ALL papers in re ex-Constable Flanagan are now forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police.

C. SANDERSON,
Superintendent.

H. Levien, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Sydney, 11 September, 1883.

I have the honor to forward herewith a letter from Mr. John Flanagan with reference to the subject mentioned in the margin.

Re John Flanagan's application for a pension for services in the Police.

You will see that he complains bitterly of having been compelled to resign, and thereby deprived of his pension.

I know nothing of the facts of the case myself, but trust you will give it every consideration, and favour me with an early reply as to what is to be done in the matter.

I have, &c.,
HENRY LEVIEN.

Referred for report of the Inspector-General of Police, B.C., 17/9/83.—C. W.

Constable Flanagan resigned voluntarily, he being in good health and fit for duty. He has, therefore, no claim whatever upon the Police Superannuation Fund. I append Superintendent Sanderson's report in reference to Flanagan's accusations, and am satisfied that Mr. Sanderson did not behave improperly towards the constable.—EDMUND FOSBERY, I.G.P. B.C., The Principal Under Secretary.—25/9/83.

[Enclosure.]

Mr. J. Flanagan to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Barraba, 9 September, 1883.

I, John Flanagan, late 1st Class Constable (No. 914), desire to lay before you the following facts in connection with my retirement from the Police Force :—

On Superintendent Sanderson's first visit to Barraba, 10th May, 1882, he found fault with and reported me to the Inspector-General of Police for taking a few hundredweights of wheaten hay in lieu of oaten hay, as the contractor could not procure it (wheaten hay) in the district at the time, and I considered it equal, if not superior, to the oaten hay. He also ordered me to get rid of my poultry, which I had permission from Superintendent Garland to keep, and made use of the most offensive language towards me, saying, "I was more fit to be a scavenger than a sergeant of police."

Also, on the 3rd July, 1882, while attending the Tamworth Quarter Sessions, he used the most provoking and insulting language towards me, and ordered me to the barracks for insufficient reasons. His language and demeanour have been the most insulting I have ever witnessed from an officer towards his subordinate.

On the 26th April last, at Murrurundi, Superintendent Sanderson abused me in the following terms, "Have you no uniform? Why don't you wear it?" "No one knows you are a policeman." "I will remove you to Tamworth where you will be made know, and do your duty or be dismissed. You had better resign before you are dismissed."

On the 30th April last I applied for seven days leave of absence and was refused.

Superintendent Sanderson denounced me as one of the Tamworth drunkards, yet, during the whole of my service of twenty-one years, I was never even admonished for being under the influence of liquor.

I beg respectfully to submit the foregoing facts relative to Superintendent Sanderson's conduct towards me, as his demeanour was so offensive towards me upon every occasion we met, that it led me to believe he wished me to commit myself in such a manner as would lead to my dismissal.

It is on record that on the 22nd February, 1881, I applied for the rank of sergeant after nineteen years of distinguished service, and was recommended by Superintendent Garland. The Inspector-General acknowledged the justice of my claim, but still held back my promotion. I further wish to state that the charges laid by Muir & Son against me at Barraba, and which led to my removal and reduction, were false; the only point proved was that I could not furnish an account of all horses shod for a period of over two years, as there was no such record kept under Superintendent Garland's supervision.

On

On the 18th May last I applied to leave the Police Force after a service of twenty-one years as I was unable to perform any active duty owing to an internal injury I received from a fall off a horse, a certificate to that effect being given to me by Dr. Bell, a duly qualified Government Medical Officer, in Murrurundi, and asked for a gratuity or pension, and was refused.

I would respectfully draw your attention to the fact that Superintendent Garland, after a service of twenty years, was allowed to retire on a pension of £300 per annum, whilst I, who served over twenty-one years and paid 3 per cent. of my salary towards the same fund, am refused what I consider I am justly entitled to.

I most respectfully ask you to take into consideration the above facts, and mercifully consider my claims after a service of twenty-one years, and payment towards the same fund, and my present ill health.

I have, &c.,
JNO. FLANAGAN.

Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 18 September, 1883.

Referred to Superintendent Sanderson for careful and full report.

The papers respecting Flanagan's application from Superintendent, with my memo. of 22nd June last, do not appear to have been returned.
Superintendent Sanderson.

E.F.

Superintendent Sanderson to The Inspector-General of Police.

Sir,

Superintendent's Office, Tamworth, 24 September, 1883.

I have the honor to report for your information, in reference to ex-constable Flanagan's statement reflecting upon my conduct towards him while serving under me in the Police, as follows:—On my first visit to Barraba I found when examining the forage that Flanagan had accepted wheaten hay instead of oaten hay "as per contract." He excused himself by saying the contractor had sent for oaten hay, and he had accepted a little wheaten hay in the meantime. Mr. Booth, the contractor, stated in writing that unless he was allowed to supply wheaten instead of oaten hay he would throw up the contract. He was not allowed to supply wheaten hay by the Department, and he gave up the contract. Flanagan's statement, in reference to Mr. Booth sending for oaten hay was a fabrication. Had I not detected it probably all wheaten hay would have been supplied by the contractor. So far the contract was made invalid by the action of Flanagan. It was his duty to have reported the matter to me, which he "apparently" purposely neglected to do. I found the stable-yard in a very dirty untidy state, caused by the very large number of poultry he kept. I ordered him to get rid of some, but had no objection to his keeping a few, which he did until he left Barraba. I may and probably did make use of the word scavenger, but not as he would infer. I remarked the yard was more like a scavenger's than a barrack-yard, which I now reiterate. Flanagan appears to have a tolerable good memory for dates, but not for detail. He has not stated all I said to him on my first visit. For some time a year or two before I took charge of the district I heard, and it was the talk all over the district, that Flanagan was the owner of a public-house in the town in which he was stationed—Barraba; and I also heard that he scarcely ever went to bed sober. I asked him if he did own a public-house in Barraba. He replied he did. I then told him it would be my duty to remove him. In answer to whether there was any truth in the statement I had heard about his being drunk so frequently he denied it, and I accepted his denial.

As regards having used provoking and insulting language to him when attending the Tamworth Sessions, July, 1882, it is absolutely false. I have no recollection of having spoken to him.

On the 26th April last I was at Murrurundi, at the railway station. C. Flanagan was there on duty in plain clothes. I called him on one side, using the words he said I did, but not in the manner implied. I asked him why he was not in uniform. He replied he had been cleaning his kit, and did not change his clothes. I told him that while he remained in the Service he must comply with all lawful orders; that he had a right to be in uniform; that if he did not like the Service he had better resign (I had previously heard he was about to resign and open a public-house, which he has done); that if he persisted in disobeying orders he would be dismissed. Later in the day Flanagan came to me, and said in a very insulting manner, "I will not take any abuse from you; I will apply to leave your district, and if it is not granted I will resign." I ordered him away, and told him I would report him. He did not apply to leave my district; it did not suit his purpose. On my return to Tamworth I received an application from him asking for seven days leave of absence, which I opposed on account of his insubordinate behaviour towards me at Murrurundi. His application was refused. I may mention that Flanagan had fourteen days' leave seven months previously. A day or so after Flanagan resigned. He met me at Tamworth, and expressed his sorrow (?) for having been insolent to me at Murrurundi on the day in question.

That I denounced him as one of the Tamworth drunkards is a gross falsehood, and I should pass it over only for his statement that he (Flanagan), during the whole of his service—twenty-one years—was never even admonished for being under the influence of liquor. Perhaps not; but it would have been more satisfactory if he had gone a little further (perhaps his conscience would not allow him), and stated that he had never been drunk during that time. He might have been drunk a hundred times; there was no one to admonish him. He was in charge of the Police 60 miles away from the head station, and if he transgressed there was no one to report him. It does not follow because a man may have a clean defaulter's sheet that he has never been guilty of any misconduct. My experience teaches me just the contrary. Probably, if justice had been done, he would have been reported a dozen times.

Flanagan states that the charges made against him by Muir & Son are false, but he carefully avoids stating what the charges were. Muir charged Flanagan with having had private work done by him (Muir), who was the Police farrier, to the amount of £2 10s. or thereabouts, for his (Flanagan's) private house, and charging the same as shoes, which amount was paid by the Police Department, certified by Flanagan as shoes. Muir stated, in Flanagan's presence, that he gave him every quarter an account, including the number of horses shod and private work done for Flanagan, and repeatedly requested Flanagan to produce the bills. Muir further stated the private work done for Flanagan was in three separate quarterly accounts, as the amount was not paid for in one quarter but in three quarters, meaning the balance was carried forward. Flanagan admitted having received the accounts, as stated by Muir, but there was no private work included in them. Flanagan produced some of the accounts, but the three quarterly accounts containing the items of private work, as stated by Muir, were not forthcoming. Flanagan stated he had lost them. This is very suspicious. If these accounts had been produced they would prove conclusively either Muir or Flanagan were telling a deliberate falsehood.

Of Flanagan's application for the rank of sergeant I know nothing. I have known him only since March, 1882, and have no hesitation in saying that I consider him wholly unfitted for that position, from what little I do know of him.

As

As regards Flanagan's statement that he was obliged to leave the service through ill-health it is decidedly at variance with the truth. He is a strong robust man. Since I have had charge of this district (March, 1882) he was sick one day; this was before leaving Barraba. The fall from, or rather when his horse fell with Flanagan, it did not incapacitate him from performing his duty. He never reported the circumstance, although he saw me frequently after. I knew nothing about it till I received his application to retire from the Force, 18th May, and he states the horse fell with him on the 22nd January.

Flanagan's statement in reference to myself is the outcome of malice, engendered by my having performed my duty, and doing my best to make him do his. Had I been the means of keeping him at Barraba, where he had an hotel, and pigeonholed Muir's complaint, and passed over all other irregularities, I should have been an exemplary superintendent in his estimation. His statements as a whole are absolutely false. He would try to make it appear that whenever I met him I abused him.

I have neither said or done anything to Flanagan or any other member of the Force I wish to retract. While I have the honor and am permitted to hold the position I now do, I shall not alter my line of conduct towards those placed under me, viz., treating all alike with justice and impartiality.

I have, &c.,
C. SANDERSON,
Superintendent.

The Principal Under Secretary to R. H. Levien, Esquire, M.P.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 13 October, 1883.

In reply to your letter of the 11th ultimo, submitting a communication from ex-Constable John Flanagan with reference to his claim to a pension, and also regarding the conduct of Inspector Sanderson towards him when a member of the Police Force, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that the Inspector-General of Police, to whom the matter was referred, reports that Flanagan has no claim whatever upon the Police Superannuation Fund, as he resigned voluntarily, being in good health and fit for duty; and that it appears from a report furnished by Inspector Sanderson that that officer did not act improperly towards Flanagan as alleged.

I have, &c.,
CRITCHETT WALKER.

Mr. J. Flanagan to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Barraba, 18 October, 1883.

With reference to your letter of the 13th instant (No. 83/8,057), I respectfully request that you will be good enough to order an investigation of my case before a Bench of Magistrates, when I will more than establish the statement I submitted on the 11th ultimo, viz. :—That the Inspector-General of Police acted most unfairly towards me, and that Superintendent Sanderson's conduct was worse than stated.

I have, &c.,
JOHN FLANAGAN.

I have been requested to forward this.—HY. LEVIEN.

Submitted—8/11/83. Perhaps the Inspector-General of Police may, on re-consideration, see some means by which this matter may be re-opened, although, if it be the case that he kept a public-house, or was interested in one, I consider that if he had not resigned he should have been dismissed.—A.S., 10/11/83. B.C., 12/11/83.—C.W.

The Inspector-General of Police to The Principal Under Secretary.

Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 13 November, 1883.

I SCARCELY see how this case can be re-considered. Flanagan is only forty-nine years of age; and unless the Medical Board could certify that he is unfit for police service no payment could be made. Mr. Garland, to whom he refers, was considerably over sixty.

I attach copy of the Police Surgeon's report. It was evident Flanagan was a robust man, quite equal to the performance of his duty.

His resignation was entirely voluntary.

EDMUND FOSBERY,
Inspector-General of Police.

B.C., The Principal Under Secretary.

Mr. Levien might be informed in terms of Mr. Fosbery's report.—C.W., 19/11/83. Appd.—A.S.]

[Enclosure.]

21 June, 1883.

I HAVE examined Constable Flanagan, who complains of pains in his limbs at times, and occasional spitting of blood on the slightest exertion, which he says was caused by a fall from his horse on police duty,—I cannot find any disease, internal or otherwise, which would cause such symptoms; and I can see nothing to prevent him from performing his duty as usual, if so inclined.

M. EGAN,
Police Surgeon.

The Principal Under Secretary to R. H. Levien, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 21 November, 1883.

Referring to the letter submitted by you on the 24th ultimo, from ex-Constable John Flanagan, regarding his claim to a pension, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that it appears from a report obtained from the Inspector-General of Police that Flanagan's case cannot be re-considered.

I have, &c.,

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 11 December, 1883.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 6th December, 1883, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all letters, papers, and other documents, having reference to a complaint made by H. J. Woodley, of Nundle, with reference to the conduct of Senior-sergeant Langworthy, of that place.”

(Mr. Gill, for Mr. Levien.)

Mr. H. J. Woodley to The Inspector-General of Police.

Back Creek, Nundle, 28 September 1883.

Your Petitioner here showeth:—In the early part of last August as Mrs. Munchine went to Nundle Court-house to obtain summonses for some boys for making use of obscene language (amongst those boys was a son of mine), she met with Senior-sergeant Langworthy, and from the conversation they had he went to the C.P.S. and told him he would take up this woman's case on behalf of the Crown; to give her the summonses and not charge her for them. The summonses were issued at the expense of the Crown in the name of Catherine Munchine.

On the morning of the trials I was told Senior-sergeant Langworthy had paid for the summonses for Mrs. Munchine. I asked him, “What right had he to take up the Munchine's case?” He gave me an evasive answer. I said no more then. Senior-sergeant Langworthy came to my place a day or two afterwards in company with another constable. He started to abuse me for accusing him of taking the part of the Munchines.

Amongst other things he said, “I am not so much taken up with the Munchine's as you think.” To which I replied, “You had better be careful, you would not be the first constable the Munchine's had got into trouble.” He then said, “I was never so much insulted in my life as I have been by you; you are a low blackguard, and I have a good mind to lock you up,” at the same time shaking his fist in my face. He said, “You ought to keep a Sunday-school here?” I said, “Yes, and get old Munchine to teach it.” He said, “I do not mean that; I mean you ought to send your children to a Sunday-school.” I said, “It is too far this time of the year, and it is not the first time we have had a Sunday-school here.” He said, “I would not trust you with a Sunday-school.”

The other constable was present during the time all this conversation was taking place, and he must have heard it.

Now I feel it my duty to report Senior-sergeant Langworthy for his abusive language towards me. I have lived where I am now living for the last twenty-three years, I have reared a family respectably, and I was never called a low blackguard before.

I

I have always assisted the police (in a legitimate way) in furthering the ends of justice, and on all occasions when they came to my place I gave them the utmost respect. I very much fear that Senior-sergeant Langworthy is intriguing with those Munchine's to damage my reputation, and perhaps to deprive me of my liberty.

This much I may say of the Munchine family (male or female) : Their character will not stand scrutiny, and they have gained some notoriety in law Courts for reckless swearing.

I wish Senior-sergeant Langworthy to be removed from the Nundle District.

I have, &c.,
HENRY JAMES WOODLEY.

H. Levien, Esq., M.P., to The Inspector-General of Police.

Sir,

Sydney, 1 October, 1883.

Herewith I enclose a Petition from one Mr. H. J. Woodley with reference to Sergeant Langworthy.

I know nothing whatever of the matter, and merely present it in accordance with a request by Woodley.

I have, &c.,
HENRY LEVIEN.

Referred to Supt. Sanderson for inquiry and report.—E.F., 2/10/83. Senior-sergeant Langworthy for report.—C. SANDERSON, superintendent, Tamworth, 4/10/83.

Senior-sergeant W. T. Langworthy to Mr. Superintendent Sanderson.

SENIOR-SERGEANT Langworthy reports re petition signed Henry James Woodley,—

With reference to the summonses the statement is not correct. Neither did the senior-sergeant commence to abuse Woodley, nor call him a low blackguard, nor shake his fist in Woodley's face, nor is he trying to deprive Woodley of his liberty. No doubt Woodley and his friends are anxious for the senior-sergeant's removal.

The senior-sergeant is acquainted with Woodley's character, and Woodley fears being prosecuted for "perjury" and "unlawfully detaining a girl" of sixteen years against the consent of her parents.

Woodley has never assisted the police in any way, and since his wife died, as it is supposed from the effects of poison, his character has been shady. He is also connected and associated with the worst characters in the district. The Minchine family are very bad characters. The senior-sergeant has prosecuted two of their sons, but they are not too bad for Woodley to keep one of the girls of sixteen years against her parent's consent. Woodley is a widower residing near Minchine's family, about 6 miles from Nundle, a small farmer. The petition does not appear to bear his signature.

The senior-sergeant regrets to trouble the Superintendent with a long report, but it appears necessary.

In June last a Mrs. Snob, one of the Minchine family, came and complained to the senior-sergeant of Woodley detaining her daughter of sixteen years of age against her consent ; that Woodley was a widower and kept her daughter at his house for a bad purpose. As the whole connection was bad the senior-sergeant used abundant caution, refused to give advice, and sent her to the Magistrate. Mrs. Snob came to the Station and Court-house repeatedly, without recovering her child from Woodley. Although Constable Trevathen patrolled this part of the district a gang of larrikins was formed by Woodley's son, and they frequented Minchine's on Sundays.

On the 3rd of August Mrs. Minchine, a German woman of 70 years, came and complained to the senior-sergeant of the conduct of a gang of larrikins, led by Woodley's son, on the Sunday previous. They used most disgusting language, threw stones, and compelled the family to take refuge in the house. The senior-sergeant took her and her grandson, about fourteen years of age, to the C.P.S. and J.P.—Mr. Brown. Mrs. Minchine made application for summonses for about a dozen, but stated that she had only enough money for one summons. This being a special case the Magistrate thought it advisable for the senior-sergeant to lay informations against the principals. Accordingly three informations were laid by the senior-sergeant against one of Woodley's sons and two other youths, for using obscene language. The cases appeared clear. Mrs. Minchine brought her witnesses, two grandsons and son-in-law. After the summonses were served, Woodley and the other two offenders took out summonses against the Minchine's. Then there were three cross-cases. The senior-sergeant submitted to the Bench that as these were cross-cases it may be considered unfair for him to conduct Minchine's cases. The Bench agreed with the view, and the senior-sergeant took no part in cases whatever. Woodley's son and another youth were convicted and one of Minchine's. Four witnesses swore against four witnesses in each case. Woodley's son left the Court and went into the street and used obscene language in the hearing of the senior-sergeant, who brought him up again and had him fined. The Magistrate remarked that he would fine him in the full penalty next time ; if that would not do he would send for the Stipendiary Magistrate and introduce flogging. That most wilful perjury had been committed in these cases by these parties, and he hoped the senior-sergeant would be able to bring it home to them. This annoyed Woodley, senior, who behaved in a most insulting manner towards the senior-sergeant in the Court-house, and accused him of vindicating the Minchine family.

On the 23rd August the senior-sergeant took Constable Trevathen with him to the Back Creek with a view of getting evidence to support the case of perjury, and interview each of the parties. No additional evidence could be obtained. It appeared to the senior-sergeant that each of the parties had committed perjury, and Woodley, senior, in particular. Woodley swore "that he sat on a log" for two hours, and heard the whole of the language used, and certain language could not have been used without him hearing it. The senior-sergeant called at his place and asked him to be good enough to show him where he sat and heard the language complained of. He accompanied him to the place, when he found that Woodley had been about 200 yards from the scene and was partially deaf. The senior-sergeant submitted the evidence to the Magistrate, who requested him to wait the arrival of the Police Magistrate. As the Police Magistrate considered that there were difficulties in the absence of reliable evidence the cases of perjury were not proceeded with.

It is true that the senior-sergeant told Woodley that it would be better for the children to be going to Sunday-school than conducting themselves in the manner described. Warm words ensued through Woodley misunderstanding the senior-sergeant. The senior-sergeant told Woodley that he was insulting, that he the senior-sergeant was not taken up with the Minchines; referred him to his conduct in the Court-house, and that he might have been locked up for it. The senior-sergeant has had to work for four years almost alone, with a perverse and trying people in this district, but he has never been complained of for calling any man out of his name, and never appeared before the Bench on a charge in his life.

Superintendent's Office, Tamworth, 10 October, 1883.

THERE is no reason whatever to doubt the statement of the senior-sergeant. He is about the last man I know who could act as Woodley states he did. There are a few persons in Nundle who are anxious for Senior-sergeant Langworthy's removal, and are not particular what means they resort to so long as they effect their object.

(2.) Alfred and Benjamin Doggett:—Mr. Merriman, for Mr. Butcher, asked the Minister of Justice,—

(1.) Is it a fact that Police Inspector Fenton, of Goulburn, corresponded with two persons named Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett, of Melbourne, and obtained their services as informers against certain publicans in the Goulburn district; if so, will he cause to be laid upon the Table copies of such correspondence?

(2.) Is it a fact that on 21st August certain informations were sworn by the men Doggett against publicans of Goulburn, and afterwards withdrawn by Inspector Fenton?

(3.) Is he aware that Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett are now in custody on a charge of perjury?

Mr. Cohen answered,—The requisite information in reply to these questions is being prepared in the shape of a Return, which I will lay upon the Table of the House in the course of a few days.

Memo. re Doggetts referred to in annexed minute, &c.

I BEG to report that about the 29th of June last the two men referred to in attached papers informed me that they had been carrying on the business of wheelwrights, &c., at Crookwell, and failed, and this was confirmed by a note they produced which was signed by Senior-Sergeant Moylan. They stated that as they were coming into Goulburn they were supplied with liquors by three sly grog-sellers named Corby, Cartwright, and Leary, and desired to know whether I could file informations and call upon them as witnesses. This I promised to do, and then Benjamin Doggett refused to proceed further, not liking, he said, that the name "informer" should be applied to him. I told them to think the matter over till next day. I saw them again the following morning, but Benjamin Doggett still refused, and they left, having first promised that if both agreed to go on with the informations they would write to me from Sydney. This, however, they failed to do; but they wrote to me from Melbourne on the 15th July last (see attached letter marked A), which letter I did not reply to. I received another letter from them, marked B, on the 2nd ultimo, and this (after consulting you sir) I replied to, and stated that owing to their having left the Colony I did not feel justified in filing information, and that as the Act required that this should be done within a month, it was then too late; but if they thought proper to come back, I thought there would be little difficulty in their catching the same persons again. The next I saw or heard of them was when they arrived in Goulburn on the 8th ultimo, after which I wrote to the men in charge of the out stations, asking for the names of sly grog-sellers in their respective districts (see original memos. and replies attached, marked C and D).

I beg to remark that the Doggetts went out from Goulburn for the purpose of catching the persons by whom they had been previously supplied with liquor, and on returning to Goulburn informed me that they had failed, and thought they had been suspected.

I herewith attach an extract, marked E, from the Goulburn Herald of 23rd August last, in which the evidence given by the Doggetts against Mr. Simons is reported. I also attach an extract, marked F, from same paper of this date, 2nd instant, in which the evidence against the Doggetts for perjury is reported.

Melbourne, 15 July, 1884.

Information now laid by Alfred John Doggett and Benjamin Doggett.

WE arrived at Corby's on the 28th June, and we received intoxicating liquors, as follows:—One whisky each, and paid 2s. 6d.—or in words, a half-crown, and change 1s. 6d. We repeated this three times in succession. We returned on the 5th July, and received two whiskies each, and stayed up drinking intoxicating drinks all night.

Information now laid against Frank Cartwright.

WE arrived at Cartwright's on the 28th of June, 1884. I called for drinks—three rums—one for Dan. O'Brian and two for ourselves, which were supplied to us; and I said, "Come, let's have another drink," which we were supplied with—four rums this time, one for landlord, and three for us and D. O'Brien.

Information laid against Thomas Leary.

WE called on him the 4th of July. I stated how cold and bitter the weather was, and said a drink would do me good; he called me into his store and supplied me and my friend with one glass of rum each; I gave him two threepenny-pieces, and my friend gave 6d. to him.

SIR,—Will you kindly bring on the cases as early as possible, as we are in business in Melbourne now. I am happy to say that my brother is determined to go through it as myself, trusting we shall succeed in all our undertakings.

Mr. Fenton,—Will you kindly telegraph to me a day or two before the case comes on, to give me time. I will come by the mail train direct to Goulburn.

Address as follows:—Mr. A. J. Doggett, 126, Little Lonsdale-street, Melbourne, Victoria.

B.

Inspector Fenton,

Sir,

126, Little Lonsdale-street, Melbourne.

The information that has been laid by A. J. Doggett and Benjamin Doggett: If you intend to put in force, I would feel greatly obliged if you would let me know, as I am detaining myself from any further occupation in business until I hear from you.

Sir, my brother has fully made his mind up to see it through, and everything is clear on our side. I feel sure to win the three cases. I trust you will put them in force as early as possible. If you think I am too far away, and you would like to see me, I will come over and wait until the cases come on, as my brother was saying perhaps you would like to see me first. An answer at your earliest would oblige.

I beg to remain, &c.,

A. J. DOGGETT.

MEMO.—Forwarded for the Superintendent's information. The time allowed by the Act for filing informations in cases referred to is now past. Would it be desirable to write to Doggett and tell him so, and at the same time suggest that if himself and brother thought well of coming here and make fresh cases the police would assist in giving them information?—R. FENTON, A.S. Inspector, 2/8/84. The Superintendent of Police, Goulburn.

Yes, I think so. Why were the other informations allowed to lapse?—E. MORISSET, Supt., 4/8/84. Sub-Inspector Fenton.

Having left the Colony, and the writer's brother having refused before leaving to assist, you agreed with me that it would be undesirable for me to proceed. I have now written to Doggett.—R. FENTON, A.S. Inspector, 4/8/84. The Superintendent of Police, Goulburn.

Extract from Goulburn Herald, 23 August, 1884.

GOULBURN LICENSING COURT.

A SPECIAL meeting of this Court was held on Thursday, before Messrs. Alexander, Mackellar, and Horsbrugh, Licensing Magistrates, for the purpose of hearing twelve charges brought against licensed victuallers, for the sale of liquor in their licensed houses on Sunday 10th instant. Proceedings in eleven of the cases had been taken by the Licensing Inspector, Mr. Fenton, upon information received from two young men named Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett ; the twelfth was laid by the informers themselves. The cases caused much excitement, and the Court was crowded.

Mr. C. E. Pilcher, barrister of Sydney, instructed by Messrs. Betts and Carter, was retained to defend the cases.

The first case called was that of James Simons, licensee of the Commercial Hotel, Goulburn, who was charged with permitting liquor to be sold and consumed on his licensed premises in the afternoon of Sunday, 10th instant.

Alfred John Doggett deposed :—I am a carpenter ; I know the Commercial Hotel, Goulburn ; I went there with my brother Benjamin on Sunday afternoon, 10th instant, at a quarter-past 3 in the afternoon ; I know the time because I looked at my watch and wrote it down. [Here witness, in reply to Mr. Pilcher, said that he was refreshing his memory from a note-book in which he had written down the events as they happened.] We went in one of the side doors—it was open ; the barmaid met us in the passage ; I asked for drinks ; we went into the side room off the bar ; my brother and I were supplied with liquor by the barmaid ; I had brandy, and my brother brandy and lemonade ; I paid a shilling for the two drinks ; I did not see either Mr. or Mrs. Simons ; there was no one else in the parlour while we were in it.

To Mr. Pilcher : The drinks were handed through the door between the bar and parlour ; I am positive to the time and the barmaid ; the person before the Court is the female that served us with liquor ; my brother and I came to Goulburn about a fortnight ago ; we were in Melbourne previously for a month ; we were not working, but seeing some friends ; we came to Goulburn in consequence of a communication we received from the police authorities ; we have been watching the hotelkeepers to find out those who sold liquor during prohibited hours ; we received our authority from the district licensing inspector.

Mr. Fenton objected to the witness being asked questions as to what led to his going to the hotel.

Mr. Pilcher said he did not care where they obtained their authority, he only wanted to show the character of these two men, that they belonged to the lowest type of humanity—that of informers—a class abhorred in every British community.

Cross-examination continued : Before we went to Melbourne we were living at Crookwell ; I owed some money when I left Crookwell ; I stopped at Mr. Stephenson's hotel ; I paid the landlady when I first went there ; I did not take my things over the balcony, nor did I leave the hotel without any one knowing ; I have been in the New South Wales police ; I did not like it, and because I could not leave under twelve months I became drunk in order that I might be discharged ; I was dismissed from the Force ; I was arrested in Crookwell for using threatening language ; I do not expect anything from the police for watching the hotels ; my brother and I have stayed at Armstrong's Terminus Hotel, Stephenson's Union Club Hotel, and at the Edinburgh Castle on the Tarlo Road ; to go to the latter place we left Goulburn by train and went as far as North Goulburn ; I saw Inspector Fenton while I was at the Edinburgh Castle ; I do not know whether he came to see me or no ; I did not want to play Yankee-grab at Simons' on Saturday night, the 9th instant ; I was not turned out.

Several times during the cross-examination the witness appealed to the Court as to whether he must answer the questions put, and frequently required pressing before a direct answer was obtained.

Benjamin Doggett, a wheelwright, deposed :—I am brother of the last witness ; I was with him at the Commercial Hotel on Sunday, the 10th instant ; it was a quarter-past 3 in the afternoon ; we were supplied with drinks by the barmaid I saw outside the Court this morning ; the side door was wide open ; I saw the barmaid at the hotel last night.

Mr. Pilcher here asked witness for a note-book to which he had been referring.

To Mr. Pilcher : The entries were all written at the time the events happened ; I am not aware that we will obtain a reward if there be a conviction, nor do I care ; we came here in consequence of a communication we received from the police, and have been here about a fortnight ; I cannot say what money I had when I left Crookwell ; the person now before the Court is the person who served my brother and me with drink at the Commercial Hotel on Sunday, 10th instant ; I was at the Commercial Hotel on the previous night ; my brother and I were not turned out ; I did not hear my brother offer to play Yankee-grab with any one in the hotel, nor did I hear him say you are too — particular here ; I saw Inspector Fenton talking with my brother at the Edinburgh Castle ; we have been in the Colony about three years ; I worked at my trade fifteen months of that time ; I occasionally have a spree ; I did not make any entries in my note-book this morning ; my brother and I have read over our books this morning, but not one to the other.

Mr. Fenton : The communication referred to by Mr. Pilcher as to your receiving instructions about "catching publicans"—

Mr. Pilcher objected to this question. He would not object to the letter being put in.

The Bench ruled the question could not be asked.

Th

The following evidence was given for the defence :—

Helen Thomas, barmaid at the Commercial Hotel, deposed :—On Sunday, 10th instant, I locked the door leading from the bar parlour into the bar immediately after the boarders had their dinner; I gave the key to Mr. Simons; I did not serve any liquor that afternoon; I left the house about a quarter past 2, and did not return till between 7 and 8 o'clock; I saw the two previous witnesses at the hotel on the previous evening; I served them with liquor at five minutes to 11; I am certain as to the hour, having looked at the clock; I heard Mr. Simons tell the two Doggetts to leave the hotel; as they left I heard them say that I had served them after 11; this is untrue.

To Mr. Fenton: Mr. Simons and Miss McCallum also serve in the bar; Mr. Simons and Mr. Betts have had no conversation with me about the case.

Mr. Pilcher: Oh don't tell him what you told me. (Laughter.)

Witness: I merely told Mr. Pilcher I did not serve any one on the Sunday afternoon in question.

Margaret Simons deposed :—I saw my husband lock the door leading from our private parlour into the bar; he put the key in his pocket, and went into his bedroom and remained there till after 5 o'clock.

To Mr. Fenton: I cannot say whether the door leading from the public bar-parlour into the bar was locked: Mrs. Thomas left the hotel that afternoon without waiting to have her dinner; she did not return till evening.

William Aylward deposed :—I met Mrs. Thomas, barmaid at the Commercial Hotel, on Sunday afternoon, 10th instant, at the top of Goldsmith-street, near the recreation ground; it was either ten minutes or a quarter past 3; we had a walk together along the Crookwell Road, and after we were about 1½ mile from the town she left me to go and see some friends.

To Mr. Fenton: I have met Mrs. Thomas on previous occasions at the same time; I am positive as to the time because I had an appointment and was kept waiting. (Laughter.)

Elizabeth McCallum, who occasionally serves in the bar of the Commercial Hotel, deposed that she served no liquor on the afternoon in question.

James Simons, licensee of the Commercial Hotel, deposed :—On Sunday afternoon the 10th instant, the barmaid, Mrs. Thomas, gave me the key of the door leading from the parlour into the bar about 2 o'clock; I locked the door leading into the bar from the private parlour myself shortly afterwards; I put both keys in my pocket and went into my bedroom, and remained there till about half-past 5; it was impossible for any liquor to be served from the bar without some person coming to me for the key; I did not give it to any one that afternoon; the two Doggetts were at the hotel on the previous evening; they entered through the bar-door and were served with drinks by the barmaid; they then went into the parlour, and the witness John challenged some one in the parlour to have a game of Yankee-grab; I told him I would not allow Yankee-grab there; he then wanted to play cards for a "tenner"; I told him I would not allow cards to be played in my house; he replied, "Oh, you have plenty of private rooms; I will put £10 in your hands and play any one on Monday"; I replied, "We have had enough of this sort of talk; it is after 11; it is time for you to be going"; I went out of the room into the hall, expecting them to leave; they did not, and I returned into the room and told them if they did not leave I would put out the lights; the witness John then asked for drinks; I refused them, saying that I had one summons in my pocket for permitting billiard-playing after hours, and I was not going to have another for selling liquor; the two brothers then went outside, and the witness John remarked, "You are too—particular in this town."

To Mr. Fenton: It is not unusual for the doors of the bar to be locked on Sunday; all the persons in the parlour on Saturday evening before-mentioned left at the same time.

This closed the evidence for the defence.

The Bench dismissed the case.

The decision was received with applause. Order was called by the police.

The Court adjourned for an hour, and on resuming at 2 p.m. Mr. Inspector Fenton said, after what had occurred in the case heard he would withdraw the remainder of the charges. He remarked that the Doggetts were strangers to him, and it was in consequence of a communication that he had received from them in regard to sly grog-selling that he had written to them in Melbourne. He had no idea that they were coming here to watch publicans for breaches of the Act.

There was again applause in the Court, and order was called by the police.

Mr. Pilcher remarked that he as a Barrister could not help saying that the Inspector had taken the proper course.

The Bench coincided with this expression.

MONDAY, 1 SEPTEMBER.

Before the Police Magistrate, and Messrs. Clifford, Meyer, and Ball.

PERJURY.—Alfred John Doggett and Benjamin Doggett were charged with having, at the Licensing Court, Goulburn, on Thursday, 21st August, committed wilful and corrupt perjury.

Mr. Betts appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Davidson for the defence.

Constable Lowe deposed :—The two prisoners were delivered to me in Melbourne on Friday morning by the police; I brought them in custody from Melbourne; I identify them as the two persons mentioned in the warrant.

Leslie Macarthur, Clerk of Petty Sessions and of the Licensing Court, deposed :—I have the custody of the Licensing Court records; I was acting as Clerk of the Licensing Court on Thursday, 21st August; the Licensing Magistrates were on the Bench; I recognize the prisoners as Alfred John Doggett and Benjamin Doggett, who gave evidence at that Court; I produce the information laid by the Licensing Inspector, and the evidence given by the two prisoners; I saw the oath administered to the two prisoners; and they signed the depositions now produced after they were read over to them.

The depositions of the prisoners were admitted as read. In their evidence they stated that they had been supplied with liquor at the Commercial Hotel at a quarter-past 3 on the afternoon of Sunday, 10th August.

Constable Wallace deposed: I recognize the prisoners as two witnesses to whom I administered the oath in the usual form at the Licensing Court on Thursday, 21st August.

James Simons, licensee of the Commercial Hotel, deposed :—I saw the prisoners on Saturday evening, 9th August; at a few minutes before 11 they came into the bar of my hotel; while they were in the bar the clock struck 11; and they went into the bar parlour; the prisoner John wanted to play Yankee-grab; I went into the parlour and told him I would not permit him to do anything of the sort; he then wanted to put £10 in my hand to play cards; I told him I would not allow cards in my place; I had to put the prisoners out; the prisoner John said, "You are too—particular in this town" [Mr. Davidson objected to this evidence, but it was permitted by the Bench.] I was at home on the next day at dinner-time; the bar was open to permit of the boarders getting what drink they required; about a quarter-past 2 the door between the bar and the bar-parlour was locked by the barmaid; she gave me the key and I put it in my pocket; about half-past 2 I locked the door leading from my private parlour into the bar; I put that key into my pocket; I then went into my bedroom and remained there till half-past 5; the keys were in my possession all the time; it was impossible for liquor to be served from the bar during that time; I did not see either of the prisoners at the hotel on Sunday, 10th August; the barmaid did not return till between 7 and 8 o'clock that evening; I do not know what time she went out.

To Mr. Davidson: I saw the barmaid lock the door; it is an every-day occurrence on Sunday for her to lock the door; the outer door leading into the bar-parlour from the hall was open; there was a fire in the bar-parlour for the convenience of our lodgers; I cannot swear what time the barmaid left the house; she went towards her room about a few minutes after 2; the outer door of the bar-parlour is always open; the bar was perfectly secure and no one could get in.

Margaret Simons, wife of the licensee, corroborated his evidence.

Constable Wallace, recalled by Mr. Betts, deposed :—I called Mrs. Thomas, the barmaid, into Court when each of the two prisoners were in the witness-box; each of them identified her as barmaid at the Commercial Hotel.

Helen Thomas, barmaid at the Commercial Hotel, deposed :—The two prisoners were at the Commercial Hotel on Saturday, 9th August; I served them with drinks on that evening, and again on Wednesday, 20th August; I had the key of the bar on Sunday, August 10th, during the dinner-hour; after the dinner-hour I locked the door between the bar and the bar-parlour, and gave the key to Mr. Simons; I went out about a quarter-past 2; it is not true that I gave the prisoners any drink on that day; I did not return till between 7 and 8 o'clock; I was not on the premises between the hours mentioned; I did not see the prisoners during that day.

To

To Mr. Davidson : I cannot say how many lodgers there were at dinner that day ; I think there were two or three bottles of beer taken out ; I opened the bar when the girl came for the drinks for the lodgers ; I remained in the bar-parlour during the dinner ; no one came into the parlour while the bar was open.

Mr. Davidson began to question the witness as to what she went out for, but was stopped by one of the Magistrates, and it was decided by a majority of the Magistrates that the evidence was inadmissible.

Mr. Davidson said there must be a committal, and he would get the evidence out in another place, where it would suit him better.

William Aylward deposed :—I met Mrs. Thomas, barmaid at the Commercial Hotel, on Sunday, August 10th, at the top of Goldsmith-street, near the show grounds ; it was between ten minutes and a quarter-past 3 ; it would take a lady a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes to walk direct from the Commercial Hotel ; it was impossible for Mrs. Thomas to be at the hotel at a quarter past 3 ; she left me at twenty minutes to 4 and went in a direction away from the hotel.

To Mr. Davidson : Mrs. Thomas told me she had to come without her dinner.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

The prisoners, when asked if they had anything to say, both replied, "Nothing, but that they were not guilty."

They were then committed to take their trial at the Quarter Sessions on 16th instant.

No. 2.

2. MR. BUTCHER to ask THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE,—

(1.) Is it a fact that Police Inspector Fenton, of Goulburn, corresponded with two persons named Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett, of Melbourne, and obtained their services as informers against certain publicans in the Goulburn district ; if so, will he cause to be laid upon the Table copies of such correspondence ?

(2.) Is it a fact that on 21st August certain informations were sworn by the men Doggett against publicans of Goulburn, and afterwards withdrawn by Inspector Fenton ?

(3.) Is he aware that Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett are now in custody on a charge of perjury ?

Sub-Inspector Fenton will be good enough to forward careful replies to each of the above interrogatories by first post.—E.F., 17 September, 1884. Sub-Inspector Fenton, Goulburn.

Acting Inspector Fenton to The Inspector-General of Police.

Police Station, Goulburn, 17 September, 1884.

MEMO. re minute of Inspector-General of Police relatives to question to be asked in the Legislative Assembly, on the 23rd instant, by Mr. Butcher.

I beg to report, re Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett—

1st. That it is not a fact that Police Inspector Fenton, of Goulburn, corresponded with the persons named Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett, of Melbourne, and obtained their services as informers against certain publicans in the Goulburn district.

2nd. That it is not a fact that on the 21st August certain informations were sworn to by the men Doggett against publicans of Goulburn, and afterwards withdrawn by Inspector Fenton.

3rd. It is a fact that Alfred John and Benjamin Doggett are now in custody on a charge of perjury.

I beg to add that these are true answers to the questions referred to, and that the whole particulars are fully reported in the papers in the case.

R. FENTON,

A.S. Inspector.

[Urgent.]

Police Station, Goulburn, 18 September, 1884.

MEMO re brothers Doggett, the informers referred to in papers forwarded by this post.

I beg to report that when I reported upon this case before I had not a copy of the letter forwarded by me to Melbourne in reply to the two letters which I had received from Alfred John Doggett. Mr. Davidson, their solicitor, has kindly lent me the original letter which he received from them, and I herewith attach a copy for the information of the Inspector-General of Police.

R. FENTON,

A.S. Inspector.

Acting Inspector Fenton to Mr. A. J. Doggett.

Sir,

Police Station, Goulburn, N.S.Wales, 4 August, 1884.

Yours of the 15th and 31st ultimo to hand ; and in reply I beg to inform you that, owing to your brother having refused to proceed with the case before leaving here, I felt that it would be undesirable for me to file informations when you had left the Colony. It is now, however, too late to file them, the time allowed by the Act having expired. If you are still willing to act in the matter, and you and your brother will come over here, there would be no difficulty in catching the same parties again, and I would assist by giving you information about others, and the whole might be decided by the Bench in the one day. I feel confident that a good thing might be made out of this, and I shall be glad if you will kindly let me know at your earliest convenience what you purpose doing.

I am, &c.,

R. FENTON,

A.S. Inspector.

Memo.—Forwarded for the information of the Minister for Justice. It would perhaps afford more correct information if the papers were produced to reply to the above questions. All papers herewith.

Acting Inspector Fenton to The Inspector-General of Police.

Police Station, Goulburn, 22 September, 1884.

MEMO. re my replies to questions to be asked in the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd instant by Mr. Butcher, relative to the men Doggett: it appears to me on reflection that, for fear of being overlooked in the reading of my former reports, I ought perhaps, in replying to above questions, to have requested the Inspector-General's special attention to the fact that, although I did not withdraw certain informations that were sworn to by the men Doggett, I did, on the case against Mr. James Simons being dismissed, withdraw ten informations exhibited by myself against certain publicans of Goulburn on the information furnished to me by the men Doggett, and the latter, on my suggestion, withdrew one information against a publican that had been exhibited in the name of Alfred John Doggett, and this information had been filed and paid for by Doggett as a guarantee of good faith, before I filed the informations above referred to. I think this is already pretty clearly explained in my crime report of 21st ult.; but fearing that that report should be overlooked, and being anxious for full inquiry, I beg to forward this for the information of the Inspector-General of Police.

R. FENTON,
A.S. Inspector.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

POLICE STATION AT BURRAWANG.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 6 February, 1884.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 20th November, 1883, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

(Mr. McCourt.)

No. 1.

T. Garrett, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 15 April, 1879.
I have the honor to forward herewith letter from Mr. W. Barrett (representing other inhabitants of Burrawang, in the Camden electorate), enclosing extracts from the local paper as to the nature of police cases tried at Moss Vale, but arising at Burrawang.

These documents go to prove the absolute necessity for immediate provision being made for police protection at Burrawang, and I hope the subject may meet with your early and favorable attention.

I have, &amp;c.,

THOS. GARRETT.

[Enclosures to No. 1.]

Mr. W. Barrett to T. Garrett, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Burrawang, 12 April, 1879.
I received the letter addressed to you from Police Department with reference to the formation of a Police Station at Burrawang, and your memo. thereon, and in reply beg to state as follows:—A society has lately been established at Burrawang, for the purpose of advancing the interests of the district, termed the “Burrawang Farmers’ Club,” which is composed of the leading men of Burrawang, Wild’s Meadow, Robertson, and Kangaloon, and at last meeting of the said society the letter above referred to was laid before the meeting and it was then agreed upon that in order to preserve the peace and morality of Burrawang a constable must be obtained for said place. I feel confident that there is not a country village in New South Wales where a constable is more required, as the language which is daily made use of by scores of people in the public streets and roads is most demoralising to children living in close proximity to same, which together with drinking and fighting is more than can be tolerated by respectable inhabitants without making some effort in order to put an end to such conduct, which I am sure would be speedily accomplished by the daily presence of a constable. I think if the Inspector-General of Police would look at the last three weeks Scrutineer and therein read the police news of Burrawang cases tried in Moss Vale Court-house, he would not say that Burrawang was either quiet or orderly. I am well aware that to within the last year or so it was a quiet place, but those days are gone, and as the population is weekly increasing and fresh business being opened in the said place it is daily becoming more rowdy. I have therefore been requested to again write to you about having a policeman stationed at Burrawang immediately, and to ask you, as our representative and old friend, to use your best influence for us in the matter, as it is of great importance to our district. Trusting that your health is still improving,

I remain, &amp;c.,

W. BARRETT.

The Inspector-General of Police for report.—B.C., 16 April, 1879. In my opinion a Police Station is not required at Burrawang. I append hereto copy of my reply to a letter received from Mr. Garrett on the subject, also of a report from the Sergeant of Police at Berrima.—EDMUND FOSBERY, I.G.P. B.C., 6 May, 79. The Principal Under Secretary. Shall Mr. Garrett, M.P., be informed in terms of the Inspector-General's minute. Inform.—H.P., 8/5/79.

[Enclosures.]

The Inspector-General of Police to T. Garrett, Esq., M.P.

Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 20 March, 1879.
With reference to your letter dated the 8th instant, regarding the formation of a Police Station at Burrawang, I beg to state that though the population of that place and neighbourhood is increasing the district is quiet and orderly, and crime is seldom reported; I do not therefore feel justified, having in view the numerous localities where police protection is more urgently required, in forming a Police Station at Burrawang at the present time.

I have, &amp;c.,

Inspector-General of Police.

REPORT.

Police Station, Berrima, 29 April, 1879.

SENIOR-SERGEANT Latimer reports, relative to the application for a constable to be stationed at Burrawang, that he has spoken to about twenty of the most respectable and reliable residents of Burrawang and asked their opinion with regard to the necessity of a constable being stationed there, and they, with one or two exceptions, state that it is not necessary. Amongst those dissenting from the application are two magistrates residing there, viz., Charles Graham and David Moffitt, Esqrs., and the latter gentleman states that J. Hanrahan, Esq., another resident magistrate, is also opposed to the application.

The general opinion seems to be that the only time a constable is required there is during races or sports, which are invariably attended by the police, and at cattle and other sales, which have not hitherto been attended.

From what the senior-sergeant can learn from those spoken to on the subject, the alleged disorder and obscenity is over-stated and not worse or of more frequent occurrence there than at other similar places throughout the country.

The principal actor in the alleged disorderly conduct seems to be the man Wilson, referred to in the attached paragraph as having been punished at Moss Vale Court, and the cases above referred to are the only cases of a similar character coming before the Court from Burrawang for years.

Burrawang has always borne the name of being a quiet and orderly place, and there is no crime reported from there. Several old residents state that since they have been in Burrawang they have never used lock or key, and that their farming implements and tools are lying about through the paddocks and they never lose any of them.

If a constable were stationed at Burrawang he would be compelled to lodge at one of the public-houses, which would consequently render him useless for the only purpose for which he is required there.

Mr. Bennett, the writer of the application, is the owner of the new public-house at Burrawang.

R. LATIMER,

Senior-Sergeant.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 15th of last month, enclosing a communication from Mr. W. Barrett, concerning the alleged need of permanent police protection at Burrawang, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that the Inspector-General of Police, who has been consulted in the matter (and who has already, as it appears, been in correspondence with you on the subject), is of opinion that a police station is not required at Burrawang.

Dear Sir,

Burrawang, 2 September, 1879.

I herein enclose you a Petition for police protection at Burrawang, signed by twelve magistrates, and bearing a total number of signatures, amounting to nearly one hundred, and had I took time to go round the district with the Petition I could have got fully 300 names to same, but the Petition was only left for signature at Mr. Miles' store; after that it was signed by the J.P.'s, where it got somewhat soiled and torn, as you will easily observe. I hope you will press this matter for us, as a constable is urgently required for Burrawang, and which can be easily seen from the number of magistrates who have signed for one. I shall now leave the matter in your hands, and feel confident that you will do your best for us at your earliest convenience.

I have, &amp;c.,

The Inspector General of Police for report, B.C., 3 September, 1879.—C.W.

Police Protection at Burrawang.

To the Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, Premier and Colonial Secretary.

The Petition of the undersigned, Magistrates and Residents of the district of Burrawang,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That a resident policeman at Burrawang is urgently required for the due protection of life and property.

There are two public-houses in the township, and two more within 1 and 4 miles, and as a consequence the presence of a constable is often required to prevent disturbances.

Burrawang is a densely populated locality, and is a thoroughfare for travellers from Moss Vale Railway Station to the Coast Districts.

That the nearest police station is 10 miles distant; therefore there is, as a matter of fact, no police protection at present, and the population and traffic through the place fully warrants the stationing of a constable in the locality.

Your Petitioners therefore pray that you will cause a constable to be stationed at Burrawang as soon as it can conveniently be done.

Memo. from Inspector-General of Police to Principal Under Secretary.

Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 5 Sept., 1879.

BURRAWANG is a very quiet district, and I see no reason to alter the opinion previously expressed.

At the present time I am drawing men in from the country for special duty at the Exhibition, and it is quite out of my power to form any new stations.

I recommend that the consideration of the application be deferred for the present. The proper place for a constable to be stationed, if one could be provided, would be the township of "Robertson."

EDMUND FOSBERY,
I.G.P.

Under the further report of the Inspector-General of Police there would appear to be no pressing necessity for a constable to be stationed at "Burrawang."—6/9/79. Inform.—H.P., 4/11/79.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 5 November, 1879.

Referring to the Petition presented by Mr. Thomas Garrett, M.P., on the 3rd September last, from certain residents of the district of Burrawang, praying that a constable might be stationed at that place, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to state that under a report furnished by the Inspector-General of Police on the subject, there would appear to be no pressing necessity for a constable to be stationed at Burrawang.

No. 6.

Mr. W. Barrett to T. Garrett, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Burrawang, 14 January, 1881.

Some twelve months ago I forwarded you a numerously signed petition praying that a constable might be stationed at Burrawang. Some short time afterwards you informed me that our request would be granted after close of the International Exhibition in last March, but up to present date nothing has been done in the matter.

I might state that the necessity for a constable is weekly increasing as might be seen from number of cases (appearing every week in our local paper the Scrutineer) which the police have against the residents of Burrawang. There are ten cases from said place for one that is from Robertson, or Kangaloon, and if a constable were stationed at Burrawang it would be a central position for Robertson, Kangaloon, Wild's Meadow, Yarrunga, &c., &c., which no doubt but what you are well aware of from your knowledge of the district.

As our district is a very large one, and thickly inhabited, we think the petition referred to is a most reasonable one, and should receive immediate attention, now, as the Exhibition is over, the Kellys captured, &c., and therefore no reasonable grounds for not having a man to send.

I shall therefore leave the matter in your hands, and hope you will use all your influence in this particular direction until the object sought after be obtained. Awaiting your early reply,

I have, &amp;c,

W. BARRETT.

I feel it to be my duty, after making special inquiries, and from long knowledge of the locality, to strongly endorse this request for the favorable consideration of the Colonial Secretary.—THOS. GARRETT, 22/1/81. Inspector-General for report.—H.P., 22/1/81. The Inspector-General of Police, B.C., 29/1/81.—C.W.

Memo. from Inspector General of Police to Principal Under Secretary.

Police Department, Inspector General's Office, Sydney, 8 February, 1881.

TEMORA, Bermagui, and outlying districts in the Colony have absorbed all the additional police provided, leaving the Metropolitan District very short.

I append a statement of police cases from Burrawang, Robertson, and Kangaloon, heard during the past six months,—not a very formidable list. The cases would have been less had fewer publicans' licenses been granted.

There is no urgent necessity for a police station, but when funds are available the reserve at Robertson would be the proper site for a watch-house and station.

EDMUND FOSBERY,

Inspector-General of Police.

Mr. Garrett, M.P., should perhaps be informed in accordance with this minute.—14/2/81. To inform.—H.P.

Dear Sir, Burrawang, 16 May, 1881.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of letter sent you from Department of Justice, dated 7th May, 1881, instant, from which I observe that we are not likely to obtain a Court of Petty Sessions for Burrawang. It is quite evident that the official report referred to was received from Mr. Wilshire, P.M., for Berrima district, and I am well aware that not only he, but all the J's.P. of both Moss Vale and Berrima, as it would be against us getting a Court of Petty Sessions in Burrawang, as it would be against their interests if we did. The same with regard to a policeman, we know that Sergeant Latimer, of Berrima, reported against us getting one for here. If therefore we are only to get what the Berrima, and Moss Vale people wish that we should it is quite useless for us to apply for anything in the future, as we shall have our labour in vain, but this is very unfair, for we are a very large number of people, and should be treated on our own merits (if properly represented), and not be the slaves of chance. Why should a desolate forsaken looking place like Berrima have the power of shelving our petition? You will therefore please see Sir Henry Parkes on the subject, and explain the circumstances of the case to him fully, and by so doing you will much oblige.

I have, &c.,

MR. BARRETT, the writer of the attached letter is wrong in his surmises. Mr. Wilshire did not (as far as I am aware) report against a Court of Petty Sessions at Burrawang. A Court cannot be established where there are no police. Sergeant Latimer was not asked to report on the subject.

I told Mr. Kidd, M.P. (who has seen me repeatedly upon the subject of stationing a constable at Burrawang), that I thought Robertson was the proper place for a station—if any—but that I would visit the locality and judge for myself before deciding. I will do so and report again.

Referring to the communication presented by you on the 19th instant, from Mr. William Barrett, with reference to the necessity for police protection at Burrawang, and also for the establishment of a Court of Petty Sessions at that place, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to transmit to you herewith a copy of a report (19 May, 1881) which has been obtained from the Inspector-General of Police on the matter. The Inspector-General of Police to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 20 June, 1881.

With reference to my report of the 19th ultimo, No. 81/348, and previous papers, on the establishment of a Police-station and Court of Petty Sessions at Burrawang, I have now the honor to report that I have visited the district, and, from the result of my personal observations and inquiries, I have no hesitation in giving my opinion that Robertson is the proper site for a Police-station.

The district is one of growing importance, thickly populated throughout; Robertson being about 15 miles from Moss Vale, 16 from Jamberoo; East and West Kangaloon being respectively 8 and 10 miles distant. Burrawang is 5 miles from Robertson, and 10 from Moss Vale.

It

It is not probable that the selection of Robertson will satisfy all parties, but I consider it the most central position, and being the Government township—cæteris paribus—preference should be given to it on that account for a Government establishment. Moreover there is an excellent reserve in the township available for Police buildings, and a turn out for horses.

A small cottage with stabling can be obtained at Robertson, at a rental of £20 per annum, and I propose to take these premises and send a mounted constable there, reducing the strength of Berrima by one man, who can be well spared.

Should the Colonial Secretary see no reason to disapprove of these arrangements I should suggest that Mr. T. Garrett, M.P., and Mr. Kidd, M.P., may be apprised.

Police protection at Burrawang.

I HAVE been waited on by a deputation to-day—Messrs. McCourt, M.P., Kidd, and Barrett—urging that a constable be stationed there.

It is alleged that it has increased much, and is likely to continue to do so, and a Bank has been established. The nearest station is at Robertson, about 8 miles distant.

The Inspector-General, I understand, was not favourable when it was last under his notice. Do the altered circumstances now alter his views?

I observe that the Inspector-General has several times sent a similar minute. The public necessity must not be set aside for the mere reason that there are no more men. Report of Senior-Sergeant Latimer.

Police Station, Berrima, 17 June, 1883.

SENIOR-SERGEANT Latimer reports, in reply to Mr. Ryeland's memo. attached, relative to the increase at Burrawang, that the only increase there for the last two years is one private residence and an Oddfellows' Hall, both in course of erection.

The whole extent of Burrawang within view of the store and public-house consists of one store, two public-houses, one hall, one smithy and builder's shop, a branch of the E. S. and A. C. Bank, Oddfellows' Hall, Post Office, and ten private residences.

Burrawang is very quiet; there is very little stir there except on days of auction sales, which are generally attended by Constable Spencer, who has visited Burrawang, which is only 5 miles distant from him, on an average three times a week for the past three months.

Constable Spencer has quite sufficient time to attend to the requirements of Burrawang. There is seldom any crime committed there, and a second constable in the neighbourhood would have nothing to do.

I ENCLOSE a further report from the Inspector in charge, and still consider that the formation of a police station at Burrawang would be a complete waste of public money, and, further, that Robertson was the proper position for a station. The unsigned memorandum, enclosed by Mr. Garrett, M.P., is very objectionably worded.—EDMUND FOSBERY, I.G.P., B.C., 26/7/83.

Mr. Fosbery again reports that a police station at Burrawang is unnecessary. Shall Mr. Garrett be informed in this sense?—C.W., 27/7/83. Inform.—A.S., 28/7/83.

[Enclosures.]

Burrawang Farmers' Club and West Camden Agricultural Society,

Burrawang, 14 July, 1883.

5.—I WAS further instructed to ask the members of the district to wait on the Colonial Secretary, and "urge again the necessity of police protection for Burrawang." We have now an important branch Bank doing a large business, Post and Savings Bank, and largely stocked stores. We petitioned for this last year, and a policeman was placed at Robertson. Very few people live at Robertson, thousands live in and around Burrawang. Robertson did not petition, but being a Government township a policeman was thrust upon her, and thus the claims of Burrawang are overlooked in the interest of Robertson. When Mr. Fosbery visited this district in view of this matter he discovered that Robertson was a Government township, and that there was no crime in Burrawang, therefore police must be stationed at Robertson, and a Court of Petty Sessions too—then Burrawang would only have 5 miles to go to Court; but he forgot that that would send us 5 miles farther from our market, which would take us two days to transact our Court and commercial business, which we already do in one. If we are not a criminal class (and we are not) we are a large business community, which now demands the Court and police to be settled in our midst. We do not desire to disturb Mr. Fosbery's mummy at Robertson, but we desire to have a good active officer stationed at Burrawang, for he is wanted.

Report.

Sir,

Police Department, East. Dist., Superintendent's Office, Sydney, 25 July, 1883.

I beg to report, with reference to a constable being stationed at Burrawang, that, from the good order and absence of crime in that portion of the Berrima police district, the mounted constable stationed at Robertson is well able to attend to all the police duties at both places; in fact he has nothing to do but patrol the roads, &c.; he was stationed at Robertson as the best position commanding the road to Kiama, but with instructions to pay attention equally to all the places in that part of the district.

By your directions arrangements are being made to form a police station in the Kangaroo Valley, which will command the roads from Moss Vale, Burrawang, &c., to Shoalhaven, and when complete will render it totally unnecessary in my opinion to station a constable at Burrawang, as far as police duties are concerned, for some time to come.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 31 July, 1883.

In reply to your letter of the 16th instant, submitting a statement of the views of the Burrawang Farmers' Club as to the necessity for police protection at that place, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that the Inspector-General of Police to whom the matter was referred, again reports that a police station at Burrawang is unnecessary.

I have, &c.,

The Comptroller General of Prisons to The Minister of Justice.

Department of Prisons, N.S.W., Comptroller General's Office,
Sydney, 7 June, 1882.

Sir,

I have the honor to furnish my Departmental Report for the year 1881, accompanied by the usual statistical returns, which exhibit the operations of the Department for that period.

Table A gives the number, distribution, and classification on the 31st December of 2,068 prisoners confined in the forty-seven prisons of the Colony. At the same period of the previous year the number of prisoners was 2,107, thus showing a small reduction, while the population has been estimated to have advanced from 750,000 to 781,265. This result as regards the state of crime is satisfactory.

The labour returns show a result of £45,772 5s. 10d., while the cost of material has been £15,607 15s. 5d., thus leaving a net value of £30,164 9s. 5d., which includes work done for prison purposes, a large proportion of which has been in building extension. In previous reports I have pointed out the impracticability of utilizing prison labour in the lesser country gaols, which are devoid of workshops and other facilities.

The Hospital and Educational returns appear to call for no comment upon the information they afford.

The re-convictions for the year show—of the first class, or for the graver offences, second, third, fourth, or more, 8, 3, 4, as compared with 20, 3, 3, for 1880; of the second class, being in sentences of less than five years, 10, 7, 34, and 68, as against 186, 39, and 30; of the third class, sentenced to "imprisonment only," 98, 43, and 16, as compared with 113, 38, and 37; of the drunkards and petty offenders 1,014, 488, 1,096, as compared with 935, 388, and 823. It will thus be seen that the result is highly satisfactory, as an indication of the diminution of crime, the increase being alone in the class of petty offenders. This evil can only, as I have before suggested, be modified by a legislative alteration in the summary jurisdiction law applying to the case in question.

Building extensions have been completed and are going forward, or contemplated to an extent in some degree calculated to overtake the requirements. The new gaol at Hay has been completed, and is now occupied as an established, as distinguished from a police gaol. The works at the new gaol at Goulburn are advancing satisfactorily, and a similar new gaol at Bathurst is in immediate contemplation. The extensions at Parramatta Gaol are progressing, and an extension of Maitland Gaol is being designed. The new gaols at Goulburn and Bathurst will be of the most improved modern construction.

At Trial Bay, for the public works, prison progress has been made towards an occupation at no very distant period. Before the occupation of this exceptional prison I am of opinion that it will be desirable to have some short legislation, a subject which I shall do myself the honor to bring under your notice.

The order and discipline of the prisons generally has been satisfactory, although they have not been free from the misconduct of individual and small numbers of prisoners. I need scarcely repeat the observations contained in my last report as to the want of almost any means of repression in the lesser prisons.

The Department continues to co-operate so far as in its power with the Prisoners' Aid Society.

The efficiency of the Service has been improved by the retirement, on a Parliament provision, of seventeen worn-out officers. The general conduct and efficiency of the staff has continued to meet with my approval, although I regret to say that the evil of trafficking with outside through the means of some unfaithful officers—one of the worst evils that can affect prison administration—has been prevalent in several of the prisons. If this evil be not abated, the proof against such officers being most difficult to obtain, I am of opinion that a comprehensive frequent changing of the subordinate officers from place without consideration for their personal convenience will have to be resorted to.

The Reformatory at the South Head, at which are confined and being educated in the most suitable and effective manner, twenty-eight girls, is an assured success, and, under the able management of the Matron Superintendent, can well compare with any kindred institution in this Colony or elsewhere.

I have, &amp;c.,

HAROLD MACLEAN,

Comptroller General. }

The Comptroller-General of Prisons to The Minister of Justice.

Department of Prisons, N.S.W., Comptroller-General's Office,
Sydney, 17 July, 1883.

Sir,

I have the honor to present my report for the year 1882, accompanied by the usual tabulated statistical information comprehending the extent of prison accommodation, the number and distribution of prisoners on 31st December, the entries and discharges, and the classification and numbers employed, with the nature of their employment, up to that date, as also labour, hospital, photographic, and educational returns, and re-convictions during the year.

The number of prisoners in the Colony on 31st December was 1,943; that at the same period of the previous year was 2,068, thus showing a decrease of 125 notwithstanding an advance in the population from 781,265 to 817,468.

The results of labour show a total of £46,437 16s. 3d., which, deducting the value of material, leaves a nett value of £29,870 5s. 9d., inclusive of £13,004 5s. 9d. for internal purposes of the prisons. The similar return for the previous year shows a nett result of £30,164 9s. 5d. The difference may be ascribed to the revision of the schedule of prices of articles manufactured for Government Departments, in which some reduction in rates was made. It may here be stated that the labour is valued, whether for measurable or other work, with great care and under stringent rules to ensure a fair and moderate valuation.

The re-convictions show for the first class, being the graver offenders, sentenced to five years and upwards, second, third, fourth, or more frequent, respectively, 16, 5, and 12, as compared for the previous year of 8, 3, and 4. For the second class, less than five years sentences, 231, 82, 93, for the previous year 107, 54, and 63. For the third class, "imprisonment only," 152, 38, and 55, as against 98, 43, and 16. In drunkards and petty offenders, 1,157, 476, and 863, as against 1,014, 488, and 1,096.

In respect of prison accommodation, which is the most essential adjunct to effective administration, it will be seen that there is at present separate cellular accommodation for only 1,007 persons, while the number of prisoners confined is nearly 2,000. The new buildings and extensions now in hand at Goulburn, Parramatta, and Trial Bay will furnish further separate accommodation for 282, thus still leaving a need for additional accommodation to the extent of some 700 in order to overtake the necessities of the situation, and bring this Colony on from its present backward position as regards prison buildings. When the cost of construction of prison buildings is viewed it must be borne in mind that the general expenditure therefor (as well as annual expenditure for maintenance and staff) is greatly enhanced by the desire of the community to have Quarter Sessions in almost every country district, thus necessitating expensive isolated buildings all over the land.

The question of accommodation brings me to that of separation, which as opposed to association, lies at the root of a system of prison discipline, compassing its primary object of deterring from crime, and its secondary object of reforming the criminal. It is too the main element and starting point in what is spoken of as classification.

While prisoners may be associated at labour with comparatively little propagation of criminal propensities there can be no question but that plural cellular occupation is the hot-bed of crime extension, and that many a man is corrupted, and many a crime planned, during the long hours of the night in associated cells.

I have now before me a recent paper by Sir Edmund Du Cane, K.C.B., the head of the Imperial Prisons Department, in which he dwells on this paramount necessity for separation, coupled with reward and punishment, and ascribes to the working of the present system in England, based upon those principles, the diminution of convictions during a quinquennial average of five years ending 1859 and 1879, from 15,125 to 10,789 in the face of an increase of population from 19,257,184 to 25,968,286.

The question of accommodation is so essentially material to prison administration that I am induced to go still further in urging its importance. It is now thirteen years since I visited England and examined into the working of the prisons of the United Kingdom. I had there the advantage of conferring personally with Sir Edmund Du Cane and Sir Walter Crofton, the author of the present system of the United Kingdom, which is admitted by Continental authorities to be the best, and I brought back the knowledge I had acquired to the Colony, which it has very materially benefited by consequent improvements in administration. The distinguished gentlemen abovenamed both urged upon me the vital importance of pursuing the design of separation with its necessary modifications.

Any system of classification necessarily following complete separation should enable the authorities to place in different shops, yards, wings, and if possible different prisons, the habitual and casual, and the major and minor offenders, and others desirable to keep apart from each other.

I have thus written in order to show that my views are those of the highest authorities, and to justify me in expressing the opinion that the community must look to meet large expenditure in prison buildings, to be well repaid by the effects of such a policy on the diminution of crime. And it is in this view that I have recently reported in favour of proceeding with the construction of the important projected prison at Bathurst on the same scale as that approaching completion at Goulburn.

I may here observe that Sir Edmund Du Cane's paper abovementioned describes the same lines of prison administration as is being pursued here with the material hindrance of our insufficiency of building accommodation.

In the distribution of prisoners as shewn on the table, taken from a geographical point of view, may be seen the probably unapproached difficulties of administration from a centralised basis over so wide a territory and the proportionate larger expenditure, for concentration of prisoners means economy in building and staff. Neither the number of prisoners nor the comparative re-convictions can be taken as a complete test of the condition of crime. To the effects of prison administration must be added the circumstances of the day, and the activity of the police, as material elements.

It may, however, be remarked as a significant fact in connection with the repression of crime in the Colony that whereas in 1867 to a population of 447,620 the number of prisoners was 1,899, in 1882 to a population of 817,468 there were but 1,943, an increase of only 44 to 370,248 persons. Whatever may be the cause, or causes, it is a further fact that in 1867 the present system of the Colony on modern lines, adopted by the Government at my instance, took definite shape and form.

In the light of these figures, and those given by Sir Edmund Du Cane, it appears to me that persons who condemn, frequently with little thought, the modern system of prison discipline have little ground left to stand upon.

While on the question of crime I may observe that it is yet too early to offer an opinion on the effects of the Licensing and Criminal Law Consolidation Acts. As far as my own judgment and observation go I am of opinion that they will be found to be very beneficial and salutary. The last-mentioned Act affords the means of instituting a plan of intermediate imprisonment, much approved by the highest authorities, whom I have consulted, by licensing on conditions of limited liberty in such a case as for instance the Public Works Prison, at Trial Bay.

It is common for writers and others who have given but cursory consideration to the difficult question of prison administration to comment freely upon the mode of treatment of prisoners. I give an extract on this part of the subject from Sir Edmund Du Cane which is just my own experience.

Those who administer prisons are constantly exposed to two opposing lines of criticisms; by one set of critics the prisons are believed to be so conducted that they are injurious to the health and well-being of their inmates; by the other, that the prisoners are made so comfortable and are so well cared for that prisons fail to deter from crime, even if they do not tend to promote it. Statistics show that at the present time at all events neither of these statements can be sustained; a comparison of the number of the prison population in recent and former years gives no countenance to the latter supposition, and the good physical condition of those who most often are inmates of them shows that there is as little foundation for the former.

From the table (A) shewing the number of convicted prisoners employed, and the nature of their labour, will be seen the numerous industries carried on, which nearly correspond with those at home. The difference between the number employed—1,396—and the total body is made up of prisoners awaiting trial, in hospital and otherwise exempt, together with those confined in the lesser country gaols where no facilities for employment exist, or can be brought into existence. This matter of finding employment is one of the greatest difficulties of administration and much exercises the energies of the Department. Many persons freely, and in an off-hand way, propound solutions of the difficulty. I have not infrequently been asked why gangs are not worked on the roads. It does not occur to the questioner that the adoption of any such plan would be an economical blunder. Say for a gang of twenty-five men with movable insecure huts (as officers must sleep) there would be needed about one half their number of officers, each warder costing £146 a year to guard them by night and day. The cost would far exceed the value of the labour, escapes would be frequent, and the worst phase of the vicious barrack system, the principal effect of which is to promote among prisoners further corruption, and engender emulation in crime and disorder, sweeping within its influences the better disposed, would be revived. I could deal similarly with many other suggestions that have been offered.

The further returns attached to this report sufficiently speak for themselves. I may, however, observe that prison photography, comprising the history of the photographed, is efficiently carried out, and continues to be of great assistance to the police. It was adopted in this Colony the first in Australia.

The general behaviour and discipline of the prisoners has been satisfactory, although there have been some exceptions. Many of the prisoners have not yet outgrown the spirit of unrest arising from the mistaken inferences they drew from the inquiry some years back into the management of Berrima Gaol.

Many punishments, some corporal, most reluctantly awarded, have followed the feeling described, which evidences how delicate a thing to approach is interference from outside with prison discipline. I read recently of a serious mutiny at the great prison of Sing Sing in New York, suppressed by military measures, and directly traced to a similar inquiry by a Legislative Committee. A prison must be in a bad state indeed to render such an inquiry needful or desirable.

Care is taken both by this Department and the Prisoners Aid Society to facilitate by various forms of assistance the obtaining of honest employment by prisoners after discharge. In prison they are surrounded by as ample protection from ill-treatment as in England. They have an appeal from subordinates to the officer in charge, to the Visiting Justices, and to myself, then to the Minister of Justice. By a somewhat similar process an English prisoner can reach the Secretary of State.

With the staff generally I have again to express my satisfaction and confidence, and to acknowledge the ready assistance afforded to me by the professional visiting officers, as well as the ordinary executive, which comprises many officers of marked intelligence and wide experience. It is a cause of much gratification to myself that after years of exertion on my part, the Government and Parliament have at length in a considerable degree rectified the insufficient provision that obtained in this branch of the service as regards remuneration.

I have now the pleasure to report upon the Reformatory for Girls at Shaftesbury. This establishment, as regards the construction of buildings and laying out of surroundings, is so admirably adapted to its purpose that I would be at a loss to suggest any improvement. It is beautifully and most healthfully situated, and, although it contains thirty-one girls, in its inner life under its present admirable management it approaches much more to family than to what may be understood as "institution" life. The relations between the Matron, Superintendent, and the Sub-Matron, and the girls are of affection combined with rule, while obedience is fully and cheerfully rendered. The girls are contented and happy, and are excellently taught in a way suitable to their general destination—domestic service. With sufficient school instruction they are taught most effectively in rotation all household work. It is true that the fact of there being bars to the outer windows is calculated to give an impression of gloom, which would be rapidly dispelled by the briefest visit to the inside. These bars are necessary for security, especially in relation to the wild new-comers. But it is my belief that if all the doors were thrown open but few of the girls would care to walk out.

There have been consigned to this Reformatory since its opening in February, 1880, in all fifty-two girls; of these six were transferred to Bilcra, having been sent in error to Shaftesbury; five were given up to their parents, and ten more placed out to service. The others are still there. Previous to the occupation of Shaftesbury, twelve were discharged from the school to domestic service. Of these, seven are married to respectable husbands in good circumstances, and have all written to or been to see the Matron. The others are still in service and behaving well. They make excellent domestic servants. The Matron has numerous letters full of affection and gratitude from the discharged girls, and she has not yet heard of one going again astray. Girls out of place desire, and have been permitted to come back for a short time, while seeking fresh service, to where they regard as their former home.

There is now an early prospect of the long-needed Reformatory for boys being established. Provision has been made by Parliament, and the only impediment is the acquiring of a suitable site, the selection of which is of vital consequence to the success of the institution. There can be no question but that the main training must be agricultural. There must therefore be suitable farming land. The establishment should be in an Agricultural District, and near some centre of population, but without too much facility for access or return to the metropolis, and in a locality to attract the notice of visitors, with a view to employment of the boys on discharge, and also in the vicinity of a Police Head-quarter Station. I have carefully examined into the working of the admirably conducted Reformatory for Victoria at Ballarat, and obtained much valuable information respecting administration. Negotiations are now going on for acquiring a site having all the requirements referred to.

I have, &c.,

HAROLD MACLEAN,
Comptroller-General of Prisons and Reformatories.

PRISONS.

The Comptroller-General of Prisons to The Minister of Justice.

Department of Prisons, N.S.W., Comptroller-General's Office,
Sydney, 24 July, 1884.

Sir,

I have the honor to furnish my report for the year 1883, accompanied by the accustomed tabulated Statistical Returns.

In my report for 1882 I endeavoured so fully to describe the system pursued in the Colony, and my general views on prison administration, that for the present occasion, unless by reiteration, I have left myself but little room for extending my remarks beyond such comments as may suggest themselves upon the information presented. It may not, however, be out of place to mention that to the views and objects put forward in that report I have the gratification of the affirmation by the high authority of Sir Walter Crofton, conveyed in a letter to myself, a copy of which I attach. This I think may be regarded as sufficient warrant that the Government in respect to prison administration is proceeding on no unsound or untried basis.

The total number of prisoners on the 31st December was 2,130, distributed through 16 established, and 31 police gaols, as compared with 1,943 at the corresponding period of the previous year. The population returns for the same period show 869,310 and 817,468, respectively.

The result of labour shows a value of £52,160 7s. 6d., inclusive of £26,530 14s. 5d. for work for the internal purposes of the prisons, and deducting £19,481 16s. 11d. for cost of material, a nett value of £32,678 10s. 7d.

Of the total number of prisoners it has been found possible to keep employed only 1,474, and many of these but partially. The balance is made up of those in police and lesser gaols, where there are no facilities for nor possible means of employment, and those awaiting trial, sentenced without hard labour, and exempt from work for medical and other causes. The reconvictions for the year have been for the first class, being of sentences of five years and upwards; second, third, and fourth or more frequent, 53, 4, 9, respectively, as compared with 16, 5, and 12 of the previous year. For the second class, or by sentences of less than five years, 257, 50, and 64, as against 231, 82, and 93. For the third, imprisonment only without hard labour, 75, 20, and 31, as against 152, 38, and 85. Drunkards and petty offenders 955, 576, 959 as against 1,157, 476, and 863.

It will be seen that in the total of reconvictions there is a diminution in favour of 1883 of 157, of which those which would appear to be for the graver offences are at disadvantage in comparison with the previous year to the number of 33. This last appearance, however, does not indicate the conclusion that it naturally suggests, but is mainly, if not altogether, attributable to the operation of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, which came into force in the middle of the year, carrying with it a very material extension in the duration of sentences; thus many of the sentences quoted for 1883 in the longer categories would have formerly come into the next lower. In respect of drunkards and petty offenders the diminution with an increase in the population of 51,842 stands at 6. This satisfactory result may be ascribed to the effects of the new Licensing Act.

The entries and discharges for the year give a balance in excess of the former to the number of 320, while for 1882 the discharges exceeded the entries by 65, showing a difference in the numbers remaining in prison at the expiration of the two years of 385. This again is clearly attributable to the continuance of the longer sentences under the Criminal Law Amendment Act and cannot be regarded as other than a highly satisfactory indication. At the same time it is obvious that the operation of the Act mentioned has caused a pressure upon the already overstrained means of prison accommodation to the extent of nearly 400 persons.

The above stated facts appear to me to justify the gratifying conclusion that on the whole there has been a material tendency to the decrease of crime, and also to demonstrate that without an examination of the surrounding influences, such as the effects of differing legislation, activity of the police, and changing conditions of society, naked prison statistics are not fairly indicative of the state of crime.

There are many who would attribute all diminution of crime to the spread of education. So far, however, as my observation has reached, I am not led to the opinion that education, in the restricted sense of acquisition of knowledge, is a material factor in the diminution, although it varies the nature, of crime.

In respect of prison accommodation during the past year there has been no material remedy of the evil dwelt upon in my last report, wherein was shown a deficiency in cellular accommodation for the purposes of separation and classification to the extent of nearly one half of the necessity. This by the present time has been in some degree modified by the occupation of the new gaol at Goulburn, a building constructed from the outset in accordance with accepted modern ideas, and which will be of great value in prison administration.

The question of accommodation is largely affected by the establishment throughout the wide extent of the Colony of numerous small district police gaols, created by local demands for the extension of criminal courts. For the purposes of discipline, labour, and economy the concentration of prisoners in large prisons presents every advantage. The present system is unsatisfactory and costly, both as regards buildings and staff. But where courts are established, in practice, prisoners, even under the gravest charges, must be detained for trial, and in practice so must those of short sentences. The buildings have therefore to be constructed with due consideration for security and the health of the inmates, which necessarily makes them expensive in construction. The disadvantages must be weighed with the expense and trouble to the community in the travelling of long distances to central points.

The hospital and educational information does not appear to call for comment.

The general conduct of the prisoners has been satisfactory.

The official staff has fulfilled its difficult duties in maintaining discipline with credit and success. The Female Reformatory at Shaftesbury has continued to merit the encomiums I have from time to time passed upon its excellent management under the Matron Superintendent, Mrs. King, whose report for the year I attach.

[Enclosure.]

Sir W. Crofton to The Comptroller-General of Prisons.

13, Winchester Road, Oxford, 28 October, 1883.

I AM much obliged for your report for 1882, which I have very carefully read. I most sincerely congratulate you on the steady progress which you are making in prison matters. I need scarcely say, for my opinions on the subject are well known, that I entirely agree with you as to "separation" being the basis of all prison treatment. At the present day, when commissions and committees, after close inquiry, have urged the principle as an absolute necessity, coupled with large experience, as an absolute heresy to hold a contrary opinion. And it would be an expensive heresy, for although separate cells are costly to erect, the staff is less for the purpose of supervision, the offences are less, and, above all, crime and its cost materially diminish. I most sincerely trust, therefore, and believe that you will obtain the additional cells for which you ask. I note what you say concerning the Licensing and Criminal Law Consolidating Acts, and hope that you will be able to carry out a plan of intermediate imprisonment by licenses on certain well considered conditions to a special prison for public works (you suggest Trial Bay). It is quite certain that, with the basis of separation—leading on by a classification, which is a stringent test of character and industry, stimulated by the goal of an improved prison condition under certain limits—you will attain both reformatory and economical results. Then, again, the return of the criminal to free life is very materially furthered by such a course, and the work of Prisoners' Aid Societies become more easy. The employers of labour, observing the conduct of the men in a state of semi-freedom, will be far more inclined to give them work when liberated. I have had many years' experience of this, and can speak confidently as to the result. I presume you have read the report of Earl Kimberley's Commission, published about four years since. It is the most important and thorough document of the kind we have yet had. At the present time a Royal Commission is inquiring into the Irish prison administration, which is not, as I think, at all adapted to the country. There is a Prisons Board, and under it three inspectors, of which my son (who has had great experience as my private secretary and in other ways of prison systems at Home and on the Continent) is the senior inspector. He has been there nearly six years, and was a practising barrister in England before that time. I don't approve of prisoners being dealt with at second hand, and therefore I don't approve of inspectors without power of discretion, in which case a Board above them, as in Ireland, would be unnecessary. The best form of prison supervision is the English Board of Directors of Convict Prisons—the same as mine was in Ireland—the members of which both direct and inspect. I hope the Irish administration will be on these lines. Your own supervision is on this principle, for as Comptroller-General you both inspect and direct. I expect your Reformatory School System, to be in time followed by Industrial Schools, will prove a great success. I have had much to do with them. You are aware, I suppose, that I am not in office now, my health necessitating my retirement; but I have a large correspondence on police and prison subjects all over the world.

With best wishes, believe me, yours very truly,

The Matron, Shaftesbury Reformatory, to The Comptroller-General of Prisons and Reformatories.

Shaftesbury Reformatory, 15 January, 1884.

Sir,

I have the honor to report the following for your information:—

On the 31st December, 1882, there were 29 inmates in this institution. 12 have been received during the year 1883, and 14 discharged; there were 27 remaining on the 31st December, 1883; there are 28 now in the Institution.

There have been no very serious cases of sickness during the past year, all the girls being remarkably healthy, with the exception of one girl, who was consumptive when received, but under medical treatment here became much stronger; and two girls who occasionally suffer from fits. There has not been a death in the Institution in a period extending over twelve years.

The conduct of the inmates has been wonderfully good, and punishment very rare. There is no fixed rule or grade of punishments or rewards, but the best-conducted girls are placed in positions of trust, in the house or elsewhere, and encouraged in many various ways, but more on the family system than the regimental one.

The apartment built for a hospital (formerly occupied by the gardener and attendant) has been fitted up with beds and bedding, and contains the surgery, with medicines, &c., in a space partitioned off for the purpose, the whole arrangement being considered very complete and suitable for treating the sick.

Lady Hay, Mrs. and the Misses Moore, have been most kind on several occasions, visiting the Institution and encouraging the inmates, also giving them presents of fruit, cake, and little gifts for good conduct. On New Year's Day these ladies gave them a "treat," when several ladies and gentlemen interested in the work of the Institution were present. The girls sang and recited some pieces, and their needlework, consisting of their dresses, hoods, and other articles, all hand-sewn, were exhibited; also, specimens of darned stockings, and their copy-books—the first and last—to show the progress made.

Several of the girls who have passed out of the Institution came during the holidays to see me, and seem to have feelings of gratitude and affection for the Reformatory, which was also a school and home, and the means of enabling them to earn their living respectably.

I have, &c.,

AGNES KING, M.S.

WELLINGTON GAOL.

(REPORT OF GAOL OFFICIALS RESPECTING MANAGEMENT OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 April, 1884.[Laid upon the Table in accordance with promise made in answer to Question 1, Votes No. 80, Thursday, 3rd April, 1884.]

[Newspaper extract.]

WELLINGTON GAOL.

To the Editor of the Mudgee Independent.

Sir,

I crave space in your valuable and outspoken journal to draw the attention of the Minister for Justice, and whomsoever else it may concern, to the system of rule commonly adopted by the Government officials in Wellington Gaol. Firstly, prisoners are supposed to be released from the cells every morning at 6:30 a.m. for winter and 6:15 a.m. in summer. Now it is evident to the initiated that while the officers are not over exact as to time to assume duty they are very punctual in locking the prisoners up. It is also true that there has been a large bell suspended at no little expense from a dining-shed in the gaol-yard since the 21st November last, but for what purpose, unless as an ornament, seems to be uncertain, as that clamorous tell-tale is never required to give warning at 5:45 or 6 a.m., in accordance with the proper prison regulations, but for some reason is rung for meals and lock-up time only. The officials always require one and a quarter hour for breakfast, and the same time for dinner, the prisoners being locked up during that period on Sundays and holidays. This locking up system is rigorously resorted to from 12:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. in winter, and 4:30 p.m. in summer, including the one and a quarter hour for breakfast, consequently the time, carefully computed, shows a minimum average of sixteen hours' confinement in the cells in each twenty-four hours throughout the year. Some months ago the attention of the Minister for Justice was particularly drawn to this important matter, through a written complaint forwarded by a prisoner named Robert Jones, undergoing a sentence at that time, in the Wellington Gaol. The Minister, however, could not see sufficient cause in the prisoner's complaint to interfere. Now, Mr. Editor, after a careful perusal of the old and new prison regulations, I have failed to discover anything therein to justify this unwarrantable system of confinement for prisoners, and probably the only source of justification in existence is a written order from the resident Visiting Justice, bearing date 28th May, 1877, wherein absolute permission is granted to lock up the prisoners during the hours already described for meals, but does not include permission for the extra hours confinement on all holiday afternoons. Thus, as the sequel will show, the valid prison regulations appear to be carried out in Wellington Gaol on the same principle that the A.J.C. rules are adhered to at little country race-meetings, viz., as far as practicable without clashing with the projects of the officials. As stated previously, prisoners are released from the cells for one hour only on all holiday afternoons, and then ordered peremptorily to perform the usual routine yard-work, as done on week-day afternoons, which partly consists of drawing sufficient water (by windlass process) from a deep well in the gaol-yard to fill a large bath for the use of the A.G., also a hogshead at the adjacent police station, notwithstanding that there is approximate to that establishment an excellent well of pure water, with pump attached, in good working order, which for some unexplained reason is never used. After tea the prisoners are all locked up punctually at 5 p.m. in winter and 5:30 p.m. in summer, from three to five men, or according to the number on hand, in four cells, varying by admeasurement from 10 x 12 to 12 x 12, the latter being very imperfectly ventilated. This important defect, together with the bad odours incessantly emanating from a stagnant and filthy cesspool in the gaol-yard, which appears to have been very rarely cleaned out, has daily evoked no small amount of unfavourable comment from the prisoners, as the impurity of the atmosphere was unanimously deemed to be intolerable in hot weather, and, in a place so enclosed with high walls, likely to propagate disease. Visitors (male and female, and particularly the latter) are admitted at will on Sundays and week days for the purpose of inspecting the prison. On some occasions females, after being conducted round, are accommodated with chairs, which are placed in a conspicuous position in the prison-yard, so as to enable them to sit and scan the appearance of the various criminals, who perchance are partaking of their cheerless afternoon meal, prior to being locked up. And, strange to relate, such local visitors are never required to subscribe their names in the visitors' book, in accordance with the adhered-to regulations of other prisons. On other occasions, when females, married or single, are admitted to the prison with the sole object of visiting their husbands, sons, or brothers, who may be undergoing sentence therein, they are compelled, in consequence of the prison reception-room being always retained by the A.G. for private purposes, to conduct their baleful interviews in the prison-yard, exposed to the scrutinising gaze and impolite remarks of ill-disposed criminals. I must not omit to mention here that some of the warders when on duty never fail, on the most frivolous pretexts, to provoke the prisoners into the commission of some breach of the regulations, by which they are reprimanded or punished with a term of solitary confinement by the Visiting Justice. This fact is well borne out by the number of charges recorded against various prisoners from time to time for disobedience of orders, &c. But it must be borne in mind that in exceptional cases the oft repeated malversation of captious criminals merits a rigorous display of authority on the part of the officials to restrain such characters within the limits of common decency. Nevertheless, I venture to predict that should the Minister for Justice or Comptroller-General deem it expedient, through this correspondence, to appoint an impartial deputy to inquire minutely into the working of the Wellington prison, particularly through the source of the prisoners undergoing sentence therein at the present time, I am satisfied that my accusations would be verified to the letter. Before concluding, Mr. Editor, I wish it to be distinctly understood by your numerous and sensitive readers that this letter has not been written from any mere fiction or unfounded reports, but solely from ocular demonstration, which I can further substantiate from date, notes, and otherwise, and my reason for adopting this course is to pourtray to the public the adulterated system of rule that is practised in that hitherto supposed judiciously conducted prison, and which doubtless was originally arranged to suit the individual convenience of the prison officials only, and in all probability is partly or totally unknown to the proper authorities. In consequence of the prolixity of this letter I am compelled to omit, for the present, many other important matters in connection with that establishment, which I shall not fail to reveal, in extenso, through the same source, and on a future occasion. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I must apologise for occupying so much of your valuable space.

The Visiting Justice, Wellington Gaol, to The Comptroller-General of Prisons.

Sir,

Court-house, Wellington, 18 January, 1884.

I do myself the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your memo. of the 8th instant, regarding a complaint against the management of Wellington Gaol. I attach herewith Acting-gaoler Anderson's report.

Anderson explains why the gaol-bell has not been rung quite according to gaol regulations.

With regard to the long terms of confinement imposed on the prisoners, that matter was brought under your notice by one of the prisoners (Jones) and decided against him.

There are very few visitors to the gaol, and Mr. Anderson explains in his report how it was those few were admitted without an order.

The friends of prisoners when visiting have as much privacy as they should have.

It is possible the closet was at times unpleasant, as tenders have been called for cleansing it three months ago without response. It is now being cleaned.

I have no reason to believe the warders have at any time unnecessarily irritated any of the prisoners. During the period prisoners Sheridan and Jones were in gaol complaints against prisoners for insubordination were more frequent. Once or twice prisoners, in answer to charges, pleaded they had been irritated by Warder Dennis, and in those instances I only admonished, although I thought at the time it was intended to irritate the warder. Dennis has been about four years in the service, and has made twenty-three complaints, ten of which could have no relation to himself; of the other, thirteen for disobedience and insolence, I cannot remember one in which his conduct was questionable.

Warder Walker, an even-tempered man of experience, made fifteen complaints during three years, so that there is no reason to consider the complaints by Dennis excessive.

On the whole I consider the charges of "T.S." in the Mudgee Independent malicious and without any sufficient foundation.

I have, &c.,

W. STEWART CASWELL,
Visiting Justice.

The Acting Gaoler, Wellington, to The Visiting Justice, Wellington Gaol.

H.M. Gaol, Wellington, 10 January, 1884.

ACTING GAOLER Anderson begs most respectfully to explain, for the information of the Visiting Justice, with reference to a letter published in the Mudgee Independent newspaper, and signed "T.S."—it is, the acting-gaoler believes, from a prisoner named Thomas Sheridan, who was discharged from this gaol on the 18th last December, after serving a sentence of eighteen months for receiving stolen property, and who refused to receive his gratuity on account of the acting-gaoler not recommending him for a pass from Wellington to Mudgee, which he declined doing, as he knew prisoner himself and also his friends were possessed of means (vide report by Acting-gaoler, dated 17th November last, attached to Sheridan's application for gratuity and pass). He threatened the morning he was discharged to write to the Comptroller-General on the matter.

As regards the ringing of the bell erected in the yard, it is not rung in the morning before unlocking at 5.45 or 6 a.m., as there is no one up at that hour to ring it, but merely for meals and locking up on account of no night-duty being kept up in this gaol; and the acting-gaoler is up always once and of times twice during the night to have a look around; he is not up sufficiently early to ring the bell for the prisoners to get up by.

With

With reference to the hours of locking and unlocking, a prisoner named Robert Jones made a complaint to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, dated 12th May, 1883, and the reply from the Honorable the Minister of Justice, dated 5th June, 1883, stated that he sees no reason to interfere with the regulations now in existence dealing with the above matter. The acting-gaoler must say that the prisoners are let out of their cells with as much promptitude as they are locked up. The acting-gaoler sees to that. With regard to the statement of the number of prisoners in the cells it is correct, but it is incorrect that they are improperly ventilated. The water-closet is a large double one with well cess-pit, and is only cleaned when full. A tender has now been accepted for cleaning it for the sum of £9 10s. It does not smell badly for the description of closet; it is kept very clean and well looked after, lids being kept on the round holes. As regards the yard work, the prisoners fill the bath daily, which is used by the acting-gaoler, one of the warders, and of times the prisoners, the water afterwards being used either for washing out the drains or watering the flower-gardens. The water for the police station is mostly filled, as stated from the well in the yard, as being less trouble than going round to the police premises to do so. The well there has only lately been finished with a pump. The police are so often away, and their time nearly always occupied on duty, they have no time to draw water from their well. The deep well alluded to is about 34 or 35 feet deep.

Some female neighbours came into the gaol the acting-gaoler believes twice last summer on Sunday afternoons, and on one occasion sat down for a few minutes in the yard, but certainly not for the purpose of scanning the prisoners; they called and asked to see the flower-garden. They did not sign the visitors' book. Two girls named Swan, daughters of the contractor, have a few times come to the gaol with stores for their father, also flower roots for Mrs. Anderson for the gaol-gardens; they always called on week days, and have not signed the visitors' book. Visitors to the gaol sign the book.

As regards visits to prisoners by their friends, they are generally accommodated with a seat under the verandah, which was round the kitchen, store-room, and office, and near where the warder on yard duty is, so that he may hear all that passes. If he allowed them into the office he must either allow them out of his sight or leave the prisoners in the yard to themselves; this is the acting-gaoler's arrangement, believing the safety of the prisoners in the gaol the first consideration.

When prisoner Sheridan's mother and his brother from Dubbo called to see him, the acting-gaoler being at home on both occasions, brought prisoner and his friends into his own private room during their visit, and remained with them himself. The acting-gaoler's son sleeps in a small entrance room or passage leading into the gaol from the front, which the Comptroller-General could see on his visit to the gaol on the 27th last April. This prisoner had none of these complaints to make then, although he was asked same as the others if he had; his statement that some of the warders, when on duty, never fails on the most frivolous pretext, to provoke the prisoners into the commission of some breach of the regulations by which they are reprimanded or punished by the Visiting Justice, is untrue. The Visiting Justice would be more likely under such circumstances to reprimand the warder who had irritated and locked up the prisoner than he would the prisoner.

Although more punishments this year than on previous years, the punishments were principally caused by a prisoner named Robert Jones, before alluded to in this report. Prisoner Jones was a bad character.

If the warders were as bad as Sheridan wishes to make it appear it is strange that with the same warders we were for three years with only one punishment of three days on half rations, and with as many prisoners in the gaol as last year.

JAMES ANDERSON,

INTIMACY WITH FEMALE PRISONERS IN GAOLS.

No. 1.

Elizabeth Hughes, prisoner, to The Gaoler, Tamworth Gaol.

Sir,

Tamworth Gaol, Friday, 12 April, 1883.

I most respectfully beg leave to say with much personal pain and regret in being thus obliged to make the following truthful statement relative to Mr. Paget, warder of the Tamworth Gaol.

In justification of my own conscience I do not desire to conceal the facts connected with the case.

Thus some few weeks ago, I cannot exactly specify the time or date of the occurrence, I saw Mr. Paget enter the cell in which I and my other female prisoner had been sleeping.

My companion, Mary Smith, asked him (Mr. Paget) by what means he contrived to enter our cell at such an unusual hour, in answer to which question he told her he entered by using the key of the tower. The last time he visited our cell I was asleep, and when I awoke I saw him leave our cell something about 4 o'clock, a.m. Mr. Paget—he had no boots on then. He told my fellow prisoner not to disturb me from my sleep, fearing that I should recognise him, lest I should inform on him, and that he could get out without my being aware of his nocturnal visit.

Necessity obliged me to get up at 4 o'clock a.m., and then I recognised Mr. Paget, whom I saw distinctly in the light. He never spoke to me at the time but went out and brought in some coffee to the cell, which he offered first to Mary Smith and requested me to partake of the same, to which I objected. Mr. Paget requested of Mary Smith to influence me if possible, to use her influence with me in advising me to conceal the circumstance of his visit. The first time Mr. Paget came he did not succeed in gaining an entrance to our cell, but he had recourse to a screw-driver; I asked him what he was doing there, when my female companion told me to be silent, that he was using the screw-driver to get the bolt off. I put my head to the port-hole, and made the remark, "Sir, if any one saw you just now what would become of you?" In reply to the above remark he gave me to understand that if it were known then by any person officiating in the building, and find him in the act, he would rise arms; at the same time he put his hands to his hip, much as to say that his pistol would soon destroy life, when no eye seemed to gaze on him, it being dark just then.

I made the remark if any poor fellow should require a physician at that hour, in his absence, what would be the result. He said, "I am responsible for my own conduct, and consequently you have nothing to do with this business."

He requested of Mary Smith to take no notice of anything I said; that she (Mary Smith) was the person on whom he would rely for being quite firm in this case; and that he would trust her word to keep secrecy, knowing that if it should come to light he would be painfully obliged to resign his office. I saw Mary Smith give him socks on various occasions, and other trifling circumstances (such as throwing pebbles at her), and wondered why such familiarity existed between them.

He paid her a visit one night some time since, and presented her with grapes. I would not give her permission to accept the said grapes. He felt quite indignant through this refusal of his grapes and made the remark "when he offered them again it would be a long period."

Mr. Paget did not pay any more nightly visits, but passed the remark that I was the chief cause of his being treated with such uncalled-for contempt. I have now intruded too long on your limited time and trust, Sir, you will defend me in the truth.

I have, &c.,

ELIZABETH HUGHES.

P.S.—I often saw him in very serious conversation with Mary Smith, and wondered what the result of their conversation would lead to; I passed no remarks just then, but I see now with much regret that this seems a most serious offence, both as regards his own personal character and perhaps the loss of his situation.—E. HUGHES, Tamworth Gaol.

I almost forgot to say that Mary Smith inquired of Mr. Paget what he would do with the key, when he made the remark that he would do away with it.—E. HUGHES, Tamworth Gaol.

On the above complaint I charge warder Paget with improper conduct towards the female prisoners, and respectfully request the Visiting Justice to hold an inquiry.

DONALD M'LEAN,
Gaoler.

No. 2.

Mr. D. L. M'Lean to The Gaoler, Tamworth.

My dear Father,

Sydney, 13 April, 1883.

Your letter came to hand this morning. In reply, Mollie says Paget was in the cell three times. The first Mollie heard was when the German woman was in a separate cell. That was about the time we left Tamworth, Mrs. Hughes was speaking to him through the C door or window, and she invited him in, but he did not get in that night. Two nights after (i.e., the next night he was on duty) Mollie was awake by him treading on her toes. He said improper things to her, and she said if he did not stop she would tell Mrs. M'Lean. He and Mrs. Hughes then went outside, and remained some time. Hughes said if Mollie told she would get six months more, consequently she was too frightened to tell. The coffee was given to Hughes through the window in a todd, and Mollie received her share.

On

On another occasion he gave Hughes a water-melon. Hughes told Mollie she got some grapes, but she never saw them.

Mollie never asked him how he got into the cell, and never saw him with a screw-driver—she thinks he must have had a key. None of the other men had anything to do with it.

We are sorry your men are so unworthy of the treatment they receive at your hands, and we trust he or others will receive the punishment they justly deserve.

Evidence taken at Inquiry held by Visiting Justice, Tamworth Gaol.

INQUIRY by the Visiting Justice, Tamworth Gaol, held 16th April, 1883, on a charge made against Warden Henry Paget, on the information furnished by a female prisoner (Elizabeth Hughes) of improper conduct on his Warder Henry Paget's having entered the women's cells at various times on the night he (Warder H. Paget) was on duty.

Elizabeth Hughes states: I have nothing to add to the letter I have addressed to the gaoler; all I have stated therein is true; I cannot fix the time nearer than that it was early in this year when these things took place.

In reply to warder Paget: The letter was written at the gaoler's suggestion by a female prisoner named Harris; I had told the matter to the gaoler, and he told me to get my complaint stated in writing; the reason I did not mention the matter before was that Mollie was getting a situation and I thought it might go against her; and I understood from Mollie that you had wished to use her influence with me not to say anything about this matter; after you falsely accused me of receiving a letter and reading it I did not care about keeping silence in this matter any longer.

To the Visiting Justice: I did not see the warder with a screw-driver; Mollie said he had a screw-driver, and the warder said he had a screw-driver, when I spoke of what would he do if anyone saw him, &c.

By the Visiting Justice: I charge the warder with being twice in the women's cells, and with before that attempting to get in by using a screw-driver; the last time Warder Paget was in the cell I did not hear him come in; I did not know how long he was in; I only awakened and saw him going out; I do not know how he locked the door—it was locked by him, as it was locked after he was gone; the first time Warder Paget came in he was talking to Mollie Smith, and I did not hear the door unlocked; he came into the cell, and made some remarks to Mollie Smith that he would not mind stopping with her an hour or two, or words to that effect; that he would like to pass the time with her that night as his wife was not in a fit and proper state; Warder Paget did not remain that night—he stayed about 10 minutes; I do not know how long he had been in the cell on the last occasion, as I only saw him leaving the cell.

Taken before me, this 16th April, 1883,—

D. WILLIAMSON IRVING, P.M., Visiting Justice.

William Bradford states: On the morning of Tuesday, the 10th instant, warder Paget told me that on the previous day when he was on tower duty he saw prisoner Cardwell throw a piece of paper screwed up into the female prisoner's yard, and that he saw female prisoner Hughes go and pick it up and take it inside; I immediately said you should have taken notice of this at the time, and called to me or some one else to see into the matter; Warder Paget admitted he ought to have done this; I said I would make the matter known to Mrs. M'Lean; I saw Miss M'Lean shortly afterwards, and told her to tell her mother what warder Paget had told me; some time afterwards Mrs. M'Lean came to me at the gate and told me; prisoner Hughes denied all knowledge of the piece of paper, but stated she had something much worse than that to tell of Warder Paget; I called Cardwell, and he also denied the matter of the piece of paper; on the following day Mrs. M'Lean asked me to come to the female prisoner's yard to hear what prisoner Hughes had to say about warder Paget; I did so, and in presence of Mrs. M'Lean prisoner Hughes stated much in the same words as in her letter, addressed to the gaoler, that warder Paget had been in the women's cell; as Mrs. Hughes mentioned, Paget said he used the tower key; I asked the warder in the tower if the small key that was fastened to the large one was still there; the warder said "No, the small key is not here"; I inquired of the other warders about this small key, and they said it had been missing some time; I then took the small key in use in the tower of which the missing one was a duplicate, and tried it in the lock of the outer cell door of the women's ward, and found it fitted the padlock and would lock and unlock it; this tower padlock key would not lock and unlock the inner cell-doors of the women's ward; the latter is a different padlock altogether and smaller.

In reply to warder Paget: When I call the missing key a duplicate I do so because it was left in the tower in order that the warder might let himself out in a case of emergency, and would open the tower padlock; I have not known the emergency key to be used in my time to open the tower padlock; I could not say if that missing key was exactly like the one in use or not; I produce the key lately in use on the tower doors, and the emergency key which was in the other tower; they do not correspond, and yet they both unlock the tower padlocks.

In reply to Visiting Justice: The locks have been shifted since this case began, and I have mixed them altogether, so I cannot produce the lock and key belonging to the women's cell outer-door; I have seen a mark on the screw nail in the women's cell-door; it looks like a mark made by a screw-driver, but it might be made with any other strong tool; I do not know how long these marks had been on the screw head; I looked first at the lock on the day I heard Hughes' statement.

WILLIAM BRADFORD.

Made before me, this 16th April, 1883,—

D. WILLIAMSON IRVING, P.M., Visiting Justice.

D.

D. M'Lean, gaoler, states: I spoke to Mr. Bradford with reference to the paper said to be passed in by the male prisoner; Mr. Bradford said that Cardwell (he understood from Paget) had gone to the foot of the tower to take his (Paget's) urinal tin, and it was then that he threw the piece of paper to Hughes; I beg to point out that, by warder Paget's not making this matter of the paper known to his superiors until the following day all hopes of finding any paper was done away with, and it is impossible now to determine whether there was any such occurrence or not, as the prisoners concerned deny now doing it; since hearing of Hughes' complaint I wrote to my son, in whose service Molly now is, and I have a letter from him in which Molly's statements are given; I produce the letter; the letter is read to Warder Paget, and he is told that the attendance of the girl Mollie Smith will be procured.

The suspension of warder Paget is confirmed until such time as the charge is disposed of.
DONALD M'LEAN.
D. WILLIAMSON IRVING.

20 April, 1883.

Mary Huber, a female prisoner, states: About three months ago—a week or so after my trial—warder Paget threw a parcel containing coffee and sugar, mixed up, from the tower into the women's yard; Mrs. Hughes and Molly were fellow-prisoners of mine at that time; the coffee parcel was thrown to Mrs. Hughes, who picked it up; about a week or two before this, one night, about 4 o'clock in the morning, Mary Smith awakened me and gave me some hot coffee; I asked Mrs. Hughes who gave the coffee; she would not tell me; two days after Mary Smith said, "If you don't tell Mrs. Hughes I will show you who gave the coffee"; warder Paget was in the tower, and Mary Smith winked in his direction; I never heard any one in the cells at night—I mean any man; I was in a separate cell from Mrs. Hughes and Mary Smith; at the time it is said warder Paget was in the cell with Mary Smith and Mrs. Hughes, I heard Mollie Smith two different nights begging and praying Mrs. Hughes not to tell Mrs. M'Lean about warder Paget being in the cell.

In reply to warder Paget: The coffee thrown into the yard was used; Mrs. Hughes asked me, and I made it; the coffee was in a handkerchief; I don't know what came of the handkerchief; Mrs. Hughes, I believe, washed it; I don't know whether she gave it back or has it now; Molly Smith did strike me on the face; I had some words with her; Mary Smith threw a little stone into the men's yard, and I had words with her; I said, "I never had any coffee thrown to me," and other things I said about the coffee; Molly Smith then struck me in the face, and said I was a liar; I had a quarrel with Mary Smith about thirty days after my trial; she abused me and said I was a woman of bad character; she attacked me in the cell; this was between 6 and 9; about half-past 7 I called to you (Warder Paget) three times to call Mrs. M'Lean, and you would not come; Mary Smith then called you, and you came at once; Mary Smith says Mary Hubert has started a fight, and you then went for Mrs. M'Lean, who put me in a separate cell; I don't know whether you would not come or did not come; I sung out all I could and you did not come; when Mary Smith called out you came at once.

In reply to Gaoler: I never saw warder Paget making signs from the tower to Mary Smith, nor she to him.

In reply to warder Paget: I did see you and Mary Smith talking together; you were outside the yard and Mary Smith was inside, close to you; Mrs. Hughes was inside the cell at the time; this was one evening.

In reply to question by the Gaoler: I remember telling you (Mr. M'Lean) about the coffee from the tower, but you would not believe me.
MEURI GUBINI.

D. WILLIAMSON IRVING, Visiting Justice.

D. M'Lean, gaoler, states: At the time the prisoner Mary Huber told me about the coffee from the tower she was just sentenced, and she was very irritable, protesting against her sentence, &c., and she was inclined to quarrel with the other women, and they with her, and thinking there were faults on both sides I did not credit Mary Huber's statement against the warder about the coffee; I did talk to Senior-warder Bradford and other officers, and was confirmed in my deciding to give no credence to Mary Huber's statement.

In reply to warder Paget: Mary Huber did tell me about your talking to Mollie Smith, but I could get no confirmation of it and did not believe it; Mary Huber never told me of your having had washing done in the women's yard; now I recollect it I did bring the prisoner Mary Hubert before the Acting Visiting Justice for her statements and irritable state, and Mr. Garland spoke to her.

Made before me, this 20th April, 1883,—
DONALD M'LEAN.
D. WILLIAMSON IRVING, P.M.

All this case depends upon the corroboration. Mollie Smith giving her statement at a distance from Hughes, and the thing having cropped up since her leaving the prison may furnish. There is no reliable evidence as to the keys. I beg to point out that almost any padlock key will unlock a padlock of the very common things in use on those cell-doors; in fact, a bent nail will lift the tumbler of a common padlock.

AM holding inquiry into charges against warder Paget for being several times at night in women's cells, Charge rests on evidence of female prisoner Hughes, of worst character. A letter* put in by gaoler from his son, containing statements made in Sydney by half-caste girl, Mollie Smith, a former cell-mate with Hughes at time of charge. I cannot take such evidence. The girl should be sent here in order to be cross-examined by warder Paget. Might I not send evidence taken, and the Comptroller-General examine girl in Paget's presence? In any case Paget should be removed. Girl's statement by day's post. Address in master's letter.

NOTHING could be ascertained as to means of entry. The padlock in use at time of alleged time of entry had been removed and mixed up with others, and could not be pointed out to me. There was no proof when the key said to be missing from tower was missing. Persons entering would be obliged to open corridor padlock and cell padlock. These locks were of different sizes. As far as my opinion is worth, if woman's evidence separately taken tallies and bears stamp of truth absence of proof of means of entry with such common padlocks would not clear warder. If woman's evidence doubtful the difficulty of opening two locks would leave charge not proved.

PLEASE direct warder Paget to proceed to Sydney, and report himself at this office, and forward papers in reference to case. It is desirable to know how Paget succeeded in entering cells—what were the means used. Girl will be examined in Paget's presence as suggested.

No. 8.

The Gaoler, Tamworth, to The Comptroller-General of Prisons.

Her Majesty's Gaol, Tamworth, 21 April, 1883.

I have the honor to request that the locks on the attached requisition be sent as soon as convenient, as, owing to late disclosures, the necessity for Chubbs' locks, at least on the outside doors and gates, is proved. The only locks in use at present are the common padlock, and, although there is a difference, the whole is so plain, and no doubt many more locks made on the same principle, that duplicate keys could easily be found, and an unprincipled man could operate on those locks without being detected unless the parties concerned informed, which is not always done, and an upright man might be blamed and punished for the doings of a wicked man if not found out in time. I candidly confess that I never thought that an officer would be found in the Prison Service so low as to use duplicate keys for immoral purposes with the lowest class of criminals; but from the various circumstances I am forced to the conclusion that such has been done in this gaol; and for these reasons I make the application for Chubbs' locks, for which there is no duplicate key.

I have, &c.,

DONALD M'LEAN,

Gaoler.

Urgent. Requisition sent to Stores, 23/4/83.—H.W., D.C.P.

No. 9.

The Deputy Comptroller of Prisons to The Comptroller-General of Prisons.

Department of Prisons, New South Wales,

Comptroller-General's Office, Sydney, 24 April, 1883.

WARDER Paget presented himself at this office this morning, and the accompanying statement was made by Mary Smith in his presence.

No direct evidence of means by which Paget entered the cell; but it will be seen by the Visiting Justice's telegram that it was easy to open padlocks, which were common, with another key or a piece of bent wire. The duplicate tower-key may have been used. (See Bradford's evidence.)

As the prison is regarded as unsafe with the padlocks now in use, an urgent requisition has been sent to the Superintendent of Stores for a supply of Chubbs' locks, to supersede the old ones.

It would appear, by Mary Smith's answers to Paget's last question, that the matron went out one evening leaving the corridor open, and that is supposed to be the first time that Paget entered the women's cell.

Warder Paget's written statement herewith.

HENRY WAGER,

Comptroller-General's Office, Sydney, 24 April, 1883.

Mary Smith states:—She is living at present at Mrs. M'Lean's, Glebe Point, Sydney; she was previously a prisoner confined in Tamworth Gaol, undergoing a sentence of twelve months; I know the warder present; his name is Mr. Paget; he was warder in Tamworth Gaol; about a month ago I occupied a cell with Lizzie Hughes; Mr. Paget was on duty until 9 o'clock; that was the first time he opened the cell-door; he asked me to go out; I refused him, but Lizzie Hughes did; I did not see anything improper between the warder and Lizzie Hughes; she came back into her cell; he locked the door and went away; about a week afterwards the warder came again to our cell; I do not know the time; he opened the door and came in; he brought some coffee into the cell with him; he gave me some, and also Lizzie Hughes, and asked me after he gave me the coffee to let him go to bed with me; I did not; I refused; he then went out and shut the door again; I do not know how he got into the cell; he spoke to Mrs. Hughes before leaving; within a week afterwards he came again and asked me a lot of questions; he asked me to let him go to bed with me; I again refused; he sat down in the cell after he asked me; Lizzie Hughes was present; he did not remain long, only about a minute; he then went away; one night he came into the cell without me hearing him at all; the second time the warder (Paget) came into the cell he caught hold of me by the arms, and asked me to allow him to go to bed with me; I did not let him; Mrs. Hughes was present at this time.

By

By D.C.P. : The first time he came to the cell I asked him how he got into the cell ; he would not tell me, but showed me the lock ; he had his boots off when he came into the cell ; Mrs. Hughes was never asleep when the warder came into the cell ; I never heard him trying to get into the cell before the time I saw him there ; Mrs. Hughes used to speak to the warder through the port-hole ; I do not know whether he was then trying to get into the cell ; Mrs. Hughes told me when she came in after being out with the warder that if I told I would get six months more ; I never saw the warder with a screw-driver trying to get into the cell ; on another occasion he brought me some water-melon and grapes ; I did not have any of the water-melon ; Mrs. Hughes was with me at the time ; I never did any washing for the warder ; he told me not to say anything about what was going on ; I know a prisoner named Mary Huber ; I used to quarrel with her ; I never struck her, but I told her she was a woman of bad character ; I never saw the warder throw any coffee into the yard for any of the prisoners ; I saw Mrs. Hughes giving Mary Huber some of the coffee that the warder brought us ; Mrs. Hughes told Mrs. Huber that the warder brought it to her ; I never gave the warder any socks ; I never saw anything indecent between Mrs. Hughes and the warder.

By Warder Paget : I recollect having a row with Mrs. Huber ; I do not know how long that was after her sentence ; I never struck Mrs. Huber in the yard ; Mrs. Huber never called me a nigger, but she has called me improper names ; Mr. Coulston was on the tower on the occasion that I quarrelled with Mrs. Huber ; I was bad friends with Mrs. Huber all the time I was in prison with her ; I only spoke a few words to her before coming away ; I never had any occasion to think that the warder was bad friends with Mrs. M'Lean, the matron ; I remember a lizard running up the wall ; I threw some pebbles at it ; this happened while I was in the yard ; Mrs. M'Lean, my mistress, asked me some questions respecting the charges made by Mrs. Hughes against the warder ; Mr. M'Lean never spoke to me about the matter until yesterday morning, when he told me I would have to come to this office and speak the truth ; Mrs. M'Lean was asking me questions, and Mr. M'Lean was taking the answers down on paper ; I never had any conversation with Mrs. Hughes about the matter before I left the gaol ; Miss M'Lean (Lizzie) told me about a row the warder had with Mrs. M'Lean, the matron, about a goat ; I heard one of the prisoners (Mary Huber) say that the warder had washing done in the gaol, but I never saw any of it ; I saw your wife ; I know her through seeing her with Mrs. M'Lean, and bringing meals for the warder to the gaol ; I never said I would come back to Tamworth respecting the matter.

The warder did not have his boots off the first time he came into the cell, but each time afterwards.

Mrs. M'Lean went out one evening and left the corridor door open, and that was the first time the warder ever came to the cell ; I do not know whether the cell-door was locked, but I could see the corridor was not.

 Sydney, this 24th day of April, 1883,— }
 HENRY WAGER,
 Deputy Comptroller.

To the Comptroller-General of Prisons,—

Sir,

Sydney, 24 April, 1883.

In giving my explanation in reference to the charge preferred against me by Mrs. E. Hughes, now a prisoner in H.M. Gaol, Tamworth, I beg to state that it is false, with the exception of the first occasion, which is true. At that time spoken of I was on duty until 9 p.m., post No. 2. As soon as the other officers had left the Gaol I, as I always do, go around and try all doors and locks, and I found the doors of the women's wing open, with the exception of the cell-door, which was bolted. The lock was in the staple, not shut, but it was locked. I removed the lock, thinking it was broken, but it was not. Prisoners spoke to me. I asked if they knew how they came to be left in that manner. They replied, "Mrs. M'Lean went away in a hurry, and must have forgot them." I think it was Mrs. Hughes that answered my questions. I never entered the cell. I then locked the cell-door with the key of the front gate ; the other keys would not fit any of the other locks, so I had to leave them open until Mrs. M'Lean came home, they having all gone out in their buggy. As soon as she came home I told her. She said "she must have forgot them in her hurry, but as there was no harm done I need not say anything about it," and, as I now regret, I did not. Had I an immoral inclination I could have exhibited it then ; but, as the last witness says, "I did not stay a minute."

Mrs. Hughes also states that she frequently saw Mary Smith throwing pebbles at me. That is not true, but on one occasion she did throw some at a lizard that was on the outer wall under the tower where I was on duty.

She also states she did not report this misconduct before because Mary Smith was about to get a situation. Mary Smith was engaged by Mrs. M'Lean, jun., in Christmas week for twelve months. The agreement was made while Mr. and Mrs. M'Lean, jun., was on a visit to Tamworth.

She also states it was early in the year, and Mary Smith says "a month ago." Not one of the occasions have been dated by either of the prisoners, or by the duty-book. I might prove that I was not on duty when they may have occurred ; I myself do not remember seeing a key (a spare key) in the tower mentioned since I did duty there, and often wondered what the one spare key was for in the other tower ; Mr. Bradford never saw the missing key, and Mr. M'Lean says he has not seen it for one year and six months. The tower key and spare key are not alike, and would not open one lock ; and no evidence was shown to prove that the lost one would open the lock of the female wing or not ; I asked for the lock, but the plea was they could not find it. If the key was as described it would then only open one lock, the outside one but not the inside one, they being smaller ones. Mary Huber admits that Mary Smith struck her ; she also states I was on the tower at the time ; this is contradicted by Mary Smith ; she states warder Coulson was on the tower when they quarrelled. Mary Huber also stated that Mrs. Hughes used the coffee thrown into the yard, and yet Mrs. Hughes was seen give it to Mr. Bradford in a plate, and I saw him carry it into Mr. M'Lean's office previous to being suspended. I admit, soon after going to the gaol, giving the prisoners a piece of water-melon ; at that time I did not think there was any harm in it, but never gave them anything after ; I never gave them any coffee. The coffee in the plate was not brought brought forward at all after Mary Huber gave her evidence. I on one occasion heard the prisoners (the women) talking about making a charge up against me. I heard Mrs. Hughes say, "You see if we don't; we got one man discharged from here, and if we don't this one we will make it very hot for him if Molly (meaning Mary Smith) only keeps her brains together." I did not take much notice of it at the time as such is usual among the prisoners.

It would be a very foolish for me to report Mrs. Hughes if I knew she could report me. The charge against me is one of conspiracy from beginning to end. Mrs. Hughes did not write the report herself, for several days another prisoner (Mrs. Harris) was helping her to put it together.

I often saw the M'Leans giving the prisoners melons, &c. I never gave them any grapes or coffee. I am a married man, my wife is young and healthy, and have no occasion to go among prostitutes and criminals. I beg you will not give credence to the report against me, but sincerely hope you will take a favourable view of the matter, and take into consideration my past good character and remove me to another gaol for to resume duty forthwith.

THE evidence, although from persons by character unreliable, is very circumstantial, and is much corroborated by the concurrence in detail of that given at Tamworth and in Sydney.

No. 13.

The Governor, Sydney Gaol, to The Comptroller-General of Prisons.

Sydney Gaol, 12 November, 1883.

I do myself the honor to report a most painful and distressing circumstance, which in the first instance was told me by the Rev. Canon Rich, and I beg leave to lay before you reports from the Matron and Sub-matron, and prisoner C— W—. The case is an accusation by a prisoner, C— W—, that she is pregnant by the Matron's son, G— C—, a lad eighteen years of age.

W— was employed as servant to the Matron, to whom you gave permission in August, 1878, for her two sons to reside at her quarters. G— C— was then only thirteen years old.

I anticipate that you will hold an immediate inquiry.

W— says that the illicit intercourse only took place once, at the Matron's quarters, while Mrs. C— was visiting the wing, in April last, and that she is now seven months enciente.

I cannot express the pain with which I received this statement. The high opinion I had and have of Mrs. C— made the catastrophe more painful.

I have, &c.,

J. C. READ,

Governor, Sydney Gaol.

I will visit Darlinghurst Gaol at 5 p.m. to-day respecting this matter.—H.M'L., B.C., 12/11/83.
The Governor, H.M. Gaol, Darlinghurst.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Mrs. F. M. C— to The Governor, Darlinghurst Gaol.

Sir,

Female Wing, Darlinghurst, 10 November, 1883.

Upon receiving the accompanying report from the Sub-matron, I saw and interrogated the prisoner named in the C— W— margin, who was employed as servant in my quarters until the latter end of April last, when I sent her away in consequence of suspecting her of writing to the male prisoners clandestinely.

It is my painful duty to inform you at once she alleges she is pregnant by my son, aged 18 years last July.

I have been so unceasing in my vigilance I cannot conceive how it could have taken place, and am completely stunned by this allegation. Feeling it necessary after this dreadful business that my sons should reside outside the Gaol I made arrangements for their immediate removal.

I am deeply pained and grieved that it should have happened.

Yours, &c.,

F. M. C—.

The Sub-matron to The Matron.

 I beg to state for your information on yesterday morning prisoner C— W— came to me and said that she wished to tell me something—that she should have to tell me or the Reverend Canon Rich that she was going to have a baby.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

C— W— (prisoner) to The Governor, Darlinghurst Gaol.

 Darlinghurst Gaol, 1883.
 I have been at the Matron's for one year and six months as a servant, and I am sorry to tell you, Sir, that I am about to have a child within two months from now, and the Matron's youngest son is the father of it. I am not going to defend myself in any way. I know I have done wrong. Will you be kind enough to have me taken before him, and I could ask him more than I can write. Will you be so kind as to send me to some other gaol? I have been here for two years and seven months. All this happened in month of April, 1883, in the morning at 8 a.m., and when the matron was going her rounds, and near at night. I know that I am older than he is, and I told him so, and I begged of him not to make my lot any harder than it was. I told him that I was a mother, and I hoped to go home to my husband, and try to do better, and I told him for his mother's sake not to commit adultery with me. I begged of him not to do so in God's name. He cannot defend it before me. All I can say that I am sorry; I ought to have told the Matron. I may tell you I have not a friend in the world. I ask no mercy; all I ask is to be sent from the place. I committed adultery *three times with the Matron's son. I cannot say any more to-day.
 Yours, &c.,
 C— W—.

Minute of Comptroller-General of Prisons.

I HAVE made personal inquiry into this painful matter, and interrogated the Governor of the Gaol, the matron, the sub-matron, and prisoner W— herself.

The matron informed me that her son G— C— has admitted to the truth of the prisoner's allegation. Thus no room was left for formal inquiry or evidence in the case.

Although some discrepancy exists in the self-contradictory statement of the prisoner and admission of the lad as to the circumstances, the discrepancy does not seem to be material to the issue.

It is a most serious thing that such an occurrence should have taken place in so carefully ordered an establishment as Darlinghurst Gaol.

The fact of young C— being not an officer of this Department precludes any action for his punishment.

While my knowledge of Mrs. C— — in her most conscientious and highly efficient discharge of her most difficult duties—leads me to accept her protestation that she had endeavoured to exercise the utmost vigilance in respect of the presence of her sons in her quarters, I am with much regret constrained to say—as now must be obvious to herself—that she failed in guarding her precautions from the weak point that has admitted of this most untoward event. Mrs. C— should have taken such measures as would have rendered it impossible for a female prisoner to be in the quarters in her absence when one of her sons, by not starting as it appears to have been the case in the present instance, or by starting and returning, could also be there. This could have been simply effected by ordering the servant to the wing when she went out on duty.

For the purpose of record and full comprehension of the case it may here be mentioned that both by the statement of the prisoner and of the lad it appears that the occurrence took place after 8 o'clock a.m., when Mrs. C— had started on her rounds, believing that her son was simultaneously starting for business, the prisoner at the time being below stairs in the kitchen.

It is desirable to remove the prisoner from Darlinghurst. Let her be transferred to Maitland.

Send to the Governor of the Gaol for his information, and to be read by Mrs. C—, who at the same time may be assured, notwithstanding this unhappy occurrence, of my unbroken confidence.

THE painful circumstance disclosed in these papers is much to be regretted, and I am disposed to adopt the view of the Comptroller-General as to the light in which he regards the action of Mrs. C—. I have had a personal interview with the Comptroller-General, who will take the requisite steps.

DISTRICT COURTS AND QUARTER SESSIONS.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH JUDGES DOCKER AND MURRAY RESPECTING PRECEDENCE OF CIVIL OVER CRIMINAL BUSINESS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 29 January, 1884.

[Laid upon Table in accordance with promise made in answer to Question 1, Votes 45, 29th January, 1884.]

1. MR. CAMERON to ask THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE,—

- (1.) Is it true that the District Court Judges, namely, Messrs. Docker and Murray, still persist in giving precedence to civil over criminal business?
- (2.) Is it true that the Armidale District Court was fixed to commence on Monday, 14th, and the Quarter Sessions on Wednesday, the 16th January?
- (3.) Is it true that the District Court finished on Monday, and that persons in gaol awaiting trial remained in gaol all Monday and Tuesday, and in some cases till Thursday and Friday, before they could be tried?
- (4.) In the event of any of those prisoners being found not guilty on Thursday or Friday, have they not been thus kept several days longer in gaol through the action of the Judge in giving precedence to civil over criminal business?
- (5.) Will the Minister insist on this practice being stopped, and in every case compel our District Court Judges to show somewhat more regard to the interests of people awaiting trial whose liberty has been taken from them, in some cases unjustly or wrongfully?

Will Judge Murray kindly favour with the requisite information to enable the Minister of Justice to answer the above Questions in the Legislative Assembly on Tuesday next, the 22nd instant.—W. E. PLUNKETT, B.C., 19 January, 1884. C. E. R. Murray, Esq., District Court Judge, Glen Innes.

Mr. District Court Judge Murray to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Glen Innes, 21 January, 1884.

In reply to your memo. of the 19th instant, asking for information touching the order adopted by me in fixing days for holding District Courts, and suggesting those for Courts of Quarter Sessions, I have the honor (first), to answer categorically some of the questions of which Mr. Cameron has given notice; (secondly) to explain the reasons for my adopting the course I have pursued.

As to question 1. It is not true that I give precedence to civil over criminal business, but it is true that at certain places District Courts are appointed to be held before the days fixed for holding Courts of Quarter Sessions.

2. It is true that the Courts at Armidale were fixed as implied in this question.

3. It is not true that the District Court finished on Monday, as it was concluded on Tuesday morning. Prisoners committed for trial at the Sessions who were not on bail of course waited in gaol till the Sessions came on and their trials could be held.

4. No. Prisoners were kept in gaol till they were legally set free.

I will now give my reasons.

Courts of Quarter Sessions are held periodically—at Armidale, for instance, twice a year, at intervals of six months, the days being fixed to be as nearly as possible intermediate between the dates appointed for the Assize Courts. No variation takes place in the order, except so far as the extension of the Northern Railway or other causes may make it expedient to remodel the Circuit, so as not to waste time and thereby public money. The dates for holding Sessions being therefore, practically, fixed points, the question arises whether it is more expedient to hold the District Court before or after the Sessions. It happens that the Court at Tamworth precedes that at Armidale; the amount of business at Tamworth is very variable. If, in the regular course, the Sessions at Armidale were followed by the District Court, then the Tamworth District Court would have to be fixed to immediately precede the Armidale Sessions. As the Sessions must be held punctually on the day appointed, in case of a pressure of business at Tamworth, I should have to leave work there undone; whereas, by making the Armidale District Court precede the Sessions, I should be able to finish the Tamworth District Court without interfering with the Armidale Sessions, the Armidale District Court being adjourned until after the Sessions. The regular order therefore that I adopt is this: The Tamworth Sessions, being at the beginning of the Circuit, and being therefore not liable to clash with any preceding Court, come first; then follows the Tamworth District Court; then the Armidale District Court; then the Armidale Sessions. If this order were disturbed it would simply mean that on a single occasion the Armidale Sessions would come two days less than six months after the last court. Afterwards the regular six months' interval would recur with a less convenient—a more risky—arrangement of Courts. And so at every Court which may be liable to clash with a preceding Court or to be endangered by the risks incidental to travelling. I always use the District Court as a buffer, the elasticity of which will reduce to a minimum the risk of the stability of the Sessions being effected. How I can be said to detain prisoners in gaol because I come to a town earlier than I otherwise should for the purpose of holding a District Court before instead of after the rigidly fixed point at which the Sessions recur, I fail to understand. If the District Court were not there then I too should be somewhere else. Immediately the time for holding the Sessions arrives all other business is suspended, because I carefully so order my business that there shall be no appreciable danger of delay to the criminal work, because I make civil work subservient to it. I am most illogically accused of want of regard for the interests of people awaiting trial. I can give a good reason for the exact position of every Court in the arrangement of my circuits. The objects which I specially try to attain are that no Criminal Court shall stand in such an order that it shall be liable to delay; that its rigidity shall not be likely to inconvenience civil suitors; and that no time shall be wasted when time has to be made up. I think it will be generally admitted that it is made up at my own inconvenience, and not by hurrying business. It so happens that never but once have I been late for the Court at a town where Sessions were held, but I have often run such considerable risk that I have felt strongly how fortunate it was that the District Court preceded the Sessions. The particular occasion that I refer to was at Wilcannia. Heavy rains had made the country between Bourke and Wilcannia utterly impassable for vehicles. I fortunately succeeded in getting a passage in a steamer to arrive on a Friday. The District Court was fixed for Saturday; the Sessions for Monday. The steamer, after several mishaps and much delay, arrived on Sunday, the District Court only suffering delay. On two other occasions, coasting steamers—once to Kempsey, once to Maclean—have brought me in late for District Courts. On two other occasions, I believe, Judge Docker, whom only the absolute impossibility of reaching a Court town at the date fixed would prevent from being in time, has been late for a District Court, which, thus preceding the Sessions, has saved serious inconvenience. The risk of travelling on the country I have now to pass over is as nothing compared with that incidental to the enormous distances, and when wet, impassable plains of the north-western circuit which I formerly had to get round, and in the Courts of which Judge Docker now presides; but the practice I then adopted impressed me so with its advantages that I still, with less necessity, continue it. It is utterly illogical to contend that it involves any inconvenience to any one, except, perhaps, at odd times to civil suitors, and even in this district there are parts in which it may very likely prove of great service some day. For instance, between Bingara and Moree, Moree and Warialda, and Warialda and Inverell, there intervenes country which rain may suddenly make almost impossible for vehicles to cross. Between Tenterfield and Casino numerous creeks, suddenly flooded, have almost stopped me. Only last circuit an accident, though it did not actually delay my arrival, came very near delaying it considerably. Criminal Courts are now fixed to recur at regular intervals. Where a District Court is placed before the Criminal Court, if by some accident I should in spite of all endeavours be too late, suitors may have to wait till the Sessions are over. Then I work hard to clear off everything before leaving. If I had been in time of course I should, by attending to my duty as District Court Judge, have happened to be present in a town where prisoners are awaiting trial. To contend that, therefore, in some inexplicable way I am wronging prisoners by not trying them there and then is so utterly absurd that really to answer such an argument is like trying to prove a self-evident mathematical proposition, the denial of which has only to be stated to show its inanity. It might just as well be contended that the Metropolitan Judges are doing wrong in ever being out of Darlinghurst Court, or that I should rush off at once as soon as I have completed the criminal business at one place and try the prisoners at the next with a jury of bystanders.

I am, Sir,

C. E. R. MURRAY.

Perhaps I may be allowed to call attention to the fact, as bearing upon the subject of this report, that the Criminal Law Amendment Act of 1883, by repealing 16 Vic. No. 36, has done away with the only power of adjourning Courts of Quarter Sessions in the absence of the Chairman, and has, as far as I can find, made no provision to remedy the defective state of the law in this behalf.

After hurriedly writing this to catch the mail this evening I find it cannot go down till to-morrow evening, as there is an interruption in the so-called daily mail from here.

Mr.

Mr. District Court Judge Docker to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Granville, January 22, 1884.

With reference to your letter of the 19th instant, enclosing a copy of certain questions to be asked in Parliament by Mr. Cameron, and requesting information to enable the Honorable the Minister for Justice to answer them, I have the honor to reply as follows:—

1st. The jurisdiction of the General Sessions is distinct from that of the District Courts. The dates for the holding of the Courts of General Sessions are fixed by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council (the recommendation of the Chairman of the General Sessions being usually adopted). The dates for the holding of the District Courts are fixed by the District Court Judge (within certain limits determined by the Governor).

2nd. The District Courts have no criminal jurisdiction, but the General Sessions, in addition to their criminal jurisdiction, have an appellate jurisdiction. Appeal cases are invariably heard after the conclusion of the criminal business, consequently no precedence is given to civil over criminal business.

3rd. So long as the Sessions are held upon the day appointed by the Governor, prisoners awaiting trial cannot possibly be prejudiced or unnecessarily detained in gaol by the circumstance that the Judge who is to preside as Chairman at the Sessions happens to be in the same town discharging other duties a day or two prior to that date. To give an instance:—The next Court of General Sessions at Wilcannia is fixed for Monday, 12th May. The prisoners awaiting trial at that Court cannot be affected by my trying civil cases in the District Court there on the Friday and Saturday previous, the 9th and 10th, any more than if I were trying the civil cases on the Friday and Saturday following, the 17th and 18th. If it should be urged that the prisoners would be tried two days earlier, I would reply that I should be only too glad to hold the Sessions not merely two days but a whole week earlier; but unfortunately I am precluded by the Circuit Court at Dubbo from beginning my series of Courts earlier. However, so far as prisoners generally are concerned, it would not make the slightest difference, because the Courts would at once settle down to the usual six monthly intervals.

4th. My practice is to appoint the District Court at any place (after the first in a circuit) for one or two days before the date of the General Sessions, for what appear to be very good reasons, having the public interests and convenience in view. In the first place there is no power at present to postpone a Court of General Sessions, so if the Chairman is not present on the day appointed the Court must lapse, and the prisoners must remain in custody until the next Court, or until a new Court can be appointed. Even if such a power did exist, it would be most undesirable to exercise it, so long as the necessity can be avoided, because forty-eight jurymen would be kept waiting, at great expense to the Crown and to the detriment of their own affairs, besides affording to some the opportunity of rendering themselves incapable of discharging their duties. Secondly,—The distances between the Court towns being so great, and the roads of such a nature that rain renders them impassable for the time being, it is necessary to allow several days in addition to the time ordinarily occupied in travelling between the places, in order to ensure the Sessions being opened on the due date. If the weather happens to be fine, and no accident occurs, the Judge will have to idle away those spare days, at expense to the Crown and inconvenience to himself, unless he is allowed to utilize them by holding the District Court. If the District Court is fixed for those spare days, and delay should unfortunately occur, necessitating postponement, the inconvenience (if any) resulting will fall only upon the few litigants concerned. This arrangement, therefore, is entirely in the interests of the prisoners. Thirdly,—If the District Courts have to follow the Sessions during the transition period, the prisoners for trial at the later Courts of a series would actually be detained in gaol a longer time than under the present system; and the permanent effect of the change would be to make the circuit longer by several days, once more to the expense of the Crown and the inconvenience of the Judge. I can illustrate this by the next Darling River Circuit. At Bourke the District Court is fixed for Monday, 28th April, the Sessions for Wednesday, the 30th. So far as the rest of the Circuit is concerned it is immaterial which Court is held first; the business, Civil and Criminal, is calculated to conclude on Saturday, 3rd May. For the reasons above mentioned it would not be safe to fix the Wilcannia Sessions earlier than Monday, 12th May; but it is quite safe enough, chancing the risk of postponement, to fix the District Court there for Friday, the 9th. Now, if the District Court must follow the Sessions at Wilcannia, the whole business there must be calculated to conclude on Friday, the 16th, instead of (as at present) on Wednesday, the 14th. The consequence would be that instead of opening the Sessions at Wentworth on Monday, the 26th, they would be delayed till Wednesday, the 28th. The District Court fixed for Friday, the 30th, instead of the 23rd, the Balranald District Court would be pushed on from the Saturday to the Wednesday following, and the Hillston District Court would be similarly affected; the whole Circuit, which already lasts eight weeks, being thus lengthened by four or five days, simply to obviate an imaginary grievance illogically assumed to be suffered by a few prisoners.

5th. The absurdity of the complaint will be evident when it is remembered that the Sessions often last several days—in Sydney a fortnight. The prisoners whose trials are reserved for the latter days might complain that they are kept in gaol several days longer than necessary. Certainly all have equal right to be tried on the first day, but the difficulty is to give it effect. Perhaps Mr. Cameron will be good enough to suggest in respect of this hardship some method to “compel our District Court Judges to show somewhat more regard to the interests of people awaiting trial, whose liberty has been taken from them, in some cases unjustly or wrongfully.” The only plan that occurs to me as at all possible is to have a separate Judge and Court for each prisoner.

6th. With regard to the fifth question of which notice is given, I must respectfully observe that while I shall always be most willing to listen to, and, if reasonable, to carry out, any suggestions as to the arrangements of the Courts for the greater convenience of the community (including persons awaiting their trial) especially if such suggestions come from the Honorable the Minister of Justice, I shall deem it my duty to resist most firmly any attempt to interfere with the power conferred by the law upon me as a District Court Judge to fix (within the periods determined by the Governor) the dates for holding my District Courts, whether the exercise of such power be regarded as a duty or a privilege. I regard it as both: a duty to fix the Courts for the general convenience of the persons concerned in them; a privilege to fix them as shall best suit my own convenience. I shall never allow the privilege to interfere with the duty; and experience has proved the wisdom of the practice I have hitherto adopted. On several occasions I have been compelled to postpone District Courts, having been delayed through causes beyond beyond my control, and notwithstanding my strenuous endeavours to keep to time, though under ordinary circumstances the time allowed was ample. But through the latitude which my arrangement allows I have never been late for a Court of General Sessions.

7th. I have dealt with the subject in its general aspects, though the questions specially refer to matters occurring in Judge Murray's District; but if the Minister wishes to answer them categorically, I am in a position to enable him to do so. To question (1), answer "No;" question (2), "Yes;" question (3), "No" and "Yes;" question (4), "No"; and question (5), "No."

I have, &c.,

ERNEST B. DOCKER, D.C.J.

OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 5 September, 1884.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 6th August, 1884, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all correspondence, minutes, &c., between the Chief Justice and the Colonial Secretary, between 7th May, 1883, and 7th June, 1883, respecting the propriety of putting the appointment of the Officers in the Supreme Court upon the same footing as in the Mother Country.”

(Mr. A. G. Taylor.)

The Chief Justice to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 7 May, 1883.

With the concurrence of my colleagues, I desire to bring under the notice of the Government the evils arising from the present mode of appointing the officers of the Supreme Court. By the 37th section of the Constitution Act the appointment of all public officers in this Colony (minor appointments excepted) was vested in the Governor and Executive Council. It was doubtless never intended by the framers of this section to introduce a mode of appointment to offices in the Supreme Court different from that followed in the superior Courts in England; there from time immemorial the officers of those Courts have been appointed by their respective Heads. As was pointed out by Lord Cranworth, in the House of Lords, on the 5th August, 1867 (“Hansard,” vol. 189, p. 842): “Lord Coke three centuries ago stated it to be one of the characteristic advantages of the English Courts of law that the officers of the Courts were appointed by the Heads of the Court, who were responsible for their conduct.” These observations were made in support of an amendment to a Bill, then before the House of Lords, having for its object the placing the appointing of certain officers in the Supreme Court in Ireland on the same footing as in England. In Ireland it appears that in the reign of George IV the selection of the Master and one other officer was vested in the Lord-Lieutenant. “An extraordinary provision,” said Lord Cranworth, “which would not for a moment have been tolerated in England.” In 1844 a Bill was introduced to regulate the Irish Courts, and when it reached the House of Lords, Lord Campbell pointed out the anomaly that the selection of the Master and the one other officer should be any other than a judicial selection. Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst entirely concurred, and a clause was introduced giving the appointment to the Chief Justices of the Courts. The House of Commons thought that such a clause would rob the Castle of a certain degree of patronage which it ought to possess, and struck it out. Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst inserted another amendment, in opposition to the Government of which he was a member, but the amendment was negatived. Afterwards a Commission was appointed to inquire into the state of affairs in the different Courts of Common Law and Equity in England and Ireland; at the head of this Commission was the late Lord Chancellor of Ireland, Mr. Blackburne. That Commission unanimously recommended that in Ireland, as in England, the appointment of the chief officers to the Courts should be vested in the Judges of those Courts. It will be observed that this controversy related only to two officers, the Master and one other officer; all the other officers were and are on the same footing in Ireland as in England.

All

All these facts were brought before the House by Lord Cranworth, and the Lord Chancellor said "that he found himself in the same position that Lord Lyndhurst occupied in 1844, in being compelled to support the amendment of his noble and learned friend. It was most unreasonable to vest in the Irish Government the appointment of these officers. The Bill professed to be founded on the report of the Commissioners, and he could not conceive any reason for disregarding their recommendation in this respect. The present arrangement was one which ought never to have existed." Lord Kimberley and Lord Cairns supported Lord Cranworth's amendment, which was carried unanimously.

The House of Commons having dissented from this amendment on the ground that the clause was an interference with an ancient prerogative of the Crown in Ireland, the matter came again before the House of Lords, and the Lord Chancellor, while still strongly agreeing with Lord Cranworth, rather than lose the Bill voted against his own views; and the anomaly, so far as regards these two officers, the Master and one other, was allowed to continue.

I have taken the trouble to put this matter before you at this perhaps unnecessary length in order to show how the most eminent judicial functionaries are agreed upon it.

Very little reflection will enable any one to see that the efficient working of the Supreme Courts of justice must be greatly promoted by the subordination of the officers of all grades to the Heads, and through them to the other members of those Courts.

Without the power to appoint and remove, this control cannot properly exist. The nature of the duties required to be discharged cannot in general be understood by persons outside the Courts, and the Judges are the only persons who can be fully aware of the shortcomings or inefficiency of their officers. For misconduct, of course, they are directly answerable to the Court; but experience has shown, what indeed it requires no experience to point out, that the efficiency of the officers of this Court cannot be secured without the absolute control over them, in all respects, being vested in the Head of the Court here as in England, and as in Ireland also (two officers only excepted).

My colleagues and I, under these circumstances, request that a Bill may be introduced by the Government during the next Session to place the appointment to offices in the Supreme Court on the same footing as in England.

In conclusion, I would invite your attention to Lord Cranworth's protest ("Hansard," vol. 189, p. 1664), as containing in a short compass the most cogent reasons for altering the law as herein requested.

PROTEST OF LORD CRANWORTH.

"1. Because the right of filling the subordinate offices in the Supreme Courts of justice ought to belong to the Heads of those Courts, as being the persons best qualified to select fit and proper officers for the discharge of the duties they are to fulfil.

"2. Because from time immemorial this has been the practice in England, and has always been regarded as essential to the well-conducting of the Courts.

"3. Because in the year 1862 a Royal Commission was issued to many of the most distinguished Judges and lawyers, both in England and Ireland, directing them to inquire, amongst other things, as to the constitution and establishment of the Supreme Courts of common law in Ireland; and that Commission recommended the adoption in Ireland of the principle which has always prevailed in England as to the appointment of officers in the Courts, and no reason has been given why that recommendation has not been attended to.

"4. Because the withholding from the Irish Judges of the rights and privileges enjoyed by their brethren in England places them in an invidious and humiliating position, inasmuch as the reason for the distinction will be generally believed to be that it is not thought safe to trust the Judges in Ireland with the exercise of patronage which is without hesitation confided to the Judges in England."

I have, &c.,

The Colonial Secretary to The Chief Justice.

My dear Sir James,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 7 June, 1883.

I have carefully read and thought over your letter of the 7th ultimo, in which you convey the request of yourself and colleagues that the Government should bring in a Bill next Session to place the appointment of officers in the Supreme Court on the same footing as in England, which you point out is in the hands of the Court itself.

I do not doubt the accuracy of your statement showing such to be the position in England, and with one or two exceptions in Ireland, but I feel strongly persuaded—I may almost say perfectly certain—that if the Government were to introduce such a Bill it would be thrown out by the House with scarce a dissentient voice.

I would desire to draw the attention of yourself and colleagues to the discussion which took place during last general session on the defalcations of the official assignees Sempill and Sandeman, in the course of which the Government was loudly called upon to take steps to make these officers more dependent upon their responsibility to Parliament, by placing their appointments in the hands of the Governor and Executive Council, under the responsibility of a Minister of the Crown.

Whether the Government take such steps or not is a matter for consideration; but from that debate it must, I think, be quite evident to you that Parliament would not sanction the transference of other officers of the Court from the Governor-in-Council to the Court itself.

I have, &c.,

ALEX. STUART.

The General Rules of Court of 1st March, 1856, as to the Officers and Offices of the Court, or any General Rules as to proceedings in Vacation.

Interlocutory Applications:

26.—Interlocutory applications in a Suit may be made by Motion or Petition, and supported by Affidavit or otherwise, according to the present practice of this Court, save only that all applications for Orders of course shall be by motion, and that a Petition shall be used in applications for Special Orders where so provided by Act of Parliament, or where, from the circumstances of the case, or the position of the parties sought to be affected by the Order applied for, the notice of motion would not sufficiently convey information of the facts and circumstances upon which the application is based.

27.—Any party to a Suit may at any stage thereof apply by motion on notice to the Court for such Order as he may, upon any admission of fact in the pleadings or otherwise, be entitled to, without waiting for the determination of any other question between the parties; and the Court may on such application give such relief, subject to such terms, if any, as the Court may think fit.

No Execat.

33.—In all cases where the High Court of Justice in England would grant or direct a writ of Ne execat Regno to issue, a writ of Ne execat Colonia may be directed to issue, under the seal of this Court, and tested in the name of the Primary Judge in Equity, and signed by the Master or Chief Clerk; and such writ shall have the same effect in this Colony, and shall be applied for and served in the like manner and under the same circumstances, and subject to the same rules of practice, as the Writ of Ne execat Regno in England. 45.—The service of Subpœnas shall be effected by delivering a copy of the Writ, and at the same time producing the original Writ.

46.—Affidavits filed for the purpose of proving the service of a Subpœna must state where, when, and how such Subpœna was served, and by whom such service was effected.

56.—The Counsel or Solicitor assigned by the Court to assist a Pauper may not refuse to do so, unless such Counsel or Solicitor satisfy the Court with some good reason for his unwillingness to be so assigned or to continue to act under the assignment.

57.—No process of contempt shall be issued at the instance of a Pauper until signed by his Solicitor in the Suit; and no notice of motion served or petition presented on behalf of a Pauper (except for the discharge of his Solicitor) shall be of any effect, nor shall any person served with such notice or petition be bound to appear thereon, unless such notice or petition be signed by the Solicitor of the pauper; and such Solicitor shall take care that no such process be taken out, and that no such notice or petition be served needlessly or for vexation, but upon just and good grounds.

II.—STATEMENTS OF CLAIM.

61.—Statements of Claim shall be in the form set out in Schedule A to these Rules, with such variations as the nature and circumstances of each case may require.

III.—STATEMENTS OF DEFENCE.

62.—Statements of Defence shall be in the form set out in Schedule B to these Rules, with such variations as the nature and circumstances of each case may require.

63.—When a Defendant does not know, or is not in a position either to admit or deny, a fact alleged in the Plaintiff's Statement of Claim, he may state that he does not know or that he is not able to admit such fact.

64.—It shall not be sufficient for a Defendant in his Statement of Defence to deny or allege that he does not admit generally the facts alleged by the Statement of Claim, but he must deal specifically with each allegation of fact of which he does not admit the truth.

65.—A Defendant, in his Statement of Defence, shall set forth all matters, not appearing in the Statement of Claim, and all grounds of defence, upon which he intends to rely.

66.—Where any Defendant sets off or sets up any right or claim by way of Counter-claim, he shall in his Statement of Defence state specifically that he does so by way of Set-off or Counter-claim, and shall pray specifically for the relief that he may consider himself entitled to, and also for general relief; and shall state what additional parties, if any, are necessary for the relief so prayed.

IV.—DEMURRERS.

67.—No Demurrer shall be filed without a Memorandum at the foot, stating shortly, in substance, the ground or grounds thereof, or the point or points intended to be relied on; of which Memorandum a copy shall be served, as part of such Demurrer.

I.—INDORSEMENT ON STATEMENT OF CLAIM. II.—SERVICE OF STATEMENT OF CLAIM. III.—APPEARANCE.

IV.—DEFENDANTS SUBMITTING OR ADMITTING. V.—NOTICE OF PROCEEDINGS, WHEN UNNECESSARY.

VI.—DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE. VII.—SECURITY FOR COSTS.

I.—INDORSEMENT ON STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

68.—The Indorsement on a Statement of Claim shall be varied from the form set out in the Schedule of the "Equity Act of 1880," and shall be as follows:—

Victoria R.

To the within-named Defendant A.B. [or where there is more than one Defendant, Defendants A.B. and C.D.] Greeting—

We command you ["and every of you" where there is more than one Defendant] that within days after the service hereof on you, exclusive of the day of such service, you cause an appearance to be entered for you in the Equity Office of our Supreme Court to the within Statement of Claim: And that you you do at the same time of entering your Appearance file in the Equity Office a Memorandum, stating, in effect, that you dispute, or admit, in whole or in part the Plaintiff's claim, or submit to such Decree of Order as the Court may think fit to make, or disclaim all right, title, or interest, in the subject matter or the within Statement of Claim. And if you admit the Plaintiff's Claim, or if you disclaim, you do on the eighth day after such appearance, or so soon after as you can be heard, attend, either personally or by Counsel, before the Judge in Equity, at the Supreme Court-house, in King-street, in the City of Sydney, at Ten of the clock in the forenoon and submit to such Decree as is within prayed or as shall be just.

Witness the Honorable A. B., the Primary Judge in Equity, at Sydney, the _____ day of _____ in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-_____, and in the _____ year of Our reign.

NOTE.—Appearances are to be entered in the Equity Office of the Supreme Court, in King-street aforesaid, and if you neglect to enter your appearance, or to file a Memorandum, as above mentioned, or personally, or by Counsel, to attend at the place and time abovementioned, you will be subject to such order as the Court may think fit to make in your absence.

69.—A Plaintiff suing in person shall indorse on the Statement of Claim his full name and address. And the Solicitor of a Plaintiff suing by a Solicitor shall indorse on the Statement of Claim the full name and address of the Plaintiff, and also his own name or firm, and place of business; and service of subsequent proceedings, and notice at such place of Address shall be good service.

II.—SERVICE OF STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

70.—Service of a Statement of Claim shall be effected by serving a copy personally, or by leaving the same with a servant of the Defendant, or some member of his family, at his dwelling-house or usual or last known place of abode. But such service shall not be required when the Defendant by his Solicitor agrees to accept service: And if it be made to appear to the Court that from the Defendant being absent from the Colony, or from any other cause, the Plaintiff is unable to effect prompt service as hereinbefore directed, the Court may make such order for substituted or other service, or for the substitution of notice for service, as may be just.

III.—APPEARANCE.

71.—When a Defendant within the Jurisdiction of the Court is duly served with a Statement of Claim, he shall, if he reside within 100 miles from Sydney, appear thereto within eight days; and if he reside above 100 miles and less than 200 miles within twelve days; and if he reside above 200 miles, within sixteen days, after service.

72.—When a Defendant enters his appearance he shall file a Memorandum to the effect either that he disputes or admits the Plaintiff's Claim, or some part thereof, specifying what part, or that he desires to submit to such Decree or Order as the Court may think fit to make, or that he disclaims all right, title, or interest in the subject matter of the Statement of Claim.

73.—If any Defendant shall neglect to enter an Appearance, or to file a Memorandum as abovementioned, or personally or by Counsel to attend at the place and time in the abovementioned Indorsement, he shall be subject to such Order as the Court may think fit to make in his absence.

74.—A Defendant appearing in person shall annex to his appearance his full name and address; and service of subsequent proceedings, and Notices at such place of address shall be good service: And the Solicitor of a Defendant defending by Solicitor, shall state the full name and address of the Defendant, and also his own name, or firm, or place of business.

IV.—DEFENDANTS SUBMITTING OR ADMITTING.

75.—When the Defendant being sole Defendant, or all the Defendants, shall enter an appearance or shall file a Memorandum or Memoranda, to the effect that he does or they do admit that the Plaintiff is entitled to the relief prayed by the Statement of Claim, or that he or they are desirous to submit to the Decree or Order of the Court, the Plaintiff may at any time after the time limited for the attendance in Court of the Defendant, or last of the Defendants, as directed by the abovementioned Indorsement, set down the Suit to be heard as a Short Matter on Statement of Claim, and Memorandum or Memoranda, on the fourth day after so setting down the same. And the Plaintiff shall give to the Defendant or Defendants, or his or their Solicitor, four clear days' notice in writing of such hearing. And the Court may on such hearing make a Decree or Order as prayed by the Statement of Claim, or such Decree, or Order, with regard to the relief so prayed, or to the further prosecution of the Suit in all respects, as shall be just.

V.—NOTICE OF PROCEEDINGS—WHEN UNNECESSARY.

76.—When a Defendant, being one of a number of Defendants some of whom dispute that the Plaintiff is entitled to the relief prayed by the Statement of Claim, shall enter his appearance, and shall file a Memorandum to the effect, either that he admits that the Plaintiff is entitled to the relief prayed, or that he desires to submit to such Decree or Order as the Court may think fit to make, or that he disclaims all right, title, and interest in the subject matter of the Statement of Claim, it shall not be necessary that such Defendant be served with notice of any proceedings in the Suit, except of or until the hearing of the Suit or of any application for the dismissal of such Suit.

VI.—DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE.

77.—Where any Defendant, not being an infant, or a person of weak or unsound mind unable of himself to defend the Suit, is duly served with the Statement of Claim, and does not enter an appearance thereto within the time limited by the Indorsement, the Plaintiff may, within twenty-one days from the time so limited for appearing thereto, apply to the Court for leave to make an entry of such default; and the Court being satisfied that the copy of the Statement of Claim, with the Indorsement thereon, was duly served, and that no appearance has been entered for such Defendant, may, if it so thinks fit, order the same accordingly. Provided that in all cases of such entry of default, notice of the entering thereof shall be forthwith served on the Defendant.

78.—A Defendant, notwithstanding such entry of default, may within seven days after notice thereof, enter an appearance in the ordinary way, and may at any time apply specially to the Court for leave to appear and defend upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court may direct; but such appearance shall not affect any proceeding duly taken or right already acquired by the Plaintiff, or prejudice the Plaintiff's right to costs of such entry of default or of any such proceeding.

79.—Where such entry of default of appearance shall have been made, or when a Defendant shall not have filed any Memorandum, the Plaintiff may within fourteen days after the entry of default of appearance apply to the Court for a Decree or Order against such Defendant in his absence, and thereupon the Court may make such Decree or Order or give such directions as to the taking of evidence and otherwise for the further prosecution of the Suit as may seem just.

80.—Where upon default made by a Defendant in not appearing to a Statement of Claim, it appears to the Court that such Defendant is an infant, or a person of unsound mind not so found by Inquisition ordeclared under the "Lunacy Act of 1878," so that he is unable of himself to defend the Suit, the Court may, upon the application of the Plaintiff, order that one of the Solicitors of the Court be assigned Guardian of such Defendant by whom he may appear to, and defend the Suit: But no such Order shall be made, unless it appears to the Court, on the hearing of such application, that a copy of the Statement of Claim was duly served; and that notice of such application was, after the expiration of the time allowed for appearing to the Statement of Claim, and at least six clear days before the day in such notice named for hearing the application, served upon, or left at the dwelling-house of, the person with whom, or under whose care, such Defendant was at the time of serving such copy of the Statement of Claim; and also, in the case of such Defendant being an infant, not residing with or under the care of his Father or Guardian, served upon or left at the dwelling-house of the Father or Guardian of such infant, unless the Court, at the time of hearing such application, shall dispense with such last-mentioned service.

VII.—SECURITY FOR COSTS.

81.—If it appears upon the Statement of Claim or otherwise, at any time during the prosecution of the Suit, that the sole Plaintiff, if only one is, or if more than one, all the Plaintiffs are, residing out of the jurisdiction of the Court, the Defendant shall be entitled as of course to an Order for the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs to give security to the Master for costs. And the Court may order such security, if it shall think fit in respect of any one or more of several Plaintiffs who shall be out of the jurisdiction; and no further proceedings shall be taken in the Suit until a stated time after such security shall have been given.

82.—Security for costs may be given by Bond to the Master, according to the custom of the Court, in the penalty of £100. Provided that the Court may, if it shall think fit, direct a greater or less amount of security to be given; and that in any case, the amount of security may be paid into Court in place of giving a Bond.

83.—The day on which an Order that a Plaintiff do give security for costs is served, and the time thenceforward until and including the day on which such security is given, shall not be reckoned in the computation of time allowed to a Defendant to plead, file his Statement of Defence, or demur, or otherwise make his defence to the Suit.

DEFENCES—INTERROGATORIES, &c.

I.—DEMURRER. II.—PLEA. III.—STATEMENT OF DEFENCE. IV.—INTERROGATORIES.
V.—EXCEPTIONS. VI.—CONSEQUENCES OF DEFAULT.

I.—DEMURRER.

84.—A Defendant demurring alone may file a Demurrer to a Statement of Claim within eight days after his appearance thereto, but not afterwards. And either party may set down the Demurrer for argument immediately, 85.—Where a Demurrer is overruled, the Defendant shall pay to the Plaintiff the taxed costs occasioned thereby, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

86.—Where a Demurrer to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim is allowed upon argument, the Plaintiff, unless the Court shall otherwise direct, shall pay to the demurring party the costs of the Demurrer, and where the Demurrer is to the whole Statement of Claim, the costs of the Suit also.

87.—Where a Demurrer to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim is not set down for argument within twelve days after the filing thereof, and the Plaintiff does not within such twelve days serve an Order for leave to amend the Statement of Claim, the Demurrer shall be held sufficient to the same extent and for the same purposes, and the Plaintiff shall pay to the demurring party the same costs, as in the case of a Demurrer to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim allowed upon argument.

88.—Where any grounds of Demurrer are urged in arguing a Demurrer beyond the grounds therein expressed, and the grounds which are so expressed are disallowed, the Defendant shall pay the same costs as if the Demurrer were overruled, although on the grounds so newly urged the Demurrer may be allowed; unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

II.—PLEA.

89.—A Defendant may file a Plea to a Statement of Claim within fourteen days after his appearance thereto, but not afterwards. And either party may set down the Plea for argument immediately.

90.—A Plea may be put in without oath where the matter of Plea appears upon record, but where the matter of Plea does not appear upon record, the Plea must be put in upon oath.

91.—The dependency of a former suit for the same matter is a good Plea, but where the Plaintiff disputes the truth of the Plea he may obtain an Order of course for inquiry as to the truth thereof: And such Order, and the Report in pursuance thereof, shall be obtained within twenty-one days after the filing and service of such Plea, otherwise the Defendant may obtain as of course an Order to dismiss the Suit with costs.

92.—Where a Plea is overruled, the Defendant shall pay to the Plaintiff the taxed costs occasioned thereby, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

93.—Where a Plea to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim is allowed upon argument, the Plaintiff, unless he undertakes to reply to the Plea, or unless the Court otherwise direct, shall pay to the party by whom the Plea is filed the costs of the Plea; and where the Plea is to the whole Statement of Claim the costs of the Suit also; and in such last-mentioned case the Order allowing the Plea shall direct the dismissal of the Suit.

94.—Where a Plea to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim is not set down for argument within fourteen days after the filing thereof, and the Plaintiff does not within such time either serve an Order for leave to amend the Statement of Claim, or by notice in writing undertake to reply to the Plea, the the Plea shall be held good to the same extent and for the same purposes, and the same costs shall be paid by the Plaintiff as in the case of a Plea to the whole or part of a Statement of Claim allowed upon argument; and where the Plea is to the whole Statement of Claim, the Defendant by whom such Plea was filed may at any time after the expiration of such fourteen days obtain as of course an Order to dismiss the Suit with costs.

95.—Where the Plaintiff undertakes to reply to a Plea to the whole Statement of Claim, he shall not, without special leave of the Court, take any proceedings against the Defendant by whom the Plea was filed till after Replication.

III.—STATEMENT OF DEFENCE.

96.—A Defendant who has not filed a Demurrer or Plea, shall file a Statement of Defence within fourteen days after the time limited for the appearance of such Defendant, or within such extended time as may be consented to by the Plaintiff, or as the Court may on application for that purpose allow. And a Statement of Defence shall, except in the cases of Corporations aggregate, be on oath. And Corporations aggregate may put in a Statement of Defence under their Common Seal. Provided that in such case the Court may nevertheless order that Statement of Defence be put in on oath by such Member or Officer of the Corporation as it shall think fit.

97.—If a Statement of Defence contains any Set-off or Counter Claim which the Plaintiff is advised cannot be conveniently dealt with by amendment of the Statement of Claim, the Plaintiff may apply to the Court upon Motion on notice for leave to file a Statement of Defence to the said Counter Claim, and the Court may either refuse or grant such leave; and in either case may make such Orders as to parties and for the future conduct of the Suit as shall thereby be rendered necessary, or may determine that the said Set-off or Counter Claim cannot be conveniently disposed of in the pending Suit, and order the same to be struck out accordingly.

98.—If a Defendant does not file a Statement of Defence, the Plaintiff may treat him as having traversed the allegations of fact made in the Statement of Claim, provided that he has filed a memorandum to the effect that he disputes the Plaintiff's Claim, and may proceed in the Suit accordingly.

IV.—INTERROGATORIES.

99.—A Plaintiff may, by leave of the Court and either at the time of filing his Statement of Claim or subsequently before the Suit is at issue, file Interrogatories for the examination of a Defendant; but such Interrogatories shall be founded upon or be relevant to the allegations contained in the Statement of Claim. And the Defendant shall on oath answer such Interrogatories and file such answer within fourteen days after service of the Interrogatories on him: And the answer shall be deemed sufficient, unless exceptions are filed thereto within seven days after the filing of such answer.

100.—A Defendant may, by leave of the Court, and either at the time of filing his Statement of Defence or subsequently before the Suit is at issue, file Interrogatories for the examination of the Plaintiff, to which Interrogatories shall be prefixed a concise Statement of the subjects on which a discovery is sought. And the Plaintiff shall on oath answer such Interrogatories and file such answer within fourteen days after service on him of the said Interrogatories: And the answer shall be deemed sufficient, unless exceptions are filed thereto within seven days after the filing of such answer. Provided always that it shall not be competent to any Defendant to file Interrogatories until he has answered any Interrogatories previously filed by the Plaintiff for his examination.

V.—EXCEPTIONS.

101.—Exceptions for insufficiency may be filed to any Statement of Defence, Answer, or further Answer to Interrogatories within seven days after the filing of such Statement of Defence, Answer, or further Answer. And such Exceptions shall describe the passages which are alleged to be insufficient.

102.—The Court, in determining the sufficiency of any Statement of Defence, Answer to Interrogatories, shall have regard to the allegations contained in the Statement of Claim, or Statement prefixed to the Interrogatories, as the case may be.

103.—Where Exceptions are allowed, the Court may direct that a further Statement of Defence or Answer be filed, or that the party in default be examined vivá voce.

VI.—CONSEQUENCES OF DEFAULT.

104.—If any party fail to comply with an Order to answer Interrogatories, or for Discovery or Inspection of Documents, he shall be liable to Attachment: And he shall also, if a Plaintiff, be liable to have proceedings in the Suit stayed until compliance; and if a Defendant, to have his defence (if any) struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not filed a Memorandum of Dispute or Statement of Defence: And the Court may order accordingly.

105.—Where a party has filed Interrogatories, and has just reason to believe that the party interrogated means to abscond before answering, the Court may, on the ex parte application of the party interrogating, order an Attachment to issue against him, returnable at such time as the Court shall direct.

106.—Where a party is brought up in custody for want of an Answer to Interrogatories, and makes oath in Court that he is unable, by reason of poverty, to employ a Solicitor to put in such Answer, the Court, if satisfied as to the truth of that allegation, may assign a Solicitor and Counsel for such party to enable him to put in an Answer.

107.—Where a party, in contempt for want of Answer or Discovery, obtains upon filing an Answer or Affidavit of discovery the common Order to be discharged as to his contempt, on payment or tender of the costs thereof; or where the party obtaining the Attachment accepts the costs without Order, it shall not be necessary, in case the Answer or Affidavit is insufficient, to recommence the process of contempt, but the party obtaining the Attachment may take up the process at the point to which he had before proceeded.

PROCEEDINGS BETWEEN DEFENCE AND HEARING.

I.—DISMISSING SUIT FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION. II.—PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS. III.—PRELIMINARY ACCOUNTS AND INQUIRIES. IV.—MOTION FOR DECREE. V.—JOINING ISSUE—REPLICATION. VI.—SETTING DOWN SUIT FOR HEARING.

I.—DISMISSING SUIT FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

108.—A Defendant may upon notice move the Court that the Suit be dismissed with costs for want of prosecution, and the Court may order accordingly:—

- (a) Where a Plaintiff does not within the time fixed by these Rules, or such further time as the Court may order, file a Replication or set down the Suit to be heard on a Motion for a Decree, or obtain and serve an Order for leave to amend the Statement of Claim.
- (b) Where a Plaintiff, having undertaken to reply to a Plea by such Defendant to the whole Statement of Claim, does not file his Replication within seven days after the date of his undertaking.
- (c) Where a Plaintiff having replied, does not set down the Suit for hearing within seven days after filing such Replication
- (d) Where a plaintiff has failed to comply with an Order to answer Interrogatories for twenty-eight days after proceedings have been stayed under Rule 104.

109.—In all cases not provided for by the foregoing Rules, any Defendant may move to dismiss a Suit for want of prosecution where the Plaintiff has not within a reasonable time after the time fixed by these Rules or by an Order of the Court, taken such step as may be then necessary to be taken for prosecuting the Suit.

110.—Upon any application to dismiss a Suit for want of prosecution, the Court may make an Order to that effect, or such other Order, or may impose such terms, as may appear just and reasonable.

II.—PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS.

111.—Any party may, without filing any Affidavit, apply to the Court for an Order directing any other party to the Suit to make discovery on oath of all the Documents which are, or have been, in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in the Suit.

112.—The party against whom such an Order has been made shall make an Affidavit specifying the Documents which he has or has had in his possession or power, and also which, if any, of such Documents he objects to produce; and it shall be in the form set out in Schedule D to these Rules, with such variations as circumstances may require.

III.—INQUIRIES AND ACCOUNTS.

113.—The Court may at any stage of the proceedings in a Suit or Matter direct any necessary inquiries or accounts to be made or taken—notwithstanding that there is some special or further relief sought for, or some special issue to be tried, as to which it may be proper that the Suit or Matter should proceed in the ordinary manner. And the Court may, if it shall so think fit, restrain the accounting party from the exercise of any remedy for enforcing payment of any debt pending such account or inquiry.

IV.—MOTION FOR DECREE.

114.—Fourteen days' Notice shall be given to the Defendant of any Motion for a Decree or Decretal Order under Section 28 of the "Equity Act of 1880."

115.—All Affidavits to be used in support of such Motion shall be filed before the service of such Notice, and a list of such Affidavits shall be set forth at the foot of such Notice.

116.—The Defendant, within twelve days after service of such Notice, shall file his Affidavits in answer, and deliver to the Plaintiff a list thereof.

117.—Within four days after the expiration of such twelve days, or other period to which the time for filing the Defendant's Affidavits has been enlarged, the Plaintiff shall file his Affidavits in reply, and he shall deliver to the Defendant a list thereof.

118.—No further evidence on either side shall be used upon such Motion for a Decree or Decretal Order without leave or direction of the Court.

119.—Every Notice of Motion for a Decree or Decretal Order shall be entered eight days before such Motion in the Suit Book with the Suits.

V.—ISSUE AND REPLICATION.

120.—Every Suit shall be put at Issue within eight days after the time limited for the Defendant, or all the Defendants, to file his or their Statement or Statements of Defence shall have expired, or within such further time as the Court may allow.

121.—The Suit shall be deemed to be at Issue by the Plaintiff filing a Replication in the following form, that is to say,—The Plaintiff in this suit hereby joins issue with the Defendant A.B. [any Defendant who has filed a Memorandum disputing the Plaintiff's claim]. And will hear the Suit on Statement of Claim and Appearance against the Defendant C.D. [any Defendant who has not by his Memorandum (if any) disputed the Plaintiff's]. And only one Replication shall be filed in a Suit unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

VI.—SETTLING ISSUES OF FACT.

122.—Where in any Suit it appears that the pleadings do not sufficiently define the Issues of fact in dispute between the parties, and it shall be deemed desirable that they should be so defined, the Court may on the application of any party or of its own Motion after Replication settle such Issues.

VII.—SETTING DOWN SUIT FOR HEARING.

123.—Within seven days after Replication, the Plaintiff shall set down the Suit for hearing on some day not earlier than the fourteenth nor later than the twenty-eighth day after so setting down the Suit; and the Plaintiff shall forthwith serve notice of the Suit being so fixed for hearing upon all the Defendants thereto.

124.—If the Plaintiff does not set down the Suit for hearing within seven days after Replication, any Defendant may set down the Suit for hearing within like periods as hereinbefore provided for setting down by the Plaintiff, and shall forthwith serve on the Plaintiff and the other Defendants notice thereof.

HEARING—EVIDENCE.

I.—GENERALLY. II.—EVIDENCE BY COMMISSION. III.—TRIAL BY JURY.

I.—GENERALLY.

125.—Suits which are to be treated as Consent Matters or as Short Matters, or in which the Defendant ought to attend in Court in pursuance of the Indorsement on the Statement of Claim, shall be set down for hearing on such days as the Court may specially appoint for the hearing of such matters and Suits.

126.—If the parties to any Suit have agreed upon the terms of the Decree to be asked from the Court, the Suit may come on to be heard on any day after it has been set down that may be appointed for hearing Consent Matters.

127.—Any Suit may, by the consent of the parties thereto, or by Order made with notice in Chambers, on Summons, come on to be heard as a Short Matter upon any day after it has been set down that may be appointed for hearing such matters, or that the parties may agree upon and the Court may order.

128.—When any Suit is called on, all the Pleadings shall be read, and the Evidence on both sides, documentary and oral, shall be taken, including Evidence in reply; and when the Evidence is closed, a Memorandum to that effect shall be signed by the Judge and filed: And the hearing may be then proceeded with at once, or may be adjourned to a future day, as the Court shall direct.

129.—If the Plaintiff refers to the Statement of Defence or any part of it, as Evidence in support of his case, the Judge shall take a note of such reference; and the Plaintiff shall not enter into evidence as to such matters as are established by such reference; and if he enters into evidence as to them he will render himself liable to pay the costs thereof.

130.—The Court or any party may, before or at any time during the hearing of a Suit, require the evidence or judgment to be taken down by a Shorthand-writer, who shall be duly sworn; but it shall not be necessary for the Witnesses to sign the notes of their evidence: And the Court may make such order as it shall think fit for the costs of employing such Shorthand-writer. The Judge's notes, or the notes of such Shorthand-writer, shall for all the purposes of the Suit, be prima facie proof of the evidence of the deposition of Witnesses.

II.—EVIDENCE BY COMMISSION.

131.—Where any party has obtained a Commission for the examination of Witnesses, he shall, unless the Court otherwise direct, cause Notice of the time and place of such examination to be served on the parties entitled to notice, seven days at least before the day of examination; and every such Commission shall be returnable on some day to be fixed in each case by the Court, and shall, with the examination of witnesses under the same, be returned to the Equity Office in like manner as Statements of Defence taken in the country are returnable.

III.—TRIAL BY JURY.

132.—Any question of fact, or any question of the amount of Damages directed to be tried by a Jury, shall be reduced into writing in the form set forth in Schedule E to these Rules, and shall be called the "Record for Trial," and shall be filed in the Equity Office within two days after such Order shall have been made, and within seven days after such filing shall be entered for trial at such time and place, and in such manner as the Court shall direct.

133.—When the Court shall order any question of fact, or any question of the amount of Damages, to be tried by a Jury, the course of proceeding shall be in all respects in accordance with the law and practice as to trials of Issues and Assessments of Damages at Common Law.

134.—The notice of any application for a new trial shall be given within eight days after the Verdict or finding of the Jury shall have been filed, or within such other time as the Court may direct.

135.—Where the Court shall decree Damages to any person, and shall order the amount of such Damages to be assessed by a Jury before any Judge of the Supreme Court, or in any Circuit Court, the person to whom such Damages shall be decreed shall be at liberty to sue out from the Equity Office a Writ of Inquiry of Damages.

136.—The Rules now in force in the Courts of Common Law relative to Writs of Inquiry and Trials shall be applicable to Writs of Inquiry to be issued by virtue of the last preceding Rule.

137.—The Writ of Inquiry, together with the return thereto of the Verdict or Inquisition, shall within seven days after such return be filed at the Equity Office, or within such other time as the Court shall allow.

138.—Any application to set aside the Verdict or Inquisition on any such Writ of Inquiry, and to direct a new Inquiry, shall be made within eight days after the finding thereof, or within such other time as the Court shall allow.

139.—The Defendant, or other the person against whom Damages shall have been decreed, may take out a Summons before any Judge at Chambers for liberty to pay into Court a sum of money in respect of such damages; and in case such liberty shall be given, and a sum of money shall be paid into Court accordingly, and in the event of a larger sum for Damages not being awarded than the amount so paid into Court, the Plaintiff, or person seeking such Damages, shall pay the costs of the Assessment of such Damages, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

140.—On the day appointed for any trial, and previously to the commencement thereof, a copy of the Record for Trial, together with a copy of the Statement of Claim, Statement of Defence, and other pleadings, shall be left with the Judge before whom such trial is appointed to be had, by the person at whose instance the same may have been entered for trial.

141.—The Verdict or finding of the Jury, together with the names of the Jurors who were sworn, shall be indorsed by the Associate of the Judge before whom the trial has taken place on the Record for Trial, and shall be signed by him and then returned to the Equity Office to be filed. And the Judge may certify whether he is satisfied or otherwise with such Verdict or finding of the Jury.

AMENDMENT

159.—No Decree or Order shall be drawn up without the leave of the Court, after six months from when it shall have been pronounced.

160.—In drawing up any Decree or Order it shall not be necessary to recite any pleading or document in full, but a short reference thereto shall be sufficient, unless the Court or Master shall otherwise direct.

161.—Where any sums of money or any securities or other effects belonging to the suitors of the Court are directed to be paid into or deposited in Court, in any Suit or Matter, or to be paid out or invested; or where any stocks, funds, shares or moneys are directed to be transferred into the name and with the privity of the Master, or to be transferred out of Court, carried over, or delivered out,—the exact sum of money, the amount of the stocks, funds, shares, or securities, and the particulars of the effects so to be paid in, transferred, or deposited, or so to be paid out, invested, transferred out, carried over, or delivered out, shall be ascertained and specified and expressed in the Decree or Order in words written at length; except in the case of residues or shares of residues remaining after a portion directed to be applied for particular purposes, the amount of which cannot be ascertained at the time of making the Decree or Order; in which cases the amount of such residues or shares of residues shall be verified by Affidavit, without any direction for that purpose in the Decree or Order, unless such residues or shares shall be certified by the Master, who shall be at liberty to certify the same without a direction for that purpose in such Decree or Order.

162.—Where a residue of stocks, funds, shares, or securities, or moneys is directed by any Decree or Order to be operated upon by the Master, the exact amount of such residue, where the same can be done, shall, on settlement of the Minutes, be verified by Affidavit or otherwise, and shall be expressed and specified in the Decree or Order in words at length, so that the amount of such residue may appear on the face of the Decree or Order.

163.—All persons, whether representatives or others, who are directed to pay into or deposit in Court any sum of money, securities, or other effects, with the privity of the Master, or to transfer any stocks, funds, shares, or moneys, into his name and with his privity; and all persons, whether representatives or others, to whom any sums of money, stocks, funds, shares, securities, or other effects are directed to be paid out, transferred, carried over, or delivered out, shall, except in the case of bodies corporate, companies, or societies, be described by name in the Decree or Order, and not merely as Plaintiffs or Petitioners or the like, unless such payments, transfers, carryings over, or deliveries are directed to be made to or by representatives, and no probate or letters of administration shall have been taken out at the time of making such Decree or Order; and the Christian names and surnames or titles of honor of all such persons, and the titles of all such bodies corporate, companies, and societies shall be written at length, and without abbreviation in such Decrees or Orders.

164.—In all Decrees or Orders directing the payment of interest, dividends, annuities, or other periodical payments, the time when the first of such payments, and when all subsequent periodical payments, whether quarterly, half-yearly, yearly, or otherwise, shall be made, shall be specified and expressed in words at length; and where the same has not been so specified and expressed then the respective payments shall be made yearly.

165.—Where any stocks, funds, shares, securities standing in the name of the Master in trust, in or to the credit of any Suit, Matter, or Account, or any part thereof, are or is directed to be divided and transferred or delivered out of Court to or among several persons, or to be carried over to several separate accounts, and where any money is directed to be paid out to or among several persons, or carried over to several separate accounts, the Master shall be at liberty, where it shall appear to him to be more convenient so to do, to state the respective amounts of such stocks, funds, shares, securities, or money to be so transferred, paid, or carried over, in a Schedule at the foot of the Decree or Order, and it shall be sufficient to refer to such Schedule in the mandatory part of the Decree or Order; but in every such case the total amount of the stocks, funds, shares, securities, or money respectively to be dealt with in such Schedule, shall be stated in words at length in the mandatory part of the Decree or Order.

166.—Where, upon or after the death of any person to whom the interest or dividends of any stock funds, shares, securities, or moneys standing in the name of the Master in trust, in or to the credit of any Suit, Matter, or Account, or any part of such interest or dividends, were or was payable for life, an Order is made for the sale, transfer, or delivery or payment of such stocks, funds, shares, securities, or moneys, or for the payment of the interest or dividends to accrue due thereon subsequently to the death of such person, the same Order shall also provide for the payment to the legal personal representatives of such person of such proportion of the interest or dividends on such stocks, funds, shares, securities, or moneys as shall have accrued between the last period of payment and the day of his death, unless the Court shall be of opinion that such legal personal representatives are not entitled thereto, or shall for any other reason otherwise direct.

167.—Every Decree or Order made in any Suit or Matter requiring any person to do an act thereby ordered shall state the time or the time after service of the Decree or Order within which the act is to be done; and upon the copy of the Decree or Order which shall be served upon the person required to obey the same, there shall be indorsed a Memorandum in the words or to the effect following, viz.:—“If you the within-named A. B. neglect to obey this Decree (or Order) by the time therein limited, you will be liable to be arrested under a Writ of Attachment issued out of the Supreme Court, and also be liable to have your estate sequestrated for the purpose of compelling you to obey the same Decree (or Order).” And in any case where money only has to be paid to any person, then the Memorandum shall be to the effect following:—“If you the within-named A. B. neglect to obey this Decree (or Order) by the time therein limited, a Writ of Fieri Facias may be issued against you to levy upon your goods and chattels, and lands and tenements, and also you will be liable to have your estate sequestrated for the purpose of compelling you to obey the same Decree (or Order).”

168.—Where a Defendant, at the hearing, objects that a Suit is defective for want of parties, and has not, by Plea or Statement of Defence, taken the objection, and therein specified by name or description the parties to whom the objection applies, the Court, if it shall think fit, may add the parties upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be deemed just, or may make a Decree saving the rights of such parties.

169.—If the Plaintiff, after the Suit is set down to be heard, causes the Statement of Claim to be dismissed on his own application, or if the Suit is called on to be tried or heard in Court and the Plaintiff makes default, and by reason thereof the Statement of Claim is dismissed, such dismissal, unless the Court shall otherwise direct, shall be equivalent to a dismissal on the merits, and may be pleaded in bar to another Suit for the same matter.

170.—Every Decree or Order for an account of the Estate of a Testator, or Intestate, shall unless the Court shall otherwise direct, contain a direction for an inquiry as to what parts (if any) of such Estate are outstanding or undisposed of.

171.—Notice of a Decree or Order served pursuant to the 6th rule of the 7th section of the "Equity Act of 1880" shall be entitled in the Suit, and there shall be indorsed a Memorandum in the form or to the effect following, that is to say:—"Take notice, that from the time of the service of this notice, you [or, as the case may be, the infant, or person of unsound mind] will be bound by the proceedings in the above Suit in the same manner as if you [or the said infant or person of unsound mind] had been originally made a party to the Suit; and that you [or the said infant or person of unsound mind] may, by an Order of course, have liberty to attend the proceedings under the within-mentioned Decree [or Order]; and that you [or the said infant or person of unsound mind] may, within one month after the service of this notice, apply to the Court to add to the Decree or Order."

172.—A Memorandum of the service upon any person of notice of the Decree in any Suit, under the 6th rule of the same section, shall be entered in the Equity Office upon due proof by Affidavit of such service.

173.—The time within which a party served with notice of a Decree under the 6th rule of the same section, may apply to the Court to add to the Decree, shall be one month after such service, unless the Court shall extend the time or shall otherwise direct.

174.—Clerical mistakes in Decrees or Orders, or errors arising from any accidental slip or omission, may at any time be corrected upon Summons in Chambers.

175.—Where any person who has obtained any Decree or Order upon condition, does not perform or comply with such condition, he shall be considered to have waived or abandoned such Decree or Order, so far as the same is beneficial to himself; and any other person interested in the matter may, on breach or non-performance of the condition, take either such proceedings as the Decree or Order may in such case warrant, or such proceedings as might have been taken if no such Decree or Order had been made, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

PROCESS TO ENFORCE DECREES AND ORDERS.

176.—No Writ of Attachment, Sequestration, or Assistance, shall be issued without special Order, to be obtained on motion with Affidavit of the circumstances of the case; but it shall not be necessary to serve the person against whom such Writ is sought to be issued with notice of the motion.

177.—If any party directed by an Order or Decree to pay money (whether money only, or costs only, or money with costs) shall, after due service of such Order or Decree, neglect to pay the same as thereby directed, the party prosecuting such Order or Decree shall, at the expiration of the time limited for the performance thereof, be entitled to proceed by Writ of Fieri Facias for the recovery of the money thereby payable in the manner directed by the Act of 5 Victoria, No. 9, section 43: Provided nevertheless, that an Attachment may issue when the Decree or Order directs the payment of any money into Court.

178.—In respect to the payment of costs, when the amount of such costs shall have been duly taxed and certified, and payment thereof demanded from the party by whom payable or his Solicitor, execution shall be issued under a Writ of Fieri Facias upon an Affidavit of due demand from the party by whom the same is payable or his Solicitor.

179.—Every person, not being a party in the Suit, who shall have obtained an Order, or in whose favour any Order shall have been made, shall be entitled to enforce obedience to such Order by the same process as if he were a party to the Suit; and every person, not being a party in the Suit, against whom obedience to any Order may be enforced, shall be liable to the same process for disobedience to such Order as if he were a party in the Suit.

180.—When any party, who by any Order or Decree, is ordered to deliver possession of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments within a limited time, shall, after due service of such Decree or Order, refuse or neglect to obey the same, the party prosecuting such Order or Decree shall (on proof made of demand and refusal to obey the same) be entitled to a Writ of Assistance or of Habere Facias.

181.—Where any party who by any Order or Decree is ordered, within a limited time, to do some act other than to pay money or deliver possession of lands, tenements, and hereditaments, shall, after due service of such Order or Decree, refuse or neglect to obey the same, according to the exigency thereof, the party prosecuting such Order or Decree shall, at the expiration of the time so limited, be entitled to a Writ of Attachment or to a Writ for the delivery of any property other than money, lands, tenements, and hereditaments which shall have been decreed or ordered to be delivered, or a Writ of Sequestration, as the Court may in each case deem to be just.

182.—Upon the Sheriff's return of non est inventus to an Attachment, the party suing out the same, upon Affidavit that due diligence has been used in endeavouring to apprehend the person, and stating the facts of such endeavour, shall be entitled to a Writ of Sequestration.

APPEALS.

183.—Any person intending to appeal to the Full Court from any Decree or Order under section 70 of the "Equity Act of 1880," shall, within fourteen days next after the pronouncing of the same, or within such extended time as the Court below may have allowed, enter and file in the Equity Office a Notice of Appeal, signed by two Counsel, and setting forth therein the grounds and reasons of and for such Appeal; which notice shall be in the form similar to the form in Schedule F to these Rules; and a copy of such Notice of Appeal shall, within ten days next after filing the same, or within such extended time as the Court below shall allow, be delivered to each of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and shall within the like time be served upon all parties intended to be served therewith, or their Solicitors.

184.—The time within which a Respondent shall give notice that he intends upon the hearing of the Appeal to contend that the decision of the Court below should be varied or altered shall be fourteen days from service of the Appellant's Notice of Appeal; and such Notice shall be signed by two Counsel, and shall specially set forth the grounds and reasons for contending that the decision should be varied or altered.

185.—Every Appeal shall hereafter be set down for the first day for the hearing of Appeals in Equity which shall happen next after the making the deposit or giving the security required, unless the Court shall otherwise order: And every Appeal not so entered shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

REFERENCES, INQUIRIES, AND ACCOUNTS.

186.—The Court may for the purpose of obtaining the assistance of Conveyancing Counsel, Accountants, Merchants, Engineers, Actuaries, or other Scientific persons, under section 46 of the "Equity Act of 1880," refer to any such persons any matter at issue, or arising in the Suit for a Report thereon, and may at the time of such reference and from time to time give such directions in relation thereto, as to the Court may seem necessary.

187.—In case of reference to the Master he shall enter in a book the names and title of every Suit or Matter referred to him, and the date and description of every step taken before him, and the attendance or non-attendance of the several parties on each of such steps, so that such book may exhibit, at one view, the whole course of proceeding which is had before him in each particular Suit or Matter. And in case of reference to the Chief Clerk, a similar book shall be kept and entered up by him.

188.—Proceedings on references to the Master shall be by Summons signed by him, instead of by Warrant, and such Summons may be in the form set forth in Schedule G to these Rules.

189.—At the time when any Summons or Appointment is obtained, an entry thereof shall be made in a book called the "Summons and Appointment Book," stating the date on which the Summons is issued or Appointment made, the name of the Suit or Matter, and by what party, and shortly for what purpose, such Summons or Appointment is obtained.

190.—A list of all matters to be heard, and business to be transacted before the Master, in pursuance of such Summons or Appointment, shall be made out and kept exhibited in the office.

191.—Where a reference has been made by the Court to the Master or Chief Clerk to settle any Decree or Order, the Master or Chief Clerk shall direct what proceedings shall be taken thereunder, and the Decree or Order so settled shall be submitted to the Court for approval, and the Court shall thereupon direct what proceedings thereunder shall be taken before the Court, and what before the Master or Chief Clerk, but subject to the right for the suitor to bring any particular point before the Court.

192.—In directing what proceedings shall be taken under any Decree or Order, the Court or Master may direct what parties are entitled to attend future proceedings, the necessary advertisements, and which of the several proceedings may be properly going on pari passu, and the manner in which inquiries and accounts are to be prosecuted, and the evidence to be adduced in support thereof; and if the Court or Master shall think it expedient so to do, a certain time or certain times shall be fixed within which the parties are to take any proceedings, and all such directions may afterwards be added to or varied from time to time.

193.—Where the party actually prosecuting a Decree or Order does not proceed with due diligence, then the Court or Master may, upon the application of any other party interested, either as a party to the suit, or as one who has come in and established his claim under the Decree or Order, commit to him the further prosecution of the said Decree or Order, and from thenceforth the party making default shall not be at liberty to attend as prosecutor of the said Decree or Order.

194.—Where, by any Decree or Order of the Court, books, papers, or writings are directed to be produced before the Master for the purposes of such Decree or Order, it shall be in the discretion of the Master to determine what books, papers, or writings are to be produced, and when and for how long they are to be left in the Office; or, in case he shall not deem it necessary that such books, papers, or writings should be left in the Office, then he may give directions for the inspection thereof by the parties requiring the same, at such time and in such manner as he shall deem expedient.

195.—No more than one Summons shall be taken out, for the time during which the Master shall continue or adjourn the proceedings under such Summons.

196.—Every Summons before the Master shall be considered peremptory, and in case the Master shall not be attended by the Solicitor, or a competent person on behalf of the Solicitor of any party, the Master shall in such case disallow the usual fee for the Solicitor's attendance, he shall mark such determination in his book.

197.—Where some, or one, but not all the parties, shall attend the Master at an appointed time, whether the same be fixed by the Master personally, or upon Summons, then the Master shall be at liberty to proceed ex parte, if he thinks it proper, considering the nature of the case, so to do.

198.—Where the Master has proceeded ex parte, such proceeding shall not be reviewed by him unless he shall, upon special application made to him for that purpose by the party who was absent, be satisfied that the party was not guilty of wilful delay or negligence.

199.—Upon any application made by any person to the Court in the course of a Reference, the Master, if required by the person making the application, shall, in as short a manner as he conveniently can, certify to the Court the several proceedings which shall have been had in the Office in the same Suit or Matter, and the dates thereof.

200.—Unless ordered by the Court, no Summons to review before the Master any proceedings taken before him shall be allowed, except by his permission, upon special grounds.

201.—All Affidavits and evidence, which have been previously made or taken and read in Court upon any proceeding in a Suit or Matter, may be used before the Master in all references to and proceedings before him; and, where any other or further evidence may be required, it shall be lawful for the Master to take such evidence as he shall think fit: Provided that, if it shall be thought necessary to examine a witness who has given evidence at the Hearing as to matters upon which he shall have been examined before, then in case of objection an Order of the Court shall be obtained for that purpose.

202.—Every Summons or Appointment to proceed upon any matter before the Master, shall be issued and served two clear days before the time fixed; and upon any proceeding whereon evidence is to be given, the Master shall be at liberty to direct, from time to time, that evidence shall be taken separately upon any selected point or points, and the evidence shall be taken accordingly.

203.—All proceedings on which the Master's decision shall have to be indorsed, shall be left in the Office before taking evidence thereon; but they shall not be filed until his decision shall have been indorsed thereon: And no such matters shall be withdrawn, added to, or altered, without his authority, or under an Order of Court, or by consent.

204.—The Master shall be at liberty to direct that service of any Summons, Document, or other matter, formerly used to be served on any person, shall be dispensed with.

205.—No Affidavit shall ordinarily be made of any Summons, Appointment, Document, or other matter requiring service thereof, to be shown to the Master; but the Master may take proof thereof when requisite vivá voce or by Affidavit; and where such proof shall have been required, the Master shall make and file with the proceedings a note, stating that the party has given or failed to give such proof, as the case may be.

206.—In cases where it shall be necessary for any party to go into evidence subsequently to the Hearing, or on any Inquiry Account, or Reference before the Court or Master, such evidence shall be taken, proceeded with, and closed, under the direction of the Court or Master, in the same manner (as nearly as may be) as upon an Issue of fact at Common Law, or in such other manner as the Court may in any case specially direct.

207.—If any party wishes to complain of any matter introduced into any state of facts, Affidavit, or other Proceeding before the Master, on the ground that it is scandalous or irrelevant, or that any examination is insufficient, he shall be at liberty, without any order of reference by the Court, to apply to the Master to examine such matter, and the Master shall have authority to expunge any scandalous or irrelevant matter, and to direct any further examination, as he shall see fit.

208.—After the evidence shall have been closed, the Master shall indorse on the state of facts, account, or other matter whereon evidence shall have been given, his decision thereon; and after such indorsement, no further evidence shall be taken without an order of Court, or by consent; but he shall be at liberty, nevertheless, to alter his decision, and the indorsement thereof, at any time before signing his Certificate or Report.

209.—Whenever in any proceeding before the Master, the same Solicitor is employed for two or more parties, the Master may, at his discretion, require that any of the said parties shall be represented before him by a distinct Solicitor, and may refuse to proceed until such party is so represented.

210.—All references to the Master to appoint Guardians, new Trustees, or Receivers shall be for appointment by the Master in the first instance, unless the Court shall otherwise order; and a Certificate by him of such appointment shall be filed in the Equity Office.

211.—In order to prevent inconvenient delays the Master may allow any Decree, Order, Certificate, Report, or other Document to be engrossed or copied by the Solicitor requiring the same, and in such cases the Solicitor shall be allowed four-pence per folio for such engrossment or copy, and no office fee shall be payable, except, in case of office copies being obtained, the fee payable for certifying the same.

ACCOUNT.

212.—All accounting parties shall bring in their accounts, verified by Affidavit, in the form of debtor and creditor, and the items on each side are to be numbered consecutively; and any party not satisfied with the account so brought in shall be at liberty to examine the accounting party vivá voce, or upon interrogatories, as the Master shall direct: Provided that in taking any account directed by any Decree or Order, all just allowances shall be made, without any direction for that purpose, in such Decree or Order.

213.—It shall not be necessary in any Charge upon the debtor and creditor account to set forth all the items of receipt, but only the further items with which the accounting party is sought to be charged: No formal Discharge by the accounting party shall be required, but the payments set forth in his debtor and creditor account shall be treated as his Discharge, and he shall be bound to vouch his payments and establish their propriety, if disputed, in the same manner in all respects as if they had been included in a Discharge.

ADMINISTRATION.

214.—In Suits wherein creditors are permitted or required to come in and prove their debts before the Master, no creditor (other than a party to the suit) shall be entitled to attend on any matter not connected with the proof of his own debt, except by direction of the Master or Order of the Court. Any creditor so proving shall be entitled to the costs of establishing his debt, and the sum to be allowed for such costs shall be fixed by the Master without taxation, at the time the Master allows the debt of such creditor, unless the Master shall think that such costs ought to be taxed in the regular mode. And in all such suits the Master may (if he shall think fit) where the proof is not opposed, or for a sum under £10, allow the debt on the Affidavit of the claimant alone, and also, if he shall think fit, without any claim in writing having been brought in: Provided that in such last-mentioned case the allowance or disallowance of the debt shall be indorsed on such Affidavit.

215.—Where a Decree or Order is made directing an account of debts, claims, or liabilities, or an inquiry for next of kin or other unascertained persons, the Master shall cause advertisements for the same to be inserted in the Government Gazette, and other newspapers, as he may think fit, and fix a peremptory day for that purpose; and, unless otherwise ordered, all persons who do not come in and prove their claims within the time which may be fixed for that purpose by advertisement, shall be excluded from the benefit of the Decree or Order.

216.—Where a Decree or Order is made, directing an account of the debts of a deceased person, interest shall, unless otherwise ordered, be computed on such debts, as to such of them as carry interest, after the rate they respectively carry, and as to all others, after the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, unless the Court shall otherwise order, from the date of the Decree or Order.

217.—A creditor whose debt does not carry interest, who comes in and establishes the same under a Decree or Order shall be entitled to interest upon his debt, at the rate aforesaid, from the date of the Decree or Order, out of any assets which may remain, after satisfying the costs of the suit, the debts established, and the interest on such debts as by law carry interest.

218.—Where a Decree or Order is made, directing an account of legacies, interest shall be computed on such legacies, after the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, from the end of one year after the testator's death, unless the Court shall otherwise order; or unless any other time of payment or rate of interest is directed by the Will, and in that case according to the Will.

CERTIFICATE OR REPORT.

219.—The Certificate or Report of the Master upon or in relation to any matter referred to him may be in the form set forth in Schedule H to these Rules, with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require; and, when prepared and settled, it shall be transcribed by the Solicitor prosecuting the

the proceedings, in such form and within such time as the Master shall require, and shall then be signed by the Master at an adjournment to be made for that purpose. But where, from the nature of the case, the Certificate or Report can be drawn and copied in the Master's Office whilst the parties are present before the Master, the same shall be then completed and signed by him without any adjournment.

220.—No Certificate or Report to be made by the Master shall, unless the special circumstances of the case so require, set out the Decree or Order, or any Documents or Evidence or reasons; but shall refer to the Decree or Order, Documents, and Evidence, or particular paragraphs thereof, so that it may appear thereby to the Court upon what the result stated in such Report or Certificate is founded.

221.—The Master shall be at liberty, in all cases, to state special circumstances in his Certificate or Report.

222.—In all matters referred to him, the Master shall be at liberty, upon the application of any party interested, or without such application, to make a separate Certificate, or Report, from time to time as to him shall seem expedient, the costs of such separate Certificate, or Report to be in the discretion of the Court.

223.—Where the Master shall make a separate Certificate or Report of debts or legacies, he shall be at liberty to certify, as he thinks fit, with respect to the state of the assets; and every person interested shall thereupon be at liberty to apply to the Court, as he shall be advised.

224.—The time within which any party is to be at liberty to take the opinion of the Court upon any proceeding which shall have been concluded, but as to which the Certificate or Report of the Master shall not have been adopted by the Court shall be four clear days after the same shall have been signed by the Master.

225.—Any party desiring to take the opinion of the Court, as mentioned in the last preceding Rule, shall, within four clear days after the Certificate or Report shall have been signed by the Master, obtain a Summons for such purpose.

226.—At the expiration of four clear days after the Certificate or Report shall have been signed by the Master, if no party has in the meantime obtained a Summons to take the opinion of the Court thereon, the Master shall submit the Certificate to the Court for approval, and the Judge may thereupon, if he approve the same, testify his adoption thereof, as follows:—

“Approved this      day of                      ” and thereupon the Certificate or Report shall be filed.

227.—The time within which an application may be made, by Summons or Motion, to discharge or vary any Certificate which has been signed and adopted by the Judge in Chambers, shall be eight clear days after the filing of such Certificate.

228.—In cases where any computation of interest, or the apportionment of any ascertained fund, is directed by the Court to be made and acted upon, it may be acted upon after four clear days from the filing of the Report or Certificate thereof.

CONVEYANCE—SETTLING OF.

229.—When the Master is ordered to settle any Conveyance, in case the parties differ about the same, a statement in writing of the required alterations shall be served, by the party objecting to the draft, on the party by whom the same was prepared, within eight days after the service of notice of leaving such draft with the Master.

COSTS.

230.—Whenever it shall appear to the Master that the costs, or part of the costs, of any attendance, or of any proof before him, or costs incurred through any non-attendance or review, ought not to abide the general event of the reference to him, but that it is just and reasonable that the same should be paid specially by any party or claimant, it shall be lawful for him, in his discretion, to award the payment of such costs, or part thereof, or a fixed sum in lieu of such costs, as, and by whom, he shall in that behalf direct.

SALE BY COURT.

231.—Where an Order is made directing any property to be sold, the same shall, unless otherwise ordered, be sold with the approbation of the Master, to the best purchaser that can be got for the same, to be allowed by him; and all proper parties are to join therein as the Master shall direct.

232.—When any property is ordered to be sold by, or by the direction of, the Master, he shall by Memorandum in writing, without any proposal being laid before him, appoint an auctioneer to sell such property, who shall proceed to the sale in the usual manner, and be paid a percentage or fixed stated sum, to be fixed by the Master at the time of such appointment; and such auctioneer shall immediately after he shall have received any deposit, pay over the same to the Master to the credit of the Suit in which the Order was made, and shall state what he has done in respect of the sale, upon Affidavit to be filed in the Office.

233.—No Order shall be necessary for allowing any party to the record to bid at such sale, if he would be allowed, by law, to bid at the same sale in case it had not been under an Order of Court.

RECEIVERS.

234.—Unless otherwise ordered, where an Order is made appointing a Receiver, the person to be appointed shall first give security, to be allowed by the Master, and to be taken before himself or, if necessary, before a Commissioner in the country, duly to account for the rents and profits for the receipt of which he is appointed, at such periods as the Court or Master shall appoint, and to pay the same as the Court shall direct, or, as the case may be, to be answerable for what he shall receive in respect of the personal estate for the getting in and collection of which he is to be appointed, and to account for and pay the same as the Court shall direct. And the person so to be appointed shall be allowed by the Court a proper salary or commission for his care and pains in receiving such rents and profits, or, as the case may be, shall have an allowance made to him in respect of his managing and collecting such estate.

235.—When a Receiver shall have been appointed, the Master shall fix the days upon which the Receiver shall (annually or at longer or shorter periods) leave and pass his accounts, and shall also afterwards be at liberty to extend or diminish the same, and on the passing of such accounts the Master shall fix the days upon which such Receiver shall pay such sums as shall be found due and shall be directed to be paid. And with respect to such Receivers as shall neglect to leave and pass their accounts, and pay the balances thereof at the times so to be fixed for that purpose as aforesaid, the Master shall, from time to time, when their subsequent accounts are produced to be examined and passed, not only disallow the salaries or commissions therein claimed by such Receivers, but also charge them with interest after the rate of £8 per cent. per annum upon the balances so neglected to be paid by them during the time the same shall appear to have remained in the hands of such Receivers.

236.—Receivers of rents and profits of lands, now or hereafter appointed, shall, when the yearly value of any such land shall not exceed one hundred pounds, have power to let the land, with the approval of the Master: Provided that any such letting shall be void if the Court shall make an Order to that effect at any time before the expiration of one month.

237.—When the value shall not exceed the rate of fifty pounds yearly, Receivers shall have power to let the land from year to year, or for a less period, without the approbation of the Master, previously signified: Provided that every such case shall be subject to the Master's control as to future lettings, in case of any complaint made to him.

238.—In no case within either of the two last preceding rules shall any Certificate or Report to the Court be made of any letting: Provided that the Master may in all cases direct such notices to be given of any proceeding under these rules as he may think fit.

232.—Receivers may, without the previous direction of the Master, lay out in repairing the property, when necessary, any sum not exceeding fifty pounds in one year, and the Master in passing their accounts shall allow the same, if he shall be of opinion that it has been expended for the benefit of the persons interested in the property.

STOP ORDERS.

243.—Service of all writs, notices, summonses, orders, documents, and other proceedings not requiring personal service, shall, unless otherwise ordered, be made before half-past 4 o'clock in the afternoon, except on Saturday, when it shall be made before 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

244.—Where the Master is authorised to fix the time for doing any act, he may enlarge or abridge such time on sufficient cause shown.

MODE OF COMPUTING TIME.

245.—Where any time from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for doing any act or taking any proceeding, and such time is not limited by hours the computations of such time shall not include the day of such date or of the happening of such event, but shall commence at the beginning of the next following day, and the act or proceeding shall be done or taken at the latest on the last day of such time according to such computation.

246.—Where the time for doing any act, or taking any proceeding, is limited by months, such time shall be taken to be calendar months.

247.—Where any limited time less than eight days from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for doing any act, or taking any proceedings, Sundays and other days on which the offices are closed shall not be reckoned in the computation of such limited time.

248.—Where the time for doing any act, or taking any proceeding expires on a Sunday, or other day on which the office in which the act is required to be done or the proceeding to be taken is closed, and by reason thereof such act or proceeding cannot be done or taken on that day, such act or proceeding shall, so far as regards the time of doing or taking the same, be held to be duly done or taken if done or taken on the day on which such office shall next open.

COSTS, CHARGES, AND EXPENSES GENERALLY.

249.—Where the Court appoints one of the Solicitors of the Court, to be Guardian ad litem of an infant or person of unsound mind, the Court may direct that the costs to be incurred in the performance of the duties of such office, shall be borne and paid either by the parties or some one or more of the parties to the Suit in which such appointment is made, or out of any fund in Court in which such infant or person of unsound mind may be interested; and may give directions for the repayment, or allowance of such costs, as the justice and circumstances of the case may require.

250.—Where costs are ordered to be paid to a party suing or defending in forma pauperis, such costs shall be taxed as ordinary costs, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

251.—Where the Plaintiff is directed to pay to the Defendant the costs of the Suit, the costs occasioned to a Defendant by any amendment of the Statement of Claim shall be deemed to be part of such Defendant's costs in the Suit, except as to any amendment which may have been made by special leave of the Court, or which shall appear to have been rendered necessary by the default of such Defendant, but there shall be deducted from such costs any sum which may have been paid by the Plaintiff, according to the course of the Court, at the time of any amendment.

252.—Where upon taxation, a Plaintiff, who has obtained a Decree with costs, is not allowed the costs of any amendment of the Statement of Claim upon the ground of its having been unnecessarily made, the Defendant's costs occasioned by such amendment shall be taxed, and the amount thereof deducted from the costs to be paid by the Defendant to the Plaintiff.

253.—Where the Court is of opinion that any Petition, or Affidavit, or any part thereof, is improper or of unnecessary length, the Court may direct the Master to ascertain the costs occasioned to any party thereby, and may make such Order as is just for the payment or allowance of such costs.

254.—Where the same Solicitor is employed for two or more Defendants, and separate Statements of Defence are filed, or other proceeding had, by or for two or more of such Defendants separately, the Master shall consider in the taxation of such Solicitor's bill of costs, either between party and party, or between Solicitor and client, whether such separate defence, or other proceedings, were necessary or proper; and if he is of opinion that any part of the costs occasioned thereby has been unnecessarily or improperly incurred, the same shall be disallowed.

255.—Where any party submits to Exceptions for insufficiency he shall pay to the excepting party twenty shillings costs if before the Order of reference, and thirty shillings if before the Report, unless other costs are specially certified by the Master. And where the costs of Suit are ordered to be paid to any party the costs occasioned to him by the insufficiency of any Answer to Interrogatories shall be deemed to be part of such costs; any sum being deducted therefrom which shall have been paid to him upon the Exceptions being submitted to, or the Answer certified to be insufficient.

256.—The Plaintiff, having duly caused an appearance to be entered for any Defendant, shall be entitled as against the same Defendant, to the costs of and incident to entering such appearance, whatever may be the event of the Suit; and such costs shall be added to any costs which the Plaintiff may be entitled to receive from such Defendant, or be set off against any costs which he may be ordered to pay to such Defendant; but payment thereof shall not be otherwise enforced without the leave of the Court.

257.—Where no account, payment, conveyance or other relief is sought against a party, but the Plaintiff (or the Defendant under a Counter claim) requires such party to appear to the Statement of Claim or Counter Claim, the costs occasioned by such party having been required so to appear, and the costs of all proceedings consequent thereon, shall be paid by the party requiring such appearance, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

258.—Expenses incurred in consequence of Affidavits being prepared or settled by Council, shall be allowed only when the Master shall in his discretion, and on consideration of the special circumstances in each case, think such expenses properly incurred; and in such case he shall be at liberty to allow the same, or such parts thereof as he may consider just and reasonable, whether the taxation be between Solicitor and client, or between party and party.

259. Where a Suit which stands for hearing is called on to be heard, but cannot be decided by reason of a want of parties or other defect on the part of the plaintiff, and is therefore struck out of the paper, and the same suit is again set down, the defendant shall be allowed the taxed costs occasioned by the first setting down, although he does obtain the costs of the Suit.

260.—Where a Suit, being in the paper for hearing, is ordered to be adjourned upon payment of the costs of the day, the party to pay the same shall pay the sum of Ten pounds, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

261.—Where a party gives Notice of Motion, and does not move accordingly, he shall pay to the other side costs to be taxed by the Master, unless the Court itself shall direct what sum shall be paid for costs.

262.—Where two or more Counsel appear for the same party upon the hearing of any suit or matter, and it appears to the Master to have been proper for the party to retain such Counsel to appear, the costs occasioned thereby shall be allowed.

263.—Where costs are to be taxed as between party and party, the Master may allow to the party entitled to receive such costs, all such just and reasonable expenses as appear to have been incurred in

- Advising with Counsel as to the institution or defence of the Suit;
- The service and execution of Writs, and the service of Orders, Notices, Petitions, and Summonses;
- Advising with Counsel on the Pleadings, Evidence, and other proceedings in the Suit;
- Procuring Counsel to settle and sign Pleadings and such Petitions and Affidavits as may appear to be proper to have been settled by Counsel;
- Procuring consultations of Counsel, and procuring the attendance of Counsel in the Master's Office, where the Master may consider the case proper for Counsel to attend;
- Procuring evidence by deposition or Affidavit, and the attendance of witnesses, and supplying Counsel with copies of extracts from necessary documents.

264.—But in allowing such costs, the Master shall not allow to such party any costs which do not appear to have been necessary or proper for the attainment of justice, or for defending his rights, or which appear to have been incurred through over-caution, negligence, or mistake, or merely at the desire of the party.

265.—Any party who may be dissatisfied with the allowance or disallowance by the Master, of the whole or any part of any item or items in any Bill of Costs, may at any time before the Certificate is signed, deliver to the other party interested therein, and carry in before the Master, an objection in writing to such allowance or disallowance, specifying, in a short and concise form the matter objected to, and may thereupon apply to the Master for a summons to review the taxation in respect of the same.

266.—Upon the application for such Summons, or upon the return thereof, the Master shall reconsider and review his taxation upon such objection; and he may, if he shall think fit, receive further evidence in respect thereof; and if so required by either party, he shall state either in his Certificate of Taxation, or by reference to such objection, the grounds and reasons of his decision thereon, and any special facts or circumstances relating thereto.

267.—Any party who may be dissatisfied with the Certificate of the Master, or with his allocatur, if the costs form a sum to be afterwards inserted in a Report or Certificate, may, as to any item or part of an item which may have been objected to, apply to the Court for an Order to review the taxation as to the same, and the Court may thereupon make such Order as to the Court shall seem just. But the Certificate or allocatur of the Master shall be final and conclusive as to all matters which shall not have been so objected to.

268.—Such applications shall be heard and determined upon the evidence which shall have been brought in before the Master; and no further evidence shall be received, upon the hearing thereof, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

269.—Upon interlocutory applications, where the Court deems it proper to award costs to either party, the Court may order payment of a sum in gross, in lieu of taxed costs, and direct by and to whom such sum in gross shall be paid.

270.—Where a Suit or Petition or a Counter Claim is dismissed with costs, or a motion is refused with costs, or any costs are by any general or special Order or Decree directed to be paid, the Master may tax such costs without any Order referring the same for taxation; unless the Court, upon the application of the party alleging himself to be aggrieved, prohibits the taxation of such costs.

271.—When it is directed that costs shall be taxed, and the parties differ about the same, the party claiming the costs shall bring the Bill of Costs into the Equity Office, and give notice of his having so done to the other party; and at any time within eight days of such notice, such other party shall have liberty to inspect the same if he thinks fit. And at or before the expiration of the eight days, or such further time as the Master shall in his discretion allow, such other party shall either agree to pay the costs, or signify his dissent therefrom, and shall thereupon be at liberty to offer payment of a sum of money for the costs. But where he makes no such offer, or where the party claiming the costs refuses to accept such offer, the Master shall proceed to tax the costs; and where the taxed costs shall not exceed the sum offered, the costs of the taxation shall be borne by the party claiming the costs.

272.—Where any costs are by any Decree or Order directed to be taxed, and to be paid out of any money in Court, the Master, in his certificate of taxation, shall state the total amount of all such costs as taxed.

FORM OF STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

In the Supreme Court of New South Wales. In Equity.

Between John Lee Plaintiff and James Styles and Henry Jones Defendants.

Statement of claim :

1. The defendant James Styles being seized in fee simple of a farm called Blackacre in the parish of A in the county of B and Colony of New South Wales with the appurtenances did by an indenture dated the 1st of May 1870 and made between the defendant James Styles of the one part and the plaintiff of the other part grant and convey the said farm with the appurtenances unto and to the use of the plaintiff his heirs and assigns subject to a proviso for redemption thereof in case the defendant James Styles his heirs executors administrators or assigns should on the 1st of May 1871 pay to the plaintiff his executors administrators or assigns the sum of £5,000 with interest thereon at the rate of £5 per centum per annum as by the said Indenture will appear.
2. The whole of the said sum of £5,000 together with interest thereon at the rate aforesaid is now due to the plaintiff.
3. The defendant Henry Jones claims to have some charge upon the farm and premises comprised in the said indenture of mortgage which charge is subsequent to the plaintiff's said mortgage.
4. The plaintiff has frequently applied to the defendants James Styles and Henry Jones and required them either to pay the said mortgage debt and interest or else to release the equity of redemption of the premises but they have refused so to do.
5. The defendants James Styles and Henry Jones allege that there are some other mortgages charges or incumbrances affecting the premises but they refuse to discover the particulars thereof.
6. There are divers valuable timber and timber-like trees growing and standing on the farms and lands comprised in the indenture of mortgage of the 1st May 1870 which trees and timber are a material part of the plaintiff's said security and if the same or any of them were felled and taken away the said mortgaged premises would be an insufficient security to the plaintiff for the money due thereon.
7. The defendant James Styles who is in possession of the said farm has marked for felling a large quantity of the said trees and he has by hand-bills published on the 2nd December instant announced the same for sale and he threatens and intends forthwith to cut down and dispose of a considerable quantity of the said trees on the said farm.

The plaintiff prays as follows :—

1. That an account may be taken of what is due for principal and interest on the said mortgage.
2. That the defendants James Styles and Henry Jones may be decreed to pay to the plaintiff the amount which shall be so found due together with his costs of this suit by a short day to be appointed for that purpose or in default thereof that the defendants James Styles and Henry Jones and all persons claiming under them may be absolutely foreclosed of all right and Equity of Redemption in or to the said mortgaged premises.
3. That the defendant James Styles may be restrained by the Injunction of this Honorable Court from felling cutting or disposing of any of the timber or timber-like trees now standing or growing in or upon the said farm and premises comprised in the said Indenture of Mortgage or any part thereof.
4. That the plaintiff may have such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require.

FORM OF STATEMENT OF DEFENCE.

Between John Lee Plaintiff and James Styles and Henry Jones Defendants.

Statement of defence of James Styles one of the abovenamed defendants.

I James Styles do on my oath say as follows:—

1. I do not know and am not able to admit the contents of the indenture of the 1st day of May 1870 in the first paragraph of the plaintiff's statement of claim are correctly stated therein and I crave leave to refer to the said indenture when produced.

2. I believe that the defendant Henry Jones does claim to have a charge upon the farm and premises comprised in the indenture of mortgage of the 1st day of May 1870 in the plaintiff's statement of claim mentioned.

3. Such charge was created by an indenture dated the first day of November 1870 between myself on the one part and the said defendant Henry Jones of the other part whereby I granted and conveyed the said farm and premises (subject to the mortgage made by the said indenture of the 1st of May 1870) unto the defendant Henry Jones for securing the sum of £2,000, and interest at the rate of £5 per centum per annum and the amount due thereon is the said sum of 2,000 with interest thereon from the date of such mortgage.

4. To the best of my knowledge remembrance and belief there is not any mortgage charge or incumbrance affecting the aforesaid premises.
(Signed) JAMES STYLES.

By way of counter claim the defendant James Styles states as follows:—

1. On the 1st day of August 1880 the defendant James Styles entered into a contract in writing with the plaintiff for the sale to him of a farm called Whiteacre in the county of C in the Colony of New South Wales containing 3,000 acres or thereabouts for the price of £5,000 and it was mutually agreed by and between the plaintiff and the said defendant that the said purchase money should be set off against the debt secured by the said indenture of mortgage of the 1st day of May 1870 and that the plaintiff should forthwith reconvey to the said Defendant the said farm of Blackacre freed and discharged from the said mortgage debt.

The defendant James Styles prays as follows:—

1. That the plaintiff may be decreed specifically to perform his said contract and to reconvey to the defendant James Styles the said farm of Blackacre freed and discharged from the said debt secured by the said indenture of mortgage of the 1st day of May 1870 the said defendant being ready and willing to perform the said contract on his part.
2. That for the purposes aforesaid all proper directions may be given declarations made and accounts taken.
3. That the said defendant may have such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require.

APPEARANCE.

12. All appearances to citations are to be entered in a book provided for that purpose. (Form No. 4.) If no appearance be entered within twenty-one days, the petitioner may apply for leave to dispense with service of all other proceedings.

13. An appearance may be entered at any time before a proceeding has been taken in default thereof, or afterwards by leave of the Judge, to be applied for by motion founded on affidavit.

14. Appearances are to be entered voluntarily or under protest, and in the forms and with the address for services as specified in the book kept for that purpose.

18. Where a husband, admitted to sue in forma pauperis, neglects to proceed in a cause, he may be called upon by summons to show cause why he should not pay costs, though he has not been dispaupered, and why all further proceedings should not be stayed until such costs be paid.

ANSWER.

19. Each respondent who has entered an appearance may, within twenty-one days after service of citation on him or her, file with the Clerk of Divorce an answer to the petition. (Form No. 5.)

20. Each respondent shall, on the day he or she files an answer, deliver a copy thereof to the petitioner, or to his or her solicitor.

21. Every answer which contains matter other than a simple denial of the facts stated in the petition shall be accompanied by an affidavit made by the respondent, verifying such other or additional matter, so far as he or she has personal cognizance thereof, and disposing as to his or her belief in the truth of the rest of such other or additional matter; and such affidavit shall be filed with the answer and shall further state that there is not any collusion or connivance between the deponent and the petitioner, but the respondent shall not in such affidavit be required to deny any allegation of adultery alleged in the petition. If no answer be filed within twenty-one days, the petitioner shall be at liberty to proceed to proof of his petition.

FURTHER PLEADINGS.

22. Within fourteen days from the filing and delivery of the answer, the petitioner may file a reply thereto, and the same period shall be allowed for filing any further pleading by way of rejoinder, or any subsequent pleading.

23. A copy of every reply and subsequent pleading shall on the day the same is filed be delivered to the opposite parties, or to their solicitor.

GENERAL RULES AS TO PLEADINGS.

24. Either party desiring to alter or amend any pleading must apply by motion to the Judge in Chambers for permission to do so, and the Judge may order the amendment on such terms as he may think fit.

25. When a petition, answer, or other pleading has been ordered to be altered or amended, the time for filing and delivering a copy of the next pleading shall be reckoned from the time of the order having been complied with.

26. A copy of every pleading showing the alterations and amendments made therein, shall be delivered to the opposite parties, on the day such alterations and amendments are made in the pleadings filed with the Clerk; and the opposite parties, if they have already pleaded in answer thereto, shall be at liberty to amend such answer within four days, or such further time as may be allowed for the purpose.

27. If either party in the cause fail to file or deliver a copy of the answer, reply, or other pleading, or to alter or amend the same, or to deliver a copy of any altered or amended pleading within the time allowed for the purpose, the party to whom the copy of such answer, reply, or other pleading, or altered or amended pleading, ought to have been delivered, shall not be bound to receive it, and such answer, reply, or other pleading, if objected to as out of time, shall not be filed, or be treated or considered as having been filed, or be altered or amended unless by order of the Judge of Divorce, to be obtained on summons. The expense of obtaining such order shall fall on the party applying for it, unless the Judge shall otherwise direct.

28. Applications for further particulars of matters pleaded are to be made to the Judge of Divorce, by summons in Chambers, and not by motion.

SERVICE OF PLEADINGS.

29. Pleadings and other instruments, personal service of which is not expressly required by these Rules and Regulations, may be left at the respective addresses furnished by or on behalf of the several parties to the cause.

MODE OF TRIAL.

30. When the pleadings, on being concluded, have raised any question of fact, the petitioner, within fourteen days from the filing of the last pleading, or at the expiration of that time, on the next day appointed for hearing motions in this Court, or in case the petitioner should fail to do so at such time, either of the respondents on whose behalf such questions have been raised, may apply to the Judge of Divorce, by motion, to direct the truth of such questions of fact to be tried by the Court itself without a Jury, or by a special Jury of twelve, and the time of holding such trial.

ISSUES.

31. Whenever the Judge directs the issues of fact in a cause to be tried, the question of fact raised by the pleadings are to be briefly stated in writing by the petitioner (Form No. 7) and settled by the Registrar, and every issue as to adultery shall state dates within which the alleged adultery is charged to have been committed.

After the questions have been settled by the Registrar, the party who has submitted the same to the Registrar shall deliver a copy thereof as settled, to each of the other parties to be heard on the trial of the cause; and either of such parties shall be at liberty to apply to the Judge in Chambers, by summons, within eight days, or at the expiration of that time on the next day appointed for hearing summonses in this Court, to alter or amend the same, and his decision shall be final.

SETTING DOWN THE CAUSE FOR TRIAL.

33. In cases to be tried by a Jury, the petitioner, after the expiration of eight days from the delivery of copies of the questions for the Jury to the opposite parties, shall file such issues as finally settled with the Clerk of Divorce, and at the same time set down the cause as ready for trial, and on the same day give notice of his having done so to each party for whom an appearance has been entered.

34. In cases to be heard without a Jury, the petitioner shall, after obtaining directions as to the mode of hearing, set the cause down for hearing, and on the same day give notice of his having done so to each party in the cause for whom an appearance has been entered.

35. If the petitioner fail to file the issues for the Jury, or to set down the cause for trial or hearing, or to give due notice thereof, for the space of one month after directions have been given as to the mode in which the cause shall be tried or heard, either of the respondents entitled to be heard at such trial or hearing may file the questions for the Jury, and set the cause down for trial or hearing, and shall on the same day give notice of his having done so to the petitioner, and to each of the other parties to the cause for whom an appearance has been entered.

TRIAL OR HEARING.

36. No trial shall take place until ten days after setting down and notice as aforesaid, except by consent of all parties. The proceedings as to summoning, attendance, and challenging of Jurors, subpoenas for attendance of witnesses, notice to admit documents, hearing and address of counsel, examination of witnesses, entering the names of the Jury and their finding, and all other matters at the trial, shall as nearly as possible be the same as at common law. After the verdict any party may be forthwith heard upon affidavit as to costs; and the husband or wife may be also heard upon affidavits as to the custody of the children, or as to the settlement of the property, unless the Judge shall direct such matters to be separately disposed of.

37. The orders as to all which matters at the trial shall, with the verdict, be duly entered by the Clerk of Divorce upon the issue paper and returned to the Registrar to be filed as of record by the Registrar.

NEW TRIAL AND APPEAL.

41. All motions for new trial and appeals against any decree or order of the Judge shall be made to the full Court of Appeal, upon notice given to all parties within fourteen days from the date of such verdict, decree, or order, and upon the like petition and security as in Equity appeals; but no security shall be required in mere motions for new trial.

decree was made, who may within fourteen days file his or her answer thereto, and shall deliver a copy thereof to the other party, or his or her solicitor, whereupon all subsequent pleadings and proceedings shall be filed and carried on as in the original petition, so far as applicable to such petition for reversal.

INTERVENTION OF QUEEN'S PROCTOR.

44. The Crown Solicitor, acting under the direction of the Attorney-General, shall, within fourteen days after he has obtained leave to intervene in any cause, enter an appearance and plead to the petition, and, on the day he files his plea with the Registrar, shall deliver a copy thereof to the petitioner or his solicitor.

45. All subsequent proceedings, in respect to the Crown Solicitor's intervention in a cause, shall be filed and carried on in the same manner as before directed in respect of the pleadings and proceedings of the original parties to the cause.

46. Any person wishing to show cause against making absolute a decree nisi for dissolution of a marriage must first enter an appearance in such cause, giving notice of it to all parties; and affidavits shall be filed, and copies thereof delivered to the opposite party, as directed by the rules as to "Evidence by Affidavit."

47. The questions raised on such affidavits shall be argued in such manner and at such time as the Judge in Divorce may on application by motion direct; and if he thinks fit to direct any controverted questions of fact to be tried by a Jury, the same shall be settled and tried in the same manner and subject to the same rules, as any other issue tried in this Court.

48. All decrees for dissolution of marriage may be open to appeal before the full Court, by motion for a rule nisi by the party wishing to reverse the same; and such rule if granted by the full Court shall be set down and argued in like manner as other rules nisi and other appeals.

In support of such applications it must be shown by affidavit filed with the case for motion, that a copy of the decree nisi has been served upon the respondent and co-respondent, except in cases where the respondent or co-respondent have not appeared and service of subsequent proceedings has been dispensed with, or in cases where the respondent and co-respondent have appeared at the hearing, or in cases where after service of citation they have left the Colony or cannot be found; also that search has been made in the proper books kept by the clerk up to within two days of the affidavit being filed, and that at such time no person had obtained leave to intervene in the cause, and that no appearance had been entered nor any affidavits filed on behalf of any person wishing to show cause against the decree nisi being made absolute; and in case leave to intervene had been obtained or appearance entered, or affidavits filed on behalf of any person, it must be shown by affidavit what proceedings (if any) had been taken thereon; and no affidavit of service of notice upon the respondent or co-respondent of intention to apply for the Decree Absolute shall be necessary.

ALIMONY.

50. The wife, being the petitioner in a cause, may file her petition for alimony pending suit (Form No. 8) at any time after the citation has been duly served on the husband, or after order made by the Judge to dispense with such service, provided the fact of marriage between the parties is established by affidavit previously filed.

51. The wife, being respondent in a cause, after having entered an appearance, may also file her petition for alimony, pending suit.

52. A copy of every petition for alimony, answer and reply, and all affidavits must be served personally on the husband, unless otherwise ordered by the Judge. The husband shall, within eight days after the filing and delivery of a petition for alimony, file his answer thereto upon oath.

53. The husband, being respondent in the cause, must enter an appearance before he can file an answer to a petition for alimony.

54. The wife, if not satisfied with the husband's answer, may object to the same as insufficient, and apply to the Judge on motion to order him to give a further and fuller answer, or to order his attendance on the hearing of the petition for the purpose of being examined thereon.

55. If the wife is alleged by the husband's answer to have separate property, she shall have eight days to file her reply thereto upon oath. Either party may then be required by the opposite party to make further answer upon oath, in relation to such petition, in open Court or otherwise, as the Judge may direct. Upon the hearing of the petition, no fresh affidavits shall be made or heard to be read, except by special leave of the Judge.

RULES OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 20 Vic. No. 11, sec. 2.

In the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

REGULAE GENERALES.

By their Honors the Judges of the Supreme Court, under and by authority of the Act 20 Vic. No. 11.

1. The General Rules made on the 26th day of June, 1857, and also the Rules made on the 2nd day of February, 1883, are hereby repealed, so far as they relate to moneys held by this Court in matters in Equity and in Lunacy, and in lieu thereof it is ordered as follows:—

2. All moneys paid into Court in Equity, in any estate, cause, or matter in Equity, shall be deposited in the Bank of New South Wales, or such other Bank as may for the time being be the Bank of the Government of the Colony, in that behalf, to the credit of the Colonial Treasurer, at the rate of interest as arranged between the Primary Judge in Equity and the Colonial Treasurer, that is to say, £4 per centum on the daily credit balances, to be credited to the general account on the first of January and the first of July in each year: Provided that nothing herein contained shall have the effect of repealing the Rule of the 30th March, 1882, or of preventing investments of any of the moneys aforesaid in such other manner as the Court in Equity may from time to time authorize or direct.

3. Separate accounts shall be kept by the Master in Equity in all the estates, causes, or matters in respect of which any moneys shall have been paid to the credit of the Colonial Treasurer, and of all payments thereout whether for principal or interest.

4. The Master in Equity shall, on the fifth day of the months of January, April, July, and October, or in case the said day should fall upon Sunday, then on the following day, exhibit to the Primary Judge and file in the Supreme Court Office accounts of all payments received by him, and by him paid into the said Bank to the credit of the Colonial Treasurer as aforesaid, and also of all payments made thereout by him within the preceding period of three months; and every such account shall also show the balance in the Treasury to the credit of the Court at the commencement and termination respectively of such period.

5. For every sum so deposited a receipt shall be given by the Colonial Treasurer, or by some officer of the Treasury or Bank duly authorized by him on that behalf, which shall be filed in the Equity Office and entered in a book to be kept for that purpose.

6. No money so deposited shall be withdrawn or paid from the Treasury or said Bank on its account, otherwise than under the authority of a decree or order of the Primary Judge in Equity or some other Judge of this Court: Provided that the said Bank and the Colonial Treasurer shall not be bound to inquire whether any such decree or order has been made, or whether it sufficiently authorizes such withdrawal or payment, but shall make payments under orders signed as hereinafter mentioned.

7. No such withdrawal or payment shall be made by the said Bank or the Colonial Treasurer without an order, signed by one of the Judges, and countersigned by the Master in Equity or the Chief Clerk: Provided that in case of an Accountant in Equity being appointed, no such signature by a Judge shall be required, but all such orders may be signed by the Master or the Chief Clerk, and countersigned by the Accountant: Provided also that in case of the absence or illness of the Master or Chief Clerk respectively, his signature may be dispensed with, and some other person, authorized by a Judge in that behalf, may sign any such order in his stead.

8. Every such order shall be payable to bearer, but shall mention thereon the name of the cause, matter, or estate in which or in respect of which the same is drawn, and shall bear the endorsement of the person receiving the same: Provided that the said Bank or Colonial Treasurer shall not be bound to inquire into the correctness of such particulars or the genuineness of such endorsement.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

The Police Magistrate, Wellington, to The Under-Secretary, Department of Justice.

Sir,

Court House, Wellington, 22 October, 1883.

In compliance with your telegram, received this day, I do myself the honor to enclose herewith the papers in three cases of Dulhunty v. Mostyn; I do so as I am unable to distinguish which of the three cases is in question. There is one case in which there was no information taken—that in which Mostyn was charged with keeping four unregistered dogs—so that I can only send the original summons, as Mostyn pleaded guilty to having two dogs unregistered. That plea was accepted by me.

In the charges against defendant for “breaches of the Sheep Diseases Act”—one for cutting off the sheep’s ears and the other for having his premises unregistered, to both of which he pleaded guilty—I imposed light fines on account of his good character. Indeed, I reduced one fine from £5 to 50s.

I have, &c.,

W. STEWART CASWELL, P.M.

SUMMONS.

To James Moysten, of Spicer’s Creek, in the Colony of New South Wales,—

WHEREAS information hath this day been laid before the undersigned, one of Her Majesty’s Justices of the Peace in and for the said Colony of New South Wales, for that you did, on the 26th day of June, and for fourteen days previously, keep, within the boundaries of the Police District of Wellington, four dogs, not being under the age of six months, without causing a description thereof to be registered, to wit:—

Given under my hand and seal this 26th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, at Dubbo, in the said Colony.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

(AMBROSE LARRAGHEY v. SENIOR-CONSTABLE HATFIELD.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 November, 1883.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 14th November, 1883, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

(Mr. Merriman.)

Mr. Sub-Inspector Larkins to Mr. Superintendent Read.

Largahley v. Senior-constable Hatfield.—Assault and Beat.

Sir,

No. 5 Police Station, 28 September, 1883.

I have the honor to forward for your information a copy of the depositions taken in the above case, and I hardly think there can be any second opinion about the assault having been committed without justification.

Mr. Dillon, who was the presiding Magistrate, before he gave his decision, remarked “that he always supported the Police while in the execution of their duty, but in this case, ignoring the evidence for the prosecution altogether, it was quite clear the senior-constable was guilty of a very gross act of violence, by using a whip which he was not justified in carrying. If the complainant committed any offence he should by all means be locked up, but the Police, who were invested with such large powers, should not be the peace breakers.”

Hatfield is somewhat uncouth in manner and hasty in temper, but is without doubt one of the most vigilant men in the Police; in fact he is a terror to all evil-doers in that portion of the district, and were it not for that this charge of assault would never be brought against him.

By no means do I want to justify his indiscretion on the night in question, for which he has been mulct in the sum of about (£12) twelve pounds, but would be sorry if the Inspector-General should deem it his duty to inflict any additional punishment. I am perfectly satisfied, notwithstanding this case, the Senior-constable still maintains the confidence of all the law-abiding people in West Botany, Kogarah, and Hurstville.

I may add that I never saw the senior-constable with a whip, nor did it ever come to my knowledge that he used one, contrary to the Inspector-General's printed circular of December, 1881.

It will be seen in Constable Pannell's evidence that he admitted, when cross-examined by Mr. Roberts, having had drink twice at a public-house, when Largahley and his companions were present, Pannell explains this to me by saying, that on each occasion he went for a pint of supper beer to the public-house opposite his residence, when those people happened to be in the bar.

I have, &amp;c.,

N. LARKINS, Sub-Inspector.

Forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police.—I regret that so efficient and well conducted a member of the Force as Senior-constable Hatfield should have committed himself so grossly. The carrying of the loaded whip was contrary to the Inspector-General's order which makes no exception in favor of men performing duty in the more remote suburbs. An ordinary riding-whip would I think answer equally well. The senior-constable however does not carry fire-arms, and the locality at present contains a large number of a rough class of persons who are employed on the Railway works; he would therefore require some sort of weapon when travelling at night. He probably believed the man Larraghey was drunk from his stumbling in the manner he did. The severe fine inflicted, together with the cost of his defence, has involved the senior-constable in an expenditure of about £12, which I think is sufficient punishment. I consider him an excellent non-commissioned officer.—G. READ, Superintendent, 1/10/83. The I.G.P.

Copy of Information.

Ambrose Larraghey, on oath, that on the 8th day of September, 1883, at Cook's River, William Hatfield did unlawfully assault complainant Ambrose Larraghey.

FRANK S. FIELDER, J.P.

AMBROSE LARRAGHEY.

William Hatfield, assault. Not guilty.

Ambrose Larraghey, on oath, states: I reside at Arncliffe Road, and am a groom; the information read is true; I remember the 8th September instant, about a quarter past 11 p.m.; I was on the Cook's River Road in company of others waiting for my coach; I saw the defendant there; the defendant Constable Hatfield came across and said to me "Shift yourself;" we shifted round the corner into Francis-street; I think he then called us a lot of larrikins; I told him he might be made pay for it; he then tried to ride the horse over me; I was just off the foot-path standing by a fence; I told him I'd make him suffer; he then whilst on horseback hit me twice with a loaded whip; he struck me on the back; he got off his horse and threw me on the road; he then told me he'd lock me up—and was taking me towards the lock-up; I told him not to knock me about, he was knocking me about,—that I'd walk quietly with him; he then put me into the lock-up; I was quite sober on that occasion; I gave defendant no provocation for striking me; he dragged me by the arm; he threw me down very viciously; I fell on my hands and face on the hard road.

Mr. Roberts: Five days had not elapsed till I laid my complaint; if the information is dated 13th it is incorrect; I had just come out of a public-house; I knew defendant was a constable; I had often seen him; I staggered when I came on the path, on a stone, and hopped; I am subject to rheumatics; I don't suffer from them when I come from a public-house; I was not under the influence of liquor; I did take something in the public-house; I had taken nothing during the day; defendant told me and four or five others to move off the pathway; we did go round the corner 4 or 5 feet; about three out of the five went, the other two went round the corner; they stood off the pathway; there was no necessity for the five of us to obstruct the pathway; we did move away; he called us a lot of larrikins; we did not remain there in defiance of the defendant; when he told us to go off the footpath we did so, round the corner; I came out of the public-house at 5 minutes to 11; I was then on the pathway about 20 minutes; three of us; the others were residents of the river; they had not been drinking; he, defendant, tried to ride the horse over me; I said, "I'll make you pay for this," as I stood against the fence; he then hit me twice across the back with a loaded whip; it is a paling fence; I had a small coat, a very light-brown coat; before he struck me he led his horse down the street; I did not call out "Kogarah" in ridicule of him because he is the Kogarah constable; I did not call out "Kogarah, good night, Kogarah"; I may have said "Kogarah," or "There is a Kogarah coach"; I did not say "Good night, Kogarah"; the same coach might do for me at Arncliffe; there might be a coach that night; defendant came back when I called "Kogarah"; I did jump off the coach that evening when the coach was going full speed; no one induced me to put the law in motion, none of the publicans.

Bench: I came up for the summons on Tuesday.

Mr. Haynes: I was not drunk that day; I was put into the lock-up; defendant told constable Pannell to lock me up on a charge of drunkenness; he, Pannell, refused to take the charge; defendant then entered it himself.

Mr. Roberts: The case against me was dismissed; Mr. Crane might have said I brought all this on myself.

AMBROSE LARRAGHEY.

James Quigley, on oath, states: I remember 8th September instant; I was on the Cook's River Road, standing with Larraghey; defendant came up to us; defendant rushed complainant with the horse, and struck him twice with his loaded whip across the back; complainant was sober; as far as I could see he gave defendant no provocation; I did not go along with him to the lock-up.

Mr. Roberts: Before defendant rushed complainant he had requested complainant and the rest of us to leave the footpath; we did so, 4 or 5 yards; we did not remain on the pathway any time; when Larraghey was struck he was standing on the pathway with his back against the fence; when he could not rush the horse over him, defendant struck him twice over the shoulders with a loaded whip; I know Kogarah, it is about 3 miles from Cook's River; Kogarah is defendant's district; I did not hear complainant call out "Kogarah"; he only asked "Is the Kogarah 'bus coming"; he said it in a joke; about 3 minutes after defendant left us; he was within hearing; I suppose complainant, speaking of Kogarah, amused us; I don't believe or think the word "Kogarah" was used to annoy defendant.

Mr. Haynes: After he struck him with the whip he pushed him; when Mr. Hatfield got off the horse he shoved complainant by the shoulder, and pushed him on his face and hands on the hard road.

Mr. Roberts: When defendant ordered him off the footpath he just pushed him away off his legs; complainant fell; the rheumatism might have brought him down.

JAMES QUIGLEY.

Isaac Wortley, on oath, states: I live at Cook's River, and am a brickmaker; I know Hatfield and Larraghey; I remember the 8th instant; I saw them both on Cook's River Road that night; Constable Hatfield told him to shift on; he did so; Hatfield came round again; he then said, "You're all loafing";

complainant said, "No, we're all working men, you cannot prove we're loafers"; Hatfield said, "Don't give no cheek"; Ambrose said, "We're not giving cheek"; then he tried to run the horse on to Ambrose, but Ambrose was standing against the fence, and when he found he could not run the horse over him he struck Larraghey over the shoulders with a loaded whip; it seemed too heavy for a light whip; he then got hold of him by the back of the neck and threw him on the road twice; Ambrose got up and said, "I'll make you pay for this;" defendant brought him in a rough manner to the watch-house; Ambrose was sober.

Mr. Roberts: I had just come from town; I was there about fifteen minutes in Ambrose's company; Hatfield was there before I was; about six persons were there; I knew Ambrose before that night; I saw Ambrose slung down by Hatfield twice; Ambrose was struck with a loaded whip, for I know all policemen carry loaded whips; defendant struck Ambrose across the shoulders; I saw defendant go away and come back; I never heard nobody sing out "Kogarah"; nobody said, "Is the Kogarah coach coming"; Ambrose said, "I'll make you pay for this," to defendant; I have not spoken to Ambrose since about this.

ISAAC WORTLEY.

DEFENCE.

John Brooneer, on oath, states: I am Mayor of West Botany; I have known defendant about three years; he is steady, as far as I know, and a very efficient officer.

Mr. Haynes: I have spoken to defendant, and have often spoken to him; I never saw nor heard of him riding over people.

JOHN BROONEER.

Henry Cook, on oath, states: I am a market gardener, and reside at West Botany; I have known defendant ever since he has been in my district; he is a steady well-conducted officer; I never heard he was tyrannical in his demeanour or abusive.

HENRY COOK.

Sub-inspector Nicholas Larkins, on oath, states: I know defendant; he is a senior-constable in the Police Force, stationed at Kogarah; he is a very good and efficient and well-conducted officer; in consequence of his good conduct I recommended his promotion.

Mr. Haynes: It is not usual for a trooper to carry a loaded whip with him; it is contrary to rules; he is supplied with a baton.

N. LARKINS.

William Hatfield, on oath, states: I am senior-constable of the Police Force; I know complainant; on the night of the alleged assault I took him into custody for being drunk; he shouted after me; I arrested him in Fanning-street, Cook's River; he did not complain to me that night that he was suffering from rheumatism in the ankle; there were five or six men with complainant that night; I had had complaints of the annoyance of persons obstructing the pathway; they were on the footway of Cook's River road; was obstructed by them; a person had to leave the footway and walk on the street before I spoke to them; they all went away round the corner of Fanning-street, except Larraghey; I mounted my horse, and was riding off when complainant said, "Good night, Kogarah, or go to Kogarah"; it was sneeringly said, and he came out of the public-house and said to me, "When's the next 'bus going to Kogarah"; it was 11 p.m. when he came out of the house, and lastly about five minutes past 11 p.m. when I turned them off the path; when complainant called out "Kogarah" I went back; I have occasion for a whip, my horse shies very much; I told the whole of the men there to move away, especially after shouting after me; I was determined they should go away; they all went away except Larraghey at my request; they were in Fanning-street; Larraghey refused to go; he said, "I won't, I'm waiting for my 'bus; why do you want to hunt me away; I'm not a loafer or a larrikin?" I again told him to move away; he again refused; I urged my horse then on to the footway; complainant stuck himself up against the fence, and shouted out, "I'll make you pay for this"; I raised a short riding-whip I was carrying and knocked his hat off with it with the intention of causing him to leave the fence to pick it up; I then hit him on the shoulder with the point end of the whip; his back was against the fence; I did not strike him across the back—it was impossible for me to do so; he fell down crossing the water-table; I dismounted and caught hold of complainant by the coat with my left hand near the shoulder, as he refused to go away, and started him away from the fence; in crossing the water-table he fell on his hands in the street; the pull I gave him was not sufficient to cause him to fall, it was the effect of drink; after getting up he refused to go away; I told him to do so several times, and that if he did not I would lock him up; I did arrest him for being drunk, and in going to the station he made a half stop, saying at same time, "You needn't hold me, I'll walk"; I replied to him, "You'll have to go as you are."

Bench: I took him to the watchhouse; Constable Pannell was in charge; he didn't refuse to take the charge; he searched him and locked him up.

Mr. Roberts: He was brought before Mr. Crane, and he was discharged, Mr. Crane stating that he had brought the trouble on himself by acting or shamming drunk.

Mr. Haynes: Some of those who were there had been convicted before this Court; complainant has been before this Court; I forget what for; they were all young men; prosecutor is a loafer; I have known him sleeping in 'buses and on the limekilns; I did not call them a lot of larrikins; he said, "Why do you hunt us away, we are not larrikins"? I urged my horse on to the footway to make him go away; I know Mr. Islip, he is a very decent man; I didn't notice him if he were there; I have the whip here to-day; I produce it; that is the whip I struck him with; I did not strike him with the loaded end; I have heard it sworn that I pushed and threw him down; I did neither; I wasn't drunk; Larraghey was; I was not excited; I felt a little warm; I didn't push him nor work him in any way; I did pull him at the time he made the half stop; Constable Pannell did not sign the charge sheet; it was Constable Pannell's duty to enter the charge, but I did it; I did not ask Pannell to enter it first; not a word passed between us till the charge was entered; Pannell didn't say then he was drunk; at 2 p.m. the next day Pannell said that Larraghey wasn't drunk; I entered no other charge against Larraghey than for being drunk; I have been three years next month out at Kogarah; I was convicted unjustly of an assault, and the authorities were so satisfied that I did not commit the assault that they remitted the fine; Constable Pannell had a prisoner and couldn't patrol the street that night.

Mr.

Mr. Roberts : I am Pannell's superior officer ; I have frequently entered the charge ; it is the proper duty of the lock-up keeper to enter the charge.

Mr. Haynes : I knew it was contrary to rules to carry that whip ; I am in the habit of carrying it, but not since that night.

WILLIAM HATFIELD.

Mr. Roberts : Ambrose Larraghey, on oath, states : A man named Sergeant did not give me money ; I have had no promise of any money from any publican to prosecute.

Mr. Haynes : Hatfield held the whip thus, by the point, and hit me twice across the back with it ; I did not say the other day that he struck me with the loaded end of the whip ; my master gave me money to prosecute ; I have a pound or two.

Bench : Hatfield offered on the Sunday in my own yard to square it ; he said, " Ambrose, you'd better let this drop : I'll give you a pound or two."

AMBROSE LARAGHEY.

John Boyce, on oath, states : I am keeping an hotel at Paddington ; I know defendant ; I have known him for two or three years ; I was in the police in the Kogarah district ; complaints were frequently made of larrikins assembling on the corner of Cook's River Road.

JOHN BOYCE.

Senior-constable William Hatfield re-called, on oath, states : I saw complainant with his master on Sunday, 16th inst. ; we were (complainant and I) in conversation some time ; I said " I have a summons from you, and I believe some one has put you up to this" ; I told him I would give him £1 for his costs of summons and loss of time ; he said " All right ; see me on Monday" ; I said " No, if you don't take it now that's all you'll get from me" ; that's all that was said.

Mr. Roberts : It is untrue ; I did not strike Larraghey with the loaded end of the whip ; I had the handle in my hand.

Mr. Haynes : I did not go up to square or settle it.

W. HATFIELD.

Constable Joseph Pannell, on oath, states : I know both complainant and defendant ; I saw defendant bring complainant to the watch-house on the night of the 15th inst., at about 11.15 ; when constable Hatfield came into the lock-up he appeared very excited ; when I went into the station the senior-constable was entering the charge in the book ; the charge was that Larraghey was drunk ; Larraghey was not drunk ; Larraghey asked if he were drunk in the station-house in the hearing of and presence of Hatfield ; I said " No" ; I should not say anybody could make a mistake and say the man was drunk ; I would not dream of arresting a man in his state for being drunk ; Larraghey is not a loafer ; he always works for his living, and is always very quiet.

Mr. Roberts : I have known him four months ; I never saw him or knew him to sleep on the lime-kilns ; I did not refuse to make the charge ; I was subpœnaed when Larraghey was charged with drunkenness, but didn't give evidence ; I am on friendly terms with him ; I have drunk in his company twice ; I was on duty that night in a public-house, the 15th inst. ; when I drank I was not in uniform ; it is contrary to regulations to drink in a public-house when on duty ; Larrighan did not drink ; when he asked me if he were drunk I said " No" ; Hatfield was present and near ; he must have heard it ; I knew Larraghey had been in the public-house ; I did not tell him so in the lock-up ; I did not tell Hatfield till 2 p.m. next day that Larraghey was not drunk ; I am first-class constable ; Hatfield is my senior ; I have seen Larraghey once slightly under the influence of drink ; I can easily tell if he has been drinking ; he is jolly ; I am not a drinking companion of his ; I have been out there about four months ; it is very seldom he is out late ; I have seen him out once at 12 p.m. ; he was not drunk then.

Mr. Haynes : I saw the assault take place ; I could not say which end of the whip was used ; it was a very heavy or hard blow ; I wouldn't be positive, but believe it was the heavy end of the whip he struck him with ; I have no idea of getting promotion over this.

JOSEPH PANNELL.

Fined 60s. ; 10s. 10d. costs ; 21s. complainant's costs ; 15s. for three witnesses, or two months gaol.

No. 1.

The Rev. F. Boyce to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Pyrmont, 19 October, 1883.

At the request of the Central Committee of the New South Wales Local Option League I beg to draw your attention to the following case which occurred at Orange :—

Mr. P. Kenna, an innkeeper in that town, was caught red-handed, as a local paper, the Orange Liberal, states, selling liquor after 11 p.m. The case was tried on Monday, 7th instant. The Police Magistrate, Mr. Lane, having authority to inflict any penalty not exceeding £20, fined the defendant but 1s. It is stated by the paper referred to (cuttings enclosed), that Mr. Lane was “profuse in his expressions of regret that the Bench had no alternative but to fine the defendant, and held forth at some length on the iniquitousness of the law which prescribed that the record of such an offence should stand against the defendant, a gentleman whom he had known for so many years. Mr. Parker, a Justice of the Peace, on the Bench, however, said he thought all hotel-keepers should be treated alike. The Sub-Inspector, Mr. Garvin, stated that he would not lodge the record against the defendant at the annual meetings.

The Committee desires to respectfully ask you to inquire why only a nominal fine was inflicted in this case. Further, it wishes to know whether a Police Magistrate is right in speaking against the law he may be administering in the manner reported? And again, have any Sub-Inspectors discretionary powers to record such offences or not as they choose against holders of licenses?

This case appears to present features which demand investigation, as the statements do not show a fair enforcement of a most important clause of the Act. The Committee is assured that if the licensing laws are not administered without respect to persons, serious consequences against the public good are likely to ensue. The broad principles of justice, the dignity of the law, with reasonable equality in its enforcement it is believed should ever be maintained. If it is found on inquiry that in this case the law has not been, as it is thought, properly administered, it is hoped that you will give such directions as to prevent any similar occurrence.

I am, &c.,

F. B. BOYCE,
Hon. Secretary.

POLICE COURT.

Monday.

Before the Police Magistrate and J. Parker, Esq., J.P.

PATRICK KENNA pleaded guilty to having his licensed house open during prohibited hours. The Police Magistrate stated it would be hard against the defendant, as the conviction would count against him. He had known Mr. Kenna for over twenty years, and there was no more respectable publican in this district. Sub-Inspector Garvin stated he would not lodge the record against the defendant at the annual meeting, and the Bench could not entertain it as against the defendant unless it was lodged. Mr. Parker thought all hotel-keepers should be treated alike. Fined 1s., and 2s. 6d. costs.

Extract from Orange Liberal, referred to in the Rev. Mr. Boyce's letter of the 19th October.

Servile Sympathy.

Discretion may be, to use the words of Shakspeare, the better part of valour, but it certainly does not appear to be the better part of justice, as dealt out by certain of our local magistracy. On Monday, for instance, an hotelkeeper named Patrick Kenna was summoned for keeping his licensed house open during prohibited hours, namely, after 11 o'clock at night. The offender pleaded guilty, he having been detected, as it were, red-handed by Senior-constable Harvey. The plea having been entered, a sort of conversational tournament was indulged by the Police Magistrate, the chief of our local police, and the defendant. The former was profuse in his expressions of regret that the Bench had no alternative but to fine the defendant, and held forth at some length on the iniquitousness of the law which prescribed that the record of such an offence should stand against defendant, "a gentleman whom he had known for so many years." The result was an excusing of the "laws that be" and almost an apology to the offender that there was no alternative but to inflict a fine, with the farcical infliction of a penalty of 1s. and 4s. 10d. costs; and thus, at any rate, in the eyes of the presiding magistrate, was the law vindicated. The figure justice is represented to us as being blind; can it be that this is a wise dispensation that she may not have to look upon some of her disciples. Not the slightest doubt can exist that the offence with which the hotelkeeper was charged was not a serious one, but that it was an offence no sane person will question, especially in the face of a plea of guilty being entered. Therefore we consider the maudlin sentiments of the Police Magistrate wholly out of place and unbecoming and such as did little credit to himself or the Bench of which he is the paid member. Was all the sympathy and consideration in this matter to be extended to the offender? Was the officer who fearlessly performed an unpleasant duty the only person that should have been made uncomfortable by the process of law? Senior-constable Harvey, as is well-known, is not in the habit of making fish of one offender and flesh of another, and under the instructions of his superior treated Mr. Kenna as he would, we believe, have treated the humblest publican in town. Should policemen, who act so conscientiously, have their vigilance reflected upon by the infliction of such inadequate punishment? Are they likely to be willing to do their duty when they see magistrates mincing their share of public responsibility? Considering there were no fair grounds of extenuation—the excuses being of the stereotyped order usually set forth by offending hotelkeepers caught napping—it is a matter for regret that a full measure of justice was not meted out. The infliction of anything like a substantial fine—especially on a defendant who could well afford to pay such—would have been attended with salutary results, and be likely to nerve the police in the more earnest performance of what is at best anything but a pleasant duty. The mincing policy of the Bench is in our opinion likely to have a disheartening and demoralizing effect on the force, as what constable will care to risk the displeasure of any hotelkeeper by performing his duty, when his reward will be to hear remarks which are virtually a reflection upon him, so apologetic are they on behalf of the offender? The harm that this judgment will cause cannot, we fear, be lightly estimated. A timidity of influence does not become the judgment seat, and magistrates, as well as others who administer the law, would do well to follow the fearless example of the Chief Justice—as evidenced in the Anderson-Fairfax cases—and not halt in the discharge of their duties, never mind how powerful or influential the party brought before them. It would have looked more like real unswerving justice had a material fine been inflicted in this case, for instead of—as has been the case—the police, who did not shirk their duty, being tacitly rebuked, it would have been a fitting encouragement to them to treat all publicans alike—whether rich or poor—and one that we think it was the first duty of the Bench to consider in the peculiar circumstances of the case brought under their notice.

The Licensing Bench, Orange, for favour of such observations as it may deem necessary.—H.E.C., 22/10/83. The Police Magistrate, Orange, B.C., 22nd October, 1883. Acknowledge and inform inquiry will be made in this matter.—23/10/83. Mr. Boyce, 23/10/83.

Rev. Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 23 October, 1883.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, respecting the case Police v. Kenna, heard before the Bench of Magistrates, Orange, and to inform you that due inquiry is being made in this matter.

The Police Magistrate, Orange, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Orange, 22 October, 1883.

Your attention having been drawn to a decision of the Licensing Bench here, in a case where Mr. P. Kenna was charged with selling after hours, I have the honor to attach a paragraph from the Western Advocate giving the facts of the case. They are substantially correct, and I believe if Mr. Kenna had not pleaded guilty we should have been justifiable in dismissing the case. Three of the persons were "travellers" “travellers” and could claim to be served in the bar; one was a lodger and could claim to be served in the adjoining room; the fifth was a townsman who was there on business but did not take anything to drink. When the constable entered the drinks were being drawn; if the “lodger” had not taken his glass there would certainly have been no offence against the laws. But one person who was a lodger, drinking at the bar with three travellers, on the eve of the departure of the latter, was a very trivial offence. The case never ought to have come into Court; such cases tend to bring our laws into disfavour.

I have, &c.,
JOHN T. LANE, P.M.

EXTRACT from Western Advocate, Orange, referred to in Mr. Lane's letter of the 22nd October, 1883.

Magisterial Functions.

IN the exercise of the duties pertaining to the Bench, a Magistrate should on all occasions temper justice with mercy, yet when cases arise in which it is expedient that leniency should be extended there are those who moved by some crotchet or personal feeling, resent that which really merits sympathy. Recently Mr. P. Kenna, innkeeper of this town, was summoned for a breach of the Licensing Act, and the offence appeared of so trivial a character that the Bench, consisting of the P.M. and J. Parker, Esq., J.P., imposed a merely nominal penalty. As the facts have not been presented we may state that a few weeks ago a gentleman, who was leaving the town, gave a dinner to a few friends at Mr. Kenna's hotel; the bulk of the company left before 11 o'clock; a few gentlemen, all of whom were bona fide travellers or lodgers remaining, awaiting the arrival of the 11.30 p.m. train, by which one of the number was to proceed to Blayney. Just before leaving a parting glass was suggested, to which all present were entitled under different conditions of the Act. When Mr. Kenna was in the act of drawing the liquor the police stepped in, and he was summoned for having his house open after hours, the side door being open. It appears that all the party stepped into the bar where there was a fire, whereas the Act provides that travellers may be served in the bar, whilst boarders may partake of refreshment in any part of the house. Will any reasonable being maintain that a serious breach was occasioned by a lodger who was entitled to take a drink in any adjoining room, sharing it in the bar with travellers? Sub-inspector Garvin at once stated that when the facts were made known to him he felt the case was one of the most trivial character, and that it should not stand as a record against Mr. Kenna. The Bench coincided with this view, and in imposing a nominal penalty carried out the instructions sent for their guidance, by imposing a merely nominal penalty. The Magistrates are instructed in carrying out the Act to do so in a manner to prevent it being oppressive, and under the circumstances narrated it must be seen they acted strictly in conformity with their duty and in accordance with the trivial nature of the charge.

Explanation herewith.—W.E.P., 23/10/83. Before expressing any opinion upon this case it would be advisable that the Licensing Bench should see the article from the Orange Liberal, and make such observations thereon as may be deemed necessary.—H.E.C., 24/10/83. The Police Magistrate, Orange, B.C., 25th October, 1883.—W. E. PLUNKETT. To be returned.

No. 4.

The Police Magistrate, Orange, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Orange, 30 October, 1883.

Re Kenna's case, I have the honor to report as follows:—

The facts are these: Mr. P. Kenna was summoned before the Orange Licensing Bench on the 1st instant for a breach of the 63rd section of the Licensing Act, and pleaded guilty.

On the night in question a banquet was given by Mr. V. Heaton at defendant's public-house, on the eve of his departure from Orange. The company broke up shortly before 11 p.m. Five—three of whom were magistrates residing in Bathurst and Blayney—remained in the parlor up stairs waiting the arrival of the 11.40 train from Dubbo. One of these suggested they should go down stairs to the bar where there was a fire, and where they could better hear the train coming. Just as the train was arriving, one of the party said let us have a drink before we leave; the three travellers and the lodger had one but the town resident had not. Whilst the drinks were being drawn the Police came in, and before Mr. Heaton had taken his. The case was reported to Mr. Sub-inspector Garvin, and he summoned Mr. Kenna. Mr. Garvin is not an officer who would show favor to any one; his last quarterly report shows the conviction against Mr. Kenna.

I cannot be responsible for newspaper reports. The article in question is malicious and very far fetched. I never, as insinuated by the Liberal, apologise to any man for anything I do in the execution of my duty.

I again maintain that this was not a case meriting more than a mere nominal fine. It was never contemplated that the laws should apply to such a case at all. Kindly see my former memo.

The article is full of venom and is the production of a most vindictive person—personally hostile to Mr. Kenna, and notoriously an old and bitter enemy of mine.

The Western Advocate's report is true and reliable; the strictures of the Liberal are untrue, beyond the fact that Kenna was fined one shilling and costs.

Hoping the Minister will consider this explanation, with the former one, and the paragraph from the Western Advocate, satisfactory.

I have, &c.,
JOHN T. LANE, P.M.

From the report of Mr. Lane I think the case a trivial one, and the fine imposed ample. Mr. Lane denies having reflected upon the law as alleged in the article extracted from the Liberal, and I accept his disclaimer. As the conviction against Mr. Kenna appeared in the last quarterly return of convictions my interference in this respect is not needed.—H.E.C., 2/11/83. Inform Mr. Boyce, of N.S.W. Local Option League, in terms of above minute.—H.E.C., 2/11/83. Revd. Mr. Boyce.—5/11/83.

With reference to your letter of the 19th ultimo, bringing under notice the case of the Police v. Patrick Kenna, for a breach of the Licensing Act, heard before the Licensing Bench at Orange, I am directed to inform you that under reports received from Mr. Lane, the Licensing Magistrate, upon the subject, the Minister of Justice thinks the case a trivial one, and that the fine imposed was ample.

I am to add that Mr. Lane denies having reflected upon the law as alleged in the article extracted from the Liberal and Mr. Cohen accepts his disclaimer ; and as the conviction against Mr. Kenna appeared in the last quarterly return of convictions the Minister's interference in this respect is not needed.

JOSIAH PARKER, J.P.

Mary Fahey, on oath, states: I know the prisoner now before the Court; I saw him on Sunday last coming towards Kangarooie; he was on horseback; I was going in an opposite direction, towards Wattle Flat; it was 10 miles from Orange where I met the prisoner, and the nearest house was about a quarter of a mile; when I first met him the prisoner said "Good day, Mary, or 'halloo'"; the prisoner knew me well from childhood; when he spoke we both pulled up, and remained talking for about 10 minutes; we then parted, and I continued my journey on to Wattle Flat, the residence of my parents; he then turned round and said, "I'll go a piece of the way with you"; this was about half-past 1 o'clock p.m.; it was about a quarter-past 10 when I passed the post-office in Orange; I asked the prisoner what time he thought it was; looking up at the sun he replied about half-past 1; we cantered on for about a quarter of a mile when he reached his arm out, putting it round my neck, and tried to kiss me; I pushed his arm away; we then continued on our way for another quarter of a mile, when he asked me to get off; we were cantering at the time; I said, "No"; he then rode up, caught hold of my horse's bridle-rein, and pulled my horse up; he asked me to get off and sit on a log and have a yarn; the road is not fenced in and there is a bush on either side; he got off his horse and came round to my horse's head; the prisoner again asked me to get off; I said "No"; he then put his arms around my waist and tried to pull me off; when he couldn't get me off he pulled the saddle right round to my horse's side; I came gradually to the ground, with his arms still round my waist; he then took my horse and tied it to his horse's rein and tied them both to a sapling; he then came towards me, picked me up in his arms, and carried me about 10 or 15 yards off into the bush; he then said, "Come over here, sit down, and have a yarn"; I asked him to let me go; he made no reply, but threw me down; I was in his arms at the time; he held me down with his left hand and rose my skirt with his right; I am quite sure it was his hand that rose my skirt; I felt his hand on my leg below the knee; I then screamed as hard as I could; he then let me up; I went to my horse; he said, "I'll put you on"? I said "No, I can get on myself"; "Hugh Wright," I said, "you are a dirty filthy dog, you have got sisters of your own"; I got on my horse myself; he then said, "You do call a fellow some names"; I then pursued my journey home alone; there was no one present when this happened, nor was any one present when I screamed; I have known the prisoner nine years, and I am turned nineteen; I have no doubt whatever but this is the man that committed the offence; when he threw me down he threw me on my back; he was leaning over me at the time.

By Mr. Lachlan (Counsel for Defence): I have told you all that was said and done, I am quite sure of that; I had been friendly with the prisoner before, I have not been unfriendly to my knowledge; there has not been any courting between us; I was never jealous about him and another girl; I never expressed any annoyance at the fact, nor have I made any complaint to his parents about staying out late at night; I don't remember making any complaint about his going with another girl named Corby; I won't swear positively that I never made such complaint because I don't remember; I don't know that my father ever wanted the prisoner to marry me; when I finally parted with the prisoner I was about 2¼ miles from my home; I got home about five minutes past 2 by my father's clock; it was about half an hour from the time prisoner and I parted; my horse was neither lively nor tired; I rode the horse pretty quickly from Orange cantering all the way until I met the prisoner; from the time I met the prisoner until I parted from him an half-hour must have elapsed; my saddle was a three-pronged one, and I was on a small horse; when the saddle came off it came off on the near side; at the same time he was pulling me off he was holding the reins on his arms; when he got off his horse the prisoner had hold of mine; the prisoner got off his horse on the near side; he rode on the off side; all the time the prisoner was in company with me he rode on the off side; when I was pulled off the horse I was about a quarter of a mile from a house I know as Holloway's; I could not see the house from where I was; when we passed the house we were within a hundred yards of it; I saw no person about it; I had a riding-whip, but I did not use it in any way against the prisoner; he was about 3 minutes tying the reins together to a sapling; while he was doing this I was about 4 yards from him, not held in any way, and I stood still not saying or doing anything; I did not prevent him from tying up the horse, nor did I attempt to run away to Holloway's; I tried to keep on my feet, but I couldn't; when he got me down he held me by my right arm close to my shoulder; when I was lying down I was lying down straight on my back; I laid there about a minute and struggled much; I first screamed when he commenced to carry me and continued so until he let me go; he did not let me go of his own accord; I believe I overpowered him and made him let me go; he did not attempt to touch me any further; when we parted he went towards Kangarooie and I home; I had on the same riding-habit and hat as I have on now; they are not damaged in any way or marked; they are in the same way now as they were then, I have not brushed either of them; none of my clothes were damaged in any way; when I was held down the only part of the prisoner's body that was on me was his left hand on my arm; when I got home my father and mother were there, and I told them at once what had happened; the prisoner's place is about three-quarters of a mile from our place; I don't know whether my father or mother went across to prisoner's father's place; I came in on Sunday evening by myself and got into Orange about 6 o'clock; I went for the police that night; I came in by the Molong Road; there was no reason why my father and mother did not come in with me beyond the fact that he had no horse ; my father came in on Monday, but did not go with me to the police ; I yesterday morning caused a summons to be issued against the prisoner for common assault ; it was about 12 or 1 when I took the summons out ; I came back to Sub-Inspector Garvan because I took a second thought, viz., that I could get the prisoner arrested at once, and that a summons was not needed.

By Mr. Kearney (Counsel for prosecution) : I did not run away when the prisoner was tying up the horse because I knew it was no use ; before the prisoner took me up in his arms I did not know what he was going to do ; I screamed and struggled, but could not kick as I was in such a state of terror.

Hugh Wright, charged with attempting to commit a rape on one Mary Fahey, continued from 9th October. BEFORE this case was entered into, as a fresh information for an aggravated assault upon a female had been laid, it was agreed upon both by the counsel for prosecution and counsel for the defence that the case should be altered to one of an aggravated assault upon a female, "under sec. 65, Criminal Law," and upon the evidence arrived at in the former case, on Tuesday, the 9th October last, and which is attached hereto, the prisoner Wright was fined in the sum of £10 ; professional costs, £5 5s. ; and costs of Court, 5s. 10d., making a total of £15 5s. 10d. ; in default, three months in Orange Gaol with hard labour.—See Charge Book, page 39.

No. 2.

The Police Magistrate, Orange, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Orange, 22 October, 1883.

In reply to your telegram re charge of rape referred to, I have the honor to state :—

1. Mary Fay complained to me of one Hugh Wright having assaulted her ; and after questioning her very closely as to what he did, I concluded it was nothing more than a common assault, and issued a summons accordingly.
2. After she left me some one persuaded her to go to Mr. Garvin (Sub-inspector) and prefer a charge of "attempt to rape;" and the man was arrested. To me she denied that he did more than carry her some 10 or 15 yards, and when he laid her down he put his hand on her ankle. I asked her if he put his hand up under her clothes, or pulled, or tried to pull them, and she distinctly said "No."
3. After the case had occupied the Bench (three Magistrates) the greater part of the day, I stated that the evidence did not substantiate the alleged charge or offence, and suggested to the counsel, employed on both sides, that they should consent to proceed for common assault. Mr. M'Lachlan (counsel for prisoner) said he was instructed that his client could prove the charge to be an invention, and the prisoner was remanded for a week.
4. When the case was called the second day Mr. Kearney (counsel for prosecution) proposed to adopt the course I had suggested ; and by consent, on both sides, the prisoner was dealt with for common assault, under the 65th sec. of 46 Vic. No. 17, and we (Mr. Torpy and self) imposed a penalty of £10 professional, and Court costs £5 9s. 10d., or in default six months' Orange Gaol, hard labour.

The depositions taken the first day shall be forwarded as desired. In the common assault case there were none taken.

We had good reason to believe the fine would have to be paid by the father or we should have imposed a heavier amount. The intention of the fellow was not rape, it was no doubt a try on.

We are quite satisfied that justice was done in the case.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

The Police Magistrate, Orange, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Police Office, Orange, 22 April, 1884.

In forwarding the accompanying papers, I have the honor to state that the evidence, in the case M'Nevin v. Louisa Bradford, was not taken in writing, at the suggestion of Counsel pro and con.

Complainant swore he was the Crown lessee of the land in question, and had been so for over twenty years, and the improvements for which he was claiming compensation were worth £30. Mr. Busby, licensed surveyor, knew the land, measured it, and believed the clearing of the ten acres was worth £25. Mr. Finch had known the land for many years, and valued the improvements at £2 per acre, but admitted they might be worth £2 10s. Defendant placed little or no value on them, nor did her son. Her other witness estimated them at £1 or £1 5s. per acre, but thought there were only six or seven acres. The attorney for defendant, in addressing the Bench, made some objectionable remarks in reference to the feeling existing between the squatters and free selectors, which caused the Honorable John Smith to leave the Bench, and of course my brother also. Mr. Betts did not hear the whole of the evidence, and could not adjudicate. In coming to my decision I was guided by the evidence of Messrs. Busby and Finch; they were experienced in these matters, and were disinterested parties.

My three brother Magistrates told me afterwards that they concurred in my decision; but it might have been better if I had given for the amount of Mr. Finch's lowest estimate—£2 per acre.

The Hon. J. Norton, M.L.C., to The Attorney-General.

My dear Dalley,

No. 2, O'Connell-street, Sydney, 31 March, 1884.

The idiots who adjudicated in Traill's case ought to be compelled to pay the £5 14s. 4d. out of their own pockets, on pain of being superseded, for the most gross incompetence or possibly for something worse.

The dog in question is a brute (without admitted owner) which has been in the habit of attacking my cousin's (W. H. Mackenzie's) children and other people in the neighbourhood.

On 17th instant it flew at the throat of Mackenzie's little girl, about seven years old, when Traill (her brother-in-law) very properly seized a gun and shot it; but as it was not killed he tried to kill it with the butt end of the gun, when the stock broke, and he ran into the house for a revolver, and while there the dog escaped and he could not find what had become of it.

It is a little too much that vicious brutes are to be protected in order that they may tear inoffensive children to pieces.

Yours, &c.,
JAMES NORTON.

Ill-treatment of a dog.

INSPECTOR WEBBER appeared at the Liverpool Police Court yesterday to prosecute Sydney R. Traill for ill-treatment of a dog on the 17th instant. The evidence showed that the defendant fired two charges of No. 5 shot into a half-bred cattle and retriever dog, and, failing to kill it, used the butt end of the gun till the stock was broken, without the necessary effect. The dog was still alive and in great pain on the following evening, when the owner found it and had it destroyed.

The Bench, composed of Messrs. Murray and Scrivener, fined the defendant 40s., 7s. 4d. costs of Court, £2 2s. professional costs, and 25s. for witnesses expenses. Mr. Murray, in giving judgment, expressed the sympathy of the Bench with the Animals Protection Society and its work. Mr. C. Bull, of Bull & Bull, conducted the prosecution.

No. 2.

The Bench of Magistrates, Liverpool, to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

Court-house, Liverpool, 6 May, 1884.

In reply to your favour of the 8th ultimo, we must express surprise that so insulting a document as Mr. Norton's letter has been forwarded to this Bench for report. It is to be regretted that a member of the legal profession, and a gentleman, could have written such a letter, considering that it must have been written without seeing the depositions or knowing anything of the real merits of the case.

The dog had a registered owner, and who was present in Court. Evidence was given that the dog was a quiet animal, of which fact the owner had several witnesses in Court to prove. Mr. Mackenzie had never personally or in writing complained to the owner. The manner of killing the dog, as borne out by the evidence, was brutal in the extreme; and unless Mr. Norton wishes to reason that Magistrates are to rule their decisions by the position of defendants, we cannot see how, had he been acquainted with the facts, he would have concluded other than that the verdict was right, tending rather to leniency than otherwise.

As adjudicating Magistrates we have been unable to reply to one or two paragraphs that have appeared in the S. M. Herald, as also to the report that Inspector Webber, of the Animals Protection Society, had been censured for taking proceedings. This matter may come before that Society again with a different result. For ourselves—as this letter of Mr. Norton's has been sent through the Department of Justice, stamped as an official document, and has otherwise been made a public matter—we would respectfully, but firmly (with your approval), request that the correspondence, together with the depositions taken in the case, should be handed to the S. M. Herald, the newspaper in which the paragraphs were published.

Margaret Hellmers, being duly sworn on oath, states as follows: I am the daughter of John Frederick Hellmers, and live with my father at Canley Vale; I know Mr. Traill by sight; I remember Monday, the 17th of the present month; I was on the platform with my cousin, Emmie Crook; I know a black dog belonging to my father; this dog followed us to the platform; I came up along the Government road; we were on the platform; the dog was on the line nearly opposite the platform; Mr. Traill came through the gate; I saw him raise the gun and shoot the dog twice; I saw the dog go under the platform; I saw Mr. Traill follow it; we were within 10 yards of the dog; he beat the dog with the stock, holding the barrel in his hand; it was a double-barrelled gun; he struck the dog certainly more than twice, the dog making a noise; the dog ceased making a noise, and Mr. Traill went away; the train from Liverpool had not arrived at that time; I saw Mr. Mackenzie afterwards, but I cannot say if he was on the platform before; I did not see anything to induce Mr. Traill to shoot or ill-use the dog; when Mr. Traill left I went round the back and tried to get the dog, but I saw it was unable to get up; the dog was quite sound before it was shot; it was a very quiet dog, and used to follow the children up to the platform nearly every day; nobody ever complained of the dog; the dog never attacked anything to my knowledge; I did not see the dog again; we were just going home when Mr. Traill said, "What shall I do with the dog; its leg is broken?" I said, "Do what you like about it—it is better dead than in misery"; and said, "You will hear more about it"; this was the first time Mr. Traill spoke to me about it; the dog was in pain; the dog came on the platform with us, but I cannot say whether it left afterwards; I never noticed if the dog followed us all the way or left us; the dog was shot about 8 minutes after we got on the platform; went into a little house on the platform and came out.

By defendant: I do not know what the dog was doing.

By Mr. Bull: The dog was shot on the 17th, between 6 and 7 o'clock.

John Frederick Hellmers, on oath, states as follows: I am a carpenter and reside at Canley Vale; I remember the 17th of this month; from information received I accompanied White to the Canley Vale platform at night between 7 and 8 o'clock; we were in search of a dog—a black dog—half-bred cattle and retriever; we searched where White pointed out; did not find the dog; I received further information, and made a second search twenty to twenty-four hours after we first went to look for the dog, and found it about 50 yards from the platform alive; it was lying looking at me in a pitiful way; it could not walk or run; the dog had been from the time it was shot up to that time without food or water; I had the dog shot; I gave information to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; the dog was harmless; I had had no complaint about the dog from anybody.

Johanna Isdale, on oath, states as follows: I am the wife of James Isdale, and live at Canley Vale; I know a black dog belonging to Mr. Hellmers; I accompanied Mr. Hellmers about 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening; I saw the dog near the Canley Vale platform in a gully; it was alive; I heard the shots fired the evening before; I am sure it was the same dog; I saw it run across to where it was lying; I saw it leave the platform for this place; the dog was unable to get up; the dog was then shot dead.

For the Defence.

William Henry Mackenzie, being duly sworn, on oath, states as follows: I am an assurance agent, and reside at Canley Vale; I remember the 17th of the present month, we arrived by the train that reaches Canley Vale a few minutes past 6 o'clock; just as we reached my house, when one of my little daughters, about seven years of age, was going from my house to my mother's with a message, when about half way across my paddock, a large black dog, said to belong to Mr. Hellmers, rushed at her in my paddock; the child screamed; Mr. Traill immediately seized a gun, followed the dog up, and returned back quickly; Mr. Traill said something to me; I handed a revolver to Mr. Traill, who went to find the dog for the purpose of killing it; after Mr. Traill returned I sent a man who was working for me with one of my sons to see if they could find the dog; they came back in about 20 minutes; they did not find the dog; next morning I got up about 6 o'clock, went over to the platform in search of the dog, and all round for some distance, and could not find it; this dog has been the cause of great trouble to us; it has flown at myself and everyone on my premises; about six months ago this dog with another dog flew at two of my daughters, and Mr. Hellmers shot one dog.

By the Bench: I did not complain to Mr. Hellmers personally; not 5 minutes elapsed between the shooting the dog and forwarding the revolver.

By Mr. Bull: This dog was a large one; I saw Mr. Traill run out with a gun; he said he had spoken to Miss Hellmers; I know the dog was wounded; he said I shot the dog and tried to hit it with the butt, but missed the dog and hit the ground, and broke the butt on the ground.

Sydney Robert Traill, on oath, states as follows: I am an assurance underwriter, and reside at Canley Vale; I remember the 17th of the present month; I was in the house after 6 o'clock; I heard a child scream, and went into the verandah; saw her pointing to a dog—screaming; I went out, brought the child in; she was in a state of abject terror; I got a gun, followed the animal up, fired twice at it, it then ran under the platform; I tried to club it, making a hit, missed the dog, hit the ground, and broke the stock; I hit once; I then went back to the house, got a small revolver on my way back; I spoke to Miss Hellmers and the other witness, White; I then went and tried to dispatch the dog; the dog had moved to nearly the other end of the platform; two of Mr. Mackenzie's boys were with me; on approaching the railway fence the dog got up and crossed the line at a very fair pace, and I thought as I had fired with small shot it could not have been much hurt; I did not follow it up, as I did not know where it would take me to.

By Mr. Bull: I said to Miss Hellmers that I thought it had a leg broken; at first I had a double-barrelled breech-loader, 12 or 14 bore, 5 shot; I let him have both barrels; I was excited and angry because I heard the child screaming; I saw nothing.

It was very improper to have sent the Liverpool Bench the original letter of Mr. Norton; and care should have been taken to have forwarded only such extracts from it as dealt with the circumstances of the case referred to.

Minute of Hon. James Norton, M.L.C.

Webber v. Traill.

I WAS not a little surprised to find that a strictly private and confidential note, written by me in March last to my intimate friend and present colleague the Attorney-General, had, by some unintelligible process, been converted into a public official document open to inspection to all the world.

As I cannot imagine any other reason why the production of that note should be moved for in the Assembly than the desire to annoy the Ministry, of which I have now the honor to be a Member; I think it right to state that when it was written I was not a Minister, and had not the most remote idea of ever being placed in so high and responsible a position. Having, however, subsequently accepted the office of Postmaster-General, I consider it right that I should explain the circumstances under which the note was written. About 21st March last my cousin, W. H. Mackenzie, of Canley Vale, informed me that his son-in-law, the defendant, had been most unjustly fined at Liverpool for cruelty to a dog, the history of the case being as follows:—There had been in the neighbourhood two mongrel brutes which were in the constant habit of attacking people and making themselves generally offensive. Of course no one would admit ownership; but some time afterwards one of the dogs flew at the throat of Mackenzie's little girl, and being immediately followed to the house where it took refuge, the occupant consented to destroy it then and there; the other dog still remained carrying on his old tricks; and having attacked another of Mackenzie's children, who screamed out in terror, the defendant (her brother-in-law) ran out with the first weapon on which he could lay his hands, namely, a gun, which happened to be loaded with bird-shot only, and fired at the dog without waiting to calculate whether he could thereby kill it instantaneously. The brute was brought to the ground; but not being killed outright, Traill endeavoured to put it out of pain by striking it with the butt end of the gun, which broke in his hands, and he then ran back for a pistol, but before his return the dog had made off and could not afterwards be found.

Mr. Webber, the Inspector of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was then persuaded to prosecute Traill, who was fined in the sum of £2, and the further sum of £3 14s. 4d. by way of costs; and it was then virtually decided that any man has a right to keep savage worthless mongrels for the purpose of worrying his neighbour's children, and that any attempt to defend the children is to be put down summarily by fine and perhaps imprisonment. On hearing these facts I felt it my duty to call the attention of my friend the Attorney-General to the gross miscarriage of justice which had, according to my information, taken place; and in order to insure his taking immediate action I let my opinion of the matter appear pretty strongly.

The letter was of course written in the full belief that the facts above stated had been adduced in evidence before the adjudicating Magistrates, but if I was wrong in such belief (and I have not yet seen a copy of the evidence), I have no hesitation in admitting that I would not have written in such strong language (if at all) to the Attorney-General, notwithstanding my conviction that the contents of my letter would never meet any other eye than his own.

No. 2.

The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade to Mr. F. Macnab.

Sir,

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 15 August, 1883.

Referring to a sum of £4,887, lodged by you in the Treasury on 7th instant, represented in your voucher as being the amount of your collections from 1st January to 1st August, 1883, I have the honor, by direction of the Colonial Treasurer, to point out that the Rule of Court provides for quarterly lodgments, and to state that Mr. Dibbs will be glad to learn whether there was any special reason for departure from such rule in the instance now under review?

I have, &c.,

No. 3.

Mr. F. Macnab to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Gowrie Chambers, Sydney, 20 August, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 16th instant relative to the amount of £4,887 lodged by me in the Treasury on 7th instant, and represented by voucher as being the amount (balance) of collections from 1st January to 1st August, 1883, and also desiring to know whether there was any special reason for the delay.

My appointment dates from the 14th February, 1883, and towards the end of that month I took charge.

On entering upon my duties I found irregularities in some of the accounts, and irrespective of some deficiencies there was deposited in the City Bank a sum of (say) £364 odd belonging to various Estates which was supposed to be in my possession or at my disposal.

This sum, less about £5, was handed by the Bank to the Curator of Intestate Estates, who had administered to the late Official Assignee's private estate, and being retained by him was not available for the use of the various estates concerned.

On 31st March negotiations were pending with a view to getting the Curator to hand over the above amount, and also with the sureties through their solicitor to pay up the amount of certain deficiencies.

Under these circumstances I hesitated to hand in to the Court an account which though it would show the actual moneys that came into my hands and how dealt with would not truly represent the various Estates.

On 30th June matters remained in the same state, and accounts were again delayed for the same reason, though by this time the propriety of handing over the public moneys by the Curator had come before the Court in its Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction for decision.

So soon as the moneys from the Curator came into my hands and I was called upon by order of the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to file accounts I did so and paid the amount of collections in my hands into the Treasury as per voucher dated 7th instant.

Henceforth I will furnish accounts and moneys upon the dates required by the law and the rules of Court.

I have, &c.,

FRANCIS MACNAB,
Official Assignee.

I think this explanation might be accepted, as Mr. Macnab is new to office and I understand received no instructions from the Chief Commissioner in Insolvency on the subject.—J.T., 22/8/83.

The Registrar in Insolvency to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 31 August, 1883.

I am directed by the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to inform you that Mr. Francis Macnab, one of the Official Assignees in Insolvency, did not comply with the requirements of the Act 20 Vic., No. 11, and of the Rules of Court thereunder, and of the rules 13 and 14 in Insolvency (as established 21st day of January, 1862) by paying into the Colonial Treasury the several sums of money in his hands as Official Assignee on the 31st March last and on the 30th June last, and respectively payable on the 5th April last and 5th July last.

Mr. Macnab was required, by order of 2nd instant, to show cause why he should not do so, and on the 7th instant the lump sum of £4,887 was paid in and a Treasury receipt for the same, and a statement of account lodged.

By a subsequent report, filed on the 21st instant, the several sums of £935 13s. 4d. and £2,935 12s. 6d. appeared to have been in hand on 31st March and 30th June last respectively, and which ought to have been, but were not, paid on 5th April and 5th July last respectively into the Colonial Treasury.

No reasons or grounds were advanced in excuse of these failures to comply with the Act and Rules in question, as will appear by the account and report and proceedings which are in the custody of the Registrar in Insolvency, and His Honor stated on the 27th instant that he considered it his duty to report to the Government, for the information of the Colonial Treasurer, the specific amounts payable into the Treasury on the 5th April and 5th July last.

A similar communication has been made by His Honor to the Chief Justice.

I have, &amp;c.,

ARTHUR HENRY,

Registrar in Insolvency.

A copy of this communication might be prepared to be forwarded with a letter from the Minister of Justice to the Chief Justice inviting His Honor to call upon Mr. Macnab to explain why he has not complied with the requirements of the Act 20 Vic., No. 11, and the Rules of Court thereunder, and that he be required to so explain without delay.—W.E.P., 8/9/83. Approved.—H.E.C., 13/9/83. Letter to Chief Justice (with copy).—14/9/83.

In transmitting to your Honor the enclosed copy of a letter from the Registrar in Insolvency, bringing under notice the omission on the part of Mr. Francis Macnab, one of the Official Assignees, to comply with the Act 20 Vic., No. 11, and the Rules of Court thereunder, by not paying into the Treasury certain moneys in his hands, I do myself the honor to invite you to be good enough to call upon Mr. Macnab to furnish without delay an explanation as to why he has not complied with the requirements of the said Act and Rules of Court, as disclosed by his report to the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates.

In reply to your communication of the 14th instant, received yesterday, I beg to say that on the 30th ultimo I called on Mr. M'Nab to report on the matter to which you refer, the same having been brought under my notice by the Chief Commissioner. I enclose copies of Mr. Deffell's letter, Mr. M'Nab's answer, and Mr. Deffell's comments thereon. It does not appear to me that anything further need be done. In giving you this information (which I do as a matter of courtesy to you personally) I would wish you to understand that I take exception to your apparent dictation to me of the steps which I ought to take against an officer exclusively under my jurisdiction.

The Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Insolvency Chambers, 30 August, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that Mr. Francis M'Nab, one of the Official Assignees of Insolvent Estates, did not comply with the requirements of the Act 20 Vic., No. 11, and of the Rules of Court thereunder, and of the Rules 13 and 14 in Insolvency (as established 21st January, 1862) by paying into the Colonial Treasury the several sums of money in his hands as Official Assignee on the 31st March last and on the 30th June last, and respectively payable on the 5th April last and 5th July last.

I required him by order of 2nd instant to show cause why he should not do so, and on the 7th instant the lump sum of £4,887 was paid in, and a Treasury receipt for the same, and a statement of account lodged.

By a subsequent report, filed on the 21st instant (which on the 16th instant I had required), the several sums of £935 13s. 4d. and £2,935 12s. 6d. appeared to have been in hand on the said 31st March and the said 30th June last respectively, and which ought to have been, but were not, paid on the 5th April and 5th July last respectively into the Colonial Treasury.

No reasons or grounds were advanced in excuse of these failures to comply with the Act and Rules in question, as will appear by the account and report and proceedings, which are in the custody of the Registrar in Insolvency; and I stated on the 27th instant that I considered it my duty to make this communication to yourself as the Chief Justice, and that the specific amounts payable into the Colonial Treasury on the 5th April and 5th July last should be reported, for the information of the Treasurer, to the Government.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Mr. F. Macnab to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Sydney, 1 September, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the report of His Honor the Chief Commissioner of Insolvency regarding the delay in furnishing accounts and paying money into the Treasury.

My appointment dates from the 14th of February, and I took charge about the 22nd. On investigating the amounts I found that there was a sum of £2,137 14s. 9d. short in various estates, which need not be here referred to, further than to state that after a short time, under advice from my solicitor, I reported the matter to the Registrar in Insolvency.

There was a further sum of £364 odd deposited in the City Bank to the credit of the Official Assignee belonging to various estates, which directly affected the amounts in my books. This sum, after deducting £5, was handed by the Bank to the Curator of Intestate Estates, who had administered to the late Mr. Sandeman's private estate.

On the 31st March last I had in hand £935 13s. 4d., and negotiations were then pending with the sureties (or rather with the Insurance Company who indemnifies the sureties) to pay over the amount due by them, and with the Curator to hand over the public money in his hands. Under these circumstances I delayed filing amounts or paying into the Treasury the amount in my hands, because, though it would represent the amount collected by me, it would not truly represent the various estates which must necessarily be shown in detail in the amounts to be supplied to the Court, and thus my accounts would be subject to challenge for inaccuracy.

Up to the 30th June last a further sum of £2,935 12s. 6d. had come into my hands, but the difficulty of filing an accurate amount remained, as the Curator, who had by this time been applied to through the Court, had not yet handed over the amount in his hands, and the filing of amounts, &c., was again delayed.

Up to the 31st July a further sum of £1,015 14s. 2d. had been collected (including £359 1s. 8d. from the Curator), and immediately after the vacation, and upon His Honor's order, amounts were filed, and all the money in hand into the Treasury, viz., £4,887.

A further order was made by His Honor the Chief Commissioner requiring me to show the sums in hand on the 31st March and 30th June respectively, which was immediately complied with, and no disrespect whatever was intended to His Honor in not giving explanations or going beyond the letter of the order made, which did not appear to me to call for or suggest such explanations.

The next amounts and payments into the Treasury will be due on the 5th of October next, and due care will be taken that they are sent up at the proper time, and for the future at the end of every quarter, as the rule of Court requires.

I have, &amp;c.,

FRANCIS MACNAB,

Official Assignee.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

The Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to The Chief Justice.

My Dear Chief Justice,

Supreme Court Insolvency Chambers, 3 September, 1883.

I believe that the facts stated in Mr. Francis Macnab's letter of 1st instant are accurate, so that he may be morally excused; nevertheless by the exigency of the Act 20 Vic. No. 11, and of the Rules, the Treasury may have been damaged by the various sums of money not having been paid in at the due dates (I believe that daily interest on balances is obtained from the Bank for the benefit of the Consolidated Revenue), and thus a claim might arise, unless the Government, after a knowledge of the circumstances of the case, should refrain from making the same.

I have, &amp;c.,

GEORGE H. DEFFELL.

No. 7.

The Minister of Justice to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 24 September, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of date the 19th instant, and to thank you for the information contained in your reply to my communication of the 14th instant. I regret that in furnishing this information you should have felt it necessary to acquaint me that it was forwarded simply on grounds of courtesy to me personally, and that you take exception to what you describe as my apparent dictation to you of the steps which you ought to take against an officer exclusively under your jurisdiction. I desire, however, to inform you that I am quite unable to regard the letter which I addressed to you as being in the least degree of a dictatorial character; but, on the contrary, I regard it as one which carefully recognized your exclusive authority to deal with the officer in question.

I had received a report from the Registrar in Insolvency bringing under my notice an omission of an Official Assignee to comply with the law. It was pointed out by the Registrar that this Official Assignee had irregularly retained in his own hands sums amounting to £3,817 5s. 10d., which should have been paid into the Treasury on the 5th of April, and which had increased to £4,887 on the 5th of July last. These very large sums were not, as a matter of fact, paid in until the 7th of last month, and not then until the Assignee had been required by the Registrar to show cause why he should not pay in these moneys in accordance with the law. Bearing in mind the grave scandals and serious public losses which have been caused by the defalcations of Official Assignees within a very short period, and the openly-expressed public dissatisfaction at the want of efficient governmental supervision of these officers, I deemed it my duty to invite your attention to this matter, to which my own, as the Minister at the head of the Department of Justice had been officially directed by the Registrar in the discharge of his duty.

I have, &amp;c.,

H. E. COHEN.

No. 8.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 8 October, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th September, which I have not had time to answer till now. But for your expressions of a contrary opinion I should have thought that no one would deny that your invitation to me to take a particular and specified course with reference to an officer under my exclusive jurisdiction amounted to dictation. This assumption of authority on your part I felt bound to point out and take exception to, more especially as on a previous occasion you (no doubt unwittingly) attempted to interfere with the Prothonotary in the discharge of his official duties as an officer of this Court. Your proper course in the present case would have been to inquire whether Mr. Macnab's conduct had been brought under my notice, when you would at once have ascertained that the matter which you complained of had been promptly dealt with by me. In any case, all that you need have communicated to me was the fact of the alleged misconduct of this assignee, leaving it to me to take the steps which the occasion required.

I have no information as to the "grave scandals" to which you refer, nor do I see (whatever they may have been) how they could have made it necessary or proper for you to communicate with me in the terms which you employed. The "defalcations" which you mention are much to be regretted, but when they were made the subject of debate in the Assembly (as I understand they were), coupled with the statement, among others, that Mr. Sandeman, one of the defaulting assignees, had been an insolvent before I appointed him, it would not have been inappropriate for the head of the Administration to have informed the House that he and Mr. J. B. Watt, the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, were that gentleman's sureties. As you and your colleagues are no doubt aware, from your own experience, the exercise of patronage is not at all times pleasant, and I have no wish to retain any that can with propriety be given up. I cannot, however, help saying that the readiness with which you are reported to have acquiesced in the suggestion to take the appointment of the Official Assignees out of the hands of the Chief Justice and put it in that of the Minister for Justice took me a little by surprise, as did also the countenance given by the Members of the Government present to ex parte statements and to opinions adverse to the judicial actions of my predecessor, the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates, and myself.

I have, &c.,
JAMES MARTIN.

No. 9.

The Minister of Justice to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 16 October, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, in answer to mine of the 24th September, and to express my regret that, notwithstanding my assurance, you were unable to relieve me from the imputation of having dictated to you in a matter under your exclusive jurisdiction, and that you also charged me with having attempted to interfere with the Prothonotary in the discharge of his official duties as an officer of the Supreme Court.

Without entering into the question with you of what would have been my proper course to pursue (concerning which I may remark that, as I am alone responsible for that course, I, and not you, can be the only judge of its propriety), I may be again permitted to point out to you that I took no step whatever till my attention was officially drawn to the matter by the Chief Commissioner in Insolvency, who felt it his duty, on the 31st August last, to inform me of Mr. MacNab's delays in making his payments and to apprise me that no reasons or grounds were advanced in excuse of his failures to comply with the Act and rules.

The information concerning the grave scandals to which I referred in my letter was of so notorious a character that I did not deem it necessary to allude to it in any specific terms.

I fail to perceive how the fact of the head of the Administration having been, unfortunately for himself, one of the sureties of Mr. Sandeman, as Official Assignee, bears upon the question of whether I have infringed upon your exclusive jurisdiction, and I must respectfully decline to discuss with you what would or would not have been appropriate for my colleague to have informed the House on the occasion to which you refer, and I must equally abstain from making any observations as to the policy of the Government concerning the future appointment of Official Assignees.

I have, &c.,
H. E. COHEN.

No. 10.

Mr. F. Macnab to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

61, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 22 October, 1883.

I have the honor to refer to an Order made, on the motion of Mr. Griffiths, M.P., "That there be laid on the Table copies of all correspondence between the Registrar of the Insolvent Court, the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates, the Chief Justice, the Minister of Justice, and Mr. Francis Macnab, Official Assignee, in reference to payments by the latter into the Treasury of moneys realized in Insolvent Estates."

There was some delay in paying these moneys into the Treasury, as will be seen by the correspondence.

Under the circumstances, however, I should be glad if you would cause my cash-book to be examined by an officer of your Department, in order that he may see when these moneys came into my hands and when they were paid into my official account.

I send my official Bank pass-book for the inspection of the proper officer of your Department, which will show that these moneys were always available; and the pass-book can be verified at the Bank if desired.

I have, &c.,
FRANCIS MACNAB,
Official Assignee.

Mr. Thomson will please have this matter looked into, and if upon examination the money was available as alleged I see no reason why a minute to that effect should not be signed by him and forwarded, with a copy of this letter, to the Justice Department, to be printed with other correspondence.—G.R.D., 24/10/83. Mr. Thomson.—G.E., 25/10/83.

Minute Paper—Subject:—The collections of Mr. Macnab, Official Assignee.

Inspecting Branch, The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 26 October, 1883.

HAVING, in conformity with the Treasurer's instructions, compared Mr. Macnab's cash-book with his official account, as kept with the English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank, and satisfied myself that Mr. Macnab's collections have been duly and regularly banked, I am now in a position to certify, and do hereby certify, that no improper use has been made of any part of such collections.

As explained by Mr. Macnab, delay occurred in paying the balances of the collections into the Treasury, but the money representing them was always in the Bank. On the 7th August last he paid in the sum of £4,887, and on the 3rd instant the sum of £1,041 16s. 9d.

JAMES THOMSON, C.I.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.
(THE CASE OF MRS. DAY.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 6 December, 1883.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 11 October, 1883, praying that His Excellency the Governor will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all informations tendered in writing to the Crown in incitement
“of the recent prosecution of Mrs. Day for perjury.”

Sir Alfred Stephen to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

College-street, 11 August, 1883.

I think it a duty to call your attention to the newspaper report this morning of the case of one Osman Day, convicted of bigamy, in which, as it is stated, the prisoner's first wife (for such she unquestionably is and has by the Jury been pronounced to be) deliberately perjured herself in his defence—swearing to the most extraordinary statements in denial of her identity and of her marriage with the prisoner.

If the report meets your eye before this letter reaches you, my application will I am conscious be unnecessary, but I feel more the importance of an immediate prosecution in this case because of the Criminal Law Amendment Act having allowed the wife to be a witness “for or against” her husband. The section, as originally drawn, only enables her to appear against him—in order that, as the injured person (injured quite as much as the deceived second wife), she might be enabled to establish her identity. But here we have, as the first example of a provision meant to aid in the elucidation of truth, a wife perjuring herself to screen the man with whom she is a conspirator.

I have, &c.,
ALFRED STEPHEN.

Urgent.—For the police.—An information may be preferred against the wife of the prisoner in accordance with the suggestion contained herein.—W.B.D., A.-G., 16 Aug., /83. The Inspector-General of Police.—W.W.S., 16 Aug., /83.

to wit. }

BE it remembered, that Patrick Joseph Healy, Esquire, Barrister-at-Law, an officer duly appointed by His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales, by whom and in whose name all crimes, misdemeanors, and offences cognizable in this Court of General and Quarter Sessions may be prosecuted, and who, as such officer, for our Sovereign Lady the Queen, in this behalf prosecutes, in his proper person cometh into this Court of General and Quarter Sessions of the Peace, for the Colony of New South Wales, holden at Sydney, in and for the said Colony, on the twenty-fourth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and for our said Sovereign Lady the Queen informs the said Court, that Jane Day, on the twenty-fifth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, at Newtown, in the Colony aforesaid, before John Dillon, Esquire, unlawfully and falsely did swear in substance and to the effect following, that is to say: That she the said Jane Day was not then the wife of one Osman Day, then and there charged with having committed bigamy; that she the said Jane Day never said she was the wife of the said Osman Day; that her the said Jane Day's maiden name was Sarah Jane Anderson; that she the said Jane Day had lived in the house of one Annie Simpson, at Harris-street, Ultimo, Sydney aforesaid, without the companionship of the said Osman Day, and that the said Osman Day did not live there with her the said Jane Day: And the said Patrick Joseph Healy as such officer as aforesaid, further informs the Court here that what she the said Jane Day then so swore before the said John Dillon as aforesaid was sworn on an occasion when the truth of the same was material.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

(DANIEL RYAN'S CASE—OBSCENE LANGUAGE, ASSAULT, &c.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 February, 1884.

VOTES NO. 58. THURSDAY, 21 FEBRUARY, 1884.

Question.

4. MR. A. G. TAYLOR to ask THE COLONIAL SECRETARY,—

- (1.) Did the Bench of Magistrates at Lithgow send a man named Ryan to gaol for eighteen months for obscene language, assault, &c., arising out of drunkenness; if so, what were the various penalties imposed upon Ryan, and were the sentences cumulative?
- (2.) How long has Ryan served; and has he not been also flogged since his admission into gaol?
- (3.) Will he take steps to prohibit Magistrates from passing cumulative sentences up to eighteen months for crimes connected with drunkenness?
- (4.) Will he order Ryan's immediate release?

Answer.

- (1.) I am informed that a man named Daniel Ryan, on the 26th Dec. ult., at the Lithgow Police Office, was brought before J. B. Turnbull, Esq., and Edmond A. T. Pery, Esq., J.'sP., on the following charges (with sentences appended as under), viz.:—By warrant for threatening to shoot James Wilson and others on the 24th December last, at the Zig Zag (he having then a gun in his possession.) Ordered to find sureties to be of good behaviour for six months,—himself in £40, and two others in £40 each; in default three months in Bathurst Gaol.—Assaulting Sergeant Morrow in the execution of his duty, on the 24th December last. Sentenced to three months in Bathurst Gaol, with hard labour. Sentence accumulative.—Assaulting Constable Corcoran in the execution of his duty, on 24th December last, at Lithgow. Sentenced to three months in Bathurst Gaol, with hard labour. Sentence accumulative.—Making use of obscene language in Main-street, Lithgow, on 24th December last. Fined £5, or three months in Bathurst Gaol. Sentence accumulative.—Escaping from lawful custody out of Lithgow Lock-up on 26th December last. Committed to take his trial at the Bathurst Quarter Sessions of 22nd January, 1884.—Making use of indecent language in the Vale of Clwydd, on 24th December last. Fined £5, or three months in Bathurst Gaol. Sentence accumulative.—Threatening to knock a rifle through David Brown, on 24th December last, at the Vale of Clwydd (he having then a gun in his possession). Ordered to find sureties to be of good behaviour for six months,—himself in £40 and two others in £40 each; in default three months in Bathurst Gaol. Sentence accumulative.
- (2.) Daniel Ryan was an inmate of Bathurst Gaol from the 26th December ult. to the date of his removal to Darlinghurst; and I am informed was flogged in Bathurst Gaol for repeated and gross insubordination to the gaol authorities since his admission thereto. In conclusion, the adjudicating Magistrates report that the convictions against Ryan, in the Lithgow Police Court, during the last two or three years, are to the amount of ten, exclusive of those herein above-named; also, that on account of his violent conduct throughout the whole district he has put the peaceable inhabitants in dread, inso-much that various assaults at various times (with axes and other weapons) have not been preferred against him through fear of his subsequent behaviour. It is also pointed out that the offences for which he was sentenced were committed at three separate places in the Hartley District, although on the same date; that the prisoner was sober at the time (so that his offences were not the result of drunkenness); that the assaults were most uncalled for and brutal; also, that the enforced absence of prisoner has caused a feeling of security to the majority of the inhabitants in the immediate neighbourhood in regard to their lives and properties.
- (3.) and (4.) No further action would seem to be necessary.

The Under Secretary, Colonial Secretary's Department, B.C., 21st February, 1884.—W.E.P.

Memorandum from Inspector-General to Principal Under Secretary.

Daniel Ryan's Case—Lithgow.

Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 19 February, 1884.
As the above case was referred to in Parliament, and the Colonial Secretary promised to inquire into it, I beg to submit all the reports for his information.

EDMUND FOSBERY,
Inspector-General.

B.C., The Principal Under Secretary.

[Enclosures.]

The Inspector-General to The Principal Under Secretary.

Dear Walker, Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 15 February, 1884.
Mr. Taylor's question respecting a man sentenced at Lithgow (Daniel Ryan), I had full reports in the case, and sent them to the Comptroller-General, who sent them to Bathurst. I will get them back, but it would be well for the Minister of Justice to get a report from the Police Magistrate at Lithgow.

Yours, &c.,
EDM. FOSBERY.

Extract from the Sydney Morning Herald, Friday, 15 February, 1884.

Mr. A. G. Taylor asked the Colonial Secretary, without notice, whether it was true that six cumulative sentences of three months each for drunkenness, obscene language, &c., had been imposed on a man at Lithgow by the local magistrates; and, if so, would the Colonial Secretary inquire into the matter?

Mr. Stuart said he was not aware that such was the case, and if the Hon. Member would communicate to him the circumstances of the case by letter he would have inquiry made.

The above question (not recorded in the Votes and Proceedings) appears to be the one intended by Mr. Fosbery.—19.

This is the case alluded to; but Mr. Taylor has, however, given notice of question for to-morrow, which brings the matter forward in a more specific manner.—A.S., 20/2/84.

Sergeant Morrow to Mr. Superintendent Lydiard.

Re Complaint of Prisoner Daniel Ryan.

Lithgow Police Station, 7 January, 1884.

SERGEANT MORROW begs to report that about 6:30 p.m., on 24th December ultimo, he received a warrant for the arrest of the abovenamed offender, charging him with threatening to shoot one James Wilson. About 9:30 p.m. same night he, in company with Constable Corcoran, arrested the offender in main street of Lithgow, by virtue of the warrant.

Ryan resisted apprehension, and violently attacked the sergeant and constable, pulling out a large quantity of the sergeant's whiskers and cutting his lip with his fingers, kicking Constable Corcoran on the legs, and striking him violently about the body, at the same time making use of the most fearful foul language. After a severe struggle they overpowered him and handcuffed him, and when rendered powerless to do any further violence, he kept spitting in the sergeant's face. They conveyed him to the lock-up, where he was searched in the cell by Constable Corcoran, in the presence of the sergeant and Constable Thompson, and the only property found on him was a pipe-case and pocket-handkerchief (see Constable Corcoran's report herewith). This offender, while confined in the lock-up at Lithgow, received three meals every day, commencing on the morning of 25th ultimo, and his accusation in this, as well as the abstraction of his pipe and money, is void of all truth, as he had neither pipe nor money when arrested. The accusation is made for the purpose of casting a slur on the character of the police.

On the 26th ultimo he was brought before the Court, and while in the dock (immediately before the Magistrates took their seats), he demanded in a threatening manner to have a lawyer to defend him.

The sergeant told him there was no lawyer in town, as the local solicitor was in Sydney. He then told a man named Brennan, who was in the Court, to go and telegram to Sydney to David Buchanan or Paddy Ryan "that Daniel Ryan wanted them to come up to defend him" (these were the words used by Ryan). He was tried by J. B. Turnbull and E. A. T. Pery, J's.P., and for threatening to shoot James Wilson was ordered to find sureties to be of good behaviour for six months; in default, three months in Bathurst Gaol. For assaulting Sergeant Morrow in the execution of his duty, three months in Bathurst Gaol. For assaulting Constable Corcoran in the execution of his duty, three months in Bathurst Gaol. For making use of obscene language on the main street, Lithgow, fined £5, or three months in Bathurst Gaol. For threatening language to David Brown, landlord of the "Zig-zag Hotel," he was ordered to find sureties for six months, or in default three months in Bathurst Gaol. And for using the most fearful foul language at the same time he was ordered to pay a fine of £5 or three months in Bathurst Gaol; and for escaping from custody out of the lock-up yard he was committed for trial. This offender is one of the greatest blackguards that the sergeant has ever met in his experience.

On the 24th of December last he went to the "Zig-zag Hotel," armed with a rifle, and without any cause or provocation struck Mrs. Brown on the head with the rifle, called her a "bloody Scotch whore," at the same time using other exceedingly foul and disgusting language. Presented the rifle at Mr. Brown and swore he would knock the rifle through him, at the same time making use of other threats. He then proceeded to the Zig-zag Colliery, where he attacked James Wilson, the manager's son, struck him on the stomach with the rifle, and swore he would blow his brains out. The boy retreated to his father's residence, Ryan following. Mr. Wilson was absent at the time, and Mrs. Wilson and the children took refuge in the house and locked the doors. Ryan tried to get in, and swore he would blow the place down.

During

During the time he was in the lock-up he kept using the most fearful language to the police, namely, "May God paralyze you, you bloody whores," and other language equally as horrifying.

The sergeant mentions some of the language used by this man to show what a vile villain he is, and he thinks the magistrates are to be commended for dealing out to him a punishment which he well merited, as his conduct at Lithgow has ever been that of a thorough blackguard.

Appended is a list of this man's previous convictions at Lithgow Court.

J. MORROW,
Sergeant.

This prisoner is one of the worst sent to gaol. He is now confined to cell, and in all probability will be sentenced to be flogged. There is not one iota of truth in what he states. I knew his character before Sergeant Morrow's report.—C.T.P.L., Supt., 8/1/84. B. 84-7.

Constable Corcoran's Report.

Lithgow Police Station, 7 January, 1884.

CONSTABLE CORCORAN (No. 4,242) respectfully reports, in reference to prisoner Daniel Ryan:—

On the evening of the 24th of December the constable assisted Sergeant Morrow in arresting and conveying prisoner Ryan to the lock-up on a charge of threatening to shoot. Prisoner violently resisted apprehension, assaulting the constable and Sergeant Morrow. On arriving at the lock-up the constable searched prisoner in presence of Sergeant Morrow and Constable Thompson, the only property found on him being a pipe-case and one white linen handkerchief. Prisoner said there is a meerschaum pipe in that case. The constable opened pipe-case in presence of Sergeant Morrow, Constable Thompson, and prisoner, finding it contained no pipe. The prisoner had no money or other property, except the articles aforementioned. In reference to prisoner's statement, being without food for thirty-six hours, the constable wishes to state that prisoner was locked up at about 10 p.m. on the night of the 24th December. The constable gave him his rations on the following morning about 9 a.m., when he threw it on the floor of the cell and became very violent; the constable saw prisoner get his rations at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m., same day. Prisoner got his rations regularly during the time he was confined in Lithgow lock-up.

P. CORCORAN,
Constable.

In forwarding the enclosed copy of proceedings, taken before us in the case of the Police v. Andersen, we do ourselves the honor to state that the features of the charge, as described in evidence, were of so revolting and disgusting a character that, in our opinion, we should altogether have failed in our duty if we had omitted to carry out the provisions of the law in respect to offences of this nature.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 8 August, 1884.

With reference to the case of the man Andersen, who was recently flogged, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to request that you will have an immediate and special inquiry made to show,—

1. How far from any public road or reserve, or from the Baden Baden gate, or the bathing ground, the offence was committed?
2. How many persons saw the offence?
3. Whether the place where the offence was committed was in any way secluded, or protected from the public view? And
4. Any other circumstances that may tend to throw a light upon the nature and surroundings of the offence?

This inquiry should not be entrusted to the prosecuting constable.

I am to add that Mr. Cohen thinks it would be convenient if the report were accompanied by a small sketch of the locality.

Messrs. Addison and Yates, S.M.s., to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Water Police Office, Sydney, 9 August, 1884.

In reply to the inquiries contained in your letter of the 8th instant, having reference to the case of the Police v. Andersen, we have the honor to state, for the information of the Minister of Justice, that (1) the depositions disclose the whole of the evidence taken (the prisoner having previously pleaded guilty), excepting that the senior-constable when giving his testimony also described the action of the prisoner in separating the woman's thighs with his hands and examining her private parts. (2.) No other evidence was available at the Police Court investigation, and the fact may be added that at the conclusion of the case the prisoner again said he was guilty, but thought no one was looking at the time.

With regard to your queries whether any witnesses were subpoenaed to support the statement of Senior-constable Strachan, and if not, for what reasons,—we beg to enclose herewith a report which has been furnished us by that officer on the subject; and we may take this opportunity of stating, in justice to the senior-constable, that he bears the reputation of being most efficient and trustworthy in the discharge of his police duties.

We have, &c.,

Randwick Police Station, 11 August, 1884.

SENIOR-CONSTABLE STRACHAN states that: The reason I did not subpoena any witnesses in the above case is that I did not know the name or address of the gentleman who drew my attention to something going on in the Reserve. The gentleman merely said, "You are wanted up there constable"; I said, "What is the matter?" he said, without stopping, "You go and see." He seemed to be hurrying on to catch the tram about to start about 14 minutes past 12.

The

The lady and gentleman I met on the hill, near where Andersen and the woman were found, did not lead me to believe at the time that they had seen anything, but afterwards finding the position of the man and woman so near to them, and also considering the way they stared at me, I am now inclined to think that they also must have witnessed something improper.

Senior-Constable Strachan to Mr. Superintendent Read.

No. 3 Station, 10 August, 1884.

SENIOR-CONSTABLE STRACHAN begs to report, with reference to the man Edward Andersen, whom he arrested in the Coogee Reserve, the 29th ultimo, that he would like to make a few remarks about the untruthful reports which have appeared in some of the daily papers respecting it. He positively asserts that it is quite true, as he swore before the Court, that a man did say to him that he was wanted up there (meaning the Reserve); the man was then coming from the direction of the Reserve. The senior-constable said, "What is the matter?" The man, who appeared to be in a hurry to catch the tram, said, "You go and see," and walked on. The senior-constable, who was then in Coogee Bay, did go up, having nothing else to guide him but what the man had told him, and he saw what he described in his depositions. The spot where the man and woman were was pointed out by the senior-constable to Mr. Yates, S.M., yesterday, and to Mr. Hyem this morning. It will speak for itself. It is not a secluded spot; it can be seen at least a distance of from 30 to 40 yards. The senior-constable is unable to say whether Andersen's conduct was witnessed by anyone else, but he met a man and a woman coming from the direction of the place where Andersen and the woman were found lying, but whether they noticed what was taking place he is unable to say.

Andersen was sober enough to walk, although he had the appearance of having been drinking all night; and after the senior-constable had adjusted the woman's clothing he took him (Andersen) to the Randwick lock-up, where he had a sleep, and was then sent to Darlinghurst station. It is false, as stated in one paper, that the arresting constable told Andersen he would get three or six months. It is also false, as it appears in the same paper, that the constable followed Andersen from the beach into the bush. It can be proved without a doubt, if necessary, that Andersen and the woman were at the Coogee Bay at 8 o'clock in the morning, and Andersen went into the hotel, leaving the woman outside; he brought out three bottles of drink, rejoined the woman, and they went together in the direction of the Reserve, and he (Andersen) did not return till he was brought back in custody four hours after.

Eight o'clock was the earliest that Andersen went to the Reserve. As a proof of this it can also be shown that they were in the neighbourhood of Randwick Racecourse at 6 o'clock in the morning.

The senior-constable wishes to add that almost the whole of what has appeared in the papers respecting the case is untrue.

The young gentleman who gave the information appeared to be in a hurry to catch the 12.14 p.m. tram, and the senior-constable not knowing what was the matter did not think it necessary to ask him his name or address.

A. STRACHAN,
Senior-Constable.

The Inspector-General of Police to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 12 August, 1884.

In compliance with the request conveyed in your letter of the 8th instant, No. 84-8,482, I have the honor to transmit, for the information of the Minister of Justice, a report, together with plan from Acting Sub-inspector Hyem, respecting the charge against the man Andersen, who was recently flogged.

EDMUND FOSBERY,
Inspector-General of Police.

[Enclosure.]

Acting Sub-inspector Hyem to Mr. Superintendent Read.

Sir,

No. 3 Station, 10 August, 1884.

I have the honor to report for your information that, according to instructions, I made special inquiry with reference to the arrest of the man Andersen.

I find that the place where the offence was committed is in the public Reserve, north of Coogee Bay, but it is not near to, nor in view of, a proclaimed road. The place pointed out to me, and marked in red on sketch herewith, is about 45 yards from the gateway leading to the "Baden Baden" gate, and 72 yards from the gate or entrance to the "Baden Baden Hotel," and about 144 yards from the steps leading to the bathing ground.

2. I have not been able to ascertain whether the offence was witnessed by any person but the arresting constable, although a lady and gentleman it appears were seen not very far from the spot when the constable first appeared.

It appears the man that the constable met on the beach, and who told him he was wanted up there, meaning the reserve, did not say that he had seen anything, he was evidently hurrying on to catch the tram.

3. The Reserve is studded over with trees and scrub as shown on sketch, and some of the trees are rather tall, but it will be seen that the place where Andersen and the woman were found could clearly be seen by persons going along the main track between the "Baden Baden Hotel" and the bathing ground.

The

The hotel is situated in a hollow, and cannot be seen by any one on this part of the public Reserve.

4. I may mention that it is well known that numbers of persons ramble all over the Reserve, especially along the track between the hotel and the bathing ground at all hours of the day. To-day in about one hour nearly 200 persons went along this path or track, all of whom passed the place where Andersen and the woman were found, and a lady and gentleman and several children crossed the very spot on which the offence took place.

I have been informed that Andersen and the woman were seen near the Randwick Racecourse, which is about a mile and a half from Coogee Bay, about 6 o'clock in the morning; also that at 8 o'clock Andersen obtained three bottles of drink at the "Coogee Bay Hotel," and he and the woman then went in the direction of the Reserve, and did not return until he was arrested and brought back about four hours after.

The above is all the information I can learn touching the matter at present.

I have, &c.,
GEO. H. HYEM,
Acting Sub-Inspector.

Minute of Minister of Justice.

AFTER a careful consideration of the depositions in this case I arrived at the conclusion that the Stipendiary Magistrates who adjudicated committed an error in ordering the man Andersen to be whipped, and a perusal of subsequent papers confirms that opinion. The intention of the Legislature was no doubt that this punishment should be inflicted in cases only of any deliberate or reckless and wanton violation of public decency, and, having regard to the nature of the evidence of the only witness in support of the conviction, I do not think that such a case was proved, inasmuch as the evidence to my mind fails to show satisfactorily that any member of the public had been insulted or outraged by any indecent exhibition on the part of Andersen and the woman who was with him, or that there was any deliberate or reckless and wanton violation of public decency. In his deposition the constable says, "there were several ladies and gentlemen passing, they could not help seeing the prisoner," but he does not say as a matter of fact that they did see him. He further says, "the people were looking towards me, then towards the prisoner, as if to attract my attention." This evidence was obviously given for the purpose of satisfying the Court that the people did see Andersen, but the danger of drawing such a material inference from such an indefinite physical act struck me after carefully considering the depositions and is proved by the subsequent reports, for Constable Strachan says in his report of the 11th instant "that the lady and gentleman whom I met on the hill near where the man and woman were found, did not lead me to believe at the time that they had seen anything, but afterwards finding the position of the man and woman so near to them, and also considering the way they stared at me, I am now inclined to think that they also must have witnessed something improper."

But apart from that feature of the evidence, the constable stated, when before the Stipendiary Magistrates, "there were several ladies and gentlemen passing; they could not help seeing the prisoner;" and by this the magistrates were no doubt misled as to the number of the public who probably witnessed the offence, for in his subsequent report Strachan himself speaks only of one gentleman and a lady and gentleman who may perhaps have seen the prisoner, but this is a matter of inference only. The peril, therefore, of inflicting so extreme a punishment upon the evidence of one witness alone is thus shown, and when all authority points out the colour, often perhaps unconsciously, given by police officers to their evidence, the necessity for caution on the part of the magistrates was all the more incumbent upon them.

Whilst holding this view, I shall be glad to have the opinion of my honorable colleague the Attorney-General upon the legal aspect of the case, when the papers may be re-submitted to me for considering and determining what other steps should be taken.

Opinion of the Attorney-General.

Re Anderson's case.

My honorable colleague, the Minister for Justice, with whom in connection with this matter I have had several interviews from time to time, wishes me to place on record my opinion as to whether the punishment of flogging was rightly inflicted in this case. I have already immediately after seeing the depositions verbally intimated to him my view of the case. He has since shown to me a statement of the apprehending constable, a report of acting Sub-Inspector Hyem, who was especially directed to inquire with reference to the arrest of Andersen, and a letter from the adjudicating magistrates, in reply to inquiries instituted by direction of the Department of Justice. These papers, though they somewhat alter the aspect of the case from that presented by the depositions, do not in my opinion materially affect the strictly legal view of the question. Having carefully read and considered the case, I have arrived at the conclusion that the punishment of whipping was not intended by the Legislature to apply to a case of this kind. The object of Parliament was, it seems to me, to provide exclusively for cases in which a brutal violation of decency was perpetrated, either by way of assault or by a filthy and revolting exhibition in order to insult the purity of women and children. It was never, as I think, contemplated that an exposure of the person in such a place as that in which this offence took place, and for the purpose of an act of sexual intercourse by consent of both parties, should be punished under section 446 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act. That section was manifestly intended to comprehend all those offences which spring from a generally brutalized condition of mind which employs itself in outraging decency, insulting and shocking, by deliberate and intentional and shameless action, feelings of modesty and propriety. A consideration of the various offences enumerated in the subdivisions of the section will clearly show this: They are as follow:—“(a) Who in company with any other person commits any wanton or unprovoked assault; or (b) in any public place, or in view thereof, exposes his person or commits any other indecent act, or uses obscene or blasphemous language; or (c) in any public place, or in view thereof, writes or marks upon any building, pavement, wall, hoarding, fence, scaffolding, or any footway, or roadway, any obscene or disgusting word, or form or sign; or (d) throws any missile, or throws, places, or deposits any noxious or filthy matter, or fluid, so as to endanger the safety of, or with intent to injure or annoy, any person, or so as to create a nuisance; or (e) in any public place, park, or reserve, or cemetery, or any public or private garden, or ornamental grounds, wantonly destroys or damages, or attempts to destroy or damage, any road or pathway, tree, shrub, or plant, trellis-stand, flower-stand, railing, seat, fountain, or other structure; or (f) wantonly destroys, damages, or disfigures, or attempts to destroy, damage, or disfigure, any portion of a public building, statue, work of art, or pedestal, or structure belonging thereto, or any tombstone or monument in any cemetery or churchyard or (g) cruelly maims, wounds, or injures any dumb animal.”

It is manifest that in all these sub-sections the one thing contemplated is a public act with a brutal intention to insult by such act public decency and the right feeling of society. And the learned author and editor of the Act expressly points out in a note to the section the character of this class of offences.

However filthy and disgusting the conduct of the accused may have been there is no evidence that he was guilty of an action expressly intended to outrage public decency, and therefore he was not guilty of an offence for which among this class of offences the Legislature had provided the punishment of whipping.

Senior-constable Strachan to Mr. Superintendent Read.

Sydney, 13 August, 1884.

SENIOR-CONSTABLE STRACHAN further reports re the above case, that he (the constable) did not tell Andersen that he had nothing to fear beyond imprisonment for three or six months as stated in newspaper paragraph.

Constable Rogers, whilst escorting Andersen from Randwick to the Darlinghurst Police Station, was asked by Andersen what sentence he would be likely to receive. The constable replied, "Perhaps three or six months."

Andersen did not request Senior-constable Strachan or anyone else in the constable's presence to send to his house to get some person to come to the Court to give him a character. Senior-constable Strachan did not suggest to Andersen that he should plead guilty, or in any way refer to the subject of his sentence. Senior-constable Strachan, in his report to the Stipendiary Magistrate, referred to one man and woman who, from their close proximity to the offender, and looking in the same direction, he believed they must have noticed the offence being committed. In the constable's sworn deposition he referred to several ladies and gentlemen who were walking in the Reserve at the time, and who therefore might have observed the offender's indecent conduct.

Sir,

14 August, 1884.

I have the honor herewith to hand you three resolutions bearing upon the case of the sailor Andersen, lately flogged upon the order of Messrs. Addison and Yates, Stipendiary Magistrates, for an alleged offence of indecency. These were passed unanimously at one of the largest and most orderly meetings I have ever known in the city, in fact the gathering was so large that it had to be divided into two, and over 4,000 (four thousand) assembled outside the hall, where the same resolutions were carried. I am requested to ask that you will be good enough to give these your careful consideration, and inform me as early as possible of the result, as I have to make my report to a monster meeting to be held at the Exhibition Building as soon as I receive your reply. Awaiting the same,—

[Enclosure.]

Copies of the resolutions carried by acclamation at a meeting held at the Masonic Hall, Sydney, on Wednesday, the 13th of August, 1884.

1. That the sympathy of this large and influential meeting of the citizens of Sydney be tendered to the Norwegian sailor Andersen, who was recently sentenced to be flogged, by Messrs. Addison and Yates, two Metropolitan Magistrates, on the uncorroborated testimony of a single policeman, for an alleged offence which did not demand the degrading and torturing punishment of the lash.

2. That this meeting strongly condemns the conduct of the two Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrates, Messrs. Addison and Yates, in sentencing Andersen to the lash on the uncorroborated evidence of a single constable, for an offence which, if committed, would have been adequately punished by a fine or a term of imprisonment; and further considers that Messrs. Addison and Yates should be suspended from the exercise of magisterial functions pending the result of the Government inquiry now going on.

3. That in view of the gross injustice and physical suffering to which he has been subjected, Mr. Andersen is entitled to substantial pecuniary compensation at the hands of the Government, and that a copy of this and the two foregoing resolutions be forwarded to the Colonial Secretary by the Chairman of the meeting.

Re Andersen—Flogging.

Sir,

Detective Office, 15/8/84.

I beg to report for your information that I last evening spoke to Mr. J. Wilson with a view of ascertaining if his wife (Mrs. Wilson) had witnessed any of the circumstances in connection with the offence of which Andersen was convicted.

He

He informed me that his wife had stated to him that she had seen a constable going up to the Baden grounds, which she presumed, from what she subsequently heard, was to arrest Andersen. I have since seen Mrs. Wilson, who informed me that last Wednesday three weeks, the 23rd, she was either going to or coming from Tuttle's, the photographer, in George-street, and that when she reached the approach to the "Baden Baden Hotel," at 12.15 p.m., she saw a constable (she thinks Rogers) enter the reserve, for what purpose she cannot say, as she passed on. She further states that she did not see Andersen and the female alluded to, nor did she hear of the case until she read a report of the case in the Evening News, when she remarked to her husband that she had seen the constable going into the Baden Baden grounds.

I may also add that Mr. and Mrs. Wilson spoke in complimentary terms of the manner in which the police at Randwick perform their duties generally; and Mr. Wilson added that he had spoken in strong terms to a Member of Parliament about allowing his name to be associated with such a case, and that Andersen merited the punishment which he had received.

No. 6.

The Principal Under Secretary to Mr. F. Abigail, M.P.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 19 August, 1884.

I have the honor, by direction of the Colonial Secretary, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 14th instant, with which you forward to this office certain resolutions agreed to at a public meeting held in Sydney, on Wednesday, 13th instant, to consider the case of the Norwegian sailor Andersen, and the punishment inflicted upon him by order of the two Metropolitan Magistrates.

In answer to your letter, I am directed to inform you that the Colonial Secretary is unable to perceive that there is any force in the statement contained in the resolutions as to the conviction being founded on the uncorroborated testimony of a single policeman. The law does not require such testimony to be corroborated, and if the Magistrates were satisfied of the truthfulness of the witness, they were not merely at liberty but were obliged to act upon it in the discharge of their duty.

The question raised by the second of the resolutions agreed upon at the meeting is one of a different and more serious nature. It would seem from the opinion of the Attorney-General, to whom, as Legal Adviser to the Government, the case was referred by the Minister of Justice, that although the conduct of the accused was of a disgusting character, and the offence of which he was convicted was committed in a place open to the police, the law by means of which whipping was provided for the punishment of acts of public indecency was not strictly applicable to the circumstances of this case. That the conduct of the accused was of a filthy and revolting character, that he was at least indifferent to outraging the modesty of possible passers by the scene of his offence is quite clear, but that he had brought himself under a particular section of the Criminal Law Amendment Act is, the Attorney-General thinks, not proved, and thus the Magistrates who conceived they had the power to inflict whipping under the section of the Act on which they based their judgment would appear to have failed in appreciating the limits of its application. This is to be regretted, but at the same time, as the error is one which is only discoverable by a very strict and technical interpretation of the law, I am directed to inform you that the Government does not feel itself justified in pursuing the course towards the Magistrates which is indicated by the resolution to which I have referred.

With reference to the last of the resolutions, which refers to the payment of substantial pecuniary compensation to the accused, I am instructed to inform you that the Government does not think this is a case in which any such course should be pursued.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER,

The Mayor of Randwick to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Town Hall, Randwick, 20 August, 1884.

The conduct of the police stationed in this Borough has recently been referred to in a disparaging manner by a section of the Press. I have the honor to inform you, however, that at the last meeting of this Council a resolution was unanimously passed expressive of every confidence in their efficiency and attention to duty, more especially that of Senior-constable Strachan.

The

The latter has been made the subject of most unfavourable comment in connection with the late "Andersen flogging case." The Council, however, from their knowledge of the case and the locality, entirely approve of his conduct in the matter, and they trust that any unfavourable impression made upon your mind respecting him through the misrepresentations of this case may be removed.

I have, &c.,

WALTER BRADLEY,

Mayor,

On behalf of the Council.

This should be forwarded to the Colonial Secretary for perusal, and should afterwards be placed with the Andersen papers. It is satisfactory to find the people amongst whom Constable Strachan performs his duties expressing their confidence in him. I yet think that, in giving his evidence in the Andersen case, as it appears in the depositions, he misled (though it may be unintentionally) the Magistrates as to the number of people who were said to have witnessed Andersen's conduct on the occasion referred to.—H.E.C., 26/8/84.

Minute of Minister of Justice.

A COPY of the opinion of the Attorney-General, and of my Minute of the 12th instant, should be forwarded to Messrs. Addison and Yates. From these it will be seen how requisite it is that the greatest care should be exercised in receiving and testing evidence given upon a charge involving such grave and irredeemable consequences as the infliction of whipping. An error in sentencing an accused to such a punishment tends to bring into discredit and to excite public opinion against provisions of the law, enacted by the wisdom of the Legislature, for the purpose of checking, and if possible eradicating, a class of offences which the ordinary penalties of fine or imprisonment were inadequate to suppress. Those provisions, firmly and judiciously applied, have no doubt a salutary effect upon evil-doers, but if brought into operation when the circumstances do not justify it their power for good must be considerably weakened, and they might ultimately have to be repealed. It appears to me that the Magistrates would have exercised the wiser discretion had they limited their sentence in this case to imprisonment.

Action should be at once taken on this minute, transmitting copies of minutes referred to herein, with covering letter embodying terms of this minute.—W.E.P., 25/8/84. Copies to S.M.s, 25/8/84.

Gentlemen,

Department of Justice, 25 August, 1884.

For enclosures,
See Nos. 12 & 13
of Return of 13th

In transmitting to you the enclosed copy of an opinion of the Attorney-General, dated 12th instant, and also copy of a minute of the Minister of Justice of same date, respecting the case of the prisoner Edward Andersen, I am directed to state that it will be seen from them how requisite it is that the greatest care should be exercised in receiving and testing evidence given upon a charge involving such grave and irredeemable consequences as the infliction of whipping.

An error in sentencing an accused to such a punishment tends to bring into discredit and to excite public opinion against provisions of the law enacted by the wisdom of the Legislature for the purpose of checking and if possible eradicating a class of offences which the ordinary penalties of fine or imprisonment were inadequate to suppress. Those provisions firmly and judiciously applied have no doubt a salutary effect upon evildoers, but if brought into operation when the circumstances do not justify it, their power for good must be considerably weakened, and they might ultimately have to be repealed.

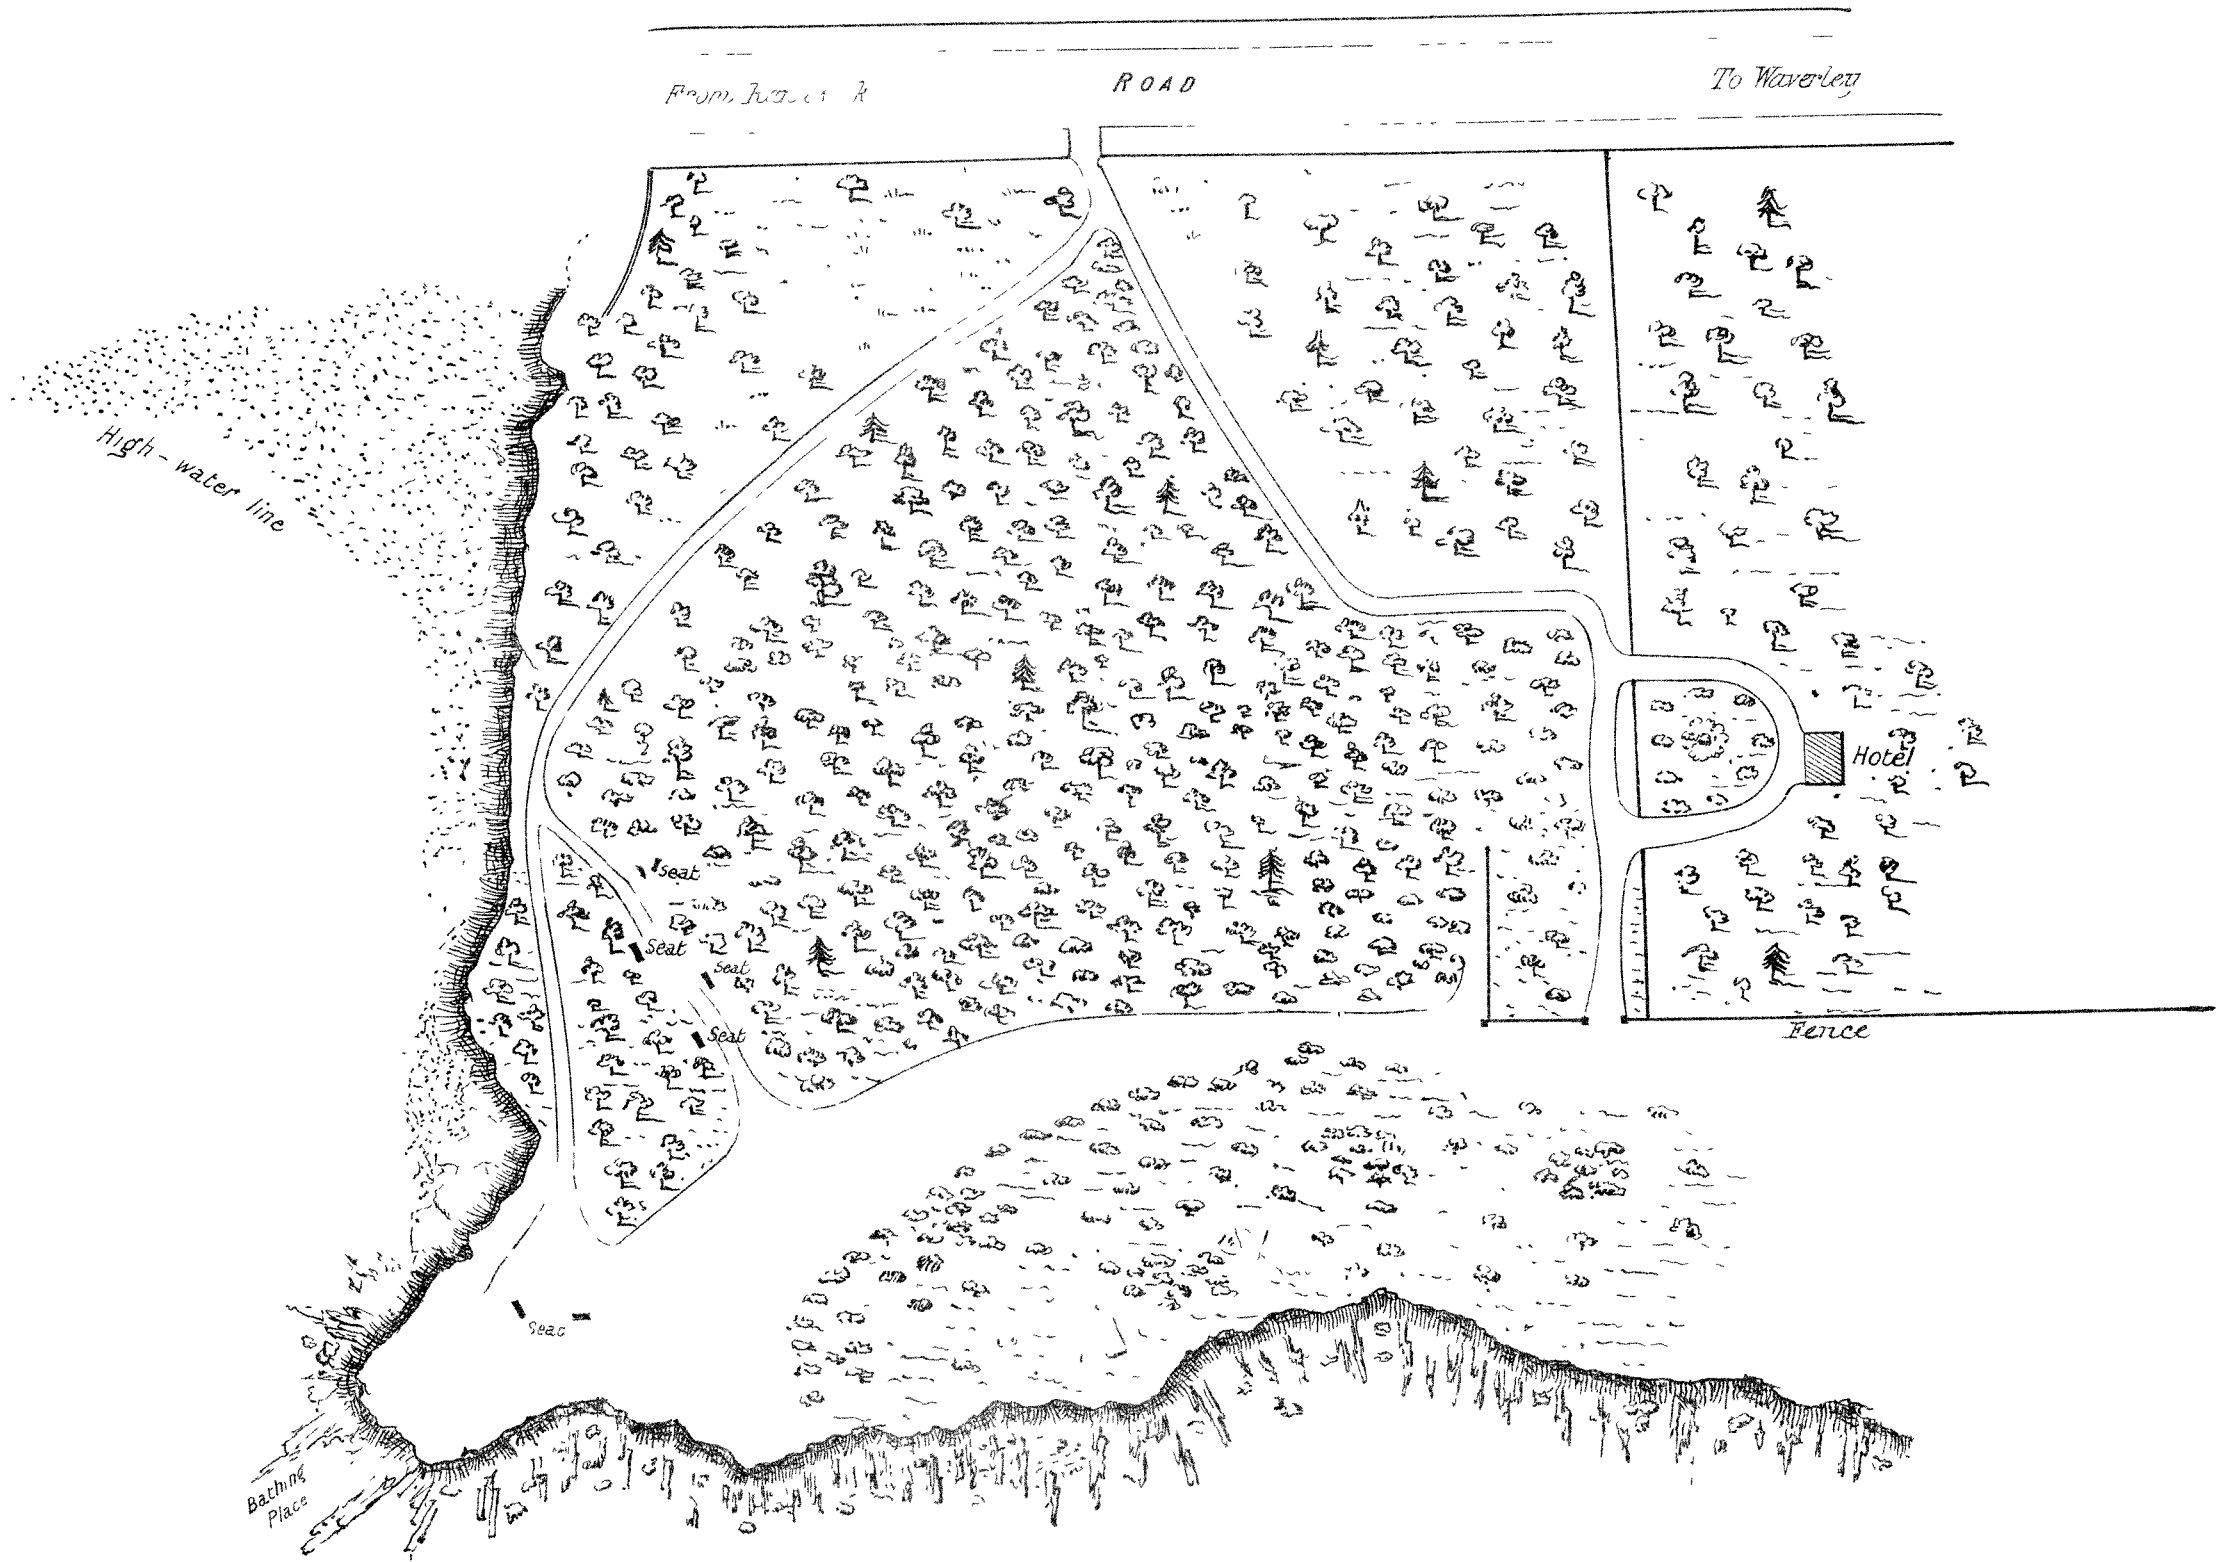

I am to add, that it appears to Mr. Cohen that you would have exercised the wiser discretion had you limited your sentence in this case to imprisonment.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,

Under Secretary.

Mr. C. Delohery to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

[Memo.]

Central Police Office, 4 August, 1884.

This woman has been refused admittance to the Infirmary, and as she is in great need of medical attendance, nursing, and medical comforts, I have thought it as well to bring the case under your notice, in the hope that something may be done for her. I attach a memo. from Dr. Egan. She has no one to look after her, and is in a very filthy state.

Yours, &amp;c.,

C. DELOHERY.

August 4.

I VISITED and examined on this day Emma Smyrke, residing in 9, Duncan-street, off Bathurst-street, and found her to be suffering from disease of the lungs, probably of long standing. She is very weak and unable to tend herself, and she has no one to look after her, although she absolutely requires attendance and nursing. I am of opinion she is a fit case for admission into the Hospital.

M. EGAN,

Police Surgeon.

Dr. Mackellar. In my opinion this case should be treated in a hospital; it would be cruel to refuse her admission, or to send her to an asylum.—C.K.M., 9/8/84. The Inspector of Charities. Admission order at Government expense forwarded to Emma Smyrke for Sydney Hospital.—H.R., B.C., 11/8/84. The Principal Under Secretary. Approved.—A.S., 18/8/84. Order given, 18/8/84.

The Chief Inspector and Boarding-out Officer, State Children's Relief Department, to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

149, Phillip-street, Sydney, 11 August, 1884.

I have the honor to request that you will be good enough to grant an order for the admission of three children, named Smyrke, into the Benevolent Asylum. Their case was referred to me unofficially as one requiring attention. I found their home in Duncan-lane, off Bathurst-street. Their mother, a widow, died while endeavouring to give me some directions respecting the children. She had been four weeks ill, and had, I was informed, been visited three times by a doctor from the Sydney Infirmary (on the last occasion shortly before my visit), who has given a certificate as to the cause of her death. I made the necessary arrangements for the woman's decent burial, and have provided temporarily for the three children, who have no relations in this Colony. They had been shockingly neglected. The little girls were verminous, and had no clothing except an old dress each. They are aged eleven and nine years respectively, and their brother's age is fourteen years. The three have been in the habit of sleeping together upon an old mattress on the floor, in a room 6 feet long and 4 wide. The boy is a bright little fellow, and I purpose apprenticing him immediately to a master tailor at Mittagong, whom I have known for several years; and the girls can be boarded-out if the order for their admission into the Benevolent Asylum is forwarded to me.

I have, &amp;c.,

The Inspector of Public Charities, for report, B.C., 13/8/84.—C.W. The Medical Adviser to Government will oblige by furnishing explanation.—A.S., 20/8/84. B.C., 20/8/84.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Office of Board of Health, 127, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 20 August, 1884.

I have the honor to return herewith your blank cover communication relative to the case of the unfortunate woman Emma Smyrke, and to submit the following explanation of the affair, so far as I am acquainted with it:—

On the morning of the 5th instant I received Dr. Egan's certificate, with Mr. Delohery's memorandum attached (I believe that they had been left at my office on the previous night); and deeming the case a proper one for treatment at the Sydney Hospital, I resolved to place the matter before the Board of that Institution, which held its meeting during the afternoon. With this object I took the papers, and with them those detailing a case of a somewhat similar nature, to the Board, and during its proceedings I drew attention to the "harsh and cruel" rule (copy of which is appended) which excludes patients suffering from phthisis; but, in the course of the discussion following, which was of a rather warm and acrimonious nature, I unfortunately, without having made any special personal reference to either of the cases, placed the papers again in my pocket, and on leaving the Hospital forgot all about them. They were thus for three days overlooked, but on the morning of the 4th I again came across them, and immediately minuted them to the Inspector of Charities, and at the same time caused my Secretary to write to Mr. Delohery, informing him that they had been so dealt with.

A. E. Rockey.

On the day following Mr. Robison returned the papers to me, asking whether the patient should be sent to the Hyde Park Asylum or to the Hospital, and I therefore minuted that "In my opinion the case should be treated in a Hospital," and that "it would be cruel to refuse her admission or to send her to an Asylum." What subsequently happened I need not detail, further than that I heard that the patient died that same afternoon.

This case, as presented to me (vide attached papers), was not of the extraordinary urgent or shocking nature which the report of the Evening News subsequently disclosed, but it seemed merely to be one of those cases of distress which it has unfortunately been my lot to frequently witness as the result of the exclusion from hospital treatment of those who, in the language of the rule, are "labouring under consumption, cancer, or other diseases which, on due examination, are deemed incurable." I would like to point out, however, that in all the Sydney Hospitals the regulation referred to has to a large extent been disregarded by the Directors as well as the Medical Officers admitting, so that the full force of its objectionable nature has never made itself felt.

The reason why the patient was not sent to Little Bay was because I have found by experience that that Institution, although situated in a locality which for picturesque beauty and general salubrity is unsurpassed, and although in itself thoroughly equipped with all that is deemed necessary for the treatment of diseases generally, nevertheless is quite unsuitable for consumptives, the Medical Superintendent reporting that in no case do they receive benefit, and that in his opinion a prolonged residence at the sea-coast frequently does them material harm.

The Colonial Secretary has also drawn my attention to the great hardship and inconvenience to the sick poor which is said to have arisen in consequence of the new rule that "all destitute persons seeking admission to the Hospitals for treatment at the Government expense shall obtain orders for such treatment from the Inspector of Charities only." I would point out that the regulation came into force only on Saturday last, that is four days ago, and that every day since the newspapers have bristled with instances of its hardship. These I have no hesitation in saying are the result of the actions, if not the machinations of those who, to say the least, have no desire that the system shall work smoothly, and I have on investigation found that really no hardship has arisen, in proof of which I append a letter from Dr. Sinclair, the examining physician at the Charities Office, giving an account of one Elizabeth Colvin, whose case is described in most pathetic terms in Monday's Evening News.

As I am in a great measure responsible for the new regulation, I may be permitted to make a brief explanation of the reasons which induced me to recommend it to the Government. As you are aware, the whole of the Hospitals throughout the Colony, in consideration of the charitable purpose for which they are maintained, receive from the Government an annual subsidy of one pound for each pound raised by voluntary subscription; this sum has always been regarded as covering cases of accident or urgent sickness, and as a rule no further State aid is given.

To the Metropolitan Hospitals each subscriber is entitled to send a number of patients in proportion to his subscription; and to these Institutions, in addition to the pound for pound, the Government has been in the habit of giving the sum of 2s. 3d. per diem for the maintenance of what are called "Colonial Secretary's patients," i.e., destitute sick persons; so that in the city three classes of patients have been created:—

- (1) The accident and emergency cases;
- (2) The subscribers' patients;
- (3) The Colonial Secretary's patients;

and manifestly the fewer the subscribers' patients and the greater number of the Colonial Secretary's patients, the better for the funds of the Hospital. Without desiring in the least to slight those philanthropic gentlemen who have at great personal sacrifice gratuitously managed the Institutions for so many years, I would point out that, as might be expected, the proportion which the subscribers' patients bear to those admitted under Colonial Secretary's order is very small. On enumerating the admissions to the Sydney Hospital of ten different weeks taken at random during the years 1876, 1877, 1878, 1879, 1883, and 1884, I find that the numbers were—

(1) Subscribers' patients	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	82
(2) Accident and emergency patients	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	106
(3) Colonial Secretary's patients	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	219

and I think that this may be taken as a fairly representative proportion.

When the Colonial Secretary's orders were first instituted I believe they were, as their name implies, given from the Colonial Secretary's Office, but in the course of time it was found to be inconvenient to follow this procedure, and therefore the privilege of giving a "recommendation," which in reality is equivalent to an order, was accorded to "any respectable person," so that the Government never knew anything anything about the patients who were sent to the Hospital at the public expense "until the bill came in." True, the Inspector of Charities exercised a sort of ex post facto supervision, but of necessity this was not effective, and many persons were admitted who were possessed of means which placed them quite beyond the category of destitute persons. As an instance of the abuses which from time to time have arisen in the use of "Colonial Secretary's orders," I may cite the case of a patient (Lynch) which formed the subject of a lively discussion at the Board meeting referred to in a former part of this letter. It was stated that Lynch was taken into the Hospital under a Colonial Secretary's order, which implied that he was in destitute circumstances; but on admission he was found by the Secretary of the Institution to be possessed of the sum of £11, thereupon the order was very properly cancelled, and the man compelled to pay £2 for his admission; but during the discussion it was disclosed that he was charged a further sum of £4 for his maintenance whilst in Hospital; and what was more interesting still, it was (in answer to a question put by me) stated that this sum of £6 had been, or was to be, placed on the books as a donation from Lynch, for which the usual pound for pound would be required from the Government; the Hospital will therefore receive no less than £12 for the case. Now, I do not doubt that even that large sum will no more than pay the expenses incurred by the Hospital on his behalf; but I feel certain that it was never intended that money so received should be regarded as "charitable donations."

As having a direct bearing on this subject of Colonial Secretary's orders, I may be permitted to quote an extract from a letter which you received from me on the 22nd of August last year. I then gave it as my opinion that—

"The present system of payment by the State for the maintenance of what are called Government patients is exceedingly faulty, and in my opinion not only well calculated to extinguish every spark of self-reliance on the part of the labouring classes, but also to discourage benevolence on the part of the rich. The ease with which a so-called 'Colonial Secretary's order' is obtained for maintenance at the Government expense in the large Hospitals will inevitably have a material influence in pauperizing the whole of the poorer classes in the course of time.

"In Scotland, in a large number of the great works, it is the custom to deduct a small sum (say a penny) every week from each man's wages, as a 'works subscription' to the Hospital. This sum in a large factory amounts to a very considerable amount at the end of a year, and every man subscribing feels that he is laying up money in case of accident or grievous illness; and when such unhappily does befall him, and he is obliged to seek the aid of the Institution, he does so as 'his right,' and without any feeling of pauperism. I have, during a considerable residence in a large Scottish Hospital, often tested this feeling on the part of mechanics and others who were patients, and I have frequently been met with an indignant assurance that the patient did not enter as a pauper, because he had subscribed at the works since he was a boy.

"Some such system should be fostered in connection with all our great works in the city.

"With regard to the discouragement of benevolence on the part of the rich, the collector for the Sydney Hospital informs me that when seeking subscriptions he is frequently told by persons that the Hospital is a Government Institution, and that they in consequence decline to subscribe."

The difficulty encountered in controlling the Colonial Secretary's orders was the first reason which induced me to make my recommendation to Mr. Stuart; but another was, the overcrowded state which has been maintained in the metropolitan Hospitals during the past half-year. Frequently, by deputations and letters, the authorities of those Institutions have urged the Colonial Secretary to increase the accommodation in the city. He, however, acting on my recommendation, has declined to do this, on the ground that there was a Hospital already at Little Bay capable of accommodating upwards of 200 patients; and in order to relieve the pressure which existed in the city, Mr. Stuart directed that all convalescents should be sent there. This privilege of sending patients to Little Bay, I regret to say, did not seem to commend itself to the Hospital authorities, for in practice few cases were sent; and I felt certain that there were a large number of persons suffering from comparatively minor ailments under treatment in the city which might be as well cared for at Little Bay, while at the same time but little disposition was shown to send them there. I therefore deemed that by the new regulation these minor ailments and chronic cases would be conveniently separated from those of more serious nature, and sent direct to the coast for treatment, and thus leave a larger space for the accidents and dangerous cases in the metropolitan Hospitals.

I quite fail to see how any hardship to the poor can arise from the new regulation. If the Hospital authorities work harmoniously with the Inspector of Charities, accidents and cases of emergency will be received as usual without order, subscribers' patients will be admitted as heretofore, while Colonial Secretary's patients (unless under very exceptional circumstances) will be required to obtain admission through the Inspector of Charities, who, with the examining physician, will determine to which Hospital it is proper to send them.

To revert again to the case of the unfortunate Emma Smyrke: I would point out that the papers should not have been sent to me in the first instance, as it forms no part of my official duty to deal with such cases, but I do not desire that circumstance to shield me from such blame as may attach to a man for an inadvertent omission to do what was manifestly the duty of any one, whether an official or otherwise.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES K. MACKELLAR,
Medical Adviser to the Government of N.S.W.

Dr. Sinclair to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

Sir,

Board of Health, 19 August, 1884.

I beg to call your attention to a statement in the Evening News of August 18th, with reference to a woman named Elizabeth Colvin. The facts of the case are not correctly stated in that paper. The facts are:—She attended the Sydney Hospital on Sunday, after having fallen down-stairs; she had no order, and I presume not being considered a fit case, was not admitted. She applied the next day to the Inspector of Charities, and was sent to me for examination. I found her suffering from a black eye and some swelling on the forehead, also some bruising on the hip. Her injuries were very slight, and such that I could not recommend her as a "fit" case for a Hospital; but as she was without means and suffering from some debility, and somewhat out of health, but in no way connected with her recent accident, I recommended her to Little Bay Hospital; but as she had not sufficient clothing she wished to be allowed to stay until to-day, when she went out to Little Bay Hospital.

EXTRACT from Evening News of 18 August, 1884.

More Red Tapeism.

A POOR woman was taken to the Sydney Hospital this morning, suffering acutely from serious injury sustained by falling down a flight of stairs. The woman presented a pitiable condition; her whole frame appeared to be dreadfully shattered, and her face was cut and bruised. The usual form of Government order signed by a Magistrate was presented, testifying as to the woman being destitute of means and unable to pay the cost of maintenance at the Hospital, and recommending the admission of the patient at the Government expense. The cost of maintenance at the Hospital is only 2s. 3d. per day. The order was presented to the clerk, but the application was refused, on the ground that under the new regulations received from the Colonial Secretary the order must bear the signature of the Inspector of Charities, Mr. Robison. The unfortunate woman was then compelled to leave the Hospital and find her way as best she could to Mr. Robison's office, which is situated near Goulburn and Pitt Streets. As Mr. Robison only attends at his office, we are informed, between 10 and 11 o'clock each morning, the unfortunate creature will have to do the best she can to keep herself together until to-morrow morning, when, probably, she will be subjected to all the red-tapeism characteristic of the Government Departments. Mr. Robison will have first to make inquiries into her condition and her means of support, and then to decide whether or not she is eligible to be admitted into a Charitable Institution at the Government expense. Another incident occurred on Saturday morning which should send a thrill of disgust and indignation through the whole community. A woman was brought to the Hospital, evidently in the greatest agony and distress, and was refused admittance until she obtained the sanction of the Inspector of Charities. She managed with great difficulty to reach the office of Mr. Robison; but, to her great horror, he had left. The poor woman had barely reached the Hospital door again when she fell heavily to the ground and was rendered unconscious. Thanks to the Hospital authorities she was immediately admitted without the necessary certificate, and now lies in a very precarious condition. These are but a few of the instances of poverty and sickness that are daily clamouring at the doors of our Charitable Institutions, and which are ignominiously turned away without succour, in consequence of not having followed out the ordinary formula of red-tapeism which has emanated from the Colonial Secretary's Department.

Dr. Creed to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

Sir,

Woollahra, 29 July, 1884.

I have the honor to bring under your notice the following case, which is one of very great hardship to the person concerned, and also reveals a state of things which urgently demands the attention of the Government as to what shall be done with patients of this class.

About the middle of last week I was called in to see a man named A. E. Rockey, or Rockie, whom I found to be suffering from phthisis, being in consequence entirely disabled from following his employment as a solicitor's clerk.

On making careful inquiry I found that he had a wife and three children, one of whom is also sick, and that he was absolutely penniless and unable to obtain fitting food, medicine, or attendance. I, having these circumstances in view, signed a Colonial Secretary's recommendation (such as are usually kept at the Sydney Hospital), recommending his admission to that Institution. I put a special endorsement on the back of this order to the effect that he was suffering from phthisis, and that he had no means of obtaining food, medicines, or treatment, which he urgently required. I directed him to present himself at the Hospital on the first fine day. This he did on Monday, July 28, when he was refused admission, under the circumstances which he relates in his letter, which I enclose.

I may say that I am now seeing him as a patient (of necessity gratuitously), and that it is only by the assistance of his neighbours, on whom he has no claim, and some small donations from myself, that he is able to procure food.

May I request that you will direct me as to what had better be done to relieve this urgent case of sickness and distress.

I am, &amp;c.,

JNO. M. CREED.

This patient is still being attended by Dr. Creed, and cared for by the neighbours. I do not think that his case is a proper one for the Government Asylum, and in the present state of the Sydney Hospital rule he is not admissible there.—CHARLES K. MACKELLAR, 20/8/84.

[Sub-Enclosure.]

Mr. Rockey to Dr. Creed.

Dear Sir,

Ocean-street, Woollahra, 28 July, 1884.

According to your instructions and the letter received from you re my admission to the Sydney Hospital, I went as advised, and arrived at 5 to 11 a.m. After waiting nearly forty-five minutes, three (evidently students) came in, and Mrs. Rockey handed one of them the letter you gave me and the order for my admission signed by you. One of the young (I was going to say cads) fellows said that cases of my kind were not admissible to that Institution. When I referred him to your letter, and said, "See what Dr. Creed says," then he replied, "Hang or d—— Dr. Creed; he is always saying something that he has no right to."

Excuse me writing in pencil; but I am unable to sit up and use the pen and ink.

Your obedient servant,

A. E. ROCKEY.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

(ALLOWANCE TO WITNESSES ATTENDING CRIMINAL TRIALS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 4 April, 1884.

RETURN to an Order of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 20 March, 1884, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all Correspondence, minutes, and other papers respecting a proposal of the Clerk of the Peace to amend the Schedule of Allowances to Medical and other Witnesses attending Criminal trials.”

(Mr. Tarrant.)

The Clerk of the Peace to The Secretary to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sydney, 8 January, 1884.

I do myself the honor to submit, for the consideration of the Honorable the Attorney-General, an amended Schedule of Allowances to Witnesses at Criminal trials, which I propose should be adopted in lieu of that now in force.

The existing Schedule was framed so long ago as 1855, and from my own experience I am satisfied that the scale fixed by it is, considering the altered condition of the Colony, in many respects unsuitable at the present time.

I instance the following facts as showing how unsatisfactorily that Schedule works. An exhaustive return, which I have had compiled in this office, further shows that injustice occurs in the cases of most of the witnesses who attend from any considerable distance.

1. Witnesses dealt with under classes 1 and 2 of the Schedule, i.e., all witnesses other than policemen under the rank of inspector, and soldiers, are paid a travelling allowance of 10d. per mile one way; so that a witness who travels by steamer from Grafton to Sydney, or from Sydney to Grafton, a distance of 350 miles, receives a mileage allowance of £14 10s. 10d. The return fare between these ports is—for saloon passage, £4, and for steerage passage, £2. Thus (having nothing to pay for maintenance on board steamer) the witness, if a saloon passenger, makes a profit out of his travelling allowance of about £10, and, if a steerage passenger, of nearly £13.

Again, a witness who travels by train from Sydney to Albury, or from Albury to Sydney, a distance of 386 miles, receives a mileage allowance of £16 0s. 10d. The return fare between these places is—for a first-class passenger, £6 9s. 6d., and, for a second-class passenger, £4 8s., with the addition of cost of maintenance both ways (say) £1. The actual expenses of travelling first-class would amount to £7 9s. 6d., and of travelling second-class to £5 8s. Thus the witness, if he travel first-class, makes a profit out of his travelling allowance of over £8, and if he travel second-class of nearly £11.

On the other hand, take the case of a witness who travels by coach from Cobar to Wilcannia, or from Wilcannia to Cobar, a distance of 260 miles, and receives a mileage allowance of £10 15s. 10d. The return fare for this trip is £12 10s., which, with the additional cost of maintenance while travelling (say) £3, gives the amount of travelling expenses as £15 10s. The witness is thus at a loss of nearly £5.

2. Under class 3, policemen below the rank of sub-inspector are entitled to a travelling allowance of 6d. per mile one way, and 2s. 6d. for each day's attendance at Court, provided that they reside at a distance of more than 5 miles from the town where the Court is held. Occasionally these witnesses, in travelling to and from Courts, ride Government horses and put up at Police Stations on the road, when of course their expenses are merely nominal. Generally, however, they have to travel in the same way as other witnesses, paying for their maintenance whilst on the road and in the town where the Court is held.

In such cases it is clear that the authorized allowance is inadequate. This remark specially applies to constables who as witnesses have to travel long distances by coach. I need not point out how undesirable it is that constables should sustain pecuniary loss through their successful prosecution of offenders to trial.

3. Again, witnesses belonging to class 1, i.e., all witnesses other than medical practitioners, constables, and soldiers, residing more than 1 mile from the town where the Court is held, receive 4s. per day while in attendance at Court; so that a witness, who resides at a distance which permits of his returning to his home every day, receives the same allowance for attendance as one who, residing at too great a distance from the Court to admit of his daily return to his home, has thereby to incur expenses for hotel or other accommodation.

Before proceeding to suggest specific amendments in the existing Schedule it may be as well to endeavour to define the principle which has hitherto regulated the construction of Schedules of allowances to Crown witnesses attending criminal trials.

In fixing the rates of these allowances, the Crown has evidently not contemplated compensation to witnesses for pecuniary losses arising to them through mere removal from the pursuit of their avocations while attending trials. The endeavour to estimate losses of this kind, with any degree of accuracy, could rarely be successful—the reimbursement, even if practicable, would immensely increase the expenditure of public money, and the labour and delay entailed in making inquiries necessary to enable such estimates to be arrived at, would, in most instances, be so great as to render unworkable any system under which such an attempt was made. It would seem that such losses have been adjudged to be an unavoidable sacrifice which members of the community must make for the public good when their evidence is required in criminal trials. The Crown has therefore been virtually compelled, in framing Schedules for payment of witnesses, to adopt the principle of trying merely to reimburse the inevitable outlay suffered by them, that is to say, their actual and necessary expenses incurred, in travelling to and from the town where the Court is held and remaining in town to attend the Court.

But, even upon this simple principle, it has evidently been found impossible to frame a workable Schedule under which individual claims could be met with anything like equal justice; and the scope of the Schedule now in force has therefore been necessarily so far limited (and this appears on the face of the Schedule) as to secure only a general application of the principle. It must have been patent to those who framed the present Schedule, that the officers (otherwise engaged in important business connected with the Court), whose duty it would be to pay witnesses, could possess neither time nor facilities for inquiring into individual claims, often of a complicated nature, and that witnesses would be put to serious inconvenience were the payment of their allowances to be delayed until such investigations were made. The present Schedule (under which witnesses are paid a mileage allowance for distance travelled, and a daily allowance while in attendance at Court) appears to have been the result of an endeavour to carry out the principle referred to, as far as was compatible with the essential requisite of easy administration.

I should be pleased to feel justified in recommending the adoption of a more complete Schedule, providing for the payment of actual ship, coach, or railway fares, and of an allowance for each day during which the witness is necessarily absent from his home, but I am satisfied that an innovation of this kind would so greatly increase the amount of inquiry necessary on the part of the officers charged with the duty of paying witnesses that, under the official arrangements now established, they could not be fairly called upon or expected efficiently to perform the task. I am convinced therefore, that for the present, the principle hitherto adopted, of paying only mileage allowance and allowance for daily attendance at Court, should be retained. But, as before explained, the existing Schedule urgently calls for amendment, and it is my object now to show how a re-adjustment of the Schedule could be made, which would render it generally far more equitable in respect to both the Crown and the witnesses, and still retain for it the required practicability of being easily worked.

After carefully considering the question and making an analysis of ship, train, and coach fares throughout the Colony, as shown by the return to which I have already referred, I have concluded to recommend that the following alterations be made in the Schedule :—

First.—All witnesses to be paid travelling allowances :—

For journeys by ship, at the rate of 4d. per mile (one way).

For journeys by railway, at the rate of 6d. per mile (one way).

For journeys by coach, at the rate of 1s. 3d. per mile (one way).

By these rates (taking the examples previously adduced) the witness A, who comes from Grafton to Sydney, and whose actual expenses by saloon are £4, would receive £5 16s. 8d., instead of £14 10s. 10d. as at present. B, who comes to Sydney from Albury, and whose railway fare and expenses are £7 9s. 6d., would receive £9 13s. instead of £16; and C, who comes from Cobar to Wilcannia, and whose actual expenses are £15 10s., would receive £16 5s. instead of £10 15s. 10d.

Second.—All witnesses travelling otherwise than by ship, railway, or coach, instead of being paid as now, 10d. per mile after the first mile, to receive the same as jurors, namely, 1s. per mile for every mile of distance travelled to the town where the Court is held.

Third.—All witnesses (except medical practitioners, and constables accommodated at police stations when travelling on duty), who reside at a distance from the town where the Court is held of 10 miles and under, to be paid as now, at the rate of 4s. per day while in attendance at Court, but those, who reside more than 10 miles from the town where the Court is held, to be paid at the rate of 8s. per day while in attendance at Court, it being assumed that such witnesses cannot be expected to return to their homes daily and are therefore compelled to incur expenses for hotel or other accommodation.

Fourth.—After consultation with the Inspector-General of Police, I propose that officers of the Police Force be paid as ordinary witnesses; other policemen (namely, those under the rank of sub-inspector) to be paid at the rate of 4s. per day during the time they are actually and necessarily absent from their stations and attending Courts, and to receive the same mileage as ordinary witnesses, unless they ride Government horses, in which case no mileage allowance should be made.

Fifth.—Medical witnesses, i.e., witnesses who give medical evidence, are entitled under the present schedule to the same travelling allowance as ordinary witnesses, with a fee of 21s. per day while in attendance at Court.

I propose that they should be paid (as now) at the same rate of travelling allowance as ordinary witnesses; that they should receive a fee of 21s. in each case in which they are summoned to give medical evidence; that those residing within a distance of 10 miles from the town where the Court is held should be allowed 21s. per day while in attendance at the Court, and that those residing at a distance of 10 miles or further from the town where the Court is held should be allowed 21s. per day during the time they are necessarily absent from their homes.

To medical practitioners, in my opinion, the general principle laid down, of witnesses being entitled to a reimbursement only of their actual and necessary expenses, does not apply. A medical witness appears to have quite a different claim to that of an ordinary witness called upon to give evidence as to the circumstances usually involved in a criminal prosecution. The medical witness, as a rule, is not in the first instance mixed up with the circumstances of the case, but is subsequently called upon at the instigation of the police or other authorities to give a professional opinion touching, for instance, the cause of a death, the nature of an injury, or the condition of mind of a defendant, and it is but reasonable that he should receive adequate remuneration for the special service he is called upon to perform.

It should also be taken into consideration that medical men are more frequently called upon than other members of the community to make the sacrifice necessarily involved in attending criminal trials as witnesses.

The Honorable the Attorney-General must be aware, from the numerous pressing applications addressed to him by medical men up country to have their evidence dispensed with and the circumstances stated in support thereof, how often it is the case that the only practitioner within a large area is called upon to attend a distant Court as a witness in some comparatively unimportant prosecution, at the loss of his practice for a week or a fortnight and to the imminent risk of some of his patients; and I would here take the opportunity of calling attention to the advisability of making it legal, by the introduction of a Bill for the purpose, to take evidence of medical witnesses in country districts under certain circumstances by Commission.

To other professional witnesses giving skilled evidence, I would recommend that the same allowance be granted, as is here proposed for medical witnesses. I may, however, remark that the necessity to pay skilled witnesses, other than medical practitioners, is not of frequent occurrence.

Sixth.—Under the present schedule "witnesses attending the Courts in Sydney from the North Shore, Balmain, Manly Beach and its immediate neighbourhood," are allowed only the usual steam ferry fare for the water spaces travelled to and from Sydney, in addition to the authorized daily allowance for attendance. I would recommend that the proposed amended Schedule be not complicated by the addition of such an arrangement. The witnesses referred to should, I think, be paid the mileage allowance proposed to be paid respectively to other witnesses.

To draw a distinction between witnesses who are entitled to travel as first or second class passengers would be, in my opinion, an invidious and difficult task, and I submit therefore it is better to allow all witnesses, as if entitled to travel first-class.

The return in my office already referred to, shows that, under the proposed new Schedule, witnesses would, generally speaking, be paid a small amount more than their actual and necessary expenses (assuming of course that they will be allowed when travelling by rail and steamer for first-class passages), and I think it only fair that the small margin in their favor should be permitted, so as to provide for petty but necessary items of expenditure that could not well be specifically taken into account.

Having now specified my suggested amendments, I would remark that, as before indicated, the proposed Schedule is not put forth as being perfectly equitable in its adjustment, but I would urge that it is a vast improvement upon the Schedule now in force, and is, I believe, as equitable as the necessity of simplicity in its provisions will allow.

The adoption of the proposed amendments would save, for the future, the trouble of perusing and dealing with very numerous claims for special allowances by medical, police, and other witnesses, unfairly treated by the present Schedule.

It would of course involve some alteration in the arrangements by which officers paying witnesses are made acquainted with the facts upon which they estimate the allowances; but, as these arrangements are mere matters of detail, I will not burden this paper by showing in what way the suggested system could be carried out.

Annexed is a copy of the scale now in force, marked "A," and a copy of the scale as proposed to be amended, marked "B." I also attach a letter that I have received from the Auditor-General, expressing approval of my scheme generally, and a letter from the Chairman of the Medical Board as to payment of medical witnesses.

In conclusion, I may state that the expenditure for allowances to witnesses attending criminal trials throughout the Colony would probably, if my proposed amendments were adopted, not require to be increased by more than 10 per cent. The total expenditure for witnesses at Supreme, Circuit, and Quarter Sessions Courts for the past year (roughly speaking) amounted to about £13,000.

I have, &c.,
ARCH. C. FRASER.

The Auditor-General to The Clerk of the Peace.

My dear Fraser,

Department of Audit, 9 January, 1884.

I have read carefully your proposed scheme of amended allowances to Crown witnesses, and have had it compared with actual payments under the existing scale. If adopted, it will, as you estimate, increase to some extent the annual cost to the country; but it has the advantage of simplicity of plan, of certainly greater equity to the parties concerned, and of affording an improved basis for a readjustment, as the rapidly changing circumstances of the Colony are sure to call for at no distant date, and, as I conceive, on the side of greater economy in this class of expenditure.

Yours, &c.,
E. A. RENNIE.

The President of the Medical Board to The Clerk of the Peace.

Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street,
Sydney, 21 December, 1883.

Dear Mr. Fraser,

I have to thank you for the opportunity of perusal of the draft of your proposed scale of allowances to medical witnesses, which I am glad to observe that you have endeavoured to arrange on a more equitable basis than has hitherto obtained, and, on the whole, I think that it will fairly meet the requirements of the country practitioners. Of course it must necessarily bear very hardly upon some of those who are placed under very exceptional circumstances, but in these cases an additional allowance might be made; or, still better, their evidence might be taken by Commission, as you have before suggested.

Yours, &c.,
CHARLES K. MACKELLAR.

Minute by Attorney-General.

I THINK the amendments are reasonable and equitable, and approve of them, with the expression of my pleasure in the perusal of this able, clear, and exhaustive letter.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

No. 1.

Messrs. Bretnall Brothers to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Trade Protective Institute, Temple Court, King-street, Sydney, 10 May, 1884.

For some years past we have been in the habit of searching the records of the Supreme Court for particulars of bills of sale registered and writs issued, paying therefor for each search the fees provided for by law. The particulars of such searches we convey to our subscribers, who embrace nearly all the leading business men of the Colony, as a protection to them in their trade transactions against giving credit to unworthy persons and as a source of information.

The Prothonotary of the Supreme Court has yesterday refused us the right of continuing to make such searches, informing us that he can only allow searches to be made upon the party searching giving the name of the person he wishes to search against. As we wish to search for all bills of sale and writs issued day by day we are thus practically debarred from searching at all, and the mercantile community are deprived from having the information which we have hitherto conveyed to them, and which is universally acknowledged to be of the highest necessity to them.

We would beg to point out that in England, the other Colonies, and, as far as we know, the civilized world, circulars similar to ours, for the protection of trade, are issued, and the right of making searches of the records never refused.

We would further respectfully point out that as far as fees are concerned we have always paid in cash the fees demanded of us, paying for each individual search, and that we do not ask any concession or privilege that is not granted to the general public.

As this is a matter of extreme urgency to the mercantile community we would beg of you that you would accord it your earliest consideration, and grant to us the right of continuing to obtain the desired information as we have hitherto done.

We have, &c.,

BRETNALL BROTHERS.

The Prothonotary of the Supreme Court for favour of report.—H.E.C., 10 May, 1884. B.C., 19 May, 1884.—W. E. PLUNKETT. Received, 21/5/84.—F.C.

No. 2.

The Prothonotary to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 21 May, 1884.

By the direction of His Honor the Chief Justice I do myself the honor to return you the enclosed letter of Messrs. Bretnall Brothers without report, with a letter from myself to His Honor in reference to my reporting thereon, and His Honor's minute thereto appended.

I have, &c.,

FRED. CHAPMAN,

Prothonotary.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 21 May, 1884.

I have the honor to request that you will lay the enclosed letter before His Honor the Chief Justice, and obtain his instructions as to the course of action which I am to pursue in the matter.

I have, &c.,

FRED. CHAPMAN,

Prothonotary.

W. J. Martin, Esq., Chief Justice's Associate.

Return the letter and minute by my direction to the Minister for Justice without report, on the ground that the calling for the information in question is an interference with an officer of the Court, in a matter over which the Court alone has jurisdiction.—J.M., C.J., 21 May, 1884.

No. 3.

Minute of Minister of Justice.

Department of Justice, Sydney, 9 June, 1884.

I HAVE read the minute of the Chief Justice of May 21, in which he directs the Prothonotary to return Messrs. Bretnall Brothers' letter of May 10 with my minute thereon "without report, on the ground that the calling for the information in question is an interference with an officer of the Court, in a matter over which the Court alone has jurisdiction," and I cannot coincide with the views so expressed.

The position assumed by the Chief Justice appears to me to be tantamount to absolutely withdrawing an officer appointed by the Governor and Executive Council from their constitutional control, and making him altogether independent of them, a position to which I, as a Minister of the Crown, responsible to Parliament for the due administration of the Public Department in my charge, cannot give my assent.

That officer having been appointed under the advice of Ministers, the responsibility to Parliament, arising out of that appointment, rested with them, and they continue to be so responsible for his proper conduct and the efficient discharge of his duties whilst he continues to hold his office. If then he is to be completely withdrawn from Ministerial inquiry and control, and sheltered behind the Judges of the Supreme Court, the responsibility of Ministers becomes a mockery, for it may be that upon a question of that officer's efficient and rightful discharge of duty arising, the Judges may differ from Ministers as to the merits of the case and the course to be pursued, and if Ministers are then to have no voice, except by the indulgence of the Judges, the official supervision naturally arising out of Ministerial responsibility is unfairly and illegally intercepted.

The Judges are by statute law secured in their offices with a certain independence of Ministers, and I readily recognize the force and merit of the general constitutional principle that the interference by the Executive with the judicial authorities in the exercise of their judicial discretion would be highly perilous to the well-being of the community.

I cannot see, however, that in this instance there has been any violation of those canons that should regulate the relations between the Executive and Judicial Departments of the country, in my asking the Prothonotary to furnish the report in question. It having been officially brought under my notice that a practice which had long prevailed in his office, as to searching for particulars of Supreme Court writs, had been discontinued, and as it was alleged to the great inconvenience of an important section of the community, I, as the Minister at the head of the Department, of which the Prothonotary is an officer, and with the view of ascertaining whether there was any substantial ground for complaint, called upon him for a report, which, as before stated, acting upon the instructions of the Chief Justice, he has failed to furnish, and I have now to renew my request for that report.

It may not be out of place to add that it has always been the practice of this Department to officially communicate direct with the Prothonotary upon matters relating to his office, and that as to the report asked for, I had personally intimated to gentlemen who had interviewed me upon the subject of Bretnall Brothers' letter, that I should probably consider it my duty to refer the whole matter to the Judges before any directions were given to the Prothonotary as to the future practice of searching for particulars of writs, but in the meantime I desire to be informed of the causes that led to the changes complained of.

The Chief Justice to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 17 June, 1884.

In the early part of last month the Prothonotary informed me that certain persons, professing to act on behalf of what was called a Trade Protection Association, had been in the habit of procuring, by means of searches made each day in the Supreme Court Office, the particulars of all summonses issued, and publishing weekly a printed list of such summonses for the information of the members of the association in question. He at the same time expressed a doubt whether he ought to permit these searches to be made in this manner by strangers to the actions not acting for any of the parties to them. He further informed me that his attention had been directed to this matter by his having heard that in a recent action the plaintiff, in proof of defendant's malice, gave evidence to the fact that such defendant had issued a writ against him without any cause for the sole purpose of getting the notice of the writ inserted in the Association's circular.

As evidence of the object with which these searches were made, he placed before me one of the weekly statements in question, which among other things sets forth the names of all the persons against whom summonses had been issued and the amounts for which they were sued. I was of opinion that the publication of this list, seeing that the issue of a writ is an ex parte proceeding, the propriety of which is to be afterwards determined, was an improper proceeding, and that the parties concerned in it ought not to be afforded the facilities which they appeared to have enjoyed by making a general search in the way described, and I told the Prothonotary that in future he ought not to allow any præcipe of a writ of summons to be searched for unless the name of the defendant or the number of the writ were mentioned. The Prothonotary acted on this instruction, and very shortly afterwards I was waited on by an agent or secretary of the Association, who complained to me of the course which the Prothonotary had adopted, and informed me that general searches for writs were permitted in other countries, and that he could produce circulars in proof of such statement.

On my expressing a wish to see such circulars he came the following day with lists issued in America, Victoria, Queensland, and London; but in no one of them was there contained any statement of summonses issued. However, it appeared that in Victoria the particulars of all writs of summonses were obtained and registered in a book for reference, but not published by circular as in Sydney.

I told him that I would think the matter over again, but that my opinion was decidedly against the publication of this list of writs of summons or the searching for them in the way desired. A week or so after this interview—on the 21st May—the Prothonotary placed before me the letter and minute annexed hereto, and asked for instructions as to the course of action which he ought to pursue. Immediately on the perusal of this letter and minute, I wrote on the Prothonotary's letter to my associate asking for these instructions, a minute in these terms:—"Return the letter and minute by my direction For annexure direction to the Minister for Justice without report on the ground that the calling for the information in question is an interference with an officer of the Court, in a matter over which the Court alone has jurisdiction." On the same day, the 21st May, the Prothonotary by letter communicated my directions to the Under Secretary of Justice, and on the 13th instant, twenty-three days afterwards, the Prothonotary received a minute, dated the 9th of June, which immediately upon its receipt he placed before me with a request for instructions as to the course of action which he ought to pursue in the matter. A copy of this minute is sent herewith.

See No. 3.

On receipt of this minute I at once called a meeting of the Judges to take it into consideration, and we all met yesterday morning for that purpose. I stated to their Honors the foregoing matters, and they all agreed with me in the opinion that the publication of the list of summonses as already described was an improper proceeding, and they approved of the direction given by me to the Prothonotary in reference to searches in future.

I have gone into this detailed statement not for the purpose of upholding the correctness of the course taken by the Prothonotary under my advice and direction and approved by my brother Judges, but in order that you and your colleagues in the Ministry may know how the very important question involved in the minute of the Minister for Justice has arisen. That question broadly stated is neither more or less than whether the Minister for Justice is to exercise any control, direct or indirect, over the Supreme Court or any of its officers in the administration of justice. That Minister in his minute lays down the proposition that he and his colleagues are responsible for the proper conduct of the Prothonotary and the efficient discharge of his duties. "If," he says, "he is to be completely withdrawn from Ministerial inquiry and control, and sheltered behind the Judges of the Supreme Court, the responsibility of Ministers becomes a mockery, for it may be that upon a question of that officer's efficient and rightful discharge of duty arising, the Judges may differ from Ministers as to the merits of the case and the course to be pursued, and if Ministers are then to have no voice, except by the indulgence of the Judges, the official supervision naturally arising out of Ministerial responsibility is unfairly and illogically intercepted."

It is difficult to conceive by what means the Minister for Justice has fallen into so great an error as to suppose that he or anybody but the Supreme Court itself has any power whatever to determine upon the "efficient and rightful discharge of duty" of any officer of the Court while engaged in connection with the administration of justice.

In this Colony, as in the mother country, the Government (using the term in its largest sense) is committed to three separate and distinct authorities,—the Executive, Legislative, and the judicial, each of these authorities is entirely independent of the others.

To the Executive is entrusted among other things the carrying out of the laws, to the Legislative the exclusive power of making those laws, and to the judicial the equally exclusive power to interpret and enforce them. Every power necessary to enable the legislative bodies to exercise these functions they most unquestionably possess. So also every power necessary to enable the Judges to carry their authority into effect belongs without doubt to them likewise. In the actions and suits submitted to the Court for its decision many preliminary proceedings are taken by and before its officers prior to the hearing, and many other proceedings are taken by and before such officers after the hearing also.

The mode in which those proceedings are to be taken, the conduct of the officers in reference to them, the duties which those officers are to perform, are things necessarily within the control of the Court only.

The papers filed in a suit of whatever nature they may be are and must of necessity be under the sole and exclusive control of the Court itself in all respects whatever. Concede to a Minister the right to direct an officer of the Court as to his conduct touching any of these papers, then the power of the Court as an independent and supreme tribunal is at once destroyed.

If the Minister can interfere with the officers of the Court in one matter in a pending suit he can interfere with equal reason in all. This of course cannot for a moment be permitted. The Judges are not, as the Minister for Justice says, secured in their offices with a certain "independence of Ministers," if by that is meant a qualified independence. Then independence of Ministers is absolute and unconditional, and any interference by the Executive with them in the exercise of their judicial discretion is not merely "perilous," as the Minister admits, but it is a thing which cannot by any possibility be permitted to occur.

This freedom from Ministerial interference depends in no way upon the opinion of the Ministers as to its propriety, but it is secured absolutely by the law which controls the Minister as well as all other persons.

The Minister for Justice speaks of the "canons," which he supposes "regulate the relations between the Executive and Judicial departments of the country," and he contends that he is acting within those "canons" in treating the Prothonotary as an officer in his Department, and so completely in all respects under his orders as to warrant him in calling in question, with a view to overriding if he thinks fit, the directions of the Chief Justice in the matter of searching for judicial papers filed in the office of the Supreme Court. It is needless to say that this exclusive power of the Supreme Court in all matters concerning the administration of justice regularly brought before it, either by papers filed in its office or by motions before the Court or any of the Judges, depends not upon "canons" but upon positive law, which leaves no opening for the Minister to interfere as he is seeking to do in the present instance.

In the last paragraph of his Minute the Minister for Justice says that he shall probably consider it his duty to refer the whole matter to the Judges before any directions are given to the Prothonotary as to the future practice of searching for particulars of writs.

This at once brings the question between the Minister and the Supreme Court to a decisive issue. He here broadly asserts his right to give directions to the chief Executive Officer of the Supreme Court in the matter of searches for papers in pending suits, which right the Judges feel themselves called upon to utterly deny, and the exercise of which they cannot for a moment permit.

The foregoing is communicated to you as the head of the administration in order that there might be no misunderstanding on the part of the Government as to the view which we take of the unconstitutional and illegal attempt made by the Minister for Justice (whose personal courtesy on all occasions is cheerfully acknowledged) to interfere with the Supreme Court in its necessary control over its own officers in the discharge of their executive functions.

I have, &c.,

JAMES MARTIN, C.J.

No. 6.

The Colonial Secretary to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 20 June, 1884.

Your letter of the 17th instant, referring to the official relations between the officers of the Supreme Court and that Department of the Government which is under the Minister of Justice, opens up a question of the greatest importance, and one which, as far as I know, is entirely new in the history of Responsible Government in this country. I need not enter into any discussion with regard to the publication of the particulars, for the procurement of which the searches in the Supreme Court have hitherto been made, but which by your recent directions to the Prothonotary are no longer permitted. Nor am I in any way concerned whether in other countries these particulars are published or not. The important question involved in this matter is whether the officers of the Supreme Court,—whose appointment to and removal from the Public Service belong exclusively to the Executive Government,—officers who are charged among other things with the receipt of considerable sums of public money, and with the performance of a variety of public duties, the official discharge of which can only be supervised by persons engaged in various Departments of the Government,—can be wholly withdrawn from supervision and made independent of the authority from which they hold their offices, by which they are paid, and by which they may for a sufficient cause be dismissed. Another point is whether the Ministers of the Crown, who may at any time be censured or condemned for the inefficiency or misconduct of these officers, are yet to be entirely powerless in the enforcement of efficiency or the punishment of misconduct. It seems to me that these are questions which are not less important in determining the limits of Ministerial responsibility and Parliamentary authority than in the sole aspect in which you and your brother Judges regard it as involving an infringement of what you consider to be the proper powers of the Judges of the Supreme Court. With your statement of the entire independence of each other of the various authorities of the Government, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial, it is needless to say I entirely agree. In the matter now under review, however, I am not concerned only with a consideration of the complete independence of the Judges of Ministerial control or interference. That independence, as you rightly observe, is absolute by law. A Minister of the Crown can no more presume to question it than the humblest member of the community. And the Minister at the head of the Department of Justice, who is officially the means of communication between the Executive and the Judges stands in this respect precisely in the same position as his colleagues. You must, it seems to me, have misapprehended the Minister of Justice as to any supposition on his part of the existence of a qualified independence of the Judges. So far from attempting to qualify that independence, which would be, as you properly observe, a violation of the law, it is his duty in an especial degree to uphold it as the surest guarantee of the efficient administration of public justice. But the independence of the Judges, who are the interpreters of the law, and whose tenure of office is wisely made entirely independent of Executive authority, does not necessarily involve the independence of the officers of the Supreme Court who are discharging in that department of the Public Service similar functions to those which other officers having the care and custody of public moneys and important public papers discharge in other public offices. I can see no reason why these officers should enjoy any peculiar exemption from that control and supervision, without which the public can have no sufficient guarantee of the satisfactory performance of public duties, and the Ministry no sufficient protection in the exercise of their responsibility to Parliament. If, indeed, Ministerial interference with any particular function of any officer of the Supreme Court affected in the least degree the independence of the Judges, such interference would be unwarrantable and illegal, and would deserve that effective censure which it would be certain to entail. I do not in any way dispute your statement that the papers filed in a suit are and must of necessity be under the exclusive control of the Court itself, and their removal from such control might be under some circumstances to interfere with the effective administration of justice. But without in any way attempting to discuss the question as to the propriety of the publication of particulars of writs issued, about which a variety of opinions may be entertained, and concerning which I personally agree very much with the views expressed by you, I cannot perceive how such publication removes such papers from the sole and exclusive control of the Court, but I can conceive that circumstances might arise when the publication of particulars of certain papers in the offices of the Supreme Court might become essential in the interests of justice itself, and when the refusal by an officer of the Court to furnish such particulars in obedience to the orders of the Minister in whose Department such officer was placed might and ought to be punished by his suspension or dismissal; and in point of fact, in a comparatively recent case, the Prothonotary and Curator of Intestate Estates was removed from his office by the late Government for refusing to carry out the direct instructions of the Minister for Justice, and this, notwithstanding that he had acted under the advice or direction of at least one of the Judges. In that case the removal of the officer was expressly based upon his alleged disregard of the instructions of the Minister of Justice acting on an opinion given by the then Attorney-General. And here I may observe that that was not a question of the publication of particulars of papers, but an assertion on the part of the Minister of an absolute right to direct an officer of the Court in the discharge of his duties, and in order that there may be no misunderstanding as to what was the view of the Government of that day on the matter, I quote a portion of the minute of the Minister of Justice, written for the consideration of the Cabinet, and which was ordered to be printed as a Parliamentary paper on the 28th of April, 1880. It is in these words:—

MINUTE of Minister of Justice for consideration of Cabinet as to power of the Curator of Intestate Estates to appoint agents and to charge 5 per cent. commission in Intestate Estates, being 3 per cent. for the Curator's agent, and 2 per cent. for the Crown, &c.

THE case contained in these papers originated in resolutions passed by the Assembly during the last Session of Parliament, to the effect that the Crown Law Officers should give their opinions as to whether the Curator of Intestate Estates is legally entitled to appoint any person as the agent of an intestate estate; and further, whether he can legally charge the sum of 5 per cent. on the estates of deceased persons and to pay his agents 3 per cent. of the commission and the Government 2 per cent.

Another resolution passed by the Assembly required the Crown Law Officers to give their opinions as to the legality of the Curator's charge of a commission of 5 per cent. upon a sum of £16,000 placed in a Bank as a fixed deposit by the late Robert Hancock.

Mr. Windeyer, the then Attorney General, took no exception to these resolutions, and with his concurrence they passed the Assembly, and, after obtaining a considerable amount of information from the Curator, he gave at length his opinions upon the different subjects submitted to him, and advised that the Curator of Intestate Estates should be at once required (1) to terminate the agency of the person employed by him as his Sydney agent, and that he should be directed to employ an official official assignee to act for him in all Sydney cases when he did not act himself; (2) that a Bill be introduced to indemnify persons acting as Sydney agents of Curator; and (3) that the amount received by the Government in Hancock's estate as commission be paid over to the executors of that estate.

Having read these opinions, it appeared to me to be my duty to see that action was taken upon them, and I accordingly forwarded copies of them to the Curator, and instructed him to act in accordance with them.

In reply, the Curator pointed out the practice that had existed for some time as regards the appointment of his Sydney agents, and stated that Mr. Chapman, the present agent, had been appointed by his predecessor—Mr. Hutchinson—to succeed the late Mr. Gill, who acted as agent for several years; and that the Court had for many years recognized these agents to the Curator and passed their accounts. He states that if the legatees under Hancock's will were dissatisfied and believed they had a right to a refund of the commission, they should go before the Supreme Court and obtain a decision as prescribed by law.

After quoting opinions obtained from Mr. Darley, Q.C., which appear to be adverse to those of Mr. Windeyer, but which, of course could not affect my action in the matter, as I was bound to be guided by the advice given by the responsible Law Adviser to the Crown (the Attorney-General), the Curator says that as he is an officer "appointed by the Supreme Court," he feels it his duty to the Court to inform me that in the absence of a judicial decision he does not see how he can legally act in such a way as to give effect to the opinions of Mr. Attorney-General Windeyer.

On receipt of this communication I instructed the Curator to be informed that I had carefully considered his letter and the previous correspondence respecting the appointment by him of agents of intestate estates, and that I now required him to terminate the agency of the person acting as his Sydney agent, and that in cases in Sydney when he did not act personally, he must employ one of the official assignees to act for him, and that in country cases he must employ the Clerks of Petty Sessions, except in places where there are no such officers, when he might employ responsible persons as his agents.

Mr. Slattery, upon receiving these instructions, appealed to His Honor the Primary Judge for his advice as to how he should proceed under the circumstances, forwarding to him at the same time the correspondence.

His Honor, in a minute headed "Memorandum for Mr. Slattery's guidance," states that he is clearly of opinion that both by the Statute law and the very nature of the case, the duty and responsibility of appointing all the Curator's agents must rest with himself (the Curator) as principal over his own agents.

His Honor further states that the letter from the Department of Justice instructing the Curator how to act seems to him to overlook all the statutory considerations applicable, and to treat the matter as if the Curator's agents were appointed by and took their authority from the Executive Council, and as if Mr. Slattery were a mere conduit pipe for Executive authority to act in these matters of Court business. This, he says, is erroneous; "the agents being his agents or of the full Court," he cannot sanction any transfer of Mr. Chapman's duties to the official assignees, or to any other person holding any other duties to which the Curator's duties would be secondary, and concludes by deprecating any interference by Executive authority with the action of the Supreme Court or its officials unless for misconduct or after cause shown, as dangerous to the administration of justice.

The question to be decided appears to me to be whether the Executive have any authority over the Curator, and whether he is to obey the instructions issued to him in this matter. Mr. Slattery states "that as Curator of Intestate Estates, he is the officer appointed by the Supreme Court to collect the estates of deceased persons," and he does no doubt get an order from one of the Judges to collect each estate as it is brought before him, but he received his appointment as Curator of Intestate Estates from the Governor and Executive Council, and so also did his predecessor in office, Mr. Hutchinson,—the Chief Justice, Sir Alfred Stephen, recommending the appointment.

The instruction issued to Mr. Slattery that he should discontinue the services of his Sydney agent, Mr. Chapman, is requiring him to give effect to the opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Windeyer, who holds that his choice of agents, by section 5 of the Act 15 Vic. No. 8, is limited, and that the present agent does not come within the range of his choice, and that therefore his appointment is illegal.

Whatever claims Mr. Slattery might make to be an officer of the Supreme Court, receiving his appointment from the Judges under the Act he quotes, 11 Vic. No. 24, can have no force, since the passing of the Constitution Act, 17 Vic. No. 41, which clearly states in section 37 that "the appointment to all public offices under the Government of the Colony hereafter to become vacant, or to be created, whether such offices be salaried or not, shall be vested in the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council."

The appointments therefore being vested in the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, and the Curator having been so appointed, the Government have, I consider, a direct control over him, and may require him to carry out instructions emanating from the Ministerial head of his department.

You will perceive that the then Attorney-General advised that the Curator should be required to do certain things and to make certain arrangements, which a Judge of the Supreme Court declared he could not legally do, and the Curator was removed for failing to carry out what the Minister of Justice directed him to do, as the Ministerial Head of his Department. I refer to this proceeding as showing, and I think conclusively, that no doubt was then entertained of the control of the officers of the Supreme Court by the Minister in whose Department such officers are placed.

I understand that when this officer was thus removed the point now raised by you was never submitted by the Judges for the consideration of the Government. In that case the Minister took upon himself to determine whether the officer in question efficiently and rightfully discharged his duty. In your letter to me you remark that "it is difficult to conceive by what means the Minister of Justice has fallen into so great an error as to suppose that he or anybody but the Supreme Court itself has any power whatever to determine upon the efficient and rightful discharge of duty of any officer of the Court while engaged in connection with the administration of justice." The difficulty to which you allude disappears under the light of this procedure of one of his predecessors, which, as far as I can learn, was never made the subject of protest on the part of the Judges. It was therefore, it seems to me, easy enough to fall into such an error (if, as I do not for a moment admit, he has committed one) when the power of the Minister was so emphatically expressed and so promptly exercised without question at the time on the part of any one but the officer aggrieved. But apart altogether from the precedent to which I have alluded, and from the uniform course of practice in dealing with officers of the Supreme Court by various Governments, I am constrained to express my dissent from your views of the absolute independence of these officers of Ministerial control, and I deem it my duty to intimate this to you in order that no misunderstanding, to borrow your own expression, may arise as to the view taken by the Government, which is clearly this—that while it would regard the slightest attempt to affect the independence of the Judges, as a gross violation of law, it would equally regard its surrender of the control and supervision of the proper performance of the duties of the officers of the Supreme Court as a betrayal of the duty of Ministers to the Legislature. I would venture to point out that I look upon the last paragraph of the letter of the Minister of Justice, to which you refer, as an expression rather of his anxiety that the matter under discussion might be the subject of re-consideration than of any desire to bring any question between himself and the Supreme Court to a decisive issue.

I have carefully abstained from entering upon the merits of the question between the Minister of Justice and the Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, which will doubtless form the subject of further proceedings, the control of which belongs to the Department charged with this duty, and have confined my reply to the matter to which you especially desired to direct my attention, viz., the view taken by you and your brother Judges of the position of the officers of the Supreme Court.

The Chief Justice to The Colonial Secretary.

Supreme Court, Sydney, 24 June, 1884.

I have laid your communication of the 20th instant, received on the afternoon of that day, before my colleagues. You commence by saying that my letter to you of the 17th instant opens up a question of the greatest importance, and one which, as far as you know, "is entirely new in the history of Responsible Government in this country." This is quite true, but in a sense entirely different from that in which you seem to regard it. The novelty consists, not in the Judges resisting the claim of a Minister to assume a control over the records of the Supreme Court and to give directions to its officers for their conduct in reference thereto, but in the fact of the Minister setting up such a claim. Such a claim is now made here for the first time, and so far as we are aware it is without parallel anywhere else in the Empire where the independence of the Supreme legal tribunals is secured as it is with us.

In England, as we took occasion to inform you two years ago, the Judges from time immemorial have had the absolute authority over the conduct of their officers, whom they alone have the power to appoint and dismiss. This most necessary power, spoken of with approval by Lord Coke in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, came under discussion in the House of Lords in 1844, and again in 1867, when all the law Lords, without a dissentient voice expressed the like approval. So much was this regarded as a matter of course that our Charter of Justice, issued in 1823, gives the power to appoint the officers of this Court (the Master and Prothonotary excepted) to the Chief Justice.

That this power was not by the Constitution Act continued and extended to all officers, as in the mother country, was an oversight which the occurrence now under discussion clearly shows the necessity of rectifying.

It is with some surprise that I observe the assumption on your part that anything was said in my letter with a view to convince you of the propriety of the direction which was given to the Prothonotary in the matter of the searches. Nothing was further from the intention of my brother Judges and myself than this.

It was thought necessary by us to narrate the circumstances leading up to that attempted interference with our Executive officers, which we had determined of our own authority to resist, and for that reason only did we inform you of what had been done. We made this so plain in our letter that we did not imagine that it would be misunderstood. "The important question," you say, "involved in this matter is whether the officers of the Supreme Court, whose appointment to and removal from the Public Service belong exclusively to the Executive Government—officers, who are charged among other things with the receipt of considerable sums of public money and with the performance of a variety of public duties, the official discharge of which can only be supervised by persons engaged in various departments of the Government,—can be wholly withdrawn from supervision of the Government and made independent of the authority from which they hold their offices, by which they are paid, and by which they may for a sufficient cause be dismissed."

With reference to this paragraph, which seems greatly wanting in the precision desirable in the discussion of a matter like the present, I must remind you that our complaint of Ministerial interference with the officers of the Court related only to the actions of those officers in connection with the administration of justice. To Ministerial supervision over the conduct of the Prothonotary or any of his clerks in reference to public moneys coming into their hands, or touching the discharge of any of the very few other duties unconnected with the administration of justice which particular statutes may have imposed upon them, we took no exception. Supervision of that kind might, as you suggest, be exercised "by persons engaged in various departments of the Government," much more conveniently and appropriately than by the Minister of Justice. The "supervision" which we objected to was the supervision over the officers of the Supreme Court in the discharge of duties incidental to and connected solely with the administration of justice. It might very readily be admitted that the Colonial Treasurer or any other Minister might inquire with perfect propriety into the Prothonotary's public accounts; but there is no logical connection between that sort of inquiry and the exercise of a right to control the Prothonotary's action as the guardian of the records of the Court.

"Another point," you go on to say, "is whether the Ministers of the Crown, who may at any time be censured or condemned for the inefficiency or misconduct of these officers, are yet to be entirely powerless in the enforcement of efficiency or the punishment of misconduct." No remark need be made by me on this paragraph, because it deals with matters to which my letter to you in no way referred.

You refer to the case of the late Curator of Intestate Estates in support of the view which you take as to the power of the Minister over the officers of the Supreme Court. That precedent is not in point inasmuch as the minute to which you refer was never brought formally under the notice of the Judges.

Towards the close of your letter you say that while the Government would regard "the slightest attempt to affect the independence of the Judges as a gross violation of law it would equally regard its surrender of the control and supervision of the proper performance of the duties of the officers of the Supreme Court as a betrayal of the duty of Ministers to the Legislature." This disclaimer of any attempt to affect the independence of the Judges we willingly accept. At the same time it is plain to us that the particular course against which we have protested must, if persisted in, result in such an invasion of that constitutional independence which you recognize.

The Colonial Secretary to The Chief Justice.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 24 June, 1884.

It is my duty to point out to you that it was to your assertion of the sole authority of the Judges of the Supreme Court to supervise and control all its officers without reference to any Ministerial authority, that I confined my assertion of the novelty of any such procedure in the history of Responsible Government in this country. I made no reference as to any Ministerial assumption of control over the records of the Supreme Court or as to giving any directions to the officers of the Supreme Court for their conduct in reference thereto.

The

The question which you broadly stated in your letter of June 17th was whether the Minister of Justice was to exercise any control, direct or indirect, over the officers of the Supreme Court. This was the question, to a consideration of which I endeavoured to confine myself in my letter to you.

What I objected to was the attempt on your part to extend to all the officers of the Supreme Court that independence of all interference which alone belongs by law to the Judges.

It appears to me that your references to Lord Coke and the discussions in the House of Lords in 1844 and in 1867, and to the Charter of Justice, throw no light upon the subject. The powers which you claim for the Judges were not conferred upon them by the Constitution Act. You say that this was an oversight; whether this be so or not we have no means of knowing, and it is quite immaterial to the issue. But it is clear that by the law the appointment and removal of all officers of the Supreme Court is now withdrawn from the Judges and vested in the Executive. To sustain your claim would be, it appears to me, to reverse what we must presume to have been the deliberate intention of the Legislature, and to give to the Judges the sole power of supervision and control, and at the same time to impose upon Ministers a responsibility for the satisfactory discharge of duties which they could neither direct nor control. I did not in any way suppose that you intended in your letter to convince me of the propriety of the direction given by you to the Prothonotary, nor do I think the language which I used is capable of any such meaning. I simply remarked that your narrative of the circumstances concerning the searches was immaterial as far as the one important question raised by your letter was concerned, and I am unable to perceive the want of precision which you discover in the paragraph in which I pointed out that officers of the Supreme Court, who hold their offices by virtue of appointments made by the Executive, cannot be made independent of its authority. Your remark that your letter in no way referred to the powerlessness of Ministers who were responsible to Parliament for the possible misconduct of the officers of the Supreme Court to control such officers, is no answer to my argument that Ministers should not and cannot surrender the only means of protecting themselves in the exercise of their responsibility.

I do not deem it necessary to make any further allusion to the case of the late Curator of Intestate Estates, the force of which as a precedent you do not dispute, but which you inform me was not brought formally under the notice of the Judges. It was, however, made the subject of Parliamentary motion, and the whole of the papers concerning it were published by order of Parliament, and the officer was removed from the Public Service for disobeying the direction of the Ministerial head of his Department while such officer was acting under the direction of the Judge of the Supreme Court.

I have very carefully abstained from expressing any disagreement with the course which you took in directing the Prothonotary that in future he should not allow any præcipe of a writ of summons to be searched for unless the name of the defendant or the number of the writ were mentioned, but the question with which I am concerned, and which I have argued, is whether the Prothonotary can decline to report to the Government when called upon to do so by the Minister charged with the duty of supervising the discharge of that officer's duties, and can justify his action by the direction of the Judges.

I must point out to you that I have made no disclaimer of any attempt to affect the independency of the Judges. Such a disclaimer was in no respect necessary, as I intimated that the course pursued could not possibly have justified any such apprehension.

The Chief Justice to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Supreme Court, Sydney, 26 June, 1884.

I have carefully read over again my letter to you of the 17th instant, and I cannot discover anything in it to warrant your statement of my "assertion of the sole authority of the Judges of the Supreme Court to supervise and control all its officers without reference to any Ministerial authority."

Having fallen into this unaccountable mistake you follow it up by saying that the question which I broadly stated was "whether the Minister of Justice was to exercise any control, direct or indirect, over the officers of the Supreme Court," and you go on to say that what you objected to was the attempt on my part to extend to all the officers of the Supreme Court "that independence of all interference which alone belongs by law to the Judges."

There is something more than a want of precision in these statements. If you will take the trouble to refer again to my letter you will at once see that the question which I broadly stated was "whether the Minister for Justice is to exercise any control, direct or indirect, over the Supreme Court or any of its officers in the administration of justice." These words which I have underlined you completely overlook. When I expressed my difficulty of conceiving by what means the Minister for Justice fell into so great an error as to suppose that he had any power to determine upon the efficient and rightful discharge of duty of any officer of the Supreme Court I added the words, "while engaged in connection with the administration of justice." This material qualification you have also overlooked.

Again, when I asserted the sole and exclusive control of the Court itself over all the papers filed in a suit I added these words: "Concede to a Minister the right to direct an officer of the Court as to his conduct touching any of these papers, then the power of the Court as an independent and supreme tribunal is at once destroyed." These qualifying words also you completely ignore.

In no part of my letter to you do I make any claim to the exclusive control of the Judges over the officers of the Court, except when they were engaged in connection with the administration of justice. I said, "If the Minister can interfere with the officers of the Court in one matter in a pending suit he can interfere with equal reason in all."

Further on I say that "any interference by the Executive with the Judges in the exercise of their judicial discretion is not merely perilous, but a thing which cannot be done."

Again, I object to the Minister "calling in question, with a view to over-riding if he thinks fit, the directions of the Chief Justice in the matter of searches for judicial papers filed in the office of the Supreme Court."

And I again assert that the exclusive power of the Supreme Court in all matters concerning the administration of justice regularly brought before it, either by papers filed in its office or otherwise, depends upon positive law.

Further

Further on I speak of the statement by the Minister for Justice of his intention to give "directions" to the Prothonotary "as to the future practice of searching for particulars of writs," and I take issue on this claim of a right to give these directions "in the matter of searches for papers in a pending suit, which right," I add, "the Judges feel themselves called upon to utterly deny, and the exercise of which they cannot for a moment permit."

At the very close of my letter I speak of the attempt of the Minister for Justice "to interfere with the Supreme Court in its necessary control over its own officers in the discharge of their executive functions."

I have taken the trouble to go thus fully into these matters in order to put beyond doubt the true issue raised, which is a claim by the Judges to control the officers of the Court, not in all matters, as you erroneously allege, but a claim on their part to control these officers in the discharge of their executive functions, when engaged in connection with the administration of justice.

The present controversy has probably arisen from the fact that we have here what does not exist either in England or the United States—a Minister of Justice. In the more or less despotic countries of Europe, where all the legal tribunals are largely under Executive control, a Minister of this description may be appropriate, but with us it is certainly out of place when it attempts to embrace the Supreme Court as a branch of the public administration subject in any way to its control.

I close this correspondence with this one remark, that supposing the Minister for Justice to have (what he most certainly has not) the power to control any of the officers of the Supreme Court when engaged in connection with the administration of justice, it would not be an uncourteous or ungraceful act on his part to refer all matters connected with the conduct of such officers, when so engaged, to the decision of the Judges as the persons best qualified to deal with them.

The Colonial Secretary to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 30 June, 1884.

Your letter of date 26th instant narrows down the subject to a small issue, which can I think be brought, without much difficulty, to a definite settlement.

So far as I understand it, you admit that the Minister charged with the administration of any particular branch has a right to control the officers of the Supreme Court in matters which are not in direct connection with the administration of justice, in suits which are under the cognizance of the Supreme Court. This is all I have ever contended for, as I have distinctly admitted in the correspondence that no Minister has a right of interference with the Judges in any degree, nor with the officers of the Court in duties purely affecting the administration of justice.

I have contended, and you admit, that in other respects the Minister has a right to exercise over such officers the necessary supervision and control.

There no doubt will be some difficulty in drawing a clear line of demarcation between the one class of duties and the other, and it will therefore probably be the better course that the Minister should adopt the suggestion made in your concluding paragraph, and forward any communication "connected with the conduct of such officers when so engaged" through the Chief Justice, when no doubt the Judges will give due consideration to the requirement of the Minister.

I refrain from again referring to the early part of our correspondence with the view of pointing out the extent of the demand which then was made in your first letter, being satisfied that we have at length come to a recognition of the true position in which these officers stand, viz., direct subordination to the Minister charged with the administration of the Department in all their duties save only those directly connected with the administration of justice. I do not think it necessary to further prolong this correspondence by discussing the question of whether the particular case which called forth this correspondence is within the one class or the other, contenting myself with the settlement of the principle involved rather than of any detail.

After

After the last letter received from the Colonial Secretary this persistent attempt by the Minister of Justice to interfere with the Prothonotary in the discharge of his duty in connection with the administration of justice greatly surprises me, as neither the Minister of Justice nor any other Minister has any power whatever to direct or control the Prothonotary in the discharge of those duties—no such Minister has the right to call upon him to report respecting his conduct thereon. The Judges have given the Prothonotary orders in regard to the searches to which this letter refers, and the Minister has no power to examine into or discuss the reasons on which those directions were based. If the Minister for Justice wants to know what order the Judges have promulgated the rule of Court of which he must be aware will give him the information required.

The Prothonotary is directed again not to give the report asked for, and any attempt irregularly to enforce it will raise an issue of the very gravest character.

Send this letter and minute back, and enclose copy rule of Court.

Copy article in Echo of June 21st, 1883, marked "A," referred to in the affidavit of Walter Bevan, sworn 4th August, A.D. 1883.

IN the cause Anderson v. Fairfax a verdict with substantial damages has been given for the plaintiff. A matter of greater interest and importance to the public on the one hand and to the Press on the other has never been brought before a Court of law. It may also be said that a more brilliant and complete vindication of the action taken by a public journal has been on no occasion put forward by a member of the bar than that which was made by the honorable and learned Attorney-General. The cheers which burst forth at the conclusion of Mr. Dalley's eloquent appeal to the Jury were indicative of public feeling. The summing-up of the Judge was listened to with amazement by many who had been attentive listeners to the evidence, and the verdict of the Jury was received in silence. The defendants had but one appeal to the "twelve good men and true"; it seemed as though there were two made on behalf of the plaintiff. At the very beginning of the case it became evident that the defendants had a battle to fight which could not be satisfactorily terminated in that Court; and when the Jury retired, the verdict was regarded as a foregone conclusion. We doubt very much whether any British Judge would place before a Jury the issues in this case in the manner in which they were presented by Mr. Justice Innes. But then His Honor has not had the benefit of an English training. He was formerly Associate to Sir Alfred Stephen, whose distinguished name enabled the Andersons to collect large sums of money in aid of their so-called benevolent institution, and it was in consequence of this connection that he made his way to the bar. Some years ago, when a seat on the Bench became vacant, and had been refused by abler men, he accepted it, and some of the comments made by the Press on that occasion were not very flattering. It would have been more satisfactory if such a case as that of the Andersons', in which Sir Alfred Stephen was so much concerned, and in which he so manifestly failed in regard to the supervision which the public thought he was exercising, had been heard before a Judge with broader views in regard to the obligations and responsibilities of the Press. The Herald was invited and importuned to send a reporter to give an account of this alleged benevolent institution, supported by public subscriptions and established on Government land. It had at the outset stated the objects of the founders. On two subsequent occasions, in response to appeals by the plaintiff, it had sent reporters, who, from no fault of theirs, had failed to reach the institution. In one instance the reporter was told that the excursion was private, and he returned. In another a reporter went by a steamer specially chartered, and did not reach the place because there were no arrangements for landing. Mrs. Anderson swore that this was owing to the interposition of Sir John Robertson. Sir John Robertson swore that Mrs. Anderson's statement was not true. On the third and last occasion, again at the earnest solicitation of the proprietors of the Home for Boys, the Herald sent a fourth reporter, who simply narrated what he saw, what he was informed by the inmates of the institution, and what were his impressions from what he saw and heard. The faithfulness of his report, as a report of what he saw and heard, and of what were his impressions, has not been questioned, but, on the contrary, admitted. The Government was aroused by the statement which appeared in the Herald, and sent its officers to inquire into the matter, and upon their report removed a number of the boys from the so-called charitable institution, and placed them in one of its own asylums, for they were in a lamentable condition from vermin and itch. So satisfied was the Government in regard to the character of the institution that it proceeded against the plaintiff to eject him from Government land, on which he had illegally "squatted." There is scarcely an intelligent man or woman in the country who will not admit that in this case the Herald has performed its public duty faithfully and well. But the Jury, after the summing up of the Judge, has said that it has done wrong, and has assessed the damage at £450 and the costs of the cause. The directors of the Press will be anxious to know whether this penalty is really according to law, and the public will form its own opinion as to whether it is in accordance with justice. If law and justice be represented by the verdict in this case, conductors of the Press will feel that, in battling for its right and in exposing the most barefaced impostures, they fight at a double disadvantage. A verdict like the one given yesterday would simply ruin a struggling newspaper proprietor, and probably leave him to rot in gaol. In such a case, what would be the feeling of a Judge who had told a Jury, for instance, that the principal nurse had said that she could not state that the boys were not sufficiently nourished, because she did not believe it, but who refrained from telling the Jury that the assistant nurse said the directly opposite—that the boys were thinner than they ought to have been, and that, after they had been five or six weeks in bed under medical treatment, they were in better condition than they were when they were first received into the asylum; and who also refrained from telling the Jury that, although the Andersons were specially warned that the children were suffering from itch, and that specific treatment was imperatively necessary, they were, nevertheless, allowed to remain untreated in their horrible condition until they were rescued by "the beneficent hand of the police." After the exposure which has taken place, how many of the jurymen or of the public would subscribe a single shilling to an institution carried on in such a way as the "Anderson Home for Boys" was conducted? Yet it comes about that in New South Wales pseudo-philanthropists, on the authority of well-known names, collect subscriptions in support of poor orphan boys who are allowed to be covered with lice and to tear themselves to pieces from itch. And then a Jury, after the summing-up of a learned Judge, may give a verdict calculated to discourage the exposure of shams and frauds.

THE ANDERSON LIBEL CASE—OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

[By Telegraph, from our own Correspondents.]

Melbourne, Monday.

The Argus to-day publishes a leading article on the recent libel action against the Sydney Morning Herald, in which it declares the verdict to amount to nothing less than a miscarriage of justice, for which his Honor Sir George Innes is mainly responsible. After referring to the "great and natural surprise" which the result has occasioned amongst the New South Wales community, the Argus summarises the cause of action, and proceeds to remark that a careful study of the evidence given "would satisfy satisfy most people that there was much to justify the strictures of the Sydney Morning Herald. The literal truth of everything alleged was not proved, but some of the charges were established beyond doubt, and altogether the disclosures made during the trial showed that the college was a very different affair from what had generally been imagined. The Judge himself conceded that the 'establishment had been 'justly subjected to very strong animadversion and condemnation on many points.' A prominent feature in the case was the action of the Government in removing a number of the boys from the institution. This was done on the recommendation of the boarding-out officer, Mr. Maxted, who visited the place with the Herald reporter, and arrived at the same conclusions. He says in his evidence, that 'he was struck with the singular accuracy of the report.' Under all the circumstances we should have expected an average Jury to have given a verdict for the defendants. They had taken the best possible means to secure a faithful and impartial report by sending a careful and experienced member of their staff, and the account which was published, although not accurate in every detail, exposed defects of a glaring character, and threw light where light was sadly wanted. Yet the Jury found that the plaintiff had been libelled, and awarded him damages to the extent of £450. It is scarcely going too far to say that this miscarriage of justice—for it is nothing less—was owing mainly, if not entirely, to the unjustifiable position taken up by the learned Judge, Sir George Innes, in charging the Jury. He put the case to them in such a way that they could hardly avoid giving a verdict for the plaintiff. It was a direction, in fact, rather than a charge. The Jury were told that the defendants would not be entitled to a verdict unless they proved, point by point, all the charges that they had made. His Honor went through the charges seriatim, and directed the Jury that if they considered that any one of them had not been proved they must give a verdict for the plaintiff, with such damages as they might think fit. According to this dictum the defendants might have justly censured the management of the institution, but because a mistake had been made in one point only the verdict must be for the plaintiff. This view was pressed over and over again with warmth more worthy of an advocate than a Judge, and when the learned Judge said in conclusion, 'If you think the article is in every particular true, then your verdict must be for the defendants,' he practically directed a verdict for the plaintiff. We have no hesitation in saying that if this is the sort of law which is to be applied to newspapers, their capacity for usefulness will be much restricted. They will neither be able to expose abuses nor to denounce wrongdoing, but will have to maintain silence in the midst of the most patent evils. For a newspaper to prove every word that it says on all occasions is manifestly impossible. It necessarily depends, as the Sydney Morning Herald did, to a large extent upon information supplied by others. It is therefore liable to fall into inaccuracies of detail, and, in nine cases out of ten, absolute proof of every word written could not be given. The view taken by Sir George Innes is directly opposed to that of the highest English authorities. In his eloquent address to the Jury Mr. Dalley called attention to the case of Morrison v. Belcher, an action against a newspaper for libel, in which Lord Chief Justice Cockburn used the following words:—'The law laid down in this Court at the last sitting, in the case of Campbell v. Spottiswoode, was lately confirmed by the Court of Queen's Bench, and it was not because a public writer might not be able to prove to the letter all he had stated that therefore he was liable, but the Jury could find for the defendant if they were of opinion that his observations and inferences were fair and legitimate under the circumstances, or that they were not so unfair as to be reckless, and thus, in law, malicious.' The same Judge, in another case, made the following statement—'If a public writer thus discussing the subject in the exercise of his vocation falls into error as to the facts or the inferences, and goes beyond the limits of strict truth, he is, nevertheless, privileged. The occasion is a privileged one, and if the privilege is exercised honestly and faithfully, and with a reasonable regard to what truth and justice may require, then, though he may exceed the limits of what he can legally prove to be the truth, he is protected from liability.' This is exactly the case in which the Sydney Morning Herald stood. It exercised the privilege of journalism honestly, faithfully, and with a reasonable regard to what truth and justice required. It substantiated in Court some of the gravest of the accusations it made; but in others it doubtless exceeded the limits of what it could 'legally prove.' According to the law as laid down by Lord Chief Justice Cockburn, a journalist in such a case is protected from liability. According to the dictum of Sir George Innes, he must prove the absolute truth of every word he says, or be made to suffer. The immediate effect of introducing this principle into an Australian Court of Justice is, that a Jury has fined a newspaper £450 for discharging its duty; and the ultimate result of the case, if the verdict is allowed to stand, will be to make the Press of New South Wales less free than it is in any other English-speaking community."

Tenterfield, Monday.

Great surprise was felt here at what is termed the iniquitous verdict returned by the Jury in the libel case Anderson v. Fairfax, and it is still the theme of general condemnation. The proprietors of the S. M. Herald have the sympathy of the public here with them.

Carcoar, Monday.

Considerable surprise was expressed here at the verdict returned in the libel action brought by the Andersons against the S. M. Herald.

We take the following comments from the newspapers of this Colony which have had time to deal with the question:—

The Evening News, June 21.—"It is to be supposed that the conductors of public journals in New South Wales will ere long realize the fact that to discover public abuses, to expose fraud, and to show in the light of day humbug, hypocrisy, and immorality, and endeavour to protect the community against the numberless sharpers and harpies ever waiting to prey on the charitable or unthinking, is not a profitable pursuit. Those who find their schemes and frauds exposed naturally object to the Press prying into their affairs, and having been taught that law, as interpreted here, is strongly in their favour and correspondingly against the public-spirited journalist, invariably appeal to their fast friend, and as invariably succeed in obtaining heavy damages for being deprived, as they generally are, by the way, of their means of livelihood—or, at all events, being compelled to earn it in a more legitimate manner. . . . During the past three or four years some important cases in which newspapers have been the defendants have engaged the attention of the Supreme Court. In each case there was no suspicion of malice, and it was not even seriously contended that the conductors of the newspapers were not actuated by a desire to promote the benefit of the public by the exposure of what they considered to be grave evils. But in every every instance the Judges, and (we regret to have to record it), as a matter of course, the Jury were also opposed. The consequence was that heavy damages were given against the proprietors of the journals concerned. But, perhaps, the most remarkable of these trials, not only for its facts, but for its results, was that which after more than a week of hearing terminated yesterday. But curious as the case in many respects undoubtedly was, the most extraordinary feature about it was the summing up of the Judge. His Honor has as much right to form an opinion on the subject as anybody else. But since the final result is, or ought to be, in the hands of the Jury, a Judge should be careful to avoid even the appearance of advocating the cause of one side more than the other. His duty is to interpret the law. In other countries, by other Judges, who are men of the greatest intellect, training, and experience, the law of libel is interpreted on broad principles, and especially when a public journal is sued. It is thus admitted that the Press possesses some privileges—at least in the opinion of English Judges; an opinion that appears to be shared by the Judicial Bench in every Australian Colony, New South Wales excepted. Here it has been laid down by the chief law authority that the Press has no privileges, and it must be confessed that the opinion expressed has been faithfully followed in practice, as the proprietors of every daily newspaper in this city know to their cost. The character of the Judge's summing up astonished everybody in Court, and we venture to say most people who have read it since. The surprise is not only that His Honor should have adopted the view of the case he did, but that he should have made that view so apparent to the Jury. It would be wrong to say that the Judge directed the Jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff; nor do we intend to convey the idea that he desired to influence them in any way. But we venture to say that, after listening to such an address as that delivered by Sir George Innes, only a jurymen of very strong mind would have felt inclined to give a decision in the opposite way. We do not desire to insinuate that the Jury were influenced by the Judge's summing up, and that they swallowed their convictions, being willing to take their verdict ready made. All that is positively known is that, to the surprise of ninety-nine men out of every hundred who have read the evidence, they found a verdict for the plaintiff, and thus kept up the public astonishment first caused by His Honor's remarkable charge. That they happened to be in accord with the view of the case taken by Sir George Innes was probably only an accident—curious certainly, but only a mysterious coincidence after all. It is said that it is usually the unexpected that happens, and the result of the Anderson v. Fairfax case is certainly a remarkable illustration of the truth of the saying. Few persons after reading the evidence could have anticipated the result. In England and elsewhere the Judges, when interpreting the law of libel, act upon broad principles, and in summing up submit broad issues to the Jury. It will be admitted by all who have paid any attention to the facts of the case as elicited in evidence that a great principle was involved, and that while a number of petty details were necessarily dragged in, there was a broader issue and a more important question overshadowing all. But one of the most remarkable things about the Judge's summing up was that, while extraordinary pains was taken to point out to the Jury failures of proof from a lawyer's point of view of some trifling and petty details, the broader issue and more important questions were altogether lacking, and consequently conspicuous by its absence. It is possible that the Jury may have taken this broader view of the question into consideration; in fact, we are bound to believe so, since they have declared that the defendants were in the wrong. But the circumstance does not in any degree lessen the surprise generally felt with the result of the trial. The Jury have awarded substantial damages to Mr. Anderson, and have thereby declared that the Herald's report of the 'institution' was not true. The character of the plaintiffs may be said to have been re-established by the verdict of the Jury. But if the Herald was wrong, then the Government was also wrong in removing the children from the fostering care of the festive lady who exhibits such irrepressible ardour in the collection of subscriptions, and the educational labours of the plaintiff, who occasionally uses a 'big, big D.' The Andersons have been turned off the piece of Crown land upon which they had established the 'institution,' not because of the Herald report, but upon the independent report of officers of the Government. In short, if the Jury are right, and they declare by their verdict that they don't believe what any of the witnesses for the defence say, then the Andersons have been harshly treated by the Government."

The Freeman's Journal, June 23.—"It cannot be doubted that the verdict of the Jury in the case of Anderson v. Fairfax has dealt a heavy blow at the independence of the Press, and—what is of infinitely greater importance—at the respect which should be entertained for the decisions of our tribunals. Will the opinion of the educated classes in this Colony ratify the verdict of a Jury which has absolved the Anderson College and its managers, and those who were responsible to the public for its management, from every taint of blame? The proprietors of the Herald undertook to prove the truth of their report that the Anderson College was totally unworthy of public support. They produced a number of witnesses, from a number of different places, between whom collusion was not even suggested, who swore to facts extending over a considerable period of time, of which, if their oaths were to be believed, they had the most competent knowledge. It was sworn by these witnesses that the education of the children was neglected, that they were not taught trades as they should have been, and that the plaintiff had been punished in a Court of law for neglecting a child. It was sworn that their bodily needs were not cared for. The plaintiff and his wife were said by the Government officer to have been 'heartlessly and cruelly callous to their sufferings,' and one of the sufferers was a poor cripple. When rescued by the police the children were proved to have been suffering from a loathsome disease born of dirt and neglect. Nor is this surprising, if the evidence concerning Mrs. Anderson is to be believed. Her having no more to do with the religious instruction of the children 'than a post,' her intemperate habits, and her worse than intemperate conversation, proclaimed her, if the evidence is to be believed, a most unfit person for her position. Against all this positive evidence of their having done things which, if known, would have dried up the fountains of public charity, there is little set except the bare oaths of those who are interested in the case. If no amount of evidence could outweigh an interested person's denial on oath, and the evidence of those who could have had no knowledge of the facts, the solemn proceedings of the trial were a hollow mockery; but if it could outweigh such a denial, the verdict of the Jury is absolutely inexplicable. To find for the plaintiff at all, the Jury must have believed that the libel was a tissue of falsehood, and that in order to bolster up this malicious falsehood a number of witnesses of all classes—doctors, clergymen, Government officials, Civil Servants, and tradesmen—with one accord gave false testimony. But if the Jury believed this, why did they give the damages at £450, instead of awarding, as they should have done, the full damages claimed? If, however, they believed their evidence, why did they not find for the defendants? A verdict which presents such a dilemma as this cannot produce any effects other than a most injurious one on the interests of justice. It is certainly one, viewed from either point, which the community community cannot respect. It is impossible to avoid saying something calculated to imply censure on the Judge, under whose auspices the Jury have so signally failed, on one side or the other, in the discharge of their duty. We do not allude to the rejection of evidence which weighed against the plaintiff, or the nature of the summing up, since we regard it as more than possible that the Judge's mental vision could not reach the whole case. The most disastrous feature in the case was the principle on which the Judge directed the Jury to base their verdict. The plaintiff did not prove express malice, and yet, the report having been written at the request of the plaintiff, and being therefore privileged, he had, if we are to trust the landmarks of the law, to prove express malice, before he could recover one penny. It was proved that, under these circumstances, statements alleged to be libellous were made to Mr. Lyne; and that, in the absence of proof of gross carelessness, relieved the defendant of the necessity of proving the truth in every particular of those statements. Yet on both these points the Judge directed the Jury in the way most favourable to the plaintiff, and, we believe, contrary to law. Nothing could be further from our intention than to suppose that the Judge did this consciously and malu fide. However great may have been the miscarriage of justice in this case, and however deeply the Judge may be responsible for that miscarriage, we have a profound confidence in the integrity of the Bench. We wish we had the same confidence in its knowledge and in its ability."

The Wagga Advertiser, June 23.—"Judges have frequently advanced that very abstruse proposition that 'every man is supposed to know the law.' This may apply with some degree of reason in criminal law, where for various classes of offences it is a simple matter to distinguish right from wrong; but in civil law, and especially the law of libel, not only the conductors of the Press, but gentlemen who pass learned in the law, may sweat their brains for another decade without being enabled to arrive at a clear and definite conclusion as to what is libel. But 'law is law nevertheless, notwithstanding,' and whatever the law may be in New South Wales, the issue of the Andersons' case on Wednesday is sufficient evidence that it is gloriously uncertain. The feeling of outspoken disgust expressed on all sides when this extraordinary verdict was made known here was intense, so that if this verdict be in accordance with law, it is not, in the opinion of the public, consistent with justice. The Sydney Morning Herald has been too long twitted with being afraid to speak out and expose abuses, but in this case it is proved that, where in the opinion of the conductors it was necessary to lay bare and expose what they deemed to be an abuse, the task is fearlessly undertaken without respect to persons. Doubtless the large measure of public sympathy which has been extended to the Herald is traceable to the high tone of propriety that has invariably been maintained by a journal which has never abused the giant power it possesses. Despite the summing up of the Judge and the verdict of the twelve good men and true, sworn to find for either party according to the evidence, that verdict is not in accordance with the opinions everywhere expressed. Nor is it in accordance with the convictions of the Herald proprietors, who may perhaps recognize their duty to themselves, and to the Australian Press generally, by appealing to a higher Court than that over which Judge Innes presided. Such an opportunity has seldom transpired as the present for testing the injustice of 'laws so wise,' as the defendants are men of substance, and well capable of fighting the matter out. The Herald was either right or wrong in publishing the faithful and uncoloured report furnished by Mr. Lyne of what he saw at the Anderson college. If wrong, then the verdict was to some extent justified; but if, on the other hand, as the public say, the Herald was justified in making a faithful report and publishing it, then they do not deserve to be mulcted in damages and costs, and be made to smart for honest outspokenness on the principle that the 'greater the truth the greater the libel.'"

The Clarence Examiner, June 23.—"The result of the libel case, Anderson v. the Sydney Morning Herald, adds another caution to journalists how dangerous it is with the law as it now stands for the Press to speak out, even where they have good grounds to believe that it is for the interests of the public the truth should be told. In this case there was an institution at Middle Harbour, near Sydney, called a Mechanics' College, or Industrial School, under private management, but supported partly by public subscriptions, and professing to care for boys and teach them a trade. Judging by what we have read of the evidence in the case, it seems to us the affair was supported mainly by outside contributions. The management seems to have been particularly desirous of having the 'institution' brought before the public by means of a report in the columns of the Sydney Morning Herald. It was some time before they succeeded in obtaining this notice, and when at length they got what they had so long craved for, it was not exactly what they expected. It was a report which told in a very outspoken manner that the so-called "workman's college," or whatever its managers pleased to term it, was a sham; that the children received there were neglected, and in very plain terms otherwise, that the institution was unworthy of public support. Now, we maintain the parties challenged criticism when they invited inspection by the Press; and the only question which should have been open to decide was, whether the article in point was false or malicious. We can see nothing in the evidence to justify the latter assumption; and we feel constrained to add that we consider the evidence for the defence proved good ground for all that had been said. Under such circumstances it is a monstrous thing that the truth must not be told, and that the doing so shall entail heavy damages and heavier costs. The public rely upon the Press, as one of its duties, to expose all means whereby too credulous people are often imposed upon. It is impossible the Press can do so if this is to be the consequence, that damages are certain to follow, with the only doubtful issue whether they are to amount to hundreds or thousands. When the Herald deemed it their duty to express their opinions on this institution, it cannot be for a moment supposed that it mattered personally one iota to any one belonging to that journal whether the thing was commented upon or not. But it did matter a good deal to the public, to those who were being invited to assist the philanthropic manager of an institution of whose existence and work all that subscribers could know was what the managing canvasser chose to tell them. There are few papers that can afford, like the Herald, to take a stand and perform such an expensive duty as it has done. Its loss has been the public gain, but it is an unjust law which permits a meritorious act to be subjected to pains and penalties. What the public will suffer and pay, however, for this gagging of the Press, it is impossible to estimate. The recollection of what has happened to the Herald will stifle comment, and leave scores of abuses, which like cancerous sores will spread, because the only instrument to lay them bare and kill their growth is the publicity of the Press. So be it; if the law does not permit the remedy, the public must abide the evil."

The Southern Argus (Goulburn), June 23.—"If any doubt existed in regard to the uncertain, and indeed, we might say, the unfair character of the law regulating the libel question in New South Wales, it must be removed from the public mind by the verdict given in the action Anderson versus Fairfax Fairfax & Sons. From the start it was thought that the plaintiffs were not at all likely to get a verdict, and as the evidence was gradually unfolded this opinion, instead of being weakened, was very much confirmed. The issue of the trial has, however, changed all this, and Messrs. Fairfax & Sons are now compelled to pay something like £3,000 for speaking as they did of the Home for Destitute Boys. Of course the simple construction to be put on the Jury's finding is that the Herald falsely and maliciously slandered the plaintiffs in publishing what it did concerning the institution over which Mr. and Mrs. Anderson preside. If this were the case, then certainly we would be the last to find fault with the verdict—if the Andersons were the generous, self-sacrificing people which they have wished to pass off as; if they entered into the noble work of training poor and helpless children in order to fit them for the world's broad field of battle—then any attempt at damaging them in the philanthropic labour to which they had set themselves should be met with the fullest punishment the law Courts would allow. Now, we maintain that, had any of the charitable undertakings above referred to been successful, it is impossible that the Middle Harbour Home for Destitute Boys would have escaped public attention, and the more so considering the female superintendent's anxiety to obtain a name for the place and secure contributions towards its sustenance. She has never been backward in trying to push on the business; long journeys were undertaken by her, towns and districts far removed from the scene of her supposed heroic strivings were canvassed, and a good-natured public listened to the tale she unfolded, and in many cases generously opened their purses to subscribe something towards its support. Was it not necessary and most desirable that something should be known of the inner working of this place? Assuredly so. The Herald sends an experienced reporter to deal with the 'Middle Harbour Home,' where it was supposed those in charge 'did good by stealth.' He gave his experience in an able and what appeared an impartial manner, and the Andersons, not being pleased with the notoriety they obtained, thought they should institute an action, and the outcome of it goes to show they have reason to be pleased with the step. Time after time the Herald was solicited to send a representative; at last the invitation was accepted, and without wishing to insinuate that the plaintiffs anticipated what would follow, they may pride themselves on having succeeded in involving our wary contemporary into the meshes of a law which they hitherto succeeded in carefully avoiding. There was nothing to be gained by writing a fictitious sketch of the Anderson college; on the contrary, much was to be feared, but yet the Herald, recognizing its duty to the public, fearlessly published a report the veracity of which was subsequently borne out by the statements on others not likely to have any other desire than to give an honest and true account of what they saw. We could say a great deal more on this matter, but must postpone its further consideration to another time, when we hope to go into it after a more detailed manner."

The Tamworth News:—"The news of the verdict given by the Jury in the libel action of Anderson v. Fairfax—£450 damages to the plaintiff—will seize most of our readers with profound surprise, and cause a thrill of honest indignation to pervade the community; and it will cause a feeling, too, of heart-felt humiliation that New South Wales has for the second time in a decade become conspicuous as a Colony in which the Press must not tell the truth, or if it does undertake so thankless and disagreeable an office, must deal out the precious commodity in such inappreciable doses as not to offend the sensitiveness of either panders or quacks. . . . The circumstances of the whole case, with which our readers must be pretty familiar by this time, are almost unique in the history of libels. Instead of seeking the material for a sensational article, the conductors of the Herald shunned it, steadfastly resisting the blandishments of the woman who was the heart and soul of this singular college for two years. The conductors, yielding at last to persistent importunity, sent out a reporter whose professional ability and shrewdness are admitted on all sides. He found such a state of things to exist at the college as prompted the article forming the subject of the action. The charges generally which were contained in the article were supported by an overwhelming mass of evidence. The institution seems to have obtained the nominal support of such eminent citizens as Sir Alfred Stephen and Mr. Justice Windeyer, who never visited the place, save by previous arrangement—and then very rarely. Their names, in fact, were the means by which public benevolence was tapped; and the circumstance may be seen tincturing each sentence which his Honor Mr. Justice Innes addressed to the Jury. A more singular deliverance never proceeded from the Supreme Court Bench, though perhaps it has been equalled. The verdict practically declares that if a reporter goes to an ostensibly public institution, even by express invitation, he must see only the rosy aspect of affairs—help to delude the public or hold his peace. We have in all probability not heard the last of this case. Fortunately, it is not a struggling firm of journalists that has been attacked. The verdict will rob the Fairfax Brothers of some thousands, but their 'withers will be unwrung.' They will either demand a new trial on the ground of the perversity of the verdict and misdirection, or appeal to the Full Court—and thence, if possible, to the Privy Council, a tribunal before whom the circumstances of an ex-Chief Justice and a present Puisne Judge being affected in point of dignity can be no disturbing ingredient. We feel sure that if we speak the public mind in declaring that if a fund should be started to recoup the Herald the loss it has sustained by its action in exposing a deplorable state of things, the requisite amount would be trebled. We should like to see the £450 subscribed by the Press of the Colony, and the costs by the general public. It is not at all likely that the Messrs. Fairfax would pocket the money. They would most probably follow the example set by other great journals under somewhat similar circumstances—accept the money and devote it to some public use, as a memorial of the grateful tribute accorded to them for the gallant fight they have made on behalf of the rights of the people."

Armidale Chronicle, June, 23.—"The injustice of the libel law of New South Wales was never more illustrated than in the cause celebre Anderson v. Fairfax, just concluded in the Supreme Court. A verdict was given for £450 and costs. We venture to say that such an astounding verdict was never before given by a Jury in a British community. The verdict practically amounts to mulcting the proprietors of the Sydney Herald for performing what any intelligent man in the community must regard as a public duty exercised in a praiseworthy manner. The complete absence of malice was conclusively shown. The most damning evidence as to how the Artisans' College was conducted was given by independent witnesses. The effect of this verdict is to further gag the Press, already gagged almost beyond endurance. In the case under note, instead of being mulcted in £2,500, the Herald ought to have received that sum, or more, for doing a great public service. The Herald, whatever its other faults may be, has always been a truthful, reliable journal, and whatever appears in its columns is as nearly accurate as is possible."

The Braidwood Dispatch, June, 23.—"The libel action against the Sydney Morning Herald, brought

by one Anderson for certain damaging statements published in that journal against an institution called 'Anderson's Home for Destitute Boys at Middle Harbour,' was brought to a conclusion on Wednesday, after lasting some three weeks. The verdict, says the Herald, created considerable surprise. Well it might! There was great conflict of opinion between the Judge (Sir J. L. Innes) and the counsel for the defence, as to the correctness of his Honor's summing up. . . . After all the wearisome details of this case have been gone into in all its small bearings ad nauseam, as to the condition of this institution and the treatment of the boys, as to the way they were clad and fed, cause of the condition in which they were found, as to the charges against the mistress and, financially, leading spirit of the institution,—after all these details have been served up to the public through the papers for the past three weeks, the glorious struggle between the lawyers ends in the back that can bear it having the burden placed upon it, with the satisfaction to the defendants of having to pay for an estimable and public-spirited purpose, which is not disputed, and which the Judge who summed up so hard against them gives them credit for, of giving in the public interest an impartial report of the working of an institution towards the support of which the charitable and philanthropic of the whole Colony were being called upon to contribute, and laying claim to State endowment as well. If a newspaper is to be thus mulcted to an extent that would simply mean ruin to most, for commenting fairly and impartially upon the gross mismanagement of such remarkable undertakings as this, upon the strength of facts which have in the main been fully substantiated for all purposes of justification, merely because it has been misinformed upon some minor details, then we may bid good-bye to its boasted functions as an exposé of abuses, as the guardian of the public welfare, and the palladium of liberty."

The Litghow Mercury, June 23.—"The verdict of the Jury in the great libel case, Anderson v. Fairfax, if in accordance with law, will give rise to a strong set of public opinion that the law is not in accordance with justice, and the proprietors of the Sydney Morning Herald, although condemned by the Supreme Court, will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that the action they took in the exposure of a great public wrong is upheld by that higher tribunal to which all others must ultimately be amenable. In doing so the Herald discharged one of the foremost duties incumbent upon the Press; and the performance has been declared by the Jury an illegal act. Again and again have the Law Courts declared against our leading journals on similar occasions, and as often have the great mass of the public throughout the Colony emphatically expressed their disapproval of the verdict."

The Nepean Times, June 23.—"Many of our readers will be surprised to hear the result of the verdict in the recent libel action at Sydney, Anderson v. Fairfax and another, viz., for plaintiff £450 damages. We would like to say a very great deal on this subject; but as there are matters in connection with the libel law of New South Wales that make all newspaper men very chary, we are compelled to 'sing small.' We are under the impression that the law as it stands is defective, but we also think there are Juries and Juries. In the case mentioned, and according to the finding of the Jury, the Government are in a far worse position than the Herald; their own officers examined the institution and the boys, and on their own responsibility had the lads removed. Here we have an institution supposed to be carried on by a committee who, according to their evidence, never had anything to do with the establishment, the Andersons themselves having the control and expenditure of large sums of money subscribed by the public for a special object. The Jury, according to their finding, have decided that the exposé of the working of the institution was not for the public good."

The Forbes Times, June 23.—"The celebrated libel case between Anderson and the proprietors of the S. M. Herald terminated on Wednesday, the Jury finding for the plaintiff, damages £450. Considering the length of time this case has occupied the Court, and the strong Bar retained by both sides, it will prove a very costly suit to the losers, and the result affords another instance of how little liberty the colonial Press enjoys even when its powers are devoted to the best and safest interest of society generally."

The Sydney Express, June 23.—"When His Honor (Mr. Justice Innes) began to direct the Jury, the most intense attention was paid to his words. The first of them showed the calm serenity of his mind, and that he was soul-proof against bias. After a fine exordium, he moved slowly on, calmly reviewing the whole case—setting forth the points which were in favour of the plaintiff very clearly; but leaving to the Jury the determination of the matters of fact, particularly whether the statements in the Herald report were true or otherwise, according to the evidence. . . . It is always dangerous for a journalist to plead justification and the public good."

2. I was not the writer of any of the articles in the said papers which form the subjects of the proceedings now taken against the said papers. I did not peruse such articles before their publication, nor had I any knowledge of the publication of such articles until I saw them in the said papers.

3. The article contained in the Echo was written, as I have been informed, by a member of the literary staff of that journal, and as I am also informed, such article was submitted to the editor of the paper for his perusal before publication was permitted, and that such article was honestly regarded by such editor as a fair and legitimate comment. The articles contained in the Sydney Morning Herald were extracts from other journals published in this Colony, in which the case of Anderson v. Fairfax and others had been discussed, and a telegram which had been received from a correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald in Melbourne furnishing the substance of an article on the same subject which had been published in the Argus newspaper in Melbourne on the day on which such telegram was received.

4. I am informed that these articles had been perused by one of the editors of the Sydney Morning Herald before their publication was permitted, and that in the judgment of such editor these articles were deemed to be fair and legitimate comments upon what was regarded by the writers in these journals as a miscarriage of justice. Although I have no personal supervision of the articles directly contributed to the journals, or the articles extracted from other papers which were published in such journals, I have uniformly insisted on the observance of one of the fundamental rules in the conduct of the Sydney Morning Herald and Echo newspapers, namely, of abstaining from all imputations of corruption upon persons engaged in the performance of great public functions.

5. I have, since my attention has been particularly directed to their publication, carefully perused the articles in question, and I am unable to perceive that they contain any language which could be in any way construed as a charge of judicial corruption. I disavow, on the part of those who were directly responsible for the publication of the articles, any intention by means of such publication to impute any corrupt or unworthy motives to the Judge to whom they refer, and aver that such articles at the time of their publication were honestly regarded by those who were responsible for such publication as fair and candid criticisms upon subjects of immediate and universal public interest.

6. That, concerning the publication of articles commenting upon the case after the verdict was delivered and before notice was given of the intention of the proprietors of the Herald and Echo to apply for a new trial, I submit that it has been a practice uniformly adopted by journalists in this country to comment upon important cases in which great public interest has been manifested immediately after such cases have been determined by a Jury, and that in this case at the time of the publication of such articles the proprietors had not resolved upon taking any steps for disturbing the verdict of the Jury. It was some days after the publication of such articles that the proprietors of the Herald and Echo were advised by their council that an application for a new trial should be made, and on the acceptance of this advice no articles were thereafter published in such journals, but on the contrary, immediately after such advice had been given the following notification was published in the Herald of the twenty-seventh day of June last, "We have received a large number of letters and telegrams with reference to the Anderson case which we should like to publish, but as, after consultation, we have decided, in consideration of the fact that the liberty of the Press is involved, to get an authoritative decision of the law, we think it proper to abstain for the present from further reference to the case."

No. 2.

The following is a copy of the judgment of the Court as delivered by His Honor the Chief Justice:—

In June last an action of libel was tried before Mr. Justice Innes, in which John Anderson was the plaintiff, and James Reading Fairfax and Edward Ross Fairfax were the defendants. The libel complained of was contained in a number of the Sydney Morning Herald newspaper, of which the defendants were and are the proprietors and publishers. The trial, which took place before a special Jury, lasted ten days, and resulted on the 20th June in a verdict for the plaintiff, with £450 damages. On the following day, in the Echo newspaper, of which also the defendants were and are the proprietors and publishers, there appeared a leading article, from which the following is an extract:—"The summing-up of the Judge was listened to with amazement by many who had been attentive listeners to the evidence, and the verdict of the Jury was received in silence. The defendants had but one appeal to the 'twelve good men and true'; it seemed as though there were two made on behalf of the plaintiff. At the very beginning of the case it became evident that the defendants had a battle to fight which could not be satisfactorily terminated in that Court, and when the Jury retired the verdict was regarded as a foregone conclusion. We doubt very much whether any British Judge would place before a Jury the issues in this case in the manner in which they were presented by Mr. Justice Innes. But then His Honor had not the benefit of an English training. He was formerly Associate to Sir Alfred Stephen, whose distinguished name enabled the Andersons to collect large sums of money in aid of their so-called benevolent institution, and it was in consequence of this connection that he made his way to the Bar. Some years ago when a seat on the Bench became vacant, and had been refused by abler men, he accepted it, and some of the comments made by the Press on that occasion were not very flattering. It would have been more satisfactory if such a case as that of the Andersons, in which Sir Alfred Stephen was so much concerned, and in which he so manifestly failed in regard to the supervision which the public thought he was exercising, had been heard before a Judge with broader views in regard to the obligations and responsibilities of the Press." In the Sydney Morning Herald of the 26th June—six days after the close of the trial—a series of extracts, twelve in number, were published under the heading "The Anderson Libel Case.—Opinions of the Press." These extracts are preceded by an introduction, in which it is stated that the Argus, of Melbourne, "declares the verdict to amount to nothing less than a miscarriage of justice, for which his Honor Sir George Innes is mainly responsible." The writer of this introduction then takes upon himself to assert that "the view taken by Sir George Innes is directly opposed to that of the highest English authorities." A piece of telegraphic intelligence is then given from Tenterfield, in these terms:—"Great surprise was felt here at what is termed here the iniquitous verdict returned by the Jury in the libel case Anderson v. Fairfax, and it is still the theme of general condemnation." Another piece of telegraphic intelligence from Carcoar runs thus:—"Considerable surprise was expressed here at the verdict returned in the libel action brought by the Andersons against the Sydney Morning Herald." The extracts from the Evening News contain these passages: "But curious as the case in many respects undoubtedly was, the most extraordinary feature about it was the summing up of the Judge. . . . The character of the Judge's summing up astonished everybody in Court, and we venture to say most people who have read it since. The surprise is not only that His Honor should have adopted the view of the case he did, but that he should have made that view so apparent to the Jury. . . . But one of the most remarkable things about the Judge's summing up was, that while extraordinary pains were taken to point out to the Jury failures of proof from a lawyer's point of view of some trifling and petty details, the broader issue and more important questions were altogether lacking, and, consequently, conspicuous by their absence." In the extract from the Freeman's Journal the following opinions are expressed:—"It cannot be doubted that the verdict of the Jury in the case of Anderson v. Fairfax has dealt a heavy blow at the independence of the Press, and what is of infinitely greater importance, at the respect which should be entertained for the decisions of our tribunals. Will the opinion of the educated classes in this Colony ratify the verdict of a Jury which has absolved the Anderson College and its managers, and those who were responsible to the public for its management, from every taint of blame? . . . It is impossible to avoid saying something calculated to imply censure on the Judge under whose auspices the Jury have so signally failed, on one side or the other, in the discharge of their duty. We do not allude to the rejection of evidence which weighed against the plaintiff, or the nature of the summing up, since we regard it as more than possible that the Judge's mental vision could not reach the whole case. The most disastrous feature in the case was the principle on which the Judge directed the Jury to base their verdict. . . . It was proved that, under these circumstances, statements alleged to be libellous were made to Mr. Lyne, and that in the absence of proof of gross carelessness relieved the defendant of the necessity of proving the truth in every particular of these statements. Yet on both these points the Judge directed the Jury in the way most favorable to the plaintiff, and we believe contrary to law." A portion of the Wagga Advertiser extract runs thus:—"The feeling of outspoken disgust expressed on all sides, when this extraordinary verdict was made known here, was intense, so that if this verdict be in accordance with law, it is not, in the opinion of the public, consistent with justice." The Tamworth News extract contains the following paragraphs:—"The news of the verdict given by the Jury in the libel action of Anderson v. Fairfax—£450 damages to the plaintiff—will seize most of our readers with profound surprise, and cause a thrill of honest indignation to pervade the community, and will cause a feeling too, of heartfelt humiliation that New South Wales has for a second time in a decade become conspicuous as a Colony in which the Press must not tell the truth, or if it does undertake so thankless and disagreeable an office, must deal out the precious commodity in such inappreciable doses as not to offend the sensitiveness of either panders or quacks . . . . The institution seems to have obtained the nominal support of such eminent citizens as Sir Alfred Stephen and Mr. Justice Windeyer, who never visited the place, save by previous arrangement, and then very rarely. Their names in fact were the means by which public benevolence was tapped, and the circumstance may be seen tincturing each sentence which His Honor Mr. Justice Innes addressed to the Jury . . . . They will either demand a new trial, on the ground of the perversity of the verdict and misdirection, or appeal to the full Court, and thence if possible to the Privy Council, a tribunal before whom the circumstance of an ex-Chief Justice and a present Puisne Judge being affected in point of dignity can be no disturbing ingredient." In the extract from the Armidale Chronicle there is the passage:—"We venture to say that such an astounding verdict was never before given by a Jury in a British community." One paragraph, cited from the Braidwood Dispatch is as follows:—"After all these details have been served up to the public, through the papers for the past three weeks, the glorious struggle between the lawyers ends in the back that can bear it having the burden placed upon it, with the satisfaction to the defendants of having to pay for an estimable and public spirited purpose, which is not disputed, and which the Judge who summed up so hard against them gives them credit for of giving, in the public interest, an impartial report of the working of an institution towards the support of which the charitable and philanthropic of the whole Colony were being called upon to contribute, and laying claim to State endowment as well." On the 28th June, two days after the publication of these extracts, and eight days after the verdict, the defendants filed a memorandum of their intention to apply to this Court for a rule nisi calling on the plaintiff to show cause why a new trial should not be granted. The present term commenced on the 29th of July. The motion for the rule nisi came on for argument on the 2nd instant, and on the following day the rule asked for was refused. Immediately after such refusal, the Chief Justice announced that the attention of the Judges had been called to the publications already mentioned, and the Prothonotary was thereupon directed to take the necessary steps to issue a rule, calling on the publishers of the newspapers in question, to show cause, on the 13th instant, why they should not be committed for contempt. On that day an affidavit was filed setting forth the publication of copies of these newspapers, and that the above defendants were the publishers of both of them. On their behalf, Counsel attended and took exception to the course pursued by the Court in summarily calling upon them to show cause in the manner directed. This objection being overruled, time was then asked to enable affidavits to be prepared. The Court granted this application, and adjourned the further hearing of the matter till the following Monday, the 20th instant. On that day Counsel attended and read the following affidavit:—"Affidavit of Edward Ross Fairfax, sworn August 20, 1883, states:—I am one of the proprietors of the Sydney Morning Herald and of the Echo newspapers. My brother, James Reading Fairfax, the other proprietor of the said newspapers, is now, and has been for the past eighteen months, out of the Colony, in Europe. 2. I am not the writer of any of the articles in the said papers, which form the subjects of the proceedings now taken against the said papers. I did not peruse such articles before their publication, nor had I any knowledge of the publication of such articles until I saw them in the said papers. 3. The article contained in the Echo was written, as I have been informed, by a member of the literary staff of that journal; and, as I am informed, such article was submitted to the editor of the paper for his perusal before publication was permitted, and such article was honestly regarded by such editor as a fair and legitimate comment. The articles contained in the Sydney Morning Herald were extracts from other journals published in this Colony, in which the case of Anderson v. Fairfax and others had been discussed, and a telegram which had been received from a correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald in Melbourne, furnishing the substance of an article on the same subject, which had been published in the Argus newspaper in Melbourne, on the day on which such telegram was received. 4. I am informed that these articles had been perused by one of the editors of the Sydney Morning Herald before their publication was permitted, and that, in the judgment of such editor, these articles were deemed to be fair and legitimate comments upon what was regarded by the writers in these journals as a miscarriage of justice. Although I have no personal supervision of the articles directly contributed to the journals, or the articles extracted from other papers which were published in such journals, I have uniformly insisted on the

the observance of one of the fundamental rules in the conduct of the Sydney Morning Herald and Echo newspapers, namely, of abstaining from all imputations of corruption upon persons engaged in the performance of great public functions. 5. I have, since my attention has been particularly directed to their publication, carefully perused the articles in question, and I am unable to perceive that they contain any language which could in any way be construed as a charge of judicial corruption. I disavow, on the part of those who were directly responsible for the publication of the articles, any intention by means of such publication to impute any corrupt or unworthy motives to the Judge to whom they refer, and aver that such articles, at the time of their publication, were honestly regarded by those who were responsible for such publication as fair and candid criticisms upon subjects of immediate and universal public interest. 6. That concerning the publication of articles commenting upon the case after the verdict was delivered, and before notice was given of the intention of proprietors of the Herald and Echo to apply for a new trial, I submit that it has been a practice, uniformly adopted by journalists in this country, to comment upon important cases in which great public interest has been manifested, immediately after such cases have been determined by a Jury; and that in this case, at the time of the publication of such articles, the proprietors had not resolved upon taking any steps for disturbing the verdict of the Jury. It was some days after the publication of such articles that the proprietors of the Herald and Echo were advised by their counsel that an application for a new trial should be made, and on the acceptance of this advice no articles were thereafter published in such journals; but, on the contrary, immediately after such advice had been given, the following notification was published in the Herald of the 27th day of June last:—“We have received a large number of letters and telegrams with reference to the Anderson case which we should like to publish, but as after consultation we have decided, in consideration of the fact that the liberty of the Press is involved, to get an authoritative decision of the law, we think it proper to abstain for the present from further reference to the case.” After this affidavit was read, counsel for Messrs. Fairfax stated that he had no observations to make, and the matter was adjourned for a week to enable the Court to consider its decision. On the day so appointed it was further adjourned till this day, and we now proceed to give our judgment. At the time of the publication of the newspapers which had given rise to this proceeding the Court was not sitting, and no steps could be taken against the publishers for contempt until the commencement of the term. A memorandum announcing the intention of the defendants in the libel action to apply for a new trial having been filed, it was thought right not to take any steps in reference to the contempt until this new trial motion had been disposed of. As already stated, immediately after the refusal of the rule directions were given to bring the publishers before the Court to answer for their contempt. In support of the legality of the course taken in the present instance, it is not necessary to refer to any authority other than the case of the Evening News newspaper, decided by this Court in September, 1880 (1 N.S.W., Rep. 211). The power of the Court of its own motion to institute proceedings for the summary and immediate punishment of any contempt of its authority, whether in reference to a pending case or not, was upheld, as it has been in other cases which were on that occasion referred to. To the reasons then given by us we adhere, and, without repeating, we rely upon them in support of the decision about to be pronounced. When that judgment was given two recent instances of summary punishment for contempt had been reported, but to which attention had not been drawn: they were Onslow and Whalley's case and Skipworth and Orton's case, reported in L.R. 9, Q.B. 219 and 230. In the first of these cases Chief Justice Cockburn delivered the unanimous opinion of the Court. The contempt in question there consisted of improper comments on a criminal case then pending. “It is clear,” said His Lordship, “that this Court has always held that comments made on a criminal trial or other proceedings, when pending, is an offence against the administration of justice, and a contempt of the authority of this Court. It can make no difference in principle whether these comments are made in writing or in speeches at public assemblies; neither can it make any difference in principle whether they are made with reference to a trial actually commenced and going on or with reference to a trial which is about to take place. We can have no hesitation in applying to the one the same rule which we should apply to the other.” An apology having been made by Messrs. Onslow and Whalley (both of whom were Members of Parliament), and a pledge having been given that they would not again offend in like manner, the Chief Justice went on to say: “If there had been any hesitation or reluctance in giving that pledge,—if there had not been a submissive attitude, which both you gentlemen on the present occasion, I am glad to think, have adopted, and a full apology, the Court would have thought it its duty to use the full power and authority it possesses of imposing a substantial fine and imprisonment in addition to the fine. We are happily spared the necessity for that by the wise, prudent, and proper line of conduct which you have, under the advice of your counsel, adopted to-day; but it must be distinctly understood that, in inflicting the pecuniary penalty we are about to impose, we have gone to the extreme of moderation; and that if upon any future occasion a proceeding of this kind shall be repeated, the full power of the Court, which it undoubtedly possesses, to restrain and prevent such proceedings by adequate and commensurate punishment will be exercised with a stern, unhesitating, and unflinching hand.” They were then each fined £100, the Chief Justice emphatically desiring it to be understood “that leniency will be appealed to in vain if any other person shall be brought before the Court charged with, and proved to be guilty of, similar contempt.” In the second case the contempt consisted of a violent attack upon Chief Justice Cockburn himself, in consequence of which he abstained from taking any part in the decision of the Court. The judgment was pronounced by Mr. Justice Blackburn. “The phrase contempt of Court,” said that very eminent Judge, “often misleads persons not lawyers, and causes them to misapprehend its meaning, and to suppose that a proceeding for contempt of Court amounts to some process taken for the purpose of vindicating the personal dignity of the Judges, and protecting them from personal insults as individuals. Very often it happens that contempt is committed by a personal attack on a Judge, or an insult offered to him; but as far as their dignity as individuals is concerned, it is of very subordinate importance compared with the vindication of the dignity of the Court itself; and there would be scarcely a case I think in which any Judge would consider that, as far as his personal dignity goes, it would be worth while to take any steps.” The counsel for the prosecution of the defendant Orton had applied for a rule against Skipworth only. “In the present case,” said Mr. Justice Blackburn, “counsel for the prosecution did not ask that the defendant should be brought before us. We thought, however, on the materials before us, that there was a case made out of his being a party to the obstruction of justice; and thinking that there was a prima facie case, and that the interposition of the Court was required to prevent a course continuing which would obstruct the due administration of justice in a case now pending before us, we thought it right to order that the defendant should appear here to-day." Lechmere Charlton's case is then referred to, as it was by this Court in the case of the Evening News. Towards the end of the judgment His Lordship says, "I am reminded by my brother Mellor that this is done by a person who is a barrister and ought to have known better; but Mr. Skipworth, although he is a barrister, certainly appears not to be a lawyer. There has therefore been an aggravated offence, and it is absolutely necessary that it should be met by a severe sentence. We must therefore impose a fine, and we must also impose a sentence of imprisonment. The fine must be sufficient not only for the punishment of this particular contempt, but also as a warning for other persons." Mr. Skipworth was then fined £500 and imprisoned for three calendar months, and the defendant Orton was ordered to give security himself in £500 and sureties in £500 more to be of good behaviour for three months, and to be imprisoned till such security should be given. For the purposes of the present proceeding it is not necessary to inquire into the correctness or otherwise of Mr. Justice Innes's summing-up in the case of Anderson v. Fairfax. We have, however, carefully read that summing-up, and we are of opinion that His Honor stated the law clearly and correctly to the Jury. This observation, however, does not include the point on which Mr. Justice Faucett differed from his colleagues in refusing the rule for a new trial. The right to comment freely and fully upon the public acts of public men in every position, from the highest to the lowest, was accurately set forth, and the distinction between comments and charges, criticism and accusation, was over and over again pointed out. The Jury were told that no person is justified in repeating any slander merely because he may have reason to believe it to be true. The publishers of newspapers, as this Court has more than once pointed out, have no privileges of any kind in the discussion of questions whether public or private. The right to examine and (where the occasion calls for it) to condemn the conduct of public men is possessed by every one in the community, but by writers in newspapers no more than by any one else. The benefit which the public derive from the exposure of corruption, incapacity, or imposture in persons occupying public positions, or by their conduct meriting public criticism, is manifest; but the right of every individual who may be subjected to such exposure of criticism to hold his critic liable for the promulgation of disparaging facts which he cannot prove is equally indisputable. In refusing the rule for a new trial, this Court held (what it had on previous occasions held) that the publisher of a libel cannot claim immunity by showing that it was communicated to him by some one else, on whose truth he had good reason to rely. Apart from "privilege," the publisher of every libel must, at his peril, take care to be ready with legal proof of all his defamatory allegations. He is not at liberty to assume facts, however strongly the grounds may appear to warrant such assumption, unless he is prepared with proofs when the correctness of his assumption is called in question. It imposes no impediment to the complete investigation of any matter of public concernment to require that every person who publishes or anybody a libellous statement should be in a position to prove the truth of that which he asserts. Between liberty and license there is a broad and clear line of demarcation. No public man is so exalted as to be above the reach of attack and exposure in matters of public concernment where the facts justify the attack,—no public man is so low in position as not to have the right to demand from his assailant proof of every condemnatory accusation. This condition of the law, so rational and so salutary, may of course be altered by the Legislature, but until it is altered every member of the community is bound to recognize and conform to it. For the interpretation, application, and enforcement of this as of all other laws the Constitution of this Colony has established, as all civil communities have established, appropriate tribunals. Care is taken to provide, as far as is practicable, that the persons constituting these tribunals shall possess the education, experience, character, firmness, and impartiality necessary to fit them for so responsible a position. By these tribunals the collective will of the community is authoritatively carried out in all cases where disputes arise for the settlement of which a force outside the disputants is necessary. It is essential to the satisfactory working of these tribunals that their decisions should be accepted with respect, subject to such right of appeal as the laws may have provided. It would inevitably impair their utility if every unsuccessful litigant should assert the right publicly to promulgate the opinion that the law of this duly-constituted tribunal was inaccurate, and to invite the public at large to support him in that proceeding. It would to a far greater degree impair that utility if such unsuccessful litigant were not only to question the accuracy of the tribunal but to personally disparage and vilify its members. Persons so acting are clearly guilty of treating the tribunal with contempt, and it is to repress such contempts that the law has wisely entrusted the tribunals with the power of summarily punishing those who commit them. In all well ordered societies the interpretation and application of the laws must be accepted from the Courts which the society itself has set up. No individual has the right to make himself the Judge in his own cause, and assert that his view of the law should be accepted in preference to that of the Judge who may have decided against him. Ordinarily litigants have not the means of thus setting their opinions against the opinions of the Courts, but the publishers and proprietors of newspapers have a special and peculiar means of spreading abroad their opinions and their complaints, and to this facility must be attributed the fact that in cases like the present they set themselves up as truer interpreters of the law than the Judges, who can have no motive to decide otherwise than impartially, and who, apart from their authority to decide the law, have received the special training necessary to enable them to understand it. In the present case the defendants in the libel action (only one of whom is before the Court, the other not having been served with the order to attend here by reason of his absence from the Colony), on the very day after the Judge's summing-up and the delivery of the verdict, published in one of their newspapers a condemnation of both. The summing-up, they inform the public, was listened to with "amazement," and the verdict was received in silence. This alleged "amazement" can be accounted for only on the assumption that the Judge was palpably partial, ignorant, or corrupt, and the "silence" of the listeners must mean that the verdict was manifestly wrong. That partiality in the Judge was implied in this allegation of "amazement" is evident from the assertion which immediately follows—that the defendants had only one appeal to the Jury, though the plaintiff had two. To make the meaning still more clear, it is then roundly asserted that "at the very beginning of the case it became evident that the defendants had a battle to fight which could not be terminated in that Court." This can mean nothing else than that the Judge showed himself to be adverse as soon as the case commenced, and, therefore, before the evidence was given, the taking of which occupied ten days. Having thus unmistakably charged His Honor with culpable partiality, the defendants then expressed a doubt whether "any British Judge would place before a Jury the issues" as he did. To account for this improper conduct of His Honor the defendants then made the wholly immaterial, but at the same time unfounded, unfounded, statement that he "had not the benefit of an English training," he having received his legal education and been called to the Bar in the mother country. Reference is then made to the fact of his having been at one time the Associate of Sir Alfred Stephen, whose distinguished name enabled the Andersons to collect money "in aid of their so-called benevolent institution," and the ridiculous but at the same time desiguedly disparaging assertion is made that "it was in consequence of this connection that he made his way to the Bar." Lest, however, the animus against the Judge should not appear with sufficient clearness, the defendants go on to allege that his acceptance of a seat on the Bench, when it had been refused by abler men, elicited "not very flattering comments from the Press." The opinion is then expressed that it would have been more satisfactory if such a case as the Andersons, in which Sir Alfred Stephen was so much concerned, had been heard by some other Judge. As already pointed out, up to that time the Judge who tried the case was the only person authorized to declare the law by which it was to be decided. Until the appeal which the defendants had a right to make to the Full Court against his ruling, they were bound to accept it as correct. They, however, without the knowledge necessary to make their opinion of any value—without waiting for the decision of the Full Court, to which a few days afterwards they in due course appealed—constituted themselves the Judges in their own case, and sent forth on the wings of the Press, which they had at their command, these broad statements of partiality and incapacity and erroneous exposition of the law, in order to create the opinion in the public mind, from one end of the country to the other, that there had been a miscarriage of justice and a gross perversion of the law. Not only is this imputation of misconduct made upon the Judge, but the Jury, who were the duly-constituted Judges of the facts as His Honor was the duly-constituted Judge of the law, are by necessary implication condemned by these defendants. If the Jury came to a manifestly wrong conclusion on the facts, the means existed by appeal to the Court to set them right. The defendants, however, took upon themselves to condemn the whole tribunal—Judge and Jury together—and this they are enabled to do because they have at their command what other litigants have not—newspapers, by means of which they can at pleasure promulgate their opinions. It cannot be contended with any degree of plausibility that the course taken by these defendants does not amount to a very gross contempt of this Court. The publication in a collected form, six days after the trial, of the opinions published in a number of these newspapers condemnatory of the Judge and Jury still further showed what indeed required no additional illustration—the deliberate intention of the defendants to ignore the authority of the Judge and of the Court by an appeal to popular prejudice by raising a false cry of danger to the freedom of the Press, this freedom being, in the view of these defendants, a right possessed by public journalists to say with impunity of public men what they may think they have fair grounds to believe to be true, and to judge for themselves whether or not they transgress beyond that limit. In the affidavit made by Mr. Edward Ross Fairfax he states that he did not see the articles complained of till they were published—that he has always instructed the writers in his employment to abstain from imputing corrupt motives to public men—that he fails to see any charge of judicial corruption in the articles in question—and that he had not determined to apply for a new trial until after these articles appeared. All these allegations are immaterial. The opinion of Mr. Fairfax as to the propriety of the comments in respect of which he has been called upon to answer to this Court cannot be expected to have any weight with us on this occasion. Whether the action was in fact pending or not when the articles appeared cannot affect his liability for their publication. For the reasons already pointed out, the publication of them amounts to a contempt of this Court. As a matter of fact, however, the case was pending on the 26th June, as is shown by the filing by the defendants of the memorandum on the 28th, and the argument which followed on the 2nd instant. For all these reasons—not in any degree on account of the Judge whose conduct has been impeached, but on behalf of the public, whose real liberties are placed in jeopardy by any attempt to overawe or disparage this tribunal, which is the duly-appointed guardian of public rights, and whose legal decisions, subject to such appeal as the Constitution has appointed, must in all cases be obeyed—we feel it incumbent on us to award substantial punishment against the publisher who is within our jurisdiction. We therefore order that Mr. Edward Ross Fairfax do, for his contempt of this Court, pay a fine of £250 to Her Majesty the Queen.

GUNDAGAI BENCH OF MAGISTRATES.

No. 1.

Mr. W. H. L. Bailey to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Gundagai, 13 January, 1884.

As a citizen elector and a journalist I do myself the honor of forwarding you, under a separate cover, a copy of the Gundagai Herald of yesterday, in which you will see the Police Court report of the cases W. Matchett v. A. S. Smith, J.P., which discloses conduct on the part of some Magistrates which I think deserves the attention of the Government.

I will not prejudice the case, as the report will speak for itself, furthermore than stating that Dr. Ogg, J.P., was the cause of the disturbance at the public meeting out of which the proceedings arose, that he was the avowed enemy of Matchett, and although acknowledging it, he stated his intention to give Matchett a parting pill by sitting on the cases, although he was leaving the Colony for good, which he did immediately after the hearing, for Rockhampton, Queensland, where he has bought a practice.

2. That Mr. J. B. Elworthy was also an avowed partisan of A. S. Smith, and was also present at the disturbance, and was actually subpoenaed to give evidence, yet he sat on the case; and I may here mention that Mr. Elworthy a year back publicly stated, and wrote to the Police Magistrate to that effect, that he declined to sit on the Bench, as it might interfere with his business, and this was the second case he has sat on for the past year, although public business is often neglected for the want of a second Magistrate.

3. That the defendant, Mr. A. S. Smith, admits that he only accepted the position of J.P. in order that it would help him in his business as a land agent by signing declarations, and that he has not for the last four years entered the precincts of the Court-house.

Both Mr. Elworthy and Mr. Smith reside within a few yards of the Court, and yet will never occupy the Bench except, as in the case of Matchett v. Smith, J.P., when they do so from interested motives.

I have chosen this method of making you acquainted with Magisterial doings in Gundagai, instead of asking questions in the House through a Member.

I am, &amp;c.,

W. H. L. BAILEY.

[Enclosures.]

Extracts from the Gundagai Herald, Saturday, January 12th, 1884.Justices' Justice.

THE cases of Matchett v. Smith, heard in the Police Court yesterday, afford matter for serious reflection. Two of the Justices adjudicating, Dr. Ogg and Mr. J. B. Elworthy, were avowed partisans. The latter has not sat on the Bench for a considerable period; and the former was on the direct point of leaving the district for good, which he did immediately after the Court adjourned; and in addition was the first cause that led up to the quarrel. Both those gentlemen were subpoenaed as witnesses, and yet, in the face of all those circumstances, they took their seats upon the Bench.

There was no written statute which actually prohibited them from adjudicating, and, in the absence of this precedent, gentlemanly delicacy and good taste were all sacrificed, and the honor and dignity of the Bench had to suffer. Even if a lingering spark of modesty had remained, it would have been sufficient to prevent those gentlemen from adjudicating in a quarrel in which they were so intimately mixed up.

After this exhibition—alas for the honor and dignity of the Bench—it must be humiliating to every true citizen to see it brought so low. As regards the decision, there are good grounds for taking exception to it in each case. In the first case an assault was clearly proved, even by the defendant's own admission, independent of overwhelming testimony brought in support of it; but because there was no battery, either actual or attempted, it was ruled that there could be no assault: thus, for a man to shake his fist in proximity to another's face, accompanied by threatening words and gestures, is an assault, and calculated to promote a breach of the peace, although the assailant may have no more intention of striking his opponent than of eating him.

Although such an assault may merit only a nominal penalty, yet it is incorrect to say that it has no existence, merely because it is a little one. In regard to the second case if a navvy had used the same outrageous words and language,—it is safe to aver that a fine of at least twenty shillings if not double that amount would have been inflicted. The reason why an offence that is so heinous when committed by a man ignorant of the law and usages of refined society should be regarded of such a venial character when committed by a gentleman on the Commission of the Peace, whose duty it is both by precept and example to elevate the tone of public morals, is a question that is difficult to understand.

The argument of previous provocation as a mitigating circumstance will not hold water, as the provoking words were not used until after the abusive language was uttered. The quality of a man's coat should not be held to determine the gravity of his offence, but it ever has been and probably will be to the end of time, and friendship will always have a disturbing influence on the even balance of Justice.

Court "Proceedings" out of the disgraceful Public Meeting.

AT the Court-house yesterday morning, before Mr. Love, P.M., Mr. J. B. Elworthy, and Dr. Ogg, J.P., Mr. Archibald Scott Smith, J.P., was charged with assaulting Mr. William Matchett, in a public place, to wit, "Leary's Hotel," on the 7th instant, and also on the same date and at the same place he did also use insulting language to the said William Matchett. Mr. Perkins appeared for the defendant, the complainant conducting his own case. Prior to the hearing of evidence, Mr. Love said:—"Before going on with the case it would give me, and I am sure it will the other gentlemen who are with me, every satisfaction, if these matters could be amicably settled out of Court." Mr. Matchett said there was no one more ready to be always at peace with his neighbours than he was. He would be a party to settling it amicably if invited to do so; but as a citizen he demanded, as he had a right to do, the protection of the law. Mr. Perkins asked if there were any objections lodged against Messrs. Ogg and Elworthy sitting on the case. Mr. Love stated there were, and then read out the objections lodged by complainant. Mr. Perkins said he had never heard of such a gross libel—such a malicious malignant libel—in the course of his practice; Mr. Matchett was getting up to reply, when Mr. Perkins lustily exclaimed, with much indignation, "Sit down, sir," and walked in the direction of Mr. Matchett, as if to prevent him speaking. Mr. Matchett: Have you done, Mr. Perkins? Mr. Perkins:—I am not going to say anything more about it. The idea of a man seeking to introduce his own vindictive purposes in such a manner. Mr. Matchett was getting up again to reply, when Mr. J. B. Elworthy said: Remember Mr. Matchett you are not now at a public meeting. Mr. Matchett: I know that, Mr. Elworthy. I could not express my objections in milder terms than such as I have said in my letter. Mr. Love said he had thought over the trouble last night, and in reading over the law on the point as to whether Magistrates subpoenaed in a case could be prevented from sitting on the Bench, he found there was no law to prevent them if they chose. Mr. Perkins: Of course there is no law. Mr. Love: The first case is that in which Mr. Archibald Smith is charged with assault. Mr. Matchett, storekeeper, of South Gundagai, said:—I know the defendant; I saw him on the evening of the 7th instant at Leary's Hotel, where a public meeting was held; I rose in the ordinary course, and addressed the Chairman of the meeting; I was first interrupted by Dr. Ogg. Mr. Love: There is no need to refer to Dr. Ogg at all—he is not connected with the case in any way. Mr. Matchett: Mr. Smith flourished his loaded whip or stick at my face and head—I believe it was a malacca cane riding-whip—in an attitude evidently intending to strike me; he repeated that twice or thrice, when some one at the back pulled him away. By Mr. Perkins: There was not a public meeting called by the supporters of Mr. Bruce Smith—it was called for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken on his visit here, and to consider the advisability or otherwise of entertaining him. Mr. Perkins: You are contradicting yourself; what is the good of your evidence? Cross-examination continued: I am no enemy of Mr. Bruce Smith; if Mr. Perkins wished me to say what I said in his favour I will do so; I called Mr. Smith the “Great Mogul,” the “King of Gundagai”; after he had said things detrimental to me, I said that I knew a man who said he could rule the whole roost of Gundagai, and he was asked by Mr. A. S. Smith to name him, and I replied that “Mr. Archibald S. Smith was the one to whom I referred; I will swear he asked me to do so; the remarks as to “ruling the roost,” &c., were said to me by Mr. Smith himself, when we were in Mr. Beaver’s Hotel, having a whisky together, some months ago; in consequence of my replying to Mr. Smith in the manner stated, he said “You lie,” which led up to the assault complained of; when I first saw him I believe he had a whip in his hand; after he called me a liar I don’t say he went to the door—he did when he was dragged, but not before; I believe some person took him; I was not drunk at the time; he used the expression three or four times; I put up my arm to keep off the blow; he said I was a damned infernal liar; I believe he said something else, but I did not catch the words; it might have been “I’ll cleave you down,” or anything else; I made the remark which Mr. Smith said to me some months since; I have no animosity against Mr. Smith now; I hope we shall be as good friends as ever to-morrow. Mr. Smith: Thank you. Cross-examined: The stick did not hit me; I believe he intended to strike me had his friends not pulled him off. By Mr. Love: He called me a damned infernal liar until his friends pulled him off; he lifted a cane or something else and shook it, as if intending to strike me; he made an attempt to hit me, and I put up my arm to defend myself; he intended to strike me, but was prevented; I believe he intended to strike me; he did not hit me; he aimed the stroke at me—he rose the whip and intended to strike me; in the scuffle which ensued I turned round and saw some one taking hold of Mr. Smith; the whip was coming in the direction of my head. Re-cross-examination: Mr. Smith has not offered me any money to settle the case; I have not stated to Mr. Bailey, Dr. Marshall, or any one else that he did so. Mr. Bailey: I claim the protection of your Worship; I do not see why my name should be dragged into this case by the attorney. Mr. Matchett: I was in Deighton’s Hotel, and before crossing over to subpoena two witnesses, Mr. Deighton said that he had heard the case was settled; he denied it; that was all he had said about the matter. Mr. Robert A. Hazlett, farmer, of Big Ben Creek, said:—I was in Leary’s Hotel on the night of the 7th instant, at a public meeting; I saw defendant get up to address the Chair; the first who interrupted the defendant in his speech, I believe, was Dr. Ogg, J.P. Mr. Love: I must omit evidence where a man says “I believe” or “I think.” Examination continued: Dr. Ogg interrupted defendant first I swear; the next who interrupted him I do not know; I’m sure Mr. Smith brandished a whip in defendant’s face; placed in defendant’s position, I should have considered the situation very menacing. (Laughter from Bench.) Had the case occurred to me I should have defended myself, and should have committed a breach of the peace; I did not see any person take Mr. Smith away; I was close to Mr. Smith at the time—he was on my right hand; if any one had done so I might not have observed it. Cross-examined: The meeting was to arrange for a reception to Mr. Bruce Smith, at least, it might have been; defendant was speaking in opposition to Mr. Bruce Smith, but not detrimental to him; I did not hear him allege any grounds for not receiving him; I heard defendant say something about a man ruling the whole roost of Gundagai; the first time Mr. Smith called him a liar he had a whip in his hand; after the assault complained of Mr. Smith turned to go out of the room; Mr. Smith called him a liar twice; he raised the whip on the first occasion, and called him an infernal liar. Upon Mr. Perkins interrupting at this point, witness said: He won’t allow me to give my evidence unless it suits himself, and I won’t do that (Laughter). Cross-examination continued: Complainant called defendant an infernal liar; I’ve said that before, and I won’t repeat my evidence for you or any one else. (Sensation.) Mr. Hazlett: Mr. Smith said a good deal at the time, but I don’t know what it was; Mr. William Henry Leighton Bailey, proprietor of the Gundagai Herald, was also at the meeting on the night of the 7th instant; it was a public meeting, called under the garb of the Progress Committee, and signed by its Chairman, which turned out to be incorrect; the public had a very little say in the matter; the meeting was advertised as a public meeting, to consider the advisability as to whether Mr. Bruce Smith should meet with a public reception or not. (Here defendant read the advertisement.) I was at the meeting, not at the early part of it, but just as they had got it cut and dried, and perhaps some of them wished I had not been there; I heard a gentleman interrupt complainant, and had he insulted me in the way he did him there would have been a row in the house; I heard Mr. Smith use insulting words, and he attempted to strike defendant with a whip, which I believe “horsy” men describe as a “hunting crop.” (The whip was here produced; witness said it was a fac-simile of the one used.) If defendant had attempted such conduct to me I should have gone for him if he were as big as Goliath; I did not consider the conduct of the defendant a joke, although I could give every latitude for a man who gets excited—I get so myself sometimes; Mr. Smith said, “Matchett, you’re an infernal liar”; and if a man calls another a liar, if he doesn’t go for him he’s not a man. (Mr. Smith: Hear, hear.) Complainant: I must be a bad sort of man then? Witness: Yes; instead of bringing the case into Court, you should have given him a good thrashing. (Laughter.) In reading over the evidence, witness said he wished it to be stated that Dr. Ogg commenced the disturbance, as it was through him that it occurred. Mr. Love: You are approaching contempt of Court in speaking in that manner of Dr. Ogg. Witness: I did not speak of Dr. Ogg as a Magistrate, but a civilian, and as such I think he has acted in a most disgraceful manner in thus sitting on the Bench; if I have insulted the Bench—I should be very sorry to do such a thing—I apologise; I did not say Mr. Smith had tried to settle the case for £10; I should not think Mr. Smith would do such a thing to offer so small an amount for what appears such a gross misdemeanour. Dr. Marshall was called, and corroborated the main facts of the case, and added that if such conduct had been offered to him he should have committed a breach of the peace; he thought there was going to be a jolly row; in reply to plaintiff’s remark, defendant called him a gentleman; I saw Mr. Smith go out of the room, but did not see any one go out with him; I was in the verandah at the time; complainant spoke about the Great Mogul after the row; I believe Mr. M’Kenzie pulled the defendant away; I heard Mr. Smith had settled the case, in two or three different places, but I did not start the rumour. Frank Masters, journalist, stated that he was at the meeting and heard the words complained of, and saw defendant flourish the whip in a threatening manner. This was the case for the complainant.

Mr. Archibald S. Smith, J.P., the defendant, said: There was a meeting convened on Monday night at Leary’s Hotel; there were certain persons attempting to oppose the views put forward with regard to the projected entertainment to Mr. Bruce Smith; I heard complainant speaking in opposition to the object of the meeting; he made remarks personal to myself, at which I merely laughed; they were—“You are the Great Mogul,” “the King of Gundagai,” &c.; I left the room when complainant was speaking, in order to ask my friends not to leave the room before the motion was put; defendant here explained his view of the meeting, saying that, after he had made these personal remarks, he said, “You boasted you could rule the whole roost of Gundagai,” or words to that effect; defendant admitted calling him a damned infernal liar, and he added, whilst raising his whip, “I should like to lay this about you”; Matchett used insulting language to him all through; what was stated in the Herald—a veracious journal—(Hear, hear, from Mr. Bailey)—was substantially correct; he did not assault him; he knew what that was. Mr. Love: You are pleading guilty to the insulting words complained of. Defendant: I don’t deny them—I don’t wish to, or anything that is the truth. Cross-examined by plaintiff: The words used by me were in response to what you stated I said; I had my whip in an attitude to strike. Mr. Perkins, in addressing the Bench for the defence, merely repeated the facts of the case. Mr. Matchett contended that, according to Plunkett’s “Magisterial Guide,” he had made out a case; that book said, “An assault is an attempt or offer to do an injury to the person of another, under circumstances denoting a present intention coupled with a present ability to do such injury.” He thought the paragraph which had appeared in the Times that morning might have prevented other Magistrates sitting on the case. Mr. Love: There is another charge; do you plead guilty to that? Mr. Perkins: We plead that the words were spoken justifiably, and not within the meaning of insulting language as expressed in the Act; we therefore plead not guilty. Mr. Love said it was peculiar that not one of the witnesses for the prosecution said that Mr. Smith had attempted to assault the complainant, and therefore he was of opinion no assault had been committed. Dr. Ogg: None at all. Mr. Love: With regard to the other charge, you have admitted the words were used, and I am of opinion they were not warranted on the occasion.

Having retired to consider the cases, Mr. Love said the decision of the Bench was that the assault case be dismissed; and in the other case, the defendant would be fined 5s., and costs of Court amounting to 10s. 1d.

Ask the Police Magistrate, Gundagai, for favour of report.—H.E.C., 23/1/84. The P.M., with copy, 29/1/84.

No. 2.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Police Magistrate, Gundagai.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 29 January, 1884.

In transmitting the accompanying copy of the Gundagai Herald of the 12th January, 1884, containing report of the case W. Matchett v. A. S. Smith, J.P., assault in a public place, heard before you and Mr. J. B. Elworthy and Dr. Ogg, J.S.P., I am directed by the Minister of Justice to request that you will favour him with a report in regard to this matter at your early convenience.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 3.

The Police Magistrate, Gundagai, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Gundagai, 1 February, 1884.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of date 29th January last, numbered as per margin, requesting report in the case of Matchett v. Smith, for assault, &c.

I have appended copy of depositions taken at the hearing, and you will observe that these depositions differ very considerably from the report given in the Gundagai Herald of date 12th ultimo, forwarded to me with your letter.

The leading article in this publication states that the Justices who adjudicated with me (J. B. Elworthy and Dr. Stark Ogg) were partisans. This is not correct. They were in no way implicated in the alleged assault, neither were they so implicated in the insulting language complained of. I had requested both these gentlemen to sit with me in hearing the cases, knowing that they had no personal interest in the matter. They were then summoned by plaintiff as witnesses in the case, not that they should be called upon to give evidence, but that they should be prevented from adjudicating. This is evident from the fact that neither of them, although subpoenaed, were called upon by the plaintiff to give evidence in the case. When the case was called on in Court I made a proposal to have it settled out of Court amicably. To this Mr. Matchett objected. He then handed to me a written protest against Dr. Ogg occupying a seat on the Bench, stating that he did not think he would do him justice. After the case had been decided Mr. Matchett withdrew this protest, and said he was sorry he had put it in.

I may say that the Bench unanimously were of opinion from the evidence that no assault had been committed, and that no attempt to assault had been made by the defendant; and from the evidence of the plaintiff himself, who says "Mr. Smith raised the whip, but did not strike at me," it is pretty clear no assault or attempt to assault had ever been made.

The charge of assault was therefore dismissed, and, a certificate of dismissal being requested, it was granted.

For the insulting words used by Mr. Smith to plaintiff, and which the defendant acknowledged having used, he was fined 5s. and costs 10s. 10d., which was immediately paid.

The fine was made lower than usual because considerable provocation had been given by plaintiff to defendant immediately previous to the use of the insulting language by Mr. Smith.

I have, &c.,

W. LOVE,
Police Magistrate.

Matchett prays that I, the said Justice, will proceed in the premises according to law.

Sworn before me, at Gundagai, in the said Colony, } on the day first above written,—

WM. LOVE, Justice of the Peace.

DEPOSITIONS taken at the Court-house, Gundagai, on the 11th day of January, 1884, in the cases of Matchett v. Smith, for assault and insulting language, before J. B. Elworthy, J.P., Alexander Stark Ogg, J.P., and Wm. Love, J.P.

William Matchett being duly sworn, saith :—I am a storekeeper residing at South Gundagai ; I know the defendant—I saw him on the evening of the 7th instant, at Leary's Hotel ; the assault I complain of, is this :—I was addressing the Chairman at a public meeting, I heard Mr. Smith, the defendant, call me something, and he flourished a whip or stick at my head in an attitude intending to strike me, he repeated that twice or thrice, some one at the back pulled him away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Perkins, Solicitor : There was a public meeting at Leary's, it was for the purpose of getting up a banquet for Mr. Bruce Smith, and to express public opinion. I said there was a gentleman in Gundagai who boasted he could rule it, and could put in whom he liked ; I was asked by Mr. Smith to name him ; I replied A. S. Smith ; this boast was made at Beaver's Hotel to myself ; then Mr. Smith said I was a liar ; when he first spoke to me I believe he had a whip in his hand ; when he called me a liar he was dragged to the door ; I was not drunk ; he then passed through the room ; he called me a damned infernal liar ; he said something else, but I cannot say what it was ; it might be, I'll cleave you down ; the only provocation I gave was naming him ; I believe he intended to hurt me, only for his friends ; Mr. Smith was sitting on a chair, and then he got up ; Mr. Smith raised the whip, but did not strike at me, but I believe he intended to strike me—the whip was near my head at any rate ; Mr. Smith has not offered me money to settle the case.

Sworn before us at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

WILLIAM MATCHETT.

W. LOVE, J.P., Chairman.

Examined by Mr. Matchett : Robert A. Haslet being sworn, saith :—I am a farmer ; I was at Leary's Hotel on the 7th instant ; I saw Mr. Matchett address the Chair, some one interrupted you—it was Dr. Ogg ; I saw Mr. Smith brandish a whip in your face—it looked very menacing ; if it had been my case I would have committed a breach of the peace ; I did not see any one drag Mr. Smith from the room—he left himself.

Cross-examined by Mr. Perkins : The meeting was a public one to arrange for a reception for Mr. Bruce Smith. Matchett was speaking against the entertainment ; I did not hear Matchett say Mr. Smith (defendant) was a great Mogul ; I swear Mr. Smith had a whip in his hand when he called him a liar ; he returned then and repeated it ; Mr. Smith raised the whip at the first time he called him a liar ; I did not hear him threaten to strike.

Sworn before us at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

R. ALEXANDER HASLET.

WM. LOVE, J.P.

Examined by Wm. Matchett : William Henry L. Bailey, sworn, saith :—I was at a meeting on the night of the 7th instant—it was a public meeting under the garb of the Progress Committee ; the meeting was called to consider the advisability of giving an entertainment to Bruce Smith ; I was at the meeting ; I heard you address the Chair ; I heard you interrupted in a gross manner—it was by Dr. Ogg ; Mr. Smith (defendant) used threatening language to you ; and made an attempt to strike you ; the whip produced is like the whip ; if he had said to me, what he said to you, there would have been a row ; I would have struck him ; the words were you are an infernal liar ; I can't say he held the heavy end of the whip in a threatening manner, he held it in the ordinary way.

Sworn before us at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

W. H. L. BAILEY.

W. LOVE, J.P.

Examined by Mr. Matchett : Dr. Henry Morton Marshall, sworn, saith :—I was at a meeting in Leary's Hotel on the 7th instant ; I heard you addressing the Chair ; I heard Mr. Smith call you an infernal liar ; I could not hear all that was said ; at this time he had a whip in his hand—I thought he was going to strike you ; you said he was a gentleman ; I was on the verandah looking in at the door.

Sworn before us at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

HENRY M. MARSHALL.

WM. LOVE, J.P.

To Wm. Matchett : Frank Masters being sworn, saith :—I am reporter for the Herald ; I was at a public meeting at Leary's Hotel ; I heard Mr. Smith say something to you—I could not tell whether he struck at you or not ; I was writing at the time.

Sworn before us at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

FRANK MASTERS.

W. LOVE, J.P.

This closed Mr. Matchett's case ; the Magistrates subpoenaed to give evidence were not called by the plaintiff—he declined to call them.—W.L., J.P.

For the Defence, by Mr. Perkins : Archibald Scott Smith sworn, saith :—I am an auctioneer and a J.P. ; I was at a meeting on the 7th instant, to organize an entertainment for Mr. Bruce Smith ; certain persons opposed the object of the meeting—Mr. Matchett was one—I heard him speak against the entertainment ; he said he did not care for me if I was King or the Great Mogul ; I went out to see some persons, and on returning heard Matchett speak of me ; I had no intention to strike him ; I called him an infernal liar, and said I would like to lay this about you ; I did not strike him ; I could have done so had I thought right, but I did not ; I did not commit an assault, nor did I strike at him with the whip ; I had the whip in an attitude to strike, that is, holding it up, but I made no attempt to strike.

Sworn before us, at Gundagai, this 11th day of January, 1884,—

No. 4.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. W. H. L. Bailey.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 15 February, 1884.

Referring to your letter of the 13th January last, forwarding copy of the Gundagai Herald, of the 12th January last, containing Police Court report of the cases W. Matchett v. A. S. Smith, and complaining of the conduct of certain Magistrates [in regard thereto, I am directed to inform you that the Minister of Justice has written a minute in the matter, of which the following is a copy, viz. :—

“Having read the depositions and the Police Magistrate's report, I am unable to say that the decision arrived at was wrong. The law has invested the Bench with a judicial discretion, they have exercised it, and I cannot therefore interfere with their judgment. With regard to the action of the Magistrates about whom complaint is made for their adjudicating in the case, if it be true that Dr. Ogg had expressed himself in a manner personally hostile to Mr. Matchett, that Mr. Elworthy was an avowed partisan of the other litigant Mr. Smith, and that both Dr. Ogg and Mr. Elworthy were subpoenaed bona fide as witnesses in the case, they should not have taken part in the proceedings, although invited to do so by the Police Magistrate, for their acting magisterially under such circumstances, and with the additional fact, as far as Mr. Elworthy is concerned, that this was only the second case in which he had sat during the preceding twelve months, affords opportunity for calling into question their partiality and enfeebling public confidence in the administration of justice, no matter how correct in fact the decision might have been.

Upon

“Upon the other hand, the withdrawal by Mr. Matchett of his protest against Dr. Ogg sitting in the case, and the absence of any complaint from him as the party immediately and directly interested in and prejudiced by any wrong-doing of the Magistrates, give strong ground for the deduction that no substantial ground for complaint really exists, and that he himself is of that opinion.

“If Dr. Ogg and Mr. Elworthy were subpoenaed by Mr. Matchett merely to prevent their exercising their judicial functions, their presence upon the Bench might be justified as a protest against an abuse of the process of the law; whatever the real fact may be, and in view of the contradictory statements, I cannot come to any determination upon the point. I am unable to draw an inference unfavourable to Mr. Matchett from the mere circumstance of his not having called Dr. Ogg or Mr. Elworthy as witnesses, for it could scarcely be expected that he would submit to the Court the evidence of gentlemen who sat in the case and so constituted themselves judges in it.”

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 5.

Mr. W. Matchett to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

South Gundagai, 23 February, 1884.

Mr. W. H. Bailey handed to me this day your letter of the 15th instant, No. 84/596, and in reply, I beg most respectfully to say that it seems very strange the Police Magistrate should have prevented the C.P.S. from taking down the depositions in the case myself v. A. S. Smith, the P.M. taking them down himself, and although I called his Worship's attention to the matter, some of the depositions were not read over to the witnesses before they were asked to sign them. I most respectfully submit that, for the honor and dignity of the Bench, and for the sake of evenhanded justice, that the case is one which demands a full and searching inquiry, for the following reasons:—

I subpoenaed Mr. J. B. Elworthy for the simple reason he was present in the room at the time the offence complained of took place, and therefore must have heard and seen all that passed; consequently he would have been a valuable witness for me, as he is no friend of mine, but a most intimate personal friend of Mr. Smith. I am satisfied that is why he took his seat on the Bench.

I did not think for a moment Mr. Elworthy as a witness in the case would attempt to take his seat, and on his doing so I verbally protested against such, but the Police Magistrate ruled that he might do so, and threatened to commit me for contempt of Court if I did not sit down and withdraw the attached protest against Dr. Ogg sitting on the case. “You will see it is signed W. Love, J.P.” It was only when threatened by the Bench in this way that I most reluctantly withdrew the protest, Mr. Love saying he was pleased I had acted so wisely.

The reason I did not at once subpoena Dr. Ogg is, it was advertised that he was to leave Gundagai for Rockhampton on Wednesday the 9th January, but when he heard I had summoned Mr. Smith, as he is related to him by marriage, it appears he postponed his departure to Friday at 2 p.m., so as to sit on this case. This I did not know till the morning of the trial, and as the Dr. was present at the time of the occurrence, I subpoenaed him as a valuable witness, seeing that he was still in town; but when I saw that Mr. Elworthy and the Dr. were determined to adjudicate on the case I considered it of no use to call them.

It may therefore be seen at a glance that the object those gentlemen had in sitting on the Bench was to upset my case of assault against Mr. Smith, which I maintain was clearly proved by evidence.

I have no knowledge of how the depositions are taken down, but can assure you that the report of the case as published in the Gundagai Herald is a fair account of the evidence, and the Police Magistrate complimented the reporter next morning on the faithful report which he had given of the case.

I would have brought the matter under your notice at once myself, but as I requested Mr. Bailey to do so I left it with him. I further state that it is a notable fact that Mr. Elworthy seldom or ever takes his seat on the Bench unless he has some personal friend to serve or an antagonist to punish, as in the case referred to, which conduct I maintain is unworthy of a gentleman holding Her Majesty's Commission of the Peace, and only tends to lower the dignity of the Bench in the eyes of the public.

I most emphatically deny having subpoenaed either Mr. Elworthy or Dr. Ogg for any other purpose or motive than to procure their evidence as eye-witnesses of the assault.

Trusting therefore that you may be pleased to at once take such steps as may be necessary to inquire fully into the matter, so that I may receive that justice to which I am entitled on the evidence submitted,—

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM MATCHETT.

[Enclosure.]

Mr. W. Matchett to The Chairman of the Bench of Magistrates, Gundagai.

Sir,

I beg most respectfully to protest against Dr. A. S. Ogg taking his seat on the Bench on the case myself v. A. S. Smith, for the following reasons:—

1st. Dr. Ogg is an inveterate enemy of mine, and therefore if allowed to adjudicate I could not reasonably expect justice at his hands.

2nd. Dr. Ogg having at the meeting on the 7th used language towards me which is highly detrimental to my character, and which is libellous, can only seek to sit on this case for the special purpose of upsetting my case against Mr. Smith.

Trusting that the request I now make is both reasonable, legal, and just, and that you may be pleased to comply with my humble request,—

I have, &c.,

W. MATCHETT,

South Gundagai,

The Police Magistrate, Gundagai, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Gundagai, 6 March, 1884.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of Mr. Matchett's letter of date 23rd February last, and to submit the following remarks in reply:—In the case of Matchett v. Smith, heard at this Court on the 11th January last, Mr. Matchett accuses me of having on that occasion prevented Mr. Weekes, C.P.S., from taking the depositions, so that I might take them myself.

The statement is incorrect. Mr. Weekes on the morning of the 11th January came to me and said, "I feel unwell to-day, and not able to take depositions; will you please take them for me?" I said certainly, and took them accordingly. I frequently take depositions for the C.P.S. when he is busy with returns. I append Mr. Weekes' memo. in the matter.

Mr. Matchett also accuses me of not having read over the depositions to the witnesses before signing them, and that he called my attention to the matter.

Both these statements are untrue. The depositions were read over by me to each witness before signing, in every instance. The deposition book was then handed down from the Bench and placed upon a table standing in the middle of the Court. The witness was then called down from the witness-box to the table, the book placed before him, thus giving him an opportunity of reading over his evidence before signing. This is done invariably in every instance. Mr. Matchett's witnesses were all pretty sharp, and not so stupid as to sign a document without knowing its contents.

Mr. Matchett made no remark relative to this matter at the trial to the Bench.

Mr. Matchett's next statement is that I threatened to commit him if he did not withdraw a certain written protest against Dr. Ogg, J.P., which he had put in.

This statement is also untrue. No member of the Bench at any time during the trial threatened to commit him for this cause. He was allowed every liberty to conduct his case as he thought proper. Nothing whatever was said about withdrawing the protest until the case was finished. I then said—"Mr. Matchett, do you intend to withdraw this objection to Dr. Ogg?" He replied—"Yes; I am sorry I put it in." And I then handed it to him, saying "I think you are acting wisely in withdrawing it."

In his letter, he now says he withdrew it reluctantly, and from being threatened by the Bench. I append memo. from Mr. Elworthy, J.P., Mr. Wilson, editor, and Mr. Perkins, solicitor, in this matter.

Mr. Matchett asserts that Mr. Elworthy seldom or never takes his seat on the Bench; that his doing so on this occasion was an exception. I append a list of Mr. Elworthy's attendance, commencing January, 1883, which will disprove this assertion.

Mr. Matchett says he uses his position as a Magistrate to favour his friends and punish his adversaries. This I regard as an atrocious libel. For the last nearly nine years Mr. Elworthy has been occupying the Gundagai Bench, and, from my own knowledge, I can safely say that no more impartial, honest, and upright Magistrate exists in the Colony.

I have, &amp;c.,

WM. LOVE,

Police Magistrate.

Dear Sir,

Court-house, Gundagai, 7 March, 1884.

Having been shown a letter from Mr. W. Matchett to the Department of Justice, re the action Matchett v. Smith, for assault, in which Mr. Matchett states that you prevented me from taking the depositions on that day, I beg to state that you took down the depositions yourself at my request. I had been suffering from a carbuncle at the back of my neck for some time previous, and on that morning felt quite unfit to sit in the Court, and at my request you very kindly, as you have often done on other occasions, undertook the duty for me.

I remain, &amp;c.,

CHAS. WEEKES, C.P.S.

Memorandum by J. B. Elworthy, Esq., J.P.

I DENY that any threat was made to Wm. Matchett on the occasion of the case Matchett v. Smith. I consider his behaviour on that occasion deserved censure, and I am firmly of opinion that his sole object in subpoenaing Dr. Ogg and myself was to prevent either of us adjudicating in the case. He could have chosen a dozen other witnesses of the alleged assault, but he singled out Dr. Ogg and myself, and I maintain that his remarks in reference to myself, in his letter to the Minister for Justice, are grossly libellous and false.

As one of the adjudicating Justices in that case, I affirm that no assault was proved; and as a witness of the disturbance, I positively assert that no violence was intended, although the provocation offered by Matchett was uncalled for.

Dear Sir,

Re Matchett v. Smith, assault.—I was present in the Court-house during the hearing of the above case, and can safely affirm that no threat was made by any member of the Bench to commit the plaintiff for contempt, if he refused to withdraw a protest entered against Dr. Ogg, J.P., sitting on the Bench.

I was present at the hearing of this case, at the Gundagai Police Court, on the 11th of January last, and I positively affirm that the Bench never threatened to commit Matchett; any one who asserts that they did so would assert that which is not true.

No. 1.

Mr. T. Russell to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Trial Bay, Macleay River, 8 November, 1881.

I beg to submit my grievance to your honorable consideration, viz., as follows:—I hold a publican's license at Trial Bay, in the township of Arakoon, and my premises were destroyed by fire some time ago. I got permission from the local Bench to sell liquor. I built a suitable house, which I have commenced and have it half completed at the present time. Mr. T. Salmons made an application to get his house licensed in close proximity to my premises. After his application being made I was summoned, and I was fined twenty-six shillings (26s.) for my present premises being not in accordance with the Publicans Act, and before I left the Court one of the police handed me another summons for the same offence, to appear on the 15th instant. I will have my house completed in six weeks from this date; it is a large and commodious house, built of brick and stone. I have six men employed, working ten hours a day at it. I beg your lenient consideration to the above-mentioned facts. I have been a holder of a publican's license, and always kept a well-conducted house. And your humble petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Your humble servant,

THOMAS RUSSELL.

The Bench of Magistrates, Kempsey, Macleay River, for favour of report.—W.J.F., 19/11/81. The Bench of Magistrates, West Kempsey.—B.C., 21/11/81.—W. E. PLUNKETT.

No. 2.

Mr. F. G. Panton, J.P., to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, West Kempsey, 29 November, 1884.

In returning the accompanying letter from Thomas Russell, I have the honor to inform you that the statements of his holding a publican's license and that his premises were nearly all destroyed by fire some six or seven months since are correct. The allegation that he obtained authority from the Bench to exercise the privileges of his license in the uninjured portion of the building which he occupied as a licensed public-house is untrue. He applied for such permission, when he was distinctly told that the Bench had no power to grant authority for the sale of liquor under the Statute 25 Vic. No. 14, when the premises did not afford the accommodation required by law, and if complaint was made that the provisions of section 33 of the Statute were not observed it would be dealt with officially. On the information of Sergeant Bennett, the writer appeared before the Bench, on the 8th and on the 22nd November current, to answer for not complying with clause 33 of the Sale of Liquors Licensing Act of 1862, and on each occasion he was fined in the sum of one pound and four shillings and ten pence costs. The amount in each case was at once paid.

I have, &c.,

F. GOULBURN PANTON, J.P.,

Chairman.

Inform writer, Thomas Russell, that the Minister has inquired into the facts, and cannot interfere with the Magistrates' discretion.—W.J.F., 14/12/81. Mr. Russell informed.—19/12/81.

No. 3.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. T. Russell.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 19 December, 1881.

Referring to your letter of the 8th ultimo, complaining of the decision of the Bench of Magistrates at West Kempsey, in connection with certain proceedings instituted against you by the police, for breach of section of the Publicans Act, 25 Victoria No. 14, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that he has inquired into the facts of your case, and cannot interfere with the Magistrates' discretion in the matter complained of by you.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,

Under Secretary.

No. 4.

Mr. T. A. Salmon to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Trial Bay, Macleay River, 5 January, 1882.

I must respectfully beg to submit to you and bring before your notice and for your consideration certain illegal mal-administrations and corrupt practices by a portion of the Bench of Magistrates presiding at West Kempsey. In November last, Thomas Russell was charged by the police for abandoning his licensed premises and selling spirituous liquors on unlicensed premises in the town of Arakoon, for a period of seven months, and that the said premises were unfit for human habitation, and on each occasion of these charges being made by the police, a portion of the presiding Magistrates requested the police to withdraw the charge of abandoning and selling spirituous liquors on unlicensed premises, which was consequently withdrawn. Certain of the Magistrates then sitting and at the time were neutral on the subject. The two Magistrates who made the request and ordered the police to withdraw

withdraw the charges on the last occasion were Messrs. Dangar and Panton. The Magistrates decided to deal only with the uninhabitable state of Russell's dwelling, and decided by ordering Russell to pay a nominal fine of one (£1) pound on each of the four occasions Russell was charged by the police referred to.

As further information, I wish to inform you that the said Thomas Russell held a publican's license for the "Trial Bay Hotel," in the township of Arakoon.

The "Trial Bay Hotel" was completely destroyed by fire last March. The said Thomas Russell then removed to another street in the township of Arakoon, tenanted and occupied a dilapidated two-stalled stable constructed of bark and rough split slabs, and has occupied the same for a period of nine (9) months, and during the whole of which time the said Thomas Russell has been selling spirituous liquors in the said disreputable two (2) roomed stable, it being unfit for human habitation, and the first charge made by the police against Russell was a short time ago, and then only at the instance that I would complain and report the circumstances to the Inspector-General of Police, and hence the manner the Magistrates have dealt with the charges made by the police against Russell as herein stated—a total defect and non-performance of justice.

I have, &c.,

[Enclosures.]

Mr. T. A. Salmon to The Inspector-General of Police.

Sir,

Trial Bay, Arakoon, Macleay River, 30 November, 1881.

I beg to bring before your notice the following information:—I charge Sub-inspector Kerrigan, of the Macleay district, with corrupt negligence of his duty, in permitting and allowing Thomas Russell to sell spirituous liquors in an unlicensed shanty, in the township of Arakoon, for the lengthened period of nine months. The said Thomas Russell held a publican's license for the "Trial Bay Hotel," in the township of Arakoon, Macleay district. The "Trial Bay Hotel" was completely destroyed by fire last March. The said Thomas Russell then removed to another street in the township of Arakoon, tenanted and occupied a dilapidated two-stalled stable, built of rough slabs and bark, and has occupied the same for nine months, during the whole of which time the said Thomas Russell has been daily selling spirituous liquors in the same disreputable two-roomed stable, it being unfit for the most humble human beings; and the first and only charge made against Thomas Russell for his illegal practice by the police was a few days ago, and then only at the instance of my written notice to Sub-inspector Kerrigan. I would complain to the Inspector-General of Police of his gross neglect of duty. Notwithstanding, the only action taken by the police up to the present has been most evasive and shuffling.

Trusting you will deem it necessary to cause an investigation of this most culpable neglect of duty on the part of the police herein named,—

I have, &c.,

T. A. SALMON.

Referred to Superintendent Morisset for inquiry and report.—EDMUND FOSBERY, I.-G.P., 7 December, 1881.

Superintendent Morisset to The Inspector-General of Police.

Police Department, Superintendent's Office, N.E. District, Maitland, 21 December, 1881.

SUB-INSPECTOR KERRIGAN's refutation of certain complaints brought against him by T. A. Salmon, and which I consider perfectly satisfactory, is herewith forwarded for the Inspector-General's information.

E. MORISSET,

Superintendent.

Sub-inspector Kerrigan to Superintendent Morisset.

Sir,

Kempsey, 16 December, 1881.

In reply to attached letter, signed T. A. Salmon, I have the honor to state that the "Trial Bay Hotel" at Arakoon was burned down as stated. A quantity of liquor and other goods were saved, and stored in a building on the premises. Mr. Russell, the landlord, continued selling, and has been five times summoned by the Kempsey police—twice for abandoning his licensed house. On both occasions the Bench of Magistrates requested the police to withdraw the charges, as Russell was residing and selling on his licensed premises. He was three times summoned by the police and fined for not having the necessary accommodation. His house contains six rooms. He has a new house erected, for which he has applied for a transfer of his license.

Salmon, the writer of attached letter, applied for a publican's license for a house at Arakoon, and was opposed by the police and refused. Therefore, smarting under the refusal of his license, and his consequent loss, he has written his unfounded report.

I attach number of Russell's license and Sergeant Bennett's report.

THOMAS KERRIGAN,

Sub-inspector.

Sergeant Bennett to Sub-Inspector Kerrigan.

Police Station, West Kempsey, 17 December, 1881.

SERGEANT BENNETT, No. 735, begs to state that the house occupied by Mr. Thomas Russell as an hotel, at Arakoon, contains six rooms, and is about sixty feet long; it is a clean, tidy place. Russell has erected a new brick building, for which which he has applied for a transfer of his license ; it is for this year, and is numbered 3,104. Russell has been five times summoned by the police ; twice for abandoning his house : these two charges were withdrawn by request of the Bench. He has been three times fined for not having the necessary accommodation. The new building is built of brick, with stone facings, containing nine large rooms, and will be finished in a few days.

Sergeant.

The Inspector-General of Police acknowledges the receipt of Mr. Salmon's communication of the 30th ultimo, and informs him, in reply, that the police have in no way neglected their duty, as the circumstances of the case referred to were within the cognizance of the Bench of Magistrates.

No. 7.

The Bench of Magistrates, West Kempsey, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, West Kempsey, 14 February, 1882.

We beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 18th January, containing a letter from T. A. Salmon, dated January 5. In reply, we beg to state that, on the 8th November, a charge was laid, by the Sergeant of Police, against Thomas Russell, of the "Trial Bay Hotel," for that his licensed house did not afford the accommodation required by law. This complaint was heard before Messrs. Casey and Wilson, and defendant was fined £1 and costs. On the 15th and 22nd precisely similar charges were preferred, before Messrs. Casey and Crossman, and Messrs. Panton, Garvin, and Crossman ; and, on each occasion, defendant was fined. On the last occasion an information was also brought against him "for abandoning his licensed house." The abandonment was stated by the Sergeant of Police to be the carrying on of his business in a building other than the one for which the license had been granted, this having been burnt down seven months before. On this occasion, and subsequently (on the 29th November), when Messrs. Panton, Dangar, Hill, Wilson, Johnstone, and Garvin were on the Bench, Mr. Panton presiding, the Bench held that, as Russell had been four times convicted of not having sufficient accommodation in this building, which had thus been recognized as his licensed house, and that if any abandonment has taken place it occurred after the fire in March (which placed it beyond the period allowed by the Act for filing information), that it would be unwise of the police to proceed for abandonment, and suggested (but did not order) the Sergeant of Police to withdraw the charge. We respectfully submit that the charges made by T. A. Salmon, of "illegal and corrupt practices" and non-performance of justice, are false and libellous, and that as Magistrates we should have the protection of the Crown. We humbly suggest that the Crown Law Officers should be instructed to file a criminal information against Mr. Salmon.

We have, &c.,

F. GOULBURN PANTON, J.P.
O. O. DANGAR, J.P.

Having inquired into this matter, I see no reason to take any further steps. Inform Mr. Salmon.—

Representations having been made to this Department concerning the delay in the conduct of business generally in the West Kempsey Police Court, and also with reference to charge against Mr. Michael Kerrigan, for forging the signature of one John Campbell to a power of attorney, which was heard before two Justices with closed doors, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to request that you will have the goodness to favour him at your early convenience with report upon the above subjects, and please to forward the depositions to this Department.

No. 2.

The Bench of Magistrates, West Kempsey, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, West Kempsey, 10 December, 1881.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, date 21st November, requesting that we should report upon representations (by whom made not stated), that there was delay generally in the conduct of public business here, and also in reference to a case where Mr. Michael Kerrigan was charged with forging a power of attorney.

As to the first statement, it is wholly without foundation. There is no delay in taking informations, issuing the necessary process, and hearing complaints, except where unavoidable obstructions occur from the wrangling of litigants and their advocates, who here, as in every other Court, are unnecessarily verbose.

When neither party oppose an application for an adjournment it is granted, but when sufficient cause is not shown for the hearing to be postponed the request for adjournment is not allowed.

There is not an arrear of any description now in this office.

On the 2nd of November last Mr. Michael Kerrigan appeared to answer the charge of forging the name of one John Campbell to a power of attorney. The attorney, Mr. D. B. Walker, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Kerrigan, applied to the Bench to hear the case with closed doors. There was no objection raised to that application, and we were unanimous in assenting to this request from the defendant's solicitor.

The Magistrates who heard this case were Mr. Crossman, J.P., Mr. Wilson, J.P., and Mr. Casey, J.P.

At the request of the other Magistrates, Mr. Casey, J.P., presided. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Casey held that the case should be dismissed. Mr. Crossman withdrew before the decision was given.

We have, &c.,

J. B. CASEY, J.P.

J. W. WILSON, J.P.

Our reply to your letter has not been forwarded, owing to the absence of Mr. Crossman from the district; but as he has not returned, we delay our answer no longer.

No. 3.

Mr. J. Campbell to The Minister of Justice.

10 December, 1881.

JOHN CAMPBELL, of Inverell, complains that his name was forged to a power of attorney, and witnessed by Michael Kerrigan, solicitor, of Kempsey.

That on discovering it to be a forgery he instituted proceedings against Kerrigan, but that it was with great difficulty he persuaded Mr. Casey, the Magistrate, to take the information against him.

That then he could not get the case heard on a regular Court day, before a full Bench, but that it was heard the following day with closed doors.

That the Bench on that day consisted of Messrs. Casey, Wilson, and Crossman; but the latter being for a committal, and overruled by the others, retired from the Bench, and the case was accordingly dismissed.

That a report had been circulated that his (J. Campbell's) charge against Kerrigan was a frivolous one and without any foundation, and that as the case was not heard by the public such a report is circulated to injure him; and as he (J. Campbell) considers that he had just reason to complain of his name being forged to a document involving the disposal of considerable property, and having a witness to that forgery, he was entitled to seek to bring the offender to justice, but that through the partial and improper conduct of the Magistrate, Mr. Casey, a miscarriage of justice has taken place, and an injury has been done to him.

He therefore begs that the Minister for Justice will inquire into the circumstances of the case, and grant him redress if he considers he is entitled to it.

Power of Attorney.

Know all men by these presents that I, John Campbell, of Inverell, in the Colony of New South Wales, do hereby constitute and appoint Robert Campbell, of Warneton, Macleay River, in the said Colony, grazier, and James Campbell, of Hastings River, in the said Colony, grazier, and each of them, my true and lawful attorneys and attorney, for the purposes hereinafter expressed, that is to say: Whereas William Campbell, late of Warneton aforesaid, by his last will and testament, bearing date the seventeenth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, thereby appointed me one of the executors thereof; and whereas the said William Campbell has since departed this life, and probate of the said will has been granted to the executors therein named, and whereas I am desirous for the more expeditious management of the affairs of the said estate of appointing the said Robert Campbell and James Campbell, and I do hereby constitute and appoint them and each of them my attorneys for me, and in my name and on my behalf to transact all business, effect all sales, to enter into agreements for sale, to give effectual receipts and releases, to sign all documents in connection with the administration of the estate, and generally to do, execute, and perform any other act, deed, matter, or thing whatsoever which ought to be done, executed, or performed, or which in the opinion of my said attorneys or attorney ought to have been done, executed, or performed, in or about or in connection with the administration and management of the said estate, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes as I myself could do if I were present and did the same in my proper person, it being my intent and desire that all matters and things respecting the same shall be under the full management and direction of the said attorneys or attorney; and for the further, better, and more effectually executing and performing of the several matters and things aforesaid, I hereby give and grant unto my said attorneys, and each of them, full power and authority from time to time to appoint one or more substitute or substitutes to do, execute, and perform all or any such matters and things as aforesaid, and the same substitute or substitutes at pleasure to remove and to appoint another or others in his or their place or places, and all and whatsoever my said attorneys, or either of them, or their or his substitute or substitutes shall do or cause to be done in or about the premises; I do hereby for myself, my heirs, executors, and administrators, covenant with the said Robert Campbell and James Campbell, their executors and administrators, to allow, ratify and confirm.

In witness whereof, the parties aforesaid have hereunto set their hands and seals, at Inverell, this tenth day of September, A.D. 1880.

Depositions.

John Campbell being duly sworn, states:—I reside at Inverell; I am a grazer and butcher; I have heard the information which has just been read—I now look upon that information—it was sworn by me on the 25th October; and I allege in that information that a certain power of attorney to which my name is written is a forgery; the document now produced is the power of attorney to which I refer in my information; I look upon the signature, John Campbell, written at the foot of that document; it is not my signature; I never wrote my name to that document; I never gave authority to any one to sign that document; Mr. Michael Kerrigan, named in my information, is the same person now before this Court, who I charge with offering, uttering, and disposing of the power of attorney, dated tenth day of September, 1880, to which my name is written. I am son of the late Mr. William Campbell who died in this district in the year 1880. Under his will, I, conjointly with the other members of his family, became entitled to certain property; I was one of the executors appointed to carry out the directions of my father's will, and the power of attorney in question relates to that will. I communicated with Mr. Kerrigan, in reference to that will, in 1880, through my solicitors; I received the power of attorney in question, from my brother, Robert Campbell; I intend to call him as a witness in this case. I first saw the power of attorney about the 4th or 5th October; I cannot swear that the power of attorney was intended, or that it could have been used for the purpose of defrauding me; I have signed documents in reference to my father's will, sent to me by Mr. Kerrigan; I may have signed two—I recollect signing one; I left the document with my solicitors, and I received a telegram stating that the document has been forwarded by them to Mr. Kerrigan; the signature John Campbell is not mine; I saw the power of attorney early in October; my signature was the only one to it then; I knew then the signature to that document was a forgery; Mr. Kerrigan's signature was not then to it; I did not see Mr. Kerrigan sign that document; I left that document with my brother; I saw that document some days after; it was then witnessed by Mr. Kerrigan; when I saw the document for the first time I recognized that it was a forgery—I told my brother so; I left the document with my brother until I returned from the Nana Creek, instructing him to take particular care of it.

Taken and sworn before us, this 2nd November,—

J. B. CASEY, J.P.
A. CROSSMAN, J.P.
J. W. WILSON, J.P.

JNO. CAMPBELL.

Robert Campbell, being duly sworn, states:—I reside at Warneton, in this district, where I carry on business as a grazer and storekeeper; I know Mr. Kerrigan, now before this Court; I am brother to the last witness, and I am son of the late Mr. William Campbell, of Warneton; I recollect my brother swearing an information before me on 25th October; the document I now look upon is the power of attorney referred to in that information; I received that document from Mr. Kerrigan on the 10th of September last; it was signed John Campbell; I took the document home with me; it had not then the signature of Mr. Kerrigan to it; I opened it when I got home; I saw that the signature was a forgery; I sent it to the Joint Stock Bank, Sydney, for the purpose of getting an amount transferred; the document was returned to me, giving as a reason that the document was valueless, the signature not being attested; on receiving it back from Sydney I handed it back to my brother, John Campbell, who said that he had never seen this document before and not signed it; he handed the document back to me; I then took the document to Mr. Kerrigan, and asked him to witness it, knowing at the time that my brother's signature was a forgery; my words were "this document, exhibit A, has been returned to me from the Bank as valueless—would you mind witnessing it"; he said "I will witness it, I don't suppose your brother will say anything"; I had no intention of using the document; I am one of the executors under the will of my father; I applied to Mr. Kerrigan for the power of attorney; his reply on the first occasion was that he could not find it, and he told me on the second occasion that I would not require it; I insisted upon having it; he then told me he would hunt it up and send it to the Bank for me; I told him not to do so, but to keep it until I came in again; I came to him in some days after; he told me that he would send it to the Bank; I preferred doing that myself, and I did so.

Mr. Walker, solicitor. I recollect Mr. Kerrigan on one occasion saying documents requiring to be stamped I would send them to the Bank; it was at the Telegraph Office that I asked Mr. Kerrigan to witness this power of attorney; I met Mr. Kerrigan several times between September and October; I never mentioned anything about the power of attorney not being correct, but I told him that the Bank had written to me about the stamp duty; I said to Mr. Kerrigan "This document," meaning the power of attorney, "has been returned to me by the Bank to be witnessed—would you mind witnessing it"; he did witness it; I saw him witness it; I saw Mr. Kerrigan on Saturday last, I had a conversation with him then; he said there were rumours afloat affecting his business, and was it the document that I had asked him to witness it at the Telegraph Office to expedite matters; I replied—"That is the document you witnessed at the Telegraph Office, but I did not ask you to do so to expedite matters"; he said—"That is the document I sent to your brother that I got back; he said he came with no intention of being offensive or to ask any favour; the acting executors sold property under that power of attorney before it came into our possession; I asked Mr. Kerrigan to witness that power of attorney to be a forgery; I did not send it to the Bank to negotiate.

Memorandum by Chief Clerk, Department of Justice.

Department of Justice, Sydney, 17 May, 1882.

IN accordance with instructions of the Minister of Justice, reference was made to the Bench at Kempsey for report respecting complaint as to delay in conduct of business at Police Office, and also as to the hearing of a charge of forgery against Mr. Michael Kerrigan with closed doors.

The report of the Bench was submitted to the Minister in December, but does not appear to have been finally dealt with, in consequence of the papers having been mislaid in some unaccountable manner.

The complaints preferred against Sub-inspector Kerrigan have been inquired into by the Inspector-General of Police, who is satisfied that they are groundless.

The Bench, it will be seen, deny the statements reflecting on them, and admit hearing the charge against Kerrigan with closed doors, in accordance with request of defendant's solicitor at the time.

On June 4th, 1883, I wrote to you from Kempsey, Macleay River, with reference to my case, and have not yet received an acknowledgment of my letter.

I beg to state I have not received any redress or satisfaction from the Magistrates at Kempsey since June 4th, and consequently have been forced to sell all I had in this world to keep two children and myself from starving.

By the kindness of some friends I have been enabled to reach Sydney, my address being as above, and I have the honor to request that you will let me know (if any) what steps have been taken by you in my case.

I may add that the Clerk of Petty Sessions at Kempsey has informed me that the bondsmen's vouchers cannot be found, so that I have been unable to recover the amount of these from the persons who signed them.

Requesting your favourable and early attention,

Mrs. Anderson to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

519, Bourke-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, 1 August, 1883.

In reply to yours of the 27th July, No. 83-8,947, I have to express my regret at the miscarriage of my letter of the 4th June. The nature of my case, briefly stated, is as follows:—

On 6th December, 1882, I obtained an order for maintenance against my husband, Neils Anderson, from the Magisterial Bench at Kempsey, Macleay River, for thirty shillings per week, for support of self and two children. The money was to be paid weekly, through my husband's solicitor, Mr. D. B. Walker, of Kempsey. Bonds were signed guaranteeing payment, my husband for £30 and Mr. D. B. Walker for £20. I received payment up till 20th March last, since which time I have been unable to recover any money either under the order or the bonds.

As the order was made for twelve months, you will see the payments are in arrear four and a half months. My husband shortly after the granting of the order announced his intention of leaving the Colony for San Francisco. I brought the fact under the notice of Sergeant Bennett, who had charge of the case, and he informed me I could not prevent my husband leaving, as Mr. Walker had guaranteed the money. When the payments ceased I called repeatedly on Sergeant Bennett. He informed me Mr. Walker had stated he had no more money and would not pay me any more. I then applied to have the bonds estreated, making the application both to Sergeant Bennett and to Mr. Wilson, the Magistrate. After calling many times and getting most unsatisfactory and evasive answers, I was finally informed that the bonds could not be found, and as far as either Sergeant Bennett or Mr. Wilson knew, they had been lost.

Through the gross neglect and carelessness of those in charge of my case, both myself and children are left entirely without support, and I now appeal to you to compel the Magistrate in charge at Kempsey to give me that justice that my case demands. If the bonds are at the office at Kempsey, I appeal to you to compel the Bench to at once force their payment. If they have been lost, as I have been informed is the case, I shall be glad to be informed if you will cause the money to be paid either by the person responsible for the loss or from the Government funds.

I have already suffered very much through the miscarriage of my letter 4th June, and I therefore beg of you to give my case immediate attention and that justice which I submit it demands at your hands.

I have, &amp;c.,

MARY ANDERSON.

Acknowledged, 7/8/83. Request the Bench of Magistrates, Kempsey, to favour with report.—H.E.C., 4th August, /83. Bench, Kempsey, with copy, 7/8/83.

No. 6.

The Bench of Magistrates, West Kempsey, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, West Kempsey, 21 August, 1883.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 7th instant, asking for report upon a letter forwarded to your Department by Mrs. Anderson, respecting a bond entered into, for twelve months, by Neils Anderson and D. B. Walker, for the payment of 30s. per week for the support of the children of the above-mentioned Neils Anderson; and, in reply, beg to state that the said bonds and depositions were found last Monday among some loose papers, where they must have been put by the late C.P.S., Mr. Casey. Mr. Wilson, J.P., now acting Clerk of Petty Sessions, informs us that Mrs. Anderson called upon him some two months since and asked that the bonds might be estreated, as Mr. Walker refused to pay any more money for the support of the children. She was informed that the bonds would be looked up next day. Diligent search was made through the records of this Court by him, but no bonds or depositions could be found. Mrs. Anderson called again about a week after, when she was informed by Mr. Wilson that he could not find the papers required, but as Mr. Casey would shortly be returning to the district, he would ask him about them. Upon Mr. Casey's arrival Mr. Wilson spoke to him about the matter; he came to the Court-house, searched, but could find no trace of the documents, nor was he aware what had become of them. Upon receipt of your letter, Mr. Wilson and Sergeant Bennett again searched through all the records for some years back, but with no success. Mr. Wilson remembered seeing some loose depositions among some waste papers, and, upon sorting them found both depositions and bonds, which he placed before us to-day. There can be no blame attached to Mr. Wilson in the matter, who, we are sure, used every effort to find the documents in question, and he not being in office as Acting Clerk of Petty Sessions at the time the bonds were entered into, could have no knowledge of where the documents had been put.

Mrs. Anderson to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

519, Bourke-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, 29/8/83.

I duly received your letter of the 7th instant, acknowledging mine of 1st instant.

My present helpless position must be my excuse for again writing to ask if any steps have been taken and any decision come to in my case.

Through the non-payment of the maintenance legally due to me I am solely dependent on the kindness of my friends; my case is a most urgent one, and I beg you will let me have an immediate answer.

I am, &amp;c.,

MARY ANDERSON.

An urgent reminder should be sent to the Bench of Magistrates, Kempsey, with copies of Mrs. Anderson's letters, in case of any miscarriage of previous papers, for report.—W.E.P., 5/9/83. Approved.—H.E.C., 6/9/83. Bench, Kempsey, with copies, 13/9/83.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Kempsey, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Police Office, West Kempsey, 18 September, 1883.

I have the honor, by direction of the Bench of Magistrates in Petty Sessions assembled, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 13th instant, in reference to the letters of Mrs. M. Anderson, and in reply thereto to state—

1. That the recognizance therein referred to was mislaid for some time in this office, and was subsequently found and forwarded by Mr. J. W. Wilson, Acting Clerk of Petty Sessions, to the Clerk of the Peace, Sydney, to be estreated. Through inadvertence the recognizance was not duly certified as forfeited, and the document was returned to this office.
2. The recognizance was this day duly certified as forfeited, and forwarded to the Clerk of the Peace, Sydney, with the view of its being estreated.

I have to add that the Bench are of opinion that no blame whatever can be attached to either Sergeant Bennett or Mr. Wilson in the matter, seeing that the former did all in his power to obtain payment of the order, and the document was mislaid in this office prior to the latter gentleman taking charge.

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sydney, 6 October, 1883.

I HAVE no papers in this matter previous to the date of the within letter. I enclose all the papers respecting the case in my possession.

The recognizance will be included in my estreat roll to the Sheriff, after Port Macquarie Quarter Sessions, 10th November next.

I may mention that Mr. Wilson, J.P., wrote to me forwarding the recognizance, and asking whether a warrant could be issued for Anderson's apprehension, to which I replied, on 6th September last, as follows:—"Before I can estreat this recognizance it must be duly certified as forfeited. As to whether a warrant could be issued it is out of my province to advise in the matter; however, I willingly give you my opinion, which is that, on Anderson's return to the Colony, fresh proceedings could be taken under 22nd Vict. No. 6, sec. 1, and a warrant issued for his arrest."

Clerk of the Peace.

As the Clerk of the Peace purposes estreating the bonds at the next Court of Quarter Sessions at Port Macquarie, nothing further can be done at present.—H.E.C., 29/10/83. The Clerk of the Peace, B.C., 29/10/83.—W. E. PLUNKETT.

Sir,

519, Bourke-street, 13 December, 1883.

I have been informed by the Sheriff that the sum of £20, being one of the bonds in my case against my husband, Neil Anderson, has been paid to the credit of the Government.

I have therefore the honor to request you to pay this amount to me as soon as possible. I am now in very low circumstances, having been unable to work for some time past, through severe illness, caused through ill treatment by my husband. My children have been solely dependent on the charity of my friends, and I am naturally anxious to obtain this sum, in order to make a start in life for myself and children. Will you kindly reply at once, stating when I can obtain the amount of the bond, and also if it will be necessary to apply at your office in person.

An estreat warrant was issued against Neil Anderson, on 30th November, 1883, for the sum of £30, for his estreated recognizance for non-compliance with a Magistrate's order for "wife-desertion," and the return of my bailiff to said warrant is as follows:—"The principal, Anderson, I have been unable to discover; he is, I believe, in California." The warrant is still in force. An estreat warrant was also issued against David Brown Walker, surety, in the sum of £20, for the before-mentioned Neil Anderson, and that sum was recovered from him and paid into the Colonial Treasury on the 15th December last.—CHARLES COWPER, Sheriff.

No. 1.

Messrs. Craigie & Hipgrave to J. S. Farnell, Esq.

Dear Sir,

Express Office, Armidale, 1 August, 1883.

Ever since we have published the Express at Armidale (now some twenty-seven years) it has been our custom to apply to the Clerk of Petty Sessions to be allowed to look over the records of the Police Court work, in order to supplement our reporter's notes in cases where he has been unable to be present, and until now the permission has been freely given.

Mr. Yates, the P.M., has now instructed the C.P.S. not to allow the records to be seen. We fail to see that there can be any harm in our reporter making extracts from the depositions in the office of the C.P.S., and as in many instances the prohibition of the Police Magistrate would prevent our giving any record of Court work, we would esteem it a favour if you would put the matter to the Minister for Justice and get it remedied.

We know of no reason why Mr. Yates should have refused us access to the records, unless it be that we have had occasion more than once to comment unfavourably upon his decisions.

Yours, &c.,

CRAIGIE & HIPGRAVE.

P.S.—Kindly get the matter settled for us as soon as possible, and we much regret being compelled to trouble you.—C. & H.

---

For the consideration of my honorable colleague the Minister for Justice. I trust that my honorable colleague will see fit to comply with the desire expressed by the writer of this letter, and that the practice that has hitherto existed for years relative to taking notes from the depositions and records of the Police Court may be permitted to continue.—JAMES S. FARNELL, 6/8/83.

1. Ask for report why the change referred to has been made? 2. Acknowledge to Mr. Farnell, and say that inquiry will be made, and he will be further communicated with.—H.E.C., 6/8/83.

The Police Magistrate, Armidale, to The Under Secretary of Justice, reporting on No. 1.

Sir,

Court-house, Armidale, 14 August, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, requesting me to give my reasons for having made changes in practice in Armidale Police Court as alleged by Messrs. Craigie and Hipgrave, copy of whose letter on the matter being annexed thereto. Among the reasons which influenced me in not permitting reporters to have access to the records of the Court for the purpose of supplying the newspapers with reports are the following:—

1. That the practice is undesirable, as remarks are made upon decisions of the Court, at times, in newspapers the foundation for which is supplied by some one not wholly disinterested; and the result is that quite a different complexion is put upon the decisions of Magistrates. As an example, I may quote a case of quite recent date, in which it was reported that a prisoner had been discharged under circumstances which were false and calculated to mislead.
2. That I am of opinion if information of the proceedings of the Police Court is required by newspapers, it should be obtained, as it is in all other Courts with which I am acquainted, by the attendance of the reporters, and upon notes taken by them during the proceedings. In the Armidale Court-house ample provision is made for the accommodation of reporters. If the reporter of one newspaper is granted access to the records of the Court for facilitating the discharge of his duties then the same concession must in fairness be made to those of other newspapers. At present there are two newspapers in Armidale, and it is contemplated, I believe, to start a third shortly.
3. That it would appear to have been the practice of the reporters to attend the Court for the purpose of reporting the proceedings before my arrival in Armidale, as I gathered from a complaint made to me by Mr. Hipgrave, of the Armidale Express, that previous to my arrival it was no uncommon thing for his reporter to waste the fore part of the day awaiting the attendance of Magistrates.
4. That I am of opinion that the practice of permitting reporters to have unrestricted access to the records of a Court would be open to unmeasured abuse, and be at the same time a most objectionable innovation.

The absence of reporters of the local papers from the Police Court, dating from a short time after my arrival, had been remarked by the Magistrates, officers of the Court, and members of the legal profession practising in Armidale; and yet, what purported to be reports of proceedings appeared in the papers. I ascertained how the information for these reports was obtained by observing, on passing through, a reporter in the Court-room perusing the deposition-book; and having inquired of the late C.P.S., Mr. Bray, and learned that it was with his knowledge that such an unusual mode of obtaining information had been adopted, I commented on the fact and disallowed the practice—a course which had been adopted under precisely similar circumstances by one of my predecessors in office, Mr. James Buchanan, now one of the Stipendiary Magistrates of Sydney; but found that, though reporters continued to absent themselves from the Police Court, reports of proceedings still appeared in the papers. I therefore concluded that my directions had been disregarded. I have not refused, nor would I decline to permit, reporters to have access to the records under exceptional circumstances, such as his being unavoidably absent from the Court during the proceedings. The reporter of the Armidale Express is aware of my willingness to make this concession; but as matters have been in Armidale, so far as I am in a position to judge, absence of reporters from Police Court proceedings has been the rule and not the exception.

I think the foregoing facts will show that I have not originated any alleged change in the manner in which newspaper reporters have been dealt with in obtaining reports of proceedings in the local Court. Having in view the permission asked for by Messrs. Craigie & Hipgrave, and my disclaimer of refusal to permit the reporter to inspect records under exceptional circumstances, as well as the fact that I am not responsible for any change of front, as alleged by Messrs. Craigie & Hipgrave, I await any directions the Minister may be pleased to issue, under which it is scarcely necessary for me to add I shall most gladly act.

Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Armidale, 18 August, 1883.

Last week again we found it extremely inconvenient in not being able to peruse the depositions at the police court, a privilege we have enjoyed for nearly twenty-eight years, and one which is allowed in every town in New South Wales to our knowledge. We beg to enclose you two articles upon the subject, one taken from the opposition journal to show we are not singular in the matter. We simply want the privilege of taking notes of the business done whenever our reporter may be absent.

Sincerely trusting you will see your way clear to grant us the right,

We have, &amp;c.,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Extract from the Armidale Chronicle.

THE P.M., THE PRESS, AND THE PUBLIC.

"IMITATION is the sincerest flattery" was the remark that an eminent juriconsult once made. Mr. Leopold Yates, P.M., is upon this principle the most sincere flatterer of the Chief Justice of New South Wales. Sir James Martin in not only one but in many memorable judicial utterances declared that the Press had no rights, no duties, and no privileges. The Press has, as every intelligent man in Australia knows, performed public duties, advocated public interests, stimulated progress, and fought the battle of human advancement at great self-sacrifice. But this is beside the matter now under note, although the subject is interesting to the people of New England. Mr. Yates, P.M., is evidently of opinion that the Press of the Colony is the natural enemy of the courts of justice. That such opinion is fallacious and morally wrong is evidenced by the fact that appeals have been frequently made from the decisions of the Courts to the higher judgment of the Press, which, with all its faults, represents public opinion and public justice. The majesty of the Press has been bowed to by the greatest statesman in Europe. Its influence has been for good, and its powers have generally been exercised for the general weal of the people. Yet we find narrow-minded men striving to narrow its channels of information. Dressed in a little brief authority to curtail the powers of its ambassadors, and to make the Press of Armidale "kootoo" to him, Mr. Yates has succeeded not in bending the Press to his sweet will, but in making himself a laughing-stock to the community of Armidale. The time has long passed when a police magistrate can dictate what is to be done in the Cathedral City. Mr. Yates has issued a ukase to the effect that no newspaper reporter is to see the records of the Court. As a matter of fact no newspaper reporter wishes to see them. In every Court in the Colony, with the exception of that of Armidale, the records are accessible to the Press—not that the Press has any right, but the privilege is accorded. Our contemporary, the Express, has explained why a reporter cannot always be stationed as an aide-de-camp to the police magistrate. Mr. Yates has taken the first step towards establishing a Star Chamber in Armidale.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Extract from the Armidale Express.

OUR reporter attended at the police court on Wednesday morning at the usual hour for commencing business—10 o'clock—and discovered that there was no business to be transacted. At a later hour, however, it is said that some woman was brought before the Court upon some charge, and dealt with in some way. The information conveyed by the foregoing sentence is undoubtedly vague, but as the police magistrate has, in his wisdom, instructed the Clerk of Petty Sessions not to show the records of the Court to reporters it is impossible for us to tell the public anything more definite about the case on Wednesday. For nearly twenty-eight years now we have been allowed, by the courtesy of officials at the Court-house, to see the records, and have often found the permission a convenience in supplementing or correcting our own reports. Occasionally it is found expedient to open the Court to deal with some urgent matter at an unusual hour, as, we presume, was the case on Wednesday. Upon these occasions we shall in future be unable to tell our readers what is done, for we have no intention of fabricating reports from popular rumours, and certainly cannot station a reporter in the precincts of the Court from morning till night on the off chance of some case of urgent necessity turning up. It is bad enough to have frequently to waste valuable time in the Court-house watching for hours the halting progress of trumpery cases of no public interest, instead of being able to take the pith of them from the records in about 10 minutes. That, however, we must now do as often as we can afford the time, but we distinctly decline to keep a special attendant to magnify the dignity of official proceedings at the Armidale Police Court. Why the present police magistrate has issued his remarkable ukase we do not know, and what harm there can be in allowing the records of the Court to be perused in the office of the C.P.S. by those whose duty it is to give information to the public we leave the public to find out. Setting aside private feelings—and they are entitled to no weight here—we have failed to discover any reason for forbidding reporters access to the records that would practically hold good on public grounds.

W. C. Proctor, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Pitt-street, Sydney, 20 August, 1883.

I have the honor to enclose an extract from the Armidale Express newspaper upon the subject of the refusal of the Police Magistrate to allow extracts to be taken for reports from the Court records.

As all Court records are public documents they should be open to public inspection at any time within office hours, and I think in the interests of justice there can be no harm in affording facilities to newspapers in extracting reports, while there is much danger attached to the system of concealment adopted by the direction of the Armidale Police Magistrate, contrary to the practice of previous Magistrates during nearly twenty-seven years.

May I ask that an inquiry be made into this matter.

I have, &amp;c.,

W. C. PROCTOR.

May be informed in similar terms as per minute of 30/8/83.—W.E.P., 31/8/83. Also inform the P.M., Armidale. Mr. W. C. Proctor and P.M., Armidale, 1/9/83.

Minute of Minister of Justice.

I THINK that it would be inexpedient to issue a general rule permitting the representatives of the Press to have access, whenever they desire it, to the depositions taken in Court, for any concession of this character authorized in Armidale must if asked for be extended to all other places where Courts of Petty Sessions are held. The Police Magistrate or other officer having the possession or control of or being responsible for the due care of the depositions may exercise his discretion in allowing the Press representatives to peruse or otherwise use them, having regard to the safe keeping of the documents and to the proper and convenient carrying on of the current public business.

Mr. Buchanan (Mr. Yates' predecessor in office) has reported that he only granted such a concession in exceptional cases.

I cannot therefore give Mr. Yates any special instructions of the nature suggested by Messrs. Craigie and Hipgrave.

No. 11.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Police Magistrate, Armidale.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 1 September, 1883.

Referring to your letter of the 14th ultimo, furnishing report with reference to a communication forwarded to this Department from the Honorable J. S. Farnell, M.P., from Messrs. Craigie and Hipgrave, of the Armidale Express newspaper, complaining of your action in declining to allow the reporters to have access to the records of the Police Office, I am directed to inform you, that it has been intimated to the Honorable J. S. Farnell that the Minister of Justice thinks it would be inexpedient to issue a general rule, permitting the representatives of the Press to have access, whenever they desire it, to the depositions taken in Court, for any concession of this character authorised at Armidale, must, if asked for, be extended to all other places where Courts of Petty Sessions are held. The Police Magistrate or other officer having the possession or control or being responsible for the due care of the depositions may exercise his discretion in allowing the Press representatives to peruse or otherwise use them, having regard to the safe keeping of the documents, and to the proper and convenient carrying on of the current public business.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

No. 12.

Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave to The Minister of Justice.

Sir, Armidale, 4 September, 1883.
 We would take it as a great favour if the question of allowing us, as journalists, to peruse the depositions at the Armidale Police Court was settled.
 The privilege is allowed everywhere, we are reliably informed, except here, and even here until a few weeks back.

Yours, &c.,
 CRAIGIE & HIPGRAVE.

See my minute of 30/8/83.—H.E.C., 10/9/83. Messrs. Craigie & Hipgrave informed, 10/9/83.

No. 13.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave.

Gentlemen, Department of Justice, Sydney, 10 September, 1883.
 With reference to your letters of the 18th ultimo and 4th instant, complaining of the action of the Police Magistrate at Armidale in declining to allow your reporters to have access to the records of the Police Office,—I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that he thinks it would be inexpedient to issue a general rule permitting the representatives of the Press to have access, whenever they desire it, to the depositions taken in Court, for any concession of this character authorised in Armidale must, if asked for, be extended to all other places where Courts of Petty Sessions are held. The Police Magistrate, or other officer, having the possession or control, or being responsible for the due care of the depositions, may exercise his discretion in allowing the Press representatives to peruse or otherwise use them, having regard to the safe keeping of the documents, and to the proper and convenient carrying on of the current public business.

I have, &c.,
 W. E. PLUNKETT,
 Under Secretary.

No. 14.

Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Armidale, 4 September, 1883.
 We beg to draw your earnest attention to the fact that the matter of the Police Magistrate at Armidale not allowing us to peruse the depositions is still unsettled, and is causing great inconvenience to our office. We might add that the privilege is made use of everywhere except here.

We would feel very much obliged if you would kindly give the matter your earliest attention.

Yours, &c.,
 CRAIGIE & HIPGRAVE,
 Proprietors Armidale Express.

The Minister of Justice.—A.S., 11/9/83. The Under Secretary of Justice.—C.W., B.C., 13/9/83.
 This matter has been already dealt with.—H.E.C., 14/9/83. Messrs. Craigie & Hipgrave.—18/9/83.

No. 15.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave.

Gentlemen, Department of Justice, Sydney, 18 September, 1883.
 Referring to your letter of the 4th instant, addressed to the Colonial Secretary, and lately forwarded to this Department, further complaining of the action of the Police Magistrate at Armidale in declining to allow your reporters to have access to the records of the Police Office, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that this matter has been already dealt with, as conveyed to you by my letter of the 10th instant.

I have, &c.,
 W. E. PLUNKETT,
 Under Secretary.

No. 16.

Messrs. Craigie &amp; Hipgrave to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Express Office, Armidale, 19 September, 1883.
 As it is quite evident that there is but little likelihood of our getting justice done at the instance of your Government, re the Police Magistrate's conduct in refusing the Press the privilege of perusing the depositions at Armidale, we shall be compelled to get the matter thoroughly ventilated on the opening of Parliament.

Mr. Yates is apparently well aware that Mr. Cohen is Minister for Justice.

Yours, &c.,
 CRAIGIE & HIPGRAVE.

Does my hon. colleague, the Minister of Justice, know to what this refers?—A.S., 21/9/83.
 The Under Secretary of Justice.—C.W., 30/9/83. Seen. The insinuation in the closing paragraph of this letter is both offensive and unwarrantable, but beyond so characterizing it I have no wish to make any observation.—H.E.C., 4/10/83.

LAW OF LIBEL AND CONTEMPT OF COURT.

(PETITION OF MAYOR OF PLATTSBURG.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 9 October, 1883.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the Mayor of Plattsburg, as Chairman of a combined Public Meeting of the Citizens of the Boroughs of Wallsend and Plattsburg, held in the School of Arts, Wallsend, on Thursday evening, the 20th day of September, A.D. 1883, to consider the desirability of securing an amendment of the Law of Libel and the practice concerning Contempt of Court,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That the following resolutions were unanimously adopted at the said Meeting :—

- 1st. That, in the opinion of this Meeting, the law relating to Libel as affecting the Press requires to be clearly defined by special enactment, and so modified as to discourage merely speculative actions, and to relieve newspaper proprietors from the necessity of proving minor details, when it is proved to the satisfaction of a Jury that their strictures have been, broadly speaking, true, without malice, and for the public benefit.
- 2nd. That the powers at present exercised by the Judges in dealing with charges of contempt of Court should be so defined that the guilt or innocence of the accused shall be determined by a Jury, excepting always misconduct within the precincts of a Court whilst a Judge is sitting.
- 3rd. That in any revision of the law relating to Libel, distinct provision should be made to adjust costs to the intention of the verdict.
- 4th. That a memorial embodying the foregoing resolutions be presented to the Government, also that petitions to the same effect be prepared for presentation to Parliament.

Your Petitioner therefore humbly prayeth that your Honorable House will take the subject matter contained in the said resolutions into consideration, and afford such relief in the law and practice referred to therein as in your wisdom may appear desirable.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.
