NEW SOUTH WALES.

CUSTOMS REGULATION ACT.

(CHOCOLATE DRAGEES OR DROPS AND CHOCOLATE STICKS—DUTY ON.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 42 Vic. No. 19, sec. 131.

The Treasury, New South Wales, 28 June, 1883.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undermentioned articles are liable to a duty of three-pence per pound, under the provisions of section 133 of the Customs Regulation Act (42 Vic. No. 19), as possessing properties in the whole or in part which can be used or are intended to be applied for a purpose similar to an article on which duty is payable under the Tariff Act 34 Vic. No. 21.

The said articles approximating in their qualities or uses to imported chocolate, upon which a duty of three-pence per pound is leviable, His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, directs that Chocolate Dragees or Drops and Chocolate Sticks shall be subject to a similar rate of duty,—to be charged and collected on and from the 1st day of July, 1883.

CUSTOMS REGULATION ACT OF 1879.

(REGULATION UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 42 Vic. No. 19, sec. 131.

The Treasury, New South Wales, 3rd June, 1884.

REGULATION UNDER "CUSTOMS REGULATION ACT OF 1879."

HIS Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to make the following Regulation under the provisions of the "Customs Regulation Act of 1879."

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

BARBED WIRE.

DRAWBACK of duty may be allowed on imported Wire twisted and barbed in the Colony, under the following Regulations:—

1. That the wire on which drawback is claimed be exported by "Sea only" on entry, declaration and debenture in the form required by the "Customs Regulation Act of 1879."
2. That no change be made in any such imported wire except by twisting and adding barbs.
3. That the wire be shipped in spools of 1 cwt. and that drawback be allowed on 100 pounds for each spool shipped, the difference being equal to 10 per cent. for the added barbs.
4. That black and galvanized wire be kept separate.
5. Exporters will be required to produce a certificate from the manufacturers, giving particulars, showing the name of the ship by which the wire was imported, the date on which the duty was paid, and the name of the importer.

TOBACCO BILL No. 2.

(MESSAGE No. 28.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 19 March, 1884.

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS,

Governor.

Message No. 28.

In accordance with the provisions contained in the 54th section of the Constitution Act, the Governor recommends for the consideration of the Legislative Assembly the expediency of making provision to meet the requisite expenses in connection with a Bill "for imposing a Duty on Tobacco manufactured in New South Wales and for regulating the manufacture of Tobacco in bond."

Government House,

Sydney, 19th March, 1884.

1883-4.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE TOBACCO ACT, 1884.

(REGULATIONS UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

1. Every manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall apply in writing to the Collector of Customs for the appointment and approval of premises as a tobacco factory; and such manufacturer shall, if required, deliver a drawing and full description of his premises; and when he has paid the fee, as provided in the accompanying Schedule, and executed a bond to the Government with one approved surety for double the duty payable on the maximum estimated manufactured quantity in his factory at any one time (but no bond to be for less than £300), the Collector of Customs may then grant him a license to manufacture tobacco and snuff, cigars or cigarettes, and the name and address of such licensee shall be published in the Government Gazette.
2. All manufactured and cut tobacco, snuff, cigars, and cigarettes, shall be weighed by a Customs or Excise officer before removal from the factory or other licensed premises, in quantities of not less than 20 lbs. manufactured tobacco or cigars, and not less than 10 lbs. snuff or cigarettes, at any one time.
3. Correct books of accounts, in form to be approved by the Collector of Customs, shall be kept by each manufacturer, showing every pound of leaf tobacco and strips of tobacco received and weighed into each manufactory, and every pound of manufactured and cut tobacco, snuff, cigars, and cigarettes cleared from such manufactory; and such books shall always be open to inspection by any duly appointed Customs or Excise officer.
4. No foreign leaf tobacco or strips shall be allowed to enter any manufactory until it has first paid the Customs duty required by law.
5. No manufactured or cut tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall be cleared, except for exportation, from any factory until it has paid the excise required by law.
6. All refuse and waste accumulated in any tobacco factory, shall be destroyed by fire, either on the premises or elsewhere,—such destruction to be under the personal supervision of an Officer of Customs or Excise; and every tobacco manufacturer shall give twenty-four hours' notice in writing to the Inspector of Tobacco Factories of his intention to destroy any refuse or waste.
7. No person shall take or remove any tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes out of the premises of any tobacco manufacturer except between the hours of nine in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, and then only on having a permit to take or remove the same out of the said premises, signed by a duly authorized Customs or Excise officer.
8. The premises of any manufacturer of or dealer in tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes may be entered at any time by day or night, by an officer specially authorized by the Colonial Treasurer or the Collector of Customs.
9. Every manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall before delivery thereof place upon every packet, bundle, parcel, wrapper, package, and box, his name and address, and the name and address of the purchaser of such goods shall be entered at the time of delivery in a book to be kept by the manufacturer for that purpose, and such book shall be open to inspection by any duly appointed Customs or Excise officer.
10. Any person who shall be guilty of a breach of any of the foregoing regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds.

TOBACCO DUTIES.

(APPLICATION OF MESSRS. DE BEER, HART, & CO. FOR REFUND.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 May, 1884.

Messrs. De Beer, Hart, & Co. to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

102, Clarence-street, Sydney, 25 April, 1884.

The passing of the new Customs Act necessitating us closing our factory, we beg leave to lay the following circumstances before you :—

We have at the present moment several bulk packages of cigar leaf on hand, upon which we have paid the duty existing at the time of 1s. per lb. There being no other outlet now for such raw material in this Colony, we desire to re-ship it, together with what we have in bond, to Melbourne; and seeing that we are placed in this position through the action of the new Act, we humbly request that the refund of such duty may be made to us at the time of exportation.

We have, &c.,
DE BEER, HART, & CO.

The Collector of Customs to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Report of the Collector of Customs.

I do not think Messrs. De Beer, Hart, & Co. have sufficient reason for the statement that they have suffered loss by the action of the Tobacco Act. Their leaf tobacco, on which they have paid 1s. per lb., is now worth 2s. more by the increase in the tariff rate, and there is still a demand for leaf at the 3s. rate for cigar manufacture. The Customs Regulation Act does not allow drawback on tobacco; and I do not see any strong grievance in the letter of De Beer, Hart, & Co. to warrant me in recommending special consideration for their application.

THE TARIFF.

(PETITION AGAINST—RESIDENTS OF BALMAIN.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 6 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of Balmain,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That your Petitioners view with alarm the Tariff proposals of the Hon. the Colonial Treasurer, as submitted to your Honorable House on Thursday, the 24th January last.

2. That should the Legislature agree to the proposal of additional taxation upon "tea" it will press most heavily upon a large portion of our population who already find a difficulty in procuring the common necessaries of life for their families, while they see no necessity for reducing the tax upon beer, porter, &c., which are only used as luxuries.

3. That your Petitioners are strenuously opposed to the remission of taxes upon doors, sashes, shutters, &c., as it simply means a tax upon labour, and gives Foreign manufacturers undue advantage over Colonial, which must result in depriving many of our mechanics of regular employment.

4. That your Petitioners are of opinion that the proposed tax upon real and personal property is inquisitorial and oppressive in its character, and likely to impede the progress and prosperity of the Colony, and to drive investors and capitalists to other Colonies to seek investments.

5. That your Petitioners respectfully suggest that during the present financial difficulty the suspension of the vote for assisted immigration, and 5 per cent. ad valorem duty on manufactured goods, would be preferable to a property tax.

Your Petitioners therefore pray that you will be good enough to consider seriously and carefully the foregoing important objections, and either reject or materially modify the proposed scheme of taxation.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Signed on behalf of the largest meeting ever held in Balmain,

JOHN CAMERON,
Mayor.

Chairman of Public Meeting held in Town Hall, Balmain, on 4th February, 1884.

(PETITION AGAINST—RESIDENTS OF SMITHFIELD.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 7 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

We the undersigned, residents in the District of Smithfield, near Parramatta,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOW:—

That at a meeting of the inhabitants of Smithfield and the vicinity the following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, while admitting the necessity of a just scheme of taxation, the proposed scheme propounded by the Treasurer is unjust, vexatious, and calculated to oppress unnecessarily the humbler classes of the community."

We therefore, your Petitioners, pray that you will take this resolution into the consideration of your Honorable House.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

(PETITION AGAINST—CHAIRMAN OF A PUBLIC MEETING AT BERRIMA.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 13 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

This, the humble Petition of certain Residents of the District of Berrima, in public meeting assembled,—
 HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioners agreed to the following resolutions at the aforesaid meeting, and authorized the Chairman to sign the same on their behalf, viz. :—

“That this meeting though ready to bear necessary taxation, and whilst sympathising with the Government in its present difficulty, principally caused by the stoppage of sales by auction of Crown Lands, most strongly protests against the proposed taxes as stated in the Budget Speech, more particularly the tax on real and personal property and that on tea, and considers the time inopportune to remit import duties to the amount of £40,000 in the face of an estimated deficit of one million, and further believe that any scheme of taxation should be accompanied by an equitable revision and reduction of the public expenditure, and this meeting also considers that the most serious objections to the property tax and that it is inquisitorial and most difficult and costly to collect, and will create an army of Civil Servants.”

“That the foregoing resolution be embodied in a Petition and be signed by the Chairman on behalf of the meeting, and forwarded to our representatives for presentation to Parliament.”

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that in dealing with the financial proposals of the Government this Petition may be favorably considered.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

(PETITION AGAINST—CHAIRMAN OF PUBLIC MEETING AT ASHFIELD.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 12 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the Residents of Ashfield, in Public Meeting assembled, for the consideration of the proposed Property Tax,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That at a meeting held at the Town Hall, Ashfield, the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to, namely:—

First. That this meeting disapproves of the financial scheme of the Government for the raising of additional revenue.

Second. That the Local Government Bill, which must materially reduce the central Government expenditure, should precede any scheme for direct taxation.

Your Petitioners humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to favourably consider the premises set forth.

And they, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Signed, by order of the Meeting,—

(PETITION AGAINST—PUBLIC MEETING AT BURRAWANG.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 27 February, 1884.

Petition to the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

The Petition of the Inhabitants of Burrawang and surrounding districts :—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That at a public meeting held at Burrawang on the 18th February, 1884, to consider the Government's new taxation scheme the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to :—

1st. That this meeting views with disfavour the proposed property tax as inequitable and injurious to the farmers of the coast districts, who have reclaimed the waste lands and made them productive at a great amount of labour and expense, which lands at present market value are not equal to outlay incurred, and who have to contend with climatic droughts and severe competition from the favoured climes of other colonies. The meeting therefore recommends in lieu thereof that a tax be levied on all horses and horned cattle of sixpence per head per annum ; an export duty of threepence in the pound on the value of all wool exported from the Colony ; that the proposed tax of threepence on tea be abandoned, and in lieu thereof a duty of threepence per pound be levied on all butter imported into New South Wales ; that an ad valorem duty ranging from five to twenty per cent. be levied on luxuries of every description ; that an excise duty of fourpence per gallon be levied on colonial beers ; that the present duties be retained on goods through the Customs ; also that an income tax of one penny in the pound be levied on all incomes exceeding five hundred pounds (£500) per annum.

2nd. That the resolution passed be embodied in a petition and signed by the Chairman on behalf of the meeting, and presented to the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will give the foregoing resolution your favourable consideration.

Chairman,

PROPOSED TAXATION.

(PETITION AGAINST—CHAIRMAN OF A PUBLIC MEETING AT PETERSHAM.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 19 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Inhabitants of Petersham, in Public Meeting,—

SHOWETH :—

That in the opinion of this Meeting the fiscal proposals of the Government are injurious to the prosperity of the country, and we desire to express our strong disapproval of the propositions of the Honorable the Treasurer in removing duties and imposing an increased tariff on necessary articles of consumption, and that the proposed property tax ought not to be resorted to.

Your Petitioners therefore pray that your Honorable House will reject the taxation proposed by the Honorable the Treasurer.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

PROPOSED TAXATION.

(PETITION AGAINST—CHAIRMAN OF A PUBLIC MEETING AT MACLEAY RIVER.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 21 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the Residents of the Macleay River,—

SHOWETH :—

That at a public meeting (convened by public notices and advertisements published in the local newspapers), held at the School of Arts, Kempsey, on Saturday, 9th February, 1884, P. C. Hill, Esq., J.P., being voted to the chair, the following resolutions were proposed and carried unanimously :—

Proposed by Mr. O. O. Dangar, J.P., seconded by the Rev. James Patterson,—“ That any proposals for placing fresh taxes upon the inhabitants of this Colony should be preceded or at least accompanied by an equitable revision and reduction of the Departmental expenditure.” Carried unanimously.

Proposed by Mr. W. T. Dangar, seconded by A. Cochrane, Esq.,—“ That this meeting strongly disapproves of the proposals now submitted by the Treasurer so far as the proposed property tax, which would be a serious burden upon the people, as it would tax property of a kind such as stock-in-trade, book debts, securities, investments, &c., &c., which should not be affected, and would moreover involve in its collection a most obnoxious system of inquisition into the affairs of the people, and be costly in collection.” Carried unanimously.

Proposed by C. J. N. Deaes, Esq., seconded by Mr. Peter Burke,—“ That the proposal of the Colonial Treasurer to surrender £40,000 of duties at present being collected on beer, wines, &c., is impolitic, and should not be accepted in the face of the present deficiency in the revenue and proposals for fresh taxation; and further, that the imposition of an increased duty on tea is calculated to bear unjustly on classes at present contributing a fair share of revenue.” Carried unanimously.

Proposed by Mr. George Ponsford, seconded by Mr. T. Hennessy,—“ That a Petition, embodying the foregoing resolutions, be signed by the Chairman on behalf of this meeting, and forwarded through R. B. Smith, Esq., M.P., for presentation to the Legislative Assembly.” Carried unanimously.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to take the foregoing facts into your favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Signed for and on behalf of the Meeting,

Chairman.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

PROPOSED TAXATION.

(PETITION AGAINST—MAYOR OF SYDNEY AS CHAIRMAN OF A PUBLIC MEETING.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 20 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

This humble petition of John Hardie, Esquire, the Right Worshipful the Mayor of Sydney, as Chairman of a Public Meeting of the Citizens of Sydney, held at the Town Hall, Sydney, on the fourth day of February instant,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

That the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, namely :—

1. That, in the opinion of this meeting, an equitable revision and reduction of the Public expenditure should accompany any system of increased taxation, and that the proposed tax on real and personal property would be a serious charge upon the industry and frugality of the people.

2. That, in the opinion of this meeting, the proposed remission of Customs duties on certain articles, and the imposition of an increased duty on tea, would prove injurious and unjust to classes already bearing their fair share of taxation.

3. That the foregoing resolutions be embodied in a petition, to be signed by the Mayor, on behalf of this meeting, and presented to the Legislative Assembly.

That your Petitioner respectfully prays that your Honorable House will take the matters named into your serious consideration, and grant such relief as to you may seem fit.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Sydney, 5th February, 1884.

THE TARIFF.

(PETITION AGAINST—CIGAR MANUFACTURERS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 7 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

WE, the undersigned cigar manufacturers of New South Wales, have learned with alarm that it is the intention of the Government to impose a license fee and excise duty on Colonial manufactured cigars. We are quite willing to pay two shillings and sixpence per pound import duty on unmanufactured foreign leaf, provided there is no excise duty or license fee.

If the Government put a heavy license fee and duty on Colonial manufactured cigars it will be the means of closing our small factories and ruining us.

We therefore respectfully pray that you in your wisdom will see fit to omit the license fee and excise duty on small factories, hoping that you will give your earnest consideration to our request.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c., &c.

THE TARIFF.

(PETITION AGAINST—CIGAR-MAKERS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 4 March, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly.

We, the undersigned, your humble Petitioners, representing the cigar-makers of New South Wales, would beg to submit to your notice the following grievances,—

The cigar-making industry is comparatively speaking quite new, and is likely to become one of the most flourishing industries in the Southern Hemisphere, but with the new tariff proposals our employers find themselves unable to compete with the imported cigars, and we have already received notice that our services will be no longer required should the new tariff proposals become law. We would also point out to you that there are cigar-makers out here that came out here under the new Assisted Immigration Act (and there are plenty more coming out), but now under the new proposed tariff they will be compelled to leave this Colony altogether, and the new arrivals will find themselves unable to gain employment.

In an interview that our employers had with the Hon. Treasurer he promised to make some concession to cigar-makers only, but instead of which he has added even more to his original proposals, viz.: The first proposal was 2s. 6d. a pound duty on imported leaf for cigar manufacturing purposes, and now he has made it 3s., which is a matter of impossibility for the employers to stand. We would suggest that instead of 3s. a pound duty it should be 2s., thus making it equitable to the 1s. more on imported cigars that the Government has proposed.

We beg leave to point out to you that the majority of the cigar-makers out here are married men with families; that they have come from America, Germany, London, and elsewhere; and they would be compelled to break up their homes and go to Victoria, or even to go back to their respective homes, and thus it would crush up that which is likely to bring a far more greater revenue than Mr. Dibbs's proposals.

We therefore humbly pray your Honorable House to redress the aforesaid grievances; and we, your humble Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

THE TARIFF.

(PETITION AGAINST—PAPER WORKERS OF LIVERPOOL.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 7 February, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

We, the employees of the Paper Works at Liverpool, and inhabitants of the town and district, would respectfully ask your careful consideration of the proposed new tariff, whereby the repeal of the duty hitherto levied for Revenue purposes on the import of a quality (wrapping paper and paper bags) forms a large portion of the paper manufactured at these works is set down to be withdrawn, the effect of which will be to throw a great many families out of employment, who will find it difficult to earn their living in any other capacity.

During the last ten years the works have been progressive, and give steady employment to an industrious and intelligent class of workmen. The paper mills, working all the year round, day and night, differ from the wool establishments, who can only give employment during certain seasons. By the closing of the works the Government Railway Department will be deprived of one of their largest customers (if not the largest) on the Southern line, and in addition to the hands actually employed at the mills, hundreds of others who derive their livelihood in Sydney and other parts of the Colony in the collection of material, many of whom will in all probability become dependent upon the State for support.

We therefore humbly pray your serious consideration before you close an industry of so great importance to the public, as well as the newspaper Press of the Southern Hemisphere. The district of Liverpool shows signs during the past ten years of much advancement since the establishment of the paper mills in its midst, agriculturists, collieries, engineers, and tradespeople alike sharing in the general prosperity.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

AD VALOREM DUTIES.

(PETITION IN FAVOUR OF—CHAIRMAN OF A MEETING OF FURNITURE-TRADERS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 11 March, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Furniture Trades of Sydney, and of the Colony generally,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That at a public meeting held at the Protestant Hall, on the evening of Wednesday, the twenty-fifth of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, John Desmond Fitzgerald, Esq., of Sydney, Solicitor, in the Chair, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

First. In the opinion of this meeting, it is highly desirable and expedient that the furniture trades should petition Parliament to impose such duties on all manufactured articles of furniture, including pianos, billiard-tables, and ornamental upholstery, imported into this Colony, as will give encouragement to the local manufacturers of similar articles.

Second. That the duties at present imposed on the raw materials used in any branch of the trade is detrimental to the interests of the whole body of local manufacturers of furniture, and should be abolished.

Third. That a duty of ten per centum be imposed on all imported articles of the kind before referred to, which would suffice to give relief to the local manufacturers and stimulate the trade, without prejudice to any interest.

Fourth. That these resolutions be signed by the Chairman on behalf of this meeting, and be by him transmitted for presentation to the Honorable the Legislative Assembly.

2. That your Petitioners, fully believing in and endorsing the preceding resolutions, entreat your Honorable House to take their case into your consideration, and afford such relief as you may in your wisdom deem fit.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

J. DESMOND FITZGERALD,
Chairman of the said Public Meeting.

INTERCOLONIAL FREE TRADE.

(PETITION—SECRETARY OF N.S.W. FARMERS' UNION.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 31 October, 1883.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned Farmers of New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That at a Conference of the duly appointed Delegates of New South Wales Farmers' Union, held in Bathurst, the following resolutions were unanimously passed and have since been endorsed and approved of by the various branches of the Union :—

1. That this Conference views with alarm the action of the Victorian Government in doubling the import duties on Colonial produce, and is of opinion that such action is contrary to justice and good Government, and moreover tends to act injuriously to the prospects and prosperity of Australian agriculturists.
2. That this Conference is of opinion that a reciprocity treaty should be entered into by the several Colonies of Australasia ; and, further, that a system of Intercolonial Free Trade should be inaugurated and established.
3. That in the event of the other Colonies, or any of them, failing or refusing to join New South Wales in a policy of reciprocity or Intercolonial Free Trade, that it is expedient and wise for the agriculturists of New South Wales to urge to the utmost of their power upon the Government of New South Wales to impose a duty upon all agricultural products imported into this Colony from any Colony which refuses to join in such system of Intercolonial Free Trade.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will take these premises into your earnest consideration, and, with the view of assisting your Petitioners, that you request the Government to introduce a Bill having for its object the introduction of a system of reciprocity or Intercolonial Free Trade.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

IMPORTED AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

(PETITION IN FAVOUR OF DUTY ON—MEMBERS OF MOLONG FARMERS UNION.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 5 August, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned Members of the Molong Farmers Union and others,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That at a public meeting held by your Petitioners it was unanimously resolved as follows:—
“That in the opinion of this meeting a ‘duty for revenue purposes’ should at once be levied on all agricultural produce imported into New South Wales, such duties to be on a scale similar to those now charged by Victoria and other Colonies.”

2. In submitting the foregoing resolution to your Honorable House, your Petitioners desire further to add, that having for a number of years been engaged in farming pursuits and other business principally depending on agriculture, its prosperity is a serious matter to us and our families should this important industry be allowed to collapse.

3. From various circumstances, such as the clearing of land, fencing, scarcity of labour, conservation of water, coupled with the tendency of the Colony to be subject to periodical and disastrous droughts, and the high rate of railway freightage charged on produce to the metropolitan market, together with the present competition of the sister Colonies in our market free from duty, all combine to determine “that unless a tax be imposed on imported produce, farming pursuits in New South Wales (especially in this district) of necessity must be abandoned, as the farmer cannot support himself and family at the present price paid for produce.

4. Your Petitioners therefore earnestly pray that you will take the foregoing matter into careful consideration, and apply such remedy in the premises as the wisdom of your Honorable House may deem fit and proper.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

APPENDIX XIX.—Public School Districts constituted and defined; similar Districts proclaimed under the 21st section of the Act	162
APPENDIX XX.—Receipts and Disbursements of the year 1882	171

To His Excellency the Right Honorable LORD AUGUSTUS WILLIAM FREDERICK SPENCER LOFTUS, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

My Lord,

In accordance with the provisions of the Public Instruction Act of 1880, I beg to submit the Annual Report, being that for the year 1882, upon the condition and progress of the several classes of schools established and maintained under the Act.

As the change of Government which resulted in my acceptance of the office of Minister of Public Instruction did not take place until the 5th of January of the present year, the operations of the Department during 1882 were carried on under the control of my predecessor, the Honorable F. B. Suttor.

The proceedings of the Department relate generally to the establishment of new schools, the erection of necessary buildings and supply of school requisites, the provision of qualified teachers, the inspection of schools, and the means of securing regularity of attendance on the part of the pupils. While on the whole substantial progress has been made during the year, it must be admitted that the establishment of new schools proceeds at a slower rate than could be desired. The numerous impediments to rapidity of action in this respect which have been described in former educational reports have not yet been removed; it cannot even be said that they have been diminished to any material extent. These difficulties have affected the establishment of even small schools to such an extent as to call urgently for a suitable remedy. By the Public Instruction Act, a Public School can be established in any locality where, after inquiry, it has been ascertained that twenty children will regularly attend. If in any case that number of pupils be not obtainable, a school of an inferior grade, Provisional or Half-Time, may be granted; and in that event the residents have hitherto been compelled to provide necessary buildings and furniture at their own cost. Such schools, from the nature of the case, would be situated in the most sparsely populated, and therefore the poorest districts; and the burden of defraying the necessary outlay has proved too heavy for the zealous, and a plausible excuse for those who were indifferent to the education of their children. In order to obviate this difficulty, without at the same time risking the waste of public funds, a regulation was framed in 1882 by which, on specified conditions and Appendix I.

within certain limits, aid could be granted from the vote for Public Instruction towards the erection and furnishing of Provisional Schools. The amount of assistance to be awarded is limited to £60 as a maximum, and is granted on condition that at least half that sum is locally contributed, and that the average attendance of pupils is likely to be eighteen. It is further provided that the property shall be leased to the Minister for school purposes for such a term of years as may be agreed upon. These arrangements, it is hoped, will greatly facilitate the establishment of small schools in thinly-inhabited localities, and thus provide the means of education for a section of the population hitherto placed at a disadvantage in that respect.

In addition to the ordinary work of the Department, special attention was necessary to prepare for the discontinuance of the Certified Denominational Schools, which, after the 31st December, were to receive no further grants from public funds. The various steps taken with a view to ascertain what additional accommodation would be required on this account in Public Schools may be seen in Appendix II. the appended copy of the correspondence with the Heads of the several Denominations. A statement of the actual provision made will be given in a subsequent paragraph.

In describing the year's operations it seems desirable to preserve the method and arrangement employed in the Report for 1881, inasmuch as by this means facilities for comparison are supplied, and the results obtained thereby are presented in a form that is easily apprehended. For the like reason it has been deemed desirable to call attention to the continued progress of the educational system by giving, wherever practicable, tables showing the advance made during the last decennial period.

In accordance with this view the subjoined table has been prepared, as from its contents a clear estimate may be formed of the general advance made during the last ten years, as regards the number of Primary Schools supported by the State, the attendance of pupils, and the payments for school fees.

Year.	Schools.	Aggregate Enrolment.	Mean quarterly Attendance.	Average daily Attendance.	School Fees.
1872	902	88,487	62,986	43,246·5	45,994	2	7
1873	942	92,018	66,314	44,345·	48,947	5	11
1874	990	100,384	69,745	45,727·6	53,536	5	2
1875	1,030	104,456	71,557	46,827·4	56,246	12	7
1876	1,073	111,269	76,587	50,352·6	61,545	12	7
1877	1,117	117,252	80,929	54,593·2	65,549	12	0
1878	1,187	128,125	89,000	59,132·3	69,028	8	9
1879	1,268	134,264	94,868	62,760·7	73,227	13	8
1880	1,357	149,112	111,277	72,969·2	56,686	10	6
1881	1,546	176,969	125,506	82,891·3	46,347	5	4
1882	1,658	189,141	134,872	90,944·	51,312	5	11

A few of the more obvious deductions from these figures may here be noted. The increase in the number of schools, that is the number of localities to which the means of instruction have been supplied, is 756—an increase at the rate of 83 per cent. Should a similar similar rate of progress be maintained throughout the next decade—and there are valid reasons for believing that it will be exceeded—it may be anticipated that at the end of 1892 there will be in existence about 3,000 schools, affording the advantages of primary education to the residents in that number of localities.

It must be borne in mind, however, in judging of the probabilities in favour of this estimate, that the rate of progress has not been uniform during the decennial period under review. From 1872 to 1879 the average yearly increase in the number of schools was about 52; while, during the period in which the Public Instruction Act has been in operation, the rate of increase has been 139 per annum. The withdrawal of a considerable number of Denominational Schools will doubtless diminish for a time the number of the schools maintained from public funds; but in the course of a few years it is probable that the effect of this temporary interruption to the continuous progress of the system will disappear, and its influence upon the general result be completely neutralized.

Any comparison based upon the aggregate enrolment of pupils will be of value only where its results are confirmed by more exact statistics, inasmuch as the number of multiple enrolments cannot in all cases be accurately calculated and the necessary deductions made. In the present instance, however, the correspondence between the aggregate enrolment and the mean quarterly attendance is so close as to show unmistakably that in ten years the number of children deriving benefit from the State Schools has more than doubled. The precise ratio of increase during that period has been, for the aggregate enrolment, 113 per cent., and for the mean quarterly attendance, 114 per cent.

In this particular also the ratio of increase has not been uniform throughout the decennial period, being much larger during the operation of the Public Instruction Act. From 1872 to 1879 inclusive the average yearly increase was—

In the aggregate enrolment	6,292
In the mean quarterly attendance	4,554

During the three years in which the Public Instruction Act was in force, the average yearly increase was—

In the aggregate enrolment	18,095
In the mean quarterly attendance	13,334

Equally encouraging results are obtained from a comparison of the average daily attendance for the same period. An increase of 47,698 pupils in daily attendance, or 110 per cent., is first to be noticed; and secondly that, of this large increase, 28,184—more than half the whole number—have been added since the year 1879. It may further be pointed out, as evidence of the comparatively rapid advance made in the last three years, that the aggregate enrolment has increased by 54,877, or 40·8 per cent.; the mean quarterly attendance, by 40,004, or 42·1 per cent.; and the total number of schools by 390, or 30·7 per cent.

II.—THE SCHOOL POPULATION OF THE COLONY.

From the table given under this head in the Report for 1881, it will be seen that, at the date when the last Census was taken, the number of children between the ages of four and fifteen years was 204,468. There is, of course, no means of ascertaining with exactness the numbers of children between the same ages at the end of 1882; but the following table supplies an estimate of those numbers which, for the purposes of this Report, may be deemed sufficiently accurate.

Number of children in the Colony of ages from—

	In April, 1881.		In December, 1881.		In December, 1882.
4 to 5 years	20,092	} 40,871	20,889	} 42,492	21,856	} 44,460

6 to 7 „	20,109	} 147,318	20,906	} 153,156	21,875	} 160,257
7 to 8 „	19,557		20,332		21,276
8 to 9 „	18,869		19,617		20,526
9 to 10 „	18,621		19,359		20,256
10 to 11 „	18,973		19,725		20,639
11 to 12 „	17,186	} 16,279	17,867	} 16,924	18,695	} 17,709
12 to 13 „	17,565		18,261		19,108

14 to 15 „	16,279	16,279	16,924	16,924	17,709	17,709
	204,468		212,572		222,426

In forming these estimates the data supplied by the Registrar-General have been taken as the basis of calculation. The total population of the Colony on the 3rd April, 1881, as shown by the Census, was 751,468; on the 31st December of that year it was estimated by the Registrar-General to be 781,265; and that officer's estimate of the population on 31st December, 1882, was 817,468. It has been assumed that the proportion of children (of the ages specified in the table) to the whole population has not materially varied since the Census was taken, and further, that the proportion of children of the different ages remained unaltered. By this means, it has been possible to ascertain approximately the number of children who may be supposed to be eligible for attendance at school, and for whom it is necessary to provide accommodation. That number is 222,426, an increase of 17,958 upon the number dealt with in the Report for 1881.

III.—EXISTING MEANS OF EDUCATION.

In a previous Report the existing means of instruction were fully enumerated. No change has since been effected as regards the different classes of institutions for this purpose, though the numbers of the various kinds have in some instances been altered. The change, as may be seen from the subjoined table, is most apparent in connection with the Public Schools.

MEANS

MEANS OF EDUCATION.

(a) Provided at the public expense—
The Sydney Grammar School	1
Public Schools	1,229
Provisional Schools	188
Half-Time and Third-Time Schools...	81
Evening Schools	36
Certified Denominational Schools	124
Orphan Schools	2
Industrial Schools	2
(b) Provided at private expense—
School for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind	1
Ragged Schools	3
Private Schools	491
Home Tuition...
Total number of Schools	2,158

The increase (211) in the number of Public Schools must be considered in connection with the diminution in the numbers of Provisional and Half-time Schools, the former numbering 46, and the latter 12, less than in the previous year. As shown in a subsequent paragraph, a large number of Provisional Schools were converted into Public Schools, but no corresponding increase in school accommodation was thereby provided.

Certified Denominational Schools, it is to be observed, appear for the last time as one of the existing means of education provided at the public expense. It is nevertheless probable that some, at least, of those hitherto receiving support from the State will be continued, and will be reckoned among the Private Schools in future reports.

IV.—ACCOMMODATION PROVIDED.

The following Table exhibits the number of Schools of the different classes maintained under the provision of the Public Instruction Act in 1881 and 1882 respectively:—

Class of Schools.	No. of Schools in operation at end of 1881.	No. of Schools authorized to be added in 1882.	No. of Schools in operation at end of 1882.
Public Schools vested.....	756	44	800
Do in tents	36	79	70
Do in non-vested and rented buildings	215	144	338
Provisional Schools.....	227	57	178
Half-time Schools	83	6	79
Denominational Schools.....	133	118
Evening Schools	33	16	19
Totals	1,483	346*	1,602

NOTE.—Some of these schools were not brought into operation in 1882; others had been previously in operation as schools of a different class.

Applications

Applications for the establishment of new schools continue to be received from all parts of the Colony, and in greater numbers than can be promptly dealt with by the present staff of the Department.

Appendix III. In an appended return, a detailed account of these applications is given, together with a statement of the decision arrived at in each case. Of that return the following is a brief summary:—

Appendix VI. In addition to these, 22 applications for the establishment of Evening Public Schools were received, 16 of which were granted.

The list of Public Schools was further augmented by the conversion of 125 Provisional, 16 Denominational, and 3 Half-Time Schools into Public Schools; and 3 other Half-Time Schools were raised to the rank of Provisional Schools.

At the end of the year 9 applications were still under consideration, having been made at too late a period to allow of necessary information respecting them being obtained prior to 31st December.

With regard to the fifty-eight applications which were declined, it is to be observed that the reason for deciding adversely was that further school accommodation was not required in the localities concerned, either on account of the proximity of existing schools or of the insufficiency of the population to furnish such a number of pupils as would warrant the expenditure which the establishment of schools in those places would entail. However, steps were taken in the latter cases to supply some means of education. For example, in eighteen instances where the population was too small to support Public Schools, the usual aid to Provisional Schools was offered; and the services of itinerating teachers were also promised when the number of pupils to be collected at any place fell below the minimum for Provisional Schools.

The

The progressive increase in school accommodation during the year is shown in the subjoined table, which gives the number of schools of the different kinds in operation in each quarter, together with the number of pupils in attendance.

It will be seen from the Accountant's statement, to which fuller reference will be made in a subsequent portion of this Report, that in 1882 the sum of £65,831 13s. 11d. was paid for new school sites. Of this sum, however, a considerable proportion was due on account of sites resumed or purchased in the previous year. The total number of sites obtained was 144; 95 being grants from the Crown; 32, lands resumed under the provisions of the Act; 9, purchased lands; and 8, gifts from private individuals. For the lands resumed a sum of £15,830 5s. 6d. has already been paid, and a further sum, estimated at £8,402, is still due on this account. The purchased lands were acquired at a cost of £2,746 6s. 8d. In a return appended hereto will be found the names of the localities in which these school sites are situated, with particulars as to cost.

Appendix
VII.

As regards new school buildings, full information will be found in the Architect's report. From that document it appears that 67 new school buildings were completed in 1882, affording accommodation for 4,285 scholars. Of these, 54 schools, accommodating 3,335 pupils, were commenced in 1881. Besides these entirely new buildings, additions to existing schools gave increased accommodation for 655 children, and 5,085 others were provided for in 79 tents. Further school accommodation was obtained by renting 82 school buildings, in which it is estimated that 5,353 pupils can be instructed. The total amount of accommodation secured in 1882 was therefore equivalent to 15,378 places. At the present time contracts have been entered into for the erection of 126 new schools, capable of accommodating 14,220 pupils; and for additions which will accommodate 4,530 others, making a total of 18,750 places which will be ready for occupation before the end of 1883, irrespective of those provided in buildings which may be commenced after this date.

Appendix
VIII.

A considerable proportion of the additional accommodation provided and arranged for in 1882 was intended to supply the places of the Denominational Schools which ceased to exist as such at the end of the year. A perusal of the correspondence contained in Appendix II will show that little assistance was derived from the Heads of Denominations who were appealed to for information as to the schools likely to be closed; and it was not possible, under the circumstances, to prepare a comprehensive plan for supplying necessary school accommodation in place of that to be withdrawn from the use of the Department. So far as the facts have yet been ascertained, it does not appear that any great amount of inconvenience has been occasioned by lack of such accommodation, although a few schools have experienced some degree of overcrowding.

The actual provision made for the closing of the Denominational Schools consisted either of leasing the buildings in which they had hitherto been carried on, or in replacing them by new Public Schools. The first plan was adopted in thirty-two cases, viz. :—

It was not deemed necessary to incur expenditure for the purpose of providing school accommodation in lieu of that afforded by other Denominational Schools from which aid was withdrawn at the close close of the year, inasmuch as Public Schools already in existence were capable of receiving all additional pupils likely to attend. In many instances, also, there was reason to suppose that the Denominational Schools would be continued as private schools, and the establishment of Public Schools in the same localities would have been superfluous.

V.—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The provisions of the law for securing the attendance of children at school have been energetically carried out in the proclaimed districts, in which only does this portion of the Public Instruction Act come into operation. As the immediate result of the labours of the officers appointed for this purpose, a large number of cases (37,372) were investigated, in which children had failed to attend school for the full number of days (70 in each half-year) prescribed by law. Of these cases, 20,854 were found to be excusable on the various grounds of exemption specified in the Act; but the remaining 16,518 proved to be of such a nature as to subject the parents to legal penalties. In 1,855 cases, the blame lay primarily with the children who absented themselves from school without the permission or knowledge of their parents, though this fact in no way diminished parental responsibility. This excuse, however, was inapplicable to the vast majority of the cases (14,663), in which the children's neglect to attend school was directly traceable to parental greed or indifference. To profit by their young children's labour, or to save themselves the trouble of preparing them for school, seems to be the determining motive with parents of this class; and it is in such cases that the penalties imposed by law are most fully deserved. The remonstrances of the school attendance officers however appear to have been successful in inducing parents to send their children to school in most instances. It was found necessary, nevertheless, to prosecute defaulting parents in 1,271 cases, in 1,176 of which convictions were obtained. It would be premature, at this stage, to express an opinion as to the efficacy of the legal provision for promoting regularity of school attendance as a means of securing the elements of a good education for the mass of the community; but the figures above quoted render it a matter of certainty that those provisions will need to be applied with vigour, if they are to be rendered effectual for the attainment of the desired end.

The total number of children whose names appear on the school records—in other words, the “gross enrolment”—for the year was 189,141. This gives an increase of 12,172 upon the gross enrolment of 1881. From returns furnished by the teachers of schools under the Department, it appears that a considerable deduction must be made on account of “multiple enrolments”;—cases, that is to say, in which a child has been enrolled in the books of two or more schools during the year. In the previous Report a deduction of 17·43 per cent. was made on this ground, although it has been considered for some years past that from 11 to 12 per cent. was a nearer approximation to the truth. For 1882, returns were obtained from nearly all the schools in operation, and from these it is found that, if a deduction of 11·18 per cent. be made from the gross enrolment, the remainder will represent the actual number of children whose attendance is recorded in those schools.

This result has been arrived at by obtaining from the teachers reports showing what number of pupils enrolled by them in the course of the whole year had attended one, two, or three other schools within that period. On former occasions similar returns were furnished, but having reference to those pupils only who were present on a particular day; and much of the difference in the result is explicable on this ground, though doubtless it is in some measure due to the diminution of that desire on the part of parents for change which has always proved so detrimental to regular attendance.

The net enrolment, after making the necessary deduction of 11·18 per cent., is 167,989. Compared with the enrolment for 1881 (146,106), an increase of 21,883, or 14·9 per cent. will be noted.

The gross enrolment in Public Schools was 151,390; but as 16,896 required to be subtracted from that number on account of their attendance at other schools, the net enrolment was 134,494. Similarly it was found that in Provisional Schools the gross and net enrolments were respectively 4,742 and 4,335; and in Half-time Schools, 1,838 and 1,646. The percentage of multiple enrolments in Certified Denominational Schools was 12·06, which is slightly higher than the average, the gross enrolment being 29,714, and the net enrolment 26,129.

The net total enrolment, 167,989, may be taken to represent the whole number of children receiving instruction to some extent in the schools of the Department. Adding to this number the pupils taught in other schools and in other modes, so far as ascertainable, it will be found that 206,879 children were receiving some amount of instruction in 1882.

The following figures will render this statement clear:—

As

As regards the number of children estimated to be under instruction at home, it should be explained that the above statement is, from the nature of the case, a mere approximation, and is arrived at by assuming that the number of children so taught would increase in the ratio of the increase of population. The number of children taught in their homes, according to the Census of 1881, was 19,792. Since that time the population is computed to have increased 8·78 per cent.; and, adding that percentage to the number taught at home in 1881, the result is approximately 21,530 as the number so instructed in 1882.

There is, however, another element of uncertainty which affects the accuracy of the return of pupils attending Private Schools, as well as that of children receiving instruction at home. From what is known of the humbler class of Private Schools, which constitute the majority, it is tolerably certain that the attendance in them is, at least, as capricious as that in Public Schools, and there is good ground for believing that it is even much more irregular. In the absence of authentic information, however, any estimate of the degree of such irregularity and consequent correction of the number returned must be a mere matter of conjecture. Of the pupils enrolled in Private Schools, some may within the year have attended one or more other schools of the same class; or they may have attended Public Schools; or they may be included among those reported as under tuition at home. The like observation applies with equal force to the 21,530 children above mentioned as receiving home instruction; they may have been elsewhere enrolled, and returned two or three times. Under these circumstances, a deduction for multiple enrolments equal at least to that effected in the case of the Public Schools—it should probably be much larger—should be made from the number reported to be under instruction at home and in private schools. The numbers given in the preceding table under these heads are the net results after making the suggested deductions.

Even when all practicable reductions have been made, the general result appears too flattering to be entitled to full credence. That in any community, 206,879 out of a population of 817,468,—i.e. one in every four persons—can be under instruction in ordinary schools or at home seems well-nigh impossible, and such a phenomenon, it is believed, has never yet been observed in any country. This point cannot be definitely cleared up, however, until some more effective mode of obtaining complete educational statistics than that now existing has been devised and brought into operation.

It is necessary next to consider the question of school attendance in connection with the provisions of the law on that head. The Public Instruction Act requires that all children between the ages of six and fourteen years should be under instruction, in school or otherwise; and, as already shown in the table on page 4, the total number of children to which this provision applies is 160,257, being about one in five, or more accurately 19·6 of the whole population.

The

The following table exhibits the ages of children actually enrolled in the Public Schools, necessary corrections for multiple enrolments having been made:—

Of the total number receiving instruction in some form, 19,110 were estimated to be over the statutory age—the age up to which attendance at school, or upon some other means of education, is obligatory. Again, 27,884 were found to be below the statutory age; and the remainder, 159,885, is the number of that age reported to be under instruction. The principal facts of interest in this point of view may be thus stated:—

Number of children who legally should be under instruction	160,257
Estimated number of such children receiving instruction	159,885
Estimated number for whom accommodation is provided at public or private expense	168,617

Evening School pupils are necessarily excluded from these estimates, inasmuch as, by Regulation, persons below the statutory age are ineligible for admission to such schools.

It is impossible to avoid feeling a certain amount of satisfaction in regard to this statement. That one-fifth of the entire population should, to some extent, be under instruction is creditable alike to the Colony and to the system of Public Instruction in force. This pleasurable feeling, however, will be materially modified when the question of the length of time children are actually receiving instruction is considered. It will then be seen that at present, as in bygone years, the problem presenting the greatest difficulty is not so much the means of bringing children into the schools, as the influences by which they may be kept under instruction for a period sufficiently long to allow of their receiving a really useful education. With the exception of a few thousands, who will probably be reached within a year or two, all the children in the country are receiving some amount of instruction; a very limited proportion attend school for a sufficient length of time for that instruction to be effective. The following statistical information presents this fact in a clear light and in various aspects :—

The quarterly enrolments and average attendances for the year were as follows :—

	Quarterly Enrolment.	Average Attendance.	Percentage.	Appendices X, XI, XII, XIII, XIV, and XV.

December quarter	135,645	90,758·3	66·1
Average for the year	134,872	90,944·4	67·4

No complete explanation can be given of the fluctuation in the number of pupils enrolled, as shown in the foregoing statements, though the nature of the weather, the prevalence of sickness, and other casual circumstances, will account for it in some measure. It is, however, pleasing to find that the regularity of attendance has improved, the percentage having risen from 66 per cent. in 1881 to 67 per cent. in 1882. Still there is much left to be desired in this respect, even after every allowance has been made for drawbacks to regular attendance; and it is incumbent upon parents, teachers, and attendance officers in their several spheres to use their utmost endeavours to bring about further improvement.

In the following tables the number of pupils enrolled and the average attendances in each quarter during the last three years are exhibited :—

The principal facts in relation to school attendance during the same period are summed up in the subjoined table :—

Further illustrations of the brevity of the period children remain continuously under instruction in the Schools of the State may be found in the following statement :—

With a period of enrolment so short as that shown in the foregoing statement, it was obviously impossible that the time under instruction could be adequate for the purpose of obtaining a reasonable amount of education. Assuming 200 days to be a fair proportion of the year for a child to be in attendance at school, after making full allowance for sickness, vacations, occasional holidays, and every other hindrance to regularity, the following table reveals an amount of unjustifiable absence on the part of more than half the children enrolled in Day Schools that is much to be regretted :—

No. of days in attendance.	No. of pupils so attending.	Percentage of gross enrolment.
200 and upwards...	21,035	11·2

40 to 60	16,812	8·95
20 to 40	18,677	9·95
1 to 20	23,126	12·32

From the foregoing it will be seen that about the tenth part of the pupils enrolled attended the full number of school days, while, on the other hand, the attendance of even a greater number is limited to a period of less than twenty days. The period prescribed by law—140 days—was observed or exceeded by 73,833 pupils, 39·3 per cent. of the gross enrolment; and 113,851 attended for less than the legal number of days.

A somewhat more favourable result is obtained if the statistics of attendance be considered by half-years. This is clearly shown in the accompanying table :—

Attendance of day school pupils for period required by Statute—

Compared with the previous year, 1881, some improvement is manifest in last year as regards the number of pupils who were present at school on the legally required number of days (140), an increase of 16,108 being noted. Full details are contained in the table below :—

There is yet another aspect in which the question of irregular attendance may be viewed. As the classification of a school depends mainly upon the number of its pupils, any advance or decline in the attendance for the quarter produces an immediate effect on its rating. The following tables exhibit the changes which took place in this particular throughout the year :—The first, for Public, Half-time, and Certified

Certified Denominational Schools, which are subject to the same classification, and the second for Provisional Schools, which are classed in a different way.

In the following table, the changes in the rating of Provisional Schools are given for each quarter. The decrease in the total number observable in the last quarter's return is mainly due to the fact that 125 Provisional were converted into Public Schools at various times during the year.

From whatever point of view this question of irregular attendance may be regarded, it must be conceded that the result is eminently unsatisfactory, and that much remains to be accomplished before the object of the Public Instruction Act in this particular has been secured.

Before proceeding to any other subject, it may be desirable to state here some of the more prominent facts and conclusions bearing upon the attendance of children at school :—

1. The percentage of the population of the Colony enrolled in schools under the Department was ... 20·7
2. The percentage of the statutory school population so enrolled was 81·6
3. The percentage of the population of the Colony enrolled in private schools was 2·2
4. The percentage of the statutory school population so enrolled was 8·8
5. The percentage of the population of the Colony estimated to have been under instruction at home was 2·3
6. The percentage of the statutory school population estimated to be so instructed was... .. 9·2
7. The percentage of the population of the Colony estimated to have been under instruction in some form was 25·3
8. The percentage of the statutory school population estimated to have been under instruction in some form was 99·6

To prevent misconception with regard to these percentages, it will be necessary to consider them in connection with the explanations given on page 11 of this Report.

VI.—TEACHERS.

In a previous Report (1881) the number of teachers employed, their several ranks in the Service, and their emoluments were fully explained. It will therefore be unnecessary to enlarge upon this subject, further than to compare the numbers now in the Service with those those employed last year, and to note the changes in their classifications. The following table supplies this information up to the close of 1882 :—

While a limited number of teachers for ordinary schools are obtained from casual applicants for employment, the ranks of the classified teachers are as a rule recruited from the students who attend the Training School. For Provisional and the smallest Public Schools, teachers are procured from local applicants who, after undergoing some test of their educational qualifications and fitness in other respects, are placed in charge of such schools without being required to submit to the full course of preparation which it is the aim of the Training School to give.

Information as to the work of the Training School during 1882 is given in the Training Master's report, which is attached as an annex to that of the Chief Examiner. For the current year important changes in the arrangements have been made. Female students are now separately instructed, the Training College at Hurlstone having been prepared for their reception at the beginning of the year. They are now boarded, lodged, and taught in the Institution, which has been placed under the charge of Miss Caroline Mallett, the lady specially selected in England for the office. As will be seen on reference to the papers appended, Miss Mallett's testimonials are of a high class, and indicate special ability to discharge the important functions with which she has been entrusted. At present the accommodation at Hurlstone is limited to twenty-eight students, a number which seems seems ample to meet the requirements of the Service in providing for new schools and supplying the places of teachers who, for any cause, may retire from the profession. As regards male students, no immediate change is contemplated in the arrangements for their training, though the question of the erection of a suitable Training College for them has been for some years under consideration.

The examinations of teachers have been carried out on the plans described in the Report for 1881. A full account of these examinations is contained in the Report of the Chief Examiner, who concludes his remarks with the statement, that "whatever may have been the inconvenience suffered in particular cases through the operation of the more recent rules enforcing examination before promotion, the results have been, thus far, to excite a very general application to study among the teachers, and to produce sensible improvement in the work of the examinees." A similar expression of opinion is given by the Chief Inspector, who states that "notwithstanding the outcry raised by some persons against the rule which requires teachers to gain by examination certificates of classification corresponding to the rank of the schools under their charge, its general effect has been of a decidedly beneficial character. A large number of teachers have presented themselves at examination, and a reasonable proportion have succeeded in gaining higher certificates."

In the following table the results of the several examinations are exhibited in detail :—

VII.—INSPECTION.

THE Inspectoral Staff during 1882 included officers who were ranked as follows :—

Chief Inspector	1
Deputy Chief Inspector	1
Metropolitan District Inspector	1
District Inspectors	7
Inspectors (including Emergency Inspector) ...	16

These were distributed throughout the Colony as follows :—

Metropolitan District—269 Schools.

District Inspector, John M'Creddie, Sydney.

Inspectors, J. S. Jones, J. W. Allpass, Sydney.

„ J. H. Murray, Parramatta.

„ W. F. Thompson, Wollongong.

Maitland District—217 Schools.

District Inspector, T. Dwyer, Maitland.

Inspector, J. M'Cormack, Newcastle.

„ R. N. Morris, Muswellbrook.

Goulburn District—282 Schools.

District Inspector, W. Dwyer, Goulburn.

Inspector, G. O'Byrne, Mittagong.

„ J. Dawson, Braidwood.

„ J. Kevin, Bega.

Wagga Wagga District—233 Schools.

District Inspector, D. S. Hicks, Wagga Wagga.

Inspector, C. Hookins, Albury.

„ Lawford, Yass.

Bathurst District—204 Schools.

District Inspector, F. Bridges Bathurst.

Inspector, G. E. Long, Forbes.

Wellington District—158 Schools.

District Inspector, W. H. Johnson, Wellington.

Inspector, G. Thornton, Mudgee.

Armidale District—122 Schools.

District Inspector, J. D. Bradley, Armidale.

Inspector, J. Leslie Smith, Tamworth.

Grafton District—174 Schools.

District Inspector, J. M'Creddie, Grafton.

Inspector, M. Willis, Port Macquarie.

Notwithstanding the inadequacy of this staff to perform effectively all the multifarious duties demanded of them in addition to the proper work of inspection, the number of Schools inspected was 1,658, and the number of pupils examined was 91,985. Full information as to the results of the examination of scholars will be found in the report of the Chief Inspector, with the reports annexed thereto from the several Inspectors. The general results as regards the proficiency proficiency of the pupils examined are embodied in the following table, which also affords means of comparison with similar results obtained in the two previous years, 1879 and 1881.

It is necessary, for the right appreciation of the value of these results, that they should be considered in connection with previous remarks respecting the ages of children in attendance at school and the number of days annually they are under instruction. If children whose average age falls below ten years attend school but one-half of the usual number of school days in the year, it is obvious that their education, thus fitfully carried on, must be at the best but imperfect, and is liable to be entirely sacrificed. Under such circumstances, no blame for the failure should attach to the teachers or to the organization under which their labours are conducted, except so far as they may neglect to exercise to the fullest extent the power they possess of influencing parents to send their children to school more regularly and for longer periods. There is doubtless, in some cases, much to be urged on behalf of parents to whom the assistance of their children is a matter of vital necessity; but, on the other hand, it is a matter of common observation that this plea is advanced at times and in circumstances which do not justify the lengthened absence from school so frequently reported.

The standard of examination of pupils has been considerably raised during the last ten years, that is to say, the majority of the Inspectors, before awarding any mark, e.g. "Fair," for a child's answering or exercise, now exact a higher degree of proficiency than formerly. This difference does not make itself apparent in any comparison extending over a series of years. Some allowance for this fact must must therefore be made in regard to the results disclosed in the sub-joined table, in which a comparison is exhibited of the examination results of 1873 and 1882 :—

* Decrease.

By means of the returns before mentioned, which were obtained from teachers, it has been possible for the first time to give further information illustrative of the proficiency of the pupils and their rate of progress in learning. Where honestly carried out, the promotion of pupils from class to class is a reliable index of their advancement in their studies, and this point is usually regarded by Inspectors as in some measure corrective or confirmatory of their inferences as to the condition of a school as drawn from their examinations of the children. From this point of view, it is interesting to note that the number of pupils on the rolls of the First, or lowest, Class in the year was 92,429 (being considerably more than half the net enrolment). The numbers of pupils promoted from lower to higher classes were the following :—

From the First Class to the Second	18,037
Second Class to the Third	11,953
Third Class to the Fourth	4,664
Fourth Class to the Fifth	731

The Fifth is the highest class for which provision has been made, or that is necessary, in fact, in the Public Schools. A knowledge of the proportion of children promoted to the whole number in the several several classes would be of great assistance in forming an opinion as to the effectiveness of the instruction imparted. This information, however, is not available at present, except in the case of the First Class, in which, the total number number enrolled being 92,429 and the number promoted 18,037, it will be seen that the promotions amount to 19·5 per cent.

At the close of the year the different classes in the Day Schools were reported to include the number of pupils contained in the following table, which also exhibits the average ages of the pupils in each class and the average length of time they had been enrolled therein :—

Class.	No. of pupils enrolled.	Average age of pupils enrolled.	Average period of enrolment.
First	67,417	6·9 years.	3·4 quarters.
Second	33,633	10·1 „	3 „

VIII.—CONDITION OF EXISTING SCHOOL PREMISES.

The school property belonging to the Department already exceeds in value a million sterling, and is increasing, it may be said, daily. It seems desirable therefore to record, from time to time, the condition of property so valuable, and its suitability for the purposes it was intended to serve. To this end the following tables have been prepared :—

Table 1.—Sites occupied for school purposes.

Number of sites suitably fenced	703
Number of sites improved by tree-planting, &c.	216
Number of sites unfenced and unimproved ...	107

Table 2.—Suitability of school premises.

Number of school buildings tolerably suitable	75
Number of school buildings unsuitable, including tents	54

Table 3.—State of repair of school premises.

Number of school buildings in good repair ...	645
Number of school buildings not in good repair	119

The returns giving information on this head have not been furnished from all schools, and the above information is therefore incomplete.

Table 4.—Provision of teachers' residences and weathersheds.

Number of schools in which teachers' residences have been provided	657
Number of schools in which weathersheds have been provided	382

Table

Table 5.—Sufficiency of accommodation provided.

Number of schools in which provision is made for highest attendance of pupils	713
Number of schools in which accommodation is insufficient	87

It may be anticipated that, apart from any additions to the school property, its value will be augmented yearly by the natural growth of the Colony and increase of population. Inasmuch, however, as the average expenditure upon sites, buildings, and repairs during the last three years has been about £130,000, the value of the property of the Department will be added to annually by that sum, and consequently in seven years' time it will have risen to more than two millions. The care and oversight of so large an estate require a far more numerous staff than is now at the disposal of the Architect, the officer to whose charge the property is practically consigned; and it has become a question whether means should not be placed at his disposal, by which he may be enabled to exercise such control and inspection as will enable him to keep it in good order, and provide for alterations and enlargements as soon and as often as they are seen to be necessary.

IX.—LOCAL SUPERVISION.

Some further progress has been made in dividing the Colony into School Districts, and in proclaiming them as portions of the Colony in which the obligatory clauses of the Public Instruction Act may be enforced. Up to the end of 1882, seventy-eight such districts had been defined and constituted in accordance with the terms of the Act, being an increase of twenty-seven upon the previous year; and of these all had been brought under the operation of the Act as regards compulsory attendance at school. In general terms, the portions of the Colony so defined were—

1. The whole of the southern districts lying between the Pacific on the east, the Victorian boundary on the south, the Lachlan on the west, and the 34th parallel of south latitude on the north.
2. The country lying south of the Liverpool Range, and to the westward thereof.
3. The country lying north of the Liverpool Range, including Liverpool Plains and New England to the Queensland boundary.

In addition to these, smaller portions of the Colony that had been omitted from previous descriptions were also defined, so that no blanks might be left among the proclaimed districts. A detailed description of these districts will be found in papers hereto appended.

Public School Boards have been appointed in thirty-four School Districts. In a few instances the Boards appear to be working well, but an impression appears to prevail very generally that the districts are too large, and include too many schools to admit of the exercise by the Boards of such supervision as would be of practical value. Cases have occurred, however, in which the action of the Boards has proved beneficial in dealing with irregularities in connection with schools, and especially in granting exemption to poor parents from the obligation to pay school-fees imposed by section 11 of the Public Instruction Act.

X.—FINANCE.

The total sum available for carrying on the operations of the Department in 1882, as shown in the Accountant's statement of receipts and expenditure, was £648,810 9s. 2d., derived from the undermentioned sources:—

	£	s.	d.
Parliamentary vote	630,952	14	5
Balance from 1881	12,069	10	3
Proceeds of sales of land	5,788	4	6
	£648,810 9 2

It may be noted that the sales of land, yielding the sum of £5,788 4s. 6d., took place under the authority conferred by the 4th section of the Public Instruction Act, which provides that the Minister shall have power, subject to the Governor, to sell any lands held in trust for the maintenance of the several classes of schools enumerated in the Act.

A comparison of the annual amounts received since 1872 on account of the Parliamentary votes for Primary Schools is not without interest, as showing the rapid development of the school system, especially during the last few years.

Amounts received from the Treasury on account of Parliamentary votes for—

1875	180,000	0	0
1876	250,000	0	0
1877	280,000	0	0
1878	320,000	0	0
1880	367,033	0	0
1882	630,952	14	5

It is apparent from the foregoing that in ten years the Parliamentary vote received for primary schools purposes has increased five-fold; that in four years from 1873 it was doubled, and trebled in eight years. In nine years the vote was quadrupled.

In the following table the amounts of the Parliamentary votes are compared with the numbers of schools existing in the same years and with the mean quarterly attendance :—

Year.	Vote.	No. of Schools.	Mean quarterly Attendance.
1873	120,000	942	66,314
1874	120,000	990	69,745
1875	180,000	1,080	71,557
1876	250,000	1,073	76,587
1877	280,000	1,117	80,929
1878	320,000	1,187	89,000
1879	349,197	1,268	94,868
1880	367,033	1,357	111,277
1881	480,000	1,546	125,506
1882	630,952	1,658	134,872

By a simple calculation the following results are obtained respecting the annual votes received :—

Year.	Average amount per School.	Amount per Pupil in mean quarterly Attendance.
1873.....	127 7 9	1 16 2 $\frac{1}{4}$
1874.....	122 4 5 $\frac{1}{3}$	1 14 4 $\frac{3}{4}$
1875.....	174 15 1 $\frac{1}{2}$	2 10 3 $\frac{1}{5}$
1876.....	232 19 9 $\frac{3}{4}$	3 5 3 $\frac{1}{4}$
1877.....	250 13 5	3 9 2 $\frac{1}{4}$
1878.....	269 11 8 $\frac{3}{4}$	3 11 8 $\frac{3}{4}$
1879.....	275 7 10	3 13 7 $\frac{1}{4}$
1880.....	270 9 5 $\frac{1}{3}$	3 5 11 $\frac{1}{5}$
1881.....	310 9 6 $\frac{3}{4}$	3 16 5 $\frac{3}{4}$
1882.....	380 11 0	4 13 6

From this table it is apparent that in ten years the amount of the vote per school has increased threefold, and that the amounts per pupil for the first and last years of the ten are approximately in the ratio of two to five. Although these deductions are obvious, it is nevertheless necessary to make some allowance by way of set-off, on account of the school fees which, since 1st May, 1880, have been paid into the Consolidated Revenue. The net amount obtained in 1882, after deducting all costs of collection, was £51,312 5s. 11d.; and a further sum of £559 0s. 5d. was received by teachers of Evening Schools, and, in accordance with regulation, appropriated by them as their own property. The fees paid for instruction in advanced subjects in Superior Schools, amounting to £1,575 13s. 1d., also belong to the respective teachers, and not to the general Revenue.

The total expenditure for the year amounted to £618,800 8s. 9d., being £144,643 3s. 2d. in excess of the sum disbursed in 1881. So large an increase of expenditure as 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in a single year will not fail to attract attention; and the following table, while it exhibits the several heads of expenditure, furnishes the means of comparison with with the outlay of the previous year, and the particulars in which increase or decrease is to be noted :—

The greatest increases, it will be seen, occurred in the payments for teachers' salaries and for school sites, and the erection or renting and furnishing of school buildings; and they are fully accounted for by the growth of the system, as indicated by the demand for more teachers and for the erection of additional schoolrooms.

In the following table, the several amounts before enumerated are expressed as centesimal proportions of the whole expenditure for the year :—

The amount of local contributions towards expense of school buildings (£4,058 9s. 5d.) in 1873, as well as the fees paid in that year, have been reckoned in the foregoing calculation of the cost per child to parents.

XI.—GENERAL SUMMARY.

Notwithstanding the increase in the school population of the Colony, the means of education have been provided at a rate which, if continued, will at no distant date leave little to be desired in this respect. The net enrolment of pupils in schools under the Department has increased by 21,883, and the average daily attendance by 8,053. The accommodation already provided, together with that to be supplied during 1883, will furnish room for 148,670, the highest known attendance on any one day being 108,958. While a large proportion of the school population is under instruction in some form and to some extent, it must be acknowledged that the irregularity of attendance is so great, in the case of more than half the pupils enrolled, as to seriously detract from their prospect of obtaining a useful amount of education, although recourse has freely been had to the remedies provided to meet infractions of the law in this respect. The number of Teachers employed shows a considerable increase. A fair proportion of the whole body have shown, by examination, that they are fit for their present positions; and, in some instances, Teachers have, in the same way, proved their qualifications for even higher grades in the School Service. Various impediments to the full inspection of all the schools were experienced during the year. A very large amount of this duty was nevertheless performed, and the result of the examinations of the pupils showed a sensible advance in proficiency throughout the various subjects. Further progress has been made in extending the operation of the obligatory clauses of the Public Instruction Act to country districts, and in the appointment of Public School Boards. A considerable increase is shown in the expenditure for the year, chiefly on account of school accommodation and payments to Teachers. The average cost of a child's education, though considerably increased, has not, however, advanced in the same proportion. The expenditure has increased by 30·5 per cent.; the average cost per child in the least favourable aspect, by 18·8.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient servant,

G. H. REID.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS FOR PROVISIONAL SCHOOLS.

3. Aid may be granted towards the erection and furnishing of Provisional School Buildings, to be erected by the residents in the locality, on the following conditions, viz. :—
- (a) That the amount of aid shall be limited to £45, when, in the opinion of the Inspector, the average attendance will be from twelve to fifteen, and to £60 when the average attendance is likely to be eighteen, provided that such aid shall not in any case exceed two-thirds of the cost of the buildings, and that payment be not made until the building is erected, and reported by an Inspector or other officer of the Department of Public Instruction to be ready for occupation.
- (b) That in the case of Provisional Schools so aided, the buildings shall be placed on Crown Lands if central to the school population and otherwise suitable; if built on private land the right-of-way must be secured, and the property must be leased to the Minister of Public Instruction for a term of years as may be agreed upon at a peppercorn rent, the Minister having the right to remove the building before or at the expiration of that term.
- (c) That where the average attendance is expected to range from twelve to fifteen, the school-room shall measure 14 feet in length, 12 feet in width, and 9 feet in height to the wall-plates, and shall have a pitched roof, two windows, a boarded floor, and a fire-place. Two out-offices must also be provided, and the following articles of furniture supplied, viz. :—
- 2 desks, each 10 feet 6 inches long.
2 forms, each 10 feet 6 inches long.
1 book-press.
1 table, 3 feet by 2 feet.
1 chair.
- (d) That where the average attendance is expected to be eighteen, the schoolroom shall measure 17 feet in length, 14 feet in width, and 9 feet in height to the wall-plates, and shall have a pitched roof, two windows, a boarded floor, and a fire-place. Two out-offices must also be provided, and the following articles of furniture supplied, viz. :—
- 4 desks, each 7 feet 6 inches long.
4 forms, each 7 feet 6 inches long.
1 book-press.
1 table, 3 feet by 2 feet.
1 chair.
- (e) The applicants must state, on the usual form of application, the arrangements which they propose to make to erect and furnish the buildings in accordance with the preceding general conditions.

No. 1.

The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction to Heads of Denominations.

(Circular.)

Rev. Sir,

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 27 August, 1881.

I am directed by the Minister of Public Instruction to invite your attention to the sections of the Public Instruction Act of 1880 which have reference to the discontinuance of aid from the Consolidated Revenue to Certified Denominational Schools. In section 28 it is provided that such aid shall wholly cease after 31st December, 1882, and by the 32nd section, authority is given to the Minister to purchase the buildings of such Denominational Schools as may be discontinued.

2. In view of these provisions of the Act, Sir John Robertson would be glad to be informed, with as little delay as the circumstances admit of, whether it is your desire to offer for sale to the Government any of the Denominational School property under your control. Should it be your intention to take advantage of the provisions of the 32nd section, it will be necessary to furnish a description of the lands with the buildings thereupon which you desire to dispose of.

I have, &c.,
W. WILKINS,
Under-Secretary.

No. 2.

The Bishop of Newcastle to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Morpeth, 1 September, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of August 27th, in which inquiry is made as to the disposal of the Church of England School property in this Diocese.

I leave home to-morrow for a visitation tour in the northern part of the Diocese, and this may cause some little delay; but I will try to get such information as may enable me to give a satisfactory answer as soon as possible.

Seen.—JOHN R., 16/9/81.

I have, &c.,
J. D. NEWCASTLE.

No. 3.

The Right Rev. Dr. Torreggiani to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

My dear Sir,

Bishop's House, Armidale, 1 September, 1881.

In answer to your letter of the 27th August last, received to-day, I beg to say that it is not my desire nor the desire of the Roman Catholics of this Diocese to offer for sale to the Government any of our Denominational School property under our control.

I have, &c.,

+ ELZEAR TORREGGIANI, O.S.F.G.,
R.C. Bishop of Armidale.

No. 4.

The Rev. D. T. Walsh to The Minister of Public Instruction.

Honorable Sir,

Goulburn, 3 September, 1881.

In reply to your letter of the 27th ultimo (No. B 81-5,168) I am directed by the Right Rev. Dr. Lanigan to state that his Lordship does not consider Public Schools suitable for R.C. children, although through necessity but not from choice they are resorted to in some places. Further, the Right Rev. Dr. Lanigan expects that Catholics will sustain their schools at the expense of great exertions and great sacrifices, and hopes not to have any to offer for sale.

I have, &c.,

DENIS T. WALSH.

No. 5.

The Rev. G. Woolnough to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Ashfield, 3 September, 1881.

I am in receipt of your letter dated August 27th, and in reply have the honor to say, for the information of the Honorable the Minister for Public Instruction, that the Wesleyan Church has no school property to offer to the Government in terms of the Public Instruction Act, 1880.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE WOOLNOUGH,
President of Conference.

No. 6.

Dean Cowper to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Diocesan Registry, 8 September, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th August, informing me that the Minister of Public Instruction would be glad to be informed whether it is the desire of the Church authorities of the Diocese of Sydney to offer for sale to the Government any of the Denominational Schools under their control.

In reply, I have the honor to state, for the Minister's information, that we entertain no such desire; and further, that the loss of them would be attended with the most serious inconveniences in various places, greatly tending to paralyse our efforts for the social and moral, as well as the religious improvement of our people.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM M. COWPER.

No. 7.

The Bishop of Grafton and Armidale to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

(No. 81-5,170.)

Armidale, 12 September, 1881.

Subject:—Reply to inquiry regarding prospective sale of Church Lands for school purposes to the Minister for Education for Public School purposes.

Dear Sir,

In reply to yours of above number (of which I can give only such part as is written clearly at all), I beg to say that I shall not have any land or schools that I am aware of to offer to the Government for purchase.

I have, &c.,

JAS. F. TURNER,
Bishop of Grafton and Armidale.

No. 8.

The Rev. P. Hand to The Minister of Public Instruction.

Sir,

West Maitland, 14 September, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th ultimo (No. B 81-5,165) in reference to sections 28 and 32 of the Public Instruction Act of 1880.

In reply, I have the honor to inform you that it is not the intention of the Bishop of Maitland to take advantage of the provisions of the 32nd section of the Act.

I have, &c.,

The Rev. J. P. Byrne to The Minister of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Bathurst, 19 October, 1881.

I have the honor, by instruction of the Right Rev. Dr. Quinn, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th August (No. B 81-5,167), inquiring whether it is his desire to take advantage of the 32nd section of the Public Instruction Act of 1880.

His Lordship regrets that absence from the Colony prevented him from sending an earlier reply. While thanking you for your kind letter, he desires me to say that he does not intend offering any of the Denominational School property in his Diocese for sale to the Government.

I have, &c.,

JOSEPH P. BYRNE,

(B. 81-6,821.)

Rev. Sir,

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 7 November, 1881.

With reference to your letter dated _____, in which you inform me that it is not the intention of _____ to take advantage of the provisions of the 32nd section of the Public Instruction Act, I have now the honor, by direction of the Minister of Public Instruction, to request that you will be good enough to state whether the Bishop purposes to continue in operation after the close of 1882 all the schools under his oversight that are at present receiving aid from the public revenue; and, if not, whether he will be pleased to name those which he has decided to close.

2. The information now sought is required to enable the Minister to determine what amount of additional school accommodation must be provided by the end of year 1882 in localities in which Certified Denominational Schools now exist; and Sir John Robertson feels confident that the Bishop will not withhold information of so much consequence as regards the expenditure of public moneys.

I have, &c.,

W. WILKINS,

Under-Secretary.

The Right Rev. Dr. Torreggiani to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

My dear Sir,

Bishop's House, Armidale, 17 November, 1881.

In answer to your favour of the 7th instant, I beg to say that we purpose to continue in operation after the close of the year 1882 all the schools under our oversight that are at present receiving aid from the public revenue.

In this Diocese, however, we have only two which at present receive Government aid, viz., Grafton and Armidale. We intend to continue them at our own expense, unless the Government at some future time will think fit to allow us a certain capitation grant like in England on subjects of secular instruction only.

I have, &c.,

Bishop of Armidale.

The Rev. G. Woolnough to The Minister of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Ashfield, 18 November, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter (No. B. 81/6,917), and to say that I regret if any omission on my part has made it necessary for you to write me a second time. The reason why we have no school buildings to offer to your Department is that all our school buildings are used for Sunday-schools. At present it is not our intention so far as I am aware to continue any of the day schools at present being carried on by us under direction of the Department for Public Instruction. It may be that it will oblige your Department if for the present the use of our buildings may be retained. It is hardly necessary for me so say that we shall be glad to do anything in our power to help during the transition from the old state of things to the new.

I have, &c.,

Honourable Sir,

Goulburn, 22 November, 1881.

In reply to letter No. 81-6,918 I am directed by the Right Reverend Dr. Lanigan to say,—

1. That the Right Rev. Dr. Lanigan would in no case ask the Minister for Public Instruction to provide room in Public Schools for Roman Catholic children, as he considers such schools dangerous to faith and morals.

2. That he is making preparations, and hopes with the co-operation of his Catholic people to be able, when the aid from public funds will be withdrawn, to sustain as Catholic Schools those now receiving aid as certified Denominational Schools.

Sir,

Diocesan Registry, 2 December, 1881.

I have hitherto delayed my reply to your letter of the 7th ultimo, in which you requested that I would inform the Minister for Public Instruction whether we purpose to maintain in operation all the Church of England Schools now receiving aid from the State, after the year 1882. The reason of that delay has been my inability to answer the inquiry in any satisfactory manner.

I write to say that I have been since endeavouring to obtain the requisite information, and hope in a very few days to be able to give a definite answer.

Regretting that so long a time has elapsed without my being able to afford the information sought,

I have, &c.,

The Rev. P. Hand to The Under-Secretary of Public Instruction.

Sir,

West Maitland, 6 December, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 7th ultimo (No. B 81-6,821) in reference to the continuation after the end of the year 1882, of the Certified Denominational Schools that are under the control of Right Rev. Dr. Murray. I have every desire to give the Minister of Education all the information possible, and hence the time I have allowed to elapse before replying to your letter. But, if I understand your letter correctly, it seems to be the intention of the Minister to limit his preparations for the year 1883 to those children who are unprovided for by the Bishop, or other supporters of Denominational Education in the Diocese. It would, therefore, be a very serious matter for me to promise, or to say that we are prepared, to keep all our present schools open after the grant in aid shall be withdrawn. All I can say then at present, is that I believe the Bishop hopes to keep all these schools open or nearly all. I may, perhaps add, that I believe his Lordship will endeavour to do much more than keeping the present schools open, but whether he will be in a position to do so at the end of 1882 or not I cannot say.

Regretting that I cannot give you more definite information,—

I have, &c.,

Subject:—Reply to application concerning closing of Denominational Schools after the expiration of the year 1882.

Dear Sir,

Armidale, 7 February, 1882.

In reply to a letter dated November 7th, 1881, in which I am asked to state whether such Denominational Schools as are at present in existence in our diocese will be continued as such without the aid now afforded them by the State after the expiration of this year, I regret to say that I see no prospect of any such schools continuing in our diocese when the Government aid is withdrawn.

I have, &c.,

JAS. F. TURNER,

Bishop of Grafton and Armidale.

No. 17.

Dean Cowper to The Minister of Public Instruction.

Sir,

Diocesan Registry, 16 February, 1882.

Adverting to the inquiry made in your letter addressed to me some time ago, inquiring what schools of the Church of England now receiving aid from the State were likely to be continued after that aid was withdrawn, and stating that this inquiry was made for the purpose of enabling you to judge what accommodation it would be requisite to provide for school purposes, I have now the honor to reply as follows:—

1. Considerable difficulty has existed with reference to ascertaining the intentions of those who are interested in our schools and the probabilities of their being upheld.

2. So far as I have been able to gather those intentions I have reason to believe that, while many of the schools in country districts will be discontinued at the end of the present year, it is probable that the following schools will be maintained in some form upon a voluntary basis—efforts will at least be made for this purpose—viz.:—

St. Philip's

St. Paul's

St. John's, Darlinghurst

St. Barnabas's

St. Stephen's, Newtown

St. John's, Bishopthorpe

St. Mark's, Darling Point

St. James'

St. Andrew's

St. John's, Parramatta

St. Thomas's, North Shore.

3. But while conveying to you this information upon public grounds, I cannot refrain from expressing my regret that we should be compelled by circumstances to give up any of our schools. Our views are not changed upon the question of religious education from those for which the Church of England in this diocese has contended for more than forty years; and I trust the time may again come when those views will be acknowledged to be more entitled to consideration at the hands of the State than they are at the present hour.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM M. COWPER.

Repairs and other works necessary for the preservation of the buildings and the comfort and convenience of the scholars and teachers have been effected in 404 cases at an aggregate cost of £27,944 8s. 2d.

OUTLAY.

The payments certified for by me during the year on account of works completed and in progress amount to £140,887 11s. 8d.

The cost of the Department for salaries, travelling expenses, and office requisites, £6,396 6s. 4d.

The cost of supervision has therefore been $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the outlay, but as the work is constantly increasing, and in view of the much larger amount of work initiated in 1882 than in the previous year, the percentage of cost of supervision could be fairly calculated at not more than $\frac{3}{4}$ ths of that rate, which, taking into account the smallness of many of the contracts, the widely separated positions of the buildings, and the labour and expense attending inspection and reports which do not lead to any outlay, I am entitled to consider as low as is compatible with efficiency.

PLANS, &C.

When the Department of Public Instruction superseded the Council of Education, on the passing of the Public Instruction Act in 1880, the work of erecting schools which had been for some years carried out by Mr. G. A. Mansfield under an arrangement with the Council, was taken out of his hands, and in June of that year, the office of "Architect for Public Schools" was instituted and the Department under my charge took over the work.

The building of schools, and in fact all the architectural work of the Department had been virtually at a standstill so far as the initiation of new work was concerned for the first half of the year 1880. I therefore, on taking office, found a large accumulation of arrears.

The change of system introduced under the new Act increased the number of applications for new schools greatly, and I then found that the staff I had imagined would be large enough to do the work was greatly overtasked, and in spite of all our efforts to meet the wants of the public, the work got to some extent into arrears. The difficulty of keeping pace with the work was much increased by the fact that the lithograph plans which had been used by my predecessor were, from the pressure of the limited means at his disposal, found to be designed on a scale inadequate to the necessities of the service. The school-rooms were fairly suitable to the number of scholars they were designed to accommodate, though in many cases they did not, even when first erected, fully meet the wants of the districts in which they were built, but the residences had been so cut down in the endeavour to extend the benefits of education beyond the limits which could be fairly covered by the funds at the disposal of the Council, that they were in many cases, especially in the hotter parts of the interior, quite unfit for occupation by married teachers with families.

To render our school buildings more worthy of the purpose they have to serve, I was at once desirous of designing, and did design, new plans for the smaller classes of schools, but from the great pressure of work thrown upon my staff by the causes above indicated, it was not till the beginning of last year that I was able to get these plans lithographed and the necessary specifications printed.

These plans are now in use for all schools from the 10th to the 6th class inclusive, except in cases in which from the uncertain nature of the attendance, it is necessary to reduce the expenditure to the lowest possible limit, when special plans of inexpensive buildings are designed.

In all schools above the 6th class it is impossible to use a stereotyped form of plan to advantage, each place having to be designed to take advantage of peculiarities of the site.

During the year, 1,351 drawings of different kinds and 1,118 specifications have been prepared.

INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS AND WORKS IN PROGRESS.

The inspection of new buildings and repairs, &c., is performed by the Clerks of Works as efficiently as their number and the position of the works, scattered as they are over the whole length and breadth of the Colony, will permit, and I have no reason to doubt that the work has been generally faithfully done and the money judiciously expended; but I regret my inability to have such a regular periodical inspection made of all the buildings under my charge as would keep me always informed of the material state of every building vested in the Department.

I believe that an increase in the number of Clerks of Works is desirable and would be economical. If my staff of Inspecting Officers were increased by the addition of five or six Clerks of Works at about £200 a year each, the outlay would enable me to have every school building in the Colony examined and reported on once a year, and such repairs as were found necessary at once effected. The buildings would thus be kept in a more efficient state, and the cost of repairs would, I am sure, be less than it now is.

OFFICE WORK.

The correspondence with the Minister, with my own officers in the country, and with the public increases as a natural sequence to the increase of the professional work of the Department. This year the aggregate of all documents received and despatched is, as shown by the registers and letter-books, over 12,000, and 633 sets of contract documents have been prepared.

The above work has given more than sufficient occupation to the clerks, four in number, by whom it has been performed.

THE CLERICAL AND PROFESSIONAL STAFF.

I am happy to be able to report generally that the officers under my charge are diligent and capable. That they are not equal in number to the work of the office, and that in several cases they are inadequately remunerated for the services they perform, are facts which I have already submitted to the Minister in laying before him my proposals for the Estimates. I need therefore say no more than to express a hope that my representations may have effect when the Estimates for 1884 are under consideration.

I have, &c.,

WILLM. E. KEMP,

Architect for Public Schools.

APPENDIX IX.

PRINCIPAL SCHOOL ATTENDANCE OFFICER'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit, for the information of the Minister, my report for the year 1882 upon the working of the 20th and 21st clauses of the Public Instruction Act of 1880.

Public sentiment is so strongly in favour of the legal prevention of illiteracy that the administration of the compulsory provisions of the Act is gradually becoming less difficult. Instead, however, of falling back upon the law to do the whole of the work, argument, persuasion, and conciliation have been the main reliance; instead of threatening prosecution, the attendance officers have, as friends of education, conferred courteously with the people. Prosecution has been resorted to in those cases only where parental pride or authority failed to cause the child to attend school, or where parental indifference or cupidity barred the way to it. This mode of carrying out the intentions of the Legislature has succeeded in enlisting popular sympathy and support and has accomplished great good, by bringing into school many children who would otherwise have been absentees, and by improving the attendance of many who formerly attended very irregularly. The attendance has improved so much that it is confidently expected there will, for the last half of the year, be upwards of 100 schools without one case of defaulting attendance. Notwithstanding the success already achieved, the full benefit of the compulsory clauses will not be reaped without constant vigilance on the part of the attendance officers, whose usefulness would be greater if the law gave them more power.

At the close of the year there were seventy-eight Public School Districts proclaimed as places where the obligatory attendance of children at school may be enforced. These districts extend from the metropolis to Bega, Bombala, and Albury, on the south; to Deniliquin, Moama, and Balranald, on the south-west; to Dubbo, on the west; to Gunnedah, on the north-west; and to Tenterfield and Casino, on the north.

Of the proclaimed districts, sixty were under the charge of attendance officers. These had their head-quarters at Sydney, Ashfield, Liverpool, St. Leonards, Parramatta, Camden, Windsor, Newcastle, Wallsend, Raymond Terrace, Maitland, Singleton, Scone, Mittagong, Kiama, Nowra, Braidwood, Goulburn, Lithgow, Bathurst, Orange, Rylstone, Mudgee, Dubbo, Gosford, Grafton, Taree, Kempsey, Casino, Albury, Wagga Wagga, Yass, Burrowa, and Gundagai.

During the year six officers resigned and one died. Seventeen officers were appointed in May, and after a course of instruction and training, extending over a period of six weeks, were placed in charge of districts. The staff at the end of the year comprised thirty-eight officers, each in charge of one, two, or three districts, according to requirements. In consequence of necessary changes, some of the officers were but a short time in charge of the districts in which they were located at the end of the year.

Suitable registers were supplied to each attendance officer. These registers comprise (1) a diary-book, in which the work done each day must be entered clearly and in order of performance; (2) weekly report forms, for the purpose of giving a summary of the week's work; (3) printed blank forms, on which all legal or other information required must be detailed in certain cases. The diary-book is inspected at short intervals, and is liable to be sent for by the Principal Attendance Officer without notice; the weekly report is forwarded to the head office of the branch at the close of every week, for examination, and becomes a record of the office; the printed forms, used to contain detailed information, are required whenever it is considered necessary to take a case into Court, as no prosecution can take place without the special permission of the Minister, to whom must be submitted the whole of the particulars in every case.

The attendance officers are, as a rule, well qualified for their duties, and of this the great success which has crowned their labours may be taken as proof. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the earnestness and intelligence with which they have carried out my instructions. They have in nearly every instance been well received by parents and guardians, and the people generally have given them the most cordial support.

During the year, 37,372 cases of presumed default were investigated by the school attendance officers. Of this number, 13,573 were in the Metropolitan districts, and 23,799 in the country districts. These cases of supposed default were observed personally by the officers, reported officially by teachers, or reported privately to the officer by persons who take an interest in the education of the young.

In 20,854 cases the default was only apparent: 4,591 children made up the required attendance at two or more schools, or were taught at home; 10,288 were sick, or infirm, or reasonably liable to infection; and in 5,975 cases the alleged cause of absence was more or less reasonable. In the last number are included (1) new residents, (2) children who left the district before the end of the half-year, (3) visitors for a short period, (4) children under or over school age, (5) those resident over school distance, (6) those educated up to the standard, (7) children unable to make up the required attendance through the opening or the closing of a school in the middle of a half-year, (8) those unable to attend through severe illness in a family or through death.

In 16,518 cases the default was ascertained beyond doubt: 1,855 were cases of truancy, and in 14,663 cases the children were sent out to work or were allowed to stay at home to help or to play. In some cases the truancy was habitual, the parents having little or no control over the children; in many cases the parents heard of it for the first time from the attendance officers.

Prosecutions were authorized in 1,271 cases: of this number 569 were in the metropolitan, and 702 in the country districts. The result was, 1,176 convictions, 61 withdrawals, and 34 dismissals. These were the worst cases, but many bad ones had to remain unpunished because it was impossible at the time to obtain sufficient evidence to ensure conviction, as in every particular the onus of proof lies with the attendance officer. No action was taken in those cases where the defaulters, after being spoken to, made reasonable efforts to comply with the law.

By the visits of the attendance officers, parents were induced to send their children to school in 3,381 cases: of these 1,256 were in the metropolitan districts, and 2,125 in the country districts. Among the children thus caused to attend school, 1,689 had not been to school for a considerable period, six months or more, or not at all.

The attendance officers, who are also school payments officers, collected arrears of school fees amounting to £203 4s. 3d. A large amount of arrears was also paid direct to the teachers in consequence of the visits of officers to parents and guardians. No case of school-fee arrears was taken into Court. In many cases it was arranged to pay these debts by small instalments. Where the case was a hard one, cancellation of the debt was recommended. That part of the officers' work relating to school fees was only entered upon in the last quarter of the year.

Certificates authorizing exemption from payment of school fees were granted in 924 cases. These cases were fully investigated and reported upon previous to the issue of certificates. Some of the applications were from persons well able to pay school fees. A few whose poverty and distress came under the notice of the officers declined to apply for free education lest their children should be slighted on that account.

Principal S.A. Officer.

APPENDIX XVI.

CHIEF EXAMINER'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

THE EXAMINATIONS OF THIS YEAR EMBRACED :—

1. The Examination of Applicants for the office of Pupil-teacher.
2. The Examination of Pupil-teachers of all grades.
3. The Examination of Applicants (male and female) for admission to the Training School.
4. The Examination and Classification of Students in the Training Department.
5. The Examination of Applicants for employment under the Department.
6. The Examination of Applicants for Classification as Teachers.
7. The Examination of Appointed Teachers.

Total number of examinations revised—2,138.

I.—APPLICANTS FOR THE OFFICE OF PUPIL-TEACHER.

Compared with last year the number of examinations falling under this head has decreased. This has arisen, not from any diminution in the number of applications, but from the fact that the Departmental demand and means of providing employment for the applicants were more limited. In fact, the lists of the successful Examinees of the previous year had not been exhausted; and hence it was deemed inexpedient to examine fresh applicants, while those already qualified remained unappointed. Of boys, the supply is rarely excessive; but it is otherwise with girls. At present, there are not less than 160 new applications for examination in the hands of the officers; and more than half of these come from Sydney and its suburbs.

2. Experience has shown that it is undesirable to hold these examinations too long before appointments can be given; for as soon as it is known that pupils have passed the prescribed examinations satisfactorily many of them are withdrawn from school, as if they had sufficient instruction for the time at least. The period intervening between examination and appointment is not usually spent in study, certainly not in continuation of school studies. As a necessary consequence, a retrogression takes place proportioned to the time of absence from instruction; and the effects are seen in the first examination held after appointment.

3. But, although the number examined was smaller than before, the results in point of attainments have not been more than satisfactory than in 1881, as will be seen from the following :—

Examined in Sydney	Total, 118.....	Eligible, 39.....	Ineligible, 79.
Examined in Country Districts.....	Total, 271.....	Eligible, 119.....	Ineligible, 152.

Totals	389	Eligible, 153	Ineligible, 231

4. It will thus appear that more than half did not satisfy the standards. We still find an absence of careful study and a want of due preparation for the work on which it is proposed to enter.

5. Appointments to the office of Pupil-teacher are always made on the understanding that Pupil-teachers intend to adopt the profession of Teacher in the Schools of the Colony—that the position will be held for a period varying from three to four years, and that, at the end of this time, they will apply for admission to the Public Training School, in order to complete their professional education. Judging however by the number who resign or withdraw before the close of their apprenticeship, it is to be feared that many enter who have no serious intention of following up the teaching profession; but whether these resignations may be traced to a want of due consideration at the outset, or whether they are influenced by the obligation, imposed on entering the Training School, to serve for three years in any locality to which the Minister may see fit to appoint them, is somewhat uncertain.

6. The examination for applicants for the office of Pupil-teacher embraces—Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, Dictation, Elementary Drawing, and Music; and lastly, their apparent Aptitude for Teaching.

7. A specimen of the examination papers used in the case of these Applicants is given in Annex A.

II.—PUPIL-TEACHERS.

In the Report for 1881 I stated somewhat fully the position, duties, responsibilities, and claims of the Pupil-teachers. It is therefore undesirable to repeat what has been already advanced. The following will show the results of examination for the year :—

Promoted from Class IV to Class III.....	192	Failed.....	95	Total.....	287
" " " III " II.....	101	" 	51	" 	152
" " " II " I.....	92	" 	36	" 	128
" " " I " Training	60	" 	26	" 	86
Totals.....	Promoted ... 445	Failed ...	208	Total.....	653

2. Specimens of the examination papers employed will be found in Annexes B, C, D, and E.

3. The subjects dealt with are—Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, Dictation, Composition, Art of Teaching, Vocal Music, Drawing, Euclid, Algebra, Latin, with French and Needle-work for females. To these must be added Practical Skill, as tested by the results of their Teaching.

4. Although there are not a few young men and women of high promise among the ranks of the Pupil-teachers, yet, looking at the examinations as a whole, I fail to discover much improvement upon the results of 1881. All First-class Pupil-teachers are expected at the final examination to pass into the Training School. Should they not succeed in entering the Upper Class it is at least expected they will gain access to the Lower. Such, however, has not been attained in the case of 26, and the range of failure in the other Classes is far too great. Decidedly the worst subjects are Euclid, Algebra, Latin, French, Drawing, and Music. Considering that the course of instruction is clearly defined, that one hour daily is expected to be devoted to the instruction of these Pupil-teachers, that they are required to devote a portion of each evening to study (as many no doubt do), and that, in the metropolis at least, efforts are made, through the agency of the Saturday Classes, to aid their studies, it is not easy to understand why better results are not secured. The results of examination tend to show that, as a rule, the Pupil-teachers of the Country Districts do better than those of Sydney, yet it is difficult to see why such should be the case.

5. The Pupil-teacher system has been of immense benefit to the cause of Education in this Colony. It was established far back—for we find it existing in 1851. Starting from small beginnings, with a few highly qualified young persons of both sexes, it has steadily advanced both in public favour and usefulness, until it now numbers at least 550 members. Within the past thirty years, it has not only produced a goodly number of the ablest Teachers in the Service; but it has helped largely to extend the means of Public Instruction throughout the Colony. In fact, it is difficult to conceive how the late Board of National Education and the Council of Education could have achieved the widespread and beneficial results which characterised their administration, without the aid of this valuable Branch of the profession. Judging, however, by the Reports received from time to time, the sources from which the Pupil-teachers of the present day are drawn, must be tending to deterioration physically. It would almost appear that there is something defective either in the constitutions or in the home-training of the applicants. Many in fact resign before gaining the Second Class; and yet it might be shown that the duties are less exhausting now than in the former time.

III.—

III.—APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO THE TRAINING SCHOOL.

One Examination only, for persons not in the Service, was held during 1882, and even this, falling in June, was restricted to males, because the number of female Pupil-teachers, whose time had expired in that month, left no room in the Training School for female strangers. Again, in December the number of Pupil-teachers of both sexes, as well as of Provisional School Teachers within the Department, seeking admission, more than sufficed to fill all the available space in the Training School. Indeed, eight of the First Class Pupil-teachers, and five Small School Teachers were unable to gain admission. No examination of Strangers was therefore held in December. Of those examined in June, the following are the results:—Passed, 19; Failed, 4; Total, 23.

2. These candidates were examined in Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, Dictation, Composition, Elementary Drawing, Music, and Aptitude for Teaching. In the case of Upper Class Students—Euclid, Algebra, Latin, French, and Needlework were added, as well as Practical Skill. Although up to the present time, strangers have always been received into the Training School when circumstances warranted, still, the step has been felt to be attended with a certain degree of risk, owing to the more or less imperfect knowledge possessed of their antecedents. Pupil-teachers and Country Teachers who have served within the system, from three to five years, are tolerably well known; their faults and their virtues are noted; and it is always considered much more safe to deal with them than with untried and comparatively unknown individuals, who often enter the Service when everything else has failed, have no fixed purpose, have no special call to the Teacher's office, are difficult to manage, and who not unfrequently depart as soon as the term of service expires, or opportunity offers. No doubt the Department does, from this source, occasionally obtain good men and women; but the Pupil-teachers who have served their time, and performed their duties faithfully, are necessarily regarded as having the first claim upon the Training School, and after them the Classified Country Teachers in need of Training. Next in order, come the Unclassified, and those in charge of Provisional Schools, who have, after three years service, given promise of becoming useful Teachers, such persons in short as it would be profitable for the Department to train.

3. Examples of the Questions used in this connection will be found in Annexes F and G.

IV.—STUDENTS IN THE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Sixty-two Students passed out of the Training School in 1882. This is a lower rate than that of 1881—but 29 remained in, at the 31st of December, to complete their full Training Course of twelve months, namely, 9 males and 20 females of the Highest Class, the intention being to transfer the latter from Fort-street to the new Training School for Female Students at Ashfield. Originally the term of Training was 1 month only; but the Board of National Education some time before their retirement from office extended the term to 3 months. Their successors, the late Council of Education, made a further extension of the term to 6 months; and, until last June, this was the period of its duration for both sexes. For the Teachers who occupy the lower section, and who never received a higher grade than Class III, Section A, this time was ample; at least, it was as much as their circumstances at the time required. Being to a large extent persons of limited education, who had no previous experience in teaching, they received during this period quite as much information, both within the domain of knowledge and professional skill, as they could turn to profitable account at the outset. Experience has shown that it is better to allow these students, after such a course as that mentioned, to go out to the work of actual teaching, rather than unduly protract the training. They are thus enabled to apply the knowledge they have gained, to work out the best results they can, to adapt where they cannot adopt; and, if with their strengthened powers of observation along with a few years study and experience, they desire further Training, they are then in a more favourable position to profit by the higher course open to them. It is however, very different with the students of the Upper Class. These are mostly composed of Pupil-teachers who have served from three to five years, and who in addition to a systematic course of study, embracing Mathematics, Latin, French, etc., have had considerable experience in School Management. These are not only prepared for further mental development, but are also in a position to study the application of higher methods, embracing a knowledge of the human mind. Hence the course of training for them has been extended to twelve months. Some of the Home Institutions employ two years in this work; and it may be necessary hereafter to adopt this course here. For the present, however, the result of the extension just spoken of, will have to be observed and tested, before a further advance is recommended.

2. All students on entering training must be not less than twenty-one years old, unless they have previously been Pupil-teachers and have served full time with satisfaction to the Department. As a rule, the latter are rarely under twenty; but there are cases in which some pass the necessary Examinations before they reach that age. I do not know that this is an advantage. I do not see that much benefit is gained by the passing of Pupil-teachers through their preliminary course in three years, instead of serving the regular period of four. Very frequently this feat is accomplished by spasmodic efforts, perhaps from an undue haste to become full Assistant Teachers. Those who do, in this manner, pass the literary portion of their examination, including Attainments and Practical Skill, do not always satisfy the Medical Examiner. He complains of badly developed chests, frames not well nourished, and altogether a want of robustness, vigour, and healthy development. The admission of some, indeed, has to be deferred for months in order to observe the effect of Training, before a final decision can be arrived at. From what I have seen of the girls when they first come up for examination as Pupil-teachers—the material, through increasing in quantity is declining in quality—I believe that many of them have no home-training fitted to develop their muscular powers; they are not subjected to such a course of exercise as would be calculated to promote a healthy state of the system; and, under the strain of teaching, they do not improve. Something might be done by fixing the age at which female applicants for the office of Pupil-teacher should be admitted, at not less than sixteen years. The constitution at this age would be less liable to feel the effects of continuous labour than at thirteen or fourteen.

3. The Candidates issuing from the Training School during 1882, have therefore been the students of the Upper and Lower Classes for the first half-year, and those of the Lower Class only, for the second Session of the year.

4. The results are:—

Recommended for Class III, Section C.....	10
Do. do. III, do. B.....	15
Do. do. III, do. A.....	16
Do. do. II, do. B.....	19
Do. do. II, do. A.....	2

Total.....62

5. Eight students, of the first session of the year (Lower Class), failed to pass a satisfactory examination in Drill; and in the case of three males the Certificate of Classification is still withheld.

6. Of the male and female students now continuing their Training Course, but more especially the latter, I expect good results. They are of more than ordinary promise; and the diligence shewn by them during the first six months of training, leads me to have high hopes as to their future usefulness and success.

7. The questions used in connection with the examination of these students will be found in Annexes H and I.

8. The subjects of instruction include Reading, Writing, Arithmetic (Theory and Practice), Grammar (Analysis, Composition, and Paraphrase), Geography (Physical and Descriptive), Art of Teaching, Euclid, Algebra, Mensuration, Trigonometry, English Literature, Latin, French, Drawing, Music, Domestic Economy, Drill, and Calisthenics. To these may be added instruction in Practical Teaching.

9. The duties of the Training Institution are regulated as usual by Time-tables and Programmes showing the course to be pursued in each subject.

10. I cannot say that I am satisfied with the progress of those students of the last Session who have gained the lowest grade only, (Class III, Section C). Most of them were Teachers of Small Schools sent up to be, by a course of training, better fitted for their duties; and it must be allowed that their knowledge on entering was of a very limited character. Still, keeping in view the fact that they had six months study and every opportunity of improvement, we should have had better results in their case.

11. Apart from this drawback, the conduct of the students has been all that could be desired. I have heard very few complaints—none as regards the females; and the Training Masters speak highly of their obedience, attention, and respectfulness while in training.

12. The report of the Training Master is given in Annex N.

V.—APPLICANTS FOR EMPLOYMENT AS TEACHERS.

This section includes applicants for employment from within the Colony. It also includes applicants from Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, New Zealand, America, and Europe. Sixty of these applicants have been dealt with during the year with the following results:—

Recommended for Examination and Classification.....	14
" for trial in Provisional Schools	15
" for Examination with a view to admission to the Training School	3
Applications withdrawn	4
Not eligible for employment	24
Total	60

2. Next to the Colony, the United Kingdom and Ireland sent the largest share of applicants. Nearly every month some arrive in quest of employment, all apparently under the impression that New South Wales affords an unlimited field for their operations, and that they have only to apply to be immediately appointed on the most favourable conditions. It is needless to say that their wishes cannot, as a rule, be gratified. Except for highly qualified Teachers, or for newly established schools, few vacancies remain open, because the ranks of the Pupil-teachers, the Training School, and intending Teachers from within the Colony supply nine-tenths of the existing demand, at least for all the middle grade Schools. Furthermore, the withdrawal of State aid from Denominational Schools, in December, has left a large body of Teachers, Assistants, and Pupil-teachers to be provided with new situations, and these naturally have superior claims to those who are unknown or untried. Apart, however, from this, the supply from abroad is too precarious to be depended upon, either for quality or otherwise. A few reliable men appear now and then; but many seek employment in the Department to meet immediate wants, and leave as soon as more congenial occupation can be found.

VI.—PROBATIONERS AND TEACHERS UNCLASSIFIED.

The number of Examinations in this section was 290, showing a considerable increase upon the corresponding number of last year.

2. The details are:—

Do. do. III, do. A	20
Do. do. II, do. A	3
Do. do. I, do. B	1

3. Specimens of the Examination Questions used will be found in Annex J.

4. It will thus be seen that 172 succeeded in gaining classification. These results are better than the corresponding ones of 1881; but still there is great room for improvement, as may be inferred from various peculiarities in the papers of Examinees.

5. In view of what has been advanced relative to the claims of certain Teachers who have undergone examination, I feel that this Report would be incomplete were I to refrain from giving examples, from the papers themselves, showing the treatment of various subjects.

6. Grammar, for instance, is one that appears to considerable disadvantage, especially when the subject is viewed in a "common sense" light. Thus many Teachers show a fair acquaintance with the laws of Parsing and Analysis, but when asked to re-arrange a poetical extract in simple prose order, they fail to give a rational version of it. The results, however, are worse when they are requested to translate the passage—give its "substance" in their own words, or put its meaning into plain "English."

7. A few examples will suffice to show the construction put upon a passage recently given as a Grammatical Exercise:—

"What softened views thy magic glass reveals,
When o'er the landscape Time's meek Twilight steals,
As, when in-ocean sinks the orb of day,
Long on the wave reflected lustres play,
Thy tempered gleams of happiness resigned,
Glance on the darkened mirror of the mind.
The school's lone porch with reverend mosses gray,
Just tells the pensive pilgrim where it lay:
Mute is the bell that rung at peep of dawn
Quickening my truant feet across the lawn."

This passage is from Rogers' "Pleasures of Memory"; and its meaning should be at once apparent—to anyone professing to teach.

8. Here are some examples of paraphrase of the passage:—

- "The magnifying glass shows sights when the sun sets that throws back the reflection of the water; and at this time we dismiss the spark of pleasure, and look upon the shaddowed portion of the brain. The school's deserted entrance, covered with holy creepers, informs the weary wanderer where it is," &c.
- "When times humble evening creeps o'er the horizon, thy magic glass bring back such melted scenes as the orb of day departs into ocean reflected sparkles recreate long on the billows," &c.
- "What dim sights the telescope discloses after sunset when the reduced light of the sun steals across the scenery. Like when on the Sea the reflected light shines on the waves after sunset thy scenes bring back to the mind memories of past happiness gone past."

9. Occasionally the paraphrase will consist of a mere change of some words here and there for other words, without altering in any appreciable sense the general structure; but these are frequently out of place, and have even a ludicrous effect. The orb of day is stated to be the "sphere of light"; the bell is a "gong which rung"; the reverend mosses are made "respected mosses"; Time's meek twilight is assumed to be "the brightest star."

10. One is naturally led to suppose that such Teachers cannot be in the habit of reading Standard Authors to advantage.

11. In reply to the requirements of the following—Explain briefly the particular function or office of each word in the line :—

"Mute is the bell that rung at peep of dawn," very few rational answers were given ; and yet the Examinees appeared to be accustomed to the exercise of Parsing with discrimination. Some wrote—"I do not understand what is meant here."

12. Again, in comparing the adjective "noble" the Examiners find the following, among other answers equally to the point :—

- (a) "Comparative—noble, noble.
Superlative—nobler, more noble.
Imperative—noblest, more nobler."
(b) "Form (1.)—Noble, nobler, noblest.
Form (2.)—Much noble, more noble, most noble.
Form (3.)—Noble, very noble, most noble."

Another Examinee says—"I haven't done this because I can't."

13. In reference to the question—"Some words change 'y' into 'i' with 'ous,' as fury, furious, but some change 'y' into 'e' in the same position. Give examples." The following, selected from a variety of answers, are given as illustrations :—

Courtesy, courteous.	Spacy, spaceous.
Ruby, rubescent.	Scanty, scanteous.
Antipathy, antipathetic.	Beauty, beautious.
Gassy, gasseous.	Migratory, migracious.
Carry, Carrie.	Pury, purious.
Agony, agonies.	Lady, ladies.
Barbarity, barbarous.	Scabby, scabbeous.
Monotony, monotenous.	Gaudy, gorgeous.
Umbrageous, terraqueous.	Mary, mare.
Contumaceous, extraneous.	Many, mane.

14. "Believed, received, deceived, and relieved," are given as examples of words pronounced alike but spelled differently.

15. The subject of Geography is one that shows some astonishing results. One of the questions related to the surface of South America ; and an outline map, showing the relative positions of the states, principal towns, rivers, and mountains was requested. The Spanish mountains of Toledo are, by one Examinee, placed in "El Gran Chaco," and the Schwartzwald transported to the coast of Brazil. Another places Mexico in the basin of the Uruguay ; Bolivia, on the Atlantic, or east coast ; Ecuador in the Lower Selvas ; and the Amazon to the south of the La Plata. But this is not all. A fourth Examinee draws a map in which there is scarcely a correct feature—Texas has somehow got into the basin of the Orinoco, Mexico lies to the south of this, still further to the south lies the "Salt Lake" country of the northern continent, and the Empire of Brazil has been expunged to make way for California. Just where the Paraguay should be the Amazon is placed. South of this, comes the United States ; still further south, Canada, then a blank unknown region, where geographers usually place Patagonia. Panama takes the place of Cape Horn ; and, to crown the whole, the Andes are displaced bodily to make room for the Altai Ranges, which have been brought from Central Asia.

16. Under the head Domestic Economy, we meet strange statements. One lady thinks that "bitumen" is the nutritious principle in eggs ; another, that "blood" is the nutritious principle in meat ; while a third is of opinion that it lies in "glue," and so on.

17. Most of the Probationers are natives of the Colony, and have received their education mainly in Country Schools ; their home training and familiarity with "bush life" render them more contented, and in some degree better fitted to occupy positions in the more distant parts of the Colony than teachers accustomed to the city. These qualities, however, desirable as they are, do not constitute all that is necessary in the Provisional School Teachers. They require to be better informed before entering upon duty, and to apply themselves more closely to study afterwards, especially before presenting themselves for examination with a view to classification.

VII.—CLASSIFIED TEACHERS EXAMINED FOR PROMOTION.

These examinations were conducted under the provisions of the Regulations, as before ; and specimens of the Examination Papers will be found in Annexes J, K, L, and M.

2. I may add that the results for June, 1882, and for December, as far as the revision has yet proceeded, show considerable improvement in several subjects formerly very deficient.

3. The following is a summary of the results up to the present :—

4. In the Report for 1881, section VIII, I stated that the results of examination for 1881, as far as then known, were not encouraging—that in former years Teachers had been advanced under the Regulations which granted promotion for "Good Service," and that examination, as a means of advancing classification, had fallen into disuse with the majority, especially of the Upper Class Teachers. I might have stated, however, that there were still among the Teachers those who preferred to gain promotion by examination rather than under the provisions of Articles 39 and 46, and who did so apply in accordance with Articles 41, 42, and 45 of the former Rules ; but these were comparatively few in number.

5. Under the Regulations of May, 1880, it was, however, necessary that all advancements of classification should be gained by examination ; and accordingly examinations were held in June and December, in conformity with the provisions of the Circular of 10th August, 1880, and also in view of the requirements of Articles 23 to 27 of the published Regulations. The number failing to gain promotion may seem large ; but it will not be deemed so if it be remembered that the majority of those sitting in December, 1881, had not been examined for years ; they had ceased to study, possibly not expecting to be again called up. Not a few of those competing for the highest certificates held no more than Class III, or, at most, the lower grade of Class II ; they were entirely unacquainted by experience with the Highest Examinations. To the last moment many appear to have believed that the rule requiring examination would be relaxed ; or, if acted upon, that it would be for form's sake, preparatory to confirming the Certificates already held by the "Good Service" Regulations. Consequently, no serious preparation was made generally for the trial. When it is further remembered that some of the best were unprepared in Drawing, Music, and portions of the higher Mathematics ; that the difference between a low-class examination and one of the highest is very great ; that, in former times, it was considered good work to obtain even one grade at a time (in fact no more was allowed by the late Council of Education) ; and that in December, December, 1881, some were permitted to sit for three, and even for four, grades in advance of those which they previously held by examination, it will not appear surprising that there should be failures and disappointment. Some passed satisfactorily as far as the Ordinary subjects were involved; but their deficiencies in the Alternatives or higher ones barred the way to the highest Certificates. For those who had so failed for Class I in not more than four subjects, the Minister granted permission to sit in December, 1882, for re-examination in the defective subjects. For those, on the other hand, who had been unsuccessful in gaining Class II, and who had failed in not more than two subjects, permission to undergo re-examination in these subjects was also granted. The results of this concession are not yet fully known; but it was expected to meet the case of those who, in endeavouring to gain First Class Certificates, had failed only in the higher Mathematics, Latin, French, &c. These were in most cases deserving Teachers, who during the day had to conduct important schools, and who were presumed to be unable to command that time for study which mere students usually require and possess.

I might, in justice to the officers of the Department, go on to show that the unseemly answering described in Section VI was not confined to the Lower Class Examinees, but existed among certain aspirants for the higher classifications. There were in fact, among the candidates for Class II, some who showed no claim whatever to this grade, either on the ground of Attainments or of Skill, and who must themselves have known that they were wholly unprepared for such an examination as they underwent. Not only were the Ordinary subjects defective, but their knowledge of the Advanced subjects, such as Latin and Mathematics, proved to be of the most unsatisfactory character, carrying "failure" almost on the face of the papers. One teacher recently examined for this section, apart from defects in the Ordinary subjects, knew almost nothing of the Alternatives, has repeatedly failed (without showing much improvement), and has repeatedly applied for reconsideration of his case. Yet this is not a solitary instance. Another distorts the questions, and complains that he cannot answer them.

7. The higher First Class Teachers are, as a rule, careful over examination. Not a few are exceedingly well informed; and their papers, for range, perspicuity, and admirable treatment, deserve high commendation. Others are of a more moderate cast, but still creditable to their efforts, and exhibiting considerable improvement in several subjects. The necessary skill, however, is not always present, even when the papers are fairly satisfactory. I should be doing injustice to the teachers at large were I to restrict the praise herein given to the First Class only. Indeed, throughout the whole three grades, there are many painstaking and most deserving teachers.

8. There is another class, however—candidates for Class I—whose answers are either so incorrect or so meagre, as to exclude them altogether from the pale of First Class Examinees; yet they will not admit that their work is defective. As illustrating this point, I may quote the following from the Report of the Examiner in Drawing:—

"Of the 325 teachers examined there are 2 good; 2 very fair; 92 fair to moderate; 229 indifferent to failure. In the theory papers we have the best results, there being 13 good to very good; 127 fair to moderate; 173 indifferent to failure. The Test papers are unsatisfactory; although they have not been so difficult as at the previous examination,—7 good to very fair; 76 fair to moderate; 234 indifferent to failure. In the Sydney district the C—2 (First Class) section of teachers underwent an examination in Model Drawing and Blackboard practice: the former was bad, and showed how little is known of the simplest elements of this very necessary work, only one giving a fair representation of the objects placed before them. The blackboard work was fair to indifferent, showing that practice is much needed. The Freehand Test papers were, with few exceptions very poor, little attention being paid to proportion and character of line. Several teachers sent specimens of their work, but did not attempt the Test papers."

9. The Examiner in Music takes a more hopeful view of matters, and he reports favourably of the progress made in the study of the subject, and of the improvement manifested by the teachers at the more recent Examinations.

10. Dr. Thibault, the Examiner in French, speaking of the First Class papers, thus writes, in summing up an exhaustive and able report:—

"I should say that the examination is very unequal, and in some respects insufficient. Inability to translate from English into French, scanty knowledge of the usual words of the language, neglect of practice and undue importance attached to rules, with regard specially to the translation of sentences constructed with pronouns, unacquaintance with simple and easy idiomatic sentences in every-day use, are the prevalent demerits in the examination." Elsewhere, in speaking of the Examination Questions themselves, he writes:—"They were calculated to defeat 'cramming' and at the same time fairly to test the proficiency in French of teachers, who are supposed to possess of that language a knowledge superior or at least equal to that which would be expected for instance from a second year's University student. I think that such a standard is only fair and reasonable, and that the Department is justified in exacting from the First Class teachers that they should know more about their French than mere school-boys, and even junior students." He then goes on to show that in this subject four only out of sixteen Examinees passed in a reasonably satisfactory manner. The average of the best, including all points, does not rise to the limit "Good"—while the others range from "Very Fair" to "Very Indifferent." The average of the best examinee in the written examination, is only a little over "Fair."

11. Let us now inquire how far this is supported by the experience of the other Examiners. Turning to the papers executed by the unreasonable class referred to in paragraph 8, we find that these Examinees appear in most cases to know much less of Australia than of the other portions of the world. In reply to a question bearing upon the geography of the Illawarra District (proper), we are told that it "lies between the parallels 34° 20' and 35½," that "its average breadth is from 30 to 40 miles," and that "it is traversed partly from north to south generally by a Secondary Mountain Range." This examinee appears to think that it is remarkable only for the production of butter and coals—not a word as to its conformation, surface, lakes, drainage, vegetation, or scenery; and he does not seem to be aware that Shoalhaven and Ulladulla are districts wholly distinct from it. Again, in the same papers, we find the Gulf Stream confounded with the Great Equatorial Current, the former being described as "commencing on the west coast of Africa," and, after a certain course, "reaching Newfoundland, then turning east to the Azores, and recrossing the Atlantic, approaches the British Islands, turns south and completes the circuit of the Atlantic." In another question relating to the habitat, nature, and uses of cochineal, it is described, by the same Examinee as "found in Spain," and "obtained from an insect which accumulates a large quantity of pollen." Noumea is stated to be a city of Fiji, and Peking as one of the commercial centres of the Pacific. When requested to give special notes of an Object Lesson suited to an Advanced Class, the same writer chose, out of five subjects given for selection, the "Diving Bell"; and he gave the following as his ideas of what notes on the Highest Class of Object Lesson should be:—

"A watertight leather dress is constructed which opens at the breast and shoulders; into this the man gets feet foremost, his legs are thus incased in leather trousers and his body all but the head is similarly covered. Then a helmet or large shaped bell is placed over his head, this fits to the part previously on his body and is fastened to it by watertight nuts and screws. There is a vacuum of some 2 square feet between the top of the head and the inside top of the helmet," &c.

For parsing and paraphrase in the Grammar Exercise, the same person gives what is little better than a travesty. He has stated, however, that on no occasion has he answered questions so well and so fully, although he professes to have undergone numerous examinations. Yet his answers were declared to be the worst of those furnished by thirty applicants for First-class Certificates, and the execution of the papers was such as has scarcely ever been seen even in the case of the lower Pupil-teachers.

12. Resuming the extracts in relation to the Illawarra District, we find the following :—

- (a) "The Illawarra District of New South (sic) comprises that part between the 34th and 35th parallels of south latitude. The country embraced between these parallels is very rich in vegetable and mineral productions. The Hunter River flows through this tract of country, and in times of flood it carries down great quantities of alluvial matter, viz., animal, vegetable, and mineral. The land under cultivation is under water during the period of inundation, and the people are subject to great loss by the destruction of their property. However, the land lying along the flats and bend of the river is so rich that it takes but a comparatively short time to recover the loss. Sometimes, two crops are produced from the same piece of ground in one year. East and West Maitland, Morpeth, Singleton, Wollongong, and Kiama are the most important towns of this district. Singleton is in the centre of a large agricultural district, and Wollongong and Kiama are noted for being in a pastoral district. The vegetable productions are maize, wheat, sorghum, potatoes, tobacco plant, oranges, grapes, mellons (sic), cucumbers, vegetable marrows, mulberries, bananas, apples, pears, apricots, and sugarcane. A large quantity of coal is obtained at Bulli, and at Mt. Keira in Wollongong. The cabbage-tree palm flourishes there, and the waratah or native lily grows to a large size in this district. Kerosene shale, from which kerosene oil is manufactured is obtained here, and is a source of profitable industry to the inhabitants."
- (b) "The Illawarra District is situated on the east coast of New South Wales; it is watered by the Shoalhaven and its tributaries. The principal mountains are the Illawarra Mts. Towns—Berrima, Wollongong, Kiama. It is an agricultural district; most of the land is suited for pasturage."
- (c) "The District of Illawarra is watered partly by the tributaries of the Hawkesbury."
- (d) "Illawarra is between Shoalhaven on the North—a line drawn from Cape Howe to the head of the river Murray on the South."

Among the answers to other questions in Geography are the following :—

Italy—"bounded on the east by the Gulf of Venice. * * * The chain of the Pyrenees run through the centre. * * * The Sirocco is a hot wind which blows in Italy. * * * The soil is suited for agriculture. * * * Painting and sculpture is carried on to a great extent."

The Gulf Stream—"issues with astonishing rapidity, at the rate of 4 or 5 miles an hour * * * continues its course along the banks of the United States * * * strikes against the banks of Newfoundland * * * It joins the Great Equatorial Current from which it set out and by which it again sets out in the direction of America. * * * It is owing to its influence that the hills of Albion are clothed in verdure, while the Labrador in the same latitude is fast bound in fetters of ice."

Along with serious defects in the examination in the ordinary subjects, the French papers of this Examinee were of the most unsatisfactory character. The following is a reply to the request to "define some of the effects, geographical and industrial, which will arise from an irregular or deeply indented coast line,"—

"If the coast is indented most likely there will be some good harbours, towns will be built on them, commerce will spring up, which is the wealth of many nations, and different trades will be followed which could only be carried on in seaport towns, shipbuilding, &c."

The same Examinee writes :—

"The lower strata of the atmosphere is more dense, therefore the heat accumulates particularly in the valleys and plains, whereas in the upper strata of the atmosphere is rare and cannot contain the same amount of heat; the same occurs on the tops of mountains."

Another thinks that :—

"Singapore is situated between the Indian and Pacific Oceans. * * * Chief export of Hobart Town—jams. * * * Honolulu the capital of the Fee-je group. * * * Africa's Sahara and other central portions are found to suffer the greatest extremes of climate. * * * The width of the Gulf Stream is from 300 to 400 miles."

Others state :—

"Capital of China—Canton." "Oregon in British North America." "Lima the chief sea-port of Peru." "Lima in Bolivia." "San Francisco is situated on the mouth of the Colarado," "Sydney is situated on Port Jackson, about 12 miles from the entrance. It was founded in 1770."

13. In relation to Object Lessons and examples of Insect Architecture we find the following :—

"The principal insects whose natures lead them to build dwellings for themselves, or receptacles wherein to deposit their eggs or young, are as follows :—The Coral Insect. Birds.—The most remarkable in this country being the Brush Turkey whose power of construction are remarkable. Bees.—Ants of various kinds. Spiders."

Another, treating of the cell of the honey-bee, says :—

"The workers are composed of artisans, clothier bees, carpenter bees, leaf-cutting bees, &c."

14. But these are not the only subjects. Equally extraordinary statements are made within the domains of English Grammar, English Literature, French, and Psychology. The various stages of mental development are much confused, and even the meanings of the terms used in the answers appear to be misunderstood. In dealing with the Principles of Teaching and Higher Method, we are told that :—

"The causes which influences discipline ranges from fear of physical pain to high sense of duty. Between these extremities there are innumerable notices which arise from general physical nature. They may be arranged thus :—(1.) Fear of physical pain. (2.) Loss of personal inconvenience, &c."

* * * * *
"Some children either through 'love of play' or 'careless' neglect to wash themselves."

* * * * *
"Punctuality includes regularity."

* * * * *
"Nothing is more productive of carelessness and want of diligence than the want of it."

* * * * *
"The general public allows greater license; to pass without censure after doing some mischievous, even injurious act is daily seen."

* * * * *
"It is a good plan to exercise the children without drawing special attention to the one in fault."

15. In attempting to deal with a question relating to the rise and progress of newspaper literature, an Examinee writes :—

"In the time of the Saxons the monks were in the habit of writing a journal which was called the Saxon Chronicle, and this may be considered as the earliest form of newspaper."

One candidate for First Class says :—

"'Paradise Lost' consists of twelve cantos (sic). The First Book treats of Satan and his Argument with the Angel."

Another states that :—

"Bacchus is a character in 'Paradise Lost,' and that 'Addison wrote in the 'Rambler.'"

We find the following respecting the word "Ostracise":

"This word—taken from the habits of the ostrich—has been in use to denote state to which persons in good positions have been reduced, through some faux pas against the rules of good society."

One of the most pretentious of this class of Examinees, among other extraordinary statements, ascribes to "Thomas the Rhymer," who died at the close of the thirteenth century, the celebrated Anglo-Saxon poem of Caedmon, who is believed to have lived in the seventh century; and he also gives the following as a quotation from the immortal "Ode to the Passions":—

"Lastly came winter all clothed in frieze, his teeth chattering with cold."

The extracts here given might be extended indefinitely, but for the present I add no more. The worst selections emanate from those who are anxious to have the Standards of Examination lowered.

16. I ought to add that the examination papers should have presented no special difficulties. They provided no severer test of educational fitness than those of former years. Indeed, were a comparison instituted it would be found that, on the whole, they were easier than those of the past. In recent Examinations, questions bearing on the works of Jacotot, Wood, and Professor Pillans, in relation to the training of young children to read, met with no intelligent treatment. The same result followed in relation to one bearing upon the aims of Emmanuel Fellenberg. Yet these, all important as they are to Educationists, were not new matter in our examinations and the same questions, or modifications of them could at one time have been easily taken up, nay, in the earlier day, were dealt with readily.

17. In speaking of the results of examinations, it is not to be supposed that those who contend for, or who originally instituted Examinations in New South Wales, imagined that a written examination constituted everything. On the contrary, it has always been held that before a Teacher's Classification could be decided, the results of his teaching must be proved. In other words, that literary attainments constituted but one-half the Teacher—teaching power the other half. Many a Preceptor shows himself to be an apt Scholar, deeply read, clear in illustration, and even very attractive in the "art of putting things" to pupils; and yet, from various causes, he may be powerless to impart his knowledge effectively or to build up the "fabric of mind." Still, it may safely be affirmed that "the Teacher" ought to be well-informed, that he should know much more than he has to teach, and that the sound scholar is cateris paribus most likely to be the successful Educator.

18. Ever since the introduction of a National system of education into this Colony the cause of Public Instruction has prospered. The means and appliances for educating the people have been gradually improved and extended. The position of the Teacher has been much advanced socially, and full opportunities are now within his reach for occupying (educationally) the most prominent and useful situations in the land. With these opportunities for self-elevation possessed by the Teacher of to-day there can be no good ground for any feeling of antagonism to the necessary tests of fitness for office. The interests of education and the higher interests of the Commonwealth demand that we place as educators of our youth, not merely the best men and women morally and socially, but those who, in addition, are the best educated for the work of training the young—men and women of intellectual culture and good attainments in the various subjects required to be taught in our Schools. As a Colony, we are making rapid progress in almost every direction. Shall we stand still, or permit decline in the qualifications of our Teachers? Shall we demand less of them now educationally than has hitherto been demanded? Surely not. The means of acquiring knowledge being vastly enlarged shall we not be justified in insisting that they shall be fully improved?

19. In conclusion, I may observe that whatever may have been the inconvenience suffered in particular cases through the operation of the more recent rules enforcing examination before promotion, the results have been thus far to excite a very general application to study among the Teachers and to produce sensible improvement in the work of the examinees.

J. GARDINER,
Chief Examiner.

5. Write a short phrase in three-pulse measure, containing at least one silent pulse.
6. How are half-pulse and quarter-pulse tones written?

ANNEX G.

APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO TRAINING—UPPER CLASS.

Entrance Examination.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

Muse hang this harp upon you aged beech
Still murmuring with the solemn truths I teach
And while at intervals a cold blast sings
Through the dry leaves and pants upon the strings
My soul shall sigh in secret and lament
A nation scourged yet tardy to repent.

1. Punctuate the above.
2. Parse the words in italics.
3. Analyse the whole.
4. Of what feet do the lines consist, and to what measure do they belong?

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Value $\frac{\frac{3}{4}-\frac{5}{8}}{\frac{1}{11}+\frac{3}{8}}$ of $\frac{2\frac{3}{4}}{\frac{5}{8}-\frac{1}{11}}$ of £3.
2. If 7 men can reap a field of $15\frac{1}{2}$ acres in $5\frac{1}{2}$ days, working 18 hours a day, in what time can 9 men, working 14 hours a day, reap a field of 18 acres, the work in the latter case being four-fifths more difficult?
3. A cubical cistern contains 600 gallons of water. Allowing one cubic foot for $6\frac{1}{4}$ gallons, what is the length of the side and what the superficial measurement of the cistern?

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Describe that portion of North America which lies to the west of the Mississippi and south of the Dominion of Canada.
2. The tides :—

What are they?
Account for them.
What purposes do they serve?

Art of Teaching.

An hour allowed.

1. After what method do you teach reading to beginners?
 2. Write in full outline, as you would give it, an Object Lesson on the Sugar-cane, a Shilling, or Steam.
- Reading to be estimated in the usual way.

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. To make a triangle of which the sides shall be equal to three given straight lines, but any two whatever of these must be greater than the third.
2. The straight line joining the middle point of the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle to the right angle is equal to half the hypotenuse.
3. In every triangle the square on the side subtending an acute angle, is less than the squares on the sides containing that angle, by twice the rectangle contained by either of these sides, and the straight line intercepted between the perpendicular let fall on it from the opposite angle and the acute angle.

Algebra.

An hour and half allowed.

1. Find the G.C.M. of $6x^3y - 12x^2y^2 + 3xy^3$ and $4ax^2 + 4axy + 4a^2x$.
2. Find the L.C.M. of $6(x^2 + xy)$, $8(xy - y^2)$ and $10(x^2 - y^2)$.
3. Divide 150 into two parts, such that if one be divided by 23 and the other by 27, the sum of the quotients of the two may be 6.

Latin.

Two hours allowed.

Translate into English :—

Pavones agricolæ sunt pulchri. Præmia militum ingentia erant. In republica Romana erant plurimi servi. Virtus sola veram dat voluptatem. Vultures acerrimos habent oculos. Militibus deerat animus. Amicus memor est nostri. Nomen illius poetæ clarissimum erat. Quum milites urbem intrabant, omnes cives timoris pleni erant. Vires vestras semper exercete pueri. Divitiæ multis hominibus nocuerunt. Cura ut animum pueri excolas. Non erat dubium quin milites subito periculo territi essent. Quis dubitat quin milites bona nostra rapturi sint? Patres bona sua cum liberis partiuntur. Magna gloria nemini venit sine virtute. Pessime omnium egisti; bonos cives perdidisti; improbis bene fecisti. Nesciebam, cur me comitari nolles. Non omnis ager qui seritur, fert fruges. Alcibiades, maximis rebus gestis, Athenas reversus est.

Translate into Latin :—

He has lived many years at our house. Whether is gold or silver the heavier? I know that these things are true. In the summer I shall set out for Venusia. Romulus reigned thirty-seven years. When Cæsar was slain the republic was very severely harassed with civil war. Ignorance seems to be more useful than the knowledge of future ills. The ancient Britons were accustomed to clothe themselves with skins. Dare to die, citizens. He who will assist an injurious person will become a partner in his fault. Many very brave soldiers have perished in a most sanguinary fight. Custom teaches to endure labour. Nothing is greater, nothing more delightful, than friendship. Night flees away when the sun rises.

1. Parse the Latin words in italics.
2. Write the passive of facio throughout.
3. How is the dative case governed?
4. What is the use of such words as ut, ne, quin, quo, num?

NOTE :—Let your translations be written in parallel columns.

French.

Two hours allowed.

Translate into French the following :—

Here are strawberries, will you have any? I will give you some. It is the same sun that gives light to all nations of the earth. They are not playing. Will he not betray your confidence? He is loved and esteemed by everybody. I would not expose myself so rashly. Children must obey their parents. Is there anyone here? There is nobody. The eye judges of colours, the ear judges of sounds. God created man after His own image. A conquered province. I hate falsehood. I had risen to go out, but he made me sit down again. I do my duty, do yours.

2. Write in full the verb arriver, to arrive.
3. What are the prepositions used in French to denote place?

N.B.—Write the translation exercise in parallel columns.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. What is the difference between soh-one and one-soh? What is the sol-fa notation of those two tones?

2. Mark the places of the accents in a, so as to make the phrase in three-pulse measure, and in b, so that it will form two-pulse measure.

a	d r m f s
b	s f m r d

3. What is meant by common chord, and by what other name is it sometimes known? Give examples.

4. Give some of the words used to indicate rate of movement, classifying them as a. Slow, b. Moderate, c. Quick.

5. Write a melody containing transition to the first sharp key.

Drawing.

Two hours allowed.

1. Draw an oblong or rectangular plane in perspective below the eye.
2. Give an example of an oblong solid drawn above the eye.
3. Draw a triangular prism in perspective, below the eye.
4. Illustrate by example, the difference between horizontal, vertical, and oblique planes.

In addition to answering the foregoing questions, examinees should furnish specimens of their finished drawings.

[Test paper herewith.]

7. What are the faults into which children fall most easily in their singing, and state what means you would employ to correct them.

ANNEX I.

TRAINING SCHOOL—UPPER CLASS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

"That praises are without reason lavished upon the dead and that the honours due only to excellence are paid to antiquity is a complaint likely to be always continued by those who being able to add nothing to truth hope for eminence from the heresies of paradox or those who being forced by disappointment upon consolatory expedients are willing to hope from posterity what the present age refuses and flatter themselves that the regard which is yet denied by envy will be at least bestowed by time."

- a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage.
 - b. Express the author's meaning in other words.
 - c. Parse the words in italics.*
 - d. Analyze the passage.
2. What simple elementary sounds in the English language have no letters corresponding to them?

* NOTE.—The Training School standard of parsing, and no other, will be recognized.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.

1. Find by Practice the price of 27 lbs. 3 ozs. 12½ dwts. of gold at £2 17½s. per oz.
2. 7 men and 5 boys build in 4½ days 27 yards of a brick wall whose height and thickness are 5 and 3 feet respectively; how long will it take 5 men and 7 boys to build a similar wall 36 yards long, 5½ feet high, and 3¾ feet thick?—a boy's work in both cases being .76 that of a man.
3. What sum placed at compound interest for 6 years will produce £1,006 16s., the rate of interest being 5 per cent. per annum?
4. Find the present worth, and the discount of £19 18s. for 63 days at 5 per cent. per annum.
5. Find the value of $\sqrt{1.980677} \div \sqrt{.0173}$.
6. What will it cost to paper a room 6 yards 1 foot 1 inch long, 6 yards 4 inches broad, and 12 feet high, with paper a foot wide, at 9d. a yard?

N.B.—Females may omit the sixth question.

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions.

2. How and by whom was English literature influenced and advanced during the first half of the fifteenth century.
3. Give some account of Lord Bacon and his works.
4. Enumerate the works ascribed to Shakespeare, and describe the plot of "The Merchant of Venice."
5. What was the character of English literature at the beginning of the sixteenth century? Account for the changes that had arisen, and quote, if you can, any passages from the works of Cowper bearing upon them.

Domestic Economy.

Two hours allowed.

1. In the case of school children, what are the signs of approaching illness?
2. What is starch? Where is it found? Describe its uses and abuses.
3. Account for the adulteration of silk. How is it to be detected in textile fabrics?
4. What circumstances render glass and porcelain peculiarly liable to fracture? How far can you prevent this tendency?

Euclid.

Three hours allowed.

1. If two triangles have two sides of the one equal to two sides of the other, each to each, but the base of the one greater than the base of the other, the angle contained by the sides of that which has the greater base shall be greater than the angle contained by the sides equal to them of the other.
2. The straight line which bisects two sides of any triangle is half the base.
3. Divide a straight line into two parts, so that the rectangle contained by the whole and one of the parts may be equal to the square on the other part.
4. The base of a triangle is given, and is bisected by the centre of a given circle; if the vertex be at any point of the circumference, show that the sum of the squares on the two sides of the triangle is invariable.
5. In equal circles, equal straight lines cut off equal arcs, the greater equal to the greater, and the less equal to the less.
6. Describe a circle which shall touch a given circle at a point and touch a given straight line.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.

1. What is the G.C.M. of $x^4 - 2x^3 + x^2 - 8x + 8$ and $4x^3 - 12x^2 + 9x - 1$?
2. Find the L.C.M. of $9x^2$, $6ax$, $8a^2$, $36x^2$, $3ax^2$, $50a^2x$ and $24ax$.
3. Find the value of $2 + \frac{a^2 + b^2}{a^2 - b^2} - \frac{a - b}{a + b}$.
4. Multiply $x^{\frac{5}{2}} - 2x^2y^{\frac{1}{2}} + 4x^{\frac{3}{2}}y^{\frac{3}{2}} - 8xy + 16x^{\frac{1}{2}}y^{\frac{5}{2}} - 32y^{\frac{7}{2}}$ by $x^{\frac{1}{2}} + 2y^{\frac{1}{2}}$.
5. A and B set out at the same time for a place at the distance of 150 miles. A travels 3 miles an hour faster than B and reaches the journey's end $8\frac{1}{2}$ hours before him. At what rate per hour did each travel?
6. Three men can do a piece of work, the first in 50 hours, the second in 60 hours, and the third in 75 hours. In what time will they do it all working together?

Latin.

Three hours allowed.

Translate into English:—

Themistoclis consilio factum est, ut Athenienses urbem relinquerent. Qui noxium adjuvabit, culpæ socius fiet. Cæsar fisus est suis rebus. Optimus ille vir mori ansus est, non autem mentiri. Oratores irasci minime decet. Pueros decet tacere. Nihil est majus justitia, nihil jucundius. Humana omnia inferiora sunt virtute. Cognito hostium adventu, Cæsar naves ex portu educit. Catone mortuo nulla jam erat republica. His literis perlectis, consul comprehendi eos jubet. Turris pedes ducentos alta est. Non satis est multos annos vixisse, decet bene vixisse. Vox quondam audita est, Romam a Gallis captum iri. Traditum est, Homerum cæcum fuisse. Estne voluptas summum bonum? Num putas argentum et aurum cariora esse virtute et prudentia? Utrum est turpitudō omnium malorum maximum an non? Speculabimur quot homines in urbem incant et quot exeant. Quæram num omnia feliciter evenerint. Num dubium est casune an consilio factus sit mundus?

Translate into Latin:—

Birds make their nests in trees. Meditate on these things. I will encourage the boy to contemplate these things. If we die the body only dies, not the mind. Remember your ancient valour, soldiers. Take care that you always follow the path to virtue. The Romans often tried the fortune of war. The General marched his army out of the city. Along with thee we will depart into another land. Large fishes are not caught in a small river. Beneath the earth there are many beautiful things. It is easy to write, it is not easy to write well. I will rather do you good than do you evil. The whole city rejoiced that the conspiracy had been discovered. The sun is larger and brighter than the moon.

1. Parse fully the Latin words in italics.
2. Give examples of nouns in the genitive and ablative, and state the reasons that determine the employment of these cases.
3. What principles regulate the introduction of the subjunctive mood in Latin composition and decide the tenses to be employed?

French.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English:—

On fait dire au roi, dans une déclaration de ce temps-là, que le cardinal avait en effet levé ces troupes de son argent; ce qui doit confondre l'opinion de ceux qui ont écrit qu'à sa première sortie du royaume Mazarin s'était trouvé dans l'indigence. Il donna le commandement de sa petite armée au maréchal d'Hocquincourt. Tous les officiers portaient des écharpes vertes; c'était la couleur des livrées du cardinal. Chaque parti avait alors son écharpe; la blanche était celle du roi; l'isabelle, celle du prince de Condé. Il était étonnant que le cardinal Mazarin, qui avait jusqu'alors affecté tant de modestie, modestie, eût la hardiesse de faire porter ses livrées à une armée, comme s'il avait un parti différent de celui de son maître, mais il ne put résister à cette vanité : c'était précisément ce qu'avait fait le maréchal d'Ancre, et ce qui contribua beaucoup à sa perte. La même témérité réussit au cardinal Mazarin : la reine l'approuva. Le roi, déjà majeur, et son frère allèrent au-devant de lui.

2. Write out the second person singular of each tense of each mood of the pronominal verb se lever; the first person plural of each tense of each mood of the regular verb devoir; and the first person singular of each tense of each mood of the irregular verb aller.

3. Give the plural of these nouns :—Voix, hibou, fou, bal, travail, œil; the feminine singular of these adjectives :—neuf, heureux, doux, vieux, ancien, net, discret, cher, flatteur, pêcheur, meilleur blanc, public, gros, fou, bénin, favori, long.

4. Translate into French :—

- That is what I wished to speak to you about.
- It is a reason to which there can be no reply.
- Has he any protectors? Yes; he has very powerful ones.
- Whoever deceives me shall be punished.
- One cannot read Telemachus without becoming better.
- Your work has been praised in a very delicate manner by a famous academician.
- Have we not flattered ourselves without foundation?
- There would not be so many duels if people were to reflect that one of the first obligations of a Christian is to forgive injuries.
- The victory which Cæsar gained on the plains of Pharsalia was baneful to his country, pernicious to the Romans, and disastrous to mankind.
- I have heard your sister say that her daughter and I were born in the same year.

N.B.—Candidates need not transcribe the French in Question 1. The English and French in Question 4 should be written in adjacent columns.

British History.

Two hours and a half allowed.—Answer four questions.

- What proofs have we that Britain was once occupied by the Romans?
- Give a description of the ancient Britons.
- Explain how the Germans, in the fifth century, obtained a footing in Britain.
- Describe the circumstances which led to the introduction of Christianity into England.
- Give an account of the Danish inroads and occupation.

- Analyse thoroughly the foregoing song.
- What is meant by transition? What is its use? Illustrate by diagrams.
- Name the tones of the chords D, S, F. In what respect are these chords like each other.
- What are the principal points of difference between major and minor scales, and when are they said to be relative?
- Translate the Spring Song into the old notation.
- Write the key signatures of five keys (in sharps and flats), old notation.
- Give examples of the different kinds of rhythm (two measures each), first in tonic sol-fa, then translate into Old Notation; use both notes and rests in common use.

Drawing.

Shading—Geometry—Perspective.

An hour and a half allowed.

- Give a definition of reflected light.
- Define the difference between shade and shadow.
- Draw a square box, one face parallel to the picture plane and above the level of the spectator's eye.
- Illustrate the different triangles, and point out the difference between them.
- What is the intersection of two planes?
- What are imaginary planes and of what forms and extent are they?

[Test paper herewith.]

Physics and Chemistry.

Three hours allowed.

1. What are the three states of matter? Distinguish between them.
2. Define the terms gravitation, cohesion, chemical attraction. Give examples of the operation of each in nature.
3. How would you make a Fahrenheit thermometer? Express 10C, -10C, 50C, in Fahrenheit degrees, and 10F, -40F, 50F, in Centigrade degrees.
4. Describe Grove's battery.
5. Define specific gravity. How is the specific gravity of solids found (a) when insoluble in water, (b) when soluble in water.
6. How would you prepare oxygen, carbonic acid gas, nitric acid, and hydrogen? Give equations when you can.
7. Define the terms acid, salt, alkali, base; and give examples of each.
8. Give the equations to represent the changes which take place when we make (a) hydrogen, (b) nitric acid. From these equations calculate the amounts of the different materials needed to make 25 grains of hydrogen, and 315 grains of nitric acid.
9. What are the four principal constituents in common air? Show the value of each in the economy of nature, and describe briefly the changes that are continually going on.

ANNEX J.

THIRD CLASS TEACHERS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

1.

*“What softened views thy magic glass reveals
 When o'er the landscape Time's meek twilight steals
 [As when in ocean sinks the orb of day
 Long on the wave reflected lustres play
 Thy tempered gleams of happiness resigned
 Glance on the darkened mirror of the mind]
 The School's lone porch with reverend mosses gray
 Just tells the pensive pilgrim where it lay
 Mute is the bell that rung at peep of dawn
 Quickening my truant feet across the lawn”*

“PLEASURES OF MEMORY.”

a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage. b. Paraphrase, or write its import in your own words. c. Parse the words in italics.* d. Analyse the portion in brackets.
 2. Explain briefly the particular function, or office of each word contained in the ninth line.—“Mute is the bell,” &c.
 3. Give a list of words pronounced alike but spelled differently.
 4. The adjective “noble” may be compared in three different forms.
- *NOTE.—The standard of the Training School is to be observed in parsing. No other can be recognised.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.

(Candidates for Class III, Section A, must work all.)

1. Divide thirty-three millions, ninety-seven hundreds, and sixty-five thousands, and forty-seven hundred and three pounds sterling, by $767\frac{3}{4}$. Prove the answer.
2. How many shillings and half guineas in 98630054711 half crowns?
3. 346 cwts. 3 qrs. 13 lbs. 11 oz. avoirdupois at £3 17s. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ton. Practice for one way.
4. Required the interest on £987 16s. 6d. for $7\frac{1}{2}$ years at $3\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. Simple Interest.
5. Supposing I buy a ton and a quarter of groceries at 6s. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb., and that 56 lbs. proved valueless, how should I sell per ounce so as to gain thirty guineas by the transaction?
6. One block of land contains $4\text{ }83$ acres and is worth 276 guineas per acre, another contains $3\frac{1}{2}$ acres, and is worth 52 guineas per acre. What should I give for $\frac{1}{3}$ of $\frac{2}{5}$ of half of a block, five times the size of the two former combined?

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—At least four questions must be answered.

1. Describe the distribution of land and water on the earth's surface.
2. Give an account of one of the Archipelagoes of the Pacific.
3. Draw a map of South America, indicating its countries, principal towns, rivers, and mountains.

ANNEX K.

SECOND CLASS TEACHERS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

- ["It must be so Plato thou reason'st well
Else whence this pleasing hope this fond desire
This longing after immortality
Or whence this secret dread and inward horror
Of falling into nought why shrinks the soul
Back on herself and startles at destruction
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us
'Tis Heaven itself that points out an hereafter]
And intimates eternity to man"]

"TRAGEDY OF CATO."

- a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage. b. Arrange in simple prose order. c. Paraphrase it. d. Parse the words in italics. e. Analyse the passage within brackets.
- Define the adverbial clause. Give examples showing this clause following, or qualifying—
a. An adverb. b. An adjective.

NOTE.—The Training School Standard is to be observed in parsing. No other can be recognized.

Arithmetic.

Males.

Three hours allowed.—At least five questions must be answered for Class II, Sec. B.

- Express decimally the difference between $\cdot 142857$ of $\cdot 125$ and $\cdot 142857$ of $\cdot 125$.
- The compound interest on a certain sum of money for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years at 5 per cent. exceeds the simple interest by £4 1s. Find the sum.
- A, B, and C undertake to mow 38 acres at 3s. 6d. an acre. A works half as long again a day as B, and does half as much work again in the same time. B works half as long again as C, and does half as much again in the same time. How much ought each man to receive ?
- Find the cost of 20 acres 3 roods $25\frac{1}{4}$ perches of land at £5 7s. $6\frac{1}{2}$ d. per acre.
- If the simple interest on £1,008 10s. from 1st January to 8th August, 1882, be £45 7s. $7\frac{1}{2}$ d., find the rate per cent.
- The floor of a square room measured with a foot-rule $\frac{1}{2}$ of an inch short is supposed to contain 30 square yards. What is the true area ?
- When gas is 9s. 4d. per thousand cubic feet, the gas for forty-five burners for 169 nights of $7\frac{1}{2}$ hours each costs £10 13s. 4d., how much will gas at 6s. 9d. per thousand cost for seventy-eight burners for thirty nights of three hours forty minutes each ?

Arithmetic.

Females.

Three hours allowed.—At least five questions must be answered.

- Simplify $\left\{ 1\cdot375 + \frac{2\cdot04}{11 \times 02} \right\}$ of £66 11s. 11d.

2. Simplify $\frac{2\frac{1}{3}}{2\frac{1}{3}}$ of $2\frac{2}{3}$ - $1\frac{1}{2}$ of $1\frac{1}{2}$
 $\frac{2\frac{1}{3}}{2\frac{1}{3}}$ of $(2\frac{2}{3} - 1\frac{1}{2})$ of $1\frac{1}{2}$
3. When gas is 9s. 4d. per thousand cubic feet, the gas for 45 burners for 169 nights of 7 hours 20 minutes each costs £10 13s. 4d., how much will gas at 6s. 9d. per thousand cost for 78 burners for 30 nights of 3 hours 40 minutes each?
4. Find by Practice the cost of 19 quarters 7 bushels 3 pecks 1 quart at 62s. per quarter.
5. Reduce $7\frac{3}{4}$ ounces troy to the fraction of a lb. avoirdupois.
6. A rectangular area 25 yards 1 foot 6 inches long by 11 yards 1 foot 8 inches broad, is to be covered with paving stones 17 inches long and 13 inches broad. How many of these will be required?

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—One question may be omitted, but not the first.

1. Give a full account of the Hawkesbury Basin, N.S.W.
2. Describe the rainfall of Europe.
3. Give an account of the principal currents of the Pacific.
4. What evidences exist that the space now occupied by the Carribean Sea, Mexican Gulf, and West Indian Archipelago was once a portion of the American Continent?
5. Describe in full one of the African river basins.

Art of Teaching.

Three hours allowed.

1. Explain the principles upon which you would construct a time-table in a school of four classes.
2. What are the uses of dictation lessons? Give a graduated course for junior pupils, showing the stage at which you would commence.
3. Why are point blank questions only used in oral examinations?
4. It has been said that the best methods may be made the worst, or rendered powerless. How far is this correct? What are the tests of well grounded instruction?
5. Upon what does the formation of a healthy tone in school depend?

Writing.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Arrange the letters of the alphabet showing the order in which you would teach them.
2. Draw up a programme of writing for a third class in its fourth quarter.
3. Specify the Subjects you deem most suitable for "head lines," and give examples of penmanship.

Domestic Economy.

Two hours allowed.

1. Describe how beef-tea should be made.
2. In what manner is solid fat prepared for use in paste.
3. In the "East" dress alters little from generation to generation. In the "West" it is always changing. Account for this; and show what evils arise from the latter practice.
4. Explain your views as to the following statement:—"It is on the mother's knee that the destinies of nations are shaped."

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method.

Two hours allowed.

1. What is meant by melody? Describe the various styles of melody, and mention instances under each.
2. What do you understand by parsing or analysis of musical form?
3. What are the advantages of transition? Explain fully and illustrate by example and diagram.
4. Translate the following song into the old notation. Use G clef only.

Key C.

5. Repeat it also in the key of F.
6. Analyse fully the foregoing song.
7. What are the causes of flattening in singing? And what should be done to prevent it

Drawing: Shading, Geometry, Perspective.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Give a definition of reflected light.
2. Define the difference between shade and shadow.
3. Draw a square box, one face parallel to the picture plane and above the level of the spectator's eye.
4. Illustrate the different triangles, and point out the difference between them.
5. What is the intersection of two planes?
6. What are imaginary planes and of what forms and extent are they?

[Here follows a test paper.]

Latin.

Latin.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English :—

a. Dum hæc in colloquio geruntur, Cæsari nuntiatum est, equites Ariovisti propius tumulum accedere, et ad nostros adequitare, lapides telaque in nostros conjicere. Cæsar loquendi finem facit seque ad suos recipit, suisque imperavit, ne quod omnino telum in hostes rejicerent. Nam, etsi sine ullo periculo legionis delectæ cum equitatu prælium fore videbat, tamen committendum non putabat, ut, pulsus hostibus, dici posset, eos ab se per fidem in colloquio circumventos. Posteaquam in vulgus militum elatum est, qua arrogantia in colloquio Ariovistus usus, omni Gallia Romanis interdixisset, impetumque in nostros ejus equites fecissent, eaque res colloquium ut diremisset; multo major alacritas, studiumque pugnandi majus exercitu injectum est.

b. Instructo exercitu, magis ut loci natura, dejectusque collis, et necessitas temporis, quam ut rei militaris ratio atque ordo postulabat, cum diversis locis legiones, aliæ alia in parte, hostibus resisterent, sepibusque densissimis, ut ante demonstravimus, interjectis prospectus impediretur; neque certa subsidia collocari, neque quid in quaque parte opus esset provideri, neque ab uno omnia imperia administrari poterant. Itaque in tanta rerum iniquitate, fortunæ quoque eventus varii sequebantur.

2. Parse fully the words in italics.

3. Give the principal parts of the verbs detero, meto, texo, tollo, vincio, pango, repello, hæreo.

Give all the infinitives of mordeo, veto, morior, and all the participles of vinco, sequor, ago.

4. Give the genitive singular, gender and English of supellex, domus, vulgus, palus, mus, genus, cor, pulvis, nubes, obses.

5. Translate into Latin :—

a. My dear son, tell me what you have seen in Rome.

b. We are well aware that the daughters who are so cruel have not been loved by the old man.

c. We believe that our sister will use her wealth wisely, will help her friends, and not forget the poor.

d. Who fears a man that he despises, or loves one that has injured him?

e. Having conquered the Gauls in battle, Cæsar returned to Rome on the 30th of August.

f. When Cæsar was dead he was praised by Antony, but while alive he was envied.

g. Though I am sorry for your misfortune, yet I cannot forget the rashness with which you entered on this great undertaking.

h. Three days after reaching Athens we heard that the enemy had marched 200 miles into the country.

N.B.—If time presses omit 1 A or 1 B. In these questions the Latin need not be transcribed. The Latin and English in question 5 should be written in adjacent columns.

French.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English :—

a. Pierre le Grand leur apprit à obéir par son exemple, et par les supplices; car il servait en qualité de soldat et d'officier subalterne, et punissait rigoureusement en czar les boyards, c'est-à-dire les gentilshommes, qui prétendaient que le privilège de la noblesse était de ne servir l'État qu'à leur volonté. Il établit un corps régulier pour servir l'artillerie, et prit cinq cents cloches aux églises pour fondre des canons. Il a eu treize mille canons de fonte en l'année 1714. Il a formé aussi des corps de dragons, milice très-convenable au génie des Muscovites, et à la forme de leurs chevaux, qui sont petits. La Moscovie a aujourd'hui trente régiments de dragons, de mille hommes chacun, bien entretenus.

b. Sa marche fut précédée par un manifeste dont le cardinal et son parti inondèrent la Pologne en huit jours. Charles par cet écrit invitait tous les Polonais à joindre leur vengeance à la sienne, et prétendait leur faire voir que leurs intérêts et les siens étaient les mêmes; ils étaient cependant bien différents: mais le manifeste, soutenu par un grand parti, par le trouble du sénat, et par l'approche du conquérant, fit très-fortes impressions. Il fallut reconnaître Charles pour protecteur, puisqu'il voulait l'être, et qu'on était encore trop heureux qu'il se contentât de ce titre.

2. Write out the second person singular of each tense of each mood of the pronominal verb se lever; the first person plural of each tense of each mood of the regular verb devoir, and the first person singular of each tense of each mood of the irregular verb aller.

3. What is the place of the French adjective with regard to the noun? Give six examples of adjectives which have a different meaning according as they are placed before or after it.

4. Translate into French :—

a. The victory which Cæsar gained on the plains of Pharsalia was baneful to his country, pernicious to the Romans, and disastrous to mankind.

b. An Irishman said to a Scotchman: "Lend me three guineas." "That is impossible," said he, "for I only possess half a guinea." "Well then, lend it me, and you will owe me two guineas and a half."

c. Our Queen honors literature with that attachment and patronage capable of making it flourish.

d. Scipio Africanus was respectful to his mother, liberal to his sisters, good to his servants, just and affable to everyone.

e. Of ten thousand combatants there were one thousand killed and five hundred wounded.

f. Your uncles and your brother take charge of the enterprise; they find the money and he will manage the work.

g. A well-brought-up son never rebels against his father; he loves, honors, and respects him.

h. To be too much dissatisfied with ourselves is a weakness, but to be too much pleased with ourselves is a folly.

i. Of all living creatures man is the only one who has not his face turned towards the earth; he walks with his eyes directed towards heaven, as if to indicate the superiority of his origin.

j. It is said of Alexander the Great that he said of Diogenes that if he had not been Alexander he would have wished to be Diogenes.

N.B.—In this particular paper candidates, to save time, need not transcribe the French in question 1. The French and English in question 4 should be written in adjacent columns.

Geometry.

Three hours allowed.

1. If a straight line fall on two parallel straight lines it makes the alternate angles equal to one another. Hence show that if a straight line be drawn perpendicular to one of two parallel straight lines it is also perpendicular to the other.

2. Equal triangles upon the same base, and on the same side of it are between the same parallels. Hence show that if two sides of a triangle be bisected, the straight line which joins the points of bisection is parallel to the base.

3. If a straight line be divided into two equal and also into two unequal parts, the rectangle contained by the unequal parts together with the square on the line between the points of section is equal to the square on half the line.

Prove this also algebraically, calling the line $2x$ and one of the parts $3y$.

N.B.—If any problem has to be continued on a second page the figure ought to be described again. Neatness and good arrangement are highly valued in this paper.

Algebra.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.

1. Reduce to lowest terms $\frac{3a^3 - 22a - 15}{5a^2 - 17a^3 + 11a}$.
2. Simplify :—
- A. $\frac{2a}{a-b} + \frac{3a}{a+b} - \frac{5a^2 - 7ab}{a^2 + b^2}$.
- B. $\frac{a^2}{(a-b)(a-c)} + \frac{b^2}{(b-a)(b-c)} + \frac{c^2}{(c-a)(c-b)}$.
3. Solve the equations :—
- A. $x - \frac{x-2}{3} = 5\frac{2}{3} - \frac{x+10}{5} + \frac{x}{4}$.
- B. $\left. \begin{aligned} \frac{3}{2}(x-1) &= \frac{3}{4}(y-1) \\ 2x - \frac{1}{3}y &= 7. \end{aligned} \right\}$
- C. $\left. \begin{aligned} x - y &= 3. \\ x^2 - y^2 &= 63. \end{aligned} \right\}$
4. Wishing to give £3 to each of a certain number of persons I find I have too little by £8; I therefore give each £2 and have £3 remaining. Find the number of persons.
5. An officer can form the men in his battalion into a solid square, and also into a hollow square 12 deep; if the front in the latter formation exceed the front in the former by 3, find the number of men.
- N.B.—The fourth or fifth question may be omitted by candidates for II B.

ANNEX L.

FIRST-CLASS TEACHERS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

1. [“To be or not to be that is the question
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles
*And by opposing end *them to die to sleep
No more and by a sleep to say we end
*The heartache and the thousand natural shocks*
That flesh is heir to 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd] to die to sleep
*To sleep perchance to dream aye *there's the rub
*For in that sleep of death what dreams *may come
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil
Must give us pause there's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life.”
- SHAKESPEARE.
- a. Supply the punctuation of the above passage.
- b. Arrange it in simple prose order.
- c. Give a paraphrase, or exhibit the meaning in other words.
- d. Parse the words in italics.*
- e. Analyze the portion within brackets.
2. Distinguish between the words “further” and “farther” as regards derivation, use, &c.
3. What are Latham's views with reference to “my,” “thy,” &c., and “mine,” “thine,” &c.
- * NOTE.—The Standard of the Training School is to be observed in the parsing; no other will be recognized. See also printed instructions issued to Examinees.

Arithmetic.

Males.

Three hours allowed.—At least five questions must be answered.

1. What vulgar fractions produce recurring decimals? What limit is there to the number of figures in the circulating period?
 What is the rule for reducing a mixed recurring decimal to a vulgar fraction? Give three examples by means of which you can deduce this rule.
2. Divide £7,623 15s. 11d. into three sums such that their amounts at 5 per cent. compound interest in 1, 2, and 3 years respectively may be equal.
3. A pipe whose bore is $6\frac{1}{2}$ square inches discharges 4 cwt. $20\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. of water in a minute. A cubic foot of water weighs 1,000 ozs. At what rate per hour does the water issue?
4. If the true discount on £407 1s. 1d., due at the end of 11 months, be £21 4s. 5d., what is the rate of interest?
5. A grocer on the whole gains 10 per cent. by selling equal quantities of black tea at 3s. 3d. per lb. and green tea at 5s. per lb. If he had sold the green tea alone at 5s. 6d. per lb. he would have gained $37\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on it. Find the prime cost of each kind of tea.
6. A person owning 56 Bank shares (£100 par.) which pay 8 per cent. sells them at £175, and after leaving the money in the bank at simple interest for 3 years at 7 per cent., invests the amount in 3 per cent. stock at 98. Find the change in his income.

Arithmetic.

Females.

Three hours allowed.—At least five questions must be answered.

1. Express decimally the difference between $\cdot 142857$ of $\cdot 125$ and $\cdot 142857$ of $\cdot 125$.
2. A person has shares worth £1,261 14s. 1d., amounting to $\frac{2}{3}$ ths of a property, and after purchasing additional shares worth $\frac{1}{3}$ th of his own, sells $\frac{1}{3}$ th of his whole interest in the property. What share has he left, and what is it worth?
3. A pipe whose bore is $6\frac{1}{2}$ square inches discharges 4 cwt. $20\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. of water in a minute. A cubic foot of water weighs 1,000 ozs. At what rate per hour does the water issue.
4. A man purchases gold-dust at £36 16s. per lb. troy, and sells it at £3 7s. 1d. per ounce avoirdupois. Find his gain per cent.
5. A room is 23 feet 9 inches long, and 19 feet $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch broad. Find the cost of covering it with carpet 27 inches wide at 5s. 3d. per yard. (Use fractions.)
6. I placed £204 17s. 7d. at 5 per cent. simple interest on 3rd August, 1881. By what date had I become entitled to £4 9s. $2\frac{1}{3}\frac{2}{3}$ d. interest?

Geography—Descriptive.

Three hours allowed.

1. What are the following productions? How or where are they obtained?—Malachite, opium, cinnamon, attar of roses, ivory, haschisch, vanilla, asafetida, amber, camphor, cinnabar, coca; cocoa.
2. Describe Canada or Chili.
3. What differences do you perceive between the north, middle, and southern belts or zones of France as regards climate, soil, and productions?
4. Give a full account of one of the Australian Colonies (New South Wales excepted).

Physical

Physical Geography.

Three hours allowed.

1. What is meant by the "horizontal profile" and "vertical profile" of land masses? Explain, with special reference to the map of Asia.
2. Give an account of the "Llanos," their drainage, climate, and productions.
3. Describe the Lake Regions of Africa.
4. Explain as fully as possible how the principle of isothermal and isochimnal lines would apply to the Australian Continent.

Principles of Teaching.

Three hours allowed.—Answer five questions at least: the last to be one.

1. Discipline.—Define the terms regularity and punctuality. State how these qualities should be cultivated in the light of forming the character of the future colonist.
2. Upon what principles should a teacher govern his school?

Give all the infinitives of mordeo, do, vincio, fero: and all the participles of morior, vinco, jacio, domo.

4. Translate into Latin :—

- a. You promised to return the book I lent you three days ago. Having now read it, why do you refuse to do what you have promised?
- b. Having addressed the people, Cæsar departed for Rome on the 30th of August.
- c. In his life-time he was envied, but after his death he was praised as the father of his country.
- d. Though I am very sorry for your misfortunes, yet I cannot forget the rashness with which you asserted that this was a matter of no importance to you.
- e. In the middle of the city of Thebes there is a large marsh, around which grow many tall trees, full of birds whose cheerful songs give the greatest possible pleasure. They are first heard among the new leaves in early Spring, and throughout the whole of the Summer they are never silent. What can be more sweet to a sick mind than these sweet sounds?
- f. It is the right of war that those who have conquered can govern those they have conquered as they like: the Roman People has been accustomed to govern the people they have conquered, not according to the dictation of another, but according to their own free will. If I do not dictate to the Roman people, how they shall use their privilege, it is not right that I should be hindered by you in my privilege.

(Put this into Oratio obliqua and Oratio recta.)

N.B.—In this particular paper the Latin in question 1, and the English in question 4, need not be transcribed. 1 B and 4 f. should be attempted for Class I A.

1. Enfin, toutes les difficultés étant aplanies, toutes ses volontés exécutées, après avoir humilié l'empereur, donné la loi dans l'empire, avoir protégé sa religion luthérienne au milieu des catholiques, se voyant la terreur de tous les princes, il se prépara à partir. Les délices de la Saxe, où il était resté oisif une année, n'avaient rien adouci sa manière de vivre. Il montait à cheval trois fois par jour, se levait à quatre heures du matin, s'habillait seul, ne buvait point de vin, ne restait à table qu'un quart d'heure, exerçait ses troupes tous les jours, et ne connaissait d'autre plaisir que celui de faire trembler l'Europe.

III erre au sein des bois : ô nuit silencieuse !
Prête ton ombre amie à sa course pieuse.
S'il doit souffrir encore, ô Dieu ! sois son appui ;
C'est la voix du hameau qui t'implore pour lui.
Et vous, qu'anime encore une rage cruelle,
Pardonnez aux vertus dont il est le modèle.
Aux cachots échappés, vingt fois chargé de fers.
Il prêche le pardon des maux qu'il a soufferts ;
Et chez l'infortuné, qui se plaint à l'entendre,
Il va sécher les pleurs que vous faites répandre.
En fuyant à travers ces fertiles vallons,
Pauvre et sans espérance il bénit les sillons,
Seul au courroux céleste, il s'offre pour victime,
Et dans ce siècle impie, où règne en paix le crime,
Lorsqu'un destin cruel nous condamne à souffrir,
Il nous apprend à vivre, et nous aide à mourir,

The interior of the cave, which here rose very high, was illuminated by torches made of pine-tree, which emitted a bright and bickering light, attended by a strong, though not unpleasant odour. Their light was assisted by the red glare of a large charcoal fire, round which were seated five or six armed Highlanders, while others were indistinctly seen couched on their plaids, in the more remote recesses of the cavern. In one large aperture, which the robber facetiously called his pantry, there hung by the heels the carcasses of a sheep, or ewe, and two cows lately slaughtered. The principal inhabitant of this singular mansion, attended by Evan Dhu as master of the ceremonies, came forward to meet his guest, totally different in appearance and manner from what his imagination had anticipated. The profession which he followed—the wilderness in which he dwelt—the wild warrior forms that surrounded him, were all calculated to inspire terror. From such accompaniments, Waverley prepared himself to meet a stern, gigantic, ferocious figure, such as Salvator would have chosen to be the central object of a group of banditti.—W. SCOTT.

IV. Give the first person singular and plural of—

(a.) The présent de l'indicatif, passé défini, and présent du subjonctif of adjoindre, déchoir, grasseyer, ouir, rompre, se taire.

(b.) The second person singular and plural of—the imparfait de l'indicatif, futur, and impératif of accourir, appuyer, cacheter, contenir, maintenir, traduire.

(c.) The participle présent and participle passé masculine and feminine of admettre, découder, croître, frir, promouvoir, seoir.

V. Give the English for—

(a.) Le manœuvre, la manœuvre, le pôle, le poêle, le solde, la solde.

(b.) State briefly the difference between :—Colorier, colorer; participer à, participer de; retrancher de, retrancher à.

VI. Correct the following sentences when necessary, and state which are correct and why.

1. Quelque soit la modération de nos désirs, ne nous croyions pas à l'abri des revers. 2. Thomas a dit, en parlant des grands : s'ils ont l'éclat du marbre, ils ont sa dureté. Que je suis malheureuse ! ô Ciel ! que je la suis ! 4. Votre sœur s'est achetée de belles robes. 5. Elle n'a pas rempli tous les devoirs qu'elle aurait dûs. 6. Plus il a eu de livres plus il en a lu.

Geometry.

Three hours allowed.—At least six propositions must be worked.

1. Equal triangles upon the same base, and on the same side of it, are between the same parallels. Hence show that if two sides of a triangle be bisected, the straight line which joins the points of bisection is parallel to the base.

2. Describe a square equal to a given rectilinear figure.

3. In a circle the angle in a semi-circle is a right angle, and the angle in a segment greater than a semi-circle is less than a right angle, and the angle in a segment less than a semi-circle is greater than a right angle. Prove this.

4. About a given circle describe a triangle equiangular to a given triangle.

5. If three straight lines be proportionals, the rectangle contained by the extremes is equal to the square on the mean.

6. Two circles have the same centre : show that all chords of the outer circle which touch the inner circle are equal.

7. A quadrilateral is described so that its sides touch a circle ; shew that two of its sides are together equal to the other two sides.

N.B.—If any problem has to be continued on a second page the figure ought to be described again.

Neatness and good arrangement are highly valued.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.

The first three questions must be answered with the fourth or fifth.

1. Find the G.C.M. of $$x^3 - 4x - 15 \text{ and } 2x^4 - 6x^3 + x^2 - 2x - 3.$$

2. Simplify—

$$A. \frac{a^2}{(a-b)(a-c)} + \frac{b^2}{(b-a)(b-c)} + \frac{c^2}{(c-a)(c-b)}$$

$$B. \sqrt{\frac{\sqrt{3}-1}{\sqrt{3}+1}} ; \left\{ a \sqrt{a^3 b \sqrt{ab^3}} \right\}^{\frac{1}{3}} \times \sqrt[12]{ab}$$

$$C. \frac{3}{1-2x} - \frac{7}{1+2x} - \frac{4-20x}{4x^2-1}$$

3. Solve the equations :—

$$A. x^2 + 5x - 10 + 2\sqrt{x^2 + 5x + 2} = 12.$$

$$B. \frac{1}{3}(x-1) - \frac{1}{4} \left\{ 2x - (x-3) \right\} = 2.$$

$$C. \begin{cases} 3x - 2y = 6 \\ 3y - 2z = 5 \\ 3z - 2x = 2 \end{cases}$$

4. A man sells a horse by lottery. If the tickets were 5s. each he would lose £5 ; if they were 6s. each he would gain £4. Find the number of tickets.

5. A man has two sons, one of them twice as old as the other, and the father's age is six times the united ages of the two boys ; in six years time the father's age will be only three times the united ages of his sons. Find the respective ages.

Plane Trigonometry.

Three hours allowed.—At least six questions must be answered.

1. Given $\log 2 = \cdot 3010300$, $\log 3 = \cdot 4771213$, find $\log \frac{27}{32}$, $\log \frac{2}{375}$, $\log \sqrt{5}$, $\log \sqrt[3]{\cdot 0020736}$, $\log 187\cdot 5$, and $\log \cdot 00288$.

2. If $\tan A = \sqrt{3}$, find all the other trigonometrical ratios of A.

3. Trace the variations in sign and magnitude of the tangent of an angle through the four quadrants.

4. Find the value of $\tan 2A$ in terms of $\tan A$.

5. Express the sine of an angle in any triangle in terms of the sides.

6. Prove the formulæ

$$\begin{aligned} \cos 2A &= \frac{1 - \tan^2 A}{1 + \tan^2 A} \\ \operatorname{Cosec} A &= \frac{\sec A}{\operatorname{cosec} A} \\ \frac{\operatorname{Cosec} A}{\sec A} + \frac{\sec A}{\operatorname{cosec} A} &= \sec A \operatorname{cosec} A \end{aligned}$$

7. The sides of a triangle are 3, 5, and 7 inches, respectively; find the angle contained by the two smaller sides, and the area of the triangle.

8. Solve the equation $\frac{1 + \tan A}{1 - \tan A} = \frac{3}{2} = -\sec 2A$.

Elements of Mechanics.

Three hours allowed.—At least four questions must be answered.

1. Define the terms equilibrium, resultant, fixed pulley, unlike parallel forces, moment of a force, centre of gravity.

2. Give the general expression for the resultant of two forces which act on a particle whatever be the angle between their directions.

Three forces act on a particle; the forces are 1 lb., 4 lbs., and 6 lbs. respectively, and the force of 4 lbs. is inclined at an angle of 60 deg. to each of the other forces; find the magnitude and the direction of the resultant.

3. Show how to find the centre of gravity of any number of heavy particles.

Find the centre of gravity of four weights, 1 lb., 2 lbs., 3 lbs., 4 lbs., placed at the angular points of a square.

4. What do you mean by a lever of the second class? Give an example.

On a uniform straight lever weighing 5 lbs., and 5 feet in length, weights of 1, 2, 3, 4 lbs. are hung at the distances of 1, 2, 3, 4 feet respectively from one end; find the position of the fulcrum on which the whole will rest.

5. Show that in the system of pulleys in which each pulley hangs by a separate string and all the strings are parallel, when there is equilibrium the weight is equal to the power multiplied by $2^n - n$ being the number of pulleys.

Find the magnitude of the weight in the second system of pulleys if it exceed the power by 40 lbs., and there are six parts of the string at the lower block.

Domestic Economy.

Two hours allowed.

1. Draw up, as for the guidance of a young housekeeper, twelve rules bearing upon domestic habits, dress, and food.

2. How do you wash flannel?

3. What, in your opinion, is the chief end of clothing? How is this best attained in semi-tropical countries, more especially in view of health and cleanliness?

4. In case of an accident to a limb causing the effusion of blood, how would you distinguish between the venous and the arterial fluid.

Physiology.

Three hours allowed.

1. Give a brief description of the circulation of the blood, and describe the corpuscles.

2. What are the functions of the liver?

3. Give an account of the development of the teeth.

4. Describe the process of digestion, and show the advantages of a mixed diet.

5. What are the auditory ossicles; what functions do they perform?

6. Describe fully how the blood is affected by breathing, and how the air inspired is affected by the blood.

7. Describe the structure of a muscle.

Physics.

Three hours allowed.

1. How would you make a Fahrenheit thermometer?

Find the degrees centigrade which correspond to 40 F, 10 F, 50 F; and the degrees Fahrenheit which correspond to -10 C, 10 C, 50 C.

2. Define specific gravity. How can we find the S.G. of (a) solids soluble in water, (b) solids insoluble in water, (c) liquids?

3. What do you mean by latent heat? What is the latent heat of water and of steam, and how were these facts found out?

4. Describe fully what takes place when a plate-glass electrical machine is at work. Use a diagram.

5. Explain the principle and construction of a telephone.

6. Explain fully (with diagram) the action of a prism on a ray of sunlight, and hence deduce the principle of the Spectroscope.

Chemistry.

Three hours allowed.

1. Give the chemical names and symbols of chalk, oil of vitriol, blue vitriol, green vitriol, white vitriol, lime, iron rust, choke damp, galena, tinstone.

2. What materials would you use to make (a) laughing gas, (b) hydrochloric acid, (c) chlorine, (d) carbon monoxide?

Give the chemical equations where you can.

3. How much of the different materials would be needed to make (a) 550 grammes of carbon di-oxide, (b) 240 grammes of oxygen, (c) 315 grammes of nitric acid?

4. Give definite tests for (a) nitric acid—free and combined, (b) carbonic di-oxide, (c) copper—native, in ore, and in solution.

5. Describe fully the manufacture of and means of purifying coal gas.

6. What are the alkaline metals? How can they be distinguished from other groups of metals?

7. What volume and what weight of different gases would one get by the decomposition of 1 lb. of pure water.

Approximately 100 cubic inches of hydrogen weigh $2\frac{1}{2}$ grains.

8. What are the chief constituents of the air? Give reasons for calling it a mechanical mixture, and not a chemical combination.

Geology.

Three hours allowed.

1. How do you account for the origin and formation of coral islands?

2. Enumerate the principal divisions of the Palæozoic rocks; and mention the forms of life most characteristic of them.

3. How do you account for the formation of mountain chains and valleys?

4. What are the chief rock-forming minerals? Give their chemical composition where you can.

5. Name six fossils characteristic of the carboniferous period.

6. Give an account of the glacial period—what are the principal indications of its existence?

Explain the geological action of frost, snow, glaciers, and icebergs.

7. Mention some of the characteristics of the Devonian rocks.

8. Under what circumstances can artesian wells be formed?

History.

History.

Three hours allowed.

- Trace the descent of Queen Victoria from Henry VII.
- State briefly what you know of The Corn Laws, Edgehill, the Cabal, Plassy, Saratoga, The Reform Bill, The Spanish Succession, Cabot, Langton, Habeas Corpus.
- When and how did England acquire the following :—
New South Wales, Canada, Bombay, Punjaub, Gibraltar, Jamaica, The Cape, Labuan, Mauritius, Cyprus?
- In what reigns did the following men live and for what are they remarkable :—Harvey, Washington, Addison, Wren, Claverhouse, Dryden, Wilkes, Cobden, Wilberforce, Newton?
- Write down the names of the Plantagenet Kings of England, giving the date of the accession of each, and the relation of each to the preceding one. Give what information you can as to the population of England, the social condition of the people, their literary productions, and religious movements during the latter part of this dynasty.
- Describe fully the relations between England and Scotland during the reigns of Edward I and Edward II, and between England and France during the reign of Henry V.

ANNEX M.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

1.

*“Nay do not think I flatter
For what advancement may I hope from thee
That no revenue hast but thy good spirits
To feed and clothe thee Why should the poor be flatter’d
No let the candied tongue lick absurd pomp
And crook the pregnant hinges of the knee
Where thrift may follow fawning Dost thou hear
[Since my dear soul was mistress of her choice
And could of men distinguish her election
Hath sealed thee for herself for thou hast been
As one in suffering all that suffers nothing
A man that fortune’s buffets and rewards
Has ta’en with equal thanks] and bless’d are those Whose blood and judgment are so well commingled
That they are not a pipe for Fortune’s finger
To sound what stop she pleases.”*

Hamlet: Act 3.

- Supply the punctuation of the above passage.
 - Paraphrase it, or give the author’s meaning in other words.
 - Parse the words in italics.
 - Analyse the portion in brackets.
- What historical or other associations are linked with the following words :—“Crusade,” “cabal,” “tribulation,” “arena,” “ostracise,” “thrall,” “recreant,” “Plantagenet.”
 - State some of Latham’s arguments showing the superiority, in certain particulars, of the Anglo-Saxon alphabet over that of the present age.
- NOTE on c. d. above :—The standards of the Training School only can be recognised in reference to these points.

Arithmetic.

Male Teachers.

Three hours allowed.—Six questions at least are to be answered.

- Explain the advantages that would result from a decimal coinage, giving examples.
- Give a formula by means of which you can calculate the rate per cent. at compound interest when the principal and time are given, or the time when the principal and rate per cent. are given. The compound interest on £200 for 3 years is £18 10s. 10·896d. Find the rate per cent.
- A pays B £230 as the present value of £300 due in 5 years. Which gains by the payment, and how much, interest being reckoned (1) at 5 per cent. simple interest, (2) at 5 per cent. compound interest?
- Two sums of money are to be divided among A, B, and C—one equally and the other in the proportion of 3, 5, 8. The shares of A and B amount altogether to £13 9s. and £16 19s. respectively. Determine the sums of money.
- A grocer buys 6 cwt. of sugar at 4d. per lb., 4 cwt. at 7d., and 1 cwt. 1 qr. at 8d.; and, after mixing them, sells $7\frac{1}{2}$ cwt. of the mixture at 6d. per lb. At what price per lb. must he sell the remainder so as to gain 25 per cent. on his outlay?
- What uniform duty must be charged on imported goods in order that a revenue may be raised equal to that which would be obtained by a duty of $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on $\frac{1}{3}$ th of the total value of the imports, 5 per cent. on $\frac{1}{10}$ ths, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the remainder?
- The discount on £574 3s. 4d. due 2 years 3 months hence is £32 10s. Find the rate per cent.
- If I sell 20 Government debentures (bearing interest at 5 per cent.) at the price of $100\frac{1}{2}$, and invest the proceeds in bank shares (par value £10) at £16 15s., giving a dividend of 12 per cent., how is my income affected?

Arithmetic.

Females.

Three hours allowed.—At least six questions must be answered.

- A person owned $\frac{1}{3}$ of a vessel and sold $\frac{2}{11}$ of $\frac{2}{3}$ of his share for £ $\frac{400}{33}$. What was the value of $\frac{1\frac{1}{2}}$ of $\frac{2}{3}$ of the vessel.
- Simplify $\cdot 227 \times 1 \cdot 571428 \div \frac{1}{3 + \frac{1}{4 + \frac{1}{2}}}$
- Eggs are bought at thirteen for a shilling, and sold at 13d. per dozen. Find the gain per cent.
- For what should goods worth £957 2s. 6d. be insured at 5 per cent., so as to cover in case of loss both the value of the goods and the premium?
- If 9 gallons of spirits at 9s. 3d. per gallon are mixed with 7 gallons at 10s. 6d. per gallon, how much water must be added to the mixture to reduce the value to 8s. 3d. per gallon?
- If I sell 20 Government debentures (bearing interest at 5 per cent.) at the price of $100\frac{1}{2}$, and invest the proceeds in bank shares at £16 15s. (par value being £10), giving a dividend of 12 per cent., how is my income affected?

7. Divide 8s. 6½d. amongst four persons in such a manner that the share of the first shall be $\frac{1}{2}$ that of the second, $\frac{2}{3}$ that of the third, and $\frac{1}{4}$ that of the fourth.
8. A person invests $\frac{2}{3}$ of his money in the 4 per cent. stock at 96; $\frac{1}{4}$ of it in bank shares (£25 paid up) at 80, which pay a dividend of 20 per cent. per annum; $\frac{1}{12}$ of it in a mine which returns nothing; and the remainder he lends on mortgage at 6 per cent. What rate of interest does he obtain on the whole of his money?

Geography.

Three hours allowed.

Answer five questions at least; the fifth to be one.

1. Describe concisely the purposes subserved by mountain chains in the physical economy of the Globe.
2. Describe the general physical aspect of the Asiatic Steppes.
3. Account for the varying degrees of saltness experienced throughout the Atlantic and its arms.
4. Describe one of the African River basins.
5. Describe in words, or show by means of an outline map, the direction or probable bearing of isothermal lines in New South Wales, assuming the point of starting to be the Eastern sea-board.
6. Describe as fully as possible one of the countries of Southern Europe.
7. To an observer on the North Cape of Iceland, or under the Arctic Circle, what would be the appearance or position of the sun at midnight on the 21st of December, and again on the 21st of June.

Principles of Teaching.

Three hours allowed.

Give specimens of copy-lines—three hands—in your first answer.

1. Describe the methods proposed by Jacotot, Wood, and Pillans for teaching young children to read.
2. Summarize Morell's views as to the "reproduction of ideas" and the faculty of representation.
3. Explain why teachers have to complain that pupils forget knowledge almost as soon as acquired.
4. Give full notes of an Object Lesson—High Class—on one of the following:—
Water as a motive power.
Snow crystals.
The eye.
5. The easiest way of learning a subject is not always the safest or best. How can this be proved?

English Literature.

Three hours allowed.

One question may be omitted if desired, but not the 2nd, 5th, nor 6th.

1. Explain why Cædmon is referred to as the "Father of Anglo-Saxon Poetry."
2. Describe the literary labours of King Alfred. Can you suggest the source, origin, or probable inspiration of the following passage in his works:—"True nobility is in the mind, not in the flesh." Cite any parallels from literature.
3. What are the more prominent objections which have been taken to the title and construction of the "Faery Queene"?
4. What early translators of classic authors appeared in the 16th century? Describe the labours of one of them.
5. Give a description of the "pleasures of imagination."
6. In what relation does Cowper as a poet stand to Thomson? Describe the relations in which both stand to Pope.
7. How did the term "school" in relation to literature come first to be applied? Explain its meaning fully.

Domestic Economy.

Three hours allowed.

1. Explain what is meant by "fibrine," "gluten," "albumen," and "casein," and by "nitrogenous foods." Shew the advantages arising from the use of a mixed diet.
2. To what does soap owe its cleansing properties?
3. Why is it an advantage that man should have been left to provide his own clothing?
4. Give some practical hints on—
a. The choice of colours.
b. The character of the head-dress.

Euc'id.

Three hours allowed.

1. The straight lines bisecting the angles at the base of an isosceles triangle meet the sides at D and E. Shew that DE is parallel to the base.
2. Divide a straight line into two parts so that the rectangle contained by the whole line and one of the parts may be equal to the square on the other part.
3. Prove that the angles in the same segment of a circle are equal to one another, taking first the case in which the segment is less than a semicircle.
4. Two circles, whose centres are A and B, intersect at C. Through C draw two chords DCE and FCG equally inclined to AB and terminated by the circles. Show that DE and FG are equal.
5. About a given circle describe a triangle equiangular to a given triangle.
6. Divide a given straight line similarly to a given divided straight line.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.—No. 6 or No. 7 may be omitted.

1. Find the G.C.M. of $12x^3 + 30x^2 + 60x + 48$ and $18x^3 - 9x^2 + 9x - 63$.
2. Simplify

$$A. \frac{1}{2x^2 - 4x + 2} + \frac{1}{2x^2 + 4x + 2} + \frac{1}{1 - x^2}$$

$$\frac{a}{b} - \frac{b}{a} - \frac{a^2}{b^2} - \frac{b^2}{a^2}$$

3.

3. What are the values of $\binom{3}{-4}^{m-1}$ when $m = 0, 1, 2$, respectively?

4. Solve the equations

$$\begin{cases} \text{A. } x^2 + 3x - 6 = \sqrt{x^2 + 3x}. \\ \text{B. } \begin{cases} x + y = 7 \\ x^3 + y^3 = 91 \end{cases} \end{cases}$$

5. Simplify

$$\text{A. } \frac{x^2}{a - \sqrt{a - x^2}} - \frac{x^2}{a + \sqrt{a^2 - x^2}}$$

$$\text{B. } \frac{\sqrt{14 + 6\sqrt{5}}}{a^{-1} + b^{-1}} \cdot \frac{a^{-2} - b^{-2}}{a^{-2} + b^{-2}}$$

6. The present income of a railway company would justify a dividend of 4 per cent. on the total share capital, but as £200,000 of the stock consists of preference shares, which are guaranteed 5 per cent. per annum, the dividend for the remaining ordinary shares is only $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. What is the total amount of stock?

7. Extract the square root of $$x^4 - 6x^3y^{-1} + 2\frac{2}{3}x^{-2}y^{-2} - 2x^{-1}y^3 + \frac{1}{3}y^{-4}.$$

Plane Trigonometry.

Three hours allowed.—No. 6B or No. 8 may be omitted.

1. Given $\log 2 = .3010300$, $\log 3 = .4771213$, find $\log 27$, $\log 36$, $\log 54$, $\log .0025$, \log $.123456790$, and $\log .0053$.

2. Show how to express the sine, cosine, and tangent of half an angle in terms of the sides.

3. Trace the changes in the secant of an angle as the angle varies from 0 to 360 deg.

4. Show how to express the sine of the sum of two angles in terms of the sines and cosines of the angles themselves.

5. Find an expression for the area of a triangle in terms of the sides.

6. Demonstrate these identities:—

$$\begin{aligned} \text{A. } & \frac{\sin^2 A - \sin^2 B}{\sin A \cos A - \sin B \cos B} = \tan(A + B) \\ \text{B. } & \frac{2 \sin A - \sin 2A}{2 \sin A + \sin 2A} = \tan^2 \frac{A}{2} \end{aligned}$$

Elements of Mechanics.

Three hours allowed.

1. Define the terms—centre of parallel forces, centre of gravity, fulcrum, a lever of the first class, inclined plane, resultant.

2. Demonstrate the parallelogram of forces so far as relates to the direction of the resultant, the forces being commensurable.

3. Three forces 3, 4, 5 act on a particle in the centre of a square in directions towards three of the angles of the square: find the magnitude and the direction of the resultant.

4. Show how to find the resultant and centre of six parallel forces. Find the centre of like parallel forces of 1, 2, and 3 lbs. acting on a bar at distances 4, 6, and 7 inches respectively from one end.

5. Show that in the system of pulleys in which the same string passes round all the pulleys, and the parts of it between the pulleys are parallel, when there is equilibrium the weight is equal to the power multiplied by the number of parts of the string at the lower block.

Find what power will sustain a weight of 24 lbs. if the weights of the pulleys in the first system, commencing with the highest, be 1, 2, 5, 6 lbs. respectively.

6. Find the centre of gravity of a cube, from one corner of which a cube whose edge is half the edge of the first has been removed.

FUNERAILLES D'ATALA.

Cependant une barre d'or se forma dans l'Orient. Les éperviers criaient sur les rochers, et les martres reentraient dans le creux des ormes : c'était le signal du convoi d'Atala. Je chargeai le corps sur mes épaules ; l'ermite marchait devant moi, une bêche à la main. Nous commençâmes à descendre de rochers en rochers ; la vieillesse et la mort ralentissaient également nos pas. A la vue du chien qui nous avait trouvés dans la forêt, et qui maintenant, bondissant de joie, nous traçait une autre route, je me mis à fondre en larmes. Souvent, la longue chevelure d'Atala, jouet des brises matinales, étendait son voile d'or sur mes yeux ; souvent, pliant sous le fardeau, j'étais obligé de le déposer sur la mousse, et de m'asseoir auprès, pour reprendre des forces. Enfin, nous arrivâmes au lieu marqué par ma douleur ; nous descendîmes sous l'arche du pont. O mon fils ! il eût fallu voir un jeune sauvage et un vieil ermite à genoux l'un vis-à-vis de l'autre dans un désert, creusant avec leurs mains un tombeau pour une pauvre fille dont le corps était étendu près de là, dans la ravine desséchée d'un torrent.—CHATEAUBRIAND ; ATALA.

 With fainting steps and slow,
 Where wilds, immeasurably spread,
 Seem lengthening as I go.”

“ For shame, fond youth, thy sorrows hush,
 And spurn the sex,” he said :
 But while he spoke, a rising blush
 His love-lorn guest betrayed,

“ Forbid it, Heaven !” the Hermit cried,
 And clasped her to his breast :
 The wondering fair one turned to chide,—

 Thy own, thy long-lost Edwin here,
 Restored to love and thee.”

5. Apply the rules relating to the construction of French pronouns in the translation of the following sentences :—

A.—Do you understand French pronouns? I wish that you may succeed in your examination. This is the hardest part of it. Do you know Paris? I have been there twice. You do not know the gentleman who is to examine your papers. He is French, but his mother is Italian. I should like to see Victor Hugo; will you show him to me? My son has never seen Marshal M'Mahon, will you show him to him? If I had known that well I would not have presented myself there. I shall speak to them about it to-morrow. I have not yet sent to them any of it. Did you not receive any from them? What is an academicien? I shall go there. Send them some. I did not give it to him, I lent it him. What are you thinking of? I was thinking of you. I will send some there for you.

B.—It is I who say so. Were you speaking of my school? We were. Have you had any bon bons? She has not had any. Give her some. Do not give him any. Buy me a quire of note-paper. She has cut herself. He broke his leg. Why do you not wash your face? She has cut her finger. Have you got a watch? No, I have not one. He does not improve in that language because he does not apply himself to it. Which of these two ladies is the prettier? That. Ladies and gentlemen, here is a young lady who will sing us a song. These are the last sentences. I hope I shall pass with credit. So do I. DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

TRAINING SCHOOL.

REPORT UPON THE TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THE YEAR 1882.

DURING the year 40 males and 54 females were enrolled; of these 3 females withdrew, leaving the number in training, 40 males and 51 females.

As in previous years, the Students were divided into two Classes, Upper and Lower.

The term of six months' training having been found too short for Teachers designed for the more important schools, the Minister for Public Instruction decided that, after 1st July, 1882, the students of the Upper Class should in future undergo a course of twelve months training, consequently those of the Upper Class who entered at that time, 9 males and 20 females, remained in December to prosecute their studies. As the number of Pupil-teachers and Teachers of Small Schools who sought admission to the Training School was considerably larger than in previous years, only eight applicants who had not been in the service of the Department of Public Instruction were admitted.

The Upper Class consisted almost solely of Pupil-teachers who had served at least three years in the Public Schools of the Colony, and whose attainments and practical skill were deemed satisfactory by the Examiners. The Lower Class comprised those Pupil-teachers who had failed to reach the standard of proficiency requisite for admission to the Upper Class; Teachers of Provisional and Small Schools who had during a considerable length of service shewn an aptitude for the profession they had adopted; and the few already referred to, viz., 8, who had not previously been teaching under the Department.

The Teaching Staff consisted of the Training Master, Assistant Training Master, and the following visiting Teachers, who attended each week for the number of hours placed opposite their respective names :—

Teacher of French	3 hours.
Teacher of Singing	2 "
Teacher of Drawing	4 "
Teacher of Drill and Calisthenics	4 "
Teacher of Physics and Chemistry	2 "

Also—

The Master of Method, who had charge of the Students (males)...	4 "
The Mistress of Method, who had charge of the females	4 "

The teacher of Physics and Chemistry resigned in July last.

Practical

Practical Training.

Wednesday in each week was devoted to practical training, when the students attended the Model Schools and were employed in teaching classes and observing how the schools were conducted. They were occasionally required to criticise each others lessons, the males in the presence of the master, and the females under the supervision of the Mistress of Method. The different methods of conveying instruction to pupils also received particular attention.

Physical Training.

The physical training, which consisted of Military Drill and Gymnastics for the male and drill and calisthenics for the female students, was conducted by an experienced instructor. The physique and general health of the students, both male and female, were much improved by these exercises, and contrasted favourably with the health of those who attended the Training School previous to the introduction of Drill.

Examinations.

All applicants for training were required to pass an examination before admission, those being rejected who did not come up to the required standard. There were also monthly examinations to test the progress of the students, and at the end of each session a final examination for the purpose of classification. The monthly examinations proved a valuable aid to the officers of the Institution, as they stimulated the students to study, and also gave the Examiners, while conducting them, an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with the students, which no doubt materially assisted when forming an estimate of each at the close of the final examination.

Conduct, &c.

The students were regular and punctual in their attendance, well conducted, and attentive while under instruction, and in their moral characters irreproachable and exemplary. It is gratifying to be in a position to state that for the past thirteen years, during which time 1,200 students, male and female, have passed through the Training School, only one has been expelled for misconduct.

Course of Study.

Upper Class :—

- Reading and Elocution* : Including repetition from memory.
- Arithmetic* : Whole subject in Theory and Practice.

- Drawing* : From the Flat, from Models, also Mathematical and Perspective.
- Military Drill and Gymnastics* (males).
- Drill and Calisthenics* (females).

Lower Class :—

- Reading and Elocution.*
 - School Management.*
 - Vocal Music.*
 - Public Schools Act and Regulations.*
 - Domestic Economy.*
 - Military Drill and Gymnastics.*
 - Drill and Calisthenics.*
- } Same as Upper Class.
- Arithmetic* : Theory and Practice of Vulgar and Decimal Fractions. Practice, Proportion, including Simple Interest, and Profit and Loss, Square Root.
 - Geography* : Descriptive.
 - English Grammar* : Parsing, Analysis of Sentences, Composition.
 - British History* : From earliest times to the end of the Plantagenet period.
 - Drawing* : From the Flat, Freehand, Elementary Perspective.

The work of the Training School is regulated by Programmes and a Time-table. The following is a synopsis of the latter, showing the time appropriated to each subject during a week.

SATURDAY CLASSES.

Every Saturday the Pupil-teachers of the Sydney district, and some from the adjacent districts, to the number of 95 males and 249 females attended at the Training School for three hours, for instruction in Latin, Mathematics, French, Vocal Music, and occasional lectures on English Grammar, Arithmetic, and School Management. These young people were both punctual and regular, and on the whole conducted themselves with propriety. These classes have conferred a benefit on the pupil teachers who attended, as many of them had no other opportunities of receiving instruction in most of the subjects abovementioned, especially those more advanced.

In taking a review of the past work of the Training School there is evidence that it has met the educational requirements to be expected from such an institution. Several of its former students now hold high positions under the Department, some being District Inspectors, some Inspectors, and many others Head Masters of Superior and High-Class Schools. With its present organization and staff of teachers it is in a position to train the large number of teachers which the increasing demands of the Colony will require.

 1881.—First-class Certificate of Merit, from Dr. B. W. Richardson, M.D., LL.D., F.R.V., for proficiency in Domestic Sanitation.—Given with Edwin Chadwick's prize of five guineas.
 1882.—First-class Certificate of Merit, from B. W. Richardson, M.D., LL.D., F.R.V., for proficiency in Domestic Sanitation.—Given with the Lady Sudley prize of one guinea.
 1882.—A Certificate from St. John's Ambulance Association.

Copied 29 June, 1882,—

CAROLINE MALLET.

The Rev. J. B. Faunthorpe, M.A., F.R.G.S., Principal of Whitelands College, to Sir Henry Parkes.

Sir,

Whitelands College, 29 June, 1882.

I have very special pleasure in testifying to the exceptional ability of Miss Mallett for the post she is seeking.

She was trained by me nearly seven years ago. She was the first student of her year out of seventy (facile princeps). She obtained, of course, a first-class in both the secular and religious knowledge lists. She gave the best lesson of her year before Her Majesty's Inspector, and was marked excellent for it. The Council appointed her Governess of the College at my recommendation, and she has more than justified my choice. Indeed I am very sorry that she is leaving.

The reports on her parchment certificate, of which she encloses copies, show that she is an excellent teacher. She is an excellent disciplinarian and manager. The students like her, and she makes them get on with her work. I consider she is quite competent, not only to manage your College, but, as she is both theoretically and practically acquainted with the best English methods and has measured their success, also to make it a success.

She is a very excellent teacher, practical and theoretical, of school management, pedagogy; and has some knowledge of the Kindergarten system. She is thoroughly familiar with all parts of the work of a Training College—teaching, examination discipline, &c.

Besides her Certificate from the Education Department of the First-class, she holds the following Certificates :—

(a.) Obtained when a student—

1. First-class Archbishop's Certificate.
2. Full Drawing Certificate, “D.”
3. Physical Geography, 2nd Class Advanced Stage, Science and Art Department.
4. Botany, do. do., First-class.

(b.) Obtained since she has been Governess with me—

- | | |
|---|-------------------------------|
| 1. First-class Advanced Stage Physiology, Science and Art Department. | |
| 2. { “ in Domestic Sanitation | } Edwin Chadwick, Esq., prize |
| 3. { “ Dr. Richardson's 1st Course | |
| 4. “ “ 2nd Course. | Lady Sudely prize. |
| 5. “ St. John's Ambulance Society. | |

Besides Pedagogy and Geography, she has taught very successfully the following sciences :—Physiology, Botany.

I can only say, in conclusion, that I am the more regretful, after seeing this list of certificates than I was before that she is leaving me; but as it is for an increase of her usefulness I am content. I ought to add that by her own endeavours she has a very fair knowledge of Greek, Latin, and French.

She is, I believe, a consistent Churchwoman, and will be an ornament to any College.

I am, &c.,

JNO. B. FAUNTHORPE, M.A., F.R.G.S.,
Principal.

Miss Stanley, Governess, Whitelands College, to Sir Henry Parkes.

Sir,

Whitelands College, 29 June, 1882.

It affords me great pleasure to be able most cordially to testify to Miss Mallett's high personal character, as well as to her unusual ability as a teacher. After having successfully completed her two years' training in this College, she was appointed governess, and has performed the duties of her position in an exemplary manner. For the last six years she has been in constant daily association with the other officers of the College staff, to each and all of whom she has ever shown herself readily obliging. To the students she has been sympathetic and kind. They all love and respect her, and appreciate the value both of her lessons in class and her help to them individually. She is frank and ingenuous, and with strict firmness of discipline blends affectionate kindness of manner. Miss Mallett is an excellent needlewoman, and as a senior student took the first prize for needlework. She is fond of the subject, and is thoroughly competent to teach it in all its branches. She has always assisted me with the students, and has given very successful collective lessons both in needlework and cutting out to a class of seventy. She is perfectly familiar with the requirements of the New Code, Schedule III, and I do not know anyone more competent to teach students to fulfil them. She is clear and decisive in her directions, and exact in her statements. I am extremely sorry to lose her, as I know that I shall have the utmost difficulty to replace her in my workroom.

For

For more than twenty years I have been a governess in Whitelands, and in 1876 I became head governess, and have taught needlework all that period. Quite recently, too, I have been elected Fellow of the Royal Botanical Society.

I am, &c.,

KATE STANLEY.

From Mrs. Newton, Superintendent, Whitelands College.

Whitelands College, 29 June, 1882.

Mrs. NEWTON has great pleasure in recommending Miss Caroline M. Mallett as a thoroughly efficient manager in practical domestic economy. Miss Mallett has passed through the College cookery classes; has been a great help in arranging the dormitories and linen presses, blankets, &c.; and understands sanitary arrangements of offices.

Mrs. Newton is in her tenth year as Superintendent of Whitelands College; was formerly Superintendent of the R. S. Hants Infirmary, Southampton, and out through the greater part of the Crimean War as nurse. Mrs. Newton was recommended to this College by the late Bishop Wilberforce, by General Lord William Paulet, who had command of the Forces in Bosphorus in the Crimean War, and by Rev. W. H. Brookfields, H.M.I. Schools.

APPENDIX XVIII.

CHIEF INSPECTOR'S GENERAL REPORT FOR 1882.

A SLIGHT change has been made in the inspectoral arrangements since the date of my last report. The Armidale District has been divided, and a new district, having Grafton for its head quarters, has been formed. The work of inspection is now done by eight district inspectors and fifteen inspectors. In addition, an emergency inspector is employed to look after matters of an urgent or special character. This staff is not sufficient to ensure the inspection of existing schools. A good deal of an inspector's time is necessarily taken up with inquiries of various kinds and with other matters not directly connected with inspection. No doubt can be entertained as to the value of an efficient system of inspection, and that it may be efficient every school should be thoroughly inspected at least twice a year. To provide for this would probably require the present number of inspectors to be doubled. With the additional eight assistant inspectors however provided for in the Estimates for the current year we shall be enabled to do much. We shall, it is hoped, be in a position to arrange for the inspection of all schools once a year and for a second inspection of all schools found in an unsatisfactory condition, while the inspectors will be able not only to make incidental visits to schools with tolerable frequency, but to do their other duties with more efficiency and despatch.

One or more circumstances tended during the past year to make the number of inspected schools relatively smaller than usual. The vacancy in the Yass section of the Wagga Wagga District, caused by the promotion of Mr. Inspector James M. Credie to the charge of the Grafton District, was not filled up for a long period, and as a natural result the work in that section fell very much into arrear. To assist in overtaking the arrears inspectors had to be withdrawn from other districts and their own work was thereby seriously affected. Despite these drawbacks, however, no less than 1,658 schools or departments were fully inspected, being an increase of 112 on the number inspected in 1881. This comparatively satisfactory result was mainly due to the strenuous efforts put forth by several of the inspectors to overtake arrears. The uninspected schools, numbering 137, lie chiefly in the Metropolitan, Wagga Wagga, Bathurst, Grafton, Armidale, and Wellington Districts. Many of these were not in operation at the time of the inspectors' visits to the several localities in which they lie.

The number of schools or departments open during 1882, or any portion thereof, was 1,795. Last year the number was 1,667. The difference (128) represents the increase in the number of schools for the period covered by this report.

In anticipation of the closing of Denominational Schools at the end of 1882, measures were taken to provide the necessary school accommodation for those children who might thereby be deprived of the means of education, and it is believed that these measures have been attended with fair success. In country districts suitable sites for school buildings had been secured in former years. In towns, where the accommodation afforded by existing Public Schools was insufficient, the Denominational School-houses or other premises have been rented, while in other cases tents or temporary wooden buildings have been put up. Much concern was felt to meet the educational necessities of Sydney, as the largest and most flourishing Denominational Schools existed here. It is believed that everything that could be done to meet the emergency has been done. Sites have been secured or recommended for resumption in almost all places where schools ought to exist. Temporary buildings have been put up on some of these and permanent buildings are going up on others, while in several instances suitable premises have been rented for school purposes.

With few exceptions schools are well distributed. It is doubtful if half a dozen places capable of supporting schools could be cited that are wholly unprovided with the means of education. A few of the metropolitan schools are overcrowded, but this has arisen rather from the popularity of the teachers than from lack of accommodation to meet the wants of the children actually residing in the school districts in which such schools are placed.

Few complaints have been received respecting the furnishing or equipment of schools. The inspectors are tolerably agreed that reasonable liberality is shown by the Department in dealing with this branch of school organization. One or two seem to think that the supply of diagrams and other pictorial illustrations to Infant Schools might judiciously be enlarged, and I am inclined to hold the same view. It is expected that some improvements will be made in this matter during the year.

The discipline of our schools continues to be in a very satisfactory state. Military drill is receiving increased attention, and the usual school movements are performed in a quiet, orderly manner. Some of the inspectors complain of the loss of time caused by marching pupils into and out of school; and speaking from my own observation I consider that complaint to be well founded. Teachers of the larger schools do not as a rule utilize all the means at their disposal for moving pupils rapidly. No matter how many entrances a schoolroom may have it is customary to take all the pupils through one, and where seven or eight classes under as many teachers, and numbering some four or five hundred children, are so moved, the time consumed in the process is very great. It were well if teachers would make use of all the available means of ingress and egress afforded by their schoolrooms and accustom their pupils to move rapidly and quietly from one place to another. Playground supervision, although generally well attended to, has in several instances been found to be lax and ineffective. In such cases the teachers for the most part have proved to be not only inexperienced but unmindful of other and more important essentials of school discipline.

Lavatories are attached to most schools. In some cases, however, they are imperfectly equipped; in others their uses are but partially recognised. While in the matter of cleanliness pupils and schoolrooms show to advantage, it cannot be said that all is done that should be done in connection with this subject. "Inspection on the lines" is too often gone through by teachers in a careless, indifferent way, and the fostering of habits of cleanliness among pupils receives from some teachers but small attention.

The

The government in use in schools is mild. Corporal punishment is in general resorted to only in extreme cases and when other means of removing disorder have failed. It is to be regretted, however, that some teachers do not discriminate as to the breaches of school disciplines that justify the use of corporal punishment. Natural dulness cannot be quickened into intelligence by the use of the cane, nor can a bad memory be improved by like means; some teachers seem to think they can. The infliction of punishment under such circumstances is not only wrong but nearly always a sure sign that the teaching is poor and ineffective. Year by year the aids for the maintenance of good order are becoming better understood and applied by teachers, and, in an equal degree, harsh forms of government are disappearing from our schools.

The character of school attendance may be seen from the subjoined statement :—

No. of pupils enrolled during the year.....	189,141
Do. enrolled for March quarter	130,507
Do. in average attendance for March quarter...	88,672 or 67 per cent.
Do. enrolled for June quarter	135,021
Do. in average attendance for June quarter ...	88,443 or 65 per cent.
Do. enrolled for September quarter.....	137,917
Do. in average attendance for September quarter	95,903 or 69 per cent.
Do. enrolled for December quarter	135,645
Do. in average attendance for December quarter	90,758 or 66 per cent.
Do. in ordinary attendance about	102,000

The important facts disclosed by these figures are that while the quarterly enrolment shows an increase of 7 per cent. for the year, the average attendance is little better than it was in 1881. Pupils continue to attend school very irregularly, and this is the main reason why they fail to make greater progress in learning. The evil is a great one and there does not appear to be any complete remedy for it.

Instruction in our schools is regulated by a time-table, a programme of lessons, and the standard of proficiency. These documents are intended to secure to each subject a fair amount of attention, to make the teaching regular and systematic, and to invest it with a definite aim. It cannot be said that these objects are attained by the lesson guides met with in a large number of schools inasmuch as the time-tables are badly drawn up, the apportionment of time to the different subjects is ill-judged, and the arrangement and order of the lessons evidence a want of forethought and skill. The defects of the programmes are even more glaring. In these no reasonable attempt is made to fix the rate of progress required in each subject, while the entries are for the most part vague and general. For educational purposes, therefore, they are well-nigh useless. On the other hand it must be admitted that our best teachers bestow great attention on the preparation of the lesson documents. Not only do they see that they form safeguards against desultory and aimless teaching, but they take care that their provisions are faithfully observed.

The standard of proficiency in use does not equitably meet the wants of our schools. It exacts the same amount of progress from all schools without regard to size, teaching strength, or other conditions, and it deals with all subjects as of equal value. To do away with these anomalies new standards have been drawn up. These, when brought into use, will, it is hoped, not only tend to add to the efficiency of school instruction, but will recognize more fully and equitably the varying circumstances under which teachers labour. Perhaps, however, the especial feature of these standards is the differential values assigned in them to the several branches of instruction. Instead of, as in the existing standards, awarding the same values to all subjects, an attempt is made in the new standards to estimate each subject in the order of its importance, and with especial reference to the difficulty of teaching it. In the lower classes for example, reading, writing, and arithmetic, are recognized as of most value, and such marks are allotted to each as will induce teachers to strive to produce high results in those branches. On the other hand, grammar, geography, object lessons, drawing, and singing are dealt with as of minor importance, the number of marks assigned to each being relatively small. The justness of this arrangement will be seen at a glance. A good deal of downright hard teaching is required to produce appreciable results in reading, writing, and arithmetic, while knowledge gained in those branches is not only of a permanent kind but forms the basis of all other knowledge. As regards grammar, geography, and the other subjects taught to the lower classes, the instruction conveyed therein is for the most part of a shadowy kind and adds little to the knowledge of young children. The lessons ordinarily given in these branches are limited in number and of a routine character. Once received by a class they are readily revived and are greatly relied upon in examinations by teachers who have neglected the more essential branches. They form what may be termed the showy subjects and offer a great temptation to teachers to "cram."

Of the 1,658 schools inspected, 63 per cent. were up to or above the standard and 37 per cent. below it. Last year, the corresponding percentages were 56 and 44 respectively. There is, therefore, a substantial improvement in the condition of schools. This improvement is the more noticeable when it is borne in mind that a large increase took place in the number of inspected schools. Not only has the teaching become more efficient but greater attention has been bestowed by teachers on school organization, while in the matter of discipline the former standard of excellence has been fully maintained.

In the examinations held during the past year special attention has been directed to the subject of reading. This step was the result of an opinion very generally entertained by the members of the inspecting staff that the methods ordinarily used in the teaching of reading were susceptible of improvement. For some time it has been felt that the rate of progress made in this most important branch of education by the pupils of the lower classes was inadequate, and inquiries have been going on with a view to ascertain the causes of this want of progress. Foremost among these is the small amount of time given to individual reading. Owing to the large size of the classes in many schools only a part of the pupils are able to read before the time fixed for the lesson expires, and those that do read are, as a rule, not permitted to read more than one sentence. It is found, too, that exemplar reading by the teacher is sparingly given and that simultaneous reading by the pupils is seldom practised. The want of classrooms may account for this latter omission. Another cause of the slow progress made in reading by the junior pupils lies in the character of the primers in use. Too much time is required to get through three primers and it would be an advantage both to teachers and pupils if the number could be reduced to two, or better still, to one. In all the classes, there is a tendency to subordinate the reading to explanations of matters arising out of the lessons. Explanation of words and of doubtful points is both necessary and useful, but it may be overdone, and, as a matter of fact, is overdone. Greater efforts are needed to train the pupils to articulate distinctly, to pronounce correctly, and to read slowly and intelligibly. If more attention were given to committing to memory passages of poetry and prose, and to recitations, a great improvement in the reading of the higher classes might be confidently looked for.

Of 91,985 pupils examined in reading, the proficiency of 76 per cent. ranged from fair to good, while the proficiency of 24 per cent. ranked from tolerable to indifferent. Last year the corresponding percentages were 72 and 28 respectively.

The time has arrived when an approved series of copy-books should be used in all schools. Those met with are of various kinds and qualities. Their selection appears to be left to parents and pupils; cheapness is the main consideration that determines the choice. Writing is best taught in schools where the copy-lines are set on the blackboard, and illustrations of badly formed letters given to the pupils. To secure adequate progress, the writing should be examined after the pupils have written five or six lines, and two or three different head-lines should appear on the same page. There is no other subject in which less attempt is made to base the teaching on well-defined and intelligible methods.

methods. In the lower classes the slates are frequently unruled and the pupils' work poorly supervised. Notwithstanding the absence of system in teaching this subject, it was found that out of 90,164 examined, 83 per cent. met the standard. The percentage last year was 80, so that some improvement is shown.

Arithmetic occupies a somewhat better position than it did last year; nevertheless, the results obtained in this subject are still unsatisfactory. It should be stated, however, that the character of the examinations held in arithmetic by our inspectors is more than ordinarily severe, the questions being framed mainly to test the thinking power of the pupils. While it is desirable that this aim should not be lost sight of, it is but fair to teachers that a reasonable proportion of the questions should be of the ordinary kind. As one result of my recent conferences with inspectors it may be expected that a fairer and more uniform standard will be used in examinations in arithmetic.

Of 84,189 pupils examined, 70 per cent. were working the simple rules, 20 per cent. the compound rules, and 10 per cent. the higher rules. Those ratios are slightly better than similar ones given in last year's report. The most satisfactory result disclosed by them is the increased number of pupils learning the higher rules. Of those examined in the lower rules, 56 per cent. gained or exceeded the mark fair, and 44 per cent. earned marks ranging between indifferent and tolerable. In the compound rules the work of 50 per cent. reached or exceeded the mark fair, while that of an equal number did not exceed tolerable. In the higher rules the corresponding percentages were 58 and 42 respectively.

The methods used in teaching arithmetic are gradually improving. They are less mechanical than formerly, a more general attempt is made to impart a knowledge of first principles, and oral explanations with a free use of the blackboard is more fully relied on as a means to make the teaching effective.

Grammar is taught in Primary Schools to all classes above the first. It is doubtful if anything is gained by requiring it to be taught at so early a stage of the school course. Having regard to its abstract character and to the nice distinctions of which it treats, the methods employed in teaching the subject are fairly suitable and skilful. Undue prominence is given to parsing and analysis, while the synthesis of sentences is treated as of minor importance. It should be stated, however, that the inspectors are directing their examinations so as to secure to prose composition a proper share of attention.

47,112 pupils were examined in grammar, 24,635 in the elements, and 22,427 in the more advanced parts of the subject. Of those examined in the elements, 63 per cent. gained or exceeded the mark fair, and 37 per cent. marks not so high. In advanced grammar, 61 per cent. gained or exceeded the mark fair, while the remainder did less satisfactorily. These results are slightly better than those obtained in the preceding year.

Elementary geography is taught with fair ability. The lessons therein are confined to the higher classes in Infants' Schools and the lower classes in Primary Schools, and are given chiefly by pupil-teachers. They are marked by several defects. They lack systematic arrangement, they are not sufficiently illustrated by maps and diagrams, and they are overburdened with talk. The teaching begins at the wrong end of the subject. The pupils are made to learn definitions of pure abstractions before they have acquired a knowledge of the locality in which they live. In some of the larger schools, under energetic, able teachers, where the teaching of the pupil-teachers is intelligently directed and their work regularly tested, the lessons in elementary geography are well and effectively given. Advanced geography is somewhat more skilfully handled; but even here the teaching is not what it should be. Text-books are too slavishly followed, the matter of the lessons is meagre and ill-arranged, and the lessons themselves lack point and interest. Before the higher geography can be properly taught in our schools, teachers will have to enlarge their reading in the subject, and rely more on themselves for making their instruction attractive and effective.

Of 56,590 pupils examined in geography, the proficiency of 68 per cent. ranged from fair to good, while the attainments of 32 per cent. did not exceed tolerable. The corresponding percentages last year were 63 and 37 respectively.

The percentage of passes in each of the remaining subjects of the school course is shown in the following statement:—

History	94 per cent.
Scripture lessons	74 "
Object lessons	68 "
Drawing	66 "
Music	73 "
French.....	100 "
Euclid	68 "

The number of pupils examined in the several subjects of instruction is given in table B, appended.

In the report of last year, reference was made to differences that existed in the standards used by inspectors in the examination of schools. With a view to remove these differences and adjust the standards to a uniform basis, I visited six of the inspectorial districts during the year, and in company with the inspectors employed in each district examined a number of schools. At the close of each examination, we compared our estimates of the pupils' answering in the several subjects of instruction, and after consultation decided on what would be a fair estimate in each case. We further endeavoured to arrive at a common understanding as to the line of examination best calculated to elicit the pupils' knowledge in each branch, and at the same time do full justice to the teachers' labours. It is believed that these conferences will be productive of good. The inspectors were unanimous in thinking that to accomplish fully the ends in view they should be repeated after regular intervals.

Superior Public Schools number twenty, and consist of thirty-four departments. The greater number are boys' schools, and in these all the prescribed subjects are taught. Delay has arisen in bringing the girls' departments into full operation owing to the difficulty of giving instruction in one or more of the special subjects. Public Schools, as at present organized, do not afford the requisite facilities for teaching the piano. A scheme has, however, been submitted to the Minister which, if adopted, will furnish a way of overcoming the difficulty. A large number of parents appear to be unwilling to pay the extra fees charged for the special subjects. The results are that a good number of children are denied promotion to the highest class, the number of pupils in that class is comparatively small, and most of the head teacher's time is taken up in the teaching of it. Amended rules dealing with the conduct of Superior Public Schools have been submitted for the Minister's consideration.

The number of Evening Public Schools in operation during the year was 36. Last year the number was 57. It is to be regretted that this class of schools does not receive better support from the public. Usually, they are started under the most favourable conditions, and for a time appear to do well. Soon, however, there is a marked falling-off in the attendance, and the schools quickly collapse. Some of our best teachers have undertaken the charge of these schools, and used their best efforts to make them a success. They have, however, met with such poor encouragement from the public that they have lost heart in the work and are unwilling to repeat the experiment. A difficulty therefore is experienced at times in finding suitable teachers for Evening Public Schools.

There

There are grounds for believing that the instruction given to pupil-teachers is in many cases very defective. Too many of these young persons fail to pass the prescribed yearly examinations, and from inquiries made into the causes of those failures, the fault would appear to lie not so much with the pupil-teachers as with the teachers under whose charge they are placed. Instead of arranging their instruction on some well-considered plan, and giving them lessons visa voce from carefully prepared notes, these teachers set tasks which the pupil-teachers are required to commit to memory. This is a favourite mode of teaching geography, and is also occasionally followed in the teaching of one or more of the other subjects. The plea usually set up in defence of this procedure is the difficulty of adapting the same oral instruction to the wants of pupil-teachers of different classes and different years of service. There is, however, no force in the plea. Nothing, for instance, can be easier in the matter of geography than for a teacher to ground his pupils in the main facts of physical phenomena. Information of this kind is most interesting, and once learnt is not soon forgotten. Physical geography is the basis of all other geography, and a knowledge of it will greatly aid pupil-teachers in mastering the geography of those parts of the earth which they may have more especially to study, and thereby will help them to pass their examinations.

The present practice of holding classes of pupil-teachers on Saturdays at Fort-street School for the purpose of imparting to them instruction in special subjects is productive of much good. It is worthy of consideration, however, whether some change in the mode of giving the ordinary instruction to these young persons should not be made. I think it would add greatly to the efficiency of that instruction if in certain centres where pupil-teachers from various schools could be conveniently grouped, the teachers united and divided among them the duty of instructing the pupil-teachers. The advantages likely to arise from such a plan are obvious. The pupil-teachers could obtain the instruction prescribed for their respective classes and the teachers would be enabled to make choice of the subjects they are best able to teach. This system has been in operation for years in the Dutch schools, is approved by the London School Board, and in both Holland and England is found to work well.

It is intended during the current year to inquire closely into the character of the teaching given to pupil-teachers, the inspectors having received special instructions on the point.

At the close of 1882, there were 749 pupil-teachers employed in schools under the Department. The reports received respecting them are very favourable. They are zealous, well-behaved, and with few exceptions studious. Their general usefulness in school work can hardly be over-estimated. It is to be regretted that in several instances, it has been found that their energies have been overtaxed. They have been set to teach classes containing as many as 80 or 90 pupils in schools where the principal teachers have had under their immediate care not more than half that number. It need hardly be said that where such irregularities have been found to exist they have at once been put right.

Speaking generally, the supply of teachers has met the demand. In most districts, no difficulty has been felt in obtaining a sufficient number of candidates for provisional or other small schools. Many of these, however, are very unsuitable for the work. They are ladies, some very young, who have been tenderly reared and are unused to a bush life. It is not possible to dissuade a few of these from accepting employment in Provisional Schools, but they soon become disheartened with their lot and ask for employment in less isolated localities. A larger number of suitable male candidates could be employed in schools of this kind.

Notwithstanding the outcry raised by some persons against the rule which requires teachers to gain by examination certificates of classification corresponding to the rank of the schools under their charge, its general effect has been of a decidedly beneficial character. A large number of teachers have presented themselves at examination, and a reasonable proportion have succeeded in gaining higher certificates. As might have been expected, many of the failures have occurred among the older teachers; a result that may probably be accounted for by the shortness of the time at their command for preparation. It is true that some of these had been in the habit of teaching the elements of Mathematics and of Latin in the schools under their charge, but to pass the examinations prescribed in these subjects much more is required. Trigonometry is not taught in more than one or two schools, while mechanics is taught in none. Teachers previously ignorant of these branches could not gain a fair acquaintance with them in less than two years. It is no discredit to them, therefore, that they should have failed, nor is their failure any reflection on the character or fairness of the examination to which they have been subjected. The mistake made by teachers in the past is that they have not been sufficiently studious: they have merely kept themselves abreast of the requirements of their schools without going beyond them. No doubt the practice of the late Council of Education of giving promotion from class to class for good service has contributed to this result. The new rule, if applied rigorously to all young persons entering the service, will in the course of a few years produce a class of teachers of good attainments and large professional skill; and the beneficial influence of such on Primary Schools in the Colony cannot for a moment be doubted. Already the partial application of the rule has kindled a spirit of study among teachers; everywhere they evince a growing desire to improve their professional status by voluntarily undergoing examination. Appended are the reports of the several District Inspectors and Inspectors.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR M'CREDIE'S REPORT FOR 1882.

FROM the returns furnished by the four inspectors stationed in the Metropolitan District it appears that the following schools were in operation during the whole or a portion of 1882 :—

Public Schools	248
Provisional Schools	10
Half-time Schools	10
Evening Schools	10
Church of England Schools	37
Roman Catholic Schools.....	37
Wesleyan Schools	4
Hebrew School	1
Totals.....	357

At the close of the year, as shown by the Quarterly Returns, there were 348 schools on the list. Of the nine schools remaining to be accounted for, three, consisting of the departments connected with the St. Phillips Church of England School, were withdrawn from the oversight of the Department at the end of the September quarter, and the others (Evening Schools) lapsed during the year from low attendance.

As according to the report for 1881 there were at the end of that year 332 schools in operation, it follows that the number of schools on the list in December, 1882, is greater by 16 than the number at the corresponding period of the previous year. These 16 schools are thus made up :—New Schools : Camdensville, Glenfield, Glenhill (Prov.), Green Valley, M'Donald (Higher), and Wollabmine (H.T.), and North Rocks, Parramatta. Girls' departments connected with the following schools :—Ashfield, Balmain West, Burwood, Darlington, Leichhardt, M'Donaldtown, Parramatta South, Penrith, Petersham.

The following Church of England premises were leased for Public Schools, and occupied for the whole or a portion of the year, viz., Cobbity, Pyrmont, Surry Hills, Trinity (Lower Fort-street), Waterloo, Macquarie River, and Woonona C.E. Schools were also converted into Public Schools by being closed in favour of new Public Schools in their respective localities. Arrangements have been made by lease, to open Public Schools in 1883, in the Church of England Schoolrooms at Balmain, Enfield, Burwood, Parramatta-street, Pennant Hills, Randwick, Seven Hills ; in the Roman Catholic premises at the Oaks, Spaniard's Hill, and Nelson ; and in the Wesleyan buildings at Rocky Point and Surry Hills.

Temporary wooden buildings are being provided for opening as Public Schools early in 1883, at Double Bay, Newtown North, Forest Lodge, Gardiner's Road, Darlinghurst, Macquarie-street South, St. Leonards North, and Woollahra (Girls'), and requisite accommodation has been obtained at Penrith, Liverpool, Wiseman's Ferry, and Woonona by renting rooms for school purposes.

New buildings have been provided or are approaching completion, at Bondi, Dapto W., Campbelltown, Camperdown, Manly, Peterborough, Theresa Park, Longueville, Riverstone, Tullimbar, St. Leonards, Kurrajong North, Blakehurst, and Regentville, and arrangements are being made for the erection of others at Broughton Creek, Little Meadow, Bulli Mountain, Glenfield, Green Valley, Tongara, Wollongong, Woonona, Australian Farm, Concord, Mossman's Bay, Comleroy Road, Colyton, Dural, Granville, M'Donald Upper, Mulgoa, Windsor, Parramatta, Rouse Hill, Banks Meadow, Palmer-street, Bourke-street, Macquarie-street South, Blackfrairs, Pyrmont, St. Leonards North, Woollahra (Girls'), and Croydon.

Repairs and improvements have been made or action taken towards them, in many existing schools. Among these may be mentioned the following :—Bankstown, Belmore, Gledswood, Kogarah, Marshall Mount, Moorfields, Mount Keira, Hornsby, M'Donald Central, Prospect, Dundas, Pennant Hills, Richmond, Rookwood, Sackville, Smithfield, Windsor, Cleveland-street, Crown-street, Paddington, Pyrmont, Redfern, Sussex-street, Wallgrove, Blacktown, Ryde North, and Yarramundi.

From preceding statements it is apparent that by erecting new schools, by leasing or renting premises, and by repairing or enlarging existing buildings, much has been done in the metropolitan district to increase school accommodation and improve the material organization of the schools.

The internal fittings of the schoolrooms may on the whole be pronounced fairly satisfactory. In the large majority of instances a full supply of suitable furniture is found, and there is a sufficient stock of necessary educational appliances, while the general arrangement presents a pleasing appearance. It is desirable however that Infant Schools should obtain a larger supply of pictures of animals, of diagrams, such as Colton's Geographical Cards, and some specimens of natural objects. A globe should also form part of the apparatus of every Public School. Besides their usefulness for teaching purposes such articles would render the school more attractive to the pupils.

A large number of sites has been secured in Sydney and its suburbs. A list of these was given in the Report for 1881, and those since obtained at Croydon, in Palmer-street, Woolloomooloo, and in Macquarie-street South may now be added thereto. On the last-named site will shortly be erected temporary wooden buildings to accommodate the children, who owing to the closing of the St. Andrew's C.E., and the Hebrew School, require a school in that neighbourhood.

Up to the close of the year no sites had been got for schools at Chippendale, in Kent-street, in Castlereagh-street, or in the vicinity of the Haymarket. On the whole the accommodation provided throughout the district fairly satisfies the educational wants of the various localities in which the schools are placed, and action has been taken in Sydney and elsewhere to increase it in all cases of necessity. The need for greatly augmented space for pupils in the Sydney Public Schools, owing to the withdrawal of State aid from Denominational Schools, is not so pressing as might be supposed at first sight. All the Roman Catholic and several of the Church of England schools still continue in operation, and provide for the pupils who attend them. The urgency therefore for enlarged accommodation is in some places in the city more imaginary than real.

The total enrolment in all the schools in the district for the year was 78,274, but this number is too high, as it includes pupils who have attended two or more schools. From the nearness of the schools removals from one to another are more frequent in the city than in the country. In the Sydney and suburban schools there were enrolled 53,962 pupils of whom 8,019 had attended two or more schools, so that the ordinary enrolment would be 50,943, instead of 58,962. For the whole district the enrolment and average for December quarter 1881 and 1882, were :—

Therefore the average percentage for that quarter of 1881 was 64.5 nearly, while that for the corresponding quarter of 1882 was 67, or an increase of 2½ per cent. in the regularity of attendance. Comparing the two years we have :—Average per cent. of attendance for 1881, 63.4 ; average per cent. of attendance for 1882, 67.4. There is thus an increase of 4 per cent. in the regularity of attendance which is, so far as it goes, satisfactory, as pointing to some improvement in this respect. The higher average may be attributed to the exertions of the attendance officers, and to some extent also to the comparative absence of sickness in 1882. Much however yet remains to be done to raise the ordinary attendance to something far above the normal two-thirds of the enrolment which seems to prevail in many schools. Every earnest teacher should and will give his utmost endeavours endeavours to secure the highest attendance he can by bringing his influence to bear on pupils and parents, and it is a decided proof of his usefulness when he achieves a high percentage of attendance. Teachers should exercise vigilance with respect to absentees, and institute immediate inquiry as to the cause of absence.

For the year the sum of £21,584 4s. was paid by the pupils attending the schools, and the number of free scholars was 1,023. The returns give the estimated value of the property belonging to the Department as £388,322 18s. 5d.

Of the 357 schools or departments in operation during the whole or a portion of the year there were fully inspected:—

Public Schools	230
Provisional Schools	8
Half-time Schools.....	6
Evening Schools	2
Church of England Schools	37
Roman Catholic Schools.....	37
Wesleyan Schools	4
Total	325

The thirty-two schools not inspected consisted of eighteen Public, two Provisional, four Half-time, and eight Evening Schools. The reason assigned for the non-inspection of these schools is that time would not permit of their examination before the close of the year. Nearly the half of them belong to that section of the district under the charge of the inspector stationed at Wollongong, who did not enter on duty for some considerable time after the departure of his predecessor, and who was therefore unable before the close of the year to overtake arrears and complete the programme.

Besides those already mentioned, eight other schools were inspected, viz., Biloela, the "Vernon," and the six departments of the Parramatta Orphan Schools—the last named twice. Including these there were, therefore, 333 schools inspected in the Metropolitan District, of which forty-seven belong to the District Inspector, who altogether furnished fifty-six reports on schools.

Judging from my own observation and from the reports that have passed through my hands, I am of opinion that the general discipline of the schools is of a satisfactory character. Mr. Inspector Jones reports that "with few exceptions the discipline of the schools is highly satisfactory." In a large number of schools good order prevails. The pupils are quiet, cheerful in demeanour, well behaved, and attentive under instruction. Generally speaking the government is kindly, but firm, and vigilance is exercised to prevent disorder and to cultivate habits of obedience. Instances of severe corporal punishment are rarely found, and in the best schools the cane is seldom used by the teacher. In some schools, however, slight punishments with the cane for trivial offences, contrary to the regulation on the subject, are somewhat frequent, and there seems to be a disposition on the part of some teachers to refrain from recording such slight punishments as a stroke or two of the cane. The following suggestions made by an eminent English educational authority of great experience and ability may be worthy of consideration by such teachers:—

"(1.) Never inflict corporal punishment for intellectual faults, for stupidity or ignorance. Reserve it exclusively for vices, for something morally degrading. (2.) Never inflict it while under the influence of heat or passion. (3.) Never permit an assistant or an elder scholar to inflict it under any circumstances. (4.) Do not let any instrument of punishment be included as part of the school furniture, and as an object of familiar sight, or flourished about as a symbol of authority. (5.) Do not strike with the hand."

The condition of the schools as regards general efficiency may be gathered from the following statements as to their relation to the standard (fair) in 1881 and 1882 respectively:—

	1881.	1882.
Above the standard.....	144, or 43 per cent.	160, or 49 per cent.
Up to the standard.....	83, or 25 "	91, or 28 " (nearly.)
Below the standard.....	105, or 32 " (nearly.)	74, or 23 " "

From this it is clear that while 68 per cent. of the schools reached or exceeded the standard in 1881, 77 per cent. ranked in similar positions in 1882, thus indicating, to the extent of 9 per cent., a higher degree of efficiency.

The following table exhibits the percentage of pupils who reached or exceeded the standard (fair) in the various subjects of examination in 1881 and 1882, with the increase or decrease per cent. in each subject:—

Reviewing the results shown in this table it is seen that the estimated proficiency in all subjects compared is somewhat greater in 1882 than in 1881, except in grammar and needlework, the results in which are respectively 1 and 4 per cent. lower than in the preceding year. The most decided advance made is in arithmetic and Latin, in Latin especially, owing it is believed to the greater attention now given to it in Superior Public Schools.

Of 33,869 pupils examined in reading the proficiency of 84 per cent. reached from fair to good, and of 16 per cent. from tolerable to indifferent. These marks of proficiency may be regarded as fairly satisfactory.

It

It is worthy of note that fewer children than formerly are presented in the alphabet. More schools have now adopted the "look and say" method with beginners. For this method the cards used in the Australian Reading Series are well adapted; but it appears to me that sentences, composed of the monosyllables mastered, should be introduced at an earlier stage. This the teacher can easily do by printing such sentences on the blackboard.

The reading in Infant Schools and the lower classes of Primary Schools is generally fluent, but the progress made is very slow. One lesson of ten or a dozen lines is usually found set down for a week's work in an Infant School. The consequence is that children read the lessons till they can repeat them by rote, and pupils are kept an undue time in Infant Schools. At least double the quantity should be read and promotions should occur more frequently—half-yearly instead of annually, as is the rule at present.

In the higher classes the reading is on the whole good as regards correctness of pronunciation, distinctness of enunciation, and fluency; but higher results might be reached by greater care to secure proper pausation, attention to emphasis, and, above all, expressive rendering of the spirit of the passage. Something might be done in this direction by encouraging recitation, and devoting the time of one lesson per week to that alone. More instruction in the art of reading is necessary for advanced pupils.

Of the 33,238 pupils returned as writing, 16,070 were examined on slates and the remainder in copy-books. Of the latter 90 per cent. range from fair to good, while of the former 88 per cent. showed similar proficiency. In both sections these results must be reckoned satisfactory, and as compared with 1881 they show an increase of 4 per cent. in efficiency. The means used are writing on slates or copy-books from copies, transcription, and practice in dictation and home exercises. In regard to these exercises neatness in writing should be encouraged and insisted upon, otherwise advanced pupils are likely to acquire a slovenly style, which will affect the copy-book specimens. To this, as much as to the lack of proper supervision and the absence of criticism of faults, may be attributed the faulty character of the writing of the highest classes in some of the large schools.

30,860 pupils were examined in arithmetic, of whom 21,503, or about 70 per cent., were in the simple rules, 6,277 or 20 per cent. in the compound rules, and 3,078 or about 10 per cent. in the higher rules. The results obtained in these several divisions are—

Simple Rules—fair to good.....	63 per cent.
Compound Rules—fair to good	54 "
Higher Rules—fair to good.....	69 "
Average per cent.....	62 "

Ranging from tolerable to indifferent there were 37, 46, and 31 per cent. respectively in these sections. Compared with reading and writing, therefore, the results in arithmetic are much less satisfactory; but compared with the results obtained the previous year some progress is manifest, the estimated proficiency in this subject for 1882 exceeding that for 1881 by 6 per cent. It will be observed that the best results have been obtained in the higher rules. Much of the teaching is mechanical rather than scientific, and sufficient interest is not imported into the work to stimulate and concentrate the attention of the pupils. To secure more satisfactory proficiency in this subject it is necessary that the scholar should be made more familiar with principles through simple concrete examples—orally and on slate; that more lucid explanation on the black-board should be given; and that more vigilant supervision should be exercised over the pupils, who should be placed in proper attitudes and at needful distances apart, so that copying or prompting shall be difficult or impossible. Mental arithmetic is not well taught, and does not subserve its purpose as a valuable auxiliary to slate work. Sufficient practice is not given in addition and subtraction at an early stage, and the numbers are not presented, in many instances, in an intelligent and methodical manner. The exercises should be rapid and varied—not confined to certain rules, such as "prices of dozens," &c., in the higher classes, and they should, well given, cultivate speed and accuracy on the part of the pupil in his calculations.

The pupils examined in grammar were—

Elementary	8,626
Advanced	8,707
	17,333

In elementary grammar 65 per cent. and in advanced grammar 62 per cent. ranged from fair to good, the average being thus about 63 per cent., or about 1 per cent. below that of last year. It appears, therefore, that the proficiency in this subject is about on a par with the results shown in arithmetic. The accident is generally found to be weak. Properly arranged oral lessons are not systematically given in this or in analysis. Desultory information on the subject, given in connection with the parsing, appears to be considered sufficient in most cases, and the pupil has consequently no systematic or orderly arrangement of the matter in his mind and is unable to answer except in a fragmentary fashion. Composition is little taught as an art. In many schools it is almost confined to reproductions of object or other lessons, of which copious notes are taken from the black-board. The pupils have very little training in the expression of their ideas in their own words, and very few of them succeed well in the formation of sentences embodying the use of words. There seems no good reason why the composition of simple sentences orally should not begin in a second class of a Primary School. The construction of such sentences would familiarize the children with the functions of a noun and verb, and these two parts of speech would be quickly understood when introduced to the class.

In Geography the following pupils underwent examination :—

Elementary	13,739
Advanced.....	8,826
Total	22,565

The large numbers under the first head are due to the fact that the subject is taught in Infant Schools. Of all examined about 72 per cent. range from fair to good, the proficiency in each branch being about equal. These results may be regarded as fairly satisfactory, and are about 5 per cent. in advance of those of last year. The pupils do not appear to have such an acquaintance with the geography of New South Wales and of the locality of the school as is desirable. Many teachers do not seem to appreciate the importance of making the geography of the locality and of the Colony the basis of all other information on the subject. Physical geography does not receive sufficient attention, especially as regards its connection with the occupations and character of the people who inhabit a district or country. At present no physical geography is prescribed for Third classes, and as these form the highest classes in the majority of country schools, it follows that, as a rule, nothing is taught on the subject in them. I have already stated that some additional apparatus is necessary for teaching this subject.

In euclid and algebra the general proficiency may be estimated as fair. Except in the Superior Public Schools, and a few others, the attainments in these subjects are of a very elementary character.

The results reached in the other subjects give an average proficiency of about very fair. All succeeded in passing in history and French, but only comparatively few were presented for examination, especially in French.

In drawing there is a tendency to prefer landscape and other attractive work to free-hand drawing. It appears to me that clear lines should be laid down for the guidance of teachers in this subject.

subject. At present each one follows his own taste in the matter. At one time Fowles' drawing-books were supplied to schools, and used especially in the lower classes, but they appear from some cause to have gone out of use.

The estimated proficiency in music—82 per cent. from fair to good—is to be understood as mainly applicable to "singing," and only very partially to scientific knowledge of music.

The following is a list of the teachers and assistants employed in the Metropolitan District, with their classifications so far as known :—

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			No classification.	Totals.
A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
2	10	71	86	99	50	24	145	487

Respecting those placed under the heading "No classification," it is necessary to explain that the number entered therein includes those who have passed through the Training School, but have not yet received their certificates. It also comprises all those in charge of Provisional Schools, as well as those who hold no classification from examination, although they may have had a classification otherwise obtained under the late Council. Without this remark it might be thought that many teachers in this district had neither been trained nor examined, which would be contrary to fact in regard to the majority of the 145 teachers referred to.

The pupil teachers in the district at the end of the year were 408, and were thus classified :—

Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	Totals.
50	78	101	179	408

Taking teachers, pupil teachers, and work mistresses into account, there were employed altogether in the district 965 persons. It is gratifying to be in a position to report respecting so large a body engaged as teachers, that no charge of a grave or immoral character has been brought against any one of them—none such as to lead to dismissal from the service. With few exceptions the teachers are zealous and earnest, exemplary in conduct, and many are now pursuing a course of study to qualify themselves by examination for their present schools or for more important ones.

The pupil-teachers are, as a whole, industrious, intelligent, and painstaking, and promise well for the future education of the Colony.

During 1882, 325 schools out of 357 were fully inspected, 33,869 children having been examined by the inspectors and myself; 16 new schools have been added to the list; many sites have been selected and secured; the material condition of the schools has been improved by the erection of new school buildings, and by repairs to existing ones; the enrolment and attendance have increased; the general discipline has been sustained, and in some cases improved; the pupils' attainments in nearly every subject exceed those of 1881; and the general condition of the schools in the Metropolitan district may be pronounced fairly satisfactory.

J. MCCREDIE,
District Inspector.

ANNEX E.

MR. INSPECTOR J. S. JONES' REPORT FOR 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit my General Report upon the condition of the schools I have inspected in West Sydney, Darlington, Glebe, Camperdown, Leichhardt, Five Dock, Cook's River, Newtown, Macdonaldtown, Waterloo, St. Leonards, Balmain, and Manly.

At the close of 1881, there were 75 schools in operation, viz., 44 public, 16 Church of England, 13 Roman Catholic, 1 Hebrew, and 1 evening; and during the present year ten schools have been opened, and two closed, so that there are now in existence 81 schools, viz., 51 Public, 14 Church of England, 13 Roman Catholic, 1 Hebrew, and 2 evening. The late Trinity C. E. School began the year as a non-vested Public School, and there were also established Evening Public Schools at St. Peter's, Lower Fort-street, and Glebe, and Girls' Departments in connection with the Public Schools at Darlington, West Balmain, Leichhardt, and Macdonaldtown. The Evening Schools at St. Peter's and Sussex-street, however, had but a short career owing to the reduced attendance of scholars. The newly established Girls' Schools have on the contrary been a great success; for there are now attending them 57 per cent. more girls than attended the mixed schools. It may be inferred, therefore, from these cases and from others in the past that many parents object to mixed schools, and choose to send their elder girls to Ladies' Seminaries, or to district Public Girls' Schools rather than have them instructed with boys. Their objection may have but a weak foundation in fact; nevertheless it is one of such long standing and is so widely entertained that it becomes a matter for consideration whether it would not be a gain in point of numbers and educational progress to admit 4th class schools to the privilege of having a Girls' Department rather than leave parents to send their girls to private schools, the uncertificated teachers of which are more or less disqualified by their lack of attainments and skill for the business they have undertaken at a venture.

Viewed as a whole, the schools are well distributed among the people, and are sufficiently commodious for the children in their respective neighbourhoods. There are a few Public Schools, however, which have more than their complement of scholars, either because of an increase in the population, or of the esteem in which they are held by the general public. To meet the necessities of such cases and of others arising from the withdrawal of State aid to Denominational Schools, action has been taken to establish Public Schools at Forest Lodge, North Leichhardt, Concord, North Newtown, and West St. Leonards; to add a Girls' Department to each of the Public Schools at St. Leonards and Camperdown; to enlarge the Redfern and Pymont Public Schools; and to conduct the Balmain and Parramatta-street C. E. Schools as non-vested Public Schools until the completion of the Public School buildings at East Balmain and Blackfriars. Action was also taken in 1881 to establish Public Schools at Croydon, Summer Hill, and Stanmore; and they would have been now in operation but for unforeseen delays in the erection of the necessary buildings. When therefore the above-mentioned works are completed, there will be little to do in the way of school extension beyond establishing a few Infant Schools in the thickly-peopled parts of the City, or keeping pace with the educational requirements that may arise in the suburbs by reason of the spread of population.

Of the 83 schools that have been in operation for the whole or a part of the year, 80 have received regular inspection, and most of them have been visited incidentally on two or more occasions. Of the 80 schools, Mr. District-Inspector McCredie inspected 9, and I the rest, so that it is upon the condition of the latter that the following part of this report is based.

Most of the school buildings are of stone or of brick upon stone foundations, and with few exceptions are in good repair, commodious and otherwise suitable except as regards the absence of store-rooms and retiring-rooms for the teachers. Six Public Schools are held in tents, the unsteadiness and the the imperfect lighting and ventilation of which occasion more or less inconvenience to both teachers and scholars. In the future, however, wooden buildings of a temporary but more suitable character will be used in cases of emergency, and five of the kind are now in course of erection, one for each of the proposed Public Schools at North Newtown, Forest Lodge, West St. Leonards, and North Leichhardt, and one in connection with the Public School of Redfern. Manly and Camperdown are now supplied with school buildings and teachers' residences of a substantial and otherwise superior structure; and buildings of like kind are in course of erection at Macdonaldtown, Forest Lodge, East Balmain, and Mossman's Bay.

With a few exceptions, the playgrounds are large enough for recreation, and are provided with weathersheds and lavatories; but the absence of foliage and flowers gives them a bare and uninviting appearance. Some of them require to be levelled and drained; and it would be well if all of them were asphalted where the classes are assembled and drilled. The condition of the lavatories is but partially satisfactory as regards both structure and appointments. Many of them require water-taps and drain-pipes in connection with the basins, and to be furnished with a far more liberal supply of soap, towelling, and combs.

The supply of furniture is suitable and in full keeping with each school according to its grade of classification except as regards such very needful accessories as door-mats, foot-scrapers, step-ladders, brooms, dust-pans, and water-pails, the expense of which latter articles falls upon the teachers. Door-mats and foot-scrapers are entirely wanting, the effect of which is plainly visible on the school-room floors in wet weather. In some schools, whose attendance is in excess of their accommodation, the desk-room is unavoidably insufficient, and this renders it necessary to use the weather-sheds and lavatories as class-rooms. Such places are barely suitable for purposes of instruction, besides being too often occupied by the classes in charge of junior teachers, who as a rule ought to be under the direct supervision of the principal teachers.

Every school has a full supply of working materials, such as books, slates, pens, pencils, ink, and maps. In other respects, however, the supply is not sufficiently in harmony with the educational wants of a school, especially in the earlier stages of its growth, or with the special requirements of the lessons in reading, arithmetic, geography, drawing, and common things. Each lesson requires to be accompanied with a sufficient supply of suitable illustrations, real or pictorial; for it is more or less in default of them that the lower classes continue to be so large and slowly progressive. In view of these considerations, therefore, it is not unreasonable to hope that the form of application for school requisites will, sooner or later, be framed on a more liberal scale; and as regards the utility of pictures it may not be out of place to quote the following words of a thoughtful writer upon Education:—"Accurate and well-cultivated senses lead to accurate perception and comparison, and thus the elements of just thought are prepared. The reason why children do not think from books is that the ideas presented take no hold of their minds. It would be curious to inquire how much of the loose thinking, the hazy perceptions of truth, which characterize the majority of mankind, might be traced back to the absence of any definite impressions made in childhood in connection with the instruction given to them. They are occupied with words, and words are vague and often void of meaning to them. Outside the schoolroom they acquire definite impressions, but they are acquired at random, and may be wholly wanting in accuracy. They will, however, exercise more influence than what is learnt at school, for the instruction there given is quite apart from any practical region, and has no solid foundation in observation and experience."

School attendance, though a little better in point of aggregate enrolments and regularity than it was last year, is still the least satisfactory feature of our schools. There is still a very high rate (145 per cent.) of disparity between the gross enrolments and the average daily attendance; the rate of regularity is yet lower than that for 1874-78, which is itself less than what obtains in England; and the number of children who do not attend school the statutory number of days continues to be far greater than it should be, considering the machinery employed to reduce it.

The classification of the pupils is in most instances good as far as it goes, and is somewhat better than it was last year. It is good, however, only so far as the relative proficiency of individual classes is concerned; otherwise it is not satisfactory. The numbers in the lower classes are disproportionate to those in the upper. The progress of the pupils from class to class and from the Infant School to the Primary does not keep equal pace with their advance in age. This tardiness is due mainly to irregularity in the attendance, to the high percentage of removals from school to school, with intervening periods of idleness, and partly to weaknesses in the teaching. The last of such drawbacks, however, is slowly and steadily disappearing; but the others are so persistent as to necessitate a stricter and wider application of the law as to "Compulsory School Attendance."

The supply of teachers is adequate and the school duties are in most instances distributed equitably among them. It would be well, however, if the teaching staffs of the higher class schools could be made somewhat more permanent than they have been of late; for as it takes some time for both teacher and pupil to understand each other, it is clear that the too frequent change of pupil-teachers and assistants must sooner or later weaken the efficiency of the general management. The printed rule that schools in the higher grades shall be divided into sections has in some cases been observed laxly. The pupil-teachers have been left too much to their own resources. They have not been accorded the usual support and guidance in the discipline and instruction of their classes. The average number of pupils in a class has been 49 as against 43 last year, and to each has been appointed a teacher responsible for its management. There are eight small schools, however, in which junior teachers are not employed. In eight of the first or second class schools there were at the time of their inspection fourteen of the lower classes in charge of pupil-teachers, each of whom had an average of 67 pupils to manage. These anomalies were due partly to delayed promotions and partly to the influx of children from other schools.

Each school is provided with record books and blank returns, and the teachers of schools above the seventh class are expected to keep an order-book, a time-book, a record of lessons to pupil-teachers, and a record of the results of monthly class examination. With few exceptions the ordinary records are complete and well kept and the school returns, quarterly and annual, are correctly made out and quickly despatched. In several cases, however, the task of keeping those documents is done by the under teachers, which is not altogether regular, for it is the plain duty of the head-teacher to keep at least the admission register, the daily report book, and the fee account. In about one-third of the schools the secondary records have been found more or less incomplete or in arrears.

As regards the routine of the schools there is little to find fault with except on the score of unpunctuality. The time-tables are generally of the regulation form and are framed with care and very fair average judgment, but in a few instances they have been partially set aside to meet the exigencies of some forthcoming examination. Some of the teachers however are not strict enough as to the punctual observance of them. Too much time is lost in the morning recess, in the distribution of working materials, or in the tediously slow movements of the classes. In two or three instances the daily loss of time has been reckoned to be at the rate of one school day in five. It is but just to mention, however, that a few of the teachers of large schools have to contend against difficulties arising from a lack of desk-room, hat-pegs, or the means of access. But setting aside these cases it is very doubtful whether the schools in the first and the second classes will ever be able to conform strictly with the regulation, which exacts that pupils shall be arranged in ranks, inspected as to cleanliness, marched into school, and set to work in the space of five minutes. To meet the difficulty therefore it will be necessary to provide that those schools shall assemble five or ten minutes before the ordinary time.

The arrangements for cleaning the schools are made by the teachers, who are aided by their assistants in paying for the work. In schools of the upper grade the work is one of no ordinary extent and labour, and is paid for accordingly at the rate of from £50 to £60 a year, to which must be added the expense of providing the lavatories with changes of towels, &c. The work of cleaning is entrusted to individual women and is generally confined to the schoolrooms, lobbies, and verandahs, to the neglect of the playground and out-houses. The efficiency with which it is done is not as satisfactory as it ought to be considering the educational and public character of the institutions. The women, it is believed, work at their best, and succeed where the schools consist of but one or two departments. In schools of three departments however, the work required of them is more than they can properly accomplish. It is one that elsewhere necessitates the employment of active able-bodied men, with sufficient common sense to guide them in discharging the many duties incident to the office of school-keeper. What those duties are considered to be by the London School Board may be seen fully in its published code of regulations, an extract from which is here submitted:—

“Duties of School-keeper.—1. To take charge of the school premises, to keep in a thorough state of cleanliness the various rooms, with all the property in them, and also the outhouses, offices, closets, yards, passages, play-grounds, staircases, doors, steps, railings, approaches, lamps, and windows, and to perform such other duties of this description as may from time to time arise. N.B.—All the floors of the schoolrooms, classrooms, and all staircases must be thoroughly cleaned at least three times a week, and oftener if the Works Committee think necessary.” In addition there are seventeen paragraphs relating to such duties as the opening and closing of doors, the supervision of the play-ground, the prevention of bill-sticking, and the attention to urinals, drains, lavatories, ventilation, &c.

The discipline of the schools is with few exceptions highly satisfactory, and still constitutes their best feature. Were it not so the teaching would not be as effective as it is, notwithstanding the irregularity in the attendance, and a few other but less powerful drawbacks. The government is generally sound and vigorous, and is administered with intelligence, tact, and even-handed justice. The liberty of inflicting corporal punishment obtains, but is very rarely known to sink into license. Viewed as a whole, the pupils are clean and healthy, decently clothed, docile, and well behaved, and most of their teachers speak in nice terms of them as to their diligence and desire to do well. When examined they are generally attentive and cheerful, and manifest very fair self-reliance and thoughtfulness, but inadequate power of oral expression in their answering. Too many of them however are unpunctual or irregular in their attendance, but it is often very hard to fix the blame on the right person, parent, pupil, or teacher. The practice of sending notes or messengers of inquiry to parents is not sufficiently general and constant, neither is the number of the school attendance officers on duty in the district sufficient to deal with the high percentage of pupils who from truancy and other causes, except sickness and removals, fail to attend school the statutory 140 days. Would it not in the interests of the State be well and practicable to enlist one or two of the departments, Police, Telegraph or Postal, in the service of the Department of Public Instruction? The

The prescribed course of instruction is followed in all the schools but one, in which singing is not taught, and is regulated by the usual guides, time-tables, and programmes of lessons. The time-tables may be passed as being of very fair average merit. Many of the programmes however are more or less unsuitable, inasmuch that they do not give one a sufficient knowledge of the completeness and logical sequence of the lessons recorded under each head of instruction, some of them being little better than copies of the standards of proficiency. For example, under the head of reading or singing there is only a bare list of the lessons to be read, or the songs to be sung; there is nothing further to show that either of them has been handled as an art. What is desired is that there shall be a nexus between the quarterly programmes for the year, and that one and all shall be framed in the light of good text-books, and with due regard to the mental capacities of the classes and to sound principles of teaching. With few exceptions the teaching is marked by pleasing earnestness and diligence, and by very fair tact and energy. It is also in some degree better in effect than it was last year, which is not improbably the practical outcome of improvements in the studies of the teachers, pursuant to the half-yearly examinations. In other respects it is more or less faulty. This remark however applies more particularly to the under teachers, many of whom are not as practically well acquainted with the aims and methods of primary school instruction as could be desired. The examinations go to show that their knowledge and estimate of the relative claims of information and culture, and of the relative proportion in which material things, models, pictures, plans, and words should be used in the three stages of instruction, are either not as clear and vivid as they should be, or are set aside in the interests of cram for the school or the public examinations. There is evidence in hand however to the effect that several of the pupil teachers have not received from their teachers the proper amount and quality of direct instruction, that they have been left too much to their own resources in the study of text-books, and that in some cases the instruction has not been regulated by the required programmes of lessons or been regularly imparted.

The results of the class examinations for the year are the following:—

As regards the method of estimating the proficiency of a class in one or all of the subjects of instruction, our present system differs more or less from that which obtains in England, and is the consequent cause of unfair comparisons. In the first place our standards are higher, clear and sufficient proof of which lies in the fact that the printed standard of proficiency for an English pupil teacher at the end of his second year is not as high as that for a fourth-class lad at the end of his first quarter of enrolment in this country. Compared with the English class examinations, moreover, ours cover a wider range of subjects, and go farther into the backgrounds of the instruction, in order to test the thoroughness and intelligence of the teaching. It is desirable, however, that our standards should, by authority, be so adjusted on the principle of differential values, as to satisfy the unequal claims of the primary and the secondary subjects in the upper and lower classes. With the view also of stamping out the practice of detaining children in the lower classes longer than is warranted, and in order to satisfy the conflicting claims of teachers, it is desirable that the principle of "loading" should be applied to the standards, and that a sliding scale of marks should be so framed as to apply to classes in the same grades but in different ranks, according to average ages and quarters of enrolment.

Reading.—As regards ease, fluency, and intelligibility, the reading is good, and somewhat better than last year's. In many of the upper classes, however, it is not as deliberate and expressive as could be desired. In the examinations of the pupils upon the marks and qualities of good reading, upon the meaning and the practical illustration of accent, emphasis, inflection, pausation, &c., the results have been more or less disappointing, and indicative of the fact that the teaching is more on the side of empiricism than art. In the lower classes the reading is good, but not as well advanced as it might be. It is not encouraging to see so many children of eight or nine years of age in the Infant Schools reading primer lessons they can repeat by rote. Such children should be promoted earlier than they are, and, to ensure such promotion within reasonable limits, the standards require to be loaded as suggested. In order also to render the reading throughout the schools better than it is, it would be necessary to prescribe more time for it, which could be easily done by relieving the lesson of its impediments, viz., spelling, derivation, the meanings of words, and the consequent incidental teaching on common things—all of which could be treated as a distinct lesson, or distributed among other subjects, namely, dictation, grammar, and object lessons. That there is a necessity for the change indicated is pretty clear from these facts: that the average number of pupils in a class is forty-nine, and that the time daily set apart for the reading lesson and its addenda is from 60 to 90 minutes only.

Writing and Drawing.—The results obtained in writing are comparatively high and satisfactory, and are in no small measure due to the lively interest the pupils take in the subject, more particularly so in the Infant Schools and the lower primary classes. In the upper classes, where ruled paper with head-lines is in use, the progress of the pupils is less distinctly marked, but the writing is generally good. There are some teachers who practically regard the lesson as one of rest for themselves rather than one requiring active supervision and systematic teaching from the black-board. In the fourth and the fifth classes, the writing on blank paper is not fully satisfactory, and is in some instances reprehensibly bad or faulty. In connection with this subject, also, should be noticed the fact, that in too many instances the sums in arithmetic are not worked out on slate or paper with that proper regard to neatness and symmetry, which is required in the public offices, and which is a characteristic feature of many private schools conducted by uncertificated teachers. The results of the examinations in drawing are generally good, and are the product of three factors—the comparatively great interest which both pupils and teachers take in it, the fair average skill with which it is taught, and the fact that the trial exercises were in subjects named in the earlier or later programmes of lessons. In the lower classes the drawings are more or less marked by a lack of attention to details, or by an ambition to to do much rather than better. In some of the upper classes, there is a leaning towards landscape and other composite subjects in preference to the more practical ones bearing on technical education. The treatment of the subject in the fourth and the fifth or highest classes is not as complete and useful as it might be; and in some of them, it is not quite as skillful as it should be in relation to the class of schools. Drawing from models and from dictation is not practised; neither are the pupils exercised in originating model designs of common things, such as jugs, decanters, door-ways, gardens, &c. In this last form, the subject could be very appropriately dealt with as a home lesson.

Arithmetic.—This subject is taught in all the schools, and all the classes therein are examined in it under three heads—notation and numeration, slate work, and mental operations; they are examined also as to their knowledge of its principles. It is gratifying to observe that the results of this year's examinations are up to the ordinary standard, and are 12 per cent. higher than last year's. This is encouraging, but not fully satisfactory; the subject stands last but one on the list of the primary and the secondary subjects, and the results obtained in it are still below what is required of the schools in relation to their respective grades, and of the classes as to average age. The subject is in the background partly because of its abstract nature, but, mainly, because it is not properly placed before the pupils in the light of experience and first principles, and with due regard to the stages of the mind's growth. The weakness of the teaching manifests itself chiefly in the lower classes, and affects the upper classes more or less injuriously. The younger pupils are rushed into the abstract much too early, they are mentally oppressed with numbers and rules long before they have fully acquired the sense of them practically. The appliances for teaching the subject are inadequate. The existing ball-frame is useful only so far as the arithmetic of units is concerned. To train the pupils to a lively practical sense of notation and numeration, the simple and the compound rules, reduction and proportion, each school should possess the following simple and not very expensive requisites:—1. A shallow and portable box containing pigeon-holes, 4 feet by six or seven. 2. A copious supply of short wires, sticks, or thin laths, to be arranged in bundles and bundle within bundle, and to be so placed as to represent the local values of numbers. 3. An adequate supply of the different kinds of marbles, the buying and exchanging of which are well understood by most children. To enable, also, the upper classes to acquire a practical knowledge of vulgar and decimal fractions and of elementary mensuration, it would be well to supply each school with a set of 5 feet laths appropriately marked off into parts, with a pair of compasses, a carpenter's foot-rule and square, a surveyor's chain-tape, and a suitable set of planes and solids, such as could be turned to good account in drawing and geometry.

Grammar.—This subject is taught in the second and upper classes of 53 schools, and is lowest on the list with respect to results. In the second-classes, the teaching is limited to definitions and parsing, and, in the rest, to accidence, parsing, analysis of sentences, derivation, and composition. The results in the teaching are comparatively low because of the abstract nature of the subject, the difficulty of its terminology, and the imperfect method of dealing with it in the second and third classes. The minds of the second-class children are not ripe enough to grapple with the definitions and other technicalities, and it would be far more profitable if their attention were strictly confined to the art side of the subject, to speaking and writing their mother tongue. In the third classes, the subject is a little better understood; but the parsing and the analysis are not made sufficiently subservient to reading and composition, neither is extempore speaking in relation to the lessons sufficiently attended to.

Geography.—This subject is taught in all the schools, and in all the classes except the babies' and the first-classes in a few small schools. The results of the year's examinations in it are 20 per cent. higher than last year's. The percentage of pupils who reached and passed the standard requirements are 42 and 30 respectively. Viewed alone, such results are satisfactory and encouraging, but viewed in relation to the average grade of the schools, they fall short of the standards. Most of the teachers evince a pleasure in teaching the subject, and a few of them treat it in a masterly way. The shortcomings of the many arise from its peculiar and inherent difficulties, the bookish way of treating it, and the lack of suitable appliances. In most of the Primary Schools there is a good supply of maps and a tolerable one of diagrams; but in the Infant Schools and for the lower classes in the Primary the essential requisites are more or less wanting. In order to render the teaching of the subject more complete, effective, and useful, it would be wise to furnish each school with the following desiderata: A globe and a mariner's compass; enlarged photographs of the city and the harbour, enlarged plans of the same; Colton's diagrams; the Military Defence Map of County of Cumberland; a well assorted set of coloured pictures, illustrative of physical phenomena; a Dexter's cabinet of natural productions and specimen articles of manufacture, and a set of pictures of the animals and plants in connection therewith.

Object Lessons.—These are given once or twice a week in all the schools but two, and in the Infant Schools, they reappear under the heads of form, colour, human frame, &c. Of the number of pupils examined in them, 33 per cent. reached, and 29 per cent. exceeded, the ordinary standard 60. These results in the aggregate are equal to last year's, but are more or less below what is required of the schools according to the average grade of their classification. Viewed as a whole, the lessons are too one-sided, the aim is more in the direction of giving information than of exercising the mental faculties of pupils. The information, as a rule, is carefully prepared, but is too often given in the absence of the object and its accessories. The lesson, too, is oftener on the individual than the species or genus, thereby precluding the pupils from viewing things in relation to their likenesses and differences, contrasts and analogies. The method of doing a thing, however, is in most instances governed by the means to do it, and this applies to many of the teachers whose schools are not furnished with an adequate supply of suitable appliances. What is wanted in the schools is the cabinet of objects already named, and a better supply of pictures on various subjects of interest and utility. If these and other things before-mentioned be provided, the minds of the pupils will be better exercised, their mother tongue will be better understood and applied, and their practical sense of things will be enlarged and strengthened.

Singing.—In the Public Schools, the singing is of very fair merit, and is tolerably good in the denominational, whilst, in a few of the former, it is of a high order in point of quality and execution. Upon close examination, however, it is found that the ability of the pupils to sing is not satisfactorily commensurate with their practical knowledge of music. In most instances the ability is more the outcome of the frequent exercise of the ear and memory, than the exercise of the practical sense and skill. In some respects singing is analogous to reading, but differs from it in this important particular, that, whereas most of the pupils leave school qualified to read their newspaper with ease and fair intelligence, or to share in the benefits of a Free Public Library, few of them leave with the power of singing to the music of a popular song, or of taking an active part in a choir, glee club, or subscription concert. This is because of the imperfect way in which the subject is taught. In very few of the schools is the old notation used, notwithstanding that it is the only one acceptable to composers, instrumentalists, and the general public. The tonic-sol-fa method is professedly taught in most of the schools on the simultaneous principle, but very few of the classes can sing from sight fresh pieces of music written in its peculiar notation. The method has a few good features in it, and can be applied profitably in the lower classes, but it does not meet fully the practical requirements of the upper. What would appear to be the great desideratum is, that the latter may be supplied with a set of suitable manuals of part songs and melodies (O.N.), and that the members of them shall be so trained collectively and individually as to be able to sing at sight with the same self-reliance, ease, and pleasure as they would read an ordinary story.

Scripture Lessons.—These are read in the Third and upper classes of the Public Schools, and the results obtained in the examinations are fair in general. In the lower classes, the religious instruction is imparted in the form of moral lessons, contained in the ordinary reading book (I.N.B.), or by means of oral lessons on such subjects as the Creation, the Fall of Man, the Flood, the lives of the Patriarchs, of Moses, Samuel, John the Baptist, and Christ. The lessons appear to be appropriately given by the senior senior teachers, as a rule, and the answering of the little ones is generally animated and thoughtful. What is greatly needed is a better supply of Scriptural illustrations.

Euclid.—This subject is fairly well taught in the Fourth and Fifth Classes of eighteen schools, mostly public, and in some of them the boys have reached the third, fourth, or sixth book, but sufficient attention is not given to practical geometry, partly because of the absence of exact appliances, compasses, square, straight-edge measure, and parallel ruler. For want of them also the Infant School lessons on form are very deficient in exactness, and thus give rise to misconceptions that will have to be unlearned. In the Third and lower classes of the Primary Schools, the study of the subject is discontinued, much to the disadvantage of progress in the direction of technical education. There is little on the threshold of practical geometry that could not be learned at home by Third Class boys at least; and there is much in it that could be taught with healthy activity and pleasure without many appeals to reason.

Algebra (9) } The instruction in these subjects is confined chiefly to the Fifth Classes, and is Mensuration (3) } imparted with fair ability and success. The transition from arithmetic to algebra Trigonometry (3) } is too sudden and perplexing to the pupils, and unnecessarily so, inasmuch as Latin (5) } the former admits of elementary generalizations from induction in its higher stages, reduction, fractions, and proportion. The instruction in mensuration is not as inductive and as widely distributed as it could be; the subject is treated more as a mystery than as an ally of arithmetic, with which it should keep pace from the Second Classes upwards. Trigonometry is taught in the Superior Schools only, upon purely theoretical principles, there being no appliances to deal with it practically. Latin is taught in five schools, two Primary and three Superior, but little has been done beyond the declensions and the conjugations with their accompanying exercises for translation. It is doubtful, moreover, whether many of the boys will go farther in the subject than is essential to the study of their English grammar.

Needlework.—The results of the instruction in this subject are good on the average. It is taught in thirty-three schools, twelve of which are of three departments. In most instances, paid work-mistresses are employed, and they discharge their duties to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The general condition of the schools with respect to organization, discipline, and instruction, is:—

	Schools.
	Public.	Denominational.
Below the Standard	5	5
Up to the Standard	3	11

Viewing these numbers as a whole, and comparing them with those of last year, they show that the schools have made tolerably good progress; but considering the grades of the schools and the special standard that attaches to each, the general condition is more or less below the mark. It is encouraging to know, however, that most of the teachers are earnest and conscientious in the discharge of their duties, and that, by the efficiency of their discipline and by the energy and intelligence they throw into their work, they are influencing the State for good. It is also satisfactory to observe that many of them have, by a renewal of their professional studies, gained promotion to higher grades of classification.

With reference to the following table as to the classification of teachers, it should be explained that it does not contain the number of work mistresses, and that, with two exceptions, the number of teachers not classified refers to ex-students of the Training School whose grades are not made known to them till they have commenced duty in country schools.

To sum up: The educational requirements of the district have been so well met as to leave nothing to be done in the way of ordinary school extension at present. When the erection of a few school buildings, now in hand, is finished, and the proposed construction of four others is effected, every centre of population will have its school. Moreover, the present schools are in good material condition, most of them are well organized and disciplined, the instruction given in them is of a comparatively high standard, and fairly effective character, and the benefits arising from them are in fair proportion to the public expenditure. But to make them even better than they are, and in closer harmony with the practical requirements of the people, four improvements must be effected. The parents must see that their children attend them more punctually and regularly, and not only provide the elder ones with approved inexpensive class-books for home study, but see that they learn them with a due regard to health and bodily exercise. Some of the teachers too will require to base their aims and methods of instruction upon sounder and broader principles, and to give better effect to the teaching and training of the pupil-teachers. Finally, it will be necessary to give greater prominence to reading, dictation, composition, mathematics, and extempore speaking as an art, and also to supply the schools with additional appliances.

ANNEX F.

MR. INSPECTOR ALLPASS' REPORT FOR 1882.

In the early part of May last I succeeded Mr. Inspector Morris in the oversight of the schools of the Sydney E. division of the Metropolitan District.

I found that the number of schools that were in operation at the end of 1881 was seventy-four.

In the early part of this year girls' departments were created in connection with the Public Schools at Ashfield, Burwood, and Petersham, and during the year, the Church of England Schools at Surry Hills and Waterloo were converted into Public Schools.

At Botany, Crown-street, and Paddington, Evening Public Schools were brought into operation; the first-named, however, closed shortly after its establishment.

The schools that have been in operation during the year, or some portion thereof, are :—

Public Schools.....	52
Evening Public Schools	3
Church of England Schools	12
Roman Catholic Schools	10
Wesleyan Schools	3
Total.....	80

Ten of these schools were inspected by the District Inspector, seventeen by Mr. Inspector Morris, and forty-nine by myself. Four schools were not examined for the following reasons :—

Crown-street Superior, Public, Boys'.....	} Want of time.
Botany Evening, Public
Crown-street Evening, Public
Paddington

The total enrolment for the year was 29,332, but of this number

2,741 had been enrolled twice.
390 " " three times.
90 " " four times.
10 " " five times.

The actual number of pupils enrolled for the year will, therefore, more properly appear as 25,501.

The quarterly returns from schools show that the enrolment and average attendance for the several quarters of the year were,—

	Enrolment.	Average attendance.
March	18,733	12,531·2.
June	19,528	12,074·7.
September	19,215	12,915·
December.....	18,515	12,390·8.

The average enrolment and attendance for the year exhibit an improvement upon those for 1881, but, taking into consideration that there has been but little sickness to interfere with the attendance—as was the case in 1881—and the constant employment of a staff of attendance officers, the increase in the number of pupils should have been much larger.

	Average Quarterly Enrolment.	Average Quarterly Attendance.
1881.....	18,125.....	11,368·1.
1882.....	18,998.....	12,477·9.

Increase in the enrolment for 1882—873, or nearly 5 per cent.

Increase in the quarterly average attendance, 1,109·8, or nearly 3·3 per cent. in proportion to enrolment.

It was stated in the General Report for 1881 that accommodation, at the rate of 100 cubic feet per child, was afforded for 12,953 pupils.

Increased accommodation for some 600 more has been provided by additions to the Public School buildings at Ashfield and Petersham, and the provision of tents for Banks Meadow and Waterloo.

Buildings are in course of erection at Bondi and Darlinghurst for new Public Schools, and at Surry Hills south, to displace the temporary wooden buildings in use there.

Wooden school-houses, to afford temporary accommodation, are in course of erection at Darlinghurst, Double Bay, Gardener's Road, and Woollahra, and steps have been taken to secure the use of the large room in the Alexandria Council's buildings for a girls' department in connection with the Waterloo Public School.

The school premises belonging to the Church of England authorities at Randwick and Waterloo have been leased for Public School purposes.

In the sixty-six schools visited by Mr. Inspector Morris, and myself, 10,848 pupils were examined, and the following table exhibits their proficiency in the several subjects of instruction.

These percentages are, in a general sense, of satisfactory character, but it is proper to state that in the treatment of reading and grammar, the instruction is open to very considerable improvement.

The reading is of fluent character but it lacks expression and easiness of style. In arithmetic the passes indicate, to a large extent, a mechanical proficiency rather than a mental grasp of the subject.

Euclid is taught in the highest classes of thirteen boys' schools, but, excepting in three schools, the range is limited to the 1st Book.

Elementary algebra, mensuration, and latin are taught in five schools.

In two schools (Superior Public) trigonometry is included in the course of instruction, the range taken being to chapter 7 of Todhunter's Manual.

As

As regards these special subjects, I cannot get away from the conviction that they might, with advantage, be eliminated from the Primary School course. So far as the bulk of our public school children is concerned, and having in view the future career of the vast majority, instruction in book-keeping and English composition upon an extended plan might with great advantage be substituted for Latin and Mathematics.

As regards general efficiency, the sixty-six schools, under report, rank thus :—

Below a standard of fair	11
Up to a standard of fair	26
Beyond such standard	29

Teachers and Pupil-teachers.

146 teachers and assistant teachers, 165 pupil-teachers, seventeen work-mistresses, and three assistant work-mistresses have been employed during the year in the schools under my supervision.

I have found them earnest and intelligent educators, and they have loyally endeavoured to give effect to the professional suggestions made by me. They rank thus :—

In conclusion, I have to state that, as compared with the results of previous years, the schools under my supervision have, materially and educationally, improved.

ANNEX G.

MR. INSPECTOR MURRAY'S REPORT FOR 1882.

A the commencement of the year 1882, there were in the District assigned to me, 96 schools. These were of the following kinds :—

71 Public,	5 Church of England,
5 Provisional,	7 Roman Catholics,
6 Half-time,	1 Wesleyan.
1 Evening,

A redistribution of schools in the early part of the year altered these numbers to the following :—

64 Public,	1 Evening,
5 Provisional,	5 Church of England,
6 Half-time,	6 Roman Catholic.

During the first quarter of the year, the Evening School was closed on account of small attendance. Other schools were opened during the year, but as the attendance soon fell below the minimum number required (10), they also were closed. A Public School was established at Boothtown; Girls' Departments were formed at Penrith and Parramatta South, and an Infants' Department was established at Granville. Half-time Schools were established at Wallambine and Higher M'Donald. There were thus in operation in the District during the year or a portion of it,—

69 Public Schools, or Departments,	3 Evening,
5 Provisional,	5 Church of England,
8 Half-time,	6 Roman Catholics.

The three Evening Schools had but a brief existence, and were not examined. The Girls Departments at Penrith and Parramatta South, and the Infants' Department at Granville, were not formed till after the examination of the schools at these places, and the Half-time Schools at Wallambine and Higher M'Donald were not opened till the middle of November. All the other schools, 88 in number, were fully examined, 10 by Mr. District-Inspector M'Credie, and 78 by myself.

In addition to the full examination, many of the schools received one or more incidental visits; such visits were not nearly so numerous or lengthy as I could have wished; for, owing to the time occupied in conducting investigations, inquiry into applications for new schools, selection of school sites, reporting upon the necessity for new school buildings, additions to existing buildings, and sundry other clerical duties, it was impossible for me to make inspections of that kind, except upon somewhat rare occasions, and then only for brief periods. The schools in the most distant part of the district were only visited once, and I was unable to hold any ordinary inspections; I much regret this. The order and discipline of a school are best gauged by seeing it under its own regular teacher, and his assistants. It is in such circumstances only that defects in the teaching can be fully ascertained. The inspector should be able to observe the deportment of the pupils towards the teacher when receiving instruction from him; whether their looks and manner evince a willing or forced compliance with his government; whether they exhibit a willing attention to, and have a cheerful interest in his lessons. He should also be able to witness the manner and bearing of the teacher and his pupils in all the class changes, and in assembling and dismissing; in fact, to ascertain how far the teacher and pupils are in unison in their mutual relations. This cannot be done by an examination of the pupils by the inspector, as the teacher during the operation is merely an observer. In order that the inspector may become thoroughly acquainted with the working of a school, and be able to offer practical suggestions for removing defects that may be noted, he should occupy nearly as much time in the ordinary inspection each year as he does now in the examination of the pupils. It is hoped that arrangements may soon be made for curtailing the duties, other than the examination and inspection of schools, now performed by him, so as to allow of every school being fully examined, and having at least one ordinary inspection in each year.

Buildings.—During the year new school buildings have been erected at—Riverstone, Longueville,
Parramatta South (Girls), Regentville.

Tent Schools have been provided at—Boothtown,
Granville (Infants),

Parramatta South (Infants),
Parramatta North (Infants),
Peat's Ferry Road.

Pending

Pending the erection of new buildings, school premises have been rented at—

Penrith (Girls), Nelson,
Pennant Hills, South, Wiseman's Ferry,
Seven Hills.

Steps have been initiated with the view of securing sites and erecting buildings when required at—

Australian Farm, Pennant Hills, South,
Comleroy Road, Seven Hills,
Dural, Rouse Hill,
Seven Hills, Wiseman's Ferry,
Mulgoa, Peat's Ferry Road,
M'Donald, Upper, Penrith (Girls),
Parramatta, North, Colyton,
North Rocks (Windsor).

Repairs or additions to the following school buildings have been effected during the year :—

Blacktown, Ryde, North,
Wallgrove, Yarramundi ; and repairs or additions to the following school buildings are either in progress or under consideration :—

Castle Hill, Springwood,
Dundas, Smithfield,
Gladesville, Baulkham Hills,
Hornsby, Pitt Town,
M'Donald, Central, Prospect,
Penrith, Penrith (Infants),
Richmond, Rookwood,
Windsor, South Creek.

Sufficient accommodation is now provided in each of the schools for the children residing within reach, except at

Smithfield, South Creek (Infants),
Richmond (Infants), Yarramundi,

and, in these cases, arrangements are in progress to supply the deficiencies. So far as I am aware, there is no place in the district unprovided with the necessary accommodation and appliances for educating the children in it of school age, including those lately attending Denominational Schools.

During the year four applications for the establishment of new Public Schools have been refused. These applications were for schools within 2 miles of existing schools, one being for the establishment of a Public School within less than a mile, and one for a school less than half a mile, distant from an existing good Public School. In none of these cases was there a population in the locality sufficient to support the school asked for, and, in each case, the granting of the application would have resulted in injury to an established school. Three of the applications were for schools in the midst of land offered for sale, and the applicants urged that the establishment of the school would attract population to the spot. For the reasons stated, however, all were refused.

The following table shows the enrolment and average attendance for each quarter of the year :—

Quarter.	Enrolled.	Average attendance.
March.....	7,400	5,339·2
June	7,735	5,316·7
September	7,729	5,503·9
December	7,569	5,330·8

In the seventy-eight schools examined by myself, there were at the dates of inspection—

Enrolled	5,798
Examined	4,590
In ordinary attendance	4,572
Not receiving instruction	186
Enrolled, but so irregular in attendance as not to have attended during the previous half-year seventy days, the minimum number prescribed by the Public Instruction Act	1,560
Enrolled, and attended well or fairly for the previous six months ...	4,238

The average attendance for the year was 5,404·5. The total enrolment for the year was 10,053. Of this number, 652 were enrolled for a part of the year at one other school, twenty-seven were enrolled at two other schools, and one was enrolled at four other schools, leaving 9,343 who were not enrolled during the year at any other school. The great disproportion between even this number and the number in average attendance shows that much has yet to be done before the school attendance in this portion of the Metropolitan District can be said to be at all satisfactory. I stated in my last report that some parents were in the habit of sending requests to the teacher to permit their children to return home much before the hour for dismissal. Those children are marked in the Class Roll as if they had been present during the whole day ; there is thus the appearance of an attendance greater than the reality. I find this reprehensible practice still existing in some places, but steps have now been taken which it is believed will prevent its continuance.

As a whole the organization of the schools inspected by me is from fair to good. All are well supplied with necessary teaching appliances. The children were generally found clean, neatly dressed, and well behaved. Many of the schoolrooms were not as clean as they should have been. I attribute this, in great part, to the absence of door-mats and scrapers.

The table appended to the statistics accompanying this report shows the condition of the schools examined by me in relation to the standard (fair), and the following table shows the percentage of pupils who satisfied the standard in each subject of instruction in which they were examined in 1882 and in 1881 :—

	In 1882.	In 1881.
Reading	87·2 per cent.	72·3
Writing	86·2	83·6
Arithmetic	82·2	53·4
Grammar	77·3	60·8

From

From this table it will be seen that except in geography, a higher degree of proficiency was attained this year than in the preceding year. The low marks in geography are the result of teachers in general giving but little attention to the teaching of the geography of New South Wales. In all schools, classes above the second were examined in this subject, and, except in a very small number of schools, the answers given were disheartening. It was no uncommon thing to find classes who answered satisfactorily in the geography of Europe or Asia or both, unacquainted with the geography of their own country, having merely the ability to name some of the rivers, the coast projections, and the divisions of the watershed. The second class in every school was examined in

- (a.) Geography of the locality.
- (b.) Uses of the map.
- (c.) Definitions of common terms.

In general, the teaching in geography was limited to definitions of common terms, and nearly all answered well in this portion of the subject, while, in most cases, the pupils had little or no acquaintance with the use of a map or the geography of the immediate locality of the school. In no instance did I find a map of the locality suspended in the school. Every teacher should be competent to make such a map himself, and I have impressed upon teachers under my supervision the necessity of doing so. The map of the locality should have a representation of the school in the centre, and include a radius of say 5 miles. No teacher should experience much difficulty in making a map of the locality in which he resides from his own knowledge and the information he can obtain from the county and parish maps already published. The making of this map would be a much more profitable and interesting exercise to 4th class pupils than drawing or copying maps of Africa, Asia, &c. I have endeavoured to impress upon teachers the idea that Australian boys and girls of twelve or thirteen years of age should be as thoroughly acquainted with the geography of their own country as European boys and girls are with theirs. I am pleased to be able to state that in all cases teachers coincided with me in this opinion, and I hope the examination of next year will show as much advance in this subject as the results in arithmetic this year exceed those in the same subject last year.

Reading.—Under this head are included enunciation, meanings of words, spelling, knowledge of subject, and in the higher classes, derivation. Reading is generally well taught, except in the matter of derivation, and, in only a few of the leading schools, can it be said to receive the attention its importance demands. It is very necessary that children who are not likely to learn any language but English should be made well acquainted with the roots of words occurring in their lessons as a help towards the understanding of other words formed from the same roots.

Grammar.—Examination in this subject is conducted under four heads, viz., accidence, parsing, analysis, and composition. In parsing and analysis, the pupils as a rule acquitted themselves well, while, in accidence and composition, but few satisfactory answers were obtained. This arises from two causes. In the first case, grammar is, save in a few rare cases, taught orally. Indeed, in many schools, the pupils never had a grammar text-book in their hands. The grammar rules must be committed to memory by the pupils, and in schools where the teaching of this subject is exclusively oral, the answers to questions in grammatical accidence were very few and unsatisfactory. No teacher should waste his time in teaching by repetition to his pupils what they can learn better from a cheap text-book in the same time. The great and general defect in the schools in this district is in not having a well-arranged system of home memory lessons as preparation for the suggestive teaching of the school.

Secondly, the teaching of composition is, as a rule, confined to the reproduction of oral lessons. These exercises are in general so lengthy and numerous, that, in many cases, it is impossible for the teacher to give the large amount of time necessary for their accurate examination, and afterwards for strict correction by the pupils, so that, on this account, much of the good expected from those lengthy home-written exercises is not realized. But very few of the pupils thus exercised in the production of lengthy oral lessons were found capable of forming complex and compound sentences upon familiar subjects. In the teaching of composition a change for the better is now being made, and I hope that the results of examination in 1883 will be more satisfactory.

Arithmetic.—The number who passed fair, good, or excellent in this subject is 28·8 per cent. higher than the number who passed last year. This advance in one year is encouraging. The teaching is now more real and sound than heretofore, and the examples are less book-like and more adapted to the ordinary purposes of life. But the teaching requires yet to be made more intellectual. This is especially the case in the junior classes under pupil-teachers, and in schools whose teachers, without assistance, instruct three classes. Where the thinking system does not obtain, the examination is generally disappointing to the teacher himself, who expresses surprise at his pupils failing in working sums much simpler than those given by himself in the everyday work of the school. The explanation is this: the sums given at the examination were out of the school groove. The pupils require to be thrown more upon their own resources in the every-day school work.

Teachers.—There are employed in the district assigned to me—

Teachers	89
Assistant teachers	8
Work-mistresses	5
Pupil-teachers	53

The teachers are classified as under:—

Class.	Section.	No. of Teachers.
II	A	9
II	B	21
III	A	29
III	B	17
III	C	9
Probationers		7
Trained and examined, but whose classification is not yet decided		5

The teachers are, almost without exception, honest and earnest in the discharge of their duties, of good repute, and highly esteemed by the people among whom they dwell.

In conclusion, this report shows that, in the efficiency of the instruction, and in the material condition of the schools, good progress has been made during the year. The future is hopeful and encouraging.

ANNEX H.

MR. INSPECTOR THOMPSON'S REPORT, 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit my General Report for the year 1882.

I entered upon my official duties in this (Wollongong) section of the Metropolitan District on 29th May. During the year, or some portion thereof, 96 schools or departments were in operation, viz. :—

Public Schools	76
Provisional	5
Half-time	2
Church of England	4
Roman Catholic	8
Wesleyan	1
Total	96

14—Q

Of

Of these, one Public School (Meroo) was closed, and re-opened in the vicinity, at Little Meadow ; and one Public School was opened at Green Valley, near Liverpool ; one Provisional School and two Church of England Schools were converted into Public Schools.

This section of the district is adequately supplied with the means of education throughout, with the exception of the district of Burraborang, where the sparseness of the population renders it difficult to provide schools ; but the efforts made in this direction of late give fair promise of being successful.

Of the schools in operation during the year, ten were fully inspected by Mr. District-Inspector John M'Creddie, and seventy-two by Mr. Inspector Johnson, and myself. The interval which elapsed consequent upon the change of officers in this section, together with exceptional demands relative to applications for schools, or cases requiring special or immediate attention, precluded inspection of all the schools.

Condition of Schools.

Material Condition.—Although the accommodation provided may be pronounced adequate to the requirements of this part of the district, there are many instances in which the character of the buildings is not suited to educational purposes, and the material condition in such cases is anything but satisfactory. This is particularly observable in the school buildings to the south of Kiama, where the land is principally in the hands of private persons, and has hitherto been difficult, if not impracticable, to obtain, so that the best has had to be made of such structures as could be leased, or otherwise procured.

The following table will illustrate the efficiency of the schools inspected either by me or my predecessor :—

Schools.	Above Standard.	Up to Standard.	Below Standard.
Public	21	12	21
Provisional	3
Church of England	2	1	3
Roman Catholic	2	6
Wesleyan	1
Totals—all Schools	23	15	34

The improvement or retrogression in the various subjects of instruction since the previous year the percentages given below will demonstrate :—

Reading	80 per cent.	78 per cent.
Writing	90 "	90 " ..
Arithmetic.....	46 "	55 " ..

Music	68 "	68 " ..

Summary.—This section of the district is well supplied with the means of education, and every opportunity is, as far as practicable, embraced to improve the material organization where defective or inadequate. The teachers are conscientious and diligent in the discharge of their duties, but, in many instances, the instruction is imparted on too mechanical a basis to be thoroughly effective. Every disposition is, however, shown on the part of the teachers to embrace and carry into effect suggestions made with a view to ameliorate the character of instruction and the proficiency of the pupils. As regards future prospects there is reasonable hope of improvement.

GOULBURN DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT INSPECTOR W. DWYER'S REPORT FOR 1882.

DURING the year ending 31st December, 1882, there were 287 schools of all classes in operation, as shown in table marked I, hereto appended. Of these, 264 were open the whole year, the remaining twenty-three having been added from time to time during its course. With the exception of seven, all were subjected to the usual regular or general inspection, and a considerable number also received one or more additional visits. One of those not inspected was closed when the inspector was in the neighbourhood ; one, an Evening School had collapsed before the inspector could have visited it ; another (Cooma, R.C.) was withdrawn from the control of the Department early in the year ; and the remainder (four) being teaching stations, attended by twenty-eight children, and conducted by an itinerating teacher, were left uninspected, owing to the employment of the inspector in another district.

In whatever localities population is at all settled, the means afforded by the Public Instruction Act of providing for their educational wants are usually applied without much loss of time, and, in consequence, some kind of school-room is soon available. At first it is often of a rude and temporary character, full of inconveniences and hardships both to children and teachers ; but this state of things is not destined to last very long, as the Department undertakes to provide, either by renting or building, all school-rooms required for average attendances of twenty and upwards. It is therefore found that, as a rule, every neighbourhood in which a school can at all exist, is provided with one ; while in the more important centres, the towns and villages, structures of more elaborate design and finish and of superior accommodation, are becoming numerous. In a few instances the school districts overlap, but such cases arise from previous vested interests being involved. No permanent provision is likely to be made, nor considerable expenditure authorised, until a proper adjustment of the various interests concerned has been made. In future, substantial aid is to be given towards the erection, as well as the maintenance, of Provisional Schools.

The condition of the schools inspected as regards suitability and general efficiency, especially the latter, will be apparent from the following comparison with the standard :—

Below the standard (fair)	118 Schools

Above "	59 "

The number of pupils present at examination was 9,856, of whom the number examined in each subject, and of these the percentage who satisfied, and who failed to satisfy, the standard, will be understood from the following table; but fuller and more precise information will be found in the tables of proficiency attached to this report:—

Subject.	Number of pupils examined.	Proportion up to and above the standard.
Reading.....	9,816	65 per cent.
Writing.....	9,549	68 "

In accordance with the Regulations affecting Superior Public Schools, History (English), and the elements of the French language (for girls only) were introduced during the year to the pupils of the fifth or highest classes of the Goulburn Superior Public School, while reading and writing as routine subjects were omitted to the same extent. Though not separately noticed in the statistical tables, dictation formed a regular exercise in nearly all classes, and a valuable element in their general instruction. Compared with the results of last year's inspection, the preceding figures show an advance in reading, arithmetic, grammar, geography, euclid, algebra, and needlework; the writing and vocal music are about stationary—the former being of very fair, and the latter of fair merit, while in most of the other subjects there is a decline. In connection with this result, it is to be remembered that twenty-three new schools were brought into operation during the year, and that several of these were examined in the first quarter, some in the first month of their existence, and that such having been the case, the decline referred to is easily accounted for. It is satisfactory to know that the advance recorded is found in the more difficult and important subjects—in those indeed which by themselves alone constitute a respectable curriculum of a useful and even high elementary education. The new Standard of Proficiency has not yet been supplied to the schools, and, as a consequence, the course of instruction may be found, when tested by it, to have been somewhat injudicious; but in the absence of such a guide no other arrangement was practicable for teachers.

The numbers inserted in table No. 2 show the present condition of the different classes of schools, as also that of all schools in relation to the standard.

The following figures indicate their relative efficiency for the past three years:—

	Schools below Standard.	Schools up to Standard.	Schools above Standard.
In 1880	49 per cent.	32 per cent.	19 per cent.
„ 1881	40 „	33 „	27 „
„ 1882	42 „	37 „	21 „

The fact already mentioned, that several of the new schools were examined during their first quarter, is sufficient to explain the slight declension observable, which may be regarded rather as the failure of a few to reach a certain standard of efficiency in a time unreasonably short, than a partial deterioration of all, or even of a large proportion. It may be well to point out, however, that a considerable number of schools, owing to various circumstances arising from irregular attendance of pupils, inexperience and frequent changes of teachers, and the establishment of new and small schools, must, as a matter of absolute necessity, always or for a very long time maintain a rather conspicuous position at the foot of the standard. For the past year the general result is a fair approach to it.

Omitting the Denominational Schools, the future prospects of the schools of this district, as far as can be foreseen with any certainty, may be regarded as of reasonable promise. Considering that a large proportion of them are comparatively old institutions, which have earned or won a claim to public recognition, that those of later origin are urged by the example of the former towards the same goal, that almost all are liberally provided with accommodation and abundant material appliances, intrusted to the care of teachers of the most approved talent and experience available, and subject to a regular, active and, it is hoped, intelligent and beneficial supervision; considering these facts, and the further attraction of a very low scale of charges and other substantial advantages, it would be a matter of surprise if they—the schools here referred to—should fail to secure a large amount of public patronage and favour, and to render their future operation as acceptable as may be fairly commensurate with the benefits conferred.

The reports of the inspectors acting with me in the supervision of the schools of the Goulburn District are forwarded herewith for the information of the Minister.

Goulburn, 25th January, 1883.

WM. DWYER,
District Inspector.

ANNEX J.

MR. INSPECTOR O'BYRNE'S REPORT ON THE CONDITION OF THE SCHOOLS IN THE MITTAGONG SECTION OF GOULBURN DISTRICT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

I.—Number and distribution of the Schools.

At the close of 1881 the number of schools in this portion of the district stood as follows:—

Public	55
Provisional	25
Half-time	14
Roman Catholic.....	3
Presbyterian	1
Total	98

During the year 1882 Provisional Schools were established at Comarong, Yerryong, Bomballaway, and Chalkerville.

The following Provisional Schools having secured the required attendance of not less than 20 pupils for a full quarter, were in accordance with the regulations converted into Public Schools, viz:—Burra Lake, Caoura, Chalkerville, Irishtown, Inverary Park, Jacqua, Jannugarrah, Leighwood, Merryvale, Mimosa Park, North Huskisson, Wowagin, and Yalwal.
Evenin

Evening Public Schools were established at Conjola, Kangaloon, and Red Head. The latter two collapsed in a very short time, but that at Conjola, although the population there is small, has done very good work and continues in a promising condition.

Summarising these changes, the following shows the number in the several classes of schools at the end of 1882:—

Public	69
Provisional	17
Half-time	12
Roman Catholic.....	2
Presbyterian	1
Evening Pub.....	1
Total.....	102

Arrangements have been completed for the immediate opening of a Public School at Berrima Colliery. This school has been urgently needed for some time, but no suitable building could be found in the locality. So as to meet pressing wants, the Department has decided to send a school-tent.

The Minister has promised to grant aid to Provisional Schools at Gullen West, Barber's Creek, and Cramston, so soon as the residents comply with the regulations bearing on the establishment of schools of this kind.

An application from Powell Park, near Crookwell, was refused because the proposed school would be too near to existing schools, and would therefore injudiciously affect the attendance at them. Some preliminary steps have been taken towards the establishment of Provisional Schools at Meryla and Colo. There are a few isolated families residing in the rough country along the upper courses of the Shoalhaven and the Wollondilly, which cannot be reached by schools of any of the classes referred to in this report. I shall, during the year now entered upon, endeavour to suggest practical means of reaching the children of these families.

From the foregoing remarks it will be observed that the means of primary education in this part of the colony are very fairly supplied. No part of the district, where ten or twelve pupils of the school age can be collected, is without its school.

II.—Inspection and its results.

All the schools in the district underwent the usual regular inspection, and most of them were visited incidentally two or three times during the year. The following table will show the condition of the several kinds of schools in relation to the standard:—

Kind of School.	Below.	Equal to.	Above.
Public	23	21	19
Provisional	16	7	1
Half-time	4	6	2
Roman Catholic	1	1
Presbyterian.....	1
Evening Pub.....	1
Totals	44	36	22

In 1882 fifty-seven per cent. of the schools examined reached the standard fair to good. In 1881 fifty-one per cent. reached that state of efficiency.

The average results of examination in the several subjects of instruction are exhibited in the following table, both for the year 1881 and 1882:—

Singing.....	62.0 „	50.0 „
Needlework.....	44.7 „	43.5 „
Drill	45.1 „	46.8 „

Generally it will be seen that there has been an improvement in the attainments during the year under review. The improvement has been most marked in arithmetic, whilst there is a falling off in the scripture lessons and singing.

III.—Organisation.

As pointed out in my last report, the buildings for Provisional Schools are as a rule mere shells. In cases where these schools are converted into Public Schools, the responsibility of keeping the buildings in suitable repair generally devolves on the Department. Hitherto the work of supplying wants arising in this way has been slow and costly, but there is no reason that it should be so. A good slab-house, dry, well-lighted, and properly ventilated, and having a comfortable fire-place is, to my mind, quite sufficient in small centres of population. Such buildings, with the necessary fences and out offices, could be supplied in every part of the colony for from £80 to £100.

Residences are seldom wanted for these schools, the teachers generally being single persons. Extravagant expectations regarding the expenditure of public money on buildings in thinly-populated localities are very prevalent and are extremely annoying to the Department. Some public men, in their desire to outbid each other for popular favour, foster these unreasonable expectations. It is always a popular thing to get public money to spend, and unpopular to oppose such expenditure. I frequently find it necessary to take the unpopular side. A local school-rate would be a most effective remedy for the evil adverted to, but I fear such a remedy is not in the immediate future.

More than half the Public Schools are in good material condition, and they are well organized. As stated above, the Provisional and Half-time Schools are inferior in structure and poorly furnished. Pretty general complaints are heard as to the scantiness of the supply of pens, ink, and pencils granted yearly to the schools.

IV.—Attendance.

Regularity and punctuality are still unsatisfactory points in the discipline. The want of punctuality is most marked in the farming localities, where the children have to do a good deal of work before and after school. It is not an unusual thing to see big boys and girls sauntering into school between 10 and 11 o'clock, and presenting all the appearance of being exhausted by a morning's hard hard work. The teacher's example, his watchfulness, and his care can largely reduce this want of punctuality, but under such circumstances as described he can never wholly remove it. The home work has to be done; and after all, perhaps, it is as well that the very valuable lesson of industry should keep pace with intellectual development.

The improvement which I expected in regularity has not taken place, although the Attendance Officers have been active and prudent in the discharge of their duties. For the purpose of comparison I quote the enrolment and the average attendance at the ninety-seven schools which were in operation both during 1881 and 1882:—

		97 schools.
1881. Enrolment.....	5,545.	Average.....	3,042.3.
1882. „ „	5,779.	„	3,241.1.

As this year was favourable for school attendance, and the arrangements for enforcing attendance were complete throughout the district, this increase of 1.1 per cent. is small, and does not afford much room for congratulation.

V.—Teaching Staff.

The teaching staff of the 102 schools consists of 96 principal teachers, 1 assistant teacher, and 21 pupil teachers. Their classifications by examination are:—

Class	I, Sec.	A.....	None.
„	„	B.....	1 „
„	II, „	A.....	14
„	„	B.....	18
„	III, „	A.....	12
„	„	B.....	16
„	„	C.....	36
„	Unclassified	36

Pupil-teachers:—1st class, 1; 2nd class, 3; 3rd class, 8; and 4th class, 9.

Examinations of teachers were held in June and December, at which thirty-four attended. The results of the December examinations are not yet known; but it is probable that, as in June last, a good number of the aspirants have been successful. It is compulsory on the pupil-teachers to undergo examination annually. Nineteen of them were tested in accordance with this regulation, and only four are reported as not entitled to promotion. These facts cannot but be regarded as satisfactory, as they evidence a steady and an active desire among the teachers for self improvement. The new regulations are producing good results in this direction.

It is gratifying to be able to speak with confidence of the good conduct and general respectability of the teachers. They are, with hardly an exception, sober, improving, and respectable persons. Twice during the year considerable numbers of them were brought for examination to towns distant from their homes, and their conduct during the four or five days of examination was such as to win the warm commendations of the residents of those towns. A better test of the self-respect and good conduct of a body of public servants could hardly be applied.

VI.—Finance.

The total amount of fees received during the year was £1,717 4s. 9d., as against £1,561 13s. 9d. received in 1881. The total salary of the present staff of teachers is at the rate of £14,872 per annum.

VII.—Denominational Schools.

The withdrawal of aid from the three Denominational Schools of this district has not cause any noticeable inconvenience in the school accommodation. The Shoalhaven Presbyterian has been made a Public School, and the old premises have been rented until a new building is ready for occupation. The Roman Catholics of Taralga and Ulladulla have resolved to maintain their schools as non-state schools. The teachers lately employed in these schools have received other appointments under the Department.

MR. INSPECTOR DAWSON'S REPORT, BRAIDWOOD, FOR THE YEAR 1882.

SINCE last general report no change has been made in the limits of the Braidwood District, which comprises the greater part of the counties of Dampier, St. Vincent, and Murray.

At the end of the year 1882 there were in operation 35 Public Schools, 8 Provisional, 8 Denominational, 18 Half-time Schools, and 4 stations where house-to-house teaching was carried on.

Two Provisional Schools were opened during the year with successful results. Two Evening Public Schools which commenced operations in the course of the year did not last till December. The approach of summer interfered as usual with the attendance. A Half-time School lapsed owing to insufficient numbers.

Nothing has occurred to necessitate any alteration in the opinion expressed in a former report that the schools are for the most part centrally situated, and their districts do not overlap.

The outlying localities which at the beginning of 1882 were unprovided with means of education, have received special attention with the result that new schools have been opened at Kowen, Newstead, and Adjanbella, and nine other schools at Corang River, Rossi, Foxlow, Currowan, Shallow Crossing, Googong, Manar, Dena River, and Mudbury Creek, will in all probability commence operations at the beginning of 1883. As far as I am aware, there remain only a few sparsely populated localities unsupplied with schools. In the larger towns the Public Schools will in most cases accommodate any possible increase in attendance, which may be caused by the withdrawal of aid from Denominational Schools. Where the existing accommodation has been deemed inadequate steps have been taken to augment it.

Of the 76 schools in operation throughout the year, 71 were fully and regularly inspected; one, an Evening Public School, collapsed before inspection was possible; and the inspection of the four stations (representing 28 children) under the care of the itinerant teacher in Jingera, was prevented by my employment towards the end of the year in the Yass District.

Ordinary inspections in which the methods of teaching received special criticism were made in the case of 20 schools, and incidental inspections were made of 47 schools.

Besides these, 20 schools in the Yass District were fully and regularly inspected.

The material condition of the Public Schools has improved considerably during the year. New buildings have been erected at Upper Araluen and Kiora, and in the case of 15 other schools repairs and improvements of varying extent have been executed.

The condition of the Half-time and Provisional School buildings has slightly improved, but is still unsatisfactory. These buildings are in general badly lighted, the furniture is clumsy, and those conveniences so necessary for the comfort of the pupils and for proper organization, are wanting. The new regulations with regard to the aid to be granted towards the erection of Provisional School buildings will undoubtedly raise their condition in future. It might be advisable to grant similar aid to the Provisional Schools already in existence.

A perceptible improvement has taken place in the attendance, chiefly attributable to the operation of the compulsory clause during the second half of the year. There is still, however, ample room for further improvement.

On examination, 30 schools were found to be fully up to standard requirements, 11 above, and 30 below. Of these last the majority consist of Provisional, Half-time, and smaller Public Schools. In general, the children attending these schools reside at considerable distances; they are frequently employed by their parents to assist in farm work, and their attendance is for these reasons irregular. The consequence is that satisfactory results are well nigh unattainable.

The discipline throughout the schools is creditable, in some very much so. The pupils are well-behaved, respectful in demeanour, and attentive. In punctuality there is room for improvement in some cases. The exercise of a little firmness on the part of the teachers has generally been found sufficient to eradicate this defect.

The following table shows the number of pupils examined in each subject, and the percentage of pupils who passed :—

Subject.	Number examined.	Percentage.
Reading	2,203	69
Writing	2,203	68
Arithmetic.....	1,858	44
Grammar	1,254	61
Geography.....	1,254	62
Scripture Lessons.....	350	71
Object Lessons	2,118	66
Drawing.....	1,027	47
Singing	1,094	47
Geometry	65	72
Algebra	51	55
Mensuration	12	75
Needlework	754	85

The percentages are in some cases higher and in others lower than those of last year. The average percentage is over 60, the standard percentage.

Reading.—In this subject the pass is higher than that of last year. In the lower classes the chief defect is the want of proper collocation. In the higher classes correct expression and intonation do not receive sufficient attention.

Grammar is still in many cases taught deductively. Few teachers possess the requisite power of illustration and example.

Composition.—Practically speaking, the aim of grammar is sacrificed to expertness in the manipulation of technical terms.

Arithmetic.—No improvement has been made in this subject. The chief failure is in the working of the compound rules. The cause seems to lie in a want of thoroughness in mastering each rule before leaving it. In the higher rules, teachers are generally content with mechanical aptitude rather than intelligent comprehension. Hence, when a question is given requiring reflection, few pupils are successful.

Drawing and Singing.—These subjects are sometimes attempted by teachers not properly qualified to give instruction in them, in order that none of the subjects prescribed may be omitted. The intention is highly laudable, but the performance is often of such a nature as to lead to the opinion that valuable time has been wasted. In the smaller schools, where the staff consists of one teacher, who may not be duly qualified to give instruction in singing and drawing, it might be advisable to omit these subjects, in order to secure greater proficiency in important subjects, especially arithmetic.

The teachers are as a body diligent and painstaking in the discharge of their duties. Their social position is creditable, and with very few exceptions they have won the esteem of the parents.

To sum up :—The increasing number of schools indicates healthy interest and activity. The improvements in the material condition of the schools will inevitably tend to raise the educational results. Though in some subjects lower percentages have been obtained than in 1881, fair efficiency has been obtained, so that if no decided advance can be noted there has certainly been no retrogression. The teachers, on whom everything depends, are anxious to improve the efficiency of their schools. On these grounds, therefore, I consider that the educational prospects of the district are very favourable.

ANNEX L.

MR. INSPECTOR KEVIN'S REPORT FOR 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit my annual report for the year 1882.

At the close of last year I had under my supervision the following schools :—Thirty-five Public, fourteen Provisional, six Half-time, two Certified R.C. At the end of 1882 I had :—Forty-eight Public, fifteen Provisional, six Half-time, and one Certified R.C. In each case this is the actual number of schools in existence and fulfilling the State duty. It will thus be seen that during the past year thirteen schools not in existence or temporarily closed have been brought into full operation.

During 1882 two new Public Schools have been opened, viz. :—Montreal and Three-mile Water-hole, and one Wolunla, North, which had been closed for some years, was brought again into existence. The following Provisional Schools have been converted into Public Schools since last report :—Burrembooka, Caddigat, Cobbora, Lochiel, Rock Hall, Saucy Creek, Towamba, Tanja, and Wapengo.

The following Provisional Schools have been opened with success :—Black Rock, Bredbo, Church Creek, Coolagolite, Gunningrah, Mumbulla, and Square Range. Three of these have just merged into Public Schools, viz. :—Black Rock, Church Creek, and Square Range.

The following new schools are expected to be opened early in the present year, viz. :—Dry Plain, Public; Avoca, Provisional; Berridale, Provisional; Rocky Plain, Provisional; Lord's Hill, Provisional; Wolunla North, Provisional; Bermagui, Provisional; and Forest Dale, Provisional. In addition to these the expediency of establishing Provisional Schools at the following places is under consideration, viz. :—Jindabyne, Moonbah, Jimenbuan, Ingram's Creek, and Half-time Schools at Tombong, and Glenroy. No schools have been permanently closed during the year. The Certified R.C. Schools at Cooma and Bega have ceased to exist.

School Buildings.

New and handsome buildings have been opened during the year at Spring Vale, 5 miles from Bega; and new premises started at Brown Mountain, Dignam's Creek, Meringlo, Nimitybelle, and Bega. All these are expected to be completed before the end of the year. Repairs have been effected to Eden, Public, and the school now is commodious and handsome. The accommodation is on the whole ample; the only exception is perhaps that of the Bega Public, in which the numbers will be greatly greatly augmented owing to the closing of the Roman Catholic School. By utilizing one of the weather-sheds, however, the temporary pressure can be relieved until the new premises now in course of erection are completed. These buildings, so badly needed, promise to be at once an ornament to the town and a credit to the department.

Distribution of the means of education.

The means of education are on the whole adequate and well distributed. Generally speaking a school of some class, recognized by the Minister, is in existence where required, but there are still some places where schools are needed. The great difficulty in the way is, however, to be found in the isolation of families; this applies more particularly to the Monaro district where considerable numbers of free selectors and of shepherds are found scattered over the plains. To reach these is a very difficult matter, living as they do miles apart, and as is often the case with no permanent stake in the locality. Such cases can be dealt with best by means of itinerant teachers.

Results of inspection.

During the year 1882 there were forty-eight Public, fifteen Provisional, six Half-time, and two Certified Denominational Schools in operation. Of these all were regularly inspected with the exception of two—Kiandra Public (which was temporarily closed at the time of my visit) and Cooma Roman Catholic (closed early in the year). In addition, five schools were re-inspected, and twenty-two incidentally visited. The great extent of this district, the large amount of clerical and other work, as well as a severe family bereavement, prevented me from extending the work of re-inspection further. I am, however, in a position to give a thoroughly reliable estimate of the efficiency of the schools under my supervision for the year.

There were 4,049 pupils enrolled for the year, and the average daily attendance was 2,124·3. The average attendance for the four quarters was:—

	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
March	946·0	884·8	1,830·8
June	10,11·6	968·4	1,980·0
September	1,086·9	285·9	2,072·8
December	1,028·4	926·7	1,955·1

The number enrolled two or more times was 223.

The ordinary attendance was 2,034, and the number present at inspection 1,960.

The total number between the ages of six and fourteen, and that might reasonably be expected to be in attendance, was 1,931, and the number not receiving State education 243. This number will no doubt become very small so soon as this part of the Colony has been brought under the operation of the compulsory clause of this Act.

Of the total enrolment 2,988 attended 140 or more days during the past year, and 1,061 failed to do so through the following causes:—

Sickness	116
Truancing	0
Removal from the district	75
Other causes	870

Under the head of "other causes" may be included that greatest obstacle to a child's progress in school, detention at home. With the labour market almost empty, and wages at an exorbitant figure, parents will and must keep their children at home to assist in farming operations or in tending sheep. On Monaro, during the months of October, November, and December, a very large percentage of the enrolment is absent in consequence of these three months covering what is commonly known as the "wool season"; and on the coast harvesting operations always interfere with regularity of attendance. There is one feature in connection with absenteeism which in my opinion calls for special action, namely, the custom of making little girls tend sheep. It is a practice which for obvious reasons should not be tolerated for a day. It seems rather a strange thing in a country well supplied with schools to meet persons who refuse point blank to allow their children to be educated. Yet I have met such. I need hardly say that the presence of an attendance officer is the only cure for such a state of things.

Organization.

This is on the whole a satisfactory feature in the schools under my supervision, particularly in those conducted by classified and experienced teachers. There are, however, some points that need more attention. I have had frequently to point out to teachers the absence of cleanliness and of tidiness in their schools, as well as to direct their attention to neglected play-grounds. Very few schools have flower gardens, and this is the more to be regretted, as such things in connection with a school foster a taste for flower culture among the children. Every one who has travelled much through the Australian bush will admit that such education is sadly needed among the settlers, for the absence of flower-gardens and orchards is characteristic of the free selector's home, especially in newly-settled districts.

Another feature in connection with some of the schools, particularly those of the Provisional class, is the absence of proper out offices. In every instance where I found these wanting I took action at once by urging upon the residents their importance and necessity. I am glad to say that in many cases my efforts have been successful.

The fault of carrying subdivision too far, mentioned in my report for last year, has almost disappeared. The classification is now generally sensible and correct.

The records are as a rule neatly and faithfully kept, and no instance of anything approaching falsification has come under my notice during the year. The returns are furnished promptly, and are compiled with judgment and care. The prompt and vigorous action on the part of the Chief Inspector with reference to defaulters has done much to improve matters of late. Cases calling for reproof or censure are mostly trifling, and not numerous. The want of a standard of proficiency has been a source of considerable trouble and embarrassment to some teachers during the year. The new standard is anxiously looked for.

DISCIPLINE.

This is generally a satisfactory feature in the schools of the district. Still punctuality does not receive the attention it deserves. It is an extremely bad feature in connection with a school to see children strolling in an hour or two after the work has commenced, and the teacher allowing them to take their seats without demanding and receiving a full and satisfactory explanation of such conduct.

Order and personal neatness and cleanliness receive proper attention. There is, however, one point in connection with discipline which has at all times received my strongest condemnation, viz., the habit of spitting on the slates and rubbing the same with the bare hand. Such a practice is at once filthy and disgusting, and should never be tolerated. On the other hand I have been greatly pleased to see in many schools the children using the damp rubber or rag, and the teacher insisting on each child providing itself with one of these.

INSTRUCTION.

Making a careful retrospect of the past year's work, I am glad to say that the results of inspection are on the whole satisfactory. This is the more gratifying, as the examinations were stricter and more searching than those of last year; still there are a considerable number of schools in which the teaching teaching is neither vigorous nor intelligent, and in which the results cannot be regarded as up to standard requirements. These schools are generally conducted by untrained and inexperienced, and in the case of Provisional Schools, by unclassified, teachers. The following tabulated statement shows the relation of the various schools in point of proficiency to the standard:—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Fairly meeting the Standard (Fair.)	Above Standard.	Totals.
Public	11	20	16	47
Provisional	5	6	4	15
Half-time.....	4	2	...	6
Certified Denominational	1	...	1

At first sight the number of Public Schools that failed to reach the required standard seems large, but many of these have been but recently converted from the class Provisional, or else have been but a short time in operation.

An examination of the foregoing figures shows a satisfactory improvement on the results of last year, in all subjects except reading, drawing, algebra, and euclid.

Attainments.

Reading.—All were examined in this subject, but the number that passed satisfactorily was less than last year. I still fail to meet with anything like good reading, and I can see little hope of improvement until our teachers themselves learn, or are taught to read. It is a fact which has forced itself upon me that not only are the children in our schools—and indeed in schools of higher pretensions—not taught to read at all, but they are actually taught to read badly. One of the clearest proofs of this is to be found in the difference between a child on entering school with its natural intonation and inflection of voice, and the same child some months afterwards when it has learnt to read. Until our teachers themselves are taught to read, and that early in life, I fail to see how we are to expect natural, intelligent, and pleasing reading in our schools. Expressive reading I do not look for. Oral spelling and spelling from dictation receive due attention.

Arithmetic.—This subject continues to be taught with passable success in the majority, and with marked success in some of the schools. In the hands of inexperienced and untrained teachers the subject, as might be expected, is treated in a purely mechanical way; and any departure in the inspection from the little beaten track of every-day school work is sure to be followed by failure on the part of the examinees. The gravest defect is in not making so important a subject subservient to the ordinary transactions of every-day life. Mental arithmetic receives fair attention, but the results are not generally high.

Grammar.—As a rule teachers give this subject a good deal of attention, but as it is not generally handled with intelligence the results are somewhat low. Too much time is spent over the merely mechanical work of analysis, and too little devoted to English composition. This is a subject which appears not to be taught at all, or, if taught, with very little success. In only three schools did I find the pupils able to write fifty or more lines of sensible and grammatical English upon a subject with which they had been made familiar.

Geography.—The results in this subject are satisfactory. I could wish, however, that less time were devoted to mere descriptive, and more to commercial, Geography.

Object Lessons.—There is a slight improvement in this subject on the results of last year. The lessons are regularly given and with passable success. There is still, however, a disposition on the part of a number of teachers to slavishly follow hand-books, instead of trusting to their own intelligence and reading. The consequence is that such lessons make little impression, and the amount of information conveyed, though apparently large, is in reality very trifling. The choice of subjects is still open to objection.

Penmanship.—This subject continues to be well taught in a large number of schools. I have invariably found the best writing in schools where one style of copy-book was in use or where the teacher—he himself being a good penman—set the head-lines. The worst writing was met where different kinds of copy-books were in use. I should be glad to see the Department sanction a new series of copy-books, and one of a class that might be regarded to some extent as Australian. These books might be sold in the schools at cost price. We should then secure, at least, uniformity of style in the writing in our schools.

Vocal Music.—The results of inspection in this subject are rather low, but this is not a matter for surprise when it is borne in mind that a majority of the teachers in this part of the Goulburn district have never had any special opportunities of acquiring a knowledge of the subject. In two schools vocal music is taught in a systematic and intelligent manner, and the singing of the pupils is at once correct and pleasing.

Algebra and Euclid.—These subjects are taught in four schools, and the results were on the whole satisfactory. The actual work done was not of a very high range however.

Needlework.—This subject shows an improvement on last year's work, and plain sewing now receives the attention it deserves. Fancy work is taught with success in a few of the better class of Public Schools. Some parents still show a desire to dictate the class of work to be done, in a few instances insisting on their girls being taught fancy work before they have learnt plain sewing to the teacher's satisfaction. In every case the teacher was instructed in accordance with circular directions.

The teachers of this district are respectable, hard working, and faithful public servants. They are, as a rule, popular, and are much respected in their calling. Their positions have been dignified and their income considerably increased in many cases by the operation of the regulations relating to compulsory examinations. At last mid-winter fourteen teachers were examined, and of these only four failed. At Christmas thirteen sat for examination, but the result is not so far known. There can be no question that these periodical examinations have effected a great deal of good in this district, and the teachers themselves are fully alive to this.

The

The following table gives the classification by examination of all teachers under my supervision at the end of 1882:—

Public Schools.
Class.	Section.	No. of Teachers.
I	A	0
I	B	0
II	A	3
II	B	1
III	A	15
III	B	13
III	C	9
Unclassified		12

All the unclassified teachers in charge of Public Schools sat for examination at Christmas, except two, who are conducting Public Schools reduced to the grade of Provisional as far as salary is concerned.

Provisional Schools.

All the teachers in charge of these are unclassified. The Regulations do not provide for the regular examination of such. After a certain period of satisfactory service they may be examined or admitted to the Public Training School.

Half-time Schools.

There are six of these, but only one has a classified teacher in charge. The other two, however, sat for examination at Christmas last.

Certified Denominational Schools.

The only one of these in existence at the end of the year was Bega Roman Catholic. The teacher holds a II-B, certificate by examination.

Summary.

The educational wants of this section of the Goulburn District are on the whole well supplied, and when a few applications now being dealt with shall have been granted the means will be ample. The material condition is good, the organization fair, and the discipline generally sound and healthy.

In view of the large number of schools brought into full operation, and now in healthy and vigorous existence, as well as of the generally satisfactory results of inspection, I consider good and substantial work has been done during the year. I also feel bound to say that I think the future educational prospects of this part of the Colony cheering and hopeful.

ANNEX M.

ARMIDALE DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR BRADLEY'S REPORT FOR 1882.

I.—Schools and School Establishments.

DURING the year 1881 there were in operation, under my general supervision, 212 schools of all classes, an increase of twenty-eight on the record of the previous year. Early in 1882 steps were taken by the Department for the formation of a new Inspectorial District, which should include all schools in the coast portion of my district, and, in addition, those situate upon the Manning and within its basin. It was not, however, until the latter end of May that the necessary arrangements were completed by the appointment of District-Inspector James McCreddie, with official headquarters at Grafton. In its present proportions the Armidale District comprises the northern table-land of the Colony and the plains lying to the west of it. Speaking generally, the former portion is under my own immediate supervision, and the latter under that of Mr. Inspector Smith, who succeeded Mr. Inspector Thompson, removed to Wollongong at the time the Grafton District was formed.

Altogether, in the Armidale District as at present constituted, there were in operation during the whole or part of the year 1882 one hundred and twenty-nine (129) schools, classified as follows:—

	Under Mr. Inspector Smith.	Under District-Inspector.
Public	66	42
Provisional	8	7
Half-time	0	2
Evening Public	2	0
Denominational	1	1
Totals	77	52

The work of school establishment has formed a successful feature in the year's operations. Omitting reference to what was, until the formation of the Grafton District, the coast portion of the area under my supervision, the following schools—nineteen Public, and six Provisional—have been brought into actual operation, and provide the means of education for 1,050 children, nearly all of whom were beyond the reach of previously existing schools:—

Public:—Attunga Springs, Big Ridge, Black Mountain, Brookstead, Carrol Gap, Castle Doyle, Castle Mountain, Currabubula, Dumaresq, Eden Valley, Eulah Creek, Leech's Gully, Moonbi, Square Mountain, Tangley, Tintinhull, Willow Tree, Wilson's Downfall, and Y. Water.

Provisional:—Brookside, Clevedon, Gainsborough, Gulligal, Pinch Flat, and Spring Ridge.

The applications for the establishment of all these schools, except Y. Water (P.), Gainsborough and Spring Ridge (Prov.), were dealt with in 1881 or previously. The nature of such other applications as were disposed of during 1882 is shown in the following table:—

In

In the case of three of the proposed schools enumerated above, fairly suitable buildings have been rented by the Department, tents will be provided for the others, and nearly the whole of the schools will be opened within the first quarter of 1883. Only one application for school establishment (received late in the year) has not yet been dealt with; but the locality concerned is within reasonable distance of a good Public School. The question to be considered in this particular case is one merely of convenience, not of urgent necessity; and it is unlikely that the application will be favourably entertained.

So far as the distribution of schools is concerned, it may safely be said that the wants of the district are well supplied. In view, however, of its great area, and the extent of its mineral and agricultural resources, settlement is continuously proceeding; and we may fairly anticipate the necessity for establishing at least twenty of the smaller classes of schools—Public and Provisional—during the year now opening. The recent regulation authorizing the granting of aid towards providing buildings and furniture for Provisional Schools will greatly facilitate their establishment, and result in better buildings and equipment than have hitherto obtained, while correspondingly better results in the matter of instruction and education may also reasonably be looked for.

II.—Attendance.

Having regard to the change in the district, brought about by the withdrawal of the coast schools, it is not practicable to institute a comparison between the attendances of 1881 and 1882. In the aggregate, the names of 10,720 pupils appear on the records for the year. In the absence of a complete file of returns, showing the number of children who have been enrolled in two or more schools within the period, the precise number to be deducted from this total cannot be stated, but, basing the calculation on the returns to hand, it is approximately 720. About 10,000 children, therefore, have been under instruction for greater or less periods during 1882. The average enrolment for the several quarters of the year was 7,696, and the average daily attendance 4,824, or in the ratio of 62.6 per cent. In calculating the average attendance, it should be borne in mind that every day's attendance, no matter how small, is included, and a pupil present only in the forenoon or afternoon counts but as a half. The ordinary attendance exceeds the average attendance by about 13 per cent.; so that, except in wet weather, or during the prevalence of sickness, or under other exceptional circumstances, about 5,450 children have been under instruction daily.

The compulsory provisions of the Public Instruction Act have not been applied in any portion of the district under my supervision, although the course was urged in my last report as well as in other communications. Much, however, can be effected by teachers themselves, especially in the smaller bush schools, where personal influence is more potent for good or ill than it is in the larger centres of population. In individual cases very gratifying results as regards regularity and punctuality of school attendance have been secured, and solely as the outcome of an earnest and efficient discharge of duty, and the exercise of tact in the management of the children and their parents.

III.—Material Condition and Organization.

During the year new school buildings have been completed at Carroll, Carroll Gap, Castle Mountain, Currabubula, Nemingha, Stonehenge, Tambar Springs, and Tingha. Six of these supersede tents or old and unsuitable structures, and two have been erected in localities hitherto unprovided for. New buildings are also in progress at Armidale, Bendemeer, Dumaresq, Little Plain, Tamworth West, Tenterfield (Infants), Vegetable Creek, Walcha, and Woolomol. Two of these buildings—Armidale and West Tamworth—will, when completed, be the finest in the district, and supply a want long felt, and, it must be admitted, justly complained of. Repairs and additions have been effected in most cases where necessary, but a few of an urgent nature—notably in the cases of Narrabri and Rocky River—remain to be done. Recommendations relative thereto have recently been made, and the work should be undertaken without delay. On the whole, therefore, the condition of the school buildings shows material improvement, and further substantial improvement is being made; at the same time it must be regretted that, in not a few instances, protracted and injurious delay has occurred in providing for generally urgent wants.

The school play-grounds almost without exception, so far as my personal observation extends, present a bare, uninviting, and often untidy appearance. So far as the untidiness is concerned, the teachers alone are to blame; but so few of the sites are secured against the incursions of calves, goats, and pigs, that to attempt the formation of a garden, or the planting of ornamental shrubs and trees, would be mere folly. Two or three teachers whose industry in this direction has outrun their discretion have had the mortification of finding the labour of weeks and months wasted by the destruction wrought in a single night. A tastily arranged garden and well appointed grounds have no mean educative influence, especially amongst the homes of the bush; and I am strong in urging that facilities for their provision should be afforded. The extra cost of fixing palings to the rough split fences which now enclose—I had almost said disfigure—our school sites, would be trifling in comparison with the advantages to be secured. It were sad, but for a certain ludicrous aspect the case wears, to consider that our goals, so far as surroundings are concerned, are made infinitely more attractive than our school-houses; and the least that can be expected in view of the relative merits of the two institutions as educational agents is, that equal chances in the competition should be afforded.

As regards internal equipment, it may be said that the supply of furniture, apparatus, and books is very fairly sufficient and suitable. In the smaller Public Schools, and in Provisional Schools, the furniture is usually rough and clumsy, having been provided in most instances by the residents themselves; but, beyond this, little fault can be found with it, as it is generally made of the shape and dimensions indicated by the inspector.

IV.—Inspection.

Of the 129 schools in operation during the whole or part of 1882, all under my immediate supervision (52) received full inspection; and 49 and 17 were examined by Inspectors Smith and Thompson respectively. Altogether, 5,168 children were subjected to examination. Of the 11 schools in the Tamworth division of the district that were not inspected, 4 Public and 3 Provisional Schools were not in existence when their several localities were visited; one was closed in consequence of an accident to the teacher; and the inspection of the others was not possible owing to the illness of Mr. Inspector Smith towards the end of the year.

As the result of the inspection of 1881 it was found that, in the Armidale division of the district, about 51 per cent. of the schools examined failed to reach the required standard, and that 49 per cent. met or exceeded it. For the present year (1882) the percentages are 38 and 62 respectively, and indicate fairly substantial improvement.

In the Tamworth division the results for 1881 gave 46 per cent. of the schools below the standard, and 54 per cent. up to or above it. For 1882, from statistics furnished by Mr. Inspector Smith, it would appear that only 14 per cent. of the schools examined are now below the standard in attainments, and that 86 per cent. reach or exceed it. While the condition of the schools as to efficiency indicated by the latter data is quite possible of achievement under skilful management and generally favourable circumstances, I think it doubtful that progress in so marked a degree has been made within the year. The school examinations of 1881 were conducted by Mr. Inspector Thompson, those of 1882 mainly by Mr. Inspector Smith; and I am inclined to think that, under the latter, either the examinatory tests have been less stringent, or that the marks for proficiency have been more liberally awarded.

The

The following table, compiled from detailed inspection reports, exhibits:—

- (1.) The subjects of examination.
- (2.) The total number of pupils examined in each.
- (3.) The percentage of pupils satisfying or exceeding the requirements of the standard.
- (4.) The percentage that failed to reach the standard, and
- (5.) The degree of progress or retrogression made as compared with the results of last year.

The progress indicated in the foregoing table is, so far as the generality of subjects is concerned, fairly uniform and satisfactory. As usual, however, among the essential branches the attainments in arithmetic are below the average. It not only happens that comparatively few pupils are found to possess a knowledge of the compound and higher rules, even when presented with little or no degree of intricacy, but throughout the classes, from the lowest to the highest, the proficiency exhibited, speaking generally, is poor. This weak spot in our educational work is so persistent in its appearance year after year, that I feel justified in quoting the remarks relative thereto made in one of my former reports, and which I am confident apply with equal force at the present. "The teaching of arithmetic demands perhaps more than average skill, but there is no good reason to believe otherwise than that, among trained teachers at any rate, the principles involved have received intelligent elucidation, and that the framing of examples for practice, as regards scope and gradation, has been effected with reasonably good judgment. Notwithstanding, the fact remains that year after year, the most meagre results have to be recorded; and this is the experience of every individual inspector. I am clearly of opinion that this very unsatisfactory state of things is mainly attributable to two causes:—1st. The almost universal prevalence of the pernicious practices of copying and collusion; and 2nd, the absence of thorough testing of individual accuracy in the performance of the exercises set. In those schools whose discipline is most nearly perfect the dishonesty complained of is at a minimum, but still exists; while in a very large number it is most glaringly apparent, and it will exist so long as facilities for its accomplishment remain. Punishment will not effectually prevent it, nor can the strictest vigilance possible in a school where the teacher's time and attention are necessarily divided between three classes, check it to any appreciable extent. What must be done is to make copying and prompting impossible by the isolation of the pupil during the performance of the arithmetical exercises. With the limited accommodation afforded in our schools it is not possible to keep pupils sufficiently far apart to prevent their copying; but it is possible with the exercise of judgment, and by careful preparation, so to arrange the work set for practice that no two pupils whose seats are adjacent shall be engaged in the same exercise. I am convinced that were teachers to adopt this plan, most sensibly beneficial results would accrue. Again, scrupulous examination of individual work must be made; too often the arithmetic lesson of a class proceeds while the teacher occupies himself solely with the oral work of another class; and at its close either no examination of the work is made at all, or it is gone through in the most slipshod and cursory manner. Such procedure—and I am afraid it is the rule rather than the exception—is simply encouragement and sanction to indolence and dishonesty, and cannot but be spoken of in terms of the strongest condemnation."

Grouping the whole schools of the district, the general attainments of the pupils relatively to the standard of proficiency is thus tabulated:—

Class of School.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard.	Above Standard.	Totals.
Public	22	37	43	102
Provisional	6	5	1	12
Half-time	2	2
Denominational	1	1
Totals	29	42	46	117

The

The disciplinary condition of the schools is in general one of the most pleasing features. In only one or two cases has it been found positively bad; while, in many, very gratifying results have been accomplished. It is unfortunate that the majority of teachers employed have not received instruction in drill, and only in a few schools can the mark "very fair" be awarded for the proficiency of the pupils in this direction. Instruction in drill having now been made imperative, some teachers have endeavoured to master the more elementary parts of the subject through the aid of a manual, but the knowledge thus gained has hitherto not proved of much practical service.

Four Evening Schools have been in operation for a time during the year but only one now survives, and the further experience gained as to their working only tends to confirm the doubts previously expressed as to their success.

V.—TEACHERS.

The teaching staff of the district comprises 121 principal teachers, 9 assistants, and 31 pupil-teachers; and in addition, 9 work-mistresses are employed in certain of the larger schools. The following table exhibits the classifications gained by examination:—

Staff.	Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Not classified.	Totals.
	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. C.
Teachers	7	19	22	25	6	42	121
Assistant	6	3	9

	Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.
Pupil-teachers	1	8	8	14

During the year one teacher in this district has been removed from the service on account of his intemperate habits; three have been severely censured for the same failing; and about as many more give occasion for greater or less solicitude. Considering a teacher's position and influence, and what is consequently expected of him in the way of example, the foregoing must certainly be regarded as rather a black record. Of the general body however it may be stated that they are competent, well-conducted, and zealous in their work, and deservedly earn the respect of those among whom they labour. The general conduct and efficiency of the pupil-teachers deserve commendation; and almost without exception they have been favourably reported upon by their principal teachers.

VI.—SUMMARY.

Judged as far as is practicable by last year's results, the condition of the schools generally shows improvement; and the means of education have been extended in a degree fairly apace with the demand for it. The character of the attendance, however, is still unsatisfactory, and the introduction of the compulsory provisions of the Act should be effected as soon as possible. On the whole, the prospects for the coming year are very fairly encouraging.

J. D. BRADLEY,
District Inspector of Schools, Armidale.

ANNEX N.

MR. INSPECTOR SMITH'S REPORT, 1882.

I.—The means of Education.

THE following table will serve to show the number of schools opened, the number closed, and the number in actual operation during the whole or any part of 1882 in the Tamworth Division of the Armidale District:—

Schools.	No. opened.	No. closed.	No. in operation during whole or part of 1882.
Public	7	5	66
Provisional	2	2	8
Evening Public	2
Totals	9	7	77

Seven new Public Schools have been built during the year—Carroll, Carroll Gap, Castle Mountain, Currabubula, Nemingha, Tambar Springs, and Tingha, and three more are expected to be finished within a few months—Little Plain, Tamworth West, and Wollomol. Four school tents—Eden Valley, Eulah Creek, Pond's Creek, Tintinhull—have been erected in mining localities, or where the population is of an unsettled character. Four Public Schools in places where the attendance of pupils has greatly increased—Bingera, Moor Creek, Quirindi, and Walgett—are undergoing extensive alterations and improvements.

Two Provisional Schools, Gulligal and Spring Ridge, have been opened, and applications for Provisional Schools at Gaspard and Paradise Creek have been favourably entertained, and so soon as the usual conditions have been complied with by the residents in each case, operations will be commenced.

Considering that there is a large mining population in this district, and that great tracts of country are still open to those engaged in agricultural and pastoral pursuits, we may expect to receive during the ensuing twelve months a fair continuance of applications both for Public and Provisional Schools; but how many, or from what quarter these applications will come in, would at present be hard to say, as new settlements spring up very soon, and the locality is not named until a school of some kind or other has been established.

The

The Public Schools in all the large towns are fine commodious brick buildings and well situated. In the smaller towns, and places where groups of families are known to be permanently settled, there are with few exceptions suitable school-rooms. The means of education are distributed in such a manner as to be within easy reach of a very large proportion of the entire population.

II.—The Material Condition of Schools.

The material condition of all the existing Vested Schools (41) may be estimated as good, of the Non-vested (21) as only tolerable. The Provisional School Buildings are very rough and uncomfortable, and the residents appear unwilling to spend one shilling more than they are actually obliged to do by the regulations. The accommodation, with one or two exceptions under consideration with the view to immediate enlargement, is sufficient for present requirements.

All the Public Schools have a fair supply of books, maps, diagrams, and other requisites; the working material of the other schools is also fair in amount and quality.

III.—Instruction.

The number of schools fully inspected, and the number not fully or regularly inspected during 1882, may be seen from the following table:—

	Public.	Provisional.	Evening Public.	Church of England.	Totals.
Inspected	59	5	1	1	66
Not inspected	7	3	1	0	11
Totals	66	8	2	1	77

Of the eleven schools not fully inspected four Public and three Provisional Schools were not in existence when their respective localities were visited, one Public School was closed in consequence of an accident which happened to the teacher, and one Public and one Evening Public were not inspected because of my own sickness just before the Christmas vacation. Of the fifty-nine Public and five Provisional Schools, Mr. Inspector Thompson examined sixteen Public and one Provisional before his removal from this district to Wollongong in last May. It may be well to state here that, had not the weather proved most favourable from July to October, during my tours of inspection on the Liverpool Plains, to Walgett, Inverell, and its neighbourhood, a great deal of the work which has been accomplished must necessarily have been left undone, for the roads after the slightest shower of rain become quite unfit for travelling, and the schools are long distances apart.

There were 4,086 pupils enrolled and 2,976 pupils in attendance during the inspections of 1882. The condition of the schools inspected may be thus summarised:—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard (Fair).	Above Standard.

Military drill is not taught in the small or Provisional Schools, but in the Public Schools in charge of trained teachers it is taught with fair success. Great pains are bestowed by the paid sewing-mistresses upon their lessons in needlework; the female teachers of schools and wives of teachers do not neglect this subject. In three of the principal Public Schools a few of the advanced scholars passed satisfactorily in the 1st book of Euclid, the rudimentary rules of algebra and mensuration; in Latin they did only moderately well. In all schools in which there is a third class the Scripture lessons are taught, and in these the pupils who were examined evinced a knowledge ranging from tolerable to fair.

III.—Summary.

Comparing the results of examinations of schools conducted by me with those conducted by Mr. Inspector Thompson during 1881, steady progress in attainments, generally speaking, appears to have been made. Generally speaking is said advisedly, because preparation for examination evidently prevented one or two of the teachers from bestowing that unremitting attention upon the interests of their scholars which otherwise they might have done; consequently, on the day of inspection, the mark for general proficiency was lower than anticipated.

There were during 1882 two regular and two special examinations of teachers and pupil-teachers in this district—the latter being held for the convenience of those teachers who lived at a great distance from Tamworth. A fair proportion of the examinees were successful.

Only one charge of a serious nature was preferred against a teacher since my removal to Tamworth, and no complaints have been made by teachers against their pupil-teachers.

So far as the future prospects of the schools placed under my supervision can be foreseen with any degree of certainty, they may be pronounced as fairly satisfactory.

ANNEX O.

BATHURST DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR BRIDGES' REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

I.—Schools.

At the end of the year 1881 there were in existence in the Bathurst District—

140 Public Schools.
 17 Provisional Schools.
 2 Half-time Schools.
 8 Certified Denominational Schools.

Total .. 167 Schools.

During the year seventeen Public and eleven Provisional Schools were opened.

The Public Schools are—Brokenshaft Creek, Burraga, Byng, Evan's Swamp, Good Forest, Lowther, Manildra, Millamurra, Mount M'Donald, Mount Tamar, Off Flat, Shooter's Hill, Waldegrave, Wallaroo, Watergumben, Whiteley's Flat, and Wongajong; and the Provisional—Bimbi, Bradshaw's Flat, Burnt Yards, Cheetam's Flats, Four-mile Creek, Galwary Creek, Marsden's, Merton, Morongla Creek, Warrigal, and Wolgan.

The Public Schools at Ben Bullen and Crown Creek were, in consequence of the reduced attendance caused by the removal of the population on the completion of the railway works, brought down to the rank of Half-time Schools. The Half-time Schools at Ganbenang and Cox's River were, on the other hand, raised to the rank of Full-time Schools—the former to that of Public, and the latter to that of a Provisional School. The following Provisional Schools were converted into Public Schools, viz., Brisbane Valley, Dark Corner, Duckmaloi, Morongla Creek, Norton, Swallow's Nest, and Swashfield.

Excluding the Evening Schools, 195 schools, viz., 166 Public, nineteen Provisional, two Half-time, and eight Denominational were in operation during the year. Three of these, viz., Binni and Glenlogan Public Schools, and Monument Hill Provisional School, have been closed. The schools at Binni and Glenlogan were superseded by the new Public School at Wallaroo; Monument Hill Provisional School was closed for want of pupils.

The number of schools or departments open for the whole year was 169; for only a portion of the year, twenty-six.

There were in operation at the end of the year 1882—

164 Public Schools.
 18 Provisional Schools.
 2 Half-time Schools.
 8 Denominational Schools.

Total ... 192 Schools.

Evening Public Schools.

These schools have almost ceased to exist in this district; ten have been in operation for short periods during the year, but all except two have collapsed. The two in operation in the December quarter—Cowra and Mount Macquarie—had respectively 10·6 and 8·9 for that quarter. Schools of this class will doubtless be occasionally started, but even under favourable circumstances will not last for more than a few months.

II.—Enrolment and Attendance of Pupils.

The following table shows the number of schools in operation, the number of pupils enrolled, and the average attendance for each quarter of the year :—

	Schools in operation.	Pupils enrolled.	Average attendance.	Percentage of attendance to enrolment.
March quarter	176	11,324	7427·1	65·5
June quarter	184	11,639	7712·1	66·2
September quarter	191	11,941	8446·8	70·7
December quarter	195	11,961	8323·7	69·5

The gross enrolment for the year was 15,602, but as 786 names had been entered in two schools, twenty-one in three schools, and six in four schools, during the year, a deduction of 846 must be made to ascertain the number of pupils who attended the schools of the district in 1882.

The fine weather that has prevailed throughout the year and the freedom from serious epidemics have been very favourable to regular attendance, hence the results given above, though showing an improvement upon those of previous years, afford little room for congratulation. It must however be borne in mind that many of the country schools are situated on the banks of creeks, and that the population is scattered over long, narrow tracts, so that many children have to walk 2 or 3 miles to school.

Irregularity prevails where there is the least excuse for it, viz., in the towns.

From what I have observed, I am inclined to think that the compulsory clauses of the Public Instruction Act have had very little effect. The attendance officers seem to have confined their attention to the punishment of those parents whose children have not attended school for the prescribed seventy days in each half-year. The fines inflicted by the Magistrates when convictions have been obtained have been so ridiculously small that they have failed to exercise any deterrent influence. At the same time parents who do not send their children to any school, or who send them irregularly to schools not under the Department, have hitherto been allowed to escape punishment.

III.—Material condition of Schools.

The vested school buildings of the district are, with very few exceptions, in good condition, well adapted for educational purposes, and adequately supplied with the necessary appliances.

The buildings used for Provisional Schools, and for Public Schools that have been recently converted from Provisional Schools, are as a rule little better than mere hovels. Such buildings must, when erected by the promoters, have been accepted only by stretching a point in their favour, and as no repairs have been effected since, have become so bad as to be almost unfit for use.

In all cases where there is a probability of an average attendance of over twenty being maintained these will in a short time be superseded by new and comfortable buildings.

As

As aid is now granted towards the erection and furnishing of Provisional Schools, it is not likely that any unsuitable buildings will be accepted in future.

During the year new buildings have been completed at Cowra, Hobby's Yards, Good Forest, Norway, Thorp's Pinch, Wallerawang.

Tents have been supplied to Brokenshaft Creek, Byng, Cave Creek, Emu Valley, Evans' Swamp, Guyong West, Hartley Vale, Mayfield, Mount M'Donald, Mount Tamar, Norton, Off Flat, Parkesborough, Towac.

The tent supplied to Katoomba has been removed and a cottage been rented as a temporary school-room.

Many objections have been urged against the school tents on the ground of their imperfect ventilation in summer and their extreme coldness in winter.

While admitting the force of the latter objection, I contend that the tents are in all respects better than the buildings which the people themselves provide for Provisional and Half-time Schools.

Weathersheds have been supplied to all schools that really require them.

Most of the Public Schools are adequately supplied with desks, forms, and other furniture. The furniture in Provisional Schools is rough and clumsy, and is tolerated only because no better can be procured.

The school buildings generally are kept clean and tidy. In a few places attempts have been made to improve the appearance of the premises by cultivating shrubs and flowers. These attempts have nearly always resulted in failure. The fences of country schools rarely prevent the intrusion of goats and other animals which speedily destroy the teacher's garden.

The schools of the district are very fairly placed, and, excepting in three or four cases, have accommodation for all the children residing near them.

IV.—Inspection.

The number of schools, not counting Evening Public Schools, open during the year was 195, viz. :—

166 Public,
19 Provisional,
2 Half-time,
8 Roman Catholic.

Of these 169 were fully inspected; three a second time. Twenty-six schools were not inspected. The work of inspection was somewhat delayed by the changes in the inspectorial staff in May last, but, under any circumstances, it would be impossible for the present staff to inspect all the schools of the district in the year.

The following table shows the condition of the schools inspected :—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard (Fair).	Above Standard.	Totals.
Public	54	65	31	150
Provisional	6	3	0	9
Half-time	2	0	0	2
Denominational	0	4	4	8
All schools	62	72	35	169

Last year 78 out of 158 schools were below the standard; this year only 62 out of 169 schools are in that unsatisfactory position.

The efficiency of the schools in 1882, as compared with that of 1881, may be thus shown. In 1881, 49 per cent. were below, 33 per cent. up to, and 13 per cent. above the standard; in 1882, 36½ per cent. were below, 42½ per cent. up to, and 21 per cent. above, the standard.

The following table shows the general efficiency of each school inspected :—

The schools are arranged in four groups—

- a. Those with a Fifth Class.
- b. Those with a Fourth Class.
- c. Those whose highest class is Third.
- d. Those which have only two classes.

Organisation.—The organisation, so far as the teachers can be held responsible, may, in most instances, be pronounced good. The records are kept carefully, and the required returns are furnished promptly and correctly by nearly all teachers. There are, however, a few teachers who keep the records in a slovenly manner, and whose negligence in compiling, and dilatoriness in despatching, returns put the inspectors to much inconvenience.

The time-tables generally provide for the constant and profitable occupation of the pupils, and for a judicious rotation of lessons. Some of the older teachers, however, having compiled one that has been found to work well, and that has been approved by the inspector, seem to be forgetful of the fact that the document will in course of time become soiled, and should be replaced by a freshly written one. The programmes of lessons as a whole are of less merit than the time-tables; in some cases I noticed that those in use were almost exact copies of those of the previous quarter. All the schools are adequately supplied with books, slates, &c.; the materials supplied by the contractors have been of good quality.

Discipline.—

Discipline.—The discipline in the schools of the district is generally of a high order. The school-work is carried on without unnecessary noise; the pupils are obedient, orderly, and attentive. It would be well if the teachers generally took greater interest in the conduct of their pupils when outside the school-room. I have sometimes had occasion to direct the attention of teachers to the roughness of pupils' play, and to their rude disrespectful manner when spoken to by strangers.

The government is usually firm, but not harsh, and the power to inflict corporal punishment is exercised with judgment and moderation. No complaints of excessive severity or of improper punishment have been preferred.

Increased attention has been bestowed upon drill; 4,730 pupils were examined in this subject; of these 3,144 acquitted themselves creditably.

Proficiency of Pupils.—The total number of pupils examined was 8,333; of these 1,523, or 18 per cent., were in Infants' Schools; 2,836, or 34 per cent., in First Classes; 2,190, or 26 per cent., in Second Classes; 1,424, or 17 per cent., in Third Classes; 288, or 3 per cent., in Fourth Classes; and 73, or less than 1 per cent., in Fifth Classes. As the instruction in the Classes below the Third is elementary, it will be seen that teachers of this district have some downright hard work before them to fit their pupils for the business of life.

In the following table are given the number of pupils examined in each subject, and the number and percentage who passed the standard.

Subjects.	No. of Pupils Examined.	No. of Pupils who passed Standard.	Percentage up to Standard.
Reading	8,333	6,191	74

From the foregoing table it will be seen that in all the ordinary subjects of instruction more than 50 per cent. of the pupils examined passed the prescribed standard. These results, though showing progress, are still far from satisfactory, particularly when the large proportion of pupils in the lower classes is taken into consideration.

Reading.—All the pupils present at the inspections were examined in this subject, but of the 8,333, only 1,854, or about 22 per cent., were reading ordinary prose. The lower classes are as a rule very fairly taught, but in the upper classes little seems to have been done to secure distinct enunciation and correct expression. Three varieties of bad reading are prevalent; an indistinct mumbling, a monotonous drawl, and a rapidity of utterance that is unintelligible. These faults can be best cured by the constant use of "pattern reading" by the teacher, that is, the teacher should read the passage and then require the pupils to imitate him. This will, of course, render it necessary for the teachers themselves to cultivate the art of reading, and to acquire a good style. In the third and higher classes the pupils should read paragraphs instead of sentences at the ordinary lessons.

In former reports I have pointed out the benefits that would result from the introduction into our schools of a book containing judiciously selected extracts from the works of standard authors.

Full attention has been paid to the subject matter, and to the spelling and meanings of words; the tendency of many teachers is to devote too much time to these points.

Writing.—This subject is taught with efficiency and care, though it is to be regretted that nearly one half of the pupils examined were writing upon slates. In the case of the young children this cannot be avoided, but there are some schools in which writing on paper is delayed too long. Sometimes a parent refuses to provide his child with a copy-book, so that the teacher has no alternative but to allow him to write upon slate. In the large schools copy-books are used when they are no longer of benefit to the pupil; writing upon unruled paper is not sufficiently practised.

Dictation.—In this subject 6,295 children were examined with results approaching very fair. When properly applied, this lesson is not only a test of spelling, but may be used to cultivate habits of attention and readiness, and at the same time assist the pupils in acquiring that rapidity of penmanship so essential in business. The most common faults that I have observed are that the passages selected are usually taken from the ordinary reading-books, that they are too short, and are dictated too slowly.

Arithmetic.—As regards results this subject comes out the worst of the school course, only 51 per cent. of the pupils passing the required standard. The fact that of 8,191 pupils examined, 6,134, or nearly 75 per cent. were working the simple rules, 1,368 or about 16½ per cent. were working compound rules, and only 689 or about 8½ per cent. the higher rules (those that are made use of in ordinary business transactions), will show that there is urgent need for improvement in the teaching of this subject.

The causes of the low results in arithmetic have been so frequently stated that they need not be enumerated here. I have pointed out to the teachers that, by frequent revision of the back work, particularly in the simple rules, and by such vigilant supervision as would compel each pupil to confine his attention to his own work, much higher results would be gained at the examinations. Teachers, too, would find that if they spent some time each evening in preparing arithmetical questions of a practical kind for use in the school on the following day, and used text-books less, their pupils would soon give evidence of a more intelligent acquaintance with the principles of arithmetic, and failures at inspection would not be so common.

Grammar.—So far as parsing and analysis are concerned this subject is effectively taught. Composition, which is of greater importance, has either been neglected altogether or has been taught in a haphazard, desultory fashion. In order to ensure systematic teaching of this subject, I have recommended the teachers to procure a practical text-book of English Composition (Laurie's) and to follow the method laid down in that work.

The following extract from the instructions to Her Majesty's Inspectors in England might be studied and applied by every teacher with advantage:—

"From the first, the teaching of English should be supplemented by simple exercises in composition; e.g., when a word is selected the scholar should be called on to use it in a sentence of his own; when when a grammatical principle is explained he should be asked to frame a sentence showing how it is to be applied, and examples of the way in which adjectives are formed from nouns, or nouns from verbs, by the addition of syllables, should be supplied or selected by the scholars themselves. Mere instruction in the terminology of grammar, unless followed by practical exercises in the use of language, yields very unsatisfactory results."

Geography—This subject is taught with fair efficiency, the chief defects are the want of attention to local geography in the instruction of the lower classes, and the neglect of map drawing in connection with the upper classes.

Object Lessons occupy a fairly satisfactory place in the school course. In most schools the pupils answer well upon the lessons they have received, but frequently the teachers cannot be commended for their choice of subjects.

Scripture—This subject is taught to the pupils in the third and higher classes in Public Schools, except when the parents object. The pupils manifest good knowledge of the most important events narrated in Scripture. It is probable that some of it has been derived from instruction at home or in the Sunday school.

Elementary Drawing is taught in nearly all the schools of the district. The want of suitable copies has been a great obstacle in the way of progress. The schools would be greatly benefited by a re-issue of Fowles' Drawing Books.

Singing by the tonic sol fa method is taught in 106 schools. In most the children are taught to sing by ear, and instruction in theory is not attempted.

Needlework—This important subject is taught in all schools except those in charge of unmarried male teachers where it has been found impossible to engage the services of a competent instructress. Plain work is everywhere insisted upon, no girl is allowed to practise fancy work in school until she has completed a really good piece of plain work.

While admitting the excellence of the work shown by the greater number of the girls, I am inclined to think that there is too much time devoted to mere sewing, and that the instruction needs to be modified in order to fully meet the requirements of the families of the present day.

Now that sewing machines are found in every home, it seems to me that it is absolutely necessary that girls should receive such training as would enable them to design, cut out, and fix the ordinary articles of wearing apparel. In schools where work mistresses are employed, I have directed that the instruction be carried on in accordance with this view.

History has not been taught except in the fifth classes in the Superior Public Schools at Bathurst and Orange.

Geometry has been taught in 14 schools, algebra in 5 schools, Latin in 4 schools, and mensuration in 3 schools. In all these subjects more pupils were presented for examination than in previous years.

French has been introduced into the Girls' Schools at Bathurst and Orange. The eighteen pupils examined at Bathurst had made very fair progress for the time they had been under instruction.

Superior Public Schools—The schools at Bathurst and Orange have been proclaimed Superior Schools. Except that no arrangements have been made for the teaching of the piano, the instruction to the fifth classes in these schools has been in accordance with the special rules issued for the guidance of teachers.

These rules are proving not to be of advantage to the schools, and require alteration in several particulars.

V—Teachers and Pupil Teachers

At the end of the year there were employed in the schools of the district 190 teachers, 18 assistant teachers, 47 pupil teachers, and 8 work mistresses.

The principal teachers and assistants are thus classified—

First Class, Section A	1
" " " B	None
Second " " A	13
" " " B	24
Third " " A	39
" " " B	36
" " " C	30
Classification not notified	6
Not classified	59

With regard to the number of unclassified teachers, it is but fair to state that many of them are persons of very fair education and intelligence, all have passed the examination prescribed for teachers of Provisional Schools, and those who in December last had been in charge of Public Schools for six months were examined for classification.

The following list shows the classification of the pupil-teachers—

Class I	4
" II	7
" III	7
" IV	29

Speaking generally, the teachers of the district are very fairly qualified for their positions. With few exceptions, they attend to their duties with praiseworthy diligence and earnestness, and show themselves anxious to increase their efficiency. I am pleased to note that greater attention is now paid to study, especially among the younger teachers, and that the number of those who voluntarily undergo examination is increasing.

Pupil teachers are employed in 30 schools. The teachers under whose supervision they are placed report favourably of their attention to duty, diligence in study, and efficiency. These reports are well deserved—the pupil teachers render very valuable assistance in the school work.

The teachers, so far as can be ascertained, have observed the directions as to the instruction of pupil teachers to the best of their ability, but as very few can teach French, the female pupil teachers have either had no instruction in that subject, or have been forced to pay no inconsiderable portion of their salaries for private tuition. In order to remedy this evil, I have directed that in all schools of more than one department, the mistresses shall teach this subject.

Summary

The school buildings of the district, except in a few instances, provide adequate accommodation for all the children of the locality in which they are situated, all places in which 12 children of the school age can be collected have been supplied with schools, or will be so supplied in the course of a few months, steps have been taken for putting the existing buildings in proper repair, and for the erection of new school buildings where such are warranted by the circumstances, the schools in operation have made an appreciable advance in efficiency, and not an inconsiderable number of the teachers have succeeded in gaining promotion to higher classifications by examination.

The progress made may be thus tabulated :—

	1881.	1882.	Increase.	Increase per cent.
1. Schools.....	167	195	28	16·7
2. Average quarterly enrolment	10,644	11,716	1,072	10
3. Average quarterly attendance.....	7133·2	7977·4	844·2	11·8

The ratio of average attendance to enrolment increased from 67 per cent. in 1881 to 68 per cent. in 1882.

The ascertained results of the past year, and the fact that the teachers generally are fully sensible of their responsibilities, and are earnestly striving to perform their work efficiently, justify the confident expectation of steady improvement in all the branches of school work, and that a sound education will be brought within the reach of nearly every child in this district.

ANNEX P.

MR. INSPECTOR LONG'S REPORT FOR 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit the following report for the year 1882, with reference to the western portion of the Bathurst District :—

At the end of the year there were under my supervision 78 Public, 10 Provisional, 1 Denominational, and 2 Evening Public Schools. Of these, 70 Public, 3 Provisional, 1 Denominational, and 1 Evening School were continuously in operation throughout the year, and in addition to these, 9 Public, 7 Provisional, and 7 Evening Schools were in existence during some portion of it. It thus appears that the number of schools of all kinds in operation during the year or part of it was 98. At the close of the preceding year the number in actual operation was 73.

Of the schools under my supervision, two Public Schools were inspected by the District Inspector, and 70 Public, 1 Denominational, and 4 Provisional Schools by me. The non-inspection of the remainder is to be attributed to sickness among pupils or press of other duties, and in one instance to a special cause.

57 per cent. of the schools inspected by me satisfied or exceeded standard requirements. The failure of the remainder to do so was to a very great extent caused by irregularity in the attendance, and, in a few instances, by negligence, or defective method on the part of teachers. Of the pupils present at inspection, 76 per cent. were found to be up to or beyond the standard of fair in reading, 67 per cent. in writing, 70 per cent. in the simple rules of arithmetic, 60 per cent. in compound rules, 93 per cent. in higher rules, 66 per cent. in geography, 65 per cent. in grammar, 66 per cent. in object lessons, 68 per cent. in dictation, 70 per cent. in vocal music, 59 per cent. in drill. In no subject did the proportion reaching the abovenamed standard fall below 54 per cent. Care has been exercised that the tests applied should bear a suitable relation to those employed at previous inspections, and the results above noted may therefore be accepted as indicative of satisfactory progress. They further show that those to whom the teaching is entrusted are, as a rule, competent, earnest, and conscientious, and it may be added, that, in all but five cases, the impression produced by personal observation accords with this conclusion.

Tabular statements conveying the following information have already been forwarded and are included in the statistics furnished by the District Inspector :—

1. The number of schools opened and the number closed during the year.
2. The Provisional Schools converted into Public Schools.
3. The schools inspected and those uninspected.
4. The schools which exceeded, satisfied, or failed to satisfy standard requirements.
5. The enrolment and attendance for each quarter of the year.
6. The numbers of the pupils attaining to the different degrees of proficiency in the several branches of instruction.
7. The number and classifications of the teachers employed.

With respect to the material state of the schools there is little requiring comment. All are fairly supplied with educational appliances, and all, excepting two Public Schools, and those conducted in tents and non-vested premises, have sufficiently spacious and commodious buildings. Nearly all have weathersheds, and all, with one exception, suitable playgrounds. In all cases in which better accommodation is warranted by surrounding circumstances steps for its provision have been initiated. The prospects of certain schools are, however, so uncertain, that although the premises they now occupy are but tolerably suitable, it is impossible at present to recommend the outlay required for more substantial buildings. It may perhaps here be remarked that the defective construction of the chimneys of their residences is such a general subject of complaint with teachers as to suggest that the matter is one requiring attention.

As a rule, the classification and other details of organization for which teachers are responsible, are found to be in a creditable condition. In some cases, however, which could be particularised, teachers have failed to protect vested property from injury and disfigurement and have evinced culpable disregard for neatness in their records, lesson documents, and returns. Attention has from time to time during the year been invited to offences of this kind, and means for their prevention have been suggested. The cases of defective classification observed have generally arisen from a too minute subdivision; a teacher has been found endeavouring to teach seven classes with a time-table adapted to a three-class school.

In nearly every instance, the appearance and demeanour of the pupils are becoming, the government, so far as could be judged, is judicious, and the order and discipline are good. It is extremely probable that the circumstances inseparable from an inspection frequently causes a higher estimate than is deserved to be formed with respect to these points. In 41 per cent. of the schools examined drill is either indifferently taught or altogether omitted. The beneficial effects of efficient instruction in this subject are abundantly perceptible, and it has been made an object to secure its introduction into all schools. In many schools we are gratified by observing that subdued yet animated demeanour, that smartness, precision, and quiet in school movements, which are the inseparable accompaniments of high general efficiency. In such cases it is invariably found that efficient instruction is given in vocal music, and in such drill movements as are suited to the capacity of the children. Some teachers appear to entertain the painfully and absurdly erroneous theory that good discipline can only be secured by harshness and loud talking. It has been observed that in schools in which the discipline is of the highest quality, punishment is rare, and the perfect order which exists appears to be secured without effort on the teacher's part.

Every school under my supervision, excepting two which require pupil-teachers, has the staff allotted to it by the Regulations. It is satisfactory to be able to state that, with few exceptions, the teachers under my supervision are well fitted for their respective positions, and discharge their duties in a conscientious and fairly skilful manner. There are at the same time some who are deficient in the tact, method, disciplinary power, or attainments, which are necessary qualifications for their office. Some appear to regard the advancement of their pupils solely as a means for securing their own personal glorification.

glorification and profit, and so laboriously overwork their pupils and themselves, overlooking the fact that a teacher is successful only so long as he can sustain in his pupils an intelligent interest in his instruction. Steps to meet cases of this kind are recommended as soon as it is possible to take definite action.

With few exceptions the teachers are well conducted, popular members of society, and enjoy the respect of the residents of the localities in which they are placed. It is, however, the exception to find a teacher cultivating those habits of study and self-improvement which are necessary to advancement in his profession. The pupil-teachers are performing their duties satisfactorily—some few especially so—and all give fair promise of future usefulness. The appointment of local Boards will, it is anticipated, materially diminish the difficulty now frequently experienced in obtaining the information required as to the position occupied by a teacher in social estimation, and will tend to correct some cases of indifference, either real or assumed, to public opinion.

The average enrolment for the year has been 4,357, and the average attendance 2,883·7—that is less than two-thirds. The degree of irregularity which this indicates must seriously impair the effect of the teachers' labours. The attendance during the past year was, it should be stated, affected by drought and sickness.

Applications for the establishment of new schools to the number of thirteen were reported on during the year, and in each case recommended for approval. Four of these have come into operation, and the others, with a few exceptions, are likely soon to do so. No locality in which the conditions of the Act can be complied with will then, so far as I am aware, be without means of education. The mode of settlement over a great part of the districts, however, is such that there are many children whose isolated positions place them beyond the reach of any part of the educational scheme. A return showing the name of each resident, his distance from the nearest school, the number of children not attending school, would be of service in devising means to meet such cases. In remote localities, unvisited by School Inspectors or attendance officers, it is possible that such information could, with little additional trouble, be collected by the officers charged with the compilation of the Electoral Rolls, who in the performance of that duty make a house-to-house visitation.

Experience with reference to the result of the experiment of establishing Evening Schools is not satisfactory. Of eight such schools which have been opened only two are now in operation, while only one has been in existence throughout the year, and at this the attendance has not always been quite up to the prescribed standard.

It may be stated in conclusion that the schools referred to in this report are, with very few exceptions, in a satisfactory state with respect to material condition, organization, discipline, and general efficiency, and that, while results indicate fair progress in the past, there exist reasonable grounds for anticipating equally creditable advancement in the future.

GEORGE ED. LONG.

ANNEX Q.

MAITLAND DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR T. DWYER'S REPORT FOR 1882.

The Maitland District comprises the country in the valley of the Hunter and the coast from Cape Hawke to Broken Bay.

The number of schools in operation during the year or any portion of it was 239, consisting of 173 Public, 32 Provisional, 4 Half-time, 13 Church of England, and 17 Roman Catholic Schools and departments. All of these were fully inspected except two small Provisional Schools, which were closed when the inspectors visited their localities.

New Public School buildings were completed and opened during the year at Bunnan, Caergurle, Fullerton Cove, Gresford, and Oakhampton. A second Public School was provided for West Maitland by the purchase of St. Ethel's, and opened in April, 1882. New buildings are in course of erection at Belmont, Hexham Lower, Hexham Upper, Lostock, Maitland East, Plattsburg, Raymond Terrace, Rothbury, and Bandon Grove.

It has been decided to erect new schools at Binglebrah, Buchanan, Eccleston, Sugarloaf, Summerhill, Sugarloaf Creek, Wallalong, Salisbury, Bendolba, Galgabba, Miller's Forest, Denman, Blandford, Newcastle South (girls' department), Singleton (girls' department), Minmi (girls' department), Adamstown (infants' department), Sparkes's Creek, and Wybong.

Christ Church Church of England School, Newcastle, has been purchased by the Department and opened this month as a Public School. The following Church of England Schools have been leased as Public ones, viz., Bendolba, Denman, Hexham Upper, Singleton, Muscledbrook, and Miller's Forest. The following Provisional have been converted into Public Schools, viz., Ballington, Black Hill, Doyle's Creek, Mount Rivers, Mount Mooby, Mitchell's Flat, Upper Hunter, Galgabba, Hannah Bay, Sugarloaf Creek, Quorrobolong, and Wamberall. New Provisional Schools were opened at Carrabolla and Cliffdale, and a new one is ready for occupation at Colstoun. Applications for small schools at Rosenthal, Camberwell, and Chilcott Plains are still under consideration; one for a small school at Stroud Road has been withdrawn. It is proposed to open Half-time Schools at Bunnan, which had not scholars enough to keep up the required minimum attendance as a Public, and at Middle Wybong Provisional, the average of which has fallen off through removals from the locality. Unless there be a sudden influx of population into this district, which is not probable, existing and proposed schools will meet the demands likely to be made on them in regard to accommodation for some time. The schools too are centrally placed except in a few cases.

Evening Public Schools have been a failure. They may succeed in the winter time; but it is impossible to maintain the required minimum attendance for the whole year.

The number of pupils enrolled for 1882 was 23,421; the average attendance for the same period was 13,014·1. The number of pupils examined was 14,208.

The organization of the majority of inspected schools may be set down as very fair. The material condition of a considerable number is not satisfactory, the brickwork being faulty, the wood-work affected by white ants, and the use of unseasoned timber being evident. The lighting of several also has not received much scientific attention; and the walls of a goodly number need recolouring, as well for the sake of health as of appearance. The residences of teachers in many places are too small; and in the case of a few non-vested Public and of several Provisional Schools there are no out-offices. The organization of many schools was found to be defective owing to the careless and untidy habits of those in charge, although repeated suggestions for removing defects had been made by inspectors. I would recommend that such teachers be required to attend, for a time, some well-kept school, and to take such notes of its management as would assist them to remove the defects of their own schools. Many teachers take a pleasure in keeping their school premises clean and orderly. The contrast in this respect between different schools is very striking, and it cannot be doubted that the appearance of a school has a life-long effect on those attending it.

The classification is, on the whole, very fairly correct, and exhibits a continuous rise; but the desire for a too minute subdivision of classes still exists in many schools.

The records may be said to be faithfully kept, no case of falsification having come under notice during the year; but more could be done towards keeping these books with increased neatness, and, in the case of the Lesson Register, with more definiteness.

The discipline of the majority of schools in this district is healthy; but bad discipline is found in some. This is most noticeable at incidental and ordinary inspections, for it is then that defects in the the marching and seating of pupils, in the mode of distributing materials, &c., come most fully under review. The maintenance of healthy discipline acts directly on instruction, and there is no doubt that the teacher who has his school well in hand reaps a rich reward in the success he achieves in teaching, and in the degree of comfort with which he is able to carry on his work.

Want of punctuality is still too common, especially where there is any laxity in this respect on the teacher's part. Irregularity of attendance is sometimes assigned as a reason for poor progress or positive retrogression; but it has come under notice during the year that the only compulsion needed in some localities is the very mild form of it derived from the local influence of a good teacher. The best way therefore to make such an influence general is to place every legitimate obstacle in the way of inefficient teachers entering the service of the Department. Speaking generally, the children presented a neat and tidy appearance; in the few cases in which the opposite was found the real cause lay with the teachers, who paid little or no attention to regular morning and afternoon inspection of the pupils before they entered school.

The course of instruction has been followed in the bulk of schools; but it is thought that the time has arrived for the elimination of several subjects from the standard for small schools. The benefit derived by the pupils of such schools from the instruction they receive in grammar, geography, singing, and drawing is so slight, that it would be better to devote the time spent in attempting to teach these branches to the giving of extra instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic.

The efficiency of the schools is steadily increasing, not alone as regards discipline and tone, but also in the number that satisfy or exceed the standard of proficiency.

Of the 237 schools inspected, 99 are above the standard, 43 up to, and 95 below it; or, in other words, 60 per cent. of the inspected schools met or exceeded this test as against 57 per cent. last year.

A great hope of future success in regard to the school-life of children must result from the improved social condition of the bulk of their parents. The quicker intelligence and instincts that come of better homes tend to leaven all the schools as they have done some already. It is also noteworthy that schools in which a systematic course of home lessons has been faithfully carried out in the more important branches including reading and recitation, produced highly satisfactory results at the examinations.

The following table shows the number of pupils examined in each subject of instruction, and the percentage of those who satisfied or exceeded the standard:—

Subject.	No. of pupils examined.	Percentage of pupils who exceeded or satisfied the standard.

This table shows that the average proficiency of the pupils in each subject of instruction exceeds 60 per cent., except in the case of drawing, drill, and the compound and higher rules of arithmetic.

There are four Superior Public Schools in this district, viz., Newcastle, Wallsend, West Maitland, and Wickham. As it may prove interesting to the public to know what educational tests are applied in the examination of the 5th or highest class in Superior Public Schools, I give the questions proposed to the boys of this class in the West Maitland School in arithmetic, algebra, mensuration, and geometry.

Arithmetic.

1. Add $\frac{1}{4}$ of a guinea, $\frac{3}{8}$ of £4, $\frac{1}{10}$ of 2s. 6d., $\frac{1}{3}$ of a shilling, and reduce the result to the decimal of 8s. 4d.
2. Simplify $(\frac{2}{7} - \frac{3}{27}) \div (\frac{1}{18} + \frac{1}{3} + \frac{1}{9})$.
3. Reduce 17 lbs. 10 ozs. 6 dwts. 15 grs. troy to dec. of 1 lb. avoirdupois.
4. 19 tons 19 cwts. 3 qrs. 27 lbs. at £19 19s. 9d. per ton.
5. Divide £1,400 among A, B, C, so that as often as A gets £5 B shall get £4, and as often as B gets £3 C shall get £2.
6. A was owner of $\frac{1}{7}$ of a property and sold $\frac{3}{11}$ of $\frac{2}{3}$ of his share for £ $\frac{100}{3}$, what was the value of $1\frac{3}{8} \div 4\frac{1}{4}$ of $\frac{2}{3}$ of the property.
7. Find the simple int. on £684 18s. 8d. for 1 yr. 11 mon. at $4\frac{1}{2}$ p. cent. p. annum.
8. Find comp. int. on £690 for 3 yrs. @ $4\frac{1}{2}$ p. cent.

The teachers and the assistants of this district number 162 males and 124 females. They are, with few exceptions, a faithful and industrious body. All are not efficient, but all try to be so. I have found them ready to act on any suggestions made for the removal of defects, and also studiously inclined.

The classification of all will be seen from the following table :—

There are 124 pupil teachers employed in this district, 54 males and 70 females. They are classified as follows :—

	I.	II.	III.	IV.	Total.
Males	6	13	16	19	54
Females	9	14	18	29	70

These pupil teachers are a respectable and an intelligent body of young persons. In m schools they do the work of assistants; and, in the majority, more labour is assigned to them than they are well able to perform. I am of opinion that pupil teachers in their first and second years should not be obliged to teach continuously the whole day, as they have to do at present, and that to overwork may be attributed the careworn and unhealthy look so many of them wear.

The

The inspectors associated with me, Messrs. M'Cormack and Morris, have worked with such zeal throughout the year, and have co-operated so heartily with me that there has been no difficulty in getting through the work of this district, although we were rather heavily handicapped at the start.

In conclusion, it may be said that the state of primary education in this district is healthy and progressive.

School buildings of an improved kind have been erected during the year, and a large number are about to be built. Parents appreciate the efforts made for the instruction of their children; and all employees of the department are duly impressed with the importance of the work in which they are engaged.

MAITLAND DISTRICT (NEWCASTLE PORTION).

MR. INSPECTOR M'CORMACK'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

At the beginning of May the Stroud Circuit, embracing the area between the Williams River and the coast, was added to, and the Muswellbrook Circuit was withdrawn from, that portion of the Maitland District assigned me in 1880. This change placed under my supervision the schools in the eastern part of the coast district, extending from Broken Bay to the Myall Lakes. These numbered 98 in all, and comprised 67 Public, 15 Provisional, 2 Half-time, 6 Church of England, and 8 Roman Catholic Schools. In the course of the year a Public School was opened at Fullerton Cove; an additional department was formed in connection with each of the Public Schools at Newcastle South and Wallsend; and the Provisional Schools at Black Hill, Crawford River, Galgabba, Hannah Bay, and Wamberall, and the Church of England School at Stroud, were converted into Public Schools. At the end of March the Public School at Boolambayte was closed. There were, therefore, 100 schools in operation at the close of 1882, the list showing an increase of nine in the number of Public Schools, and a decrease of five and one in Provisional and Church of England Schools respectively. New Public School buildings have been completed at Cockle Creek, Stockton, and Wallsend, and others are in course of erection, or will soon be commenced at Belmont, Bandon Grove, Bendolba (Upper), Galgabba, Miller's Forest, Salisbury, Sugarloaf Creek, Adamstown (Infants'), Minmi (Girls'), Newcastle South (Girls'), and Raymond Terrace (Infants'). Satisfactory arrangements have been made, where needed, by which the education of pupils formerly attending Denominational Schools will be provided for. To this end non-vested Public Schools have been secured at Bendolba (Upper), Miller's Forest, and Raymond Terrace. The Church of England School at Newcastle has been purchased by the Department, and will be opened this year as a Public School. The existing schools reach well the children of school age in the district, and on the average are in a very fair state of repair. All schools but two have been fully inspected during the year. The existence of the Public School at Boolambayte ceased in March through insufficiency of school population, and the Whyee Provisional School was temporarily closed at the time the locality was visited. Certain points connected with the organization and discipline of schools cannot be satisfactorily reported upon, except by ordinary inspections; and visits of this kind could not, under existing arrangements, be made to all schools. As a rule the school buildings are clean and fairly ventilated; the furniture is adequate, properly arranged, and well preserved, and the supply of materials ample. The time-tables in use are well constructed, but some programmes of lessons show crudeness and hurry in their preparation. Columns are filled in quarter after quarter with little or no alteration in the amount and range of instruction. Before commencing work, both morning and afternoon, the pupils are well inspected as to cleanliness and neatness. There is room for improvement in the marching in and out of school, and greater effort is necessary to secure precision and quietness in the simultaneous movements. The order maintained in nearly all schools is very satisfactory, and is the result of vigilant, firm, and even government. On the whole the classification is appropriate. In a few schools injudicious promotions are made. Only a few pupils are advanced at a time. By this procedure greater difficulty is created in imparting instruction, and the bulk of the pupils are kept in the lower classes under the supervision, too exclusively so in some instances, of pupil teachers.

The character of the attendance continues to improve. In the following table the enrolment and average attendance for each quarter of the year are given:—

Quarters.	Pupils enrolled.	Average attendances.
March	10,542	7,733·5
June	10,749	7,596·8
September	11,002	7,920·2
December	10,537	7,482·5

This shows an attendance averaging about 72 per cent. of the enrolment.

The prescribed course of instruction is closely followed in the majority of schools. Deviations are chiefly caused through the incompetency of some teachers to impart instruction in one or more of the subjects. A comparison of the percentage of pupils, who in 1881 and 1882 satisfied the requirements of the standard, shows marked progress in all subjects last year—Singing, Mensuration, and Latin, excepted.

Sixty-five teachers attended examination during the year to try and obtain higher classification. The results in all cases are not yet known. The full teaching staff includes 75 pupil teachers and 13 work-mistresses. The teachers as a body are respectable, intelligent, and industrious. The pupil teachers are well conducted and studious, and many of them show good aptitude for their work.

Summary.—The schools are well distributed, and are in a very fair state of repair. A slight increase has been secured in the attendance, and the results of the inspections show improvements. 50 per cent. of the teachers and assistants endeavoured by examination to raise their classification.

Statistics relating to schools and to the estimated proficiency of pupils have been sent to the District Inspector.

ANNEX S.

MR. INSPECTOR MORRIS'S REPORT FOR 1882.

On the 8th of May I was placed in charge of a portion of the Maitland District, with Muscleebrook for my head quarters.

Within this area ninety-two schools were in operation during some portion of 1882.

At the beginning of the year eighty-nine schools were open, viz. :—

60 Public.
20 Provisional.
2 Half-time.
4 Church of England.
3 Roman Catholic.

In the course of the year a Public School was opened at Bunnan, but the attendance having fallen much below the required minimum, it was found necessary to close the school.

A recommendation has been made to re-open Bunnan as a Half-time School, to be worked in conjunction with Middle Wybong, where, in consequence of removals, the numbers have also fallen off. At Greta the infant department has been closed, as the numbers did not warrant the maintenance of more than one department.

Provisional Schools have been opened at Cliffdale and Brownmuir, with fair prospect of success. The Provisional Schools at Mount Mooby, Mitchell's Flat, Upper Hunter, Doyle's Creek, and Quarry-by-long, also the Church of England School at Denman, have been converted into Public Schools. The Church of England Schools at Singleton, Jerry's Plains, and Muscleebrook, also the Roman Catholic Schools at Singleton, Blandford, and Muscleebrook, have, of course, ceased to be connected with the Department. At the end of the year the schools open were as follow :—

65 Public.
18 Provisional.
2 Half-time.
Total ... 85

It is intended to establish a Public School at Blandford, and a site has already been selected. A new school has been built at Rothbury, and is almost ready for occupation. Large additions are being made to the Public School at Muscleebrook. Tenders have been called for the erection of new buildings at Wybong and Sparkes' Creek.

The Church of England premises at Singleton, Denman, and Muscleebrook, have been leased until accommodation can be provided in connexion with the Public Schools. Applications for the establishment of schools at several other places are under consideration. When all these proposals are carried out the educational wants of the district will be fairly met.

All the schools under my charge have been fully inspected during the year. As a general rule the material condition of Provisional Schools and others not the property of the Department is not above tolerable. Some of the buildings also belonging to the Department and erected as Public Schools are not in good condition; the brick-work of some has cracked very much, the white-ant has ravaged some, and some show striking evidence of the use of unseasoned timber in their construction. Many of the residences do not afford sufficient accommodation, some having only two rooms and a kitchen, and many only three rooms and a kitchen.

There is usually found to be a very fair supply of all the materials necessary for carrying on efficiently the work of instruction. When we approach the matter of actual training, one of the most pleasing things we meet is the character of the government. With few exceptions, I have found a firm control with little or no admixture of severity, and a readiness of obedience such as arises from a knowledge of the futility of rebellion and a feeling of respect for and confidence in those who rule. I should like to see higher results in respect of punctuality and regularity of attendance, more particularly the latter. During the last year a good deal of irregularity was caused by the dry weather, children being kept at home to herd cattle and sheep, yet this is after all but a temporary reason, while the evil is always in existence. The main cause no doubt is that the benefits of education are not sufficiently direct, tangible, and manifestly lucrative to appeal strongly to the minds of untaught parents. In most cases the classification of the children according to their attainments I found to be fairly satisfactory.

The

The general condition of the schools as to efficiency is shown thus:—
Relation to the standard.

	Below.	Up to.	Above.

Provisional Schools.....	13	4	1
Half-time	1	1	...
Church of England Schools	1	1	2
Roman Catholic	2	...	1
All	47	19	26

It is fair to remark that in the majority of those cases in which the schools are below the standard, the teachers are either unclassified or hold a very low classification; it is therefore not to be expected that they should produce such high results as those holding high certificates and drawing large salaries. While therefore it is necessary to say that they are not up to the standard, it is still to be understood that many of those whose schools are not up to the standard are doing as much as can be expected of them.

The attainments of the pupils are shown in the following general view, which gives the proportion of children examined by me who reached the mark fair or higher.

Sewing	0	"	90 "
Drill	1097	"	32 "
	5437	"

From an examination of this table it will be seen that of the ordinary subjects reading and writing stand highest. When we reflect that reading and writing are as it were the implements with which all subsequent educational work is to be wrought, it is reassuring to find these subjects well taught; we may fairly hope for expeditious progress when the work is to be done with keen-edged tools. The lowest subject is drill; in fact except in the larger schools and a few others, the instruction in drill is scarcely more than nominal. This arises in many cases from a want of proficiency in the teacher, not from neglect. Advanced grammar is a weak subject. Of the four divisions under this head I have found the parsing and analysis satisfactory, but accidence and composition unsatisfactory. The results in sewing are highly pleasing, proving much patience and care in teachers and taught.

In conclusion, it may be said that when the state of the schools in 1881 is compared with that in 1882, some improvement is evident, and when the present condition is taken as a ground for prediction, though we are not justified in entertaining hopes of any extraordinary advance, there is reason to expect that in 1883 the schools will not be either stagnant or retrogressive.

Inspector.

ANNEX T.

WAGGA WAGGA DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR HICKS' REPORT FOR 1882.

I.—SUPERVISION.

THE year commenced with the same arrangements for supervision as existed in the previous year, i.e., the whole district was divided into three sections, viz., Wagga, Albury, and Yass. The more equitable division of the work necessitated the transference from the Wagga section of one school (Upper Adelong) to the Albury section, and of six—Bethungra, Coolac, Jugiong, Burra Burra, Bongongolong, and Yammattree to the Yass section.

Early in the year (May) Mr. M'Creddie's promotion to the Grafton District Inspectorship left a vacancy at Yass which was not filled until 16 November, when Mr. Inspector Lawford assumed charge of that section. During the interval of nearly seven months, the work of inspection there fell considerably into arrear, and would have remained in abeyance altogether had not Mr. Inspector M'Intyre been sent up for part of the time. In addition to holding several inquiries Mr. M'Intyre inspected 21 schools; but as his reports did not pass through my hands to the head office, and as only some of them eventually reached me, my information regarding the Yass section is necessarily only partial.

The arrears at the end of Mr. M'Intyre's visit were heavy; and to reduce them as far as possible, Mr. Inspector Dawson, of Braidwood, inspected 20 schools during November and December.

II.—MEANS OF EDUCATION.

1. Schools.

No transference of schools from other districts having been made, the progress for the year represents internal growth.

The year 1881 closed with 209 schools in existence. During 1882 there have been in all 238 schools in operation, and of this number 232 were open at the end of the year. The absolute advance for the year, therefore, is 23 schools. The six that closed were:—

Weetangerra, Public	} Owing to removal of families.
Burra Creek, Provl.
Markdale
Marrar
Yass, C.E.	} Certificates surrendered in September.
Burrowa, R.C.

Two hundred and two (202) schools were in operation during the whole of the year, and 36 (including those established or resuscitated after the commencement of the year) for only a portion of it.

Under section 28 of the Act the Denominational Schools, then eight in number, ceased to receive aid from the Department from the end of 1882. Temporary arrangements have been made for the employment in the district of the teachers who were engaged in them.

The rate of increase in the number of schools is likely to be maintained, as is evident from the fact that, as the result of action taken, schools are either certain or likely to come into existence at and at seven places specified in Mr. Inspector Hookins' report.

In addition to the three applications for new schools mentioned, in the Albury report, Mr. Inspector Lawford has two (Grassy Creek, near Burrowa, and Wallaroo) in hand; and I have one (Bombowlee, near Tumut). All these have been recently received, and will be early attended to.

The Land for Public Purposes Acquisition Act has proved a most effective instrument for the removal of obstacles in the way of school establishment. In several localities, as Yerong Creek, Tarrabandra, Temora, and Culcairn, the work of education would have been seriously retarded but for this Act.

As its provisions become better and more generally known and understood, the necessity for enforcing them diminishes, as might be expected.

The Wagga Wagga section of the district is thoroughly well supplied with schools which are suitably placed.

The reports from the Albury and Yass sections also speak favourably as to the number and distribution of the schools therein.

2. Evening Schools.

Further experience disposes me to believe that but little good need be expected in the district from clause 10 of the Act. It cannot be said that any evening school worthy of the name has been brought into existence during the year.

3. High Schools.

Clauses 25 and 26 of the Act have remained inoperative, and will, I think, so continue until the conditions under which effect can be given to them are altered.

4. Superior Schools.

Wagga Wagga is the only Public School in the district that has attained this rank. I am satisfied that to make them fully subserve their professed ends, the rules as to teaching power which apply to ordinary Public Schools should not regulate the staffs of Superior Schools. It will be necessary not only to somewhat increase the staff, but also to see that the efficient teaching of each of the higher subjects, mathematics, Latin, French, music, drawing, and physics, is provided for in the appointment of the staff. Few, if any, heads of Departments are, or can be expected to be, proficient in all these subjects. With the additional emolument arising from the special fees charged in the Superior Schools, it is not, I think, too much to look for a thorough and complete carrying out of the prescribed course. Such cannot at present be said to be the case at the Wagga School.

At Albury, Adelong, Deniliquin, Hay, Tumut, Young, and Yass, there are some pupils fit for the special class of a Superior School.

5. School Premises and Accommodation.

Every necessary consideration has been given to this matter, and the year has seen much of the fruit of action taken. A large number of new school buildings have been put up or are in course of erection, and many necessary repairs and additions have been effected. Some of the school tents are being superseded and the others are likely to be.

In the matter of supplying accommodation for teachers some improvement is noticeable. This is a decidedly praiseworthy feature, for in many instances the rooms of teachers' residences were found to be too small and too few for the comfortable and healthful accommodation of a family.

In connection with improvements effected in the material condition of the schools, the forms with backs, the altered system of ventilation, and the sewing press, introduced by the Department's architect, appear to me to be worthy of mention.

The proposal to substitute cheap weatherboard buildings for tents as temporary schoolrooms is likely to prove more generally acceptable to the parents as well as to those who work in the schools; and as the materials will be saleable when the Department has no further use for them, the plan is not likely to prove more expensive.

III.—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The returns are not quite complete, but the aggregate enrolment for the year may be approximately estimated at 17,000, which represents approximately 15,300 children—an increase of 1,230 on the year 1881. The accuracy which is so desirable in connection with multiple enrolment is likely to be secured under the new forms of annual return, provided that teachers are careful and exact in giving and demanding "certificates of attendance" in the case of children who attend more than one school during the year.

The average attendance for the year was approximately 8,308, or 54·3 per cent. of the estimated actual total number of children enrolled.

The numbers for the last quarter of the year were—

Section.	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.
Wagga.....	4,048	2,655·9
Albury.....	4,586	2,974·5
Yass.....	4,311	2,221·3
Total.....	12,945	7,851·7 or over 60 per cent.

The decrease in the number of children at school in the last quarter of the year results from the demand for children's labour in harvesting and in watering cattle, and from the excessive heat of December.

In order to give effect as far as possible to section 20 of the Act, enjoining upon parents the duty of sending their children to school, the inspectors, in accordance with instructions, required teachers to furnish information as to the attendance of pupils when they inspected the schools. This information was carefully analyzed, and the names of defaulters were duly forwarded to the Principal Attendance Officer. This action proved barren, however, inasmuch as the teachers were only informed in reply either that in consequence of there being no Attendance Officer in the district nothing could be done, or that the returns were superseded by those which were to be furnished on forms supplied by the local Attendance Officer. In this way, and from other indirect sources, I learnt that the provisions of sections 19 and 20 of the Act were being extended to the district, and that Attendance Officers had been sent to Wagga, Albury, Yass, and Gundagai.

It would be premature to express any opinion upon the general result of the work done by these officers; but individual schools might be cited at which the attendance would seem to have increased after their (the Attendance Officers') visits to the locality. It is significant that in the Wagga section the number of children of school age, and within reach of existing schools, but not known to the teachers to be receiving statute education, fell from 458 in 1881 to 272 in 1882; but this number, and the comparatively small ratio of attendance, go to show that there is work for the Attendance Officers to do.

IV.—INSPECTION—CONDITION OF SCHOOLS INSPECTED.

1. General Results of Inspection.

The number of schools that were fully inspected was:—

Section.	Inspected.	Not Inspected.	Total.
Wagga Wagga.....	64	2	66
Albury	72	9	81
Yass	70	21	91

Of the two (2) uninspected in the Wagga section, one (Marra, Provl.) collapsed in February before I had an opportunity of visiting it; and the other (Gobbagally, Provl.) was temporarily closed on both occasions of my visit.

The reasons of Mr. Hookins's failure to inspect nine (9) of his schools are set forth in his report, and can be understood when it is borne in mind that his section extends from the head of the Murray to the river Darling. This circumstance and the progress of settlement in the south-western and western portions of the Colony (vide my Report for 1881 and Mr. Hookins's report herewith) point to the prospective necessity for an inspectorial centre at Hay or Deniliquin.

The reasons why so many schools were left uninspected in the Yass section have already been described.

The actual visitation of the schools has consisted, as in former years, mainly in the regular yearly inspections. The heavy demands upon inspectors' time in matters of inquiry, and of a purely mechanical and routine character, have prevented the systematic re-visitation of schools and the directing of the work therein while in progress. Regulation 54 of 4th May, 1880, providing for the annual inspection of schools, is carried out; but Regulation 53, authorizing inspectors not only to "examine into the condition of schools," but also to "inquire into all matters which it may be expedient to report to the Minister, to determine all questions of school management, and to take the teaching of a class or of the school into their own hands for a time, to show the teacher how defective methods may be improved," is not, at least to my thinking, to such an extent as to be profitable.

Efficiency of the schools inspected:—

Section.	Number of Schools.

In 1881 the number of schools below the standard of efficiency was 51·7 per cent. of those inspected. In 1882 it was 46·1 per cent., a gain of 5·6 per cent. So that about one out of every eighteen of the non-efficient schools has become efficient since 1881.

The details of inspection for the Albury and Yass sections are given in the Inspectors' reports herewith:—

WAGGA WAGGA SECTION.

1. General Results.

It is so far satisfactory that the number of schools up to or above the standard of efficiency in this section rose from 47 per cent. in 1881 to 53 per cent. in 1882, being a gain of 6 per cent. The non-efficient schools are nearly all of the smaller class, and contain but 24·5 per cent. of the pupils; 75·5 per cent. are, therefore, in schools efficiently conducted. Two-thirds of the non-efficient schools were, at the time of inspection, in charge of unclassified teachers; and they consisted chiefly of Provisional Schools or Public Schools converted from Provisional Schools.

The aggregate enrolment at the time of the inspection of the schools was 3,538, the ordinary attendance 2,678. The number of pupils actually present at inspection was 2,738, of whom

1,469 or 53·6 per cent.	were in the 1st (lowest) class.
596 or 21·8	" " 2nd class.
485 or 17·7	" " 3rd "
158 or 5·8	" " 4th "
30 or 1·1	" " 5th "

These numbers compare favourably with last year's. 100 of the first-class children were found to be so young, or to have been so short a time at school, that they had made no measurable progress; they were not examined.

The number actually examined was 2,638, of whom 130 gained the "Certificate of a child being sufficiently educated," a number considerably lower than I expected. In explanation it should be stated that a large number of pupils who were up to the requirements of the certificate were beyond fourteen years of age, and so did not require or receive it.

2. Material Provisions.

Of the premises and appliances provided in the 64 schools inspected, 2 were excellent, 5 very good, 6 good, 10 very fair, 12 fair, 19 tolerable, 5 moderate, 3 indifferent, and 2 bad. On the whole, therefore, it must be said that teachers work under reasonably favourable circumstances as far as material provisions are concerned.

The following is a list of schools where material improvements have been or are being made : —

- Adelong—Repairs to building, improvement in drainage.
 - Adelong Crossing—Repairs.
 - Alfredtown—New buildings to supersede tent in course of erection.
 - Berry Jerry—Water supply secured. New buildings on central site recommended.
 - Blowering—Underground tank and repairs completed.
 - Downside—Ditto.
 - Edwardstown—Tank and kitchen provided. Repairs.
 - Gocup—Tank provided. Repairs.
 - Greenhills—Site enclosed.
 - Gundagai—New and commodious buildings in course of erection.
 - Gundagai South—Ditto.
 - Humula—Ditto.
 - Jugiong—Ditto.
 - Junee—Ditto.
 - Narrandera—Ditto.
 - Wagga Wagga North—Excellent new buildings completed.
 - Yarragundry—Ditto.
 - Wagga Wagga—Excellent new boys' school completed. Good water supply secured.
 - Nangus Creek—New buildings completed.
 - Lacmalac—Improvements in drainage. Repairs.
 - Junee Junction—Site enclosed. Minor additions.
 - Yerong Creek—Tender accepted for erection of new buildings.
- The schools most urgently in need of new buildings, additions, or repairs, are :—
- Clarendon—New buildings recommended. Site not yet dedicated.
 - Ferndale—Ditto.
 - Gadara—Ditto.
 - Tumut Plains—Ditto.
 - Collengullie—Tenders invited for new buildings.
 - Junee Junction—Ditto.
 - Malebo—Ditto.
 - Tumut—Additional accommodation recommended.
 - Wagga Wagga—Fencing, drainage, out-offices, recommended and approved.
 - Yaven Yaven—Repairs recommended, approved.

3. Management of the Schools.

(a) Organization.

In this respect 5 schools rank as very good, 16 as good, 12 as very fair, 9 as tolerable 5 as moderate, and 1 as indifferent. Average 6·6, fair to very fair. This is a slight improvement upon the marks of last year, when 17 out of 66 schools were below fair, as against 15 out of 64 this year.

The 16 schools ranked as good are those in which the teacher is perfect in the regulations and instructions given to him for his guidance, and acts up to them; the five very good ones are those in which the teacher superadds some amount of taste, resource, and energy, in securing those conditions under which school business can be carried on with a maximum of system, comfort, and success.

The want of standards of proficiency, pointed out last year, has continued to prove a serious drawback to many young and inexperienced teachers. Their seniors also are beginning to feel the want of them. The classification of the pupils and the whole regulation of the work of instruction hinge upon these standards, and I have little hope of improvement being effected in these matters until they are provided.

Less carelessness has been exhibited in the keeping of records and returns, but further amendment in respect of both accuracy and promptitude is very desirable.

(b) Discipline.

Of the three departments of management—organization, discipline, and instruction—discipline again comes out first, 6 schools ranking as very good, 20 as good, 14 as very fair, 15 as fair, 9 as tolerable, none below tolerable; average 7, very fair.

I have nothing of consequence on this head to add to my remarks of last year. I do not expect to be able to report any marked improvement until drill is thoroughly attended to and made to form a necessary part of the discipline; but this cannot be looked for until the teachers themselves understand drill.

(c) Instruction.

In respect of instruction, 2 schools are good, 11 very fair, 16 fair, 20 tolerable, 11 moderate, and 4 indifferent; average, 5·4; tolerable, +. These results, although a little higher than last year's, show that the instruction, as a whole, is not as good as it should be, and that it is still the weakest feature in our school management. On this last point, however, it is to be mentioned that the instruction is judged by a more rigid and severe test than the organization and discipline, the results being measured in such a way that, as in arithmetic for example, the pupils who are partially right get little or no more credit than those who are absolutely wrong.

Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography, and Object Lessons are taught in all the schools, and the proportions of pupils who reached fair to good in them were 79·1, 78·8, 66·7, 74·4, 76·4, and 76·4 per cent. respectively.

While these numbers show an increase of 7 to 10 per cent. on last year's, they indicate that arithmetic is still the weakest of the essential (and instrumentary) branches. This is no new complaint. For years past inspectors have been unanimous in their testimony as to this defect, and but little can be added to the reasons advanced to account for it, and the means suggested to remove it. On a careful comparison of the observations made in 1882, and a review of the experience of past years and different districts, I find it hard to believe that arithmetic is taught less intelligently or skillfully than other subjects, or that our youth acquire less knowledge of the properties and applications of number than they do of the use and relations of words, of the features of the earth's surface, or of the qualities and uses of common objects. I still think that in the treatment of arithmetic teachers would do well to give more attention to the principles underlying the problems they set, to explanatory work, to smart mental and blackboard exercises, especially in the lower classes, to varying the form and setting of their questions, and to home exercises; but I am inclined to think that arithmetic continues to appear at such a disadvantage in comparison with the other subjects largely on account of the severity of the test and standard applied. More allowance might fairly be made for pupils who have failed to obtain the correct answer through some slip (often made at the beginning of a solution), and for those who exhibit a knowledge of the method of working, though more or less devoid of the faculty of rapid and correct calculation. Again, amongst those included under the head of "simple rules" are a number of very young children who are proficient for their age and time at school, but who may not have been ranked fair or good simply because they can do little more than count easy numbers and tell the digits. The

The teaching in reading, writing, geography, and object lessons calls for no special remark. In connection with English grammar, it is to be regretted that composition has not yet reached the place it should have.

History has been introduced only in the Wagga Wagga School. The thirty pupils examined all did well.

Scripture Lessons were omitted in the three (3) Roman Catholic Schools, and in seventeen others. In the latter, either the children were not advanced enough to read the lessons or their parents objected to them. Out of 960 children eligible for instruction in Scripture, 843 received such instruction, and of these 80 per cent. passed from fair to good. The teaching given is thus of good quality.

Drawing.—But few of the teachers are capable of teaching this subject well beyond the elementary stage; and, as a matter of fact, little beyond this is attempted. Within this limit, 1,234 out of 1,526 who ought to be taught drawing practise it, and of these 62·4 per cent. passed from fair to good. Map-drawing is attended to in only a few of the larger schools.

Vocal Music is still confined almost entirely to singing easy songs by ear. Here and there exercises are introduced and pieces are written (in tonic sol-fa notation as a rule) on the board, to be sung. Of true developmental teaching in music, however, there is very little indeed. The year's further experience confirms my former opinion that the number of children who leave the schools able to read even the simplest music is almost inappreciably small. Mr. Inspector Lawford, of Yass, has called attention to the same defect, and seems disposed to attribute it to the adoption of the tonic sol-fa instead of the "established" method. In the few schools, however, where the old notation is professedly adopted, the results are no better than in the others. The truth is, the subject is not taught any more than arithmetic would be if instruction in it ceased when the pupils had acquired proficiency in the multiplication table. A large number of the teachers cannot teach singing, and a considerable portion of the remainder regard the subject not as a necessary and integral part of the course, but as an addition and occasional relaxation. Were the subject taken up progressively as the other subjects are some actual knowledge of it might be expected, whether the method adopted was the "old" or the "new." Those teachers who use the tonic sol-fa method should, of course, ever avoid the error of making it an end; its proper and useful place is as a means to an end, that end being ability to read from the "old" notation. Those on the other hand who prefer the "old" notation from the beginning might, I venture to think, with advantage, fully recognise key-relationship, and so apply the cardinal principle of the "new" method to the notation of the "old."

All children are supposed to be taught singing, but only 1,602, or 60·7 per cent., are. Of these 79 per cent. are able to sing simple songs by ear very fairly. In thirty out of the sixty-four schools singing is not taught.

French has been introduced in the Wagga Wagga School, where there are thirteen girls being well taught.

Euclid.—191 boys are eligible for instruction, and all are taught. 171, or 89·5 per cent., passed from fair to good. The teaching in this subject is therefore good.

Algebra is taught to sixty-four boys, of whom thirty-six, or 56·2 per cent., passed from fair to good.

Mensuration is taught to fifty boys, of whom thirty-six, or 72 per cent., passed from fair to good.

Latin.—Seventeen boys in the Wagga Wagga School did fairly in the little they had gone over.

Needlework is taught in fifty-three out of the sixty-four schools to 761 girls out of a total of 1,055, and 662, or nearly 87 per cent., passed from fair to good.

The defects characteristic of the teaching as a whole which I pointed out last year may still be said to exist. Instruction is too often carried on without a due consideration of the principles upon which the true "art of teaching" rests; there is too little of ingenuity, resource, or individuality, and too much of working on habits and forms, acquired often haphazard, and, generally, from limited experience. In a word, teaching, as exhibited as a whole in the district, has not far outgrown, if at all, its empirical stage.

To expect all teachers to have a knowledge of the laws of mental and moral development, and to be themselves personal exponents of the excellences and virtues they should work for and inculcate, is, perhaps, a high ideal, but it is one that must not be lost sight of.

In justice to those in the service in this district it must be said that as a body they are devoted to their work, and manifest a desire, amounting in some cases to eagerness, to receive and make use of such information and assistance as the Department affords. A fair proportion of them gained promotion in classification by examination, and so, to an extent, reduced the disparity between the status of the schools and that of the teachers.

The small school candidates have increased in number and improved in quality; and the difficulty in finding pupil-teachers in the chief centres is declining.

V.—SUMMARY.

The increase in the means of education and in school attendance has kept pace with the increase and spread of population; and much has been done to improve the material organization of the schools, but little or nothing has been attempted beyond the limits of primary education.

The management of the schools and the status of the teachers show an upward tendency, but we have yet to reach a full realization of the benefits contemplated in the prescribed course of instruction and training.

Amongst the means that might be adopted in order the more speedily and effectually to ensure further progress, the more frequent visitation and more practical supervision of the schools are worthy of first consideration.

Our system of primary education appears to be established in the confidence of the public generally.

The inspectors' reports on the Albury and Yass sections of the district are forwarded herewith, as well as the required tables of statistics for all the sections.

District Inspector.

ANNEX U.

MR. INSPECTOR HOOKINS' REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882.

At the end of 1881 there were under my immediate supervision 51 Public Schools, 14 Provisional Schools, 1 Certified Denominational R.C. School, and 4 Half-time Schools.

During the year 1882 there have been opened 15 Public Schools, 13 Provisional Schools, and 2 Evening Public Schools. 13 Provisional Schools have been closed, or converted into Public Schools, and 4 Half-time Schools and 1 Evening School have ceased work.

The Certified Denominational School at Albury ceased to receive aid on the 31st of December, in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

At the close of the year 1882, therefore, there remained 66 Public Schools, 14 Provisional Schools, and 1 Evening School (Balranald) in full operation, in all 80 schools, against 70 schools at the end of last year.

Of the schools in operation during the year:—

57 Public Schools,
7 Provisional Schools,
1 Certified Denominational School, were were open during the whole year, and,

9 Public Schools,
9 Provisional Schools,
1 Half-time School,

for longer or shorter portions of the year.

The Minister has sanctioned the establishment of Public Schools at Rosewood, near Tumberumba, Yalama, near Deniliquin, Martindale, near Corowa, and Illilliwa, near Hay; and aid has been promised to the proposed Provisional Schools at Wraggubogra, near Tocumwal, South Mohonga, near Corowa (Granville), and Jingellic, East, Upper Murray.

Initiatory steps will shortly be taken for opening schools at Clear Hills, Goonambil, and Bull Plain, and for reopening the old Provisional School at Coree, near Jerilderie.

The arrangements for opening schools at Booorban, near Hay, Dahwilly, and Angoon have fallen through for the present.

New buildings of a modern and improved type have been completed at Black Range, Cookardinia, Balranald, Euston, Deniliquin, Mullengandra, Hillston, Wandook, and Wentworth, and buildings are in course of erection at Albury, Hay, and Batlow.

Important additions and alterations have also been made or begun, at Bowna, Balranald, Albury, Batlow, Deniliquin, Forest Vale, Hay, Booligal, Wilcannia, Wanganella, Tumberumba, Warangesda, (Aborigines), and Wagra.

To supply immediate requirements, tents have been erected at Rosewood, Booligal, Wagra, and Warangesda.

Thus the material wants of the district, in regard to schools or tents, have been well attended to during the past year.

The assistance towards erecting suitable Provisional Schools, now granted under certain circumstances, is calculated to materially serve the residents of thinly inhabited localities, and to largely increase the number of this useful class of schools.

Inspection.

Out of 81 schools in operation at the close of the year, 72 received a full (regular) inspection. The schools at Colombo Plains, Daisydale, Burrumbuttock, and Thulabin, were not fully inspected, not being in operation at the time of my visit to the locality, while those at Menindie, Hillston, Maude, and Gol-Gol, were not inspected, owing to pressure of other work. Incidental visits were however paid to Menindie and Gol-Gol Schools.

The following table exhibits the number of pupils enrolled, the average attendance, and the ratio of attendance to enrolment:—

1882. Quarter.	Enrolment.			Average Attendance.			Ratio of Attendance.
	Boys.	Girls.	Total.	Boys.	Girls.	Total.

Ratio of attendance for 1881 64.7 per cent.

1882 64.4 "

The falling off is, to some extent, due to exceptional sickness, and to an increased demand for children's labour, consequent upon a good harvest. There were 2,980 pupils in attendance at the various inspections.

The following tabular statements show the results of the examinations:—

Compared with last year's results, ten subjects out of the sixteen taught show an improvement, but in grammar, geography, and four other subjects, a slight falling off is noticeable. The results in arithmetic still show unfavourably compared with other subjects, owing to the mechanical treatment of the subject, want of point, vigour, variety, and comprehensiveness in oral questioning, and to the haphazard simultaneous answering occasionally permitted.

The condition of the schools with regard to the standard is here shown :—

School.	Number examined.	Below.	Up to.	Above.
Public	62	28 or 45.1 %	12 or 19.4 %	22 or 35 %
Provisional	9	9 or 100 %
Certified Denominational	1	1 or 100 %

As regards the unfavourable aspect presented by the Provisional Schools, it must be explained that several of them were newly opened under comparatively inexperienced teachers. The only Certified Denominational School in the district has more than satisfied this standard.

Adequacy of means of instruction.

That portion of the Wagga Wagga District under my supervision, which lies east of the meridian of Corowa, is now very fairly supplied with schools, but west of this, from the Murray northward to the Murrumbidgee, in the country watered by the Edwards, the Wakool, and the Lower Billabong Rivers, and in the pastoral areas of Tubbo, Kerarbury, Burrabogie, on the Murrumbidgee, there are numerous groups of selectors, holding large areas of land, that are at present without the means of educating their families.

Many of these selectors have thrown up their holdings on the eastern side of this district, and removed to where the present Land Act permits them to take up larger areas. The effect of this action on their part, as regards education, has been injurious in two ways : the schools in the old localities have suffered by the loss of the children, and are consequently reduced in attendance ; and the children themselves are at once deprived of schooling, except where the parents can procure the services of a wandering bush tutor.

In this portion of the district there will be needed during 1883, itinerating teachers.

Teachers and Pupil Teachers.

There are over 70 teachers in this portion of the district, besides 19 pupil teachers. Their respective ranks are shown below :—

Teachers.

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Probationers.
A	B	A	B	A	B	C	Unclassified.
„	1	3	11	13	8	12	22

Pupil Teachers.

Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	Probationers.
1	1	3	5	10

Regular examinations of teachers have been held during the year, at Albury and Deniliquin ; and special ones at Balranald and Tumberumba. Attendance of probationers in temporary charge of Public Schools is compulsory at these examinations.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

Since the introduction of the Act, Evening Schools have been opened at Balranald, Hay, and Wentworth.

Those at Hay and Wentworth have ceased to exist, for want of adequate support, and that at Balranald is languishing.

The youths of these localities supported the schools with enthusiasm for a short time, but study soon became to them an uncongenial mode of spending their evenings.

Inspector.

YASS SECTION, WAGGA WAGGA DISTRICT.

MR. INSPECTOR LAWFORD'S REPORT FOR 1882.

I HAVE the honor to submit my general report for the year 1882.

I was placed in charge of the section on 16th November last, and was only able to inspect 16 schools during the short time which elapsed between that date and the teachers' examination.

At

At the commencement of the year Mr. District-Inspector James McCredie was in charge of the section until the end of April, when he was promoted to his present post, during which time he was only able to inspect 13 schools. From 1st May till 16th November the section has been without a regular inspector, but Mr. Inspector McIntyre has visited it on several occasions and inspected 21 schools. Mr. Inspector Dawson has also assisted in the work and inspected 20 schools. Thus, out of 91 schools open during the year, 70 have been fully inspected, while the clerical work connected with the schools and teachers has been kept in good order.

The number of schools in the section in operation at the beginning of 1882 was 80, consisting of 54 Public, 16 Provisional, 4 Half-time, and 6 Denominational schools; of which the following 6 schools were transferred to this from the Wagga Section at the commencement of the year:—Bethungra and Coolac, Public; Bongongolong, Burra Burra, and Yammattree (then Mitta Mitta), Provisional; and Jugiong, Roman Catholic.

Fourteen new schools were opened during the year, viz. :—9 Public, at Broughtonsworth, Bulla Creek, Crookwell River, Diamond, Flowerburn, Lang's Creek, Nelanglo, Stony Creek Lower, and Wambanumba; and 5 Provisional at Bookham, Cavan, Greenmantle, Muttama, and Pudman Creek.

The total number of schools in operation at the close of the year was 87. These consisted of 65 Public, 14 Provisional, 4 Half-time, and 4 Denominational schools.

I. Adequacy of the means of education in the Section; as regards amount and distribution.

The material condition of the schools inspected by myself is on the whole satisfactory; three, viz., Kilrush, Bulla Creek, and Stony Creek Lower, were held in tents, and one (Woodonga) in a bark hut, but school buildings in these places are in course of erection, or have been recommended.

The schools are as a rule very well found in educational appliances, and teachers are careful to preserve them in good order. Inside, the schools are for the most part neatly kept, but in very few cases has anything been done in the way of gardening to make the outside more pleasing.

The accommodation has always seemed ample when I visited the schools, but in some cases the attendance, owing to the time of year, was smaller than usual. There was a good deal of blight about, and the harvest kept many away.

II. The actual condition of schools, as elicited by inspection.

The discipline of the schools I have seen is decidedly good, clean and cheerful; the pupils are on the whole very attentive and well behaved, and in no case had I any reason to suppose that their ordinary behaviour was any different.

The course and range of instruction have in the main been carried out in accordance with the Act; but in many schools it was found that the teacher was unable to teach music, and in some drill.

The statistics show the following results:—

History is not taught in any of the schools, as no instructions have yet been received on the point.

Reading is taught to all pupils, 66·2 per cent. of whom reached the standard fair.

Writing is taught to all pupils, 77·1 per cent. of whom reached the standard.

Arithmetic is taught in all schools; 39 per cent. of those examined have gone beyond the simple rules. Of all the children examined in this subject 47·4 per cent. reached the standard, a result which is not at all satisfactory, and does not compare well with last year's report.

Object lessons are generally taught to all pupils, and of those examined 61·2 per cent. reached the standard, giving a result slightly above fair.

English grammar is necessary in all classes above the first and is taught accordingly; 59·7 per cent. reached the standard. The higher branches, analysis of sentences and composition, are not as well taught as they might be.

Geography is taught to the same classes with a somewhat better result, viz., 61·1 per cent. up to the standard. As a rule this subject is taught too much by rote; children are unable to answer if the question is a little varied from what they are accustomed to.

Scripture lessons are only taught to children above the second class, where the parents have no objection, and as a rule are well taught; 78·4 per cent. of those examined reached the standard, a result approaching good.

Drawing gives a result just short of fair, 59·3 per cent. being up to standard.

Music is supposed to be taught to all pupils, and is in most schools. The instruction given consists almost entirely of teaching the children a melody by ear, by singing it over to them until they know it. In a few schools the tonic sol-fa method is used, but the results are barren in the extreme; I do not believe there is a class in any school in the district who could correctly read at sight a simple melody if translated into sol-fa notation and written on the black-board. I do not therefore see any advantage to be gained by teaching this notation, instead of that generally known. Even in schools where the music is placed before the children I think that nine out of ten fail to gain thereby the slightest assistance either in time or tune. The statistics are therefore somewhat misleading, as out of 1,498 children examined in singing 57·5 per cent. were marked as fair or higher. These results must be considered relatively and not absolutely.

Needlework is taught to all girls wherever a suitable person is found to give instruction, but it sometimes happens that no one is available, in which cases it has to be abandoned; 79·8 per cent. of those examined were up to or above standard, a result which may be considered good.

French was taught in one school, where all pupils examined reached the standard.

Euclid is taught to boys above the third class; 75 per cent. of those examined reached the standard.

Algebra taught to the same classes gives nearly the same result, or 73 per cent.

Mensuration.—Thirty-one pupils examined in this were all up to or above the standard.

Latin is taught in a few schools, with the result last year of all pupils examined reaching the standard. This, however, like music, must be considered relatively and not absolutely. It would be entirely misleading to state that forty-one boys examined had a fair, or in some cases a good knowledge of the language. The marks gained must be applied to the knowledge displayed at examination of the work they had been taught. In one class I examined, the boys had not gone as far as the fifth declension, but yet the mark was good; for what they professed to know they knew well.

Drill is prescribed for all pupils, but in some schools the teachers (usually females in these cases) state that they are unable to teach it. This is much to be regretted, as nothing could be more healthy or useful than the extension movements and marching. Of those examined in drill 59 per cent. reached the standard.

III.—The improvement or retrogression of schools as regards efficiency since the previous year.

Compared with last year the result as to the efficiency of schools is satisfactory, there being—

25 schools, or 35·8 per cent. above the standard.

17 schools, or 24·2 per cent. up to the standard.

28 schools, or 40 per cent. below the standard.

Or, 60 per cent. were up to or above the standard, while 40 per cent. were below.

Contrasted with last year this is an improvement, the percentage then being—

52 per cent. up to or above the standard.

48 per cent. below.

The following table will show at a glance what progress or retrogression has been made in the various subjects taught :—

Subjects.	Percentages ranking from fair upwards.
	Last year.	This year.
Reading	64	66
Writing	69	77
Arithmetic	56	47
Grammar	64	59
Geography	68	61
Scripture	84	78
Object Lessons	59	61
Drawing	74	59
Music	66	57
French	100	100
Euclid	89	75
Algebra	89	73
Mensuration	100
Latin	68	100
Needlework	70	79
Drill	77	59

In the two most important branches, reading and writing, an improvement has taken place, and the same may be said in regard to object lessons and needlework, and to the comparatively small subject, Latin.

In arithmetic I am sorry to report a considerable falling off, but the absolute accuracy required before awarding marks accounts in some measure for the small results in the subject. This, however, does not account for this year being worse than last, and an acquaintance with sixteen schools only does not warrant me in giving an opinion as to the year's results for the whole section.

In grammar and geography there is a slight falling off, and in the other subjects not specifically mentioned, excepting French, from causes I am unable to give from my limited acquaintance with the section.

IV.—The future prospects of schools so far as they can be foreseen with any certainty.

So far as they can be foreseen with any certainty the prospects of the section are good. The teachers seem for the most part eager and anxious to get their pupils on, and the parents very generally show an anxiety in the same direction.

The schools seem well distributed, and within reach of nearly all the educable children in the section.

I think that, taking all things into account, satisfactory progress has been made during the past year in the work of education.

GRAFTON DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR JAMES MCCREDIE'S GENERAL REPORT FOR 1882.

The schools placed under my general supervision in May, 1882, are situated in that portion of the Coast District extending from the northern boundary of the Colony southwards to the Upper Myall, M'Lean, and Barrington Rivers. For the purposes of supervision the district is divided into two sections separated by the Bellinger River. Mr. Inspector Willis is in charge of the southern section and has his head quarters at Port Macquarie; the northern half of the district is under my own supervision.

The number of schools or departments in operation during the whole or portion of the year is shown in the subjoined table :—

	Public.	Pro- visional.	Half-time.	Evening Public.	Certified Denomi- national.	Totals.
Schools in operation—
I. During part of the year only.....	10	11	0	5	1	27
II. During the whole of the year	123	10	8	0	2	143
III. During the whole or part of the year ...	138	21	8	5	3	175
IV. On 31st December, 1882.....	137	20	8	3	2	170

During 1882 eleven Provisional Schools were converted into Public and the following fifteen new schools were opened :—

1. Public—Bellinger South, Bo Bo Creek, Fernglen, M'Lean's Ridges, Rushford, Swan Bay, and Ulmarra Lower.
2. Provisional—Burraduc, Cumbalum, Holey Flat, Shannon Brook, Solferino, Tooloom, Toorooka, and Yamba.

The schools closed during the same period were :—Carangula Mines, Public; Copeland and Port Macquarie, Evening Publics; Wollongbar, Provisional (superseded by M'Lean's Ridges, Public), and Ulmarra, Wesleyan (superseded by Ulmarra Lower, Public).

In addition to those already in operation, it has been decided to establish schools at the following places :—

1. Public—Arakoon, Cedar Party Creek, Coolongolook, Dunoon, and Nambucca Lower.
2. Provisional—Bellbrook, Bellinger Upper, Bobin Flat, Clunes, and Cowlong.
3. Half-time—Ellenborough and Lonely Point.

Applications for the establishment of Public Schools at King's Creek, Brushgrove, Southampton, and Belmore River Upper; Provisional Schools at Codrington North and Tintenbar; and Evening Public Schools at North Creek and Coraki, were declined after careful inquiry had been made in each case.

Repairs or additions were sanctioned for twenty-five schools, new buildings were erected in four localities and sanctioned for thirteen others, and six places have been provided with school tents during the past year.

At Koroore a school is to be erected on a central site to supersede existing schools at Huntingdon and Beechwood. Action has also been taken to remove the school at Dingo Creek to a more central site, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles further up the creek.

Existing schools are as a rule well distributed, sufficiently commodious, and centrally situated for the school population of their respective districts. There will be few localities unprovided with the means of education in 1883. The majority of the schools are confined to the banks of the several rivers within the limits of the district, the bulk of the settlers being farmers, and the land near the rivers being richer and better adapted for agriculture than that intervening.

About two thirds of the Public Schools are vested and the buildings in good condition. All are adequately supplied with the requisite educational appliances and books. The Provisional Schools have hitherto been erected by local efforts. Their condition ranges from bad to tolerable. When necessary, by reason of increased attendance at such schools, action has been, and will, from time to time, be taken to supersede the temporary buildings by more suitable permanent structures. Except in two cases where supplies granted have not been received, the Provisional Schools are well furnished with working material.

Considerable care is shown by the teachers in the keeping of the school property. In some few cases, however, an improvement is desirable in this respect, as also in the arrangement of the school furniture and apparatus, and in the cleanliness of the schoolrooms. It is to be regretted that flower borders, garages, and ornamental trees and shrubs are rarely seen in school grounds. Several teachers have promised to do their best to remedy this defect, and I hope to be able to report more favourably upon this feature of the organization next year.

The total number of pupils enrolled in all schools during the year was 10,996. Of this number about 400 had attended one other school under the Department, twenty, two other schools, and ten, three others during the same period. The average attendance for the whole year in all schools was 6209.4. For December quarter there were enrolled in all schools 9,513 pupils, the average attendance for the same quarter being 6702.6, or upwards of 70 per cent of the enrolment.

The discipline in the majority of the schools is very fair, in a few it is rather feeble and mars the effectiveness of the teaching. Wet weather, bad roads, and farming operations frequently affect the attendance, both in regard to punctuality and regularity. The pupils are diligent, orderly, and self-reliant, generally speaking they are clean and neatly dressed, but in some schools on the Clarence River many of them, even in fine weather, appear in school without boots or shoes.

Drill is well taught in a few schools, but in the large majority it receives little or no attention. Manuals on the subject have been forwarded to those teachers who expressed a desire to acquire some knowledge of it, with a view to introduce it in their several schools.

The instructional documents in most schools are carefully compiled, and the time tables show fair ability in their construction, in providing for the constant and profitable employment of the pupils, and for a judicious apportioning of the school hours to the teaching of the several subjects of instruction. Both programmes and Time tables are as a rule faithfully observed by the teachers, but, in many cases, the lessons given during the day are not recorded in the book provided for the purpose with sufficient explicitness and fulness, to serve as a guide to an inspector when examining the pupils.

The following table exhibits the number of pupils examined in each subject of instruction, and the percentage who satisfied the standard —

Subjects	Number of Children examined	Percentage ranking from "Fair" upwards
Reading	6,603	59
Writing	6,603	74
Arithmetic	5,439	38
Grammar	3,211	49
Geography	3,339	56
History—English	80	77
do Australian	36	66
Scripture Lessons	1,562	64
Object Lessons	6,504	54
Drawing	2,929	51
Music	3,929	62
French	18	100
Euclid	139	72
Algebra	66	23
Mensuration	44	58
Latin	31
Needlework	2,509	64
Drill	1,934	70

The subjects in which the poorest results were obtained are arithmetic, grammar, drawing, algebra, and elementary Latin.

In a number of the schools visited, the pupils of the First, Second and, in some instances, Third Classes are trained to count upon their fingers when working questions in arithmetic, and are rarely exercised in mental operations. Few of the pupils in the upper classes are able to solve correctly easy problems involving the exercise of their reasoning faculties. Higher results would I believe be obtained in arithmetic were the teaching less mechanical, the blackboard more frequently used, and the pupils daily exercised for a short time in simple mental operations bearing upon the rules they may at the time be studying.

Judging from the statistical tables of the proficiency of pupils in the two sections of the district, grammar is taught with more success in schools in the northern section than in those in the Port Macquarie section. In the former 58 per cent of the pupils examined satisfied the standard, against 40 per cent in the latter. In only a few schools is composition taught with satisfactory results.

Little or no oral instruction is given in drawing in a large majority of the schools, mainly owing to the fact that the teachers, being themselves ignorant of the subject, are unable to give it. In small schools a model is too frequently placed before the children which they are told to copy as best as they can, without any help from the teacher as to how they should set about it. I am of opinion that the disuse in many schools of Fowles' Drawing Books, in favour of those published by Collins Eros & Co., has tended in some degree to lower the results obtained in this branch.

The proficiency of the pupils examined in elementary Latin and algebra is very low. Of 31 pupils examined in the former subject none reached the mark fair, and of 66 examined in the latter only 23 per cent satisfied the standard.

The number of schools in operation during the whole or part of the year was 175. Of these 162 were fully inspected, 92 by Mr Inspector Willis, 24 by Mr Inspector Smith, and the remainder by myself. Eight of the 13 unvisited schools were not in operation at the time of the inspector's visit, 3 in the north western corner of the district could not be reached when I was in their neighbourhood, through heavy rain and flooded creeks, and the remaining 2 were not visited from want of time and opportunity. Prior to my removal to Grafton, 13 schools were inspected by me in the Yass section of the Wagga Wagga District.

Eighty four

Eighty-four or 52 per cent. of the 162 schools inspected were in point of efficiency up to or above the standard, while 78, or 48 per cent., were below it. These results cannot be considered satisfactory, but I have no means of ascertaining whether they would compare favourably or otherwise with the condition of the schools within the boundaries of the District in 1881. I may remark, however that about 10 per cent. of the schools ranking below the standard in efficiency were new schools, and had been but a short time in operation at the time of inspection.

At the close of the year the teaching staff consisted of 176 teachers or assistant teachers, 29 pupil teachers, and 5 work-mistresses.

The teachers and pupil teachers are classified as follows :—

I. TEACHERS.

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Classification unknown.	Without classification.	Total.
A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
0	1	7	14	41	40	19	7	47	176

II. PUPIL TEACHERS.

Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	Probationers.	Total.
2	2	6	15	4	29

The teachers are as a body steady, industrious, competent, and respectable. During the year two were removed from the Public Service, one for falsification of the school records, the other for misconduct.

The pupil-teachers are well conducted, very fairly studious, and give good promise of future usefulness.

To sum up : During the year, 11 Provisional schools were converted into Public; 15 new schools were opened; 12 others were established; and 6, including 2 evening Public, and one Denominational, were closed. When schools already established, and those projected are opened, the District will be well supplied with the means of education. Existing schools are judiciously distributed, and are sufficiently commodious and central for the school population of their respective districts. About half the schools inspected are, in point of efficiency, below standard requirements, but as the teachers have in every instance promised to remedy the defects in the management of their school, revealed by last year's inspection, a higher degree of efficiency will, it is hoped, be reached in all schools in 1883.

JAMES McCREDIE,
District Inspector.

ANNEX X.

PORT MACQUARIE SECTION OF GRAFTON DISTRICT.

MR. INSPECTOR WILLIS' REPORT FOR 1882.

HAVE the honor to submit this report for the year 1882 just closed.

This section was placed under my supervision on the 8th of May last.

It is bounded on the south by the valleys of the Upper Myall, M'Lean, and Barrington Rivers, and on the north by the Bellinger River Valley, and extends from the ocean on the east as far westward as the sources of the Bellinger, Nambucca, M'Leay, Hastings, Manning, Wallambah, and Barrington Rivers.

I.—SCHOOLS.

In this tract of country there were 81 schools at the beginning of the year, a number that had at the close of the year increased to 86, viz. :—

Public Day	67
Public Evening.....	4
Provisional.....	6
Half-time	8
Presbyterian	1

During the year new schools have been opened at the following places :—

- (a) Public :—At Bellinger South and Bo Bo Creek.
- (b) Provisional :—At Toorooka, Holey Flat, and Burraduc.
- (c) Evening Public :—At Camden Haven, Barrington, and Tacking Point.

Three of the schools that were open in the early part of the year have since been closed. These were :—

- (a) Public at Corangula Mines.
- (b) Evening Public at Port Macquarie and Copeland.

At Corangula the reduction of the attendance below the minimum was caused by the cessation of work at the mines, and the removal of the residents.

The evening schools were closed owing to paucity of attendance,—a result brought about by the apathy evinced by those for whom these schools were specially established.

Since the beginning of the year the Minister has decided to establish in this section 6 Public, 5 Provisional, 4 Half-time, and 3 Evening Schools. These are to be at the following places :—

- (a) Public :—At Bellinger South, Cedar Party Creek, Arakoon, Nambucca Lower, BoBo Creek, and Coloongolook.
- (b) Provisional :—At Bobin Flat, Bellinger Upper, Bell Brook, Toorooka, and Holey Flat.
- (c) Half-time :—At Ellenborough, Lonely Point, Camden Haven, and John's River.
- (d) Evening Schools :—At Camden Haven, Barrington, and Tacking Point.

It is under consideration to provide schools at :—

- Polo Creek.
- Missabottie Creek.
- Taylor's Arm.
- Landsdowne Upper.

II.—MATERIAL CONDITION OF SCHOOLS.

Of the 67 Public Schools 18 are conducted in slab huts built originally as Provisional School premises. The condition of these is bad, but that of the remaining 49 buildings ranges from fair to very good.

The aggregate accommodation provided by existing schools is sufficient for present requirements generally, but is not equally distributed, and is, in some instances, of a very inferior kind.

Beyond the erection of one new building and the provision of three school tents, nothing has been done during the past year to add to the amount or to improve the quality of the accommodation existing.

Arrangements

Arrangements are however being made that will effect a very considerable improvement in the material condition of these schools before the end of the year now entered upon. New buildings are in course of erection at East Kempsey and Wauchope, and tenders for new ones have been called, to be erected at Koroee Island, Cape Hawke, Bellinger, Belmore River, Cedar Party Creek, and Blackman's Point. It has also been decided to build a large Infants' School at West Kempsey, and by means of classrooms to enlarge the schools at Port Macquarie, Gladstone, Euroka, and Copeland.

In most of the schools the furniture is of the best construction and of sufficient quantity.

With few exceptions the teachers keep the school buildings clean, and presentable, but no attempt has yet been made to render the play-grounds attractive in appearance by cultivating shrubs and flowers in them.

III.—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The gross annual enrolment was.....	5,186
The multiple	405
The actual annual enrolment	4,781

Of those entered on the records more than once, 365 were enrolled twice, and 20 others three times.

The possible enrolment is estimated to have been 5,281, or 500 more than those registered. Of this number, about 200 attended private schools, 110 failed to attend the schools provided for them, and 190 had no schools to go to.

The average attendance for the year was 3,045 and the ordinary attendance about 3,400.

These figures show that the pupils were fairly regular in their attendance at school throughout the year.

The figures relating to the enrolment and attendance of the pupils during the past year are shown in the following table :—

Gross enrolment.	Multiple enrolment.	Actual enrolment.	Possible enrolment	Average attendance.	Ordinary attendance.
5,186	405	4,781	5,281	3,045	3,400

IV.—INSPECTION.

During the year 80 schools were fully inspected ; 24 by Mr. Inspector Smith and 56 by myself. The following is a return of the number of schools that were, and were not, inspected :—

Schools.	Public.	Prov.	H.T.	Presb.	Total.
Number opened during year 1882.....	71	6	8	1	86
Number fully inspected	68	5	6	1	80
Number not fully inspected	3	1	2	0	6

The six schools that were not inspected were :—Bellinger S. (Public), Camden Haven (Evening), Tacking Point (Evening), Holey Flat (Provisional), and the Half-time schools at McLean River.

The two last-mentioned were closed at the time I visited their neighbourhood, and the remaining four were opened as new schools late in the year, after the time had passed for the inspection of the schools in the circuits to which they belong.

Besides the 56 schools in this section, I have inspected 16 on the Richmond River, and assisted the Chief Inspector in the examination of 23 others, viz., 4 on the Tweed River, 16 on the Richmond, and 3 on the Clarence.

The condition of the schools inspected in this section is shown by the numbers in the following table :—

CONDITION OF SCHOOLS.

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard.	Above Standard.
Public	23	39	6
Provisional	4	1	0
Half-time	4	2	0
Totals.....	32	42	6
Percentages	40 per cent.	52 per cent.	8 per cent.

These statistics indicate that 60 per cent. of the schools examined fairly met the requirements of the standard, and 40 per cent. of them failed to do so.

ORGANIZATION.

The schools are kept clean, and are well found in educational appliances.

Excepting in a few schools held by inexperienced teachers, the records are kept correctly and the returns punctually transmitted to this office.

In all the schools but three, the lesson documents have been found to be skilfully compiled.

School organization may be estimated as fair throughout.

DISCIPLINE.

During the year the pupils have been fairly punctual and regular in their attendance at school. They present, with but few exceptions, a clean and respectable appearance, and are uniformly well behaved.

The government in nearly all the schools is of a judicious character, and, generally, the order is good.

Taken as a whole, the discipline in the schools of this section may be estimated as very fair.

INSTRUCTION.

INSTRUCTION.

The number of pupils examined in each subject and the per centage who satisfied the standard are given in the following table :—

Subjects.	Number of Pupils.	Per centage who reached Standard.
Reading	3,008	62
Writing	3,008	82
Arithmetic	2,680	43
Grammar	1,535	40
Geography	1,535	53
Object Lessons	2,933	51
Scripture	697	55
Drawing	1,377	43
Music	1,855	65
Euclid	42	94
Mensuration	8	100
Needlework	1,225	67
Drill	426	75

No pupils were examined in French, Latin, Algebra, and Trigonometry.

ATTAINMENTS.

Reading.—When estimating a pupil's ability to read, proficiency in spelling, and readiness in giving the meanings of words, are taken into account, and the mark awarded for reading is thereby considerably reduced. In most schools this subject is taught correctly, and with fair success.

Writing.—Of those examined in this subject 1,631, or about 53 per cent., wrote on paper. The pupils are left too much to themselves when at their writing lessons, and thus imitate their own defects, and acquire, too frequently, a slovenly and inelegant style that it is difficult, afterwards, to improve. Ornamental writing is taught in two schools only.

Arithmetic.—In this subject 50 per cent. of those examined in the "Compound Rules," and 77 per cent. of those in the "Higher Rules," satisfied the requirements of the standard. The greatest number of failures were to be found amongst those studying the simple rules, of whom only 30 per cent. reached the prescribed standard. This low result is partly accounted for by the fact, that at least two-thirds of those examined in the simple rules were pupils of the first or lowest class in each school, and these were seldom able to work sums in any rule higher than addition. In all the schools increased attention should be given to the teaching of mental arithmetic.

Grammar.—The marks awarded for this subject were uniformly low. The parsing was fair, but analysis was very imperfectly understood, and in all but three schools prose composition had received too little attention.

Geography.—In but few schools is this subject well taught. As a rule, teachers, when giving lessons in geography, use neither map nor black-board judiciously. Physical geography is taught in two, and mapping in three, schools.

Scripture.—The extracts are read by the senior pupils only. The subject is taught with fair success.

Object Lessons.—Nearly 50 per cent. of the pupils examined in this subject failed to meet the requirements of the standard. The objects on which lessons are given are in many cases ill-chosen, and the teachers seldom illustrate their lessons by the use of specimens and diagrams.

Elementary Drawing is taught with results ranging from tolerable to fair.

Vocal Music is omitted from the course by some teachers, and is taught very inefficiently by a considerable number of others. Part songs are well rendered in four schools.

Needlework.—This subject is taught with fair success, and is a popular one.

Geometry and Mensuration are taught in two schools with results attaining to fair. As there are no schools of a class higher than Fifth under my supervision, it necessarily follows that very few pupils receive instruction in the higher branches of learning.

Teachers.

At the end of 1882 there were employed under my supervision 84 teachers, 9 pupil-teachers, and 2 work-mistresses.

The teachers were thus classified :—

25	Probationers.
6	Class III, section C.
23	" III, " B.
23	" III, " A.
4	" II, " B.
3	" II, " A.
0	" I, " B.
0	" I, " A.

The classification of the pupil-teachers was as follows :—

Class I	0
" II	0
" III	1
" IV	8

The teachers are diligent in the performance of their duties and conduct themselves in a becoming, exemplary manner. A large proportion of them are devoting considerable time to their studies, with a view to fit themselves for higher positions in the service than those they now occupy. With one or two exceptions the pupil-teachers have given satisfaction to the teachers who are training them, and appear to be making fair advancement in their attainments and in their skill as teachers.

Progress.

The progress made in primary education during the past year cannot, on this occasion, be estimated comparatively, but that progress has been made there is abundant evidence to show. Eight new schools have been established, and twelve others are in process of establishment; and though only one new building has been erected during the year, arrangements have been made for the erection of five others, all of which are to be completed before the end of the present year, 1883.

Judging from the marks awarded in the year 1881, as recorded in the teachers' "Observation Books," the proficiency of the pupils examined during the year now closed is in most schools higher than for the previous year. Thus it may be seen that some progress has been made in this section during the year that has passed, and I am of opinion that in all branches of school work I shall be able to report a still greater measure of progress at the close of the year 1883.

Enclosed herewith are the various tables of statistics required.

M. WILLIS,
Inspector.

Port Macquarie, 19th January, 1883.

ANNEX Y.

ANNEX Y.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR W. H. JOHNSON'S REPORT FOR 1882.

The following schools were in operation in this District at the close of 1881:—

Public	105
Provisional	25
Half-time	6
Denominational	8
Evening	6
Total.....	150

During 1882 twenty-five schools were opened, viz:—

Public	15
Provisional	9
Evening	1

There were, therefore, 175 schools open during the year, but of these, 2 Public, 2 Provisional, 1 Denominational, and 4 Evening have been closed, leaving 166 at the end of the year. These consisted of:—

Public	134
Provisional	16
Half-time	6
Denominational	7
Evening	3
Total.....	166

Sixteen of the thirty-two Provisional Schools have been converted into Public Schools, consequent upon their having secured the required average attendance of twenty.

The seven Denominational Schools will be continued by the churches to which they belong; besides which, being situated in close proximity to large Public Schools, no extra provision for the accommodation of their pupils was necessary. The late teachers of these schools have all found employment in the Public Schools of the Colony.

Considerable progress has, during the past year, been made in extending the means of education to those localities hitherto without schools, and also in improving and enlarging the accommodation where schools were already in operation. In addition to the twenty-five schools actually opened during the year, applications for the establishment of fifteen others are being dealt with.

New school-buildings have been erected at Coolah, Merrendee, Gregra, Wellington, Spicer's Creek, Morungulan, and Cumnoek. Buildings are in course of erection at Cobar, Tunnabutta, Garra, and Dubbo. Tenders for new buildings at the following places have been called:—Woolloman, Bob's Creek, Buninyong, Cundumbul, Bridgewater, Ballarah, Bective, Borambil, Coomber, and Linburn. It is also proposed to erect new buildings at Warne, McDonald's Creek, Millsville, Mobella, Tallawang, and Nyngan.

So far as my knowledge of the district enables me to judge, I am of opinion that this portion of the Colony has no cause to complain of want of attention on the part of the Department to its educational requirements. Those places without schools are, for the most part, newly-settled districts, and, as before stated, the necessary steps are being taken to have a school opened in each as soon as possible. I hope to see the greater number of them started early in the present year.

Of the 175 schools open during the year, 161 were fully inspected. The remaining fourteen were not inspected as they were not in operation at the time of the inspector's visit to the locality. Six of them were Evening Schools, which were discontinued because the attendance had fallen below the required minimum, and the others (four Public and four Provisional) were not established till towards the close of the year.

The table given below shows that fair improvement has been made during the year. The percentage of schools up to or above the standard last year was 51; this year it reached 57. This is the more satisfactory from the fact that it includes newly-opened schools, some of which were in charge of comparatively unskilled teachers. In addition to this, many of the children in attendance at these schools were previously without any education at all. This would still further tend to lessen the general results.

Condition of Schools inspected.

Schools.	Relation to the Standard.
	Below.	Up to.	Above.
Public	56	41	31
Provisional	11	6	1
Half-time	1	2	3
Church of England	1
Roman Catholic	1	2	4
Evening	1
Totals.....	69	51	41

The percentage of pupils who reached or exceeded the standard in each subject of instruction is shown in the following table:—

Reading	76 per cent.
Writing	81 „
Arithmetic	42 „
Grammar	61 „
Geography	67 „
Scripture History	70 „
Object Lessons	72 „
Drawing	66 „
Music	81 „
Euclid	88 „
Algebra	77 „
Latin	86 „
Needlework	92 „
Drill	63 „

From this table it might be thought that the results in arithmetic were very unsatisfactory. But though in some of the smaller schools the teaching in this subject is mechanical and superficial, yet in the larger schools I have found it intelligently and carefully taught, and, as a natural result, the pupils of these schools possess a fair knowledge of the more important rules. Considering the ages of many of the pupils, and the nature of the questions usually given at inspections, the results obtained must be regarded as far from unsatisfactory. Much better progress in this, as well as in other subjects, would would however be secured, if teachers assured themselves that their pupils, one and all, comprehended explanations given, and if they would also examine periodically their own schools. Many pupils are sadly hindered in their acquisition of knowledge by not understanding some simple process upon which other operations depend. It is evidently the teacher's duty, and certainly it is to his own interests, to find out and remove such defects. This can only be done by searching examinations. Especially is this necessary in schools where more than one teacher is employed.

Singing is in all, except a very few large schools, taught by ear, so that the pupils have really no knowledge of the theory of music. Both theory and practice are well taught in the Public Schools at Wellington, Dubbo, Mudgee, Molong, and Hill End.

History is taught in two schools only. The results in both cases are fairly satisfactory. As a general rule, it may be stated that the teachers employed in this district are respectable, industrious, and steady. A large number of those in charge of Provisional and smaller Public Schools are untrained, but many of these, by attending to the suggestions given to them after each inspection, have become fairly efficient teachers. Much more could be done in this way by a second visit to each school during the year. An inspector might then observe carefully the methods employed by teachers, suggest improved ones, and otherwise assist in rendering the management of schools more efficient. Under existing arrangements, however, this is impossible, the number of schools in charge of each inspector rendering more than one visit to each impracticable.

The half-yearly examinations have done good service, not only in making teachers more studious, but also in making known to them their own deficiencies.

Many teachers in country districts have failed to pass, not through want of diligence in study, but from their studies having been misapplied.

The teachers employed in this district at the close of the year are classified as follows :—

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Unclassified.
A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
0	1	13	17	35	22	23	52

On the whole I am of opinion that very satisfactory progress has been made during the year in providing the means of education for the children of this part of the Colony, and also that much improvement has taken place in the management of the schools generally. I have no doubt that during the year now entered upon the removal of existing defects and the introduction of more modern and intelligent methods of instruction will render the schools much more efficient in the performance of the work expected from them.

ANNEX Z.

MR. INSPECTOR THORNTON'S REPORT ON SCHOOLS IN THE MUDGEE PORTION OF WELLINGTON DISTRICT, FOR 1882.

I BEG to submit my report on schools in the Mudgee portion of the Wellington District, for the year 1882.

1. The schools placed under my supervision in May, 1882, were of the following classes :—

Public	87
Provisional	12
Half-time	4
Denominational ...	5
Evening	1

Total 109

Since that date 5 Public Schools (Havilah, Lambing Hill, M'Donald's Hole, Girilambone, and Merrendee), 1 Provisional School (Coomoalla), and 1 Evening School (Merrendee), have been opened.

2. The total number in operation during the whole or some part of the year was 116. Of these 97 were in operation all the year; the remaining 19 are accounted for below :—

Opened since January, 1882.	Closed during 1882.	Opened and closed during 1882.
Ben Buckley, Prov. Bokhara, Prov. Brymair, Prov. Capertee, Pub. Clandulla, Pub. Coomoalla, Pub. Cudgebegong, Pub. Curban, Pub. Girilambone, Pub. Elong Elong, Prov. Flatlands, Pub. Havilah, Pub. Lambing Hill, Pub. Merrendee, Pub. Merrendee, Evening Wallar Creek	Goolwa, Prov. Mudgee, C. E.	M'Donald's Hole, Pub.

The school at Goolwa collapsed for want of attendance. The school at M'Donald's Hole was intended to meet the temporary wants of a large railway camp near Capertee, but when the school was opened, most of the families had removed, and as only a small attendance was secured it was deemed expedient, after a trial of four months, to close it.

The Church of England school at Mudgee was closed at the request of its Board at the end of September.

The Roman Catholic schools at Mudgee and Gulgong have now, by the operation of the Public Instruction Act, ceased to receive Government aid, but will continue open under the management of their Church authorities.

3. It is expected that small schools at Belar Creek, near Coonabarabran, Denison Town, and Woodlands, near Coonamble, will be opened during the present month. Proposals to establish schools at Dun Dun, near Hargreaves, and Lahy's Creek, near Cobbora, are still under consideration.

An application for the establishment of a Provisional school at Deridgerly was declined, as it did not appear probable that the required attendance could be maintained.

4. On the whole, this portion of the district may be said to be very well supplied with schools. This is shown by the fact that, though the part of the district under my supervision covers such a large area—from Queensland on the north-west to Capertee on the south-east—and though the attendance of only twelve pupils is required to be guaranteed, but very few applications for new schools are being made. Personally, I know of only two places where schools are likely to be required,—Menah, near Mudgee, and Pine Ridge, a new railway camp on the Havilah estate.

5. The following table exhibits the general condition of the school buildings in this portion of the district.

Schools.	Fair to good.	Tolerable.	Indifferent.	Total.

A new school is being erected at Tunnabutta. Tenders have been called for new premises at Beective, Borambil, Coomber, Linburn, Mobellah, and Medway. Tents are in use in six places.

A great number of public school buildings, classed as tolerable and indifferent, fell into the Department's hands when the Public Instruction Act came into force. Many of them can only be considered as makeshifts, and were erected by the residents to shew their desire for the establishment of schools in their respective localities. The work of replacing these by the erection of new and suitable premises is going on as rapidly as possible. The circumstances of many small country places, however, are of such a nature as to render it a very difficult matter for an inspector to advise as to expenditure on new buildings.

In most of the cases that have as yet come under my notice, I have been informed that many of the residents are, for various reasons, leaving localities where they have long lived. Many have been bought out by the lessees of neighbouring runs, and others are moving in consequence of decrease in the fertility of the land which they have brought under cultivation. As these causes of decreasing population are likely to continue to operate in many districts, it is clearly the duty of an inspector to advise caution in the matter of erection of new buildings.

6. The subjoined table will show the principal statistics of attendance for the year :—

Schools.	Total enrolment for year.	Average attendance for year.	1st Quarter.		2nd Quarter.		3rd Quarter.		4th Quarter.
			Enrolment.	Average attendance.	Enrolment.	Average attendance.	Enrolment.	Average attendance.	Enrolment.	Average attendance.

Evening	150	58	57	40	65	42	64	47	103	51

The highest average attendance was maintained during the third quarter which was exceptionally fine.

The average attendance at all schools for the whole year was 69 per cent. of the quarterly enrolments; for the year 1881 it was 66·9 per cent.

7. The number of schools and departments fully inspected during the year was 108.

4	were inspected by Mr. District-Inspector Bridges.

The schools at Cudgebegong, Wiadra, Lambing Hill, Ben Buckley, Wollar Creek, Curban, Coomealla, and the evening school at Merrendee, were not established when the inspectors were in their neighbourhoods, and want of time has rendered special visits impracticable. On account of sickness in the teacher's family, Tara Public School was temporarily closed at the time fixed for its inspection. Molarban Public School was inspected a second time in order that the value of the new teacher's skill might be ascertained.

In addition to these inspections, numerous short incidental visits were paid to schools that happened to lie in my way during journeys to various parts of the district.

8. The number of children examined during the year by my predecessor and myself was 2,924. The subjoined table will exhibit their estimated proficiency (in percentages) in the several subjects :—

Subjects.	No. of pupils examined.	Satisfying the Standard. (Fair to good.)
Reading	2,924	67 per cent.
Writing	2,684	70 “
Arithmetic	2,648	40 “
Grammar	1,346	55 “
Geography	1,472	61 “
Scripture	480	57 “
Object Lessons	2,640	60 “
Drawing	1,624	54 “
Music	1,198	70 “
Euclid	69	87 “
Algebra	47	74 “
Mensuration	24	45 “
Latin	46	96 “
Needlework	871	89 “
Drill	1,121	36 “

9. The appended table exhibits the condition of the schools inspected by my predecessor and myself

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard. (Fair.)	Above Standard.
Public	36	29	14
Provisional	8	3	0
Half-time	1	2	1

Roman Catholic	1

It should be remembered that a very large number of small schools are in charge of young persons who have had but little or no special training.
The above table shows that 52½ per cent. of the inspected schools met or exceeded the standard. This is a slight improvement upon last year, the percentage given by my predecessor being 46.

10. Organization.

This feature of school management is on the whole satisfactory. Very few instances of wrong classification occur, though there is a tendency among untrained teachers to reduce their classes into small sections.

Most teachers pay a reasonable amount of attention to the cleanliness and neatness of their premises. A few however seem to be utterly careless as to the appearance of their schools. The floors are unswept and littered with scraps of paper; the presses are untidily kept; maps hang awry; broken windows remain unrepaired for months. This negligence will appear worse when it is remembered that in every school where there is a proper accord between teacher and scholars, the former has only to see that his school is presentably kept, for in such schools there are always many pupils who are eager to perform little acts of cleanliness and tidiness for their teacher. In some instances, teachers on taking charge of schools have actually kept eyesores for months so that "the Inspector might see the state in which they got them," forgetting that their word would have been taken for the grievance as it had existed and the inspector's estimate of their zeal raised had the evil been effectually got rid of.

The records are generally speaking correctly kept and the usual returns punctually despatched. Greater care is however required in many cases in compiling the latter, especially the annual returns. So many errors have been found in them that it seems extremely doubtful whether some teachers have ever endeavoured to ascertain the correct way to make them out. For many teachers the directions and cautions on each return might never have been printed so little attention seems to have been paid to them.

In some schools the time-tables and the programmes of lessons require more attention as to the style and the manner in which they should be made out. In too many instances I found both documents written on untidy pieces of paper, the excuse for not having the proper forms generally being that the stationer in the nearest town had none in stock, or that it was thought that the Department supplied them. Only a little forethought and the expenditure of a few pence would be necessary to obtain a good supply of both forms from any well known Sydney stationer.

With regard to the manner in which the programmes were made out, I noticed a general want of minuteness in the entries, some being mere extracts from the standard of proficiency, others having a word or two at the head of a column, the remaining part of which was filled up with "ditto" marks. Such documents are practically almost worthless.

The keeping of the Lesson Register was in some cases unsatisfactory, a few being so bad as to call for a report of the matter to the Department. Some registers afforded internal evidence of having been very irregularly kept; many exhibited the same want of minuteness that I have remarked upon in connection with the programmes of lessons. Teachers offending in these respects would do well to bear in mind the fact that want of attention to these and other important details seriously affects their chances of advancement in the service.

11. Discipline.

In almost every school the attention and obedience necessary for the effective carrying on of school work seemed to be maintained without much difficulty. At the same time it is to be wished that so many teachers would not be satisfied with mere passive attention—the attention of the eye, but not of the brain. Nearly every pupil examined was well-behaved and respectful in demeanour.

The government, generally speaking, is of a mild nature, corporal punishment of a severe kind being almost unknown. In two instances teachers have incurred the censure of the Minister for undue severity.

The pupils are, on the whole, considering the long distances many of them have to go to their respective schools, very punctual. The want of a bell acts injuriously on the punctuality in some cases. I found one teacher who was weak enough to accommodate her pupils by beginning school when the majority of them chose to assemble.

Personal cleanliness among the pupils was a very pleasing feature in nearly every school visited.

12. Teachers.

The classifications by examination of the teachers in this district are as follow:—

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.		Unclassified.
A	B	A	B	A	B	C
0	0	8	15	23	18	21	31

As the regulations provide that, as far as possible, teachers shall be appointed to schools in accordance with their classification by examination, it may be as well to give the classifications of the schools in this district as they stood at the end of the year:—

I.	II.	III.	IV.	V.	VI.	VII.	VIII.	IX.	X.	P. VI.
0	1	0	0	6	12	12	16	31	14	13

As the schools are reclassified at the end of each quarter, these numbers are continually changing, but the number of low-class schools in this district will probably be large for some years.

It will be seen that there are only twenty-eight seventh and eighth class schools, while there are forty-one teachers eligible under the regulation to hold such classes of schools. It is evident, therefore, that something more than the mere possession of a certificate must be brought into account in recommending promotions; and such considerations as length of service, period for which the certificate has been held, whether a teacher is married or not, &c., have to be thought of.

It is the custom of many young teachers who may gain by examination a classification rendering them eligible for appointment to a school of a higher class than that they are in charge of, to write at once for appointment to a school of the class to which they are, as they put it, "entitled." Considering that in many cases they have become possessed of very fair incomes while having no certificate at all—they were virtually on probation—they might, I think, exercise a little more patience. One young man, who, without a certificate, was permitted to hold a ninth class school during a period of fifteen months, wrote very complacently upon getting a III. A. certificate, that "of course he had been at a great loss during the time he had had the school," forgetting that while he had been unclassified he had had no official standing at all.

As a body, the teachers are industrious, painstaking, and zealous in the discharge of their duty. It is only natural to expect that among such a large number of persons, most of whom are beyond the reach of supervision for the greater part of the year, there should be a few who perform their duties in a listless, perfunctory manner.

13. Summary.

This part of the district is now well supplied with schools. During the year seventeen new schools were established.

Indifferent school buildings are being replaced as rapidly as possible by new well-planned premises. The total enrolment has increased; the average attendance has also increased proportionately.

The percentage of schools satisfying or exceeding the standard is slightly higher than that of 1881.

The schools generally are conducted to the best of the teachers' abilities.

GEORGE THORNTON,
Inspector.

APPENDIX XIX.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DISTRICTS constituted and defined; similar Districts proclaimed under the 21st section of the Act.

Public School District No. 52.

Counties of Goulburn and Hume: To include Albury, Bowna, Bungambrawatha, Jindera, Moorwatha, Thurgoona: Commencing on the Murray River at a point where the eastern boundary of the parish of Bowna, county of Goulburn, meets it, being the southern extremity of the east boundary of portion No. 110 of that parish, John Hore's 320 acres, and bounded thence by the eastern and northern boundaries of that parish northerly and westerly to Bowna Creek; thence by that creek upwards to the junction of Four-Mile Creek, and by Four-Mile Creek upwards to a point due south from the south-east corner of portion 205, parish of Jindera, Ellen Sweeney's 29 acres; thence by a line and the east boundary of that portion bearing north to its north-east corner; thence by the north boundary of that portion and the General Cemetery at Jindera west to the road leading to Howlong; thence by that road westerly to the west boundary of the county of Goulburn, and by that boundary northerly to a point where it meets the north boundary of the parish of Moorwatha, county of Hume, near the Huon trigonometrical station; thence by the northern boundary of the parish of Moorwatha westerly to the east boundary of the parish of Morebringer; thence by that boundary and the north-east and east boundaries of the parish of Howlong southerly to the Murray River, and by that river upwards to the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this District:—

Albury,	Moorwatha,
Black Range,	Redlands,
Bowna,	Spring Bank,
Jindera,	Thurgoona.

Public School District No. 53.

Counties of Goulburn and Selwyn. To include Cookardinia, Germanton, Morven, Tumbarumba, Welaregang, Womargama, Wyndham; bounded on the south by part of the boundary dividing the Colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, being the Indi River downwards from its source in the Great Dividing Range to its confluence with the River Murray; thence by that river downwards to a point where the eastern boundary of the parish of Bowna, county of Goulburn, meets it, being the southern extremity of the east boundary of portion 110 of that parish, John Hore's 320 acres; bounded thence by the eastern and northern boundaries of that parish northerly and westerly to Bowna Creek; thence by that creek upwards to the centre of the Great Southern Railway Line; thence by the centre of the railway line northerly to the range forming the watershed between the Murray and Murrumbidgee Rivers; thence by that range easterly until it joins the Great Dividing Range, and by that range southerly to the source of the Indi River, at the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this District:—

Adelong, Upper,	Ournie,
Boggy Creek,	Tumbarumba,
Germanton,	Tooma,
Jingellie,	Woomargama.

Public School District No. 54.

Counties of Denison, Hume, and Urana: To include Coreen, Corowa, Goonumbil, Howlong, Mulwala, Piney Range, Walbundry: Commencing on Bowna Creek at a point where the centre of the Great Southern Railway line crosses it, and bounded thence by that creek upwards to the junction of Four-Mile Creek; thence by that creek upwards to a point due south from the south-east corner of portion No. 205, parish of Jindera, county of Goulburn, Ellen Sweeney's 29 acres; thence by a line and the east boundary of that portion north to its north-east corner; thence by the north boundary of that portion and the General Cemetery at Jindera west to the road leading to Howlong; thence by that road westerly to the western boundary of the county of Goulburn, and by that boundary northerly to a point where it meets the north boundary of the parish of Moorwatha, county of Hume, near the Huon trigonometrical station; thence by the northern boundary of the parish of Moorwatha westerly to the east east boundary of the parish of Morebringer; thence by that boundary and the north-east and east boundaries of the parish of Howlong southerly to the Murray River; thence by that river downwards to a point south of Werinmunah or Woore's Hill; on the west by a line north to Woore's Hill, and thence by a line northerly to the confluence of the Colombo and Billabong Creeks, including the whole of Noweronie Run on the Billabong; thence by the Colombi Creek upwards to the north boundary of Cocketgedong Run; on the north by the north boundary of that run and the boundary-line between those runs fronting on the Billabong Creek and those fronting on the Urana, Lake Urana, and Urangeline Creeks, and on to Wollondool Hill; thence by the leading range round the southern sources of the Urangeline Creek until it joins the range dividing the Mittagong and Yerong Creeks from Doodle's Swamp Falls and Buckargina Falls, until that range joins the main range between the Murray and Murrumbidgee Rivers; thence by that range or watershed easterly to the centre of the Great Southern Railway line, and by the centre of that railway line southerly to the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this district:—

Corowa,	Mulwala,
Gerogery,	Quatt Quatta North,
Howlong,	Walbundrie.

Public School District No. 55.

Counties of Boyd, Cooper, Mitchell, and Urana: To include Argoon, Cuddell, Narandera, Urana: Commencing on Colombo Creek at the northern corner of Cocketgedong Run, and bounded thence by the north boundary of that run and the boundary-line between those runs fronting on the Billabong Creek and those fronting on the Urana, Lake Urana, and Urangeline Creeks, and on to Wollondool Hill; thence by the leading range round the southern sources of the Urangeline Creek to the southernmost point of the parish of Edgehill, county of Mitchell; thence by the boundary dividing the counties of Mitchell and Urana as shown on the maps in the Surveyor-General's Office, northerly to the south-western corner of the parish of Mimosa, county of Mitchell; thence by the western boundary of that parish, part of the southern boundary of the parish of Breewarrena, and the western boundary of that parish northerly, westerly, and again northerly to the Murrumbidgee River; thence by that river upwards to a point where the eastern boundary of the County of Cooper meets it; thence by that boundary northerly to the Mirrool Creek; on the north by that creek westerly to a point where the western boundary of the County of Cooper crosses it; thence on the west by that county boundary southerly to the Murrumbidgee River; thence by that river downwards to a point on its southern bank between Mulberrygong and Burrabogie Runs; thence by that run boundary and a line southerly to the northern boundary of the runs fronting on the Billabong Creek; and thence by the northern boundaries of the runs fronting on the Billabong and Yanko Creeks to the north-east corner of Bundure Run; thence by the eastern boundary of that run and Colombo Creek Run to Colombo Creek; and thence by that creek to the northern corner of Cocketgedong Run, at the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this district:—

Cuddell,	Urana,
Narandera,	Urangeline,
Yanko Upper.

Public School District No. 56.

Counties of Bourke, Clarendon, Mitchell, and Wynyard: To include Bullenbong, Currawananna, Hanging Rock, Humula, Jewnee, Mangoplah, Oura, Wagga Wagga, Wallace: Bounded on the east by a spur range which commences on the Murrumbidgee River at the lower end of Jones's Flat, and forms the boundary between Hillas's Yabtree Run and Gordon's Borambola Run until it joins the dividing range between Tarcutta and Yaven Creeks; thence by that range until the spur branches which leads over Bago Hill and terminates on Tarcutta Creek about 1 mile below the Bago Hill Inn; thence crossing the Tarcutta Creek and immediately ascending the spur range which joins the main range between the Murray and Murrumbidgee Rivers; on the south by that range and the range dividing the Mittagong and Yerong Creeks from Doodle's Swamp Falls and Buckarginah Falls westerly and a line south-westerly to the southernmost point of the parish of Edgehill, county of Mitchell; thence by the boundary dividing the counties of Mitchell and Urana, as shown on the maps in the Surveyor-General's Office, northerly to the south-western corner of the parish of Mimosa, county of Mitchell; thence by the western boundary of that parish, part of the southern boundary of the parish of Breewarrena and the western boundary of that parish northerly, westerly, and again northerly to the Murrumbidgee River; thence by that river upwards to a point where the eastern boundary of the county of Cooper meets it; thence by that boundary northerly to the Mirrool Creek, and by the Mirrool Creek easterly to its source in the range dividing the counties of Bourke and Bland; thence by the range dividing the counties of Bourke and Clarendon from the county of Bland south-easterly and easterly until it meets the spur leading to the range which divides the waters of the Billabong Creek from those of Houlaghan's Creek, and by that range southerly to the boundary dividing Wantabadgery and Oura Runs; thence by that boundary to the Murrumbidgee River, at the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this district:—

Humula,	Tarcutta Lower,
Junea,	Uranquinty,
Junea Junction,	Wagga Wagga,
Lake Albert,	Wagga Wagga North,
Oberne,	Wallaceton,
Oura,	Wantabadgery,
Rowan,	Yarragundry.
Tarcutta Upper,

Public School District No. 57.

Counties of Buccleuch, Cowley, Harden, King, Murray: To include Bookham, Bowning, Derrinullen, Goodradigbee, Morumbateman, Yass: Commencing at the confluence of Jeremiah Creek with the Murrumbidgee River, and bounded thence on part of the west by a line to the spur of the range forming the eastern watershed of that creek, and by that range until it joins the range between the Goodradigbee and Tumut Rivers, and by that range to the point where the spur branches from it which terminates on the Goodradigbee, exactly opposite the confluence of Flea Creek; on the south by that spur to the Goodradigbee River; thence by the leading range between Flea Creek and the waters falling into the Goodradigbee above that creek until that range joins the Dividing Range between the Goodradigbee and Cottar Rivers; on the east by that range northerly until it reaches the sources of Cavan Mountain Creek; thence by the Dividing Range between the Cavan Mountain Creek and the Murrumbidgee until the spur branches which terminates on the Murrumbidgee about half a mile below Yeumbera House (and which forms the boundary between the Cavan and Yeumbera runs), by that spur to the Murrumbidgee, and by the

the Murrumbidgee upwards to a point due west of One-tree Hill; thence on the south by a direct line to that hill; thence by a range northerly about 3 miles; thence by a line north-easterly to the confluence of Gundaroo Creek with the Yass River, and by that creek to its source at the foot of the Cullarin Range; thence on the north by the Muntoonen Range (being part of the northern watershed of the Yass River) to Mount Muntoonen; thence by the range dividing the waters of Manton's Creek, a tributary of the Yass River, from those of Jerrawa Creek northerly to the boundary dividing the parishes of Bango and Jerrawa, county of King, as shown on the map in the Surveyor-General's Office; thence by that boundary bearing north to the boundary dividing the said parishes from the parish of Bunton; thence on the north by that boundary westerly to Thieves' Creek at the intersection of the west boundary of portion No. 80, parish of Bunton, with that creek; thence by Thieves' Creek westerly to the eastern boundary of the parish of Crosby; thence by that boundary bearing north to the southern watershed of Pudman's Creek; thence by that watershed and the range dividing the waters of Kiangaroo and Laing's Creeks to a point on the Boorowa River one mile below the north-west corner of N. R. Besnard's 326 acres; thence on the west by the Boorowa River upwards to the confluence of Hassall's Creek; thence by Hassall's Creek to its source in the range dividing the waters of the Yass River and Jugiong Creek; thence by that range southerly to the source of Illalong Creek; thence by that creek downwards to its junction with Jugiong Creek; thence by that creek downwards to its confluence with Bogolong Creek, and by a spur range and the western watershed of Bogolong Creek, Barber's Creek, and Oak Creek, to a point due north of the confluence of Oak Creek with the Murrumbidgee River; thence by a line south to that confluence; and thence by the Murrumbidgee River upwards to the confluence of Jeremiah Creek aforesaid, at the point of commencement.

The following is a list of schools in this district:—

Bango,	Limestone Creek,
Bowling,	Manton,
Bookham,	Murrumbateman,
Cavan,	Nelanglo,
Elizabethfield,	Spring Creek,
Farrington,	Tangmangaroo,
Good Hope,	Yass.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable LORD AUGUSTUS WILLIAM FREDERICK SPENCER LOFTUS, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

My Lord,

In accordance with the provisions of the Public Instruction Act of 1880, I beg to submit the Report for the year 1883, upon the condition and progress of the several classes of schools established and maintained under the Act.

SCHOOLS.

At the close of 1882, there were in existence 1,481 schools of various kinds ranked under the head of Public Schools, and 118 Denominational Schools, making a total of 1,599. Aid to Denominational Schools ceased on the 31st December, 1882, and from that date the 118 Denominational Schools disappear from the records of the Department. As it was foreseen that some of the Denominational Schools would be closed after the withdrawal of State-aid, arrangements were made for providing, by the beginning of 1883, sufficient accommodation in Public Schools for all children likely to require it. Either in new or in rented buildings, 31 additional Public Schools were opened for this purpose. These fully met all demands, and little overcrowding or inconvenience was experienced. There were established also during the year 76 Public, 82 Provisional, 12 Half-time, 15 groups of House-to-house Schools, in places where no schools under the Department formerly existed, and 12 new Evening Schools were opened; the increase of Schools in the year was therefore 228, making a total in operation during 1883 of 1,709, or 110 more than the united total of Public and Denominational Schools on 31st December, 1882.

The classification of the Public Schools open during the last quarter of 1883 is shown hereunder:—

	Class I.	II.	III.	IV.	V.	VI.	VII.	VIII.	IX.	X.	Provisional footing.	Total.
Public.....	17	22	16	33	91	200	172	236	407	125	21	1,340
Half-time.. Ranging from Class X to Class VIII, inclusive											...	84

The remainder are below the rank that entitles them to be classified under the above headings as Public Schools.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Making the requisite deductions for multiple enrolments in every case, there were in 1882, 141,860 individual pupils enrolled in Public and 26,129 in Denominational Schools, giving a total of 167,989. In 1883, after the withdrawal of Denominational Schools, the enrolment was 155,824, showing an increase in Public Schools of 13,964; but a decrease of 12,165 on the united totals. About 70 of the largest Denominational Schools were not closed on the discontinuance of State-aid to them, but have remained in operation as Church Schools. In addition to these, new schools of the same kind have been opened by the Roman Catholic authorities in various places, where Certified Denominational Schools did not formerly exist. The Department has no means of ascertaining the number of children attending these schools. It is known that there has been a large decrease since 1882 in the attendance at Church of England Schools, but it is believed that the number now taught in Roman Catholic Schools is quite equal to the number formerly under instruction in Roman Catholic Certified Denominational Schools. In addition to the children withdrawn from State control to attend Church Schools, a considerable number, who formerly attended Public Schools so irregularly as to render their parents liable to prosecution, profess now to be enrolled in private schools. Referring to schools of this kind, the Principal School Attendance Officer says, in his report (Appendix XVII) that they "are often a mere retreat, sometimes a very unhealthy one, for the children of careless parents, who take advantage of this means of evading the law, parents and teachers combining to deceive and hinder the Attendance Officer. The unpunctual, irregular, and desultory attendance at these so-called schools has a baneful influence on the habits of children at other schools, inducing an idle and truant tendency. Such schools are a growing evil, in a high degree serious, threatening to nullify to a large extent the beneficial effects of the compulsory provisions of the law."

In last year's Report there appeared a calculation intended to show the probable number of children of school-going age in the Colony on the 31st December, 1882. When the number enrolled in State Schools was subtracted from this total, the remainder was assumed to be an approximate estimate of the number taught in private schools, at home, or nowhere. The calculation showed that more than a fourth of the entire population was under instruction, either in schools or at home, and it was candidly acknowledged that the result was "too flattering to be entitled to full credence." Calculations of this kind, however, are of doubtful value, for, except once in ten years, when the Census is taken, an approximate estimate only can be given of the number of children in the Colony of a given age, and there are no data whatever on which to base any reliable calculation as to the number attending private schools or being taught at home. If registration of all children between the ages of six and fourteen were compulsory, accurate information could be obtained, but no reliance can be placed on any available means of forming an estimate respecting children not enrolled in State Schools.

Inspectors and Attendance Officers take special notice, in their several districts, of the number of children not receiving school instruction. Their evidence is to the effect that there are very few children who do not for some period of each year receive instruction, either in schools or at home. The greater number of exceptions are amongst children from twelve to fourteen years of age, whose labour is of value to their parents. Many of these, however, especially those in the country, learned to read, write, and cipher before they left school. In places where State Schools are opened for the first time, it might be supposed that the children to attend them had previously been without schooling, but in most cases the necessity for a school in any locality has been caused by a recent movement of population thereto from other settlements, and the children when enrolled are generally found to have been at school elsewhere. On the whole, there appear to be no grounds for dissatisfaction in regard to the enrolment of children in schools of some kind.

No opinion can be expressed as to regularity of attendance in private schools, but the following figures show the attendance in State Schools during 1883 :—

	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.
March quarter	126,517	83,858
June quarter	128,409	86,861
September quarter	133,690	91,780
December quarter	132,084	91,566

The attendance at the close of 1882 was :—

	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.
Public	116,419	77,872
Denominational	19,226	12,886
Total	135,645	90,758

The enrolment therefore in Public Schools at the close of 1883, after the withdrawal of Denominational Schools, was 15,665 in excess of the Public School enrolment at the close of 1882, and within 3,561 of the united enrolment. The average attendance at the end of 1883 in Public Schools was greater by 13,694 than at the end of 1882, and 808 greater than the united averages. The average attendance amounted to 68 per cent. of the mean quarterly enrolment : in 1882 the percentage was 67·4. In Victoria, for the year 1882, it was 68·1, in England and Wales, 71 per cent. In recording averages in this Colony no allowance is made for small attendances caused by exceptional circumstances, such as sickness, wet weather, or harvesting. If, for instance, 100 pupils attend a school during three days of a week, and for some reason only 20 attend on the other two, the average recorded will be 68, and not the ordinary number in attendance, 100. In the same way the attendance during seven or eight weeks of a quarter may be high, but in consequence of sickness, of harvesting, planting, or other field work, may be unusually low during the remaining remaining four or five weeks. No allowance is made for this, so that the average for the quarter will in such a case be considerably below the number ordinarily present. The ordinary attendance in our schools, when there is nothing to cause temporary slackness, is fully 95,000.

Of the 155,824 individual pupils on the books in 1883, 78,118 as against 73,835 in 1882, are returned as having made the statute number of attendances, and 2,748 attended Half-time or Evening Schools, and could not have made that number. This leaves 74,958 who for one reason or another did not attend 70 days in each half-year. From statistics supplied to the Department in 1882, it was found that about 20 per cent. of the total names appeared on the records for only one quarter, and about the same number for only two quarters. Assuming that the percentages for 1883 were approximately the same, it would follow that 62,329 could not during their term of enrolment have made an attendance of 140 days in the year. The bulk of the pupils who are enrolled only a portion of a year are infants entered in the latter half, pupils of schools opened after the second quarter or temporarily closed for a period, pupils who left, having reached 14 years of age, pupils brought into schools through the efforts of Attendance Officers, and pupils who, in consequence of distance, only attend in the summer season. After making these deductions there remain 12,629 unaccounted for. Some of these were no doubt under statute age, but the number may probably be accepted as representing with tolerable accuracy the grossly irregular children.

INSPECTION.

In no year has the number of schools inspected been so great as it was in 1883. In the whole Colony only sixteen small Public and Provisional Schools were uninspected, and these were omitted because in most cases they were not open when the Inspectors visited their neighbourhoods. Exclusive of Evening and House-to-house Schools, there were 1,790 out of 1,806 Schools or Departments that underwent regular examination. The pupils present numbered 94,860. In 1882, excluding Evening Schools, 1,403 Public and 148 Denominational Schools or Departments were inspected, and the total number of scholars examined was 91,985. The increase in the number of Public Schools inspected was therefore 387. Notwithstanding the severance of the Denominational Schools from the Department, there were 2,875 more children examined in Public Schools last year than were examined in the Public and Denominational Schools united in 1882.

The 170 new Public, Provisional, and Half-time Schools opened in the year, where no schools formerly existed, were necessarily found on inspection to be in a poor state of efficiency. Many of the small schools, in outlying places, that were not inspected in 1882 were also found to be in a low condition. The results in these schools, when averaged averaged with the results obtained in good schools, reduced considerably the average of proficiency for the Colony as a whole. Below is a table showing the number of pupils examined in each subject, with the percentage of passes—fair and upwards.

In England and in some of the Colonies, proficiency awards and State payments are given solely on the number of "passes" made by each school. In this Colony, passes are the chief but not the sole consideration in estimating efficiency. Defective organization, loose discipline, weak government, unbecoming habits in pupils, the want of due supervision of their morals and manners, may one and all reduce the mark that a teacher might otherwise obtain on bare passes. The Chief Inspector, in his report, remarks that the inspections "comprised an inquiry into the organization in force, the discipline maintained, and the methods in use. Not only was the knowledge of the pupils gauged in the several subjects of instruction, but special pains were taken to see that their mental powers had been properly cultivated." Of the 1,790 schools inspected, 1,098, or 61 per cent. of the whole, met or exceeded "standard requirements," which in each case were calculated on discipline and organization, as well as on "passes." The Chief Inspector's general summary in regard to inspections is that "considerable improvement has been effected in school organization, the discipline has maintained its character for excellence, and the results of the instruction, all things considered, compare favourably with those of any previous year."

BUILDINGS.

BUILDINGS.

During the year ninety-five new and substantial buildings to accommodate 11,807 pupils, forty-four wooden buildings to accommodate 5,885 pupils, seventy-two locally erected small school buildings to accommodate 2,091 pupils, and twenty-nine additions or enlargements to accommodate 4,713 pupils—in all 211 new buildings and twenty-nine additions—were completed, to accommodate 24,496 pupils. Besides these, there were in course of erection eighty-seven substantial buildings for 16,192 pupils, seventy-seven wooden buildings for 3,820 pupils, and fifteen additions for 1,845 pupils. Many Provisional Schools were also begun towards the end of 1883, but not completed by the 31st December. As no payments were made on these during the year, they are omitted from the above calculation. It will thus be seen that accommodation in new and completed buildings was provided for 24,496 pupils, and in buildings in progress for 21,857 pupils, making total accommodation, in 375 new buildings and forty-four enlargements, for 46,353. This means that during the year arrangements were made to reseat in new buildings more than half the number in average attendance. The money actually paid during the year on these new structures was £274,986 9s. 11d.

In addition to school buildings, sixty-four weather-sheds were completed and nineteen others begun. The expenditure on them in the year was £5,038 1s. 7d. Repairs and improvements were completed or begun in 481 schools, at a cost of £12,402 12s. 6d.

These figures show that the cessation of aid to Denominational Schools threw on the Department the expense of providing, without delay, thirty-one new buildings, many of which had necessarily to be of large size, and of making extensive additions to existing schools. In Sydney and in some of the country towns the Denominational Schools were large, and it became necessary, in erecting buildings to replace them, to provide in many cases for very large attendances. The figures also show that the majority of buildings handed over to the Department by the late Council of Education were in so bad a state that they had to be replaced by new buildings, or to be extensively repaired. For many years before the Council ceased to act, the money placed at their disposal was only sufficient to enable them to build a few new schools per annum, and to undertake the most urgent of the many repairs needed. On this point, the architect in his report (Appendix XVI) says:—"It must be borne in mind that for many years before the passing of the Public Instruction Act of 1880 the sums expended by the Council of Education were altogether inadequate to meet the cost of new buildings, and scarcely any money could be spared for repairs. As a consequence, the Minister of Public Instruction took over from the Council of Education buildings not only inadequate to the wants of the districts they were supposed to supply with school accommodation, but also in an extreme state of disrepair. In 1881 about £25,000, in 1882 about £36,000, and in 1883 over £60,000, have been spent for enlargements and repairs to old buildings, an expenditure far in excess of what would have been required if the buildings had in 1880 been fairly adequate to the then existing wants of the country, and in reasonably good repair. It will thus be evident that the present outlay for buildings is largely accounted for by the necessity laid on the Department to endeavour to make good the deficiencies of past years. The closing of very many of the Denominational Schools, on the withdrawal of State aid at the close of the year 1882, has also thrown on the Department the load of a very large expenditure which should not in fairness be charged to the annual vote for school buildings, but should be met by a special appropriation. I believe, in the neighbouring Colony of Victoria, when a change took place analogous to that we are now undergoing, a sum of between four and five hundred thousand pounds was devoted to the purpose of meeting the necessary outlay, and the annual votes were not burdened with any part of it."

During the year 224 sites were obtained; 160 were grants from the Government, 6 were gifts, 19 were purchased, and 39 were resumed. Including money becoming due in 1883 on sites previously purchased, the amount expended for land in the year was £51,181 14s. 8d. When sites are now required in Sydney, its suburbs, or even in the larger country towns, the Department has to pay very heavily for them. In some cases it has been necessary to build in inferior positions to avoid the enormous expense of buying sites more favourably situated. A few of the school buildings in use are rented by the Department; and, under the regulations of 1880, teachers who are not provided with residences either have houses rented for them or are granted an allowance in lieu of rent. The rent paid during the year for schools and residences was £24,351 7s. 3d.

About the middle of the year an important change was made in regard to the establishment of Provisional Schools. Before 1883, a Provisional School could not be established till the applicants for it had provided, at their own expense, the necessary building and furniture. As applicants are, as a rule, poor, this regulation practically barred in many cases the opening of schools. Mr. Suttor, when Minister, relaxed the regulation to the extent of demanding only one-third of the expense, but, during Mr. Reid's administration, the regulation was further amended so as to throw upon the Department, as in the case of other schools, the entire cost. The result has been a large increase of applications, especially from very distant parts of the Colony. Under the present regulation, the residents provide the building and furniture of such materials as they can most readily procure, and the Department, on the certificate of one of its officers, pays according to the value of the work done, limiting the amount, however, to a maximum of £45 for a school to accommodate fifteen pupils, and of £60 for one to accommodate eighteen. For a comparatively small outlay, therefore, on buildings of this class, the Department, while removing a heavy pressure from numerous small groups of poor settlers in outlying districts, will be able to bring the means of education within reach of many who otherwise would probably be neglected. Aid is not granted towards the building of Half-time Schools unless there is reasonable ground for expecting that they will become Provisional or Public Schools, but the Department now provides furniture. Owing to the heavy outlay on buildings since the introduction of the Public Instruction Act, and having in view the necessity for economy, cheap wooden buildings are now being put up in small places in lieu of permanent brick or stone structures, and applications for repairs and additions, that are not urgently needed, are declined.

During the year an attempt was made for the first time to give the benefits of the Act to isolated families. Half-time Schools had, up to that time, been the smallest recognized by the Department, but in these an average of ten is needed, and a small building in a central position is provided. There are, however, families so far apart that the children cannot meet in a common school. In these cases a teacher may be appointed to a group of four or five families to instruct children in their own homes. During the year, fifteen teachers were employed in this manner.

FINANCE.

The receipts for the year were (Appendix XVIII):—

	£	s.	d.
Balance from 1882	28,561	1	4
Receipts on votes for 1882 and 1883	795,939	4	5
Total	824,500	5	9
The expenditure during the year was	821,852	16	3
Balance	£2,647	9	6

Of this amount, £734 8s. 6d. was refunded to the Treasury, being the unexpended balance of vote for 1881, thus leaving £1,913 1s. in hand at the end of the year.

The total fees paid into the Treasury for the year were:—

	£	s.	d.
From Public Schools	51,209	7	1
From High Schools	218	0	9
Total	£51,427	7	10

The expenditure under the different items was:—

The

The portion of this amount spent on new buildings and sites, £354,687 8s. 4d., remains invested for the future use of the Colony, and cannot be considered as money finally parted with. Excluding this sum and the amount paid for rent, there is left £442,814 0s. 8d. From this should be deducted the sum of £51,427 7s. 10d. paid into the Treasury as fees. The remainder, £391,386 12s. 10d., represents the expenditure proper for the year. This is an outlay of £2 10s. 3d. per head of the enrolled strength of the schools. For the sake of comparison it may be stated that, exclusive of buildings, the outlay in Victoria for the year ending 30th June, 1883, was £532,051 6s. 3d., being at the rate of about £2 16s. 9d. per head of the last net enrolment recorded, 187,390. If parents instead of the State had to pay the whole expense of education, it is certain that for £2 10s. 3d. a year, or about 12s. 6d. a quarter, they could not obtain for their children the education, supervision, and general conveniences, that are placed at their disposal under present arrangements. This 12s. 6d. per quarter, paid by the State for schooling its 155,824 Public School pupils, covers, besides outlay in actual teaching, the cost of a rigid and effective system of inspection, the cost of training and providing a full supply of professional teachers, the cost of school books, diagrams and working materials, and the cost of clerical management. The total grant is large, and may at present be in excess of what the Colony can conveniently afford, but the results obtained, so far as the education of the children is concerned, are good value for the money spent, and there is reason to believe that, as the need for exceptional expenses disappears, the cost per head will gradually decrease. In Appendices IX-XIII will be found full details in regard to each school,—the enrolment, the average attendance, the salaries paid to teachers, and the amount expended on buildings.

STANDARDS OF PROFICIENCY.

For some years it has been recognized by inspectors and teachers that the standards of proficiency in use in schools were unsuitable. Too many subjects of study were prescribed for the junior pupils, and reading, the most important of all at their age, and the one requiring the largest share of a teacher's time, was, to some extent, crowded out and neglected. The Inspectors were powerless to prevent this evil, in consequence of being required by their instructions to give equal value to all subjects taught. It was comparatively easy for teachers to prepare their classes in the small amounts of grammar, geography, writing, drawing, singing, Scripture, and object lessons prescribed, but relatively much more difficult to prepare them in reading, spelling, and arithmetic. If teachers were unable, therefore, to make up their classes well in all subjects—and few were able to do so—it was to their interest, so far as obtaining marks was concerned, to neglect reading, dictation, and arithmetic, and to concentrate their attention on the lighter subjects, trusting to a high mark in them to make good deficiency in others. The maximum value of each subject being ten, the teacher who obtained the mark "bad" (one out of ten) for reading, dictation, and arithmetic, and "good" (eight out of ten) for the other seven subjects, would make a total of 59 per cent. of possible marks, while the man who obtained "good" for the three heavy and most important subjects, and "bad" for the others, would get but 31 per cent. It is clear that, under this system of marking, the temptation to neglect reading, spelling, and arithmetic was very great, and, year by year, the reports of Inspectors have shown that some teachers have yielded to this temptation.

To meet these serious defects, a new standard was drawn up last year, which came into force on 1st January, 1884. In this standard the claims of reading, spelling, writing, and arithmetic are made paramount in all first and second classes, and henceforth no teacher who neglects these subjects will be able to pass his classes satisfactorily. The number of subjects formerly prescribed for these two classes has been lessened, in order that young children, during their first three years of school life, may be thoroughly grounded in essentials; and in every class such a value in marks is allotted to each subject as corresponds to the difficulty of teaching it, and to the time and labour required to attain proficiency in it. As the majority of children do not remain at school long enough to go beyond a third class, the standard has been so drawn that a pupil completing the course prescribed for that class will be able with ease to pass the exit statutory examination. Pupils who have cleared the work of a third class will be well grounded in essentials, and may be expected to make rapid progress in the more advanced course prescribed for fourth and fifth classes. English in all its branches is continued in those classes; algebra, Euclid and mensuration are added to arithmetic; and such science lessons as may be grasped by pupils thirteen or fourteen years of age are also given. Elementary Latin and French are introduced in the fifth class; but it is kept in view that the curriculum of a Public School should contain those subjects only of which all parents desire their children to have some knowledge,—English, mathematics, and science; and that foreign languages, modern or dead, not being desired by all nor even by a majority of parents, should be studied elsewhere. Comparing this standard with those in use in English-speaking communities, it may be stated generally that it is somewhat higher all round than any of the other Australian standards, and that it covers the ground occupied in the United States by the Primary and Grammar School, and in Canada by the Primary and High School courses.* The English standards are so much below those of America and of the Colonies, both in quantity and range of subjects, that they need not be considered in this comparison.

The standards for pupil-teachers have not been changed, but it is intended to add history to the subjects now prescribed. Except that Latin for boys, French for girls, and music and drawing for both, are

* That the terms used in America may not mislead, it may be well to state that the Primary School in the United States and Canada corresponds to our Infants' Department or First Class; and children there, as here, are expected to leave it at the age of seven. Our next grade is the ordinary Boys' or Girls' Department of the Public School, ranging from Class 2 upwards. This in the United States is what is called the Grammar School, and in Canada the High School grade.

are compulsory here but optional in England, and that history has hitherto been omitted with us, the course of study for pupil-teachers corresponds with that prescribed for pupil-teachers in the revised code issued in England last year. For a long time the training and the attainments of pupil-teachers in England appear to have been giving less satisfaction year by year. The English Inspectors complain that their pupil-teachers are badly taught, and at the close of their apprenticeship have a very limited knowledge of the few subjects in which they are required to undergo examination. The complaint is also general that they receive little or no beneficial instruction in the art of teaching. In the circular to Inspectors issued by the English Education Department, on the 9th August, 1882, on the occasion of introducing to their notice the amended code for that year, the low attainments of pupil-teachers are thus alluded to:—"It is a fact deplored by all connected with the examination of candidates for admission to Training Colleges, and by all who have to instruct our future teachers in these colleges, that many pupil-teachers at the close of their employment should possess so scanty a knowledge of arithmetic, geography, grammar, and history." In this Colony there is no reasonable ground for complaint in regard to these subjects, and there is every ground for satisfaction in regard to professional training, but it has been found that too many of our pupil-teachers fail in one or more of the following subjects, viz.:—Latin, French, music, drawing. In order to assist them, it is intended, where practicable, to assemble them at least twice a week at convenient centres, and to give them special lessons in one or all of these subjects, as well as in Euclid and algebra. The work will be undertaken by teachers selected for the purpose from Public Schools.

No difficulty is experienced in securing an ample supply of teachers. Those that the Department chiefly relies upon are pupil-teachers who have completed their term of apprenticeship, and passed through a course of study in the Training Schools. Last year, eighty-seven of this class were appointed to schools, and for this year's wants there is a large number, who completed their training at the end of 1883. The number however is not sufficient to meet all requirements. When pupil-teachers have served four years under good masters or mistresses they form the best material for teachers that can possibly be obtained. Hitherto, when they have completed their engagement, there has not been sufficient accommodation for all of them at the Training Schools, and a certain number have had to wait till there were vacancies. This will be changed in future, and all who pass their final examinations as pupil-teachers will go at once into the Training School. A considerable number of applications for employment are made by teachers from England and the other Colonies. If they have been previously trained, have had some experience in teaching, and produce satisfactory testimonials and references, they are allowed to attend some good school, to become acquainted with the records and methods of teaching, and are then examined for classification. Last year, nineteen of these received appointments. The teachers of Provisional and other small schools are usually probationers who have entered the Service after being trained under teachers holding classifications not lower than III. A, and obtaining from them the requisite certificates as to ability to teach, to keep records, to construct Time-tables, and to work a school in accordance with them. An applicant holding this certificate can be examined by any Inspector, and if his attainments and testimonials are satisfactory, he is declared eligible for appointment to a Provisional School. When once in the Service, he can by successful teaching and study qualify himself for entrance to the Training School, or for classification without passing through the Training School. Some of the best teachers in the Service are men of this class who, commencing as teachers of Provisional Schools, have raised themselves, by sheer industry and teaching talent, to high positions under the Department.

When the Denominational Schools were closed, none of their teachers or pupil-teachers were thrown out of employment. For some months before the end of 1882, the necessity of providing for them was kept in view. Married men with families were first considered, and as many of them as possible were transferred to Public Schools before the termination of the year. When the Schools opened, in January, 1883, positions were found for the remaining teachers and pupil-teachers by attaching them to existing Public Schools as temporary assistants. They were granted the pay corresponding to their classifications, and, as opportunities presented themselves, were drafted into permanent positions.

TRAINING OF TEACHERS.

Existing arrangements for the training of teachers are not as satisfactory as could be desired. The Training School for males is of a makeshift character. It consists of two rooms at Fort-street School.

The

The students are not received into residence—they merely attend lectures during school hours. They are taken from all classes of applicants who satisfy the prescribed tests for admission, but the majority complete three or four years' term of pupil-teachership before entrance. A large number have been teachers of provisional or of small Public Schools for two or more years, and, having shown good aptitude for teaching, have been recommended by Inspectors for a regular course of training. The students are divided into two classes—senior and junior. The senior or upper class stays in training twelve months, and the junior or lower class, six. Both periods are too short; they should be two years and one year respectively. Usually there are about twenty students in the senior class, and an equal number in the junior. The course of instruction for the seniors makes no provision for enabling students to gain the two highest grades of classification, the range of studies being that prescribed for second class certificates. In this respect the practice here is the same as that followed in England. It has little, however, to recommend it. As arrangements are in progress to improve the character of instruction to pupil-teachers, it is likely they will enter the Training Schools better prepared than hitherto, and that their instruction there will be carried on under more favourable conditions.

The two greatest defects in connection with Fort-street Training School are an insufficiency of teaching strength, and the absence of suitable practising schools wherein the practical part of the students' training may receive the necessary attention. Both these wants will soon be met. An additional master is to be appointed, and steps are being taken to put up Practising Schools that shall be types of schools ordinarily met with in the country. By these means an increased number of students will be received into training, and they will obtain the kind of instruction in practical school management that will enable them to cope with any difficulties they may encounter as teachers of country schools.

Having regard to the drawbacks under which the training of teachers has been carried on, very fair work has been done. The principal and his assistant have laboured zealously and well, and the students have, in most instances, passed satisfactory examinations.

The training of female teachers is carried on at Hurlstone Training School, near Ashfield. The school, originally built for a private academy, was purchased by the Department some three years ago, and having undergone necessary alterations, was converted to its present use. As a makeshift it does fairly well; its chief fault is that it does not afford the requisite accommodation. Sleeping-room is needed for at least fifty students, whereas there is accommodation for only twenty-eight. It is intended to add twenty-two dormitories to those existing. A Practising School has recently been established in connection with the Training School, and is attended by about sixty pupils. When the proposed additions are completed, Hurlstone as a training institution for female teachers will, it is believed, meet the requirements of the Colony in that respect for some time. The regular teaching staff consists of a principal and an assistant. This is sufficient for present requirements. When the resident students are increased to fifty, a second assistant will need to be appointed.

The Training School has been but a short time in operation, and no report as to its working has been received, except from the Lady Principal. As, however, that officer is certified by high educationists at home to be well qualified for her post, satisfactory results may be expected from her labours.

Details as to the examination of teachers and pupil-teachers, and the number who passed, will be found in the Chief Examiner's report (Appendix XV.)

HIGH SCHOOLS.

In October, 1883, High Schools were opened at Sydney, Bathurst, and Goulburn, and arrangements were made to open others in West Maitland at the beginning of 1884. The attendance in each for the quarter was:—

	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
Sydney... ..	46	39	85
Bathurst	14	14	28
Goulburn	3	3	6

This cannot be considered a satisfactory opening, but it should be borne in mind that the entrance examination was held in September, a very inopportune time, and that only those were permitted to attend the schools who satisfied the prescribed standard. At a subsequent examination, in January of this year, a large number of candidates presented themselves. In Sydney alone, as many as 181 were examined, of whom 150 passed; and at present there are 113 boys and 87 girls attending the Sydney High Schools. The attendance at Maitland is 32 boys, 18 girls; at Bathurst, 17 boys, 12 girls; and at Goulburn, 14 boys, 14 girls. There are many parents who would avail themselves of High Schools if the payment of the fee were the only barrier to entrance. If the entrance examination were dispensed with, however, there would soon be established in every township of reasonable size two State Schools, one called Public and one High, one for the poorer class and one for the richer. The expense of such a system would be enormous, unnecessary, and always growing, for there would have to be two staffs of teachers, two sets of buildings and double expenses generally, to teach what would practically be the same subjects, to children of the same age and educational status. High Schools, to be of any value, should admit only such pupils as have completed the elementary part of their education. If there are not sufficient of this class to fill them, the need for them does not yet exist. The expenditure on account of High Schools for the quarter ending 31st December, 1883, was £4,352 9s. 11d. Of this amount, however, £2,897 16s. 9d. was paid for rent and furniture, and £340 10s. 11d. for advertising.

SUPERIOR

SUPERIOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Experience thus far gained in the conduct of these schools has shown the necessity of amending to some extent the Regulations hitherto in force. The extra fee of a guinea a quarter charged in the Fifth Class has proved a hindrance to success, and has in no way benefited the State, as the money, unlike all other fees paid in Public and High Schools, went as a perquisite to teachers. It is known that, in some schools, few if any pupils have ever paid the extra fee, that those fit for promotion to a Fifth Class have been detained in a Fourth, and that others who were in a Fifth when the Regulations came into force have been turned back into a Fourth, on account of inability or unwillingness to pay the additional charge. Cases have occurred in which pupils have left school before they otherwise would have done, because the Regulation barred their promotion or disgraced them. Though provision was made for exemption from payment in cases of poverty, in scarcely a single instance has a parent been willing to accept a free certificate. For these reasons, the extra fee has been abolished. Other slight alterations have been made, so as to make the working of the Regulations practicable.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant,

JOSEPH P. ABBOTT,

Acting Minister of Public Instruction.

Department of Public Instruction,
Sydney, 25th March, 1884.

NOTE.—From the 5th January, 1883, to the end of that year the operations of the Department were carried out under the control of the Honorable George Houstoun Reid.

APPENDIX I.

AMENDED REGULATIONS RELATING TO—

Fourth Class Public Schools.
 School Returns.
 High Schools.
 Half-time Schools.
 Provisional Schools.
 Special Rules for House to House Teaching.

Regulations of 17th June, 1880—Amendment of, as regards Fourth Class Schools.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 27 March, 1883.
 His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the following Amended Regulation, relating to Fourth Class Schools, viz. :—

FOURTH CLASS SCHOOLS.

All schools in which the average daily attendance is not less than 200, nor more than 300 in two Departments, and in which the Standard of Proficiency, prescribed for that class of schools, is fully reached.

G. H. REID.

Amendment of Regulation as regards Returns.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 5 April, 1883.
 His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the following Amended Regulation regarding Returns, in substitution for clause 10 of the Regulations of 4th May, 1880, viz. :—

RETURNS.

10. Quarterly and Annual Returns shall be furnished from every School. Each Quarterly Return must be neatly made out in duplicate, immediately after the close of the quarter; one copy to be furnished to the Inspector, and the other retained by the teacher as a record. The Annual Return must be forwarded, with the Quarterly Return, immediately after the close of the December quarter.

G. H. REID.

HOUSE TO HOUSE TEACHING.—SPECIAL RULES.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 11 May, 1883.
 His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the adoption of the following special rules for House to House Teaching, in connection with the Regulations for schools to be conducted by itinerating Teachers :—

1. Teachers not necessarily trained may be employed in house to house teaching. They must be persons of good moral character, and must satisfy the Inspector that they are capable of imparting the rudiments of an English education.
2. The mode in which their time shall be apportioned to the several families visited by them will be determined by the Minister, on information furnished by the Inspector.
3. The subjects of instruction shall be limited to reading, writing, dictation, and arithmetic.
4. It is required that the Teacher shall supplement his oral instruction by a systematic course of home lessons.
5. At the end of each month, a report upon the work done during that period must be furnished by the Teacher to the Inspector.
6. The remuneration of Teachers engaged in the work will be at the rate of £5 per annum for each pupil in average attendance, up to a maximum salary of £100 per annum.
7. In addition to such remuneration, they will be allowed a sum of £10 per annum as forage allowance. Application for payment shall be made at the end of each quarter.
8. As a condition to payment of salary, they must keep a record of the pupils' attendance in a satisfactory manner, and furnish punctually and accurately such returns as may be required by the Department.
9. Necessary text-books and materials will be supplied on requisition, as in the case of other schools.

G. H. REID.

PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOLS—REGULATIONS FOR.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 25 July, 1883.
 His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the following Regulations for High Schools under the Public Instruction Act of 1880, in substitution for the Regulations for Schools of that class which were published in the Government Gazette of 15th December, 1880.

G. H. REID.

1. The standard of attainments for the admission of pupils to High Schools shall be as follows :—

BOYS AND GIRLS.

Reading.—To read a passage from some standard author, pronouncing every word distinctly, and giving due emphasis and modulation to each sentence as a whole. To have an acquaintance with the meanings of words selected from the passage read.

Dictation.—To write a passage of about fourteen lines dictated from some standard author, or an ordinary newspaper, with correct spelling and punctuation.

Arithmetic.—To solve questions in proportion, vulgar and decimal fractions, interest, and discount.

NOTE.—In the case of girls, interest and discount to be omitted.

Grammar.—To parse the more difficult words in a passage of about six lines. To distinguish the true subjects and the true predicates in sentences. To correct inelegant or ungrammatical expressions. To exemplify the correct usage of picked words.

BOYS.

Euclid.—Book I. Definitions, &c., Propositions 1 to 20 inclusive.

Algebra.—First four rules.

Latin.—Smith's Principia Latina, Part I. to Exercise 15 inclusive.

GIRLS.

GIRLS.

French.—Schneider's First French Course, exercises 1 to 60 inclusive.

2. The fee for admission shall be two guineas per quarter, payable in advance. Candidates whose parents are duly certified to be unable to pay the fee may be admitted free, provided they pass the entrance examination.

3. The fees shall in no case be the property of the Teachers, but shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

4. The ten candidates of each sex, and not over fourteen years of age, who gain most marks and show the necessary proficiency at the examination held at the beginning of each year for admission to the Sydney High Schools, shall be awarded scholarships entitling them to free education therein for that year, and, subject to the teacher's annual favourable reports on their proficiency and conduct, for the two following years. In each of the other High Schools, the first three successful candidates shall be awarded like scholarships.

REGULATIONS FOR PROVISIONAL SCHOOLS.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 14 November, 1883.

The following Regulations for Provisional Schools have been made by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, in accordance with the 37th section of the Public Instruction Act of 1880, and in substitution of the Regulations of the 17th August, 1880, and 3rd January, 1883.

G. H. REID.

1. Application for the establishment of a Provisional School must be made in the form contained in the Schedule appended hereto.

2. A Provisional School may be established in any locality where not fewer than twelve but not more than nineteen children between the ages of six and fourteen years can regularly attend such school; provided that no Provisional School shall be established within four miles by the nearest route practicable for children of any existing Public, Provisional, or Half-time School.

3. The necessary school buildings and furniture for a Provisional School, as well as the requisite books and apparatus, will be provided at the cost of the Department, subject to the following conditions:—

(a) That the cost of the building and furniture shall be limited to £45, when, in the opinion of the Inspector, the average attendance will be from 12 to 15, and to £60 when the average attendance is likely to be 18; that payment shall not be made until the building has been erected and reported by an Inspector or other officer of the Department of Public Instruction to be ready for occupation.

(b) That the building shall be placed on Crown Lands, if sites thereon central to the school population and otherwise suitable can be obtained, and that if built on private land the right-of-way shall be secured, and the property leased to the Minister of Public Instruction for a term of years, as may be agreed upon, at a peppercorn rent, the Minister having the right to remove the building before or at the expiration of that term.

(c) That where the average attendance is expected to range from 12 to 15, the school-room shall measure 14 feet in length, 12 feet in width, and 9 feet in height to the wall-plates, and shall have a pitched roof, two windows, a boarded floor, and a fire-place; two out-offices must also be provided, and the following articles of furniture supplied, viz. :—

2 desks, each 10 feet 6 inches long.
2 forms, each 10 feet 6 inches long.
1 book-press or box.
1 table, 3 feet by 2 feet.
1 chair.

(d) That where the average attendance is expected to be 18, the schoolroom shall measure 17 feet in length, 14 feet in width, and 9 feet in height to the wall-plates, and shall have a pitched roof, two windows, a boarded floor, and a fire-place; two out-offices must also be provided, together with the following articles of furniture, viz. :—

4 desks, each 7 feet 6 inches long
4 forms, each 7 feet 6 inches long.
1 book-press or box.
1 table, 3 feet by 2 feet.
1 chair.

(e) That the applicants for a Provisional School state on the usual form of application the arrangements which they deem best for having the building erected and the furniture supplied with the least possible delay.

4. Teachers of Provisional Schools will be appointed by the Minister, after their competency for the office has been ascertained.

5. To ensure the continuance of a Provisional School, the provisions of the Public Instruction Act must be duly observed, and an average attendance of not fewer than 12 pupils maintained.

6. Provisional Schools shall be classified in the following manner:—

1. Schools with an average attendance below 20, but not below 18	} First-class Provisional Schools.
2. Schools with an average attendance below 18, but not below 15
3. Schools with an average attendance below 15, but not below 12	} Third-class Provisional Schools.

7. The salaries of Teachers of Provisional Schools shall be at the following rates:—

In First-class Provisional Schools, £90 per annum.
In Second-class Provisional Schools, £75 per annum.
In Third-class Provisional Schools, £60 per annum.

8. School fees shall be paid at the same rate as prescribed for Public Schools, and the sums received shall be paid to the Consolidated Revenue.

9. Provisional Schools must be conducted in every respect as Public Schools, and be subject to all the provisions of the Public Instruction Act with respect to religious instruction.

10. The course of secular instruction shall embrace reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, geography, and history, with needlework for girls, whenever practicable; and the instruction must be imparted in accordance with the prescribed standard of proficiency.

CHIEF INSPECTOR'S GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

At the close of 1882 the inspecting staff comprised seven District Inspectors and seventeen Inspectors. This staff was found insufficient to inspect existing schools and do other necessary work pertaining thereto. Eight Assistant Inspectors were therefore appointed about the middle of the year. Six were taken from the ranks of the teachers, and two from outside the school service. Four had gained First-class Certificates by examination; two others held similar certificates, besides being graduates of the Sydney University; and the remaining two were graduates of the Sydney University. Before entering on the duties of their office they were subjected to a suitable course of training, and placed for some months under the supervision and direction of a District Inspector. It is expected that the staff, thus strengthened, will be able not only to inspect every school under the Department once a year, but to examine a large number twice in that period. While the first inspection will be chiefly directed to test the results of the teacher's work, the main aim of the second will be to ascertain his methods of teaching and the character of his school management. Whatever defects in organisation, discipline, or instruction the Inspector may observe at his first inspection he will be able to set right at his second; and this he will do in the most effective way by actually taking charge of the school for the day, and showing the teacher how the work should be carried on.

The number of schools open during 1883, or some part thereof, was 1,709. That number includes evening schools and centres for house to house teaching. The schools carried forward from 1882 numbered 1,481. The difference—228—represents the increase. This will probably be regarded as good work for the year.

The number of Public School buildings erected during the year was 182. Of these, 134 were built from plans and specifications furnished by the Department's architect, and five from plans prepared by architects specially employed; the remainder were put up under the supervision of Inspectors of Schools, or of Local Committees. In all cases, however, the cost was defrayed by the Department. In addition, twenty-nine provisional schoolhouses were built. An impetus was given to the erection of this class of buildings owing to a change in the mode of defraying the cost of them. It had been the rule to require those applying for the establishment of provisional schools to furnish one-third the cost of their erection; but as such schools are usually required in thinly peopled localities, where the residents are mostly poor, the rule has been found to work somewhat unfairly. It has therefore been abolished, and provisional schools are now erected by those locally interested in their establishment, at the expense of the Department.

Of the 1,829 schools or departments in operation, 1,798 were inspected once, and 292 twice within the year. As many as 188 of the latter are in the Maitland District. Fifteen of the inspected schools were evening schools, and the remainder were either closed or not in existence at the time of the Inspector's visit.

The inspection was of a searching character. It comprised an inquiry into the organisation in force, the discipline maintained, and the methods in use. Not only was the knowledge of the pupils gauged in the several subjects of inspection, but special pains were taken to see that their mental powers had been properly cultivated.

It would appear from the Inspector's reports that the schools are well distributed. Occasionally a school is found in the wrong place, but this is usually caused by the shifting of the population after its establishment. One of the greatest evils met with in connection with the Metropolitan Schools is that of overcrowding. This arises, in most cases, not from a lack of room in existing schools, but from the greater popularity of some as compared with others. The city schools provide accommodation for 10,526 pupils, while the gross enrolment is 11,110, the average attendance, 7,645, and the ordinary attendance 8,000. Other schools are in course of erection to accommodate 1,192 pupils. It cannot be truly said therefore that there is any serious want of room. The suburbs also are well provided with school accommodation. To remedy the evil of overcrowding, two courses present themselves. One is, to notify to each teacher the maximum enrolment which he must not exceed; the other is, to prohibit the admission of children to primary schools who are below the age of six years. The former course has already been adopted in the case of a few schools, and it is a matter for consideration whether it should not be generally followed.

The schoolrooms ordinarily met with are constructed on a common principle. Their length varies from 20 to 70 feet and their width from 16 to 24 feet, according to the number of pupils to be accommodated. In the case of infants' schools, the width is somewhat greater. The desks are arranged on a raised platform in parallel groups along one of the longer sides of the room. By this arrangement, the teacher is enabled to command a good view of every pupil in his class. Eight square feet of floor space or 100 feet cubical contents are allowed to each child. In England, the maximum regulation space is 80 cubic feet for each child in average attendance; but even where the lighting and warming are provided on the most favourable conditions, this amount of space must be very unsatisfactory on the point of health. Hitherto the lighting of our schools does not appear to have been regulated on any well-established principle. Sometimes the light is in front of the pupil, sometimes behind him; while, in many cases, it enters from both sides of the room. Where the room is large and the windows high, the latter arrangement is not objectionable. The best light is that which comes to the pupil from the left side, but it is only possible to obtain light in this way where the room is small and built to accommodate but one class. Where the room is large, the light should come to the pupil above the shoulders shoulders or from behind him. The one great defect in the lighting of all our schools, except those built under the supervision of the Department's architect, Mr. Kemp, is that the windows are too low. They give a bad light, and cannot be opened from below without exposing the pupils to draughts.

With very few exceptions, the schools are well supplied with furniture. The new rule, under which schools of all classes are provided by the Department with necessary material appliances, has had the effect of improving this part of school organization. In some of the old-established schools the seats are too narrow, and need to be replaced by others of a more suitable kind. Those used by infants are provided with backs, but this is not invariably the case. It is satisfactory to be able to report, however, that steps are being taken to make good existing defects. With regard to Primary Schools, it is not so necessary that the seats should have backs, because when the pupils are writing the seats are moved close to the desks in front, and the backs cannot then be used; while during oral lessons the seats are moved back, and the pupils are thereby enabled to lean again the desks behind. It is in contemplation to introduce the dual desk, approved by the London School Board, into a few schools; but it is doubtful if this desk or the American single desk could be introduced generally on account of the great expense involved. The present furniture of our schools has not cost less than £100,000, and could not be replaced by furniture of the American or the London School Board pattern under an expenditure of £120,000; while to use either of the latter would add largely to the cost of school buildings, on account of the increased space which the desks take up.

It seldom happens that a school is found ill-supplied with the ordinary school materials. Whenever deficiency of such articles is observed, it is commonly traceable to the neglect or carelessness of the teacher. Many of the Inspectors seem to think that the diagrams and other educational illustrations in use are neither sufficiently varied nor of the most modern kind; and in their opinion I concur. It is intended, therefore, to include in the new contract for the supply of requisites to schools under the Department the latest and best diagrams and apparatus obtainable. As this contract will come into force at the beginning of next year, a marked improvement in the furnishing and equipment of schools may be looked for.

All the Inspectors report in favourable terms of the discipline. Military drill is taught in a large proportion of schools, but it cannot be said to be a favourite subject with teachers. In many cases it is gone through in a perfunctory way, and means little beyond marching in time. The number of schools in which the drill is decidedly good does not exceed twenty. As, however, a new start is being given to the Cadet movement, improvement in drill may be expected. In general, school work is carried on quietly and methodically; the pupils are respectful in demeanour, attentive under instruction, obedient, and well behaved. Copying, prompting, and like dishonest practices are very rarely met with, and the tone and spirit pervading the schools is, in the highest sense, healthy.

Playground supervision is receiving increased attention. This is as it should be. The home training of many children is lax, and habits are contracted out of school, which if not kept in check are apt to work evil. It is the first duty of a teacher to preserve the morals of those entrusted to his care, and in no place is greater vigilance needed to enable him to do this than in the playground. Here, if he be observant, he will see his pupils as they are, and not what, in many instances, his school experience has led him to believe them to be.

In by far the larger number of schools the pupils attend with very fair punctuality; in many, however, this part of discipline is in an unsatisfactory state. The worst cases lie in the farming and dairying districts, where the children's labour is utilized on all possible occasions. While parents are mainly responsible for their children's lateness in reaching school, it not unfrequently happens that the blame is chargeable to the teacher. It is remarked by more than one Inspector that, where the teacher is punctual, earnest, and methodical, the school goes on like clockwork, and cases of lateness are rare; where, however, an opposite state of things exists, it is not surprising that unpunctuality should prevail. It cannot be doubted, I think, that in this, as in other matters of discipline, the teacher can largely influence his pupils.

The past year has been unfavourable to school attendance. Epidemics have prevailed at various times and with unusual frequency, actually emptying some schools. Under ordinary circumstances, however, pupils attend with great irregularity. They are kept at home on the slightest pretexts, and teachers are all but powerless to cope with the evil. Their best efforts are paralysed, and it is but natural that, at times, they should become disheartened. The subjoined statement will exhibit the character of the attendance for each quarter of the year:—

No. of pupils enrolled for March quarter	126,517
Do in average attendance for March quarter	83,858	or 66 per cent.
Do. enrolled for June quarter	128,409
Do. in average attendance for June quarter	86,861	or 67½ per cent.
Do. enrolled for September quarter	133,690
Do. in average attendance for September quarter ...	91,780	or 68½ per cent.
Do. enrolled for December quarter	132,084
Do. in average attendance for December quarter.....	91,566	or 69¾ per cent.

It will thus be seen that the highest enrolment and the highest average attendance were obtained in the September quarter, and were 133,690 and 91,780 respectively. Similar results distinguished the September quarter of last year, the enrolment for that quarter being 137,917, and the average attendance 95,903. The falling off disclosed by these figures is attributable to the withdrawal of aid from 118 Denominational Schools having an aggregate enrolment of 19,226 at the close of 1882. Making due allowance for the loss of so many schools, it will probably be conceded that the Department has been successful in attracting to its schools a fair share of new pupils.

In the report of last year attention was drawn to certain defects that marked the standards then in use. One of these was that they recognised all subjects as of equal value, although the amount of teaching and skill required to produce the same results in each differed widely. They thus encouraged a certain amount of cram in what are known as the mechanical subjects, in which the only faculty receiving special cultivation is the memory. Under those standards, teachers were enabled to neglect such branches as Reading, Dictation, Arithmetic, and Grammar, so long as their pupils were well prepared in others of less importance. Any deficiency in the former could be made up in the latter, and a teacher could manage to satisfy the Inspectors whenever the average results in all the subjects did not fall below a certain mark. Another defect of those standards was that they loaded the lower classes with too many subjects—the result being that the pupils' knowledge became more wide than thorough. The working of the new standards recently sanctioned by the Minister will, it is believed, remove these incongruities and secure for the teacher a fairer recognition of the value of his labours. In them an attempt is made to place our school instruction on a scientific basis, each subject being presented to the pupil at the time the particular faculties it is intended to cultivate are coming into play. They also aim at making the teaching both intellectual and thorough, and our system of primary education liberal, enlightened, and efficient.

Few complaints respecting the mode in which the lesson guides or documents regulating the instruction are compiled have been received during the year. The great value of these guides appears to be fully recognized by teachers. In general the instruction is systematically arranged, the several subjects receive attention in the order of their importance, and the daily work is faithfully recorded. Some of the Inspectors take exception to the vagueness with which entries in the programmes of lessons are occasionally made, but all unite in testifying to the pains taken by most teachers to make these documents as complete and as useful as possible. A time-table is found in almost every school, and the principles on which it should be framed seem to be well understood. The large increase in the number number of schools, elsewhere noticed, has tended to lower the proficiency as a whole, but the falling off is not so great as might reasonably have been expected. Of 1,798 schools inspected—39 per cent. were below, 30 per cent. up to, and 31 per cent. above the standard; in other words, 61 per cent. were up to or above the standard and 39 per cent. below it. Last year the corresponding percentages were 63 and 37 respectively.

Great prominence continues to be given to the subject of reading. The examinations therein have been individual, each child being required to read from six to eight lines, to comprehend the drift of the part read, and to show an acquaintance with the meanings of the more difficult words found in the passage. The standard of examination has been raised, both as regards the quantity and quality of the reading required. The immediate effect of this has been a slight falling off in the results obtained, but the falling off is more apparent than real. After the new standards have been long enough in force, improvement in the reading may be confidently expected.

Of 94,860 pupils examined in the subject, the proficiency of 75 per cent. ranged from fair to good, while the proficiency of 25 per cent. ranked from indifferent to tolerable; 69 per cent. passed in the alphabet, 74 per cent. in monosyllables, 75 per cent. in easy narrative, and 80 per cent. in ordinary prose. The reading in the higher classes is intelligent and expressive, and is usually better in girls' schools than in boys'. In the lower classes, time is wasted over the alphabet, the pupils are kept too long in the same lessons, and unnecessary attention is given to explanations on various points. It is but fair to remark, however, that these defects are less marked than formerly.

In no subjects are the methods of teaching more diverse than in writing. Almost every teacher believes he has hit on the best method, and holds tenaciously to it. A large number teach it from head-lines on the black-board. One advantage of this method is that it enables the teacher to exercise an efficient supervision over the pupils while writing. They cannot copy their own writing without being detected, and this seems to be the special merit of the method. Another, and a hardly less important one, is that the teacher can readily illustrate on the black-board any defects observed, and, by good examples, show how these defects may be corrected. But by far the larger number of teachers rely on the use of a certain kind of copy-book, and on the style of head-lines given therein. No method, however, can prove thoroughly effective where the supervision is lax or partial. But it is pleasing to be able to report that, in most schools, this supervision is close and constant. The result is that the penmanship is of a creditable kind. In the higher classes the writing on unruled paper is below standard requirements, and would seem to indicate that the pupils are not sufficiently practised in writing on that kind of paper. It is hoped that the application of the new standards will prove a remedy for this.

97,790 pupils were examined in writing, 46,962 using slates and 50,028 copy-books. Of those examined on slates, the writing of 75 per cent. ranged from fair to good, while that of 25 per cent. ranked from indifferent to tolerable. The writing in copy-books was even better, 83 per cent. of the examinees gaining marks varying from fair to good, and 17 per cent. marks of a less satisfactory character.

The results in arithmetic are somewhat better than they were last year. When the large number of new schools is taken into account, this may be regarded as satisfactory. The examinations in the subject were not less rigid than formerly, but the questions were of a more varied character, and afforded the pupils a better chance of doing justice to the instruction of their teachers. Text-books are seldom used in teaching the subject. The ordinary method adopted is first to explain fully the principles of each rule, and then to illustrate them by appropriate examples. The great advantage of this method is that the reasoning faculty is appealed to rather than the memory. The pupils are enabled to understand each arithmetical process, and gradually to resolve problems not coming under any particular rule. The skilful teacher dictates the question or writes it on the black-board, and, after allowing a reasonable time for its solution, works it, with the aid of the pupils, on the board. He is thus afforded opportunities of showing short processes of solution, and how some questions may be solved in more ways than one. Under this mode of teaching the dull pupils are not overlooked, but made to do their fair share of the work. The old method of using text-books, of getting the pupils to learn each rule, and then leaving them to grope along by themselves, obtains only in the worst class of schools.

88,306 pupils were examined in arithmetic, 69 per cent. were working the simple rules, 20 per cent. the compound rules, and 11 per cent. the higher rules. The corresponding percentages last year were 70, 20, and 10 respectively. Of those examined in the simple rules, 58 per cent. gained or exceeded the mark fair, and 42 per cent. earned marks varying from indifferent to tolerable. In the compound rules, the work of 50 per cent. reached or exceeded the mark fair, while that of an equal number did not exceed tolerable. In the higher rules, the corresponding percentages were 60 and 40 respectively.

The theory of grammar is taught well. No text-book is used, but the teacher explains in a series of lessons the precise nature and use of each part of speech, ascertains by appropriate questioning that the pupils thoroughly grasp his explanations, gives to each part of speech its particular name, and then endeavours to lead the pupils to define it. Principles are explained first, and the definitions given afterwards. This no doubt is the most rational method of teaching where it can be followed. In general, the pupils show a very fair acquaintance with grammatical parsing and analysis. But here their knowledge of the subject frequently ends. They can pull to pieces, but they cannot build up. They show a want of power in constructing sentences, and, except in some of the best schools, their attempts at regular composition are crude. This defect in the teaching of grammar has been noticed by me in former reports; it is one which has engaged the attention of nearly all the Inspectors; and great efforts have been made to remove it. It is satisfactory to be able to report that these efforts have been tolerably successful. Prose composition occupies a much better position in our schools than it did a few years ago.

49,810 pupils were examined in grammar,—26,236 in the elements, and 23,574 in the more advanced parts of the subject. Of those examined in the elements, 64 per cent. gained or exceeded the mark fair, and 36 per cent. marks not so high. In advanced grammar, 62 per cent. gained marks ranging from fair to good, and the remainder marks varying from indifferent to tolerable.

Improvement is discernible in the teaching of geography, and the results therein are slightly better than they were last year. Nevertheless the methods used in the treatment of the subject are still largely mechanical. There is much talk on mere names and other abstractions; maps, diagrams, and like illustrations are but sparingly used, and the pupils' memories are overtaxed. These defects are noticeable chiefly in the teaching of the elements. It is not surprising, therefore, that a subject possessing points of deep interest to children should, in the hands of a careless indolent teacher, become distasteful to them. The higher parts of the subject are more skilfully treated; but, even here, the leading facts of physical geography do not receive due prominence. A good deal of useless knowledge is taught, while much that is essential is overlooked.

57,684 pupils were examined in geography,—33,372 in the elements, and 24,312 in the more advanced parts of the subject. Of those examined in the elements, 70 per cent. gained marks ranging from fair to good, and 30 per cent. marks not exceeding tolerable. In the higher geography, the percentages were the same. It may, therefore, be stated generally that 70 per cent. of the pupils examined passed in geography.

With respect to the other subjects of the school course, needlework is taught well, Scripture and moral lessons very fairly, and the rest fairly. History has not been generally introduced owing to the want of approved text-books. This want has now been supplied. The results in music refer chiefly to the character of the singing. Except in a few schools, the knowledge of the theory of the science is small.

small. The teaching of French and Latin is confined to the Superior Schools, and does not go beyond the elements. The subjoined statement shows the percentages of passes gained in each subject :—

History	94 per cent.

The number of pupils examined in the various branches is given in table B appended.

It is a matter for regret that Evening Public Schools are not a success. The number in operation during the year was 22, as against 36 in 1882 and 57 in 1881. The marked falling off in each succeeding year would seem to indicate that this class of schools are not popular institutions. It is not easy to understand why this should be. Evening Public Schools are usually started in the most populous localities, where there is no lack of young persons for whose mental improvement they are intended; they are held in good, airy, well-appointed school-rooms; a moderate fee is charged for the instruction given in them; earnest able teachers are appointed to manage them; and yet the results are most disappointing. Similar ill-success has attended the working of night schools in Victoria. It is to be feared that the native youth are fonder of amusements than of higher pursuits, and that the home-training of very many is not of a kind to bring about a healthier state of things.

The rules under which Superior Public Schools have hitherto been conducted have been modified. The chief alteration in them is the abolition of the fee formerly charged. The imposition of this fee prevented many children of poor parents from being promoted to the highest classes, and worked injuriously in other ways. It is expected that the revised rules will have the effect of increasing the number of Superior Public Schools, and of lessening the cost of their management without lowering their efficiency. The number of such schools in operation during the past year was 20, containing 57 departments. As yet it has not been found practicable to teach the piano in the girls' department, and as the special fee charged in connection with Superior Public Schools has been abolished, pianoforte instruction will probably have to be eliminated from the school course. Such a result need not, I think, cause much regret.

High Schools were opened towards the end of the year at Sydney, Maitland, Goulburn, and Bathurst. Each school consists of two departments—one for boys, the other for girls. With a view to economy and to test the necessity for the establishment of schools of this class, they have been started in temporary premises. So far the experiment has been moderately successful, but sufficient time has not elapsed to enable a final opinion on this subject to be formed. In the case of Sydney and Maitland it is believed that High Schools will be found to meet a real want; in the case of Goulburn and Bathurst, the need of them was not so clearly shown, as schools of a somewhat similar character existed in these places.

1,619 principal teachers, 137 mistresses of departments, and 280 assistant teachers, are employed in schools under the Department. Of these, 34 are in Class I, 511 in Class II, 998 in Class III, and 493 are probationers, making a total of 2,036. In addition, 150 workmistresses and 8 assistant workmistresses are employed.

During the year 135 classified teachers and 268 probationers were appointed to fill vacancies as they occurred. Of the classified teachers, 87 entered the service as pupil-teachers, 13 as teachers of provisional or other small schools, 19 received their preliminary training in places outside the Colony, and 16 had not been employed as teachers before entering the Training School. The 268 probationers were employed in provisional or other small schools. At present the supply of teachers somewhat exceeds the demand. As a body, they are very favourably reported of. They are steady, earnest, and diligent in the performance of their duties. A large number are able and skilful, and would be a credit to any country.

The number of pupil-teachers rose from 749 in 1882 to 786 in 1883, and comprised 280 males and 506 females. They were classified as follows :—122 in Class I, 151 in Class II, 240 in Class III, 217 in Class IV, and 56 probationers. These young persons render important service, and form the chief source from which the ranks of the teachers are recruited. They are reported as well-conducted, studious, and hardworking. Inquiries disclosed the fact that in some instances the instruction they were receiving was of an inferior kind. Measures were at once taken to secure to this part of their training the necessary attention and efficiency. Those engaged in the Metropolitan schools are assembled on Saturday mornings at Fort-street school and receive special instruction in music, French, Latin, and mathematics. To these will immediately be added drill, drawing, and English composition. As it will not be possible to deal satisfactorily with all these branches in the time specified, arrangements are in progress to assemble the male pupil-teachers after school-hours on one or more afternoons of each week and to impart to them instruction in those subjects that cannot be taken up on Saturday mornings. Similar provision for the special instruction of country pupil-teachers will probably be made at an early date.

The work of the year may be briefly summarised thus :—The means of education have been widely extended; school inspection has been vigorously and effectively carried on; considerable improvement has been effected in school organization; the discipline has maintained its character for excellence; and the results of the instruction, all things considered, compare favourably with those of any previous year.

ANNEX D.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

AID having been withdrawn from Denominational Schools at the end of 1882, no schools of that class were under supervision during 1883.

The following is the number of schools or departments open during 1883, or any portion thereof, viz. :—

Public Schools	294
Provisional Schools	13
Half-time Schools	12
Evening Schools	5
Total	324

Comparing these numbers with those of 1882, there is an increase for 1883 of 46 Public, 3 Provisional, and 2 Half-time, Schools, and a decrease of 5 Evening Schools. Taking Day Schools alone into consideration there is therefore an increase of 51 Schools.

Much has been done during the year to improve the material condition of the schools, by the erection of new buildings of a temporary or permanent character, by repairs and improvements of various kinds to existing buildings, and by action being taken for enlarging present premises and building new ones.

The following new buildings may be mentioned as opened during 1883, viz., Bank's Meadow, Bondi, Double Bay, Darlinghurst, Gardiner's Road, Glenmore Road, Macquarie-street South, Summer Hill, Waterloo (Girls), Waverley (Girls), Woollahra (Girls), Mulgoa, Nepean, Regentville, Riverstone, Windsor (Girls), Little Dural, Forest Lodge, Myrtle Creek, Colyton, Gentleman's Halt, Concord, Newtown North, St. Leonards West, Castlereagh-street, Chatswood, Leichhardt North, Mossman's Bay, St. Leonards (Girls), Granville (Infants), Rookwood (Infants), Bulli Mountain, Campbelltown (Infants), Dapto West, Hinchinbrook, Peterborough, Theresa Park, Manly.

The following buildings were completed or in course of erection at the end of the year :—Bourke-street, Croydon, Darlinghurst, Waterloo, Penrith (Girls), Main Camp (Ryde), Jasper's Brush, Meroo, Blackfriars, Balmain East, Pyrmont, Stanmore, Prospect Reservoir, Croome, Green Valley.

The erection of new premises has been proposed at the undermentioned places :—Parramatta, Parramatta South, Peat's Ferry, Australian Farm, Windsor (Girls), Comleroy Road, Seven Hills, M'Donald Upper, Upper Colo, Wheeny Creek, Balmain North, Dulwich, Drummoyn Park.

Many schools have undergone, or are about to undergo, repairs or improvements, some of them of an important character. These—upwards of 100—are too numerous to mention.

On the whole, as regards equipment, accommodation afforded, and general material condition, the schools may be regarded in a fairly satisfactory state. A fuller supply of diagrams and pictures is still, however, desirable for Infant Schools.

The means of education, as regards amount and distribution, are reasonably satisfactory. With few exceptions the schools are well distributed throughout the district. There are very few children to be found whose homes are beyond a radius of 2 miles from an existing school.

The inspectoral staff was increased during the year by the appointment of Mr. L. Blumer as an Assistant Inspector. That gentleman's services were chiefly employed during the latter half of the year in inspecting schools in Sydney and its suburbs, and in assisting Messrs. Allpass, Jones, and myself in the inspection of the larger schools.

From the return of inspection already furnished, it will be seen that 8 schools of the 324 in operation during the whole or a portion of 1883 were not fully or regularly inspected. Six of these belong to the Wollongong section of the District. Only 1 Evening School in the Sydney division failed to undergo inspection, and this was caused by its collapse owing to small attendance. With the increased staff for the whole coming year, no school should be without inspection during 1884.

The following is a list of the schools inspected :—

Public Schools.....	290 (4 not inspected.)
Provisional Schools.....	11 (2 not inspected.)
Half-time Schools	12 (all inspected.)
Evening Schools	3 (2 not inspected.)
Total.....	316 (8 not inspected.)

The condition of the schools inspected in relation to the standard may be gathered from the following table :—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard. (Fair.)	Above Standard.
Public	53	102	135
Provisional	8	2	1
Half-time	3	7	2
Evening.....	1	2	0
All Schools	65	113	138

This statement, when compared with that of 1882, shows that, while there are fewer schools above the standard by nearly 5 per cent. this year (1883), there are more up to the standard by nearly 8 per cent. Combining the two classes, therefore, there were "Up to" and "Above the Standard" for 1882 77 per cent., and for 1883 79 per cent., or an increase in average efficiency of 2 per cent. so far as passing the standard is concerned.

As in previous years, the schools at Biloela, the "Vernon," and the Orphan Schools at Parramatta, eight in all, were also inspected during the year, but they are not included in the above list. There were actually therefore 324 schools examined and reported upon during 1883.

In point of discipline the schools maintain a high standard. Good order, as a rule, prevails in our schools. The government is firm and effective, and the pupils are drilled into orderly habits without harshness or undue severity. The pupils generally exhibit a pleasing demeanor, and give cheerful and prompt obedience. Mr. Inspector Jones thus reports :—"The discipline of the schools, viewed as a whole, is healthy and good, and the means used to maintain it are, with very few exceptions, mild and judicious."

The

The subjoined table exhibits the number of pupils examined in each subject with the per centage of those who satisfied the requirements of the standard :—

Subjects.	Number of pupils examined.	Percentage of pupils who passed in each subject.
Reading	33,055	81
Writing	32,755	86
Arithmetic	30,686	62
Grammar	17,858	65
Geography	22,642	75
Scripture	14,535	71
Object Lessons	33,076	71
Drawing	17,908	80
Music	29,327	81
Needlework	9,582	93
Drill	23,017	75
History, English	733	99
" Australian	592	89
French	251	86
Euclid	1,709	57
Algebra	1,526	57
Mensuration	495	69
Latin	558	85
Trigonometry	186	19

From these numbers it appears that in the first nine subjects the average per centage of pupils who satisfied the standard was about 75. For the same subjects in 1882 the average was 76 per cent. The estimated proficiency, therefore, in these subjects is lower by 1 per cent. than it was in 1882. The highest percentages gained are for Reading, Writing, Drawing, and Music, and the lowest for Grammar and Arithmetic, the latter subject, as in previous years, giving the lowest results of all the ordinary subjects. On the whole the fact that three-fourths of the pupils in the schools have reached the standard in the ordinary subjects cannot be considered an unsatisfactory outcome of the work for the year.

The percentage of attendance has also fallen nearly 1 per cent. as compared with that for 1882. The respective numbers are :—

1882	67.4 per cent.
1883	66.5 " " (nearly.)

According to circumstances the average attendance of our schools appears to fluctuate a little above or below about two-thirds of the enrolment of pupils, and there does not seem to be any effective remedy for the irregularity. The successful operation of the present compulsory clauses will rather lower than raise the average attendance in proportion to the enrolment, so long as only 70 days per half year of attendance are exacted by them. Pupils, brought in by compulsion, who merely satisfy the requirements of the Act, must diminish the per centage of attendance and of proficiency, and therefore the more successfully these clauses are worked the more will our schools at present be affected in these two points.

The Teachers and Assistants employed in the Metropolitan District are classified as under :—

Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			* No classification.	Totals.
A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
5	20	77	129	93	44	29	63	460

* NOTE.—These include Examinees from the Training Schools whose classifications are not yet declared.

Besides these there is a staff of over 400 Pupil Teachers employed in the district.

During the year many teachers have striven hard and successfully to raise their classifications by examination. The list of First Class Teachers has been more than doubled, and a considerable number have been promoted to the ranks of Second Class. The annexed statement shows the increase that has taken place :—

	1883.	1882.
First Class Teachers by examination	5.5 per cent.	2.5 per cent.
Second Class Teachers by examination	45.0 " "	32.0 " "
Third Class Teachers by examination	36.0 " "	35.5 " "

Including Work-mistresses there are over 900 persons employed in this district. They are, as a body, respectable, intelligent, and well conducted, and manifest, in their several spheres, an earnest desire to perform their duties to the best of their ability.

To sum up : The general organization of the district is satisfactory, and the means of education are well distributed throughout the district ; the discipline continues to be of a healthy and effective character ; and the regularity and general proficiency of the pupils are somewhat lower than they were in 1882. Taking into account the improvements in buildings now going on, and the probably successful working of the new "standard," there is every prospect of the schools reaching a high rate of efficiency.

District Inspector.

ANNEX E.

MR. INSPECTOR J. S. JONES' REPORT FOR 1883.

THE schools referred to in this report are situated in West Sydney, Darling, Glebe, Camperdown, Leichhardt, Five Dock, Newtown, Macdonaldtown, Redfern, St. Leonards, Manly, and Balmain.

At the close of 1882 there were 81 schools in operation, viz. :—Public 51 ; Church of England, 14 ; Roman Catholic, 13 ; Hebrew, 1 ; and Evening, 2 ; and during the present year there have been in full or partial operation 69 schools, viz., 67 Public, and 2 Evening, one of which latter was closed in June for want of scholars.

With the exception of St. Phillip's (Church of England) all the Church of England Schools have been closed in favour of Public Schools. In order, therefore, to meet the educational requirements, arising from the withdrawal of State Aid to Denominational Schools, the late Church of England Schools of Balmain, Burwood, and Parramatta-street, have been worked as non-vested Public Schools, and and Public Schools have been established at Forest Lodge, North Newtown, West St. Leonards, and Castlereagh-street. In order also to meet the wants of growing suburbs, Public Schools have been opened at Chatswood and North Leichhardt, Girls' Departments added to the schools of Camperdown and St. Leonards, and provision made for the erection of Public Schools at Dulwich and North Balmain, when the sites for them have been secured. It has also been necessary to enlarge the Newtown, Pyrmont, Redfern, and St. Peter's Schools by erecting large temporary wooden buildings, to dispense with the unsuitable and unpopular school tents, and to hasten the construction of the large school buildings at Blackfriars, East Balmain, Pyrmont, and Stanmore. When, therefore, the above-mentioned additions have been effected, the adequacy of the means of education will be very well met both as regards the distribution of the schools and the amount of accommodation provided; for, even as it is, that amount is good, for when those large schools are opened the neighbouring non-vested Public Schools will be closed in their favour.

With the exception of the Glebe Evening School, which was closed in June, all the schools have been inspected, ten by District Inspector M'Credie, and the rest by myself, with the partial aid afforded me by Mr. Inspector M'Intyre and Mr. Assistant Inspector Blumer. The incidental inspections, however, have not been as numerous and well distributed as they were last year.

With very few exceptions the school buildings are of superior merit in point of design, structure, and repair, and there are but few cases in which the schoolroom and desk accommodation does not meet present requirements, or where the school premises are not more cleanly kept than they were last year. Every school, according to its grade, has an adequate supply of the prescribed kind of furniture and educational appliances. In other respects, however, the supply of the latter items is not in full keeping with the educational wants of a school, especially in the earlier stages of its growth, or with the special requirements of the lessons in reading, arithmetic, geography, drawing, and elementary sciences; for where a lesson is not backed up with models, samples, or pictures of things as required, it can never be given with pleasing, permanent, and useful effect. As it is, and notwithstanding the love of the present age for beauty of form and colour, our Infant Schools are no better off for pictures than they were in the early days of the late Council of Education.

The character of the attendance is shown as follows; but in comparing the numbers under 1882 and 1883, it should be remembered that those under 1883 do not include the children in the Roman Catholic schools, the gross and average attendances of which in 1882 were 3,856 and 1,609 respectively:—

With comparatively few exceptions the organization of the schools is improved and good. Better judgment has been exercised in the classification of the pupils. The classes are more evenly balanced in point of numbers and attainments; the promotions from class to class have been more frequent; and the average ages of the lower classes are somewhat less than they were last year; but the regulation as to the division of the schools into sections is not as strictly observed as it should be, and there are still instances in which the pupil teachers do not receive those practical lessons and suggestions in the art of teaching which are due to them. There are sixty schools in the upper grades, 1 to 5, and eight in the lower ones, 6 to 10; and according to the last quarterly return for the year the average attendance, the number of teachers of all classes, except work-mistresses (27), and the average number of scholars allotted to each teacher, have been 12, 135, 310, and 40 respectively. The supply of teachers therefore is liberal, and in all but a few cases the duties of the school are judiciously distributed among the school officers, according to their relative positions. The arrangements for the supervision of the pupils, when at play or dismissed for home, are better than they were, and those for cleaning the school premises have been improved in consequence of the monthly allowances now made for the purpose by the Department.

Viewed as a whole, the discipline of the schools is healthy and good; and the means employed to maintain it are with very few exceptions mild and judicious. Still, however, there are a few teachers who require to be more watchful and exacting with regard to details of management, and to be quicker in the detection, and firmer in the repression of petty acts of juvenile misconduct, or improprieties of speech or manner. There are also a few otherwise good teachers who stand in need of more enthusiasm and vigour in relation to the general work of their schools.

The

The following is a statement of the ordinary and special subjects of instruction, the number of pupils examined in them, and the percentage of the passes :—

Subjects.	Examinees.	Percentage of passes.

Mensuration	192	65·
Trigonometry	97	...
Latin	803	80·
French	142	80·
History	681	100·
	Average...	63·

The total per centages of passes in all the subjects are eighteen less than those of last year, because of the less satisfactory results of the examination in Arithmetic, Geography, and Euclid. Considering, however, that the standard number for efficiency is sixty, it will be seen in the above table that the average per centages are twelve and three in excess of it, in the ordinary and special subjects respectively.

The general condition of the schools with respect to organization, discipline, and instruction is as follows :—

	Schools.
	Public.	Evening.	Total.
Below the Standard	5	1	6
Up to the Standard	15	...	15
Total	57	1	58

Upon comparing these numbers with the similar ones in last year's report it will be seen that the condition of the schools has somewhat improved; but although the results are fairly satisfactory and promising, they are not fully up to the requirements of the regulations. There are still some teachers who have not raised their schools to the standards commensurate with their own grades of classification, and a few whose grades are inferior to those of their schools, and who are presumably unable to produce higher class results. This latter anomaly exists because as the population increases the schools grow into the higher classes, and thereby render it necessary for the teachers to obtain higher grades of classification by examination. There are, however, but a few old teachers so circumstanced, and there is no desire to disturb them as long as they manifest the same energy, earnest sense of duty and fair ability, that they do at present.

The number and classes of the teachers employed in the schools and their respective grades of classification are tabulated as follows :—

Classes.	Teachers.	Assistants.	Pupil Teachers.	Work-mistresses.
Class I, Section A	2	1
" " " B	9	1
" II, " A	20	5
" " " B	20	28
" III, " A	10	11

PUPIL TEACHERS.
Class 1	32
" 2	33
" 3	52
" 4	54
Total	69	71	171	27=338

A comparison of these numbers with last year's discloses increases in the number of assistants and pupil teachers, an increase of 29 teachers and assistants in the upper grades, and a decrease of 37 unclassified teachers and assistants.

To sum up: The district is well supplied with the means of education; the schools are well distributed; most of them are in the higher classes, and their general condition is improved, reasonably satisfactory, and promising. Good progress has been made in providing superior school buildings, and there remain but three places—Dulwich, Drummoyne, and North Balmain—where the establishment of schools has to be completed; but little has been done to supply the schools with a larger and better stock of educational appliances. The worst feature of the schools is the irregularity of the attendance.

Inspector.

ANNEX F.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT, SYDNEY E.

MR. INSPECTOR ALLPASS'S GENERAL REPORT, 1883.

DURING the year 1882 there were 79 schools in operation in the portion of the district allotted to me, viz. :—

Public Schools	52
Evening Public Schools	2
Church of England Denominational Schools	12
Roman Catholic Denominational Schools	10
Wesleyan Denominational Schools.....	3

On the 31st December, 1882, the Denominational Schools ceased to receive Government aid and inspection.

The schools in operation under my supervision at the beginning of the year 1883 were—

Public Schools.....	52
Evening Public Schools	1

The undermentioned schools have been opened during the year :—

	Departments.
Bondi	1
Botany-street, Surry Hills.....	2
Darlinghurst	2
Double Bay	1
Gardener's Road, Botany	1
Glenmore Road.....	2
Macquarie-street South	2
Randwick	1
Summer Hill.....	1
Waterloo (Girls')	1
Waverley (Girls')	1
Woollahra (Girls')	1
Burwood Evening Public	1

The pupils attending the Infants' School in Brisbane-street were drafted into the new buildings in Macquarie-street South on their completion, and the Brisbane-street School was closed. Counting departments as schools sixty-nine have been under my supervision during the year. These have all been fully inspected.

The total enrolment for the year, as shown in the teachers' returns, was 23,462. Of these

3,933	had been enrolled in	2	schools
271	"	"	3
14	"	"	4
2	"	"	5

Deducting these re-enrolments the gross enrolment will appear as 18,937.

The quarterly returns, from which the pupils who had left during the previous quarter are omitted, show that the quarterly enrolments and average attendance were :—

	Enrolled.	Average attendance.
March quarter	10,723	10,132·7
June quarter	15,391	10,227·3
September quarter	16,497	11,782·6
December quarter	16,003	11,018·5

These numbers are through the cessation of aid to certain schools smaller than those for 1882. Thus in the schools that were under my control for 1882 the average quarterly enrolment and the average attendance were respectively 18,998 and 12,477·9.

This year the average quarterly enrolment is 14,653, and the average attendance 10,790·3.

The Public School statistics for December, 1882, and December, 1883, appear to indicate that at least one half of the pupils who were formerly under inspection in the Denominational Schools have passed into Public Schools. Thus, in December, 1882, there were enrolled in the Public Schools :—

Church of England	7,244
Roman Catholic	1,289
Presbyterian	1,002
Wesleyan	1,743
Others	2,081
Total	13,359

And in December, 1883 :—

Church of England	8,756
Roman Catholic	1,398
Presbyterian	1,165
Wesleyan	2,108
Others.....	2,576
Total	16,003

It has been previously stated that the enrolment for the year, admitting no deductions, was 23,462. Of this number 14,685 failed to attend the minimum of 140 days during the year.

In most of the schools the cubic space exceeds 100 feet per pupil, so that in this respect the school accommodation is ample. As regards sanitary arrangement there is, even in some of the modern buildings, room for improvement.

Commodious schoolhouses have during the year been completed at Bondi, Double Bay, and Glenmore Road. Others are in course of erection in Bourke-street, Woolloomooloo, Darlinghurst, Summer Hill, and Waterloo, to supersede the temporary school buildings at those places.

In the schools inspected by me, 9,564 pupils were present at the examinations, and the following table will show the percentages of those who reached or exceeded a standard of fair. The per centage of passes for 1882 is also shewn :—

Subject.	Number of Pupils examined.	Percentage of Passes.
		1883.	1882.
Reading	9,442	81	84
Writing (slates)	4,600	90	93
„ (paper)	4,841	92	97
Dictation	5,985	69
Arithmetic, simple rule	5,226	70	62
„ compound rule	1,498	41	72
„ higher rule	952	54	72
Grammar	4,912	60	63
Geography	7,477	83	85
History	353	80	100
Scripture	5,232	70	85
Object Lessons	9,564	71	78
Drawing	4,227	84	84
Vocal music	8,327	90	90
Euclid	331	60	74
Algebra	277	30	90
Mensuration	116	68	78
Latin	97	100	86
Trigonometry	21	50	100
Needlework	2,419	96	93
Drill	7,825	57	74

As the percentages for 1883 are not so favourable as those for 1882 it is proper to state that two matters have affected the results for this year.

1. In many of the schools the inspection was held shortly after a general promotion in the classes.

2. An unusually large number of pupils have at various periods of the year been, by my direction, removed from Infant departments to the lower classes of Primary departments, solely on the ground that they were much too old to remain with Infants.

The inability of these so-called Infants to satisfactorily pass the Primary School tests in no way reflects on the teachers.

New Standards of Instruction will come into force in 1884, and will ensure that children in Infants' Schools shall be fitted by attainments to pass into the Primary Schools by the time they reach the age of seven years.

The general efficiency in the 59 schools I have inspected—taking a standard of Fair as the pass—is as follows :—

Below Standard	7
Up to Standard	39
Beyond Standard	13

The teachers employed in the schools under my supervision are :—

Principal Teachers	66
Assistant Teachers	65
Pupil Teachers	148
Work-mistresses	19
Assistant Work-mistressess	4
Drill Instructors	2
Singing Masters	2

As regards the Principals, Assistants, and Pupil Teachers, they are classified thus :—

	IA.	IB.	IIA.	IIB.	IIIA.	IIIB.	IIIC.	Not classed.
Teachers	2	6	31	21	3	3
Assistants	4	3	22	9	5	4	18

	Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.
Pupil Teachers	24	41	35	48

I have pleasure in stating that I have found the teachers and their assistants trustworthy, and in the management of their schools they have, with an exception or two, secured the confidence of pupils and parents.

In conclusion, I have to state that in the schools to which this report refers good work has been done, and there has been marked improvement in the material condition.

J. W. ALLPASS,
Inspector.

ANNEX G.

MR. INSPECTOR MURRAY'S REPORT FOR 1883.

At the close of 1882 there were in operation in this section of the Metropolitan District :—

69 Public Schools,	5 Church of England,
5 Provisional,	6 Roman Catholic.
8 Half-time,

The 11 Denominational Schools ceased to receive aid as such from the State. Two of the Church of England Schools were closed absolutely, and the children attending them joined the Public Schools in their neighbourhood. One of the Roman Catholic Schools and two of the Church of England Schools were converted into Public Schools, the Public Instruction Department paying rent for the use of the buildings. One Church of England School and five Roman Catholic Schools were continued as private or unaided Denominational Schools.

Public Schools were established at Peats' Ferry Road and Nepean, near Penrith.

Provisional Schools were established at Little Dural, and Gentleman's Halt,

During

During the year new school premises have been completed at—

Mulgoa,	Riverstone,
Nepean,	Little Dural,
Regentville,	Gentleman's Halt, and

Colyton.

Provision has been made for new buildings at—

Australian Farm,	Windsor (Girls).
Granville (Infants),	Rookwood (Infants),
Penrith (Girls),	Prospect Reservoir,
Parramatta South (Infants),	Peat's Ferry, and Main Camp, near Ryde.

The school buildings at the undermentioned places have undergone necessary repairs during the year—

Baulkham Hills,	Nelson,
Blacktown,	Hornsby,
Richmond,	Freeman's Reach,
Dural,	Kurrajong South,
Dundas,	Parramatta South,
Central M'Donald,	Ryde, and
Pennant Hills,	Pitt Town.

Steps have been initiated with the view of erecting new school buildings at the following places :—

Parramatta North,	McDonald, Upper,
Comleroy Road,	Rouse Hill,
Seven Hills,	Upper Colo, and

Wheeny Creek.

When these are completed the educational wants of this part of the district will be well provided for. During the year there were in operation

76 Public Schools

7 Provisional Schools

8 Half-time „

In all 91 schools or Departments.

The Provisional School at Gentleman's Halt was not opened till 12th November, and hence was not examined; all the rest were fully examined. Two Provisional Schools were examined by Mr. Inspector McIntyre; one Infants' School was examined by Mr. Assistant-Inspector Blumer; one Provisional School and twelve Public Schools were examined by Mr. District Inspector McCredie. All the other seventy-five schools were examined by myself.

In the schools examined by me there were

Enrolled	5,889 pupils
Examined	5,487 „
In ordinary attendance	4,526 „
In average attendance	4,262.5 „
Attended 70 or more days during the half-year previous to date of examination.	3,794 „
Attended less than 70 days during the same period.....	2,095 „

Thus it appears that nearly one-half of the children enrolled do not attend the number of days required by the compulsory clause of the Public Instruction Act. This is a very unsatisfactory state of things, and I regret to have to state that there is no hope of amendment except in a strict enforcement of the law as to defaulting parents.

In general the organization of the schools inspected by me may be estimated as from very fair to very good. The children as a whole were found to be clean, neatly dressed, and well behaved.

Some of the schoolrooms are yet unprovided with door-mats and scrapers. Of course cleanliness cannot be expected in these schools, nor are the children attending them taught habits of cleanliness and order. Now that the Department makes an allowance to all teachers for school-cleaning none can plead a reasonable excuse for the absence of the indispensable school requisites here named.

The table appended to the statistics accompanying this report shows the condition of schools examined in relation to the standard (fair), and the following table shows the percentage of pupils who satisfied the standard (fair) in each subject of instruction in which they were examined in 1882 and in 1883.

Subjects.	In 1882.	In 1883.
Reading	87.2	87.0
Writing	86.2	77.6
Arithmetic	82.2	84.9
Grammar	77.5	80.0
Geography	52.2	69.6
English History	100.0
Scripture Lessons	80.0	90.4
Object Lessons	81.2	80.1
Drawing	74.6	90.1
Music	66.9	73.0
Euclid	88.0	66.6
Algebra	86.4	75.2
Mensuration	75.0	55.0
Needlework	78.1	94.0
Drill	83.1	80.8
Trigonometry	100.0
French	89.6
Latin	100.0

The three last-mentioned subjects are taught in but two schools, and, up to the extent which the pupils had been taught, the results were as shown in the above table. Although there is an increase this year in the percentage of passes in Grammar, Geography and Arithmetic, yet most of the remarks made in my report of 1882 upon the teaching of these subjects are still applicable.

In reading, sufficient attention is not given to the meanings of words, and in the higher classes but few of the pupils had much acquaintance with the derivation of words.

Grammar.—In many schools accidence and composition were found to be weak points.

Geography.—It would be a great advantage to many pupils if a portion of the time now spent in teaching the geography of Africa and Asia were devoted to the teaching of the geography of New South Wales and Australasia.

Arithmetic.—In this subject the teaching is still too mechanical. The pupil should be made to clearly understand the reason of every step he takes in the working of his sums.

Teachers.—There are employed in this section of the district—

Teachers	85
Assistant Teachers.....	9
Pupil „	59
Work-mistresses	10

The teachers and assistant teachers are classified as under :—

Class.	Section.	No. of teachers.
II	A	12
II	B	18
III	A	32
III	B	12
III	C	6
Unknown		2
Probationers		12

Pupil-Teachers.—In the large schools much of the teaching is done by pupil-teachers, and therefore their proper training is a matter of great importance both to the schools in which they are placed and to the future efficiency of the schools of the country. The time-table of every school in which pupil-teachers are employed should provide for the principal teacher giving his undivided attention to them for a short time each week, that he may observe how they deliver their lessons, correct their faults, and offer advice for their improvement. There are at present but few such time-tables, but they are being provided in all schools where needed.

As a general rule the pupil-teachers are highly spoken of by the teachers having charge of them. From my own observation, and having tested their work, I am able to speak very favourably and with confidence of their character and usefulness.

They are, as a whole, studious, and in most cases receive more than the prescribed quantity of instruction from the principal teachers after school hours.

Everything, therefore, in respect to these young teachers is full of hope and promise.

To sum up :—There has been considerable improvement made in the organization of the schools during the year. In seven subjects the percentages obtained this year are lower than those obtained last year, but in seven subjects the results are higher.

The teachers, as a body, exhibit an earnest desire to raise the efficiency of their schools to the highest possible point.

The educational prospects of the district are therefore very hopeful.

9th January, 1884.

Inspector.

ANNEX H.

GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

WOLLONGONG SECTION OF METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

I HAVE the honor to submit my General Report, for the year 1883, upon the condition of the schools under my supervision, in the Wollongong Section of the Metropolitan District.

Eighty-one schools of all classes were assigned to me for inspection during the year, viz. :—

Public Schools.....	70
Provisional Schools	6
Half-time Schools	4
Evening Public School	1
Total.....	81

Of these schools, three Public and one Provisional were opened during the year, and one Public was closed, but subsequently opened as a Provisional School during the latter half of the year.

The following table shows the number of schools under my supervision, and the number which were fully inspected or otherwise :—

	Public.	Provisional.	Half-time.	Evening.
Number of schools in operation during 1883 or any portion thereof	70	6	4	1
Number fully inspected.....	66	5	4	...
Number not inspected	4	1	...	1

The schools not inspected were in operation during a part of the year only, and, owing to lack of opportunity, inspection in these cases could not be made. An Evening Public School was in operation for a few months only at Clifton, being closed at the end of the year on account of insufficient attendance.

This section of the Metropolitan District may be regarded as being amply provided with schools, and instances are very few (if any) in which the means of education are beyond the reach of families. In some localities new schools are too close together, and the attendance at such schools fluctuates according to the whim or caprice of parents.

Material condition.—The accommodation provided may be regarded as fair on the whole, and improvements or additions with a view to furnishing more suitable provision, where needed, have been as far as practicable effected. The tent schools have proved to be not only unsuitable to educational purposes, but in three or four instances the tents have needed either frequent and extensive repairs or re-erecting, on account of damage by storms. The substitution of temporary wooden buildings for tents will furnish a more suitable provision for the educational requirements of temporary centres of population.

The condition of the schools with respect to general efficiency may be gauged by the following summary :—

Schools.	Above Standard.	Equal to Standard.	Below Standard.
Public Schools	21	24	21
Provisional Schools	3	1	1
Half-time Schools	3	1	...
Total—All Schools	27	26	22

The percentages given below will afford some illustration as to improvement or retrogression in the various subjects of instruction since the previous year :—

Subjects.	Percentages, 1882.	Percentages, 1883.
Reading	78 per cent.	76 per cent.
Writing	90 "	80 "
Arithmetic	55 "	76 "
Grammar	59 "	72 "
Geography	56 "	64 "
Scripture	79 "	50 "
Object Lesson	60 "	52 "
Drawing	70 "	56 "
Singing	68 "	77 "
Geometry	53 "	90 "
Algebra	90 "	95 "
Latin	None	50 "
Needlework	89 per cent.	87 "
Drill	55 "	56 "

The percentages for 1883 are not in all respects computed on the same basis as those of the preceding year (1882), inasmuch as the schools programmed for my inspection were not altogether identical with those assigned to me, or my predecessor, during 1882. In some subjects, therefore, a marked difference is observable.

Reading.—In the upper classes the reading is generally of a satisfactory character, being fluent and intelligent. In the lower classes, especially in the smaller schools, the reading is apt to be defective in accuracy and distinct enunciation. This arises partly from slovenly teaching, and partly from insufficiency of simultaneous reading.

Writing.—A good standard is maintained in this subject; but instances are not infrequent in which there is room for considerable improvement in the method of teaching, attitude of pupils, and the mode of holding the pen or pencil. The value of illustration upon the blackboard as to correct form or shape of letters is not sufficiently appreciated.

Arithmetic.—This subject as a whole is well up to standard, especially in the more elementary rules. Inaccuracy of working is, however, frequently to be met with among the more advanced pupils, and exercises set to upper classes with a view to test accuracy are often unsatisfactory as regards results.

Grammar.—Considerable improvement in this subject, which hitherto has been weak, is apparent, and I attribute the higher proficiency attained to a more liberal use of the blackboard.

Geography.—The percentage in this particular is higher than that of the preceding year. The instruction is, however, too often of a faulty, unimpressive, and bald character.

Scripture.—There is but tolerable proficiency shown, and too little attention is bestowed upon this subject to ensure satisfactory results.

Object Lesson.—Generally speaking, this subject, which should be most carefully considered and prepared by the teacher, is entered upon without the preparation necessary, and the blackboard is but scantily used. Under these circumstances the proficiency of pupils cannot be satisfactory.

Drawing.—Even fair results cannot be looked for without a more uniform and systematic method of instruction; progressive from the first elements, with abundance of exercise in free-hand drawing.

Singing.—Where taught the pupils show very fair proficiency, and in the larger schools, where numbers admit of greater scope, the part-singing is generally very creditable.

Geometry and Algebra.—The proficiency of pupils in schools where these subjects are taught has this year been very satisfactory.

Latin.—The standard attained is low, and insufficient to be of any practical value.

Needlework.—The average proficiency is good, and as a rule this subject is well taught.

Drill.—In the larger schools the number and permanency of boys admit of the organization of a good class in military drill, and in such schools the range of manœuvres and the proficiency shown are creditable, but in the smaller schools little beyond very elementary squad movements is acquired.

The

The estimated proficiency of the pupils of all schools is shown below on a tabulated form :—

To sum up :—The material condition of the schools is fair, and this section of the Metropolitan District is amply provided with the means of education. The general result of inspection induces a reasonable anticipation of improvement in the future.

ANNEX I.

ARMIDALE DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT INSPECTOR BRADLEY'S GENERAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

1. Schools and School Establishment.

DURING the year 1883 there were in operation throughout the district under my charge 150 schools. Of this number, 118 were open during the whole of the year, and thirty-two for part of the time,—on the average for five months. Of these latter, twenty-five were schools newly opened; six were schools closed temporarily for various reasons, and one (Maluerindi P.) has been closed permanently and the building shifted, owing to an entire exodus of population from the locality in which it was situated.

The classification of the schools referred to in the foregoing paragraph is shown in the following table :—

Schools.	Public.	Provisional.	Half-Time.	Evening Schools.	House Schools.	Totals.
Open all the year	106	9	2	1	..	118
Open for part of year	16	11	..	2	3	32
Totals	122	20	2	3	3	150

The twenty-five schools newly opened comprise—

Public Schools (12) :—Gum Flat, Hall's Creek, Nullamana, Pilliga, Pond's Creek, Werris Creek, Woolamol, Bolivia, Hartford, Hillview, Loch End, Orundunbi.

Provisional Schools (9) :—Berrigal Creek, Duncan's Creek, Hemsworth, Reedy Creek, Seven-mile Station, Stanborough, Swanvale, Upper Horton River, Walcha Road Station.

Evening Provisional School (1) :—Elsmore.

House Schools (3) :—Blackville, Mount Parnell, Turkey Creek.

Applications for school establishments have been very numerous during the past year, no fewer than forty having been inquired into and reported upon, and a few others recently received have still to be dealt with. In thirty cases the establishment of the class of schools applied for has been granted; in five, schools of a lower grade than those desired are to be or have been established; and decision in five other cases is still pending, but will in all probability be favourable.

During the year 1882 it was decided that, within certain limits and upon certain conditions, two-thirds of the cost of providing buildings and furniture for Provisional Schools should be borne by the Department. The operation of this rule has been to some extent beneficial, but not so largely as might have been expected. Now, however, the whole cost of such buildings and furniture is to be paid out of public funds, the only condition imposed being that the residents themselves shall undertake the supervision of the work and have it properly completed according to certain general directions issued, before payment on account thereof is made by the Minister. This liberal provision, with the facilities that exist for obtaining aid towards the conduct of House Schools in the more thinly peopled parts of the Colony, places the means of education within the reach of all but individual families whose complete isolation must of necessity render State education impracticable.

The spread of population is going on daily, and will increase more rapidly as railway extension proceeds. The wants of the district have, however, been met as new demands arose; and, under arrangements recently sanctioned with a view to providing the smaller buildings for Public Schools cheaply and more expeditiously than heretofore, there is little reason to fear that the supply of schools will not keep well apace with the demand for them.

II.—Attendance.

The gross enrolment of pupils for the year 1883 was 11,963. From this number, 889 must be deducted for multiple enrolments that occurred during the year. The net enrolment will therefore amount to 11,074, showing an increase of 1,074 upon the record for the year 1882. For the four quarters of the year the enrolment averaged 8,608, about 1,000 in excess of that of the previous year; while the average attendance per quarter reached 5,604, as against 4,824 in 1882. The average attendance is to the enrolment in the ratio of 65 per cent.; last year's rate was 62 per cent. This rate of regularity, although showing improvement, is still unsatisfactory. According to returns furnished by the teachers of the schools throughout the district, it appears that, out of the 11,963 pupils enrolled, only 4,777 attended for 140 days or more; while the remainder, 7,186, attended school for less than 140 days. Care must be taken, however, lest erroneous conclusions be drawn from these data. It must be remembered that out of the number thus recorded as defaulters, so far as statutory attendance is concerned, very few (if any) of those who attended schools newly opened or in operation for but a portion of the year could possibly complete the 140 days attendances; and such schools numbered 32, and had an aggregate attendance of over 1,000 children. Again, 889 children are represented as having attended more schools than one. Now, while it is probable that most of these pupils have attended for less than 140 days at any one school, and have therefore been returned as defaulters, it is not at all unlikely that the majority have, in their aggregate attendance, exceeded the minimum attendance prescribed by the Act. But when all has been said in extenuation that may fairly be advanced, it must be admitted that, while matters are not as bad as they seem, they are quite bad enough. On the average, about one day out of three is lost from school attendance, not only in this district, but throughout the Colony—for the rate is pretty general and constant; and this loss is doubly vexatious—first, because of the hindrance it opposes to the child's progress, and, secondly, in view of the very liberal provision that has been made by the Country for primary education. There can be no doubt as to the necessity that exists for imposing severer restrictions and heavier penalties on negligent and indifferent parents; and it is satisfactory to know that such severer measures are not unlikely to be resorted to.

III.—School buildings, organization, &c.

During the past year improvements in the matter of school buildings have been both numerous and important, and the nature of the various works undertaken or completed may be thus stated :—

(a) Buildings completed.—Boggabri, Clairvaux, Emmaville (Infants), George's Creek, Gum Flat, Hall's Creek, Kentucky, Little Plain, Meermaul, Moonbi, Narrabri (Infants), Nullamana, Nullamana, Steinbrook, Sunnyside, Tamworth West, Tenterfield (Infants), Walcha, Werris Creek, Willow-tree, Wilson's Downfall, and Woolomol.

(b) Buildings in progress.—Armidale, Bendemeer, Black Mountain, Dungowan Lower, Elsmore, Gilgai, Glen, Hartford, Narrabri Railway Station, Orundunbi, Shannon Vale, Spring Creek, Stannifer, Tintinhull.

(c) Important additions.—Bingera, Cockburn River, Gunnedah, Quirindi, Warialda.

In addition to the foregoing, numerous repairs of a minor character have been effected as the need arose, so that now it may safely be said that, as a whole, the material condition of the schools is either satisfactory or in a fair way of becoming so. An important step as regards the provision of the smaller Public School buildings has recently been taken by the Minister—one which will result not only in the saving of many thousands of pounds yearly, but which will secure the greatest possible expedition in the erection of such buildings. Although such rule has but been in operation for a few months, markedly beneficial results in the directions indicated have ensued.

The internal equipment of the school buildings, so far as essentials are concerned, leaves little room for complaint, and has certainly improved during the past year. Now that the supply of furniture for all schools is provided by the Department, the smaller schools more recently established have been fitted with desks, forms, &c., of approved character; and by degrees the old, misshapen, and unsuitable stock of other schools is being replaced by articles of a better description. Complaints are sometimes made by teachers that the supply of minor apparatus—slates, pencils, pens, &c.—granted by the Department is inadequate; but there is good reason to believe that with care and economy the stock supplied is sufficient for all ordinary requirements.

IV.—Inspection.

As stated in a previous paragraph of this report, 150 schools have been in operation in my district for the whole or part of 1883. Out of this number 57 were due for inspection by Mr. Inspector Smith, 53 by Mr. Assistant-Inspector Nolan, and 40 by myself. In all, 142 schools have received full inspection; and 8, all but two of which are either Evening Public or House Schools, remain uninspected. Four of these latter (1 Public, 1 Evening Public, and 2 House Schools) are on Mr. Smith's list; three (1 Provisional and 2 Evening Public) on Mr. Nolan's; and one (House School) on mine. Mr. Assistant-Inspector Nolan's employment in the district did not commence until July, and his duties have been performed with care and energy, and in all essential points to my entire satisfaction.

Besides the general inspections (142) that were held last year, twenty "ordinary" inspections have been made, and three special inspections of large schools were in addition conducted by myself. On the whole, the work of inspection has been more thorough and more effective than in any previous year, and I look for still further improvement during the year now commenced. The total number of children examined was 6,196. This number exceeds the list for 1882 by more than 1,000, and is 600 above the average daily attendance at the schools.

The condition of the schools, as regards the attainments of the pupils relatively to the Standard of Proficiency, is shown in the following table, and is lower than that recorded for the previous year. The falling off I believe to be attributable mainly to two causes—first, the opening of a large number of new schools, many of which are in the hands of untrained teachers, and secondly, to the prevalence of measles throughout the greater part of the district, which affected the attendance very greatly, and chiefly at a time when inspection was being carried on with most vigour. Grouping all the schools of the district that have received inspection, the general attainments of the pupils relatively to the standard are thus tabulated:—

Class of School.	Number below Standard.	Number up to Standard.	Number above Standard.	Totals.
Public	54	21	46	121
Provisional	18	1	19
Half-time	2	2
Totals	72	22	48	142

Or, to present the matter in another form: among Public Schools 56 per cent. reached or exceeded the standard, and 44 per cent. fell below its requirements; 5 per cent. of the Provisional Schools reached the standard, and 95 per cent. did not; and all (two) of the Half-time Schools exceeded the standard.

The following table, compiled from the detailed inspection reports, will furnish better data from which to deduce conclusions as to the general attainments of the pupils. It exhibits (1) the subjects of examination, (2) the total number of children examined in each, (3) the percentage of pupils satisfying or exceeding the requirements of the standard, (4) the percentage that failed to reach the standard, and (5) the degree of progress or retrogression apparent as compared with the results of the previous year.

Subjects.	Number of Pupils examined.	Percentage up to or exceeding Standard.	Percentage below Standard.	Progress or Retrogression.
Reading	6,196	74 per cent.	26 per cent.	+3 per cent.
Writing	6,196	84 "	16 "	+5 "
Arithmetic	6,196	54 "	46 "	+7 "
Grammar	2,834	60 "	40 "	+1 "
Geography	2,931	66 "	34 "	+2 "
Scripture	1,052	82 "	18 "	+21 "
Object Lessons	6,170	62 "	38 "	—1 "
Drawing	2,725	63 "	37 "	+2 "
Music	3,885	73 "	27 "	—2 "
Euclid	105	71 "	29 "	—29 "
Algebra	43	72 "	28 "	—28 "
Mensuration	47	74 "	26 "	+70 "
Latin	77	48 "	52 "	+52 "
Needlework	1,817	85 "	15 "	=
Drill	4,690	64 "	36 "	+23 "

Viewing this table in connection with the previous one, it will be seen that, while a greater number of schools are recorded as below standard than was the case in 1882, absolutely more pupils have satisfied the standard during 1883 than did so in 1882. This is owing to the fact that the poorer results have been found mainly in the smaller schools, while in the larger ones fairly substantial progress has been made in all the important subjects of primary instruction. Taking the work of the pupils as a whole, improvement is evident in reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, geography, Scripture history, drawing, mensuration, Latin, and drill. The results in needlework are the same as for last year; and, in the few remaining subjects, more or less retrogression is shown.

The

The issue of the new Standard of Proficiency, recently effected, will prove of infinite advantage to teachers; and, aiming as it does at securing almost exclusive attention in the lower grades to the essential subjects of primary instruction (reading, writing, and arithmetic), not only will greater proficiency therein result, but the scope of the teaching will be largely extended. Some teachers appear to regard the range prescribed in these subjects as excessive; but, with the amount of time now available for attention to them, there can be little doubt that, with ordinary industry, what is set down for accomplishment may be compassed.

The condition of the schools as regards discipline continues to be, on the whole, very satisfactory. In a few cases (notably those of the Primary Departments of the Public Schools at Armidale and Tamworth) the highest standard of excellence is attained, while instances of positively ill-conducted and disorderly schools are, happily, extremely rare. Punctuality of attendance, cleanliness, cheerfulness, and respectful demeanour (all of them the natural outcome of a healthy discipline) are salient features in the majority of schools, while the increased attention that has been paid to drill has secured corresponding improvement in the degree of quietness, precision, and expedition with which the various class-movements are performed.

V.—TEACHERS.

The teaching strength of the district has received very fair accession within the year, an increase of twenty-four principal teachers, three assistants, twenty-three pupil-teachers, and three work-mistresses having taken place. The following tables exhibit their classification—

Staff.	Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Not classified.	Totals.
	A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
Teachers	7	20	28	20	14	56	145
Assistants	9	3	12

Staff.	Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	Totals.
Pupil-Teachers	3	6	9	19	37

Twenty-eight teachers gained a higher classification by examination during the year, and the disposition to study has evidently improved. In a few instances, where examination has been compulsory, flimsy excuses have been framed in order that the ordeal might be escaped or postponed; but, as a rule, very creditable effort is being made, especially among teachers of the lower grades, to improve their qualifications.

As a body the teachers are respectable and respected, and work with zeal and intelligence. The pupil-teachers, almost without exception, are favourably reported on for diligence, good conduct, and efficiency. Too many, however, fail to pass the yearly examination, and there is reason to believe that some principal teachers, to save themselves trouble in the preparation of lessons for their pupil-teachers, substitute task-work or exercises for oral teaching and thorough searching examination.

VI.—Summary.

Compared with the general results of 1882, those of last year afford reasonable ground for satisfaction. A very substantial increase in the attendance of pupils and in the number of new school buildings erected has taken place; and recent provisions of a special character will render the spread of the means of education still more easy and expeditious. Twenty per cent. more pupils were subjected to examination than in 1882, and their proficiency, especially in the more important subjects of instruction has improved, although but slightly. The introduction of the new Standard of Proficiency will simplify the work of the teachers and turn their efforts to more profitable account.

Altogether the prospects of the coming year may be regarded from all points as more than ordinarily encouraging.

J. D. BRADLEY,
District Inspector, Armidale.

ANNEX J.

MR. INSPECTOR SMITH'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I.—The means of education.

DURING the month of July last, a subdivision, having Inverell for the Inspector's head-quarters, was made in the Tamworth Division of the Armidale District. The following tabulated form, therefore, will refer only to that portion of the district under my own special supervision subsequent to the above date:—

Schools.	No. opened.	No. closed.	No. in operation during the whole or part of 1883.
Public	4	45
Provisional	2	1	8
Evening Public	1
House to House	2	2
Totals	8	1	56

During the year Public Schools were opened at Pilliga, Swamp Oak, Werris Creek, and Woolomol; Provisional Schools at Berrigal Creek and Duncan's Creek; House to House Schools at Blackville and Yarrowman, Mount Parnell, and Pine Ridge. The Provisional School at Womboramurra was closed for a short time in consequence of the teacher having suddenly absconded from the locality, but it will be re-opened immediately after the Christmas vacation.

In addition to the new schools above-mentioned, five more Public Schools will be finished in a few months,—Meermail, Molley, Narrabri Railway Station, Pallamallawa, and Spring Creek. Tenders have also been called for new Public Schools at Gaspard, near Wallabadah, Hawkins Creek, near Barraba, and Milliwindi, near Keepit.

Applications have been granted for the establishment of Provisional Schools at Emerald Hill, Pialamore, and Rocky Gully; and a teacher has been appointed to work from house to house at places known as Wood's Reef, Rockmore, and Crowley's, to the east of Barraba.

Persons

Persons who live in the most sparsely populated parts of the district have now no excuses to make for neglecting to have their children educated. And it is most gratifying to have to report that the regulations recently issued for the establishment of small schools, and the appointment of itinerant teachers have proved most acceptable to the poor settlers in the far bush. Applications for such schools have come in lately with extraordinary rapidity; and when it is better understood that the settlers themselves have nothing whatever to pay for the building or furniture of Provisional Schools, or for the furniture of Half-Time Schools, a steady increase of these applications may be expected.

II.—Material condition and organization.

During the year new school buildings were commenced at Bendemeer, Eulah Creek, Moonbi, Tintinhull, and Wee Waa, and one is nearly finished at Willow-tree. Splendid buildings, containing every convenience for the proper conduct of a large school, have been completed at Tamworth West. Standing as they do in the very centre of the town, on most spacious grounds, they have a very attractive appearance, and form a most pleasing contrast to the small, uncomfortable schoolroom by the road-side formerly known as the C. E. Denominational School.

Extensive alterations and improvements have been carried out at Moor Creek, Narrabri, Quirindi, and Walgett. Tenders have been called for the addition of a new class-room at Manilla, and for new school buildings at Keepit, Gunnenbene, Manilla Upper, and Upper and Lower Dungowan.

The internal arrangement of all the schools may be pronounced fairly satisfactory. The furniture and other school appliances are in fair order and sufficient. The records have been kept with greater accuracy than neatness; in only one case was a teacher discovered to have made false entries in his class roll.

III.—Attendance.

The total enrolment for the year was 4,932, but of this number 370 had been enrolled twice, and 10 three times, so that the actual number should probably be 4,542.

The average attendance for the year was 2,473.1.

The enrolment for the quarter ended 31st December, 1883, was 3,782, and for 31st December, 1882, was 3,205. Difference, 577.

The average attendance for the same quarter in 1883 was 2,595.5, and in 1882 was 1,918.9. Difference, 676.6.

The great increase for this year both in the enrolment and average attendance must be attributed partly to the work of the Attendance-officers of the district, and partly to the number of new schools which have been established.

IV.—Inspection.

The number of schools fully inspected, and the number not fully or regularly inspected during 1883, may be seen from the following table:—

	Public.	Provisional.	Evening Public.	H. to House.
Inspected	46	7
Not inspected	1	...	1	2
Totals	47	7	1	2

Werris Creek Public School was not inspected, as it had only been in operation three weeks before the Christmas vacation, and Tamworth West Evening Public School was closed at the end of the year, and just at the time when there was an opportunity of holding an inspection. The pupils of the two itinerant teachers were not examined, because their schools were not in existence when the respective localities were visited.

In addition to these general inspections, three ordinary inspections were held of Attunga, Gunnedah, and Nundle Public Schools. Had not the weather proved most favourable for travelling, it may safely be stated that all the schools could not have been visited in this district, extending as it does over such a wide scope of country and the schools being so very far apart. Special visits for the selection of sites, examination of applicant pupil teachers, personal inquiries on applications for new schools, and also investigations into teachers' conduct have occupied no inconsiderable portion of my time.

The condition of the schools inspected may be thus summarized:—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard (Fair).	Above Standard.
Public	18	14	13
Provisional	7	1	...
Totals.....	25	15	13

Percentages.

Public Schools.				Provisional Schools.

Latin.....	22	...	100
Needlework.....	726	76	24
Drill	1,134	49	51

The percentages for the Public Schools alone are rather higher than they were for the preceding year, but in conjunction with those for the Provisional Schools they are in some of the subjects lower than and in others about the same as they were in 1882.

V.—Teachers.

Out of forty-nine teachers and assistant-teachers of Public Schools, eight are unclassified. Five of the latter presented themselves for examination last Christmas. None of the provisional school teachers are classified. There are sixteen pupil-teachers employed in the Tamworth Division of the Armidale District, and most of them are doing fair work in their respective schools. Efforts have lately been made to establish Saturday classes for the instruction of pupil-teachers in Latin, French, and vocal music. These special subjects are not generally taught by the head teachers, and yet the pupil-teachers are expected to pass an examination in them once a year. The classes therefore, if formed, will prove of the greatest advantage to the pupil-teachers.

There have been four cases during the year which called for special investigation. Three of these were for undue severity in the punishment of children of tender years or of disorderly pupils, and one for making false entries in the Class Roll.

VI.—Summary.

Comparing the results of the examinations of schools this year with those obtained for the year 1882, it may be gathered that there has been some retrogression. In 1882, fifty-seven schools out of sixty-six were up to or above the standard, while in 1883, only twenty-eight out of fifty-three were up to or above the standard. This, I believe to be due to the number of new schools, in which the pupils were exceedingly backward, the frequent changes of teachers, the loss of a few well-conducted schools through the subdivision of the district, and also in a small degree to the falling-off in energy and perseverance on the part of one or two teachers. These latter have now been removed, and hopes may be entertained of better results in attainments in 1884. The material condition of the schools has greatly improved.

So far as the future prospects of the schools now placed under my supervision can be foreseen, they may on the whole be pronounced as fairly satisfactory.

Inspector.

ANNEX K.

WAGGA WAGGA DISTRICT.

DISTRICT INSPECTOR HICKS' GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

I.—Supervision.

THE year commenced with a continuance of the previously existing arrangements for supervision, viz., myself at Wagga Wagga, Mr. Hookins at Albury, and Mr. Lawford at Yass; but continued progress rendered it necessary to supply the want which I indicated last year, viz., an inspectorial centre at Hay or Deniliquin. Hay was selected, and Mr. S. J. Wright, B.A., was stationed there as Assistant-Inspector in July last.

Owing to press of work, it was also found necessary to send Mr. Inspector McIntyre to a few places in the district.

With a view to enable me to become directly acquainted with the principal circuits in the several sections of my district, I inspected the schools at Albury and Corowa, in the Albury section, and Young and Ironbong in the Yass section, and also visited other localities, as Yass, Monteagle, Cootamundra, Hay, Darlington Point, and Carrathool. To compensate for this, the Inspectors in the other sections inspected schools in the Wagga Wagga section. Experience shows that this plan is a beneficial one.

The schools around Wheoco, Binda, and Tuena were found to be so situated as to be much more conveniently reached from some other district, while schools in other districts could be most easily supervised by an officer from this. A plan for the most economical re-distribution of the schools and of the increased inspectorial agency, from the beginning of 1884, has been submitted for approval.

II.—MEANS OF EDUCATION.

1. Schools.

Of the 232 schools that were in existence at the end of 1882, the eight Denominational Schools (Young C.E., Adelong R.C., Albury R.C., Jugiong R.C., Tumut R.C., Wagga Wagga R.C., Young R.C., and Yass R.C.) ceased, under the Act, to receive aid from the State from the beginning of 1883. Three of them thereupon collapsed, but ample provision for the pupils had been made in the Public Schools in the several localities.

Notwithstanding this loss, the number of schools in existence has now risen to 254, or a gain for the year of 22 schools. The new schools are well distributed, and keep pace with the expansion of settlement. One of them, Milparinka, is in the north-west corner of the Colony, on the Mount Browne Gold-field, 200 miles beyond the Darling. The "westward" movement referred to in my former reports is further exemplified by the applications for new schools at South Merrowee, Gunbar, Whealbah, and Berigan, and by applications in prospect from Mossiel, Ivanhoe, and Pooncaira.

221 of the schools were in operation during the whole of the year, and 38 for a part of the year. The following schools, three in number, closed during the year through failure of attendance:—

Wantabadgery, Provisional Wyangle " Thulabin "

No new causes for the fluctuations in school attendance and population have presented themselves.

As the result of action taken, new schools are likely to come into existence at Currawarna, Illabo, Jellingrove, Eunonhyareenhya, Minjary, Coolaman, Greenbank (Nacka Nacka), Darbalara, Belowra, Diamond Swamp, Blackney Creek, Denbigh, Graham, Gobarralong, Calabash, Dudauman, Barwang, Bigga, Beaconsfield, Sawpit Gully, Khalangan, Mountain Station, Wonderrybingle, Berigan, Hulong, Gerogery Railway Station, Yambla, Huon, Bago, Clear Hills, Goonambil, Narrama, and South Merrowee.

It is therefore not unreasonable to expect that by the end of 1884 the schools of the district will number 270 to 280.

The recent decisions of the Minister to defray the whole cost of Provisional as well as Public School buildings and furniture, and to erect cheap commodious wooden buildings not requiring a professional plan and specification, are likely to expedite the establishment of schools.

Applications for new schools at Kalafat, Mountain Creek, Savernake, Brookong, Wombat Reserve, and Breakfast Creek, have just come in, and will receive early attention.

The provision for imparting instruction by itinerating teachers has been availed of only to a very limited extent. There is but one such teacher employed (at Dog-trap), but one or two other applications which are likely to ensue from the action of the Attendance-officers, may possibly result in providing for the education of some thirty to forty children now isolated and neglected. Of the four Half-time Schools that were in existence at the commencement of the year, two have developed into Public, and two into Provisional Schools.

The Evening Schools have collapsed, and there is no present prospect of re-opening them or establishing others.

Wagga Wagga is still the only "Superior" School. Further experience confirms me in the already expressed opinion that the benefits of "Superior" Schools will not be secured until special or selected staffs are appointed.

It

It is safe to conclude that the establishment of schools is keeping pace with the increase and spread of population ; and it may be as safely added that the means of education in the district are reasonably adequate as regards both amount and distribution.

2. School Premises and Accommodation.

This matter has continued to receive unremitting and close attention, and as a result, a considerable number of new school-buildings have been erected, and others have been enlarged and repaired. Thus, in the Wagga Wagga section the following improvements may be noted :—

Alfred Town	}	New well-appointed school-buildings completed.
Collengullie
Gundagai
Humula
Junee
Junee Junction
Malebo
Narandera
Rowan
South Gundagai
Yerong Creek	}	Necessary repairs and improvements effected.
Blowering
Brungle
Cooba Creek
Gadara
Gocup
Lake Albert
Lower Tarcutta
Shepherdstown
Yathella
Yaven Gaven

At the following schools the necessary improvements either are being carried out or will be shortly :—

Clarendon	}	New buildings.
Berry Jerry
Bombowlee
Boree
Edwardstown
Ferndale
Gadara
Oberne
Tumut Plains
Upper Tarcutta
Umbango	}	Additions and improvements.
Tumut
Wagga Wagga		Completion of fencing. Repairs.

Similar progress is to be reported from the other sections of the district, as may be seen from the Inspectors' reports herewith.

The complaint that the residents have to bear a portion of the expense of school-buildings in remote and thinly-populated localities has been removed. Another act of justice which the officers of the Department are increasingly called upon to perform is, to endeavour to prevent a community not prone to agitation from obtaining inferior provision to those whose cause is being paraded in an exaggerated form. It is a rare thing to have any want in connection with existing schools submitted that has not already been dealt with by the Department's officers ; and the exceptional cases are such as would be dealt with as a matter of course on the occasion of the coming inspection of the school.

The decision recently arrived at to allow District Inspectors to effect urgently necessary minor repairs without obtaining the Minister's sanction is likely to save both time and money.

3.—TEACHERS.

There are employed in the district.

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Teachers	154	99	253
Assistants	4	13	17
Pupil-teachers	18	39	57
Workmistresses	16	16
Total	176	167	343

That the education service would be a favourite one with women and girls is to be expected from the nature of things, and from general social circumstances. The supply of female applicants for employment, large relatively to the demand, and excessively large as compared with the number of male applicants, has, however, unquestionably been exaggerated by the very liberal way in which, in respect of pay and perquisites, female teachers are dealt with. For example, the salary paid to female teachers in charge of ordinary schools is higher than that paid to single male teachers, and equal to the joint salary of a male teacher and his wife. The emoluments of mistresses of departments, too (considering that the recipients are mostly young and of an experience almost limited to a pupil-teacher course and a year's training), are on a handsome scale.

It has not been possible always to find the most suitable kind of person for every vacancy as it has occurred ; but the vacancies have been filled, and in most cases satisfactorily filled.

The difficulty of getting suitable pupil-teachers in remote country towns has been considerably diminished, but is not yet entirely removed.

The half-yearly examinations of teachers were held at all the inspectorial centres, were well attended, and have proved both a stimulus to the teachers generally and a means of reward to the most diligent, studious, and skilful. This is shown in a diminished disparity between the classification of the schools and the classification of the teachers.

III.—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Owing to the early date at which this report is demanded, it is impossible to give complete attendance statistics. The enrolment, however, rose from 12,945 at the end of 1882 to 13,273 at the end of 1883 ; the average attendance from 7,851·7 to 9,235 ; and the ratio of attendance to enrolment from 60 to 69·6 per cent. The advance for the year, therefore, was :—

Enrolment	333
Average attendance.....	1,383·3
Ratio of attendance to enrolment	9·6 per cent.

The action of the Attendance Officers has proved beneficial to many of the schools, and accounts in large measure for the fact that regularity of attendance has improved to the extent of nearly 10 per cent.

IV.—INSPECTION. CONDITION OF SCHOOLS INSPECTED.

All the schools in the district were fully inspected, except the seven following, which it was found impossible to inspect :—

Watson's Reef, Public.
 Tuena, Evening Public.
 Dog Trap Stations, under itinerating teacher. } See Mr. Inspector Lawford's report.
 Jingellic East, Provl.—Opened late in the year, after Mr. Hookins had visited locality.
 Thulabin, Provl.—Only one child present when Mr. Wright visited to hold inspection.
 Milparinka, Provl.—Closed at time appointed for visit.
 Wyangle, Provl.—Closed early in the year, before I could visit it.

In the case of the following nine schools a second full inspection was held for special reasons :—

Ironbong.
 Cudgell Creek.
 Balranald.
 Moulamein.
 Deniliquin, Primary.
 Deniliquin, Infants'.
 Hopefield.
 North Quat Quatta.
 Howlong.

The total number of full inspections held, therefore, exceeds the total number of schools that were in operation, which is unprecedented.

The increase in the inspectoral strength has been favourable too, to unexpected incidental and "ordinary" inspections; but owing to the continued press of writing and routine work these are still less frequent and general than is desirable.

In all there were 252 schools fully inspected.

The statistics of proficiency are attached.

The chief conclusions to be drawn from these are :—

1. History has not yet been generally introduced. Singing, drawing, and needlework are still omitted in a considerable number of schools.
 Easy mathematics, Latin, and French are taught only to a few pupils in the larger town schools.
2. That the number of pupils in the elementary stages of the ordinary prescribed subjects exceeds those in the advanced stages.

In

In connection with this it may be mentioned also that the pupils preponderate in the lower classes. The respective numbers have not been required, and are not given by the Inspectors. In the Wagga section of the district they are—

First (lowest) class.....	1,687	} Present at examination.

Needlework	90.6	” 82.0 ”	Increase.....	8.6
Drill	53.9	” 55.0 ”	Decrease	1.1

The increase under arithmetic is to be accounted for partly by the better handling of the subject, and partly by the assimilation of the mode of valuing the work done in it to the mode applied to other subjects. The falling-off in mathematics and Latin (which are taught to but few pupils) is mainly due to a serious declension in one large school.

In the subjects which form the staple of instruction substantial advance has been made.

No new educational light can be said to have dawned, nor can it be said that the teachers have acquired a much more thorough knowledge of the principles underlying their art. The improvement in their work and its results is such as might be expected from extended practice, continued attention to duty, and consciousness of responsibility.

The discipline of the schools is still good, and the result is in the main secured by judicious and appropriate means. There is, however, still room for improvement in the matter of drill and its application to school movements, with a view to economising time.

Speaking generally, the schools are very fairly organized in those respects for which the teacher is responsible. The exceptions to this rule are few, and are soon detected. The want of standards of proficiency has of course been much felt, but that will be the case no longer. The defective execution of school requisitions has also occasioned inconvenience and retarded work. Some of the teachers recently advanced from the lower grades do not of themselves readily realise the fact that they are no longer subordinate and teachers of a class, but heads of schools with corresponding powers and responsibilities. In such cases the duties not directly connected with lesson-giving are more or less overlooked, and Inspectors have had to require of the teachers that they advance from a knowledge of the art of teaching to a knowledge of school management.

In respect of general efficiency (which takes cognizance of instruction, discipline, and organization), the following comparison with last year's results shows that the rate of improvement has been materially increased.

Efficiency.	1882.		1883.		Increase.
	No. of schools.	Per cent.	No. of schools.	Per cent.	No. of schools.	Per cent.
Below standard	95	46.1	88	34.9	} 53	11.2
Up to standard (fair)	48	23.4	52	20.6
Above standard.....	63	30.5	112	44.5

The increase in efficient schools in 1882 was 5.6 per cent. ; the increase for 1883 has been 11.2 per cent. Or, during 1882 one of every eighteen non-efficient schools became efficient, while during 1883 the numbers were nearly one of every nine.

V.—Summary. Prospects.

The ratio of increase in the number of schools and pupils is being well maintained, and the attendance of pupils is improving in respect of regularity.

Very much has been done to make school premises and their appointments more suitable and complete.

The efficiency of the schools is improving at an increased rate, and indicates a growth arising from the observance and practice of sound principles which are put into force with earnestness and method, though to some extent empirically.

The introduction of new standards means a new departure for 1884 calculated to secure higher proficiency in the most useful and educative subjects, and to connect Public Schools with the agencies for higher education.

The inspectorial staff of the district is now strong enough to secure a still more thorough supervision of schools and school work, notwithstanding that routine and mechanical business still bears an unduly large proportion to practical oversight and direction.

These circumstances warrant the belief that the ratio of progress for 1883 will be well maintained in 1884.

The Inspectors' reports and the required statistics are forwarded herewith.

District Inspector.

ANNEX L.
WAGGA WAGGA DISTRICT.
ALBURY SECTION.

MR. INSPECTOR HOOKINS' GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

At the end of the year 1882 I had under my immediate supervision, 66 Public Schools, 14 Provisional, 1 Certified Denominational School, and 1 Evening School.

Aid being withdrawn from the Certified Denominational (R.C.) School, and the Evening School closing shortly after, practically I commenced the year with 80 schools.

At the close of the present year there are 75 Public and 16 Provisional Schools, in all 91, that have been in full operation for the whole or a part of the year.

New Public Schools have been opened at Illilliwa and Gunbar in the vicinity of Hay; and at Rosewood, Carrathool, Martindale, and Cookardinia, in other parts of my section.

The Provisional Schools North Quat Quatta and Daisydale have been converted into Public Schools. Provisional Schools have been established at Milparinka (Mount Browne), South Mahonga, and Jingellic East; and another, at Berigan, opens after the termination of the Christmas vacation.

The Provisional School at Thulabin has been closed through lack of support.

Applications for new Public Schools at Gunbar, North Deniliquin, Hulong, Yallama, Gerogery Railway Station, Yambla and Huon, and for the establishment of Provisional Schools at Bago, Clear Hills, Goonambil, Narrama, South Merowie, Whealbah, Brookong, and Mountain Creek, have been received, and granted in the case of Huon, Yambla, Gerogery Railway Station, Gunbar, and Hulong Public Schools; and Bago, Clear Hills, and Goonambil. The other applications are under consideration.

New and perfectly appointed buildings have been erected at Albury (Girls' department), Moorwatha, Batlow, Albury (infants), Hay Primary, Wentworth, and Cookardinia; and buildings of a more economical character, but quite comfortable and commodious, at Huon, Rosewood, Wagra, Martindale, and North Quat Quatta.

Aid has also been granted to the Provisional Schools at Jingellic East and Berigan.

Important additions and improvements have been made to the Public Schools at Albury (boys), Mulwala, Urana, Wanganella, Hopefield, Daisydale, and Bowna, and minor additions and repairs at all schools that required them.

New school buildings are promised to Gerogery Public and Burrumbuttock Public.

Thus, it is seen that the wants of my section, as regards school accommodation, have been very fairly met; and now that the Minister has resolved to supply the whole cost of erecting Provisional Schools, no locality that can maintain the required average attendance should hesitate to take advantage of this concession.

The groups of selectors on the Lower Murray, Murrumbidgee, and Lachlan Rivers will, I anticipate, largely avail themselves of it.

Inspection.

Of the 91 schools in operation during the past year, 88 received a full general inspection, and the 3 remaining schools no inspection of any kind; in one case (Jingellic East) because it was not in operation at the period of the Inspector's visit to the locality; in the second (Thulabin), as there was but one child present; and in the third case (Milparinka), from press of other duties.

Mr. Assistant Inspector Wright being appointed to the charge of the Hay portion of my section in July last, he dealt with the schools not already examined by me early in the year, and 3 other schools were inspected by the District Inspector himself. I have, therefore, only examined 58 schools in my section, having to deal with some 15 schools in the Wagga Wagga section; but 3 of the 58 schools received a second and full inspection.

In the subjoined table is exhibited the relation to the standard of proficiency of the schools of the section, including the Hay portion:—

Schools.	Below standard.	Up to Standard.	Above standard.
Public	29	11	35
Provisional.....	10	2	1
All Schools.....	39	13	36

46 Public Schools, or 61·3 per cent. } satisfied the standard.

3 Provisional Schools, or 23·1 per cent. }

In 1882, 34 Public Schools, or 54·4 per cent., satisfied the standard.

All the Provisional Schools fell below it.

Improvement in Public Schools = 6·9 per cent.

Provisional Schools, above 23 per cent.

Both Public and Provisional Schools, therefore, have increased in numbers and efficiency; and the results show more favourably for this year than for 1882. I account for this from the fact that in the eastern and middle portion of the section sickness has been less prevalent among the children. Climatic changes, sickness, blight, and intense heat are powerful foes to the teacher in his arduous work.

The following tables exhibit the number of pupils examined by myself and the District Inspector, and the number who have satisfied the standard:—

Arithmetic is not apparently in a more favourable condition than it was last year. This is to be accounted for by the practice some teachers have of pushing their pupils onwards into the advanced and difficult rules before they have been well grounded in the elementary principles of the science; a practice which, while it raises the school in the estimation of parents, is injurious to the progress of the pupils.

Algebra and Euclid are taught in the larger schools only.

The number of these schools in my section is limited.

Drawing is weak. Many teachers do not take kindly to this subject, and therefore cannot teach it successfully. I have made it a point to give low value to drawings of animals, trees, landscapes, &c., that find so much favour in many schools, and I have insisted on the teachers confining their pupils to the course of pure outline drawing sanctioned by the Department.

Latin is taught in one school only, with commendable success.

Drill is now taught in all schools in this section with more or less success; but only in the larger schools are the results fully satisfactory. In the small rural schools, unpunctuality, heat of the climate, and fatigue from walking long distances to school, combine to prevent the pupils from attaining any great proficiency in this subject.

Organization

The schools generally are well found in all necessary working material where this is not the case, it is owing to the ignorance or neglect of the teacher, or to some delay in transmission of the goods.

Tree-planting to a limited extent has taken place at several schools.

Tents, where used as temporary schools, have now in all cases been replaced by substantial brick or wooden buildings, to the greater health and comfort of both teachers and scholars, especially in the bleak uplands of Tumberumba and similar localities, where cold is most severe and the climate generally of a rigorous character. Generally speaking, the buildings are in sound condition, but the schools erected some fifteen or sixteen years ago exhibit in some cases signs of decay, and will shortly demand attention.

The school material in general is used carefully and economically; but I regret to observe in some teachers a careless indifference to the condition of the property committed to their care. Sometimes a tap or two with a hammer, the driving in of a wooden wedge, or the fixing of a down pipe by a teacher, would save pounds to the Department.

Wherever practicable the buildings have been erected near some permanent source of water supply; in other cases tanks, underground or above, have been supplied. In some cases it has been found difficult to preserve this water from swagmen and other travellers.

Instruction.

This is generally well regulated by proper time-tables and lesson programmes, which are faithfully adhered to.

In one or two schools the 1st class largely overbalanced the others; but generally the pupils were well arranged, according to their ages and attainments.

Teachers.

Regular examinations of teachers and pupil-teachers were held by me at midsummer and mid-winter, in Albury; and one was held by Mr. Assistant Inspector Wright, at Hay, on the 17th December last.

The supply of candidate teachers satisfies present requirements; but while that of candidate pupil-teachers is sufficient, it is at times difficult to find local candidates for particular schools.

The

The following table exhibits the number of teachers and pupil-teachers employed, and their several classifications.

Teachers.	Class I.		Class II.		Class III.
	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. A.	Sec. B.	Sec. C.
Male	4	7	7	11	9
Female	2	4	3	2	6

Pupil-teachers.	Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.
	Male	2
Female	1	2	3	6

12 male and 8 female teachers, probationers, are in temporary charge of schools.

16 teachers are employed in the Provisional Schools.

Sewing-mistresses are employed in the Public Schools, at Albury, Denilquin, Hay, Tumberumba, Corowa, and Wentworth; at other schools the teachers' wives teach needlework.

Both teachers and pupil-teachers have laboured with patient assiduity during the past year, and the schools have steadily progressed under their care.

Their work, especially in the case of Provisional School Teachers, is performed often under great and many discouragements, and their homes are too often of a comfortless character.

They deservedly enjoy, as a body, however, the esteem of the communities in which they live.

Discipline and Government.

In nine-tenths of the schools the pupils are orderly and well governed, and corporal punishment, of a severe character, is of rare occurrence, cleanliness and neatness of attire were general, and the demeanour and manners of the pupils were pleasing, and indicative of the humanising influence of their school. Altogether I think standard requirements in this subject are very fairly satisfied.

Half-time and Itinerating Schools.

Schools of these classes are not in operation this year; but I have every reason to believe that openings exist for their establishment in many localities in the Hay portion of the district.

Evening Schools.

One only—Balranald Evening School—has been in operation this year, and only for a short time.

No applications for any have been received.

These schools are not supported by the class of scholars they were intended for; learning at night, after a long day's work, is found to be tedious, or is thought to be so.

Future Prospects of the Schools.

The schools existing in the eastern and middle portions of this section may now be considered to be for the most part firmly established, although they are subject to fluctuations in attendance on account of sickness, harvest, housework, &c.

In the Hay portion, the smaller schools cannot yet be regarded as permanent owing to the shifting character of the population around; the number that are likely to finally collapse is, however, not large.

WAGGA DISTRICT, YASS SECTION.

MR. INSPECTOR LAWFORD'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honour to submit my general report for the year 1883. The number of schools in the section in operation at the commencement of the year was 85; consisting of 66 Public, 15 Provisional, and 4 Half-time Schools.

Eleven new schools were opened during the year, viz:—4 Public: Barmedman, Glenwood, Watson's Reef, and the Girls' Department at Young; and 7 Provisional: Douglas, Bendick Murrell, Cungegong, Digger's Flat, Sebastopol, Taylor's Flat, and West Gullen. The schools at Fisher's Creek, Burra Burra, and Weetangerra, which had been temporarily closed for want of attendance, were re-opened. An itinerant teacher was sent to four teaching stations near the Dog Trap Gold-field; and an Evening Public School at Tuena was started, but collapsed in a short time.

The following 8 schools were converted into Public Schools during the year:—Beggan Beggan, Bendinine, Bookhan, Cavan, Jeir, Lost River, Muttama, and Thuddungra; and the Half-time Schools at Bedellick and Curran's Creek were raised to the rank of Provisional Schools.

The total number of schools in operation at the close of the year was 100; consisting of 81 Public and 18 Provisional Schools; and one itinerant teacher in charge of 4 teaching stations.

The schools open during the year or any part of it numbered 101, of which 98 were fully inspected; the schools not fully inspected being:—Watson's Reef, which was visited for the purpose but a general inspection found impracticable owing to the non-arrival of the furniture and school material, the school being only opened on 24th November; Tuena Evening, which collapsed before the district was visited; and the 4 teaching stations at the Dog Trap, 1 of which however was fully inspected. Time did not allow of a visit being paid to the others.

Twenty-four

Twenty-four applications for new schools, of which two were reported on by Mr. Inspector McIntyre, were dealt with during the year, with the following results:—

I.—Adequacy of the means of education in the section as regards amount and distribution.

The material condition of the schools is on the whole fairly satisfactory; some of the schools suffered in this respect through there being no Inspector in charge during the great portion of last year, but now, in all cases where it has been deemed necessary, new buildings are in process of erection, or are authorized and will be speedily proceeded with. The substitution of temporary wooden buildings for the tents is a very great improvement; they do not take very much longer to erect, are nearly as portable, and in point of comfort and accommodation are in every way superior. In every case where a tent is in use new buildings either of a permanent or temporary character are to be erected.

Nearly all schools are well found in educational apparatus, which teachers are careful to keep in good order. As a rule the interiors of the schools are neatly kept, though no improvement has taken place since last year in the way of gardening; in some few schools, however, teachers have shown considerable taste in that direction.

It may be safely affirmed that there are few children in this section actually out of reach of State education of some kind. The schools are very fairly distributed, and on the whole provide adequate accommodation for all comers. But from the migratory habits of some selectors there will always be a few children beyond the reach of education for a short time. Another cause of non-education is the supineness, or in a few cases the actual opposition of parents, in the matter of establishing new schools. There is, however, in nearly all cases, a keen desire to see public money spent in the erection of expensive buildings, and in most cases where buildings are leased, at other than nominal rents, the Department pays a very much higher rent than any other tenant would.

It should be mentioned as a significant fact in connection with the labours of the Attendance Officers that the enrolment in this section for the last quarter of this year is 4,751, as against 4,385 in the corresponding quarter last year, while the average attendance for the same periods is 3,331, as against 2,283; or, the average attendance for the last quarter of this year is 70 per cent. of the enrolment, while for the last quarter of last year it was only 52 per cent. of the enrolment.

II—The actual condition of schools as elicited by inspection.

The discipline is a very strong point in the management of State schools; in nearly all cases it is good, and that result is obtained with a very sparing use of the cane.

The course of instruction has been mainly carried out in accordance with the Act, but the absence of reliable standards of proficiency has been a drawback in some cases as regards its range. As was the case last year, many teachers cannot teach music, and many neglect drill.

The following table shows the percentage of the children examined who reached the mark fair or upwards—

Subject	Number examined.	Number who obtained the mark Fair or upwards	Percentages
			This year	Last year.
Reading	3,116	2,540	81	66
Writing	3,103	2,295	73	77
Arithmetic	2,896	2,172	74	47
Grammar	1,600	929	58	59
Geography	1,653	1,228	74	61
Scripture	751	372	49	78
Object lessons	2,855	1,801	63	61
Drawing	1,541	1,023	66	59
Music	1,764	1,148	63	57
French	27	27	100	100
Euclid	39	36	92	75
Algebra	32	31	96	73
Mensuration	5	5	100	100
Latin	28	28	100	100
Needlework	996	960	96	79
Drill	3,251	1,382	42	59

It will be seen that the three chief branches of primary education, reading, writing, and arithmetic, if indeed they may not be said to constitute the whole of primary education strictly so called, are very well taught. Elementary Mathematics and the rudiments of Latin are also extremely well taught.

Military drill shows somewhat poor results, but for the most part teachers have received no instruction in it themselves, the school drill as a rule is pretty good.

III.—The improvement or retrogression of schools as regards efficiency since the previous year.

The efficiency of the schools of this section in this year contrasts satisfactorily with last year, there being—

50 schools above the standard.
14 " up to " "
34 " below " "

or, 65 per cent. of the schools are above or up to the standard, while 35 per cent are below. This is a gain on last year, when there were—

60 per cent. above or up to the standard.
40 per cent. below.

The table in the foregoing paragraph shows clearly what progress or retrogression has been made in the various subjects taught.

In reading and arithmetic there is a great improvement, but writing shows a slight falling off, though the percentage of those up to the standard is still high.

Scripture lessons are not well taught as a rule; in many cases they are merely given as a reading lesson, and the children have no knowledge of the facts or history related. The falling off is considerable, but it is possible that different standards have been adopted in examining in this subject.

Drill shows a falling off, which may be accounted for in the same way.

The other subjects for the most part show a marked improvement on the results obtained last year.

IV.—The future prospects of schools so far as they can be foreseen with any certainty.

There is no reason to suppose that the schools in this section will become less efficient next year than they are now. The teachers are for the most part conscientious and hardworking, and show a desire for self-improvement by studying to gain higher classifications.

The schools are well distributed, and in reach of nearly all the children in the district.

New standards of proficiency have been introduced, and are to be acted upon next year; and a new system of marking, giving differential values to the subjects taught, is to be observed. History is also to be taught to the higher classes.

On the whole, it may be said that satisfactory progress has been made in the work of education this year, and that similar or better results may be looked for in the future.

ANNEX N.

BATHURST DISTRICT.

GENERAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

The Bathurst District lies between the 33rd and 34th parallels, and stretches from the eastern edge of the Blue Mountains to the 145th meridian. For the purposes of inspection it has hitherto been divided into two sections, the Eastern and the Western. An Assistant-Inspector was appointed in the month of July, but the inspectoral arrangements were not altered. The information given in this report refers to the whole district; that which has special reference to the Western section is given in the report furnished by Mr. Inspector Long.

I.—S hools.

At the end of the year 1882 there were in operation—

164 Public Schools.
18 Provisional Schools.
2 Half-time Schools.
8 Denominational Schools.

Total..... 192 Schools.

One of these, the Provisional School at Wolgan, was not opened in 1883; and the 8 Denominational Schools, in accordance with the provisions of Clause 28 of the Public Instruction Act, ceased to receive aid from the State, and passed from the supervision of the Department on the 31st December, 1882. There were, therefore, 183 schools in operation at the commencement of the year. This number was subsequently increased by 17 new schools, viz. :—4 Public, 11 Provisional, and 2 Half-time. The following changes were made during the year :—The Public Schools at Box Ridge and Millamurra were, in consequence of small attendance, reduced to the rank of Half-time Schools; the Half-time School at Crown Creek was closed, and that at Ben Bullen raised to the rank of a Public School; while the Provisional School at Cullen Bullen lapsed, through the refusal of the owner of the building to grant its use any longer. Taking these changes into account, the number of schools in operation was 200, viz, 170 Public, 24 Provisional, and 6 Half-time. Of these, 181 were open the whole year, and 19 for only a portion thereof.

The new schools are: Anson, Bald Hill, Bolton Vale, Brownlea, Bungerellong, Darby's Falls, Diamond Valley, Kendale, Kingstown, Lett, Norway, Swallow Creek, Vulcan, Walla Walla, Warraderry, and the Half-time Schools at Paling Yards and Fell Timber. One other school, Chaucer Provisional, was established; but as the teacher appointed abandoned his post after teaching for only four days, and furnished no returns, it is not included in this report.

In addition to the schools enumerated, 3 Evening Public Schools, and 17 teaching stations under six itinerant teachers, were worked during the year. Reckoning all the stations under each itinerant teacher as one school, there were in existence at the end of 1883, 204 schools, viz. :—171 Public, 22 Provisional, 4 Half-time, 6 Itinerant, and 1 Evening School.

Itinerant Schools.

The 6 teachers who have been appointed under the terms of the special rules for "House to House Teaching" have secured an attendance of 157 children. By these itinerant teachers the means of an elementary education can be brought within reach of most of the families in the sparsely-peopled portions of the Colony; but I am not sanguine that the persons who most need the services of such teachers will be willing to make the small sacrifice required to secure those services.

Evening Schools.—These have almost disappeared from this district. Only 2, Carcoar and Cowra, have been in actual work during the year. Two others, Burruga and Meranburn, were applied for and sanctioned; but as the number of pupils required (10) did not attend, they were not started. Carcoar, the only one in existence at the end of the year, had an enrolment of (15) fifteen, and an average attendance of (8) eight. It is not probable that this school will be opened after the vacation.

High Schools.—Two High Schools, one for boys and one for girls, were opened at Bathurst in October. 32 boys and 16 girls attended the examination for admission. All but two were from the Bathurst Public School. Of the 43 applicants, 44 succeeded in passing; but only 14 boys and 13 girls took advantage of the pass and became pupils. Various local causes have prevented the High School from being a success as regards numbers of pupils; and I am afraid that under the existing regulations many years will elapse before they will be largely attended.

As

As it appears from the address delivered by the Minister on the occasion of the opening of the Sydney High Schools, that it is intended to make the Junior and Senior Examinations of the Sydney University one of the tests of the efficiency of this class of schools, I would venture to express the hope that the arrangements for conducting those examinations in the country districts will be altered. They are now usually held in unsuitable buildings, the supervision of the examinees is frequently lax; and an extra fee—sometimes amounting to ten shillings—is charged for local expenses.

II.—Material Condition of Schools.

The schools of the District, excepting three or four in the Eastern section that are too near each other, are well placed. They are generally in healthy and accessible situations, and are fairly central to the population. Steps have been taken to secure sites in all localities where the permanent centres of population could be determined with any degree of certainty. The school-buildings, with a few exceptions, are commodious and suitable, and are well supplied with the requisite furniture and apparatus. During the year new buildings have been completed at Anson, Byng, Canimbla, Cave Creek, Dunkeld, Evan's Plains, Forbes (Infants), Glanmire, Green Grove, Lagoon, Lake Cudgellico, Mandurama Ponds, Marrangaroo, Mayfield, Mount Tamar, Osborne, Parkesborough, Towac, Triangle Flat, Walli, Weddin, and Whitely's Flat.

The arrangements for lighting and ventilation are exceedingly good in the new buildings, though those occupying exposed situations should be provided with means of closing the louvres, as these admit the rain and snow of the winter storms. Much has been done during the year in the way of additions and repairs; no fewer than forty school buildings and residences have been enlarged or otherwise improved. Among the improvements, those at the Bathurst School deserve special mention, particularly the colouring of the internal walls, which is such as to give the rooms a bright and attractive appearance, without being in any way trying to the eyes. The objectionable white glare of the school-walls, formerly so common, is rapidly disappearing, and suitable colours are now generally adopted.

New school buildings are either actually in progress, or their erection has been authorised, at the following places:—Bathurst (Infants), Bloom Hill, Blossom Hill, Boree Cabonne, Brokenshaft Creek, Bumbury, Burruga, Carcoar, Condobolin, Cox's River, Cullen, Duckmaloi, Edith, Emu Valley, Eskbank (Girls), Five Islands, Fitzgerald's Valley, Ganbenang, Glenburn, Grenfell (infants), Guyong West, Katoomba, Lowther, Meadow Flat, Milltown (infants), Monica Vale, Morongla, Mount McDonald, Norton, Off Flat, Ophir, Piper's Flat, Shooter's Hill, Swashfield, Toogong, Two-mile, and Watargumben.

The regulation recently issued by the Minister, respecting the erection of buildings for schools of the lower grades, will prevent a recurrence of the long and vexatious delays that have so frequently provoked bitter complaints on the part of parents, and will enable Inspectors to provide the country districts with comfortable buildings at a small cost. The Revised Regulations for the establishment of Provisional Schools will not only facilitate the diffusion of the means of education, but will also have the effect of replacing with suitable and properly furnished buildings, the miserable hovels that have hitherto, in many instances, done duty as schoolrooms. It may be confidently anticipated that before many months elapse it will be difficult to find an unsuitable school building in any part of this district. Before leaving the subject of school buildings it is proper to mention that very general dissatisfaction prevails among teachers with regard to their residences. In nearly every case smoky chimneys are complained of, and from personal observation I can testify that the complaints are well grounded. As various unsuccessful attempts have been made to remedy the evil it would seem that something is wrong in either the design or the construction of the chimneys.

The question of water supply to the schools demands serious attention. The practice in this district is to store in tanks the water collected from the roofs. In most cases the tanks provided do not hold sufficient water for the requirements of the school, and consequently after a few weeks' dry weather the supply is exhausted. In the case of buildings that are shingled the sap discolours the water, and frequently renders it unwholesome. In such cases it would be well to have the shingles covered with iron. It is desirable that every school be liberally provided with water, even though the cost be great. A school without an abundant supply of water for cleansing and drinking purposes fails in a part of its work.

The bare appearance of the school-grounds is with some justice frequently a subject of comment. It is indeed rare to see plants or flowers growing in the grounds attached to a public school, except, perhaps in a small garden plot in front of the teacher's residence. It does not appear to me, however, that much more than this can be expected until the school grounds are all closely paved; but while so large an expenditure has to be incurred every year in erecting and repairing buildings it would be unreasonable to expect the Department to undertake the paling in of all the school sites. It may perhaps be not out of place here to advert to the smallness of the playgrounds attached to the schools in most of the country towns. A good playground is a great attraction to boys. The knowledge that good games are the accompaniments of a day's attendance at school will often change the schoolboys' way of looking at the matter, so that he shall no longer be seen "creeping like snail unwillingly to school." If the playgrounds of the town schools admitted of such manly sports as cricket, football, &c., in which boys delight, truancy would soon cease, and regular attendance become the rule. The public school at Grenfell is specially favoured in this respect, and has a great advantage over most other schools in its splendid playground of 5 acres.

III.—Enrolment and Attendance of Pupils.

The following table shows the number of schools in operation, the number of pupils enrolled, and the average attendance for each quarter of the year:—

Quarter ending	Schools in operation.	Pupils enrolled.	Average attendance.	Percentage of average to enrolment.
March	185	11,118	7281·9	65·5
June	191	11,331	7838·7	69·2
September	195	11,567	8044·4	69·5
December	204	11,859	8401·4	70·1

From the above table it will be seen that not only has the number of pupils increased but that the regularity of attendance has improved during the year. The loss of the 950 pupils attending the denominational schools formerly aided, has not only been made good but the average attendance for the December quarter shows an increase of seventy-eight upon that for the corresponding quarter of 1882.

The gross enrolment for the year was 15,233. From this a deduction of 2,204 must be made for multiple enrolments, so that the number of pupils under instruction in the schools of the district during the year was 13,034. In the first quarter the prevalence of a severe form of ophthalmia well-nigh emptied the schools for five or six weeks; in the month of July the bitterly cold weather, accompanied by heavy rain and snow storms, kept many children away from school, and towards the end of the year epidemics of mumps, measles, and scarlatina all operated to reduce the average attendance.

The town schools maintain a pretty uniform attendance of about 72 per cent. of the enrolment. The country schools on the other hand have an ordinary attendance of over 80 per cent., but at special times, such as harvesting, potato-planting, shearing, &c., when children's services are required in the field, only the mere infants attend school.

The greater portion of the district has been proclaimed as subject to the provisions of the compulsory clauses of the Public Instruction Act, and attendance officers have been appointed to enforce their observance. These officers, so far as I have been able to notice, have been zealous and energetic, and have displayed much tact in the discharge of their duties. The results of their labours have been but small, and will continue to be so until the law is so modified as to allow of a more rigid application of the principle of compulsory attendance. It is the case now, as in former years, that the popularity and personal influence of the teacher are the most powerful agents in producing regular attendance.

IV.—Inspection—Efficiency of Schools.

As stated in a previous paragraph there were, not reckoning the evening Public and those under itinerant teachers—200 schools in operation during the year. All, excepting Blowclear Provisional, which was closed early in the year, received a general inspection, five have been inspected twice, and most of them have been visited incidentally several times.

The following table summarises the results of the inspection.

	Below Standard.	Up to Standard.	Above Standard.	Totals.

From the above it appears that 44½ per cent. of the schools were found below, 35½ per cent. up to, and 20 per cent. above, the standard. In 1882 the per-centages were 36½ per cent. below, 42½ per cent. up to, and 21 per cent. above, the standard. This retrogression is more apparent than real. In 1882 twenty-six schools, many of them newly established, were not inspected; in 1883 only one school has escaped inspection. The schools established late in the year had barely made a start when the inspection took place. In dealing with the statistics of proficiency I shall be able to show that as regards the attainments of the children appreciable progress has been made.

The Evening School at Carcoar, and the pupils under two itinerant teachers, have also been examined. In the former fairly satisfactory proficiency was manifested; in the latter the children had been just brought under instruction, and, as might be expected, were found in a deplorable state of ignorance.

In the following tabulated statement the general efficiency of each school is shown. The schools are arranged in four groups:

- (a.) Those with a Fifth Class.
- (b.) Those with a Fourth Class.

Organization.—The points of organization for which teachers may fairly be held responsible are the cleanliness and tidiness of the schoolrooms, out-offices, and grounds, the arrangement and condition of the furniture and apparatus, the keeping of the records, and the furnishing of the returns, the classification of the pupils, the construction of the lesson-guides, and, in the larger schools, the distribution of the teaching staff. The reports upon these points have been favourable in the case of most schools. Faulty organization is generally found in schools under inexperienced or imperfectly trained teachers, but the defects are invariably remedied after the first inspection.

In a few cases, fortunately very few, the Inspector finds the schoolroom unswept, the desks scratched and inkstained, and the books torn and dirty. The unfavourable impression produced by this discreditable state of things is usually deepened by a more intimate acquaintance with the school and teacher. Neglect and carelessness are plainly seen in every branch of the school work. The persons who are in charge of such schools are rarely benefited by advice or remonstrance; punishment has no effect upon them. Step by step they are reduced in rank, and, in the end, have to be dismissed from the service. The new arrangement for paying teachers' salaries, though undoubtedly of benefit to them, is somewhat inconvenient to the Inspectors, especially at the vacations. In former days a careless teacher found, by the non-payment of his salary, that his returns were not correct, and he hastened to rectify the errors. Now he knows that his salary will not be delayed, and he gives himself no trouble about the matter. At every vacation the Inspector is greatly inconvenienced by the incorrect returns furnished by one or two teachers.

Discipline.—It is a gratifying fact that the discipline in most of the schools is good. Punctuality is its least satisfactory feature, but the shortcomings in this respect frequently arise from circumstances beyond the teacher's control. The clean and tidy appearance of the children, their orderly conduct and attention to duty merit high praise. The government is usually mild, and cases of severe or improper punishment seldom occur. During the year a few complaints on this score have been made against teachers, but upon inquiry the charges have been found to be grossly exaggerated or wholly without foundation. Much of the ease and effectiveness with which a school is governed depends upon the feeling subsisting between the parents and the teacher. When the parents' sympathy is with the teacher the pupils render a prompt and willing obedience. When there is no cordiality between the parents and teacher the children are very difficult to manage. By their want of tact in dealing with parents teachers often lay up a store of trouble for themselves.

Drill.—In nearly all the schools this important means of physical training and auxiliary of good discipline receives attention. This is evident by the number of pupils (6,465) who were examined in this subject. Even those teachers who have not had the opportunity of being drilled themselves have so far mastered the subject that they make their pupils "fall in" in an orderly manner, march quickly and quietly to and from the schoolroom, and execute the various school movements with promptness and precision.

Proficiency of Pupils.—The total number of pupils examined was 8,752; of these 1,517 or 17.3 per cent. were in Infants' Schools, 2,934 or 33.6 per cent. in first classes, 2,377 or 27.2 per cent. in second classes, 1,516 or 17.3 per cent. in third classes, 354 or 4 per cent. in fourth classes, and 54 or less than 1 per cent. in fifth classes. The proportion of pupils in the third and higher classes, 22 per cent., is slightly better than in 1882, and may be regarded as fairly satisfactory.

The results of the examination are exhibited in the following table:—

Subjects.	Number of Pupils examined.	Number of Pupils who passed standard.	Percentage of Pupils who passed standard.
Reading	8,752	6,420	73½
Writing	8,632	6,818	79

Algebra	204	127	62
Mensuration	111	74	67
Latin	61	46	75½
Trigonometry	25	20	80

Summarising the foregoing table, it may be stated that the results in Reading, Writing, Object Lessons, Scripture, and Music range from very fair to good, and those in Dictation, Grammar, Geography, and Drawing from fair to very fair. Arithmetic still occupies the lowest place, with results slightly above tolerable. The most satisfactory point brought out by an analysis of the proficiency statistics is that the proportion of pupils examined in the higher standards of each subject was greater than in the previous year; particularly in the case of Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic. This is the more gratifying as the Denominational Schools, formerly under the Department, contained a large number of Third and Fourth class pupils.

Every teacher in the district, who could reasonably be expected to do so, has formed a Fourth class, and given instruction in Elementary Mathematics. History, French, and Latin have been taught only to the Fifth classes in the Superior Public Schools at Bathurst and Orange; and Trigonometry only to that at Bathurst.

The Special Regulations for Superior Schools are not working for their benefit, and have had the effect of reducing the number of pupils in the Fifth classes. I am glad that there is a prospect of their modification at an early date.

The methods of teaching vary considerably. Generally, however, they are appropriate, and are applied with much zeal and intelligence. I find that there is a disposition on the part of teachers to make themselves acquainted with good text-books in the art of teaching, so as to acquire a knowledge of correct methods; and that the directions and suggestions of the inspector are carefully attended to. The new standard of proficiency will prove of great benefit to both teachers and pupils. It will give the teachers definiteness of aim in their work; it will prevent them from wasting their energies upon comparatively unimportant subjects; and will compel them to concentrate their attention upon those branches of school-work which most materially affect the children's intellectual well-being.

The Public Schools at Bathurst and Parkes have honorably distinguished themselves by passing pupils at the junior examinations of the Sydney University. Now that the course of instruction prescribed for the Fifth classes is assimilated to that of the University Examinations I hope to see all the larger Public Schools following their example.

V.—Teachers.

The teaching staff of the district consists of 194 principal teachers, 18 assistants, 53 pupil-teachers, 6 itinerant teachers, and 9 work-mistresses.

The principal teachers and assistants are thus classified :—

First Class, Section A.....	1
" " " B.....	1
Second " " " A.....	20
" " " B.....	18
Third " " " A.....	52
" " " B.....	33
" " " C.....	39
Not classified.....	48
Total.....	212

The unclassified teachers are employed in the Provisional and small Public Schools. Many of them are persons of very fair attainments, and all have received the training, and have passed the examination prescribed by the regulations.

The following is the classification of the pupil-teachers :—

Class I.....	4
" II.....	9
" III.....	20
" IV.....	20

The teachers, generally, may be reported of as an intelligent and well-conducted body. Most of them are impressed with a sense of the dignity and responsibility of their position as instructors of youth; and are animated by the desire to discharge their duties efficiently. Love of study and anxiety to advance in the profession are becoming general, particularly among the younger teachers; and at each Teachers' Examination the majority consists of those who have voluntarily submitted to the ordeal. The teaching profession, notwithstanding all precautions, has not been free from the intrusion of unworthy persons, whose misconduct brings discredit upon it. Three such persons, one for immoral conduct, one for intemperance and neglect of duty, and one for falsification of records and returns, have been dismissed from the Public Service during the year. Two other teachers have been reported for the last-named offence, but decisions have not yet been arrived at in their cases.

Pupil-teachers are employed in 28 schools. There are eight other schools in which they could be employed if the teachers held the requisite classification. The pupil-teachers, whether viewed in the light of their present services, or of their future efficiency, form a very important branch of the service. It is therefore a matter of congratulation to find that the teachers, under whose supervision they are placed, report favourably as to their diligence in study, attention to study, and usefulness in the school work. Careful inquiry has been made as to the amount and character of the instruction given to the pupil-teachers, and steps have been taken to remedy any irregularity or deficiency discovered. The exigencies of the school-work and the limited teaching staff necessitate the continuous employment of the pupil-teachers throughout the entire school-day. It would be a great advantage if the practice adopted in some of the English schools of allowing each pupil-teacher one hour per day for private study could be introduced here.

VI.—Summary.

The means of education have been extended and improved; a greater number of children have been brought under instruction; a larger per-centage of pupils has been presented for examination in the higher standards; the schools generally have been brought into a very fair state of efficiency; and the classifications and qualifications of the teachers have been appreciably raised. Satisfactory progress has been made during the past year, and increased efficiency may be confidently looked for in the future.

In the work of the district I have had the advantage of the assistance of two zealous and efficient officers, Messrs. Long and Lobban, to whose cordial co-operation and unflinching industry I am greatly indebted.

All the required statistical information is forwarded herewith.

BATHURST DISTRICT—WESTERN PORTION.

GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

I BEG to submit the following General Report for the year 1883 on the portion of the Bathurst School District under my supervision, whose area may be approximately stated at upwards of 17,000 square miles.

In this area there were in existence at the end of 1882, 78 Public, 10 Provisional, 1 Denominational, and 2 Evening Schools. During the past year there have been added to these, 2 Public, 6 Provisional, and 1 Evening School, and 1 Provisional and 2 Evening Schools have been closed. Four itinerant teachers have also been appointed to visit, in all, twelve teaching stations. One Provisional School has been converted into a Public one, and three teaching stations have been abolished and a Provisional School established in their place. The schools which have been in operation continuously throughout the year consist of 78 Public, 7 Provisional, and 1 Evening School, and exclusive of itinerant teachers' stations, there have been in existence during some portion of the year 12 other schools, comprising 2 Public, 8 Provisional, and 2 Evening Schools. The schools in operation at the end of 1883 consist of 80 Public, 14 Provisional, 1 Evening School, and 9 stations at which instruction is given by itinerant teachers. The

The attendance and enrolment for the year is shown in the following table:—

	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.
March Quarter.....	4,653	2,927·0
June ,,	4,750	3,195·9
Sept. ,,	4,812	3,301·6
Dec. ,,	4,893	3,413·6
Average for the Year	4,777	3,209·5

To the above may be added 102 pupils, giving an average attendance of 83·0, who, during the last quarter of the year have been instructed by itinerant teachers.

The average enrolment and attendance for the year 1882 were respectively 4,357 and 2,883·7. It thus appears that the attendance was but 1·2 per cent. greater in 1883 than in the preceding year, and that the extension of the compulsory clauses of the Act to this district has not, so far, had the effect of remedying that irregularity of attendance which in so many instances causes the teacher's labour to result in failure rather than success.

With the exception of three, which are conducted in non-vested premises, the material condition of the schools is satisfactory. Where defects exist, steps for their remedy have already been taken. Most of the teachers evince proper regard for neatness and cheerfulness of appearance in the school and its surroundings, and exercise due care for the preservation of the property entrusted to them. Where this is not the case the default has been carefully pointed out to the offenders, and the necessity for improvement impressed upon them. The appearance of some schools is much enhanced by the planting of trees or the formation of a garden. Few teachers, however, afford this evidence of good taste, and some are unable to do so owing to the grounds not being so fenced as to exclude small animals. During the year new buildings have been provided for Caumbla, Forbes (Infant), Green Grove, Towac, and Lake Cudgellico Public Schools; wooden buildings have been substituted for the tents formerly in use (with the exception of one, for whose temporary retention there is a special reason), and aid has been granted to three Provisional Schools under the Regulations of January last.

All the schools under my supervision have been fully inspected during the year, with the exception of two Evening Schools, one Provisional School, and the Itinerant Teachers' stations. The three first-named were closed at the time of my visiting their localities, and the teaching stations came into operation so late in the year as to render an inspection of them impossible. From information gained from the teachers' monthly reports and other sources, I incline to the belief that the teachers' duties have so far been conscientiously performed, and that the experiment is likely to have a satisfactory result. In all cases the attendance has been much higher than in ordinary schools.

Of the schools examined, seventy were inspected by me, and the rest by the District Inspector or Mr. Assistant Inspector Lobban. The number of children present at my inspections was 2,316, and the following table shows the proficiency displayed in the more important subjects of instruction, as compared with that of the preceding year.

From the above statement it would be inferred that the efficiency of the teaching has deteriorated, but certain considerations point to the conclusion that the retrogression is apparent rather than real. In support of this view it may be mentioned that a considerable number of schools are included, which were inspected after they had been in operation but a short time, or soon after a change of teachers. It is also to be observed that the result is, perhaps, somewhat unduly affected by three schools whose enrolments are above the average, while their proficiency is considerably below it, and by the fact that the statistics of six of the largest schools, whose efficiency is invariably found to be high, are this year included in the District Inspector's returns. If a proportionate allowance be made on account of the above considerations the average results will be found to be about equal to those of the preceding year. It is however apparent that the smaller schools, as a rule, compare very unfavourably with the larger ones, with respect to the proficiency displayed in reading, writing, and at least two other important subjects. And this indeed cannot be regarded as opposed to probabilities, when we consider that the teachers of such schools are in many instances but beginners, and that they labour under disadvantages from which teachers of schools, whose staff is not limited to one, are exempt. It may however be expected that with increased experience, and the assistance of the recently issued standard, the deficiencies referred to will be gradually remedied.

With a few exceptions the teachers display highly commendable aptitude, care, and intelligence in the organization and discipline of their schools. As a rule the classification is good, and the time advantageously apportioned, while the records are well and carefully kept. Some two or three teachers have caused great inconvenience by their dilatoriness and neglect in regard to their returns, but as a rule these documents are promptly despatched, and are, in a few instances, specially commendable for the neatness and care exercised in their compilation. It is further satisfactory to be able to state that the cases are few in which the government is not intelligent, firm, genial, and effective, the order good, and the pervading tone pleasing.

At

At the end of the year 118 persons were employed in the schools under my supervision, whose grades are exhibited in the subjoined tabular statement.

	Male.	Female.	Total.
Teachers holding 2 A	4	0	4
" " 2 B	6	1	7
" " 3 A	18	4	22
" " 3 B	10	5	15

" " " III	2	2	4
" " " IV	0	4	4

Itinerant Teachers	3	0	3

The Teachers, and Assistant Teachers are, as a body, well qualified for their offices, are conscientious and industrious in their work, and generally speaking, evince a pleasing interest in promoting their pupils' welfare. In a few instances which could be specified teachers, from indolence, inefficiency, or failure to exercise reasonable tact and discretion, have not satisfied either the professional or social requirements of their positions, and in such cases a caution has been given, or such further steps taken as appeared desirable. From the increased number of applications to attend examination it may be inferred that a desire for advancement in the service, and consequent habits of study, are more widely spread than formerly.

The pupil-teachers have, with one exception, received most favourable reports from their teachers, and from my own observation I am able to state that they are industrious and well-conducted, and of great assistance in their respective schools.

There has been no opportunity of testing the work of the itinerant teachers, but for reasons given above they appear so far to have successfully performed the duties entrusted to them.

The schools referred to in this report are suitably situated, and are fairly fulfilling the object for which they are designed. So far as I am aware there are now in this extensive district but three places without means of education to which any clause of the Act can be applied, and steps for supplying their wants have been initiated. While the present mode of settlement continues however there must always be children in such isolated positions as to be beyond the reach of State instruction; but the present number of such cases, though it is impossible to speak with accuracy, probably does not exceed 250.

The statistics contained in this report, with such other similar information as is required, have been forwarded to the District Inspector for inclusion in his general report on the district.

It may be stated in conclusion that the schools herein referred to are, with few exceptions, in a satisfactory state with respect to material condition, organization, and discipline, and that though the average proficiency is rather below requirements, there are many schools whose general efficiency is creditable. It may also be observed that there exist good grounds for anticipating that next year's work will show average results of a more gratifying nature.

GEORGE ED. LONG.

ANNEX P.

GOULBURN DISTRICT.

GENERAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

At the close of the year 1883 there were 301 schools of all classes in operation, of which all but one were fully inspected, and a considerable number also re-inspected. The uninspected school, representing only ten pupils, was opened too late in the year to admit of inspection.

Two important regulations gave an impetus to the establishment of schools during the past year: one, the appointment of itinerant teachers on a larger scale, and more liberal basis than formerly; the other, the erection and furnishing of all Provisional Schools at the sole and entire cost of the Department. To these may be added a third, which provides for the erection of plain and cheap Public School buildings in place of elaborate and expensive ones. Owing to the facilities afforded by these means, the instruction prescribed by the Department was carried into the remotest corners of the district with very little loss of time; and the results, as far as observed, show that, as a rule, the people for whose benefit these privileges are designed readily embrace them, and fairly co-operate with the teachers in rendering them practical and effective. The reports (herewith forwarded) of the Inspectors acting with me show that, as regards the amount and distribution of the means of instruction, there is no real want in the district, and that new settlements are speedily provided with such schools as their several circumstances may appear to need. About twenty-seven new schools, mostly small ones, were opened during the year; and it cannot be said that any, with perhaps one exception, were permanently closed.

The actual condition of the schools inspected will be understood from the following figures:—

Number of schools below the standard (fair)	128
" " up to "	109
" " above "	63

The number of pupils examined in each subject, and the percentage whose answering was up to, or above, the standard, are shown in the following table:—

Number examined in	Percentage up to or above standard.
Reading	62·7
Writing	67
Arithmetic	48·3
Grammar	58·2
Geography	62
History (English)	34

These

These results exhibit an advance upon those of last year in geography, history, Scripture lessons, object lessons, French, Euclid, mensuration, Latin, and drill, and a decline in the other subjects; but, with the exception of reading, the advance generally belongs to some of the higher and more difficult subjects, and of course to the larger and more important schools. In all, however, reading is more or less neglected, especially in the matter of declamation; and the loss is not counterbalanced by any preponderating or even equivalent advantage. During the current year inspection will be directed to remedy this serious defect, and give to this most useful and essential art that place in the school course which its excellence as an educative power so justly claims. Concurrent with defective reading are found proportional ignorance of meanings and derivation, while in grammar practical composition of any value is very rarely met with. In arithmetic the knowledge evinced is even more superficial and meagre. The tendency is towards flippancy rather than solidity in the instruction; and smartness is valued by teachers more than accuracy.

One very general defect is the habit of prompting and copying which most pupils betray. This is a serious fault, subversive alike of honour and self-reliance, though generally regarded only as a child's natural failing, and not only not corrected but, if successful, absolutely overlooked.

The new standards of proficiency being now in force, the several subjects will be valued more in accordance with their real worth than has hitherto been the case; and by their means attention will, it is hoped, be mainly directed to those subjects which are calculated to confer the most prominent advantages, and insure as far as possible the real and lasting progress of the pupils.

Precise tables of proficiency in each class of schools and in the aggregate are, as usual, appended.

Judged as a whole the schools examined last year manifest about the same condition compared with the standard (fair) as was recorded for 1882; but as nearly a third of the number are small schools in the hands of inexperienced or inefficient teachers it is scarcely just to base the character of all on such an estimate.

It appears fairer to take the Public Schools which are permanent institutions, and for the most part under the management of classified teachers, as a sample of the work done; and on this view an improvement is at once discernible, the proportion of such schools in reference to the standard for the past year having been:—

Below the standard	36½ per cent.
Up to „	37½ „
Above „	26 „

The appointment of an Assistant-Inspector and a redistribution of the work of inspection have rendered the duties involved therein more even and uniform than they have hitherto been. This change promises to prove a very important factor in forming the future character of the schools, all of which will be duly examined, and many re-visited one or more times. The full and frequent inspection thus provided, combined with the intelligent efforts of the teachers, of whom the majority are attentive, earnest, and zealous, will, it is hoped, maintain and stimulate the progress of the schools, and help to realize the reasonable anticipations of all concerned in their management and government, usefulness and efficiency.

ANNEX Q.

GENERAL REPORT ON THE MITTAGONG SECTION OF THE GOULBURN DISTRICT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

In this section of the district 101 schools were in operation at the beginning of the year. Three new schools were opened during the year, and arrangements have been completed for establishing house to house teaching at Bullio, on the Wollondilly River.

At the end of the year the schools stood thus:—

Public	77
Provisional	13
Half-time.....	14
Total	104

In July last, 28 of these schools, situated in Shoalhaven and Ulladulla, were placed under the immediate supervision of Mr. Pitt.

The necessary steps have been taken towards the establishing of a Public School at Hill Top Siding, near Mittagong. Aid was promised to a Provisional School at Wingello, but as the majority of the people left the place it was not opened. An Evening Public School was established at Taralga, but the attendance very soon dropped off, and it was closed. I am not aware of any locality where a school is needed at present. I can, therefore, report that the means of primary education in this part of the country are adequate, both as regards the number and distribution of the schools.

All the schools in this section were fully inspected, and nearly all were visited two or more times during the year. Several of them also underwent ordinary inspection. Of the 78 schools examined by me 13 ranked above the standard, 31 were equal to it, and 34 did not come up to its requirements. For the most part the schools that are below the standard are very small ones, in charge of untrained teachers; classified teachers will remain in these schools no longer than they can help, and, consequently, there are frequent changes, necessarily causing an interruption of the continuity of the work. All the large schools are well worked, and there is a steady upward tendency in their efficiency. There are therefore some reasonable grounds for satisfaction regarding the present condition and future prospects of elementary education in the schools to which this report refers.

No schools were permanently closed during the year, but three or four were vacant for some time in consequence of the teachers having left without giving due notice. In cases of this kind, or in case of sickness, I am of opinion that the local Inspector should have power to place, a once, an eligible candidate for employment in charge of any vacated school; so that the work may as far as possible be uninterrupted. There is no difficulty in obtaining suitable young men and women to place in charge of small country schools.

The following table exhibits the total enrolment, average attendance, and receipts of the schools in this section for the years 1882 and 1883:—

Year.	Enrolment.	Average attendance.	School Fees.
1882.....	5,913	3,323·5	£ s. d. 1,717 4 9
1883.....	5,880	3,299·0	1,661 9 0

I am unable to give a satisfactory explanation of the slight falling off shown by the above figures.

The 104 schools are worked by the following staff, viz.:— 97 teachers, 2 assistants, 24 pupil-teachers and 5 workmistresses.

The

The teachers are classified as follows :—

First Class.		Second Class.		Third Class.			Unclassified.
Section A.	Section B.	Section A.	Section B.	Section A.	Section B.	Section C.
0	0	1	14	22	15	19	28

The classifications of the pupil-teachers are—

First Class	2
Second „	5
Third „	7
Fourth „	10
Total	24

As might be expected in a staff of 123 persons, occasional acts of misconduct have to be dealt with ; but it can be truly said that the conduct of the great majority of the teachers is irreproachable, and that, as a rule, they take a lively interest in their work.

There are one or two matters which I have noticed with regret, and I feel bound to state them here. Some of the teachers do not evince the interest they should in maintaining the material condition of the school premises, and are less careful than good tenants ought to be. If a few palings are down, a window is broken, or a pump wants a sucker, the whole machinery of the Department is put in motion to have these matters rectified. I think that the teachers should see to small matters of this kind themselves. Again, some teachers regard the schools as designed for them and for the advancement of their interests, and seem to put on a lower level the interests of the public, to whom the schools and the best efforts of the teachers belong. In conversing with such teachers, it can easily be seen that their own interests are ever uppermost in their minds.

As in former years; I am able to speak of the pupil-teachers in terms of the highest commendation. In the large schools in which they are generally employed, these young persons have to do a great deal of hard and uninteresting work, and as a rule they do it well.

GOULBURN DISTRICT—BRAIDWOOD SECTION.

MR. INSPECTOR DAWSON'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honor to submit my report for the year 1883.

On 31st December the number of schools in operation in the Braidwood section of the Goulburn District consisted of thirty-nine Public, fourteen Provisional, eighteen Half-time, and four House-to-house Schools. As compared with last year, the Public Schools show an increase of four, Provisional Schools of six, and House-to-house Schools of one. Half-time Schools are as before, while the eight Denominational Schools and the Evening Public School mentioned in last annual report have been closed. The total number of schools is thus greater by two than at the end of 1882. This result has been attained by the establishment of small schools during the year in outlying localities, as at Goo-gong, Foxlow, Corang River, Modbury Creek, Manar, Dena River, Shallow Crossing, Currowan, Currowan Creek, and Rossi.

It is pleasing to note that the increased facilities afforded by the Department have deepened the anxiety of parents in isolated localities to secure a substantial education for their children. In addition to the schools mentioned above, new schools are in course of establishment at Berlang, Nerriga West, Primrose Valley, and Whinstone Valley, and it is hoped that school work will begin at these places early in 1884. Applications for schools at Big Tindary, Urialla, Yumbera West, Brook's Creek, Creek-borough, and Little Plain are either waiting report or the Minister's decision. The actual increase in the number of schools during 1883, and the probable increase during 1884, are satisfactory indications of a spreading educational interest.

I regret to report that there have been no Evening Public Schools established or in operation during the year. Those opened in previous years were all closed before the beginning of 1883, and since that time there has been no demand for schools of this class.

The district is very well supplied with day schools providing adequate accommodation for the number of pupils in attendance. There are only a few isolated localities where schools are yet a desideratum, and by the end of 1884 their number will, I anticipate, be very much reduced.

At the larger centres sufficient accommodation has now been provided for all present needs by the erection of suitable extensions. The new Primary School building at Braidwood is now completed, and is of such a kind as to worthily agree with the school's position as the most important in the district.

At the end of 1882 the total number of pupils enrolled was 3,038, and at the end of 1883, 2,676, a decrease of 362 pupils. This decrease has been caused chiefly by the removal of many families from the at present unproductive gold-fields of the district and by the closing of the former Denominational Schools. So far as Public Schools are concerned, however, there has been an increase of 314 pupils enrolled.

The following table shows the enrolment and average daily attendances for each quarter during 1882 and 1883 :—

1882.	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.	Per-centage.	1883.	Enrolment.	Average Attendance.	Per-centage.
March quarter	3,082	2,186	70.9	March quarter.....	2,666	1,816	68.1
June quarter	3,130	2,141	68.4	June quarter.....	2,801	1,913	68.3
September quarter..	3,164	2,287	72.2	September quarter.	2,752	1,997	72.5
December quarter...	3,038	2,104	69.2	December quarter..	2,676	1,874	70.0

The average attendance is still comparatively poor in quality. Various reasons are assignable. In the harvesting and the shearing seasons some of the schools are quite deserted by the older pupils. Sickness accounts for the poor attendance of not a few. Some parents, aware of the fact that attendance on only 70 days per half-year is necessary, limit their children's attendances to that number in order to have the advantage of their assistance in farming and other kinds of work. Again, the compulsory clause does not extend to a great number of children residing at distances greater than 2 miles from the schools. With regard to the total number of children enrolled it would, I think, be higher did not the immunity from the operation of the compulsory clause enjoyed by parents of children attending private schools induce several to send their children to such schools.

During the year general inspections, which regard not only the attainments of the pupils, but also the condition of the school buildings and grounds, have been made of all the schools under my supervision with the exception of one, a House-to-house School (representing ten pupils) which was opened too late in the year to admit of inspection.

In addition to these inspections, twenty-four schools underwent ordinary inspection during the last months of the year, and throughout the year seventy incidental visits were made to schools under my care.

The material condition of the schools may be described as fairly satisfactory. Repairs of varying extent have been made on twelve Public Schools and several small schools, and in those cases where improvement and renovation are still required the necessary authority has been obtained or the steps leading to that end have been taken.

The condition of the Provisional and half-time School Buildings has improved, in some cases by the action of the Department and in others by that of the residents. Still much requires to be done. Few of these schools are supplied with out-offices, the grounds are generally unfenced, the furniture is in most cases rude and clumsy, and hat-pegs and other smaller conveniences are wanting.

The Public School grounds, with some exceptions where care and taste are exhibited, present a bare and unattractive appearance. Gardening is viewed with indifference, though forming a natural and healthy change from in-door school work.

Seventy-five schools in all were inspected. The following table shows the number of schools below, up to, and above standard requirements :—

	Below.	Up to.	Above.
Public Schools	13	18	8
Provisional Schools	9	5	0
Half-time ,,	9	8	1
House-to-house ,,	2	2	0
Total	33	33	9

Fifty-six per cent., therefore, of the schools received the mark fair or above fair for general efficiency. Last year this percentage was 58. The number of new schools opened during the year in localities where few children had ever been at school accounts for the difference.

With regard to the statistics in the above table, it must be remarked that the schools below standard requirements are chiefly small schools, so that, as will be seen, the percentage of pupils whose proficiency is estimated as fair or above fair is higher than the similar percentage of schools. Further, many of the schools rated as below fair approximate closely to standard requirements.

The internal organization in the great majority of the schools is very satisfactory. The school-rooms are kept clean, neat, well ordered, and well ventilated. The records are generally intelligently kept. Time-tables are constructed on the intelligent principles of comparatively short lessons and suitable changes.

A mild though firm government prevails in most of the schools. Habits of cleanliness and neatness are inculcated, and in the majority of schools the appearance and behaviour of the pupils are pleasing and commendable. There are a few exceptions, and in these the rule of "like teacher like pupil" applies.

The subjects of examination were those prescribed. In one school four pupils were examined in elementary Latin with tolerable results. The following table shows the percentage of passes in each subject and the number of pupils examined in 1882 and 1883 :—

Subjects.	1882.		1883.
	No. examined.	Percentage.	No. examined.	Percentage.
Reading	2,203	69	2,066	73
Writing	2,203	68	2,064	71
Arithmetic	1,858	44	1,719	45
Grammar	1,254	61	1,136	56
Geography	1,254	62	1,136	64
Object Lessons	2,118	66	1,909	69
Scripture Lessons	350	71	416	71

Geometry	65	72	44	59
Algebra	51	55	39	36
Mensuration.....	12	75	17	64
Needlework	754	85	695	76

The reduction in the number of pupils examined has already been explained. It will be seen that in the majority of subjects greater proficiency has been attained than in the previous year. The average percentage for 1883 is over 60, the standard percentage.

At the close of the year there were employed in the schools under my supervision 64 teachers, 2 assistant teachers, 3 supernumerary teachers, 14 pupil-teachers, and 2 work-mistresses. The teachers on 31st December were classified as under :—

Classification.	II A.	II B.	III A.	III B.	III C.	Probationers.	Total.
Number	2	6	10	14	14	23	69

Two examinations of teachers were held during the year. In June five were examined, of whom three passed and two failed. In December six were examined: the result of this examination is not yet known.

The pupil-teachers underwent their annual examination with the result that only three out of fourteen failed,—a result creditable to both teachers and pupil-teachers.

The teachers as a body maintain a fair social position in the centres in which they are located. Their conduct, considering the difficulties their position entails, has been creditable and praiseworthy, with perhaps one or two exceptions. The

The increasing number of schools, the improvement in the material condition of the schools and in the proficiency of the pupils, combined with the generally satisfactory condition of the discipline and organization, point to a favourable forecast of the results of the coming year. The chief impediment to more decided improvement is without doubt irregularity of attendance. With this qualification, I have pleasure in anticipating successful results for the year 1884.

ANNEX S.

GOULBURN DISTRICT (BEGA).

MR. INSPECTOR KEVIN'S ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honor to submit my report for the year 1883, and in doing so will embrace therein—

1. The adequacy of the means of education in the section of the Goulburn District placed under my supervision, as regards amount and distribution.
2. The actual condition of the schools as tested by inspection.
3. Their improvement or retrogression as regards efficiency since the previous year.
4. Their future prospects, so far as can be foreseen with any certainty.
5. The teaching staff.
6. The different classes of schools.

At the close of the year 1882 I had under my supervision the following schools:—48 Public, 15 Provisional, 6 Half-time, and 1 Certified R.C. School. The actual number in existence on December 31, 1883, was 56 Public, 15 Provisional, 6 Half-time, 1 Evening Public, and 4 House-to-house Schools; that is, an increase in the aggregate of 12 schools. In addition to these, schools will open for the first time and with the new year at the following places:—Bungarby, Jimmenbuen, Millingandi, Rock Villa, and Jindabyne; and before long at Nelbothery, Pericoe, Borunda, Upper Brogo, Umaralla North, Arable, Moonbah, Wolumla West, and Wallagoot.

During the past year two Public Schools, viz., Montreal and The Springs, have been closed on account of the very small attendance. The latter, however, is likely to be reopened soon under altered conditions. Five Provisional Schools have been converted into Public Schools, and five others have just been recommended for conversion in accordance with section 22 of the Public Instruction Act. One Evening Public and four House-to-house Schools have been opened with success.

The Public Schools at Bega and at Cooma have, on account of the increased attendance, been promoted to Class IV, and now consist of two departments, Primary and Infant.

School Buildings.

New and handsome premises have been opened during the year at Bega, Dignam's Creek, and Brown Mountain, and Cobargo Public has been repaired and enlarged.

New buildings are on the point of being opened at Nimitybelle, Meringlo, and Three-mile Water-hole, and at Holt's Flat, Kiandra, Lochiel, Rocky Hall, and Tanga large and more suitable buildings have been secured under lease. The expediency of erecting new buildings—generally of a plain but substantial and comfortable character—at Bermagui, Berridale, Bibbenluke, Cobbobra, Kiandra, Numbla, Saucy Creek, and Umaralla is now under consideration. In some of these cases tenders have been accepted for the necessary work.

Distribution of the means of Education.

The means of education are adequate on the whole. Schools are now numerous, and few persons can complain that a school of some kind is not within easy reach. Where families are much scattered, the House-to-house system of instruction answers very well, and so far has been successful.

The new regulation by which the Department bears the whole cost in the erection of buildings and provision of furniture in connection with the establishment of Provisional Schools has done and is still doing much good.

Results of Inspection.

At the close of the past year there were under my supervision 58 Public, 15 Provisional, 6 Half-time, 1 Evening Public, and 4 House-to-house Schools. All these have been regularly inspected; and in addition, 33 re-inspections took place, besides a large number of incidental visits. The total enrolment for the year—no child being counted twice—was 4,587, or nearly 500 more than in 1882, and the average daily attendance was 2,442·3, or nearly 400 more than in the previous year.

The average attendance for the four quarters was—

	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
March	1,105·0	991·9	2,096·9
June	1,213·4	997·8	2,211·2
September	1,399·4	1,189·8	2,589·2
December	1,275·7	1,161·2	2,436·9

The number enrolled two or more times was 336, and the ordinary attendance, 2,107. The number present at examination was 2,624, and the number between the ages of 6 and 14 that might reasonably be expected to attend, 1,792. The number not receiving statute education was 179, or a decrease of 64 on last year's return.

Of the total number enrolled (4,587), 2,853 attended the prescribed number of days, and 1,734 failed to do so, and from the following causes:—

Sickness (chiefly epidemic)	283
Removal from district	58
Truanting	9
Other causes	1,384
Total	1,734

As reported before, in "other causes" is included "home work," the main agency in irregular or fitful attendance. It must also be borne in mind that a large number of schools were open for only a portion of the year, while others were opened for the first time and late in the year, thus rendering it impossible for the pupils to have completed 140 clear attendances within the prescribed time.

Since last report this part of the Colony has been brought under the operation of the compulsory clause of the Act, and with beneficial results.

Organization.

This on the whole continues to improve, but there are still certain matters that some teachers do not give sufficient attention to. Chief among these is the absence of neatness, cleanliness, and order in connection with their schools. While a goodly number are pictures of order and correctness, there are many, I regret to say, that proclaim the teachers in charge to be persons wanting in tidiness and taste.

The

The playground or garden is usually the index of the school's organization, and where the former is neglected and covered with all kinds of débris, and the latter choked with weeds or furrowed by pigs the organization is nearly always faulty in other respects. I cannot refrain from naming a few of the schools that are conspicuous for the taste displayed by their respective teachers in connection with the school grounds—Brown Mountain, Candelo, Delegate, Eden, Mogilla, Stony Creek, and Tantawanglo. All these, and some others, have gardens that are kept with great care and taste, and thus add materially to the health and enjoyment of their respective owners, and give pleasure at the same time to visitors and pupils.

The classification is now generally correct, and the records as a rule are neatly and reliably kept. Only one case of falsification—and the only one that ever came under my notice—occurred during the year, and the offending teacher was removed from the service.

The returns are now furnished promptly, and, generally speaking, are compiled with care and accuracy. The new Standard of Proficiency will be of great service to a number of teachers, chiefly beginners, who hitherto were to some extent working in the dark.

In some schools I found clocks wanting, and in others, where the Department had provided these, the teachers allowed them to get out of order, or else to remain idle for want of winding. Surprise was expressed in some cases where the teachers were informed that it was part of their duty to keep the clocks in good working order.

Discipline.

On the whole this may be regarded as satisfactory. Regularity and punctuality have improved during the year, but the latter is not yet up to what one might reasonably expect. With some teachers it is regarded as a matter of small moment, and, as might be expected, these persons themselves are wanting in this direction.

Neatness in dress and attention to personal cleanliness are tolerably satisfactory. Where they are not so I invariably look to the teacher as the cause, for where he or she is tasty in dress, and has a proper appreciation of the importance of personal cleanliness and propriety in this direction, the children will be found as a rule to follow example. There can be no excuse for teachers entering school day after day, and week after week, with unpolished boots, spotted clothes, and dingy linen, simply because they live in the bush. Above all persons a teacher should show a good example in this particular.

In the matter of playground supervision I found considerable indifference on the part of some teachers. The children were allowed to mix indiscriminately, and in some cases to wander away from the school grounds proper, while the teacher had dinner in his own house, or else was sitting in the school. In other cases I found the sexes were not strictly confined to their own playgrounds and to their own games. In all such cases I gave the teachers concerned very positive directions in this matter.

Drill is a subject that I fear does not receive the attention it should, and those best able to impart instruction in the subject are often those who try to shirk the duty. Many teachers fail to see what a powerful aid it is in discipline, and if their pupils can only make a noisy tramping on the school floor while marching in and out they are content. From teachers who have not been regularly trained little can, of course, be expected. All regularly trained teachers who were found neglecting the subject during the year were duly reported to the Minister.

On the whole, however, the discipline goes on improving year by year.

Instruction.

The results of last year's inspection may be regarded as satisfactory. The instruction is generally earnest, intelligent, and educative, and carried on industriously and patiently.

The cases were very few in which I had to find fault with the amount of work done, or with its quality. As a rule the Standard of Proficiency was honestly and faithfully observed.

The following table shows the condition of the schools inspected during the year :—

Schools.	Below Standard.	Up to Standard (Fair).	Above Standard.	Totals.
Public	16	23	19	58
Provisional	4	8	3	15
Half-time	2	2	2	6
Evening Public	1	...	1
House-to-house	4	4

The foregoing statement shows an improvement on last year's inspection, and if very recently established schools were omitted the condition would be considerably higher :—

Percentages.

The following table shows the percentages of marks gained in each subject. In view of the fact that the schools in this section of the district have now been regularly inspected once a year at least, and in many cases twice, during the past three years, the tests applied at inspection have been of a more severe character this year than in any former one since my appointment. I am therefore pleased to say that the results of inspection are higher this year than they have been in any of the three preceding years :—

ATTAINMENTS.

Reading.—All were examined in this subject, and the results show a decided improvement on last year's work. The subject is being taught better, and the pupils are not now allowed to run over a whole series of lessons without regard to sense or sound. On the principle of "hasten slowly" things will, no doubt, improve. Meanings do not receive enough attention; and in very few schools did I find the pupils of the second and higher classes able to repeat the poetic selections contained in the reading lessons. During the next year, however, I look for an improvement in this direction.

Arithmetic.—This subject receives due attention; but, except in some of the better class of schools, is still taught in a very mechanical way, and the pupils are seldom taught to think. The blackboard is not brought into use often enough.

Grammar.—

Grammar.—This subject continues to receive the needful time and attention, but some teachers still keep to the old lines of mechanical analysis without regard to grammatical or common-sense construction. Parsing is also frequently badly taught by neglecting to show its utility in the construction and correction of sentences. English composition is still almost a blank, and letter-writing in the higher classes seems to receive very little, if any, attention.

Geography.—This subject continues to be fairly well taught. It is a popular one with children, but I fear mere memory work is too much relied upon. The naming of a string of capes or of bays can hardly be said to be of any great utility, when the linking of some important fact to a name would render the subject more attractive and more interesting.

Physical geography receives little attention.

Object Lessons.—These are regularly given, but the results of inspection are slightly lower than those of last year. The habit of depending on text-books still prevails in some schools; and I found that very few teachers prepare the lessons themselves, or take any notes to guide them when giving the lessons. It is no wonder, therefore, that much is often said that need not be said at all, and much omitted that ought to be said. All this follows from absence of system and method.

Penmanship.—All were examined in this subject, and the results are satisfactory. The writing is generally legible, even, and free from smears. I have had to find fault in many schools, however, with the supervision as evidenced by a repetition of misspelt words, badly-formed letters, and a disposition to carelessness. It often happens also that the pupils are allowed to write too much at a sitting. I have directed in almost every case of this kind that seven or eight lines should be regarded as a fair amount per lesson, and that the teacher should estimate the value of each copy written by a well-understood mark. The class, or rather classes of copy-books in use still render uniformity next to impossible.

Vocal Music.—Little as a whole can be said as to the success achieved in teaching this subject. Omitting a few of the better class of schools, the subject might as well be left out altogether. Only properly trained and well-instructed teachers handle the subject successfully.

Algebra and Euclid.—Fewer pupils passed in these subjects than in the previous year. The actual work done was fairly satisfactory, but of a limited range.

Needlework.—The work done in connection with this subject continues to give satisfaction on the whole; but the habit which obtains in some schools of allowing the children each day to take home the sewing samples is open to objection, and, where possible, I have stopped it. It is a difficult matter in some schools to keep the samples from being destroyed by vermin, as no proper receptacles have been provided for their safe keeping.

In the majority of the schools under my supervision plain sewing is chiefly taught, but some mothers still show a desire for fancy work before their little ones know how to use the needle in plain stitching. In such cases the teachers are guided by circular instructions on this point. I cannot help thinking that in some cases the teachers' wives do not always devote the time to sewing that, according to the time-table, they are supposed to do.

The teachers of this section of the district continue to give satisfaction as public writers and to respect and esteem in their various spheres of action. No case of complaint of any kind reached me during the year, and I have had reason all through to be pleased at the way in which they have discharged their public duties. The half-yearly examinations are still well attended, and a considerable number of the candidates are those voluntarily seeking promotion. There can be no question as to the beneficial results of these examinations both to the State and to the teachers concerned.

The following tabulated statement shows the classification of all the teachers under my supervision at the end of 1883.

Class.	Section.	No. of Teachers
I	A	0
I	B	0
II	A	3
II	B	1
III	A	16
III	B	13
III	C	12
Unclassified		14

The number of unclassified teachers in charge of Public Schools may at first sight appear large; but more than two-thirds of the number have already been examined, though the result so far is not known, and the remainder are due for examination within the current half-year. They are principally teachers in charge of schools recently converted from Provisional into Public Schools.

In accordance with instructions, all unclassified teachers who had been in charge of Public Schools for six months were summoned to examination, at Bega, on 17th ultimo, or else were duly examined at their respective schools during my visits of inspection.

Provisional Schools.

The teachers in charge of these do not hold any classification as a rule. Generally speaking Provisional Schools zealously and vigorously worked soon grow into Public Schools, and then the teachers are after a time summoned to examination. I might be allowed to remark here that I have experienced considerable difficulty in securing eligible candidates for the office of Provisional School teachers. As a rule I prefer females, because I have found that in tact, in patience, in gentleness and forbearance, as well as in sympathy, they generally excel. It is very difficult at all times, however, to meet with the right stamp of person. Young men of steady, sober, and industrious habits, and with a vocation for the office, are still more difficult to find. The means of existence in this country are so easy, outdoor life is so attractive, and so few young men have a decided taste for teaching, that the number of desirable candidates is always very limited.

Half-time Schools.

As stated in my report for 1882, there are six of these, all in charge of classified teachers.

Evening Public Schools.

One application for this class of school was received during the year and granted. The school has been in operation some months, and so far has done good work. It is doubtful, however, if it will be continued, as the teacher says the day school is a sufficient strain on his strength without engaging in night work.

House to House.

Four of these are now in existence and are doing fairly well. The scheme of appointing itinerant teachers is a new one, and is the best that could be desired under the circumstances. As population increases these schools will in time grow into Provisional or Half-time Schools. In the meantime the Department is doing the best it can for the isolated families that are to be found everywhere through the bush.

Summary.

The educational wants of this section of the Goulburn District are well supplied on the whole, and, where necessary, continue to be promptly met. Within the last two and a half years the schools have increased fifteenfold, and still they go on multiplying, but not beyond reasonable demand. Everywhere that from fifteen to twenty children can be found at a convenient centre the Department willingly, and and without any unnecessary loss of time, aids them in the usual way by providing buildings and furniture free of cost to the residents. Under such circumstances it is disappointing to see the persons most concerned disagreeing about some trifle—often the outcome of a piece of spite or a petty grievance—and thus delaying the opening of the school, and thereby punishing their own children by keeping them in ignorance.

Reviewing the year's operations and experiences, I consider the organization and discipline very fairly satisfactory, the instruction of an improved character, and the general condition of the schools healthy and progressive.

MAITLAND DISTRICT.

GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honor to submit my report on the Maitland District for 1883. The limits of this district were the same as for the previous year. At the beginning of 1883 there were in operation 180 Public Schools and departments, 31 Provisional, 6 Half-time, and 1 Evening Public, in all 218 schools and departments. Christ Church C.E. school, Newcastle, was purchased by the Department, and opened as a Public School in January; and the C.E. schools at Singleton and Denman were leased, and similarly opened at the same time. New vested Public Schools were completed and occupied during the year at Bandon Grove, Belmont Belford Lower, Booral, East Maitland (two departments), Falbrook, Gresford, Hexham, Hexham Upper, Moonan Flat, Musclebrook (infants'), Raymond Terrace, Rouchel, Sparke's Creek, Thalaba, and Vere.

New vested buildings are in course of erection at Adamstown (infants'), Bendolba, Blue-gum Flat, Buchanan, Denham, Miller's Forest, Mulbring, Vacy, Wingen, and Whittingham. Arrangements are complete for the erection of new buildings at Ballington, Binglebrah, Eccleston, Salisbury, and Wallalong. Non-vested Public Schools were opened for the first time at Blandford, Dunolly, and Glenoak. Provisional Schools were established at Holmes' Creek, Tea Tree, Salt Ash, Wyong Lower, Yango, and Rosenthal. With the exception of Rosenthal, to which a teacher has been just appointed, these Provisional Schools were in operation during some portion of the year.

Half-time schools were established at Chilcott Plains and Clairwood, Bunnan, and Middle Wybong. Itinerant teachers were appointed to Ridglands and Wortwell. Evening Public Schools were opened at Hamilton, Hanbury, and Rouchell. The Platsburg Evening Public School was closed for want of support, the average for the last quarter during which it was in operation having been 9.3. So far Evening Public Schools have been almost a failure in this district.

Applications for a large Public School, of three departments, at Cook's Hill, Newcastle, and for an infant school at Horse-shoe Bend, West Maitland, have been favourably reported on, and a site has been purchased for the former school, on which temporary wooden buildings are to be erected. Applications for Public Schools at Burwood, South Singleton, and Aliceton were declined. Schools were not needed in the former places; and the circumstances of Aliceton did not warrant the establishment of a Public School thereat; but arrangements for opening a Provisional School in this locality are in progress. Provisional Schools will also be shortly established at Myall Creek, Stewart's Brook, and Owen's Gap, and itinerant teachers will be appointed to Gundabri and Putty. When these arrangements shall have been completed, it is thought that there will be no part of this district in which a school is needed without one. The Provisional School at Wangat was closed at the end of the first quarter of 1883 for want of attendance.

The following Provisional were converted into Public Schools during the year, viz. :—Colstoun, Murray's Run, Myall Upper, Sweetman's Creek, and Wattagon. Ridgeland's itinerant was also advanced to the rank of a Provisional School. The number of schools in operation during 1883, or any portion thereof, was 232. Their distribution is seen from the following table :—

The organization of nearly all the schools of this district has improved in several points during the past year. Frequent inspection, with its inevitable criticism, prevents the organization of schools from standing still, but it would be unfair to attribute all the improvement that has occurred to inspection, much having been achieved by the teachers themselves. The new vested buildings are on a superior plan as regards ventilation and lighting. Some of the older schools are still defective in these particulars. In others fair means are provided, but are frequently not utilized, and sometimes not understood by teachers. Sufficient advantage of the opportunity which the 11 o'clock recess affords of thoroughly purifying the schoolroom is not always taken, and in about ten schools the daily sweeping and dusting of the rooms are overlooked.

The method of keeping the school records has improved during the year. All visits to schools were made by the Inspectors without notice. An opportunity was thus afforded of testing the accuracy of the records and of observing the school in its real character. The results of such visits were duly recorded by the Inspectors. Suggestions were made for improvement, and serious defects reported to the Department. The Inspectors are satisfied that on the whole the teachers are devoted to their duties, and that the records are faithfully kept. The supply of furniture and apparatus very fairly meets requirements. With reference to the quality of slates, pencilholders, and ink now supplied to schools, frequent complaint was made, and not without cause, for these articles are inferior to those furnished in past years.

Considerable attention was devoted by teachers and Inspectors to improving the classification of pupils, and with highly satisfactory results. The tendency to unnecessarily subdivide classes, especially the first, is disappearing; and the teachers seem to appreciate the fact that a sound classification is essential to successful teaching.

The net enrolment for 1883 was 22,063, the average attendance for the same period having been 12,214.8. The number of pupils examined was 13,173. For 1882 the average daily attendance was 55 per cent. of the net enrolment. For 1883 the percentage is no higher. Nearly 60 per cent. of the net enrolment attended the general inspections during the year. It is evident from these figures that no improvement over last year has been effected in regard to the regular attendance of pupils. Were Magistrates, Attendance Officers, District School Boards, and teachers so to work together, each aiding the other as to avoid undue harshness on the one hand, and mistaken leniency on the other, a better attendance of children would be secured and the benefits which the Public Instruction Act is capable of affording to the people could be more largely shared. The chief hindrance to the improvement improvement of some of our primary schools is to be found in the fitful and irregular attendance of the pupils. Suitable and well-furnished buildings have been provided. The teachers are fairly capable and willing to work; but the best teachers and the best appliances are of little use if a number of the pupils attend irregularly. Good results will never be produced until an absolutely regular attendance shall have been secured. It is not only the irregular child that suffers, but the advance of the whole class to which he belongs is retarded. And when it is found, as it has been found on visiting schools unexpectedly, that a large proportion of the pupils enrolled are absent, the teachers of such schools are to be pitied, and no one should wonder that these schools are below the standard in efficiency. The punctuality of the pupils is generally what the teachers make it, good, fair, or unsatisfactory, in proportion to the degree of activity they use in checking the evil by salutary discipline and good example. The government of the schools and the behaviour of the pupils are increasingly satisfactory. In a few schools considerable trouble was caused until lately by the disorderly habits of some children in the playgrounds and out-offices; and from what has been observed in relation to the action of some parents, it is painfully apparent that the teachers have often but little to expect in this matter from home influence. The order of the pupils while under examination is generally good. There are of course some attempts at affording and obtaining assistance, but their demeanour, steadiness, and attention deserve special praise. And the evident delight and anxiety with which they enter upon their work contribute to make an inspection a pleasure to all parties concerned. In a few schools there is still more copying than is consistent with the highest kind of discipline; and the manners and language of pupils out of school are often in direct contrast with what they are in school.

In Infant Schools good discipline is one of the best tests of thorough efficiency. Infant discipline needs constant watchfulness, firmness, and patience on the teacher's part. If these qualities be replaced by roughness and severity on the one hand, or by neglect on the other, the worst results must inevitably follow. In this respect, as well as in their general proficiency, the Infant Schools of this district hold a high rank.

Every school in operation during the year received a general inspection, except Holmes' Creek (Provisional), Wortwell (Itinerant), and 3 Evening Public Schools. Assistant Inspector M'Lelland accidentally omitted to make the general inspection of the first-named school, and Wortwell was not in operation until December—too late in the year to admit of its being inspected. The Evening Public Schools were not examined for want of time. In addition to the General Inspection, every school in the Maitland District, except Wortwell and 4 Evening Schools, received an ordinary inspection.

The beneficial effects of these ordinary inspections, which were made without notice, have been very considerable, especially in improving the methods of instruction and the accuracy and neatness of the records. So convinced is each Inspector in this district of the advantages likely to accrue to the cause of primary education in our schools from a systematic course of ordinary inspections, that it is intended to continue them during the current year. The number of schools fully inspected according to the General Form is—

The following table exhibits the condition of the inspected schools in relation to the standard of proficiency:—

One Evening Public School (Rouchel, in Musclebrook portion of the district) was inspected. It was below the standard. It appears from this table that 68 per cent. of the Public Schools met or exceeded the standard's test, 22 per cent. of the Provisional, and 33 per cent. of the Half-time, the average of all schools being 60 per cent.

The work done in the schools of this district, taking all things into account, the influx of untaught children, the adverse influence of their homes, the irregularity of attendance, and the frequent and capricious migration from school to school in towns, is very creditable. Their condition both as regards the scope and quality of instruction compared with what it was eight years ago is highly satisfactory. The supply of apparatus is larger, and the number of pupils able to write on paper has considerably increased. Country schools cannot keep pace with town schools. In towns where schools are large and close to the pupils' homes, where competition is keen, and the faculties of children are sharpened by an endless variety of circumstances, where interest is very often taken in children's work and progress by their parents, it is rare enough to find a really intelligent knowledge of the subjects of instruction instruction throughout all the classes of the schools. What, then, can be expected from country schools attended by children not so sharp naturally? Many of them live long distances from school, and are often kept at home to work. From the time they leave school until they return thereto, they are not thrown amongst any improving influences, educationally speaking. They have little desire to learn, for they get but little encouragement, so that they can scarcely receive much less retain, what they are taught. The excellence of schools is usually gauged by the percentage of pupils who reach or exceed the standard, and schools which show this test of proficiency in the same degree are placed on the same platform. It should, however, be remembered that a school may only just reach the standard in a given time. Another school may exceed this test in the same period of time, or even in a shorter interval. Or, again, one school having a teacher for each class satisfies the standard, while another under one teacher exceeds its requirements. Looking only at the result of the inspections, the same degree of success may, to the Inspector who has seen them all, indicate marked differences. Excellence is further tested by discipline, tone, the sympathies of teachers with each other and with their pupils, as well as by the conduct of the pupils towards one another in and out of school. It is pleasing to have to report that decided improvement has been effected in the methods of instruction during the past few years. Much yet remains to be done, but it is due to the great body of teachers that recognition be made of their labours in seconding the efforts of the Department towards improving the system of instruction in Public Schools. Grammar and geography are no longer treated as if they were mysteries. Maps and text books are now judiciously used in most schools. Spelling and writing are rationally taught. The schoolroom is no longer the most untidy spot in the locality, and the teacher is, as a rule, a person of character.

The following table exhibits the number of pupils examined in each subject of instruction, and the percentage of those who satisfied or exceeded the standard —

From this table it appears that the compound and higher rules of arithmetic and drill were not well taught, that the simple rules of arithmetic, grammar, geography, Scripture, drawing, Euclid and trigonometry were taught with fair success, and that the remaining seventeen subjects were taught in a very efficient manner.

A satisfactory proficiency was attained in reading. This subject has decidedly advanced in fluency in the lower classes, and in intelligence throughout. The preparation of select pieces for recitation received a fair share of attention in the larger schools of this district. It is an exercise that tests the efficiency and intelligence of any school. A piece of good poetry well taught and fully understood cultivates articulation, expression, memory, and taste. In fact, the practice exercises more faculties than any other subject of instruction. Mental arithmetic is very much neglected. Pupils are usually ignorant of the short rules intended to facilitate calculations under this head which are given in text books, while it is rare to find in any class pupils who can apply the simple rules to numbers of two or three figures, or who can answer readily and accurately easy practical questions on every day transactions.

A very high degree of proficiency should be insisted on in writing. The transcription and dictation exercises might, with due attention and supervision, be made the mediums of developing and finally establishing a free legible style of writing in the upper classes of Primary Schools.

The number of teachers employed in this district is 234. Their classification will be seen from the following table —

Class	Males	Females	Total

I wish to bear testimony to the high character, good manners, and courtesy of the teachers of this district, and also to the evident desire they manifest to be guided by, and to carry out, the instructions of the Department.

The pupil-teachers number 108, 48 males and 60 females. They are classified thus :—

	Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	Total.
Males	10	15	12	11	48
Females	11	5	20	24	60
Total.....	21	20	32	35	108

I am pleased to be able to report an improvement in the work of these young persons; I am likewise glad to learn that it is contemplated to make provision for giving them instruction on Saturdays, wherever practicable, in mathematics, Latin, French, drawing, and music. The habit of study is active among a considerable number, although numerous failures at examination occurred during the year. Were teachers to insist on the thorough and regular performance of the home work of their pupil-teachers there would be fewer failures at examinations, and the attainments and efficiency of these young persons would be materially benefited.

The Inspectors associated with me, Messrs. McCormack, Morris, and McLelland, have worked very hard during the year. It is owing to their devotion to duty, and to their energy in its discharge, that the work of this district has been so thoroughly performed.

To sum up: It may be said that the organization, discipline, and instruction of a majority of the schools of the Maitland District have improved. A large number of new buildings have been erected, and others are being built. House to house teaching has been instituted. Numbers of teachers have been examined and promoted, and a healthy tone pervades all ranks of the profession.

East Maitland, 15th January, 1884.

MAITLAND DISTRICT (NEWCASTLE PORTION).

MR. INSPECTOR M'CORMACK'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

1. THE Newcastle portion of the Maitland District had 89 Schools or Departments in operation at the beginning of the year, viz. :—

Public	78
Provisional	9
Half-time.....	2

This number received a slight increase in the twelve months. Bendolba, Miller's Forest, and Newcastle (Christ Church), which appear on the list as Public Schools, were formerly Church of England Schools; but, as it was deemed advisable, on the withdrawal of State aid from Denominational Schools, to continue them for school purposes, arrangements were made for their existence as Public Schools. These were the only Church buildings needed to meet pressing educational wants. In May the Provisional School at Wangat was closed, and at Glenoak, near by, a school was opened which ranks as a Public School. During the year three Provisional Schools, Munn, Myall Upper, and Wyong Creek, were converted into Public Schools, and two new Provisional Schools were established, one at Salt Ash and the other at Wyong Creek Lower. Of the seven existing Provisional Schools, three secured during the December quarter the necessary average to warrant their proclamation as Public Schools. About the middle of the year three Evening Public Schools were opened, each of which had but a brief existence. In several localities new buildings have superseded old ones. An Infants' Department has been added to the Adamstown Public School, and at Cook's Hill, a rapidly increasing suburb of Newcastle, a new school of three departments will be ready for occupation at an early date. A decided improvement has been effected in connection with the organization of nearly all the schools. Many of them present an extremely clean and neat appearance, the floors and forms receiving frequent washing, the desks are very free from ink-stains and scribbles, few diagrams in disrepair are noticeable, and the stock generally is well-preserved; order and taste are displayed in the suspension of the maps and diagrams, the arrangement of the furniture is commendable, and the presses, corners, and fire-places are kept free from litter. Proper supervision is exercised over the playground and out-buildings. The existing schools at the close of the year numbered 92; they are in very fair repair, are well-distributed, and place the means of education within the reach of almost the entire school population of the district.

2. The number of Schools or Departments opened during the year was 96. All of these, excepting the three Evening Public Schools, received a general and an ordinary inspection. This result is partly due to assistance rendered by the District Inspector and the Assistant Inspector. The ordinary inspections have already improved the organisation of the schools, and they have also revealed in several instances that lessons, in regard to matter, are crudely, if at all prepared; that little attention is given beforehand as to how the lessons are to be given; and that lessons are closed without the examination necessary to test their reception. In the following statement the general condition of the schools inspected is shown :—

	Below Standard.	Up to Standard.	Above Standard.
Public	24	31	28
Provisional	8
Half-time	2
Totals.....	32	31	30

All the Provisional Schools and twelve of the Public Schools are in charge of unclassified teachers. Of the 93 schools inspected, 65 per cent. satisfied or exceeded the standard. In 1882, 55 per cent. did so. Progress during the year is indicated by these results. At the general inspections 5,946 pupils were were examined. The subjects, the number of pupils examined in each subject, and the percentage who satisfied the standard, are given in the following table :—

Subjects.	No. of Pupils.	Percentage who reached the Standard.
Reading	5,946	62
Writing	5,843	71

Algebra	288	55
Mensuration	33	60
Latin	68	29
Trigonometry	20	65
Needlework	2,121	71
Drill	5,317	50

The above does not include the results of fourteen schools dealt with by the District Inspector, nine of which are among the largest and best in the district.

3. All unclassified teachers in charge of Public Schools in operation for at least six months were examined in December. Forty classified teachers also underwent examination during the year, with the view of obtaining higher certificates. The results in all cases are not yet known.

Summary :—The schools are sufficient in number and are well distributed; the results of the inspection show an improvement, and the teachers generally are studious and painstaking. The existing conditions are favourable for the progress of primary education in the district.

Statistics relating to schools and to the estimated proficiency of pupils have been sent to the District Inspector.

J. M'CORMACK,
Inspector.

ANNEX V.

MR. INSPECTOR MORRIS'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honor to present my report on the condition of the schools inspected by me during 1883.

At the close of 1882, 85 schools were in operation in that part of the Maitland district which is under my supervision.

Public	65
Provisional	18
Half-time.....	2

In the course of the year Public Schools were opened at Blandford and Dunolly; an Infants' Department was added to the Muscleebrook School, and a Girls' Department to the Singleton School; the Provisional Schools at Murray's Run, Wattagon, and Sweetman's Creek, were raised to the rank of Public Schools. Middle Wybong was reduced to a Half-time, and Bunnan was re-opened as a Half-time School. Half-time Schools were established at Chilcott Plains and Clairwood, Provisional Schools at Yango and Ridglands, and an Evening Public School at Rouchel; making the total at the end of 1883 to be 94. But Cliffdale and Webber's Creek have been permanently closed, so the numbers now stand thus :—

Public	72
Provisional	13
Half-time.....	6
Evening	1
Total	92

It is proposed to establish Provisional Schools at Owen's Gap, Stewart's Brook, and Myall Creek, also to institute house-to-house teaching at Gundabri and Putty. These schools being established, very few centres of population will lack the means of education, though isolated families will still be found whose homes are too remote for them to reap the advantages intended. Some children are growing up in ignorance who would be rescued from the effects of parental neglect or selfishness if the law were altered so as to increase to 3 miles the compulsory distance for children over 9, or at all events over 10 years of age.

The number of schools open during the whole of 1883 was 87, and the number open during a part of the year was 94. All these have been inspected—86 by me, and 8 by the District Inspector. All in operation at the end of the year also received ordinary inspection, so that all the schools have had at least two inspectoral visits during the year.

New schoolrooms have been completed at Sparke's Creek, Moonan Flat, Blandford, Belford Lower, Muscleebrook (Infants), Falbrook, Rouchel, Rothbury, and Vere. New buildings are in course of construction at Wingen, Denman, Whittingham, and Stock-yard Creek. Extensive repairs have been effected in Scone, and minor improvements at several other schools. With the exception of a few of the Provisional Schools, the average repair of the buildings is very fair, and they present as a rule a clean and well-ordered appearance. The lighting and ventilation of nearly all the Public Schools are good, and of nearly all the Provisional Schools defective.

There is generally a very fair supply of teaching materials, but some teachers have complained of the quality of the slates, and pencil-holders.

The classification is usually suitable, but cases do occur in which pupils are kept too long in the lower classes; in one or two schools the opposite error is observable, and in some there is a tendency to an excessive subdivision of the first class.

In the matter of punctuality and regularity some improvement has taken place, leaving however much to be desired as to the latter. The character of the government in most schools is very satisfactory, and the state of the general discipline is pleasing, the pupils being for the most part respectful and amenable to control.

The

The following table exhibits the efficiency of all schools inspected by me :—

	Below Standard.	Up to.	Above.
Public	28	13	23
Provisional	10	4	1
Half-time	6
Evening	1
Totals	45	17	24

In the case of many of the schools which are below the standard, no blame can be imputed to the teachers, who, in the cases referred to, have done as much as could be reasonably expected of them under all the circumstances.

Of the pupils examined by me, the following proportions reached the standard (fair) in the various subjects:—

Reading	2190	= 85 per cent.
Writing	2583	= 91 "
Arithmetic	2317	= 77 "
Grammar, elementary	2307	= 61 "
" advanced	717	= 50 "
Geography, elementary	252	= 71 "
" advanced	580	= 75 "
Scripture	549	= 64 "
Object Lessons	243	= 78 "
Drawing	1916	= 69 "
Music	243	= 54 "
Euclid	1440	= 83 "
Algebra	1877	= 100 "
Mensuration	78	= 100 "
Latin	78	= 83 "
Needlework	30	= 93 "
Drill	784	= 40 "
French	848	= 30 "

Upon some of these subjects I wish to make a few remarks.

Reading.—Although a high percentage reached the standard (fair) yet much is wanting in connection with the teaching of this subject. Comparatively few pupils obtained the mark "good," and scarcely any could be deemed excellent. The great defect is a lack of expression. There is almost no attempt at elocution, and the rhetorical and musical effects of reading are looked for nearly in vain. The mechanical accuracy is good, but there is not much besides. The repeating of poetry from memory, as provided for in the new standards, will, I think, have a beneficial effect.

Advanced grammar is still a weak subject. The instruction seems to be desultory, not systematic and consecutive. The knowledge of the pupils often lacks precision and intelligent grasp even in the case of the more advanced ones.

In many cases music is feebly taught, so much so that in such cases it were better in my judgment for the subject to be omitted altogether.

Drill is a very poor subject, except where teachers have had the opportunity of receiving instruction in the Training School or elsewhere.

Very few pupils were presented for examination in Euclid, algebra, mensuration, and Latin and French, and they had not advanced very far except at one or two schools, but they answered creditably as far as they had gone.

The general impression on my mind during my visits to the schools throughout the year was that their condition had improved, and an examination of the table of results corroborates this impression. There are also reasonable grounds to anticipate a further advance in 1884.

R. N. MORRIS,
Inspector.

ANNEX W.

WELLINGTON DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT-INSPECTOR W. H. JOHNSON'S REPORT FOR 1883.

At the close of 1882 there were in the Wellington District 134 Public, 16 Provisional, 6 Half-time, 7 Denominational, and 3 Evening Schools in operation. The 7 Denominational Schools having ceased connection with the Department, and 1 Provisional School having been discontinued through paucity of pupils, there remained 158 schools of all classes at the beginning of 1883. During the year this number was increased to 188 by the establishment of 30 new schools.

Public schools were established at—

Menah,	Nevertire,
Tunnabutta,	Sandy Creek,
Pine Ridge,	Eschol.

Provisional Schools at—

Belar,	Riverside,
Barringun,	Willy Wally,
Bourbah,	Warkton,
Bogaldie,	Narromine,
Brightling Park,	Yeoval,
Denison Town,	Curra Creek,
Dun Dun,	Lincoln,
Dapper,	Mookerawa,
Dandaloo,	Terrabella,

Ballast Siding.

A Half-time School at—

Kerr's Creek.

Evening Public Schools were also established at—

Cooyal,	Pine Ridge,
Girilambone,	Garra.

There were therefore in operation during the year, or for some portion of it, 140 Public, 34 Provisional, 7 Half-time, and 7 Evening Schools. Of these, however, those at Eurimbla, Ballast Siding, Wyaldra, Flatlands, and Denison Town, were closed, as were also the 7 Evening Schools, thus leaving 176 in operation at the end of the year.

The Provisional Schools at Belar and Narromine having secured the required average attendance were classified as Public Schools, and the Half-time School at Nubrygyn was raised to the rank of Provisional. The attendance at Mundooran Public having fallen below the required minimum for a full time, was converted into a Half-time School.

The

The 176 schools in operation at the close of this year were thus classified :—

Public.....	140
Provisional.....	30
Half-time	6

In addition to these, 6 newly established schools, viz., 4 Public and 2 Provisional, will commence work immediately after the close of the vacation. The number of schools, therefore, actually at work in the beginning of 1884 will be 182.

Applications for the establishment of schools have also been received from the following places :—

Sportsman's Hollow,	Loombah,
Cogari,	Bolderogery,
Ginghi,	Ballimore,
Bylong,	Bunglegumby,
Oak Creek,	Eringonia,
Piambong,	Angledool,
Trangie,	Ewenmar.

These are now under consideration, and will be dealt with shortly. It is therefore probable that by the end of the next year the number of schools in the district will exceed 200.

Much has been done during the year towards increasing the accommodation and improving the condition of the school buildings. New buildings have been erected at—

Comobella,	Dubbo, Boys',
Garra,	Nevertire,
Spicer's Creek,	Rocky Ponds,
Woolloman,	Bective,
Bunninyong,	Beryl.

When these works have been completed the material condition of the school buildings will be very satisfactory, and the accommodation afforded will fully meet the present requirements of existing schools.

The quarterly enrolment for the year and the average attendance for each quarter were :—

	Enrolment.	Average.
March quarter	8,755	5,736
June quarter.....	8,988	6,264
September quarter	9,211	6,412
December quarter	9,021	6,094

From this it will be seen that an increase in both enrolment and average attendance took place in each of the middle quarters of the year, but that in the last quarter both were less than in either September or June quarters. This falling off towards the end of the year is chiefly due to the children being kept at home to water stock and to assist in harvesting operations. These causes have influenced the attendance during the last two months of the present year to a very large extent, as labour was more than ordinarily scarce.

The pupils are for the most part fairly punctual. Where they are not so, both teacher and parents are to blame. A teacher who is not strictly punctual himself cannot expect his pupils to be so. If he allows children to arrive at school after the work of the day has begun, and to take their places without a word of excuse or explanation, they are sure to take advantage of this and to play and loiter on the road.

All the schools that were in operation for the whole or any portion of the year, with the exception of six Evening Schools which ceased operations prior to the Inspector's visits to their respective localities, have been fully inspected. There have also been made 22 ordinary inspections during the year.

In the following table are given the percentages of pupils who satisfied the standard in the various subjects of instruction for this and the previous year :—

	1882.	1883.
Reading	76 per cent.	76 per cent.
Writing	81 "	81 "
Arithmetic.....	42 "	43 "
Grammar	61 "	67 "
Geography.....	67 "	70 "
History	"	100 "
Scripture	70 "	82 "

Drawing.....	66 "	68 "
Music	81 "	64 "
French	"	100 "
Euclid.....	88 "	88 "
Algebra	77 "	83 "
Mensuration	"	70 "
Latin	86 "	100 "
Needlework	92 "	86 "
Drill	63 "	68 "

The high percentages in History, French, and Latin are accounted for by the fact that these subjects are taught by the more skilful teachers only, and that only very few pupils were presented for examination in them.

In object lessons, music, and needlework, the results are lower this year than last; in reading, writing, and Euclid, they are about the same; and in the remaining subjects they are higher. These results will appear much more satisfactory when it is remembered that out of the 183 schools inspected 30 were new ones, several of them established only a few weeks prior to the inspection, and in the larger number of them the pupils had not been to any other school. In these schools the percentage of pupils up to the standard would necessarily be small.

The following table shows the condition of the various classes of schools this year as compared with last :—

	Below the Standard.		Up to the Standard.		Above the Standard.
	1882.	1883.	1882.	1883.	1882.	1883.

Provisional	11	25	6	6	1	1
Half-Time	1	1	2	6	3	...
Evening	1	1	...
Totals	68	84	49	59	36	40

Arithmetic is still the most unsatisfactorily taught of all the prescribed subjects, but no doubt much improvement will take place in this as in other subjects under the provisions of the new Standard of Proficiency which has just been issued to the teachers. More time and attention will be devoted to arithmetic and like important subjects, and the instruction being properly graduated will be more thorough.

The discipline generally continues to improve. Recourse is had much less frequently to corporal punishment—as a rule, it is seldom inflicted in the smaller country schools. The necessity for such punishment often arises from the injudiciousness of parents in listening to children's exaggerated account of school occurrences, and unfavourably commenting in their presence upon a teacher's conduct. Many a child has thus been incited to or encouraged in insubordination at school.

The teachers, with few exceptions, are earnest and intelligent, and take advantage of every available opportunity to improve their skill and literary attainments. The number of those who voluntarily attend the half-yearly examinations is steadily increasing. Those employed in the schools of this district at the close of the year were classified as follows :—

Class.	Section.	No. of Teachers.
I	A	1
I	B	1
II	A	10
II	B	20
III	A	31
III	B	29
III	C	24
Unclassified teachers		68

The unclassified teachers are in charge of Provisional and small Public Schools. Those in charge of Public Schools attended the recent examination, and a large proportion of them will no doubt succeed in obtaining a classification. I am glad to be able to report that several of those who have lately sought and obtained employment as teachers of small schools are persons of superior education, intelligence, and respectability, and are likely to become very useful teachers.

The pupil-teachers employed in this district are a respectable, intelligent, and fairly studious body of young persons. In some localities, the supply of applicants for the position of pupil-teacher very much exceeds the demand, but in many places the number of those desirous of entering the Service falls far short of that required. This has necessitated the employment of assistant teachers in schools to which pupil-teachers would otherwise have been appointed.

Satisfactory improvement in the material condition of the school buildings and a fair increase in the efficiency of the schools of the district have been effected during the past year, and there is every prospect that equal or even greater progress will be made during the coming year.

ANNEX X.

MR. INSPECTOR THORNTON'S REPORT ON SCHOOLS IN THE MUDGE PORTION OF THE WELLINGTON DISTRICT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

1.—At the end of 1882 there were 114 schools under my supervision, viz. :—

- 90 Public Schools
- 13 Provisional Schools
- 4 Half-time Schools
- 3 Evening Schools
- 4 Denominational.

Of these, one Evening and the four Denominational Schools did not re-open, as State Schools, in 1883.

2. During the year, 17 new schools were established, viz. :—

- 3 Public Schools
- 12 Provisional Schools
- 2 Evening Schools.

Besides these, the establishment of Evening Schools at Munghorn and Pine Ridge was authorized; but by the time official sanction was received the teacher reported that, on account of the removal of some of the promised pupils, and the extra work at harvest time, it would be useless to open them.

3. The following schools were closed during the year :—

- 2 Public Schools
- 2 Provisional Schools
- 4 Evening Schools

Total 8

The Public, Provisional, and two of the Evening Schools collapsed on account of the departure of the greater part of the population; one Evening School (Cobar) has not been opened since June, through difficulty in finding a suitable teacher, and the remaining one (Nymagee) is temporarily closed because of the illness of the teacher.

4. At the close of 1883 the schools in operation were—
 91 Public Schools
 23 Provisional Schools
 4 Half time Schools
 0 Evening Schools

Total 118

5 As eight schools were closed during the year, there were therefore 126 schools of all classes in operation for the whole or some part of the year

6 It is expected that new Public Schools will begin work this month at Frome's Creek and Redbank, and aid has been promised to Provisional Schools at Darrown, Lookawenah, and East Tabiabucca and to a Half time School at Rawdon, whenever the residents choose to comply with the regulations

- 7 Applications for the establishment of schools at the following places are under consideration —
- | | |
|-------------------|---------------|
| Sportsman Hollow, | } Provisional |
| Bylong, | |
| Piambong, | } Half time |
| Cogan and Gough, | |
| World's End, | } Itinerant |

8 The condition of the school buildings generally has been much improved during the year. Five new buildings have been completed, nine others are almost ready for occupation, and the erection of ten more has been authorized.

Repairs and additions have been effected at twenty six schools. During the winter provision for warming the tent schools was made by supplying them with small portable stoves, which, the teachers stated, answered their purpose well.

In almost all schools, accommodation sufficient for the ordinary attendance exists. Attention is being paid to two or three places where such is not the case.

9 Attendance

According to the returns furnished, there were 8,118 pupils enrolled during the year; of these, 693 attended more than one school. Each quarter's enrolment and average attendance are given below —

	Enrolment	Average attendance
1st Quarter	5,694	3,700
2nd "	5,983	4,138
3rd "	6,196	4,292
4th "	6,020	4,013

The average attendance for the whole year was 68 per cent of the quarterly enrolments. For 1882 it was 69 per cent. The decrease was owing to the great amount of sickness that was prevalent during the last quarter.

The actual average attendance for 1883 exceeds that for 1882 by 326, notwithstanding the withdrawal of 4 Denominational Schools, representing an average of 249 pupils.

10 Inspection

Of the 126 schools that were in operation during the whole or some part of the year, 123 have been fully inspected, viz —

- 7 by Mr. District Inspector Johnson
 25 by Mr. Assistant Inspector Fletcher
 91 by myself

The remaining three were the Evening Schools at Cobarr, Nymagee, and Cooyal. The former two were closed at the time of the Inspector's visits, and the latter collapsed for want of attendance after a few weeks' work.

Besides these general inspections, most of the schools within 30 or 40 miles of head quarters were incidentally inspected at different periods of the year.

11 The number of pupils examined by Mr. Fletcher and myself, and the proficiency they displayed in the various subjects, are shown in the subjoined table. For the sake of comparison the results of 1882 are also given.

Subjects	No of pupils examined in 1883	Percentages satisfactory to the Standard
		1883	1882
Reading	4,097	66	67
Writing	4,097	70	70
Arithmetic	4,019	33	40
Grammar	1,931	60	55
Geography	2,195	70	61
Scripture	967	75	57
Object Lessons	3,973	60	60
Drawing	1,950	79	60
Music	2,240	55	70
Needlework	1,136	81	89
Drill	1,266	70	36
*History	67	80	None examined
*Geometry	78	80	87
Algebra	71	70	74
*Mensuration	40	50	45
*Latin	25	60	96

This table shows that in the more important subjects (omitting those marked*) the average proficiency is 63 per cent for 1883, against 60 for 1882. While it is satisfactory to note this general improvement, the falling off in such an important subject as arithmetic is to be regretted. The cause is well known. Most teachers are so addicted to the use of text books on this subject that the slightest variation from a "book" sum brings inevitable failure upon the great majority of pupils. And this state of things will continue unless teachers recognize the necessity for intelligent as well as mechanical instruction.

It

It is but fair to state that there are a great number of untrained teachers in charge of schools under my supervision, and there is no subject in which imperfect methods are so likely to produce poor results at inspection as in arithmetic.

12. The organization of almost every school was, as far as the teachers could be held to be responsible, satisfactory. Except in a few cases, the various registers and lesson documents were kept and compiled with a reasonable amount of care.

Incorrect and unpunctual returns are still a source of annoyance. More than twenty annual returns, most of which were wrongly made up through sheer carelessness, have had to be sent back for correction.

The general discipline of all the schools, and the behaviour, appearance, and cleanliness of the pupils were, on the whole, very satisfactory.

13. The following table shows the classification of the teachers :—

Teachers.
Class I.		Class II.		Class III.			Unclassified.
A.	B.	A.	B.	A.	B.	C.
1	...	4	11	22	25	18	41

Pupil-Teachers.
Class I.	Class II.	Class III.	Class IV.	On probation.
5	5	3	2	3

The teachers are, on the whole, very intelligent, diligent, and attentive to duty. Except in very few cases, they are well esteemed among the residents of their various localities. It is to be regretted, however, that close application to personal study is not more general among them. I am afraid that with many there is too much of a spirit of easy contentment—a feeling that, while a teacher is “one sum ahead of his pupils,” he is at any rate on the right side.

The results of the half-yearly teachers' examinations seem to disclose the fact that the examinees had either too low an idea of the proficiency expected from them, or too high an estimate of their own powers to answer questions upon subjects they had not properly studied.

One feature in connection with these examinations deserves to be pointed out. I refer to the repeated failures of some teachers who are summoned to examination, on account of the lowness or the want of certificates. These failures have happened so often, and so regularly, that the notion is suggested that the teachers referred to, seeing that removal does not follow failure, are beginning to treat these examinations simply as a little bit of half-yearly annoyance, not however without its bright side, as their schools are closed a week earlier than usual.

I think that if, with certain age and long service exceptions, teachers were informed that two failures would lead to removal, both excuses and failures would be less frequent in future.

14.—Summary.

Excepting in a few small places, which may now be able to get schools through the liberality of the new regulations as regards building, this portion of the district is fully supplied with schools.

The character of the school buildings has been much improved during the year.

Owing to the withdrawal of the Denominational Schools already referred to, both enrolment and average attendance have increased by nearly 600 above the number for 1882.

The general proficiency of the pupils has improved.

On the whole, the prospects for 1884, with better buildings, a well defined standard, and opportunities for more frequent inspectorial visitation, are very promising.

Statistics of a more detailed nature, referring to matters dealt with in this report, have already been sent to the District Inspector.

ANNEX Y.

GRAFTON DISTRICT.

MR. DISTRICT INSPECTOR M'CREDDIE'S GENERAL REPORT FOR 1883.

At the beginning of the year the number of Schools or Departments in this district was 170. This number has been increased by the opening of twenty-two new schools at the undermentioned places :—

1. Public—Arakoon, Cedar Party Creek, Kempsey Central, Lower Lawrence, Nambucca Lower, Pelican Island, and Yarrahappini.
2. Provisional—Bellbrook, Bobin Flat, Codrington North, Clunco, Corangula Mines, Taylor's Arm, Towallum, and Winegrove.
3. Half-time—Camden Haven, John's River, Lonely Point, Stony Creek, and O. B. X. Creek.
4. Evening Public—Camden Haven and Wauchope.

The following schools were closed during the year :—Huntingdon, Public ; Dalmorton, Provisional ; Solferino, Provisional ; and the Evening Public Schools at Barrington, Tacking Point, and Camden Haven.

Aid to Denominational Schools wholly ceased on 31st December, 1882. The number of such schools in the district on that date was two, viz. :—Kempsey Pres. and Grafton R.C. The former was continued as a Public School in the same premises, under the name of Kempsey Central ; the latter is now supported by the Denomination to which it belongs.

At the close of 1883 there were 184 Schools or Departments in existence, comprising 151 Public, 18 Provisional, 14 Half-time, and 1 Evening Public.

Twenty-five schools were open during a portion of the year only, and 165 during the whole year. There were, therefore, 190 Schools or Departments open during the whole or a portion of the year.

Eight Provisional Schools, on account of the increased attendance in each case, were converted into Public.

Besides the new schools opened during the year, it has been decided to establish schools in the following localities :—

- Public*—Buccrabandini, Koppin Yarrat, Meerscham Vale, New Italy, Lower Wallamba, Nambucca Heads, and South Fernmount.
Provisional—Clybucca, Doroughby Grass, Glencoe, Lavadia, Tacking Point, The Bluff, and White Swamp.
Half-time—Corindi and Woolgoolgah.

Applications

Applications for the establishment of Public Schools at Clarenza and North Lismore, a Provisional School at Sweeney's Creek, and Evening Public Schools at Lonely Point, Stony Creek, and Alstonville, were declined. Reports upon applications for Provisional Schools at Tucumbil and North Pimlico, and Half-time Schools at Cowlong, Pearce's Creek, and Robinson's Flat, were furnished late in the year, and are now under consideration. These applications for Provisional Schools at Cattai Creek, Caniaba, and Coff's Harbour, are yet in hand, and will receive early attention.

At O. B. X. Creek, a Half-time School to be worked in conjunction with the small Provisional School at Urara, was established. By this arrangement, the closing of the latter school on account of the very low attendance maintained for some time past, was obviated. Aid was also granted to Half-time Schools at Corindi and Woolgoolgah, and a Full-time School at the latter place refused.

Forms of application have been forwarded to the residents of Brunswick River (a recent settlement), Bostobrick (midway between Grafton and Armidale), and Sandy Creek (near Boorook), with a view to the establishment of schools in each of these localities; and wherever, within the limits of the district, ten or a dozen children of school age can be conveniently brought together for instruction, an effort will be made to provide them with the means of education.

The recent regulations as to the erection by the Government of all Provisional School buildings, and of cheap wooden buildings instead of expensive permanent structures in thinly-populated districts, have supplied a long-felt want, and will prove, it is hoped, of great benefit, financially and educationally, to the Colony at large.

Thirteen new sites for Public Schools and three school paddocks were applied for during the year.

Much has been done to improve the material condition of school buildings, and there are now few schools whose internal organization is not of a satisfactory character. Necessary improvements—consisting of additions, repairs, or school furniture—were sanctioned for fifty schools.

Substantial and commodious buildings have been erected at Alstonville, Belmore River, Boorook, Carr's Creek, Cedar Party Creek, Casino, Kempsey East, Pelican Island, and Woodlawn; and are in course of erection at Bellinger, Chatsworth, Circular Reach, Dalwood, Lismore, and Wombah. At Argent's Hill, Bellinger South, Bo Bo Creek, Buccarabandini, Buckendoon, Cape Hawke, Coolongolook, Dunoon, Fernglen, Koppin Yarratt, Meerschaum Vale, Murwillumbah, Rushford, Toorooka, and Tyndale, comfortable wooden buildings will shortly be provided.

In only one or two cases was the schoolroom found in an untidy and dirty condition, and as the cost of cleaning is now borne by the Department, teachers will in future be without excuse should they neglect this important feature of the school organization.

All schools are liberally supplied with working material, and reasonable care is bestowed by the teachers upon its preservation, as well as upon the keeping of the whole school property.

Increased interest has been manifested in improving the appearance of the school grounds, by removing weeds and rubbish, and forming, where practicable, neat flower-gardens.

The school records are generally correctly and neatly kept, but in the case of some teachers there is ample room for improvement, especially in regard to neatness, not only in the keeping of the school records, but also in the construction of the time-table and lesson guides, and in the compilation of the usual school returns.

The attendance during a few months of the year was affected, in a number of places, by the prevalence of measles, scarlet fever, and mumps, and in some instances all children were withdrawn from school for fear of infection, thus necessitating temporary closing. The school attendance officers employed in the district have rendered considerable assistance to teachers by repeatedly visiting the parents and urging them to send their children regularly to school; yet, in spite of every effort put forth to this end, great irregularity still prevails in many schools. It is a notable fact that many pupils attend school exactly seventy days in each half-year, the number of attendances required by the obligatory clause of the Public Schools Act of 1880; and though in some cases this may be purely accidental, it is believed by the teachers to be generally due to the keeping of private records of their children's attendance by parents, with a view to avoid a breach of the law, and to avail themselves of their children's labour on the farm as often as possible in each school quarter.

Except in the case of one or two schools, the pupils attend with fair punctuality.

One of the most gratifying features of the year's inspection was the improvement observable in the personal appearance of pupils attending Schools in the Northern section of the district. In fine weather, comparatively few are now seen in school without boots and shoes. The bulk of the teachers faithfully and carefully perform the duty of inspection of the pupils on the lines preparatory to entering the schoolroom, and it has been observed that in schools where this very important part of the teacher's work receives due attention, and is backed up by his own personal example in regard to cleanliness and neatness in dress, little or no fault can be found with the appearance of the pupils.

The government in most schools is mild in character, but is frequently lacking in firmness, vigilance, and vigour. The cane is, as a rule, used in extreme cases only, and teachers seldom fail to keep a record of the offence and the amount of punishment inflicted in each case.

Increased judgment has been shown in the classification of the pupils. Promotions from class to class are now made more frequently, and minute subdivisions of the first or lowest class in each school were not so often met with during the past year as in 1882.

The enrolment and attendance of pupils in all schools for the year were as under:—

Number of children on the records for the year, no child being counted twice....	12,388
Number enrolled who attended during the year—
(a) One other school	1,052
(b) Two other schools	53
(c) Three other schools	5
Actual number of children who attended existing schools during the year	11,215
Number of children who attended 140 days or more	6,572
Number of children who attended less than 140 days	5,816
Average attendance for the year	7,075·3

It will thus be seen that the average attendance of pupils in all schools for the year was 63 per cent. of the true enrolment. The attendance for the several quarters of the year is shown hereunder:—

	Enrolled.	Average attendance.	Percentage.
March quarter	9,757	6,845·6	70
June do	9,621	6,797·5	70
September do	9,965	6,968·9	70 nearly.
December do	9,834	7,152·5	72

The disparity between the percentage of the average attendance for the whole year and those for the several quarters of the year is explained by the fact that many of the pupils were enrolled for only one month, others two months, others three months, and so on. Estimated by the returns furnished by teachers for each quarter, the average attendance is at least seven-tenths of the enrolment, being slightly in advance of the percentage for the previous year.

In July last, Mr. J. D. St. C. Maclardy was appointed to assist me in the work of inspection in the northern half of the district, his head-quarters being Lismore.

Of the 190 schools open during the year, 186 were fully inspected. Ninety-five were inspected by Mr. Inspector Willis, thirty-three by Mr. Maclardy, and the remaining fifty-eight by myself. Four schools received a second inspection.

The four uninspected schools comprised 3 Evening Public and 1 Public. Of the former, two were closed at the time of the Inspector's visit, and the other was opened late in December, and hence could not conveniently be reached. The Public School not inspected is that at Goolmanga, about 12 miles from Lismore. This school was not in operation at the time set down in my programme for its inspection. It was open about four months in the first half of the year, and has been closed since June, through the action of the residents in refusing to accommodate the teacher appointed to the school, which barely maintains an average attendance sufficient for a Public School of the tenth class.

The condition of the schools inspected in relation to the standard is as under :—

	1883.	1882.
Above the Standard	46	23
Up to the Standard	52	61
Below the Standard	88	78
Totals	186	162

About 53 per cent., therefore, of the schools inspected were as regards efficiency up to or above the standard, and 47 per cent. were below it. For 1882 the percentages were 52 and 48 respectively. Considering that of the 88 schools below the standard, 22 or 12 per cent. of the total number of schools were opened for the first time during the year, fair progress has been made.

At inspection there were 7,272 pupils present. The number examined in each subject of instruction in the past and previous years, and the percentage who satisfied the standard, are exhibited in the subjoined table :—

Subjects.	1883.		1882.
	Number of Children examined.	Percentage ranking from "Fair" upwards.	Number of Children examined.	Percentage ranking from "Fair" upwards.
Reading	7,272	61	6,603	59

Latin	29	100	31
Needlework	2,457	73	2,509	64
Drill	2,797	67	1,934	70

From the above it will be seen that in five subjects—writing, geography, Australian history, Euclid, and drill—the results for last year are lower than those obtained in 1882, while in all other branches they are higher.

The apparent falling off in the teaching of writing is mainly attributable to the low results obtained in this subject in newly opened schools, where comparatively few of the pupils examined had, prior to their enrolment, received instruction in the subject.

Geography is not intelligently and skilfully handled in a number of schools, especially in the more elementary parts of the subject. In the upper classes, sufficient attention is not given to mapping and the teaching of physical phenomena.

The results in arithmetic, though higher than in the previous year, are far from satisfactory. More frequent use of the black-board by the teacher in illustrating fully the principles involved, and increased attention to mental arithmetic are necessary, before higher proficiency in this branch can be looked for.

More attention was paid during the year to the teaching of elementary Latin, but it is to be regretted that in this subject nothing is attempted beyond a fair knowledge of the declensions and the first fifteen exercises in the text book used.

The teaching of school and military drill is still largely neglected. Many teachers do not appear to realize the value of this branch as an aid to discipline, and hence to increasing the efficiency of their schools. It almost invariably follows that in those schools where drill is well taught, the pupils are more orderly and attentive, the school movements are more quickly and quietly performed, and the progress made by the pupils in the several branches of instruction is correspondingly high.

At the close of the year there were 176 teachers, 11 assistant-teachers, 31 pupil-teachers, and 9 work-mistresses employed in the schools of the district. Of the teachers and assistant-teachers, 1 is in first-class, 26 are in second-class, 112 in third-class, and the remaining 48 are without classification.

While I can with confidence speak favourably of the faithfulness, zeal, and earnestness of the bulk of the teachers, I regret to say that a few could be mentioned who do not enter heartily into their work, and who evince no becoming ambition to qualify themselves for higher positions in the Service, by study, and by striving to increase the efficiency of their respective schools.

The pupil-teachers have with one exception conducted themselves well throughout the year, and have, in almost every instance, shown increased skill in the management of a class.

Summary remarks :—During the year new schools were opened in twenty-two localities, and sanctioned in fifteen other places; one Public, two Provisional, and three Evening Schools were closed; eight Provisional Schools were converted into Public; nine substantial new buildings were completed, and six others are in course of erection; additions and repairs were sanctioned for fifty schools, and in fifteen places comfortable wooden buildings are to be erected. In most subjects the proficiency of the pupils is higher than in the previous year, and, generally speaking, the progress made in the work of education is of an encouraging character.

PORT MACQUARIE SECTION OF GRAFTON DISTRICT.

MR. INSPECTOR WILLIS'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I HAVE the honor to submit this report upon the schools under my supervision during the year 1883 just closed.

At the beginning of the year 1883 there were in existence in this section of the Grafton District 82 schools, viz. :—

Public	66
Evening	1
Provisional	6
Half-time.....	8
Presbyterian	1

At the end of the year there were 94 schools in existence, classified thus :—

Public	73
Evening	1
Provisional	8
Half-time.....	12

During the year the following new schools were opened :—Public : at Arakoon, Nambucca Lower, Cedar Party Creek, Yarrahappinni, Pelican Island. Provisional : at Bobin Flat, Bell Brook, Corangula Mines, and Taylor's Arm. Half-time : at John's River and Camden Haven, Lonely Point and Stony Creek. Evening P., at Camden Haven and Wauchope.

Three Provisional Schools have been converted into Public Schools, and one Public and two Evening Schools have been closed.

The Minister has decided to establish schools at the undermentioned places :—Public, at Kopper Yarrat, Buccrabandine, South Fernmount, and Nambucca Heads. Provisional : at Glencoe, The Bluff, Tacking Point and Clybucca; and applications are now under consideration for schools at Bellangry, Wallamba, Manning Bar, and Cattai Creek.

The schools are now so well distributed that the means of education are placed within reach of all but a small fraction of the school population in this section of the district.

The material condition of these schools is being rapidly improved. During the year, seven new buildings have been erected, and ten of the existing ones repaired, and at the present time the Architect has on hand the erection of eleven more new schools, and the improvement of fifteen of those now in use.

In all the schools but those at Bowra and West Kempsey the accommodation afforded is either equal to or in excess of the requirements of their several localities. To provide for the increased attendance at Bowra Public, a class-room is to be erected, and a large Infant school is to be built, for the accommodation of the junior pupils attending West Kempsey Public.

The majority of the teachers exercise due care in keeping the school property in good order, but very few of them attempt to ornament the play-grounds with flower borders and shrubs, and of the teachers' residences only a very small proportion have gardens attached to them. This arises not from the apathy of the teachers nor their want of taste, but from the indifferent protection afforded by the open post-and-rail fences, that in most cases enclose the grounds belonging to country schools.

As a rule, the schoolrooms are kept clean and present a well ordered appearance; the school records are punctually posted up, and most of the teachers compile their lesson guides with care and skill.

The enrolment and average attendance are slightly above the corresponding numbers of last year, but the pupils have not been so regular. The prevalence, last spring, of measles amongst the school population resident in the Bellinger, M'Leay, and Hastings circuits, and of scarlet fever amongst the families on the rivers Wallamba and Manning, will account in part for the increased number of irregular pupils. There can, however, be no doubt that, after subtracting all those who, through unavoidable causes, failed to complete the statutory number of attendances, too large a proportion of defaulters will remain who are without excuse, and for whose absence their parents are directly responsible.

The enrolment and attendance of the pupils are exhibited by the figures in the following table :—

Actual enrolment.	Multiple enrolment.	Gross enrolment.	Average attendance.	Attended 140 days.	Failed to attend 140 days.
4,815	619	5,434	3,155	3,079	2,355

The school discipline obtaining is of a satisfactory character, and is improving. In most of the schools the pupils present a clean and neat appearance, and are well behaved. The government is, throughout, of a judicious character, and in nearly all the schools the order maintained is satisfactory.

Drill is well taught in seven schools, and passably in eleven others.

The general discipline may be estimated as very fair to good.

The number of schools fully inspected by me during the year was 95, viz. :—

Public	74
Provisional	8
Half-time	12
Evening Public....	1

Three schools were inspected twice during the year. The only schools not examined were Camden Haven Evening and Wauchope Evening, the former of which was closed before the regular inspection of the day school took place, and the latter was not inspected owing to want of time and opportunity; it was not opened till the 10th December last. The condition of the schools in relation to the standard is shown by the following figures :—

Provisional	7	1	...
Half-time	7	5	...

Totals.....	43	42	10
Percentages	45·3	44·2	10·5

All but three of the schools below the standard were small ones in the lowest grades; thus, though, when compared with last year's results, the number of schools that reached the standard this year is smaller, yet the percentages of the pupils who passed in the subjects taught are higher, and indicate a considerable improvement upon the attainments of the pupils in 1882.

The

The figures in the following table show the number of pupils examined in each subject, and the percentages of those who passed, compared with last year's results:—

In the majority of the subjects taught, the proficiency of the pupils this year compares favourably with that recorded last year, while in Latin and algebra, two branches formerly omitted, high results have been obtained.

The pupils would progress more rapidly in reading if the different classes were permitted more frequently to read aloud simultaneously, as such an exercise, when carefully superintended, promotes distinctness of utterance, checks those who read too fast, and trains the pupils to read intelligently. Though, in the subject of writing, a smaller percentage of pupils satisfied the requirements of the standard, yet more than three-fourths of those examined were awarded the estimate "Fair," and in one school the pupils of the Third Class received the mark "Excellent" for proficiency in writing.

Some progress has been made in arithmetic, but the subject is still a weak one. In many schools the pupils have but an indifferent knowledge of notation, and they are not as proficient in the common useful tables as they ought to be. To obtain higher results in this subject than they have yet succeeded in doing, the teachers should give more attention to mental arithmetic.

The majority of the pupils examined in elementary grammar acquitted themselves fairly, but the senior pupils have a very limited knowledge of syntax, and only a small percentage of them could correctly analyse and parse a sentence of ordinary difficulty.

The results of the examination in geography are not gratifying. Until more attention be paid to mapping, and the pupils be taught, by sketching it, to fix on the mind the picture of the country or feature described, the teachers will find that the progress of their upper classes in this subject will be slow and unsatisfactory.

Scripture lessons are fairly taught, but it must be admitted that the proficiency of pupils in Scripture history may be, and often is owing as much to the instruction given at home and in the Sunday School, as to that imparted in the Day School.

In most of the schools in which drawing is taught, the copies are of a very elementary kind, and not well graduated. A few of the classes draw well on paper, and in one school, conducted by a lady, the pupils of Third Class, have been taught the use of water-colours, and have attained considerable proficiency in the art of painting flowers.

With the exception of that examined in five schools, the music taught consists in merely training the pupils to sing melodies by ear. These are not always appropriate, but in most instances are fairly rendered.

In four of the schools the teachers have trained the senior pupils to sing three-part songs in good time and with very pleasing effect. In a considerable number of schools the teachers are not competent to give instruction in music, and hence the reason that only 1,803 out of 3,392 were presented for examination in this subject.

Euclid, algebra, and geometry are taught very fairly to the senior pupils in four schools, and Latin has been added to the course of instruction obtaining at West Kempsey Public.

Needlework is taught in five more schools than was the case in 1882, and the average proficiency attained by the girls in this popular subject may be estimated as very fair.

The number of pupils examined this year in drill is more than double that of last year, and the percentage of passes is higher by 22 per cent.

The teachers under my supervision are persons of good moral character, and are diligent and conscientious in the performance of their arduous duties. Not a few of them are popular among those with whom they dwell, and nearly all give satisfaction to the parents of the pupils entrusted to their care.

During the year, fourteen teachers have succeeded in gaining, by examination, promotion to higher grades of classification, and five Pupil-teachers have been equally fortunate.

The following table shows the number of teachers employed, and the different grades to which they belong:—

To sum up: Considerable progress has been made in the matter of school extension, in the general management of the schools, in the proficiency of the pupils, and the efficiency of the teachers. These results are gratifying, and lead one to expect that the progress begun will be sound and continuous.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

CHIEF EXAMINER'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1883.

THIS Section of the Department of Public Instruction dealt with the following :—

1. The Examination of Applicants for the Office of Pupil-Teacher.
2. The Examination of Pupil-Teachers of the various grades.
3. The Examination of Applicants (male and female) for admission to Training.
4. The Examination and Classification of Students trained.
5. The Examination of Applicants for employment under the Department.
6. The Examination of Unclassified Teachers serving in the Department.
7. The Examination of Placed Teachers.

I.—APPLICANTS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE OFFICE OF PUPIL-TEACHER.

This is the source whence three-fourths of the teachers in the Service are derived. Candidates for the Office of Pupil-Teacher should not be less than 13 years of age nor more than 16; and they should be free from any bodily infirmity likely to impair their usefulness. Their apprenticeship usually covers a space of four years, and the nature of the examination which they are called upon to undergo at the outset may be understood from the following synopsis.

- In Reading*—To read an Upper Class Book with ease, fluency, and expression—to spell accurately, and to understand the meaning of the passage read.
- In Writing*—To write, on paper, from Dictation, in a neat hand, an ordinary prose narrative: Punctuation and Orthography to be correctly rendered.
- In Arithmetic*—To know the Arithmetical Tables; to work the Simple and Compound Rules, Reduction, Proportion, and Practice, &c., to Vulgar Fractions.
- In Grammar*—To parse and analyse a passage taken from an ordinary Class Book, and to give its meaning in other words.
- In Geography*—To know the Geographical terms: Map of the World in outline; the Geography of Australia: New South Wales in tolerable detail.
- In Drawing*—The range prescribed for Fifth Classes in Public Schools.
- In Music*—The range prescribed for Fifth Classes in Public Schools.
- Aptitude for Teaching*—To give a Lesson to a Junior-Class in School.

In Sydney, two examinations were held during the year, one in May, at which 120 Candidates attended, and another in November, attended by 96 Candidates. Examinations were also held throughout the various Country Districts, in June and December, with the following results :—

Examined in SydneyEligible, 77.....	Ineligible, 139.....	Total, 216.
Examined in Country Districts	...Eligible, 143.....	Ineligible, 170.....	Total, 313.
Totals220	309	529

In the results of Country Applicants considerable improvement is manifest, but in the case of City Examinees this can scarcely be said, more especially as relates to the males applying. It has indeed been stated, by way of accounting for this, that the best boys in the Public Schools do not care to offer themselves for the position of Pupil-Teachers, having higher pecuniary inducements in other situations; and there appears to be some foundation for this view. Still there is much in the life of a Pupil-Teacher to commend itself to lads of good character and studious habits; and it is much to be regretted that, for the sake of an apparent present advancement, so many youths forego the advantages of a career in the highest sense useful and honorable. Of the Female Applicants there is no lack at any time in the city, the proportion as compared with the number of boys, being usually as six to one. I may say as a rule that they also appear to greater advantage under examination, both in Attainments and Art of Teaching.

Specimens of the examination papers used will be found in annex A.

II.—PUPIL-TEACHERS.

Pupil-Teachers, though assisting in the management of large Schools, require instruction themselves. When they have decided to adopt the profession of Teaching they are placed under the charge of the Head Teachers, who are required to see that they not only study at home, but that they receive a certain amount of instruction daily in School, with a view of qualifying them for the proper performance of duty, for passing their Annual Examinations with credit, and for eventually rising to the ranks of the Classified Teachers. They are divided into four Classes or Sections, corresponding to the years of service—those of the first year usually composing the Fourth Class, those of the Second year the Third Class, those of the Third year the Second Class, and those of the Fourth year the First Class.

I have already shown, in the matter of Attainments, what is expected from them before appointment to the Fourth or Lowest Class; but once entered therein, they are required as one of the conditions of promotion to advance in knowledge year by year. The nature of their Annual Examinations may be ascertained from annexes B, C, D, E; but I may here show concisely under the following heads what is the range of study for the Higher Classes of pupil-Teachers.

- In Reading*—To Read a Standard Author with correct intonation and emphasis, giving synonyms and derivations, with transposition and paraphrasing of the text.
- In Writing*—To reproduce a passage read in the hearing of the Examinees. To give an account of the Organization or Discipline of the School, or to write an essay upon some subject connected with the Art of Teaching.

In

- In Arithmetic*—To work up to Fractions and Evolution, and to understand the Science, and application of its principles.
- In Grammar*—Parsing and Analysis of difficult passages. General questions in the Grammar of the Language, including Etymology and Prosody.
- In Geography*—Descriptive Geography of Europe, Asia, America, Australia, Physical Geography of the Globe.
- In Geometry*—To the Second Book of Euclid with deductions.
- In Algebra*—To Quadratic Equations, including Surds.
- In Latin*—Smith's Principia Latina.
- In Drawing*—Theory of the art, difficult subjects from copies for practice.
- In Music*—Tonic Sol Fa and Staff Notation, showing increased efficiency in every Examination.
- In French*—(For Females only). Translations, increasing in difficulty every year. Grammar of the Language.
- In Needlework*—Plain and Ornamental, increased skill expected at every stage.
- In Practical Skill*—Ability to control and instruct the Junior Classes ranging from the First to the Third.

Although the higher Examinees in this Section have been more successful this year, I observe in the results furnished by the Pupil-Teachers of the Second, Third, and Fourth Classes, no material improvement. In general terms it may be stated that one half failed to pass satisfactorily. This is too large a proportion. I fail to see why such should be the case, seeing that the Course of Instruction is fully defined, that regular lessons are presumed to be given by the heads of the various schools; that private "home studies" are understood to be followed up by the majority at least, and that a considerable section receives stated lessons apart from those given in the schools to which they are attached. The young people themselves have otherwise every inducement to do well. No increase of emoluments is given unless they pass; a year is supposed to elapse between the various examinations; and the term probation is, if the regulations are observed, necessarily lengthened by failure. The redeeming point lies with those of the First Class examined for admission to the Training School. The failures in this class amounted to about one-eleventh only, although not a few were found eligible for the Lower Section in Training instead of the Upper.

The following is a summary of the results:—

III.—APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO THE TRAINING SCHOOL.

The Training School exists for the purpose of instructing Students, and otherwise qualifying them for the proper discharge of their onerous and responsible duties as teachers. It is the main source whence vacancies, caused by sickness, resignation, or death, are filled up. As far as can be determined, and reasoning upon past experience, the annual demand for new teachers, brought about by the causes above indicated, is believed to be about seventy. This number of course would require to be augmented as the Department extended its operations. Hitherto, however, the requirements of the Training Institution have been reckoned upon this basis; and the classes have been for years adjusted with a view of meeting the actual wants of the Service.

Up to the present, the Training Department has been open to receive—

1. Pupil-Teachers whose term of service has expired.
2. Teachers who have undergone Training elsewhere.
3. Untrained Teachers who have been in charge of Schools in the Colony.
4. Persons entering the Teaching Profession for the first time.

In former years the Lower Section in Training was almost exclusively occupied by the last-mentioned class; but recently they have been unable to gain admission—first, because of the necessity for admitting the large number of Pupil-Teachers whose term of service expired annually; and, in the second place, through the need of providing for the Training of the increasing staff of Small School Teachers, mostly consisting of untrained Colonial Youth, and some of them urgently in need of systematic Training. These two classes in fact occupy all the available space and resources of the Institution. Experience has shown that it is more satisfactory to test the Candidates thoroughly by means of a period of service in the Country Schools before incurring the expense of a Training course, than to admit to training, comparative strangers, of whose aptitude very little can be known.

Candidates for admission to the Lower Class in the Training School must be able—

In Reading—To read with fluency one of the Text Books used in the Upper Classes of the Public School.

In Writing—To write correctly on paper from Dictation, a passage taken from the same book, or from one equally difficult.

In Arithmetic—Simple and Compound rules, Reduction, Proportion, Practice to Fractions.

In Grammar—To parse, analyse, and give the meaning of a passage taken from an author of ordinary difficulty.

In Geography—To know the outlines of the Continents of the Globe.

In Music—The rudiments of the Tonic Sol-fa Method.

In Linear Drawing—Elementary Exercises: Drawing from Copies.

In School Management—To give a lesson to a Junior Class.

Candidates for admission to the Upper Class must be able—

In Reading—To read a Standard Author with ease and expression.

In Writing—To write from Dictation, or to reproduce in writing, a passage read to them by the Examining Officer.

In Arithmetic—To Fractions, Vulgar and Decimal; Extraction of Roots.

In Grammar—Parsing and Analysis more difficult than in the Lower Class: questions on Etymology and Syntax.

In Geography—The Continents and Oceans of the Globe. Descriptive Geography more difficult than in the Lower Class.

In Geometry—To the Second Book of Euclid.

In Algebra—To Equations.

In Latin—Questions on Grammar and Easy Translations.

In French—(For females)—Easy translations and grammatical questions.

In Vocal Music—Tonic Sol-Fa Method. More difficult than for the Lower Class.

In Drawing—From copies, &c. More difficult exercises than in the Lower Class.

In Art of Teaching—To exhibit at least fair skill in the teaching of a class.

Specimens of the Examination Papers used for admission to the classes will be found in Annexes F and G.

As the Higher Class in Training is almost entirely drawn from the ranks of the First-class Pupil-Teachers, it has in recent Sessions been found expedient to require other applicants for admission to the Upper Section to pass an examination similar to that undergone by the Pupil-Teachers at the termination of their apprenticeship. Difficulties in classifying are thus avoided, greater uniformity of attainments is secured, and a more harmonious working of the classes throughout, is obtained.

The

The following will show the results of examination :—

Lower class—passed successfully	11	Failed	2	Total	13
Upper class— „ „	79	„ „	8	„ „	87
Totals	90		10		100

It is perhaps desirable to state that, from the want of accommodation, all the Candidates passing could not be trained during 1883. As far, however, as the space allowed, they were admitted in the order of attainments and general excellence. Four of the Male students admitted, were seized with illness during the earlier portion of the session; and, under medical certificates, were allowed to withdraw and rejoin when health was restored. Two more of the Lower Class were found too enfeebled to bear the strain of continuous study, and they therefore, in accordance with rule, withdrew altogether.

IV.—STUDENTS IN TRAINING.

The number of Students passing out of Training during 1883 was 72. Of these, 44 were Males and 28 were Females.

The results, as regards Classification, were as follows :—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Recommended for Class II, Section A	10	9	19
„ „ II, „ B	10	13	23
„ „ III, „ A	7	5	12
„ „ III, „ B	10	1	11
„ „ III, „ C	7	0	7
Totals	44	28	72

The number of Male Students therefore finally examined for the year, including the June and December examinations, was 44. The number of Female Students examined in June was 28.

Of the latter number, 19 had then completed the prescribed course of one year, the first six months of which had been spent at the Fort-street Training School, and the latter six months at the Training School for Females at Hurststone.

Those Male students of the Upper Class who entered in July 1882, completed their training in June, 1883, while those who entered in January, 1883, completed their term at the close of December, with the results above shown.

While the Upper Class received one year's training, the Lower Class received, for reasons fully explained in my report for 1882, six months only, all experience hitherto having shown that this is quite as much as the circumstances of such students warrant. Members of the Lower Class never receive, on issuing from the Training School, any Certificate higher than Class III, Section A. Those of the Upper Class, however, from their superior training, experience, and surroundings, are expected to gain, at least, the lower grade of Class II. This, however, has been so fully stated in my report of the previous year that I add no more on the point here. I may however state that, in my opinion, Pupil-Teachers may be admitted to the Training School too soon. They should, in all but very exceptional cases, be required to serve out the term of four years, and should not be deemed eligible for admission to Training until the age of 19 at least. It has always appeared to me a doubtful boon (though well intended) to abbreviate the term of apprenticeship by granting release at the end of three years, instead of requiring that four years should be served. Some of those so privileged may gain a good classification; they may have the necessary knowledge, and they may also appear promising; but their youth and inexperience frequently tell against them. Some are carried away by success at examination, and by a consequent misguided sense of their own importance. Even if placed in charge of schools, they are often found wanting in that sedateness and stability of character so necessary in Teachers; and they do not always succeed in gaining the public confidence at the outset of their career.

The nature of the Examinations undergone at the termination of the Training course may be ascertained by reference to the annexes H and J.

In general terms, it may be stated that the range of study in the Lower Section is supposed to qualify the Student to take a good position in Class III. This may be understood from the following enumeration of the subjects :—

In Grammar—Is included Punctuation, Paraphrasing, Parsing, and Analysis of Sentences of reasonable difficulty, selected from some such author as Cowper or Thomson.

In Geography—New South Wales in detail: Europe, Asia, and America in fair outline; one of the leading Oceans in fair detail.

In Arithmetic—To Fractions and Evolution.

In School Management—The Organization, Discipline, and Instruction of Schools.

English History—To the end of the Plantagenet Period.

Reading—Prose and Poetry, from Fifth Reading Book.

Writing—Instruction in Penmanship—Reproduction of Lessons—Composition.

Vocal Music—Tonic Sol Fa and Staff Notation.

Drawing—From Copies, Models, and Perspective.

Drill and Gymnastics.

Domestic Economy and Needlework for Females.

In the Upper Section.—The subjects themselves are not only more numerous; but the scope of each subject is considerably extended. More difficult exercises in Analysis and Composition are prescribed; the Arithmetic is extended to include the theory of the Science as well as its practice, and Mensuration also; the Geography ascends to comprehend the Physical as well as the Descriptive. The "Art of Teaching" takes the place of School Management. The Military Drill, Music and Drawing involve increased labour, and the study of British History is still further advanced. To these are added the subjects of Geometry, Algebra, Trigonometry, Latin, and English Literature. For the Females, in lieu of Mathematics, French is prescribed, with additional range in Domestic Economy, Needlework, and Calisthenics.

It would be erroneous, however, to conclude that mere excellence in literary attainments formed the highest aim of the officers placed in charge of the Training Department. No pains have been spared to place before the students the nature of their mission. In the report on the last Monthly Oral Examination, I find the Examiner thus writing :—"I have not been unmindful that something more than mere learning, however extensive and accurate, is indispensable in those who would truly educate and benefit the young, and prove lasting blessings to their country. I have therefore sought to impress upon those passing through training the vast responsibility of the work they were about to undertake, and the consequent necessity for cultivating and exemplifying, in all their situations and relations through life, the utmost propriety of conduct and conversation. For, much as I value learning as an essential factor in a Teacher's equipment, I value upright, honorable lives vastly more, as being the most potent teachers for good." Need I say here that this view of what a teacher should be, cannot be too strongly advocated in view of the best interests of this Colony. We have only to look around on Colonial life, to see that there are influences at work, on youth, which go far to undermine mere secular training, if not to defy its power in a moral sense. The neglect of proper parental training, the want of healthy restraint, the facilities possessed by youth for obtaining money, the absence of respect for parents, for age, and for constituted authority, together with the manifestations of undue precocity, and insubordination, nation, all indicate the nature and responsibility of the work devolving upon the Teacher, and the necessity of his being fully qualified for performing it.

It has been stated by more than one eminent writer that "Mothers and Teachers plant the seeds of nearly all the good and the evil in the world," that "it is the great, the universal law of morals, as well as of physics, that kind shall bring forth its kind," that "since the Educator can but reproduce his own image—since good and evil are going out of him—and, since by the power of a mysterious assimilation, children become and do just what he is and does, it is scarcely possible too earnestly to impress upon the Teacher the need of circumspection and faithfulness in the performance of duty. That duty obviously is, to distrust mere intellectual training, to give all prominence to the highest, the purest morality,—and to exalt the practice of virtue by word and deed. While the teacher's own life should be irreproachable, his vigilance in the repression of evil should be constant, and his efforts in the cultivation of all good influences unwearied. In the never-ceasing struggle between truth and falsehood—between good and evil, it surely is not too much to demand that the Teacher's whole strength should be put forth on the side of good. If he be not prepared to accept it in this spirit, he has no call to the Teacher's office. Should the Training School in any degree fail to realize what has been here set forth, such a failure cannot be laid to the charge of those entrusted with its management in the past.

The Report of the Principal of the Training School will be found in annex O. As regards the suggestion made by the Principal, for the establishment of a Practising School of 40 pupils for the use of the Students, I may add that the formation of such a school—similar in character to those ordinarily found in the country—was urged by the Officers of the Board of National Education fully twenty years ago, and the same recommendation has been repeated since that time.

V.—APPLICANTS FOR EMPLOYMENT AS TEACHERS.

The applicants dealt with in this Section have, during 1883, been of a superior class, and mainly from the United Kingdom. Some seek the Colony on the ground of health; but most of them appear to be attracted by the higher salaries and by the prospect of improving their position in life. When the results of the inquiries which follow applications have been found satisfactory, these candidates are usually permitted to attend for a few weeks at some convenient public school, in or near, the city, to acquire information relative to the daily routine and to their future duties. As a rule, they are examined within three months, and before any appointment is made.

The following is a summary of the results:—

It will be observed that, for the lowest certificate, 3 C, the number of promotions is highest, and that, as the value of the certificate ascends, the number of the successful Examinees declines. This is what might naturally be expected; but it is not always an indication of want of ability to do better. In a large measure, it arises from the fact that many of these Examinees are beginners, and being apprehensive of failure, they, at the outset, often aim at nothing higher than the first step in Classification. The course covered by their examination is to a great extent parallel to that described for the Lower Class in training. Examinees are expected, in Grammar, to deal with passages of ordinary difficulty selected from such works as "The Traveller," "The Deserted Village," or "The Task,"—to work Arithmetical processes involving a knowledge of Fractions (Vulgar and Decimal)—to have a fair knowledge of the Geography of the Continents and Oceans of the Globe—to answer questions on the Organization, Discipline, and General Management of Schools—to Read well—to Write legibly and neatly—and to have at least a tolerable knowledge of Linear Drawing and Vocal Music. To these, in the case of Females, Domestic Economy and Needlework would be added.

If, however, a Second Class Certificate be the object sought, the case assumes a different aspect. A more difficult author is selected as the basis of a Grammar paper; probably Milton, Pope, Young, or Thomson, with questions in Etymology and Syntax. The Arithmetic, while more difficult, includes Evolution and Elementary Mensuration. The Geography includes the Physical as well as the Descriptive. Greater proficiency in the Art of Teaching and in the knowledge of Method is required; and increased efficiency in Reading, Writing, Drawing, and Music is necessary. To these are added, for Males, the Advanced Subjects distinctive of the Higher Certificates, namely, Geometry to three books of Euclid's Elements, Algebra to Quadratic Equations, and, lastly, Latin. For Females, French and Domestic Economy are deemed indispensable.

Specimens of the questions employed will be found in annexes K and L.

VII.—PLACED TEACHERS EXAMINED FOR PROMOTION.

Of the Teachers dealt with in this Section, it is to be understood that all Candidates competing at the Examinations of 1883, held some Classification, that all were either in charge of, or employed in schools, and necessarily not without experience, not only in School Management but also in Examination. It may be admitted that Examination, however necessary to Classification, is more or less trying to all Teachers. Even the careful and collected Student cannot always ward off apprehension, much less those who come up badly prepared and not well grounded. Hence it is, that we find considerable inequality in point of study, on comparing results in the various districts. Examinations broken off through illness, unaccountable confusion in many of the answers, papers executed in a style the reverse of neat, and sometimes scarcely readable. While some bear decided evidences of thoughtful work and of systematic habits, others are the opposite, as if the writers felt anxious to get over a disagreeable duty as quickly as possible. In some localities a general want of carefulness is apparent; but in others, much attention seems to be given by the Examinees to the execution of their work, both as to accuracy and legibility. Still, with all these drawbacks, the general results point to a steady improvement in the Examinations dealt with during the earlier portion of 1883. There are necessarily wide differences between an Examination for Class 3, Section C, and one for Class 1, Section A; and such must ever be the case; for between these grades, the duties, responsibilities, and emoluments vary exceedingly. I have already indicated the nature of the Examinations prescribed for Third-class and Second-class Certificates; but where a First-class Certificate is in question, the Candidate must be prepared to exceed considerably the requirements of even Class

Second

Second in Reading, Writing, Grammar, Geography, Drawing, and Music. He must now have a knowledge of Psychology, and of the whole Science of Arithmetic. The subjects of Latin, French, Geometry, and Algebra are greatly extended; and several new subjects are added, as Trigonometry, Statics, British Literature, German Language, and Natural Science.

It is not to be supposed, however, that Teachers are bound to take all these subjects in order to secure Class I. The nine ordinary subjects are binding upon all, but not so the whole of the "Advanced," or as they are sometimes called, the Alternative Subjects. A Teacher, for example, may excel in Mathematics, but know comparatively little of Classics. In this case, he deals with the Mathematical group only. On the other hand, he may be well acquainted with Languages, and ignorant of Mathematical Science. In this case, he may take Latin and French, or Latin and German, or Latin, French, and German, instead of Mathematics. Perhaps he is unable in any of these to undergo examination. In this event, he will have to deal with the Natural Science group. He is not expected to take more than one group; but he is expected to complete the group he may select; and he may not, as circumstances at present stand, mix the groups, choosing or rejecting what he likes in each. It may however be added that those are deemed the most profitable Teachers who are able to take Mathematics as well as Languages. I may explain that a proposal for a different grouping of the Advanced Subjects has been for some time under consideration.

The following is a summary of the results of examination :—

Teachers promoted to Class 3, Section B=	58
" " " 3, do A=	46
" " " 2, do B=	20
" " " 2, do A=	26
" " " 1, do B=	10
" " " 1, do A=	2
Undetermined for want of data	= 8
Failed to gain promotion	= 225

Total 395

Specimens of the Examination Papers will be found in Annexes K, L, M, and a copy of the directions to Examinees is also given in Annex N. In relation to this Section, I may add that a greater number of examinations would have appeared, had it not been that the General Report was called in at an earlier period than usual.

While not unwilling to comply with the requirements of Examination, Teachers employed in country schools sometimes complain of the difficulties attendant upon the carrying out of a systematic course of study; and there may be difficulties occasionally in obtaining the needful assistance while studying the Advanced Subjects, particularly where the Teacher has not had the advantage of a course of Training. There are other Examinees, however, for whom this excuse cannot be made—namely, Ex-Students of the Training School. Some of these not only fail to advance; but they fail to keep up the knowledge acquired while in Training. This is the reverse of satisfactory. The opportunities of mental improvement afforded to these young persons are such as should not be lost upon any, much less upon those who are expected to be thoroughly in earnest. Nevertheless, we have found, in not a few cases, that Ex-Trainees re-examined for promotion within one or two years after quitting the Training School, showed no improvement, their papers giving tolerably conclusive evidence that they had not carried forward the studies initiated in Training. Possibly also, instances could be found of some who have made no decided efforts for re-examination, since leaving the Training School. It is to be hoped however that this condition of matters will not continue; and that such Teachers will see that progressive advancement in attainments as well as in usefulness is due to themselves and to the State. In this case, the necessity for the adoption of corrective measures may be averted.

Fuller details as to training and examination will be found in the annexes submitted herewith.

J. GARDINER,
Chief Examiner.

ANNEX A.

APPLICANTS FOR THE OFFICE OF PUPIL-TEACHER.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Parse the words italicised in the following passage, and analyse the portion in brackets :—
[What art however does for men, nature has in many instances done for those animals which are incapable of using art]—their clothing of its own accord changes with their necessities."]

2. Express the meaning of the above in your own words.

3. Form sentences, showing the applications of the words art, instances, incapable, accord, and changes, as nouns, adjectives, or verbs.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Multiply 5,109,301 by 7,008½. Prove the answer.

2. One yard costs £2 13s. 4d., what, at the same rate, shall I give for 27½ yards? Work in as many ways as possible.

3. 3 tons 11 cwt. 1 qr. 13 lbs. at £5 17s. 9½d. per ton. Practice.

4. $(6\frac{1}{2} + 5 + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{5} + \frac{5}{7} + \frac{1}{8}) \div (4\frac{1}{11})$.

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Describe in outline the Eastern Slope of New South Wales.

2. Enumerate the Peninsulas, Isthmuses, Gulfs, Bays, and Straits of Southern Asia.

3. What Rivers belong to Western Europe?

Dictation.

From the Third or Fourth Book—ten lines at least.

Reading.

From Fourth or Fifth Book.

Aptitude for Teaching.

To give a lesson to a Junior Class.

Applicant's personal statement as usual.

Drawing.

An hour and a half allowed.

The freehand test paper must be drawn first, after which Examinee must answer as many of these questions as time permits.

1. Draw and shade a common jug. Show what construction lines you use.

2. What are the first instructions you would give to a class on Drawing?

3. Describe the difference between a rhomboid and a rectangle.

4. Describe a trapezoid.

5. What is the use of perspective in Drawing?

6. Give a definition of vanishing and perpendicular planes.

Vocal

Vocal Music: Part I.—Tonic Sol-Fa Notation.

One hour allowed.

1. What is meant by an octave, and how are octaves marked in the Tonic Sol-Fa Notation?
2. Write two four-pulse measures beginning on the strong pulse, and two others beginning on the last pulse; the first example to contain a two-pulse note, and the second four half-pulse notes.
3. What are the musical signs for "soft," "very soft," "loud," "very loud," "slow," "quick," "gradually increasing the sound," "sweet," "lively."

Part II.—Staff Notation.

4. Write on the staff the scale of C ascending and descending, placing over each note its pitch name (A, B, C, &c.), and under each its Tonic Sol-Fa name (doh, ray, me, &c.)
5. What are meant by $\frac{2}{4}$ time, $\frac{3}{4}$ time, and common time? Write a measure of each.

ANNEX B.

PUPIL-TEACHERS.—FOURTH CLASS.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

“Stay, stay with us,—rest, thou art weary and worn’;
And fain was their war-broken soldier to stay;
But sorrow returned with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.”

1. Parse the words in italics. 2. Analyse the passage.
2. How many different parts of speech may each of the following words be—stay, return, dawning, rest? Give short sentences to illustrate your answer, and carefully distinguish between transitive and intransitive verbs.
3. Give the principal parts of the following verbs :—Forbear, sew, lay, set, rise, lie.
4. Give the plural form of the words—scarf, die, penny, bandit, valley, radius, crisis, fish, seraph; and the feminine form of the words—abbot, wizard, marquis, executor, stag, fox, ram, hero, priest.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be done.

1. Multiply DCXLIX by MXCIV, and express the result in words.
2. Find by practice the cost of 2 cwt. 3 qrs. 9½ lbs. at £19 7s. 4d. per cwt.
3. If ‘0625 cwt. cost £‘68125, what is the value of ‘625 of a quarter.
4. Simplify $\frac{7\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{3}{4} - (\frac{2}{3} \text{ of } 7\frac{3}{5} - 3\frac{2}{3})}{(\frac{2}{3} + \frac{1}{4}) (\frac{2}{3} - \frac{1}{4}) \times \frac{1}{2} \text{ of } 32\frac{2}{3} + \frac{1}{3}}$

NOTE.—The mode of parsing adopted in the Training School must be followed.

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Enumerate in order (beginning at the extreme north-east) the rivers of the European mainland.
2. Define clearly the position of each of the following cities :—Bordeaux, Glasgow, Stockholm, Odessa, Florence, Seville, Oporto, Antwerp, Copenhagen, Belgrade, Dresden, Cologne,—mentioning a point of interest connected with each.
3. Trace carefully the course of our Great Western Railway, describing the country over which it is made, and naming in order the chief towns through which it passes.

Dictation.

Half an hour allowed.

Correct the following :—

They were once inseperable frends and never ommitted an occassion of comending each others virtue and intelgence. But when the former succeeded as sole heir to the imense wealth of his cosen, the later who beleved that he had been cheeted of his lawfull possessions by fowl play became very wrath and never ceesed to rale against him as a man of the worst principals and the principal author of his misfortunes. After invaying against the thieving spirit of his rival, he impuned his verascity before the Supreme Court, and was greivously disapointed when his sollicitor informed him that he was likely to loose his suite through malining his opponent while the matter was in the judges hands.

NOTE.—Give specimens of writing in your first answer in Geography.

Algebra.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be answered.

1. Simplify the expression $5x - \{3x - (2x + 3)\}$ and find its value when $x = -\frac{3}{4}$.
2. Divide $a^4 + b^4 + 2a^2b^2 - 2c^2d^2 - c^4 - d^4$ by $a^2 + b^2 - c^2 - d^2$.
3. Find the G.C.M. of $4x^3 - 16ax^2 + 20a^2x - 8a^3$ and $6x^3 - 12a^2x - 24a^3$.
4. Find, by splitting up into factors, the L.C.M. of $x^2 + 9x + 20$, $x^2 - 9x + 20$, $x^2 + x - 20$, $x^2 - x - 20$, $x^2 - 10x + 25$, $x^2 - 8x + 16$.

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Define a circle, trapezium, parallel straight lines, diagonal, radius, rhombus.
2. Make a triangle of which the sides shall be equal to three given straight lines, but any two whatever of these must be greater than the third.
3. If one side of a triangle be produced, the exterior angle shall be greater than either of the interior opposite angles.
4. Straight lines which are parallel to the same straight line are parallel to each other.

Latin.

Two hours allowed.

1. Render in English the following :—

Elephantorum genua dura sunt. Homini quercus utilis est. Ducis consilia sunt prudentia. In planitie equitatus erat. Vires bovum erant ingentes. Alter est Græcus, alter Romanus. Neutri inimicus erat. Noctes breviores sunt æstate. Nihil est amicitie perniciosius quam adulatio. Pulcherrimi sunt colores florum. Magister puero tres libros dat. Augustus octavus est mensis. Multi erant pauperes qui divites fuerant. Discipuli erant attentissimi. Pueri sunt diligentissimi. Legionibus Romanis duces præferunt fortes. Variæ cupiditates animo insunt.

2.

2. Let the following be expressed in Latin :—

Friends are not wanting to good men. The nights are shorter in summer than in winter. The old man is sick and feeble. My assistance did not profit the State. Thy father is dear to thee; mine to me. Thine indolence is in thy way, Titus! To us the victory is joyful; to you it is most sad. The wicked man is not free. Rome has two Consuls. The journey was very long and very rough. War is the cause of many crimes. Hatred is better than flattery. Neither state has any praise. They give praise to the one, to the other blame.

Decline utilis quercus; dux prudens; pulcher flos; ego, is and idem.

NOTE.—Write your exercises in columns.

French.

Two hours allowed.

1. Give the French for—

- a. Is there any ripe fruit in the garden?
 - b. The lilies of the field are very beautiful.
 - c. There are many pickpockets in London and Paris.
 - d. The elder sister is a model of filial piety.
 - e. Catherine de Medici was a native of Florence; she was ambitious, imperious, and superstitious.
 - f. We are in the nineteenth century of the Christian era.
 - g. His public life is irreproachable, but he has enemies.
 - h. I agree to all these conditions, for they are reasonable.
 - i. France is larger but less populous than England.
 - j. These generals, our most powerful protectors, are as just as valiant.
 - k. I prefer my pretty little house to the finest palace.
 - l. Your kind letter of the fifteenth of January reached me on the first of February.
 - m. The sublimity of his sentiments is still superior to the energy of his expressions.
 - n. Prosperity gets us friends, and adversity tries them.
 - o. My watch does not go so well as hers.
2. Give the feminine plural of each of these adjectives :—joli, roux, connaissanceur, vertueux, cruel, vengeur, bas, franc, nouveau, frais, fier, sec.
3. Give the plural of each of these nouns :—bijou, bal, nez, hôpital, filou, ciel.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. State the difference between a note and a tone, a pause and a rest.
2. What is meant by a measure? Give examples of the different kinds of measure.
3. Mention the mental effect the different tones of the scale have on the mind.
4. Write the different kinds of notes in use in the Old Notation, and give their value in the Tonic Sol-fa Notation underneath.
5. Write eight measures of a song in the Tonic Sol-fa Notation, and translate it into the Old Notation (Key of C).

Drawing.

An hour allowed.

1. Illustrate and explain the use of construction lines.
2. Draw from memory a common fluted tumbler and a wine-glass.
3. Give a definition of plane geometry.
4. Illustrate what is meant by the base and altitude of a triangle.
5. Give a definition of a solid.
6. What is a horizontal plane?

ANNEX C.

PUPIL-TEACHERS.—THIRD CLASS.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

“Beneath the rock his vassal’s care
Was prompt the ritual to prepare,
With deep and deathful meaning fraught;
For such Antiquity had taught
Was preface meet, ere yet abroad
The Cross of Fire should take its road.”

1. Parse the words in italics. 2. Analyse the passage.
3. How many different parts of speech may each of the following words be :—before, that, what, still? Give short sentences to illustrate your answer.
4. Give the meanings of the following words :—deprecate, lucrative, illicit. Give a short sentence to illustrate each.
5. Distinguish clearly between the meanings of the words luxurious and luxuriant, temporal, and temporary, ability and capacity. Give sentences to illustrate your answer.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be solved.

1. Simplify $1101'6 \div 3'06 - 1'1016 \div 3060$.
2. If £3,188 0s. 11½d. had been put out to interest at £2 13s. 4d. per cent. per annum, on November 15th, 1875, when would it amount to £3,197 7s. 3¼d.?
3. If 13 men dig a trench 51 yards long, 8 ft. deep, 17 yards wide, in 29 days of 8 hours each, in how many days of 12½ hours each would 14 men dig a trench 85 yards long, 7 ft. deep, and 25 yards 1 ft. 6 in. wide?
4. Find the cost of fencing a square paddock containing 10 acres, at 14s. 9½d. per rod.

NOTE.—The mode of parsing employed in the Training School must be followed.

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Enumerate in order the rivers belonging to the South Coast of Asia.
2. Define clearly the position of each of the following places :—Belfast, Aberdeen, Birmingham, Liverpool, Hull, Coburg, Port Darwin, Albury, Perth (W.A.), Cork, Canterbury, Manchester, Edinburgh, mentioning a point of interest in connection with each.
3. Draw a sketch of the East Coast of Australia, showing the principal rivers and seaports.

School

School Management.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Give an outline of your work for one School-day—say Monday.
2. Give a writing programme for the class you teach, showing the work for one month.
3. Write notes of an object lesson as to a first class on Air or Water.

NOTE.—Give specimens of Writing, under the head of School Management.

Algebra.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be answered.

1. Reduce into elementary factors
 $9a^2 - 25b^2, 8a^3 + 27b^3, 8a^3 - 27b^3, 81a^4 - 256b^4.$
2. Simplify $\frac{3+2x}{2-x} - \frac{2-3x}{2+x} - \frac{16x-x^2}{4-x^2}$
3. Find the G.C.M. of $21x^3 + 14x^2 - 3x - 2$ and $12x^3 - x^2 + 4.$
4. Solve the equation $\frac{x-4}{3} - \frac{2x-3}{7} + 5x = 14\frac{1}{3} - \frac{1-3x}{2}$

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. If one side of a triangle be produced, the exterior angle is greater than either of the interior opposite angles.
2. A B C is a triangle having the side A B equal to the side A C. A D bisects the angle B A C, and meets B C at D. Prove that A B D is a right angle.
3. The opposite sides and angles of parallelograms are equal, and the diagonal bisects them.
4. Bisect a parallelogram by a straight line drawn through a point in one of its sides.

French.

Two hours allowed.

1. Give the French for—
 - A. Of all the virtues, that which makes itself most beloved is humanity.
 - B. The body perishes, the soul is immortal; yet we neglect the latter and sacrifice everything for the former.
 - C. It is one of his sisters, but I do not know which.
 - D. That is what I wished to speak to you about.
 - E. Has he any protectors? Yes, he has some very powerful ones.
 - F. Your reasons are good—I yield to them.
 - G. People learn better what they understand than what they do not.
 - H. Ladies, whoever of you shall be bold enough to speak ill of me, I shall make her repent it.
 - I. Do not to others what you would not wish others to do to you.
 - J. The ashes of the peasant and the king are alike.
 - K. Our vessels are quite ready, but there are some difficulties.
 - L. However well written these words may be, they have little success.
 - M. I shall have five pictures and pretty engravings.
 - N. You ought to have behaved differently.
 - O. It is a thing to which he will never descend.
2. Write down the first person singular and third person plural of each tense of each mood of the active voice of ne pas apercevoir.
3. Write out the whole of the active subjunctive mood of répondre.

Vocal Music.

Tonic Sol-fa method.—An hour and a half allowed.

1. Write the melody "God Save the Queen," in the Tonic Sol-fa Notation, and translate it into the Old Notation (Key C).
2. Write the Chords of the Tonic, Dominant and Subdominant. (Key C)—in old Notation or Tonic Sol-fa.
3. What difference is there between Melody and Harmony?
4. Three-pulse measure:—

d . m : s , l , t : d	m : — . r ' d : m , r . r , d ' r . m : f : s , l , t . d

- If there be any mistakes in the foregoing, write the corrected version underneath.
5. Write down the marks used in the Old Notation for crescendo and diminuendo; also those used for flats and sharps.

Drawing.

An hour allowed.

1. Does an object always appear in its real shape?
2. Draw a common basin, and show the construction lines with dotted lines.
3. How many degrees does a right angle contain?
4. What is the meaning of the term "perspective"?
5. Give an illustration of the following planes:—horizontal, vertical, and oblique.
6. Draw an acute, an obtuse, and an isosceles triangle.

ANNEX D.

PUPIL-TEACHERS—SECOND CLASS.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

*Mortals that would follow me,
Love Virtue; she alone is free;
She can teach ye how to climb
Higher than the spherie chime:
Or if Virtue feeble were,
Heaven itself would stoop to her.*

1. Parse the words in italics
2. Analyse the passage.

2. Explain the force of the affix en in each of the following words, and give analogous examples :—vixen, blacken, oxen, chicken, golden.
3. Give the exact meanings of the following words :—secular, venal, adulation, antipodes, paramount, depreciate, acme.
4. Write down all the adjectives formed from study, duty, plenty, progress, sex, species.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be answered.

1. Simplify $\frac{4 \cdot 125 - 2 \cdot 772}{2 \cdot 8 + 2 \cdot 4}$
2. If the simple interest on £504 5s. for 219 days be £45 7s. 7½d., find the rate per cent.
3. Find the compound interest on £127 10s. in three years at 6 per cent. per annum.
4. A person invests £1,496 in the 4 per cents. at 93½, and on the stock rising to 94 transfers it to 7 per cent. stock at 164½. What alteration is there in his income?

NOTE.—The mode of parsing employed in the Training School must be followed.

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Enumerate the Rivers of the United States of North America, naming the cities on each.
2. Draw a rough map of South America, showing the countries and defining the position of each of the following :—Amazon, La Plata, Magdalena, Orinoco, Rio Janeiro, Bahia, Valparaiso, Cayenne, Quito, Lima, Buenos Ayres, Callao, Monte Video, Chimborazo.
3. Describe the coast-line of Palestine, giving a sketch (if possible) with the seaports.

Art of Teaching.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. How is order best maintained in a school or class?
2. State some of the difficulties that meet you in your work; and also how you seek to meet and overcome them.
3. Write an outline of an object lesson as to First Class on a Pin, a Slate, or a Plant.

NOTE.—Give specimens of Writing, under the head Art of Teaching.

Algebra.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Simplify $\frac{x^2 - a^2}{x^3 - a^3} \left(\frac{x^3}{x+a} + a \right) + \frac{x^2 - a^2}{x^3 + a^3} \left(\frac{x^2}{x-a} - a \right)$ and $\left\{ \frac{x-y}{x+y} + \frac{x+y}{x-y} \right\} \left\{ \frac{x^2 + y^2}{2xy} + 1 \right\} \frac{xy}{x^2 + y^2}$.
2. Solve the equation $\frac{x-1}{4} - \frac{1}{3} \left(\frac{x-5}{4} - \frac{14-2x}{5} \right) = \frac{x-9}{2} - \frac{1}{3}$.
3. Simplify A. $\frac{5 + \sqrt{7}}{4 + \sqrt{7}} + \frac{5 - \sqrt{7}}{4 - \sqrt{7}}$ or B. $\sqrt{14 + 6\sqrt{5}}$

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. If a straight line be divided into any two parts, four times the rectangle contained by the whole line and one of the parts, together with the square on the other part, is equal to the square on the straight line, which is made up of the whole and that part.
2. If the square described on one of the sides of a triangle be equal to the squares described on the other two sides of it, the angle contained by these two sides is a right angle.
3. Prove that triangles upon the same base and upon opposite sides of it, and having their altitudes equal, are equal.

French.

Two hours allowed.

1. Give the French for—
 - a. Has your mother received the letter that I wrote at London?
 - b. Why did he not answer your question?
 - c. When I was riding on horseback, we met several times in the street.
 - d. Was he rejoicing at his good fortune?
 - e. It would be necessary to inquire about it.
 - f. There would be more happiness if every one knew how to moderate his desires.
 - g. It was beginning to rain when we set out.
 - h. I shall endeavour to persuade him that he may support you with all his credit.
 - i. Let us go away from here, for father and mother are going to the country.
 - j. Socrates passed the last day of his life in discoursing on the immortality of the soul.
 - k. John Calvin, the celebrated reformer, died at Geneva, on the 27th May, 1564.
 - l. Shall I have the honour to help you to the wing of a chicken? Yes, please.
 - m. Do not maintain so absurd an opinion, my dear daughter.
 - n. I had risen to go out, but he made me sit down again.
 - o. The head-dress which that lady wears becomes her very well.
2. Give the first person singular of each tense of each mood of the pronominal verb s'avancer.
3. Write down in full the simple tenses and the participles of pouvoir and nettoyer.

Latin.

Two hours allowed.

1. Express in English the following :—
Multi milites in prælio vulnerabantur. Hostes in illo prælio plurimos milites vulneraverant. Pater curat ut bene educer. Non dubium est, quin Pompeius a Cæsare superatus sit. Moniti sumus ut diligentiores essemus. Nemo dubitavit quin puer a me diligentissime doctus esset. Multæ fabulæ a poetis fictæ sunt. Urbes munitæ ab hostibus non expugnabantur. Homo eruditus non solum sibi, sed etiam aliis prodest. Cura ut puer bene erudiatur. Quis dubitat quin absurdum sit malos versus facere. Hannibal Alpes superare conatus est. Darius Alexandro magnam partem Asiæ pollicitus est. Reus jacinus confessus est. Avium cantus cum voluptate ab omnibus audiuntur.

2. Translate the following into Latin:—

There is no true glory without virtue. Large fishes are not caught in a small river. Fight bravely, soldiers; ye are fighting for your country. It is not sufficient to live—we ought to live well. We cannot all be kings—we can all be good citizens. We are all able to be serviceable to our friends. Thou hast wisely performed the office of Consul. If we die, the body only dies—not the mind. Birds make their nests in trees. The cities had been fortified with stone walls. I do not doubt that the whole city was terrified at his sudden arrival.

1. Parse the words in italics. 2. Write the second person, singular and plural, of every tense of the verbs curo and facio.

NOTE.—Write your exercises in columns.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Draw a diagram illustrating transition into the first Flat and the first Sharp key.
2. Write eight measures of a song (Tonic Sol-fa) and translate it into the Old Notation (key of C).
3. What is the different mental effect of the Major and Minor Scale, and what is the principal difference in their construction?
4. Write two measures of two-pulse, of three-pulse, and of four-pulse measure (Tonic Sol-fa), and translate it into the Old Notation. Use notes and rests of different lengths.

Drawing.

An hour allowed.

1. Draw a modern Vase, and show the construction lines with dotted lines.
2. Give a Definition of Reflected Light.
3. How many kinds of Angles are there? Name them.
4. What is a Right Angle? Draw it and explain its properties.
5. What is the point of sight or centre of vision?
6. Give a Definition of a Plane.

ANNEX E.

PUPIL-TEACHERS.—FIRST CLASS.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. "O welcome pure-eyed Faith, white-handed Hope,
Thou hovering angel, girt with golden wings,
And thou unblemish't form of Chastity!
I see ye visibly, and now believe
That He—the Supreme good—to whom all things ill
Are but as slavish officers of vengeance,
Would send a glistering guardian, if need were,
To keep my life and honor unassailed."

1. Parse the words in italics.

2. Analyse the passage.

2. Give the force of each of the following noun suffixes, with examples:—age, aster, iff, ee, mony, th, ess, ling.

3. Give the exact meaning of each of these words:—jeopardy, plebeian, anomaly, venial, ribald, proselyte, granular, demagogue. Give derivations where you can.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed. At least three questions must be answered.

1. A man left $\frac{1}{3}$ of his property to A., $\frac{2}{3}$ of the remainder to B., $\frac{1}{10}$ of what then remained to C., and the rest to D. D.'s share was £735. Find what he left to each of the others.
2. A person sells out £4,800 in the 3 per cent. Consols at 93, and invests the proceeds in 6 per cent. Stock at 108. Find the alteration in his income.
3. A man purchases gold-dust at £36 : 16s. per lb. troy, and sells it at £3 7s. 1d. per ounce avoirdupois. Find his gain per cent.
4. If £233 6s. 8d. were put at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. interest on November 23rd, 1879, when would it amount to £237 13s. 9d.?

NOTE.—The mode of parsing employed in the Training School must be followed.

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Explain the phenomenon of day and night, showing clearly why the length of day varies so much in different places at the same time.
Supposing the sun rises to-day at London at six o'clock, at what hour (London time) will it rise at Moscow ($37\frac{1}{2}$ deg. E.L.), New York (74 deg. W.L.), Auckland ($174\frac{1}{2}$ deg. E.L.)?
2. Mention as many cities as you can built on the following rivers:—Ganges, Rhine, Danube, Nile; and mention some point of commercial or historical interest in connection with each.
3. Define clearly the position of the following:—Alexandria, Bordeaux, Londonderry, Buenos Ayres, Philadelphia, Dresden, Lucknow, Port Darwin.

Art of Teaching.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. What do you understand by skill in teaching?
2. How may it be known if you possess it?
3. Write full notes of an Object Lesson on one of the following:—
A Tree.
A Rose.
Rain.

NOTE.—Give specimens of Writing, under the head Art of Teaching.

Algebra.

An hour and a half allowed.—At least three must be solved.

1. Simplify $\sqrt{48} - \frac{6}{\sqrt{12}} - \frac{4}{3} \sqrt[4]{729} + 2 \sqrt[3]{27}$.
2. Find all the values of x in $x^3 - 1 = 0$.
3. Reduce to its lowest terms $\frac{3x^3 + x^2 - 5x + 21}{6x^3 + 29x^2 + 26x - 21}$.
4. Solve the equation $\frac{x - \frac{1}{3}}{3} + \frac{x}{2} - \frac{1}{7} = 4\frac{2}{3}$.

Euclid.

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Describe a parallelogram equal to a given rectilinear figure, and having an angle equal to a given rectilinear angle.
2. Describe a square that shall be equal to a given rectilinear figure.
3. Describe a rectangle equal to a given square, and having one of its sides equal to the diagonal of the square.
4. If the four lines drawn from a point within a quadrilateral figure to the angular points be all equal, show that the opposite angles of the figure are together equal to two right angles.

Latin.

Two hours allowed.

1. Render the following in English :—

Puer strenue exercetor. Nemo dubitat quin puer a me semper bene monitus esset. Graecia perversis suis consiliis afflicta est. Dic mihi quæ tibi scripta sint. Romani ex Gallia trans Rhenum veniunt. Plurimæ aves sub hiemem in alias terras volant. Cicero Roscium audacissime defendit. Cur heri nobiscum ambulare non poterat? Oro te, ut mecum ludere velis. Cato esse quam videri bonus malebat. Nihil potest præferri virtuti. Socrates æquo atque hilari animo diem supremum obiit. Quod factum est, infectum fieri nequit. Cæsar fuis est rebus suis. Gavius est consul quod illum tam fidelem socium repererat. His literis perlectis, consul comprehendere eos jubet.

2. Express in Latin the following :—

We do not wish to walk in the fields; we prefer to remain at home. I will rather do thee good than do thee evil. Do not follow bad examples, my son. The Romans knew how to bear with even mind the greatest disasters. Alexander determined to go to the oracle of Jupiter. He that will help the injurious will become an ally in the offence. The sun is larger and more splendid than the moon. When Cato was slain the Commonwealth perished. They build a wall fifty feet high and thirty feet broad. He was born at Rome, and died at Athens. Tiberius retired from Rome, and lived in exile at Rhodes.

1. Parse the words in italics.
 2. Write the indicative passive of exercetor, and the subjunctive and imperative passive of vinco.
3. How is the case of a noun denoting the name of a town, or a portion of time, determined.

NOTE.—Write your exercise in columns.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. What is the meaning of the word "Time" in reference to Music.
2. What is the difference between a rest and a pause? How are they indicated in both Tonic Sol-fa and Old Notation?
3. What do you understand by "Tetrachords"? How many kinds are there?
4. To which points should you principally direct your attention in teaching a class a song?
5. Write down the first four Sharp Key Signatures, and also four different kinds of Time Signatures in the Old Notation.
6. Write four Measures of a Two-part Song in both Tonic Sol-fa and Old Notation.

Drawing.

An hour allowed.

1. Draw a Square Block, one face parallel to the picture plane, and below the level of the eye.
2. Illustrate the difference between Shade and Shadow.
3. Is it the purpose of Art to represent objects as they are, or as we see them?
4. How many Degrees are there in a circle?
5. Upon what Plane are Perspective representations supposed to be placed?
6. Should this Plane always be vertical? State your reasons for your answers.

ANNEX F.

APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO TRAINING SCHOOL—LOWER CLASS.

Grammar.

"For life is not to live but to be well—the only way for a rich man to be healthy is by exercise and temperance—to live as if he were poor."

Punctuate the above passage. Analyse it. Parse the words in italics.

Frame sentences showing the use of the following words :—Assent, ascent, accent, descent, decent, dissent, mark, marque, sink, cinque, heu, hugh, you, ewe, yew, vain, vane, vein, rain, rein, reign.Arithmetic.

Arithmetic.

1. Multiply £3 : 12s. 5½d. by 67½. Prove the answer, and reduce it to half-guineas.
2. What shall I give for 35 acres 3 roods of land at 17s. 6d. per perch?
3. By Practice, 13 cwt. 3 qrs. 13 lbs. 13 oz. at 12 guineas and fourpence halfpenny per ton.
4. Write down the exact numerical value of each figure in the following expression, 364·517682.

Geography.

1. Enumerate the Peninsulas and Gulfs of Asia.
 2. Give a concise account of the Mountains of N. S. Wales.
 3. How are the Land and Water distributed upon the Earth's surface?
- Dictation—From an Advanced Class Book. Place of selection to be noted on Examination Papers.
- Reading from an Advanced Class Book. Inspector to select.
- Historical.—Applicant's Personal Statement to be taken as usual.
- The presiding officer to see that full details are given.
- NOTE.—One subject only at a time to be given to the examinees.

Drawing.

One hour allowed.

1. When Shades and Shadows increase in depth, is that increase gradual or sudden?
2. Draw a Candlestick and a Jug, as seen below the eye.
3. Illustrate the use of Construction Lines.
4. Point out the difference between a Scalene Triangle and a Trapezoid.
5. What Points are placed on the Horizontal Line in a Perspective Drawing?
6. How do Horizontal Lines, of the retreating sides of a right-angled solid, appear to slope when they are above the eye, and how when they are below it?

Vocal Music.

One hour allowed.

PART I.—TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION.

1. What is Sound, and how is it produced? Explain clearly the difference between a Musical Sound and a Noise; and also between a Note and a Tone.
2. Give a full account of the Subdivisions of the Pulse.
3. Write under each note in the following passage its length, the figure 1 denoting a single pulse:—

KEY G.

d : m	s : —	f : — . m	r : —	r : m . f	s : f . , m
r : —	— : . d	d : —

PART II.—STAFF NOTATION.

4. Write on the staff the Signs representing the following:—treble clef, bass clef, sharp, flat, natural, minim, semibreve, crotchet, quaver, crotchet rest, quaver rest.
5. Explain the use of Ledger Lines, and give examples.
6. Write in the Treble Clef the proper Key Signatures to the keys of F, G, and B flat.

ANNEX G.

APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO TRAINING SCHOOL.—UPPER CLASS.

Grammar.

An hour and a half allowed.

1.

*“Man 'tis true
Smit with the beauty of so fair a scene
Might well suppose the artificer Divine
Meant it eternal had he not himself
Pronounced it transient glorious as it is
And still designing a more glorious far
Doomed it as insufficient for his praise.”*

- a. Supply the punctuation necessary in the above passage.
 - b. Express the Author's ideas in other language.
 - c. Parse the words in italics.
 - d. Analyse the whole.
2. Select the words of foreign origin in the above, and give the derivation in each case.

Arithmetic.

An hour and a half allowed.

3. I purchase 75 yards of cloth, at 2/7¼ per yard. How must I sell it per yard so as to gain 15 per cent. by the transaction?

Geography.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Account for the formation of Ocean Currents, and describe one, at least, of the principal ones.
2. Enumerate the Peninsulas of Europe, and describe one in fair detail.
3. Give a description of one of the leading River Systems of North America.

Art of Teaching.

An hour and a half allowed.

In your first answer give specimens of copy lines in three hands.

1. How, or to what extent, would you employ Writing as a means of securing accuracy in teaching, and well grounded instruction?
2. What necessity exists for a systematic course of Moral Lessons? How would you give one on “Wastefulness”?

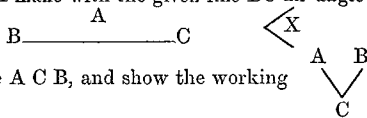

Drawing.

Drawing.

Two hours allowed.

The freehand test paper must be drawn first, after which examinee must answer as many of these questions as time permits.

1. Draw an angular view of a cube, the centre of which is on a level with the eye.
2. Show where the lines vanish to, and how you obtain the vanishing points.
3. From the point A make with the given line BC an angle equal to X.

4. Trisect the angle A C B, and show the working
5. Show how you determine the visual angle in a perspective drawing.
6. In a perspective drawing, state which line must be determined first, what position it generally occupies, and if it is of definite length.

Vocal Music.

Two hours allowed.

NOTE.—Do not write the questions, but prefix to each answer its proper number.

Part I.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

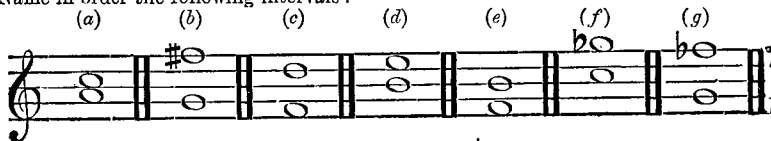

1. Give a full account of the construction of a diatonic scale, explaining the terms tonic, mediant, dominant, tetrachord, tritone, and komma.
2. Write a passage of six or eight measures, exhibiting transition from key C to key F, and concluding in key C.
3. On what notes would Soh fall in the keys of G, A, B \flat , E, B, A \flat , and F \sharp respectively?
4. Construct a time exercise exhibiting all the subdivisions of the pulse in ordinary use.

Part II.—Staff Notation.

5. Transpose the following melody into the G and C (tenor) clefs, raising it an octave in the former and preserving the same pitch in the latter:—

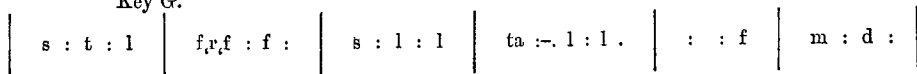

6. Name in order the following intervals:—

7. Write in the treble clef the key signatures of A, B \flat , and D major, and in the bass clef the signatures of keys E, E \flat , and A \flat major.

8. Write the following passage in the Staff Notation, treble clef (a crotchet = a pulse):—

Algebra.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Simplify (a) $\sqrt[4]{124 - 32\sqrt{15}}$
(b) $\frac{1}{1+x} + \frac{1}{1+x} + \frac{1}{1-x}$
 $1 - \frac{1}{1+x} + \frac{x}{1-x} + \frac{x^2}{1+x}$
2. Solve the equation $\frac{2x-1}{x+1} - \frac{x-7}{x-1} = 4 - \frac{3x-1}{x+2}$
3. Find the value of $\frac{x^3-x}{x^4-x^2+1}$ when $2x=1+\sqrt{5}$

Euclid.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Describe a parallelogram equal to a given rectilineal figure, and having an angle equal to a given rectilineal angle.
2. Describe a square equal to a given rectilineal figure.
3. Let a straight line $2x$ be divided into two equal and also into two unequal parts (the smaller being $=y$), show by algebra that the rectangle contained by the unequal parts together with the square on the line between the points of section is equal to the square on half the line.
4. In the triangle ABC, if AB be bisected in D, and BC in E, and if AE be joined and produced so that EF is equal to EA, and if CD be joined and produced so that DG=DC, then if BG, BF be joined they shall be in one straight line.

Latin.

Two hours allowed.

ANNEX H.

TRAINING SCHOOL.—LOWER CLASS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

1. ["I have ventured
Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders
These many summers in a sea of glory
But far beyond my depth my high blown pride
At length broke under me and now has left me
Weary and old with service to the mercy
Of a rude stream that must for ever hide me]
Vain pomp and glory of this world I hate ye
I feel my heart new opened."
- a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage.
 b. Express the author's meaning in other words.
 *c Parse the words in italics.
 *d Analyse the portion enclosed by brackets.
2. In such words as dot and dote, the final e is retained in the latter, although it is not sounded. Explain the reason or principle; and give further examples of its application.
 3. Describe the various artifices by which the plural of nouns is formed.

NOTE.—The ordinary Standards sanctioned by the Department must be adhered to.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.*

1. Express in words the number of inches contained in 37 acres 17 yards $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet.
 2. 714 bushels 3 pecks of wheat at £2 15s. 9½d. per quarter.
 3. Four men in 14 days of 8 working hours build a wall 30 yards long, 5 feet high, and $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; how long should it take 15 men working 10 hours a day to build a wall 39 yards long, 3 feet high, and 21 inches thick?
 4. What sum put to interest for $3\frac{1}{2}$ years at $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. will amount to £419 15s. 6d.?
 5. If by selling flour at £11 10s. per ton I gain 20 per cent., what should be the result by selling at £9 15s. per ton?

6. Simplify $5 - 2\frac{2}{3}$ of $1\frac{2}{3}$ - $\frac{2\frac{1}{2}}{\frac{2}{3} + 1\frac{2}{3}}$ and $\frac{3 - \frac{1}{3}}{3 + \frac{1}{3}}$ of $\frac{2 - \frac{1}{2}}{2 + \frac{1}{2}}$
 $\frac{\frac{2}{3} \text{ of } \frac{2}{3} - \frac{1}{4}\frac{1}{2}}{\frac{2}{3} + 1\frac{2}{3}}$ and $\frac{3 + \frac{1}{3}}{3 - \frac{1}{3}}$ of $\frac{2 + \frac{1}{2}}{2 - \frac{1}{2}}$

* N.B.—For III. A at least five questions must be done.

Geography.

Three hours allowed. Answer four questions at least.

1. Enumerate the river valleys of Eastern New South Wales, and describe one in fair detail.
 2. What is included in the term "Straits Settlements"? Describe one of the most important from a commercial point of view.
 3. Describe succinctly that section of the African Continent which lies in the South Torrid Zone.
 4. Draw a map of, or describe in words, the Atlantic Ocean.
 5. Give a description of the Steppes of the Caspian.

School Management.

Three hours allowed. Answer four questions at least. The last must be one.

In the first line of your first answer give specimens of copy setting in three hands.

1. Describe concisely the attendance records used in school. State how they should be kept.
 2. How much time out of the 25 hours, appropriated weekly to school instruction, should be devoted to reading, writing, and arithmetic; composition, spelling, and scripture being included?
 3 Explain fully the uses of an Abacus. 4.

4. Explain how you would introduce the study of grammar to your pupils. Give outline notes of a first lesson.
5. What is meant by "moral training?" In the light of the surroundings of Australian youth, show why the teacher should do his utmost to secure high results in this subject.

History.

Three hours allowed—Answer five questions.

3. Draw a circle as seen horizontally, about 5 feet in front of the spectator, 4 feet above, 2 feet below, and on a level with the H.L.
4. Show what construction lines you would use in drawing a hexagon (solid) in perspective.
5. Define a plane.
6. Illustrate the easiest method of dividing the given line A B into any number of equal parts.

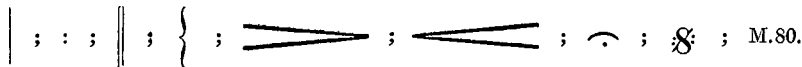

A _____ B

Vocal Music.

An hour and a half allowed.

Part I.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

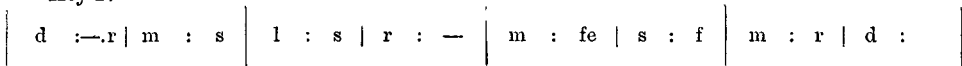

1. Explain fully the meanings of the following musical signs:—

2. Name the tones of the diatonic scale, describing as fully as possible the mental effect of each.
3. Write notes of a singing lesson to a Third Class, introducing the tones fe and ta, and concluding with a time exercise exemplifying the ordinary subdivisions of the pulse. Place under each note in the time exercise its numerical value, the figure 1 denoting a single pulse.
4. Define the following terms:—tetrachord, replicate, transition, syncopation, consonance.

Part II.—Staff Notation.

5. Translate the following passage into the Staff Notation, treble clef, a crotchet to a pulse;—
Key F.

6. Name the following notes, and place after each its equivalent in semiquavers:—

6. Write on the staff the signs representing Minim Rest, Semibreve Rest, Semiquaver Rest, Crotchet Rest, Da Capo, Pause.

8. Write on the staff a bar in each of the following times:—

$\frac{2}{4}$, $\frac{3}{4}$, C , $\frac{6}{8}$

ANNEX I.

TRAINING SCHOOL—UPPER CLASS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.

Answer three questions, the first must be one.

1. "Heaven doth with us as we with torches do
Not light them for themselves for if our virtues
Did not go forth of us 'twere all alike
As if we had them not—Spirits are not finely touched
But to fine issues nor Nature never lends
The smallest scruple of her excellence
But like a thrifty goddess she determines Herself the glory of a creditor
Both thanks and use."
 - a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage. (It is not necessary to re-write it for this).
 - b. Express the author's meaning in other words.
 - *c. Parse the words in italics.
 - *d. Analyse the passage

2. In the formation of a noun from the verb manage, the final "e" is retained, as "manage," "management," but it is otherwise in the word "judgment." Give further examples, and explain, if you can, the reason for this apparent inconsistency.

3. Give examples of the various sounds which the letter a is used to represent.

4. Give the derivation of each of the following words, showing the original and the derived meaning where you can:—Exorbitant, saturnine, wizard, volcano, gossip, candidate, cynosure, pagan.

* NOTE.—The standards in use, and sanctioned by the Department, must be adhered to.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.

N.B.—Female students are required to work the first five exercises.

1. If $\frac{2}{3}$ of $4\frac{1}{2}$ of $5\frac{1}{2}$ of $2\frac{1}{4}$ of 37 lbs. of sugar cost £7 11s. 6d., what should be paid for 17 tons 11 cwt?

2. A person invests £5,768 in the 3 per cents. at 90 $\frac{3}{4}$, and on their rising to 92 transfers it to the 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cents. at 97 $\frac{1}{2}$, what difference does he thus effect in his annual income?

3. A, B, and C engage to complete a piece of work in 35 days. A by himself can do it in 90, and B by himself in 75 days; but at the end of 5 days A is obliged to leave, as also C at the end of 20 days, thus leaving B to finish the portion of the work still remaining alone. How long in this way will the original contract time be exceeded?

4. If 9 per cent. is lost by the sale of a property for £1,091 15s., what would be the result per cent., and on the original cost by selling it for £1,195 15s.?

5. Find the value of $\left\{ \frac{4\frac{1}{2} - 3\frac{1}{4}}{2\frac{3}{4} + 5\frac{1}{8}} + \frac{.0125}{.0025} + \frac{1}{2} \right\}$ of $\frac{7\frac{3}{4}}{94}$ of $\frac{17}{35}$ of 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ tons of tea.

6. a. Find the area of the segment of a circle of which the chord is 540 and the height 29 links.

or

b. The sides of a triangle are 20, 18, 14 respectively; find the length of a line parallel to the longest side that will cut off a quadrilateral equal in area to $\frac{1}{3}$ of the triangle.

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least.

1. Account for the seasons, and their periodical recurrence.

2. Account for the existence of glaciers, specifying accurately the regions where they exist.

3. Enumerate the upland deserts of the Old World, and describe one of the more important.

4. Define what is meant by climate. Describe the land and sea-breezes of the Pacific, explaining their origin or causes, geographical range and effects, as regards Oriental or Eastern Australia.

5. Describe and account for the varying effects of solar heat on the earth's surface.

6. Give a full description of the Hunter River basin.

Art of teaching.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least, the fifth must be one.

In the first lines of your first answer give specimens of copy setting in three hands.

1. Describe briefly the documents used in our schools for regulating the instruction. Show the office of each.

2. Distinguish between "Mental Arithmetic" and "Oral Arithmetic." Explain the principles upon which you deal with the former.

3. Explain your views as to discipline and corporal punishment.

4. What place and time should reading, writing, and arithmetic occupy in the 25 hours specially devoted to school lessons weekly? Explain the reasons which would influence you in distributing the time, it being understood that composition, spelling, and Scripture lessons are included in two of the above.

5. Describe what you understand by the "moral training" of youth. Give notes of a lesson upon any subject falling under this head.

English Literature.

Three hours allowed.—Answer at least five questions.

1. Describe concisely the condition of Literature in Britain during what is known as the First Period.

2. State briefly the distinguishing characteristics of the Second Period.

3. To what circumstances do we owe the revival of Literature in the latter half of the 16th Century? Specify some of the great authors who lived about this period, classifying them according to their writings.

4. Give a concise account of the Literary labours of one of the following, giving a detailed description of any of his works—

Alexander Pope.

John Dryden.

5. Give a description of "The Task," and show the special work or mission of its author as a poet. Quote a portion of the poem mentioned.

6. Who were the Essayists of the Fifth Period? Enumerate the works of one of the more eminent.

7. What works do we owe to the following:—

Jeremy Taylor

Isaac Barrow

Richard Baxter

John Bunyan

Daniel Defoe

Samuel Richardson

Adam Smith

Gray

Shenstone

Crabbe.

History.

Three hours allowed.—Answer five questions at least.

1. What effect had the Crusades upon the Social Life of England?

2. Describe concisely the operation of the Feudal System.

3. Summarize the events of the reign of Richard Cœur de Lion.

4. Describe the Social Life of England during the Lancaster and York period.

5. Enumerate the Princes of the House of Tudor, and give a concise account of the reign of one.

6. Enumerate the more noteworthy authors of the Plantaganet period, and give an outline of the writings of one of the number.

7. In what reign is it recorded that the British Navy was permanently established? Relate the circumstances as far as possible,

Domestic

Domestic Economy.

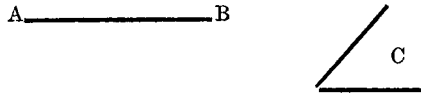

Two hours allowed.

1. Explain the differences existing between Kidderminster, Tapestry, Brussels, Velvet Pile, and Turkey Carpets, and show which are most economical and durable.
2. Describe the kinds of Bread which are most economical, nutritious, and wholesome.
3. What domestic remedies would you employ in a case of Scarlet Fever, if removed from Medical Aid?
4. Give some plain rules—as regards the choice of clothing, and style of dress—suitable for the wife of an Artisan.

Drawing.

One hour allowed.

1. Draw a hexagon (solid) as seen below the eye, showing what construction lines you would use.
2. At what height is the horizontal line generally placed? Is it necessary that this line should always be the same height?
3. Show your principle of construction in drawing the concentric circles used in your model drawing.
4. Illustrate the following:—Isosceles and scalene triangles, rhomboid, trapezium, heptagon, undecagon.
5. Construct a rhombus, one side A B and one angle C being given.

6. When is a Square said to be seen obliquely? and what form does it then assume?

Vocal Music.

An hour and a half allowed.

Part I.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

1. Write a time exercise exhibiting one, two, and three pulse notes, and showing also all the subdivisions of the pulse in ordinary use. Place under each note its numerical value, the figure 1 denoting a single pulse.
2. Explain as fully as you can the construction of a Major Diatonic Scale.
3. Define Syncopation, and write an example of at least four measures.
4. Show by diagram how to modulate from Key C to Key B flat.

Part II.—Staff Notation.

5. Give the names of the notes used in music in the order of their time value, showing their forms, and the forms of their corresponding rests.
6. Write the scales of E flat and A, prefixing to each its proper key signature.
7. Translate the following passage into the Staff Notation, Treble Clef, a crotchet to a pulse:—

KEY G.

8. Give in their proper order the Italian terms denoting the various degrees of speed, beginning with the slowest.

Euclid.

Three hours allowed.

1. Construct an Isosceles triangle having the vertical angle four times each of the angles at the base.
2. In any triangle the sum of the squares on the sides is equal to twice the square on half the base, together with twice the square on the straight line drawn from the vertex to the middle point of the base.
3. Draw a straight line from a given point, either without or in the circumference, which shall touch a given circle.
4. Describe a circle about a given equilateral and equiangular pentagon.
5. If four magnitudes of the same kind be proportionals, the greatest and least of them together shall be greater than the other two together.
6. If the vertical angle of a triangle be bisected by a straight line which likewise cuts the base, the rectangle contained by the sides of the triangle is equal to the rectangle contained by the segments of the base, together with the square on the straight line which bisects the angle.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.

1. Find the H.C.F. of $x^4 - x^3y + xy^3 - y^4$ and $2x^3 - 6x^2y + 6xy^2 - 4y^3$.
2. Expand to 4 terms $(1 - \frac{1}{2}x)^{-3}$
3. Find the sum of 6 terms of the series 72, 48, 32.

$$4. \text{ Simplify } \frac{1}{1+x} \text{ and } \frac{a^2+b^2}{2a^2+a^2+b^2} \frac{2b^2}{a^2+b^2}$$

$$1 - \frac{1}{1+x} \text{ and } \frac{2b^2}{2a^2+a^2+b^2} \frac{a^2+b^2}{2a^2}$$

$$5. \text{ Simplify } \frac{\sqrt{x^2+1} + \sqrt{x^2-1}}{\sqrt{x^2+1} - \sqrt{x^2-1}} + \frac{\sqrt{x^2+1} - \sqrt{x^2-1}}{\sqrt{x^2+1} + \sqrt{x^2-1}} \text{ and}$$

$$\frac{1}{4(1+\sqrt{x})} + \frac{1}{4(1-\sqrt{x})} + \frac{1}{2(1+x)}$$

$$\text{and solve } x^4 - 4x^2 - 2\sqrt{x^4 - 4x^2} + 4 = 31.$$

6. A person purchased a certain number of horses for £240, and after losing 3 of them sold the rest for £8 a head more than he paid for them, thus gaining £59 by the transaction; how many horses did he buy?
7. Find two numbers such that twice the first added to three times the second may make 30, and twice the square of the first added to three times the square of the second may make 210.

Trigonometry.

Trigonometry.

Three hours allowed.

1. A spire stands on a tower in the form of a cube whose edge is 35 feet from a point 23 feet above the level of the base of the tower, and 20 yards distant from the tower; the elevation of the top of the spire is found to be 56 deg. 34 min. Find the height of the spire, having given $\tan. 56 \text{ deg. } 34 \text{ min.} = 1.5$.

2. Prove that $\sin. (A + B) = \sin. A \cos. B + \cos. A \sin. B$, and hence from the known values of the ratios for 45 deg. and 30 deg. deduce $\sin. 75 \text{ deg.}$

3. Prove that $\sin. (180 - A) = \sin. A$; and that $\sin. (-A) = -\sin. A$.

4. Solve $\cos. 2B + 4 \sin. B = \frac{5}{4}$.

5. Prove that $\frac{\cos. nA + \cos. (n+2)A}{\sin. (n+2)A - \sin. nA} = \tan. (n+1)A$.

6. A person standing at the edge of a river observes that the top of a tower on the edge of the opposite side subtends an angle of 55 deg. with a line drawn from his eye parallel to the horizon; upon retiring 30 feet he then finds it to subtend an angle of 48 deg. Find the breadth of the river.

Given Log. Sin. 7 deg.	=	9.08589
Log. Sin. 35 deg.	=	9.75859
Log. Sin. 48 deg.	=	9.87107
Log. 3	=	.47712
Log. 1.0493	=	.02089

Ab iisdem nostra consilia, quæque castris gerantur, hostibus enunciarî: hos a se coerceri non posse. Quin etiam, quod necessario rem coactus Cæsari enunciarit, intelligere sese, quanto id cum periculo fuerit, et ob eam causam, quam diu potuerit, tacuisse."

1. Parse fully the words in italics.

Write the 2nd person singular of each tense of each mood of the Active Voice of the verbs seco, voveo, caedo, and fulcio.

Translate into Latin :—

I must use my own judgment. I have been occupied in writing letters. A husbandman ought to devote himself to cultivating his lands. Among the cities of Sicily there is none more illustrious than Syracuse. Virtue always adorns those in whose possession it is. I entreated them not to abuse their strength. That man shuns the danger of battle, that he may save his own life. Having taken the camp, the general exhorted his soldiers to have pity on the unarmed. They burn up all the corn except what they were to carry with them. The general was sleeping in his tent about noon. They were in the way of using these heads for cups at their banquets. You have come out of Spain across very many rivers with a very great army. Hawks fly more swiftly than doves. The leader marched with a great army through these regions and conquered the cities as far as the mountains. The most wholesome things sometimes please, (but) do not most good. These men whose letters you have read have acted as basely as possible. Do not hesitate to trust all things to him alone.

1. Write the principal parts of malo, prosum, differo, affero, aufero, occido, gaudeo, and veto.

2. Give the Genitive Singular, and the gender of the following nouns:—caput, jusjurandum, vulgus, cornix, palus, ligo, vulnus, and fulgur.

3. State what information you possess regarding the use of ne, ut, and quin.

4. What verbs govern the Dative, and what the Ablative Case?

French.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English, without transcribing the French :—

A. Le cardinal Mazarin avait cru qu'en divisant adroitement la magistrature il prévendrait tous les troubles; mais on opposa l'inflexibilité à la souplesse. Il retranchait quatre années de gages à toutes les cours supérieures, en leur remettant la paulette, c'est-à-dire en les exemptant de payer la taxe inventée par Paulet sous Henry IV, pour s'assurer la propriété de leurs charges. Ce retranchement n'était pas une lésion, mais il conservait les quatre années au parlement, pensant le désarmer par cette faveur. Le parlement méprisa cette grâce qui l'exposait au reproche de préférer son intérêt à celui des autres compagnies. Il n'en donna pas moins son arrêt d'union avec les autres cours de justice. Mazarin, qui n'avait jamais bien pu prononcer le français, ayant dit que cet arrêt d'ognon était attentatoire, et l'ayant fait casser par le conseil, ce seul mot d'ognon le rendit ridicule; et comme on ne cède jamais à ceux qu'on méprise, le parlement en devint plus entreprenant.

B. On n'avait pris encore aucun des dehors de la place. Il fallait d'abord attaquer deux demi-lunes. Derrière ces demi-lunes était un grand ouvrage à couronne, palissadé et fraisé, entouré d'un fossé coupé de plusieurs traverses. Dans cet ouvrage à couronne était encore un autre ouvrage, entouré d'un autre fossé. Il fallait après s'être rendu maître de tous ces retranchements, franchir un bras de l'Escaut. Ce bras franchi, on trouvait encore un autre ouvrage, qu'on nomme pâté. Derrière ce pâté coulait le grand cours de l'Escaut, profond et rapide, qui sert de fossé à la muraille. Enfin la muraille était soutenue par de larges remparts. Tous ces ouvrages étaient couverts de canons. Une garnison de trois mille hommes préparait une longue résistance.

a. To feel vanity on account of anything, is proving that we are not accustomed to it.

b. It is more difficult for nations than for individuals to recover the esteem of their neighbours when they have lost it.

c. That man, whatever his fortune or his merit might be, could not succeed in his undertakings.

d. Socrates spent the last day of his life in discoursing on the immortality of the soul.

e. It is from a king that we derive this august maxim, that one is only great in proportion as he is just.

f. Gentlemen are discreet; they observe the defects of others, but never allude to them.

g. Happy is he who knows how to content himself with little! His sleep is disturbed neither by the fear nor the shameful desires of avarice.

h. Great men undertake great things because they are great; and fools because they believe them easy.

3. Conjugate in full the simple tenses of faire, peindre, vivre.

4. Illustrate your knowledge of the relative pronouns by turning the following expressions into French :—

The lady who sings. The boy I see. The house I own. Whom do you call? I who am loved. You who are laughing. The man to whose patronage I owe my fortune. Heaven whose assistance is necessary. The house you speak of. Of whom do you complain? Whose daughter are you? Whose hat is this? God by whom the world was made. The happiness to which I aspire. The horse which he rides.

- a. Supply the punctuation in the above passage.
 b. Paraphrase it, or give its meaning in other words.
 c. Parse the words in italics.
 d. Analyse the portion in brackets.
2. In the formation of words, now or at one time compound, give four examples of each of the following :—
- Nouns preceded by nouns.
 Nouns preceded by adjectives.
 Nouns preceded by verbs.
3. Define the term "Tense" as applied to verbs. Give examples of all the tenses, simple and compound.
- NOTE.—The standards of the Training School must be observed in parsing.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.

Six questions at least to be answered. Candidates for 3 A must work the last 6.

1. Multiply DCXLIX by MXCIV, and express the result in words.
2. Subtract £8 3s. 0½d. from £9 4s. 0½d., and divide the remainder by 1½.
3. Simplify $\left\{ 2\frac{3}{4} + 2\frac{1}{2} \text{ of } \frac{7}{3\frac{1}{2}} - \frac{1\frac{3}{4}}{2\frac{1}{2}} \right\} \div 1\frac{7}{8}$
4. If I buy 16a. 2r. 8p. of land at £2 2s. 6d. per acre, and 110a. 3r. 15p. at £5 6s. 8d. per acre, what do I pay for the whole?
5. Multiply £19 17s. 10½d. by 98¼, and obtain the result also by "Practice."
6. If $\frac{2}{3}$ of a ship be worth £68 5s., what is the value of $\frac{7}{8}$ of it?
7. If 6 tons 4 cwt. 1qr 7lbs. cost 15½ guineas, find the cost of 9 tons 15 cwt. 1 qr. 11 lbs.
8. Reduce 1 cwt. 3 qrs. 14lbs. to the decimal of a ton, and find the value of 1.875 of £4 3s. 4d. + 18.75 of 3s. 9d.

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—Four questions only to be answered.

1. Enumerate the peninsulas and isthmuses of the Globe, describing their positions.
2. Describe in outline, or draw a map of the Mediterranean Sea.

Bieluka.	Orizaba.
The Drakenberg.	Port Said.
Ekaterinburg.	Salonica.
Granada.	Torquay.
Ismalia.	Vera Cruz.
Jaffa.

School Management.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least.

In the first line of your first answer give specimens of copy setting in three hands.

1. Describe briefly the documents required to conduct the course of the daily instruction.
2. What are the essentials of a sound time-table?
3. Describe the evils which arise both in school life and ordinary life from the absence of regularity and punctuality.
4. Describe your mode of teaching dictation and correct spelling.
5. How would you give a first lesson on "Vulgar Fractions"?

Domestic Economy.

Two hours allowed.

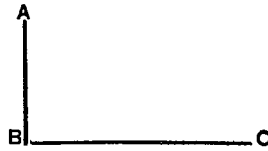

1. Describe how you would make a beef pudding.
2. What dangers attend the use of copper vessels in a kitchen? How are they to be guarded against?
3. Describe the various kinds of plain sewing. Define what is meant by darning. Under what circumstances is it employed? Account for its decline, or comparative disuse in the Colony.
4. What domestic remedies would you employ (if in the remote interior) in a case of inflammation of the lungs?

Drawing.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. How are you said to view an object when its apparent form differs from its real form?
2. Draw a parallel and an angular view of a cube, showing what construction lines you use.
3. State how you would find the vanishing point for the drawing of the above.
4. Into how many sections are trapezia divided? Illustrate and point out the difference between them.

5. Trisect the right angle A B C.

6. What is the intersecting line of a vertical plane sometimes called ?

Vocal Music.

An hour and a half allowed.

Part I.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

1. Draw a modulator exhibiting transitions into the first flat and sharp keys. Explain the advantages of the modulator in teaching singing.
2. How many accents are there in three, four, six, and nine pulse measures respectively? and how are they distinguished? Write an example (two measures) of each.
3. Show how to divide a pulse into halves, thirds, fourths, and quarters three and one.
4. What intervals in a diatonic scale produce concords? and what discords? Write the chord of the tonic and that of the dominant in a major scale.
5. Write a second part suitable for children's voices to the following melody :—

KEY G.

	: s . f	m : m		m : m	s : f		: f . m r : r		r : r		f : m		: m . f		s : s		s : s
f : s		l : f		m.m : m		r . r : r		d : m		d :

Part II.—Staff Notation.

6. Write the melody in question 5 in the staff notation, treble clef.
7. Define the following musical terms :—adagio, crescendo, rallentando, dolce, presto, da capo, clef, signature, ledger lines.
8. How is duration of sound represented in the staff notation? Name and write each of the notes with its corresponding rest.

ANNEX L.

 - a. Supply the punctuation of the above.
 - b. Give the author's meaning in other words, or paraphrase the quotation.
 - c. Parse the words in italics.
 - d. Analyse the portion in brackets.
 2. In the formation of words classed as “compound,” now or originally, give five examples of each of the following :—
 - Nouns preceded by present participles.
 - Adjectives preceded by nouns.
 - Adjectives preceded by adjectives.
 3. How does Latham illustrate the terms “inconsistency” and “unsteadiness,” in treating of the force, power, or use of alphabetic symbols?
 4. State what you know of the derivation or history of the following words :—calculate, lumber, expend, jovial, mercurial, sardonic, signature, leopard, Thursday, Naples.
- NOTE.—The standards of the Training School must be observed in parsing and analysis.

Arithmetic.

Three hours allowed.—One question may be omitted.

1. Simplify $\frac{(5\frac{1}{2} - 3\frac{3}{8}) \text{ of } 1\frac{1}{2}}{1\frac{1}{2} + 2\frac{3}{4} \text{ of } \frac{1}{2}} \div 6\frac{1}{4}$
2. Find the least sum of money that will contain an exact number of either florins, or half-crowns, or half-dollars—a dollar being equal to 4s. 2d.
3. Express the difference between $\cdot 378$ of £1 7s. 9d. and $\cdot 378$ of £1 13s. 0d. as a decimal fraction of $\cdot 426$ of £1 17s. 6d.
4. Find the cost of fencing a square paddock containing $2\frac{1}{2}$ acres, at 13s. $7\frac{1}{2}$ d. per rod.
5. Find the compound interest on £127 10s. for 3 years at 6 per cent.
6. Find, without using vulgar fractions, a fourth proportional to $\cdot 7$, $\cdot 011$, and $\cdot 00028$.
7. The interest on £98 15s. 10d. for six months is £1 4s. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Find the rate per cent.
8. An investment of £3,720 is made in the 3 per cent. stock at 93 two months before the half-yearly dividend is paid. Immediately after the receipt of the dividend the stock is sold out at 92. Find the rate per cent. per annum obtained by the investor in this transaction.
9. A and B can do a piece of work in 6 days; A and C in $8\frac{2}{3}$ days; B and C in $8\frac{2}{3}$ day. How long will it take them (1) individually and (2) collectively?

Geography.

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least.

1. Describe in general terms the formation of Deltas, and illustrate by examples.
2. Compare the vegetable productions of New South Wales with those of Queensland on the one hand, and those of Tasmania on the other. Show wherein they differ, and account for the differences.
3. Describe one of the following :—
Cape Colony.
Palestine.
Holland.
4. Account for the formation of Rain and Dew. What regions of the Globe are rainless or very nearly so?
5. Describe the Mountain System, Lakes and Rivers of the Scandinavian Peninsula.

Art of Teaching.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least, the second must be one.

In the first lines of your first answer give specimens of copy setting in three hands.

1. Give some practical rules for a Teacher's guidance in relation to rewards and punishments.
2. What is meant by Moral Education? State some of the heads under which Moral Lessons could be given, and write outline notes of one lesson.
3. How should the hours devoted weekly to school instruction be distributed, so that every subject could receive the attention which it demands? Give a synopsis in illustration of your plan.
4. What is the secret of success in governing a school?
5. Describe how you would introduce the study of Decimal Fractions to a class.

Domestic Economy.

Two hours allowed.

1. Describe how you would make an economical and nutritive soup for a family of seven persons.

3. To what dangers are the daughters of the working classes exposed in crowded localities. How would you endeavour to counteract such evils?
4. What domestic remedies would you employ in a case of inflammatory sore throat if far removed from medical aid?

Drawing.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Draw, in perspective, a bread-board and knife, and a common round table.
2. Under what circumstances does a shadow sometimes exhibit the form of the object casting it.
3. Construct an equilateral triangle, its altitude A B being given.
A ————— B
4. Construct a rhomboid, two unequal sides A B and C D, and one angle E being given.
A ————— B
C ————— D E
5. In what cases will parallel lines be represented as converging, and in what cases will they remain parallel? Illustrate this.
6. State how you would place the horizontal line in a view taken from an eminence, and a view taken from level ground.

French.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English, without transcribing the French :—
A. Les moines ne furent pas contents de la réforme. A peine le czar eut-il établi des imprimeries qu'ils s'en servirent pour le décrier; ils imprimèrent qu'il était l'Antechrist; leurs preuves étaient qu'il était la barbe aux vivants, et qu'on faisait dans son académie des dissections de quelques morts. Mais un autre moine, qui voulait faire fortune, réfuta ce livre, et démontra que Pierre n'était pas l'Antechrist parce que le nombre de 666 n'était pas dans son nom. L'auteur du libelle fut roué, et celui de la réfutation fut fait évêque de Rezan.
B. L'empereur moscovite, enfin victorieux des Suédois sur mer et sur terre, et ayant aidé à les chasser de la Pologne, y dominait à son tour: il s'était rendu médiateur entre la république et Auguste; gloire aussi flatteuse peut-être que d'y avoir fait un roi. Cet éclat et toute la fortune de Charles avaient passé au czar; il en jouissait même plus utilement que n'avait fait son rival, car il faisait servir tous ses succès à l'avantage de son pays: s'il prenait une ville, les principaux artisans allaient porter à Pétersbourg leur industrie; il transportait en Moscovie les manufactures, les arts, les sciences des provinces conquises sur la Suède: ses états s'enrichissaient par ses victoires; ce qui de tous les conquérants le rendait le plus excusable.
Conjugate in full the simple tenses of—naitre, rire, voir
3. Translate into French, without transcribing the English :—
A. The people picture to themselves an imaginary happiness in elevated stations that they cannot reach, and they believe (for such is man) that all they cannot obtain forms the very happiness which they seek.
B. A virtuous family is a vessel held during the storm by two anchors—religion and morals.
C. You lose thus the confidence of your friends without having rendered them either better or more skilful.
D. Never be weary of examining into the causes of great changes; for nothing will ever be of so much service to your instruction.
E. Although God and Nature have made all men equal in forming them from the same earth, human vanity cannot bear that equality.
F. They replied that it was necessary to re-establish the disturbed European balance; that it was necessary to restore it, if not on the Continent, where it was entirely destroyed, at least on the ocean.
G. General Villars often said that the two most lively pleasures he had felt in his life had been the first prize he had obtained at College, and the first victory he had gained over the enemy.
H. Instead of studying, young lady, you have done nothing but amuse yourself.
4. Give six conjunctions or conjunctive phrases that govern the subjunctive mood, and six that govern the infinitive.

1. Translate into English, without transcribing the Latin :—
Eadem secreto ab aliis quaerit; reperit esse vera. Ipsum esse Dumnorigem, summa audacia, magna apud plebem propter liberalitatem gratia, cupidum rerum novarum: complures annos portaria reliquaque omnia Aduorum vectigalia, parvo pretio redempta habere, propterea quod illo licente contra liceri audeat nemo.

nemo. His rebus et suam rem familiarem auxisse, et facultates ad largiendum magnas comparasse magnum numerum equitatus suo sumptu semper alere et circum se habere: neque solum domi, sed etiam apud finitimas civitates largiter posse; atque hujus potentiae causa matrem in Biturigibus, homini illic nobilissimo ac potentissimo, collocasse: ipsum ex Helvetiis uxorem habere: sororem ex matre et propinquas suas nuptum in alias civitates collocasse: favere et cupere Helvetiis propter eam affinitatem: odisse etiam suo nomine Cæsarem et Romanos, quod eorum adventu potentia ejus diminuta, et Divitiacus frater in antiquum locum gratiæ atque honoris sit restitutus. Si quid accidat Romanis, summam in spem per Helvetios regni obtinendi venire; imperio Populi Romani non modo de regno, sed etiam de ea, quam habeat, gratia desperare:

2. Parse the words in italics.
3. Give the principal parts of the verbs:—Gero, obliuo, vincio, meto, metior, detero, nolo, hæreo.
4. Give the nominative singular and the English of:—
 - a. Cuivis veteri imagini.
 - b. Quibusdam novis ordinibus.
 - c. Hæc tetra loca.
5. Decline in combination:—
 - a. Aliud melius iter.
 - b. Qui tristis senex.
 - c. Nulla ingens palus.
6. Translate into Latin without transcribing the English:—
 - a. I believe that we have more soldiers but less courage than the enemy.
 - b. My son, are you not afraid that the enemy will take the camp?
 - c. When the city was taken, not even the temples of the gods were spared.
 - d. I promised to return the money you sent me.
 - e. Of all his friends I am the only one he has persuaded to assist him.
 - f. There are some who say that nothing is better than wealth.
 - g. Having taken the city, Cæsar retired to Thebes, where he remained for two months.
 - h. I doubt that the soldiers will prevent you using the water.

Euclid.

Three hours allowed.

1. Describe a parallelogram that shall be equal to a given triangle, and have one of its angles equal to a given rectilineal angle.
2. Bisect a given triangle by a straight line drawn through a given point in a side.
3. If a straight line be divided into any two parts, the squares on the whole line, and on one of the parts, are equal to twice the rectangle contained by the whole and that part, together with the square on the other part.
4. In any triangle the sum of the squares on the sides is equal to twice the square on half the base together with twice the square on the straight line drawn from the vertex to the middle point of the base.
5. If a straight line touch a circle, the straight line drawn from the centre to the point of contact shall be perpendicular to the line touching the circle.
6. Describe a circle that shall have a given radius and touch a given circle and a given straight line.

Algebra

Three hours allowed.

Candidates for 2B must work the first four questions—for 2A the last four.

1. Find the G. C. M. of $6x^4 - 2x^3 + 7x^2 - x + 2$ and $6x^4 - 12x^3 + 21x^2 - 6x + 9$.
And the L. C. M. of $10x^2 - 30x + 20$, $15x^2 - 75x + 90$, and $6x^2 - 24x + 18$.
2. Extract the square root of $\frac{a^2}{4} + \frac{b^2}{9} + \frac{c^2}{16} - \frac{ab}{3} + \frac{ac}{4} - \frac{bc}{6}$
3. Simplify
 - (a) $\frac{5}{3(x-1)} - \frac{1}{6(x+2)} - \frac{3}{2x} - \frac{2x+3}{x(x-1)(x+2)}$
 - (b) $\frac{x^2 - 5x + 6}{x^2 - 5x} \div \frac{x^2 - 3x}{x^2 - 6x + 5}$
 - (c) $\left\{ \frac{a+b}{2(a-b)} - \frac{a-b}{2(a+b)} + \frac{2b^2}{a^2 - b^2} \right\} \frac{a-b}{2b}$
4. Solve the equations:—
 - (a) $x + \frac{1}{3}(3x - 10) = 4 - \frac{1}{3}(5x - 10)$.
 - (b) $x(x^2 - 11x + 30) = 0$
$$\left. \begin{array}{l} 20x + 2y + 5z = 35 \\ x + 3y + 7z = -31 \\ 3x + y - 5z = 49 \end{array} \right\}$$
5. There is a certain fraction such that, if 1 be added to its numerator, it becomes $\frac{1}{2}$, and if 3 be added to its denominator it becomes $\frac{1}{3}$. Find the Fraction.

ANNEX M.

FIRST CLASS TEACHERS.

Grammar.

Three hours allowed.—Answer three questions at least; the first must be taken.

1. ["All places that the eye of heaven visits
Are to a wise man ports and happy havens
Teach thy necessity to reason thus
There is no virtue like necessity
Think not the King did banish thee
But thou the King woe doth the heavier sit
Where it perceiv's it is but faintly borne
Go say I sent thee forth to purchase honor
And not the King exiled thee]—or suppose
Devouring pestilence hangs in our air
And thou art flying to a fresher clime
Look what thy soul holds dear imagine it
To lie that way thou goest not whence thou comest"]

- (a) Supply the punctuation in the above passage (no need to re-write it).
 (b) Express the author's meaning in your own words.
 (c) Parse the words in italics.
 (d) Analyse the portion enclosed with brackets.
2. Had the Anglo-Saxon any sounds for which the Latin Alphabet had no equivalent symbols or letters?
3. Define the province of Prosody in grammar, and illustrate the following statement:—
 "We can have English verse without Rhyme.
 We cannot have English verse without Accent."
4. Give the derivation, or state what you can of the history of the following words:—
 Delf, cambric, calico, porcelain, become,
 Sincere, silhouette, bride, sheriff,
 Cardinal, chemist, basket, statistics.
- NOTE.—The standards of the Training School must be observed in parsing and analysis.

Arithmetic.

Males.

Three hours allowed.—One may be omitted.

- Define the terms aliquot part, factor, decimal fraction, vulgar fraction, discount, par value. Show clearly the advantages of the decimal system, especially as regards measurement of length.
- Find the eighth power of 1.05. Correct to 6 decimal places, and hence determine the compound interest on £275 for 8 years at 5 per cent.
- A trader owes £950 in roubles at Moscow. He pays his broker the necessary sum to remit directly to Moscow, the exchange being 23 roubles for £2 sterling. What will the broker lose by effecting the exchange circuitously through Paris and Cadiz? The exchanges being £1 = 25 francs, 19 francs = 1 Spanish pistole, 1 pistole = 8.17 roubles.
- If the true discount on a bill of £322 17s. 6d., due 5 months hence, be 7½ guineas, what is the current rate of interest?
- A man buys 80 railway shares at 95; after getting 2 dividends of £4 per share, he sells out at 103, and lends his whole capital to a bank which gives 5 per cent. for deposits. How much a year is he better off through not having gone to the bank at first?
- If I invest $\frac{2}{3}$ of my capital in 5 per cent. stock at £53 6s. 8d., $\frac{1}{3}$ of it in bank shares (£20 paid up) at £48, which give a dividend of 15 per cent., $\frac{5}{8}$ of it in 3 per cent. consols at 66½, and lend the remainder on mortgage at 7½ per cent., what average percentage do I get for my money?
- A, B, and C fill a 1200-gallon tank in 24 minutes. A would take 30 minutes longer than C to fill it; C would put in 10 gallons a minute less than A and B together. In what time would each separately fill it?
- A man has £4,425, of which he lends a certain part on mortgage at 5 per cent., and buys an equal nominal amount of 3½ per cent. stock at 93, and of 6 per cent. stock at 102. How much of his capital does he invest in each way, and what percentage does he get on the whole?

Females.

Three hours allowed.

- Define the terms unit, number, arithmetic, notation, numeration, factor, product, quotient, fraction, and abstract and concrete, as applied to numbers.
- If 5 men or 7 women can do a piece of work in 37 days, in what time will 7 men and 5 women do a piece of work twice as great?
- What principal, put to interest for 219 days at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, will amount to £600 15s.?
- Extract the square root of .001 to seven decimal places.
- A merchant sells tea at 3 pence per lb. more than it cost him, and thereby realises 8 per cent. profit. What was the prime cost?
- It is between 9 and 10; and the hands of the clock are in a straight line. What is the precise time?

Geography.

Three hours allowed.—Answer five questions at least.

- Explain what seems to give special colours to certain seas, or arms of the sea.
- Account for twilight, and its varying duration throughout the Globe.
- Describe in fair detail one of the States of Western Europe, or of Central America.
- What are the following, and where are they found:—

Ambergis	Asbestos
Barilla	Aqua Marine
Gypsum	Cantharides
Quassia	Cobalt
Trepang	Lapis-lazuli
Turquoise	Mastic
- Describe the mountain systems which fringe the great Asiatic Table-land.
- With special reference to Australia, describe the difference between perennial and intermittent streams. Give examples of both, accounting for the causes which operate in producing the various results.
- Describe fully one of the following:—

The Orinoco
The Niger
The Ob, or Obi.
- Enumerate the Volcanic Regions of Europe, and describe one either active or extinct.

Principles of Teaching.

Three hours allowed.—Answer four questions at least, the fourth must be one.

In the first lines of your first answer, give specimens of copy setting in three hands.

- Define the term "Method" as applied to School Instruction. Describe the Methods in ordinary use.
- Define what is meant by the expressions, "Attention," "Sustained Attention," "Mental Culture," "Mental Effort," "Self-Reliance," "Progress," "Proficiency," "Superficialism," "Mechanical Knowledge," "Well-grounded Information." Describe how the presence of each can be detected.
- In relation to rewards and punishments, state your views upon the following deliverance:—
 "A less punishment, which is certain, will do more good than a greater, which is uncertain."
- What is meant by Moral Education? In the light of the habits of Australian Youth, state some of the heads under which Moral Lessons could be given. Give outline notes of one lesson.
- On what grounds should the cultivation of Vocal Music be encouraged in Public Schools?
- Describe how you would give a first Lesson on Geography?

English

English Literature.

Three hours allowed.—Five questions to be answered.

1. Describe one of Shakespeare's Tragedies, discussing the plot, characters, and language.
2. Give an outline of the poem of "Comus"; and explain the circumstances under which it originated.
3. Name the principal prose works of Sir Walter Scott; and state your opinion as to the historical value of his more prominent novels.
4. What is meant by the "Augustan Age" of English Literature? Give an outline of it, and state the objections which have been urged against its claim to this title.
5. Trace as clearly as you can the rise and progress of what is known in Literature as works of fiction. Explain your views as to their value.
6. Give a concise account of the life and works of one of the following:—Addison, Young, Goldsmith.
7. Describe the distinctive characteristics of Gray's poetry. Illustrate your views by quotations.

Domestic Economy.

Two hours and a half allowed.—Four questions may be answered, the last to be one.

1. Describe the process of washing woollen articles—Blankets for example.
2. How does food, properly cooked, foster temperance, a healthy state of the body, and the formation of contented, orderly homes?
3. How would you deal with a broken arm, if far removed from medical aid.
4. In the choice of decorative wall papers, by what principles would you be guided.
5. In the Colony, groups of boys and girls of school age roam the streets at night, to a late hour uncontrolled. How do you account for this? What evils are likely to arise from the habit? How far does it concern the Teachers? What can be done to remedy this growing evil?

Euclid.

Three hours allowed.

1. Show that the straight line joining the vertex of an isosceles triangle, with any point in the base, is less than either of the sides.
2. Show that the three angles of any triangle are together equal to two right angles. Find the angle of a regular pentagon.
3. Show that in an acute-angled triangle A B C the square on any side A B is less than the square on the other two sides, by twice the rectangle B C · C D, —D being the foot of the perpendicular from A on B C.
Which of the four triangles whose side are (2, 3, 4), (3, 4, 5), (4, 5, 6), ($\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{3}$, $\frac{1}{6}$), respectively, are acute-angled, which right-angled, and which obtuse-angled.
4. If from a point in the circumference of a circle two straight lines be drawn, one cutting, and the other touching the circle, the angles between those straight lines shall be equal to the angles in the alternate segments of the circle.
Divide a circle into two segments, the angle in one of which shall be double of the angle in the other.
5. Define similar figures, and show that two triangles are similar when they have an angle in each equal, and the sides about the equal angles proportional.

Algebra.

Three hours allowed.

1. Reduce to its lowest term

$$\frac{7x^3 - 2x^2y - 63xy^2 + 18y^3}{5x^4 - 3x^3y - 43x^2y^2 + 27xy^3 - 18y^4}$$

2. Multiply $\frac{2}{3}(x^{\frac{3}{2}} + x^{-\frac{3}{2}}) + \frac{1}{2}(x^{\frac{1}{2}} + x^{-\frac{1}{2}})$ by $\frac{2}{3}(x + x^{-1}) + 1$

3. Simplify A. $\sqrt{\frac{8}{3}} + \sqrt{\frac{3}{8}}$
B. $1 - \sqrt{2} + \sqrt{3}$
 $1 + \sqrt{2} - \sqrt{3}$

4. Solve the equations.

$$\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{A. } x^2 + x^{-2} = 7 \\ \text{B. } x^2 + y^2 = 74 \\ \text{C. } x^3 + x^2y + xy^2 + y^3 = 888 \end{array} \right\}$$

$$\text{C. } \sqrt{x + \sqrt{4 + x}} = \frac{2}{\sqrt{x}}$$

$$\left. \begin{array}{l} x + y + z = 12 \\ xy + yz + xz = 47 \\ x^2 + y^2 - z^2 = 0 \end{array} \right\}$$

$$\text{E. } 2\sqrt{x^2 - 6x + 2} + 4x + \frac{1}{x} = x^2 - 2x - \frac{1}{x}$$

5. A grazier bought as many sheep as cost him £60; out of these he reserved 15, and selling the remainder for £54, gained 2s a head by them. How many sheep did he buy?

Trigonometry.

Three hours allowed.—One may be omitted.

1. Given $\log. 28952 = 4.4616786$, $\log. 28953 = 4.4616936$, find the number which has the logarithm 3.4616870.

2. Given $\log. 2 = 3010300$ and $\log. = 4771213$, find the log. of $\frac{(2.7)^3 \times \sqrt{(.81)^4}}{\sqrt[4]{90^5} \div .00135}$

3. Show how to express the cosine of half an angle of a triangle in terms of the sides.

4. Trace the changes in the secant of an angle as the angle changes through the four quadrants.

5. Find the area and greatest angle of a triangle whose sides are respectively 12, 14, and 22 inches.

6. Show how to express the tangent of a compound angle in terms of the tangents of the single angles.

7. Solve the equations

$$\text{A. } \tan. A + \cot. A = \frac{4}{\sqrt{3}}$$

$$\text{B. } 2 \sin. ^2 A + \sin. ^2 2A = 2.$$

8. Prove that $\tan. 15^\circ = 2 - \sqrt{3}$.

9. If $\tan A = \sqrt{3}$, find all the other trigonometrical ratios of A.

10. Two observers, 1000 yards apart, in the same vertical plane with a balloon, but on opposite sides of it, take its angles of elevation at the same moment, 36° and 54° . Determine its height.

Mechanics.

Mechanics.

Three hours allowed.—Five questions to be answered.

1. Enunciate the parallelogram of forces, and prove that, if true for direction, it must be true for magnitude.

An inclined plane makes an angle of 45° with the horizontal, and a weight W is supported on it by a force P , such that $2W^2 = 3P^2$; find the direction in which the force acts.

2. Find the resultant of three forces acting on a particle in a plane—directions and magnitudes being as follows:— $\sqrt{3} + 1$ East, $\sqrt{3} - 1$ North-west, $\sqrt{6}$ South 30° west. Find what angles there should be between their respective directions to ensure equilibrium.

3. Find the ratio of the power to the weight in the single movable pulley, with the parts of the string not parallel.

Two given unequal weights are fixed to the ends of a string, which passes over a smooth fixed pulley. A man of given weight stands on the heavier weight, and holds on to the other; what force does he exert in order to keep at rest.

4. Show how to graduate the common steel-yard.

Two men carry a uniform beam 6 feet in length and weighing 2 cwt., and at 2 feet from one end a weight of 1 cwt. is placed; if one man have this end resting on his shoulder, find where the other man must support the beam in order that they may share the whole weight equally.

5. If from a uniform board in the form of a triangle a triangular piece be cut off by a line parallel to one side, and bisecting the other two, find the centre of gravity of the remainder.

6. Two forces of 6 lbs. and 12 lbs. respectively act at the same point of a straight lever on opposite sides of it, and keep it at rest, the less force being perpendicular to the lever; determine the direction of the greater force, and the pressure on the fulcrum.

Latin.

Three hours allowed.

1. Translate into English (without transcribing the Latin):—

A.
Omnis spes Danaum, et cœpti fiducia belli,
Palladis auxiliis semper stetit. Impius ex quo
Tydides sed enim, scelerumque inventor Ulixes,

Acceperunt relationem Patres, postquam apparuit, labare plebis animos; missique de pace ad Marcium oratores atrox responsum retulerunt: "Si Volscis ager redderetur, posse agi de pace: si prædâ belli per otium frui velint, memorem se et civium injuriæ, et hospitem beneficii, admisurum, ut appareat, exsilio sibi irritatos, non fractos, animos esse." Iterum deinde iidem missi non recipiuntur in castra. Sacerdotes quoque, suis insignibus velatos, isse supplices ad castra hostium, traditum est, nihilo magis quam legatos flexisse animum.

2. Turn Marcius' speech in extract B into oratio recta.

3. Parse the words in italics.

4. Give the English, gender, and genitive singular of as, scelus, incus, acies, dos, pecten, pulvis, supellex, ales, anus.

5. Give the principal parts of oblino, detero, depingo, illido, atingo, impello, aufero, meto, haereo, vincio.

6. Translate into Latin (without transcribing the English):—

- He said that he had not yet received the letter the postman brought, but hoped to receive it on his return home.
- There are some persons who doubt whether the news that we have heard is true or not; for my part, I believe it to be false.
- Conon had the walls that had been pulled down by Lysander, repaired.
- He took and destroyed the camp, and gave the enemy the country to live in.
- Though I was sorry that I had not pleased you, yet when I heard that you were complaining too loudly of my folly, I said, "Would that I had known before how difficult it was to obey so cruel a master!"
- He was on the point of departing, but it happened that my brother came, and he resolved to remain.
- No one can doubt that he promised to hinder the enemy from entering the Romans' territory.

Drawing.

An hour and a half allowed.

1. Draw in outline and perspective lying upon a plane below the level of the eye, a hexagon, an oblong box, and a cylinder.

2. In what position must a circle be placed to appear a horizontal line?

3. Construct a trapezium, when two unequal sides $A B$ and $C D$, and one angle E , are given.

4. Construct a pentagon, one side $A B$ being given.

5. In an angular view of an object, the two vanishing points are not always an equal distance from the object. Illustrate the cause of this.

6. How are lines parallel to the picture-plane measured, and how do they vanish?

French.

Time allowed, four hours.

N.B.—1. Use but one side of the paper.

2. Use a separate sheet for each question.

3. At the top of every sheet write your examination number, and only the number of the question you are about to answer, but do not copy the question.

4. Give in your papers arranged in order, No. 1 being the innermost, and folded once lengthways, with your number (not your name) and the name of the subject written outside.

5. Any competitor communicating with another person will be required to leave the room instantly.

1. Translate into English :—

Le jour où l'empire ottoman s'écroulera de lui-même, et tombera pièce à pièce au nord et au midi, vous aurez une question bien simple à décider :—Faut-il faire la guerre à la Russie, pour l'empêcher d'hériter des bords de la mer Noire et de Constantinople ? Faut-il faire la guerre à l'Autriche, pour l'empêcher d'hériter de la moitié de la Turquie d'Europe ? Faut-il faire la guerre à l'Angleterre, pour l'empêcher d'hériter de l'Égypte et de sa route des Indes par la mer Rouge ? à la France, pour l'empêcher de coloniser la Syrie et l'île de Chypre ? à la Grèce, pour l'empêcher de se compléter par le littoral de la Méditerranée, et par les belles îles qui portent sa population et son nom ? à tout le monde enfin, de peur que quelqu'un ne profite de ces magnifiques débris ? Ou bien faut-il nous entendre, et protéger la race humaine par le patronage de l'Europe, per qu'elle y multiplie, y grandisse, et que la civilisation s'y répande ? Voilà les deux questions qu'un Congrès des puissances de l'Europe aura à se poser. Certes la réponse n'est pas douteuse.

Si vous faites la guerre, vous aurez la guerre avec tous les maux, toutes les ruines qu'elle comporte ; vous ferez le mal de l'Europe et de l'Asie, et le vôtre ; et, la guerre finie de lassitude, rien de ce que vous aurez voulu empêcher ne sera empêché, l'influence des sympathies nationales et des religions, la puissance des positions territoriales, auront leur inévitable effet.

LAMARTINE ; Résumé Politique.

2. Translate into French :—

A letter from a friend who has just returned from abroad to a friend in Paris.

My dear friend,

London, April 6, 1883.

I cannot tell you how happy I feel at finding myself once more in England, and in the neighbourhood of my dear old friends. The farther I have travelled from home the nearer has my heart been to it, and often and often the words of the poet have occurred to me—

“Where'er I roam, whatever worlds I see,
My heart untravell'd fondly turns to thee.”

But now that I have indeed returned, my joy knows no bounds. Everything appears so peaceful, and yet so cheerful, so gladsome and yet so serene. Old haunts and familiar faces wear a new charm, and yet retain their original attractions and pleasant associations.

All that is now wanting to render my happiness complete is your society, my dear friend, and I trust that as soon as possible after receiving this you will come and see me, and stay as long as you can.

You will find me a little changed—papa calls it “Frenchified”; but whatever difference there may be in my outward appearance, my feelings have undergone no alteration.

And I am still, as ever,

My dear friend,

Your affectionate friend.

3. Give the English for the following :—

A. Temps, Moyen-Age, Voile, Vaisseau, Rame, Ancre, Mât, Découverte, Progrès, Civilisation, Navire à voile, Bateau à vapeur, Machine à vapeur, Siècle, Eclairage, Télégraphe, Chemin de fer, Eclairage au gaz, Photographie, Vaccine, Lunettes, Lorgnette, Monde, Globe, Ordre, Merveille, Prodige, Métal, Sens, Couleur, Gamme, Note, Livre, Format, Langues Modernes, Commerce, Libre-échange, Protection.

B. Voyager, Découvrir, Surnommer, Inventer, Introduire, Commencer, Ouvrir, Tolérer, Dater, Protéger, Apprendre, Encourager, Récompenser.

C. Cultiver, Importer, Exporter, Recevoir, Vendre, Acheter, Vendre au comptant, Vendre à crédit, Vendre en gros, Vendre au détail.

4. Be particular in correctly translating the verb to hear in the following sentences :—

1° I hear a noise. I hear a dog barking. I hear the bells. Sometimes I hear the little child talk Russian. I hear the postman ring.

2° Did you hear of that Italian sailor who went to the rescue of passengers, in the last shipwreck? Yes, I did? Did you hear of that? I did not hear a word about it.

3° From what I have heard of you, I believe you are the right man. I heard that he is a very learned man, and an eminent linguist. I hear that there will be a great concert in the University. I heard that his father would not give his consent to his marriage.

4° I was very sorry to hear you were so poorly. I am glad to hear that the annual juvenile party passed off so well. I was glad to hear that you had arrived home safely from school. You will probably be surprised to hear that Miss —— is married. It grieved me very much to hear that you were so ill.

5° It is now three weeks since we heard from you, but I assure you that we have very recently heard of you, and in a way not at all to your credit.

5. Translate the following idiomatic sentences :—

How long have you been learning French? I have been learning it these six years. Do you know it? A little.

If I were you I would devote a whole year to translating familiar letters, and mastering the idioms. By so doing you would prepare yourselves to read French books, to write commercial or business letters tolerably well, and to speak on literature and the arts, on politics, business, commerce, and free trade. A great fault with the English students of the French language is that they never attend to this important part of the language. Perhaps they do not know how to set about it.

What is an idiom? It is an expression peculiar to a language, to a tongue. Ex. How old are you? I am 20. His brother will be 18 this day fortnight. Gambetta has been dead these six months. Victor Hugo is 81. He was born in Besançon in 1802.

It is 4 o'clock. It is a quarter to 5. It is a long time since I saw her. It is fine weather. It is dusty. Lying is shameful. It is difficult to pass a good examination without knowing the principal idioms of the French language. It is comparatively easy to master them. They are about 1,000 in number. If you were to learn only three every day, you would know them all at the end of one year. Can you translate any French book at sight? Many candidates fail in their examination because they do not know how to go about their French studies. They waste their time over useless rules, instead of learning both the idioms and the words of the language. What a pity! Teachers desirous of thoroughly mastering their French ought to form a French Academy, under the patronage of the Minister for Public Instruction.

I trust this paper will not be too hard for first-class teachers, but of course it will be so for those who are not well prepared.

Geology.

Three hours allowed.

1. Enumerate the principal divisions of the Mesozoic Rocks, and mention some fossils characteristic of one of them.
2. What is the origin of coal? Why do coal beds often occur in basins?
3. What are the principal differences between the shells of marine and freshwater molluscs?
4. What are the chief rock-forming minerals? Give their chemical composition where you can?
5. Give sketches of three varieties of faults.
6. Give a brief sketch of the geology of New South Wales, mentioning any fossils that have been found in the different formations.

Physiology.

Physiology.

Three hours allowed.

1. Describe the structure, position, and action of the heart.
2. Describe the composition and functions of the blood, showing clearly the difference between arterial and venous blood.
3. Describe the spinal cord and its physiological properties.
4. Describe the salivary glands, and their functions.
5. Describe the liver and its mode of operation.
6. Under what heads would you classify different articles of food? Describe the characteristics and peculiar value of each class, showing the advantages of a mixed diet.
7. Define the three kinds of levers, giving examples of each in the human frame.

Physics.

Three hours allowed.

1. Explain the principle of the Bramah press.
2. Explain the construction of a Fahrenheit thermometer. What degrees on the Fahrenheit and Reaumur scales correspond to 10° C, 35° C, -10° C respectively; and what degrees on the Centigrade and Reaumur scales correspond to 10° F, 30° F, -40° F respectively?
3. What great exception is there in nature to the law that things expand by heat, and contract by cold? Illustrate the value of that exception.
4. What is meant by specific heat? Give a few examples. What relation is there between specific heat and atomic weight?
5. What effect has a prism on sunlight? Hence deduce the principle of the spectroscope. What is the value of those parts of the sun's light which we cannot see?
6. Explain the principle of the electric telegraph.

Chemistry.

Three hours allowed.

1. What will 1,000 cubic centimetres of oxygen at 13° C and 728 mm. become at a temperature of 40° C and under 750 mm. pressure?
2. What is the weight of 100 litres of hydrochloric acid gas at the standard temperature and pressure?
3. What weights of the different materials would you need to make (a) 770 grammes of carbon dioxide, (b) 315 grammes of nitric acid, (c) 135 grammes of prussic acid.
4. Describe fully the manufacture and purification of (1) coal gas, and (2) sulphuric acid.
5. What are the alkaline-earth metals? How may their salts be distinguished from each other?
6. Describe the manufacture of cast iron, wrought iron, and steel.
7. Give tests for carbon monoxide, gold—free, mercury and copper—free and combined.

ANNEX N.

DIRECTIONS TO TEACHERS WHEN UNDERGOING EXAMINATION.

1. TEACHERS desiring to be examined should give ample notice of their intentions, specifying the classification sought, and the Alternative Subjects, if any, upon which they are prepared to be examined.
2. The examinee will write upon the title-page of the papers :—
 - (1.) The date and place of the examination.
 - (2.) A distinguishing number. See paragraph 20 upon this point.
 - (3.) Name in full.
 - (4.) The name of the school, in full, if in charge of one.
 - (5.) The present rank, or classification—if classified.
 - (6.) The date of last examination, if previously examined.
 - (7.) The classification now sought.
 - (8.) Professional experience, and schools held.
3. The above must be arranged clearly and consecutively, on the title-page,—which having been attested by the officer in charge as to its completeness and accuracy, and duly initialled by him, is to be placed in an envelope provided for the purpose, and transmitted without delay to the Under Secretary, by the examinee.
4. The time allowed for each paper cannot be exceeded. The examinee is not permitted to consult books, maps, or notes; and conversation during examination is rigidly prohibited. Inattention to these cautions will necessitate the stoppage of the examination, and the offending party will be reported to the Minister.
5. A margin of two inches on every page throughout, extending to the right and left from the binding edge of the paper, is not, under any circumstances, to be written upon.
6. Each paper will, when completed, be handed to the officer in charge, who will add his initials to it. The distinguishing number of the Examination Questions which is printed in the upper corner, left-hand side of the paper, should appear in the same position upon each page of the examinee's answers.
7. Every question given, is to be answered, unless otherwise specified upon the paper.
8. Each question must be written down precisely as it stands on the paper, before commencing to answer it. Every question is to be written down, whether answered or not. If not answered, the reason should be assigned. It is not necessary to write any question twice.
9. Examinees are not to substitute questions of their own, nor are they to alter the sense of those given.
10. The lines of writing should be fully half-an-inch apart. The writing should not approach within one inch of the top and foot of the page. Ruled paper is inadmissible.
11. The writing should be full, clear, and legible. The papers should be kept free from stains.
12. The style of composition should be simple and clear.
13. The punctuation should be so plain as to leave no doubt of the writer's meaning.
14. In the Grammar papers, the words to be parsed must be arranged singly in column, and the parsing of each word, in detail, placed opposite. The order of Parsing and Analysis sanctioned by the Department, must be strictly followed. Abbreviations of the terms used are admissible; but they must be perfectly intelligible, and contain so much of the whole word as to leave no doubt of the writer's meaning.
15. In arithmetical processes, the working must be clearly shown.
16. In answering Geographical questions, examinees should guard against guessing at distances, measurements, latitudes, and longitudes, &c.
17. The teacher cannot rise from an incomplete examination paper, retire, and resume again, without express consent of the officer in charge.
18. The questions will be given so as to admit of completion on rising for mid-day refreshment. For this purpose half-an-hour will be allowed.
19. To prevent confusion the pages should be carefully marked. Each paper should bear, at top, the distinguishing number of the writer. 20.

20. Examinees should use consecutive distinguishing numbers, under the direction of the officer in charge. The same number cannot be used by two or more examinees.
21. Both questions and answers are the property of the Minister, and neither can be retained by the examinee.
22. When the examination papers are finally arranged for transmission, the following should be the order of attachment:—Grammar, Arithmetic, Geography, Art of Teaching, Writing, Domestic Economy, Drawing, Music, &c.
23. Drawing, Music, and every Alternative subject, should be written on papers entirely separate from each other.
24. The examinee will write his number at the close of the last answer, and the date of completion, stating also the place of examination. This should appear at the head of the first page also, if not on the title-page.
25. Teachers will do well to remember that bad spelling disqualifies for classification; that slovenliness and neatness are both taken into account in estimating the value of examination papers; and that no amount of knowledge will avail, when seeking promotion, if the requisite practical skill is wanting.
26. Should any teacher, during the progress of examination, desire to refer to the officer in charge, he must do so audibly, in order to prevent misconception or misunderstanding.

NOTE.—This paper should be handed to the examinee prior to the commencement of examination.

ANNEX O.

REPORT UPON THE PUBLIC TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THE YEAR 1883.

DURING the year 1883 there were 46 students enrolled, two of whom retired on account of the Medical Officer's unfavourable report upon the state of their health, leaving 44 who underwent the prescribed course of training.

As in former years, the students were divided into two classes, Upper and Lower.

Upper Class.—This class, consisting of 21 students, 20 of whom had been Pupil-teachers, underwent a course of training for twelve months.

Lower Class.—With the exception of four, the students in the Lower Class were Pupil-teachers who failed to pass a satisfactory examination for admission to the Upper Class, and Teachers who had charge of small schools who were recommended for training by the Inspectors of their several districts.

The Teaching Staff consisted of the Principal, the Assistant, and the following Visiting Teachers:—

Teacher of Singing, who attended 3 hours per week.
 " Drawing, " 4 "
 " Drill, &c. " 4 "

The following was the Course of Study pursued by the students:—

Upper Class:—

Reading and Elocution.

Arithmetic: The whole subject in Theory and Practice.

English Grammar: Parsing, Analysis of Sentences, Composition, Scanning, &c.

Geography: Mathematical and Physical.

School Management: Organization, Discipline, Art of Teaching.

Mathematics:—Euclid: Books I to VI inclusive, with deductions.

Algebra: To and inclusive of the Binomial Theorem.

Mensuration: Superficies and Solids.

Trigonometry: Plane.

English Literature: From the earliest writers to the Reign of George I.

British History: From the earliest times to the Tudor Dynasty.

Latin: Smith's Principia Latina, Part I.

Smith's Appendix to ditto.

Caesar, Book I, chap. 1 to 29.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method and Staff Notation.

Drawing: Free-hand from Copies and Models.

Geometrical Drawing: Perspective.

Public Schools Acts and Regulations.

Military Drill and Gymnastics: Squad and Company Drill. School Orders.

Lower Class:—

Reading and Elocution

Public Schools Acts and Regulations } Same as Upper Class.

English Grammar: Parsing, Analysis of Sentences, Composition.

Arithmetic: Simple and Compound Rules, Vulgar and Decimal Fractions, Proportion, Interest, Profit and Loss, Square Root.

Geography: Descriptive.

British History: From earliest times to the end of the Plantagenet Period.

School Management: Organization, Discipline, Method.

Vocal Music: Tonic Sol-fa Method and Rudiments of Staff Notation.

Drawing: Free-hand from Copies and Models. Elementary Perspective.

Military Drill and Gymnastics: Squad Drill. School Orders.

The time per week set apart for the study of each subject was:—

Subjects.	Upper Class.	Lower Class.
Reading and Elocution	1 hour	2 hours
Arithmetic	2 hours	5 "
English Grammar and Composition	2 "	3 "
Geography	1 hour	3 "
Music (Vocal).....	3 hours	3 "
Drawing	2 "	2 "
School Management	1 hour	1 hour
Reproduction	2 hours	2 hours
Drill (Military)	4 "	4 "
British History	2 "
Dictation	2 "
English Literature and British History.....	2 hours
Latin	2 "
Euclid	2 "
Algebra	2 "
Trigonometry	2 "
Mensuration	1 hour
Practical training in the Model School	4 hours	4 hours
Total	33 hours	33 hours

All applicants for training, with the exception of those who had for some time been conducting schools, were required to pass an entrance examination, and those only were admitted who reached the prescribed standard. The students were orally examined monthly to test their progress, and at the end of each session a written examination was held for the purpose of awarding classification. The highest grade which can be obtained under the present Training School regulations is IIA in the Upper and IIIA in the Lower Class. It will be seen from the foregoing curriculum that the extent of the examination for students in training for a Second Class is much beyond that for teachers seeking the same grade who are already employed in schools. In fact its scope in certain of the advanced subjects is equal to that required of teachers in charge of schools undergoing examination for promotion to First Class. To gain a First Class Certificate either mathematics or Latin is considered sufficient as an alternative subject, but in the case of students both subjects must be taken to gain a Second Class Certificate.

Practical Training.

The students attended the Model School one day each week. They were first required to observe the methods of teaching, and afterwards they were called upon to take part in the practical work of the school. Their lessons were criticised by their fellow-students in the presence of the Master of Method, who pointed out mistakes and the means of rectifying them. The Fort-street Model School, on account of the large number of pupils in attendance, and the consequent organization, is not calculated to give the students that practical training which they should receive to prepare them to take charge of ordinary schools: they gain but little experience in the management of a school, as they can only be employed in class teaching. If a schoolroom were erected upon the grounds capable of accommodating about 40 pupils, each student could in turn take charge of it for a stated period; thus the Master of Method would have a better opportunity of pointing out and correcting faults, and the officers appointed to test the practical skill of the students would be in a better position to form a correct estimate of their teaching power.

Physical Training.

The students under the tuition of the Drill Instructor went through a course of military drill and gymnastics, particular attention being given to the "order" necessary to the proper discipline of a school. The Drill Instructor was most assiduous and indefatigable in his duties, and as a consequence the students considerably improved in deportment and physique.

Conduct, &c.

The students were both punctual and regular in their attendance. On the whole they were attentive to instruction and diligent in their studies. Their moral characters were unexceptionable.

Saturday Classes.

These classes, which are held from 9 to 12 o'clock every Saturday morning, were attended by 350 pupil-teachers of the Metropolitan district. The subjects of study were Latin, French, mathematics, and vocal music. These junior teachers were regular and punctual in attendance, well-conducted, and they made satisfactory progress.

In conclusion, it is impossible to review the past history of the Training School without a feeling of satisfaction at the results which it has achieved since its establishment. Its ex-students now fill a large number of the most responsible positions in the Department; several of the Inspectors and almost all the teachers of the First and Second Class Schools having been trained within its walls. Although this in itself would show that the institution has been a success, further proof is afforded by the fact that in almost every village in the Colony the past-students are steadily performing their work, and judging from the Inspectors' reports, they are producing satisfactory results.

ANNEX P.

HURLSTONE COLLEGE.—PRINCIPAL'S REPORT FOR 1883.

I.—THE COLLEGE PREMISES.

THE situation of the Hurlstone College, in extensive grounds on the Ashfield heights, is healthy and pleasant. The house itself was not originally intended for a Training College, but has been roughly adapted, and is therefore unsuitable in many respects, e.g.:—

1. The dormitories are too small.
2. The lecture-room is awkwardly planned, so that the class is either in a draught or receiving light on the wrong side.
3. The dining-room is too small.
4. There is no sitting-room for the students.
5. There are not sufficient baths, and the house depends entirely on the rainfall for its water supply.
6. There is no sick-room for an emergency.
7. There are no store-rooms, either for house linen or provisions.
8. There is no room properly planned for a training-room.
9. The kitchen is small, and the scullery merely a rough shed.

II.—THE TEACHING STAFF CONSISTS OF:—

1. A Principal, who is generally responsible, and who teaches:—
 - a.* School Management.
 - b.* English Literature.
 - c.* Geography.
 - d.* Reading and Elocution.
 - e.* Domestic Economy.—
 - Theory of Household Management.
 - Cookery.
 - Needlework.
2. One Resident Governess, who superintends the private study, and who teaches:—
 - a.* Arithmetic.
 - b.* Grammar.
 - c.* History.
3. Four Visiting Teachers, viz.:—
 1. A French Mistress.
 2. A Drawing Mistress.
 3. A Music Master.
 4. A Drill Instructor.

III.—

III.—COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

1. School Management:—
 - a. History of education.
 - b. Elementary mental science.
 - c. Lives and works of the great educational reformers.
 - d. Education mental, moral, and physical.
 - e. Modern methods of teaching all subjects.
 - f. School organization and discipline, &c.
2. Domestic Economy:—
 - a. Household management.
 - b. Management of the sick-room.
 - c. Cookery.
 - d. Needlework.
3. Geography:—
 - a. Elementary physical geography.
 - b. Physical features of the continents.
 - c. New South Wales in detail.
 - d. Descriptive, political, and commercial geography of Australasia, The British Isles, Europe, United States and Canada, Cape Colony, India.
4. Grammar:—
 - a. History of the English Language.
 - b. The rules of Syntax.
 - c. Word classification and derivation.
 - d. Prosody.
5. Composition:—
 - a. Letter-writing.
 - b. Paraphrase.
 - c. Essay-writing.
6. English Literature:—
 - a. History of English Literature from 1560-1680 A.D.
 - b. Portions of Literature for minute study:—Milton's Masque of "Comus," Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar."
7. History:—
 - a. Outlines of English History from the ancient Britons to Victoria, inclusive.
 - b. Biographies of leading men in each epoch of English History.
 - c. Outlines of Australian History.
8. Drawing:—

Elementary—Geometry Perspective
 Model-drawing
 Freehand drawing
 Blackboard—Memory drawing
9. Arithmetic:—

From the four simple rules to cube root, inclusive.
10. Music:—

Singing from note, old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa.
11. Reading and Elocution.
12. French.
13. Drill.

IV.—COURSE OF TRAINING.

- a. Model lessons are given to children in presence of the students.
- b. Every student gives model lessons in the presence of her fellows, and is criticised by them and by the Principal.
- c. Each student is trained to give simple lectures to her fellow-students.
- d. Each student is trained to criticise teachers and lessons.

V.—TEACHING ARRANGEMENTS.

- a. The students are taught in one class.
- b. Every teacher in the College has special subjects to teach, so that her attention can be more concentrated, and the students receive better instruction in each subject than they could possibly have if each teacher helped in everything.
- c. The hours spent by the students in receiving instruction and training are:—

From 9 a.m.	to	11 a.m.
" 11 30 a.m."	"	1 p.m.
" 3 p.m."	"	5 30 p.m.

except on Saturdays and Wednesdays, when the hours are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., the afternoons of those days being half-holidays.
- d. The hours spent by the students in private study are from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. every evening, except Saturday in each week, and every alternate Wednesday.
- e. The lectures are taught by:

Lecture.
 Discussion and
 Examination, oral and written—as in the London Training Colleges.

VI.—THE STUDENTS.

1. Domestic arrangements for—
 - a. Each student has a small cubicle to herself in the dormitory, but there is no sitting-room, therefore the students spend their leisure time in the lecture-room or dining-room, both of which are comfortless.
 - b. The course of instruction is comprehensive, and the term of training short, so that the students can do very little in the shape of practical Domestic Economy, but they sweep out their own cubicles, dust the dormitories and lecture-room, and take it in turn to cook Monday's dinner for the establishment.
 - c. The means of amusement provided for the students are a piano and six sets of garden tools.

d. The meals are three in number, viz. :—

Breakfast at 7.30 a.m.—

Porridge or rice.
Meat (Eggs on Friday).
Bread and butter.
Tea, coffee, or cocoa.

Dinner at 1 p.m.—

Hot joint.
Two vegetables.
Pudding.
Fish on Fridays + meat.
Soup twice a week in winter, instead of pudding.

Tea at 6.15 p.m.—

Bread and butter.
Tea or cocoa.
Jam.
Honey.
Stewed fruit. } in turn.
Cakes.

e. The household arrangements are all under the care of a Lady Superintendent, who attends to the students' domestic comforts, orders provisions, and manages the servants.

f. The servants are :—

1 cook.
1 kitchen maid.
2 housemaids.
1 caretaker.
1 odd man.

g. Every Wednesday afternoon the students receive visitors. The number is unlimited; the visiting hours are from 3 to 5 p.m.; lady visitors may be taken all over the College and grounds. No gentlemen visitors are allowed, except fathers and brothers of the students, and these are received in the library. Every fourth Saturday afternoon and Sunday the students have permission to spend out, if they have relatives to stay with.

h. The morning bell rings at 6.30 a.m., the silence-bell at 9.45 p.m., and the gas is turned off at 10 p.m.

Prayers are read twice a day, at 8.30 a.m. and at 9 p.m., but the students please themselves about attending them.

No religious instruction of any description is given in the College.

2. Number of Students.—The number of students admitted on the 15th of January, 1883, was 28. Of these, 19 had received six months' training at Fort-street, the remaining 9 had been pupil-teachers in Public Schools.

These students left at the end of June, 1883, and on the 25th of July, 1883, 28 other students were admitted, all of whom had been pupil-teachers. These came to be trained for a year, so that their term will not expire until June, 1884.

3. The conduct of the students in training was good, the rules were rarely broken, and the students applied themselves vigorously to their studies.

4. The progress made was good, but it was impossible to manage thoroughly well so many subjects in such a short space of time. None of the subjects could very well be dispensed with, all are necessary to teachers; therefore either the pupil-teachers ought to be better prepared before coming into training, or the period of training ought to be longer.

5. The examination of the first set of students, who came into training in 1883, took place in June, 1883, with the following result :—

9	Students gained II.	A. Certificates
13	" " II.	B. "
5	" " III.	A. "
1	" " III.	B. "

No student failed.

Those who came into residence in July, 1883, will attend the Certificate Examination held in June, 1884.

THE PRESENT STATE OF THE COLLEGE.

The present state of the college is a slight improvement on last year, as the walls have been rendered nearly waterproof, and a girls' school has been placed on the ground, so that the students have greater facilities for putting into practice the newest methods of teaching.

The students are working satisfactorily preparing for the Certificate Examination of June, 1884. One student is absent through sickness, and will probably be unfit for work until after Easter.

The pupil-teacher appointed to the practising school resides in the College, sharing the room of the resident governess; but the schoolmistress lodges out, as there is not a spare corner in the house for her.

Owing to the scanty rainfall lately, there is not sufficient water for household purposes.

The furnishing of the house is nearly completed, and a lawn-tennis court and croquet-lawn are being made.

There is no vegetable garden yet, but there is a fowl-yard and one cow, so that nearly all the necessary milk and eggs are produced on the premises.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

Hurlstone College is the only training college for female teachers in New South Wales, and has been working since January 15, 1883.

As far as Instruction and Training are concerned, the College closely resembles the Metropolitan Training Colleges for teachers in England; the only difference in the instruction being the omission of Science teaching, the period of training in New South Wales being too short to admit of that.

CAROLINE MALLETT,
Principal.

Hurlstone College, February 9, 1884.

APPENDIX XVI.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE WORK OF THE ARCHITECT'S OFFICE FOR THE YEAR 1883.

Buildings.

BETWEEN the 1st of January and the 31st December there have been completed and delivered to the Department ready for occupation the following buildings:—

No.	Description of work.	Accommodation.	Cost.
74	School buildings commenced before and completed in 1883 ...	7,275	£ s. d. 103,807 1 1
16	School buildings commenced and completed in 1883	1,945	23,851 2 10
29	Additions to schools	4,713	35,336 7 8
44	Temporary schools	5,885	19,120 7 5

Increased accommodation has thus been provided in permanent buildings for 13,933 children, and temporary accommodation in substantial wooden buildings for 5,885 children.

Contracts not yet completed, but which will all or nearly all be finished during the current year (1884) have been entered into for:—

No.	Description of work.	Accommodation.	Cost.
84	Permanent buildings	13,655	£ s. d. 168,003 17 3
77	Temporary buildings	3,820	19,324 5 1
15	Additions to schools	1,845	12,961 2 0

Repairs and other improvements of various kinds not giving increased accommodation for scholars have been effected in 252 cases, at an aggregate cost of £25,986 5s. 5d.; and contracts for similar works are in progress in 129 cases, to cost £20,021 9s. 10d.

Sixty-four (64) weathersheds have been completed, and 19 others are in course of erection.

Outlay.

The payments certified for by me during the year on account of works of all kinds completed or in progress have amounted to £265,475 9s. 8d.

The outlay has, I believe, been larger than that of any previous year, but it must be borne in mind in comparing the increased expenditure with the increased number of scholars in this and past years that for many years before the passing of the Public Instruction Act of 1880 the sums expended by the Council of Education were altogether inadequate to meet the cost of new buildings, and scarcely any money could be spared for repairs. As a consequence the Minister of Public Instruction took over from the Council of Education buildings not only inadequate to the wants of the districts they were supposed to supply with school accommodation, but also in an extreme state of dis-repair.

In 1881 about £25,000, in 1882 about £36,000, and in 1883 over £60,000 had been spent for enlargements and repairs to old buildings, an expenditure far in excess of what would have been required if the buildings had in 1880 been fairly adequate to the then existing wants of the country and in reasonably good repair. It will thus be evident that the present outlay for buildings is largely accounted for by the necessity laid on the Department to endeavour to make good the deficiencies of past years.

The closing of very many of the Denominational Schools on the withdrawal of State aid at the close of the year 1882, has also thrown on the Department the load of a very large expenditure which should not in fairness be charged to the annual vote for school buildings, but should be met by a special appropriation. I believe, in the neighbouring Colony of Victoria, when a change took place analogous to that we are now undergoing, a sum of between four and five hundred thousand pounds was devoted to the purpose of meeting the necessary outlay, and the annual votes were not burdened with any part of it.

The total cost of the Department for designing and supervising the works enumerated above, including salaries, travelling expenses, and all office requisites, has been £8,848 8s. 9d., being 3½ per cent. on the gross outlay of £265,475 9s. 8d.

Plans, &c.

The cost of preparing the necessary plans and specifications for the large amount of work, shown by the above statements, I have endeavoured to reduce as much as possible by the use of lithography and printing whenever practicable, but experience shows me that the saving of time and expense by these means is much less than would seem probable. In almost every case there are special circumstances of site and local differences of material, which necessitate alterations of both plan and specifications from any stereotyped design, alterations which minimise the advantages to be gained by the substitution of lithography and printing for the manual work of the draftsmen and clerks. The staff of draftsmen were fully occupied in the preparation of 1,627 drawings and 1,420 specifications for works of various kinds.

The Minister having instructed me to substitute wooden buildings for the tents which were in use as temporary schools, I have had prepared plans of several classes of cheap portable wooden buildings, and where tents were in use buildings of this class have been substituted for them, except in a few cases where the erection of permanent buildings had so far advanced that it would not have been well to incur the expense of the temporary buildings. Buildings of the same class have been erected in many places where it had been decided previously to erect permanent buildings. This change of practice has necessarily thrown a good deal of extra work on my staff, as the cheaper buildings have been substituted in about forty cases, in which plans had already been prepared for more permanent structures.

Inspection of Works.

The large increase of work has pressed heavily on my staff of Clerks of Works, and in some cases contractors have had just cause of complaint at the delay which has unavoidably taken place in inspecting and paying for work when completed, and I have suffered much anxiety from the risk of insufficient inspection of works in progress, and the consequent danger that the buildings may not be so well built as they would be under a more thorough system of inspection. I think, however, I may safely say no really bad work has in any case escaped detection, and that in all the buildings erected during the year the Department has received fair value for the money expended.

I have already, in my annual report for 1882, and by special reports to the Minister, recommended an increase in the number of Clerks of Works, and I again have to report that the necessity exists and becomes continually more pressing.
