(REPORT FOR 1884.)

The Commissioner for Railways to The Honorable the Secretary for Public Works.

Department of Public Works,
Railway Branch,

SIR,

Sydney, 1 July, 1885.

I have the honor to submit a statement of the transactions of this Department for the year 1884.

No. 1.—RAILWAY CAPITAL AUTHORIZED.

The total amount which has been authorized to be raised by loans is £40,207,161. At the close of 1884 the total value of Debentures issued was £24,615,400. As no loan has been placed upon the market during this year the amount still to be raised is £15,591,761, which will probably bear interest at the rate of 3½ per cent.

Railway Debt.
Appendix
Nos. 8 and 9,
pp. 78, 84.

The Railway capital bears interest at the rate raised and to be raised, as follows:—

£7,062,300—5 per cent. ... ..	annual interest	£353,115
£12,053,100—4 „ ... ..	„	£482,124
£5,500,000—3½ „ ... ..	„	£192,500
£15,591,761—3½ „ ... (still to be raised)	„	£545,712

The average interest will be 3.91 per cent., equal to £1,573,451; but as a further sum will have to be raised to adjust over and under issues, the interest will be increased in proportion to the amount which the Debentures realise, an accurate statement of which cannot, of course, at the present time be given.

2.—RAILWAY CAPITAL EXPENDED.

At the close of 1884 there had been expended on lines open for traffic £20,088,240,* and on lines in course of construction £1,965,016; in all, £22,053,256, of which amount the sum of £2,864,792 was expended in the year 1884, as under:—

Capital
expended.
Appendix
Nos. 10 and 11,
pp. 85 and 94.

Construction ... ..	£2,383,924
Rolling stock and machinery, &c. ... ..	466,765
Trial surveys ... ..	14,103
	£2,864,792

The sources from which the money expended on Railway Lines open for traffic have been obtained, are:—

From Loans ... ..	£19,356,630
„ Revenue ... ..	723,508
	£20,080,138†

The

* Includes cost of old Pitt-street Tramway, taken up in 1867, and £3,223 cost of rolling stock used on Camden Tramway.
† Excludes do do do do

The interest bearing capital expended on lines in operation was therefore only £19,356,630, and as some portions of the lines were in operation for parts of the year only, the net returns for 1884 will pay at the rate of 4·37 per cent. per annum for the period during which the lines were working; but in calculating the interest which the net receipts give, the whole amount of capital expended on lines open has been, as in past years, included without regard to the source from which it has been obtained. The percentage to capital is consequently reduced from 4·37 to 4·20.

3.—LINES OPEN AND IN PROGRESS.

Of the sum of £2,383,924 expended in 1884 for construction, the sum of £978,783 was expended on lines open for traffic, and the balance £1,405,141 invested in unproductive lines in course of construction.

Additions to Capital Account—Lines open for traffic.

In the year 1883 the capital invested in lines open was £16,905,014.* During 1884 a further sum of £3,175,124 was added, making the total capital invested £20,080,138.

Additions to
Account.

The amount of £3,175,124 was made up as follows, viz. :—

Amount transferred from Construction Account, &c. ... ..	£1,727,177
Expenditure during 1884 on Construction, &c. ... ..	814,290
Additions and Improvements to Works and Stations, &c. ... ..	164,493
Additional Rolling Stock, Machinery, and Workshops, &c. ... ..	466,764
Rolling Stock transferred from Camden Tramway ... ..	2,400

See detail in
page 87.

In my report for 1883 a statement was given of the contracts let to 1st September, 1884. The following contracts have been let since that date, viz. :—

Blayney to Cowra—45 miles.

On the 16th February, 1885, tenders were opened for this section of the above extension, and that of Mr. J. S. Robertson, the lowest of eight, accepted. The estimated value of the contract is £278,071 5s. 2d. The work is to be completed by 30th June, 1887. Blayney to Cowra.

Young to Cowra—47 miles.

Tenders for this section were opened on the 3rd February, 1885, and Messrs. Fishburn & Co.'s, estimated at £240,515 11s. 8d., the lowest of eight received, was accepted. The contract is to be completed by 30th June, 1887. Young to Cowra.

At the present time the following lines are under construction :—

4.—LAND TAKEN FOR RAILWAY PURPOSES.

Appendix
No. 5, p. 62.

In Appendix No. 5 will be found particulars referring to the land resumed for Railway purposes to 31st December, 1884.

The claims outstanding on the 31st December, 1883, were 755, to which 281 were added during 1884, making a total of 1,036 claims; of these, 341 were settled in 1884, leaving at the close of the year 695 in various stages of adjustment, a large number of which have been settled during the present year.

5.—IMPORTATION OF RAILWAY MATERIAL.

Appendix
No. 6, p. 65.

In the Appendix will be found a return of the Permanent-way materials, locomotives, and miscellaneous articles imported during the year under review.

The following is an abstract of the returns:—

Summary of gross earnings, working expenditure, and net earnings for 1883 and 1884.

The foregoing review of the revenue and expenditure would be incomplete unless some reference were made to the causes which have led to the slightly less favourable returns in 1884 compared with 1883.

These may be briefly stated to be—(first) the larger capital brought into account owing to the great extensions of the Railway systems that took place during the year; and (second) the disastrous nature of the season all over the Colony.

The extensions amounted to 298 miles. It cannot of course be expected that new lines extended to sparsely populated parts of the Colony will be at first fully productive, some little time must necessarily elapse before the Railways in new districts will develop their resources, and create a full measure of trade.

It will have been observed that the gross earnings for 1884 exceed those for 1883 by the sum of £154,773; and that the expenditure exceeds that for 1883 by the sum of £123,471; the net increase is therefore £31,302. As the capital invested increased in 1884 by the sum of £3,175,125, the increased net earnings contributed only a little over 1 per cent. to that capital.

This explains why the total net earnings, distributed over the whole capital, returns 4·20 per cent. only to that capital, as against 4·48 per cent. in 1883, a decrease of ·28 per cent.

Sectional Returns.

No. 8.—DIVISION OF THE RAILWAY LINES INTO SECTIONAL AREAS.

In the following statements are given the capital expenditure, the gross earnings, the working expenditure, the net earnings, and the return which the net earnings give to the capital invested in each section.

It has been considered desirable to divide the lines into eight sections instead of thirteen as formerly. This has been accomplished by including the branches with the main lines; but the lines Junee to Hay, Wallerawang to Mudgee, the Illawarra line, and the line from Werris Creek to Narrabri have been treated as main lines. I have moreover shown, for the purpose of comparison, what the net return to capital upon the sections as rearranged would have been had they been so divided for the year 1883.

It will be seen that out of the eight sections into which the whole of the Railways have been divided, two make no return to the capital invested in their construction. In my Report for last year I pointed out that though this might be the case it was not conclusive evidence that the lines were unproductive indirectly, for beyond the general advantage which Railways always confer upon a district by increasing the area of cultivation, stimulating production, and decreasing the cost of carriage, the amount of new traffic they bring upon the older established lines serves to swell the general return, and minimizes if it does not completely recoup the loss sustained upon newly opened extensions.

There

There are two sections the working transactions of which call for special inquiry and comment. The first is the North-Western Line, Werris Creek to Narrabri. It will be observed that the net return to capital on this section has fallen from 2·35 to 0·14 per cent.; that while for 1883 the net revenue was £14,406, it was for 1884 only £836, and this notwithstanding that the capital with which this Line was debited in 1883 was decreased in 1884 through a readjustment of the account by the sum of £14,294.

The principal cause of the serious falling off in the net return was due to the disastrous drought, which was felt with greater severity in the north-west than in any other portion of the Colony. Another cause was a slight diversion of the traffic to the Western Line, upon its extension to Byerock and Mudgee.

As compared with 1883 there was a decrease in the number of tickets issued of 3,266, and the general goods traffic decreased by 2,892 tons. The decrease in the carriage of wool alone was 26,065 bales, arising principally from the great mortality in sheep; this matter is more fully referred to in my remarks upon the wool traffic generally.

The other section is the south-west, Junee to Hay. In my report for 1883 it was shown that the direct loss on this line amounted to the sum of £10,767. The earnings for 1884 show an increase of £10,390, to which sum the Jerilderie Branch, opened towards the close of the year, contributed £2,571, leaving the increase for the Main South-western Line at £7,819. The loss for 1884 has been only £1,055, or a loss per cent. of '09 on a capital of £1,417,242 as against a loss for 1883 of 1·07 on a capital of £1,006,412.

10.—WOOL RETURNS.

Returns for 1884 compared with 1883. Appendix No. 30, p. 121.

The following is a return of the Wool carried on the Railways for the years 1884 and 1883:—

	South and West.	North.	Total.
No. of bales in 1884 ... ..	231,507	88,170	319,677

Do 1883 ... .. £	105,014	51,719	156,763
Decrease in 1884 ...	6,258	11,890	18,148

Cause of decrease in wool traffic.

This return deals with the wool carried during the year. In Appendix No. 31 will be found a statement of the quantity carried from each station for the season 1883-84 in comparison with the season 1884-85. This comparison shows a decrease of 16,935 bales, instead of an increase, which might reasonably have been anticipated, of at least 60,000 bales. There is one reason only to be given for this result—the extreme severity of the drought, and the disastrous effect it has had upon the sheep depastured over the face of the Colony.

At the commencement of the year 1884 there were 37,915,000 sheep depastured in New South Wales, some of this number, no doubt, in poor condition owing to the continued severity of previous seasons. At the close of the year the number of sheep was reduced to 31,660,000, showing a loss within the twelve months of 6,255,000 while a still larger number were in a condition which, in the absence of copious rain, would soon result in death.

The average rainfall throughout the Colony had sensibly declined year by year from 1879, when it was 30·75 inches to the end of last year, when it fell to 15·86, having in the intervening years recorded—

1880	...	...	...	...	19·93 inches
1881	...	...	...	...	20·73 „
1882	...	...	...	...	20·11 „
1883	...	...	...	...	17·96 „

The Chief Inspector of Stock, summing up the estimated loss sustained, writes:—“The losses in stock amount, through death, bad lambing, deficiency in the number of fat stock, deficiency and deterioration in the clip, to more than £4,000,000 sterling, and this estimate is generally believed to be rather under than over the mark, without counting the loss arising through waste of condition in the stock which remained.” The loss, no doubt, would have been much greater but for the agencies at work to meet the exigencies of the case. In a few districts feed was obtainable, and though the stock was generally too weak to be travelled by road, facilities were granted by the railways, which have now stretched their arms over a large portion of the Colony, for the removal of stock at reduced rates of carriage from starvation to feeding grounds.

Since

Since the close of the year copious rains have fallen over the greater part of the Colony, revivifying the land and giving promise of an abundant herbage for the coming season. There will, however, be little or no increase in the amount of wool sent by Railway for the next two years, as many of the sheep that perished first yielded their wool, and it was included in the last returns.

The pastoral is the main industry of the Colony, and if it be injuriously affected the effect is felt in all circles, and in every avenue of commerce. The diminution in stock represents not only a direct loss to the pastoralists but less employment for station hands, less business for the storekeeper, less wool and live stock for carriage, and consequently less traffic for the Railways and for shipping. The pastoral interest is, as it were, the backbone of the national prosperity—if it suffers the whole Colony is affected by the weakness of its main member.

11.—COAL TRAFFIC.

The coal traffic during the year shows a satisfactory increase. The total quantity carried over the Northern Line for the years 1883 and 1884 was as follows :—

The Coal Traffic, Appendix Nos. 34—41, pp. 126 and 132.

					Tons.	Freight.
1884	...	...	...	...	1,614,200	£75,840
1883	...	...	...	...	1,428,756	£67,725
			Increase	...

The following were the quantities shipped for Foreign and Intercolonial ports :—

						Tons.
1884	...	...	...	...	...	1,550,395
1883	...	...	...	...	...	1,359,505
						190,890
			Increase	...	...

The coal traffic from the mines on the South and West Lines shows a fair increase. The quantity of shale, the carriage of which fell off in 1883, has continued to decrease. The total traffic on the South and West Lines was as follows :—

Appendix No. 40, p. 132;

		COAL.		SHALE.
		Tons.	Freight.	Tons.	Freight.
1884	...	147,799	£53,376	20,615	£6,982
1883	...	127,576	£46,197	29,344	£9,883
		20,223	£7,179	.....	.....
	Increase...			8,729	£2,901
	Decrease...	.....	.....

In addition to the above there were 157,700 tons conveyed for the Department, the freight on which amounted to £63,426. As this coal was used for locomotive purposes, the sum named has not been included in the Revenue Returns of Traffic.

A Railway map showing in colours the lines constructed, under construction, and authorized, is appended, and also a map of Australia, showing in the same way the Railways of the various Colonies.

13.—RECAPITULATION.

The transactions during the year are thus summarized:—

The total expenditure for construction was £22,053,256, of which the sum of £20,088,240 was expended for lines opened for traffic.

At the close of the year 1,618 miles of line were opened for traffic, and 391 miles were in course of construction.

The rolling stock consisted of 336 locomotives, 776 coaching, and 6,938 goods vehicles.

The value of the railway materials, in the conveyance of which 175 vessels were employed, amounted to £507,165, including freight and insurance of £39,560.

During the year 130,640 trains were run a distance of 6,403,041 miles, the earnings amounted to £2,086,237, and the working expenditure to £1,301,259, or 62·37 per cent. of the earnings. 11,253,109 passengers travelled, of whom 1,973,878 were first class, 5,118,056 second class, and 4,161,175 season ticket holders.

The merchandise traffic consisted of 2,168,990 head of live stock, 319,677 bales of wool, 1,773,905 tons of coal, and 1,221,332 tons of general goods.

The earnings per mile open were £1,457, the expenditure was £909, and the net earnings were £548.

The net earnings were £784,978 yielding 4·20 per cent. to the capital invested on lines in operation.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

Commissioner for Railways.

The Honorable F. A. Wright,
Secretary for Public Works,

At the close of 1883 there were 25 miles of Tramway, exclusive of the Camden Line, open for traffic. During the year 1884 extensions were opened from Waverley Junction to Bondi, and from Johnson-street, Leichhardt, Leichhardt, to Norton-street, making the total mileage in operation at the close of the year  $27\frac{1}{2}$  miles; the capital expended on which, inclusive of rolling stock, machinery, and workshop, was as under. In this return is included the capital expended on the Line from Campbelltown to Camden,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles.

ADDITIONS TO CAPITAL ACCOUNT—LINES OPEN FOR TRAFFIC 1884.

The amount expended on lines open for 1883 was £579,439. During the year there was added the sum of £103,740, making the capital value £683,179, as under :—

Expended to the end of 1883 ... ..	£579,439
Amount transferred from Construction Account ... ..	941
Amount expended on completion and construction of Lines during 1884 ... ..	33,271
Additions and improvements to existing Lines ... ..	18,968
Additional rolling stock, workshops, and machinery ... ..	50,560

See Appendix No. 10A, p. 87.

Making the total capital invested in Tramways in operation £683,179

The extensions opened during 1884 were—Continuation of Leichhardt Line to Short-street, 1 mile 9 chains opened on the 1st May, 1884; and the Line from Waverley Tea Gardens to Bondi, 1 mile 13 chains, opened on the 24th May, 1884.

If

It having been decided that a cable line of Tramway should be adopted for the North Shore, tenders were opened on the 13th January, 1885, for the construction of a line from Milson's Point to the Reserve, 1 mile 32 chains. Six tenders were received, and that of Mr. Carson Woods accepted for the sum of £35,500. Satisfactory progress has been made with the work, which is to be completed by the 15th October, 1885.

Tenders for a line of Tramway from Newcastle to Plattsburg,  $8\frac{1}{4}$  miles, will be invited in the early part of next month. Some delay has been occasioned owing to the necessity of changing, in part, the route which this line is to take; but neither the point of commencement nor the terminus, as approved by Parliament, will be altered.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Expenditure.
Appendix
No. 16, p. 98.

The total earnings derived from the City and Suburban Tramways during the year were £219,942, an increase of £29,243 over the earnings of 1883; the expenditure was £215,167, and the net earnings £4,775; which, upon the capital invested in lines open, gave a return of 0·76 per cent.

Result of transactions,
1884.

As 4 per cent. is the rate at which the Tramway capital has been raised, the transactions for 1884 show a loss of 3·24 per cent., equal to a sum of £20,427.

At the time of writing my Report on the Tramways for 1883, viz., 10th October last, this result was partly anticipated. I stated that the transactions for the first six months of 1884 did not promise a more favourable result than that obtained for the year 1883; the transactions for the last six months of the year showed a further falling off in the net revenue, and resulted in a decrease of per centage for the year over that for 1883 of 1·46 viz., from 2·22 per cent. to 0·76 per cent.

The causes which contributed to this state of affairs were so fully stated in my Report, issued in October last, that it is unnecessary to repeat them here. The remedy which I then suggested, viz., to increase the fare to 3d. on the first section was, with some modification, adopted on the 15th January last, and continued in force till the 20th May, when it was abandoned in favour of a system proposed by you, and which may be described as a system for the abolition of cash fares and for the payment of fares by ticket only on a mileage basis. Time has not admitted of the result of this mode of charging being ascertained, but a larger number of passengers have been carried under it than was carried during the time the increased fare was demanded, the infliction of which was practically condemned by those who made use of the Tramways by many abstaining from travelling altogether while others reduced considerably the number of their journeys.

In the following statements are given the capital expenditure, the gross earnings, the working expenditure, the net earnings, and the return which the net earnings give to the capital invested on each section :—

NOTE.—In the amount given above as permanent-way expenses there is included ¼th of the relaying expenditure on the Rodfern line during 1882, viz., £2,387 10s., in addition to the actual expenditure of 1884. During 1883 the greater portion of the Crown-street line was relaid with steel rails, estimated to last for 7 years, and ¼ only of the cost is therefore included above, but in the books, owing to the custom of voting annual supplies, the whole cost was charged to the accounts of 1883.

Campbe town to Camden.

A gratifying feature in the above return of the transactions of the tram line from Campbelltown to Camden as compared with that for 1883 is the conversion of a loss equal to 6 per cent. to a gain of 2·38 per cent. The loss sustained in working this line for 1883 was £2,456, which with interest on the Capital invested at 4 per cent. was swelled to £4,100. Not only has there been no loss in the working of this line for 1884, but the net return gives a percentage of 2·38 to Capital, leaving only the small sum of £700 to be recouped out of the General Revenue. This result has been brought about partly by increased earnings and decreased working expenses but chiefly by immunity from accident. The amount paid in 1883 for compensation for personal injuries was £2,161, while in 1884 it was only £43.

PERMANENT-WAY.

In my first report upon Tramways I drew attention to the various opinions expressed by Engineers in England and elsewhere as to the description of road which should be adopted for Tramways, and pointed out that nothing very definite or final in regard to the form and weight of rails, or the best mode of constructing Tramways, had been arrived at. It seemed to be the opinion of several eminent Tramway Engineers that a light road would serve the purpose, while others insisted that a much stronger road than even a Railroad was necessary for the economical working of main Lines, and some Engineers had gone so far as to renew a portion of the Tramways in London almost regardless of cost, with rails weighing 90 lbs. per yard. Our experience has taught us that the rails adopted for our Tramways have been altogether too light. The cost of repairs has been enormous, which is evidenced by the fact that while the maintenance and repair of the permanent way on our Railways have cost £256 10s. per average mile of Line, the cost of keeping the Tramways in good order has amounted to no less than £1,405 per mile.

The Engineer for Existing Lines, in reporting upon this subject, says:—
 “There is no doubt in my mind that the present system of permanent way is most unsuitable, at least for the City, and I do not know that any system with cross sleepers will be satisfactory with the present heavy rolling stock. I feel confident it is a mistake to put timber under the rails in the streets at all, as it is impossible to provide for drainage: every shower of rain carries the grit down under the rails which cut the sleepers through in a very short time, and I believe the only road that will prove efficient for the service will be a road laid with a longitudinal iron sleeper well bedded on concrete, the rail to break joint on the sleeper. There is no use in having a springy permanent way in a street, as it breaks up the surface of the road.”

It has been estimated that the cost of relaying the whole of our lines with such a road as the Engineer for Existing Lines has indicated would amount to £200,000, but I feel convinced that, though the outlay would be large, the saving that would be effected in working expenses by this improvement of the road would justify the expenditure incurred in carrying it out.

ACCIDENTS.

The following were the accidents for the years 1883 and 1884, together with the number of passengers carried:—

Years.	Accidents.						Total.		Number of Passenger Fares.
	Servants.		Passengers.		Other than Passengers and Servants.
	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.

Appendix No. 56, p. 180.

ROLLING STOCK.

At the close of 1883, 58 motors were in use, and during 1884, 17 new engines were added, making the total at the close of the year 75.

10 cars were added to the stock during the year, making the number in use 108, which will accommodate 7,698 passengers.

The vehicles now possessed by the Department are found to be fairly equal to the requirements of the traffic.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

Commissioner for Railways.

The Honorable F. A. Wright,
Secretary for Public Works,

APPENDIX TO REPORT ON RAILWAYS—1884.

No. 1.

The Engineer for Existing Railways and Tramways to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir, Railway Department, Office of Engineer for Existing Lines, 1 May, 1885.

I have the honor to submit my Annual Report from January 1st to December 31st, 1884, on the condition of the Existing Railways and Tramways under my charge.

SUBURBAN RAILWAYS.

GREAT SOUTHERN AND SOUTH-WESTERN RAILWAYS.

Granville Junction to Albury—Single Line—Length, 373 miles 4 chains.

Junee Junction to Hay—Single Line—Length, 167 miles 29 chains.

Narrandera to Jerilderie—Single Line—Length, 64 miles 49 chains—Opened for public traffic, 16th September, 1884.

Joppa Junction to Tarago—Single Line—19 miles 71 chains—Opened for public traffic, 3rd January, 1884.

ALL these lines and the several works in connection therewith have been kept in good order during the year.

It has been found necessary to renew the sleepers and ballast on the section, Sydney to Granville, and the work is being proceeded with. About  $5\frac{1}{2}$  miles of single line have been relaid with steel rails on this section.

From Granville to Albury the road is in first-class running order, but extensive renewals of rails and sleepers have been required on certain portions of the line.

The repairs to the bridges have been rather heavy during the year.

Between Goulburn and Gerogery the fencing will shortly need thorough repair.

The road from Albury to the River Murray is in good running order, and the bridges, &c., are well kept.

From Junee Junction to Hay the line is in very fair running order, and the bridges, fences, &c. have been maintained in good condition.

The temporary bridge at Narrandera has given a good deal of trouble, but as the permanent bridge is now rapidly approaching completion this will not be of long duration.

The permanent-way from Joppa Junction to Tarago is in very fair running order, although the banks, having been made up during a continuance of dry weather, have settled very considerably.

The culverts, fencing, &c., are in good order.

ILLAWARRA LINE.

Eveleigh to Hurstville—Double Line—Length, 9 miles 40 chains.

Opened for public traffic, 15 October, 1884.

THE ballast on this line is of an inferior quality, which, in conjunction with the subsidence of the newly-made embankments, rendered it necessary to lift and re-ballast portions of the line. It is now in good running order.

The following works have been carried out during the year:—

St. Peters—

Marrickville—

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

Granville Junction to Parramatta—Double Line—Length, 1 mile 9 chains.

Parramatta to Nevertire—Single Line—Length, 325 miles 32 chains.

Nevertire to Nyngan—Single Line—Length, 35 miles 64 chains.

Nyngan to Byerock—Single Line—Length, 78 miles 10 chains. Opened for public traffic, 2nd September, 1884.

Wallerawang to Capertee—Single Line—Length, 30 miles 41 chains.

Capertee to Rylstone—Single Line—Length, 30 miles 41 chains. Opened for public traffic, 9th June, 1884.

Rylstone to Mudgee—Single Line—Length, 31 miles 63 chains. Opened for public traffic, 10th September, 1884.

The permanent way and several works on these sections have been kept in good repair during the year.

From Granville to Springwood extensive renewals of sleepers are in hand and the old iron rails will during the ensuing year also require renewing.

Between Springwood and Dubbo it has been found necessary to renew large numbers of sleepers especially from Bathurst to Orange, on which section they are decaying very rapidly.

The line in places between Dubbo and Nyngan has been difficult to maintain in good order during rainy weather on account of the alluvial nature of the embankments.

The permanent way on the section Nyngan to Byerock is in first-class order.

Large quantities of ballast have been used and are still required on the Mudgee line, the embankments having fallen considerably. The cuttings on this line need a great deal of attention on account of the soft nature of the material forming them.

A very serious slip of hard rock occurred at Hunt's cutting, 5 miles from Mudgee, on 27th September last, which the Construction Branch has up to the present time been engaged in clearing away.

RICHMOND LINE.

Single Line—Length, 16 miles 11 chains.

The Permanent-way and works on this line have been maintained in good order throughout the year.

The light iron rails, however, between 25 miles 20 chains and 37 miles 20 chains, will shortly require to be replaced by 70-lb. steel rails, being too light for the traffic. They show considerable signs of wear at the present time.

The

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY.

Newcastle to West Maitland—Double Line—Length, 20 miles.

The permanent-way on this section has been kept in excellent running order. The bridges, with the exception of one or two which are about to be renewed, are in good order. The buildings and other works are in a satisfactory state.

West Maitland to Tamworth—Single Line—Length, 161 miles 28 chains.

The permanent-way and works on this portion of the line are in a satisfactory state. At a few places between Murrurundi and Tamworth the line, on account of the soft nature of the formation, has occasionally given trouble, but in this respect gradual improvement is being made. The rails on this section are wearing very rapidly, large numbers having been renewed during the year.

Tamworth to Armidale—Single Line—Length, 78 miles 49 chains.

The permanent-way and the whole of the works have been maintained in good condition throughout the year.

Armidale to Glen Innes—Single Line—Length, 64 miles. Opened for public traffic, 19th August, 1884.

The various works, &c., on this section have given little trouble to maintain, and are in very good order.

Bullock Island Branch—Double Line—Length, 1 mile 43 chains.Morpeth Branch—Single Line—Length, 4 miles.

The permanent-way, &c., on these branches have been kept in a good state of repair during the year. The rails on Bullock Island Branch, taking into consideration the exceptionally heavy traffic in coal, are wearing remarkably well.

North-western Branch, Werris Creek to Gunnedah—Single Line—Length, 40 miles 40 chains.Gunnedah to Narrabri—Single Line—Length, 56 miles 5 chains.

The permanent-way on these sections has been maintained in excellent order at a moderate outlay. The several works are also in a highly satisfactory condition.

The following works have been carried out during the year :—

Newcastle—	Hexham—
Roof erected on loading platform.	Level-crossing constructed at 8¼ miles.
Underground tank, 10,000 gallons constructed.	Morpeth—

RAILWAYS.

A VERY large amount of work has been carried out during the year, as will be seen by the foregoing returns.

The repairs to the timber bridges on the Southern and South-western Lines have been considerable. The repairs to the approaches to the Wagga Bridge should be continued without delay, in order to keep pace with the decay of the timber. All the bridges on the Western and Northern Lines are in good running order, except two or three on the Northern about to be renewed with iron superstructures.

The permanent-way on all the Lines is in good running order. A great deal has been done to it during the year in rails, sleepers, and ballast, and a great deal more will be required to be done shortly, particularly on the Suburban portion. Great numbers of rails and sleepers are getting bad.

The Locomotive workshops at Eveleigh are progressing very favourably; the whole of the foundations will soon be completed, and the roofs are ordered for most of them. The large running-shed is completed and occupied. The coal stage is progressing, but not so fast as I could wish. Two new 50 feet turntables have been put in, and are in use, and I hope to get some of the shops finished by the end of 1885.

The ironwork has been ordered for the widening of the Redfern tunnel and also for the Wells-street bridge, the abutments for which will soon be in hand.

The duplication of the Line from Parramatta to Penrith is progressing satisfactorily.

The large building at Darling Harbour in course of erection for the frozen meat business is now approaching completion.

The application of the system of interlocking points and signals has been steadily continued. During the year twelve places have been fitted up and brought into use, making a total of twenty-eight stations, junctions, &c., on our Lines now worked by the system. The machinery in connection with it has been found to work very satisfactorily, and it is undoubtedly a great safety appliance, the importance of which, with the rapidly-increasing fast passenger and mixed traffic, cannot be over-estimated.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE COWDERY.

These lines have all been kept in good repair, and, with one or two exceptions, no accidents attributable to the state of the road have occurred.

The work of maintaining the lines in good order, however, is attended with a great deal of trouble and is more expensive than it should be.

There is no doubt, in my mind, that the present system of permanent-way is most unsuitable, at least for the city, and I do not think that any system, with the heavy rolling stock and traffic we have with cross sleepers, will be satisfactory, and I feel confident it is a mistake to put timber under the rails in the streets at all, as it is impossible to provide for drainage.

Every shower of rain carries the grit down under the rails, which cut the sleepers through in a very short time, and I believe that the only road that will prove efficient for the service, will be a road laid with a longitudinal iron sleeper well bedded on concrete, the rail to break joint on the sleeper. There is no use in having a springy permanent-way in a street, as it breaks up the surface of the road.

During the year the extensions to Leichhardt and Bondi have been finished and opened for traffic.

The work of laying wooden blocks in King-street, Newtown, was commenced towards the end of the year, but no very great progress was made, in consequence of the bad supply of wood blocks.

No further extensions can be brought on to the Elizabeth-street line until more accommodation is given at the Terminus.

The line has been doubled from the Tanks to the Tea Gardens, Waverley, and sundry other works carried out, as follows:—

Stations.	Description of Work.
Redfern to Macquarie-street.....	New engine-pits paved with cube sets, &c. Turntable lengthened, Bridge-street. Excavations for new offices at Pitt-street Yard carried out. Additional stand-pipe fixed at tram platform, Redfern Station. Water laid on to wash out cars, Bridge-street. Lamp erected in Elizabeth-street, Belmore Park. Alterations effected to entrance to Pitt-street yard. Loose rock removed and fence erected at Bridge-street yard. Partition fixed in waiting-shed, Bridge-street. Drain constructed to carry off water from pit, Bridge-street yard. Temporary reservoir for salt water, constructed at Redfern Station yard.

No. 2.

The Locomotive Engineer to The Commissioner for Railways.

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch,

Locomotive Engineer's Office.

Sir,

I have the honor to submit the following report respecting the maintenance of the locomotive, carriage, and waggon stock on the Southern, Western, and Northern Lines during the year ending 31st December, 1884.

Southern and Western Lines.

The locomotive engines and tenders have been kept in as good working order and condition as was possible with the very limited accommodation and appliances at my disposal. The want of proper shops and equipment has been so frequently referred to in previous reports that it is quite unnecessary to again mention it, except in so far as that it still exists, the consequence being that in addition to the impossibility of coping with the current work, what we do costs much more than it should. However, I am pleased to see that fair progress is being made with the erection of some of our new shops, so that we may hopefully look to a better state of things in the future.

Notwithstanding the difficulties contended with, more than the usual amount of repairs have been effected during the year, but as was anticipated extensive renewals, more particularly as regards boiler-work, have been deferred unavoidably for want of space to admit of labor being profitably employed on it so that a number of engines are standing out of work entirely through this cause, and I regret to say they are increasing daily. Until we get into our new shops we cannot possibly attempt to pull up the arrears, as all our resources are required for the current work.

The number of locomotive engines has been increased to 270. There were eighteen passenger and six goods engines imported from England and six goods engines made in the Colony by Mr. Vale during the year. In addition to the foregoing, which were required to meet increased traffic requirements, six engines were imported to replace Nos. 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, and 12, which were either worn out or had become unsuitable for our wants. The cost of these six engines was charged to the working expenses, which is rather a heavy charge against the expenses of the department in one year.

Two locomotives specially designed for the work have been imported for the Camden line, so that the motors which worked the traffic on this line were handed over to the Tramway Department. These new engines give entire satisfaction.

Notwithstanding these large additions to our locomotive power I realised the fact that with the new extensions and the enormous growth of the traffic we would still be deficient, so that the additional engines ordered will be very acceptable and necessary to meet the demands.

Without entering into details the following statement will serve to convey some idea of what work has been performed on the locomotives during the year, in addition to ordinary repairs:—

Eighty-nine engines and tenders have been thoroughly repaired, which included the fitting of new boilers and very extensive renewals to fire-boxes, and barrels of seven of them. Ten of them had the whole of their tubes removed and the boilers extensively repaired and renewed. Twenty-one engines had a considerable number of their tubes taken out and extensive repairs effected to their boilers and fire-boxes, and five engines were fitted with new cylinders complete.

In.

In addition to the foregoing eight new crank-axles were fitted and 266 new tyres were put on wheels of engines and tenders.

As a matter having an important bearing upon the efficiency of locomotives generally, I may mention that a portion of those now in course of construction in England for us are to be provided with Joy's valve-gear, the advantages of which are very generally admitted by the most competent engineers in England, so that we will have an opportunity of giving it a practical test on our lines.

While it has always been my desire on grounds both of economy and expediency to have as few types of locomotives as possible, I regret that circumstances beyond my control have caused them to be much more numerous than appears compatible with good management. This, however, has arisen from our fast growing requirements which compelled us to give orders to American and English makers for the classes of engines they were in a position to supply in the shortest time.

The passenger and goods stock has been maintained in good order, and a more than usual quantity of renewals have been made over previous years.

One hundred and two vehicles have been manufactured by the rolling stock contractors to replace those worn out during previous three years; in addition to which nineteen vehicles have been entirely renewed in our own shops, and the cost charged to working expenses.

In addition to the renewals of stock, forty-eight cattle-vans have been altered in accordance with recommendations suggested in the report of the Cattle Board, and several of both cattle and sheep vans have had Turton buffers and strong screw-couplings fitted to them, which also formed an exceptionally heavy charge against working expenses.

The want of accommodation at Redfern having rendered it necessary to have a considerable quantity of repairs to our rolling stock to be done at Eveleigh has been a source of great expense and inconvenience owing to the distance from our workshops.

Good progress has been made in the trimming of carriages, fifty-six having been thoroughly renewed, and a large number of new cushions provided for second-class compartments, in addition to which sixty-six carriages have had new carpets.

Considerable progress was also made with the painting of engines and rolling stock, twenty-seven engines, thirty-six carriages, thirteen brake-vans, and 440 waggons having been thoroughly repainted, and no less than 3,400 vehicles were lifted and had minor repairs effected to them in the year.

The water supplies have owing to the continued drought been a source of much uneasiness and expense, and until we get a good fall of rain, by means of which we will obtain the benefit of the large outlay in dams, wells, &c., we must continue to run water trains for locomotives in some districts.

The whole of the pumping engines, tanks, shop machinery, &c., &c., have been maintained in efficient working order.

The amount of work done by the limited stock on this line shows that every exertion must have been used to attain such satisfactory results, no additions having been made to the engine stock during the year, so that it still remains at sixty-eight. Eight goods and four passenger engines were ordered in 1883 for this line, which will afford very necessary relief and enable engines requiring extensive repairs to be laid up for that purpose.

As on the Southern and Western lines some of the engines employed in working the suburban traffic have, owing to the increased size of trains, become unsuitable for the work required, they being of too light a type, so that the necessity of replacing them with more powerful engines is becoming more apparent each day.

The shop accommodation at Honeysuckle Point is very inadequate, but as regards one very important branch of the work very welcome relief will be soon afforded by the completion of the new boiler shop. Owing to want of room and proper facilities for the economic performance of the work a considerable amount of boiler work has of necessity been deferred.

The necessity for pushing on the erection of the new running shed is very pressing, as the present shed is totally inadequate for our wants, besides which it is most inconveniently situated; and until the proper rearrangement of yard, and additional workshops are erected, the work done must necessarily be expensive.

The following work has been done during the year :—

Twenty-one engines and tenders were thoroughly overhauled and extensively repaired : One of them had a new boiler fitted ; two had their boilers taken out and thoroughly repaired ; a considerable number had all their tubes taken out of the boilers, and barrels examined repaired, and new tubes fitted in them ; two had new cylinders complete ; one crank axle and ninety-four engine and tender tyres were renewed.

Five new boilers are in hand well advanced which are required for renewals.

In addition to the foregoing a large quantity of general repairs of a less important character have been effected, and the engines have been maintained in good order.

The carriage and wagon stock has been maintained in good order notwithstanding the very limited shop accommodation and appliances available for the purpose.

The following vehicles were either renewed or extensively repaired during the year :—

- 9 first-class carriages.
- 7 composite carriages.
- 8 second-class carriages.
- 2 brake-vans.
- 4 horse-boxes.
- 1 prison-van.
- 1 hearse.
- 4 A waggons.
- 7 B do.
- 6 C do.
- 38 D do.
- 6 E do.
- 2 sheep-vans.
- 8 cattle do.

And thirteen cattle-vans have been improved in accordance with suggestions of the Live Stock Board.

The entire cost of the foregoing was charged to working expenses, as usual.

During the past year the following additions and improvements have been effected in our water supplies :—

Bullock Island Junction.—Additional pumping machinery, new water tank, reservoir, and water column.

Singleton.—Additional pumping machinery and new tank.

Gunnedah.—Iron cylinders sunk in bed of river.

I am pleased to report that the contractors for the supply of new rolling stock have given general satisfaction, and the class of work performed by them reflects the greatest credit on Colonial industry.

Our continued immunity from accidents of a serious character—considering the nature of the lines and the work done—must be acknowledged as creditable. I submit this may be fairly attributed in a great extent to the zeal and vigilance of the employés.

Herewith I forward a complete list of returns furnished in connection with your annual report, as shown below :—

1. Abstract of rolling stock on hand, 31st December, 1884, and the number and description of vehicles supplied in 1884.
2. Rolling stock on hand, 31st December, 1884.
3. Statement of the number and class of rolling stock manufactured by the different contractors during the year 1884.
4. Weights of locomotive engines and tenders, empty and loaded, on 31st December, 1884.
5. Weights of locomotive engines and tenders, and mileage run by each engine.
6. Abstract of total and average weights of rolling stock, empty.
7. Statement of the number and classification of persons employed in locomotive branch.
8. List and condition of locomotive engines and tenders on 31st December, 1884.
9. List of machinery on all lines, 31st December, 1884 ; and list of machinery added to stock during the year 1884.
10. List of machinery in workshops, 31st December, 1884.

I have, &c.,

W. SCOTT,

Locomotive Engineer.

No. 3.

The Superintendent of Tramway Rolling Stock to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Tramway Motor Branch, Randwick, 24 June, 1885.

I have the honor to report as follows on the maintenance and general condition of the Rolling Stock, Machinery, &c., under my supervision during the year ending December 31, 1884:—

At the commencement of the year fifty-four independent engines and two combined engines and cars were in stock available for traffic and yard-shunting; of this number forty-three were in daily use for traffic, one shunting, and one watering the streets through which the trams run.

The cars in stock January 1st, 1884, comprised thirty-eight double-decked, seating ninety passengers each; forty-seven double-decked, seating sixty; one double-decked, seating eighty; one double-decked, seating fifty; five single-decked, seating seventy; one single-decked, seating eighty; and eight single-decked, seating fifty-six each.

An addition has been made to the stock of engines by the arrival of twelve of the independent type and six of the combined type from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, and one independent engine, manufactured by Mr. T. Wearne, of Sydney.

The stock of cars has also been increased by seven—six double-decked cars for the engines of the combined type, seating eighty passengers each, and one double-decked car, seating ninety, all built by Mr. T. Wearne.

Nine service trucks, built by the Department, and one large watering-tank, built by Mr. Wearne, have also been added to the rolling stock.

The extensions of the Leichhardt and Boudi lines were opened during the year, and four additional engines brought into use to work the traffic.

The number of engines used daily for traffic requirements was forty-three, and two for haulage of stores and watering-tank, making the total number of engines in steam forty-five.

The wear and tear of engines is still excessive, and although our facilities for performing the work are limited, the ordinary repairs have been effected at a less cost per mile run than during the previous year; but several boilers and other renewals being required during the year, the cost of which is charged against revenue account, our expenditure under the head of "engine repairs" must appear greater than for 1883.

The boiler and smiths' shops authorized and in course of erection cannot be available before August, so that any advantage to accrue from their use will not be experienced till the latter part of the current year.

I would here urge upon the Commissioner the necessity for further workshop accommodation at Randwick, unless the proposal for the erection of a cleaning-shed, &c., at the terminus be entertained. I am constrained to advocate the latter, because the additional cost would be about £9,000 only, and after allowing 6 per cent. interest on the capital, there would be a saving of about £3,000 per year in running cost effected by its use, besides increasing traffic accommodation and rendering unnecessary a great deal of the present shunting.

The mileage of all engines in steam during the year gives an average of 19,383 miles per engine. Of this number two ran from 30,000 to 34,000 miles, ten from 25,000 to 30,000 miles, twenty-six from 20,000 to 25,000 miles, twenty-three from 10,000 to 20,000 miles, and eight under 10,000 miles.

Six engines laid up requiring new boilers in 1883 have been fitted during the year, and at least fifteen more will require boilers replaced during the current year, and this will necessitate drawing upon the twenty new engines authorized for traffic purposes, and prevent for a time the reduction in night work as contemplated.

The whole of the machinery in the turning and the temporary boiler shops, together with the boilers and engines for driving same, have been kept, and are now, in efficient working order.

I have not yet erected the machinery in the car department, deferring it till a final decision is given respecting the cleaning-shed before referred to, as, should the latter be approved, a rearrangement of the shops will be desirable.

It

It may not be out of place to refer in this report to a paper recently read before the Institute of Civil Engineers, London, by the Honorable R. C. Parsons, on the working of tramways by steam, and the discussion which followed.

I do not intend to critically review the statements throughout; at the same time I think it desirable to point out that comparison between steam Tramway working in England and elsewhere and the system in operation in Sydney cannot fairly be instituted as the essential information to admit of such being done is omitted from the paper, and the returns printed with it.

Mr. Parsons refers to the two forms or types of engine in use for tramways—the “independent” and “combined.” Of the latter he says:—

“The engine acts as the leading bogie which supports one half of the carriage, when empty, and when loaded, a large portion of the weight of the passengers is available to increase the adhesion of the engine wheels on the rails. It is obvious, therefore, that this form of engine and passenger car is remarkably well adapted for light railways, where fuel is expensive or for rapid and cheap communication in the neighbourhood of towns. Engines of this description are now used on one or two lines in this country and the working expenses are considerably less than that of an ordinary locomotive with railway carriages.”

From the foregoing it will be seen that our efforts in the direction of the “combined” system have not been isolated, nor without good reason for seeking to make such successful.

It is also contended by Mr. Parsons that in order to work Tramways successfully by steam, the number of engines should be sufficiently large to render it unnecessary to employ them so continuously as to lead to neglect of ordinary repairs, and one of the rules adopted, with the view of gaining the best results, is to have 50 per cent. of the engines in working: 25 per cent. for washing, and 25 per cent. in the repairing shop.

It is well known that we have not had this proportion of engines during the existence of the Tramways here, and it will only be on the arrival of the engines on order, that we shall have that proportional number which should have existed from the first to ensure economy in running; even then, although we shall have the number, it cannot be said the proper proportion will exist, as four of our present engines have been in use five and a half years; six in use five years; fifteen in use four years, and seventeen in use two and a half years and as a large number of these require extensive renewals and overhauling, in addition to ordinary running repairs, consequent on the large mileage they have had to run, it can easily be seen that we shall reduce our total number of serviceable engines, in that we shall be compelled to draw upon the new engines to replace those now running, while the necessary repairs and renewals are being effected.

No blame can be attached to the Department for the inadequate number of engines available for working the large traffic developed by our Tramway system as will be seen by the following:—

The rapid construction of the Tramways was forced upon the various Governments by the public voice, no time being given to properly mature an economic system for public convenience or in working; neither could experience at this time be gained from the operations in other countries as to the best form of road or motive power, as in the case of the railway system. When the latter was introduced in the Colony there was no difficulty in ascertaining the experience of England, America, and the Continent of Europe as to the best description of road and class of locomotive adapted for passenger traffic, but to obtain such for steam tramway traffic was impossible. Such restrictions had been placed upon the use of steam as a motive power in the streets that makers of locomotives were almost unable to comply with them; therefore, our experience alone could enable us to determine what class of engine would be the most suitable and economical for our requirements.

The description of motive power which had been introduced the Department was compelled to continue to operate the lines so rapidly constructed and extended, but you are aware it was felt we had not secured the best adapted for the work, and based on such experience as we had gained to the end of the year 1882, a new description of motor and car combined was obtained for trial. Notwithstanding the usual difficulties experienced on the introduction of any new system and all its detractors have said, this type of rolling stock has accomplished sufficient to warrant me in expressing the opinion that it is by a modified steam-car of the combined description we shall overcome at least one of the causes which has operated to reduce our dividends.

The stringent restrictions of the Board of Trade in England having been set aside, an impetus was immediately given to use steam as the motive power on Tramways, so that at the present time there are between two and three hundred motors at work in the United Kingdom, and there is little doubt the experience to be gained from their operations will materially assist us in determining the best means for performing the work of a steam Tramway. It is to be regretted, however, that in the details of their working in most instances the Tramway Companies omit the information essential to admit of comparisons with the work done here. It is true we are told on a mileage basis the cost of working, repairing, &c., but little is said about the actual mileage per day of engine or car; no sections of the lines (a most important factor) are given; the daily loads hauled, the proportion of live to dead haulage, the prices paid for materials, &c., are all omitted. Labour cost on a mileage basis is the only factor given that we can compare, and in doing so I find we have to pay 500 per cent. more in wages as a running cost, and if the comparison is carried into traffic and maintenance of way, there is little doubt the expenditure under this head will be found to be even greater.

From the foregoing the Commissioner will be able to estimate the value of comparative cost per mile run if the figures are considered without due regard to the factors which promote or take from the soundness of the comparison.

Attached are the usual detail returns of engines, cars, and other rolling stock and machinery in workshops, &c.

I have, &c.,

GEO. DOWNE.

1 February, 1884—Live Stock Rates and Conditions.

SMALL CONSIGNMENTS.

$\frac{1}{4}$ Truck, i.e. , 4 Cows or Oxen, or 10 Calves, 1 Dock of Sheep, or 30 Pigs.	$\frac{1}{2}$ Truck, i.e. , 2 Cows or Oxen, or 5 Calves, or 20 Sheep, or 15 pigs.	Single Cow or Ox.	Sheep or Pigs, when less than $\frac{1}{4}$ Truck.	Calves, when less than $\frac{1}{4}$ Truck.
6d. per mile.....	4d. per mile.....	3d. per mile .....	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. each per mile.....	1d. each per mile.
Minimum, 10s.....	Minimum, 7s. 6d. ....	Min., 7s. 6d. each.....	Min., 1s. 6d. each.....	Minimum, 2s. each.

When the number of animals or the space occupied exceeds the limit for  $\frac{1}{4}$  or  $\frac{1}{2}$  truck, each one in excess will be charged at the mileage rates enumerated above for single animals until the  $\frac{1}{2}$  or full truck rate, as the case may be, is reached.

In ascertaining what portion of a truck is to be charged for, i.e.,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $\frac{1}{2}$ , or full truck, regard will be had to the space actually occupied more than to the number of animals; but in no case must the number of animals stated above be exceeded.

Mixed stock will be carried together in the same truck, provided the whole consignment belongs to one person, and the Commissioner is relieved of all responsibility. When mixed stock cannot be loaded together, each kind will be charged for separately, with the following exception—On Thursdays single animals conveyed to Sydney in the same trucks, although belonging to different owners, will be charged at a proportion of  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{3}$ , or full truck rate, plus 25 per cent.; for example, should there be two cows, each owner will be charged half of the  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck rate, plus 25 per cent., and should there be three animals, the owners will be charged the  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck rate equally between them, plus 25 per cent. It is absolutely necessary that each animal be legibly addressed.

When the charge per head for Live Stock exceeds that for  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck, or when the charge for a part truck exceeds that for a full one, only the lesser amount will be collected.

BULLS.

The charge for Bulls is 7d. each per mile up to 100 miles, and 4d. for every additional mile, plus the charge for 100 miles; if more than one in a truck, 4d. each per mile; for  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck and upwards, cattle rates. Minimum, 12s. 6d.

VALUABLE RAMS AND EWES.

If less than  $\frac{1}{4}$  a truck load, will be charged 2d. each per mile; for  $\frac{1}{4}$  a truck and upwards, Sheep rates. Minimum, 5s.

HORSES.

See full truck rates. No less charge than for a full truck load will be made for any number.

When Live Stock is returned from Sydney or Homebush to Country Stations, in those neighbourhoods to which Cattle Trucks and Sheep Vans are being sent empty, half the above rates will be charged, provided the owners wait the requirements of the Department, but not otherwise.

GREAT SOUTHERN, WESTERN, AND RICHMOND, AND NORTHERN LINES.

HORSES.

The Commissioner will carry Horses in Cattle Trucks if requested to do so, but only under special contract, relieving him of all responsibility. The charge for horses so carried will be the same as for cattle in full truck loads.

Pigs—Same as Cattle. Minimum, 15s.

(When a double decked waggon is occupied, 50 per cent. will be added.)

Under the foregoing Herd and Flock Rates for Cattle, Sheep, Horses, and Pigs, no less charge than for one full truck will be made for each and every truck used.

4th October, 1882.

Mixed stock will be carried together in the same truck, provided the whole consignment belongs to one person, and the Commissioner is relieved of all responsibility. When mixed stock cannot be loaded together each kind will be charged for separately with the following exception:—

On Thursdays single animals conveyed to Sydney in the same trucks, although belonging to different owners, will be charged at a proportion of  $\frac{1}{4}$ ,  $\frac{2}{3}$ , or full truck rate, plus 25 per cent.; for example, should there be two cows, each owner will be charged half of the  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck rate, plus 25 per cent. and should there be three animals, the owners will be charged the  $\frac{1}{4}$  truck rate equally between them, plus 25 per cent. It is absolutely necessary that each animal be legibly addressed.

When the charge per head for live stock exceeds that for a quarter truck, or when the charge for a part truck on market days exceeds that for a full one, only the lesser amount will be collected.

Herd, Flocks, &c., when in consignments of not less than one full truck load.

Exchange of Parcels, &amp;c., Traffic between New South Wales and Victorian Lines.

Parcels, excess luggage, and commercial travellers' samples are booked through between New South Wales and Victorian Stations at the undermentioned rates:—

For those parcels booked through between Sydney and Melbourne the rates are—

		Not exceeding	3 lbs.....	s.	d.
Over	3 but "	"	7 "	3	0
"	7 "	"	14 "	4	6
"	14 "	"	28 "	6	0

and 2s. 6d. for every additional 28 lbs. or part thereof.

All other parcels, &c., from New South Wales Stations to Victorian Stations are booked to Wodonga, and those from Victorian to New South Wales Stations are booked to Albury at the rates named below.

Between Albury and Victorian Stations the ordinary Victorian rates are charged (189 miles from Melbourne), and, in addition, the following charges for the New South Wales Department are added:—

		Not exceeding	3 lbs.....	s.	d.
Over	3 "	"	7 "	0	3
"	7 "	"	14 "	0	4
"	14 "	"	28 "	0	6

and 3d. for every additional 28 lbs. or part thereof, and for the purposes of charging parcels, &c., from New South Wales Stations to Wodonga, the latter station is regarded as 388 miles from Sydney, and the charges calculated accordingly, plus the rates named above.

Parcels between Albury and Wodonga are charged double the above rates.

Press parcels are charged one-fourth the above rates—minimum, New South Wales Line, 3d.

Packed parcels in hampers, crates, bags, cases, or other packages are charged quadruple the above rates, and the onus of proving that parcels are not packed rests with the consignors or consignees.

When two or more parcels are consigned to one person the above rates are charged on each parcel separately.

Bicycles, feathers, furniture, glass, hats, bonnet or hat boxes, cases of millinery, straw bonnets, mirrors (loose), musical instruments, perambulators, sulkies in pieces, pictures, sewing-machines, wicker-work, wire cages (loose), or other articles light or fragile, are considered admeasurement goods, and are charged 50 per cent. additional on the above rates. Parcels containing articles and property of a description not mentioned or specified in the following clause, such articles and property being over £10 in value, are, in addition to the amount chargeable by the foregoing scale of rates, charged a further sum equal to 1 per centum upon the declared value thereof.

Parcels containing any of the following articles are charged the following increased rates, viz.:—Over £10 and under £50 in value, double, and over £50 in value, quadruple, parcel rates, viz.:—Gold or silver coin of this realm, or of any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or of any foreign state, or any gold or silver in a manufactured or unmanufactured state, or any precious stones, jewellery, watches, clocks, or time-pieces of any description, trinkets, bills, notes of any banks in Her Majesty's dominions, or of any foreign bank, order, notes, or securities for payment of money, whether foreign or otherwise, stamps, maps, writings, title-deeds, paintings, engravings, pictures, gold or silver plate, or plated articles, glass, China, silk in a manufactured or unmanufactured state, and whether wrought up or not wrought up with other materials, furs or lace or any of them contained in any parcel or package.

The trainage on all parcels conveyed under bond must be prepaid.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RAILWAY BRIDGES INQUIRY COMMISSION.

(FINAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 8 September, 1885.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONORABLE LORD AUGUSTUS WILLIAM FREDERICK SPENCER LOFTUS, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

May it please your Excellency,—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Royal Commission, appointed on the 23rd day of April, 1884, to make a diligent and full inquiry into the stability of certain iron bridges constructed on the Existing Lines of Railway, and also of the timber approaches to the Bridge over the Murrumbidgee River, at Wagga Wagga, in the Colony of New South Wales, beg to submit our FINAL REPORT, as follows:—

As was stated in our Progress Report, which was forwarded to your Excellency on 25th March, 1885, the circumstances which led to the appointment of the Commission, and which have been an important feature in the various matters that in the course of our inquiry have come before us, namely, the differences of opinion or the want of harmony existing between the two great branches of the Railway Department with regard to the construction and maintenance of the Railway bridges, render it necessary, for the information of those more particularly interested in the work and the conclusions of the Commission, as well as for the information of the general public, that some statement of the correspondence which has passed between the officers of the Department more immediately concerned in this inquiry, should be given. That statement will be found in a separate paper accompanying this Report. In brief it is as follows:—Mr. Cowdery, in the performance of his duty as Engineer for Existing Lines, thought it necessary to renew what he considered to be loose rivets and defective work in certain iron bridges. Being, by the nature of his appointment, responsible for the safety of the bridges, he appears to have thought it unnecessary to refer to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, Mr. Whitton, for his advice in the matter, and to have considered himself competent to deal with the subject without such reference. He, however, applied to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways for the drawings or plans of these bridges, but these drawings or plans the Engineer-in-Chief declined to supply. Mr. Whitton, finding that some extensive riveting had been done in some of the bridges, and his attention having been drawn to some comments in the Press upon the insecurity of these structures, wrote a minute to the Minister for Works, recommending that this riveting, which he considered to be injurious to the stability of the bridges, should be discontinued. Mr. Cowdery, supported by the reports of his officers, assured the Commissioner for Railways that the bridges were very defective, and he was thereupon instructed by the Commissioner to report upon their condition. This report was forwarded to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways who, also supported by his officers, reported to the Minister that the bridges were in good condition, and that "no better bridges, with regard to material and workmanship, were ever built."

This difference of opinion led to a personal attack on the one side, and to recrimination on the other; Mr. Cowdery regarding the statements of Mr. Whitton as an insult to him and to his officers. At this point, in order to arrive at a sound decision in the dispute, the Minister being unable to deal with the technical matters involved, and being desirous of having the question thoroughly investigated for the satisfaction of the Government, and to allay any feeling of alarm that might have arisen in the minds of the public as to the stability of the bridges over which so many thousands of persons are constantly travelling, determined to refer the subject for inquiry to a Commission of Experts, and this decision being approved by the Cabinet, and afterwards confirmed by the Executive Council, a Commission was appointed in the first place in October, 1883, of certain gentlemen whose appointments were subsequently cancelled, and afterwards, on 23rd April, 1884, of those whose names are appended to this Report.

The two parts into which we divided our inquiry, as mentioned in our Progress Report, necessitated the taking of evidence in respect to the matters referred to, and also an inspection of the bridges, as it was necessary to see that the bridges had been well designed and were well constructed.

In the taking of the evidence we were careful to examine as far as could possibly be done every person who had been connected with the design, construction, erection, or maintenance of the bridges, so that each side in the dispute might be fairly represented, and in order that we should have every information before us to enable us to form a correct opinion upon the matters referred to us for inquiry.

A personal inspection and testing of every bridge were made with the greatest possible care and accuracy, and this, with the evidence taken, led us to undertake an investigation of the design of each bridge, so as to ascertain by calculation whether the stresses in the different parts of the girders corresponded with the sectional area of the metal provided to resist them.

Diagrams referring to the stresses and sections have been prepared, and will be found in detail as Appendices, as also diagrams representing the method of testing the bridges and showing the loads to which they were subjected, and the deflections thereby produced.

We have taken in our calculation of the stresses applied to the bridges the unit stress generally recognized by engineers, and set down in the British Board of Trade Regulations for Railway bridges, namely, 4 tons per square inch of sectional area in compression, and 5 tons in tension.

The

The live load has been taken as follows:—

In	60 feet span, single line, 1·5 ton per foot run on bridge.
„ 130 & 150	„ „ 1·4	„	„
„ 162	„ double line, 2·8	„	„
„ 198	„ „ 2·5	„	„

The dead load per foot run on bridge, and the effective span and depth of the girders, have also been taken in each case.

The calculations computed from all these data give the sectional areas required, and by comparison with the actual sections adopted in the design and carried out in construction the excess or deficiency of metal in the girders, and the load each bridge will carry with safety, are shown.

After careful consideration of the details of construction, the defects—regarding the importance of which the evidence is very conflicting—were minutely inspected by us and the loose rivets tested, in order to ascertain if the extensive riveting which has taken place in some of the bridges under the direction of the Engineer for Existing Lines has been useless expenditure and injurious to the bridges as stated by the Engineer-in-Chief. This careful inspection was made both before and after the testing of each bridge.

Before testing the bridges, returns were obtained from the Locomotive Engineer of the weight, length, and wheel base of locomotives and tenders of each class in use on the different lines of railways, to determine the load with which the deflections should be ascertained.

The live load taken in the calculations was not exceeded, as only a proportion of this load can be applied to the bridges by the heaviest traffic likely to pass over them.

The deflections were recorded in each case under the following circumstances:—

1. The locomotives standing on the bridge in various positions.
2. Running full speed across the bridge.
3. Running full speed, and applying the brakes when coming on the bridge.

The recording instruments (which were very sensitive, and increased the deflection eight times) were placed principally in the centre of the girders, and at points of contrary flexure. The pencils were fixed at the datum line before the testing began, and it was ascertained that no permanent set occurred in any of the bridges with the loads applied.

The result of this interesting portion of the work of the Commission forms the subject of some of the recommendations made in this Report.

We submit in this Report, in a condensed form, a description of each bridge; but our remarks upon the inspection, construction, and testing are more elaborately given in detail in the accompanying Special Reports.

The order in which the bridges examined are dealt with is as follows:—

SOUTHERN LINE.

Menangle Bridge, over the Nepean River; completed in 1863.

Wollondilly Bridges—Barber's Creek, Carrick, Wollondilly River, Boxer's Creek, and Mulwarrec Creek; completed in 1869.

Wagga Wagga Bridge, over the Murrumbidgee River; completed in 1880.

WESTERN

WESTERN LINE.

Penrith Bridge, over the Nepean River; completed in 1867.

Solitary Creek Bridges—Tarana, 4th crossing, 3rd crossing, 2nd crossing, and 1st crossing; completed in 1872.

Bathurst Bridge, over the Macquarie River, completed in 1876.

Wellington Bridge, over the Macquarie River; completed in 1881.

NORTHERN LINE.

Aberdeen Bridge, over the Hunter River; completed in 1871.

Tamworth Bridge, over the Peel River; completed in 1882.

Peel-street Bridge (Tamworth), over Peel-street; completed in 1882.

Macdonald River Bridge; completed in 1882.

Wagga Wagga Timber Viaduct, completed in 1880.

The Menangle and Penrith bridges are designed to carry a double line, and all the other bridges a single line, of rails.

The permanent-way in every bridge is supported upon a timber platform fixed to iron cross-girders, spaced 3 feet from centre to centre.

SOUTHERN BRIDGES.

Menangle Bridge.

This bridge consists of three spans, each 150 feet in the clear, and is constructed with two main girders 486 feet long over all, and 25 feet 6 inches apart. The girders are 12 feet 6 inches in height, and are constructed with top and bottom boxes and central cells formed of two webs. The piers are of stone 162 feet between centres, and the main girders are continuous over two piers. The cross girders are 25 feet 6 inches long, and formed of flange-plates and double angle-irons at top and bottom, riveted to a web-plate.

The main girders are supported upon beds of timber laid on top of the stone piers. Expansion rollers between cast-iron plates are provided over three piers.

At present a single line of rails only is laid on this bridge.

The defects of design or construction are as follows, viz.:—

- (1) Decay of portion of timber supporting main girders over piers.
- (2) Want of access and drainage to bottom cells of girders.
- (3) Imperfect contact in riveted plates and angle or tee irons, and looseness of rivets.

Some loose rivets have already been replaced, but no weakness appears in the portion of the work to which nothing has yet been done. The greatest deflection in 1863, with 5 locomotives weighing 290 tons, was '60 inches, and in 1885, with 3 locomotives (equal to a live load of '92 per foot run on the loaded girder), as taken by us, '50 inches. The passing of an ordinary goods train across the bridge showed a maximum deflection of '44.

The safe load the bridge will carry is 1.15 tons per foot run on each line of rails, equal to 2.3 tons per foot run on the whole bridge, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression, and 5 tons in tension.

Wollondilly Bridges.

These bridges are five in number and comprise two spans of 130 feet and thirty-two spans of 60 feet. The 130 feet spans are formed of plate girders 140 feet long over all, 10 feet 3 inches in height, with double web and plate booms, and are spaced spaced 14 feet apart. The 60 feet spans are formed of plate girders 65 feet 6 inches long overall, 4 feet 9 inches in height, with single web and plate booms, and are spaced 12 feet 10 inches apart. The 130 feet spans are at the first and second crossings of the Wollondilly River, all the other bridges being of 60 feet spans. All the cross-girders are 14 feet long, formed of double angle-iron flanges top and bottom, riveted to a plate web. All the piers are of brick in cement, with stone caps. The main girders rest and slide upon metal plates bedded upon the piers. The girders of the 60 feet spans, many of which are built on the skew, are bedded on sheet lead at each end.

In our inspection of these bridges we noticed the following defects, viz. :—

130 feet spans.—The calculations show that the top boom will only carry 1.1 tons per foot run of bridge with a unit stress of 4 tons per square inch of section. The other parts of the girders are, however, strong enough to carry the calculated live load of 1.4 tons per foot run on span. The flange joints in main girders and angle-iron wrappers are barely sufficient in plate and rivet area. The expansion arrangement is not sufficiently protected to prevent cinder ballast from accumulating round the bearings of the girders.

There is no record of the first testing of these spans, but the greatest deflection we obtained in testing was .59 in the centre of the girders, with a load equal to .9 tons per foot run.

60 feet spans.—The flange plates joints are weaker than the rest of the girders, and a greater strain is brought upon the rivets.

The expansion arrangement is defective; the lead on which the girders rest becomes gradually destroyed, and the cinder ballast falling between the ends of the girders and the parapets of piers is injurious and prevents the examination and cleaning of the bearings.

The camber is irregular, varying from 0 to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches in some of the girders. A sag occurs in each of the five spans of the Barber's Creek viaduct, but we could not obtain positive information to show with what camber they had been built.

The original deflection is recorded as .25 inch, and the greatest deflection we obtained was .625 in the centre of girder, with a live load equal to 1.50 tons per foot run on the bridge. The ordinary traffic (goods train) causes a deflection of .562 inch in centre of girder.

The safe load these bridges will carry is 1.1 tons per foot run on bridge, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

Wagga Wagga Bridge.

This bridge consists of four openings, each 150 feet in the clear, and is constructed of two main lattice girders 639 feet long over all, and 14 feet apart in the clear. The girders are 12 feet 3 inches in height, and are constructed with trough-shaped plate booms and double lattice web. The cross girders are 14 feet 8 inches long, formed of double angle-iron flanges at top and bottom, riveted to a plate web. The piers are 159 feet from centre to centre and are of cast iron cylinders, filled with concrete, and connected with wrought iron diagonal bracing. The main girders are continuous over three piers, and are supported upon cast iron bed-plates, fixed on the top of the piers. Expansion rollers are placed over four piers.

With the exception of some loose rivets we did not remark any defects in this bridge. The

The record of the testing of this bridge in 1880, with three locomotive engines, weighing 185 tons, was .63 inches on the centre span, and .74 on the end spans.

The safe load this bridge will carry is 1.52 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

WESTERN BRIDGES.

Penrith Bridge.

This bridge consists of three openings of 186 feet and one approach span of 127 feet in the clear.

The main girders of the 186 feet openings are 594 feet long and 28 feet 6 inches apart. The girders are 13 feet in height, and are constructed with top and bottom boxes, and central cells formed of two webs. The piers are of stone, 198 feet between centres, and the main girders are continuous over two piers. The cross girders are 26 feet 3 inches long, and formed of flange plates, and double angle-irons at top and bottom, riveted to a web plate. The main girders are supported upon a bed of timber, and the expansion rollers are similarly arranged to those in Menangle Bridge.

The approach span is formed of two separate plate girders, double web, and cellular top and plate bottom booms, the cross girders being similar to those of the larger spans.

There is at present only a single line of rails laid on the bridge, the remaining portion of the width being used for road traffic.

The bridge is of the same type as that at Menangle, and has similar defects. The small size of the top and bottom cells renders inspection and repairs very difficult.

The timber platforms supporting the main girders show signs of decay.

We find by calculation that in the booms the unit stress produced by the live load of 1.25 tons per foot run on each line of way, or 2.50 tons on whole span, is equal to 4.64 tons per square inch in compression, and 5.82 tons in tension, but the shearing stress in the web over piers is equal to 9.3 tons. This shearing stress is equal to 7.9 tons on one line of way, including ordinary road traffic on the other part of the bridge. This is in excess of the intensity of stress allowed by the Board of Trade. Mr. Whitton, however, in his evidence, states that the rivet iron in the Penrith bridge is particularly good, and that he would not consider a stress of  $7\frac{1}{2}$  tons per square inch upon such rivets dangerous.

The rivet area in covering plates of booms over  $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch thick, and in angle-iron wrappers, is barely sufficient.

The stresses in the cross girders would exceed a safe limit with a double line of way.

The testing of the bridge with a load of 1 ton per foot run on the main girder next to rails gave a deflection of .93 inch.

There is no record of the original testing. The deflection with an ordinary goods train was .75 inch.

Some recommendations will be made regarding the alterations necessary to increase the rivet area over piers where the shearing stress occurs, and for duplicating the line on this bridge in the future.

Approach

Approach Span—Main Girders.—The only defect in these girders is that the top cell is inaccessible for inspection and repairs.

The greatest deflection with the same load as on the larger spans was .70 inch.

Solitary Creek Bridges.

These bridges are five in number, comprising six spans of 60 feet each in the clear, and are constructed with separate plate girders, 4 feet 9 inches in height, having single web and plate booms 65 feet 6 inches long and 13 feet apart in the clear.

The cross girders are 14 feet 3 inches long, and are similar in construction to those of the Wollondilly Bridges.

The ends of the main girders are bedded upon sheet lead, resting on the stone caps of the piers, which are built of brickwork in cement.

We observed in the inspection of these bridges that the expansion arrangement is defective, and presents the same obstructions to examination and cleaning as the 60-foot spans of the Wollondilly Bridges.

The bed stones had become unset and broken by the expansion of the girders, but they have now been made good with brickwork in cement.

The girders were built with a camber of  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch, but this has decreased in some of them.

The testing of these bridges, with a consolidation goods engine weighing with tender 75 tons, showed a deflection of .54 inch as against .35 inch after the first testing with a 42-ton engine.

The safe load these bridges will carry is 1.06 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension; but with a live load, equal to 1.5 tons per foot run on bridge, the unit stresses will be increased to 4.3 tons in compression and 6.1 tons in tension.

Bathurst Bridge.

This bridge is of the same type as the Wagga Wagga Bridge, but consists only of three openings of 150 feet each, in the clear, constructed with two main lattice girders, each 480 feet long over all, and 14 feet apart in the clear. The cross girders are 14 feet 8 inches long, and are similar to those of the Wagga Wagga Bridge. The piers are spaced 159 feet, centre to centre, and are formed of cast-iron cylinders filled with concrete, connected with wrought-iron diagonal bracing. The main girders are continuous over two piers, and supported upon cast-iron bed-plates fixed on the top of the cylinders. Expansion rollers are placed over three piers.

The only defects in this bridge are in a portion of the span which has not been riveted. The angle-irons are not in close contact with the horizontal and vertical plates of booms; some of the angle-iron wrappers are not in close contact; and some of the rivets are loose.

The testing of this bridge, with a load of 1.4 tons per foot run, gave a deflection of .84 inch, and with an ordinary goods train .46 inch.

The record of the first testing in 1876, with three engines weighing 178 tons, gives a maximum deflection of .78 inch on the centre span and .77 on end span.

The safe load the bridge will carry is 1.6 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

Wellington

Wellington Bridge.

This bridge consists of five openings. The three openings over the main stream are each 150 feet in the clear, and the main girders, cross-girders, and piers are similar to those of the Bathurst Bridge. The end spans are each 61 feet in the clear, constructed with two separate plate girders 12 feet 3 inches in height, single web and plate booms, 65 feet 8 inches over all and 14 feet 8 inches apart in the clear; the cross-girders are similar to those of the 150-foot spans, and the piers are also formed of cast iron cylinders, &c. The expansion arrangement consists of sliding plates.

During our inspection of this bridge our attention was directed to a difference of level of more than 3 inches in one of the land piers. This is attributed by the Engineer for Existing Lines to a settlement of the pier, which he believes will increase after heavy floods. The Engineer-in-Chief asserts that the difference of level is due to an error in the erection of the pier, and that the foundation is good.

The piers have been tested with a load of 150 tons without showing any sign of settlement. The evidence is contradictory; but we do not think that any sudden sinking will take place, although the difference of level should be watched and recorded, particularly before and after every flood.

The other defects in the construction of this bridge are the unsymmetrical positions of the main girders upon the cast iron bed plates, to the extent of from 4 to 9 inches, the want of close contact between the plates and angle irons and channel irons with web, and some loose rivets.

The testing of the bridge with a load of 1.4 tons per foot run showed a deflection of .84 inch, and with an ordinary goods train .461 inch. The record of the first testing in 1881, with three engines weighing 174 tons, gives a deflection of .64 inch on the centre span and .72 inch on the end spans.

The safe load the bridge will carry is the same as that of the Bathurst Bridge, viz., 1.6 tons per foot run.

The testing of the approach span with a load of 1.05 tons per foot run showed a deflection of .36 inch in centre of span.

The record of the first testing in 1881 with a 63-ton engine is .33 inch.

NORTHERN BRIDGES.

Aberdeen Bridge.

This bridge is similar to the Bathurst Bridge, consisting of three openings of 150 feet each in the clear, and constructed with two main lattice girders 480 feet long over all, and 14 feet apart.

The main girders, expansion arrangement, cross girders, and the piers are similar to those at Bathurst and Wellington Bridges.

In our inspection of this bridge we found the defects to be want of closeness in the joints of plates and bars, imperfect butting of plates in compression, space between plates of booms and cross-girders, loose rivets, and want of proper access to the expansion arrangement.

The

The testing of the bridge with a load of 1·37 tons per foot run showed a deflection of ·83 inch. The record of the first testing in 1871, with three engines weighing 170 tons, shows a deflection of ·68 inch on the centre span and ·79 on the end spans.

The safe load the bridge will carry is the same as that of the Bathurst and Wellington Bridges, viz., 1·6 tons per foot run.

Peel-street (Tamworth) Bridge.

This bridge consists of one span 61 feet in the clear, and is constructed with two separate plate girders 6 feet 3 inches in height, having single web and plate booms 65 feet 8 inches long over all, and 14 feet 8 inches apart. The span is similar to the approach spans of the Wellington Bridge. The cross girders are 14 feet 3 inches long and similar to those of the Aberdeen Bridge.

The piers are of brick in cement, with stone caps.

The expansion arrangement consists of sliding plates.

There are no defects in this bridge except a few loose rivets.

The original deflection is recorded as ·30 inch, and the greatest deflection we obtained with a 66 tons locomotive was ·29 inch.

The safe load this bridge will carry is 1·78 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

Tamworth Bridge.

This bridge consists of one span 150 feet in the clear, and is constructed with two main lattice girders, double web and plate booms 161 feet 9 inches long over all, 12 feet 3 inches in height, and 14 feet apart. The cross girders are 14 feet 8 inches, and similar in construction to those of Aberdeen Bridge. The piers are formed of cast iron cylinders filled with concrete, and connected by wrought iron diagonal bracing.

The main girders are supported upon cast iron bed plates, fixed on top of cylinders, and expansion rollers are placed at one end of the girder.

The principal defects we found in this bridge were some loose rivets, and difficulty of access to the expansion arrangement.

The testing of the bridge with a load of 1·4 tons per foot run showed a maximum deflection of ·90 inch. The record of the first testing in 1882, with three engines weighing 174 tons, shows ·78 inch in the centre of the girders. The deflection caused by the ordinary mail train, with only one locomotive, was ·566 inch.

The safe load the bridge will carry is 1·6 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress equal to 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

MacDonald River Bridge.

This bridge is similar in design to the Tamworth Bridge, except that the piers are of brick in cement.

It has similar defects.

The testing, with a load of 1·4 tons per foot run, gave a maximum deflection of 1·03 inches. The record of the first testing of the bridge in 1882, with three engines weighing 174 tons, shows a deflection of ·72 inch in the centre. The deflection caused by the ordinary mail train, with only one locomotive, was ·578 inch.

The safe load the bridge will carry is 1·6 tons per foot run, with an intensity of stress of 4 tons per square inch in compression and 5 tons in tension.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The result of our consideration of the designs and our calculations upon the working live load that each bridge will carry with safety, together with the test load applied to each bridge, and the deflection produced by it, is summarized in the following table :—

Name of Bridge.	Effective span.	Live load in tons per foot run taken in calculation.	Unit stresses produced by total load in tons per square inch.		Live load which the bridge will safely carry according to rules of the British Board of Trade Unit stresses, 4 tons per sq. inch in compression, and 5 tons in tension.	Test load reduced to tons per foot run of span tested.	Greatest deflection recorded by the Commission in testing the bridges in 1885.

Our inspection of the bridges and investigation of the defects and loose rivets, pointed out by the officers of the Department of Existing Lines, did not disclose such weakness in the bridges as the information supplied would have led us to believe. On the one side, Mr. Whitton's officers admitted that some defects and a few loose rivets existed, but gave a decided opinion that the strength of the structures was not affected by the imperfect work ; and on the other side, Mr. Cowdery and his officers insisted upon the necessity of making good the visible and apparent defects to prevent the deterioration of the material, and that no time should be lost in doing what they regarded as a very important and urgent work indispensable to the stability of the bridges.

RECOMMENDATIONS WITH REFERENCE TO THE IRON BRIDGES.

In making recommendations, we are aware of the great responsibility resting upon the Engineer in charge of maintenance, and his officers, whose duty it is to renew any defective materials. Every detail of the design and construction should be known to the Engineer for Existing Lines, who should have for reference copies of the plans from which the bridges have been built.

In order to decide whether a certain group of rivets are to be cut out and replaced the stresses which the rivets in question have to transmit should be ascertained, and also the amount of effective rivet area which is necessary to transmit these stresses with safety after making due allowance for looseness and other defects, or the percentage of rivets in excess of the effective rivet area required. It is not necessary to cut out and replace rivets simply because they seem slightly loose, unless the looseness is such as to make them vibrate with passing loads.

After hearing all the evidence and carefully examining the bridges, we are unable to find any grounds for the allegation that rivets have been loosened by violent and improper testing.

By comparing the girders of the bridges in which thousands of rivets have been renewed with the girders in which no riveting has been done the difference in stiffness or deflection cannot be perceived, and although tight riveting is desirable a few loose rivets in the whole structure will not affect its safety.

At the time our Progress Report was forwarded to your Excellency, our consideration of the design of the bridges and our inspection of some of them had shown us that no apprehension need be felt by the Government for the safety of the travelling public, and we recommended that "no further alterations be made in the bridges until our final report has been submitted."

The recommendations we now make may be classified as follows:—

1. Regarding defects of workmanship.
2. Regarding defects preventing proper maintenance.
3. Making alterations in some of the bridges to comply with the rules of the British Board of Trade, and to provide for heavier traffic in the future.

Other recommendations for proper maintenance will be found in the Special Reports on each bridge.

Menangle Bridge.

1. Replacing decayed timber platform supporting main girders over piers. Re-riveting tee irons and web plates and angle iron wrappers in which loose rivets occur.
2. Facilitating the inspection of the cells of booms by proper ventilation and drainage holes in such places not affecting the stresses on the parts where they are made.

130 feet spans.

We have no recommendation to make with reference to these spans.

60 feet spans.

1. Removing the lead on which the girders rest, and placing a simple cast iron bed-plate under the ends of the girders; two adjoining girders being fixed on a bed-plate and sliding at the opposite ends on other plates with longitudinal strips to prevent lateral displacement.
2. Cutting away a portion of pilaster over piers to give access to expansion arrangement referred to above.

Wagga

Wagga Wagga Iron Bridge.

We do not recommend anything to be done to this bridge except the usual cleaning, repainting, &c., when necessary, and replacing a few rivets where showing signs of looseness.

Penrith Bridge.

1. We recommend the renewal of rivets in diaphragm plates of centre cells of girders, in covering plates of web, and in vertical tee iron attachment of cross girders where the rivets are loose and the parts in bad contact; also that where the rivets are loose in some of the angle iron wrappers, or where blank holes occur, the joint be entirely riveted.
2. Cutting convex surface on top of stone piers to permit the renewal of any portion of the decayed timber in the platform supporting the main girders.
(The obstructions to the entrance of the cells of bottom booms have been removed at our request, and the booms cleaned, but additional ventilation and drainage are necessary.)
3. The  $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch rivets uniting the webs to booms in the main girder next to rails to be replaced by rivets 1 inch in diameter for a distance of 40 feet on either side of the two middle piers and for 10 feet from end piers; not more than six rivets to be taken out and replaced at one time.

Before the line is duplicated on this bridge we recommend that the  $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch rivets uniting the webs to booms be replaced by 1 inch rivets on the other main girder for a distance of 40 feet on either side of the two middle piers and for 10 feet from end piers; also that a longitudinal girder be riveted to the cross girders the whole length of the bridge to distribute more effectually over several cross girders the weight brought upon them by the driving wheels of the engines when passing over.

Solitary Creek Bridges.

The recommendations made for the 60 feet spans of the Wollondilly Bridges also apply to these bridges.

Bathurst and Wellington Bridges.

We do not recommend anything to be done to these bridges beyond replacing a few rivets where positively loose.

Nothing should be done to the land pier at Wellington Bridge, reported to have sunk, until future observations prove that an actual sinking takes place.

Aberdeen Bridge.

We recommend the renewal of the angle wrappers where double holes or loose rivets occur, and the cutting out and removal of loose rivets where necessary.

Peel-street Bridge, Tamworth.

We have no recommendations to make with reference to this bridge.

Tamworth and MacDonal River Bridges.

We recommend a judicious removal of loose rivets in attachments of lattice bars in angle iron wrappers and in some of the joints of the booms.

Having

Having now dealt with the iron bridges, we proceed to refer to the Wagga Wagga timber viaduct.

WAGGA WAGGA TIMBER VIADUCT.

(From Bomen to Wagga.)

According to the documents submitted to us with reference to this viaduct, Mr. R. D. Stephens, District Engineer in the Existing Lines Department, having tested the viaduct on the 6th December, 1881, drew the attention of the Engineer for Existing Lines, in a report dated 16th January, 1882, to the great deflection of the timber girders, and commenting on what he considered to be an excessive length of span and corbels adopted in the design of the viaduct, advised that on account of the wavy motion of the engines when passing over the structure the speed should be limited to 18 miles an hour.

After subsequent reports from Mr. Stephens regarding defective girders and decayed piles, the matter in the meantime having been brought before the Commissioner for Railways, Mr. Goodchap, considering that it was a question affecting the stability of the viaduct, requested the Engineer for Existing Lines to personally examine the structure and report upon it.

Upon the receipt of this report, he directed that the speed of the trains should be reduced to 18 miles an hour.

Mr. Cowdery's report upon the examination of the viaduct was sent to the Commissioner on 13th June, 1882, and forwarded by him to the Engineer-in-Chief.

On 3rd October, Mr. Whitton forwarded for the information of the Minister, copies of reports received from officers in his Department upon a defective pile, and Mr. Cowdery having minuted upon these reports that it was desirable for engines not to run over the viaduct at a greater speed than 16 miles an hour, Mr. Goodchap before finally deciding to limit the speed to that extent, and before bringing the matter under the attention of the Minister, requested Messrs. Cowdery and Stephens to adopt such measures as were necessary to establish their statements.

Mr. Cowdery having again personally examined the viaduct, forwarded to the Commissioner a detailed list of imperfections in the structure, stating at the same time that the viaduct was quite as bad as reported by Mr. Stephens, and that he was of opinion that all the uprights and many of the girders would have to be removed within a few years.

This paper having been laid before the Minister by the Commissioner, the Minister directed that it be sent to the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways in order that he might have the work reported upon by his officers.

Mr. Whitton thereupon had the viaduct inspected by Messrs. Wade and Drewett, Officers in his Department, and sent the report of those gentlemen to the Minister for Works. This report stated that "the timber was to all appearances sound when put in, and that every care was taken to have the work properly carried out," but "that the dry rot which had made its appearance some time after the completion of the work was accelerated to a great extent by the timber having been cut when the sap was up instead of during the winter months," and that "the timber supports having a large margin of strength, no danger need be apprehended if the progress of the dry rot be carefully watched."

In the meantime Mr. Whitton asked the Minister to order that the props which Mr. Cowdery had directed to be put under the girders of the superstructure be removed as he considered they produced an impression that the viaduct was unsafe.

This

This paper having been forwarded by the Minister for Mr. Cowdery's perusal only, Mr. Cowdery in returning it to the Commissioner for Railways urged upon him in the strongest possible terms not to allow the props which had been put there by his instructions for the safety of the public, after a personal and careful examination, to be removed.

Description and Inspection of Viaduct.

The viaduct forms the approach to the Wagga Wagga iron bridge, over the portion of the Murrumbidgee River exposed to heavy floods. It consists of a series of timber spans, 29 feet 6 inches long, supported upon timber piers or trestles abutting upon embankments, except the span adjoining the iron bridge.

The piers are constructed of timber piles, headstocks, walings, and bracing, and consist of 1,288 piles in 322 rows, of which 58 rows are driven into the ground to a depth varying from 14 to 57 feet, and 264 rows are tenoned into sills bedded in concrete at depths of from 6 to 8 feet below the surface. The height of the piers varies from 5 feet to 16 feet.

The spans forming the viaduct are arranged as follows, viz.:—

No. 1	...	...	...	...	...	113 spans.
" 2	...	...	...	...	...	66 "
" 3	...	...	...	...	...	4 "
" 4	...	...	...	...	...	72 "
" 5	...	...	...	...	...	56 "
" 6	...	...	...	...	...	5 "

Total ... .. 316 spans,

Equal in length to more than  $1\frac{3}{4}$  miles.

The number of beams forming this large structure is 2,528, each 29 feet 6 inches long, 12 inches wide, and 12 inches deep, equal in length to more than 14 miles of hewn timber. They are all of ironbark.

Each span consists of four compound beams, two of which are under the rails and the other two on the outside, at a distance of 2 feet from the former. Eight transoms unite the four compound beams, and keep the upper and lower girders of each 6 inches apart. Corbels 10 feet long, 12 inches deep, and 12 inches wide, projecting 5 feet on each side of pier, support the ends of each compound beam. The whole is bolted together with 1-inch screw-bolts through six of the transoms, and with  $1\frac{1}{4}$ -inch screw-bolts through beams, corbels, and the two end transoms. The platform for the permanent way is formed of 3-inch planking, with ballast boards on each side.

The difference of opinion between the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways and the Engineer for Existing Lines and their respective officers, regarding defective timber and the stability of the viaduct, and also the removal of props placed under some of the girders to support them, and the question of the rigidity of the structure and reducing the speed of trains passing over it to 16 miles per hour, could not be decided by us with an inspection and testing of the viaduct only, and without a serious consideration of the design and calculations upon the strength of Colonial timber. The opinion of officers belonging to the two great branches of the Railway Department was so much at variance upon the co-efficient of safety to be taken in calculating the strength of Colonial timber, that we resolved to make experiments on a large scale to test the strength and elasticity of compound timber beams, similar to those used used in the Wagga Wagga and other viaducts on the Government Railways, and to determine a reliable co-efficient of safety. The particulars of these experiments will be referred to hereafter.

In our inspection of the viaduct, the detailed particulars of which are the subject of a Special Report, we found that properly seasoned timber for piles could not be obtained in the short period of time allowed for the erection of the viaduct and the opening of the line, and that the great distance from which the timbers had to be procured was taken into consideration in reference to the cost of the structure.

For this reason, in addition to ironbark the following timber was allowed to be used for piles, viz.:—Stringy-bark, ash, messmate, appletree, &c. The piles having been cut when the sap was up, instead of during the winter months, began to show signs of decay soon after the erection of the work, and in addition to the dry-rot, pipes and other defects were detected.

The number of piles in various stages of unsoundness were found to be eighty, equal to 1 in every 16 of the whole, and the number of unsound girders to be twenty, or 1 in 126; twenty-three piles are strutted and fifteen girders propped up.

The girders are of ironbark, and, except some occasional dry knot or bad heart, few defects were detected.

The question of the length of corbels (10ft.) being excessive is more particularly referred to in our experiments on the compound beam.

Great attention has been paid on the maintenance of the viaduct. Holes have been drilled to reach the pipes of the piles, and a composition injected to preserve the timber from insects and decay; bolts are kept well screwed up, and additional ones have been put in when necessary to stop the extending of the cracks in the hewn timber caused by atmospheric influences.

From returns furnished by the Engineer for Existing Lines, the cost of maintenance of the Wagga Viaduct from the time it was opened for traffic in September, 1880, to the 26th July, 1883, was £1,546 10s. 9d.

Taking the average life of a bridge constructed with good timber and properly maintained to be 25 years, the yearly renewal of the material will be about 4 per cent. of the whole. From the analysis of our timber inspection we find, however, that owing to the defects stated to exist in the piles of the Wagga Viaduct nearly the whole of the piers may have to be renewed within 20 years, whereas the superstructure being of ironbark may last over 25 years.

It is important to notice this as it may guide the Government Engineer in the future design of large timber structures, to calculate if the difference of cost of construction and maintenance of timber viaducts, compared with structures of iron and other materials, is the most economical system to be adopted.

In comparing the design of the Wagga Viaduct with the timber viaducts erected in Victoria, we find that some timber can be saved by a change of design which under similar circumstances presents the same objections regarding the duration of the material.

The testing of the Wagga Viaduct with two engines weighing each 63 tons 16 cwt. 3 qrs., running at more than 20 miles per hour, showed a deflection of less than half an inch except in three spans where it reached as much as .59 inch.

Comparing

Comparing these deflections with those obtained in the experiments referred to, we found that the Wagga Viaduct gave satisfactory results, the maximum load produced by the engines under testing on one span of the viaduct being equivalent to a distributed load of 42 tons, or to 12·4 tons on each rail-bearing compound girder, and that the viaduct is more than sufficiently strong for the heaviest traffic which passes over it.

Having given careful attention to the oscillating and plunging motion of the engines as mentioned by the officers of the Existing Lines Department, we found nothing more abnormal in this motion than is usually accumulated in a large number of small uniform spans, when the elasticity of the timber has to be taken into account. We tested accurately the motion of the beams and trestles in every direction and found very little movement at any speed. Observations were also taken from an ordinary passenger carriage and from the overhanging platform of a bogie car. As a final test we rode on the engines when running at a speed exceeding 30 miles an hour, and found but little difference when running over the viaduct or on the embankments. The viaduct is therefore sufficiently stiff for the heaviest traffic that passes over it. We do not, therefore, see any reason why the ordinary speed of trains passing over the viaduct should be reduced, and we are of opinion that with proper maintenance no danger need be apprehended on account of the speed.

EXPERIMENTS FOR TESTING THE STRENGTH OF TIMBER GIRDERS.

These experiments were made at the Government Railway siding at Clyde, near Granville, and are more fully detailed in our Special Report upon the subject.

A compound beam, similar to those in the Wagga Viaduct, was erected upon two trestles representing piers, and gradually loaded in the centre until a weight of about 10 tons had been reached, the deflection being noted at each test. The deflections were also recorded with varying loads under the following circumstances, with all the bolts screwed tightly, viz:—

1. Compound beam, 29 feet 6 inches long, with 10-foot corbels, and 12-inch, 9-inch, and 6-inch transoms between the beams.
2. Compound beam with 6-inch transoms, and 10-foot, 8-foot, and 6-foot corbels respectively.

A compound beam 26 feet long, similar to those used on nearly all timber viaducts constructed before the Wagga Viaduct, was then erected upon the trestles and loaded in the centre until the weight reached 10½ tons, and the deflection was recorded at each test under the following circumstances:—

1. With the length of corbels 8 feet and with 6-inch transoms between the girders and all bolts screwed tightly.
2. The same with slack bolts.
3. The same with the transoms removed and the beams tightly bolted together.

From the experiments with corbels we found that by shortening the corbels from 10 feet to 8 feet or 6 feet, the central deflection of the girder was increased while the deflection of the corbels was diminished; and from the experiments with slack bolts we found that the strength of the compound beam may be reduced according to the slacking of the bolts from 35 per cent. to 68 per cent.; also that girders bolted together without any blocks or transoms between them are much stiffer than with them.

CO-EFFICIENTS OF RUPTURE AND OF ELASTICITY.

The co-efficients or modulus of rupture and the modulus of elasticity of Colonial timber not having been definitely established for large sized timbers, we resolved to complete our investigations upon the strength and elasticity of compound beams by testing to the breaking point an ironbark girder 12½ inches deep by 12¼ inches wide, and 29 feet 6 inches long.

The beam was gradually loaded in the centre, and the deflection noted at each addition to the load until it began to crack with a load of 16·55 tons showing a deflection of 7·62 inches.

The loading was continued until the beam broke with a load of 19·55 tons showing a deflection of 12 inches.

Comparing our experiments with those made as far back as 1861 by Major-General Ward, R.E. (then Captain Ward), and Mr. Trickett at the Royal Mint, Sydney, on small scantling, and with those made more recently by the Victorian Railway Department, in October 1880, on larger timbers, the particulars of which were sent to us by Mr. R. Watson the Engineer-in-Chief for Victorian Railways, and with the experiments made by Mr. Whitton on scantlings used in our timber viaducts, we obtained the following results :—

	Major-General Ward, R.E., and Mr. Trickett, at Royal Mint, Sydney. Scantling 2" x 2" x 4 ft. long. (1)	Mr. John Whitton, Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, N.S.W. Scantling 12" x 12" x 20 ft long. (2)	Victorian Railway Department. Scantling 11" x 7½" x 14' 8" long. (3)	Railway Bridges Inquiry Commission. Experiments made at Clyde. Scantling 12" x 12" x 29' 6" long. (4)	Mean of experiments on large sized timbers.
Modulus of Rupture "f" in lbs. avoirdupois per square inch	13,734 Ironbark from Albury.	13,953 Ironbark .. .. .	8,430 Red gum .. .. .	12,222 Ironbark .. . . .	(2) and (4) 13,088
Modulus of elasticity "E" in lbs. avoirdupois per square inch	2,069,280	.....	1,948,128	2,715,813	{ (1) (3) and (4) 2,244,407

It will be observed that our co-efficient "f" with large sized timbers is smaller than that obtained in the Mint experiment with small scantling, but the modulus of elasticity "E" is larger.

THE EARLIER AND THE LATER RAILWAY BRIDGES.

The two largest bridges in the Colony (those at Menangle and Penrith) were erected at a time when the designing and construction of such works had not arrived at the point of perfection apparent at the present day. The Engineer-in-Chief has followed the improvements made in the science of bridge designing, and every type of bridge erected since the date of the erection of the Menangle and Penrith Bridges has been an improvement upon previous designs. This we have ascertained by our inspection of the iron bridges at Dubbo and Albury, and more recently, of the George's River Bridge, in which the improvements are evident.

The same remarks apply to the construction of the bridges, the workmanship in the more recently erected bridges being more accurate and altogether a great improvement upon what is to be seen in the first iron bridges built in the Colony.

While in the first bridges erected on the railways of the Colony the makers and erectors did not arrive at the accuracy of construction which is now attained ; each new bridge has been an improvement on that which has preceded it, and as is the case with the Albury Bridge, the Dubbo Bridge, and the bridge over the George's River, the bridges now erected on our railways are of a superior description both in design and construction.

Thus the greater facilities at hand in connection with the later structures make it unfair to expect that the earliest bridges should have reached the standard of the bridges more recently erected, and we cannot therefore, in justice, compare the first of the bridges with those of later and more perfect design. We can only express our opinion that the earlier bridges were good specimens of bridge building at the time they were designed, and that notwithstanding the number of years which have passed since their erection they have not deteriorated to such an extent as to affect their safety.

THE MAINTENANCE OF THE BRIDGES.

The maintenance of the bridges having long since passed away from the Department of the Engineer-in-Chief, he can scarcely be held responsible for any want of attention to those parts of the structures to which the present Engineer for Existing Lines has considered it his duty to attend since he assumed the responsibilities of his office. Mr. Cowdery, in our opinion, has in all he has done acted conscientiously, and at the time this inquiry was instituted was endeavouring to remedy defects which he believed would lead to some disaster if the work of alteration, which he authorized, were not done. Much of that work, principally reriveting, has, it is true, been unnecessary, and many rivets which his officers have condemned as being so loose as to require replacing did not require to be replaced and should not have been renewed without greater consideration of the stresses and evidence of weakness. On the other hand, however, no harm has been done, and in the case of some of the smaller bridges the structures have been improved by the reriveting.

But we differ entirely from Mr. Cowdery's opinion that all plates and angle iron not butting properly or in perfect contact should be now removed and made good. We are of opinion that these defects are not of such importance in the parts of the bridges where they occur as to justify any feeling of alarm, and that they should not be interfered with until a positive looseness of rivets or an increased deflection renders such repairs necessary.

All work of this description must be watched carefully, and in no way interfered with by any one not possessed of a thorough knowledge of bridge work. Perfect contact is certainly desirable, but is not as necessary in bridge as in boiler work, where the joints are to be made steam tight. The cost of such perfection in the former would preclude ironwork from being used in the construction of bridges except in a very few cases.

It is to be observed that mathematical accuracy is not attainable, and should not be expected, in ordinary bridge work. Imperfect butting of plates constantly occurs, and to provide for it compression joints are usually designed on lines similar to those adopted for tension joints, that is to say, cover plates including several rows of rivets are used, so that sufficient shearing area is provided to carry the stress even though the butts should not be in contact. This practice has been followed at most of the bridges, and consequently the complaints of bad butting are of no force whatever, the strength of the parts being independent of the butting. At the Tamworth and Macdonald River bridges, however, this precaution has not been fully carried out, and hence the strength of the top booms is dependent upon the butting. Most fortunately all parties agree, and the members of the Commission are satisfied from personal inspection, that in these latter cases the butting is remarkably perfect.

In

In many places the contact between the channel iron struts and the side plates of the booms is not very perfect. This defect is due frequently to the circumstance that the back of the strut has become slightly rounded in the process of rolling. Such a strut may be in most perfect contact at the middle of its width where the rivets pass and yet may gape  $\frac{1}{16}$  or even  $\frac{1}{8}$  of an inch at the sides. Another cause of gaping is to be found in the "burr" or ridge left round the hole after punching, and which occasionally appears even in drilled holes. This "burr," if not removed, will keep the parts slightly apart and give an appearance of bad work.

Unless accompanied by an unmistakeable looseness of the rivets, this apparently imperfect contact does not affect the strength of the bridge.

The British Board of Trade rules for proportioning iron girders make large allowances for imperfections in construction. Could absolutely uniform material and perfect workmanship be obtained, the amount of metal used might be reduced to the extent of 30 or 40 per cent. Hence a few defects, provided they are not of excessive magnitude, need not cause alarm. Their probable existence was foreseen and provided for when the rules generally recognized by engineers were first established.

PERIODICAL TESTING OF BRIDGES.

We recommend that every bridge be tested periodically, under the direction of the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways; that the test loads should not largely exceed the heaviest traffic passing over the bridges, and that a tabulated statement recording the loads with which the tests have been made, reduced to tons per foot run of spans tested, and the deflections produced by these loads, be published from time to time and filed for comparison with future testings; and also that the camber of each bridge be accurately ascertained as soon as possible, and that it be examined at each time of testing, in order to detect any alteration that may have taken place.

RESPECTIVE DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF FOR RAILWAYS AND THE ENGINEER FOR EXISTING LINES.

The great extent of the Government Railways has no doubt necessitated a subdivision of the labour and great responsibility involved in their construction and maintenance, but we are not called upon by the nature of our inquiry to make any recommendation upon this arrangement.

The duties of Mr. Whitton as Engineer-in-Chief are understood to be to design the lines of railway, including all bridges and other works, and to superintend their construction. As soon as new lines or extensions are opened for traffic his connection with them appears to cease, and it then becomes the duty of Mr. Cowdery, as Engineer for Existing Lines, to keep in good order and to maintain the works handed over to him. In addition to this, Mr. Cowdery has to take charge of the permanent way and to design alterations to existing lines of railways, as well as to design and superintend the erection of the extensive and costly buildings necessary for the protection of the rolling stock and the accommodation of the travelling public.

The engineers at the head of these two great branches of the Railway Department are assisted by a large staff of competent engineers and other officers.

Any official misunderstanding between the officers of the two branches must be injurious to the public interests.

The

The responsibility of the Engineer-in-Chief should not cease as soon as the railway lines are open for traffic, nor should the Engineer for Existing Lines be solely responsible from that time for works over the design and construction of which he has had no control. This applies particularly to railway bridges; and we are of opinion that in future no structural repairs should be made in any railway bridge without the knowledge and approval of the Engineer-in-Chief.

We are strengthened in this opinion by Mr. Cowdery's own evidence, that when authorizing the renewal of rivets he had not ascertained the stresses which the rivets in question had to transmit, nor the amount of rivet area which is necessary to transmit those stresses without exceeding the safe unit stresses on the rivets.

We recommend that the duties and responsibilities of these two high officers should be more clearly defined in accordance with the opinion we have expressed, and we suggest that the advice of the Engineer-in-Chief should be obtained in all such matters where his well-recognized ability in railway engineering and long colonial experience render his opinion of especial value to the success of the Railway system of the country.

RECAPITULATION.

To recapitulate, our recommendations are briefly as follows:—

Menangle Bridge.—Decayed timber, supporting the main girder, to be renewed; tee iron and angle iron wrappers, in which loose rivets occur, to be rivetted; holes to be made in cells of booms to provide for proper ventilation and drainage.

130 feet spans.

No recommendation.

60 feet spans.

The lead under girders to be removed, and replaced by bed plates to support the ends of the girders, and to provide proper expansion; portions of pilasters of the piers to be removed to give access to expansion arrangement.

Wagga Wagga Iron Bridge.—The usual maintenance to be carried out, and loose rivets to be replaced where they appear.

Penrith Bridge.—The loose rivets at presents in diaphragm plates of centre cells of girders, covering plates of web, vertical tee iron attachment of cross girders, angle iron wrappers, and joints with blank holes, to be renewed; the top of stone piers to be cut down to permit a renewal of decayed timber under main girders; the  $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch rivets uniting the webs to the booms in main girders, to be replaced by 1-inch rivets for a distance of 40 feet on each side of the two middle piers, and for 10 feet from end piers. This last recommendation is intended to apply to only the main girder next to rails with a single line of way, but it will apply to the two main girders when the line is duplicated on this bridge, when also a longitudinal girder should be rivetted to the cross girders the whole length of the bridge.

Solitary Creek Bridges.—To be dealt with as recommended in the case of the 60 feet spans of the Wollondilly bridges.

Bathurst Bridge.—The usual maintenance to be carried out, and loose rivets to be replaced where they appear.

Wellington

Wellington Bridge.—To be dealt with as recommended for the Bathurst Bridge, and careful observation to be made of land pier to ascertain if any sinking takes place.

Aberdeen Bridge.—Angle iron wrappers to be renewed where double holes occur and loose rivets to be replaced where they appear.

Peel-street (Tamworth) Bridge.—No recommendation.

Tamworth and MacDonald River Bridges.—Loose rivets in attachments of lattice bars, in angle iron wrappers, and in some of the joints of the booms, to be renewed judiciously.

Wagga Wagga Timber Viaduct.—To be kept in a perfect state of repair, in which case the speed of engines need not be reduced.

The Maintenance of the Bridges.—The maintenance of the bridges, which should not include structural repairs, to be strictly carried out.

Periodical Testing of Bridges.—Every bridge to be tested periodically under the direction of the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, with a load not largely exceeding the heaviest traffic passing over the bridges; the results of the testings to be recorded and published for comparison with future testings, and the camber to be accurately ascertained and periodically examined.

Respective duties and responsibilities of Engineer-in-Chief for Railways and Engineer for Existing Lines.—The responsibility of the Engineer-in-Chief not to cease as soon as a railway line is opened for traffic, and the Engineer for Existing Lines not to be solely responsible from that time for works over the design and construction of which he has had no control; no structural repairs to bridges to be carried out without the knowledge and approval of the Engineer-in-Chief; the duties and responsibilities of the Engineer-in-Chief and the Engineer for Existing Lines to be clearly defined; and the advice of the Engineer-in-Chief to be obtained in all matters in which his opinion would be of special value.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Forbes, 16 September, 1882.

I received plan yesterday evening, also memo. of 12th instant, in reply to which I beg to state I have this day handed over the plan to Mr. Sharkey, so that he can begin permanently staking the last 7½ miles at once. There are about 15 miles altogether to be staked—from the end of my last length, at 260 miles (permanent survey). I shifted back to this length (late Mr. Wright's) on Friday, immediately on completion of trial line shown on plan sent down 8th instant and received back yesterday evening. Up till yesterday of this week I have been plotting the last length of part III of permanent plan (which I send under separate cover), from 255 miles 40 chains to 253 miles, taken from late Mr. Wright's camp, and which he had not begun, the men making pegs, so could only commence the permanent staking of this length yesterday. I hope to hand over through chainage of same to Mr. Sharkey in ten days, and to complete the field-work, plan, &c., in between five and six weeks. Mr. Sharkey has the same distance to do (7½ miles), following my trial line, which is partly cleared, so I expect will have finished about same time.

Under separate covers I send plan above-mentioned, field-book of same, also reference sheets taken from late Mr. Wright's camp.

I have, &c.,

H. JAS. BEATTY.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Forbes, 27 September, 1882.

I do myself the honor to request you will be good enough to cause to be forwarded two field-books, four level-books, also plan showing alienated portions on the last length of the authorized line, Orange to near Forbes.

Be good enough to note my present address.

I have, &c.,

The Under Secretary for Lands to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 27 September, 1882.

I have the honor to invite your attention to the Government Gazette of the 4th instant, containing notices of reservation for Railway purposes, in connection with the proposed line from Orange to Forbes, of eight areas, in the county of Ashburnham, parishes of Dulladerry, Brymedura, Coonambro, Cookamidgera, and Mugincoble, being reserves 1,732 to 1,739.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES OLIVER,

Under Secretary.

Railways.—J.R., B.C., 28/9/82. Please request the Lands Department to furnish a tracing and description of the reserves mentioned.—H.P., 13/10/82. The Engineer-in-Chief. Surveyor-General.—With a view to the tracing and description asked for by the Works Department being supplied.—C.O., 20 October, 1882. Mr. G. Lewis, 23/10/82. Lithographs and tracing herewith, showing reserves 1,732 to 1,739, for railway purposes, parishes of Dulladerry, Brymedura, Coonambro, Cookamidgera, and Mugincoble, county Ashburnham. Descriptions of the reserves are also enclosed for the information of the Railway Branch of the Public Works Department.—G. Lewis, for Surveyor-General, 16 November, 1882. ## Mr. Sharkey to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Forbes, 30 September, 1882.

I do myself the honor to report progress made with the permanent survey, Orange to near Forbes, as follows:—

At the period of my last report I was about completing the plan and section of the trial line from 251 miles 40 chains permanent survey to Parkes, which were duly forwarded to you with report. Since then I have removed to the last length on the authorized survey, where I have prepared over 8 miles for the through chainage, which will be proceeded with immediately.

Some difficulty is experienced on this length owing to the scarcity of water in the vicinity of the line.

I have, &c.,

The Assistant Engineer for Trial Surveys to Mr. Sharkey.

Mr. Sharkey,

30 September, 1882.

I wish you to discontinue the work upon which you are at present engaged, taking care to arrange all your plans, books, &c., in such a manner that there may be no difficulty in taking up the work at some future time, and to remove your party to Orange to commence the through levelling from Orange to Manildra without delay. Mr. Beatty will be instructed to check level, and another surveyor will be sent to cross level, and, on the completion of the levelling I will arrange how the survey of centre line, boundaries, &c., and plotting of working plans is to be divided.

HERBERT PALMER.

You must be careful to enter in your levelling-book all flood-levels and the probable sizes of waterways that will be required at the crossings of all creeks and watercourses.—H.P.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Forbes, 30 September, 1882.

On 18th instant I wrote asking for three level books, which I have not received yet; would you please have them sent at once, as I have only one left (for the levels), and none for either check levels or cross sections. Please send four instead of three, so that I may have one spare one.

I have, &amp;c.,

H. JAS. BEATTY.

I presume Mr. Beatty has received instructions to replace lost plans and sections of the Orange and Forbes length.—J.W., 4/10/82. Mr. Palmer. Instructions were sent to Mr. Beatty on the 30th ultimo.—H.P., 5/10/82.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Camp, Forbes, 30 September, 1882.

I have the honor to report progress made with the permanent line, Orange to near Forbes, as follows:—

The centre line has been staked out up to 267 miles 40 chains from 260 miles, the end of my last length. I have to day handed over through chainage to Mr. Sharkey.

This part goes for 2 miles through bed slate hill country, then through about same length of "crab hole" country, and for the remainder through bed slate ridges with quartz reefs. Passing near that known as Strickland's Reef about 2 miles from dam, and crossing the Parkes to Forbes Road at a point about 9 miles from the latter and 10 from the former township.

There are no watercourses in the whole  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles, excepting one very small one running down Pennington's Lead to the whole dam of same name.

There now remains the levelling and cross levelling of this length to be done, which, on account of the "crab holes," will be very troublesome, as frequent intermediate sights and cross levels will require to be taken.

Yours, &amp;c.,

H. J. BEATTY.

Mr. Sharkey to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Orange, 15 October, 1882.

In reply to memo. No. 62/379, dated 13th instant, I do myself the honor to state:—

The line Orange to near Forbes leaves the running line at 291 miles 17 chains 61 links.

The mileage on the last completed plan forwarded to Sydney was 253m.

The whole of the work has been completed on the length 253 miles to 260 miles, and the plan of same completed, which latter remains in our possession at present. The level, check level, and cross level books of this length were forwarded to Sydney before the fire.

The permanent staking has been completed to 268 miles 40 chains. The levels have been completed to 265 miles, and the check and cross levels to 260 miles.

The line has been cleared for staking to 275 miles, which is the limit of our working plan.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Orange, 28 October, 1882.

With regard to the measurement of details of trial-holes, I beg to state that there has been great difficulty in ascertaining the exact depths, &c., of some of them, as nearly all had fallen in more or less; and now, since the recent heavy rains, some are in such a dangerous state it is utterly impossible to go into them, and should the exact details of sinking be required fresh shafts would have to be sunk.

I have kept two men all the time cleaning the holes out, and so have been able to measure any they could go into. The others (five or six) I have measured the depths of, as well as I could, with poles, and gone as near as possible to details from observations from top. Please send me instructions as to what you wish done in these cases.

In reply to memo. dated 31st ult., No. 82-416, inquiring whether the trial-hole book is in the possession of the surveyors on this line, and whether the notes recorded therein may not be in our possession, I do myself the honor to state that the trial-hole book was forwarded to you on the 4th September by Mr. Beatty, with the vouchers forming the last payment to the contractors for such work, and has not been returned since.

I am in a position to supply all the requisite information re the trial holes measured by me, and shall do so on my return to Orange in a day or so.

I would advise Mr. Mann to be communicated with on the subject. I have already written, but his reply has evidently miscarried.

I would also advise that Mr. Laverty, who was with the late Mr. Wright, be communicated with. I have no doubt he will be able to find the required notes amongst the late Mr. Wright's private effects, which are now in the possession of Mr. Thos. C. J. Foster. I remember that the notes were taken in the first instance by Mr. Wright in a black pocket-book, and have no doubt Mr. Laverty will be able to find them. When looking for these notes amongst Mr. Wright's books, now in the possession of Mr. Beatty, I discovered what appears to be the original field notes of an extensive portion of the survey in the vicinity of Molong, and of these I have no doubt Mr. Laverty will be able to supply the requisite information. I do myself the honor to request you will be good enough to cause the numbers of the curves mentioned in my first book of permanent levels, starting from 191 m. 17 ch. 64 lks., to be altered. By the original original permanent survey, curve No. 1 is identical with curve No. 3, as described by me. I gave numbers (1 & 2) to the two curves forming triangle, joining the running line, which appear to have had no numbers in first permanent survey; therefore, the numbers given to curves by me in the book of levels referred to should be reduced by two in each instance. This correction has been made in all subsequent level-books.

Sir, Railway Survey Camp, Boremore, 2 December, 1882.

I do myself the honor to report progress made with the resurvey of the permanent line, Orange to near Forbes, as follows:—

Early in November the permanent levels were completed to terminus at Manildra. On my return to Orange I was enabled to check them with the reduced levels of B.M.'s. of first survey, having received a list of same from Mr. Mann. The two sets of levels agree within .11 at the terminus, being a distance of nearly 37 miles. I have now completed the resurvey of my length, starting from the running line and proposed working plan of same. I am shifting camp to-day.

I have &c.,

Sir, Railway Survey Camp, Orange, 9 December, 1882.

I will have completed the survey of this section up to 212 miles, where part I of plan ends, in two or three days. Will you please send me instructions what to do next, as I learn from Mr. Stawell that he is now camped about 223 miles, and has surveyed up to that, so that when I will be ready to shift camp Mr. Stawell will have almost completed up to Manildra Creek.

I have, &c.,

Mr. Beatty,

11 December, 1882.

On completing your present length of the Orange and Forbes line to 212 miles, as reported in your letter of the 9th inst., you must continue the survey until you meet Mr. Stawell, so that the second part of the working plan may be forwarded as early as practicable. Report when this will be done, to enable me to arrange the next lengths to be undertaken by you and Mr. Stawell.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Borenore, 10 December, 1882.

I do myself the honor to remind you of my former requisition for two field-books.

I shall have finished the whole of the work on this length, 200 miles to 205 miles, by the end of the week, when it is my intention to execute the work on line between 228 miles and 234 miles, unless otherwise directed. Mr. Beatty and Mr. Stawell will in meantime have covered distance to 228 miles.

Mr. Sharkey,

11 December, 1882.

Under separate cover I have forwarded two field-books. You may, on completing your present length of the Orange and Forbes line to 205 miles, take up the length as suggested in your letter of the 10th inst., from 228 miles to 234 miles, and must report as early as practicable by what time you can finish that length, to enable me to arrange for the work to be taken up by Messrs. Beatty and Stawell.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Parkes Road, Orange, 17 December, 1882.

In reference to your memo. of 11th inst. I beg to state that I completed survey up to 212 miles on Monday last, 11th inst., with the exception of plotting plan of same, which Mr. Sharkey wrote me he would send on next day. I therefore waited for plan, but not having received it up till Friday morning, I shifted camp on here (230 miles) to complete second part of plan, as you instructed.

Yesterday evening, after fixing camp here, I found that Mr. Sharkey had already shifted, and was camped about a mile on, with instructions from you to do the survey from 228 miles to 234 miles, the end of part II of plan, the field notes of which he has, so I will shift on to-morrow to Coates' Creek, and after plotting my last length (205 miles to 212 miles) on plan, part I, which I am to get from Mr. Sharkey to-day, I will, pending further instructions, continue survey, levels, &c., from 234 miles on.

Mr. Sharkey to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Meranburn, 17 December, 1882.

I do myself the honor to report that I have entered upon the resurvey of the length 228 miles to 234 miles, extension Orange to near Forbes, in accordance with instructions contained in memo. No. 82/530, dated 11th instant.

I expect to complete the length now described in fourteen working days, which includes levels, check-levels, cross-levels, and survey of details.

The through levels at 234 miles will be ready for Mr. Beatty as soon as he can take them up. This arrangement will leave Mr. Beatty and Mr. Stawell the lengths from 234 miles to 246 miles, which latter is the beginning of the Flagstone Creek length, surveyed by me in the first instance, and which I will be ready to take up in due order.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Parkes Road, Molong, 5 January, 1883.

I have the honor to report that I will have completed this length, 234 miles to 240 miles, in a few days. Mr. Stawell is now engaged on the next length, from 240 miles to 246 miles, from which point Mr. Sharkey will complete up to 253 miles.

I beg to state that I can replace the levels of the length from 253 miles to 260 miles, so that the only work to be done on that length will be the cross-levelling. Please send instructions if I am to do these cross-levels after completing this length, or go at once to finish the length I was engaged on when I left Forbes, from 260 miles to 267 miles 40 chains, of which part of the levelling, the check-levelling, and cross-levelling remain to be done.

I can also replace the details of trial-hole sinking from 234 miles to 253 miles, as far as they have been done, as I have my original notes of measurements, which I can copy out.

With regard to the cross-levelling from 260 miles to 267 miles 40 chains, would you please let me know how you wish me to do it in a "crab-hole" plain through which it runs, about 2 miles. The general line of the ground is almost horizontal, but the surface broken all over with crab-holes, the exact changes of which would be impossible to arrive at—one chain length going over perhaps three or four deep "crab-holes." Shall I take the cross-sections at fixed intervals, say every 25 links, along the centre line, and sights every 25 links on cross-sections? I think this would give a truer average of the surface than by trying to sight at what one thought were the changes of inclination.

On completing your present length of survey of the Orange and Forbes extension to 240 miles, you may proceed to cross-level where required from 253 miles to 260 miles, after which you may continue the through check and cross-levels from 260 miles to the end of the permanent staking.

Forward without delay the original levels which you report you can replace from 253 miles to 260 miles, also whatever details of trial-hole sinking you may have.

It will not be necessary to take cross-levels on the chain pegs across the crab-hole plains.

     1 " cross           "
 I have to report that the length upon which I am now engaged, viz., 246 miles to 253 miles will be completed on the 2nd proximo. Mr. Stawell has been rendering me assistance for the last day or so, he having cross-levelled from 246 miles to 248 miles 48 chains, and is at present preparing the plan. This length, viz., to 253 miles, completes the resurvey of that portion of the line of which the books, plans, &c., were lost by the fire. Mr. Beatty is engaged on the length upon which he was occupied when ordered to Orange, viz., from 260 miles to 267 miles 40 chains, and there are plans and instructions in hand for the permanent survey to 275 miles, which is the extent of survey authorized. On the length, 267 miles 40 chains to 275 miles, the straights and curves have been set out and 1 mile of the through chainage inserted. Railway Survey Camp, Forbes, 27 February, 1883.

In reply to memo., dated 23rd instant, No. 83/85, I do myself the honor to report:—

The lockspitting of the centre line, Orange and Forbes extension, was completed to 260 miles at the date of our departure to begin re-survey. The lockspitting was resumed at that point last week, and was completed to 261 miles 48 chains yesterday.

The lockspitters inform me that they will have completed the whole extent surveyed in sixteen days.

The mileage of the last trial hole sunk is 252 miles 73 links.

The lockspitters express their willingness to sink the trial holes at the rate paid to J. Burns.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN P. SHARKEY.

Please inform me what price Burns was paid for trial hole sinking, and if in excess of what Stanley has tendered. I presume the latter may do the work.—H.P., 2/3/83. The Engineer-in-Chief. Stanley tenders at 1s. 10d. His previous contract up to 215 miles 9 chains was at 1s. 6d. per foot. Burns was paid 2s. from 216 miles up to the end. Under these circumstances I presume I may instruct Stanley to continue the sinking of the holes.—H.P., 6/3/83. The Engineer-in-Chief. Yes.—J.W., 6/3/83. Railway—Orange to Manildra via Molong.

Sir,

Molong, 20 June, 1883.

It seems to me something extraordinary why tenders for the railway from Orange to Manildra via Molong (which has been sanctioned by both Houses of Parliament) are being so long delayed. Such delay, I have no hesitation in saying, is a serious injury to settlers in this neighbourhood, if not a gross and scandalous public wrong, after repeated pledges made by a Minister of the Crown. I desire to draw your attention to the answer given by Mr. Lackey to my question in the House on the 30th August last, viz., "That tenders would be invited for the construction of this railway in November last."

Also the telegram from the Under Secretary for Works of 5th January, 1883, to the effect "That tenders will be called on the 6th March." In spite of such repeated pledges we are now nearly in July, and yet no sign of tenders being called for this public and important work.

I do sincerely hope, sir, that you will see the propriety of going on with this work without any further delay. It is but right that I should bring these matters under your notice, so that you may not in future say that you were not acquainted with them or their existence, feeling sure that you will see justice done to this important agricultural district by taking steps that are deemed necessary to have this line of railway pushed forward without any further delay, and that tenders are called for the same. Your immediate attention to this all important work, I hope, will not be further delayed, and the public mind set at rest in the matter for ever. If you will only take the matter up in place of leaving it to officials, I feel sure justice will be done to us. I shall be glad to be informed what state this matter now rests in, and why the work, which has received the sanction of Parliament, is to me seemingly so unnecessarily delayed?

I have, &amp;c.,

ANDREW ROSS, M.D.

Will Engineer-in-Chief for Railways inform me when survey of line Orange to Forbes via Cudal will be completed, as I am very anxious.—F.A.W., 23/6/83. I think it will take two months to complete the survey and plan and section of the through route, Orange to Forbes, via Cudal, Toogong, and Eugowra.—H.P., 5/7/83. Under Secretary, B.C., 6 July, /83.—J.W., per W.H.Q. Inform Dr. Ross, and tell him that I have done all in my power to expedite this work, and hope to have it completed before time named.—F.A.W., 26/7/81. A. Ross, Esq., M.D., M.P., 27/7/83.

Railway extension from Orange via Manildra, to near Forbes, to Wilcannia.

Sir,

In reference to the above, I have the honor to inform you that I have been instructed by the Committee to ask you whether it is the intention of the Government to extend the main western trunk line from Orange via Manildra, to near Forbes, to Wilcannia, or whether the Government has decided only to construct a branch line from Orange to Molong.

I am further to state that great dissatisfaction is expressed by the public, pending telegrams received in Molong, announcing the construction of a line from Orange to that place, without stating whether the said line is to be a branch or the first section of the extension of the main western trunk line.

I have, &amp;c.,

H. G. HANKS.

Inform that instructions have been given to call for tenders for line from Orange to Molong, but that as surveys have not yet been completed the route of railway has not yet been determined upon. The Government may adhere to the line via Manildra, or may feel it their duty to recommend a deviation in the proposed line.—F.A.W., 27/10/83.

Mr. Whitton, B.C., 1st Nov., /83.—J.R. Mr. Palmer. W.H.Q., 6/11/83. The surveys of proposed deviations will, I think, be completed this month.—H.P., 13/11/83.

Mr. Reymond to Messrs. Coonan and Stokes, M's.P.

Gentlemen,

Forbes, 17 November, 1883.

A largely attended public meeting was held last Monday, and I was instructed as Chairman of such meeting to write to you and request you to call upon Mr. Wright, the Minister for Works, and endeavour to learn from him when tenders for the railway to Forbes are likely to be called. I am to communicate your reply to a meeting to be convened for that purpose.

126—C

You

You will have read reports of last meeting in the papers. I need not tell two old stagers like you that some of what you have read is to be taken with a grain of salt. Some parties lose no opportunity of flinging a stone at the members and at the Government, you know exactly the value of such vapourings. The great majority of your constituents are satisfied you are doing your best for them, they know also that the present Government has to undo the work of the preceding Administration before its own views can be carried out. Mr. Wright is considered here as a man who knows his work and will do this district justice without unnecessary delay.

I remain, &c.,

J. B. REYMOND.

Will the Minister kindly let us have a written reply sent to Mr. Stokes as soon as possible.—W. T. COONAN, A. STOKES, M.P. W. T. Coonan, A. Stokes, 22/11/83. Railways, B.C., 23/11/83.—J.R. Engineer-in-Chief, pro Commissioner.—G.B., B.C., 5/12/83. Mr. Palmer.—W.H.Q., Dec. 11/83.

A trial survey has been completed from a point on the Orange and Molong line about 7 miles from Orange; thence passing about 2 miles south of Cudal; thence about the same distance south of Toogong to Long's Corner; thence by the Mandagery Creek to Eugowra; and thence by a direct line to a junction with the line surveyed from Forbes to Parkes, at a point about 3 miles north of Forbes, the through distance to Forbes by this route being about 11 miles shorter than via the route through Molong. A deviation on this Cudal route has since been surveyed, leaving the Molong line about 9 miles from Orange, and passing about  $\frac{1}{2}$  a mile south of Cudal; thence across Oxley Creek to a junction about 4 miles east of Toogong, with the former survey. The extra length of this deviation being about  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles; another deviation is now being surveyed on this route from near Murga; thence by a direct line passing to the north of Eugowra to near Forbes, by which it is expected this route can be shortened by about 3 to 4 miles.—H.P., 19/12/83. J.W., 28/12/83.

The Secretary for Public Works to Messrs. Coonan and Stokes, M's.P.

Gentlemen,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 22 November, 1883.

In reply to your communication of to-day, forwarding me a letter received from the Mayor of Forbes, referring to a meeting held in that town re Railway extension, and asking me when tenders are likely to be called for the railway to Forbes, I beg to inform you of what has already been done. You are aware that Parliament has approved of a line to a point between Forbes and Parkes via Molong and Manildra, but my predecessor in office, Mr. Copeland, being informed on what he considered good authority that a shorter and cheaper line could be constructed from Orange to Forbes via Cudal, ordered a trial survey to be made previous to calling for tenders. This survey is not yet completed and I am not disposed therefore to take any action until the merits of the alternative line have been decided which will be in a very short time.

Should the line, the survey of which is approaching completion, be found what it is represented to be, I shall in all probability have to ask Parliament to rescind portion of the former route, and sanction the deviation of the line from a point 9 miles west of Orange via Cudal to Forbes. I can say nothing definite however until I receive the final report from the surveyor.

I have already instructed tenders to be called for the line from Orange to Molong, which latter place is in my opinion entitled to Railway communication, whether as a terminal point for a branch line or as a portion of the main line, I cannot as yet say.

As soon as the survey is completed action will be taken by the Government should it be found that the line via Cudal is not what it has been represented, then tenders can be called for the line already sanctioned by Parliament; should on the other hand the Cudal route offer superior prospects there will be a necessary delay in asking Parliament to rescind the former decision and to approve of the route via Cudal.

I may add that under any circumstances this will not be done until the second reading of the Land Bill is decided. You are aware that the present Parliament was elected to deal with the land question, and the Government in the performance of what they consider their duty have submitted a Land Bill to Parliament and pending the second reading of that Bill are not prepared to take any action which may involve a Railway or other policy.

Should we be fortunate enough to carry the second reading we will then at once be prepared to deal with the Orange to Forbes and other railway questions.

I have, &c.,

F. A. WRIGHT,

Secretary for Public Works.

Dr. Ross, M.P., to Engineer-in-Chief.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 14 March, 1884.

I take this opportunity of drawing your special attention to the result of the division in the Blayney railway last night, 54 to 6; out of the seven lines of the Railway policy submitted by the then Government of 1881, it only now remains to complete the line Orange via Molong to near Forbes, the last seemingly on the list of that policy. The calling for tenders for the construction of the line from Orange to Molong (called No. 1), is a confirmation that that policy shall be adhered to. In writing to you therefore on the present occasion on the matter is with the view of urging on you the necessity of carrying out the construction of the 2nd section, i.e. from Molong to Manildra, the plans and book of reference of which have received the approval of Parliament. I do hope therefore that the plans will be in readiness so that (this the 2nd section) tenders for the construction of the same may be called for at an early date. Also, that the plans will be in readiness to submit to Parliament of the further extension from Manildra to near Forbes, so that the same may be adopted and the work also proceeded with. I need not assure you that I feel a deep interest in seeing the extension of this important line towards Wilcannia proceeded with, and therefore I sincerely trust the matter will receive your earliest and earnest attention.

I have, &c.,

DR. ANDREW ROSS, M.P.

No. 91.

Dr. Ross, M.P., to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Sydney, 14 March, 1884.

After the most emphatic decision arrived at last night in the House (54 to 6) of the Blayney Railway Extension, there surely now will be no difficulty in the way of carrying out the last of the Railway policy that was approved of by Parliament in 1881, viz., the extension from Molong to Manildra (No. 2 section), the plans of which have been approved of by both Houses of Parliament, and from Manildra to near Forbes. I do hope, therefore, that you will see the necessity of calling for tenders for section No. 2 with the least possible delay. Also, that the plans and book of reference from Manildra to near Forbes may be submitted for the approval of the House with the least possible delay. It seems something extraordinary why the construction of this line has been so long delayed, and the plans withheld from the approval of Parliament, i.e., from Manildra to near Forbes. It is with the view of urging forward the matter which induces me on the present occasion to again direct your attention to the urgency of proceeding with this the last of these seven lines that were included in the Railway policy of 1881. I hope to see the plans of the 3rd section laid on the Table of the House at an early date for its approval.

I have, &amp;c.,

A. ROSS, M.D.

Dr. Ross may be informed that there is no intention of calling for tenders for another section of this line, but that as soon as surveys are completed of line via Cudal some action will be taken.—F.A.W., 20/3/84.

No. 92.

Dr. Ross, M.P., to The Secretary for Public Works.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 23 April, 1884.

Not being able to see you at your office this morning, after calling twice, I now do myself the honor to herewith hand for your earliest and most favourable consideration the three accompanying numerous and influentially signed petitions from Parkes, Meranburn, and Garra re the further extension of the railway from Molong to Manildra to near Forbes, also two maps showing the routes.

Yours, &amp;c.,

ANDREW ROSS, M.D.

[Presented by Dr. Ross, 23 April, 1884.]

15 April, 1884.

To the Honorable The Minister for Public Works, Sydney.

The Petition of the undersigned inhabitants of Manildra and its neighbourhood,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1st. That we most respectfully request that you will be pleased to call for tenders for the further construction of the Railway from Molong to Manildra, as sanctioned by Parliament, with the least possible delay, for the following reasons, which we deem are good, and worthy of your consideration:—

2nd. That the late Parliament having adopted the line from Orange to near Forbes, via Molong, Manildra, &c., and the first section Orange to Manildra sanctioned, a large number of your Petitioners has been induced to settle along this route on the faith of its being constructed.

3rd. That your Petitioners desire to point out that the whole of the district on this route contains land suitable for agriculture equal to any in this far famed Molong District.

4th. That in regard to population a very much larger per centage of the population of the District of Molong would be benefited by the line of Railway as adopted being constructed than could be by any divergence of the line.

5th. That your Petitioners feel grieved at the (in our opinion) unnecessary delay in the construction of the Railway to Manildra, as sanctioned by both Houses of Parliament, through (as we believe) representations made to the Minister, which can never be borne out, viz., that a better route could be obtained.

6th. We therefore respectfully desire to urge the truth of our remarks upon your notice, and that you may order that tenders be called for without delay; and your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JAMES A. LISCOMBE.

Dr. Ross, M.P., to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Molong, 16 April, 1884.

I do myself the honor to submit, for your earliest and most favourable consideration, two Petitions, one from the inhabitants of Manildra and the other from the residents of Garra, both numerous and influentially signed, praying that tenders for the further construction of the Railway from Molong to Manildra be invited and the work proceeded with without delay. In presenting the above Petitions I confess, from my long acquaintance with the district, that the construction of this Railway is one that is urgently required, and therefore I do trust that the work will not be delayed.

N.B.—

N.B.—That the present prolonged drought has been and is still very detrimental to the settlers throughout the Colony, and should rain not very soon come many will be placed in a very sad if not ruined position; but if tenders for the railway line be forthwith called it will afford employment for hundreds of farmers who cannot, owing to the continued drought, plough up their land, and will be the means of saving them from absolute ruin. I do sincerely trust, therefore, on behalf of the Petitioners, that no time will be lost in inviting tenders for the construction of No. 2 section, i.e., from Molong to Manildra.

Your immediate attention to this all-important public work will be conferring a boon upon this district.

I have, &c.,

Dr. ANDREW ROSS, M.L.A.

[Presented by Dr. Ross, 23rd April, 1884.]

Garra, near Molong, 15 April, 1884.

To the Hon. F. A. Wright, Minister for Works, Sydney.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of Garra and neighbourhood,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioners desire that tenders for No. 2 section of further extension of Railway from Molong to Manildra be invited for the construction of the work without delay, especially as Nos. 1 and 2 sections have been approved of by both Houses of Parliament.

2. Garra, we desire to impress upon you, is the centre of a large agricultural population, and was visited by your late colleague (Mr. G. H. Reid) at the opening of the Garra Public School in August last. The school numbers on its roll over 70 pupils, which we think is ample proof of the settlement and progress of the district; also two well attended churches.

3. Your Petitioners feel sure that this Railway will pay a high rate of interest on the capital invested.

4. That your Petitioners have every confidence in the justice and reasonableness of their claim to have the further extension of this line pushed forward without delay, so as to enable the farmers and other settlers a chance of getting their produce conveyed to market.

Your Petitioners therefore most respectfully request that no time may be lost in inviting tenders for the construction of this work, viz., No. 2 section.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray,

[Presented by Dr. Ross, M.P., and prayer of Petition strongly recommended, 23rd April, 1884 (accompanied by two maps or sketches)].

Parkes, 19 April, 1884.

To the Hon. F. A. Wright, Secretary for Public Works, Sydney.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of Parkes, Bumberry, Billabong Creek, Flagstone Creek, Goobong Creek, Kamandra, Bindogundra, and other neighbourhoods,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That your Petitioners respectfully desire to bring under your notice the necessity of at once calling for tenders for the construction of the railway westward from Orange to Manildra.

That your Petitioners desire to mention the fact that money was voted by the Parliament of 1881 for the construction of the westward extension to Manildra, whereas tenders have been called for a portion of the same only.

That your Petitioners earnestly desire to impress on you the importance of at once extending the aforesaid line, thereby opening up railway communication with large and thickly populated districts.

That your Petitioners are desirous of informing you that in the Parkes District alone there are upwards of 50,000 acres of land enclosed for cultivation, of which over 5,000 acres are under crop, yielding an average this year of 18 bushels of wheat to the acre. The reason that not more of the said land is under cultivation is that the growers have not had an outlet for their produce, but the whole of the land enclosed being of undoubted richness would be cultivated if the railway were extended to Manildra, as the boundaries of our land district would thus be tapped, and an immediate market created which can only be attained by railway communication.

That your Petitioners desire to point out that the extension now asked for is distant not more than 14 miles from Molong, is without engineering difficulties, and forms portion of the westward extension already sanctioned by Parliament.

That your Petitioners would earnestly impress upon you the fact that a large number of selectors have taken up land and built homesteads on the good faith of the railway line being constructed in accordance with the vote by Parliament in 1881.

That your Petitioners would further submit for your consideration the fact that the proposed line would be the means of developing a vast extent of country known to be rich in gold, copper, and other minerals.

That your Petitioners respectfully urge upon you to carefully weigh the premises herein set forth, and give them your favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

The Secretary, Manildra Progress Committee, to The Secretary for Public Works.
 Construction of Railway Line from Orange, via Manildra to Wilcannia.

Sir,

9 February, 1884.

I have the honor to inform you that I have been instructed by the Committee to ask you to be kind enough to state whether the Government intends to deviate in the construction of the Main Western Trunk Line from Orange, via Manildra, direct to Wilcannia, as proposed and decided upon by the previous Government—the first section being from Orange to Manildra—or whether the present Government intend to construct a branch line to Molong only.

The Committee is of the opinion, and I am to add that that opinion is endorsed by the majority of the inhabitants, that a trunk line from Orange, via Manildra, direct to Wilcannia, would prove without any definite respect to any town or village, the shortest, less expensive, most remunerative to the Government, most equitable in its course, and the most adaptable line that could be adopted for opening out the interior of the west, passing through as rich and fertile lands as can be found in any part of the Colony, extending nearly the whole of the distance, the remaining distance consisting of rich mineral lands.

I am further to state that the western portion of the Colony is languishing for the want of Railway communication, and the Committee earnestly hope that the Main Western Trunk Line from Orange, via Manildra, direct to Wilcannia, will be speedily commenced and vigorously carried out at an early period.

I have, &c.,

H. G. HANKS.

Inform that no decision has been arrived at in this matter, and that no action will be taken by the Government until they are in possession of further information.—F. A. WHIGUR, 14/2/84.

Memo. from Assistant Engineer for Trial Surveys to Engineer-in-Chief.

2 May, 1884.

WHEN the centre line of the Orange and Forbes line was permanently staked through the town of Molong, I considered it likely that a station site might be selected (although at a very great cost) in that town. Now that the termination of the contract to Molong has been fixed on the eastern boundary of the township the station site will be between 213 miles and the end of the contract. Attached is a tracing from the working plan and section of this portion of the line, on which I have shown in blue how it may perhaps be advisable to alter the centre line of the station site, on account of the want of room between the present centre line and the road, which, on account of floods from Molong creek, should not be diverted nearer to the creek than shown on the plan.

The altered ground line on the section has been fixed from the cross sections taken on the chain pegs, and although the cutting is considerably increased I think when a station arrangement plan is prepared it will be found that the extra cutting is required. I also forward the cross-sections showing the formation level altered in accordance with the blue grades on the section, but should this proposed alteration be carried out, new cross-sections will be required from 213 miles to the end of the contract, to extend for at least a chain and a half on the south side of the line, and across the road on the northern side.

HERBERT PALMER.

Two sheets of cross-sections returned to Mr. Palmer, 7/5/84.

Mr. Russell wrote to you a few days ago and forwarded a tracing, showing an alteration in the centre line for the station at Molong to the extent of 2 chains. At that time neither Mr. Russell nor myself had seen the cross-section of the ground. The tracing now sent shows the centre line moved 1 chain only from the centre line as staked, and this brings the line into tolerably deep cutting. It will therefore be advisable to stake out the line shown on this tracing instead of the one previously sent, and take the cross-sections to the full width of the station land on the south-west side, and as far to the north-east as the creek. You will observe that the gradient has been raised to reduce the cutting and increase the embankment.—J. W., 7/5/84. Mr. Randall.

I forward by this post Mr. Grey's book of levels and cross levels upon altered line, in accordance with your instructions. Tracing herewith returned.—A.R., 5/7/84. The Engineer-in-Chief.

No. 95.

Dr. Ross, M.P., to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Sydney, 11 June, 1884.

At a Railway meeting held at Forbes on the 2nd of June, a Mr. Muir in speaking to one of the resolutions made use of the following statement:—Mr. Robert Muir seconded the resolution; he said "He had no confidence in the Minister for Works; as Wright, Heaton, and Co. are carriers it was against their interest to encourage a Railway to Forbes." Mr. Muir rebutted the argument that it was impracticable to bring the Railway close to Forbes on account of the low-lying country, which might be inundated in time of floods, by contending that whenever there was danger from that source it was quite easy to construct a Railway on piles which were very serviceable and more economical than the ordinary earthwork.

In the face of such a statement and the absolute fact that the Forbes district is liable to be inundated and flooded, I therefore warn the Department against adopting any such a line of Railway that at any moment is liable to serious danger and obstructions from floods, but which it is utterly impossible to occur on the line via Molong and Parkes, which has been sanctioned, and which is situated on the table-land free from all such dangers.

I have, &c.,
A. ROSS, M.D.

Minute Paper re Deputations, Blayney and Young Lines.

Subject :—Objecting Deputations to Blayney or Young Lines.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 10 April, 1883.

A LARGE deputation waited on me to urge that the above line be not proceeded with, but that a line from Young to Forbes form part of the scheme when extending the main line westward towards Wilcannia. They urge that it is the more fitting connection between the Western and Southern lines as directing the main traffic from the north. They pointed out that whereas now a weekly mail on horseback satisfies the postal requirements on this route, although, I think, this must refer to the district between Cowra and Young, as I presume Cowra gets a daily mail from Blayney, but they contrasted this with the fact that Cobb's coach runs daily between Forbes and Murrumburrah, and from this they deduce that it is the best line, as traffic unaided is sure to find out for itself the most suitable line.

They urged further that the country, or much of it on the Blayney or Young line, is difficult, expensive, and non-productive, while on the other line every acre of it, or nearly so, is the finest land in the country.

I will be glad to have a special report from the Engineer-in-Chief as to the relative values of the two lines for the beneficial working of the system of railways, viewed as a whole, as well as to special benefits with regard to the specific lines respectively.

ALEX. STUART.

11th April.—Messrs. Campbell and Lynch have since waited on me and as nearly as possible reverse the picture presented by the deputation. They represent that nothing can exceed the fertility of the line via Cowra, Camden, and Blayney, while the other is extremely liable to flood and inconvenient for the junction of traffic between the two routes.—A. S.

Mr. Whitton for report.—J.R., B.C., 11/4/83. Urgent. Report herewith, No. 83-621.—W.H.Q., 17 April, 1883.

No. 1.

The Engineer-in-Chief to The Minister for Public Works.

Department of Public Works,
Engineer-in-Chief for Railway's Branch, Sydney, 17 April, 1883.

In attention to the Minister's memo. of the 10th instant, I submit the following report on the Railway extension, Murrumburrah to Blayney, and other lines suggested in that district.

Murrumburrah to Blayney.

This line commences by a junction with the Great Southern Railway near to Murrumburrah at 231 miles 14 chains from Sydney, and after passing through Young, Cowra, and Carcoar, joins the Great Western Railway near to the Blayney Station, being a length of about 110 miles.

The earthworks on the first portion from the Main Southern Railway to Young, 18 miles, and which is now under construction, are heavy, averaging about 47,000 cubic yards per mile.

The remaining portion of the line from Young to Blayney, and for which the plans have not yet been approved by Parliament, is of a length of 92½ miles. For about 46 miles the earthworks are of a light character, for 39 miles they are of an ordinary average kind, and for 7½ miles the earthworks will be heavy, somewhat similar to those on the first section to Young.

In addition to the heavy earthworks about Carcoar there will be a tunnel about 12 chains in length.

At Cowra there will be an iron bridge over the Lachlan River; with this exception there will be no expensive bridges on the whole length.

The estimated cost of the line from Murrumburrah to Blayney is £1,260,000, which was voted in 1881, the length as then staked being 108 miles, or at the rate of about £11,700 per mile. Now that the working plans are finished the length is found to be 110 miles; but the estimate will, I believe, be sufficient for the extra distance.

I have generally avoided giving any opinion as to the direction of any of the lines, but as I understand from the Minister's memo. that it is his wish I should do so, I submit the following remarks, first assuming that the line from Murrumburrah to Blayney will be constructed, as being a connecting link between the southern and western districts of the Colony.

One line from Orange via Molong, to near Forbes, 85 miles, has been approved by Parliament; another line is now suggested, from Young through Grenfell to Forbes, a distance of 65 miles. It is also suggested to make a line from Forbes to Wilcannia.

Instead, however, of constructing either or both of the first named lines, my impression is that the best course would be to construct a line about 60 miles in length, from near Cowra, on the Murrumburrah and Blayney extension, down the valley of the Lachlan to Forbes.

This line might, if considered desirable, at any future time be continued through Parkes to near Narramine, on the Great Western Railway.

I would abandon the proposal to continue the extension from Forbes to Wilcannia, a distance of about 320 miles, and reach Wilcannia by a line about 240 miles in length, branching off from Nyngan on the Great Western Railway.

This line would pass through Cobar, to which place a light line has been proposed, the distance being about 96 miles, thus leaving only about 144 miles from Cobar to Wilcannia.

The following statement shews the lengths of the lines suggested for the Forbes district:—

	Miles.	Miles.
From Orange, via Molong, to near Forbes	85
„ Young to Forbes	65
„ Forbes to Wilcannia	320
		470
In lieu of the above-named lines I suggest the following:—
From Young to Blayney	92
„ Cowra to Forbes	60
„ Nyngan to Wilcannia	240

My suggestion, if carried out, would thus effect a saving of 78 miles of railway construction.

There is one line in connection with these districts which in my opinion should be constructed, viz., from Wellington to join the Northern Railway at or near Werris Creek, or probably Quirindi. This line would be about 150 miles in length, and form almost a direct line from Victoria to Queensland if the line from Murrumburrah to Blayney be made.

The

The following are the lines which I recommend for adoption, and are shown in full red lines on the accompanying map, viz. :—

	Miles.

„ near Cowra to Forbes (which might be extended to Narramine)	60
„ Wellington to Werris Creek or Quirindi, on the Northern Railway ... ..	150
„ Nyngan to Cobar and Wilcannia ... ..	240
The undermentioned lines might not then be required, viz. :—

Telegram from Mr. Sharkey to Engineer-in-Chief.

Forbes, 26 April, 1883.

PLEASE forward plan and section paper to cover thirteen miles, and send fresh instructions as to future duties.

No. 3.

The Assistant Engineer for Trial Surveys to Mr. Sharkey.

Mr. Sharkey, Parkes,—

27 April, 1883.

Under separate cover I have forwarded to you plan and section paper, as requested in your telegram dated the 26th instant.

On completing the re-survey of the trial line upon which you are at present engaged (Parkes to Forbes), you may take up a length on the trial survey now being made from Orange to Forbes, via Cudal and Toogong.

Mr. Beatty is the only surveyor engaged on that survey at present, and you must first see him and arrange with him where it will most facilitate the completion of the survey for you to commence work. You may then report when you commence your survey, and what portion of the route you have taken up.

Mr. Beatty,—

27 April, 1883.

I have instructed Mr. Sharkey, who has completed his portion of the re-survey between Parkes and Forbes, to take up a length on the trial survey from Orange to Forbes, via Cudal and Toogong.

I have also directed him to see you, and to arrange with you where it will be the most desirable for him to take up a length.

No. 5.

Mr. Beatty to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Camp, 2 May, 1883.

I have the honor to report progress made with trial line Orange to Forbes, via Cudal, as follows :—

After exploring country and running some rough traverse lines, taking altitudes with an aneroid, I decided to branch off the permanently staked line (via Molong), at 197 miles 77 chains 72 links, then after getting over saddle of ridges, keeping the southern side of the gorge, so as to cross "Cave" and other creeks high up, touching the Cargo road at one point, and then take the straightest route to the gap at Sister's Rocks, from which a direct line can be got to Cudal, following Oakley Creek, and through the Big Flat. This line is staked as far as Sister's Gap, a distance of over 6 miles.

For the first mile and a half a grade of 1 in 40 will be necessary, and the country being broken one or two pretty heavy cuttings and large culverts would be required. From that on the section is very good as far as the Gap, where for another mile and a half a steep gradient would be necessary, though without any heavy work. After this the country is almost flat up to Cudal, which is as far as I have explored sufficiently to report on.

I have to-day instructed Mr. Stawell to commence a trial survey from Forbes towards Toogong, and to communicate with you as to the locality where his survey should be connected with the one you are to make from Toogong towards Forbes.

Report upon what length you have examined in the direction of Forbes, so that I may decide if another surveyor should be sent between you and Mr. Stawell.

Railway Survey Camp, Murga, 15 May, 1883.

In reply to memo. No. 83/184, dated 11th instant, I do myself the honor to state that in accordance with arrangement with Mr. Beatty I have taken up the length from Long's Corner or Gap to Eugowra, a distance of 17 miles, which presents the principal difficulties. The distance from Eugowra to Forbes is about 25 miles, and passes over level country.

Mr. Stawell,

11 May, 1883.

A trial survey is now being made from Orange to Forbes, via Cudal and Toogong. Mr. Sharkey is at present engaged on this survey, in the neighbourhood of Toogong.

You may, on the completion of your present survey between Forbes and Grenfell, forward the plan and section to this office, and then proceed to Forbes and commence a trial survey from that town towards Toogong.

This survey should be commenced as near to the northern boundary of the town of Forbes as the flood level from the Lachlan River will allow; thence as shown on accompanying tracing as far to the north of the Lachlan as may be desirable on account of floods, to the point marked A; thence to Eugowra and Toogong. Communicate with Mr. Sharkey at Toogong as to locality where your surveys should meet, and be careful to plot plan and section of this line from right to left, so that the through plan and section from Orange to Forbes will be from left to right.

Mr. J. O'Neill to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Dear Sir,

Eugowra, 23 May, 1883.

I have seen Mr. Sharkey the surveyor, and have informed him that I can show him a better route for the Railway line than the one now being surveyed, as I have a thorough knowledge of the country between Orange and Forbes.

The line could be done in my opinion cheaper by far than the present line that is being surveyed, and I think that the same could be accomplished by 10 miles shorter than the proposed line.

If you authorize me to do this work please state to me the terms. I would expect at least for my services and in payment for my assistance in this matter. I think that I could do this matter for £2 2s. per day. Please send word by return.

I am, &amp;c.,

JAMES O'NEILL.

Mr. Palmer.—W.H.Q., 25 May, /83. This trial survey is now being made between Orange and Forbes according to instructions, and until the plan and section have been received it cannot be determined whether Mr. O'Neill's proposal need be entertained.—H.P., 25/3/83. Acknowledged.—W.H.Q., 28/5/83. Accordingly.—JAS. O'NEILL, 28/5/83.

No. 11.

Mr. C. R. Barry to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Cudal, 26 May, 1883.

While a trial survey is being made with a view to the construction of a Railway from Orange to Forbes, via Cudal, I have the honor to bring the following matters under your consideration, with a view to pointing out the advisability of re-inspecting the old survey, known as the Boree line, before anything definite may be decided upon.

The line here referred to is clearly marked by white pegs in a direct line to within 6 miles of Cudal, from which point no difficulty whatever exists; and if it is a good line up to that point, of which those competent to judge leave no room for doubt, it would, we believe, prove a cheaper line than the somewhat shorter one now being run; and in the event of a branch line being given to Molong a large portion of the permanent survey to that township would be common to the two lines.

In

In the event of your considering the matter now brought under your notice worthy of inquiry, in order that the two routes may be fairly compared we would suggest that Mr. Surveyor Sharkey, now at Murga, be instructed to make a personal inspection of the line, with a view to a survey if he approves of it; and we will undertake to provide him with horses and guide for that purpose. This would not necessitate more than two days at the most. As has been before remarked, the old survey is clearly marked to within 6 miles of Cudal, from which there is a straight run without any difficulty whatsoever.

I have, &c.,
C. R. BARRY,
Secretary.

Mr. Palmer.—W.H.Q., 30/5/83.

It was my intention, on the completion of the trial survey via Cudal and Toogong, to recommend that the line here described as the Boree line should be re-surveyed, the plan and section having been destroyed in the Garden Palace fire.—H.P., 30/5/83. The Engineer-in-Chief.

No. 18.

Mr. Sharkey to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Murga, 26 June, 1883.

I do myself the honor to report that on examining the route from Lang's corner towards Forbes a gap was pointed out to me, which is considered would shorten the distance to Forbes by 5 or 6 miles, and have a direct line over high country. As the gap in question is more in Mr. Stawell's length than mine, I reported the matter to him, and made an appointment for a guide (a Mr. Williams) to accompany him over the ground. This route would leave Eugowra 4 miles to the south. In reply to my letter reporting the above facts, Mr. Stawell informed me that he intended to run his survey into Eugowra.

I write this to inquire is it your desire to extend the survey into or near the village of Eugowra, or that the most direct route should be followed to Forbes.

Mr. Sharkey,

28 June, 1883.

With reference to your report, dated the 26th instant, as to a proposal to survey a route which might shorten the distance to Forbes, I think the first route to be surveyed should be via Eugowra, and when this has been completed you may, in conjunction with Mr. Stawell, examine the proposed deviation which I describe as passing about 4 miles to the north of Eugowra, and if found desirable the shorter route might then be surveyed and plotted on the through plan as a deviation.

Dear Sir,

Eugowra, 28 June, 1883.

I wrote you re the best and cheapest route to bring a line of Railway from Orange to Forbes through a good farming country, thereby saving the Government some thousands of pounds. If the line which I propose is not up to what I profess to show I will do the work for nothing, but on the other hand, if what I show is up to what I represent I will expect my fee of two guineas per day, which is nothing compared to the saving which will be effected by taking it the said route. Your early answer will oblige,

Dear sir,

Yours, &amp;c.,

JAMES O'NEILL.

Mr. Palmer.—W.H.Q., 29/6/83. I can only refer to my remarks on Mr. O'Neill's previous letter. When the plans of the present survey have been completed it can at once be decided whether it will be necessary to survey deviations, and I imagine there will be no difficulty in procuring guides having a thorough knowledge of country when they are required.—H.P., 29/6/83.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Cudal, Orange, 29 July, 1883.

I am in receipt of memo. of 26th instant, with reference to urgency for plans of this trial survey to Forbes, and in reply beg to state that I have already run and levelled rough traverse lines to within about 3 miles of "Long's Corner." My junction with Mr. Sharkey was about to begin staking centre lines to-morrow (Monday).

In compliance with your instructions I will stake traverse line without curves and level over same at once.

I am now camped 9 miles from Long's Corner, and have altogether 12 miles to stake, but having traversed and taken sections of over 9 miles of same, and the straights thus decided on, it will not take long to complete. I may therefore say that, provided the weather should keep fine, I will have staked all the straights and levelled same up to said Long's Corner in about three weeks, after which the traversing of creeks and general survey will occupy at least a week.

I always endeavour as far as possible to plot each night my work of the day.

Mr. Sharkey,

27 August, 1883.

The plan and section of the through trial survey from near Orange to Forbes, via Cudal and Toogong, have been received.

I now wish you to make a re-survey with as little delay as possible of portion of the original trial line (known as the Boree route from Orange to Parkes).

All plans and sections of this trial survey were destroyed in the Garden Palace fire, and the portion you re-survey must be connected either with the permanently staked line near Orange, or with the last made trial survey, and near its junction with the staked line at the Orange end, and again with this trial survey towards Forbes. When this has been done another trial survey will be required in the direction suggested in your letter dated the 26th of June, viz., from Long's corner towards Forbes by a gap by which it was supposed the distance to Forbes might be shortened by 5 or 6 miles.

Sir,

Survey Camp, Orange, 1 June, 1883.

I have the honor to report progress made with trial survey, Orange to Forbes via Cudal, as follows:—

The line is staked, levelled, and surveyed up to 204 miles and trial traverse line run and partly levelled and cross levelled for deciding on best route to within 3 miles of Cudal.

This portion runs along Bourimbla or Oakey Creek, having a gradient for first 2 miles from Sisters Gap of 1 in 40, but with no heavy work attached, with the exception of one bridge over creek, the section being good all the way, except my first 2 miles, which is very heavy indeed.

My traverse line runs all the way down Oakey Creek in an almost direct line to Toogong, tapping a large and thickly populated agricultural country lying between the creek and Cargo District, which would leave Cudal about 1½ mile to the right.

This

This route I will adopt unless I can find a good line across the ranges skirting the creek into Cudal, but to go into the township by this route would necessitate a considerable divergence from direct line and also some heavy work.

The formation down Oakey Creek is chiefly limestone, but as there would be no heavy cuttings the rock being near the surface would be no disadvantage.

Yours obediently,
H. J. BEATTY.

Sir,

Murga, 3 June, 1883.

I do myself the honor to report progress made with the trial surveys in my charge as follows:—

Trial line Parkes to Grenfell: The re-survey of this line was completed, and plans and section forwarded in due course.

Trial line Orange to Forbes: I have now entered upon the staking of this line from a point known as Long's Corner to Eugowra. I examined the country between the points named, and, so far as can be at present determined, I expect to get a line of survey with easy gradients and fairly direct.

The entire length is traversed by the Mandagery Creek, which has rather a serpentine course, and is much confined at points by very steep ranges, which abut to its banks on either side in alternate order, thus limiting the space for road or rail, except by frequent crossings of the creek.

I find two crossings of the creek necessary, but shall submit to you plans and sections of alternate routes, one with four bridges, the other with two, but each appearing to me to be equal in advantages.

Railway Survey Camp, Orange, 2 July, 1883.

I have the honor to report progress made with trial survey, Orange to Forbes (via Cudal), as follows:—

The survey has been completed up to 212 miles, being 14 miles from my junction with permanently staked line, with the exception of  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles of surveying and traversing creeks.

The portion of line completed this month is that through Sister's Gap down Sister's and Oakey Creeks, the section of the first 2 miles of which is very rough, of the remainder very good.

Altogether this route, which I have taken from junction with Molong line, would entail about 4 miles of very heavy work; the rest would have a good section.

I believe the worst portion, namely, at the beginning, could be greatly improved by branching off the Molong line a good deal nearer Orange than I have done.

It is the most direct available route to Forbes via Cudal and Toogong, and would, I believe, serve the greatest number of people and the best country, tapping all that part between Cudal and Cargo, which is all a good farming district and pretty well settled.

There now remains about 12 miles to survey to junction with next surveyor at Long's Corner, between Toogong and Murga.

Yours, &c.,

Sir, Camp, Forbes Road, 3 September, 1883.
I do myself the honor to report progress made with the survey of the trial line, Orange to Forbes, as follows:—

That portion of the line entrusted to me has been completed, and plan and section forwarded.
As may be observed, a good section has been obtained, and though only a traverse line has been made of portion of the distance, but little improvement other than increasing the lengths of the straights can be expected, even should a permanent survey be decided upon.

I am, &c.,

I do myself the honor to report progress made with the trial survey from Orange to Forbes, via Cudal, as follows:—

I experienced considerable difficulty in finding a good line from Borenore (my starting point to the level of Cheeseman's Creek), owing to there being a fall of over 600 feet in that distance of 6 miles.

The route surveyed presents a continuous grade, and is the best that can be found.

For the rest of the distance no serious difficulty can be anticipated.

I do myself the honor to report progress made with the trial survey, Orange to Forbes via Cudal, as follows:—

A good line has been secured from the point previously reported upon, and but little difficulty can be anticipated for the remaining portion of the survey under my charge.

A junction will be made with Mr. Beatty's line at a point 5 miles Forbes side of Cudal; and as his survey presents a good section from this point towards Forbes, the general features of the present survey can be accepted as satisfactory.

Mr. Sharkey,

19 November, 1883.

Attached is a tracing from the county map, shewing the direction of the trial survey made from Long's Corner (on the Orange and Forbes trial line via Cudal and Toogong) towards Forbes.

From this it will be seen that the direction of the present survey from Long's Corner, for a distance of at least 5 miles towards Forbes, cannot be improved, also that the greatest improvements that can be made, so far as reducing distance is concerned, would be by surveying a practicable route either from 230 miles or from 236 miles, as shown by the pencil lines on the tracing.

Before making the new trial survey from Long's Corner, I wish you to thoroughly examine the country and to report on the direction of the line you propose to survey, giving the heights as taken by aneroid of the highest and lowest points on the route, which you may sketch as nearly as possible on the attached tracing to be returned with your report.

Sir,

Railway Survey Camp, Cudal, 8 December, 1883.

I do myself the honor to forward herewith plan and section of the trial survey from Orange towards Forbes, via Cudal, and to report thereon as follows:—

This work was executed in accordance with instructions dated 27th August last, so that a comparison as to distance and grades might be made.

The survey starts from 200 miles 43 chains on the permanently staked line "Orange to Molong," at a place known as Borenore, about 8 miles from Orange by road.

A junction was made with Mr. Beatty's survey, "Orange towards Forbes," at a point  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles Forbes side of Cudal, at 217 miles 59 chains 10 links of his chainage, mine being at the same point 221 miles 28 chains 33 links. This shows my survey to be 3 miles 49 chains 23 links longer than Mr. Beatty's, but in point of engineering difficulties I consider this is more than compensated for.

The grades are as follows:—

200 miles 43 chains to 201 miles 40 chains	...	...	...	...	1 in 106
201 " 40 " to 204 " 60 "	...	...	...	...	1 in $41\frac{1}{2}$
204 " 60 " to 107 " 5 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 41
207 " 5 " to 207 " 50 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 55
207 " 50 " to 209 " 0 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 89
209 " 0 " to 209 " 70 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 102
209 " 70 " to 211 " 0 "	...	...	...	...	1 in $61\frac{1}{2}$
211 " 0 " to 211 " 70 "	...	...	...	...	Level.
211 " 70 " to 213 " 70 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 106
213 " 70 " to 215 " 20 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 250
215 " 20 " to 216 " 40 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 110
216 " 40 " to 217 " 70 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 340
217 " 70 " to 219 " 10 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 142
219 " 10 " to 220 " 70 "	...	...	...	...	1 in 145

The Curves.—Only a traverse has been made over this line, this being considered sufficient for the object in view. It is my opinion that no sharper curve than 25 chains radius will be required.

Borenore, the locality of my starting point, is the centre of a prosperous and thickly populated agricultural district. From thence to the terminus of my survey all the available land has been selected for a considerable distance on each side. The class of settlers is decidedly agricultural, and a very large area is under cultivation. The wheat crop of this district is one of the largest in the Colony, and gives promise of extensive traffic on a railway should it be constructed. As a matter of comparison of capabilities of land and the character and number of settlers on the country adjacent to this line and that passing Molong, I may state that but very little of the land in the vicinity of the line passing Molong is fit for settlement beyond Meranburn, which limit is 7 miles west of Manildra, and that there are no agricultural settlers beyond that point, and consequently no agriculture.

Should the branch line to Molong be determined upon, the length from Orange to Borenore (9 miles 26 chains) on that line may be deducted from the gross mileage to Forbes, thus making a considerable reduction in the distance to be constructed to that place.

I have, &amp;c.,

JOHN P. SHARKEY.

Railway to Forbes.

A DEPUTATION, consisting of Messrs. Stokes and Coonan, M.P.'s, Landauer, Brooke, and the Rev. Mr. Aspinall, waited upon me to-day, to ask that some definite decision might be given as to route for the extension to Forbes. It was said that the settlement and development of the district was much retarded on account of the want of railway facilities and the uncertainty existing as to the route of the railway. They were of opinion that the best route was from Borenore, via Cudal, to Forbes.

After reviewing the circumstances connected with this proposed railway, and the cause of the delay in carrying out the intention of Parliament, I informed the deputation that three surveys had been made, one from Molong, via Manildra, another round by the Canoblas, and a third, which had just been completed, via Keenen's Bridge and Cudal. I was not yet in possession of the details respecting the last survey, but they were now being got out, and I expected to have them within a short time. I knew this route went through better country than the other two, and if it were found more practicable from an engineering point of view it would doubtless be adopted; but I could not inform them definitely as to the route the Government would recommend; in fact it would not be proper for me to do so, as if it were decided to alter the route as originally agreed to, the matter would have first to come before Parliament for the rescission of the original route and the approval of the amended one.

Railway Surveys, Orange to near Forbes.

Sir,

March, 1884.

With reference to these surveys I have the honor to report, that in addition to the line permanently staked from Orange to near Forbes via Molong, trial surveys have been completed between these places as hereafter described. The first deviation that was surveyed left the staked line at a point about 7 miles west of Orange, thence bearing in the direction of the Canoblas; thence via Oakey Creek to a point about 2 miles south of Toogong; thence to Long's Corner and by Mandagery Creek to Eugowra; and thence by a very direct line to a junction with the Forbes and Parkes trial survey 4 miles to the north of Forbes. The next deviation surveyed left the permanently staked line  $9\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Orange; thence via Borenore, passing about a mile south of Cudal, and joining the first deviation about 4 miles to the south-west of that township. A trial survey was next made with a view of shortening the first deviation, by passing to the north of Eugowra and via the Eurow Ranges in a straight direction towards Forbes.

The following is a table of distances of the various routes surveyed:—		Length to construct.	Length to construct leaving Orange and Molong line, west of Orange.
Permanently staked line Orange to near Forbes via Molong, thence via Parkes and Forbes trial survey to point 4 miles north of Forbes	...	81 miles.
Orange to point 4 miles north of Forbes by first deviation via the Canoblas and Toogong	...	70	63 miles.
Orange to point 4 miles north of Forbes by second deviation via Borenore and Cudal	...	73	63½ "
Orange to point 4 miles north of Forbes by first deviation, thence north of Eugowra	...	68½	61½ "
Orange to point 4 miles north of Forbes by second deviation, thence north of Eugowra	...	71½	62 "

Of these deviations, that described as passing to the north of Eugowra, by which the through distance to Forbes would be shortened a mile and a half, may I think be discarded, as the line previously surveyed through Eugowra is so much superior both as regards gradients and earthworks, besides passing through better country, that I think there need be no hesitation as to its adoption.

The earthworks on the first deviation via the Canoblas are extremely heavy for some distance, and the country generally is poor in comparison with that on the route of the second deviation via Borenore and Cudal. This latter deviation is longer than the Canoblas route by 3 miles, but a comparison between the class of country and amount of settlement on the two routes is so much in favour of the Boree route, which is exceptionally good throughout, and one on which there is every likelihood of being a large local traffic, that if the more direct route between Orange and Forbes is to be adopted, I think this the only deviation worthy of consideration.

With regard to estimates for these different routes, I find that the vote for the permanently staked line via Molong was £705,500, viz., for the construction of 83 miles at the rate of £8,500 per mile. A contract having been already let for 22 miles of this distance there is a balance of 61 miles.

On

On reference to the table of distances it will be seen that there is so much saving in through distance to Forbes, on the routes of the surveyed deviations, that if the Boree route is adopted in addition to that portion of the Molong route already let (22 miles), the total length to be constructed will be  $85\frac{1}{2}$  miles or only  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles in excess of what was originally voted for the route through Molong.

The earthwork quantities per mile on the Boree deviation should not, when the centre line has been carefully selected for permanent staking, exceed those on the Molong route, and the bridge and culvert quantities will I think be the least on the former route, but in estimating the extra cost of constructing both lines it will not be sufficient to allow merely for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  additional miles at the average rate already voted; for the most costly part of the whole Molong route to Forbes is the length between Orange and Molong, while there is a similar length of expensive work on the fall to Cudal; hence in making an approximate estimate, before the Boree line is permanently staked, to fully allow for the additional cost if both lines are to be constructed, it would be necessary to provide for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles say at the former rate of £8,500 per mile = £21,250, and say £3,500 per mile extra, for 15 miles of the more expensive portion of the fall to Cudal = £52,500. Total, £73,750.

Attached is a tracing from a diagram plan showing the different routes referred to in this report.

Railway Trial Surveys from Orange to near Forbes.

2 May, 1884.

In attention to the Minister's instructions I have examined the plans and sections of the trial surveys for the proposed Railway from Orange to near Forbes, viz. :—

- (1.) From Orange by way of Molong and Manildra (now under contract to Molong).
- (2.) A deviation from this line, about 8 miles from Orange, via the Canoblas, Long's Corner, and Eugowra. An alternative route, deviating from this line near Mandagery Creek, about 39 miles from Orange, and passing north of Eugowra, crosses the Eurow Ranges, and again joins the Canoblas line 66 miles from Orange.

(3.) A deviation has also been surveyed, leaving the Orange and Molong line at a point 200 miles 43 chains, or 9 miles 25 chains from Orange, crossing the main road Orange to Forbes, Boree Creek and Mouse-hole Creek, passing near to Cudal, Toogong, and Long's Corner, joining the first deviation (the Canoblas line) at about 26 miles from Orange; thence down the valley of the Mandagery Creek to near Eugowra, and terminating at about 4 miles from Forbes, where it joins the proposed Railway from Young through Grenfell, Forbes, Parkes, and to Dubbo, or Wellington, as may be hereafter decided upon.

The total length of this line, from its junction with the Orange and Molong line to where it joins the Young and Parkes line, about 4 miles from Forbes, is 64 miles (about).

There will be no incline worse than 1 in 40, and for a distance of about 40 miles the work will be of a light character.

The amount voted for the extension Orange to near Forbes by way of Molong and Manildra was £705,500, for a length of 83 miles. The distance from Orange to Molong, being the line now in course of construction, is  $22\frac{1}{2}$  miles, and the length of this deviation from its junction with the Molong line ( $9\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Orange) is 64 miles. The total distance—should this deviation be adopted, including the branch into Molong,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  miles—will therefore be  $86\frac{1}{2}$  miles, or  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles longer than the line via Molong and Manildra, for which the money was voted.

The works, however, on the line through Cudal and Toogong are of a lighter character than those via Molong and Manildra, and I have no doubt that the amount voted will be sufficient to complete the extra length.

I enclose two tracings of the plan, and one showing all the deviations referred to as branching from the Orange and Molong line towards Forbes (and marked A); the other, the line from Orange to Molong (marked B), showing the deviation recommended for adoption should the extension from Molong by way of Manildra to near Forbes be abandoned.

Also herewith tracing of section of line marked B and of the line to Molong.

The distance taken from the trial surveys from Orange by way of Molong and Manildra to near Forbes was 83 miles; the actual distance when working surveys had been made was 81 miles. The distance to the same point from Orange by the deviation shown on plan (marked B) is  $73\frac{1}{2}$  miles, making a difference in favour of the deviation by Cudal and Toogong of  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles.

JOHN WHITTON.

Summary of Distances.

Length of line, No. 1, from Orange via Molong and Manildra to point 4 miles north of Forbes (for which £705,500 was voted) ... ..	81 miles.
Length of line, No. 3, from Orange via Boreenore and Cudal to same point, 4 miles north of Forbes ... ..	$73\frac{1}{2}$ "
Difference in favour of line No. 3 ... ..	$7\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

From Orange to Molong the line is now under construction, being a length of  $22\frac{1}{2}$  miles; and as line No. 3 diverges from that line at  $9\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Orange, the extra length to be constructed, if No. 3 be adopted, will be  $63\frac{1}{2}$  miles, and the remainder of the length into Molong from such junction (13 miles) will form a branch line into that township.

The Mayor of Forbes to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Forbes, June 3, 1884.

I have the honor to forward you a resolution, carried unanimously at a public meeting held on the 31st ultimo at Eugowra, with regard to the extension of the Western line of railway. Following is the resolution:—

“That this meeting approves of the action taken by Mr. Stokes with regard to the Western extension of railway from Borenore to Forbes, and respectfully urges upon the Government the necessity of the speedy construction of the line from Borenore via Eugowra to Forbes.”

The above resolution was entrusted to me to forward you.

I have, &amp;c.,

J. T. DUNN,

Mayor of Forbes.

The Chairman of Public Meeting, Forbes, to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Forbes, June 3, 1884.

I have the honor to forward you the following resolutions which were passed at a large public meeting held in Forbes last night:—

“(1.) That this meeting learns with much satisfaction that Mr. Alfred Stokes, the junior Member for Forbes, has given notice of his intention to move in the House, on the 6th instant, the desirability of the Government extending the line from Borenore to the town of Forbes without delay, and earnestly hopes that the resolution will meet with the approval and support of the House of Assembly, inasmuch as such construction would be the best route for any further extension of the Western Line, and would confer incalculable benefits upon a larger settled population than by the adoption of any other route.”

“(2.) That in the opinion of this meeting it is desirable that any proposed extension from Borenore to Forbes and Wilcannia should be by way of Cudal and Eugowra, as by including the latter place the large agricultural districts of Eugowra, Nyrang Creek, the Belubula River, and the townships of Canowindra and Goolagong, would be in convenient proximity with railway communication.”

I have, &amp;c.,

J. T. DUNN,

Chairman of Public Meeting.

To the Honorable John Lackey, Minister for Works, Sydney.

The Petition of the undersigned, farmers and residents in the Forbes District, and which Petition was duly proposed, seconded, and carried at a public meeting held in the Court house, Forbes, on Wednesday, 28th August, 1879,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That the welfare and progress of this district is retarded in consequence of the want of railway communication between Orange and Forbes.

2. That the country which would be directly benefited by the extension of the Western Railway to Forbes embraces an area of over 20,000,000 of acres of first-class agricultural and pastoral land, reaching 240 miles west of Forbes, and this area, besides as at present depasturing 5,000,000 sheep, is known to be rich in gold, copper, iron, and other valuable mineral deposits.

3. That although agriculture is only yet in its infancy in this neighbourhood, the yield of wheat in the Forbes District last year was over 20 bushels to the acre, and from the extent of ground already under cultivation, this yield is much in excess of the local requirements.

4. That your Petitioners have no outlet for their surplus produce, owing to the insufficient communication with larger centres of population, and whereas the freight for wheat by road and rail to Sydney (at present costing about 3s. per bushel) prohibits any exportation of such produce in that direction, yet if a line of railway were made direct to Forbes via Orange, the through freight would only be 8d. per bushel, at which rate your Petitioners could compete with the wheat growers of other countries.

5. That the line, if carried as proposed from Orange via Boree, Cudal (the centre of the Molong District), Flagstone Creek, and Parkes District, to the town of Forbes, would be under 80 miles; would have no flooded land to pass over; would come through a good wheat-growing country, passing for the most part through Crown Lands; and over 30 miles at the Forbes end being over a level country, could be contracted for under £2,500 per mile for that portion. And for the large amount of traffic the line would command, and the small cost of construction, it might reasonably be expected to pay better than any other line of equal length in the Colony.

6. That the saving on the carriage of wool, and the interest on money caused by delays in the present mode of transit of such produce, amounts to over £32,000 per annum, being about double the amount of interest on the probable cost of construction.

7. That the town of Forbes, situated as it is near the northern bank of the Lachlan River, 95 miles north of the Southern Railway Line, and 80 miles south of Wellington (the nearest point on the north-west extension Orange to Bourke), and from the splendid position it occupies as the centre of an immense extent of rich agricultural land, and from the large amount of money lately expended in buildings, and its rapid progress, marks Forbes out as likely to become one of the largest inland towns in the Colony, and fully entitles it to have the line made close to the town.

Your Petitioners therefore most respectfully and earnestly requests that you will order the present trial survey via Flagstone Creek to be immediately continued to the town of Forbes, and that you will be pleased to place a sufficient sum of money on the Estimates for 1880 to construct such line from Orange to

to Forbes; and from the opinions already expressed by several Members of the Assembly, we believe that Parliament will readily vote the money, and assist you and your Government in having the line opened to Forbes with the least delay possible.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

No. 1.

The Secretary for Public Works to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Extract from M.P. 83-3,327.

THE Minister for Works' (Hon. A. Wright) instruction to make a trial survey for a light line of railway, Culcairn to Germanton. August, 1883.

No. 2.

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

30 September, 1883.

I left Sydney for Culcairn on the 5th and arrived at mid-day on the 6th instant.

Surveyed line from Culcairn Railway Station towards Germanton,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  miles, besides a traverse of about a mile along the left bank of Mountain Creek south.

I am, &amp;c.,

WILL. DYER.

No. 3.

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Camp, Mountain Creek, 15 October, 1883.

I have the honor to report that I completed the survey of the trial line into Germanton from Culcairn on Wednesday, the 11th inst. The line runs almost due east, from about 1 to 3 miles south of the Billabong River, crossing Mountain Creek about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  mile above its junction with the Billabong and the Ten-mile Creek 2 miles west of Germanton, half a mile below where the road passes; it then runs through the south end of the racecourse (Mr. Purtell's), entering the centre of the Recreation grounds, and joining the Sydney and Melbourne Road on the Common quarter of a mile north of the township. There are two slight curves in the centre of a quarter of a mile, and a curve of half a mile radius, after crossing the Billabong, on the present line of railway south of the Railway Station.

I have endeavoured to pick up the best line of country, avoiding the hills to the south, and the Billabong and Ten-mile Creeks on the north. The total distance is  $16\frac{1}{2}$  miles over an easy country, and will not be an expensive line to construct.

On the 11th inst. I commenced levelling back to Culcairn, and hope to complete the survey and levels by the close of the present month, when I should be obliged by your letting me have the promised parish map from Culcairn to Corowa. I should also feel obliged by your instructions regarding mile-posts. I hear they are required, and the dimensions are 5 ft. x 4 in. x 4 in., and to be sunk 3 ft. into the soil and numbered. Also, with regard to the rivers and small streams crossed, are more than one cross section required? and the fall per mile along the bed of the rivers for calculating the discharge, together with any further instructions that you deem advisable.

Trusting you will overlook the trouble I am giving, being the first survey I have undertaken in New South Wales.

I have, &amp;c.,

WILL. DYER.

Mr. Palmer.--W.H.Q., 16/10/83. Instructions sent to Mr. Dyer.—H.P., 16/10/83.

No. 4.

The Assistant Engineer for Trial Surveys to Mr. W. Dyer.

Mr. Dyer,

16 October, 1883.

There is no necessity for putting in mile-posts on a trial survey, but all traverse stations should be numbered on the ground to agree with the plan, so that there may be no difficulty in laying-out the centre line to be permanently staked through fixed points on the trial line. The highest flood level of all rivers and watercourses crossed on this survey should be entered in the level-books, also the sizes of the waterways you think would be required, but it will not be necessary to take levels to give the fall per mile of the beds of rivers or streams.

Mr. Dyer,

16 October, 1883.

On the completion of the trial survey from Culcairn to Germanton you may forward to this office the plan, section, level, and field-books, and reference sheets, and may then proceed with the trial survey from Culcairn to Corowa.

Extract from Report on trial surveys, dated 18th October, 1883.—Culcairn to Germanton.

"This trial survey has been completed, being a straight and easy length of 17 miles, which should not exceed in cost per mile that of the line constructed between Culcairn and Albury."

No. 7.

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Camp, Round Hill, 27 October, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your memo. No. 83-361, of 16th October, 1883, and beg to state that I have completed the survey from Culcairn to Germanton, and have levelled back within 2 miles of the Railway Station, leaving B.M.s, at every half mile and one at every river crossed. I have already put in a small mile and half-mile peg ere I wrote to you, and also one at every other chain along the whole line. With regard to the plotting, I was not aware that this was to be done in the field. I made a rough plan for my own information and guidance as I surveyed, but am now plotting up the work which I will forward as early as practicable. There are nearly 17 miles of survey and 17 miles of levels, in all 34 miles to be plotted off, which will need about 150 feet of paper; I have not sufficient, only about 40 feet for sections and 40 feet for land plan; will you be pleased to forward me a further supply.

I may here state that I expect to finish the levels by Tuesday, the 30th instant.

I have, &amp;c.,

WILL. DYER.

Mr. Palmer.—J.W., 29/10/83.

Instructions sent to Mr. Dyer.—H.P., 29/10/83.

No. 8.

The Assistant Engineer for Trial Surveys to Mr. W. Dyer.

Mr. Dyer,

29 October, 1883.

The scales used in plotting plans and sections of trial surveys in this Department are for the plan 10 chains to 1 inch, and for the section horizontal 10 chains to 1 inch, and vertical 100 feet to 1 inch, so that you have amply sufficient paper with you for plotting the plan and section of trial survey from Culcairn to Germanton.

The plotting of plan and section from Culcairn to Corowa can be done by you in this office on your return to Sydney after completing that survey, if you are not able to keep up the plotting as you proceed with the survey.

HERBERT PALMER.

No. 9.

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

31 October, 1883.

The whole of the survey and the levels of the proposed line from Culcairn to Germanton have been completed, besides a traverse of the creeks crossed. B.M.'s have been left at every half mile, and large pegs driven down at every mile and half mile, which have been lockspitted to show position.

Each fence crossed has been marked and chainage painted on the rails.

Plotting will now be taken in hand, and the plans and sections will be forwarded as early as possible.

The camp has returned to Culcairn, and is pitched ready to proceed on the Corowa trial line survey.

I am, &amp;c.,

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Walla Walla, 10 December, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 83/41/4 of 4th instant, and in reply beg to state that I will forward at the end of the present week the plan and section of the Germanton survey which I have already plotted, but not inked in. The delay caused is owing to my having taken it up only at such times as I could leave the men at work, as I did not wish them to draw salary for doing nothing. I trust I have not done wrong.

Mr. Dyer,

6 December, 1883.

The space at the back of the journal form, headed "Progress Report," is intended for a full report on the amount of work done during each month in which you are to state the number of miles of survey completed, plotted, &c., during the month, the nature of the country passed through, and the length approximately of survey still remaining to be done.

You will be good enough for the future to be careful that this most necessary information is not omitted.

No. 13.

Mr. W. Dyer to The Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir, Camp, Walla Walla, 28 December, 1883.
I have the honor to advise despatch of the plan and section of the trial line of survey from Culcairn to Germanton, which I trust will meet with your approval. Owing to the high winds and frequent dust storms, I have not been able to turn out anything like a clean plan; however, I trust you will make all allowances as it was done under canvas.

I beg to return the exploration map handed to me on leaving Sydney. I have marked in red my lines of survey to Germanton and to Corowa, as far as the map would permit. This map has also Mr. W. Miller's line of survey marked on it. I have, &c.,
WILL. DYER.

[Enclosures.]

1. One reference sheet.
2. One exploration map.
3. One land plan, Culcairn to Germanton.
4. One longitudinal section, Culcairn to Germanton.
5. Six cross sections of creeks crossed.

Extract from Report on Trial Surveys, dated 27th February, 1884.—Culcairn to Germanton.

“THIS proposed branch line would be 17 miles in length, over very easy country similar in character to that between Culcairn and Albury, and follows for some distance the general direction of the Billabong Creek to the junction of 10-mile Creek; thence by that creek, which is crossed about a mile west of Germanton, and terminating at a point about half a mile to the north of that town.”

[Laid upon the Table of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly in accordance with promise made by the Secretary for Public Works, in answer to Question No. 7 on Votes and Proceedings No. 156 of the 16th September, 1884.]

Questions.

1. What price per ton has been paid by the Government during each of the years 1874, 1875, 1876, 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883, and 1884, for—
  - (a) Steel rails and iron rails delivered at our Railway Works ;
  - (b) Steel tires and iron tires ;
  - (c) Iron and steel bolts, bars, angles, rolled girders, wire, and tees (T's) ;
  - (d) Iron- and steel-point tongues ;
  - (e) Railway chairs and spikes ?
2. Were any of the above colonial-made ; and if so, at what price per ton were they supplied and delivered ?
3. In the case of any of the above that were imported, what was the price per ton in England, and what was the cost of freight, commission, inspection, and cost of exchange in transmitting money for the same, cost of haulage from the place of delivery from the ship to the Railway Works, and the amount of any other incidental expenses incurred in respect to that which may fairly be charged to the articles imported as expenses incurred.
4. What number of tons of iron rails or steel rails, chairs, tires, bolts, angles, &c., &c., have been condemned by our Government Officers after the materials have been delivered in this Colony, during the periods above mentioned, from 1874 to 1884, and if any amount of money has been recovered from the manufacturers of the condemned goods ?

Answer to Question No. 4.

- (1.) The rails obtained from the Park Gate Iron Company in 1873 were generally of an inferior quality, but no money was recovered from the contractors.
- (2.) A few Belgian rails were broken through slight defects in the bottom flange, but the percentage was so small that no claim was enforced.

Mr. G. M. Horn to The Commissioner for Railways.

Dear Sir,

Being desirous of a situation I thought it advisable to ask for a place in your office. Should you not have a vacancy I will deem it a personal favour for the first opportunity. I have passed the examination required for the Civil Service, and enclose a testimonial from the Head Master of the Grammar School.

Hoping you will oblige me with an early answer.

Believe me, &c.,
GEORGE M. HORN.

(Testimonial referred to.)

The Grammar School, Sydney, 18 December, 1883.
G. HORNE has been a pupil at this school for the last five years. His character at the school has been good, and his progress satisfactory.

He is remarkably neat in all his work, writes a good hand, and has a good knowledge of English and Mathematics.

G. Merriman, Esq., M.P., to The Commissioner for Railways.

My dear Mr. Goodchap,

Upon inquiry I found that the application of young Horne was to be returned to you by Mr. Iredale with the report "no vacancy," at which I am very disappointed, as I am very anxious to do something for this young man.

If you will be pleased to give him some appointment you will be conferring upon me a personal favour, and one for which I will feel ever grateful.

I am, &c.,
GEO. MERRIMAN.

3 May, 1885.

This is the young man about whom Mr. Merriman was speaking to you. You desired to have the papers.—G.B., 12/5/85. Commissioner. The next time there is a vacancy for a junior clerk, or cadet, or probationer, bring this application forward specially.—CHAS A.G., 13/5/85. —Horne. For employment. Mr. Merriman, M.P. I understood that you required a smart hand to take up the Audit Queries, and relieve when officers are absent.—G.B., 26/6/85. Mr. Iredale. The work in the Record Branch has increased so largely of late that a smart clerk, in addition to the present staff, is really required, principally to take charge of the Audit Queries, which are, month by month, becoming more numerous, and to learn the Record business so that when one of the clerks is absent he may take up the work and prevent it from going into arrears.—L. P. IREDALE, Clerk of Records, 1/7/85. Mr. Berner. Shall I send for Mr. Horne, and ascertain his qualifications.—G.B., 1/7/85. Commissioner. What remuneration is propose I to be given? It must not be large, nor of an amount to place this young man above others already in the service.—CHAS.A.G., 2/7/85.

G. Merriman, Esq., M.P., to The Acting Secretary.

Dear Berner,

The bearer, Mr. George Horne, is the young gentleman for whom I have been interesting myself to secure an appointment in your Department. I think you will find that he will be thoroughly qualified to fill the position it is proposed to place him in. Doing this confers upon me a very great obligation.

4 July, 1885.

Yours, &c.,

GEO. MERRIMAN.

I have seen young Horne; he is 19 years of age, and has been at school up to the present time. He appears to be a smart, intelligent, and gentlemanly young fellow, and I recommend he be taken on trial at £52 per annum.—G.B., 4/7/85. Commissioner. For Minister's approval.—CHAS.A.G., 4/7/85. I am under the impression that all lads are taken on the first six months without pay.—F.A.W., 7/7/85. The six months probation is only in the case of those who are in training for engineers. There is no probationary period provided for in the clerical branch.—CHAS.A.G., 7/7/85.

Mr. A. T. Smithyman to The Minister for Works.

Honorable Sir,

I herewith would make application for situation in your Department, should there be any vacancy, as a junior clerk in any of the Railway or Works Offices.

I am sixteen years of age, educated in Sydney at the Modern High School, Grammar School, and others. I have also passed the Civil Service Examination, and have since been employed by Mr. Bardsley, from whom I have a reference, and am now engaged as a clerk to Mr. Thomas, solicitor, of Castlereagh-street; and further, as it is my father's wish that I should procure, if possible, an appointment in the Civil Service, therefore this application.

I am, &c.,

ALFRED T. SMITHYMAN.

Let the applicant, A. T. Smithyman, be appointed to the vacant cadetship.—F.A.W., 17/8/85. Ask this gentleman to call upon me.—G.B., 18/8/85. Done, 18/8/85. Has this young gentleman commenced his duties.—G.B., B.C., 25/8/85. Mr. Iredale. Yes, on 24th. Resubmit in a month for report as to how he performs his duties.—G.B., 26/8/85.

RAILWAY FROM MUDGEE TO COONAMBLE.

(PETITION IN FAVOR OF—RESIDENTS OF COBBORA AND SURROUNDING DISTRICT.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 18 September, 1885.

---

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

The humble Petition of the undersigned inhabitants of this Town and surrounding District,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That if the Railway Line was extended from Mudgee to Coonamble, via Gulgong and Cobbora, &c., it would benefit not only the Agricultural, Pastoral, and Mineral interests of your humble Petitioners, but would increase the prosperity of the country in general and make the Mudgee line pay. We therefore trust that as we, your humble Petitioners, pay largely to the revenue of the country, we will have the benefit of Railway communication, and pray your Honorable House will, in its wisdom, be pleased to give effect to our wishes.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

RAILWAY VIA COLO VALLEY TO MUDGEES AND COONAMBLE.
(PETITION IN FAVOR OF—RESIDENTS OF MUDGEES, GULGONG, RYLSTONE, &c.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 18 September, 1885.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of the towns and districts of Mudgee, Gulgong, Rylstone, Cobbora, Coonabarabran, and Coonamble, to the Honorable Legislative Assembly of New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That the Mountain portion of the present trunk line of railway to the west is circuitous in route, extreme in grade and curve, costly in performance and maintenance, and rapidly becoming inadequate for its requirements, and therefore must shortly be either duplicated or relieved by a new line. That in consideration of the enormous expense and insufferable inconvenience attending the work of duplication, and that after these are overcome all the disadvantageous features of the present line will still remain, it is not advisable that the idea of duplication be entertained. That the Colo Valley survey has already been forwarded sufficiently to prove the practicability of a railway on a ruling grade of 1 in 100, and with maximum curves of 20 chains radius, and this at a cost probably smaller than the proposed duplication, and with no inconvenience to present traffic.

That the manifest corollary of a railway from Emu Plains to Rylstone, via the Colo Valley, is an extension from Mudgee north-westward, in the first instance to Coonamble. That directly on the line of such extension are the towns of Gulgong, Cobbora, Munderoran, and Gilgandra, with the fine and extensive agricultural areas about Gulgong, Tallewang, Cobbora, and the Warrumbungle Mountains, also the magnificent ironbark forest of Munderoran, while the towns of Coolah, Denison Town, and Coonabarabran, with hundreds of miles of rich soil, lie within easy distance. That your Petitioners having learnt it is intended to ask your Honorable House to assent to the making of a railway from Dubbo to Coonamble, submit that such railway will not benefit any centre of population except the terminus, and will leave all those named and all the agricultural areas named, as badly off as they are now. That the distance from Sydney to Coonamble, via Dubbo, is 371 miles, while via Colo and Mudgee, the distance will not be more than 310, the latter route not only dispensing with 61 miles of perpetual haulage but substituting a superior road, advantages which, together, will result in an immense saving of time and money to the country. That the making of a railway from Dubbo to Coonamble would be circuitously, avoiding that large and valuable area 200 miles in breadth, lying between the western and northern lines, whereas a railway from Mudgee to Coonamble will bisect that area, fulfilling the maxim of the greatest good to the greatest number. That the sole plea in favor of the Dubbo-Coonamble proposal, viz., economy of first cost, sometimes, and peculiarly in this instance, results in eventual extravagance, the extra haulage and wear and tear on the inferior road to port thus provided quickly overtaking the superior first cost of the Mudgee-Coonamble proposal, besides depriving so many people and so much country of railway accommodation, a deprivation equivalent to a permanent public loss that is simply incalculable. That a consideration of these facts should induce your Honorable House to immediately sanction the making of a railway from Mudgee to Coonamble, provided there be now sufficient proof of the practicability of such a line as promised by the Colo Valley. That if such proof be not yet forthcoming your Honorable House will refuse to entertain any proposal for a railway to Coonamble that will not dovetail into the Colo Valley scheme until the latter has been fully tested. Your Petitioners therefore pray your Honorable House to give an earnest and immediate consideration to the matter of this Petition, remembering that economy in first cost is sometimes extravagance in the end, and having that due regard which your high estate ever does and must entertain for the general and permanent interests of the country.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

(PETITION FROM RESIDENTS OF NARRABRI AND SURROUNDING DISTRICTS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 18 September, 1885.

---

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of Narrabri and the surrounding districts,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That the present Railway Station, being situated a distance of 2 miles from the town of Narrabri, is a source of great loss and inconvenience to the inhabitants thereof.

That the extension of the line from Narrabri to Moree, as already sanctioned by your Honorable House, affords an excellent opportunity for bringing the line of railway into the town and thereby relieving its inhabitants of those losses and inconveniences.

That the extension to Moree, as at present surveyed from the railway station, and which crosses what is known as the Island, will necessitate the erection of two expensive bridges, one over the Namoi River and one over the Narrabri Creek; and the space between those bridges being subject to inundation, the line will not only be liable to considerable damage from floods, but that the necessary embankment will so obstruct the passage of flood water that in the event of such flood occurring as in the years 1864, 1870, 1874, and 1878 the town of Narrabri would be inundated to a considerable depth and much damage would be done thereby. That your Petitioners are of opinion that there is another route available whereby the expense of one bridge could be entirely avoided and also all danger of damage to life or property from floods. That such a line could be brought within the boundaries of the borough of Narrabri and continued so as to join the present survey at a point beyond those boundaries at a less cost than the line as at present surveyed, the work required on the said line being of a far less expensive nature. That your Petitioners, regarding the object sought to be obtained by their petition to be of such deep and paramount importance to the town and district and to the country generally, sent a deputation to Sydney in the month of February last to wait upon the Honorable the Minister for Works, to bring under his notice the facts contained herein and to solicit that a trial survey be made with the view of verifying the deductions herein contained, namely, that the construction of the line from Narrabri to Moree would be much less expensive and far more satisfactory from every point of view if continued by deviation from a point above Narrabri as proposed in the Petition and as there marked in the map if continued from the present terminus. That your Petitioners have subsequently learned with great regret that your Department of Public Works have decided to adhere to the route already marked out, alleging as a reason for so doing that it would be less liable to flood and less expensive of construction than the deviation proposed. Your Petitioners respectfully contend that the theory is entirely opposed to all knowledge of the local circumstances of the case, the route marked out being liable to flood, as evidenced by past experience of the locality during the floods referred to in this Petition, whilst the route on the north bank of the Namoi would be perfectly free from inundation. That, considering the large and important interests involved, your Petitioners are of opinion that your Department of Railways should have ordered a trial survey of the deviation proposed before arriving at a determination, and then have put to a sure and practical test the question of the relative cost of the two lines in question. Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will not sanction the construction of the railway from Narrabri to Moree until the question of cost of the proposed deviation has been arrived at and the relative cost and expediency of the two lines been duly considered.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

RAILWAY BETWEEN SINGLETON AND MERRIWA.

(PETITION IN FAVOUR OF, RESIDENTS OF JERRY'S PLAINS, WARKWORTH, DOYLE'S CREEK, DENMAN, MERRIWA, AND SINGLETON.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 23 September, 1885.

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned residents of Jerry's Plains, Warkworth, Doyle's Creek, Denman, Merriwa, and Singleton,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH,—

That there are large quantities of valuable agricultural and pastoral lands between Singleton and Merriwa, via Warkworth, Jerry's Plains, and Denman, which, at the present time, are entirely debarred from railway facilities.

That while the greater portion of this country is settled by a steady and industrious population they feel that scant consideration has been bestowed on them in the matter of railway communication, as while smaller and less important communities and less valuable country have been duly considered in the way of railways, yet your Petitioners and the valuable country occupied by them have been ignored for many years.

That to this is largely due the stagnation that has for years past existed in many of the upper towns and districts, which only require proper travelling and carrying facilities to cause their prosperity and increase. Not only would the construction of a railway materially assist in developing the valuable pastoral resources of the country, but it would also largely increase the area of country devoted to agricultural pursuits, and so add largely to the prosperity of the country at large.

That the country between these towns is in every way suitable for railway construction at a moderate cost, there being neither large rivers nor creeks, save the Goulburn (a tributary of the Hunter River), to bridge.

Your Petitioners therefore respectfully pray that a trial survey be made from Singleton, via Jerry's Plains, Warkworth, and Denman to Merriwa, with the view of an early decision as to the construction of a light line of railway between these points.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

CROWN LANDS ACT OF 1884.
(TIMBER, STATE FOREST, AND QUARRY REGULATIONS UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 48 Vic. No. 18, sec. 145.

Department of Mines,
Sydney, 18th August, 1885.

TIMBER, STATE FOREST, AND QUARRY REGULATIONS.

WHEREAS, by the Crown Lands Act of 1884, power is given to make Regulations as therein provided, the following Regulations have been made by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, to provide for the issue of Licenses and Permits to cut Timber, and for other purposes.

These Regulations are in lieu of the State Forest and Timber Regulations of the 2nd January, 1885, and of Regulation No. 91, of 27th March, 1885, which said Regulations numbered 1 to 91 are repealed, but without prejudice to any existing Licenses or Permits.

JOSEPH P. ABBOTT.

TIMBER, STATE FOREST, AND QUARRY REGULATIONS.

THE Regulations as herein set forth shall apply to the issue of permits and licenses for the cutting or removing of timber, stripping bark, and digging and removing stone, sand, clay, shells, or other material on Crown Lands, Timber Reserves, or State Forests, to granting licenses for saw-mills sites and agistment of stock on Timber Reserves and State Forests, and to the general management of Timber Reserves and State Forests.

Regulations for Cutting Timber under Wood-cutters' and Cedar Licenses on ordinary Crown Lands.

1. Licenses to cut and remove timber or wattle-bark from Crown Lands may be obtained on application to a Land Agent, Clerk of Petty Sessions, or other officer duly authorized by the Minister in that behalf.

2. Such license shall not authorize the licensee to cut any timber or description of timber the cutting of which may be prohibited by notice in the Gazette, or to cut timber on any of the lands hereinafter described, viz.:—State Forests, timber reserves, reserves for public recreation, or for sites for towns or villages, or permanently dedicated for any public purpose, lands within 1½ chain of any navigable river, or held under conditional lease, or special lease, or measured for sale, or within an enclosure of less than 200 acres, or within half a mile of a head station.

3. The fee for a license to cut and remove any kind of timber (not exempted or prohibited), except cedar, or to strip wattle-bark, shall be £3 per annum, or 15s. per quarter, or 5s. for any current month.

4. The fee for a license to cut cedar, as well as other timber not exempted, or to strip wattle-bark, shall be £6 per annum, or 10s for any current month. No cedar tree of less girth than 9 feet, measured at 5 feet from the ground, shall be felled without special authority in writing from the Ranger of the District.

5. These shall be termed respectively wood-cutters' and cedar licenses, and shall only be available in the districts named in such licenses; they shall not be transferable, but certificates may be issued by contractors and other employers, as provided in Regulation No. 64.

6. A separate license or certificate must be held by every person engaged or employed in cutting, sawing, felling, splitting, or removing timber, or stripping wattle-bark; and such license or certificate must be produced for inspection, as provided by Regulation No. 51, and shall be subject to Regulation No. 52 as to obstructions caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 55 as to forwarding particulars of felled timber claimed, to No. 56 as to felling trees on banks of rivers, to No. 57 as to stripping or felling trees for the purpose of obtaining the bark only, to No. 58 as to removal of timber, to No. 59 as to limitation of quantity, to No. 63 as to exemption of certain trees, and to the provisions generally of these Regulations.

TIMBER RESERVES AND STATE FORESTS.

7. For the purposes of these Regulations, Reserves for the preservation of timber supply shall consist of two classes, viz., Timber Reserves and State Forests; and Timber Reserves shall be further subdivided as hereinafter set forth.

8. Reserves for the preservation of timber supply not proclaimed State Forests may, for the purpose of these Regulations, be classed as A, B, or C, by notification in the Gazette: Provided that, until otherwise classed, reserves notified under the 39th section of the Lands Act Amendment Act of 1875 shall be held to be of Class C, and all other timber reserves of Class A. And further, provided the classification of any reserve may be altered from time to time, as may be deemed expedient.

9. In cases where it may be deemed necessary to alter the classification or close a timber reserve or portion thereof against timber-cutting, the Minister may demand the surrender of any license or permit authorizing timber-cutting upon such land, and may authorize the refund of any fee paid in advance not exceeding an amount proportionate to the unexpired term of such right or license, or the permit or license may be transferred on endorsement by the Ranger in charge to another reserve or to a portion of a reserve of the same class as that for which the permit or license was issued.

Regulations for cutting Timber, under Timber-cutter's License, on Timber Reserves, Class A.

10. Lists, showing the timber reserves, or portions of them, open to the operation of timber-cutters' licenses under Class A, at a fixed fee and without royalty, shall be exhibited at the Lands Office of the district in which such reserves are situated.

11. Timber-cutters' licenses may be obtained on application to the Land Agent of the district, to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines, Sydney, or to such other place as the Minister may appoint. The license may be issued at a fee of £6 per annum, or 10s. for any current month.

12. Timber-cutters' licenses shall be available only for the reserve for which they are issued, and shall be subject to Regulation No. 29 as to minimum girth of trees to be felled, to No. 51 as to holding and producing licenses on demand, to No. 52 as to obstructions caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 55 as to forwarding particulars of felled timber claimed, to No. 56 as to felling trees on banks of rivers, to No. 57 as to felling or stripping trees for the purpose of obtaining the bark only, to No. 58 as to removal of timber, to No. 59 as to limitation of quantity, to No. 63 as to exemption of certain trees, and to the provisions generally of these Regulations.

Regulations for cutting Timber under Permit License on Timber Reserves, Class B.

13. Lists showing the timber reserves, or portions of them, open to the operation of timber-cutting permits under Class B, at a fixed fee and without royalty, shall be exhibited at the Lands Office of the district in which such reserves are situated.

14. Upon application to the Land Agent of the district, or to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines, Sydney, or to such other place as the Minister may appoint, permit licenses, Class B, for cutting timber, may be obtained at a fee of £9 per annum, or 15s. for each month; such licenses shall not be issued for less than one month.

15. Each person employed on a timber reserve, Class B, in felling, cutting, or removing timber must be provided with a permit or certificate under Regulation No. 64; permits shall be available only for the reserve for which they are issued, and shall be subject to Regulation No. 29 as to minimum girth of trees to be felled, to No. 51 as to producing permits on demand, to No. 52 as to obstructions caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 55 as to furnishing particulars of timber felled, to No. 56 as to felling trees on banks of rivers, to No. 57 as to felling and stripping trees for the purpose only of obtaining the bark, to No. 58 as to removal of timber during currency of license, to No. 59 as to limitation of quantity of felled timber lying upon a reserve at one time, to No. 63 as to exemption of certain trees, and to the provisions generally of these Regulations.

Regulations for cutting Timber under General Sawmill Permits on Timber Reserves, Class C.

16. General permits for the supply of timber for sawmill purposes shall not be issued for less than one month, at a rate of £6 per annum.

17. General permits may be obtained upon application to the Minister for Mines, which may be forwarded through the Forest Ranger of the district, or, if there be no such Ranger, through the Crown Lands Bailiff. They will only be available for the reserve named in such permit, and may be restricted to a specified portion of a reserve or to trees of a specified species.

18. Timber felled under general permits shall, unless otherwise expressly ordered by the Minister, be subject to the royalty specified in Regulation No. 26.

19. Payment of royalty shall be made within one month after the timber has been felled, unless the time for payment be extended by the Minister; but no timber shall be removed from a reserve until such royalty be paid, or approved security be given, unless it be removed to an authorized depôt, as provided by Regulation No. 23.

20. Every person employed in getting, felling, or removing timber shall hold a general sawmill permit or a certificate in the prescribed form, under the hand of the licensee, as provided by Regulation No. 64. Any person working upon a reserve without such permit, or a certificate issued in lieu of one, or failing to produce it for inspection upon the demand of any Forest Ranger, Crown Bailiff, or other person duly authorized, will be deemed guilty of an infringement of these Regulations, and liable to the penalty prescribed in that behalf.

21. Persons holding such general permits, or certificates issued under them, shall be subject to Regulation No. 29 as to minimum girth of trees to be felled, to No. 52 as to obstructions caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 57 as to stripping bark or felling the trees for the purpose only of obtaining the bark, to No. 58 as to removal of timber, to No. 59 as to limitation of quantity of felled timber lying upon a reserve at one time, and to the provisions generally of these Regulations.

STATE FORESTS.

22. State Forests shall consist of such Crown Lands as shall be so proclaimed by the Governor by notification in the Gazette.

23. The boundaries of State Forests, or of the blocks into which State Forests may be subdivided, shall be natural features, or be marked by blazed lines; and such lines where marked and described by the officer duly authorized shall be held to be the boundaries of the reserve or of the blocks, as the case may be.

24. A notice of sale of block licenses empowering the holder to cut timber within a specified area, together with the conditions of sale, shall be published in the Gazette not less than twenty-one days before the sale.

25. The amount bid at auction for a block license shall be paid at the time of purchase, and such license shall run for one year from date of sale. If a right or license be offered for sale by tender, a deposit equal to 25 per cent. of the amount of the year's rent tendered shall accompany each tender, otherwise it will not be considered; and if the balance of rent be not paid within seven days of the notification in Gazette of acceptance of tender the deposit may be declared forfeited, and the license may be again offered for sale.

Royalty.

26. The Minister shall classify the several species of timber on each State Forest or block; and timber felled, including piles at or above the minimum girth fixed under Regulations No. 29, shall be subject to royalty, as follows:—

Saw-mill—

- Timber placed in the first class, 1s. 3d. per 100 superficial feet.
- Timber placed in the second class, 1s. per 100 superficial feet.
- Timber placed in the third class, 9d. per 100 superficial feet.
- Timber placed in the fourth class, 6d. per 100 superficial feet.
- Timber placed in the fifth class, 3d. per 100 superficial feet.

The mean girth of trees felled for piles, by special permission, on licensed blocks, under the minimum girth fixed by Regulation No. 29, shall, for the purpose of calculating the amount of royalty to be paid, be taken as measuring not less than that minimum girth.

Splitting timber, being any description of tree suitable for splitting, and not such as would be used for sawing:—

2s. per 100 cubic feet.

Dead wood or loppings for fuel:—

6d. per cord of 128 cubic feet.

Payment of Royalty.

27. Returns of royalty due during each month shall, within seven days after the end of the month, be forwarded by the licensee to the Forest Ranger or other officer in charge, for verification; and the licensee, upon verification thereof, shall pay the amount due to the Treasury within fourteen days, or within such extended time as may be allowed by the Minister; and no alleged inaccuracy shall be held an excuse for delaying such payment beyond the prescribed period, but any proved inaccuracy shall be taken into consideration in any subsequent account, or a refund may be made of any approved over-charge.

28. Upon approval of the Minister, timber subject to royalty may be removed to and stored in an authorized depôt before such royalty be paid, provided all such timber be marked with a distinctive brand registered with the Forest Ranger; and further, provided that such timber shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Forest Ranger or other authorized officer, who shall have power to detain or seize such timber should it be removed, or should he have reason to suspect that there is intention to remove it from such depôt before payment of royalty, or should any breach of the Regulations with respect to such timber be committed by the licensee.

Minimum girth of trees.

29. No tree within a State Forest, unless permitted by special conditions of sale of the license, or by written authority of the Forest Ranger in charge of the reserve, shall be felled of a less girth than that prescribed hereunder; but the Minister may at any time cancel any such written authority, or may alter the minimum girth at which any particular kind of timber upon any reserve may be felled.

The prescribed girth shall be as set forth hereunder measured, at a height of 5 feet from the ground :—

Trees not named in this list may be cut at the minimum girth that may be endorsed on the license, or as specified in writing by the Forest Ranger in charge of the reserve.

General.

30. A Register shall be kept by the licensee at some convenient place, showing particulars of timber felled on the block held by him; such Register shall be in the form provided by Schedule No. 1 of these Regulations, and shall be open at any time to the inspection of the Forest Ranger in charge, or other person specially authorized by the Minister.

31. The Minister may make it a condition of sale that a specified portion of a block shall be worked out before another is entered upon.

32. Every person employed by the licensee in working or removing timber upon a State Forest shall hold a certificate in the prescribed form under the hand of the licensee, as provided by Regulation No. 64, and any person working upon a State Forest without such certificate, or failing to produce it for inspection upon the demand of any Forest Ranger, Crown Bailiff, Police Officer, or other person duly authorized, will be liable to be proceeded against under Regulation No. 85.

33. State Forest licenses shall be subject to Regulation No. 52 as to obstruction caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 56 as to felling trees on banks of rivers, to Regulation No. 58 as to removal of timber during currency of license, and generally as to provisions of these Regulations.

34. No holder of a timber-cutting block license shall prevent any duly authorized person from drawing timber across his block or licensed area.

35. The transfer of a license shall only be allowed upon approval of the Minister.

36. No machinery or building shall be removed from a State Forest block until all moneys due to the Crown by the licensee shall have been paid.

37. If it should appear that a State Forest license is not used bona fide for timber-cutting purposes, the Minister may call upon the licensee to show cause why the license should not be cancelled; and if within one month cause be not shown to the satisfaction of the Minister he may cancel the license, and all moneys paid on account thereof may be forfeited to the Crown.

MISCELLANEOUS LICENSES FOR RESERVES NOT OPEN TO THE OPERATION OF THE ORDINARY LICENSES UNDER REGULATION No. 2.

Mining-prop Permits.

38. Permits for cutting mining-props on timber reserves may be obtained upon application to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines, Sydney, or to such other place as the Minister may appoint. The fee for such permits shall be £3 per annum, or 15s. per quarter, or 5s. for any current month.

39. Mining-prop permits shall only be available for the timber reserve named therein, and may be restricted to defined areas, and be subject to such conditions as the Minister may in each case direct.

40. Without special permission, no props shall be cut so as to leave a greater distance between growing saplings or trees than may be specified on the permit.

41. A mining-prop permit, or a certificate under Regulation No. 64 must be held by each person employed on a reserve in felling, preparing, or drawing props. Such permits or certificates shall be subject to Regulation No. 51 as to holding and producing licenses or certificates, to No. 52 as to obstructions caused by felling trees, to No. 53 as to branding timber, to No. 54 as to cutting tops off trees, to No. 55 as to furnishing particulars of timber lying felled, to No. 56 as to felling trees on banks of rivers, to No. 57 as to felling or stripping trees for the purpose only of obtaining the bark, to No. 58 as to the removal of timber during currency of license, to No. 59 as to limitation of quantity lying felled at one time, to No. 63 as to exemption of certain trees, and to the provisions generally of these Regulations.

Timber for Piles.

42. The Minister may grant to any person a permit or license to cut a specified number of piles or props, or to cut down and remove a specified number of trees, from any part of a State Forest or timber reserve; and he may fix and prescribe the terms and conditions under which such cutting will be permitted.

Thinning-out Timber.

43. The Minister may, in any case where he deems it advisable, authorize the destruction of trees for the purpose of improving the growth of those remaining, and may fix the terms and conditions under which such trees may be cut down and removed.

Tree Permits.

44. On application to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines, permits may be obtained, subject to these Regulations, for cutting and removing from a reserve a specified number and kind of trees on payment of a fee to be fixed according to the number and description of the trees, or the right to cut at a fixed rate per tree may be offered at auction: Provided that no such permit shall be issued for a less amount than ten shillings, and that the trees shall be felled and removed within the period named in such permit.

45. Such permits may be confined to certain portions of a reserve, or to trees marked by a Forest Ranger. Every tree felled under such permits shall, if not marked by the Ranger, be branded or marked so that it may be recognized by the Ranger. Such permits shall be subject generally to these Regulations, and shall not be transferable. If any person under colour of any such permit cut down more or other trees than those prescribed or marked, he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of these Regulations, and be liable to the penalty prescribed in that behalf.

Village Reserves.

46. In cases where it may be advisable to permit the cutting of timber on reserves exempted under Regulation No. 2, and not comprised in a State Forest or timber reserve, the Minister may grant permission under such class of permits or licenses, and under such special conditions as he may think fit, and such permit or license shall be subject to these Regulations.

Regulations applying to stripping Wattle-bark on State Forests or Timber Reserves.

47. Licenses to strip wattle-bark on State Forests or timber reserves, or to strip the bark of such other trees as the Minister may permit to be stripped for tanning purposes, on such lands or on Crown Lands, may be obtained on application to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines.

48. Such licenses shall ordinarily be in force from 1st September to 31st January following; they shall empower the holder to enter upon any reserve named therein, and shall be subject to these Regulations, excepting as to the stripping of bark. The fee shall be ten shillings for any current month for each license. Bark stripped in State Forests and timber reserves, Class C, shall be subject to such royalty as the Minister may impose.

49. Excepting as otherwise provided in Regulation No. 29, no tree of less girth than 15 inches of the black or feather leaf species, nor less than 12 inches of the golden or broad leaf species of wattle, measured at 2 feet from the ground, shall be stripped.

50. The licensee will be required to thoroughly strip one tree before stripping another.

General Provisions applying to Permits and Licenses.

51. A permit, license, or a certificate under Regulation No. 64, must be held by each person getting, felling, cutting, or removing timber, or in digging for and removing gravel, stone, clay, shells, or other material on State Forests, timber reserves, or Crown Lands. Such permit, license, or certificate must be produced upon the demand of any Forest Ranger, Crown Bailiff, Police Officer or other authorized person.

52. If any tree be felled in such a manner as to obstruct any navigable stream, road, or track, the Forest Ranger may cause such obstruction to be removed at the cost of the licensee, or of the person felling the tree, should he neglect or refuse to perform the work.

53. Any person felling timber shall mark the log and stump of each tree felled with the brand registered on the license, or with a distinctive mark or brand previously registered with the Forest Ranger in charge.

54. The tops of trees shall be cut off within seven days after felling.

55. Within twenty-one days of the 1st January, 1st April, 1st July, and 1st October, timber-getters and others claiming timber lying upon timber reserves or Crown Lands shall forward to the Forest Ranger of the district, or, in case of there being no Forest Ranger, to the nearest Crown Bailiff, particulars of the quantity, description, and brands of the timber claimed, with the date when felled, and locality where lying; and any timber for which such particulars have not been furnished will be held to be abandoned, and will be liable to seizure, forfeiture, and sale.

56. No tree shall be felled within a chain and a half of any navigable stream, unless such tree be previously marked for felling by a Forest Ranger or other person authorized in that behalf.

57. Excepting in the case of wattle trees and trees ring-barked under the provisions of the law, no bark shall be stripped from a standing tree, and no tree shall be felled for the sole purpose of obtaining the bark. Licensees will be required to thoroughly strip the bark off one tree before stripping another.

58. All timber felled on State Forests or timber reserves or Crown Lands, and all bark stripped from trees thereon, shall be removed from such State Forests, timber reserves, or Crown Lands during the currency of the license or permit under which it was felled or stripped respectively, or within twenty-one days thereafter if the license be renewed: Provided that if the Minister is satisfied that difficulties exist to the removal of the same within the prescribed period, he may extend such time for removal, upon such terms and conditions as he shall think proper; and all such timber or bark which is not removed within such period, or such extended period, shall be liable to seizure.

59. No person shall be allowed to hold more than 50,000 superficial feet of timber on any timber reserve or Crown Lands at one time under one license, unless it be drawn to a sawmill yard or dépôt. Should any other person acquire through purchase or transfer more than that quantity, he must apply for a separate license for each 50,000 feet or portion thereof in excess, but the Minister may refuse to permit any person to hold more than the first-named quantity should he think fit; but in the case of contractors and others employing a number of men, the Minister may increase the maximum quantity that may be so held.

60. Licenses or permits to strip bark, cut or remove timber, or to dig for and remove gravel, stone, sand, clay, shells, earth, or other material, shall confer no right on any person to occupy, cultivate, or improve, or to erect machinery or permanent residences upon State Forests, timber reserves, or Crown Lands, and shall confer no right of grazing.

61. Excepting as herein expressly provided, permits and licenses under these Regulations shall not be transferable, and shall not confer any privilege of exclusive possession, save as to the timber or other material actually in process of being cut, procured, or removed, or the timber branded and held in accordance with these Regulations.

62. The Minister may impose special conditions upon holders of any permit or license.

Exemption of certain Trees from operation of Licenses.

63. The kurrajong and quandong trees are exempted from the operation of all timber licenses or permits, and cutting them down is prohibited; but in time of drought, if the leaves of the kurrajong-tree are required for feed for stock, the lighter branches may be lopped.

Any other description of trees in specified localities may be from time to time exempted from the operation of licenses and permits, and the felling prohibited by notice in the Gazette.

Licenses or Permits for Contractors and others employing a number of men.

64. Holders of State Forest block licenses may employ any number of persons, and contractors or others who hold two or more permits or licenses may employ one person for every permit or license held, without further payment, but they shall issue to each person so employed a certificate in the form of Schedule 2. These forms may be obtained by the permit or license-holder on application at the office where the permit or license was issued. The permit-holder or licensee, upon issuing a certificate, shall, as soon as practicable, forward a duplicate thereof to the Forest Ranger of the district, or, if in the Western Division of the Colony, to the nearest Crown Lands Bailiff, and attach the butt to the permit or license; the date of discharge of any person to whom a certificate has been issued should be entered by the permit-holder or licensee on the butt.

65. A certificate shall be subject to the same conditions and restrictions as the permit or license under which it is issued, and shall become void if the holder leave the employ of the licensee by whom it is issued. If more than one person at the same time work or be employed under the same permit or license, excepting it be a permit or license issued under Regulations Nos. 25, 42, 43, 44, or 76, all such persons shall be deemed to be unlicensed.

Sites for Sawmills and Agistment Areas.

66. Where lands on Timber Reserves or State Forests are not under lease or license, and are available for the purpose, licenses for sites for sawmills may be granted for areas not exceeding 10 acres to holders of timber licenses or permits, or for areas not exceeding 160 acres for the agistment of stock used for drawing timber by timber licensees or permit-holders.

67. The fee for sawmills site licenses shall be £3 per annum for the first 5 acres and 1s. for each acre additional, and the fee for agistment licenses shall be £5 for the first 40 acres and 1s. for each acre additional, but a reduction of one-fourth of such fees may be made for each quarter of the year expired.

68. Applications describing clearly the boundaries of the land applied for, and accompanied with a Bank draft or Post Office order payable to the Under Secretary for Mines, for the amount of fee, may be forwarded through the Forest Ranger of the district, who will transmit it with his report. Should there appear no objection, the applicant may be permitted to occupy the area applied for, or with boundaries so modified and under such special conditions as the Minister may direct.

69. Sawmill sites and agistment licenses will confer no right to cut timber; they must be used bonâ fide for the purposes for which they are granted, or they will forthwith become void, and they shall be cancelled upon termination of the timber license or permit in virtue of which they are held.

Quarry Licenses.

70. Licenses authorizing the holders to dig for and remove from Crown Lands or timber reserves Class A, any gravel, stone, sand, clay, shells, earth, or other similar material, may be issued upon application to a Land Agent, or other person duly authorized.

71. Such licenses shall not apply to lands hereinafter described, viz., lands specially set apart for or held under quarry or brick-making permits, lands proclaimed as State Forests or timber reserves, classes B and C, reserves for public recreation or other public purposes, lands dedicated to public purposes, lands within the boundaries of any city, town, or village, or within half a mile of any head station—without permission of owner—lands held under conditional lease or special lease, or land measured for sale, or within an enclosure of less than 200 acres, or lands proclaimed by notice in the Gazette as specially exempted from such licenses.

72. The fee for such licenses shall be £4 per annum. Licenses will ordinarily be in force from the day of issue to the 31st December then next ensuing, but licenses may be granted at any time, available to the end of the current quarter or half-year, for which one-quarter or one-half the prescribed fee shall be charged.

73. A separate license or certificate must be held by every person employed in digging, quarrying, or removing stone, sand, clay, earth, shells, and similar material. Such license or certificate must be produced upon demand in accordance with Regulation 51, and such material must be removed during the currency of the license under which it was obtained, or of one constantly renewed.

74. No excavation by a licensee under Regulation 70, or permit-holder under Regulation 76, shall be made so as to cause injury to any road, track, or bank of navigable river; and the Minister, should he consider it necessary, may require such licensees or permit-holders to erect a sufficient fence or barrier around any excavation before it is made more than 20 inches deep, and should he neglect or refuse to do so, may cause it to be erected at cost of such licensees or permit-holders.

75. Notwithstanding the exceptions in Regulation No. 71, the Minister may authorize in writing the holder of a license under Regulation 70 to enter upon any specified unalienated land not being a conditional leasehold, for the purpose of getting or removing material required by the licensee, subject to such restrictions and conditions as the Minister may think fit to impose.

Permits for Quarrying, Brick-making, and similar purposes.

76. The Minister may grant quarrying or brick-making permits authorizing the holders to occupy specified portions not exceeding 1 acre of quarry, State Forest, timber, or other reserves, for the purpose of quarrying stone, digging, or removing brick-earth, &c.

77. The fee for permits shall not be less than £10 per annum, with £1 additional for each man employed thereunder in quarrying, digging, or otherwise removing the unworked material. Permits shall be subject to such conditions and restrictions as the Minister may think fit to impose.

Penalties

78. All timber, bark, stone, shells, and other material which there may be good reason to believe has been abandoned or which has not been removed within the time specified by these Regulations, or has been cut or obtained or drawn from State forests, timber reserves, or Crown Lands, without authority, or contrary to the provisions of these Regulations, may be seized by any Forest Ranger, Crown Bailiff, police officer, or other person duly authorized in that behalf. Notice of such seizure in writing shall be posted up at the nearest Court of Petty Sessions of the district; and unless a claim to such material shall be made, and the legal ownership established to the satisfaction of a Bench of Magistrates at the first Court of Petty Sessions held fourteen days after notice of such seizure has been posted, the timber or material may be sold or otherwise disposed of: Provided, however, the claim may be heard before fourteen days have expired, should the persons interested in the seizure have received sufficient notice to enable them to attend. If the claimant prove to the satisfaction of the Bench that he has duly complied with these Regulations, and is otherwise lawfully entitled to the seized timber or material, its restoration may be ordered. If the claimant fail to so prove his claim the timber or material shall be confiscated.

79. Timber, bark, or other material forfeited or confiscated may, if necessary, be removed to any convenient place, and may be sold by auction or by private contract, or be otherwise disposed of, in such manner as the Minister may from time to time direct, and the proceeds of any such sale, after deduction of expenses, shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue.

80. Any person cutting or removing timber other than fire-wood for his own use, or who shall strip or cause to be stripped the bark of any tree, or obtain stone, soil, brick-earth, sand, shells, or other material from State Forests, timber reserves, or Crown Lands, or lands granted, reserved, or dedicated for public purposes, without holding a license or permit, will be liable, on conviction, to a penalty not exceeding £5 for the first offence; and not exceeding £10 for the second offence; and not exceeding £20 for the third or any subsequent offence.

81. Any persons barking or wilfully destroying any sapling or tree (other than wattle-tree), or chopping so as to have the effect of injuring or destroying a tree without felling it, unless under a duly authorized permission to ringbark, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than 1s. nor more than 10s. for each tree destroyed: Provided no penalty shall be incurred in the case of trees thinned out under the authority of the Minister for Mines, or in the case of persons cutting tracks necessary for the removal of timber.

82. Any person maliciously injuring any tree or plant in a State Forest, timber reserve, or Crown Lands, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding £10 for the first offence, and not less than £2 nor exceeding £20 for the second offence: Provided that in the case of minors under the age of sixteen the minimum penalty for the second offence named herein may be reduced by the Court adjudicating.

83. Any person disobeying, infringing, or violating the provisions or conditions of these Regulations, or the conditions of any license, permit, or certificate thereunder held by him, will be liable to a fine not exceeding £5 for the first offence, not exceeding £10 for the second offence, and not exceeding £20 for the third, exclusive of the value of any timber or material destroyed.

84. The breach of any condition or obligation, or the failure to perform any act or matter specified in any such license, permit, or certificate issued under these Regulations, shall have the effect of rendering such license, permit, or certificate liable to forfeiture, and the Minister may thereupon or thereafter declare such license, permit, or certificate forfeited.

85. The value of any timber, stone, or other material illegally taken from Crown Lands or reserves, or the cost of removing obstructions, or erecting protecting fence (Regulations Nos. 62 and 74), may be sued for and recovered on behalf of the Crown.

86. Any person authorized by the Minister in that behalf, and any Forest Ranger, Crown Lands Bailiff, or police officer, may take proceedings and sue for penalties, costs, or the value of timber or other material under these Regulations by virtue of his office.

87. All fees for licenses or permits, and the proceeds of sale of any timber, stone, or other material which may be seized and sold, are to be paid over and accounted for by the officers receiving the same, in the same manner as other public money passing through their hands.

Return of Licenses issued.

88. A return of the licenses issued is to be forwarded at the end of each quarter of the year to the Forest Branch, Department of Mines.

LICENSES OR PERMITS FOR CONTRACTORS AND OTHERS, EMPLOYING A NUMBER OF MEN.

84. Holders of State Forest Block Licenses may employ any number of persons, and contractors or others who hold two or more permits or licenses may employ one person for every permit or license held, without further payment, but they shall issue to each person so employed a certificate in the form of Schedule No. 2. These forms may be obtained by the permit or license holder on application at the office where the permit or license was issued. The permit holder or licensee upon issuing a certificate shall, as soon as practicable, forward a duplicate thereof to the Forest Ranger of the District, or if in the Western Division of the Colony to the nearest Crown Lands Bailiff, and attach the butt to the permit or license. The date of discharge of any person to whom a certificate has been issued should be entered by the permit holder or licensee on the butt.

85. A certificate shall be subject to the same conditions and restrictions as the permit or license under which it is issued, and shall become void if the holder leave the employ of the licensee by whom it is issued. If more than one person at the same time work or be employed under the same permit or license, excepting it be a permit or license issued under Regulations Nos. 25, 42, 43, 44, or 76, all such persons shall be deemed to be unlicensed.

Application by Mr. David Gallagher.

C. [Alienation Act, section 13.]
District of Maitland No. 3 of 1884.
Application by David Gallagher for the conditional purchase, without competition, of 40 acres unimproved Crown Land.

Received by me, with a deposit of £10, this 5th day of June, 1884, at 10.30 o'clock.

GEORGE H. SMITHERS,
Agent for the Sale of Crown Lands at Maitland.

Sir,

I am desirous of purchasing, without competition, under the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861, the portion of unimproved Crown Land hereunder described, containing 40 acres; and I herewith tender the sum of £10, being a deposit at the rate of 5s. per acre on the area for which I apply.

I am, &c.,

DAVID GALLAGHER,

To the Agent for the Sale of Crown Lands at Maitland.

Cessnock.

Description.

[805 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £3 2s. 6d.]

Description.

County of Northumberland, parish of Cessnock, 40 acres : Commencing at the north-west corner of the Police Paddock ; and bounded on the west by the Wollombi Road, on the north by Crown Lands, on the east by Crown Lands, and on the south by the Police Paddock, to the point of commencement.

I hold no other incomplete conditional purchase under the 13th section.—D.G.

Minutes on No. 1.

By the Surveyor-General :—It is recommended that this conditional purchase be declared void, as the land applied for is situated within reserve from conditional purchase on account of population of the town of Cessnock, Census 1881, published 30 August, 1882, and also partly within travelling stock reserve No. 24, notified 15 September, 1875. Applicant has apparently mistaken the cardinal points.—CHARLES EDWARD FINCH, for Surveyor-General, 24 September, 1884. The Chief Commissioner, Conditional Sales.

By the Chief Commissioner :—Void.—A.O.M., 15 October, 1884.

[Enclosure A to No. 1.]

NEW SOUTH WALES.

CROWN LANDS.

(ALTERATIONS OF DESIGNS OF CITIES, TOWNS, AND VILLAGES.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 48 Vic. No. 18, sec. 107.

ABSTRACT of Alterations of Designs of Cities, Towns, and Villages, under the 107th section of the Act
48 Victoria No. 18.

Town or Village.	Government Gazette in which alteration is notified.
Gosford (Town) .....	24 July, 1885. Folio 4692.
Crookwell (Town) .....	21 August, 1885. Folio 5467.
Lyndhurst (Village) .....	1 September, 1885. Folio 5746.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both primary and secondary data collection techniques. The analysis focuses on identifying trends and patterns over time, which is crucial for making informed decisions.

The third section provides a detailed breakdown of the results. It shows that there has been a significant increase in sales volume, particularly in the online channel. This is attributed to the implementation of the new marketing strategy and the improved user experience on the website.

Finally, the document concludes with a series of recommendations for future actions. It suggests that the company should continue to invest in digital marketing and explore new product lines to further expand its market reach. Regular monitoring and reporting will be essential to track the progress of these initiatives.

CROWN LANDS ACT OF 1884.
(AMENDED REGULATION AND ADDITIONAL REGULATION UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

Department of Lands, Sydney, 10 July, 1885.

AMENDED REGULATION UNDER THE "CROWN LANDS ACT OF 1884."

It is hereby notified, for public information, that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of Regulation 73 under the "Crown Lands Act of 1884," published on 2nd January last, and relating to Special Sales, being amended as hereunder.

JAMES S. FARNELL.

73. Every application must be accompanied by a receipt showing that a deposit of £10 on account thereof has been lodged with the Colonial Treasurer, which will form part of the sum payable in respect of the application on the same being complied with, but will be returned if it should be refused, less the costs incurred in connection with such application. If the application is not proceeded with by the applicant when called on the deposit will be forfeited.

Department of Lands, Sydney, 25 August, 1885.

ADDITIONAL REGULATION UNDER THE "CROWN LANDS ACT OF 1884."

It is hereby notified, for public information, that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the following Additional Regulation, 183, made in pursuance of the "Crown Lands Act of 1884."

JAMES S. FARNELL.

183. The forms to be used by the public for the transaction of all matters required to be done by the "Crown Lands Act of 1884" and the Regulations, shall be those published by authority and at the Government Printing Office. None other will be recognized or accepted.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. SURVEYOR MACHARG.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 15 September, 1885.

To the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament now assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That for the following reasons your Petitioner is of opinion that the conduct of Surveyor Macharg should be considered:—

- 1st. That he surveyed Reserve 67, Bukkulla, of 640 acres, so as to contain about 1,000 acres, thereby including the C.P. of John Asimus.
- 2nd. That he did so in the face of the facts that the word "about" was prefixed to the line running north and not to the area. The Department had long before detected the omission of the word "half" before the words "a mile" in the description published, and rectified it by charting the reserve as extending only about 40 chains north.
- 3rd. That after the Reserve was revoked he shifted the C.P. from the starting point and joined it to portion 80, Bukkulla, thereby leaving about £20 worth of the improvements on Reserve 515, and giving John Asimus some swampy land instead. (Portion 80 being Crown land it should have been extended to include the vacant swampy strip between).
- 4th. That he surveyed the road to portion 56, Bukkulla, through the end of that portion, after the selector had been about eighteen months in possession of the land.
- 5th. That in each of those cases, and in that of Mr. J. J. Thompson, he performed the surveys when the selectors were absent, although they were near neighbours of his and regular residents on the C.Ps.
- 6th. That he selected land containing John M'Donald's cleared and ploughed cultivation paddock, although Mr. M'Donald's description included the said land, and the description had not been rejected, modified, or dealt with at the time. The improvements in question were worth about £40, and Mr. Macharg grew a crop of maize on the ploughed land; and your Petitioner was informed that he transferred the land to the squatter without paying one penny for the said improvements. The fencing stuff for enclosing the paddock was laid before Mr. Macharg selected, and he paid Mr. M'Donald to erect it afterwards. The result was John M'Donald lost the best of his C.P. and his clearing and ploughing, while Mr. Macharg had ample time and opportunity to select it before John M'Donald came. The item of £60 for clearing on that portion (34, parish of Wyndham), referred to by Mr. Wyndham in his evidence before the Commissioner, consists almost entirely of the improvements taken from John M'Donald. Your Petitioner thinks such conduct on the part of a surveyor should not pass unnoticed, and he therefore humbly prays that your Honorable House may do as it deems proper in the case; and your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

COLIN MACDONALD.

MR. JOHN ROCHE ARDILL.

---

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 25 September, 1885.

---

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of John Roche Ardill,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioner attended at the Lands Office, Molong, on the sixth day of August last, with six parties, intending to conditionally purchase land under the "Crown Lands Act of 1884," and that the Land Agent refused to take the written application of those parties, alleging that your Petitioner was but touting for business, and that he had strict instructions from the Minister for Lands to keep the office clear of all loafers.

That your Petitioner waited patiently until half-past three o'clock, and then renewed his demand that the Land Agent do accept the people's money and written applications, whereupon the Land Agent left the office, went for a constable, and gave your Petitioner in charge.

That your Petitioner was, on the following day, fined five pounds, or three months in Orange gaol; and that your Petitioner was incarcerated and suffered great indignity both in mind and body, and had to pay five pounds, and was otherwise much distressed as well as injured in reputation.

Your Petitioner therefore prays your Honorable House to take these premises into your consideration and grant relief; and your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

JOHN ROCHE ARDILL, L.S.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 29 September, 1885.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

THIS PETITION HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioner, Richard Ramsay Armstrong, notwithstanding the favourable report made upon his case by two Select Committees, specially appointed by your Honorable House to inquire into and report upon all the circumstances connected with his dismissal from the post of Resident Magistrate of Lord Howe Island—a dismissal which your Honorable House, by adopting a Report of one of the aforesaid Committees, has stigmatized as unjustifiable—has not received any compensation for the grievous losses such unjustifiable dismissal entailed upon him.

That the delay in obtaining the compensation he deems himself entitled to, which two Select Committees of your Honorable House have recommended he should receive, and which, if obtained, would possess far more than a money value to your Petitioner, is seriously affecting his affairs, his health, and reputation.

That your Petitioner most humbly prays your Honorable House to take his case into your immediate attention, since he feels confident that your contemplation of his wrongs will urge you to take order that justice be done to him at once.

That your Petitioner would most humbly remind your Honorable House of his past services in the Royal Navy, and also of his past services under the New Zealand Government, and he would do so the more earnestly as base slander has presumed to dispute them.

That until he receives the justice he confidently expects of your Honorable House, a blight will appear to rest upon his reputation.

That, conscious of his own rectitude when administering the affairs of Lord Howe Island, your Petitioner would be content to leave his case as it now stands, but for the sake of his family.

That your Petitioner has three sons, natives of the Colony, all of whom have creditably passed through the University of Sydney—the two eldest having obtained the highest position therein, one of them at this present being Lecturer in Classics.

That for their sakes, more even than his own, your Petitioner humbly prays your Honorable House to direct that justice may be done to him for his unjustifiable dismissal from the Public Service, and that his case may be taken into favourable consideration.

And, in duty bound, your humble Petitioner will ever pray, &c., &c.

RICHD. R. ARMSTRONG.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1884, ON THE POST OFFICE, MONEY ORDER, GOVERNMENT SAVINGS' BANK, AND ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENTS.

MY LORD,

I have the honor to transmit to your Excellency the Thirtieth Annual Report on the Departments under my Ministerial control.

COMBINED REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

	Revenue.			1883.	1884.
Post Office ... ..				£261,812 16 3	£289,192 3 11
Electric Telegraph Department ... ..				184,643 2 4	146,386 8 2
Money Order and Government Savings Bank Department—
Commission on Money Orders ... ..				11,370 14 0	12,794 0 0
Interest on Investments ... ..				43,658 14 4	47,495 15 10
Total ... ..				£451,485 6 11	£495,868 7 11

	Expenditure.			1883.	1884.
Post Office ... ..				£326,674 0 5	£351,253 11 9
Electric Telegraph Department ... ..				163,328 16 11	171,433 14 8
Money Order and Government Savings Bank Department—
Salaries and Contingencies ... ..				14,531 16 6	15,440 6 6
Interest added to Depositors' Accounts ... ..				40,334 14 6	43,198 2 6
Total ... ..				£544,869 8 4	£581,325 15 5

The above are the particulars of expenditure out of the votes of Parliament directly at my disposal, except in the case of the Government Savings Bank item of "Interest added to Depositors' Accounts," which is specially provided for out of the interest accruing from investment of funds on the same account.

The following are the items of expenditure paid from votes under the control of other Ministers:—

	1883.	1884.
Stores and stationery ... ..	£9,715 2 10	£7,536 5 0
Repairs and additions to Buildings ... ..	8,721 15 1	10,873 17 8
Furniture (including carriage) ... ..	1,768 6 7	1,292 11 5
Printing, bookbinding, Gazette advertisements, Gazettes, &c.	9,254 4 5	8,660 7 4

Advertising in newspapers ... ..	1,261 10 4	967 15 10
Total ... ..	£34,452 3 0	£35,350 0 3

The interest on the cost of construction of Electric Telegraph lines is estimated at £24,058, and the interest on the cost of buildings owned by the Government, and used as Post and Telegraph Offices in various parts of the Colony, is estimated at £12,562, which will make the total expenditure of the Departments under my control £653,295 15s. 8d.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION.

Little or no progress has been made towards the removal of the objections raised by this and the other Australasian Colonies to joining the Universal Postal Union. It having been decided that a Postal Union Congress should be held at Lisbon, on the 1st October, 1884, the Portuguese Government invited the Government of New South Wales, amongst other Colonies, to send delegates thereto, and the Postmaster-General of England expressed an opinion that it was highly desirable that the Australasian Colonies should be represented, inasmuch as though the representatives could not vote they would, if present, be able to afford the most satisfactory information as to the conditions upon which these Colonies would be prepared to adhere to the Postal Union.

The Congress having been subsequently postponed to February, 1885, the following correspondence was on 1st October, 1884, forwarded by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to your Excellency.

[Enclosure.]

Post Office to Colonial Office.

Sir, General Post Office, London, 12 September, 1884.
With reference to my letter of the 19th of November last and previous correspondence, I am directed by the Postmaster-General to acquaint you, for the information of the Earl of Derby, that the Swiss Government has now communicated to the Foreign Office the replies which have been received to the Circular sent from Berne to the various Countries of the Postal Union on the subject of the demand of the Australasian Colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania for admission to the Union.

Out of twenty-four Countries which have replied, there are fourteen which do not oppose either of the conditions laid down by the Colonies in question, viz. :—

1. That the rates of payment for sea transit, and the surtaxes fixed by the Convention of Paris shall not be reduced at all events until after the next quinquennial Congress to that of Lisbon.
2. That each Colony shall have a separate voice in the affairs of the Postal Union.

Of the remaining ten Countries, four object to both conditions, one objects to the first but assents to the second, and four assent to the first and object to the second, while one considers that the question should be discussed at the Lisbon Congress.

As pointed out in my letter of the 27th of November last on the similar case of the Cape Colony, there is in the constitution of the Union no provision for a qualified demand of entry such as that preferred by the five Australian Colonies, and, as the conditions are opposed by some Countries, it cannot be contended that the majority in favour of them carries the admission.

There appears, therefore, to be no alternative but to await the decision of the Lisbon Congress, which, as the Earl of Derby will have learnt from my letter of the 10th instant, stands postponed until the 3rd of February next.

If his Lordship concurs in this view, Mr. Fawcett, on being so informed, will ask Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to inform the Swiss Government that the Colonies in question will abide the issue of a discussion of their demand at the Congress.

With reference to my letter of the 22nd of April last, I am to add that it now seems to the Postmaster-General more than ever important that these Colonies should be represented at the Congress.

I am, &c.,
EDW. H. REA.

The Colonial Office to The Post Office.

Sir, Downing-street, 30 September, 1884.
I am directed by the Earl of Derby to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th of September, No. 255 K., on the subject of the demand of the Australasian Colonies for admission on certain conditions into the General Postal Union.

In reply, I am to request that you will state to the Postmaster-General that his Lordship concurs in the view that there appears to be no alternative but to await the decision of the Lisbon Congress, and in the communication which Mr. Fawcett proposes should be addressed to the Swiss Government, except that Lord Derby would suggest that the words "wait to learn" should be used instead of the word "abide," as he thinks the latter word might possibly be misunderstood by Foreign Governments as meaning that the Colonies would abide by the decision of the Congress.

I am, &c.,
JOHN BRAMSTON.

As it was considered undesirable to withdraw the Agent-General from his office, it was arranged that Buxton Forman, Esq., one of the leading officials of the London Post Office, who had been selected to represent other interests at the Congress, should act for New South Wales also.

No official communication has yet reached this Department as to the result of the deliberations at Lisbon, and I am unable to say what prospect there is of New South Wales entering the Union.

UNIFORM PACKET AND PARCEL RATES.

One of the subjects which occupied the attention of the Postal Conference, held in Sydney in May, 1883, was the desirability of introducing uniform packet and parcel rates and regulations for the Australasian Colonies; and as an outcome of the discussion that took place, Messrs. C. Todd (South Australia), S. H. Lambton (New South Wales), T. W. Jackson (Victoria), and J. Packer (Tasmania), drafted very complete regulations, which were forwarded for the concurrence of the Colonies unrepresented at the Conference. These regulations were modified and altered in some respects by some of the Colonies, and in the case of one it was found that its existing Postal Act did not permit of the adoption of the draft. This made it impossible immediately to conclude an agreement between all the Colonies.

Meanwhile the Colony of Victoria decided to reduce its rates for transmission within its own territory as well as to other Colonies. It appeared to me evident that these reduced rates would very seriously affect the postal revenue of New South Wales, and that many persons in New South Wales would take advantage of the reduced rates and order their English magazines and other publications from Victoria,

Victoria, thus not only placing New South Wales at the disadvantage of having to convey throughout its extensive territory an increased number of books and newspapers, but also involving the loss of the revenue hitherto derived by New South Wales from these classes of mail matter, and probably a very serious loss of business to the booksellers of New South Wales, who would be unable to compete with the Melbourne booksellers in consequence of the earlier delivery and lower charges with which they were able to tempt their customers.

It therefore became necessary to make some modifications in the New South Wales Postal Packet Regulations, and accordingly on the 25th September, 1884, the following Gazette notice was issued, namely:—

Reduction in Rates of Postage on Packets, Books, and Bulk Parcels of Newspapers.

His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve of the following rates of postage being levied, on and after the 1st October next, on packets and books and also on bulk parcels containing newspapers over seven days old or printed out of the Colony, namely:—

	s.	d.
Packets of patterns or samples—For every 2 ozs. or under.....	0	1
Book Packets—For every 4 ozs. or under.....	0	1
Bulk parcels containing newspapers over seven days old, or printed out of the Colony and posted by registered newspaper publishers or by newsvendors—per pound or fraction thereof.....	0	1

The above rates to be charged on packets, books, and newspapers, posted for transmission within the Colony, as well as on those for the other Australian Colonies, New Zealand, and Fiji.

JAMES NORTON.

NEW POSTAL ACT.

In the last Annual Report the necessity was pointed out for an early introduction of a new Postal Act, and a Bill has been drawn for submission to Parliament, but in consequence of the pressure of more important business and of other difficulties it has been found necessary to delay its presentation.

that between Mittagong and Joadja Creek (18 miles) being abolished.

The number of miles travelled in the year 1884 was 6,509,446, being an increase of 219,700 on the mileage of the previous year.

Official offices (i.e., offices in charge of persons unconnected with private business) for the transaction of the postal business—and in some cases of the Telegraphic Money Order and Government Savings Bank business also—were created at the following places:—

Arneliffe	Guyra
Black Mountain	Harwood Island
Brunswick	Inverella
Byrock	Kangaroo Valley
Chatsworth Island	Mount Hope
Colombo Creek	Nundle
Dight's Forest	Rockdale
Enngonia	Woollahra
Frederickton

The number of Post Offices established was 37, viz.:—

Allandale	Duckmaloi	Mandalong
Bellbrook	Farnell	Middleton-street
Black Mountain	Freeman's Reach	Mulguthrie
Boambola	Gentleman's Halt	North Bourke
Bowan Park	German Creek	North Parramatta

Cross Roads	McDonald's Hole	Tallewang
Denison Town	Moorwatha	Tally Ho
Duramana	Monwonga	Thackaringa
Ferrier's	North Bourke	Twelve Mile
Gnalta

It was found desirable to change the designations of the following Post Offices, viz.:—

Grong Grong to Grong Grong Railway Station
Spring Grove to Millthorpe
Tarago to Lake Bathurst
Upper Tarago to Tarago

In the Appendix will be found a list of the 1,085 Post Offices in the Colony on the 31st December, 1884. Appendix A.

Receiving

Receiving Offices were established at the following places, viz. :—

Aliceton	Inveralochy	Shooter's Hill
Armidale Gully	Jackson's Water Holes	Sunnyside

Burslem's	Glenbog	Woola Woola

The Receiving Offices at the following places were converted into Post Offices :—

Bellbrook	Craigie	Holt's Flat
Clybucca	German Creek	Woolgoolga

Appendix C.

In the Appendix will be found a list of the Receiving Offices in existence at the close of the year, showing the number to be 206.

188 changes of Postmasters occurred during the year.

Appendix B.

In the Appendix is given a return of buildings for the transaction of the Postal, Money Order, Savings Bank, and Telegraph business possessed by the Government, as well as of the places where premises are rented or otherwise provided for the purpose. Government buildings at the following places were completed and occupied during 1884, viz. :—

Eugowra	Robertson	Walcha
Lambton	Stroud	Wingham
Nyngan	Tarago	Yass
Quirindi

At Sutton Forest and Wollombi, buildings were purchased by the Government.

During the year seven iron pillar letter-receivers were erected in different parts of the Colony, six were removed to other places, and two were withdrawn altogether. 33 small iron letter-receivers were placed, five were removed, and four withdrawn. Two wooden letter-boxes were placed and one was withdrawn.

On the 31st December the number of iron letter-receivers erected in the Colony (both large and small) was 382; the number of other kinds of receiving-boxes, 21; and the number of newspaper receivers, 15.

At Bathurst, Deniliquin, Eskbank, Grafton, Hexham, Leichhardt, Lithgow, Newtown, Orange, Parramatta, Petersham, Redfern, Richmond Road, St. Leonard's, and Waratah, the letter-receivers are cleared by special messengers, who are respectively paid an annual sum for the performance of this work. At other places this duty is fulfilled by persons regularly attached to the staff of the Department.

The number of licences for the sale of postage stamps issued in 1884 to persons other than postmasters or receiving-office-keepers was 147; and the number cancelled, owing to the holders having, from various causes since the list was revised in 1879, ceased to sell stamps, was 198. In the Appendix is given a list of the persons holding these licences throughout the Colony.

Appendix D.

To meet the convenience of persons requiring postage stamps after the suburban post-offices have closed, arrangements were made with the Railway Department in April for the sale of Stamps at the suburban railway stations, by any of the railway officials who may happen to be on duty between 6 p.m. and 9 a.m.

On

On the 31st December the number of locked private letter-boxes let at the General Post Office was 814, besides 55 allotted to Public Departments, for which no fees are paid. The system is now in operation at the following offices, namely :—

Armidale	King-street
Bathurst	Mudgee
Bega	Narrabri
Bourke	Newcastle
Braidwood	Parramatta
Cobar	Singleton
Coonamble	Temora
Cootamundra	Tenterfield
Dubbo	Wagga Wagga
Glen Innes	Walgett
Goulburn	Wentworth
Grafton	West Maitland
Hay	Wilcannia
Haymarket	Young

Ten additional letter-carriers were appointed during the year 1884, of whom 5 were employed in the city and suburbs, 2 at Wallsend, 1 at Narrabri, 1 at Wollongong, and 1 extra at Albury. There were, at the end of the year, 147 letter-carriers, distributed throughout the Colony as follows :—

The Hon. W. J. Trickett, M.L.A., retired from the position of Postmaster-General on the 2nd May, 1884, in consequence of his appointment to the Office of Minister of Public Instruction, and I succeeded him as Postmaster-General.

On the 21st July, Mr. William Buchanan, Postal Inspector, who had been in the Service for upwards of 32 years, retired on a gratuity equal to one month's pay for each year of service. Similar gratuities were provided for William Fursman, Post and Telegraph Master at Wickham, and Letter-carriers Austin Mooney and George Guinney, who also retired during the year.

Six deaths occurred during 1884 amongst the staff of the Department, viz. :—Charles Cavenagh, a valuable clerk, holding a senior position in the Department; Francis Isaac, for 24 years Postmaster at Scone; Alfred E. Doherty, Postal Assistant at Wee Waa; Francis Burke and Charles Long, Letter-carriers; and George J. Kingsbury, a mail-boy.

The removals from the Service numbered twelve. One of these, a Post and Telegraph Master at a Suburban Office, was sentenced to 4 years' imprisonment for embezzlement; a Postal-Assistant received a sentence of one month's imprisonment for removing stamps from letters passing through the Office where he was employed, and a Letter-carrier six months for stealing money from a letter; another Letter-carrier was dismissed in consequence of irregularities in connection with the treatment of a letter for the alleged stealing of which he was committed for trial; a Postal-Assistant for tampering with a letter, and a Mail-boy for neglect to clear Letter Receivers. The remainder were dismissed for intemperance, absence without leave, unsatisfactory performance of their duties, or other misconduct.

The subjoined statement, showing the numbers of applications for employment and the numbers of persons appointed during the year, may be considered of some interest :—

1884.	Applications.	Appointments.
Clerks, Letter-sorters, and Assistant Postmasters .....	207	49
Letter-carriers.....	276	38
Stampers and Sorters.....	190	2
Mail Guards and Railway Sorters .....	61	.....
Mail boys .....	35	14
Telegraphs .....	716	186
Miscellaneous .....	99	22
Total .....	1,584	306

As every application necessitates the perusal not only of the application itself but frequently of numerous certificates and letters in connection with the same and the writing of one or more letters in reply, besides visits from the applicant and his friends, it will be seen that the Department is heavily taxed in connection with such matters; and when to this mass of almost useless work is added the pressure brought to bear on the Minister and his superior officers by means of visits and letters, from persons urging the real or imaginary claims of very considerable numbers of his officers and employes to promotion or increased pay, it will not be considered surprising that the work of the Department is retarded, and that a larger staff of clerical assistants than would seem necessary for the purpose of carrying on the proper business of the several branches is necessary.

The Postal Inspectors travelled over and inspected 17,213 miles of mail route, and visited 242 Post Offices.

The

The practice of posting large numbers of letters in the Travelling Post-office Mail Vans having been found to seriously interfere with the principal purpose for which the vans were designed, a late fee of twopence, in addition to the ordinary postage, was, from 1st October, imposed on all letters posted in the vans at stations or platforms within a mile of any Post or Receiving Office.

It may be explained that the Travelling Post Office is mainly intended for the purpose of exchanging and sorting, en route, the contents of closed mail-bags to and from intermediate places, which contents would otherwise be delayed for a subsequent train, or else the making up and forwarding a multiplicity of small mail-bags would be inevitable.

The necessarily limited space at the disposal of the Railway Sorters, and the consequently limited staff employed on the Travelling Post Offices, render it impracticable to permit of the Sorting Vans being used as general posting receptacles.

My predecessor in his report for 1883, expressed a desire to meet, as far as possible, the public wish for an 8 o'clock a.m. delivery of letters in the city and suburbs. So many difficulties have, however, presented themselves in connection with the carrying out of this project that I have not yet been able to see my way to sanction it. To make it generally acceptable, several changes would be necessary in the Railway arrangements, over which the Postal Department has no control, and I am satisfied that great disappointment would be felt by the public if such early delivery were attempted without such changes, as this would necessitate the detention till the afternoon of a very large amount of correspondence which is now delivered between 9 and 10 a.m.

If any feasible means of overcoming the difficulties to which I have alluded can be devised, I shall be glad to give the extra accommodation, but under present circumstances it is evident to me that the public is better served under the existing arrangements than by the substitution of a partial delivery at 8 o'clock for the much more complete delivery which is now effected at less than one hour later.

When

When, in the year 1883, the Pacific Mail Company's Contract was renewed for two years, it was made optional for New South Wales to withdraw at the end of twelve months, on giving three months' previous notice, in the event of the Company not having obtained from the United States Government, or from other sources, a contribution equal to one-third of the total annual subsidy for such extended contract, and in diminution of the contribution payable by the contracting Colonies respectively.

As the Company failed to obtain the subsidy referred to, the stipulated notice of withdrawal of the Colony of New South Wales from the Contract was given on 28th August, and on 30th September the Company offered to reduce the subsidy payable by this Colony to the Company from £18,750 to £11,750 for the second year of the Contract. On 4th October, I informed the contractors that I would advise the acceptance of their offer, and the withdrawal of the notice on the understanding that the Company would make all the necessary arrangements with New Zealand.

The New Zealand Government, however, expressed their disapproval of the arrangement, and claimed the right to all subsidies or postages derived from non-contracting Colonies; but offered to carry our mails at the rate of £7,000 a year—New South Wales retaining postages, and the steamers still to come on to Sydney—and I agreed to accept this offer.

This arrangement is of course unsatisfactory to the contractors, who have to perform precisely the same services as before, but without our subsidy. New South Wales, however, is not responsible for this. When the San Francisco line was first established it was a matter of great consequence to this Colony that communication by this route should be maintained, but owing to the development of a regular weekly service by way of Suez by the packets of the P. and O. and Orient lines of steamers, the necessity for the continuance of the San Francisco line (except for correspondence to and from the American continent) is not a matter of paramount importance, but for commercial and other reasons it is most desirable that communication by this route should be maintained if possible.

As the result of much correspondence and numerous interviews between my predecessor and the Honorable Graham Berry, Postmaster-General of Victoria, the following agreement was arrived at on 8th February respecting the Mail Services by the Peninsular and Oriental and Orient Mail Lines:—

1. “New South Wales to pay Victoria on all correspondence conveyed by the P. and O. Company outwards and homewards the following rates, viz. :—Letters, 15s. a lb.; packets, 1s. a lb.; newspapers, 6d. a lb.; and Victoria to pay New South Wales on all correspondence outwards and homewards transmitted by steamers of the Pacific Mail Company the same rates.

2. “Victoria to pay New South Wales on all correspondence conveyed by steamers of the Orient Company outwards and homewards the following rates, viz. :—Letters, 12s. a lb.; packets, 1s. a lb.; newspapers, 6d. a lb.

3. “Victorian correspondence to be transmitted by Orient steamer only when specially marked, the New South Wales Government, of course, having the option of acting in the same way with regard to correspondence by the P. and O. Line, if thought advisable.

4. “New South Wales to reduce the postage on correspondence by the P. and O. steamer via Colombo to the rates now chargeable by Victoria.

5. “Division of postage with the United Kingdom to be the same by both routes—i.e., on mails despatched from the United Kingdom by the Orient Company; Victoria to be credited with the same amounts that she now receives on mails despatched for that Colony from Great Britain by the P. and O. Line; and New South Wales to receive the like credits on correspondence received in that Colony from Great Britain by the P. and O. Line.”

Authority was given, in terms of this agreement, to levy the following reduced rates of postage on correspondence transmitted to the United Kingdom from this Colony by the steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, viz. :—

Letters, 6d. per  $\frac{1}{2}$  ounce.

Packets, 1d. per ounce.

Newspapers, 1d. each.

The same rates are levied on correspondence for other countries sent through the United Kingdom, in addition to the special rates levied, for conveyance from the United Kingdom to those places.

The like rates were, in April, made applicable to correspondence forwarded by the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes Company, and, in November, to that forwarded via Torres Straits.

The late fee on letters posted in this Colony for transmission to any of the other Australasian Colonies was, on the 1st April, reduced from 3d. to 2d.

In December arrangements were made for the exchange between this Colony and Honolulu of insufficiently prepaid letters and packets, the amount collected on delivery thereof being retained by the office of destination.

LETTERS, NEWSPAPERS, PACKETS, AND POST CARDS, POSTED THROUGHOUT THE COLONY.

The following is a return of the estimated number of Letters, Newspapers, Packets, and Post Cards posted in the Colony during 1884, as compared with the number posted in the preceding year:—

	1883.	1884.
LETTERS.
Posted for delivery within the Colony .....	31,258,300	37,289,800
„ Australian Colonies and New Zealand .....	1,401,900	1,631,400

Total number of Post Cards posted .....	259,400	296,300

The increase during 1884 in the number of letters posted is at the rate of about 19 per cent. ; in the number of newspapers, about 27 per cent. ; in the number of packets, about 94 per cent. ; and in the number of post cards, about 14 per cent.

The average number of letters posted in 1884, in proportion to the population of the Colony, is estimated at forty-three to each person.

It should be mentioned that these returns are only estimated, and that considerable difficulty is experienced in obtaining very accurate information, especially in regard to newspapers, owing to the tendency on the part of Postmasters and others to over estimate the business done by them. Measures have, however, been taken which will, it is hoped, insure greater accuracy for the future.

DEAD LETTER BRANCH.

Of the Registered Letters mentioned in the above return 1,626 originated in New South Wales, and on being opened, previous to return to the writers, were found to contain, besides correspondence and valuable enclosures, £1,510 9s. 1d. in coin, notes, and cheques. The remaining 651 were from places outside the Colony and returned unopened as follows:—161 to the Colonies, 396 to London, and 94 to other Countries.

In 1,407 unregistered letters were found valuable enclosures representing £16,285 13s. 10d. This amount included coin, bank notes, cheques, drafts, stamps, money orders, and promissory notes.

Out of about 9,000 letters and packets passed on to the Dead Letter Office imperfectly addressed, the addresses of two-thirds were rectified and the letters forwarded, and the remainder were returned to the writers. In addition to the foregoing, 1,316 Chinese letters, imperfectly addressed, were forwarded to the intended addresses, through the assistance of the Chinese Interpreter employed by the Department.

Of

Of 102 packets containing articles of clothing, merchandise, &c., received with the addresses torn off, postage refused, &c., seven only were applied for.

About one-half per cent. of the total number of letters posted in the Colony during 1884 were unclaimed.

The number of letters, &c., delivered by the letter-carriers attached to the head office during the years 1883 and 1884 was as follows:—

	1883.	1884.
Unregistered letters ... ..	6,305,458	6,953,353
Registered letters ... ..	52,425	58,694

Newspapers ... ..	912,001	1,012,163

As an illustration of the increase in the business of the Department which the practice of exchanging cards of greeting at the Christmas season creates, the following return showing the number of letters delivered by the City and Suburban Letter Carriers on the 17th and 18th, as compared with the number delivered on the 24th and 25th December, will be of interest:—

17 December... ..	22,685

The amount of correspondence despatched from the Head Office, in closed mails, at the same period, was also very largely increased.

REGISTRATION BRANCH.

The number of registered letters which passed through the General Post Office in 1884, was 321,447, against 272,887 in 1883, giving an increase of 48,560.

NUMBER OF MAILS RECEIVED AND DESPATCHED.

The following Return shows the number of Mails received at and despatched from the General Post Office during the years 1883 and 1884:—

Since September the public have been afforded the opportunity of exchanging at the General Post Office, for cash, spoiled but unused stamped envelopes, in lots bearing stamps to the value of not less than £1. A discount of 10 per centum is charged for the accommodation.

In the year 1884 the average cost per mile of the Inland Mail Conveyance was about 5½d. against 5d., the price per mile paid in the year 1883. The particulars as to the Mail Contracts for the Conveyance of Inland Mails will be found in the Appendix.

Appendix E.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE.

The consideration of the question of free transmission of newspapers through the Post Office cannot in the interest of the general public be much longer delayed, for the difficulties now experienced by the Post Office are of a very serious nature. Not only can newspapers be sent free as often as possible within seven days from date of publication, but there is no limit as to weight, and it not unfrequently happens that persons having received through the post such papers as the Sydney Mail, and the Town and Country Journal, each weighing over 7 ounces, repost after reading them; and as many papers are published two days before the impressed date, it is quite possible, in consequence of the acceleration of the course of post by means of the railways to repeat the process three or four times before the expiration of the seven days allowed by law.

There can be no doubt that large numbers of newspapers are posted solely with the view of informing friends of the sender's existence and welfare, and thus it happens, in each instance, either that the postal revenue loses the postage of a letter, or that the Department is put to the expense and trouble of carrying and delivering a newspaper for nothing.

The question of space is also an important matter, for if the circulation should increase at the same rate as during the last eleven years of free transmission, it will very soon become necessary to make large and costly additions to the Post Office premises at nearly all of our principal country towns.

A great and ever increasing difficulty is felt in managing the conveyance of inland mails. On many cross lines mails could be carried on horseback at perhaps half the present cost, and with greater regularity, but for the bulk and weight of newspapers, which necessitate the employment of wheeled vehicles, in many instances over roads unfit for wheel traffic, the delivery of letters being thus seriously delayed. The difficulty would of course be considerably lessened if the weight of newspapers carried free, or at a minimum charge, were reduced to 4 ounces.

I should be sorry that residents in the distant parts of the country, where the newspaper is more appreciated than even in Sydney, should be deprived of the boon which they have enjoyed for so long a time; but it is evidently unfair that this boon should be continued at the expense of other people. If the small sum of one half-penny were charged for newspapers under four ounces in weight, and the like sum for every extra four ounces or fraction thereof, I believe that the circulation of newspapers would not be seriously interfered with.

It was considered that the loss of revenue in the year 1874, in consequence of the abolition of postage on newspapers, amounted to about £11,000, the estimated number of newspapers posted being under 6,000,000, and as the number in 1884 is estimated at 23,392,000, it is obvious that the loss must now be considerably greater; but it is considered that if the small charge mentioned should be imposed as the revenue resulting therefrom will probably be not less than £27,000 after allowing for the probable discontinuance of some newspapers which will be forwarded by other agency than that of the Post Office.

The effect of the free carriage of newspapers on the cost of inland mail services is difficult to estimate, but it is on record that Messrs. Cobb & Co., who, in 1874, served the principal trunk lines of the Colony, complained strongly of the increased weight which they were compelled to carry in consequence of the abolition of postage, and the Government could not in fairness hold them to their then existing contracts, amounting to £8,150 6s. 8d. per annum. On fresh tenders being invited the lowest were found to amount to £14,746 5s. 7d., that is to say, £6,595 18s. 11d. in excess of the sum previously paid. A similar result happened with respect to other existing contracts; and for the lines where contracts expired in 1874, and where newspaper matter was known to be heavy, new contracts could only be obtained at increased rates.

It is impossible to estimate accurately what saving might be made in future mail contracts in case of the reimposition of postage, but it is estimated that, at the very lowest computation, three-fourths of the weight of the whole mail matter conveyed inland is due to newspapers. It does not, however, follow that the cost of carrying newspapers bears the same proportion to the cost of carrying letters, because it not unfrequently happens that certain mails contain so few newspapers that their weight and bulk add nothing to the cost of carrying the whole mail, and in other cases the mails must be carried even though at a loss whether they contain newspapers or not; but, taking everything into consideration, I estimate that the carriage of newspapers, which do not pay postage, costs the country certainly not less than the £27,000, which I anticipate would be derived from a postal fee of one half-penny on each newspaper, if indeed it does not, as there is good reason to believe, cost a very much larger sum.

If my estimates be correct, the amount would help to cover the present deficiency, which last year amounted to £62,061 7s. 10d.; if indeed, in consequence of possible savings in mail contracts through limitation in weight and through the probable forwarding of some newspapers by other means, and of a little economy in other directions, the postal branch of the Department did not become a profitable instead of a losing one.

In the event of the attainment of this most desirable state of things, the consideration of the extension of the present limit of the penny post could then be entered upon and possibly even the question of a parcel post or other increased postal accommodation to the public which, under present circumstances, it is quite impossible to arrange for.

It may further be mentioned that, for the carriage of newspapers by railway and coasting steamers, we actually paid away last year the sum of £3,267, receiving nothing in return. To the losses incurred in the various ways pointed out must be added the whole or portion of the salaries of many officials throughout the Colony employed in stamping, sorting, and delivering newspapers, and in conducting correspondence with respect to complaints in connection with them.

Although I am aware that many arguments may be adduced in favour of the continuance of the policy of free transmission of newspapers, I have refrained from dealing with the question in its political aspect, as in the pages of an official report it hardly seems proper to consider it from any other point of view than a departmental one.

II.—MONEY ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Arrangements are in progress by which it is contemplated to extend the Money Order system to the following British and Foreign countries, namely :—

BRITISH COLONIES.

Bermuda                  Falkland Islands.

SOUTH AND WEST AFRICA.

Gambia	Lagos	Natal	Seychelles
Gold Coast	Mauritius	St. Helena	Sierra Leone

WEST INDIES.

The number of Money Order offices in the Colony on 31st December, 1884, was 431, being 15 in excess of the previous year.

The number of Orders issued during the year was 305,883, amounting to £1,068,068 5s. 3d., against 275,592, amounting to £963,698 8s. 8d., for 1883, the difference showing an increase for the year of 30,291 in the number and £104,369 16s. 7d. in the amount.

The number of Orders paid was 270,678, amounting to £921,904 6s. 7d., against 239,595, amounting to £829,770 0s. 5d. for 1883, being an increase of 31,083 in the number and £92,134 6s. 2d. in the amount.

The amount of Revenue received as commission on Money Orders was £12,794, being £1,423 6s. in excess of the amount received in 1883.

The following return will show the business transacted during the year:—

In the Appendix will be found a return showing the total number and amount of Money Orders Appendix A. issued and paid at each office for the year.

III.—GOVERNMENT SAVINGS' BANK DEPARTMENT.

This branch of the Service still continues to show very satisfactory results, the number of depositors having increased from 45,721 in 1883 to 51,399 in 1884, and the balance at their credit from £1,183,519 3s. 9d. to £1,290,931 6s. 8d.

The following new offices have been opened, namely:—

Barmedman	Ivanhoe	Nyngan
Bethungra	Jamberoo	Peat's Ferry
Brewarrina	Joadja Creek	Silverton
Bungendore	Kangaroo Valley	Summer Hill
Burruga	Lawrence	Tarago
Cargo	Marsden's	Whitton
Girilambone	Narrabri Railway Station	Wickham

The number of deposits was 156,578, and the amount £1,033,701 3s. 5d., being an increase of 8,931 in the number and £110,897 9s. in the amount on the business in the year 1883.

The withdrawals for the year were 71,532, for £969,487 3s., being 12,057 in number, and £31,413 14s. 6d. in amount, greater than the previous year.

The deposits, together with the interest added to depositors' accounts, increased the balance at the credit of depositors from £1,183,519 3s. 9d. in 1883, to £1,290,931 6s. 8d. on 31st December, 1884.

The amount of interest at 4 per cent. added to depositors' accounts was £43,198 2s. 6d.

The average amount of each deposit was £6 12s. 0½d., and of each withdrawal, £13 13s. 10d. The average amount at the credit of each depositor's account at the close of the year was £25 2s. 3¼d.

The following return will show the annual progress of the Government Savings' Bank system, from 1st September, 1871, to 31st December, 1884:—

In July, 1884, it was deemed advisable to alter the amount specified in the 19th and 20th Regulations made under the authority of the Government Savings' Bank Act, 34<sup>o</sup> Victoriae, No. 15, from £50 to £100.

The following are the Regulations referred to, as amended :—

19. In case any depositor shall die, leaving any sum of money not exceeding £100, exclusive of interest, deposited in the Government Savings' Bank, and probate of his will or letters of administration be not produced to the Postmaster-General, or if notice in writing of the existence of a will, and intention to prove the same, or to take out letters of administration, be not given to the Postmaster-General at his principal office, within the period of one month from the death of the depositor, or if such notice be given, but such will be not proved, or letters of administration be not taken out, and the probate or letters of administration (as the case may be) produced to the Postmaster-General within the period of two months from the death of the depositor, it shall be lawful for the Postmaster-General, after such period of one or two months (as the case may be), to pay and divide such funds, at his discretion, to or amongst the widow or relatives of the deceased depositor, or any one or more of them ; or, if he shall think proper, according to the Statute of Distributions.
20. In case any depositor shall die, leaving any sum of money in the Government Savings' Bank, which (exclusive of interest) shall exceed the sum of £100, the same shall only be paid to the executor or administrator on the production of the probate of will or letters of administration of the estate or effects of the deceased depositor to the Postmaster-General.

The charge for the transmission of Telegraphic Messages between the Chief Telegraph Office, Sydney, and all the suburban Stations around Sydney, reached by the Penny Post, as well as for telegrams passing between one such suburb and another within the same area, was, from the 12th May, reduced to sixpence for the first ten words,—the charge for every additional word remaining as before, namely, one penny.

It was found impracticable during 1884 to give effect to the agreement arrived at between the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania, at the Postal Conference held in Sydney, in May, 1883, in regard to telegraph rates, owing to the delay in completing the work of erecting the additional wire between Melbourne and Sydney. The agreement, however, was brought into operation on the 1st January, 1885, the following being the terms thereof:—

	s. d.
“ A Message of ten words transmitted over the land lines of two Colonies ... ..	1 0
For each additional word ... ..	0 2
A message of ten words transmitted by the land lines of three Colonies ... ..	1 6
For each additional word ... ..	0 3

To be divided in equal shares between the Colonies performing the service.”

The foregoing charges are in addition to the usual sub-marine cable charges in all cases where the cable is used.

In connection with the reduced charge for messages for Victoria, it was notified that in cases where it was evident that a long message had been subdivided into two or more “ten-word” messages, the signatures and addresses of the additional messages would be counted and charged for.

Communication by cable between Australia and India was maintained without interruption during the year 1884, but on the land section across the Australian Continent to Port Darwin, the following interruptions took place, viz.:—

North of Government Gums, from 6.30 p.m. on the 5th January to 2.15 p.m. on the 7th idem.

North of Peake, from 9 a.m. on the 5th March to 1.50 p.m. on the 8th idem.

North of Tennant's Creek, 19th August to 12.5 p.m. on the 20th idem, and North of Peake, from 6 p.m. on the 14th to 7.55 a.m. on the 19th November.

In conclusion, I have to add my congratulations on the continued prosperity of the Colony, of which ample evidence is afforded in the improved condition of its Postal, Money Order, Government Savings' Bank, and Electric Telegraph Departments.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant,

JAMES NORTON,

General Post Office, Sydney, 19th June, 1885.

Postmaster-General.

REPORT

OF THE

PRESIDENT, ARTHUR RENWICK, B.A., M.D.,
F.R.C.S., E., &C., &C.,

FOR THE YEAR ENDED

5 APRIL, 1885.

Presented to Parliament, in accordance with the provisions of Act 44 Vic. No. 24.

SYDNEY: THOMAS RICHARDS, GOVERNMENT PRINTER.

State Children's Relief Department,
Central Home, Paddington, 16 May, 1885.

The President of the State Children's Relief Board to The Honorable the Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

In accordance with the provisions of section 12 of Act 44 Vict. No. 24, it is my duty, as President of the State Children's Relief Board, to present for the information of Parliament a history of the operations of the State Children's Relief Department of New South Wales during the year ended 5th April, 1885; and it is gratifying to me to be in a position to state that the four years' experience of the working of the boarding-out system by the Department enables me now to furnish a Report which must be considered highly satisfactory.

Hitherto, I have in my Annual Reports considered very fully the various methods of caring for dependent children adopted, wherever, during recent years, the most advanced ideas on this important subject have prevailed; believing, as I do, that no other department of social science can have a more powerful or direct influence upon the future well-being of the country. Although it would perhaps have been utopian to expect either Parliament or the people to accept wholly, without question or direct experiment, the radical changes in connection with the constitution and administration of our asylums for the young which I have from time to time suggested, still there is much cause for congratulation as regards the steps in that direction (detailed hereafter), which have thus far been either authorized or initiated, and in the promises they hold out for the future. I do not in this Report purpose to traverse the same ground, or refer at length to those proposed reforms which, although they are doubtless of profound interest to all engaged in training the neglected child-life of this country, are not at present directly within the scope of the functions of this Department. My views in regard to these matters have been very fully expressed in the annual Reports already published. I shall therefore on this occasion confine my remarks, with the exception of one or two necessary deviations, to the practical issues of the boarding-out system in this Colony. That system is now not only thoroughly established, but its operations have during the past year been enlarged beyond precedent. When I hereafter enter into detail on this subject, the great extension of the work of the Board will be apparent; and as all the conditions essential to success have been observed, as far as possible, it is satisfactory to be able to say, in general terms, that the good results of our larger operations have been no less pronounced than those of the earlier and more limited efforts of the Board.

It is not necessary again to formulate in elaborate phraseology the principles and conditions of the boarding-out system. One result of the publication of the monthly reports of our meetings in the daily Press, of the issue of the detailed Annual Report, and of the gradual extension of the operations of the Board throughout the Colony, has been to familiarize the public mind with what, at the initiation of this system, was a novelty. Few people who pay any attention at all to public affairs can be ignorant of the general features of boarding-out; but even yet the space devoted to a brief sketch of the system will not be wasted. Boarding-out means the placing in select homes, and with select foster-parents, destitute healthy children under the age of twelve years. Such children are subjected to the ordinary family discipline of the household, and foster-parents are required to send their wards regularly to school and church; indeed it is stipulated that the children shall be treated in all respects as if they were by natural ties members of the families in which they are placed. A small weekly payment for this general care is made to the guardians by the Board. An essential element of the system which ensures its success is the perpetual oversight of the homes maintained, locally by ladies carefully chosen, and officially by the Inspectors of the Department, who pay visits without notice throughout the year.

I regret that I am not able to report the enactment of any laws on the lines of suggestions contained in my second Annual Report. I still hold the opinion, which has been much strengthened by the experience of the past four years, that it is desirable that all schemes of dealing with the children of the State should be under the control of a single organization, as in Victoria, South Australia, and elsewhere, able to adapt means to ends as circumstances dictated. I advocated this plan long before my connection with this Department or its adoption in either of the neighbouring Colonies. Such a uniform control would naturally be at once more effective and economical than a number of diverse systems can be. But what cannot be done directly under existing laws may possibly be accomplished indirectly.

The institutions are already partially depopulated by the operations of the State Children's Relief Department, and it is generally understood now that under the continued vigorous prosecution of the boarding-out system they will eventually be entirely emptied. Thus, the Asylum for Destitute Children at Randwick, which a few years ago contained nearly 800 children, now has only 365 inmates; the numbers at the Protestant and Roman Catholic Orphan Schools have been reduced from 250 and 350 children to 50 and 70 respectively; and the inmates of our national receiving house—the Benevolent Asylum—are now placed in homes as soon as they are cleansed from the physical impurities with which, as a rule, they are afflicted when rescued from the city slums or passed in from neglected homes. In Victoria, the process which I deem possible of accomplishment in this Colony has actually taken place. Gradually one institution after another has been deprived of its inmates, who have been boarded-out. As the Secretary of the Reformatory and Industrial Schools in Victoria wrote last year—"After the nursery, with its 109 infants, was emptied in 1873, the children were in rapid succession withdrawn for boarding-out: in 1874, from the Sunbury Barracks (afterwards re-occupied for a time); in 1875, from the St. Kilda Road and Ballarat Industrial Schools and the 'Nelson'; in 1878, from the Geelong School; and in 1880, from the large buildings at Royal Park, since handed over to the Immigrants' Aid Society—leaving no single Government Industrial School, with the exception of the Receiving Depôts, standing." In this way the whole mass of the State children may in the future become subject to this Board. There is no reason whatever why this result should not be reached; and its attainment would benefit the children and the State alike. For proof of this assertion I need only refer to the Appendices to this Report, which bear upon the improved health and manners of the children who have been removed from the Asylums and restored to home-life, and to the comparative statements of the cost of training them amidst and apart from the institution surroundings. Such a course is therefore counselled on the assumption of the superiority of boarding-out—in its physical and moral and financial aspects—as a means of caring for State children; and testimonies to that excellence, direct and indirect, can be culled from all the literature on this important subject of State concern.

I do not desire to again quote at length on this head from the innumerable official documents in the possession of the Board, which detail the results of the system in all parts of the world where it has obtained firm footing. There are happily now few civilized communities in which it has not. I may refer briefly for example to the report of that able statesman and social reformer, Lord Aberdare, President of the Commission of the British House of Lords, on Industrial and Reformatory Schools, in which the principles of boarding-out are warmly advocated, and the results of the system throughout the United Kingdom are detailed with satisfaction. The Commissioners unhesitatingly condemn the aggregation of children in large numbers, and through their President say:—"It is in the smaller schools that the personal influence of the Superintendent can be applied with most satisfactory results to every individual boy or girl in the school, and to those who, having left it, can still benefit by the watchful guidance or sympathy of a Superintendent who has acquired a knowledge of their characters and an influence over them for good. The difficulty of acquiring such a knowledge and influence increases in direct proportion to the numbers of the school. And seeing that, in most cases, the neglect of the parent has been the cause of the committal of the child, and that this neglect must be repaired by the influence of those who stand in loco parentis, there are strong reasons in favour of keeping reformatories and industrial schools as small

small as local circumstances will allow ; so that each boy or girl may receive as much personal care and interest as can be given in an institution which is necessarily an imperfect substitute for home." And another high authority (the Inspector of Industrial and Reformatory Schools of Great Britain) affirms, as the result of twenty-five years' experience, " that the success of any school (reformatory or industrial) in forming the characters of the inmates and judiciously placing them out in life, will be in direct proportion to the smallness of the number amongst whom the influence and energies of the Superintendent are distributed. As the numbers increase, the wider becomes the divergence of the institution life from the character of home life." Thus, the smaller the school the more effective it is ; and a child boarded-out has all the advantages of schooling and all the advantages of home life, the State taking guarantee that the foster-parents shall indeed stand in loco parentis to him. In the same report the Commissioners give, in a note, the evidence of one witness which constitutes an admirable summary of the value of boarding-out as a method of industrial training :—" Mr. A. Duffus said, ' The advantage of the boarding-out system is that from the age of eight or nine they are trained to do whatever is wanted about a house. They go into a cotter's family. We mostly go to a person with 6 or 8 acres of land and a cow, and to such a person a boy or girl is a great assistance. When they come out of school they can herd and do all kinds of work that is wanted, and they gradually drift into usefulness. A 'hospital' boy of sixteen is sent out into the world perfectly helpless. We had experience of that yesterday. We sent a boy to Mr. Runcy, and yesterday he was sent out of the industrial school over sixteen years of age, and he came to us for protection utterly helpless, and that is not an isolated case.' " " They gradually drift into usefulness," just as a child will do whose parents have given him the usual oversight and care, but who must earn his own living. " A 'hospital' boy"—(the witness defines hospital as 'synonymous with industrial school, where you herd a lot of children together, and train them not in family training, but as a body')—"is sent out into the world perfectly helpless." I enlarge somewhat on this point because, if boarding-out is to be extended, whether by legislation or evolution, it must have the public sanction and support ; and, as I have said on a former occasion, one aim I have in view is the education of public opinion on this important subject.

I have quoted from Lord Aberdare's report more particularly, because it embodies the opinions of the most able and experienced men of our time as regards the training of State children, and it will doubtless be accepted in future as a standard authority on this question. Coming nearer home, however, for examples of the beneficent working of the system, I need only refer to its results in Victoria, where it has operated twelve years, and where consequently many young men and women have been sent from their foster-homes to fight the battle of life for themselves. Mr. G. Guillaume, the able Secretary of Reformatory and Industrial Schools in that Colony (where there are nearly 2,000 children boarded-out) in his last annual report says :—" Out of numberless other tokens, I will only further refer to the interest which the foster-parents continue to take in the children when the Government payment ceases upon their becoming eligible for service. Often where they have suitable employment to offer, they themselves engage the child, either on license or under indentures of apprenticeship, at the regulation rates. Where they cannot do this, they will sometimes spare no exertion in aiding the Committee to find suitable and desirable employment in trade or service ; if the former, perhaps arranging for the child continuing his residence in the old home. But even if the foster-home have to be left, the intercourse with its inmates is by no means broken off : to it the young man or young woman comes back continually, still on the old filial footing, almost always on holidays and frequently on the Sundays, receiving there ' kindly and indeed parental advice, sympathy, and counsel.' 'Nor,' to cite the experience of Miss Florence Hill, 'is the advantage all on one side. The foster-child feels the family tie as strongly as the rest, and when he comes to earn wages, helps his foster-parents in time of need as if he were their own offspring.' The contrast between the position of a child provided with a situation from, and in the vicinity of, its old foster-home, and one placed out from an institution, is very striking, and altogether to the disadvantage of the latter. The foster-child, as a rule, is still under the upholding and restraining influence of a public opinion that has grown up around him, and becomes, as it were, his world. His foster-parents, their children and acquaintances, acquaintances, his teachers and fellow scholars at the day and Sunday schools, his clergyman, the ladies and correspondent of the Local Committee, and the medical officer, these all contribute to the one child their quota of wholesome influence, while the other, on leaving the walls which for a term of years have enclosed him (in an extreme case this may be thirteen years), is as a stranger in a strange land, at once liable to discouragement and to fall into the hands of undesirable acquaintances; at the least he has all his local friendships to make." Our Victorian neighbours have become so enthusiastic with the success which has attended the system in regard to its operation upon State children that its special application to inmates of asylums for infirm and destitute adults, and also of lunatic asylums, as in some older countries, is recommended; I am aware also that the Charities Commission of New South Wales recommended its adoption in a similar manner in this Colony. I have grave doubts, however, as to the desirableness of thus enlarging the scope of our existing system for controlling destitute and afflicted adults. My ideal of the boarding-out system is that, before it can be thoroughly successful—or successful in a modified degree—a strong reciprocal affection must exist between the guardian and the ward. The most powerful sympathies of humanity naturally—and especially in the case of women—go out to orphaned and practically fatherless and motherless children, and hence it is not difficult to establish a satisfactory connection on this basis of benevolence. But it would be unreasonable to expect any such result with regard to boarded-out destitute adults and lunatics. In their case the prime motive of the guardians would probably be a mercenary one, and in such an event I think the result would almost certainly be failure. There has been repeated evidence that this motive is not the paramount one in connection with boarded-out children in these Colonies. Mrs. Senior, Inspector under the Local Government Board of England, relates a remarkable instance in connection with the Union of South Dublin, where the guardians are, as a rule, in very poor circumstances. In her annual report this lady says:—"At various dates and ages seventy-three children were placed out at nurse by the guardians of the South Dublin Union. These in due course became ten years of age, the age at which (strange to say) nursing out in Ireland ceases, and the instructions of the guardians required that they should be recalled and returned to the poor-house. But every one of the seventy-three has been adopted and retained by its foster-mother," that is, adopted without payment.

As regards boarding-out, Victorian experience is much more valuable than that of England or Scotland, because the conditions of life in the sister Colony are substantially similar to those which prevail in New South Wales. In the few lines which I have just quoted from the Secretary's report, he dwells on a feature of the working of the system of a most pleasing character. It is the love for children which grows up on the part of the foster-parents. And in the information furnished in other parts of the report the same sentiment preponderates. Children are wanted by strangers for adoption, and cannot be procured, because foster-parents, rather than relinquish a child which has endeared itself to them, prefer to adopt it themselves and relinquish the money grant; the ties formed while the State contributed to the maintenance of children are strong enough to last after payment is withdrawn. These are illustrations drawn from English and Victorian experience. No better proof of the beneficence of the boarding-out system could be presented. It affords a field for the cultivation of an artificial parental and filial love nearly as genuine, and quite as practically useful, as the love between parents and children united by the ties of nature. If I am not yet able to cite any such notable instance of success, in reference to the children's practical affection for their guardians after they have gone out into the world from the foster home, it is because the system in New South Wales has not yet had time to develop all its possibilities. But many instances have been afforded, even in our own short experience in imitating nature, of the strong regard which the foster-mothers have entertained for their foster-children. In our own Colony we have already nearly 100 cases recorded on the books in which, when the period of payment by the State for the children has expired, the guardians have preferred to retain them and pay them as apprentices rather than permit them to go out to service with strangers,—the circumstances of most of these guardians being strong presumptive proof that their regard for their charges has induced them to enter into the apprenticeship license. It is an eloquent commentary upon the results of the system that these children, although they have under

under the indenture nominally become the servants of their guardians, sit at the same table, attend the same school as, and in all respects enjoy the same comforts and advantages which the homes may afford to, the foster-parents' own children. My extreme anxiety that the term "boarding-out" shall not be applied to any system that will be likely to bring it into disrepute, will justify this brief reference to a proposal which is seriously entertained by some of the most earnest social reformers in these Colonies; and which I certainly, after full consideration, do not agree with.

In one respect I am happy to say that the Government has shown a strong disposition to adopt and carry into practical effect a suggestion made more than once in my Annual Reports. Boarding-out must of necessity be limited to children who are reasonably clean in morals; otherwise there would be danger of carrying contamination of the worst kind throughout the community. But apart from that consideration, foster-parents, carefully chosen as they must be, will not take any but select children. The duty they perform is insufficiently paid for by the weekly stipend granted by the Board; but no stipend, however large, would compensate them for the introduction into their households of youthful impurity. It is necessary to prepare for boarding-out one class of the children who should come under the control of this Board. Such work as this of preparation is to a certain extent done excellently by the Vernon Industrial School Ship, which has also, by force of circumstances, become a reformatory. The elder boys sent to the Vernon are purified by the discipline of the ship during a twelve months' probation, and then go out into the world essentially on the boarding-out system; but, as I venture to repeat, without its safeguards in the shape of local committees and of previous official inquiries into the applicants' characters. Yet no one can deny that the Vernon produces some most valuable results in the reclamation of boys who, without its interposition, would be lost from the ranks of the good, the respectable, and the industrious, and become profligate and thriftless, if not criminal. A reformatory as an adjunct to the work of boarding-out, which should do more systematically and of set purpose what the Vernon has drifted into doing, is a desideratum. I am glad to know that the Government found time, in the midst of its multifarious duties, to develop a scheme for the establishment of a boys' reformatory, and the Legislature has voted the funds necessary for that purpose. The deeply-regretted illness of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary has somewhat interrupted this good work; but tenders for the erection of the necessary buildings have now been invited, and it is therefore reasonable to hope that, before the expiration of another year, a boys' reformatory in New South Wales will be an accomplished fact. The Government have fortunately sufficient evidence afforded from other places of what it is advisable to adopt and to avoid in the constitution and administration of such an institution; and I would suggest that, in preparing regulations for it, such hints as are applicable—and there are many—will be collected from the report of Lord Aberdare above referred to, and from the carefully thought-out suggestions I have myself ventured to make during the past four years in my capacity as President of the Department which now controls the great mass of State children, and which has already had to deal with a number of charges who were certainly at the outset fit subjects for a reformatory only. I will merely say here that experience goes to show that the work which it is desirable a reformatory should do is mainly reforming work. The subject comes into the institution untaught, ignorant, reckless of decency or order, a white barbarian, the fruit of parental criminality or depravity, or of the absence of parental care, and of the rough schooling of the street. The aim of the reformer is to fit such a subject as quickly as possible for the everyday, decorous, wholesome life of the world; therefore he comes under discipline, learns how to obey, is habituated to regular industry. As far as is possible, all effects of previous experiences are counteracted; but before he can become "institutionized"—to use a word which explains itself—he must be sent out to enjoy, as well as they can be secured for him, the natural conditions of humanity. If it seem to any one that this is a scheme too mechanical to succeed, I would remind him that success is a comparative term. No one has ever claimed that the system makes angels of the children whom it boards out. What is affirmed is that, by boarding-out the children of the State, it gives them nearly as good a chance in the battle of life as children enjoy who have never been destitute or neglected.

neglected. Even among these last a percentage fails to remain in the ranks of respectability, and the frailties of human nature attach to the charges of the Board, as well as to those who do not demand its care. Lapses from virtue may occur in the after-life of a large proportion of boys and girls who pass through a reformatory to the control of foster-parents, but the system should not therefore be discredited. The task of the Board, which it can accomplish—because experience elsewhere has amply proved the possibility of its accomplishment—is to influence for good, and to a large extent to purify, a mass of human material which would otherwise become a source of annoyance and of danger to Society. The causes that produce this material are unhappily ever at work. But if the effects were left free to enlarge, the consequent social injury would be incalculable. In some degree agencies akin to this Board moderate causes by modifying effects; their work is preventive as well as curative, but in the main it is curative work—the amelioration of an existing evil; it stems a strong tide; and that, I venture to think, is no small or valueless service done to the community. In connection with children who are gradually qualifying for admission to a reformatory, an experiment has been tried for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not all purposes would be served if, on the commission of a first offence, they were not sentenced at all, but placed under official surveillance in their own homes. Some such system—of probation it is called—is in force with good results in Massachusetts, and in the same State it has been extended to adult offenders. Mr. Howard Vincent, late Director of Criminal Investigations in London, in 1883 mentioned the system as applied to adults with commendation. The advantages of the system of probation as far as children are concerned are, that it might have the effect of preventing a child from becoming a State child; on the other hand, I freely confess, that to place the members of a family under police or official espionage is a process repugnant to English ideas; to establish it would require the overthrow of many prejudices; and I am dubious whether the percentage of prevention is large enough to justify the adoption of so un-English an expedient.

While the establishment of a reformatory for boys is still a work of the future, I am happy to record the fact that an equally pressing want has been met, and a new avenue of usefulness has been entered upon by the Department. Last year I wrote:—"There are unfortunate victims of disease inherited or acquired, whom no foster-parent would care to have, and for whom barrack life is more unwholesome, mentally, morally, and physically, than it is even for robust children. Power should be possessed by those who are responsible for the disposal of destitute children to place such unhappy ones in cottage homes, under the care of select motherly persons, surrounded by comforts, in the enjoyment of suitable companionship, and subject, like boarded-out children, to jealous and vigilant official and local supervision. This would be a most beneficent adaptation of the boarding-out principle to special circumstances." The need of these homes became so urgent, that representations were made by me as President to the Acting-Colonial Secretary (the Hon. W. B. Dalley) who courteously received them, and a few weeks ago gave the necessary authority to this Board for the establishment of eight such homes in healthy country districts for delicate and afflicted children, of whom there were at that time nearly 150 in the various institutions. Four homes have already been opened at Pennant Hills, Picton, and Mittagong, containing ten children each, and others will be set up from time to time until all the children are provided for. It needs no words to show that caution is necessary in proceeding in this matter. Though children in cottage homes will be subjected to a scrutiny as constant as that which watches over boarded-out children, the obligations of a matron—or "mother" as the head of the home is called—are so much graver than those of an ordinary foster-parent, in consideration of the weakness and delicacy of her charges, that the utmost vigilance in the selection of "motherly persons" must be exercised. So far the Board has been careful in this respect, and is so fully conscious of what the service demands that it prefers to go slowly rather than to hurry matters, and cause any scandal by failure. I regard it as a great point to have gained ministerial sanction to this one of the functions of the Board; and there is no one of those functions which the Board discharges with greater satisfaction. The case of the children who are to be housed, comforted, and tenderly nourished in cottage homes is at least a sad one. Their condition appeals to the generous sympathies of every man and woman. It is not easy to ameliorate the lot of such sufferers, even when they are surrounded by all that loving care can devise. Their condition in the institutions is often hopeless—their life joyless—a long disease. That it is in the power of the Board to deal with this class of destitute children, as effectively as conditions will permit, must be as satisfactory to the public as it is gratifying to me. I may here state my assurance that the committees of ladies, who have so admirably performed everywhere the task of local supervision, will where cottage homes come within the range of their oversight perform their duties with no less thoroughness and fidelity. The boarding-out system is indebted for much of its success to the efficient local help it has received from ladies, and the cottage home experiment could not have been ventured upon if there were not available the womanly motherly aid which these committees can be trusted to extend. The premises for the cottage homes already established have been rented with the right to purchase at specified amounts, which have been mutually agreed upon by the Board and the owners, after due inquiries as to the value of the properties, under sanction of the Government, and I trust that Parliament will be asked to vote the necessary funds for their purchase on the next Estimates. Seeing that the homes already established have only been in existence a few weeks, it would be premature to discuss their results at this stage, but there cannot be a doubt that, as regards the physical improvement of the inmates, they must be an unqualified success; and there is reason for believing that the cost of thus training these sick and delicate children will not exceed the cost of the healthy children in the public asylums. Already a number of these children have so much improved under their altered conditions of life that they are fit to be sent to ordinary homes as boarders, and their places in the cottages can be filled by other ailing inmates of the institutions. When the first twenty of these children were sent to the cottage homes, a medical gentleman of high standing reported of them, after careful inspection—"The children are all sick in some way," and their complaints were of such a character that it would have been improper, even if it had been possible, to place them in healthy families.

As the boarding-out system has only been four years in operation, its fruits on society cannot yet be looked for; but evidence of its working well, and therefore promise of good fruit, is found in the generally assuring reports to hand of the condition of the hundreds of children now placed out. It has been occasionally found necessary no doubt to cancel engagements with foster-parents in consequence of their demerits, and the Board has been obliged in several instances to recall children of incorrigibly bad habits. These, however, are exceptions to the general rule of success, and indeed go to prove how faithfully the conditions of success are observed by the Board.

Before proceeding to give my usual historical detail of the proceedings of the year, reference to one experience of the Board will prove interesting. They have always striven to remove children from city or town influences, which are invariably morally disturbing; and for physical reasons also it has been customary to seek for homes in the country localities. No happier results have been recorded since operations began than those in connection with the placing of boys, found unmanageable near to towns, on dairy farms. The dairy farms of the southern coast district more particularly afford a splendid field for this particular division of our work, and since my previous Report a large number of boys, of ages varying from eight to eleven years, have been sent to the farmers resident from Wollongong to Ulladulla. They will acquire a valuable training in an important department of agriculture, and become a trustworthy element of a class of labour not too plentiful in the country. These children all attend school regularly, and their time, out of school hours, is not all spent in idleness. They assist in the ordinary work of the dairy and the farm, as the farmers' own children do, and they have consequently neither time nor opportunities, as they have in the towns, for indulging in mischief or in evil courses.

In the Victorian report, which has already been alluded to, the value of industrial training for boys is strongly insisted upon, and work similar to that which is done in a better kind of way on our dairy farms is there effected by means of farm schools or model farms, established at the cost of the State, and in which the lads are placed in families of fourteen or sixteen in charge of skilled instructors. The following is a summary of the observed results:—Youths so trained are removed from the demoralizing influences of towns and cities; they acquire sentiments of local attachment; a certain means of livelihood is placed at their disposal; the occupation is healthy; an industry that needs State furtherance receives it in this wholesome way; and boys nurtured for agricultural work, become industrious, self-reliant, and useful members of society. These results have been observed and predicted of boys trained on agricultural farms: how much more certainly must they follow the career of those more happy subjects of the care of this Board living the true home-life under the guardianship of kind foster-parents.

Passing from these general observations, I now proceed to enumerate some of the more important matters which have occurred in connection with the Department during the past year.

Our official year, as provided by law, ends on April 5, and at that date in 1884 there were 552 children under the control of the Board. 527 children have been boarded out during the year under review, namely, 353 boys and 174 girls; 19 boys and 31 girls have been discharged to relatives and friends, after due inquiry into the character and circumstances of each applicant; and 2 boys and 1 girl have died. So that on April 5, 1885, the period of the official year, there were 1,026 children under control, namely, 564 boys and 462 girls, the great bulk of whom, as will be seen from details further on, are scattered throughout the healthy country districts. Of these children, 509 boys and 354 girls are placed out as boarders, that is, their maintenance is paid for at stipulated weekly sums; 15 boys and 35 girls are adopted without cost to the State; 26 boys and 61 girls are apprenticed; and 14 boys and 12 girls are at the cottage homes. The children boarded out are paid for at the following rates:—1 at 10s. a week, this poor child being afflicted mentally and physically; 1 at 7s. 6d. a week, 35 at 7s., and 32 at 6s. a week in consideration of their delicate health, and the remainder at the usual subsidy of 5s. a week, with the exception of 7, who, being under three years of age are paid for, as provided by the regulations, at the rate of 7s. a week, in view of the extra trouble their tender age entails upon the guardians. The extra payment for the afflicted boarded-out children necessitates an expenditure of £279 14s. a year in excess of ordinary boarding-out fees which would not have to be incurred if the Department limited its operations to healthy children. I reported last year that the Board were discouraging applications for infants in arms, unless they were paid for at the minimum rate or received for adoption, because the previous two years' experience induced the belief that a number of persons had applied for children of this class simply for the purpose of making a profit out of them; and the officers of the Department had great difficulty in distinguishing between applicants actuated by purely mercenary motives and those applying for children rather from a desire to have child life in the home than for the sake of the money payment. A determination not to place out children under three years of age at other than the minimum subsidy, except in special cases, has been attended with the result which was anticipated. While the total number of applications during the past year has been much larger than in any preceding year, applications for such children have decreased; and while the number of such applications has been sufficient to provide for all infants whom the Board considered it necessary to place out, the smallness of the sum paid for their maintenance has been an added guarantee to that afforded by the usual inquiries, that the guardians have in a large degree been actuated by sentiments of philanthropy as well as by motives of profit. I mention this matter at some length, because it embodies one of the dangers of the system, in obviating which I think the Board have hit upon a successful and simple method. During the year payment for all children under three years of age at the date of my last report has reverted to the minimum scale. The Board, as I stated last year, decided upon three regular scales of payment, for the purpose of providing, if possible, for the sick as well as the sound inmates of the asylums, viz. :—

- 1.—7s. a week for children actively suffering from diseases or from chronic illness.
- 2.—6s. a week for others of delicate constitutions, but not suffering from complaints of an unpleasant character.
- 3.—5s. a week in ordinary cases of boarding-out.

And

And the maximum charge was also intended to provide for the defect which existed in the system in consequence of the absence of cottage homes; but the comparative numbers of children of class 1 in the year 1884 and during the year under notice is a sufficient answer to any objection that might be raised to the establishment of cottage homes for the sick on the ground that the children for whom they are specially intended might possibly have been provided for in ordinary homes. In 1884 there were 41 children paid for under class 1; but notwithstanding that the total number of the Board's wards during the past year has nearly doubled, the sick children now under control in that class have diminished to 35, not, unhappily, from inability of the institutions to supply them, but because it has been found impossible to persuade healthy families to receive them at any rate of payment. This fact will be fully understood from the following official record of the complaints from which the sick children now out as boarders under class 1 are suffering:—Weak intellect and diseased kidneys, 1; scrofulous, with occasional eruptions, 13; scrofulous sore eyes, 5; scalp eruptions, 4; ophthalmia, 3; very dirty habits arising from chronic weakness, 6; incontinence of water, 3. The deaths include 1 from accident, 1 from acute inflammation of the lungs, and 1 from infantile wasting; and it will thus be apparent that the rate of mortality has been very low, considering that nearly 1,100 children have been under control during the year, and that typhoid fever has prevailed in many towns in the Colony. In the case of marasmus there was scarcely a hope that the child (a female infant aged four months) would live when she came under the Board's control, but she was boarded-out in very melancholy circumstances with her two sisters. Their father—a well-connected and educated young man—deserted his wife and three children a few days after the woman's accouchement. The poor creature died for want of proper attention and sustenance, and was thus found by the neighbours with the three children in bed beside her.

It will be noticed that the number of adopted children, although largely in excess of last year's figures, is comparatively few, but the Department necessarily had to be careful to guard against several kinds of injustice in dealing with this most important element of the boarding-out system. Adoption cases of the proper kind undoubtedly show the perfection of the system, because they are those in which the childless woman receives the little one purely for its own sake, and to supply the motherly instinct of her being; and any one who has not witnessed it would scarcely credit the degree of mutual affection which is created in such cases. But there is a class of professing philanthropists who wish to adopt elder girls "for company," and these should be looked on with suspicion, particularly when the usual inquiries discover that there are several young children in the home and no servant. Applications of this character are rejected, because the applicants evidently desire to obtain cheap servants. Then, again, it is not considered wise to place out for adoption children whose parents are living, unless in exceptional instances, because of the danger of permanently severing natural ties in cases where the absent parent may not be altogether undeserving, or of inflicting injustice upon a foster-parent in such an event as that of the natural parents claiming children adopted by childless women. The Board have had two painful cases of the latter character to deal with. In one, a boy under three years of age was adopted by a woman, with whom he remained two years, when his own mother, who had been represented as dead, came one day and claimed him, under circumstances which disclosed that she had been driven from her family into another Colony by the cruelty and drunkenness of her husband, their stepfather; and in the other, a woman voluntarily gave up one of her two children after the father's desertion, her statement (which was verified) being that the man had gone to England, and that she could obtain a situation with one child but not with two. And now her own child is dead; she has become reunited to the husband, and is sparing no effort to obtain the other child, who has been for some months adopted without cost to the State by a childless wife in comfortable circumstances, who would make almost any sacrifice to retain her foster-child.

I mention these details in answer to possible and existing surmises as to the cause of the limited number of children adopted in comparison with those boarded-out. Of course the large number of children now apprenticed have ceased to be a charge on the State, so far as the cost of their maintenance and clothing is concerned. With reference to these apprentices I would once more point point out the danger as well as the anomaly of sending them to service at the early age which the law now specifies. Their period of boarding-out terminates when they are twelve years old, and they must be apprenticed for five years. The anomaly is that while they are thus paid as servants, the Public Instruction Act compels their attendance at school during two years of their service term; and the danger consists in turning them adrift upon the world at seventeen years of age on the termination of their indentures, when the passions are strongest, and when they consequently most need careful guidance and protection from the ordinary temptations of life to which young people—and especially young people of the classes ordinarily brought under the control of the Board—are particularly liable. This cannot be permitted to continue; and in a draft Bill which I have prepared providing fully for many needs of the Department, I have made provision for its amendment before the great danger to society as well as to the children which the early apprenticeship must entail by-and-bye is brought into activity. Thus far of course none of the indentures of the boarded-out children have terminated; but it is the intention of the Board to suggest shortly that Parliament should be asked to sanction that the apprenticing age shall be fourteen years, and the term of service six years, so that the child may be protected until the period of youth is passed. I would strongly impress upon the Government the importance of making legislation in this matter retrospective in its operation not only upon the children of this Department, but upon all those apprenticed from the various institutions. The school difficulty can of course be overcome, and I am glad to say is overcome, by the good nature of the guardians, who, albeit they pay their apprentices as servants, appear on the whole, from the official records, to have sent the children to school during the past year fully up to the requirements of the Public Instruction Act.

The Board, in common with every agency dealing with neglected children, find their powers circumscribed of compelling parents who neglect their obligations to contribute to the support of their children when able. That is a complaint which I must reiterate until the Legislature sees fit to enlarge our powers. In Victoria, where the similar difficulty exists of evasive parents, a hearty co-operation between the Industrial Schools Department and the Crown Law Officers has brought about a certain improvement, but not to such a degree as should be expected in view of the extent of the evil existing. There the duty of prosecuting defaulters has been transferred from the managers of institutions to the Clerks of Petty Sessions, by which means the active co-operation of the Police Department has been secured, with the result that the contribution per child increased from 5s. 6d. under the old system in 1883 to 11s. 3d. under the new method in 1884. Here, as I have already frequently remarked in former reports, we want better machinery—a more rigorous law, as an initial step in improvement; but until that is obtained a more systematic and comprehensive method than that which now prevails might be adopted under Ministerial authority in connection with all the institutions. The sum of £261 5s. 6d. has been collected from contributing parents during the year, but that does not represent the total of the amounts actually included under that heading—it does not include any sums collected through the Courts under magisterial orders. Last year I pointed out that it had been the custom for moneys paid into Court to be forwarded direct to the Treasury. Seeing that by this method all sums contributed did not stand as an item of credit on our books, the Board applied to the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to have these moneys withdrawn from Court and passed through this Department into the Treasury, as in the case of the voluntary contributions, as they were in most cases recovered through the watchfulness and upon the information of the Board's officers; but in consequence of an objection raised in another quarter, it was not deemed advisable to alter the then existing custom, which still prevails. It has also been ascertained recently that some collections from defaulters have been made through the Courts at the instance of the police solely, before the children came from the asylums under the control of this Board. So that there are now three ways of collecting these moneys, which embrace—(1) the voluntary payments by the parents; (2) those recovered legally at the instance of the Board's officers; and (3) those directed at the instance of the police,—under the first of which only are the payments made to the Treasury through this Department. Hence it is not possible to accurately estimate what the contribution per child has been from defaulters during the past year, but from the inquiries I have made I believe it it to be about the same as in Victoria last year under their improved method. After giving this important matter full consideration, I am clearly of opinion that the duty of making these collections can only be efficiently performed by the police, under a law which would deal with child-deserters as felons, punishable by imprisonment with hard labour. At present it is unsatisfactory to send these people to gaol, as they occasionally are so sent, in default of compliance with the Court orders, because they make no return to the State for their maintenance while in prison. They are not sentenced to hard labour, and their so-called punishment therefore simply means that they shall be kept in comparative idleness, at the public cost, for a period of twelve months, when they are entitled to be liberated; so that they thus become themselves a charge upon the State, in addition to their children. In my Report for 1884, page 13, I detailed a plan for successfully dealing with these defaulters, under which the police would be the primary agents, but it can only be effectively brought into operation by legislative enactment. I have reason to know that my suggestions are generally approved of by the managers of the various institutions. Deserted children drift into the central asylums from all parts of the Colony as well as from the Metropolis, and in many cases the circumstances and whereabouts of their parents could probably at the periods of their admission be ascertained without much difficulty through the local police, who could, under an amended law, prosecute upon their own information where the offence was committed. An idea of the position the managers of the various asylums now occupy with regard to this matter may be formed from the fact that, as I am given to understand, a man who deserts his child at Braidwood or Newcastle, or any remote part of the Colony, must be proceeded against at the local Court, although the child may be supported in one of the central institutions. In other words, the existing law, such as it is, has a tender regard for the convenience and comfort of the person who, I hold, should be regarded as one of the most cruel of criminals, rather than for the officer who seeks to compel him to acknowledge his parental obligations. At the present time there are several of these defaulters in Darlinghurst Gaol, and a number of summonses and warrants remain unexecuted at the Courts because the defaulters against whom they have been issued cannot be found.

Parliament voted a sum of £12,725 for the services of the State Children's Relief Department during the past year, and the usual details of its expenditure will be found in the balance-sheet. The Estimate included two sums for rent and repairs, which were not contained in the Board's estimate, and have not been taken into account, because they were expended, without reference to the Department, upon a building which did not come into the possession of the Board until some time subsequently, and because also the business of the Department was, during the greater part of the year, carried on in other premises in Phillip-street, for which rent was paid and charged in estimating the cost of the children. There is a difficulty in dealing with the vote which it would be well to remove in future legislation, by making the official year terminate on December 31 instead of April 5. The period which the vote is intended by Parliament to cover ends on December 31, and therefore the expenses of the last three months of the official year are in a large measure paid from the Treasurer's Advance Fund. The enormous increase in the Board's business, consequent upon Parliament having adopted boarding-out as the national policy of providing for State children in future, has of course rendered a corresponding increase in the financial grants necessary; but it is satisfactory to know that strict economy is practised in the expenditure of the funds, and that the work of this Department, costly as it may seem to be to those who merely look at the broad fact that a great sum of public money is asked for annually,—is saving at least 25 per cent. to the country, apart from all other advantages, in connection with the maintenance and training of our dependent children. For example, the figures from other Departments controlling State children show an average cost last year in no case less than £21 a head, and a general average of £24 per child, not including rent charge, which is taken into consideration in the case of the boarded-out children. The vote for the State Children's Relief Department for 1884 was intended to provide, as my last Annual Report shows, for 800 children under control on April 5, 1885, but we had upwards of 1,000 at that period, and a careful analysis of the expenditure places their average cost during the year at £16 19s. per child. In estimating this average cost I have prepared two statements, in order that the Institutions shall not be at an unfair disadvantage in regard to a comparison: the first showing the cost per child, including apprentices (who are now only a charge upon the State to the extent of the cost of their supervision and the clerical labour in connection therewith), and on this basis the average cost per child during the year has been £16 7s. The second statement excludes the apprentices, for the reason just stated, and the actual cost of the children calculated on this basis has been £16 19s., as I have stated. In the publication of the financial returns care will be taken to clearly set forth the expense separately of the several departments of the Board's work, so that the cost of maintaining children in the central home (to which fuller reference is made in another page), of those boarded-out, and of the afflicted children in the cottage homes, can be ascertained without difficulty. I may mention here that the method which has been adopted of keeping the accounts prevents the possibility of inaccurate statements. Every item of expenditure, with the exception of salaries (which are paid in the usual way through the Treasury direct, but are included in the annual returns), appears on the books of the Department, and can be checked by a simple comparison with the receipted vouchers in the Audit Office. Before being paid, all accounts are submitted at the monthly meetings of the Board, and subjected to careful scrutiny. The alteration decided upon last year in the method of distributing the Parliamentary vote has been productive of very satisfactory results. Previously separate sums of £500 only were paid into the Bank to the credit of the Board, so that it was necessary to ask for several deposits in order to liquidate a single quarter's accounts. This plan was in accordance with a custom which provides that only a certain proportion of the annual vote shall be ordinarily handed over in one sum; but by an arrangement with the Hon. the Colonial Secretary an estimate of the probable expenditure at the end of each quarter is now made a few days in advance, and one sum sufficient to cover the gross amount required is promptly deposited in the Bank to the Board's credit, so that there is now no unreasonable delay in paying the guardians for the maintenance of the children. For expenditure during 1885 a sum of £18,535 has been voted, and this will provide for the maintenance of 1,400 children. There can be little doubt that fully that number will be under control by the period of my next Annual Report; and it is quite possible that, in consequence of the establishment of the cottage homes, which will be furnished and maintained from this vote, an additional sum may be required from the Treasurer's Advance Fund. Section 10 of 44 Victoria No. 24 contemplates a contingency of this character, and makes provision for it. In view of the impossibility of accurately calculating in advance the extent of the Board's business in any given year, it is certainly singular how nearly the Parliamentary grants have hitherto approximated to its requirements. But I apprehend that, if even the Government had found it necessary to expend large sums without Parliamentary sanction in carrying on this work, few persons would have objected, in consideration of its satisfactory results in every particular essential for the proper training of State children.

There have been 720 new applications for children during the year, as against 490 in the preceding year. 517 of these were disposed of by the Board, 473 being approved, and 44 refused on the ground that the applicants were unsuitable for guardians. It is noticeable that repeated admonitions have had the effect of causing greater care to be exercised in all directions in the recommendation of applicants for children; but cases still occur which show how indispensable it is that in ordinary cases the homes should be inspected and inquiries made into the applicant's character before the child is sent out. As an example I may mention the case of one applicant (and others are registered fully as bad), highly recommended by a clergyman and magistrate, after having recently served two sentences in gaol, and who appeared to be actively qualifying himself for a third sentence at the time of the Inspector's visit. Several such instances are in the records of the year, but there is a marked diminution in their number as compared with the previous year. I allude to them here because the necessity for continued carefulness cannot be too often pointed out in connection with a matter of so much importance to orphaned children.

The children have thus far been taken from the Institutions in the following numbers:—Benevolent Asylum, 683; Asylum for Destitute Children, Randwick, 220;

220; Protestant Orphan School, 104; Roman Catholic Orphan School, 91; Infants' Home, Ashfield, 44; Industrial School for Girls, Biloela, 12; Nautical School Ship "Vernon," 10; Children's Hospital, Glebe, 6; Coast Hospital, Little Bay, 4; Shaftsbury Reformatory, 1. It has been the endeavour of the Board to remove the children as quickly as possible after their admission to the Benevolent Asylum, in order to prevent their transfer to the permanent Institutions. Thus the admissions to Randwick from this source have since my previous Report practically ceased, because, although 15 children were on one occasion transferred there from the Benevolent Asylum, they were almost immediately boarded-out in country homes. In this connection it is perhaps as well to mention that it has not been possible, nor would it be desirable, for obvious reasons, to deal with the Industrial Schools as with ordinary Institutions in regard to the proportionate distribution of children. In the first place, the Hon. the Minister for Public Instruction has deemed it wise to limit boarding-out from these Asylums to children under eight years of age. The Board have not quite coincided with the Minister in reference to the restrictive age, although they thoroughly endorse the principle of the restriction. It is now under consideration whether or not the limit of the age might be advantageously increased to ten or eleven years, conditionally upon suitable homes and special guardians being selected away from the large centres of population, and where the boys and girls of wandering habits can be placed far from the temptations of the towns; but it would be manifestly improper to deal indiscriminately with the elder and younger children of these reformatory classes, as if their brief sojourn at the schools had purged them of their vices, and to place them among ordinary children without having some guarantee that they were morally pure. This is doubtless the view entertained by the Minister of Public Instruction, and it is a view which the Board thoroughly approves of. In order to prevent moral contamination in respectable homes, the Board must distinguish between the youthful criminal and the mere street wanderer. Hence the boarding-out of reformatory children—and in most cases they are the class who drift into our industrial schools at present—as I have implied, can only be accomplished very gradually. The care which has been taken in this matter, in conjunction with the care bestowed upon the selection of homes, is probably in a great measure the cause of the satisfactory comparison which I am enabled to make in a most important particular between the result of boarding-out operations in this Colony and in Victoria during the past year. In the sister Colony, during the twelve months under notice, 469 children were boarded-out, including 361 of the Industrial School classes, and forty-seven absconded permanently from the homes. In this Colony, in the same period, 527 children were boarded-out, in which number were included only twenty of the industrial school classes, and there were only three absconders on the records who, although they were not taken from the Industrial Schools, were purely children of the reformatory class and should certainly have been sent there. It is not difficult to understand that the presence in respectable families of children who were repeatedly running away—doubtless to associate with the larrikins of the streets—must have tended to demoralize the ordinary children of the household; and from that viewpoint I hold that the action of the Minister for Public Instruction and of the Board in regard to the children in question is to be commended.

The usual classifications of the districts and the guardians again indicate that the great majority of the children have been placed in the country with foster-parents who were not likely to be subject to the pressure of poverty, and whose social status is some guarantee for satisfactory moral and physical influences in the homes.

The children are now located as follows:—Ashfield, 7; Armidale, 3; Balmain, 28; Burwood, 8; Brisbane Water, 5; Bowral, 5; Bungonia, 4; Bathurst, 19; Branxton, 13; Berrima, 38; Burdenda, 1; Braidwood, 1; Blayney, 3; Bangalore, 2; Bexley, St. Peter's, and Cook's River, 9; Bega, 1; Bobundarah, 1; Camperdown, 13; Canterbury, 1; Cootamundra, 8; Cobbitty and Camden, 21; Dubbo, 1; Dungog, 2; Five Dock, 2; Forbes, 2; Glebe Point, 14; Gladesville, 5; Goulburn, 147; Gunning, 5; Glen Innes, 3; Homebush, 3; Hinton, 4; Islington, 2; Kingston, 6; Kogarah, 2; Kiama, 29; Leichhardt, 30; Liverpool, 6; Lyndhurst, 2; Marrickville, 3; Mudgee, 7; Morpeth, 2; Maitland, 29; Menangle, 7; Marulan, 16; Melbourne, Melbourne, 1; Minmi, 5; Miller's Forest, 7; Merriwa, 1; Moruya, 2; Murrumburrah, 2; Manly, 2; Newtown, 27; Manning River, 2; Mary Vale, 3; Newcastle, 43; Narrandera, 2; Nyngan, 1; Nevertire, 1; Pymont, 4; Paddington, 12; Penrith, 6; Parramatta, 37; Petersham, 7; Picton, 5; Queanbeyan, 7; Redfern, 24; Ryde, 12; Raymond Terrace, 12; Rouse Hill, 1; Richmond River, 2; Sydney, 10; Summer Hill, 4; St. Leonards, 23; Surry Hills, 24; Shoalhaven, 24; Scone, 4; Tomago, 2; Tarago, 1; Tamworth, 1; Ultimo, 1; Ulladulla, 32; Waverley, 7; Woolloomooloo, 10; Waterloo, 13; Wickham, 7; Windellama, 13; Windsor, 14; Wollongong, 17; Wallsend, 2; Wallerawang, 3; Watson's Bay, 1; William Town, 13; Waratah, 10; Wollombi, 1; Wagga Wagga, 1; Depôt, Paddington, 8; cottage homes, 32. Total, 1,026. And the guardians are classified as follows:—Architect, 1; auctioneers, 3; agent, 1; attendant, 1; bricklayers, 3; blacksmiths, 5; bootmakers, 3; bank manager, 1; butchers, 4; bakers, 3; boat-builder, 1; brewer, 1; boarding-house-keepers, 2; builders, 2; brassfounder, 1; boot importer, 1; carpenters and joiners, 8; civil servants, 8; clerks of petty sessions, 3; contractor, 1; chemists, 2; cutlers, 2; clerks, 4; cab proprietor, 1; carters, 6; confectioner, 1; cooper, 1; commercial traveller, 1; coachbuilder, 1; commission agent, 1; clergymen, 4; dressmakers, needle-women, milliners, &c., 23; doctor, 1; engineers, 3; engine-drivers, 2; foreman of works, 1; farmers, 195; furnisher, 1; felters, 3; fisherman, 1; fireman, 1; ganger, 1; guards, 6; graziers, 6; gardeners, 18; greengrocer, 1; gate-keeper, 1; domestic, 53; householders, 5; inspector of roads, 1; ironmonger, 1; journalists, 3; master mariners, 2; home laundresses, 7; living on means, 23; labourers, 22; letter-carrier, 1; missionary (city), 1; miners, 7; music teachers, 3; milkmen, 4; messenger, 1; nil (the majority of these are widows having little girls for companions), 27; nurse, 1; miller, 1; orchardists, 2; police officers, 5; porters, 4; postmaster, 1; plasterers, 2; painters, 4; photographer, 1; ship-builder, 1; stonemasons, 2; school attendance officers, 2; sawyers, 3; shopkeepers, 24; ship-masters, 2; station-masters (railway), 2; saddlers, 3; solicitors, 3; steward, 1; sculptor, 1; tailor, 1; tailoresses, 2; teachers (public school), 8; teachers (private), 7; time-keepers, 2; warehousemen, 4; wheelwrights, 4; warders, 4; window-blind maker, 1; undertaker, 1; upholsterers, 2.

It will be seen from the foregoing classification that the Board have been uniformly successful in obtaining for guardians persons of suitable social standing. Having regard to this point, I may mention that the home of the well-to-do working farmer, or of the respectable mechanic, where frugality and sobriety prevail, is invariably found to be the best for children of the class who generally come under the control of the Board. This report shows 195 farmers among the foster-parents, as against 73 last year. "The boarding-out system," writes a lady visitor, whose letter appears in an Appendix, "seems a system eminently satisfactory when the foster-parents are among the class of the respectable artisan or mechanic, but it does not work so well where the richer class take them, as they cannot feel so thoroughly at home, and are not regarded as the children of the house." And this expression of opinion endorses the reported observations of the Board's inspecting officers in connection with the boarding-out division of the system. There are, of course, exceptions to this rule, as when (as occasionally happens) educated or well-born children have to be provided for; but it is a significant fact that the most unsatisfactory cases of boarding-out have occurred with foster-parents in superior positions. They have been the guardians who would not bestow the attention necessary to eradicate bad habits or vices, or to familiarize the children with the home life to which, in many instances, they were utter strangers when they came under the control of this Department. The fact that, despite the varied sources whence the large number of children boarded-out during the past year were procured, it has not been necessary to return any of them to the institutions as incorrigible, is proof of the guardians' perseverance and of the individual attention bestowed upon their charges, as well as of the great care taken by the Board to give the children every chance of reformation possible in homes suited to their cases. And it is again satisfactory to be able to say, as I did last year, that the Board has not had to avail itself of the provisions of the Industrial Schools Act in order to dispose of any of its refractory children. It will be readily believed that there were many children very difficult to deal with among the hundreds boarded-out, but guardians have happily been found with sufficient philanthropy and capacity to undertake the work of reform in their cases, and the office office records prove that a number of children who were stated in the first official reports to be altogether unmanageable have, after repeated trials, become amenable to home influences and proper discipline. There has only been one instance of ill-treatment of sufficient importance to justify the Department in taking legal proceedings. The case was a bad one, and the penalty imposed upon the offending guardian in the Law Court, and, in addition, by the Board, under the regulations made in accordance with the "State Children Relief Act," amounted to over £30, with the alternative of imprisonment. It will be in place to state here that the Board have recently been enabled to obtain important testimony from a qualified authority in regard to the result of their efforts to obtain guardians of the best class. Mr. Thomas Reed, J.P., Chairman of the Destitute Board of South Australia, and founder of the boarding-out system in that Colony, visited New South Wales in December last, and spent some time in visiting the boarded-out children. The homes which he saw were not specially selected, nor indeed were they a fair example of the high average quality of the homes generally. And therefore the following record of his observations, which Mr. Reed voluntarily left, is especially valuable. He writes:—"I cannot sufficiently express the pleasure I felt in visiting your homes, which are essentially different and very far superior to any of those in South Australia. Your large and thickly populated cities create a different class of foster-parents altogether—a class not in existence with us as regards their position, and very frequently as regards their occupation or means of living. This is seen in the character and condition of your homes, a number of which were the property of the foster-parents, a thing unknown with us save in very exceptional instances here and there. The social position of your guardians of children in New South Wales is also decidedly higher than ours, comprising not only mechanics and artisans, and these earning higher wages than with us, but also painters, builders, shopkeepers, engineers, and contractors, and all living in well furnished houses, and under such home surroundings that appeared to me must tend to produce, and indeed seemed to produce the happiest results to the children, who are evidently better and more intelligently trained than with us. I was also much gratified at the apparent affection existing between guardian and child, as evidenced in so many ways—in the children voluntarily taking the name of their foster-parent, in the very few returns through misconduct or mutual incompatibility, and in the large number who remain with their guardians after expiry of the boarding-out license." The foregoing quotation contains the first independent testimony which the Board has yet obtained upon two essential points connected with the operation of the system in this Colony, namely, as to the excellence of the foster-homes, and the effect of the guardians' training upon the children, as both were apparent to the chief administrator of the system in another Colony, who is admitted to be an experienced and acute observer, and who could certainly not be suspected of a desire to draw comparisons unfavourable to South Australia.

There have been twelve regular and three special meetings of the Board convened during the year, and the members have attended as follows:—The President, 15; Mrs. Garran, 15; Mrs. Windeyer, 10; Lady Allen, 10; Mrs. Jefferis, 9; Lady Jennings, 6; Mrs. Barry, 4; Miss Stuart, 1; Dr. Mackellar, 6; Mr. T. M. Slattery, M.L.A., 4. Mrs. Windeyer, Lady Allen, Mrs. Jefferis, Mrs. Barry, and Lady Jennings, unavoidably missed several meetings in consequence of absence from town or from illness, and I mention this fact because it is worthy of note that whenever it has been possible for the lady members to attend the meetings they have done so, in addition to taking an active and intelligent interest in the work of the Department otherwise. It is with much regret that I have to state that Miss Mary Stuart, one of the first members of the Board, who rendered valuable help in connection with the system, was compelled from ill health to resign her position on 29th August last. The vacancy was filled by the appointment, on October 7, 1884, of Mrs. Louisa Victoria Barry, who is proving herself to be a valuable co-worker.

A change in the departmental arrangements and the extended scope of the Board's operations have necessitated an increase in and reorganization of the official staff, which now consists of the following officers:—Chief Inspector and Boarding-out Officer, Inspector, Secretary and Assistant Inspector, Matron, Sub-matron, and Clerk. In recommending new appointments, the Board have been careful to select only

only officers who have been proved to possess special qualifications for their particular department of the work, and the Honorable the Colonial Secretary has been good enough to authorize probationary appointments to vacancies, which were confirmed by the Government as soon as the capacity of the officer had been tested by the Board. Experience during the past year has shown that it is indispensable that in this Department of the Public Service a similar course should be followed in connection with all future appointments. It will be observed that two additional officers have been placed on the staff, namely, the Inspector and Sub-matron. The Matron had really been employed in that capacity for two years previously, although the title was not officially recognized till the present year.

In my last Report I stated that Ormond House had been leased as a depôt, at a rental of £300 a year, but the premises were not occupied until October last, in consequence of the non-completion of repairs. The property has since, in accordance with Parliamentary sanction, been purchased for the purpose of this Department, at a cost of £5,800, and the Government has thus on most reasonable terms acquired a valuable freehold. The acquisition of this depôt—or central home as it is more properly called—has supplied a great want, to which I have on several occasions drawn attention. It has afforded much-needed office and storage accommodation, and also a temporary home for children under conveyance from the institutions to the foster-homes, and for others in process of transfer. Indeed it was evident at the close of last year's work that, unless this depôt was obtained, the progress of the boarding-out system would be seriously retarded. But I desire it to be understood that this central home does not in any sense constitute another institution. Against any steps of that kind the Board have resolutely set their face, both in connection with the depôt and the number of inmates in the cottage homes. The average number in the depôt has not exceeded ten daily, and children are only retained there a few days until their habits and characters are as far as possible ascertained, so that they may be placed with suitable guardians. I have no desire to reflect upon any of the public or Government asylums, but it is an inevitable consequence of their method of training that many children possess faults or infirmities which are the natural result of want of individual attention. A glance at the usual letters from the guardians, which appear in the Appendices, and are only fair examples of many others received by the Department, will show the trouble that has been taken in the homes to correct the tendencies of the physically weak and the naturally vicious. The cost of maintaining the children at the depôt has not exceeded 3s. 9½d. a week; the usual cost has been 3s. 6d. a child. As the central home has only existed for six months, the average annual cost is not yet presented. All the outfits, both for the boarded-out children and those in the cottage homes, are made up at the depôt; and, in view of the large number of children placed out, it will be understood that this is a work of some magnitude. I may mention, in this connection, that in future the returned outfits of children who may be discharged to parents will be used for the inmates of the cottage homes, in order to save the cost of new clothing for them. Altogether 252 children have passed through the depôt since its establishment in October last.

The customary reports show that there have been 4,000 visits to the children during the year. The details set forth in these reports present evidence of the faithfulness with which this potential agency in the success of the system is fulfilled. The results of the visitors' observations are regularly checked, and, when it is necessary, the guardians are immediately communicated with in reference to observed defects of management, or treatment, or neglect of children's clothing, or regular attendance at school. I am glad to know that the lessons learned from the results of this method of inspection have caused initial steps to be taken to establish something like systematic inspection over the children apprenticed from at least one large institution. I may appropriately point out that the want of local committees and properly organized inspection over the children apprenticed from all the public institutions has hitherto rightly been considered a grave defect in their administration, which I should be glad to see remedied. I know that from two of our main asylums there are now some hundreds of children apprenticed (not under the control of this Board)—many of them in the remote interior districts—over whom no supervision whatever is exercised; and the necessity for the protection which a proper method of inspection affords must be as great in their case as in the case of boarded-out children, particularly as the homes are not visited nor inquiries made into the characters of the employers or guardians before the children are sent to them, apart from the usual certificates of character which, I say advisedly, are in too many instances unreliable. I trust that the time is approaching when the duty of supervising these children may properly come within the scope of this Board or of some other organization with similar ends in view. As the number of boarded-out children increases, it will of course be necessary to add to the official staff. I said last year that if sufficient force in this direction should be afforded, "institutions for children may be abolished within the next four or five years." I may amend that statement now by remarking that the work of the Department during the period under review has proved that two institutions will no longer be required this year, and that the Destitute Children's Asylum at Randwick need not be further availed of by the Government after this year, now that the advantages of family life are being secured for the sick as well as for the healthy inmates. Direct apprenticeship, boarding-out, and removal of the sick to the cottage homes, must certainly cause these three great asylums to be emptied of all the inmates maintained at the Government cost within a few months. I know it has been a reproach in some directions that, while this Department has thus greatly reduced the numbers at the asylums, it has not yet abolished an institution. I have only to reply that the Board has endeavoured to deal fairly with all the interests concerned in the administration of the boarding-out system. Denominationalists, concerned for the life of the orphan schools, cannot justly say that those institutions have been specially selected while the general asylum at Randwick has been ignored; and on the other hand, Randwick directors cannot complain of injustice in regard to the removal of their children while operations at the orphanages were unduly restricted. The Board have rightly considered that its first duty was, as I have said, to exhaust the great source of supply to all the permanent institutions—the Benevolent Asylum; and by this course 685 children have been absorbed at once into the family life of the country, who would, if this Department had not existed, have been transferred to the various public and Government asylums. And the Board, having kept steadily this purpose in view, have, as far as circumstances permitted, removed children pro rata from all other sources open to them. It is believed, and I think rightly, that it is purely the function of the Government to abolish institutions: it is the humbler province of the Board to so provide for the great bulk of our dependent children, as they have done; that the supreme authority may direct the final step at a time that is deemed proper.

Independently of the granted applications, there are at present 561 applications unattended to on the register for 610 children. 296 are for boarders, 257 for apprentices, and 57 for children for adoption. Of these, 432 are from Protestants, and 129 from Roman Catholics. Last year I invited the co-operation of the Roman Catholic community in providing homes for the large number of the children of their faith who were then in the public Institutions, and for whom applications were limited. I am glad to say that the aid rendered by the Catholic clergy and lady visitors has resulted in a large number of good Catholic homes being obtained during the year. 178 children of that denomination have been boarded-out, and the usual precautions have been taken to place them with guardians of their own faith, who are desired to send them to Catholic schools when practicable. The Board have strictly adhered to their determination not to board-out children to others than foster-parents of their own religious denominations—that is to say, the broad distinction between Protestants and Roman Catholics is strictly preserved; and the only departure from this rule that the Board are aware of is in the case of two Protestant children who are placed with their Catholic grandmother, who, however, sends them regularly to their Protestant church and Sunday school, and to the Public School. It was thought that it would be cruel to separate these little ones from their aged relative, who had been their guardian since the parents' death, and who was compelled by necessity to appeal to the Government for help. In order that the Catholic guardians may not be compelled to send their foster-children to the Public Schools, the Christian ladies having charge of the Convent and other Catholic schools have, when requested, permitted their children to attend without payment of fees; but it is worthy of remark, that many of the guardians prefer to pay rather than avail themselves of this concession. I again dwell particularly on this principle of the system, because the Board have had reason to know that their possible proceedings in relation to it were at one time regarded by the religious communities with some degree of apprehension. While the children are permitted to attend the denominational schools when the guardians wish it, however, care is taken, as in the case of the children attending the Public Schools, that they go regularly. Reports are received half-yearly showing the daily average attendance of every child. The Board have found that on the whole the guardians faithfully adhere to the requirements of the Public Instruction Act, and are, as a rule, proud of the educational attainments and advancement of their charges. It is the common practice for the foster-mothers to voluntarily exhibit the copy, or exercise, or other lesson book to the Board's Inspectors, in proof of the progress made by the child since the previous visit. In several cases the Board have authorized home instruction, but only where there were grave reasons for such a step, as for instance, a tendency to immorality in the child, which would render association with other children unadvisable until the bad habit was eradicated. There are unhappily still fresh cases of this character to record among the children taken hold of in the ordinary way. I have drawn attention on a preceding page to the precaution which should be taken when placing out children of the reformatory classes, because it may fairly be assumed that in their cases special care should be exercised; but it not infrequently happens that little girls taken from ordinary institutions are inherently depraved, and unfortunately it is not possible to obtain a knowledge of their habits in that way before boarding them out. Last year there were 24 known instances of girls addicted, as my report then stated "to the most revolting sexual practices." While I am glad to say that by following rules suggested by medical experts, a number of these poor little creatures have been cured of their frightful physical and moral infirmity, the added cases have prevented any appreciable diminution in the total number under control.

As an illustration of the extent to which very young girls may become demoralized by bad example in depraved homes, I may mention a child just eight years old, of bright and intelligent appearance, who declared, and told her story most circumstantially, that she had been forcibly violated by a man, with the assistance of her own mother. Her story was taken down by direction of the Inspector of Public Charities and referred to the police. And then upon medical examination the girl was found to be physically uncorrupted. The mother is reported by the police to be living with a convicted thief, and the description given by this unhappy child of the immorality of the home life is simply shocking. She will be placed by the Board where there are no other children, and a similar experience justifies the belief that she will, under happier influences, in time forget the knowledge she has acquired from her profligate parent.

The mention of these cases may possibly shock the popular sense of propriety, but it is necessary to indicate one of the difficulties which the Board have to deal with from time to time, and to show further, that these poor little creatures afflicted with vices inherited or acquired are not placed out indiscriminately when their habits are known to spread moral contagion among innocent children. I have strong hope of the future purity of these little ones, in view of some histories now before me. Our own experiences are not novel or without numerous precedents. Writing of children of this class, a high authority and energetic social reformer, Miss Ellice Hopkins, says:—"With habits of steady industry, and much wholesome contact with nature, much happy skipping and jumping about in the sunshine, much brightness combined with strict discipline—above all, strong, practical religious influence—the young life is like a stream that soon runs itself clear, and the mud gives place to the blue sky and the sunbeams. I can only state as a fact, that among the scores of little girls in peril, that the Brighton Association for the care of Friendless Girls has rescued, not one has as yet turned out badly."

It has not yet been possible to make a permanent arrangement for regular medical attendance upon the children; and it is again my pleasing duty to acknowledge the practical benevolence which has been displayed by the medical gentlemen throughout the Colony in their dealings with this Department. Their practice now is to charge half-fees, but there are still instances in which they freely aid the system by presenting

presenting their valuable services without charge. At Goulburn for instance, where there are now nearly 150 children boarded-out, Drs. Gentle and Morton have given advice, and Mr. Hollis, druggist, has supplied medicines gratuitously for upwards of four years. Such examples of philanthropy are as creditable to a noble profession as they have been of assistance to the Board in preventing objections to the system on the score of its expense. It will be seen upon reference to the balance-sheet that the expenditure upon nearly 1,100 children during the past year for medical attendance and medicines has only amounted to £108 2s. 9d. In a few cases of protracted illness children have been placed in hospital for treatment, when it is not usual to charge hospital fees, and the orders issued by the Chief Inspector and Boarding-out Officer have always been acknowledged by the hospital officials, rendering any special order in the matter from the Government unnecessary. The Board have to cordially acknowledge in this connection the kindly help rendered by the authorities of Sydney Hospital and its Moorcliff (ophthalmic) branch, the Prince Alfred Hospital, the Children's Hospital at the Glebe, and the Hospitals at Goulburn and West Maitland. In all those institutions our sick children have received most tender skilled nursing and medical care.

I have already at some length alluded to the great help rendered by the lady visitors, and it will be a graceful as it is a necessary compliment to furnish here, for general information, a list of the districts which are thus represented and the names of the representatives:—

In order to form some idea of the extent and nature of the work performed by these ladies, it would be necessary to make a personal inspection of the homes as well as of their correspondence and reports. It will be understood that the possibility or otherwise of procuring the services of ladies as visitors in most cases—and especially especially with regard to girls—determines the choice or avoidance of a locality as a field for boarding-out. It is better to limit the boundaries of the system than to run any risks through the absence of known safeguards against failure. But it is worth while to consider a suggestion which has been made,—that in sparsely peopled localities boarding-out might be extended by associating ladies with gentlemen on the committees. My own opinion is that judiciously appointed mixed local committees might work well. I know that the inspection which the ladies are asked to take is work for which they are qualified as experts: home life is their familiar arena—they are best able to judge whether or not the home life which it is the purpose of the system to place around the children is being lived by them. I am aware that gentlemen cannot see as well as ladies if the necessary conditions of the system are being complied with; but still in some cases mixed committees would be an advantage, and the Board have already considered the desirableness of appointing them in special circumstances under an altered regulation.

A good deal of difficulty has been experienced hitherto in dealing with relatives and friends who seek to reclaim their children. It is the experience of this Board that worthless men conclude they have fully performed their duty as colonists when they present their children to the State; but no matter how degraded a woman may be, she seems as a rule to have some kind of affection for her offspring, and this natural sentiment is a source of infinite trouble and perplexity to the Board and its officers. The Board earnestly desire, both on grounds of economy and sentiment, to restore the children when it can be done with safety; but it must be manifest that it is better, apart from moral grounds and as a matter of political economy purely, for the State to maintain the children, and especially the girls, fifty times over than to return them to profligate mothers. Yet women who drift continually in and out of the gaols come after these periods of enforced propriety, presenting for the time a decent appearance, and, armed with the inevitable testimonial, demand their children. Often it is not easy to distinguish between the decent woman and the impostor in these cases. During the past year a woman who is now serving a sentence for obscene language and riotous conduct came for her two little girls, fortified with a strong certificate from a high Church dignitary and a Justice of the Peace; another, now charged with cutting and wounding a man in a drunken spree, presented a strong testimonial from a number of persons, and came with her father and mother (the three being drunk) for her child on Christmas Day; a third, just released from gaol after a sentence for vagrancy—she had been found drunk among the blacks in their camp near Gunnedah—presented a Government order to receive her little girl, which had doubtless been given on the usual representation; a fourth came for her daughter, aged nine years, supported by a petition signed by a number of respectable townspeople—she had just finished a sentence for sly grog-selling, and was known to keep a house of ill fame; a fifth came with testimonials from a clergyman, storekeepers, and residents of an inland town, and demanded her little boy, but she was never sufficiently sober to receive the child; a sixth came with her husband straight from Darlinghurst Gaol, after obtaining a Government order to receive their two little girls. And these typical instances, taken from the records of the year, could be multiplied from the previous records of the Department.

A sad proof of the care which should be exercised in this particular, and of the responsibility which rests on those in high positions who recklessly give certificates of good character, was afforded a few months ago, before the necessity of ignoring these testimonials and depending solely upon the inquiries of the Inspectors became so painfully apparent. A mother and stepfather obtained two fine girls, aged twelve and ten years, who were for some time wards of the Department, and six months afterwards one of the city missionaries brought back the elder girl from a brothel, and the younger has never since been found. They had been deserted by both parents.

Altogether, since the initiation of the Department, 131 children have been restored to deserving relatives, viz., 8 in 1881, 17 in 1882, 56 in 1883, and 50 in 1884; but these figures do not nearly represent the number reclaimed through the indirect instrumentality of the Board, as many were withdrawn direct from the asylums by their friends when it became known that they were selected for boarding-out. The difficulty of discriminating between deserving and profligate parents is one common to all the Colonies, and a suggestion in reference to it was made last year in Victoria which is worthy of consideration: it is that the children should be discharged upon probation, to be reclaimed perforce if they were afterwards found to be languishing in poverty or lapsing into vice or crime. This could of course only be done by legislative provision, and it is provided for in the measure which I have already foreshadowed. The Board have now official knowledge of the case of a woman who recently obtained two children from an asylum and one from this Department. The husband has since fallen permanently ill; the woman is half imbecile, and indescribably filthy; the family occupy one room, which is in a horrible condition of dirt; the children, when the Inspector visited them, were in a shocking state of neglect and residing in a bad neighbourhood; the woman refuses to have them decently provided for, and there is no way of reclaiming them from their vile surroundings.

It had come to the knowledge of the Board during the past year that several children under the control of the Department were entitled to property, which was in two instances, there could be little doubt, being improperly diverted by trustees. In one case no demur was made to the transfer of the property to the Board's control, and the rent of it is now collected and paid into the Savings' Bank, on behalf of the children, who are not a charge upon the State, because they are apprenticed. In two other cases, after the officers of the Department had collected information, it was seen that the matter should more properly be dealt with by the detective police; and that course has been adopted, with the result that there is a prospect of the property being recovered for the children, whose rights would certainly not have been protected but for the prompt action of the Board. Another case is now under investigation, which will probably be referred to the Police Department as soon as some further facts with regard to it are elicited. In connection with this matter, as with others in which the interests of the children have required police interference and protection, I must again cordially bear testimony to the valuable aid rendered by Mr. Fosbery, the Inspector-General of Police, and, with his permission, by his officers throughout the country, whose intelligence and shrewdness have been freely exercised in confidentially guiding the officers of our Department in their inquiries about applicants, and in some instances as to the treatment of the children. Indeed the help which has on occasions been given by the police of the Colony has been most important, and their information is always trustworthy. I have not particularized the property cases, as the publication of details might possibly defeat the ends of justice.

It was my unpleasant duty last year to enter into a lengthy defence of the course which the Board had adopted in reference to its boarding-out operations at Randwick Asylum, that defence being necessary in consequence of the repeated protests which the Directors of the Institution placed before the Colonial Secretary, who, however, invariably approved of the Board's action. In my previous Report, when dealing with this subject, I wrote—"Although some little friction has occurred on one or two occasions, this has arisen, I trust, solely from an anxious desire for the welfare of the children, and not so much for the promotion of the particular institution, and must surely disappear as the benefits of the boarding-out system are more clearly discerned, and its unrivalled claims in promoting the true happiness of our poor little fellow-creatures—the definite end for which all our labour is undertaken on their behalf—becomes more and more surely established." In view of these remarks, it will be understood that it is with much satisfaction that I am now able to say that my prediction of last year has been verified. I only refer to this matter because I believe I am right in asserting that the great majority of the Directors of Randwick Asylum are now advocates for the extension of the boarding-out system, and that the Board now have their sympathy in endeavouring to place all the State children in the country in homes, as their natural training-place, instead of large institutions.

The Hon. the Colonial Secretary has recently directed the Department to take charge of several children in circumstances which suggest a possible new field of usefulness in rescuing young girls from the streets. Four girls and one boy of twelve years of age were bereft of parents, and left to their own resources for a living. They were, by reason of their age, ineligible for admission into any charitable institution, and it was seen that they were steadily drifting into a mode of life that would inevitably lead to their ruin. Some well-disposed neighbours brought their cases under the attention of the Government, and the result is that the children have been placed under the care of the Department. The Board's officers found one girl employed in a boot factory, among sixty or seventy other young girls and lads; the second girl was found in another factory; the third was taken from relatives, who stated that she could not be kept from the streets; and the fourth, with her brother, was found almost nude, selling matches and newspapers in the streets of Sydney on a bleak winter's night. Three of the girls have been sent to specially selected homes in the country, one has been placed with a childless lady near Sydney, and a good business occupation was found for the boy. They are all turning out thoroughly well. Being old enough to earn wages, they are maintained without cost to the Government. The Board will willingly take charge of any children of this class who may be left in similar circumstances, and it would be true benevolence to aid in the rescue of such girls, who are not amenable to any law, but who could probably be induced to surrender themselves voluntarily as in the cases I have cited.

The clerical division of the Department is now a very large and increasing branch. It is necessary to keep financial books and stock books as much in detail as in a large commercial house; including a separate journal, ledger and cash book account in connection with every child placed out either as a boarder or apprentice, as well as all the legal forms which are set forth in the regulations. It is not difficult to understand that the correspondence, reports, &c., connected with upwards of one thousand children is very extensive. By reference to the records, I find that the letters and other communications sent through the post office to and from the Department during the year numbered no fewer than 15,769. The fact that during the present year upwards of £20,000 will probably be paid away through the office, in sums not exceeding an average of £5,—constituting in all 4,000 separate payments—is evidence of the care which has to be exercised in keeping the accounts accurately, and in transacting the financial business of the Department.

I would direct particular attention to the information contained in some of the Appendices, which should really not be regarded as ordinary dry tabulated statistics. Appendix A shows the distribution of the children from the Asylums from month to month, and table B indicates the ages at which they have been placed out. It will be seen from this that the great demand has been for young children, the average age being  $6\frac{3}{4}$  years, which indicates very clearly that those little ones have not been taken for the sake of the value of their services. Table C sets forth the religion of the children as recorded at the Institutions, but it is only reliable as showing the distinction between Protestant and Roman Catholic children, as at some Asylums all children are entered as "Protestant" only. Appendix D shows the extent to which the Institutions have been operated upon by the Board. In connection with this, I draw attention to the fact that while 220 children have been taken altogether from Randwick, 171 have been withdrawn during the period under review, and that a larger number of Roman Catholic children were placed out in the past year than during the whole previous period of the Board's operations. Table E contains details of special interest in view of a fear which was entertained at one time not only by this Department but by the Inspector of Charities, who, in his Report to the Government for 1882, said—"The Board's action in dealing with State children has to the present time been most successful and economical. It has disclosed a fact scarcely before contemplated, namely, that while, excepting for the infirm or the viciously inclined, institutions or schools for girls will not be much longer required, a certain reluctance is shown to receive any but young boys into homes, probably because they entail greater care and responsibility on foster-parents, and when arrived at a wage-earning age are apt to leave their homes. For youths therefore a school life will still, I fear, have to be provided by the State." In consequence of the extension of the system into the dairy farming districts applications for boys are now coming in freely, and 353 were boarded out in 1884, as against 133 in 1883. Appendix F, showing particulars of the parentage of all the the boarded-out children, presents some curious phases of our social life. The children of the unfortunate are largely in the minority as compared with the children of the vicious and the criminal; and it is not difficult to believe that the individuals whose histories are so concisely summed up in a single line cannot easily be traced by the police or any other agency, after they have had a few days' freedom. Appendix G speaks volumes for the confiding good nature if not for the shrewdness of the gentlemen who give certificates of character to applicants for State children, and its publication is only continued for the purpose of providing against a serious danger to the system. The other Appendices contain honest testimony from lady visitors and children and foster-parents to the results of the work which the Department is engaged in. It would be absurd to suppose that these letters do not present to the public a thoroughly genuine indication of the fruits of the system. The children who have written this year are old enough and quite intelligent enough to complain if they had cause to do so, and it is unlikely that there could be such a singular coincidence of opinions from so many sources at widely different points unless the information so conveyed was trustworthy. It should further be borne in mind that the glimpses of home life conveyed by these children's epistles must be the outcome of their actual experiences with the guardians, few of them having had opportunities prior to being boarded out of acquiring the knowledge of home necessary to enable them to write such letters.

I have great pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of numerous books and documents from cognate Charitable Boards and their officials in various parts of the world. The information supplied, and the sympathy conveyed by the writers of the various papers on State children everywhere, have been a source of profit and gratification. I am glad to find that the epitome of the Board's labours for the benefit of the waifs and strays of our Colony, as contained in these annual reports, is appreciated and quoted not only in these Colonies but also in America and the Mother-country.

In conclusion, I desire to express my entire satisfaction with the manner in which the various officials of the Department have discharged their duties during the past year. These duties, as every thoughtful person must know, are not only very onerous in their nature but also involve a deep sense of responsibility, and I am glad to state that in both respects the Government and the public have every reason to be satisfied with the official management of the concerns of the Board.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

ARTHUR RENWICK.

APPENDIX G.

[Extracts from Reports upon refused applications.]

A.—Applicant a drunkard. Has had three children of her own; all died. Has also had two children to nurse privately, both of whom died while in her care—report says of neglect. Next-door neighbour speaks very strongly against her for her treatment of last two children; says "would not trust her to look after a dog." Two of her neighbours (one a foster-parent) confirm statement of next-door neighbour.

B.—Applicant a drunkard; home very dirty and untidy, floors being plentifully plastered over with mud.

C.—Applicant a drunkard. Am informed the father of his wife's eldest child (illegitimate) is her own uncle. Wife has been heard to say, with an oath, that she did not intend to work her * * * out so long as she could get a State child to do it for her.

D.—Applicant's own family have been very badly brought up, and bear a very bad name in district; one in gaol for forgery, and none of others appear to do anything for a living.

E.—Applicant generally known to be of very intemperate habits, and generally unfitted to have charge of child.

F.—Was fined in local Police Court two months ago for shamefully ill-treating a boy from an Institution, a fact which must have been well known to gentlemen recommending him, who live in same town.

G.—Applicant of very dirty slovenly habits, and neglects her own family, who bear a bad name in district.

H.—Applicant and his wife constantly quarrelling and parting. Husband a drunkard.

I.—Applicant been twice in gaol—once for drunkenness and once for obtaining money under false pretences. This fact known to gentlemen recommending him.

J.—Is a drunkard; suspected of sly grog-selling, and house resort of betting and racing men on Sundays. Has been refused a wine license on account of bad character.

K.—Applicant's wife bears very bad name in neighbourhood in regard to moral character.

NOTE.—The foregoing are illustrative cases. These applicants all obtained the necessary certificates that they were of sober character, and fit persons to have the care of young children.

APPENDIX I.

Extracts from letters from Lady Visitors upon the working of the Boarding-out system.

The late Mrs. RICHARD CONOLLY, Goulburn:—

* * * My first inducement to take any part in the work of the boarding-out system in New South Wales was its similarity to that of our cherished Protestant Orphan Society in Dublin, where the orphans of our respectable Protestants of a humble class were taken and provided for—not in pent-up asylums, but amidst the sunny hills and verdant meadows of the beautiful county Wicklow. There, safely located in the houses of chosen Protestant farmers, they were brought up as members of the family, carefully sent to Sunday and weekly schools, and inspected by clergymen sent from the Society. I give my most hearty approval to the system of boarding out when carried forward under due inspection. I consider that wherever a branch of the Society is established there should be a lady visitor as well as the Government Inspector, to unite in their labours amongst both the children and the foster-parents; and I feel assured that the Government of the country could not have adopted a more salutary resolution for the training of the rising generation than that from which emanated the Boarding-out Institution. * * * Having been requested to give a statement of my opinion as to the working of the boarding-out system at Goulburn, I can most unhesitatingly answer in its favour, and my opinion is confirmed by the satisfactory evidence of the friends and inspectors who have visited us from Sydney. We are favoured with a fine healthful climate here, and this, in addition to the care, cleanliness, comforts, and caresses which the little ones receive from their foster-parents, soon renders them different-looking children from those who come down to us from the Asylum. One tiny creature, who really did look like death, inasmuch that the Manager was ashamed to send her, is now one of the gems of our flock—a fine active little woman; and, more than all that can be said of their improved looks, is the improvement in the development of their affections. When they are first brought to us it is painful to see the passivity with which they will go to any strange nurse. Try the experiment now and the change will soon be found—clinging to their “mothers,” it will at once be seen that they have found a friend. We have now forty-eight children and twenty-seven nurses in Goulburn. Three of this number have proved unruly, but this is a very small item to weigh in the balance against the large amount of real good effected and happiness bestowed by the working of the boarding-out system in Goulburn. [Republished from first Report.]

Mrs. HELEN KRNT, Leichhardt:—

I have had in my district nearly thirty children located in families. I have visited regularly, and always found the children clean, cheerful, happy, and contented, and well cared for by their guardians, who in many cases appear to be much attached to the little ones, showing towards them true parental feeling. To this there have been only one or two exceptions, and on this being reported to the Board the children were at once removed. I have no hesitation in saying that I think the results of the boarding-out system eminently satisfactory, so far as my observation of it has gone.

Mrs. CUNNINGHAM, Glencoe, Redmyre:—

I have only had a short experience as lady visitor of the boarding-out system, but from what I have seen of it in this neighbourhood I think it is very excellent. All the children which I, together with Mrs. Nott, visit have good homes and are well cared for. In several cases there is real affection between the children and the foster-parents, and in all the cases I think the children are better and happier than they could possibly be in a public institution.

Mrs. SIMPSON, Waverley:—

I can speak most favourably of the homes in the district for which I am visitor. One home, where there are three very young children, almost babies, in the care of two elderly women (sisters), who have formerly occupied a much better position. Here one cannot help seeing the benefit to the children of the boarding-out system. These sickly, delicate children, under the fostering loving care of these women, rapidly improve in health, in cheerfulness, and in habit; and as there is no special day for my visits the children are seen as they always are from day to day. In other homes under my care the children have been adopted by ladies who surround them with every comfort, and where they are being trained to occupy a much higher position than they would have had with their own parents.

Mrs.

Mrs. OSBORNE, Kangaroo Valley :—

I am much interested in the working of the boarding-out system, and in almost every case where the children have been entrusted the foster-parents take every interest and care.

Mrs. GUNTHER, St. John's Parsonage, Parramatta :—

In reply to your request that I should again give you a statement of my experience of the working of the boarding-out system, I can only repeat what I have expressed on former occasions, that I have every reason to be very much satisfied with its results in regard to the children under my supervision. The children are well cared for, and all seem happy in their homes, which are in most instances of a superior class. I think one proof of the success of the system is the anxiety of most of the foster-parents and the children that their connection should not be severed when the child is old enough to be apprenticed.

Mrs. HUGH TAYLOR, Parramatta :—

I have again much pleasure in stating that the boarding-out system in this district is a most complete success, the children in all cases appearing to be well nourished and cared for in every respect. I wish to specially mention the remarkable improvement that has taken place in the condition of the children recently placed at the cottage-home, Pennant Hills. When they were sent here they were all suffering more or less from illness, and appeared to be dull and dispirited. Their physical condition has so much improved that some of them appear to be fit to be placed in ordinary homes; and under the true motherly influence which has been brought to bear on them they have become bright and happy looking; and it is a real pleasure to see them playing in the paddocks and gardens which surround their new home. Your Board has devised a happy method of dealing with this class of waifs, whose ailments, as you know, preclude them from being placed in healthy families.

Mrs. E. C. CHATFIELD, Parramatta :—

In reply to your request that I should give you the result of my observation in respect to the children boarded-out in the district of North Parramatta, I have had much pleasure in finding the guardians who have the care of the children are respectable, cleanly, have comfortable homes, and appear in every way to do their duty by their charges. My experience is of short duration, but I have every reason to believe the system must work well when due caution is used in choice of guardians.

Mrs. S. A. STEWART, Kishnaghur, Parramatta :—

In answer to the request received a few days ago, I feel pleasure in stating that the home I visit seems particularly suitable for the health and happiness of the two children boarded-out under the present system. The foster-parents have no children of their own, are now quite attached to those committed to their care, have a little land of their own, the work of which supplies all with occupation, and on every visit I have found them so employed (unless during school-hours, when of course the children are absent). Judging from this home and treatment, I should be decidedly in favour of the boarding-out system.

Mrs. PEARSON, Bishops court, Morpeth :—

I have much pleasure in giving my testimony to the value of the boarding-out system. The children under my care are all most happily placed, and I think, without exception, the foster-parents are doing their part most conscientiously. In one home in particular I have reason to believe that the presence of the children has brought much happiness to those who are in charge of them. The children are all doing well, and in one or two instances I have noticed a very decided improvement in their appearance.

Unsolicited letter from G. E. WALLIS, C. A. WALLIS, C. CRUNDWELL, Redfern, May 13th, 1885, friends of a little sick boy in one of the cottage-homes :—

Dear Sir,—We the undersigned beg to acquaint you that we visited Harry Seward at the cottage-home, Longsight, Pennant Hills, on Good Friday last, and once since, and are very pleased and thankful to state that on both occasions we found him very much improved in condition and health and very happy. We are very much pleased with the cottage-home system, under such guardianship as you have at Longsight. All the little ones seem happy and well cared for.—We remain, &c., GEORGE E. WALLIS, CAROLINE ANN WALLIS, CAROLINE CRUNDWELL, 45, Elizabeth-street, Redfern.

Mrs. M. SMITH, West Maitland :—

I think the boarding-out system of the children is excellent. The children as a rule under my control have very good homes and kind parents.

Mrs. FRANCES E. LETHERIDGE, Penrith :—

Having been asked to give my opinion as to the working of the boarding-out system, I will do so. * * * From what I have seen and heard of it I do not hesitate to say that I believe it is an excellent system, and I am quite sure the children are better cared for and much happier than they would be in one of the asylums. Not only have they the advantage of a good country home, which in every way is so conducive to their health, but they have affection and kindness shown them. * * * The children under my supervision are, with the exception of one, strong and healthy. Miss Channon, the person they are boarded with, is, I believe, in every way suited to have the care of children; they all seem very fond of her, and she of them. They have a good clean comfortable home. The boarding-out system, I think, is one to be much commended.

Mrs. HELEN TRENCHARD, West Maitland :—

In reply to letter received, I beg to state that I think the boarding-out system an excellent one. In every case under my care I see the children improving. They are happy, healthy, and well cared for.

Mrs. BOYCE, Parsonage, St. Paul's, Redfern :—

* * * I beg to say that in my opinion there is nothing more to be desired for the children under my charge than the really loving tender care they are under at present. With one exception (Arthur Rowe) they are mere babies, and he is a happy well-contented boy under Dr. Fawcett. There is a girl apprentice here in Redfern under my charge; she had received her training before, and has much improved under the care of Mrs. Ormiston. They all appear well-found homes. So far as I may judge, this boarding-out system is just what is wanted. I take great interest in the children under my charge.

Mrs. M. SIMM, Parsonage, Raymond Terrace :—

* * * I can state that the system is working admirably in the interests of the children, who appear to be very happy, and the persons with whom they live are most kind and very pleased to have the children. The homes in this district are very good, and the guardians not only look after the bodily wants of the children but also they are careful in sending them to school and their respective places of worship.

Mrs. E. H. CADRELL, Raymond Terrace :—

* * * I think the present system of boarding-out destitute children a splendid one. In all cases that have come under my notice the children have appeared happy, and their foster-parents well pleased with them. I have visited the following children—Situating at Raymond Terrace,—James Byron, John Byron, Thomas Gill, and Nellie Shuttleworth; at Miller's Forest, George King,—and have ascertained that they attend school and are well cared for,

Mrs.

Mrs. A. M. GURRY DE LAURET, Goulburn :—

I feel much pleasure in bearing testimony to the success of the boarding-out system in Goulburn. Of eighteen or twenty homes under my supervision I can speak positively—they are almost all that could be expected. * * * In selecting homes I prefer those where the guardians have some well-trained children of their own. Strangers placed under such circumstances are happiest—they soon feel at home, are generally welcomed as playmates, and quickly take a tone from their young friends. I strongly advocate homes in the country for boys over seven years of age. New scenes, new occupations interest them, and do much to prevent the formation of idle habits, which I observe is a prominent fault in boys from public institutions. Of the guardians I can speak confidently,—they, as a rule, do their duty very faithfully; their patience is often severely exercised in dealing with the faults of the children, yet they persevere in trying to improve their charges. Many of the foster-mothers are large-hearted kindly-disposed women, who treat the little ones placed with them with an affectionate tenderness that cannot be too highly praised.

Mrs. MORTON, Numba, Shoalhaven :—

I am very glad to be able to state that all the children boarded out in the different homes under my care are well and doing well. They are perfectly happy and contented, attend school regularly, and take great pleasure in helping morning and evening with the work on the farms on which they live; they are well clothed, and the plentiful and suitable food that children require, and which the country affords, added to the clean and comfortable homes they have, can scarcely fail to produce good results to the boarding-out system.

Mrs. MARIE ELLIS, Newcastle :—

* * * I have again to give you my opinion as to the working of the boarding-out system. My experience of the last year bears out the conclusion I previously arrived at, viz., that, with care in selecting homes, it is much to be preferred to having a large number of children housed in one institution. I consider the boarding system more especially beneficial in the cases of very young children, as I have found the foster-parents form a strong attachment towards them. During the year I have had a number of applications for adoption; and of the children under my care, six have been adopted, in all cases by people having no family of their own. Altogether, I have every reason to be pleased with the condition of the children in my charge and the homes in which they are placed.

Mrs. T. O'SULLIVAN, Newcastle :—

I am still of the same opinion regarding the boarding-out system—that it works excellently. * * *

Mrs. WEATHERILL, Newcastle :—

You ask for the result of my experience, as a lady visitor to State children boarded out in the Newcastle District, and for my opinion of the system generally. I have had twenty children under my care for a long time, and have in every instance found the foster-parents most anxious and untiring in their efforts to correct the very numerous faults and bad and dirty habits of the children placed under their care. All the children under my care in the Newcastle District now are receiving all the care and attention that can be afforded by kind and charitable people. I say charitable, for it requires large-hearted charity in the person who undertakes to correct and bring up well some of the very naughty children boarded out, so very small a sum being paid for their maintenance. I am quite sure the foster-parents are not nearly remunerated for the positive expense they are put to—not speaking of the trouble and annoyance of correcting dirty habits, &c. My opinion of the boarding-out system is that it is excellent, and a positive blessing to the poor badly-trained children who are picked up here and there; that, carefully carried out, it is the only way in which these poor little waifs can be made useful members of society and decent citizens. The barrack system of managing children is simply detestable, as shown in the habits and manners of the children who have been under its influence.

Mrs. E. D. ARGIMBAU, Newtown :—

* * * As far as my experience enables me to judge during a period of twelve months, all the children, without exception, in the homes I visit seem extremely well taken care of, and all appear happy and attached to their foster-mothers. I have nineteen under my supervision. I should give my opinion that the system is an excellent one as long as care is taken in selecting the foster-parents. In some cases I think the remuneration insufficient, especially where the children are boys, as their clothing is more expensive, and they require more food. I mention Mr. Kelly as one of these; also Mrs. Hamlet, who has three boys, and one girl of most tiresome habits, called Alice Walker, and she seems to take a great deal of trouble with them.

Mrs. E. M. KINGDON, Darlinghurst Road :—

* * * I have pleasure in stating that I consider the boarding-out system is working well; the children are well cared for, and seem happy and contented. The class of homes is, as a rule, very respectable, and the guardians of the children do their best to perform the duties they have undertaken.

Mrs. MARIAN RUSSELL, Maida, Leichhardt.

I have no occasion to alter my opinion expressed in my report of last year respecting the working of the boarding-out system. I have visited all the homes in the Balmain District frequently and at all times during the last twelve months, and am completely satisfied with the results of this system; the homes are good, the foster-parents kind and respectable, and the children are improving in every way and enjoying the happiness and benefit of true family life. There are now twenty-six children boarded out in Balmain, and I have no hesitation in saying the plan of placing children in homes under the boarding-out system (as far as my experience goes) works admirably.

Miss L. GORDON, Woollahra :—

* * * I have much pleasure in stating that, as far as I can judge, the working of the boarding-out system answers admirably; in every case under my supervision the children are treated as kindly and carefully as though they were in their own homes, which appears to me most satisfactory.

Mrs. SELINA WEBB, Bathurst :—

As far as I have had an opportunity of judging the result of the boarding-out system, I think they are excellent. At present I have but one child under my control; she is treated most kindly. When I first knew her she was dull, stupid, and listless, but under kind motherly care she has become a bright and happy child.

Mrs. JEAN ADRIAN, Branxton :—

I have much pleasure in stating that the operations of the boarding-out system in this district is preeminently satisfactory. The children all seem happy and contented, and the homes selected are in every way suitable. The only correction necessary for the children in the various homes is to threaten to send them back to the asylum, a fact which in itself bears ample testimony of the treatment of the children and the suitability of the homes selected. Most of the foster-parents have become so fond of the children that they would be willing, rather than part with them, to keep them for nothing. I cannot speak too highly of the way in which the system works in this district.

Mrs. ELIZH. M. BOWEN, Bowral :—

In answer to your request for my statement regarding the children boarded out in this district, I am pleased to state that they are all well and happy, and manifestly improving in personal appearance and manners; they profess much attachment to their foster-parents, and all have clean comfortable homes.

Mrs. E. KEMP, Queanbeyan :—

* * * The only child I visit has a comfortable home, and I believe her guardian on the whole faithfully performs the duties she has undertaken.

Mrs.

Mrs. G. E. R. COLVIN, Parsonage, Jamberoo :—

I have much pleasure in sending you (as requested in your letter of 12th May, 1885) a brief report pertaining to the boarding-out system in this Colony. The system, on the whole, as far as my experience goes, seems to be admirably adapted for the wholesome training of the children. The foster-parents, as a rule, are found to be kind and sympathetic, the children obedient and contented. In this district I have noticed a decided improvement, physically and morally, in most of the children after a few months' residence in their new homes. The class of homes are those of the well-to-do dairy-farmer, decent and neat in outward appearance, and usually very comfortable within.

Miss A. FRASER, Canberra :—

* * * Since I began my duties as visitor I have a very good opinion of the boarding-out system. The children under my supervision are always remarkably clean, and appear very happy. As I live close to the school and church I have an opportunity of seeing the children often. They have not made one complaint to me about their home or the way they are treated. I can well believe the boys, as I have known the foster-parents for many years, and know they will be well cared for and kindly treated; their homes are very comfortable, and they are treated as members of the family. The foster-parents speak well of the children, and rarely make a complaint to me; if they do, it is of a trifling nature. I am always welcomed in my visits, and believe the system must be attended with good results.

Mrs. BEST, The Parsonage, Nowra :—

The experience I have had has convinced me that the boarding-out system is an excellent one. The children under my supervision appear to be thoroughly well cared for, which is in itself an undeniable proof of the wisdom and care taken in securing worthy persons as guardians.

Mrs. J. KENDALL, Ulladulla :—

In reply to your circular asking for my opinion on the working of the boarding-out system in this district, I beg to state that in all the homes I visit * * * it works admirably, one family alone excepted. The children seem very happy, well cared for, and thoroughly at home, and their foster-parents seem really to look on them as their own. It seems a system eminently satisfactory, when the foster-parents are amongst the class of the respectable poor; but it does not work so well where the richer class take them, as they cannot feel so thoroughly at home, and are not regarded as children of the house, although in all cases here they are kindly treated and well cared for.

Mrs. E. EWING, Wollongong :—

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your circular of 9th instant, re lady visitors' statements of their observations of the results of the boarding-out system in the Colony, and in reply beg to say that the results, so far as I have been able to observe, have been very satisfactory. The system is, I believe, admirable, and will be conducive to the well-being of the children boarded-out, and to the Colony, if the same care as has hitherto been taken to secure for the children suitable homes continues to be exercised.

Mrs. F. B. SUTTON, Bathurst :—

Having been requested to give my opinion on the working of the boarding-out system in this district, I can but reiterate what I have said on former occasions, viz., that I consider it to be a most successful way of bringing up poor neglected children. They soon begin to understand that they are cared for, and improve so wonderfully in health and spirits that one can scarcely recognize them after a few months in their country homes. I only wish more people would come forward and take these poor children into their families.

Mrs. JANE NOTT, Redmyre :—

During the past year I have several times visited the boarded-out children in my district whose names have been forwarded to me, and my opinion is unaltered as to the vast superiority of this system over that of institutions in which large numbers are necessarily grouped. I feel satisfied that the home-life thus afforded will be the means of making better men and women, out of the same material, than the old method could possibly produce. The homes for the most part are of a very satisfactory kind, and the children are treated with care, and even with affection, by the foster-parents. In two instances, the previous training had been of such a character as to render it impracticable that they should be retained in the homes to which they had been sent; they had therefore to be returned to the Government. In all the other cases the conduct of the children has been satisfactory. Mrs. Cunningham, who is now associated with me as visitor in this district, desires also to express a favourable opinion of all that has come under her notice in connection with the system.

[In the two cases specially mentioned the children are turning out well in new homes.]

Mrs. ELIZABETH WHITTON and Mrs. EDITH ABBOTT, St. Leonards :—

We have great pleasure in sending a favourable report of the children boarded out by the State, on the North Shore. The children have been in good health, and always appear quite happy, and all who are old enough attend day and Sunday schools regularly, with the exception of the apprentices. We find a little difficulty in inducing the guardians to give these children the required time to attend school. Some are carefully taught at home, but not all.

APPENDIX J.

Letters from Children.

I received your letter quite safely; I am getting on very well; I like the place where I am much better as in the Asylum. Mr. and Mrs. P— are very kind to me; I am getting on very well with my lessons, but Mr. P— says I am not; I am very happy and comfortable; I try to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother and obey. We have got a splendid view at the place where we are living, at the Curl Curl heights; we can all the vessels going by; we often go out pleasuring; I go down fishing and swimming some times; we are about twenty minutes walk from one beach and half an hour from the lagoon; we are about 2 miles from Manly; I would be glad to see you; if you could manage to come we would fetch you from the steamer. Trusting you and Mrs. M— and family are quite well. We are all well.—I remain, your obedient child, H.B.

In answer to your letter which I received last week, Mrs. S— is very kind to me, and gives me plenty of clothes and food. I have sent you two or three of the specimens how I get on at school. You know when you was up last to see me I was in upper second, and now I am in third class in the boys school.—J.O.

Dear Mrs. W—, I went to the Church of England picnic and won a money-box, and Mr. K— put threepence into it. I have been a good boy since last time I wrote to you; I like the place very much; I hit myself in the eye with a piece of iron; I locked myself in my room, the nob came off the door and the iron slipped and hit me in the eye, and I tried to open it again and the iron hit me on the nose; my eye is better now. Mr. S— was going to send me to the circus only I stayed away all night and without leave, and I was going to the show only for the same thing. I have been to the bell-ringers, and I saw two soldiers and men singing; they made some of the bells sound like church bells; there were some sailors singing, and a doctor too. Mrs. S— went out on Thursday night, and I went to the circus instead of doing my sums. Mrs. S— took my half-crown from me because I was naughty, and she took me to Mr. R—, the schoolmaster, and he asked me whether I would promise to be a good boy, and I said yes. Mr. R— said I had one of the best homes in the town. This morning I was sent for the cow, and went for a ride instead, and I did not come home till half-past eight with the cow. I had a ride yesterday, and Mrs. S— says I should have been content. I am sending you my copy-book to see what you think of my writing.—W.C.

I sit down to write you these few lines ; I am working in second class ; granny is kind to me ; we have a new master ; I get plenty of food ; Agnes fell in the creek ; I like this place better than the Asylum ; we came home from school at five o'clock ; all our fruit is gone out ; me and Ernest is reading second books ; we got a letter from Agnes' father ; the school-master will give the girls and boys the cane if they stop at home ; they will get four handers if they do not bring a note ; I try to be good ; George is in third class ; me, and Agnes, and Ernest are doing addition sums ; I am comfortable ; this is the first letter I have wrote, but the next one I will try and do it better ; Ernest got four handers for staying home, and granny is going to write a note on Monday to the Master ; he canes us if we have a sum wrong.—J.B.

I was glad to get your letter, because I never got a letter before. I would rather be here than at Mrs. A——, and Mrs. B—— says I am a much better girl than when I first came. She told Mrs. Gunther, and she gave me a book, and Mrs. B—— took me to Sydney to see the gardens, and she bought me a bag.—L.B.

I recieved your kind and welcome letter, which I long expected. I am quite comfortable and happy ; I am getting on well with the butchering business, especially riding and driving ; I went to see Mrs. Kent before she went away, and I rode up the country on horseback with horses to turn out the distance of about forty-one miles ; it was the longest ride ever I had in my life ; I also had a trip up the country with Mrs. Schofield. You must realy excuse me not writing before * * I never thought of it till Mrs. Schofield reminded me of it, so as it is rather late I must close.—J.E.F.

I like living with Mr. and Mrs. B——, who are very kind to us all. I go to the Rose Vale School, and I am in the first class ; I got a prize last Christmas from the teacher for good conduct. I have not been sick since I have been living at Windellama ; the sore on Alfrid's face is better now, but it will break out again shortly as it did before ; I am happy to say the rest of us are well.—R.A.

I now write you these few lines just to let you know how I am getting on. I like being up at Woodlands very much. There is a lot of cows up here, and I am learning to milk very well. I would like to have one of my sisters up here with me. There is a boy from Parramatta here. Little Agnes that came up with me goes to the same church as I do. When the Attendant came up with us we were travelling all over the country looking for Woodlands, and we were so glad to find it. I like Miss Cunningham. I am getting on very well with my lessons ; but I am very deaf, and can hardly hear a word anybody says to me. Dear Sir, this is all I have to say. I hope you are very well, and I thank you for your kind letter to me.—N.G.

In answer to your letter, I am quite happy and comfortable as I am living now, and would not like to go back to the Asylum again. I am progressing at school very well, and I like going to school.—M.B.

I write these few lines hoping it will find you in good health, as I am in good health myself at present, thank God. Dear Sir, you wanted to know weather I am happy and comfortable. I am very happy and comfortable. Dear Sir, I like living as I am very well, better than in the Asylum. I am trying my very best to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother. I am going to school every day. I am anxious for to do well. I am telling you now nothing but the truth.—C.R.

I received your letter, and I will answer every word truly. I am happy and comfortable ; I like living as I am. I will try and be good dutiful. I deed right. I milk nine cows. I can ride a horse.—C.R.

I am so happy living here ; I realy like the place ; I am as comfortable as can be ; I have a good mistress and good master. I am learning as much as I can, and I am in a higher class in chool and go every day. I have not much to do, and I have plenty of schoolmates. I went to picknic and they each present me on Christmas.—A.J.

I received your kind letter, and was very pleased to think you were anxious to hear how I am getting on. I am very happy in my new home ; I would not like to go back to Randwick ; I am getting on very well ; I do all I can ; I can milk ten cows, and I am learning to do a good many jobs about the farm ; I mind the baby ; I like my foster mother very well ; I would not like to go back to Randwick on any account. John Dermody and I are great mates ; we meet at school every day. There are a great number of Randwick boys up here now. It was raining all last week or else I would have answered your letter before, as I could not get to the post. I would like very much to know if my sister Maggie is in Randwick yet. I wrote to her when I came here, but got no answer. I would be very thankful to you if you would inquire if she is there yet, if it would not be to much trouble to you, as I would like to hear from her. I hope all my little mates in Randwick are well, hoping also you are well.—I am, your sincere friend, W.A.

I reply to your letter I beg to inform you that I am quite happy and comfortable, and I like living as I am now better than in the Asylum ; and I try to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother ; and I am progressing well at school. I am not in any way in trouble, and I don't need any advise or help at present.—I remain, your obedient child, E.B.

I am quite comfortable up here ; I would rather be here than in the Asylum. I have very little work to do, and they always give me plenty to eat and drink ; they are very good friends. I go to school every day, and I go to church on Sundays ; but I never got a letter when you send one up to two of the boys. I would be very much obliged to you if you wrote to me and told me were he is my brother. I supposed he is getting on well. I am thinking of you and all your boys. The inspector has been here to-day ; and I am thinking of my sisters too, as well as you and my brother. I am living in a happy home now. I always have plenty meals at meal-time. I have got some playmates here as well as in the Asylum. That is all I have to say for the present.—S.W.

I received your kind and welcomed letter making enquiries how I like my new home. I am very happy and comfortable where I am living, and I would rather stay where I am ; and my foster-mother is very kind and good, and I try to be a good and useful boy, and I like the schoolmaster, Mr. Brown, very well. I am getting on very well with my schooling, and I got a prize at Christmas, and a useful book it is, and there are a great many other Randwick boys with me at school. Me and William Atherton go to school every morning, and I go to church regular, and we are getting plenty of rain these four or five days. I have learned to do a great many things, and am getting quite domestacated in my new home. I received a Chirstmas card, for which I am very thankful, and I am very thankful for your kind inquiries after me. I was very sea-sick coming from Sydney in the night, and during the daytime I enjoyed it very much, and I have a nice boy to play with me when it is so wet to go to school.—I remain, your fond friend, J.D.

I received your kind letter ; thank you for it. I am very happy and comfortable, and do not want to go back to the Asylum ; I would rather live here. I try to be a good, and I am getting on well with my lessons. We all learn at home, and have a very kind teacher. I wrote to my brother William every fortnight, and he writes to me.—I.H.

My dear friend and guardian,—I asked my foster-parents could I write a letter to you on behalf of myself, as the time is drawing near that I will have to leave my dear foster-parents and good and happy home. My foster-mother could get me a good home, if she was allowed, where I could learn a good trade with a proteston family, the same person as went to Mrs. S——. If you will kindly use your influence and do what you can that I may not leave Bathurst, although I am a boy, I would pray for you and yours. I know nobody else would look after me as this mother has done. I am tired of school, but I am able and willing to work, as I see boys in bathurst not bigger than me earning from six to eight shillings a week. When I see them I feel as if I want to work myself. Please excuse all the mistakes, as I had no one to tell me anything.—B.S.

I like the place very well, and I go to Sunday school, and I can milk a few cows now, and I soon will be able to milk a good few, and I will be good, and I go to the day school. It has been very wet down here this last two or three days, and it has been very cold down here lately. I am getting on very well at school. You asked me if I was hapy and comfortable, which I am glad to say I never was as happy or comfortable in my life. That is all I have to say at preasant ; I hope I will have more to tell you the next time ; and I hope you are all well up there, as it leaves us all down hear at preasant. So, good-by.

I recieved your welcome letter to-day, and Mrs. C—— as been away visiting at her sisters, and I have been staying at Mrs. R——'s, and I have came home to-day, and i like my place very well, and I am going to school and church, and I have not got much work to do, and my mother, Mrs. C——, is very kind to me ; I write to you to say that I have not been writing down to you last year, and Mrs. C—— teaches me my Catechism of a night, and she gives me any advise I want.—T.M.

I received your kind letter; I was glad to hear from you, and I must thank you for your kind advice to me; I am very happy; I like this place much better than Parramatta or Ulladulla; Mr. and Mrs. P— are very kind to me; I have plenty to eat and plenty of good clothes. I go to school; it is only half-time school; I am getting on very well. The maize crop is nearly ripe here, and the weather is getting cold; I like farming. Mr. P— has six cows, two bullocks, three horses, and six pigs, and his family consists of five little girls; they all go to school but one, which is a baby two months old, and there is a mail-boy goes past from Burrier to Nowra, and the Shoalhaven River runs past the house, and a new steamer comes up the river and takes away the maize when it is in bags, and the Queen's birthday is coming soon and it will be in May, and we will have some fireworks, and there is going to be a Highland Society gathering at Nowra and plenty of sports, and the school-master is going to buy a football for the boys at school; and now I will conclude it with kindness.—I remain your affectionate orphan, J.T.

I was glad to get your letter, and I am getting on quite well; I am quite happy; I am going to school, and I am in fourth class at school, and I go to Sunday-school every fine Sunday, and I go to church also. Sometimes I am a good boy and sometimes I am bad; I would rather be down here; I feel quite comfortable; I am not in any want or trouble; I try to be good and dutiful; I hope the next time I write I will have more to tell you.—I remain your dear friend, R.W.K.

Sir, you wished if I was very happy and comfortable? Yes, I am, and I am very happy; I would rather be with Mrs. G— than in an Asylum; I do not go to school for I am apprenticed to Mrs. G—. The only thing that I am in need of is a good husband with two thousand pounds.—I remain, Sir, yours truly, M.E.

i am going to behave well and learn all i can; i like this place; Mrs. B— is kind to me.—W.E.

I am going to write to you as you wished to know how I was getting on. There is a new school in Homebush; I like my teacher very much; I like living with Mrs. T— very much; I have plenty of playthings; my birthday is on the 18th of May; I have plenty of books and cards. I thank you very much for the cards you sent me; they are very pretty; I go to Sunday-school every Sunday; my teachers' name is Mr. Thompson; he is a very nice teacher; I would rather live with Mrs. T— than any one else; I have no more to tell you this time.—G.S.

I am very pleased to tell you that I am quite well and getting on at school; I like going to the Homebush school better than the Burwood; Mrs. S— is the sewing mistress, and she is very kind. We go to church every Sunday morning, and Sunday-school in the afternoon, and Miss Buzacott is my teacher, and she is a very nice lady. Mrs. T— is very kind, and I should be very sorry to leave her; I was very pleased with the Christmas cards you sent me. This is all I have to tell you now.—M.S.

I received your letter yesterday, and I now take the pleasure to answer it; I like my place very well, and my foster-mother is very kind to me, and I like this place a great deal better than the Orphan School, and I am getting on with my schooling very well. I have no more to say this time.—W.C.B.

I received yours of the 13; I like Yarro very much, and also my new home, and I am comfortable and happy; I go to school every half-day every day; I attend church every Sunday there is service, also Sunday School; I have good clothes and plenty to eat and drink; Mr. and Mrs. F. is very fond of me, and I try to please them all I can, and they said I am a good boy.—L.M.

I reply to your letter of the 14th instant; I now write to let you know how I am getting on; I am quite happy and very comfortable; I would much sooner be here than at Randwick; I try to be good, but sometimes I am not dutiful to my foster-mother, who is very kind to me; I am progressing very well at school, and I like going to school very much, and I get the cane some times for talking or not being good; I like all my schoolmates very well * * *—Your humble child, R.E.H. Dear sir, this is my own handwriting.

I am quite happy and comfortable; I am getting on at school very well, and I am upstairs in the the big girls' school; the classes the first class in the big girls' school; I have had the sore eyes; they are better now; I like Goulburn very well; I have been to Sydney in October; I went with my aunty; I stayed for a fournight; I like Mrs. R.; she is very kind; Mrs. R.'s two girls are at Sydney just now; they have been there six weeks to-morrow; I think they are coming home to-morrow; I am very well; I have not been sick scarcely since I have been here—From A.B. P.S.—I go to church and also to Sunday-school; we have had a grand picnic last February to lake Bathurst; when I went to Sydney I went to see my two little brothers; my grandmother took me to the asylum; I like been here better than the Asylum,

My dear guardians,—I am happy and comfortable; I like living as I am now very well, and although I get beat when I disire it; I try to be good and dutiful, and I am getting on very well at school; I go to Sunday-school twice on Sunday; in the morning I go to the Congregational, and after dinner I go to the english Church; I got a nice book from the English Church; and I can nearly drive a horse; this is not very well written, but it is the first letter I have wrote; I may be able to do the next one better.—J.C.

I hope you are quite well, as I am at present; I am quite happy and comfortable; I like living where I am better than in the Asylum; I try and to be a dutiful child; I am getting on at my schooling; I am learning arithmetic, dictation, &c.; I was in the Hospital five week, and I was pleased to get out again; I went to my Sunday-school picnic about two months ago, and went to Coogee bay, and I was playing cricket; and I was playing on the beach, and took off my boots and stockings, and was walking in a little way; and last year you sent me a Christmas card.—J.C.

I now take the pleasure of answering your kind letter, which I received quite safe; I am very happy and comfortable; I would not like to go back to the Asylum again; I am getting on very well at school, and I also go to Church and Sunday-school on Sundays; I have a nice comfortable bed-room all to myself; I am enjoying the best of health; I cannot think of any more to tell you at present; I like my foster mother and father very much.—E.M.

In answer to your letter I must say that I am honestly and truly happy, and that my foster-parents are very good to me, and I have no wish to leave them; I go to school with the other children, and think I am improving with my lessons. All I say is true; I am well and happy and desire no change.—D.W.

I received your kind letter to-day; I am now going to write to let you know that I am going to be a good and truthful boy; I have a good foster father and mother; I am getting on very well at school, and I am provided with plenty to eat and drink, and with plenty of clothing; I am very happy and comfortable; they are very kind to me, and I do my work very well; I am, sir, your sincere friend.—J.K.

I would have written to you sooner only I have very little spare time. Thank you for your kind letter; I am very happy, and I have a good home, better than where I was before; the only thing I am sorrow for is I have to go to school in the afternoon; it is Mrs. R— bussiest time; I am working hard to get into lower third; I hope Mrs. M— is better, and the children are all well; I have seen Mr. C— and he is living out at Coome; he often writes to me. Good-bye with love.—I remain your affectionate child A.L.

[This child is an apprentice, and the Mr. C— referred to was her guardian when she was a boarder.]

I write in answer to your kind letter which I received from you; I am very comfortable and happy; I would rather live here than in an asylum; I must confess I have not been so good and dutiful as I ought to have been to my foster-mother, but I am trying to be better, sir; I do not go to school now as I am over age; I was fifteen last March; I was up to the standard three months before I left school. Dear sir, I thank you very much for the exmas card you sent me. I must conclude.—J.A.

I received your kind letter thursday morning ; we have got a large garden which has got all kinds of vegetables in it. Mother and father are pretty well ; I am going to school and in the third class in the big school ; I am nearly as big as Robert ; we are all very happy ; I would not like to go back to the Asylum ; we have got a magpie which calls all of us by our name, and can whistle nicely. Mother has got a nice variety of flowers in her garden. We have got a dog by the name of "Watch" and will bark if any one comes to the door or in the yard, which we think will be nearly as good as "Stumpy" ; we all get plenty to eat and good feed, and good clothing to wear. There was a show last week, but we did not go as it was to wet. Henry is getting a very good boy ; Allan Jonstone is a very good little fellow for his age, and my sister Bella is looking very well.—H.W.S.

I mean to inform you that I am happy and comfortable, and likes my foster-parents well, and I sooner to live here than in the Asylum ; I tries to be good to my foster-mother ; I am doing very well at school, and the teacher says I am the best at arithmetic ; I got new clothes and boots, and I was made the present of a heifer for being a good milker, and I am the biggest of the boys who came to Kiama. No more at present from your obedient child.—F.H.

It gives me great pleasure to answer your kind letter of 14th April ; I am quite happy and comfortable in my home ; I am learning fairly well at school ; I am a better scholar ; I think my writing has improved, though not very good yet ; my foster-mother has been like a mother to me ; I go with her to church every Sabbath morning, also I say my lessons on Sabbath afternoons to her ; I have been in good health since I came to live at Ellengowan ; my foster-mother wishes me to say that I am a good obedient boy to her.—H.B.L.

My sister and brother and I are happy and comfortable, kept clean, and have plenty of clothes, and go to school every day ; have plenty to eat and good clean beds to sleep on, and we are well treated. Attend Mass every sunday ; there's Mass in lidsdale and sunday school every sunday, and every Saturday we have a half-day to play. We would be much sooner up here than in the Asylum. No more at present from yours obedient children.—S. and A.R.

I am pleased to say I like the home I have hear, and would not wish to be back at the Asylum. I am not unhappy, and get on well at school. The only time I ever went to school is since I have come hear, that will be twelve months on the 22nd of this month.—M.A.G.

I received your a kind letter. I am thankful, Sir, to say I am happy and comfortable in my new home with my foster-mother. I would rather live where i am, and i try to do all i can, and i try to be obedient in all i can. i attend to my school every day, likewise my Sunday school, and I hope i shall get on better as i get older. Dear sir, I wrote to my mother about twelve months ago and never received no answer, yet I so wish to know my age. dear sir, please to give my love to my brothers and sister. I would much like to hear from my brother if he is still in Asylum. Dear sir, I have to thank you for your kindness shown towards me.—W.S.

My dear friend and guardian,—I received your kind letter a few mornings ago. You wish to know whether we are happy. I am happy and comfortable myself, and I think all the rest of the children are. We are all well at present, except henry has had very bad eyes, but my foster-mother cured them. We all try to do what we can to help her. I get plenty to eat, my bed is nice and comfortable, and I have nothing to complain of. We all try to do something in our garden. I know a good deal of a garden now, and put in nearly everying we want. My poor foster-father is not very well. I am getting on very well at school. Mother has got a nice variety of flowers, and they look very nice. I would have wrote sooner only that I was busy. We have got a dog, two cats, and a magpie, and three ducks, who can call any of us by name. Alan is very happy, and jumps and skips about all day. I am into my thirteenth year, and I am very sorry I will soon have to lose my good and happy home, as the money my foster-mother gets for will not pay for me. Pleas tell my brother Willic to write as soon as he can, as mother is very anxious about him.—R.S.

My dear Sir,—I received your kind letter ; I am quite well and happy. I am very thankfull and happy, and I can write on paper now ; I am in the third book. I can milk very well ; I can ride on a horseback ; I can do arithmetic, multiplication, and subtraction. I like living at Ulladulla. I would be very happy to see you down, so that I could ask you how my brothers are getting on. I would like to hear very from you.—W.B.

I received your letter last week and I was glad to hear from you. I am gitting on very well, thank God, and I am very happy, and I like living here, and I am going to school ; I go to Sunday school too ; I am in second class at days-school ; there is seventy going to the school. The weather is very dry, but it is raining now, and I have plenty to eat, drink, and werc. Mrs. G— says I can write when I like to you, so no more at present from yours truthful.—A. M.

This is the first letter I have ever rittin in my life, you will please excuse all falts. I am very comfortable and happy ; could not wish to be more so ; I have plenty of good food and frutes of the season, also plenty of nice cloths to wear. We go sometimes for nice little parties, which are really very nice, for dear mama doys not forget to provide us with plinty of goods thengs on that occasion. Three weeks ago mama tuck us all to Sydney, and night we went through Paddy's market, which quite a treat to me, for I never was thier befor. But you must not think that for all these pleasurs bestove on me that am always a good girl, for I am to often a disbedent cairles girl. Well, I hope for the futer to be a better girl. I go to Church and Sunday chool, but I have not been to day-school since I came back, for if I read or rite long at a time my eyes would be quite sore and inflamed. I ham quite well in every other way, but suntimis they are very sore. I am in no trouble whatever, for all my friends are very kind and fond of me when I am a good girl, and should I ever be in truble then I shall be ony to grateful for your kind adbecd or hilp, and I thank you most cinccarly for the kind intrest you have thaken in me, hoping to return it by growing a good and usefull girl. Dear sir, I would not like to go back to the Asylum again ; I did not like been thier at all. Dear sir, I have ritten every word of this letter in honest truth, a I remain yours a State child.—A.B. [This child suffers from chronic ophthalmia, and is kept from school in consequence].

I received your welcome letter the other day, and was very glad to get it. I wrote to my brother the other day and sent him a book and some cards by Mrs. W—, but he has never answered them ; when you go there again will you please tell him to write soon. My home is happy and comfortable ; I have left school a long time now, but I go to Sunday-school every morning and evening ; I am a class higher than I was when I wrote to you last ; I have joined the Scripture Union for young people, and I have got a paper full of Bible questions to find and answer ; I think there will be a prise for the best one. I went to our Sunday-school picnic a little while ago, and to a tea meeting and public meating when Mr. S— had his farewell presents given him, and he left goulburn for Sydney. My ears don't get any better, if anything they are worse. Fanny is far from being well, and so is Mrs. W—. There are a gay lot of flowers out now ; there are always 3 or 4 fine bunches took to the Sunday-school, then when school is over they are taken to the hospitle. When is Ashton coming out of it ; I would like to see him again. We was doing a bit of carpenting to-day. I have no more to say this time.—I remain your affectionate child, A.E. [This child is beyond the school age.]

I am getting on quite well my lessons, and I like living here, and I have three young children to play with, and I am kind to then, and I go to school every day. I have a new hat, and Mrs. O— is very kind to me ; I hope you are getting on quite well * * * I go to Sunday-school every Sunday ; I got a book and bag on Christmas Eve day ; I can sew now, and clean the house out, and scrub the floor, and I can read and write at school ; I have a kind teacher ; Edith got a prize on Sunday ; I have another new dress ; I got a pair of new stockings for sundays ; I can help to wash up the blates and cups and things like that ; I can make the fire every morning ; I can do sums now ; I can sweep the rooms out ; I can wash the children every morning and night ; I can makes the beds ; Mrs. O— taught me how to sew ; I can read very well ; I hope you will come and me some time if you can ; I like living in bathurst much.—A.K.

I received your kind letter on wednesday last. I am very happy here, and would much rather be here than at the Asylum. I go to sunday-school every Sunday with Mrs. R— little children, and I play with them in the paddock nearly every afternoon. I am going to try and be a good girl and do as my mistress tells me, and I hope to be able to work well and learn to cook too. I am quite well.—I remain, E.M.

I take the pleasure of writing you these few lines, as it leaves me at present in good health. I do not want to go away because I am in a good home, and mother does as much as she can for us. I go to church and Sunday school every Sunday, and mother sent a note to the head master because I did not read. I have got plenty of good food and plenty of good clothes that mother made me. I would not like to go back to the Asylum again. I am very happy here, and I do not want to go away from mother, because I love her. I got the highest marks in school to-day for reading.—F.D.

I am very comfortable and happy, and I like to live with Mr. H—; I am getting on very well at school; I have finished my exercise book and I am keeping it; I go to church every Sunday; sometimes people ask me how old I am, and I say I do not know; could you please tell me my age? There are a number of boys in Goulburn who used to be at Randwick. Sometimes I see them; I think your son must have left the Asylum; I wrote a letter to him six weeks ago, and he did not answer it. On Christmas I will come to see you.—J.L.

I received your letter last week; I am quite well; I like Goulburn better than the Asylum; I would cry if I had to go back again, my uncle and aunt is so kind to me; I am a good girl at home, and I like going to school; I am in compound division sums, and on Fridays we learn to write letters, and I am learning to do some wool-work; I will show you the wool-work when you come to Goulburn; I go to Sunday school every Sunday, and I am learning the one hundred and third psalm; we have very nice weather in Goulburn, and the mornings are getting cold.—S.C.

I am getting on quite well thanks, and I am attending school regularly, and I would rather be where I am than in the Asylum. Yes, I am as happy and comfortable as I can be, and I go to church still; I am in the same class still, but we read different kinds of books; I am a better boy now than I was before, and I am having plenty to eat and drink; I have a good home.—S.P.

My dear friend,—I send you a letter to show how I could write; we have a garden, and we are all well and happy, and we have got a kind mother, and we have good clothing, and we are all happy and comfortable, and I wish Josiah Copland back again, for he was a good boy, and I wish that he is getting on and happy, and I am getting on at school; we have a goat and a magpie, and he calls everybody by their name, and I hope you are too, and I am grown a great deal bigger; I am a boy now, and in the boy school.—G.W.

I received your very kind letter and was pleased to hear from you. You wish to know how I like my home; I like my home very well; I would rather remain where I am than be in the Asylum; I am very comfortable where I am; I have plenty to eat and drink, and good clothes to wear, and a good bed to sleep in; I try to be as good and dutiful to my foster-parents as much as I can. You want to know how I am progressing at school; I have not been to school this last six months; I go to Sunday school and to Church. My foster-parents try to teach me all they can that is good; I have learnt to milk, to plough, and many other useful things; I am very healthy; I have not had any illness since I've been living here. My sister Maude that is living here with me at the same home is both happy and comfortable, and is growing.—I remain your obedient child.—P.G.

I am happy and comfortable, and I like being here as well as at the Asylum; I try to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother; I am progressing well at school, and get religious instruction taught me.—T.R.

I received your kind letter to-day, and I am now going to answer it. You wish me to tell you if I am happy and comfortable; I like my place very well, and I am both happy and comfortable; I would much rather be here than in the Orphan School; I am getting on very well at school; I am in the upper second class, and I like going to school very well; I am getting very tall. It was my birthday on Christmas Day.—J.B.

Dear Sir,—I am quite happy and content with my foster-mother; I prefer to live with her than in the Asylum, and my teacher thinks that I am improving in my lessons; I have nothing more to say except to thank you for your kindness to me.—M.A.C.

I got your letter yesterday; I am very happy where I am; I would not like to live in the Asylum; I try and do all I can for my guardians before and after school, and I go to school every day, only one-half day out; I go to Church with my foster-parents; they are very kind to me.—D.M.

I write you these few lines to let you know how I am getting on. I like the place very well and I am comfortable. I like the country where I am living far better than Paramatta. I like the people I am living with well, and they are kind to me. I attend the school regular; I am in third class, and I go to the Sunday school. We had a picnic on Easter Monday, and I got a nice prize. I can milk very well. We have a few good cattle and a few sheep. I have no more to tell you.—J.S.

I am glad to say that I am quite happy and comfortable here, and like it much better than being in the Asylum. I try to do as I am told as well as I can. I am getting on very well at school, and like going to school very well.—A.B.

I now write you a few lines in reference to my home. I am very glad to say that I am as happy and comfortable as I wish. I would sooner be living as I am now; but I am very sorry to say that I have not been good in the past, but I am getting on better now, and I am going to try and do my best. I have not been to school since I was fourteen, but I read books at home. I have got over my two worst faults; the worst now is temper, but I am going to try and get over that also. I have a very kind master and mistress with two dear little children who love me.—M.L.

Yes, thank you, I am comfortable and happy. I would rather stop here than the Asylum. Yes I am trying to be good and obey them. I am attending to school regularly. No, I am not in trouble nor want advice. No one told me to write this. I write to Mrs. W— now and then. Mrs. S— will let me write to you sometimes.—W.C.

I am trying to get on with my sums; I am in short division, and I hope I will get on with my writing before I write to you again. I have been to Lady Robinson's Beach, and I got some beautiful shells; and to the Zoological Gardens, also to Mrs. Sharp's, and I seen her dear little baby. I am sure you will be glad to hear that I am not so lazy as I was. I will try and write better next time. Hoping you are quite well.—M.B.

I am glad to inform you that I am in good health, and that I attend school every day; I am now learning Euclid and Latin. I am now in upper fourth; I like going to school very much. And my adopted brother and sister learn their lessons with me at night, then our mother drills us all up in arithmetic; I am very fond of drawing and practice it at home. I am very happy at home, and my adopted parents are very kind to me; they take me to church with them every Sabbath morning, and then I go to Sabbath school in the afternoon. In the evening I go to the place where my adopted father preaches. I am a member of the Scotch Thistle Juvenile Temple, and we must not drink, smoke, swear, or gamble, and I hope I never shall. There is a fife and drum band in connection with it, and I am the kettle drummer; but I played the fife for a little while, and I can play several tunes. I was down with my brother at Watson's Bay to see the sham fight, and there was a terrible noise. I must now conclude, thanking you for the kindly interest you take in boys and girls like me.—G.B. [This lad is boarded with Mr. Robinson, one of the City Missionaries, who has always taken a most kindly and benevolent interest in him.]

I write you these few lines saying I have a good home to live in, a comfortable bed, and plenty to eat and drink. I am very happy. I am now Mrs. D— apprentice for five years; I am getting taught at home; I think that I am getting on better than when I was going to school to; I am going to Sunday school. My mistress and master are very good and kind to me. I will now bring my letter to a close.—L.R.

I am quite happy with my foster-mother; she is very kind to me, and I have everything that I want, and I have no wish to go back to the Orphan School. I go to the beach every evening to bathe with the children. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday since Christmas. Please sir tell me if my brothers are at the Orphan School yet. I like my place where I am very much. I go to Church every Sunday at 10 o'clock mass. I thank you for the pretty card you sent me at Christmas; it was very nice. I cannot tell you any more at present. I must conclude with best wishes, so good-bye.—M.H.

I received your kind and welcome letter yesterday, and now I will do my best to answer it. I am quite well and comfortable, and have plenty to eat and plenty of clothes to put on. I attend school regular, and I am in the third class at school and read the fourth book, and I am in vulgar fraction sums. I received the 1st prize for Bible questions at school, and the title of it was The Boy's Own Annual. The school is 2 miles from where I live. I go to church on Sunday, but there is not church service every Sunday; only on the second and fifth Sundays there is church service. There is no Sunday school held here. We are having very dry weather up here, and there is very little feed for the cattle, so we only milk the cows once a day; and water is very scarce also. There was a concert held in the Public School on the 4th of last month, and I went to it also. On Christmas and Christmas holidays I made myself very happy, and I am very glad to see that you have not forgotten me.—A.G.

I received your letter yastery. You will be glad to here I am as happy and comfortable as you would wish. I can't tell you how kind Mrs. C— is to me, and aspeacly when I am sick. The nuns are always pleased with me, because I come so clean and regular to school. I am getting on well at school. I have every thing I want, and I would sooner live where I am now. I do my best to obey my foster-mother; I am never in truble. Dear Mr. * * * I am telling you rely nothing but the truth * * * Please Sir excuas my bad written.—M.A.S.

I received your letter with great joy. I am happy; and I am very comfortable, and I like my foster very much, for she is very kiud to me, and I like living with her better than I liked the Asylum. I tell you truthfully and faithfully that I am naughty a little bit sometime, but I will try and be good always for the future. The schoolmaster said that I was getting along very nicely, and that he was pleased with me; he is very kind to me and likes me a great deal. Last year we got prizes at school, and I got a splendid one named "Tales of Adventurers, and Wild Works in Strange Places." This is all I can think of at present.—A.B.

I like living here best, and do not want to go back. My teacher says I am one of the best in her class, but I have not been able to go to school for a long time, because my eyes have been very sore; the doctor still comes to see them, and he said I am not to go until they are quite better. I have tried to be a good girl, and do has I am told. I got the pretty Christmas card you so kindly sent to me.—C.D.

I am very thankful to you for your kind inquiries after my welfere. But I am very happy with Mrs. B— she it indeed like a mother. I feel very well and strong, and I go to school of a week day, and to church and Sunday school of a Sunday. Mrs. B— and all of us went to Burwood for three months. I enjoyed myself very much. I went to week day school and to church and Sunday school. Also you ask, Sir, how I am progressing at school. I am getting on very well; I have been permoted into third class.—F.M.

If you please, sir, I am quite happy and comfortable, and am trying to do my best. I go to school every day, except when I am wanted, and I am in the upper division of fourth. I like the place very well, and I have been having some treats. Miss S— is very kind to me; she has been taken me ever to North Shore these few Sundays; and also I went out in a little boat on Easter Eve for the day, and on Monday I went over to North Shore and stayed there all day with G.K. If I am allowed to write to Mrs. P— soon, I will tell her that I got a letter from you. I go to Sunday-school and church nearly every Sunday, and I got a prize.—E.L.

My dear friend,—* * * I received your kind letter Wednesday at night. I am very happy, and I like living botter than the Asylum. I am getting on very well at my schooling, and I go to my church and catechism every Sunday. My foster-mother is very kind to me in all things. You said in your letter to me to tell the truth and nothing but the truth, and I am doing so now. My dear friend, this is all I have to say at present.—I.R.

I received your letter asking me to write to you and let you know how I am getting on. I have the best of heath since I came up hear. I believe my foster-parents are not well pleased how I am acting, as I do not do as they tell me sometimes. I am going regular to school, and my progress is not much; I may be too fond of play. I think it is my own fault, as I have good teachers. I like the place well, but I do not think will suite, as they tell me I am going back at the end of my twelve months.—C.A.

I am very happy and comfortable. I have a very nice home, and nice, and kind people over me. I am very attentive at school and at singing. I like doing the house work, and try to learn as much of it as I can. I am disobedient in some things, and will try to be good. I have three nice little playmates and a dear little baby, and I go to church every Sunday, and they take me everywere with them. Please excuse the writing, as it is my first.—I remain, your faithful friend, M.J.D.

As you wished me to write to you, I hope you will be pleased at what I have to say. I like this place very much, and both Mr. and Mrs. G— are very kind to me, and so are the children. I would far sooner be here than in the Orphan School. I am quite well, and I hope you are the same.—G.K.

I reply to your kind letter which I received yesterday (Wednesday), I must inform you that I'm very happy and comfortable, and I would prefer living where I am instead of the Asylum. I try to be good and dutiful, and I'm getting on well at school, and had been suffering from a dog-bite, and have quite recovered, and I have a very nice bedroom upstairs.—J.D'A.

I received your kind letter this morning, and I am happy to tell you that I am very comfortable and happy, and kept clean and wholesome, and kept at school Sunday, week days, and to church. I went to church on good friday with grandfather, and floreys picnic on easter monday, and to the fea-meeting at night. I was quite amused at the music. I always have plenty to eat and to drink, and plenty of play with floreys; that my grandmother learns me to work about the house. I have some dolls to play with, and some cups and saucers, and with it all I am very happy. I am not aloud to run in the streets with rude children. Mr. and mrs. W— is very kind to me, and I like them and floreys all very much. I wouldnt like to go away from grandmother. They give us a holiday from school.—K.B.

I am happy and comfortable in my present home, and I like it very much better than the Orphan School, and feel as happy as if I were at home. I go to school every day to Cleveland-street Public school. My foster-mother is very pleased how I am getting on. On Christmas I got a nice prize for arithmetic, which you have seen, and then removed to a higher class. Dear Mr. M—, I try to be as good and dutiful as I can, and my foster-mother thinks me a very good boy. I am getting on very well at school, espicely in sums; I am doing fractions.—L.C.

I now take the pleasure of writing you these few lines to tell you how I am getting on. I am in a comfortable home. My aunt is kind to Rose and I, and one day she sent us to school, and I use to get on the trams and steal flowers out of the people gardens, and one day I and Nellie K— went down to double Bay, and took off our boots and went into the water, and we stayed out of school, and a message got sent to my auncie that I was getting the school a bad name, and that is the reason that I was kept at home. I have to learn at home and write a copies every day.—I remain, your dear child, KATIE.

APPENDIX K.

Letters from Foster-parents in reference to the Children.

The first two children I received two years last July * * * were both sore-eyed, fretful, sickly, and dirty in their habits. * * * The other four have come at different periods, and were more or less the same. They are all now, I think, the best-conducted children in Goulburn; none that I know or see belonging to anybody, even their own, are equal to them; they are a pattern to all others. I think where the orphans get good homes it is a great boon for the children, but people who take them must expect a little trouble at first. I also think, as an inducement to persons having good homes and willing to take them, that the payment should be risen to 7s. per week, as there are plenty who could make them happy and comfortable had they the means.—F.P.

In

In answer to your inquiries respecting my foster-children, I have much pleasure in informing you that there could not be three better children than they are. They were a little rough and noisy at first, but now that is all changed, when they found I did not approve of it. They are very obedient, one trying to exceed the other in doing anything that they think will please me. They attend St. Peter's school every day, and they are quite delighted to go to school, and the two girls are doing their best to improve themselves. They attend church twice on Sundays and nearly every morning in the week; they hear mass of their own accord; they are very affectionate to one another. I had a little trouble with the boy teaching him to be clean. I had to chastise him once, and now there could not be a cleaner child than him. I think the boarding-out system is most admirable.—F.W.

You ask me to tell you how the children are behaving in my case. I think their behaviour is the same as when I got them. Their habits are a lot better, and I don't think they are near so timid as when I first got them. Of course they are getting older now and more sense, but I think they are progressing well. Their health has been very good since I have had them, and I think the boarding-out children are doing well, that is if they are like the ones I have. The children could not have better health or more amusement at the Public School. The teachers speak very highly of them, and they think they are good children and learn well.—F.C.

Yours per favour of the 16th just to hand, and in reply I beg to inform you that when I received the children which are now under my care they were both very destructive, and the boy was very dirty in his habits, the girl was very much given to pilfer from the shop doors as she would be going to or coming from school. They were both very much inclined to tell stories; indeed, they would not or could not tell the truth. They were quite healthy when I received them. They are not destructive now, and the boy is cleanly in his habits, and for the girl she is greatly altered from what she was. They are both very healthy now, and have been, except when they had whooping cough, measles, and chicken-pox. I can assure you that there is a decided improvement upon them in every way since they came under my care. Sir, as regards the boarding-out system, I believe it to be a much better way of rearing children than the barrack system. When I received the children which are under my care at present—I say when I received them—they were quite white and bleached looking, and seemed to be afraid of everyone, whereas now they are quite ruddy in the face, and have quite a different appearance altogether, and can hold up their heads and speak respectfully to any person, what I am sorry to say they could not do when I received them.—A.L.

The children in my charge are good and well-behaved children, and have been ever since I took charge of them. They are no more troublesome than children of their age would naturally be. They have always been clean in their habits and their health good, with the exception of G.W. He was not at all strong, but he is quite strong now. A.O'D. is greatly improved lately, but still he is not a strong child.—E.C.

In reply to your note of the 17th instant, I beg to state that the children in my care are progressing favourably, both in health and manners. The two youngest had a bad cough, but they are getting better now * * * I send them regularly, both to day and Sabbath school, and the eldest boys I send to church every Sunday morning; they are quite content and happy.—M.C.

In answer to your letter of the 16th instant, I must say that they are progressing very well at the present time. I had the doctor to F.B. on two occasions, but she is getting on very nicely at present, and one of the boys, E.L., was bad with the whooping-cough when I got him, and he had some medicine from the doctor, but he is allright again now. Their behaviour and conduct is very good; I have also much pleasure in saying that their habits and manners are now very good * * * I have noticed a great improvement in every respect regarding to health, manners, and habits.—J.H.

I received yours on the 18th April. The children were very tiresome when they first came to me, and rude, not answering when spoken to, and run away if any of my friends spoke to them—that is, the two boys; the girl was very dull and selfish; when I told them that if they did not mind me they would have to go back it did them as much good as if I punished them; they don't want to go back; I have to be very watchful with them; they will not do anything my daughters tell them; with care I think they will do well; I think it must be far better for the poor children to be among other families and treated the same; my friends all think that they have improved a great deal * * * I don't think you will complain when you see them again; they have got so fat, the change of air has done them good; I believe they are very good at school; the two boys were in good health when they came, but the girl's head and face had the ringworms very bad, and I have had great trouble with it; it is nearly all gone now * * * They won't eat vegetables, and having a fine garden we have always plenty. Hoping that I shall give you every satisfaction in regard to the children under my charge.—I remain, yours truly, M.E.F.

In answer to your inquiries how the children are progressing and behaving. With regard to D.P., I thought I should have had to have sent him back for his dishonesty; it was something fearful, but when he told me his mother taught him I thought it a duty to give him another trial; he has promised to do better; poor thing, I pitied him when I heard him tell his tale of his parents, but he seems to look to us for everything; on the whole, they are all better than when they came; I give them Scripture lessons, and speak much to them of their future; I hope that God will enable me to discharge my duties faithfully to them; I consider the boarding-out system good if the poor children get proper parents; each of the boys has written you a note; you must not take that for their best; they were quite nervous when they wrote it, and thought they were going away; I cannot say much more. H.A. is not such a thief, but very cunning * * * Wants all his own way, and is inclined to be lazy; W.E. seems a very quiet boy * * * Mary is getting a nice strong child, very wilful and lively; there was none of them what I call in good health; when they came I had a deal of physicing and a deal of trouble with them, but they are all in good health at present and quite at home.—M.A.B.

I reply to yours of the 16th instant. As regards the children placed in our charge, I am happy to say their behaviour is very good. As you are aware, three of them came to us on the 16th of August, 1883, one on the 9th February, 1884, and two on the 20th of December, 1884.

1. A.H. was, when she came to us, suffering from a spinal and kidney complaint, and was quite helpless; she is now wonderfully improved in bodily health, but her intellect is very weak, and she has no capacity to learn anything; in manners and habits she has improved more than we hoped, and is happy and content; she requires great care and attention, and in her case I believe the boarding-out system has been the saving of her life.

2. The two little boys, E.B. and D.B., were both suffering from scalp disease and scrofula, and other physical infirmities; they are both much improved in health, in manners, and habits. When E.B. first came he was cunning, untruthful, and vicious; now he is a very good boy, obedient, kind, little fellow. D.B. was a quiet, dull, unobtrusive child; now he is as jolly as any of the others. G.B. quite a baby when he came to us; he has grown very much, and is very healthy—a daring, passionate, little fellow, but very good and obedient for all that, and "happy as the day is long."

All our little ones, with the exception of A. H., are making good progress at school and in every other respect, and ours are a happy little family.—S.P.

When I received A.W., March 29th, she was not in good state of health * * * I have given her some medicine and attended to her mouth; she is much better, I am glad to say; she is also improving in manners, which were not good; she is not nearly such a nice child as B.C.; I should not mind if I had six like her; she was in good health when she came, and is now in splendid condition; she is a good child in school, and will, I think, get on well; this cold climate seems to agree with both the children * * * E.I.

In reply to circular received yesterday from you inquiring about the children I have in my charge, I have much pleasure in stating that they are in excellent health, and I am well satisfied with their conduct; as to their habits, when I received them they were not of the cleanest; they have very much improved in that respect too; I found them stubborn and self-willed, but they have become nice amiable little children; one seemed to have been accustomed to hear bad language, and did not mind using it himself, but I never hear a wrong expression now. I think most decidedly the boarding-out system has been beneficial to them; (one who came quite delicate has grown quite strong and hearty; they seem to grow more like children in their parents' homes, besides making friends for themselves, which they could not possibly do in an institution.—E.M.O'S.

In

In reply to yours of the 16th, I beg to state that three of the children are doing remarkably well, the other one (W.P.) being a child of very dirty habits. I thought at first it was his state of health, but as he has greatly improved in health since he has been with me; I am afraid he is naturally a dirty child, and gives a great deal of unpleasant trouble. The children are all in good health, and have grown taller and stronger, and as regards their general behaviour they have improved in every way; they are more useful, obedient, truthful, and better behaved than when they first came, and all seem quite happy and comfortable. I have nothing to say against any of them, except W.P. They are getting on pretty well at school; the two little girls can sew very neatly, and the boys are progressing with their reading and writing * * * L.C.

The two children are progressing fairly in general education. Grace is ahead of Sydney; his deafness and impediment of speech are against him; they are kind and affectionate in behaviour. Grace was not strong when she came here; her health has improved greatly; in habits nothing objectionable. She is a good little girl * * * M.A.S.

I really think the children are doing well, and have quite lost a certain reserve they had at first, and made them distant and reserved with other children, and so frightened in manner. The habits of the K.'s at first were not nice; they appeared to have been neglected and not taught nice ways; the youngest was not in good health; they are very well now, but I do not think it can be a strong family, they require great care; I like them, and I think will do well here. The two H.'s are behaving very well, and are in excellent health; they appear to me to improve daily; until coming under your Department I should fancy they had seen a great many bad ways of older people; in a little while they will do well.—M.A.F.

In reply to your letter of the 16th instant concerning the child boarded-out with me, then E.B. was a healthy and cleanly behaved child; she had a touch of the forwardness habitual to the lower class of children in Sydney, but it was soon checked; she is now a very well-mannered little girl; she has her few home duties to attend to; she has her dolls and playthings to play with in the evenings, and as she is fond of music and has a grand little voice, singing to my playing is another reward for good behaviour. Concerning my adopted child, she was so young when I got her that she naturally fell into my ways and habits, and nobody would make her believe that I am not her real mother, or Mr. B. her father.—J.C.R.

In reply to yours, I have the honor to acquaint you that the children are progressing favourably; they are in good health, and getting on fairly at school. The girl, C.H., was very uncouth and bold when she first came, and still gives me much trouble, but I trust that she will improve. The youngest child, E.H., is very well behaved, and I may say that I am much pleased with her. The children were in good health when I received them, and I think have improved in manners since they came.—S.C.

My foster-children are doing very well. One, J.N., had some nasty sores on him when he came, but with care they are going away; the other had a bad habit of wetting the bed, but he is breaking off it now. Their manners were very good when they came, and are still the same.—W.T.

Dear Sir,—You wish to know how my foster-children are progressing. I am proud to say I can give you a very good account of them so far. I will begin with the * * * I received them on 25th September, 1832; when I received them they were miserable and dirty; I don't think their heads had been cleaned for three months at least; the children said so themselves, and I believe they speak truth; and that for the little girl, you yourself can form some idea of the state she was in; she was nearly blind, besides her face, eyes, and hands were one mass of sores, as J.S. can testify as to the fact; and now she is a fine strong, healthy girl, with fair and beautiful eyes as you ever saw, and I treated them myself and cured them: they all had sandy blight the first year I had them; they have never had it since I cured that. They had measles, and I cured that. They have not cost the State one penny since I have had them, and now the three that are with me are fine robust healthy children, and of course you know how the fourth is. Now, for G.W., he was the greatest object of misery I ever beheld in my life * * * Now he is getting a fine boy.—Z.A.

In reply to your letter I may say when I received my four foster-children, F.P. was a very untruthful boy, and he was very hard to manage, he was very dirty in his habits, always wetting the bed and sometimes dirtying it. I am very happy to let you know he is now truthful and seldom wets the bed; his behaviour is very good; in fact, he is a good boy. M.L. was a very stubborn, sulky, child, and greatly petted; very hard to keep under. She is now a good child, minding all I tell her, and trying to be a good girl. P.L. was a very dirty child, always dirtying the bed, and I had a great deal of trouble in breaking her off it. She was a very passionate, hasty child, often dancing on the floor with passion. I am very happy to let you know she is now a clean child * * * and is a good, kind, little child * * * R.L. was very young when I got him; could not expect much from the little fellow, and he was dirty, too, in his habits, dirtying the bed. He is now a clean little fellow, and a dear loving little child; indeed, all my four children are good dear children, and my husband and myself are greatly attached to them.—S.C.

In answer to your letter of the 16th of April, I beg to say that the little boys I have give great satisfaction. With respect to their health, it is good, but Le B., though apparently healthy is not strong, I think on account of his chest. He never complains of any pain, but his breathing seems affected by it if he hurries much. I consider the boarding-out system to be a great blessing for these poor little ones, and more especially to the last boy we had * * * for, according to his own account of the life he was leading in Sydney, I believe it has saved him from utter ruin. I am happy to say he is now a very honest, truthful, and obedient child, which, I am convinced, he would not have been had he remained with his parents. He was very backward in his education, but notice that he is improving. B. is quite happy and contented, very willing and anxious to please, but still, in his thoughtful moments, you can see that he has a hankering for the old life. He is well occupied with school and his other duties, so that time and absence from it will quite overcome that.—S.W.B.

E.C.—This child was in fair health on coming to me, but had weak eyes; they got worse; therefore took her to Dr. Bassett, who gave her a tonic and lotion, as they were bad through a weakness of the glands; she is now much better. In disposition she is gentle, and learns quickly.

F.H.—His general health was good on coming to me, with the exception of a breaking out on his face, which soon got better. He is in the best of health now; is a good-tempered, gentle child but indolent; not quick at learning.

J.P. is of a weakly constitution, suffers from indigestion, has therefore to be watched. Was sick soon after coming here; could not keep anything on his stomach; Dr. B. gave him medicine; he is now better and in good health. Is a child of a quick lively disposition, and mischievous; requires more care than the others. Had a bad habit of telling lies and using an improper word on first coming to me, but has been broken of it. Improved in disposition; learns quickly.

All the children seem happy and contented.—A.E.D.

In reply to your printed circular of 16th April last, I have the honor to inform you that when my foster-children were first placed under my charge they were suffering from ophthalmia, and were rather rough in their habits, but there has been a marked improvement in their habits, and their health is very good.—E.G.

In answer to yours, the children are progressing favourably, and as far as behaviour goes I am perfectly satisfied; habits clean, and, as far as health goes, the little girl A.F. had very bad eyes and the scarlet fever when I received her. R.H., three days after arriving at Colo, was attacked with chicken-pox, and the house has not been free from sickness ever since until now; the children are all quite well. I have been taken very ill myself, and am now under the doctor's hands.—M.A.P.

It seems a long time since I last wrote to you about Willie; he seems to have come to the conclusion that running away and camping out is not quite so comfortable as being here; I am so glad to think that he is cured of that failing. In a good many ways he is a much better child, and is a great help to me; he does not seem to me to have grown very much since he came here, but is much stouter. He is writing a letter to you, which he will send in a few days; he always seems to think that he ought to tell you all his faults. He got into the habit of going out if we happened to be spending the evening away from home and not returning till quite late. I warned him that he should be punished if he did so again.—M.S.

The children in my charge are behaving fairly. The principal faults I notice are want of truthfulness and a love of breaking the eighth commandment. Their habits when I first received them were dirty in the extreme, and they seemed to lack intelligence, when a person spoke to them they did not seem to understand, but would stare stupidly till the question was repeated. I am happy to say they are better now, and in manner will compare favourably with other children. The two elder ones do not get on with their lessons as well as I could wish, but the little ones are above the average. * * * O.P.

In

In reply to your note of the 16th instant, I have to inform you that the children are quite well and happy; the girls E.S. and C.S. have been ill with chicken-pox, but are quite recovered. They are all at school and are very good; the boy J.H. has improved very much in habits and manners. S. and he are going to the Marist Brothers' school close by. E.S. and the little boy J.B. go to the Sisters. I did not send J.B. until the day before yesterday, as I considered him too young; he is a mere baby; he cannot speak plainly yet, but as you wrote asking why he was not at school, I sent him with the girl to the Sisters' School; he is a fine, merry little fellow, and seems quite at home.—C.A.O'B.

Sir,—I am very well satisfied with the two boys, A. and A.W.; having had them now over two years, I should be sorry to part with them. P.S.—The boys have been very well in health the last twelve months; they are getting on very well with their schooling, particularly the younger, who has already received several reward books from the school.—G.W.T.

As regards the health of the children under my care, A.W. and C.F. are strong. T.S. and E.G. are delicate, though better than they were when I first had them; as to habits, all were dirty, and although somewhat improved they are not yet what I should wish. Manners they had none, but I think I may say all but A. have improved in this respect, and upon her we can make no impression in any way; she is without exception the most tiresome child I ever met in my life; untruthful and dishonest, if not constantly watched, and has hardly one redeeming trait in her character.—S.H.

In reply to yours asking information regarding my foster-children, I may say that their progress has been satisfactory in every particular, both with regard to their education, working capabilities, and health. Their behaviour, too, is good. With regard to the habits of the children, when they first arrived I saw nothing worthy of notice, except their excessive eating. But you will understand that their life in every respect was far different in the country to what it was in the Asylum. In their manners I should say they were decidedly forward, which perhaps may be accounted for by the fact that they were at first too much indulged. Now, however, they are all well behaved, not one of them having a particular fault worth mentioning. Their health has been good, with the exception of eruptions on the skin soon after they came, which was probably owing to change of diet. During last Spring they were troubled with ringworms; since, however, they have greatly improved, and, with the exception of the youngest, appear to be quite free from eruptions of any kind. * * *—E.C.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF THE INSANE.

(REPORT FOR 1884.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 42 Vic. No. 7, sec. 73.

The Inspector-General of the Insane to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Lunacy Department, Inspector-General's Office, Callan Park, Balmain, 4 April, 1885.

I do myself the honor to submit, for your information, in accordance with the 73rd section of the Lunacy Act of 1878, a Report on the state and condition of the Hospitals and other Institutions for the Insane for the year ending December 31st, 1884.

I have, &amp;c.,

F. NORTON MANNING,
Inspector-General.

On the 31st of December, 1884, the number of registered insane persons in the Colony was 2,524, and the following return shows their distribution:—

	Number on Register.
	Male.	Female.	Total.
Hospital for the Insane, Gladesville ... ..	498	348	846
Do Parramatta (Free) ... ..	607	350	957
Do do (Criminal) ... ..	50	7	57
Do Callan Park ... ..	261	12	273
Do Newcastle ... ..	129	112	241
Licensed House for the Insane, Cook's River ... ..	7	143	150
	1,552	972	2,524

Of the total number 37 were absent from the Institutions on leave of absence at the close of the year, viz., 24 from Gladesville, 8 from Parramatta (Free), 1 from Callan Park, 1 from Newcastle, and 3 from Cook's River. There was an increase of 45 patients at Gladesville, 13 at Parramatta (Free), 1 at Parramatta (Criminal), 123 at Callan Park, and 4 at Cook's River, and a decrease of 5 at Newcastle and 60 at Cooma—the latter establishment having been closed during the year, and the patients transferred to Callan Park. The number of registered insane persons on December 31st, 1883, was 2,403, and the increase in numbers during the twelve months was therefore 121—78 males and 43 females. This increase is larger than during any former year.

The increase during the last ten years was as follows:—

1875 ... ..	109	1880 ... ..	88
1876 ... ..	43	1881 ... ..	119
1877 ... ..	89	1882 ... ..	89
1878 ... ..	87	1883 ... ..	96
1879 ... ..	95	1884 ... ..	121

Total ... .. 423

Total ... .. 513

The

The large increase during the year 1884 appears to be due first to the increase in the number of admissions which were 493, as against 476 during the preceding year, and to some falling off in the percentage of recoveries. The increase in the population of the Colony during the year 1884, as shown by the returns from the Registrar-General's Office, having been 51,819, there has been no increase either in the proportion of insane to the general population, which was 1 in 364 at the close of the year, or in the proportion of admissions to the general population, which was 1 in 1,868 for the year.

The following tables show the number of admissions, discharges, and deaths, the proportion of recoveries, the rate of mortality, the causes of insanity in those admitted, the form of mental disease in those admitted, those who recovered and those who died, the causes of death, the length of residence in those who recovered and those who died, as well as the ages, condition as to marriage, religious profession, and native countries of those admitted, and of all under care in the Institutions for the Insane during the year 1884:—

Admissions.

The admissions during the year were 493, being 17 more than during the year 1883, and larger in number than in any preceding year except 1881, when the number was 494. The number admitted for the first time was 440, and 53 had at some former time been under treatment.

Among the patients admitted there was an unusually large proportion of idiot and imbecile children, and of aged and demented men and women, besides a considerable number of weak-minded and "cranky" people. All these classes appear to have been driven into the Hospitals from the same cause, the pastoral and commercial depression from which the Colony has for a considerable period suffered. In more prosperous times people are able and willing to keep their imbecile and demented relatives at home, and when work is plentiful a number of weak-minded and "odd" people can get employment which is denied them when persons with better qualifications can be found.

The papers on which all patients were admitted passed through my hands, and I found it necessary to object to the medical certificates as informal or insufficient in nine cases. In all these the certificates were amended and subsequently approved by the Colonial Secretary, under the 13th section of the Lunacy Act, or new certificates were obtained.

I am glad to be able to report that the arrangements by which patients are admitted to hospitals under the provisions of the Lunacy Act passed in 1879 have worked satisfactorily. These provisions permit of the patient being sent to hospital without unnecessary delay, and yet with due safeguard against improper admission and detention.

Though

Though I have not unfrequently had to object to the form in which the certificates are given, or to the incomplete and unsatisfactory evidence of insanity contained in them, and though in some exceptional instances I have seen reason to doubt the wisdom of the course taken, I have in no case seen reason to believe that the certificates have been given except after due examination, and on proof of the existence of mental symptoms justifying temporary confinement and medical treatment. Any addition to the present formalities as to admission to hospitals, by postponing early treatment, would tend to a disregard of the real interest and well-being of persons suffering from mental disease, and be likely to result in an increase of suicides and offences against the law.

On this point I am in thorough accord with Dr. Rayner, the Medical Superintendent of Hanwell, who, in his Presidential Address to the Medico-Psychological Association for the year 1884, says with regard to formalities and delays:—"I have the opinion of two Medical Coroners of large Metropolitan districts, that suicides have directly and indirectly resulted from them, and I believe that if the attention of coroners throughout the country could be directed to these matters, ample testimony of a similar character would soon be accumulated. Instances of homicide and other criminal acts resulting from the same cause might, I believe be adduced; of injury to bodily health and impairment of prospect of recovery, many members of the association could largely testify."

Discharge of the Recovered.

182 persons were discharged as recovered during the year, giving a percentage of 36.91 on the admissions during the same period.
