Additions or Alterations.	Name of Officer who supervised the Work.	REMARKS.
		£ s. d.		£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Burwood .....	1 July, 1862	475 0 0	Yes ...	500 18 0	25 18 0	George Hall.
Cabramatta Gate-house .....	19 Aug., 1861	270 0 0	" ...	309 12 10	39 12 10	Ditto.
Picton Goods Warehouse .....	14 April, 1863	1,360 0 0	" ...	1,381 8 0	21 8 0	William Morgan.
Picton Station .....	17 Feb., 1863	2,193 0 0	" ...	2,193 0 0	.....	Ditto ...	Not finally measured.
Penrith Station .....	7 April, 1862	2,904 0 0	" ...	3,221 11 9	317 11 9	Alfred Robinson ...	Including fittings.
South Creek Station .....	.....	.....	" ...	1,520 5 1	.....	Ditto ...	Schedule of prices.
Penrith Goods Warehouse .....	1 July, 1862	1,330 0 0	" ...	1,380 0 0	.....	Ditto ...	Not finished.
Harpur's Hill Gate-house .....	.....	.....	" ...	787 3 6	.....	George Bewick .....	Schedule of prices.
Branxton Station .....	.....	.....	" ...	1,606 5 1	.....	Ditto .....	Ditto.
Branxton Goods Warehouse ...	18 July, 1862	575 0 0	" ...	586 12 0	11 12 0	Ditto.
Singleton Station .....	22 Aug., 1862	3,790 0 0	" ...	3,743 0 0	.....	Ditto .....	Amount of tender, £3,790.
Singleton Goods Warehouse ...	7 Oct., 1862	1,836 0 0	" ...	1,923 12 7	87 12 7	Ditto.
Hexham Station .....	1 July, 1862	650 0 0	" ...	909 14 5	259 14 5	Ditto .....	Including £210 1s. 7d. for urinals and privy not in original contract.

(To

(To Evidence given by John Rae, Esq., 27 November, 1863.)

B.

PAPERS, &amp;c., for the Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly, appointed to inquire into Disorganized State of Public Works Department.

Information, Papers, or Plans asked for.	Reply.
Estimated cost of the Menangle Bridge .. .. .	£20,000.
Actual cost .. .. .	£90,000.
Shewing the extra works over the specification, and the amount paid for the extra works .. .. .	{ The work was executed on a schedule of prices, and consequently there were no extra prices.
Two sets of plans for the Campbelltown extension—one by Mr. Brady, and one by Mr. Whitton's staff.. .. .	{ Sent to Committee on the 8th Dec., 1863.
Plans for the ironwork of Menangle Bridge; if prepared in the Colony name of the officer who planned them .. .. .	{ Plans prepared in England, and sent to Committee on the 8/12/63.
Working plans of extension on the Northern Line—Singleton to Lochinvar .. .. .	{ Sent to Committee on the 8th Dec., 1863.
Do. do. —Blacktown to Penrith	Do. do.
Names of all officers, dates when they entered the department, salaries received when they entered, amounts of increases, and dates of increases .. .. .	{ Herewith.
Names of officers who were employed in the Railway Office before the railway was handed over to the Government.. .. .	{ Cannot be supplied, as there is no record in the office.

LIST OF OFFICERS.—DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, 1863.

Name.	Date of entering Public Works Department.	Salaries when they entered.	Amounts with Increases.	Dates of Increases.	Remarks.
John Rae .....	16 Jan., 1861 ..	£300 per annum	Nil.....	Nil.....	Under Secretary for Public Works and Commissioner for Railways.
Gerald Halligan .....	14 Oct., 1859 ..	£400 per annum	£450 per annum	1 Jan., 1861 ..
Chas. A. Goodchap.....	14 Oct., 1859 ..	£250 per annum	£300 per annum	1 Jan., 1860 ..	Corresponding Clerk, &c., do., do.
Arthur Wickham .....	14 Oct., 1859 ..	£200 per annum	£250 per annum	16 April, 1860..	Clerk in charge of Records, do., do.
Patrick Flynn .....	14 Oct., 1859 ..	£150 per annum	£200 per annum	1 Oct., 1863..	Entry Clerk and Assistant Record Clerk, do., do.
G. C. Eames.....	22 June, 1863..	£150 per annum	Nil.....	Nil.....	Clerk.

APPENDIX.

113

LIST OF OFFICERS.—RAILWAY BRANCH, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, GENERAL ESTABLISHMENT.

Name.	Date of entering Railway Department.	Salaries when they entered.	Amounts with Increases.	Dates of Increases.	Remarks.
John Rae .....	25 July, 1857	£ 550	£ 600 800	1 Jan., 1854 20 Jan., 1861	Secretary under Railway Act. Under Secretary for Works, and Commissioner for Railways.
Richard Moody .....	12 Aug., 1857	200	300 400	1 Jan., 1858 9 Nov., 1860	Chief Clerk under the Secretary. Chief Clerk (Secretary's office abolished.)
William Forde .....	1 Mar., 1859	200	250	1 April, 1860	Clerk in charge of Records.
Robert Cooper Walker ..	15 Jan., 1861	500	Nil	Nil	Accountant.
Albert H. Hall .....	5 July, 1860	10s. per day	180 200 250 300	1 Jan., 1861 1 Jan., 1863 19 Mar., 1863 1 July, 1863	Temporary Clerk. Clerk. Acting Book-keeper. Book-keeper.
Charles W. Eastwood....	1 July, 1859	12s. per day	180 250 300	2 July, 1859 1 Jan., 1861 1 Jan., 1863	Temporary Clerk. Clerk. Clerk paying salaries, wages, &c.
Edmond O. Bulford ....	1 Oct., 1857	150	180 200	1 Jan., 1858 2 April, 1859	Clerk auditing accounts. Assistant Book-keeper.
George D. Skardon.....	9 Oct., 1859	180	Nil	Nil	Clerk auditing accounts.
Donald Vernon .....	18 Jan., 1860	180	200	1 Jan., 1863	Clerk auditing accounts.
R. R. Ewen .....	20 July, 1863	200	.....	.....	Clerk, Accountant's Office.
Charles Poole .....	23 Mar., 1863	180	.....	.....	Clerk copying, &c.
Thomas Cowlisshaw ....	1 May, 1859	400	600	1 Jan., 1860	Valuator of lands taken for railway purposes.
John B. Goold .....	6 Oct., 1858	150	200 300	1 Jan., 1860 1 July, 1860	Goods Clerk, Sydney. Storekeeper.
James Ball .....	15 July, 1857	150	200	1 Jan., 1858	Ticket Printer.

LIST OF OFFICERS.—TRAFFIC BRANCH, RAILWAY DEPARTMENT.

Name.	Date of entering Railway Department.	Amount of Salary.	*Increase.	Dates of Increases.	Remarks.
Edward Owen.....	23 April, 1861	£ 200	£ 250 500	1 May, 1862 1 July, 1863	Goods Clerk.—Station Master, Sydney. Traffic Manager, Southern and Western Railways.
Thomas Carlisle .....	1 May, 1862	200	300	1 July, 1863	Goods Clerk.—Clerk in charge, Sydney Station.
J. Higgs .....	1 Oct., 1855	150	175 300	2 July, 1860 1 July, 1863	Station Master, Junction. Platform Inspector.
M'Vey Falconer .....	12 Dec., 1859	150	175 200	2 July, 1860 1 Nov., 1863	Newtown Station Master.
W. H. Sutton .....	2 July, 1860	150	Nil	Nil	Petersham do.
D. Shore .....	26 Sept., 1855	150	Nil	Nil	Ashfield do.
G. Bonnamy .....	1 Mar., 1863	150	Nil	Nil	Burwood do.
A. Moodie .....	18 Mar., 1856	150	Nil	29 Aug., 1862	Homebush do.
J. Harte .....	11 Sept., 1862	100	.....	.....	Haslem's Creek do.
J. Cross .....	1 June, 1856	7s. per day.	150 200	20 June, 1859 9 May, 1860	Blacktown do. Parramatta Junction do.
C. F. Aldrick .....	18 Feb., 1856	200	.....	.....	Parramatta do.
J. Collins .....	1 June, 1863	200	.....	.....	Blacktown do.
S. A. Mackenzie.....	7 Aug., 1858	200	150	9 May, 1862	South Creek do.
W. V. Read .....	28 Sept., 1856	150	200 250	1 Jan., 1859 9 May, 1862	Penrith do.
Edward Woodgate .....	27 Nov., 1857	180	150 200	20 Jan., 1860 .....	Clerk.—Station Master, Petersham. Liverpool Station Master.
J. Middleton .....	20 Sept., 1856	150	175 200	2 July, 1860 29 Aug., 1862	(Fairfield, Newtown, and Menangle.) Campbelltown Station Master.
J. Beeston .....	1 May, 1863	150	Nil	Nil	Menangle do.
E. Fielding .....	21 May, 1855	150	200 400	1 Jan., 1858 1 July, 1858	Campbelltown do. Traffic Inspector, Great Northern Railway.
John L. Beeston .....	27 Nov., 1857	150	250 300 400 500	1 July, 1859 1 Jan., 1858 1 July, 1860 1 Jan., 1862	Station Master, Picton. Station Master.—Traffic Inspector. Traffic Manager, Northern Railway. do. do.
Anthony Garston .....	1 July, 1859	200	250	1 Jan., 1863	Newcastle Station Master.
H. Verdon .....	1 July, 1862	10s. per day.	.....	.....	Honeysuckle Point do.
P. Dwyer .....	1 July, 1859	150	.....	.....	Waratah do.
W. Wilkinson .....	1 Sept., 1862	150	.....	.....	Hexham do.
Thomas West .....	2 July, 1860	200	.....	.....	East Maitland do.
James Burns .....	2 July, 1860	150	.....	.....	High-street do.
George Brackenregg ....	9 July, 1860	150	200	9 May, 1862	West Maitland do.
William Tribe.....	9 May, 1862	150	120	1 Sept., 1862	Wollombi Road do.
W. M. Cooke .....	1 Oct., 1863	150	.....	.....	Lochinvar do.
William Rae .....	1 May, 1858	200	.....	.....	Branxton do.
John Golder.....	24 Mar., 1862	200	.....	.....	Singleton do.

NOTE.—There are no officers at present employed in the Railway Department who were previously employed by the Sydney Railway Company, with the exception of D. Shore, now Station Master at Ashfield, who was employed by the Company as a constable.

LIST OF OFFICERS.—RAILWAY DEPARTMENT, ENGINEERING BRANCH.

Names of all Officers.	Date when they entered the Department.	Salaries received when they entered.	Amount with Increases.	Dates of Increases.	Remarks.
John Whitton .....	27 Mar., 1856	£ 1,500	£ .....	.....
William Mason .....	11 June, 1856	600	700	1 Jan., 1858
Edwin Barton .....	11 June, 1856	400	450	1 Jan., 1858
			500	1 Sept., 1858
			600	1 Jan., 1860	Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, travelling expenses, &c.
W. B. Wade.....	8 Feb., 1859	400	500	1 Jan., 1860	Allowed 4s. per day in lieu of forage.
J. W. Drewett.....	11 June, 1856	500	.....	.....
W. H. Quodling.....	8 Oct., 1857	180	250	1 Jan., 1858
			300	1 Jan., 1861
			350	1 Jan., 1863
			150	1 Jan., 1863
R. J. Sheridan .....	4 Feb., 1861	100	.....	.....
William Mackay.....	21 June, 1860	200	.....	.....
Hyacinthe Telmon.....	23 Feb., 1860	10s. per day	.....	.....
G. A. Tillett .....	3 Sept., 1863	300	.....	.....
Kenneth M'Kenzie.....	2 Sept., 1863	300	.....	.....
Edwin H. Fearnside .....	16 Mar., 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....
William Morgan.....	10 Feb., 1858	400	500	1 Jan., 1863	Allowed 4s. per day in lieu of forage.
George Cowdery.....	24 Nov., 1862	500	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
Robert Ballard.....	28 Sept., 1863	500	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
Thos. R. Firth .....	3 Mar., 1863	500	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
E. J. Burrows.....	24 Mar., 1859	400	500	1 July, 1860	Services dispensed with, 31st Dec., 1860.
	20 Feb., 1862	400	.....	.....	Re-appointed.—Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
G. F. Mann .....	1 Feb., 1857	No salary.	150	1 Nov., 1857	To 31st January, 1858.
	16 Aug., 1858	156	.....	.....	Re-appointed.
			300	20 Feb., 1862	Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
P. D. Brown .....	29 Nov., 1859	400	.....	.....	To 31st Dec., 1860. } Services to be dis-
	1 April, 1862	400	.....	.....	Re-appointed. } pensed with on
Robert Earl.....	16 July, 1862	300	.....	.....	31st Dec., 1863.
James Campbell.....	21 June, 1860	300	.....	.....	To 30th Sept., 1860. } Each allowed £280
	15 July, 1862	300	.....	.....	Re-appointed. } per ann. in lieu of
W. A. McDonall.....	20 May, 1863	150	.....	.....	equipment, &c.
John Ashplant .....	31 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Allowed 15s. per day in lieu of equipment, &c.
George Melrose .....	16 Mar., 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
George Jamieson .....	31 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
Thomas Kennedy .....	13 Mar., 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
Charles Richardson .....	31 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
	27 Feb., 1862	250	.....	.....	To 9th July, 1861. } Services to be dis-
			.....	.....	Re-appointed. } pensed with from
Nicholas Trengrouse....	16 Sept., 1855	350	.....	.....	31st Dec., 1863.
George Hall.....	18 Oct., 1858	16s. 8d. per day	350	1 April, 1859	Suspended, 26th August, 1863.
			400	1 Jan., 1863	Suspended, 26th August, 1863.
W. A. Trengrouse .....	16 Sept., 1855	156	.....	.....	To 31st January, 1858.
	16 Aug., 1858	156	200	1 Jan., 1863	Re-appointed.—Resigned, 19th May, 1863.
Edward Micklethwait ..	22 Jan., 1858	500	.....	.....	Resigned, 30th November, 1863.—Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
Louis Robertson.....	21 June, 1860	52	100	1 Jan., 1863	Suspended, 29th August, 1863.
Alfred Francis .....	7 April, 1862	300	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 30th November, 1863.—Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
Martin Gardiner.....	4 July, 1860	400	.....	.....	To 31st December, 1860.—Re-appointed, 2nd August, 1862.
	2 Aug., 1862	13s. 4d. per day	.....	.....	Dismissed, 14th July, 1863.
John Doherty .....	22 Aug., 1862	10s. per day	.....	.....	Suspended, 26th August, 1863.
George Bewick .....	1 Jan., 1860	400	.....	.....
A. J. Whalley.....	16 July, 1862	300	.....	.....	Resigned, 17th March, 1863.—Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
G. Bridgman .....	11 June, 1856	400	.....	.....	Resigned, 30th November, 1858.
W. C. Bennett.....	1 July, 1857	400	.....	.....	Appointed to the Road Department.—Re-appointed.
	3 April, 1862	400	.....	.....	To 31st Oct., 1862.—Appointed Road Commissioner.
S. C. Brees .....	15 April, 1859	400	.....	.....	To 5th June, 1859.—Dismissed.
Charles Brown .....	16 April, 1859	400	.....	.....	13th April, 1861.—Services dispensed with.
J. C. Chevallier .....	16 April, 1859	400	.....	.....	Dismissed, 25th May, 1859.
R. J. Campbell .....	25 Nov., 1859	400	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 31st Oct., 1860.
John N. Campbell .....	20 July, 1860	400	.....	.....	Dismissed, 8th September, 1860.
P. R. Donaldson.....	24 Nov., 1859	400	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 31st Oct., 1860.
			.....	.....	Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
J. W. Deering .....	6 Sept., 1860	300	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 31st Dec., 1860.
J. H. Braddock .....	21 June, 1860	220	.....	.....	Do. do. do.
H. Haeg .....	19 Mar., 1857	500	.....	.....	Do. do. 19th May, 1857.
John Higham.....	8 Dec., 1859	400	.....	.....	Do. do. 15th Sept., 1860.
			.....	.....	Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.
John Richardson .....	18 July, 1860	400	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 18th Aug., 1860.
			.....	.....	Allowed £280 per annum in lieu of equipment, &c.

LIST OF OFFICERS.—RAILWAY DEPARTMENT, ENGINEERING BRANCH—Continued.

Names of all Officers.	Date when they entered the Department.	Salaries received when they entered.	Amount with Increases.	Dates of Increases.	Remarks.
Peter E. Henderson ....	23 June, 1857	£ 500	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 29th July, 1857. Services dispensed with, 14th August, 1861.—Allowed 15s. per day in lieu of equipment, &c.
Henry Grierson .....	31 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....
George Leslie .....	31 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 9th July, 1861. Allowed 15s. per day in lieu of equipment, &c.
Alfred Vine .....	30 May, 1861	20s. per day	.....	.....	Services dispensed with, 26th September, 1861.—Allowed 15s. per day in lieu of equipment, &c.

9th December, 1863.

J. W.

RETURN shewing the Names of all Officers in the Harbours and Rivers Branch of the Public Works Department, the Dates when they entered, the Salaries they received on entering, the amounts of Increases received by them, and the Dates of such Increases.

Names of Officers.	Situation held.	Date of entering.	Salaries received on entering.	Amount of Increases.	Date of receiving Increases.	Salary now received.	Amount of Security given.
Edward Orpen Moriarty ..	Engineer-in-Chief .....	10 Oct., 1858	£ 1,100	£ Nil.	.....	£ 1,100	£ Nil.
William Henry Baron ....	Resident Engineer, Clarence River .....	12 Oct., 1858	350	200	1 Jan., 1862	550	„
Edward Berthon .....	Chief Clerk and Accountant	9 July, 1860	250	50	1 Jan., 1862	300	1,000
Joseph Barling .....	Clerk and Book-keeper ....	1 Aug., 1860	150	25	1 Jan., 1863	175	500
Edward Forde .....	Chief Surveyor & Draughtsman .....	1 Jan., 1862	400	Nil.	.....	400	Nil.
Francis T. Rose .....	Draughtsman .....	15 Dec., 1859	250	50	.....	300	„
Ottomar Rossbach .....	do. ....	12 Sept., 1860	200	{ 52 48	{ Nov., 1860 Jan., 1862 }	300	„
Gustave Morell .....	Temporary Draughtsman ..	5 Jan., 1863	200	Nil.	.....	200	„
John Skinner .....	do. do. ....	19 Feb., 1863	200	Nil.	.....	200	„
George Earngey .....	Assistant do. ....	2 Feb., 1861	Nil.	40	1 Jan., 1863	40	„
William Orr .....	do. do. ....	14 Jan., 1862	Nil.	30	„	30	„
Charles Berthon .....	do. do. ....	10 July, 1862	Nil.	30	„	30	„
Francis Napier .....	Clerk of Works, Sydney ..	1 Jan., 1862	360	Nil.	.....	360	„
William Anderson .....	do. Newcastle..	3 Dec., 1858	250	Nil.	.....	250	„
G. V. James .....	Assistant Engineer, Clarence River .....	1 June, 1862	150	Nil.	.....	150	„
Merion H. Moriarty .....	Clerk of Works, Kiama . . .	1 Sept., 1862	175	50	11 Nov., 1863	225	„
Robert Napier .....	Chief Engineer, Dredge "Hunter" .....	1 Aug., 1861	300	Nil.	.....	300	„
Thomas Cronin .....	Master, Dredge "Hercules"	16 July, 1845	250	Nil.	.....	250	„
J. T. Fraser .....	Chief Engineer, Dredge "Pluto" .....	1 July, 1862	200	50	1 Jan., 1863	250	„

E. O. MORIARTY.

RETURN of Officers in Colonial Architect's Branch of the Public Works Department.

Name.	Rank.	Date of entering.	Salary received on entering.	Increases, &c., and Dates.
James Barnet .....	Actg. Colonial Architect	4 Aug., 1860	£400 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum..	{ Increased to £800 per annum upon receiving present appointment, 1st November, 1862. No increase.
William Coles .....	1st Clerk of Works ....	12 Oct., 1857	£600 „
John M'Cracken .....	Clerk of Works .....	10 Sept., 1860	£400 „	Do. { 1847 increased to 10s. $\frac{1}{2}$ day } 1857 „ £300 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum } 1863 „ £450 „ } With temporary gold increase from January, 1853, to January, 1857.
Mortr. W. Lewis, junr.	Do. ....	21 Oct., 1837	7s. 6d. $\frac{1}{2}$ day ..
Edward Martin .....	Do. ....	15 Jan., 1863	£250 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum	{ Increased to £400 per annum upon receiving present appointment, 1st October, 1863.
John Sharkey .....	Foreman of Works.....	12 Mar., 1836	7s. $\frac{1}{2}$ day ....	{ 1851 increased to £150 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum } 1853 „ £160 „ } 1857 „ £250 „ } With temporary gold increase from January, 1853, to January, 1857.
Robert Orford .....	Do. ....	1 July, 1857	£250 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum..	No increase.
Alfred Cook .....	Draughtsman.....	24 April, 1854	20s. $\frac{1}{2}$ day ....	{ 1st May, 1857, reduced to £250 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum. 1st June, 1860, increased to £300 „ Pay commenced at 1s. 8d. $\frac{1}{2}$ day „ 1838 } Increased to 3s. 4d. „ 1839 } „ 6s. 8d. „ 1841 } Reduced to 6s. 0d. „ 1843 } „ 5s. 0d. „ Sept., „ } Increased to £100 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum 1849 } Annual increase of £10, 1850, 1851, & 1852 } Increased to £200 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum 1853 } „ £220 „ 1854 } „ £240 „ 1855 } „ £400 „ Mar., „ } „ £450 „ Jan., 1857 } With temporary gold increase from January, 1853, to January, 1857.
Henry Chapman.. ..	Chief Clerk .....	— Dec., 1837	Nil. ....	{ Increased £50 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum on being appointed to new clerkship, 1st January, 1863. Increased £100 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum on receiving present appointment.
James M'Shane .....	2nd Clerk .....	20 June, 1859	£150 $\frac{1}{2}$ annum..	No increase.
Edward Rowley .....	Clerk .....	1 July, 1862	£150 „	No increase.

RETURN of all Officers in the Road Branch, showing Dates when they entered, Salaries they received on entering, amounts of Increases received by them, and Dates of such Increases.

Name.	Present Position.	Salary on entering this Branch.	Date of Entry.	Increased to.
				Amount.	Date.	Amount.	Date.	Amount.	Date.
William C. Bennett.....	Commissioner and Engineer .....	£400	1 Jan., 1858	£700*	1 Jan., 1859	£700†	1 Nov., 1862
Valentine de St. Remy..	Assistant Engineer .....	£400	25 Aug., 1859	£500	21 Jan., 1863
Stephen G. Shairp .....	Chief Clerk and Cashier .....	£180	15 Nov., 1859	£400‡	16 April, 1860	£300	15 Jan., 1861	£350	1 Jan., 1862
Archibald J. Chisholm..	Accountant .....	£180	17 April, 1860	£250	1 Jan., 1862
Francis J. Wickham .....	Clerk .....	10s. per diem	20 May, 1860	12s. per diem	2 Nov., 1860	£200	1 Jan., 1862	£225 per ann.	1 Jan., 1863
Jas. H. Thomas.....	Resident Engineer, Deniliquin .....	£400	21 Jan., 1863	£600‡	18 Nov., 1863
Henry Moggridge .....	Superintendent, Southern Road .....	£600‡	19 Jan., 1864
William S. Chauncey .....	Do. Do. .....	£600‡	19 April, 1860	£500‡	1 Oct., 1863
R. B. Dawson .....	Superintendent, Western and Mud- ree Roads .....	£600‡	7 Feb., 1864
F. Wells .....	Do. Western Road .....	12s. per diem	28 Mar., 1859	£580‡	3 July, 1860	£500‡	1 Jan., 1863
E. A. Nardin .....	Do. Northern Road .....	£400	19 Mar., 1860	£500‡	1 Jan., 1863
Henry Quodling .....	Do. Do. .....	£400	5 Feb., 1861	£500‡	21 Jan., 1863
Alex. C. Bayley .....	Do. Do. .....	20s. per diem	1 Aug., 1850	£500‡	26 Dec., 1862
George Philben.....	Overseer in charge, Western Road .....	£255	18 Nov., 1861	£300‡	21 Jan., 1863
Ernest L. Maitland .....	Do. Southern Road .....	£255	1 Dec., 1860	£300‡	21 Jan., 1863
Alured D. Faunce .....	Do. Do. .....	£255	1 May, 1859	£280	1 June, 1860	20s. per diem	1 Jan., 1863	£300‡	1 Sept., 1863
E. J. Statham .....	Do. Southern and Western Road .....	13s. per diem	1 Jan., 1860	£255	1 June, 1860	£300	21 Jan., 1863
David Houston .....	Superintendent, Nanimi Bridge .....	20s. per diem	13 Jan., 1863
J. B. Meldrum .....	Do. Forbes Bridge .....	15s. per diem	29 April, 1863
William Mason .....	Do. Bridges at Young .....	£75	4 Aug., 1860	£125	1 Jan., 1863	15s. per diem	22 April, 1863

* Resigned, 14 January, 1861. † Re-appointed, 1 November, 1862. ‡ Including travelling expenses. § Surveyor of Roads, including equipment allowance.
 ‡ Resigned, 14 January, 1862. ¶ Re-appointed, 26 December, 1862.

For the Commissioner,
S. G. SHAIRP.—4/12/63.

RETURN showing the Names of Officers employed in the Telegraph Department, the Dates when they entered, the Salaries they received on entering, the amount of Increases received by them, and the Dates of such Increases.

NAMES OF OFFICERS.	OFFICES.	Dates when they entered.	Salary when entering.		Amount of Increases.		Date of Increases.
			£	s. d.	£	s. d.
Edwd. Chs. Cracknell ..	Assistant Superintendent .. ..	1 Jan., 1858	500	0 0	600	0 0	1 Jan., 1860.
Do. ..	Superintendent .. ..	1 Jan., 1861	700	0 0
P. B. Walker .....	Chief Operator .. ..	18 Feb., 1858	150	0 0	200	0 0	20 Oct., 1858.
Do. ..	Do. ..	1 Jan., 1861	300	0 0
Do. ..	Do. and Assistant Superintendent	1 Jan., 1862	400	0 0
Do. ..	Inspector of Lines and Stations ..	1 Jan., 1863	350	0 0
Saml. J. Watson.....	Line Inspector, Albury .. ..	30 Oct., 1858	150	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master and Line Inspector, Wollombi	8 Feb., 1860	180	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Singleton .. ..	1 Feb., 1861	200	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Chief Office .. ..	1 Jan., 1863	300	0 0
John Muston .....	Accountant .. ..	1 April, 1859	200	0 0	300	0 0	1 Jan., 1862.
P. Macauliffe .....	Money Order Clerk (now acting as Chief Clerk.)	27 June, 1862	250	0 0
John M. Bate .....	Clerk .. ..	12 Oct., 1862	200	0 0
John Quodling .....	Clerk .. ..	10 Oct., 1862	100	0 0	150	0 0	1 May, 1863.
J. R. Miles .....	Booking Clerk, Inward .. ..	13 May, 1861	150	0 0	175	0 0	1 Jan., 1863.
A. Field .....	Acting do. Outward .. ..	.....	150	0 0
W. Wilson .....	Junior Operator, Parramatta ..	1 Nov., 1858	80	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Penrith .. ..	1 April, 1860	150	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Yass .. ..	1 Oct., 1861	200	0 0
Do. ..	Operator, Sydney .. ..	11 May, 1863	175	0 0
J. R. Ferris.....	Station Master, Braidwood .. ..	18 Nov., 1861	104	0 0
Do. ..	Operator, Sydney .. ..	8 Aug., 1862	150	0 0
W. H. Maguire .....	Operating Night Clerk .. ..	1 April, 1860	150	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Penrith .. ..	17 Aug., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Armidale .. ..	1 Oct., 1861	180	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Tamworth .. ..	28 Feb., 1862	180	0 0
Do. ..	Operator, Sydney .. ..	1 Mar., 1863	150	0 0
Arnold Elliott .....	Junior Operator, Albury .. ..	16 July, 1860	100	0 0
Do. ..	Night Operator, Sydney .. ..	11 April, 1863	150	0 0
C. A. Middleton .....	Messenger, Maitland .. ..	24 July, 1861	52	0 0
Do. ..	Junior Operator, Sydney .. ..	21 Jan., 1863	104	0 0
Do. ..	Operator, Sydney .. ..	1 Nov., 1863	150	0 0
Charles Kraegen.....	Instrument Fitter, Sydney .. ..	11 Feb., 1858	200	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Albury .. ..	1 Dec., 1859	300	0 0
J. W. Nunn .....	Do. Grafton .. ..	13 Dec., 1862	200	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Tenterfield .. ..	18 May, 1863	250	0 0
C. A. Watson .....	Operator, Sydney .. ..	23 Feb., 1863	175	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Goulburn .. ..	11 May, 1863	200	0 0
J. J. Shirbin .....	Do. Yass .. ..	20 Mar., 1863	200	0 0
Colville Smith .....	Station Master and Line Inspector, Berrima	6 Nov., 1858	180	0 0
Do. ..	Do. Gundagai .. ..	1 Sept., 1860	200	0 0
M. E. Burke .....	Do. Kiandra .. ..	23 Oct., 1862	200	0 0
J. M. Beatty .....	Do. Deniliquin .. ..	1 Aug., 1861	300	0 0
A. M'Cracken.....	Do. Wagga Wagga .. ..	1 May, 1861	150	0 0
R. C. Wills .....	Messenger, Sydney .. ..	9 Dec., 1858	52	0 0
Do. ..	Operator, do. .. ..	9 Jan., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Wollongong ..	8 Aug., 1862	200	0 0
William Camper.....	Messenger, Sydney .. ..	7 Dec., 1858	52	0 0
Do. ..	Junior Operator, Redfern and Campbelltown	19 Mar., 1860	104	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Kiama .. ..	13 Oct., 1862	150	0 0
R. H. Hipsley .....	Junior Operator, Liverpool & Campbelltown	28 Jan., 1858	104	0 0
Do. ..	Night do., Sydney .. ..	7 Dec., 1858	150	0 0
Do. ..	Station Master, Bathurst .. ..	1 Jan., 1860	150	0 0	200	0 0	1 Jan., 1862.

RETURN of Officers in Telegraph Department, &c.—continued.

NAMES OF OFFICERS.	OFFICES.	Dates when they entered.	Salary when entering.		Amount of Increases.		Date of Increases.
			£	s. d.	£	s. d.
J. P. Olson .....	Station Master, Tambaroora .. ..	16 July, 1863	150	0 0
G. T. Aldwell .....	Do. Mudgee .. ..	15 May, 1861	200	0 0
A. E. Middleton .....	Assistant Operator, Armidale .. ..	1 Oct., 1861	104	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Singleton and Windeyer ..	1 April, 1863	150	0 0
J. V. Dalgarno .....	Booking Clerk, Sydney; Night Operator, Sydney; and Station Master, Penrith.	9 Jan., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Young .. ..	11 Mar., 1863	250	0 0
W. F. Lee .....	Do. W. Maitland .. ..	1 Feb., 1860	200	0 0
M. H. Kelly .....	Junior Operator, South Head .. ..	1 May, 1858	84	0 0
Do. ....	Do. Campbelltown .. ..	1 Dec., 1858	104	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Newcastle .. ..	9 Jan., 1860	150	0 0	200	0 0	1 Jan., 1861.
John Wisdom .....	Station Master, Morpeth .. ..	20 Aug., 1860	150	0 0
John Nesbitt .....	Do. Singleton .. ..	24 June, 1863	150	0 0
R. Pizey .....	Junior Operator, Liverpool & Campbelltown	8 May, 1858	104	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Orange and Tambaroora ..	1 May, 1861	150	0 0
Do. ....	Do. Grafton .. ..	16 July, 1863	200	0 0
A. G. Robins .....	Do. and Line Inspector, Braidwood	26 April, 1862	180	0 0
Do. ....	Do. Armidale .. ..	1 Dec., 1862	200	0 0
John Isaac .....	Do. Scone .. ..	15 May, 1862	25	0 0
William Read .....	Do. Murrurundi .. ..	1 Sept., 1862	150	0 0
D. W. Forbes .....	Do. Echuca, Victoria .. ..	1 Aug., 1861	50	0 0*
Philip Mackel .....	Line Inspector, Bathurst .. ..	1 Jan., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Do. and Station Master, Berrima	1 Sept., 1860	180	0 0
John Kirwan .....	Station Master, Kyamba .. ..	1 Sept., 1861	180	0 0
Edward Rouse .....	Line Inspector, Albury .. ..	12 Sept., 1859	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Kyamba and New Tumut ..	1 Aug., 1860	180	0 0
E. D. Scott, senr. ....	Do. Urana .. ..	18 Aug., 1861	180	0 0
P. Morrissey .....	Line Inspector, Goulburn .. ..	25 June, 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master and Line Inspector, Braidwood	1 Dec., 1862	180	0 0
F. G. Croft .....	Booking Clerk, Sydney .. ..	27 April, 1861	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master and Line Inspector, Penrith	11 Mar., 1863	180	0 0
G. F. Harrison .....	Do. do. Hartley .. ..	1 Oct., 1860	180	0 0
C. G. Smith .....	Do. do. Sofala .. ..	1 May, 1861	180	0 0
Charles Cooper .....	Do. do. Orange .. ..	1 Oct., 1862	180	0 0
E. H. Allen .....	Do. do. Wellington .. ..	18 Nov., 1862	180	0 0
C. N. Ambrose .....	Do. do. Orange .. ..	4 Dec., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Do. do. Windsor .. ..	1 May, 1861	150	0 0	180	0 0	1 Jan., 1863.
R. S. Arnott .....	Do. do. Wollombi .. ..	1 Aug., 1862	180	0 0
R. S. Floyd .....	Do. do. Glen Innes .. ..	1 Oct., 1861	180	0 0
J. C. Pettit .....	Batteryman, Sydney .. ..	3 Aug., 1858	104	0 0
Do. ....	Line Inspector, Windsor .. ..	1 Feb., 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master & Line Inspector, Murrurundi	1 Sept., 1862	180	0 0
James Mackel .....	Do. do. Tamworth .. ..	9 July, 1862	180	0 0
K. Mackenzie .....	Junior Operator, Liverpool and Exchange ..	1 Sept., 1862	52	0 0
C. H. Rowe .....	Messenger, Sydney, and Junior Operator, Liverpool and Redfern.	14 April, 1862	52	0 0
J. H. Flynn .....	Messenger, Sydney, and Junior Operator, Redfern.	5 April, 1861	52	0 0
Do. ....	Junior Operator, Parramatta .. ..	13 April, 1863	104	0 0
G. Hosking .....	Do. Liverpool .. ..	1 Sept., 1863	52	0 0
J. Woodward .....	Do. Campbelltown .. ..	25 Mar., 1863	104	0 0
G. King .....	Messenger, Sydney, and Junior Operator, Exchange.	16 May, 1860	52	0 0
Do. ....	Junior Operator, Pictou .. ..	29 Jan., 1863	104	0 0
C. F. Morgan .....	Do. Albury .. ..	1 June, 1863	104	0 0
G. S. Pegus .....	Do. Parramatta and Bendemeer	13 Oct., 1862	104	0 0
J. T. Chidgey .....	Messenger, Sydney .. ..	1 Nov., 1858	52	0 0
Do. ....	Junior Operator, Parramatta, Campbelltown, and Tenterfield.	9 Sept., 1860	104	0 0
Thomas Merrywether ..	Line Inspector, Yass .. ..	1 June, 1860	150	0 0
Do. ....	Do. Sydney .. ..	20 Sept., 1861	200	0 0
D. Goggin .....	Do. Goulburn .. ..	1 Dec., 1862	150	0 0
J. Buckle .....	Do. Forbes and Yass .. ..	29 Oct., 1862	150	0 0
H. H. Smithers .....	Do. Grafton and Gundagai .. ..	13 Dec., 1862	150	0 0
Charles Hammond .....	Do. Albury .. ..	22 April, 1862	150	0 0
E. D. Scott, junr. ....	Do. Deniliquin .. ..	1 Aug., 1861	150	0 0
J. M'Innes .....	Do. Wagga Wagga .. ..	15 May, 1863	150	0 0
L. H. Scott .....	Do. Wollongong .. ..	1 May, 1863	150	0 0
Francis Mackel .....	Do. Braidwood and Bathurst .. ..	1 Jan., 1862	150	0 0
W. F. Wye .....	Do. Mudgee .. ..	20 Sept., 1861	150	0 0
A. H. M'Gregor .....	Do. Forbes .. ..	1 Aug., 1863	150	0 0
Do. ....	Station Master, Forbes .. ..	12 Nov., 1863	250	0 0
Alfred Tunks .....	Line Inspector, Forbes .. ..	12 Nov., 1863	150	0 0
R. Buckley .....	Do. Yass and Young .. ..	1 Mar., 1862	150	0 0
Harold Slack .....	Do. Singleton .. ..	22 April, 1863	150	0 0
T. Atwood .....	Do. Grafton .. ..	27 April, 1863	150	0 0
R. H. Wright .....	Do. Tenterfield .. ..	16 April, 1863	150	0 0
C. Smith .....	Do. Wollongong and Armidale ..	7 Aug., 1862	150	0 0
F. W. Joyce .....	Storekeeper and Batteryman .. ..	1 Jan., 1862	104	0 0
John Duggan .....	Head Messenger and Stableman .. ..	6 May, 1862	104	0 0
Gustave Kopsch .....	Instrument Fitter .. ..	15 Mar., 1861	300	0 0
W. H. Tubman .....	Junior Operator, Penrith .. ..	1 Nov., 1863	104	0 0

* Annual gratuity to Victorian Station Master.

NOTE.—When two or more places or stations appear on the same line opposite a name, they denote that the offices were held in succession at same salary.
 Chief Telegraph Office, Sydney,
 14 December, 1863.

E. C. CRACKNELL,
 Superintendent of Telegraphs.

RETURN of Department, Fitzroy Dock, called for by circular letter of 3rd December, 1863.

Name.	Situation.	Date of entering.	Salary on entering.	Increases.	Date of Increases.	Remarks.
Gother Kerr Mann	Professional Assistant to the Commanding Royal Engineer for the construction of a Dry Dock.	14 Feb., 1847	5s. per diem	2s. 6d. per diem	— May, 1849
	Civil Engineer, with entire direction of the Works.	1 Jan., 1851	£300 per annum	£200 per annum £130 per annum on account of gold increase.	— July, 1852 1 July, 1857	Also held the office of Chief Commissioner of Railways prior to the arrival of Captain Martindale.
	Engineer-in-Chief and Superintendent of the Penal Establishment.	1 Aug., 1859	£700 per annum	None.
Henry Broderick	Foreman of Engineers	7 Sep., 1853	£250 10s. 3d. per ann.	£49 3s. 9d. per annum £50 per annum	1 Jan., 1859 1 Jan., 1861	Appointed in London by the Colonial Agent General, 10th February, 1853.
John Duff	Clerk and Storekeeper	25 Aug., 1855	£191 13s. 4d. per ann. with gold increase.	£15 per annum	1 Sep., 1856	Salary finally adjusted at £190, 1st July, 1857.
Andrew Septimus Rogers	Clerk and Draughtsman	20 June, 1859	£240 per annum	None.
William A. Cahill	Foreman of Works	20 Dec., 1851	5s. per diem	2s. per diem 1s. per diem 1s. per diem £26 per annum £10 per annum	1 Sep., 1852 1 Oct., 1853 1 Jan., 1856 1 July, 1857 1 Jan., 1861
John Kelleher	Ditto	27 Jan., 1854	7s. per diem	1s. per diem	1 Jan., 1856
Henry Fitzgerald	Ditto	2 Feb., 1854	7s. per diem	1s. per diem	1 Aug., 1858
Hugh Jones	Engineer Mechanic	1 Mar., 1859	10s. per diem	None.
John Doran	Fireman	15 July, 1861	£146 per annum	None.
Richard Johnson	Shipwright Carpenter	12 Feb., 1862	£275 per annum			Salary reduced to £220, 8th April, 1863, on appointment of second shipwright.
Isaac Kendall	Ditto	11 Apr., 1863	£200 per annum	None.
Morris Bowers	Boatman and Messenger	19 Feb., 1860	£96 per annum	£12 per annum	1 Jan., 1862

10 December, 1863.

GOTHER K. MANN,
Engineer-in-Chief.

With letter to Under Secretary for Public Works, 63-40, 10 December, 1863.

(To Evidence given by M. Charles Bosé, 7th December, 1863.)

C.

THE trustees of the Petersham Estate, block 1B, having found it absolutely necessary to have a re-survey of the estate made, employed Mr. Charles Bosé. His work is now completed; and after testing it in various ways, by measurement and actual observation, it affords me great satisfaction to state that he is the most accurate surveyor I have ever had the advantage to employ. Judging by actual experience, I can certify that had Mr. Bosé been employed by us in the first instance we should have saved some (£200) two hundred pounds.

GEO. F. M'ARTHUR.

Macquarie Fields, 17 April, 1862.

(To Evidence given by Mr. Whitton, on 29th December, 1863.)

D.

GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.—EXTENSION, MENANGLE TO PICTON.

Bridge over the River Nepean at Menangle.

General dimensions and description of wrought-iron girders.

The two main longitudinal box girders to be built continuously, and with a camber of 4 inches in the centre of each opening; each girder to be 436 feet in length, with a total depth of 11 feet 6 inches. The cell at the top to be 3 feet wide and 1 foot 3 inches deep, and divided into two parts by a longitudinal plate throughout the whole length of the girder. The lower part or main body of the girder to be 10 feet 3 inches in depth, by a width of 2 feet 6 inches, and composed of plates 3 feet wide. Two cross stiffening plates to be fixed inside each girder, and immediately opposite the ends of each of the transverse girders; one at the bottom, and the other in the centre; the former to be 13 inches, and the latter 8 inches deep.

The transverse plate girders to be 26 feet long by 18 inches deep, and to be placed 3 feet apart from centre to centre.

3-inch angle iron to be used throughout, both in these and in the main girders.

Wrought-iron expansion rollers will be required on each pier, to carry the main girders; their extent on the pier to be about 8 feet by 3 feet 6 inches.

The breaking weight of the bridge, when fixed complete, to be not less than 1,800 tons,\* distributed over each span or opening, including the weight of the bridge; and the deflection in the centre of each span not to exceed  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inches when loaded with a distributed weight of 300 tons, exclusive of the weight of the bridge.

The bridge will consist of three spans or openings of 150 feet each in the clear, with four stone piers, 52 feet by 12 feet at the top, or bed of impost course, and the total length to outside of piers 498 feet.

The

\* This would give a sectional area of  $158\frac{1}{2}$  inches for top and bottom of girder.

The following drawings of this bridge are enclosed:—

Drawing No. 1—	General drawing of viaduct.
Do.	3—	Elevation, shewing 150 feet spans with wrought iron girders.
Do.	4—	Elevation, plan, and sections of pier No. 1.
Do.	5—	do.	do.	2.
Do.	6—	do.	do.	3.
Do.	7—	do.	do.	4.

JOHN WHITTON.

*Railway Department,
Sydney, New South Wales,
21 January, 1861.*

*Engineer's Office,
Railway Department,
Sydney, 21 January, 1861.*

My dear Sir,

By the mail which will leave to-morrow, drawings will be forwarded to Capt. Galton for a wrought iron bridge over the River Nepean at Menangle.

A general description only of the girders is given, as Capt. Galton stated in his last letters, that all indents from this department for rolling stock, &c., &c., had been handed over to you, and I therefore presume this will be the case with reference to this bridge, and consequently I have thought it advisable to leave all the details in your hands.

The price for these girders not having been arranged here, Mr. Willcox preferring to leave it for Mr. Brassey's decision, I have to ask you to act on behalf of this Government, in settling the price with Sir S. M. Peto & Co.

The price which has to be determined is for making the girders complete, in accordance with a specification to be prepared by you, and also to include the cost of fixing in their permanent position, after the arrival of the girders in the Colony. The cost of freight to be paid by the Government, and also the unloading at Sydney, loading into trucks, and conveying to Campbelltown by railway; and if the contractors have completed the permanent way from Campbelltown to Menangle by the time the girders arrive here, of which there can be no doubt, the Government will deliver the girders at the Menangle River, where they are to be erected.

Therefore the whole matter to arrange with Sir S. M. Peto & Co. is the cost of the girders in England, and the cost of fixing in this Colony, at per ton.

There are two ways of fixing; the one most economical for the Government, the other most convenient for the contractor. The first is by building the girders adjoining to the bridge, and drawing them over on rollers; the other, erecting staging between the piers, and building the girders in their proper places at once. This process necessitates the erection of staging; and the object of the contractor in adopting this mode would be to make use of the temporary staging to convey the permanent way rails for the Picton end of the line across the river.

My impression is that the girders are worth about from £20 to £22 per ton in England, and that the cost of erecting here complete will be from £5 to £6 a ton, but this matter is left entirely in your hands.

Labourers are paid from 7s. to 10s. a day.

Fitters " " 14s. a day.

Masons, about 15s. a day.

Coals, about 28s. a ton.

The girders, I assume, will be put together in convenient lengths, and riveted complete in England, so that in this Colony very little riveting will be required.

When the arrangements have been completed, I shall be glad if you will forward me a detail drawing of the bed-plates and girders, accompanied by a specification.

John Fowler, Esq.,
2 Queen-square-place, Westminster.

Believe me, &c.,
JOHN WHITTON.

(To Evidence given by Mr. A. Graham, 27th January, 1864.)

E. No. 1.

Jan. 19, /64.

	£	s.	d.
2 carpenter's locks, 6-in. .. .. .	0	9	0
4 pair 4-in. iron butt hinges .. .. .	0	2	8
5 sash fasteners .. .. .	0	5	0
1 door-spring .. .. .	0	2	6
2 latches .. .. .	0	3	0
2 brass handles .. .. .	0	3	0
	£1	5	2

E. No. 2.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

Wednesday, Feb. 11, /63.

Before Judge Cheeke.

Graham v. Railway Commissioner.

This was an action by a contractor to recover the sum of £24 1s., amount of extras in the erection of a station-house at Burwood. The case was commenced on Tuesday, but not being concluded at half-past 4, the further hearing was adjourned until the following day. The witnesses for the plaintiff, in their calculations of the extra excavation and brick-work, made the quantities larger than the witnesses for the defence, but no two of them exactly agreed. The plaintiff claimed for extra stone-work, and an alteration in some windows from solid to box frames, but these it was contended were constructed as shewn in the plan and specification, and therefore not extras. Towards the close of defendant's evidence a document was produced, purporting to be a final account, containing items for extra brick-work and excavation, but not of the quantities now claimed, and at the foot was a receipt in full of the above account. The Judge stated that but for this he should have found for the plaintiff for some of the extras. As it was he must find for the defendant. Mr. Darley for plaintiff; the Crown Solicitor for defendant.

E. No. 3.

E. No. 3.

From the Commissioner, for station at Burwood:—					£	s.	d.
Sept. 13, /63	..	..	..	..	125	4	5
Oct. 21	..	..	..	..	129	5	8
Dec. 8	..	..	..	..	246	7	11
					£500	18	0

(Paper ordered to be appended, 2nd February, 1864.)

F.

University of Melbourne,
Jan. 26, 1864.

Sir,

Mr. Martin Gardiner, C.E., has requested me to state to you my opinion of his attainments and his character. In compliance with this request, I beg to express the high opinion which I have always entertained of Mr. Gardiner's abilities and industry as a mathematician; and I know that a similar opinion of him, while a student, was entertained by my former colleague, the late Dr. Mulcahy, who was one of the most successful mathematical teachers in Europe. Mr. Gardiner highly distinguished himself as a student of the Queen's College, Galway, in the engineering department, at the time in which I was connected with that institution, and has been, I believe, diligent in the practice of his profession both in America and in Australia. So far as my knowledge extends, I gladly bear testimony to the rectitude of his conduct and his unblemished character.

John Lucas, Esq., M.P.,
Chairman of Committee on Public Works Department.

I have, &c.,
W. E. HEARN, L.L.D.

(To Evidence given by John Whitton, Esq., 5th February, 1864.)

G.

Engineer-in-Chief's Office,
Railway Department,
Melbourne, 15 October, 1863.

List of Papers connected with the case of Mr. Martin Gardiner, who was dismissed from this department, for insubordination:—

- 1859.
- No. 1. March 7. Letter from Geo. C. Darbyshire, Engineer-in-Chief. Reports to the Commissioner of Public Works the conduct of Martin Gardiner.
- No. 2. " 8. Minute of the Commissioner of Public Works on ditto.
- No. 3. " 12. Letter of explanation from M. Gardiner, relating to his conduct, and asking that a Board of Enquiry may be appointed upon it.
- No. 4. " 12. Minute of Commissioner on ditto.
- No. 5. " 24. Report of Deputy Surveyor General.
- No. 6. " 31. Minute of Commissioner of Public Works on ditto.

[No. 1.]

Railway Department,
Melbourne, 7 March, 1859.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you that Mr. Martin Gardiner, a draughtsman in this department, absented himself from his duty, not only without permission, but in defiance of my express instructions, from the hour of half-past 11 in the forenoon of this day, and did not return during the usual office hours.

As Mr. Gardiner has thus set an example of insubordination which cannot be permitted to go unpunished, and as he has on other occasions exhibited a want of industry and general inattention to business, I have the honor to suggest that his services may be at once dispensed with.

The Honorable G. S. W. Horne,
Commissioner of Public Works.

I have, &c.,
GEO. C. DARBYSHIRE,
Engineer-in-Chief.

[No. 2.]

Copy of Commissioner of Public Works' Minute on the above letter.

Mr. Gardiner is suspended, pending his reply hereto, which if he cannot justify, he will be dismissed.

G.S.W.H.—8/3/59.

[No. 3.]

Colonial Seed Warehouse,
118, Swanston-street,
12 March, 1859.

Sir,

I have the honor to state I am prepared to prove that my attention to my duties has always been as great as possible, under the unfavourable circumstances in which I found myself situated.

And in order to rebut the assertions made as to my want of industry and attention to business, I will commence by stating that, if I have been idle in the department, it was never intentionally.

Firstly—A great deal of my time has been put astray in waiting for Mr. Adams to supply me with work, and in searching him up from room to room; and although he usually promised to attend to my requests, he almost as often forgot to do so. And that Mr. Adams often failed to supply me with work, was well known to Mr. Darbyshire, when he ordered Mr. Adams to always have two pieces of work before me, so as not to have me waiting so often.

That I have always looked on the neglect of the professional heads of the department as intentional, will be made evident from the enclosed copies of letters which I forwarded to the Engineer-in-Chief, and President of Lands and Works (I received no reply to either).

Secondly—More of my time has often, for consecutive days, been put astray in searching up plans and sections, before they were confided to the care of Mr. Mayes.

Thirdly—

Thirdly—There is another cause of my time being put astray, which I will now state:—Mr. Martin, the senior draughtsman in charge of the room in which I work, is almost continually preaching about his spiritual experiences in the other world, his rows with clergymen, his escape from the Mad-house, and in denying the Christian doctrine, and calling Christ an impostor, &c.

I endeavoured to stop him some time ago, but he only grew more outrageous, and said he would continue to speak in defiance of me, as the days of the inquisition were passed. I have too often been put astray of my duties in listening to the enunciations of slanderous reports, and political and religious principles so repugnant to my convictions, and which I could not always allow to pass uncontradicted.

It was on this account, that as far back as May, 1853, I got Mr. Adams to transfer me to another room; but my peace was not of long duration, for after the lapse of a few days it pleased Mr. Darbyshire, without assigning any cause, to replace me, against my wishes, where I was sure to be again embroiled in the most bitter arguments. Finally, in respect to duty, I will say that if there were a book in which each man's work might, as he completed it, be entered to his credit, I believe it would shew that my industry could stand a favourable comparison with that of any other man in the department.

Now I will explain why I left the office on last Monday.

I heard that Mr. Martin, the draughtsman in charge of the room, was after reporting to Mr. Adams that I was accustomed to say, "My time was very often put astray in searching up-work through Mr. Adams' neglect." I entered the room on Monday morning, and reproached him with having done the deed unknown to me; and I told him that I did not feel myself bound by any tie of honor to screen the sentiments he so often uttered in the room. He retorted in a violent manner, saying he would prove that I was the author of an infamous report concerning the Honorable Charles Gavan Duffy, President of Lands and Works, well known to Mr. Martin himself to have been put in circulation during Mr. Duffy's illness, by a certain clerk in the department. I became enraged at the shocking depravity of the man who could be guilty of such an insinuation (which he knew to be false), and I left the room, and wrote to Mr. Darbyshire to grant me one day, that I might be enabled to lay the case before the Commissioner of Public Works. After waiting some time for a reply, Mr. Darbyshire sent out Mr. Adams with the verbal order, "Mr. Darbyshire says you must find your own time." I went direct to the Commissioner of Public Works, but he would not hear anything I had to say. I returned to the office, and went into Mr. Darbyshire's room to explain the case to him; he laughed at me in scorn, saying it was nothing to him what was said to Mr. Duffy, and contradicted many things I knew to be true. I told him it was his favourite clerk that circulated the infamous report, and that this could be proved; he said that was nothing to him, but that I went out too often, and he would soon put a stop to that. I told him I never went out without permission, and that it was not fair to grant me leave and then look on my absence as a misdemeanour. He ordered me back to my work, and said he would see I got enough of it in future.

I told him I was too excited to work correctly; but as he persisted in his commands, I at length complied, and went to resume my duties.

On re-entering my room I found the senior draughtsman, Mr. Martin, engaged in rather zealous inquiries after bomb-shells; and I at once requested him to have no more talking in the room, in order I might do that duty which I was so often prevented from executing by his noise. He answered as usual in a violent manner "that he would speak as much as ever he liked, in spite of me and all I could do, and that he set me at defiance."

Feeling too angry to continue a dispute which might lead to a breach of the peace, I immediately hurried out of the office, leaving a minute on the attendance book, stating that "I feel too sick and excited to remain at work that day."

That my apprehensions about a breach of the peace being committed, had I insisted on stopping Mr. Martin from speaking, were not without good foundation, can be ascertained by referring to Mr. Council, of the Crown Lands Office, whom Mr. Martin boasts of having assaulted in the public streets.

All the statements which I have now made in my defence, I am prepared to substantiate; and I respectfully request that you will be pleased to appoint a Board of Enquiry, before which I can prove the truth of my statements.

The Honorable G. S. W. Horne,
Commissioner of Public Works.

I have, &c.,
MARTIN GARDINER.

[No. 4.]

Copy of the Minute of the Commissioner of Public Works on the above.

Mr. Hodgkinson will inquire into this, and report the result. Give Mr. Gardiner notice of time so that he may be present. The charge is absents without leave, and refusing to go to his work.

G.S.W.H.,
12/3/59.

[No. 5.]

Melbourne, 24 March, 1859.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you, that in compliance with your minute, dated the 12th instant, on correspondence connected with Mr. Gardiner's case, I have inquired into the charges against him, of leaving the Railway Office, without permission, during office hours, and refusing to return to his work.

After taking the evidence of Messrs. Adams, Martin, Renwick, Mason, and Park—affording Mr. Gardiner the opportunity of questioning those gentlemen—and taking notes of a long verbal statement made by Mr. Gardiner, with the view of rebutting the charges against him, I have arrived at the conclusion that on March 7th, Mr. Gardiner left the Railway Office before noon, without leave, under circumstances not only calculated, if tolerated, to impair the authority of the Engineer-in-Chief, but to render the maintenance of discipline among his professional subordinates impossible.

With reference to the second portion of the charge, it does not appear that Mr. Gardiner ever distinctly refused to go on with his work.

I have, &c.,
CLEMENT HODGKINSON,
Deputy Surveyor General.

The Honorable G. S. W. Horne,
&c., &c., &c.,
Commissioner of Public Works.

[No. 6.]

Copy of Minute written by the Commissioner of Public Works.

Let Mr. Gardiner be informed of the result of the investigation, and that he is dismissed from the position he holds in this department.

G.S.W.H.,
31/3/59.

(To Evidence given by John Rae, Esq., 13 October, 1863, being Supplementary to Appendix A., No. 2, p. 13.)

H.

GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.—SPECIAL TRAINS.

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1861.
July 3..	Sydney to Campbelltown .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 5..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 13..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Minister for Lands.
" 17..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Soldiers.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Engineer-in-Chief.
" 19..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Soldiers.
" 20..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 22..	Do. to Ashfield .. .. .	Goods.
Aug. 2..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Materials for Extension.
" 5..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 5..	Campbelltown to Junction .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 6..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Mr. Wentworth's funeral.
" 9..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Materials for Extension.
" 13..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Naval Brigade.
" 28..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 29..	Do. to Sophienberg .. .. .	Passengers.
Sept. 7..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Manager.
" 9..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 20..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Goods.
" 24..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Do.
Oct. 3..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 8..	Liverpool to Campbelltown .. .. .	Do.
" 9..	Sydney to Davis Flats .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Goods.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 23..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 24..	Campbelltown to Parramatta .. .. .	Rails for Western Extension.
" 25..	Sydney to Ashfield .. .. .	Goods.
" 29..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Manager.
" 31..	Do. to Homebush .. .. .	Goods.
Nov. 7..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Do.
" 15..	Liverpool to Campbelltown .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 20..	Sydney to Homebush .. .. .	Manager.
" 22..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Goods.
" 28..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
Dec. 5..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Do.
" 9..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Do.
" 20..	Do. to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Do. to Fairfield .. .. .	Passengers.
" 26..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Do. to Burwood .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Do.
" 27..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
1862.
Jan. 1..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
" 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 2..	Do. to Rooty Hill.. .. .	Materials for Extensions.
" 2..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Manager.
" 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 3..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
" 4..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 8..	Campbelltown to Liverpool .. .. .	Goods.
" 9..	Sydney to Rooty Hill.. .. .	Materials for Extensions.
" 9..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 16..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Manager.
" 28..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 29..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 29..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Do.
" 31..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
Feb. 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 1..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Do. to South Creek .. .. .	Governor.
" 6..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 9..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Manager.
" 13..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 15..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 19..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Goods.
" 21..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
Mar. 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Premier.
" 6..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Goods.
" 19..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 19..	Parramatta to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Materials for Extensions.

APPENDIX.

123

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1862.
Mar. 27..	Sydney to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Passengers.
" 27..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
April 12..	Do. to Homebush .. .. .	Passengers.
" 21..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to Ashfield .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Do.
" 24..	Junction to Blacktown .. .. .	Mr. Nealds.
" 24..	Sydney to South Creek .. .. .	Manager.
" 24..	Parramatta to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Goods.
" 26..	Sydney to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 29..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Manager.
" 29..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 30..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Governor.
" 30..	Do. to South Creek .. .. .	Manager.
May 3..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Passengers.
" 4..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Minister for Lands.
" 6..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 24..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Volunteers.
" 26..	Campbelltown to Glenlee .. .. .	Engineer-in-Chief.
June 7..	Sydney to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 11..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
" 11..	Campbelltown to Junction .. .. .	Do.
" 16..	Sydney to Campbelltown .. .. .	Governor.
July 2..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Gibbons' Wagons.
" 7..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 9..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Goods.
" 28..	Campbelltown to Menangle .. .. .	Sleepers.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
Aug. 1..	Sydney to Ashfield .. .. .	Goods.
" 9..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 11..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 20..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Rails, &c.
Sept. 1..	Campbelltown to Menangle .. .. .	Manager.
" 2..	Sydney to Junction .. .. .	Passengers.
" 6..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Governor and Ministers.
" 10..	Do. to Macquarie Fields .. .. .	Passengers.
" 25..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
Oct. 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 9..	Do. to Homebush .. .. .	Do.
" 14..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 18..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
Nov. 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 25..	Liverpool to do. .. .. .	Rails, &c.
Dec. 4..	Menangle to Liverpool .. .. .	Do.
" 8..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
" 11..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Goods.
" 31..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
1863.
Jan. 1..	Sydney to Menangle .. .. .	Passengers.
" 1..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 1..	Campbelltown to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 2..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 2..	Liverpool to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 3..	Campbelltown to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 6..	Liverpool to do. .. .. .	Meat.
Jan. 7..	Liverpool to Parramatta .. .. .	Meat.
" 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 12..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 15..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 17..	Sydney to Menangle .. .. .	Randle's Wagons.
" 20..	Liverpool to Parramatta .. .. .	Meat.
" 22..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 23..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 24..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 26..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Goods.
" 26..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Passengers.
" 27..	Liverpool to do. .. .. .	Meat.
" 28..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 29..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
Feb. 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1863.
Feb. 6..	Liverpool to Parramatta .. .. .	Meat.
" 7..	Sydney to Junction .. .. .	Goods.
" 10..	Do. to Fairfield .. .. .	Passengers.
" 10..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Do.
" 23..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Engineer-in-Chief inspecting Bridges.
" 24..	Liverpool to Junction .. .. .	Meat.
" 25..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 27..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
Mar. 2..	Sydney to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Passengers.
" 11..	Liverpool to Junction .. .. .	Meat.
" 13..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 23..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 25..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 27..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 28..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
" 29..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
April 3..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 4..	Do. to Homebush .. .. .	Do.
" 6..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 6..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 6..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Goods.
" 6..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 7..	Parramatta to Liverpool .. .. .	Meat.
" 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 14..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 16..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Parramatta to Liverpool .. .. .	Meat.
May 1..	Sydney to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 7..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 15..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 24..	Do. to Campbelltown .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 26..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Passengers.
" 26..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 29..	Do. to Fairfield .. .. .	Goods.
" 29..	Do. to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Do.
" 29..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Liverpool to Junction .. .. .	Do.
June 1..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 2..	Junction to Homebush .. .. .	Do.
" 3..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 3..	Sydney to Liverpool .. .. .	Passengers.
" 4..	Do. to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Goods.
" 7..	Junction to Homebush .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Sydney to Junction .. .. .	Passengers.
" 11..	Do. to Burwood .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Do. to Penrith .. .. .	Do.
" 18..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
" 19..	Do. to Ashfield .. .. .	Mr. Owen.
" 20..	Do. to Do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 20..	Campbelltown to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 20..	Sydney to Macquarie Fields .. .. .	Minister for Works.
" 29..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Testing Menangle Bridge.
" 29..	Do. to Picton .. .. .	Passengers.
" 29..	Do. to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Goods.
" 29..	Campbelltown to Menangle .. .. .	For Testing.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Sydney to Ashfield .. .. .	Passengers.
" 30..	Do. to Menangle .. .. .	Do.
" 30..	Do. to Picton .. .. .	Governor.
July 1..	Do. to Parramatta .. .. .	Goods.
" 10..	Do. to Liverpool .. .. .	Do.
" 16..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 25..	Do. to Junction .. .. .	Per. Way
" 27..	Do. to Newtown .. .. .	Goods.
" 31..	Junction to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Do.
Aug. 7..	Sydney to Liverpool .. .. .	Telegraph Poles.
" 10..	Junction to Haslem's Creek .. .. .	Goods.
" 19..	Menangle to Picton .. .. .	Do.
" 29..	Sydney to Junction .. .. .	Do.
Sept. 12..	Parramatta to Sydney .. .. .	Do.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 19..	Do. to Homebush .. .. .	Do.
1861. GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—SPECIAL TRAINS.
July 18..	Sydney to Blacktown .. .. .	Passengers.
Aug. 22..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 24..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 27..	Sydney to Parramatta .. .. .	Manager, Mr. Thomas.
Sept. 14..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Timber.
Oct. 4..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Manager.
" 10..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 14..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Timber.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 19..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Timber.

DATE.	WHERE RUN TO.	FOR WHOM RUN.
1861.
Oct. 24..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
" 25..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Timber.
" 29..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Rails.
" 29..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
Nov. 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 1..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Timber.
" 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Blacktown to Sydney.. .. .	Timber.
" 14..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 15..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Timber.
" 18..	Sydney to Blacktown.. .. .	Goods.
" 19..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 20..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Rails.
" 22..	Blacktown to Sydney.. .. .	Timber.
" 25..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
" 26..	Blacktown to Sydney.. .. .	Timber.
" 29..	Blacktown to Sydney .. .. .	Timber.
Dec. 2..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
" 3..	Blacktown to Sydney.. .. .	Timber.
" 5..	Sydney to Blacktown.. .. .	Goods.
" 6..	Blacktown to Sydney .. .. .	Timber.
" 13..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Goods.
" 28..	Junction to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 31..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Rails.
1862.
Jan. 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Long Timber.
" 17..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 27..	Do. to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Rails, &c.
" 28..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Do.
Feb. 14..	Junction to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Passengers.
Mar. 10..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Rails.
" 12..	Rooty Hill to Parramatta .. .. .	Timber.
" 22..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
" 25..	Rooty Hill to Parramatta .. .. .	Timber.
" 30..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
April 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 4..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Blacktown to Parramatta .. .. .	Timber.
" 9..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Rails.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 14..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 15..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 21..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 28..	Junction to South Creek .. .. .	Commissioner.
" 29..	Parramatta to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Goods.
May 1..	Sydney to South Creek .. .. .	Manager.
" 3..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 24..	Do. to Blacktown .. .. .	Windsor Volunteers.
" 26..	Do. to South Creek .. .. .	Rails.
June 2..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Goods.
" 10..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 12..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Empty Wagons.
" 28..	Do. to Penrith .. .. .	Minister for Works.
Aug. 11..	Do. to Rooty Hill .. .. .	Do.
Sept. 1..	Parramatta Junction to Penrith .. .. .	Passengers.
" 2..	Do. do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 3..	Do. do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 4..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 5..	Junction to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 6..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Governor and Ministers.
" 8..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 9..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 11..	Sydney to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 12..	Penrith to Junction .. .. .	Do.
" 17..	Sydney to Penrith .. .. .	Do.
" 22..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Do.
" 25..	Penrith to Junction .. .. .	Do.
" 26..	Sydney to Penrith .. .. .	Minister for Lands.
" 30..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
Oct. 3..	Do. to do. .. .. .	Rails, &c., for Extensions.
" 9..	Junction to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
" 30..	Penrith to Sydney .. .. .	Goods.
" 30..	Sydney to Penrith .. .. .	Governor.
Dec. 1..	Junction to Penrith .. .. .	Engineer-in-Chief 1863.
Jan. 1..	Parramatta to South Creek .. .. .	Passengers.
" 15..	Sydney to Penrith .. .. .	Do.
" 15..	Parramatta to Blacktown .. .. .	Goods.
" 26..	Sydney to Penrith .. .. .	Passengers.
" 28..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Passengers.
April 6..	Junction to Penrith .. .. .	Passengers.
May 29..	Parramatta to do. .. .. .	Goods.

(To Evidence given by N. Trengrouse, Esq., 10 March, 1864.)

I.

Brunswick Villa,
Stanmore Road, Newtown.

To the Chairman and Committee on Disorganized State of Public Works Department.

Gentlemen,

Herewith I beg to enclose, or attach, the copy of an introductory letter given me by Mr. Thomas Holt to Mr. Charles Cowper, and as it refers to my integrity, I should feel obliged by your having it added to my evidence given before you.

(Copy of letter referred to.)

"Camden Villa,
Newtown, 30 August, 1863.

"My dear Sir,

"The bearer, Mr. Trengrouse, has called upon me this afternoon, and asked me to give him an introduction to you. He says he is most anxious to have a few minutes conversation with you, and you would very much oblige me if you could comply with his request. He says he has been suspended, because of the evidence he gave in the inquiry into the conduct of Messrs. Hall and Micklethwait, and he could not possibly have stated other than he did, without uttering a falsehood, of which he is incapable. I have known Mr. Trengrouse several years as a highly respectable man, and I feel sure you will not allow an injustice to be done him, because of his having spoken the truth. Believe me to remain.

"My dear Sir,

"Faithfully Yours,
"THOMAS HOLT.

"The Honorable
"Charles Cowper, Esq., M.P."

The introduction of this letter into my evidence will I trust assist me, as Mr. Whitton appears to have taken considerable pains in attempting to disprove my evidence and libel the veracity of my statements. In the few remarks I purpose troubling you with, I shall confine myself to the reason assigned by Mr. Whitton for my suspension and dismissal from the public service, after faithfully and efficiently performing my duties for the term of nearly ten years; and if I may be permitted to venture an opinion, I would here add, that I think the cause alone assigned for our suspension should be entertained, and not any matter having reference to the department, that may have come out in evidence.

I find the only reason assigned for my unjust suspension from my duties was, for not having made known the irregularities that took place in the Railway Department. I can only again repeat what I have already stated, that I did name this to Mr. Whitton at the time given in my evidence, in confirmation of which I would respectfully call your attention to Mr. Gardiner's evidence, wherein he states, "that Mr. Hall had complained to him of my having spoken to Mr. Whitton about this insubordination, and that it was Mr. Whitton's intention to get rid of both the old and young fellow," meaning myself and son. Mr. Doherty also states, "that he heard in the office of my having complained to Mr. Whitton;" and my son remembers the circumstance, to whom I communicated the conversation had with Mr. Whitton soon after; and with your kind permission I beg to hand in a rough duplicate of my journal for the month in which I made the insubordination known, together with the minute of conversation between myself and Mr. Whitton attached thereto, and would also solicit permission for that to be added to my evidence.

Copy of conversation referred to, taken from the accompanying journal.

Memo. to attach to February's Journal.

"Tuesday, February 5/61.—Up to Mr. Whitton about own work, after which he spoke to me of William's having left the office without permission, and that no one in the office should so act without leave; and he being the first who ever did so to his knowledge, he should make an example of him by stopping a week's pay, about which he had given instructions to Quodling; he (Mr. Whitton) further added, that with his military and other duties, my son was seldom in the office. I told Mr. Whitton I was sorry he should have cause to complain of my son in any way, and felt satisfied he must have been misinformed, especially as regards his leaving the office without permission, as my son had told me he got leave from Mr. Mason; and as regards his being so much from the office, his journals would disprove that; besides, it was well known that my son did the most of Mr. Drewett's work. I asked Mr. Whitton who had made these charges against my son. He said he was not obliged to answer. I replied it must be one of two, either Barton or Drewett, and if the latter, did he ever complain of himself, as he had instructed my son to keep watch while he (Drewett) slept the afternoon away. I told Mr. Whitton it was a pity he had not selected an adult and not my son, a youth, to make an example of, as there were others of his staff much more deserving of censure than he was. I spoke to him of Barton and Mann being so frequently absent, and that Mr. Mann had then been away several days. I also told him of the large quantities of spirits that were drunk in office hours, incapacitating the parties from properly performing their duties, besides wasting the time of others. I spoke of the degrading conversation used in the office. I asked Mr. Whitton if he had not heard of the serious charge preferred against Mr. Hall at Penrith. Mr. Whitton asked me who it was that drank so much in the office; I told him Mr. Hall and Mr. Micklethwait principally. Having mentioned the last name was enough; Mr. Whitton said he did not believe it. I said that may be, but you have had ample proof that it is the case, and referred him to the time he spoke to both Hall and Micklethwait. Mr. Whitton then said, 'I would recommend you, Mr. Trengrouse, to mind your own business, and attend more to your own duties.' I told him that I had done as much as any one in the office. I then retired, Mr. Whitton muttering something which was inaudible."

Mr. Whitton has said my word cannot in any way be relied on. I believe Mr. Whitton is the only person in or out of the Colony who would thus libel my integrity; and I would respectfully ask is there anything disproved in my evidence, by any of the numerous witnesses? It is true Mr. Whitton produced papers respecting Mr. Brady's case; and the day on which Mr. Whitton mentioned this matter before the Committee, was the first time I ever heard any wrong had been committed; quite the reverse on my part, as I had heard that nothing had been proved against Mr. Brady from this; and the fact of the matter being kept so quiet in the office led me to give the answer I did before the Committee. Mr. Whitton said this was an act of fraud on the part of Mr. Brady, but can the charge be made more than that of neglect of duty? When the section of the Sydney line was got out, the quantities of the earth-work were also calculated, and these quantities would have been just the same after the cuttings were got out, as before being touched; therefore, the charge against Mr. Brady would be rather that of neglect of duty in not properly inspecting the works to see that the contractors went the prescribed depth, width, and proper slope to the sides of cuttings; there would be no occasion of measuring these or any cuttings after the work was completed, provided always that the quantities were got out correctly in the first instance, and if the officer in charge saw that the work was carried out, as intended by the section; so that my having made the statement before you, touching Mr. Brady's integrity, should not, I think, militate against me.

Mr. Whitton has stated that the depths given by me for the foundations to Penrith Bridge are incorrect. My reply thereto is, that I obtained my information from the puntman at Penrith, while crossing the Nepean River, and also from an old resident of some standing in Penrith, who had been down in the coffer dam.

Mr.

Mr. Whitton says my experience in railway matters does not warrant him to touch upon my evidence respecting the sharp reverse, or S curves, as adopted on our lines. My reply is, that my experience in these matters is fully and properly explained in my evidence, which is borne out by Messrs. Gardiner and Doherty.

With reference to the answers I have given respecting the spy system carried on in the Railway Department, and also that of the accident at Haslem's Creek, I can but remark that the same information was given by Mr. Richardson to Mr. Nealds as to myself.

Trusting that the few explanations I have given, will satisfactorily shew that I could not possibly have any object in stating other than was strictly true. Apologizing for thus again troubling you, and feeling assured that, to one and all, justice alone will be administered at your hands.

17th March, 1864.

I have, &c.,

N. TRENGROUSE.

(To Evidence given by J. Whitton, Esq., C.E., 10 March, 1864.)

K.

RECEIVED from Messrs. Peto, Brassey, & Betts, through their agent, Mr. Spiller, the sum of one hundred and eighty-one pounds seven shillings, in full payment and satisfaction of my claim for the sum of three hundred and sixty-two pounds fourteen shillings sent in by me to Messrs. Peto, Brassey, & Betts for work and labour done, as per account rendered by me up to this time.

CHARLES FOWLER.

£181 : 7 : 0

MEMORANDUM :—Although the above receipt is given in full settlement of my claim, so as to preclude me legally from demanding any more, yet it is to be left to Mr. Brassey to decide whether any further amount is to be paid.—CHARLES FOWLER.

Custom House Hotel, Macquarie-place,
Sydney, 16 November, 1863.

Dear Sir,

Will you write me saying when you will be in Sydney, and where I can see you, to try if we cannot settle my account against your firm, as it is over three years due, and Mr. Rhodes examined it and went through every item and the dates in his diary and passed the account, and also you have seen Mr. Frazer's letter which confirms this statement.

I am particularly anxious about this being done at once, as I wish to leave here by the next mail for Jubulpor, in India, and it is very important that I should have the needful; and if you state the case to Mr. Brassey and my brother, Mr. John Fowler, they will no doubt make the matter all right with you.

I trust you will be particularly careful not to mention this until all is settled.

I shall be glad to leave, as it will prevent my giving evidence before the Committee of Enquiry, which would bring many matters to daylight, both as regards Whitton, your firm, and John Fowler, and cause such an unpleasant exposition as would never be forgotten, and which I think is much better avoided.

Your immediate attention to this will oblige

Yours truly,
CHARLES FOWLER.

S. Willcox, Esq.,
Campbelltown.

Campbelltown, 18 November, 1863.

Sir,

I have received your letter of the 16th instant.

If I had ever felt any inclination to assist you in leaving the Colony, the concluding paragraph of your letter totally precludes me from holding any intercourse whatever with you.

C. Fowler, Esq.

I am, &c.,
SAML. WILLCOX.

(To Evidence given by C. Fowler, Esq., C.E., 22 March, 1864.)

L.

To the Committee on the Disorganization of the Public Works Department.

Gentlemen,

I am informed that, in the course of his examination or evidence before your Committee, Mr. Whitton presumed to introduce my affairs, and has been allowed to read two papers referring to certain transactions between Messrs. Peto & Co. and myself. As I have several times expressed my desire to be examined, and my wish has been disregarded, except in the case of two drunken clerks and an ex-policeman, I claim my right (the right of every Englishman) to be heard in self-defence.

I may briefly state the circumstance to which this person alluded. It is as follows :—

When it was resolved to inquire into certain differences between Mr. Rhodes and the Railway Department, Mr. Rhodes called upon me to give evidence before the House; this I declined to do unless upon specific terms, which were accepted.

When Mr. Spiller came out he brought a letter of introduction to me from Mr. Brassey. Mr. Rhodes soon after left, but previous to doing so I took my account to him, which, upon examination, was initialled—"Exd.—A.R.," and given to his brother, who was directed to hand it to Spiller, with the remark "It is correct, and must be paid." Some two or three weeks after, not having received a cheque for the amount (£362 12s.) I asked Mr. Spiller if he had got my account, when he pretended he had not received it, but from his manner it was evident he had done so. Mr. Thomas Rhodes swore positively that he directed it, and posted it, and Mr. John Frazer (their book-keeper and accountant) stated he saw him direct it, and put it in the post. Two or three days after Mr. Thomas Rhodes was drowned. I then made out a new account, being a copy of the old one; Mr. Spiller declined to pay it. I then consulted my solicitor, who informed me it would be necessary to send a commission home to examine Mr. Rhodes, which would cost £150, and be a long time before it was settled, and recommended me to make the best terms I could—which was, that I should receive one half the amount down, and forego all legal proceedings, and leave the question to be settled by Mr. Brassey, from whom I have not been able to obtain a reply, although, previous to this, I was in the habit of receiving a letter from him by every mail.

I enclose a letter from Mr. Frazer, who was in the same position (that of book-keeper) when Mr. Rhodes was agent, as Mr. Spiller now is, with Mr. Willcox. This letter is dated May 10th, 1861; and for the date of the receipt drawn up by Mr. Want, Solicitor, which, I apprehend, is in the usual legal style, I refer the Committee.

