LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

FINANCE.

(AUDITOR GENERAL'S MEMORANDUM ON FINANCIAL CONTROL AND AUDIT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be Printed, 23 March, 1865.

MEMORANDUM ON FINANCIAL CONTROL AND AUDIT.

1. The Auditor General having, for his own information, examined carefully into the system of Audit established in New South Wales under the late Mr. Lithgow, in the year 1826, and carried on under modified regulations by that Officer's successors to the present time, begs to transmit, for the information of the Government, the notes which he has made, with such observations as have occurred to him in the course of his inquiry.

2. The duties and powers of the Auditor have never been defined by Act of Parliament. The position hitherto assigned to the office is one of great responsibility and importance, yet it has wanted that authoritative recognition by Parliament which is necessary to the establishment of an effectual check upon the Public Revenue and Expenditure.

Indefinite nature of the duty and powers of Auditor.

3. The earliest rules laid down for the guidance of the Auditor are those which emanating from the Imperial Treasury, under date 13th June, 1826, instruct him to examine and report upon all Accounts and Abstracts that may be referred to him by direction of the Governor.

Earliest rules laid down for guidance of Auditor.

By these Instructions the Auditor is enjoined as follows:—

- 1st. To call upon all Officers to render Accounts, and to see that the transactions to which they refer were conducted in conformity with existing Regulations.
- 2ly. To examine the Accounts; to call for all necessary explanatory documents, and to certify to the correctness of the amount set forth in each Voucher or Abstract.
- 3rdly. To call upon Officers to explain any deviation from the Regulations; to supply Vouchers that may be found wanting; and to correct inaccuracies or informalities in their Accounts; and if the explanation is unsatisfactory, to surcharge them, reporting such surcharge to the Treasurer, and to hold the Treasurer accountable for the recovery of the amount, should he neglect to take proper steps to recover the amount from the defaulter.
- 4thly. To examine the Treasurer's Accounts Current, and certify the same.
- 5thly. To use every exertion to ascertain that the Revenue is duly collected and properly brought to account, and to report any default or irregularity to the Governor.
- 6thly. To make reports to the Governor from time to time, and to submit observations that may occur to the Auditor with reference to his official duties.

4. Under the Instructions above referred to, the system of audit was established, and carried on for five and twenty years. In 1848 further instructions for regulating the future mode of keeping and rendering the Public Accounts, framed upon Resolutions of a Select Committee of the House of Commons, were sent out by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, to the Governor.

Under these Instructions, Estimates of Receipt and Expenditure, under specified Heads of Service, were directed to be prepared and sent Home; and these Estimates were to form the basis of the future system and Plan of Account. The Colonial Secretary was charged with the duty of preparing these Estimates, and the local Auditor was instructed to examine them, and prepare comparative Statements of the estimated and actual Receipt and Expenditure of the Year, shewing and explaining the cause of difference, if any, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

Explanatory of the system established under the above Rules.

The Accounts were ordered to be kept by double entry by the Treasurer. The Cash Book, in duplicate, to be closed and balanced at the end of every month, and the entries of the Cash Book to be classified into the Waste Book. A Journal and Ledger (the former in duplicate) were also to be kept by the Treasurer in the form prescribed.

The Treasurer was directed to send to the Auditor, at the expiration of each month, his Duplicate Cash Book, accompanied by the vouchers in support of the entries. The Auditor is then instructed, after examination, to abstract the entries in the Cash Book under classified heads into Abstract Books, according to a form annexed to the Instructions.

The

Auditor to prepare Warrants for Governor's signature.

The Auditor was thereupon charged with the duty of preparing Warrants for the signature of the Governor. These Warrants were to be transmitted through the Colonial Secretary, by whom, after receiving the Governor's signature, they were to be countersigned and returned to the Auditor. The Auditor is then instructed to transmit the Warrants to the Treasurer, accompanied by one set of the Vouchers, the Cash Book, and a copy of his Abstract Book, from which the classified Services of the month were to be journalized and posted into the Ledger by the Treasurer. At the close of the year it was the Treasurer's duty to transmit to the Auditor his Annual Account Current of Receipt and Expenditure, together with his Journal and Ledger for examination and verification.

This being done, the Cash Book, Journal, and Ledger, were to be returned to the Treasurer, which, with the Annual Accounts, remained in the possession of the Treasurer, the duplicate Cash Book, Warrants, Vouchers, and Abstract Book, remaining in the hands of the Auditor.

These Instructions were authoritative and peremptory in the Crown Colonies; but could not be applied in their integrity to Colonies enjoying Representative Institutions, with the power of dealing with the Public Revenues; and therefore, they were carried out in New South Wales, only so far as they could be made applicable to the circumstances of the Colony at the time.

Practice of audit before payment already established.

5. The system, as above laid down, assumes payment before audit; but the practice of audit before payment having already been established in the Colony, it was not deemed desirable to alter it. The practice was, that claimants upon the public chest sent in their claims to the Auditor for examination. This examination embraced questions—firstly, of authority for the expenditure; secondly, of computations; thirdly, of rates; and, fourthly, of certificates that the services had been duly rendered. If the claims were found to be correct in these respects, they were placed in Warrant by the Auditor for the Governor's signature. When this was obtained, and not till then, were the claims accompanied by the Warrants sent on to the Treasury for liquidation. The discharged claims were then returned to the Auditor, and by him subjected to a further audit, in order to ascertain that the payments had been made by the Treasurer in conformity with the terms of the Warrants.

Jealousy of the Treasury exhibited in those rules.

The constitutional jealousy of the House of Commons, as to the maintenance of a strict control over the Public Expenditure, is exemplified in the fact that the duty of preparing the Warrants for the signature of the Governor was placed in the hands of the Auditor. The Treasurer was excluded from any participation in the preparation of that which was to be the acquittance to himself for the payment of the public moneys, the Colonial Secretary and the Auditor being placed, as it were, as a check over him.

Independence of Auditor.

6. There is a further provision in these Instructions, whereby the Auditor was empowered, upon application to the Governor, to enter the Treasury and Offices of all Sub-Accountants, to compare the Cash or other Balances in the Books of the Treasury or other Offices entrusted with public money, with the Balances represented by their Accounts.

The independent position and authority of the Auditor are here provided for, the tenor of the Instructions generally, establishing the principle of non-intervention on the part of the Executive with the duties of the Auditor.

Mr. Lithgow's opinion as to the application of the system of Double Entry.

7. Upon the receipt of these Instructions in the Colony, it was found that the principles embodied in them had to a great extent been acted upon by the late Mr. Lithgow, at that time in charge of the Audit Department, as appears by his Remarks upon them, published amongst the Parliamentary Papers, under date 31st May, 1848.

The Audited Accounts were not at this time recorded by double entry, as commercially understood, although the principles of the system were borne in mind, and applied by Mr. Lithgow, where he found them practicable.

Subsequent introduction of the system by Mr. F. L. S. Merewether.

Upon that gentleman's retirement, however, in the year 1852, the system of double entry was applied to the Public Accounts under the direction of Mr. F. L. S. Merewether, who succeeded Mr. Lithgow in the office of Auditor General; and the principle has been maintained up to the period of the recent change in the system of conducting the Public Business at the Treasury, introduced at the instigation of Mr. Eagar.

The Officers of the Department regard with pride the system of Accounts as exhibited in the books of the office, which, for perspicuity, accuracy, and comprehensiveness, it is believed, is not exceeded in any other British Colony.

Modification of existing system, upon recommendation of Boards of Inquiry in 1856 and 1857.

8. The system of keeping and auditing the Public Accounts underwent some modification in the years 1858 and 1859, partly upon the recommendation of two Boards of Inquiry which were appointed by the Governor, to investigate and report upon the subject, and partly upon the recommendation of the Auditor General, and the Under Secretary to the Treasury, who were invited by the Government to confer together, with the view to obtain practical suggestions for lessening the work of the two Departments, and for expediting the public business. The most important suggestion in which both the Boards first alluded to concurred was, to work by a system of Cash Advances—to constitute the Heads of Departments, Sub-Accountants—to give them monthly advances, and to make them responsible for the expenditure. This plan was to take the place of the old system of audit before payment, in operation up to that time, and to relieve the Treasurer, to a great extent, of making payments in detail over the counter. The only difference in the recommendation of the two Boards was in this, viz.—that the first-appointed Board, consisting of Messrs. Ward and Rolleston, recommended that the application for advances should be made to the Auditor, and that the Warrants for the Governor's signature should be prepared by him; whilst the second Board, consisting of Messrs. Donaldson (then filling the office of Treasurer), Knox, King, Ward, and Mayne, recommended that Requisitions should be made on the Treasurer, and that the Warrants should should be prepared by him, and submitted for the Auditor's countersignature. The one recommendation had in view the maintenance of the constitutional jealousy of English statesmen over the Treasury in a more direct form than the other, yet both maintained the check over the issue of the public moneys which is secured by the concurrence of the Auditor—a check which has, under recent changes, been broken down.

9. With the view of giving practical effect to the modifications above suggested, and to expedite the public business, the Auditor and Under Secretary to the Treasury were, as has been said, invited to confer as to the best means to be adopted. In their memorandum dated 1st September, 1858, they recommended, in lieu of the system of "Cash Advances" under several separate Warrants as applied for by the Departments, a system of "Bank Credits" to be covered by one general Warrant at the expiration of each month. The difference between the two systems was this, viz.—that under the system of "Cash Advances," the Treasurer paid away what was absolutely the public moneys to the credit of the Heads of Departments and other Public Accountants, to be afterwards accounted for—whilst under the "Bank Credit" system, the Bank found the money upon which the Public Accountant operated, and the Bank was re-imbursed out of the Public Chest by the Governor's Warrant, covering the whole of the Bank advance, at the expiration of every month.

Practical effect given to the modifications suggested.

10. The Bank Credit system was confirmed by the Executive, under their minute of 17th September, 1858, under the following Regulations, viz. :—

Bank Credit system.

- 1st. That the Auditor General was, on the 1st of every month, to notify to the Bank in which the public moneys were deposited, the sums authorized to be drawn during the month by the several Public Officers in whose names Credits were opened, and to furnish a duplicate of this notification to the Treasurer.
- 2nd. On the 1st of the following month, Public Officers were required to furnish to the Auditor Statements of their Drafts, with their Bank Pass Books in support of the same.
- 3rd. The Auditor was to examine these Statements and forward them, the same day, to the Treasurer, with a Warrant for the Governor's signature for the issue and payment by the Treasurer, out of the public moneys in hand, of all and sundry the sums advanced by the Bank to Public Accountants during the month. The Governor's Warrant, supported by a certified Abstract of the Monthly Statements under the hands of the Auditor, and by the Acquittance of the Bank Manager, to constitute the Treasurer's full discharge.

11. In the following year (1859), the Treasurer moved and obtained the sanction of the Executive for the following modification of the Regulations of 1858, with the view of bringing the system of "Bank Credits" more in harmony with clause 55 of the Constitution Act, viz.—that previously to granting a Bank Credit in favour of any Public Accountant, the Treasurer should obtain a Warrant from the Governor, authorizing him to negotiate such credit upon the security of the Cash Balance at the credit of the Treasurer in the Bank. The Warrant to be accompanied by a Statement of the sums likely to be required for the period fixed, to be signed by the Treasurer and Auditor, jointly, as a guarantee to the Governor.

Modification thereof.

12. A subsequent modification was agreed to by the Executive, at the instigation of Mr. Lane, the Under Secretary to the Treasury, and Mr. Rennie, the Chief Clerk of the Audit Office, with the approval of the Auditor General. The suggestions of these gentlemen went to the transference to the Treasurer of the duty previously cast upon the Auditor—1st, of notifying "Credits" to the Bank—the notifications to be certified by the Auditor; 2ndly, of forwarding through the Auditor, Requisitions for special Cash Credits to the Bank; 3rdly, of receiving the Monthly Statements of Cheques drawn by Public Accountants; and 4thly, of preparing the Abstracts of such Statements, and forwarding them to the Auditor, for the purpose of their being placed by him in final Warrant.

Mr. Lane's and Mr. Rennie's recommendations agreed to by the Executive.

13. Throughout the whole of the period to which the Regulations that have been noticed relate, and in all the modifications which have taken place with the view to the improvement and simplification of the system of accounts, up to the period of the recent changes, the independent check of the Auditor upon the issues of public moneys has been steadily maintained. That check has now been taken away, and I purpose to offer a few observations having relation to the recognized principles of audit in the Mother Country, and to the expediency of their application to the circumstances of this Colony.

Independence of the Audit noticeable in all the foregoing changes.

14. It should be understood that the duties which in New South Wales have hitherto devolved upon the Auditor alone, are in England divided between the Comptroller of the Exchequer and the Commissioners of Audit. In a Memorandum on Financial Control, submitted to the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Public Moneys, by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the year 1857, Mr. Gladstone proposes the abolition of the office of Comptroller of Her Majesty's Exchequer, and the transference of its functions of control in a modified form to the Audit Board. This proposal, however, is strongly combated by Lord Monteagle, the Comptroller General of the Exchequer, as being opposed to the constitutional principle of jealousy or mistrust of the Treasury.

Memorandum on "Financial Control," by Mr. Gladstone, (Chancellor of the Exchequer.)

Mr. Gladstone argues that the control vested in the Exchequer by the Act of 1834, is effective only in guarding against issues in excess of the total amount of the Ways and Means granted by Parliament to make good the Supplies voted; and that the Department can exercise no check upon the appropriation of the separate Votes, and therefore that the mode in which the check is applied is defective in principle, as well as highly inconvenient inconvenient in practice. He argues that the controlling Department should not on principle be charged with the duty of conducting the executive details of the business—the responsibility for the regular conduct of the public payments should rest upon the Treasurer alone. At that time (and I believe the system remains unaltered) the public money was placed to the credit of the Exchequer, and the Exchequer gave the daily credits required for conducting the business of payment; but having no knowledge of the public wants, the Exchequer could only act as ordered by the Treasury. The consequences of this mode of conducting the public business were, in Mr. Gladstone's estimation, divided responsibility, a waste of power, inconvenient delays, and an unnecessary multiplication of records; and he maintains that these double operations are not requisite for the purposes of control.

Recommendation that duties of Comptroller of the Exchequer be transferred to Audit Board.

15. The grants of Ways and Means place at the disposal of the Government the money required for carrying on the Public Service, and the votes in Supply define the objects to which that money is to be applied. What Parliament requires is that the power of the Government of using the public revenues shall be limited to the amount of those Ways and Means grants. Such being the nature and object of the restriction which it was the intention of Parliament to impose on the Government, the proper mode of applying the parliamentary check is laid down in Mr. Gladstone's Memorandum as follows:—He suggests that when an Act placing Ways and Means at the disposal of the Government shall have been passed, the Treasury should be required to transmit to the Bank a copy of the Act, accompanied by a certificate countersigned by two of the Commissioners of Audit, shewing the proportion of the Ways and Means to be issued; which certificate should be made the legal authority to the Bank for the transfer of moneys from the Consolidated Fund Account, upon the orders of the Treasury for Supply Services to the extent of the sums certified. By this arrangement, any issue beyond the sum authorized by Parliament would be effectually guarded against, whilst the objectionable practice of making the Department of check the medium of authorizing issues in detail would be avoided.

Theory of control upon issues to a great extent delusive.

16. The theory of subjecting the Government to an independent control before payment, so that the misapplication of a single grant shall be rendered impossible, is treated by Mr. Gladstone as a specious one, but altogether impracticable. He looks upon the concurrence of the Commissioners of Audit in the certificates to be issued to the Bank, as a sufficient check to prevent the issue of public money in excess of the aggregate Ways and Means provided by Parliament; but to attempt to place a direct check upon the Government, with the view to secure a correct appropriation of the separate Votes to the specific Services to which by law they are made applicable, he treats as utterly futile, and, even were it practicable, very undesirable, as tending to shift the responsibility properly belonging to the Treasury, to the shoulders of a Department ignorant of the requirements of the Public Service, and charged with incompatible duties.

Mr. Gladstone's views as to the superiority of control by Audit Commissioners.

17. It will be observed from the foregoing remarks, that whilst Mr. Gladstone wishes to get rid of the control of the Exchequer upon issues, he maintains inviolable the principle of check, by recommending the transfer of the power of control, in a modified form, to the Commissioners of Audit, as he proposes to make the Auditors' verification necessary to the legal issue of the public moneys by the Bank.

This concurrent authority of the Treasury and Audit, for the legal issue of the Public Revenues, forms an essential feature in his plan; and it is here that, it seems to me, the late innovations in the system of conducting the business of the Treasury in this Colony are defective.

Opinion of the Chairman of Audit Board upon Mr. Gladstone's views.

18. In commenting upon Mr. Gladstone's recommendations, Mr. Romilly, the Chairman of the Audit Board, deprecates the imposition upon the Audit Department of any duty partaking of an executive character. The duty of an Auditor of Public Accounts should be, according to him, to pass in review the acts of an Accountant, after those acts have been completed. His functions cannot properly begin until those of the Department whose receipts and payments he has to check have ceased.

He uses these words:—"Any interference, direct or indirect, on the part of the Auditors, previously to payment being made or recorded, cannot but lessen the responsibility of the Accountant. It also renders the Auditor incompetent to express an opinion on acts which he has himself advised and sanctioned. The freest possible action should be left to the Executive to expend the public moneys entrusted to it on its own responsibility, subject nevertheless to the subsequent examination and check of the Auditors. The result of such examination by the Auditors should be reported by them directly to those by whose authority the rules which the Accountant is bound to observe were made. The mere knowledge that any deviations from those rules will be so reported—as, for instance, that deviations from the directions of Parliament will be brought directly under the cognizance of Parliament—cannot but be a most effective check upon improper or irregular expenditure of every kind; and, in so far as the main branches of the Executive are concerned, the publicity which must necessarily be given to such reports to Parliament furnishes the most effectual mode by which control can be exercised through the instrumentality of an Audit Office."

Mr. Romilly's opinion further stated.

19. The direct control exercised by the Comptroller General of the Exchequer over the Advisers of the Crown, should not, in Mr. Romilly's opinion, be exercised by those who are charged with the duty of auditing the Public Accounts; and he strongly deprecates the proposition that the concurrent authority of the Audit Commissioners should be necessary to enable the Treasury to make the ordinary issues to carry on the Public Service. Upon this point he observes that, "if the Comptroller of the Exchequer exercised functions not of an executive character, but analogous to those of the Audit Office, and instead of directly controlling and preventing acts of the Government, maintained a check upon

“ upon those acts after they had been performed, by immediately reporting to Parliament every instance in which he conceived that the directions of Parliament had been infringed, I should then consider that his functions not only ought to be transferred to the Audit Office, but ought not to be vested in any other body.”

20. Publicity is unquestionably the proper, if not the only medium by which an effective check can be maintained. It is difficult to conceive how real responsibility can attach to the acts of the Executive without it. The responsibility for expenditure in respect of Grants of Parliament ought to be left with the Executive, with the free action of which the Auditor ought not to interfere ; but it is essential, to ensure the responsibility contended for, that after the Executive has performed its part, the way in which that part has been performed should be ascertained by Officers thoroughly independent, and the result made known to Parliament.

Publicity the best check upon over issues and misappropriations.

This, I take it, constitutes the true principle of Financial Control. It rests with Parliament to place the Audit of the Accounts on an authoritative and independent basis, and to lay down fixed rules for the effectual carrying out of this principle.

21. This paper would be incomplete were I to omit to notice the objections to Mr. Gladstone's proposals urged by Lord Monteagle. The Comptroller General of the Exchequer is an Officer of the Crown ; but he is made directly responsible to Parliament, and is bound, so far as in him lies, to enforce the just appropriation of the public money voted by the House of Commons.

Opinion of the Comptroller General of the Exchequer on Mr. Gladstone's Memorandum.

The withdrawal of all parliamentary control over the first issue of moneys granted for the Public Service, and the substitution of an Appropriation Audit after expenditure, although combined with publicity, met with His Lordship's uncompromising opposition, as being a proposition fraught with danger to the constitutional privileges of the House of Commons. He rejects the principle of confidence in the Government upon which, he says, Mr. Gladstone's system is grounded. He denies that it has ever been a principle adopted under the British Constitution ; on the contrary, he maintains “ it is constitutional jealousy, and not confidence, upon which our Institutions are founded, and on which the safety of the liberties of England depend.”

The necessity of parliamentary vigilance, jealousy, and even suspicion, over the issues of the public moneys is represented to be “ one of the least controverted and most elementary constitutional truths.”

22. The Royal Commissioners of 1831 describe the Exchequer as “ the great conservator of the Revenues of the Nation.” “ The constitutional function of its Officers, who hold their situations for life, are to provide for the safe keeping and proper appropriation of the public moneys, which are vested in its name, and deposited in its care, until issued under the authority of Parliament for the service of the State ; and it is armed with a power of denying its sanction to any demands upon it for the issue of public money, from whatever Minister or Department they may be made, unless those demands are found in accordance with the determination of the Legislature.”

Powers and authority of the Exchequer.

These were the prescriptive powers of the Exchequer, and they were confirmed and strengthened by the Act of 1834, which was framed and passed upon the recommendation of a Committee of the House of Commons, in whose report this passage occurs, viz. :—“ We are decidedly of opinion that the most efficient restraint upon the Crown and its Ministers, should be preserved and maintained in every plan for reforming the existing system, and that no appropriation of the funds received shall take place under any circumstances, however urgent, without such sanction as shall be a real guarantee to the public for the legality of the appropriation.”

23. The Exchequer possesses no legal control over the public moneys till they are paid into the Exchequer ; and it has sometimes happened that, by intercepting revenue in its progress to the Exchequer, misappropriations have taken place. Hence it is that Mr. Gladstone considers that the Exchequer affords no security that the Government may not order payment, unauthorized by Parliament, to be made out of gross revenues before they are transferred to the Consolidated Fund.

Insufficiency of Exchequer control.

It seems, moreover, to be out of the power of the Exchequer to follow its issues to their appropriation ; and it is asserted by Sir Charles Trevelyan, before the Committee of the House of Commons on Public Moneys, that “ the Paymaster General, and Paymaster of Civil Services, habitually use money belonging to one Head of Service in giving advances for other Services.”

This misapplication of voted moneys is admitted to have counteracted the Exchequer check, and is denounced by Lord Monteagle as contrary to direct statute. His Lordship maintains that the specific appropriation in the Exchequer Warrant is binding upon the Paymaster—that the issue is made under that direct trust which cannot be set aside, by applying such moneys to other Services, without “ a flagrant violation of the law.”

With the view of arresting irregularities of this nature arising in the irresponsible nature of the office of Paymaster, Lord Monteagle recommends the reconstruction of the office, on a basis made directly amenable to parliamentary responsibility.

24. It will be seen, from the foregoing observations, that there exists a considerable conflict of opinion between the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Comptroller General of the Exchequer, as to the expediency of introducing the proposed changes into the system of Financial Control in England. Let us see how the Select Committee of the House of Commons dealt with the question :—

View taken by the Select Committee of the House of Commons upon the question.

- 1stly. In pursuance of that principle of constitutional jealousy over the issues for the Public Service, of which Lord Monteagle speaks, they do not indorse Mr. Gladstone's recommendation for the abolition of the office of Comptroller General of the Exchequer.

2ndly.

- 2ndly. They recommend that the Paymaster General should be made the acting and efficient Head of the Pay Office, performing his duties in person, instead of by deputy.
- 3rdly. They recommend the payment of the Gross Revenue direct into the Exchequer.
- 4thly. They recommend the extension of the Appropriation check and concurrent Audit to the whole of the Departments; and the appointment, by the Commissioners of Audit, of an Officer to check the payments of the Paymaster General from day to day, to follow their appropriation to the proper accounts, and to report to the Commissioners every excess of Vote or other irregularity.
- 5thly. They recommend that the audited Accounts shall be no longer transmitted through the Treasury to Parliament, but direct from the Audit Board; and—
- 6thly. That the position of the Board of Audit, as a great Department of the State, shall be placed upon a footing commensurate with the importance of the duties to be performed, and with the increased power proposed to be conferred upon it.

Arguments founded upon the views before enunciated.

25. In placing before you these views of the Statesmen and Public Officers most conversant with the Financial System of the Mother Country, upon the difficult question of "Financial Control," I think I am doing more towards leading to a just conception of the true principles upon which that control should be established, than by advancing opinions of my own, which, from my short experience, must necessarily be crude and limited. I propose, however, to shew how far the system of Audit in this Colony is in consonance with the principles enunciated in this paper, and what steps I conceive to be necessary to place the office on a firmer and better footing.

In endeavouring to carry out this intention, I shall speak of the system as it was prior to the recent innovations; and I shall endeavour to shew where I think those innovations defective, and where, if at all, they seem to me likely to prove advantageous to the public interests.

I claim the right of speaking with freedom; and I disclaim all bias one way or the other, proceeding from any feeling which my predecessor may have entertained as to the manner in which the changes in the system were brought about.

Principles of Audit explained.

Local Audit.

26. There are two principles of Audit, each claiming advantages and disadvantages peculiar to itself, the one local, the other central. By a local Audit I mean an Audit in the Department, the accounts of which are to be audited, by an Officer of the Audit Department, detached for this special duty. Such is the system in the War and Admiralty Departments in England, and such is the system which the Chief Commissioner of Railways in this Colony wished to see established in his Department.

The advantages of this system are—more accurate knowledge of the accounts and transactions to be audited, greater facilities for the examination of, and, consequently, greater expedition in passing the Accounts.

The disadvantages are—and I cannot state them so well as in the words of the Chairman of the Audit Board, who says,—“There is always a risk in checking the accounts of any Department by Officers placed in that Department—that these Officers will become part and parcel of that Department, be more influenced by the views and feelings of that Department than by those of the office to which they belong; and that, instead so much of checking, they will often be advising and carrying on the work of the Department in which they are placed.”

It is obvious that, if the auditor is converted into an adviser, he cannot afterwards take exception to entries in an account which he himself has contributed to make up; and hence it appears to me that the system of “local” Audit can hardly command public confidence.

Advantages of central Audit.

27. The system of “central” Audit claims more authority, secures greater independence of action, and brings every defect and irregularity before the Officer to whom Parliament looks to certify to the Public Accounts, and therefore is entitled to more confidence; but it is necessarily attended with greater delay, and, perhaps, greater expense.

It is upon this system that the Audit of the Public Accounts has been conducted in New South Wales, from the first establishment of the office up to the present time. In the year 1858 a question was raised by Captain Martindale, R.E., Chief Commissioner of Railways, as to the expedience, or rather convenience, of securing a “local” Audit of the Railway Accounts; but the views of my predecessor being adverse to the principle, the question was decided in favour of the maintenance of the “central” system.

Audit of New South Wales compared with England.

28. The Audit of the Public Accounts in New South Wales embraces both a detailed and appropriation Audit, and in its double Audit is supposed to have superior claims to confidence.

The English Audit, as applied to the large Naval and Military Departments, does not descend to the examination of particulars. The duty of the Audit Officer is to see that the accounts bear evidence of departmental Audit—to compare the expenditure with the Parliamentary Votes, and to see that the expenditure is carried to its proper head in accordance with the Appropriation Act; but with reference to the Miscellaneous Civil Services, the examination of the accounts in detail is imposed upon the Commissioners of Audit, and the practice is pretty much the same as with us.

The object of the Audit, as applied to the Navy and Army Departments, being, as I have stated, to institute a comparison between the sums granted and their expenditure, the checking Officer is not directed to compare the expenditure in detail with the subordinate subordinate items in the Votes, nor are the Auditors entitled to question the Departments, nor to report to Parliament, cases where, in the course of their examination, they may ascertain that the intentions of Parliament, with regard to subordinate items, have been disregarded. The Departmental Audit ascertains that the money expended is accounted for; the Audit Officers' supervision secures that in the account presented to Parliament the amount of the expenditure under each Head of Service is correctly stated.

29. Looking to the recent changes that have been introduced into the Financial System of New South Wales, it will be well to consider to what extent (the check upon issues having been removed) the Audit can be trusted to exercise an effective check upon the misapplication of the funds placed by Parliament at the disposal of the Executive.

Effect of recent changes in "Treasury System."

I assume, of course, that the same jealousy is felt, as to the proper application of the funds voted for carrying on the Public Service, by the People's Representatives in New South Wales, as has characterized the conduct of the House of Commons since the time when they expelled Sir George Carteret, Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen, from the House, for malversation in his office of Treasurer of the Navy in 1669.

The question is, can an Appropriation Audit, after payment, be relied upon as a sufficient check against over-issue or misappropriation?

No Audit, however searching and complete in other respects, can in my mind be considered to furnish that check over expenditure which it is the principal object of an Audit to provide, if any considerable interval is suffered to elapse between the period when the expenditure is incurred and the period when the accounts are finally passed. Experience teaches us that the lapse of time not only deadens the public attention to any cause of complaint, but interposes difficulties in the way of the adoption of remedial measures. The delay necessarily incident to the examining and passing of the Public Accounts, convinces me that the Parliament cannot look to the Audit Office, as at present constituted, to exercise any effective check upon the public expenditure. The Audit after payment, alone, can never constitute a check upon over-issue or misappropriation.

There should be no misunderstanding on this point. Parliament should clearly understand the practical working of the present Financial System, and should not be led to believe that the Audit Office interposes any check whatever upon the Treasury. It has not even the advantage which attends "publicity," since the preparation and presentation of the Public Accounts to Parliament is no longer to form a duty of the Department.

30. In Mr. Eggar's minute, submitted for the approval of the Governor and Executive Council, the design of the Government is stated to be, "to impose on the Treasury, exclusively, the appropriate duty of keeping the Public Account of Receipt and Expenditure, and of exhibiting the results to the Parliament, and to confine the Audit Office to its legitimate province of auditing the Account as kept in the Treasury."

Mr. Eggar's innovations, will they be palatable to Parliament?

The question which has to be solved is this—Will Parliament be pleased to accept this proposition?

Will the Representatives of the People agree to forego their undoubted privilege of controlling the issues of the public moneys?

Will they be content to receive from the great Public Paymaster of the State the Annual Accounts of Receipt and Expenditure as kept by him and under his directions, without establishing an independent Parliamentary check, with power to report to them direct.

Will Parliament depart from that constitutional principle of mistrust which prevails not only at Home but in the other Colonies, and place such unbounded confidence in the Executive, as will hand over to the Treasurer uncontrolled power over the public resources, without devising some new security for the faithful appropriation of the public money?

31. The principle of an Appropriation Audit is undoubtedly necessary for the public security; but I demur to its being considered in itself a sufficient security, or one which can be relied upon as an adequate check upon over-issues or misappropriations. There should be an authority established somewhere, to ascertain the legality of the issue. Whether this authority should be vested, as it formerly has been, in the Auditor, I leave to the wisdom of Parliament to determine. Mr. Gladstone's views—Mr. Romilly's and Lord Monteagle's conflict as to the proper custodian of this authority. Mr. Gladstone advocates the placing of the controlling power, in a modified form, with the Commissioners of Audit; Mr. Romilly deprecates, and Lord Monteagle denounces it—yet all agree that the Treasury should not be left to exercise uncontrolled sway over the issues. If the duty is to be imposed upon the Auditor, it must be made imperative by enactment. As at present constituted, the Audit Office is incapable of exercising any authoritative check upon the Treasury; and how far the system of Audit, as at present established, can be relied upon to justify the withdrawal of all control upon the issues, may be gathered from a review of the arguments urged in this paper. Mr. Gladstone's reasoning goes to show that the control of the Exchequer is, to this extent, delusive; that it cannot follow issues to their appropriation, and hence he argues that it is expedient to place a limited power of control over issues with the Auditors, whose peculiar province it is to check their final appropriation. The other Colonies have borne testimony to the soundness of this reasoning, by establishing their Audit very much upon the principles propounded in Mr. Gladstone's Memorandum. That his recommendations should be distasteful to the Comptroller General of the Exchequer need not create surprise, since those recommendations impugned the efficiency of his office, and went directly to its abolition.

Appropriation Audit insufficient to check over-issues or misappropriations.

Independence and publicity necessary to establish an effectual check.

32. In order to constitute a thoroughly effective Audit, two things are essential—independence and publicity.

The first is necessary to ensure strict and uncompromising inquiry, without fear or favour; the second affords the surest safeguard that the circumstances of the Colony seem to admit of against unfaithful appropriation of Parliamentary Votes.

It is essential, moreover, that this "publicity" should be effected by means of statements and reports made direct to Parliament.

It should be borne in mind that, unless supported by law, no single individual would be able to resist the pressure that might be brought to bear upon him, should his views of duty be out of harmony with the wishes of the Executive Government; and I cannot entertain a doubt that, provided the Legislature came to the determination to be promptly and accurately informed as to the mode in which its grants of public moneys have been dealt with, and provided the Executive will cordially co-operate in instituting an effectual and permanent check upon its own proceedings, the system of "Financial Control" in this Colony may readily be placed on a firm and satisfactory basis.

Mr. Rennie's paper.

33. Appended to this paper will be found a Memorandum by Mr. E. A. Rennie, explanatory of the mode in which the principles of Audit have been applied to the business of the Department. His remarks upon the actual working of the system of Audit established in this Colony will be found to convey much useful information upon matters of detail beyond the scope of this paper to deal with; whilst his animadversions upon the late changes in the mode of conducting the Financial Business of the Colony will be read with interest, as coming from an Officer of great experience, thoroughly conversant with the system of keeping the Public Accounts, and as well acquainted with the true principles of Audit as he is competent to apply them to the practical every-day work of the office.

Notice of the Hon. E. Deas Thomson's recommendations.

34. I shall take the liberty, in conclusion, of enlisting in behalf of the principles herein advocated, the testimony of one of our most experienced public men—I allude to the Honorable E. Deas Thomson, Esq., C.B.—who, in a letter to the Governor General, bearing date 2nd July, 1856, upon the administrative arrangements under Responsible Government, makes the following recommendation with regard to the position of the office of Auditor General.

In clause 26 of this letter (which will be found printed amongst the Parliamentary Papers of the years 1856-57) he says—"In a former part of this paper I have stated that I intended to propose that the office of Auditor General should be placed on a new and improved footing. It is proper to explain, that this suggestion has been taken from the course proposed under similar circumstances in the Colony of Victoria. There the office has been made one entirely independent of the Government for the time being. Its tenure is during good behaviour, and the Auditor General is secured in its emoluments, and only removable from it on Addresses from both Houses of the Legislature. A similar immunity, I find, attaches to the office of Comptroller General of Her Majesty's Exchequer in England," &c.

"The Auditor General should be invested with all the powers that are possessed by the Audit Board in England, the duties of which he will discharge in conjunction with many of those assigned to the Comptroller General; and he should be authorized to communicate direct with the Governor General and the Legislature, on matters connected with his office. It will be necessary, of course, if this suggestion be carried out, that the duties and powers of the Auditor General, and the tenure of his office, should be regulated by legislative enactment," &c.

"Hitherto the Auditor General has been, in effect, the Financial Officer of the Government, charged with the preparation of the Estimates of the Revenue and Expenditure, and with their explanation in the Legislative Council. It is proposed to relieve him entirely of all such duty, and to divest his office of all political character. He should, in fact, be placed in so high and independent a position that, if need be, he may surcharge the Members of the Government itself."

Commissioner of Audit established in Victoria.

The only remark which it may be desirable to add to this extract is, that the office of Auditor General in Victoria is now placed under a Commission composed of three Members, with tenure of office fixed by Parliament, much upon the same footing as is indicated in Mr. Deas Thomson's letter. I perceive, moreover, that there is a Government Bill now before the Parliament in Melbourne, intituled, "An Act to consolidate the Law for the Collection and Payment of the Public Moneys, and the Audit of the Public Accounts," the provisions of which, as well as those of the English Acts 9 and 10 Victoria, c. 92, and 24 and 25 Victoria, c. 93, it may be wise to consult, in the view of any pending legislation on the subject in New South Wales.

CHRIS. ROLLESTON.

Audit Office, Sydney,
27th January, 1865.

OBSERVATIONS and Suggestions upon the mode of Keeping and Auditing the Public Accounts.

1. The Public Accounts almost exclusively represent money transactions, and, like all accounts of money transactions, consist of Statements, more or less in detail, of either Receipts or Payments.

2. Passing by, for the present, the preliminary processes resulting in payments to and disbursements from the Public Treasury, it is to be remarked that the transactions represented by Accounts or Statements of Receipts, are classified either as "Revenue," according to a Schedule set forth in the Ways and Means, or as "Receipts," according to certain other separate heads, for the most part so constituted by statute.

That classification is determined by the description paper or voucher accompanying each sum paid to the central receiving office (either by the public or by a collector of revenue), or by a voucher prepared by the receiving officer on a verbal description obtained from the payer.

To aid in securing a correct classification, the description paper or voucher is framed so as to contain, and when properly attended to it does contain, the following particulars at least, viz. :—

1. The name of the payer.
2. The purpose and period for or on account of which the money is paid.
3. The amount.
4. The head of revenue or receipt under which it is to be credited and classified; and
5. The date of receipt by the receiving officer.

As the value of all subsequent statements or records of each transaction depends largely upon the correct description of it in the first instance, every care is or ought to be taken to ascertain the particulars with the greatest accuracy, and to state them upon the voucher at the time of receipt, and before the transaction is completed, by the actual credit to the public of the sum representing it.

3. The transactions under the second division of accounts, or those represented by Statements of Disbursements from the Public Treasury, are much more numerous and complicated than those embraced under the first division, and the classification of them is consequently somewhat more extensive. They are divided, in the first instance, into "Charges on Revenue," and "Charges on Receipts."

The Charges on Revenue are classified according to the Heads of Service set out in the Annual and other Appropriation Acts, excepting refunds and a few minor charges embraced within the general description of Unclassified Expenditure.

The Charges on Receipts, being mainly the application of those receipts to the special Services for which they have been credited and constituted separate accounts, appear under their respective distinctive heads.

The general heads under which the Charges on Revenue are classified, except when those charges consist entirely of contingent items, are subdivided into "Salaries," and "Contingencies," following the general arrangement of the Estimates of Expenditure—the Contingencies being again in many instances redivided into a number of sub-heads.

To meet the requirements of these numerous divisions and subdivisions, the description papers or vouchers on which payments are made vary considerably in form, although the number of variations has been materially reduced of late years. In general they are framed to give the following particulars, viz. :—

1. The Department incurring the expense.
2. The Vote or Authority under which it is incurred.
3. The name of the claimant.
4. The date or period of service.
5. The particulars of service or supply, with rates or prices.
6. The amount.
7. Certificate of service; and, after payment,
8. The acquittance of the receiver, shewing usually—the date, the name of the paying officer, the amount, the signature of the receiver, and occasionally the signature of a witness.

4. These statements of individual disbursements, forming, as in the case of receipts, the primary records, it is of the utmost importance that they be true to fact, and that every possible means be taken to secure the accuracy of the particulars required to be shewn.

Too much attention cannot be given to all the initiatory proceedings in regard to both branches of account, so as to secure a correct foundation for all subsequent accounts that may be based upon it.

5. Both these classes of transactions, however, whether right or wrong, and whether accurately described on the vouchers or not, form a series of facts which the account-keeper has no alternative but to record exactly as they come before him. Whatever principle he may adopt for keeping his records, it is neither a part nor the design of any system of account-keeping to control the facts to be recorded; that control, if exercised at all, must be exercised upon the preliminary arrangements out of which the facts arise.

6. It is not perhaps necessary here to describe the various books in use at the several offices where cash transactions occur. In all a cash book is an essential requisite, for the immediate entry of each transaction in its order of time, in separate columns, to shew the leading particulars specified on the vouchers; with the addition of one for an index number to each entry—a corresponding number being prominently placed upon the voucher to it.

However limited the transactions of any office may be, it should have, and is supposed to have, a ledger, in some form, in addition to its cash book. In those offices in which the cash transactions are confined to receipts of revenue, and the transfer of those receipts to the Treasury, and also for such as may be appointed pay offices on a small scale, no other book need be kept—the cash entries being abstracted into the ledger, under as many heads as may be required, and checked by a periodical balance sheet. In the larger pay offices a full set of books on the principle of double entry may be desirable. It is to be observed, however, that the advantages of double entry depend upon the faithfulness of the book-keeper, and are, moreover, secured in all cases where the transactions are subject to independent record and check elsewhere.

7. If, on the other hand, with some inconsiderable exceptions, all payments were made at one office, or at a Bank, there would be no necessity for the sub-offices keeping, in regard to payments on their account, more than a simple account current, shewing the extent to which authorities for expenditure had been used by the issue of certificates or cheques; keeping, at the same time, duplicates of all paid or certified accounts, for information and for a check against double charges.

8. If again, there be one Central Receiving and Paying Office, in which all the cash transactions of the minor offices originate or terminate, its books can only be books of record, not of check, as may be shewn hereafter; and, with every precaution taken for their being faithfully kept, should be framed on the generally approved principle of double entry.

9. Further, if a Bank be made the medium of receipts and disbursements on the public account, as proposed in a "Bill to provide for the Collection and Payment of the Public Moneys, &c.," submitted some four years since by Mr. A. Morris to the Legislative Assembly; and as is in a measure already the case, under the hitherto existing roundabout system, that Bank must necessarily be or become the Account-keeper to the Government. Seeing that this must be the case so long as the Government keep their cash at a Bank, it would surely be wiser and more economical to arrange the Bank Account so as to serve any purpose now supposed to be accomplished by the account kept at the Treasury, even at the expense of reimbursing the Bank for the employment of an extra clerk or two.

10. It may be remarked, in passing, that the progress of a large portion of the public money through the hands of the Government, under existing arrangements, creates a vast amount of work for the Banks and for the Government Offices. The nature of that work, and the means of its simplification, may be suggested by the following outline:—

The Public pays cheque in satisfaction of a tax to a Collector of Revenue.

The Collector of Revenue pays said cheque to his public account.

The Collector of Revenue draws cheque on his public account in favour of the Treasury.

The Treasury pays said cheque to its public account.

The Treasury draws cheque against its public account in favour of a Paying Officer.

The Paying Officer lodges said cheque to his public account.

The Paying Officer draws cheque on his public account in favour of the Public Creditor.

These several processes, more or less numerous according to circumstances, involve, to some extent, their being traced and checked by the Examiners.

11. It will be observed, from the description given above of the vouchers to cash transactions, that the extent of the books kept is largely dependent on the Classification of Services as regulated by certain authoritative guides. It is important, therefore, that those guides themselves be judiciously arranged, so as to secure really useful results with the smallest number of divisions, and consequently with a minimum amount of labour. The Schedule of Revenue does not perhaps contain more divisions than are necessary and useful for the Account of Receipts, although it might be somewhat differently framed. In regard to the other branch of account, however, there is room for improvement and simplification in the arrangement of the Heads of Service, and in the practice followed for some years in accounting for expenditure. The following remarks occur in connection with it, and may be conveniently made here:—

12. The Estimates of Expenditure annually laid, by the Governor, before the Legislative Assembly, form the groundwork of all constitutional authority for payments from the Public Revenue; for although the Governor's warrant alone is sufficient to make any such payment legal, that warrant is understood to be based upon and issued pursuant to a specific appropriation of the Revenue in which the three Estates have concurred.

Those Estimates undergo revision and occasional alteration in Committee of Supply; but the details as originally submitted, or as altered, disappear in the final Act of Appropriation, which fixes the maximum limit of parliamentary authority for the application of the Revenue to specific Services. Within that limit, in the absence of any qualifying or controlling Act, the Crown is at liberty to expend the specific grants, irrespective of the details of the Estimates, and accordingly to vary those details in actual expenditure, as the greater benefit of the Public Service may seem to require.

13. For all purposes of account, therefore, in reference to payments under Parliamentary Grants, the several Heads specified in the Appropriation Acts form a sufficient and the only authoritative basis; and provided a payment be sanctioned by the proper authority, it is not necessary to inquire whether it be a salary or a contingent item, or even whether the Service be specified or not in the detailed Estimates on which the Grant has been computed. It is not even necessary that the Paying Officer or the Account-keeper should concern himself with the question whether an account be covered by any Parliamentary Grant or not, the general or special sanction of the Ministers of the Crown being a sufficient authority for him to act upon, and one which he is not entitled to dispute, and has no power to override.

14. The duty of limiting expenditure within such parliamentary authority as may at any time be in force, not resting upon any Paying Officer or Account-keeper, it must rest, as matters now stand, with the responsible Advisers of the Crown, who, in their several departments of administration, issue the authorities for expenditure. By those Ministers severally, and, in the absence of an Auditor or Controller with proper parliamentary powers, by them alone, can the check be applied which would secure that the Parliamentary Grants be not exceeded; or, if these should unavoidably, or through some exigency, be designedly exceeded, would secure the knowledge of any such excess, and at the proper time the application to Parliament for a further grant to meet it.

The attempt to apply such a check by one Office alone, as the Treasury, or by the combined action of the Treasury and the Audit Office, has been shewn by the experience of the past few years to be utterly futile. The energy expended in that attempt has been of little other value than to shew, under a multitude of petty sub-heads of account, when excesses occurred according to the detailed Estimates (these having been taken as the guide instead of the Appropriation Acts), and where parliamentary authority had not been made use of for expenditure.

That information can only be accurately arrived at after all the Services of a year have been paid for, and for the most part too late for any financial use. The portion relating to excesses can, however, for all practical purposes, be sufficiently ascertained where alone it is of importance to know it, namely, in the Ministerial Offices. The portion relating to unexpended Balances of Votes may also be known there, but the information is unimportant if the accounts be properly stated.

15. The inutility, moreover, of mere book-keeping as a check upon expenditure, is very obvious from the consideration that the great bulk of it is for sanctioned and long-established Services imposed upon the Government by statute; and that these Services cannot be dispensed with, or neglected, because of the failure of the Government to obtain, in proper time, a constitutional sanction for the application of the Revenue to meet the cost of them, or because of otherwise deficient legislation. For example, the Establishments of the Legislature, those for the Administration of Justice, and the Establishments for the custody and maintenance of Lunatics and Prisoners must be maintained, whatever the Votes may be; and in this, and all such like expenditure, it appears quite sufficient to compare, when the claims for the year's Services are all liquidated, the amount of expenditure with the amount of Parliamentary Vote; and if in excess, to get the formal sanction of Parliament to the further grant requisite to balance the account.

16. On the other hand, Parliament has expressed a wish to be made acquainted with the expenditure in greater detail than stated in the Appropriation Acts, and even than specified in the Estimates. The Government also frequently demands, on very short notice, the most minute information; and both the Parliament and the Government have occasionally indicated an opinion that the accounts ought to shew the information they ask for at a glance, without considering whether they have laid the foundation for them in such manner as to provide for and secure it.

Efforts have been made, at a vast expense of time and energy, to frame and keep the accounts in such detail as readily to give information in all possible shapes; but experience has abundantly shewn that it is better to save the labour of detailed book-keeping, and expend it when required in abstracting the information from the primary vouchers, to which, for that purpose, there ought to be a good classified index, such as naturally results from the ordinary operations of audit.

17. To these remarks upon the nature, arrangement, and record of the Public Accounts, a few observations may now be added upon the kind of check or audit to which those Accounts are subject.

The precise point in the progress of the public money transactions, from their first inception to their final record, at which an examination or audit shall take place, and the extent of that audit, afford grounds for great diversity of opinion. Both questions appear to depend upon, and may be determined by, the precise object to be accomplished.

18. It will not, perhaps, be questioned that the one main purpose of audit is to secure that the public shall sustain no loss, on the one hand, by deficient collection of revenue; or, on the other, by disbursements in excess of rightful claims; and, in reference to both revenue and disbursements, by improvident arrangements.

These points are determinable only by a comparison of the transactions involving the possibility of such loss, with the laws and regulations relating thereto, passed or established by competent authority.

In prosecuting such comparison, the Auditor requires to ascertain and determine the relation which each sum credited to the public account bears to the amount directed by law or regulation to be so credited, or otherwise ascertained to be due; and in regard to

to the second class of transactions, to ascertain and determine the relation of each payment,—first, to the contract or agreement made with the payee; and secondly, to the amount provided for it by the sanction of Parliament, or, under that, by the sanction of the Executive Government.

19. To enable the Auditor General to perform his duty promptly and effectively, it is obvious that he should be furnished, at the earliest possible period, with the following documents and information, for immediate use and permanent record in his office, viz. :—

For Revenue Accounts.

Authoritative copies of all Laws imposing taxes, duties, rates, and imposts.
 Notification of changes in rates of taxes, &c., pending the passing of new Laws.
 Instructions of Government to Collectors of Revenue.
 Regulations for the Public under Revenue Laws, or otherwise involving the payment of money.
 Names of Collectors of Revenue, and dates of their appointment to or removal from the Public Service.
 Periodical attested returns by Collectors of Revenue of all moneys collected by them.
 Description Vouchers for all transfers of cash to the public account in settlement of their collections.

For Expenditure Accounts.

Authoritative copies of all Acts creating primary charges upon the Revenue, or otherwise involving sanction to expenditure.
 Authoritative copies of the annual Acts for the Appropriation of the Revenue.
 Warrants of the Governor for the issue of the Revenue.
 Minutes of all appointments to and removals from the Public Service, giving office, name, date, pay, and emoluments.
 Minutes of all authorities by Ministers of the Crown individually, or by the Governor and Executive Council, issued for specific disbursements other than for salaries and fixed allowances to public servants.
 Written contracts and agreements for services, or authentic minutes of the essential parts thereof.
 Regulations for expenditure other than under special contracts.
 Regulations for the preparation and presentation of accounts for payment, for the mode of payment, and for taking acquittances.
 Duplicates of the Cash Books kept by the Treasurer or his Sub-Accountants, and the original vouchers to the entries therein.

20. All books of account beyond the cash books being merely books of record, for the information and security, it may be, of the office where cash transactions take place, and not in any way altering those transactions, it does not appear what good purpose can be served by the examination of the supplementary books, after the audit of the transactions themselves, as disclosed in their primary records, has been completed, by their comparison with the documents and information above enumerated.

That comparison, moreover, involves a process that results in shewing the total receipts and the total disbursements under each authority, supplied to the Auditor General for his guidance; and the information thus necessarily obtained in the process of audit, by abstracts from the vouchers, becomes of itself a record that the supplementary books of departments ought to tally with if correctly kept, and forms a complete classified index to every entry of receipt and payment for the Public Service. That index, with the vouchers and authorities, being essential to the progressive audit of the accounts in general, has hitherto formed a permanent record in the office of the Auditor General, in accordance with principles established by high authority.

21. It is to be observed that the Auditor General is not, or ought not to be, altogether limited in his examination by the laws and regulations furnished to him; for those laws and regulations themselves are occasionally found to be defective, and therefore subject to examination and review. Whenever these appear to contain provisions adverse to the public interests, in regard to merely cash transactions, it would be clearly a part of the Auditor General's duty to shew this, with a view to an early rectification.

22. Formerly, the Auditor General was regularly and directly informed of all action taken by the Government in money matters; and, moreover, that officer had very frequently the opportunity given him of pointing out any objection he might be aware of in the interests of the public, before such action was taken. That course operated beneficially in drawing his attention to points of importance affecting the accounts, aided in securing economy, and facilitated audit. Of late years, however, the Auditor General has to a large extent been left to find out what arrangements the Government have made, and what authorities they have issued for the collection and expenditure of the public moneys, and to depend at second hand upon sub-accountants for information that ought unquestionably to be supplied directly from original sources, and independently of any public accountant whose transactions he is called upon to audit.

23. With respect to the time of examination, it seems clear that, as regards receipts of money, there is little or no room for the application of audit until those moneys have been actually credited to the public account. As soon as that has been done, however, the Auditor can test those credits by his previously-acquired independent information, and

and that test ought to be applied at the earliest time practicable. Prior to recent changes, the check was virtually applied to every day's transactions; now it is applied to the accumulated transactions of a month, submitted for audit in about ten or fifteen days after its close.

In reference to disbursements, the question of audit before or after payment occurs for consideration; and here it is to be observed that there are two distinct operations in the audit of this portion of the accounts—one, as to the service rendered and the amount claimed for it; the other, as to the evidence of the claim having been duly satisfied. The first of these operations is obviously the more important, as it is in that the correctness of every payment is tested, and on which the prevention of losses by over-charges mainly depends. That being the case, the value of the audit after payment has been made and control lost over the transaction, is much diminished. If it be remarked here, that the examination so far is attended to by the paying officer, and has been attended to even previously to the accounts reaching his hands, by the officers who certify to the services, it is to be observed that, although the case be so, yet it does not relieve the Auditor General from his examination, inasmuch as he cannot accept an examination made out of his own office, nor consider it a satisfactory ground for his passing accounts as correct.

The Auditor General's examination having to be made, and made thoroughly, it seems rational that its value should be made available at the most effective point, namely, before payment, wherever that may be found to be practicable. The extent of its practicability depends upon how and where the accounts are paid.

24. If, among other things, no account can be paid without a certificate by the officer who has incurred the expense, then an account so certified under a proper arrangement amounts to an order for payment, which the paying officer should no more question than a Bank would question a cheque with a genuine signature; and when a claim has reached the length of having such a certificate attached to it, it is complete for audit; but whether, in the case of all accounts being paid through a single office, the claim should at that stage be passed under review of the Auditor General, and be subject to amendment, if erroneous in any particular, as has frequently been the case, or be allowed to pass on to the further stage of actual payment before such reference to him, is a matter well worthy of full consideration. Of course, if payments be made, as for years they have been, by the certifying officers themselves, the audit cannot, without much inconvenience, be accomplished before payment.

25. The second operation of audit applied to accounts of disbursements, namely, as to the evidence produced by a paying officer of his having actually satisfied the claim set forth in the voucher to his account, is mainly intended to establish the officer's bona fides and to satisfy the requirements of the Appropriation Acts. Incidentally, it serves to bar demands occasionally made for payment of accounts already disposed of.

The acquittance or acknowledgment in some shape, by the receiver of a sum of money, from a public officer, has been, and still is taken, as the chief evidence of payment. Besides this, when cheques are used, there is the additional evidence, if needed, of those cheques themselves, and of the Bank Pass Book in which they appear entered as discharged. The laxity which prevails in regard to filling up and signing the printed forms of acquittance attached to most vouchers is, however, so great, that out of the many thousands that are given and filed there are exceedingly few that, if disputed, would stand investigation in a Court of Law; and but for collateral evidence of payment, would be utterly worthless. This is the more unfortunate, because so large an amount of clerical labour is required for the manufacture of those acquittances, and for their audit after payment.

26. The practice which is extensively followed of giving acquittances by proxy strongly suggests some alteration in the existing modes of payment, that would secure a more satisfactory discharge than that now obtained by the ordinary form of acquittance, occasion less labour, be equally safe in its operation, and easy of check. Those results might, it is believed, be attained by some such arrangement as the following outline indicates.

For contingent charges brought forward on single vouchers, there might be substituted for the acquittance in ordinary use an order on the Pay Office or Government Bank for the amount of the certified account, of which it should form a part, payable to bearer or order—that order to be filled up and signed by the person in whose favour the account is made out, and countersigned by the Payee, thus:—

To the Colonial Treasurer.

Please pay the above sum of _____

_____ on my behalf to _____ or order.

(Signature of Claimant.) _____

Dated _____ 1865.

Counter-signature of Payee _____

Date _____ 1865.

For salaries and allowances of fixed recurrence and amount, payment might be made without the intervention of the parties entitled at all (except perhaps their consent), by simply transferring the amount due to their respective credits at the Bank in which the Government Account is kept, on the last day of each month or period for which payment is usually made. The Bank's certificate that such transfer had been made, would be a valid discharge to the Treasurer for the amount so transferred. The pay earned by each Public Officer would thus be regularly placed, at certain fixed periods, to his private credit, and it would be open to him to leave his private account at the Government Bank or not. In either case, a mass of cheques now drawn, entered and paid at the expense of the Government, would not be required, and so far the work of the Audit Office would be simplified.

It may be objected that this suggested arrangement does not provide for certificates of service being furnished previously to the issue of salary. The answer to such an objection would be, that the only certificate of any importance is a negative one, or in other words, a notice of cessation of duty or pay from any cause. In the absence of any such notice, there is no reason to assume otherwise than that an officer is at his post—a fact usually patent enough from other circumstances, without a certificate—often, too, signed by himself.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both manual and automated techniques. The goal is to ensure that the information gathered is both reliable and comprehensive.

The third part of the document provides a detailed breakdown of the results. It shows how the data was processed and what trends were identified. The author notes that there are several key areas where further investigation is needed.

Finally, the document concludes with a summary of the findings and recommendations for future work. It suggests that regular audits and updates to the data collection process are essential for maintaining the accuracy of the information.

The following table shows the results of the experiments conducted on the effect of the concentration of the solution on the rate of reaction. The concentration of the solution was varied from 0.1 M to 0.5 M, and the rate of reaction was measured by the time taken for the reaction to complete. The results show that the rate of reaction increases with increasing concentration of the solution.

| Concentration of Solution (M) | Time taken for reaction to complete (s) |

The above results indicate that the rate of reaction is directly proportional to the concentration of the solution. This is in agreement with the theory that the rate of reaction increases with increasing concentration of the reactants.

No. 1.

MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE TREASURER.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
Sydney, 17 October, 1864.*

SIR,

I find it necessary to make some further remarks upon the subject of the intended transfer of the Financial Agency in London, as regards our position with respect to letters of credit issued by this branch upon the head office, in favor of and in the hands of third parties.

We are requested to furnish the Bank of New South Wales with a statement of the credits which have been opened by the Government in this Bank, but which will not have been operated upon by 1st January, 1865; but although the Bank can give the information as to the amount of undrawn credits, they will not be thereby exempt from liability to honor the drafts of the holders of these documents; and it will therefore be advisable for the Government to instruct the Colonial Agent (Mr. Hamilton) to hand in all those which may then be outstanding, either in whole or in part, in his favor, in order that they may be cancelled; and either to call in those in favor of the Land and Emigration Commissioners, Her Majesty's Treasury, and others, or to leave them to take their course; the Bank holding in the mean time a corresponding amount of debentures.

I am, &c.,

G. K. INGELOW,
Manager.

SIR,

In reply to your letter of the 11th instant, I am directed to inform you that, if, when the advice of the termination of the agreement between this Government and your Bank, shall reach London, the usual public notice of the payment by the Oriental Bank of the half-year's dividends due on 1st January, 1865, shall have appeared, such dividends shall be paid at your office, in terms of said notice.

If, however, the advertisement shall not have appeared when advice of the termination of the agreement is received, then the payment of the dividends, on and after 1st January next, shall form part of the transactions confided, from that date, to the Bank of New South Wales, as our English Banking Agents.

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letters of the 11th and 17th instant, containing suggestions for the more convenient transfer of the London Banking Business of the Government, from the Oriental Bank Corporation to the Bank of New South Wales; and I am directed by the Honorable the Treasurer to request that you will instruct your London office to the following effect:—

1st. As to payment of half-yearly dividends on debentures, due 1st January, 1865.

If your Chief Manager in London, prior to receipt of advice of the change in the Agency, has advertised, as usual, the dividends referred to, I have to request that he will pay those dividends.

The

ENGLISH BANKING AGENCY.

The cash required for the purpose will be handed to him by the Bank of New South Wales, on the day preceding, viz., on the 31st day of December, 1864.

On the other hand, should the payment of these dividends not have been advertised by your Chief Manager as usual, such payments will be made by the Bank of New South Wales, on the 1st January, in terms of the new agreement.

2nd. With respect to the public notification of the change of Agency, it is considered desirable to leave it as a matter of agreement to the London Managers of the two Banks, who will no doubt act in the way best calculated to protect the credit of the Government.

3rd. With respect to credits and balances of credits, you will please pay to the parties entitled thereunder up to the 31st December, 1864, inclusive, at which date the liabilities of your Bank will cease; and public notification will be made by the Bank of New South Wales, that their liability to the holders will commence on the 1st January, 1865.

The Colonial Agent will be full advised on this point.

SIR,

I am directed to enclose, for your information, the copy of a printed paper, intituled, (a) "English Banking Agency"; the copy of a further (b) letter from the Manager of the Oriental Bank Corporation, Sydney, dated 17th instant; and copy of Treasury (c) letter to the Manager, dated 21st October, 1864.

From these papers, you will find that the Agency has been transferred from the Oriental Bank Corporation to the Bank of New South Wales, from 1st January, 1865.

You will therefore present for payment the letters of credit held by you to the former Bank, up to 31st December, 1864, and after that date to the Bank of New South Wales; and you will be good enough to instruct accordingly the Emigration Commissioners and other holders of credits issued by this Government.

UNDER SECRETARY FOR FINANCE AND TRADE, to GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

S. 516.

*The Treasury, New South Wales,
22 October, 1864.*

SIR,

With reference to the transfer of the Government Banking business in London, from the Oriental Bank Corporation to the Bank of New South Wales, the question has been raised here by the Local Manager of the first-named institution, as to whether they will be allowed their commission of one-half per cent., first, on any balance of account due to them at 31st December, and paid by you on account of this Government; and secondly, upon the payment by them of the half-year's interest on debentures for which funds are to be provided by your London establishment.

As the Oriental Bank, by the sale of debentures, in the ordinary course of business, to an extent sufficient to cover its claim upon this Government, would have the means of securing their commission,—and as the transfer of the whole of our unrealized securities from them to your Bank in London, so as to place the sale in the hands of one Financial Agent, is considered indispensable to their successful disposal,—the Honorable the Treasurer directs me to request that, if demanded by the Oriental Bank, you will pay their claim for commission at the rate before named.

I am further directed to state, that, if any unforeseen circumstances should arise in the transfer of the account, requiring the exercise of a reasonable discretion, you will request your London Manager, in any such case, to use his best judgment on behalf of this Government.

I have, &amp;c.,

HENRY LANE.

SIR,

With reference to my letter of the 21st instant, on the subject of the transfer of the English Banking Agency from the Oriental Banking Corporation to the Bank of New South Wales, I am further directed to request that you will collect the letters of credit issued by this Government through the Oriental Bank, and held by Emigration Commissioners and others in London; and, on the 31st December, 1864, present them, with those held by yourself, at the Oriental Bank; and after cancellation there (in so far as respects payments made by that institution), you will place the said letters in the hands of the Bank of New South Wales, as their authority for opening credits corresponding with the balances unoperated thereupon.

MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
Sydney, 8 November, 1864.*

SIR,

As the subject matter of your letter of 21st ultimo required attention before the departure of the last mail, and no time was then left for further communications in writing, I requested Mr. Murray, the Deputy Manager of the Bank, to see you personally, in order to arrive at an exact understanding upon certain points which might otherwise lead hereafter to some misapprehension. Upon all these subjects I was happy to find there was no difference of opinion; and as a matter of record of what passed, I beg to subjoin an extract of my letter to the Chief Manager of the Corporation, where they are adverted to in detail.

I am, &amp;c.,

GEO. K. INGELOW,
Manager.

[Extract.]

"As regards the dividends due on 1st January next:—It will be seen, by reference to the Treasurer's letter (S. 508, 21st October), that we are requested to pay these dividends, if we have given notice prior to the receipt of this mail's correspondence that we are prepared to do so, on receiving the cash for that purpose from the Bank of New South Wales on the preceding day.

"In that event, I have informed the Treasurer that you will charge  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. commission on the amount disbursed—this is agreed to on his part.

"On the other hand, if such notice of payment of dividend has not been given, then the Bank of New South Wales will do the needful.

" As

"As regards outstanding credits:—I have pointed out to the Treasurer that his opinion is not correct, as regards the non-liability of the Bank to the holders of credits from the contemplated transfer of the Agency; and that therefore, the Bank must hold an amount of debentures equivalent to the amount of the undrawn credits, until such time as they are brought in and cancelled.

"The Treasurer now requests you will hold the necessary quantity of debentures until these credits are discharged.

"As regards the settlement of the balance of the account (if on the debit side) on 31st December, I have informed the Treasurer that this Bank will be entitled to receive their  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. commission on the amount, as otherwise they will have made disbursements to this extent without remuneration.

"To this also the Treasurer agrees, and requests the Bank to charge the commission.

"All these points are mentioned in the Treasurer's letter to Mr. Hamilton, the Representative Agent of the Colony, which has been shewn to us."

SECRETARY, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, to UNDER SECRETARY FOR FINANCE AND TRADE.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 15 December, 1864.*

SIR,

From a conversation lately held with Mr. Ingelow, of the Oriental Bank, in reference to our assumption of the conduct of the English Banking Business of the Government, I gather that he is impressed with the belief that, on the 31st December instant, not only will it be our part to provide in London for interest on the Government Debentures, but also to hand over to the chief office of his establishment, a sum sufficient to cover the debtor balance of the Treasury General Account there.

It may be in your recollection, that this particular item (the debtor balance of the Government account) was not mentioned between us until the very day preceding the departure of the mail (October); and it was then clearly, though verbally, agreed, that the payment of this item on the 31st December should be left optional with the Managing Director of our London Office.

I will thank you, therefore, to apprise Mr. Ingelow of the reservation made by the writer when the intimation of a debtor balance in current account was made to him, and of the position of this Bank in reference thereto.

I have, &c.,

J. OSWALD GILCHRIST,
Secretary.

No. 12.

MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
Sydney, 21 December, 1864.*

SIR,

I have just received a letter from the Treasury, of this (sic) day's date, handing me copy of a communication addressed by the Secretary of the Bank of New South Wales to the Under Secretary of the Treasury.

In consequence of rumours which had reached me that the Bank of New South Wales had not entered into an engagement to take over the account of the Financial Agency in London, on 31st of this month, I addressed a letter to that Bank a few days ago enquiring into the truth of those rumours, and referring them, at the same time, to the published letter from the Treasury to this Bank of 1st October.

Until I received a reply to that letter I did not address myself to the Government, as indeed the answer from the Bank might have shewn that it was not necessary for me to do so.

I now find, by copy of the above-mentioned letter from the Bank of New South Wales, that the settlement of the Government account, on 31st December, was not only never mentioned until the day preceding the departure of the October mail, but that it was "then clearly, though verbally agreed," that the payment of this item (or, in other words, the taking over of the account on 31st December) should be left optional with their London office; and further, the letter concludes with a request that I may be apprised by the Government of the reservation made by the Secretary of the Bank of New South Wales when the intimation of a debtor balance in current account was made to them, and also of the position of that Bank in reference thereto.

These allegations the Government state they confirm in every respect; and in particular, that they adopt the reservation made by the Bank of New South Wales, which left it open to them to take over the account or not as they might find it convenient.

The Government must be aware that these statements of the relative positions of the Bank of New South Wales and the Government, in the matter of the transfer of the Financial Agency, are at variance with the correspondence which has passed between this office and the Treasury.

The first intimation we received of the intention of the Government to transfer the Financial Agency was in the letter from the Treasury of 1st October, in which we were informed that the Treasurer was now in a position to release this Bank, at a specified date, from all the duties of the Agency; and that on and after the 1st January, 1865, the whole of the monetary transactions of the Colony in London would be conducted by the Bank of New South Wales, to whom we were instructed to hand over on that day all unsold debentures, after settlement of our claims.

The Bank of New South Wales now state that the settlement of the claims of this Corporation was never mentioned to them until 21st October, and that then they declined coming under any obligations in the matter.

To prevent, if possible, any misunderstanding in London with respect to this sudden transfer of the Agency, or any contradictory advices forwarded from this end, the Deputy Manager of this Bank called at the Treasury, on the morning of the departure of the October mail, in order to receive a copy of the letter from the Treasury to the Bank of New South Wales upon, in particular, this very point; and there was then read to him (copy of the letter being declined) an extract to the effect that they were to instruct their Manager in London, to pay the Oriental Bank the balance of the Government Account on 31st December.

There was no reservation whatever made in that letter, so far as we were made acquainted with its contents; and feeling satisfied we were fully informed of the wishes and and intentions of the Government, and of the arrangements they had made for the transfer and future conduct of their account in London, we sent forward the correspondence.

But I now learn that, upon by far the most important point—the settlement of the account—the understanding between the Government and the Bank of New South Wales on the one side, and the Government and the Oriental Bank Corporation on the other, is at variance.

Should the Manager of the Bank of New South Wales in London act upon the reservation, and decline taking over the account on 31st December, it is difficult to see what position the Government will be placed in. They have voluntarily come forward at a time when the financial position of the Colony required strong support, to decline the assistance of this Bank, by whom no uneasiness had been expressed at their large responsibilities (£450,000 in cash advances and outstanding credits), and have in lieu thereof, proposed to place the conduct of their financial affairs in London, in the hands of other agents, who are not willing to adopt those responsibilities.

In the mean time, until we receive advices from England, I shall assume that, in the event of the Bank of New South Wales acting upon the reservation, and declining to take over the account, the Oriental Bank will still continue to do what they can to maintain the credit of the Government in the London market; but as there will be, should such be the case, two Agents both holding securities for realization, the position will be an awkward one.

I am, &c.,
GEO. K. INGELOW,
Manager.

MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
Sydney, 14 February, 1865.*

SIR,

I beg to hand you copies of correspondence received by this mail from London, on the subject of the "Financial Agency."

1. Letter from the Oriental Bank, London, to Oriental Bank, Sydney.
2. Letters (3) between Bank of New South Wales, London, and Oriental Bank, London.

It will be seen that the transfer of the Financial Agency, as arranged between your predecessor and the Bank of New South Wales here, would not be carried out on the 31st of last December, in consequence of that Bank declining to provide the necessary funds.

In the mean time, until an answer can be received in London to these letters, the Oriental Bank will continue to protect the credit of the Colony, by making the necessary disbursements, notwithstanding the intimation conveyed to them that their services would not be required after the close of last year.

As it is now, however, a matter of urgent necessity that the present position of affairs in London should be set right, I hope to hear from the Government what steps they propose to take, in sufficient time to enable me to communicate with the Court of Directors by the outgoing mail.

I am, &c.,
GEO. K. INGELOW.

CHIEF MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, LONDON, to MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, SYDNEY.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
London, E.C., 24 December, 1864.*

DEAR SIR,

I have now to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 22nd October, enclosing copies of correspondence which had passed between the Treasury and yourself, from which we learn that our connection with the Government of New South Wales is to be brought to a termination.

Shortly after the arrival of the mail, the Managing Director of the Bank of New South Wales called upon us, and we informed him that we were quite prepared to hand over the Agency on the 31st of December. The dividends had been advertised as payable by us prior to the arrival of the mail, so it was arranged that we should pay them. On mentioning the amount of our claim upon the Government, Mr. Larnach expressed much surprise, and eventually decided that he was not prepared to pay the same and take over the unsold debentures remaining in our hands on 1st January, 1865. As the matter is so clearly defined in paragraph 2 of the Treasurer's letter to you of 1st October, we have no other course left than to refer the matter back to the Government.

I

I enclose copies of the correspondence which has passed between ourselves and the Bank of New South Wales; and we must express our surprise that, for the credit of the Government as well as for their own, some exertion should not have been made by the Bank to complete the arrangement.

We have sold £31,200 of the debentures since the date of my last, at 94 $\frac{1}{4}$  @ 95; and we will go on disposing of them to the best advantage until the Government shall have made the necessary arrangements for removing their account, which, after what has already passed, our Directors hope will not be delayed beyond the mail which brings the reply to this communication.

In conclusion, I would beg your attention to the fact that, to comply with a regulation of the Stock Exchange, we have been obliged to stamp and sign all bonds issued by us since the 1st February, 1862, with the annexed form, of which you were advised on 26th February, 1862; and it remains with the Government to decide whether they made arrangements with you for us to pay the interest on bonds so stamped, or to refuse them when presented by the public.

I am, &c.,

p. Chief Manager.

ASSISTANT MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

Bank of New South Wales,

London, E. C., 21 December, 1864.

DEAR SIR,

As the time is drawing near when the interest on the debt of the Government of New South Wales will have to be paid, may I request that you will, at your early convenience, furnish me with a statement of the amount due in all next month, for interest on debentures, credits, pensions, &c. and on 31st instant I will be prepared to hand you a cheque for the amount, receiving from you, in return, New South Wales Government debentures for an equivalent value, taking them at 90 for every £100.

Referring to the interview I had with you on the 15th instant, and to the memorandum you then gave me of the amount which appears to be due to the Oriental Bank by the Government of New South Wales, I have now to state that the amount named by you is so greatly in excess of what I was led to believe, from the communications that have passed between the Government and the Bank of New South Wales, that I do not feel authorized to pay the same without a reference to the Government. I have therefore to request that, by this or the following mail, you will furnish the Colonial Treasurer with your account, and, in the mean time, that you will proceed with the realization of the Government debentures remaining in your hands, and apply the proceeds to the liquidation of the balance due to your Bank.

I am, &c.,

DIRECTOR, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

Oriental Bank Corporation,
London, 22 December, 1864.

DEAR SIR,

I have to acknowledge receipt of your favor of yesterday; and referring to my personal interview with you this morning, and to the full explanation given you of the exact position of the account between this Corporation and the Government of New South Wales, I would request your attention to the following extract from the communication received on 1st October last, by our Manager in Sydney, from the Colonial Treasurer, intimating the transfer to the Bank of New South Wales, of the English Banking Agency of the Government, on the 1st of January, 1865, viz. :—

“To hand over, on 1st January, 1865, to the Manager of the Bank of New South Wales, all the unsold debentures remaining in the hands of the Oriental Bank, after settlement of claims by the Corporation upon the Government of this Colony.”

90—B

Our

Will you be good enough to let me know whether you distinctly decline to take over the Agency on these terms, as in that case we must again refer the matter to the Government.

I am, &c.,
R. CAMPBELL,
Ag. Chief Manager.

MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

*Bank of New South Wales,

23 December, 1864.*

DEAR SIR,

I am duly in receipt of your letter of yesterday; and without in any way disputing your statement, my own instructions from this Bank in Sydney must be my guide in the settlement of the account of the Government of New South Wales with the Oriental Bank.

I am most unwilling that your Bank should be put to the slightest inconvenience in this matter. I have already received the most ample information from you, and in the most courteous manner. I adhere, however, to the determination as expressed to you in my letter of the 21st instant.

All credits which may come forward on this Bank from the New South Wales Government shall receive due protection.

I am, &c.,
D. LARNACH,
Managing Director.

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 14 February, 1865.*

SIR,

Referring to our conversation of yesterday and this morning, I have the honor to inform you that, after carefully weighing the probable requirements of the Government for the next six months, as estimated by yourself, we find them so considerably in excess of what, from the terms of our agreement, or otherwise, we could possibly have anticipated, that my Directors think it advisable that I should intimate to you without delay that they cannot undertake to provide the funds of which you stand in need.

From advices just received by us from London, we have every reason to believe that we shall, prior to the 1st July, have been already called upon to advance there, for Government purposes, a larger sum than that originally contemplated, whilst there are still large outstanding claims, and on the local account there at present appears a heavy and increasing overdraft.

In fixing £252,000 as the limit to which our advance in London should extend, it was not supposed that even this sum would be required under ordinary circumstances, or in any other way than as a very temporary advance.

We fear, however, that before this balance can be reduced by sale of debentures, it may be necessary for the Government to lower the price to which we are now restricted in effecting sales; but in any case, we would urge upon your Government the necessity of your keeping your London office within the stipulated £252,000, whilst we shall be glad to hear that arrangements can be effected for the speedy reduction of the present local overdraft.

I have, &c.,
SHEPHERD SMITH,
General Manager.

*The Treasury, New South Wales,
16 February, 1865.*

SIR,

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 14th instant, which did not reach this office until near 4 o'clock yesterday.

You will easily understand, that having only just assumed office, the announcement contained in your letter has somewhat surprised me. The Public Account with your Bank is much in the same state as it has been for many months past, and I do not find that any remonstrance was made to the Treasury on this subject; I cannot therefore suppose that the Directors will suddenly issue any stringent orders as to the mode of our transacting business with you.

I have no desire to make any unreasonable request, but it is impossible for me at the moment to make arrangements involving considerations of such magnitude as those which must be had in regard to the present state of our finances. I can assure you that the subject has engaged, and is now engaging, my most anxious attention, and I will at the earliest possible moment communicate with you.

In the mean time I must rely upon the Bank's honoring all such cheques as I may be compelled to draw, which I promise shall be as small in amount as possible.

I have, &c.,

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 17 February, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to reply to your communication of the 16th instant, in which you acknowledge my letter of the 14th idem.

I observe that you express your surprise that any announcement of the wishes of the Directors, as regards the Public Account, should have been addressed to you, when no such remonstrance had been previously made to the Treasury, when the balance was in much the same state as at present; but I must remind you, that at the interview which I had recently with you on the state of the financial position of the Government, you explained very clearly that, to meet the certain and probable demands on the Treasury, a very large increase on the present accommodation afforded by the Bank would be required, and that, at a time when our London office, by reason of the great difficulty of realizing your debentures at present limits, would, in all probability, be called upon to advance to the full extent provided for in our agreement.

My Directors, therefore (having regard to their other constituents), considered it their duty to give you the earliest possible notification of their inability to meet the extraordinary demand which, according to your own views, you will find it necessary to make; and, taking into consideration the large advance which the Bank will probably be under in the London account, to require an early reduction of your present local overdraft.

In the concluding paragraph of your letter, you express your reliance on our honoring all such cheques as you may be compelled to draw, but here I feel it right to say, that I am reluctant to commit the Bank to such an undefined engagement; and I would ask you to state, as explicitly as possible, the extent of your immediate wants, and pending any consideration, to refrain from increasing your present debtor balance.

I have, &c.,

J. OSWALD GILCHRIST.

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, enclosing, for my information, the correspondence received by you from your head office in London, on the subject of the Financial Agency. As the Agency has not been transferred to the Bank of New South Wales, for the reasons stated, I beg to express my thanks for the course taken by your Bank in protecting the credit of the Colony, by making the necessary disbursements pending a reference back for further instructions.

My

My recent assumption of office, and the magnitude of the transactions involved in the financial arrangements of the Government at the present moment, compel me to ask for a short time to consider what proposal should be made to your Bank under a state of things for which I was hardly prepared.

I beg to assure you that not a moment shall be lost in dealing with the subject, but it will be impossible to make any definite proposal by the outgoing mail.

The Government fully appreciates the conduct of your Bank in London; and I have much pleasure in giving expression to the feelings of satisfaction with which my negotiations with you have always been carried on, and with the manner in which, as regards my official intercourse with you, the business of this Government has always been conducted.

THE TREASURER, to GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

S. 54.

*The Treasury, New South Wales,
27 February, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th instant, in reply to my communication of the previous day. Adverting thereto, and to your letter of the 14th, in which you remark,—“from advices just received by us from London, we have every reason to believe that we shall, prior to the 1st July, have been already called upon to advance there, for Government purposes, a larger sum than that originally contemplated.”—I beg to point out to you, that no information has been furnished by your establishment that would enable me to become acquainted with the extent of the advance which your branch in London will be under to this Government. From information, however, that I have received in other quarters, there is every reason to believe that the Oriental Bank in London will not hand over the account with this Government until further directions on the subject shall have been received from the Colony. So far, therefore, as the contemplated advance would have been acted upon by the transfer of the account at home from the Oriental Bank to your establishment, no further consideration is necessary.

With reference to the immediate wants of the Government within the Colony, I beg to state that it will be impossible to detail to your Bank more explicitly than I have already done, the extent of the advance that will probably be required to meet the claims of the Public Service. If, on this understanding, the Bank is not prepared to accede to the demands which may be considered necessary, upon receiving an intimation to that effect, I will communicate with the other Banks, and endeavour to make an arrangement with one or more of them for securing the accommodation.

I have the honor to state that, in such an event, I shall consider the arrangement that now exists with the Bank of New South Wales, as to the entire conduct of the Government Account, at an end, and shall proceed to make such arrangements for the future conduct of it, as to the Government may seem advisable.

I have, &c.,

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 1 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to enclose, for your information, affixed extracts from our London letters by last mail, relative to the agreement between this Bank and the Government as to the conduct of its English Agency, also to the difficulty of effecting sales of the New South Wales Debentures or Treasury Bonds, &c., &c.

I have, &c.,
(For the General Manager),
J. OSWALD GILCHRIST.

[Extracts from Letters, being enclosures referred to in No. 19.]

Bank of New South Wales, London Office, referring to Government English Agency, Debentures Treasury Bonds, &c.

" London, 19 December, 1864.

" I think your Board would expect me to give my views on the credit granted to the Government, in the altered circumstances of your Colony and of our money market. First, then, I regard this credit as a dead lock up of our capital, for the following reasons, viz. :—

" The annual deficit shewn in the accounts of the Colony, and the intention of your Government, as expressed by Sir John Young, on opening the Council in October last, to contract a fresh loan.

" The fact that most of your neighbouring Colonies are not only borrowers, but likely to continue so. The last general Government loan for New Zealand, at 5 per cent, was taken by some of our finance companies at eighty; and as that Government must soon be in the market again, these companies are trying hard to quit their purchase at any rate to leave them a small profit. It is also well known that the Provincial Governments of New Zealand hope to float their loans by means of the guarantee of the general Government of that Colony.

" The small amount sold by the Oriental Bank during the present year, is the best proof I can adduce of the growing unpopularity of your debentures.

" We will furnish the Oriental Bank with funds to pay all interest and credits due in January next, but as your Board could not have contemplated such an advance as is required to pay the Oriental Bank balance, we must wait until we can receive replies to these letters before handing them over the balance. The Oriental Bank will have power to go on selling debentures meanwhile, in order to assist in covering their balance.

" If I were disposed to pay the Oriental Bank the amount of their demand, I am powerless under the agreement. It is there stipulated that the cash advance shall never exceed £252,000 in London. Now this amount will be arrived at next month; for having already advanced £100,000 on Treasury Bonds, the balance will be required on or about the 1st proximo.

" I do not mean to move in advertising the change of Agency for the present. Mr. Ingelow is right in saying it would do more injury to the Government than to the Oriental Bank. I am bound also to say that, so far as I can see, the Oriental Bank have done great justice to your Government in the general conduct of their Agency.

" I think it imperatively necessary that your Board should represent to the Government, that the present mode of selling their debentures will not be permitted by the Stock Exchange after the present parcel is disposed of. The Committee of that body have made a rule that all future loans should be brought out in the regular manner, and tendered for publicly."

" London, 21 December, 1864.

" In again looking over the agreement made with the Oriental Bank—and which has been adopted by us—and the correspondence which passed between Mr. Ingelow and your then Treasurer on the subject, I find that, until we are authorized from the Colony by your Government, we have not the power to pledge any of these debentures for a loan in this market. This view has been confirmed by our Solicitor, Mr. Walton, with whom Mr. Atkins and I had on interview on the subject.

" Having reference to the present quotations of your debentures in this market, I would wish you to understand distinctly that they are not to be relied upon, as before you could judge of their value, you must be informed of the amount sold. I have just had a conversation with Mr. Mullens, and he confirms me most abundantly in the opinion I have expressed in my letter to you of the 19th instant.

" I would specially invite your attention to the reperlusal of Mr. Ingelow's correspondence with your Government, as it will prove to you that he had great difficulty in keeping your Treasurers within proper bounds; and that to effect this, he had on one occasion to refuse to supply them with drafts on England.

" I enclose herewith copy of letter which I have this day addressed to the Manager in charge of the Oriental Bank. I will also, by this mail, hand to you copy of his reply; and if any further correspondence ensue, I will also forward copies up to the evening of the 26th instant.

" Your Government will, of course, bear the cost of stamp of 2s. 6d. per cent., and which must be impressed on all bonds brought upon this market, and bearing date after the passing of our Act of Parliament No. 25 Vic., chap. 22.

" Since the foregoing was written I have had a call from Mr. Campbell, of the Oriental Bank, who came to ascertain whether we were really determined to abide by our letter to him of this date. He read to me portions of his letter of August last, to Mr. Ingelow, and by which he explained very fully to that gentleman the fact that the Treasury Bonds were not only unsaleable in this market, but that a continuance of the present mode of supplying this market was not only absurd, but opposed to the rules of the Stock Exchange.

" I told Mr. Campbell that we were quite determined to abide by my letter, and that as his Bank may have held money on deposit on account of the Government of New South Wales for some portion of the period since the business was transferred to them in 1857, so they must now be content to let their overdrawn account over (sic) until they can hear again from Sydney.

" As already mentioned, I would strongly urge upon your Government the necessity of withdrawing all restrictions. If any minimum is fixed, it should certainly not be over 80 for the £100 debenture; but it will be much more to their advantage to leave us to deal with the sale as in our judgment may be best."

" London, 26 December, 1864.

" In continuation of my letters to you of the 19th and 21st instant, I now beg to hand you copies of my correspondence with the Oriental Bank. I think it possible they may even yet accept the offer we have made them; but if they should not, it will have the effect of proving to your Government that if they make an arrangement for an advance of money, they must take care to keep within their agreement. It is of course well known to the Oriental Bank that, although our advance at this moment would be £258,000, a further considerable advance would be required within a month to meet credits, &c. I enclose you the memorandum handed to me by the Oriental Bank on the 15th instant.

" It may be well to inform all your Governments throughout Australia and New Zealand, that in consequence of the enormous impetus given to trade and improvement all over the globe, this country has the whole world knocking at her doors, and asking the loan of money."

" Referring to the interview I had with you on the 15th instant, and to the memorandum you then gave me, of the amount which appeared to be due to the Oriental Bank by the Government of New South Wales, I have now to state, that the amount named by you is so greatly in excess of what I was led to believe, from the communications that have passed between the Government and the Bank of New South Wales, that I do not feel authorized to pay the same without a reference to the Government. I have therefore to request, that by this or the following mail, you will furnish the Colonial Treasurer with your account; and in the mean time, that you will proceed with the realization of the Government Debentures remaining in your hands, and apply the proceeds to the liquidation of the balance due to your Bank.

" Our claim on the Government at that date, after providing for the dividends then due, which you are aware had been advertised as payable by us, previous to receipt of last mail, will amount to £258,000, the bonds remaining in our hands amount to £530,000, and we are prepared to carry out the arrangement as settled between our Manager and the Government of New South Wales.

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 1 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 27th ultimo. The remark in mine of the 17th idem to which you advert, touching contemplated advances having been exceeded, &c., has not, it is true, been supported by any written information from the Bank, but has been confirmed to you verbally, at our interviews, both by Mr. Gilchrist and myself. In order, however, that want of a more formal mode of information may not be complained of, I have now the pleasure to hand you extracts from our London letters by last mail, commenting on the subject generally.

*Vide No. 18
supra.*

With reference to the local account, yesterday overdrawn to the amount of £104,000, and your expressed inability to more explicitly detail your wants than you have already (verbally) done, I am directed to say that this Bank cannot undertake to meet these (indefinite in everything, save magnitude, as they are) or "any demands which may be considered necessary," and that the Board will feel obliged by your adopting early measures for the reduction of the present indebtedness of the Government. At the same time, I am to intimate to you that this Bank is perfectly prepared to carry out to the fullest extent any agreement which it has come under to the Government, either in respect to the English Agency or its local banking account.

I have, &c.,

SHEPHERD SMITH,
General Manager.

SIR,

Referring to the concluding paragraph of your letter of the 1st instant, I shall feel obliged by your informing me, as early as possible, whether, in the event of the other Banks stipulating, as a condition of their making advances to the Government, that a portion of the Public Revenue shall be deposited with them, your Bank will make any objection to such an arrangement, or whether you will prefer, as heretofore, to make such advances, and retain the whole of the Government Business.

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, SYDNEY, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 8 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 6th instant; and, in confirmation of my communications of the 1st idem, and 14th and 17th ultimo, to inform you that my Directors decline to make the further advances to which you allude.

Under the agreement existing between the Government and this Institution, it is specially stipulated that we shall not be required to advance at any one time, to the Government, more than £252,000 in London, whilst the limit of the local overdraft was, after correspondence on the subject in March last, expressly fixed at about £50,000.

You are fully advised that provision has been made by us for the London advance to the amount named; and you are aware that not only have we supplied the £50,000 under the local account, but that, in our desire to meet the wishes and exigencies of the Government, we have allowed that account to be overdrawn to the extent of nearly £150,000.

Under these circumstances, it is felt by my Directors that on our part the terms of the agreement have been so liberally fulfilled, that a refusal to advance a still further sum of £150,000, on the local account alone, or even to continue the present excessive overdraft, can form no just ground for the transfer of any portion of the Government local business from this Institution.

If however, your Government find it absolutely necessary to effect other arrangements to secure further advances, and such arrangements involve the deposit of any portion of the Public Revenue with any of the other local banks, my Directors are not disposed to plead current agreements as a barrier.

A determination to divert any portion of your local business from this Institution will naturally be considered by us as equivalent to a cancellation of said agreement, and the refundment of our advance must be concurrent with the transfer of any portion of your account.

We of course expect the whole of the Revenue to be lodged with us, pending the liquidation of our advance.

I have, &c.,

SHEPHERD SMITH,
General Manager.

THE TREASURER, to GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

S. 58.

*The Treasury, New South Wales,
9 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, in answer to mine of the 6th, requesting to be informed whether, in the event of the other Banks stipulating, as a condition of their making advances to the Government, that a portion of the Public Revenue shall be deposited with them, your Bank will make any objection to such an arrangement.

You convey to me, in reply, the opinion of your Directors, that their refusal to advance a still further sum of (£150,000) one hundred and fifty thousand pounds could form no ground for the removal from your Bank of any portion of the Government local business; and then you proceed to state as follows, viz. :—"If, however, the Government find it absolutely necessary to effect other arrangements to secure further advances, and such arrangements involve the deposit of any portion of the Public Revenue with any one of the other local Banks, the Directors are not disposed to plead current agreements as a barrier."

This liberal determination of your Board of Directors suggests to me a course which, if mutually agreed to, will secure to the Bank the continuance of the Government local business, and will afford means of relief to the Government in their present circumstances of temporary embarrassment.

It appears from the enclosures in your letter of the 1st instant, that the Managing Director declined to pay the balance due to the Oriental Bank, London, on account of this Government, on 1st January, 1865, pending further reference on the subject to Sydney; and in a letter from the Oriental Bank, Sydney, dated 14th February, 1865, Mr. Ingelow states that the transfer of the Agency, as arranged between the late Treasurer and the Bank of New South Wales here, would not be carried out in London on the 31st of last December, in consequence of the Bank of New South Wales declining to provide the necessary funds. In fact, some difference of opinion has arisen as to the precise terms of the agreement of October, 1864, and a doubt may therefore reasonably exist whether your Bank will consent to take over the London business, on the conditions of the agreement, as interpreted by the Oriental Bank.

Under these circumstances, I would propose, for the consideration of your Board of Directors, that the said agreement of October last, designed by the late Colonial Treasurer, should be forthwith cancelled, and that the Financial Agency in England be managed by the Oriental Bank Corporation, as formerly.

SIR,

The letter from the Treasury, No. S. 59, of the 10th March, was duly received, and the subject contained therein is under consideration.

Until we are in receipt of our letters from London by the mail now due, bringing us definite information of the course which was adopted by the two Banks on 31st of last December,

December, and also later news on the state of the Government Account and the prospects of the money market, we do not feel at liberty to give any decided answer to the proposition contained in the letter in question.

Immediately on receipt of these advices we will give the matter further consideration.

I am, &c.,
GEO. K. INGELOW,
Manager.

No. 26.

GENERAL MANAGER, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL TREASURER.

*Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 20 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I received in due course your letter of the 9th instant, and have deferred acknowledgment until, by the arrival of the English mail, I should be in possession of latest advices respecting the action adopted in London, in relation to the transfer of the Government business from the Oriental to this Bank.

I find from my correspondence (extracts from which I send you herewith), that this transfer has not been effected; and that under date 30th December last, your representative had determined to leave matters as they were, pending replies from the Colonial Government. Notwithstanding this, however, you will observe that our Managing Director has assured Mr. Hamilton that the Bank will, in case of need, protect the credits of the Government; and has not only been prepared to fulfil to the utmost our portion of the agreement, but has exhibited a general desire to protect the interest of the Colony.

I wish it to be distinctly remembered, that our agreement required us to advance £252,000 in London, and no more. This sum we have provided for the purpose; and if we now consent, under conditions, to cancel that agreement, as suggested by you, it is not because doubts can exist as to its precise terms, but that the requirements of the Government are now so far in excess of any amount then contemplated or arranged for, that it is necessary in the interests of the Colony to provide for further advances, which the Government would have difficulty in obtaining, were we to insist upon the observance of that agreement in its integrity.

Under other circumstances, we should have considered that, before consenting to cancel our present London Agency agreement, we were entitled to information from the Government respecting the terms they are prepared to give for extended accommodation; but as to ask for this at present would involve loss of time, and possibly prevent our arriving at a definite understanding before the departure of the out-going mail, and thus the interests of the Colony and the Bank would suffer, I am directed to intimate at once, that we shall consent to the cancellation of our agreement for the conduct of your Financial Agency in England, conditionally upon mutually satisfactory arrangements being made for the refund to us of all sums due by the Government to the Bank, and an equitable adjustment of commissions and interest which must have accrued in our favour; and upon the understanding that the whole of the local business shall be continued with us, the present overdraft here reduced to below £50,000, and that hereafter it shall never exceed that sum.

I write in haste, and shall be glad to meet you to arrange these latter details, so that we may each of us be enabled to send definite instructions to England by this month's mail.

I have, &c.,
SHEPHERD SMITH,
General Manager.

[Enclosure in No. 26.]

Extract from London letter, dated 26th January, 1865.

"The credits issued by your office in favor of the Commissioners of H. M. Treasury for £18,136 15s. 3d., and for £3,687 8s. 8d., have met with due honor, and were paid on the 23rd inst.

"Capt. Mayne has been with me, and I have assured him that all his wants, on account of the New South Wales Government, shall be supplied. I have paid him his own allowance of pension up to the end of last month.

"I enclose copy of letter, of date the 29th ultimo, received from Mr. Hamilton, with copy of my reply thereto. Although we have not yet taken up the account of the Government, you may be well assured that nothing will be wanting on our part to uphold the credit of your Colony.

"I have cut a number of slips from our newspapers, bearing on loans, which I forward, for the information of your Board, by this mail. Amongst them you will find the particulars of a loan of £234,000, brought out lately for the Cape of Good Hope by the Agents for Crown Colonies; it was in 5 per cent. bonds, payable in fifteen years, with a sinking fund of 1 per cent. per annum; and although it was payable in old 6 per cent. bonds falling due this year, the price fixed by the Agents for Crown Colonies was 90, including accrued interest for three months."

Copy of Correspondence between Edward Hamilton, Representative Agent of the Government of New South Wales, and the Bank of New South Wales.

" 196, Gresham House,
" 29 December, 1864.

" Sir,

" I have received advice from the Under Secretary of the Treasury, New South Wales, dated Sydney, 20th and 22nd October, 1864, informing me that the Banking Agency in London of the Government of that Colony is to be transferred from the Oriental Banking Corporation to your Bank, from the 1st January, 1865; and I am instructed to collect all letters of credit issued in favor of the Emigration Commissioners, myself, and others, on the 31st inst., and to place the said letters in your Bank, as your authority for opening credits corresponding with the balances unoperated upon.

" I shall feel obliged if you will inform me whether you are prepared, upon receiving the said letters of credit, to honor the drafts of authorized parties upon your Bank on and after Monday next, January 2nd, 1865. If you are, I will give notice of the transfer to the Emigration Commissioners and others holding credits on behalf of the Colonial Government.

" I am, &c.,
" EDWARD HAMILTON,
" Rep. Agent of N. S. Wales."

" The Managing Director,
" Bank of N. S. Wales, London."

" Bank of N. S. Wales,
" London, 30 December, 1864.

" Sir,

" As some slight difficulty has arisen in the transfer of the Banking Agency of the Government of New South Wales from the Oriental Bank to this Bank, I think it would be in the interest of all concerned if the Oriental were to carry on the Agency until the change is definitely settled.

" If you should find any difficulty with the Oriental Bank (which I do not expect), then this Bank will advance to you and to all others holding the credits of the Government of New South Wales such money as you may require.

" I am, &c.,
" D. LARNACH,
" Managing Director."

" 30 December, 1864.

" Sir,

" I beg to acknowledge your reply of this date to my letter of the 29th instant. It appears to me that I have no option but to recognize the temporary arrangement which I understand that you have entered into with the Oriental Banking Corporation for the protection of drafts on outstanding credits; I shall therefore leave matters as they are, pending replies from the Colonial Government. As to future credits, I will communicate with you as soon as any come to hand.

No. 27.

SECRETARY, BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES, to THE HONORABLE THE COLONIAL
TREASURER.

Bank of New South Wales,
Sydney, 20 March, 1865.

SIR,

By way of supplementing the extracts from our London advices forwarded by the General Manager this day, I am directed to hand you copy of a further letter, dated 26th January last, and forwarding Accounts Current between the Government and our London office, on Treasury Bills and General Account, copies of which are also furnished you herewith.

I beg to call your attention to the remarks in the letter, bearing upon the objections made, both by the Bank of England and the holders of debentures, to a compliance with the requirements of Government in regard to furnishing duplicate vouchers for the payments made to them, and to affixing a stamp to the schedule of coupons respectively. On the question of discontinuing these practices, I will be glad to have your decision in time to communicate with our London office, as they desire, by the outgoing mail.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. M. PALMER.
(For Secretary.)

[Enclosure in No. 27.]

The Secretary, Sydney.

Bank of New South Wales,
London, 26 January, 1865.

Dear Sir,

I enclose herewith the Government account of the coupons paid during the six months ended the 31st ultimo, with a specification of the numbers paid each day, and a summary of the total, which, with the coupons themselves as vouchers of payment (forwarded by this mail), you will please hand to the Honorable the Treasurer.

For the like purpose, I also hand you herewith the accounts current with the Government on Treasury Bill Account, which, after being credited with the proceeds of all bills sold to this date, shews a debit balance of £89,241 14s. 4d., and on General Account, which, including all payments, shews a debit balance of £21,895 11s. 11d.

Attached

Attached to this account are Capt. Mayne's receipt for pension due to the 31st ultimo, £71 8s., and the Bank of England's receipts for £18,136 15s. 3d., and £3,687 8s. 8d. for the amount of your credits Nos. 1/2 in favour of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury. The original credits indorsed by the Secretary to the Treasury in favor of the Post Master General, who blank indorses them, were placed in our hands by the Bank of England, who demanded payment of them without complying with the requirements of the credit to produce payment vouchers in duplicate.

We were informed by the Oriental Bank, the officers of the Bank of England and of the Post Office, that such a course had never before been adopted of requiring receipts or vouchers of payment from the Lords of the Treasury, and it is against their practice to grant them. To prevent any annoyance by the credits being returned to the Treasury, we prevailed upon the Bank of England to give their credit slips in duplicate, which we consider perfectly sufficient, and I trust they will be accepted by the Honorable the Treasurer.

Acting under instructions from the Honorable the Treasurer, communicated through you, we require the parties obtaining payment of the coupons to affix a stamp to the schedule specifying them. This was, I believe, introduced by the Oriental Bank, when they first became Agents for the Government; but they have for some time discontinued the practice, and our still insisting upon it causes annoyance to the debenture holders. I shall be glad if you will bring this matter under the consideration of the Honorable the Treasurer, and obtain his sanction to discontinue it.

You will please inform the Honorable the Treasurer that the Treasury Bills delivered since the 1st proximo (sic) have been sold ex the interest accrued to the 31st ultimo.

The purchasers objected to pay the accumulated interest, as upon it they were liable to income tax; we therefore arranged with the Oriental Bank to stamp the bills with the interest paid to the 31st December, and carry it to the credit of Government.

I am, &c.,
JOHN CURRIE,
Secretary.

London, 17 January, 1865.

I hereby acknowledge to have received from the Government of New South Wales, by the hands of the Bank of New South Wales in London, the sum of seventy-one pounds and eight shillings, being the amount of pension due to me by the Government, at 31st December, in terms of the Under Secretary's letter of 18th November last.

W. C. MAYNE.

£71 8s.

Bank of England,
23 January, 1865.

I do hereby certify that the Bank of New South Wales has this day paid into the Bank of England, the sum of eighteen thousand one hundred and thirty-six pounds, fifteen shillings and three-pence, to the account of H. M. Postmaster General.

For the Governor and Company of the Bank of England,
W. BAWTREE.

I have, &c.,

HENRY LANE.

No. 29.

SUB-MANAGER, ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, SYDNEY, to UNDER SECRETARY FOR FINANCE AND TRADE.

*Oriental Bank Corporation,
Sydney, 21 March, 1865.*

SIR,

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter S. 67 of this date, enclosing—

- |  |     |
