CIVIL SERVICE BILL.

(PETITION IN FAVOUR OF—MEMBERS OF THE CIVIL SERVICE.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 18 September, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

The Petition of the undersigned Members of the Civil Service of New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That the passing of a measure dealing with the questions of Civil Service Regulation and Superannuation has been for many years anxiously awaited by the general body of the Permanent Public Service of the Colony.

2. That since the Superannuation Act Repeal Act of 1873 the above questions have engaged the attention of several Administrations whose desire to deal with them has been frustrated by various contingencies.

3. That a majority of the gentlemen now constituting your Honorable House have, in the past, expressed themselves in favour of early legislation upon these subjects.

4. That your Petitioners have observed with satisfaction that the position of the Civil Service is one of the matters with which your Honorable House has been invited to deal during the present Session, and trust that the length and arduousness of its labours may not prevent your Honorable House from arriving at a conclusion upon the proposals lately made with reference to that important subject.

5. Your Petitioners venture to express the opinion that the interests of the public, even more than the individual welfare of your Petitioners, necessitate the early decision of the questions thus presented.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House may in its wisdom see fit to resume and conclude, during the present Session, the consideration of the Bill now in progress "for the Regulation of the Civil Service for providing Superannuation and Retiring Allowances to the Members thereof and for other purposes."

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

(OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL—RETIRING ALLOWANCES.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 July, 1884.

OPINION of the Honorable the Attorney-General on the provision made by the Constitution Act for Retiring Allowances to non-political Officers of the Government.

My honorable colleague the Colonial Secretary desires to be informed, in view of his preparation of the Civil Service Bill, whether the sum provided under Schedule B to the Constitution Act for retiring allowances to officers of Government, not liable to retire on political grounds, is applicable to any other officers than those who were in the Public Service prior to the passing of the Constitution Act. The question is one which must necessarily be determined before the scheme for the construction of the Fund for Civil Service Superannuation can be definitely settled. By section 52 of the Constitution Act it is provided that not more than three thousand five hundred pounds in each year shall be payable for pensions to superannuated officers, and that the amount of such pensions should be according to the scales and rates fixed by the Imperial Superannuation Act, 4 and 5 William IV, c. 24. Schedule B of the Constitution Act, which provided the sum of thirteen thousand nine hundred and fifty pounds for pensions to Judges and to officers of the Government liable to retire or be released from office on political grounds, and to officers of Government not liable to retire on political grounds, specifically provided, with regard to the last, that the sum of £3,500 before referred to should form a fund of which any portion not drawn during any year should revert to the Consolidated Revenue Fund. It appears to me that the sole object of these provisions in the Constitution Act, with regard to pensions, was to definitely secure the existing rights of those public non-political officers who were, at the period of the passing of the Constitution Act, Civil Servants of the Imperial Government; and that there was no intention to establish a Pension Fund from which persons subsequently entering the Public Service could derive any benefit. It appears to me that, so far as superannuation was concerned, the only question which was legitimately before the framers of the Constitution Act was the necessity of making a just provision for protecting the interests of those who were then in the Public Service. In conferring upon this Colony ample powers of self-government, the Imperial Government took care to provide that their officers should be protected. The object of the provision may be plainly read by the light cast upon it from the language of paragraph 19 of the Despatch accompanying the Constitution Act, which is in these words:—"But with respect to the holders of present interests, whether in the salaries or pensions provided for them, Her Majesty's Government entertain the opinion, in which they do not doubt the concurrence of yourself and the Legislature, that the maintenance of those interests is incumbent on the Crown in order to keep faith with individuals, and incumbent on the Legislature in due execution of its compact with the Crown. I have therefore to instruct you to reserve for the assent of the Crown any Bill which may affect such interests (those, namely, of present incumbents) either in such salaries or pensions, unless in your discretion you think proper to negative it." It was, it seems to me, manifestly intended that the provision was to be without any reference to other officers than the then incumbents. Moreover, the language of section 52 of the Constitution Act, which provides that not more than £3,500 should be payable for pensions to superannuated officers, must have had reference to the state of things then existing—to the officers who might at that time be reasonably expected to require a superannuation provision to be made for them. It could never have been supposed that such a sum would be an adequate Superannuation Fund for even the immediate future. For if the fund was to be open to all public servants, it might be that within a brief period the total amount might be drawn by officers subsequently appointed. I have ascertained that a contrary view to that which I have taken has been formed by one of my predecessors, but I have been unable to obtain any recorded opinion on the subject other than a passing reference to it in an opinion as to the legality of granting pensions to Civil Servants who have received the deductions towards the Superannuation Fund. I am, for these reasons, of opinion that the sum in Schedule B of the Constitution Act was intended to provide for superannuation allowances for those officers who were in the Service of the Imperial Government in this Colony at the time of the passing of the Constitution Act, and for those officers only.

WILLIAM B. DALLEY,
Attorney-General.

Colonial Secretary's Office, 26/7/84.

P.S.—I have to-day been shown by the Premier a Despatch, of date 1st May, 1860, of the Duke of Newcastle, then Secretary of State for the Colonies, to the then Governor-General, containing an enclosure, dated 14th April, 1860, from the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in which their Lordships directly affirm that the object in view, when the sum of £3,500 was reserved by the Constitution Act for the payment of pensions, was to secure pensions to the Civil Officers then in the Service.—

28<sup>o</sup> VICTORIA, 1865.

A BILL to provide for a Superannuation Fund.

[MR. FORSTER;—10 March, 1865.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:—

1. For the purposes of this Act the following terms in inverted commas shall unless the context otherwise indicate bear the meanings set against them respectively:—

"Government"—Governor with the advice of the Executive Council.

"Superannuation Fund"—The balance of any fund accruing under this Act and remaining at the credit thereof in the Colonial Treasury.

"Superannuation Commissioners"—Any persons appointed such by the Government.

"Medical Referees"—Any duly qualified medical practitioners appointed to grant certificates under this Act.

"Incapacitated"—Declared incapacitated for public duties by infirmity of mind or body under certificate from medical referees specifying the nature of the incapacity.

2. The Act twenty-seventh Victoria number eleven shall be repealed but such repeal shall not affect any superannuation or other allowances or gratuities granted before the passing of this Act. 27 Victoria
No. 11 repealed.
3. The whole of the unexpended balance of the grant from the Public Revenue appropriated by clause sixteen of the aforesaid Act together with all accrued interest thereon shall whether invested or not form part of the Superannuation Fund. Grant from revenue to revert.
4. For the purpose of forming a "Superannuation Fund" there shall be an annual abatement made in monthly proportions by the proper officer in each department from the salaries of the officers and persons employed in the Civil Service except as hereinafter mentioned at the rate of four pounds per centum or at such other rate as may be from time to time recommended by the Superannuation Commissioners and approved of by the Government. Abatement to be made from salaries.
5. A separate account of the Superannuation Fund shall be kept in the Colonial Treasury. Superannuation Fund Account.
6. Any holder of office above sixty years of age or incapacitated may or on being required by the Government shall retire from the Public Service and shall thereupon become entitled to an annual allowance from the Superannuation Fund according to the following scale namely—If he shall have served with diligence and fidelity for fifteen years he shall be entitled to a sum equal to one-half of the average of the several salaries paid to him through the entire period of his service together with two-sixtieth parts of such average for every year of service above fifteen years and less than thirty—and if for thirty years then to a sum equal to such average in full. Superannuation
sixty years of age or incapacitated.
7. Any holder of office under sixty years of age who shall have served with diligence and fidelity for thirty years may retire from the Public Service and shall thereupon become entitled to an annual allowance from the Superannuation Fund equal to two-thirds of the average of the several salaries paid him during the entire period of service. Superannuation allowance after thirty years' service to persons under sixty years not incapacitated.
8. If there be any special circumstances in the conduct or character of any person who on retiring from the Public Service would be otherwise entitled under this Act to an allowance from the Superannuation Fund which appear to justify increase or diminution thereof the Government may authorize such increase or diminution and the allowance of such person shall be thereupon increased or diminished accordingly. Allowance may be increased or diminished for special reasons.
9. In case of more than one office being at any time held by the same person the salaries of such offices shall be reckoned as one and the same salary. Provided that such offices are such as would otherwise render the holders thereof liable to abatement of salary for the purpose of contribution to the Superannuation Fund and entitle them to an allowance from the same fund under this Act. Two or more salaries reckoned as one.
10. The Government may grant from the Superannuation Fund to any holder of office retiring or removed from the Public Service in consequence of the necessary abolition of his office such special allowance in one amount not being less than any sum actually contributed under this Act by abatement of salary for the purpose of contribution to the Superannuation Fund together with a reasonable interest thereon or such special annual allowance as may appear to be a reasonable compensation for loss of office. Government may grant allowances on abolition of office.
11. Any superannuation or other allowance under this Act to which any officer or person may be entitled may on the application of the person so entitled be commuted by the Government for a gross payment not exceeding ten years' purchase. Annual allowance may be commuted for gross sum.
12. Any officer or person awarded a superannuation or other allowance under this Act before he has contributed for ten full years at the rate prescribed under this Act shall be subject to an abatement from such allowance for the said period at the same rate as may be fixed from time to time for abatement from salaries. Abatement in case of contribution under ten years.
13. Any holder of an office who being incapacitated shall have fulfilled the conditions aforesaid except completing the period which would have enabled him to apply for such allowance may retire from the Public Service and shall thereupon be entitled to a gratuity for not less than ten years service of one month's pay for each year of such service and for ten or more years' service to a gratuity of three months' pay for every two years of such service not exceeding in the whole fifteen years the computation for such gratuity to be made on the average of the salary or salaries paid such holder of office during the entire period of his service. Gratuity for premature
incapacity.
14. Nothing herein shall prevent any person to whom any superannuation or other allowance under this Act may be granted from accepting an appointment in this Colony or elsewhere or from receiving the emoluments thereof. Provided that if such appointment be in the Civil Service of this Colony such allowance shall merge or be reduced during the tenure of such appointment according as the salary or emoluments thereof are greater or less than the amount of such allowance. Provided also that no addition shall be made to any such allowance for any service under such appointment. Allowance not to prevent other appointment but to abate proportionately if in the Colony.
15. This Act shall not apply to any Judge of the Supreme Court—or to any Minister of Religion—or to any political officer—or to any holder of office whose appointment is not vested in the Government or in a responsible Minister—or whose salary or emoluments do not in the aggregate exceed one hundred pounds per annum—or to any officer or other member of the Police or Volunteer Force—or to any person paid out of contingencies or remunerated by fees or commission or employed temporarily or on probation—or to any person appointed on the recommendation of a Board or Trustees or Commissioners. Provided that nothing herein shall exclude from the provisions of this Act any Police Magistrate not deriving advantage from the Police Superannuation Fund or any Clerk of Petty Sessions or any other holder of office or class of officers or persons in the Public Service to whom the Government shall by notification in the Gazette declare that the provisions of this Act shall apply. Exceptions.
16. Every application for a superannuation or other allowance or gratuity under this Act accompanied by such certificates as may be prescribed by Regulations under this Act shall be addressed to the Governor through the Minister with whom the department to which the officer or person applying belongs usually communicates. How applications to be made.
17. Any retiring or other allowance or gratuity awarded under this Act shall be paid quarterly or monthly as may be desired by the grantee from the money at the credit of the fund in the Colonial Treasury under an assignment in such form as may be prescribed by Regulations under this Act which when signed by the Governor and accompanied by the receipt of the person entitled to the same shall be a sufficient authority for the payment. How allowances to be paid.
18. If any holder of office who by fulfilment of any of the conditions imposed by this Act would become entitled to a gratuity or allowance from the Superannuation Fund render himself liable to censure or dismissal from the Public Service by incapacity disobedience insubordination neglect of duty or any wrongful Fines in lieu of dismissal from the Public Service.

wrongful act the Government may inflict upon such holder of office a fine not exceeding one-tenth part of his annual salary for the time being and such fine shall be paid into and form part of the Superannuation Fund. Provided that any such holder of office refusing to pay such fine shall be liable to dismissal and shall not be entitled thereupon to any gratuity or allowance under this Act.

Regulations.

19. The Government may from time to time by notification in the Gazette make Regulations directing the form in which applications for gratuities or allowances from the Superannuation Act shall be made and the certificates and recommendations which may be considered necessary and for all other purposes of this Act.

Medical certificates.

20. The Government may appoint two duly qualified medical practitioners as medical referees to grant certificates relating to the bodily or mental health or capacity of applicants for superannuation or other allowances under this Act.

Superannuation Commissioners.

21. The Government shall appoint three persons to be Superannuation Commissioners who shall be Trustees of the Superannuation Fund and shall from time to time recommend for the approval of the Government the rate not exceeding four per centum at which the abatements from salaries shall be made for the purpose of contribution to such fund and the disposal or investment of such fund or any portion thereof.

Annual account and statement for Parliament.

22. Copies of all regulations of the Executive Council under this Act and of all minutes authorizing any special grants and specifying reasons for the same and an account of all abatements made under this Act from salaries for the Superannuation Fund and a statement in detail of all payments therefrom and from the Consolidated Revenue Fund under this Act during every year ending the thirty-first day of December shall be laid before Parliament within fourteen days after the meeting thereof if Parliament be sitting and if Parliament be not sitting then within fourteen days after the next meeting thereof.

Not to prejudice Constitution Act. Short title.

23. Nothing in this Act shall alter or affect the Constitution Act.

24. This Act may be cited as the "Superannuation Act of 1865."

NOTE.—There is no record of any Superannuation Bill bearing the name of Mr. (now Sir James) Martin. The foregoing Bill was introduced by Mr. Forster soon after the Martin Ministry, of which he was a member, went out of office.

27<sup>o</sup> VICTORIÆ, 1863.

A BILL to provide a Superannuation Fund and to regulate the granting of retiring and other allowances and gratuities in respect of Public Services.

[MR. COWPER;—1 October, 1863.]

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide a fund for the payment of superannuation and other allowances and gratuities in respect of Civil Services under Government and to prescribe the regulations and conditions under which such allowances shall be authorized and paid. Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:—

Contributions of public officers to form a fund.

1. There shall be deducted from the pay or salary of all persons in the Civil Service—except as hereinafter mentioned—the sum of two pounds per centum per annum and so ratably from any pay or salary of whatever amount and the sums so deducted shall be invested in such manner as may be approved by the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council and the interest and dividends thereof or so much of the same as shall not be required for the purposes hereinafter mentioned shall be invested in like manner and shall accumulate so as to form a fund to be called the "Superannuation Fund" and be applied as occasion may require for the payment of such superannuation or other allowances or gratuities as may be ordered or appointed by the Governor with the advice aforesaid under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Governor may grant allowance on superannuation.

2. Upon the application of any officer in the Civil Service—with the exceptions hereinafter specified—in office at the commencement of this Act or hereafter appointed to office accompanied by such certificates or recommendations as the Governor with the advice aforesaid shall require the Governor may with such advice direct that such officer shall be superannuated and shall receive such yearly allowance or such gratuity upon such conditions and not exceeding such proportions as to age length of service and other circumstances as are hereinafter mentioned. And thereupon such person shall cease to hold such office and such allowance or gratuity shall be paid to him accordingly and shall be charged upon and paid out of the said "Superannuation Fund" so far as the same shall from time to time be adequate to discharge the same.

Conditions and proportions of allowance.

3. Where the person applying for the same shall be under sixty years of age such allowance or gratuity shall only be granted—except in certain cases hereinafter mentioned—upon a certificate from two legally qualified medical practitioners duly appointed in that behalf by the Governor with the advice aforesaid that such person is incapacitated by infirmity of mind or body from discharging the duties of his office in which case if he shall have served with diligence and fidelity for fifteen years it shall be lawful to grant him by way of superannuation allowance an annual sum not exceeding one-half of the salary of his office and also an addition of two-sixtieths parts of such salary for each year of service after fifteen years and less than thirty years and if fully thirty years then an annual sum not exceeding the whole amount of such salary. And if such person shall be above sixty years of age and shall have served for fifteen years it shall be lawful without any such medical certificate to grant him by way of superannuation any annual sum not exceeding one half of the salary of his office and an addition of two-sixtieths for each year of service above fifteen years and less than thirty years and if he shall have served fully thirty years an annual sum not exceeding the whole amount of such salary.

Conditions of retirement.

4. When any officer after the passing of this Act—except as hereinafter mentioned—shall have attained the full age of sixty years he shall thereupon be entitled or may be required by the Governor with the advice aforesaid to retire from active service upon a superannuation allowance according to the scale hereinbefore fixed. And if any officer shall desire to retire from active employment who has not attained the full age of sixty years he shall be at liberty without any such medical certificate after having served with diligence and fidelity for a period of thirty years so to retire on a superannuation allowance of not less than two-third parts of his annual salary. Provided that in either such case the Minister in whose department ment such officer may be serving may request such officer to continue to perform his duties but without prejudice to his right to decline such request or to have then assigned to him a superannuation allowance in conformity with this Act. Provided also that any superannuation allowance so granted to such officer shall not be received for any time during which he may continue to perform the duties and to draw the salary of such office. Provided further that no increase shall be made in such superannuation allowance by reason of such continuance in office.

5. Any retiring allowance to which an officer may be entitled from the "Superannuation Fund" in accordance with the two preceding clauses may at the option of such officer be commuted for such a gross payment not exceeding seven years purchase as may be considered a fair equivalent by the Governor with the advice aforesaid. Provided that in the opinion and on the report of the Commissioners hereinafter mentioned the state of the fund will admit of such payment. Annual allowance may be commuted for gross sum.

6. Any holder of an office giving a title under the conditions aforesaid to a superannuation allowance who although he has not completed the period which would have enabled him to apply for such allowance is constrained by infirmity of mind or body to leave the Public Service shall be entitled to a gratuity for less than ten years service of one month's pay for each year of such service and for more than ten years service to a gratuity of three months' pay for every two years of such service not exceeding in the whole fifteen years. Gratuity for premature incapacity.

7. Nothing herein shall prevent the Governor with the advice aforesaid in consideration of any special services rendered by any officer or any other unusual circumstances or by way of compensation to any officer removed in consequence of the abolition of his office or for the purpose of facilitating improvements in the organization of any Department or effecting greater efficiency or economy from recommending to Parliament such sum in addition to any retiring allowance or gratuity to which any such officer may be entitled under this Act as may appear reasonable and just to meet any such case as aforesaid. Provided that if for the interest of the Public Service any office be made political the Governor with the advice aforesaid may recommend to Parliament the payment to the officer then holding the appointment of a fair and just compensation for his retirement therefrom independent of any superannuation or retiring allowance to which he may then be entitled under this Act. Allowances may be recommended to Parliament under special circumstances.

8. Nothing herein shall prevent any person to whom any superannuation allowance or any allowance for loss of office may be assigned from accepting any new appointment whether political or otherwise in this Colony or elsewhere or from receiving the emoluments thereof. Provided that if such appointment be in this Colony such allowance shall merge or be reduced during the tenure of such new appointment according as the salary or emoluments thereof are greater or less than the amount of such allowance. Provided also that no addition shall be made to any such allowance for any service under such new appointment. Allowance not to prevent other appointment but to abate proportionately if in the Colony.

9. Upon the death of any officer while in the service of the Government his widow shall be entitled to receive during her widowhood an allowance equal to two-third parts of the allowance which might have been granted to her husband under this Act according to his service and rate of pay at the time of his death or if he leaves no widow his children if any or otherwise any other relations of such officer to be named by him or if not so named then at the discretion of the Governor with the advice aforesaid shall be entitled to a gratuity not exceeding two months pay for every three years of service of such officer. Allowances to widows and children.

10. This Act shall not apply to any Judge of the Supreme Court—nor to any Minister of Religion—nor to any honorary officer—nor to any political officer—nor to any officer the right to appoint to whose office is not vested in the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council or in a responsible Minister—nor to any officer constable or other member of the Police or Volunteer Force—nor to any official paid out of contingencies—nor to any officer remunerated solely by fees or commission—nor to any person temporarily employed or appointed only on probation—nor to persons receiving small salaries or retaining-fees following other pursuits. Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed to exclude from the provisions of this Act any Police Magistrate not deriving advantage from the Police Superannuation Fund or any Clerk of Petty Sessions or the officers of the Sydney Branch of the Royal Mint or any other officer or class of officers or persons to whom the Governor with the advice aforesaid shall declare that the provisions of this Act shall apply. Exceptions.

11. The Governor with the advice aforesaid may appoint three officers to be Superannuation Fund Commissioners for the purpose of recommending from time to time the investment or disposal of the amount at the credit of the "Superannuation Fund" which is to be retained until invested or otherwise appropriated as a separate account in the Colonial Treasury. Commissioners for Act.

12. Applications for Superannuation or other allowances or gratuities to be paid out of the "Superannuation Fund" under this Act shall be addressed to the Minister in whose department the officer may be serving accompanied by such certificates as may be prescribed in manner aforesaid. How applications to be made and dealt with.

13. Any retiring or other allowance or gratuity awarded under this Act shall be paid quarterly or monthly as may be desired by the applicant from the money at the credit of the fund in the Colonial Treasury under an assignment in such form as may be prescribed signed by the Governor which with the receipt of the person receiving the same shall be a sufficient authority for the payment as such allowance may become due. How allowances to be paid.

14. To provide for the interval during which the contributions of public officers towards the fund established by this Act will be insufficient to meet the requirements of this Act there shall be appropriated in aid of the "Superannuation Fund" out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund a sum not exceeding ten thousand pounds. Grant from public Revenue in aid of Superannuation Fund.

15. An account in detail of all appropriations of the "Superannuation Fund" or any part thereof during every year ending the thirty-first day of December shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days next thereafter if Parliament be sitting and if not then within fourteen days after the opening of the next Session. Annual accounts for Parliament.

16. Nothing in this Act shall alter or affect the Constitution Act.

17. This Act shall be styled and may be cited as the "Public Service Superannuation Act of 1863." Not to prejudice Constitution Act. Short title.

No. 5.

36<sup>a</sup> VICTORIÆ, 1873.

A BILL to repeal the Superannuation Act of 1864 and to provide for terminating the system of Allowances and Gratuities established thereunder.

[MR. PARKES;—13 February, 1873, A.M.]

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to repeal the Superannuation Act of 1864 and to provide for terminating the system of allowances and gratuities established thereunder Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:—

Repeal of Superannuation Act of 1864.

1. The Act of Council twenty-seventh Victoria number eleven being the Superannuation Act of 1864 is hereby repealed but such repeal shall not affect any allowance or gratuity granted or act done before the passing of this Act except so far as herein specifically enacted.

Interpretation clause.

2. In the interpretation of this Act unless the context otherwise indicates the word "pension" means any superannuation allowance granted under the Act hereby repealed or under this Act.

Balance at credit of Superannuation Fund carried to Consolidated Revenue Fund on which certain payments under this Act are made chargeable.

3. The balance at the credit of the Superannuation Fund on the            day of            in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three shall be carried to the credit and form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund And all payments in respect of pensions under the sixth seventh and eighth sections hereof shall be chargeable upon and paid from the said fund.

Arrears of existing pensions to be paid in full.

4. All amounts in respect of pensions in arrear accrued due and payable up to the commencement of this Act to the grantees of such pensions under the provisions of the said repealed Act shall be paid in full to such grantees according to the scale prescribed by the third section of the said repealed Act.

Gratuities already authorized to be paid in full.

5. All sums of money in the nature of gratuities to which any person shall be entitled under the provisions of the seventh or tenth sections of the said repealed Act and the payment whereof shall have been duly authorized before the passing of this Act shall be paid in full to such persons according to the respective scales prescribed by the said sections Provided always that no person shall after the passing of this Act be entitled to any gratuity under either of the said sections unless the payment thereof to him shall have been duly authorized before the passing of the said Act.

Rate of Pensions of Pensioners forced to retire.

6. All persons formerly in the Public Service who shall have been required by the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council to retire from active service under the provisions of the fourth section of the said repealed Act shall after the passing of this Act be entitled to be paid the respective pensions granted to them under the provisions of the said section and in accordance with the scale therein prescribed.

Reduced rate of pensions for other Pensioners.

7. All persons to whom pensions shall have been granted under the provisions of the said repealed Act before the passing of this Act and not within the meaning of the last preceding section shall after the passing of this Act be paid according to the following scale viz.—

To any person who shall have served fifteen years and upwards and under sixteen years an annual pension of fifteen-sixtieths of the annual salary of his office.

Sixteen years and under seventeen years an annual pension of sixteen-sixtieths of such salary.

And in like manner a further addition to the annual pension of one-sixtieth in respect of each additional year of such service until the completion of a period of service of forty years when a pension of forty-sixtieths may be granted And no addition shall be made in respect of any service beyond forty years.

Pensions to persons entitled to retire at passing of Act.

8. All officers in the Public Service who at the time of the passing of this Act are entitled to retire from active service under the provisions of the said repealed Act may so retire upon pensions to be computed according to the scale set forth in the last preceding section but in such computation no period of service of any such officer subsequent to the date of the passing of this Act shall be taken into account but such officer's service shall be deemed for such purpose to have terminated on the aforesaid date And no pension within the meaning of this or the last preceding section shall exceed the respective rates in the scale last aforesaid.

Refund of deductions.

9. All sums of money deducted under the provisions of the first section of the said repealed Act from the pay or salary of any officer in the Public Service at the time of the passing of this Act shall together with interest thereon at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum up to the said time be refunded to such person for the whole period during which such person has been a contributor to the Superannuation Fund created by the said Act upon his lodging an application in the form or to the effect of the Schedule hereto addressed to the Under Secretary or other official head of the Department or Service to which such person so applying belongs accompanied by a certificate of the Auditor-General endorsed upon such application specifying the amount to which such person is entitled under this Act Provided always that no such deductions shall be refunded to any person to whom any pension gratuity or payment shall have been or be granted or made under the said repealed Act and that no pension gratuity or payment under this Act shall be granted or made to any person to whom any such deductions shall have been or shall be refunded as aforesaid.

Loan authorized to be repaid in ten years.

10. It shall be lawful for the Governor with the advice aforesaid to raise by the sale of Treasury Bills or Debentures secured upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund and bearing interest at a rate not exceeding four pounds per centum per annum the respective amounts required for the purpose of paying the arrears of pensions and gratuities and for the refunding of deductions authorized by this Act Provided that not less than one-tenth part of the amounts so to be raised by Debentures or Treasury Bills shall be paid off out of the said Consolidated Revenue Fund on or before the thirty-first day of March one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four and on or before the corresponding day of each succeeding year the like proportion of one-tenth of the said amounts shall be paid off in like manner until the whole of the said loan be extinguished And all sums borrowed under this Act shall be paid to the Colonial Treasurer and be by him placed to a separate credit to be called the "Superannuation Repeal Fund" and no part of the money so borrowed shall on any pretence be paid used or applied directly or indirectly either temporarily or otherwise to or for any purpose other than the purposes mentioned in this section.

Governor by warrant to authorize payment by Colonial Treasurer.

11. The Colonial Treasurer shall cause the amounts of the said pensions in arrear authorized gratuities and of the deductions so to be refunded to be paid in such manner as the Governor by any Warrant

Warrant or order in writing under his hand and directed to the said Treasurer shall from time to time order and direct and the payments so to be made shall be charged upon and payable out of the said "Superannuation Repeal Fund."

12. The said Treasurer shall in his accounts from time to time be allowed credit for any sum or sums of money paid by him in pursuance of such warrant or order in writing as aforesaid and the receipt or receipts of the respective persons to whom the same shall be so paid shall be a full and valid discharge to the said Treasurer in passing his said accounts for any such sum or sums as shall be therein mentioned and he shall receive credit for the same accordingly. Treasurer to be allowed credit for payments thereunder.

13. No claim to a pension superannuation allowance gratuity payment or benefit whatsoever under the said repealed Act other than so far as the same are expressly continued or confirmed by this Act shall after the passing of this Act be recognized as binding on the Government under the provisions of the said repealed Act. Provided always that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to alter or affect the Constitution Act or any instruction issued by Her Majesty to the Governor in pursuance thereof or to prejudice or affect the rights of any members of the Civil Service in office at the time of the passing of this Act or any pensions or superannuation allowances to which they may claim to be entitled by virtue of any Imperial Act Order in Council or Instruction as aforesaid. Certain claims only to be recognized.

14. This Act may be cited as the "Superannuation Act Repeal Act of 1873."

Short title.

SCHEDULE.

(Date)

I (state name and official grade) hereby request that the deductions heretofore made from my salary as contributions to the Superannuation Fund under the authority of the Superannuation Act of 1864 with interest thereon at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum may be refunded to me in terms of the ninth section of the Superannuation Act Repeal Act of 1873.

(Signed)

Endorsement of Auditor-General.

I CERTIFY that A.B. occupies the official grade stated in this application and that he has contributed to the Superannuation Fund the aggregate sum of _____ as specified in the margin and that he is entitled under the "Superannuation Act Repeal Act of 1873" to the refund of the said sum together with _____ as interest thereon.

34th VICTORIA, 1871.

A BILL to amend the Superannuation Act of 1864.

[MR. ROBERTSON;—11 May, 1871.]

WHEREAS the Superannuation Fund provided by the "Superannuation Act of 1864" has for some time past been insufficient to meet the demands upon it by reason as well of the gratuities authorized by the tenth section as of the excessive rate at which pensions are by that Act directed to be computed and whereas the interests of the officers of the Civil Service require that the pensions should be reduced to the rate herein-after mentioned and that the gratuities should be abolished Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:—

1. The deduction provided for by the first section of the said Act shall be and the same is hereby fixed at the rate of four per centum instead of at a sum not exceeding the rate of four per centum as in the said section mentioned. Contribution to Superannuation Fund fixed at four per centum.

2. Instead of the superannuation allowance authorized by the third and fourth sections of the said Act the superannuation allowance payable under the said Act shall from and after the first day of January last be as follows:— Rate of superannuation allowance.

To any person who shall have served fifteen years and upwards and under sixteen years an annual allowance of fifteen-sixtieths of the annual salary of his office.

For sixteen years and under seventeen years an annual allowance of sixteen-sixtieths of such salary.

And in like manner a further addition to the annual allowance of one-sixtieth in respect of each additional year of such service until the completion of a period of service of forty years when the annual allowance of forty-sixtieths may be granted and no addition shall be made in respect of any service beyond forty years.

And no superannuation allowance granted or payable under the said Act shall in any case exceed these rates.

3. The superannuation allowance granted or payable or hereafter to be granted or payable to any officer under the said Act shall from and after the first day of January last not be computed upon the amount of the salary enjoyed by him at the time of his retirement unless he shall have been in the receipt of the same for a period of at least three years immediately before the granting of such superannuation allowance and in case he shall not have enjoyed his then existing salary for that period such superannuation allowance shall be calculated upon the average amount of salary received by such officer for three years next preceding the commencement of such allowance. Superannuation not to be granted on advanced amount of salary received for less than three years.

10th and 13th
sections of 27
Vic. No. 11
repealed.

Superannuation allowances to be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

This Act and the Act 27 Vic. No.
11 to be read as one Act.

Payments to be made as in the 27 Vic. No. 11
mentioned in any year in which the fund will be sufficient for such purpose.
Short title.

4. The tenth and thirteenth sections of the said Act are hereby repealed.

5. The contributions toward the Superannuation Fund shall be paid into the Colonial Treasury and form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and all superannuation allowances shall henceforth be a charge upon and be paid out of that Fund.

6. This Act and the said Act shall be construed and read as one Act.

7. In the event of the Superannuation Fund in any year being sufficient to pay the various charges upon it at the rates and in the manner provided by the said Act such payments shall in such year be made as in the said Act mentioned anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

8. This Act shall be styled and may be cited as the "Superannuation Act Amendment Act of 1871."

With cost, when paid, of conveyance, horse-hire, or forage allowance.

Officers of the first class ...	...	0	15	0
Officers of the second class ...	...	0	12	0

All other subordinate employes at rates specially authorized.

Conveyance.

First class railway and steamer fares allowed to all officers of the first and second classes.

Actual expenses in place of a daily allowance.

In case of short journeys, such as from Sydney to Parramatta and back the same day, actual expenses only are allowed, the daily allowance being intended to cover absence at night from residence or head quarters.

First class officers are allowed 30s. per day and first class railway and coach fares.

Second class officers from 8s. to 12s. per day and first class railway and coach fares.

Third class officers rates specially authorized (generally about 6s. per day and second class railway and coach fares).

Telegraph Department.

First class officers are allowed 30s. per day and first class railway fares.

Second class officers 20s. per day and first class railway fares.

Third class officers rates specially authorized.

NOTE 1.—When travelling does not form a regular and necessary part of an officer's duty, any expense incurred thereby, as well as the specific rate to be charged, requires to be supported by the authority of a Minister of the Crown.

NOTE 2.—In computing the daily rate the time occupied on board steam vessels, when the fare includes provisions, is not to be reckoned, nor the time lost through detention of such vessels by stress of weather or other cause. Special authority is also required for allowing the daily rate in case of prolonged detention at one place.

No. 1.

D. Buchanan, Esq., M.P., to The Hon. G. R. Dibbs, M.P., Treasurer of New South Wales.

My dear Sir,

Sydney, 28 January, 1884.

My brother Louis has put in an application for a year's leave of absence on full salary. I have for the last twelve months been advising him to make this application, as I could see his health demanded relaxation and change. He has served in the Customs for eighteen years, and during that long time he has only had one month's leave, some ten years ago. His health is at the present anything but good, and his medical adviser urges this step on the ground that, if not taken at his age, things may become very serious for him.

Both the late and present Collector will testify to his ability as a steady, hard-working, attentive, and devoted public servant; and in the present application he is only asking to be treated as other public servants have been, some of them without so good a claim upon the liberality or justice of the Government.

As his brother, I of course feel a very deep interest in his career. He possesses abilities that I often envy and wish I possessed. His conduct, public and private, has been in the highest degree exemplary, and in asking you to support his application I am only asking what every principle of common justice will bear you out in conceding.

Yours very sincerely,
DAVID BUCHANAN.

No. 2.

The Collector of Customs to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Custom-house, Sydney, 29 January, 1884.

I have the honor to bring under your notice the conduct of Mr. Louis Buchanan, and also an application from that gentleman, forwarded herewith.

During last week, after consultation with the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer, and with his approval, I offered to Mr. Buchanan, on Thursday evening last (during the sitting of Parliament), the position of Inspector of Tobacco Factories, under the provisions of the Bill about to be submitted.

It was of the greatest importance that my arrangements for placing officers at the respective factories should be kept secret, and with that end in view I appointed to meet Mr. Buchanan at the Custom-house at 9 o'clock on Thursday night, in order to give him all necessary instructions.

Mr. Buchanan appeared much pleased to find that the Treasurer had selected him for the position referred to, and I spent nearly two hours explaining to him various features of the Act, and removing the difficulties Mr. Buchanan raised.

Before

Before closing for the night Mr. Buchanan asked me what salary would attach to the office, to which I replied that I had not consulted the Treasurer about the proposed amount of remuneration, but I told him I was prepared to recommend £400 per annum. He replied that the amount was small, at the same time expressing his desire to carry out my wishes in every particular.

On the morning of Friday I was at the Custom-house precisely at 9 o'clock, and after a short interview with Mr. Oliver I called for Mr. Buchanan, and said, "Are you ready with the selected men?"

He seemed excited and said "yes," but he wanted to say a word or two to me first. He then told me that he had been talking with his brother, and that he did not think he ought to give up his chances in the Long Room for a paltry £50 a year. I said, "Well, Buchanan, this is not the time for talking. Do the work first and we can discuss the pay later on when the Bill becomes law."

He then said that he feared there would be great difficulty in dealing with the tobacco factory proprietors, and seemed so unnerved that I replied, "Once for all, do you accept or do you reject, for I have no time to lose?" He then said, "I reject."

I beg to call your attention to the fact that Mr. Buchanan is at present in receipt of £300 per annum as a clerk, and that in recommending him for a position to which a salary of £400 might possibly attach, I thought I was doing that gentleman some service.

I do not wish to magnify the difficulties forced upon me by the conduct of Mr. Buchanan, who by his mercenary selfishness and positive refusal to accept the position assigned to him greatly interfered with the plans I had formed with the approval of the Treasurer.

I am glad to report that the cheerfully and ably rendered services of Mr. Edmund Jones (the cashier) enabled me to give effect to the necessary placing of officers at the factories, and that the control of those establishments is still effectively carried on by that gentleman.

I think I may justly complain of the conduct of Mr. Buchanan, and I trust, for the maintenance of subordination in this Department, that the Treasurer's disapproval of Mr. Buchanan's insubordination and selfish indifference will be both marked and severe, as a warning and as an example.

On Friday, after his refusal to attend the factories, Mr. Buchanan complained of being very unwell, and left for the remainder of the day.

On Monday Mr. David Buchanan waited on me, and presented the enclosed letter from his brother, together with a medical certificate.

I confess that I was astonished to hear the very high estimate formed by Mr. David Buchanan of the official services of his brother Louis, and of the money value at which he assessed those services, in neither of which was I able to agree with that gentleman.

Mr. Louis Buchanan, who is I believe a strong and hearty man, after destroying the plans for giving effect to a new branch of business, and after setting the bad example of refusing to obey instructions, now asks for twelve months' leave of absence on full pay, and proposes to leave his routine work to be performed at the expense of the Government by his fellow clerks, after depriving them of the promotion they had a right to expect had he the courage to take the office offered to him.

A reference to the Return herewith will show that Mr. Buchanan's progress in the Customs from the year 1872 has not been by any means slow; and I beg to call attention to the fact that Mr. Buchanan's name has been allowed to remain on the 1884 Estimates for an increase of £50, and that the increases I recommended in other cases have been disallowed.

There is nothing in Mr. Buchanan's career to justify him as a Civil Servant in expecting special preferment, and I regret exceedingly that his recent conduct discovers a disregard for common fairness.

I am unable to recommend that the leave sought by Mr. Buchanan be granted; and although I have for many years admired the literary culture of that gentleman, I am bound to say that he does not in my opinion possess qualities as a clerk in the Custom-house in any respect superior to many who are his juniors in the Service.

I also again beg that the Honorable the Treasurer will mark his displeasure of Mr. Buchanan's conduct in failing to carry out his instructions at a critical time.

I am, &c.,
JAMES POWELL,
Collector of Customs.

Mr. L. Buchanan to E. Jones, Esq.

Dear Sir,

On the other side is a certificate as to the state of my health, and I can only say I am extremely sorry that necessity compels me to lay up at the present time.

I remain, &c.,

27 January.

I HEREBY certify that Mr. Louis Buchanan is suffering from an acute attack of hæmorrhoids, and is unable to attend to his duties, as he requires medical treatment with perfect rest for a few days.

Mr.

Mr. L. Buchanan to The Collector of Customs.

Sir,

Clareinnis, Redmyre, 28 January, 1884.

I beg to apply, through you, to the Honorable the Treasurer, for a twelve months' leave of absence. I may mention that this is a step I have long contemplated, and is indeed imperatively demanded by the state of my health; and when it is remembered that my duties have kept me closely confined to the Custom-house for the last eighteen years nearly, with only one solitary break, in 1873, when I had one month's sick leave, with an extension to a second month, I think the reasonableness of this application cannot fairly be disputed.

I understand there is no fixed or settled rule as to the terms upon which leave of absence is usually granted, each case being governed by its own circumstances. In my own instance, during the long period I have been in the Service, I have not been fortunate as far as promotion is concerned, as my first appointment was made at the close of the year 1866, at a salary of £100; and at long intervals I have received a few steps, with small increases, the two last, quite recently received, being the highest, at £50 each, and these have brought my salary up to £300. I can therefore say with great confidence that I have not been one of the lucky ones in the Public Service, and this fact, I submit, ought to give me a claim to favourable consideration at the present time. Moreover, had I taken short periods of leave of absence, at annual intervals, as many are in the habit of doing, these taken cumulatively, would have amounted to considerably more than a year, but this course I studiously avoided in order to make my claim to an extended leave all the stronger when I came to require it, as I do now. Upon these grounds I submit that mine is an exceptional case, and that I may fairly claim to receive full pay during my year of absence. That there are precedents—some of them of recent occurrence—for such a course is well known, and need not be more particularly referred to.

I enclose a medical certificate, in support of my application, from a gentleman who has attended me, when occasion required, for the last fifteen years; and I can only say, in conclusion, that I leave the matter in the hands of the Honorable the Treasurer, knowing well that he will deal with it in a spirit of fairness and liberality.

I have, &amp;c.,

LOUIS BUCHANAN.

26 January, 1884.

As Mr. Buchanan informs me that he has made application for twelve months' leave of absence, I am of opinion that his health will be materially benefited if his application be granted, as he has shown some very unpleasant symptoms lately which necessitate his abstaining from active employment for some considerable period.

M. EGAN, L.R.C.S.E., &amp;c.

W. A. Duncan, Esq., to Mr. L. Buchanan.

Dear Sir,

5, Roslyn-street, 29 January, 1884.

I am sorry indeed to learn that your health is so impaired that you are obliged to ask for a year's leave of absence to restore it.

I should think that after eighteen years constant, and I can say most efficient service, you will obtain that boon, and I hope too without diminution of pay.

Trusting you may obtain your request, and return to duty in good health,—

I remain, &amp;c.,

W. A. DUNCAN.

Minute by The Colonial Treasurer.

HAVING carefully perused these papers, and considered Mr. Louis Buchanan's application for twelve months' leave of absence on full pay, I am compelled to decline his request. I am not satisfied that Mr. Buchanan's health requires a long respite from his official duties; and I consider the medical certificates produced highly unsatisfactory, as I found, on the 27th of January, Mr. Buchanan "is suffering from an acute attack of piles, and will require perfect rest for a few days." Under date the 26th of January, a further certificate from Dr. Egan is enclosed in an application from Mr. L. Buchanan for the twelve months' leave. I am much dissatisfied with Mr. Buchanan's conduct in reference to the initiation of the tobacco excise. The Collector had arranged with him on the previous night to supervise the proposed excise arrangements, and had fully instructed him in his duties. No complaint of failing health had been made, and he was willing and grateful for the promotion which the proposed new arrangements would secure to him, but on the following morning, after the Financial Statement was made, and upon receiving instructions to proceed to the tobacco factories, Mr. Buchanan endeavoured on the emergency to compel the Collector to accede to a demand he then set up for a high rate of salary, without which he declined to carry out the instructions given to him. At this stage the Collector would have been justified in recommending Mr. Buchanan's suspension, and I should have felt it my duty to recommend his dismissal for gross insubordination at a critical moment when his services were pressingly needed.

The Collector however adopted the milder course of ordering him to return to his duties, and appointed another officer for the tobacco excise, as a temporary officer. Under these circumstances, as Mr. Buchanan has had a rest since the 24th January, he must return to his duties, unless prevented from so doing by continued ill health, in which case I shall require a certificate from the Health Officer of the Government.

I cannot admit that insubordination on the part of any officer entitles him to consideration of the nature asked for by Mr. Buchanan. If Mr. Buchanan was able to take the supervision of the tobacco excise (provided he could fix his own terms of remuneration), he must be considered able to perform the ordinary duties of his present employment, which he performed without complaint up to the moment of his failing to dictate his own terms.

Custom-house, Sydney, 11 March, 1884.

In reply to your letter of the 28th January, applying through this office to the Honorable the Treasurer for twelve months' leave of absence, I beg to forward a copy of the Treasurer's minute for your information:

"Having carefully perused these papers and considered Mr. Louis Buchanan's application for twelve months' leave of absence on full pay, I am compelled to decline his request. No. 4.

Mr. L. Buchanan to The Collector of Customs.

Sir,

Clareinnis, Redmyre, 12 March, 1884.

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 11th March, in which is quoted a minute of the Honorable the Treasurer, upon which I desire to be allowed to make the following remarks:—When you asked me to undertake the supervision of the tobacco factories on the 24th January, the evening the Financial Statement was made, I neither accepted nor rejected the offer—I only expressed my regret that I had not known of it sooner, and I never referred to the salary in any way, the only reference to it, as far as I remember, being made by yourself when you said the Treasurer had intended to make the salary £500, but at your recommendation it was reduced to £400. Having gone home, and carefully reflected over the matter, I came to the conclusion that my prospects of advancement were better inside than outside the Department, and immediately on your arrival at the Custom-house on the following morning I mentioned the resolution I had arrived at of remaining on the indoor staff; but if you remember I offered to act in the new position until you had time to make other arrangements, but this was declined. How the Honorable the Treasurer can say I "demanded a high rate of salary," or sought to "fix" or "dictate my own terms of remuneration," I am at a loss to conceive, for most assuredly no action of mine could give the remotest countenance to such an idea. I am equally at a loss to understand in what way I have rendered myself amenable to the charge of insubordination. During the long period I have been employed in the Customs Department the late Collector, Mr. Duncan, repeatedly offered me outside Sub-collectorships, which I, in common with others, invariably declined, without the slightest suspicion of insubordination on our parts; and I submit in principle there is really no difference between these cases and the one under consideration.

The Honorable the Treasurer seems to think my application for leave of absence was not thought of before the new duties were imposed, but the cashier, Mr. Jones, will no doubt recollect that I have repeatedly spoken to him on the subject long before the change of the Tariff was ever dreamt of. He can also speak of the fact of my frequent complaints of illness, and as to the medical certificates not being sufficiently explicit, surely the Honorable the Treasurer cannot have seen the last one, under date the 17th February, which stated that I was suffering from a "chronic derangement of the digestive organs," and the doctor added that he had repeatedly recommended me "within the last few years to endeavour to obtain a lengthened release from active work."

The Honorable the Treasurer has dealt with my application as if ill health was the sole ground on which it rested, whereas my length of service without previous leave is the real ground upon which the application is based, and the medical certificates were only intended to show that my health would have been materially benefited by relief from active duty for a time.

I have thought it only right to submit these few remarks to you, and as the Honorable the Treasurer has not seen fit to grant my application I have no alternative but to return to my duty.

I have, &c.,
LOUIS BUCHANAN.

Thursday morning, 13 March, 1884.

P.S.—Instead of posting this letter, I intended to have delivered it to you personally, preparatory to returning to my duty, as directed by the Honorable the Treasurer, but I am suffering from such a severe headache that I am under the necessity of postponing my return till to-morrow.—L.B.

Submitted. I presume the Treasurer will allow Mr. Buchanan to return to his duties. I propose to let Mr. Buchanan take advantage of the step open to him by the retirement of Mr. Kelly, should that course meet with the Treasurer's approval.—J.A.S. P., 13/3/84. The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade, &c.

Mr. Buchanan flatly contradicts the statement contained in the Collector's minute, covering application for twelve months' leave. Before deciding anything further I should like the Collector's remarks upon this contradiction. Mr. D. Buchanan, who waited on me on the morning after the Financial Statement, stated that his brother had acted in the manner complained of by Mr. Powell upon his (Mr. D. Buchanan's) recommendation.—G.R.D., 14/3/84.

IN answer to the wish expressed by the Treasurer, I have reviewed in my mind the whole business connected with the recent conduct of Mr. L. Buchanan. I have nothing to add—nothing to withdraw from my previous report.

Mr. L. Buchanan talked of an increase of a paltry £50 per annum on the morning referred to, and filled me with astonishment by refusing the Treasurer's offer after his unqualified acceptance on the previous night, when he expressed himself as flattered and gratified. I may add that the mention of £400 per annum was merely suggested by me as my own idea of the remuneration I could recommend—leaving it to the Treasurer to augment or otherwise. From an official stand-point I think Mr. Buchanan has made a great mistake, and perhaps was misled or ill-advised.

5th Clerk, 1 January, 1883, to 30 September, 1883... ..	300 „
From 1 October, 1883, to this date ... ..	300 „

Mr. Buchanan, as 5th Clerk, will this year receive an advance of £50, making his salary £350 per annum.

If the retirement of Mr. Kelly be sanctioned, and the usual step be allowed to Mr. Buchanan, he will in the ordinary course take the salary of 4th Clerk, viz., £400.

The promotion enjoyed by Mr. Buchanan during the past two years has been rapid, and he has no right to expect an increase on taking the office of jerquer.

Minute from Colonial Treasurer to Collector of Customs.

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 28 May, 1884.

Subject:—Appointments to Tobacco Inspector's Staff.

I INVITE the attention of the Collector of Customs to the "Hansard" reports for last Friday's Parliamentary proceedings; also to clippings from the Daily Telegraph of to-day, containing a report of last night's proceedings, and would be obliged if Mr. Powell would state briefly the circumstances which occurred on Friday, the 25th January, at his office, in reference to giving effect to the Tobacco proposals of the Government, as made the previous evening.

G. R. D.

The Collector of Customs.—G.E., 28/5/84, B.C.

The Collector of Customs to The Colonial Treasurer.

SUBMITTED in obedience to the minute (28 May) herewith. I have read the portion of "Hansard" relative to Mr. David Buchanan's speech on his brother's position in this Department.

My official letter of 29th January gives a general outline of the position of affairs, and with some few explanations arising out of interviews and conversations with Mr. David Buchanan, I know of little else to add.

I was disappointed and annoyed on Friday, the 25th January, after all my trouble in coaching Mr. L. Buchanan, to find that gentleman fail me because his brother interfered on the ground of the insufficiency of the remuneration I was prepared to recommend, as a salary for the position of "Inspector of Tobacco Factories." I wrote privately to Mr. Dibbs, stating the annoyance I felt in having my plans upset by an officer, who sought to extract from me a promise to recommend a higher rate of emolument than I thought fair for the duties to be performed. I also pointed out to Mr. Dibbs that, when Mr. Buchanan left me on the Thursday night (after 10 o'clock), he expressed gratification and gratitude for the intended promotion, and that, fortunately, I was enabled to secure the willing services of Mr. Edmund Jones, the cashier. I did not refer in my official letter to an interview Mr. David Buchanan had with me on the Friday or Saturday morning, I am not quite sure which, but it was after he had seen the Treasurer.

Mr. David Buchanan was desirous (as I understood) that his brother should retrace his steps and take the position of Tobacco Inspector, but I told him my arrangements were made, that I had reported to the Treasurer, and that no alteration could be made unless special directions were given.

On the Monday Mr. David Buchanan again called, and introduced the topic of his brother's appointment. Mr. Buchanan disparaged the seniors in office of his brother, and said his brother was quite as well worth £630 as Mr. Berncy, the Landing Surveyor. I was nettled generally by the attitude of Mr. David Buchanan towards me. I resented it at that time as an attempt at dictation to a public officer—a dictation I would not have suffered as a private individual. I spoke of Mr. David Buchanan's conduct to a gentleman holding a high official position, and narrated to him more forcibly than I have done here, the objectionable pressure sought to be exercised.

I considered Mr. L. Buchanan's conduct wrong altogether, and I so reported. I considered Mr. D. Buchanan's conduct wrong; and felt as I now feel that a public officer should not be approached on the question of direct appointments, and more especially in such close association as those subsisting between Mr. David and Mr. Louis Buchanan.

I beg to point out as an evidence that Mr. L. Buchanan has not been badly treated, that when I took office on the 1st August, 1881, Mr. Buchanan was in receipt of a salary of £225 per annum, and that he is now in receipt of £350 per annum.

That Mr. Buchanan was promoted to the position of Fifth Clerk at £350 should be no cause of complaint. A clerk senior to Mr. Buchanan was promoted to be Second Clerk, and at the same time without increase of salary.

The rearrangement of the salaries has always been left to me, and in dealing with Mr. Buchanan's case it appeared to me that the increase I recommended was on the same scale as other increases. I was guided only by a desire to act fairly to the whole of the officers, and at the same time to place before the Treasurer a scale likely to meet with his sanction.

Collector of Customs.

No. 5.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Rossiville, Goulburn, 17 August, 1870.

I have the honor to state that I have this day received a communication from the Crown Law Offices, bearing date the 13th August, 1870, apprising me of my appointment as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn.

I beg to be permitted to say how sensible I am of the kindness of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, to whom I express my grateful acknowledgments.

I desire also to take the present opportunity of adverting to the hope that the duties as Registrar may not be considered as inconsistent with my holding the position of a Magistrate, which for so very lengthened a period (appointed by Sir G. Gipps) I have had the honor to hold, and its duties I have desired faithfully to discharge.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

Certainly not.—C.C., 19 Aug., /70. Mr. Rossi informed, 22 Aug., /70.

No. 6.

The Under Secretary, Colonial Secretary's Office, to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 22 August, 1870.

With reference to the inquiry contained in your letter of the 17th instant, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that your appointment as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn will not necessitate your ceasing to hold office as a Justice of the Peace.

I have, &c.,

HENRY HALLORAN.

No. 7.

Mr. H. S. Elliott to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

South-western District Court, Albury, 21 June, 1871.

I have the honor to call your attention to a recent decision of Parliament, by which I am virtually deprived of my office as Principal Registrar of the South-western District Courts, the House having reduced the salary to £75 per annum, with the evident intention that the Clerk of Petty Sessions at Albury shall in future discharge the duties, or a portion of them, and respectfully to solicit further employment in the Public Service.

It is now fourteen years since I was appointed Clerk of Petty Sessions for Albury, which office I held for about five years, when I was promoted to be Clerk of the Peace for the South-western District and Registrar of the District Court at Albury. The former office I held until the recent alterations in the arrangement of the criminal courts came into force, and the latter I still fill. Having devoted the whole of my time to the Public Service, and having no other means of support, or of maintaining a large family, I confidently trust that you will kindly give the matter your early and favourable consideration.

I have, &c.,

H. S. ELLIOTT.

Write to Mr. Elliott and to the other Registrars whose salaries have been reduced, and say that I altogether disapprove of those reductions, and intend to place their salaries on the next Estimates at the rates proposed on the Estimates just passed. I also intend to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to them the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed, and I expect both proposals to be carried in consequence of the full and satisfactory information that will be placed before the House. Request them to say whether they will continue to hold their offices in this expectation, and let me know as soon as possible.—J.M., A.G., 27/6/71. Registrars, Albury, Armidale, Bathurst, and Goulburn apprised, 27/6/71.

No. 8.

The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices, to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 27 June, 1871.

With reference to recent reduction by Parliament of your salary, as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn, I am directed by the Honorable the Attorney-General to state that he altogether disapproves of the reduction, and intends to place your salary on the next Estimates at the rate proposed on the Estimates just passed. The Attorney-General also intends to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to you the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed, and Sir James Martin expects both proposals to be carried, in consequence of the full and satisfactory information that will be placed before the House.

I am to request that you will have the goodness to say whether you will continue to hold your office as Registrar in this expectation.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,

Under Secretary.

No. 9.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

Goulburn, 27 June, 1871.

I have the honor respectfully to represent the distinctive points, wherein the very important duties and obligations of the Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, differ from those of the other twelve Registrars of the Southern District:

1. With him rests the responsibility of the validity of the securities offered by all the bailiffs by their several sureties.
2. Through him is conducted the correspondence between Sydney Government departments, and also from time to time between the Judge and the twelve District Courts, besides the preparation of all estimates, &c., &c.
3. He has to prepare certificates of services of all the bailiffs each month, and of the Registrars once in each quarter.
4. He is required, as Registrar, to make payments to jurors of all Southern District Courts, and to look to all vouchers of the several Courts in connection therewith.
5. He is expected to be informed of any omission or neglect of duty by any of the Registrars or bailiffs of the twelve Courts.
6. As Deputy Clerk of the Peace (the latter office without salary), he is subject at any time, in case of absence of any one of the officers of the several Courts who discharges the duty of Deputy Clerk of the Peace, or for other cause, to be called upon to travel, and himself to undertake the duties during sittings of Quarter Sessions.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

To be filed.—J.M., A.G., 1/7/81.

No. 10.

Memo. from Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Goulburn, 27 June, 1871.

THE Registrar, District Court, Goulburn, will feel greatly obliged if he can be informed the dates at which reduction of his salary is to be made, and that of the Deputy Registrar done away with.

No further payment will be made to the Deputy Registrars for Goulburn, Albury, and Armidale. The reduced salaries for the Registrars at Bathurst and these three places take effect on this day, that is to say, the payments will this day and henceforth until altered be at the reduced rate, £75.—J.M., A.G., 1/7/71. Telegram accordingly.—1/7/71.

It will be necessary, however, in order to legalize this rate to prepare a Minute for the Executive Council setting forth, that as the Attorney-General has reason to believe that in voting a salary of £75 for the Registrars for this year, Parliament did not intend such a reduction to be retrospective; he therefore recommends it to take effect on and from this day, 1st July.—J.M., A.G., 1/7/71.

Minute herewith.—25/7/71.

No. 11.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 30 June, 1871.

I have the honor to acknowledge the communication with which I have been favoured from the Honorable the Attorney-General that he altogether disapproves of the reduction of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, and intends to place my salary on the next Estimates at the rate proposed on the Estimates just passed, and further, that the Honorable the Attorney-General intends to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to me the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed. Lastly, requesting me to say whether I will continue to hold office as Registrar in this expectation. For the just and kind purport of that letter I hope I may be allowed to offer my grateful thanks, and with reference to the last paragraph and query I desire to say that I shall be willing and happy to do so, having utmost confidence in the kind intentions of Sir James Martin.

No. 12.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 30 June, 1871.

I shall feel obliged to have a reply to my memo. of dates to which my salary has been affected, that I may sign voucher for payment, and the time to which the Deputy Registrar is entitled to pay.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

No. 13.

Telegram from Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices, to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

1 July, 1871.

No further payment will be made to you as Deputy Registrar, Goulburn. Reduced salary for Registrars will take effect this day, that is to say, the payment this day and henceforth, until altered, will be at reduced rate of £75 per annum.

Minute of Executive Council.

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 25 July, 1871.

REFERRING to recent disallowance on or about 6th ultimo in the Legislative Assembly of salaries of the Deputy District Court Registrars at Goulburn, Armidale, and Albury, as I have reason to believe that Parliament did not intend such disallowance to be retrospective,—

I recommend that the disallowance of these officers' salaries take effect on and from the 1st of July instant, to include the month of June last.

JAMES MARTIN.

The Executive Council advise, in consequence of the refusal of Parliament to vote the salaries of the Deputy District Court Registrars at Goulburn, Armidale, and Albury, that authority be granted for the disallowance of the salaries referred to, from the 1st July instant.—ALEX. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council.

Minute 71-37, 31st July, 1871. Confirmed, 8th August, 1871. Approved.—B., 10/8/71.

Messrs. Rossi, Perrott, Elliott, and Layard to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

Goulburn, 3 July, 1872.

Having reference to letters severally received by us in the annexed terms from the Honorable the Attorney-General under the date of 27 June, 1871,* and to our respective replies acceding to the proposal of that Minister, we beg respectfully to draw your attention to the promises held out to us, and to express the hope that you will be pleased to give effect to the same by having our salaries restored, as originally provided for, and the amounts of the difference by the reduction paid to us. * See No. 8

We further take the liberty of representing to you that the privation of the greater part of our salaries since the date of the Honorable the Attorney-General's letter has been matter of very serious inconvenience to us.

No. 17.

The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices, to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 3 August, 1872.

I am directed by the Attorney-General to inform you that your salary as Registrar of the Goulburn District Court and Deputy Clerk of the Peace, was voted by the Legislative Assembly on 24th ultimo at the rate of £75 only for the current year. The Attorney-General desires me to say that he cannot under all the circumstances hold out any hope that the Legislative Assembly will reconsider the subject.

With a view to making new and permanent arrangements the Attorney-General desires to be informed of your intentions in regard to the decreased salary for the above offices.

I have, &amp;c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 18.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 9 August, 1872.

I have the honor to acknowledge the letter of the Honorable the Attorney-General, intimating to me that my salary was voted by the Legislative Assembly on 24th ultimo at the rate of £75 only for the current year.

With reference thereto I beg to express the hope that the Honorable the Attorney-General may be pleased to have the question again entertained before the Parliament on the grounds which I now take the liberty to explain.

It had been asserted by some honorable Members in Parliament that they did not see why the Registrar at Goulburn and elsewhere should receive a higher remuneration than others, but such statements were evidently made in ignorance of important points of difference in the offices.

I will name what has recently happened to myself: I am called upon to pay a sum of money, the result of an inaccuracy in a voucher, for payment of jurors made by the Registrar of Cooma; the error having been detected by the Auditor-General seven months after account was furnished, and subsequent to the death of the Registrar. I am burdened with the responsibility in financial matters in connection with their offices of all the twelve Registrars of this district, and am required to substantiate the validity of their securities as well as that of the bailiffs. It is further expected of me to correspond, as head of the Department, Southern District Courts, with all the other District Court officers (this day I am preparing letters to each Registrar).

Besides many other things peculiar to my own office, I have to prepare vouchers and give certificates of services to obtain the respective salaries for remainder of officers. Although charged with these responsibilities, I am placed, as regards my salary, in an inferior position to the bailiff of this Court, and the small sum I receive is in my case further diminished by a deduction for superannuation fund.

I respectfully beg to urge the instances I have given as establishing a position, if the Honorable the Attorney-General will be pleased so to regard it, for further consideration as to the amount of my salary.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

No. 19.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 20 August, 1872.

Having further reference to my letter of 9th instant, addressed to the Honorable the Attorney-General, representing the grounds upon which I expressed the hope that he would be so good as to have reconsidered the question of my salary as Registrar, I now beg to point out by the herein extract from Judge M'Farland's memo., received by me on 17th instant, and which I will thank you to be pleased to place before the Honorable the Attorney-General, that my duties are altogether different from those of other Registrars of the Southern District Courts as had been supposed by some Members of the Legislative Assembly:—

“The Registrar of the Goulburn District Court, to whom belongs the charge of correspondence between the Judge and other Registrars of the Southern District Courts, will forward to Mr. Giles and to Messrs. Jonas and Coulter a copy of this minute, retaining the original and other copies.—ALFRED M'FARLAND.”

No. 20.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 4 August, 1873.

By a memo. on a circular letter of the 23rd ultimo, calling for an estimate of the probable revenue and receipts of the Goulburn District Court for the year 1874, it is noted that I should be relieved of the duty of obtaining such information from the other twelve Registrars.

It is a fact that I have to inquire into the validity of all the sureties given by the several Registrars and Bailiffs, and that I am held responsible.

It is required of me by Judge M'Farland that I should conduct and attend to all correspondence between His Honor and the several Registrars of the Southern District Courts.

All the jury lists (book) for the Judge's signature have to pass through me, and payments of jurors of all the Courts have to be made by me. I have to examine all the vouchers, and make account to the Treasury and Audit Office for the money advanced to me for the payment of jurors. In the case of the late Mr. Nordblad, Registrar, Cooma, six months after he died his accounts were found incorrect, and I was made to pay the amount in error.

A few days ago a request was sent to me from the Treasury that I would, as the Chief Registrar of the Southern District Courts, write a letter to each of the Registrars, calling their attention to the necessity of economy in the use of stationery.

I am applied to at all times by the several Registrars or Bailiffs for anything that may be required.

I respectfully desire to ask of the Honorable the Attorney-General that he will be pleased to have my position reconsidered, and that he would observe how extremely inadequate is the salary given to me as the Chief Registrar, for each day my time is given up to the discharge of an important, and responsible office for a remuneration less than that given to the bailiff of the Court.

Perhaps I may be permitted to mention that some time ago, since the reduction of my salary, I took the opportunity of speaking to Mr. Brown, the Member of Parliament who had formerly opposed the higher salary, and who, after receiving an explanation of the duties and obligations devolving upon me, appeared surprised, and said it ought not so to be, and having reference to what he had said in Parliament, added that he would be very sorry to do any man an injustice.

I would with the utmost respect point out that justice would appear to urge the recognition of my claims for the larger salary appertaining to that office and position while the general duties of Chief Registrar are attached to the office in Goulburn.

I hope I may be pardoned for pressing this application upon the above grounds, which I beg to lay before the Honorable the Attorney-General.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

No. 21.

Judge M'Farland to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 10 September, 1874.

Mr. Rossi has mentioned to me incidentally that he has still to discharge the duties of Registrar-in-Chief for the Southern and Mudgee District Courts, including those incident to mining appeal matters. I was not aware of this when I recommended that his present salary of £75 a year be apportioned between him and the Acting Clerk of the Peace for Goulburn—£40 to the one and £35 to the other.

It would be more just that Mr. Rossi be allowed to retain the £75, and Mr. Alexander be paid the £35 from an independent source.

I have, &amp;c.,

ALFRED M'FARLAND.

No. 22.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 26 October, 1874.

I have had the intention to write respecting the restoration of my salary as Registrar, District Court, Goulburn, and was on the point of doing so when Mr. Allman came to my office to-day to inform me that having heard it was very improbable that Captain Scott would long continue to hold the office of Police Magistrate in Sydney, he, Mr. Allman, had made application contingent upon such a vacancy for that office.

In view of such a change I have the honor to request you will be so good as to submit my application for the office of Police Magistrate at Goulburn to the favourable consideration of the Honorable the Minister of Justice.

I may state that some years since Mr. Allman had applied for the office of Water Police Magistrate, while simultaneously I had applied for the expected vacancy at Goulburn. Sir Charles (then Mr.) Cowper, who was Premier, would have been willing to accede to our wishes, but said he had promised the appointment in Sydney to his son.

In furtherance of my wishes I respectfully state, that pursuant upon the reduction of my salary as Registrar, that the head of my department, the then Attorney-General, who had been aware of my former application for the Goulburn Police Magistracy, told me that it would be the duty of the Government to provide me with another appointment in Goulburn, as my salary had been reduced below that of the bailiff of the District Court.

These circumstances will, I hope, commend themselves to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, who will, I trust, also be pleased to regard it as not unimportant my being so old a colonist and the son of one who was Principal Superintendent of Police in Sydney, whose public services had been so esteemed that a commission in the Army, without purchase, was given to one of his two sons.

I ask that my application will be entertained in the same spirit.

I may also mention that I have been a Magistrate of the Colony since the time of Governor Gipps, from whom I received my commission.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

No probability of any immediate vacancy at Goulburn.—G. W. A., 29/10/74. Mr. Rossi informed, 30/10/74.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 26th instant, applying for appointment as Police Magistrate, Goulburn, when vacant, I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to inform you that there is no probability of any immediate vacancy at Goulburn.

I have, &amp;c.,

No. 24.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 3 November, 1874.

May I request you will be so good as to bring under the notice of the Minister for Justice this application which I have now the honor to make with reference to the restoration of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, which had been reduced from £300 originally to £285, then to £75 per annum.

If I may venture to do so I would point out that that reduction had been brought about by some Members of the Legislature who at the time misapprehending what my duties were and conceiving they were identical with those of the other Registrars of the Southern District Courts, proposed and carried the reduction. To a Member of Parliament who had been the most energetic against me I took the opportunity of explaining how he had misjudged my position, and I showed it was not analogous to the other Registrars of the Southern District Courts, of whom there are now fifteen. After my representation that Member of Parliament admitted that he had not been aware of what I explained, and that he would be very sorry to do me an injustice.

I would refer to the fact that the character of my office is such as to require my constant attendance by reason of being the Chief or Principal Registrar of the Southern District Courts, as I have to answer telegrams or letters received from time to time from the Registrars, while any communication between those officers and the Judge has to pass through me.

I have to attend to the payments of the jurors of all these Courts in the Southern Districts, and to make returns of various matters in connection with these Courts when required by the Government.

That no less than sixty sureties are demanded for the right discharge of the duties of the Registrars and Bailiffs, and that none are accepted by the Government but upon my representations.

That I am also personally held accountable and liable for any defalcation or error caused by any of the fifteen Registrars of the Southern District Courts, I beg to instance the case of a Registrar who had died and his accounts having been found inaccurate, I was made to pay the loss to the Crown.

I do respectfully ask that as all other Government officers have had their incomes restored and in some cases increased, that I may have mine also restored, for the Government can hardly be presumed to expect the proper and faithful discharge of duties of such responsibility as continue to devolve upon me, and absorb all my time at a rate less than that paid to a menial, and rendering my position financially inferior actually to the bailiff.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Dear Mr. Plunkett,

Rossiville, 21 November, 1874.

Some time ago I wrote an official application for the restoration of my salary, and I now ask leave to trouble you kindly to let me know if the Minister for Justice has been pleased favourably to consider that application. I shall feel much obliged if I may have the pleasure of hearing from you.

I am, &amp;c.,

Referring to your letters of 3rd and 21st November last, respecting the restoration of your salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, I am directed to inform you that your application was duly brought under consideration, but that no decision has yet been arrived at upon the subject.

No. 27.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 4 February, 1875.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant, No. 74-6,876, informing me that no decision has yet been arrived at on the subject of the restoration of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn.

As I appear to have mislaid copies of my letters of application of the 3rd and 21st of November last, may I request as a favour to be supplied with copies of those letters.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

No. 28.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice, &amp;c.

Goulburn, 15 February, 1875.

Sir,

I have the honor to address you on the subject of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn.

At my first appointment my salary was £300 per annum. When there was a general reduction of the pay of the Government officers it was proportionately reduced to £285 per annum.

It was afterwards lowered to £75 per annum from an erroneous impression having arisen that my duties were identical with other Registrars of District Courts. Consequently Sir James Martin, former Attorney-General, being sensible of the great injustice, had an official letter sent requesting me to continue in the office of Registrar with the understanding that my salary should be restored and all arrears made good to me.

When the Honorable Mr. Butler succeeded as Attorney-General the former salary was again placed upon the Estimates. As it appeared before Parliament the Honorable Mr. Parkes said in reply to a question that it was "a typographical error," but in the case of the Registrar at Maitland the sum was passed.

I applied to the late Minister of Justice in November last, and on the 4th instant received the reply that "my application was duly brought under consideration, but that no decision has yet been arrived at upon the subject."

I ask leave to point out that there are seventeen Southern District Courts, and I am required to furnish returns and supply any and all information having reference to these Courts to the Minister of Justice. That I am held responsible for the sufficiency and fitness of all the sureties of the several Registrars and Bailiffs to whom I have referred.

That the Judge requires that all correspondence between himself and those Registrars shall be carried on through me. That I have to arrange for the payment of all jurors attending the several Courts.

That I have had to write as many as sixteen letters in one day to these Registrars, and I have to attend continually to letters and telegrams which demand my daily attendance, while I am pained by the sense of derogation of my position in the fact that I am remunerated at a lower rate than even the bailiff of the Court.

I should mention that my responsibilities are actual, for I am bound to call attention to the fact that when the Registrar of Cooma died some inaccuracy was found in his accounts, and I was made to pay the deficiency to the Government, and that from my reduced salary.

I humbly venture to say that it is always regarded as an equitable principle that positions of trust and responsibility are recognized by liberal salaries, and I would with very great respect ask the fair consideration of my position and that my salary may be placed at its original amount.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Registrar, District Court, Goulburn, and the Southern District Courts.

Acknowledge and place with other papers and bring forward when Estimates are under consideration.—J.D., 18/2/75. Acknowledge, 20/2/75.

[Enclosure 1.]

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Registrar, District Court, Bathurst.

Goulburn, 4 February, 1875.

My dear Sir,
I take the liberty of writing to ask you, if I may do so, whether we cannot do something towards the restoration of our salaries as Registrars of our several District Courts. The officers which suffered the reductions were Bathurst, Albury, Armidale, and Goulburn.

I believe Sir James Martin requested all the officers of those Courts to retain their positions in the view of the restoration of their former salaries, and the payment of all arrears.

Accordingly those salaries were placed on the Estimates by the successor of Sir James Martin, the late Attorney-General, Mr. Butler, but when the items appeared before Parliament Mr. Parkes, in answer to the question of a Member, said it was a "typographical error," and on my inquiring from a reliable source how that "typographical error" was allowed to continue in the case of Maitland, I was told "the people there said they must have their Registrar."

I should tell you that I had in November last renewed my claim for restoration of original salary on the ground (which I presume will apply to the Registrars of the places I refer to) that while my salary has been withdrawn my duties and responsibilities remain. That there are sixteen other Southern District Courts with which I am required to correspond on behalf of the Government and the Judge. That I am required to certify to the validity of all sureties of the Registrars and bailiffs. I was able to instance a case to show that no imaginary responsibility rests with me as Registrar, viz.: The Registrar at Cooma died, an inaccuracy was found in his accounts, and I was made to pay it, even from my reduced salary, which is lower than that of the bailiff.

To my application I have only now just received the reply that it had been "brought under consideration, but no decision had been arrived at."

Will you very kindly say, and I will ask the opinions of the Registrars I have mentioned as to the best course for us all to adopt, and whether we should ask for restoration of our salaries, either individually or collectively, or in both ways.

The time is very opportune when a new Minister of Justice will have to prepare fresh Estimates.

Do if you please oblige by letting me have the pleasure of hearing from you, and excuse this long and troublesome note. You will, perhaps, realize with me that it is not an unfavourable sign that no decision on this matter so important to us has been arrived at.

I am, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

[Enclosure 2.]

Mr. E. Browne to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Court-house, Albury, 8 February, 1875.

My dear Sir,
I am in receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, and in reply would remark that your statements would more particularly apply to my predecessor, Mr. Sherman Elliott, now Police Magistrate at Grafton, as he held office here as Registrar at the time of and for a considerable period after the reduction.

There can be no doubt that the pay of the Registrars of the Circuits is miserably low, when the duties and responsibilities are taken into consideration.

Although I suffered with the Registrars by the withdrawal of my pay as Deputy I fear there is no chance of redress.

I think Mr. Elliott might have a claim for arrears upon the grounds mentioned by you, and perhaps, if written to, would join in your application to have your claims recognized.

Wishing you every success,—

I am, &amp;c.,

EDWARD BROWNE.

[Enclosure

[Enclosure 3.]

Mr. S. Fielder to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Dear Sir,

Bathurst District Court, 9 February, 1875.

Yours of the 4th instant came to hand safely yesterday (8th instant).

I should have been too happy to have lent my support and countenance to any effort for the restoration of the Registrars' salaries to the original amounts, but am, I regret to say, in this case precluded from so doing.

Mine is not a parallel case to that of those officers whose salaries were reduced. I accepted office recently on the reduced scale of pay. I consequently have no actual grievance to complain of, whatever my virtual misfortune may be. I have eight (8) other Courts with their responsibilities to support and correspond with. I trust that if you do combine for the purpose in view, that the country by Parliament may acknowledge your reasonable claims and restore the office of Registrar to its proper basis and pay.

I am, &amp;c.,

FRANK S. FIELDER,
Registrar.

[Enclosure 4.]

Mr. S. Bligh to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

My dear Sir,

Armidale, 12 February, 1875.

I have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, relative to the restoration of the original salaries of the Registrars of Albury, Armidale, Bathurst, and Goulburn, and while cordially agreeing with your view of the case, I can hardly believe it will be brought to a successful issue.

In my own case of course I hardly look at the matter from the same standpoint as yourself, as I have succeeded Mr. Perrott in his office of Registrar here, and this office I hold in conjunction with several others, and of course under the same responsibility as yourself.

I fear, therefore, that the fact of one such office being held in connection with other Government appointments will rather militate against any special claim to have it held in future as an office per se, although I cannot but feel that those gentlemen who like yourself were reduced from £300 a year to £75 a year have cause to feel that a claim for compensation on their behalf ought to be made.

Sir,

Goulburn, 22 February, 1875.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, informing me that my application for increase of salary to its former rate of £300 per annum will be brought forward when the Estimates are under consideration. I beg to be allowed to return my thanks, and I would seek the present opportunity to add what I appear to have omitted in my last communication, viz., that on my appointment as Mining Registrar in reply to my application for an increase of salary, the Minister of Mines by a letter received by me on 20th June last said, that "the question of salary would be considered probably before being called upon to act."

I may remark that I have had to attend to considerable correspondence upon mining matters carried on through me with the Government and the Mining Registrar at Mudgee.

May I ask that the foregoing facts may be made known to the Honorable the Minister of Justice; they will tend, I hope to strengthen my claim for restoration of salary to the same sum as the Registrar of the Maitland District Court, who has duties connected with eighteen Courts, while I am similarly placed with regard to seventeen Courts.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 25 March, 1875.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th instant, informing me that it has been found impossible to comply with my request of having my former salary placed upon the Estimates, the Legislative Assembly having three times refused to grant the amount.

With the utmost respect I ask leave to point out that there is an essential difference existing in my case from the manner in which it stood formerly. Then there were three other Registrars similarly placed with myself; now there is but one Registrar, Maitland holding that office per se, who is paid £300 per annum, while I who discharge the like duties for Goulburn and the Southern District Courts am paid so inadequately.

I do ask that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be pleased to reconsider this strong point in my favour. I may add that I believe the Legislative Assembly could not have been aware that I have been made responsible for others; that I am required to conduct, as I have already intimated, any correspondence between the head of the Department and the sixteen other Registrars, and to prepare returns, the whole of which duties and obligations I should feel bound in justice to myself to ask to be relieved from, if the salary for my office continues at a lower remuneration than that of the bailiff. In conclusion, I beg permission to say, that it does appear to me that if the Assembly could be informed of the duties I am called upon to perform, and that the officer at Maitland whose duties are the same as my own receives £300, while I receive but £75, that they would as a matter of justice be willing to put me on an equal footing.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 29 March, 1875.

In the letter of the 24th instant from the Department of Justice I observe the sole objection to compliance with my request for the restoration of my salary is, that it is said that the Legislative Assembly had refused three times to grant the amount.

I have the honor respectfully to state that my impression is that the restoration of my salary was refused but once.

In the first instance the salary was reduced under the impression that my duties were altogether analogous with those of other Registrars.

The second occasion the restoration of salary was brought forward, and as such was rejected but once, for on the third occasion, although the item had been placed on the Estimates by the concurrence of the Cabinet, Mr. Parkes removed it therefrom, assigning as a reason "that it was a typographical error."

I again humbly pray that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be pleased to place me in the same position I was in at the time Mr. Parkes removed the item from the Estimates.

I feel confident in the hope that the Legislative Assembly, if it could be aware of my position, would deal with me in a similar manner to the Registrar of the District Court, Maitland.

Awaiting an early reply,

I have, &amp;c.,

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 4 June, 1875.

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 29th ultimo, intimating that "in future all applications for advances of moneys in respect of the District Court at Goulburn may be made direct direct to the Treasury, and that other matters relating to the District Court be referred to this Department, instead of through the Registrar at Goulburn, as at present." May I be permitted to inquire if I am to understand by that communication that the Government will abandon the intention it had, as I had been led to hope by the terms of the letter of the 7th April last, received from the Honorable the Minister of Justice, of the restoration of my salary in the next Estimates? If so, I must respectfully claim leave to point out that by what is proposed to be done, that the measure of hardship—might I say injustice—dealt to me is not diminished, for I am still called upon to devote the whole of my time exclusively to the duties of my office, at a remuneration—I trust I may be excused for repeating—which is less than that paid to the bailiff of this Court. I beg to name that the regulations, requiring that I should at all times obtain leave of absence (even for a day), utterly preclude my engaging in business of a private nature to afford me an adequate means of subsistence, and I am necessarily bound to the discharge of my public duties at a rate even below that which the humblest labourer can make. It can hardly be said of me that, if I do not like the position, I may retire; that would still be injustice, for I entered upon the office at £300 per annum, and I have done nothing to bring about or merit the humiliation of the reduction of my salary. There are no other gentlemen among the District Court Registrars who are now similarly placed with myself, and I do most earnestly pray that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be so good as to review the whole of the circumstances of my case; and if I may take it upon myself to express my own wishes, either to have my salary restored, if it be allowed to the Registrar at Maitland, or to have granted to me an adequate compensation for the serious loss I have sustained.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Registrar, District Court, Goulburn.

The several District Court Registrars are paid by salary, and required to give security (£250) to the Crown for due performance of duties of their respective offices. Experience has shown that greater accuracy and the loss of much time and unnecessary correspondence would be avoided by communicating direct in the manner lately ordered. I am not aware that any communication from me would warrant the hope that the applicant states he had been led to entertain, that the Government would place the restoration of his salary upon the Estimates; in fact the minute of the 13th March is directly to the contrary effect.—J.D., 12/6/75. Mr. Rossi informed, 14/6/75.

No. 37.

The Under Secretary of Justice, &c., to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Department of Justice and Public Instruction, Sydney, 14 June, 1875.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of 4th instant, respecting instructions recently issued to several Registrars of the Southern District Courts to communicate in certain cases to the Treasury and this department, and the allusion as to restoration of your salary, I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to observe that the several District Court Registrars are paid by salary, and require to give security (£250) to the Crown for the due performance of their respective duties, and that greater accuracy would be ensured and loss of time and unnecessary correspondence avoided by their communicating direct in the manner lately ordered.

Mr. Docker has instructed me to add, with respect to the remaining portion of your letter, that he is not aware of any communication from him that would warrant the hope which you state you had been led to entertain that the Government would place the restoration of your salary upon the Estimates. He has remarked that, in fact, the letter from this department, of the 24th March last, is directly to the contrary effect.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,

No. 38.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice, &c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 18 June, 1875.

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 14th instant, wherein I am informed that the Honorable Mr. Docker "has instructed me to add with respect to the remaining portion of your letter that he is not aware of any communication from him that would warrant the hope which you state you had been led to entertain, that the Government would place the restoration of your salary upon the Estimates. He has remarked that, in fact, the letter from this department, of the 24th March last, is directly to the contrary effect."

In reference thereto I admit that the letter of the 24th March was written in such terms, but upon the receipt of my later letters in reply, dated 25th and 29th March, a subsequent letter was addressed to me from the Department of Justice, bearing date 7th April, which acknowledged the receipt of my "further letters of the 25th and 29th March respecting the restoration of your salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, and to inform you that no steps can be taken in the matter during the present Session of Parliament."

That communication, following upon that of 24th March, certainly if it were intended to convey anything could only point as it appeared to me to a future time when steps would be taken to restore my salary.

I still plead most earnestly that the Honorable the Minister in seeing that I am cast in a position different to the other Registrars of District Courts, will be pleased to do me the justice by the restoration of my salary, or by giving me an adequate compensation for the loss I have sustained.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice, &amp;c.

Sir, Goulburn, 14 October, 1876.
I have the honor to address you relative to my position as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, and arising therefrom to speak of my desire for an adequate increase of my present, if not for restoration of my original, salary, or otherwise to be appointed to the first vacancy to the Police Magistracy at Goulburn.

It may be hardly necessary to recapitulate that upon the reduction of my salary I had an official invitation to continue in my office, with the expectation of having my full salary again, and all arrears paid. That on a subsequent occasion, when the former amount was placed on the Estimates, it was evaded by the Honorable Mr. Parkes saying, in reply to a Member of Parliament, that it was a typographical error.

I venture respectfully to represent that my position is somewhat peculiar, and might with propriety be treated as a speciality, without much probability of establishing a very dangerous precedent.

All the Registrars who had filled similar offices to that held by me have now been provided for.

I am required to give my daily attendance at my office, while I alone have been suffered to continue at a rate lower than is paid to a menial. I do now earnestly beg that I may have a considerable and just increase, if I may not receive my original salary, as my case is really one per se.

If, however, it should be approved, I would strongly desire to renew a former application I made to be appointed on the first vacancy to the Police Magistracy at Goulburn. This office I had sought several years ago, on the occasion of Mr. Allman's seeking to be made Water Police Magistrate at Sydney; and Sir Charles (then Mr.) Cowper expressed his willingness to favour Mr. Allman's and my wishes, but the office was purposed to be given to Mr. Cowper, junior.

I am advised that Mr. Allman has recently desired to be moved to the Police Magistracy at Sydney, at the first vacancy, and I would ask to be allowed to urge my application for the like office at Goulburn. I respectfully do this on the principle acknowledged in pensions, which are given in consideration of the loss of office; and the proper justification for giving such pension is that the beneficiaire is put out of his emoluments, and turned adrift upon the world.

Memo. Sydney, 27 October, 1876.
I beg to forward the within letter from the Registrar of the Goulburn District Court, and to request that it may be considered in connection with the recommendation that Mr. Rossi's salary be increased, which I have already had the honor of submitting to the Minister of Justice.

ALFRED M'FARLAND.

[Enclosure.]

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to Judge M'Farland.

Sir, Goulburn, 11 October, 1876.
I would respectfully desire to avail of your kind and valuable aid in having the restoration or increase of my salary as Registrar of the Goulburn District Court entertained by the Minister of Justice. In the first place I would state that originally my salary was £300 per annum: this, however, was reduced to £75 per annum by Parliament, under a misapprehension of the circumstances of my case and that of the several Registrars of Albury, Bathurst, Armidale, and Maitland. Immediately upon this an official communication was sent to me by the then head of my Department (Sir James Martin) requesting me to hold office in the expectation of having my former salary restored and all arrears made good. And in the next Estimates submitted to Parliament my salary was set down at the original sum, but it was not pressed, and was lost in Committee: since then I have hoped year after year that it would be restored.

The various and regular duties of my office call for my daily attendance in Goulburn, while great responsibility attaches to the faithful discharge of those duties. The remuneration which I receive is utterly inadequate, and I am, without any fault of mine, made to suffer a very grievous injustice, for on the faith of the appointment I had been led to forego other objects of secular business to enable me more diligently to bestow attention to public requirements. It happens happens that all the holders of similar offices, whose salaries were similarly reduced, who had similar promises made to them have been suitably provided for by successive Governments, while I alone of those who had received the higher salaries am still required to bestow full attention to my office at a rate less than is paid even to a menial. The Bailiff of the Court has a higher salary than I have. I humbly beg to submit the justice of my claim for restoration of salary, and my case will now be found to be only per se.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

P.S.—I beg to annex a copy of a letter* received from the Under Secretary, Department of Justice, at the time of my appointment, informing me that I should be entitled to receive £300 per annum. The other letter to which reference is made, requesting me to hold office in the expectation of my restoration of salary, I cannot at present lay my hand on, but a copy of that letter will be found in the records of the Department of Justice.—F.R.L.R. <sup>*See No. 4, 18/8/70.</sup>

I have the honor again to refer to the inadequacy of my present salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, and I would ask leave to say that I am required to give my daily attendance at the office, while my salary has been reduced to £75 per annum, a lower rate than is paid to any officer (who has not plurality of offices) or even to a menial of the lowest grade in the Government service. It may be scarcely necessary to remind that I hold by me a letter from Sir James Martin (then Attorney-General) requesting me to hold office in the expectation that my salary should be restored and all arrears made good to me. I now wish to say that if the original amount cannot well be restored I pray that at least some reasonable addition may be made to my salary, such an amount as would be considered under all circumstances to be fair and equitable.

Sir, Rossiville, Goulburn, 5 January, 1878.

I have the honor to address you relative to my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn. I received the appointment upon the understanding that my salary would be £300 per annum, but it has been reduced to £75 per annum, which will be admitted to be utterly inadequate to the responsibilities and duties of the office.

I should say that I give my constant and regular attendance daily at my office, while I am requited with so miserable a pittance that the office or position is degraded, my salary being even lower than that of the bailiff of the Court, and less than is paid to a menial, while I am deprived, by reason of my public duties, from actively engaging in any other pursuit.

Under these circumstances I earnestly beg you will be good enough to have my salary restored to me, which cannot be considered unreasonable, holding as I do a letter from Sir J. Martin, while Attorney-General, received after the reduction of my salary, wherein I am invited to continue to discharge the duties of my office as Registrar with the understanding that my salary should be restored, and all arrears made good to me.

Sir, Goulburn, 31 August, 1878.
Having reference to my position as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, I have the honor to represent that I had originally been appointed to that office upon a salary of £300 per annum, which was in 1871 reduced to £75 per annum. That immediately upon such reduction I received a letter from the Attorney-General, then head of the Department, requesting me to continue in the discharge of the duties of the office with the understanding that my salary should be restored and all arrears made good to me.

From

From time to time with each Administration I have called attention to the foregoing fact without hitherto obtaining any restoration or arrears of salary as had been promised. It may hardly be necessary to dwell upon the inadequacy of the salary received, seeing that the requirements of the office demand my daily attendance, while I am not aware that any servant of the Government receives so small a remuneration even for the lowest services. I respectfully request that this matter may be taken into serious consideration.

No. 56.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice, &c.

Sir,

Goulburn, 7 November, 1878.

I have noticed in the Echo that a schedule has been prepared by the Government, in explanation of the Estimates-in-Chief for 1879, showing the total remuneration received by all public officers who hold more than one office, &c. I have not seen this schedule, but apprehend that as I am not a pluralist my name is not included. I should have preferred that my name had been introduced, for I am persuaded it would have appeared as the lowest paid officer in the Public Service, not excepting the lowest menial or boy.

The public eye cannot perceive how exceptionally and unequally I am dealt with by merely looking at the Estimates; therein it would appear as though the Registrar, District Court, Goulburn, was even paid at a higher rate than some other similar officers.

I quote again from the same articles in the Echo (date 5th instant), which, after speaking of the increases in salaries in the various Departments, adds, "We hope, however, that all these increases will be considered on their merits, and that while the public interests are properly guarded, full justice will be done to the members of the Civil Service." It is upon this subject I must take the liberty of writing, and I trust the exigency of my case will excuse the plainness with which I must do so in justice to myself. I grieve to find that no increase of salary, or compensation, is proposed for me, and it is incomprehensibly strange that this should be so, for you were good enough to undertake that justice should be done to me. You also inquired if I asked for compensation; I replied that I did. You will remember my bringing before you certain facts,—

- 1st. That I still hold the written official request of a former head of the Department, who upon the reduction of my heretofore salary to one-fourth its original amount, requested my continuance of office upon the understanding that I should receive it again, together with all arrears.
- 2nd. That the few Registrars who were in a similar position have since received satisfactory promotions, while I alone, to use a commonly received expression "am left out in the cold."
- 3rd. That I had told one of your predecessors (when head of the Department of Justice) that a subsequent Government had restored my salary upon the printed Estimates, but the then Colonial Secretary did, on the assembling of Parliament, in reply to a question, say, that the proposition was a "typographical error," upon which the Minister for Justice remarked to me, "It is not the only cowardly thing that I have known Mr. — do."
- 4th. That I represented to yourself a soldier was not paid for the days only he was shooting the enemy—he had to be paid for watching or waiting for the enemy,—adding, I did not complain of the measure of work but of the absorption of my time, as much demanded as that of any other public officer. Whereupon you were pleased to say, "that if the office were necessary that I ought not to be kept on a starving salary." It is almost an absurdity to argue here upon the necessity of the office; if it be unnecessary the Judge of a District Court would have his functions impeded, as much as a coachman without coach or horses. It will be perceived that 'till the abolition of the office of Registrar I am to be recognized in my claims as entitled under the circumstances to a very different consideration than to one who might voluntarily accept for the first time the appointment to the office upon such diminished salary. I am remunerated for my services at little more than is given by the Government to some public officers for the forage of a horse. I am obliged, for the discharge of my duties to keep a horse. I am less considered than the bailiff of my Court, whose salary and fees far exceed what is allowed to me, while many public servants receive, besides their salaries, more than twice the amount of my salary for house rent alone. I do not venture to cavil or criticise the proposition of the Government, but I am warranted in pressing this feature arising from the illustration, that I have to maintain myself upon a salary so inadequate that the proverb of the impossibility of "keeping soul and body together" becomes a literalism. I cannot furnish the tale of bricks if straw be not supplied. If there is no other alternative, I am constrained to state that it is impossible for me to devote as I do my time exclusively to the duties of my office, for I cannot get bread to eat,—that it is in purpose by me to request Judge MacFarland to be pleased, as provided by the District Court Act, to appoint the days on which my office shall be opened for the public, and to reduce the occasions to not more than one or two days in each week, beyond which I decline to attend. It is true that there is never one moment of each day that it may be said I may not be required, for, although the Courts are to be held three times in each year, I am subject continually to be called upon to issue warrants, to pay suitors, to make searches, to receive and answer letters and telegrams, &c., yet as the public will not pay for such services it can hardly demand or expect to receive them.

The Under Secretary of Justice, &c., to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Department of Justice and Public Instruction, Sydney, 12 November, 1878.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 7th instant, urging an increase to your present salary as Registrar of District Court, Goulburn.

No. 58.

Précis of Applications of Mr. F. R. L. Rossi for increase of salary.

On 6th June, 1871, the salaries of the several Registrars of the District Courts at Goulburn, Albury, Bathurst, and Armidale were reduced by the Legislative Assembly from £300 to £75 per annum respectively, on the ground principally that there was no sufficient reason shown why these officers should receive a higher salary than other Registrars whose duties it was said were analogous. On the 27th of the same month, by direction of Mr. Attorney-General Martin, Mr. Rossi (with the other Registrars) was informed by letter in the following terms:—"That the Attorney-General altogether disapproves of the reduction and intends to place your salary on the next Estimates at the rate proposed on the Estimates just passed. The Attorney-General also intends to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to you the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed, and Sir James Martin expects both proposals to be carried in consequence of the full and satisfactory information that will be placed before the House. I am to request that you will have the goodness to say whether you will continue to hold your office as Registrar in this expectation?"

The promise conveyed by this letter, upon which Mr. Rossi mainly relies, of submitting the salary at the old rate, was faithfully carried out, and every exertion made at the time to induce the Assembly to restore the amount, but without success, and on 3rd August, 1872, Mr. Rossi was informed (in common with the other Registrars) that his salary as Registrar of the District Court and Deputy Clerk of the Peace at Goulburn was voted by the Legislative Assembly at the rate of £75 only for that year (1872). He was also informed that the then Attorney-General (Mr. Butler) could not under all the circumstances hold out any hope that the Assembly would reconsider the subject, and he was requested with a view to making new and permanent arrangements to intimate his intentions in regard to the decreased salary of his office. In reply to this letter Mr. Rossi expressed a hope that the question might again be submitted to Parliament pointing out in a lengthy recapitulation of his case the principal grounds upon which he relied for restoration of salary—the responsibility of his office and the various duties he had to perform as "Chief Registrar of the Southern District Courts," which were not required of the other Registrars in his district.

From 1873 to present month (November, 1878) Mr. Rossi has addressed various communications to the Department on the same subject, urging a reconsideration of his case and the hardship of the reduction, which made his salary lower than the bailiff of his Court, and wholly insufficient to live upon. He points out that the other Registrars whose salaries were reduced have been all provided with better appointments, while he alone has been "left out in the cold," and he earnestly begs an increase of salary may be granted, or that he may receive "adequate compensation" for the loss he has sustained.

In February, 1875, he was informed, by direction of Mr. Docker (then Minister of Justice), that his application having been under consideration it was found impossible to comply with his request to have his former salary placed upon the Estimates, the Legislative Assembly having three times refused to grant the amount.

In January last Mr. Rossi was again informed that "the Cabinet cannot at present accede to his request for an increase of salary."

He has lately addressed two lengthy further communications on the same subject, which are substantially a repetition of former arguments, in support of his application.

It will be observed that Mr. Rossi's previous position as Registrar of the Goulburn District Court is widely different to that formerly occupied by him when he received a salary of £300 a year, and acted as "Chief

"Chief Registrar of the Southern District Courts' as well as Clerk of the Peace for that district. He has been since relieved of all the more important duties required of him in his former capacity, and his responsibility is now limited to those duties immediately appertaining to the office of Registrar of the Goulburn District Court, which is held at present twice a year. He is no longer required to exercise as formerly any supervision over the other Courts in the Southern District, the business of each Court being conducted by the Registrar, who corresponds direct with his Department on all matters connected with his Court.

Mr. Rossi is now in the same position as the various other Registrars, and his duties are precisely similar, while his salary is higher than the average rate paid in other districts where the Court is held four times a year.

There is however this distinction in Mr. Rossi's case, that it is the only case, except Newcastle and Bathurst, where the office is held as a separate appointment. In all other cases the Clerk of Petty Sessions is also the Registrar of the District Court, and it might fairly be assumed that the Clerk of Petty Sessions at Goulburn would probably be quite willing and able for the same remuneration to perform the duties of Registrar of the Goulburn Court if that office became vacant.

In reference to Mr. Rossi's remark that he is the only one of the reduced Registrars who has not received a better appointment, it would appear that the only application for promotion made by him has been for the P.M.-ship at Goulburn in the event of Mr. Allman's transfer to Sydney.

In one or two of his letters he applies for "adequate compensation" for the loss he has sustained in the reduction of his salary.

Under all the circumstances of Mr. Rossi's case, he appears to have very strong claims to promotion to a better and more lucrative position and would probably before this have received such promotion but for his evident reluctance to leave Goulburn, possibly in the hope of succeeding to Mr. Allman's present position as Police Magistrate at that place in the event of a vacancy, for which appointment he is now an applicant.

T.E.M.N.

Department of Justice, 18th November, 1878.

After a very careful perusal of all the papers relating to Mr. Rossi's case I do not think he has any claims whatever for compensation, and I further think that the salary for Registrar, &c., would be more properly held by the local Clerk of Petty Sessions. The increase of salary has been dealt with on three several occasions in Parliament adversely and I decline to re-open this question. If Mr. Rossi should desire any appointment in any Department under my control I shall be prepared to give such application the fullest consideration.—J.L., 26/11/78.

The Under Secretary of Justice, &c., to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Department of Justice and Public Instruction, Sydney, 26 November, 1878.

Referring to your letter of 7th instant and previous correspondence respecting an increase of your salary as Registrar of the District Court of Goulburn, or some compensation in respect of the reduction by the Legislative Assembly of such salary from £300 to £75 per annum, I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to state that after a very careful perusal of all the papers in your case he does not think you have any claim whatever for compensation, and he is of opinion that the office of District Court Registrar would be more properly held by the local Clerk of Petty Sessions, in accordance with the usual custom in other districts.

I am also to observe that as the question of increase of salary has been dealt with adversely on three several occasions by the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Leary declines to re-open the matter, but at the same time he desires me to inform you that if you should apply for another appointment in any Department under his control he will be prepared to give your application the fullest consideration.

The Hon. J. Lackey, M.P., to The Minister of Justice, &c.

My dear Sutor,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 25 April, 1879.

The bearer, Mr. F. R. L. Rossi, who holds the office of Registrar, District Court, Goulburn, is anxious to secure some assistance in remedying an injustice from which he suffers.

I am strongly of opinion that Mr. Rossi has not been fairly dealt with, and am sure that you will not hesitate to consider his position with a view of remedying the grievance under which he labours.

Mr. Rossi is an old colonist and the son of an old colonist, and I shall take it as a favour if you will give him an opportunity, as I am sure you will, of laying his case before you.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN LACKEY.

I informed Mr. Rossi who called upon me that I could not entertain an application to increase the amount of salary he receives for the office he now holds. I further informed him he would in all probability have long since received a more remunerative situation had he been willing to leave Goulburn. Mr. Rossi asked that he might receive the appointment of Police Magistrate, Goulburn, in the event of Mr. Allman leaving the district; I did not give him the slightest promise that I would give him this appointment.—F.B.S., 28/4/79.

No. 61.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Goulburn, 22 November, 1880.

I have the honor to lay before you certain important facts which intimately affect the honor of the Government of this Colony, and lastingly concern both my comfort as a public officer and my social position.

So far as above ten years ago my salary as Registrar of the District Court, which originally had been guaranteed to me at £300 per annum, was reduced to £75 per annum. The circumstances surrounding that reduction were of so peculiar a nature as to elicit the strong comments of the then head of my Department as conveyed to me by the terms of his letter (a copy enclosed*) of 27th June, 1871.

* See No. 8

Altogether abiding upon the expectation of the fulfilment of the promise for restoration of my salary, and the refunding of all arrears, I accepted the invitation to remain in office, and continued with unabated hope to expect the realization of the promises.

It is true that the matter had been subsequently referred to Parliament and had been rejected, though on grounds altogether foreign from those I seek to point out, and which are such that had they been displayed at the time must have altered that decision. The vote was disallowed I believe more upon the general question as to whether certain Registrars (five in all) should be remunerated at a higher salary than other Registrars. Its rejection, however, became an unintentional deflection of justice, for the several Registrars of the most important District Courts, who had been previously considered worthy of their respectively higher salaries, were reduced to incomes inferior to those Registrars who presided at lesser District Courts, the latter all being pluralists and thereby enjoying in some instances large salaries, while those who had suffered these reductions had no other emoluments to aid them.

Those Registrars who were at Bathurst, Albury, Armidale (Maitland not having then been reduced), have all been satisfactorily provided for, while I alone have had nothing done for me and am in the enjoyment of no other receipts of office.

I would represent,—

1. That the business connected with my Department has so enormously increased as to exceed in a single sitting of the Court, the former business of a whole year, that business being now multiplied as three to one.
2. That the delay in redeeming the promises pressed upon me in no manner impugns their validity, but rather establishes more effectually my proper claim for their recognition and observance.
3. That I have repeatedly pointed out this exceptional and isolated instance where I, a public officer, have been so long called upon to endure the privation of loss of salary.
4. That precedents abound of the acknowledgments of the rights of others somewhat similarly placed. These had implied claims upon the Government, but had not been fortified like myself with a distinct written promise, but nevertheless the equity of their claims was recognized, as instance, Sir Alfred Stephen, who received after nineteen years (through the instrumentality of the Minister of Justice) payment of arrears of salary, together with interest thereon, as also the cases of the Sheep Inspectors, whose incomes were restored after a previous deprivation of salary by Parliament.

I now respectfully ask that the Honorable the Minister for Justice will be so good as to take such steps as shall seem best to him, in order that I may obtain to the full the accomplishment of the promises which have led me to devote myself unreservedly and faithfully to the duties of my office.

In conclusion I would say that I am largely encouraged by the assurance received from a Member of the Legislative Assembly "that if my claim were properly brought forward by the Minister it would receive the full approval of Parliament."

No. 62.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir G. Innes,

Rossiville, Goulburn, 22 November, 1880.

By the present post I have forwarded my official application for the fulfilment of promises made to me by the Government, or head of my Department, with respect to the restoration of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, and the payment of all arrears of salary, which I now seek in full, together with reasonable compensation for the loss I have hitherto incurred. I ask for your just regard of my position as a public officer, for I have suffered greatly; this has been admitted by many in authority. I may tell you that not long since I had been the bearer of a letter from the Honorable Mr. Lackey to your predecessor, which letter the writer read to me; it stated that I had suffered great injustice, and urgently asked that my case should be recognized.

I give you my assurance that I have continued a faithful servant of the Crown for the long and many years since I had been deprived of my salary solely from the inextinguishable hope and confidence I entertained that the voice of Parliament would at some time recognize the justice of my case. With this expectation I emphatically repeat I have endured, I do not hesitate to say, much suffering of mind and body, arising from the fact that it had been utterly impossible for me to live with my wife upon the reduced salary, diminished in value below that received by an ordinary menial. I am constrained to tell you I have had occasion from time to time to part with the chief part of my landed property, and this necessity has arisen purely and only from my reduction of salary. I am sure if you will favour me with a full consideration of my present position, viz. :—(1) What I have been reduced to; (2) what I have been promised; (3) what I have patiently borne upon the good faith of the letter I send you a copy of,—that you will really be moved to help me.

May I conclude with a quotation I lately met with from an author (R. Cecil), greatly esteemed on the subject of promises:—"It is a prevailing plea with a fellow mortal when we ask a favour, if we can say, 'You have raised this expectation in my mind, a man of honor and integrity will say to himself:—'It is true I did give grounds for hope to this person, and therefore I must not disappoint him although I did it without proper consideration, and it will put me to much trouble and expense.'"

I am, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

The

The precis with these papers gives a tolerably correct history of Mr. Rossi's case, but Mr. Rossi's demand is vague and too general in terms for further consideration in its present shape. He might be asked to submit a concise statement, setting forth shortly what he really conceives he is entitled to as compensation, or otherwise, in respect of the altered position of his office, and he might show in figures the amount of his demand for the final consideration of his case by the Government.—W.E.P., 8/12/80.

No. 63.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Colonial Secretary.

My dear Sir Henry Parkes,

Rossville, Goulburn, 4 December, 1880.

I shall trust to your uniform kindness if I may be permitted to lay before you the enclosure.* * Missing from the papers.

You will not fail to perceive that as it relates to matters which so vitally concern me I may probably be excused if I seek to apply an extraordinary remedy for a rare malady.

Upon the perusal of my application to the Minister of Justice it will be found sufficiently explanatory I trust. It points to one important feature, viz., that the full recognition of my claim involves no costly precedent, as my case is purely exceptional and will call forth no similar appeals.

I give you my assurance that I have undeviatingly, throughout the long course of years which have elapsed since the promises were made to me, relied upon their fulfilment, and upon that expectation alone I have continued to hold an office, so degraded in its emoluments as to be sunk to less than that which sometimes is paid to a menial.

As in consequence of my official position I abandoned other pursuits I do not hesitate to say I have been necessitated to sell from time to time the chief part of my landed property, this really and solely in consequence of my diminished income.

I am brought by the withholding of the realization of these promises to a great extremity.

May I bring before you an exposition I met with in regard to the subject of promises: "It is a prevailing plea with a fellow mortal when we ask a favour if we can say, 'You have raised this expectation in my mind.' A man of honor and integrity will say to himself, 'It is true I did give ground for hope to this person, and therefore I must not disappoint, although I did it without proper consideration, and it will put me to much trouble and expense.'"—(Original Thoughts, R. Cecil, vol. 2, page 500.)

I am aware that it may happen that though the mind of a Government may affirm a principle of justice it may fail in its action, wanting the sense of public support, but I would confidently say if you will wield the power which it is universally admitted will now more generally than ever be accorded to you, there is yet a bright prospect for me if you will be pleased to give a personal attention to my requests.

No. 64.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

My dear Mr. Plunkett,

Rossville, Goulburn, 7 December, 1880.

May I ask you to pardon what probably will appear an unusual procedure on my part, but really the exigency of the case impels me to write to you.

I have, through you, laid my application before the Honorable the Minister of Justice, having previously obtained his permission to do so. Do not think it unbecoming if I take it upon myself to invite your kind and favourable attention to the peculiarity of my case, which in a general way you are acquainted with; but of course it must be unknown to you what I have endured by the hitherto failure of the carrying out of the promises held out to me.

It is almost an axiom "that an injustice to an individual becomes one to a country." It may be said that my case has already been dealt with by Parliament, and it cannot be expected that its decision can be altered or affected by anything which I may say. If the question present a tangled difficulty to others, I would ask to be allowed to hold a thread to lead me out of that labyrinth in which I might otherwise be left by friends thinking they are powerless. It is the purely exceptional character of my position which should draw to itself consideration. I alone in the Colony occupy so degraded a position as regards salary, while the relief I ask for can afford no precedent, or lead to no similar demands on the part of others. I have persistently relied upon the absolute and full realization of the promises under which I have patiently served and suffered. On two occasions the Government placed my salary upon the Estimates (with that of other gentlemen since provided for). In the first of these instances it was rejected, if I may be pardoned for saying so, I believe solely because the Parliament has never yet been made aware of the real grounds of my substantial claim, viz., the honour of the Colony being involved by the observance of the promise made to me, and the conditions upon which I was led to accept the invitation to retain my office. On the second occasion the item of my salary was expunged without discussion. I have the sympathy of many gentlemen now holding the most distinguished positions in the Colony, who have taken the trouble to interest themselves with the features of my case; they speak of it as being quite distinctive, and their prevalent belief is that if my claim in full was now brought forward it would prevail. I hope I shall not be chargeable with overstating an impression that if the head of my Department will place my application in full for salary, and the restoration of arrears thereof, it will not be disputed by the Cabinet; while I have also received an assurance from a political veteran that if my case be fitly put on these old grounds, but never previously shown, it will result in its acceptance by Parliament. I cannot but feel that, on account of your experience and long connection with the Department, the subject must be referred to you in some shape or form; and in writing to you as I have done, my sole desire is to urge upon you to be good enough to give due consideration to the matter to which I have referred in my official letter to the Minister of Justice. If you will kindly assist me in any way that you consistently can, I shall be extremely obliged.

Sir, Goulburn, 16 December, 1880.
 In acknowledging your communication of the 11th instant, requesting me, "in reference to the restoration of my salary as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn, to submit to the Honorable the Minister of Justice a concise statement setting forth shortly what I really conceive I am entitled to as compensation or otherwise in respect of the altered position of my office, and that I will please to show in figures the amount of my demand with a view to the final consideration of my case by the Government," I have now the honor to state that in 1870 I was appointed Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, by letter notifying that I should be entitled to receive £300 per annum.

In 1871, without any fault on my part, my salary was lowered to £75 per annum, at which figure it has remained, notwithstanding my frequent applications and the expectations held out to me. The sum claimed by me for loss of salary for nine and a half years amounts to £2,244 7s. 6d. to end of 1880.

As I have already stated in a former letter that the business of the Court at Goulburn has increased threefold, I do not think, having regard to these circumstances, and the promise held out to me, that I can be accused of seeking too much if I ask that, in addition to the sum mentioned for compensation, my salary shall for the future be not less than the original £300 per annum.

When my case is submitted for final consideration by the Government I would ask that this communication may be read in connection with my letter of the 22nd of November last.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir George Innes, Rossiville, Goulburn, 30 December, 1880.
 It may be of some moment, in pursuance of the letter which I have officially forwarded by your direction, for compensation for loss of arrears of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, to acquaint you with the result of an interview I had with the Honorable Mr. Suttor, soon after his having taken charge as the head of the Postal Department.

Mr. Suttor, speaking of my position, said, "Yours is a difficult case for you will not take other office which may be at disposal." I said, "I never had the offer of anything." Mr. Suttor replied, "Indeed!" and was evidently very surprised. I went on to say, "But even if an offer of an appointment were made elsewhere than at Goulburn it would hardly be fair to me, for instance (I added) if Sir W. Manning or Sir J. Martin had their salaries reduced to one fourth, it could not be fair to say to them, 'Well, if you want the full salary restored, you must go and live at Deniliquin.' In the same way I ought not to be dealt with in other manner than those gentlemen should be treated." I reminded Mr. Suttor of what Sir Alfred Stephen had received after nineteen years, viz., the sum due to him by the Government, together with interest.

Mr.

Mr. Suttor said, "I got that for him." I said, "I hope you will get it for me," and I took the liberty at that time of requesting Mr. Suttor to be so good as to speak to you and name the points of my case. Probably he has been unable to do this, and I am sure you will most kindly forgive the minute accuracy with which I have narrated the circumstances.

It was Mr. Lackey who had on a previous occasion written (by me) in such strong terms to Mr. Suttor of the injustice with which I had all along been treated.

It is very relevant, and I hope you will so consider it, as marking through the long weary years I have had to live at a starvation point of salary, that there has been an unbroken acknowledgment of the equity of my claims, as instance the late Honorable Mr. Butler, who said the Government were bound to do something for me.

Then the late Venerable the Archbishop of Sydney himself, personally urged upon the late Sir Charles (at that time Mr.) Cowper my claims, and had asked that I might receive the Police Magistracy at Goulburn, and that Mr. Allman, who so wished it himself, might be appointed as Water Police Magistrate in Sydney, Mr. Cloete having died. This would have been done, but Mr. Cowper told the Archbishop he had promised the office to his own son.

Now, dear Sir George, you perceive I have faithfully and trustfully served the Government in the full hope of justice finally reaching me, and I ask for it now, and at the present time when the unanimous voice of the country proclaims loudly the strength of the Government, as I have repeatedly heard the expression used "to do anything." In the application I have made for arrears to end of 1880, not having asked for more than my just claim, it will I think not fail to strike you the magnitude of my loss, and how sorely crippled its hitherto detention has left me in consequence of my having given up all pursuits which could yield a fair income.

I hope the real urgency of my position, and the justice of my claim, established as I would yet again say solely upon the bona fides of the purport of the quoted letter, and its continuously admitted force in the presentation of my claim, will prevail with you.

I am, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

Continuation of Précis.

By letters of 22nd November and 16th December, 1880, Mr. Rossi again calls attention to the facts of his case, being substantially a repetition of former statements.

He refers to the strong terms of disapproval of reduction used by Sir James Martin and conveyed in letter from Department of 27th June, 1871. He submits that the refusal by Parliament to restore the original salary was on grounds foreign to the peculiar nature and merits of the case, and more upon the general question as to whether certain Registrars should enjoy a higher salary than other Registrars who performed like duties.

He remarks that all the other reduced Registrars have been provided for, but nothing has been done for him.

It was understood that Mr. Rossi did not desire to leave Goulburn, and that he conceived he had a claim to the P.M.-ship at that place on retirement of Mr. Allman, for which position he had applied, but no promise or hope was ever officially given to him that his claim would be recognised.

He relies on the enormous increase of business of the District Court at Goulburn, which he states has increased threefold.

He adds that precedents abound of the acknowledgment of the rights of others somewhat similarly placed, and instances the payment of arrears of salary to Sir Alfred Stephen after nineteen years, and the cases of the Sheep Inspectors whose incomes were restored.

He claims as compensation for reduction of salary, &c., the sum of £2,596 10s. to end of 1880, and that his salary be restored to its former rate of £300 per annum.—T.E.M.N.—3/1/81.

THE facts of the case seem fairly stated here, and I am of opinion that Mr. Rossi should have considered the matter finally settled on receipt of the letter of Mr. Attorney-General Butler in 1872, so far at all events as concerning any claim for money compensation or any hope of a restoration of the salary to £300 a year.

I do not feel justified in recommending the placing of any sum of money on the Estimates to compensate Mr. Rossi, nor do I think he has any claim to compensation.

I may add that I have placed the matter before my colleagues in Cabinet, and they unanimously concur with me in the view I have expressed.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 12 January, 1881.

Referring to your letter of the 30th ultimo and previous correspondence respecting your claim for compensation in regard to the reduction of your salary as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn, I am directed to inform you that, after careful consideration of the whole facts of your case, the Minister of Justice is of opinion that you should have considered the matter finally settled upon receipt of the letter of Mr. Attorney-General Butler in 1872 (3rd August), so far at all events as concerning any claim for money compensation, or any hope of a restoration of the salary to £300 a year, and he does not feel justified in recommending the placing of any sum of money on the Estimates to compensate you, nor does he think that you have any claim to such compensation. I am directed by Sir George Innes to add that he has placed the matter before his colleagues in Cabinet, and they unanimously concur with him in the view he has expressed.

No. 73.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Goulburn, 26 January, 1881.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th instant, in which you inform me that the Minister of Justice is of opinion that I should have considered the matter of my claim for compensation as finally settled upon the receipt of the letter of Mr. Attorney-General Butler, of 3rd August, 1872.

In reply, I beg to say that if the question of the restoration of my salary had rested with the letter of Mr. Attorney-General Butler, that I should feel bound to admit that the view taken by the Honorable the Minister for Justice would be fatal to my claim; but the facts are far otherwise, as is evidenced by the following statement of what took place subsequently to August, 1872, the date of the letter referred to:—

In the Estimates for 1873, which were submitted to Parliament upon 20th November, 1872, my salary was restored to £300 per annum, such restoration (as I was informed) having been approved and passed by the Cabinet, though ultimately not carried in Parliament.

On the 4th July, 1873, I applied by letter for the restoration of my salary, and on 5th September, 1873, I was informed by letter that the Minister had received my application.

On the 3rd November, 1874, I again drew the attention of the Minister to my case. On the 4th February, 1875, I was informed by letter that no decision had been arrived at with reference to the increase of my salary.

On the 22nd February, 1875, I was informed in writing that my claim for restoration of salary would be considered in the preparation of the Estimates.

On the 8th March, 1875, I received an intimation that no steps could be taken during the then present Session of Parliament.

From the last-named date down to the present time I have repeatedly, both by letter and in person, urged the consideration of my claim, and I have never on any occasion been informed or even led to believe that any final decision had been arrived at.

It will be seen that the Government not only did not regard the intimation conveyed to me by Mr. Butler as final, but on the contrary they clearly revived and opened the whole matter when in the following November they restored my salary to the original amount in the Estimates for 1873; and not only so, for, as above mentioned, in February, 1875, I was distinctly informed that no decision had been arrived at, and again, on the 22nd of the same month, "that my claim would be considered in the preparation of the Estimates."

As it is evident that the Government themselves did not consider the matter as finally settled in August, 1872, I submit that I could not be supposed to have done so, and as the facts which I have stated entirely do away with the effect of Mr. Attorney-General Butler's letter (upon which the decision communicated to me in your letter of the 12th instant is based), I respectfully ask that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be good enough to reconsider the matter, having special regard to the circumstances I have mentioned.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI.

At Mr. Rossi's urgent request, conveyed to me personally, I have promised to lay this letter before my colleagues.—For Cabinet, J.G.L.I., 28/1/81.

No. 74.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Sydney, 28 January, 1881.

With reference to your kind purpose to lay my letter of the 26th instant before the Cabinet, and with the assurance received that the favourable consideration of that letter would be unopposed by you, I venture now with great respect to say something further in explanation, and I would feel indeed obliged and grateful if this my statement can be attached to the letter of 26th instant, on its presentation to your honorable colleagues.

During the whole period under which I have suffered the reduced salary, while the moral obligation of the Government towards me was affirmed by the late Mr. Butler, who, being in authority at the time, told me me personally that the Government would have to give me something in Goulburn (this was said after the letter of August, 1872, had been sent to me), that never in my life, directly or indirectly, have I received the shadow of an offer of other employment, nor had I ever made conditions which precluded such an offer being made to me. In no way was such subject referred to by the Government, nor did I make any remark that it would be unequal upon me to receive an offer elsewhere than at Goulburn, until very lately, when I said so at the time I had to disabuse an impression on the mind of the Honorable Mr. Suttor (after his relinquishing office as Minister of Justice) that I had refused to accept an appointment.

On the other hand, may I not justly accept the fact of such an impression as I speak of existing, that I had declined other appointments, as leading to the fair deduction that a claim was sufficiently established by me and recognised by the Government—this must be indisputable. To say I have no claim at the present time would be quite inexplicable, for the consideration of my position ought not to be weakened but rather strengthened by length of service, for it could never have been contemplated to place me in that inferior position which I would otherwise occupy to the other three Registrars, who were provided for. I have done nothing in the end to forfeit such claim as admittedly had existed in the beginning. May I be excused the repetition, nothing whatever was offered to me, and I seek reasonably enough for compensation for my losses.

I would take leave to ask to remove a possible impression, that the Government had already gone out of its way to help me individually by the re-introduction of the whole matter on subsequent occasions before Parliament. It was done collectively with the several Registrars of Goulburn, Albury, Armidale and Bathurst.

I await with deep, and, I am not ashamed to say, prayerful anxiety, the decision of the Honorable the Executive Council, for I have continued in good faith to expect as even-handed justice to be meted out to me as those received who held similar promises.

It is from an unswerving reliance that my just expectations would have their accomplishment which has led me to continue so long and so patiently a faithful servant of the Crown. I feel very reliant upon the favourable acceptance of my case by Parliament, if my righteous claims be set forth. I shall cheerfully abide their ultimate decision in the matter of compensation. I earnestly pray but for once that the peculiar circumstances of my case may be fairly placed before that Honorable House.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir George Innes,

Sydney, 31 January, 1881.

I have to thank you very warmly, or I think I should rather say fervently, that you have been so good as to engage to have my letters of the 26th and 28th instant submitted to the Honorable the Executive.

The height of my gratitude is best exhibited by a measure of or glance at the depths of anxious solicitude you have for the time delivered me from, as without your favorable regard to my application I saw nothing left for me but the loss of labour and profit for a seventh part of generally allotted life. It is difficult to describe such a calamity, one scarcely to be understood unless by the sufferer.

I would like to tell you, when speaking to my friends of that interview, I had compared my distressed position, as you were perusing my letter of the 26th instant, to that of a captain of a vessel, freighted with valuable lives and cargo, lying crippled and disabled in view of the immediate proximity of a towering mass of rocks—powerless and nothing left them but the efficacy of prayer. Imagine that crew in such extremity. They cry for help—and as it is uttered, a shaking of the sails betokens a favouring wind, which though small at first has its influence for good—that little has saved them. So it was with me, while you read I prayed, and you were so good as to say you would not oppose my application, but place it for the acceptance of the Executive, and this great relief came. My yet remaining anxiety and continuing prayers are that the Honorable the Executive will be pleased thoroughly to consider all the points of my case.

Yesterday I read the following in a work called "Goulburn's Personal Religion." I think it will not fail to strike you as it did me, and I ask to send you the extract, pages 145, 146—"Nehemiah the cup-bearer stood with a sad countenance before the king. The king asked him expressly what would content him. This made the case worse, for Nehemiah had a large request to make, which might seem to the king extravagant and presumptuous.

"The cup-bearer is in a great strait. What did he do? He entered into the closet of his heart and shut his door and prayed to his father, which was in secret. I prayed, says he, to the God of Heaven.

"To offer prayers under such circumstances evinces command of mind. Not many seconds can elapse between a question in conversation and the answer to it; and when one feels that everything is suspended on the success of the answer, anxiety and excitement would combine to prevent the offering of prayer in that brief interval.

"But Nehemiah had disciplined his mind to watch and pray and he made most of the interval such as it was.

"It is hardly conceivable that he can have said more mentally than, 'Lord help me according to my need,' but then he said it with such fervour of heart, and such an entire faith that God would help him, that it was as successful as if he had spent a whole night in prayer.

"He candidly explained his wishes in answer to the king, and down came the blessing immediately."

I am, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir George Innes,

Sydney, 7 February, 1881.

My importunity may seem great, but I am impelled by the very height of urgency to say yet a word, probably the last which I may be enabled to place before you, previous to your meeting the Executive.

I repeat my thankful acknowledgments of your intention to submit my letters to your honorable colleagues. I am very much encouraged by your kindness, and would yet ask but one other concession. It is that you will be so good as to place for me the requisite sum upon the Estimates in accordance with the amount named in response to your invitation.

I am most fully persuaded that it will readily be approved by the Executive if you yourself evince a desire for the realization of my petitions.

I approach you as one to whom I may plead a rightful claim. Shall I not be excused in my manner of putting it if I would represent my claim as being so strong, that nothing short of actual wrong on my part could forfeit it. I would go so far as to say that even if a Minister of Justice had proceeded to the length of refusing to consider I had any claim whatever, it must be clearly intelligible such an opinion should not be allowed to operate so adversely as to deprive me of the right in all respects to be equally dealt with as my brother Registrars, who suffered the like reduction, received the same letters of promise of restoration of salary with arrears. These gentlemen obtained equivalents of the promises almost concurrently with the failure of the vote by Parliament. It never could have been contemplated to make an exception so severely against me, but the burden hitherto has nevertheless been so cast.

As in the world around an imperfect view of an object can afford but imperfect knowledge thereof, so I would instance that as you have now procured more light in viewing the features of my case it will be better understood by you.

My present and most earnest request is that you will be pleased to give me support by placing upon the Estimates the amount I have laid claim to as compensation for loss of salary.

I am, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI.

Read. Place with other papers on the subject.—J.G.L.I., 29/1/81.

These additional letters have been laid by me, in pursuance of my promise to Mr. Rossi, before the Cabinet; but upon full consideration my colleagues decline to grant Mr. Rossi's application to place any sum of money on the Estimates for compensation, or to restore the salary of Registrar of District Court at Goulburn to £300. But they acknowledge Mr. Rossi's claim to employment in some position of salary equal to that amount.—J.G.L.I., 7/2/81. Mr. Rossi informed, 9/2/81.

Sir,

Goulburn, 17 March, 1881.

In acknowledging your communication of the 14th instant, by which the Honorable the Minister offers me the choice of one of two appointments of the clerkships of Tumut or Forbes, I have the honor honor to state, and I do so with the utmost respect, that under the circumstances neither of these positions would be equal to the loss of salary I have sustained. The residence away from my own domicile would involve the absorption of the whole of the income offered elsewhere, besides causing the painful severance from my wife and home. I need not dwell upon the grievousness of such a position.

I would go on to say if it be the Honorable the Minister's pleasure that I should, as a call of duty, accept temporarily one of the offices referred to, I would do so under submission to his wishes, and with the hope which I sincerely trust will not be considered unreasonable that such compliance on my part may lead to the higher appointment of the Police Magistracy at Goulburn upon the first ensuing vacancy.

Under the circumstances, I shall be ready to accept the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Tumut.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

Inform Mr. Rossi that I cannot accept such a letter as this. If Mr. Rossi accepts the position I offer he must do so unconditionally. It rests entirely with him to say whether he accepts or declines. Request an early reply.—J.G.L.L., 18/3/81. Mr. Rossi, 19/3/81.

Having reference to the interview you were so good as to allow me the day before yesterday, and on which occasion you were pleased to receive an exposition of the circumstances which had led me, under the sense, as I felt, of a paramount call of duty, to accept your offer of the appointment of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Tumut, I have now the honor to thank you for your consideration in regarding the peculiar difficulties which surround my position and are independent of my personal control. I accepted with fullest purpose and intention of zealously performing the duties of the office at Tumut; but I am greatly relieved by your kindness in suggesting that I might, under the exceptional features laid before you, withdraw from the acceptance of the clerkship at Tumut, and by your saying that you would cause a minute to be recorded that such withdrawal should not be allowed to operate prejudicially in respect of any application by me for other appointment.

I feel assured that he would hold the office with credit to the Government and honour to himself.

You

You may depend that I do not ask this from any selfish, political motive, but am actuated by a sense of public duty, knowing that the public interest would be well served should the presumed vacancy arise and Captain Rossi be favoured with the appointment.

Hoping you may be induced to favourably consider this application,

I am, &c.,

PHILLIP G. MYERS,

Member for Argyle.

Sir W. M. Manning to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir George,

Wagga Wagga, October 6, 1881.

Captain Rossi has several times urged me to intercede with you on his behalf for promotion, and though I have hitherto refused his request through an official indisposition to trouble you, I can do so no longer.

I understand his wish and hope to be that in case of a vacancy in the Police Magistracy at Goulburn he may receive the appointment, and the place is one I should be exceedingly glad to see him get.

Captain Rossi is universally known as a man of impregnable integrity and general uprightness of character, and he is certainly very quick and just in his perceptions. He may have shown, as it is thought he did show, a too exacting temper in his position as a captain of volunteers, which is that of a military commander who is only primus inter aequales (pares), but I do not think that this temper would operate beyond what is even to be desired in the administration of justice from the Bench. If you think you can consistently with your own duty help him to the attainment of his object, and will do so, I shall myself be very thankful.

It might be thought from the appearance which Captain Rossi keeps up in his father's place that he does not need the emoluments of office, but I know from an intimate acquaintance with his affairs that he has very serious occasion for the income which the office would yield.

I am, &c.,

W. M. MANNING.

Let this note be placed with the rest of Captain Rossi's papers. I have received permission from Sir William Manning to look upon this as an official communication; and there can be no question that a recommendation such as this coming from Sir William Manning must operate largely in Captain Rossi's favour.—J.G.L.I., 12/10/81.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Rossville, Goulburn, 2 December, 1881.

In the event of the first vacancy occurring of the Police Magistracy at Goulburn, I have the honor to renew my frequently made request that I may have the appointment conferred upon me.

It may be hardly necessary here to state more than that I have for above ten years patiently rested upon the expectations continually held out to me, the details of which I at present forbear from recapitulating, beyond stating that among the correspondence referred to, now in the Department of Justice, it will be found that some months ago I received a communication from the Honorable the Executive Council, notifying that they acknowledged my claim upon them to a position of the value of £300 per annum, following upon which an offer of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Tumut was made and accepted by me, but under certain attendant circumstances I was relieved of acceptance.

The Honorable the Minister (late) of Justice further made minutes, one to the effect that my doing this should in no way prejudice me in the future; another, as I understood, making a favourable record of my claims.

I respectfully urge my case upon the kind consideration of the present Minister of Justice.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Captain.

Dean Cowper to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir, Deanery, 15 December, 1881.

I did not think I should have been again solicited to recommend a gentleman for the office of Police Magistrate, but such is the fact. In this case, however, it is in the country.

Captain Rossi has been informed that the Police Magistracy of Goulburn is likely to become vacant, and several of his friends are very anxious that he should be appointed. I have been asked to support his application.

I always hesitate in these matters, because I do not know who may be the best person to be appointed. Captain Rossi, however, has had a good deal of experience, having been brought up in the Colony, and having a very large knowledge of the ways and habits of the people.

I believe that he would do his best to fulfil the duties of the office. But there are others who can speak much more accurately of him than I.

I have no doubt you have been troubled enough about the patronage which is now to be dispensed. I can only say, let the appointment be given to the most worthy.

I remain,
WILLIAM M. COWPER.

Sir Alfred Stephen to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

I can only say, with reference to our friend Allman's understood candidature for Police Magistracy elsewhere than in Goulburn, and to your own candidature for succession to him, that it will give me much pleasure to hear of your success, and that I have no doubt of your filling the office and discharging all its duties with fidelity, perfect impartiality, and honor.

Yours, &c.,
ALFRED STEPHEN.

The Hon. Alex. Stuart, Esq., M.P., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

It was with extreme regret that I saw a vote carried against the continuance of your present office. I hope that something better is in store for you and that you may obtain a Police Magistracy, for which I believe you to be well qualified, a conclusion which I arrive at from many years knowledge of you.

I remain, &c.,
ALEX. STUART.

[Enclosure 3.]

W. Teece, Esq., M.P., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Captain Rossi,

Understanding that you are an applicant for the contemplated vacancy in the Police Magistracy at Goulburn it affords me much pleasure to bear testimony to the zealous, efficient, and satisfactory manner in which you have for many years discharged the honorary duties of Magistrate at the place referred to, and this, coupled with your long connection with the district, should I think constitute a fair claim on your part for the position you seek to obtain.

In addition to this the deprivation of your salary as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn seems to me to strengthen your request for a favourable consideration by the Government of your application.

I need only add that I shall be gratified to hear of your success because I know that if the appointment be conferred upon you it will be a well-earned distinction.

I am, &c.,
WM. TEECE.

W. A. Brodribb, Esq., M.P., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

You tell me you are applying to the Minister of Justice for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn as Mr. John Allman is seeking an appointment elsewhere.

I have had the pleasure of knowing you personally the last thirty years. I believe you are competent to perform the duties of that office with credit to yourself and satisfaction to the public. I hope your application will be successful.

I remain, &c.,
W. A. BRODRIBB.

My dear Captain Rossi,

An acquaintance of many years with you enables me to say with reference to your application for the Police Magistracy at Goulburn that I have no doubt that you are entirely competent for the business of the office, and I am quite sure that you will bring to the performance of the duties of it all the zeal and fidelity which I know to belong to you in the performance of anything you undertake. Wishing you success,

No. 106.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Rossiville, Goulburn, 2 January, 1882.

I solicit the honor of having the following statements laid before His Excellency the Governor and Executive Council:—

Applicant (myself) represents that his case would appear to have been overlooked in regard to his application for a Police Magistracy in Sydney in several important incidents, probably unknown to the Executive, to which he desires very respectfully to call attention.

That among the names, the six which are publicly spoken of as about to be approved as the Stipendiary Magistrates of Sydney, not one of them was even known by name in this Colony when applicant's father, the late Captain Rossi, received in England his appointment in the beginning of the year 1825, as Principal Superintendent of Police at Sydney, an office in which he continued about ten years, having served as an officer in the British Imperial Military service from the age of 14 years, when he had received his commission.

That the services of the father of applicant were again so recognised by the Home Government that a commission in the Army was offered the latter without purchase.

That applicant was appointed to the Commission of the Peace about 1845 by the then Governor, Sir George Gipps.

That applicant had sought the position of Police Magistrate at Goulburn upon the death of the occupant, Captain Plunkett.

That again, upon the death of Mr. Cloete, W.P.M., applicant repeated his application, Mr. Allman of Goulburn seeking the vacated office in Sydney; this would have been accomplished, but Sir C. Cowper (then Mr. Cowper) said he intended the Water Police Magistracy for his son.

That applicant, for ten years, has suffered the reduction of his salary as Registrar of the District Court from £300 per annum to £75 per annum, although he had continued in that office upon the written request to do so; the intimation also notified the expectation that his salary should be restored and arrears made good. Such undertaking, together with many subsequent encouragements and promises held out, led applicant to continue in pure good faith and reliance, believing justice would be done to him.

That applicant holds a letter sent to him by the Executive Council that they acknowledged his claim to a position of the value of £300 per annum.

That shortly following upon that letter applicant was offered the Clerkship of Petty Sessions at Tumut, but in the peculiarly exceptional surrounding circumstances, the Minister of Justice was most kind in suggesting a withdrawal, which applicant accepted, receiving the assurance that his doing this would be without prejudice, and that a minute to that effect would be left on record by Sir George James; besides this, a more recent minute of the latter still further has been made in his favor.

That upon the withdrawal by Mr. Allman of his application for one of the new appointments in Sydney as Stipendiary Magistrate, applicant made request for one of those offices.

That applicant prays His Excellency the Governor and Executive Council will be pleased, before confirming the appointments, to review applicant's case, which can be better understood if regarded in the light and with the explanation presented submissively and most respectfully.

That applicant has no grounds for being ashamed of confessing that altogether, in reliance upon those written expectations and promises referred to, he has been brought to the verge of ruin for having been so exclusively engaged in public duties, applicant could not devote his personal energies elsewhere, and he has alone been able to subsist by the absorption by sale of the chief part of his inherited landed property. He now stands deprived of the small remnant of his salary.

That

That applicant urges and would really ask to be pardoned the vehemence of his importunity in yet seeking one of the offices of Stipendiary Magistrate, and implores more than a hasty glance at the very prominent features which may fitly illustrate his position. He prays to be allowed such latitude in the manner of expressing himself as it would be presumed might fairly be accorded if counsel were suffered to plead on his behalf; while applicant beseeches that he may not be chargeable with disrespect to the Government or render himself in any manner personally offensive by his necessity of introducing the names of others.

That Messrs. Crane and Marsh are mentioned as the probable recipients each of the office in question. Applicant has before him the published authenticated speech (in the Parliamentary Debate) of the Premier, Sir Henry Parkes, as follows:—

“I say unhesitatingly that I should never be a party to raising Mr. Crane to the highest Magistracy of the country.” Sir Henry Parkes again speaking of Mr. Marsh, said—“He is not the class of man I should like to see Police Magistrate at the Water Police Court.”

That applicant hopes, while he treads on ground so delicate, he shall tread safely if he venture upon the assumption that in the ends of bare justice alone, if other grounds were absent, both Messrs. Crane and Marsh could never have been subjected to exposure of so false positions and deprivation of all their income as would have been involved by their rejection. Applicant asks again so earnestly that he may be weighed in the same just scales.

That applicant comes before you certainly with commendations so high that he dare not to use them if he were responsible for the flattering terms in which he is referred to in the letters submitted by him to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, as received by the present and the late Chief Justices. The former, in adverting to his (applicant's) claim as a Police Magistrate, says—“I am sure that out of the profession you cannot find a gentleman more fitted for the appointment.” While Sir Alfred Stephen, in view of applicant's obtaining a Police Magistracy, said in his letter above quoted—“I have no doubt of your filling the office and discharging all its duties with fidelity, perfect impartiality, and honor.”

That applicant is oppressed by a sense of fear that it has quite escaped the Honorable the Executive Council that his being cut off exactly weighs upon him with the same undeserved severity which, in the circumstances which similarly exist, must have borne down Messrs. Crane and Marsh. Their summary disposal of a sudden would probably have elicited more fervently public regard than would be awakened in the instance of applicant, but the burden which might have been cast upon those gentlemen could not have been more grievous than that actually laid upon applicant by a slower process.

That applicant does not venture to allude to the names of the other four gentlemen spoken of, beyond pointing out that while they are proposed for promotion for merited services, he having served in good faith and with fidelity would be subjected to dishonor and difficulty, and be called upon to abandon that bright hope held out as a principle of promotion to gentlemen in the sphere of and in each public Department.

That applicant concludes by earnestly praying that His Excellency the Governor and the Honorable the Executive Council will be graciously pleased to reconsider very favourably the points now exhibited in his case, and to grant unto applicant the distinguished honor he continues respectfully to apply for of the office as one of the Stipendiary Magistrates of Sydney.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Captain.

This matter was mentioned by me to my colleagues, this letter being in my hand, and its contents generally communicated to them, a day or two after it was written.—W.J.F., 28 January, 1882.

No. 107.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Rossville, Goulburn, 7 February, 1882.

Having reference to a letter addressed by me in the early part of last month to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, with a request it might be laid before His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, in support of my application for the position of Stipendiary Magistrate at Sydney, I have the honor now to pray that I may be allowed to withdraw that letter, and to ask that the record of its acceptance may be expunged, for the reasons I would explain.

That I had hurriedly composed and written the letter at Goulburn late on the night preceding its delivery, without opportunity of consultation.

That on my personally presenting the letter to the Honorable the Minister of Justice I remarked, after reading it to him, that the exigency of my case led me so to write, but I was prepared and would wish to destroy my letter, if it could be supposed I had said anything to awaken objection.

Since that time I have availed myself of the opportunity of showing a copy of the letter to friends, who advise me it might possibly be looked upon as susceptible of misinterpretation; if so, it would utterly and wrongly misrepresent my motives. I would humbly say I am too loyal to be disrespectful, while I should feel most wounded and grieved were it in any manner for a moment considered I had transgressed. If the faintest thought that I had done so had crossed the mind of the Honorable the Executive, I earnestly implore to be at once relieved from even the suspicion of an offence which would inflict deepest pain upon myself.

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Captain.

Records cannot be expunged, but this letter will be attached to the letter alluded to.—W.J.F., 10/2/82. Captain Rossi informed, 13/2/82.

No. 108.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Rossiville, Goulburn, 7 February, 1882.

I would respectfully ask your permission to withdraw my letter to you of the 2nd ultimo.

There are portions of it referring to other candidates for appointment as Stipendiary Magistrates which I very much regret; and as the object of the letter has now passed by, I trust you will feel no difficulty in complying with this request.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Captain.

See minute on Mr. Rossi's letter of this date.—W.J.F., 10/2/82.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Captain F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 13 February, 1882.

In reply to your letter of the 7th instant, asking to be allowed to withdraw your letter of the 2nd ultimo, respecting your application for the position of a Stipendiary Magistrate in Sydney, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that records cannot be expunged, but that your communication will be attached to the letter alluded to.

I have, &amp;c.

W. E. PLUNKETT,

Under Secretary.

No. 110.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Rossiville, Goulburn, 14 February, 1883.

In the event of a vacancy occurring in the office of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, as is shortly expected, I have the honor to ask that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be pleased to confer the position upon me.

I would respectfully go on to state that this appointment I have repeatedly applied for whenever an opening should take place.

On relinquishment of office as Minister of Justice, Sir George Innes left a strong and favourable minute on my behalf, while my more recent application for the Police Magistracy was accompanied by letters now in the Department of Justice, written severally by Sir James Martin, Sir A. Stephen, the Honorable A. Stuart, M.L.A., and others, copies of which I beg to attach.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI.

Acknowledge.—H.E.C., 16 Feby., 83. Captain Rossi, 17/2/83.

[Enclosure 1.]

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Foster,

Mr. Rossi, of Goulburn, who has some claim upon the Government, is anxious to be appointed Police Magistrate in the place of Mr. Allman, who, it is understood, is about to be promoted to Sydney. He has asked me to write to you on his behalf, and I gladly do so.

I am sure that out of the profession you cannot find a gentleman more fitted for this appointment, and I shall be very glad if you can see your way to recommend him. He has lived all his life in the locality, and I am sure that the appointment would give satisfaction to all respectable people.

Believe me, &amp;c.,

JAMES MARTIN.

[Enclosure 2.]

Sir W. M. Manning to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Mr. Foster,

I hear that there is a possibility of the Goulburn Police Magistrateship becoming vacant, and I hope you will forgive my pleading with you strongly for the appointment of Captain Rossi. It is the position which he above all others desires to get, and my regard and esteem for him are so strong, and my conviction is so clear that he would do credit to the appointment, that I cannot refrain from earnestly advocating it. I am sure beyond all doubt that a more fearlessly upright and just man could not be found, and I know him to be very quick in his perception of what is right, and very firm in adhering to it.

We all know that he at one time got into great local unpopularity through being too much a soldier officer for the lukewarm Volunteer Service in which he held a command, but I believe it is now universally felt that injustice was done to him, and that the tide of public opinion has so completely turned in his favour that his appointment as presiding Magistrate of the district would be very generally welcomed.

He has been a resident-proprietor in the district from early youth, and has identified himself with all its best interests in a prominent way, and has gained respect, without having become more mixed up with individual inhabitants than is desirable in a Police Magistrate. His father, Captain Rossi, was Chief Police Magistrate in Sydney, and on his retirement was for a long time an active Magistrate at Goulburn, and he has himself been for many years an unpaid Magistrate of the district.

Believe me, &amp;c.,

W. W. MANNING.

No. 111.

Petition to The Minister of Justice from residents of Goulburn.

To the Honorable the Minister for Justice for the Colony of New South Wales.

The Petition of the undersigned sheweth:—

1. That your Petitioners are all residents within the Police District of Goulburn.
2. That your Petitioners are informed and believe that John James Allman, Esquire, the present Police Magistrate of Goulburn, aforesaid, is likely to resign his position, in consequence of ill health; and your Petitioners are informed that Captain Francis Robert Lewis Rossi, of Rossiville, near Goulburn, is an applicant for the position of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, in the event of such position becoming vacant as aforesaid.

3. That the said F. R. L. Rossi was placed upon the Commission of the Peace, as your Petitioners believe, more than thirty years ago, and has ever since take an active part in the performance of a Magistrate's duty, both ministerially and judicially.

4. That, in the opinion of your Petitioners, the said Francis Robert Lewis Rossi is eminently fitted in all respects to perform the duties appertaining to the position of Police Magistrate, and more especially in the District of Goulburn, where he is well known and universally respected for his integrity and uprightness.

5. That your Petitioners have perfect confidence that, if appointed, the said Francis Robert Lewis Rossi will perform his duties, both to the State and public, in a competent, conscientious, and satisfactory manner, and that his appointment will meet with the approval of the majority of the residents of this district, and will give more general satisfaction than the appointment of any other person to the position.

Your Petitioners therefore pray that the said Francis Robert Lewis Rossi may be appointed Police Magistrate of Goulburn.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Captain F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir, Department of Justice, Sydney, 17 February, 1883.
I am directed by the Minister of Justice to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, applying for appointment as Police Magistrate, Goulburn.

I have, &c.,
W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 113.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

Sir, Rossiville, Goulburn, 1 March, 1883.
The following is a succinct statement of my position, pointing out the grounds on which I feel entitled respectfully to throw myself upon the fullest consideration of the Minister for Justice:—
Before Mr. Allman came to Goulburn I had applied for the office of Police Magistrate there, and later I was appointed about twelve years ago to the office of Registrar, District Court, at a salary of £300 per annum; this salary continued but a comparatively short time, the Parliament having reduced it to £75 per annum, whereupon Sir J. Martin, then Head of my Department, wrote an official letter to me asking me to continue in office, with the expectation that my salary should be restored and all arrears made good to me. Owing to changes of Ministry and the succeeding Heads of the Department of Justice being probably not so conversant with the details which surrounded my case, Parliament refused to sanction the restoration while I was kept in office, in consequence of the hopes continued to be held out to me for the ten years following. Finally, about fourteen months ago, Parliament withdrew from me the pittance of £75 per annum. I then addressed myself to the Government, and received a letter from the Cabinet (which I hold), informing me that they recognized my claim to a position of £300 per annum. Following upon this I was offered a Clerk of Petty Sessionship at Forbes or Tumut. I selected the latter, and was told I must accept unconditionally. I did so; but Sir George Innes, upon learning the circumstances and position of difficulty my acceptance would involve me in, suggested I had better withdraw. I said I could not, lest it should be to my prejudice hereafter. Sir G. Innes went on to say he would undertake it should not be to my prejudice, and if I withdrew he would take care to leave a minute on record in the Department that my doing so should not be to my prejudice. So I acquiesced, and that minute was recorded, together with a strong and favourable memo. left by Sir G. Innes in my favour on his vacating office. I must here retrace to another important matter that transpired immediately preceding the offer of a Clerk of Petty Sessionship. It was this: I claimed compensation for losses upon the failure to restore my salary, and I was invited by Sir G. Innes to state the amount I claimed (which invitation pro tanto became a tacit acknowledgment of the basis of my demand, yet unsatisfied, but continued to be sought for). That claim was urged upon Sir George Innes by the late Bishop of Sydney, and personally supported by Mr. A. Stuart (present Premier), as shown by the Bishop's letter in my possession. To resume: when Mr. Foster was Minister for Justice, I asked, as now, for the Police

Police Magistrateship at Goulburn, when vacated, also with the full knowledge, consent, and approval of my old friend Mr. Allman. Many friends have assisted me by letters. I append one—ex uno disce omnes.

In conclusion, I would represent to you that I may indeed be said to have sacrificed uselessly more than a decade of my life, if there be not at hand to the full the fruition of my hope.

F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

No. 114.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Messrs. Teece and Taylor, M's.P.

Gentlemen,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 2 March, 1883.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice to acknowledge the receipt of petition presented by you at this Department, from residents of Goulburn, recommending the appointment of F. R. L. Rossi as Police Magistrate at that place, in the event of such a vacancy occurring.

I have, &c.,
W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 115.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Mr. Cohen,

Supreme Court, 2 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi is an applicant for the post of Police Magistrate of Goulburn, about to become vacant by the retirement of Mr. Allman. I hope that he will be appointed. He is a Magistrate of long standing and great experience, and I am sure he would perform the duties most efficiently. Moreover, I am given to understand that his appointment would give general satisfaction to the inhabitants of the city and district, in which he has resided nearly all his life. He is the son of one of the oldest and most respectable of our colonists, who, before many of us were born, was Police Magistrate of Sydney, and he himself has always been one of the leading persons in his part of the country. I think he has a fair claim to your consideration in this matter.

Believe me, yours very truly,
JAMES MARTIN.

No. 116.

Mr. Justice Faucett to The Minister of Justice.

Dear Mr. Cohen,

Supreme Court, 2 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi informs me that he is a candidate for the office of Police Magistrate of Goulburn, and I have written a letter to him expressing my opinion of his qualifications for the office of Police Magistrate.

As a rule I never write to a Minister to recommend a candidate for an appointment; but in this instance, from the high opinion I entertain of Captain Rossi's qualifications, I feel justified in departing from my usual course, and I therefore beg most heartily to recommend Captain Rossi's application.

He will no doubt show you the letter I have written to himself.

Believe me, yours sincerely,
P. FAUCETT.

No. 117.

Mr. Justice Innes to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Cohen,

Judge's Chambers, Supreme Court, 2 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi has asked me to write a line in support of his claim to the appointment of Police Magistrate of Goulburn, which I understand is about to become vacant by the retirement of Mr. Allman.

I have told him that you could see in the office the minutes made by myself upon his case when I was Minister of Justice. Plunkett can easily turn them up for you.

I think, if you will pardon my saying so, that Captain Rossi has a strong claim. I do not of course venture upon any comparison of his claims with those of others; of that you are the most competent to judge, but I can only say I shall be very glad to know that you can see your way to conferring this appointment upon him.

I have seen the letter the Chief Justice has written, on behalf of Captain Rossi, to yourself.

Believe me, very faithfully yours,

J. GEO. LONG INNES.

Mr. E. Daintrey to The Minister of Justice.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 2 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi having long been a candidate for the Police Magistrateship of Goulburn, I take the liberty of writing to you respectfully to urge that his application may be favourably considered. I do this on the ground that I believe he has substantial claims on the Government; and, from my knowledge of his character, extending over many years, I feel sure that no fitter person could be found to fill the appointment, and that if made it would be generally agreeable as well as beneficial to the public.

I have, &c.,

EDWIN DAINTREY.

Mr. A. Mackellar to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Police Office, Goulburn, 7 March, 1883.

I have the honor to state that I am at present doing the work of the Police Magistrate here during his absence on leave.

I have been asked by Captain Rossi, who is an applicant for the office of Police Magistrate—an office which must shortly become vacant by reason of the resignation of Mr. Allman—to write a few lines and state what I know as to his qualification for the office. I have known Captain Rossi since he was a boy. A more honorable and just man, or one who would be more likely to give a fair decision between man and man, I am not acquainted with; I mean according to his lights. As to his legal knowledge and ability I cannot give an opinion, as I have had few opportunities of judging of them. I have told Captain Rossi that I have promised that any influence I can bring to bear shall be used in favour of Mr. C. S. Alexander, the Clerk of Petty Sessions here. If the appointment cannot be given to Mr. Alexander, I suppose it will then be for the Government to consider Captain Rossi's claims, as opposed to the claims of many old servants of the Crown who have for many years past devoted the whole of their services to their public duties.

I have, &amp;c.,

ALEX. MACKELLAR.

E. Barton, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir,

7 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi is, I hear, an applicant for the Police Magistracy which will be vacant upon the retirement of Mr. Allman. Captain Rossi is, as you are aware, a very old and experienced Magistrate. As a member of the Bar, I cannot but be aware of his efficiency, and of his possession of all those characteristics which should belong to a person holding the responsible position of a Police Magistrate; and above all things I place what my information convinces me is a fact namely, that Captain Rossi possesses the entire confidence of the residents of the Goulburn district.

Yours faithfully,

EDMUND BARTON.

No. 121.

The Hon. G. Thornton, M.L.C., to The Minister of Justice.

Dear Mr. Cohen,

Sydney, 8 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi (who was an old schoolfellow of mine—many years ago) is a candidate for the appointment of Police Magistrate of Goulburn. I venture to recommend his many claims, and peculiar fitness for the office, to your favourable consideration. I am of opinion his appointment to the Police Magistracy of Goulburn would be a most popular one in the district.

I can also well remember his father, who was at one time Police Magistrate of this city.

I generally avoid troubling Ministers in matters of public appointments, but Captain Rossi's application is an exceptional one.

Yours faithfully,

GEORGE THORNTON.

Mr. A. Morris to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir,

Australian Club, 9 March, 1883.

Understanding that my friend Captain Rossi is an applicant for the office of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, I take this opportunity of bearing testimony to his high and honorable character. I have known him for more than twenty-five years, and the longer I have had his acquaintance the higher has been my regard for him.

I am unable to speak of his special qualifications for the office he seeks, but if they equal those of his heart he ought to make a model Police Magistrate.

Believe me, &amp;c.,

My dear Mr. Cohen,

Australian Club, 9 March, 1883.

Having known Mr. Rossi for the last forty years, and hearing that he is an applicant for the office of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, I have taken the liberty of writing to you to say that, if his appointment would not interfere with the claims of officers already in the Service, I believe it would be an extremely popular one in the district.

I remain, &amp;c.,

PHILIP GIDLEY KING.

No. 124.

The Hon. John Hay, M.L.C., to The Minister of Justice.

Dear Mr. Cohen,

Australian Club, Sydney, 9 March, 1883.

My old friend Mr. Francis Rossi informs me that he is a candidate for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn. Men who as Judges or Barristers have had a better opportunity of observing and better ability of estimating his qualifications for that office will naturally be much more entitled to be listened listened to in a matter of this kind; but still I cannot refuse to give my testimony to the high private character and great public spirit of a gentleman whom I have known from his boyhood. There may sometimes be objections to placing an old resident in such a position, but in Captain Rossi's case I believe that the people of Goulburn generally would esteem it as a compliment to themselves that this appointment should be given to him, and that no evil will follow from it. He is there known as a man conscientiously devoted to the performance of whatever duty he undertakes, and if he undertakes those of Police Magistrate he is sure to give all his energy to the impartial discharge of them.

I remain, &c.,
JOHN HAY.

Mr. T. Robertson to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Sir,

85, Pitt-street, Sydney, 12 March, 1883.

Understanding that Captain Rossi is a candidate for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, I take the liberty to write to you to say that I do not think, if the Colony was searched, a more fit man could be obtained for the office.

Captain Rossi asked me to express my opinion to you as to his qualification, which I readily consented to do, although I feel certain that he is so well known to the Government that any testimonial from me is quite superfluous.

I beg to remain, &c.,
THOMAS ROBERTSON.

The Hon. A. Gordon, M.L.C., to The Minister of Justice.

Dear Mr. Cohen,

77, Elizabeth-street, 20 March, 1883.

I understand that Captain Rossi has applied for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn.

I trust you will excuse me, as a member of the Bar, expressing to you the opinion which I entertain of his entire competency to fill that position. This opinion is formed on the authority of friends upon whose judgment I can fully rely. The relations also which have subsisted and still continue between Captain Rossi and many highly-valued personal friends of my own render me very desirous for his success, and induce me to hope that you will receive my excuses for troubling you with this communication.

Believe me, &c.,
ALEXANDER GORDON.

The Hon. F. M. Darley, M.L.C., to The Minister of Justice.

My dear Cohen,

21 March, 1883.

My friend Captain Rossi informs me that he is an applicant for the office of Police Magistrate of Goulburn. When I was in office I understood that Captain Rossi had strong claims upon the Government in this regard.

I am sure that you will fully inquire into these claims, and I will feel very happy if the result of such inquiries will be the appointment of Captain Rossi.

I am given to understand that he has been a Justice of the Peace for many years, and that his appointment is one which would be acceptable to the inhabitants of Goulburn.

Believe me, &c.,
FREDERICK M. DARLEY.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 6 April, 1883.

I beg to recommend to your favourable consideration the appointment of Captain F. R. L. Rossi as Police Magistrate, Goulburn. I feel sure that, apart from social status, his official knowledge and previous experience qualify him in a marked degree to fill the office he seeks to hold with credit to himself and satisfaction to the country. I may mention that I have not seen one of the many testimonials which I am given to understand Captain Rossi holds concerning his competency and ability to fill the appointment referred to, but merely express my honest conviction respecting him.

Yours truly,
T. H. HELLYER.

No. 137.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

No. 1 Coffee Palace, Sydney, 16 April, 1883.

I have the honor to ask leave to repair an omission in my statement submitted to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, wherein I mentioned that it was at the suggestion of Sir George Innes I had withdrawn from the acceptance of my appointment at Tumut. It happened thus: I had waited upon Sir George Innes (then Minister of Justice,) and said I was about to proceed to Tumut to occupy the position (not however sought for) in which I had been placed, but I desired to make known to him the severity of the burden imposed upon me. That I had no family but a wife, whom I must leave, in order that she might take charge of the remnant of my property at Goulburn.

That my wife and self were required to be in constant attendance upon my mother-in-law (the widow of the late Dean of Goulburn) who was mentally and bodily incapacitated, she having no other resident relative or friend to attend upon her.

That I should have to leave them like two vessels at sea, helplessly, without any one to direct them. Sir G. Innes said, in such circumstances which I had described the Government would not desire me to hold the position of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Tumut. I remarked that I had told my friends if I had the choice to pay £2,000 (were such a sum at my disposal), I would gladly give it as a forfeit rather than leave my home. I went on to tell Sir G. Innes I would however go, even at the cost of life, as I hoped to obtain something better, meaning at the time the P.M.-ship at Goulburn, for which I had applied long before, on its first vacancy, and I feared I should be prejudiced by withdrawal. Sir G. Innes promised me no such effect should follow; saying, in the event of his being out of office he would leave an explanatory minute, so that I should not be prejudiced. I accepted, but not till that moment, the suggestion so kindly emanating from Sir G. Innes, in view of the contemplated disastrous consequences which would be involved by my removal from that which had been the home of my father and myself for fifty-six years. I gratefully thanked Sir G. Innes for the generous consideration which afforded me such relief. I respectfully conclude without offering other remark, beyond the fact that the peculiar circumstances surrounding my case yet continue to exist.

I have, &amp;c.,

Sir,

No. 1 Coffee Palace, 21 June, 1883.

I have the honor to make request that I may be allowed to have access to and perusal of all letters and papers having reference to my position as a Civil Servant, including my several applications for the restoration of my salary, compensation for the losses sustained by the non-fulfilment of promises received from the several Governments, as well as my repeated applications for the Police Magistrateship of Goulburn, together with all minutes relating to above.

I should state my object is to have before me a review of the whole facts pertaining to the several points I refer to; at the same time I undertake to make no copies of any such letters or papers unless I have your permission to do so, on special application, for anything which I may hereafter desire to possess.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

There is some difficulty in reference to this matter. In the first place, the absence of accommodation in the offices of the Department, already overcrowded, leaves no space available for the examination desired by Captain Rossi. It is assumed Captain Rossi has the original papers from the Department, and no doubt copies of any replies written by him to the Department in reference to his case. If Captain Rossi would state or particularize any letters or papers of which he may desire to be furnished with copies they can be supplied to him; but the present application is objectionable and unusual, and would, it is feared, lead to public inconvenience in the way of being carried out.—W.E.P., 4/7/83. Captain Rossi may be informed accordingly.—H.E.C., 4th July, 1883. Captain Rossi, 5/7/83.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Captain F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 5 July, 1883.

In reply to your letter of the 21st ultimo, asking to be allowed to have access to and perusal of all letters, papers, &c., in reference to your case, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that there is some difficulty in granting your request, as the absence of accommodation in the offices of the Department (already overcrowded) leaves no space available for the desired examination.

It is presumed that you have in your possession copies of any letters addressed by you from time to time to the Department, and also the replies thereto; but if you would particularize any other letters or papers of which you desire to have copies they can be supplied to you. Your present application, however, is unusual and objectionable, and would, it is feared, if granted, lead to public inconvenience in the way of being carried out.

I have, &c.,

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 6 July, 1883.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, applying for the position of Second Clerk at the Central Police Office, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. W. C. Armstrong, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the vacancy in question will be filled up by the promotion of the officer who stands next in rank to the late Mr. Armstrong in the office.

No. 158.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

No. 1 Coffee Palace, Sydney, 13 July, 1883.

In acknowledging your communication of 5th instant, I would notice, primarily, the concluding paragraph, wherein it is stated that my application to review the several papers and documents relative to my case is considered unusual and objectionable. If it may be said to be unusual, it will also be conceded that the case itself is unusual; but wherein I have said or written anything which is objectionable I am at a loss to conceive, and I shall be thankful to be informed, the point or degree of offence which rendered necessary such a remark, for I am so anxious to avoid writing anything objectionable. To refer to the subject matter, I would desire to state that I would respectfully renew my request to have access to my papers. To enable me to do this the Crown Solicitor has been so good as to say I can, during Mr. Walsh's absence, be allowed the use of his room. May I ask to commence the examination of the papers on Tuesday?

I have, &c.,

F. R. L. ROSSI,

Captain.

The concession asked to be made in this case is what is deemed to be unusual and objectionable. It may be observed that the prevailing practice has been not to allow original papers or records to be taken from the Department in the manner solicited by Captain Rossi. In case the Minister thinks that Captain Rossi's request may be complied with in the present instance, I do not care to press the objection.—W.E.P., 19/7/83. Submitted, 19/7/83. If the papers can be conveniently examined by Captain Rossi upon the premises he may have access to them, on the conditions contained in his letter of June 21st, 1883.—H.E.C., 26/7/83. Captain Rossi informed, 27/7/83.

Testimonials forwarded to the Department in support of the application of Captain Rossi for appointment as Police Magistrate, Goulburn.

Sir Alfred Stephen to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

2 March, 1883.

I am not entitled to ask any appointment at the hands of any Minister, and I do not know that it would be desirable for me to write to the Minister for Justice direct, recommending any one for office.

But I have no difficulty in expressing to yourself my impressions as to your reasonable expectation of appointment to the vacancy, if created, on every ground. 1st. Because of your fitness personally for the office. 2nd. Because of your past employment, and the circumstances connected with its abolition. 3rd. Because of your family connections, whose claims on the country will be disputed by no one, though this ground alone would not much avail you.

On the whole, I think that I may without intrusion authorize your quoting me to the Minister for these opinions.

You can, therefore, if it be worth while, lay this note before him, and I shall be very glad to hear of your success.

I am, &amp;c.,

ALFRED STEPHEN.

Mr. Justice Faucett to Captain Rossi.

My dear Captain Rossi,

Supreme Court, 2 March, 1883.

I must apologise for not having sooner acknowledged your note; but the fact is that in the variety of matters coming before me it escaped my recollection.

With respect to your intended application for the appointment of Police Magistrate, I feel very great pleasure in stating that having been acquainted with you for many years, I consider you as in every way qualified in a high degree to discharge the duties of such an office. The knowledge which you must have acquired in your constant attention for so many years to the duties of a Magistrate would fully justify me in recommending your claims.

As a rule I never write to any Minister to recommend a candidate for any office; otherwise I should have had great pleasure in writing to the Minister of Justice in your favour.

However, you can use this letter in any way you may think proper, and I most heartily wish you success in your application.

Believe me, &amp;c.,

P. FAUCETT.

Mr. Edwin Daintrey to The Hon. G. R. Dibbs.

Dear Dibbs,

Sydney, 2 March, 1883.

Captain Rossi is a candidate for the Police Magistracy at Goulburn, for which office I believe him to be eminently well qualified. If you can exercise any influence in his favour you will immensely oblige me.

Yours sincerely,

EDWIN DAINTRY.

The Right Reverend Dr. Lanigan to Hugh Taylor, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Goulburn, 5 March, 1883.

I have learned that you are interesting yourself in obtaining for Captain Rossi the post of Police Magistrate at Goulburn.

Mr. Allman who is retiring was a gentleman who did the duties of Police Magistrate in a manner to command the respect of all parties. From what I know of Captain Rossi I think he would be likely to make a fit successor, and would do his duty honorably and independently.

I should like then to encourage you to be earnest for him, for I believe his appointment would give very general satisfaction.

I am, &amp;c.,

+ WILLIAM LANIGAN.

Mr. W. P. Faithfull to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

I should very much like to see your appointment to the Police Magistracy of Goulburn. It would remind me of old times, when your dear father held that office, and with much credit to himself; and there will be the same result, I trust, if you, his son, Captain Rossi the second, should obtain the appointment aforesaid. With my best wishes,—

Springfield, 6 March, 1883.

Believe me, &c.,

W. P. FAITHFULL.

Mr. A. Gibson to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

6 March, 1883.

I am very glad to find you are making application for the Police Magistracy vacancy, on the retirement of our old friend Allman. I hope you may succeed. There is no one whom I would rather act with on the Bench than yourself. I believe your appointment would give general satisfaction to the District Magistrates, and would also be generally popular with the public. May you gain the appointment is the wish of

Yours very sincerely,

A. GIBSON.

A. H. McCulloch, Esq., M.P., to Captain Rossi.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 8 March, 1883.

I shall be very glad to see you appointed to the P.M.-ship of Goulburn, to which I think you have a very strong claim. That you are eminently qualified to fill the office and fulfil all the duties is generally admitted, and your appointment to it will, I believe, give general satisfaction to the Goulburn residents.

I sincerely hope that your application for the post will be successful.

Yours truly,

A. H. McCULLOCH.

The Hon. W. Macleay, M.L.C., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Rossi,

Australian Club, Sydney, 9 March, 1883.

My acquaintance with the Minister of Justice is so slight as scarcely to warrant me in writing to ask him to give you the appointment of Police Magistrate of Goulburn.

I most heartily, however, wish you success in your application. You are undoubtedly well qualified for the office, and I am sure that your appointment to it will give very general satisfaction to the old residents of the town and district where you and your father before you have been so long and favourably known.

Yours truly,

WILLIAM MACLEAY.

Mr. John Lackey, M.P., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Captain Rossi,

Union Club, Sydney, 16 March, 1883.

Referring to our conversation touching the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, I regret that the removal of the late Government will prevent me giving it the aid that I otherwise might do. I can only say that, from my long knowledge of you, I feel sure that you would, if successful in obtaining the appointment, perform the duties of the office most satisfactorily; and I am gratified to hear that you have the warm approval of neighbours and fellow-townsmen in the application you are making.

I am, &c.,

JOHN LACKEY.

The Hon. John Stewart, M.L.C., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Sir,

308, Upper Dowling-street, Sydney, 16 March, 1883.

I hear that you are about to apply for the office of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, and I am sure no one can be better qualified than yourself to fill it with satisfaction to all concerned. If a word of mine were of any value in the matter, I should render it most readily and warmly; and though I very seldom speak of applicants for office, I should in your case have no hesitation whatever.

Yours most truly,

JOHN STEWART.

The Hon. E. K. Cox, M.L.C., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Captain Rossi,

Fernhill, Penrith, 18 March, 1883.

It has come to my knowledge that you are applying for the Police Magistracy at Goulburn, now vacant by the retirement of our friend Mr. Allman. If I am correctly informed, I can only express the wish that you may be successful in receiving the appointment, as there is no one who would fill the office more faithfully and give more satisfaction to people in the Goulburn district than yourself, where for so many years your father and yourself have been so long and favourably known.

I am, &c.,

EDWARD KING COX.

T. Garrett, Esq., M.P., to Captain Rossi.

My dear Sir,

18 April, 1883.

Understanding you are an applicant for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn, I have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that you are in every respect well qualified to creditably fill the position, and it will afford me pleasure to hear of your appointment.

I am, &c.,

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

F. R. L. ROSSI.
(PETITION OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 16 April, 1884.

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled
The Petition of Francis Robert Lewis Rossi, Captain, Volunteer Force, of Rossville, Goulburn,—
HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioner, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy, was appointed to an office in the Civil Service, as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, at a salary of £300 per annum; that salary was, before the expiration of one year, reduced to £75 per annum. That your Petitioner's continuation in office was the result altogether of the invitation from the Head of his Department, Sir James Martin, and of the assurance of his expectation that your Petitioner's salary would be restored and a sum given "to make good to him the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed," and your Petitioner was asked by Sir James Martin if he would "continue to hold office in this expectation."

Your Petitioner remained in office till the end of one thousand eight hundred and eighty, at such reduced rate (receiving throughout that time repetitions of expectations and hopes held out), when he was deprived altogether of the office of which he had throughout the course of so many years faithfully performed the duties.

That the office your Petitioner held involved the duties of Chief Registrar over about sixteen Southern District Courts, whose correspondence, returns, &c., were required to be passed through your Petitioner's hands before reaching the Department of Justice or the Judge.

That several years after the reduction of salary your Petitioner was called upon by the Government to make good, and did make good, a deficiency of several pounds in the accounts of one of the subordinate Registrars who had died.

That your Petitioner continued for ten years in the faithful discharge of the duties required of him, without receiving from the Government any compensation for the loss of his salary or any offer of any kind until ten years and a half had elapsed.

That your Petitioner applied, following upon this loss of office, for another appointment; and for the first time, in March of the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, an offer of the clerkship of Petty Sessions at Tumut was made to him, which he accepted wholly, but which Sir Joseph George Long Innes, then Minister of Justice, learning more of your Petitioner's position, suggested he might withdraw from the acceptance of; Sir Joseph George Long Innes saying that such withdrawal should not be allowed to militate against your Petitioner's claim, as stated in the minute of that Minister on the twentieth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

That at the time of the reduction of your Petitioner's salary, the salaries of the Registrars of Albury, Bathurst, and Armidale were similarly reduced, but each of such received compensation without delay by appointment to other offices.

That upon the Police Magistracy of Goulburn becoming vacant, about a year ago, your Petitioner applied for the position, but was unsuccessful in obtaining it, but received an offer from the present Government of the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Grenfell. That your Petitioner wrote in reply that he would have considered it his duty to accept, but that the circumstances surrounding the offer were similar to those affecting the offer of Tumut, from which, as explained, your Petitioner had been relieved.

That your Petitioner, by reason of the circumstances detailed, has suffered a loss of £225 per annum since one thousand eight hundred and seventy, for which he has never received any adequate offer of compensation, though your Petitioner had been then invited by the then Minister of Justice to state in figures the amount of your Petitioner's claim for compensation.

That your Petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honorable House will cause inquiry to be made on the premises, and that such redress may be afforded to your Petitioner as to your Honorable House may seem fit.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MRS. ANNE FRANCES LILBURN COLE.

(PETITION OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 12 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

The humble Petition of the undersigned,—

MOST HUMBLY AND RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioner is the wife of Stephen Cole, formerly Commissioner of Crown Lands for the Darling and Albert Districts of New South Wales.

That the said Stephen Cole entered the Public Service on the ninth day of February, 1837, and retired through ill-health on the 11th day of June, 1868, being in the Public Service for over thirty years.

That your Petitioner has repeatedly addressed the Government of New South Wales, setting forth her husband's claims for pension and arrears under certain Acts of Parliament.

That her husband has sustained heavy losses arising from the action of the then Government in withdrawing such pension after having paid the same for two years and three months.

That your Petitioner, owing to the serious ill-health of her husband, and at his request, has ventured to bring the matter under the notice of your Honorable House, being fully assured that when the facts of the case become known your Petitioner can no longer be denied the recognition of those claims which for years and by every constitutional means in her power, by petitioning and otherwise, she has sought to obtain.

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays that your Honorable House will be pleased to cause inquiries to be made with a view to securing to your Petitioner's husband such relief as on examination may appear to be in accordance with the demands of justice and the merits of his claims.

And your Petitioner will ever pray.

Dated this seventh day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

ANNE FRANCES LILBURN COLE.

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM AGENT FOR 1882.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 8 March, 1883.

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, my report on Immigration for the year 1882.

Immigration has been conducted during the greater part of the year 1882, under the regulations which came into force on the 1st January, 1882. These were cancelled by the promulgation of other regulations, dated September 27th, 1882, under which the deposit for single women was reduced from £5 to £2 each.

Eight ships have arrived during the year, bringing a total of 3,233 individuals, of whom 27 per cent. were nominated in the Colony; the remaining 73 per cent. were selected by the Agent-General.

During the outward voyage the deaths which occurred on board the eight ships were those of three adults, thirty-four young children all under two years of age, and one child of five years of age; only on one occasion, however, was it found necessary to place a ship in Quarantine and then only for four days.

Although 527 single women (including a few widows and their children) were received at the Immigration Depot, only eighty-seven were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of nearly 10s. per week.

The Appendices herewith annexed give full information in detail relative to the immigration during the past year, viz. :—

- A.—General statistical information.
- B.—Nationality of immigrants.
- C.—Religious persuasions.
- D.—Educational attainments.
- E.—Trades and callings.
- F.—Distribution of the immigrants into the country districts by steamer and by rail.

I have, &amp;c.,

GEORGE F. WISE,
Agent for Immigration.

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM AGENT FOR 1883.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 8 March, 1884.

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, my Report on Immigration for the year 1883.

Twenty-one ships arrived during the year, bringing a total of 8,369 souls, of whom 31 per cent. were nominated in the Colony, the remaining 69 per cent. having been selected by the Agent-General.

During the outward voyage the deaths which occurred on board the twenty-one ships were those of 17 adults and 118 children, of whom 103 were of infants two years old and under.

Although 1,641 females were received at the Immigration Depôt, only 357 of that number were found willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. per week.

The Appendices herewith annexed give full detailed information relative to the immigration during the past year, viz. :—

- A.—General statistical information.
- B.—Nationality of immigrants.
- C.—Religious persuasions.
- D.—Educational attainments.
- E.—Trades and callings.
- F.—Distribution into country districts by steamer and by rail.

I have, &amp;c.,

GEORGE F. WISE,

Agent for Immigration.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

IMMIGRATION.

(REGULATIONS.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th November, 1883.

HIS Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following Regulations for the promotion of Immigration.

ALEX. STUART.

REGULATIONS FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF IMMIGRATION FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM.

1. All Immigrants shall be selected by the Agent-General, or by such persons as he may appoint for the purpose, under instructions from the Colonial Secretary, which instructions shall not be contrary to these Regulations.

2. The selection of Immigrants shall be limited to such adult persons as can pay towards the cost of their passage to the Colony the following sums respectively :—

Men—Four Pounds each ;

Women—Two Pounds each.

And such selection shall be made from the populations of England, Scotland, and Ireland (with the exception mentioned in clause 5), in such manner as shall prevent a preponderance of Immigrants from any one of the three Kingdoms according to the proportions shown to exist in the Colony by the Census Returns of 1881.

3. All Immigrants must be of sound mental and bodily health, and of good moral character, and shall consist either of married persons not exceeding forty years of age, children under three years of age, in charge of their parents, being carried free, and children between three and fourteen years at one pound each; or of unmarried men and women, not exceeding thirty-five years of age; and shall be selected from the classes of mechanics, farmers, miners, vine-dressers, labourers, and domestic servants, with a special view to the industrial callings of the Colony, and the fluctuations affecting those callings as reported from the Colony from time to time, but shall not exclude small working capitalists in any branch of Colonial industry.

4. The proportion of unmarried men shall not exceed one-third of the whole number of adult Immigrants.

5. A proportion of the Immigrants, not exceeding ten per cent. of the whole, may be natives of other European countries, who shall answer to the physical, moral, and industrial descriptions embodied in these Regulations.

6. The Immigrants shall be brought out in steamers of the Orient Company, or in other steamers or ships chartered by the Agent-General on behalf of the Government of New South Wales, under charge of a Medical Officer, and under such regulations as may be made for their moral and sanitary condition during the passage.

7. No aid or assistance will be allowed in respect of any person brought out as a cabin or intermediate cabin passenger, and no person who shall previously have been an assisted immigrant shall be granted aid for a passage under these Regulations.

8. Immigrants desiring to proceed into country districts within five clear days of their arrival will be allowed free passes by rail or steamer.

9. All deposits of money on account of the passages of Immigrants, except as provided for in next following section, shall be paid to the Agent-General in London, and shall be accounted for by him on behalf of the Government of New South Wales.

10. To meet the public convenience, persons resident in the Colony who may desire to introduce Immigrants in accordance with these Regulations shall be entitled to nominate such Immigrants and to deposit on trust with the Agent for Immigration at the Immigration Office, Hyde Park, Sydney, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. on each lawful day, and in the Country Districts with the Clerks of Petty Sessions, during the usual office hours, the necessary sum or sums. Such nominations will be subject however to the approval of the Agent-General, and the rules of selection prescribed by these Regulations, as in cases where no such nominations have been made.

11. The Clerks of Petty Sessions on receipt of any deposit under these Regulations will immediately remit the amount to the Agent for Immigration at Sydney, with a statement of the number and description of Immigrants whom the depositor wishes to introduce.

12. The passage certificate must be forwarded by the depositor to the nominee, who in every case must produce it within twelve months from the date thereof to the Agent-General in London.

13. Forms of application, as well as all other information for the guidance of depositors, can be obtained from the Clerks of Petty Sessions in the Country Districts, or in Sydney at the office of the Agent for Immigration.

14. In the event of any person or persons nominated in the Colony for a passage declining to emigrate, or not being able to comply with the conditions required by these Regulations, or in case the amount deposited shall exceed that required for the number of Immigrants actually introduced, the amount deposited, or the amount in excess, as the case may be, will be returned to the depositor upon the receipt in the Colony of the Agent-General's report recommending its repayment. But if any attempt of fraud or concealment be made by the depositor or by the nominee under the certificate, the deposit will be forfeited.

15. No money paid by persons resident within the three Kingdoms on account of any passage or passages will be returned should the person or persons making such payment not avail himself or themselves of the passage or passages so provided; but the Agent-General, in cases where circumstances satisfactorily explained may prevent embarkation on the ship first arranged for, may authorize a passage or passages by a succeeding ship.

16. Married couples and children, and single men, shall be entitled to remain on board five clear days after the ship drops anchor in Port Jackson.

17. Unmarried women shall be received into an Immigrants' Home in Sydney, and shall be allowed ten days to enable them to obtain suitable employment.

18. Should the age of any intending Immigrant exceed the limits prescribed in section 3 the sum payable on his or her account shall be fifteen pounds.

19. These Regulations shall take effect on and after the 6th November, 1883, and the Regulations published in the Government Gazette of the 27th September, 1882, are hereby cancelled.

RECENT immigration ships, unfortunate passages, stimulated into popular favour utilizing Orient boats; have arranged special direct monthly steamer via Cape. First four hundred, fifteen pounds; next two hundred, fourteen pounds ten shillings; over that, fourteen pounds; probable capacity, seven hundred statute adults. No other passengers except saloon. Second saloon fitted for females and families. Surgeon, Government appointment. Make no more sailing charters. Arrange first steamer about eight weeks after last present engagements; lessening risk double arrivals here.

Mr. G. Skelton Yuill to The Colonial Secretary.

Sydney, 22 August, 1883.

Sir,

I have the honor to submit the following as my understanding of the terms proposed by you on behalf of your Government, and accepted by me on behalf of the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited), for the conveyance by steam of the New South Wales immigrants:—

1st. The Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited) are to undertake the conveyance of the New South Wales immigrants from Plymouth, and are to provide a monthly steamer for the present requirements of the service, increasing the sailings as may be found necessary. This arrangement, however, is not to preclude the Government from despatching emigrant ships from Glasgow or other outport in United Kingdom, nor from any Continental port. In the former case, however, the Orient Company to have the option of supplying under this contract the required conveyance at such outport in the United Kingdom.

2nd. Such steamers are to come out from England by the Cape of Good Hope.

3rd. They shall be at liberty to call at Hobart (and) or Launceston, to land or receive mails, passengers, or cargo, but at no other Australian port without sanction of your Government.

4th. The New South Wales Government guarantee four hundred immigrants as a minimum number for each steamer.

5th. Payments to be made to the Orient Company as follows, viz.:—For the four hundred adults guaranteed £15 (fifteen pounds) per adult; any over four hundred and under six hundred, £14 10s. (fourteen pounds ten shillings); any over six hundred, £14 (fourteen pounds). A moiety payable in England on embarkation and the second moiety on all landed, after deducting in final settlement the former payment for any not landed.

6th. First steamer to be despatched about eight weeks after completion of Agent-General's present engagements by sailing vessels, or earlier if Agent-General and Company find it for mutual convenience.

7th. The Orient Company to be at liberty to take passengers in the saloon for their own account, and the quarter-deck to be reserved for their accommodation.

8th. The doctor in charge of the immigrants to be appointed by the Government, but to have the medical care of any saloon passengers and crew, on terms arranged with the Company; **and it is understood that the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited) are to provide free return passages to England for the surgeon and matron of each ship.*

9th. Steamers to be subject to no delay at Plymouth beyond the time required for actual embarkation, unless by special arrangement with the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited).

10th. Five lay days (Sundays excepted) to be allowed here for landing the immigrants, during which time, however, the steamer may discharge cargo.

11th. In the event of its being found necessary to enforce quarantine, it is understood that every exertion will be made to relieve the vessel as soon as practicable, even though it may be found necessary to detain the captain and crew in quarantine.

12th. In all other matters not above provided for the New South Wales Government charter shall obtain, except where it is found necessary to modify it to suit the change from sail to steam.

13th. The contract to remain in force until exhaustion of the present vote of Parliament for Immigration, and its continuance thereafter to be dependent on further vote of Parliament, and subject also to the service being performed satisfactorily to the Government, who shall otherwise have the power to terminate the contract by giving six months' notice.

In event of above terms accurately representing your views, I would venture to request an early confirmation of the agreement, so that full details may be sent to London by the Potosi's mail.

I have, &amp;c.,

G. SKELTON YUILL,

Manager in Australia, O.S.N. Compy. (Limited).

* The words in italics were added by Mr. Yuill to his letter, in response to the Principal Under Secretary's letter following, of date 7 September, 1883:—

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 7 September, 1883.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 22nd ultimo, with reference to the conveyance by the Orient Steam Navigation Company of immigrants to this Colony, I am directed to inform you that the Colonial Secretary approves of the terms therein submitted for the performance of the service, with the addition of a clause to the following effect, which has been omitted, although arranged for, viz.:—

"It is understood that the Orient Steam Navigation Company are to provide free return passages to England for the surgeon and matron of each ship."

No. 11.

The Colonial Secretary to The Agent-General.

My dear Sir Saul,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 3 September, 1883.

IMMIGRATION.—All the points which you have written or telegraphed about have I think been fully considered, but as they were investigated so the objections seemed to lessen as to the substitution of steamers for sailing vessels. While men's minds were in doubt the unfortunate passages of the "Ellora," and "Allanshaw," and the former one of the "Northampton," rise strongly to every man's mind, and the general opinions here of the whole country, whose money is being spent, is in favour of employing the Orient steamers, in the hope that forty-five to fifty days passage will lessen the chance of disease, and the man who would now venture to uphold the 100-day passage of sailing ships would be denounced.

As to medical men, we have several first-rate young men here who will gladly take charge of the whole ship, we giving them an aid in the way of a dispenser. I suppose Dr. Sturt, to whom I gave a letter to you, will be glad to take one. I have appointed a Dr. Beattie, who will go home probably in the next Orient boat, for another. He has been in charge of our small-pox hospital, and has proved himself a valuable officer and an excellent organizer.

Dr. Huxtable, who has brought out the "Cardigan Castle's" immigrants, is also an applicant, but I have not yet determined whether to appoint him or not. The fact is that as each steamer will make two voyages a year, perhaps five in two years, it becomes a very handsome appointment, and ought to command first-class men. They will be each permanently attached to his ship, which of itself is an advantage.

The steamers carry no passengers except saloon, and the second saloon will be fitted up for single females and married women. The ventilation throughout the ship is perfect. I think it probable that we may find two matrons necessary, and with reasonable care I do not see that we need apprehend much damage to the morals of our single women. The shortness of the voyage is a safeguard in set-off against the larger number of crews and engineers.

The endless supply of water and abundance of fresh provisions are advantages not to be lost sight of. The cost is just about the same, perhaps 10s. per head more than you have been lately paying for ships, the saving in gratuities being considerable. I had hoped to have sent you a copy of the agreement, but Yuill, the agent, has not sent me the final revise. Moreover, you will have it I think by the San Francisco. I will write on Thursday next. I am also pushed to arrange for a stream of German immigration by the North German steamers. I am negotiating now for 200 every second month.

The Orient Company are ready to take up the Glasgow immigrants, making the run from Glasgow via Plymouth. There will be some little trouble at first, but the certainty of dates of sailing and arrival here will be found most beneficial; and as I know you will bring the valuable services of yourself and your staff to make it a success, I have no fear for the future.

Believe me, &amp;c.,

ALEX. STUART.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 5 September, 1883.

The increasing demand for reliable information concerning the Australian Colonies having engaged my attention, instructions have been issued to the Agent for Immigration to prepare and supply to journalists throughout the United Kingdom a monthly sheet, in the enclosed form, respecting the social and industrial condition and progress of the Colony.

2. I shall send you a supply of the monthly sheets by every San Francisco mail, as I have no doubt you will find them useful in affording information to persons wishing to emigrate.

I have, &amp;c.,

AUSTRALIAN INFORMATION FOR BRITISH JOURNALISTS.

Immigration Office, Sydney, New South Wales, 9 August, 1883.

THE continually increasing demand for reliable information concerning the Australian Colonies has induced the Immigration Agent for New South Wales to arrange for supplying British Journalists, free of cost, with a Monthly Sheet of Information respecting the Social and Industrial Condition and Progress of the Colony, which, it is trusted, will prove acceptable for editorial purposes. A fresh sheet will be forwarded every four weeks, via San Francisco, and editors desirous of sending copies of their respective papers, showing the use made of the information supplied, will please address same to "The Immigration Agent, Sydney, New South Wales."

POPULAR

POPULAR EDUCATION IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—In 1882 the number of children receiving instruction in the Public Schools of the Colony was 167,989, out of an estimated population of nearly 800,000. This is exclusive of the number of children receiving home instruction.

NEW SOUTH WALES STATISTICS.—The total area of New South Wales is 316,320 square miles, with a population of 797,377. The amount of revenue in 1882 was £7,418,536, as against £6,714,327 in 1881, of which sum the proportion raised by taxation was £1,903,413, being at the rate of £2 7s. 8d. per head of population. The value of imports during 1882 was £21,281,130, or £26 19s. 3d. per head of population. The value of the exports during the same period was £16,716,961, or £20 19s. 3d. per head of population.

RAILWAYS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The parent Australian Colony is thoroughly alive to the importance and value of a properly developed railway system, and every few months beholds the completion of the extension of an existing line, or the commencement of a new branch. At the close of 1882 there were 1,315 miles of railway actually completed, and 504 in course of construction. This is exclusive of railways to be formed at a cost of several millions during the next few years. The lines are mostly single, and are very substantially constructed. The stations are generally elegant and commodious structures of stone or brick, with spacious covered platforms, not unlike what travellers on the Midland Railway between London and Derby are familiar with. The number of railway passengers during 1881 was 6,907,312, showing the extensive use made by colonists of the travelling facilities provided them. About one-third of the journeys were made over the suburban lines running from Sydney, many of the city merchants and tradesmen having suburban villas, not unlike those which abound at Hammersmith, Richmond, Harrow, Muswell Hill, and other portions of the metropolitan suburbs.

RAILWAY LABOUR IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The rapid development of the New South Wales railway system has created an extensive demand for railway labour of every description. Constant employment, at remunerative wages, can always be obtained by experienced navvies, the working day consisting of eight hours.

STEAM TRAMWAYS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Steam tramways, although only of recent introduction in Sydney, have already become so largely used as to exercise a perceptible influence on the habits of the residents in the colonial metropolis. Horse tramways, such as are used in London, were found impracticable, in consequence of the numerous heavy gradients encountered at different portions of each journey. The motors have been obtained principally from America, and are compact, light, and possessed of considerable strength. The carriages are something like those in use on the Paris suburban lines, being double decked, and the seats on the roof being under shelter. The Sydney tramways are, in fact, so many street railways, forming to Sydney what the Metropolitan District Railway is to London. At the close of 1881 there were 11¼ miles of tramway in actual use, the number of passengers during the year being 7,090,125, as against 2,086,897 during the previous year. In 1882 there was a further enormous increase, which is being maintained during the present year.

THE LABOURING CLASSES IN SYDNEY.—One of the principal features of industrial life in New South Wales is the absence of the despondent and careworn expression which seems to pervade the features of a crowd of working people in the British manufacturing districts. There is a general air of prosperity and contentment which invariably strikes a stranger, as does the absence of the squalid poverty which abounds in London, Liverpool, Glasgow, and other large centres of population. The scene in George-street, the leading Sydney thoroughfare, on each Saturday evening is eminently indicative of the well-to-do condition of the colonial artisan. The crowd is, in some respects, not unlike that which throngs the Whitechapel Road, Islington Upper-street, or the Watworth Road, on Saturday nights, but it consists of a far larger proportion of young people, who are well dressed, especially the females, the favourite colour of attire during the summer months being white, with coloured silk or satin sashes. Large numbers of the females employed in Sydney industrial establishments reside in the suburbs, riding to the city each morning by train, tram, or bus. Many bring with them dainty bouquets or nosegays, gathered from their own gardens. The wearing of garden flowers and ferns is general during the greater portion of the year.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—Although New South Wales does not at present claim to be a manufacturing Colony, the number of manufacturing establishments is steadily on the increase. In connection with or dependent upon agriculture, there are 62 agricultural implement manufactories, 18 tobacco or cigar manufactories, 10 steam bakeries, 14 bone-manure manufactories, 77 sugar manufactories, 2 maize manufactories, and 10 jam manufactories, employing 2,720 hands, of whom 85 are females. The works in connection with the utilization of raw material of pastoral origin comprises 36 soap and candle manufactories, 7 woollen mills, 121 tanneries, 65 fell-mongeries, 14 salting and meat-preserving establishments, 43 boiling-down establishments, 60 wool-washing establishments, and 5 glue manufactories, employing 2,694 hands, of whom 157 are females. There are also 1 distillery, 3 sugar refineries, 50 breweries, 58 confectionery manufactories, 3 coffee, chocolate, and spice works, and 174 ginger-beer, aerated water, cordial, vinegar, ink, and blacking manufactories, employing 2,157 hands, of whom 59 are females. In connection with the building trades there are 412 brick-yards, 9 drain-pipe manufactories, 98 lime-kilns, 13 potteries, 12 tile-works, and 280 steam, water, and horse saw-mills, employing 5,453 hands, of whom only 4 are females. This latter number furnishes a significant contrast to what is found in English brick-yards, where female labour is largely employed, while in those of New South Wales it is completely unknown, only one female being returned as employed in brick-making. In addition to the foregoing, there are 85 iron and tin works, 55 iron, brass, and copper foundries, 58 machinists, engineers, &c., and 1 type foundry, employing 2,968 hands, of which only 2 were females. The miscellaneous manufacturing industries comprise 1 air-engine works, 16 account-book manufactories, 1 bag and sac manufactory, 12 basket manufactories, 25 bedding manufactories, 1 bone-charcoal works, 71 boot manufactories, employing not less than 6 hands, 2 brush manufactories, 7 cabinet works in which steam power is employed, 1 chemical works, 53 clothing manufactories, 173 coach and waggon works, 1 comb manufactory, 3 dairy-implement manufactories, 5 dry and floating docks, 10 dyeing works, 1 firework manufactory, 15 gas works, 2 glass-stainers, 2 glass-works, 2 glass-silvering works, 13 hat manufactories, 4 ice manufactories, 5 Indian-condiment manufactories, 2 iron-bedstead works, 2 kerosene-oil manufactories, 6 ladder and barrow works, 5 mast and block yards, 9 marble-works, 2 mill-belt manufactories, 2 organ-builders, 3 ornamental-plaster manufactories, 6 packing-case manufactories, 3 paper-box manufactories, 2 paper mills, 6 patent slips, 2 perambulator works, 1 pianoforte manufactory, 12 picture-frame manufactories, 45 printing establishments using steam or gas power, 3 portmanteau works, 5 railway-carriage works, 6 rope works, 229 saddle and harness manufactories, 11 sail manufactories, 1 salt-works, 3 scale-makers, 67 ship and boat building yards, 7 shirt manufactories, 14 smelting-works, 2 soap-powder works, 30 steam joinery works, 2 steam laundries, 16 stone-crushing works, 1 stone-dressing works, 2 surgical-instrument manufactories, 23 turnery works, 7 window-blind manufactories, 2 wire works, and 2 hair-jewellery manufactories. The number of hands employed in these is 13,837, of whom 2,096 are females. These figures are for the year 1881, since which time there has been a marked development of manufacturing enterprise, nor do they include the hundreds of workers employed in the numerous retail establishments throughout the Colony. As a rule wages are considerably higher than in England, and steady experienced workmen have no difficulty in obtaining employment. It is the professional class, such as clerks, book-keepers, shop assistants, and those who have not learned any handicraft, who form the bulk of the unemployed, of whom, at the present moment, there are comparatively few in the Colony.

COAL PRODUCTS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The Colony is wonderfully rich in coal. The principal shipping port being Newcastle, at the mouth of the Hunter, about 75 miles north of Sydney. Its surroundings remind an English visitor of the leading features of an English coal-mining district. There are the same works at the pit mouth, the same co-operative stores, the same public-houses with the old characteristic signs, and the same broad-shouldered, thickly-clad, sleepy-featured pitmen. It is as if a portion of the Durham or Northumberland coal-mining region had become bodily transferred to the Australian coast. There are occasional disputes between employer and employed, but on the whole the relations between capital and labour are fairly harmonious. The coal measures embrace an area of about 23,950 square miles. The seams worked vary from 3 feet to 25 feet in thickness, are nearly horizontal, and are in some localities considerably above sea-level. There are at the present time forty-one collieries at work, employing in the aggregate above and below ground 4,125 miners and others. In addition to the foregoing there are two mines at which very valuable seams of petroleum oil, cannel coal, or kerosene shale are being worked. The number of men employed at these mines above and below ground is 231. Since 1865, when the working of these seams commenced, the output has been 241,284 tons, valued at £581,046. There are three principal coal-mining districts: the Hunter River and Newcastle Coal-field, situated to the north of Sydney; the Southern or Illawarra Coal-field; and the Western or Lithgow Coal-field, upon the Great Western Railway Line, about 95 miles west from the metropolis. Coal is also being worked near Berriana, between Illawarra and Lithgow;

Lithgow; and some seams are known to occur in the country lying between Lithgow and the Hunter River. Sydney, therefore, occupies an almost central position with regard to the coal-mining districts, and beyond these coal has been discovered in different parts of the Colony, viz., near Inverell, Denison town, Dubbo, Barraba, Clarence, &c.

GOLD IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Notwithstanding that the search for gold has been carried on for thirty years in this Colony, new fields or new deposits are continually being discovered, some of them in localities which were supposed to have been thoroughly examined. Some of the fields recently discovered promise to equal in extent and richness any discovered in the early days; while the oldest fields, though apparently exhausted as far as the miner unaided by capital and skill is capable of exhausting them, yet contain deposits of gold which will yield a rich harvest to the skilled miner who shall bring to bear upon them appliances such as are being successfully employed elsewhere. Gold has always been found in association with certain formations, and the extent of country occupied by these is about 70,000 square miles—or nearly one-fourth of the whole area of the Colony,—a considerable portion of which has not yet been touched by the pick of the miner.

THE IRON INDUSTRY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The existence of extensive deposits of rich iron ores at Wallerawang, Lithgow, Mittagong, Mount Lambie, Berrima, Murrumbidgee, and in various other parts of the Colony, has been demonstrated—in many instances in the vicinity of coal and lime in abundance; but owing to the heavy cost of erecting smelting and other works, and the difficulty of securing the necessary skilled labour, very little has yet been done towards developing this important source of wealth. In fact, with the exception of the Fitzroy Works at Mittagong, which have been abandoned for some time past, the only works in the Colony are those of the Eskbank Iron Company, at Lithgow Valley, which were originated in 1875. These works consist of furnace, foundry and forge, and rolling mills; the two branches are connected by a horse tramway. Most of the plant, including a 24-ton fly-wheel, was made on the ground. The blast furnace is capable of producing 100 tons of gray, or 115 tons of white iron per week. Both pig and malleable iron are made, and large quantities of rails for tramways have been rolled. Upon this Company's property are iron ore, coal, fireclay, and moulder's sand. During the year 1881 the Eskbank Iron Company made pig iron to the value of £10,950; bar, angle, and rail iron to the value of £31,086; and castings, &c., to the value of £5,777. During the year the blast furnace was worked only five months and seventeen days. With the introduction of sufficient capital and experienced skill, a busy and prosperous future will become assured to the iron industry of the Colony.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRESS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The area of land under grain crops in 1881 was 363,259 acres, the produce being as follows:—Wheat, 3,405,906 bushels; maize, 4,930,956 bushels; barley, 135,218 bushels; oats, 356,506 bushels; rye, 14,677 bushels; millet, 2,519 bushels; sorghum, 112 tons. The area of land devoted to hay crops was 146,610 acres, the produce being as follows:—Wheat, 42,378 tons; barley, 4,328 tons; oats, 100,773 tons; sown grasses, 51,053 tons. The area under green crop for cattle was:—Maize, 3,976 acres; barley, 2,774 acres; oats, 1,802 acres; rye, 521 acres; millet, 164 acres; sown grasses, 63,095 acres; sorghum, &c., 3,492 acres. The extent of land under potatoes was 15,944 acres, which yielded 44,323 tons, being an average of about 2½ tons to the acre. The area of land under tobacco culture was 1,623 acres, the produce amounting to 13,311 cwt. Sugar-cane covered an area of 12,168 acres, of which 4,984 acres were productive, and 7,184 unproductive. Sugar produced at the mills is stated to have amounted to 159,048 cwt., the weight of cane grown being 128,752 tons. The area of land occupied by vineyards for wine-making was 2,597 acres, the quantity of wine produced being 513,688 gallons, and of brandy 3,522 gallons. Wines for table use covered an area of 940 acres, and the quantity of grapes picked was 1,103 tons. There were also 490 acres of unproductive vines, the total area of land under vines being 4,028 acres. The cultivation of the orange occupied 6,301 acres, and the fruit produced amounted to 5,164,134 dozens. Gardens and orchards covered an area of 15,541 acres. All kinds of agricultural produce find a ready market, generally at very remunerative prices.

SCARCITY OF AGRICULTURAL LABOUR IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—There exists a considerable dearth of skilled agricultural labour in the country districts of the Colony, and it is stated that good farm hands can always obtain employment at rates far better than are procurable in British agricultural districts. Many of those who go out as agricultural labourers are not really such, having had no farming or pastoral experience, and, of course, have everything to learn in their adopted country.

THE NEW SOUTH WALES BUILDING TRADES.—The various building trades of the Colony are at the present moment enjoying a condition of almost unexampled prosperity, the demand for labour being considerably in excess of the supply, by reason of the enormous amount of building going on, not only in Sydney and its suburbs, but in all the leading townships, in which the rate of progress is really marvellous. The eight-hours system is enforced in all the trades, and it is very rarely that a building employé is seen at work after 6 p.m. The wages are high, and many of the better class of workmen are the owners of the cottages in which they reside, the purchase of land and the building of dwellings on the same being encouraged by the numerous facilities furnished by the various Land and Building Societies.

SAVINGS BANKS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—At the end of the year 1881 there were 40,532 depositors in the several branches of the New South Wales Savings' Bank, with an amount to their credit of £1,727,202. The Sydney depositors numbered 32,332, with £1,373,973 to their account; and depositors in country districts numbered 8,200, with £353,229 to their account. The amount at credit of reserved fund stood at £158,100. As compared with the amount of deposits in the previous year, there was an increase of £237,842. On the 1st January, 1881, the business of the Savings' Bank opened with 36,929 depositors. Old accounts closed during the year numbered 8,273, and there were 11,876 new accounts opened during the same period. The increase on the previous year in the number of depositors was 3,603. At the end of the year 1881 there were 208 Government Savings' Banks in existence throughout the Colony. These Banks commenced the year with 24,602 accounts, which were increased during the year by the opening of 17,516 new accounts, making a total of 42,118. From this we deduct 10,266 accounts closed during the year, and we have 31,852 accounts remaining at the end of the year 1881. The balance due on accounts on the 1st January, 1881, amounted to £586,496. The total deposits of the year, including interest, amounted to £860,702, making a total of £1,447,198. The withdrawals in the year amounted to £475,697, which leaves a balance of £971,501 to credit of depositors on the 31st December, 1881. This shows an increase of £385,005 on the balance of the previous year. These figures show the steady progress of provident habits among the industrial classes of this Colony.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPHS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The number of stations for the transmission of telegrams during 1881 was 318. The number of messages sent was 1,607,206, the value of which came to £125,336. The number of miles of wire was 14,278. The total cost of construction amounted to £492,211.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The total number of Sunday Schools in the Colony at the end of the year 1881, in connection with the various denominations, was 1,405. The number of teachers was 9,289, and the children on the registers 101,092. The average attendance is shown to have been 75,672. Official statistics show a steady increase in the number of children receiving instruction in these schools.

A HAPPY COUNTRY.—There are no work-houses in New South Wales.

WAGES IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The average rates of wages in New South Wales during 1881 were:—Waggon-builders, 1s. to 1s. 3d. per hour; carriage builders and painters, 10d. to 1s. 6d. per hour; mill sawyers, 9d. to 1s. 3d. per hour; compositors, 1s. to 1s. 1d. per 1,000; bookwork, 1s. per 1,000; stonemasons, 10s. to 11s. per day; stonemasons' labourers, 7s. to 8s. per day; plasterers, 11s. to 12s. per day; plasterers' labourers, 7s. to 9s. per day; bricklayers, 10s. to 12s. per day; bricklayers' labourers, 7s. to 9s. per day; carpenters, 9s. to 11s. per day; joiners, 10s. to 11s. per day; painters and shipwrights, 9s. to 11s. per day; saddlers, 45s. to 55s. per week; tailors, per week, piecework, 50s. to 70s.; shoemakers, per week, 35s. to 50s.; shipsmiths, 1s. to 1s. 6d. per hour; dressers, 8d. to 11d. per hour; furnacemen, 10d. to 1s. 1d. per hour; iron-turners, engine-fitters, copper-smiths, general fitters, and most of the skilled hands in the metal trades, from 10d. to 1s. 4d. per hour; strikers, 8d. to 10d. per hour; coal-miners, 10s. to 15s. per day. In most of the trades above-mentioned the rates of wages have been maintained for several years, and at present the tendency is to rise. In all the trades the working day consists of eight hours.

AGRICULTURAL WAGES IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Married couples for stations, £60 to £75 per annum; farm labourers, £30 to £45; bullock-drivers, £40 to £52; horse-team drivers, £40 to £65; boundary riders, £40 to £52; stockmen, £40 to £75; shepherds, £35 to £40; useful boys, £16 to £30. These wages are usually in addition to rations and lodging accommodation.

WAGES OF DOMESTIC SERVANTS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The demand for good domestic servants is always in excess of the supply, and the scene at the Immigration Depot at Sydney, after the arrival of an immigrant vessel, is often very suggestive—there being sometimes as many as fifteen or twenty mistresses competing with each other for the services of each domestic waiting to be engaged. In a few minutes all the females desirous of obtaining situations are engaged at rates varying from 9s. to 13s. per week. The average rates of wages in 1881 were, per annum:—Cooks, £30 to £75; laundresses, £32 to £45; house and parlour maids, £26 to £35; general servants, £26 to £45; nursemaids, £26 to £35; grooms and coachmen (in town), £45 to £65; grooms, £52 to £65; gardeners (country), £52 to £60; gardeners (town), £72 to £80.

AUSTRALIAN INFORMATION FOR BRITISH JOURNALISTS.

Immigration Office, Sydney, New South Wales, 6 September, 1883.

THE continually increasing demand for reliable information concerning the Australian Colonies has induced the Immigration Agent for New South Wales to arrange for supplying British journalists, free of cost, with a monthly sheet of information respecting the social and industrial condition and progress of the Colony, which, it is trusted, will prove acceptable for editorial purposes. A fresh sheet will be forwarded every four weeks, via San Francisco, and editors desirous of sending copies of their respective papers, showing the use made of the information supplied, will please address same to "The Immigration Agent, Sydney, New South Wales."

TRADE OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The commercial and industrial importance of the eldest of the Australian Colonies is shown by the fact that the total trade of New South Wales, for the year 1882, amounted in value to £37,998,091. Of this sum the imports, principally from the United Kingdom, represent £21,281,130, and the exports £16,716,961, the whole showing an increase of more than four and a half millions over the previous year, and of eight millions over 1880. Such facts speak for themselves. The carrying trade is confined almost exclusively to British and Colonial vessels, Sydney forming as it were the commercial metropolis of the southern hemisphere. The amount of trade per head of the population is estimated at £47 13s. In 1881 the amount was £43 18s. 10½d. The importation of articles of luxury, such as pictures, art furniture, curios, statuary, &c., is largely increasing, a sure indication of general prosperity and advancing taste.

RAILWAYS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The material progress of the Colony is not inaptly represented by the rapidly increasing mileage of railway. The total number of miles of railway in New South Wales at the close of 1882 was 1,315, against 995 miles during the previous year. There are also 504 miles in course of construction, and numerous routes for other lines are being surveyed. This is no mean achievement for a country containing less than a million inhabitants.

THE ORANGE IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—What apple culture is in England, that of the orange is in New South Wales; the Parramatta district, near Sydney, being to Australia what Kent, with its countless luxuriant orchards, is to the United Kingdom. The scenery of the Parramatta River is not unlike that of the Thames above Richmond, only more romantic and beautiful, especially during spring-time, when the wonderful profusion of wild flowers imparts an additional charm to the picture. Even the masses of rock, which in many places rise boldly from the edges of the stream, are decked with bright-coloured clusters of Australian native flowers of the most lovely and varied description. The trees also claim a large share of admiration, not only from the lover of the beautiful in nature, but also from the utilitarian; for they include the orange, with its bright green foliage and dainty white flowers or rich golden fruit, both often being seen on the tree at one and the same time. The orange is not only a picturesque adjunct to the garden, but also more than repays the trouble and cost of cultivation. From a tree, appropriately known as the "poor man's profit," there was gathered this year an orange weighing 30 ounces, and measuring 16½ inches in diameter. Of course this was an exceptional, but rich and luscious oranges are as plentiful in the Parramatta district as blackberries in an English country lane during autumn-time.

TIN AND TIN-MINING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Although the existence of tin was discovered by the late Rev. W. B. Clarke, an eminent colonial geologist, so far back as 1853, it was not worked until about ten years ago, since which period there have been exported from the Colony 48,055 tons of fine tin in ingots, in addition to 14,212 tons of ore, representing a total value of £4,339,577. The number of miners employed in 1881 was estimated at 4,530, of whom were Chinese. In addition to the alluvial deposits of tin ore there are numerous valuable lodes, but the latter have not yet been worked to any extent, on account of the capital and skill necessary for their proper development. The alluvial deposits first worked were found in beds of existing creeks, but more recently tin ore has been found in large quantities in beds of old rivers or creeks, at depths varying from a few feet to 150 feet. In some cases these deposits are covered by basalt. The extent so far as known of our stanniferous deposits is at least 5,440,000 acres; but it will probably be found more extensive than this, as Mr. H. Y. L. Brown, geological surveyor, has recently discovered tin ore at the "Granite Diggings," in the north-western portion of the Colony, in the direction of Queensland. The tin-bearing localities hitherto worked are situated about the high lands of the Great Dividing Range in the Northern and Southern Districts. Several lodes of "cassiterite" have been opened, as at Tingha, Elsmore, Newstead, The Gulf, Jingellic, &c.; they occur chiefly in euritic and micaceous granites. But nearly all the ore hitherto raised is stream tin, obtained from the Tertiary and Quarternary drifts, where these are composed of the detritus from the stanniferous granites. Gold, wolfram, metallic bismuth, and carbonate and sulphide of bismuth are occasionally found with the tin ore; sulphide of tin rarely. The concretionary variety of tin oxide called "toad's-eye" tin occurs in the Pliocene gold drifts at Greynell. From this it will be perceived that there exists in the Colony abundant scope for tin-mining enterprise.

FRUIT-GROWING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The Sydney fruit market furnishes a tempting sight to those newly arrived in the Colony, especially during the summer months, although the supply is well maintained throughout the year. In addition to large quantities of peaches, nectarines, apricots, loquats, grenadillas, and other semi-tropical fruits, which flourish admirably in the open air in New South Wales, there is an abundant supply of apples, pears, and gooseberries, to say nothing of strawberries, cherries, and grapes of the most luscious description. At one time the supply of apples and pears was obtained principally from Tasmania, but of late years the fruit has been grown in perfection in the Goulburn, Bathurst, Orange, and other inland districts of the Colony, although the art of fruit-growing is practically in its infancy in this part of Australia. Much of the land around Sydney, especially in the direction of Parramatta, is devoted to orange culture, and thousands of cases of the rich golden fruit are annually exported to Victoria, South Australia, and other Colonies, even to New Zealand. Orange culture in New South Wales is often a very profitable occupation. The older trees often attain a height of from 30 to 36 feet, and from one of these as many as 12,000 oranges may be gathered during a single year. These at 6d. per dozen would represent £25 as the annual value of each tree. The progress of orange culture has increased considerably of late years, in consequence of the suitability of the climate for the proper ripening of the fruit. The Mandarin orange tree grows to the height of from 20 to 30 feet, a single tree yielding as many as 350 dozen oranges in a single year. The naval orange is a luscious fruit, brought originally from Brazil by the late Sir F. Forbes, first Chief Justice of New South Wales. Seville oranges are grown in perfection in the Hunter River district, one of the most fertile in the whole of Australia. Parramatta forms, however, the great centre of New South Wales orange-growing industry, and a visit to one of the immense orangeries here furnishes a glorious spectacle not easily effaced from the memory.

SAPPHIRES IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The New South Wales sapphires, in common with those from other parts of Australia, are usually rather dark in colour; they, however, are found varying from perfectly colourless and transparent, through various shades of blue and green, to a dark and almost opaque blue. One or two green-coloured sapphires or oriental emeralds are almost always met with in every parcel of a hundred or so specimens; also blue and white parti-coloured asteria or sapphires, which show a six-rayed star of reflected light, are by no means uncommon. Sapphires are almost invariably met with by the miners as an accompaniment of alluvial gold. They are widely distributed over the New England District, as at Bingera, county of Murchison, and near Inverell, Rose Valley, Swanbrook, Vegetable Creek, and Nowstead, county Gough, with tin, adamantine spar, zircons, topaz, and bismuthite; in Cope's Creek, county Hardinge; Oban, county Clarke; Nundle Creek and Peel River, county Parry; Dundee, Ben Lomond, Mann's River, Gwydir River; in the county of Sandon, at Uralla; on the Namoi River; on the Abercrombie River; blue and green sapphires near Mount Werrig, with pleonaste, zircons, gold, &c., county of Georgiana; on the Cudgegong River, county Phillip; at Two-mile Flat, Bell's River, and Pink's Creek, county Roxburgh, with white topaz, almandine garnets, epidote, spinelle, chrysoberyl, chrysolite, hyacinth, &c.; at Tumbarumba, county Wynyard, with tinstone and other minerals; in the Shoalhaven River, county St. Vincent; and the Snowy River, county Wallace. These places will readily be found on any modern map of the Colony.

THE EARLIEST DISCOVERIES OF COAL IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The existence of coal in New South Wales appears to have speedily followed the settlement of the Colony, namely, in August, 1797, and the following reference is made to the event by Mr. Collins, in his account of the establishment and progress of New South Wales. Mr. Collins says:—"Mr. Clark, the supercargo of the 'Sydney Cove,' having mentioned that, two days before he had been met by the people in the fishing-boat, he had fallen in with a great quantity of coal, with which he and his companions had made a large fire and slept by it during the night, a whaleboat was sent off to the southward, with Mr. Bass, the surgeon of the 'Reliance,' to discover where an article so valuable was to be met with. He proceeded about 7 leagues to the southward of Point Solander, where he found in the face of a steep cliff, washed by the sea, a stratum of coal, in breadth about 6 feet, and extending 8 or 9 miles to the southward. Upon the summit of the high land, and lying on the surface, he observed many patches of coal, from some of which it must have been that Mr. Clark was so conveniently supplied with fuel. He also found in the skeletons of the mate and carpenter of the 'Sydney Cove' an equivocal proof of their having unfortunately perished, as was conjectured. By the specimens of the coal which were brought in by Mr. Bass the quality appeared to be good; but from its almost inaccessible situation no great advantage could ever be expected from it, and, indeed, were it even less difficult to be procured, unless some small harbour should be near it, it could not be of much utility to the settlement." During the following month of the same year—i.e., in September, 1797—coal was found to the north of Sydney. According to Mr. Collins, "Lieutenant Shortland proceeded with a whaleboat as far as Port Stephens. On his return he entered a river, which he named Hunter River, about 10 leagues to the southward of Port Stephens, into which he carried 3 fathoms water in the shoalest part of its entrance, finding deep water and good anchorage within. The entrance of this river was but narrow, and covered by a high rocky island lying right off it, so as to leave a good passage round the north end of the island between that and the shore. A reef connects the south part of the island with the south of the entrance of the river. In this harbour was found a very considerable quantity of coal of a very good sort, and lying so near the water-side as to be conveniently shipped, which gave it in this particular a manifest advantage over that discovered to the southward. Some specimens of this coal were brought up in the boat." In 1799 it seems to have become customary to send regularly to the Hunter River for supplies of coal, and under the heading of April, 1799, Collins has the following entry in his journal:—"The discovery of vast strata of coal must be reckoned among the new lights thrown upon the resources of the Colony. The facility that this presents in working the iron ore (some of this iron ore, which has been smelted in England, has been reported to be equal, if not superior, to Swedish iron), with which the settlement abounded, must prove of infinite utility whenever a dockyard shall be established here; and the time may come when the productions of the country may not be confined within its own sphere." In the early days of the Colony the Hunter was for some time known as the Coal River. In September, 1800, another entry records the discovery of coal, although in this case the seam appears to have been valueless:—"It having been reported that coal had been found upon the banks of George's River, the Governor visited the place, and on examination found many indications of the existence of coal, that useful fossil, of which, shortly after, a vein was discovered on the west side of Garden Island Cove." The Australian Agricultural Company, formed in 1826, with a capital of £1,000,000, and a free grant of 1,000,000 acres of land, gave the first impetus to the great coal trade now carried on in the Colony. The charter possessed by the Company conceded to them the sole right to work the Newcastle coal-beds. This monopoly expired in 1847."

THE CLIMATE OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The climate of New South Wales appears to be much misunderstood in England, where it is frequently represented as being unendurably hot. The climate varies considerably, according to the character of the districts. On the mountains and tablelands it is cool in summer and cold in winter, while in the coast districts it is moderately warm during the winter, and something like an English July during the remainder of the year. In Sydney sunburnt faces are as uncommon as in London, but in the country brown features are plentiful among those working in the open air. The general healthfulness of the climate is beyond question, and many who left Europe by the advice of their physicians have obtained a new lease of life, thanks to the dryness of the atmosphere, which has a most beneficial influence on those suffering from chest and similar diseases.

WHO SHOULD AND WHO SHOULD NOT EMIGRATE TO NEW SOUTH WALES.—It is a great mistake to assume that emigration to Australia furnishes a remedy for loose or idle habits. To send thither the spendthrift or the dishonest in the hope that change of scene and surroundings may aid in the work of reformation is too frequently a futile task. Australia is not the place for any who are afraid of honest work; neither is it a country to which professional men should make their way without sufficient inducement. Those most likely to do well in New South Wales are skilled mechanics and experienced agricultural labourers, men who do not mind living in the country, far away from the tempting surroundings of the colonial metropolis. Of clerks, bookkeepers, shop assistants, and the like, there is always a supply in excess of the demand, the consequence being that the earnings of this class are generally much lower than those of the ordinary mechanic, while the hours of employment are considerably longer.

INDUSTRIAL OPENINGS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Among the official publications issued by the New South Wales Government is one of the most useful and interesting character, by Mr. Thomas Richards, the Government Printer, entitled "New South Wales in 1881," from which we extract the following passage:—"The large capitalist who desires to invest in pastoral pursuits can secure a fine property in the settled districts, which, with sound judgment, he may convert into a valuable estate. The small capitalist can find openings as a pioneer in the west. The dairy farmer can obtain a holding in any of the coast districts, where he may produce butter and cheese, eggs and bacon, lamb and veal, for the metropolitan market. The agriculturist can find a home on the banks of the coast rivers and on the table-lands of the south or the north. The grazier can combine agriculture with the fattening of stock on the western slopes. The vigneron can bring the juice of the grape to perfection in south-west, west, and north. There are immense areas open to all, over which as yet primeval verdure reigns. The development of the agricultural interest of the Colony by every legitimate means is the question which should be studied above all others. Pastoral industry, mining enterprise, manufactures, and commerce, are making more progress than the plough; yet, in a great and undeveloped territory, the cultivation of the soil is of supreme importance, and the growing of cereals, fruits, and economic plants will doubtless soon receive greater attention from the colonists than they have hitherto done."

THE RIVERS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The Murray River, which takes its rise in the south-eastern corner of New South Wales and makes its way to the coast of South Australia, has, in the former Colony, a length of 1,120 miles. The Murrumbidgee, taking its rise not very far north of the source of the Murray, is about 1,350 miles in length, receiving the waters of the Lachlan, 700 miles, and flowing into the Murray at Balranald. The Darling, 1,160 miles, has its source at the northern end of the Great Range, and flows north-west to the Queensland boundary, then west, and afterwards south and south-west, reaching the Murray at last at Wentworth, about 100 miles from the junction of the Murrumbidgee. The affluents of these great streams are numerous. The longest flow into the Darling, namely, the Macintyre, 350 miles; the Gwydir, 445 miles; the Namoi, 600 miles; the Castlereagh, 365 miles; the Macquarie, 750 miles; and the Bogan, 450 miles. The country watered by these rivers is grandly fertile, and embraces an area of several million square miles. The rivers and harbours abound with various orders of shell-fish, of which the prawn, lobster, and oyster are the chief. The oyster-beds of Hunter River, Clarence River, Manning River, Cook's River, Clyde River, Camden Haven, and many other places, yield a lavish supply of the "fruit of the rock," and there is an export trade to the adjacent Colonies. The Hon. Thomas Holt, a prominent colonist, has formed extensive claires at George's River, about 7 miles from Sydney, where there is abundance of mud, fresh and salt water, and tranquility to ensure the success of the experiment. The extreme prices for oysters ruling in England ought to make this branch of the resources of the Colony more noticeable, and it may therefore not be long before Sydney oysters will be sold in London, where their delicious flavour will remind lovers of the bivalve of the famous "natives" now so scarce and dear.

NEW SOUTH WALES NATURAL HISTORY.—The indigenous flora and fauna of New South Wales excite much attention in scientific circles, owing to many of the species being quite different from those found in other parts of the world. An eminent naturalist has reckoned that there are 690 distinct species of birds in Australia, being more than the number found in Europe, and nearly as many as inhabit and visit North America. In Gould's work on the "Birds of Australia" are figured many of the most beautiful kinds inhabiting the continent, such as the paradise bird, lyre-bird, mound-builder, and a large number of parrots and pigeons. Scientists have experienced difficulty in classifying several of the Australian animals, and the species to which some of them belong were thought by geologists to be long ago extinct. The Ceratodus Fosteri, remarkable for its affinity to the reptile and the fish species, and the Port Jackson shark with its tessellated teeth, are now often sought after as scientific curiosities by foreign naturalists.

THE JOINERY INDUSTRY IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—There are in the Colony several large joinery works, fitted with the best labour-saving machinery and the most modern appliances used in the trade. The establishments of Messrs. Hudson Brothers, Messrs. Goodlet & Smith, and Mr. John Booth, at Sydney, employ a large number of hands to meet the requirements of colonial contractors. At Messrs. Goodlet & Smith's establishment about 100,000 feet of timber are sawn weekly, nine-tenths of which consist of colonial hardwood, cedar, beech, and pine. Nearly every sort of building materials is manufactured by the firm. They have two large potteries, where sewage pipes from 3 to 24 inches in diameter, building and paving brick, and all descriptions of stoneware are made. The total number of sawmills, &c., rose from 112 in 1871 to 213 in 1880.

THE ENGINEERING AND SHIP-BUILDING INDUSTRIES OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—Mort's Dock and Engineering Works, about 2 miles from Sydney, form the most extensive undertaking of the kind in the Australian Colonies. The dock is 390 feet in length, and can receive vessels drawing 21 feet of water. Adjoining it there are workshops covering an area of 5 acres, in which, when at full swing, 700 hands are employed in the iron and brass foundries, boiler, locomotive, engine, and ship-building works comprised in this important concern; and many of the locomotives supplied to the Government in the Colony have been turned out of this establishment. A fine steamer, "Governor Blackall," of 500 tons, was also constructed and fitted out in it for the Queensland Government; also two beautiful steamers, "Thetis" and "Ajax," for the New South Wales Government. The works and patent ship of the Australasian Steam Navigation Company occupy 6½ acres, and also employ hundreds of men. The fleet of the Company is now so large that the works are always busy. There are many other rising foundries, such as those of Vale, Chapman, Davey, and Lutton & Sons. The increase in the number of iron, brass, and copper foundries since 1871 is forty-four. The building of the larger class of vessels is carried on in the rivers of the coast. The ships and boats are faithfully built, and the woods of the Colony are well adapted for the purpose. Colonial builders cannot compete with the cheap craft of other countries, but when quality is looked for they have the best chance. In 1871 there were built in the Colony twenty vessels, with a total of 1,798 tons, and in 1880 the number was forty-one vessels, of 2,799 tons. Only eighty-one ship and boat builders, employing 416 hands, are returned for 1880, against eighty-six establishments in 1871, but the productive resources of the smaller number have become largely increased.

POPULATION OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The estimated population of New South Wales on June 30, 1883, was 840,614. On December 31, 1882, the number was 817,648, consequently the increase during the six months was 22,966.

WEEKLY POSTAL SERVICE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND AUSTRALIA.—The New South Wales Government has entered into a contract with the Orient Steam Navigation Company for the conveyance of mails between Sydney and London. The service is to be fortnightly, and to alternate with the P. and O. service. The contract is to be for three years, subject, however, to alteration in case the Colony joins the Postal Union. The mails will be conveyed overland between Sydney and Melbourne. The time allowed for the conveyance of mails between Melbourne and London and vice versa is thirty-nine days.

BRITISH EMIGRANTS IN AUSTRALIA.—The antipodes still form the paradise of good domestic servants, who can always command excellent situations at good wages, especially in Sydney, where some of the best families are compelled to employ coloured labour in the absence of any other. Recently the emigrant vessel "Cardigan Castle" arrived in Sydney Harbour with fifty single men and thirty married couples, and when those who desired to proceed to their friends or to seek employment for themselves had done so, there remained for hire at Fort Macquarie only two married couples and ten single men. The former were engaged at £65 a year, with rations and lodgings, and in one instance a bonus of £5 for twelve months' faithful service. The latter readily found employment at £52 a year, also with rations and lodging, excepting one who is to receive £35 a year. Some of the immigrants proceeded to Goulburn, Katoomba, Bathurst, Walgett, Narrabri, Stroud, Hanging Rock, Glen Innes, Wellington, Shoalhaven, and other places, for which they were supplied with free railway or steamer passes.

IMPROVED ARRANGEMENTS FOR AUSTRALIAN EMIGRATION.—The Government of New South Wales have completed arrangements with the Orient Company for the use of their magnificent steamers, when required, for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney. This practically signifies the disuse of sailing-vessels for emigration purposes, so far as New South Wales is concerned. The route will be by the Cape of Good Hope, whereby the discomforts of the Red Sea will be avoided; at the same time the passage will occupy little more than one-third of the average period consumed by sailing-ships in making the voyage from Plymouth to Port Jackson. The new arrangements will come into force immediately, and those desirous of profiting by them should make application to the Agent-General for New South Wales, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-st., London, S.W.

The Principal Under Secretary to The Manager, in Australia, of the Orient Steam Navigation Company.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 15 September, 1883.

With reference to the conveyance by the Orient Steam Navigation Company of immigrants to this Colony, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that the Government desire to appoint Dr. Sturt, now in England (if he elects to take it), Dr. Beattie, and Dr. Huxtable, three of the surgeons for their immigrants; and to request that you will be good enough to arrange for the passages of the two latter gentlemen to England, so as to enable them to take charge of the early despatched steamers.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER.

The Colonial Secretary to The Agent-General.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 4 October, 1883.

My dear Samuel,

I have just time to add a line to the Garonne's mail to say that we fully intend that the Orient boats should have a full complement of immigrants. I reckon 700 to 800 statute adults as probably a complement; whereas I understand that the Orient Company think you have instructions only to send the minimum.

Our object in having a minimum was that if immigrants were scarce the loss to the Government would be limited.

We absorb all you now send out, which is about 1,200 per month, without making any impression on the market. We shall be at a block with railways and other public works if we do not get labour.

To return to immigration, Dr. Beattie, who has been in charge of some of our important hospitals and of our Quarantine, goes home in this ship as surgeon of the first of the steamer immigration line. You will find him a thoroughly efficient and intelligent officer who thoroughly understands his business, and I am anxious that the service be a success, and I feel that he is a man in whom both Government and country have confidence.

I remain, &c.,
ALEX. STUART.

P.S.—I have specially asked Dr. Beattie to talk to you about what we consider deficient arrangements at Plymouth.—A.S.

AUSTRALIAN INFORMATION FOR BRITISH JOURNALISTS.

Immigration Office, Sydney, New South Wales, 4 October, 1883.

THE continually increasing demand for reliable information concerning the Australian Colonies has induced the Immigration Agent for New South Wales to arrange for supplying British Journalists, free of cost, with a Monthly Sheet of Information respecting the Social and Industrial Condition and Progress of the Colony, which, it is trusted, will prove acceptable for editorial purposes. A fresh sheet will be forwarded every four weeks, per Orient steamer, and Editors desirous of sending copies of their respective papers, showing the use made of the information supplied, will please forward same to "The Immigration Agent, Sydney, New South Wales." This address will be quite sufficient. The postage fee on each paper so forwarded is One Penny.

AGRICULTURE IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The comparative insignificant statistics of agriculture in New South Wales have aided in creating a false impression respecting the true character of the agricultural resources of that Colony, some writers who have never visited the antipodes maintaining that agriculture on a profitable scale is impossible in New South Wales, by reason of the unfavourable climate, which is not sufficiently moist. This, however, is a great mistake, the limited agricultural development of the Colony being the result of two causes; the first being the novel fact that, owing to the nearness of the Dividing Range, a chain of mountains which divide the eastern coast districts from the interior, to the seaboard, the large rivers of the Colony, receiving nearly the whole of the interior waters through numberless tributaries, flow inland, and make their way to the other side of the continent. No wide streams flow towards the coast to serve as cheap cheap highways for the products of the agriculturist. The railway becomes a good substitute for the river, but until recently the lines did not reach a single agricultural area. In the second place, the gold discovery dealt a heavy blow to so plodding an industry as agriculture. If the reader will picture to himself an inland territory as large as Great Britain and France, without rivers to the ocean of any considerable length, and with comparatively few railways, over which a population of two to the square mile is scattered, most of whom have no taste for agriculture, and are too well off in many other ways to be forced to embark in it, he will not be surprised that the whole area under cultivation in New South Wales, well adapted though it is for nearly every kind of growth, does not exceed 706,498 acres. In 1861 there were only 297,000 acres under crop, so that the land in cultivation has increased only 409,498 acres in twenty years. During the last decade five times more land has been enclosed than the total quantity from the foundation of the Colony up to 1871. With increased facilities for agricultural settlement, it is hoped that farmers and agricultural labourers will become tempted to seek their fortunes in a country where honest industry invariably reaps a good reward.

CATTLE.—There are over two million head of cattle in New South Wales.

SHEEP.—The number of sheep in New South Wales is estimated at about 36,000,000.

FLORICULTURE IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Flower gardening is a favourite occupation in New South Wales, where the saying of Douglas Jerrold, to the effect that if the earth were tickled with a hoe it would laugh with fruit and flowers, becomes a literal truth. The geranium in many Sydney gardens forms a large luxuriant bush, covered with masses of richly-coloured flowers, remaining in bloom the greater part of the year, the colonial winter being very short, and not sufficiently severe to kill hardy annuals left in the open garden beds.

COPPER AND COPPER-MINING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The copper lodes in the Colony were first opened about twenty-five years ago, the most important mine at present being the Great Cobar Mine, which is also the most distant from the seaboard, being 497 miles west of Sydney. The quantity of ore already smelted at this mine is 69,118 tons, producing 9,182 tons of fine copper. In 1881, 21,552 tons of ore were smelted, producing 2,568 tons of copper. The lode occurs in Silurian slates; it varies in width up to 100 feet. On the surface appear the outcrops of two adjacent parallel lodes; it is believed, however, that all three form one lode, being only separated by pieces of ground known to miners as "horses." At Nymagee, in the Cobar District, a large and valuable copper lode is now being extensively worked. In the same district, the Girilambone Copper-mine, situated 60 miles east of Cobar, has been opened. This mine is only 1½ mile from the proposed line of railway to Bourke. About 90 miles south of Cobar is the Mount Hope Copper-mine. Besides copper, gold and tin have been discovered in the country lying between the Lachlan and Bogan Rivers, which will doubtless become a most important mining district. Copper lodes have also been opened and more or less worked in years past at Peelwood, Cow Flat, Wiseman's Creek, Thompson's Creek, Carangara, Ophir, Calia, Canoblas, Carcoar, Icely, Molong, Goodrich, Balara, Snowball, Frogmore, and near Goulburn; the existence of other lodes are known of in the Wellington, Murrumbidgee, Bombala, Braidwood, Grafton, and Albert Districts. Gold, silver, lead, zinc, and bismuth are sometimes found in the copper ores. During the last two or three years several rich copper lodes have been discovered in the vicinity of Blayney, and close to the Great Western Railway-line. Considering the extent of copper-bearing country, the progress hitherto made in copper-mining has not been too considerable. The want of success which has attended the attempts to develop the copper lodes of New South Wales has, it is feared, in many cases been due to want of skill on the part of those engaged in the attempt; but with increased experience, and the example of well-managed copper-mines to serve as a guide, a bright future should be awaiting this branch of Colonial mining industry.

The salubrity of the New South Wales climate is illustrated by the fact that some of the most robust and healthy colonists were originally invalids from Europe, who were directed to proceed to the Colony as a last resource, for the purpose of checking the progress of pulmonary disease.

THE TIMBERS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The widely-spread impression that New South Wales is destitute of timber useful for industrial purposes is shown to be erroneous by the magnificent collection of specimens of indigenous woods prepared by direction of the Colonial Government for the Calcutta Exhibition. It includes various kinds of cedar, boxwood, gum, wattle, myrtle, and pine; also of ironbark, native willow, myall spearwood, and other kinds known only by name to Europeans. Many kinds of native wood are valuable for fancy work, and would prove a valuable addition to the resources of British manufacturers of artistic furniture. For instance, the wood of the myall is used for cabinet work, pipes, picture-frames, veneer, &c. Several years ago a suite of drawing-room furniture, made from colonial timber, was exhibited in London, where it was much admired by reason of the beautiful colour and grain of the various woods. Similar timber can be obtained in large quantities at low rates in the New South Wales country districts, and it is strange that English furniture-makers have not more largely availed themselves of this source of supply. Colonial cedar is as beautiful in appearance as the best Spanish mahogany, and is much used for building purposes throughout the Colony, the wood being cheap, durable, and easily worked. Red pine, the wood of which is beautifully mottled, and striped with black, white, and yellow, is used in many places in a similar manner.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS IN SYDNEY.—If the progress and prosperity of a city can be in any way indicated by the appearance and general character of its public buildings, the metropolis of New South Wales must be exceptionally favoured, several of the Government offices being most imposing structures, eminently suggestive of the material well-being of the Colony. Some idea of the expenditure in this direction is afforded by the fact that returns recently printed for the New South Wales Parliament show that the total amount expended on public buildings, fortifications, furniture, &c., completed and in progress, under the supervision of the Colonial Architect, between 1862 and 1880 inclusive, amounted to £3,598,568. In 1871 the amount expended through the Colonial Architect's Department was £67,651, whilst in the year 1880 it amounted to £633,274, or an increase of over half a million of money. During the year 1881 the works entrusted to the same officer amounted in value to nearly a million of money, and consisted in the erection of post and telegraph offices, light-houses, court-houses, police stations, fortifications, asylums, and other public buildings throughout the Colony. Amongst the largest works in progress are additions to the General Post Office, the completion of the new offices for the Department of Lands, and the erection of a new asylum at Callan Park, near Sydney. The architecture of the new public buildings is of a character commensurate with the growing wealth and importance of the Colony, and these structures are acknowledged to be a credit alike to architect and builder for appropriate design and substantial construction. The new Public Offices in Sydney erected for the Departments of the Colonial Secretary and the Minister for Public Works would be an ornament to any European capital, and their well-chosen and elevated position and noble façades elicit general admiration, especially from European and American visitors.

WAGES AND COST OF LIVING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—In some countries wages may be higher than in New South Wales, and in others living may be as cheap, or the climate as favourable, but there is none where those who live by the sweat of their brow can realize so nearly as in New South Wales the paradise of their class, namely, the union of high wages with short hours, good living, and a fine healthful climate. The Colony, it is true, is distant from the great seats of manufacture, but a liberal tariff, low freights, quick transit, and good discounts enable the merchants of Sydney to land most of the articles of commerce at their selling prices in the places of shipment. It is necessary to import some flour, but it can be procured from the adjacent Colony of South Australia, which also exports a large quantity profitably to England. The tea, coffee, and rice ports of the East are far nearer to Port Jackson than they are to the ports of Europe. As for animal food, meat is obtainable at prices which would delight the European housewife. There are vast stores of coal cropping out on plain, valley, and mountain, and along the coast-line of the Colony. With the exception of three-pence a pound upon tea, and three farthings a pound upon foreign sugar, there are no Customs duties upon the necessaries of life which the workman need pay. It should also be mentioned that the eight-hour system is adopted in almost every description of handicraft, the longer hours of labour being confined principally to tradesmen, shop assistants, and employés in certain mercantile establishments.

THE PRINTING TRADES IN SYDNEY.—The advance in the colonial printing trades is most remarkable. Several well-equipped establishments in Sydney do mercantile work, lithography, and letter-press in a style which leaves nothing to be desired; and artistic chromography is now pursued in a manner alike indicative of the spirit and good taste of the enterprising firms that have introduced it. Many people in the old world are naturally shy of a new country, but when they see some of the best colonial newspapers, equal in typographical merit to their own, or some of the exquisite Christmas cards of local design and finish, they naturally feel assured that refinement is going hand in hand with colonization,—that the country has been stripped of its primitive terrors, real and imaginary,—and that the enterprising and thrifty may proceed thither in search of profitable employment for capital and labour, with a certain prospect of finding it.

POLITICAL PROGRESS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—In an excellent descriptive account of New South Wales by Mr. Thomas Richards, the Government Printer of that Colony, by the Government of which it has been published, we are informed that the history of the political progress of the Colony is brief but remarkable. Questions which have not yet been settled in the old world have been disposed of in New South Wales peacefully and with ease and rapidity, owing perhaps to there being fewer vested interests to combat here than in other countries. In 1824 the liberty of the Press and the first instalment of the right of trial by Jury were obtained. 1836 the principle of religious equality was settled. In 1842 the right of municipal election was exercised for the first time. In 1843 the Legislative Council was made partially elective. In 1855 an Act conferring a Constitution on the people of New South Wales received the Royal Assent. In 1856 the first Ministry under Responsible Government was sworn in. In 1858 manhood suffrage was adopted. During the last quarter of a century the people of New South Wales have had a form of government uniting with the vital principles of the British system the free play of democratic power. The efficacy of the three elements corresponds with their usefulness, for the Queen's Representative is the first in dignity, the Legislative Council is the first in stability, and the Legislative Assembly is the first in power. Members of the Legislative Council hold their seats for life; Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected under a Triennial Act. Both Houses closely follow, in all possible respects, the practice of the British Parliament. There is a New South Wales Hansard, the proceedings in both Chambers being fully reported, and a perusal of the leading speeches will suffice to show that despite the absence of the strong party lines which forms such a marked feature in English parliamentary life, there is no lack of debating power, often rising to the level of that found in the House of Commons.

AUSTRALIAN OPALS.—The precious opal of New South Wales has the milky body colour usually possessed by this mineral, and the same brilliant play of colours; the dominant colours of the scintillations are metallic green, pink, and red. Some of the best specimens form, when polished, very fine gem-stones; but here, as elsewhere, the valuable specimens obtained bear but a small proportion to the whole. The best have been obtained from Rocky Bridge Creek, Abercrombie River, county Georgiana; the matrix is a fine-grained bluish-gray amygdaloidal trachyte, some 30 feet thick, which is so much altered that it can be abraded by the thumb-nail; the opal has filled by infiltration certain of the vesicular cavities and crevices in this rock; it is associated with much common opal free from any play of colour and hyalite.

NEWSPAPERS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Almost every township, however small, has its own newspaper; and in some districts, where the population is not much larger than that of a good-sized English village, there are sometimes two if not three rival journals. As a rule they are well conducted, and often contain admirably-written leading articles, but advertisements form the principal feature in each. The Sydney weekly papers are much larger than those with which readers of English newspapers are familiar, resembling in size the Queen or Field. As all newspapers printed in the Colony are carried free, if posted within seven days of the date of publication, the Post Office employes find the newspaper branch by no means one of the most lightly worked; and the scene at the General Post Office on Friday afternoons, or on the day of the departure of the English mail, instinctively reminds the Londoner of that formerly witnessed in St. Martin's-le-Grand before the establishment of district offices.

• THE taxation of New South Wales averages £2 7s. 8d. per head of population.

DAIRY-FARMING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—Although many parts of the Colony are admirably adapted for dairy-farming purposes, the industry is practically in its infancy, although the market for dairy produce is practically inexhaustible. This seeming apathy is a result of the readiness with which remunerative employment can be obtained in other directions. In fact, New South Wales is a country of unutilised opportunities, especially for dairy farmers practically acquainted with the teachings of the Islington shows. Butter can be made more cheaply than in England, and obtains a much higher price. The same may be said of milk, eggs, and cheese. The milk is conveyed to Sydney in refrigerating cars by rail, save where no railway communication exists, when it is made into butter equal in quality and appearance to the best produced in Devonshire.

FAT CATTLE IN NEW SOUTH WALES.—The display of fat cattle at the Smithfield Club Show at Islington Agricultural Hall is frequently rivalled by the bucolic exhibits at Singleton and other up-country districts in New South Wales, some of the oxen being as large and of as fine quality as any that gained a leading prize in London or Birmingham, showing something of the real capabilities of the Colony as a stock-breeding country.

AN ANTIPODEAN NEWCASTLE.—The principal coal-port of Australia is situated at the mouth of the Hunter River, about 75 miles north of Sydney, to which city it stands second in commercial importance, although its rise has been so recent as to be within the memory of comparatively young men. The first commercial recognition of the port, which is named Newcastle, after its busy prototype on the Tyne, to which town it presents many points of resemblance, was in 1846, when the first Sub-collector of Customs was appointed. Yet in 1882, less than forty years afterwards, the Customs collections were £68,249, a large sum for a young port in a free-trade country. In 1861 the annual export of coal from the port amounted to 131,263 tons; in 1882 it had reached 1,080,446 tons. In 1861 the Newcastle imports amounted to the value of £35,932; in 1882 they had reached £632,073; the exports during the same year being valued at £618,586. The progress of the port is further illustrated by the fact that the cost of the various harbour works, including breakwaters, wharfs, cranes, dredging and dredging plant, has been little short of £700,000. In this is included between 300 and 400 feet of continuous wharfage, on which are erected seven steam cranes, and noble works at Bullock Island, where a mile of wharfage has been constructed, and on which are erected eight hydraulic cranes, six of them capable of lifting 15 tons each, and two 25 tons each. Seven million tons of silt have been lifted from the harbour and thrown into the sea. A great natural obstruction, known as the "Horseshoe," has been dredged away, and where there was formerly at low tide but a depth of 10 feet of water there is now 21. There are also 23 feet of water across the harbour over a sandbank formerly dry at low water. The advantages of these improvements are shown by the circumstance of 50,000 tons of shipping being at one time, last year, safely moored in the port, into which the noblest vessels may come and anchor with perfect safety by day or night. From 1877 to 1882 nearly £70,000 has been spent on asylums, court-house, police and telegraph offices, hospital, and fortifications, which, with the amount expended by private enterprise in every direction, shows how strong is the spirit of enterprise in New South Wales.

POPULAR FALLACIES CONCERNING AUSTRALIA.—It is not an uncommon thing for Australian colonists visiting this country to be gravely asked whether children born of white parents in New South Wales or any of the adjoining colonies are black. There has never been the slightest tendency in that direction. It might as well have been asked whether the Moorish invasion of Spain led to the offspring of African parents being born white. Labourers working in the open air, especially in the country districts, are liable to become sunburnt, as in this country, during the summer months, but to a less extent, in consequence of the shorter hours of labour. As a rule, children born in New South Wales are more plump and healthy-looking than are the majority of children in our manufacturing districts. An English witness, who was recently examined before a Royal Commission in Sydney, spoke very emphatically on this point, stating that he was much impressed with the absence of the stunted, shrivelled child forms with which he had been familiar in the English cotton-manufacturing districts. In the Public Schools the healthy appearance and general intelligence of the scholars are very conspicuous. They are generally well dressed, much better and more comfortably than children of a similar class in England, and are more free from disease of almost every description.

THE SOIL OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The soil of the Colony is of the richest description in many places, especially in the river valleys, several of which are among the most fertile in the world, as in the Hunter River District, where there is a constant succession of crops all the year round. Almost every kind of fruit and vegetable cultivated in Europe can be grown to perfection, as can most descriptions of semi-tropical produce.

NEW SOUTH WALES SCENERY.—Words cannot do justice to the wondrous charm of New South Wales scenery, which, in many places, combines the grandly romantic with sylvan beauty in a fashion which would delight the eye of an artist in search of the picturesque. In the writings of visitors, who have not had time to become acquainted with the real attractions of the Australian landscape, we frequently find allusions to the brown, dried-up appearance of the country, the absence of herbage, and the want of variety in the foliage of the forest; but there are periods when the same may be said of English scenery. During the greater part of the year, save on the great plains of the distant interior, the grass is as bright and green as in an English park, while the rich profusion of native flowers, of every size and hue, testifies to the luxuriant character of the soil. A trip up the Parramatta or Lane Cove Rivers, near Sydney, is suggestive of the appearance of the Thames above Richmond, only the scenery is more varied and charming.

THE QUEEN CITY OF THE PACIFIC.—The title bestowed on the metropolis of New South Wales is not undeserved, for Sydney is one of the most beautifully situated cities in the world, and is without a rival in the southern hemisphere. The late Anthony Trollope was enraptured with its picturesque surroundings, which he declared he had never beheld surpassed in the course of his extensive wanderings. Of the harbour, on the shores of which the city is situated, he says:—"I have seen nothing equal to it in the way of landlocked scenery, nothing second to it * * * * The sea runs up in various bays, or coves, indenting the land all round the city." Of this city, justly described as "a southern Venice, built upon waters as blue as those of the Adriatic, and under skies as sunny as those of Naples, framed in a picturesque magnificence of headland and a glen which Venice lacks," the same writer observes, and very truly, "that it is one of those places which, when a man leaves it, knowing he will never return, he cannot leave without a pang or a tear." Neither pen nor pencil can render justice to the beautiful surroundings of the city, which suddenly unfold themselves like a dream of fairyland to the startled gaze of the immigrant, as, riding proudly between the giant headlands which form the entrance to Sydney harbour, the ship which has conveyed him in safety from British shores peacefully drops anchor in Neutral Bay.

THE EIGHT-HOUR SYSTEM IN AUSTRALIA.—The eight-hour system is general in the building and other trades of New South Wales, and its adoption is annually celebrated by a working-class holiday.

PROPOSED EMIGRATION OF ENGLISH POOR TO AUSTRALIA.—There can be no greater mistake than the idea that emigration forms an effectual means of diminishing the amount of British pauperism. The poverty, vice, and crime, which is found existing in Sydney, despite the many surrounding ameliorating influences, is directly traceable to the manner in which people who have no taste for honest labour, and will not work if they can possibly help it, are shipped off by friends or charitable individuals to Sydney, or some other colonial port, in the hope that change of scene and associations will effect a change of life and habits. It is generally the other way. The warm sunny climate, and the readiness with which money for lodgings and drink can be obtained, have a fatal influence on the naturally idle and unthrifty, who generally sink from bad to worse, occasioning endless trouble and expense to the land of their adoption. Industrious mechanics and artisans can readily obtain employment, especially in the country, as can agricultural labourers of every description. Of these New South Wales and the sister colonies can absorb any number, especially the former, which, under improved administration, is enjoying a degree of commercial and industrial prosperity which may well excite the envy of older communities. In almost every branch of manufacturing industry are to be found openings for the profitable employment of capital and labour, combined with the certainty of remunerative reward.

10. IMMIGRATION (Formal Motion):—Mr. Garrard moved, pursuant to Notice, That there be laid upon the Table of this House, copies of all minutes, letters, pamphlets, and other papers that have passed between the present Government and the Agent-General in reference to Immigration; also copies of all pamphlets issued by the Agent-General relating to the same.
Question put and passed.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 29 February, 1884.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch of the 22nd of December last, transmitting to me copy of an order made by the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd of October last, for “copies of all minutes, letters, pamphlets, and other papers that have passed between the present Government and the Agent-General in reference to emigration, also copies of all pamphlets issued by the Agent-General relating to the same,” and asking me to furnish you with copies of the pamphlets therein mentioned.

I transmit herewith a copy of the pamphlet marked A, of which very many thousands have been distributed, together with the “Information” circular marked B. With

[765 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £18 15s.]

With the object of giving general information respecting the Colony I have in addition to the above made use of the pamphlet prepared and printed in Sydney for the Amsterdam Exhibition, and I have further issued large numbers of "New South Wales in 1881," of which you will remember in my letter of the 12th of July, 1883, I asked for a supply of copies revised up to date.

I enclose a copy of a handbook on New South Wales, prepared and issued by the Society for promoting Christian knowledge, marked D, the information for which was furnished by me, and more than 20,000 have been circulated.

I am now preparing a new handbook, and will send copies so soon as they are ready.

I may mention incidentally, as bearing upon the subject of the dissemination of information respecting the Colony, that, apart from the distribution of the foregoing documents, the Treasurer's financial statements of both Mr. Watson and Mr. Dibbs have been very widely distributed.

I enclose some of the placards which are posted throughout the United Kingdom, and also copy of a special bill, which, by the permission of the Postmaster-General, has been posted up at over 21,000 Post offices in the United Kingdom.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

A.

NEW SOUTH WALES, AUSTRALIA.—GENERAL INFORMATION FOR INTENDING EMIGRANTS AND OTHERS.

New South Wales was the first colony established in Australia, the earliest settlers having landed in 1788.

Sydney, the capital, is situated on the shores of Port Jackson, one of the finest and most beautiful harbours in the world, which affords facilities for shipping unsurpassed anywhere. Large ships can lie alongside the quays or wharves, to discharge and take in cargo, and the splendid docks and workshops are of sufficient magnitude to enable repairs of any kind to be made to the largest ships visiting the port.

In June, 1881, the population was estimated at 751,468, of whom 411,149 were males, and 340,319 were females. The estimated area of the Colony is about 207,000,000 acres, or about three times the size of Great Britain and Ireland.

Climate and health.—Situated in the temperate zone, the climate approximates generally to that of Southern Europe. There are, however, all varieties of climate to be met with, from frost and snow (part of the year) on the higher ranges in the south and west, to a tropical though dry heat in the interior. Along the sea coast the climate is generally uniform. The range of the thermometer is much less than in any country within the same parallels of latitude in the northern hemisphere. The European constitution readily adapts itself to the climate. The air is clear, the light brilliant, the sky for the greater part of the year almost cloudless, and the nights most enjoyable. In vital statistics the Colony compares favourably with most parts of the world, and instances of great longevity are not uncommon. Observations taken at the Sydney Observatory during the year 1879 show the mean maximum temperature to be 68° 2', and the mean minimum to be 56° 0'. January and February are the hottest months, July the coldest, March and December, May and September, June and August, are of nearly equal temperature, and April is the same as the mean of October and November.

The chief productions for exportation are wool, preserved meats, tallow, oil, gold, silver, copper, tin, antimony, kerosene shale, &c. Coal is abundant and exported largely.

The ports of Newcastle to the north, Wollongong, Bulli, and those to the south of Sydney afford great facilities for the shipment of coal. The quantity exported during 1879 amounted to 1,500,000 tons.

The coal is of superior quality, well adapted for steam, gas, and household purposes, and finds a ready sale in San Francisco, China, and other eastern ports.

Agricultural resources.—There are large tracts of rich soil which are adapted for profitable cultivation. The law offers every facility for the acquirement of land upon very easy terms; any one, even minors, if not under 16 years of age, can select land, the best available, from 40 to 640 acres, at 20s. an acre, of which a fourth is to be paid down, the remainder, bearing 5 per cent. interest, is payable after the expiration of five years, by annual instalments at the rate of one shilling per acre, or the whole balance, at the option of the occupant. A further 10s. an acre is to be expended on improvements (a term very liberally construed) within a period of five years, during which time the purchaser must also reside. Upon completion of the conditions required by the Land Act the selector becomes entitled to the freehold. The operations of agriculture or husbandry are never suspended by winter, and crops of some kind or other may be produced in succession from January to December. The area of land taken up for cultivation is steadily increasing. In March 1880 there were 39,918 holders of land, exclusive of pastoral tenants, holding 22,721,603½ acres, of which 635,611 acres were under cultivation, 17,578,389 acres being enclosed, though not under cultivation.

Natural divisions of the country.—The natural great divisions of the country are the eastern seaboard territory, the central range, and the western plains. The seaboard districts undulate with hill and valley, and possess on the alluvial flats the richest soil, adapted to every kind of cultivation. Much of this portion rests on a vast basin of coal. The central division is rich in minerals. Passing off the coal areas a region is reached in which are tracts abounding with gold, copper, lead, tin, and other minerals. Diamonds and other gems have been found. The extensive plains in the interior, forming the third great natural division, are specially adapted for pastoral pursuits. Millions of sheep and cattle feed there on the natural grasses of the country.

The following tabular statement will show the extent and progress made by the Colony up to 31st December, 1879 :—

Gold-mining.—The Government is empowered to proclaim Crown Lands to be gold-fields, and to grant what are called "miner's rights," on the payment of a small fee, which enables any person to search or dig for gold. Leases of auriferous tracts of alluvial ground, and quartz reefs, and portions of river beds, for limited periods may be granted at annual rents under special conditions as regards labour and machinery.

Manufactories.—The total number of manufactories, works, &c., in the Colony, which were in operation during the year 1879 were 2,499, giving employment to 24,564 persons, of whom 2,697 were females.

Persons suitable for the Colony.—From the foregoing statements it will be seen that whilst the rates of wages are much higher, the cost of living is less than in England. A constant demand exists for female domestic servants, of whom those thoroughly acquainted with their duties, as well as farm labourers and shepherds, readily obtain employment. Any requirement for governesses, tutors, or clerks, is amply met by persons trained to those avocations in the colony. Industrious and energetic men going to New South Wales with a small capital, and understanding farming and the management of stock, may look for a bright future; many who have taken up land as conditional purchasers are now in positions of independence.

Immigration.—The Agent-General of New South Wales is authorized by the Colonial Government to provide passages, under existing Regulations, for emigrants of the undermentioned classes, viz. :—Married couples, not exceeding 40 years of age, with or without children, £6 each couple; children of 3 years and under 14, £1; children under 3, free; and for unmarried men of limited age, £4 each. Single females (who may obtain high wages, and for whom there is a great demand in the Colony), £2 each. The emigrants are to be approved by the Agent-General, and must consist of farmers, mechanics, domestic servants, labourers suitable for country pursuits or to the industrial requirements of the Colony, and small working capitalists.

Social and Political.—The forms of Parliamentary and municipal government have been modelled on those of England, and the franchise for the former is based on manhood suffrage. By the Electoral Act, passed in the session of Parliament (1880), the number of Members in the Legislative Assembly has been increased from 73 to 108. It is the aim of Colonial statesmen to keep representative Government in New South Wales in harmony with the spirit of the British Constitution, as well as the procedure of the British Houses of Parliament. Justice is impartially administered throughout the Colony in accordance with the forms and practice of the Courts of Law in the United Kingdom.

With regard to the intellectual progress of the Colony the question of national education has of late years been the subject of important legislation.

Children of all classes, without distinction, can obtain the highest education, the most liberal provision being made with this object by Parliament.

Education, by an Act of Parliament, has been placed under a Minister for Public Instruction. In addition to primary schools, the Act provides also for the establishment of high or grammar schools, for both sexes, in all the principal centres of population throughout the Colony, as an intermediate stage between the primary schools and the University. The whole educational fabric is crowned by the University of Sydney, incorporated in 1851, and seven years afterwards placed on the same footing as the Universities within the United Kingdom. A chancellor, vice-chancellor, and elective senate of sixteen members constitute the governing body; the studies are directed by seven professors and lecturers. The endowment amounts to an income of £5,000 per annum. Considerable sums have been given by private individuals for endowments, scholarships, exhibitions, for annual and other prizes.

Government Railways.—The facilities for communication may be taken as a fair test of the progressive tendencies of New South Wales. There were on the 1st September, 1880, 849½ miles of railway open.

The Southern line has been completed and opened for traffic to the border town of Albury, on the River Murray, which river separates New South Wales from Victoria; only about 3 miles on the Victorian side remain to be finished to join New South Wales with the Victorian railway. When this is done, Sydney and Melbourne, the capitals of New South Wales and Victoria, will be connected, and the journey will occupy only about twenty hours.

Railways are also being rapidly pushed on which will open up the great districts lying to the north and west. At the present time the railway has been opened for traffic 228½ miles to the north, and 251 miles to the west, while 340 miles on the west and 257 on the north are projected and in course of construction.

The lines working up to the present time return interest on the capital invested in the cost of their construction at the rate of about 4 per centum per annum.

Telegraphs.—Communication with the country districts is effectively maintained also by a complete postal and telegraphic system, which has of late been largely extended, and which will be further improved as the work of railway extension proceeds. There are 12,423 miles of telegraph wire open in the whole Colony, and post-offices are established wherever the circumstances of the people require it.

The charge in the Colony for a telegraph message is 1s. for every ten words, exclusive of the address, the latter being free. An uniform rate of 2d. is the postal charge for letters not exceeding half an ounce in weight, conveyed to any part of the Colony, excepting the city of Sydney, and within a radius of 10 miles thereof, for which the postage charge is 1d. Newspapers are sent free of charge.

DEMAND FOR LABOUR IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

Extract from the "Sydney Morning Herald," November 9th, 1883.

OUR correspondent informs us that the scarcity of labour in the Queanbeyan district is so great as to be alarming, that the people are begging and praying to get work of any kind done. If the Queanbeyan district presented an isolated instance of the state of the labour market it might be hoped that the inconvenience would be but temporary, but from other districts of the Colony complaints have frequently come of late regarding the scarcity of labour. The exigencies of the season are probably to some extent the cause of this; but it is no doubt in the main due to the progress the Colony is making in material wealth. To state the case shortly: The industrial progress of the Colony is hindered by the want of greater population. The labour and capital expended do not give the highest attainable results for want of others to participate in the natural increment of wealth that arises from such expenditure. Part of the fruits of this expenditure is lost to the State for want of garnering. And yet, in Sydney, at the present moment, a petition prepared by the idle is being signed by the thoughtless, praying that State-aid to immigration may forthwith cease. Ships come, each with a cargo of humanity sufficient to populate a small township; the new comers are absorbed into the community without making any perceptible difference, and employers are left to search for labour in vain. The losses to the community from the great dearth of labour must be very great, although they are not directly seen. Population and wealth increase at a greater ratio year by year. The population last year was increased by 36,000 souls, about 4.6 per cent.; the import and export trade increased by more than £4,500,000. The population of Victoria during the same period increased by 24,000, about 2.7 per cent., her import and export trade showing an increase of £1,971,000. The increase of population is necessary to ensure the stability of the general prosperity. That there are in New South Wales innumerable unexplored avenues for industrial enterprise is a fact that is continually being brought into notice. But in the already known and tried avenues there is a want of that vitality which labour alone can give. Under such circumstances the duty of the Government is clearly clearly marked. They have done much to increase population from external sources ; but they have by so doing stimulated in a greater ratio the general prosperity of the country and thus have raised up fresh and increased demands for labour. There is no reason to suspect that the Government will lose sight of the necessity for continuing to increase the population by a system of aided immigration ; but perhaps the state of the labour market may help them to see that their immigration policy may be carried on, if judiciously, upon a larger scale.

NEW SOUTH WALES GOVERNMENT EMIGRATION.

ASSISTED PASSAGES FROM PLYMOUTH TO SYDNEY.

THE Agent-General for New South Wales is authorized by the Colonial Government to grant passages to eligible applicants on the terms and conditions stated in this circular.

Authorized Regulations.

1. All emigrants from the United Kingdom and other parts of Europe are to be selected and approved by the Agent-General in London, or by such persons as he may appoint for the purpose.

2. Approval of such emigrants is limited to married persons not exceeding 40 years each, with or without children, and to unmarried adult males and females not exceeding 35 years of age. The persons to be introduced are to be of sound mental and bodily health, and of good moral character, to consist of farmers, mechanics, domestic servants, any description of labourers suitable for country pursuits, to be chosen with a special regard to the industrial requirements of the Colony ; and small working capitalists.

3. A proportion of the emigrants, not exceeding 10 per cent. of the whole, may be natives of other European countries, but they likewise will be required to answer to the physical, moral, and industrial descriptions prescribed in these regulations.

4. All emigrants, after having received "embarkation orders," shall present themselves on the date and at the port named therein, for the purpose of giving facility to the arrangements for their embarkation.

5. Married couples, their children, and single men, will be allowed to remain on board five clear days after the ships drop anchor in Sydney Harbour.

6. Unmarried women, upon arrival, will be received into an Emigrants' Home in Sydney, and allowed to remain therein, should they desire to do so, for ten clear days, to enable them to obtain suitable employment.

7. Emigrants desiring to proceed to the country districts of the Colony within four clear days of their arrival, will be allowed free travelling passes by railway for that purpose.

8. Emigrants shall be subject to the regulations under the Queen's Order in Council, dated 7th January, 1864, prescribing rules for preserving order, promoting health, &c., on board passenger ships ; also to such further regulations as the Agent-General may make and prescribe for their moral and sanitary condition during the passage. In any case where a person beyond the limited age is approved for a passage the sum of £15 must be paid.

9. Payment of the following rates must be made to the Agent-General before embarkation :—

Married couples, not exceeding 40 years, each person	£6 per couple.
Single adult males " 35	4 each.
Children of 3 and under 14 years of age " "	1 "
Children under three years of age " "	Free.
Single females, not exceeding 35 years, are taken at a reduced rate of	£2 each.

10. To meet the public convenience persons resident in the Colony, who may desire to introduce immigrants in accordance with these regulations, shall be entitled to nominate such immigrants, and to deposit on trust with the Agent for Immigration at the Immigration Office, Sydney, and in the country districts with the Clerks of Petty Sessions, the necessary sum or sums. Such nominations will be subject, however, to the approval of the Agent-General, and the rules of selection prescribed by these regulations, as in cases when no such nominations have been made.

11. In the event of any person or persons nominated in the Colony for a passage declining to emigrate, or not being able to comply with the conditions required by these regulations, or in case the amount deposited shall exceed that required for the number of immigrants actually introduced, the amount deposited, or the amount in excess, as the case may be, will be returned to the depositor upon the receipt in the Colony of the Agent-General's report recommending its repayment. But if any attempt at fraud or concealment be made by the depositor or by nominee under the certificate, the deposit will be forfeited.

Personal Outfit and Luggage.

Emigrants must provide their own outfit, which will be inspected before embarkation by an officer of the Agent-General. Each person must possess not less than the following :—For male adults : 2 complete suits of strong external clothing, 6 shirts, 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs new shoes, and 2 flannel or guernsey shirts. For female adults : 6 shifts, 2 flannel petticoats, 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs strong shoes, and 2 strong gowns ; one of which should be of a warm material. For each child : 9 shirts or shifts, 4 flannel waistcoats, and 1 warm cloak or outside coat ; 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs strong shoes, and 2 complete suits of external clothing. Each person must also have 2 lbs. best yellow soap, 2 lbs. marine soap, and not less than 4 towels and 3 sheets, together with the necessary brushes and combs for cleanliness. New bedding (except sheets) and mess utensils will be provided by the Agent-General. Two or three coloured shirts for men, and an extra supply of flannel for women and children are very desirable.

The quantity of luggage for each person of 12 years of age and upwards must not exceed 20 cubic feet, or half a ton in weight ; children of 1 and under 12 years will be allowed half that quantity. All articles should be carefully packed in one or more strong boxes, not exceeding 12 cubic feet each. Larger packages and extra luggage, if taken, must be paid for. Mattresses, beds, or pillows, of any description, firearms, and offensive weapons, wines, spirits, beer, gunpowder, percussion caps, lucifer matches, articles of food of a perishable nature, or that require cooking, or anything of a dangerous or noxious character, cannot be taken. Emigrants must look carefully after their luggage, both in travelling to the port of embarkation, and after arrival there, as neither the Agent-General, his officers, nor the Colonial Government, can be responsible in any way for loss thereof, or damage thereto, on land or at sea. All packages are examined at the Depot before being shipped.

Information for Emigrants.

1. None but first-class steamers or sailing ships are engaged, and these are despatched from Plymouth or other port according to arrangement. At Plymouth there is a depot fitted expressly for the reception of emigrants, who are lodged and fed free of charge from the date named in their "embarkation orders" until they embark. Emigrants must travel to Plymouth or other port, as the case may be, at their own expense. The Agent-General has, however, made arrangements, whereby they can proceed by various railways at reduced fares.

2. The Agent-General has also arranged with the London Branch of the Bank of New South Wales to issue drafts, payable on demand in Sydney, in exchange for money, to emigrants proceeding to New South Wales. These drafts may be procured, free of cost, from the Bank authorities, at the depôts, before embarkation. Persons having money with them are strongly advised to avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered, and so make themselves secure against loss, to which they are liable in carrying money either on their persons or in their baggage.

3. The ships are fitted with studied regard for the health and comfort of the emigrants, and for the preservation of good order amongst them. Berths are available for married couples and their children under 12 years. Single adults are provided with separate accommodation according to sex. The unmarried females, for whom a great demand exists in New South Wales, are placed under the care of a matron. An experienced surgeon accompanies each ship.

4. The emigrants are victualled on board in messes of about eight adults in number, and are provided with a more liberal dietary scale than that allowed under the Act of Parliament. Children between 1 and 12 receive half-rations in addition to an allowance of jam or marmalade, preserved soup, egg, and milk. A special dietary is provided for children above 4 months and under 1 year. There is also an abundant supply of medical comforts, such as arrowroot, sago, wine, stout, preserved soups, broths, &c., for use in cases of sickness. Emigrants receive fresh baked bread daily, made from a portion of their flour. Mattresses, bolsters, blankets and counterpanes, canvas-bags to contain clothing, &c., knives and forks, spoons, plates, drinking-mugs, teapots, sugar-boxes, and wash-bowls are provided by the Agent-General. 5.

5. The Agent-General desires it to be understood that he cannot undertake to provide assisted passages to families consisting of a large number of young children.

6. On reaching the colony the emigrants are at perfect liberty to choose their own employment, and to make their own bargains for wages. Ladies and other employers of known respectability only are permitted by the authorities to attend at the depôt for the purpose of engaging female servants.

7. When once a passage has been provided the amount paid by the emigrant cannot be returned in the event of a refusal to proceed.

8. Land in New South Wales may be obtained on very favourable terms.

9. The Agent-General finds it necessary to caution emigrants arriving at the railway stations or shipping wharves, at Plymouth or Glasgow, against accepting information or guidance from strangers or persons not connected with the depôt.

COLONISTS' HANDBOOKS. No. 3.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Containing Statistical and other information from Government Sources, and useful Counsels to Emigrants.

Published under the direction of the Tract Committee.

THE CHURCH AND EMIGRATION.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY has issued the following circular letter on the subject of the Church and Emigration:—

"My Reverend Brethren and my Brethren of the laity,—I am anxious to direct attention, from a Christian point of view, to the vast movement of people which has for some years been going on between Europe and the British Colonies, and especially between England and America.

"Official returns show that during the first nine months of the present year 313,716 emigrants left the ports of Great Britain, nearly 200,000 of whom were British subjects. The destination of more than 155,000 of these emigrants was North America.

"It has been proposed that a systematic endeavour should be made to establish more direct communication than at present commonly exists between the Church at home and the Church in our Colonies and in America, with a view to the Christian welfare of the vast population which is continually passing westward from our shores.

"The proposal is in accordance with the recommendations adopted by the Lambeth Conference of 1878. It has obtained the hearty consent of many of the bishops and clergy of the Anglican Communion in our Colonies and in the United States, and I am anxious to commend it to the notice of the parochial clergy of England.

"The scheme, which is still in its infancy, is at present under the management of a joint committee appointed by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. Its objects, in outline, are as follows:—

"(a) To supply the parochial clergy of England with accurate information respecting the various fields for emigration, including special reference to the religious and educational advantages which they severally possess.

"(b) To publish, in a cheap form, a series of simple hand-books for the use of emigrants to our different Colonies and to the United States, containing, together with other intelligence, correct information as to the clergy, churches, Sunday and day schools, &c., in the various places in which emigrants are now settling.

"(c) To make such arrangements as may be found possible for the due care of Emigrants from England on their arrival in our Colonies and in the United States. This would include the provision of commentary letters from the parochial clergy in England to the clergy in whose neighbourhood the emigrants propose to settle.

"Full information respecting the scheme can be obtained on application to the Rev. J. Bridger, Emigrants' Chaplain, St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, to whom all communications on the subject should be addressed.

"It is, I think, impossible to exaggerate the importance of this subject, and I therefore commend it to the earnest and prayerful attention of my brethren the parochial clergy of England and the laity of our Church.

"Lambeth Palace, Dec. 20, 1881.

"A. C. CANTUAR."

IMPORTANT TO FEMALE DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

SINCE this pamphlet was printed the Government of New South Wales has intimated to the Agent-General, that in consequence of female domestic servants being in great demand in the Colony, the rate of passage-money for single females under 30 years of age is reduced to £2 each. This includes the cost of bedding and mess utensils, which articles become the property of the emigrant.—Page 12 must, therefore, be read with this correction.

A FEW WORDS TO EMIGRANTS.

CHAPTER I.

1. It may be taken for granted that the reader of this little book has, for some reason or other, made up his mind to emigrate—to leave, either alone or with his wife and children, his own country and his present way of living, and to seek a new country and enter upon a new way of living elsewhere. He will find in this book, in simple form, a large amount of accurate information on New South Wales, which is one of the countries offering itself to his choice. This information is supplied by the kindness of the New South Wales Government, and may be thoroughly relied upon.

We propose to introduce this by a few friendly suggestions to the emigrant on his reasons for emigrating, the qualifications essential to his success, his choice of the country best suited to him.

2. Reasons for emigrating.—Every emigrant, of course, proposes to "better" himself. He wishes to find better—that is more regular and constant—work; or better wages, or a better position—that is a position in which he may be his own master, and have his own land or his own business; or a better climate—i.e., a climate more suited to his health. He may have found the competition and the struggle too severe in the old country, and have failed to find anything to do, and he looks, perhaps, for an opening where men are scarcer. Last of all, he may be one who, through idleness, or folly, or vice, or crime, has lost his money, his friends, his character, and has ruined all his chances of success and happiness in this land, and who wishes to lead a better life, and thinks he will have a better chance of a fresh start in a new country. All these classes of persons proposing to emigrate may be nearly sure of finding what they want in one part or another of the earth's surface. Many people, however, emigrate from England every year who have no good reason for doing so with hope of success. Some are actuated by mere restlessness and love of change; others have been deceived by highly-coloured reports, or unwisely suppose that they are sure to succeed, because some one else, whose circumstances may be quite different, has succeeded. One of the objects of this book is to enable its readers to judge beforehand whether there is any good reason for hoping that they would succeed if they were to emigrate. We desire to prevent disappointment as well as to give sound advice.

3. Qualifications of an emigrant.—Probably those who thus wish to leave their country are not men of large capital. Capital, whether large or small, is of course, a very valuable qualification for an emigrant. But it may be said generally that the classes of emigrants, with or without capital, to whom the Colonies offer the best promise of success, are farmers, agricultural labourers, and mechanics. Besides farmers and agriculturists, it should be pointed out that domestic servants of good character can almost always find employment in the Colonies. The want of female labour is strongly felt in a new Colony, and such labour is accordingly valuable and well paid. It may be observed as a fact, whatever may be the worth of it, that a large proportion of girls of good character, emigrants from England, marry soon after their arrival; though it would, of course, be rash to go out with such a view. There is a "Woman's Emigration Society," which especially concerns itself with the interests of women who desire to emigrate. The hon. secretary is Mrs. Walter Browne, 38, Belgrave-road, London, S.W., who will gladly give information on the subject. Strong arms and quick hands are of themselves good capital in most new countries, especially if they are accompanied by a shrewd head, which knows how to use them. But the most important of all are the moral qualifications. The emigrant must have a cheerful industry ready to turn itself to anything, not above any kind of honest work; he must have patience to wait for success, and courage to persevere in spite of difficulties and occasional failures; he must have temperance and sobriety to keep his body and mind fit for his work; he must have frugality, to lay by for bad seasons, or sickness, or old age; and he must have self-dependence, as he will have to think and act for himself far more in a new country than in an old.

4. Choice of a new Country.—But though persons with such qualifications as those spoken of may be encouraged to emigrate, it is rash and foolish to think that any country out of England will give equal advantages to all classes of emigrants, or to suppose that it does not much matter where a person goes, whether to Canada, or the United States, or Australia, or New Zealand, if only he emigrates. Many have come back to this country bitterly disappointed, and have said that that emigration is a mistake; whereas the mistake has been their own, in not considering carefully where they would find the circumstances best suited to them. Emigration is a step generally taken once for all. It can only be retraced with great loss and difficulty, and therefore the greatest care should be used that it be not a false step. An intending emigrant should not be satisfied with hearing that So-and-so went out to Australia and made his fortune. He must consider his own wants, and what his means and powers are; and then find out where he can employ those means and powers to the best advantage. Now there is a large number of new countries open to a man, each of them, perhaps, having something to recommend it. How can he find out which will suit him? If he has sensible friends who have already gone out, who know what he is and what he can do, they may be able to advise him. But, failing this, there are in London representatives of nearly all the English Colonies and dependencies, and the foreign countries which have openings for emigrants. Most of these publish short papers, giving the latest information about the state of the countries which they represent, showing what inducements are offered to emigrants in the way of free grants of land or a free or assisted passage, what tradesmen or mechanics are most likely to find employment, what is the current rate of wages, what food is to be had, and what is the price of it and of the other necessaries of life. Besides this present book others will shortly be issued from the same source, with information about other countries. Government or other official advertisements are from time to time inserted in the newspapers, asking for mechanics or men skilled in certain trades, who are especially wanted in one Colony or another, and pointing out the advantages offered in the way of a free or assisted passage, and the wages to be earned. Articles are occasionally printed in the Times and other newspapers by persons who have visited or resided in some of the countries open to emigrants, from which much may be learned about the prospects of trade, or agriculture, or other industries in those countries. If the person intending to emigrate has not the opportunity of seeing these papers, and does not himself know how to get the information which he needs, he should not hesitate to go to the clergyman of his parish, or any clergyman of whom he knows anything, and ask his assistance in learning what he wants. A list will be found at p. 15, of some of the principal Colonies and other countries suitable for emigration, with the names and addresses of the agents, who could be written to for information. The Rev. J. Bridger, Emigrants' Chaplain, St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, will also answer as far as possible inquiries addressed to him by intending emigrants, or by clergy on their behalf.

5. The Emigrant leaving home and on the voyage.—Let it be supposed that the emigrant has chosen his new country, and secured his passage. From the information he has obtained he will, according to his means, have provided himself with the most useful tools, utensils, and other necessaries for his new home. He should certainly not forget to take a Bible and Prayer Book, and two or three other good books. He will have time to use them on the voyage out. He will find it very useful to provide himself with a letter of commendation from his clergyman to be presented to any clergyman who may be nearest to the spot in which he settles. A form for such a letter will be found at p. 16 of this book. A clergyman would readily copy it out and fill up the blanks; or he might get a form from the society which publishes this book, the address of which is to be found on the title-page. With such a letter, which he should take care to use at once, he will always make sure of a friend ready to welcome him on his arrival, and a friend who is likely to be well-informed, and sure to be disinterested and trustworthy. He may also have the advantage of a chaplain on the ship. Let him by all means make a friend of him. He will certainly have many idle hours on his hands during the voyage, and will find himself in the midst of very varied company, some of it not very good. If he has any money, or money's worth, he will very likely be invited to gamble it or drink it away on the ship or as soon as he lands; or he may be persuaded to join in some speculation or scheme or adventure, honest or dishonest, in which he is told that he is sure to make his fortune, but in which he will have to begin by parting with what he has. He must take care not to be caught in any of these traps. He will have many opportunities of showing that he is made of good stuff by obeying all rules and regulations made by the ship's officers. Let him determine to show himself always for the side of order, good humour, unselfishness, friendliness. Above all, if he has the happiness of being a religious man, let him not be ashamed of it, but so show it that he may encourage others.

6. Arrival.—On his arrival and during his land journey the emigrant may be beset by so-called agents. It is to be hoped that he will have made up his mind beforehand where to go and what to do, and that he will not allow himself to be turned aside from his plan. He should push forward to his destination, so as to waste no time or money on the way. He will find it quite long and costly enough. If he should be in any doubt he should look out for a clergyman who will be sure to advise him well.

7. Health.—The climate and the open air life he will lead will be in favour of the emigrant's health. But he may be far away from any doctor or medicine, and illness to himself or his family would be a far more serious calamity than in the old country. A few hints will be found at page 15, attention to which may save him from some dangers.

8. Education.—The emigrant with a family should not be so cruel to his children as to allow them to grow up without education. Happily in New South Wales, as is shown at page 15, there is an opportunity of giving this advantage in life to all of them.

9. The Emigrant as a Member of Society and of the State.—There may be some temptation to a man who has come to win a living and a home for himself and his family in a new land to think of that, and that only, and to forget that he is a part of a new society, and a new nation. He should, of course, not waste his time or neglect his business. But it is not good for man to live alone. Men are made for mutual help, and to form societies. They can do things when they are working together that none can do alone. The new-comer ought, therefore, from the first, to try to establish and maintain friendly intercourse with his neighbours; to take and give help; to interest himself in all that concerns and interests them; to use his vote, if he has one, or whatever power he has, for the good of the State to which he belongs, and of his fellow-citizens; to do all he can to support and maintain a good and orderly Government; to show himself a true patriot, by helping to get righteous laws and worthy institutions, and to form good customs for those that shall come after him.

10. The Emigrant as a Churchman.—In whatever other sense he is a churchman, there can be scarcely a doubt that the reader has received baptism from the Church, and thus been made a "member of CHRIST" and of His Church. He has, perhaps, been married in church. He has grown up within sight or sound of a parish Church, and has had the right to the services of his clergyman—one who really belonged to him and in whom he had a right—whether he chose to use them or not. He will not find an established church in his new country. He will not find the old ivy-grown village church, or the handsome town church, with its bright decorations and beautiful singing, and its doors open to all. But he will find the CHURCH everywhere—that great body, with its bishops and clergy, who have had their commission handed down to them from CHRIST Himself, who minister the sacraments which He ordained and all other means of grace. As a churchman, the emigrant should not think that the "Church" is only a religion for England, and that he must look out for another religion in New South Wales or other places. Let him be staunch and faithful to his Church and its LORD. He will find that he has his bishop and his church clergyman wherever he goes (see "Church and Religion," p. 14). And if the latter lives a long way off, and there is no church building and no regular service yet established where he is, he should join with those living near him to get one as soon as they can. Till they get their own church and regular service they should arrange to meet in each others' houses Sunday by Sunday, and read through the service together. He will be a true friend to his neighbours who has the courage to start this habit. Let the Sunday be regularly and religiously observed. It has been found by experience to be almost as great a temporal blessing as it is a spiritual. Our advice would be:—Go regularly to church, and especially to the Holy Communion. Take the earliest opportunity of having your children baptised. Let your children go to Sunday School, if there be one within reach; if not, teach them the catechism and give them a Bible lesson at home. Have your children confirmed as soon as they are old enough. Gather your family together for family prayer every morning and evening. Never omit your own daily private prayer (for some prayers for your own use see pp. 16, 17) and the daily reading of the Bible, if it be but a few verses. Bring up your children in the habit of prayer and Bible reading. Support and help your bishop and clergy in all their efforts for your own and your neighbours' good. Religion will bring brightness and comfort to your own heart and home, and a strong Church will be a strong backbone to the nation.

CHAPTER II.

New South Wales.

1. Description.—New South Wales was the first colony established in Australia, the earliest settlers having landed in 1788. Sydney, the capital, is situated on the shores of Port Jackson, one of the finest and most beautiful harbours in the world, which affords facilities for shipping unsurpassed anywhere. Large ships can lie alongside the quays or wharves to discharge and take in cargo, and the splendid docks and workshops are of sufficient magnitude to enable repairs of any kind to be made to the largest ships visiting the port. The eastern boundary of New South Wales is washed by the Pacific Ocean, and extends about 800 miles. From Cape Howe, in 37° 23' south latitude, and 150° 8' east longitude, a land line and then the River Murray as far as the 141st meridian divide the Colony from Victoria on the south. The 141st meridian, commencing at the River Murray, and extending to the 29th parallel, separates the Colony from South Australia on the west. The 29th parallel, as far as the Macintyre River, and then that river, the Dumaresq, and a spur of the Main Range coming to the coast in latitude 28° 7', constitute the frontier of the Colony, dividing it from Queensland on the north. The greatest length of New South Wales is 900 miles; its greatest breadth about 850 miles; mean breadth, 600 miles. The superficial area is 310,937½ square miles. That is to say, the Colony is as extensive as the German Empire and Italy combined, or as France and the United Kingdom. It is nearly four times the size of the neighbouring Colony of Victoria.

2. Population.—The first Census, taken in 1821, gave the population of New South Wales as 29,783 persons, and the returns from the Census of 1881 show that it has increased in the sixty years to 751,468. The general results of the last two Censuses show the population to be distributed as follows:—

	1871.	1881.
Sydney.....	74,423	103,379
Suburbs.....	60,324	120,832
Country Districts.....	369,234	527,257
Total.....	503,981	751,468

and to have increased since 1871 by 247,487, being 49·10 per cent. in ten years, or 4·91 per cent. annually. This per-centage is much greater than the increase in the undermentioned countries during ten years, as will be seen from the following figures:—United States, 30·13 per cent.; Canada, 14·23; and Great Britain, 10·57 per cent. The largest increase in the United States during any decennial period from 1790 has never exceeded 37 per cent. From the above table it will be seen that the increase in Sydney during the decade has been 28,956, or 38·90 per cent.; in the suburbs, 60,508, or 100·13 per cent.; in the country districts, 158,023, or 42·79 per cent. Males have increased at the rate of 49·20, and females 48·98 per cent. The male population now exceeds the female by 70,830 persons. The Census, October, 1881, was: total, 751,468; of these 411,149 were males, and 340,319 females.

3. Government.—The history of the political progress of the Colony is brief, but remarkable. Questions which have not yet been settled in the Old World have been disposed of in New South Wales peacefully, and with ease and rapidity, owing, perhaps, to there being fewer vested interests to combat here than in other countries. In 1824 the liberty of the Press and the first instalment of the right of trial by Jury were obtained. In 1836 the principle of religious equality was settled. In 1842 the right of municipal election was exercised for the first time. In 1843 the Legislative Council was made partially elective. In 1855 an Act conferring a Constitution on the people of New South Wales received the Royal Assent. In 1856 the first Ministry under responsible Government was sworn in. In 1858 manhood suffrage was adopted. During the last quarter of a century the people of New South Wales have had a form of government uniting with the vital principles of the British system, the free play of democratic power. The efficacy of the three elements corresponds with their usefulness, for the Queen's representative is the first in dignity, the Legislative Council is the first in stability, and the Legislative Assembly is the first in power. Members of the Legislative Council hold their seats for life; members of the Legislative Assembly are elected under a triennial Act. Both Houses closely follow, in all possible respects, the practice of the British Parliament.

4. Climate.—Situated in the temperate zone, the climate approximates generally to that of Southern Europe. There are, however, all varieties of climate to be met with, from frost and snow (part of the year) on the higher ranges in the south and west, to a tropical though dry heat in the interior. Along the sea-coast the climate is generally uniform. The range of the thermometer is much less than in any country within the same parallels of latitude in the northern hemisphere. The European constitution readily adapts itself to the climate. The air is clear, the light brilliant, the sky for the greater part of the year almost cloudless, and the nights most enjoyable. In vital statistics the Colony compares favourably with most parts of the world, and instances of great longevity are not uncommon. Observations taken at the Sydney Observatory during the year 1879 show the mean maximum temperature to be 68° 2', and the mean minimum to be 56° 0'. January and February are the hottest months, July the coldest, March and December, May and September, June and August, are of nearly equal temperature, and April is the same as the mean of October and November.

5. Means of Communication.—Internal communication is well provided for. All the large rivers flow away from the coast, so that roads and bridges have had to be provided to meet the wants of a population scattered over a surface as spacious as that of two great European countries. At the Census of 1841 there were only twenty-six towns and villages named in the returns, now there are over 900 post towns in the Colony. The main roads of the Colony are:—

- I. The Main Southern Road, extending from Sydney to Albury, a distance of 380 miles, with its various branches through all the southern districts of the Colony.
- II. The Main Western Road, extending from Sydney to Bourke, a distance of 600 miles, with its various branches connecting the centres of the western districts.
- III. The Main Northern Road, commencing at Morpeth, on the Hunter River, 100 miles from Sydney, and extending a distance of 400 miles to the Queensland boundary, with branches connecting the towns and villages in the northern districts.

Besides these, there are other principal roads with many branches in various parts of the Colony. Between 4,000 and 5,000 miles of metalled road have been formed, chiefly since the introduction of responsible Government. There are now 10,000 miles of road in various stages of improvement. The Commissioner and Engineer of Roads has also in his department the supervision of the expenditure upon 19,000 miles of the subordinate roads of the Colony. On these roads there are bridges which, if placed in a line, would cover a length of 45 miles; and there are more than 100 ferry-punts, four of which are worked by steam power. The first railway line was opened in New South Wales over a quarter of a century ago, and notwithstanding the difficulties that had to be encountered in crossing mountain barriers and the construction of lines south, west, and north simultaneously, the extension to the southern border at Albury was completed early in 1881. The lines open for traffic on December 31st, 1880, were 849½ miles, as against 358 in 1871. During the year 1881 about 150 miles more have been opened, being a longer distance than in any previous year, and making the total nearly 1,000 miles. Between 1855 and 1870, a period of fifteen years, only 339 miles of lines were open for traffic—an average of 22½ miles a year; since that time 661 miles have been completed, of which no less than 398 have been opened during the last four years, the decade thus showing an average of 66 miles, and the latter period an average of 100 miles per annum. The construction of the railway lines up to 1880 created a debt of £11,778,819, or £13,866 a mile.

CHAPTER III.

Agriculture.

Land in Cultivation—Dairy Farms—Economic Plants—Wheat—Maize—Oats—Barley—Sugar-cane—Wine—Oranges—Sericulture.—At the northern boundary of the Colony is a district watered by three rivers—the Tweed, Richmond, and Clarence—with an area approaching 4,000,000 acres, pronounced by authorities to be generally suitable for the cultivation of maize, sugar, the vine, silk, cotton, arrowroot, coffee, tea, and semi-tropical fruits of nearly every kind. Lower down are four rivers, called the Bellinger, Macleay, Hastings, and Manning. These rivers water an area of 3,000,000 acres adapted for maize and sugar. Next comes the Hunter River: On the Lower Hunter corn and lucerne hay are grown in large quantities. On the Upper Hunter the vine and most cereals thrive. In the county of Cumberland, on the alluvial flats of the Hawkesbury and Nepean Rivers, the principal crops are hay and corn. Once wheat was the chief crop, but in this, the metropolitan county, grazing has become more profitable. Passing Sydney, districts are soon reached sown with imported grasses, on rich sedimentary deposits. From the Illawarra district, great in dairy produce, down to the southern boundary, a length of about 200 miles, the coast may be said to abound in fertile land adapted for dairy farms. The extensive district near Bega, a town 255 miles from Sydney, boasts of a soil and climate which have won for it the title of "the garden of Australia." Thus, the localities destined to supply the great ports of the future with milk, butter, cheese, eggs, ham and bacon, lamb and veal, are all within easy reach by sea or rail. The new Coast Railway line from Sydney to Illawarra in the south, and the extension of the Great Northern line to the metropolis, will greatly facilitate the obtaining of food supplies in Sydney. Beginning a tour northwards through what may be called the middle area of the Colony, the traveller at once falls in with the most remarkable range of mountains in Australia. This range, though taking an erratic course, extends northerly along the whole length of the Colony. It divides the inland waters into an easterly and westerly flow, flow, and culminates 60 to 150 miles from the coast. In the south it gives the high lands of Monaro, Braidwood, Bungendore, Yass, and Goulburn, with an area of about 15,000,000 acres, in a climate with a temperature resembling that of England. Over this wide surface wheat and all English cereals, fruits, and vegetables thrive. The range makes a dip northerly, and does not rise again to any great prominence until the Liverpool Range is reached. On the table-lands of New England and Tenterfield, about 3,000 feet above the sea, the English climate, shorn of its severity, is again met with. Here there is an area of about 14,000,000 acres, suited to English cereals and fruits. The western slopes of this Great Dividing Range, for a breadth of from 100 to 150 miles, are suitable for wheat and the vine. A very large part of the territory is splendidly adapted for the vine and the silk industry. The mulberry tree, in all its varieties, thrives everywhere. Tobacco can be grown in different parts of the Colony. If the foregoing outline is compressed into a schedule, the soil and climate of New South Wales is found to be suitable for the cultivation of—

- |                            |                                     |
|----------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Wheat,                     | Coffee,                             |
| All other English cereals, | Tea,                                |
| Maize,                     | Tobacco,                            |
| The Vine,                  | Cotton,                             |
| Sugar,                     | Fruits of the temperate region,     |
| Silk,                      | Fruits of the semi-tropical region. |

Some parts of the Colony favour the growth of the olive, cinchona, indigo, and rice. Mr. Theodore Piessé, of Messrs. Piessé & Labin, perfumers, of London, in an Exhibition Lecture which he delivered at the Technical College, Sydney, strongly recommended the cultivation in Australia of perfume-giving plants, and especially of the orange and other members of the citron tribe, of roses and of lavender, in order that English perfumers may not be obliged to depend upon France for their supply of essences; and he demonstrated that the climate of New South Wales is highly favourable to the industry, and that it would be exceedingly profitable. At first sight the comparatively insignificant statistics of agriculture in New South Wales may cause surprise; but there are two circumstances which afford a good apology. The first is the novel fact that, owing to the nearness of the Dividing Range to the seaboard, the large rivers of the Colony, receiving nearly the whole of the interior waters through numberless tributaries, flow inland, and make their way to the other side of the continent. No wide streams flow towards the coast to serve as cheap highways for the products of the agriculturist. The railway becomes a good substitute for the river, but until recently the lines did not reach a single agricultural area. In the second place, the gold discovery dealt a heavy blow to so plodding an industry as agriculture. If the reader will picture to himself an inland territory as large as Great Britain and France, without rivers to the ocean of any considerable length, and with comparatively few railways, over which a population of two to the square mile is scattered, most of whom have no taste for agriculture, and are too well off in many other ways to be forced to embark in it, he will not be surprised that the whole area under cultivation in New South Wales, well adapted though it is for nearly every kind of growth, does not exceed 706,498 acres. In 1861 there were only 297,000 acres under crop, so that the land in cultivation has increased 409,498 acres in twenty years. During the last decade five times more land has been enclosed than the total quantity from the foundation of the Colony up to 1871. The following table shows the increase in agricultural holdings during the last ten years:—

Year.	Number of occupiers of land (exclusive of those for pastoral purposes).	Total extent of holdings.	Extent of land in cultivation.	Extent of land enclosed but not in cultivation	Extent of land unenclosed.
		Acres.	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.
1872 ...	29,174	7,655,067½	417,851½	3,921,505	3,515,711
1881 ...	39,992	27,765,318½	706,498½	21,351,433½	6,707,386½

“Squatters” are giving way to graziers, and the system of land and stock farming is an order of progress both natural and advantageous. It is worthy of remark, however, that the present agricultural area, according to population, is much larger per head than that under cultivation in Great Britain. The total average number of sheep, cattle, and horses possessed by each holder is only 770 head, showing that the live stock is not owned by a few large capitalists, but distributed amongst a number of small proprietors. Of 37,887 freeholders in New South Wales, 34,567 hold less than 70 acres each. The yields from the various crops hereinafter described represent what the soil can produce with farming, generally of the rudest kind, and which is seldom pursued under the guidance of experienced enterprise, much less with a knowledge of the principles of scientific tillage and agricultural chemistry. It is easy to see that agricultural settlement is the great want of the Colony; and one of the most useful questions to consider, although a difficult one to solve, is how best to swell the ranks of husbandry. A nation may become great in manufactures and commerce, but the safest foundations of progress rest in the earth. People the interior with tillers of the soil, and forthwith towns and villages, with all their arts, will grow of themselves. Land can be obtained on easy terms; labour is in great demand; the railways are being extended north, west, and south, and feeding lines carried into the most promising country in various directions; taxation is light, living cheap, and life and property safe; whilst men of every race and creed can enjoy in New South Wales an atmosphere of sober industry, enlightened enterprise, orderly government, and complete toleration, beneath a genial sky, and on a virgin soil. Wheat is the crop that occupies the largest number of acres. The following figures show the area and produce for the year ended 31st March:—

	Acres.	Bushels.
1881 .....	252,540½	3,708,737.

The average per acre in New South Wales considerably exceeds that of the great wheat-producer of the Colonies, South Australia. The fine quality of Australian wheat is known, and New South Wales can claim to produce some of the best samples. At an Intercolonial Exhibition in Melbourne, Messrs. Watson Brothers, of Young, in one of the Southern, and Messrs. Lewis Brothers, of Tamworth, in one of the Northern, districts, secured the first prizes for wheat; and for flour the produce of wheat grown in New South Wales, in competition with growers from South Australia, Victoria, and Tasmania, Watson Brothers have taken a first prize on every occasion that they have exhibited, and hold three gold medals and four first prizes for flour. Wheat is grown in most of the districts of the south-west, north, and west. Maize shows a smaller area but a larger yield than wheat. This crop is mainly cultivated on the coast rivers, the return ranging in some localities up to 80 and 100 bushels an acre. Occasionally a flood rushes down these rivers, and in a few hours destroys the labour of months; but the soil is so good that one fine season enables the farmer to recover the losses of two or three bad ones. The fine quality of the corn which commands the Colonial markets is illustrated by the manufacture of a maizena, known as “Munn’s,” for which the enterprise of the late Mr. T. S. Mort obtained a place equal to that of the best American. Ward’s corn flour also holds a good position in the market. Samples of maize grown in the Colony, and exhibited at the Philadelphia International Exhibition, were pronounced by American experts to be the best they had ever seen. Corn-meal is largely used by Americans, but the majority of Australians cannot be induced to make it an article of human diet. Oats and barley are chiefly cultivated for green food, and as hay for horses and cattle. Sown grasses will inevitably take a leading rank in the returns, when science and more system are brought to bear on the management of stock. The area cultivated for green food for cattle has greatly increased during the past ten years. The cultivation of sugar-cane was commenced about the year 1868. In the Clarence District the area under cane has increased year by year, and in 1882 the production of sugar in that district would, but for very unfavourable weather, have been from 10,000 to 12,000 tons. On the Richmond small mills have been at work since 1873, and during 1881 a large mill was erected by the Colonial Sugar Company, for the supply of which cane is being planted extensively by the farmers. At the Tweed River another large factory has been worked, and the district is making good progress in the industry. Another small river between the Richmond and Tweed is now being opened up, and some extensive patches of rich scrub land on the coast are being cleared with a view to cultivation. No Chinese or coloured labourers are employed in the production of sugar, all the work being done by about 2,000 hands, who are engaged during the season, which lasts from three to four months. The area at present under cane is:—In the Clarence, 7,250 acres; Richmond, 3,400 acres; Tweed, 1,225—or a total of 11,875 acres, of which about 3,000 acres have been planted during 1881. The sugars of New South Wales, having had the advantage of being treated treated by experienced refiners, speedily gained ground in the market, and there is a good demand for them at prices ranging from £30 to £10 a ton. The crops of sugar-cane were increased during the decade as follows:—

	Productive. Acres.	Unproductive. Acres.	Produce. lb.
1881.....	4,465½	6,506½	16,352,336

The cultivation of the vine is already a leading industry in the Colony. There are several districts of sufficient area and combining the necessary conditions of soil, climate, and aspect to produce wine enough to supply the whole of Europe. The advantages which New South Wales possesses on so large a scale for prosecuting the leading rural industries are further indicated in agriculture by the large extent of its territory that is adapted for the production of silk. Every variety of the mulberry finds a congenial habitat in the Colony; and the silkworm family not only thrives, but remains free from the diseases which make such fearful havoc amongst its members in some of the chief seats of the industry in other parts of the world. Attempts have been made to establish sericulture in this Colony, but as yet without attaining much commercial success. That the Colony will, however, one day figure as an exporter of raw silk is certain; it is only a question of population and time. The large variety of fruits that thrive in the Colony affords another illustration of the diversity of soil and climate that the country enjoys. The vine is the most important product, and next comes the orange, of which fruit a large quantity is exported to the neighbouring Colonies. Some of the orangeries in the vicinity of Parramatta are remarkable for their yield and extent, good trees producing about 100 dozen oranges yearly. The supply of fruits to the various markets is abundant and cheap. Gardens and orchards occupied 14,520½ acres in 1872, and 18,539½ in 1881.

CHAPTER IV.

Crown Lands.

Progress in Settlement—Land Laws—Ringbarking—Conditional Purchases—Land Sales.—The Constitution Act, which came into operation in 1856, and which is still in force, conferred full power on the Government of the Colony to alienate and otherwise dispose of the public lands. This gave great satisfaction, as it was generally considered that the lands were not fairly apportioned. A small population thus came into uncontrolled possession of a vast and rich estate, and there soon arose a conflict to determine how it should be administered. Numerous schemes were proposed, and at length, in the exercise of its new powers, the Legislature passed two Acts, which were assented to on the 18th October, 1861, and which, with some subsequent amending Acts, are still in force. The principal Acts are known respectively as the Crown Lands Alienation Act and the Crown Lands Occupation Act. By the second section of the latter Act the Orders in Council, under which the Crown Lands were formerly administered by the Crown, were repealed, with certain reservations respecting rights which had accrued in regard to some existing leases. Referring to the Land Laws, Mr. Watson, in his late Financial Statement, said:—"Those who remember what the interior was twenty years ago, and what it is now, will not hesitate to admit that the change is marvellous; for on every hand are to be seen settlements and improvements, which are mainly attributable to the Land Law of 1861, which the wisdom and exertion of my colleague (Sir John Robertson) brought into existence. Since that law was passed, towns have become cities, villages have grown into thriving towns, and many places where there were only wayside inns and blacksmiths' shops have developed into villages of considerable importance." Under the Imperial Regulations of March, 1843, which the laws of 1861 superseded, the price of country lots was £1 an acre, payable in full within one month; and no lands could be alienated beyond certain boundaries, or before survey, or otherwise than at a land sale, except lots previously offered at auction. The principles which distinguish the existing policy are, free selection before survey over all unreserved lands, and deferred payments. Since 1861 the Land Laws have been amended in some important particulars. The term "person" in the original Act had been made so elastic by judicial interpretation that selections were taken up in the names of children, some of them in arms. To set this right, and to discourage "dummying," that is, selection by agents for the benefit of employers, were the main objects of the Act of 1875. It has also been enacted that "vicarious selection" shall be accounted a misdemeanour, punishable by imprisonment with hard labour for any term not longer than two years; and that no conditional purchase shall be made by any person under sixteen years of age. The maximum area which one individual can select has been increased from 320 to 640 acres, and so soon as conditions of residence and improvements are fulfilled, further areas of 640 acres can be selected; and moreover, adjoining land to the extent of three times the area of the purchase or purchases can be taken up by the free selector under pre-emptive lease, at an annual rental of £2 for each selection of 640 acres, making a total area of 2,560 acres. Applications for conditional purchases must be for not less than 40 acres nor more than 640 acres, and must be accompanied in each case with a deposit of 5s. per acre. The balance of the purchase money, 15s. per acre, may rest for three years without interest; and if not then paid, or within three months thereafter, may be deferred from year to year, subject to interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. Conditional purchasers may pay instalments of 1s. per acre per annum, and may make two or more such payments in any year, until the debt, principal, and interest shall have been extinguished. Under the original Act of 1861 and the Amending Act of 1875, the period of residence required for a conditional purchase was three years, and the value of improvements to be made £1 per acre. Under the Act of 1880 the period of residence has been extended to five years, and the value of improvements reduced to 10s. per acre. Provision has also been made for the purchase, under right of improvement, by pastoral tenants of limited portions of their runs. An Act was passed in 1881 to regulate Ringbarking on Crown Lands, and to limit claims for compensation for the same under section 15 of the "Lands Acts further Amendment Act of 1880." This Act prohibits ringbarking on Crown Lands by lessees without authority under the hand of the Minister, and imposes penalties for illegal ringbarking. Claims to compensation for ringbarking must be sustained by proof that its effect has been to increase the value of the land to any purchaser, conditional or otherwise. The compensation for ringbarking is fixed at 1s. 3d. per acre, payable on the certificate of a surveyor duly authorised in that behalf. The progress of free selection has been very great. The number of selections from 1861 to the end of 1880 being 141,329, and the area selected 15,677,070 acres. The gross amount realised was £5,867,912 9s. 8½d.; the amount of deposits received, less refunds, £3,923,548; balances, £793,116; and interest, £1,146,248. Crown Lands are also sold by auction; and land so offered for sale, but not disposed of, can, except in towns, be selected without competition, at the upset price at which it was last submitted.

Minerals.—Nothing could better show the richness of the mineral resources than the number of discoveries made by unscientific persons. In this country the range of industry above ground is so wide, and its rewards so easily obtained, that it is not surprising the miners have not yet penetrated far into the dark bowels of the earth. As the alluvium became less rich—or rather the areas worked became exhausted—mining for gold in the quartz commenced to be more extensively followed. There are thousands of miles of territory known to be auriferous not yet prospected. The yield of gold during the following years has been:—

	Oz.	£
1880.....	118,600	441,543

The charge for a "miner's right" is only 10s. a year. Leases of auriferous land are granted at the rate of £1 an acre per annum. The extensive surface to be tested, and the infancy of mining enterprise, leave us in the dark as to the actual auriferous wealth of the Colony. Should it correspond with experience, the numberless reefs will give employment for an indefinite period. Coal is one of the most abundant and valuable of the minerals of New South Wales. For hundreds of miles the coast districts may be said to be one vast coal-field, and the metropolis stands in the middle of the coal area. During the years 1871–80 the quantity of coal raised amounted to 13,137,615 tons, of the value of £7,147,369. The approximate coal area of the Colony is 23,950 square miles. New mines are being constantly opened, and many leases of coal lands have lately been applied for. 4,651 miners find employment in the various collieries. The approximate extent of the stanniferous or tin area is 8,500 square miles. The area occupied under mineral lease and license to search for tin nearly doubled during the last year. There are about 2,200 persons employed in mining for tin. The number of known copper lodes is very large, and they are to be found in nearly every part of the Colony. New mines are being opened, and smelting works erected, but most of the deposits at present being worked are some distance from railways and markets. That the production of copper is making rapid strides is shown by the fact that the yield for 1880 is nearly four times that of 1871. The approximate extent of the copper area is 6,713 square miles. Important deposits of iron ore are found in close proximity to coal and limestone in several parts of the Colony. There was no mining for iron in 1871, but in 1880,

2,322 tons were obtained, of the value of £15,355. The principal silver mines are in the Northern District, and in these mines gold is found associated with the silver. The aggregate quantity of lead exported from the Colony was 138 tons 19 cwt., of the value of £3,400, obtained during the last five years, about £890 worth having been mined during 1880.

Emigration.—Regulations for the management of Immigration.—1. All immigrants shall be selected by the Agent-General,* or by such persons as he may appoint for the purpose, under instructions from the Colonial Secretary, which instructions shall not be contrary to these Regulations.

2. The selection of immigrants shall be limited to such adult persons as can pay £5 towards the cost of their passage to the Colony, and shall be made from the populations of England, Scotland, and Ireland (with the exception mentioned in clause 5), in such manner as shall prevent a preponderance of immigrants from any one of the three kingdoms according to the proportions shown to exist in the Colony by the Census Returns of 1881. But in the case of families, children under three years of age, in charge of their parents, shall be free, and children between three and fourteen years shall be admitted at half the amount payable by adults.

3. All immigrants must be of sound mental and bodily health, and of good moral character, and shall consist either of married couples not exceeding thirty-five years of age (with or without children), or of unmarried men and women, not exceeding thirty years of age; and shall be selected from the classes of mechanics, farmers, miners, vine-dressers, labourers, and domestic servants, with a special view to the industrial callings of the Colony, and the fluctuations affecting those callings as reported from the Colony from time to time, not excluding small working capitalists in any branch of Colonial industry.

4. The proportion of unmarried men shall not exceed one-third of the whole number of adult immigrants.

5. A proportion of the immigrants, not exceeding 10 per cent. of the whole, may be natives of other European countries, who shall answer to the physical, moral, and industrial descriptions embodied in these Regulations.

6. The immigrants must be brought out in ships chartered for that purpose by the Agent-General on behalf of New South Wales (except as provided for in next following section), and under such Regulations as he may make and prescribe for their moral and sanitary condition during the passage, subject to the approval of the Colonial Secretary.

7. The Agent-General may, however, make special arrangements at any time for the embarkation of immigrants at a foreign port, adopting all due precautions to ensure the application of these Regulations, as far as may be practicable, in any such case.

8. No advantage will be allowed in respect of any person brought out as a cabin or intermediate cabin passenger.

9. All deposits of money on account of the passages of immigrants, except as provided for in next following section, shall be paid to the Agent-General in London, and shall be accounted for by him on behalf of the Government of New South Wales.

10. To meet the public convenience, persons resident in the Colony who may desire to introduce immigrants in accordance with these Regulations shall be entitled to nominate such immigrants and to deposit on trust with the Agent for Immigration at the Immigration Office, Hyde Park, Sydney, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on each lawful day, and in the country districts with the Clerks of Petty Sessions during the usual office hours, the necessary sum or sums. Such nominations will be subject, however, to the approval of the Agent-General, and the rules of selection prescribed by these Regulations, as in cases when no such nominations have been made.

11. In the event of any person or persons nominated in the Colony for a passage declining to emigrate, or not being able to comply with the conditions required by these Regulations, or in case the amount deposited shall exceed that required by the number of emigrants actually introduced, the amount deposited, or the amount in excess, as the case may be, will be returned to the depositor upon the receipt in the Colony of the Agent-General's report recommending its repayment; but if any attempt or fraud or concealment be made by the depositor or the nominee under the certificate the deposit will be forfeited.

12. No money paid by persons resident within the three Kingdoms on account of any passage or passages will be returned should the person or persons making such payment not avail himself or themselves of the passage or passages so provided; but the Agent-General, in cases where circumstances satisfactorily explained, may prevent embarkation on the ship first arranged for, may authorize a passage or passages by a succeeding ship.

13. Married couples and children, and single men, shall be entitled to remain on board seven clear days after the ship drops anchor in Port Jackson.

14. Unmarried women shall be received into an Immigrants' Home in Sydney, and shall be allowed fourteen days to enable them to obtain suitable employment.

15. Immigrants desiring to proceed into the country districts within four clear days of their arrival will be allowed free passes by rail and by steam-boat.

16. The Clerks of Petty Sessions, on receipt of any deposit under these Regulations, will immediately remit the amount to the Agent for Immigration at Sydney, with a statement of the number and description of immigrants whom the depositor wishes to introduce.

17. The passage certificate must be forwarded by the depositor to the nominee, who in every case must produce it within twelve months from the date thereof to the Agent-General in London.

18. Forms of application, as well as all other information for the guidance of depositors, can be obtained from the Clerks of Petty Sessions in the country districts, or in Sydney at the office of the Agent for Immigration.

19. A quarterly report shall be prepared, under the instructions of the Colonial Secretary, giving an account of the state of trade and industrial operations, and of the progress of the Colony generally; and copies of all such reports shall be regularly transmitted to the Agent-General in January, April, July, and October of each year, for his information and guidance, and copies shall also be laid before both Houses of Parliament.

20. Should the age of any intending immigrant exceed the limits prescribed in section 3, the sum payable on his or her account shall be £15.

21. These Regulations shall take effect on and after the 1st day of January, 1882, and the Regulations published in the Government Gazette of the 14th March, 1881, are hereby cancelled.

House-rent.—Small cottages in Sydney and in suburbs, 3 or 4 rooms and kitchen, 10s. to 12s. per week; small houses in suburbs, 3 or 4 rooms with kitchen, &c., 14s. to 18s. per week; in Sydney large houses from 18s. per week upwards; board and lodging for single men from 14s. to 18s. per week.

Postal Telegraph Service.—The length of the telegraph wire is much greater in New South Wales than in any of the other Australian colonies, and bears favourable comparison with the extent of lines in older countries. Up to the end of 1881, there were 13,688 miles of telegraphic wire laid, and 328 stations. The revenue was £100,000. Nearly all the recent improvements have been adopted by the Department, and its show of scientific apparatus at the recent International Exhibitions, was of a complete and interesting character. Telegraph lines are not only to be found in all the centres of population, but they have been extended to the most remote districts, and the scale of charges has been greatly reduced, which has caused the expenditure to exceed the revenue of late years. For 1s. a message of ten words can be sent to any station in the Colony, and for 2s. to any part of the Australian Continent. Thanks to the enterprise of South Australia there is a line 1,800 miles long, from Adelaide to Port Darwin, which, connecting with the ocean cable, unites Australia with every part of the world.

Money Order and Savings Banks.—The Post-office services show a large development during the past decade. In 1871 there were 14,470 miles; and in 1880, 22,427 miles of postal lines. The distance over which the mails of 1880 were carried was 5,246,373 miles. Newspapers are carried post free. The postage upon inland letters is 2d. per half ounce, and for the same charge letters can be sent to any part of Australasia. In 1871 the communication between England and Australia was almost confined to a monthly mail by the route from Sydney to London, via Melbourne, Galle, and Suez, and to an experimental mail service from Sydney to San Francisco. During the last few years, however, the mail communication has been increased by the establishment of several important ocean services, some subsidised by one or more of the Colonies, and others maintained by purely private enterprise. Amongst the subsidised lines may be mentioned that between Sydney and and San Francisco, maintained by the Colonies of New South Wales and New Zealand, at a joint annual cost of £72,500. This line enables regular four-weekly communication to be maintained between Sydney and the United Kingdom by way of America, and affords great commercial advantages, as well as supplying a very convenient means of passenger traffic. The other subsidised lines are, one from Melbourne to the United Kingdom, by way of Suez, once a fortnight; and one from Brisbane to the mother country, by way of Torres Straits and Suez, monthly. In addition to the services maintained under mail contracts, there is regular communication between Sydney and London, carried on fortnightly by the Orient line of steam packets. These packets carry large numbers of passengers, but have no subsidy, being paid for the conveyance of mails at a rate per letter. In 1871 the quickest transit of mails between Sydney and London occupied forty-five days; but the voyage has recently been accomplished in thirty-seven days. The money order system of this Colony corresponds with similar systems in the United Kingdom and elsewhere, and is extended to Great Britain, the United States, and some of the principal countries of Europe, and the whole of Australasia. There are now 399 Money Order offices established in connection with the Post-offices of the Colony. Nine years ago Government Savings Banks were also added to the postal system, and offices established in Sydney and many of the country towns, interest at the rate of 4 per cent. being allowed on deposits up to £200. The balances at the credit of depositors already amount to £586,493, at the credit of 24,602 accounts. This is exclusive of the business done by the older institution, known as the Savings Bank of New South Wales, which on December 31, 1880, held £1,489,360 in the names of 36,929 depositors; paying 5 per cent. interest on amounts up to £100 deposited in one name.

CHAPTER V.

Church and Religion.

This book would be very incomplete if it gave no information upon the great subject of all—Religion; and if it afforded no guide to the intending emigrant or new settler to those Church ministrations which have been so ready to hand in the old country, even when not regularly used, but which will probably be more truly valued in a distant home. There is an earnest desire shown in New South Wales, as in other Colonies, to carry to the families of distant settlers the ordinances of religion and the means of instruction. The orderly conduct and prosperous circumstances of the colonists facilitate the efforts of the clergyman and the schoolmaster; and there are now few places which do not enjoy the benefits of their labours. In 1862 Government aid to religion was discontinued, the stipends of incumbents of all denominations being conserved to them for life. There is no State church in New South Wales, and therefore religious bodies are on a perfect equality in all respects. The Church of England within the Colony is governed by five bishops—one in the diocese of Sydney, one in the diocese of Newcastle, one in the diocese of Goulburn (now being divided, the new diocese to be called Riverina), one in the diocese of Bathurst, and one for Grafton and Armidale. Each diocese has its bishop and a large staff of clergy. Whenever a church is wanted, the bishop or the nearest clergyman should be written to, and they will no doubt co-operate with the inhabitants of the place in the erection of one. At all events, the services of the clergy can always be obtained for the baptism of your children, for marriages and burials, and from time to time for the administration of Holy Communion, and the bishops hold frequent confirmations. The clergy will always be found willing to help the settler in every way. If any of the clergy in the following lists should have removed since this book was issued, application should be made to the clergyman in charge.

Education.—New South Wales was the first Colony in Australasia to found a University. It was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1851, and it is constituted on the model of the British Universities. It is supported by the State, and up to the present time has cost in buildings and endowments over £200,000. The object of its founders was to offer the highest forms of culture to all, "without any distinction whatsoever." The University receives an assured Government endowment of £5,000 a year, and each of the Colleges £500 for the salary of a Principal. About £50,000 have been bestowed upon the University by wealthy colonists for scholarships and prizes, and recently £180,000 was bequeathed to it by the late Mr. J. H. Challis. By a Royal Charter graduates are entitled "to the same rank, title, and precedence as graduates of the Universities within the United Kingdom." The annual public examinations held at the Sydney University are similar to the middle-class examinations of Oxford and Cambridge, being intended to test the qualifications of youths attending the various schools of the Colony. The number of persons who came up to these senior and junior examinations was 179 in 1871, and 447 in 1880. The secondary educational institutions include several of a high-class character, such as the Sydney Grammar School, and the Technical or Working Men's College, which are largely attended by the students for whom they are designed. Large grants have been given to supplement private subscriptions for the Affiliated Colleges within the University, of which there are now three—the Anglican College of St. Paul, Roman Catholic College of St. John, and the Presbyterian College of St. Andrew. By the Public Instruction Act, which came into operation on May 1, 1880, teachers are now recognised as Civil Servants, and are paid by fixed salaries. The school fees are paid into the Treasury as revenue. Regulations have been made under this Act for establishing evening public schools, provisional schools, superior public schools, and high schools, and also for employing itinerant teachers and work-mistresses. The compulsory clauses which are being enforced, and the reduction of the school fee from an average of 6d. to 3d. per week, have had a marked effect in increasing the attendance. Provision is made for educating children who are unable to pay school fees, and for maintaining schools for neglected children. There are 150 denominational schools in the Colony, but these will cease to be supported by the State after 1882. General religious instruction is provided for by the Act. It may be imparted in all the public schools by the teachers, and by ministers of the various denominations, who are entitled to appropriate one hour a day for the purpose.

Agents in England for the British Colonies generally.—As it is possible that this little book may fall into the hands of intending emigrants who are going elsewhere than to New South Wales, it may be well to give here the names and addresses of the Agents in England for some of the other British Colonies. Any of the gentlemen named will be ready to supply information about their respective colonies to those who may desire to emigrate.

CHAPTER VI.

Simple Hints for preserving Health.

1. The Ventilation of your House.—Plenty of fresh air is necessary for the proper action of the lungs and for the blood. Ventilation means the art of supplying fresh air without draughts. If you have only one room, always open the window and air the room well before going to bed, particularly if you have been smoking. During the greater part of the year the window may be a little open all night if you have the means to give yourself and wife and children plenty of clothes, but do not let the air blow upon you. If you feel the draught too much with the window open at the top, nail a piece of wood, placed slantingly, along the top of the window and reaching 3 or 4 inches above it; open the window about 1 or 2 inches, and the air will strike against the slanting piece of wood as it enters, and be directed towards the ceiling or will not be felt. If you have any fireplace which you do not use in the summer, never stop it up; the chimney is a good ventilator; also, never close the regulator if you have one in a grate.

2. Cleanliness of your Rooms.—The air of a room can never be pure if the room is dirty. Uncarpeted rooms should be carefully swept every day, but not washed too often, as wood or bricks both absorb and retain water for some time, and make make the air damp and cold. Wash in warm, dry weather, when the windows can be fully opened. The greatest impurity is, however, often given by the bed or furniture. Take great care that these are wiped and kept clean; all the bedclothes and mattress should be fully exposed to the air for an hour every morning, and the blankets should be shaken.

3. Cleanliness and dryness about your House.—Do not allow any heaps of refuse to remain near the house; the air cannot be pure if these are constantly adding effluvia to it. The dust-bin is often badly placed in houses, and is too seldom emptied. Potato-parings, pea-husks, and remains of food, should either be burnt or put by for the pig or chickens. All the dirty house-water should be put on the garden, and not allowed to soak under the house, as too often happens. This water contains organic substances which are fertilizing, and the remains of the soap used in the house is also very good for vegetables. If a butt can be obtained and the dirty water poured into it, the garden could be watered from time to time. Take care that the rain from the roof does not soak under the house, or cause dampness of the walls.

4. Hints on the Water you use.—If you have to fetch water from a distance and to store it in your house, never keep it in buckets or open pans. It is sure to get foul; dust falls into it, and it will absorb substances from the air. Wood also gets soft, and may make the water impure. Put it into glazed earthenware or stoneware jars with covers—these jars are cheap and strong—every now and then throw out all the water, and wipe the inside of the jars with a clean cloth. If the water is from a surface stream or shallow well, it is probably a soft water, and will act on metals. In that case do not use metallic vessels more than you can help. Use iron vessels for cooking, and if they require mending, take care they are not mended with lead solder, which the water can dissolve. Many cases of lead poisoning have occurred from this solder being used. With such a soft surface-water do not even use zinc pails, but draw it in wooden buckets and store in stoneware jars.

5. How to make a Filter.—The filtration of water is not difficult, even if you cannot afford to buy a regular filter. A simple filter can be made as follows:—Get a common earthenware garden flower-pot; cover the hole with a bit of zinc gauze, or a bit of clean-washed flannel, which should be changed from time to time; then get some rather small gravel, wash it very well, and put it into the pot to the height of 3 inches; then get some white sand and wash it very clean, and put that on the gravel to the height of 3 inches; then buy 2 lb. of animal charcoal, wash that also by putting it into a jug and pouring boiling water on it; then, when the charcoal has subsided, pour off the water, and put some more on for three or four times. When the charcoal has been well washed, put it on the sand and press it well down. Have 4 inches of charcoal if possible. The filter is now ready, pour water into the pot, and let it run through the hole into a large glass bottle. After a time the charcoal will get clogged, or foul. Take off a little from the top and boil it two or three times, and then spread it out and let it dry before the fire. It will then be as good as ever. If you have a rain-water tank, always filter the rain-water before using it for drink or cooking, as rain-water often is collected from dirty roofs or becomes impure in the tank.

6. What to drink.—If you wish to keep good health to old age, never touch spirits. Nothing can be better to drink, both for you and your family, than skimmed milk at dinner and supper. It is well always to boil it, and a little sugar makes it still more agreeable. When you have any heavy work to do do not take either beer, cider, or spirits. By far the best drink is thin oatmeal and water with a little sugar. The proportions are  $\frac{1}{4}$  lb. of oatmeal to two or three quarts of water, according to the heat of the day and your work and thirst; it should be well boiled, and then an ounce or  $\frac{1}{2}$  ounce of brown sugar added. If you find it thicker than you like, add three quarts of water. Before you drink it shake up the oatmeal well through the liquid. In summer, drink this cold; in winter, hot. You will find it not only quenches thirst, but will give you more strength and endurance than any other drink. If you cannot boil it you can take a little oatmeal mixed with cold water and sugar, but this is not so good; always boil it if you can. If at any time you have to make a very long day, as in harvest, and cannot stop for meals, increase the oatmeal to  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb., or even  $\frac{3}{4}$  lb., and the water to three quarts, if you are likely to be very thirsty. If you cannot get oatmeal, wheat flour will do, but not quite so well. It is quite a mistake to suppose spirits give strength; they give a spurt to a man, but that goes off, and if more than a certain quantity is taken they lessen the power of work.

7. Food.—Many kinds of vegetable food, oatmeal, maize, peas, and beans contain almost as much flesh-forming food as meat, and, when properly cooked, form a wholesome and agreeable substitute for it. Extravagance might be avoided and much more pleasure found in food if trouble were taken to learn how to cook some of these simple things.

8. Closets.—One of the best kinds of closet is an earth-closet. As good an earth closet for a cottage as any, is simply a zinc bucket coming up close to the wood of the seat, and with a handle to enable it to be lifted out. The wooden top of the seat should be made with a hinge, so that it can be lifted up and the bucket removed and emptied from time to time. Very little earth is necessary if no slops are thrown into the bucket, and the earth can be thrown in with a shovel. It should be quite dry. In the winter time it should be dried under the fire before it is used. The material from an earth-closet may be put into a hole in the garden, and afterwards dug in as manure. All places of this kind, as well as water-closets, require attention and give a little trouble; but he must be the most careless of mortals who, in a matter so important for health, will not give half an hour's work every week to preserve cleanliness, and really no more time is demanded than this.

APPENDIX A.

Commendatory Letter.

Reverend and Dear Sir,

I desire herewith to commend to your pastoral care and brotherly good offices, from the Parish of _____ in the Diocese of _____ who is about to settle in _____

And I certify that

Dated this _____

It is suggested that any clergyman giving a letter commendatory to a parishioner should copy out the letter in his own hand, in preference to using a printed form; and his letter would probably be still more valued, and likely to be more useful, if it could be written on the back of a photograph of the parish church or the cathedral of the diocese, or have such a photograph appended to it.

APPENDIX B.

Prayers for the use of Emigrants.

MORNING PRAYER.

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Lord, help me to pray.

Most gracious and merciful God, I worship Thee with the lowliest humility of my soul and body. All thanks and praise be to Thee for the safety, rest, and refreshment of the past night, and for the renewed life of another day. Blessed above all be Thy Holy Name for Thy promises of forgiveness and salvation, of grace and goodness of Jesus Christ. Fulfil these promises to me this day, I most humbly beseech Thee.

Deal not with me according to my iniquities, but be merciful unto me, and save me from the guilt and power of sin. Give me true faith in the Lord Jesus, and peace and joy in believing.

Let Thy Holy Spirit dwell within me, as the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and ghostly strength, the Spirit of knowledge and true godliness.

Bless me, O gracious God, in my calling, and enable me to do my duty faithfully in whatever work Thou shall be pleased to employ me. Be nigh at hand to preserve me in all dangers and temptations. Support and comfort me under every anxiety, care, and sorrow. Provide for all my necessities, whether of body or soul.

May I remember Thee all the day, and ever speak and act as in Thy sight. Help me to be holy and righteous, charitable and humble, cheerful and contented. Let my condition be blessed and my behaviour useful to my neighbours and pleasing to Thee.

Bless all my dear friends and relations, especially _____]. Comfort and relieve the sick and sorrowful, the needy, and him that hath no helper. Let Thy mercy descend upon the whole church, especially upon that part of it to which I belong. Prosper the country in which I dwell; and let Thy mercy and goodness extend to all nations. Hear me, O Lord, in these my prayers and thanksgivings, and answer me according to Thy wisdom and love, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation. But deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen.

EVENING

EVENING PRAYER.

Lord, help me to pray.

Almighty and most merciful God, in Thee we live and move and have our being. Thou, in Thy love, openest Thy hand and satisfiest the desires of all things living.

Through Thy undeserved goodness I have been preserved in body and soul through another day. Glory and honour be to Thee for all the blessings of providence and grace which Thou has bestowed upon me from morning until evening.

I am not worthy of the least of all Thy mercies; for my sins cry out against me. O that I may be truly and deeply sensible of them, and may confess them humbly and sorrowfully! I have this day fallen short in my duty to Thee and my neighbour. I have in many things offended against Thy holy law. All my negligences and ignorances, all my faults and sins are before Thee. Have mercy upon me, O God, for against Thee have I sinned and done all this evil in Thy sight.

Give me tenderness of conscience, and produce in me unfeigned repentance. I would plead Thy promises of forgiveness, I would put my whole trust in Thy mercy in Christ Jesus. For His sake pardon my iniquity, for it is great. May His precious blood, which cleanseth from all sin, be effectual for the washing away of my iniquities. Through His merits may I enjoy peace of conscience and peace with Thee, now that I am about to lie down and take my rest.

Thou has brought me another day onward in my life, and I am one day nearer to the end. Teach me to number my days that I may apply my heart unto wisdom. Keep me ever mindful of the solemn account I must ere long give before the judgment-seat of Christ. O that, whenever the hour of my death comes, I may fall asleep in Jesus! May my body be laid in its bed of darkness in hope of a glorious resurrection, and may my soul pass to the regions of light, and live with Thee in undying holiness and happiness.

Lord, I am unworthy to ask any petitions for myself or for others; yet I would humbly beseech Thee to hear me as for myself, so also for all whom I love; for all who have ever done me good; yea, even for all mine enemies. The wants of every creature are known to Thee; supply those wants, I heartily pray Thee, according to Thy power and wisdom and greatness.

Preserve me while I sleep. Thou art about my bed; defend me, O God, from all dangers which may happen to the body, and from all evil which may assault and hurt the soul. Spare me, if it be Thy good pleasure, to another day. May I awake up to praise Thee and to serve Thee better than I have ever before done.

Of Thy goodness and mercy, be pleased, O Lord, to hearken to these my prayers for the sake of Jesus Christ, my only mediator and Saviour. Amen.

Our Father, &c.

The grace of our Lord, &c.

DURING A VOYAGE, FOR YOURSELF AND THOSE WHO SAIL WITH YOU.

Almighty God, Who alone commandest the winds and the waves, and they obey Thy voice, mercifully hear my prayers, and deliver me and all who are in this ship from the dangers of the sea and from all sad accidents. We are not able to save ourselves from the least misfortune to which we are liable; to Thy favour and protection I commend myself and others, our souls and bodies, and all that belongs to us.

Lord, pardon our sins, turn away the judgment which we justly deserve, prosper us in our voyage, bring us to our haven in peace, and grant that we may, at last, reach the land of eternal rest, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON SAFE ARRIVAL AFTER A JOURNEY OR VOYAGE.

Accept, O blessed Lord, my humble and hearty thanks for Thy merciful preservation of me during the voyage (or journey) which is now at a prosperous end. Thy Fatherly hand has been over me, Thy loving protection has been round about me by day and by night.

O Lord, make me ever mindful of this, and of all other Thy favour and goodness to me, Thine unworthy servant. Help me, who have now once again been kept and upheld by Thee, to show forth my thankfulness by leading a holy and Christian life, and serving Thee faithfully the remainder of my days; through Jesus Christ, my only Lord and Saviour. Amen.

ON FIRST SETTLING IN A NEW COUNTRY.

Almighty God, who fixes the bounds of our habitation and blesseth the homes of Thy people, be mercifully pleased to let Thy loving presence be with me in my new dwelling-place. Thou art the God who changest not; here and everywhere Thou art the same. Give me sure trust and confidence in Thee. May I here enjoy Thy blessing which is life, and Thy loving-kindness which is better than life.

Give me courage and cheerfulness, patience and hope. In every time of loneliness, and discouragement, and anxiety, may my Trust be in Thee. Keep me from murmuring and unbelief and forgetfulness of Thee. May I set Thee, the Lord, always before my face. Though far removed from the restraints that may have been about me in my former home, yet may I be on my guard against everything that would dishonour or displease Thee. May I preserve a sense of God and religion in all places and companies. May I never be ashamed of Thee or of Thy service.

Prosper me in all my lawful undertakings; grant me all things that pertain to life and godliness; give me health of body and of soul. Help me to be contented and thankful in all circumstances. Sanctify to me both the successes and failures, the labours and the recreations, which are here to be my lot. May I not live for myself alone, but endeavour to do all the good I can, both bodily and spiritual, to my neighbours. Above all things, grant that I may seek first the Kingdom of God.

O Lord, bless and keep me. O Lord, lift up the light of Thy countenance upon me, and give me peace now and for evermore, through Jesus Christ my Saviour and Redeemer. Amen.

Our Father, &c.

The grace of our Lord, &c.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 17 July, 1884.

I have the honor to forward herewith, for your information, six copies of a Handbook of New South Wales, which I have had prepared for circulation.

I have found it absolutely necessary to prepare such a document, not only for the emigrant class of inquirers, but for general information, and to enable me to answer the numerous and varied questions that from time to time are put to me regarding the Colony by all kinds of persons.

The book was in type before I received your instructions to reduce the number of emigrants, and although not so full as I would have wished, I trust it will meet with your approval, as I find it of great value and convenience in this Department.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

INTRODUCTION.

AUSTRALIA is a country nearly as large as Europe, and is divided into several Colonies. These different Colonies are distinct, having separate Governments. "Australasia" is a term applied to Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, and Fiji.

The discovery of the eastern shores of the Australian continent by Captain Cook, in 1770, led to the first Australasian settlement being founded at Sydney by the British Government, in 1788. The British Colonies which have sprung from this settlement contain an area of 3,037,155 square miles, of which New South Wales contains 310,700; Victoria, 87,881; South Australia, 903,690; Queensland, 668,224; Western Australia, 978,299; New Zealand, 104,403; Tasmania, 26,215; and Fiji, 7,740 square miles.

The estimated population of the British Colonies in Australasia at the end of 1882 was 2,936,409, distributed as under: New South Wales, 817,468; Victoria, 906,225; South Australia, 293,509; Western Australia, 30,766; Queensland, 248,255; New Zealand, 517,707; Tasmania, 122,479. Last year there was an increase of 103,000 souls arising from the excess of immigration over emigration and of births over deaths. Fiji at the last census had a population of 130,217, of whom 115,635 were aborigines. The proportion of the sexes amongst the European population of the Australian Colonies is estimated at 118.76 males to 100 females, or 84.21 females to 100 males. The average number of inhabitants of European descent is less than one person to the square mile.

The flora and fauna of Australia are particularly interesting to the naturalist, and include specimens peculiar to itself.

There are many varieties of the eucalyptus or gum-tree, also of the acacia-tree; cedar-trees and fig-trees add a charm to the landscape. Ferns are found in endless variety, and flowering plants innumerable.

The animal kingdom consists of a multitude of exclusively marsupial forms, including kangaroos, wallabies, paddy-melons, and kangaroo rats; the bandicoot, native bear, native cat, and opossum. Its waters are peopled by the strangest amphibia, and by wonderful reptilian and other fishes akin to no existing species, of which the most remarkable are the ornithoryncus paradoxus, or duck-billed platypus, and the ceratodus, the emu (the largest feathered biped of the Colony), the great kingfisher or laughing jackass, parrots of various kinds and brilliant plumage, and lyre and bower-birds; birds of the eagle family are also found in parts of the interior. The coasts and mouths of the rivers swarm with many varieties of edible fish, including bream, kingfish, garfish, jewfish, mullet, schnapper, whiting, oysters, &c.

Australia holds out great inducements for scientific exploration, and research in geology, mineralogy, palæontology, ethnology, and other kindred sciences. During

During the last decennial period the population of the Australian Colonies has increased 42 per cent., commerce 47 per cent., wool production 70 per cent., acres under cultivation 120 per cent., railways 431 per cent., telegraphs 190 per cent., revenue 123 per cent. The annual revenues of the several Governments have increased from 9 millions to nearly 22 millions sterling, being an average of £7 13s. 6d per head of population. The live stock now consists of 76,493,150 sheep, 8,429,448 cattle, 1,219,342 horses, and 807,711 pigs. The land under cultivation increased from 3,165,000 acres to nearly 7,000,000 acres, and the total acreage now under crop gives an average of 2.45 acres per head of population.

During the same period the tonnage of shipping entered and cleared at all the ports in Australasia increased from 4,517,028 tons to 10,866,859 tons. Steamships of from four to five thousand tons burthen are now engaged in the carrying trade. The yearly value of Colonial produce and manufactures exported annually is estimated at 51 millions sterling. The exports consist principally of products of the pastoral, agricultural, and mining industries, such as wool, tallow, hides, preserved meats, wheat, gold, tin, copper, coal, &c.

The deposits in the Colonial Banks of Issue, on the 30th September, 1882, amounted to £66,471,922, giving a larger amount per head of population than is shown in Great Britain.

In 1882, the trade between the Australian Colonies, England, and Foreign States amounted to £114,477,694, or an average of £39 16s. 7d. per head of population, of which the sum of £22 4s. 3d. was for imports, and £17 12s. 4d. for exports. Fiji in 1882 had a trade amounting to £493,846, being £303,329 for imports, and £190,517 for exports.

At the end of 1882 the various Australasian Governments possessed 6,071 miles of railways in active operation, and 1,557 miles were under construction in various parts of the interior; there are, in addition, 136 miles of private line. The railways are now returning fair interest on the capital invested, and are important agencies in the industrial progress of the Colonies. There are 54,546 miles of electric telegraphs connecting every township of any importance in the Australasian Colonies, and by means of the ocean cables the latest intelligence from the chief nations of the world is disseminated throughout Australasia almost as soon as it is published in European cities. The Colonies afford all the comforts of modern civilized life, with but little of the poverty existing in older countries.

The food supply of Great Britain is largely supplemented by Australian grain, and preserved and frozen meats. During the agricultural season of 1882-3 these Colonies produced 31,763,096 bushels of wheat, 16,429,185 bushels of oats, 5,612,428 bushels of maize, and 1,926,599 bushels of barley, 346,834 tons of potatoes, 862,602 tons of hay, and 1,196,175 gallons of wine.

The public debts of the seven Colonies in Australasia at the end of 1882 amounted to £99,219,682, or an average of £33 15s. 9d. per head of population, incurred for the construction of railways and other public works, and the consequent development of the varied resources of the several Colonies. The expenditure of the several Colonies in 1882 amounted to £20,056,823, against revenue to the amount of £22,064,108, leaving a surplus of £2,007,285 for that year.

Out of the 1,986,345,600 acres contained in the Colonies, only 192,926,459 acres had been alienated at the end of 1882, leaving 1,893,419,141 acres unalienated. This large public estate alone gives ample security for any loans that may be required for national purposes.

SETTLEMENT, POSITION, AND EXTENT.

Discovered by Captain Cook in 1770, and first settled in 1788, New South Wales dates its prosperity from the commencement of the present century, when the introduction of the merino sheep by Captain Macarthur rapidly led to the settlement of the country for pastoral and industrial pursuits. In 1851 the south-western districts of New South Wales were formed into the Colony of Victoria; and in 1859 its northern districts into the Colony of Queensland.

The boundaries are marked by 28° 10' and 37° 28' south latitude, and by the 141° east longitude and the Pacific Ocean. The total superficial area is estimated at 195,882,150 acres. The coast-line from Point Danger to Cape Howe is about 700 miles long. The extreme breadth is about 850 miles, and mean breadth 600 miles. The greatest length is 900 miles.

PHYSICAL ASPECT.

There is considerable diversity of physical aspect in this large extent of country. At a distance varying from 25 to 120 miles from the seaboard, a range of mountains, from 3,000 to 7,000 feet in height, stretches from north to south, throwing out spurs in every direction. Numerous streams flow down the eastern slopes into the sea, while the large rivers, Murrumbidgee, Murray, Lachlan, Darling, and Macquarie, with their tributaries, drain the western slopes. The coast-line is indented with fine harbours, one of which, Port Jackson, on which Sydney the capital is situated, is unsurpassed by any in the world.

NATURAL

NATURAL DIVISIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

The principal great natural divisions of the country are the eastern seaboard territory, the central range, and the western plains. The seaboard districts undulate with hill and valley, and possess rich alluvial flats adapted to every kind of cultivation. Much of this portion rests on a vast basin of coal. Beyond the coal areas the country abounds in gold, copper, lead, tin, and other minerals. The extensive western slopes and plains are specially adapted for pastoral and agricultural pursuits. Millions of sheep, cattle, and horses are fed upon the natural grasses of the country.

CLIMATE AND HEALTH.

Situated in the temperate zone, the climate of New South Wales approximates generally to that of southern Europe. There are all varieties of climate, while the range of the thermometer is much less than in any country within the same parallels of latitude in the northern hemisphere. The climate is healthy; the air is clear, the light brilliant, the sky for a great part of the year almost cloudless, and the nights usually cool. The mean annual temperature of Sydney is 62·4 degrees. In vital statistics the Colony compares favourably with most parts of the world, and instances of great longevity are numerous. Births per 1,000 of mean population in 1882 average 37·0 per cent.; deaths, 16; and marriages, 9. The excess of births over deaths amounted to 151·33 per cent. Meteorological observations at Sydney during 1882:—Height of thermometer: Highest in shade, 99° 9' Fahr. Lowest in shade, 38° 9' Fahr. Maximum in December. Minimum in July. Range 61°.

NOTE.—Sydney Observatory is 155 feet above sea level. Rainfall, total years, 1879, 63·2; 1880, 29·4; 1881, 40·8; 1882, 42·197.

An absurd impression prevails in many parts of the United Kingdom that a prolonged residence in Australia is followed by a permanent darkening of the complexion, and that many children born of white parents have tawny skins. As a matter of fact there is little difference between the complexion of residents in Sydney and London.

GOVERNMENT.

New South Wales has a Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Parliament consisting of two Houses, the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The Parliament is invested with plenary powers, subject to the reservation of the Queen's assent by the Governor, to a certain class of measures affecting imperial and other interests.

The Members of the Legislative Council hold their seats for life, and are appointed by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council.

The Legislative Assembly consists of 113 Members, elected by universal suffrage and vote by ballot. Parliaments are triennial.

The Executive Government consists of nine Members as follows:—

The Colonial Secretary,
The Colonial Treasurer,
The Secretary for Lands,
The Secretary for Public Works,
The Minister of Public Instruction,
The Minister of Justice,
The Secretary of Mines,
The Attorney-General,
The Postmaster-General.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

The laws are substantially identical with those of Great Britain. The Supreme Court has, as regards the Colony, all the powers which are vested in the superior Courts of England. There are five Judges—the Chief Justice and four Puisne Judges.

Besides the fixed Courts in the metropolis, Circuit Courts are regularly held in the principal towns of the interior, to try civil and criminal cases. District Courts and Courts of Quarter Sessions are held in Sydney and the principal country towns, presided over by six District Court Judges. In addition to this there are 241 Courts of Petty Sessions.

The Police Force consists of 1,328 officers and men, distributed over 382 stations.

The administration of justice and the protection of life and property are thus amply secured.

INCREASE OF POPULATION.

The progress of the population and its number at the end of the last five decades may be seen from the following figures:—

In 1841 there were 149,669.
" 1851 " " 197,168 after the separation of Victoria which took away 68,335.
" 1861 " " 358,278, after the separation of Queensland which took away 25,000.
" 1871 " " 519,182.
" 1881 " " 781,265.
" 1882 " " 817,468.

At present the population is about 820,000, and is rapidly increasing. Last year there was a net gain of 36,203 persons. The increase in population was 49·10 per cent. during the last ten years, or 4·91 per cent. annually; but in such a vast country, abounding in wealth and resources, there is ample room for a very large population.

Estimated population on 31st December, 1882:—

Males ... ..	449,312
Females... ..	368,126
Total ... ..	817,468

The

The proportion of the sexes is, males 54·71, and females 45·29 per cent. The nationalities of those resident in New South Wales at the taking of the census in April, 1881, were as follows:—

Born in New South Wales ... ..	465,559
Born in other Australian Colonies ... ..	44,708
Aborigines (civilized) ... ..	1,643
Born in Great Britain, Ireland, and other British possessions ... ..	208,512

Total ... ..	869,310

Total number of births, deaths, and marriages, and proportionate number per thousand of estimated mean population:—

Marriages ... ..	6,948	" "	9

At the Census of 1881 there were 135,326 inhabited houses, 6,016 houses not inhabited, and 2,398 houses in course of construction. Comparing the increase in the number of the habitations of the people during the last two decennial periods, there was an increase of 45,133 for 1872-81, against 34,036 in the previous decade. The returns also indicate that the buildings erected of late years are of a thoroughly substantial character, there being an increase of 15,920 stone or brick houses for the period 1871-81, against 9,858 for 1861-71.

EMIGRATION.

Emigrants are selected by the Agent-General or his officers in London, and selection is limited to such adults as can pay towards the cost of their passage as follows:—£6 for each married couple; single men £4 each, and £2 each for single women. Children under three years of age, in charge of their parents, have a free passage; and children of three and under fourteen years are charged for at the rate of £1 each. The selection is made from England, Scotland, and Ireland, as far as practicable, proportionately to the number of people of these nationalities already in the Colony, as shown by the last Census; but 10 per cent. may be selected from other European countries. Sound health and good moral character are indispensable qualifications. Married couples must not exceed forty years of age, and are taken with or without children; unmarried men or women must not exceed thirty-five years of age; and not more than one-third of the whole number of adults shall be unmarried men. When the age exceeds these limits the contribution for passage money is increased to £15. Mechanics, farmers, miners, vine-dressers, labourers, and domestic servants are chosen with a special view to the requirements of the industrial callings of the Colony. Small working capitalists in any branch of Colonial industry are deemed highly eligible. Families with a preponderance of very young children are considered ineligible. (See Appendices III and IV.)

Deposits may be made either with the Agent-General in London, or with the Agent for Immigration or Clerks of Petty Sessions in the Colony. Deposits paid in the Colony are returned when from a just cause the persons in whose behalf they have been made do not emigrate, unless in cases of fraud or concealment of facts, or (in the case of persons who have made their deposits within the three Kingdoms) when a passage has been actually provided, but an emigrant may be authorised to remain for another ship. Deposits in excess are returned.

On arrival in the Colony, married couples, children and single men are permitted to remain on board ship five clear days if necessary; unmarried women are provided for in the Immigrants' Home for ten days. Immigrants desiring to proceed into country districts within five clear days of their arrival are allowed free passes by rail or steamer. Every possible information is afforded to immigrants on their arrival in Sydney by the Government Immigration Agent, and only persons of known respectability are permitted by the Government to attend at the Depot for the purpose of engaging female servants.

An Act was lately passed for restricting the influx of Chinese.

Total number of Immigrants for year 1882 .....	47,289 persons
" " Emigrants " .....	27,972 "
Gain to Colony by excess of Immigration .....	19,317 persons.

These returns relate to persons arriving and departing by sea only.

In New South Wales mechanics and those accustomed to agricultural or pastoral work can readily obtain employment in any part of the country districts at remunerative wages; but clerks, book-keepers, shop assistants, and others of the same class, will experience much difficulty in bettering their condition, while those in search of a "light, genteel occupation" would find themselves invariably doomed to disappointment.

Probably there is no class of emigrants more desired, or more desirable, or to whom generally, with judicious conduct, New South Wales offers more attractions or better opportunities, than the middle class of small capitalists. What can be done, generally, with small capital—say, a few hundreds or thousands—in Great Britain? What, in a great many cases, but to put it out at very low interest, which gives no saving or return worth speaking of for a life-time, or to live upon, or use, or waste it, till it is all gone? No doubt this process may be adopted in the Australian Colonies, and often is, though perhaps not quite so unprofitably as elsewhere, because in the meantime experience is acquired, which, although the phrase phrase "learning Colonial experience" often conveys a sneer at the follies of new-comers, is really worth something in Australia, as in every new country. The colonist who rushes into speculation, or investment immediately upon landing, might in general just as well throw his money into the sea. It is almost sure in such cases to be sunk in unprofitable enterprises and speculations, which of course are as common in the colonies as elsewhere. No doubt there are good as well as bad bargains, in mines, farms, stations, and so forth; but all investment is a mere lottery to the inexperienced. The wisest plan for capitalists of this description is to enter into some employment, keeping their capitals locked up, or at interest, which is readily procurable upon good security at from 6 to 7 per cent., and sometimes even upon bank deposits at a very little lower rate, and thus to give themselves time and opportunity to look about them and judge for themselves. Better for them even to work at low wages, or to help a friend for nothing, than to attempt too soon the luxury of being their own masters. No greater mistake than for emigrants to plunge at once into farming, as the word is understood in England. In Australia, generally speaking, farming means and is something very different from the English notion of the term. Even if it were the same it itself, it is obvious that differences of soil, climate, and seasons would have to be studied and taken into account. The number of men who, beginning with small or comparatively no means, have made their way to wealth or fortune in the Australian Colonies, as overseers, superintendents, or managers of the estates or property of others, as compared with those who, from similar beginnings, have succeeded exclusively on their own account by independent enterprise or exertion, forms a remarkable feature in Colonial history or experience.

The best evidence of the success of industrious persons who have emigrated to the Colony is the fact that every vessel brings considerable remittances to enable their friends and relatives to join them.

The following is a statement of the average rate of wages ruling in the Colony 1884, but are liable to fluctuation—

The Australian Building Trades.

In New South Wales Mechanics are paid by the day of eight hours.

Carpenters .....	9/ to 11/ (city), 11/ (suburbs).	Joiners .....	9/ to 11/
Stonemasons .....	11/ to 12/	Plumbers .....	11/ to 12/
Stonemasons' labourers .....	8/ to 9/	Gasfitters .....	9/ to 11/
Plasterers .....	10/ to 12/	Smiths .....	9/ to 11/
Plasterers' labourers .....	8/ to 9/	Wheelwrights—	1/ per hour, city ;
Bricklayers .....	11/ to 13/		£3 10s. per week, country.
Bricklayers' labourers.....	8/ to 10/	Sawmill hands .....	9/ to 1/ per hour.
Painters .....	8/ to 10/

At the present time the building trades are very active, and good, steady men having a knowledge of their business can readily obtain work.

Lodging and board for working men, 18/ to 21/ per week.

Agricultural Wages in New South Wales.

	Per annum.		Per annum.
Married Couples (without incumbrance) .....	£65 to £85	Stockmen .....	£40 to £75
Farm labourers .....	40 to 52	Shepherds .....	35 to 45
Horse-team drivers .....	40 to 65	Gardeners .....	40 to 52
Boundary-riders .....	40 to 52	Useful boys .....	25 to 35

These rates include board and lodging. Good steady hands are much valued, and are treated well by their employers.

Ploughmen .....	Per annum, with board and lodging.	£40 to £52

THE LAND.

The leading principles of the existing Land system are—conditional selection before survey over all unreserved lands, and deferred payments. Conditional purchases of not less than 40 nor more than 640 acres may be made by any person not under sixteen years of age; and so soon as the conditions of residence are fulfilled a further area of 640 acres can be selected, and adjoining land to the extent of three times the area of the purchase or purchases may be taken up under pre-emptive lease, at an annual rental of £2 per section of 640 acres.

Applications for conditional purchases must be accompanied by a deposit of 5s. per acre. The balance of the purchase-money, 15s. per acre, may rest for three years without interest; and if not paid then, or within three months thereafter, payments may be deferred from year to year, subject to interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. Payments may be made by instalments of 1s. per acre, and two or more such payments may be made in any year—until the debt—principal and interest—shall be extinguished. Residence for five years is required, and improvements to the extent of 10s. per acre must be made. Pastoral tenants may purchase, under the right of improvement, limited portions of their runs. The total area of land alienated by grant or sale amounts to 40,363,767 acres, and there still remained unalienated 158,484,233 acres on the 31st December, 1882. There have been conditionally purchased 16,138,819 acres. The law offers every facility for the acquirement of land. Land titles, once registered under Torrens' Act, can never be questioned.

ROADS, RAILWAYS, AND TRAMWAYS.

At present New South Wales is expending large sums annually on permanent Public works. More than 23,522 miles of common roads are open, affording intercommunication with every part of the interior and greatly facilitating the carrying of farm and other produce to the best markets. About £5,000,000 have been spent in ten years on common roads alone, and construction is still rapidly going on. Mail coaches run through every district. During the last quarter of a century more than 50 miles of public bridges have been constructed. About 5,000 miles of road are metalled, 1,600 miles are graded mountain passes, and the remainder for the most part drained and cleared, with bridges where required. There are eighty-seven public ferries, four of which are worked by steam, and the number is yearly increasing, notwithstanding that many of the most important are being replaced by iron and stone bridges.

The Australian colonies are rapidly developing their respective railway systems; but it is in New South Wales—the oldest, richest, and most prosperous of the Australasian group—that the rate of railway development is most marked. New South Wales has three lines of railway, the Southern, the Western, and the Northern.

Railways were commenced in New South Wales by a private Company. In 1855 the Government obtained an Act enabling it to purchase the railways and plant of the Company, and since that time railway construction has been carried on almost exclusively by the Government. The central mountain range delayed the progress of construction, by presenting great engineering difficulties, but these have been overcome, and lines now cross the range north, south, and west. The Great Northern line starts from Newcastle, and has been opened to Armidale, a distance of 260 miles in a north-easterly direction, and to Narrabri 252 miles to the north-west, and is under construction to Tenterfield, 122 miles beyond Armidale. It is intended to connect the Main Northern line with Queensland on the north and Sydney on the south. The Great Western and the Great Southern lines both start from Sydney. The former, passing through Bathurst, the capital of the west, has been finished to Nyngan, a distance of 372 miles, and is under construction to Bourke on the river Darling, a distance from Sydney of 503 miles. The latter, through Goulburn, an important town, has reached Albury, the Border town between New South Wales and Victoria, a distance of 386 miles to the south, and Hay, 454 miles to the south-west, and will probably before long be extended to the borders of South Australia. The number of miles of railway opened in 1881 was 274½, including extensions on the Great Northern and North-western lines, Great Southern line and Great Western line.

In 1871 there were 358 miles of railway open for traffic. At the close of 1882 there were 1,321½ miles in working order, and 889 in course of construction or about being commenced, forming a total of 2,210½ miles. Money borrowed by the Colony is expended in the construction of public works, the greater part of the manufactured materials used being obtained from the United Kingdom. During 1882 the quantity of railway material reaching Sydney and Newcastle from the United Kingdom was 41,318 tons, valued at over £447,430, and necessitating the employment of no less than 153 steam and sailing vessels.

The last link of the intercolonial line from Sydney to Melbourne, consisting of a mile or two of railway and an expensive bridge over the River Murray, which separates the Colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, will soon be completed. The Great Southern and Great Western lines and the Great Northern line are to be connected to unite the whole railway system of the Colony, and, when gaps are filled up, complete railway connection between the several Colonies on the Australian continent. Coast lines running north and south from the capital, and branches to act as feeders to the main lines are being extended in various directions. At the end of 1882 there were 1,268½ miles of railway open in New South Wales.* As the railways in New South Wales belong to the Government, they can always be made to pay interest upon the cost of construction. In 1882 the entire earnings were £1,698,863, and the working expenses £934,635, yielding a net return of £764,228, or nearly 5½ per cent. For 1882 the revenue received received from railways and tramways was £1,825,064. When it is taken into account that money to make these lines can be borrowed for 4 per cent., the returns received from their operation will be seen to be very satisfactory. The railways of the Colony are amongst the most substantial in the world, some of the iron bridges and viaducts being extremely costly. The Zig-zag, which occurs on the Great Western line, near the summit level, is a most skilful engineering work. The passenger accommodation is unusually complete, including comfortable sleeping-cars. The total amount of money expended on Government Railways in New South Wales to the end of 1882 was £15,338,494, and the expenditure on unfinished lines to the end of the year was £1,438,149.

In order to accommodate the great passenger traffic to the Sydney International Exhibition of 1879, a steam tramway was laid down from the Redfern Railway Station to the vicinity of the Garden Palace, and the success attending the experiment led to the construction of tramway lines to several of the suburbs of the city. Twelve miles of tramway were open in 1881, and 7,090,125 passengers carried. During this year the tramway coaching receipts were £62,549, and the expenditure £52,107, leaving £10,442 as net earnings over working expenses.

On the 31st December, 1882, the tramways in the city and suburbs of Sydney were 22 miles in length, and surveys were being made for further extensions. The tramways in the Colony are propelled by steam locomotives. In a report by Mr. William Scott (Locomotive Engineer to the New South Wales Government), he stated that both the motors and cars in Sydney are better adapted for their work than any he had seen, and certainly compared most favourably in construction and accommodation with those used on English and continental lines. During this year the passenger fares reached the large total of 15,269,100, equal to 986,400 per average mile of line, while the earnings were equal to £8,142 per average mile of line, results which exceed any published tramway transactions in any part of the world.

Some idea of the progress of tramways in New South Wales may be inferred from the fact that in Sydney, on New Year's Day, the number of fares collected on the city tramways was 151,975; the total value of the cash fares collected was £321 18s. 10d., and the value of ticket fares was £989 15s. 11d.

MUNICIPALITIES.

In six years the ratable value of municipal property in New South Wales has doubled. In 1882 the municipalities of New South Wales collected a total revenue of £591,957. That of Sydney alone being £289,244, including the water and sewerage services. The estimated annual value of ratable property in the suburban and country municipalities amounted to £2,286,611, and in Sydney to £1,490,357.

The estimated value of the ratable property in the various municipal districts of New South Wales, at the close of 1882, was £28,747,646. This is exclusive of Sydney, the annual city rate of which, during 1882, yielded over £108,198.

POST OFFICES AND TELEGRAPHS.

Wherever there is a township there is a post office, and every village in the interior has its postal communication. The postage on letters within New South Wales is 2d. per  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz., excepting the City of Sydney and within a radius of 10 miles thereof, for which the postage charge is 1d., while newspapers are carried free. The average number of letters posted in the Colony in proportion to its population in 1882, was thirty-six to each person, a fact which indicates much commercial activity and intelligence.

The Ocean mails are carried by the Peninsular and Oriental S.N. Co., via Colombo and Melbourne; by the Pacific Mail Steamship Co., via San Francisco; by the Queensland Royal Steamers, via Torres Straits; by the Orient S.N. Telegraph lines intersect the country in every direction, and a message of ten words, exclusive of the address, the latter being free, can be sent to any part of the Colony for 1s. There were open the following lines in—

	Stations.	Miles of Wire.	Messages.
1871	89	5,579	218,530
1881	318	14,278	1,607,206
1882	345	15,901	1,965,931

The total cost of construction was £536,400.

Telegrams from all parts of the world are published daily in the newspapers.

In 1873 the number of money orders issued in the Colony was 92,744, representing a total value of £420,294 4s. In 1882 the number, which has steadily increased every year, was 247,716, representing a total amount of 888,523 14s. 5d.

EDUCATION.

The Educational system of New South Wales is under the control of the Minister of Public Instruction. Teachers are recognised as Civil servants, are paid by fixed salaries, and are appointed by the Government in the Colony. The school fees are paid into the Treasury as revenue. In addition to Public Schools, Evening Public Schools, Provisional Schools, and Superior Public Schools have been established established, and itinerant teachers and work-mistresses are provided for. The necessary steps are also being taken to establish High Schools where practicable. The Colony is apportioned for purposes of inspection into one metropolitan and six country districts, under a Chief Inspector and District Inspectors. A Chief Examiner supervises the training school for candidates, and, with his assistants, reports upon the papers of teachers seeking a higher classification. The school attendance and payment officer attends to the payment of fees, and to the obligatory attendance of children between six and fourteen years of age. The school fee is 3d. per week per child. Provision is made for the education of children who are unable to pay school fees, and for schools for neglected children. A Local Board is appointed for each school district. Public Schools are erected wholly at the expense of the Government. Denominational Schools have ceased to be supported by the State, but general religious instruction is provided for. Clergyman of the various denominations are entitled to appropriate one hour a day for religious instruction in the tenets of their respective churches. During the last twenty years over £3,200,000 has been expended on Primary Schools, giving an average of £160,000 per annum, or 5s. 9½d. per head of the mean population. In 1881 the Parliamentary grant for public instruction was £525,865, or 14s. per head of population. One of the best proof of the educational progress of New South Wales is shown by the fact that the percentage of illiterates over ten years of age to the total population declined from 29·57 per cent. in 1861 to 22·74 in 1871, and to 14·51 in 1881. In 1882 189,141 children attended the Public Schools, and there were 19,746 pupils in Private Schools. The amount placed on Estimates is for this year £710,284.

The University of Sydney was established and endowed in 1851. Its annual income from public funds is £5,000, which is largely added to by special votes and private donations. It has the power of granting degrees in arts, law, medicine, and science. Recently several faculties have been added to its curriculum. Graduates are entitled to the same rank, style, and precedence as those of Universities within the United Kingdom. The Sydney University has several Denominational Colleges affiliated to it. In the metropolis there is a Public Grammar School and a Technical College for working men, and in the country towns over a hundred Mechanics' Schools of Art. There are also a Royal Society, a Medical, a Linnean, and an Art Society, with many other Educational Associations of a like character. The New South Wales Government have just initiated a system of technical education, based largely upon that represented by the Department of Science and Art at South Kensington. In 1883 the amount expended for purposes of Technical Education in the Colony was £10,000; this year it is proposed to increase it to £25,000. The Fine Art Gallery of New South Wales is a kindred institution to the English National Gallery, and already there has been made an excellent and somewhat extensive collection of paintings, drawings, and sculpture, to which the admission is free. The Parliament votes £5,000 annually to be spent in works of art, and this amount is supplemented by donations. The present gallery is only a temporary building, but the Government is about to erect an edifice that will be worthy of its great object and of the Colony. The Art Society of New South Wales has exhibitions of original productions twice a year, and has become the nucleus of an Australian School of Art.

SOCIAL CONDITION.

Nearly all European institutions have firmly rooted themselves in New South Wales. All phases of society and every religious body have their representatives here, as in England. Every town, and almost every interest, has its newspaper; and banks have been established wherever a sufficient population has concentrated. The laws are efficiently administered, and life and property are eminently secure.

The religious persuasions at the taking of the Census of 1881 were as follows:—Church of England, 342,359; Lutherans, 4,836; Presbyterians, 72,545; Wesleyan Methodists, 57,049; other Methodists, 7,303; Congregationalists, 14,328; Baptists, 7,307; Unitarians, 828; other Protestants, 9,957; total Protestants, 516,512; Roman Catholics, 207,020; Catholics undescrbed, 586; total Catholics, 207,606; Hebrews, 3,266; other persuasions, 1,042; unspecified persuasions, 13,697; Pagans, 9,345. In 1882 there were 768 ministers of religion and 1,420 churches, with an average attendance at public worship of 226,134 persons. The Sunday Schools have 102,141 scholars on their registers.

The total military and naval expenditure of New South Wales during 1882 was £151,920 16s. 4d.

AMUSEMENTS.

The short hours of labour which people in most trades and professions enjoy, and the Saturday half-holiday which has been granted to the employees of most of the principal establishments, have done much to add to the enjoyment of the people and to afford them opportunities of improving their physical constitution and powers. Parks and recreation grounds have been reserved for their use; these, with a delightful climate, offer every inducement for outdoor pleasures, horse-racing, coursing, kangaroo hunting, cricket, yachting, rowing, fishing, and bicycling are among the amusements existing in New South Wales. Theatres and lecture halls also present attractions sufficient to draw large concourses of people. The Bank Holiday has become an institution of the Colony, and numerous persons are found who make it their business to cater for the enjoyment of the public, and picnics and excursions are as popular at the Antipodes as in England.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

New South Wales is most advantageously situated for purposes of trade and commerce. It is the centre of the group of Australasian Colonies and the entrepôt of the trade of the islands in the South Pacific, and is in easy and constant communication with all parts of the world. More than one-half of the Australian shipping is owned in the Colony. The inward and outward tonnage of 4,357 vessels engaged in the trade in 1881 was 2,786,500 tons, against 1,500,479 tons in 1871.*

That the last ten years are worthy of being termed a decade of prosperity for the Colony will be seen by noting the increases shown by the following figures:—

	Aggregate Import Trade.	Aggregate Export Trade.	Together.

* Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared (1882), exclusive of coasting trade—3,296,665.

The trade of New South Wales expanded from £158,981,232 in 1862-71 to £262,679,613 in 1872-81, an increase of £103,000,000, or 65 per cent. on the latter period. The relative growth of imports and exports was as follows:—

	1862-71.	1872-81.	Increase.
Imports	£84,832,363	£133,070,409	£48,238,046
Exports	74,148,876	129,609,204	55,460,328

The yearly average for the two decennial periods was—

	1862-71.	1872-81.	Increase.
Imports	£8,483,236	£13,307,040	£4,924,804

	£74,148,876	£129,609,204

Although the trade between the Australasian Colonies and Great Britain was very large, that between the Colonies themselves was even greater, and immense good has been effected by this commercial interchange.

The total value of the trade in 1882 amounted to—Imports, £21,281,130; Exports, £16,716,961; or in all £37,998,091, with a balance in favour of Imports of £4,564,169. These figures exhibit an import trade of £26 13s. 9d. and an export trade of £20 19s. 3d. per head of the population, which is higher than those of any other Colony of the Australasian group, both in the aggregate amount and in value per head of the population. The Imports from the United Kingdom amounted to £11,155,917, and the Exports to £7,309,691. Trade with the other British Possessions was—Imports, £7,924,473; and Exports to £8,200,396. Imports from Foreign States amounted to £2,200,734, and Exports to £1,206,874.

Foreign Imports were principally from the United States, £886,171; France, £98,176; Germany, £180,951; Belgium, £39,951; China, £358,783; Java, £227,818; New Caledonia, £273,370; Japan, £150; South Sea Islands, £49,185; Philippine Islands, £29,004; Manilla, £24,754. The Exports to the United States were valued at £676,598; New Caledonia, £228,280; South Sea Islands, £53,718; Honolulu, £83,722; China, £28,958; Antwerp, £21,659.

The following table exhibits the increase of trade, compared with the Census population, in decennial periods:—

	Population at Census.	Trade.	Per head.
1841 .....	130,856	£3,551,385	£27 2 9
		After giving up Victoria,
1851 .....	187,243	£3,360,843	17 18 11

1871 .....	503,981	20,854,540	41 7 7
1881 .....	751,468	33,458,829	44 10 5

The public revenue has increased from £532,718 in 1851 to £7,410,737 in 1882. Of the latter amount about £1,515,000 was obtained from Customs, £228,138 from stamps, and £116,932 from licenses. The land sales amounted to £2,914,394, and the receipts from the national railways to £1,698,863. The revenue from taxation is officially given at £2 7s. 8d. per head of the population for 1882. The tariff, which is established for purposes of revenue only, is one of the simplest in Australasia, free trade being the avowed policy of the Colony. (See Appendix II.)

The industrial stability of the Colony is manifested by the operations of its Banks, as during the past decade their progress far exceeded the increase in population, their circulation having nearly doubled, their deposits and advances more than doubled, and their coin and bullion reached nearly half as much again. At the close of 1882, the deposits in the New South Wales Banks amounted to £25,089,891 sterling. Deposits in the Savings' Banks during the last ten years have increased per head of population from £1 17s. 6d. to £3 12s., and the large amounts to the credit of the depositors clearly show the existence of both prosperity and thrift amongst the working classes, the total number of depositors being 42,274, with a credit of £1,856,641. The Public Debt of New South Wales on the 31st December, 1882, amounted to £18,721,219.*

Australian Earnings.—The earning power of the Australian community is greater than that of any other population in the world. According to Mr. G. Mulhall, F.S.S., the annual earnings per head in Australia are over £43, as against £35 in the United Kingdom, £27 in the United States, £26 in Canada and Holland, and £25 in France. The rate of wages is highest in New South Wales, where it exceeds £50 per head per annum. This causes the saving power of Australia to largely exceed that of other countries, the annual savings per head being—in Australia, £6 15s., while in the United Kingdom it is £4 4s., in the United States £3 17s., in France, £3 13s., in Canada £3 3s., and in Holland £2 2s.

Working-class Land and House Owners in New South Wales.—The percentage of the wage-earning class owning land or house property is very large, and as great, if not greater, than any other country in the world.

MAIL ROUTES.

Mail communication has been improved by the establishment of several important ocean services, some subsidized by one or more of the Colonies, and others maintained by private enterprise. Amongst the subsidized lines is one between Sydney and San Francisco, maintained by the Colonies of New South Wales and New Zealand jointly. This line enables regular four-weekly communication to be maintained between Sydney and the United Kingdom by way of America, and affords great commercial advantages, as well as supplying a very convenient means of passenger traffic. The other subsidized lines are, one from Melbourne, by way of Suez, once a week; and one from Brisbane, by way of Torres Straits and Suez, monthly. There is regular fortnightly communication by the Peninsular and Oriental Company and the Orient Steam Navigation Company's steamers alternating every fortnight, thus giving a weekly mail service. The steamers of the Orient Company have made the voyage between London and Sydney in 42 days; but, owing to railway communication between Sydney and Melbourne, mails are delivered in the former city under 40 days from London, and have been recently in 35 days.

RIVERS AND HARBOURS.

Besides the rivers which flow into the Pacific, the mouths of which form seaports available for trade, there are several harbours along the coast. The coast-line is well lighted from north to south, the Macquarie Light, at South Head, Sydney, being the most powerful electric light in the world, and large sums of money are annually spent in improvements connected with the harbours and rivers. Storm signals are placed on all the principal promontories, which, together with the seaports, are connected with Sydney by telegraph. The following are the principal harbours:—

Trial Bay, midway between Sydney and Queensland, is an excellent refuge for all classes of ships during S. and S.E. gales.

Port Stephens, 25 miles north of Newcastle, runs into the country due west for about 14 miles, and has even a larger water area than Port Jackson.

Newcastle, at the mouth of the Hunter, is the great coal port of the Colony, and is provided with every modern steam and hydraulic appliance for loading coal. Vessels of 2,000 tons burthen can berth there.

Broken Bay, 16 miles north of Sydney Heads, at the mouth of the Hawkesbury, is a fine harbour with a bold entrance, but inferior to Port Jackson in the draught of water at the entrance.

Port Jackson, unsurpassed in the world, is separately described. (See below.)

Botany Bay, 8 miles south of Sydney, and connected therewith by tramway, has an area of 20 square miles.

Jervis Bay, a large and sheltered bay in the south, is at present mainly resorted to as a harbour of refuge.

Two-fold Bay, in the south, is 5 miles from east to west, and 3 miles broad.

Besides the above there are Wollongong, Kiama, Shoalhaven, Ulladulla, and Moruya, small harbours on the south-east coast, where breakwaters, wharves, and jetties, adapted to the coasting trade, have been constructed. Most of the southern ports are being connected with the metropolis by railway.

The works for providing Sydney with an abundant supply of fresh water are being rapidly carried out, and will prove invaluable to the metropolitan district for sanitary and manufacturing purposes. The long tunnel to connect the waters of the Nepean and Cordeaux Rivers with those of the Cataract will be 4 miles 2,387 feet in length, of which 2,990 yards have been already driven, and it will be capable of discharging 97 million gallons of water daily. The Cataract Tunnel, commencing at the Cataract River at Broughton Pass, will terminate near the road at Brook's Point, and, when completed, will be 9,724 feet in length, and capable of discharging 155 million gallons per day. A sum of £250,000 has been authorized for supplying country towns with water, and about a fifth of this amount has been already expended to meet the pressing requirements of the mining townships in the northern, and of many of the principal towns in the southern and western districts.

SYDNEY AND ITS HARBOUR.

The magnificent expanse of water called Port Jackson, with its lake-like scenery, stretching some miles inland, is unrivalled as a harbour both for beauty and convenience. The high and rocky coast of the Pacific is suddenly broken, and the cliffs form a portal to an estuary of sufficient capacity to shelter all the navies in the world. So completely is the harbour shut in that, until an entrance is fairly effected, its capacity and safety cannot be conjectured. A vessel making the port sails in a few moments out of the long swell of the ocean into calm deep water, protected on every side by high lands. The elevated shore is broken into innumerable bays and inlets, extending inland for miles. Some of the bays form of themselves capacious harbours. The depth of water is sufficient for the largest ships afloat. The harbour of Port Jackson proper has an area of 9 square miles, Middle Harbour, one of its arms, 3 square miles, and the shore line of the whole is 54 miles. From the heads to the city the distance is 4 miles, beyond which the waters extend for 8 miles further. The breadth varies from three-quarters of a mile to over 2 miles. There are nearly 5 miles of Government and private wharves.

The greatest length of the city, including the suburbs, is about 4 miles north and south, and the greatest breadth about 6 miles east and west. There are more than 100 miles of streets, including minor thoroughfares. The population, including the suburbs, is 225,000, and is rapidly increasing, especially especially in the suburbs. The Botanic Gardens, Government Domain, Hyde Park, Prince Alfred Park, Belmore Park, Victoria Park, Wentworth Park, Moore Park, and other reserves in the city, with an area of nearly 800 acres, furnish ornamental grounds easily accessible for recreation.

Handsome and commodious public offices, banks, warehouses, and buildings of every kind are now being erected; indeed the City of Sydney, generally, may be said to be undergoing a process of reconstruction, and will in a short period vie with any city in the world, not only as regards the beauty of its situation but also in the architectural skill displayed in the design and execution of its public buildings.

The number of buildings commenced in Sydney during the period from November, 1879, to November, 1883, was 3,719, covering an area of 66 acres, and comprising 1883 dwelling-houses, 426 shops, 734 additions to existing premises, 18 hotels, 346 warehouses, 83 workshops, 93 sheds, 90 stables, 8 churches and schools, and 38 offices. Not bad for a young city.

PASTORAL WEALTH AND PROGRESS.

Probably no other country in the world has such resources or can show such progress in pastoral enterprise as New South Wales. Natural pastures exist all over the Colony, but especially in the western districts, where many varieties of the best fattening grasses, herbage, and salt-bush flourish. The pastoral holdings are constantly increasing in value, and very remunerative prices are being obtained for wool and live stock. The total area leased for pastoral purposes in 1882 is returned at 227,756 square miles, the rent being £306,948. There were 4,337 pastoral runs in 1882, some of them over 300,000 acres in extent. There are many men in the Colony who beginning life as shepherds have realised wealth and affluence, and thousands have made competent incomes, while several of the "squatters" developed into landed proprietors, possess more than 100,000 sheep depastured on their own freehold estates.

The total clip of wool in New South Wales for the year 1882, according to the number of sheep, would be 29,505,143 sheep shorn in the grease, average clip 5 lbs. per sheep = 147,525,715 lbs.; 273,600 sheep, hot water and spout, average clip 3 lbs. per sheep = 820,800 lbs.; 1,780,984 sheep, creek-washed, average clip 2 lbs. 14 ozs. per sheep = 5,120,329 lbs.; 323,900 sheep, scoured, average clip, 2 lbs. 9½ ozs. = 840,115 lbs. Lambs:—3,814,788 lambs shorn in the grease, average clip, 1 lb. 14½ ozs. per lamb, 7,271,940 lbs.; 102,300 lambs, washed, average clip per lamb, 1 lb. 4½ ozs. = 131,391 lbs. Total clip, 161,710,290 lbs.

LIVE STOCK.

The fine-woolled sheep of the Colony came originally from the choicest flocks of France, Spain, and Saxony. In the process of acclimatisation there has been a very decided improvement in the softness, elasticity, and length of the wool, and lately, by careful culling, a considerable increase in the weight. The average clip is from 5½ to 6 lbs. of greasy, and about 3 lbs. of washed wool. The average lambing is 80 per cent. The total increases in the number of sheep for the Australasian Colonies for the twenty years from 1861 to 1880 inclusive, are computed by the Chief Inspector of Stock to be as follows:—New South Wales, 628 per cent.; Victoria, 40½ per cent.; South Australia, 112½ per cent.; Queensland, 70½ per cent.; Tasmania, 4½ per cent.; New Zealand, 474 per cent.

Those who have imported and used Austrian and German stud sheep find that the tendency of the country and climate is to gradually add to the length of the staple without much increasing the stoutness of the fibre; retaining at the same time its soundness, softness, and colour, and even improving in that lustre and fineness which makes a combing wool specially valuable. The coarse-woolled sheep are chiefly depastured in the Coast districts, where they thrive better than the merinos. Three-year-wethers of this breed weigh when killed from 160 lbs. to 200 lbs. each.

The production of wool has been largely increased in New South Wales by fencing and subdividing the runs, utilizing the outside country, and providing a better water supply by means of dams and reservoirs, so that this industry is in a far better position than it was twenty years ago. The value of the export of wool from New South Wales amounted to £7,433,091 in 1882, as compared with £4,748,160 in 1871.

At the close of 1882 there were in the Colony 25,220,744 combing and 85,86,300 clothing merino sheep. There were also 777,894 Lincolns, 622,844 Leicesters, 61,743 Southdowns, 4,524 Romney Marsh, and 840,755 crossbreds.

Amongst the long-woolled sheep of New South Wales, the Lincoln is said, in a large majority of the districts, to give the best returns in wool and in weight of mutton; the cross-breed sheep being second.

The rapid development of the pastoral interest is shown by the following figures giving the number of sheep in the Colony during each of the twenty-one years from 1861 to 1882. These figures are taken from the Returns issued under the Sheep Act and differ from those given by the Registrar-General:—

The diminution in the number of sheep during 1882 is explained by the large number forwarded to newly opened pastoral districts in other Colonies, especially Queensland.

In 1881 the value of pastoral exports, including wool, tallow, skins, salt and preserved meats, and live stock amounted to £8,816,089, or  $2\frac{1}{2}$  millions increase upon the returns for 1871. The value of the local consumption is in addition to this large amount. Out of the 29 millions increase in the number of live stock in the Australasian Colonies during the last decade, two-thirds or  $19\frac{1}{2}$  millions were additions to those of New South Wales, and they now reach  $39\frac{1}{2}$  millions, against a total of  $88\frac{1}{2}$  millions for the whole of the settlements.

The principal breeds of horned cattle are Shorthorns, Herefords, and Devons. A few Ayreshires have lately been imported. The finer specimens will compare favourably with most in England. Agricultural Societies hold yearly exhibitions of stock and produce in the chief districts of the Colony, and some bulls and cows have realised over 1,000 guineas each. Foot and mouth disease, rinderpest, and other malignant diseases of cattle are unknown in New South Wales.

All breeds of horses thrive exceedingly well. India draws largely from New South Wales for remounts for her cavalry regiments.

The following returns show the progress and resources of New South Wales in the matter of live stock :—

	Horses.	Horned Cattle.	Sheep.	Pigs.
1851 .....	116,397	1,375,257	7,396,895	65,510
1861 .....	233,220	2,271,923	5,615,054	143,091
1871 .....	304,100	2,014,888	16,278,697	213,193
1881 .....	364,306	2,182,226	36,591,946	308,205
1882 .....	328,026	1,859,985	31,796,308	154,815

At the close of 1882 there were in the Colony 74,776 draught horses, 85,837 light harness horses, and 190,048 saddle horses. The majority of these animals are superior to those of a similar class in the United Kingdom.

It will be seen from the above returns how great is the annual increase in stock of all descriptions, and how eminently adapted to pastoral purposes are the vast interior plains of the Colony. Perhaps in no part of the world do animals thrive and fatten more readily or with less cost than in Australia; the breeder incurs no expense in housing or in providing fodder for the winter, the climate being very mild throughout the year.

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES.

There are immense tracts of country adapted for profitable cultivation. The operations of agriculture or husbandry are never suspended by winter, and crops of some sort or other may be produced in succession from January to December. From the agricultural returns for New South Wales for the year 1882, it appears that the number of occupiers of land, excluding pastoral tenants, was 39,760; the extent of holdings, 30,714,350 acres; land in cultivation, 733,583 acres; land enclosed but not in cultivation, 24,977,048 acres; and land unenclosed, 5,003,719 acres. Many poor farmers who began with small holdings have attained to wealth and independence. More than 76,000 persons, or nearly a tenth of the entire population of the Colony, are connected with agricultural pursuits.

New South Wales, as compared with other, and even with the neighbouring colonies, possesses special advantages and attractions for the agricultural settler, in its differences of temperature and climate, consequent upon an extent of territory ranging through so many degrees of latitude and longitude, from temperate south to semi-tropical north, from the comparative moisture of the coast to the prevailing dryness of the interior, and from sea-level to elevations of from 4,000 to 6,000 feet above the sea. Some of the highest mountains reach a height of nearly 8,000 feet. Cultivation and stock breeding have accordingly a large field of choice.

CEREALS, FRUITS, &c.

The best wheat-growing districts are to be found on the table-lands, from 2,000 feet to 4,000 feet above the sea-level. The fine quality of the wheat grown on the Australian continent is well known, and New South Wales can claim to produce some of the best samples. The yield during the season 1882-3 was  $16\frac{1}{2}$  bushels per acre.\* In 1882-3 the area of land in New South Wales under grain crops and the quantity of produce obtained was as follows:—Wheat, 247,361 acres, yielded 4,042,395 bushels; maize, 118,180 acres, yielded 4,057,635 bushels; barley, 6,473 acres, yielded 133,050 bushels; oats, 24,818 acres, yielded 617,465 bushels; rye, 1,031 acres, yielded 17,380 bushels; millet, 200 acres, yielded 3,066 bushels; sorghum and imphee, 637 acres, yielded 628 cwts. The acreage and produce of hay crops was—Wheat, 42,592 acres, yielding 43,997½ tons; barley, 2,499 acres, yielding 3,558 tons; oats, 112,477 acres, yielding 140,979 tons; sown grasses, 21,999 acres, yielding 54,387 tons. The area under green crop for cattle was—Maize, 4,593 acres; barley, 3,692 acres; oats, 2,298 acres; rye, 1,566 acres; millet, 291 acres; sown grasses, 76,627 acres; sorghum and imphee, 3,540 acres. The acreage of land under potatoes, 14,462 acres; quantity of potatoes produced, 43,461 tons.

Tobacco is grown chiefly in the northern coast districts and in the south-west. The quantity produced has varied considerably from year to year. The yield for 1882-3 is returned as 17,540 cwts.

Maize is raised throughout the coast districts as far south as the 36th parallel of latitude. The cultivation is easy, and the crop is soon ready. A failure is rarely known. The yield on the richer descriptions of land has been 80 and 100 bushels an acre for the first crop, and 65 bushels an acre afterwards. The average on the whole crop of the Colony in 1881 was 22 bushels an acre. Large quantities are annually exported. In 1882-3, 118,180 acres gave 4,057,635 bushels.

Sugar-cane is now cultivated to a large extent, and the acreage under cane increases largely year after year. In 1882-3 there were 13,539 acres under tillage, of which 6,362 acres produced 11,650,688 lbs. of sugar. The sugar-growing districts are on the northern rivers. In 1881, 4,465 acres yielded 7,300 tons of sugar at the rate of nearly  $1\frac{1}{2}$  ton per acre, and of the aggregate value of over £200,000. The sorghum or imphee, which has so much saccharine matter, thrives well.

The cultivation of the Vine is fast becoming a leading industry in the Colony. There are districts of sufficient area, and combining the necessary conditions of soil, climate, and aspect to produce wine enough to supply the whole of the world. The vine was introduced by Mr. John Macarthur about 1820, and in 1831 Mr. Busby made a voyage to Europe, and brought out a valuable collection of plants from France

* NOTE.—The Agricultural Returns are made up for the year ending 31st March, 1883.

France and from the Rhine. This was really the parent stock of the vine in New South Wales. Wine-growing is an industry that requires time to bring it to perfection, but Australian wines are stated by connoisseurs to be rapidly improving in quality. Exhibiting abroad, under many disadvantages, Colonial vigneron have won high distinction at all the late International Exhibitions—especially at that recently held at Bordeaux. The judges of wine at the late Sydney International Exhibition, consisting of representatives from every wine-producing country in the world, recorded an unanimous opinion to the effect that Australian wines are on the whole excellent in quality, and destined to enter into successful competition in the markets of Europe. One of the judges compared the Valleys of the Hunter and the Paterson with those of the Gironde and the Garonne, from which the best French wines are obtained, stating that as the climate and soil of the former are both favourable to wine production, the wines made in the Colony will every year become more like the celebrated vintages of France. The yield of wine has averaged from 100 gallons to 700 gallons per acre, though certain kinds of grapes have produced over 1,000 gallons per acre. The area of land occupied by vines in 1882 was 4,448 acres; the quantity of wine produced being 543,596 gallons, of brandy 1,614 gallons, and of grapes for table use the quantity picked was 1,440 tons. Fortunately phylloxera is yet unknown in this Colony.

Almost every description of garden flower grown in the United Kingdom is found luxuriantly thriving during the greater part of the year in New South Wales. Violets, pansies, wall flowers, sweet williams, mignonette, lupins, balsams, roses, convolvulus, nasturtiums, candytuft, golden feather, and other popular garden flowers, are to be met with in every direction. The geranium attains a large size, presenting a bushy appearance, and flowering the greater part of the year. In the northern districts the sweetbriar is regarded as a troublesome weed, which it is difficult to eradicate from the soil. It is the same with the cactus, which has overrun thousands of acres of fertile land, although in England it is reared with difficulty in the green-house. The rare luxuriance of the flower-garden in New South Wales furnishes a convincing proof of the wonderful fertility of the earth, which seems capable of growing almost every description of vegetable products.

All the fruits of Europe are grown with success. The orange is cultivated most extensively, the area so planted being 6,716 acres in 1882, while the fruit gathered amounted to 4,978,829 dozens. As many as 10,000 oranges have been obtained from individual trees. Oranges are largely exported to the neighbouring Colonies, and many proprietors of orangeries who began life in a very small way have realized a fortune. The olive, caper, fig, strawberry, raspberry, gooseberry, currant, custard-apple, guava, banana, arachi-nut, almond, passion-fruit, loquat, quince, plum, nectarine, pear, apple, and peach all thrive. Gardens and orchards covered in 1882 an area of 17,060 acres. Fruit is cheap, and is consumed in large quantities by all classes.

The potato grows well, and the yield is large. Barley, oats, &c., are grown chiefly for fodder. Lucerne hay may be cut from four to six times in the year in favourable seasons on the alluvial flats on the River Hunter. Mangold-wurzel, turnips, and pumpkins are used for the artificial feeding of the choicest cattle, but the native grasses are quite sufficient for ordinary fattening purposes. Arrowroot thrives; cotton succeeds well on the northern rivers. The bark of several indigenous acacias is used for tanning purposes. The eucalypti and other native trees have valuable medicinal properties. The boehmeria, commonly known as the rheca (or grass-cloth plant of China), and the New Zealand flax are grown easily. The mulberry-tree thrives, and the finest varieties of the silkworm have been introduced with success.

In New South Wales the camellia grows to large-sized trees covered with beautiful blossoms, which are largely worn by the fair sex, who do not find them such expensive luxuries as do the ladies in England.

MINERAL WEALTH.

New South Wales abounds in minerals. The aggregate value mined in New South Wales up to the end of 1881 was £55,077,508, made up of the following amounts:—Gold, £34,343,857; silver, £178,405; coal, £12,255,308; kerosene shale, £581,047; tin, £4,839,577; copper, £3,213,558; iron, £117,357; antimony, £29,176; lead, £5,025; asbestos, £323; bismuth, £2,729; mixed minerals, £11,147. The number of miners employed in New South Wales was 18,873, engaged in the following mines:—Alluvial gold, 7,109; quartz ditto, 1,947; tin, 4,530; copper, 1,177; bismuth, 12; coal, 4,297. The total area under mineral lease and application to lease was 111,014 acres. The value of the minerals raised during the ten years ending 1841 was £81,275; 1851, £634,937; 1861, £14,276,637; 1871, £16,638,574; 1881, £23,441,890.

GOLD.

Count Paul E. Strzlecki, a distinguished Polish nobleman, was well-known in the early days of the Colony of New South Wales for his scientific pursuits, especially in geology and mineralogy. From examination of the rocks, made soon after his arrival in New South Wales, he felt convinced of the existence of gold in the country. He prosecuted his scientific researches with great zeal for five years and at great personal expense; in 1839, in the district of Wellington, he discovered gold-bearing quartz, but at the request of the Government the discovery was kept scrupulously secret.

In 1841 the Rev. William Clarke gave it as his opinion, from geological and mineralogical knowledge, that gold would be found in New South Wales, and in 1844 predicted the existence of gold in the Bathurst district. In 1844 Sir Roderick Murchison pointed out the similarity of the geological features of Australia to that of the Ural, and foretold the presence of gold; and from an examination of specimens of the rocks, brought from New South Wales by Count Strzlecki, led him to the scientific conclusion that gold existed and probably abounded in certain districts of Australia. In 1849 the gold discoveries in California induced Mr. Edward Hammond Hargreaves to migrate there from New South Wales. Struck with the similarity of its geological formation to that of Bathurst, he returned to New South Wales in 1851, and on February 12th discovered gold at Lewis Ponds Creek, near Bathurst, and made its existence known to the world, thus gaining for himself the fame of being the first practical discoverer of the precious metal in the Colony.

The weight of gold raised in New South Wales between 1851 and 1882 was estimated at 9,310,502 ozs., valued at £34,518,708.

Except in some few localities, quartz-veins have not been worked to a great depth. Alluvial lands have in some instances been worked to a depth of 200 feet, and there are the strongest indications of deep leads in various parts where no attempt has yet been made to work them. Gold-mining as hitherto carried carried on, has been principally confined to the working of river-beds and shallow alluvial claims. Extensive areas of country are known to be auriferous, and it is believed that there will be ample scope for the remunerative employment of a large population in both alluvial and quartz-mining. The poor success which has often attended the working of quartz-veins is largely attributable to ill-judged speculation, inexperience, and the absence of proper ore-separating and other mining appliances. The Government Geological Surveyors, in their reports to the Minister for Mines, indicate promising localities for the gold prospector in the Northern, Western, and Southern Districts of the Colony. The approximate area included within the proclaimed gold-fields is 35,500 square miles; but from the geological formation of the country it is believed that the area within which payable gold deposits will be found will be greater than that now stated. From some of the reefs at Hill End, crushings gave at the rate of from 30 to 2,100 ounces of gold per ton. It is known that much gold passes away in the tailings, and is lost in consequence of the imperfect appliances at present employed for the treatment of auriferous pyrites.

As examples of the richness of portions of gold-veins in New South Wales, the following may be cited:—A telegram from Hill End, on February 1st, 1873, stated that at Beyers and Holtermann's mine, 102 cwt. of gold had been raised in 10 tons of stuff. From the same mine a slab of vein-stuff and gold, weighing 630 lbs., was exhibited, which was estimated to contain about £2,000 worth of gold. Many other similarly rich blocks were also shown. The Sydney Mint returns for the gold from 415 tons of vein-stuff from this mine were 16,279·68 ozs., value £63,234 12s., in 1873. Krohmann's Company, also at Hill End, raised in 1873, 436 tons 9 cwt. of stuff, for which the mine returns were 24,079 ozs. 8 dwts. of gold, value £93,616 11s. 9d. Gold reefs in New South Wales have not yet been worked to any great depth. At Adelong they are getting good stone from a depth of 87½ feet. The Consols Mine, Grenfell, has a depth of 716 feet; and Krohmann's Mine, Hill End, is 830 feet deep.

The gold-fields extend with short intervals throughout the entire length of the Colony. The approximate auriferous area as far as known is about 70,000 square miles. It is highly probable that rich and extensive gold-fields will be discovered for many years to come. There are immense tracts in the interior which have not yet been prospected.

All the principal gold-fields of the west are within two days journey of the capital, and there is not any mining settlement which may not be easily reached. The gold-mining centres present the appearance of orderly and thriving townships, with schools, churches, journals, shops, and places of amusement. The authority to dig or mine for gold costs only 10s. a year, and entitles its possessor not only to take up ground for mining, but also to occupy a quarter of an acre of land for his dwelling, or an acre for a business site. Mineral licenses are also obtainable at a cost of 20s. per year, entitling the holder to occupy from 4 to 640 acres of Crown Land for the purpose of searching for minerals other than gold. The number of miners' rights issued at the several gold-fields of New South Wales in the year 1882 was 12,445. Mineral licenses numbered 1,090, and business licenses 1,175. The steam-engines employed in quartz-mining numbered 83, with an aggregate of 903 horse-power. There were also 63 crushing machines, and 571 stamp-heads. In alluvial mining there were 18 steam-engines, with an aggregate of 350 horse power.

The quantity of gold received in 1882 for coinage at the Sydney Mint, the produce of New South Wales, amounted to 129,142 ounces, of the gross value of £491,240, the average price per ounce being £3 16s. 1d. The Western Districts produced 40,563 ounces, the Southern 55,508 ounces, the Northern 5,906 ounces, and localities not described, 25,600 ounces.

Australian Gold Coinage.—During the twenty-seven years ending with 1882 there were received at the Sydney Mint for coinage 13,250,363 ounces of gold, valued at £50,590,316.

COAL.

The Colony of New South Wales possesses the richest, most accessible, and extensive coal and cannel-coal seams in the Southern Hemisphere, which must make it the greatest and richest of all the Australian Colonies. The approximate area of the carboniferous strata is estimated at 23,950 square miles, and thick coal-seams crop out along the coast and mountain ranges from Pier Head, near Lake Macquarie, to Newcastle Harbour, a distance of 18 miles, on the northern edge of the great coal basin. From Coal Cliff to near Shoalhaven, a distance of 45 miles at the southern side of it, and on the western side at the Blue Mountains, Lithgow Valley, Wallerawang, &c., thick coal and cannel-coal seams crop out alongside the railway from the metropolis to the western interior, and in the gorges and gullies on each side of the line; whilst on the Southern and Western Railways similar outcrops of coal and cannel-coal occur.

The mines, first opened in 1802, are situated in the immediate vicinity of Newcastle, and it is from there that the Colony obtains its largest supply, where the shipment of coal is carried on by hydraulic and steam cranes, and shoots capable of loading 16,200 tons per day.

The production of coal has increased very rapidly of late years. In 1833, 328 tons were raised; whilst in 1882 the total output was 2,109,282 tons, valued at £948,965. There were 39 coal-mines in operation, employing 4,647 hands.

The coal is of excellent quality for steam, household, smelting, and gas purposes, and the largest exports are to Victoria, Hong Kong, San Francisco, South Australia, Manila, Japan, Valparaiso, Honolulu, India, Tasmania, New Zealand, and Queensland, more than 1,000 vessels being annually engaged in this traffic.

A variety of cannel-coal commonly called "kerosene shale," similar to the once famous Boghead mineral of Scotland, but yielding a much larger percentage of volatile hydro-carbons than the Scotch Boghead, occurs in saucer-shaped deposits from a few inches to 5 feet thick. The richest quality yields upwards of 150 gallons of crude oil per ton, or 18,000 cubic feet of gas, with an illuminating power of thirty-eight to forty-eight sperm candles, and on this account it is found advantageous for mixing with ordinary coal in the manufacture of gas, and is largely exported to Great Britain, America, and other foreign countries, as well as the neighbouring Colonies, for gas purposes. Two companies manufacture petroleum, shale oil, and other products therefrom. The quantity raised in 1882 was 48,065 tons, valued at £84,114.

COPPER, TIN, &c.

Copper lodes are found in many districts. Some of the ores are extremely rich. The quantity of copper raised in the Colony was 4,536 tons in 1882, valued at £250,175 against 1,452 tons 1872, valued at £105,888. The

The occurrence of Tin was first made known in 1852 by the late Rev. W. B. Clarke, but it was not commercially worked till 1872. The tin is of the very best quality, and takes rank beside the Straits Settlements tin in the English market. Tin-mining shows a much larger development in New South Wales during the decade than copper-mining, and the annual value of the metal produced now exceeds even that of the gold or coal. The quantity of tin raised in the Colony was 7,595 tons in 1882, valued at £116,495 against 896 tons in 1871, valued at £47,703.

Other Minerals.—Large deposits of iron ore occur in many widely-separated districts. The principal ore is hematite. In several places there are coal, limestone, and iron in immediate proximity. At Mittagong and Jamberoo in the south, and at Lithgow and other localities in the west, iron ore is found in large quantities. The principal silver mines are in the northern district. The ores of lead, zinc, and bismuth, occur also in several localities. Cinnabar is found in the Mudgee district. Antimony ores have been found in numerous parts of New South Wales; the principal lodes occur in the Macleay, Armidale, Clarence, and Cudjegang districts. Those on the Munga Creek, near the Macleay River, traverse sedimentary rock of Devonian age. The ore consists of oxide and sulphide of antimony, and occurs in irregular bunches, occasionally of a considerable size, enclosed in a quartz matrix, which forms the chief constituent of the lodes. One of the lodes near Armidale contains free gold, plainly visible to the naked eye. Until quite recently the Colonial antimony ores have been quite neglected, but during the last two or three years some of the lodes have been worked, especially in the Macleay and Armidale districts, and there is no reason to believe that the output of this mineral will largely increase. The quantity and value of antimony exported from Sydney to the end of 1881 was 1,103 tons; value, £29,176. Diamonds, opals, rubies, sapphires, and other gems have been found in various parts. The number of diamonds found in New South Wales up to the end of 1880 was estimated at 10,000, the largest being one of 5½ carats, or 16·2 grains. Diamonds are known to exist in considerable quantities in various parts of Australia. In New South Wales they were discovered so far back as 1851, but little notice was taken of the fact. In 1867 numerous diamonds were found by gold-diggers in the Mudgee district, and in 1869 diamond working was commenced in a systematic manner. The richest finds of diamonds have, however, been at Bingera, where during the last ten years many hundreds have been discovered, a circumstance which has led to a firm of diamond merchants commencing working operations on a more extended scale. The conditions under which the Bingera diamonds are obtained are much the same as the Mudgee, where the gems are procured from outliers of an old river-drift which had in parts been protected from denudation by a capping of hard compact basalt. This drift is made up mostly of boulders and pebbles of quartz, jasper, agate, quartzite, flinty slate, silicified wood, slate, sandstone, and abundance of coarse sand mixed with more or less clay. Diamonds are also found in other parts of the Colony. From the Borah Tin-mine, situated at the junction of Cope's Creek with the Gwydir, 200 were obtained in a few months. Out of a batch of eighty-six, averaging 1 carat 1 grain each, the largest weighed 5·5 grains. Diamonds have been found on most of the alluvial tin workings at Cope's, Newstead, Vegetable, and Middle Creeks, also in the Stanifer, Ruby, and the Britannia Tin-mines, and elsewhere. In colour, the diamonds vary from colourless and transparent to various shades of straw-yellow, brown, light-green, and black. One of a rich dark-green was found in the form of a flattened hemitrope octohedron. The most common crystalline forms which have been met with are the octohedron, the hemitrope octohedron, the rhombic dodecahedron, the triakis and hexakis octohedron, but they are all usually more or less rounded. The flattened triangular hemitrope crystals are very common. One specimen of the deltoidal dodecahedron was met with. The lustre is usually brilliant or adamantine, but occasionally they have a dull appearance. This want of lustre is not due to any coating of foreign matter or to the same cause as the dullness of less hard and water-worn crystals, but it is due to the surface being covered with innumerable edges or angles belonging to the structure of the crystal. These reflect the light irregularly at all angles, and give the stone its frosted appearance.

INDUSTRIES AND MANUFACTURES.

The progress of New South Wales in manufacturing industries is very marked. The latest and most approved labour-saving appliances and steam-driven tools have been introduced, and the manufacturers here are able to compete with those of Europe in the supply of many local requirements. Some of them have a steady export trade, clearly showing that the articles produced are cheaper and better than those obtainable from any other source. The Registrar-General has returned the number of manufactories and works in existence, and the number of hands employed during the year 1882 to be as follows:—Connected with or dependent on agriculture, 178 establishments, employing 3,371 hands; working on raw materials the production of the pastoral interests, 331 establishments, employing 3,380 hands; manufacture of food of which the raw material is not the produce of agriculture and of articles of drink, &c., 316 establishments, employing 2,237 hands; building materials and plastic manufactories, 941 establishments, employing 6,686 hands; machine manufactories, brass, lead, and iron works, 204 establishments, employing 3,142 hands; miscellaneous works and manufactories, 1,066 establishments, employing 13,844 hands. At the close of the year 1882 there were in operation in New South Wales 166 mills for grinding and dressing grain, employing 3,025 horse-power, 403 pair of stones, and 703 hands.

The waters of the Colony abound with fish. The bays and estuaries along the coast furnish natural oyster-beds many miles in length. The whale-fisheries are deserving of notice, though of late years they have been neglected.

Australian Edible Fishes.—The coasts of Australia abound in edible fish of every description, of which the schnapper (pagrus unicolor, Cuv. and Val.) is the most valuable, not for its superior excellence, but for the abundant and regular supply which it affords of a very nutritious and wholesome kind of food. It is found on all parts of the Australian coast, but most abundantly on that of New South Wales. It is a deep-water fish, found generally on or near rocky points or reefs running out for miles from the coasts. Schnapper fishing forms one of the favourite pastimes of the residents of Sydney, the favourite fishing grounds being in the neighbourhood of Sydney Heads. Lines are used in fishing, but the tackle has to be strong, or, if the fish be an old one, he will often escape. "The tugging, jerking motion of the schnapper," says an Australian writer, "is unmistakable, and when he gets his shoulder to the line, he goes off with a rapidity that makes the cord whistle again, either through your fingers or over the boat's gunwale; a steady and continuous strain, no stray line, together with some skill, enables you to land him, at which time you can realize that your patience, toil, and anxiety are rewarded with a fish from 20 to 25 pounds weight, fit to embellish a noble banquet." The aboriginal name of the schnapper is "wollomai," and it was formerly captured in large quantities by the natives. Australian Australian Oysters.—The oyster fisheries of New South Wales are of immense value, the supply far exceeding the demand, which at times is enormous, considering the comparatively limited population. There is perhaps no part of the world better, it might almost be said so well adapted for the growth and culture of the oyster, as New South Wales. The climate, the nature of the coast-line, with its numerous inlets and creeks, and the natural existence of the best varieties of the bivalve itself, all combine to make it one of the most likely of all places for successful ostreaculture. Unlike the coasts of England, Scotland, and Europe generally, where the coldness of the temperature in summer is sufficient to prevent sometimes the shedding of spat at all, and always to limit the quantity of it; whereas in New South Wales the spat is invariably distributed with a profusion which under proper regulations would make the oyster supply unlimited and inexhaustible. In Sydney, the most delicious oysters, equal in flavour to the best English natives, are retailed at from twelve to eighteen per shilling, including loaf and butter. Yet strangely enough the idea of exporting oysters to Europe has never occurred to the minds of the colonists, although there can be no question that in experienced and enterprising hands it would inevitably become an extensive and remunerative business.

Wine-making is a settled industry. The wines of the Albury district, in the south, are known in all the neighbouring Colonies as well as in London. The produce of the Hunter River districts has won medals at the Great International Exhibitions of Europe. The production in 1873 was 451,450 gallons of wine and 996 gallons of brandy; and in 1883 it reached 543,596 gallons of wine and 1,614 gallons of brandy. The consumption of native wines is increasing every year in Australia. There were fifty-six breweries in 1882, which turn out large quantities of beer and ale of very fair quality.

Tobacco of local manufacture is finding its way into favour. Large quantities of Virginian leaf are imported for this purpose, and the Colonial-grown leaf is also much used. One of the largest manufacturers of tobacco in the world, from Virginia, in the United States, has fitted up extensive premises in Sydney. The quantity manufactured in 1882 was 22,815 cwts.

The meats of New South Wales have acquired a great reputation abroad. Some of the largest steamships trading to Australian ports are provided with refrigerating chambers, in which are stored large quantities of fresh meat, frozen in the carcass, for European markets. Salted, preserved, and fresh meats to the value of £241,513 were exported in 1882. The manufacture of jams and confectionery, aerated waters, &c., gives employment to numerous hands.

The manufacture of leather and the industries in connection therewith employ nearly 7,000 hands. In 1882 the value of colonial manufactured boots and leather exported amounted to £191,051. Sydney carried off many prizes and medals for such manufactures at the recent International Exhibitions.

With wool in abundance, the manufacture of cloths, tweeds, blankets, &c., is being developed, and first awards were won for some of these articles at the last Sydney Industrial Exhibition. In 1882 the production was upwards of 200,000 yards of cloth and tweeds. There are several large clothing manufactories giving employment to hundreds of persons.

Illuminating and lubricating oils are manufactured from kerosene shale. Soap is largely made, and the weight manufactured in 1882 was 112,513 cwt. In the same year tallow was exported to the value of £257,060, and 27,377 cwt. of candles were manufactured.

METALS, EARTHS, &C.

The iron foundries and engineering establishments have produced iron steamships, dredges, light-houses, locomotives, bridges, cylindrical piers, and agricultural implements. Every description of the heaviest kinds of rough work, as well as the finest kinds of work required for engines, is turned out. There are also several factories for the production of galvanized iron. At Eskbank, Lithgow, iron is made from its ores, and both wrought iron and steel are being manufactured.

For reducing copper and tin ores there are numerous smelting works. The poorer copper ores from neighbouring Colonies are sent to be smelted near the collieries at Newcastle in New South Wales. The increased production of mineral ores has necessitated a corresponding increase in smelting-works, from ten in 1871 to twenty-one in 1882, employing 1,444 hands. In 1882 the export of tin and copper ingots and ores was valued at nearly £1,500,000, £1,158,188 worth of which was mined in New South Wales.

The manufacture of bricks, encaustic tiles, drain-pipes, and other descriptions of pottery is carried on by the aid of steam-driven machinery. There is constant building work going on in the numerous cities and towns which are springing up in all parts of the country. Sydney especially has of late years entered on a course of architectural improvement, the old stores and shops giving place to magnificent warehouses and manufactories. Marble, granite, freestone, and limestone are to be found in abundance in the Colony; and work in earth and stone furnishes employment to many thousands of masons, brick-makers, potters, and other artisans.

SHIP-BUILDING, DOCKS, &C.

There is a Government Dry Dock at Cockatoo Island (Billoela), Port Jackson, in which H.M.S. "Galatea," of 26 guns, and 3,227 tons, was docked. Mort's Dry Dock is also capable of accommodating the largest class of mail steamers that come to the port. The Australian Steam Navigation Company has a slip capable of taking up a vessel of 1,500 tons, and there are also smaller private slips and floating docks. Another Government Dock is being constructed at Cockatoo Island, which will take in the largest vessel now afloat.

Sixty-five vessels were built in New South Wales in the year 1882, consisting of 24 steamers, 13 schooners, 17 luggers, 3 cutters, 5 ketches, 1 barque, and 2 sloops, showing an aggregate of 4,734 tons.

New South Wales is rich in timbers of every possible description, many possessing a beautiful colour and grain, rendering them eminently suitable for decorative woodwork. Among the more plentiful are the following:—Ironbark, generally used for railway purposes and girder beams for buildings. Grey gum, generally used for building purposes, palings, and fencing. Marsh box, generally found in rich marshy ground, is also used for building. Blackbutt is greatly used for all kinds of house and ship-building purposes, and also for street-paving cubes. Spotted-gum, mostly used for ship-building, owing to its long lengths and bending qualities. Mahogany, used for fencing and general work, is considered to be able to stand a long time underground. Tallow-wood, one of the best timbers for building that can be obtained in the Colonies, having a greasy nature resembling Indian teak. Blue gum, greatly used by wheelwrights, and also for general purposes. Colonial pine, is largely used for all rough purposes in house-building house-building and box-making, and also for flooring-boards. Already there is an export trade in cut and sawn timber of considerable value. The export in 1882 was valued at £49,117. There are numerous steam joineries for the supply of woodwork of houses and of furniture. All the cabs, carriages, carts, drays, omnibuses, and other vehicles required are made in the Colony, and proof of the skill of the workmen in this department of industry may be seen in the carriages which daily run along the thoroughfares of the capital. The reported area of woods and forests under the care of the Conservator in New South Wales amounted in 1881 to 3,759,796 acres, and the timber cut from them during the year amounted to 3,923,727 feet, from which a revenue of £10,156 was obtained.

CONCLUSION.

The object of this pamphlet is to provide such information as will accurately describe the soil, climate, and resources of New South Wales, as well as to show the actual progress the Colony has already made. To accomplish this, facts and figures have been collected from the Statistical Register and other authentic sources, which will enable the reader to readily form an opinion for himself. It is satisfactory to be able to demonstrate that the Colony has such natural advantages in its position, its soil, and its great wealth in coal, iron, gold, copper, tin, and other minerals, that abundance and happiness pervade all classes of the community, and that the materials exist for providing the like blessings to many millions; that the country is governed by a Constitutional Government and liberal laws, which give every possible security to life and property. With such advantages New South Wales has the brightest future before her, and cannot fail to become the home of a prosperous and enlightened people.

Information concerning emigration, or any other matter in relation to the Colony may be obtained upon personal or written application at the office of the Agent-General for New South Wales, 5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W.

Information Circular.

NEW SOUTH WALES GOVERNMENT EMIGRATION.

ASSISTED PASSAGES FROM PLYMOUTH TO SYDNEY.

THE Agent-General for New South Wales is authorised by the Colonial Government to grant passages to eligible applicants on the terms and conditions stated in this Circular.

AUTHORISED REGULATIONS.

1. All Emigrants from the United Kingdom and other parts of Europe are to be selected and approved by the Agent-General in London, or by such persons as he may appoint for the purpose.
2. Approval of such Emigrants is limited to married persons not exceeding 40 years each, with or without children, and to unmarried adult males and females not exceeding 35 years of age. The persons to be introduced are to be of sound mental and bodily health, and of good moral character, to consist of farmers, mechanics, domestic servants, any description of labourers suitable for country pursuits, to be chosen with a special regard to the industrial requirements of the Colony; and small working capitalists.
3. A proportion of the Emigrants not exceeding 10 per cent. of the whole, may be natives of other European countries, but they likewise will be required to answer to the physical, moral and industrial descriptions prescribed in these Regulations.
4. All Emigrants, after having received "Embarkation Orders," shall present themselves on the date and at the port named therein, for the purpose of giving facility to the arrangements for their embarkation.
5. Married couples, their children, and single men, will be allowed to remain on board five clear days after the ships drops anchor in Sydney Harbour.
6. Unmarried women, upon arrival, will be received into an Emigrants' Home in Sydney, and allowed to remain therein, should they desire to do so, for ten clear days, to enable them to obtain suitable employment.
7. Emigrants desiring to proceed to the country districts of the Colony, within five clear days of their arrival, will be allowed free travelling passes by railway for that purpose.

8. Emigrants shall be subject to the Regulations under the Queen's Order in Council, dated 7th January, 1864, prescribing rules for preserving order, promoting health, &c., on board passenger ships; also to such further Regulations as the Agent-General may make and prescribe for their moral and sanitary condition during the passage. In any case where a person beyond the limited age is approved for a passage the sum of Fifteen pounds must be paid.

9. PAYMENT of the following Rates MUST be made to the AGENT-GENERAL before Embarkation.

Married Couples not exceeding 40 years each person.....	£6	0s.	0d.	per couple.
Single Adult Males „ 35 „ „ .....	£4	0s.	0d.	each.
Children of 3 and under 14 years of age .....	£1	0s.	0d.	„
Children under 3 years of age .....	Free.

Single Females, not exceeding 35 years, are taken at a Reduced Rate of £2 each.

10. To meet the public convenience persons resident in the Colony, who may desire to introduce Immigrants in accordance with these Regulations, shall be entitled to nominate such Immigrants and to deposit on trust with the Agent for Immigration, at the Immigration Office, Sydney, and in the country districts with the Clerks of Petty Sessions, the necessary sum or sums. Such nominations will be subject however to the approval of the Agent-General, and the rules of selection prescribed by these Regulations, as in cases when no such nominations have been made.

11. In the event of any person or persons nominated in the Colony for a passage, declining to emigrate, or not being able to comply with the conditions required by these Regulations, or in case the amount deposited shall exceed that required for the number of Immigrants actually introduced, the amount deposited, or the amount in excess, as the case may be, will be returned to the depositor upon the receipt in the Colony of the Agent-General's report recommending its repayment. But if any attempt at fraud or concealment be made by the depositor or by nominee under the certificate, the deposit will be forfeited.

PERSONAL OUTFIT AND LUGGAGE.

Emigrants must provide their own outfit, which will be inspected before embarkation in accordance with the requirements of the Agent-General. Each person must possess not less than the following:—For Male Adults: 2 complete suits of strong external clothing, 6 shirts, 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs new shoes, and 2 flannel or guernsey shirts. For Female Adults: 6 shifts, 2 flannel petticoats, 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs strong shoes, and 2 strong gowns; one of which should be of a warm material. For each child: 9 shirts or shifts, 4 flannel waistcoats, and 1 warm cloak or outside coat; 6 pairs stockings, 2 pairs strong shoes, and 2 complete suits of external clothing. Each person must also have 2 lbs. best yellow soap, 2 lbs. marine soap, and not less than 4 towels and 3 sheets, together with the necessary brushes and combs for cleanliness. New bedding (except sheets) and mess utensils will be provided by the Agent-General. Two or three coloured shirts for men, and an extra supply of flannel for women and children, are very desirable.

The quantity of luggage for each person of 12 years of age and upwards must not exceed 20 cubic feet, or half a ton in weight; children of 1 and under 12 years will be allowed half that quantity. All articles should be carefully packed in one or more strong boxes, not exceeding 12 cubic feet each. Larger packages, and extra luggage, if taken must be paid for. Mattresses, beds, or pillows of any description, firearms and offensive weapons, wines, spirits, beer, gunpowder, percussion caps, lucifer matches, articles of food of a perishable nature, or that require cooking, or anything of a dangerous or noxious character, cannot be taken. Emigrants must look carefully after their luggage, both in travelling to the port of embarkation, and after arrival there, as neither the Agent-General, his officers, nor the Colonial Government can be responsible in any way for loss thereof, or damage thereto, on land or at sea. All packages are examined at the Depot before being shipped. To guard as far as possible against luggage being sent to the wrong destination, each package should be plainly addressed both to the Depot at Plymouth, and to Sydney.

INFORMATION FOR EMIGRANTS.

1. None but first-class steamers or sailing ships are engaged, and these are despatched from Plymouth or other Ports according to arrangement. At Plymouth there is a Depot fitted expressly for the reception of Emigrants, who are lodged and fed free of charge from the date named in their "Embarkation Orders" until they embark. Emigrants must travel to Plymouth or other Port, as the case may be, at their own expense. The Agent-General has, however, made arrangements whereby they can proceed by various railways at reduced fares.

2. The Agent-General has also arranged with the London Branch of the Bank of New South Wales to issue Drafts, payable on demand in Sydney, in exchange for money, to Emigrants proceeding to New South Wales. These Drafts may be procured at the Depôts, free of cost, from the Bank authorities, before embarkation. Persons having money with them are strongly advised to avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered, and so make themselves secure against loss, to which they are liable in carrying money either on their persons or in their baggage.

3. The ships are fitted with studied regard for the health and comfort of the Emigrants, and for the preservation of good order amongst them. Spacious berths are available for married couples and their children under 12 years. Single adults are provided with separate accommodation, according to sex. The unmarried females for whom a great demand exists in New South Wales, are placed under the care of a Matron. An experienced Surgeon accompanies each ship.

4. The Emigrants are victualled on board in messes of about eight adults in number, and are provided with a more liberal dietary scale than that allowed under the Act of Parliament. Children between 1 and 12 receive half rations in addition to an allowance of jam or marmalade, preserved soup, egg, and milk. A special dietary is provided for children above 4 months and under 1 year. There is also an abundant supply of medical comforts, such as arrowroot, sago, wine, stout, preserved soups, broths, &c., for use in cases of sickness. Emigrants receive fresh baked bread daily, made from a portion of their flour. Mattresses, bolsters, blankets and counterpanes, canvas-bags to contain clothing, &c., knives and forks, spoons, plates, drinking mugs, sugar-boxes, and washbowls, are provided by the Agent-General.

5. The Agent-General desires it to be understood that he cannot undertake to provide Assisted Passages for Families with young children, except where the number thereof is very limited.

6. On reaching the Colony, the Emigrants are at perfect liberty to choose their own employment, and to make their own bargains for wages. Ladies and other employers of known respectability only are permitted by the authorities to attend at the Depot for the purpose of engaging female servants.

7. Land in New South Wales may be obtained on very favourable terms.

8. In order to insure the safe delivery of letters or parcels addressed to Emigrants while at the Plymouth Depot, the name of the ship in which they are to embark should in every case be stated thereon.

9. When once a passage has been provided, the amount paid by the Emigrant cannot be returned in the event of a refusal to proceed.

10. The Agent-General finds it necessary to caution Emigrants arriving at the railway stations or shipping wharves, at Plymouth or Glasgow, against accepting information or guidance from strangers, or persons not connected with the Depot.

For further information, application should be addressed, prepaid, to

No. 464.]

THURSDAY, 8 NOVEMBER.

[1883.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th November, 1883.

His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following Regulations for the promotion of Immigration.

ALEX. STUART.

REGULATIONS FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF IMMIGRATION FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM.

1. All Immigrants shall be selected by the Agent-General, or by such persons as he may appoint for the purpose, under instructions from the Colonial Secretary, which instructions shall not be contrary to these Regulations.

2. The selection of Immigrants shall be limited to such adult persons as can pay towards the cost of their passage to the Colony the following sums respectively:—

Men—Four Pounds each;
Women—Two Pounds each.

And such selection shall be made from the populations of England, Scotland, and Ireland (with the exception mentioned in Clause 5), in such manner as shall prevent a preponderance of Immigrants from any one of the three Kingdoms according to the proportions shown to exist in the Colony by the Census Returns of 1881.

3. All Immigrants must be of sound mental and bodily health, and of good moral character, and shall consist either of married persons not exceeding forty years of age, children under three years of age, in charge of their parents, being carried free, and children between three and fourteen years at one pound each; or of unmarried men and women, not exceeding thirty-five years of age; and shall be selected from the classes of mechanics, farmers, miners, vine-dressers, labourers, and domestic servants, with a special view to the industrial callings of the Colony, and the fluctuations affecting those callings, as reported from the Colony from time to time, but shall not exclude small working capitalists in any branch of Colonial industry.

4. The proportion of unmarried men shall not exceed one-third of the whole number of adult Immigrants.

5. A proportion of the Immigrants, not exceeding ten per cent. of the whole, may be natives of other European countries, who shall answer to the physical, moral and industrial descriptions embodied in these Regulations.

6. The Immigrants shall be brought out in steamers of the Orient Company, or in other steamers or ships chartered by the Agent-General on behalf of the Government of New South Wales, under charge of a medical officer, and under such regulations as may be made for their moral and sanitary condition during the passage.

7. No aid or assistance will be allowed in respect of any person brought out as a cabin or intermediate cabin passenger, and no person who shall previously have been an assisted immigrant shall be granted aid for a passage under these Regulations.

8. Immigrants desiring to proceed into country districts within five clear days of their arrival will be allowed free passes by rail or steamer.

9. All deposits of money on account of the passages of Immigrants, except as provided for in next following section, shall be paid to the Agent-General in London, and shall be accounted for by him on behalf of the Government of New South Wales.

10. To meet the public convenience, persons resident in the Colony who may desire to introduce Immigrants in accordance with these Regulations shall be entitled to nominate such Immigrants and to deposit on trust with the Agent for Immigration, at the Immigration Office, Hyde Park, Sydney, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. on each lawful day, and in the Country Districts with the Clerks of Petty Sessions, during the usual office hours, the necessary sum or sums. Such nominations will be subject, however, to the approval of the Agent-General, and the rules of selection prescribed by these Regulations, as in cases where no such nominations have been made.

11. The Clerks of Petty Sessions, on receipt of any deposit under these Regulations, will immediately remit the amount to the Agent for Immigration at Sydney, with a statement of the number and description of Immigrants whom the depositor wishes to introduce.

12. The passage certificate must be forwarded by the depositor to the nominee, who in every case must produce it within twelve months from the date thereof to the Agent-General in London.

13. Forms of application, as well as all other information for the guidance of depositors, can be obtained from the Clerks of Petty Sessions in the Country Districts, or in Sydney at the office of the Agent for Immigration.

14. In the event of any person or persons nominated in the Colony for a passage declining to emigrate, or not being able to comply with the conditions required by these Regulations, or in case the amount deposited shall exceed that required for the number of Immigrants actually introduced, the amount deposited, or the amount in excess, as the case may be, will be returned to the depositor upon the receipt in the Colony of the Agent-General's report recommending its repayment. But if any attempt of fraud or concealment be made by the depositor or by the nominee under the certificate, the deposit will be forfeited.

15. No money paid by persons resident within the three kingdoms on account of any passage or passages will be returned should the person or persons making such payment not avail himself or themselves of the passage or passages so provided; but the Agent-General, in cases where circumstances satisfactorily explained may prevent embarkation on the ship first arranged for, may authorise a passage or passages by a succeeding ship.

16. Married couples and children, and single men, shall be entitled to remain on board five clear days after the ship drops anchor in Port Jackson.

17. Unmarried women shall be received into an Immigrants' Home in Sydney, and shall be allowed ten days to enable them to obtain suitable employment.

18. Should the age of any intending Immigrant exceed the limits prescribed in Section 3, the sum payable on his or her account shall be fifteen pounds.

19. These Regulations shall take effect on and after the 6th November, 1883, and the Regulations published in the Government Gazette of the 27th November, 1882, are hereby cancelled.

No. 2.

RETURN showing the Population of the Colony of New South Wales at the Censuses of 1856, 1861, 1871, and 1881 respectively, distinguishing the numbers in Towns and Villages from the numbers in the rural parts of the Colony.

	1856.	1861.	1871.	1881.
Towns & Villages, Urban	112,137 or 45 per cent.	159,630 or 45·74 per cent.	234,162 or 46·68 per cent.	433,391 or 57·92 per cent.
Rural parts .....	137,145 „ 55 „	189,320 „ 54·26 „	267,417 „ 53·32 „	314,850 „ 42·18 „
Shipping .....	Not stated.	1,910.	2,402.	3,227.
Total Population...	249,282*	350,860.	503,981.	751,468.

* This number is exclusive of the inhabitants of the Queensland Districts, which were created into a separate Colony in 1859.

NOTE.—The second paragraph of Mr. Hammond's Motion is for a Return showing "the total population of towns and villages in this Colony as against the number of country inhabitants for each ten years ending with 1850, 1860, 1870, and 1880 inclusive." The information cannot be given in the terms of the Motion, but the above Return shows the urban and rural population respectively when the Census was taken in the years 1856, 1861, 1871, and 1881.

The increase in the urban population between 1856 and 1861 was 0·74 per cent.; between 1861 and 1871 it was 0·84 per cent.; and between 1871 and 1881 it was 11·24 per cent.

In 1856 the rural exceeded the urban population by 25,008, or 10 per cent.; in 1861 by 29,690, or 8·52 per cent.; in 1871 by 33,255, or 6·64 per cent.; but in 1881 the case was reversed, and the urban exceeded the rural population by 118,541 persons, or 15·74 per cent.

No. 3.

RETURN showing the number of persons engaged in Mining in Gold when the Census was taken in 1856, 1861, 1871, and 1881 respectively.

3,821	20,365	16,261	10,723

The third paragraph of Mr. Hammond's motion is for a Return showing "the total number of persons on the Gold-fields of this Colony for each ten years ending with 1860, 1870, and 1880 inclusive." The information asked for cannot be given in the terms of the Motion; there are no records to show how many persons lived upon the gold-fields during those periods. The various Censuses were taken by districts, towns, villages, municipalities, &c., but the gold-fields were not particularized, the gold-mining population being of too migratory a character.

The above Return shows the number of persons engaged in gold-mining in the years 1856, 1861, 1871, and 1881.

Do not send any for at least eight weeks after "Abergeldie." Many hundred men out of work; some may have to be temporarily relieved by Government. Each ship arriving adds to discontent. Protracted drought destroyed general employment in interior, and has driven labour back upon Sydney. Fierce denunciations amongst recent arrivals for deceptive information at your end.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 45, Emigration—82.)

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 15 December, 1882.

I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Allanshaw," of 1,589 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of emigrants from Plymouth to Sydney, New South Wales, to be ready to embark passengers on the 10th January next.

The rates are as follows, viz.:—If 250 and under 275 statute adults, £14 17s. 6d.; 275 and under 300 statute adults, £13 17s. 6d.; 300 statute adults and upwards, £13 7s. 6d.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, 10 January, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 15th ultimo, announcing the engagement of the "Allanshaw" for the conveyance of the emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The undermentioned gratuities have been promised, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government, viz.:—To the Surgeon-superintendent (first voyage), 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; to the master, the first mate, the second mate, and to the person who served out the provisions, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, to be divided as the Surgeon-superintendent recommends, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the matron, £25; sub-matrons, £3 each; the cook, £5; the cook's assistant, £3; the baker, £3; the men in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary and female mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 26 January, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 15th December last (No. 45, Emigration—82), reporting the chartering of the ship "Allanshaw," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 13th inst., with 396 emigrants on board, equal to 341 statute adults, and to enclose, viz.:—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving their names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received by the Emigration Officer for passage money of applicants selected by me, and in cases where insufficient or no deposits were made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families, which amount has been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- 2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Allanshaw," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this Country; also showing their various nationalities.
- 3rd. A certificate of Dr. G. Pearson, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and the accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 11 June, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 2nd ultimo, of the ship "Allanshaw," from Plymouth, having left that port on the 13th January, 1883, thus completing the voyage in one hundred and nine days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. In consequence of an outbreak of scarlet-fever during the latter part of the voyage the vessel was on arrival placed in quarantine, a charge for "demurrage," amounting to the sum of £317 16s., being thereby incurred.

The vessel was released on the 17th ultimo, leaving at the quarantine station those who were not convalescent.

This vessel is roomy, and has a good height between decks. The compartments set apart for the single men and single women were sufficiently well ventilated, but in consequence of the room for the issuing of provisions being situated in the married people's compartment, the ventilation was blocked, and very great inconvenience was caused by the daily issuing of rations from this store-room.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of fifty married couples, with their ninety-eight children; one hundred and seventeen single men, and seventy-seven single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £677 10s. paid by the depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,012 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,690 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Herewith is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage the matron in charge of the female immigrants died from cerebral apoplexy, and amongst the immigrants two adults and eight children died, and there were six births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied, both as to the good quality and the sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them during the voyage.

Certain complaints were, however, made against the master of the vessel, and especially against the Surgeon-superintendent. These several complaints have been very carefully investigated by the Board of Immigration. Copies of the evidence taken, and the decision of the Board thereon, will form the subject of a special report to be made by the Board of Immigration.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the depôt on the day of their release from quarantine, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of seven, who offered themselves for hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained employment at an average of wages of nine shillings per week.

7. Free passes by steamer and by rail were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following summary:—

Why proceeding.	Married.	Children.	Men.	Women.
Hired.....	2	.....	11	1
To or with friends .....	10	19	20	10
Seeking employment in districts selected by themselves .....	.....	1	7	.....
General total, 93.....	12	20	38	11

These proceeded to thirty-four different districts. The remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, George Pearson, Esq., was accused of repeated acts of intemperance during the voyage.

The result of the investigation held by the Board was that such accusation was fully proved, and although there was no proof of neglect of duty the Board have unanimously recommended that a fine of £40 shall be inflicted, and that this sum shall be deducted from the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on the immigrants landed alive, for this his first voyage in charge as a Surgeon-superintendent; also, that he shall not receive a certificate entitling him to the payment of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports the death from cerebral apoplexy of the matron, Mrs. Willis, on the 19th of March, in whose place the sub-matron, Elizabeth Thompson, was temporarily appointed, but on account of subsequent illness she was obliged to relinquish her duties. Charges were made against her as to her conduct towards some of the female immigrants which were not proved.

It is not, however, recommended that any extra gratuity beyond that which she is entitled to receive as a sub-matron should be paid to her.

10. Although Dr. Pearson has declined to state in what manner the usual gratuity of four shillings per head on the immigrants landed alive shall be paid, it is recommended by the Board that such gratuity, equal to £78 8s., shall be thus apportioned:—To the master, £29 8s.; to the 1st mate, £11 4s.; to the 2nd mate, £14; to the storekeeper, £17 5s. 4d.; to two assistant storekeepers, each £3 5s. 4d.

11. Other gratuities, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; to the cook, £5; to the cook's assistant, £3; to the baker, £3; to the engineer, £5; to the hospital assistant, £3; to the w.c. constable, £5; to three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; to eleven ordinary constables (each £3), £33; to one ordinary constable for half the voyage, £1 10s.; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, to the nurse, £5; total, £77 10s.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent having reported most unfavourably of the condensing apparatus, also of the quality of the coal, a searching inquiry was instituted by the Board of Immigration, with the result that it is recommended that a fine of not less than £500 shall be inflicted in accordance with clause 41 of the charter-party; a full report thereon is hereto annexed.

13. The principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were diarrhoea and scarlet fever.

Government Immigration Office,
Sydney, June 11th, 1883.

GEORGE F. WISE,
Agent for Immigration.

Report of the Board of Immigration re the ship "Allanshaw."

WE, the Board of Immigration, have the honor to submit to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary our report of an investigation into certain charges preferred by a large number of the immigrants per ship "Allanshaw" against Captain J. D. B. Le Couteur, master of that vessel, and also against George Pearson, Esq., Surgeon-superintendent thereof.

We have held three meetings, at which Captain Le Couteur, Dr. Pearson, and other witnesses were examined. Their evidence is hereto annexed.

The charges against the master are contained in a document which was handed to the Board when holding their usual examination of the immigrants on the arrival of the ship.

See Appendix A.

We are of opinion that the statements made in that document are not, for the most part, sustained by evidence; that we consider that the captain committed an error in not adhering to the letter of the law as regards side lights during several days towards the end of February.

As to the charge of "neglect of fire-drill and boat exercise," we accept his explanation as satisfactory.

From the evidence adduced as to the charges against Dr. Pearson, Surgeon-superintendent, which includes several extracts from the ship's official log-book, we are of opinion that he was on several occasions during the voyage "under the influence of intoxicating liquors," and we regret to add that on his first appearance to give evidence before the Board he was in a similar state.

We therefore recommend that a sum of £40 shall be deducted from the amount otherwise payable to him; and we consider that Dr. Pearson is not a fit person to be again placed in charge of Government immigrants, and that therefore he should not receive the usual certificate which would entitle him to a free passage to England for further employment.

The very serious breach of the charter-party involved in the visit of the ship to Table Bay, Cape of Good Hope, has received our most careful consideration, and we are of opinion that the captain and surgeon, who in consultation decided on that course, acted with prudence under the circumstances; but, at the same time we deem it our duty to emphatically express our dissatisfaction that such a proceeding should have been rendered necessary.

In accordance with the charter-party, "The vessel shall not touch at any intermediate port other than that to be designated by the party of the second part (namely, the Agent-General) except from urgent necessity." It is required both by the charter-party and by the Passenger Act that the ship shall have on board enough water and coal for a voyage of 140 days.

The charter-party further enacts that the condensing machine shall be "of a size calculated to supply not less than 500 gallons of water in twenty-four hours," and "that it shall be continuously worked on board for "six days prior to the ship leaving the port in which she may be fitted," and further stipulates that for the 396 emigrants there shall be on board a reserve of not less than 50,000 gallons of fresh water.

In all these particulars there appears to have been a failure to comply with the regulations. It is noted in the ship's log-book that on January 30th the captain's attention was drawn to the fact that owing to the "very poor steaming power of the coal" about 1½ ton per day was being consumed by the condenser, and for cooking purposes, which, he adds, was "a matter of serious moment, there being but 80 tons of coal on board on leaving London." It is recorded in the same journal that on March 6th he was "now sawing up spare spars for fuel." Independently of the want of coal and consequent failure of the water supply from the condenser there was evidently a well-grounded fear that the reserve supply of fresh water would also fail, as it is recorded in the ship's log-book that on February 10th "two 400-gallon tanks upon being opened were reported empty." Again, on February 19th, two more 400-gallon tanks were found empty when opened. Again, on March 2nd and on March 5th two more 400-gallon tanks were opened and found to be partially empty. Therefore, "as opportunity served we have collected all the rain-water possible." On March 5th, the captain notes, "finding that only 10 or 12 tons of coal remain, and that we are still 2,000 miles away from the Cape of Good Hope," he "resolved to diminish the daily ration of water to the emigrants from three to two quarts per adult, which with the allowance for cooking makes a daily issue of about 220 gallons," less than half the quantity that (as per charter-party, clause 8) the condenser alone should have supplied.

The captain also notes that "the married and single women, owing to so many children being among them, seem to have felt the short ration of water."

The evidence given by the engineer, who had joined two days after the ship left London, is most important, particularly as to the inefficient machinery and inadequacy of the condenser. "The

"The engine was never fit (in the opinion of the engineer) from the start for the work to be done," and he "told the owners at Plymouth that the machinery was not fit for work," and he expected daily to see "the engine break down."

The captain states that "the engineer who came with me gave me entire satisfaction."

We desire to draw very particular attention to the foregoing quotations, which to our minds are exceedingly suggestive of the sufferings which threatened the emigrants in the event of a total failure of the water supply; and in our opinion it is exceedingly probable that that catastrophe was only averted by calling at the Cape. And finally, we would point out that the scarlet fever, from which the passengers suffered so severely, only became fatal towards the end of the voyage, the five deaths from that disease having occurred during the last sixteen days, while the visit to the Cape, in the captain's opinion, "prolonged the voyage for a period of not less than twenty-one days."

We have very carefully weighed the evidence which was placed before us, and we are unanimously of opinion that, had the vessel been supplied with—

(Firstly) an efficient water-condensing apparatus, (secondly) a sufficient quantity of good coal, and (thirdly) a reserve of fresh water in sound tanks, as required by the charter-party, the necessity for visiting the Cape would not have arisen, nor would the disaster in the shape of the fatal results which attended the scarlet fever have occurred on the voyage.

We therefore feel bound to recommend that, in accordance with clause 41 of the charter-party, a fine of not less than £500 shall be inflicted upon the ship, by the deduction of that amount from the passage money now payable.

A TRUE and faithful copy of all entries in any way relative to the emigrants conveyed on board the ship "Allanshaw," from Plymouth to Sydney, N.S.W.

The matron (Mrs. Willis) reported to the surgeon and myself that the quarter-master (M'Vitey, Feb. 10, 1883. A.B.) had been seen passing a letter to the single woman, Jessie Watts. On questioning this woman she acknowledged receiving it to deliver to the single woman, Annie Brown. In presence of the surgeon I called the quarter-master (M'Vitey) into the cabin and I questioned him as to the charge. He confessed having given the note, but refused to say whether it was written by himself or if it was from any one else. I therefore disrated him from his position as quarter-master, causing him to forfeit the 5s. per month extra wages I had promised him and the other quarter-masters if they performed their duties satisfactorily; and also told him he had made himself liable to the penalty mentioned in the ship's articles for in any way interfering with the single women, and also that he was liable to imprisonment, for, having no wages to receive in Sydney, he could not be punished by a fine. Off. Log, page 17.

(Signed by the surgeon and myself.)

May 3rd, Sydney Harbour.

The above entry was read by me to M'Vitey in presence of Mr. Hunter, and he replied that he would reply when the proper time came.

(Signed by Mr. Hunter and myself.)

My attention being called by the chief-officer to the large daily consumption of coals used by the condensing boiler, emigrants' galley, baker's oven, and ship's galley respectively, which, roughly estimated, was about 30 cwt. per day, it became a matter of serious moment, there being but 80 tons of coal on board on sailing from London. The engine had until now been working up to a pressure of 20 lbs. to 25 lbs., condensing on an average about 300 gallons in from fourteen to sixteen hours. I consulted with the doctor, and we then determined to only work the condenser for twelve hours, and at the low pressure of from 12 lbs. to 14 lbs., according to the wind and motion of the ship, and draw upon the reserve tank water for the deficit of the condenser. Adverse winds and weather have thus far greatly retarded our progress. I may here remark that the engineer and cooks complained to me of the very poor steaming power of the coals when I pressed upon their notice the great necessity of economizing the coals. January 30. Page 24.

(Signed by the surgeon, first mate, and myself.)

Since the above entry we have been consuming about 18 cwt. per day, and using from 100 to 150 February 10. gallons from the reserve tank water. Two 400-gallon tanks, the storekeeper reported to me, were quite empty upon being opened. Page 24.

(Signed by surgeon, storekeeper, and myself.)

The storekeeper reported to me that two more 400-gallon tanks were found empty when opened. We have collected all the rain-water possible as opportunity served. February 19. Page 25.

(Signed by surgeon, first mate, and myself.)

Another 400-gallon tank, on being opened, was found with only 21 inches of water in it. Our March 5. remaining coal also appears to be running very short, and our passage unusually prolonged by the past Page 25. and present very light winds and fine weather. We have now thirty-one 400-gallon tanks empty, leaving us thirty-four (supposed to be full ones), besides some 4,000 gallons water in main tanks. Reviewing our serious position with the doctor, and at best estimate finding that but from 10 to 12 tons of coal remain, and that we are still some 2,000 miles away from the Cape, we have determined to stop the condenser and husband the coal for cooking purposes alone; also, to diminish the daily rations of water from three to two quarts per adult respectively, which, with the allowance for cooking, makes the daily issue about 220 gallons. All matter likely to serve as fuel, in case of need, is carefully cared for, and a course now shaped for Table Bay determined upon, it being in my mind an absolute necessity, and no other port is at present so available, besides being somewhat in our route.

(Signed by surgeon, first mate, and myself.)

The

Page 26.

The storekeeper reports another tank to contain but 20 inches of water. I am now sawing up spare spars for fuel. By best estimate the consumption of coals daily by emigrants' range, baker's oven, and ship's range is 2½ cwt. The fires are now only lighted at 6:30 a.m., and put out as early as possible, and wood is burnt to assist the coals.

(Signed by surgeon and myself.)

Last evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, the crew from forward came aft, requesting to speak with me. I told them to send one man from each watch to represent them, and I would hear what they had to say. So Alex. M'Vitey, A.B. (see entry, page 17), and Thos. Riley, A.B., came on the poop and asked if I would not allow the galley-fire to be lighted early enough for them to have their customary morning's coffee; for they thought, if I was calling at the Cape, there was fuel enough to take us there. I told them that I could not do so, for the officers of the ship and myself suffered as well as themselves from the privation, so that no partiality was shown, and that the fire would have to be lighted one and a half to two hours earlier than needed, and I could not yet see my way to spare the necessary fuel. The above led M'Vitey to speak very disparagingly of the ship, condemning her in most parts, both in food and management from the commencement, he being pleased to style her as a most original ship, and he wound up by saying he'd be glad of his discharge at the Cape when we got there.

The above remarks led me to speak to the whole of the forward hands when they mustered aft for their daily lime-juice, and I explained to them the pith of the entry, page 25, which there states my reason for carefully husbanding the coals, as they complained of their food. I remarked that I had substituted ½ lb. butter for ¼ lb. and ¼ lb. beef and pork respectively, giving them also 1 lb. of preserved meat extra on Sundays to ½ lb. salt meat, with the addition of fresh potatoes. They have also had pickles served out to them, and while in the tropics I allowed them four quarts of water in lieu of three, and still they were not satisfied; so that no alternative was left me, as I could not treat them better, for me to fall back upon the scale of diet as appears on the Articles, and which they had all signed. Thos. Riley was most emphatic in declaring that if I placed them upon pound and pint, that he for one should not exert himself in any way, but would take his time about matters. I gave him a caution, but he said he would give me no cause to be subject to imprisonment on ship's arrival at Sydney. I mentioned to them also that it was not compulsory upon the ship to light galley-fires at 4 in the morning to give them a cup of coffee. It was a custom on board ship, and no more; but if abused by misconduct of the crew or otherwise the practice could be stopped by the master.

(Signed by first also second mate and myself.)

26.

As there still remain thirty-two 400-gallon tanks supposed to be full, and 4,000 gallons in large main tanks, with the sanction of the doctor I now issue to all the passengers their full allowance of water, as I consider that we now run no risk of being short, the Cape, Table Bay, being but 670 miles distant. The emigrants—the married and single women—owing to so many children being among them, seem to have felt the short rations of water; but when I explained my reasons for so acting, they appeared satisfied with my precautionary measure.

(Signed by surgeon and myself.)

21.

Now at this hour we anchored in Table Bay, in accordance with orders from deputy harbour-master, who gave ship an outside berth on my informing him that I would leave again to-morrow.

(Signed by myself.)

The following four single men emigrants came to me and laid a complaint against the Surgeon-superintendent, which I told them to put in writing, and then, in the doctor's presence, I would listen to their grievance. The men were:—Arthur Webster, John Brown, Randolph Rutledge, and David M'Culloch. At 7 p.m., in the presence of the doctor, the men in question, with their witnesses (whose names appear in their written charges), came into the saloon, when I read the three letters hereto attached. The doctor emphatically denied the charges made, asserting they were malicious statements, calling the single-men constables, Lovelock and Galvin, to bear him out in his denial, which they, in a manner, did. My second mate, Mr. Hunter, was present during this inquiry. I was at the time of the occurrence on shore on ship's business.

The man Webster showed me a mark on the inner side of his leg, caused, he said, by the blow given him by the doctor. Webster also stated his intention of taking out a summons for assault against the doctor when he arrived at Sydney.

Memo. signed
April 22.

In connection with the charges made against the doctor in adjoining entry, I have this morning received three written statements, numbers one, two, and three, contradicting the charges made on 22nd March.

(Signed by Mr. Hunter and myself.)

March 23, page

In support of the written statements made in the last entry against the doctor, I was now presented with the above signatures of a number of the single men emigrants.

(Signed by Mr. Hunter, mate, and myself.)

April 14, page 23.

At this time Patrick Kearns, James Campbell, and George Sherer, single men emigrants, came to me, being desirous of laying a complaint against Dr. Pearson. I at once called the doctor, and in his presence, and that of George Birnie, the ship's carpenter, they severally and separately stated the following charge, and to which they append their signatures:—

A little after midnight the doctor visited the single men's quarters; it was Kearns and Campbell's watch; they were seated at a table playing draughts; the doctor charged them with gambling, and not keeping their watch properly, and gave orders for the next watchman on turn to be called. This was Sherer, who, while getting up, appeared not to do so quickly enough to please the doctor, who roughly said to him, "God damn you, get up, &c.;" when up the doctor ordered him on deck, and he went, followed by the doctor, who then called up the ship's carpenter, and ordered him to lock Sherer up in one of the w.-c.'s. The carpenter unlocked the w.-c. door, and as Sherer refused to go in, not knowing what fault he had committed, the doctor ordered the carpenter to lay hold of him, and put him in; the doctor laying hands on Sherer and breaking the buttons off his coat. The carpenter refused to put his hands on the man, and the doctor said he would report him to me. The doctor did come, and reported the carpenter's refusal, refusal, to which I replied that he had acted quite right, and that the doctor had no authority over the crew without first consulting me. I saw he was much excited, and advised him to go to bed, and that I would inquire into the matter in the morning. The doctor again shortly after came to me, asking for some brandy to give to Mr. Green's child that was ill, saying that he (Green) fancied he can "treat the child better than I can, but I'll show him." I refused to give him the brandy, and I then heard him go to his cabin, and shortly afterwards he was snoring. Sberer further stated that the doctor was under the influence of drink, which charge Kearns and Campbell also affirm as being the truth.

(Signed by Kearns, Campbell, and Sberer.)

During the time the above charge was being made the doctor several times interrupted the speakers in an excited manner, striking the table with his fist, and using strong language, which I was forced to check. After the charge was laid he loudly exclaimed that he would now have witnesses on his side heard, naming Lovelock and some others—I think Galvin. I refused to hear them, saying I was not trying the case; I was merely taking down the depositions of men who had come before me for the purpose. He could produce his witnesses when the question was placed before the proper authorities. He then left the cabin, and seemed highly indignant, at what, he said, the one-sided way in which I had acted.

In sight of Sydney South Head Light.—I much regret at almost the termination of the voyage to <sup>May 1, page 31,</sup> have to accuse Dr. Pearson, Surgeon-superintendent, of most gross abuse and defiance towards myself—<sup>9:15 p.m.</sup> without provocation on my part—he being at the time excited from the influence of "drink" or drugs.

(Signed by myself.)

The doctor came into the saloon at this time and commenced shouting in a loud voice for the steward to bring him a light, using strong language at the last. There was a light in the saloon, also one in my cabin, where I was at the time with Mr. Scott, the storekeeper. Getting no reply to his calls, the doctor then came to my cabin-door and commenced a whole volley of insolence. I saw that he was under the influence of either drink or drugs, and said quietly, "Why, doctor, it's past 9; no doubt the steward has turned in; surely you're man enough to light your own candle, and pray don't make such a noise?" "I'm man enough for you, any how; say what you like, and in any way you like!" "Now, doctor," I replied, "be careful what you say; for, as you perceive, there's a witness here, and you are under the influence of drink." "Keep your witness," replied the doctor; "you're a bloody liar;" "I'm not drunk—it's a bloody lie," and so he went on, until I went to him and said, "Now, doctor, be careful, or I'll turn you out of the cabin, and have you locked up." "Will you?" said he; "only put your hand upon me, and then you'll see." I said, "Don't be afraid, I won't put my hand on you, but I shall call others that will," and I then moved to the outer door of the saloon, the doctor staggering after me, and stumbling over the door-sill. I called the mate on duty, Mr. Hunter, also Mr. Robinson, the third mate, who had turned in, and when they appeared I drew their attention to the doctor's condition, asking them if he was not the worse for drink, to which they assented. The doctor then went into the port quarter-deck cabin, occupied then by the steward, donkey-man, and my late first mate (now disgraced), and shut the door or some one inside closed it. I then asked Mr. Robinson, he having had a bottle of whiskey served to him to-day, whether he had given any to the doctor? He said, "Yes, one glass; not enough to make him tight." I said, "You know well doing so is against my orders and your given word," for since the last time I noticed the doctor excited I had given orders to stop all issue of wine and spirits; the officers, however, not being then on friendly terms with the doctor, and therefore not likely to give him anything, when they asked for spirits I allowed them to have one bottle each per week, they both first assuring me that they would not give any to the doctor.

(Signed by Mr. Hunter and Mr. Robinson, mates.)

I must here remark that, at 8:30 p.m., the doctor came into my cabin just as I was going on deck and asked me for a little brandy for an emigrant named "Daines," suffering from rheumatism; he had a pannikin with him and into it I poured about a gill of brandy; while so doing the doctor remarked to me that some of the sick fancied they knew what they required better than he did, so he would give them what they asked, etc. I thought he spoke somewhat huskily, but would not have noticed it afterwards except for the above written entry. While the doctor was in the port-deck cabin, Thompson, single men's constable, came on two occasions to the cabin seeking the doctor for a man named Lovelock, who he said was suffering badly in his inside. Mr. Scott, storekeeper, said a drop of brandy might ease him, so I gave it to him. I then went to the port-deck cabin, opened the door, saw the doctor seated on a chest, and my late mate holding the door handle. I told the doctor that that berth was no fit place for him to be in in his present position on board; it was the steward's, donkey-man, and a disgraced officer's; he had a cabin in the saloon and had better go to it. He muttered some reply about not knowing it was a disgraced officer's berth, and I left when the door was shut smartly after me. I went to my cabin to give Mr. Scott the brandy, as above mentioned, when the doctor passed in; I told him a man was bad, and that he had been twice sent for. He said, "It's a lie; I've not been called; I'm always ready to attend the sick, etc.," and was going on saying I had tried to undermine his authority, etc., etc. I did not reply, and he left the saloon with his lantern to go and visit the sick man, returning shortly after, going to his cabin, lighting his candle, shut the door, and I suppose was soon asleep, for I did not hear him again.

(Signed by Mr. Scott, storekeeper, and myself.)

The above was read by me to the officers who have attached hereto their signatures in proof of its <sup>May 2,</sup> correctness.

(My signature.)

Quarantine Anchorage: "In reply to this entry, which was read to the doctor in the presence of <sup>May 3,</sup> Mr. Hunter, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Scott, and myself, the doctor said that he denied it."

Appendix A.

I am aware that a document was sent to the Immigration Board, said document signed by some of the crew as well as some of the immigrants.

I have been in the Immigration service thirteen years, seven years as mate, also before the mast some twenty years ago.

I exercised the fire brigade but some of the married women got frightened.

Appendix B.

I have prepared instructions for officers.

I hand in printed instructions.

I drilled my crew between London and Plymouth, and in Plymouth.

I was complimented in Plymouth on my preparations for the same by the despatching officer.

I acknowledged on a few occasions when we were not likely to meet a vessel that I had no side lights out; I used my own judgment.

My life-buoys have not been touched since I left Plymouth. They are now ready where first placed for use; situation known to every one concerned.

I first heard of the want of latrine accommodation from Dr. Pearson, and I immediately had preparations made.

The pipe of one of the w.-c.'s was obstructed by a belaying pin, and I had it rectified at once the moment it was reported to me.

I did not skylark with the girls, but I have skylarked with little boys and girls every day (i.e. the children).

On January 30th my attention was called by chief officer (extract per log read) to the coal question; it then amounted to 30 cwt. gross consumption per day. We had 80 tons on board when we sailed from London. The engine worked with a pressure of 20 to 25 lbs., and produced 300 gallons in from 14 to 16 hours.

I consulted with Dr. Pearson, and we agreed to work only fourteen hours per diem, with a low pressure of 14 lbs., and to draw on the tanks for deficit.

The engineer and cooks have complained of the inferior quality of the coals supplied. I account for the large consumption of coals by the fact of our having a new boiler. A very poor report could be got at.

The coals we took in at the Cape lasted one-third longer and gave similar results. I called at the Cape for coaling purposes only. I took in there 60 tuns (30 tanks). I did not want this water, but I took it in because of calling for coals.

A man and his wife were asked by the doctor to wash for him, a Mr. and Mrs. Danes. Mrs. Danes has worked in the cabin of an afternoon, which of course made some of the others a little jealous, because we gave Danes and his wife some little things now and then, and Danes' wife did our washing.

I am sorry that the matron is dead; she first reported re the doctor. I asked Mrs. Willis of the doctor, and she said the doctor had behaved very strangely. I can't account for it, unless he has had too much grog. I said to the matron, "If its drink is the fault, I can stop that," and I have had to do so. I returned at 4 o'clock, when I landed at Cape of Good Hope, and I found the surgeon awaiting me; he used the word "bloody" about my officers and other matters, and said he had had to do all the fighting during my absence.

Appendix C.

From R. Rutledge and D. McCulloch, J. Brown, and H. Brown and others, put in by captain and read, re conduct of doctor (accusing him of drunkenness); also extract from official log, re conduct of doctor.

The single men, who had not kept their places clean, were the men who had signed the document in favour of the surgeon, the inference being that he let them off duty. The stones and scrapers were pitched overboard by the immigrants.

Letters dated 20th April.
Appendices.

Read withdrawing charges made against the Surgeon-superintendent. Several men insisted on the charges being left in my hands.

From that date commenced the dispute between the doctor and I.

The captain read copiously from his official log.

Appendix.

I will hand in a certified copy of my official log concerning the doctor.

Statement of Alfred Beach, 30 May, 1883.

I HAVE acted as engineer in charge of the condensing engine on board the ship "Allanshaw," recently arrived from Plymouth with Government immigrants. I joined the "Allanshaw" on 4th January, 1883, at Greenhithe, down the Thames. I signed articles in Plymouth; the others signed in London. I took the place of the engineer who signed articles in London. The man who did the repairs to the boiler connection when new boiler was put in came to me in London and asked me if I'd go on board and take the job of engineer, and he would recommend me to the owner, Mr. Norse. Mr. Phillips, of the Agent-General's Office, told me, in Plymouth, to keep up a good supply of water, and I would have a gratuity on arrival. The condenser had a double engine, one of which was almost useless from date of leaving. I understood that the other engineer whose place I took did not join the ship in accordance with directions, hence my engagement. I consumed about a ton of coals a day when working eighteen hours a day, or on an average 16 cwt. a day, working from fourteen to eighteen hours a day. The engine was never fit from the start for the work to be done, from not having been properly repaired. I told the owner, in Plymouth, that the engine ought to have been seen to. He said, "Can't you do it?" I replied, "I had only just joined the ship." The engine has been in the ship a long time; it's only a new boiler put in this time. The coals were very inferior, and burnt away, you might say, like candles. We produced every day about 300 gallons on the average; the highest production in one day was about 400 gallons, and the lowest, when we found the coals going so fast, only about 200 a day. If the coals had been of the very best quality I could not have produced the right quantity of water, as the engine connections were so rusty that you could not say whether they were iron or brass or what they were. She could do her work well now, because I have thoroughly cleaned her. There wasn't a brass bearing in her but I have had to strip and screw up; the top valve leaks now, and the safety-valve leaks now, but I could not say whether they did at starting on account of the engine working so bad. I have never been in an emigrant ship before; I have been in the "Orient," steamer, twice out here; the "Hankow" twice out here; and the "Sikh" once—all steamers; I was leading waterhand in the three of them. I was third engineer between three and four years in the Pacific Company's boats on the coast of Peru; that's about six years ago since I left that employ. I have no certificate with me to prove it.

Read by me, and signed this 30th May, 1883.

Alfred

Alfred Beach, 31 May, 1883.

THE statement signed by me yesterday and now read over to me is correct; one of the engines was almost useless; I then took the door off the steam-valve and put it right; inside and outside it was as rusty as could possibly be, and that was the reason it wouldn't make water properly; I drew the owner's (Mr. Norse) attention to it; he asked me if I could repair it, and I said I could not as it was a cast block; I told him distinctly the machinery was not fit for work; I showed him the faults; I did not know the valve was not fit for work; I explained the block was loose; I didn't know the valve inside was wrong; everything was rusty and dirty; the connection was so rusty that when I started to work I couldn't tell what it was; my opinion is this, through the engine being in this state I had to put the exhaust steam up the funnel instead of sending it to the condenser and that was a great loss; I did not find that out between London and Plymouth; two days after I left London I was ordered to set the engine at work; we were four days from London to Plymouth; for two days the engine was just working; I was only working her as slow as I could; I had then to send the exhaust steam up the funnel; I told the owner, Mr. Norse, that the engine had not been touched at all; I saw the person who was supposed to have repaired the engine the night before I joined; he said "You'll have a fine job;" I expected daily to see the engine break down; the valve was worn away; I pointed out that the valve gear was old, worn, and unfit for its purpose. The owner replied, "Can't you make a new block to work the valve?" I mentioned the matter to the captain, and I put in line eye-washers time after time to keep things straight; I think that at least 50 gallons of water per day were lost by being obliged to send the exhaust steam up the funnel; I think it was due in the first place to the engine being defective, out of repairs, and, secondly, to the bad coal that we had to go into the Cape; I think it was about three weeks after we left Plymouth that I effected the repairs; I took off the valve door; from that time to our arrival at the Cape the consumption of coal was much less to produce the same quantity of water; I think I consumed 6 cwt. less after repairs to the engine; it was fifty-seven days after leaving Plymouth until I was knocked off; after leaving the Cape, where we took in Cape coals, my consumption was only 3 cwt. per day; of the English coal I consumed 12 cwt. a day when I was working the condenser; after leaving the Cape I worked slow and produced 100 gallons per day; before we touched at the Cape I produced 200 gallons per diem; the captain gave me orders after leaving the Cape to work slow; the Cape coal was much superior to the English coal.

J. D. B. Le Couteur, 31 May, 1883.

A NEW boiler was put to my engine in London; this is my first voyage in the vessel; we worked the engine in London for two days prior to leaving London; the water produced was tested by Mr. Phillips your London officer; this was the only time 'twas tried in London; we did not discover the increased consumption at that time, the consumption was not tested; I did not notice that we had to work the engine for six days before leaving London; it should have engaged my attention; the consumption of coal when we considered it we calculated to be 30 cwt. per diem for all consumption; I did not discover the shortness of coal until the 30th January; we left Plymouth on the 13th January; the engineer who came with me gave me entire satisfaction; the engineer complained to me on the 30th January of the increased consumption but not before that date; the engineer joined the ship at Greenhithe, near Gravesend; it was Chaplin and Horne's condenser; I have always previously used Graveley's; it has been in the ship eight years; the certificate as required by the charter-party re the condenser was sent to the Agent-General; the engine was almost continuously worked during the voyage; it was working every day from daylight till dark with the exception of an hour or two occasionally for cleaning; it condensed 300 gallons, but if sound it would have easily condensed 500 gallons per twenty-four hours; the engineer never subsequently complained to me of the condenser; 'twas the bad quality of the coals and no defect of the condenser; calling at the Cape lengthened my passage; I calculated three weeks; 'twas after we left the Cape; I fancy when the doctor first reported scarlet fever on board I was only in the port thirty hours; we were told that small-pox had raged at the Cape before we arrived; some vessels were in Quarantine; we were warned of the small-pox; no health-officer boarded us at the Cape only the Deputy Harbour Master; no official of the health department boarded us; I was the only person who landed at the Cape; no one else did to my knowledge; the coal was supplied to us by Holland, of London, who generally supply most of our ships with that requisite; the ship was anchored about 2 miles from the shore, outside all the shipping; I consulted seriously with the doctor, and we agreed that it was absolutely necessary for the safety of the people to call; I have given an account of the same in my official log, copy of which I have handed in; I have sold the slush on previous occasions in other Colonies for the benefit of those who supply the stores; to myself it is not of the slightest importance; I did not promise the cook that he should have the slush, but I have generally given the cook a pound or two; I told the cook I did not know what the Government would do with it on arrival; I have only kept the slush back because I thought 'twas right; I did not engage any married woman for work in the cabin; a woman engaged to wash assisted the steward in the cabin; I supposed the steward asked her. Clause re female passengers, page 39 of the charter-party, here read; occasionally a man was employed in the cabin; I read the charter-party to apply to single girls; I had no complaint of want of closet accommodation; part of one of the ship's water-closets was blocked up by a belaying pin; the closet in which a man was confined by the doctor was I believe used for stores; I considered the condensing apparatus was in good order and worked well when we were despatched from Plymouth; Mr. Phillips saw the engine and tasted the water; he did not go down with us from London to Plymouth.

George Pearson, 31 May, 1883.

I AM late Surgeon-Superintendent of the "Allanshaw"; I have heard the evidence of the captain of the "Allanshaw" respecting me; I have simply to state that it is a deliberate falsehood; I have nothing to say except to bring the officers of the ship here to refute it; I am aware the captain read some portion of the official log respecting me; I am aware also that some of the passengers accused me of improper language and of drunkenness. [Written statements of several passengers read.] The captain came on board drunk at the Cape after an absence of seven hours; the captain told the immigrants there was only one above them at the Cape save him, and that was God; the water boat came alongside; I ordered my people not to hold communication with them, and had to use force to do so; I simply give the captain's statement a flat denial; the witnesses I can produce are Mr. Hunter, Mr. Robinson, 2nd officer, and Mr. Scott, storekeeper; I understand that the case will be decided in my absence if I fail to appear before the Board to-morrow at 2 o'clock p.m.

GEO. PEARSON,

J. D. B. Le Couteur recalled, 31/5/83 :—

THE rusty state of the condenser was owing to the top of the engine-house having been taken off to take out the old and replace a new boiler; previous to that every part of it was bright as silver; the reason the condenser was not worked until the third day after sailing from London was that the engineer was not fit for duty; on the third day the engineer went to work; I looked in and asked the engineer casually how the engine worked and he replied as all new comers would, "It's all right." One of the steam-valves was a little leaky; it was new and had to be ground down a bit; some of the working bolts were slack through wear; I heard the engineer had repacked one or two bolts with washers about three weeks after leaving Plymouth; I never heard that the consumption of coal was thereupon less; I attribute the want of water solely to the bad quality of the coal; we were never short of water; when we went into the Cape we had thirty tanks of water independent of the main tanks which hold several thousand gallons; I did not think we had sufficient coals for cooking purposes.

Denis Wade Hunter, 1 June, 1883, called by Dr. Pearson :—

AT present I am acting chief mate on the "Allanshaw"; I am aware that sundry charges of drunkenness have been brought against the Surgeon-superintendent; I knew of the paper having been signed by several immigrants against the doctor; I could not say I have never seen the doctor fit for duty; I have never seen the doctor drunk; I could not say the doctor was drunk on the occasion when the people signed the paper about the doctor's alleged drunkenness; on the 21st March I was below until night-time; I don't know whether the charges contained in said papers are true or not; I cannot name any special occasion when the doctor was under the influence of liquor; I have never seen him drunk; if a man is not fit to carry on duty he is drunk; I can't say I have heard the doctor use bad language to the immigrants; I received the captain when he came on board at the Cape; the doctor was in the cabin I believe at the time; there was a steamboat alongside during that day with liquor on board; the people on board were selling liquor and grapes to the immigrants; some of the immigrants bought some liquor; some was handed through the port-holes; the doctor came along from aft; I saw the steamboat people selling liquor to the immigrants and then I called the doctor, who ordered them away; I remembered the captain drawing my attention to the state of the doctor; I did not answer the captain; the doctor was in my cabin at 8 o'clock that night; he was not then under the influence of liquor; the captain called to me on one occasion: "Mr. Hunter, you can have no doubt of the doctor's drunkenness now"; I did not see the doctor then, but at eight bells the doctor was in my cabin; I saw the doctor and I'll swear he was not under the influence of liquor then; I can't say I ever saw the doctor drunk; I knew the doctor had a few glasses in him sometimes; the entry in the captain's log, dated May 1st, was read over to me and I assented to it and signed it; I particularly mentioned to the captain on that occasion that I did not sign that the doctor was drunk; the doctor was under the influence of liquor, but not the worse for it; I came on deck at 12 o'clock noon and stopped till 4, and I came on deck again at midnight and stopped till 4 in the morning, and I have frequently had to call the doctor up; I have always seen the doctor attend to his duty even on the night when the charges were read over.

James William Scott, 1 June, 1883, called by Dr. Pearson :—

I AM storekeeper on the "Allanshaw"; I am aware that certain charges were brought on 21st March against the doctor of having been under the influence of liquor; to my knowledge the doctor was not under the influence of liquor; I saw the doctor up to 2 o'clock of that date; the doctor and I took the chronometer on that date; I have seen the doctor occasionally once or twice under the influence of liquor; I have never seen him drunk; one evening, I don't recollect the date, I saw the doctor under the influence of liquor; I remembered the occasion when the doctor was logged for being under the influence of liquor; I signed the log, and at the time I believed he was under the influence of drink or drugs; he is rather an excitable man; I remembered the passages in the log respecting the doctor, signed by myself; they are true; the captain and the doctor for nearly thirteen weeks were on the most intimate terms.

Storekeeper, 1/6/83.

John Thomas Bebrouth, 1 June, 1883, called by Dr. Pearson :—

I WAS chief mate of the "Allanshaw" during the early part of the voyage, and I was suspended from duty by the captain on 9th April; I know that certain charges have been brought on one occasion against the doctor of having been under the influence of liquor; I have never seen it; I have seen him a good deal during the day, up to the time of my being sent to my room; I did not see the doctor under the influence of liquor the day of calling at the Cape, on 21st March; I know the doctor had a great deal of trouble on that date to keep the people away from communicating with the shore people; I did no duty since the date of my suspension.

APPENDIX A.

APPENDIX A.

SHIP "ALLANSHAW."

We, the undersigned, are prepared to state, on oath, that George Pearson, Surgeon-superintendent, was under the influence of intoxicating liquor on Wednesday, March 21st, 1883.

And did also, on the same date, use the most offensive and blasphemous language towards the emigrants, as those with the cross to their names will affirm.

[Here follow the signatures of seventy-five names.]

We the undersigned passengers and crew of the ship "Allanshaw," bound from Plymouth to Sydney, are of opinion that Captain John du Bois De Le Couteur is unfit for the discharge of his duty, as the following statements will prove:—

- 1st. Our lives were endangered by his neglecting drill at fire quarters, as expressly stated in the Regulations of New South Wales Government.
- 2nd. By neglecting to have the side-lights out on the following dates:—20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, and 24th of January, and 25th, 26th, and 27th of February.
- 3rd. Not having the boats in readiness for getting out in case of accident, the hoisting-out gear being used for other purposes; and not having the boats properly provisioned; and by having the life-buoy useless for service at night by removing the lights.
- 4th. Not having proper water-closets for the crew (one being used as a prison for emigrants, the other as a boatswain's locker) up to the day before entering Cape Town.
- 5th. By placing the ship in a dangerous position in running 38 miles to leeward after sighting Table Mountain, the wind being fair.
- 6th. Not managing his ship properly, on leaving Table Bay, he being at the time in charge of the deck, and skylarking with the girls on the poop, by which neglect we ran into a barque, damaging her to a great extent.

[Here follow the signatures of fifty-two immigrants and seamen.]

APPENDIX C.

Ship "Allanshaw," 22 March, 1883.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

New South Wales Government Office, 5, Westminster Chambers, 28 May, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 4th instant, announcing the engagement of the "Cardigan Castle" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel, containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government. To the Surgeon-superintendent, J. M. M'Donagh, 1st voyage, 10s.; the matron, £40; to the master, the first mate, the second mate, and the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government. The schoolmaster, £5; sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 14 June, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 4th May last (No. 18 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Cardigan Castle," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 1st instant with 384 emigrants on board, equal to 316 statute adults, and to enclose,—

1. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2. A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Cardigan Castle," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this Country, also showing their various nationalities.

3. A certificate of Dr. John M. M'Donagh, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5. A list of emigrants per "Cardigan Castle" who obtained at Plymouth, Bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 1 September, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 20th ultimo, of the ship "Cardigan Castle," having left that port on the 1st June, 1883, thus completing the voyage in eighty-one days.

The contract price per statute adult is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d.

2. The ship arrived in very good order and condition, and is in every way well adapted for the conveyance of immigrants. The ventilating arrangements are entirely satisfactory, except that in this vessel also the room for the issuing of stores is situated in the middle of the married people's compartment. In all other respects, with a height of 7 feet 6 inches 'twixt decks, the ventilation was exceptionally good.

The iron cowl for this purpose being a new departure from the system hitherto adopted, I would call favourable attention to such mode of ventilation.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of fifty married couples, with their one hundred and fifteen children, eighty-four single men, and eighty-two single women.

The

The nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £504, paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £838 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, thus making a total amount of £1,342 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Herewith is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred three deaths of infants. There were no births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the good quality and sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the depôt, whence they were discharged to their friends, excepting only sixteen, who were hired as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of ten shillings and sixpence per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamers were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to twenty-nine different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, John M. M'Donagh, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily.

It is therefore recommended that he receive the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Chicken, that "she discharged her duties with unwearied zeal and gave satisfaction to all." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her ninth voyage in charge of single women, and also the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports highly of the master and officers of the ship. It is therefore recommended that the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive be apportioned as follows:—To the master, who gave special assistance in the issuing of provisions, 2s. per head; to the chief mate 1s. per head, and 1s. per head to be equally divided between the storekeeper, the second and third officers.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; to the cook, £5; to the cook's assistant, £3; to the engineer, £5; to the baker, £3; to the carpenter, £3; to the water-closet constable, £5; to the eleven constables (each £3), £33; to the three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; to the hospital assistant, £3; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, a gratuity to the nurse of £5; total, £79.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the distilling apparatus worked very satisfactorily, condensing on an average four hundred gallons of excellent water per diem, on a consumption of 7 cwt. of coal.

13. As reported by the Surgeon-superintendent, the principal diseases that occurred on the voyage were diarrhœa, catarrh, bronchitis, neuralgia, &c.

With reference to my letter of the 9th ultimo, announcing the engagement of the "Lochee" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The undermentioned gratuities have been promised, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government, viz. :—To the Surgeon-superintendent (11th voyage), £1 on each emigrant landed alive; to the master, the first mate, the second mate, and the person who served out the provisions, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, to be divided as the Surgeon-superintendent recommends, subject to the approval of the Government; to the schoolmaster, £5; the matron, £40; sub-matrons, £3 each; the cook, £5; the cook's assistant, £3; the baker, £3; the men in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary and female mess constables, each £3.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S. W., 22 March, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 9th February last (No. 4 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Lochee," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 8th instant, with 416 emigrants on board, equal to 363 statute adults, and to enclose :—

1. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. The sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
2. A "Return" of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Lochee," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
3. A certificate of Dr. C. E. Strutt, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and the accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
4. A list of emigrants per "Lochee" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary,

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 1 June, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival on the 19th ultimo of the ship "Lochee," from Plymouth, having left that port on the 8th March, thus completing the voyage in seventy-two days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. The "Lochee" arrived in good order and condition, the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the passengers were most satisfactory, excepting that the issuing-room from which the stores are served out was situated in the centre of the married people's quarters, an arrangement which exposes the married people to the view of the men whose duty obliges them to go below every day for provisions, in

in addition to which the erection of this issuing-room in this particular locality prevents free ventilation through the compartment. In every other respect the "Lochee" is admirably adapted for the conveyance of emigrants, is very roomy between decks, and is well ventilated and lighted.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 51 married couples and one widow (whose husband died on the voyage), with their 93 children, 136 single men, and 84 single women.

The nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £450 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,182 was paid to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,632 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, as also with the good quality and the sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Dépôt, whence all were discharged to friends, with the exception of twenty-seven, who offered themselves for hire as domestic servants. Those readily obtained employment at an average rate of wages of 10s. 6d. per week.

7. Free passes by steamer and by rail were granted to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-three different districts; the remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, C. E. Strutt, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties in a most satisfactory manner. It is therefore recommended that he receive for this his eleventh voyage in charge of emigrants the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of £1 per head on the immigrants landed alive, and also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Jones, that "She discharged her duties with her usual tact, ability, and kindness." It is recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, and further, the Board of Immigration consider that Miss Jones, having made eleven voyages to this colony, and having invariably given every satisfaction, that she be recommended to receive an additional sum of £5; also that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to a further sum of £35 (in lieu of the amount theretofore paid of £30) to cover the cost of return passage to England, that being the amount now charged to matrons returning as second-class passengers by ocean steamers.

10. Dr. Strutt reports most favourably of the master and officers of the vessel; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive should be thus distributed, viz.:—To the master 1s. 6d., to the chief officer and to the storekeeper each 1s., and to the second mate 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; engineer, £5; hospital assistant, £3; water-closet constable, £5; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; twelve ordinary constables, £36; total, £74; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, that a gratuity of £3 should be paid to the nurse, £3; total, £77.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the condensing apparatus (Graveley patent) produced a daily supply of about 400 gallons of excellent water with a consumption of 8 cwt. of coal.

13. The principal diseases which occurred during the voyage are reported to have been diarrhoea, dyspepsia, and rheumatic affections.

These proceeded to twenty-eight different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Horace G. Button, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that he receive the gratuity of 12s. per head on each immigrant landed alive, for this his second voyage in charge of immigrants; and also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Stevens, that "she has very admirably performed her duties." It is therefore recommended that she receive the gratuity of £35 (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) for this her second voyage in charge of female immigrants; also that she receive a certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports most favourably of the captain and officers of the ship. It is recommended that the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 4s. per head on each emigrant landed alive be thus apportioned:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief mate and to the officer who served out the provisions, each 1s. per head; and 6d. per head to the second officer.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; to the cook, £5; to the cook's assistant, £3; to the engineer in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; to the baker, £3; to the w.c. constable, £5; to the hospital assistant, £3; to the three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; to the twelve ordinary constables (each £3), £36; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one nurse, £5; total, £79.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states regarding the condensing apparatus, that it produced 300 gallons of good water, with an expenditure of 6 cwt. of fuel for ten hours' work.

13. As reported by the Surgeon-superintendent, the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were "a few cases of diarrhœa and sore throat."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, 30 April, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 6th instant, announcing the engagement of the "Illawarra" for the conveyance of the emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The undermentioned gratuities have been promised, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government, viz.:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, L. R. Huxtable (first voyage), 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the person who served out the provisions, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, to be divided as the Surgeon-superintendent recommends, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the matron, £40; sub-matrons, each £3; the cook, £5; the cook's assistant, £3; the baker, £3; the men in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary and female mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S. W., 17 May, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 6th April last (No. 14 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Illawarra," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 3rd instant with 492 emigrants on board, equal to 410 statute adults, and to enclose—

1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received—where insufficient deposits have been made in the colony—on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Illawarra," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.

3rd. A certificate of Dr. L. R. Huxtable relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4th. A list of emigrants per "Illawarra" who obtained, at Plymouth, bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 17 August, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 29th ultimo, of the ship "Illawarra," with immigrants, having left that port on 3rd May, 1883, thus completing the voyage in eighty-seven days.

The contract price per statute adult is £13 7s. 6d.

2. The "Illawarra" on arriving was detained six days in Quarantine (a case of measles having occurred while in detention) for the purpose of purifying and cleansing the vessel. Four other cases of measles had occurred during the voyage.

This

This vessel is in every way well adapted for the conveyance of immigrants. I have, however, to report that the same obstacle to free ventilation occurs in this vessel as in many others—viz., that the issuing-room for supplies is situated in the middle of the married people's compartment, very much to the inconvenience and constant annoyance of the women and children.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 66 married couples, with their 147 children, 110 single men, and 102 single women. Their nationality is noted on the margin.

English ..	237
Irish .....	130
Scotch .....	67
Others .....	7

In addition to the sum of £444 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,361 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General, thus making an amount of £1,806 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there were three deaths—one being that of a single female adult and two of infants. There were two births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married couples and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment, and with the good quality and sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them.

Many of the immigrants had bank drafts, payable at one bank alone, amounting to a total of £807 2s. 6d., exclusive of other bank drafts or moneys in their possession of which no account was given.

6. The single women were as usual received at the Dépôt, whence they were discharged to their friends, excepting only 21, who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 3d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by coasting steamers were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as is shown in the following

These proceeded to twenty-seven different localities. The remainder of the immigrants, excepting one family, remaining in Quarantine, left the ship without notifying their proposed destinations.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, L. R. Huxtable, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity of 10s. per head for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to a further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Eagar, that she "performed her duties to the best of her ability."

It is recommended that she receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of £40; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the captain and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on the immigrants landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the first mate, 9d. per head; to the second mate, 5d. per head; to the third mate, 4d. per head; and to the officer who served out the provisions, 1s. per head.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; engineer, £5; hospital assistant, £3; W.C. constable, £5; 2 sub-matrons (each £3), £6; 2 sub-matrons (each £2), £4; 13 constables (each £3), £39; total, £78. Also, on the recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, to 2 nurses (each £4), £8. Total, £86.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the condensing apparatus that it supplied an average daily supply of 450 gallons of good water on a consumption of 8 cwt. of coal.

13. He further reports that the principal diseases which occurred on the voyage were "measles and infantile diarrhoea."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 30 May, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 4th instant, announcing the engagement of the "Assaye" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively on condition that the several parties have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, W. B. Violette, Esq. (first voyage), 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, £25; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 14 June, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 4th May last (No. 24 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Assaye," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 2nd instant, with 398 emigrants on board, equal to 331 statute adults, and to enclose,—

1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received—where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony—on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Assaye," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.

3rd. A certificate of Dr. W. Bradley Violette, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4th. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5th. A list of emigrants per "Assaye" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 24 September, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 3rd instant, of the barque "Assaye," with immigrants, having left that port on the 2nd June, thus completing the voyage in ninety-three days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. In consequence of the late prevalence of whooping-cough amongst the immigrants the ship was, on arrival, placed in quarantine for a few days. A charge for demurrage for one day was thus necessarily incurred.

The "Assaye" is a commodious vessel, is well suited for the conveyance of immigrants, and was found upon arrival to be in a very good and cleanly condition.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 48 married couples and 1 widow, with their 123 children, 95 single men, and 81 single women.

The

The nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £426 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,085 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,511 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Herewith is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred seven deaths, one being that of an adult, and five births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with the good quality and sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them during the voyage.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales amounting, as far as I could ascertain, to the sum of £1,207, exclusive of other drafts or moneys of which I had no cognizance.

6. The single women who were not detained at the Quarantine Station were received at the Depôt the day after the arrival of the ship, whence they were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of eleven, who were willing to hire as domestic servants, and who readily obtained wages at an average rate of 8s. 6d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to twenty-six different localities.

The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, W. B. Violette, Esquire, appears to have performed his duties most satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that he should be paid the gratuity of 10s. per head for this his first voyage in charge of immigrants; also, that he should receive a certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. In consequence of the Surgeon-superintendent having declined to recommend the payment of a gratuity to the matron, Miss Lee, the Board of Immigration examined into the charges which were made against her by Dr. Violette.

Having found that such charges were not sustained, the Board agreed that the promised gratuity of £25, for this her first voyage in charge of female immigrants, should be recommended to be paid; also, that she should receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent having given an unfavourable report of the master of the vessel, the Board of Immigration held several meetings thereon; the result of this investigation is contained in the report hereto annexed.

In accordance with such report it is recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head should be thus apportioned:—To the captain, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer, 1s.; to the two officers who served out the provisions, each 6d. per head; and to the second officer, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are recommended to be paid as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; engineer, £5; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; w. c. constable, £5; eleven constables (each £3), £33; two sub-matrons (each £3), £6; hospital assistant, £3—total, £71; also, a special gratuity, recommended by the Surgeon-superintendent, to one head nurse, £5; one assistant do., £1—total, £77.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were:—Chicken-pox, whooping-cough, bronchitis, rheumatism, &c.

I have, &c.,
 GEORGE F. WISE,
 Agent for Immigration.

Report by the Board of Immigration.

WE the Members of the Board of Immigration have held three meetings for the purpose of investigating certain charges which had been made against the master of the barque "Assaye," to the effect that he had violated the 26th clause of the charter-party, which prohibits any intercourse whatever with the female passengers.

We have no power to compel the attendance of witnesses, and although the investigation was held as soon as possible after the arrival of the vessel many of those whom we should wish to have examined had left Sydney whilst others declined to appear and give evidence.

As a continued inquiry by the Board would, under these circumstances, be impracticable, we recommend that the several gratuities, in accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, should be paid.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 22 February, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 12th January last (No. 1 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Ellora," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 9th instant, with 352 emigrants on board, equal to 311 statute adults, and to enclose—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving their names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received by the Emigration Officer for passage money of applicants selected by me, and in cases where insufficient or no deposits were made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families, which amount has been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 19 July, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 11th ultimo, of the ship "Ellora," with immigrants, having left that port on 9th February, thus completing the voyage in 122 days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. In accounting for the exceeding length of the voyage (122 days), the master of the ship stated that he had been compelled to call at the Cape de Verde Islands for a supply of coals for the use of the condensing apparatus, such a proceeding being in direct contravention of the terms of the charter-party, which enacts that the ship "shall not touch at any intermediate port other than that to be designated by the party of the second part, viz., the Agent-General, except from urgent necessity."

The Board of Immigration was summoned to investigate the matter. Subsequently the Engineer Surveyor of the Marine Board was requested to examine the water-distilling apparatus. Immediately on receipt of his report on the 12th instant the Board again met. Copies of the evidence taken, of the report of the Engineer Surveyor, and together with the final recommendation of the Board relative to the breach of the 20th clause of the charter-party, are herewith annexed.

3. The "Ellora," on arrival, was not in as clean a condition as she should have been, attributable perhaps to her long voyage.

The arrangements for ventilation in the married people's compartment were very defective.

The system of berthing the people athwartships, with alternate fore-and-aft bunks in recess, though affording a slight amount of privacy, entirely prevents any current of fresh air through the compartment, and prevents the escape of the foul air thus boxed up between two sets of berths.

The

The issuing store-room is situated in the middle of the married people's compartment, blocking ventilation and necessitating the daily attendance in this compartment of some of the single men to obtain their daily rations, very much to the inconvenience and annoyance of the women.

In the compartment for single women the ventilation shaft served for the hospital as well, and when required that it should be closed on account of the patients the fresh air was also shut off from the single women.

4. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 35 married couples and 1 widower (the wife having died on the voyage) with their 72 children, 136 single men, and 71 single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £536 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further amount of £895 was paid direct to the Agent-General, thus making a total of £1,431 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

5. Herewith is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there were five deaths, namely—three of adults and two infants; there were three births.

6. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage.

7. The single women were received at the Depôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of sixteen who were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained situations at an average rate of wages of 9s. 9d. per week.

8. Free passes by steamer and by railway were issued as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-five different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent, R. Scot Skirving, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties in a very satisfactory manner, and it is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of immigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Bant, that she "discharged her duties thoroughly and well." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £45, also the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

11. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the captain and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the first and second officers, 9d. each; and 1s. to the officer who served out the provisions.

12. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; engineer and two assistants, £5; hospital assistant, £3; water-closet constable, £5; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; eleven constables (each £3), £33; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent to the head nurse, £5; do. do. extra services, £1; to the assistant nurse, £2. Total, £79.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the condensing apparatus "working about twelve hours, produced on an average of 400 gallons of good water with a consumption of half a ton of coals."

14. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were "bronchitis, catarrh, and diarrhoea," and that the general state of the passengers in respect to health was eminently satisfactory; no epidemic disease at any time.

Report of the Board of Immigration on the ship "Ellora."

WE, the Board of Immigration have the honor to report that we have had under consideration the circumstances connected with the visit of the ship "Ellora" to the Island of St. Vincent while conveying emigrants to this Colony.

The evidence of the master of the vessel, Captain W. B. Haffenden, and that of the Surgeon-superintendent, R. Scot Skirving, Esq., having been taken (hereto annexed) we found it desirable to obtain the professional opinion of Mr. Wm. Cruickshank, engineer-surveyor to the Marine Board, as to the efficiency of the distilling apparatus on board the said vessel. His report is hereto annexed.

The ship "Ellora," with emigrants from Plymouth, left that port on the 9th February, and arrived at Sydney on the 11th June, having called at the Island of St. Vincent on the 13th March. The alleged reasons for so doing are set forth in the captain's log (copy hereto annexed), viz.: That on the 19th February (only ten days after departure from Plymouth) the engineer in charge of the distilling apparatus called the attention of the captain to the fact that "the pressure of steam is too low to give good results, while the consumption of fuel with every care is excessively heavy." From that date until the 2nd March it was found that the expenditure of fuel was "about 8 to 10 cwt. per day for the condenser." The engineer, on the 12th March, again called the attention of the captain to the fact: "The boiler blows off when standing at 20lbs., and when the ship is rolling, at 16lbs. and 17lbs.; therefore the consumption of fuel is very heavy to make the needed quantity of water required."

It was deemed advisable to call at St. Vincent for a supply of 30 tons of coal, and thus, as the captain adds in his log, "preclude the otherwise evident necessity of calling at the Cape of Good Hope."

It thus appears that a breach of the charter-party arose in consequence of the inefficiency of the condenser to supply the daily requirements of distilled water for 350 immigrants, on the average consumption of coal which hitherto has been always found to be sufficient on ships chartered by the Government.

Mr. Cruickshank, the engineer-surveyor, reports that he found "the engine, boiler, and condenser in fair working order, but that the design of the boiler is bad, and that it is about the worst type that could be used for generating steam, where the consumption of coal has to be specially considered, and with such a boiler of defective design, a reduced pressure, and a loss from the safety-valve all tended to increase the consumption of coal."

Mr. Cruickshank also reports that before the vessel left London "the working pressure had been reduced by the Board of Trade surveyor from 37 to 25lbs. per square inch."

Thus although the apparatus was capable of doing its work daily "the actual consumption (of coal) was 100 per cent. more than what is usually considered sufficient, and in addition the safety-valve was loaded with dead weight"; the escape of the steam would thus be accounted for at any departure of the engine from the perpendicular position. Had heavy weather generally prevailed during the voyage it is probable that even the supply of coal obtained at St. Vincent would have been insufficient.

The captain further states in his evidence, that "he thought the people would have starved for want of water had he not put into St. Vincent." It should be noted that the engineer first appointed to the "Ellora," shipped in London, but left her at Plymouth, and the captain tells us that he "believes that this man foresaw trouble with the engine."

We are disinclined to give credence to the statement of the engineer who succeeded him (as put forward by the captain) "that the boiler and condenser are good, and efficient ones," because such opinion is entirely at variance with that of the Marine Board surveyor, "that the boiler is about the worst type that could be used," and Mr. Surveyor Cruickshank's experience is apparently borne out by the fact of the pressure on the safety-valve being reduced by order of the Board of Trade by 33 per cent., thus indicating a boiler of considerable age. The owners must have been aware of this reduction of pressure on the safety-valve, but there is no evidence to show whether such reduction took place before or after the approval of the vessel, stores, and appliances by the Agent-General.

Having however regard to clause 19, which sets forth that "any approval by the Agent-General or his despatching officer shall not in any way or to any extent relieve the party of the third part (the owner's) from his responsibility under the charter-party," we are unanimously of opinion that the charter-party party was broken in consequence of the neglect on the part of the owners to supply a proper distilling apparatus, and, as undoubtedly parties chartering ships to the Government for the conveyance of emigrants, should be made to feel the responsibility they undertake. We unanimously recommend that a fine of not less than £250 shall be inflicted by the deduction of that amount from the balance of the passage money payable to the ship.

July 18th, 1883.

Mr. Engineer-Surveyor Cruickshank to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir,

Engineer-Surveyor's Office, Sydney, 7 July, 1883.

I have the honor to submit the following relating to the water-distilling apparatus on board the Immigrant ship "Ellora."

In accordance with your instructions I surveyed the above on the 6th instant.

1st. As to the general efficiency and working capabilities of the distilling apparatus:—Found the engine, boiler, and condenser in fair working order, and capable of condensing 500 gallons of fresh water, but that it required from twelve to fourteen hours of continuous work per day to do it.

2nd. As to the quantity of coal required to condense 500 gallons of water in twenty-four hours:—The average consumption per day was from 10 to 12 cwt.

3rd. As to the quality of the coal used:—The coal submitted to me was of fair average quality, and the engineer's evidence goes to prove that they had no difficulty in getting steam.

4th. As to the safety-valve pressure on boiler—its capability of producing 500 gallons per day:—Having due regard to the amount of coal required to be placed on board, estimated as per charter-party, to be 30 tons for 300 and under 500 passengers.

Had boiler thoroughly opened up, found the safety-valve loaded by dead weights to 25 lbs. per square inch, and that the working pressure had been reduced by the Board of Trade surveyor from 37 to 25 lbs. per square inch before the vessel left London.

This reduction (33 per cent.) had a material effect on the speed of the engine, thereby increasing the number of working hours to produce the required quantity of water, besides which a large amount of steam was lost in consequence of the safety-valve lifting when the ship rolled, the engineer having to keep the steam as high as possible to get the required amount of work out of the engine.

Again, the design of the boiler is bad for economy of fuel, and although simple in construction it is about the worst type that could be used for generating steam where the consumption of coal has to be specially considered; such being the case, having a boiler of defective design, a reduced pressure, and a loss from the safety-valve, all these tended to increase the consumption.

Respecting the amount of coal put on board I am decidedly of opinion that it is ridiculously small for a passage of 122 days.

This allows only 5 cwt. per day, a quantity leaving no margin whatever, even assuming the machinery to be constructed on the most approved principles.

Taking the consumption at 10 cwt. per day, the coal required for 122 days would be 61 tons, and according to the evidence this seems the actual amount used on the voyage.

The apparatus was capable of doing its work daily, but the actual consumption was 100 per cent. more than what is usually considered sufficient.

In page 3, clause 8, of charter-party, it states that the apparatus shall be continuously worked on board for six days prior to the ship leaving port, &c. I would suggest the desirability of checking the consumption for the above six days; this would always form the basis for calculating the total quantity required for the voyage.

I have, &c.,

WM. CRUICKSHANK.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 25 June, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 1st inst., announcing the engagement of the "Smyrna" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations" referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, Dr. J. Perkins, first voyage, 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, £25; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 12 July, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 1st June last (No. 23 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Smyrna," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 29th ultimo, with 411 emigrants on board, equal to 349 statute adults, and to enclose—

1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families; these sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2nd. A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Smyrna," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this Country, also showing their various nationalities.

3rd. A certificate of Dr. John Perkins, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4th. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the Surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5th. A list of emigrants per "Smyrna" who obtained at Plymouth, Bank drafts payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 15 October, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 29th ultimo, of the ship "Smyrna" with immigrants from Plymouth, having left that port on the 29th June last, thus completing the voyage in ninety-two days.

The contract price is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. The "Smyrna" arrived in very good order and condition, and is in every way well adapted for the conveyance of emigrants. The ventilating arrangements are very satisfactory.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of fifty-two married couples, with their one hundred and eleven children, one hundred and sixteen single men, and eighty-two single women.

The nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £499 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,162 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,661 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred three births, and one child of two years of age died.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women and of the married couples and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales amounting to a total of £914 sterling, exclusive of drafts on other Banks and moneys of which I was unable to obtain any information.

6. The single women were as usual, received into the Depôt, whence they were discharged to their friends with the exception only of fourteen who were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. per week.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, John Perkins, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive, for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to a further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Drew, that she discharged her duties "very satisfactorily." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £25 for this her first voyage in charge of single female immigrants, and also that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship. It is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General), be apportioned as follows, viz.:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head on each immigrant landed alive; to the chief officer, and to the officer who served out the provisions, 1s. per head; and to the second officer, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; engineer, £5; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; w.-c. constable, £5; eleven constables (each £3), £33; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; hospital assistant, £3—£74; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one hospital nurse, £4; one m.w. constable extra, £2—£80.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the distilling apparatus worked very satisfactorily, condensing 500 gallons per day with an average consumption of 8½ cwt. of coal per day.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of the immigrants has been very good; one case of typhoid fever occurred during the voyage; no other serious diseases are reported.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary,

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 20 October, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 7th instant, of the barque "Gladstone," with immigrants, having left that port on the 3rd July, thus completing the voyage in ninety-six days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. The "Gladstone" arrived in very good order and condition; all the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the immigrants have been well carried out; the ventilation in each compartment of the ship was found to be perfect.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of seventy-four married couples with their seventy-eight children, ninety single men, and ninety-six single women.

Their nationality is noted on the margin.

In addition to the sum of £377 10s., paid by the depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,056 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,434 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred one death, that of a child, and one birth.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Bank drafts to the amount of £461 9s., payable on one bank, were held by the immigrants; this amount is exclusive of drafts on other banks, or of cash that may have been in their possession.

6. The single women were, as usual, received into the Dépôt, the larger number were discharged to their friends, leaving only thirty who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 11s. per week.

7. Free passes by steamers and by rail were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-two different localities; the remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Henry W. Lentaigne, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties in a very satisfactory manner. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Osborne, that she "performed her duties in a most satisfactory manner." It is therefore recommended, in accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her second voyage in charge of female immigrants; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the captain and officers of the vessel; it is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General), be thus apportioned:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer and to the officer who served out the provisions, 1s. per head; and to the second officer, 6d. per head on each immigrant landed alive.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; carpenter, £3; engineer, £5; water-closet constable, £5; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; six ordinary constables (each £3), £18; three ordinary constables (each £4), £12; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent to one head nurse, £5; one assistant nurse, £2; total, £72.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the condensing apparatus produced 400 gallons of fresh water with an average expenditure of 13 cwt. of coal per diem.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases that occurred during the voyage were diarrhoea, bronchitis, and fever.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 30 Emigration—83.)

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 29 June, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Dharwar," of 1,300 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of emigrants from Plymouth to Sydney, New South Wales, to be ready to embark passengers on the 11th July.

The rates are as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
If 250 and under 275 statute adults ... ..	14	17	6
275 " 300 " ... ..	13	17	6

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

New South Wales Government Offices,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 11 July, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 29th ult., announcing the engagement of the "Dharwar" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, Dr. C. F. Middleton, first voyage, 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, £25; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 27 July, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 29th ult. (No. 30 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Dharwar," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 15th inst. with 413 emigrants on board, equal to 346 statute adults, and to enclose—

1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families; these sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2nd. A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Dharwar," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this Country, also showing their various nationalities.

3rd. A certificate of Dr. Chas. F. Middleton, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4th. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the Surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5th. A list of emigrants per "Dharwar" who obtained at Plymouth, Bank drafts payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 24 October, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 30th September, of the ship "Dharwar" with immigrants, having left that port 15th July, thus accomplishing the voyage in seventy-seven days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. This vessel was placed in quarantine for a few days, measles and whooping cough having broken out during the voyage.

On arrival from quarantine the ship was found to be in very good order and condition.

The arrangements for ventilation are very complete and most satisfactory, a thorough draught being afforded by five iron cowls, and advantage has been taken of every possible aperture that could be used for ventilating purposes.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of fifty-two married couples, with one hundred and nineteen children, one hundred and five single men, and seventy-nine single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £452 10s. paid by depositors in this Colony, a further sum of £1,087 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,539 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

English	263
Irish	98
Scotch	48
Other Countries	8
	497

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred ten deaths, all of children under two years of age; there were four births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Many of the immigrants held Bank drafts payable at one Bank only, amounting to a total of £425 10s. This sum is exclusive of other Bank drafts and moneys in their possession of which I had no cognizance.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Dépôt, whence they were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of sixteen, who were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. per week.

7. Free passes by steamer and by rail were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

SUMMARY.

Why proceeding.	Married.	Children.	Men.	Women.

To or with friends	7	9	1	13
Seeking employment in districts selected by themselves...	5	16	17	.....
General total, 95	13	25	31	13

These proceeded to twenty-five different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, C. F. Middleton, Esq., appears to have performed his duties in a very satisfactory manner, up to the 13th September, from which date, on account of an acute attack of rheumatic fever, he was unable to attend to his duties; on arrival it was found necessary that he should be at once removed to the Prince Alfred Hospital.

It is recommended that the promised gratuity of 10s. per head on all immigrants landed alive be paid to Dr. Middleton, less the amount of £50 paid by the Agent-General on his account to his representative in London; also that the usual certificate be granted authorizing him to receive a further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Schweers, that she "discharged her duties in the most able manner." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £25 for this her first voyage in charge of female immigrants, also that the usual certificate be given, entitling her to a further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the captain and officers of the ship. It is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General), be apportioned as follows, viz.:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head on each immigrant landed alive; to the chief officer, and to the officer who issued the provisions, 1s. per head; and to the second officer, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; engineer, £5; w.-c. constable, £5; twelve constables (each £3), £36; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; hospital assistant, £3; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one nurse, £5; one assistant ditto, £3—£85.

12. The principal diseases that occurred during the voyage were diarrhoea and measles.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 27 October, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival on the 11th instant, from Plymouth, of the ship "Ellora" with immigrants, having left that port on the 28th July, thus completing the voyage in seventy-five days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. On arrival the "Ellora" was placed in quarantine, measles having broken out during the voyage.

The ship received pratique and arrived in Neutral Bay on the 15th instant.

On arrival from quarantine she was found to be in very good order and condition. Dr. Edmonds' patent ventilating appliances appear to be a very great improvement on the system of ventilation which has hitherto obtained in emigrant ships to this Colony.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of sixty-three married couples, with their one hundred and twenty-four children, one hundred and twenty-seven single men, and eighty-eight single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £442 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,422 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,864 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred four deaths (of infants); no births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £1,007 10s., exclusive of other drafts or moneys of which I had no cognizance.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Dépôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of nineteen, who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 9s. 6d. per week.

7. Free passes by steamers and by rail were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-four different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Louis Fitzpatrick, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants, and also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss H. Titchmarsh, that she "performed her duties satisfactorily." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £25 for this her first voyage in charge of single female immigrants; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship. 12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the condensing apparatus distilled per diem 300 gallons of fresh water, on an average consumption of 8 cwt. of coal.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were measles and croup.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 24 August, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 27th July last (No. 37 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Dallam Tower," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 9th instant, with 417 emigrants on board, equal to 350 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 16 November, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 1st instant, of the ship "Dallam Tower," with immigrants, having left that port on the 9th August, thus completing the voyage in eighty-four days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. On arrival the ship was found to be in fair order and condition.

This vessel is fitted with Dr. Edmonds' ventilating appliances in the married peoples' compartment, of which the Surgeon-superintendent reports that "it was fairly useful," notwithstanding which, however, he further reports that "the ventilation in the married peoples' compartment was defective."

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 55 married people with their 117 children, 107 single men, and 83 single women.

Their nationality is noted on the margin.

In addition to the sum of £235 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,315 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,550 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred three deaths (of infants) and three births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with the good quality and sufficient quantity of the provisions issued to them. During the voyage some complaints were made by a few of the single women as to the conduct of the matron towards themselves, whilst many others spoke much in her favor. The Board of Immigration did not consider it necessary to take other than a cursory notice of these complaints.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales amounting to £2,115 10s., exclusive of drafts on other Banks, and of moneys of which I had no cognizance.

6. Amongst the single men was one named Thomas Minogue (registered number of application, 17,389), who, about a fortnight before his arrival, suddenly showed symptoms of insanity, requiring the constant care of an attendant. As soon as possible after arrival Minogue was examined by two medical gentlemen, upon whose certificate I caused him to be conveyed to the Receiving House at Darlinghurst, from whence he has been forwarded to Gladsville. I was unable to ascertain whether this man had been thus afflicted at any previous period of his life.

The attention of the Agent-General might be specially invited to this particular case.

7. The single women were, as usual, received at the Dépôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of twenty-three, who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 6d. per week.

8. Free passes by steamer and by rail were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-seven different districts. The remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destinations.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent, J. M. Kendall, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his second voyage in charge of immigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Bates, that she performed her duties satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £25 for this her first voyage in charge of single female immigrants; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

11. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer and the officer who served out the provisions, each 1s. per head; and 6d. per head to the second officer.

12. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; engineer, £5; w.c. constable, £5; twelve ordinary constables (£3), £36; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; hospital assistant, £3; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one nurse, £3; one assistant do., £2; attendant to insane man, £2. Total, £84.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the condensing apparatus distilled 350 gallons per diem with an average consumption of 15 cwt. of coal.

14. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that "no sickness of any moment prevailed at any time during the voyage."

If 250 and under 275 statute adults	14	17	6
270 " 300 "	13	17	6
300 statute adults and upwards	13	7	6

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, New South Wales Government Offices,
5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 20 August, 1883.
With reference to my letter of the 10th inst., announcing the engagement of the "Star of India" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government :—To the Surgeon-superintendent, J. W. Springthorpe, first voyage, 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, £25; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 7 September, 1883.
Referring to my despatch of the 10th August last (No. 38 Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Star of India," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 23rd ult. with 359 emigrants on board, equal to 308 statute adults, and to enclose—

1. Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2. A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Star of India," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.

3. A certificate of Dr. J. W. Springthorpe, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the Surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5. A list of emigrants per "Star of India" who obtained, at Plymouth, Bank drafts payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 4 December, 1883.
I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on the 16th ult., of the ship "Star of India" with immigrants, having left that port on 23rd August, thus completing the voyage in eighty-five days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. Measles having become epidemic during the voyage, the ship was on arrival placed in quarantine for a few days, receiving pratique on the 21st ult.

This vessel was fitted with Dr. Edmonds' patent ventilating appliances; the arrangements for ventilating while the apparatus was not at work were good. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that in the married people's compartment the atmosphere "was never close or stuffy, and no doubt the ventilation by steam had a great deal to do with that result."

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of thirty-eight married couples, with their eighty-seven children, one hundred and nine single men, and eighty-three single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £255 10s. paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,076 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,332 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

English	223
Irish	38
Scotch	37

	365

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred six deaths (one of an adult, and five of infants), and two births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt and of the married people and single men on board the vessel, all expressed themselves satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £685 16s. 6d. This sum is exclusive of drafts on other Banks, and of moneys in their possession, of which I was unable to obtain any information.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Depôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of twenty-four, who were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of 11s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

SUMMARY.

These proceeded to twenty-eight different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, J. W. Springthorpe, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties very satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General), for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Duchesne, that "she has been extremely anxious to do her duty, sparing neither her time nor her convenience, but that she had no control over the girls." She is recommended for her promised gratuity of £25 for this her first voyage in charge of single female immigrants; also to receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and of those of the officers of the ship to whom a gratuity is payable. It is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General), be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer, and the officer who served out the provisions, each 1s. per head; and 6d. per head to the second officer.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; engineer, £5; w.-c. constable, £5; eleven ordinary constables (each £3), £33; two sub-matrons (each £3), £6; two ditto (each £1 10s.), £3; hospital assistant, £3; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, two nurses (each £4), £8—£79.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the condensing apparatus distilled, on an average, 328 gallons of water, with an average consumption of 10 cwt. of coal.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that "the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were diarrhoea and measles."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 39, Emigration—83.)

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 10 August, 1883.
I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Rialto," of 1,182 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of emigrants from Plymouth to Sydney, New South Wales, to be ready to embark passengers on the 3rd September.

The rate is £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

I have, &c.,

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 21 September, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 10th August last (No. 39, Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Rialto," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 8th instant, with 364 emigrants on board, equal to 306 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, showing names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amount received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A "Return" of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Rialto," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. Dawes, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- (4.) Copy of letter of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.
- (5.) A list of emigrants per "Rialto" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts, payable at Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
- (6.) Copy of a letter received from Dr. R. Dawes, with reference to the conduct of the emigrants while in the depôt at Plymouth.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 22 December, 1883.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 14th instant, of the barque "Rialto," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 8th September, thus completing the voyage in ninety-seven days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. On arrival the vessel was found to be in good order and condition. She is fitted with Dr. Edmonds' ventilating apparatus, about which the Surgeon-superintendent makes no special comment, reporting however that "the accommodation and ventilation were good."

Dr. Dawes informs me that the change of position of the store-room from the married people's compartment to that of the single men's is a decided improvement, the comfort of the married people being thereby much benefited, while there appears to be no objection to the issuing of stores from the single men's compartment.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 47 married couples, 108 single men, 57 single women, and 102 children. Their nationality is noted on the margin.

In addition to the sum of £339, paid by depositors in this Colony, a further sum of £731 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,070 10s. paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants:—During the voyage there occurred seven; deaths of these six were those of infants, the remaining one being that of an adult who fell overboard and was drowned, notwithstanding that every effort was made to save him, the vessel remaining about the spot for the space of two hours after his disappearance. There occurred four births during the voyage.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the vessel, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

The drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, held by immigrants by this vessel, amounted to £874 14s. 6d.; this amount is exclusive of moneys in possession of the immigrants of which I had no cognizance.

6. The single women were, as usual, received into the depôt whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of ten who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 9s. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege as shown in the following

The Surgeon-superintendent, ship "Sydenham," to The Agent-General.

Sir, Emigrant's Depôt, Plymouth, 13 September, 1883.
 I have the honor to inform you that I have made a thorough inspection of the emigrants now awaiting embarkation for Sydney, per ship "Sydenham," and that I consider them in a fit mental and physical condition to undertake the voyage, and earn their livelihood in the Colony. I have also made particular inquiries of several emigrants with regard to their general treatment and comfort during unavoidable detention in the Depôt, and I am pleased to say that they have unanimously expressed themselves as fully satisfied (in some cases as agreeably surprised) with the general arrangements, excellent regimen, cleanliness, dormitory plans, and mild necessary discipline they have experienced. They have also fully appreciated the leave of absence which has on several occasions been extended to them.

I have, &c.,

W. PEIRCE, B.A., M.D.,

Surgeon-superintendent, ship "Sydenham."

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 11 January, 1884.
 I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on 25th ultimo, of the ship "Sydenham," having left that port on the 15th September, thus making the passage in one hundred and one days. The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.
 2. In consequence of the prevalence of whooping-cough the ship was detained for three days in Watson's Bay for fumigation.

The ship was reported by the Surgeon-superintendent to have been "generally well ventilated; the mechanical ventilating apparatus answered the purpose well." The ship was clean and in very good order on arrival.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 43 married couples, 81 children, 115 single men and 54 single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £368 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £726 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, thus making a total of £1,094 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales to the total of £757 6s.; this amount is irrespective of drafts on other Banks, or cash that may have been in possession of the immigrants of which no information could be obtained.

5. Herewith is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants; during the voyage there were two births and eight deaths, infants from one to four years old.

6. The single women were received at the Depôt; the larger number were immediately discharged to their friends, leaving only nine for engagement as domestic servants. These obtained employment at an average rate of wages of 11s. per week.

7. Free passes by railway and by steamer were provided for all those who desired to go into the country, as detailed in the following

SUMMARY.

Why proceeding.	Married.	Children.	Men.	Women.
Hired ... ..	.....	.....	4	2
To or with friends ... ..	3	14	17	11
Seeking employment in districts selected by themselves...	4	7	22	.....
Total, 91 ... ..	7	21	43	13

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Dr. W. Peirce, appears to have given every satisfaction in the performance of his duties; it is therefore recommended that he be paid the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head for this his first voyage in charge of immigrants; also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him on arrival in England, to the further sum of £60, towards the cost of his return passage.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Goodman, that she discharged her duties "very satisfactorily"; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of £25 be paid to her for this her first voyage in charge of female immigrants; also that she receive a certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35, towards the cost of her return passage, or that she be provided with a free return passage by one of the Orient steamers, at the cost of £35.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the master and officers of the ship, that they rendered him every required assistance; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on the immigrants landed alive be thus distributed:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief mate, 1s. per head; to the officer who served out the provisions, 1s. per head; and to the second mate, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are recommended for payment, as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; two cook's assistants (each 30s.), £3; engineer in charge of condenser, £5; hospital assistant, £3; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; eleven constables (£3 each), £33; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; w.c. constable, £5; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent to the nurses, whom he found it necessary to appoint, the sum of £4. Total, £78.

Ship "North."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 43, Emigration—83.)

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 24 August, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that the ship "North," of 1,284 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of emigrants from Plymouth to Sydney, New South Wales, to be ready to embark passengers on the 19th September next.

The rates are as follows:—

If 250 and under 275 statute adults	£	s.	d.
275 " 300 "	14	17	6
300 statute adults and upwards	13	17	6
	13	7	6

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 19 September, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 24th ult., announcing the engagement of the "North" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—The Surgeon-superintendent, twelfth voyage, £1 on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, third voyage, £40; the master, the first mate, mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 5 October, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 24th August last (No. 43, Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "North," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 22nd ult. with 387 emigrants on board, equal to 331 statute adults, and to enclose,—

1. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amount received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2. A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "North," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.

3. A certificate of Dr. C. E. Strutt, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

4. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

5. A list of emigrants per "North" who obtained, at Plymouth, Bank drafts payable at Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.

6. Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL

11 September, 1883.

We hereby certify that we have shipped on board the "North," for Sydney, 90 tons of coals for the use of the emigrants and crew.

Per F. R. FISHER.

To Messrs. Houlder, Bros. & Co.

Merchants Gaugers' Office, 3, Vernon Road, Tredegar Road, North Bow,
10 September, 1883.

THIS is to certify that I have gauged for ship "North," lying in the South West India Docks, thirty-five water-tanks, and find they contain 14,000 gallons, also ship's tanks and casks containing 16,210 gallons, making a total of 30,210 imperial gallons, equal to 119 tuns 222 gallons.

W. TAYLOR,
Gauger.

Smithfield Works, New Road, Blackwall, London, E., 19 September, 1883.

We hereby certify that the distilling apparatus on board the ship "North" has been thoroughly repaired, and put in perfect working order; that it is constructed on Graveley's patent principle; and that it is capable of producing 700 gallons of pure fresh water per day of twenty-four hours; also, that I. Baker, appointed as engineer, is capable of working and repairing the apparatus; that the apparatus has been passed, and the engineer in charge examined by the Board of Trade Engineer Surveyor.

D. W. FORBES & CO.,
Manufacturers, Winchester and Graveley's Patent.

Dear Sirs,

Plymouth, 23 September, 1883.

I have to inform you that the condenser and emigrants' galley were worked during the passage from London, and found to be in thorough working order.

Messrs. Houlder Bros. & Co.

I am, &c.,
W. H. LIDSTONE,
Master of the ship "North."

Sir, Central Foundry and Engine Works, Plymouth, 21 September, 1883.

I hereby certify that I have this day made a thorough inspection of the distilling apparatus on board the ship "North," and I find it to be in a thoroughly efficient order in every respect, and capable of supplying at least 800 gallons per day.

The engineer in charge of the apparatus is, in my opinion, fully competent for his position.
The Agent-General for New South Wales, London. SAMUEL WILLOUGHBY.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 10 January, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on Monday afternoon, the 24th ultimo, of the ship "North" with immigrants, having left Plymouth on the 22nd September, thus completing the voyage in ninety-three days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per head.

2. The ship on arrival was found in all respects to be in good order; all arrangements for the comfort of the immigrants had been carefully made.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 106 married people, 96 children, 118 single men, and 60 single women.

English ... 263

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £370 10s. deposited by their friends in the Colony, a further sum of £803 had been paid to the Agent-General in London, thus making a total of £1,173 10s. paid towards the cost of their passage either by themselves or by their friends in the Colony.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred one birth and eight deaths, namely,—two adults, and six children under three years of age.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage.

On inquiry it was found that many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales; the amount, so far as it could be ascertained, was £608 17s. Other moneys in cash were held by the immigrants, but the amount could not be ascertained.

6. The single women were received at the Depôt at an early hour on the morning of Christmas Day; the larger number were discharged from the Depôt to their friends, leaving only thirteen for hire. These were readily engaged at an average rate of wages of 8s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by railway and by steam-boats were provided for those of the immigrants who wished to proceed into the country, as detailed in the following

SUMMARY.

These proceeded to thirty-one different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, C. E. Strutt, Esq., appears to have given every satisfaction in the performance of his duties; it is therefore recommended that he receive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) the promised gratuity of 20s. per head on the immigrants landed alive; also, that he receive either a return passage by one of the Orient steamers, or the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Stevens, that she discharged her duties with punctuality and attention; it is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of £40 for this her third voyage in charge of female immigrants; also, that she be provided either with a return passage per one of the Orient steamers, or be granted a certificate entitling her to the sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the conduct of the master and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on the immigrants landed alive be thus distributed:—1s. 6d. per head to the master; to the chief officer, 1s. per head; to the storekeeper who issued the provisions, 1s. per head; to the second officer, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities (as per letter of instructions) are recommended as payable:—To the school-master, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; engineer in charge of distilling apparatus, £5; w.c. constable, £5; carpenter, £3; hospital assistant, £3; eleven constables (each £3), £33; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; and upon the recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, to the nurse, £3. Total, £77.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the condensing apparatus provided 60 gallons of water with a consumption of 60lbs. of coal per hour. The water was good and wholesome, and was sufficient for an unlimited supply to be served out to the emigrants.

13. The principal diseases that occurred were indigestion, diarrhoea, and bronchitis. No infectious complaints occurred during the voyage.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 3 October, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 7th September, announcing the engagement of the "Pericles" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of the vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, H. C. Button, third voyage, 12s. per head on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, eighth voyage, £40; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrant's steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive,—the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 19 October, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 7th September last (47, Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Pericles," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 6th instant, with 452 emigrants on board, equal to 386 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in the Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Pericles," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. Horace C. Button, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.

(4.)

- (4.) Copies of letters of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.
 (5.) A list of emigrants per "Pericles" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
 (6.) Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.

I have, &c.,
 SAUL SAMUEL.

291, East India Dock Road, London, E., 20 September, 1883.

We hereby certify Edward W. Graveley, appointed as engineer on board ship "Pericles," is competent to take charge and work the condensing apparatus on board the abovenamed ship.

The same is in good working condition, and capable of producing at least five hundred (500) gallons of fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

We have also supplied and fitted on board passengers cooking and baking apparatus—the three ovens having a capacity of thirty-two (32) cubic feet, the cooking and tea-water boilers collectively contain one hundred and seventy-six (176) gallons.

GEORGE GRAVELEY.

Captain Faulkner, Marine Superintendent, Messrs. George Thompson & Co.

Merchant Gauger's Office, 3, Vernon Road, Tredegar Road, North Bow.

This is to certify that I have gauged for ship "Pericles," lying in the East India Docks, seventy (70) water-tanks, and find they contain twenty-eight thousand (28,000) gallons, also main tanks and casks containing 3,650 gallons, making a total of thirty-one thousand six hundred and fifty (31,650) Imperial gallons, equal to 125 tons 150 gallons.

W. TAYLOR,
 Gauger.

25 September, 1883.

East Quay, East Indian Docks, London, E., 26 September, 1883.

We hereby certify that we have supplied to the "Pericles" 105 tons of coals for ship's use.

Pro. COMPTON & HARDESS.
 THOS. MITCHELL.

To Messrs. Geo. Thompson & Co.

Sir,

Central Foundry and Engine Works, Plymouth, 3 & 4 October, 1883.

I have made a careful inspection of the distilling apparatus on board the ship "Pericles," and I find that the same is in proper working order, and capable of producing 400 gallons of fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

The man in charge of the distilling apparatus is fully competent to work it.

The coal supplied for boiler is, in my opinion, of very good quality.

The Agent-General, New South Wales.

SAMUEL WILLOUGHBY.

Sir,

Depot, Plymouth, 4 October, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that I have to-day inspected the emigrants about to proceed to Sydney by the ship "Pericles," and find them in excellent health and fit to embark, with the exception of a single woman named Ellen Wallace, whom I found to be suffering from melancholia with delusions, and I have therefore declined to permit her to proceed in the ship.

I have also thoroughly inspected the Depot, and consider it admirably adapted for the purpose for which it is used. The internal arrangements for the comfort and despatching of the emigrants are good, and the whole of the buildings, including passages, stairs, water-closets, and yards, are scrupulously clean, as is likewise the whole of the bedding.

HORACE C. BUTTON,
 Surgeon-superintendent, ship "Pericles."

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

Plymouth, 4 October, 1883.

I AGREE with Captain Largie, of the "Pericles," to put a spare condenser on board of his ship, and fit same so that steam can be turned on to that condenser independent of the one on board.

I also further agree, if it is not used on the voyage, to take same back on the return of the vessel to London, or to fit another in the ship—Captain Largie to allow 5 per cent. on the outlay, whether used or not. The price fitted to be £25 (twenty-five pounds).

GEORGE GRAVELEY.

Dear Sir,

Ship "Pericles," Plymouth, 6 October, 1883.

In addition to the condenser which is on board, and has already been passed and certified to by the Board of Trade, I have had fixed on board the ship whilst at Plymouth an extra spare condenser, and have also taken on board an additional supply of 12 tons of steam coal.

I have done this merely as a precautionary measure, and do not anticipate it is likely to be required.

I am, &c.,
 JAMES LARGIE,
 Master.

T. Hughes Phillips, Esq.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 10 January, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival from Plymouth, on Monday night, 24th December, of the ship "Pericles," with immigrants, having left that port on the 6th October, thus completing the voyage in seventy-nine days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. The "Pericles" arrived in excellent order; although a steamer was obtained and every preparation was made to land the female immigrants on Christmas morning, they unanimously requested to be permitted to remain on board ship, and were therefore not landed until the following morning.

The ship was fitted with Dr. Edmonds' patent ventilating apparatus in the married people's compartment, and was reported by the Surgeon-superintendent to have assisted most materially in obtaining good ventilation; all other arrangements for the comfort of the immigrants had been carefully made.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 71 married couples, 118 children, 115 single men, and 79 single women.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £384, paid by friends in the Colony, a further sum of £959 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, thus making a total of £1,343 10s. paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards their cost of passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred four births and two deaths, one infant and one male adult.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married couples and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage.

It was ascertained that many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales to the amount of £809; this sum, however, was irrespective of bank drafts or moneys which the immigrants might have possessed of which I was not able to obtain correct information.

6. The single women were received at the Depôt, whence the greater number was discharged to their friends, leaving only seventeen for hire, who were readily engaged as domestic servants at an average rate of wages of 10s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by steamer and by rail were provided for all who wished to proceed into the country districts, as tabulated in the following

SUMMARY.

Why proceeding.	Married.	Children.	Men.	Women.
Hired...	14	22	13	1
To or with friends	4	8	17	14

These proceeded to thirty-three various districts. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Horace G. Button, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that he receive the gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 12s. per head for this his third voyage in charge of emigrants, also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Bant, that "she discharged her duties in every way in a most excellent manner"; it is therefore recommended that she receive the gratuity of £40 for this her eighth voyage in charge of female emigrants; also that she be provided with a free passage by one of the Orient steamers, to the value of £35, which amount she would otherwise be entitled to receive towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the master and officers of the ship rendered him every assistance that he required; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head be thus distributed:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief mate, 1s. per head; to the second mate, 6d. per head; and to the officer who served out the provisions, 1s. per head.

11. Other gratuities are recommended to be paid as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; engineer, £5; cook, £5; w.c. constable, £5; hospital assistant, £3; carpenter, £3; baker, £3; assistant cook, £3; twelve constables, each £3, £36; three sub-matrons, each £3, £9; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent to three nurses, the sum of £8. Total, £85.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the condensing apparatus, that it continued in good working order during the whole of the voyage, produced a sufficient quantity of water of good and wholesome quality, namely, 340 gallons, with an expenditure of 5 cwt. of coal per day.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of all on board was very good; no particular disease prevailed beyond slight diarrhoea amongst children.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices, 5, Westminster Chambers,

Sir,

London, S.W., 17 October, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 21st September, announcing the engagement of the "Selkirkshire" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel; a parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, Henry Holcroft, Esq., first voyage, 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, £40; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive,—the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the school-master, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 2 November, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 21st September last (No. 50, Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Selkirkshire," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 20th ultimo, with 398 emigrants on board, equal to 335½ statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in the Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amount received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A "Return" of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Selkirkshire," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. Henry Holcroft, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- (4.) Copies of letters of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.
- (5.) A list of emigrants per "Selkirkshire" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
- (6.) Copy of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

From Green, Holland, & Sons,

Sir,

Central Foundry and Engine Works, Plymouth, 17 October, 1883.

I have this day examined the distilling apparatus on board the ship "Selkirkshire," and I find the same to be in efficient working order, and capable of producing 550 gallons of fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

The engineer in charge is, in my opinion, competent for his duties. I have also tested the coals supplied to the ship, and consider the quality thereof to be quite satisfactory for the purpose required.

I am, &c.,

To the Agent-General, New South Wales.

Sir,

Emigrants Depôt, Plymouth, 18 October, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day made a careful examination of the emigrants who are about to sail in the ship "Selkirkshire," and I find them to be sound and healthy, and, in my opinion, fully capable of earning their own living in the Colony, and I have no hesitation in saying that I think they will make a most desirable addition to the population.

I have also inspected the Depôt here, and found the inmates contented and comfortable, the rooms well ventilated and airy, and everything was in a most satisfactory state.

I have, &c.,

HENRY HOLCROFT.

Agent-General for New South Wales.

Dear Sir,

Barque "Selkirkshire," Plymouth, 20 October, 1883.

I beg to inform you that the condenser and emigrants' galley of this vessel were kept working during the passage from London, and were found to be in thorough good working order.

I am, &c.,

JOHN REID, Master.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 25 January, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 13th instant, of the barque "Selkirkshire," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 20th October, 1883, thus completing the voyage in eighty-five days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. On arrival the vessel was placed in Quarantine, and, after fumigation, was released on the 17th instant; she was found to be in good order and in a very cleanly condition—the accommodations for the comfort of the immigrants were in every respect very satisfactory. The "Selkirkshire" was fitted with the patent ventilating apparatus, of which the Surgeon-superintendent reports that "it performed its work most efficiently."

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 53 married couples, 116 single men, 67 single women, and 107 children.

Their nationality is noted on the margin.

In addition to the sum of £386, paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £747 10s. was paid to the Agent-General in London, making a total amount of £1,133 10s. paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

English	....	249

Scotch	....	65
Others	....	7
		399

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants:—During the voyage there occurred two births and four deaths, viz., two adults and two infants.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the vessel, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

The drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, in the possession of immigrants by this vessel, amounted to £704 10s.; this sum being exclusive of moneys in possession of the immigrants of which I had no cognizance.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Depôt, whence the larger number were discharged to their friends, leaving twenty-six who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 11s. 6d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These

These proceeded to thirty-eight different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Henry Holcroft, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each emigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of emigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Jones, "that she discharged her duties perfectly—nothing was overdone, and nothing left undone." Under the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, the gratuity payable to Miss Jones would be £40, which amount has hitherto been fixed as the maximum gratuity payable to the matron; but as this is the twelfth voyage that Miss Jones has made in charge of single female emigrants, and as she has invariably given every satisfaction, it is recommended that her gratuity be increased to the sum of £45, especially in view of the strong recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, Dr. Holcroft; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favorably of the master and officers of the vessel; it is therefore recommended, as advised by the Surgeon-superintendent, that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on each emigrant landed alive should be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 9d. per head; to the chief officer, the officer who served out the provisions, and to the second officer, each 9d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; assistant cook, £3; baker, £3; engineer, £5; carpenter, £3; hospital assistant, £3; w.c. constable, £5; one head constable, £4; eleven constables (each £3), £33; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9. And on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one nurse, £5; one assistant nurse, £2—Total, £85.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the condenser distilled 350 gallons of water per day of twelve hours, on an average consumption of 10 cwt. of coal, and that the water was ample and good.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were measles and whooping-cough.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices, 5, Westminster Chambers, 10 Dec., 1883.

Sir,

I have the honor to enclose herewith a parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony.

The steamship "Abergeldie" will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—The matron, £30, second voyage; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive,—the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the school-master, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 14 December, 1883.

I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the steamship "Abergeldie," on the 12th instant, with 641 emigrants on board, equal to 533½ statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A "Return" of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Abergeldie," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. Joseph A. Beattie, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- (4.) A list of emigrants per "Abergeldie" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
- (5.) Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.
- (6.) Copy of Dr. J. A. Beattie's report relative to his inspection of the Dépôt at Plymouth.

I am still without a copy of the contract or correspondence between the Orient Company and the Government, with regard to the conveyance of emigrants to the Colony. The "Abergeldie" therefore leaves under no fixed regulations from the Government, as has hitherto been the case with sailing ships.

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

200 Romford Road, Stratford, Essex, 7 December, 1883.

This is to certify that we have gauged for the steamship "Abergeldie," lying in the Royal Albert Docks, forty-five tanks, containing 20,500 gallons of filtered water.

The

Sir, The Orient Steam Navigation Co. (Limited), s.s. "Abergeldie,"

10 December, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that my inspection of the emigrants proceeding by s.s. "Abergeldie," has been this day completed.

The whole of the people referred to I have found to be in a fit physical and mental condition to embark, with the exception of an infant belonging to a family named Kerr, which case I duly reported to T. Hughes Phillips, Esq., who has taken the necessary measures to have this family detained at Depôt.

I have, &c.,

J. A. BEATTIE,

Medical-superintendent.

Agent-General for New South Wales.

Sir,

Plymouth, 10 December, 1883.

I have the honor to furnish the following statement for your information and approval, as an abridged and provisional report of my inspection of the Emigrant's Depôt, Plymouth. My more detailed report shall be submitted to the Honorable the Premier of New South Wales upon arrival of s.s. "Abergeldie" in Sydney, a copy of which I shall do myself the honor of forwarding to you without delay.

I have visited every department of the Depôt, and in presence of the despatching officer, T. Hughes Phillips, Esq., and Mr. Grant, superintendent of the establishment, carefully examined all mess-rooms, dormitories, kitchens, exercise yards, closets, luggage, bath, and disinfecting rooms, &c.

The general condition of the several places named I have found to be exceptionally cleanly, well ventilated, and sufficiently lighted.

There has not been the least trace of bad odour, or mark of filth anywhere observable, and the care and comfort of the emigrants, over a thousand of whom were sojourning here at the time of my visitation, appeared to me to be fairly looked after by the attendants, under the able and kindly superintendence of the matron, Mrs. Grant. The following are the principal suggestions which I think it desirable to make:—

(1st.) The yards should all be asphalted or well paved, as in wet weather the mud is taken up to the several apartments on the boots and skirts of the women, and children, and men, and coughs and other complaints are likely to be caused by the continual wet under feet.

(2nd.) There ought to be a press placed in the examining-room containing a supply of ordinary drugs, splints, bandages, plasters, &c., and medical comforts for general and immediate use. This press ought to be under lock and key, to which a trustworthy male and female attendant might have access, and where the surgeon in charge of the Depôt might dispense such mixtures, &c., as are frequently required, without the delay at present necessarily entailed by having to send prescriptions to some chemist in town (where shops are open only in the day-time).

(3rd.) I consider the bath accommodation decidedly insufficient, and beg to record my opinion as to the absolute necessity of substituting for the present three antiquated concerns, the erection of a complete bathing accommodation, which would be at least three baths for each division of single men, single women, and married couples. These baths may be procured at small outlay, the cast-iron enamelled variety supplied by hot and cold water pipes with taps, secluding canvas curtains and wooden gratings being easily adjusted and very efficient. The appurtenances of soap and towels should be of course gratuitously supplied.

I have, &c.,

J. A. BEATTIE,

Surgeon-superintendent.

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 15 February, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 3rd instant, of the steamer "Abergeldie," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 12th December, 1883, thus completing the voyage in fifty-three days.

The steamer called at Island of Teneriffe, also at Cape Town, for coals.

There is no charter-party. The contract price, as per arrangement with the Orient Steam Company, is at the rate of £15 for 400 statute adults, and £14 10s. per statute adult for the remainder.

2. On arrival the vessel was placed in quarantine, for the purpose of fumigation and cleansing, a few cases of scarlet fever having occurred during the voyage, receiving pratique on the following day. The condition of this vessel, the first arrival under the regulations for conveyance of immigrants by the steamers of the Orient Company, was not entirely satisfactory as to the cleanliness, when inspected by the Board of Immigration at Neutral Bay. The arrangements for ventilation appear to have been satisfactory, the Surgeon-superintendent thus reporting on this matter:—"I found her well ventilated and well lighted." The Board however considered that the bulkheads should have been constructed on the system lately in vogue in the sailing-vessel, viz., with arrangements for a constant current of air through them into the cabins, instead of as in this vessel, being entirely closed up, the space between the top of the boarding and the upper deck being insufficient for the purpose of complete ventilation.

I would draw attention to the distinction between this vessel, chartered by the Orient Company, for the conveyance of immigrants, and those proposed to be chartered in terms of the agreement by the Government from the Company.

The Agent-General writes, that "under different circumstances I doubt if I should have accepted the 'Abergeldie' as a ship of the class contemplated under your arrangements with the Company, but for the reason I have stated, I felt that there was no other course open to me than to send the people by her." In a previous paragraph of his letter the Agent-General writes that he has never formally "accepted this ship as one of the class arranged for."

This distinction referred to is that the size and speed of this class of vessel is inferior to those by which it was understood that emigrants should be conveyed to this Colony.

Under provisions of the charter-party heretofore governing the despatch of sailing vessels with immigrants, certain and ample powers were conferred upon the Surgeon-superintendent, the control of the people being in their hands. With regard however to arrangements per steamers, the Agent-General writes that the Steam Company "desires to exercise a power and control different to that hitherto followed."

It is therefore essential that a charter-party should exist, and that it should exactly define as heretofore the rights of all parties.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 92 married couples, 164 single men, 97 single women, and 190 children.

English .... 481
Scotch .... 32
Irish ..... 98
Other countries ..... 26
635

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £358, paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,312 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,670 paid by immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £910 5s. This sum is exclusive of drafts on the other Banks and of moneys of which no information could be obtained.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred ten deaths, viz., of six infants, and four children above the age of one year; there were also two births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were, as usual, received into the Dépôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of twenty-four, who were willing to hire as domestic servants, and who readily obtained situations as such at an average rate of wages of 11s. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to forty-two different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the steamer without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, J. A. Beattie, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. He is therefore entitled to receive the promised gratuity of £350 for the voyage; also, to receive a return passage free of cost by one of the Orient Line of steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss A. Lee, that she performed her duties "most satisfactorily." It is therefore recommended that she receive the gratuity (as promised in the letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of £30 for this her second voyage in charge of female emigrants; also, that she be provided with a second class return passage to England, by one of the Orient Line of steamers.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the master and officers of the steamer rendered him every assistance. By a separate letter instructions have been requested as to payment of gratuities to these officers.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook and assistant, £5; kitchen assistant, £3; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; sub-matrons (each £3), £9; w.c. constable, £5; w.c. constable, as an extra gratuity, £2; fourteen constables (each £3), £42; one lamp trimmer extra, £1. Total, £78. Also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, two nurses (each £5), £10; two hospital assistants (each £4), £8; one laundress for scarlet fever clothing, £1. Total, £97.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the quality of the water distilled was good and was most abundant.

13. Dr. Beattie reports that scarlet fever, typhoid fever, and measles were the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage. He further states that the medical comforts were ample and good, but that the supply of medicine was defective.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 16 May, 1884.
I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the s.s. "Abergeldie," on the 13th instant, with 59½ emigrants on board, equal to 502 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this Department for passage-money of applicants selected by me, and the amount received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- 2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Abergeldie," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- 3rd. A certificate of Dr. J. A. Beattie, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also, of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- 4th. A list of emigrants per "Abergeldie," who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amounts set against their respective names.
- 5th. Copies of certificates relative to condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.
- 6th. Copy of Dr. Beattie's report of his examination of the emigrants at Plymouth.
- 7th. Copy of letter of appointment sent to the matron, showing the terms of remuneration, and conditions under which such appointment was made.

By my direction the "Abergeldie" has been fitted on a similar principle to that adopted in each ship since the departure of the "Warwick," and I believe you will find the whole accommodation provided for the emigrants to be a very material and desirable improvement on the system designed and insisted upon by the Orient Company in the "Warwick," and on the previous voyage of the "Abergeldie."

The berths for the married people are commodious and offer sufficient privacy in each case. Both the single men's and women's compartments are also well arranged. Due regard has likewise been shown to exclusive closet and bath accommodation for the single women, together with an increase in hospital space, cooking apparatus, size of emigrant's galley, and the dispensary, with all of which and other alterations Dr. Beattie has expressed entire approval.

Mr. Samuel, who has had great experience, having been employed for a period of over sixteen years by the several Agents-General of the different Colonies to put the passengers into their proper berths on board the ships, has been employed to attend to these duties in the steamers despatched since the s.s. "Warwick" with emigrants for New South Wales.

In the case of the "Abergeldie" and the "Warwick," the managers of the Orient Steam Navigation Company claimed the right to employ their own officers to perform this duty on board those ships, and Mr. Samuel was not permitted to berth the passengers according to previous practice, notwithstanding my strongly expressed desire that he should be allowed to do so, and to this I attribute the cause of complaint made by some of the married people respecting their berths on board the "Warwick."

I have, &c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

Sir,

Emigrants' Depot, Plymouth, 12 May, 1884.

I have the honor to state that I have this day concluded a careful medical examination of all the persons (individually) about to embark in s.s. "Abergeldie" for Sydney.

With these two exceptions detailed below, I have found all the intending emigrants to be in the enjoyment of good health, mentally and physically.

I have, &c.,

JAS. A. BEATTIE,

Surgeon-Superintendent.

1. Mary M'Donagh, spinal curvature (cordosis.)
  2. David Colville, club foot (Talipes equinovarus.)
- In these cases the full fare has been paid.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 17 July, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 6th instant, of the steamship "Abergeldie" from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 13th May, 1884, thus completing the voyage in fifty-four days.

The contract price, as per charter party, is at the rate of £15 per statute adult for 400, and at the rate of £14 10s. for the remaining statute adults.

2. The vessel on arrival was placed in quarantine for forty-eight hours for general laundry work and fumigation; three married couples with their six children and three single men are still detained at the station. The vessel was found on arrival at Neutral Bay to be in very good order, all arrangements for the comfort of the immigrants were satisfactory. The steamer called at Teneriffe and at the Cape of Good Hope for coals.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 79 married couples, 157 single men, 114 single women, and 166 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £617 paid by the depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,155 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,772 paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £879 17s. This sum is irrespective of bank drafts or moneys held by them, and of which I was unable to obtain any information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred three births and two deaths of children under one year of age.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Dépôt, and of the married people and single men on board the vessel, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were received into the Dépôt as usual, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of twenty-seven, who were hired as domestic servants; these readily obtained situations at an average rate of wages of 11s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to forty-two different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Joseph A. Beattie, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily; he is therefore entitled to receive the promised gratuity of £350 for this his third voyage in charge of immigrants; also, to be provided with a return passage to England by one of the Orient steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Jones, that she "discharged her duties faultlessly, constantly, attentive and kind." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her thirteenth voyage in charge of female immigrants; also, that, in accordance with agreement, she be provided with a second-class return passage in one of the Orient steamers.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the master and officers of the steamer afforded him every assistance. No gratuities are however payable to these officers, as previous to departure from England the Agent General notified by letter, dated 12th May, 1884, addressed to the Surgeon-Superintendent that "by direction of the Government of New South Wales, no gratuities will in future be paid to the officers of the ships of the Orient Company carrying immigrants to Sydney, and that the only gratuities allowed will be to the schoolmaster, the sub-matrons, the hospital assistant (if any), the water-closet constable, and the ordinary mess constables, the amounts payable to each of the above to be at the same rate as hitherto paid."

11. Gratuities are payable as follows upon the recommendation of the Surgeon-Superintendent—To the schoolmaster, £5; w.c. constable, £5; assistant constable, £2; fourteen ordinary constables (each £3), £42; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; and by special recommendation, to an extra carpenter, £3; nurse, £4; hospital assistant, £3; do. special account of measles, £1; Total, £74.

12. The Agent-General specially appointed a Dispenser to act under the Surgeon-superintendent, of whom Dr. Beattie has reported that he discharged his duties most satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended, in accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, that the promised gratuity of £20 be paid to him; also, that he should be provided with a second-class return passage to England, provided he leaves within three months of the date of his arrival.

13. Referring to the matron, the Surgeon-Superintendent writes—"I very strongly recommend that an extra gratuity be paid to Miss Jones, as she had an unusually large number of single women to look after. Miss Jones is one of the oldest matrons in the service; this is her thirteenth voyage in charge of female emigrants. I cannot speak too highly of her." I have therefore the honor to recommend that the additional gratuity of £5 be paid to Miss Jones.

14. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that there was an ample supply of distilled water, and that it was excellent in quality.

15. Dr. Beattie reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage, were measles, whooping-cough, and chicken-pox.

The "Lusitania."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 4 January, 1884.

Referring to my telegram of the 31st ultimo, I have the honor to inform you that in consequence of the s.s. "Abergeldie" having been unable to accommodate the full number of emigrants previously approved, under notice given by the Orient Company that a larger ship would be available, I arranged with Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co. to send about fifty adults, consisting chiefly of married couples and children, in the s.s. "Lusitania." The emigrants referred to have been provided with passages at the contract rate, and it is agreed that they are to be treated in no way inferior to ordinary third-class passengers.

These persons had been summoned to join the ship, and had broken up their homes; there was therefore no other course open than to send them by the "Lusitania," as they could not well be kept longer in the Plymouth Depot.

A complete list of those embarked goes by this mail, and a corresponding list, for your information, was handed to the purser of the "Lusitania."

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 4 January, 1884.

I have the honor to transmit herewith,—

1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants proceeding in the s.s. "Lusitania," giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of the applicants selected by me.

These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.

2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Lusitania," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country; also showing their various nationalities.

3rd. Copy of a certificate of Dr. G. Morris, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

I do hereby certify that I have this day medically examined 14 married couples, 36 children, 3 infants, and 4 single men (being 71 souls, equal to 50 statute adults) about to embark in the "Lusitania," and find that they are free from infectious or contagious disease, and fit to proceed in the ship.

HOWARD MORRIS,
Surgeon.

Plymouth, 28 December, 1883.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 6 March, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival on the 15th ultimo of the s.s. "Lusitania," with seventy immigrants from Plymouth, having left that port on the 29th December, thus completing the voyage in forty-eight days.

The price per statute adult is at the rate of £15.

2. These immigrants were treated by the Orient Steam Company as ordinary passengers.

On examination by the Board of Immigration they all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 14 married couples with their 38 children, and 4 single men.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £15 paid by one depositor in the Colony, a further sum of £116 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £131 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. During the voyage there occurred one death—that of an infant.

5. Only 6 married couples with their 14 children, and 3 single men availed themselves of the privilege of obtaining free passes by rail and by steamers; these proceeded to six different localities in the country districts.

The remainder of the immigrants left the steamer without notifying their several addresses.

6. These immigrants having been shipped on board a mail-steamer, the manager of the Orient Steam Company declined to grant them the usual privilege of remaining on board for five days after their arrival; great confusion arose, and extra expense was incurred in providing them with board and lodgings. It is very undesirable that immigrants should be despatched per mail-steamer.

7. No surgeon-superintendent was appointed to this ship, and as there were no single women immigrants no matron was appointed.

The "Peterborough."

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 53, Emigration—83.)

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 19 October, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Peterborough," of 1,680 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of Government emigrants from Plymouth to Sydney, to be ready to embark passengers on the 12th November next.

The rates are as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
If 250 and under 275 statute adults	14	17	6
„ 275 „ 300 „	13	17	6
„ 300 statute adults and upwards	13	7	6

I have, &amp;c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 12 November, 1883.

With reference to my letter of the 19th October, announcing the engagement of the "Peterborough" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—The Surgeon-superintendent (first voyage), 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron (tenth voyage), £40; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in discharge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each, £3.

I have, &amp;c.,

SAUL SAMUEL

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 30 November, 1883.

Referring to my despatch of the 19th October last (No. 53, Emigration—83), reporting the chartering of the ship "Peterborough," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 16th instant, with 469 emigrants on board, equal to 407 statute adults, and to enclose—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- 2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Peterborough," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- 3rd. A certificate of Dr. W. Murray, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- 4th. Copies of letters of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.
- 5th. A list of emigrants, per "Peterborough," who obtained at Plymouth, Bank Drafts payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
- 6th. Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.

I have, &amp;c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

15, 16, and 17, Coal Exchange, E.C., 30 October, 1883.

We hereby certify that we have supplied the "Peterborough," for Sydney, with 95 tons coal, and that there were 5 tons on board (quantity, in all, 100 tons) for the use of the emigrants and crew.

1 November, 1883.

This is to certify that I have gauged for ship "Peterborough," lying in the South-west India Docks, seventy-five water tanks, and find they contain 30,000 gallons; also main tanks and casks, containing 6,000 gallons; making a total of 36,000 Imperial gallons, equal to 142 tuns 216 gallons.

W. TAYLOR,

Gauger.

291, East India Docks Road, E., London, 3 November, 1883.

We hereby certify James Belnares, appointed as engineer on board ship "Peterborough," is competent to take charge and work the condensing apparatus on board the above-named ship. The

The same is in good working condition, and capable of producing at least 600 gallons of fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

We have also repaired and put in good working condition passengers' cooking and baking apparatus, the three ovens having a capacity of 35 cubic feet. The cooking and tea water boilers collectively contain 190 gallons.

GEORGE GRAVELY.

— Phillips, Esq., Despatching Officer, New South Wales Government.

Sir,

Emigrants' Depôt, Plymouth, 14 November, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day completed the inspection of the emigrants entered to sail for Sydney in the ship "Peterborough," and have found them in a fit state of health to be embarked, with the exception of Hiram Boyt, the child of Ellen Boyt. The child is suffering from bronchitis, and it would, in my opinion, be dangerous to embark him.

I have also inspected the various buildings of the Depôt, and consider them well adapted for the purpose for which they are used. Both the dormitories and mess-rooms are airy, clean, and well ventilated, and there is ample accommodation for cooking, washing, &c.

I have, &c.,

W. MURRAY, M.D., &c.,

Surgeon-superintendent, ship "Peterborough."

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

Dear Sir,

Ship "Peterborough," Plymouth, 15 November, 1883.

I beg to inform you that the condenser and galley of my vessel were worked on the passage down channel, and were found to be in thorough working order.

I am, &c.,

T. DE GRUCHY,

Master, ship "Peterborough."

T. Hughes Phillips, Esq.

Sir,

Central Foundry and Engine Works, Plymouth, 15 November, 1883.

I have this day examined the distilling apparatus on board the ship "Peterborough," and I find the same to be in efficient working order and capable of producing 600 gallons of fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

The engineer in charge is, in my opinion, competent for his duties.

I have tested the coals supplied to the ship, and consider the quality to be quite satisfactory for the purpose required.

I am, &c.,

SAMUEL WILLOUGHBY.

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 8 March, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 22nd ultimo, of the ship "Peterborough," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 16th November, 1883, thus completing the voyage in 98 days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. The "Peterborough" arrived in good order and condition. The arrangements for ventilation were very good. The disposition of the berths in the married people's compartment was most satisfactory. The berths were placed at the ship's side only, with alley-ways between, of about 2½ feet wide, and from forward; aft there was nothing athwartship to impede the free current of air from hatchway to hatchway. This vessel was fitted with Dr. Edmonds' patent appliances for ventilation, and with Jackson's patent for construction of the berths.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 70 married couples, 125 single men, 91 single women, and 118 children.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £490 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £996 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,486 10s., paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there were 5 births; there were no deaths.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married couples and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

Some of the immigrants brought with them drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to £673 10s. This sum is exclusive of other drafts or moneys, of which I was unable to obtain information.

6. The single women were as usual received into the Depôt, whence they were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of 18, who were willing to hire as domestic servants, and who readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 9d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege as shown in the following

These proceeded to 29 different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, W. Murray, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the gratuity of 10s. per head (in accordance with the instruction from the Agent-General) on each immigrant landed alive, for this, his first voyage in charge; also that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Eagar, that she performed her duties well. It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her tenth voyage in charge of single female emigrants; also that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to a further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the promised gratuity of 4s. per head on each immigrant landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer, and to the officer who served out the provisions, each 1s. per head; and 6d. per head to the second officer.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; engineer (gratuity divided between 4), £5; cook (£5, less deduction of £3), £2; assistant cook (£3, less deduction of £1), £2; carpenter, £3; baker, £3; w.-c. constable, £5; 13 ordinary constables (each £3), £39; 3 sub-matrons (each £3), £9; hospital assistant, £3; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, 1 nurse, £6. Total, £82.

12. Dr. Murray states that the condenser distilled 450 gallons of water daily with an average consumption of 9 cwt. of coal.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage were typhoid fever and diarrhoea.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 2 November, 1883.
I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Stirlingshire," of 1,221 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of Government emigrants from Glasgow to Sydney, to be ready to embark passengers on the 28th instant.

The rates are as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
If 250, and under 275 statute adults ... ..	14	17	6
275 " 300 " ... ..	13	17	6
300 statute adults and upwards ... ..	13	7	6

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices,
5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 23 November, 1883.

Sir, With reference to my letter of the 2nd November, announcing the engagement of the "Stirlingshire" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel. A parcel containing "Forms of Declarations," referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony, has also been forwarded.

The ship will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government. The Surgeon-superintendent, A. H. Roberts (1st voyage), 10s. on each emigrant landed alive; the matron (9th voyage), £40; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government. The schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

Dear Sirs, 21, South Castle-street, Liverpool, 31. October, 1883.
We hereby certify that we have supplied and put on board the "Stirlingshire" the following quantities of coals:—

51 tons of our best cooking.
30 " steam.
6 " ships stores.
87 tons.

Weight and quality guaranteed; also 6 tons old stores on board before.

Messrs. Gracie, Beagley, & Co.

Yours, &c.,
STARKEY & CO.

Dear Sir, 16, Oil-street, Liverpool, 16 November, 1883.
We hereby certify that we have repaired the boiler of the ship "Stirlingshire," putting in new fire-box sides and uptake of Lowmoor iron. This work was done under the supervision of the Board of Trade, and the boiler was tested on the 14th instant by water pressure to 100 lbs. per square inch, in the presence of one of the surveyors of the Board of Trade. We consider the boiler is now in good working order.
J. R. De Wolf, Esq. We are, &c.,
BLACKWOOD & WOOD.

Dear Sir, Brass and Copper Works, 15, Argyle-street, Liverpool, 23 November, 1883.
I beg to certify that I have thoroughly overhauled your fresh water condenser, cleaned ditto, made good all pipes connected with ditto, refilled the filter with animal charcoal and clean gravel, and put the same under pressure, as required by the Board of Trade.

I have also repaired the donkey pump and connections, also portable fire-engine with 180 feet of delivery hose, head pump, five rail pump, and main pumps, and I now consider the same in thorough, efficient, and good order, and fit for the present voyage.

Captain J. W. Anderson.

I am, &c.,
ELLIS MARSDEN.

Liverpool

Liverpool Corporation Waterworks,

Shipping Office, Municipal Offices, 26 November, 1883.

THIS is to certify that 30,000 gallons of water have been delivered on board of the ship "Stirlingshire" in Salthouse Dock.

H. O. FITZPATRICK,

Collector.

Sir,

Emigrants' Home, Glasgow, 30 November, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that I yesterday made a careful examination of the emigrants for the ship "Stirlingshire," in which I was assisted by Dr. Still, of Glasgow, and have found them all in a fit state to embark; subsequently I was called to see a child (John Pryde, aged 4), suffering from obscure symptoms, probably due to some form of meningitis, and as the child is in a very critical condition he will be prevented from embarking to-morrow, as I consider it would be dangerous to himself to do so, and I have reported accordingly to Mr. Phillips.

I have, &c.,

ARTHUR H. ROBERTS,

Surgeon-Superintendent.

The Agent-General.

Sir,

Ship "Stirlingshire," off Greenock, 1 December, 1883.

I beg to inform you that the condenser of this ship was worked continuously six days prior to leaving Liverpool, and has also been kept working since the departure from that port.

A very satisfactory result has been attained, and the water is of good quality.

Yours, &c.,

ROBERT ALEXANDER,

Master.

T. H. Phillips, Esq., Despatching Officer.

Dear Sir,

Brass and Copper Works, 15, Argyle-street, Liverpool.

I hereby certify that I have overhauled and put in good working order the passengers' cooking range with new tiles, fire-bars, &c., regalanized and refitted eight square boilers with cubic capacity of 210 gallons; also the bakers' oven with tiles, bricks, and fire-bars, cubic capacity 2' 9" x 3' 6" x 2' 2" = 20 cubic feet; also ship's galley with new tiles, bricks and fire-bars; and I consider the whole to be in good working order and fit for the present voyage.

I am, &c.,

ELLIS MARSDEN,

Captain W. Anderson.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 11 March, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 16th ultimo, of the ship "Stirlingshire," from Glasgow, with immigrants, having left that port on 1st December, thus completing the voyage in seventy-seven days.

The contract price as per charter-party is at the rate of £13 7s. 6d. per statute adult.

2. On arrival the vessel was placed in quarantine, measles having been very prevalent during the voyage. A charge for demurrage, amounting to the sum of £81 8s., was thereby incurred.

The single women were received at the Depôt on the 20th February, and on the 26th the vessel, with the greater portion of the immigrants, was released from Quarantine, and anchored in Neutral Bay, leaving 150 of the immigrants at the Quarantine Station; these were released on the 4th instant. The women with their children were necessarily received into the Depôt, and their husbands were provided with board and lodgings elsewhere for a few days.

A case of scarlatina having been reported to have broken out on the ship subsequent to her arrival at Neutral Bay, the Health Officer immediately removed the twenty-six immigrants who still remained on board to the Quarantine Station for treatment.

The vessel, when inspected by the Board of Immigration, was found to be in a fairly satisfactory condition, both as regards ventilation and cleanliness. The Surgeon-superintendent, however, reports that "there were too many children in the married people's compartment, and that the prevalence of measles was due partly to the numbers in this compartment." He further adds that "for so large a number of people the available space was insufficient"; and in his examination on this subject before the Board, Dr. Roberts attributes "the excessive mortality which occurred during the voyage to the overcrowded state of the married people's compartment."

The Surgeon-superintendent also reports that "the hospital accommodation did not prove by any means sufficient." The single men's hospital was in such a position that ventilation and isolation could not be effected simultaneously.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 72 married couples, 116 single men, 37 single women, and 122 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

Of the total amount of £1,125 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage, only £2 was deposited in the Colony, the remaining £1,123 having been paid direct to the Agent-General in London.

4. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of such of the married people and single men as were first released from Quarantine on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

On arrival from the Quarantine the remainder of the immigrants were examined at the Depôt. Several complaints were then made as to carelessness and want of attention on the part of the Surgeon-Superintendent; these complaints were chiefly preferred by those whose children had died during the voyage.

The Board of Immigration was immediately convened, and the complainants were individually requested to attend and to state their grievances in the presence of the Surgeon-superintendent, but when the Board met not one presented himself to substantiate the charges made.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £693 10s. This amount was irrespective of other drafts and moneys as to which I was not able to obtain any information.

5. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred three births, and twenty-three deaths of children three years of age and under.

6. The single women were received into the Dépôt as usual, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of sixteen, who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained situations with wages at an average of 10s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamers were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

SUMMARY.

Total ... .. (165)	24½	36	72	8

These proceeded to thirty-four different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the vessel without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, A. H. Roberts, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of 10s. per head on each immigrant landed alive for this his first voyage in charge of immigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Chicken, that she "performed her duties thoroughly and efficiently."

It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her ninth voyage in charge of single female immigrants; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to the further sum of £35 towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head on each emigrant landed alive, promised in the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; to the chief officer, and to the officer who served out the provisions, each 1s. per head; and 6d. per head to the second officer.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; engineer, £5; carpenter, £3; hospital assistant, £3; w.c. constable, £5; 10 ordinary constables (each £3), £30; 1 sub-matron, £3; total, £65. And, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent—2 hospital nurses (each £5), £10; cook, at Quarantine, £2 10s.; cook's assistant, at Quarantine, £2 10s. Total, £80.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent states that the "quality of the water distilled was good, and that the apparatus produced 360 gallons per diem on an average consumption of 15 cwt. of coal."

13. Dr. Roberts reports that the principal diseases that occurred during the voyage were measles, diarrhoea, and mumps.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

New South Wales Government Offices,
5, Westminster Chambers, London, S.W., 14 January, 1884.

With reference to the s.s. "Warwick," chartered by the Orient Company for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to transmit herewith a parcel containing forms of declarations, referring to emigrants nominated in the Colony.

The s.s. "Warwick" will sail from Plymouth with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, J. M. Booth, Esq., fourth voyage, appointed in Sydney by the Government, I have no instruction as to remuneration. The matron, £30; the master, the first mate, the second mate, the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive,—the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the baker, £3; the assistant emigrants' cook, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 25 January, 1884.

I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the steamship "Warwick" on the 19th instant, with 622 emigrants on board, equal to 514½ statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A "Return" of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Warwick," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. John M. Booth, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- (4.) A list of emigrants per "Warwick" who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amount set against their respective names.
- (5.) Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus and supply of fresh water.
- (6.) Copy of Dr. J. M. Booth's report relative to his inspection of the emigrants at Plymouth,—referring to which I have to state that on the 17th instant the child of John Lentill, in the Dépôt, was treated by Dr. Booth for cold, but on the 18th, the day before the ship sailed, the child was discovered to be suffering from measles, and was, with its parents, removed immediately from the Dépôt to the Hospital. The matter was reported to the Board of Trade, who, after due inquiry by their own medical officers, authorized the people to proceed to sea. I personally witnessed the careful inspection of the people and children by Dr. Morris, in the presence of Dr. Booth, and, it appeared to me, performed with due regard to prevent the embarkation of any child or person showing the least symptoms of any disease.

This examination having been performed, the ship was granted a clean bill of health. Upon this decision Mr. W. Anderson, who was at Plymouth, sent steamers to embark the people as usual, but to my great surprise, after having done this, he sent the protest, copy of which is forwarded under cover of my separate communication.

I do not think this needs further comment.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

[Enclosures.]

West India Warehouse and Factory, West India Dock Road, 12 January, 1884.
S.S. "Warwick."

THESE certify that the cylinder "Compactum" condenser, supplied and fitted on board the above steamer, is in good order and capable of producing 5,500 gallons fresh water per day of twenty-four hours, also that the chief and second engineers understood the working of the apparatus.

JOHN KIRKCALDY.

Sir,

Plymouth, 19 January, 1884.

I have the honor to inform you that on the 15th and 16th instant I held a medical examination as to the state of health of the emigrants about to embark on the s.s. "Warwick." On the 18th one of the children children exhibited decided symptoms of measles, and was instantly isolated and removed from the Depot. With this exception I found all the people in good health and perfectly free from contagious disease, so far as can be ascertained.

I have, &c.,
JOHN M. BOOTH,
Surgeon.

To the Agent-General.

Dear Sirs,

Tank Factory, Mill Wall Docks, London, E., 22 January, 1884.

We hereby certify the thirty-five tanks, containing 14,000 gallons, on board the s.s. "Warwick," have been properly tested, and are fit for any voyage.

Messrs. F. Green & Co.

BURNEY & CO.

261, East India Dock Road, Poplar, E., 22 January, 1884.

This is to certify that we have gauged for the steamship "Warwick," lying in the Royal Albert Docks, forty tanks, containing 20,000 gallons of filtered water.

ROBERT GORDON & SON.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 27 March, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival on the 12th instant of the steamship "Warwick" with immigrants from Plymouth, having left that port on the 19th January, thus completing the voyage in fifty-three days.

This is the second steamer chartered under the agreement with the Orient Steam Company. She called both at Teneriffe and Cape Town for coals.

The contract price per statute adult is at the rate of £15 for 100, of £14 10s. for the remainder.

2. On arrival, the vessel was placed in Quarantine for the purpose of fumigation and cleansing (sixty-six cases of measles having occurred during the voyage), receiving pratique on the evening of Friday, 14th instant. On arrival at Neutral Bay the following day the vessel presented a cleanly appearance, but on examination by the Board of Immigration, great exception was taken to the very improper manner in which a large number of the married people and their children were berthed, viz., in small compartments measuring about 6 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 3 inches, in which two married couples and three or four children were berthed, allowing only a passage about 2 feet 6 inches between the two sets of berths, and with neither screen nor curtain between them. A letter of serious complaint on this and on other matters signed by eighty-one married men, was submitted to the Board; it was therefore decided that a special meeting should be held on the following Monday. A full report from the Board of Immigration is hereto annexed, also is annexed copy of a letter, dated 4th January, 1884, from the Agent-General to the Colonial Secretary, covering one from his despatching officer Mr. Phillips, to which the Agent-General calls special attention.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 96 married couples, 126 single men, 107 single women, and 193 children.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £238 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,342 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,580 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants had drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £1,225 5s. This is exclusive of drafts on other Banks, and of moneys of which no information could be obtained.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred seven deaths, three being of children above and four under three years of age, and three births.

5. On examination of the immigrants by the Board of Immigration much dissatisfaction was expressed, principally by the married people, relative to some portion (bread especially) of the provisions issued to them; the report from the Board, alluded to in a preceding paragraph, deals with this subject.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Depot, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of twenty-six, who were willing to hire as domestic servants. These readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 8d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege as shown in the following

Seeking employment in districts selected by themselves	16	37	39	.....
General total	30	53	64	42

These proceeded to thirty-seven different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the steamer without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, J. M. Booth, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that he receive, as in the case of the Surgeon-superintendent of the "Abergeldie," the promised gratuity of £350 for this his fourth voyage in charge of emigrants, also a return passage to England free of cost by one of the Orient Company's steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent recommends the payment of the promised gratuity of £30 to the matron, Miss Titchmarsh, for this her second voyage in charge of single female emigrants; she is therefore entitled to receive this sum, also to receive her return passage to England by one of the Orient steamers.

10. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; w.c. constable, £5; thirteen constables (each £3), £39; four sub-matrons (each £3), £12 (total, £61); and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, to one chief nurse, £3; three assistant nurses (each £1), £3 (total, £67.) The Surgeon-superintendent recommends a gratuity to one hospital assistant, £15 (total, £82), on the following grounds:—That the Agent-General proposed to engage a regular medical dispenser for the vessel, but that he Dr. Booth discouraged this; but finding that the hospital assistant already appointed was a duly qualified chemist of great experience in hospital nursing, and that during the large amount of illness occurring on the voyage he was of very great assistance, he therefore recommends that he should receive the sum of £15 in lieu of the usual gratuity of £3.

11. Dr. Booth states that the water condensed during the voyage was good, and sufficient in quantity.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the principal diseases occurring during the voyage were measles and diphtheria (three cases).

Report of the Board of Immigration

On Complaints preferred by certain of the Immigrants per steamer "Warwick," chartered by the Orient Company for the conveyance of Emigrants.

THE Board of Immigration have the honor to submit, for the information of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, their report of an investigation into certain charges preferred by a large number of immigrants per steamer "Warwick."

The Board held several meetings, at which the manager of the Orient Company and the Captain and the Surgeon-superintendent of the "Warwick" were present.

After careful inspection of the vessel, both as to accommodation and ventilation, the evidence of the complainants and witnesses was taken down by a shorthand-writer, and it is hereto appended.

Although

Although the Orient Company have now complied with the terms of the charter-party, as regards the ration scale, yet the provisions supplied during the voyage appeared to have been sufficient in quantity. But it will be seen on comparing the two ration scales (see Appendix), that in many important particulars they vary considerably as regards quantities, the balance being rather in favour of that of the Government charter-party.

Quality of provisions.

The distribution of the food appears to have been conducted in a careless haphazard manner, and it is therefore possible that any one mess may have had just cause for complaining that they occasionally received a smaller supply than they were entitled to. The evidence nevertheless goes to show that an ample supply was forthcoming when applied for.

Distribution of provisions.

The quality of the provisions appears to have been good on the whole. Complaints, however, were made that the bread was occasionally sour; and in our opinion such complaints appear to be well founded, inasmuch that on examination we found that some of the flour from which the bread was made was not perfectly sound, though originally of good quality.

Quality of provisions.

In many instances the space allotted to one compartment approximately, 6 feet 3 inches square, was assigned to two married couples, with their three or four children, allowing a passage of only 2 feet 6 inches wide between the two berths, placed one above the other on either side—an arrangement precluding all privacy—one properly stigmatised by the occupants as positively indecent. And even had a curtain been provided there would only have been a space of about 1 foot 3 inches between the curtain and the berths on either side of it, available for each family while dressing.

Berthing accommodation.

The messing accommodation gave rise to a great complaint. The mess-tables were only 9 inches in width, and were therefore totally inadequate to serve their intended purpose.

Messing accommodation.

We consider that the quarters of the married people and children were proportionately much smaller, worse ventilated and lighted than were those either of the single men or single women, a circumstance which should have engaged the very earnest attention of the authorities at Plymouth, the more so that a case of measles had been discovered among that section of the emigrants the day before their embarkation; and there was therefore every reason to fear that—although the family in which the measles had appeared was immediately discharged from the Depot and placed in Hospital—numerous other cases of that illness would arise among the children. In fact 66 cases of measles did occur during the voyage. We regret to report that notwithstanding this probability there appears to have been no attempt to provide additional Hospital accommodation for the prospective epidemic, nor to relieve the over-crowded state of the married people's compartment.

Ventilation and light.

We have not sufficient evidence before us to enable us to decide whether the Orient Company is to be blamed for these grave defects in accommodation, ventilation, and light, or whether they are the result of ineffective supervision and guidance on the part of the emigration authorities in England.

Hospital accommodation.

We therefore recommend that a sum of not less than £500, of the second moiety of the passage money payable to the Orient Company, be retained, pending a settlement of that question.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 4 January, 1884.

I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a letter from Mr. Phillips, our principal Emigration Officer, to which I beg to call your special attention.

I have, &amp;c.,

SAUL SAMUEL,

Agent-General for N. S. Wales.

[Enclosure.]

Mr. T. H. Phillips to The Agent-General.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 4 January, 1884.

With reference to certain important modifications which the Managers of the Orient Company are anxious to introduce under their contract with the Government for the conveyance of emigrants, I have the honor to submit for your consideration,—

1. The reduced space of 15 superficial feet to which Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co. propose limiting each adult, would, in the event of that arrangement being permitted, seriously interfere with the comfort of the people. Previous to the "Abergeldie" being fitted, Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co. informed you that she could accommodate 558 statute adults, viz., at 15 feet. They found however that it was impossible, as I stated at the time, to provide berths for this number comfortably; and as a matter of fact, 535 adults only could be taken. The berthing capacity of the ship, if calculated under the stipulations of the form of charter-party previously in use, would have afforded space for 490 only. The latter measurement was never deemed excessive and is even more desirable when steamers are employed, the large hatchways in which vessels occupy and necessarily reduce the legitimate deck space, both atmosphere and temperature, also being frequently less agreeable between decks than in a sailing ship.

2. Another question of serious importance is the berthing of the single women. Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co. say it is part of their contract to mix up this class with the married people. I would respectfully urge upon your consideration the absolute impossibility of preventing grave irregularities at sea should any considerable number of single women be distributed about the ship in enclosed berths, thus preventing the ever necessary supervision of the matron from being properly exercised. The "Abergeldie" having to be entirely fitted, and not being an Orient boat, they permitted the old arrangements to continue with that ship. This subject might be amplified with great appropriateness.

3. I have further the honor to state for your information that considerable inconvenience was experienced before the departure of the "Abergeldie" in consequence of Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co.'s refusal to sanction in its entirety an arrangement hitherto provided for in the charter-party. It has been customary for many years, and is obviously of great convenience to employ the same officer for the purpose of berthing and messing the emigrants and doing whatever may be necessary to promote their comfort under the supervision of the despatching officer. Messrs. Anderson, Anderson, & Co. insist that this duty so far as attendance on board ship may be necessary should be performed by one of their own staff; but I am convinced that in such an arrangement the interests of the emigrants who in many instances require much advice and directing prior to and at the time of embarkation would suffer materially in the hands of a person acting in a dual capacity.

I have, &amp;c.,

T. HUGHES PHILLIPS,

Emigration Officer.

Immigrants by the s.s. "Warwick."—Enquiry by the Immigration Board.

Monday, 17 March, 1884.

PRESENT :—

Dr. Mackellar (in the Chair).

The Very Rev. Dr. Sheridan,

The Rev. S. Wilkinson,

Mr. Wise.

The Chairman: We are met to inquire into certain charges made by the passengers as to their treatment during the voyage from England.

Mr. Wise: The Board of Immigration met on Saturday to hold the usual examination as to the treatment of the immigrants brought out by the s.s. "Warwick," Dr. Sheridan, Mr. Wilkinson, and myself being present. The single women were examined, and no complaints were made by them; they were accordingly landed and sent to the dépôt. We then commenced to examine the married men and women. The men handed in a document, which I produce, signed by upwards of eighty immigrants. A special document was also handed in by one of the immigrants making a special complaint. We found that complaints were very general amongst the immigrants as to the bad accommodation on board the ship, and the supply of sour bread. The Board then examined the married people's compartments, after which they determined that no further immigrants should be allowed to land until a further investigation had taken place. The principal reason for this was that when the last immigrant ship came in twenty-three married people who had been at the Quarantine Station preferred very serious charges of bad treatment against the doctor, stating that he had not given them sufficient medicines. It was determined that an investigation should be held in that case, but when the Board met for the purpose not one of the persons who had made complaints appeared to substantiate their statements. The Board thought this such an important matter that in the present instance the immigrants ought not to be allowed to leave the ship until inquiry had been held. The Board therefore were requested to meet at half-past 2 to-day, this being the earliest possible date on which they could be brought together.

Mr. Wise laid before the Board petitions signed by the immigrants, which were read by Mr. Treatt. See Appendix A.

Robert Deniston, examined by the Chairman:—

1. Your name is Robert Deniston? Yes.
2. You are one of the married people's constables? I am.

3. You are aware that various complaints have been made with regard to the food and the accommodation you have had during the voyage? Yes.
4. A document setting this forth was sent in to the Agent for Immigration? Yes.
5. Are you aware of all the statements contained in the document; you have read it? Yes, I have.
6. Did you sign it? I did, sir.
7. And you still persist in the statements made in it? Yes; they are true.
8. In your opinion the arrangements for cooking were not such as they should be? They are not sufficient.
9. Had you not sufficient food? Well, I do not know whether I should complain myself. Of course it is only my own personal opinion; I do not commit any person to it.
10. You answer for yourself only? I answer for myself. In serving the messes there was not what I thought a proper supervision. What I mean by this is that where a small mess was served they got as much provisions as the larger messes, just as the thing might happen.
11. Perhaps I had better read the statement. You say in the document: "By the insufficient arrangements for properly cooking the food whereby it was rendered, to a very large degree, unfit to eat, and the insufficiency of the proper food for infants and children, and the absence of delicacies for sick persons?" What I mean is this, that some portions of the food were well cooked, and other portions of it were raw, and those portions which were partially cooked were unfit to eat.
12. By Dr. Sheridan.] You have stated that the mess containing a certain number (say ten) got as much food as a mess containing a larger number (say fourteen);—is that not your meaning? Yes; so that a small mess would have more food in proportion to the number than a larger mess.
13. By the Chairman.] Do you complain merely of the manner, or there was not sufficient food? You mean, I presume, that some persons did not obtain their share of the food? I scarcely know how best to put it before you. I will take my own mess. There are nine statute adults in my mess by some of the messes being split asunder; ours never was till a week or two ago. These left in the original mess, if they only numbered six, might get more food than nine in another mess. The food seemed to be served out indiscriminately.
14. You complain that the food was not properly distributed? Yes; not properly distributed, and a part of it, not being properly cooked, could not be eaten. That made it insufficient.
15. In regard to the absence of delicacies for sick persons, did you take note of that? No; I did not. I had no children.
16. Have you found that there was an absence of those things? Yes; there was an absence of those things, but I had no particular knowledge of it.
17. It was rumoured in the ship? Yes; amongst those who had children.
18. Did you make any complaint to the doctor concerning the food being unfit to eat by bad cooking? Not personally myself.
19. Have you any children on board? I have two sons and a daughter at the Dépôt.
20. Are they children? Not children; the youngest is seventeen.
21. By Mr. Yuill, Orient Company.] Is this your first voyage? No, sir.
22. Have you been out here before? No.
23. Where before? To America.
24. By Dr. Sheridan.] One matter I want to bring out as regards the quantity of the food. Do you mean to say if proper arrangements had been made there was sufficient for all? I think so.
25. By the Chairman.] One part of the document sets forth that with few exceptions sour bread was supplied? That is true.
26. Did you have opportunity of examining the flour? No sir.
27. It is also stated that the tea was improperly made—that is to say, it was stewed in ovens instead of being made in the ordinary way? Yes.
28. You know that is the manner in which it is made? Yes; I have seen it in the ovens.
29. And did you find it was unpleasant in consequence? Well, the flavour was not what it should be; I think the flavour would have been better if the hot water had been poured on the tea.
30. By the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson.] It has been said you did not get any cheese;—I should like to ask a question about this, as I believe it is in the charter. Did you get any cheese? No, sir.
31. Did you see others get any? No, sir.
32. Mr. Yuill.] I do not think there is anything about cheese in the charter.
33. By Mr. Wise.] How many statute adults were there in your compartment? Nine statute adults.
34. How many individuals? Ten.
35. Do you know the size of your table? No; I have not had an opportunity to measure it.
36. What is the number of your berth? No. 69.
37. Who occupied it? Myself and wife, and Mr. Falkingham and wife and two children.
38. How old were the two children? The youngest is four.
39. By the Chairman.] Are we to understand that you all occupied the same berth? No, we occupied the same cabin.
40. By Mr. Wise.] And that was occupied by yourself and wife and Mr. Falkingham and wife and two children? Yes, sir.
41. You do not know the length and breadth of that compartment, do you? I never took the trouble to measure it.
42. Did any of the bunks tumble down during the voyage? No, sir.
43. No accident happened then? No, sir.
44. How was the compartment lighted? By one of the port-holes only.
45. The Chairman.] Do you wish to make any other statement to the Board? No, sir.
46. By Dr. Sheridan.] With regard to the issuing of the food, such as flour, tea, and sugar, the system adopted in this ship seems to have been somewhat different from the system adopted in other ships. For example, they got flour weighed out to them, and also the tea and sugar, and they deal with it as they please; but that was not done in this case; here the food was cooked and made up for them. Do you think the former system—that is to say, the plan of issuing it out to the immigrants, for them to use it as they please—is better than the the system adopted on board this ship? My own opinion is simply this: that if the cooking arrangements had been sufficient the cooking might have been done for a certain number of people.

47. How do you mean? That it is more economical to prepare it all together than to parcel it out in small quantities.

48. That is to say, more economical for the ship, and more satisfactory to the immigrants? I will not go so far as that.

49. The Chairman.] I should say that would be absolutely impracticable? It was contended for, but I protested against it on four occasions. We have had the sugar served out in messes dry.

50. Dr. Sheridan.] How does that work? That works better; it is an easy matter to measure out sugar in proper quantities for the individuals in each mess.

51. You would know then that you got what you were entitled to? Yes.

52. The Chairman.] You objected to that? I did, because I thought it would lead to dissatisfaction and confusion in the messes.

53. Mr. Wilkinson.] What is your opinion as to the decency and propriety of the arrangements in the cabin—what is your impression? I don't like it.

54. Do you think it improper or indecent? I think it an outrage on propriety.

55. Dr. Sheridan.] What is it? Well, sir, suppose you and your wife and I and my wife were all sleeping together in one compartment.

56. By Mr. Wilkinson.] What was it that was improper? Well, you may to a certain extent lay aside or modify the rules of modesty and decency on occasions like this; but still, at the same time, I think it was equally practicable for the berths to be made for men and their wives and other females without crowding them up, and putting two married couples and their children in one compartment.

57. By Mr. Fuill.] You refer to the contract ticket in reference to the food? Yes, sir.

58. It does not provide for any cheese? No, sir.

59. It does not provide for fresh provisions of any kind? No, sir.

60. Did you get any fresh beef or mutton? Yes, sir.

61. You always had fresh provisions? Yes, sir.

62. You did not notice that that is superfluous to the ticket? Allow me to give an explanation: The contract tickets were put into our hands just before we left the Depôt at Plymouth. They are entirely different from the papers we signed in England and sent up to London.

63. You object to the tickets then? Not particularly, if they had been carried out.

64. Does it represent what you actually got? I cannot answer for that.

65. Would you prefer salt or fresh beef? Fresh, of course.

66. By Captain Lobbett.] In reference to the breaking up of the messes, you say when a mess of nine was reduced to a mess of six they still got the same quantity of provisions; consequently they got a fair share. Did the six have enough, as far as you know? It seemed to happen in this way, that it was a matter of no consequence, squarely, which piece the fork went into.

67. You don't know that any one was short of provisions, do you? I will not say as to specific medical comforts.

68. This is only as to the food? In some cases we have been short; we have gone short several times.

69. Could you have got more if you had gone and asked? I could, but I did not like to do it.

70. If it was represented at any time that any one had gone short, would not the matter have been rectified? I have gone myself when we have been very short, when we could scarcely get a piece each the length of my finger and not much broader, and I have got more.

71. By the Chairman.] Have you a copy of the contract that was made with you by our agent in England? No, I have not.

72. Was not the paper handed to you when you left the Depôt in accordance with that? No; these are quite different.

73. Was it specified to you that you would get other treatment than that which you received? Yes; there were articles, there were things on the large blue papers, with which you are no doubt familiar, that are not on this paper.

74. Who handed you that large blue paper you spoke about? I do not know; it was given us by a gentleman connected with the Depôt at Plymouth. I may say that, personally, I have been treated with kindness and courtesy by the captain.

75. By Dr. Sheridan.] You are of opinion that both the doctor and captain did all they possibly could under the circumstances to make the immigrants comfortable and to remedy every deficiency? Yes, I am quite sure of that. With regard to the sour bread we have had it better ever since the captain took to inquire into it; that would be about three weeks ago.

76. Then you got better bread and better flour? Yes.

77. By the Chairman.] To whom did you complain concerning the bread? To the steward, doctor, and captain.

78. When? I speak from memory; perhaps the first complaint that occurred would be about the end of January, or shortly after we left Teneriffe.

79. How long had you been on the voyage then? About six days.

80. Did you complain to the doctor particularly? Yes, and to the steward as well; sometimes we went to one and sometimes to the other.

81. By Mr. Wise.] Was there any division by means of a sheet or screen in your compartment? No sir.

82. Did you ask for any? No sir.

Charles Walter Wheeler, examined:—

83. By the Chairman.] Are you one of the single immigrants? No, one of the married ones on the fore-deck.

84. Have you any children on board? Yes, I have one; one of my children died on the voyage.

85. Your name is appended to a document here; it states that several irregularities occurred in regard to the food and accommodation on the voyage; you signed it? Yes sir.

86. Is it correct in all particulars? Yes, I believe it is, as far as I am concerned at any rate.
87. Are you cognisant of all the complaints made? Yes; the first one is the practice of putting two married couples in one compartment.
88. That was not decent? Well, I cannot think it is decent.
89. Are you familiar with the berthing in ships? No, I have not been in a ship before.
90. You cannot say whether it is usual? No sir.
91. You complain that the cooking of the food was bad and its distribution was not perfect? My own impression is that there was not sufficient accommodation in the galley to cook for so many people. The accommodation for the cooking for the immigrants was no greater than for the officers' mess. The galley was divided into two parts—one part being used for the officers, and the other for the 600 immigrants.
92. In consequence of this want of arrangements the food was very often unfit to eat? Yes, very often.
93. Was there insufficiency of food for the children? I cannot say. I have had sufficient myself, but my appetite is very small. At the same time there are many others who I cannot think had sufficient food. Since we left Capetown there has been a larger distribution of food. Very often the bread has been of an inferior quality, sour and badly cooked. I cannot blame the baker, because I believe the man has been overworked—that he has not had sufficient accommodation to bake the bread required for us.
94. Had the children sufficient and proper food? I cannot say that it has been proper food; there has been a sufficiency of food of a bad quality. It has not been food suitable for children.
95. Did you tell the doctor that? I cannot say I did. I was under the impression that he could not alter it.
96. Of course you knew that the doctor had absolute power to alter whatever he thought proper? I have the contract ticket with the Orient Company, and it states that the children are to have three gills of preserved milk per week. I assume that that means milk undiluted. I see that one of these tins contains about 3 gills. During the whole voyage it has been made up and served in a solution. I do not know how much milk was put in; but in the first part of the voyage it seemed very thin. It was not what we expected to get. We expected it to be served out, so that we could dilute it ourselves.
97. Did you say anything to the doctor on the subject? Since we left the Cape representations have been made to him; but there has been no alteration. The milk was served out in the same way for the children.
98. It is also complained that the tea was not properly made? It has been made in some large tins and cooked by steam. I have seen it in the large tins over the boilers. They were filled with water over night. The coffee was put in and left in the cold water till morning, when it was boiled. The tea is not made in the way we should make it ourselves. We know that tea, to be palatable, requires to be drunk within a limited period after the water has been put on it.
99. By Mr. Wise.] How many passengers were there in your mess? Fourteen individuals counting as ten statute adults.
100. Do you know the size of your table;—you complained of that the other day? It is 5 feet long and 9 inches wide.
101. That was for fourteen persons? Yes.
102. What was the number of your compartment? No. 37.
103. Who occupied it? My wife, myself, and two children.
104. Is that all? Yes. I may mention that one of my children sixteen months old and my wife and I had berths in one cabin, and a child two years and ten months old in another. Fancy separating babies of that age from their parents. We had to make up a bed on the floor.
105. By the Chairman.] Who directed you to occupy the cabin? I don't know, I was shown my cabin on arriving at the ship.
106. Who showed it to you? The under steward.
107. You do not know by whose directions that course was taken? No sir; as regards the mess-table I may mention that the captain has done all he possibly could under the circumstances. He put up a small additional table when he found the accommodation was not sufficient for us. I have been unable to sit down to the table ever since we have been on board. My child was sick in the cabin for twelve days before its death.
108. What was its illness? The doctor said diphtheria, she had been ill with the measles, and it resulted in diphtheria.
109. Was she with you in the cabin? Yes, and died in the cabin; I did not apply to the doctor to have her removed because of the poor accommodation.
- Dr. Sheridan.*] As regards this accommodation we came on board the ship on Saturday, and examined it for ourselves and three of us took our seats at the dining-table, and we found that the space allowed for fourteen individuals was barely sufficient for three adults.
110. By Captain Lobbett.] I think you are not one of the fourteen of that table after the other side-table was put up? When I went to take my place at that table I found it occupied, and the parties who had it refused to give it up, so rather than cause any disturbance I put up with the inconvenience.
111. Then you sat still at the central table? No, I never sat at all, there was no room for me. I could not have sat at the table without turning others out.
112. But some of your messmates occupied the side-table? Yes, but there was not room for all.
113. It is quite clear then that fourteen people did not occupy that place? It would be quite impossible.
114. But the side-table reduced that fourteen, and where could the people belong to except to your mess? The table you alluded to was on the other side. The centre mess had the advantage of that.

William John Mitchell, examined by the Chairman:—

115. You are aware that a document was handed into the Agent for Immigration complaining of the treatment of the immigrants on their voyage from England, both as regards their food and the accommodation afforded them? I am sir.

116. It is said that several married couples were placed in one berth, that is to say, in one compartment? I was placed in that way, sir.

117. In one compartment? Yes, sir; I will tell you how we managed: I have two children, and my wife and I with our children, and Mr. Hudson and his wife with their two children, were told off in the first place to No. 44 compartment and we slept where the children were supposed to sleep.

118. How did you find your compartments? We obtained cards at the Depôt with numbers on them, and all we had to do was to take up our respective berths.

119. You got that at the Depôt before you saw the ship? Yes.

120. Was it given you by the ships' officers or officers of the Government? By an officer at the Depôt.

121. With regard to the food: it is complained there was not sufficient food for the infants and children? I do not come under that scale. I have no complaints as regards my two children; they are eight and eleven years of age.

122. Your children had sufficient food? Yes. I am speaking of my own; they are over the age.

123. How do you know that any others had not sufficient? I could see by the serving out.

124. Was there any peculiar favouritism for your children then? Mine are eight and eleven years of age, and do not come in for any special comforts.

125. You mean the very young children did not get enough? Yes, the young children who were entitled to get those things.

126. It is also complained that the bread was sour? Yes, sir, the bread has been sour—very sour sometimes. Sometimes it has been very good.

127. It says in this document that with very few exceptions it was very sour. Would you say that it was absolutely correct—would you say it was the exception for it to be good or for it to be bad? The exception for it was to be good. During the greater part of the warm weather we had very bad bread, till we spoke of it. The captain had the bread examined, and then we had very nice bread. We complained to the doctor and the captain.

128. Mr. Wilkinson.] I should like to know whether the bad bread was caused by the use of bad flour? I should say it was the flour, because at times the baker would make beautiful bread. I should say the flour was bad.

129. But the bread would never be good if the flour was bad? Sometimes he would get good flour, sometimes bad.

130. You mean that some bags were good and some were not? Yes.

131. Mr. Wise.] What is the number of your compartment? No. 34; that is what I was told off for. I am sleeping in No. 31 at present, where the children ought to have slept.

132. How many are there in your mess? Fourteen, constituting fourteen statute adults. When I came on board I was told off for No. 34, and Mr. Hudson and his wife were told off for it also; the two children for No. 31. The berth adjoining that was set apart for eight children; that was two on each bunk. So we arranged it to suit ourselves.

133. No. 31 was for eight children? Yes; and I will tell you how we managed it: Mrs. Hudson kept her child with her, and Mrs. Davy kept her child with her.

134. Who is she? She had to put her child in No. 31 berth, and she kept it with her. Instead of ours going in there, my wife and I went in, and left our child with Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, so as not to be in the same compartment with another man and his wife. We had three of their children with us, and ours were with Mrs. Hudson.

135. Had you any screen or sheet between the sets of married people? Instead of sleeping with Mr. and Mrs. Hudson we arranged it as I have stated.

136. Did your berth tumble down? Yes, sir.

137. Was it yours or your wife's? Mine; I was sleeping in the top.

138. Where was your wife? Sleeping in the bunk beneath.

139. Did it happen in the night-time? Yes, the boards fell through.

140. Was your wife hurt at all? The boards fell upon her and struck her.

141. Was she under the doctor's hands in consequence? She was a week after that; on the Thursday morning she was taken very ill; she got up that morning, but had to go to bed again and I fetched the doctor.

142. What was the result? It caused a miscarriage.

143. By Mr. Fuill.] Did you complain of any insufficiency of food? I can't say that I ever did; if we had not sufficient in the first place we could go back and get more.

144. It was only the bread you complained about? Only the bread.

145. It was occasionally sour? Yes, it was sour.

146. You preferred fresh provisions to salt provisions? Yes.

147. You got plenty of fresh provisions? I have no fault to find in that respect.

By Captain Lobbett.] As far as you know every one in the ship had sufficient to eat.

148. If you did not get enough could you not get more? I believe that was understood throughout.

149. Have you seen any tainted meat during the voyage? I have seen a little. There are many people who have not been at sea before who would say that salt meat was bad unless the upper part was carved off.

150. By the Chairman.] Were you led to believe that you would be supplied with fresh provisions throughout the voyage? I had an idea that we would have salt.

151. Then you were supplied? Yes. I expected fresh provisions at starting, but I did not expect it throughout the voyage.

152. Have you been accustomed to salt provisions before? Yes, sir.

153. On a sea voyage? Yes, sir, I have been in the Navy.

John Walsh examined:—

154. By the Chairman.] Are you a married man? Yes, sir.

155. Has your wife accompanied you on this voyage? Yes, sir.

156. Have you any children? No, sir.

157. You signed a document complaining of the treatment which the immigrants have received on the voyage. In the first place, as to the accommodation; in the second place, as to the insufficiency of the arrangements arrangements for cooking; and thirdly, with regard to the issuing of the provisions? I complained of nothing but the sour bread.

158. But then you signed this; if you sign a document of this kind you are responsible for the whole; you complain only of the sour bread; you do not complain of insufficient arrangements for cooking of food, of its being in a large measure unfit to eat, and of the food supplied to infants not being sufficient? No; I do not know about these matters.

159. Do you complain that two couples slept in the same compartment? No; it did not occur in mine.

160. What have you to complain of? The second or third night before we got into the harbour I was sleeping in the upper bunk, the middle part gave way, and on the following morning I took down the boards and placed the beds on the floor.

161. And you complain that the boards of your bunk were not securely fastened together? Yes.

162. Was your wife hurt? Yes; she was sleeping in the bunk below and the boards cut her eye.

163. Did you read over the document? Yes, I did.

164. But you did not realize that you did not concur in all the statements it contained? No, I did not.

165. Did you hear any complaints with regard to the bread? Yes, sir.

166. Dr. Sheridan.] Did the arrangements, as regards the sleeping of married couples in the same compartments, form the subject of conversation amongst the immigrants generally? Yes, I heard people speak of it.

167. By Captain Lobbett.] When your berth fell down you removed the boards so that you and your wife might lie on the floor? Yes, sir.

168. The matter was mentioned by me when I went around? Yes, sir; it was my own choice to lie on the floor.

Abraham Emmett examined by the Chairman:—

169. Are you a married man? Yes, sir.

170. Did your wife come with you on the voyage? Yes, sir, and two children.

171. And you signed a document complaining of the arrangements for the distribution of food and of the quantity and quality of the food? Yes, sir.

172. Did you coincide with all that was stated? Yes, I did, and especially with regard to sleeping accommodation. I had always sufficient food, but it was not always of a good quality. My complaint is simply about the sleeping accommodation; I was given to understand when I signed the paper which I sent to London that we should have separate cabins.

173. Who led you to believe that? The papers in England; we were led to believe that there would be privacy in the arrangements, but I found that my wife and myself had to sleep in the same cabin with others, and that there could not be any screening off.

174. Have you the documents to show what led to your conclusion in England? No.

175. You were told that you would have separate cabins? Not entirely separate, but that we should be screened off; but there was not the least possibility of screening it off.

176. How many were there in the cabin altogether? Eight persons, two men with their wives and four children.

177. Had you always plenty of food? We had; our mess was not a large one; we were very healthy, but the other parties were not, and they did not care about the food.

178. What ages are your children? Four and eight years.

179. Were they supplied with sufficient food? No.

180. Did you make complaints to the doctor? There were two terms. During the latter part of the voyage the children had sufficient food, during the earlier part they had not.

181. Did you complain to the doctor? We complained both to the doctor and the steward.

182. What did the doctor do? I think he tried to remedy it.

183. Did he, in point of fact, cause more food to be issued? Either the doctor or the people who went to the steward did.

184. When did you get more food? Just as we were crossing the equator there was scarcely any food for the children except watered milk until we got almost there.

185. Did you get the food you were led to believe you would get? We did not. The contract the captain gave us was different from that we got from the Emigration Department. I preferred the Orient Company's ticket myself except that we had no cheese, and if we had less salt meat. We had on Mondays preserved Australian tinned meat; on Fridays salt fish; and on Wednesdays salt pork; on Saturdays salt beef. The salt pork was considered good. The salt beef was not good.

186. Did you get any fresh beef? Yes, we got fresh beef from the refrigerator three times every week.

187. Did you know before you went on board that you would get that? We did not.

188. You were led to believe you would have salt food? The contract did not say whether it would be salt or fresh.

189. What was your impression? I do not know that I had any particular impression.

190. But you said you preferred the Orient Company's scale? Yes, in respect to bread if it had always been fresh, but at times it was sour. I prefer bread to biscuits and I thought bread better for children.

191. You are aware that the contract did not require the passengers to be supplied with fresh bread at all? I was not aware of that. It did not say whether the meat would be fresh or salt.

But the contract is one that does not provide for the conveyance of immigrants in ships furnished with apparatus for preserving fresh food.

192. The bread was sour for the most part? Not for the most part but a great many times.

193. By Mr. Wise.] Was there any sheet hung up between the berths? No there was not the least chance of anything of the kind.

194. By Mr. Yuill.] Do you prefer to have the food parcelled out, or to have it cooked for you and laid out by the steward? I prefer the way it has been done, if there was only sufficient accommodation.

With

With the small accommodation there was it was impossible that the cooking could be properly done for so many people.

195. By Dr. Sheridan.] How many individuals were there in your mess? Fourteen, being nine statute adults.

196. And you got as much as would be sufficient for fourteen, I suppose? Yes, under the circumstances, we did; but some in our mess were unwell during the voyage and did not eat much. We always made ourselves as agreeable as we could; we never complained, and never went back for a second supply.

197. By Mr. Fuill.] Is this your first voyage? It is my first voyage of any length.

198. Had you sufficient accommodation for taking your food? We did not bother about it much until we got to the Cape. I should not think we took our meals twice within decks the whole time. The captain allowed us to go on deck, and it was so remarkably fine that we did not need to dine below.

199. By Dr. Sheridan.] You liked dining on deck much better than dining below? Much better.

200. Did you experience much inconvenience whenever the hatches were closed—want of light, for example? It was so seldom the case that one really could not give any particular opinion upon it.

201. By Captain Lobbett.] During the voyage has there not been a barrel of good biscuits kept near the hatchways from which any one could supply themselves at all hours of the day? Only one, to my recollection.

202. But the same thing would have been continued if any one had wished? I am not so certain about that.

Well, I am.

203. By Mr. Fuill.] Was there only one barrel? Only one, and it was not replaced.

Captain Lobbett.] Because they were shying them about.

204. Witness.] We thought the flour was bad, and we asked for a bag of flour to be brought out so that a sample of it might be taken by the immigrants, but the request was refused. We had been blaming the baker, but we thought after that it was not the fault of the baker but the flour.

William Warrinar, examined by the Chairman:—

205. You are a married man? Yes, sir.

206. Is your wife with you? Yes, sir.

207. How many children have you? Three; the eldest boy was nine on the 1st of January, the girl was seven last April, and the baby is seven months old.

208. You signed a document, with a number of other immigrants, making certain statements regarding the indecent manner in which you were accommodated, the insufficiency of the food, and the defective cooking arrangements? Yes.

209. Also as regards the want of proper food for the children and the bad quality of the bread and the tea. Do you agree with this document in all these charges? Yes, I do, thoroughly.

210. Your wife and children and yourself, you say in the document, occupied one berth, but you mean a cabin or compartment, in which there was another man with his wife and children? Yes, sir.

211. How many were there in that cabin? Nine, sir.

212. By Mr. Wise.] Then there were two wives, two husbands, and five children in that cabin? Yes, sir, there were.

213. By the Chairman.] As regards there being an insufficient quantity of food for infants and children, is that statement correct? Yes, sir.

214. Were your own children not supplied with proper and sufficient food? Certainly not.

215. At what part of the voyage? The early part of the voyage.

216. Did you make any complaint to the doctor? I am not one much given to grumbling, and I brought some food with me. It was said it would be a good thing if the children could have some arrowroot or something of that sort, and the doctor said he had given orders for it but his orders had not been carried out.

217. Was arrowroot refused to anyone? No; but after a while the steward said there was none left.

218. With regard to the bread, you say it was sour. Was it usually sour or occasionally sour? Mostly we should have it good once or twice, then half-a-dozen times it would be fusty or sour.

219. You have some special complaint; make your own statement? Well, the bunk allowed to us was not large enough for me and my wife to sleep in. I slept on the bench all the way, except some half dozen times I slept on the table. It is only 3 feet wide.

220. We were told that it was only 9 inches? I slept on it and lodged my back against the table. There is about 10 inches of space, and there is a space between it and the table. The cabin for my wife and children and myself was only 3 feet wide. I have never slept in it, and I have never had my clothes off throughout the voyage except some half-dozen times to change them.

221. By Dr. Sheridan.] I should like to ask a question with regard to what are commonly designated medical comforts. It was stated the other day that stout or porter was given to some of the immigrants. I want to know whether, when these comforts were ordered by the doctor, his instructions were carried out? My wife has been ill all the way out. She has not been able to eat food; for a whole fortnight she could not eat anything. I mentioned the matter, and asked if I could not get a bit of cheese or anything of that kind; but I could not get it. I have spent £2 in small things necessary to keep her alive.

222. Mr. Wise.] Where? At the Cape and at Teneriffe.

223. Dr. Sheridan.] But with regard to the porter? She had half a pint every other day. It was ordered by the doctor. She is so ill to-day that she can scarcely stand up.

224. Captain Lobbett.] Was it a pint or half a pint she had every other day;—was it not a bottle? Yes, a pint bottle; but it had to last her four days.

225. It was a quart bottle? I don't know anything about that.

Dr. Booth examined:—

226. By the Chairman.] Where did you come to the ship? I came to the ship in dock in London.

227. And you came down the Channel in her? No; I went by train to Plymouth, and was there four days before her arrival.

228. Was the ship fitted up when you first saw her? No, not at all complete.

229. By whom was she fitted up? By the Orient Company.

230. By whose directions? By the directions of the Company.
231. Was there an immigration officer? Yes; there was Mr. Phillips.
232. Was he cognizant of the arrangements? He was overruled in every particular.
233. By whom? By Mr. Anderson and Captain Andrews.
234. Did he make any statement to the effect that the accommodation was not sufficient? What do you mean by accommodation?
235. I mean the accommodation for the married people? Oh, yes; and he said he would have nothing to say to it. He wanted to have it his own way, and he was not allowed.
236. Did he give a certificate that the accommodation was sufficient? There was always a great contention about it.
237. Are you aware that he gave his certificate that the ship was properly fitted up? I am not, but I am aware that he could not get from Mr. Anderson and Captain Andrews the usual certificates, and there was a great contest about it.
238. What do you mean? They are required to give duplicates of certain documents required by the Board of Trade, documents with which I am not familiar. I know there was a great contention between them, and Captain Andrews refused the documents. This occurred in London.
239. We understand that the ship was fitted up by the Orient Company under the supervision of Mr. Phillips? No; Mr. Phillips endeavoured to supervise it, and acted as he had always acted with regard to other ships.
240. Are we to understand that the ship was fitted up by the Orient Company and supervised by Mr. Phillips, who objected to the arrangements? I would not say it was supervised by Mr. Phillips when he was objecting to the arrangements.
241. The Chairman.] Yes; he supervised it and it was in consequence of that, I suppose, that he came to the conclusion that the accommodation was not sufficient? When I saw the arrangements I said to Mr. Phillips "Are you in charge?" and he said, "You know I have nothing to say to it," it is the Orient Company all together.
242. You have had experience of ships before? Yes; I have been to New Zealand twice.
243. For the New Zealand Government? Yes.
244. Who fitted out the ships on these voyages? The charterers.
245. Who supervises in these cases? Mr. Phillips designs the cabins, and everything else for them, but in this case he was not permitted to have his own way.
246. Then in this case he did nothing? No; I don't believe he did anything at all.
247. Of your own knowledge did Mr. Phillips formally object to the cabins? I could not say whether he objected formally, but I heard him object to the want of ventilation for the single women.
248. Well, was Mr. Phillips cognizant of the fact that two married couples were to be in the same compartment? He was.
249. Did he object to that? He did, and so did Mr. Anderson and himself.
250. He objected to that? Yes; and not only that, he stopped on board the ship, and did not intend to allow it to sail until some kind of curtain was put between the married couples.
251. And to your own knowledge did Mr. Phillips represent this objectionable feature to Mr. Anderson in London? Oh yes; they had a conversation in the cabin about it.
252. Then Mr. Anderson came round to Mr. Phillips' way of thinking? I don't think Mr. Anderson had any hesitation whatever in condemning the way in which the ship was fitted up.
253. Were there any designs in London? There must have been, but I never saw them.
254. Did Mr. Phillips object in London? That I cannot say.
255. Can you tell what he did? They were about to put up a butcher's shop in the single women's ground, but he strenuously objected, and after great trouble he succeeded in having it removed.
256. With whom was the contest? With Captain Andrews.
257. By Mr. Wise.] The ship was not fitted up in London was she? She must have been but not when I saw her.
258. It was done on the way down the Channel I suppose? No doubt some things were not complete when she was coming down.
259. She arrived on the 18th January? The passengers were to be taken out in steam-tugs to her on the 18th, and they met the ship outside to expedite her sailing. The immigrants were put on board and then she went off. She did not sail from Plymouth till the 19th.
260. Then the immigrants were put on board on the 19th? Yes, on the 19th.
261. How long after that did she sail? Probably an hour.
262. When did you first see the fittings? On the 18th.
263. For the first time? Yes, for the first time.
264. Had you any conversation about them? Oh, yes; I expressed my opinion about them and condemned them.
265. On the 18th? Yes, it must have been on the 18th.
266. By Mr. Wilkinson.] I should like to know if the doctor inspected the food before it was put on board? Yes, we always have an inspection; we always examine it as to quantity and quality.
267. What did you understand about the quantity of milk. Was it to be supplied pure or in solution? That is a puzzle; it cannot have been intended to supply it pure. No child could drink solid milk. It must have been diluted milk.
268. Was it unduly diluted? The people complained that it was, and I asked for it to be less diluted.
- The Captain.*] We had 50 gallons of pure milk in the refrigerator.
269. Was the milk up to the standard marked on the tins or was it diluted more than that? I could not say, because it was a different brand from that with which I am familiar. We had refrigerated milk as well as condensed milk.
270. By Mr. Full.] There was no deficiency of food? I think there was an ample supply of food, and, on the whole, I think the food was good.
271. By the Chairman.] You have heard the complaint about the quality of the bread, and you no doubt had many opportunities of seeing that bread;—was it sour as alleged? I do not think it was so bad at all. It was bad a few times, but not so repeatedly sour as the passengers represent. 272.

272. You have had a large amount of experience;—what has been your experience of those matters? I have seen at times far worse voyages.

273. As a rule? Yes, as a rule. The fault of this was that the bread was made into very small loaves of 6 ozs. each, and did not go far enough; there was no economy in it; the bread was supplied too new. A man could take 6 ozs. of bread in two mouthfulls.

274. You think it would have been economical to have delayed the issue of bread twenty-four hours? I pointed that out repeatedly.

275. Would it be correct to say that the bread was seldom fresh? Oh, no; I do not go so far as that.

276. On the other hand you admit it was occasionally sour? It was occasionally sour, but in the majority of instances it was fresh, good, and pure.

277. Was the sourness due to the flour? I do not know, the yeast might affect it. I know that when the captain spoke to the baker it improved afterwards, then it became a little sour again; it was not the horrible sourness which some have spoken of.

278. Did you examine the flour yourself? No, I did not do that.

279. You do not know whether it was the flour being sour caused the bread to be bad? The bakers represented that there were two kinds of flour in the ship—one kind in bags, which was inferior, and another kind in barrels, which was better. They said that when the inferior flour was used the bread was sour.

280. You have heard certain complaints made with respect to the insufficiency of proper food for infants. Of course if that had occurred it would have been within your ken? The fact is the steward had not sufficient experience at the commencement of the voyage. I noticed that myself, and gave him the charter-party, and gave him the scale and asked him to go by that. I understood that he did so. In order to make sure I made a large draw upon the medical comforts—I mean the spirits—until we consumed them all.

281. The immigrants say this: "By the insufficient arrangements for properly cooking the food whereby it was rendered, to a very large degree, unfit to eat, and the insufficiency of proper food for infants and children, and the absence of delicacies for sick persons." In your opinion is this well grounded? I do not think so; I think the place is rather small for the accommodation required.

282. But in your opinion this was not well-grounded? No; people have been expecting too much for their children and themselves too.

283. Is the accommodation on the ship equal to that you have been accustomed to see given to immigrants as regards food? Oh, yes.

284. Is it superior to what you have seen? Well, except as regards the fresh meat I should not think so.

285. In that respect it is superior? Oh, yes.

286. Was the diet equal in all respects to that usually given to immigrants? I should think it is; but this is to be observed, that the people prefer to get their food in a raw state and to cook it themselves.

287. Dr. Sheridan.] That is the old system? That is the old system; in serving out the provisions it is very likely that a small mess might get as much as a large one when they are not weighed out.

288. Mr. Yuill.] Could they get enough? Yes, I have known them to go back and get more.

289. By the Chairman.] Did you have sufficient hospital accommodation? I had a great deal of sickness, and I had to convert one portion of the single men's hospital into a children's hospital. The children's hospital was full.

290. Then you had not sufficient accommodation? I do not think under the circumstances we could have had as much accommodation as we should have liked; we had altogether sixty-six cases of measles on board, and as many as twenty at one time. I always kept the hospital full, and when there was no more room I kept the rest of the sick children in the cabins.

291. Were you aware of any cases of sickness in the Dépôt? Yes, I detected a case of measles; the patient was at once isolated and sent off to the floating hulk. The matter was reported to the Board of Trade, who, after a consultation, decided to let the ship go to sea.

292. What, without increasing the hospital accommodation? Yes, without increasing the hospital accommodation.

293. And no more was provided? No.

294. Was the agent cognizant of the fact? Yes, he was very anxious about it; he came down from London to Plymouth, and I think he was there two or three days. I saw him at his hotel, and we had a long conversation about it. The Board of Trade consented to let the ship go off next day.

295. Do you not think it remarkable that although they knew from past experience that there might be an outbreak on board they took no notice of the matter?—Suppose you put it in another way: Suppose they had detained the immigrants in the Dépôt and measles had broken out there? Of two evils probably we should choose the least.

296. But knowing that an outbreak would probably occur, would it not have been a good thing to have provided accommodation for the cases? I do not think they had room in the ship for it.

297. Could they not have kept back two or three score of people? Assuming the hospital could be on deck, it is better to have a hospital for contagious diseases upon deck than between decks.

298. Could they not have been upon deck. The "Abergeldie" had a hospital on top of the house? We had one on the poop and one on the alley-way; we were out eight or ten days before the disease broke out.

299. Do you think it was possible to accomplish anything like a reasonable isolation with the accommodation which you had? I did my best at all events. I put them into hospital. I was always closely observing the children. A man brought me a child, and I said, "Take that child into the hospital and leave him there."

300. One of the persons whom we have examined to-day told us that his child had the measles and died in his cabin? Yes.

301. One would naturally think the child would have been better in the hospital? My hospital was full, and I may explain that some people have peculiar religious views. That child was sick with measles, and the father persisted in doctoring the child himself, and the child got the bronchitis.

302. Chairman.] This was one of the peculiar people? Yes, he was particularly fond of his child, and would not let it out of his sight.

303. Then although the child was not in the hospital it was because the father wished to keep it in his cabin? We had not sufficient accommodation at the time; the hospital was full.

304. The tone in which the man told us his child died in the cabin was one of decided complaint; I understood that the child had actually been allowed to die in the cabin? We were attentive to the child, but the father would always be meddling, and I do not think that the hospital would have saved the child; it was a bad case.

Captain Lobbett, examined by the Chairman:—

305. You are captain of the s.s. "Warwick"? Yes.
 306. When you joined the ship was she being fitted up? Yes.
 307. Who fitted the ship up? A man named Jackson was the contractor.
 308. Was he accustomed to that sort of work? Yes.
 309. Had he fitted up any other ships? I know he had fitted up the "Abergeldie," and I believe many others.
 310. Who planned the fittings? That I could not say.
 311. Was an officer of our Government present when they were being erected? Yes, in London.
 312. Were you present yourself? Yes, every day.
 313. Did our officer make any complaint with reference to the quality of the fittings or the manner in which the accommodation had been arranged? No.
 314. Did he express himself satisfied with the fittings? No.
 315. Did he make any remark about them? He made no remark to me or in my hearing.
 316. Did you hear that he had made any remark to any one? No, I did not hear that he had made any remark.
 317. But he was cognisant of all that went on? He was.
 318. When you arrived at Plymouth was any remark made by any of our officers? No, not until within one hour of the sailing of the ship.
 319. Then who complained? Mr. Phillips complained of some few berths—I could not tell the number—and I went myself and put the sheets up. I did that before I went out to get the ship underway.
 320. Had Mr. Phillips seen the fittings in London?
 321. But he was present? Oh, yes.
 322. If he objected was there a competent authority to whom he could complain? Oh yes, there was Captain Andrews.
 323. Did he object to anything? Yes, he objected to having the butcher's shop near the single women's place, and it was removed; he objected to the place where they were going to put the dispensary, because the doctor would not have the people coming through the single women's compartment. He also objected to other things.
 324. Then no complaints were made concerning the fittings until within an hour of the sailing of the ship? Yes, and then only with respect to the want of privacy.
 325. Have you been accustomed to sailing with third-class passengers? I have.
 326. In what manner were they accommodated? In various ways; the berthing has not always been the same.
 327. Have the berths been planned in the same manner as these in some instances? No, not exactly, but I have had married people in the same compartment with others.
 328. More than one couple? Yes, with curtains.
 329. Do you know why this plan was adopted in this ship? I do not.
 330. Was there any special advantage in it? I consider this ship is planned very well, having such broad passages; she astonished me in the Tropics; I anticipated much more trouble than we have had; but the effect of giving these large passage-ways inside of the ship has reduced the large saloon which people have been accustomed to in the centre.
By Dr. Booth.] They always have wider passages in all the ships coming out here, and wider saloons too.
Mr. Wise.] The fittings were only partially put up in London? Captain Lobbett.] They were very nearly completed.
 331. What time did you arrive at Plymouth? On the 18th January, at 10.30 a.m.
 332. What time did you sail? At 10 minutes to 4 in the afternoon.

Second Day, 20 March, 1884.

PRESENT:—

Dr. Mackellar (in the Chair).

The Very Rev. Dr. Sheridan, | The Rev. S. Wilkinson,
 Mr. Wise (Agent for Immigration).

Mr. Wise.] On Tuesday afternoon last I received the following letter from Mr. Yuill, the representative of the Orient Company:—

Sir, Orient line of Steamers, Sydney, 18 March, 1884.
 Referring to the inquiry held yesterday on board the s.s. "Warwick," upon the question of food and accommodation, although the evidence of the particular complainants practically resolved itself into a question of the quality of the bread, it would appear desirable in the interests of the Company I represent and for the satisfaction of the public that fuller evidence be taken from the general body of the immigrants. I have the honor to request that you will arrange a meeting of the Immigration Board for that purpose while the evidence of the immigrants is still available.

I have, &c.,

G. SKELTON YUILL,
 Manager in Australia.

F. Wise, Agent for Immigration, Sydney.

Immediately on receipt of that letter I communicated with Dr. Mackellar and asked whether a meeting of the Board could be held on the following afternoon. I also called upon Dr. Sheridan—both these gentlemen found it impossible to attend on that day. We have therefore met to hold the inquiry to-day, the earliest opportunity after the receipt of Mr. Yuill's notice.

Mr. Yuill.] I have to explain that, having had a very short notice of the last day's inquiry, only one hour's notice in fact, I did not quite realise the nature of the charges to be brought against the Company. It was not until I had the papers next morning that I saw the importance of the matter. I then took immediate steps to have another inquiry held. I foresaw that we should have some difficulty in keeping the immigrants on board, and, although there were about eight on board until a couple of hours ago, I believe there are none remaining now. We intended to call only those who were not complainants against us. I do not know even yet what are the charges against the ship. I do not understand exactly what I have to refuse. I do not understand my own position as against the position taken up by the Board. I do not understand whether the Board wish me to refute particular charges.

Mr. Wise.] Mr. Yuill says that he had only an hour's notice from one of the meeting.

Mr. Yuill.] Yes.

Mr. Wise.] Arrangements were made on Monday morning to hold the inquiry, and immediately on the hour being fixed I sent a letter to Mr. Yuill informing him of it.

Mr. Yuill.] That letter reached me at about 12 o'clock.

The Chairman.] You complain that you did not have sufficient notice of the inquiry to be held into the charges made against the ship.

Mr. Yuill.] Yes, I certainly do.

Mr. Wise.] The arrangement was not made until 11 o'clock on Monday morning, and I immediately wrote to Mr. Yuill.

The Rev. Mr. Wilkinson.] I think it ought to be stated that the people were kept on board a couple of days longer than they might have been in order that the Board might inquire fully into the charges.

Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] The whole matter is very simple. We, as the Board of Immigration, came to discharge a certain duty, fully intending as was our custom to free the ship immediately after the meeting on Saturday. We received, however, a document containing certain complaints, which seemed to us to be of very great importance. These complaints referred to the quantity and quality of the food supplied, and also to the kind of sleeping accommodation afforded.

The charges were of so grave a character that we considered ourselves justified in not freeing the ship until full inquiry was held. The Chairman was not present at the time. Mr. Wise told us, and the fact has appeared in the public prints, that on a former occasion a number of immigrants made very strong representations respecting their treatment on board ship, but when an inquiry was to be held they did not appear before the Board to give evidence.

Fearing that a similar state of things might occur again we considered that we were justified, for the sake of our reputation as lovers of fair play, and in the interests of the Company themselves, in adopting the course which we did to ensure a full and impartial inquiry.

Mr. Yuill.] Yes, but the only witnesses called by the Board the other day were witnesses representing the complainants. That was a one-sided inquiry.

Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] But you never told us that you wished any other witnesses to be examined.

Mr. Yuill.] No; I do not know what my position here is.

Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] Had you informed us of your intention we would at once have given instructions for any immigrants to be detained whom you wished to be called as witnesses.

Captain Lobbett.] The accusation was an organized affair. It sprung a mine upon us. If I represented the Orient Company by myself I should be taken at a great disadvantage. I might have gone on deck and said, "Will any one speak up for the ship?" I had instructions from the Board to allow no one to leave the ship until the examination was held, and I fulfilled those instructions to the very letter. I have had no authority to detain any immigrants since, but a few volunteered to give evidence, and I hoped to rebut the charges which have been made.

The Chairman.] We will now proceed with the inquiry.

Mr. Yuill.] My first witness is the chief steward.

Alexander Ferguson, examined by the Chairman:—

333. You are the chief steward of the s.s. "Warwick?" Yes.

334. Have you been in the service of the Orient Company before? The "Lusitania" was my last ship.

335. Did you come from that ship to this? Yes.

336. Are you aware that a document was handed to the Immigration Agent, signed by a number of immigrants on board this ship? Yes.

337. Who complained that the food had been scanty in some cases and badly distributed; that the flour was sour and the bread was sour? Yes.

338. Were the charges true as regards the distribution of the food? No, sir.

339. Did it not happen that in serving out the food to some of the messes that there was an unequal distribution of it? I think not sir.

340. Did anyone ever complain to you? Yes, they have complained to me. They complained that the captains of the messes did not serve out the food properly. They did not complain of what I gave out; but they complained that the captains helped themselves and then threw the tins to the others and let them help themselves.

341. What is the method generally adopted in distributing food to third-class passengers? I take it down and put it on the different tables in the same tins we used here and let them take what they want. If there is not sufficient they can send for more. There is no stint in our ships.

342. Did you adopt this plan in this case? No; instead of doing that we let the captain of each mess come to the galley for the food.

343. Was there the same freedom that you allow to third-class passengers? Yes.

344. Nevertheless complaints were made? Yes.

345. Did you examine those complaints? I did, very often.

346. Did you find them well-grounded? I never saw anything to complain of myself.

347. You say some complain they could not get their share? Yes, from the captains of the messes.

348. It has been said that as the messes were split up some people got a large quantity and others a small quantity—do you know anything about that? I know nothing of that.

349. Was not that splitting up of the messes not the act of yourself? Yes, it was done with my sanction. They came and asked and the doctor gave orders to split up the messes.

350. When the messes were split up was there any method adopted in dividing the food? Yes; I divided the messes and the food.

351. Was it accurately divided? Yes, perfectly accurately.

352.

352. There have been very general complaints that the bread has been frequently sour. Have you known it to be sour? I have.
353. Has it often been sour? I have seen it sour about six times.
354. Did people complain of that? They did.
355. And you inquired into the case? Yes, I inquired into it.
356. What did you find? I thought it was the change of weather in the Tropics caused it. I examined the flour in the bags, and I thought it would make a change and we tried the barrel flour, which was better. After that we started the bag flour again, and it was just as good.
357. You say that you tried the barrel flour, and that the bread was then good? No, it was not good then. That was in the hot weather.
358. It was equally sour in the barrels then? Not quite. It was not unfit for food.
359. Then the bag flour was not good, so you tried the barrel flour and found it was somewhat less sour? I did not say that the bag flour was bad. It was quite good when I examined it.
360. Are you a judge? I am; I know when flour is sour.
361. A number of complaints have been made in regard to the issuing of the tea. Were they well grounded? No complaints were made about the tea as far as I know.
362. The people complain that it was put on the oven and boiled? No, we do not make tea in the oven, but on the top of the steam coppers.
363. Do you keep it boiling or simmering for any length of time? No; as soon as ever it is boiled we shut off the steam; therefore although it is upon the steam boiler it is not being boiled. The tea is made about 5 minutes before it is used.
364. Did it ever remain on the boiler any length of time? No.
365. How long at the most? A quarter of an hour.
366. Did any of the people complain that it was inferior in consequence of remaining on the boiler? I never had a complaint about the tea.
367. Whenever it began to boil the steam was always shut off? Yes.
368. Was the tea supplied of good quality? Yes.
369. Was it equal in quality to that usually supplied to third-class passengers? It was the very same class of tea, and the process we have here is the same as that on the ordinary Orient ships.
370. Is it any part of your duty to look after the berthing of the people? No, sir.
371. Has your attention been called to the manner in which their places were kept? Yes.
372. That is part of your duty? Yes.
373. Did you notice from the manner in which the berths were erected that there was any possibility or probability of indecent exposure in the married people's compartments? I do not know; it is the first immigrant ship I ever was in. I cannot give an opinion.
374. Is it customary in the other Orient steamers to put two families in one cabin? No.
375. In the ordinary steamers then there are only one family in each compartment? Yes.
376. Salt meat was supplied occasionally? Yes, sir.
377. Was it invariably of good quality? First-class.
378. Did you ever know it bad? Not bad.
379. Was any complaint made regarding the salt meat? They did not care about it; they wanted fresh beef; that is the only complaint I heard.
380. Regarding the food of the children—that is an important thing—were you always able to comply with the requisitions made by the doctor for farinaceous food and milk for the children? Yes, sir.
381. Were you always able to do that? Yes, except one article—arrowroot.
382. Did you have plenty corn-flour on board? No, we did not carry that.
383. What articles had you? Tapioca, rice, and sago.
384. In mixing the condensed milk what rule did you follow? A certain quantity of condensed milk is dissolved in a certain quantity of water.
385. Had you any fixed rule? I use with an ordinary sized can containing 3 or 4 gallons seven tins of milk.
386. Each containing how many ounces;—were they 1-lb. tins? One tin of milk was supposed to be sufficient for 1 gallon of water.
387. And you put seven tins into how many tins of water? Into 4 gallons.
388. Did any of the passengers complain? I never heard any complaint, though I believe there have been complaints.
389. Did they complain to you about the quality of the milk? No.
390. Did they complain as to the soundness of the farinaceous food for the children? No.
391. By the Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] I suppose you had an opportunity of hearing a great deal about the quality of the flour and the bread and so on? Yes.
392. They alleged, I suppose, that they were unable to use it? Yes, sir.
393. Did they get any substitute? Yes, sir, they got biscuits.
394. Mr. Yuill.] And potatoes? Yes, potatoes.
395. Captain Lobbett.] An unlimited supply of each? Yes.
396. Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] It is not in your Department exactly, but I suppose you heard a great deal of talk about the manner in which bunks were fitted up and about the accidents that occurred—the falling through, for example, of the berths. One or two persons, we were told, were hurt. Did you hear anything of this? No, I did not; I only heard one man complain, and he has complained very often about a great many things.
397. Are you aware that in one case a woman's life was in danger through her being cut on the temple by the falling boards? No, sir.
398. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson.] As regards the food, one witness said that the coffee was put into tins the night before and boiled up the first thing in the morning;—was that so? No; the coffee was put in at night for the ship's crew, not for the immigrants.
399. Captain Lobbett.] The crew have coffee in the night-time.
400. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson.] I should like to be sure that there is no mistake with regard to the quality and distribution of the food. You had nothing to do with it after it had left your hands? No; I stood at the door of the galley and saw everyone get his allowance.

401. Do you suppose that the captain of the mess helped himself to a larger share than the rest? I should not like to say that. Some of the captains cut the lean off and left the fat for the rest of the people, who then came and complained that they got no meat.

402. Mr. Yuill.] I will put before this witness the ration scale of the New South Wales Government (Scale handed to witness.) There are no fresh provisions on that scale, are there? No, sir, only preserved meat.

403. Mr. Yuill.] Leaving out the question of beef altogether, which brings in the question of fresh meat, did you supply all the things in that scale? Yes, there is nothing here but what I supplied, except cheese.

404. Mr. Wise.] I asked you whether you supplied these rations and you said no? I supplied more.

405. But not these? No, I went according to the Orient scale.

406. Mr. Yuill.] How does the Orient scale compare with that scale? In some things it is the same but instead of 8 ounces of salt beef we supplied 16 ounces, and instead of 8 ounces of preserved meat, 16 ounces.

407. In fact the Orient scale is about that in every particular, and under it in none? Yes.

408. I would like to ask about the quantities of the main staples of food—beef, bread and biscuits, and all these things;—was there any limit of the supply at all? There was no limit. I never refused a single passenger on board anything he wanted.

409. The scale was abolished and they got as much as they wanted? Yes.

410. Have you seen a great deal of waste? I have seen a great deal of waste of preserved meat.

411. They didn't care for preserved meat? No, they wanted fresh meat.

412. What was the waste? I have seen more than half in some messes going over the side.

413. The captain mentioned something about a barrel of biscuits being placed in the hatch, so that they could help themselves. That was abolished? Yes, but only in the married people's places. In the single girls' places it was not.

414. Tell us the reason why? Because the scupper was actually floating with biscuits.

Captain Lobbett.] The biscuits were scattered all over the ship. I said, "Give them all the biscuits they can eat, but I cannot do with all this waste and with so much dirt about the ship."

415. Mr. Yuill.] And about the potatoes;—could they have as many as ever they wanted? They could have as many as ever they wanted.

416. Captain Lobbett.] More than they would take? Yes.

417. Mr. Yuill.] As regards the flour. You at first suspected that it was the hot weather that was turning it; then a question was raised as to whether it was not the yeast? Yes.

418. Then finally a change of flour was made, and there was an improvement? Yes.

419. You returned afterwards to the use of the bag flour? Yes.

420. Did you then hear any complaints? Not for some time.

421. Then there were complaints? Yes.

422. Then you changed it again after the second complaint? No, sir.

423. As regards the supply of provisions, I believe the immigrants came and made an application that they should not get so much meat for breakfast? Yes sir. Instead of hashed meat and rice they wanted rice and treacle, which they got.

424. As regards water, you know what the allowance of water was. Was that allowance adhered to? As far as I could see it was adhered to.

425. Was there any limit? No, sir.

Mr. Yuill.] I want to bring out the whole state of things, and to bring out the good points as well as the weak points. Nothing was brought out the other day to the credit of the ship. I want to show the difference between coming out in steamers and sailing vessels. In these steamers there is no limit as regards supplies, but in sailing vessels there is always a limit.

426. There is one important question which I wish to ask. Was the cabin table supplied with exactly the same provisions as the immigrants? Yes, the meat and flour and butter were the same.

427. And the salt meat? Yes, and the fresh meat.

These were exactly the same as those supplied to the immigrants? Yes.

428. Mr. Yuill.] The consumption of water runs up to from 700 to 1,000 gallons a day.

429. The Chairman.] Then you have a record? Captain Lobbett: Yes, it was an officer's special duty to keep a record of it from day to day.

430. The Chairman.] What would that average per head? Captain Lobbett: About a gallon and a quarter.

Mr. Yuill.] A thousand gallons would be about a gallon and three-quarters per head.

431. The Chairman.] What is the regulation allowance? 3 quarts per day, or 21 gallons per week, and 10 gallons per statute adult for cooking purposes.

432. The Chairman.] In point of fact you supplied upwards of 1 gallon per head per day? Captain Lobbett: Yes, counting infants and all.

433. The Chairman.] How many statute adults were there on board? Mr. Wise: There were 515.

434. Mr. Yuill.] I think a deputation once stated that they wanted to get certain things doled out to them instead of having them put down on the table—such as sugar, tea, and things of that sort—and they were informed, I believe, that they must go on the Government scale? Witness: The only things they wanted to have weighed out were sugar and tea, with a supply of hot water, but that system would not have suited so well as the one we adopted.

Captain Lobbett.] The immigrants themselves acknowledged that that system would not answer. If each one had to go to the galley with a little tea-pot the first twenty or fifty would get their water hot but it would be cold before the others were supplied. The arrangement which we made was for their own benefit.

Charles Dean, examined by the Chairman:—

435. What is your name? Charles Dean.

436. Are you a married man? Yes.

437. Did your wife come out with you on board this ship? Yes.

438. Have you any children? Yes, three.

439. You are aware that a document was handed in to the Immigration Agent on the arrival of the ship making certain charges as to the quality and distribution of the food and other matters? Yes.
440. Did you read the document? Yes, I did.
441. Did you sign it? I did not.
442. Were you asked to sign it? Yes.
443. On what grounds did you decline? Because I had no reason to complain as regards my food.
444. You know it was stated the children did not get proper food—did your children get proper food? My children did.
445. How old are your children? Seven, five, and two years.
446. Did the doctor find it necessary to order any extra diet for your children? Yes, sir—sago pudding, tapioca, and port wine.
447. And that was supplied? Yes.
448. Was there any failure on any occasion to supply what was ordered? Not to my knowledge.
449. We are told that the bread was sour;—was it sour? On several occasions it was sour.
450. Was it sour as a rule? No, sir.
451. It was good as a rule? Yes, taking the voyage throughout from beginning to end the bread was very good.
452. As regards the manner in which the food was issued in the messes it was stated that some members of the mess would obtain more food than others, or that some messes obtained more food than others—that there was, in fact, a bad distribution of the food? I was the captain of a mess, and I always served out the food as fairly as I possibly could.
453. Do you think that the captains of the messes obtained more than their share? In some cases where they were selfish.
454. That they actually obtained more than their share—you say that? Yes.
455. That was not your habit though? No; I shared it out as well as I could.
456. Were the immigrants generally on good terms with the steward, or were they quarrelling? I never heard any quarrelling down aft where I was. Some of the immigrants forward did not seem to be on such good terms. Three or four of them were grumbling from beginning to end of the voyage.
457. And the immigrants in the after part were not? No, they all seemed very satisfied throughout the voyage. All those documents were started in the fore part of the ship.
458. You were supplied with fresh meat on the voyage? Yes.
459. Three or four days a week? Yes.
460. Were you aware that that was not part of the regular rations? The scale does not state that we were to have it three or four times a week.
461. Does it state that you should have it at all? I am not aware.
462. Was the salt meat bad? No.
463. Did you never notice it bad? No, I thought it was very good.
464. It has also been complained that the tea has been badly prepared—did you see that? No, I did not see anything about that. I generally used to make my own tea.
465. Was that the custom of many on board? Yes.
466. They made their own tea? Yes.
467. Mr. Wise.] How did they get the tea? They brought it on board.
468. The Chairman.] But how about the tea belonging to the ship? What I had was very good.
469. But you did not invariably use it—you had brought some with you? Yes, sir.
470. Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] Was each and all of the messes served with the same quantity of food, irrespective of the number of which the mess consisted. There were some large messes, containing as many as fourteen persons, and others containing little over half that number. I want to know if the same quantity of food was supplied to each; if, in fact, the small messes got as much as the large ones? Witness: I do not think I can answer that question. I do not know.
471. Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] You were captain of a mess. How many were there in your own mess? Nine and a half statute adults.
472. Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] How much did you get? Witness: Always sufficient.
- Rev. Dr. Sheridan.*] If in some messes there were only seven and in others there were fourteen, one can easily understand how it was that the smaller messes were perfectly satisfied, while the larger ones had reason to complain.
- Mr. Yuill.*] They could always go back again to get more.
473. Rev. Dr. Sheridan.] It was rather a loose arrangement to give out to a mess of fourteen persons the same quantity they supplied to a mess of nine persons. I want to know what this gentleman has to say on this point. Witness: In serving out the messes they always stood at the galley-door, asked how many there were in the mess, and gave out the food according to the number.
474. Were the immigrants satisfied to get the food served as it was, or would they prefer to have it weighed out to them in a dry state; the tea and sugar for instance? There might be a few like that, but I do not think the majority would.
475. Which do you think would be the most satisfactory? To have it cooked before it was served out.
476. By Mr. Wise.] You say you brought tea aboard with you, and I think you said others did the same thing? Yes.
477. How long did you use the tea that you brought on board? I used it myself all the way out.
478. Therefore you had no reason to complain of the tea? No, there have been days when we have not been able to make that tea, and we had to have the ship's tea.
479. What was the No. of your compartment? 72.
480. You do not know the size of it, do you? No.
481. Who occupied the compartment? Nobody only myself and wife and three children.
482. By Mr. Yuill.] I think you have seen the Government scale of provisions? We have it.
483. Would you prefer to go upon that scale and have your provisions dealt out according to it? Most decidedly not; I would sooner have it as we had it.
484. Would you prefer having your rations served out and cook them according to the manner provided in the scale? 485.

485. Mr. Wise.] Explain what you mean by rations?

Mr. Yuill: Daily allowance. What I want to get at is whether he would prefer the mode adopted aboard this steamer or the mode adopted aboard the immigrant ships with the salt beef and salt pork dealt out to you instead of having fresh beef dealt out to you ready cooked? Witness: I would sooner have it this way.

Alfred Albert Knowles, examined by the Chairman:—

486. You are a married man? Yes.
 487. Your wife came out with you? Yes.
 488. How many children? Three.
 489. What are their ages? Nine, seven, and five.
 490. Did you obtain proper food for those children on the voyage? Yes.
 491. Did the doctor find it necessary to order you any extra food for them? Nothing whatever; I never troubled the doctor for anything.
 492. The children were quite healthy then? Every one of them.
 493. Have you anything to complain of regarding your food? Nothing at all; in fact I have had more than ever I expected when setting off.
 494. Did you notice the quality of the bread particularly? Only an odd time or two.
 495. Then you mean to say an odd time or two it was bad? It tasted a little sour, but it was through its being upset off the board a time or two while it was rough.
 496. It was in fact sour at any rate? It was eatable. We did not throw it away and waste it; we ate it.

497. You speak for yourself merely? Yes.
 498. And the tea—was that good? We have always drunk it.
 499. Did you think it was good—well-cooked? On the whole it was.
 500. You know it was reported amongst the immigrants that the tea was left to boil for a long time after it was infused? I saw them on the barrier up here one night, but I did not notice what they were about.

501. At any rate you did not complain of it? Not at all.
 502. Have you anything to complain about regarding the manner in which the provisions were issued to the messes? Nothing, sir.

503. You are aware that complaints have been made? Yes.
 504. Especially in this respect that some messes or some individuals in the messes were supposed to get a much larger quantity of food than others? Well, I have heard them talking, but never took particular notice—I always took my own and came away.

505. Were you captain of a mess? No.
 506. Did you think the captains of the messes took an undue quantity of the food sometimes? I never saw any captain of a mess take an undue quantity.

507. Dr. Booth.] Why, you were always complaining to me of the captain of your mess? No; it was Granger, the schoolmaster.

508. By the Chairman.] You thought he cheated you? He did the first week or two, and I made a complaint to the doctor.

509. Cheated you in what? Took more meat than he allowed me to take. I counted three-and-a-half and he counted two-and-a-half, and he took more than me on an average.

510. Did you have many quarrels with Granger? No, only one quarrel. That was for taking as much as me with three grown-up children, and he had only one small one.

511. Granger complains that he did not have enough food? Well, if he did not have enough Lord help those who did. He would eat as much as half-a-dozen.

512. Regarding the berthing arrangements of the ship, two married couples were compelled to go into the one cabin? I am not sure about that further than I heard them say so. I had a berth to myself, and was very well satisfied with my berths and beds, and everything.

513. Dr. Sheridan.] Are you aware that a document was presented to the Board, signed by seventy or eighty married people? Yes; but there have been so many documents got up.

514. Were you aware of that particular one? I don't know which one of them it is. I signed my name to one asking—not demanding—that the steward would give us sugar and tea separate.

515. The document I allude to is one making certain complaints in reference to the food and sleeping arrangements? I did not sign that.

516. Were you asked to sign it? Not that I am aware of. I was never asked to sign only one, and that is the one I told you of.

517. By Mr. Yuill.] You have seen the New South Wales Government scale upon your contract ticket? Yes.

518. By the Chairman.] What is your occupation? Joiner.

519. By Mr. Yuill.] You know that ticket does not provide for fresh beef and fresh mutton, it only provides for salt meat? I know we have had more than that ticket allows us.

520. That ticket provides for salt beef and salt pork and no fresh beef and fresh mutton; would you prefer to have the food you had or to have had salt beef and salt pork and everything else dealt out to you daily and go to the galley and get it cooked yourself? I would rather have it as we have had it, because I think we could not have cooked it properly ourselves.

521. You would not have had to cook it yourselves; you would have to take it to the galley to get it cooked and then take it down to your mess? I would rather have it as we have had it. We have had all and more than we could eat ever since we started the voyage.

Charles Fairclough, examined by the Chairman:—

522. Are you a married man? Yes.

523. Was your wife with you on the voyage? Yes.

524. Did you have any children with you? Three.

525. What were their ages? One was seven, one between five and six, and one close on three.

526. Did you obtain proper and sufficient food for them on the voyage? Yes, sir, plenty, and to spare

527. For the children? Yes, everything I required for them.

528.

528. Were your children ill at any time? Just a time or two they were rather out of sorts, but nothing serious whatever; they never had to be kept in.

529. Did you obtain good bread during the voyage? Yes, taking it on the whole, very good.

530. Was it at times bad? A time or two.

531. Frequently? Not very often. I noticed it mostly when we were passing through the Tropics and had changeable weather.

532. By Mr. Yuill.] Were the children healthier-looking when they arrived here than when they left home? They are a deal better now.

533. Which would you like best, the New South Wales Government scale of food, which is salt beef, salt pork, and other luxuries, dealt out so much every day, taken to the galley to be cooked and taken back to the mess ——? I have been speaking to three of my shop-mates who have been here eighteen months; they came out in a sailing vessel, and from what they have told me we have fared a great deal better than they did.

534. You preferred it as it was? Yes, sir, plenty of fresh beef.

William Count, examined by the Chairman:—

535. You are a married man? Yes.

536. You had your wife with you on the voyage? Yes.

537. And how many children? Four.

538. Did your children get proper food on the voyage? I can't say it was proper.

539. In what respect was it improper? The children could not eat it.

540. Did you complain to the doctor? Yes; and he endeavoured to remedy it as much as possible by informing the steward. The steward made several remarks about it, and sometimes there was a little improvement.

541. What did the doctor order which was not given? He ordered several things in the way of diet; for instance, arrowroot and rice, which were given in a way that was not fit for any child to eat. The children could not eat it.

542. For what reason? In the first place it was not sufficiently boiled, and in the next place it was made too watery for them to use it. My children are very fond of rice, and I am certain there is something very materially wrong or the children would not refuse it.

543. Did you sign a document sent in making certain complaints as to the food and other circumstances? No.

544. Were you asked to sign it? No.

545. What part of the ship do you come from? The after part.

546. You know it is stated in this document which I referred to that there was an unequal distribution? Yes, that is seen in the paper. I did not know anything about it till I saw it in the paper.

547. You did not hear anything about that during the voyage? Oh, yes, I heard of it, but I did not hear of the document you are referring to.

548. You heard complaints on the voyage? Yes, there were frequent complaints.

549. Did you see anything of it? Yes, I had occasion to complain about it frequently.

550. Were you the captain of a mess? Yes; frequently my messmates complained about it, but I never liked to go back again, for the simple reason that I did not like to be continually asking people for things. I said to them once or twice, "There are so many in our mess, and a good many children—you know how children eat." Sometimes they gave me a little gravy. I have had sometimes the greatest difficulty in even getting gravy. In respect to the quantity of food I have gone without myself; I have served it all out for the rest of the mess.

551. Do you mean to say there was not sufficient? Not sufficient for our mess, and in a smaller mess I have seen more. My mess consisted of ten, and I have seen a mess of eight have quite as much.

552. By Mr. Yuill.] Ten adults? Ten statute adults.

553. By the Chairman.] What was the method of dividing it;—did you see how it was divided? It was simply done indiscriminately. There was a certain quantity of meat. I have often spoken to the steward, and said, "Have you no means of dividing this meat in an equal manner?" He said, "No; they send out a certain quantity from the butcher's shop, and there is a certain amount of bone." Sometimes it would be so cut that one piece would be nearly all bone.

554. In your opinion there was an unequal distribution? Yes.

555. Had you any reason to doubt that the quantity was issued? In some cases I had. It was not done throughout the voyage I think with respect to the meat, but in other things.

556. Very much so? Yes; I can prove it.

557. On what would you base your proof? I am able to prove the tea for instance. I made a calculation with respect to the tea, and I found that the amount of tea we had been taking is about 4lbs per day.

558. For the whole 600 people? Not for the 600, for there were 108 single women that had their tea served out separately.

559. How many persons would this be for? I calculated 407 statute adults. There should have been 7 lbs. of tea at the rate of my calculation, allowing 2 ozs. per week for each statute adult.

560. How do you know there was less than that? Because I saw it weighed, and 7 lbs. have been served out.

561. You were with the steward? I was not with the steward; it was the man in the issuing room.

562. Did you draw attention to that fact? No, I said nothing whatever to him.

563. You were an assistant on board the ship? The doctor's assistant.

564. Did you not deem it your duty to complain to the doctor or take any step? No, I did not tell the doctor about it, except that I told him I believed the tea would be very much better if it was put into the tins in boiling water, and I felt sure the people would be more satisfied. For some reason or other the steward did not seem willing to comply with that request. Many of them thought that would have been better.

565. By Dr. Sheridan.] Had you a compartment to yourself? Yes, we had a cabin to ourselves. It was very dark.

566. You had nothing to complain of personally? No.

567. As far as your observation went did you think that the sleeping compartments were such as they they ought to have been in every respect, both in point of morality and as regards other matters? No, I candidly tell you that if in my case I had been put into a berth were there were two I would never have gone in nor would my wife. At the very commencement of the voyage one of the passengers in the next cabin to me was in the cabin doorway when we got downstairs. He looked up at the number and said, "I wonder if there is any other number?" ; this was cabin 72. He said, "There must be some other number ; this cannot be mine, there is another man and his wife here."

568. By Mr. Wise.] Do you know the name of the man? Dean, I think. However he made a remark to this effect that he didn't like it. "Well," I said, "I can't help that at all." He said, "Would you like it yourself?" I said, "No, I should not."

569. By Dr. Sheridan.] Were there hangings or curtains in the compartments where there were two married couples? There was only one curtain, I believe, throughout the whole ship.

570. By Mr. Wilkinson.] Could there not be others and you not know it? No, I have been throughout the whole ship pretty nearly every day. I was through the whole of the cabins doing duty with the doctor.

571. By Mr. Wise.] Were there two men of the name of Dean on board? No, sir ; only one.

572. What was it you said with reference to him and No. 72? He said he would not allow another man and wife to come into his cabin. I said, "I can't help that." He began to curse and swear and said, "It's a fine thing for another man to undress before my wife."

573. What was the result of it? He was obliged to yield because there was no remedy.

574. But he has just now stated that he had a cabin to himself? I will tell you how that occurred : For about a week or so they were together. My cabin was next to his, and being so dark, my wife, who was very adverse to a dark cabin, complained when Mr. Phillips was on board. Mr. Phillips turned round to the doctor and spoke of some other cabin, and said, "It is at your disposal." This I eventually found out was intended for a man who ought to have come on board but did not. I got this vacant cabin ; it left my cabin empty. Williams' wife, who was in with Dean, was taken ill, and during this illness she got into my cabin. That is how it was.

575. Then they were together for a short time? They were together for about a fortnight.

576. How did you obtain a single cabin—by any agreement? No, there was no agreement whatever.

577. By Captain Lobbett.] Would you kindly tell the Board at what time you were appointed assistant surgeon? In the Depôt, by Mr. Phillips ; he called me into the office.

578. Did I hear you say there was only one screen put up in the ship? Yes.

579. How were you aware of that? Because I went through it.

580. When did you go through—on some succeeding day? Yes.

581. Did you go round when I went round? No ; I inquired afterwards, and they said they did not get screens, except Williams.

582. Do you know yourself they were not put up? No.

583. Did you hear anyone say I went round to have them put up? I heard some of them saying they were never put up.

584. Can you bring one to prove it? I cannot say I can bring them now, but I can name the individuals. When you spoke of it at the forepart of the ship the other day there were four or five stated positively it was a lie.

585. By Mr. Yuill.] Is this your first voyage? Yes.

586. Mr. Yuill.] I would like to ask the captain a question. This man who just went out confirms something I wish to inquire into—the question about berthing the passengers. I would like to ask this question because this matter is not within my personal knowledge. I want to ask you, captain, who it was that berthed your passengers at Plymouth ; who was responsible for putting two married couples into one cabin? Captain Lobbett : A party by the name of Samuel. I don't know him personally or intimately. I simply saw him on board the vessel. He came aboard the ship with the immigrants.

587. Mr. Yuill.] Is he a Government official? Dr. Booth : He is your official.

588. Mr. Yuill.] Is he appointed by the Agent-General? Dr. Booth : No, but I think he recognises him.

589. Mr. Yuill.] Is he the man who berths the immigrants in every case? Dr. Booth : Yes.

590. The Chairman.] You mean to say that this man fits the ship up? Mr. Yuill.] No, this is the man who is responsible for putting two married couples into one cabin ; he is directly responsible.

Dr. Booth.] I will tell you what I think is responsible. The cabins are biggedly piggedly. Some big, some little, not adjusted to the size of the families. Large and small families will come to the Depôt and they are not adjusted in any way and so double pairs are packed into the cabins.

591. Mr. Yuill.] Who is responsible,—Dr. Booth? If you look at the third section of the charter-party you will find the information.

592. Dr. Sheridan.] Who is really responsible? Dr. Booth.] I know Mr. Anderson accepted the onus of the whole thing when it was pointed out to him that there were two married couples in the one cabin. He denounced the thing, so did Mr. Phillips. Mr. Phillips was very much annoyed about it, and was detaining the ship until some screen was put up. The captain gave an undertaking that he would see to the matter, and then he let the ship go.

593. Dr. Sheridan.] In point of fact the captain did carry out what he said? Dr. Booth : I had not gone down between decks at the time, because it was just at the start and the responsibility did not rest on my hands. I know the captain did go down, and, as far as I understand, the people came to some arrangement between themselves by getting some other cabins and avoiding the thing. They settled it somehow ; that was the impression I was under.

594. Mr. Yuill.] The ship is fitted up at the owner's expense in London, under the supervision of a representative of the Agent-General. Dr. Booth : She is no such thing ; she was fitted up against his will, and in spite of him, because I was on the spot and heard argument on argument, and went into it myself. When I came to Plymouth and went to look at the berths I thought them so scandalous that I came up in a rage and asked Mr. Phillips, "Is this your design?" He said, "No ; you know I had nothing to do with it." Someone (I think it was an Orient man) said, "It is the Orient Company's design."

595. Mr. Yuill.] You say Mr. Phillips abdicated his functions and did not attend to the fittings? Dr. Booth : I can tell the reason why well, but this is not the place to discuss it I think.

Chairman.] Yes ; we wish to get all the information we can.

Dr.

Dr. Booth: I know there was a difference of opinion between the two parties (the Orient representative and the Agent-General), and it arose out of a little expression in the agreement—things that applied to a steamer and things that did not apply. Whenever a thing was objected to by Mr. Phillips they would outweigh it by saying, "It does not apply to a steamer."

596. Mr. Yuill.] About the fittings? Dr. Booth: The Agent-General had to make a very sharp remark about the ventilators or they would not have got them.

597. Mr. Yuill.] Do you know that of your own knowledge? Dr. Booth: He told me so. They would not even give us two ventilators, and we had a hard fight to abolish the butcher's shop.

598. Mr. Yuill.] In fact, you were dissatisfied with the vessel because it was a steamer? Dr. Booth: It was not a question of steam at all.

599. Mr. Yuill.] Are you in favour of steamers or sailing ships? Dr. Booth: Give me a steamer as comfortable as a sailing ship, and she will be shorter in the passage and of course a thousand times better. But the sailing vessel has many advantages over the steamer, and the passengers are deprived of many things people know nothing about. I was in the "Strathleven" steamer; she was fitted up like a sailing vessel, and everything was very nice.

600. Mr. Yuill.] Supposing the Agent-General requisitions for a steamer, and this steamer is fitted up in a certain way. We don't seem exactly to get the point as to whether the Agent-General is responsible for the style of the fittings or the Orient Company. We don't seem to have accurate evidence upon that point. Whoever it is, supposing the steamer gets down to Plymouth with her fittings all ready, there is a certain number of passengers to be put on board. They may not fit the fittings, and the question is, are the fittings made to fit the emigrants or the emigrants made to fit the fittings. According to that clause in the charter-party, which I am instructed the Agent-General has stuck to strenuously, that his officers shall see the people berthed and be responsible for the berthing, after the steamer lies at Plymouth it is in the responsibility of the Agent-General to berth the passengers. The Orient Company never do that sort of thing in their own mail-steamers. This is a departure from their own rules, because at Plymouth they are not allowed to say a word about the berthing. The tickets are put upon the door, and this man Samuels, I am instructed, with the Agent-General's department is entirely responsible for putting two couples in one cabin.

601. Mr. Wise.] Who is Samuels? Mr. Yuill: He is, I believe, the recognized berthing-officer at Plymouth.

602. Mr. Wise.] Paid by whom? Mr. Yuill: I don't know.

603. Dr. Booth.] I know there is a contest. The Agent-General insists if possible upon having this man. He can place every reliance upon him, and knows the thing will be done. I don't know how far this man Samuels is implicated.

Chairman.] This man is evidently the man referred to in the 3rd clause of the charter-party—"The party of the third part"—that is the Orient Company—"shall place on board the ship, on the embarkation day, a competent person approved of by the party of the second part"—that is the Agent-General—"whose duty it shall be to assist the officers appointed by the Agent-General in the embarkation arrangements."

Dr. Booth.] And the Orient Company rejects this man.

Mr. Yuill.] We were forced to take him.

Dr. Booth.] I know Mr. Anderson, if I do not mistake very much, accepted the responsibility of the whole thing.

Mr. Yuill.] That is only hearsay.

Dr. Booth.] No, he was on the spot on the ship; he was making a fuss about it.

Mr. Yuill.] The last witness gave very strong evidence against the food, and one thing and another about the ship, and the question is if the Board is satisfied or would like further evidence from independent passengers.

Chairman.] I do not think it would be possible for the Board's mind to be changed by any further evidence. We have examined I suppose a dozen witnesses.

604. Dr. Booth (examined by Dr. Sheridan):—Do you think that if the Company was satisfied to bring out a smaller number of emigrants the accommodation could be made much better, and come nearer to the arrangements which obtain in sailing vessels? The ship is large enough and has ample accommodation, but through the way the ground has been cut up and divided they have been "cribbed, cabined, and confined." There is ample room if they could arrange it either side to hold the same number. If the cabins were put at either side, as I have always seen in sailing vessels and in other steamers—in the "Strathleven," and I believe in the "Abergeldie" too—that would give plenty of open space in the middle. If you take the width of the ship, and allow a space for an alley-way at either side, and then bed space—say for four people—you will find there will be a very large space, which I always call a hall, and you can have sliding-tables there to slide up and down.

Mr. Yuill.] My instructions from the Orient Company are that they are trying to do all they can to adapt the fittings of the ship to give more air, and everything of that sort, and if there is anything wrong it is simply a matter of misguidance on their part. If the Orient Company are responsible for a bad plan and fittings—I do not admit they are responsible for a moment, but if they are it does not cost them any more to do it any other way. It is only after all a matter of misguidance.

Dr. Booth.] In what you call the steerage in the "John Elder" there are much the same dark irregular, queer-looking cabins for the accommodation of third-class passengers.

605. Mr. Yuill.] You think the mail-steamers are not well fitted? Dr. Booth: The similarity struck me at once when I went to look at the accommodation on that ship in the harbour here. I was surprised it was so little and so bad. The steerage of course was turned out and cargo put in, but I could see what it had been. There was a great similarity between this and that. Some one remarked "That is the Orient plan."

606. Dr. Sheridan.] Do you not think it would be possible to have a plan made out as to how those arrangements should be carried out—a plan that would apply to all ships? Dr. Booth: Yes certainly.

Mr. Yuill.] I quite agree with you.

Dr. Booth.] Many men have been trying it, and many plans have been suggested.

Captain Lobbett examined by Mr. Wise:—

607. What is the tonnage of the vessel? 1,648 nett; 2,526 gross.

APPENDIX A.

R. Dennison and others to The Emigration Commissioner, New South Wales Government.

S.S. "Warwick," 27 February, 1884.

We the undersigned, being passengers approved by Sir Saul Samuel as eligible to proceed to the Colony of New South Wales, under the auspices of the New South Wales Government, hereby make our protest condemning the arrangements made on board the above-named ship for our conveyance to the said Colony:—

- 1st. By the indecent manner of putting two married couples into one berth, and in many cases mixed with children from infancy to the age of twelve, and the insufficient number of berths rendering proper sleeping accommodation impossible, as shown by the number of statute adults in the following berths:—2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 15, 23, 24, 21, 27, 30, 35, 43, 45, 50, 54, 58, 58, 59, 69, and 74,—in all of which berths there are two married couples. Number of adults in above, 107.
- 2nd. By the insufficient arrangements for properly cooking the food, whereby it was rendered to a very large degree unfit to eat, and the insufficiency of proper food for infants and children, and the absence of delicacies for sick persons.
- 3rd. By issuing continuously (with few exceptions) sour bread, arising either from the bad state of the flour, or by mismanagement in making the same into bread; also by issuing tea stewed in the ovens, instead of making it in the ordinary way.
- 4th. And we respectfully demand an inquiry into the same.

APPENDIX B.

The Schoolmaster, s.s. "Warwick," to The Immigration Agent, New South Wales Government.

- Sir, S.S. "Warwick," Sydney, 12 March, 1884.
- I beg to hand you the following list of complaints for your consideration, and respectfully request investigation. I complain very much about the haphazard manner in which my meals have been issued to me during the voyage from England; for instance, there are several messes who have obtained roast dinners much oftener than my mess has. I will mention only last Sunday, when I got boiled meat where most of the other married messes obtained roast. I make this complaint because, having boiled meat so often, a meal differently cooked has become a luxury, and that I ought to have been treated the same as other persons. Again, being in a mess of the number of five statute adults, I have often seen more food brought to the mess-table for us than to a mess double that number. This has provoked petty jealousy amongst my fellow-emigrants, and I trust will convince you that the catering department has been badly mismanaged.
2. I complain that on two occasions I received an order from the Surgeon for raw arrowroot for my sick child; I went to the chief steward, presented my orders, and was informed by him "that there was no more aboard." This has since turned out to be false, for on Saturday last I got another order from the doctor, presented it as before, and was supplied with 1 oz. from a 5 or 7 lb. tin. I was sick about eight days, two of which I was unable to leave my bed. On some of these days the doctor ordered me barley-water to drink at a time when I was in great pain. My wife had no less than seven journeys before she could get it.
  3. I complain with being supplied on eleven occasions with sour bread, and have been unable to eat it, it being, in my opinion, unfit for human food.
  4. I complain of having only one mess-towel served out to my mess (23), and that some weeks after we had been on the water I have ascertained that each mess was entitled to two. What has become of the other one? Also about the scarcity of soap and cleaning utensils.
  5. I complain that during the last week, having had a sick child, no light near my bunk could be obtained after 10 p.m.

Sir,
I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the s.s. "Cambodia," on the 7th instant, with 594 emigrants on board, equal to 494 statute adults; but the particulars of the persons who embarked having only been this day received here, I am unable to transmit the usual lists and other documents relating thereto by this mail. They will, however, be forwarded on the 15th instant.

The "Cambodia" has been fitted throughout from the directions of Mr. T. Hughes Phillips, our own Emigration Officer, and I think that you will find the arrangements made for the comfort of the emigrants an improvement of the plan adopted in the s.s. "Abergeldie" and "Warwick."

Sir,
With further reference to my letter of the 8th instant, advising the sailing of the s.s. "Cambodia," I have now the honor to enclose:—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this Department for passage-money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- 2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Cambodia," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, and showing their various nationalities.
- 3rd. A certificate of Dr. Philip E. Muskett relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- 4th. A list of emigrants, per "Cambodia," who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amount set against their respective names.
- 5th. Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.
- 6th. Copy of Dr. P. E. Muskett's report of his inspection of the emigrants at Plymouth.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 21 April, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 4th instant, of the steamer "Cambodia," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 7th February, thus completing the voyage in fifty-seven days.

The steamer called at the Island of St. Vincent, also at Cape Town for coals.

The contract price is at the rate of £15 for 400 statute adults, and £14 10s. for the remainder.

2. On arrival the steamer was placed in quarantine for the purpose of being fumigated; she was detained at the quarantine station until the 9th instant, a charge for two days demurrage being thereby incurred.

When inspected by the Board of Immigration the vessel presented a very satisfactory appearance as to ventilating arrangements, accommodation, and light, with the exception of the after compartment of the married people's, in which the light was deficient. Also with exception of the berthing in each of five small compartments of the two married couples, a most objectionable arrangement which should not be permitted under any circumstances. A full report on this subject was made on occasion of the arrival of immigrants per s.s. "Warwick."

3. The immigrants consisted of 92 married couples, 154 single men, 82 single women, and 178 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £479, paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,188 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,667 paid by the immigrants or by their friends towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £1,074 14s. 6d. This sum is exclusive of drafts on other Banks, and of moneys of which I was not able to obtain any correct information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred two deaths (of infants) and six births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration on board the steamer all the immigrants expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were as usual received at the Depôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of twenty-eight, who were willing to hire as domestic servants, and who readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 3d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

SUMMARY.

These proceeded to fifty different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the steamer without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Phillip E. Muskett, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties very satisfactorily; he is therefore entitled to receive the promised gratuity of £350 for this his first voyage; also a return passage to England, free of cost, by one of the Orient steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Osborne, that she discharged her duties to his "entire satisfaction." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her third voyage in charge of female immigrants; also, that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to a second-class return passage to England by one of the Orient steamers.

10. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; w.c. constable, £5; 13 constables (each £3), £39; 3 sub-matrons (each £3), £9; hospital assistant, £3; and on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent—extra gratuity to hospital assistant, £2; 1 nurse, £5; 1 assistant nurse, £3; 2 special nurses, £2; 4 s.w. constables, £4. Total, £77.

11. A duly qualified dispenser was appointed by the Agent-General, of whose valuable services the Surgeon-superintendent has expressed himself in the most satisfactory manner; he is therefore entitled, in accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, to receive a second-class return passage to England; also, to receive the promised gratuity of £20 on his personal application to the Agent-General.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the water distilled was excellent in quality and ample in quantity.

13. Dr. Muskett states that no serious diseases occurred during the voyage.

14. The Surgeon-superintendent has noted in his journal that the captain informed him when at St. Vincent that Messrs. Anderson and Anderson and Co. had told him to carry 60 tons of coals on the upper deck, regardless of the inconvenience and annoyance which would thereby be caused to the immigrants; 30 tons of coals were therefore placed on the deck at St. Vincent, but on the protest of the Surgeon-superintendent the captain at once complied with his request, and the coal was removed.

15. The Surgeon-superintendent also reports an incident which occurred during the time that 600 tons of coals were being shipped at Cape Town, pointing to the absolute necessity of making such arrangements for the future as will preclude the possibility of a recurrence of such proceedings on the part of the immigrants.

The stormy weather which prevailed on the arrival at the Cape necessitated the steamer going alongside the wharf to coal, when, notwithstanding that certain precautions appear to have been taken, nearly the whole of the married and of the single men, together with some of the ship's crew, rushed from the steamer into the town. Although very recently small-pox had prevailed at the Cape, no disease appears to have been contracted by the visit of the immigrants to the city, and eventually they returned to the ship, leaving however several of the crew behind. The attention of the Agent-General might be specially invited to a perusal of the journal of the Surgeon-superintendent, which narrates the above-mentioned occurrences.

Sir, Emigrants' Depôt, Plymouth.
 I have the honor to report that I have this day completed my examination of the emigrants about to proceed to Sydney per s.s. "Belgravia," and that I find them in a fit state to undertake the voyage and to obtain their living on arrival there.
 I have, &c.,
 L. R. HUXTABLE,
 Surgeon-superintendent.
 Agent-General for New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 15 May, 1884.
 I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 2nd instant, of the steamer "Belgravia," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 7th March, thus completing the voyage in fifty-six days. This vessel called at the Island of Teneriffe, and at Cape Town, for coal.
 The price per statute adult is at the rate of £15 for 400, £14 10s. for 200 beyond the 400, and at £14 for the remainder.

2. The steamer arrived on Friday night, May 2, received pratique on the following morning; on inspection by the Board of Immigration the vessel presented a fairly clean appearance. The accommodation, ventilation, light, and berthing arrangements were in every way satisfactory. At Cape Town a certain number of saloon passengers were embarked. The Board of Immigration are unanimously and decidedly of opinion that saloon passengers should on no account be permitted to travel on vessels which convey emigrants; such an arrangement is an obvious disadvantage to the emigration service. There is difficulty in preventing communication between such passengers and the emigrants, and the presence of a privileged class (as saloon passengers) threatens to create disaffection amongst the emigrants; there is also danger lest liquor, which is permitted to be sold to saloon passengers, should find its way amongst the crew or emigrants.

The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the supply of porter, as a medical comfort, was "notably deficient, only forty dozen having been shipped, for the voyage, for 733 statute adults," in lieu of a very much larger quantity which should have been shipped, the result being that before arrival at the Cape this very limited supply was exhausted, and although the fact was represented to the agent of the vessel on arrival at the Cape on Sunday, April 6 (when 27 saloon passengers were embarked), his reply was that it was impossible to obtain such supplies on Sunday. As the steamer did not get underway until about midnight Sunday, it is considered that the ship's agent should have detained the vessel for a few hours to admit of the shipment of, at least, a portion of the deficient supply.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 156 married people, 182 single men, 126 single women, and 251 children.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £478 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,856 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £2,334 10s. paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants had with them drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting in all to £1,522. This sum is exclusive of drafts on other Banks and of moneys of which I was unable to obtain any correct information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred two deaths (of infants) and one birth.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the steamer, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them during the voyage.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Depôt, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception only of thirty-one, who hired as domestic servants, and who readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 3d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to fifty-five different localities in the country districts. The remainder left the steamer without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. I have no information as to the amount of gratuity payable to Dr. Huxtable, that being a special arrangement made by the Honorable the Colonial Secretary. I have however to recommend, in accordance with the agreement with the Orient Company, Dr. Huxtable be provided with a return passage in one of their steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Bant, "that her duties were unusually arduous, and were throughout performed in a highly satisfactory manner." Dr. Huxtable adds—"Miss Bant has been long in the service (this being her ninth voyage to this Colony in charge of female immigrants), and is fully deserving of any acknowledgment the Board may think fit to make to her."

The Board therefore recommend that an extra payment of £10 be paid to Miss Bant, beyond the promised gratuity of £40; also, that, in accordance with agreement, she be provided with a second class return passage by one of the Orient steamers.

Also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, one head nurse, £4; one assistant nurse, £1. Total, £80.

11. As in the case of the "Cambodia," a duly qualified dispenser was appointed, of whom the Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably. He is therefore entitled, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, to receive a gratuity of £20, and should he wish to return to England within the limit of two months he is also entitled to receive a second-class passage by one of the Orient steamers.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of the emigrants during the voyage was good. Diarrhoea was the principal disease which occurred.

13. Dr. Huxtable states that the water supply was ample and good.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day completed the examination of the emigrants at the Depot, for the s.s. "Texan."

I find them all in good health, and in a fit state to proceed, with the following exceptions, viz., Walter Taylor and family, and James Pye and family.

There having been several cases of measles in these families lately I consider it undesirable that they should be allowed to embark at present.

I have, &c.,

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 5 June, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 23rd May, of the steamer "Texan," from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 6th April, thus completing the voyage in forty-seven days.

The price per statute adult is at the rate of £15 for 400, and at the rate of £14 10s. for the remainder.

2. The steamer arrived in most excellent order; the immigrants were all in good health; the vessel was therefore not required to go into quarantine, and on examination as to the accommodation provided for the passengers everything was found to be most satisfactory, and the ventilation all that could be desired.

The steamer called at the Island of Teneriffe, and at the Cape of Good Hope, for coals; two saloon passengers were embarked at the Cape.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 67 married couples, 178 single men, 98 single women, and 174 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £294 10s., paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £1,239 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,533 10s. paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting in all to the sum of £925 9s. This sum is exclusive of drafts on other banks, and of moneys in possession of the immigrants, and of which I was unable to obtain any correct information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred two deaths (of infants) and two births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depot, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were, as usual, received at the Depot, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of twenty-four, who hired as domestic servants; these readily obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. 3d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

SUMMARY.

These proceeded to forty-two different localities in the country districts. The remainder left the steamer without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily; I have no information as to the amount of gratuity payable to Dr. M'Master for this his first voyage in charge of immigrants. I have, however, to recommend that, in accordance with the agreement with the Orient Company, Dr. M'Master be provided with a return passage in one of their steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Stevens, that she "discharged her duties in a most faithful manner." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £40 for this her fourth voyage in charge of female immigrants; also, that, in accordance with agreement, she be provided with a second-class return passage in one of the Orient steamers.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the vessel. It is therefore recommended, as in the case of the officers in the previous steamer, viz., on the "Belgravia," they be paid, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, at the rate of 4s. per head on the immigrants landed alive, and that the distribution of such gratuity should be, to the master 1s. 6d. per head, to the chief officer 1s. per head, the purser 1s. per head, and to the storekeeper 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are payable as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General:—To the schoolmaster, £5; w.c. constable, £5; cook, £5; cook's assistant, £3; baker, £3; carpenter, £3; twelve ordinary constables (each £3), £36; three sub-matrons (each £3), £9; lamp trimmer, £3; hospital assistant, £3; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, 1 nurse, £5. Total, £80.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of the emigrants during the voyage was good. Diarrhoea was the principal disease which occurred.

13. Dr. M'Master reports that "the water was particularly good, and almost unlimited in quantity."

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(No. 12, Emigration—84.)

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 15 February, 1884.

I have the honor to inform you that the ship "Bann," of 1,650 tons register, has been chartered for the conveyance of Government emigrants from Glasgow to Sydney, to be ready to embark passengers on the 11th March.

The rate is for every 300 statute adults and upwards, £14.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

New South Wales Government Offices, 5, Westminster Chambers,
London, S.W., 11 March, 1884.

Sir,

With reference to my letter of the 15th February last, announcing the engagement of the "Bann" for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of the charter-party of that vessel.

The ship will sail from the "Clyde" with the passengers described in the accompanying list.

The gratuities mentioned below have been promised, respectively, on condition that the several parties shall have performed their duties to the satisfaction of the Government:—To the Surgeon-superintendent, 11th voyage, £1 on each emigrant landed alive; the matron, 2nd voyage, £25; the master, the first mate, the second mate, and the emigrants' steward, 4s. on each emigrant landed alive, the amount to be apportioned as recommended, subject to the approval of the Government; the schoolmaster, £5; the sub-matrons, each £3; the emigrants' cook, £5; the assistant cook, £3; the baker, £3; the man in charge of the distilling apparatus, £5; the carpenter, £3; the hospital assistant, £3; the water-closet constable, £5; the ordinary mess constables, each £3.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, 5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S.W., 21 March, 1884.

Referring to my despatch of the 15th February last (No. 12, Emigration—84), reporting the chartering of the ship "Bann," I have now the honor to advise you of the sailing of that vessel on the 15th instant, with 447 emigrants on board, equal to 375 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for the passage money of the applicants selected by me. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- (2.) A Return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Bann," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A certificate of Dr. R. Dawes, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation, also of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- (4.) A list of emigrants per "Bann" who obtained at Glasgow bank drafts, payable in Sydney, for the amounts set against their respective names.
- (5.) Copies of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.
- (6.) Copy of Dr. Dawes' report of his inspection of the emigrants at Glasgow.
- (7.) Copies of letters of appointment sent to the surgeon and matron respectively, showing the terms of remuneration and conditions under which such appointments were made.

I desire to invite your attention to the special circumstances under which Mrs. Drew has been appointed as matron, as named in her letter of appointment, a copy of which I attach for your information.

It should be distinctly understood that Mrs. Drew would not be entitled to any return passage money, and has no claim to reappointment as matron. I may remark for your information that at the present time there are six matrons recently returned from Sydney, from each of whom I have had an application, they having been severally recommended for reappointment.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

147 & 149, Three Colt-street, Lime-house, E., 20 February, 1884.

WE hereby certify that we have supplied the ship "Bann," now loading in the East India Docks, with seventy-seven new 400-gallon fresh-water tanks; the same have been properly tested, and found to be perfectly sound and watertight.

J. R. HARPER & Co.,
Tankmakers.

Merchants' Gauger's Office, 3, Vernon Road, Tredgar Road, North Bow, 20 February, 1884.

THIS is to certify that I have gauged for the ship "Bann," lying in the East India Docks, seventy-seven water-tanks, and find they contain 30,800 gallons; also ship's tanks, containing 5,800 gallons, making a total of 36,600 Imperial gallons, equal to 145 tuns 60 gallons.

W. TAYLOR,
Gauger.

15, 16, and 17 Coal Exchange, London, E.C., 21 February, 1884.
 WE hereby certify that we have supplied the ship "Bann," for Sydney, with 60 tons steam coals, for the use of the condenser; 60 tons steam coals for the use of the cooking hearth (120 tons); and that they are all for the use of the immigrants and crew.

GREEN, HOLLAND, & SONS.
 F. R. FISHER.

Smithfield Works, New Road, Blackwall, E., 22 February, 1884.
 WE hereby certify that the distilling apparatus on board ship "Bann," has been thoroughly repaired and put in perfect working order, that it is constructed on Chaplin's patent principle, and that it is capable of producing 700 gallons of pure fresh water per day of twenty-four hours.

Also, that William Bartlett, appointed as engineer, is capable of working and repairing the apparatus.

Also, that the emigrants' cooking and baking apparatus on board is in perfect working order, and in every respect capable of meeting the requirements of 400 persons.

S. W. FORBES & CO.,
 Manufacturer, Winchester and Graveley's Patent.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you I have this day made a thorough examination of the emigrants about to proceed in the ship "Bann" and find the whole of them in good health, and also that I consider them a fine body of robust and strong men in every way suited to the requirements of the Colony. I may likewise add, the women and children appear constitutionally strong, rendering them desirable for Colonial life.

I have, &c.,

RICHARD DAWES,
 Surgeon-superintendent.

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

Sir,

I beg to inform you that the condenser of this ship was worked continuously six days prior to her leaving London, and has also been kept working since her departure from that port. A very satisfactory result has been obtained, and the water is of good quality.

I am, &c.,

JOHN T. CUTTING,
 Master of the ship "Bann."

The Agent-General for New South Wales.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 17th ultimo, of the ship "Bann," from Glasgow, with immigrants, having left that port on the 15th March, 1884, thus completing the voyage in ninety-four days.

The contract price as per charter-party is at the rate of £14 per statute adult.

2. The vessel on arrival was placed in quarantine for two days for general laundry work. On arrival from the quarantine station the vessel was found to be in good order—the arrangements for the comfort of the immigrants were satisfactory—and Dr. Edmonds' patent ventilating apparatus was found to have been of much value.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 71 married couples, 128 single men, 45 single women, and 133 children.

Their nationality is noted in the margin.

The amount of £1,146 was paid by immigrants to the Agent-General in London towards their cost of passage. None were nominated by friends in the Colony.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £794 15s. This sum is irrespective of bank drafts or moneys held by them, and of which I was unable to obtain any information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants.

During the voyage there occurred four births, and three deaths of children two years of age and under.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the ship, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were received into the Depôt as usual, whence all were discharged to their friends, with the exception of twenty-nine, who hired as domestic servants; these readily obtained situations at an average rate of wages of 10s. 10d. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to all who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to thirty-four different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Richard Dawes, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties satisfactorily; it is therefore recommended that he receive the promised gratuity (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) of £1 per head on each emigrant landed alive for this his eleventh voyage in charge of emigrants; also, that he receive the usual certificate entitling him to the further sum of £60 towards the cost of his return passage to England.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Mrs. Drew, "that she was very attentive and kind to those under her charge." It is therefore recommended that she receive the promised gratuity of £25 for this her second voyage in charge of single female emigrants, also that she receive the usual certificate entitling her to a further sum of £35, towards the cost of her return passage to England.

10. The Surgeon-superintendent reports favourably of the master and officers of the ship; it is therefore recommended that the gratuity of 4s. per head on each emigrant landed alive (as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General) be apportioned as follows:—To the master, 1s. 6d. per head; chief officer, 1s. per head; storekeeper, 1s. per head; and the second officer, 6d. per head.

11. Other gratuities are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; cook, £5; assistant cook, £3; baker, £3; engineer, £5; carpenter, £3; hospital assistant, £5; water-closet constable, £3; nine ordinary constables, £3 each; three sub-matrons, £2 each; lamp-trimmer, £3; two nurses, £3 each.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the distilling apparatus provided daily 500 gallons of good water with a consumption of  $\frac{1}{2}$  a ton of coal per day.

13. Dr. Dawes reports that the principal diseases that occurred during the voyage were sea sickness, bronchitis, and cerebral affections.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent-General to The Surgeon-Superintendent.

5, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, S. W., 4 July, 1884.

Sir, I beg to inform you that by direction of the Government of New South Wales, no gratuities will in future be paid to the officers of the ships of the Orient Company carrying emigrants to Sydney. The only gratuities allowed will be as follows:—

To the Schoolmaster,
Sub-matrons,
Hospital Assistant (if any),
Water-closet Constable.
Ordinary Mess Constables.

The amounts payable to each of the above, to be at the same rate as hitherto paid, subject to the parties discharging their duties to your satisfaction.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

5, Westminster Chambers, Westminster, S. W., 11 July, 1884.

Sir, I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the s.s. "Australasian," on the 8th instant, with 640 emigrants on board, equal to 545 statute adults, and to enclose:—

- 1st. Alphabetical list of emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations; together with the total sum received in this Department for passage-money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received, where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony, on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the Bank of New South Wales.
- 2nd. A return of the number of emigrants embarked in the "Australasian," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- 3rd. A certificate of Dr. P. E. Muskett, relative to his examination of the emigrants before embarkation; also, of the medicine-chest, provisions, and accommodation provided for their use during the voyage.
- 4th. A list of emigrants per "Australasian," who obtained at Plymouth bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amounts set against their respective names.
- 5th. Copies of certificates relative to condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water, and coals.
- 6th. Copy of Dr. Muskett's report of his examination of the emigrants at Plymouth depôt.
- 7th. Copies of letters of appointment sent to the matrons, showing the terms of remuneration, and conditions under which such appointments were made.

In consequence of the large number of single women I have deemed it advisable to send two matrons in the "Australasian."

The large number of young children in this, as in other ships, arises from the cases nominated in the Colony, principally with reference to women joining their husbands—no limit apparently being placed there on the numbers,—whilst on this side I am particular in rejecting families having a large number of very young children.

The practice of accepting nominations for persons of ineligible occupations is also, in my opinion, open to a similar objection, while my officers here act strictly in accordance with the regulations, and approve only of persons whose trades and avocations, as I am from time to time advised, are in demand in the Colony; nominees are often described in their passage certificates under occupations which otherwise would operate against their being selected on this side for approval. I am further advised that the nominations become contracts, and consequently leave me no alternative than to grant the nominees assisted passages, provided they comply with the requisite conditions in other respects.

I have, &c.,
SAUL SAMUEL.

Sir, Government Emigration Depôt, Plymouth, 7 July, 1884.

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day completed the inspection of the emigrants proceeding by the s.s. "Australasian" at the Government depôt, after having made a careful and individual examination of the entire number.

I found the whole number, with the exception of a woman and three children, named Greenbaum, to be in a healthy condition, and capable of earning their livelihood in the Colony.

The children of the woman referred to presented a sickly appearance, and having come from the neighbourhood of London, where small-pox was prevailing, I thought it advisable to detain them till their condition was improved.

Surgeon-Superintendent.

Plymouth, 8 July, 1884.

THIS is to certify that I have put on board the s.s. "Australasian" 1,800 gallons of fresh water.

GEO. DAVIS.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Immigration Office, Sydney, 8 September, 1884.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 21st ultimo, of the steamship "Australasian" from Plymouth, with immigrants, having left that port on the 8th July, 1884, thus completing the voyage in forty-four days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £15 per statute adult for 400, and at the rate of £14 10s. for the remaining statute adults.

2. The vessel on arrival was placed in quarantine for forty-eight hours for general laundry work and fumigation. On arrival at Neutral Bay the vessel was found to be in perfect order; all arrangements for the comfort of the immigrants were most satisfactory. The steamer called at the Island of Teneriffe for coal.

3. The immigrants by this vessel consisted of 75 married couples, 79 single men, 244 single women, and 167 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £896 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £728 10s. was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,624 10s. paid by the immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £491 15s. 6d. This sum is irrespective of bank drafts or moneys held by them, and of which I was unable to obtain any information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the immigrants. During the voyage there occurred one birth and one death, that of a child two years of age.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the single women at the Depôt, and of the married people and single men on board the steamer, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The single women were, as usual, received into the Depôt, whence all were almost immediately discharged to their friends, with the exception of 105, who were hired as domestic servants on the second day after arrival at an average rate of wages of 10s. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to those who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to forty-two different localities. The remainder of the immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, Phillip Muskett, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily; he is therefore entitled to receive the gratuity of 10s. per head on the 640 immigrants landed; also, to be provided with a first-class return passage to England in one of the Orient line of steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports of the matron, Miss Chicken, that she discharged her duties most satisfactorily. In view of the very large number of 244 single women placed under her charge, and since she has invariably given every satisfaction in her management of the female immigrants, the Board of Immigration desire to recommend that a further gratuity of £10 be granted to Miss Chicken in addition to the gratuity of £40, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General; also, that, as usual, she be provided with a second-class passage to England in one of the Orient line of steamers.

10. Other gratuities as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General are payable as follows:— To the assistant matron, £25; schoolmaster, £5; w.c.-constable, £5; thirteen ordinary constables (each £3), £39; four sub-matrons (each £3), £12; hospital assistant, £3; also, on the special recommendation of the Surgeon-Superintendent, one hospital nurse, £5; assistant nurse, £2. Total, £96.

11. The Agent-General specially appointed a Dispenser to act under the Surgeon-superintendent, of whom Dr. Muskett has reported that he discharged his duties most satisfactorily. It is therefore recommended that, in accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, the promised gratuity of £30 be paid to him; also, that he be granted a certificate entitling him to receive a further sum of £35 towards the cost of his return passage to England within three months from the date of his arrival, payable at the office of the Agent-General in London.

12. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that there was ample supply of distilled water, and that it was excellent in quality.

13. Dr. Muskett reports that the principal diseases which occurred during the voyage, were cough, catarrh, and diarrhœa. No case of any infectious disease occurred.

IMMIGRATION.

(PETITION AGAINST—CHAIRMAN OF PUBLIC MEETING, MASONIC HALL, SYDNEY.)

---

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 15 January, 1884.

---

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of F. B. Dixon, as Chairman of a Public Meeting held in the Masonic Hall,
Sydney, Tuesday, 4th December, 1883,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That the system of assisted Immigration as adopted in New South Wales is unjust, as it compels a large proportion of the people of the Colony to contribute funds to bring out a class of persons who compete with them in their walks of life.

That the said system is a violation of the Free-trade policy of New South Wales, as it protects the capitalist against the labourer. That the said system unduly interferes with the law of supply and demand.

That the said system is unnecessary, as the natural attractions of the Colony are sufficient in themselves to bring all the population that it can profitably absorb; and further, that the labour-market for artisans is greatly overstocked, and the continuance of the system of assisted Immigration is likely to inflict hardship and suffering not only upon those who are brought out under it, but also upon thousands who are already here.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will at once stop the system of assisted Immigration for the reasons above stated.

And your Petitioners will ever humbly pray.

FRANCIS B. DIXON,
Chairman of Public Meeting.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Officers and Members of the Trades and Labour Council of New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That the system of assisted Immigration as adopted in New South Wales is unjust, as it compels a large proportion of the people of the Colony to contribute funds to bring out a class of persons who compete with them in their several callings.

That the said system is a violation of the Free-trade policy of New South Wales, as it protects the capitalist against the labourer.

That the said system unduly interferes with the law of supply and demand.

That the said system is unnecessary, as the natural attractions of the Colony are sufficient in themselves to bring all the population that it can profitably absorb ; and further, that the labour-market for artisans is greatly overstocked, and the continuance of the system of assisted Immigration is likely to inflict hardship and suffering not only on those who are brought out under it but also upon thousands who are already here.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will at once stop the system of assisted Immigration for the reasons above stated.

And your Petitioners will ever humbly pray.

(PETITION AGAINST—RESIDENTS OF SYDNEY.)

---

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 29 January, 1884.

---

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

The humble Petition of the undermentioned citizens of Sydney and its Suburbs,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That the vote for assisted immigration is unfair in character, as it compels the labouring classes to contribute to a fund which is used for the purpose of bringing competitors for their employment.

That the said vote is opposed to the free trade policy of the Colony, and is an undue interference with the law of supply and demand.

That the operation of the said vote is unsatisfactory, as it is the means of bringing to the Colony a number of persons who are totally unfitted for the work of colonization.

That the present circumstances of New South Wales do not justify the introduction of more population, unless the people who come are provided with the means for opening the lands, and working the industries of the Colony.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will, in its wisdom, reject the vote for assisted immigration when it next comes on for consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of Electors of Balmain, in Public Meeting assembled:—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioners protest against the expenditure of public money for immigration purposes, as it is an injustice to the wage class of the Colony.

Your Petitioners, from their intimate knowledge of the labour market, confidently assert that every avenue of labour is overflowing with applicants.

Your Petitioners would therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House would strike out the £150,000 for immigration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 4 March, 1884.

---

To the Honorable the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, and the Members of that Honorable House, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned Inhabitants of Clifton and District,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That on the Estimates for the year 1884 appears the sum of £75,000 towards assisted immigration.

2. That viewing the present state of the Colony's finances, as shown by the Treasurer in his Financial Statement as laid before the House of Parliament, it is rendered absolutely necessary that the expenditure be reduced, in order to place the Colony on a sound footing in the eyes of the world.

3. That your Petitioners consider that, owing to the present state of labour in New South Wales, the unexpended balance of £60,000 from last year's Estimates is more than sufficient to supply the labour market as it at present exists.

4. That your Petitioners pray that Honorable Members will see fit to reject the amount of £75,000 for immigration, as at present on the Estimates.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of Residents of Parramatta, in public meeting assembled,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That your Petitioners regard with deep and earnest concern the fact that so many of all labouring classes are at present out of employment.

2. That assisted immigration will in a large measure increase this evil.

3. That this meeting strongly protests against any further expenditure of the public money for the purpose of assisted immigration.

We therefore pray your Honorable House to refuse to sanction any further expenditure of any public money for the purpose of assisted immigration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

The Petition of Residents of Newtown, in public meeting assembled, on the 7th March, 1884,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That your Petitioners regard with deep and grave concern the fact that so many of all labouring classes are at present out of employment.
2. That assisted immigration will help in a large measure to increase this evil.
3. That this meeting strongly protests against any further expenditure of the public money for the purpose of assisted immigration.

We therefore pray your Honorable House to refuse to sanction the expenditure of any public moneys for the purpose of assisted immigration.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the Residents of Sydney, in public meeting, held at the Statue, King-street, on the 16th March, 1884,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That, in the opinion of this meeting, the system of assisted Immigration pursued by the Government of this Colony is unjust and oppressive to the working-classes, and unwarranted by the present state of the labour market, and should therefore be abolished without further delay.

We would therefore implore your Honorable House not to allow any of the public moneys to be expended for the purpose of assisted Immigration.

And your Petitioners will, as in duty bound, ever pray.

In conclusion, I would remark that the following documents forming part of the correspondence are not included in that now forwarded, for reasons stated, viz. :—

1. Note from Principal Under-Secretary to Commandant, 15/10/78. Commandant's minute on same to Colonel Roberts, same date, referring to the filling of vacancies in the Permanent Artillery, were accidentally destroyed when being copied.
2. Proceedings of Board of Examination held in October, 1880, forwarded to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief on 19th October, 1880, applied for to Colonial Secretary's Office, by letter dated 9th May last, have not been transmitted to me.
3. Proceedings of three Regimental Boards held in the Permanent Artillery, on Bedding, Rifles, and Accounts, No. 1 Battery, together with Certificate of Settlement of Accounts, No. 1 Battery, forwarded to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, with letters dated respectively 25th October, 1880, and 4th February, 1881, applied for to Colonial Secretary's Office, 29th May, and 11th August, 1883, have not been transmitted to me.
4. Letter from the Governor and Commander-in-Chief to Sir Henry Parkes, dated January 18th, 1881, and letter from Sir Henry Parkes to the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, dated 4th February, 1881, referring to military examination, cannot be traced.

Garrison Order.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 22 Aug., 1878.

A BOARD of Officers, consisting of Major Christie, Major of Brigade, President, and Majors Spalding and Airey, New South Wales Artillery, Members, will assemble at 10 a.m. on Thursday, the 29th instant, at a place to be hereafter named, for the examination of Lieutenants of the New South Wales Artillery, as to their fitness for promotion.

The subjects of examination will be as follows :—

- (a) Regimental duties.
- (b) Military law
- (c) Drill.
- (d) Artillery subjects.

By Command,
W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Major,
Major of Brigade.

Garrison Order.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 27 Aug., 1878.

THE Board of Officers for the examination of the Subalterns, New South Wales Artillery, alluded to in the Garrison Order of the 22nd instant, will assemble in the Officers' Mess-room, Victoria Barracks.

The New South Wales Artillery will furnish the necessary stationery, chairs, &c., and an orderly for the Board.

By Command,
W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Major,
Major of Brigade.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

Your Excellency,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 10 Oct., 1878.

By desire of the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery, I have the honor to submit for your Excellency's consideration certain correspondence (as per margin) * having reference to the promotion and examination of the subalterns of that corps.

See page 3.

Your Excellency will note, that in the beginning of August last, the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery forwarded and recommended the application of Lieutenants Taunton and Mackenzie for promotion to the rank of captain. Having in view the fact that the officers in question were junior to Lieutenants H. Le Patourel, A. Le Patourel, F. B. Baynes, and P. L. Murray, and that none of the subalterns had passed the test examination required by the Queen's Regulations, I conceived that the carrying out of these recommendations would have been illegal under clause 5 of the Military and Naval Forces Regulation Act, as also contrary to the custom of the Service, and I therefore minuted and returned the application for the further consideration of the Officer Commanding Artillery.

This action on my part led to the appointment of a Garrison Board, as required by the Queen's Regulations, for the examination of such subalterns as desired promotion; and the Board in conformity with my instructions conducted the examination, and duly forwarded to me the examination papers, together with their report. A copy of the latter was sent, on the 18th ult., to the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery, who thereupon, in letter of following day, requested, for certain reasons, that the examination papers might be submitted to him. This course I did not feel justified in adopting, as will be seen by terms of my letter of the 20th ult. On the 26th following, the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery again urged that the papers should be submitted to him, quoting generally in support paras. 57 and 58, section 4 of the Queen's Regulations. I then, under blank cover memo. 27/9/78, requested to be informed of the precise grounds upon which the request was based, and in default of that information I definitely regretted my inability to furnish the papers—hence this reference to your Excellency. I need hardly say that had the Officer Commanding Artillery, in response to my invitation, shown that the Queen's Regulations favoured his view of the matter, I should have complied with his wishes, having no possible interest beyond that of doing what I considered to be my duty.

In

In conclusion, I would remark that it appears to me that the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery is not justified in basing his complaint on a general quotation of certain paras. of the Queen's Regulations which in themselves embody various points, without indicating their precise application to the question at issue, and which is indeed now necessary in order to enable me to give a comprehensive reply; and further, inasmuch as the onus probandi rests with the officer taking exception to the official acts of another, I would respectfully urge that, prior to any endeavour on my part to sustain the position I have thought fit to assume, your Excellency will be pleased to require the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery to point out precisely the application of such parts of paras. 57 and 58, section 4 of the Queen's Regulations, as will justify him in taxing my action as inconsistent with the same.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Col.,

Commandant.

P.S.—With your Excellency's permission, I would propose to remark on Colonel Roberts' letter of this date as soon as I am in a position to submit the whole case for your Excellency's further consideration.

J.S.R.

Colonel Richardson,

I do not think Colonel Roberts is warranted in applying for the examination papers to be submitted to him. The decision of the Board in the case of the officers who have passed is not open to review by him, and must be accepted as final. If his object is to ascertain the shortcomings of such of his officers as have failed, he can himself institute an examination for the purpose.

Lieutenant Taunton to Colonel Roberts.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, 1/8/78.

I have the honor to request that you will forward and recommend this my application to be promoted to the rank of captain and adjutant.

I would urge as my reasons for applying that in the Royal Artillery the position of adjutant being considered one of great importance, is always held by a captain, and as a lieutenant I have not the weight which the senior rank would give me in the difficult position in which I am often placed. With one exception, I am many years the senior—counting my Imperial service, viz., eleven years (two years of which were active service in the field)—of any subaltern in the Permanent Force, and I have passed all the necessary examinations for the rank of captain, which rank I would now be holding had I remained in my regiment. I would further urge that all the adjutants of the Volunteers being captains, it would be only just that I should be put on the same footing. I have held the appointment of acting-adjutant since Sept. last.

I have, &c.,

J. E. O. TAUNTON, Lt.

Forwarded to the Commandant.

I beg to recommend this application, as I am of opinion that the adjutant of this force should hold the rank of captain, as is the usual custom in the Imperial Service; moreover, I understand that in the proposed reorganization of the auxiliary forces the adjutants are to hold the rank of captain, and would from this fact become senior to the adjutant of the Permanent Force. The testimonials of this officer, also, are of such a character as to strengthen my recommendation, even without considering his services in the Imperial Army. I would recommend that his pay should be at the rate he at present receives, viz., £266 per annum, and that the establishment should not be increased.

1/8/78.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

The Officer commanding N.S.W. Art.—

Prior to submitting this application I would draw the attention of the Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art. to the establishment for Garrison Brigades of the Royal Artillery, issued with Army Circulars of April last, by which it appears that an adjutant is only allowed to a brigade of nineteen batteries, which number on an average 2,300 of all ranks; I therefore doubt whether anything beyond an acting appointment, as at present obtains, should be permitted in connection with the N.S.W. Art. There is also another point to be considered, viz., that this promotion would place Lieut. Taunton over the heads of five officers now senior to himself in the corps; and I accordingly think before any promotions are carried out amongst the subalterns some system should be indicated which, whilst studying the peculiar conditions of the Colonial Service, shall, as far as possible, be in accord with the custom of the Imperial Service and the provisions of such Acts, &c., as the N.S.W. Art. may be subject to. The Officer Commanding Artillery will understand that in making the above remarks I do not in any way question the fitness of Lieutenant Taunton for promotion.

J.S.R., Col.,

2/8/78.

Comdt.

To Commandant, with covering letter dated Oct. 10, 1878.—C. F. R., Col., 10/10/78.

Extract

Extract from Brigade Office Register.

No. 78/1346. Registered 5/8/78. From Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery, dated 2/8/78.

Subject.—Lieutenant Mackenzie applying for promotion.

The Commandant,—I would recommend this promotion subject to the usual Imperial custom of passing the necessary examination, as this officer's testimonials were very good.—C.F.R., Col., 2/8/78.

Returned to Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery, 5/8/78 with following minute:—

If this promotion is carried out, it will place Lieutenant Mackenzie over the heads of four officers at present senior to him in the Artillery. It appears to me that the question raised as regards the promotion recommended in Lieut. Taunton's case will also partially here apply, and therefore that the whole question of promotion of subalterns of the Artillery should have very careful consideration.

3/8/78.—B.C.

J.S.R., Col., Commandant.

Commandant's Instructions to Board of Examiners.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 28 August, 1878.

The President of the Board for the Examination of Subalterns, New South Wales Artillery,—

1. The enclosed questions on drill and artillery subjects have been prepared by my direction by the Officer Commanding the Artillery Forces, and those on Regimental Duties and Military Law by the Major of Brigade, and will together form the subject of examination of such Subalterns of the New South Wales Artillery as may present themselves for examination as to their fitness for promotion to the rank of Captain.

2. The Board in the first instance will be good enough to assess points in connection with each question, the maximum number to be gained on any one question being 10.

3. The candidates will, in addition to practically demonstrating (to the satisfaction of the Artillery portion of the Board) their proficiency in Standing-gun drill—Traversing-platform drill (80 pdrs.)—Field Gun drill—Company drill—and Heavy R.M.L. Gun drill, be required to have gained on each subject half the number of points possible, in order to be reckoned as qualified for promotion.

4. At the conclusion of the examination the Board will forward their report, specifying those officers who, in their opinion, are fit for promotion, accompanied by the written answers to questions, and a certificate to the effect that the candidates have not received any assistance from books or other sources.

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Report of Board of Examiners.

PROCEEDINGS of a Board of Officers, assembled at Sydney, New South Wales, on the 29th August, 1878, by order of the Commandant, bearing date the 22nd August, 1878, to report on the fitness for promotion of the Lieutenants of New South Wales Artillery.

President—Major Christie, Major of Brigade.

Members—Major Spalding, N.S.W.A., Major Airey, N.S.W.A.

The Board having assembled pursuant to the above order, proceeds to read the Commandant's instructions as conveyed in his memorandum of the 28th August, addressed to the President.

The Board subsequently sat on the following dates for the purpose of carrying out the duties assigned to it, viz., on the 29th and 30th August, and the 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 16th, September.

The following officers of the New South Wales Artillery appeared before the Board:—Lieutenants H. Le Patourel, A. Le Patourel, Baynes, Murray, Mackenzie, Taunton, and Nathan.

The Board finds that the only officers who have come up to the standard laid down in para. 3 of the Commandant's memo. of the 28th August last are Lieutenants Murray and Mackenzie.

The Board certifies that none of the candidates have received, to their knowledge, any assistance from books or other sources, during the hours the several portions of the examination have been conducted in.

The Board has further to report that, considering questions 7 and 22 in the subject of "Regimental Duties" inapplicable, for reasons which it appears unnecessary to detail, others were substituted for them by the Major of Brigade. Question 21 being also considered inapplicable was, with the assent of the convening authority, struck out, none other being substituted for it.

The copies of the questions asked on the various subjects are forwarded herewith, as also the answers in writing as given by each candidate.

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, M. of B.,
President.

WARNER SPALDING, Major, N.S.W.A.,
GEO. J. AIRY, Major, N.S.W.A., Members.

Sydney, 16th September, 1878.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of proceedings of a Board of officers held to report on the fitness for promotion of certain subaltern officers of the N. S. W. Artillery, from which it appears that only two officers came up to the standard laid down in para. 3 of the Commandant's memorandum (copy of which has not reached me).

19 September, 1878.

I would beg to point out that paras. 57 and 58, section 4, of the Queen's Regulations have not been carried out by the Board, excepting such portion as refers to "the candidate not having received any assistance from books, &c."

As I have not yet seen the answers to questions forwarded to the Board by me, I am unable to form an opinion as to how far each officer has displayed the requisite knowledge of the subjects under examination, or his ability to impart that knowledge to others.

Under these circumstances I have the honor to request that I may be furnished with the examination papers of the candidates and their answers; also the number of marks awarded to each subject, as well as a confidential report from the Board as to the abilities of each officer when practically tested in the field, stating particularly whether the officer is fully qualified in every respect to command men in the field.

The information asked for by me is required to enable me to suggest what necessary steps should be taken with reference to the filling up of the vacancies now existing—viz., the captains' appointments in the N. S. W. Artillery.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

The Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 20 September, 1878.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, on the subject of the examination of officers of the New South Wales Artillery for promotion, I have the honor to remark that it appears to me the Board has complied with the requirements of the Service, as laid down in the Queen's Regulations. I am also of opinion that your request to be furnished with the examination papers would, if complied with, be inconsistent with the custom of the Service, and the spirit of the Regulations in question.

I have to enclose copy of the instructions to the Board as required.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

26 September, 1878.

In answer to your letter 78-583, of 20th instant, I would again beg to refer to paras. 57 and 58, section 4, of the Queen's Regulations, which point out that "the portion of examination which can be best carried on in writing will be conducted by questions prepared by the Deputy Adjutant-General, R.A., &c."

"That the Board will forward their report, together with the written answers to the questions furnished by the Deputy Adjutant-General, R.A. (certifying, &c., &c.), through the General or other officer commanding, to the Adjutant-General. The answers to the questions on military law will be sent to the Director-General of Military Education."

From the above-quoted direction it appears to me that the report on written artillery questions should have been forwarded on to me, unless the instructions to the Board overrule the Queen's Regulations on this subject.

I beg respectfully to point out that as I was (eventually) directed to furnish the artillery written questions, that in my opinion it would not be inconsistent with the custom of the Service to furnish me with the examination papers, nor would the spirit of the Regulations be violated by the adoption of this course.

I would again add that, prior to being called upon to suggest what course should be adopted in recommending steps to be taken to fill the posts of captains of the N. S. W. Artillery, I would wish to be in possession of more information with regard to the qualifications exhibited by the officers who presented themselves for examination.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

As I am still of the opinion noted in my letter of the 20th instant, perhaps the Officer Commanding N. S. W. Art. will be good enough to specify the precise grounds upon which he bases his opinion that the proceedings of the Board should be forwarded to him.—J.S.R., Colonel, Commandant, 27/9/78.—B.C.

I cannot urge more precise reasons than those advanced in my letters of 26th and 19th of September last, and I much regret to appear to be unduly pressing for a re-consideration of this question, although I believe the request I make is in accordance with the spirit of the Imperial Army Regulations. I am sure it will be found most conducive to the interests of the Public Service that all matters of a professional character relating to the artillery should be referred to me for advice, considering the fact that I am the only artillery officer in the local forces of this Colony. In the present case I desire to see the examination papers in order to ascertain how far (as I have previously stated) the officers have qualified in the artillery examination.—C.F.R., Colonel, 4/10/78.

The Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 4 October, 1878.

In reply to your minute of 4/10/78, written in reply to mine of 27/9/78, endorsed on your letter of the 26th ultimo, No. 2348-78, I have to inform you that no precise reasons having been given by you to show that the course adopted by me relative to the papers sent in by the Board which recently sat to to examine certain subalterns of the New South Wales Artillery for promotion, is inconsistent with my duty as Commandant, or contrary to the usages of the Service, I regret I do not feel myself justified in assenting to your request that the papers in question should be submitted to you.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

8 October, 1878.

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 4th October; and having noted the contents, respectfully request that the whole of the correspondence may be forwarded for the consideration of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I would respectfully request also that the position I hold in the Permanent Force as Colonel Commanding the Artillery of New South Wales, with the duties and responsibilities connected therewith, may be pointed out to me, as my exact position seems to me to be hardly defused.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
Colonel.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 9 Oct., 1878.

MEMO.—The Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery will be good enough to return to this office without delay, Lieut. Taunton and Mackenzie's applications for promotion to the rank of captain in the New South Wales Artillery, dated 1st and 2nd August last, returned on the 2nd and 5th of that month.

By Command,

W.B.B.C., Major,
Major of Brigade.

The Commandant,

The letters asked for in this memo. were not marked as to be returned. Lieut. Mackenzie's was handed to him, and has been, I understand, destroyed. Lt. Taunton's will be obtained, and when the correspondence is copied, will be forwarded in due course. Under these circumstances, I beg to point out that in my opinion this memo. is of an unusually peremptory nature. Perhaps this is not intended.

9/10/78.

C.F.R., Col.

The memo. in question was certainly not intended to be in any way peremptory, but was supposed to be couched in the usual official terms. The reason for urging the immediate return of the documents was, that no delay might occur in submitting the correspondence having reference to the promotion and examination of subalterns of the N. S. W. Art. to His Excellency the Governor, as required by the Officer Commanding N. S. W. Art.

10/10/78.

J.S.R., Col.,

Commandant.

Noted and returned.—C.F.R., Col., 10/10/78.

My reason for objecting to the nature of memo. was that it conveyed on the face of it an intimation of a certain amount of neglect in not forwarding papers which had actually not been called for.

10/10/78.

C.F.R., Col.

---

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

10 October, 1878.

In forwarding the application of Lieut. Taunton, called for in memo. of 9th instant, which had been retained, not having been directed "to be returned," I have the honor to submit the memo. which I had prepared in answer to the last, dated 2/8/78, but which, owing to the examination for promotion being ordered soon after, was not entered on the correspondence, as it was deemed advisable to await the result.

"The establishment referred to, issued in Army Circulars for April, is founded on the new scheme of mobilization of Army Corps, and I am under the impression that adjutants will be appointed for each brigade of five batteries or more, both at home and abroad, as it is not intended that the whole brigade of nineteen batteries shall serve in England, or at one station, at one time.

"With regard to Lieut. Taunton passing over the heads of five officers senior to him, I do not consider this of much importance so far as it applies to this Force, more especially when the services of the five are considered and compared with the Imperial services of this officer. Lieut. H. Le Patourel served for about three years in the Imperial Service, Lieut. A. Le Patourel in the Militia for two years or so; Lieut. Baynes never served in any Force as an officer; Lieut. Murray's experience is only connected with the Volunteer Artillery of these Colonies; nor have any of these officers passed the examination which Lieut. Taunton has, viz., for Captain; 1st class extra Certificate Musketry, which no officer in this Colony holds, as well as the extra examination, viz.: Especial Army Examination, which is considered necessary at the present time in the Imperial Service. I would also point out that the services of these five officers, excepting Lieut. H. Le Patourel, do not extend over a period of two years.

"My reason for recommending this promotion is to further the interests of the Service by obtaining the best qualified officer for the responsible position of adjutant; and I may again refer to my memo. of 1/8/78 on the comparative ranks of adjutants of the auxiliary Forces, and this Force. I would also point out that should any case occur in which the officers of the auxiliary Forces and those of the Permanent Art. should meet in action, that from the fact of some holding commissions as captains, they, although without any actual experience (possibly), would take command over the heads of officers who had proved themselves when in action and under fire.

"None of the officers were compelled to pass an Entrance Examination on appointment, although this, if you remember, was recommended, and consequently those positions now held by seniority are merely the result of luck.

"I further beg to inform you that Lieut. Mackenzie cannot find his application, which was returned to him.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

The Commandant to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 14 October, 1878.

I have the honor to inform you that, in accordance with the desire expressed in your letter of the 8th instant, No. 30-78, the correspondence having reference to the examination and promotion of the subalterns of the corps under your command was duly submitted to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, who has been pleased to convey his decision thereon in minute to the following effect:—

"I do not think Colonel Roberts is warranted in applying for the examination papers to be submitted to him. The decision of the Board in the case of the officers who have passed is not open to review by him, and must be accepted as final. If his object is to ascertain the shortcomings of such of his officers as have failed, he can himself institute an examination for the purpose."

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Note from Principal Under-Secretary to Commandant, as to promotion of officers, 15/10/78.

Commandant's minute on same, 15/10/78, to Colonel Roberts.

The Commandant,

It appears to me, from the answer sent to my letter of the 8th instant, that the recommendation of officers for promotion has been taken out of my hands, the Board reporting Lieut. Murray and Lieut. Mackenzie are the only two officers qualified. Of these two Lieut. Murray is the senior.—C.F.R., Col., 17/10/78.

---

The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art.,—

Neither the customs of the Service nor the correspondence in question warrant, in my opinion, this interpretation. The Board, beyond judging of certain professional qualifications, does not relieve an officer commanding a corps from the responsibility of maintaining as far as practicable the establishment of officers and recommending them or otherwise for promotion, he being by his position acquainted with their qualifications or otherwise outside the professional matters entertained by the Board.—J.S.R., Col., Commandant, 17/10/78.

---

The Commandant,—

My previous minute points out which officer is the senior qualified one, and I believe the customs of the Service point to the senior officers obtaining this promotion by rotation. I am not aware that I have in any way sought to be relieved of the responsibility of maintaining the establishment of officers, and I beg again to refer to the minute of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, which states that the decision of the Board must be accepted by him (viz., myself) as final. There are three officers senior to Lieut. Murray who failed to qualify, and I respectfully beg to adhere to my opinion that the papers of examination should have been submitted to me, for the reasons previously stated.—C.F.R., Col., 18/10/78.

Extract from Brigade Office Register.

No. 78/1864. Registered.—22/10/78. From Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art., 18/10/78. Lieutenant Mackenzie's application for promotion to captain.

RETURNED to Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art., 22/10/78, with following minute:—I presume this is a repetition of previous recommendation endorsed on Lieut. Mackenzie's application for promotion under date 2/8/78, and will have the effect if carried out of placing that officer over the head of one of his seniors, viz., Lieut. Murray, who has also passed the qualifying examination for promotion. Is this intended? If so, some reason should be given for this procedure prior to submission to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

J.S.R., Col.,

Commandant.

---

The Commandant,—

This is not intended to place Lieut. Mackenzie over the head of Lieut. Murray, as I pointed out in my memo. of 17/10/78 that the latter was the senior officer, in reply to note of the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to yourself.—C.F.R., Col., 22/10/78.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art.,—

Under these circumstances it will be necessary before this promotion can be carried out that the Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery should recommend the promotion of Lieut. Murray, provided there is no objection, in which latter case, as before pointed out, objection should be stated.—J.S.R., Colonel, Commandant, 22/10/78.

The Principal Under-Secretary to The Commandant.

Dear Colonel Richardson, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 22/10/78.
The Colonial Secretary is very desirous of receiving the names of officers for appointment to the vacancies in the Artillery; will you therefore be so kind as to expedite the matter.

Yours, &c.,
M. R. ALLAN.

It is requested the Officer Comg. N.S.W. Art. will give immediate attention to this matter.—By Command, W.B.B.C., M. of B., 22/10/78.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, N.S.W., 24 Oct., 1878.

In accordance with memo. dated 22/10/78, with reference to the promotion of officers to the rank of captain in the New South Wales Artillery, as it has been decided that I am not to have access to the papers of the officers who lately presented themselves for examination, and only two officers, viz., Lieut. Murray and Lieut. Mackenzie, having been reported as qualified by the Board of Officers appointed to examine, I beg to recommend that the usual custom prevalent at home be followed, and that these officers be promoted according to their seniority, viz., Lieut. Pembroke Lathrop Murray to the first vacancy, and Lieut. Henry Douglas Mackenzie to the next.

For reasons above stated, I am unable to recommend another officer for the vacancy which must occur soon, viz., the third captaincy in the Force, although I believe that there are one or two who passed sufficiently well to warrant their promotion without another examination.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel,
Comg. Art. Forces.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

Your Excellency,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 24 Oct., 1878.

I have the honor to forward the applications of Lieutenants Pembroke Lathrop Murray and Henry Douglas Mackenzie, of the N.S.W. Art., for promotion to the rank of Captain, the same being recommended by the Officer Commanding that Corps. The firstnamed officer will fill the vacancy which has always existed since the formation of the 3rd Battery; and the latter officer, the vacancy caused by the death of Captain Bacchus.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

No. 2.

Garrison Order.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 11 March, 1879.

A BOARD will assemble early in April to examine and report upon the qualifications of such Subaltern Officers of the New South Wales Artillery as are desirous of passing for the rank of Captain.

The subjects of examination will be as follows, viz. :—

(a) Regimental duties	...	...	...	...	(25 questions)
(b) Military Law	...	...	...	...	(25 " )
(c) Drill	...	...	...	...	(25 " )
(d) Artillery subjects	...	...	...	...	(50 " )

The candidates will, in addition to the above, practically demonstrate (to the Artillery portion of the Board) their proficiency in the following gun drills, viz. :—Standing carriage, Traversing-platform (80-par.), heavy R.M.L. Gun, Field Gun, Armstrong Gun, and Company drill.

The questions in subjects (a) and (b) will be prepared by the Brigade Major, those in (c) and (d) by the Officer Comg. Art. Forces.

By Command,
M. MURPHY, Major,
Act. Major of Brigade.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, 12 March, 1879.

With reference to Garrison Orders of yesterday's date, directing the Officer Commanding the Artillery to prepare the questions under heads (c) and (d) for the forthcoming examination of subalterns desirous of qualifying for the rank of captain, I have the honor respectfully to point out that the questions on these subjects should be prepared by the Board; as on a previous occasion, after the preparation of questions I was not, although actually the examining officer, permitted to see the answers thereto, or to estimate the value of such answers as were given to my questions.

I beg to request, therefore, that the Board of Examiners be directed to prepare the questions for examination under heads (c) and (d).

I have, &c.,
CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel,
Commanding Artillery Forces.

I think the Officer Commanding Artillery views this matter in an erroneous light. The Queen's Regulations, paragraph 57, section 4, distinctly lay down that in the Imperial Service an officer (D.A.G.R.A.) not on the Board shall prepare the Artillery questions; so it is evident that, if the custom of the Service is as far as practicable to be observed, these questions cannot be prepared by the Board. The reasons given by the Officer Commanding Artillery in support of his request, viz., that he, as examining officer, was not permitted to see the proceedings of the Board or estimate the value of the answers given to his questions in a former instance, do not appear to me to constitute good grounds for desiring to be relieved of the duty of preparing the questions; for, reasoning by analogy, it is plain by the Queen's Regulations, that the officer who prepared these questions (D.A.G.R.A.) is neither considered an examining officer in the sense claimed by the Officer Commanding Artillery, as regards himself, nor are the proceedings of the Board (in which are included answers given to his questions) submitted to him, but to a totally different officer.

For many reasons I should much regret if this matter should again form the subject of controversial correspondence between the two senior officers of the Force, and more especially so, when it should be borne in mind that both His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the Ministerial Head of the Department have already characterized as untenable, the position assumed by the Officer Commanding Artillery on a previous occasion, in respect to a similar question to that now under consideration.—J.S.R., Colonel, Commandant, B.C., 14/3/79. Confidential.

As Commanding Officer of the Artillery, I should presume that, in the absence of any Staff Officers of Artillery holding the position of Deputy Adjutant-General or Adjutant-General, that the questions should be submitted finally to me. The minute of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, as forwarded to me, stated the decision of the Board must be considered by me as final; this I infer related to the report of the Board on such officers as had qualified in their opinion, and did not refer to the principle at issue, viz., whether I was to be permitted to see the answers to the questions forwarded by myself. No decision of the Ministerial Head of the Department was forwarded to me that I am aware of, nor was any notice taken of the latter portion of my letter of the 8th October last.—CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel, 19/3/79.

I can only reiterate, as regards the first portion of memo. of Officer Commanding Artillery Forces, that in my opinion the Queen's Regulations are decidedly antagonistic to the questions being finally submitted to him. The minute of His Excellency seems to me to have had especial reference to the question at issue, as may be judged by the following quotation therefrom:—"I do not think Colonel Roberts is warranted in applying for the examination papers to be submitted to him." The views of the Colonial Secretary were verbally communicated to me (as well as I remember), some little time after His Excellency's decision as embodied in minute, and were in effect as already stated. It appears to me that the position of the Officer Commanding Artillery Forces is to all intents and purposes defined by the Queen's Regulations and Orders for the Imperial Army, to which all officers of the Permanent Military Forces are subjected by the local Military Act.—J.S.R., Colonel, Commandant, B.C., 25/3/79.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Dear Richardson,

Although I have again written on the vexed question of examination of officers, yet it has been represented to me that there would be greater fairness in my preparing the questions on Artillery subjects, thus avoiding the idea of any officer getting information on what particular subject questions would be given. I shall be glad to make out the questions, provided I can be relieved of the Artillery Drill Questions, as I have but little time at my disposal, and fifty questions other than those already given, yet not too difficult, will take some consideration and time.

Yours, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS.

---

The Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

Dear Roberts,

Brigade Office, 25/3/79.

I am sure the fact of your preparing the questions will give greater confidence and satisfaction than delegating it to Battery Officers, who, besides naturally taking an interest in their subalterns, are supposed to be coaching them for their examination; and I should therefore suggest that you direct your adjutant to prepare the questions on drill, which, whilst practically relieving yourself, still leaves the preparation under your control and supervision. I have been obliged to postpone the examination until the end of April, in consequence of Encampment.

Yours, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 26 March, 1879.

IN consequence of the continuous training of the Volunteer Force being fixed for the 11th of April and five following days, the Board of Officers for the examination of the subalterns of the N. S. W. #### Memo. by Major Christie.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 23 June, 1879.

MEMO.—Having in view the likelihood of a reduction in the strength of the N. S. W. Art., the Commandant would wish to know Colonel Roberts' views with reference to the examination of the officers of that that corps for promotion ; whether he considers the same should be proceeded with, or held in abeyance for the present.

By Command,

The Brigade Major,—

Has any instruction been given to stop the cadre of officers per battery ? If not, I cannot see any course to pursue but to fill up each rank according to regulated numbers.

In order to enable this examination to be carried out, it is requested the preparation of the questions in Drill and Artillery subjects, as referred to in Garrison Order of 11th March last, may be carried out by Colonel Roberts.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Dear Colonel Richardson,

7 July, 1879.

May I request to be furnished with copies of the correspondence and full decision of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the late Hon. the Colonial Secretary, with reference to the questions for examination in Artillery subjects being submitted to me to test as to correctness of answers.

I remain, &c.,

The Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

Dear Col. Roberts,

Brigade Office, 8 July, 1879.

The copies of correspondence you ask for will be forwarded. The opinion of the late Colonial Secretary was communicated to me verbally, and in effect as noted in my memos. 14/3/79 and 25/3/79.

Yours &c.,

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, Sydney, 30 July, 1879.

I have the honor to request information with reference to the orders for the preparation of questions on Artillery subjects for the forthcoming examination of officers for promotion to the rank of Captain. I surmise that the reason I have been directed to carry this out is that, as senior officer of the Artillery, I combine the duties of Inspector-General of Artillery, Adjutant-General of Artillery, and Director of Artillery and Stores, there being no officers holding these appointments in the Colony.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
Colonel.

The Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 31 July, 1879.

In acknowledging your letter of yesterday's date, I have the honor to inform you that, in requiring you to furnish the questions on Artillery subjects for the forthcoming examination of Officers N.S.W. Artillery for promotion to the rank of Captain, I was influenced by the belief that I was adopting, as far as practicable, the procedure laid down for the Imperial Service in similar cases, and as embodied in the Queen's Regulations (to which the N.S.W. Artillery is subject), as also that I was studying the best interests of the Service.

In the absence of an officer holding the precise position of Deputy Adjutant-General of Artillery in the Colony, it is to me obvious that you are the proper person to perform the duties appertaining to the somewhat analogous position, as far of course as may be compatible with the organization and special conditions of the Colonial Military Service.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Lieutenant Nathan to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Government House, Sydney, 17 November, 1879.

I beg respectfully to bring under your Excellency's notice my request for promotion to the rank of Captain in the New South Wales Artillery, and to solicit your assistance in my behalf.

My services in connection with the Colony are as follows :—I joined the Volunteer Force in March, 1868, and was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Volunteer Artillery by examination in 1871, and afterwards promoted to the rank of Captain in May, 1875, which rank I held until joining the New South Wales Artillery, in July, 1877, as Lieutenant, and I can with confidence refer you to Colonel Richardson and Colonel Roberts for their opinion as to the manner in which I performed my duties.

I may further add that Sir Alfred Stephen, when administering the Government, strongly recommended me for promotion.

I have, &c.,
ROBERT ALLWOOD NATHAN,
Lieutenant.

His Excellency the Governor to Colonial Secretary.

Dear Sir Henry,

I enclose you a letter I have received from Lt. Nathan, now acting as extra A.D.C. on my staff, requesting promotion to the rank of Captain, which post is, I hear, now vacant.

As his services appear to give him a fair claim for promotion, I beg to recommend his application, and it will give me much satisfaction if the promotion sought for can be granted.

Very, &amp;c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 5 December, 1879.

I have the honor to report, in accordance with the Colonial Secretary's minute, 29/11/79, on accompanying application for the promotion of Lieutenant Nathan, N.S.W. Art., that the local Military and Naval Forces Regulation Act of 1871, subjects as far as practicable the New South Wales Artillery to the "Queen's Rules and Regulations, the Rules and Articles of War, and to such other orders, rules, and regulations, of whatever nature or kind, to which Her Majesty's Army is for the time being subject." Such being the legal aspect of the case, it would seem that the procedure practised with regard to the promotion of officers in the Imperial Service should also obtain in the N.S.W. Artillery.

By the Pay and Promotion Warrant, I gather that subalterns of the Royal Art. are entitled to promotion by seniority, provided they have passed the qualifying examination for the superior grade.

Lieutenant Nathan is not the senior of his grade, neither has he passed the necessary examination; and further, this warrant neither recognizes the description of service quoted by this officer in support of his application, nor that appertaining to his present staff employment, as giving any special claims for promotion. Under these circumstances, I conceive that the three Lieutenants senior to Lieutenant Nathan would have grounds of complaint if they were passed over in the manner contemplated.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 18 August, 1880.

With reference to the forthcoming examination of officers of the N.S.W. Art. with reference to their fitness for promotion, I have the honor to suggest, for your Excellency's approval, that I should sit as President of the Board to be detailed to carry out this duty; the Major of Brigade and a Field Officer of the N.S.W. Art. constituting the other members.

The Queen's Regulations require that, as far as possible, such Board should not be composed of officers of the regiment to which candidates belong. The arrangement proposed is, therefore, I consider, a preferable one to that which obtained on the occasion of the last examination, when the Major of Brigade and two Field Officers of the N.S.W. Art. conducted the duty in question.

The questions in subjects (a) and (b) will be prepared by the Brigade-Major; those in (c) and (d), by the Officer Commanding Artillery Forces.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Dear Colonel Richardson, Government House, Sydney, N.S.W., 25 August, 1880.

I only returned yesterday from the Blue Mountains, and I think it best to write privately before replying officially to your letter of 18/8/80.

I approve of your acting as President of the Board for the examination of the officers of the N.S.W. Artillery previous to their promotion; and I also approve of Colonel Roberts acting as a member of the Board, but I think that, on technical grounds, the appointment of the Senior Major of the N.S.W. Artillery would be preferable to that of the Major of Brigade.

Yours, &c.,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

Dear Lord Augustus Loftus,

Brigade Office, 25/8/80.

In reply to your note regarding the Artillery examination, I have to state, that it appears to me the whole spirit of the Queen's Regulations indicates that the examination of officers (on which their professional prospects depend) should be conducted, as far as practicable, apart from the regimental influence of those whose daily and personal association, both privately and professionally, might be fairly supposed to engender either feelings of partiality or the reverse. It is undoubtedly laid down, for the examination of subalterns of the Artillery, that two out of the three composing the Board shall be Artillerymen, yet it is to be borne in mind that in the Imperial Regiment of Artillery it is possible to detail officers who have neither intimate association with nor any particular interest in the candidates, such as may be presumed to exist here. Even in this case the written questions are prepared by persons both apart from the Board, and without intimate knowledge of the candidates. Again, in the examination of captains of all Arms, it appears that, although one member of the Board shall be of the same Arm as the candidate, yet on no occasion, when it can be avoided, is to belong to the same regiment. The custom of the Service entirely precludes Colonel Roberts sitting on the Board, from the fact of his being the Officer commanding the Corps, he having, possibly, favourable and unfavourable views of officers he is in the habit of directly commanding. So impressed was Sir Hercules Robinson of the desirability of observing the principles indicated in the Queen's Regulations and keeping the immediate Commanding Officer aloof, that he refused to permit Colonel Roberts to even see the last examination papers. A Commanding Officer, on the other hand, has the power to refuse to recommend the promotion of a subordinate, notwithstanding he may have passed the qualifying examination. I may also mention that on the occasion of the last examination of subalterns, the Major of Brigade and two Majors of Artillery formed the Board; yet I have reason to believe there was dissatisfaction on the ground that the Artillery Majors had been previously coaching their respective subalterns.

My recommendation as to the constitution of the Board, now under consideration, was dictated by a desire to avoid even cause of dissatisfaction by the appointment of persons who, as far as possible, had no interest in the individual promotion of any of the candidates.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

Dear Lord Augustus Loftus,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 27/8/80.

Can Colonel Scratchley with propriety sit on the Examination Board, as he holds no commission in the Colonial Military Forces, and consequently has no locus standi therein? His appointment might be open to exception on that ground. I may be wrong in this supposition; at the same time I think it my duty to bring any possible objection to your Lordship's notice prior to your decision as to the constitution of the Board.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 30 August, 1880.

With reference to your letter of the 18th instant and to the conversation I had subsequently with you, I have to inform you that, in reply to my inquiry, Colonel Scratchley has consented to sit on the Board for the forthcoming examination of Officers of the N.S.W. Artillery. I

I have accordingly decided to appoint you to sit as President of that Board, in conjunction with Colonel Scratchley and Colonel Roberts.

The Board may assemble in the second week of September.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 31 August, 1880.

THE Board for the examination of the Subalterns N.S.W. Artillery referred to in the Garrison Order of the 19th instant will, by direction of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, consist of—Colonel J. S. Richardson, Commandant (President); Colonel P. H. Scratchley, R.E., C.M.G., and Colonel C. F. Roberts, Com. Art. (Members).

I have the honor to forward for your information the accompanying copies of Garrison Orders directing the examination of the Subalterns of the N.S.W. Artillery, to commence on the 14th instant, and notifying your appointment by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief as a Member of the Board of Examination.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Colonel Scratchley to His Excellency the Governor.

Dear Lord Augustus,

Melbourne, 6 September, 1880.

I have just received the enclosed letter from Colonel Richardson, by which I perceive that I am placed in Garrison Orders as a member of a Military Board, of which Colonel Richardson is the President, for the examination of certain officers of the N. S. W. Artillery.

Your Excellency will no doubt be aware that on receipt of a telegram from Mr. Bloxsome, asking if I were willing to serve on a Board for this purpose, I at once replied that I should be glad to accept any such duty.

I did not contemplate for one moment that I should be nominated to serve in any other capacity than that of President of the Board to be assembled. It may be open to question whether or not Colonel Richardson, as Commandant of the local Forces of N. S. W., should sit on the Board; but if it is decided he should so sit, I, as an Imperial officer serving H. M. Government in N.S.W., being by no act of my own brought into contact with that officer in a purely military function, cannot, in the face of the Queen's Regulations for the Army, waive my rank as a full Colonel.

I have always held that the said rank does not give me any right to exercise military command, or power to interfere with the executive military duties of the local officers, unless specially nominated for military duty by the Governors, acting in their capacities as Com.-in-Chief. Were I to comply with the Garrison Order, and not point out that my rank of full Colonel in the Army gives me precedence over local officers when associated with them in the performance of a military duty, I should lay myself open to the censure of the military authorities at home.

All this I submit with the utmost respect, for your Excellency's consideration.

I have, &c.,
P. H. SCRATCHLEY.

Minute by His Excellency the Governor.

Government House, Sydney.

WITH reference to previous communication, Colonel Scratchley not being able to sit on the Board for the examination of the Lieutenants of the New South Wales Artillery for promotion to the rank of Captain, the composition of the Board will be as follows:—

Colonel Richardson, Commandant, as President;
Colonel Roberts, Commanding the N.S.W. Artillery, and Major Christie, Major of Brigade.

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 13 September, 1880.

I have the honor to suggest that the examination of subaltern officers be postponed until the first week in October (should the examination of Volunteer officers be over by that time), as most of them considered that, owing to Colonel Scratchley, C.M.G., R.E., not being able to be in Sydney until the 25th inst., the examination would not take place until then; also Lieut. H. P. Airey is on the sick list, and it is anticipated he will be removed from it in a week or two. Should the examination be held now, this would necessitate a fresh set of questions being prepared for that officer.

I have, &amp;c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Col.,
Com. Art. Forces.

The Commandant,—I have just received a letter signed by four of the subaltern officers who are coming up for examination, asking that the examination be postponed, owing to it having been stated that the 24th was to be the date in place of 14th.—C.F.R., Col., 13/9/80.

REGINALD BLOXSOME,
Private Secretary.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery will be good enough to furnish me with the report herein alluded to, for transmission to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—J.S.R., Col., Comdt., 20/10/80, B.C. To be returned. Report herewith.—C.F.R., Col., 21/10/80.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 22 October, 1880.

I have the honor, in accordance with your instructions, to forward the report of the Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery respecting the qualifications and antecedents of the officers of his regiment who have recently undergone a qualifying examination for promotion to the rank of Captain.

I observe that the only officer disadvantageously reported upon is Lieutenant Baynes, who is otherwise the subaltern first entitled to promotion under the terms of the Royal Warrant.

It thus becomes my duty to draw your Excellency's attention to the Queen's Regulations (par. 24, section 5), which require that an officer so reported upon shall be officially informed of the particulars of such report; and, further, that if the result thereof is such as to disqualify him for promotion, he shall be so informed, &c., &c.

Notwithstanding allusion has been made to me in this report, as also that I am required by par. 13, section 22, of the Regulations above quoted, to offer such observations as may in my opinion be necessary on all correspondence passing through my hands, I yet deem it desirable to refrain from comment until I may receive your Excellency's pleasure in the matter.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Colonel Roberts' Confidential Report.

Lieutenant Arthur Le Patourel appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, Aug. 28th, 1876. Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, an excellent practical officer in all his regimental duties, is capable of drilling the men with all natures of ordnance in the Colony, also of imparting the necessary instruction to the non-commissioned officers and men; maintains his proper position with regard to the non-commissioned officers and men; understands and thoroughly carries out the minutiae in connection with the interior economy of the battery; prior to joining this Force served in the militia in England as a Captain; held the appointment of Assistant Instructor of Musketry to the Gloucester Militia, and passed an examination at School of Instruction for Reserve Force.

Lieutenant Frederick Thomas Bendge Baynes, appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, Aug. 28th, 1876. Lieutenant F. B. Baynes is an officer who carries out his duties in a fair manner, but is too much inclined to associate with the non-commissioned officers and men, and does not always keep his proper position in this respect; is a good drill, and can instruct fairly well the non-commissioned officers and men; has lately been reported upon confidentially by me to the Commandant with regard to want of proper supervision and management of No. 1 Battery while in temporary command; prior to his appointment in this Force he was a private in the Volunteer Infantry (I understand).

Lieutenant Robert Allwood Nathan, appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, 31st July, 1877. Lieutenant R. A. Nathan, an excellent officer and good drill, with a good practical knowledge of all his duties, and is careful and painstaking in the execution of them; keeps his position with regard to the non-commissioned officers and men; has a good knowledge of the interior economy of a battery; prior to his appointment in this Force held a commission in the Volunteer Artillery as Captain in command of No. 11 Battery under the old regulations.

Lieutenant Henry Park Airey, appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, 31st July, 1877. Lieutenant H. P. Airey, an excellent officer, well up to his drills, careful and attentive to his regimental duties, and well up in the interior economy of a battery; keeps his position with regard to the non-commissioned officers and men; prior to his appointment in this Force, held a commission as Lieutenant in the 101st Regiment; passed the necessary examination in the Imperial Service for promotion to rank of Captain.

Lieutenant Charles William Pleydell Bouverie, appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, 25th Nov., 1878. Lieut. C. W. P. Bouverie, an excellent officer, well up to his drills and has a good practical knowledge of his duties; is fairly well up in the interior economy of a battery, keeps his position with regard to the non-commissioned officers and men; has been chiefly on Detachment since joining the Force, and has given every satisfaction; prior to joining the Force served in the Royal Navy and left it as a Lieutenant; has passed through the Gunnery Ships "Excellent" and "Cambridge."

Lieutenant Arthur Henry Patrick Savage, appointed to the N. S. Wales Artillery, 25th Nov., 1878. Lieut. A. H. P. Savage, an excellent practical officer, fairly well up in his duties as well as in his drills; has been very painstaking in the execution of all his duties since his appointment in this Force; prior to this he was for a very considerable time in the India Office; maintains his position with regard to the non-commissioned officers and men.—C.F.R., Col., Commanding, 21/10/80.

The Private Secretary to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 23 October, 1880.

I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to request you to forward to him the confidential reports addressed to you by Colonel Roberts relative to Lieut. Baynes, or any reports made by Colonel Roberts on the same subject. His Excellency desires to be informed why these reports were not submitted to him by you when you received them.

His Excellency desires also to be furnished with the report of the late examination of the officers of the New South Wales Artillery in the field drill.

I have, &c.,

REGINALD BLOXSOME,
Private Secretary.

Memo. by Major Christie.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 25 October, 1880.

MEMO.—The officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery will be good enough to cause all reports against Lieut. Baynes, or documents referred to in said reports, proceedings of Boards, &c., &c., to be forwarded to this office without delay.

By Command,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Major,
Major of Brigade.

The

The Private Secretary to The Commandant.

Dear Colonel Richardson, Government House, Sydney, 25 October, 1880.
 Would you kindly send an answer to my letter of Saturday, requesting to be furnished with the confidential reports of Colonel Roberts with regard to Lieut. Baynes, before you leave Sydney, and oblige,—

Yours, &c.,
 REGINALD BLOXSOME.

The Commandant to The Private Secretary.

Dear Mr. Bloxsome, 25/10/80.
 I am waiting for Colonel Roberts' reports. If I do not receive them in time I will send on my reply, and forward them afterwards.

Yours, &c.,
 JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

(80/427.)

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 25 October, 1880.

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 23rd instant, and to enclose the reports therein alluded to.

2. My reason for not forwarding these reports to your Excellency at the time of receipt, or in connection with the correspondence that has arisen with reference and subsequent to my transmission of the examination papers are as follows:—

When originally received, as will be apparent both from the terms used and the mode in which the correspondence was otherwise conducted, it was manifest they were only of a semi-official nature, and so indicated, as did the absence of any specific request from Colonel Roberts for me either to deal with or refer the matters reported, that no reference to your Excellency was then sought or thought necessary. The reports were not referred to by me subsequently in connection with the correspondence relating to the examination, inasmuch as the usages of the Service make the examination of officers and their promotion entirely distinct official acts, the one being a matter of garrison detail and arrangement, and the other one initiated by the regimental authorities. It is in connection with the second official proceeding that it is usual to take cognizance of the personal character of an officer, or the mode in which he is in the habit of performing his duties.

3. Your Excellency's letter of the 20th instant also specially called for report from the Officer Commanding the New South Wales Artillery alone. I therefore did not consider myself at liberty to do otherwise than simply forward such papers as that officer thought it necessary to transmit through me.

4. I am somewhat in doubt as to the last paragraph of your Excellency's letter, being under the impression that the report of the Board, already presented to your Excellency, contained their opinion on the special points referred to. The terms used by the Board, I have every reason to believe, were meant to indicate that, as regards the practical examination in gun drills, the Board had, as required by the Regulations, satisfied themselves by personal observation of the proficiency of the candidates.

I have, &c.,
 JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
 Commandant.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Dear Colonel Richardson,

Dawes' Battery, 6 August, 1880.

I enclose for your information a letter of this date from Lieut. Baynes, and forwarded by Lieut. H. Le Patourel. In so doing, I wish to point out that, in addition to a very irregular and careless state of accounts in No. 1 Battery (which has been under the command of these two officers during Major Airey's absence on leave), which accounts have given very considerable trouble to get right, that Lieut. Baynes, in his monthly certificate reports, as I minute on the letter, especially as to personal settlement with his Pay-Corporal; also that Lieut. H. Le Patourel appears to have failed to satisfy himself as to whether the men of his battery had any claims unsettled when taking over the accounts. The N.C. officer referred to deserted on the 16th July last.

In fairness to other officers who may present themselves for examination for promotion to the rank of Captain—and considering how desirable it is to obtain the best officer for the vacancy, I am under the firm conviction that it is my duty to inform you of this case of carelessness, as it proves to a very great extent that want of supervision which is so essential in officers holding the responsible position of Captain.

May I ask to have the enclosed letter returned to me, for the information of the officers concerned.

I remain, &c.,
 CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
 Colonel.

Lieutenant

Lieutenant Baynes to The Colonel Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, 6 August, 1880.

I have the honor to report, for your information, that in the month of May last, when in command of No. 1 Battery, I paid to Corporal M'Intyre the sum of £1 18s., for the purpose of settling a washing and hair-cutting bill due to Grs. A. Hillocks and Brazier.

It appears that they never received the money, and after the lapse of two months they now claim it.

Can I be held responsible, they not having spoken about this until the end of July?

I have, &amp;c.,

FRED. BAYNES, Lieut.,
N.S.W.A.

Forwarded, and I cannot see that these men have a just claim against Lieut. Baynes, they having allowed over two months to elapse.—H. LE P., 6/8/80.

I have considered it my duty to inform the Commandant of this case. Lieut. Baynes is responsible, as he states all bills against the battery were settled, and that he had settled personally with his Pay-Corporal up to the 31st May. This statement is dated June 16/80. Lieut. H. Le Patourel should also have discovered this when taking over the battery accounts from Lieut. Baynes.—C.F.R., Col., 6/8/80.

I have noted the contents of this letter. The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A. will no doubt exercise his own discretion as to the mode to be adopted in dealing with these irregularities.—J.S.R., Commandant, B.C., 7/8/80.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Dawes Battery, 1 October, 1880.

I regret extremely to have again to bring to your notice a case of proper want of supervision, as noted on a Regimental Board, on the part of Lieut. Baynes, of No. 1 Battery N.S.W. Artillery, which has caused the men of that battery to be unduly charged for articles of bedding.

As I had to remark upon a similar want of supervision in the case of a Board on Rifles, which resulted in Lieut. Baynes having to pay a portion of a charge made by the Arms report, I consider it my duty to bring this to your notice, as I have again recommended that this officer should pay the amount which I consider should be refunded to the men.

I have, &amp;c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
Colonel.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 25/10/80.

In compliance with a memo. received this date, signed by Command, I have the honor to forward certified copy of letter received by me on 6/8/80, and of certificate of monthly settlement therein referred to.

I have, &amp;c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 25 October, 1880.

In accordance with confidential memo. of this date, I have the honor to forward proceedings of Boards of Inquiry on bedding and rifles, belonging to No. 1 Battery, New South Wales Artillery, and request that they may be returned to this office, being Regimental Records.

I have, &amp;c.,

Sir Henry Parkes to His Excellency the Governor.

Dear Lord Augustus,

29/10/80.

I have thought over the case of the officers seeking the rank of Captain; I have consulted Colonel Scratchley. I have come to the conclusion that the examination papers were too low in character for the attainment of rank so important to the Service, and that passing on such papers would be hardly creditable. I think of advising that the examination should be set aside, and the gentlemen in question called upon to undergo another examination three months hence on higher class papers. In other words, I think they should be made to work for their rank. Colonel Scratchley concurs in this view.

Moreover, I do not think the Commandant should sit upon the Board of Examiners.

On the occasion of your Excellency's visit to Bathurst on the 8th I presume you will hold a levée. I think this should be done, as some dissatisfaction may arise.

Yours, &c.,
HENRY PARKES.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 2 November, 1880.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 19th October, transmitting the various papers giving the result of the examination of the Lieutenants of the N.S.W. Artillery for qualification for the rank of Captain.

I have conferred with Sir H. Parkes (to whom I submitted the papers abovementioned) on the subject, and he fully concurs with me in the opinion that the papers fall very short of the standard required for the qualification for promotion of Lieutenants to the rank of Captain. I have consequently decided, with the concurrence of Sir H. Parkes, to set aside the report of the Board, and to order another qualifying examination, for which I shall appoint a special Board.

I have therefore to instruct you to bring the foregoing to the knowledge of the officers concerned, and to inform them that they will be called upon to undergo another examination on higher class papers within four months from the present date.

I have, &c.,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 2 November, 1880.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 22nd October, forwarding the confidential report of the Officer Commanding the N.S.W. Artillery, respecting the qualifications and antecedents of the officers of his regiment who have recently undergone a qualifying examination for promotion to the rank of Captain.

It is with regret that I observe that Lieut. Baynes has not been as favourably reported on as I could have wished; and I have therefore, in conformity with the Queen's Regulations, sect. 5, par. 24, to instruct you to notify to that officer the nature of the confidential report of his Commanding Officer, and to inform him that his claim for future promotion will depend on the report I may receive in regard to an amendment on the two points on which he has been disadvantageously reported, namely, a laxity in the discharge of his duties and a failing to hold his proper position in the regiment in regard to the non-commissioned officers and men.

I have, &c.,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 3 November, 1880.

I have the honor, in connection with the recent examination of certain subaltern officers of the N.S.W. Artillery, in view of their qualifying for promotion to the grade of Captain, to inform you that it has been intimated by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief that, having conferred with Sir Henry Parkes (to whom the papers in connection with the examination were submitted) on the subject, Sir Henry Parkes fully concurs in His Excellency's opinion that the papers fall very short of the standard required for the qualification for promotion of Lieutenants to the rank of Captain, and that His Excellency has consequently decided, with the concurrence of Sir Henry Parkes, to set aside the report of the Board and to order another qualifying examination, for which a special Board will be appointed.

In accordance with His Excellency's instructions, you will be good enough to bring the foregoing to the knowledge of the officers concerned, and to inform them that they will be called upon to undergo another examination on higher class papers within four months from the date of His Excellency's communication, viz., 2nd November, 1880.

I have, &c.,
W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Major,
Commanding Garrison.

Major Christie to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 3 November, 1880.

Acting in accordance with instructions received from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, I have the honor to forward herewith an extract from a confidential report recently furnished by the Officer Commanding the N.S.W. Artillery, for the information of His Excellency, with reference to the qualifications and antecedents of certain subaltern officers of the N.S.W. Artillery who have recently undergone a qualifying examination for promotion to the rank of Captain.

In view of that officer (as laid down in sec. 5 para. 24 of the Queen's Regulations) being made aware of the nature of the report in question as referring to himself, you will be good enough to furnish Lieut. Baynes with a copy of the extract referred to; and also inform him that his claims for future promotion motion will depend on the report His Excellency may receive in regard to an amendment on the two points on which he has been disadvantageously reported, viz., a laxity in the discharge of his duties, and a failing to hold his proper position in the regiment in regard to the non-commissioned officers and men.

I have, &c.,

Lieutenant Baynes to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, 18 January, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of memoranda relative to the late Board of Examination, dated 3/11/80. (Copies herewith, marked A, B, and C.)

In these papers I am charged of a "laxity in the performance of my duties and failing to hold my position in the regiment, a want of proper supervision and management of No. 1 Battery whilst in temporary command, too much inclined to associate with the non-commissioned officers and men, and not keeping my position as an officer."

In reply to the charge of "laxity in the discharge of my duty," I beg to enclose copies of two (2) letters (marked D and E) received from two officers, under whose immediate observation I have been, viz., Majors Murphy and Airey, the former the senior officer in barracks, and the latter the officer commanding the battery to which I belong, and who would best be able to judge of the manner I have performed my duties, being constantly under their supervision. You therefore must have been wrongly informed on this point, and I feel confident that no other officer in the brigade has performed his duties more faithfully than I have, as I take a pride in my profession.

You will recollect, when I was in charge of a detachment at Newcastle, and directed to reconstruct some huts, you, in a minute on the back of a communication from me on the subject, spoke favourably of my capabilities as an officer in the position I was placed. (Copy enclosed, marked F.)

With reference to the charge of "being too much inclined to associate with the N.C. officers and men, and not keeping my proper position in this respect," I am at a loss to know what is meant, unless it is that I have at all times since my appointment to the Force taken great interest in the welfare of the N.C. officers and men, mingling with them in their sports and amusements; in fact, I have made it a rule to take as my guide the advice given to officers by Sir Garnet Wolseley. (See extract, marked G.) In addressing both non-commissioned officers and men, I have done so in a kind manner, taking into consideration their feelings as men who wished to be treated as such, and not inferior animals, and I have therefore gained their respect, without lowering my position as an officer and their superior in grade.

I am further reported for "want of proper supervision and management when in temporary command of No. 1 Battery." I was placed in a very awkward position, having to take over charge of the battery in the middle of a month, and in the middle of the following month an old and experienced Pay-Sergeant was taken from me (being promoted), instead of being allowed to remain to settle for the month. I was therefore compelled to take an inexperienced man to fill his place, who I afterwards found totally incompetent, and who after getting the battery accounts in a state of confusion deserted, also in the middle of a month. This was a trying position for a subaltern to be placed in who had never had command of a battery before; but if I had been allowed to retain charge of the battery until Major Airey's return, I should have been better acquainted with the management thereof.

I would here beg to point out that during the whole of my service in the Force I have never been admonished or spoken to by you for any neglect of duty, or spoken to about any irregularity on my part, and I do think it strange that all these charges should be made against me on the eve of my expected and fairly won promotion, and which were never heard of by me before.

If I have been guilty of the irregularities laid to my charge, I ought to have been brought before you face to face with my accusers, and allowed an opportunity of combating these charges. This of course you are aware was not done.

I delayed this reply thinking it probable that His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief would reconsider the setting aside of the proceedings of the late Board before which I was examined; but not having heard anything further on the subject, and as I cannot lay under this stigma without an effort to clear up the matter, have therefore to request that you will be good enough to forward this, with enclosures, to the Commandant, for the information of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, and to request that I may be furnished with copies of proceedings of the last and two previous Boards of Examination.

My dear Baynes,

In answer to your request, I shall have much pleasure in speaking to your efficiency as an officer.

During the period you have been attached to my battery, now between four and five years, I have at all times found you a very painstaking and efficient officer, and I can safely say that your duties have invariably been carried out to my entire satisfaction.

During the trying times our battery had at Raspberry Gully, I attribute much of the credit given to the battery at the inspection by the Colonel Commanding, as published in Orders, due to the valuable assistance rendered by you, then acting as Senior Subaltern, there being no Captain in the battery at the time.

Lieut. Baynes to The Colonel Commanding N.S.W.A.

Newcastle, 27 May, 1879.

Sir,

I have the honor to report for your information that the canteen hut has been removed from the hill, and placed according to your instructions with the others, the job being completed in six days.

I have also to report that on examination, I find that the hut, which has been erected on the wrong site, and which you have ordered to be removed, will not in my opinion bear a removal, for it is the one that was built out of the remnants of the huts that were blown down, and when being erected it was most difficult to get the timber to fit, it being so much knocked about and warped.

But of course, sir, if it is still your wish to remove it, I will commence immediately on receiving your instructions.

I beg most respectfully to ask for information regarding the piping, guttering, tanks, and drainage.

I have, &c.,
FRED BAYNES, Lt.,
N.S.W.A.

The Officer Commanding No. 3 Battery,—This letter should have been forwarded through the Officer Commanding District, and not from the Officer in charge at Newcastle direct to Art. Brigade Office.—W.S., Major, 28/5/79. Return. For Lieut. Baynes' information.—M.M., Major, 29/5/79.

This letter was forwarded direct to Art. Brigade Office, according to instructions received from Colonel Commanding.—F.B., Lt., 30/5/79. The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.—M.M., Major, 31/5/79.

Lt. Baynes is quite correct in having sent this letter direct, as the money has to be found out of a certain vote, and his instructions were to communicate direct. Lt. Baynes will proceed with the removal of the hut, and, with the timber left from the huts which were blown down can, I am certain, make the third hut good, having shown his ability to perform work which another officer was unable to do. The piping, &c., will be applied for, sufficient for three huts. Measurements to be sent at once; also a report of state of cook-house since the damage done by discharge of signal gun, giving cause of damage.

The Soldier's Pocket-book—Part I.

"In our intercourse with the rank and file we must make them realize that all our interests are identical, causing the latest joined recruit to feel that success is of as much real moment to him as it can be to the General. Let us sink as far as possible the respective titles of officers, sergeants and privates, merging them into the one great professional cognomen of soldier, causing all ranks to feel that it is a noble title of which the General as well as the private may well be proud. Let us give up the phrase 'officer and gentleman,' substituting that of 'soldier' for it; let the word 'officer' be used as seldom as possible, so that the private may really feel that there is no gulf between him and his Commander, but that they are merely separated by a ladder, the rungs of which all can equally aspire to mount."

Correspondence from Lieut. Baynes on result of recent examination of Officers, with Memoranda.

Sir,

I have the honor to forward correspondence received from Lieut. Baynes, which contains a request to be furnished with copies of proceedings of last two Boards of Examination; as well as a complaint of being reported upon unfavourably in confidential reports furnished for His Excellency's information.

In answer, I would point out that recent Boards of Inquiry sufficiently prove laxity in the discharge of duty.

The certificates produced from Major Murphy and Major Airey do not, I consider, bear in any way upon the cases for which this officer was reported; and I respectfully submit that Lieut. Baynes' remark about these officers being best able to judge is, to say the least of it, disrespectful.

The case Lieut. Baynes refers to when he was commended for carrying out work well occurred nearly two (2) years ago, and I trusted, by commending him, to urge him on to do his duty well and faithfully.

The inclination to associate too much with the N.C. officers and men was so apparent that I spoke to his father, Major Baynes, on the subject, and Lieut. Baynes has been checked for this. There is a medium between too much familiarity and holding oneself aloof from the men altogether.

The result of the Boards of Inquiry fully answer the objection taken to remark of "want of proper supervision and management," &c., and my letter No. 211, in answer to pleas urged by Lieut. Baynes before the Board on accounts of No. 1, also answer this.

I consider that memoranda are sufficient admonition; and my duty was to furnish a confidential report (which I beg to state I proposed forwarding prior to the result of the examination being known by any one) without reference to the circumstances which might occur at the time of the examination.

His not being brought face to face with his accusers is a statement I cannot understand, as the evidence produced before the Boards was open to explanation by Lieut. Baynes.

I must express my regret that he sees fit to call in question, as he undoubtedly does, in the first place, the minute by direction of His Excellency the Governor on confidential report (marked A in this correspondence) and my confidential report (marked C).

Correspondence from Lt. Baynes and copy of telegram dated 28/1/81.

I would further point out that he has had the opportunity to withdraw this correspondence (as per copy of telegram forwarded, and answer received attached), but declines to do so.

In conclusion, I must request that this correspondence, bearing upon His Excellency's decision which is taken objection to, may be forwarded for the information and decision of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Telegram from Colonel Roberts to Lieut. Baynes, and reply.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Dawes' Battery,

Sydney, 28 January, 1881.

Do you still wish your correspondence re examination forwarded to the Commandant?

Reply from Lieut. Baynes.

I would respectfully beg that the correspondence re examination be forwarded to the Commandant.

The Commandant to His Excellency The Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 5 February, 1881.

I have the honor to forward a letter from Lieutenant Baynes, of the New South Wales Artillery, having reference to the unfavourable nature of the report recently made as to his professional capabilities, &c., and which he desires may be submitted for your Excellency's consideration.

The Officer Commanding Artillery, in his covering letter, would seem to attach an impropriety to Lieutenant Baynes' action in thus claiming your Lordship's consideration. I am, however, unable to take this view, as Lieutenant Baynes' letter appears under the circumstances to be couched in proper and temperate language, and does not call in question your Excellency's action. In addition to which, officers and soldiers may with propriety endeavour to obtain that consideration and redress from the Crown to which they believe themselves entitled under the privilege of appeal conferred upon them by the law, as embodied in sections 42 and 43 of the Army Discipline Act, to which, it may be here remarked, the New South Wales Artillery is subject.

It is also to be presumed that the Queen's Regulations would not require that an officer adversely reported on should be furnished with the particulars of such report, unless it were to afford him the opportunity of taking exception to the terms thereof. It is manifest that if such was not the case, the professional reputation and prospects of officers would be purely dependent on the good-will and pleasure of subordinate individuals rather than of the Crown.

Under such circumstances, I feel it my duty to recommend Lieutenant Baynes' case for your Lordship's consideration.

I am unable to advise compliance with this officer's request to be furnished with copies of the two previous Boards of Examination, as I cannot see that any practical good can result therefrom; besides which, their production would not be in accordance with the customs of the Service.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Commandant to His Excellency The Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 4 February, 1881.

I have the honor, by desire of the Officer Commanding Artillery, to submit for consideration the enclosed correspondence, with proceedings of a Regimental Board of Inquiry recently assembled by that officer's order, "to inquire into and report upon the accounts of No. 1 Battery N.S.W. Artillery during the absence on leave of Major Airey, to ascertain the amount due on transfer of certificates."

These proceedings, your Lordship will note, were, in the first instance, submitted by the Officer Commanding Artillery for my consideration as Commandant, and after perusal were returned by me with memo. 19/1/81, to the following effect:—That it was evident both Lieutenants H. Le Patourel and F. B. Baynes had exhibited great carelessness in matters connected with the transfer and temporary command of the battery in question, and I accordingly directed them to be reprimanded and cautioned. It, however, appeared to me there were circumstances of an extenuating nature in Lieut. Baynes' case, as enumerated in his letter attached to the Board. I, moreover, assumed that the transfer certificates had not been furnished to the regimental authorities in the transfer of the command of the battery from Lieut. Baynes to Lieut. H. Le Patourel, in accordance with the usual customs of the Service. I further added that, having in view the inexperience of the junior officers of the Artillery, that it would be well in all future cases of transfer to have these certificates furnished, such being in some degree a guarantee that the officers fully understood their personal responsibility, as also the requirements of the Service, &c., &c.

In the correspondence following that memorandum, it will be noted that, in point of fact, the usual certificates of transfer were not furnished to the regimental authorities on any of the occasions of the transfer of this battery command, viz., from Major Airey to Lieut. Baynes, in March; from Lieut. Baynes to Lieut. H. Le Patourel, in June; and from Lieut. H. Le Patourel to Major Airey, in October.

Finally, the Officer Commanding Artillery required (notwithstanding my having dealt with the matter) that the whole of the correspondence and proceedings of the Board should be submitted to your Excellency, as bearing on the question of the fitness of Lieut. Baynes for promotion.

I may state, for your Lordship's information, that the procedure connected with the proper and systematic transfer of a battery command would necessitate the special attention of the officers both giving and taking over such command, to the state of arms and accoutrements, books, stores, necessaries, outstanding debts, arrears of pay, and debits and credits generally. The proceedings of the Board attached would, however, indicate the transfers were effected in the most haphazard manner, and, I venture to think, in actual ignorance by the officers themselves as to the extent of their duties and responsibilities. In-point of fact, no proper transfer of this battery may be said to have been effected by any of the officers enumerated. It seems, however, not improbable that had the regimental authorities peremptorily required the certificates (even in an incomplete state pending proper settlement), there would have been a guarantee that the officers knew what was expected of them, and have been forced to properly complete the transfers; thus, in all probability, the confusion that has marked the state of the battery for the last ten months would have been avoided.

Under such circumstances, I feel a considerable hesitation in joining in an unqualified condemnation of these officers, one of whom was called to suddenly assume, for the first time in his short military career, the command of a battery never properly handed over to him, and under other circumstances of unusual difficulty. The more especially do I feel this hesitation in that any person thoroughly conversant with the Service can readily call to mind the numerous instances in which officers of higher position and experience than those in question have under ordinary circumstances experienced both difficulties, complications, and loss, during the administrations of their commands, without being considered thereby unfit.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Minute of His Excellency the Governor.

The Commandant,

Government House, Sydney.

From the circumstances reported by the Board of Inquiry into the accounts of No. 1 Battery, it is clearly proved that Lieut. Baynes (as stated by the Commandant's letter, 81/54, of February 4th, 1881), has exhibited great carelessness in the matter connected with the transfer and temporary command of that battery. Lieut. Baynes is right in taking an interest in the welfare of N.-C. officers and men, and in addressing them in a proper manner; but to make them associates tends to diminish the respect which they should have for an officer. Lieut. Baynes is not entitled to be furnished with copies of the proceedings of the last and two previous Boards of Examinations.

I am unable to change or modify the confidential minute I addressed to the Commandant in regard to Lieut. Baynes.

Colonel Scratchley to The Private Secretary.

Dear Bloxsome,

18 Jan., /81.

Touching examination, I beg to suggest that Colonel Richardson, who has now returned, should be informed, either verbally or in writing—

1. That H.E., with concurrence of Sir H. Parkes, wishes the fresh examination held on the 15th April.
2. That the Board is to consist of—
Col. S., as President.
Col. Roberts, } Members.
Major Christie, }
3. That H.E. desires that the Board should meet in sufficient time before the 15th April to prepare questions for the examination.
4. That the text books from which questions are to be asked should be announced:—
Queen's Regulations.
Army Discipline Act.
Goodenough's Work.
New edition of Artillery Exercises.

But I should allow Col. Richardson to name the text books.

The foregoing suggestions are submitted because the arrangements for the examination should, according to rules of Service, be made by the Commandant. The report of the Board will be sent to the Commandant, who will submit it to H.E. in due course.

If you wish to see me, I can call this afternoon after 2 p.m.

Yours, &c.,

P. H. SCRATCHLEY.

His

His Excellency the Governor to Sir Henry Parkes.

Dear Sir Henry,

Government House, Sydney, 5 February, 1881.

I have received your letter of yesterday's date, in reply to mine of Jan. 18, referring to the proposed military examination.

I confess that my knowledge and experience in questions of military administration is very limited, and the difficulty of forming a correct opinion in regard to any action to be taken is greater from the fact that the Queen's Regulations are not always applicable in the case of so small a force as that of the Permanent Artillery in this Colony.

But the point which I submitted for your concurrence referred merely to the mode of carrying out a course which I conceived had been previously agreed upon.

In your letter to me of the 29/10/80, you stated that you had consulted Colonel Scratchley, and had come to the conclusion that the examination which had been held should be set aside, and that a fresh examination should be held three months afterwards on higher class papers.

You also expressed your opinion that the Commandant should not sit on the Board of Examiners.

On mentioning later to you in conversation that it has been represented to me by Colonel Richardson that Colonel Scratchley being an Imperial and not a Colonial officer could not sit or act as President of the Board, you then replied that this difficulty could be easily met by the Government here appointing him officially to do so.

I was therefore led to believe that you were not opposed to Colonel Scratchley being appointed as President with Colonel Roberts and Major Christie, as members of the Board of Examiners.

I cannot see why Colonel Scratchley should not be empowered to perform any duty which the Colonial Government may require of him, he being a paid officer of the Colony, nor do I think that the consent of the other Colonies can be necessary for him to accept such service.

The Commandant cannot sit on the Board, as he is the military authority to whom the Board have to report the result of the examination, and who then transmits the report to the Commander-in-Chief, with any comments or observations he may think necessary.

By the Queen's Regulations it is laid down that, "for the purpose of conducting the examination of Lieutenants of the Royal Artillery, instructions will be issued from time to time to the General or other Officer Commanding to assemble a Board to consist of three members, viz. :—A Field Officer (of Artillery if possible) an Officer of the Staff, and a Captain of Artillery, or an Officer of that corps who has passed the examination. Either the Gunnery Instructor or the Inspector of Warlike Stores should, when practicable, be selected for this duty. If it be impossible to obtain a Staff Officer, a Captain of the Line will be substituted. If a second Officer of Artillery cannot be obtained, an Engineer Officer should be substituted, but either the President or one member of the Board must be selected from the Artillery."

The difficulty here is to carry out this regulation to the letter, from the smallness of the Garrison Force. If therefore Colonel Scratchley should be incapacitated from sitting on the Board, there is no other person to be selected for this duty but the Senior Major or Senior Captain of the Permanent Artillery; and I think that it would be desirable not to have two officers of the same regiment on the Board.

I leave the composition of the Board entirely for you to decide, but I think it can be arranged for Colonel Scratchley to act as President of the Board; it will be the most satisfactory selection, as he is quite free from all local influences.

With respect to the other matter referred to in my letter to you, I presume that you will concur—

1. In deciding the examination to be held after Easter.
2. In directing the Board to meet before Easter to prepare questions for examination.
3. To request the Commandant to name the text books from which questions are to be asked, and to have them announced.

I shall await your concurrence before taking any further steps in regard to the examination.

Yours, &c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Private Secretary to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 7 February, 1881.

I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to inform you that, with the concurrence of Sir Henry Parkes, he desires—

- (1.) That the qualifying examination of the Lieutenants of the Permanent Artillery for a Captaincy be held on the 20th April next.
- (2.) That the Board shall consist of Colonel Scratchley as President, and Colonel Roberts and Major Christie as members.
- (3.) That the Board should meet in sufficient time before the 20th April to prepare questions for the examination.
- (4.) That the text-books from which questions are to be asked should be selected and announced by you.

I have, &c.,

REGINALD BLOXSOME, P.S.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 8 February, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the Private Secretary's letter of yesterday's date, in regard to the forthcoming examination of Lieutenants, New South Wales Artillery.

I see that the assembly of the Board is fixed for the 20th April next; I hope, however, this date may be altered, it being the last day of the period usually occupied by the annual continuous training of the Volunteer Force at Easter, and is necessarily an unusually busy day, and consequently the services of the Officer Commanding Artillery and Major of Brigade, the members of the Board, could be but ill-spared.

I

I further observe that I am required to select and announce the text-books to be used by the officers in preparation for this examination; but having in view the grounds on which the last examination was set aside, I feel it my duty to inquire if the subjects of examination will be as before, or if any addition thereto is contemplated.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Government House, Sydney.

The Commandant,—There can be no objection to altering the date for the meeting of the Board, so as to meet the general convenience of its members. The Commandant is merely requested to select and announce the text-books for the examination, without any reference to the previous examination.—A.L.—9/2/81.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

Mr. Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 10 February, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your minute 9/2/81, attached to my letter of the 8th instant, No. 81/60, having reference to the forthcoming examination of the subalterns of the New South Wales Artillery.

I beg to suggest that the assembly of the Board be fixed for Tuesday, the 26th of April, which will give the officers of this department sufficient time for winding up the business connected with the annual continuous training of the Volunteer Force, &c.

I have also respectfully to point out that it is required by the Queen's Regulations that the subjects of examination, with a list of text-books, should be published for the information and guidance of the candidates. If the examination is to be of a higher and more comprehensive standard than has hitherto been the case, it is to be presumed the subjects of examination will be somewhat altered and extended, thus necessitating a corresponding addition in the shape of text-books.

To enable me therefore properly to perform the duty noted in the Private Secretary's letter of the 7th instant, it would seem necessary that I should be informed of the precise subjects of examination.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The date for the meeting of the Board, the 26th April, approved. The Commandant is requested to announce the list of text-books for the examination of the officers of the N.S.W. Permanent Artillery as follows:—

1. The Queen's Regulations.
2. Army Discipline Act.
3. Goodenough's work.
4. The new work on Artillery subjects.

A.L., 10/2/81.

Garrison Order.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 12 February, 1881.

1. His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, with the concurrence of Sir Henry Parkes, K.C.M.G., is pleased to direct that a Board of Officers, consisting of—

Colonel Scratchley, C.M.G., R.E., President,
Colonel Roberts, Commanding Artillery Forces, } Members,
Major Christie, Major of Brigade, }

shall assemble on Tuesday, the 26th April next, for the examination of Lieutenants, N.S.W. Artillery, for promotion to the rank of Captain.

The books recommended, and sources from which information may be obtained, are as follows:—

Army Discipline and Regulation Act.
Queen's Regulations.
Simmons on Courts Martial.
Standing Orders, Royal Artillery.
Goodenough's Manual, Interior Economy.
Manual of Siege and Garrison Artillery, Exercises 1879, Vols. 1 and 2.
Manual of Field Artillery, 1877; and, lastly,
Practical experience.

The Board will meet in sufficient time before the 26th April to prepare the necessary questions. The place of the Assembly of the Board will be named by the President.

By Command,

THOMAS BAYNES, Major,
Pro Major of Brigade.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 12 February, 1881.

I have the honor to forward, for your information, copy of a Garrison Order issued this day, in regard to the forthcoming examination of Lieutenants, New South Wales Artillery.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Colonial Secretary,—It appears to me that the Commandant has added unnecessarily to the text-books named by me.—A.L., 14/2/81. The Commandant.—H.P., 5/3/81. C.W., B.C., 7/3/81.

Colonel Scratchley to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 7 April, 1881.

Referring to the Board appointed to conduct examination of the Permanent Artillery Officers which is to meet on the 26th instant, and of which I am President, I beg leave to inform you that it will be very inconvenient for me to return to Sydney by the date named, as I have important business to transact in Melbourne connected with the Victorian Defences.

I am of opinion that it would be advisable to postpone the examination until after the Military Defences Inquiry Commission have presented their Report, in view of any changes in the existing arrangements being recommended.

Should you deem it preferable to proceed with the examination on the present basis, I suggest that the Board should assemble on the 15th May, when I shall be in Sydney.

I advise that this letter should be referred to the Commandant for his opinion.

I am given to understand that some of the text-books which were included in the first examination have been omitted for the second. This is evidently an oversight, and could be easily rectified. I may mention that this omission is not due to any action taken by the Commandant.

I have, &amp;c.,

P. H. SCRATCHLEY,
Colonel, R.E.

The Commandant.—H.P., 8/4/81. B.C., 11/4/81.—C.W.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 13 April, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your minute of 11/4/81, covering a letter from Colonel Scratchley, C.M.G., R.E., notifying his inability to be present on the 26th instant, to sit as a member of the Board detailed to conduct the examination of the subaltern officers of the New South Wales Artillery. Herewith returned.

Presuming that the Colonial Secretary desires I should give my opinion with reference to the date of the assembly of the Board, I would suggest that it should be adjourned, at all events until the Report of the Royal Commission now sitting to inquire into certain questions connected with the Defence of the Colony (the matter of the examination of officers being among them) has been presented and its recommendations considered.

In addition, the present appears to me a fitting occasion to draw the Colonial Secretary's special attention to the existing situation as regards this examination.

It will be recollected that a Board of Officers assembled on the 5th October, 1880, for the purpose of examining certain subaltern officers of the New South Wales Artillery, and that the Board reported the two senior who came up, viz., Lieutenants Nathan and A. Le Patourel, as not having qualified for promotion; but that they considered Lieutenants Baynes, H. P. Airey, Bouverie, and Savage, had duly qualified. The proceedings of this Board were not approved by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, on the ground that the papers did not come up to the standard required, it being further conveyed to me in the communication embodying this decision, that His Excellency desired me to acquaint the officers in question that they would be called upon to undergo another examination of a higher class. Some two months since a Board of Examination, with Colonel Scratchley as President, was nominated by His Excellency, whereupon there arose the question as to what subjects the candidates were to be examined in. His Excellency, on 10/2/81, by minute, conveyed to me his instructions that the examination should be in the subjects and include the text-books named in Schedule A attached to this letter. Noting that whereas the proceedings of the first Board had not met with approval, on the ground that the examination had not been of a sufficiently high class, and that the directions as to the subjects the candidates were to be examined in by the second Board would in point of fact, make the forthcoming examination at once a very much easier and less comprehensive one than it had been made by the first Board, I endeavoured to so supplement His Excellency's instructions in the matter as to make the second examination, in number of subjects, text-books, &c., at least equal in its scope to the first. To this, however, in minute of 14/2/81, addressed to the Colonial Secretary, His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief took exception, and I had consequently to so amend the Garrison Order issued by me as to directly confine the subjects and text-books to those indicated in detail by His Excellency, as noted in the Schedule A.

While,

While, therefore, the proceedings of the original Board were disapproved of, among other grounds, because the examination was not of a sufficiently high class, a second examination is about to be held of at once a much lower class and a much less comprehensive character, as can be seen when the two Schedules of the subjects, and text-books of the first and of the proposed second examination (vide Schedule B) are compared. There is not, for instance, in the examination as now ordered by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, a single text-book of the practice and principles of military law, although some knowledge of this subject is essentially necessary to all officers, and imperatively insisted on in the Imperial Army. Again, no provision is made (as in the first examination) to insure the possession of any theoretical knowledge of artillery subjects.

It is obvious that the situation as thus forced upon me is fraught with much embarrassment to the military administration in this command.

Finally, I may perhaps be allowed to state that I had intended bringing to the notice of the Colonial Secretary the matters having reference to the subjects of examination, apart from Colonel Scratchley's letter; my proposed communication indeed being in actual preparation when the one from Colonel Scratchley reached me.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 4 May, 1881.

I have to instruct you to cancel the Garrison Orders of the 26th and 30th April, and to substitute for them the following:—

“The Garrison Orders of the 26th and 30th April are hereby cancelled, and the following is substituted in their place:—

“Pending further instructions from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, and the Colonial Secretary, the assembling of the Board of Officers for the examination of subalterns of the New South Wales Artillery is postponed until further orders.”

I have to express my surprise that, in issuing the Garrison Orders referred to, the authority of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief is entirely ignored, and that these Orders were issued without my previous approval.

I have consequently to instruct you in future to send me copies of all Garrison Orders issued by the Brigade Office.

You will communicate this instruction to the Colonel Commanding the New South Wales Artillery.

I have, &amp;c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 6 May, 1881.

I have the honor to enclose, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, copy of a letter dated 4th instant, from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, by which I am directly required to publish a Garrison Order in cancellation of those previously issued, in reference to the postponement of the examination of subalterns of the N.S.W. Artillery. It is also to be noted His Excellency expresses displeasure that in the issue of those Orders his authority as Commander-in-Chief has been entirely ignored, and that the Orders themselves were issued without his previous approval.

In regard to the somewhat embarrassing position in which I am placed by His Excellency's action, I think it proper to respectfully draw the Colonial Secretary's attention to the circumstances of the case, and as principally affecting myself.

It will be remembered that Colonel Scratchley, the President of the Board of Examiners, some time last month, addressed the Colonial Secretary on the subject of the proposed examination, and suggested its postponement until such a time as the Report of the Royal Commission on Defences shall have been presented to the Government. This officer's communication was referred to me for report, and accordingly, on the 13th April, I concurred in the apparent necessity for a postponement. Whilst awaiting the decision of the Government, and taking into consideration the absence of the President of the Board from the Colony on the day originally fixed for the assembly of the Board, viz., the 26th of April, I on that date, as required by the customs of the Service, and pending definite instructions, notified for the information of those concerned the unavoidable postponement of the Board. Simultaneously with the issue of this necessary intimation, I received the Minister's decision confirming my action, which I again published in more precise terms. Copies of the Orders in question are herewith attached.

It will thus be seen that I have practically confined myself to carrying out the instructions of the Ministerial Head of the Military Department; and I can only regret that His Excellency has seen fit to censure me for an adherence to the positive and plain instructions I have received both from himself and the Colonial Secretary in regard to the conduct of military business. These

These instructions, I may remark, were conveyed to me in minute of Colonial Secretary to His Excellency, dated 16th March last, as also in His Excellency's letter covering the same, forwarded to me under date the day following. They indicate that I am required to address all communications of a military nature, excepting certain formal matters of discipline (of which the case in point is not one), to the responsible Minister, who would take the necessary action in regard to their submission to the Commander-in-Chief and the Executive Council. Further, that the Military Department is under the Government in the same way as any other Department of the Civil Service; and I being purely the servant of the Colonial Government, am to consider myself under the direct control and orders of the Ministerial Head of the Department.

If I have misconceived the relative position I am expected to occupy, both in regard to His Excellency and the Minister, I would respectfully request to be furnished with further and more precise instructions than those which I imagine at present obtain.

It is with the utmost respect I venture to point out that the order conveyed in His Excellency's letter is apparently in direct variance with the principles laid down for my guidance, and moreover it deals with a matter in which I have already carried out the instructions of the Minister. Under such circumstances, and having in view the very pointed language used by the Colonial Secretary in his minute, and concurred in by His Excellency, in regard to the penalty to be attached to any departure on my part from their joint instructions, I may be pardoned for conceiving that I am left no option but to refer forthwith the whole matter for the consideration of Sir Henry Parkes.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Instructions referred to in foregoing letter:—

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 17 March, 1881.

I have submitted to the Colonial Secretary and my Government your two letters forwarding a communication from the Officer Commanding the N.S.W. Artillery, with the intimation of the wish of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the Field Battery to volunteer for active service in South Africa, in the event of such service being accepted by Her Majesty's Government.

I have to inform you that this communication should have been addressed to the Colonial Secretary, who would then have been enabled to convey to me his opinion, and that of the Cabinet, on the subject matter therein referred to.

I have now to enclose to you herewith copy of a minute which has been addressed to me by the Colonial Secretary—in which I entirely concur,—and from which you will learn that the proposal does not meet with his approval.

With reference to the minute of Sir H. Parkes, I have to instruct you to address in future all communications of a military nature, with the exception of those referring purely to military discipline, such as Courts Martial, sentences of Courts Martial, &c., &c., to the responsible Minister, who will take the necessary action in regard to their submission to the Commander-in-Chief and the Executive Council.

I have, &c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

[Enclosure.]

Minute for His Excellency the Governor.

BEFORE dealing with the offer of the Field Battery of the New South Wales Artillery, as contained in Major Spalding's letter of the 7th instant, the letter of Colonel Richardson covering that communication seems to call for some comment from me.

2. I must express my surprise that I should first learn from the newspapers that the Battery of Artillery had taken the serious step of offering their services to the Imperial Government; and that in a transaction so intimately affecting the Colony, the Minister responsible to Parliament for the conduct of the Military Forces should be entirely passed over in the Commandant's communication of the matter to your Excellency. Much mischief has resulted in creating confusion in the exercise of authority, from the Commandant's persistent misreading of the law in respect to the forces under his command, and from his consequent assumption that he stands in some peculiar relation to your Excellency which relieves him from Ministerial control. The Military Forces have been called into existence by the Parliament, and are paid for out of the revenue of the Colony, and they are as much subject to the control of the responsible Government existing in this Colony as any other branch of the Public Service. I lay down this as an indisputable principle; and in future I must treat any violation of this principle by the Commandant as I should treat any similar violation of the principle by any other servant of the Government.

3. By the 4th section of the Volunteer Force Regulation Act, the Governor, as the Queen's representative, is made Commander-in-Chief of all the local forces with the Imperial system, and to ensure that they shall not be called out at any time improperly. By the 2nd section the term "Governor" is interpreted to mean "the Governor with advice of the Executive Council"; and no exception is made even in respect to the appointment of Commander-in-Chief; and beyond question the interpretation in the 2nd section governs the whole administration of the Act in all other matters. In practice this means that the Military Department is subject to the Minister under whom it is placed, like other Departments.

4. With respect to the offer of the Military Battery to serve in Southern Africa, I feel that it is my duty to withhold my approval. The expenditure for the maintenance of this force can only be justified on the ground that it is necessary for the security of the Colony. If necessary at any time it is necessary now. If its services could be dispensed with for the long and indefinite period to enable the Battery to join in the Transvaal War, that would be a substantial reason for dispensing with them altogether.

5. As to the merits of the offer, I must point out that it was published in the Sydney newspapers, on the morning of the 7th instant, that the Imperial Government had declined a similar offer from South Australia; and that Major Spalding's letter is dated on that day.

HENRY PARKES.

The Private Secretary to The Commandant.

Sir, Government House, Sydney, 7 May, 1881.
I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to request you to inform him whether you have received two communications, dated respectively 29th April and 4th May, from him, and why they have not been acknowledged.

I have, &amp;c.,

REGINALD BLOXSOME,
P.S.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir, Brigade Office, Sydney, 9 May, 1881.
I have the honor to report that I have this day received a letter from the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, dated the 7th instant, inquiring why two letters addressed to me by His Excellency, dated the 29th April and 4th May, have not been acknowledged. I beg to state, for His Excellency's information, that I have acknowledged the letters referred to under date the 2nd and 6th instant respectively, and addressed to you, in accordance with the instructions obtaining in regard to the conduct of the business of this Department.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Commandant to The Private Secretary.

Dear Mr. Bloxsome, Brigade Office, Sydney, 9 May, 1881.
Your letter of 7th instant, as also others referred to therein, have been officially acknowledged to the Colonial Secretary.

Yours, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

Sir, Government House, Sydney, 10 May, 1881.
I have to express my surprise that you have not acknowledged my official letters of the 29th ultimo and 4th instant, and that you have not addressed to me direct, as you were instructed to do, copies of all Garrison Orders issued by the Brigade Office.

I consider that your non-compliance with my instructions, and the nature of your reply to my Private Secretary's official letter, evince a want of respect and duty to the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I desire that in future all copies of Garrison Orders issued by the Brigade Office be addressed direct to me.

I have, &amp;c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir, Brigade Office, Sydney, 11 May, 1881.
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, dated 10th instant, expressing surprise that I have not acknowledged His Excellency's letters of the 29th ultimo and 4th instant, and that I have not, as instructed, forwarded direct to His Excellency copies of Garrison Orders issued by the Brigade Office. His Excellency further considers that, by the non-compliance with his orders, together with the nature of my reply to the Private Secretary's official letter of the 7th instant, I have evinced a want of respect and duty to the Governor and Commander-in-Chief; and lastly, His Excellency instructs me to forward him direct copies of Garrison Orders.

In regard to the above, I have to explain that the letters in question, with matters contained therein, were duly acknowledged by reference to the Colonial Secretary, in the precise manner directed in the joint instructions of His Excellency and Colonial Secretary, as conveyed to me by letter and minute quoted in former correspondence.

I respectfully submit that I could hardly have ignored these instructions without laying myself open to the charge of disobedience of orders, and the consequent displeasure of the Ministerial Head of my Department.

My note (copy enclosed) in reply to the Private Secretary's letter of the 7th instant was dictated in a spirit of courtesy, and was intended without offence to indicate that all the letters, including the Private Secretary's, had been officially acknowledged through the prescribed channel; and thus, whilst precluded from direct official communication, I still desired to acquaint His Excellency that the matters in point had received attention.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Colonial Secretary to The Commandant.

My dear Colonel Richardson, 11 May, 1881.
It appears to me right that I should send you a copy of a letter which I have addressed to Lord Augustus Loftus, on the matter of the recent correspondence between His Excellency and yourself.

Yours, &amp;c.,

HENRY PARKES.

The Colonial Secretary to His Excellency the Governor.

Dear Lord Augustus.

11 May, 1881.

After your Excellency's concurrence in the views expressed in my minute of the 16th March, I have taken no active step in the military administration, because I have been anxious to leave the result of the inquiry by the Royal Commission before acting upon any change. I have to express my regret that, having given but little attention to the subject, for the reason just explained, I did not express the view I have now formed when your Excellency first complained to me of Colonel Richardson's conduct. I had not, however read that officer's letters when you spoke to me yesterday.

By the minute of the 16th March the principle was affirmed that the Military Department stood in precisely the same relations to the Crown and the Minister as any other Department of the Government.

It seems to me that the course taken by Colonel Richardson, under the instructions conveyed to him by my minute and your Excellency's letter of March, is strictly constitutional and unassailable.

The Advisers of the Crown in this Colony, as in England, would not for a moment submit to any direct communication on administrative matters between the Crown and any Department of the Public Service.

Having now read Colonel Richardson's letter to this Department, and carefully considered the whole matter, I regret that I cannot agree with your Excellency that any impropriety has been committed by him, as an officer under me, in respectfully declining to enter into any direct communication with Government House on a matter purely of administration.

I send, under separate cover, the Commandant's letters for your Excellency's perusal.

Yours, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

Dear Lord Augustus Loftus,

14 May, 1881.

I gather from Sir Henry Parkes that you conceive respect and duty required me to acknowledge to yourself the communication addressed to me direct. It therefore becomes my duty to explain that, having in view the very recent instructions of your Excellency and Sir Henry Parkes as to the channel of communication to be adopted by me towards yourself, I did not for one moment think that, notwithstanding your Excellency's communication was so addressed, I was therefore supposed to depart from those instructions. Consequently, it was not until the receipt of the Private Secretary's letter I realized that such a course might be expected of me, and I accordingly at once communicated to the Private Secretary the manner in which the correspondence had been dealt with by me. Respect for your Excellency, and respect for a Service in which I have had the honor of wearing Her Majesty's uniform for over twenty-six years, impels me to disclaim in the strongest terms any intentional disrespect or discourtesy towards the Queen's Representative; and, at the same time, I may with propriety express my sincere regret that any action of mine could be supposed to have given cause for your Excellency's unfavourable notice.

Yours, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

His Excellency the Governor to Colonel Richardson.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 16 May, 1881.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, giving the reasons why you sent no reply to the communications I had addressed to you.

I accept your explanation; but I think that in the instance referred to, which was one of military discipline, you misinterpreted the nature of the instructions I had previously addressed to you.

I now consider the incident closed.

I am, &c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 17 May, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, having reference to matters which have arisen out of the subject of the examination of the subalterns of the N.S.W. Artillery.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

No. 5.

Colonel Roberts to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 22 March, 1882.

I have the honor to recommend, for the favourable consideration of the proper authorities, that the following promotion may take place in the New South Wales Artillery, viz., Lieutenant Arthur Le Patourel to be Captain, and for the following reasons:—

This officer, although he failed by 3 marks to pass the necessary examination some 17 months back, yet showed so much capacity to command a battery that he has been, from time to time, placed in command of No. 2 Battery, when Lieut.-Colonel Spalding has been otherwise employed; and from my personal sonal knowledge of the manner he has carried out the duty, as well as from the favourable report from his more immediate commanding officer, Lieut.-Colonel Spalding, I feel certain that this step would be for the good of the Service, and would give general satisfaction in the corps. I would point out that promotion has been virtually stopped since the last examination, which took place in October, 1880, in which, as before stated, Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, who qualified in all the other subjects, yet was deficient in a very small number of marks in one subject, and thus failed to secure his promotion.

Lieut. H. Le Patourel, who is the senior subaltern in the New South Wales Artillery, did not present himself for examination at this time, and was therefore virtually disqualified.

A further reason for making this promotion is, that Lieut.-Colonel Spalding cannot now exercise the command over a battery, being in charge of the whole of the New South Wales Artillery.

I therefore beg most strongly to recommend this gentleman's promotion for the favorable consideration of his Excellency the Governor in Council and the Colonial Secretary.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel,
Commanding Military Forces.

Lieutenant Le Patourel to Lieutenant-Colonel Spalding.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 20 May, 1882.

I have the honor to request that you will favourably consider and forward this my application for promotion to the rank of Captain, which is now vacant, in the New South Wales Artillery.

I have served in that corps for nearly six years, during which time I have been in acting command of a battery for over twelve months, and since then have been appointed to the full command of the field battery, which position I now hold.

I was unfortunate enough about eighteen months ago to fail in my examination for promotion, but I believe that it was only by three marks in one subject. Nearly the whole time since then I have had command of this battery, which I believe I have carried out to the satisfaction of my commanding officers. I was also highly recommended for promotion by Colonel Roberts prior to his departure for England.

I trust under these circumstances, together with the fact that I have always shown an interest in the battery to which I belong, and that I believe I have been well spoken of by my seniors, you may be able to recommend me to the favourable consideration of the higher authorities.

I have, &c.,

ARTHUR LE PATOUREL,
Lieut., No. 2 Battery.

Lieutenant-Colonel Spalding to The Acting Commandant.

Artillery Brigade Office, Sydney.

MEMO.—I can strongly recommend Lieutenant Arthur Le Patourel's promotion. This officer has virtually held the command of No. 2 Battery, New South Wales Artillery, for the last twelve (12) months. During that period he has carried out the duties which devolved on him in a highly satisfactory, energetic, and efficient manner, and is in my opinion perfectly qualified for the rank of Captain, without undergoing further examination.

WARNER SPALDING, Lt.-Colonel,

20/5/82.

Comdg. Art. Forces.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 22 May, 1882.

I have the honor to forward herewith a letter from Lieutenant Arthur Le Patourel, of the Permanent Artillery, applying for promotion to the rank of Captain; and in doing so I would invite your attention to a letter on this subject from Colonel Roberts, then Acting Commandant, dated 22nd March, 1882, No. 82/137.

It may be noted that the present application is accompanied by a minute of recommendation from Lieutenant-Colonel Spalding, at present in command of the corps to which Lieutenant A. Le Patourel belongs.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Col.,
Acting Commandant.

Lieutenant Bouverie to Major Airey.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, Sydney, 27 May, 1882.

I have the honor most respectfully to request that you may be pleased to send to the Colonel Commanding N.S.W.A., with a view to his forwarding the same for the consideration of the Colonel Commandant and the Honorable Colonial Secretary, this my letter respecting the vacancy for a Captain now existing in the N.S.W. Artillery, as it is now about eighteen (18) months since the last examination was held for the purpose of Lieutenants in the N.S.W. Artillery qualifying themselves to fill the then existing vacancy for a Captain, which vacancy has not yet been filled up.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. W. P. BOUVERIE,
Lt., N.S.W. Art.

Lieut. Bouverie, N.S.W.A.—As I understand the matter of this promotion is now before the Government, I consider it would be inadvisable to forward this letter at present.—G.A., Major, Comdg. No. 1 B., 30/5/82.

I most respectfully beg to request that this letter may be forwarded.—C. W. P. BOUVERIE, Lieut., 30/5/82.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.—In accordance with Lieut. Bouverie's request, this letter is now forwarded.—G.A., Major Commanding No. 1 Battery, 31/5/82.

The Officer Commanding No. 1 Battery,—Does Lieut. Bouverie desire by this letter to apply for examination?—W.S., Lieut.-Col. Commanding N.S.W. Art.

Lieut. Bouverie,—Will you please answer Lieut.-Col. Spalding's question?—G.A., Major, Comdng. No. 1 Battery, 1/6/82.

I do not desire to apply for examination.—C.W.P.B., Lieut., 1/6/82.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.—Lieut. Bouverie's answer to your question herewith.—G.A., Major, Commanding No. 1 Battery, 2/6/82.

The Officer Commanding No. 1 Battery,—Then I fail to understand Lieut. Bouverie's letter. No subaltern of the N.S.W. Artillery can be considered as having passed the examination for the rank of Captain.—W.S., Lieut.-Col., Commanding N.S.W. Art., 2/6/82.

For Lieut. Bouverie's information.—G.A., Major, Commanding No. 1 Battery, 3/6/82.

I would still respectfully request that this letter be forwarded.—C.W.P.B., Lieut., 6/6/82.

Memorandum from Brigade Office.

Memorandum, 9th June, 1882, from Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barrack, Sydney, to Officer Commanding No. 1 Battery.

LIEUTENANT Bouverie can be informed that a communication from the military authorities on the subject of the vacant captaincy has recently been forwarded to the Ministerial Head of the Department. The Lieut.-Colonel Commanding Artillery Forces is of opinion that at present it is unnecessary to forward Lieut. Bouverie's letter 27/5/82, especially as this officer states "I do not desire to apply for examination," vide his memo. 1/6/82, but if Lieut. Bouverie still desires the correspondence to be forwarded to higher authority, the Lieut.-Colonel Commanding will again consider the matter.

By order,

ROBT. A. NATHAN,

Lieut. and Acting Adjutant.

To Lieut. Bouverie, for information and reply.—G.A., Major, Commanding No. 1 Battery, 10/6/82.

Lieutenant Bouverie to Major Airey.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, 10 June, 1882.

I am in receipt of the memorandum from the Artillery Brigade Office, dated 9th June, 1882, referring to my letter of 27th May, 1882; and I, having carefully considered the same, most respectfully request that the said letter of 27/5/82 may be forwarded.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. W. P. BOUVERIE,

Lieut. N.S.W.A.

Lieut. Bouverie's reply herewith.—G.A., Major, Commanding No. 1 Battery, 10/6/82. The Acting Commandant. Forwarded for consideration.—W.S., Lieut.-Col., Commanding N.S.W. Art. 12/6/82.

Minute by Lieutenant-Colonel Christie.

Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.,—

B.O., Sydney, 13/6/82.

I really cannot see the exact drift of Lieut. Bouverie's letter of 27th ultimo, and so, before submitting to the Colonial Secretary would wish that officer to indicate more precisely the exact bearing of the situation as affecting him. For instance, is his letter to be taken as preferring his own personal claims to the step, or as indicating that he is adversely affected by the vacancy not being filled? In either case he should manifestly say more than he has done.

W.B.B.C., Lt.-Col.

The Officer Commanding No. 1 Battery,—The Acting Commandant's remarks to be seen by Lieut. Bouverie, N.S.W. Art., who will be good enough to comply with the directions therein contained.—W.S., Lt.-Col., Comdg. N.S.W. Art., 14/6/82.

To Lieut. Bouverie to comply.—G.A., Major, Comdg. No. 1 Bt., 17/6/82.

My reply to the Colonel Commandant's memo of 13/6/82 (which I received to-day) herewith.—C.W.P.B., Lt., 19/6/82.

Lieutenant Bouverie to The Commandant.

Sir,

Victoria Barracks, Sydney, 19 June, 1882.

In reply to your memo of 13/6/82, to which I am ordered to reply, I beg respectfully to state that my intention, in my letter of 27th ultimo, was, if possible, to have this matter brought under consideration; not that I wish to prefer any personal claims for promotion, but I feel in duty bound to myself to try and get the matter brought forward, as I am obviously affected by the vacancy not being filled up, and for the following reasons, viz.:—I have been in the N.S.W. Artillery over three and a half (3½) years, I presented myself for examination about eighteen (18) months ago; this examination was set aside, since which time I have heard nothing about the matter, and I feel my case to be a very hard one, owing to the flow of promotion having stopped.

The

The reason why I worded my letter of 27th ultimo in the manner I did was because I wrote a letter on 25th ultimo touching on the same subject, and "requesting to know if any steps are likely to be taken to fill the vacancy now existing for a Captain in the N.S.W. Artillery." This letter I was recommended to withdraw, as it was considered to be too strongly worded, and I withdrew it, and I having to keep within limited bounds, my letter of 27th ultimo, requesting that the matter might be taken into consideration, was I fear not so clear as I should have wished it to be. The vacancy I refer to has been open ever since I joined the N.S.W. Artillery—three and a half ( $3\frac{1}{2}$ ) years ago.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. W. P. BOUVERIE,
Lt. N.S.W.A.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.,—Forwarded. The letter alluded to by Lieut. Bouverie was withdrawn at my suggestion, it not appearing to me respectful in its tone, and also that officer had shown an ignorance of the channel of communication in addressing his letter to the Colonel Commanding instead of, as it should have been in the first instance, to the officer commanding his battery.—G.A., Major, Comdg. No. 1 By., 21/6/82.

The Major of Brigade.—W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Commanding N.S.W. Art., 23/6/82.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 27 June, 1882.

I have the honor to forward herewith certain correspondence embodying an appeal made by Lieut. Bouverie, of the Permanent Artillery, with reference to the hardship he appears to consider himself placed under through the present state of promotion in that corps, with especial reference to the vacancy now existing among its Captains.

It will be noted that Lieut. Bouverie has desired his letter should be referred for the consideration of the Colonial Secretary.

It is not very clear to me what Lieut. Bouverie's personal grievance is in connection with the present stoppage of promotion; but the existing uncertainty with reference to the professional prospects of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery cannot but be prejudicial to them as a body, as also to the Public Service.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lieut.-Colonel,
Acting Commandant.

Minute by Acting Colonial Secretary on papers connected with Lieut. A. Le Patourel's application for promotion.

It seems to me extraordinary that such an application as that alluded to in the accompanying paper could possibly come before me, recommended for approval by two officers holding positions respectively of such importance as Colonels Roberts and Spalding hold.

I have conferred with Colonel Christie, Colonel Spalding, and Colonel Scratchley, and lastly with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and have gathered that four officers passed the qualifying examination hitherto held necessary before appointment as Captain, with the exception of its final approval by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and by the Colonial Secretary; but that the officer whose marks, &c., stood highest was objected to on grounds peculiar to himself, and that it was considered undesirable to promote either of the other three officers whose marks were sufficiently high otherwise to warrant it, on the ground, as I understand, that the subjects on which they were examined were not sufficiently difficult for the object desired.

Mr. Arthur Le Patourel, the officer now recommended for a captaincy, was not able, as I understand, to pass even the insufficient or too easy examination alluded to.

No one can say that the three officers who did pass it so far could not have passed a more severe examination, yet none of them it seems have been considered fit, while an officer not able to pass is "most strongly recommended." Surely I cannot with propriety be asked to pass over three officers who, so far as I know, are unobjectionable in conduct, in favour of an officer whose conduct is I understand equally unobjectionable, but who has not, as they have shown themselves by examination, to be equal to the qualification hitherto considered sufficient.

I should like to receive promptly a further report on this matter, and a statement why one of the three officers who were found equal to the standard hitherto considered sufficient for a captaincy was not recommended.—J.R., 2/8/82. The Acting Commandant.—B.C., 2/8/82.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 4 August, 1882.

With reference to the Colonial Secretary's minute of the 2nd instant, attached to papers herewith returned, and having relation to the examination of some of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, in October, 1880, with a view to their qualifying for subsequent promotion, I have the honor to report that I have been unable to find the original documents connected with such examination, as also some of the papers which subsequently passed between Colonel Richardson and others on the subject. The correspondence in question was held by Colonel Richardson to be entirely confidential, and a large portion of it passing solely through his own hands cannot be traced. I think, however, it is possible the examination papers may be with His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, or among the records in the Colonial Secretary's Office. I believe, however, that the following report as to the facts of the case will be found to be substantially correct.

Before entering, however, on my statement of these facts, it would seem advisable for me to indicate what is the military law and custom observed with reference to the promotion of subaltern officers to the rank of of Captain in the Imperial Army, the same law being made by local enactment applicable here. I may therefore say that a subaltern officer is thereby required, first, to pass a qualifying—not a competitive—examination as to his professional knowledge; secondly, to be otherwise eligible as regards his general conduct, zeal, &c.; thirdly, to be the senior in his rank so generally qualified.

The subjects of such examination are laid down in the Queen's Regulations for the government of the Army, viz.: Regimental duties, Military law, Drill, and Artillery subjects generally. The custom of the Service requires, as to general conduct, the favourable report of the immediate Commanding Officer, or at all events failing this, that higher authority shall deem the objections of such Commanding Officer to be untenable.

In October, 1880, a Board of Examination, consisting of Colonel Richardson, Colonel Roberts, and myself, assembled to carry out the examination, which we did in the subjects laid down in the Queen's Regulations, the particular text-books to be used having been indicated in a Brigade Office minute and a Regimental Order issued some time previous. This Board appears to have conducted its proceedings as far as it was able on the precedents of the Imperial Army, and after a very similar manner to that the Board had done which was for a like purpose assembled in August, 1878. The Board subsequently reported four officers to have, in their opinion, passed the necessary examination, and two others to have failed. The four former were, Lieutenants Baynes, H. P. Airey, Bouverie, and Savage; the two latter, Lieutenants A. Le Patourel and Nathan. The report of the Board was duly submitted to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, who, through Colonel Richardson, called upon the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery, Colonel Roberts, to furnish a confidential report with reference to the qualifications and antecedents of the officers who had undergone examination. Such was duly forwarded through Colonel Richardson (who abstained from comment thereon) to His Excellency, and amounted to a report against the senior subaltern who had passed, Lieutenant Baynes, on the grounds of general laxity of duty and over-intimacy with the men of his battery, and in favour of the other five officers. Subsequently certain previous correspondence relative to matters of duty, with which Lieutenant Baynes had been connected, was directed to be furnished for the consideration of His Excellency. A communication was afterwards received by Colonel Richardson from His Excellency, noting with regret the receipt of the unfavourable report as to Lieutenant Baynes, and directing that that officer should be informed of the nature of the report made against him, and also that his claim to future promotion would depend on the subsequent reports made regarding him.

A further communication of the same date was also received by Colonel Richardson from His Excellency, intimating the receipt of the report of the Board of Examination; as also that having conferred with Sir Henry Parkes on the subject, Sir Henry shared with him in the opinion that the papers fell very short of the standard required for the qualification for promotion of subalterns of the Permanent Artillery, and that it had consequently been decided, with the concurrence of Sir Henry Parkes, to set aside the report of the Board, and order another examination to be carried out by a special Board.

The purport of His Excellency's decision was duly notified to the officers concerned, and by a letter from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief it was indicated that the special Board was to consist of Colonel Scratchley as President, Colonel Roberts and myself as members, and was to assemble on the 26th April, 1881; but it was subsequently intimated in letter from the Colonial Secretary's Office, dated the 26th April, 1881, No. 81-2637, that, as suggested by Colonel Richardson, the assembly of any Board should be postponed until the report of the Military Defence Inquiry Commission had been submitted, and the recommendation made by that body considered. With the exception of noting that Lieutenant Baynes, on the receipt of the information as to Colonel Roberts' unfavourable report, made an appeal to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, which appeal was dismissed, and that Colonel Roberts and Lieut.-Colonel Spalding subsequently made application for the promotion to the rank of Captain of Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, there appears to be nothing more for me to add as regards the history of the case.

With respect to the examination itself, as before stated, it consisted of the subjects prescribed by the Queen's Regulations, and the text-books to be used were indicated in Orders some time before it was held. The Board placed a possible maximum number of marks on each question, required that two-thirds of the total possible number of marks should be obtained by each successful candidate, and at least half the possible number of marks in each subject. Much care was taken in apportioning the marks, and a line to indicate that the Board spared no trouble in carrying out the duty is found in the fact that the position taken by the unsuccessful candidates in this examination of October, 1880, accorded with the relative position they occupied in the examination of August, 1878, only one officer, myself, having served on the two Boards. I cannot entirely say that the examination in the subjects indicated was of a less difficult character than that which subaltern officers in the Imperial Army are required to undergo, or what is exactly the proportion of marks which an officer passing such an examination is required to get therein, the same not being anywhere laid down; but I observe that in the case of some other military examinations, where a rule is formulated, only 50 per cent. of the marks is required for a pass. But it appears to me that it can scarcely be expected that officers of our Colonial Military Forces, serving under very different circumstances, with comparatively slender opportunities for or aids to study, passing as they do no entrance examination, going through—of necessity with our existing means—no special preparatory curriculum of instruction at entrance into Service, should be able to pass examinations equal to those exacted in England, more especially in theoretical artillery, for which high and special previous mathematical training is wanted; neither, indeed, do I see that they require such, seeing the different nature of their possible spheres of duty.

With respect to the failure to recommend one of the three officers who, having been reported by the Board to have in their opinion qualified, were not taken exception to in the confidential reports of the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery, I may say that I presume Colonel Richardson considered it to be no part of his duty when forwarding the proceedings of the Board to enter on the subject of the succession to the existing vacancy, inasmuch as the two matters of passing the necessary examination and making recommendations for promotion are, in accordance with the custom of the Imperial Service, usually kept as distinct matters, it being indeed customary for officers in the Imperial Army to pass years before they succeed to vacancies. I am not aware either that prior to the quashing of the proceedings of the Board he was called upon to make any recommendation. After the proceedings of the Board were quashed he does not seem to have been in a position to do so, as higher authority had intimated that it did not consider any officer to have qualified by examination. It would however seem (presuming as I must that higher authority was aware of the rule of promotion, by which the same goes to the senior who, having qualified by examination, is found in other respects unobjectionable) that when the report of the Board to the effect that certain officers had in their opinion passed, was before higher authority, as also the reports from the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery taking no exception to three of the four officers whom the Board had favourably brought to notice, the claims of those three officers were then virtually submitted.

On the showing above they were not submitted for appointment at all.—JNO. R.

I attach copies of the confidential reports furnished by the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery in October, 1880, for the information of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Colonel,
Acting Commandant.

P.S.—I may perhaps observe that when speaking of officers going through no special preparatory curriculum of instruction at entrance into the Service, I refer rather to the long course of theoretical instruction which young Artillery officers have to go through in England. A course of practical instruction in drill, &c., is insisted on here.

Submitted, 8/8/82.

The period of the absence of Sir Henry Parkes from the Colony is so near its close that I am unwilling to do other than leave the matter with him.—JNO. R., 9/8/82.

Meanwhile the opinion of the Commandant as to the best course to be pursued with regard to the vacant captaincy should be obtained.—JNO. R., 12/8/82. The Acting Commandant, C.W., B.C., 12/8/82.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 15 August, 1882.

With reference to the Colonial Secretary's minute of the 12th instant, calling on me to state the best course to be pursued with regard to the captaincy now vacant in the Permanent Artillery, I have the honor, bearing in mind the fact that the law on the subject would appear to bar the promotion of any subaltern who is not at once qualified by examination and by favourable report as to his fitness, to report that there seem to be three courses open: the first, to uphold the decision arrived at with reference to the last examination and direct the assembly of a fresh Board of Examination at the end of such a period (say from three to six months) as will give all the subaltern officers of the corps an ample and equal opportunity for study, and after the receipt of the report of such Board give the step to the senior who passes and is in other respects considered eligible; the second, to hold the examination of October, 1880, to be good, and promote at once the senior officer then reported qualified by the Board who was at the same time in other respects considered fitted for advancement, viz., Lieutenant H. P. Airey. The third course would be, while again holding the proceedings of the Board assembled in October, 1880, to be good, to now, on the ground of the lapse of time, re-consider the personal eligibility of the subaltern officers whom the Board reported to have qualified, and for this purpose call on the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery to furnish a fresh report with reference to the conduct and qualifications of the four officers referred to, in view of giving the vacancy to the senior who may now be considered unobjectionable.

The reasons in favour of the adoption of the first course will at once suggest themselves; those for the adoption of the second, or third, are to be found in the advisableness of closing a question which I believe has led to a good deal of personal feeling, and which is calculated, if it remains undealt with, to act prejudicially on the Public Service; as also in the desirability of completing the proper establishment of officers of the Permanent Artillery as soon as possible.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Colonel,
Acting Commandant.

Lieut. Le Patourel to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 4 October, 1882.

I have the honor to request that you will forward this correspondence to the higher authorities, for their consideration. On the 20th May, 1882, I addressed them through the proper channel, asking that they would consider my application for promotion to the rank of Captain in the New South Wales Artillery, the duties of which I have been performing, as Officer Commanding No. 2 Battery, since the 3rd of March, 1881. I therein gave my reasons for applying, and, I believe, was recommended by my commanding officer, as I also was in March last by Colonel Roberts, then commanding the New South Wales Artillery, prior to his departure for England, but as yet have not received an answer to either application. As the reply to those letters most materially affects my future prospects in life, I very respectfully beg that the decision of the authorities may be obtained and conveyed to me.

I have, &c.,

ARTHUR LE PATOUREL, Lieut.,
Commanding No. 2 Battery, N.S.W.A.

The Major of Brigade, W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Comdg. N.S.W. Art., 5/10/82.

Officer Commanding P.A.,—I have received no specific reply to the applications referred to by Lieut. A. Le Patourel, but I have gathered from a minute addressed to me by Sir John Robertson when acting as Colonial Secretary that those applications could not be acceded to.

W.B.B.C., Lt.-Col., 6/10/82.

Lieut. A. Le Patourel, for information.—W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Commanding N.S.W. Art., 7/10/82. Return.

The Officer Commdg. N.S.W.A.,—In reply to the Acting Commandant's memo., dated 6/10/82, I have the honor most respectfully to state that I have no desire to act in any way contrary to the wishes of senior military authority, but I must respectfully request that this correspondence may be forwarded to higher authority, as the position I now hold is most anomalous.

As a Lieut. in the N.S.W. Artillery, I have held command of a battery for a considerable time, and on two occasions have been highly recommended for promotion.

I should be glad, therefore, to be informed what the instructions of the Government are in regard to the position which I have held as the officer filling the post of Captain commanding No. 2 Battery since the 3rd of March, 1881 to the present date.—A. LE P., Lt., Commdg. No. 2 Battery, 9/10/82.

The Officer Commanding No. 2 Bat. (Lieut. A. Le Patourel),—The 3rd par. of your memo., 9/10/82, I fail to understand. The Government, as far as I know, have given no instructions with regard to the position you hold as Officer Commanding No. 2 Battery.—W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Comdg. N.S.W. Art., 9/10/82.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A.,—In reply to your memo. of 9/10/82, as the par. 3 of my memo. of that date appears to be ambiguous, respectfully ask to withdraw it; at the same time I have the honor to request that you will again forward this correspondence to the Acting Commandant, with a view to its being submitted to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary. My reason for specially asking this, in the face of the Acting Commandant's memo. dated 6/10/82, is, that it is therein stated that no specific reply has been received, and I may state that, keeping my private affairs and future prospects in view, it is essential for me, if possible, to obtain a specific and final reply. In requesting this, I beg to disclaim any attempt to interfere with the ruling of or intimation from higher authority; but my sole object is to arrange decisively my private affairs, which I should be very sorry to do, as one of the senior subalterns of the N.S.W. Artillery, in the absence of specific instructions from the Government as to what is intended to be done with regard to the vacancy for Captain which has been existing since the 18th of June, 1877.—ARTHUR LE PATOUREL, Lieut., Commdg. No. 2 Battery, 10/10/82. The Acting Commandant.—W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Comdg. N.S.W. Art., 13/10/82.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 17 October, 1882.

I have the honor to forward herewith a communication received from Lieut. A. Le Patourel, of the Permanent Artillery, requesting that he may be furnished with some specific answer to the application, made by him, or on his behalf, for promotion to the rank of Captain in his corps, vide letters 81-137, dated 22nd March, 1882, and 82-213 of the 22nd May last, addressed to you.

It will be noted that I have already informed Lieut. A. Le Patourel that, though I had received no specific reply to the applications in question, I had nevertheless been given to understand by Sir John Robertson, K.C.M.G., when acting as Colonial Secretary (in minute dated 2/8/82), that the applications in question would not be favourably entertained.

Lieut. Le Patourel indicates that, as his future course of life will largely depend on the action taken by the Government in this matter, he is especially desirous of having the decision with reference to his proposed promotion definitely conveyed to him.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Col.,
Acting Commandant.

Lieut. Nathan to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 19 January, 1883.

I have the honor to request that you will forward to the proper authorities this my application for the captaincy at present vacant in the N.S.W. Artillery.

I beg to state that during the last (9) nine months I have performed the duties of Acting Brigade Adjutant to the N.S.W. Artillery, and at the last continuous training at Middle Head Camp I performed the duties of Acting Brigade Major to the camp composed of the N.S.W. Artillery, the Volunteer Artillery, and the Torpedo Corps, for which I received special mention in Artillery Brigade Orders of 12th April, 1882.

I have, &c.,

R. A. NATHAN,
Lieut. and Actg. Adjt., N.S.W.A.

The Major of Brigade, for consideration of proper authorities.—W.S., Lt.-Colonel, Comdg. Art. Forces, 19/1/83.

The Acting Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 20 January, 1883.

I have the honor to forward herewith an application from Lieutenant Nathan, of the Permanent Artillery, for promotion to the rank of Captain in that corps. The application in question is of much the same character as that submitted to you on the 22nd March, 22nd May, and 17th October, 1882 (covered by letters No. 82/137, 82/213, and 82/262 respectively, from this office), on behalf of Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, of the same corps, inasmuch as Lieutenant Nathan has not passed the professional examination which the rules of the Imperial Army, made applicable by the Local Military and Naval Forces Act, require. There are also three lieutenants senior to Lieutenant Nathan, viz., Lieutenants H. Le Patourel, A. Le Patourel, and Baynes.

I have, &c.,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Colonel,
Acting Commandant.

The filling up of the vacant captaincy ought, in justice to the Service, to be no longer delayed. As the Commandant has now returned, I would like to confer with him on this subject. To-morrow forenoon would suit me.—A.S., 8/2/83. The Commandant, B.C., 8/2/83, C.W.

The Commandant,—This should have been addressed direct to the Commander-in-Chief, and I desire in future that my instructions be obeyed.—A.L., 5/4/83.

The Principal Under-Secretary to The Commandant.

My dear Richardson,

I send you all the papers about the promotion in the Permanent Force. Kindly bring them with you when you come to see Mr. Stuart to-morrow, at 10:30.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 8/2/83.Yours very truly,
CRITCHETT WALKER.

Col. Richardson had better write his views on this matter.—A.S., 6/3/83. The Commandant, B.C., 6/3/83, C.W.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 13 March, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the Colonial Secretary's minute, dated 6/3/83, on accompanying correspondence relating to the vacant captaincy in the N.S.W. Artillery, calling upon me for an opinion as to the best course to be pursued for filling up such vacancy.

I have attentively perused the correspondence which has taken place on the subject during my absence from the Colony, including a letter dated 15th August last, addressed to the Colonial Secretary by the Acting Commandant, Lieut.-Colonel Christie, wherein that officer very clearly points out the only courses then open for adoption, and which may be briefly recapitulated as follows:—

- 1st. To uphold decision to quash proceedings of Board of Examination held in 1880, and direct the assembly of a fresh Board.
- 2nd. To uphold examination of 1880, and promote Lieutenant Airey, the second senior officer then reported as qualified by the Board, and who was in other respects fitted.
- 3rd. To uphold examination of 1880, and reconsider the personal eligibility of the four officers reported as qualified by the Board—viz., Lieutenants Baynes, Airey, Bouverie, and Savage; call upon the Officer Commanding the N.S.W. Artillery for further report of their respective conduct and qualifications, and promote the senior who may be considered to be worthy of advancement.

The situation may, however, be said to have somewhat changed since the date of Lieut.-Colonel Christie's letter, by the departure of Lieutenant Bouverie from the Colony. Such being the case, would it be quite just now to order a fresh examination, and thus exclude an officer who has already passed a former one, especially as the more difficult nature intended to be applied to the prospective examination will, in all probability, still further limit the number of successful candidates? To await Lieut. Bouverie's return, and give him time to prepare himself for examination, would involve a further delay in filling the vacancy of some twelve or fifteen months, and serve to perpetuate in a greater degree a state of affairs which, I am assured, has materially impaired that spirit of harmony and good feeling amongst the officers which is essential to the credit of the corps.

It would, then, seem to be a matter for consideration whether, in the interests of the Service, it would not be better to forego the determination to have a fresh examination, and to hold as good that which has already taken place.

Should this course be followed, it then becomes a question which of the other two alternatives is the more appropriate. The advancement of officers has undoubtedly a very large bearing upon the efficiency, discipline, and credit of the Service; and it is therefore important that claims for promotion should be dealt with on a strictly legal and impartial basis, and in accordance with the rules and customs of the Service. I am consequently of opinion that the third course should be adopted, on the ground that a considerable time has elapsed since Colonel Roberts' report against Lieut. Baynes was submitted to His Excellency, and that the report in question was not sufficiently specific in its character, or made in such a manner as it would seem it should have been, to have placed Lieut. Baynes in a position to exonerate himself, seeing the extent to which his character as an officer was impeached, and his professional prospects injuriously affected thereby.

Should this officer be unable to clear himself, it would then appear that Lieut. Airey would be legally entitled to the promotion, provided the report of the Officer Commanding Artillery was in his favour.

I have also to point out that the special claims to promotion advanced by Lieutenants A. Le Patourel and Nathan cannot, under the laws and regulations governing the Military Service, be held to be valid, inasmuch as these officers have failed to pass the qualifying examination for the rank of captain.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Col.,
Commandant.

Submitted, 19/3/83.

Here, again, the Commandant ignores the Commander-in-Chief. This correspondence should have been addressed direct to the Commander-in-Chief.—A.L., 5/4/83.

Minute by Colonial Secretary.

Subject:—Filling up of vacant captaincy in Permanent Artillery.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 31 March, 1883.

I have carefully perused the Commandant's letter of 13th instant. It appears to me rather doubtful whether this is a subject in which I have any right to interfere at this stage. I am inclined to think that, on the lines laid down in the voluminous correspondence between my predecessors, Sir Henry Parkes and Sir John Robertson on the one side, and His Excellency the Governor, as Commander-in-Chief, on the other, this case is one that falls to the Commander-in-Chief to deal with.

I admit that it is doubtful, and a good deal may be said in support of either view, but I think it would perhaps be better for the Commandant to send it direct to His Excellency as Commander-in-Chief.

I would merely point out that there appears to me another course which might be considered in reference to this case.

It

It is acknowledged on all hands that some degree of irregularity has occurred—undesignedly, no doubt—and none of the courses suggested by the Commandant seem to be free from some degree of hardship to some one.

Might it not be a better way out of the difficulty to take the lieutenants according to seniority, and say to each, "Are you willing to endeavour to pass this examination within the next three (3) months?" If so, and you do pass, you shall have the promotion; if you decline to try it, or if you fail on trial, the chance passes to the next in seniority.

I only throw this out as a suggestion to get out of the present unsatisfactory position, for, with my present doubt as to its falling within my province to deal with, I distinctly refrain from giving any instruction or approval or otherwise on the point.

A.S., 31/3/83.

I have no objection to this going to the C.-in-C. with the other papers on the footing laid down here.—A.S. His Excellency. Seen, 7/4/83.—A.L.

Minute for the Honorable Colonial Secretary.

I ENTIRELY concur in the suggestion contained in your minute of March 31, 1883, that the vacancy to the rank of Captain in the Permanent Force should be offered to the senior lieutenant, on condition that he is prepared to pass the required examination within three months from the date of the offer.

In the event of his declining, or of his failure to pass the examination, the same offer to be made to the lieutenants according to their seniority in the regiment.

The promotion will also depend on a favourable report of the candidate being received from the Commanding Officer of the regiment.

A.L., 7/4/83.

Minute by His Excellency the Governor.

The Colonial Secretary, for the Commandant. Government House, Sydney, N. S. Wales.
WITH reference to the various letters enclosed in the minute of the Colonial Secretary of 31st March, '83, for my perusal, from Colonels Richardson and Christie, I observe with surprise and displeasure that this correspondence has been entirely withheld from my knowledge.

Colonel Christie has taken upon himself to suggest a course of action in regard to certain promotions in the Permanent Force, involving the rescinding of a decision taken collectively by the Commander-in-Chief and the Colonial Secretary, and ventures to question the advisability of that decision.

Both Colonel Richardson and Colonel Christie appear to ignore completely the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, and to correspond directly without his knowledge with the Colonial Secretary's Office on military matters, which are distinctly within the authority of the Commander-in-Chief.

I cannot too strongly express my disapproval of this conduct; and, to obviate in future such irregularity, I now order and desire the Commandant henceforward to address to me all official reports of whatever nature referring to the Permanent Artillery Forces of this Colony, to be forwarded by me to the Colonial Secretary.

I further order and direct the Commandant to forward direct to the Colonial Secretary, to be submitted to me (if so required), all official reports of whatever nature referring to the Volunteer Forces.

A.L. 7/4/83.

The Commandant, A.S., 9/4/83.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, 14 April, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt yesterday of the accompanying correspondence, as per schedule, having reference to the promotion of subaltern officers of the N.S.W. Artillery, together with copy of His Excellency's minute to the Colonial Secretary, dated 7th instant, defining the procedure proposed to be adopted for carrying out such promotion, and minute of His Excellency, also dated 7th inst., addressed through the Colonial Secretary to the Commandant.

In this latter minute His Excellency expresses surprise and displeasure that the correspondence first alluded to has been entirely withheld from his knowledge; that Lieut.-Colonel Christie has taken upon himself to suggest therein a course of action calculated to contravene the decision of the Commander-in-Chief and the Colonial Secretary in regard to such promotion, and moreover, has ventured to question the advisability of that decision; that both Colonel Richardson and Lieut.-Colonel Christie appear to have completely ignored the Commander-in-Chief, and have corresponded directly, without his knowledge, with the Colonial Secretary's Office, on military matters distinctly within the authority of the Commander-in-Chief. His Excellency further observes that he cannot too strongly express disapproval of this conduct, and orders for the future that all official reports relating to the Permanent Artillery shall be addressed direct to himself, and all official reports relating to the Volunteer Force direct to the Colonial Secretary.

Lieut.-Colonel Christie having acted as Commandant in the matter referred to, during my absence, has been apprised of the nature of His Excellency's minute. His explanation in reference thereto is attached.

As to my withholding the correspondence from the knowledge of His Excellency, I would observe that, with the exception of letter addressed to the Under-Secretary, dated the 13th of March last, I have had had nothing whatever to do with the matter; and in addressing that letter, as noted, I obeyed the direct order of the Ministerial Head of the Department, as conveyed to me by minute of 6th of March, 1883, on Lieut.-Colonel Christie's letter of the 20th of January, 1883, No. 83/39. I am, moreover, not aware that I have ignored His Excellency's authority as Commander-in-Chief in regard to the conduct of the military correspondence, inasmuch that I believe I have scrupulously adhered to the joint instructions issued for my guidance by himself and the Colonial Secretary, under date the 16th and 17th of March, 1881; in proof of which I take the liberty of quoting His Excellency's words, as contained in document of latter date:—"With reference to the minute of Sir Henry Parkes, I have to instruct you to address in future all communications of a military nature (with the exception of those referring purely to military discipline, such as Courts Martial, sentences of Courts Martial, &c., &c.) to the responsible Minister, who will take the necessary action in regard to their submission to the Commander-in-Chief and the Executive Council." These joint instructions have not been cancelled, and I apprehend that the question of promotion can hardly be said to be included in the category of such formal matters of purely military discipline as "Courts Martial and sentences of Courts Martial."

In regard to the orders contained in His Excellency's minute as to the future conduct of the correspondence of this Department, I have to observe (as on former occasions) that I am actually required to carry out two sets of instructions conflicting with each other, and in the event of obedience being rendered to the one authority I lay myself open to censure by the other. I may be pardoned the remark that it is quite impossible for any officer, however well-intentioned, to carry out his duties satisfactorily under such circumstances; and I therefore have again respectfully to express a hope that I may be forthwith relieved from a position of such embarrassment.

In conclusion, I may remind you that on a previous occasion Lord Augustus Loftus was pleased in an official document to censure me on somewhat similar grounds. I need hardly say that my position and authority cannot but be discredited by repeated misunderstandings and charges of unbecoming conduct; and under the circumstances, and as a duty which I conceive I owe to the Service and myself, I have, with the utmost respect, to request that I may be relieved of my command pending inquiry into my alleged misconduct.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

J.S.R., Colonel,
Commandant.

Lieutenant-Colonel Christie to The Commandant.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 14 April, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of a portion of a minute prepared by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, on the 7th instant, in which exception is taken by His Excellency, firstly, to my having suggested, with reference to the question of promotions in the Permanent Artillery, a course of action involving the rescinding of a decision previously arrived at by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the Colonial Secretary, and secondly, at my having corresponded direct with the Colonial Secretary.

As regards the first matter, I would remark that the difficulties of the situation with reference to these promotions were in no way of my creation, and that both the general report on the case and that embodying the suggestions with reference thereto were made by me on the direct instructions of the Colonial Secretary to that effect, and were in no sense initiated by myself. I conceive, however, that occupying the position I did at the time they were rendered, I should have entirely failed in my duty had

I not honestly and fully given to the Government my opinion as to the best mode of meeting the difficulties of the then situation, which latter I may remark had considerably altered, as I am prepared to show, from that which existed nearly two years before, when the joint decision of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the Colonial Secretary was arrived at. Those suggestions, I may also state, were made in all singleness of purpose, with the personal responsibility for the loyal and legal exercise of command pressing upon me, and I need scarcely say if adopted could have tended to serve no purpose of my own, other than in so far as they might have been calculated to contribute to the wellbeing of the Service.

With respect to my having transmitted the reports in question direct to the Colonial Secretary, I conceive that I simply obeyed the instructions formulated jointly by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the Colonial Secretary, and communicated to the executive Head of the Military Department, on the 16th and 17th March, 1881, inasmuch as the reports in question did not relate to matters of discipline. That this view was also taken by others seems clear, seeing the instructions of the Colonial Secretary directing the rendering of them were sent to me direct, and not through the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I cannot but regret that any action of mine should have met with the reprobation of one holding the high office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief. At the same time, remembering that during a military service of now nearly thirty years I have on no previous occasion had my official conduct animadverted on, as respects its loyalty or otherwise, I trust that the justification which I have thought it necessary to give may meet with all due consideration, and may be held to warrant the withdrawal of the censure which obedience to the orders of higher authority has brought upon me.

No. 6.

Lieut. Le Patourel to The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 27 January, 1883.

I have the honor to request that you will forward to the proper authorities this my resignation from the New South Wales Artillery from the 20th of March, 1883; and that, in consideration of my having performed my duties faithfully during the period of my commission, viz., from August, 1876, in consequence of which I have been allowed to hold command of the Field Battery since March, 1881, up to the present date, and also that I have on two occasions been recommended for promotion by my commanding officers, I trust that you may have it within your province to recommend that I may be permitted to retire with the rank of Captain and the right to wear the uniform.

I have, &c.,

ARTHUR LE PATOUREL, Lt.,
Comg. 2 Battery.

The Commandant,—Recommended that Lieut. A. Le Patourel's resignation be accepted; that he may be gazetted out with the honorary rank of Captain, and granted permission to wear the uniform of N.S.W. Artillery.—W.S., Lt.-Col., Comg. N.S.W. Art., 29/1/83.

Officer Comg. P.A.—The Commandant would wish the warrant should be indicated under which the step of rank and permission to wear uniform is claimed.—By Command, W.B.B.C., Lt.-Col., 5/2/83.

The Officer Comg. No. 2 Battery,—Can Lieut. A. Le Patourel quote date of warrant?—W.S., Lt.-Col., Comg. N.S.W. Art., 6/2/83.

Lieut. A. Le Patourel.—H.D.M., Adj., 6/2/83.

The Officer Comg. No. 2 Battery,—In answer to the Brigade Major's memo. dated 5/2/83, I am unable to quote the required warrant, inasmuch as that it is quite impossible for me to procure it, but I respectfully wish to point out that one must exist, as on reference to the Army List it will be seen that Lieutenants in the Imperial Service have retired on half-pay with the rank of Captain. I quote the following cases, viz., Lieut. Mountstevens, gazetted Lieut. 11th November, 1869, retired as Captain, 3rd August, 1872, Lieutenant Hallett, gazetted Lieut. 10th April, 1867, retired as Captain 14th November, 1872, and others. As I do not ask the compensation of half-pay, I venture to hope that the Commandant may yet be able to forward my application.—A. LeP., Lt., 12/2/83.

Officer Comg. N.S.W.A. Forwarded.—H.D.M., Capt. Comg. No. 2 Bat., 12/2/83. The Major of Brigade.—W.S., Lt.-Col., Comg. N.S.W.A., 12/2/83.

The Officer Comg. N.S.W. Artillery,—

The Commandant regrets extremely that he does not see his way to the adoption of such a precedent as that of recommending a departure from the Military Regulations of the Imperial Army, made applicable in the Colony by local enactment, inasmuch as if he did so in one instance he would find much difficulty in declining to do it in another.

The cases quoted by Lieut. A. Le Patourel, it may be noted, have no applicability—1st. Because the officers in question belonged to the Marines, who are subject to Admiralty and not Military Regulations on such points; 2nd. Because the officers in question were promoted to the half-pay list, and not retired from the Service with increased rank. In the Imperial Army promotions of lieutenants to half-pay companies are sometimes made, although this is not on retirement, but for retention on the half-pay list with liability to be brought back to full pay, which indeed is, as a rule, done within twelve months. But even these promotions to the half-pay list are only made on conditions which are not met in Lieut. A. Le Patourel's case.

A further reason why the Commandant does not see his way to departing from the Regulations is that in a somewhat recent case in the Volunteer Force the strict observance of the Regulations as to retirement of officers on their rank was insisted on, and the step of rank asked for refused.—By Command, W.B.B.C., Lt.-Col., Major of Brigade, 14/2/83.

The Officer comg. No. 2 Battery,—

For Lieut. A. Le Patourel's information, and such remarks as he may desire to make.—W.S. Lt.-Col., Comg., N.S.W.A., 16/2/83. Lieut. A. Le Patourel.—H.D.M., Capt., Comg. No. 2 Bat., 16/2/83

The Officer Commanding No. 2 Battery,—

I most respectfully request that this correspondence may be forwarded to higher authority for their consideration.

I respectfully submit that the Lieutenants of the Royal Marines quoted by me hold the Army and not the Navy rank of Captain. I may also mention that Lieutenant Samuel Lang, of the 93rd Regiment, was allowed to retire with the honorary rank of Captain in 1881.

Had I joined the Imperial Service at the time I accepted a commission in the N.S.W. Artillery, the whole of my Militia service would have counted towards a retiring pension.

It seems extremely hard that officers of the Permanent Force, who make the military service their profession, should be deprived of any benefit that might be granted, for the reason that the Volunteer Officers might claim the same.

Volunteer Officers are on quite a different footing to those of the N.S.W. Artillery, the latter being under the Army Act, which the former are not.

Volunteer Officers of the Imperial Service are not granted the same privileges as Officers of the Regulars.—A. LEP., Lt., 19/2/83.

The Major of Brigade.—W.S., Lt.-Col., Comg. N.S.W.A., 19/2/83.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 1 March, 1883.

I have the honor to forward herewith a letter from Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, resigning his commission in the Permanent Artillery of this Colony from the 20th instant, accompanied by a request that he may be permitted to retire with the rank of Captain and to wear the uniform of the corps.

A perusal of the correspondence arising out of that portion, relating to the retirement as Captain, will show that I have been compelled to adopt a view antagonistic thereto, on the grounds that under the Regulations which, by local enactment, govern the N.S.W. Artillery, Lieutenant A. Le Patourel is not entitled to retire with increased rank; as also, that if his request is granted, an inconvenient precedent would be set up, enabling every officer in the future to claim on retirement a step in rank, however limited his service might be. I also pointed out that a like concession had already been refused to an officer of another branch of the Force similarly situated.

The cases quoted by Lieutenant A. Le Patourel are not applicable to the situation, and I am convinced that under no circumstances whatever has this privilege been conceded in the Imperial Service, as quoted by Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, to an officer who has failed, as he has done, to pass the qualifying examination for promotion to the rank of Captain.

I am, therefore, unable to advise compliance with Lieut. A. Le Patourel's application for promotion on retirement.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Submitted.—8/3/83. His Excellency.—A.S., 16/3/83.

The Colonial Secretary,—This letter ought to have been addressed direct to the Commander-in-Chief. When so received I will take cognizance of it.—A.L., 17/3/83.

The Commandant.—A.S., 19/3/83. B.C., 19/3/83.—C.W.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 17 March, 1883.

I have the honor to acquaint you, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, that I have received instructions from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief to recall the letter transmitted by me to you for consideration, dated the 1st instant, forwarding an application made by Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, of the Permanent Artillery, tendering the resignation of his commission, &c. &c., and to forward the same direct to him.

As the matter of Lieut. A. Patourel's resignation is apparently not one of discipline, it appears to me the instruction referred to is at variance with those formulated for my guidance by Sir Henry Parkes, when acting as Colonial Secretary, in his minute of 16 March, 1881, addressed to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, which was at the time duly notified to me, as also with those contained in a letter dated 17 March, 1881, addressed to me from His Excellency, bearing on the same subject (extract herewith).

Under these circumstances I would draw attention to the anomalous position which I now (as I have done on previous occasions) occupy, in being required to carry out two sets of orders conflicting with each other, and in the event of obedience being accorded to the one authority rendering myself open to censure by the other. It will easily be understood that, in consequence of the existing state of things,

I am entirely at a loss as to how I am expected to perform my duties, and find the position of such an embarrassing character that I would most respectfully venture to think I should in some way be forth with relieved from it.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Submitted, 26/3/83. Seen.—A.S., 27/3/83.

Extract from a letter from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief to the Commandant, dated 17 March, 1881, covering copy of a minute from the Colonial Secretary, dated the 16th March, 1881, on the subject of correspondence :—

“ With reference to the minute of Sir Henry Parkes, I have to instruct you to address in future all communications of a military nature, with the exception of those referring purely to military discipline, such as Courts-martial, sentences of Court-martial, &c. &c., to the responsible Minister, who will take the necessary action in regard to their submission to the Commander-in-Chief and the Executive Council.”

I have, &c.,

The Commandant to The Commander-in-Chief.

My Lord,

In accordance with instructions, I have the honor to forward the within correspondence, having reference to the retirement from the service of Lieutenant Arthur Le Patourel, New South Wales Art.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Colonial Secretary,—Resignation accepted.—A.L., 21/3/83.

The further application of Lieut. A. Le Patourel will be taken into due consideration.—A.L.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

I have the honor to forward correspondence which I have received from His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, in reference to the resignation of Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, N.S.W. Artillery. My letter of the 1st instant, No. 83,97, addressed to the Colonial Secretary, and covering the application of Lieutenant A. Le Patourel, has not been returned with other portion of correspondence.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Lieutenant Le Patourel may be gazetted out, and he may be informed that when regulations are made relative to honorary rank, his case will not be prejudiced by reason of his having resigned before such regulations were made.—A.S., 30/3/83.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Sydney, 23 April, 1883.

With reference to Brigade Office letter, dated 12th April, I have the honor to forward, for the information of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, reports from Lieut.-Col. Spalding (the senior officer in command during my absence on leave) and myself, on the subaltern officers of the N.S.W. Art.

Two enclosures.

I have, &amp;c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel,
Comg. N.S.W. Artillery.

Subaltern Officers.

Col. Roberts' Confidential Report, in continuation of previous Confidential Report dated 21/10/80.

This officer was not reported upon in October, 1880, as he did not present himself for examination. He has carried out his duties from time to time, when not on the sick list, in a fair manner, and has a good average knowledge of his drills. He maintains his position with regard to those under him in a proper manner. He has, however, on several occasions been cautioned with regard to want of proper supervision and management of the accounts of his battery while in temporary command.

Lieut. Henry Le Patourel.

Lieut. Baynes.—This officer is a good drill, and well up in his duties. I regret, however, to have to notice that he has not benefited by previous warnings, having again been cautioned, by His Excellency's desire in October, 1882. At the latter end of 1880 he was reported for carelessness in connection with the command of his battery, and His Excellency held him guilty of carelessness. His Excellency's minute of October, 1880, states that his claim for future promotion will depend upon reports on an amendment with regard to points reported.

Lieut. F. T. B. Baynes.

Lieutenant Nathan.—I can only refer to my previous remarks on this officer's qualifications, and add that he has shown a continuous determination to carry out his duties and instructions.

Lieut. R. A. Nathan.

Lieut. H. P. Airey.—This officer has, since my previous report, displayed a want of care with respect to the charge of public moneys; in other respects has performed his duties satisfactorily.

Lieut. H. P. Airey.

Lieut. C. W. P. Bouverie.—Has, since my previous report, been cautioned for non-compliance with the orders of his senior officer, the case having been referred to higher authority. This officer is at present on leave to Europe until end of November, 1883.

Lieut. C. W. P. Bouverie.

Lieut. A. H. P. Savage.—I can only repeat my previous report on this officer, and state that he has been most painstaking and careful in the performance of all his duties; and that he has a very good knowledge of the interior economy of a battery, and is a good drill.

Lieut. A. H. P. Savage.

Lieut. A. Le Patourel.—An officer who I am extremely sorry to find has resigned his commission. He was in my opinion in every way qualified to command a battery, and was an excellent drill, carrying out orders strictly and carefully, and obeying all commands most cheerfully. Had he remained in the Force, I should have strongly represented his claim for promotion to the higher authorities.

Lieut. Arthur Le Patourel (late 2nd senior subaltern).

Lt.-Col. Spalding's Confidential Report, Subaltern Officers, N.S.W. Art., from 22 March, 1882, to 8 April, 1883.

Carries out his duties in a fair manner, has a fair knowledge of the interior economy of a battery; is a fair drill with garrison guns; maintains his proper position with regard to non-commissioned officers and men.

Lieut. Henry Le Patourel, 9 April, 1875, appointed to N.S.W. A.

Was

Lieut. F. T. B. Baynes, appointed to N.S.W. Art. 5th Sept., 1876.

Was on sick list from 7th March, 1882, until 21st February, 1883; consequently I am unable to report as to the general knowledge of duty, &c., possessed by this officer. On 15 Oct., 1882, Lt. Baynes, by command of His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, was cautioned as follows:—"I further desire that Lieut. Baynes be cautioned to be more careful in his intercourse with the non-commissioned officers and men of the regiment. On 20 Oct., 1882, the Lieut.-Colonel commanding N.S.W. Art., in a memo. addressed to "the Senior Artillery Officer, Victoria Barracks," writes:—"It would have been more discreet for Lieut. Baynes not to have seen Sergt. Paviour, or any non-commissioned officer or gunner, with reference to the business transaction of another officer with the canteen." On 2nd October, 1882, the Officer Commanding No. 1 Battery, N.S.W. Art. was desired by the Lieut.-Colonel commanding N.S.W. Art. to caution Lieut. Baynes "to be more careful as to the manner of forwarding official correspondence."

Lieut. R. A. Nathan, appointed to N.S.W. Art. 31 July, 1877. Acting-Adjt., 1882 & 1883.

An excellent officer; a good drill at field battery and garrison guns; has a very considerable knowledge of the interior economy of the regiment; has been Acting-Adjutant, N.S.W. Art. during my temporary command; also Acting Major of Bde. during the Easter Encampments (Artillery) of 1882 and 1883; has carried out duties and orders with intelligence and zeal, and given his commanding officer support and assistance; maintains his position with regard to non-commissioned officers and gunners.

Lieut. H. P. Airey, appointed to N.S.W. Art. 31 July, 1877.

A fair officer; possesses a good knowledge of field battery and garrison gun drill; has failed in two instances in carrying out orders relating to the payment into the Bank of canteen moneys in his custody, viz., in May, June, 1882, also Dec., 1882. The amounts due were paid immediately Lieut. Airey's attention was called to his neglect of orders. Maintains his position with regard to non-comd. officers and men; has been on detachment duty, South Head.

Lieut. C. W. P. Bouverie, appointed 25 Nov. 1873.

An excellent officer, well up in field battery and garrison gun drill; has a good knowledge of the interior economy of a battery; carries out orders with care and zeal; maintains his position as regards non-commissioned officers and gunners.

Lieut. Arthur H. P. Savage, 25 Nov., 1878.

An excellent officer, has a good knowledge of garrison gun drill and the interior economy of a battery; carries out orders with care and zeal; maintains his position with regard to non-comd. officers and gunners; has been on detachment duty, Middle Head.—WARNER SPALDING, Lieut.-Colonel, N.S.W. Art., 17/4/83.

Lieut. Arthur Le Patourel.

An excellent officer; was in command of No. 2 Battery, N.S.W. Art., from 22nd March, 1882, until 31 January, 1883; performed his duties to my satisfaction; resigned his commission, 4 April, 1883.—WARNER SPALDING, Lt.-Col., N.S.W. Art., 17/4/83.

The Officer Commanding N.S.W.A. The Officer Commanding N.S.W. Art. will be good enough to comply with terms of General Order of 1st of February, 1882, No. 38/82, and again return these documents to me. The General Order in question requires that whenever any officer is disadvantageously reported upon, he will be officially informed of the particulars of such report by the officer making it, and a note made in the report that these instructions have been duly attended to, or an explanation furnished why they have not been carried out, &c., &c. It would seem that the officers to whom this action should apply are Lieutenants H. Le Patourel, Baynes, and Airey.—J.S.R., Colonel Comdt., 24/4/83.

As this was considered a special report, copies were not forwarded at same time as this letter. The above memo. has to-day been complied with, and the officers furnished with copies; delay occurred on account of copies having to be made by myself in absence of any confidential person under me.—CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel, 26/4/83.

Colonel Roberts to Colonel Richardson.

Dear Colonel Richardson,

25 April, /83.

With reference to memo. on confidential report, I treated this as a special report—not as an inspection report. If you still wish the officers to be informed prior to its transmission to His Excellency, it can be done at once.

Yours, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Col.

Colonel Richardson to Colonel Roberts.

Dear Colonel Roberts,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 25 April, /83.

The report in question being in the nature of a confidential report, as alluded to in the Queen's Regulations, and affecting the professional prospects of officers, should be dealt with as laid down. I may also remind you that the officer disadvantageously noted in your first confidential report was informed of the terms of the same. This course seems necessary as a measure of fairness.

Yours, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 27 April, 1883.

I have the honor to forward for consideration the confidential reports of Colonel Roberts and Lieut.-Colonel Spalding, of the Permanent Artillery, in regard to the personal efficiency and conduct, &c., of the subaltern officers of that corps, as called for by your Lordship's letter of the 10th instant.

In accordance with the Queen's Regulations, I have also to submit my own opinion on the subject, and more particularly, I conceive, on those portions of the reports which bear disadvantageously on certain officers whose professional prospects may be thereby materially affected.

Towards the latter end of 1880 certain irregularities were brought to my notice on the part of Lieutenants H. Le Patourel and Baynes, in connection with the temporary charge, &c., of batteries, and, after investigation, I adjudged these officers to have been guilty of great carelessness. Notwithstanding that I found it necessary, for the sake of example, to order them to be reprimanded and cautioned, I was yet yet of opinion that there were circumstances of an extenuating character surrounding the case, which prevented me joining in an unqualified condemnation of these officers, more especially as any person thoroughly conversant with the Service would readily call to mind the numerous instances in which Imperial officers, of far higher position and experience than those in question, have under ordinary circumstances experienced difficulties, complications, and loss, during the administration of their commands, and that without involving any very serious issue to themselves.

With covering letter of 23rd inst.

As regards the charge preferred against Lieut. Baynes, in 1880, of improper association with the non-commissioned officers and men of the corps, I must again observe that Colonel Roberts' report embodying the same was not sufficiently specific in its character, or made in such a manner as it would seem it should have been made, to have placed Lieut. Baynes in a position to conclusively exonerate himself, seeing the extent to which his character as an officer was impeached and his professional prospects injuriously affected thereby. It followed, therefore, that Lieut. Baynes' reply to the charge has been limited to a general denial.

Coming to the reiterated charge more recently preferred against this officer of undue intercourse with the non-commissioned officers and men of the corps, I cannot but observe that the evidence collected by the Court of Inquiry which investigated the matter indicates, in my opinion, that substantially there had been no such undue intercourse as alleged. Under these circumstances I am unable to concur in Colonel Roberts' assertion that Lieut. Baynes "has not been benefited by previous warnings," although I am of opinion that he undoubtedly exhibited a want of discretion, seeing that a similar charge had been previously directed against him.

I have no knowledge of the charge against Lieut. Airey, viz., "of having displayed a want of care with respect to the charge of the public moneys," as no report of that nature appears to have been forwarded to this office, and I should therefore gather that the matter is not possessed of serious import. Lieut. Airey having, however, been informed of the report made against him, will doubtless take an early opportunity to offer explanation.

Lieut. Bouverie appears on one occasion to have been guilty of disobedience of orders, for which he was censured by your Excellency's direction.

The former confidential report, quoted by Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery, was forwarded to your Excellency on the 22nd of October, 1880.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 30 May, 1883.

I have to instruct you, with the concurrence of the Colonial Secretary, to take the necessary steps for holding a qualifying examination of the lieutenants of the Permanent Artillery for promotion to a captaincy, and to notify the same to the Officer Commanding that Force.

The Board of Examiners will consist of Colonel Roberts as President, Colonel Christie, Brigade Major, and Captain Mackenzie of the Permanent Artillery, late Acting Brigade Major.

The

The examination will be held (say) within three months from the date of the official notification, and you will arrange the precise date most convenient for the Board to meet.

I have to request that you will prepare, as prescribed by the Regulations, a list of the subjects and questions for examination, and select and notify the text books from which the questions are to be asked.

The Board will forward their report to me through you, and I have to request that you will accompany it with any observations or comments which you may deem advisable.

With reference to your letter, dated the 1st of last month, calling upon me to furnish copies of certain papers called for by Parliament, as also to my letter No. 83/275 of the 29th ultimo, asking that certain documents bearing on the correspondence in question may be furnished, in view of my carrying out the instructions conveyed to me, I have the honor to direct attention to statements generally made, more especially recently in Parliament, to the effect that it was on the advice of Major-General Scratchley, C.M.G., that a decision was arrived at to the effect that the examination of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery held in the year 1880 was not of a sufficiently difficult character, and should therefore be cancelled. Should such advice have been given, as I presume it would have been in writing, I have to request I may be furnished with the original, or a copy thereof, in view of attaching it to the correspondence called for by Parliament, of which it would naturally form part.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 7 June, 1883.

I have the honor to state, in reply to your communication of the 6th instant, that the only instructions which have recently reached me, in regard to a further examination of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, are those contained in your Excellency's minute of the 7th of April last, forwarded to me by the Colonial Secretary. These instructions were duly complied with, and the result notified to your Excellency in my letter of the 14th ultimo, No. 83/235.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 9 June, 1883.

I have the honor to forward a letter of this date addressed by me to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, inviting attention to certain points in connection with the instructions recently issued for the appointment of a Board to conduct an examination of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery.

His Excellency having forwarded his instructions to me through the Ministerial Head of the Military Department, would seem to indicate that in this particular instance I should adopt that channel of communication. Should I be in error, I shall be glad if the correspondence be returned to me for direct transmission to His Excellency.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

His Excellency.—A.S., 23/6/83.

The

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 9 June, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt yesterday, through the Colonial Secretary, of a letter dated 30th ultimo, notifying the appointment of a Board, consisting of Colonel Roberts, Commanding Permanent Artillery, as President, Lieut.-Colonel Christie, Major of Brigade, and Captain Mackenzie, Permanent Artillery, as members, to conduct the examination of certain subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, desirous of qualifying for the rank of Captain, together with other directions in connection with such examination.

As the officer directly responsible to your Excellency and the Government, I feel myself compelled, with the utmost respect, to offer the following remarks in regard to the composition of the Board, which does not appear to be in accord with either the customs of the Service or the Queen's Regulations made applicable by law to the Permanent Artillery of this Colony. An additional reason for taking this course is to be found in the fact that the Queen's Regulations hold me, as the Senior Executive Military Officer, administering a general command in connection with the various branches of the Military Forces, personally responsible for the selection of officers to compose the Board, as also for the actual appointment of the Board itself.

Such being the case, it is clearly my duty, prior to notifying the appointment of the Board in Orders, to refer this matter to your Lordship's further consideration, and in doing so, to draw attention to the fact that the Queen's Regulations pointedly indicate that the proceedings of Boards of Examination, upon which the professional prospects of officers mainly depend, are to be conducted by officers properly qualified and disassociated as far as practicable from the candidates. The inference therefore is, that this restriction is imposed in order that no ground for suspicion may be given that the result of the examination is influenced by causes other than those exclusively connected with the examination papers of the candidates.

It would therefore appear that Colonel Roberts is precluded from holding the position of Examiner, inasmuch that, as officer commanding the corps to which the candidates belong, he has been in the daily habit of commanding and associating with them, and consequently it may not be improperly assumed that he entertains favourable and unfavourable views of these officers individually. That this is so may also be judged from his two confidential reports, which were duly forwarded by me for your Excellency's information. I can also state with confidence that in the Imperial Service an officer in Colonel Roberts' peculiar position is never detailed as an Examiner. Whilst, therefore, I consider the hands of that officer to be tied in this direction, he has yet the right, subject to justification, to refuse to recommend any officer under his command for promotion, even though such officer may have successfully passed the examination test.

Captain Mackenzie is also ineligible for a seat on the Board, not having qualified for Field rank.

Should it be deemed desirable, under the circumstances above detailed, to substitute other officers for those alluded to, the same could be effected by the appointment of Majors Murphy and Airey of the Permanent Artillery, both of whom are competent to act.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Minute by His Excellency the Governor.

Government House, Sydney.

The Colonial Secretary,—To be forwarded to the Commandant.—A.L.

I do not concur in the view taken by the Commandant that Colonel Roberts is precluded from holding the position of Examiner, and I maintain his appointment as President of the Board, as laid down in para. 62 section 4 of the Queen's Regulations.

I concur in substituting Major Murphy for Captain Mackenzie as a member of the Board. In the exceptional case of this Force there is no means of complying strictly with the Queen's Regulations, and therefore the contingency provided for in those Regulations, "when it can be avoided," has to be provided for.

Minute by His Excellency the Governor.

The Colonial Secretary,—

Government House, Sydney.

Please inform me whether my instructions in regard to announcing the examination for the vacant captaincy in the Permanent Artillery have been duly notified in Brigade Orders by the Commandant, and if not why they have not been so notified.

The Commandant will please inform.—A.S., 12/7/83. B.C., 13/7/83.—C.W.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 14 July, 1883.

In compliance with instructions contained in Colonial Secretary's minute of 12/7/83, on enclosed document, I have the honor to state, in reply to His Excellency's inquiry relative to the Board to be assembled for the examination of certain subalterns of the Permanent Artillery, that the Board has not yet been detailed in Garrison Orders, inasmuch that I have not been favoured with His Lordship's final instructions as to the officers to be detailed to serve on the Board; which question was referred to His Excellency by my letter of the 9th of June last, No. 83-303.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

His

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

The Colonial Secretary, for transmission.—A.L., 18/7/83.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 18 July, 1883.

With reference to your letter of the 9th June, suggesting changes in the formation of the Board of Examiners for the examination of the officers of the Permanent Artillery, I cannot concur in your opinion in regard to Colonel Roberts, and I accordingly maintain his appointment as President of the Board.

I concur in your suggestion of substituting Major Murphy for Captain Mackenzie as a member of the Board.

I may here observe that, in the very exceptional case of this Force there is no possibility of strictly carrying out the Queen's Regulations, and the rule laid down in the Regulations, viz., "when it can be avoided," cannot in this instance be complied with.

The Board will consist of Colonel Roberts, President, Lieut.-Colonel Christie, Brigade-Major, Major Murphy; and I have to request that you will issue the necessary orders for the Board to assemble, and also the necessary instructions in regard to the books and subjects for examination.

The examination will be held at the expiration of three months from the date of the Garrison Orders.

I have, &c.,

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant.—A.S., 23/7/83. B.C., 25/7/83.—C.W.

Garrison Orders.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 1 August, 1883.

1. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, with the concurrence of the Colonial Secretary, is pleased to appoint a Board, consisting of Colonel Roberts, Commanding Permanent Artillery, as President, with Lieutenant-Colonel Christie, Major of Brigade, and Major Murphy, Permanent Artillery, as members, to assemble at the expiration of three months from this date to examine Subaltern Officers of the Permanent Artillery for promotion to the rank of Captain.

2. The written questions will be prepared by the Commandant; and the subjects of examination, and the text-books recommended, will be as noted below.

(A)—REGIMENTAL DUTIES.

The examination in this subject will be vivâ voce and by written questions.

(B)—DRILL.

The examination of this subject will be divided into two parts; one part will be practical in the field, with vivâ voce questions, the other by written questions. The knowledge of each candidate in drills and exercises is to be tested practically on parade; and in addition to giving the words of command, the candidate is to be required, in respect of Artillery, to give the explanation of the exercise or manœuvre about to be performed to the men on parade, in a clear and audible manner.

The Board will enumerate in their report the manœuvres and exercises performed, and will state clearly their opinion of the candidate's proficiency; whether he is a good, bad, or indifferent drill; whether he is able to impart instruction and is fully competent to command the body of troops he may be exercising.

The Board will satisfy themselves that the candidate is fully competent to work, mount, and dismount, shift and transport at least one gun employed in the defence, and one other gun in the attack of a fortress.

Drill will be carried on with 80-pounders, 40-pounders, and 9 and 10 inch M.L.R. guns.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade office, Sydney, 1 Aug., 1883.
I have the honor to report that, in accordance with instructions from His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, as conveyed to me by your forwarding minute of 25/7/83, endorsed on His Excellency's letter dated the 18th July, 1883, I have this day issued an order directing the assembly of a Board of Officers as nominated by His Lordship, for the purpose of carrying out, three months hence, the examination of subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery desirous of qualifying for promotion. I have also issued the necessary detailed instructions as to subjects of examination and text-books.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

Mr. Unwin to The Commandant.

Sir,

Government House, 6 August, Sydney, N.S.W.
I am desired by His Excellency to request that you will be good enough to forward a copy of the Brigade Orders notifying the examination for the Permanent Artillery Force.

I am, &c.,
H. A. UNWIN.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 6 August, 1883.
I have the honor to forward herewith copy of the Garrison Orders of the 1st instant, having reference to the forthcoming examination of certain subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery.

I have, &c.,
JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

His Excellency the Governor to The Commandant.

The Colonial Secretary, for the Commandant, 7/8/83.—A.L.

Sir,

Government House, Sydney, 7 August, 1883.
In the copy of the Garrison Orders of the 1st instant, referring to the forthcoming examination of certain of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery which was transmitted in your letter of the 6th instant, I observe that in para. 2 it is stated "The written questions will be prepared by the Commandant."

I beg to remind you that this order is not in accordance with the Queen's Regulations (sec. 4-36) which distinctly prescribes that the examination will be conducted viva voce, and by written questions by the Board.

I have consequently to request that you will immediately cause the above-named portion of para. 2 of the Garrison Order to be eliminated, simply confining it to the notification of the text-book.

I have further to request that you will instruct the Board to meet at a suitable period before the examination, to draw up the written questions for the candidates.

The Board, in accordance with the Queen's Regulations (Appendix 2), will allot a numerical value to each written question, and they (the Board) will credit each answer with a full or less number of marks according to its value.

I have, &c.,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

The Commandant.—A.S., 7/8/83. B.C., 8/8/83.—C.W.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, 10 August, 1883.
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt—covered by the Colonial Secretary's minute of 7/8/83—of a communication from His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, conveying instructions on the subject of certain details relative to the mode in which the forthcoming examination of subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery is to be conducted, and, as will be seen from attached copy of order issued, have taken the necessary steps for carrying out the same.

His

His Excellency has reminded me that the order, as originally issued, was not in accordance with the Queen's Regulations, inasmuch as it indicated that I and not the Board, was to prepare the written questions to be put to the candidates. I may perhaps be permitted respectfully to point out that it is not laid down in the Queen's Regulations that the questions in the last three of the five subjects noted (in section 4, par. 28, of the Queen's Regulations) as those in which candidates are to be examined, viz., Military Law, Duties in the Field, and Artillery, shall be prepared by the Board, but, on the contrary, by an authority independent of the Board. I may also state that I was aware the Regulations required the questions in the subjects of regimental duties and drill to be prepared by the Board; but that in issuing the order I did, relative to the preparation of the whole of the questions by myself, I was carrying out the instructions which were conveyed to me in His Excellency's letter of the 30th May last, par. 3.

At the same time, seeing the abnormal constitution of the Board—consisting, as it does, of a majority of officers belonging to the same corps as the candidates, and who have had intimate and continuous personal relationship of both a private and an official character with them, such, for instance, as that involved in the rendering previously of reports as to their individual character and attainments—I would suggest that it would accord more with both the spirit and the letter of the rules governing all examinations, including military ones, that the whole of the questions should be prepared by an authority other than the Board, and one which cannot be supposed to have any prior acquaintance, such as officers of the corps must have, with the special nature of the knowledge possessed by each candidate. It would seem to me due to the Board that some such course should be adopted.

With reference to the last paragraph of His Excellency's letter, I would point out that such an instruction has already been given to the Board, by means of that portion of the Garrison Order which directs their adherence to the instructions contained in Appendix II of the Queen's Regulations.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Colonel,
Commandant.

His Excellency.—A.S., 17/8/83.

Minute by His Excellency the Governor.

The Colonial Secretary, for the information of the Commandant.—A.L., 20/8/83.

HAVING duly weighed and considered all the bearings of the question relating to the forthcoming examination of subaltern officers of the Permanent Art., and having framed my instructions thereon—as far as circumstances admitted, in conformity with the Queen's Regulations—I see no reason for any modification of them, and I consequently direct that those instructions be strictly adhered to.—20/8/83.

The Commandant.—A.S., 20/8/83.

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

Extract from Garrison Orders.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 10 August, 1883.

2. With reference to Garrison Orders of the 1st instant, notifying the instructions of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief on the subject of the forthcoming examination of subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, His Excellency has been now pleased to direct that the written questions be prepared by the Board therein detailed, and not by the Commandant.

With reference to the undernoted subjects, twenty written questions will be prepared by the Board on each of them, viz. :—

Military Law. Duties in the field—(Field Fortification and Tactics). Artillery.

By Command,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Lt.-Col.,
Major of Brigade.

Mr. Robertson to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

85, Pitt-street North, Sydney, 9 August, 1883.

I have been given to understand that it is the intention of the Government to require the subaltern officers of the New South Wales Permanent Artillery to undergo another qualifying examination in about three months time, and, on behalf of my son-in-law, Lieutenant Pleydell Bouverie, I beg to point out that he is at present in England on nine months' leave of absence, which will not expire until the 18th Nov. next.

I have the honor therefore to submit that, in justice to Lieutenant Bouverie (he having passed the previous examination), the time for the proposed examination should not be fixed for a date prior to the expiration of his leave.

I have, &c.,

THOMAS ROBERTSON.

Submitted, 23/8/83. The Commandant.—A.S., 25/8/83. B.C., 27/8/83.—C.W.

The Principal Under-Secretary,—The order for the assembly of the Board in three months' time from date of promulgation in orders, bears date the 1st instant, and it would accordingly meet on the 1st of November. Under the circumstances His Excellency would, I anticipate, consent to the Board assembling at a later date, to permit of Lieut. Bouverie being present.—J. S. R., Col., Comndt., B.C. 28/8/83.

His Excellency.—A.S., 31/8/83. The Colonial Secretary.—A.L., 3/9/83.

In view of Mr. Robertson's application I see no objection to the postponement of the examination until the 1st Decr., should the Commandant consider that this delay will not affect the interests of the other officers going up for the examination.—A.L., 3/9/83. The Commandant.—A.S., 3/9/83.

The Commandant to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,

Brigade Office, Sydney, N.S.W., 5 Sept., 1883.

I have the honor to state, in reply to His Excellency's minute, 3/9/83, on accompanying application of Mr. Robertson for a postponement of the forthcoming Artillery examination in the interests of his son-in-law Lieutenant Bouverie, that, seeing the great delay which has already taken place, I am of opinion that the interests of the other officers will not in an appreciable degree be further affected by granting the postponement asked for. On the other hand, to shut out Lieutenant Bouverie from a participation in the forthcoming examination might be construed into an act of injustice, more especially as he cannot be held responsible for either the failure of the examination of 1880 or the delay in assembling a fresh Board.

I would respectfully suggest that the Board should be detailed to meet on Monday the 3rd, in place of Saturday the 1st of December next.

I have, &amp;c.,

Commandant.

Garrison Order.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 21 September, 1883.

WITH reference to Garrison Orders of the 1st and 10th ultimo, on the subject of the forthcoming examination of subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, it is intimated that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has now been pleased to direct that the Board therein referred to is to assemble on the 3rd December next.

No. 8.

Correspondence having reference to certain matters contained in Confidential Reports of Colonel Roberts and Lt.-Colonel Spalding, of April, 1883, pages 47 and 48.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

29 August, 1883.

I have the honor to forward herewith certain correspondence, embodying disciplinary reports referred to higher authority by the Officer commanding the Permanent Artillery.

Having regard to the extent of the jurisdiction of the latter officer, the cases submitted have reference to Major George J. Airey and Lieut. H. P. Airey, of the corps indicated, whose asserted financial irregularities, in connection with the Canteen, are the cause of report.

The case against Major Airey arises, firstly, from his having got a cheque for the sum of £14 cashed at one of the Canteens of the Permanent Artillery, on the 4th April last, which cheque was, when presented for payment on the same day, returned by the Bank with the words "Present again" marked thereon, and eventually paid on the following day (5th April). This cheque appears to have been drawn against the Battery account, and I understand from the Brigade Paymaster that although, in the month of April, he did not pay in the first advance of No. 1 Battery's pay to Major Airey's credit till the 5th April, yet he was in the habit of doing so on the 4th of each month. Bearing this circumstance in mind, and that there appears to be no question of Major Airey's private accounts being in any way mixed up with this transaction, I cannot but think some minor amount of carelessness is the most that can be attributed to him on this account. The second matter in which the same officer's conduct is called in question is in connection with a delay of some days which occurred in reporting the fact of a cheque, cashed at one of the Canteens of the Permanent Artillery, by Lieut. C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Artillery, having been dishonored. I am of opinion that, as soon as the occurrence had taken place, report should have been made to his Commanding Officer by Major Airey (who was acting as President of the Canteen Committee), inasmuch as there was then a risk of loss to a regimental institution; but it is to be remarked that Lieut. C. B. Airey, being a Volunteer Officer, was not amenable to the regimental authorities of the Permanent Artillery, and that consequently it was no part of Major Airey's duty to submit a disciplinary report bearing on that officer's conduct.

The matters referred to higher authority, and with which Lieut. H. P. Airey is connected, are, firstly, an asserted failure on his part to pay in Canteen moneys received by him when in command of a detachment of the Permanent Artillery at Watson's Bay, in December, 1882; and secondly, the fact of his having got a private cheque cashed at the Canteen in March, 1883, which cheque was subsequently dishonored at the Bank. It will be seen, as regards the first charge, that I have already pointed out to the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery that, in my opinion, the offence, if any, has been dealt with by condonation or otherwise. I can,

can, to my astonishment, find no regimental record showing how Lieut.-Colonel Spalding, then in command of the Permanent Artillery, dealt with the matter, nor was any report on the subject addressed by that officer, at the time of the occurrence or shortly afterwards, to myself, or to Lieut.-Colonel Christie, when acting as Commandant during my absence, yet, if the matter had not in some way been regimentally dealt with, it is almost inconceivable that a detailed report would not have been rendered to higher authority and the officer concerned placed in arrest. It cannot also but be the subject of censure that the duty, which was his own, of making what was in reality a disciplinary inquiry, should, as appears by the correspondence, have been cast by Lieut.-Colonel Spalding on the Canteen Committee, and that the only written record of the circumstances should be one contained in minutes of that Committee—minutes which, as they stand, embody allegations most damaging to the character of Lieutenant Airey. If the facts were as indicated in those minutes, then Lieutenant Airey should have been placed in arrest and immediate report made to higher authority, as is indeed required in such a case by the regulations; if they were not, then it was most unjust and improper that the only written record of the transaction should be one of this character, and that no official entry of this officer having cleared himself should have been made in some one of the regimental books. However, if dealt with by reprimand, by caution, or dismissal of the case by Lieut.-Colonel Spalding, his then Commanding Officer, whether properly or improperly, Lieutenant H. P. Airey cannot be twice called upon to answer the same charge. If improperly left undealt with, then, according to the well-known principle of military law, the offence has been condoned, a nolle prosequi having been virtually entered by his Commanding Officer. Again, a permitted continued discharge of duty, more especially when it is one of honor and trust, such as devolves on an officer, conveys a pardon and involves condonation, this being a well admitted axiom of military administration in the government of the Army. It is therefore clear to me that it is in accordance with every precedent of law, that further consideration in the way of prosecution should not be given to this portion of the case brought to bear against this officer. But did none of these weighty reasons exist for treating it in this manner, the replacement of the money as permitted by Lieut.-Colonel Spalding, as indicated by that officer in a memo. dated 17th April, 1883, being part of a confidential report submitted by him as to the attainments of the subaltern officers of the Permanent Artillery, would seem to effectually bar further action. With reference to the cheque, subsequently dishonoured, cashed by Lieutenant Airey at the Canteen in March last, I cannot regard that officer's explanation as a satisfactory one. I, of course, am not aware whether he had or had not reason to suppose he would have funds to meet the cheque in question, nor do I see how it is practicable to obtain evidence on that point; but, taking the most lenient view of the transaction, there was a very reprehensible carelessness.

It appears to me that reference to higher authority being considered necessary in these cases, such should have been formally made without the delay which has occurred, and for which I can see no sufficient reason. As regards Lieut. Airey's case, I cannot regard the confidential reports covered by Colonel Roberts' letter of 23rd April last, in which reference is made to financial irregularities as of a disciplinary character, seeing they were wanting in any such statement of particulars as military law and custom in such a case requires, both in view of enabling the accused to answer the charges, and higher authority to form a correct opinion as to their precise nature and bearing. Neither at the time was any formal action from higher authority called for by the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery; indeed, the reports in question were not originated by him at all, but were only furnished at the instance of higher authority, viz., your Excellency.

It will be noted that the name of Lieut. C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Artillery, is brought forward in this correspondence in connection with a dishonored cheque. His conduct, however, is now under investigation, and as he is not amenable to the jurisdiction of the Permanent Artillery, or the military law under which they serve, it will be separately dealt with.

The President, Canteen Committee,—

With reference to the sum of £17 Os. 7d., reported on the 20th instant by the Canteen Committee as not (up to that date) having been paid in to the credit of the Canteen Fund at the City Bank, the £17 Os. 7d. in question being reported as the takings at the South Head Canteen during the week ending 22nd Decr., 1882, the Committee will now inquire and report—

- 1st. If the amount in question, viz., £17 Os. 7d., was, or was not, handed over by the Canteen Sergeant, South Head, to the officer stationed there, in accordance with orders, and if so, on what date this was done, and what became of the money?
- 2nd. Who is responsible for the amount reported deficient?
- 3rd. Has the deficit been made good up to date, and if so, by whom and when?
- 4th. Were duplicate vouchers of money received at South Head Canteen, during December, 1882, and paid into the Bank, forwarded by the officer responsible to the President of Canteen Committee?
- 5th. Is it a fact that during December cheques cashed in the Canteen, and subsequently paid into the City Bank to the credit of the Canteen Fund, were dishonored on presentation? If so, the Committee will report fully on this matter.

SPECIAL Meeting, Canteen Committee, by order of Lieut.-Colonel Commanding N.S.W. Artillery, on 22nd January, 1883. Present—Major Airey, President; Lieuts. Nathan, Bouverie, and Savage. The instructions to the Committee having been read, the Committee proceed to report—

1st. The money in question, viz., £17 Os. 7d., was handed over by the Canteen Sergeant to the officer stationed at South Head, as under:—

	£	s.	d.
16/12/82 ... ..	3	0	0
17/12/82 ... ..	3	0	0
18/12/82 ... ..	2	0	0
19/12/82 ... ..	2	0	0
20/12/82 ... ..	3	0	0
21/12/82 ... ..	2	0	0
22/12/82 ... ..	2	0	7
	<hr/>
	£17	0	7
	<hr/>

The Committee having questioned Lieut. H. P. Airey as to what became of the money in question, that officer states he is unable to say.

2nd. Lieut. H. P. Airey is the officer responsible for the amount reported deficient.

3rd. Up to 12 o'clock to-day the Bank-book does not show the amount reported deficient had been paid in, but a Bank slip has since been handed in showing that the sum of £17 Os. 7d. has been paid into the Bank by Lieut. Airey.

4th. Lieut. H. P. Airey states that, to the best of his belief, the duplicate vouchers of money received at South Head, and paid into the City Bank in December, 1882, have been forwarded to the President of the Canteen Committee.

5th. The Bank-book shows that a cheque for £4 4s., paid in on the 20th December, was dishonored. Sergeant Paviour, being called upon to give evidence, states—This cheque was one given by Major Airey, and returned "irregular," the body of the cheque being for £2 4s. (two pounds four shillings), and the figures showing £4 4s. This cheque was given by Sergeant Paviour to Major Murphy, and Major Airey made out another cheque for £4 4s. (four pounds four shillings), which was paid into the Bank in place of the one returned. Major Airey states that, with regard to this cheque, it was the result of a clerical error.

President's remarks, in his handwriting, not signed or dated:—

Memo. to be made out to officers at Heads that the money must be paid in weekly, the last payment in month not later than third day following; month's slips to be forwarded to the Canteen Accountant, for information of President.

The President, Canteen Committee.

23 January, 1883.

It having been reported to the Lieut.-Colonel Commanding that a cheque for the sum of about £5, paid into the credit of the Canteen Fund at the City Bank, on or about the 16th instant, was dishonored, and that up to 12 o'clock yesterday it had not been covered, you are now requested to take immediate steps to ascertain the name of the drawer of the cheque, and to call upon him to at once make good the amount, reporting fully the circumstances of the case to the Officer Commanding N.S.W. Artillery.

By order,

Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to Major G. J. Airey.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, 7 June, 1883.

WILL Major Airey be good enough to explain how a cheque drawn by him, through the Victoria Barracks Canteen, for £14, on the 4th April, appears to have been dishonored by the Bank.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

COLONEL ROBERTS,—It arose through the clerk in Paymaster's office having omitted to lodge a cheque, signed by the Paymaster, and which I had been informed was signed, and would be paid in on morning of the 4th instant. On the 5th instant, receiving a notice from the Bank that my cheque had been returned with "Present again," I proceeded to Bank and found money had not been lodged, and on inquiry at Paymaster's office found it had been overlooked.—G. A., Major, 10/6/83.

The Brigade Paymaster, for report.—J.S.R., Col. Comdt., 22/6/83. The cheque alluded to by Major Airey (with several others), were signed by me on the 4th instant, not lodged till the morning of the 5th of April, which the butt of cheque book and Bank deposit show.—T.B., Lt.-Col., Pmr., 22/6/83. Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to Lieut. C. B. Airey.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 7 June, 1883.

WILL Lt. C. B. Airey be good enough to explain how a cheque drawn by him for £5, on 18th January, appears to have been dishonored by the Bank when presented for payment by the Canteen Sergt.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,

Col.

The cheque referred to was given, as I understood that some money had been paid into my credit on that day, which, I however found was not done until two days afterwards. Immediately I was informed of the cheque being dishonored I went to the Bank and paid in the money, so that no further delay could occur, and the matter was then explained to the satisfaction of the officer acting in command of the Artillery Forces.—C.B.A., 11/6/83.

On reference, I find that five days elapsed between drawing of cheque and its repayment.—C.F.R., Col., 13/6/83.

Lieut. H. Airey to Colonel Roberts.

Sir,

South Head, 11 June, 1883.

I have the honor to state, in reply to your memo. of the 7th inst., I had permission from Col. Spalding, and I think also your own* to follow the custom of officers stationed at either Heads, viz., to pay Canteen moneys in either by our own cheques or otherwise.

In March I drew a cheque for Canteen money, on 11th or 12th, and paid into City Bank. On 17th same month I drew another for £7 8s. 7d., the one you allude to. On my going to town on following Monday I called at my Bank and asked to see my account, as I had not seen my pass-book for some months. The Manager said, "You are overdrawn." I replied, "Is the Canteen cheque paid?" meaning the one for £7 8s. 7d. He answered, "Yes," thinking I alluded to the one drawn on 11th or 12th. I then said, "All right, I will pay in £100." I did so in a day or two, and heard nothing of my cheque for £7 8s. 7d. having been dishonored until I returned from camp.

Had the President of Canteen sent me notice, any day subsequent to 21st March, when notice was sent to him of its having been dishonored, I could have paid it immediately, as there was money lying to my credit during this time.

When

When Col. Spalding informed me of what had occurred I said I was sure there was a mistake, as I had drawn £20 since I drew the cheque for £7 8s. 7d., and they had all been paid.

When Col. Spalding informed me it was still unpaid I asked the President of Canteen to present it, which he did, when it was paid at once.

I have, &c.,

H. AIREY, Lt.

* My permission was only to the extent of cashing any public cheque which might be sent to cover payments of men, as no Banks have branches either at Watson's Bay or Middle Head.—C. F. ROBERTS, Col., 19/6/83.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Battery, 21 June, 1883.

3 enclosures.

With reference to the Canteen accounts forwarded the end of last month, some time after the proper date when they should have been sent, I desire to offer some explanation as to cause of delay.

In the first instance, owing to a fire taking place at Middle Head Canteen, during the month of March, considerable loss was incurred, and this loss although covered by insurance had to be received from the Company interested; this has been done and the Minute Book filled in accordingly. As this took some time, the monthly meeting for April became due, and as the books were required for this purpose a further delay was entailed. In going over these accounts I observed that three (3) cases had occurred in which the cheques of officers connected with the Defence Forces of the Colony had when presented for collection been dishonored. It has taken some time to inquire into these transactions, and finally I called upon each of the officers interested to explain the cause of their cheques being dishonored.

I forward herewith their answers. I respectfully submit that the explanations are hardly satisfactory, as the fact of money being drawn from a public institution like a Canteen, is likely to cause loss to those who are in charge of the Canteen unless the cheques are duly met; and I am of opinion that officers should be certain that their cheques will be honored before drawing them; carelessness in the handling of public moneys (for Canteen accounts are public moneys), shows a laxity of principle which is not consonant with the character of an officer; and I can only recall to your memory the considerable trouble which arose in this Force some six (6) years back owing to an officer's carelessness in connection with Canteen accounts.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

Memorandum from Commandant to The Officer commanding Permanent Artillery.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 27 June, 1883.

WITH reference to your letter of the 21st inst., reporting that Major Airey's cheque for £14, drawn on the 4th of April, Lieut. H. P. Airey's cheque for £7 8s. 7d., drawn on the 20th of March, Lieut. C. B. Airey's cheque for £5, drawn on the 18th of January, had been dishonored, it is requested that all the previous correspondence bearing on the same may be submitted, with statement as to the action of the President of the Canteen Committee in each instance.

J.S.R., Col., Comdt.

The original memo. calling upon officers to offer explanations with regard to the cheques in question were forwarded with letter dated 21st June, 1883. The attached copies of all memos, &c., bearing upon the matter now under consideration are forwarded. The memo. dated 22nd Feb., 1882, strict non-compliance with which was the cause of Lieut. H. P. Airey's cheque being noticed, the weekly payment of Canteen takings being late, is also submitted. Lieut. H. P. Airey's cheque of £7 8s. 7d. was part of a payment of £12 13s. 1d., amount of week's receipts of Canteen money, forwarded on the 19th March. This cheque was dishonored on the 20th March, and was made good on the 5th April.

The correspondence may seem larger than might be considered necessary at first sight. The instructions to the Canteen President point out nature of subjects for inquiry, including dishonored cheques (and may be considered a warning on this matter), are dated 22/1/83; this is four days after the drawing of Lieut. C. B. Airey's cheque, which was dishonored on the 18th January, and should have been reported by the President of the Canteen Committee, Major G. J. Airey, to the Officer commanding the N.S.W.A. This was not done until January 23rd, 1883 (See copy of Minute of Officer Commanding N.S.W.A., forwarded to the Canteen President on the 23rd January, 1883, and noted by Officer Commanding N.S.W.A. on the 25th January, on memo. of President of Canteen Committee dated 23rd January). (It may be necessary to report more on this hereafter), showing that the cheque was not met until the 23rd January.

The £14 cheque, a Public Office cheque, was cashed by the Canteen on the 4th April, although drawn on the 3rd April, and having been paid into Bank on the 4th April, was dishonored, and was subsequently paid on the 5th April. This appears as noted in copy of Canteen Committee Minute of the 27th April. Major Airey was actually at that time Canteen President (Major Murphy being on the sick list at the time), and no report appears beyond Canteen Minute. Memo. of 23/1/83 to Major Airey, President Canteen Committee, draws special attention to prompt payments of Canteen money, and it appears that memos. were forwarded to Officers at the Heads. Copy attached.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Col.

Memorandum to Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 5 July, 1883.

1. With reference to a statement made by Major Airey, P.A., (contained in his minute of 10/6/83, written in reply to one dated 7/6/83 addressed to him by the Officer commanding the P.A.) to the effect that he had been informed a cheque was signed by the Paymaster and would be paid into his (Major Airey's) credit on the morning of the 4th April, it is requested the name of the person who so informed Major Airey may be given.

2. It is requested it may be stated why Major Airey's cheque for £14 was given to the Canteen on the 4th April, also why Lt. C. B. Airey's cheque for £5 was given. Were the payments made on account of goods supplied?

3. The Commandant would also wish to know whether Lt.-Col. Spalding, when handing over the command of the Permanent Artillery to Colonel Roberts, make any official report of the proceedings in connection with the various dishonored cheques paid into the Canteen, and if so, to what effect.

By Command,

W.B.B.C., Lt.-Col., M. of B.

MAJOR

MAJOR Airey informs me that he asked Mr. Findlay to lodge a £10 or £15 cheque to make up the March amount, and was told that the first advance would be lodged on the 3rd April. On the 4th, Lt.-Col. Baynes told Major Airey, who met him, that he had signed a cheque for No. 1 Battery on that day. This was not lodged until the 5th April.

The Canteen-Sergt. took Major Airey's cheque against No. 1 Battery accounts and gave cash for it, as he understood cash was wanted to pay the men, and thus sending to the Bank would be avoided, and the time of the Pay Sergt. would be saved. Had the Pay Sergt. been sent direct to the Bank, it is evident that this would never have appeared in the Canteen Account. This cheque was not on account of goods bought at the Canteen.

The Canteen Sergt. reports that Lt. C. B. Airey's cheque was a private cheque, cashed by him, as he was told by Lt. C. B. Airey that he required money to pay the Volunteers (therefore this also was a cheque not on account of goods purchased at the Canteen). It was given on the evening of the 17th January, and was paid in on the 18th with other Canteen moneys, and was dishonored on same date, eventually made good on the 23rd January. President of Canteen's attention drawn to this on the 23rd January. No official report was made by Lt.-Col. Spalding to the drawing of these cheques, which were dishonored; but that portion of special Canteen meeting held on the 22nd January, 1883, referring to the non-payment to Bank of certain sums of money amounting to £17 0s. 7d. was personally pointed out to Officer Commanding Artillery Forces, when confidential reports were called for in April last; Major Airey was Canteen President at the time this case refers to.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

Memorandum from Commandant to The Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 19 July, 1883.

I NOTE with reference to the case of Lt. H. P. Airey's apparent failure to pay in certain Canteen moneys, the property of the Permanent Artillery in December last, that, although copies of sundry official documents dealing with the matter in its financial relation to the Canteen have been forwarded to me, no record has reached me bearing on the disciplinary question of Lt. H. P. Airey's failure to pay in the money or obey the orders issued on that subject. I would therefore wish to know how Lt. H. P. Airey was dealt with by Lt.-Col. Spalding or yourself for the seeming lapse of duty in question. Should you be personally unaware of Lt.-Col. Spalding's action, Lt. Nathan, that officer's adjutant, might in his absence be called on to state what he knows relative to the disposal of the case in its personal relation to Lt. H. P. Airey.

As regards also Major Airey and Lt. H. P. Airey in relation to the dishonored cheques given by them in March and April respectively, I should wish to know how these officers have been dealt with in respect to the disciplinary aspect of the case, and whether by Lt.-Col. Spalding or yourself.

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Col.,
Commandant.

Lt. Nathan,—Will you be good enough to comply with the latter portion of the first paragraph of this memo.—C.F.R., Col., 23/7/83. The Col.-Comm'dg., N.S.W.A.,—I beg to attach report.—R. A. NATHAN, Acting Adjt., 24/7/83.

Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 24 July, 1883.

IN compliance with memo., dated 19th July, I beg to state that the only official report made by me on the subject of non-payment of certain sums by Lt. H. P. Airey in connection with Canteen accounts was in the confidential report called for and forwarded in April last. Lt.-Col. Spalding, who was in command when the non-payments took place, also reports in his confidential on this subject at the same time. As I was not in command at the time (being on leave in England) I could do nothing. Lieut. Nathan, in accordance with your memo., reports what he knows of the matter—his report is attached.

With regard to the dishonored cheques of Major Airey and Lieut. H. P. Airey, in April and March, respectively,—as soon as I noticed the facts, when examining Canteen accounts, I called upon each of them for explanation, and reported the matter in connection with the quarterly Canteen returns. Further communications were made on this subject, in answer to your queries on the 5th July, and were forwarded on the 6th July. I am unable to say whether Lt.-Col. Spalding made any report on the matter, as no record is to be found prior to my return. I found that only cheques drawn by officers of the Permanent Force or with their indorsement were by orders issued to be received at the Canteen; and as this matter is under consideration of higher authority than myself, I have not taken any further steps as regards discipline, awaiting your decision in this matter.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
Colonel.

Memorandum from Lieutenant Nathan to The Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 24 July, 1883.

IN accordance with memo., dated 19th July, 1883, I beg to state, with reference to the failure to pay certain Canteen moneys into the Bank by Lt. H. P. Airey, Lt.-Col. Spalding, when informed, ordered a special Canteen meeting to inquire into the matter. The Committee met and reported. I do not know what passed between Lt.-Col. Spalding and Lt. H. P. Airey. Lt. H. P. Airey was sent for by Lieut.-Colonel Spalding with reference to his dishonored cheque; Lt. H. P. Airey informed him that there must be some mistake, as he had money to his credit. Lt.-Col. Spalding told Lt. H. P. Airey that it was not the first time his cheques had been dishonored. Beyond that, I do not know what happened. I received no orders to forward any official memo. to Lt. H. P. Airey.

ROBT. A. NATHAN, Lieut. and Acting-Adjutant.

C.F.R., Col., 24/7/83.

Memorandum from Major of Brigade to Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery.

Brigade Office, 30 July, 1883.

THE Commandant has had under consideration the papers submitted to him in connection with references made in a report on the subject of delay in the transmission of Canteen accounts, &c.

1st. To the asserted failure on the part of Lt. H. P. Airey to pay into the Head-quarters Canteen account moneys received by him as the takings of the branch Canteen at Watson's Bay, in December, 1882.
2nd.

2nd. To the fact of cheques, which were subsequently dishonored, having been paid in to the Canteen of the Permanent Artillery during the early part of the current year, by the undermentioned officers, viz. :— Major George Airey, P.A. ; Lt. H. P. Airey, P.A. ; Lt. C. B. Airey, V.A.

As regards the matter with which Lt. H. P. Airey was connected in December, 1882, it appears to the Commandant, supposing irregularity to have taken place, it has either been dealt with or condoned by Lt.-Col. Spalding, and that therefore it would be improper to again take it up. Should, however, the officer now commanding P.A., with his better means of regimental information, be of opinion that it has not been dealt with or condoned, it is competent to him to take such further steps as his primary regimental responsibility may dictate. At the same time the Commandant cannot but express surprise that no report bearing on this case was ever rendered to higher authority, that the only written record of it should apparently be found in minutes of the Canteen Committee—minutes of a character implying very grave irregularity on the part of the officer in question—and that the Canteen Committee should have been left to conduct an investigation which was in reality part of the disciplinary duty of the Commanding Officer.

As regards the dishonored cheques, it is clear to the Commandant that Lt. C. B. Airey, of the Vol. Artillery cannot be called to account by the Officer Commanding the Permanent Artillery, he being only a Volunteer officer. As however certain statements have been made, indicating the necessity of explanation being required in connection with this cheque as to expenditure of battery funds apparently paid to Lt. C. B. Airey, his conduct in that respect will meet with subsequent review, and therefore must not now in this correspondence be further dealt with. With respect to Major George Airey and Lt. H. P. Airey and the dishonored cheques paid in by them, it seems to the Commandant that their cases have not as yet been regimentally dealt with either by Col. Roberts taking action of his own or furnishing a disciplinary report seeking the action of higher authority. Col. Roberts's letter of the 21st June, 1883, cannot be said to bear the latter character.

Perhaps Col. Roberts will be good enough to report as to what further action he may have found it necessary to take in dealing with these cases.

The advisability of placing limitations on the cashing of cheques in the Canteen is drawn attention to.

By Command,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE,

Lt.-Col., M.B.

Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, 21 August, 1883.

AFTER further inquiry, in reply to B.O. Memo., dated 30/7/83, with regard to the failure of Lt. H. P. Airey to pay in moneys, and the case being reported in connection with the Canteen accounts, I cannot see how I could do otherwise than bring the matter under notice (however it may have been treated), as any irregularities should be reported occurring in each quarterly statement of accounts, and the explanation in this matter only took place in January, 1883. I would respectfully recall to your memory that this case is touched upon when confidential reports were called for by His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, and forwarded 23rd April, 1883. This would, I consider, be a disciplinary report. The officer who commanded the New South Wales Artillery in my absence reported the same in his confidential memo., which accompanied mine, and thus I consider further regimental notice is undesirable, as higher authorities are aware of the facts, and I cannot consider that this case can be held to be condoned, but really is reported.

I am unable to say what guided Lt. Col. Spalding in his dealing with this case.

With regard to the dishonored cheques, they were cashed on the 20th March, 4th April, and Lt. C. B. Airey's on the 18th January, all prior dates to my return ; and my report of the 21st June certainly appears to me as a disciplinary report, for it explains these cases in connection with the Canteen accounts, they being irregularities in connection with that institution. Major Airey's action as President of the Canteen was brought to notice, as I consider this an irregularity, inasmuch that he does not appear to have treated both of the other cheques (not his own of £14), viz., Lt. H. P. Airey's for £7 8s. 7d., and Lt. C. B. Airey's for £5, in a similar manner ; he at once reports Lt. H. P. Airey's cheque, but fails to notice Lt. C. B. Airey's, until his attention is drawn to the fact of a £5 cheque being dishonored, by the Officer Commanding New South Wales Artillery.

At present the cashing of cheques is limited to cheques on public account, which may be required for payment of men, and to cheques drawn on Canteen, but indorsed by officers belonging to the New South Wales Artillery, for small amounts ; it is probable that this latter course may be stopped.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,

Colonel.

Minute for the Commandant.

IN regard to the irregularities, reported in the Commandant's letter of 29th August, of Major Airey and Lieut. H. P. Airey, of the Permanent Force, and by Lieut. C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Force, in connection with the Canteen, I consider that the accounts of the Canteen, being public moneys, should be kept separate from any private accounts of the officers connected therewith, and that the sum received be paid into the regimental account at the Bank, to meet any cheques drawn on that account. It is quite impossible for me to unravel the mysteries which cloud these transactions ; I can therefore only express my censure on the above-named officers for the irregularities and carelessness which they have shown, and which have produced this confusion, and caution them most seriously against their repetition.

Major Airey, as President of the Canteen, has further shown a laxity of duty in not having reported to his Commanding Officer the incident relating to Lieut. C. B. Airey's cheque having been dishonored ; and I consider that, although Lieut. C. B. Airey is an officer of the Volunteers, he is still under the regimental jurisdiction of the Commanding Officer of the Artillery, and that it was consequently the duty of Major Airey to report the incident to his Commanding Officer, by whom it should have been submitted to the Commandant.

I will not go into the question as to whether the irregularity of Lieut. H. P. Airey has been condoned regimentally or otherwise ; the statements of the Canteen Committee are on record—they were known to Lieut. Airey, and he could at the time have called for an inquiry if they were considered by him of a nature to damage his reputation. They should have been reported at the time to his Commanding Officer, on whom rested the duty of further action.

There

There has been throughout laxity and carelessness in the performance of duty on the part of all these officers; but, in consideration of the lapse of time which has occurred in bringing these questions before the higher military authority, I am of opinion that no action is now advisable, and I consequently direct that the officers named in the report, namely, Major Airey, Lieut. H. P. Airey, and Lieut. C. B. Airey, be censured for their irregularities in regard to the Canteen account, and cautioned for the future against any such repetition of them; also, that all public Canteen moneys be henceforth paid in regularly to the account at the Bank, and that no private cheques be cashed in future by the Canteen.

The Commandant to His Excellency the Governor.

My Lord,

22 September, 1883.

In accordance with your minute of the 21st instant, I have the honor to return the papers in connection with certain Canteen irregularities, submitted to your Excellency with my letter of the 29th ultimo, as also further correspondence connected with the carrying out of the instructions conveyed by your Lordship's minute of the 4th instant, and certain other documents which have come in since the receipt of your Excellency's minute of the 4th instant, having relation to the connection with the case of Lieutenant C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Artillery.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Col.,
Commandant.

The Colonial Secretary, for his information. To be returned by him to the Commandant.—A.L. 22/9/83. Submitted, 25/9/83. Seen.—A.S., 11/10/83.

Memorandum from Commandant to Officer Commanding Artillery Forces.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 19 July, 1883.

WITH reference to the cheque cashed for Lieut. C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Artillery at the Canteen of the Permanent Artillery, on the 18th of January last, which cheque, from reports rendered to this office, would seem to have been dishonored at the Bank on which it was drawn, a further communication has now been made to this office, to the effect that Lieut. C. B. Airey, when obtaining at the Canteen cash for the cheque in question, stated that the money was required to pay Volunteers. This officer will therefore be called upon to indicate whether it was on such grounds that he obtained cash for this cheque, and if so to state what sum of money he received in January, and when, for the payment of the battery of Volunteer Artillery he appears to have been in temporary command of; whether the amount in question was paid in to a separate battery or his own private account at the Bank, or retained in his personal charge. Should he have obtained the cash at the Canteen on such grounds, he will also state how it was that the sum paid to him for settlement of the claims of the battery was insufficient for this purpose, or, if the money issued to him was sufficient for such purpose, explain the apparent fact of his giving a cheque for public services, and public funds not being available to meet it.

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, Col.,
Commandant.

Urgent.—Memo. sent to Lt. C. B. Airey, 23/7/83, calling for Report on matters contained in this memo., C.F.R., Col., 23/7/83.

Memorandum

Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to Lieutenant C. B. Airey.

Volunteer Artillery Office, 23 July, 1883.

1. In accordance with memo. received from the Brigade Office, you are requested to state whether, when you cashed a cheque on the 17th January last, or obtained cash for one at the Canteen, the money was required to pay men or Volunteers?
2. What sum of money you received, and upon what date, for the payment of the battery of Volunteer Artillery?
3. Was this amount paid into a separate battery account or into your private account, or retained in your personal charge?
4. If the cash obtained at the Canteen was for payment of Volunteers? Also to state how it was that the sum paid for settlement of Volunteers was not sufficient; and if it was sufficient for such purpose, you will be good enough to explain the apparent fact of your giving a cheque for public services and public funds not being available to meet it.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS,
Colonel.

This original called for 27 July; received 15 August.—C.F.R., Col.

Memorandum

Memorandum from Lieut. C. B. Airey, N.S.W. Regt. Vol. Artillery to Officer Commanding Artillery Forces.
In reply to memo of the 23rd instant I beg to state—

- 1st. That the money obtained from the Canteen on the 17th January was not for the payment of Volunteers, as, so far as I can remember, the whole battery had been paid five or six days prior to that date.
- 2nd. The amount received from the Adjutant was £190 10s. 1d. on the 4th January, £12 10s. of this being my own pay and efficiency money.
- 3rd. The amount in question being sent to me in a crossed cheque, I was unable to cash it at the Bank of N. S. Wales; I therefore paid the cheque in to my private account at one end of the Bank counter and drew it out (less the amount of my own pay) at the other end, so that the money did not remain more than three minutes to my credit. After payment of the battery a small sum remained in my possession, belonging to men who were unable to attend on the night ordered, which I took, together with the pay-sheets, to my office, leaving word with those who were there that any man not paid could receive his money any hour during the day. This balance I kept in my possession until all the men were paid, which could not have been later than the 12th January.

CHAS. B. AIREY, 25/7/83.

Memorandum from Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Artillery Brigade Office, Dawes' Barracks, Sydney, September 10, 1883.

WITH reference to Brigade Office memo. of the 30th July, in which it is stated that Lt. C. B. Airey, of the Volunteer Artillery, cannot be called to account by Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery, I would beg to point out that this officer at present holds the position of Officer Commanding Artillery Forces, and in this capacity it is, I submit, competent for him to call upon the officer in question as to his conduct in connection with a cheque drawn on the Artillery Canteen, and dishonored; more especially as the Volunteer officers are entitled to deal with the Canteen under certain circumstances, and the Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery is responsible for the proper working of the Canteen through the Canteen Committee.

With reference to memo. dated 19th July, 1883, further correspondence has passed between Lt. C. B. Airey and Officer Commanding Artillery Forces, as will be seen by memos. dated July 23rd and July 27th; the former returned by Lt. C. B. Airey, on the 15th August. Lt. C. B. Airey states that the cheque was not for payment of Volunteers, and this is in direct opposition to the statement of Sergeant Paviour, who cashed the cheque on the understanding, as stated by Lt. C. B. Airey, that it was to pay men or Volunteers, as he had not the money by him. There appears to be considerable difference in these statements, amounting to a misstatement on the part of one or other of the two concerned in the matter.

Lt. C. B. Airey states he drew the cheque understanding money would be paid into his account that day, and that this was not done until two days after, viz., the 19th. He, however, finds it necessary to pay money to cover the cheque when he was informed that it had been dishonored on the 22nd or 23rd, some five or six days after the cheque had been drawn.

It further appears that the payment of the battery was not completed until after the 20th January, as Gunner Griffiths received his pay either on the 22nd or 23rd.

I am of opinion that if the payments made had been dated (in a similar manner to pay-slips) the difference of the date named by Lt. C. B. Airey and that upon which Gunner Griffiths received his pay could not have been stated. Delay in forwarding this paper has been caused by ascertaining if all men were paid as stated.

CHAS. F. ROBERTS.

Colonel Roberts to Commandant.

WITH reference to Governor's minute, as regards C. B. Airey, has any further action been taken on my last report of eleventh of September?—O.K. Date, 19/9/83; time 10.30 a.m. Operator, J. H. Thorp.

Commandant to Colonel Roberts.

No, as His Excellency seems to have dealt with the case.—O.K. Date, 19/9/83; time 10.38 a.m. Operator, J. H. Thorp.

Colonel Roberts to The Commandant.

Sir,

Dawes' Battery, 15 September, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of Minute from His Excellency to the Commandant, with reference to Canteen affairs, and note that it is merely forwarded for my information, without any direction as to the carrying out of His Excellency's censure.

I beg therefore respectfully to request information whether His Excellency's instructions are to be carried out by myself or whether this will be done from the Brigade Office.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES F. ROBERTS, Colonel.

His

His Excellency's instructions had better be carried out by the Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery.—J.S.R., Colonel Commandant, 17/9/83. To be returned.

As the Canteen is a public institution, I would wish to know whether His Excellency's instructions are to be carried out before the Officers of the Force, or only in the presence of the Canteen Committee, and if this Minute is to be entered in the records of the Canteen.—C. F. ROBERTS, Colonel, 17/9/83.

The Officer Commanding Artillery Forces,—In default of specific instructions, it is to be presumed that His Excellency intended these officers to be dealt with in the usual manner, viz., by the Commanding Officer, conveying to them individually in the presence of officers commanding batteries to which the subalterns belong, and the Adjutant, His Excellency's decision. The Minute Book of the Canteen is no place in which to enter any record of the nature above alluded to.—J.S.R., Col., Commandant, 18/9/83.

The Commandant.—The course indicated in memo. 18/9/83 will be pursued; yet, as the latter portion of His Excellency's Minute conveys a direct order as to the treatment of the Canteen moneys and cheques, I am of opinion that this portion should be entered (for guidance in the future) in the Canteen Minutes.—CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Colonel, 18/9/83.

The Officer Commanding Permanent Artillery,—That portion of His Excellency's Minute above referred to may very properly be entered as instructions to the Canteen Committee, &c.—J.S.R., Col., Commandant, 19/9/83.

The Commandant,—Has been entered at Special Canteen Meeting this day.—C.F.R., Col., 21/9/83.

NEW SOUTH WALES ARTILLERY.
(THE CASE OF GUNNER BARRETT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 January, 1884.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 6th December, 1883, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all evidence, minutes, papers, depositions, correspondence, &c., “connected with the trial by Court-martial of Gunner Barrett for smoking “in the streets.”

(Mr. A. G. Taylor.)

Extract from Queen's Regulations of 1868, section 7, para. 356.

356. The dress and appearance as well as the demeanour of soldiers should, on all occasions, and in all situations be such as to create a respect for the military service. Soldiers are not to be permitted to go beyond the precincts of their barracks, except they are properly dressed, and are not to smoke in the streets.

Garrison Orders.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 7 February, 1872.

IT having been observed that soldiers of the Regular Military Force are in the habit of smoking in the streets, notwithstanding the Garrison Order of the 5th September last prohibiting this practice, the Commandant directs the officers commanding the New South Wales Artillery and Infantry to again caution the men under their respective commands that this practice is strictly forbidden, and to visit severely any case of the kind that may be brought to their notice.

By command,

A. F. FITZSIMONS, Captn.,
Major of Brigade.

True copy,—H. D. MACKENZIE, Captn.

Garrison Orders.

1. The Commandant having observed a man of the New South Wales Artillery smoking in the streets on the morning of Christmas Day, directs attention to Garrison Order of the 5th September, 1871, which prohibits the indulgence of this practice. The officer commanding this corps will point out to his men that not only is the practice above referred to contrary to the Queen's Regulations and Garrison Orders but is calculated to bring discredit on the corps. He will also impress upon them that the dress and appearance, as well as the demeanour of soldiers, should on all occasions and in all situations be such as to create a respect for the military service.

Brigade Office, Sydney, 29 December, 1874.

By command,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Captain,
pro Major of Brigade.

Application for a Regimental Court-martial.

Sir,

New South Wales Artillery, Head Quarters, 6 June, 1878.

I have the honor to submit a charge against No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, of the New South Wales Artillery under my command, and request you will obtain the sanction of His Excellency the Governor that a regimental Court-martial may be assembled for his trial at Sydney. The prisoner is now at Sydney; the witnesses are at Sydney.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. F. ROBERTS, Col.,
Commdg. Art. Forces.

The Commandant, Sydney.

Charge submitted against No. 30, Gunner Thos. Barrett, New South Wales Artillery.

Charge.—Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in having at Sydney, New South Wales, on or about the 1st June, 1878, been found smoking in the streets, thereby neglecting to obey Garrison Orders.

Medical Officer's Certificate.

I certify that No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, New South Wales Artillery, is in a good state of health, and fit to undergo imprisonment, solitary or otherwise, and with or without hard labour; and that his present appearance and previous medical history both justify the belief that hard labour employment will neither be likely to originate nor to reproduce disease of any description.

W. J. G. BEDFORD,
Surgeon-Major.

Summary of Evidence.

Lieut. James Edward Borridge Taunton, New South Wales Artillery, states :—About 1 p.m. on Saturday, the 1st June, 1878, I was in an omnibus on the road from town to Victoria Barracks; about 1 p.m., when near the toll-bar, I saw two men of the New South Wales Artillery, smoking; No. 30 Gunner Thomas Barrett was one of them, he was smoking a cigar; on arrival at the Barrack gate I told the non-commissioned officer who was in charge of the guard to confine Gunner Barrett, and the man who was with him, when they came into Barracks.

Corporal Samuel Brown, New South Wales Artillery, states :—I was in charge of the Barrack guard at Victoria Barracks, on the 1st June, 1878; about 1.5 p.m. Lieut. Taunton called my attention to two gunners who were coming up the road, and told me to confine them when they came in for smoking in the street, which I did immediately on their arrival, which was shortly afterwards; No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett was one of the men.

2.—A Regimental Court-martial will assemble at the Victoria Barracks at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, the 12th instant, for the trial of,—

No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett,

,, 245, Gunner John Stasson, of the New South Wales Artillery, pursuant to authority from His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, dated 8th June, 1878.

President: Major W. W. Spalding, New South Wales Artillery.

The New South Wales Artillery will furnish two officers as members.

An officer of the New South Wales Artillery will attend as prosecutor.

By command,

W. B. B. CHRISTIE, Major,
Major of Brigade.

True copy,—H. D. MACKENZIE, Captain.

PROCEEDINGS of a Regimental Court-martial, held at Sydney, New South Wales, on the 12th day of June, 1878, by order of Colonel John Soame Richardson, Commandant, bearing date the 10th day of June, 1878, pursuant to authority from His Excellency Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, G.C.M.G., Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Dated the 8th day of June, 1878.

President: Major Warner Spalding, New South Wales Artillery.

Members: Lieutenants Hy. Le Patourel and H. P. Airey, New South Wales Artillery.

At 11 o'clock a.m. the Court opens.

No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, New South Wales Artillery, is brought a prisoner before the Court.

The order for convening the Court is read.

The names of the President and Members of the Court are read over in the hearing of the prisoner, and they severally answer to their names.

Question by President to prisoner: Do you object to be tried by me as President, or by any of the officers whose names you have heard read over?

Answer: No.

The President and members are duly sworn.

The prisoner, No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, New South Wales Artillery, is arraigned upon the following charge:—Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in having, at Sydney, New South Wales, on or about the 1st June, 1878, been found smoking in the streets, thereby neglecting to obey garrison orders.

Question to prisoner: Are you guilty or not guilty of the charge against you, which you have heard read?

Answer: Not guilty.

Lieutenant

Lieutenant P. Murray, New South Wales Artillery, appears as prosecutor, and proceeds to call witnesses.

First witness for prosecution.—Lieutenant and Acting Adjutant J. E. D. Taunton, New South Wales Artillery, being duly sworn, is examined by the prosecutor, and states: On Saturday, the 1st of June, 1878, at Sydney, New South Wales, as I was returning from the Brigade Office, O'Connell-street, to the Victoria Barracks, seated on an omnibus, at about 1 o'clock p.m., on nearing the Paddington toll-bar I observed in front of me, on the pavement, two men smoking, gunners of the New South Wales Artillery; as I passed them I recognised one of the men as Gunner Barrett, the prisoner now before the Court; he had a lighted cigar in his mouth; on reaching the barracks I called for the non-commissioned officer in charge of the guard, and told him that Gunner Barrett and another man were coming up the street smoking, and to have them confined.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: When you reached the barracks did you call Corporal Brown to see if I was smoking?

A. I may have said so.

The witness withdraws.

Second witness for prosecution.—No. 317, Corporal S. Brown, No. 3 Battery, New South Wales Artillery, being duly sworn, is examined by the prosecutor, and states: I was the non-commissioned officer in charge of the Regimental Guard, Victoria Barracks, Sydney, New South Wales, on the 1st June, 1878, between 12 noon and 1 p.m.; the Acting Adjutant, Lieutenant Taunton, ordered me to notice two gunners, who were coming towards the barracks from the direction of the town; I took notice of the two men, and saw Gunner Barrett (the prisoner now before the Court); he was one of them; he was not smoking, and had nothing in his mouth; the other, Gunner Stasson, had something in his mouth, but I cannot say whether it was a cigar or a pencil,—I think the latter, as I could not observe any smoke; when I first saw Gunner Barrett he was about 25 or 30 paces from the barrack gate; after making Gunners Barrett and Stasson prisoners, as ordered by the Adjutant, I searched them both, and found no tobacco of any kind upon Gunner Barrett; the other gunner had a pipe with tobacco in it; the pipe was cold, and evidently had not been recently used.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: Did the Adjutant order you to go to the gate to see if we were smoking?

A. Yes.

Q. Was I not in the act of going into my quarters, opposite the barrack gate, when you made me a prisoner?

A. Yes; you were turning down the street towards your house.

The witness withdraws.

The prosecution is closed.

Q. Do you intend to call any witness in your defence?

A. Yes.

Defence:—

The prisoner being called upon to make his defence, says—

I call upon the following witness. No. 245, Gunner John Stasson, N.S.W.A., is duly sworn and examined by the prisoner.

Q. Were you with me from York-street, Sydney, to the Victoria Barracks, between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock during the day, on the 1st June, 1878?

A. Yes.

Q. Did I smoke during that time?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see me smoke a cigar whilst you were in the Battery?

A. No, and I have been in the Artillery about 1 year and 8 months.

Examined by the Court: Q. Did you leave the prisoner for any time during your walk to the Barracks?

A. No; I was walking with him the whole time.

The witness withdraws.

Close of the defence.—The prisoner says: I have not smoked a cigar since 1862, and when I do smoke it is always a pipe; I did not smoke at all at the time I am charged with doing so, and I think that the Adjutant in passing quickly has made a mistake in thinking that I was smoking; I beg to point out that the Adjutant was on top of an omnibus and did not stop us, therefore had but little time to judge whether we were smoking or not; Gunner Stasson, the man who I was walking with, had a pencil in his mouth, and I believe that is how the mistake arose about our smoking.

The Court is cleared for the purpose of considering the finding.

Finding:—

The Court find that the prisoner, No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, New South Wales Artillery, is not guilty of the charge.

Signed at Victoria Barracks, Sydney, New South Wales, this 12th day of June, 1878.

WARNER SPALDING,
Major, N.S.W. Art.,
President.

“X.”

The Court will reassemble for the purpose of reconsidering the “finding,” on the ground that it appears to me directly against the evidence, for it is to be noted that Lieut. Taunton positively swears that he recognises the prisoner as the man he saw in the act of smoking. Corporal Brown's evidence neither supports nor rebuts the charge, and the only evidence for the defence is that of a man himself committed for trial for a similar offence, and committed in company with the prisoner.

Col., Commdt.
WARNER SPALDING, Major, N.S.W. Art.,
President.
Revision.

Revision :—

On Thursday, the 13th day of June, 1878, at 11 a.m., the Court re-assemble by order of Colonel J. S. Richardson, Commandant, for the purpose of re-considering their finding.

Present : The same members as before.

The memorandum containing the instructions to the Court, and the reasons of the revising authority for requiring a revision of the finding, is read, marked "X," signed by the President, and attached to the proceedings.

Revised Finding :—

The Court having attentively considered the observations of the Revising Officer and the whole of the proceedings, do now revoke their former finding, and are of opinion that the prisoner, No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, N.S.W. Artillery, is guilty of the charge.

Proceedings before sentence :—

The Court being re-opened the prisoner is again brought before it.

Lieut. P. Murray, N.S.W. Art., is duly sworn.

Q. What record have you to produce in proof of former convictions?

A. There are none.

Q. Is the prisoner under any sentence at the present time?

A. No.

Q. What is the prisoner's general character?

A. Very good.

Q. What is his age?

A. 34 $\frac{1}{2}$  years.

Q. What is the date of his attestation?

A. 11th August, 1871.

Q. What service is he allowed to reckon towards discharge?

A. 6 years, 304 days.

Q. Is the prisoner in possession of any decorations, or honorary rewards?

A. Yes; two good conduct badges.

The prisoner declines cross-examining the witness.

The Court is again cleared.

Sentence :—

The Court sentence the prisoner, No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, N.S.W. Artillery, to be imprisoned with hard labour in the Military Prison, Victoria Barracks, Sydney, New South Wales, or the gaol, Darlinghurst, Sydney, New South Wales, for fourteen days.

Signed at Victoria Barracks, Sydney, New South Wales, this 13th day of June, 1878.

President.

Confirmed.—HERCULES ROBINSON, 15/6/78. Promulgated at Victoria Barracks, Sydney, New South Wales, 17/6/78.—G.A., Major commanding No. 1 Battery, N.S.W.A. Promulgated at Dawes' Battery, 18 June, 1878.—W.S., Major. Promulgated at George's and Middle Head, 19/6/78.—H. AIREY, Lt. Promulgated, 27/6/78.—C. F. ROBERTS, Colonel. True copy,—H. D. MACKENZIE, Capt.

I certify that No. 30, Gunner Thomas Barrett, of the N.S.W. Artillery, is in a good state of health, and fit to undergo imprisonment, solitary or otherwise, and with or without hard labour; and that his present appearance and previous medical history both justify the belief that hard labour employment will neither be likely to originate nor to reproduce disease of any description.
