That under section 13 of the Letters Patent, in the absence of His Excellency, Message signed by the Lieutenant-Governor by deputation from the Governor was in order, 154.
That amendment was in order to substitute another name in a motion to appoint a member to the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Public Works, and against a demand for a ballot, 181.
That special reference to provision in the Crown Lands Bill, in reference to the repeal of existing legislation, was not necessary in the Title, 208.
That clause 9 of the Crown Rents Bill which interfered with actions pending or a judgment obtained should be mentioned in the Order of Leave, and that therefore the Bill was improperly before the House, 208.
That since the adoption of the Additional Standing Orders, altering the character of the Motions for Adjournment, the practice of the House of Commons in respect to two motions of a similar character being moved consecutively, did not apply to these questions, 247.
That Papers should not be laid upon the Table of the House which reflected upon the conduct of a Member of, or referred to a debate in, the House, 265.
That Bills coming from the Council could not be ruled out of order in this House on the ground of informality in its initiation there, 265.

That provision in Marrickville to Burwood Road Railway Bill (No. 2) was covered by the order of leave, 511.
That in Supply, during the discussion of a Minister's salary, reference could be made to subsequent items, as the Committee had a right to criticise the Minister's policy when voting his salary, 517.
That Honorable Members should sit in the Chamber in a manner respectful to other Honorable Members and to the occupant of the Chair, and so that the passages would be left clear between the seats, but that it was a matter to be left to the good taste of Honorable Members, 517.
That certain provisions in the Eight-hour Bill were beyond the order of leave, and also referred to rules in reference to preparation and drawing of Bills, 521.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

AUSTRALIAN BANKING COMPANY OF SYDNEY BILL.

THURSDAY, 2 OCTOBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. NOBBS,		MR. COOKE,
MR. DOWEL,		MR. STOKES,
MR. STEVENSON.

W. S. DOWEL, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Sydney John Bull called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are solicitor to the Australian Banking Company of Sydney? I am.
2. You produce a copy of the memorandum and articles of association of the Bank, bearing date 29th August, 1890? I do.
3. What is the capital of the Bank? £250,000.
4. Is it all paid up? No; it is not fully paid up. The paid-up capital is about £100,625, and the subscribed capital £150,400.
5. What are the total available assets? About £300,000.
6. That is available for the purposes of the Bank? Yes, the property of the Bank.
7. Can you say of your own knowledge that there is a desire on the part of the shareholders to have the Bank incorporated? I can, so far as all the shareholders resident in Australia are concerned.
8. Clause 7 of the Bill gives power to the Bank to issue notes? Yes.
9. To what amount? Nearly to the amount of the paid-up capital. Any amount in excess of the capital they must have in coin or bullion.
10. Is clause 9 of the Bill founded upon the provisions of the Act incorporating the City Bank? Yes.
11. Have other Australian Banks been incorporated under provisions similar to these? Yes. The provisions of the Bill are taken chiefly from the Act incorporating the City Bank, and that incorporating the Mercantile Bank. They are the latest incorporated Banks.
12. Do you desire to give any other evidence? Well, I might state that the Bank has been formed for some time past, and for the purposes of the public, I consider, is far safer than any similar institution commencing business, because we have actual securities and other things which other new Banks commencing business would not necessarily have. The Bank has been in existence for about four years, so that we have accumulated securities and other assets.
13. How many shareholders have you? About 500. I might say that about forty-eight actually signed the memorandum of association.
14. Who are the directors? Mr. Francis Abigail, Mr. Samuel George Davison, Mr. William Bull, senr., Mr. Thomas Henry Hassall, and Mr. Robert Cunningham.
15. How long has the Company been established? About four years. I may say that it was first a limited Company, but it has been reconstructed, and has been made a non-limited Company.

Mr.
S. J. Bull.
2 Oct., 1890

Mr.
S. J. Bull,
Oct. 1890.

16. When was it reconstructed? On the 29th August last, in accordance with the memorandum of association. I may say that I have gone through the Bill carefully, and the Committee if they go through it will find that we are asking for nothing beyond that which any similar institution being formed at the present time would be entitled to ask.
17. Is the Bill in any way different from Bills which have been obtained by any other Banks in the Colony? No. No more concessions are asked for than those asked for in the case of similar institutions.
18. Is your Bill practically a consolidation of other Banking Corporation Acts? It is to a great extent. I think I went through almost every Bank Act.
19. Does the Bill contain any new clauses? No new beneficial clauses.
20. Mr. Nobbs.] You say you are now a non-limited Company? Yes.
21. Are you registered as such? Yes.
22. And you hold a certificate? Yes.
23. Mr. Cooke.] You say the shareholders are anxious to have the Bank incorporated? Yes. I think I never attended a more unanimous meeting than that at which it was resolved upon.
24. Have you the records of that meeting? I did not bring them with me, but they could be produced. The manager attended the meeting, and he, probably, would be able to tell you all you require to know.
25. Chairman.] I suppose you attended the meeting? Yes.
26. Was it a largely attended meeting? Yes.
27. Was there a unanimously expressed desire to have the Bank incorporated? Yes; there was not one dissentient voice. There were represented with proxies and personal attendants over 230 shareholders.
28. Mr. Cooke.] Has there been at any time any opposition to the movement? I believe at the first meeting there was, but the objections were explained away, and the shareholders who objected have since joined the others.
29. So that now the shareholders are unanimous on the question? Perfectly unanimous.
30. Mr. Stokes.] You say you have a proprietary of 500 shareholders? Yes.
31. But you say that at the meeting only 230 were represented? That is a rough estimate.
32. Although a large number of the shareholders were absent from the meeting you say that the shareholders are unanimous? I believe they are—all those present certainly were.
33. Have you evidence in support of your assertion? Well, there are only the minutes of the meeting and the proxies, which I daresay could be produced by the manager.

TUESDAY, 7 OCTOBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. LEES,
MR. NOBBS,

MR. STOKES.

MR. COOKE,
MR. KIDD,

W. S. DOWEL, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Roderick M'Namara called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr.
R. M'Namara,
7 Oct., 1890.

34. Chairman.] You are manager of the Australian Banking Company of Sydney? Yes.
35. How long have you been manager? About two and a half years.
36. Do you know whether it is the desire of the shareholders that the Company should be incorporated by Act of Parliament? I do; it is.
37. Were you present at any meeting of shareholders specially called to consider the matter? Yes; a meeting was called specially to consider the question of incorporation on the 12th August, 1890.
38. Was any resolution passed at that meeting in reference to the matter? Yes, the following resolution:—"That a new Company be formed from the shareholders of this Company, to be called 'The Australian Banking Company of Sydney,' for the purpose of taking over the whole business of the Company, to be a non-limited Company."
39. Was that meeting composed of a large number of shareholders? Yes; they represented, in person and proxy, money to the extent of £72,500. There were 8,500 shares represented in person, and 175 by proxy—representing 6,000 shares at £5 each.
40. There was represented £72,500 out of a total of £100,300 paid up? Yes.
41. Was the resolution you have read carried unanimously? Yes.
42. Was any further meeting held in reference to this particular matter? Yes; the meeting was held on the 29th August, 1890; 8,700 shares were represented in person, and 10,000 by proxy. The money represented amounted to £93,500.
43. Were the minutes of the previous meeting, having special reference to the resolution you have read, confirmed? Yes.
44. Mr. Cooke.] At the meeting of 29th August £93,000 out of a total of £100,300 paid up was represented? Yes.
45. Do you know of any previous or subsequent objection to incorporation on the part of the shareholders? No; and at the present time proxies are coming in from England, America, and from all parts of the Australian Colonies.
46. Did they all approve of the step taken? Yes.
47. I suppose that at the meeting of the 29th August the minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed unanimously? Yes.
48. The Company is registered? Yes.
49. You hold the certificate of registration? Yes.
50. What is the date? 1st September, 1890.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

AUSTRALIAN BANKING COMPANY OF SYDNEY BILL.

TUESDAY, 18 NOVEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. GOULD,
MR. WYMAN BROWN,

MR. LEE.

MR. BURNS,
MR. MOLESWORTH,

J. F. BURNS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bull appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

Roderick M'Namara called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] Are you the manager of the company which has applied for this Act of Incorporation? Yes.
2. How long have you held that position? A little over two years and three months.
3. At about what time did the present shareholders agree to take up this business and form a company? They determined to form the new company, "The Australian Banking Company of Sydney," on the 29th August, 1890.
4. You propose to virtually form a new company, and you apply for this Act of Incorporation? Yes.
5. Can you tell me how many shareholders you have at present? Not quite, but very nearly, 500.
6. Most of whom reside in the Colony? Yes.
7. The nominal capital of your bank is £500,000? No, it is £250,000. It was £500,000; but, by a resolution of the shareholders, it was reduced to £250,000.
8. How much of that has been subscribed? The amount subscribed is over £150,000.
9. And what amount is actually paid up? About £100,700.
10. What is about the amount of the fixed deposits? The amount at the present time will be very nearly £60,000.
11. Have you held the office of general manager from the commencement of this institution as an institution having a large body of shareholders and being a bank? I have.
12. How long is that? About two years and three months.
13. I have in my hands a balance sheet to the end of June, 1890, and it shows overdrafts to the extent of £139,000? Yes.
14. The bills discounted, in round numbers, amount to £37,000, and there is a statement also of the profit and loss for the half year? Yes.
15. There is no statement here, is there, in this account of bad and doubtful debts? Yes; there is provision made for them in the shape of a contingency account.
16. How much? £500.
17. Taken out of the profits of the half year? Yes; taken out of the net profits for the half year.
18. It is taken from the net profits? Yes; and placed to a contingent account, to meet bad and doubtful debts.

Mr. R.
M'Namara.
18 Nov., 1890.

Mr. R.
18 Nov., 1890.

19. Do you think that that would be sufficient to meet your risks on your discounts and overdrafts? Yes; we take an amount of net profit every half year. We have taken, for the last three years, amounts at the rate of £1,000 a year to make provision for bad and doubtful debts.
20. To the end of June, I see that the amount to the credit of the reserve fund is £3,000? Yes; we take an amount for the reserve fund every year.
21. Are the overdrafts secured in the ordinary way? Yes; by property and cash credit balances. Messrs. Richardson and Wrench were our principal valuers.
22. Do you find tradesmen's bills met with tolerable regularity? Yes.
23. Have you had previous experience in banking? Yes; eighteen years experience.
24. What banks were you in? The Bank of Victoria and Queensland National Bank.
25. Have you found it necessary to increase your capital in consequence of the expansion of your business? Yes.
26. I presume that you could do a larger business if you had a larger capital? I have not the slightest doubt about it.
27. The demands for accommodation exceed your resources? Yes.
28. If you get the powers proposed to be given by the Bill, are you of opinion that you can raise a sum corresponding with the requirements of your business? Yes.
29. Has it occurred to you that at the present time you are doing rather a large business, having regard to the amount of your capital? Yes; we are doing a very large business.
30. And you could extend it if you had this accommodation? Yes.
31. Is it proposed to issue new shares? What we intend to do is to call up almost immediately the unpaid capital of over £50,000.
32. How many shares will that represent? It is distributed amongst a great number of shareholders, and some are paid up to £2 10s.
33. Are they not all paid up on even lines? No; they were issued at different times.
34. But have not the shareholders paid an equal amount of those shares? No; some took up shares later than others. We had three issues, and they paid by monthly instalments. One issue we have only called up to the amount of £2 10s. On two other issues, we are making calls at present. We purpose to call up that £50,000, and make a paid-up capital of £150,000. Then by-and-bye that £100,000 that you see there extra, we purpose placing on the market; also, to have it subscribed and paid up within a certain period.
35. Did you concur with the Board when they paid 10 per cent. on the business you are doing? Certainly.
36. But does it not appear to you a large dividend to give on the business you are transacting? No; we had a very good amount, and we brought forward to the next half year over £3,000.
37. But as a new bank, building up your position, is it wise for you to pay as much as 10 per cent.? Perhaps it is not; it might be better to make the reserves a little larger, and the dividends a little less.
38. What rate do you give on deposits? Rates from 5 up to 7 per cent.—that is, according to the term. We have deposits for six and twelve months, and some for three years.
39. Do you take much money at as high as 7 per cent? I daresay about half; perhaps £30,000 at 7 per cent.
40. What are your rates of discount? Our present rates are according to the currency of the bills. We charge from 9 to about 12½ per cent. For six and twelve months bills, we charge from 10 to 12½ per cent. For short-dated bills, we charge the ordinary rates.
41. Are these not much in excess of the ordinary rates? Very few incorporated banks charge much less than 10 per cent. They all pretty well charge 10 per cent. on overdrafts.
42. For discounting bills? For short-dated bills they charge from 8 to 10 per cent., but they never discount a bill over four months.
43. If this Bill should be passed by Parliament, you will at once take steps to increase your capital by calling up the uncalled-up capital on your present shares, and also by the issue of new shares? Yes. We shall have that extra £50,000. Before there can be any material increase in the actual capital, the consent of the Governor-in-Council must be obtained. There can be no new shares issued without his consent.
44. Will you hand in a copy of your last balance-sheet presented to the shareholders? I will. (See Appendix A).
45. Do you desire to add anything further to your evidence with regard to the bank? Yes. I may state that on the 29th June, 1886, the Australian Loan, Discount, and Financial Company, with a Provisional Directorate, consisting of Messrs. John Kidd, M.P., J. F. Martin, J. H. Nathan, P. J. Farrell, G. B. Thomas, A. Mathey, John Vann, H. P. Palser, F. Abigail, M.P., G. H. Monteith, C. H. Roberts, John Scott, C. S. Gillett, and A. Murray, purchased the business of the Australian Financial Company. Mr. Abigail is the only gentleman out of the above number now on the Board of Directors. On the 28th July, 1887, the Australian Banking Company (Limited) was formed, with the Directorate of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. F. Abigail, M.P., John Scott, A. Mathey, John Vann, J. H. Nathan, J. F. Martin, and John Hurley, M.P. The Company then had 205 shareholders. In 1890—On 29th August, 1890, the Australian Banking Company of Sydney was formed, with a Directorate of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. F. Abigail, M.P., S. G. Davison, W. Bull, R. Cuninghame, and T. H. Hassall, M.P. The Company then had about 500 shareholders. The bank's affairs were specially audited by Messrs. Starkey and Taylor on the 20th July, 1887; by Messrs. Davenport and Miles on the 31st December, 1887; and Messrs. Ford and Troup on 22nd February, 1888. These firms are professional accountants. Messrs. Kent and Buck have audited the affairs of the bank every half year since its formation. They were elected by the shareholders. Those special audits were instituted at my own and Mr. Abigail's instigation.
46. Those auditors who have examined the accounts have had access to the papers, and I presume that you assisted them in having the accounts properly audited, and compared with vouchers and securities? Yes. I have brought with me the quarterly returns, which are sent in to the Colonial Treasurer; and I hand in a weekly statement for September 22nd, and another for September 29th, 1890. (See Appendix B).
47. Mr. Molesworth.] In drawing up this balance-sheet, have you specially noted that you put down your overdrafts and dividends, together with bills discounted, after allowing for interests on fixed deposits, at £175,000? Yes.

48. Do you notice that that is 75 per cent. over the paid-up capital of the company? It is, if you look at it in that light; but I do not.
49. You have noticed the fact that the advances for overdrafts and the discounting of bills exceed the actual paid-up capital by 75 per cent.? Yes.
50. And you do not think that it is too great an advance? No.
51. Do you notice, further, that that amount exceeds the amount of the capital and of the fixed deposits combined? Yes.
52. Have you specially noted that the only amount of cash in hand is shown by the last balance-sheet to be only £2,080? Yes; but we have an arrangement with our bank to draw at any time.
53. But still, as a matter of fact, the only cash available at the present time is only £2,080? That is the amount of cash on hand, but not the amount available on that particular balance day.
54. Apart from that, you have no other cash? Yes; we have an arrangement for the supply of further cash.
55. I do not see it shown on the balance-sheet? It is an arrangement with a bank.
56. That is, you could get an overdraft? Yes.
57. You avail yourselves of the assistance of another bank for some of your financing? In a measure.
58. You stated, in answer to a question from the Chairman, that the sums owing upon various shares differed according to the period at which those shares were taken out? Yes.
59. Would you have any objection to let the Committee have a list of the number of shares unpaid-up, and the amounts payable on them respectively—a tabulated list? Yes; but it would entail an awful lot of work.
60. Are there any calls due that are not paid by the shareholders? Very few.
61. To what extent do you think? I do not suppose they would amount to £500.
62. Then, what is the meaning of this liability which you have got in the account in reference to dividends—I refer to the dividend suspense account? There are outstanding dividends which have not been claimed.
63. How do you account for that large sum not being claimed? Lots of people leave their money at interest. We give them interest on the dividends left in that way.
64. Instead of being credited to individuals, the money is left in the dividend suspense account? Yes.
65. Is it not customary in your bank for the auditor to be a shareholder? No.
66. Are you aware that none of these auditors are down in your share list? I am quite aware of that; they are professional accountants.
67. What is the general character of your assets? Landed property, cash credit balances, and securities by undoubted individuals.
68. Can you say what is the proportion of landed property in your general assets? I should say that landed property would be very nearly all; it must be over two-thirds of the assets.
69. Mr. Gould.] Would the balance of them be purely cash credits;—would there be bills of sale? Yes, and cash credit bonds signed by responsible parties.
70. Would you have cash credit bonds for bills of sale? Yes; in all cases.
71. Mr. Bull.] Mr. Gould asked whether there are securities in the shape of bills of sale on furniture? No; there are not.
72. As a matter of fact, the bank does not take bills of sales? No; I have never taken a bill of sale since I took charge.
73. Mr. Gould.] On what other class of securities do you advance besides landed property and cash credit bonds? No other security.
74. Is there anything as collateral security? Yes; lots of different things are placed with me as collateral security.
75. What would they be? Shares in banks, &c.
76. The securities that you would have would be landed property and cash credit bonds and shares in other institutions? Yes.
77. That would comprise all the securities? Yes.
78. Mr. Molesworth.] You take no security upon household effects? No.
79. It has been elicited in evidence that your nominal capital is £250,000? Yes.
80. The amounts subscribed for is £150,000? Yes.
81. The amount actually paid up is £100,000? A little over.
82. Do you think £100,000 sufficient to enable you to carry on this large business? We wish to increase it—that is the object of the Bill.
83. If the bill is granted, how will that lead to the obtaining of more capital? We shall call up that £50,000 to make up the £200,000; then place in the market £50,000 extra, making £250,000. I have no doubt that the capital will be subscribed readily. When that is paid up, if we wish to increase our business, we shall have to apply to the Governor-in-Council for permission to issue fresh shares.
84. Are you not in a position at the present time to call up the amount owing on the shares? Yes.
85. Is it not due? It is available, and if we wished to ask them to pay I daresay the money could be had; but we do not wish to press them. We let them pay by the usual monthly calls.
86. Do you think your directors would have any objection to make their capital actual instead of nominal? I think not.
87. Do not you think that the mere fact of a banking institution having its capital nominal when the amount is so small as £250,000 is detrimental to it? That is the reason why we decreased it from £500,000 to £250,000. That was done by a special resolution of the shareholders to enable us to take the steps that we are taking now.
88. The public think that where the capital of a banking institution amounts to so small a sum as £250,000, the amount should be actual? We purpose making it actual immediately.
89. Are you aware that the cash in hand is not equal to the reserve fund? Yes; we could have had £10,000 in hand if we had wished, but we do not like to keep more than is necessary for the actual requirements of the day.
90. Mr. Bull.] What is the meaning of cash in hand? It means to carry on business with.
91. It means the amount in hand on the day you balance up, not the arrangement with the bank? Exactly.
92. At what time in the day would the amount of that cash in hand be arrived at? At three o'clock, when we had done our day's business.

- Mr. R. M'Namara.
18 Nov., 1890.
93. Mr. Molesworth.] Then, although this is a banking company, you really transact some of your financial business with another bank? The Australian Joint Stock Bank are our bankers.
94. Mr. Lee.] Are you trading at present as the "Australian Banking Company of Sydney," or as a "Limited Company"? As the Australian Banking Company of Sydney.
95. And your object in asking Parliament to pass this Bill is to obtain power to increase your capital, and become a bank of issue? Yes.
96. Do you produce the articles of association which you ask to have confirmed under the third clause of the Bill? Yes.
97. Has the preparation of the Bill been left entirely to the solicitor to the bank? Entirely.
98. You are not in a position to point out any particular clauses in any other Bill that would bear upon it? No, with the exception of the Acts of the City and Mercantile Banks. This Bill is almost the same as those Acts.
99. Do you know the amount of nominal capital asked for by the City Bank when it was seeking incorporation? I do not recollect. The sixth section of the City Bank Act says, "the business shall not be commenced until the whole original capital is subscribed for and a moiety paid up, and the capital has to be subscribed for within the space of six calendar months from the time when the Act came into force."
100. Is there a similar provision to that in this Bill? I think so.
101. Chairman.] Mr. Molesworth asked a question as to the bank not having all the capital subscribed;—as an old banker, I presume it is within your knowledge that nearly all banks call up their capital from time to time, as they find that they require the money in their business? Yes.
102. And it would not be profitable to call up more capital than is wanted? No; they could not find any use for it.
103. Are you aware that most of the banks of the Colony have not called up the whole of their capital? Yes.
104. From time to time they make a call according to their requirements in business? Yes.
105. With respect to your having an arrangement with the Joint Stock Bank, is it not a common occurrence for a new bank to have an arrangement with a strong bank to leave their securities with them, and get advances as they want them? Yes; in every case.
106. There is nothing unusual in your having an account with the Joint Stock Bank, which is a strong bank? There is nothing unusual in it. The Oriental Bank is on the same basis. They keep an account at the Bank of Australasia, and they do not issue their own notes.
107. The auditors are professional gentlemen? Yes.
108. Is Mr. Buck a professional accountant? Yes; and so is Mr. Kent.
109. Do you, as a banker, think it advisable to have purely professional men as auditors who have no interest in the bank? I think it is the best.
110. Do you think the public will be better satisfied than they would be to trust shareholders? My shareholders are best satisfied with professional accountants. The auditors of banks are generally shareholders.
111. As regards the question put to you as to your fixed deposits and capital being exceeded by your advance, is it not a fact that almost every bank trading in the Colony makes advances exceeding their capital? Yes; in every case.
112. And it is sound banking business to do so? Yes.
113. It is the capital of shareholders, under sound management, that gives the public confidence, and enables them to take deposits, and puts the banks in a position to trade upon the deposits? Yes.
114. So there is nothing unusual in the capital being less than your advances? No, nothing at all.
115. Your object in applying for the Bill is to extend your resources by raising fresh capital? Yes.
116. You also wish to become a bank of issue? Yes.
117. Mr. Gould.] You say that your original capital was £500,000, and that it was reduced to £250,000;—what was the nominal value of the shares when your capital was £500,000? About par.
118. What did your shares represent? £5 each.
119. What do the shares represent now? They are £5 shares.
120. So that your nominal capital is 50,000 shares at £5 each? Yes.
121. You say that there have been three issues of these shares? Yes.
122. Can you tell me how many there were in each issue and the amount paid up? Not unless I refer to my share register.
123. Will you be able to tell us at another meeting? Yes.
124. Chairman.] What is the qualification of a director? The possession of a hundred shares.
125. Mr. Molesworth.] At what fixed period, if any, do you hold an investigation of the securities? Twice a year—in January and July.
126. And who are usually appointed to conduct this investigation? The auditors. They go through all the securities, having sometimes one or two directors with them.
127. How do you account for the £300,000 being stated as the total value of the assets of the company? Our assets in our balance sheet represent £170,000, and there is another £150,000 not called up of the shares.
128. Do you consider that the two auditors are sufficiently competent to value the securities of the bank? Yes, with the assistance of the directors.
129. Chairman.] Is it any part of the duty of the auditors to value your securities? It is the auditor's duty to go through the securities and to see that they are there. Messrs. Richardson and Wrench value the properties.

Sydney John Bull called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. S. J. Bull.
18 Nov., 1890.
130. Chairman.] You are a solicitor practicing in the city? I am.
131. Are you solicitor for the Australian Banking Company? I am.
132. How long have you held that office? I think about two and a half years. I was appointed in April, 1888.
133. Did you prepare the Bill for the incorporation of the company? I did.

134. Does the Bill correspond in its provisions with the Bills for the incorporation of the City and Mercantile Banks? Exactly.
135. Did you draft the Bill yourself? I did.
136. Have you made any difference in this Bill as compared with the Acts of the City and Mercantile Banks? Not the slightest, except as to figures. The only difference is in reference to the amount of capital to be paid up.
137. Mr. Lee.] What is the nominal capital of the company? £250,000.
138. With power to increase it? Yes, to £1,000,000.
139. You have power, under the articles of association, to increase the capital to £1,000,000? Yes.
140. How much of that capital has been paid up? £100,000.
141. What is the difference, then, in that respect, between your Bill and the clause of the City Bank Act, relating to paid-up capital? The only difference, if I recollect rightly, is that the City Bank had to pay up more capital than this company. In the case of the City Bank, about a moiety of the capital had to be paid up. We have £150,000 subscribed for, and £100,000 actually paid up.
142. The Bill, then, does not provide that at least one moiety, which would be £125,000, shall be paid up before the company shall trade under the Bill? No.
143. In drafting this Bill, have you had due regard to the bank capital in existence? Yes; I might say that this Bill has been drawn under the Companies Act.
144. Chairman.] What you have referred to is the only difference between this Bill and the Mercantile and City Banks Acts? Yes; instead of calling our association a deed of settlement, it has to be termed what it is—"a memorandum and articles of association." That is the only difference.
145. Mr. Lee.] Have you made sufficient provision for the responsibility of the shareholders? I think so, for this reason—the depositors were satisfied to leave their money in their hands with a limited liability. They were only liable as shareholders up to the amount of their shares, £5; but by these new articles and memorandum, each £5 shareholder is liable to the amount of £10; therefore, it is better for the public and the depositors.
146. Is that provided for in clause 26 of the Bill? Yes; and you will also find it in the articles of association.
147. Is that the limit provided in the City and Mercantile Banks Acts? Yes; the provision is the same, word for word.
148. Chairman.] I suppose it was fully explained at the meeting of shareholders, and duly advertised, that you intended to apply for an Act, and that it was intended to increase the liability of the shareholders? Certainly; and I may state further that I have had the assistance of Mr. Lingen and Mr. J. T. Garraan. I did not take the matter wholly upon my own shoulders.
149. Did the shareholders agree to the proposal? Certainly.
150. Understanding their increased liability? Most certainly; but that was a stumbling block until I explained the matter to them.
151. Could the directors of this bank at once take steps to increase the capital of the company if they obtained the power which they asked for? I presume they could.
152. Mr. Molesworth.] You say that in drafting the Bill you followed as closely as possible the lines of the City and Mercantile Banks Acts? Yes.
153. Is it not a fact that, in the case of the City Bank, the whole of the shares had to be subscribed for before they could commence operations? I do not think so.
154. Then, is it not a fact that the whole of the £200,000, in the case of the City Bank, had to be subscribed for before the Bill was obtained? Yes; but I do not think that the City Bank would like to say that the whole of those shares were subscribed for.
155. Would you have any objection to provide that the whole of the nominal capital £250,000, shall be subscribed for? I do not think there would be any objection.
156. In other words, to insert a provision in exactly the same terms as clause 6 of the City Bank Act? I should think there would be no objection to it. I explained to my Board that I saw that difference between the two institutions.
157. I see that in this Bill you are applying for the usual right for banking institutions to issue notes? Yes.
158. Do you propose to put any limit upon that issue? I think there is a limit.
159. It does not seem so from the Bill? Clause 7 imposes a limit.
160. To what extent? The clause says:—"The total amount of the promissory-notes payable on demand, issued and in circulation within the Colony of New South Wales, may extend to, but shall not at any time exceed, the amount of its actual paid-up capital, and any such further amount in excess of the said capital as the company shall hold in coin or bullion."
161. Is that not largely in excess of what is granted to the City and Mercantile Banks? The only difference would be between the amounts of the paid-up capital in the two banks.
162. Does the privilege asked for under this Bill regarding the issue of notes exceed that granted under the City Bank Act? I do not think so; I think it is the same.
163. Are you aware that the clause gives the right to issue notes at any town or place where branches of the bank exist? Yes; notes are issuable at branches, but domiciled at head office.
164. Are you aware that the incorporated banks issue their notes only from the head office in one particular Colony? I am not aware of that; but provision is made in this Bill that the head office shall be liable for the notes.
165. Are you aware that this privilege may cause the bank to be brought into serious difficulties in some of their branches through there not being sufficient coin to meet the issue? I should think it would be so, from the way you put it.
166. You are not aware that the banks have receded from that position? I am not.
167. Have you any objection to take the matter into consideration? I will do so.
168. I see that under clause 10, you propose to get permission to increase your capital to £1,000,000;—are you aware that the capital of the Commercial Bank does not reach that amount? It did not at first, but I think it does now.

TUESDAY, 25 NOVEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. MOLESWORTH, | MR. KING,
MR. GARVAN.

J. F. BURNS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

George Alfred Buck called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. G. A. Buck. 169. Chairman.] Are you an auditor of the Australian Banking Company (Limited)? Yes.
25 Nov., 1890. 170. Are you a professional accountant? No; I am an accountant.
171. Have you had experience as an accountant? Yes.
172. In whose service? In my father's, as a book-keeper, and afterwards in conducting the accountantships of different companies which I have been asked to do. I am experienced in matters of accounts.
173. How long have you held the office of auditor of the Australian Banking Company? For the last five years, I think.
174. Is this your signature to the last balance-sheet issued by the bank? Yes; that is up to the 30th June of this year.
175. With regard to the overdrafts and advances, what is your mode of procedure, in conjunction with the other auditor? We take the accounts as they stand in the books and the balances as they are made out on a list, showing the debtor and credit balances; that is the usual way. We check all the entries with the vouchers, the pay-in slips, and the cheques.
176. Has it been the practice of the manager to submit to you at the same time the vouchers showing that they were authorised by the Board? No; they do not show us that they have been authorised by the Board. We take that for granted, otherwise they would not have been advanced.
177. With respect to the cash credits, are there not bonds in connection with them? There are securities given, I presume; but we do not know how the directors advance the money.
178. Who certifies to you that the accounts are in accordance with the decisions of the Board? No one. We know of nothing beyond this, that the credits are there; we do not know why they are given.
179. Who supplies the accounts which are submitted to you? The manager and the clerk; we do not see the minute books.
180. Does not the manager and his officers submit to you at any time the cash credit accounts, showing the bonds or any securities? No; the securities were not shown to us the last time, but they were guaranteed to us as being there. On the previous occasion, also, we did not see the securities; but previously we always examined them.
181. Did you satisfy yourselves, as auditors, that the accounts were clerically correct? Yes, that they agreed with the vouchers; beyond that, we know nothing.
182. Do you state that on previous occasions you had inspected the cash credit bonds? No; all the securities that were held by the bank were shown to us.
183. That is, the valuations of property handed into the bank as security? Yes; those against which advances had been made.
184. Were the bills discounted shown to you? Yes; except those that were in a bank for collection, for which the bank gave a receipt and the list.
185. Mr. King.] In your certificate attached to the balance-sheet, you say, "We have counted the cash and examined the bills and other securities held by the bank";—do you not tell us that you have not done so on the last two occasions, but that you have taken a guarantee for the securities? Yes; a letter from the chairman of the directors.
186. Do you think that that is a proper thing to do? They requested us to take it. They said that they had examined the securities, and perhaps some of them might have been away from the bank for all that we knew.
187. Is not that an unusual course? Yes; we explained, I think, at the time to the manager that we should like to see them.
188. Did you not afterwards go and see that the guarantee given by the chairman was correct as to the securities? No.
189. With regard to the balances, did you check the accounts of the different customers of the bank? Yes.
190. Did you take the ledgers and go through all those and compare them? We checked them first with the vouchers.
191. Did you go through all the ledger accounts? Yes.
192. Did you check the balances accordingly? Yes; with a list that was given. They read out from the list the debtor and credit balances.
193. Did you check off the fixed deposits carefully? Yes; of course.
194. Mr. Molesworth.] You say that you have been auditor of this institution for about five years;—have you had experience in this direction? Yes.
195. Are you following any other occupation at present? Yes; a general commission business.
196. Has your experience in auditing been confined to private mercantile accounts? Yes.
197. Have you had previous experience in auditing bank accounts? No.
198. I understand that you have not seen the securities on the last two examinations, but that you have taken the certificate from the chairman of directors that the securities were correct;—are you not aware that an auditor is supposed to check the directors above all others? Yes. I may add that the gentleman who audits the accounts with me thoroughly understands banking accounts.
199. Did you get a certificate from the chairman of directors in writing? Yes, but I lost the papers in the fire at Pomeroy Chambers; but no doubt there are copies of the letters at the bank.
200. Did you have any opportunity of checking as to whether or not the advances had been authorised by the directors? Never, and I never asked for such a thing.
201. Mr. Garvan.] When was the last time that you examined the securities? Last June twelve months.
202. Have you a copy of the balance sheet which was issued the last time that you examined the securities? No; but there would be a copy at the bank.
203. Can you tell me generally what were the assets of the company the last time you examined the securities? No, I cannot state without refreshing my memory. As far as I can recollect, the bank has gradually progressed.

204. Does it not strike you as something very improper for you to have given a certificate to the shareholders without having done that portion of your work which was the most important of all? It does not. It was an important thing; but it was not, I think, so very important that I could not sign the balance sheet upon the authority of the guarantee of the chairman of directors.

Mr. G. A. Buck.
25 Nov., 1890.

205. Were you not appointed to supervise the accounts of the directors themselves, and to guarantee to the shareholders that the accounts were correct? Yes; but the chairman of directors gave a guarantee from himself and the other directors.

206. Would there be any necessity for an auditor if that was sufficient? Yes, certainly, to check the accounts and to examine them. The auditor had nothing to do with the value of a security. The security might be of little or no value so far as he could tell. We do not value the securities.

207. Is it not, ordinarily speaking, the duty of an auditor to see that all the outward appearances have a substantial security? I am aware of that.

208. Did you neglect that evident duty of an auditor on the last two occasions? Yes; I daresay the manager of the bank can tell you why the guarantee was given; they asked us to take it. I said, "If you give us the guarantee of the chairman of directors, and do not hold us responsible, we will do so."

209. Chairman.] Do you not state in this certificate, "We have counted the cash and examined the bills and other securities held by the bank on 31st December, 1889?"—Do you not see that your answers now do not agree with this certificate? I am aware; and I spoke to the manager about it. I said, "You must recollect that we have not seen the securities." I think he will be able to explain the matter.

210. What you did as auditor was to check the accounts clerically to see that they were correct in that respect? Yes.

Charles Kent called in, sworn, and examined:—

211. Chairman.] Are you a professional accountant? I am an accountant, but not a professional one.

Mr. C. Kent.
25 Nov., 1890.

212. Have you had many years experience as an accountant? Yes; I have had experience in banking in England as well as in my own business.

213. Are you one of the auditors of the Australian Banking Company (Limited)? Yes.

214. Is your name attached to the last certificate of audit of that bank? Yes, as one of the auditors.

215. Did you then give a certificate stating that you had examined all the balances and the bank securities? Yes.

216. Is that statement correct? It is correct to a certain extent. The securities we did not examine on that last occasion; but Mr. Abigail gave us a letter stating that he had examined all of them.

217. Did you in your previous audits go through the securities? On previous occasions we always examined the securities.

218. For how long before? For three years or more.

219. Did you upon all previous occasions examine and check the securities with the accounts? Yes; always before.

220. Why did you not audit them on this last occasion? The fact was, I was ill at the time, and they were in a great hurry to get out the balance.

221. Were you satisfied after having received the chairman's certificate that the accounts were correct? Perfectly satisfied.

222. That they were substantially correct? I was perfectly satisfied.

223. Has it been the custom to produce to you the bills or accounts showing overdrafts? We examined all.

224. As well as the securities? Yes.

225. Except on the last occasion? Yes.

226. Mr. Bull.] Is it not a fact that upon every occasion except these last two you have had the whole of the securities, promissory notes, and everything else before you? Yes, except on this last occasion.

227. Mr. Molesworth.] You have given a certificate that you examined the securities on the last occasion;—do you not think that that was misleading the shareholders? I do not think so, because Mr. Abigail pledged his word.

228. Do you think it is right for an auditor to give a certificate under such circumstances? We did not do so on any other occasion, and it was simply on account of being pressed for time.

229. Do you think it is right to give a certificate that a certain thing was done when it was not done? It is not correct, and I demurred to it at the time; but I was assured they were correct.

230. Are you not aware that it is the place of the auditors to check the directors work as well as anything else? Quite so.

231. Mr. Garvan.] If the auditor who audited the accounts with you has stated that on two previous occasions he signed the balance-sheet without seeing the securities, would that be correct? I cannot remember, but it may possibly have been so.

232. Mr. Buck stated several times in his evidence that on the last occasion he signed a certificate that he had examined the securities when, as a matter of fact, he had not seen them. He also stated that on the previous examination he signed a similar certificate without having seen the securities;—is that statement correct or not? I do not call that to mind, but it is quite possible. His memory may be better than mine. On several occasions I know that we have examined the securities particularly. I know that on the last occasion we had a letter from Mr. Abigail to say that the securities were correct.

233. Do you not know that as auditor your special duty was to examine everything as against the directors in the interests of the shareholders? We have been auditors now for three or four years, and on all occasions we have examined the securities, and checked them, and we have always found them correct. We found the books were not so well kept on the first occasion; but they have been very much improved, and they are now kept in a very systematic and business way, and we felt satisfied that the securities, although we had not seen them, were correct—the manager and Mr. Abigail verifying them.

234. Knowing that Mr. Buck has stated definitely that he did not see the securities on the last two occasions, do you think it is possible that his memory is better than yours in this matter? Yes; I abide by that. If he says so, it has been so.

235. When the balance for the period ending 30th June, 1889, was drawn up, were you auditor? Yes.

236. Are you certain that on that occasion you examined the securities? Undoubtedly; I believe so, to the best of my knowledge. It is perfectly correct.

- Mr. C. Kent. 237. Look at the credit side, and you will see under the heading, "By overdrafts and advances on cash credit," the sum of £88,269? Yes.
 25 Nov., 1890.
238. Were they secured by proper documents? By the documents in the safe.
 239. Did you examine each one of the securities by itself? We had every security out of the safe, and compared that with the ledger.
 240. Was any of that money advanced on the security of shares held by any members of the company? Yes; some of it.
 241. What proportion? I do not think a large proportion; it was a small proportion.
 242. Look at the other side and you will find that the total cash capital at that time called up was £48,732? Yes.
 243. On the security of the shares, how much money was advanced from the bank? I do not think more than £2,000 or £3,000.
 244. Can you speak with any degree of definiteness? I cannot speak with any certainty.
 245. Have you any idea as to what proportion of the assets set out in the last balance-sheet were advanced upon the security of shares in the company itself? No; but I still think it was a very small proportion.
 246. What justification have you for thinking so, when you did not examine the securities? Because I examined the securities on so many occasions, and did not find that the practice prevailed to any large extent. The shareholders, you will notice, are numerous and comparatively small.
 247. Speaking from memory, can you say that any of the directors used their shares as security for an overdraft? I daresay there were one or two perhaps; but I cannot speak with certainty.
 248. Might there possibly be more than two? I still say there is a very small proportion of those shares placed in the bank; that is my impression. We did not separate them to see what the securities were. There were properties as well as shares. I am satisfied there was a very small proportion of shares pledged.
 249. Have you had long experience as an auditor, or as an accountant? I have been connected with books more or less all my life. I have managed the accounts of the house of Newton Brothers, and I was in two banks in England for several years.
 250. When you speak of managing the accounts of Newton Brothers for many years, is that the firm of Christopher Newton Brothers? Yes. I was managing partner. I took the counting-house department. I had the supervision of all the books, and had to see that they were correct.
 251. When did you sever your connection with the firm? In 1868 or 1869.
 252. For how many years were you connected with that firm? About twelve years.
 253. Had you an accountant as well during the whole of that time? Yes.
 254. He, I presume, had full control of the accountant's work? Yes; certainly. I had to see that it was properly done. I think I have had as much experience in accounts as most men.
 255. Have you ever acted as auditor for any other business in Sydney? Not to any extent.
 256. Can you name any case? I had a little business to do with the Colonial Mutual Fire Insurance Company. I have not been employed as auditor.
 257. Was your connection with the Colonial Mutual Fire Company as an accountant auditing their books? Yes; just to audit their books for Mr. Chandler. I am not a professional accountant.
 258. In your opinion, is your fellow-auditor, Mr. Buck, a competent accountant? I think so, quite sufficiently so for the auditing of bank accounts. It is not at all an intricate thing, if one understands accounts at all. We have all the books and vouchers before us; we see that everything is properly carried forward, and corresponds with the balance-sheet.
 259. Do you think that the business of auditing banking accounts is so simple that a man does not require any special training as an accountant to do it? Yes.
 260. Would Mr. Buck, in your opinion, be capable of investigating the accounts of a company in your absence? I do think he has had sufficient experience for that.
 261. If Mr. Buck gave a certificate with reference to any special business that the balance had come out in a certain way, would you take that for certain as being correct? Yes.
 262. Would you do so if it were an intricate business? If it were an intricate business, probably I might hesitate; but he is a man who understands books so far as to check them, and to see that the balances are all right.

Roderick M'Namara re-called, and further examined:—

- Mr. R. M'Namara. 263. Chairman.] These papers have been sent to me by your bank, I believe; they are certificates of audit going back for some years;—do you now hand them in? Yes. [Appendix C 1 to 5.]
 25 Nov., 1890.
264. Mr. King.] I have before me a balance-sheet of the Australian Banking Company (Limited), for the 30th June, 1890;—are you the manager of that bank? Yes.
 265. Do you consider that you are justified in paying a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. when your formation expenses, amounting to £2,878 3s., have not been paid? Yes; the Joint Stock Companies Act allows us to spread the formation expenses over a certain number of years at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum.
 266. Is this item of £95 shown as an asset for stationery in stock, or is it part of the preliminary expenses not yet paid for? It is a portion of the stationery for the half year; it is an asset.
 267. Are your banking premises freehold or leasehold? They are only rented by us; we have a seven years' lease.
 268. How do you make up the item of £1,724 3s. 1d.? That is for the premises, furniture, strong-room, fittings.
 269. In looking over your evidence given on a previous occasion, I find you have been connected with the Bank of Victoria and the Queensland National Bank;—was it the practice with those banks to value their furniture? Yes.
 270. Did they not write it off very very freely? They wrote off a certain amount every year, according as the profits might allow. It is recommended by the directors, and sanctioned by the shareholders.
 271. You say you have made provision to the extent of £500 for bad and doubtful debts, and the advances, according to the balance-sheet of the 30th June last, amount to £175,000;—is not that a very small percentage to allow for bad debts? I do not think so; we are not an old company.

Mr. R.
M'Namara.
25 Nov., 1890.

272. Do you not think that it is different to the experience of most banks to allow such a small percentage? The directors, of course, weigh these matters, and they considered that amount quite sufficient for the contingency.
273. What provision have you made each half year for bad and doubtful debts? The amount now to the credit of contingencies, I think, is about £2,500, or perhaps a little more.
274. According to your balance sheet, you have a capital of £100,148 14s. 6d. actually paid up in cash? Yes.
275. Is that in actual cash? Yes.
276. Have you made advances to shareholders on your own shares? If a shareholder wanted to borrow a small amount on his shares, I would lend him a few pounds, but I have not made it a practice to advance money on the shares. It is a thing we do not allow.
277. What is the aggregate of the advances so secured? I could not say unless I went over the ledgers. It is of course a particularly private matter. If you were a shareholder, and you wanted to tide over a small difficulty, I would lend you a small amount on the security of the shares.
278. Chairman.] Would you give it as an advance on an open account? Yes.
279. You would allow him an overdraft? Yes; I might place the shares with other deeds, if the shareholder wanted to strengthen his security. I do not consider that that would be advancing money against shares.
280. You would not transfer his shares unless your security was first satisfied? I would not.
281. Mr. King.] I understand you can give no idea as to the aggregate advances on shares? I could not give anything like an accurate amount at the present time; I would have to go over the whole of my books.
282. Can you give it approximately? I am sure it would certainly be under a couple of thousand pounds, taking the whole lot. That is leaving a wide margin. That would be spread perhaps over a couple of hundred shareholders.
283. Is it a fact that letters have been received from the Governor of New Caledonia by the Governor of this Colony, with reference to matters in connection with your bank, arising out of the case of the "Lark"? The solicitor of the bank, I think, would be better able to explain that.
284. Is it not a fact that letters have been received from the Governor of New Caledonia by the Governor of this Colony, on behalf of the law officials, complaining of the action of the Australian Banking Company in obtaining the release of the ship "Lark" from execution under a judgment of the court of Noumea, by promising, through their duly appointed agent, Mr. Loughnan, to pay £400, the amount of the said judgment, and the company refusing to pay the same, although the ship in the meantime had been released? This is the first time I have heard of these letters, but I know of the matter being in dispute.
285. Is it not a fact that Mr. Goudin, the holder of the said judgment in the court of Noumea, is now suing your bank here for £400? Yes; our solicitor has told me that he has accepted service of a writ therefor.
286. Is it not a fact that the bank have filed pleas denying ownership of the vessel, denying the power of attorney they gave Mr. Loughnan, and denying that they ever made such an agreement for obtaining the release of the ship? It is not. The "Lark" is trading for us at the present time, and at present is in Adelaide in our name.
287. Did not the bank, in fact, give Mr. Loughnan such a power of attorney? We gave a power of attorney, drawn by the solicitor. What powers were in it I cannot state. Mr. Bull will explain that.
288. Did not Mr. Loughnan draw on your bank for £400? Yes.
289. Was not the ship in consequence released, and did you not afterwards dishonour the draft? I dishonoured the draft on a letter from Mr. Loughnan, received before I received the draft, to the effect that the amount was not the correct amount, and not to pay it but to return it. I have his letter to that effect. I think Mr. Bull holds the letter at the present moment.
290. The evidence given by the auditors to-day did not appear to me to be very satisfactory. I wish to ask whether, as a matter of fact, Messrs. Davenport, Miles, & Co. ever declined to sign audit certificates for your accounts? They have not since I became manager of the institution. Their letters will show.
291. Will you produce their report on the bank? It is here.
292. Mr. Molesworth.] You promised the Committee last time that you would produce a list of the unpaid calls on shares that were due, and the several dates on which the amounts fell due;—are you in a position to do so now? I produce a list of the unpaid calls.
293. What was the amount of the unpaid calls upon the first issue? About £270.
294. How much on the second issue? About £280.
295. How much on the third issue? About £100.
296. Are these all the issues that have been made? Yes.
297. Have you had the affairs and security of this bank examined by several independent auditors? I have.
298. Are these the certificates which are before the Committee at the present time? Yes.
299. Do you notice that not one of these audits give any certificate as to the examination of securities? It is not usual for auditors to go through the securities. In nine banks out of ten they will either take the certificates of the directors of the company, or of a committee of the directors formed to go through the securities, or they will take the certificate of the solicitor.
300. Are you aware that they are all silent on the question of securities? No; I am not. Starkey and Taylor first went through the securities, because Mr. Abigail made them do so. I think these are the only auditors who did go through the securities.
301. Are they not silent on the question of securities? They say they checked the books, vouchers, and securities.
302. The certificate they give is that they found the books correctly kept? And the securities also. You would require to get practical valuers to go through the securities.
303. With reference to the balance-sheet of 30th June, 1890, are you aware that the auditors who signed the certificate state in that certificate that they examined the securities? Yes; they have so certified.
304. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that they did not examine the securities? They took the certificate of the chairman and his co-directors that they had examined them.

Mr. R.
M'Namara.
25 Nov., 1890.

305. Personally, you know that they did not examine the securities? Kent and Buck have not examined the securities, with the exception of taking the certificate of the chairman since I have been manager—I mean so far as placing a value on the securities. They have checked them during that period.

306. I want a definite answer: Are you aware that the auditors, Kent and Buck, had not examined the securities in connection with this last balance-sheet? They have not; but the securities have been examined.

307. Do you not think that their signing a certificate to that effect, when they had not examined the securities, was misleading the shareholders; No; I do not think so. It is done in several banks.

308. Is it not the duty of auditors to audit the action of the directors as well as of the other officers of the bank? I certainly think not. I think that if the shareholders have confidence in the directors, that is quite sufficient.

309. Are you aware that the principal object of appointing auditors is to check the management? Yes.

310. Do you not look upon the directors as the principal part of the management? As a board of advice.

311. Is not everything practically done under their authority? Everything. All transactions of any consequence are placed before the Board weekly.

312. Mr. Garvan.] Some portion of your formation expenses are still unpaid, I see by the balance sheet; but I presume that is not more than a reasonable proportion of it, considering the age of the institution? No; it is not more.

313. Are there any other outstanding obligations with reference to formation expenses? There is a certain amount in dispute at the present time which a select committee elected from the shareholders inquired into some time ago. I am almost certain that it is the intention of the directors to keep those shares that were supposed to be taken by those individuals in the first instance, and to write them off occasionally as portion of the formation expenses.

314. What is the gross possible amount in dispute not included in the balance sheet? I should say it is about £8,000.

315. Is that a claim made by somebody against the company? It is not a claim. It is an amount that was supposed to be given for the good-will of one of the companies taken over from Malcolm and Nathan. The shares were not issued, but we hold them pending the result of paying off the formation expenses. If they are treated as formation expenses, which I have not the slightest doubt the directors will do, the people entitled to them will receive the shares then.

316. Then, beyond the liabilities shown here, this other liability of £8,000 exists at the present time? Yes; there is the liability of £8,000, which is included in the balance sheet but not particularised. It is unnecessary to give the particulars on the balance sheet. The shareholders are well aware of the liability.

317. Do you think that this is a liability that will be paid by the company? I have no doubt at all about it. I think it is a very small amount. The matter is only on paper.

318. How is it that in submitting a balance sheet you omit a liability so well known or understood? It is not omitted. It is included in this amount called "Advance and expenditure account."

319. If that is an amount that has to be paid by the company, would the balance sheet be correct if you omitted that? Yes; perfectly correct to omit particulars. It is not formation expenses in the way you mean. It was really blackmail on the institution by these people, and we hold the shares until such time as these amounts are paid off every half year according to the Companies' Act.

320. By whom? Out of the profits of the company, of course.

321. There is this undoubted liability of a little over £8,000, for which you have made no provision in the balance sheet; but yet eventually it will be paid out of the profits? We have made no provision in the shape of stating particulars in the balance sheet; nevertheless, the amount is included in the aggregate figures in the balance sheet; it is secured by itself. The bank holds the shares.

322. I do not understand the term? The shares supposed to be taken by these people are held against this liability.

323. Would you explain the process, as it seems intricate to me? There was a special committee of the shareholders elected from the shareholders to inquire into this matter. It was an amount that was supposed to be received by Nathan and Malcolm, for the purchase, I think, of the Australian Financial Company. For that sale or transfer of the Australian Financial Company's business, they were entitled to this amount from the Australian Banking Company (Limited)—at least they thought so, and therefore they made out shares in their names to that amount.

324. For these shares, they are not to pay anything? No; we got the goodwill of the company for the shares. The shares were not issued to them; they were kept in the bank, and are held at the present moment against that amount, and will be paid from the profits of the institution from time to time each half year.

325. Chairman.] Do you in the meantime pay any dividend on those shares? No; not on all. We pay half dividend on about 500 shares transferred to one or two persons. The word "half dividend" is written on the face of the scrip.

326. They are dead stock? Yes, almost, for the present.

327. Does it depend upon your making profits whether or not you will pay off the amount? Yes; it is spread over the usual time under the Companies' Act. That matter rests entirely with the shareholders.

328. Mr. Garvan.] If you make profits you will pay this amount to them? Undoubtedly.

329. It is a liability not provided for in your balance-sheet? It is provided for, but it is not shown. It is a liability well known to the shareholders.

330. Chairman.] Is it contingent upon the profits justifying the payment that you will pay this? Yes.

331. I understand you that this claim is morally dead unless you make profits justifying you in paying it? Yes; with the exception of these shares that have already been transferred.

332. Mr. Bull.] Is it a fact that no course has been taken by the supposed holders of those shares to enforce payment? None.

333. Mr. Garvan.] In fact, then, they are in friendly relations with the bank? I cannot say that; they are not by any means.

334. If Malcolm and Nathan sued the bank at the present time, do you think that they would get a verdict? I think they would not.

335. Nevertheless, you say the bank recognises this obligation? They recognise it simply because it was the will of the select committee. They said, "It is better to recognise it in this way than to go to law about the matter." Mr. R. M'Namara.
336. Then the whole of the expenses in connection with the formation are those which are provided for, and this extra sum? Yes. 25 Nov., 1890.
337. In connection with the formation of this new bank, have you entered into any obligation to pay commission or expenses to anyone to float it, or any portion of it? No.
338. Did you not take some steps to float a portion of your capital in England? We were going to, but under certain circumstances we did not do so. They were private matters of the bank—to establish a branch.
339. If you had been successful in raising capital in London, were you to pay commission to anyone? We did not try.
340. Did you not try to raise any capital? We did not give any permission or power to any person else. There are no negotiations whatsoever at the present time through any brokers or any bank.
341. We have here, in the balance-sheet, assets represented by overdrafts, advances, and bills discounted, amounting to £177,367;—would you have any objection to giving a detailed statement of each item? Yes, most certainly. I think that is beyond the question altogether. Would you like to see your name on a bank ledger, with perhaps a debit balance for which certain security was held, made public. I think it would be very prejudicial to the interests of the bank to divulge any secrets of that kind.
342. Then, would you have a decided objection to giving details of the assets? Undoubtedly, of any man's private account. That is a matter of bank secrecy. I would be breaking a vow if I were to do so. There are bonds of secrecy signed by all bank officials.
343. Do you not stand in a different position to a bank newly floated, and asking for incorporation? Yes.
344. The assets of the bank in that case are cash in hand, while in this case you have your cash represented by certain assets which you say are good? Yes.
345. Are you aware that one of our special duties as a Committee is to report whether we believe that these assets are as good as cash? I really do not know what your duties are; but, I simply say they are as good as cash. I give sworn evidence to that effect, that the assets are perfectly sound as far as my judgment as manager is concerned.
346. As far as I can judge, one of the duties of the Committee will be to certify to Parliament that those assets are as good as cash. If we want detailed information as to the securities, in order to enable us to do that, do you say that, from your banking point of view, you would have an objection to give it? Yes; I certainly would not divulge the nature of any private individual's account.
347. Is there any objection to give this information to your auditors? Not the slightest.
348. It becomes a matter of right on their part to see them? Yes.
349. But yet, as a matter of fact, they did not see them on the last occasion? They did not see them on the last occasion, but I am quite certain that they saw them before.

FRIDAY, 23 NOVEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. WYMAN BROWN,
MR. GARVAN,

MR. KING,
MR. LEE,

MR. MOLESWORTH.

J. F. BURNS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

S. J. Bull, Esq., Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the promoters of the Bill.

Mr. Roderick M'Namara re-called, and further examined:—

350. Chairman.] You have had an opportunity of reading the evidence given before this Committee on a previous occasion? Yes. Mr. R. M'Namara.
351. Do you wish to supplement that evidence? No; I do not wish to add anything more than verbal alterations, which I now hand in. 25 Nov., 1890.
352. Mr. Molesworth.] Are there any proprietary or preferential shares granted in this company? No; they are all contributing shares.
353. When the company was first formed, were there any special concessions of material value, either in shares or in any other form, given to the previous holders of the business, Messrs. Malcolm and Nathan? That was the £8,000 we were speaking of at the last meeting of this Committee.
354. To whom was the £8,000 given? No money passed hands at all. The consideration was shares to be given to Malcolm and Nathan to that extent.
355. Were those shares given as paid-up shares? Yes.
356. Is that in addition to the nominal capital of the company? We put that down as formation expenses; that was explained to Mr. Garvan by me at a former meeting of this Committee.
357. Chairman.] Were those shares given contingent upon the business proving profitable, and thus enabling you to give a consideration for them? Yes.
358. Mr. Molesworth.] Referring to the certificate given by the auditors at the foot of the balance sheet for 30th June, 1890, do you notice that the auditors state they had examined the securities? Yes.
359. Do you know now, as a matter of fact, that they did not examine the securities on that occasion? Yes.
360. Did you state that they accepted a certificate under the hand of Mr. Abigail, the chairman of the company? Yes; I think they did.
361. Is it not a fact that Mr. Abigail was not in the Colony at that time? It is.
362. Then how was it possible that he could give a certificate at that particular date, when he was in England? He always left these things to me.
363. How could he tell the state of the securities at any given time? He could surely trust the management.
- 364.

- Mr. R. M'Namara.
28 Nov., 1890.
364. It is not a question of management, but the absolute state of the securities? The securities would not alter from that particular time up to the time of the balance.
365. Is it a fact that that certificate was given under the hand of Mr. Abigail, the managing director? Yes.
366. Is it not a fact that at the date of the balance sheet Mr. Abigail was absent in England? Yes.
367. How was it possible for a gentleman to give a certificate if he was not in the Colony? He leaves that certificate before he starts. He leaves it with his co-directors to be handed to the auditors as his certificate to the correctness of the securities.
368. How can anyone certify to the correctness of the securities prior to the date on which the certificate was supposed to be used? He can give that certificate, full well knowing that if there was any material alteration in the securities, I could rectify it and explain it to the auditors.
369. In point of fact, it would not then be his certificate? Yes; I do not see why that should alter it at all.
370. The certificate is supposed to be dated on the 30th June, 1890;—how is it possible for that certificate to be issued in March and be available for the 30th June? I consider that a certificate once a year is sufficient as to the valuation of the securities; perhaps once in two years it would be sufficient.
371. But does not that certificate apply to an examination of the securities on the 30th June? Yes; that is done by myself in this way, that I have surely something to say if there is any alteration.
372. I am speaking as to the certificate itself;—whose certificate is it? It is the chairman's certificate, and I am capable of altering it.
373. Capable of altering another person's certificate? I am capable of altering it in this manner: that I am managing the institution, and I know when an alteration ought to be made—when it is right, and when it is wrong.
374. In point of fact, you consider that you would be justified in altering the managing director's certificate as to the value of the securities? I think, if there was an alteration required I could make it—that is, if a security was lodged with me for an extra advance, or if a security was realised or the thing paid off.
375. Chairman.] Is any alteration made in the certificate from the time Mr. Abigail signed it, and its submission to the auditors? No; there is no alteration required.
376. Mr. Garvan.] What was the date on which Mr. Abigail left for England? I cannot recollect, but I think it was about the middle of March.
377. What date is to the certificate he gave you? I have seen the date, but I cannot recollect it at the present moment.
378. Was it dated in the month of March or earlier? I really could not say exactly. I do not think it makes very great difference so long as he gave it, and I acted up to the instructions he gave me when he left here. I have got my other directors to look to as well as to Mr. Abigail, and when he is not here he has his locum tenens appointed, and he has the same powers and privileges; and I consider that my directors are gentlemen who weigh matters in their minds. They do not do anything rash, or anything necessary to call for certificates of inquiry.
379. Mr. Wyman Brown.] Then, this was your certificate instead of that of Mr. Abigail? Should an alteration be required in the manner I have stated—that is, if a security had been realised, or a fresh advance made—then the alteration would be to that effect.
380. Surely it is not a common occurrence for a chairman of directors to give a certificate three months before it is necessary to use that certificate, and to allow the manager of the company to alter that as he likes during that time? There is no alteration actually in the certificate at all; it is a matter of alteration which has to be explained verbally to the auditors in case of the securities being changed.
381. Mr. Garvan.] From the date the chairman gave the certificate as to the securities until the date of your balance sheet, were there any new securities? There might have been small securities taken for small advances; but I do not consider that they ought to be classed with a certificate of that sort. They would not be of such consequence as to alter the work of the institution.
382. But was there not a gap of nearly four months from the time that Mr. Abigail left here in March, until the date of the balance-sheet in June; and were there no loans of any consequence from the date of the chairman's certificate until the date of closing your accounts? Not any loans that would require any alteration or fresh certificates.
383. Were there no fresh loans, and no new securities during that time? I really cannot tell you. I should want all my books before me to answer questions of that kind; and the institution has been managed by myself and a Board of Directors, and I think—although I do not say it simply because I am the manager—the institution has been managed equally as well as any institution on the same lines, or any other bank in Sydney; and it has been as carefully watched over by its directors. So far as the securities are concerned, when my directors do not think themselves capable of judging of the securities—when they lend on property—they immediately get Richardson and Wrench to value.
384. Is it not probable that, being a banking business, there would be, in the course of four months, some new loans? Not of any consequence. If there were new loans they would be dealt with by the Board, and the auditors would be perfectly satisfied by myself and the other directors that the securities were perfect.
385. Mr. King.] Will you have any objection to produce the chairman's certificate? The auditors have them; but I have heard that in the late fire they were burnt. If the certificate should be required I shall certainly get a copy of it.
386. Mr. Bull.] Is it a fact that at the time Mr. Abigail went away it was contemplated that there should be a reconstruction of the bank? Yes.
387. As a fact, was it absolutely and positively decided by the directors to do as little business as possible until the reconstruction of the company? Yes; and the shareholders also knew of it.
388. Will that account for the fact that there has not been any material advances made, or alteration in the securities during that period? Yes. When Mr. Garvan asked me a question about commission, or whether any steps had been taken to place new capital on the London market, I gave an answer to which I wish to add that when Mr. Abigail left here for London he had the sanction of the Board to the effect that he was to make inquiries as to the most practicable course to pursue if necessary to place a portion of the company's stock on the market. 389.

389. Was that for the limited company? Yes.

390. Mr. Bull.] Is it a fact that since then that has been altogether revoked, and Mr. Abigail has no power whatever to attempt to raise a loan from anybody? None; not for the Australian Banking Company of Sydney.

391. Nor anybody else? No.

392. Mr. Lee.] At your first examination you were asked whether you thought there would be any objection to call up an additional £25,000 before this Bill was passed. You said you thought there would be none. Have you since consulted the directors on that point? No; I have not consulted the directors on any matter in connection with this, and will not until such time as the whole thing is completed.

393. Can you give any additional evidence to the Committee as to whether the Company will call up this additional sum of £25,000? What we purpose doing, if necessary, and the directors approve of it, is to place £100,000 worth of shares on the market, and perhaps call up a portion of it, or as the case may be the whole; whatever the directors may decide.

394. The other question was with reference to the reduction of the permission to increase the capital to £1,000,000. Do you think there would be any objection to reduce that amount to a smaller amount, and have you consulted the directors on that point? I do not think we referred to that at all.

395. Mr. Garvan.] The last day you gave evidence there was a sum mentioned as likely to be paid to two gentlemen? I have given that information six different times.

396. You do not know what question I am about to ask. When the balance-sheets were prepared before were the auditors aware of that claim? Yes; and the shareholders also. A Select Committee was appointed by the shareholders two years ago, they inquired into this matter; and the shareholders were thoroughly well aware of the whole transaction from the start to the finish.

397. Would there be any objection to produce the report by that Committee? I think there would be an objection. I do not see why I should submit the report of such a Committee. I distinctly refuse to submit what I regard as purely a private matter as between the shareholders and the directors.

398. If your auditors wished to see a document of that kind, would you show it to them? They have seen it. Both Ford and Troup, and Kent and Buck have seen it.

399. Do you think that your auditors would be entitled to more information as to the affairs of the bank than this Committee would be? Most undoubtedly. This Committee cannot inquire into private individual's accounts I should think. At least I, as a banker, would say that I would not give it. I would give the outlines of anything in reason, but I do not think it is reasonable to ask for a private individual's accounts, or as to what may be in the bank.

400. Must you not bear in mind that you have come before the Committee in order to obtain this Committee's favourable report, and before we can report favourably you must be aware that we must be personally thoroughly satisfied? Yes.

401. Yet you refuse to give us some information which we may think necessary to thoroughly satisfy us? I refuse to give information of a private character that would be prejudicial to the interests of the institution.

402. I am not pressing for it, but I wish that we should fairly understand each other in the matter. It may be that members of this Committee might deem it necessary that this document should be produced in order to satisfy themselves; nevertheless, would you decline to produce it? As a banker I would decline to produce it until forced to do so by my board; and I think it is a thing that the board of directors of any monetary institution would not do; that is to say, to divulge the secrets of private business and of private individuals.

403. Chairman.] Am I right in understanding you to state that with respect to these paid up shares they form part of your formation expenses? Yes.

404. Do they form part of the amount entered in the balance-sheet as part of the formation expenses? That amount is a separate account; it is called Advance and Expenditure Account; and a portion of that would be taken according as we might make profit, and would be placed to the debit of the formation expenses, and it would be wiped off by the net profits of the Company until such time as the whole of it is disbursed.

405. Am I to understand also that your Board does not treat these shares as something they are under any obligation to meet until they are justified in doing so out of the profits? Yes.

406. They are not in the ordinary sense liabilities of the bank, and you do not treat them as liabilities? No; there were a few shares, a very few, transferred in the first instance before I was manager; they were transferred, and the innocent purchasers have taken profits in the usual way as if they were correct shares. I refer to persons who had purchased shares from Malcolm and Nathan before the bank took the step which it did.

407. Mr. Molesworth.] With reference to the shares held on account of Malcolm and Nathan, are they paid up or contributing? They are shares taken for the goodwill. They are taken up as fully paid-up shares, and they will be treated as fully paid-up shares when they are paid off in the manner I have mentioned.

408. In the meantime do they stand as paid-up shares? Yes.

409. A portion of which has been paid off as formation expenses? Yes.

Sydney John Bull, recalled and further examined:—

410. Chairman.] Do you wish to make an explanation with reference to the dispute about the ship "Lark"? I can tell the Committee that this is like any other commercial transaction. The bank owns this ship "Lark," she went to Noumea with a cargo of flour from Port Adelaide. On her voyage to Noumea she met with bad weather and damaged a little of the cargo. We found that the ship undoubtedly was attempted to be taken for any nominal thing they could get, and we sent a man down in our interest to watch our interests under power of attorney. When he was down there he found himself in such straits with the Noumean people, that he took upon himself to give certain orders of which he advised me, personally and otherwise, that he was bound to give so as to get the ship at all.

411. Orders for what? Orders drawn upon the bank.

Mr. R.
M'Namara.
28 Nov., 1890.

Mr.
S. J. Bull.
28 Nov., 1890.

Mr.
S. J. Bull.

412. Mr. King.] To release the ship? I do not say that. I can safely say this, that had our attorney down there sufficient moneys to pay for the stores, he could have taken the ship away with the British Consul's advice, without paying these things at all. His only difficulty was that he was down there penniless, in a strange land, a perfect stranger amongst Frenchmen; he had no money with him, except to pay for his bare expenses, he was bound to secure his ship and he could not do it. Not only had he to give these orders, but he had to give other orders which we were advised by him were genuine, and which the bank paid, amounting to £200 or £300.

413. Chairman.] Did you dishonour some of the orders? We refused to accept those that Mr. King mentioned at the last meeting of this Committee, and there is an action now pending in the Supreme Court, Mr. Makinson acting for Goudin, the holder of this order, and without prejudice. I have offered Mr. Makinson £200 and all expenses, which I am advised by my attorney who went down there, is more than we ought to pay. If Mr. Goudin gets his verdict against the bank, I will guarantee he gets his money the next moment.

J. F. BURNS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

F. Abigail, Esq., M.P., called in, sworn and examined:—

F. Abigail,
Esq., M.P.
3 Dec., 1890.

414. Chairman.] Are you chairman of the Australian Banking Company? Yes.

415. How long have you held that position? Since 1887.

416. Have you taken an active interest in the affairs of the bank? Yes.

417. Did you go to England in the month of March last? I left on the last day in February.

418. Before you left did you have the bank's securities produced to you, and did you examine them? Yes; before I left I went through the securities in order to be able to give the certificate I have been in the habit of giving. It was represented to me that when the auditors went through the books I could assist them if I went through the securities, and certified that I had done so.

419. Did you examine them for the period ending at the time at which you left? Yes; until January of this year.

420. Did you give a certificate? Yes; I left it with the manager of the bank.

421. Were you satisfied as to the amount represented as advances and overdrafts? Yes; they were based on Richardson and Wrench's valuation, and my experience is that they generally undervalue properties.

422. Would not that refer only to advances on real estate? Yes.

423. I presume you made advances on cash credits? Yes; in that case we got guarantee bonds.

424. Do you think that the amount that was entered on the bank's books, as representing liabilities due to the bank, under the heading of overdrafts and advances on cash credits, were fairly represented by the securities held? Yes; I think they were fairly covered by the securities.

425. In compliance with the wish of this Committee, has your bank had a further examination of the assets made during the last few days? Yes.

426. Did you appoint two auditors named Salmon and Twist specially to examine the securities? Yes; it was represented to me by the Chairman of the Committee, that they desired some well accredited parties to testify that they had seen the securities, and upon hearing that I instructed the manager to select some accountant firm to do that, and their certificate reached me to-day.

427. Did the manager choose Messrs. Salmon and Twist? Yes; Mr. Twist was the managing man for Starkey and Taylor, chartered accountants. Their certificate is as follows:—

109 Pitt-street, Sydney, 2nd December, 1890.

We have this day examined and compared the securities held by the Australian Banking Company of Sydney, consisting of deeds, mortgages, shares, scrip, &c., and find them to agree with the entries in the security book presented to us by the manager, with the exception of Nos. 23, 24, 29, 59a, 100, 109a, 110, 112a, 122, and 132, which are represented as being in the hands of the bank's solicitor, whose receipt for same were produced.

HORACE SALMON.
WM. TWIST.

Witness,—L. S. NORRIS, J.P.

The securities therein referred to as not being presented are in the hands of the solicitor who is negotiating the sale or transfer of the property.

428. Is the object of your bank in coming to Parliament with this Bill to get extended powers in order to raise additional capital, and to extend your business? Yes.

429. You believe that this Bill will be to the advantage of the bank? I think so; and to the advantage of the shareholders as well.

430. Mr. O'Sullivan.] In the evidence of Mr. M'Namara, the manager, it is stated that the amount of the actually paid up capital is about £100,700, and later on it is stated that according to the balance-sheet for the period ending June, 1890, overdrafts are shown to the amount of £139,000. With these facts before you, and with your knowledge of the securities, do you consider that the business is a safe one? Yes, certainly. I would like to explain to the Committee this fact, that I took an interest in this establishment at the urgent request of a number of people with whom I am acquainted who had taken up shares. I repeatedly refused to do so, but at last I consented. When I met the then Board I stated that I would not undertake to have any connection with the bank unless I was authorised to satisfy myself by special audits, in any way I thought fit, that the affair was sound. They gave me that permission, and I then employed Starkey and Taylor at, I think, 150 guineas to make a report. To further satisfy myself, I think we paid Davenport and Miles 250 or 300 guineas for a further report, and upon the reports of those two firms I could could not but feel satisfied; and at the request of the shareholders I took an active part in the business. If I had consulted my own peace of mind I should have let it alone, because I have been made the victim of both personal and political attacks I am sorry to say in consequence of my connection with this establishment.

F. Abigail,
Esq., M.P.
3 Dec., 1890.

431. Chairman.] Are you quite satisfied yourself that the business is sound? Of course I am satisfied on the reports I have referred to from those two great firms.

432. A statement has been made with respect to what may be regarded as an outstanding claim that may not be admitted of £8,000 in connection with the foundation of the Company. Can you explain to the Committee whether there is any obligation on the part of your directors to recognise that claim? No; I apprehend there is no legal obligation; both the Board and the shareholders consider that there is a moral obligation. I may say, that when this thing first came under my notice that I was so indignant with this proceeding that I took Counsel's opinion as to whether I could not proceed criminally against those parties in connection with these particular shares, because I was very dissatisfied with the mode in which they had obtained them. Mr. Simpson, one of the leading Counsel, advised us that there was no ground whatever for criminal proceedings. I met the shareholders, and explained the whole of the circumstances to them, and they then decided that the matter should be dealt with as a moral claim, and paid off if the profits of the establishment would permit it, and carry the thing to formation expenses. That is the position. They believed that the profits would pay it, and so do I.

433. But you are only under a moral obligation to pay anything, and you do not feel called upon to enter any claim in your balance sheet, or to meet it in any way, except when you find it convenient to pay it from your profits? Yes.

434. Mr. O'Sullivan.] I suppose it is the practise for banks to sail pretty close to the wind in these matters? I do not know in what way you mean.

435. As a matter of fact are not their obligations very often temporarily greater than their assets? I do not know that. No doubt many banks at times make losses in their business like other establishments. The Mercantile Bank, as you know just a little time ago wrote off £100,000.

436. If the banks were suddenly called upon to meet all their liabilities and obligations, is it not a fact that very few of them could do so? There is no bank in the city which if called upon to pay the whole of its obligations in cash, could do so.

437. Although this amount of capital, which is paid up, is not very large if the business of your bank is safe, may we not regard it as a substantial institution? I think so. If you look at the list of shareholders you will find that it represents good and substantial men. The shareholders, I think number between 400 and 500. It is a list that will bear favourable comparison with the list of shareholders of any other financial institution in this Colony.

438. Mr. Lee.] Evidence has been given with reference to a certificate which you gave to the auditors prior to your leaving for England. It was shown that that certificate was dated some months before the date of the half-yearly meeting? It must have been given before the date of the half-yearly meeting, because I left in February.

439. Was it practically dated by your departure? The answer to that is that at that period the Board had decided to make no advances of any extent from that time until the half-yearly meeting. The Board had decided that no advance of a considerable sum should be made during the term, so that the securities would not be altered in any way. They might alter in value as far as the condition of the country was concerned, but they would not alter otherwise.

440. Mr. Wyman Brown.] Might not the amount be reduced by overdrafts being paid off? That did not occur.

441. Mr. Lee.] Were you in the habit of giving those certificates? I did so on two or three occasions under the conditions I have stated, although perhaps it was an unwise thing, and I would not do it again.

442. I am not going into that, but what I want to know is this. Did you give that certificate for any special or specific purpose? No.

443. Were you in the habit of doing so? Yes, it was simply following out a rule I had adopted.

444. If the auditors have sworn that they did not see the securities, would that be accounted for by the fact that they were in the habit of entrusting you to see the securities and give the certificate? Yes.

445. Are you clearly of opinion that that certificate was not given for any specific purpose occasioned by your leaving the Colony? Yes.

445½. Chairman.] In answer to a question put by Mr. Sullivan, you spoke of banks being unable to meet their obligations in cash. Is it within your knowledge that banks are in the habit of making advances based to a very large extent on their deposits, most of which are fixed? Yes.

446. So that it would not be possible to call upon a bank to pay the whole of its liabilities in cash? Yes.

447. Have you been doing your business in the ordinary way, and if you found that you had sustained any severe losses, would the bank write off a sum as equivalent to those losses? Yes.

448. Have you been conducting business in the ordinary way of banking by taking deposits? Yes. In reply to what has been said in Parliament, I desire to say that the bank is doing nothing in the way of bills of sale. It has not been doing anything of that kind since 1887. That was one of the conditions I made when I went on the board that nothing in the way of bills of sale should be entertained, but that it should be a banking business. As a matter of fact, I gave instructions at once to get rid of the four or five bills of sale then held, which was done at a loss in each case.

449. Mr. Lee.] Are you asking for power in this Bill to increase your capital to £1,000,000? Yes.

450. Can you offer any reasons why that very large power should be granted? I can offer no reason why the sum should be £1,000,000, except, perhaps, that it looks good on paper. My own impression is that there would be no objection to a reduction of that, if the Committee thought fit I should offer no objection. I do not think the bank is ever likely to get up to such an amount as that.

Mr. William Twist called in, sworn and examined:—

451. Chairman.] Are you a member of the firm of Salmon and Twist? Yes.

452. Have you had much experience in auditing accounts? I have been an accountant all my life.

453. Were you in the service of Starkey and Taylor? Yes, at one time. We were both chief clerks in that firm.

454. When they gave up business did you start as partners? Yes.

Mr. W. Twist.

455.

- Mr. W. Twist. 455. Have you had much experience with regard to companies' accounts? Yes, a great deal.
 456. And also with regard to banks? Not so much banks as with regard to companies generally.
 3 Dec., 1890. 457. Have you during the last few days examined the mortgages, deeds, shares, scrip, and other securities of the Australian Banking Company? Yes.
 458. Is this your certificate which has been produced by Mr. Abigail? Yes.
 459. Did you find that the papers were produced to you in regular order, with the exception of those mentioned in your certificate? We compared all the securities with the security books, and we were satisfied that the securities were there with the exceptions already stated.
 460. Mr. King.] The Chairman asked if you were satisfied with the audit, and you replied that you were satisfied with the securities? We did not make an audit, we examined the security books, and all the securities were there.
 461. Mr. O'Sullivan.] Why did you not audit the accounts? We were not asked to do that. We were only engaged to examine the securities.

APPENDIX.

[To Evidence of Roderick M'Namara.]

The Seventh Report of the Australian Banking Company (Limited), Sydney, to be presented to the Shareholders at the Half-yearly General Meeting to be held in Sydney, on Tuesday, 29th July, 1890.

THE directors have pleasure in submitting to the shareholders the following statement of the bank's affairs and abstract of Profit and Loss Accounts as on the 30th June, 1890.

The transactions for the half-year show a gross profit of £10,235 19s. 10d., and after making provision for interest on deposits, &c., as per Profit and Loss Account, there remains a net profit of £7,869 12s. 2d., which your directors propose to appropriate as follows:—

To Dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum	3,500	0	0
„ Written off formation expenses at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, as allowed by clause 80 of the Joint Stock Companies Act	287	0	0
„ Reserve Fund (making it now £3,000)	500	0	0

The directors congratulate the shareholders upon the satisfactory progress of the bank during the past half-year, and hope to receive from them a continuance of that personal co-operation which has already so materially assisted in forwarding the business of the bank. The Board of Management anticipate that the increased business of the ensuing half-year should result in a satisfactory and remunerative manner to the shareholders.

It will be the duty of this meeting to elect two directors in the room of William Bull, Esq., J.P., and Robert Cunningham, Esq., who retired by rotation, but are eligible for re-election, and offer themselves accordingly.

On the 21st June last Mr. John Mahoney retired from the Board of directors. The 19th June being the last meeting of the Board for the half-year, the vacancy has been temporarily filled by T. H. Hassall, Esq., M.L.A.; Mr. Hassall's term of office will expire in July, 1891.

Your directors have (for some time past) in contemplation the desirableness of increasing, at the same time of strengthening the Board of Directors, by appointing (with your sanction) two new directors, making the number seven instead of five. To simplify the working of the Board, it will be necessary for the newly appointed directors to seek re-election at the general meeting, to be held in July, 1891.

During the half-year a branch of the bank has been opened at Goulburn, under the management of Mr. C. H. Atkinson, with a view to the ultimate extension of the operations and business of the Bank to the larger centres of population throughout the Colony.

For and on behalf of the Board of Directors,

SAMUEL G. DAVISON,
Chairman.

THE AUSTRALIAN BANKING COMPANY, LIMITED.

We further certify that, in our opinion, the said aggregate balance-sheet is properly drawn up, and exhibits a true and correct view of the bank's affairs, as shown by the books of the 30th June, 1890.

Dear Sirs,

We have to certify that, at the request of the directors of the above Company, we have examined and checked the books, vouchers, and securities from the date of registration, 20th June, 1886, to the 20th of July, 1887, and find the books well and correctly kept in every particular.

Yours, &c.,
STARKEY AND TAYLOR.

To the Directors of the Australian Banking Co. (Limited), Sydney.

C 2.

Moore-street, Sydney, 13 February, 1888.

Gentlemen,

Herewith we beg to hand you balance-sheet and profit and loss account to 31st December, 1887, duly certified to by us, and also an explanatory memorandum, showing how our figures are arrived at, and enabling you to compare them with your books.

As we have not yet received the counsel's opinion asked for by us, with reference to the 3,000 shares issued to the Provisional Directors, we have treated them in the accounts as legally issued, and have made a reservation in respect thereof in the certificate at the foot of the balance-sheet.

A minute of your Board has been shown us, resolving to treat all expenditure to 30th April, 1887, as formation expenses; but we have been unable to accept this basis for the accounts. We have, however, caused the expenditure of the Company to be analysed, and have apportioned to formation expenses such items as we consider properly chargeable thereto.

You will observe that we have allowed for bad debts a sum of £1,000 over and above those marked as bad by your Committee. We have done so after careful consideration, and think it a fair allowance to make. The same remark will apply to the rebate on bills discounted, which we have calculated at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

Our report of 5th December last is so recent that it is unnecessary for us now to enter into any detail, but we may say that we have found the books in satisfactory order as regards entries made between the 1st November and 31st December last.

We are, &c.,
DAVENPORT, MILES, & Co.,
Public Accountants.

To the Directors of the Australian Banking Company (Limited), Sydney.

[To Evidence of Roderick M'Namara.]

Dear Sir,

Beresford Chambers, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 20 July, 1888.

As verbally explained yesterday to Mr. Scott and yourself, we are not responsible for the correctness of the balances brought down at 1st January, '88, nor for the correctness of items charged to the various accounts; but we have pleasure in saying that we counted Teller's cash and coin in Treasury on 30th June, and have checked the sub. and main additions of the Teller's Cash Book, the postings from Cash Book to General Ledger, and compared the balances of the General Ledger with the schedules of balances in the Current Account Ledger and the Advance Ledger, and found all correct.

Find balance herewith.

Yours, &c.,
FORD AND TROUP.

Beresford Chambers, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 12 January, 1889.

Gentlemen,

We beg to certify that we have counted Teller's cash and coin in Treasury, 31 December, 1888; have checked the postings from Cash Book to General Ledger; compared the balances of the General Ledger with the schedules of balances in the Current Account and Advance Ledgers; checked the bills discounted in the hands of the company, at 31 December, and obtained a certificate for those lodged with the Commercial Banking Company; checked past due bills in the hands of the company; for those held by solicitors, we have obtained certificates, with the following exceptions, viz. :—

For whom discounted.	Acceptor or Drawer.	Amount.
Goldsmith, B.	Kerchner, C. J.	£240 5 0
Gregg, J. M.	Blousten, H.	25 0 0
Edmunds, W.	Tudgay, J.	8 4 2
McIntyre, H.	Cornish, C.	25 0 0
Hogg & Co.	Cook, H.	38 15 3

Compared Deposit Register with accounts in General Ledger. Agreed Share Register with list of shareholders, and checked transfer of shares to 31st December, 1888, and, with exceptions mentioned, have found all of same correct.

The amount at the credit of the Company's account with Commercial Banking Company we have verified by obtaining a certificate therefrom. Referring to our further report,

We are, &c.,

Gentlemen,

Pomeroy Chambers, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 10 July, 1890.

This is to certify that we have audited the books, vouchers, &c., of your Bank for the six months ending, the 30th June, 1890, and find the same to agree with the balance-sheet handed to us. The books are kept in a satisfactory manner.

We remain, &c.,

WEDNESDAY, 22 OCTOBER, 1890.

Present:—

Mr. GARLAND,		Mr. PLUMB,
Mr. FRANK FARNELL,		Mr. WALL.
C. L. GARLAND, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Plumb, Esq., sworn and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are a ratepayer of the town of Blayney? Yes.
2. And an ex-alderman and mayor of the town? Yes.
3. You are aware that the Municipal Council has neglected to comply with the 64th section of the Act, which requires an estimate to be made of the probable amount required during the current year for the various works set forth in that clause? Yes, and I believe it was occasioned through the suicide of the council clerk.
4. Mr. Wall.] There was an assessment made, I suppose, but it was not made within the prescribed time? That is so. The council clerk who preceded the present clerk committed suicide, and his accounts were always in arrears.
5. Chairman.] And when the Council sued certain ratepayers for rates this technical objection was raised, and proved fatal to the legality of the claims of the Council for rates? Yes; they evaded the payment on a technical point. I know I paid my rates, and I heard several ratepayers say they would not pay; that there was a technical objection in the way, and they would evade payment by taking advantage of that technicality.
6. And the Municipal Council now seeks to have the rates for those years validated? Yes.

7. Was that contract near its termination about that time? It terminated in December, 1889.
8. What was the resolution of the Council? The following resolution was passed on the 20th May, 1889:—"That, in view of the early termination of the agreement with the Newcastle Gas Company with the Council for the supply of gaslight in streets, it is desirable that some other mode of lighting be considered; and with this object in view a Committee of the whole Council be called at an early date for the purpose of inquiring into the best way of lighting with electricity, and that such Committee be empowered to obtain all reliable information as to the cost of proper plant, and the benefits derivable therefrom, and the success or otherwise in other places where the light has been tried; and further, that two aldermen be appointed to visit an inland town where its use has been practically illustrated, and report to the Committee; and that such Committee report the result of its observations to the Council at its earliest convenience."
9. Mr. Hugh Taylor.] Will you now give us the report of the Committee? There was no report from the Committee—the Council itself dealt with the matter.
10. Mr. Baker.] When? In April, 1890.
11. Was the question then finally dealt with by the Council? Yes; and tenders were authorized to be called for.
12. A resolution was passed that tenders be called for? Yes. They were called for, and the tender of Messrs. Kirkland & Co., of Sydney, was accepted.

- E. S.
Holland.
9 July, 1890.
13. For what amount? £8,529 12s.
 14. What were the terms? The agreement was that Kirkland & Co. were to run the plant for one or for five years, or for any period, for the sum of £1,150 per annum.
 15. Chairman.] That I suppose was in order that the Council might be satisfied with the operation of the electric light before taking it over? Yes.
 16. Mr. Baker.] Has the Council provided a site for the works? It has.
 17. At what expense? £1,000.
 18. Within the municipality? Yes. The central station will be in the centre of the borough.
 19. And the Council may take over the work from the contractor at any time? Yes; whenever they are satisfied that everything is in working order.
 20. That is to say, they can at any time do away with the expense of £1,150 per annum? Yes; if our consulting electrician states that the works are properly constructed, and that the lighting is in good order—in fact the Council can if they choose take over the works on the completion of the contract.
 21. Will you hand in the original contract between the Council and Kirkland & Co.? Yes.
 22. And you will provide a copy? Yes.
 23. Under that contract the contractors have to provide 400 street-lamps? Yes.
 24. Of 25-candle power each? Yes.
 25. Being equal to 10,000 lights for street-lighting, as against 5,152 nominally received from the Gas Company? Yes, nominally received.
 26. And what number of private lights? 700 private lights of 25-candle power each.
 27. Equal to 17,500 lights, or a total of 27,500? Yes.
 28. Were the Council unanimous in passing their resolution? Almost. The voting was 6 to 4. Two aldermen were absent and paired. You may say therefore that the voting was 7 to 5. The aldermen now are all unanimous on the subject.
 29. Have any public meetings been held in opposition to the Council applying for this Bill? There was a sort of meeting called at the School of Arts. I was not present, and only know of it from the advertisements of it which appeared in the papers.
 30. The Council ask the power to use the electric light only within their own boundaries? Yes.
 31. Any adjoining municipality can apply to the Council to be supplied? Yes; the Council can supply them with consent.
 32. You have no right under the terms of the Bill to interfere with the other municipalities? No.
 33. Was a conference held by the various municipalities in reference to this Bill? Not in reference to this Bill, but in reference to the Gas Company's Bill. The Gas Company wrote to the Council in January or February of this year, stating its intention to apply for a Bill to supply the electric light to Newcastle, and within a radius of 10 miles. The Council decided that a conference of all the municipalities of the district should be called for the purpose of considering the measure.
 34. When was it called? The conference was held on the 18th March.
 35. Was it a large gathering? All the municipalities in the district, twelve in number, were represented by mayors and aldermen.
 36. Will you mention the municipalities? Newcastle, Wickham, Hamilton, Adamstown, Merewether, Lambton, New Lambton, Waratah, Wallsend, Plattsburgh, Stockton, and Carrington. There were, I think, with the exception of Newcastle, which was represented by the mayor and all the aldermen, two representatives from each municipality.
 37. What was the outcome of the conference? It was unanimously decided that strenuous efforts should be made to oppose the Newcastle Gas Company's Bill. Each municipality undertook to petition Parliament in opposition to the Bill.
 38. Have you in your intercourse with the citizens of Newcastle heard them express any objections to the Bill? I have heard almost unanimous expressions of approval. The proprietors of the large business places in Newcastle are anxious to have the light as quickly as possible.
 39. If the Council obtain power to supply electricity to private consumers, could they supply it at a much less rate than that at which it would be supplied by the Gas Company? Yes, at about half the rate—at least that is what we are told by our consulting electrician. The Council are paying the Gas Company at the present time £2,000 altogether for gas supplied; and Kirkland & Co. would run the electric light for £1,150 per annum.
 40. And that expense per annum can at any time be dispensed with by the Council undertaking to run the work themselves? Yes, at an estimated cost of £950 per annum—that is for working expenses, material, labour, and clerical expenses.
 41. How many gas-lamps are there at the present time? There are 313 gas-lamps, at £5 10s. a lamp—equal to £1,721 10s. per annum. There are nine lamps at £7 15s. per lamp—equal to £47 16s. 3d. per annum, making a total of £1,769 6s. 3d. per annum. In addition to that we pay the Gas Company from £100 to £150 per annum for removals, bringing the total up to nearly £2,000 per annum—that is for removing lamps from one place to another, and for lowering the mains, sometimes to suit their convenience, and sometimes to suit the convenience of the Council. Where no gas-mains are laid in dedicated streets we have to pay for the pipes.
 42. What is the population of Newcastle? The estimated population at the present time is about 20,000. A census has not been taken for the last nine years; but taking the number of houses in the borough, and allowing five persons for every house, we get the number I have named.
 43. What is the ratable property valued at? £362,534 16s. The ordinary rate, at 1s. in the £, is £8,005 19s. 7d.; the lighting rate, at 3d. in the £, is £2,001 19s. 2d.; the watering-streets rate, at 4d. in the £, is £812 3s. 9d.; the water rates amount to £4,533 3s. 10d.; the endowments to £3,531 17s. 9d.; and the revenue from other sources to £11,569 11s. 4d., making the total receipts for last year £30,504 15s. 5d.
 44. What is the Council's indebtedness? The Council has borrowed by debenture £35,000 on its general account and £16,000 for water supply, making a total of £51,000. The interest is at 4 and 5 per cent., with the Government endorsement.
 45. Assuming the electric plant to be in good working order, do you think there would be a saving of expense to the ratepayers if the Government were to supply private consumers—that is as compared with the amount now paid for gas? The private lighting alone would have the effect of considerably reducing the lighting rate. The cost of the private light would also be diminished.

46. Would the ratepayers also save by the public lighting? Yes, about 1½d. in the £. The present lighting rate is 3d. in the £, and we estimate that it will be half that amount. E. S. Holland.
47. Chairman.] You expect a present saving to the ratepayers of about £1,000 a year? Yes. 9 July, 1890.
48. To say nothing of future saving? Quite so.
49. Mr. Baker.] Under these circumstances it has been deemed expedient that the Council should light the borough with electricity? Yes; the Council and ratepayers are generally of that opinion.
50. Chairman.] Were you present when witnesses were examined in connection with the Newcastle Gas Company's Bill? Yes.
51. During the whole examination? Nearly all the time.
52. You heard the bulk of the witnesses examined? Yes.
53. The evidence given by the various mayors and aldermen applies largely to the measure which the Council now have before Parliament? Yes.
54. Mr. Baker.] Do you know Mr. Thomas Brooks of Newcastle? Yes; he was at one time alderman of the borough.
55. I believe he is one of the petitioners against the Bill? Yes.
56. Mr. Brown.] You have given us only a part of the contract—the most important part—the specifications—are wanting? I can produce the specifications now.
57. I think you mentioned that the only expense to which the Council would be put would be the £1,150 a year they would have to pay to Kirkland & Co., but is there not an additional item? A small additional item.
58. Have they not to pay Kirkland & Co. 8½ per cent.? They have to pay 8½ per cent upon £8,529 until they take over the work.
59. I see that Kirkland & Co. have not to erect the buildings themselves? Oh, yes they have—that is provided for in the specifications. You will see that they have to erect the engine-house and buildings.
60. And you have to pay them an additional £1,150 a year until the Council take over the plant? Yes, if we decide to adopt that course; but we have the option of taking over the plant on the completion of the contract.
61. The land cost the Council £1,000? Yes.
62. And 5 per cent. on that would be £50? Yes, but the land has a progressive value of its own.
63. But if you borrow £1,000 you will have to pay 5 per cent. on your overdraft? We get an overdraft for 7 per cent., and we have three years to pay it in.
64. I see that the number of lights which Kirkland & Co. have to supply and to keep going is 300? I make it 400.
65. The specifications say that there are to be 300 street-lamps and 100 spare lamps? They have to erect for use 400 lamps.
66. I take it from the specifications that the 100 spare lamps will not necessarily be erected, but that they are merely to be supplied to replace any which may be defective? That is not the intention of the Council. Kirkland & Co. are to light 400 street-lamps.
67. Mr. Baker.] Do the contractors understand that they are to light 400 lamps if necessary? Yes; the contractors are to increase the arc or incandescent lamps to such an extent as the Council may require—that is beyond the 400.
68. Mr. Brown.] But does the specification provide for the lighting of 400 lamps? That is the intention of the Council.
69. What you mean is, that there are 300 lamps, increasable up to 400? No; I say they are to light 400 lamps.
70. Under the contract? That is in the contract.
71. Will you look at the specifications and see whether it is not the case that 300 street-lamps are to be provided? Yes; I see there are to be 300 street-lamps, but under that you will see 100 spare lamps of 25-candle power.
72. The agreement provides that if more lamps than the 400 are required the company are to be compensated? They are to be paid for their work.
73. You are sure that they understand that they have to provide 400 lamps? That is what they are making provision to do. They have called for tenders for the supply of 400 posts for the lamps, and Ellis Brothers' tender has been accepted.

WEDNESDAY, 16 JULY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. H. TAYLOR,
MR. CURLEY,

MR. CREER,
MR. A. BROWN,

A. BROWN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. G. Wallace, Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the Promoters of the Bill.
Mr. J. H. Brown, Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the Newcastle Gas Company, and certain Ratepayers of Newcastle, petitioning against the Bill.

Colin Christie called in, sworn, and examined:—

74. Mr. Wallace.] You are Mayor of the city of Newcastle? Yes. C. Christie.
75. And have been so for how long? Since February last. 16 July, 1890.
76. How long have you been an alderman of the Council? I am now in my third period of election, going on for nine years.
77. How long have you been a resident of the city? Forty years.
78. You have been a resident of the city since the first establishment of a Gas Company? Yes, and long before that.
79. You have seen the Bill before the Committee, empowering the Council of the city of Newcastle to light the streets with electricity? I have.
80. Do you think it will be an enactment beneficial to the city? I do. 81.

- C. Christie. 81. On what do you base that opinion? Upon the opinions given by experts who have been employed by the Council to assist them in coming to a judgment in the matter.
- 16 July, 1890. 82. Do you believe that the Bill will result in a saving to the ratepayers of the borough? A saving of 50 per cent., according to the representations made to us by an expert. I may say that we are assured by an expert that we shall get our lights in the streets at £2 per annum, burning every night in the year from sunset to sunrise. At present we are paying more than double that for gas. We are also assured that the electric light will be far superior to the light for which we are paying the higher sum.
83. That is as regards its illuminating power? As regards its illuminating power.
84. You were examined by the Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly which inquired into the Newcastle Company's Gas Bill? I was.
85. You have read the printed report of the evidence given on that occasion? I have.
86. And such portion of the evidence given by you on that occasion as affects the subject now before this Committee you confirm? I do; it is a true and accurate report of what I said.
87. You are aware that a contract has been entered into by the Newcastle Council for the construction of the Electric-light Works? I am; the contract has been signed and sealed.
88. The cost of these works and of their maintenance will be paid out of the municipal fund? Yes.
89. Raised from the ratepayers of the borough? Well, out of funds raised under the provisions of this Bill.
90. Do you think it will be a matter of profit and convenience to the ratepayers to be supplied with private lights from the works so erected by the company? I think it would be very greatly to the advantage of the people that such power should be given to the Corporation enabling the people to utilize to their fullest extent the works which are to be built out of their money.
91. Are you aware whether there is any strong public feeling in favour of this Bill? There is a very strong public feeling in favour of it.
92. You have seen a petition signed by 665 persons in favour of the Bill? Yes. I may say that the petition was given into the hands of Mr. Hannell, in order that he might collect signatures.
93. Mr. Brown.] He was paid by the Council to collect signatures? Yes.
94. Mr. Wallace.] The signatures were obtained at the request of the City Council? Yes. I may say that many persons in the streets have volunteered to me the information that their signatures to the petition against the Bill were obtained by misrepresentation.
95. Mr. Brown.] Have you taken any trouble to test the statements of the experts as to the cost of the lamps per annum? I have no skill in that matter.
96. I suppose you know the ordinary rules of arithmetic? Yes; but this is a technical matter concerning the production of electricity.
97. Is it not the case that according to the contract you would have to pay £1,150 a year for the maintenance of the works? I cannot give you the figures.
98. The Town Clerk said so? If he said so I have no doubt he is right; he has custody of all the figures.
99. Did the Council deal with the matter on the 2nd of June last—do you remember a report in the Newcastle Herald of some proceedings in connection with which it was said that the contract had been signed? I cannot speak as to dates; these things are matters of record in the offices.
- 99½. You were to pay these people 8½ per cent. on the contract price till you took the works over? Yes.
100. That would be £720 on £8,000 odd? If you have calculated it I will take your word.
101. Mr. Holland said you had to pay 7 per cent. on the overdraft to pay £1,000 for the land? I expect we are paying that at the present time, but that amount will be lessened when we get the big loan at 4 per cent. I ought to mention that the overdraft is merely a temporary expedient.
102. And you are to receive 300 lights? I think the number is 400.
103. If you divide £1,940, the total amount of your expenses, by 300, you will find that you will be paying £6 7s. per lamp instead of £2, as you led us to suppose would be the case? I cannot go into figures to that extent at a moment's notice. If you have reckoned up the expenses, and say that the figures you have given are correct, I will take your word for it.
104. You accept my calculation? I accept your calculation, but not the results of it.
105. Assuming that you had 400 lamps for the same sum of money, would you not be paying within a fraction of £5 per lamp? I really could not answer that question.
106. How many lamps have you from the Gas Company now? I really cannot say; I cannot keep figures in my head.
107. How much do you pay them? I could not tell you.
108. Have the whole of the proceedings of the Council in connection with this matter been made public? The reporters have been present at our meetings, but whether they have done their duty or not I could not say. Everything has been done with open doors.
109. Do you mean to say that every meeting has been held with open doors? Every meeting of the Council.
110. But I mean every meeting which has dealt with the matter? Yes, that is really the case, because whatever is done in committee has to be brought up again in the Council with open doors—that is always done.
111. Chairman.] It is the practice for the Council to resolve itself into committee with closed doors, and to report afterwards? Yes. It seems to me that Mr. Brown is losing sight of the fact that the agreement to which he has been referring is merely temporary. We agree with the contractors to run the plant at a certain price, until it has been proved that the works are thoroughly satisfactory; then we take it over and we work it at a much cheaper rate than they will be able to work it at for us, because they will have to pay the expenses of experts travelling between Sydney and Newcastle for the purpose of superintending. We shall have an expert employed upon the ground, and shall otherwise save money in running the works.
112. Mr. H. Taylor] You are fully persuaded that the Council will be able to work the light cheaper than any contractors? Yes; as a rule, in Newcastle the Council manage things themselves much cheaper than they are managed by contractors. That is our experience, and we are now employing workmen to do almost everything we require. Very little is done by contract. We find our present system much better and much more economical, and that the work is better done. It is the object of the contractor to get work done as cheaply as he can—it is the object of the Council to get it done as well as we can.

113. Mr. Brown.] You see that you have been misled as to the cost per lamp? I do not admit that. I may say that the main object of our putting the Town Clerk forward to give evidence first was that he might give you the figures of which he has custody.

C. Christie.

114. Mr. Creer.] No doubt in your position as Mayor, presiding over all the Committee and Council meetings, you have given great consideration to this question of lighting Newcastle with electricity. Yes.
115. And is it your opinion that the Council would give a better light at a cheaper rate than they are now paying? I do most solemnly believe so. I have not presided over all the meetings at which the matter has been considered. It was under consideration by the Council long previous to my becoming Mayor—while Alderman Buchanan was Mayor. I have, however, always taken a great interest in the question. Mr. Erskine was the expert we employed. He examined the contracts and the various tenders, and he was to recommend which was the cheapest and best; also to give his reasons. These things he did minutely. The effect of his report was that the electric light, at the price named, would not cost more than £2 a light, the lamps being burnt every night from sunset to sunrise.

116. You are of opinion that the Council are about to adopt the light on account of its being both better and cheaper? That is our only object.

117. Chairman.] In your daily intercourse with the citizens and ratepayers, have you heard any expressions of approval or disapproval of this Bill. Yes.

118. To what effect have been the bulk of the comments made? As I said before, when giving evidence in connection with the Newcastle Gas Company's Bill, they were against that Bill. I now reiterate the opinion I then expressed that nine-tenths of the people are in favour of electric lighting by the Council. Some of those who have signed petitions against this Bill have acknowledged to me that they were induced to do so by misrepresentations.

Henry Buchanan called in, sworn, and examined:—

119. Mr. Wallace.] You are an alderman of the borough of Newcastle? Yes.

120. And you were once Mayor? In 1888 and 1889.

121. You have read the provisions of the Bill now before the Committee? Yes.

122. You know the substance of it? Yes.

123. Has this matter been fully discussed by the Borough Council? Yes.

124. Committee meetings have been held? Yes.

125. And resolutions have been passed in favour of the application for this Bill? Yes.

126. As a matter of fact, a contract has been entered into by the Council for the erection of electric-light works? Yes.

127. You have had opportunities during the time the matter was under consideration by the Council, and since the resolution of the Council was passed, of ascertaining the public opinion of Newcastle in connection with this matter? Yes.

128. From the knowledge you have gained by associating with people and discussing this matter with them, can you say whether the public opinion in Newcastle is in favour of the powers sought for by this Bill being granted to the Council? A large majority are in favour of that step.

129. I suppose that in your position as Mayor and Chairman of the various committees dealing with the matter you have gone into it pretty thoroughly yourself? Yes.

130. And you have sought the information and advice of experts? Yes.

131. You are satisfied, from the information so obtained, that the electric lighting will be cheaper for the borough, in the first instance, for the purposes of public light? Yes.

132. Do you believe it will be a convenience, as well as a pecuniary saving, to the ratepayers of the borough if they could obtain from the Council the electric lighting they require? I am of that opinion.

133. I understand that while you held office as Mayor you went over to Melbourne, at the request of the Council, and made inquiries into this matter there? I was going to Melbourne on a visit, and I was deputed by the Council to make inquiry as to electric lighting.

134. Did you make such inquiry while you were there? Yes.

135. Did you go thoroughly into the whole question of electric lighting? Yes.

136. And it is partially on the information you there received that you form the opinions you have now expressed? Yes.

137. Mr. Brown.] Do you know anything of electricity yourself? I am not an expert.

138. You have been guided by what you have been told? Yes, and from my own observation.

139. Are you not aware that the electric light which was formerly used at Roberts's Hotel was discontinued on account of the cost? I am aware of that. I also heard the explanation that the light was badly managed.

140. You think that the Newcastle Council are certain to manage better than Mr. Roberts? Well, they will have more consumption, and they will be able to secure the services of a better expert.

141. Mr. Curley.] What number of meetings were held to consider the matter before the Council entered into the contract? The matter was under discussion for from fifteen to eighteen months, and on an average I suppose there would be two meetings a month in connection with the matter.

142. Mr. Wallace.] You are satisfied that an exhaustive inquiry was made by the Council into the whole question of the electric lighting of the borough? Yes—in fact I was not in favour of the electric lighting myself until I saw it working. I saw an installation of 4,000 lights working in Melbourne.

143. Mr. H. Taylor.] I suppose that at all municipal elections held while this question has been agitated in Newcastle candidates were returned either in support of or against the electric lighting? It was never brought forward as a test question at elections, although candidates who had voted for it were returned unopposed.

144. Mr. Brown.] As a matter of fact you yourself were elected while you were opposed to it? That is not the case.

H. Buchanan.
16 July, 1890.

Thomas Brooks called in, sworn, and examined:—

- T. Brooks. 145. Mr. Brown.] You are a ratepayer of the borough of Newcastle? I am.
 16 July. 1890. 146. You are also Chairman of the Newcastle Steamship Co.? Yes.
 147. Have you read the Bill which has been referred to this Committee? I have not.
 148. You are aware that the Newcastle Council are applying for power to supply the electric light to private individuals, as well as to light the city with it? Yes.
 149. Do you consider that a Bill containing such powers is in the interests of the ratepayers? I believe it is diametrically opposed to the interests of a large body of ratepayers—it may be to the interest of a few.
 150. Are you aware of the feeling of the ratepayers generally about the matter? Yes, as far as I have canvassed them. I went from Watt-street to the Co.'s bridge, a distance of about half a mile in the main street.
 151. What was the feeling among those residents? Eighty per cent. of those I spoke to were against the Bill.
 152. And the remaining 20 per cent.—did they give opinions decidedly in favour of the Bill? A great number of those who refused to sign the petition were the Council's tenants in the Market Square. They were averse to taking any action opposed to the action of the Council, fearing that, as they were only weekly tenants, they might have notice to quit.
 153. I believe the Newcastle Steamship Co.'s boats use the electric light? They do.
 154. Are you aware whether that light is well managed? Yes, and it is very expensive to manage.
 155. More expensive than kerosene or candles? Yes; but we save heat in hot weather, and that compensates for the expense; it is not a matter of economy—it is a matter of expediency.
 156. You were an alderman for many years? For about seventeen years continuously.
 157. You have had some experience as to the cost of gas to the Council? Yes.
 158. Can you say from your experience as an alderman, and as a director of the Newcastle Steamship Company, whether the electric light would be a cheaper mode of illumination than gas? I can say positively that it will cost double the present cost of gas to the Municipal Council.
 159. What is the price per lamp of the incandescent lamps? It comes to nearly £9 when you total up everything.
 160. I was alluding more particularly to the cost of the lamp itself—the bulb? We import bulbs at a cost of about 5s. apiece.
 161. Do you know how long they last? Their life is not very great.
 162. Under ordinary circumstances, could you give us an idea? I could not; I have never kept a record of it. I know they are the most expensive things we have to deal with.
 163. Mr. Wallace.] You are a shareholder in the Newcastle Gas and Coke Company? No; I had an interest in it eight or ten years ago; but I have no interest in it at present, either directly or indirectly. My action is solely in the interests of the ratepayers. I have no desire to see the lighting rate increased to double its present amount in order to satisfy a fad of the Council.
 164. Were you at a meeting called at the School of Arts to oppose this Bill? I was.
 165. How many persons attended? I could not say.
 166. Were there 100 present? About 100, I think.
 167. What is the population of Newcastle? I could not say; I suppose there are 3,000 or 4,000 ratepayers.
 168. The meeting to which you refer was called by advertisement in the local paper? Yes.
 169. Was it a unanimous meeting? It was not; there were one or two aldermen present, I think, in favour of the lighting.
 170. Do you not think that, if the matter were of such importance to the ratepayers as you would have us believe, 100 persons was rather a poor attendance at a meeting called by advertisement? No; it takes dynamite to move some of the Newcastle people—they are never alive to their own interests until the injury is done. My great objection to the Bill is: That we live upon the production and sale of our coal, and we find men sent into the Council as representatives of the people who should do everything in their power to conserve the interests of the city endeavouring to introduce a light which, if it succeeds, will induce other persons to adopt it, and to cease the supply of coal they now receive.
 171. How much coal is consumed by the gas-works? Forty thousand tons are sent from Newcastle every month for the manufacture of gas. If other cities were to follow the example of Newcastle in the matter of electric light—supposing it to be successful—our production of coal per month would be reduced by 40,000 tons.
 172. One of the strongest objections you have to the introduction of electricity as a lighting power is, that it will reduce the quantity of coal consumed by gas-works, and so interfere with the output from Newcastle? That is one strong objection I have—another is, that the lighting rate will be doubled. Our output at the present time is little enough without any attempt being made to further reduce it.
 173. Mr. Curley.] How many tenants have the Council in their Market-square property? I could not say—there might be twenty or thirty. They did not all refuse to sign the petition; some of them signed it.
 174. Chairman.] Did you obtain Dr. Harris's name to the petition personally? Yes; in the presence of Mr. Gardiner.
 175. What did he say? He said he would sign it willingly.
 176. Do you know whether the signature to the letter I now hand you is that of Dr. Harris? I could not say; all I have to say is that if he wrote that letter after the spontaneous way in which he signed the petition he is a regular cocktail.
 177. He did not say anything about his being opposed to the Electric-lighting Bill? He said he was in favour of any movement which would conserve our trade. One question I put to him was, that if electricity were generally used throughout Australia it would seriously affect the output of our coal, and he said, "I would sign anything which would conserve that."
 178. Did you say to him that the petition was against the Council having a special right to make experiments with the electric light? I may have said that; I believe it is the case.
 179. You believe that the contract into which the Council have entered is experimental? Yes.

Frank Gardiner called in, sworn, and examined:—

F. Gardiner.
16 July, 1890.

180. Mr. Brown.] What is your occupation? I am an auctioneer and general agent.
181. Residing in Newcastle? Yes.
182. Are you a ratepayer? Yes.
183. You are aware that the Borough Council of Newcastle are applying for a Bill to enable them to light the streets of Newcastle with electricity, and to supply the light to private individuals? Yes.
184. Do you believe that that will be in the interests of the ratepayers generally? I do not.
185. On what ground do you object to it? The excessive cost.
186. You believe that the rates will be heavier than they are now? Considerably so.
187. Do you think there would be such an increase in the volume of light as would compensate for the increase in the rates? No; I think the incandescent lights will not be as good as the present supply of gas-light.
188. Have you seen the incandescent light in operation elsewhere? Yes.
189. And you do not consider it satisfactory? I do not, indeed.
190. Have you made any calculation as to the cost per lamp on the basis of the Council's expenditure? Yes.
191. What do you estimate the cost per lamp per annum would be? Close upon £9.
192. Are you aware of the existence of any feeling one way or the other among the ratepayers? From my experience in going round with a petition against the Council undertaking to light the city with electricity, I should say that a large majority of the ratepayers were opposed to that step.
193. Mr. Wallace.] Do you know how many ratepayers there are in the city? I could not say.
194. You took round a petition opposed to the Bill? Yes, in conjunction with Mr. Brooks.
195. The signatures you obtained amounted to 300? 300 odd.
196. That is not a majority of the ratepayers? We had not time to go further.
197. But as a matter of fact 300 is not a majority? No.
198. Do you look upon yourself as an expert in the matter of electric lighting? I am not an expert.
199. Are you a shareholder in the Gas Co.? Yes.
200. I daresay the passing of such a Bill as this would seriously affect the interest of shareholders in the Gas Co.? Yes; there is no doubt about that.
201. Upon what basis do you calculate the cost per lamp at £9? I find that Kirkland's tender for the plant was £8,529 12s., to which must be added £1,000 for the land. 2½ per cent. for supervision of the erection, on £8,529 12s., would be £237. There would be some other slight incidental expenses, making the amount at the lowest calculation about £10,000. The working expenses according to Mr. Kirkland's statement would be £1,150. I have put down interest at 6 per cent. on £10,000, making £600.
202. Why do you make it 6 per cent., when a loan can be floated at 4 per cent.? The Council have arranged to give Kirkland & Co. 8½ per cent. for an indefinite time. I base my calculation on 6 per cent. I have allowed for depreciation at 8 per cent. per annum, giving £682 6s. 6d; that is on the sum of £8,529 12s. I have estimated that the lamps would require renewing twice per annum, and I believe that is a low estimate—that would amount to £86 16s. The total amount would be £2,699 2s. 6d. The arrangement made was for 300 lamps; that would make the amount close upon £9 per lamp per annum.
203. You base your calculation upon 300 lamps? Yes.
204. You know that 400 are provided for? I believe there is some arrangement for spare lamps.
205. Chairman.] You have not considered whether the electric light in itself would not be better than gas-light? My experience convinces me that the incandescent light is not as good outside as gas-light. If you distribute it over 30 or 40 miles of wire the attraction is so great that before the current reaches the place of combustion a great deal of its power will have escaped.
206. Then you do not think the incandescent light is as good as gas-light? I do not think so.
207. Do you remember a meeting of the ratepayers being called in opposition to electric lighting by the Council? Yes.
208. Were you present? Yes.
209. How many persons assembled? Between fifty and sixty.
210. Was anything done in connection with the electric lighting? The expression of feeling was greatly adverse to the Council entering into the contract.
211. Were the persons at that meeting nearly all ratepayers? I should imagine so—the meeting called was one of ratepayers adverse to the lighting of the city by electricity. I presume, therefore, that all present were ratepayers.
212. Do you know whether many shareholders in the Gas Company were there? I do not know of a single one.
213. They might all have been shareholders, but you did not know them to be so? They might have been shareholders, but I was not aware of the fact.
214. Was any other meeting on the subject called in the city? Not that I am aware of. I might say that at the meeting to which I referred a committee was formed to take certain steps, and that resulted in the petition.
215. Mr. Creer.] You say that the total cost to the Council will be £10,000? Yes, of the plant and supervision.
216. And that the working expenses and interest will come to £2,699? Yes.
217. Do you know that the Council intend lighting the Council Chambers and other municipal buildings, as well as the street-lamps? The expense would increase pro rata.
218. You went round with the petition in opposition to the Council's Bill? I did.
219. Are you aware that a petition in favour of the Bill was also sent round? Afterwards.
220. Are you aware whether any of those who signed your petition had signed a petition in favour of the Bill? I am not aware of any.
221. How many signatures did you get? I think 340.
222. Did you go down Hunter-street? Principally.
223. Did the storekeepers generally sign? Generally, yes. In my opinion, if there had been time a larger number of signatures would have been obtained. We took Hunter-street and Watt-street, and did not go into Church-street at all.

Charles

Charles Frederick Stokes called in, sworn, and examined :—

- C. F. Stokes. 224. Mr. Brown.] You are Chairman of the Newcastle Gas and Coke Co. ? Yes.
 225. I believe you gave evidence with regard to the Gas Co.'s Electric-lighting Bill ? Yes.
 16 July, 1890. 226. Have you read that evidence since it has been in print ? I have never seen it.
 227. When did the company first take steps with a view to the introduction of their Bill ? About eighteen months ago they had a Bill prepared by you.
 228. Why was not the Bill introduced before ? The difficulty was that we had to get a meeting of shareholders to authorize the introduction of the Bill. That took us some considerable time. Then we happened to miss a session of Parliament—the Bill was brought on too late.
 229. The Bill was to have been introduced in the previous session ? Yes.
 230. There was not time to do so ? No ; the House was suddenly adjourned.
 231. What reason had the company for applying for permission to supply the electric light ? We did not apply for permission to supply the electric light particularly—we want permission to distribute any light. My opinion is that the electric light will not be the light of the future. We desire to be in a position to take advantage of any light which may be introduced. At the present time we have power to supply gas only.
 232. In the event of gas going out of fashion, your works would be thrown upon your hands ? Yes.
 233. You have read the Council's Bill ? No, I have not.
 234. You know that they are introducing a Bill authorizing them to light the streets with electricity, and to supply the light to private individuals and to outside boroughs ? Yes.
 235. And you object to that ? Yes.
 236. Do you object to the Council lighting the streets with electricity ? No.
 237. That, you think, is a matter for the ratepayers ? Yes. We object to their using public money for investment in an enterprise which is an uncertainty. If they desire to make use of electricity or of any other means of lighting for public purposes, they should throw the responsibility upon the persons who are willing to supply the light. I do not think the ratepayers' money should be invested in the light itself.
 238. You think they should purchase the light for the streets as they purchased the gas ? Yes ; they should allow someone else to take the responsibility ; they might purchase the works afterwards, perhaps, if they were a success, but I do not think public money should be invested in an uncertainty of that kind. If we obtain our Bill we shall be in a position to tender for the supply of the light in the same manner as other persons. We want our Bill in order that we may be empowered to tender.
 239. Chairman.] You want, in other words, to give the company an opportunity which you would deny to the ratepayers, to spend money in a positively foolish manner ? Yes ; I would point out that the company would have no power to tender unless they obtained their Bill.
 240. Mr. Brown.] You object to the Council coming into competition with the company in the supply of private lighting, and in the lighting of outside boroughs ? Yes.
 241. What is the rate per lamp which the Council are now charged ? I think it is £5 per lamp.
 242. Have you offered any reduction ? Yes.
 243. How much ? We offered to supply at £4 15s. per lamp.
 244. For a certain time ? Yes ; we offered to take a contract for three or five years at that price.
 245. By this Bill the Council ask power to sell electric lines, burners, lamps, and other fittings ? Yes ; in other words, they seek power to become tradesmen.
 246. You object to that ? Yes ; I think they might just as well say, " We will take out coal and supply that."
 247. Mr. Wallace.] Is it not palpable that the supply of lamps and burners is simply to persons dealing with the Council ? The Bill does not say so ; according to the Bill anyone can purchase.
 248. The Bill empowers the Council to dispose of these things to persons taking the electric light from them ? To the disadvantage of tradesmen dealing in those articles. They might as well propose to supply gas-fittings.
 249. Is not one of the suburban boroughs of Newcastle about to light the municipality with electricity ? I hear some talk of it. I presume you mean the municipality of Lambton.
 250. Chairman.] How long have you been connected with the Gas Company ? I think about eighteen or twenty years.
 251. Do you remember any meeting being held in the city of Newcastle at which a proposal was made to form another gas company there ? Yes ; it was got up by a disaffected gas director—a man who was thrown off the Board.
 252. Mr. Creer.] You are not opposed to electricity ? I am not.
 253. You think your company should have power to supply it ? We apply for power to use electricity or any other light. We wish to extend our powers.
 254. Do you think that if you obtained your Bill you could supply electricity cheaper than anyone else ? I think so.
 255. Why ? In the first place we have our capital and position ready—we could utilize our present works—we could run electricity with gas, so that if the one failed we should have the other. The same would apply to any other light which might be introduced. For my own part I do not think the present system of lighting by electricity will come into vogue as a regular thing—it has failed wherever it has been tried. I see that other things are being introduced in connection with it which make a wonderful improvement. We are not confining ourselves to electricity ; we want the power to supply any other illuminant.
 256. Did you as a director of the Gas Company seek to obtain these increased powers until the agitation of the City Council took place ? Yes. If you read my addresses to the shareholders of the Company for a considerable time past you will find that I said that this was a matter which would have to be taken into consideration. Our solicitor had been preparing a Bill for some time, but there was some legal difficulty in connection with the authority of the shareholders—that Mr. Brown had to settle. The action of the Council did not influence us.
 257. Chairman.] It was not the Council moving in the matter that induced you to come forward with your Bill ? No. We had a Bill in Mr. Fletcher's hands last session, but the House was adjourned. The action of the Council had nothing whatever to do with our action. We had been talking for some considerable considerable time beforehand of obtaining a Bill. Two meetings of shareholders had been held in reference C. F. Stokes. to the matter.

258. Mr. Creer.] You are aware that the Council of Waratah light their own borough with gas? Yes. 16 July, 1890.

259. Are you not aware that the Lambton Council has accepted the contract for the supply of electric light? I was aware of some idea of lighting the borough with electricity, but I did not know that the Council had accepted the contract.

260. You are not opposed to electricity—all that you ask is that the company should have power to supply the light themselves? Yes.

261. Do you think you could light the city of Newcastle with electricity more cheaply than with gas? That remains to be proved—I do not think so—it has not been done anywhere else, and I do not think it can be done. The latest experiments with electricity prove that in cases where it can be used where it is produced it can be supplied cheaply, but that when it has to be distributed over a large area it is much dearer. The light, as a light, is a success; but as a financial experiment it is a failure. A system is now coming out about which we shall hear a great deal more in a few months. It promises very well. It will use electricity where it is produced, but I am afraid it will be a very expensive matter in the first instance.

262. Mr. Brown.] Do you know of how many candle-power the electric lights will be? I think we shall run from 16 to 17 candles. It leaves the works at about 18 candles; but in the process of distribution it becomes weaker. I think it will run 16 or 17.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE ELECTRIC LIGHTING BILL.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN RATEPAYERS OF THE BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE, IN FAVOUR OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the ratepayers of the Borough of Newcastle,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

(1.) That the Council of the Borough of Newcastle contemplates introducing to Parliament a Bill, authorizing the Council to supply electricity for the use and benefit of the citizens and for private lighting; and as your Petitioners truly believe the granting of the necessary powers will be to the best interests of themselves individually, and for the public good generally, they trust that your Honorable House may be pleased to grant their prayer in this regard, and allow the Bill before referred to to become the law of the land.

(2.) That the Council of the Borough of Newcastle, in the interests of the citizens and your Petitioners generally, has recently entered into a contract with Messrs. Kirkland & Company, of York-street, Sydney, for the lighting of the streets of the Borough by electricity, and for supplying the same to private consumers, the cost of the undertaking amounting to £8,529 12s., to be completed by the end of the present year.

(3.) That your Petitioners believe that the carrying out of these works can be more economically, efficiently, advantageously, and satisfactorily performed by a public body acting in concert with your Petitioners than by private individuals, from the fact that municipal bodies are custodians of the public good, and the profits derivable from the undertaking cause your Petitioners to become in course of time identified with the citizens like one vast joint stock or co-operative company, the revenue therefrom being applied to Municipal purposes, such as repairs and management of streets and other works, and thus increasing the general revenues thereof, whereas if granted to a private company the benefits are not at all apparent, or likely to improve the Borough in any way, as the revenues therefrom would fall into the hands of the shareholders.

(4.) That your Petitioners' experience in the past warrants their thinking that they will be far better served by a public body, such as the Municipal Council, than they would be by private individuals, and in a much cheaper and better way.

(5.) That your Petitioners have always worked in peace and harmony with the Municipal Council of the city and have always obtained justice at its hands, and are more likely to receive justice from it than from a private company.

(6.) Your Petitioners therefore pray that assent may be given to the aforesaid Bill, believing that the powers set forth will be for their good.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE ELECTRIC LIGHTING.
(PETITION FROM CERTAIN RATEPAYERS OF THE BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE, AGAINST.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned ratepayers of the Borough of Newcastle,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

(1.) That from time to time the Borough Council of Newcastle have been discussing the question of lighting the Borough by means of electricity, and the matter had apparently dropped, when recently, by a small majority, they passed a resolution to accept a tender for the necessary machinery, not only for lighting the streets but also for supplying electricity to private customers, and to purchase land, and erect the necessary buildings, the cost of which will be very great.

(2.) That the said Council has no means to pay the cost of the said machinery, land, and buildings, and to enable them to do so have caused to be introduced into your Honorable House a Bill to enable the said Council, among other things, to light the streets and public places of the said Borough with the electric light, and to supply electricity within the limits of the said Borough to consumers for private use, and to borrow money for the purposes of the said Bill, and for the other purposes therein mentioned.

(3.) That while your Petitioners would not object to the said Council paying a reasonable annual sum for the lighting of the city with electricity if the same could be done safely and conveniently, they consider the Council should not incur the heavy debt proposed for the purpose of trying a commercial experiment which will in all probability result in a heavy loss.

(4.) That the said Council is already heavily in debt, and is not in a position to bear the additional burden which the Bill seeks to authorize them to incur.

(5.) That your Petitioners respectfully urge that the said Council ought to leave the lighting of private dwellings and shops and the providing of motive-power in other hands.

(6.) That your Petitioners believe that persons supplied with light or motive-power by the Council would be contractors within the meaning of the Municipalities Act, and if such supply were general the electors supplied would be disqualified for the office of aldermen, and considerable complications might arise.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to reject the said Bill.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE ELECTRIC-LIGHTING BILL.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN DIRECTORS OF THE NEWCASTLE GAS AND COKE COMPANY, LIMITED, AGAINST)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned, Directors of the Newcastle Gas and Coke Company, Limited,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH,—

(1.) That the Newcastle Gas and Coke Company was established in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, for the purpose of supplying gas for lighting and other purposes to the City and Suburbs of Newcastle, and have so supplied the same, and are now applying for a Bill authorizing them to supply electricity and other illuminants.

(2.) That the Borough Council of Newcastle have caused to be introduced into your Honorable House a Bill to authorize them, among other things, to light the streets of Newcastle and other boroughs with the electric light, to supply electricity to private individuals, and to sell wire, lamps, and other articles.

(3.) That while your Petitioners do not object to the said Council taking into their own hands the lighting of the streets within their own borough, they respectfully submit they ought not to be permitted to employ the ratepayers' funds for purposes of speculation, and to enable them to compete with private enterprise, or be placed in a position in which the ratepayers may be more heavily taxed than is necessary for street-lighting, in order that private individuals requiring a large quantity of light, but who pay a small amount of rates, may be supplied at a cheaper rate.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House, should it think fit to entertain the Bill, will be pleased to so amend the same that the operations of the said Council will be confined to their own borough, and that they will not be authorized to supply light, or sell lamps, wire, or other articles to private individuals.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE ELECTRIC
LIGHTING BILL (No. 2).

WEDNESDAY, 12 NOVEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. JOSEPH ABBOTT,		MR. CURLEY,
MR. RITCHIE,		MR. H. TAYLOR.
JAMES CURLEY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. W. H. Baker, Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the promoters of the Bill.

Mr. Edward Scott Holland called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Mr. Curley.] Did you attend as a witness on the 9th July before the Select Committee on the former Borough of Newcastle Electric Lighting Bill? Yes.
2. Have you seen a report of the evidence given on that occasion? I have read the report.
3. Is this a copy of the evidence? It is a true copy of the evidence.
4. Have you any fresh evidence to give? Since that evidence was given the Borough Council have entered into a fresh contract in connection with electric lighting, substituting arc lights for incandescent lights in the main thoroughfares at an additional cost of £550. The original contract, according to the evidence, is £8,930.
5. Mr. Baker.] A foundation has been laid for the works in Newcastle since the evidence was taken? Yes; everything is now complete with the exception of laying the wires on the poles. The poles are erected.
6. Mr. Curley.] The Municipal Council I understand are simply waiting for the Bill to pass before they proceed further with the work? Yes.
7. Mr. Ritchie.] They are in every particular favourable to the Bill? Yes.
8. Mr. Baker.] The passing of the Bill will be beneficial to the public? Undoubtedly.
9. Have you heard of any further official protest against the Bill since the sittings of the last Committee? None whatever.
10. Have not the Gas Company objected to the Bill? No.
11. Have the Gas Company any interest in this Bill? No.
12. Are there many persons in Newcastle now being supplied with gas for cooking and engine purposes? Not many—it is used more for private lighting.
13. Are there any persons using gas for heating purposes at all? There are very few.
14. There is no protest against the Bill in any form? Not at all.
15. You do not know how many persons are using gas for heating and engine purposes? No. For engine-driving there would not be more than half a dozen persons altogether.
16. I suppose the Borough Council contemplates, as soon as they get the Bill, withdrawing their custom from the Gas Company? Yes.

Mr.
E. S. Holland.
12 Nov., 1890.

Mr.
E. S. Holland.
12 Nov., 1890.

17. I suppose this Company intend to supply private individuals with the electric light? Yes, the people are very anxious to have the electric light.
18. Are you sure the people will not suffer considerable loss by the establishment of the electric light? We believe, from the statements of the engineers and electricians who have supplied us with data to go upon, that it will be a gain rather than a loss to the citizens, and that we shall be able to supply electric lighting for street purposes at a cheaper rate than gas can be obtained at the present time.
19. I allude more particularly to those persons who are using gas for heating purposes and for engine-driving? Electricity will not apply to them. It will be used only for the lighting of shops and houses.
20. You know that when the electric light is established and private individuals are using electricity in preference to gas, the Gas Company must go down to a considerable extent? They will be able to supply all the more gas for heating purposes. The use of gas for cooking purposes would become general. There will be other means devised for the sustenance of the Gas Company.
21. Mr. Curley.] The Gas Company have been extending their operations for years? Yes.
22. So that any action which the Borough Council may take in the matter will really not affect the operations of the Company very much? Not at all.
23. Mr. Ritchie.] What are they getting the gas for now? 5s. 6d. a thousand feet.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

BOROUGH OF WILLOUGHBY NAMING BILL.

TUESDAY, 22 JULY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. BURNS,		MR. CULLEN,
MR. EWING,		MR. PERRY.

J. F. CULLEN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

William Hilson Pigott called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are the solicitor for the Borough of North Willoughby? I am.
2. You are acquainted with the circumstances under which they have brought in a Bill to alter the name of the borough? Yes.
3. Would you kindly give us the reasons for the bringing in of the Bill? The reason why the Council desire that the name should be changed is that there is no place existing which will show the distinction between the Borough of North Willoughby and any other Willoughby. They simply desire that inasmuch as there is only the one Willoughby, neither North nor South, nor East nor West, it shall simply be called the "Borough of Willoughby." The probability is that the North Shore Boroughs of St. Leonards, East St. Leonards, and Victoria will all be amalgamated, possibly under the name of North Sydney, and, therefore, they want to avoid the possibility of difficulty, and have the name "Willoughby" instead of "North Willoughby."
4. The alteration simply means the dropping of the word "North"? Yes.
5. Are you aware that the proposal has been duly approved at a meeting of the Council? I am so instructed by the Mayor. I believe there is no opposition on the part of anybody to the change.
6. This Bill will be amply sufficient to accomplish the alteration required? I think so.

BROKEN HILL AND PINNACLES TRAMWAY BILL.

PETITION FROM W. P. MACGREGOR AND OTHERS, OF BROKEN HILL, IN OPPOSITION TO, AND PRAYING TO BE HEARD BY COUNSEL OR ATTORNEY BEFORE SELECT COMMITTEE ON.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 18 June, 1890.

The Honorable the Speaker and the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of William Peter MacGregor, Jenkyn Collier, and Duncan Grant, of Broken Hill, in the Colony of New South Wales,—

SHOWETH:—

1. That leave has been obtained by Thomas Michael Slattery, Esquire, from your Honorable House, to bring in a Bill intituled, "A Bill to authorise the construction and maintenance of a tramway from the terminus on the western boundary of the Colony of New South Wales, of the South Australian Railway, by way of Thackaringa, the Pinnacles, and Broken Hill, to near Mount Gipps Hotel."

2. That your Petitioners will be seriously and injuriously affected and prejudiced and subjected to great loss if such Bill is passed, on the following grounds:—

- (a) That your Petitioners are large shareholders in a tramway authorised by the Act of Parliament in 1886 to be constructed from Cockburn to Broken Hill, via Silverton.
- (b) That this tramway is now open for traffic to Broken Hill, at a cost of two hundred and fifteen thousand one hundred and eighty-three pounds eight shillings and eightpence.
- (c) That this tramway is ample for all the traffic requirements of the district.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that they may be heard by their counsel, attorney, or agent, or in person, before your Honorable House, or before the Select Committee in opposition to the said Bill and the provisions thereof, so far as the same relates to the said tramway, with liberty to adduce such evidence as they may be advised in opposition thereto, or in support of this petition.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

Dated this thirteenth day of June, A.D. 1890.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

BROKEN HILL WATER SUPPLY BILL.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN INHABITANTS OF, IN FAVOUR OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 25 June, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the inhabitants of the town of Broken Hill and surrounding districts in the said Colony,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That the present resident population of the said town and district is about 17,000 (seventeen thousand), and is very rapidly increasing.

That there is no adequate water supply for domestic or other purposes, and that your Petitioners have very seriously suffered in consequence, and unless an ample supply be obtained within a short time consequences very detrimental to the health and well-being of the inhabitants will result.

That the Broken Hill Water Supply (Limited) has had before your Honorable House, for about two years, a Bill which, if passed into law, would authorize the construction of works to conserve an adequate permanent supply of water from Stephen's Creek.

That, although your Petitioners would welcome a supply from any source, they are anxious that it be obtained within the shortest possible time, and at as low a price as possible.

That your Petitioners have every confidence in the scheme proposed by the said Bill, especially as it provides that the price shall not exceed 9d. (ninepence) per 100 gallons, and makes ample provision for supplying the mines, which, next to a domestic supply, is most important to your Petitioners.

That any further delay in passing the said Bill will prevent the conservation of a supply for the coming summer, and your Petitioners being seriously sensible of the great danger to the public health and injury to the mining and other industries of the town that may arise through the absence of an adequate water supply at such a time, they view with serious apprehension and alarm the present postponement of the said Bill, and dread the recurrence of the former disastrous water famine and consequent epidemic of typhoid fever.

May it therefore please your Honorable House to consider the urgency of the circumstances, take the said Bill into your favourable consideration, and pass the same into law.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

BROKEN HILL WATER SUPPLY BILL.
(PETITION FROM DIRECTORS OF MINING COMPANIES AT BROKEN HILL, IN FAVOUR OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 13 August, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

Petition from Directors of Mining Companies at Broken Hill,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That the number of mines requiring water for steam and other purposes is about eleven.

That the existing supply of water for the purposes of the mines is very uncertain, and at times has fallen far short of actual requirements.

That even if the supplies of water obtained from the underground workings were sufficient in quantity, the quality is very injurious, especially to boilers.

That as the mines are worked to a greater depth it is doubtful if the lodes (in which the water lodges) will carry so much water as existed at the upper levels. This is chiefly owing to the less porous character of the lodes as depth is attained.

That a certain and adequate supply of water to the mines is almost as important as a supply to the town, for if the water supply to the mines for smelting, leaching, concentrating, and other purposes falls short of what is required, many men will be out of employment.

That your Petitioners are most anxious that an adequate supply be obtained in as short a time as possible, and they feel confident that if the Bill to enable the Broken Hill Water Supply (Limited), became law, a supply such as is necessary would be obtained within a reasonable time.

May it therefore please your Honorable House to consider the urgency of the circumstances, take the said Bill into your immediate favourable consideration, and pass the same into law.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

[Here follow 30 signatures.]

BROKEN HILL WATER SUPPLY BILL.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN RESIDENTS UPON CROWN LANDS, NEAR BROKEN HILL, AGAINST.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 20 August, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned residents upon Crown, leased, and other lands within the area which it is proposed to submerge with water by the Broken Hill Water Supply Company, on Stephens Creek, near Broken Hill, County of Yancowinna,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That the said Company purpose and are now constructing a weir upon the said creek, which when finished, will dam the waters of the creek up to twenty-eight feet level above its bed, thereby inundating several feet in depth Petitioners' present residences; and as this site for headworks, which the Company have selected since the last Session of Parliament, is nearer by two miles to Petitioners' holdings than that formerly fixed upon for such purpose, and to which Petitioners had no objections, whereas by this change of site, with no local publication being given of such change of site being made, your Petitioners, therefore, had no opportunity to point out their objections whilst the Bill was before a Select Committee of your Honorable House, as it had passed that stage before the change of site for headworks was determined upon; and if the works are carried out as now contemplated, the main line of road between Silverton and Wilcannia near Peise's Nob will be submerged with water over a mile in length, and at one point several feet over the top of a telegraph-post. It will also submerge the Public School at Eaglehawk village twelve feet deep in water, besides flooding and preventing any mining operations being carried on at Eaglehawk and Argus silver-mines. Each of these mines in consequence claims £50,000 damages. And as other sites upon the said creek are available, and better adapted for water conservation and headworks, by adopting which Petitioners' objections would be removed, your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to delay the passing of this measure authorizing construction of this dam at the site now proposed until your Petitioners' just claims have been satisfied.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

2. Mr. Brown.] You are Chairman of the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company (Limited)? Yes.
3. That company is incorporated by Act of Parliament, is it not? Yes.
4. Do you produce a copy of the Act of incorporation? Yes.
5. The object of the company was to supply light? Yes.
6. And at the date of the Act of incorporation gas was the only known means of distributing light? Yes.
7. You are now desirous that power to supply light in other forms should be given to the company? Yes.
8. Does the application for the present Bill meet with the approval of the shareholders of the company? Yes.
9. Do you believe that in the interests of the company it will be a good thing to give them the power sought for in this Bill? Yes.
10. Perhaps you will explain to the Committee a little more in detail why you think the power should be given? At the time of the formation of the company gas was the only illuminating power for general distribution known, but in the developments of science other systems of lighting have come into vogue, and electricity particularly. In order to keep pace with the times, and to prevent the use of electricity or any other means of lighting, rendering the money already expended by the gas company useless, it was decided that it was necessary, in the interests of the company, that Parliament should be applied to for an extension of the company's powers enabling them to supply gas, electricity, lime-light, or any other light which might be developed. There is no idea at all, as seems to be imagined in some quarters, of asking for a Bill to confer a monopoly upon the gas company. We ourselves have no particular system upon which to start; we simply wish for the power to avail ourselves of any system which may be offered to us—which it may seem to us good to adopt.

C. F. Stokes.

- Mr. C. F. Stokes.
29 May, 1890.
11. Do you think that, with the land and plant you already have, you will be in a position to supply electricity to intending customers at a cheaper rate than that at which it would be supplied by another company? I think that we can supply it better than anyone else.
 12. Then it would be an advantage to the public of Newcastle as well as to the company if the company had the power sought? Yes; I think we should have power to supply electricity or any other light and gas also. We should then have two systems to fall back upon.
 13. Are you of opinion that the provisions of the Bill sufficiently protect the public? As far as I know them, I think they do.
 14. I believe a general Bill was applied for a Session or two ago? Yes; some time ago I believe a Bill was applied for. I think a Select Committee of the House approved of the Bill. This Bill runs closely upon the lines of that measure, in fact, almost exactly upon its lines in all the central points—that is to say, that all requisite provisions for the safeguarding of the public are contained in it.
 15. All the requisite provisions for the safeguarding of the public are embodied in this Bill? Yes.
 16. Are you willing that any alterations or provisions for the public safety should be made in the Bill? Certainly; we should only be too glad to have any alterations if there were anything objectionable in the Bill. I may say that we sent the Bill round to all the municipalities to see if objection could be raised to any particular part of it.
 17. And have you received any objections? No objections have been made to it as far as we know.
 18. Did you invite them to make suggestions for the protection, and for the better safety, of the public? I do not know that any particular question was asked with reference to the safety of the public. I think the municipalities were asked to be good enough to submit any alterations or amendments which they thought fit to submit.
 19. Have you received any intimation from any of the municipalities that the Bill was objected to as not sufficiently providing for the public safety? No; but I believe they object in toto to our having the Bill, although for what reasons, I do not know.
 20. What area did your original Act empower you to cover with your lighting? The original Act, if I recollect aright, gave us power to cover Newcastle and its suburbs.
 21. Mr. Wright.] Were no limits defined? I do not think so.
 22. Chairman.] In the present Bill, is the company asking for power to cover a further area? It asks for power to cover an area within a radius of 10 miles of Newcastle.
 23. Would it go beyond what are known as the suburbs of Newcastle? It would be hard to say just now what are really suburbs. When the company was incorporated, twenty-four or twenty-five years ago, there were not any adjacent municipalities. Now there are adjacent municipalities; Waratah and Wallsend are incorporated, and, as a matter of fact, our Bill would extend to those areas. I may say, however, that if there were any objection to our covering those areas we should have to restrict our powers in that respect. All that we wish is to be in a position to give the public light if they want it.
 24. Mr. Curley.] What is the furthest extent to which you have gone with your lighting up to the present time? I could not tell you the distance in miles; but we have gone as far as Tighe's Hill, Waratah, and through Wickham.
 25. What is the approximate distance? I should say about 4 miles.
 26. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose all these municipalities have been created outside of Newcastle since the original Act was passed? I am not sure about Waratah, but I think so.
 27. Mr. Curley.] When the first Act was introduced, had you any design for carrying the light beyond the Borough of Newcastle? Yes; we proposed to supply Newcastle and the suburbs.
 28. What did you then regard as the limit of the suburbs? It is hard to tell what they were.
 29. Mr. Ewing.] Is the Municipal Council of Newcastle opposing you? I believe they are going to oppose us.
 30. Do you know whether that course was determined upon by a majority of the council? Yes.
 31. Have you any idea as to why? No.
 32. I presume it is imagined that some rights for which you ask would conflict with the rights or powers of the Municipal Council? I do not know. My idea is, that the Municipal Council desire the sole right to light with electricity.
 33. You said just now that you wanted two systems to fall back upon; but I presume that if two systems of lighting were to come into collision the better system would be retained? That depends, among other things, upon the price. In some cases one system might be adopted, and in other cases the other.
 34. So that there is no doubt that Newcastle would eventually be lit by the best light? Yes.
 35. Suppose you were not willing to supply the best light and this Bill were given to you, in what position would anyone else stand anxious to supply the light? Any one else could come in if they chose.
 36. If this Bill is passed? Yes.
 37. Then you have no special right under the Bill? No.
 38. Mr. Wright.] Is it not a fact that the Borough of Newcastle have been calling for tenders for lighting the borough with electricity? Yes.
 39. With a view to establishing a company? No; but with a view to some persons taking the matter up.
 40. The council want the control of the lighting of the municipality in their own hands? I suppose they do.
 41. Mr. Baker.] How long have you been chairman of the gas company? Sixteen or seventeen years.
 42. Are you a large shareholder in the company? Yes, fairly so.
 43. What interest has been paid to the shareholders during the last five, seven, or ten years? They have been receiving 15 per cent.—the same as the shareholders of the Sydney Gas Company.
 44. For how many years is that? For the last five or six years at any rate.
 45. Are you aware that the Borough Council of Newcastle have petitioned the House to pass a Bill enabling them to supply the electric light? No; I am not aware of it.
 46. Are you aware that they have filed a petition in opposition to this Bill passing? No, I am not aware of that; but I heard that they were going to oppose us.
 47. Not only Newcastle, but Waratah, Wickham, Hamilton, Stockton, Plattsburgh, and Wallsend? I heard that they were going to oppose us here.
 48. Are you aware that at the present time there are gasworks at Waratah? Yes.
 49. Also at Plattsburgh? Yes.

50. Then if another company or public body petition for an Act of Parliament allowing them to introduce electricity, would not the granting of the Act materially interfere with the value of the shares in these gas companies? I do not know that it would—it has not had that effect in other places.

51. But is it not calculated to have that effect? I do not know that it is.

52. If the electric light were introduced at a very low rate in a locality supplied with gas, do you not think the value of gas shares would be decreased? I do not know that it would; it has not had that effect in other places.

53. Would it increase the consumption of gas? I do not suppose that it would increase the consumption of gas.

54. But would it not materially interfere with the value of shares? Not necessarily so.

55. Do you not know, as a matter of fact, that the council have had this matter under consideration for some time—I mean the question of introducing a Bill in Parliament enabling them to supply the electric light? No; I do not.

56. Has not the matter come before your Board? No, or I should be aware of it.

57. You might not have been present at that particular meeting? I am present at all the Board meetings.

58. It is a private company? Yes.

59. Can you tell me in round numbers how many shares have been issued altogether by the Gas Company? Twenty-two thousand five hundred.

60. What is the value of those shares at the present time? I do not know the market value.

61. Can you give us an approximate idea of the value? I suppose they would be worth about £3 a share.

62. Mr. Street.] What are they—£1 shares? £2 shares.

63. Mr. Baker.] Could you say what they were worth five years ago? I could not say.

64. Have the shares increased within the last four or five years? I think not; I think they are about the same value.

65. But I mean in number? Oh, yes; they have been increased in number.

66. To what extent? The issue of shares has been doubled.

67. Within what time? Within the last twelve months.

68. Has not your company a large contract with the Borough of Newcastle for the supply of gas? A contract terminating at the end of this year.

69. What amount has the council been paying the company for the last five years? I cannot say.

70. Are the figures, to your knowledge, very large? Not very large, comparatively speaking.

71. What is the price per lamp? I think it is £5 per lamp per annum, but I am not quite sure. I think it is the same price as the Sydney Gas Company are charging.

72. Besides declaring a dividend of 15 per cent., have you not been putting money into a reserve fund with a view to an extension of your works? To provide for depreciation and writing off.

73. As a matter of fact, you are applying to Parliament now to protect the interests of the shareholders against any other company coming in? No; we want our powers extended. We want to avail ourselves of any new light which may come in, otherwise we are restricted to one light.

74. You want to be first in the field with a new light? We want to be able to avail ourselves of any other system which may offer.

75. And not to prevent any other persons from coming in? No; any other persons who like can come in.

76. Do you say now that you, a member of the Board, were not aware that the council was taking up this matter, and intended to apply to Parliament for a Bill? I knew they were taking up the matter with a view to borrow money.

77. But I mean with a view to the passing of a Bill to enable them to supply electricity? With a view to borrow money.

78. What for? To go into a contract—to pay for this electric light.

79. When were you aware of that; was it long before you petitioned Parliament? No; not long before we petitioned Parliament. I think we petitioned Parliament a considerable time ago. They were to have brought in a Bill last Session; but I think it was advertised before.

80. Were you aware of it before the present Session of Parliament? Yes; before the present Session.

81. I notice that in one of the clauses of your Bill an area of 10 miles is mentioned; would not that take in Waratah and Hamilton? It would take in Waratah, Hamilton, Wallsend, Plattsburgh, Tighe's Hill, and all those places.

82. And Lambton? Yes.

83. And Stockton? Stockton is over the water; I do not think we should trouble Stockton.

84. It would take in all the municipalities within a radius of 10 miles? Yes.

85. Mr. Burns.] How long has the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company (Limited) been in existence? About twenty-four years.

86. Have you been a shareholder for many years? A great number of years.

87. Do you recollect whether, from its earliest stages, your company was a paying one? For years it paid nothing.

88. Are you aware that in England experience has shown that the introduction of electricity does not affect the value of gas shares? I am quite sure of that.

89. Has the company made arrangements to carry out this undertaking of supplying Newcastle, and a wider area? Yes.

90. You have capital and means to carry out the undertaking? Yes.

91. This Bill will give you no monopoly? No.

92. It would be open to a private company to start an undertaking of a similar character if they thought fit? Yes.

93. Mr. Wright.] In the event of your company getting the concession asked for, would it not have a prejudicial effect upon the interests of the gas-works which have been erected by some of the municipalities outside Newcastle? I do not think it would.

94. You think that your having the power to extend your operations to these suburbs, and to give them electricity or gas, would not depreciate the value of their property? No.

95. Mr. Brown.] Do you know if gas companies in other parts of the world are applying for powers similar to those which are contained in this Bill? I believe there is a gas company—I cannot now recollect the place—in England doing the same thing.

Mr.
C. F. Stokes.
29 May, 1890.

Mr.
C. F. Stokes.
29 May, 1890.

96. Is it not a fact that gas is more suitable for lighting up some places than electricity, and that in other cases electricity is better than gas? Well, as far as I have read the records of what has been done with electricity in comparison with gas, I think that on the whole electricity has not yet got beyond the experimental stage. If the difficulty attending the distribution of electricity is properly solved—and that has not yet been done—and if electricity can be consumed in the locality where it is made, then I think the electric light would compare with gas as to cost.

97. You have not quite caught the drift of my question. We will take the case of a theatre,—which would be better as an illuminant—gas or electricity? In any case where a large centre can be at once lighted from one dynamo the electric light would do; but where distribution is necessary the electric light will not bear comparison with gas.

98. But from a sanitary point of view, is not electricity better than gas in some places as a means of illumination? It is in some cases; in other cases they say that it affects the eyes and is not as good as gas.

99. Mr. Baker.] Does this Bill not give the company power, within 10 miles, to lay any pipes without consulting the local council? I do not think so. I think every provision is made for that; at least it is intended that it should be.

100. But under the 4th clause, could not the company break up roads after giving twenty-four hours notice without consulting the council? I am under the impression that everything has to be done under the superintendence of the council.

Mr. Phillip Billingsley Walker called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr.
P. B. Walker.
29 May, 1890.

101. Mr. Brown.] You are the Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs? Yes.

102. The Superintendent of Telegraphs is, I believe, at the present time absent from the Colony? Yes; he is in Melbourne.

103. Has the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company's Bill for the supply of electricity been submitted to you? Yes; within the last few days.

104. Have you perused the Bill? I have.

105. Have you any objection to its provisions, or any suggestions, to make in the interests of the public? I think the third clause requires some alteration. I will refer you to page 3, lines 4 to 15. The clause says—“It shall be lawful for the said company from time to time to place, leads, wires, cables, or conductors, necessary for conveying the electricity or means of illumination to be supplied by them under, over, along, or across any street, road, lane, or open public reserve, within the area of operations, and for that purpose to erect such posts or attach such brackets or other means of support, and make such excavations and lay down and fix such pipes, cables, wires, leads, or other conductors, transformers, and other appliances as may be necessary.” I think provision should be made for supervising authority with regard to the erection of supports, the distance at which the supports are to be placed apart, and so forth. That would be for the protection of the public, so that the wires may not come into contact with other lines. The clause continues:—“Provided that no unnecessary damage be done in the execution of the works aforesaid and that all damage shall be forthwith made good or compensation be given therefor as hereinafter mentioned.” You will see that the question of damage is dealt with, but it does not provide for the appointment of any officer for the express purpose of looking after the matter. I think a clause is also necessary to enforce the placing of wires underground. The clause then goes on to provide:—“Provided further that where any electric line shall be placed above ground by the company the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, upon complaint made, and on being satisfied that such electric line is or is likely to become dangerous to the public safety, may make an order directing and authorizing the removal, alteration, or amendment of such electric line by such person and upon such terms as to such Court or Judge may seem fit.” You will see that it refers to an appeal to the Supreme Court; but that, in my judgment, would be too long a process. The matter would virtually rest in the hands of an expert, and it would be far better to have a proper expert appointed in the first instance to deal with the whole thing. If it were necessary to appeal afterwards to the Court that could be done.

106. Mr. Burns.] Would you have an expert in the employ of the Government? Yes; I think there should be a Government officer to perform the work. I think it would also be necessary, pending the adoption of regulations in the Colony of New South Wales for electric lighting, to adopt the Board of Trade regulations; that is not provided for.

107. Mr. Wright.] What are the provisions of the Board of Trade regulations? They are very lengthy. The object would be to bind the company to certain regulations in connection with all sorts of matters in regard to electric lighting, with a view to the protection of the public interest. These regulations could be easily adopted. All that it would be necessary to do would be to insert the words, “subject to the regulations of the Board of Trade.” You need not incorporate the regulations in the Act. Then, I think that another matter which should be incorporated is the English Electric Light Act of 1888. I have a copy of the Act here, and I think the Bill should be made subject to its provisions as far as necessary. Then, as regards clause 12, page 5, providing for the protection of telegraph lines, I think the Superintendent of Telegraphs, or some other authorized Government officer, should have full power to prevent electric light wires from being erected near telegraph or telephone wires if, in the opinion of such officer, they would by any accident or carelessness cause damage. In 1883 or 1884 the telephone wires were damaged, and the whole of the telephone communication of the city was stopped in consequence of an accident to the electric light wires. I think the portion of the clause from lines thirteen to sixteen reads too vaguely. Then, as to clause 13, page 5, the Committee will see that it provides for the electro motive force of current. It says, “No continuous electric current shall be supplied by the company to any electric line, main, or cable having an electro motive force of more than 3,000 volts for the arc electric light, and of more than 300 volts for the incandescent electric light, and no alternating current shall be so supplied having an electro motive force of more than 1,000 volts without previously giving written notice to the Superintendent of Telegraphs.” I think the voltage power should be fixed at 2,500 volts for the arc light, and I think 300 would be sufficient for the incandescent light. I think also that provision should be made for a scale of insulation to correspond with the increase of voltage. If you want to increase the voltage power, increased insulation should be provided for. Then, on page 6, line 2, I think that after the words “Superintendent of Telegraphs,” the words “or other officer authorized by the Government in that behalf,” should be inserted. I do not think clause 18 is necessary. I do not think power should be vested in any company to enter a building. The Gas Company do not enter a building to put meters on; they put the meters outside. This clause, therefore, in my opinion, should be struck out. Then I think the powers of entry conferred by clause 23 are dangerous and not necessary. Clause 24, I think, is ultra vires, and is besides unnecessary.

Mr.
P. B. Walker.
29 May, 1890.

108. Mr. Burns.] That has reference to the property of the company itself? They can take whatever remedy they like—the law is open to them.

109. Mr. Brown.] Do you think that if the Bill is amended in the particulars you suggest it will give the necessary protection to, and the necessary precautions for, the safety of the public and private property? I think so.

110. Mr. Wright.] In addition to the Newcastle Gas and Coke Company, there are, I understand, two or three companies in the suburban portion of Newcastle,—in your opinion, would the extended power sought for by this company have a prejudicial effect upon other and smaller companies? That is a question to which I have not given any consideration.

111. You say that clause 23 should be struck out; but would it not be necessary to enter buildings to make and remove connections? If you want to fix gas-fittings, you do not want to go in forcibly. If a person wants the electric light, he will allow a workman to enter and lay it on.

112. But suppose you want to remove the fittings? I suppose the same thing would apply; but if the fittings are fixtures, you cannot remove them.

113. The Sydney Gas Company lends gas cooking stoves to its customers on the time-payment system and on rental;—is it not necessary that they should have power to take possession of their property in the event of the tenant being a defaulter? I suppose there would be the document showing the existence of a temporary agreement.

114. But no document would give you power to enter a house unless the law provides for it? Well, I do not think the power is necessary. As I have already pointed out, gas meters are not fixed inside a house, but outside, and all fittings are supposed to be paid for by the landlord or the tenant.

Mr. Archibald Langwill called in, sworn, and examined:—

115. Mr. Brown.] You are Secretary to the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company? Yes.

Mr.
A. Langwill.
29 May, 1890.

116. Mr. Stokes has spoken of a letter which was sent by the Company to the various municipalities;—have you a press copy of it? Yes.

117. What is the date of it? The 20th January, 1890.

118. Will you read it to the Committee? Yes; it is as follows:—

The Council Clerk, New Lambton,—

Dear Sir,

Newcastle, 20 January, 1890.

I have the honor of forwarding you a copy of the Bill proposed to be submitted to Parliament during next Session, for the purpose of extending the powers of this Company, so as to enable it to supply electric or other light as well as gas.

You will observe that the Bill has been prepared with due regard to the authority of your council as custodians of the public streets, and upon the lines of a Bill amended and agreed to by a Select Committee of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, entitled the New South Wales Electric Light and Power Act.

We trust that its provisions will meet the views of your Council. Should there, however, be anything which your Council may consider objectionable, my Directors would be glad to be informed, with the view of meeting, as far as possible, any reasonable cause of complaint.

Copies sent to the following municipalities:—Merewether, Wickham, Carrington, Lambton, Plattsburgh, Waratah, Wallsend, Newcastle, New Lambton.

I have, &c.,

A. LANGWILL, Secretary.

119. Have you received a reply from any of the municipalities? No reply.

120. To what councils did you send the letter? To Merewether, Wickham, Carrington, Lambton, New Lambton, Plattsburgh, Waratah, Wallsend, Hamilton, Adamstown.

121. Did you send one to the Newcastle Council? Yes.

122. And you have received no objection to the form of the Bill from any of them? No.

123. Mr. Kidd.] And no approval? No.

124. Mr. Baker.] Do you know what money has been put aside as a reserve fund by the Gas Company during the last four or five years? I could not say.

125. Is it a large amount? I suppose it is the same as in other companies.

126. But, in round numbers, what is the amount outside what is paid in 15 per cent. dividends? I have not made a note of it.

127. But does not your memory serve you? I think the reserve is about £9,000 at the present time.

128. Mr. Burns.] What is the paid up capital? £22,500. A call of 5s. has been made lately, and part of it was paid. It is due on the 1st June—that is the whole of it.

129. What is the uncalled capital? About £20,000.

130. Of course it is quite correct that for the last four or five years you have been paying 15 per cent? 10 per cent. dividend and a bonus of 5 per cent.

131. Mr. Brown.] The percentage you speak of is on the original capital? Yes.

132. What was the original capital? £2 a share.

133. How many shares? There were 11,250 original shares. There has been a fresh issue lately of the same number of shares of which 5s. has been called up and is due on the 1st June.

134. Mr. Burns.] But the present shareholders do not get 15 per cent.? The 15 per cent. is not payable on the new shares.

135. Mr. Kidd.] What is the market value of the old shares? I have not seen them quoted for months, so that I could not say.

136. Mr. Baker.] Are not the new shares issued held principally by the old shareholders—had they not the preference in taking up the new shares? They had a prior right to them.

137. Did they not, as a matter of fact, take them up? They are not taken up until the 1st June, so that I cannot say.

138. But the original shareholders had a prior right to take them up? Yes.

139. Mr. Kidd.] What is the number of shareholders? From 130 to 150.

Colin Christie called in, sworn, and examined:—

140. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Newcastle? I am.

141. Has the council sent in a petition to the House opposing the passing of this Bill introduced by the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company? We have.

142. The Gas Company is a private company? It is.

Mr.
C. Christie.
29 May, 1890.

Mr.
C. Christie.
29 May, 1890.

143. Have the Corporation for some time past had this matter of lighting before them, with a view of introducing a Bill into Parliament? Yes; the Municipal Council have for the last twelve months been considering the matter, and have passed a resolution to the effect that a Bill should be sought from Parliament, enabling them to light the city with electricity. They feel that they have, under the present Act, power to light the streets. What they are asking for is for the power to supply light to private consumers. For the purpose of lighting the streets and for this contemplated supply to private consumers, they have lately entered into a contract, and have accepted a tender for the supply of the plant to produce the light.

144. What amount of money is there between the contractor and the council at the present time? I really forget the exact amount of money.

145. About what do you think it is? About £11,000, I think; but the Council Clerk will tell you exactly.

146. What do you pay the Gas Company per annum for gas at the present time? £5 10s. per lamp; the number of lamps I could not give you. The price is £5 10s. per lamp up to the end of the present year. They did offer to supply us at a less figure—£4 17s. 6d. per lamp, I think—if we entered into a contract for five years, but that was not done.

147. I suppose that the deliberations of the council have been published from time to time, showing that this matter was being considered by them? At all times the council meetings are held with open doors, and the representatives of the press are present.

148. I suppose reports of your proceedings have been published in the Newcastle Morning Herald? Yes; and when we had a second paper, the proceedings were also published in it.

149. Why do you object to the present Bill passing at the instance of the Gas Company? The council think it would militate against the success of the scheme they have in hand in the interests of the public in regard to which they have applied to Parliament for the necessary power. The supply of electricity by the council would be equivalent to the supply of a co-operative institution, and all the profits would go to augment the funds of the council—they would be public funds. For that reason we think we would be taking a right step in the public interest in objecting to any one coming in to oppose us. We were the first to think of the electric light, and we were the first to make a stir in the matter. When we had done so the Gas Company came in and got a little in front of us. You were talking just now of the price of gas. I was an alderman twenty-five years ago, and I remember that the first price asked was £16 a lamp. We did not agree to that. The last offer of the company was £4 7s. 6d. a lamp.

150. Mr. Ewing.] How much was oil costing you before that? We did not light before that; we were in total darkness. Mr. Stokes has said that this Bill would be in the public interest, because the company could supply light cheaper than anyone else. I think he is in error in saying that. I think the council could supply the light as cheaply as it could be supplied by any company. I think the council have facilities and command of funds which the company have not got. For instance, they have power to borrow, and other facilities for providing the light which the company would not possess. I think they are in quite as good a position to supply it as any private company would be. The council can also employ as good skill in producing the light as any private company, and the great advantage of our supplying it, from the public point of view, would be that the whole of the profits would go to the public instead of to private persons.

151. Do you think that it is right that any private company should interfere with the privileges of a public body like the council of the city of Newcastle? That is a matter of opinion, but I think not. I think the Gas Company particularly ought not to have the powers which they have granted under their Act—that is, in reference to tearing up the streets, and doing various other things, whether the council agree to it or not. They can do many things without even consulting the council. They frequently tear up the roads, and leave them in a state anything but as good as they were in originally. This is particularly the case with our footpaths. We have a lot of tarred footpaths, and they cannot be taken up and put down again in as good a condition as they were before they were touched. We find that the second batch of tarred material never amalgamates properly with the original batch. The council would work in these matters upon their own design, whereas the Gas Company work upon their plan.

152. What will be done with the profit, if any, resulting from the lighting by the council? It will be spent upon the general improvement of the city.

153. And this expenditure could not take place if a private company had the power? They might pay a dividend of 15 per cent., and establish a large sinking fund.

154. The council have the control and management of all the streets and footways in the municipality? Yes; under the Municipalities Act.

155. And they are obliged at present, through not having their own gas-works, to get a supply from the company? Yes; we have always had a hard job. It has always been hard driving to make a bargain with the company.

156. The funds of the municipality are used for that purpose? Yes.

157. If the supply of gas were in the hands of the council, would not the profits now derived by the company be distributed in the interests of the ratepayers? Certainly the individual members of the council would not get any benefit.

158. Would they derive any benefit if electricity were supplied by the council? No; it would serve no private interests whatever.

159. A radius of 10 miles would include all the municipalities around Newcastle? Yes; and they are very numerous. A radius of 10 miles would include eleven municipalities, some of which have already supplied themselves with gas. That is the case with two of them. Lambton has erected poles, and has wire stretched; in fact, it has a regular electric plant. They expect to have the whole work finished within six weeks of the present date. This Bill, if it were passed, would enable the company to step in, and, figuratively speaking, take the legs from under the existing bodies.

160. You know the municipality of Waratah has established gasworks? Yes. I saw it stated in the papers that the municipality of Waratah applied to the Gas Company to supply them with light rather than have their own plant. I think the Gas Company asked £15 a lamp; that is quite recently. I am not quite sure about the price, but I have an impression it was £15. I know it was stated that the Gas Company asked some exorbitant price.

161. Do you consider that the rights of the municipality would be interfered with if this Bill passed, and if

if the Gas Company were allowed to cut up streets, to lay leads, and so on, under this Act? Yes; I consider that the municipal rights would be interfered with. It is an impossibility for anyone to break up a street and leave it in as good order as it was originally. We have adopted in Newcastle a system of tarred streets instead of wooden cubes. We have used, as an experiment, tarred metal, and it seems to be a success. It cannot be patched up satisfactorily, however, as the Gas Company would claim a right to do if this Bill were passed.

Mr. C. Christie.
29 May, 1890.

162. Is a Bill now prepared for presentation to Parliament, giving the council power to light the city with electricity? Yes.

163. Has this matter come fully before the aldermen, as representatives of the people of Newcastle? It has.

164. And the proposal has emanated not from one or two individual aldermen, but from the body of the council? It has come from the body of the council, and it was agreed by resolution that we should oppose this Bill—that we should take every step necessary to do so.

165. Chairman.] You have gone back twenty-six years in referring to the price asked by the Gas Company;—do you remember what was being charged per lamp in Sydney at that time for the supply of gas? I do not.

166. Do you think that £16 a lamp in those early days was an extravagant sum? It was so extravagant that we did not accept the offer. We did not accept an offer from the company until after it had been many years in existence. It was years before we could have our streets lighted in consequence of the price they demanded.

167. What contract did you commence with? I think the price came down to £12 before we accepted it.

168. Do you think the present price charged reasonable or unreasonable? From what I can ascertain about electricity, I think it can be produced at a lower price.

169. Is the price reasonable, compared with the charges of other companies? I think it is unreasonable, compared with English prices. The fact that the company are able to pay such large dividends is, I think, sufficient proof that their charges are a little more than reasonable.

170. Do you know of any company in this Colony supplying gas at a lower price than £4 17s. 6d., the price at which the company wished to supply you? No, I do not. I do not know of any of their prices.

171. You say that the council resolved to apply for a Bill to confer upon them certain powers of electric lighting? Yes.

172. Was that Bill agreed to with unanimity, or was there a division in the Council upon the subject? I think it was passed by a majority. I could not give you the numbers, but you can obtain them from the Town Clerk. There was considerable discussion and considerable difference of opinion as to lighting at all with electricity. The majority, however, decided to go for a Bill. I think there was a majority of 8 in 12—that is, the vote was 8 to 4, or perhaps 7 to 5.

173. Can you tell me how your resolution to oppose the Bill of the Gas Company was carried? I think it was carried unanimously, but I cannot speak positively on the point. The Town Clerk can give you all the particulars. I am speaking from memory. Not having refreshed my memory, I could not speak positively on the point.

174. You say that if the council received these lighting powers the people would enjoy the profit? Yes.

175. Of course you will admit that there is a possibility of your having a loss? I think not. It has been shown to me that we could get electric lamps for £2 a year instead of paying £4 17s. 6d. a year, the price asked by the Gas Company. There is a large margin for errors between those two sums. I do not think, therefore, there is much likelihood of a loss.

176. However, if there was a loss, the people, of course, would have to put up with it? Yes.

177. You speak of injury to the streets, but both the Company's Act and the Company's Bill provide for the streets being left in as good order as they found them in? Yes; I know that is provided for.

178. Could not the council insist upon this provision being carried out? As far as practicable; but we cannot require the company to do an impossibility, and it is utterly impossible to break up a roadway and to leave it in as good a condition as it was originally. This is especially the case with our tarred metal streets.

179. I understand that; but you would have power to compel the company to leave the street in as good order as the council itself would leave it, should the council break it up? The difference is this: the council would arrange the laying of wire or pipes in accordance with other work. While they were making a street, for instance, they would lay the pipes and wires. Now, the council makes a street, and as soon as it is made and nicely consolidated the Gas Company come in and break it up.

180. Mr. Wright.] What you mean is, that there would be a general scheme in one case and two schemes in the other? Exactly.

181. Mr. Kidd.] Under the present Act has the council any power to take over the Gas Company's concern? I have never read the Company's Act. I do not know whether we have that power or not.

182. The council, as far as you know, has no power to take over the property? We have power, with their sanction, I know, to purchase the gas-works under the Municipalities Act.

183. As far as you know, are the ratepayers in accord with the council in its opposition to the passing of this Bill? The bulk of the ratepayers are.

184. Outside the shareholders? Outside the shareholders they are almost unanimous on the subject. A meeting was held some time ago in the School of Arts to censure the aldermen for having commenced their scheme of electric lighting. I suppose I may say that nine-tenths of the persons present at that meeting were shareholders. I do not think I am far out in my estimate, although, of course, I may be wrong.

185. The majority of ratepayers outside, not being shareholders and not being influenced by shareholders, are opposed to the passing of this Bill? Outside of the shareholders, I believe more than nine-tenths of the people would be against the passing of this Bill.

186. In other words, they are of opinion that they could do better for themselves than any company could do for them? Exactly. They have, of course, the choice of their own aldermen. If they do not choose the best men they ought to. If they choose the best men and they engage in an undertaking of this description, it is only reasonable to suppose that they will get better results than would be obtained by those entering into the matter merely as a pecuniary speculation.

187. Do you know if any members of the council are shareholders in the Gas Company now? I am not aware of any. If any of them have shares they keep it quiet. I know of none.

Mr.
C. Christie.
29 May, 1890

188. And you think that if the Borough Council of Newcastle obtained control of the lighting of Newcastle with electricity they would be able to carry out the work with more advantage to the ratepayers, and would, at the same time, be able to create a sinking fund? Yes, which could be applied to streets and other works.

189. Do you know of any municipality or borough council with a sinking fund? We have one.

190. What sort of one? A sinking fund to pay off an overdraft—to pay off borrowed money.

191. What amount is it? The Town Clerk will tell you. Here is the point: We are assured by practical men, by electricians, that we can get these lights at £2 a lamp. If that is really the case there will be a saving of £2 17s. 6d. on each lamp.

192. Are the experts who give you this advice interested in providing the machinery, or in providing the light itself? No.

193. It is parties outside who are giving you this advice? Knowing very little of electricity ourselves, the supply of the light being an entirely new matter, we took the precaution to employ a practical man who was not interested. We paid him for his advice, and he advises us that we can get the light for £2 a lamp per annum. The man who gives the advice is not connected with the parties contracting.

194. You have perfect confidence in the infallibility of all experts? I have confidence in a man speaking the truth when he ought to have no interest in telling lies. I cannot see that this man should have any interest in telling us anything but the truth.

195. You pay him to tell the truth? Yes; and to give us all the information which it is possible for an expert to give those who are inexperienced. We paid him to examine the specifications, and to come again and examine the tenders. All these things have been examined by him. The particular tender which has been accepted has been certified as being most advantageous to us, as well as the cheapest. The expert estimated that we should be supplied with light at £2 a lamp per annum.

196. Is it not possible that the Gas Company, studying the interest of the ratepayers, and as anxious to supply this new light as the council themselves, would be able to efficiently manage the supply;—do you not think they would be as likely to supply the light as cheaply as it could be supplied by the council? Well, they never offered to reduce the price of gas.

197. Is not £4 17s. 6d. a reasonable price? Not if we can get a better light for £2.

198. But seeing that they started at £12, and have had a monopoly, is it not an evidence of their reasonableness when you find the price now reduced to £4 17s. 6d.? I may say that many years ago, when the late Mr. Alderman Chapman was Mayor, it was in contemplation to establish gas-works, some time before electricity came into vogue, because the Gas Company, in the opinion of the council, was charging more than they had a right to charge.

199. Is it not an evidence that the company have been anxious to concede as much as possible to the Borough Council of Newcastle, when you find the price reduced from £12 to £4 17s. 6d.? The only answer to that is, that all reductions which have been made have been absolutely squeezed out of the company.

200. Mr. Burns.] You spoke of the company interfering with some of the privileges of the Municipal Council of Newcastle? The privilege I referred to was the privilege of making streets. It is the privilege of the council to make and maintain streets.

201. Is not the right of making gas as much the right of a private company as of a corporation? If they get a Bill passed.

202. The contest between you and this body is, as to who shall furnish the supply? We were first in the field. Although we were not first in Parliament, we were first to make known to the public that we intended to proceed with the Bill.

203. The company propose to supply electricity as well as gas if the people of Newcastle will take it? Yes.

204. You have told us that the price of gas, through a squeezing process, has been going down for some years past? Yes; it has declined from £16 to £4 17s. 6d. A contract has not yet been accepted for £4 17s. 6d.

205. Is it the special privilege of your council to supply private persons with gas? If we get that privilege. We have power under the Act to light the city with gas.

206. Do you think you could supply private persons with gas as well and as economically as a private company could supply them? Yes, as economically, if not more so.

207. Do you think your council more competent to manage the supply than a private body? Yes. In the first place we should always sit for nothing, whereas directors get paid for each sitting.

208. Is not a service which is honorary sometimes the worst service the public can have? I do not know about that.

209. When did you enter into your contract for the plant? I suppose it would be about the first of this month—within a month or six weeks.

210. Is it an absolute contract? Yes.

211. Is it not conditional upon this Bill being passed through Parliament? The plant is shipped from the Continent—from some place where they make the best plant.

212. Then you entered into your contract before you had power to supply private persons with light? We had power to light the streets under the Municipalities Act. What we intend to do is to ask Parliament for power to sell.

213. You think the dividends of the Gas Company are too great? We think that such great profits are proof that the thing can be done more cheaply.

214. Do you know whether private persons draw dividends from mines at Newcastle in excess of 15 per cent.? Yes.

215. In that case, why should not the corporation propose to work the coal land for the benefit of the people instead of its being worked by companies? In Newcastle there are no mines to work, but we could supply electric light.

216. Mr. Wright.] You say you are anxious to obtain power to light the borough with electricity because you believe you can supply the electric light cheaper than it can be supplied by the company? Yes.

217. Why do you fear competition; you have the privilege of lighting your own streets;—why do you fear competition from a private company if you can do the work so much better than they can? Sometimes a rich company may even work at a big loss for a time. The Gas Company might say, "We will do it at a loss of 50 per cent. for the next five years in order to crush down these new works."

Mr.
C. Christie
29 May, 1890.

218. You lose sight of the fact that the Municipal Council have entire control of the lighting of the streets; you can thus deprive the competing company of the major part of their business? Yes; we could do that.
219. That being the case, what fear need you have of competition? Still we would rather have no competition. If there is any profit to be made, we think the people should have the advantage of it.
220. But you have no desire, as a municipal body, to make a profit? Not individually; but if cheap lighting is to be obtained we should like to obtain it without squeezing.
221. Was this subject made a platform at the last municipal election? No; I do not think it was.
222. But if the interests of the citizens were so seriously menaced, surely the matter would have been one of the prominent platforms in February last? I was elected some time ago myself, and I was in favour of electric lighting then.
223. Was not a great deal of interest taken in the question by the ratepayers? I do not think it has come up as a question ante and pro.
224. Then you do not know what is the actual feeling of the ratepayers even now? Yes; we know their feeling from petitions, and from our mixing with them generally.
225. That is your impression? We have no real proof, of course. I have only my own feeling to guide me, and I think that nine-tenths of the people would be in favour of the council lighting with electricity. I think it would be for their good, and that it would be to their very great advantage to have the electric light supplied by the council instead of it being supplied by a private company for private profit.
226. Mr. Curley.] In the district of Newcastle have not other private companies shown a total want of consideration for streets and for private properties? I know that other companies have evinced a disregard for private properties when engaged in coal-mining. There are places in the vicinity of Newcastle which have been undermined by companies with the result that the surface of the land has been interfered with, and houses have been endangered.
227. Does this consideration influence you in any way in your objection to giving extended powers to such a company as the Newcastle Gas Company? It would have an influence on me in this way: That companies go in for private speculation. They engage in undertakings for the purpose of making money out of the public. The council propose to embark in this undertaking in order to save money.
228. Mr. Brown.] You say that the council would not necessarily cut up the streets as much as a private company would cut them up, because they would work the two things in together? Yes.
229. From that I understand that if you successfully oppose this Bill, and were successful in getting your own Bill through, you would wait until it was necessary to make some repairs or alterations to a street before you laid down the light there? It might be so. We should endeavour to make the two things dove-tail as much as possible. I am sure the council would make a much better job of the streets than the gas company have done.
230. But would this not necessitate a great deal of delay often before the light could be taken into a particular part of the city? I do not think I said that we should wait in all cases until we were repairing or altering the road before we put down the light. In some cases persons might have to wait a month or two if a certain street stood badly in need of repair.
231. Your answers to these questions have reference to the possibility of the conductors being taken underground? Yes.
232. Now, in your contract, have you provided for the light being taken underground, or for the wires being carried along by means of poles? By poles.
233. Do you think the council will have an immense superiority over the company in digging big holes and putting posts into them;—is it after all a matter of any importance? The gas company ask for power to dig up the streets. I do not know that the mere digging of holes would make any material difference. They of course have skilled men, whose business it is to dig holes, as well as other persons have.
234. How do you arrive at the fact that nine-tenths of the ratepayers of Newcastle are in favour of the council lighting the town by electricity? From my general conversation—from mixing with the public generally.
235. Would you not be surprised to hear that the general opinion of the public is strongly against the council having anything to do with the matter? I should be very much surprised to hear it.
236. Can you account for the fact that a bare majority of the council is in favour of the undertaking, when you say that nine-tenths of the people are in favour of it? I really cannot account for some of the aldermen opposing it.
237. But still if, as you say, the council represents the citizens, and only a bare majority of the council are in favour of the council going into this undertaking, does it not tell against your idea that nine-tenths of the citizens are in favour of the proposal? I have no desire to make a speech, but I think it is really necessary in this case I should make an explanation. The people, I take it, are not in favour of the council running any great risk in an experiment. In the contract into which we have entered we run no risk. The contractors provide the plant and run it for twelve months before we pay them for it, in order to prove that it is really what they represent.
238. But that does not do more than prove that the plant provided will produce the necessary quantity of light? It proves that we run no risk of loss.
239. Does this arrangement you have made prove anything more than that the party supplying the plant will run the risk of its being capable of supplying the required amount of light; he may run it at a loss, and yet you say that you are incurring no risk? Nor are we; and the very fact of our incurring no risk makes the people in favour of it.
240. But how do you prove that you incur no risk? The very words I use themselves imply that we incur no risk.
241. I think not? The arrangement is this: The parties work the plant for twelve months; if it is not then found that it is all that they represent—if it is not satisfactory to ourselves and to our skilled engineer—they will work it again and again for five years; in fact we shall not have to pay them for the plant at all unless it is to our satisfaction.
242. But suppose the plant were ever so efficient, does that prove that it may not be worked at a loss? The only guarantee in that respect is that our expert has assured us that the light will be supplied at the rate of £2 a lamp, and that is less than half of what we are paying for gas.
243. That is for street lighting? Yes.

- Mr. C. Christie.
29 May, 1890.
244. And does not take into consideration private lighting? No.
245. How many lamps have you? I do not know—it is very difficult to carry figures in your head.
246. The £11,000 to which you referred does not include the cost of land and buildings? No.
247. What would they cost? I think £1,000 is asked for the land.
248. How much would the building cost? That would be a mere shell, it would be only an iron shed.
249. Does your cost include the steam-engine, and all the rest of it? Yes.
250. Let us put it down then at £12,000;—what would you borrow that sum at? At 4½ per cent. probably.
251. That would be at the rate of about £520 a year. How many lamps are there? I could not say.
252. What light is it to be—the arc light, or the incandescent light? I think it is the incandescent light, but I could not swear that positively.
253. You say that the gas company when they first started wanted £16 a lamp per annum? Yes.
254. Newcastle was a small place at that time? Yes.
255. And not many people were taking gas? Well I could not tell you about that. There were no street lights.
256. Then as the town increased in size the gas rate diminished—not only for street lamps but for the private supply? Yes.
257. And the price has continued to diminish? Yes.
258. Showing that the larger the extent supplied with gas, the cheaper the rate of supply? Yes; but I have explained before that we have always had a hard tussle with the gas company.
259. Do you not think that the gas company, supplying a large district having a radius of 10 miles, will be able to supply gas cheaper than the council could supply it confined within its own boundaries? I do not think they could.
260. You do not think a number of business men conducting business for the sake of profit and of enlarging their custom would do as well as a body of aldermen who have no personal interest in the result? I do not think they would do better; aldermen are, as a rule, elected from business people.
261. Could not the company have agents abroad ready to get them all they require, could not they work their business more cheaply than the corporation would work theirs? I do not know what they would require—coal we can get without an agent.
262. But wires are continually wanted, are they not? They could be got as cheaply by the council as by any company.
263. Then as regards the incandescent lamps and other appliances? They could be obtained just as cheaply by the council as large consumers as by any company, on application to the manufacturers.
264. The council taking the chance of the supply being good, bad, or indifferent? Exactly, as the gas company would.
265. You propose that the council should keep a stock of wires, lamps, and other appliances? As they do deodorants for nightsoil.
266. Is it the intention of the council to keep a supply of wires, lamps, and other electrical material? To do anything which may be found by experience to be necessary.
267. I ask you again, is it the intention of the council to keep a supply of wires, lamps, and other electrical material? Yes, if found necessary.
268. And to sell them to people who require them? That I do not know.
269. Then what would be the object of keeping them? For our own use.
270. But if you are going to supply light to private individuals, they will require to have their lamps renewed from time to time? The gas company do not supply gas fittings.
271. But you ask for a monopoly;—is it your intention to keep a supply of lamps and other apparatus to sell to your customers? No; not at all. If you put the question that way at first, I could have answered it at once.
272. Then how do you suppose your customers will carry on if a lamp gets broken or if anything of that kind happens? We have men in Newcastle who earn a living by gasfitting, and who import and keep for sale gas-fitting material, chandeliers, and so forth; I suppose electric lamps would be supplied as the demand arose.
273. Do you not think that a monopoly is injurious to the public interest? Yes I do; but I do not think that this is a kind of monopoly which would be injurious.
274. But would not the public be entirely at the mercy of the aldermen as to what rate they would have? They would be entirely at the mercy of aldermen of their annual choice.
275. You are aware I suppose that there is some danger attendant upon the use of the electric light? I have read some letters in the paper in which that has been stated.
276. You know that this Bill provides for some supervision to prevent the company from carrying on its operations in such a manner as to endanger the public? And quite right too.
277. But supposing the council had power to supply light to private individuals, how would they be overlooked? In the same way as suggested by the skilled witness who was examined this morning.
278. But a good deal of this supervision has to be done by the council? Then I suppose they would overlook the work themselves.
279. You do not think that the council not having to risk money out of their own pockets would be more likely to act carelessly than the members of a company who would feel the loss personally? I believe that the aldermen generally act as though they were acting for themselves, although very often they may be wrong, and although they sometimes do wrong.
280. Do you not know that the Newcastle aldermen have over and over again got into litigation under circumstances in which they would not have been so situated if dealing with their own private matters? That is because they were wrongly advised.
281. You say you have entered into a contract for the purchase of plant? I said we had accepted a tender. The contract really is not signed.
282. Then the apparatus you are getting is for the sale of light as well as for street lighting? If we get the necessary power from Parliament.
283. But is it specified in the contract that it is to be subject to your getting the necessary power? It is to be large enough to afford the necessary supply in the event of our getting the power.
284. Are those words mentioned in the contract? Their meaning is there, but I will not be bound down to the exact words.
285. Is it so expressed? That is the meaning of it.
- 286.

286. It is expressed that you are not to be bound down by it unless you get power to supply private lighting? That is not what I say. I have not said anything of the sort.

287. Then what do you say? I say that the plant contracted for is to be of a sufficient size to enable us to supply people with private lights if we get the necessary power from Parliament; that is what we have contracted for.

288. Then substantially you say you have accepted a tender for a plant of a certain power? In anticipation of certain powers being granted to us. Even if these powers are not granted to us the material will still be utilized.

289. But assuming that you do not get those powers you have accepted a tender for a larger quantity of apparatus than you require for street lighting? That is so.

290. You think the whole of the lighting, public and private, should be in the hands of the council? I do. I think it would be an advantage to the public.

291. You know that notwithstanding the supply of gas or of electricity, as the case may be, a considerable quantity of kerosene and a large number of candles are used? It is more convenient under certain circumstances.

292. Do you propose that the council should keep a supply of those? No; they can be easily bought. There is a certain amount of competition in the supply of kerosene and candles, which prevent the overcharging to which the council have been subject, and to which we might be subject again.

293. You wish to put a stop to all competition? No, not at all.

294. Suppose some other means of illumination besides electricity were to be started the money expended by the council would be lost, unless you obtained a monopoly, and prevented persons from supplying it? It would be a loss if the sun changed its mind and shone night and day.

295. Supposing electricity could be provided in a cheaper form than that in which the council are able to supply it;—are the ratepayers to continue paying the higher rate because no one else is allowed to supply? The answer to that is that if any improvements in the supply of electricity should be devised or invented, the council would have the same opportunity to embrace the new invention as any gas company would have, and would be quite as likely to take advantage of it.

296. Would not the money expended on the plant in their possession have been thrown away in that case? Just the same as it would be in any other invention. We should stand in the same position as the gas company, and we should have to take the risk.

297. Do you think it is right to risk the money of the public in a speculation? Yes; when the risk is so little, and the probability of success is so large.

298. The council is pretty heavily in debt? I cannot tell you the amount. They owe money, but they have given satisfactory securities. They have not exceeded their borrowing powers, nor have they yet come up to the limit. They cannot therefore be said to be very much in debt.

299. Have not the council applied for permission to borrow, and has not permission been refused? I am under the impression that power has been granted, and that we are at present negotiating in the London market to borrow £75,000. The amount is not yet borrowed.

300. You propose in addition to that to borrow a sum for the construction of these works? No; the sum we are now negotiating for will go towards the works. It will pay for them, and would wood-block Hunter-street. That is what it is intended for. It is intended for those two things and for other works enumerated at the time the motion was carried.

301. Is the fact that you intend to spend some of this money for electric lighting stated in the application to borrow? I could not say that.

302. Are you aware that when you are applying to borrow you must state the purpose to which the money is to be applied? Yes, in a general way. I do not know that electricity was mentioned. I know that wood-blocking and the cutting down of King-street was mentioned. I could not be sure whether electricity was mentioned or not.

303. You know that another company has applied for various lighting powers in various parts of the colony—in Sydney, Newcastle, and elsewhere? I was not aware of that.

304. Has any public meeting been held in reference to the lighting by electricity? Yes. One public meeting was held at the School of Arts, at which one of the speakers said plainly that many of the aldermen were getting cheques, and that I was to have my hall lit up for nothing. I can give that statement a flat denial, and say that it is utterly false.

305. That is not what I referred to; have there been any public meetings favourable to the council of Newcastle lighting the city with electricity? No one has ever asked for such a thing. It would appear that the public are satisfied with the action the aldermen are taking or they would have called a public meeting.

Mr. John Beveridge called in, sworn, and examined:—

306. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of the Borough of Stockton? Yes.

307. Has your council sent in a petition opposing the passing of a Bill by the Newcastle Gas Company, enabling them to light Newcastle and its suburbs with electricity? Yes, we have not only sent in a petition against the Newcastle Company's Bill, but also one sought to be obtained by a syndicate for the purpose of lighting Stockton.

308. What reasons have your council for opposing the Gas Company's Bill? Well the people have requested the council to take steps to light up the borough, and they think they have a prior claim to any syndicate so far as lighting powers are concerned.

309. And you think you have a prior claim to any company? Yes.

310. Have your ratepayers given expression to any feeling against the gas company passing this Bill? We have had two public meetings very numerous attended, and we have sent in two petitions—one against Cowlshaw's Bill, and one against the Newcastle Company's Bill. Something like 400 signatures were attached. The people, I believe, are unanimously opposed to any syndicate or company having the power to light Stockton.

311. How many ratepayers are there in your municipality? I could not say. The revenue from the rates is something like £1,200.

312. Roughly speaking I believe there are 500 or 600 ratepayers? Yes.

313. Have the council themselves passed any resolution opposing the Bill? Yes.

Mr. C. Christie.

Mr. J. Beveridge.
29 May, 1890.

Mr.
J. Beveridge.
29 May, 1890.

314. Were they unanimous? Yes; the corporate seal was attached to the petitions which were sent in.
315. The resolution you carried was to the effect that the municipality itself should light all places within the borough? That was the prayer of the petitions.
316. Have you any other objections to urge against the Bill? We consider that any private company does a certain amount of damage when it has power to cut up the streets. There is always a great deal of dissatisfaction about the way in which the work is done. If the council themselves have lighting powers, and injure the streets themselves, they must put up with the consequences—they have no one to blame but themselves.
317. Would it be beneficial to the ratepayers if the council had the whole matter in their own hands, and if no company were allowed to interfere with them? I look at it in this way: It would be a considerable benefit to the people, because they would get gas or the electric light at the cost of manufacturing it.
318. It would not be a speculation on the part of the council? No; no person would have any profit out of it.
319. Do your council object to interference by a private company in respect to the rights which you possess as regards streets and roads? I think the fact of our petitioning as we have done shows that we object to the powers asked for being granted.
320. Chairman.] Are you aware that this Bill does not confer any monopoly upon the gas company? I do not think the Government would give a monopoly to any company.
321. Do you know that the Bill does not ask for a monopoly? I believe it does not.
322. Does your council object to the Bill on any ground of monopoly, or is it simply that they do not wish that any company should have the power to light the borough? It is simply this: the council want the right to supply private persons with light, and the public want them to have that right.
323. This Bill would not prevent the council producing the light? If the syndicate had the power it would come into competition with us.
324. Your council wants no competition; it wants everything in its own hands? That is what they want. They do not want to make any profit. They ask for the power simply for the benefit of the public.
325. Do you think it is a legitimate function of a municipal council to prevent competition in the matter of lighting private houses? The two things clash, of course. I do not say that the council should have the sole power in any matter of that kind; but I understand that the Government contemplate giving the municipal council power to buy out any established syndicates and to take up the supply of light themselves. We believe, apart from that, that the people should have the right to supply their own light, without any interference by any syndicate.
326. Where do you find that the Government propose to assist the municipal councils in supplying private lighting? I was referring to the new Local Government Bill.
327. Is there any provision in that Bill which would enable the council to supply light to private houses? I think so, but I would not be quite sure. I know it gives the council power to buy out any company which may be in existence. That being the case, I think they should have the power to light private dwellings as well as the streets. The great advantage seems to me to be this: that the people would get the light at the cost of its manufacture. Why should not private dwellings be lighted by the municipal council as well as streets?
328. Do you think it is desirable that the municipal council should try to block private enterprise in the matter of lighting private dwellings? I think the council should have the power to supply their own light.
329. But is it desirable that a municipal council should try to prevent private enterprise from providing lights in private dwellings? I do.
330. Do you really think that a municipal council, with its constituents constantly changing through aldermanic elections, can manage such a commercial concern as the supply of electric light as economically as it could be managed by a private company? Of course the municipality would appoint officers to manage the concern, in just the same way that officers are appointed by private syndicates; and that being so, I see no reason why the council should not be able to supply the light as cheaply as it would be supplied by any private company.
331. Have there not been many cases in the history of municipal management where changes among the aldermen have led to complete changes in policy as to public works? I am not aware of any instance.
332. Mr. Ewing.] Your council proposes to afford to the public the accommodation which this company proposes to afford to them? The council is prepared to supply the people with light.
333. You mean to give practically the same accommodation that this company would give? I think so. We have made out no definite scheme. We are only a young municipality.
334. Therefore you cannot say with certainty whether you are prepared to do what I suggest? Oh, yes.
335. You believe you are prepared to do so? Yes.
336. Suppose this company proposed to give the public certain accommodation and you also proposed to do so, the result would be competition, and gas or electric light, as the case might be, would be cheaper than ever? Yes.
337. Is not that the outcome of competition? Yes; I suppose so.
338. Mr. Curley.] In the event of any change taking place in the system of lighting, could you not incorporate that change with the system upon which you were working as well as it could be incorporated by any private company? Yes. I do not see what would prevent the council from doing so. The council, under any circumstances, would be bound to do the best they could in the interests of the ratepayers; they would adopt whatever light might seem to them best in the public interest.
339. Would it not always be the aim and object of the council to make simply a charge to cover the cost of working expenses, interest on capital invested in plant, and so forth? That is exactly what they would do. The first thing taken into consideration would be the amount of capital required, and then I suppose a sinking fund would be established to repay the money with interest.
340. Mr. Brown.] I presume you would charge a lighting rate if you undertook lighting arrangements? Yes. There is a lighting rate already in some municipalities where they supply gas.
341. Then everybody will have to contribute to the lighting rate, whether they use the private light from the council or not? Of course they would all have to pay for the street lights.

342. But we will assume that some ratepayer burns a great number of lights in his dwelling; he gets the advantage of that light at cost price;—would not that be making the man who takes no light at all assist in paying for the lighting of the other man's dwelling? Well, as far as I can learn, a lighting rate is the system generally adopted;—whether it is the best one or not I do not know.
343. But if the lighting rate for the streets is increased in order to supply private light cheaply, it seems to me that some persons must be unjustly taxed for a benefit in which they do not participate? I understood that you were referring only to the street lighting.
344. I am referring to both street and private lighting? Well, I take it that any person who consumes gas in a private dwelling will have to pay so much per thousand at whatever rate the council may agree to supply it.
345. Suppose that the people who bought light, instead of buying it simply at the cost price were to pay a fair and reasonable price, as under ordinary circumstances they would, would not that make the lighting rate for street purposes less? It does not make it less in Newcastle, does it?
346. Say there is a lighting rate of 3d. in the £; that the company could supply lights at 3s. a lamp and that the council could supply it as 2s. a lamp or 1s. less;—would not everybody who paid a lighting rate pay something to make up the difference between the 2s. and 3s.? To answer the question as broadly as possible, I would say that the ratepayers get the advantage of having the gas supplied to them at the cost of manufacture, with the interest on the money of course added. There is no 15 per cent. or reserve fund put aside.
347. I suppose you do not propose to supply kerosene and candles? No.
348. Why should you not supply kerosene and candles as well as gas? The Newcastle Company have not found it necessary to do so, and I do not see why we should.

Mr.
J. Beveridge.
29 May, 1890.

Mr. Alfred Harnett Clapin called in, sworn, and examined:—

349. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Waratah? Yes.
350. Has your council petitioned against the passing of this Bill? Yes.
351. Have you read the Bill? Yes.
352. Will you state what objections your council have to the Bill? The general objection, in the first place, is this: That the council think that it is as much the function of the municipal authorities to light the streets as it is to make streets, to drain them, and to do other general municipal work. In the next place, they hold that it is not to the advantage of the inhabitants of the place that the Bill should pass—that it is not desirable that there should be given to a powerful company power which might be used to the detriment of the municipal bodies of the district.
353. Have you gas-works at Waratah now? Yes; and we have had some experience of the action taken by the Newcastle Gas Company under the powers conferred upon them by the Act of 1866.
354. Did you receive from the secretary of the Newcastle Gas Company some time ago a letter in reference to this Bill? We received a letter from the company, covering copies of the Bill, and asking consideration of the same. We were asked to state our objections, if any, to the Bill. The letter was received, and it was agreed that the objections should be stated when the Bill came before the House; that it was not the business of the council to make a Bill for the company, but to state their objections when the Bill was brought before Parliament with the object of making it law.
355. Did the council make any overtures to the company about the supply of gas? Overtures were made to the company to light the Borough of Waratah with gas in 1885. The municipal council of the day obtained replies from the company for lighting a certain number of lamps, and the offer was considered at the time exorbitant.
356. What was it? £13 10s. for street lamps, and they wanted a guarantee of ten years.
357. At that time had not the company a monopoly of the district? At that time they had, if not a legal monopoly, a practical monopoly, which was just as serious a thing. The council wished to have the place lit with gas, and as they were not successful in their overtures to the company they had to look about for some other means of carrying out their object.
358. They have now erected gas-works? They made overtures to another gas company, but they did not come to anything. The only course open was to erect gas-works for themselves, under the Municipalities Gas Act of 1883. They called in experts to advise them, and collected all the information they could get. It was decided at a public meeting that it was desirable to light the municipality with gas, and it was left in the hands of the council to provide what means they considered best for lighting. After obtaining information of every description the council decided to erect municipal gas-works. The next step was to obtain from Parliament authority to borrow the necessary money. That was granted. The council borrowed the money and proceeded to erect the gas-works.
359. Can you state any other objections which the council have to this Bill? The council object to the company having what practically amounts to a monopoly. In the first place, they object to hand over to any other body any control whatever of streets for which they are responsible. They maintain this objection on general grounds, and on the strength of their recent experiences of the gas company.
360. Did the gas company take its pipes out to Waratah before or after you erected your works? They had their pipes taken to Waratah after we had entered into negotiations from which there was little chance of our backing out—that was, after we had arranged to borrow money and had absolutely entered into a contract.
361. Have you read the fourth clause of this Bill, with regard to the power of the company to break up streets and roads? Yes.
362. They propose to exercise this power without the consent of the council? Under this Bill they will have power to open up the streets, and to do pretty well as they like, by merely giving notice—as a matter of fact, without the council knowing what they are doing. It seems to me that they can do exactly as they please with streets for which the council is responsible. There is now about a mile of gas-pipes lying in the Waratah streets of the position of which the council have no official knowledge. While we have no official knowledge of their position we are responsible for any damage which may be done to those pipes in road-making or other work. You see we are not even acquainted with the position of their pipes.

Mr.
A. H. Clapin.
29 May, 1890.

Mr.
A. H. Clapin.
29 May, 1890.

363. Was there any competition between the gas company and your council as to the supply of gas? There is competition at the present time. After arrangements had been made, and after a contract had actually be entered into, the company sought about for consumers, representing to them that it would be some years before the council would be in a position to supply them with gas.

364. Do you know that of your own knowledge? I have it from those to whom it was represented—which is, of course, hearsay. A very limited number, not more than half a dozen persons, were induced to take the company's gas. There was an agreement, I believe, to take it for a certain number of years. The company, in order to get these few consumers, have gone to an expense of £908, according to their own balance sheet. The result of this opposition in the municipality after we had begun operations was to upset the whole of the estimates of the council as to the gas-works. The opposition reduced the proposed price to consumers of the gas, and increased the rate levied for lighting purposes, the result being that those who were consuming gas were being supplied at a price at which no Australian gas-light company has commenced operations. Many persons being ratepayers and not residents, and getting little or no advantage from the gas, are made to pay the maximum amount for lighting. In that way the gas company's action has pressed heavily upon the ratepayers. A few of the consumers get an advantage, but the great body of the ratepayers are at the disadvantage of having to provide a heavy lighting rate.

365. You think it is to the advantage of the ratepayers to have gas supplied by the council instead of by any company? Well, we could not give the gas except by erecting gas-works, and then the advantage which municipal gas-works possess as against the works of a company is this: that the municipal works supply the gas at cost price; that cannot be done by a private company.

366. But could the company supply the gas at as cheap a rate as the council? It is not a matter of can, it is a matter of will. The company can supply gas at less than cost price for a certain time, until their creditors stop them.

367. The council were unanimous in petitioning against this Bill? They were.

368. Can you form any idea of the feeling of the ratepayers on the subject? The feeling of the people as regards the Newcastle company is very bitter. It is considered that the company have acted towards us in a very arbitrary manner. They would not come when they were wanted, and when they did come they forced themselves under powers which they were supposed to have under the Act of 1866. I might state that when the Bill of 1866 was passed no parties outside the city of Newcastle had an opportunity to object, inasmuch as none of the places were incorporated. Waratah, for instance, was not incorporated.

369. Do your council now object to interference by any company with the roads, footpaths, and so on? They do.

370. And you are quite prepared to supply the necessary light to all your ratepayers? We are.

371. Chairman.] Are you aware that there is a clause in the Bill compelling the company to reinstate any ground they break up in the municipality? I know that clause 6 provides for that.

372. Are you aware that clause 4 requires the company to give not less than twenty-four hours notice before proceeding to break up any street? I am aware that they are required to give notice of so doing.

373. Did your council reply in any form whatever to the letter of the company, asking for a consideration of their Bill? I do not know that we did.

374. There was no acknowledgment whatever? I do not think so.

375. When the price of £13 10s. per lamp was put in by the company, was there any limitation as to the number of lamps? It was specified by the council.

376. Was it a limited number? I am not sure, but I believe it was fifty.

377. You say that the company then had a practical monopoly of the gas-lighting in your borough;—had they any pipes laid into your borough at that time? None.

378. Then how could they have a monopoly? Well, having their works and their pipes laid to our boundary, they were in a position to supply gas cheaper than any other company starting.

379. There was some other company in the neighbourhood? About 6 miles from us.

380. Do you think that you have sufficient ground for saying that the company had practically a monopoly? I do.

381. You speak of handing over the control of the streets to the company;—does the company ask for the control of the streets in this Bill? They have power to break up the streets, and we cannot prevent them.

382. But you have control of the streets for all ordinary purposes? I do not consider that we have control if we cannot prevent the company from breaking them up.

383. You cannot prevent them from exercising their power under an Act of Parliament; but the council has the controlling power of the streets? But they forfeit that control to the extent I have named.

384. You said that only a few private customers had been gained by the company in the Borough of Waratah? I think about six.

385. Then how do you account for such a limited custom seriously interfering with the council in supplying the borough? It is not the actual loss of these few consumers; but the company being there, we have to bring down our price for gas very nearly to the price at which the company are supplying, otherwise our customers would go to the gas company.

386. But is it not one of your arguments for a municipal monopoly of the supply, that the council can supply cheaper than any company? Certainly they can, other circumstances being equal.

387. Then how could the gaining of six customers upset the whole of your estimate? It is not the fact of their having six customers. If they had no customers at all the fact would remain that they, having spent a large sum in laying mains through the streets, an opposition is created to our works, compelling us to reduce our price at our initial stage.

388. Then you have to sell cheaper than you would otherwise sell? Cheaper than the price upon which our estimate was based.

389. Or the company would undersell you? As a matter of fact the company are now selling at a lower price, but we are not losing a single consumer. We are gaining, in fact, whereas the company is standing still, showing that the public are prepared to make a sacrifice in order to support the council's industry.

390. Why should the borough be afraid of competition; the street lighting is in its own power;—why should it be afraid of competition in regard to other lighting? Because the company, having been long established, are prepared to make a sacrifice which we are not yet prepared to make. Our works were only opened in last August.

391. Mr. Burns.] No company can continue business long at a loss? With their business at Waratah they could continue a long time.
392. Would the consumers lose by it? A few consumers would not.
393. Would the Corporation lose by it? Well, we have erected works.
394. Mr. Ewing.] What is your lighting rate? Sixpence in the £.
395. What is the Newcastle lighting rate? Threepence in the £.
396. Are you losing money by your gas-works? No.
397. They will pay with a 6d. lighting rate? They are estimated to pay during this half-year.
398. Mr. Curley.] Is the rate you are paying now anything like the rate you were requested to pay by the company when they offered to enter into an agreement with you? It is less than the company asked; but we have the advantage of placing the lamps where we think proper, whereas we could not compel the company to put lamps in our outlying portions. We supply light to a larger area than the company would have done.
399. In the event of your co-operating with any two or three adjoining municipalities, would the rate you now charge be materially reduced? It would increase the consumption and diminish the cost per 1,000.
400. And you anticipate that as the consumption increases you will be able to reduce the lighting rate? Certainly.
401. Mr. Ewing.] What are you charging now? Six shillings a thousand.
402. What are they charging in Newcastle? Five shillings and sixpence at the present time, I believe.
403. Chairman.] What does your lighting cost per lamp? It is between £10 and £12 at the present rate, with our present number of lamps.
404. Mr. Brown.] Did not your published statement say that the cost per lamp was £18? I do not think we published any statement of the cost per lamp.
405. Not in the annual revenue returns? When those returns were published, we had not our books open; we had money charged to working expenses which should have been charged to capital account and extension.
406. How does the amount of rate you receive affect the cost of the lamps? It does not affect the cost of the lamps. I am giving you what the public pay for the street lighting, dividing it among the lamps.
407. What is the estimate for the street lamps? I do not think we have an estimate per street lamp.
408. Did not your estimate come to £3 or £4 per annum per lamp? I do not think so. It was not necessary to reduce the estimate so low as that, seeing that the adjoining municipalities at that time were paying £8.
409. Are you not now lighting a larger number of lamps than you proposed the gas company should supply? A few more; it is the result of an accident.
410. How many are you lighting now? Between fifty and sixty.
411. Was not thirty or thirty-one the number for which you were in treaty with the gas company? I cannot speak positively from memory, and that makes the number about fifty.
412. You said that no objection to the Newcastle Gas Company's Act could come from Waratah, because the place was not incorporated; but was there anything to prevent public meetings from taking place, and petitions being sent in? It was not impossible, but before incorporation public meetings were very improbable. You had to deal with a population scattered over 4,000 acres.
413. Mr. Baker.] Would it be fair to allow a private company to compete with the council's gas-works and gas rates when you are endeavouring to use all the economy you can, and to expend the profits, if any, upon streets, footpaths, and so on? It would not be in the interests of the ratepayers.
414. Mr. Burns.] Then you think that the municipal council at this place should have a monopoly? I think, seeing that the aldermen are elected by the people, who have to suffer or benefit, as the case may be, they are the persons who should have control of the matter.
415. Mr. Brown.] Do you think it right that the council should prevent the residents of Waratah from using electricity unless they choose to supply it themselves? If the ratepayers wish it, certainly not; but a wish is expressed that no private company should interfere with the lighting—that wish has been most emphatically expressed.

Mr.
A. H. Clapin.
29 May, 1890.

Mr. William Thomas Dent called in, sworn, and examined:—

416. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Lambton? Yes.
417. Your council has sent in a petition opposing the Bill now under consideration? They have.
418. What are the grounds of the council's objection to it? Briefly, the grounds are these: that we have lately made provision for supplying ourselves, by entering into a contract for electric lighting. Naturally, we do not want the opposition of any one. The place is only a small one, and we have, we think, supplied all its requirements. We think there is not room for anyone else to come in, and we want to keep them out if our opposition will do it.
419. If they came in and competed you would lose the benefit of what has been already done? I think our venture would be a failure if we had any opposition from any one.
420. And the expenditure would be rendered useless? We should sustain a total loss, I think.
421. The company, under the fourth clause of this Bill, will have power to break up roads and streets? Yes; I am aware of that.
422. Do the council object to the company breaking up their streets? We object to their breaking up the streets, but we object more particularly on account of the wires, because it would be almost impossible to run two sets of wires in the streets we have without their coming into contact.
423. But there would be nothing to prevent the company breaking up the roads? Of course we object to the Bill on that ground also.
424. What is the general feeling of the ratepayers in your municipality? They strongly object to power being given to the Newcastle Gas Company, or to any other company, to oppose them in this matter.
425. Was the resolution of the council to oppose this Bill passed unanimously? It was.
426. Chairman.] You say that the council have made provision for electric lighting? Yes.
427. Have you let a contract? Yes.
428. It is actually let? Yes. The contract time is exceeded. The place should have been lit on the 1st of this month.
429. And preparations are going on? Yes, but the machinery is not yet landed.

Mr.
W. T. Dent.
29 May, 1890.

- Mr. W. T. Dent.
29 May, 1890.
430. Will you use poles? Yes.
431. Mr. Curley.] Have you had much experience of the Newcastle Gas Company? I have been a consumer of theirs for some time past.
432. Are you aware whether the company have maintained their efficiency as regards the supply of gas? I have heard complaints, but, individually, I have had no fault to find.
433. Mr. Brown.] Your council has not the power to supply lights to private individuals? We think we have.
434. Have you read the Act? I have.
435. Supposing the gas company desired to establish the electric light, could you not dispose of your plant to them? Yes; but I do not think we should be disposed to do that.
436. They would not be likely to come to you with your works in existence? After what they did at Waratah I should not be surprised at anything they did.

WEDNESDAY, 4 JUNE, 1890.

Present:—
MR. BURNS. | MR. WRIGHT.
MR. CURLEY.
J. F. CULLEN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR

Mr. H. J. Brown, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the promoters of the Bill.
Mr. W. H. Baker, solicitor, appeared on behalf of several Municipal Councils petitioning against the Bill.

Mr. David Watson called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. D. Watson.
4 June, 1890.
437. Mr. Baker.] You are alderman of the Borough of Waratah? Yes.
438. Are you aware that the Newcastle Gas Company have introduced a Bill enabling them to supply electricity within an area of 10 miles of the city of Newcastle? Yes.
439. Did your council petition against that Bill? Yes.
440. Shortly, what reasons had the council for objecting to the Bill? I believe the council represented the feeling of the public.
441. Was a public meeting called? Yes; there was a large requisition to the Mayor to summon a public meeting, in order to take action in opposition to the Bill.
442. Was that public meeting held? Yes; on the 13th January last, and it was largely attended.
443. What was the decision of the meeting? There was, with one exception, a unanimous vote. It was decided that the council should oppose the passing of the Bill.
444. Who was the one dissentient? He was an employee of the gas company.
445. And not a ratepayer in the municipality? No.
446. Have your council had any dealings with the gas company? A great deal of correspondence has taken place between the Waratah council and the gas company. The first correspondence was in 1885, when the council asked them to light up so many lamps and inquired what the price would be. The price was £13 per lamp with a guarantee for ten years.
447. You mean that the council required a guarantee for ten years at that price? Yes.
448. What was the outcome of it? We declined the offer. Two years after that, in 1887, we applied to the company to reconsider their offer, and they referred the council to their old letter of 20th October, 1885.
449. Were you able to make reasonable terms with them? We could not make terms with them, except at a price which the ratepayers would not think of accepting.
450. You have now established gas-works in your municipality? Yes; by the unanimous vote of the ratepayers.
451. You are now supplying gas to all the ratepayers? Yes, with the exception of about three, who are supplied by the Newcastle Gas Company.
452. Does your council object to the Newcastle Gas Company having the power to lay mains and pipes through your municipality, breaking up the streets and footpaths? We object to the council having the power to break up the roads.
453. Without even obtaining the consent of the council? Exactly.
454. Have you read the fourth clause of the Bill? Yes. We object to that clause, because we consider that the notice is too little. Besides, we think the council should have power to say whether the company should break up roads or not—that is one of our great objections to the Bill.
455. You say that the general feeling is against any company having such power? Yes.
456. How long have you been lighting the streets with your own gas? About nine months, I think.
457. Can you tell me at what rate per lamp per annum you are supplying the light? I do not think it would exceed £8.
458. Have you any reliable data to go upon? Not yet. We made out a short balance-sheet when we were just starting, but we could not make a proper calculation as to what the expenditure would be at that time.
459. But you estimate that it is now costing about £8 per lamp? Yes.
460. Mr. Wright.] Do you sell light to the ratepayers privately? Yes; we charge 6s. per 1,000 ordinarily, and 5s. per 1,000 to those who use the gas for cooking purposes.
461. Mr. Brown.] I understand that you object altogether to the introduction of the electric light into Waratah? I do not think that feeling has been expressed, but the people object to the Bill in toto, and it provides for the electric light.
462. Suppose your municipality were to increase very much in size and numbers, and that a large number of persons required the electric light, and this Bill were thrown out, how would they get it? I could not answer that question.
463. But what would the council do if a large number of persons desired the electric light? Well, we might get it from a neighbouring borough.
464. Suppose a large number of the ratepayers required the electric light for their own private purposes, would the council object to it? I do not think I could answer that question. 465.

465. Suppose the company were restricted in what we may term its compulsory powers to Newcastle, and could not go to the surrounding municipalities without consent of the municipal councils, would that meet your objection? I do not think there is any need for that provision; the municipality which I represent is simply carrying out the power which the law has given it.

Mr.
D. Watson.
4 June, 1890.

466. Mr. Baker.] Cannot a public meeting be called at any time for the purpose of settling this question? Yes.

Mr. John Rollo Rogers called in, sworn, and examined:—

467. Mr. Baker.] You are an alderman of the Borough of Newcastle? Yes.

468. You are aware that a bill has been introduced by the Newcastle Gas Company, enabling them to supply electricity? Yes.

Mr.
J. R. Rogers.
4 June, 1890.

469. And your council have petitioned against it? Yes.

470. Was a public meeting held in Newcastle some time ago in reference to the matter? A kind of public meeting was held in reference to the matter on the 2nd of last month. A public meeting was called by advertisement of those adverse to electric lighting, by the Borough of Newcastle. The meeting was held in the School of Arts, a quasi public building. There were, according to the newspaper, fifty-three persons present, but I counted only forty-eight. Among those were thirteen employees and officers of the gas company. There were also a considerable number of persons who, to my knowledge, were either directly interested as shareholders in the company, or were indirectly interested through their relations being shareholders. I would not be certain of the number of those persons, but I think it was about twenty-two.

471. How many were opposed to the proposal? Judging from the statement of the chairman, sixteen voted for the first resolution. The second resolution, according to the chairman's decision, was carried unanimously, but, as a matter of fact, eleven hands were held up and the rest were indifferent.

472. What is the population of Newcastle? I suppose about 16,000 or 17,000, speaking roughly.

473. The council have resolved to oppose this Bill? Unanimously, on the ground of the public welfare. We are now attempting to get a Bill passed, and, it being one of the principles of public bodies to attempt to secure the greatest good for the greatest number, it is thought that if the public are made joint stock shareholders in an undertaking of this character, more good will be done than if the profits are put into the pockets of a private company.

474. What is the feeling of the public about the matter as far as you can judge? I think it is evidenced by the fact that, although this question of electric lighting has been agitated for twelve months, only two letters have appeared in the public press opposed to the lighting of Newcastle. I knock about a good deal as a public man, and I am satisfied that the public of Newcastle are totally averse to the gas company having these powers.

475. The council consider that they should have these powers themselves? Decidedly, in the public interests.

476. You say that the council of Newcastle unanimously resolved to oppose the company's bill? They did in conference.

477. I am referring to the resolution of the council? I was speaking of the resolution passed at the conference of the Municipality of Newcastle and the suburban municipalities.

478. Were you present at the meeting? Yes.

479. Was there a pretty full attendance of aldermen? All the municipalities were represented I believe.

480. The resolution was unanimous? I believe it was. I do not think there was a single dissentient.

481. What about the resolution that was passed by the Newcastle council, as a council, referring to this Bill? I could not be sure about that. You had better obtain that information from the town clerk.

482. Were you present when the resolution was passed by the council? I could not say from memory. We have had so many conferences as to this matter that my memory is confused between conferences and council meetings. To the best of my knowledge and belief a resolution such as you referred to has been passed.

483. Does your recollection serve you as to whether the vote was a unanimous vote or a majority vote? The Newcastle council are undoubtedly unanimous against this Bill; but we are not unanimous as regards our own Bill.

484. On what ground do you say that the council are unanimously against this Bill? On the ground that they are not desirous of the Newcastle Gas Company having such extended powers.

485. That is not an answer to my question;—how do you know that the council are unanimously against the Bill if you do not know whether there was a unanimous vote against it? I believe the Council are unanimously opposed to the Bill. At the conference, as I have already said, there was not a single dissentient voice.

486. Your memory does not serve you sufficiently to enable you to say whether there was a unanimous vote in the Newcastle council itself? No. I should not like to speak positively with reference to the council itself.

487. Mr. Curley.] Would it be quite legitimate for you to incorporate yourselves in a matter of this kind with other municipalities adjoining you, so that you could act jointly? Our Bill has a provision of that kind. If any municipality should express a wish we can supply them with electricity.

488. Mr. Brown.] Have you entered into any contract? We have. I believe the corporate seal is affixed.

489. When was that done? On Monday night. The council, by resolution, empowered the mayor to fix the corporate seal to the agreement.

490. Chairman.] Do you mean on Monday night last? Yes.

491. Mr. Brown.] Was there not some letter from the council's solicitor recommending that counsel's opinion should be taken? An opinion was expressed regarding a certain provision.

492. But was it not suggested that counsel's opinion should be taken? It was suggested.

493. And the council decided not to take the opinion? Yes; they had already an opinion in another direction.

494. What is the amount the council gave for the plant? £8,530, I think.

495. They have to buy the land? Yes.

496. How much would that cost? About £1,000.

- Mr. J. R. Rogers.
4 June, 1890.
497. Does your estimate include the cost of fixing the wire to the posts? Yes; and switching the light on.
498. In round numbers it would cost about £10,000? Yes.
499. Is it not a part of your agreement with the contractors that you are to pay 8½ per cent. interest upon the plant? As long as the principal is not paid.
500. You are also to pay a sum for working expenses while the work is being tried? The light is to be run by them for an unlimited time—they run it for £1,150 per annum.
501. You are not to pay cash down for the plant? It is left open to us to pay cash when we think proper. We pay 8½ per cent. interest during the time we are retaining the principal, and we pay £1,150 a year during the time the contractors are running the light—that is for the cost of running.
50. Mr. Baker.] You can pay up the money at any time? At any time we think proper, but we thought it desirable to see that the plant was perfect before we paid the money.
503. If the council think fit in six months they can pay the full amount of capital, do away with the percentage, and the £1,150 per annum? Yes.
504. Chairman.] And take over the working yourselves? Yes.

Mr. Edward Scott Holland called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. E. S. Holland.
4 June, 1890.
505. Mr. Baker.] You are of course aware that a Bill is being introduced by the Newcastle Gas Company to enable them to supply electricity? Yes.
506. The council of Newcastle have sent in a petition against that Bill? Yes.
507. Shortly, what are the grounds upon which the council oppose it? The council object to it in the public interests. A monopoly is sought enabling the company to break up the streets and to supply electric light in addition to gas.
508. Has the council had any difficulty with the company in regard to the supply of gas? They have been supplied with gas by the company, I believe, since 1875; but they consider that the price paid has been far higher than it should have been.
509. Have the council had any difficulty in making terms with the company? We have had a kind of concession from them at different times—the price has been reduced, but we have always had to guarantee an extra number of lamps and reduced burners.
510. Mr. Wright.] You mean a less consumption of gas per light? Yes, we used to have 5-foot burners, but they were reduced to 4 feet, and we had to give an additional forty or fifty lamps with nearly every agreement.
511. You have had correspondence with the company in this matter? Yes.
512. Showing the difficulty you have had to make terms with them? Yes, without these concessions.
513. How long have the company been supplying the council? Since 1875.
514. Chairman.] You say that the council object to the gas company getting a monopoly of the lighting of the streets? I may mention that the Newcastle council intended to start gas-works of their own some years ago.
515. Is there anything in this Bill asking for a monopoly? It amounts to that.
516. How so? It gives the company power to do as they like.
517. But does it in any way prevent the council from doing as they like—would this Bill, if passed, prevent the council from lighting the streets in any way it chose? It would be a great pity to see two conflicting bodies.
518. Is there anything to prevent the council having free scope in the lighting of Newcastle—is there anything limiting the council in the matter? I think there is; I think there is a monopoly in that Bill.
519. Can you point to any clause by which it is covered? I think the Bill gives power to such an extent that it must be said to amount to a monopoly; no one else could compete against the company.
520. Will you point out in what clause these powers are contained? The Bill gives the council power to supply the electric light in the city of Newcastle, and within a radius of 10 miles—that would amount to their having the matter solely in their own hands.
521. But how would that prevent the council from covering the whole of Newcastle with a lighting apparatus? Well, there would be a difficulty in the council facing the monopoly.
522. But the question is, whether a monopoly exists? In reading the Bill through I thought it amounted to a monopoly, and the council are under that impression.
523. And it is on that ground that the council is opposing the Bill? That is one ground.
524. Then one objection would be removed if the Bill gave no monopoly? In that particular only.
525. Mr. Burns.] Then you have no objection to powers similar to those asked for by this company being given to the council itself? I am only a servant of the council.
526. Supposing the council obtained such powers as are asked for under this Bill, according to your view they would have a monopoly? No; the Newcastle company would still have the power to light Newcastle with gas.
527. Then how could there be a monopoly in either case? The company are increasing their powers by introducing the electric light in addition to gas.
528. You say the Bill gives a monopoly, but if it would not give a monopoly to the council how can it be said to give a monopoly to the company? That was the feeling expressed at a public meeting which was held.
529. Mr. Wright.] What you mean to say is that the extension of the powers of the gas company will put it outside of the power of anyone else to compete with them, except at a large loss? Yes.
530. Chairman.] The Municipal Council of Newcastle passed a resolution deciding to oppose this Bill? Yes.
531. How did the voting go? There was a unanimous vote.
532. In opposition to the Bill? Yes. The mayor was instructed to call a conference of all the municipalities in the district—there are eleven or twelve different municipalities within a radius of 10 miles—for the purpose of ascertaining what was the feeling of the adjoining municipalities in the matter. That conference was held.
533. You say that the council consider that the price they have been paying for gas all along has been too high? Yes.
534. What is the present price of gas? £5 10s. per lamp.

535. Has the council had the offer of a reduction? If we gave them a contract for a number of years the price was to be reduced to £4 18s. 9d.
536. For how many years? Three or four.
537. Do you know of any company supplying gas at a lower price than £4 18s. 9d. per lamp? I know of a great many in Victoria, but none in this country.
538. Supplying gas less than that price? Yes, by meter. It is supplied in Victoria at £3 18s. 9d. The meter is attached to each lamp, and the price paid is in accordance with the consumption.
539. The council regulates the consumption in that case? The council pay the current rate charged the householder upon the amount consumed by meter for each lamp.
540. And it comes to £3 18s. 9d. per lamp? Yes.
541. What does that company charge the householders per 1,000? From 4s. 6d. to 5s.
542. Yet the street lamps only cost £3 18s. 9d. per year? I saw in a report which came from Victoria that there are two boroughs in that colony supplied at that price.
543. £3 18s. 9d. per lamp per annum, at the rate of 4s. 6d. per 1,000? I think the current price would be about 4s. 6d.
544. Where did you get that information? It was in a newspaper report.
545. Was it the report of a council, or of a gas company? It was the report of a council meeting in Victoria. The council were entering into arrangement for the lighting of the borough. They had been lit some time before, but fresh arrangements were made, and the mayor insisted on having the meters put on the lamp-posts.
546. Then it has not been in working? Oh, yes; but they thought they were paying too high according to the current rate paid by private individuals. They wished to pay for gas at the same rate. The company determined to allow meters to be put on for twelve months, and the result was that the rate was discovered to be about £3 18s. 9d. per lamp.
547. Do you know what price the Sydney Gas Company is charging per lamp at the present time? About £5.
548. What is the total number of lamps in Newcastle lit up by this company? Approximately about 312 at £5 10s. There are nine or ten lamps at £7 15s.
549. Mr. Burns.] What councils were alleged to be getting gas supplied at the price you mentioned in Victoria? There were two boroughs in which the experiment was tried, and was found so successful. I do not now remember the names, but I know that they were in the immediate vicinity of Melbourne.
550. Mr. Baker.] You could supply the information if required? Yes.
551. Chairman.] When did you receive this report? About four months ago.
552. Mr. Brown.] Those boroughs would be supplied I imagine by the Melbourne Gas Company? I do not know about that; there are plenty of gas companies round about Melbourne.
553. Was it shown in the report whether the lamps were kept alight all night? No, it was not.
554. Does it show either who lit the lamps, who extinguished them, or who cleaned them? No, that is not shown.
555. You say that the company in reducing the price of your lamps also reduced the power of the burners? Yes.
556. But you got a larger number of lamps lit for the same amount of money? With 4-foot burners instead of 5-foot burners.
557. Do you know what burners are used in Sydney? I do not.
558. Mr. Baker.] How long is it since the question of introducing a Bill to enable the council to supply electricity was first discussed? About twelve months ago.
559. And has the matter since been talked of by the council from time to time? Yes.
560. I suppose the proceedings of the council during that time have been published? Yes. In August last the council entered into a contract for electric lighting. The Newcastle Gas Company then wrote, stating that they would be willing to supply electricity. That was after the contract was made.
561. How long ago was that? I think they wrote in February last.
562. But the public were fully aware twelve months ago that the council were about to introduce a Bill? Yes.
563. Mr. Curley.] Have you ever received any written protest against the action of the council from any ratepayer;—that is against their action in proceeding with electric lighting? No.
564. Mr. Brown.] When did the council first determine to apply for a Bill authorizing them to supply the electric light to private consumers? About August last year. Their solicitor was then instructed to prepare a Bill.

Mr. E. S.
Holland.
4 June, 1890.

Mr. James Myers called in, sworn, and examined:—

565. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Wickham, a municipality adjoining Newcastle? Yes.
566. You are aware that your council have petitioned against the Newcastle Gas Company having a Bill to introduce electricity into that district? I am.
567. Had you a meeting of the council in reference to the opposition to the Bill? Yes; a notice was received from the Newcastle Council, suggesting that a conference should be held, and it was unanimously agreed that our council should be represented at it.
568. The conference was for the purpose of opposing the Company's Bill? Yes.
569. Your council object to any private company interfering with the roads and streets of your municipality? Yes.
570. Breaking up the roads and footpaths without the consent of the municipality? Yes.
571. The 4th clause of the Bill empowers the company, without consulting the council, to break up the roads and streets after giving twenty-four hours' notice? Yes; the council object to that clause.
572. Do you know the feeling of the ratepayers in your municipality? There has never been a public meeting, but I believe that if one were held it would be unanimous against the company having the right to come in upon our roads without our permission.
573. The council wish to control their own roads, and to have the power to introduce electricity if they think proper? Yes.
574. They are opposed to any clause empowering the council to come in without your permission? Yes.
575. Are you doing business at the present time with the gas company? Yes.

Mr.
J. Myers.
4 June, 1890.

576.

Mr.
J. Myers.
4 June, 1890.

576. What price are you paying them at the present time? I believe it is less than it was. They made some concessions about twelve months ago at my own instigation. I moved that a committee should wait upon the gas company.
577. How long ago? That was just before I was elected mayor, at the end of last year.
578. Your committee wanted better terms? Yes. We offered to take a certain number of lamps if the company would make a concession. They made a considerable concession, and we took twenty odd additional lamps. We are getting twenty odd additional lamps now lit for about the same money as we were paying for the old number.
579. You attended the conference as mayor? Yes.
580. There was a unanimous vote in favour of the opposing of the passing of this Bill? Yes, I believe so.
581. Chairman.] What is the present price per lamp your council are paying? I am not sure whether it is £6 or £6 5s. per lamp.
582. What is the total number of your lamps? I could not say.
583. Approximately? I suppose that we have about 70 or 80 lamps; I could not be sure about it.
584. When you approached the company and asked for a concession, how did they meet you—had you much squeezing to do? Yes, a trifle.
585. Ultimately you got the concession? Yes. The committee reported to the council in the first instance, and I insisted that they should go to the company again and offer them a figure, and nothing more; they obtained the lighting for that figure.
586. Was it a good concession? Yes.
587. Are you aware that this Bill gives no monopoly to the company? I do not consider that there is any particular monopoly, but I think that the council ought to reserve to themselves the right to say whether any company should be allowed to come in upon their roads and cut them up.
588. Your council really want a monopoly—they want the full power and control? I think the Council have a perfect right to that power.
589. Does not your council wish to keep the whole thing in its hands—that is the supplying of light or any arrangements for it which they may think fit to make? I do not think that is a fair question.
590. What is your own view? I am here to answer for the council. I do not think I ought to express my individual opinion.
591. What is the council's view? I believe the council's opinion is that they should have the right to light their streets or not as they think fit.
592. To light them for themselves if they like? Yes.
593. Mr. Burns.] You see no objection to the council having a complete monopoly? I will put it this way: If the council have a monopoly they are there on behalf of the ratepayers.
594. You have no objection to the council having a monopoly, but you object to the company having one? I consider that if the council have a monopoly at all they are doing the best they can for the ratepayers.
595. The question is: Do you wish the council to have a complete monopoly of the business? I can't answer that question; it means "yes" or "no," and if I say they want a monopoly it is objecting to the gas company having that monopoly.
596. Where is the monopoly? Let me put it in this way: If the council arrange among themselves that they will light the streets with gas or electricity, I consider that they have a perfect right to keep any private company from coming in in opposition to them.
597. Then you want a monopoly for the ratepayers? It is for their benefit, although they do not want to declare large dividends.
598. The chief objection to this Bill, I understood from the evidence, was to the company having a monopoly? I do not say that the company would have exactly a monopoly under this Bill. I consider that any municipality would be able to run other works alongside of theirs.
599. Mr. Brown.] You object to any company coming in to light the streets without your consent? Yes.
600. But no company could light the streets without entering into a contract with the council? They could supply the light to private consumers, and I object to their coming in upon our streets. They have come in to other municipalities without their consent to light private properties, and I think it is very objectionable.
601. Are you not aware that another company have a Bill similar to this for general lighting purposes? I was not aware that they were asking for a monopoly.
602. But they ask for powers similar to those contained in this Bill? I was not aware of that.
603. Do you know that the Newcastle Borough Council are applying for similar powers in the adjoining municipalities? Yes. I am aware of that, but there is a condition attached—they will light by permission. They will not attempt to come in upon our roads without permission. If they attempted to do anything of the kind we should oppose their Bill. I, for one, should certainly do so.
604. Suppose this Bill were altered in that respect, would you then object to it? If there were a provision for them to come in with permission it would be a different matter.
605. But suppose some municipality beyond you wished to have light from this company, might it not be necessary for the company to go through your municipality for the purpose of supplying them? Yes.
606. If you declined to allow them to go through, the municipality beyond might be deprived of light? It would be for the council to decide whether the company should have the required permission. We want the right in such a case to say whether the company should go through or not.
607. Mr. Baker.] Talking about a monopoly, you only want the right, within the boundaries of your own municipality, to control your own affairs? Yes.
608. Is not the company asking the power to go into all the municipalities within a radius of 10 miles of Newcastle? Yes.
609. Whether the municipalities like it or not? Yes.
610. Your principal objection to the Bill is that the councils have not the right to say whether this shall be permitted or not? Yes.

Mr. Thomas Frith called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr.
T. Frith.
4 June, 1890.

611. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Adamstown? Yes.
612. Your council have petitioned against the Newcastle Gas Company obtaining a Bill to introduce electricity into the Newcastle district? Yes.

613. What are the grounds of your objection? We think we have a right to object to the company coming into our municipality and cutting up the streets and roads.
614. That is, without the consent of the council? Yes.
615. Did your council vote unanimously in favour of opposing this Bill? Yes.
616. Was a resolution passed? Yes.
617. Have any public meetings been held? Yes.
618. When? I could not exactly state the date; one was held about two months ago.
619. What was the voice of that meeting? It was unanimous in opposing the various clauses of this Bill.
620. Particularly the right of a company to interfere with your roads and streets? Yes.
621. Was that particular subject discussed? Yes. The council thought that they had a perfect right to light the municipality themselves, if they thought fit to do so, or to make any arrangements they chose with any company without being confined to one company.
622. And without having a compulsory clause in an Act of Parliament? Yes.
623. At what distance are you from Newcastle? About $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles.
624. The feeling of your ratepayers is strongly against the Bill? Yes.
625. I believe you attended the conference held in Newcastle? Yes.
626. It was there decided that all the municipalities should oppose the Bill? Unanimously. It was also decided in public meeting that the aldermen should sign a petition on behalf of the ratepayers, opposing the Bill.
627. Chairman.] Has your council any contract with the gas company at the present time? No.
628. How are your streets lighted? They are not lighted at all.
629. Mr. Curley.] Do you think it desirable that two or three different parties should have power to come into your municipality and cut up the streets? No; we think the council should have power to say what parties should come in.
630. Mr. Brown.] A copy of this Bill was sent to your council? No.
631. Are you sure of that? Certain—at least the council did not receive any.
632. How long has your municipality been incorporated? Four years.

Mr.
T. Frith.
4 June, 1890.

Mr. Joseph William Oldham called in, sworn, and examined:—

633. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of New Lambton? Yes.
634. You are aware that your council have petitioned against the passing of this Bill? Yes.
635. Did you hold a meeting of the council in reference to the matter? Yes.
636. About when? I could not say exactly, but it was between two and three months ago.
637. How was the voting? It was unanimously resolved by the council that we should oppose the Bill in its entirety.
638. Upon what grounds? We objected to the powers granted in the Bill. We did not see why any Bill should provide for the company coming into any municipality of their own free will and cutting up its streets and roads. We thought we had a right to say whether the company should come in or not.
639. You object to any private company interfering with your roads? Yes.
640. You know that the gas company is a private company? Yes.
641. You see by the Bill that they have the power to come in on giving twenty-four hours notice? Yes; we considered that provision quite unjustifiable.
642. Is your borough lighted now? No.
643. Is it your intention to light it? Not just yet; we are only a new municipality. We were incorporated only about eighteen months ago. We think arrangements for lighting the streets at present would be premature. We will consider that matter by-and-bye; but it is the general opinion of the council and of the ratepayers, as far as I am able to judge as a public man—and I knock about among them a good deal—that this Bill should not be passed. I have not heard one of our ratepayers say that he approved of the Bill. A good many of them take a great deal of interest in the matter and went to the council chambers and read it through. The council consider that when the time comes for lighting the borough they ought to have the privilege of lighting it themselves, or in whatever way they may think fit. We might, for instance, light from Lambton, which has recently entered into a contract for the supply of the electric light. We consider that if a Bill were passed enabling a private company to come in our interests would be injured. We think also that we ought to have sole control of the roads and streets, and that, for the public protection, companies should not be allowed to come in and lay possibly conflicting wires.
644. Chairman.] You know that this Bill confers no monopoly upon the gas company? As far as I can understand it it does not altogether provide for a monopoly; but for all that the powers provided for are very objectionable.
645. You are aware that your council would still be perfectly free to make a contract with this company or not? Yes; that is understood.
646. Mr. Brown.] Do I understand that your objection is that the company has power to come in without asking your permission? There is provision for twenty-four hours notice, that is all.
647. If the company could come in only with consent, would you object to the Bill? I am not here to answer that question. I am sent here by my council and as a member of the conference which was held at Newcastle, to oppose the Bill. They had the Bill before them and no amendments were considered; it was thought objectionable in its present form. It was unanimously decided that I should attend the conference to oppose it, and I was sent here for the same purpose.

Mr. J.
W. Oldham.
4 June, 1890.

Mr. George Brown called in, sworn, and examined:—

648. Mr. Baker.] You are Mayor of Merewether? Yes.
649. Your council petitioned against the gas company introducing and passing this Bill? Yes.
650. Had you a meeting of the council? Yes.
651. About when? I think the first was about three months since.
652. You have had several meetings, have you? Yes.

Mr.
G. Brown.
4 June, 1890.

Mr.
G. Brown.
4 June, 1890.

653. Did your council meet to consider whether they would oppose the Bill or not? There was not a special meeting, but the matter was brought up at one of our council meetings, and it was decided that we should oppose the Bill with all the power we possessed; that was unanimously resolved upon.

654. Hence your petition? Yes.

655. What were the grounds? The grounds were that we objected to any company having the privilege of coming upon our streets and cutting them up without our permission. We have suffered severely from the laying down of water pipes in our streets. They have been so damaged that it will cost this year all our rates to repair them.

656. What is the feeling of the Merewether ratepayers? The feeling is against any company having such powers. They consider that although the Bill is not a monopoly it amounts to one; because, should they enter into an agreement with any other company or party to bring in gas, then the Newcastle Gas Company, having its plant and everything ready, would in the first year or two be able to cut them down in price until we should be unable to get any company to compete with them. It would therefore amount to a monopoly.

657. They have sufficient capital and plant to crush any young company which might come in? Yes.

658. They have full power to reduce the price of gas as they think proper? Yes. We discussed the pros and cons, and that was the conclusion to which we arrived. A ratepayers' meeting was called about six or seven months back. The gas company offered to supply gas at a price which was considered unreasonable, and it was almost unanimously decided that gas should not be taken at the price the company then offered.

659. Chairman.] How are your streets lighted now? Not at all.

660. You say that the laying down of the water pipes cut up your streets seriously? Yes.

661. But that is a Government work? Yes.

662. You have some redress, have you not? We have applied to the Government, and they have given us every promise that the matter shall be looked after. If you were to come into our streets now you would agree with me, I think, that they are in such a condition as to render traffic almost impracticable.

663. But you know that this Bill would compel the gas company to make good any opening made in the streets? We know that there is a clause providing for that, but we think that there would be some difficulty in making them do it.

664. Mr. Brown.] Do you know that there is a clause in the Bill providing that if the company delay the completion of repairs, and putting the streets in order, they are liable to a penalty of £5 a day? But they would put us to a great deal of trouble to get it—we should have to go to law. They can spend a great deal of money at law; and if we can stop them from doing it it would be much better than suing them afterwards.

665. Gas is laid in Merewether? No.

666. Do not any private houses take gas there? No. I have seen a requisition with over forty names applying for it; but the company refused to bring it in unless the council would take thirty-eight lamps at £7 per lamp.

667. Mr. Burns.] You would not take the lamps at that price? No.

668. Mr. Brown.] If the company had the powers given under this Bill they would not go to you then unless you agreed to take electricity? I have already explained our reasons for objecting to their having the privilege of coming in.

669. Did not the company send you a copy of the Bill? No; at all events we did not receive one.

670. Have your council discussed the Bill? Yes.

671. And you object to the whole of it? I was instructed to vote against the whole of it. We consider that it is an imposition upon us.

672. You do not object to the Newcastle Borough Council having similar powers? They have not asked for them; therefore the matter has not been considered by our council. When the matter arises we will deal with it.

673. Mr. Baker.] Do you not think that if the council have power to come in under the 4th clause, the whole of the Bill practically comes into force? Yes.

Mr. Thomas Garrett called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr.
T. Garrett.
4 June, 1890.

674. Mr. Baker.] You are an alderman of the Municipality of Carrington? Yes.

675. The mayor is unable to attend, and you are attending on his behalf? Yes.

676. You know that the Carrington Council has petitioned against the Newcastle Gas Company obtaining a Bill to introduce electricity into your municipality and the surrounding districts? Yes.

677. Had you a meeting of the Council on the subject? The petition came before the council in the ordinary way.

678. What did the council decide? They expressed themselves totally opposed to the Bill in its present form.

679. Did they go through the Bill? Not as a body, but I think they have been through it individually. I myself have read it through.

680. It was discussed by the council? Yes.

681. Was there a unanimous vote on the subject? It was unanimously resolved last night that we should oppose the Bill in its present form.

682. What were the grounds? The grounds are that this Bill empowers the gas company to come into our municipality to erect works, to break up the streets, and to do almost anything they please without our permission. We think we have a right to say whether they shall do these things or not, whether they shall light the borough or not, or whether we shall light it ourselves. They may cause us a lot of inconvenience which we would rather avoid.

683. You think they should have no right after giving notice, without the consent of the council, to come into your borough at all? They ought not to come in without our consent, and we hold that the Bill ought not to give them that power. I may say that with that provision in the Bill, reserving to the council the right to admit them, the council would offer no opposition to the Bill. I of course assume that such alterations would be made in the Bill as would be necessary to give effect to the clause I indicate.

684. Your council think that twenty-four hours' notice is not sufficient? We have not discussed that particular point.

685. How many members of the council were present last night? Eight out of nine.

686. It was at a previous meeting of the council that you resolved to petition against the Bill? The petition was signed at a previous meeting.

687. Was it covered by a resolution? I am not certain about that, but I know that there was a full meeting of the council to sign it—it was signed unanimously.

688. How is the borough lighted at present? We are not yet lighted. We are waiting to see the result of electricity elsewhere. The Government have called for tenders for the installation of the light at Bullock Island, and the Newcastle Council are also negotiating for the introduction of the light in their municipality—we are waiting to see how it operates in these places.

689. Was your council represented at the conference which was held? I am not certain; I cannot remember; I know that correspondence passed between us and the Newcastle Council on the subject. My memory does not enable me to say whether representatives went from our council to the conference. It may have been so, but, whether or no, the council are unanimous in the opposition to the Bill in its present form.

690. Mr. Brown.] Have you not gas laid on in Carrington? Yes; for private supply, and for the supply of the Government—it is supplied by the Newcastle Gas Company.

691. Have you any reason to complain of the way in which it has been supplied? Yes.

692. In what way? Well, they have broken up the streets, and they have not relaid them in as good a condition as that in which they found them.

693. Was that done under notice from the company? We were not incorporated at the time I refer to. I know that afterwards we had to break up portions of the streets again, and to put them in order; they left big stones on the top in some places, and the roads were left in a very unsatisfactory state until the council repaired them.

694. This was before Carrington was incorporated? Yes; but I suppose the company would do so again if they were allowed.

Mr. Edward Scott Holland recalled and further examined:—

695. Mr. Baker.] You received a letter from the council clerk of Plattsburgh? Yes; it is as follows:—

Sir,

Borough of Plattsburgh Council Chambers, 2 June, 1890.

I have the honor, instructed by his Worship the Mayor, to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 31st May, wherein you intimate that the meeting of the Select Committee re Newcastle Gas and Electric Light Bill was adjourned to Wednesday, 4th June.

In reply, I am directed to state that my council, having entered their protest by petition against the passing of the Bill in question, do not consider it necessary that they should take any further steps in the matter, believing that the information to be obtained from the other councils in the immediate vicinity of Newcastle will have the desired effect.

I have, &c.,

THOMAS ABEL,
Council Clerk.

The Town Clerk, Newcastle.

Mr.
E. S. Holland.

4 June, 1890.

Mr. Charles Frederick Stokes recalled and further examined:—

696. Mr. Brown.] You have heard the evidence given by the Mayor and aldermen of Waratah regarding the action of the company in respect of that borough; will you kindly give the Committee your version of it? Some five or six years ago we were applied to by the Council of Waratah to light the borough with gas. We took the matter into consideration, and endeavoured to ascertain what consumption we should be likely to receive there within a certain number of years. We had an estimate made as to the cost of the installation of mains, pillars, &c., for the lighting of the borough. Upon that investigation we made an offer. I may say that they wanted only the very small number of thirty lamps.

697. Were those lamps far apart? Pretty far apart, and necessarily so, because it is a scattered borough. We made an offer of, I think, £13 or £13 10s. per lamp. Nothing more was done for some considerable time, but negotiations again cropped up, and we had an interview with the then Mayor of Waratah.

698. Who was that? Mr. Scholey, a very well known gentleman. We said that we could not see our way in our then position to make a reduction in the price, unless there was a fair chance of our receiving some fair consumption from the public, as the cost of installation would be so great. I may say that the cost of installation of mains, lamps, pipes, &c., came to somewhere about £3,000. Mr. Scholey said that he took a very great interest in the matter, and he would be very glad indeed if he could find out that a number of the residents would take the gas. He undertook to see what number of persons would take it, and to let us know. He was seen several times in the matter, and communications were held with him, but he did not do anything. In the meantime, we ourselves were looking about and seeing what could be done. In talking to residents of the other portions of Waratah—that is, North Waratah—we had decided that we would at any rate run our mains from Tighe's Hill over in that direction, to take up some of the new houses then building without interfering in any way with the Waratah Council on the other side.

699. Is this lighting you speak of on the same side of the Great Northern Railway as the Waratah Council's works? No, on this side. We had constant communication with Mr. Scholey, and with other aldermen of the Borough of Waratah, to see if we could come to some arrangement. The population was then increasing, and we thought we could see our way clear to make arrangements with them on a very reduced scale. Nothing at all was done, and we then heard that they were negotiating with an engineer there to put up gas-works of their own. We could get no satisfaction from them, and we went on with our mains to the north side supplying those people we said we would supply. After this the Waratah Council endeavoured to purchase from us the mains which we had laid down, and we had some correspondence on the subject, but as we had bound ourselves to supply gas at the ruling price at Newcastle, and as we knew that the price which would probably be charged at Waratah would be higher, Mr. Brown advised us that if we made any arrangements with the Council we should be breaking an agreement which we had made with our customers. We therefore declined their offer. That is the exact state of the case, as nearly as I can recollect.

700. You would have been entering into an agreement which you would not have been able to perform had you sold those mains? Yes; unless we had inserted a proviso that the council should carry out any contract we had made.

Mr.
C. F. Stokes.

4 June, 1890.

Mr.
C. F. Stokes,
4 June, 1890.

701. Can you tell me the cost of lighting and keeping lamps clean per annum? I believe our lighting comes to £1 6s. 6d. per annum.

702. Does that include repairs? No. I think that is only the lamp lighting and keeping clean. I may state also in regard to a remark made by Mr. Christie, in case it should prejudice the Committee, that it was in 1864 or 1865 that our company was first in communication with the Borough of Newcastle with reference to providing the light there. Newcastle was then a very small place; the consumption there was not more than sufficient to barely turn the station metre; in fact, the company were in such a state that they did not know whether they would continue or wind up; they were to a certain extent not free agents, they were in the hands of a contractor. The prospects of Newcastle were so bad that the whole thing was taken up by Mr. A. K. Smith, of Melbourne, who had to make the gas at a certain price—the company got nothing at all, and we were to a certain extent not quite free agents. As soon, however, as we got rid of that incumbrance we reopened communications with the Borough of Newcastle. They wanted to give us only fifty lamps. Eventually, we made our first agreement with them, and the price was not £10 or £12 a lamp, but, if I recollect rightly, £8 a lamp. It has been gradually reduced ever since. In fact it has been a principle of the company, published in the newspapers and in our reports, that as increased consumption warranted us we would make a reduction in price. That principle has always guided the board of directors, and is still guiding them.

703. It follows from what you say that, although the price at the beginning may be a very high one for the Corporation to pay, it will be a low one for the company to receive by way of a return for its expenditure? Very often, I apprehend. But the price we charged was not high in comparison with what other companies were charging at the same time; it compared favourably with the Sydney price, seeing that Sydney was supplying thousands of lamps, and that we wanted to supply fifty or sixty. I think we commenced with only seventy lamps.

704. What do you charge now? We charge the Borough Council £5 10s., burning 5-foot burners—not 4-foot burners, as Mr. Holland said.

705. What is the price in Sydney? I am not sure. I think it is £5 in the city, and £5 5s. in the suburbs for 4-foot burners. But then the Sydney company supply 3,000 or 4,000 lamps to our 300; in fact, we have been quoted as the cheapest gas company in the Colonies for our size. Then, there was another mistake made. Mr. Christie stated—and I give him credit for not knowing otherwise—that the council were ready with their Bill, and thought of it long before we thought of ours. As a matter of fact our Bill was prepared and was ready in 1889. We had then to alter it in order to make it agree with the form of another Bill. Our solicitor was instructed to prepare a Bill in December, 1888. We were requested a short time ago by the Borough of Carrington to state the price at which we would supply gas or electricity. We made an offer to supply them with gas, and said we would supply them with electricity as soon as we had power to handle it. We received the following letter:—

Gentlemen,
I am requested to ask you what you would supply the Carrington Municipal Council with from thirty to forty street lamps, at per year—that is gas-lamps—and to state how many nights in the month they would not be lighted. And likewise what you could supply the same number of lamps lit with the electric light.

(Signed) ALEX. MATHESON,

Mayor.

To the Directors of the City of Newcastle Gas Company.

You see they then desired to have the electric light brought in—now it is quite the other way. With reference to the reduction of price made at Wickham, I may state that we reduced the price per lamp at Wickham before the termination of our contract. There were two years to complete it. The council waited on us, and we at once cancelled the contract, reduced the price, and took out a fresh one. As a matter of fact, we have always made it a principle to reduce our price wherever possible. In that way we have given an extra number of lamps for the same money, so that the new contract has cost the Corporation nothing more, and they have had more lamps for their money. With reference to the observations which have been made as to the condition in which we have left the roads, the last work we did in the city of Newcastle was under tarred pavement. We had to open it up, and to lay down fresh material. We requested the council to lay it down themselves, and said we would pay all the expenses.

706. Chairman.] Did you request them by letter? I do not know if a letter was sent, but that is the offer we made; we thought it would save all trouble.

707. Mr. Curley.] About this matter of Waratah, when there were negotiations with a view to the purchase of the pipes which you had laid down, did you communicate to the council the fact that you had entered into an agreement, or did you endeavour to obtain a release from your contract, in order that you might come to terms with the Waratah Council? I could not say—we put the whole matter in the hands of our solicitor.

708. As to the introduction of lamps at Wickham, you say you gave the council additional lamps at the same cost. Did you not make any alteration in the stipulation as to burners? No; they had the same burners—5-foot burners.

Mr. William Henry Baker called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr.
W. H. Baker,
4 June, 1890.

709. Chairman.] You are a solicitor practising at Newcastle? Yes.

710. And you represent the municipalities petitioning against this Bill? Yes.

711. I believe you wish to show some documents to the Committee? Yes; I wish to show the Committee some letters, and I will presently hand in a letter, which I shall be glad to have printed as an appendix to my evidence. As representing the Waratah Council I produce for the inspection of the Committee a letter under date of 14th October, 1885. It is written by the council clerk of Waratah to the secretary of the Newcastle Gas Company, asking the company for an estimate of their terms for the supply of gas to the Municipal District of Waratah.

712. Mr. Brown.] It does not state the number of lamps or anything of that kind? No.

713. Chairman.] Do you wish to exhibit any other documents for the inspection of the Committee? Here is the reply of the secretary of the gas company to the Waratah Council acknowledging the receipt of a letter of the 14th October. The secretary states that he expects to be able to give the required information in a day or two. There is another letter dated 20th October, 1885, from the secretary of the gas company to the council clerk of Waratah; it is really a reply to the first letter from the council. The company state that they are willing to lay the mains to Waratah, and to light that municipality with thirty-one thirty-one lamps in the positions inserted in the schedule and plans, for the sum of £13 per lamp per annum, with an agreement for ten years. I should also like the Committee to look at a letter from the council to the company, dated 29th October, 1885, stating that their letter of the 26th had been submitted to the council, that the council postponed the consideration of the letter and thanked the company for the information supplied. Then there is a letter from the council to the company, under date 8th September, 1886, asking upon what terms the company could supply gas, and pointing out that a majority of the residents would be induced to use the gas in their houses if the mains were laid on. Then there is a letter of the 23rd September, 1886, acknowledging the receipt of the letter of the 8th, and stating that the company will adhere to the terms mentioned in their letter of the 20th October; they refer the council back to their old letter. Then there is a letter of the 28th October, 1887, from the gas company to the council, stating that the company had increased its facilities for supply and was prepared to negotiate upon the best terms. I put in that letter and should like it printed as an appendix to my evidence.

Mr.
W. H. Baker.
4 June, 1890.

714. Are there any other documents you wish to put in? No.

715. Will you shortly state your object in referring at length to this correspondence? Well, the council say that they have always had great difficulty with the gas company in making terms for the supply of gas for the municipal district. They thought that the offer of £13 per lamp for thirty-one lamps and asking for a guarantee or contract for ten years was unreasonable. They wanted, as a matter of fact, to go on from year to year and would not be bound for ten years. The correspondence shows that the council had difficulty in making terms, and we say further that the company did not lay its mains to Waratah until the council had made arrangements for the erection of gas-works within the municipality.

716. Mr. Kidd.] The council thought that they could supply gas with greater advantage to the ratepayers than could the company? Yes; but the council did not feel justified in entering into a contract for ten years.

717. Mr. Brown.] You know the Municipality of Waratah pretty well? Yes.

718. In 1885 I believe it was very much scattered? Yes.

719. And things were very depressed? I do not know that I can say that.

720. You see by the correspondence in your hands that the company had extended its works, and were desirous of supplying both Waratah and Lambton before the Waratah Council had taken any steps to erect their works? If the council would enter into a contract for ten years, but not upon any other terms.

721. Did not the last letter you read mention the best possible terms, and say that the council had completed works which would enable them to give a supply? The letter states that, no doubt.

722. Chairman.] At our last meeting we expressed our willingness to hear any further witnesses you might wish to bring forward;—are you quite satisfied now that ample scope has been given to witnesses against the Bill? I am perfectly satisfied.

Mr. W. H. Baker, Solicitor, appeared on behalf of several municipalities petitioning against the Bill.

Mr. Cecil West Darley called in, sworn, and examined:—

723. Chairman.] You are Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers? Yes.

724. I believe you wished to give the Committee some evidence in reference to this Bill? I have a little to say at the request of the Minister. He thought it desirable that a few words should be put in the Bill recognising the rights of the Water Board, which it is in contemplation to establish in the Hunter River District. The water supply of Newcastle is at present partly in the hands of the Government and partly in the hands of the Corporation, but a Bill will shortly be placed before Parliament dealing with the whole question. We want some recognition of the existence of the Board's pipes in the streets so that other pipes or wires which may be laid down may not interfere with the water mains. I think the words "local authority" in clause 5 might be taken to mean the Corporation solely, but if you were to put it in the plural, the Board I take it would be included; it would then read "local authorities or their officers."

Mr. C. W.
Darley.
10 June, 1890.

725. What you seem to wish is that the Government authority for water supply should be recognised? Yes. If it were thought undesirable to make the alteration I have suggested, a few words might be added to the end of the clause. You will observe that in clause 2 mention is made of the powers of the company within the Borough of Newcastle, and a radius of 10 miles. It does not say from what point the radius starts. In specifying a radius it is general to take a centre. These are the only points the Minister wished me to mention, and we should be glad if the Committee could see their way clear to make the necessary alterations. I merely mention the matter of the radius, thinking that it might save trouble hereafter.

726. Mr. Baker.] At the present time the water supply is under the control of the Newcastle Corporation? The reticulation only—that is, it is partly under the council and partly under the Government.

727. Is there a contract between the Government and the council? Yes. A Bill which is now in draft however contemplates handing the whole question of water supply over to a local Board similar to that in existence in Sydney.

728. At the present time the council pay so much a year for the water supply? Yes.

CITY OF NEWCASTLE GAS AND COKE COMPANIES ELECTRIC AND OTHER LIGHT BILL.

APPENDIX.

[Handed in by Mr. Baker.]

A.

Gentlemen,

The City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Co. (Limited), Newcastle, 28 October, 1887.

Referring to the offer made by this Company to your Council on the 20th October, 1885, to supply 31 lamps, and to the subsequent interview and conversation with your Mayor, Mr. Scholey, on the subject, I now desire, lest there should be any impression that this Company has been unmindful of your requirements, to say, that understanding that the Mayor would supply further and detailed information, it has not, pending receipt of such, again communicated with you on the matter, but in view of the probable requirements of your and other Municipalities, has largely increased its manufacturing capacity, so as to be in readiness to meet any such demand.

This Company is now in negotiation with Lambton and is quite prepared to supply Waratah as well as that Municipality upon the best possible terms, and to light either or both within a very short space of time.

I shall be glad to learn if your Council is prepared to enter into an agreement for the supply of gas, and if so I will at once bring the matter under the further notice of my Directors.

I have, &c.,

A. LANGWILL,
Secretary.

The Mayor and Aldermen, Municipality of Waratah.

Received, John Scholey, Mayor, 31st October, 1887.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

CITY OF NEWCASTLE GAS AND COKE COMPANY'S ELECTRIC AND OTHER LIGHT BILL.

(PETITION FROM GEORGE BRAUN, MAYOR OF MEREWETHER, AGAINST PASSING OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 3 June, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Mayor and Aldermen of the Municipal District of Merewether,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That a Bill has been introduced into Parliament authorizing the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company to supply the City of Newcastle and suburbs with electricity or other illuminant, for lighting or other purposes, in addition to the powers granted under a private Act, 30 Victoria of 1866, for the manufacture and supply of gas.

2. That the granting of such a measure would not have a beneficial effect upon the residents of this district were such larger powers granted to the Newcastle Gas Company, but would be detrimental to their best endeavours and interests, and inimical to Municipal Boroughs generally, and in a great measure frustrate the powers incident in Municipal Government conferred by Statute, 48 Victoria No. 20, Municipal Gas Act, and amendment thereof, 50 Victoria No. 8, and conserve more to the private interest and aggrandisement of a private company, of private shareholders, instead of the public good.

3. That under the Act 48 Victoria No. 20, and Municipalities Act of 1873, the principle is asserted that the supply of light to boroughs generally can be more efficiently and advantageously carried out when dealt with by municipal bodies than by private individuals, and, with this object in view, the Municipality of the City of Newcastle is about to enter into arrangements with electricians for the lighting of the city with that illuminant at a cost of some £9,000 or £10,000. The Borough of Lambton has, with commendable zeal and enterprise, entered into the question of electric lighting, and accepted a tender from Messrs. Kingsbury & Co., amounting to about £7,000. This district has at its own cost erected one of the most efficient and perfect gasworks to be found in any part of these colonies, at a cost of about £7,000. The Municipalities of Wallsend and Plattsburg, both large mining centres, are supplied with gas from a private company, whose arrangements for the lighting of street lamps are reciprocally entered into, and discharged and carried out with advantage to both. Other large centres of population, viz. :—New Lambton, Wickham, Stockton, Hamilton, and Adamstown have in contemplation various schemes of their own for the lighting of their boroughs under the above referred-to Municipal Gas Act, 48 Victoria No. 20.

4. That your Petitioners most respectfully submit that the powers now sought for under the Bill submitted to Parliament are for speculative purposes only, and not for public requirements, and that the granting of any such powers as those asked for in the proposed Bill would be an unusual precedent in law, and one that would conflict to an alarming and dangerous extent should the proposals submitted in the Bill at any time be established.

5. That your Petitioners are certain that very great hardships indeed would be entailed upon residents of this district were such a proposal to be adopted, granting the Newcastle Gas Company power to supply electric light to this district beyond those they now possess.

6. That the experience of your Petitioners in this district is not of such a nature to warrant in any way the carrying out of the intended Bill, believing it to be a measure fraught with danger and difficulty to the residents generally, and not likely to work well, but rather to hamper the operations of your Petitioners.

7. That your Petitioners regard the principles embodied in the said Bill as totally devoid of finality, and, if successful in this issue, may be extended to other large growing centres of population in the district, and in the end root out and destroy the paternal feelings of Municipal Government, and become antagonistic to same.

8. That your Petitioners fear that, should the principles contained in the said Bill obtain the approval of your Honorable House, the large sums borrowed by Municipal Councils mortgaging their assets for the purpose of producing light for the residents will be completely thrown away, and the efforts of the Councils made abortive.

9. That such a measure is not likely, in the experience of your Petitioners, so far as the City Council is concerned, to be fraught with good results to the city and district, from the fact that the roads and streets are cut up unnecessarily, to the great detriment and expense of the ratepayers generally ; and the action of the said Company has been exceedingly arbitrary, unjust, and unfair in the laying of mains through the streets ; and your Petitioners strongly and respectfully urge that the extended privileges sought should rather be curtailed than extended, believing that the extended powers are not for the best interest of the city and municipalities concerned.

10. Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased either to reject the said Bill altogether, or to so amend it that no additional power may be given beyond those of its incorporation :—that it is simply and solely a Gas and Coke Company, and that any assent may be withheld to the aforesaid Bill until the various Municipal Councils in the district, acting in common and unanimously with your Petitioners, may be given leave to appear by counsel or attorney, by and through the respective Mayors in this district, before the Select Committee of your House, for the purpose of tendering such evidence, and to call such witnesses as may be desirable, and adduce such further evidence from the united Municipalities of this district, in the interest of your Petitioners and the residents generally, as your Petitioners are fully prepared and ready to depose whenever the time and circumstances permit.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

The Mayor, Aldermen, and Council Clerk of the Municipal District of Merewether.

CITY OF NEWCASTLE GAS AND COKE COMPANY'S ELECTRIC AND OTHER LIGHT BILL.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 27 May, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Mayor and Aldermen of the Municipal District of Plattsburg,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That a Bill has been introduced into Parliament authorizing the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company to supply the City of Newcastle and suburbs with electricity or other illuminant, for lighting or other purposes, in addition to the powers granted under a private Act, 30 Victoria of 1866, for the manufacture and supply of gas.

2. That the granting of such a measure would not have a beneficial effect upon the residents of this district were such larger powers granted to the Newcastle Gas Company, but would be detrimental to their best endeavours and interests, and inimical to Municipal Boroughs generally, and in a great measure frustrate the powers incident in Municipal Government conferred by Statute, 48 Victoria No. 20, Municipal Gas Act, and amendment thereof, 50 Victoria No. 8, and conserve more to the private interest and aggrandisement of a private company, of private shareholders, instead of the public good.

3. That under the Act 48 Victoria No. 20, and Municipalities Act of 1873, the principle is asserted that the supply of light to boroughs generally can be more efficiently and advantageously carried out when dealt with by Municipal bodies than by private individuals, and, with this object in view, the Municipality of the City of Newcastle is about to enter into arrangements with electricians for the lighting of the City with that illuminant at a cost of some £9,000 or £10,000. The Borough of Lambton has, with commendable zeal and enterprise, entered into the question of electric lighting, and accepted a tender from Messrs. Kingsbury & Co., amounting to about £7,000. This district has at its own cost erected one of the most efficient and perfect gas works to be found in any part of these colonies, at a cost of about £7,000. The Municipalities of Wallsend and Plattsburg, both large mining centres, are supplied with gas from a private company, whose arrangements for the lighting of street lamps are reciprocally entered into, and discharged and carried out with advantage to both. Other large centres of population, viz. :—New Lambton, Wickham, Stockton, Hamilton, and Adamstown have in contemplation various schemes of their own for the lighting of their boroughs under the above referred to Municipal Gas Act, 48 Victoria No. 20.

4. That your Petitioners most respectfully submit that the powers now sought for under the Bill submitted to Parliament are for speculative purposes only, and not for public requirements, and that the granting of any such powers as those asked for in the proposed Bill would be an unusual precedent in law, and one that would conflict to an alarming and dangerous extent should the proposals submitted in the Bill at any time be established.

5. That your Petitioners are certain that very great hardships indeed would be entailed upon residents of this district were such a proposal to be adopted, granting the Newcastle Gas Company power to supply electric light to this district beyond those they now possess.

6. That the experience of your Petitioners in this district is not of such a nature to warrant in any way the carrying out of the intended Bill, believing it to be a measure fraught with danger and difficulty to the residents generally, and not likely to work well, but rather to hamper the operations of your Petitioners.

7. That your Petitioners regard the principles embodied in the said Bill as totally devoid of finality, and, if successful in this issue, may be extended to other large growing centres of population in the district, and in the end root out and destroy the paternal feelings of Municipal Government, and become antagonistic to same.

8. That your Petitioners fear that, should the principles contained in the said Bill obtain the approval of your Honorable House, the large sums borrowed by Municipal Councils mortgaging their assets for the purpose of producing light for the residents will be completely thrown away, and the efforts of the Councils made abortive.

9. That such a measure is not likely, in the experience of your Petitioners, so far as the City Council is concerned, to be fraught with good results to the city and district, from the fact that the roads and streets are cut up unnecessarily, to the great detriment and expense of the ratepayers generally; and the action of the said Company has been exceedingly arbitrary, unjust, and unfair in the laying of mains through the streets; and your Petitioners strongly and respectfully urge that the extended privileges sought should rather be curtailed than extended, believing that the extended powers are not for the best interest of the city and municipalities concerned.

GOULBURN WATER SUPPLY CHARGES BILL.

Present:—

MR. PERRY. | MR. TEECE.
MR. STEVENSON.

WILLIAM TEECE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

A. M. Betts, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

Augustine Matthew Betts, Esq., sworn and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are the solicitor for the Bill? I am.
2. You are likewise the solicitor for the Municipal Council of Goulburn? Yes.
3. You have had all to do with the details of the measure? I have.
4. Has the Bill been approved of by the Municipal Council? The draft of the Bill was submitted to the Council and approved of by them.
5. And a petition was presented to Parliament under the corporate seal of the Borough? Yes.
6. The Municipal Council framed their by-laws partly under section 176 of the Municipalities Act? They did.
7. In what way has that Act been repealed? It has been repealed by the second section of the Act, 44 Victoria No. 14, known as the Country Towns Water Supply and Sewerage Act.
8. Under that Act the Government construct the works I believe? Under that Act there are two modes provided, namely, by either the Council or the Government. In the case of the Goulburn Borough the Government undertook the work and carried it out.
9. Section 166 of the Municipalities Act can only refer to waterworks constructed by municipalities? Yes.
10. Under that section you have made part of your by-laws? I have.
11. Will you state briefly in what way doubts have been expressed as to the power of the borough to recover these rates? I refer the Committee to by-law 143 of the Goulburn municipality, sub-clause 3, which provides that the water rates are to be paid at the rate of 5s. per room. There is no other method provided of determining the amount of rate except at per room. But under the Act under which the waterworks were constructed, 44 Victoria No. 14, section 13, there are two methods provided, viz., by measurement and by a rate according to the assessed value of the properties; there is no other method by which the rate is to be determined. Consequently if we seek now to recover our rates which are fixed under this by-law at so much per hour, we shall be met with this Act which states that assessing by room is neither by measurement nor by a rate on the assessed value.
12. You merely propose to recover the rates under the by-laws framed in accordance with the Act under which the waterworks were constructed? It is not that exactly; we seek to recover these rates as if the by-laws had been made under that Act.
13. The only Act under which you could frame the by-laws? Yes; because the second section says that all the sections in the Municipalities Act which are inconsistent with the latter Act are repealed.
14. Have you heard of any objections to the Bill? I have heard of no objection whatever. The notice of intention to apply for the Bill was published for four consecutive weeks in the three Goulburn newspapers, and there has been no objection of any kind that I have heard of.
15. There has been a large amount of expenditure incurred, and for that indebtedness the municipality is responsible? Yes.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

HAY TO DENILIQVIN TRAMWAY BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 12 NOVEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. R. B. WILKINSON,
MR. GREENE,
MR. LAKEMAN,MR. BLACK,
MR. GORMLY,
MR. CHANTER.

R. B. WILKINSON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Thomas Robertson appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

John Witcombe called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are one of the parties seeking for permission to construct this tramway? Yes.
2. Do you represent the other parties named in the Bill? Yes; they have asked me to come.
3. You know the road between Hay and Deniliquin? Yes.
4. What is the distance between the two places? We call it 80 miles—I think it is from 75 to 80 miles.
5. What traffic is there between the two places? There is a considerable coach traffic, and a very large stock traffic—sheep and cattle.
6. What is the road like, is it formed? No. There has been a little money spent in throwing up embankments which are of no use, and never can be of any use. In winter the road is almost impassable, owing to the mud, and the coach is seldom less than from six to twelve hours late.
7. How with regard to heavy teams? They are a long time on the road. They scarcely ever come to Hay now, but they used to come.
8. What has made the change? It is cheaper to get goods from Melbourne round by Sydney—getting them from Sydney by train—than carrying them across the Old Man Plains. A high price is charged in both winter and summer, because in winter the roads are impassable, and in summer there is no feed. When the river is up steamers go round from Echuca, and bring stuff to Hay.
9. It is said in the preamble of the Bill that there is no stone of any description within 100 miles, and that burnt clay is the only material that a road can be made of? That is true. There is no stone between Sandhurst and Hillston. Stone of any value could only be got 40 miles above. It is 100 miles from Hay to Narrandera where there is stone.
10. At what do you estimate the cost of making the road? You could not make a decent road for less than £3,500 a mile, and that would not be a really good road.
11. I suppose it would require constant repairs? The road would cost a good deal in repairs, because heavy teams going over it in bad weather would cut it up.
12. Some sort of metal road is necessary for the traffic? Yes.
13. You must have either a railway or a good road? Yes. I do not think that a good road would meet the requirements of the traffic, and it would cost twice as much as the railway.
14. How long have you been living in the neighbourhood of Hay? About twenty-two years.
15. Mr. Lakeman.] I suppose that if Parliament passed this Bill there is no doubt that the railway would be made? Yes; it would certainly be made if we had power to make it.
16. You, who are applying for this Bill, are sure to make the railway if the Bill is passed? Yes.

Mr. J.
Witcombe.
12 Nov., 1890.

Mr.
J. Witcombe.
12 Nov., 1890.

17. What are the chief requirements for a railway at Hay;—what is it particularly wanted for? For taking stock to the Victorian markets—that is really what we want it for. The road across the Old Man Plains is impassable in the summer time, because there is no feed. If any one were to drive a flock of sheep across those plains in summer the probability is that he would lose two-thirds of them. I may mention that 40,000 sheep came down to Hay during the drought about two years ago and they could not go across the Old Man Plains, so they started on the road to Booligal. I think that about 35,000 of those sheep died between Hay and Booligal, and the man in charge of them died. If the railway was made it would not only be useful for carrying live stock to market but we could also send meat to market. Meat killed at Hay in the evening could be served out for breakfast at Melbourne in the morning. Had the railway been made long ago it would have saved the lives of millions of sheep. During the droughts there was no food in the Hay district, and if the sheep could have been sent away to the border or into Victoria their lives would have been saved.
18. Does the present railway answer the purpose of taking the stock away? No, it goes in the wrong direction. To send stock to Melbourne by the present railway would take two days, besides involving retrucking at Albury.
19. Then the sheep that would be sent away for grass would go to Melbourne? No; when we have a drought there is generally plenty of grass in the mountain country.
20. They would not have to go as far as Melbourne? Generally, they would not have to cross the Murray—we could take them somewhere where they could get grass.
21. Chairman.] How far is it by steamer? I do not know exactly, but we call it about 700 miles from Hay to Echuca.
22. A great deal of wool goes that way, does it not? Yes. In 1887, 372,205 sheep went across the bridge at Hay into Victoria; in 1888, there were 533,113 sheep; in 1889, there were 304,268. Of course, we don't know what has gone this year. In 1888, there were 3,680 cattle—they, of course, swam the river instead of crossing by the bridge; there were 484 horses; in 1889, there were 23,256 cattle and 632 horses.
23. Can you give the number of bales of wool that went? In 1888-9 about 19,398 bales of wool went by river from Hay, but a good many bales were shipped below Hay.
24. Mr. Lakeman.] As many as went from Hay? I daresay there would be.
25. What we want is the number of bales of wool which would be likely to go by rail? What I have stated are the numbers that went by steamer from the stations back from Hay. I do not think that much above Hay would go. In 1889 there were 22,479 bales sent by river. The quantity sent by train has fallen off. In 1885 it was 7,481 bales, in 1887 the quantity was 3,452 bales, in 1888 it was 6,531 bales, in 1889-90 2,648 bales.
26. Is that large number of bales likely to make use of this railway? I think that it would all go by the railway.
27. Is there any settlement between Hay and Deniliquin? Yes. There are a large number of selections along that line, and there would be a great deal more settlement if this line were made.
28. Are there townships at Boooroban and Wanganilla? Yes.
29. Both of which are large selection centres? Yes. There are selections all along the route.
30. And would a quantity of wool equal to that sent from Hay be picked up along the line? There would be a large quantity picked up along the line.
31. Is there any opposition to the Bill in the district? I have not heard any one oppose it. Every one I have met desires that it should be made. We think that it will increase the value of the district by at any rate 30 per cent.
32. Have you heard of any opposition to the railway on the part of those through whose land the line would go? I have not met them personally, but the owners have stated that they would give the land for the line where it passes through their property.
33. There is a general feeling then that the railway will be a benefit to the district? Yes, I think so—everybody is in favour of it.
34. Chairman.] Is there not a good deal of farming about Deniliquin? Yes.
35. Is it likely that the produce will be brought to Hay and sold there if direct means of communication are provided? Yes; one season, about three years ago, I arranged to deliver 40 tons of flour at Deniliquin, but was unable to carry out my contract because I could not get the stuff over the road.
36. Mr. Lakeman.] Is there not a lot of produce used at Hay which comes from Victoria? Yes; and Cobb & Co. bring produce from Parracoota.
37. If there was a railway, don't you think that the produce would be grown about Deniliquin and Moama, and sent up by the direct route? I think so.
38. Mr. Chanter.] Have you any idea of the quantity of Victorian produce taken to Hay by the river? No.
39. Mr. Lakeman.] There are considerable quantities, are there not? I have seen thousands of tons of hay there from Victoria.
40. Chairman.] There is a very large district at the back, is there not, that would be supplied—Booligal, Hillston, and Oxley? Yes.
41. Mr. Lakeman.] The proposed line would bring the produce down from the border of Victoria for distribution in that part of the country? Yes.
42. You think that this particular railway would benefit the Hay district to a very great extent? I am sure of that, it would give us an outlet for our stock.
43. Mr. Chanter.] Do you think that the construction of the line would interfere to a serious extent with the traffic from Hay to Sydney? I daresay it would take a little from that end, but I do not think it would decrease the amount of the traffic on the railway. I think that the traffic to the railway would be increased.
44. You think that that would more than compensate for the traffic which would be taken away? Yes.
45. Chairman.] A great deal of produce would come up from Hay and go up the river? A little; not a large quantity, because they get feed from Wagga Wagga down that way.
46. There is a line in contemplation between Deniliquin and Jerilderie; would this line interfere with the traffic on that railway—would it take any of the wool that would go that way? Not any. That line would be totally independent of this.
47. The two would not come into conflict? No; if this Bill were passed I should say "let them make the other line, they want it,"

48. Mr. Chanter.] Do you think that the construction of the line would lead to increased production along the route? Yes.
49. The land is of that character that it could be used for agricultural purposes? Yes, in a fit season. At present they have no means of getting their produce away. If they grow a lot of hay in a good season, it has to wait until there is a bad season, and the price is exorbitant before it will pay them to send it away.
50. Do you know the growth of hay per acre in that district? I think it is about 30 cwt. to the acre in a fair season—in some places a great deal more.
51. Is that on the line between Deniliquin and Hay? Yes.
52. The channel in connection with the water conservation scheme goes midway between the two points? Yes.
53. Do you think that if the proposed line were constructed, and irrigation commenced, that district between these two points would be able to produce sufficient without any importation from Victoria? I am quite sure that it would be. With irrigation we could supply half the Colony. We can grow anything there if we have water.
54. Have you had any experience of fruit-growing in that part? Yes, on a small scale.
55. Sufficient to demonstrate the capabilities of the district? I have no knowledge of how to carry on fruit-growing, but I can grow as fine fruit in that district as I find in any markets—as good as any that you can find in the world.
56. Do you find that the fruit comes much earlier in the season than it does in the colder districts or about the coast? Very much earlier.
57. Do you think that the construction of the railway would encourage the production of fruit for the Sydney as well as the Melbourne market? Yes. Fruit in Victoria is not so early as at Sydney.
58. But in the district in which it is proposed to make this line, the fruit is earlier than it is in Sydney? Yes, and six weeks earlier than in Melbourne.
59. Do you know the Moonee Gardens on the Edwards River? I do not; but the proprietor brings fruit to Hay for sale in the season—he opened a shop there.
60. Is it good fruit? It is very fine.
61. Are you aware that that fruit has taken first prizes in Sydney and Melbourne for several successive years? I did not know that.
62. Chairman.] As regards the route of the line in wet seasons, it is a regular bog—almost impassable, and in dry seasons teamsters have to buy feed along the route? Yes.
63. Mr. Chanter.] Do you think that the tolls proposed in the Bill would be satisfactory to the residents of the district? I think so.
64. Have you heard any complaint that they are too high? No, I have not.
65. The people in that district would consider it an advantage to get the line and to pay the tolls fixed by the Bill? Yes, but of course the people would rather pay as low tolls as possible, lower tolls if it were possible to get them.
66. If the trade did not warrant any reduction of the tolls the people would be satisfied to pay those provided for in the Bill? Yes. They pay the coach fare now, which is 30s., and the coach takes about thirteen and a half hours to run from Deniliquin to Hay, but a tram would run through in two and a half hours.
67. I suppose that the railway would be sufficiently heavy to carry a heavy motor or a locomotive if required? That is our intention. We presume that the Government would compel us to have it so; no doubt they would look after the safety of the public.
68. You call it a tramway, but it is synonymous with light railways? I cannot see the difference myself. A light railway or a heavy tramway would meet the requirements of the district for many years. We, who are interested either directly or indirectly in chief, think that the line ought to be carried out in the interests of humanity if for nothing else. Anyone would think so if they saw the sheep dying, which might be kept alive if they could be removed.
69. Would you in time of drought remove the sheep to the mountains? We should remove them to the Murray River or to some part of Victoria. It generally happens that there is plenty feed in the Murray district when we have none.
70. It would not be possible to transport the sheep without a railway? It would be impossible.
71. Chairman.] I believe that in the drought of 1883 and 1884 about a million sheep died in the Hay and Deniliquin districts? More than that. Quite that number died in the Hay district alone, and had there been a railway most of them could have been saved.
72. Mr. Chanter.] What do you estimate were the value of those sheep? Seven shillings each. They send away the best from the stations and let the others die.
73. Then you think that the value of those sheep, which might have been saved had there been a railway, would be £600,000? —
74. Have you ever heard objections to the line from any source? No one objects to it. I heard one man object to the line once, and he said, "Oh, you want to make money out of it." I replied, "Pay me back what I have paid and I will turn the matter over to you." Since then he has written in favour of the line several times.

Henry Deane, called in, sworn, and examined:—

75. Chairman] Do you represent the Railway Department? I am Acting Engineer-in-Chief for railways.
76. I believe you wish to make some suggestion with regard to the Bill? Yes. In my official capacity I have had no instructions on the matter from the Minister for Public Works, although I have reported to him what I intended to do. In the first place I wish to point out that this line will be practically a railway. If such a line is called a tramway, there is no difference between a railway and a tramway. It appears to me undesirable that power should be given to a private company to construct a railway or a tramway through such an important district. I do not know what the views of the Government may be, but I would point out that the Public Works examiners are reporting upon a proposed railway extension in that district, and on their report will depend what the Government decide to do in the matter. Supposing that the principle of the Bill is accepted, there are three clauses which in my opinion, should be modified. Clause 3 says—"that the gauge of the tramway shall not be less than 3 feet 6 in." But I consider that the gauge should be fixed at 4 feet 8½ inches.

Mr.
Henry Deane.
12 Nov., 1890.

Mr. Henry Deane. 77. What is your reason for that? That is the standard gauge of this Colony. I think that the clause as it stands is particularly objectionable, because it would allow the promoters or owners of this tramway immediately they start the work to alter the gauge from 3 feet 6 inches, to 5 feet 3 inches, and bring it into connection with the Victorian system.

12 Nov., 1890.

78. Mr. Chanter.] Do you think that they will have power to do that without the consent of the Executive Council? Yes; the clause says:—"The gauge of the said tramway shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches." They may make it anything they like over that.

79. Chairman.] But then the clause says:—"Provided that the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, may compel the owners of the said tramway to alter the said gauge, either for the whole or a portion of the said tramway, whenever it shall be expedient for him so to do?" Yes, the Governor has power to do that, but it is doubtful whether he would exercise that power.

80. Mr. Lakeman.] The Governor would exercise that power if the Ministry thought it desirable? But suppose they put down a gauge of 5 feet 3 inches, it might seem rather arbitrary to compel the company to alter it afterwards.

81. Not necessarily, if it was thought requisite in the public interest to join the line to our railway system? Then they would have to pay for the alteration.

82. Chairman.] We may compel the owners to do it? That means expense, which the Government, if they resumed the line, would have to pay in one form or another. It would take away from the profits of the line.

83. Your main objection to that clause is that it gives power to the promoters to connect their line with the Victorian line? Yes, that is my objection. I would also draw attention to clause 8. This clause seems to be a transcript from the old Act. It says:—"Upon the completion of the tramway works authorised by this Act to the satisfaction of the Commissioner for Railways." Instead of "Commissioner for Railways," it should be "Engineer-in-Chief for Railways." I would suggest that that clause should read in this way:—"The tramway shall not be open for traffic until a certificate has been given by the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, stating that the work has been carried out to his satisfaction." And second:—"That the owners shall pay as was agreed to in the case of the Tarrangingee Bill, such annual rent not exceeding 2s. an acre for all Crown land passed over by the tramway, as the Minister for Lands may direct." I have traced the course of the tramway on the map, and I find that it runs for the greater part of its length over railway reserves. Clause 33 only allows the line to be purchased by the Government after the expiration of twenty-one years, and it makes the minimum sum of the purchase money twenty-one years net profits. In the Tarrangingee Tramway Bill this clause was inserted:—"At any time the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, may, if he think fit, purchase such tramway upon giving to the said James Smith Reid, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, three months' notice, in writing, of his intention to do so. If the amount tendered for the purchase of the property be considered inadequate by the said James Smith Reid, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, the amounts shall be ascertained by assessment in terms of the 'Public Lands Acquisition Act.'" I would suggest that a clause of that nature be substituted for clause 33 of this Bill. In any case twenty-one years is rather a long time. I would also recommend that the time should be stated within which the work must be commenced.

84. Mr. Chanter.] Are not some of the rails laid on the tramways in Sydney as heavy as those on light railways? They use the heaviest rails on the main tram lines.

85. They find it the best to have heavy rails? Light rails are always objectionable.

Thomas Robertson called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr. T. Robertson. 86. Chairman.] What are you? I am a solicitor residing at Hay.

87. Does the proposed line run partly through private property? Yes.

88. Is there any objection on the part of the owners of the property to the construction of the line? No. All the proprietors that I have met with have expressed considerable anxiety to see a tramway or railway constructed.

12 Nov., 1890.

89. Do you know the whole district intimately? I have known the district thoroughly since 1858.

90. And this line, if constructed, would be a very great advantage to the inhabitants of the district? I have not the slightest doubt of it.

91. For the districts of Hay and Deniliquin? It would be the greatest possible boon.

92. You were present when Mr. Witcombe gave his evidence. Do you corroborate what he said? Yes, only I think he under-estimated the sheep traffic. During the last three or four years we have had good seasons. When they had a drought in Victoria our district beyond Hay would have afforded an enormous market for Victorian sheep, but they could not get them across the Old Man Plains. It generally happens that when we have a drought they have a good season in Victoria, and vice versa.

93. If the railway was constructed there would be a change of stock? Yes.

94. Otherwise you corroborate everything that was said by Mr. Witcombe? Yes.

MR. PERRY,	MR. CURLEY,
MR. R. B. WILKINSON.

J. PERRY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Allen Lakeman, Esq., M.P., sworn in his place and examined:—

1. Chairman.] Will you please explain the objects of the Bill? Yes. The Trustees of the Hay Athenæum are Alexander Pentleton Stewart, Thomas Robertson, and William Travis, and they are possessed of that parcel of land situated in the town of Hay described in the Schedule of the Bill. At a meeting held at Hay of the subscribers of the Hay Athenæum it was unanimously resolved that the present buildings were not suitable for the requirements of the institution, and needed a sum of money to add to and repair them, and that authority should be asked from Parliament to enable the Trustees to borrow money on mortgage of the lands held by them in trust to carry out such additions and repairs. The Bill is a fac-simile of the Grafton School of Arts Enabling Bill. A. Lakeman,

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

ILLAWARRA HARBOUR AND LAND CORPORATION BILL.

(PETITION FROM RESIDENTS OF COUNTY OF CAMDEN IN FAVOUR OF).

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 8 May, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned persons interested in the development of the coal and other resources within that part of the County of Camden which lies westerly of Lake Illawarra,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That a Bill, intituled "A Bill to empower the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation (Limited) to form and maintain an entrance and passage between the South Pacific Ocean and the waters of Lake Illawarra, in the county of Camden, and to construct, use, maintain, and in certain respects control and regulate a harbour within the waters of the said lake and of Windang Bay, in the said county of Camden; and to make, establish, maintain, and control wharfage and shipping accommodation in connection therewith; and to construct, work, use, and maintain a line or lines of railway to connect with the said harbour all or any coal-bearing lands situate between the South Coast Colliery on the north and the Macquarie River on the south; and to reclaim, purchase, take, occupy, and otherwise acquire land in certain cases, and on certain terms as to acquisition, compensation, payment, rent, investiture, and otherwise, and to levy, receive, and recover rates, tolls, and dues for the use of the said entrance, harbour, and accommodation, and for towage and fares, freights, and other charges for the use of the said railways; and to confer and impose upon the said Corporation certain powers, rights, duties, and liabilities; and to extend the rights of owners of the foreshores of the said lake, and for other purposes," has been submitted by the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation to your Honorable House.

That your Petitioners believe that the granting of the concessions described in such Bill will lead to the establishment of harbour accommodation and the erection and maintenance of lines of railway, opening up the coal district mainly owned by us.

That such development will enable us to mine the proved coal deposits over a vast area of country now idle, and to find market for the result of such development throughout the world.

That without the opening of a harbour at Lake Illawarra, such coal deposits will remain idle for many years.

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that your Honorable House will, during the current Session, proceed with the consideration of the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation Bill, and, in its wisdom, take such measures as will assist your Petitioners to develop the natural resources of the coal lands within the southern parts of the county of Camden.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

ILLAWARRA HARBOUR AND LAND CORPORATION BILL.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN INHABITANTS OF ILLAWARRA IN FAVOUR OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 22 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned, Inhabitants of the District of Illawarra,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That a Bill intituled a Bill to empower the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation (Limited) to form and maintain an entrance and passage between the South Pacific Ocean and the waters of Lake Illawarra, in the county of Camden, and for other purposes, has been submitted by the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation to your Honorable House.

That a very large and important area of coal land exists in the district of Central Illawarra which at present has no outlet, and cannot, therefore, be profitably worked.

That your Petitioners believe that the granting of the concessions described in such Bill will lead to the establishment of harbour accommodation and the erection and maintenance of lines of railway, and that such development will not only open up the district of Central Illawarra, but provide facilities for shipping coal from that district.

That the facilities proposed to be afforded by the increased harbour accommodation at Wollongong would not enable the profitable shipment of coal from the properties adjacent to Lake Illawarra.

That the establishment of a harbour at Lake Illawarra for shipment of coal and other merchandise would contribute greatly to the prosperity of the district and to develop its natural resources.

That without the formation of a harbour at Lake Illawarra the coal lands adjacent to the lake will remain idle.

That such harbour would be a harbour of refuge to vessels in distress.

That the Bill provides that Her Majesty's vessels, or those belonging to the Government of New South Wales, vessels in distress, fishermen's boats, and pleasure boats be entitled to the free use of the harbour.

That the Bill, as amended and approved of by the Select Committee appointed by your Honorable House to report thereon, makes full provision for the preservation of public and private rights.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will during the current Session take such steps as may be deemed advisable to ensure the early passage of the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation Bill into law.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

ILLAWARRA HARBOUR AND LAND CORPORATION BILL.
(PETITION FROM COMMISSIONERS OF WOLLONGONG HARBOUR TRUST AGAINST.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Commissioners of the Wollongong Harbour Trust,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That a Bill has been introduced into Parliament to empower the Illawarra Harbour Land Corporation (Limited) to form and maintain an entrance and passage between the South Pacific Ocean and the waters of Lake Illawarra, in the county of Camden, and to confer and impose upon the said Corporation certain powers, rights, dues, and liabilities, and to extend the rights of owners of the foreshores of the said lake and for other purposes.

That your Petitioners most respectfully submit that this Trust, in view of the obligations and responsibilities imposed upon them in the Act under which the Wollongong Harbour Trust is being conducted, enter an emphatic protest against the Parliament granting to private and irresponsible persons the privilege of constructing a rival harbour in close proximity to Wollongong.

That your Petitioners would point out that the promoters of the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation Bill appear to have misrepresented to honorable Members the necessity for their proposed harbour, inasmuch as they entirely ignore the existence of the Port of Wollongong from which coal has been shipped in large quantities to foreign and intercolonial parts for the past twenty years. That during the years 1888 and 1889 the quantities of coal shipped from the said Port of Wollongong amounted to nearly one million tons.

That your Petitioners desire to state that the Commissioners have already expended considerable sums of money and entered into engagements for the expenditure of further large sums in carrying out the duties imposed upon them under the Wollongong Harbour Trust Act.

That your Petitioners beg to inform you that plans are already prepared for submission to Sir John Coode, C.E., for the extension of the Port of Wollongong, and that when such extensions are completed the shipping facilities will be sufficient for the requirements of the district for many years.

That your Petitioners submit that the depth of water in the proposed Lake Harbour will according to the Bill be only sufficient to carry a vessel drawing fifteen feet, which is very much less than in Wollongong Harbour at present, and which is proved to be inadequate for the existing class of ocean-going steamers and sailing vessels.

That your Petitioners also desire to inform you that large and important interests have accrued in Wollongong which would be seriously affected by granting the concessions asked for in the said Bill.

That your Petitioners respectfully submit that past experience has proved that alienating the foreshores of harbours and inlets on the coast has resulted in great loss to the community.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to reject the said Bill.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

[Here follow 10 signatures.]

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

ILLAWARRA HARBOUR AND LAND CORPORATION BILL.
(PETITION FROM CERTAIN RESIDENTS OF WOLLONGONG AGAINST.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 16 July, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned residents in the town of Wollongong and the Electorate of Illawarra,—

That during its last Session Parliament passed an Act under which Commissioners were appointed, large and valuable endowments were granted, a sum of twenty-five thousand pounds (£25,000) was voted, payable in instalments of five thousand pounds annually, and further powers were conferred upon the said Commissioners to borrow a sum of two hundred and fifty thousand pounds (£250,000) for the purpose of providing extended harbour accommodation for the port of Wollongong.

That your Petitioners view with alarm the effects now being put forth by private and irresponsible persons to secure, without adequate consideration, large concessions of public property if the Illawarra Harbour and Land Corporation Bill now before Parliament become law, inasmuch as such concessions will militate against the success of the Wollongong Harbour Extension scheme, in which the Government is pecuniarily interested to a large extent.

That the granting to a private Company the fee simple of Lake Illawarra, estimated to contain an area of about forty (40) square miles with the foreshores, is entirely at variance with the policy maintained by successive Parliaments for many years.

That the policy of alienating foreshores public property for the use and benefit of private individuals has, from past experience, been found most detrimental to the national welfare, and in many instances it has entailed the necessity of Government being compelled to resume such lands at a high price when required for public use.

That the proposal to construct and run private railways in competition with the Government Railways will be detrimental to the public revenue.

That the promoters of the Bill appear to have misrepresented to honorable Members the necessity for their proposed harbour, inasmuch as they entirely ignore the existence of the port of Wollongong, from which coal has been shipped in large quantities to foreign and intercolonial ports for the past twenty years.

Further, that the depth of water (15 feet) for the proposed Lake Illawarra Harbour is altogether less than the present depth of Wollongong Harbour, which has been found totally inadequate for the existing class of ocean-going steamers and sailing vessels.

That operations have already been commenced for the extension and deepening of Wollongong Harbour.

That plans have been prepared and are now being considered by Sir John Coode, in England, for a comprehensive scheme of harbour accommodation, which, when completed, will be amply sufficient for the largest class of ocean-going steamers, and will be sufficient for the requirements of the district for many years.

From the foregoing premises your Petitioners therefore pray that your Honorable House may not pass into law a measure which will be most injurious to important existing vested interests as well as detrimental to public welfare.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 25 November, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That a meeting of the inhabitants of the town and district of Penrith was held in that town, on Saturday, the 22nd day of November, one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

2. That the said meeting passed unanimously the following resolutions:—

1stly. That the best interests of the Nepean district and the Colony at large demand that Messieurs Chaffey Brothers' scheme for the irrigation of Mulgoa should receive every encouragement.

2ndly. That the Chairman of this meeting be requested to sign a Petition to the Legislative Assembly in support of the Mulgoa Irrigation Bill, in the name of the inhabitants of the Penrith district, and that the Member for the district be desired to present the said Petition on Tuesday next.

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that your Honorable House will take the said resolutions into your favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

ST. LEONARDS SCHOOL OF ARTS ENABLING BILL.

TUESDAY, 6 MAY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. BURNS,
MR. LEE,

MR. PERRY,
MR. HOWE.

J. F. CULLEN, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

John Malbon Thompson, Esq. (of the firm of Messrs. Thompson and Weekes), appeared as Solicitor for the promoters of the Bill.

John Malbon Thompson, Esq., sworn and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are solicitor for the St. Leonards School of Arts Enabling Bill? Yes.
2. You have also been an active member of the Committee of that Institution? I was for some years.
3. And are personally aware of the circumstances under which this Bill has been introduced? Yes.
4. You are aware that the St. Leonards School of Arts was founded in 1859? I made inquiry before I introduced that statement into the Draft Bill and found that that was so.
5. And that a portion of land, measuring 1 rood 6 perches, was conveyed to the trustees mentioned in the Preamble to this Bill as a site for a School of Arts? Yes; I produce a deed to that effect—[Deed produced]—the deed which gives them their title—and I have compared the description and found that it is correct.
6. You are aware that on that site the School of Arts buildings, class rooms, &c., have been erected? Yes.
7. You are aware that one of the original trustees has refused to act? Yes; Charles Henry Woolcott.
8. And that the other gents named in the Preamble of this Bill are the sole remaining trustees? Yes. I may explain that Mr. Sayers at first thought that he would not act, but that ultimately he decided that he would act; and so you will please strike out that portion of the Bill stating that he has refused to act.
9. He has consented to act? Yes; I have a letter to that effect.
10. There was a deficit in connection with the erection and completion of these buildings? Yes; and in connection with the furnishing. The Secretary will give you the particulars if desired.
11. That is mentioned in the Preamble? Yes.
12. And you are personally aware of that fact? Yes; I have been present at the meetings.
13. The deficit is about £882? Yes; about that.
14. It is necessary to give a mortgage to cover this loan? Yes; the bank has called upon the Committee to pay the overdraft.
15. And the trusts are not sufficient to enable a mortgage to be given? The trusts are not sufficient. I now look at a copy of the deed [produced] and find that the only trust is "to permit and suffer the premises to be appropriated as a site or place for the erection of such building or buildings for the St. Leonards School of Arts as the President, Senior Vice-President, and Treasurer, for the time being, of the said Society, or other the managing officers thereof, should think fit." Of course there are the usual trusts for change of trustees; but the conveyance contains no trust which would enable a lease, sale, or mortgage to take place.

J. M.
Thompson,
Esq.
6 May, 1890.

- J. M. Thompson, Esq.
6 May, 1890.
16. Then the Committee of the St Leonards School of Arts has decided in this Bill to ask for an extension of the trusts? Yes.
17. To cover how much? The extension of the trusts proposed in the second section of the Bill as drawn to the various powers to mortgage, sell, or lease; and then there are other clauses which define how this is to be done and the application of the money, and the usual clauses giving protection so that it should not be improvidently done.
18. Is there anything else that you wish to state to this Committee? As a member of the School of Arts, and one who takes some interest in it, I am convinced that what is proposed is a proper thing to be done.
19. Mr. Burns.] You are satisfied, Mr. Thompson, that conferring these powers on the Committee of the St Leonards School of Arts would enable them to better carry out the intention of those who first promoted that Mechanics' Institution? I am quite sure that it would.
20. There is no opposition on the part of any member of the Committee of the Institution to your taking this course? No. There was one dissentient, I think, but he never put his dissent in form. I think that the resolutions were all carried unanimously.
21. Were they put to a meeting of the members of the Institution? They were first carried in Committee and then in a general meeting.
22. The project has been approved of by the members at a public meeting? Yes; and the Bill has been approved of by the Committee.
23. Mr. Lee.] In this Bill you have provided ample power for the members of the St. Leonards' Mechanics' Institute to decide whether the powers under this Bill should be exercised either by sale or mortgage? Yes; the 6th clause of the Bill provides for that. That is framed in accordance with the rules.
24. You have made that provision? Yes.
25. So that although this emanates from the Committee, the powers of the Bill cannot be exercised without the consent of the majority of the members of the Institution? Yes; a three-fourths majority.
26. Mr. Burns.] Why do you make a provision for a three-fourths majority;—why not a simple majority? Because the rules made it so. We had to conform to the rules. It would not have done to have the rules and the Act conflicting.
27. Mr. Perry.] You say Mr. Woolcott has refused to act as trustee? Yes.
28. Has this proposal anything to do with that refusal? No, nothing whatever. Before this took definite shape he expressed his intention to resign.

Frederick Alfred Adolphus Wilson, sworn and examined:—

- Mr. F. A. A. Wilson.
6 May, 1890.
29. Chairman.] Where do you reside? At St. Leonards.
30. You are a trustee of the St. Leonards School of Arts? Yes.
31. And also Chairman of the Committee? Yes; I am President of the Institution.
32. You are thoroughly acquainted with the provisions of the St. Leonards School of Arts Enabling Bill? Yes.
33. You consider that it is right that the powers asked for in this Bill should be secured for the St. Leonards School of Arts? Certainly.
34. The School of Arts is practically unanimously in favour of the Bill? I think quite unanimously. I have not heard of any opposition to the Bill.
35. There has not been any formal opposition at any of the meetings? None whatever.
36. The introduction of the Bill has been approved in due course by the Committee and by the School of Arts as an Institution? It has.
37. Mr. Burns.] The Bill has been approved by the members in public meeting assembled? At an ordinary meeting of the members.
38. Was it notified to the members that the question would be brought forward? Yes; in accordance with the rules.
39. Chairman.] Is there anything else you would like to say in support of the Bill? Yes. In the first place I would like to say that the difficulty is the result of a mistake. We bought more land than we actually wanted, expecting to be able to sell the portion we did not want, or at least lease it and make it revenue-producing. In the next place, when we made the arrangement with the Government by which they took over our old premises and gave us the new ones we agreed to take in part settlement an allotment of land that we did not consider suitable for building the School of Arts upon, but which we thought we could sell at a certain price. The price we put on it was £1,000, and we did sell it ultimately at that price. The Government agreed that we should take that land and sell it, and that whenever we sold it they would convey it to our nominee, and we should get the money. We sold it for £1,000, but it took two years to get the conveyance from the Government to our nominee. In consequence of that we lost two years' interest on that money, besides about £50 or £60 law expenses incurred in obtaining the grant to the nominee. That, I think, added about £200 to our debt one way and the other. I think I am not far out when I say that. So that we have been partly driven into debt by not getting our rights from the Government in proper time. The next thing is that we want this money. It is to the advantage of the School of Arts to get this money; already they owe it. By being able to properly mortgage this property we shall get that money much cheaper than we are paying for it at present.
40. At present it is a bank overdraft? Yes.
41. Having stated that it is a bank overdraft, you may as well mention the amount of interest? Well, I don't know exactly, but it is the current rate of interest—probably 8 per cent.
42. In giving a mortgage you will probably get the money at about 5½ per cent.? Yes, I think so. I do not think there will be any trouble about getting it at 5½ per cent., because the security is so very much beyond what we want to borrow. I might say, with reference to the retirement of Mr. Woolcott from the position of trustee, that Mr. Woolcott retired from the trusteeship simply because he was retiring from every other similar position that he held at the time. Simultaneously he retired from the trusteeship of the Lavender Bay baths. At the time he retired there was no thought of getting this Bill through the House; it was not in view at all; we did not know it would be necessary.

John

John Harriott Thomson sworn and examined :—

- 43. Chairman.] Where do you reside? Alfred-street, St. Leonards.
- 44. What is your calling? I am Secretary to the St. Leonards School of Arts.
- 45. You are acquainted with the School of Arts Enabling Bill that has been introduced into the Legislative Assembly? Yes.
- 46. We want to know from you, as Secretary, whether the steps that have been taken towards introducing this Bill have been taken in accordance with the rules of the Institution? Yes.
- 47. It has been approved by the Committee and by a general meeting of the Institution? Yes.
- 48. Will you be good enough to read an extract from the minutes? At the annual general meeting of the Institution, on 31st December, 1889, amongst other matters mentioned in the report was the following:—"The Trustees, in conjunction with your Committee, finding that the trust deed does not give the trustees sufficient powers to act in the interest of the Institution, resolved that the said deed be so amended by Act of Parliament as to give all necessary powers. They have accordingly instructed Messrs. Thompson & Weekes, solicitors, of Sydney, to draft a Bill for such purpose for presentation to Parliament." The meeting adopted the report containing that recommendation.
- 49. We understand from previous witnesses that there has been no formal objection to this course? None.
- 50. Mr. Perry.] Do any members at all object to this Bill? No member has urged any objection whatever to it.

Mr. J. H.
Thomson.

STOCKTON GAS AND ELECTRICITY BILL.

(PETITION FROM MAYOR AND ALDERMEN OF STOCKTON AGAINST PASSING OF)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 29 April, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble petition of the Mayor and Aldermen of the Borough of Stockton, against Mr. Mahlon Clarke Cowlshaw's Gas and Electric Lighting Bill for Stockton,—

We, the undersigned, the Mayor and Aldermen of the Borough of Stockton, being desirous of furthering the wishes of the people of Stockton, as set forth in their petition, presented to Parliament in December last, protesting against the granting of power to Mahlon Clarke Cowlshaw, or any syndicate, to light Stockton with gas or electricity, to the end that the lighting of this Borough may be carried out, executed, and controlled by the corporate body (whereby the residents would be more cheaply and efficiently served), do most humbly petition this Honorable House that the powers sought to be obtained by the abovenamed Mahlon Clarke Cowlshaw, in his Gas and Electric Lighting Bill for Stockton, now before the House, be not granted.

In preferring this request we beg leave to give hereunder a copy of a resolution passed at a duly convened meeting of the Council, held on 31st March, 1890, consequent upon a report submitted to it by the Improvement Committee which had considered the question of lighting the Borough and made estimates of the cost.

It was proposed, seconded, and unanimously carried, "That a petition be drawn up for presentation to Parliament under the corporate seal and signed by the Mayor and Aldermen, protesting against the granting to Mahlon Clarke Cowlshaw, or any syndicate, the powers sought in his Gas and Electric Lighting Bill for Stockton, now before Parliament."

Your Petitioners therefore humbly beseech that their request may be granted, and, as in duty bound, they will ever pray.

STOCKTON GAS AND ELECTRICITY BILL.

(PETITION FROM RATEPAYERS AND OTHERS AGAINST PASSING OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 27 May, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble prayer of your Petitioners, the ratepayers and inhabitants of the Borough of Stockton,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That at a public meeting of the inhabitants of Stockton, held on the evening of the 14th day of May, 1890, to consider what steps should be taken with regard to the Petition lately presented to Parliament by Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw, begging that his proposed Gas and Electric Lighting Bill for Stockton might again be placed upon the business-sheet of your Honorable House, the following resolutions were unanimously carried :—

- (a) That the expression of opinion given by the inhabitants of the Borough upon this question in December last, and then embodied in a Petition and presented to Parliament, be now repeated, and that the ratepayers' and residents' strong opposition to such powers as Mr. Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw now seeks being granted to him, or to any syndicate, be once again fervently expressed.
- (b) That the Petition lately presented to Parliament from the Members of the Borough Council in opposition to Mr. Cowlshaw's Bill be now thoroughly approved of, and that another Petition in similar strain be at once prepared and forwarded to Parliament, with the signatures of ratepayers and inhabitants generally attached, it being the firm belief of the meeting that the best interests of the inhabitants of the Borough would be more efficiently served if the lighting of the streets and houses were carried out by the Municipal Council.

2. That therefore your Petitioners do most respectfully pray that the powers sought by the said Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw in his before-mentioned Bill be not granted to him, or to any syndicate, save and except to the Municipal Council of the Borough, to whose province the lighting of the Borough does, in the opinion of your Petitioners, justly belong.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

STOCKTON GAS AND ELECTRICITY BILL.

(PETITION FROM THE MAYOR AND ALDERMEN OF THE BOROUGH OF STOCKTON, AGAINST.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 4 November, 1890.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Mayor and Aldermen of the Borough of Stockton,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That a Bill has been laid before your Honorable House by Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw, wherein he seeks to obtain power to light Stockton with gas or electricity.

2. That the ratepayers and residents of Stockton are opposed to the said Bill; and have by Petitions formerly presented to your Honorable House, and by almost unanimous votes recorded at more than one largely attended public meeting, strongly expressed the desire that the lighting of the Borough should be carried out by the corporate body, and that the powers sought by the said Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw should not be granted to him, nor to any syndicate.

3. That the said corporate body (namely your Petitioners) are desirous of undertaking the work of lighting the said Borough, and have in Committee and in Council considered the matter, and have had estimates prepared there anent.

Your Petitioners do therefore most humbly beg that the said Mahlon Clark Cowlshaw's Bill be not allowed to pass your Honorable House.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

TARRAWINGEE TRAMWAY BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 18 JUNE, 1890.

Present:—

MR. W. BROWN.	MR. LAKEMAN.
MR. DOWEL.	MR. PERRY.
MR. GARLAND.	MR. PLUMB.

MR. W. BROWN IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. James Smith Reid called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You reside at Adelaide? Yes.
2. You are applying to Parliament for permission to construct a tramway from a point in the parish of Tarrawingee to a point at block 10 in Broken Hill? Yes.
3. Do you produce a plan showing the course of the line? I do.
4. What are the chief objects of the Bill? The chief and almost sole object is to carry limestone from these quarries for fluxing purposes at Broken Hill in connection with the smelting of silver and lead ores.
5. How do you hold the land upon which the limestone is found? Under mineral lease from the Government of New South Wales.
6. What quantities of limestone will be required? The amount used by the Broken Hill Proprietary Co., for the half-year ending 30th November, 1889, was 16,368 tons, and for the half-year ending 31st May, 1890, 24,624 tons, or a total of 41,012 tons for the year. Block 14 uses about 250 tons a week. But this quantity will be greatly exceeded presently. Within six months I reckon that the furnaces now going up and those already in blast will use 2,080 tons a week, that is to say, the Broken Hill Proprietary, 1,200 tons; Block 14, 250 tons; British Broken Hill, 80 tons; Central Broken Hill, 300 tons; South Broken Hill, 250 tons.
7. Where is the present supply of limestone obtained? It is chiefly obtained from the small shallow deposits of lime that are scattered over the country; the balance is got from Kapunda, in South Australia, which is about 260 miles from Broken Hill.
8. There have been large quantities sent at different times from Kapunda? Yes.
9. Mr. Garland.] Have you any idea of the extent of the limestone deposits at Tarrawingee? I have examined them in company with Mr. Howell, the general manager of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company. The quantity of limestone is simply unlimited. I beg to hand in a report on the quarry, which was made before I had anything to do with the quarry, by the assistant metallurgist of that company. [Vide Appendix A.]
10. Chairman.] Can you state the cost the material obtained from Kapunda;—you were a director of that company were you not? I left the Broken Hill Proprietary Company in November last, but as far as my memory serves me, before that time it used to cost £26 or £27 a ton to get limestone from Kapunda, while about £1 a ton was paid for the local limestone, which is not of good quality.
11. Have you estimated the price at which you could deliver the limestone at the mines? I have made a rough calculation. I may say that the teamsters returning from the stations are allowed to take as back-loading

Mr.
J. S. Reid.
18 June, 1890.

Mr.
J. S. Reid.

loading the limestone that is broken out at Tarrawingee. We do not get anything for it. Whatever price they get from the mines they get for the carriage of it. The Broken Hill Company gives 3s. 9d. a ton more for this stone than for the local stone. The estimated saving on the quantity that would be required within six months, taking the Tarrawingee standard of purity as a basis, would be about 6s. a ton, or an annual saving to the mines of £32,448.

12. Mr. Garland.] What is the length of the line? About 40 miles.

13. And the width of the gauge? Three feet 6 inches, the same gauge as that of the line between the border and Broken Hill.

14. What is the character of the country through which the tram-line will pass? It is almost level country, as is shown on the plan which I now produce. It will be observed that scarcely any earthworks are necessary, and that only one bridge or culvert is required in the whole of the work. The steepest grade on the line will be 1 in 50.

15. Mr. Perry.] Will the line obstruct any Government road in the district? No, the principal road that it crosses is the travelling stock reserve between Menindie and Silverton which is a mile wide.

16. Mr. Garland.] Will the tramway serve the Corona mines? It will go within 4 or 5 miles of the south end of the Corona lode.

17. How far is it to their property? I suppose 10 miles.

18. The line will be of service to these mines? If the mines develop as they promise to do it will be of great service to them. I may say that when Mr. Howell, who has had very great experience in geological matters in America, inspected the deposit with me the week before last, he remarked that only once before in his experience had he seen such a deposit of limestone—and that was in Nevada—and that as regards its qualities for fluxing it could not possibly be excelled.

19. Chairman.] I think you also mentioned to me that he would recommend the directors to at once remove one of their smelters from Port Pirie to Broken Hill? One of the strong arguments in favour of smelting at the seaboard is the absence of good flux, which forms a very heavy item in smelting. Owing to the want of good flux and the doubt as to whether the water supply would be sufficient, the directors of the British Broken Hill put their five—eighty smelting furnaces at Port Pirie, but when Mr. Howell saw this deposit he remarked that the flux question, provided that the tram-line were built, was settled and that he would at once recommend the directors to shift up to the Hill one of the furnaces that had not yet been erected, and that within twelve months the other furnaces would be there. I daresay the Junction furnaces would follow then.

20. How much do you propose to expend on the construction of the tramway? I reckon that the whole work will cost from £100,000 to £120,000, including rolling stock.

21. Mr. Garland.] Did you say that the Corona mines are 10 miles from your property? The south end of what is known as the Corona lode will be closer than that; I think the terminus will be as near to Corona as will any point on the line. I may state that another material which will be wanted in considerable quantities for fluxing purposes is iron. I am having tests made of the Corona outcrop for iron-stone flux, and should the test prove the iron to be of good quality for that purpose, probably I shall come by-and-bye and ask permission to extend the line to Corona.

22. Will the construction of the line interfere with any railway in the Colony? Not that I am aware of.

23. Mr. Plumb.] Will it interfere with the projected line from Cobar? It will run almost at right angles with that line.

24. Chairman.] You do not intend to use the line at present for any other purpose than that of carrying flux? No.

25. Mr. Garland.] I suppose you will provide for any passenger traffic in that direction? Yes; if it is required.

26. Mr. Dowel.] What is the nature of the soil over which the line will pass? It is all salt-bush country.

27. Is it all Crown lands? All except one piece, held by a man named Gaynor, who has an hotel and a 600-acre block. He is quite favourable to the line passing through his land.

28. Have you any knowledge as to whether the limestone is suitable for flux? I have no further knowledge than that which I obtained from the experts. I am not a metallurgist, and therefore cannot say of my own knowledge that it is suitable for flux. But a convincing proof that it is good for the purpose is the fact that it is fetching 3s. 9d. per ton more than is the locally obtained stone.

29. You do not propose to construct the line in the interests of any particular company? No, for the benefit of all who choose to purchase this flux.

30. Will you insert a provision in the Bill empowering the Government to purchase the line at any time if they should think fit? Yes.

31. Mr. Perry.] The Railway Commissioners have been supplied with a copy of the Bill? Yes.

32. Have they offered any objections to the measure? Not that I know of. Perhaps I ought to mention that the local supply of limestone is very limited. It occurs in small patches under the surface, perhaps 2 or 3 feet down. The men find a little patch here or there, containing 60 tons, and when that is finished they have to look round and get another. In view of the great demand which now exists for limestone, the local supply will soon be exhausted, and if the supply at Tarrawingee is not made available for the mines it is only a question of time when all the furnaces will be shifted out of there, which would mean the shifting of 1,500 or 2,000 hands to South Australia.

33. Mr. Lakeman.] The Bill does not interfere with any public waterways or public roadways? No.

34. Mr. Garland.] Will the tramway be built by yourself, or by a company? At the present time some other people have a small interest in the quarries. I do not know whether it is too heavy an undertaking for me, but I intend to build the line myself.

35. Mr. Dowel.] You are convinced that the tramway will be of some considerable advantage to the mining industry? Yes.

36. You think it will be the means of supplying flux of a better quality at a lower rate? I am sure it will. I may mention that the total quantity of ore treated by the Broken Hill Proprietary Company in the year ending 31st May last, was 162,225 tons, yielding 29,058 tons of lead and 7,140,099 oz. of silver, of the roughly-estimated value of £2,000,000.

37. As regards the tramway, what will be the weight of rails and the description of sleepers? I propose to use a 41-lb. rail, and similar sleepers to those used on the Silverton tram-line. I think they are 10 x 4.

38. How many of them to a mile? That I cannot say; but the line will be constructed in a similar way to the other line.
39. Equally substantial? Yes, in regard to the rails and sleepers; but at the start I would not think of ballasting the line.
40. You would only have half ballast? Yes. The speed on this line will not be more than 12 miles an hour, and the travelling will be done in the day-time.

Mr.
J. S. Reid.
18 June, 1890.

Robert Henry Levien, Esq., M.P., called in, sworn and examined :—

41. Chairman.] I understand that you, as solicitor for this Bill, waited on the Secretary to the Commissioners for Railways? Yes. I caused three copies of the Bill to be left at the office of the Commissioners about a fortnight ago; I told the Secretary yesterday that the Committee would meet to-day to take evidence and to consider the Bill; and that if the Commissioners had any objection to the Bill they could attend or produce evidence, and he replied that he did not think that they had any objection to the Bill, as they had obtained certain information from Mr. Wyman Brown that the line would not interfere with the Government railway.

TARRAWINGEE TRAMWAY BILL.

APPENDIX.

[To Evidence of J. S. Reid.]

The following is my Report on your Limestone claims, which I visited on the 4th of January last :—

Your property consists of six 40-acre and two 80-acre blocks, and is situate about 43 miles* north of Broken Hill, in the parish of Tarawingie, county Farnell, in what is known as the Poolamacca district. The limestone on your property is undoubtedly a true sedimentary rock, forming part of the country formation; it has been deposited between two layers of slate, and the whole formation has subsequently been tilted up at nearly right angles, with a slight dip to the east; its general direction is approximately north and south. I followed the outcrop for about 3 miles, and its average width is from a quarter to three-eighths of a mile—this evidently having been the depth of the limestone when in situ. It is traversed by two bands of slate, whose exact width it was impossible to determine, but which certainly comprises only a few feet of the total width. On the outcrop of your property are two hills; the larger one of these rises about 70 feet above the level of the surrounding country, and is between a half and three-quarters of a mile long, and is composed entirely of pure limestone, with the exception of the bands of slate referred to above. The other hill, at the northern end of your property, is not quite as extensive, but is exactly of the same formation. I append to this the analysis of several lots supplied by you to the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, amounting in all to about 50 tons. These show conclusively that the stone is a very superior article for fluxing purposes. Besides its freedom from impurities it is also very suitable for furnace purposes on account of its mechanical structure. The nature of the formation is such that it could be quarried at a very small expense. The two hills referred to rise directly from the plains, and are very easy of access, so that quarrying could be commenced at their base, and the whole contents of the hill would approximately represent the amount of material available for immediate working. The supply to all intents and purposes is unlimited. To make the material marketable a tramway to Broken Hill would be an absolute necessity. The country between Tarawingie and Broken Hill presents, as you travel over it, very few impediments to the construction of a light surface railroad at a comparatively small expense. There is only one spot, at the Mount Gipps woolshed, which seems at all to necessitate deep cutting; but I am assured by persons conversant with the country that this can be averted by a short detour. I believe it is your intention to have a flying survey made which will give definite information on this question. Close to the western edge of the property, between the limestone and the slate, is an outcrop of ironstone. On the surface it looks very promising; but as no work has been done on it to show its nature at a depth I am unable to report on it.

Yours very faithfully,
WALTER J. KOEHLER, S.B.,
Broken Hill Proprietary Co.

The results of bulk analysis are as follow :—

16 tons 12 cwt.	delivered January 6,	contained 4.2 per cent. insoluble matter.
19 tons 4 cwt. 1 qr.	„ 15,	3.74 „ „ „
6 tons 14 cwt. 2 qrs.	„ 22,	3.4 „ „ „
11 tons 8 cwt.	„ 23,	3.24 „ „ „
53 tons 18 cwt. 3 qrs.

The remainder of the stone (averaging nearly 97 per cent.) is pure carbonate of lime, containing no magnesia and a very small trace of iron.

* The measured distance from the town boundary obtained since this was written is 33 miles.—(Vide Messrs. Horwood and Creswell's survey.)

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

TORONTO TRAMWAY ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

TUESDAY, 6 MAY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. CREER,

MR. PERRY.

MR. GORMLY,

R. STEVENSON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Alfred Rofe, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the promoters of the Bill.

Mr. Phillip Robert Cook sworn and examined:—

1. Mr. Rofe.] What are you? I am Acting-Manager of the Excelsior Land, Investment, and Building Company and Bank (Limited).
2. You are one of the promoters of this Amending Toronto Tramway Bill? Yes.
3. Are you acquainted with the alteration in the route which has necessitated this amending Bill? Yes.
4. Do you know of your own knowledge whether the new route is acceptable to the people resident in the neighbourhood of Lake Macquarie? I believe so; I have heard nothing to the contrary.
5. Will you explain, first, the necessity for the proposed alteration? The reason for the alteration was: In the first place it was proposed to put down a 3 ft. gauge line—a very light line; but during the sitting of the Select Committee on the original Bill the Commissioners for Railways sent their Secretary, who recommended that the gauge should be 4 ft. 8½ in. Their recommendation was adopted, but it was then too late to amend the Bill for the purpose of altering the route. It was found out afterwards that in adopting the broad gauge the curves on the line were insufficient—they were too short; and therefore the route had to be altered in two or three places. It was not discovered till after the Bill was very nearly through Parliament. The Bill was through the Lower House and very nearly through the Upper House before it was discovered that the curves were insufficient.
6. It was then too late to further amend the Bill? Yes.
7. And in order to proceed with the construction of the tramway, you thought it better to allow the Bill to pass through, and afterwards apply for an amending Bill? Yes.
8. Is the tramway in course of construction? Yes.
9. About how much of it do you think is ready for the sleepers and rolling-stock? I should say fully five-sixths of it.
10. It says here that you would require to arrange for the carriage of coal;—what is the intention in having this extra power in the Bill? It is in order that, as Lake Macquarie is likely to be a coal district, any coal company should have the power to connect with our line, and, if necessary, run their own trucks and locomotives on our line to the deep waters of Lake Macquarie.
11. This would still further develop the resources of the district? Yes; and it would be a public advantage.
12. Mr. Creer.] Will this 4 feet 8½ inch gauge suit the Government rolling-stock? Yes.
13. So the line could be used by any Government rolling-stock? Yes.
14. I suppose that is one object you have in view? Yes; it was a recommendation by the Commissioners or Railways.

Mr.
P. R. Cook.
6 May, 1890.

- Mr. P. R. Cook.
6 May, 1890.
15. Mr. Gormly.] Is there a chart before the Committee showing the original line and the proposed alteration? Yes; I produce one.
16. Mr. Rofe.] Do you know of your own knowledge whether the Railway Commissioners approve of the tramway? Yes, I do.
17. Mr. Perry.] Is there any provision for the compensation of parties whose land is taken by your Company? Yes; that is in the original Bill.
18. Chairman.] How did you first discover that the curves were too sharp? I inquired of a gentleman in the Government Railways Department.
19. What was his answer? He said they were too sharp, and the Government trams were not allowed to run on a curve of less than 8 chains radius.
20. That was one of the reasons why you were compelled to apply for this Bill? Yes.
21. I take it that the increase of the curves was required in the interests of the public, as it was considered unsafe to run Government rolling-stock over the line provided for by the original Bill? Yes; it was so unsafe that they would not run their rolling-stock on it.
22. A good deal of this tramway travels through your own land? Yes; most of it—about two-thirds of it.
23. The Northumberland Coal and Land Company have had notice of the construction of this line? Yes; they are fully aware of its construction. They have had notice of its going through their leased land. Negotiations have been entered into with them for the purchase of that land, and those negotiations are still pending.

Mr. James Adam sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Adam.
6 May, 1890.
24. Mr. Rofe.] You are a surveyor? Yes.
25. A member of the firm of Laycock and Adam? Yes.
26. Do you produce a plan of the proposed route of the Toronto tramway? Yes. [Plan produced.]
27. Did you survey this line? Yes, and prepared this plan.
28. Will you please tell the Committee how much of the land required for the tramway is at present owned by the Excelsior Company? I should say that fully two-thirds of the land on which the tram travels is at present owned by the Excelsior Company.
29. Mr. Gormly.] Can you explain the alterations proposed to be made since the original Bill was passed? The principal alteration was in the connection with Fassifern Station.
30. Can you show us where the plan indicates the alteration? Yes. The principal alteration is in making a connection with the Great Northern Railway at Fassifern Station. Our original route passed up a Government road to give access to the Fassifern Railway Station. The deviation now passes through a township laid out by the Northumberland Coal and Land Company. Another deviation has been made in the Lorne township for the purpose of easing the curve which previously existed there. The other deviations are scarcely worth mentioning; they are only for the purpose of easing the curves.
31. Mr. Rofe.] Can you give any reason for the alteration at Fassifern Station? Our plan being for a 2 ft. 6 in. gauge we did not require a connection with the line, but now we require to run our rails into the main Northern Line. That could not be done before, because of the sharpness of the curves and there being a bridge just where the line would have gone.
32. In your opinion, would the line now proposed enable the Government to run their rolling-stock on our tramways? Yes, certainly; it will make an easy connection with our tramway.
33. Have you heard whether it is the intention of the Government to utilise our tramway in that respect? I have not heard officially in any way, but there are points and connections laid down for the purpose of making our tramways fit on to the Northern Line, and there are signals, and so forth.
34. In your opinion as a surveyor, was the alteration in the route necessary? Absolutely necessary to make a connection with the Northern Line.
35. Chairman.] Also, I presume, for the safety of the public? Yes.
36. Mr. Rofe.] The connection could not be made on the former route? No, certainly not.
37. Mr. Gormly.] What is the name of this township next the railway line? I do not think they have given it a name; it is merely a subdivision by the Northumberland Company.
38. There is no occupation? No; except the station-master's house.
39. Is the Lorne township built on? No.
40. Mr. Rofe.] Is the increased width of gauge necessary, and why? In certain parts of the line the cuttings have been increased a great deal over what they were in the original survey, and in order to give a sufficient batter to the sides of the line we must have a greater width than 33 feet. In one cutting in particular—just where we enter on to the main railway line—there is a cutting between 22 and 23 feet, which would of course necessitate a much greater width in order to give a proper slope to the cuttings.
41. Is it a clear cutting? Yes. It is very short, but for 3 chains we would require more than 33 feet—at least 66 feet.

Hugh M'Lachlan, Esq., sworn and examined:—

- Hugh M'Lachlan, Esq.
6 May, 1890.
42. Mr. Rofe.] What position do you occupy? I am Secretary for Railways.
43. Are you acquainted with the proposed route for the Toronto tramway? Generally, I am acquainted with the proposed route.
44. Are you aware that the width of gauge has been increased from 3 feet to 4 feet 8 inches? Yes; I see that by the Bill.
45. Can you tell us what width of curve the Railway Commissioners insist upon? The lowest we have is 8 chains. We would sooner have them pretty well straight if we could insist upon it.
46. Are you aware that one of the reasons for the proposed alteration of route is to obtain a greater width of curve because of the increased width of gauge? Yes, we understand that that is so.
47. Are you aware that it is the intention of the Commissioners for Railways to allow the Toronto tramway to connect with the railway at Fassifern? Yes; they have no objection, provided, of course, that their requirements are met.
48. Do you consider that the tramway will be a feeder of the railway? Yes; no doubt it will to an extent.
49. Are you aware whether the Commissioners contemplate using the tramway for the conveyance of passengers to Lake Macquarie? Nothing has been decided; but no doubt arrangements will be made between the Company and the Commissioners to run direct to Lake Macquarie.

50. Speaking generally, you are of opinion that the Commissioners approve of the proposed tramway? Yes; they have no objection to the line.

51. Mr. Creer.] There is no objection to the construction of the tramway as proposed on the plans? No.

52. The Commissioners do not offer any objection? No. Of course the proposal was made by them that the line should be 4 ft. 8 in. gauge, as proposed in this amending Bill. That will suit our rolling-stock.

53. Chairman.] You are fully aware that the alteration was made at the suggestion of the Commissioners themselves? Yes.

54. Are you aware that the Commissioners have already points, &c., at Fassifern Station to connect with the tram-line as widened? Yes, that can be done.

55. The Commissioners have had a copy of this amending Bill? Yes.

56. They have no objection? No.

57. They are altogether favourable to the construction of the tramway, are they not? Yes; they are favourable to its construction.

58. Do you know if Lake Macquarie is a great resort for excursionists in summer time? Yes; I know that it is.

59. A great number of people go there from the northern districts? Yes; and we have run a few trains from Sydney, and found them fairly well patronised.

60. Would not the construction of this tramway facilitate the public reaching the lake? It would very much.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

TUMUT SCHOOL OF ARTS SITE SALE BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 3 SEPTEMBER, 1890.

Present:—

MR. BARNES, | MR. CULLEN,
MR. LAKEMAN.
TRAVERS JONES, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. John Weeden sworn and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are President of the Tumut School of Arts? —
2. You have brought this Bill before Parliament because the old dedicated site was not a suitable one upon which to erect a building? Yes.
3. And you have purchased a new site? Yes, and paid for it.
4. Have you got the grant of the dedicated site? Yes. [Deed produced along with transfer.]
5. Mr. Lakeman.] That is the old site? Yes, and it is partly vested in the new trustees as well.
6. Chairman.] The new site is put in trust already? Yes; the deed is in course of preparation, and I have no doubt it will be in Sydney to-day for registration.
7. Are you aware that Mr. Emanuel refused to sign the petition? Yes, I am.
8. And he has withdrawn that opposition? Yes; he has written me the following letter:—

Mr. J. Weeden,

Dear Sir,

158, Pitt-street, Sydney, 2 September, 1890.

Though I could not resist letting you know my opinion of the Committee of the Tumut Mechanics' Institute in their action towards me, yet from your explanation you at any rate seem not to blame, and as I believe the Bill is, in the interests of the District, one that should be passed, I shall do nothing to prejudice it.

Yours truly,
A. EMANUEL.

Mr.
J. Weeden.
3 Sept., 1890.

9. What was the difference between the committee and Mr. Emanuel? Nothing whatever. The committee thought it desirable that he should not be a new trustee simply because he is a non-resident of the district, and they thought that all the trustees of the new site should be permanent residents of the district.
10. I believe there is a provision in the trust that any trustee not residing for a space of six months in Tumut shall not be liable? I do not know that, but I see by the new Bill that powers are given.
11. Will you state the position in regard to the new site;—what have you paid for it? We have paid £450 for the new site. We have from £280 to £300 in the bank.
12. That is independent of what will be realized by the sale of the old site? Yes.
13. Mr. Barnes.] And your site is paid for? Yes, and we have also partly entered into a contract for a new building, to cost something like £700. The only delay in the matter now is due to the architect in Sydney having to modify the specifications. An elaborate plan was prepared, and the cost of the proposed building came to £900 or £1,000, and we have made a few alterations to bring the cost within our means. I may state that the new site is of far greater value now than when it was bought. It is situated right in the centre of the town.

14.

Mr.
J. Weeden.
3 Sept., 1890.

14. Mr. Cullen.] What is the estimated value of the old site? We have had a promise of £250 for it, but it is probable that it will realise more than that.
15. I notice in clause 2 of the Bill a reference to any proposed mortgage;—did you intend to ask for powers of mortgage? Not for the old site. If the Bill is passed we intend to sell the site; but if you put the question as to whether we should require any powers to mortgage the new site, it is probable we might require some power, because it is a certain fact that we shall not have sufficient money to complete the new building without mortgaging.
16. I don't think that you can do that under the order of leave? I certainly say that we do not intend to mortgage the present site at all; we intend to sell it right out.
17. Mr. Barnes.] If you wish to borrow money to finish your new building it will be borrowed upon your new ground? The Bill, I understand, only deals with the sale of the old site.
18. Mr. Cullen.] You have taken the necessary steps, in accordance with your rules and constitution, to get the approval of the institution for this Bill? Yes. On Tuesday, July 20th, 1889, a resolution was adopted, to the effect that Mr. Jones should be written to, requesting that he would take the necessary steps for the resumption of the lands, granted to the institute, on Telegraph Hill, and to cause the proceeds of the same, when sold, to be devoted to the building fund of the new institute.
19. Chairman.] That was passed at a committee meeting? I think it was at a special meeting of members.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

WAGGA WAGGA CATTLE SALE-YARDS BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 9 JULY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. BARNES,		MR. GORMLY,
MR. COPLAND,		MR. McCOURT,
MR. CURLEY,		MR. PAUL,
	MR. WADDELL.

JAMES GORMLY, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

David Copland, Esq., M.P., sworn, and examined in his place:—

1. Chairman.] You are a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and a resident of Wagga Wagga? Yes.
2. Have you heard any opinion expressed as to the necessity for having municipal cattle sale-yards erected within the borough of Wagga Wagga? There has been much talk on the subject for some considerable time, and the general feeling is that there is a great necessity for the erection of such yards, as it is believed that they will be advantageous to the people of the district in regard to selling cattle and stock.
3. Having looked at the Bill before the Committee, you think it is necessary that the borough council should be allowed "to purchase land within the borough to erect and maintain cattle sale-yards"? Yes.
4. You think that the residents of the town and persons interested in the sale of stock are favourable to the proposal? I believe they are particularly anxious to get public sale-yards, as there has been much trouble in regard to the existing sale-yards—one of them being out of the way, and the other being in the middle of the town. A great many complaints have arisen that there is not one cattle sale-yard in which the stock can be concentrated; and the people saved the trouble of running from one place to the other.
5. Are there a number of overland stock from Queensland and the northern portions of this Colony going through Wagga Wagga for the purpose of being sold? Yes. If Wagga Wagga had proper public cattle sale-yards, I believe it would check a great many cattle from going over to Victoria to be sold; they would be sold in Wagga Wagga.
6. Are there a large number of cattle and sheep salesmen in Wagga Wagga? A good many.
7. Many of the members of these firms are auctioneers? Yes.
8. Are cattle sales held there periodically? Yes; two or three times a month—in fact, I might say almost weekly.
9. You think that there is a great necessity for establishing public sale-yards? I do.
10. Mr. Paul.] The Bill provides for the erection of cattle sale-yards within the borough;—do you think that is desirable? I think there is sufficient land in the borough to enable that to be done; it would not interfere with the town in any way.
11. Does not the Municipalities Act prevent the removal or the reception of cattle within certain hours? I think there is no by-law to that effect in Wagga Wagga.
12. Would it not be a source of danger to the inhabitants to have sales of wild cattle held within the borough? The borough covers a large area. I do not think that it would affect the inhabitants in any way.

D. Copland,
Esq., M.P.
9 July, 1890

- D. Copland,
Esq., M.P.
9 July, 1890.
13. Chairman.] What distance is the eastern boundary of the borough from the centre of the town—from the “Royal George Hotel”—is it 3 miles? About $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles.
14. Does the borough extend on the lower side, down the river, about the same distance? Yes.
15. In the southern direction the borough does not extend so far from the centre of population? No.
16. Your property is situated on the border of the borough? Yes. I should think that the boundary of the borough in that direction would be $1\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the centre of the town, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles in other directions.
17. There is plenty of vacant land on the north side, where there are few inhabitants located? Yes.
18. Half of the land embraced within the borough is situated on the northern side? Yes; there are very few people living on that side.
19. So that the borough would be about 5 miles square? I should think it would. I think that there is ample room for cattle sale-yards within the borough.
20. Mr. Paul.] Have you any idea whether the borough council has any particular site in view for the erection of municipal cattle sale-yards? I have not heard.
21. Do you think the ratepayers are willing to have wild cattle driven to cattle sale-yards within the borough? I do not think it would interfere with them in any way, as the cattle could be taken round the town without going through the town.
22. Chairman.] The existing cattle sale-yards are very near the centre of the town, or adjoin the populous portion of the town? They immediately adjoin.
23. A suitable site could be procured within the borough at a greater distance from the centre of population than the site of the existing yards? Yes. The existing yards are within a stone's throw of the centre of the town. I suppose they are a quarter of a mile from the centre.
24. Mr. McCourt.] Don't you think it would be better that the borough council should also ask for power to erect cattle sale-yards outside the borough, as otherwise owners of land within the borough might be disposed to put up the price? I think so. I am informed by Mr. Hayes, one of the Members for the Hume, that the Albury cattle sale-yards are working admirably.

Alexander Thorley Bolton called in, sworn, and examined:—

- A. T. Bolton.
9 July, 1890.
25. Chairman.] You are a stock and station agent, residing at Wagga Wagga? Yes.
26. I think you have cattle sale-yards at Wagga Wagga? Yes.
27. Have they been erected long? About six years, I think.
28. You use the yards in connection with cattle sales? Yes.
29. And you put stock in which are not sold by auction, but are sold privately? Yes.
30. Do any other stock and station agents use your yards? Yes. I have an understanding with three firms that in consideration of their paying me so much per annum for the privilege of selling in my yards they shall enjoy exactly the same privileges in that respect as I do; but they have no privilege other than that of selling.
31. Have you seen a copy of the Bill before the Committee? I have.
32. Have you considered its provisions? Yes.
33. The Committee are desirous of hearing your opinion as to the necessity for introducing the Bill, and as to whether you think any of its clauses are desirable or undesirable? My private opinion is that the population would be better without erecting public sale-yards in the way suggested. I admit at once that I appear before the Committee as an absolutely prejudiced person in that respect, being the owner of cattle sale-yards myself. I think that the tendency would be for the cattle to pass on if the fees payable were heavy. I wish distinctly to say that opinion may or not be absolutely prejudiced on my part. I have no objection to the Bill beyond this objection, that in the Bathurst Cattle Sale-yards Act, as well as in the Albury Cattle Sale-yards Act, the following provision is made in regard to vested interests:—“Provided that the fees or charges levied upon cattle brought to other sale-yards shall not exceed those levied upon cattle yarded in or brought to the sale-yards established under this Act. Provided further, that the said Council shall have only the power to levy one-half the same rates and charges which are chargeable in the municipal sale-yards for a period of six years from the passing of this Act, but thereafter the said Council shall have power to levy the full rates and charges as aforesaid for or in respect of any yards or premises situated within the aforesaid limits which shall before the commencement of this Act have been established, and which are now being used for the bonâ fide purpose of holding sales of cattle thereat; but the said privilege of paying only such half-rates and charges as aforesaid shall not extend to any proprietor of any such last-mentioned yards or premises, unless he shall within one month after the date of the passing of this Act have given notice to the Council by writing under his hand that he claims the said privilege; but such privilege shall absolutely cease and determine if at any time after the date of the passing of this Act no sale of cattle shall have taken place at such yards or premises for a continuous period of six calendar months.” In view of the fact that my yards have cost more money than did the Albury sale-yards, I think that I am entitled at least to the same consideration as the proprietors of the Albury sale-yards received.
34. Mr. Paul.] Are your sale-yards erected within the borough? Yes.
35. Are you aware that the yards referred to in the Bathurst Act were erected outside the borough? No.
36. Don't you think there is great danger in having public cattle sale-yards within a borough? No, more especially so in this instance, because my yards are approachable from Government land that is gazetted as a camping-ground, and because they front a main road, which is purposely left as a “draft-away” for stock. All the stock going away from the north to the south—that is, from Queensland to Victoria—must pass the gate of my yards.
37. Under the Municipalities Act, can you not be prevented from taking in or sending out cattle during certain hours? I think not; at any rate, as regards all the cattle that go via Wagga Wagga, it is an absolute necessity they should pass the gate of my yards.
38. Chairman.] Is that caused by the stock having to cross the bridge? It is caused by stock having to cross the bridge or to cross the ford below the bridge, and the land approaching that ford is gazetted as a public camping-ground.
39. Mr. Paul.] As the proprietor of cattle sale-yards, would you be quite satisfied with the concession made in the Bathurst Act? Well, my yards have cost me a great deal of money. I built them at a time when other people would not accept the responsibility. I suppose that, like other people, I want all I can get, but, at the same time, I have no desire to be unreasonable.

A. T. Bolton.

40. You would be satisfied if you could get that concession? I will be satisfied.
41. Mr. McCourt.] Is there any likelihood of the Borough Council buying your yards—the site of your yards is the best site, I suppose? The Mayor and two aldermen waited upon me once to ascertain if I would sell my yards, and they rather apologized for waiting upon me. I told them that I had only four things which were not for sale, namely, three children and a wife, and that I was perfectly willing to sell my yards.
42. Is your land the best site within the borough for the municipal yards? Yes, it is generally acknowledged to be so. Mr. Copland has an intimate knowledge of the matter.
43. The Bill provides only for the construction of cattle sale-yards within the borough;—do you think it would be better to give the Borough Council power to construct sale-yards either within or adjacent to the borough, for a better site may be found adjoining the borough? I do not think so.
44. Do you think that such power ought to be given in the Bill? I do not.
45. Don't you think that they would be able to buy a site within the borough at a lower figure if they also possessed the power to buy a site outside the borough? As far as the question of site is considered they might be able to buy a site more cheaply, but the drawback to that matter would be that the people who come into town on certain days, and have business to do in the town, could not afford the time to go any distance away, and in order to obtain a suitable site outside the borough the Council would have to go some considerable distance. Another feature is that to a moderately correct extent the borough is divided into two parts by the Murrumbidgee River. So that if you were to remove the cattle sale-yards to the northward they would be too far away from the main population in the south; while, on the other hand, if you were to remove them too far to the southward they would be too far away to suit the convenience of the people living in the north. Then again there are only a few suitable sites within the borough. I think that either my land or the land adjoining is the best for the purpose.
46. The Borough Council would be compelled to buy either your land or another piece of land in the town? Yes; but this land, though it is quite adjacent to the town, must be looked upon rather as suburban land. As regards the land which is occupied by my sale-yards, I had occasion a short time ago to apply to the Government for the purchase of some unnecessary roads, and at that time the local Land Board valued my land at £25 per acre.
47. Mr. Paul.] How many acres? They valued just the road—some 5 or 6 acres.
48. Do you think that the erection of municipal cattle sale-yards would be to the public interest? I don't think it would; I think that the population would be better without the tax; I hardly like making that remark because it has the appearance of being dictated by self-interest.
49. Is there any monopoly in connection with the present cattle sale-yards;—do the owners of those yards ever prevent cattle from coming in for sale by allowing any owner to engage the yards either days or weeks ahead, for the sale of his own cattle, to the exclusion of all other cattle? No; the only yards that are within the borough, except my own, are quite inadequate for anything like the number of stock coming in. They are in the most dilapidated condition at the present moment. I fancy that pending the passing of this Bill they have not done anything to keep them in repair, and, as a matter of fact, they are falling down. My yards are in a perfectly good state of preservation, and capable of drafting and yarding 2,000 head of cattle in a day, which, as my friend Mr. Copland knows, I did on one occasion. I have, of course, a certain amount of monopoly in this respect, that the other auctioneers cannot sell in my yards without paying me, and in that regard they enjoy the same privileges as I do. At one time, when there was some little talk about the sale-yards, I made this offer to the other auctioneers: That I would put my yards under a committee of management, and take my chance of being elected a member of that committee, if they would pay me whatever fee the committee might think fair, but the objection was taken that I would then have the privilege of selling without charging for yard dues. I met that objection by saying that I would lodge any substantial cash deposit they might wish as a guarantee that I would charge the same dues as they did, and take my chance of being elected on the committee. In other words, I put every auctioneer in the district in the same position as myself. I offered to hand over my yards to a committee of management, exacting only such yard fees as their own committee might fix, but my offer was not accepted.
50. In regard to the Bathurst Cattle Sale-yards Bill, it was stated in the evidence that stockowners were in the habit of engaging the sale-yards for weeks in advance, to the complete exclusion of all other stockowners;—has anything of that kind ever occurred in connection with the Wagga Wagga sale-yards? No; on the contrary, they have not engaged my yards half enough. As a matter of fact I am under an engagement with these other men. It is, that upon certain payments they shall enjoy the same privileges as I do of selling on Saturdays; and that, in regard to other days, upon giving four days' notice any firm can monopolize the yards for one day, and one day only.
51. Mr. McCourt.] Is your engagement for a term of years? As a matter of fact the time has expired. As a matter of mutual confidence we have let it run on.
52. Then they are free to sell in any other sale-yards? Yes. There was an understanding, however, that the arrangement should cease in the event of public sale-yards being erected.
53. Mr. Waddell.] Do your yards afford sufficient accommodation for all the stock brought into the town for sale? They afford far and away more accommodation than would be required.
54. Chairman.] Have you any other evidence to give? No. I should like to state that I am here to-day purely by accident. I really think that I am entitled to the same amount of consideration that other people have received. I do not wish to put forward my views in any aggressive spirit, but I would suggest to the Committee that as a matter of fair dealing I am deserving of equal consideration.

WEDNESDAY, 13 AUGUST, 1890.

Present:—

Mr. BARNES,

Mr. LAKEMAN,

Mr. McCOURT.

JAMES GORMLY, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

John Jeremy sworn and examined:—

- J. Jeremy. 55. Chairman.] Are you an alderman of the Borough Council of Wagga Wagga? Yes.
- 13 Aug., 1890. 56. Have you been requested by the Mayor and Council to attend here to give evidence respecting this Bill? Yes.
57. Are you a stock and station agent at Wagga Wagga? Yes; I am one of the firm of Thompson, Manning, and Jeremy. I am the auctioneer. I conduct auction sales for the firm every Saturday in the pastoral yards at Wagga Wagga.
58. Are those yards situated in the centre of the town? Yes.
59. Are they situated in such a place that it would not be advisable to continue their use for large drafts of cattle, horses, or sheep? Yes. In the first place, the pastoral yards are not large enough;—you cannot sell there more than 100 head of cattle, 40 horses, and 1,000 sheep. It would be dangerous to have large mobs of cattle going to the pastoral yards for sale.
60. In approaching these yards, have the cattle to go through some of the main streets of the town? Yes; but as a rule only milkers, horses, and small lots of sheep are driven there. We could not sell any wild cattle or large mobs of Queensland cattle there.
61. Is Wagga Wagga situated on one of the main travelling stock routes from Queensland and the northern districts of New South Wales for the Melbourne market? Yes; and the stock route goes right through the borough.
62. Will there be any danger to the residents of the town by establishing yards within the borough? Not the slightest.
63. Is there a large quantity of land within the municipal boundaries not built upon? Yes. There is a large quantity both north and south where there is land suitable for the erection of yards, and it would not be at all dangerous to have yards erected on that land.
64. Is the Borough of Wagga Wagga 5 or 6 miles long by 5 or 6 miles wide? Yes, about that.
65. Is the town moderately compact? It is a very compact town from the railway-station down to the bridge, and it does not spread out much east or west.
66. Have the mayor and aldermen requested you to attend before this Committee to show the necessity for having cattle sale-yards in Wagga Wagga, and are you prepared to give any reasons for taking that course? We think that the proposed yards are a public necessity, and on the 16th April, 1886, a petition was sent to the Borough Council in favour of the erection of cattle sale-yards, and that petition was signed by all the principal business people in the town.
67. Are there a number of stock and station agents in Wagga Wagga who hold auction sales of stock? Yes; there are about eleven firms in Wagga Wagga who hold auction sales of stock—that is to say, that there are about twenty-three or twenty-four individuals who are engaged in that business.
68. Do those firms hold auction sales at intervals? Every Saturday at least four or five firms hold auction sales in the pastoral yards. In the yards owned by Mr. Bolton three other auctioneers have the privilege of selling. I think they pay Mr. Bolton £30 a year each for the right of selling there; but there is a proviso that if they sell in any other yards they will be ostracized—they will not be allowed to sell in Mr. Bolton's yards again. We find that the public prefer selling their stock in the pastoral yards. They do not care about going down to Bolton's yards. If we went to Bolton's yards and paid a fee there we would not then have the privilege of selling in the yards where the public want us to conduct their sales.
69. Are you of opinion that if there were municipal cattle sale-yards at Wagga Wagga the sales there by auction and otherwise would be increased? Yes; I feel perfectly satisfied that that would be the case.
70. Do you think that there is a pressing necessity for having new yards erected? Yes, immediately. I have had to refuse three different lots of cattle of 1,000 head each simply because we had not the accommodation for selling, and they went somewhere else. I asked Mr. Bolton for permission to sell in his yards, and he said he would let me know by writing me a note. Two or three days afterwards he wrote, after the cattle had come, stating that he was sorry he could not let me sell there, and so the cattle passed by. In another instance I had 700 head of cattle from Queensland, and I asked for permission to sell at Mr. Bolton's yards. He said he would write me a note, and at the last moment I found he could not give me the accommodation. Then I had to write to the Railway Commissioners for permission to sell in the railway trucking-yards, because the cattle had to be sold in Wagga Wagga. The permission was granted upon payment of 6d. per head. I sold the cattle there, but the railway trucking-yards are not at all suitable for selling cattle, because you cannot class them. I produce returns showing the stock sold in the Borough of Wagga Wagga during the last twelve months. The totals are,—1,584 horses, 4,963 head of cattle, 23,704 sheep. Out of these totals, 38 horses, 1,189 cattle, and 5,000 sheep were sold in Mr. Bolton's yards by the three auctioneers who sell there. Mr. Bolton would not give me a return of the number which he sold himself, and of course he is quite right; but I may say that his yards are not in favour with the public, and very few sales have been held in Bolton's yards lately.
71. Mr. Lakeman.] Where are Bolton's yards situated? Across the bridge, where the old show-ground was situated, on the south side. Another great reason why we should have the proposed yards is that, from 17th April, 1889, to 18th April, 1890, inclusive, it is estimated that 23,000 cattle passed through Wagga Wagga for Wodonga and Albury for sale, and also 82,000 sheep. The year previously 150,000 sheep and 25,000 head of cattle passed through. We are of opinion that if we had any proper accommodation for selling large mobs of cattle or sheep in Wagga Wagga we could sell a large portion of the cattle and sheep which now go through.
72. Mr. Barnes.] Are Bolton's yards big enough? Yes.
73. Are the public in favour of buying those yards? They are not, as far as my experience goes.
74. Do you think a more suitable position round Wagga Wagga could be obtained for the yards? Yes; inside the borough. I think a more suitable position could be obtained near the railway, where we could untruck the stock for sale and truck them again.

75. Would the cattle have to go through the town to get to the yards you suggest? The stock route goes through the town, but the stock do not go through the populated part of the town. J. Jeremy.
76. Is there plenty of room for going through the town where you propose your yards should be? Yes. 13 Aug., 1890.
77. Chairman.] Does all the travelling stock which go through Wagga Wagga go through the borough? Yes; they come in from Junee, Gundagai, and all other places on their way to Albury and Wodonga.
78. Mr. McCourt.] Should not provision be made in the Bill to protect private interests;—seeing that this Bill, as soon as it is passed, will impose dues upon the sale of cattle, will that be just to those who own sale-yards at present? Yes; because the yards in existence at present are not in favour. Bolton's yards are not in favour, and the pastoral yards are not large enough. I do not think any injustice will be done, and up to the present I think the public have suffered a great injustice.
79. What do you think is the value of the pastoral yards? The auctioneers have had lately to spend £20 in putting those yards in order. They are in a very dilapidated state. That was done by the auctioneers, and not by the landlord.
80. What are those yards worth? I do not think they are worth more than £100.
81. What are Bolton's yards worth? I should think the improvements there are worth £700 or £800—that is the material alone—and I am not referring to the value of the land.
82. Do you not think that his vested interests require some protection in the Bill? He has had the yards for four or five years, and he has been getting a certain amount of rent from other auctioneers for them.
83. In other Cattle Sale-yards Bills which have been passed there is a provision that the municipal council should only have power to levy on other sale-yards one-half of the rates charged in the municipal sale-yards for a period of five years after the passing of the Act;—do you not think that that would be a fair provision to insert in this Bill with regard to private sale-yards in Wagga Wagga? No. I think if compensation is to be given at all it should be given in the shape of a lump sum right out. I do not say that any compensation should be given. I think the suggested provision would be wrong, because it would put the auctioneers who did not use the private yards in a bad position.
84. Mr. Lakeman.] In the case of the Albury Sale-yards Bill, Mr. Griffiths, like Mr. Bolton, made out a case before the Parliamentary Committee. He said that if it had not been for his yards the stock sales would never have been so large at Albury, and the Committee agreed that only half-fees should be charged in the case of private yards for five years. Do you think that should be done here? No; because in this instance business has not been encouraged by Bolton's yards. They are used, but only by a few auctioneers, and there are ten or eleven auctioneers who cannot do any business there.
85. If you say that no business would be done in Bolton's yards, what harm would there be done by allowing them to sell for half-rates for a few years? Because he would be placed in a better position than the other auctioneers.
86. Chairman.] Have you any further evidence to give in favour of the Bill? The population of the district of Wagga Wagga is about 10,000. The country along the river flats is particularly suitable for depasturing cattle, and if the graziers there want to buy stock they have either to buy privately, or they have to go to Albury, Wodonga, Goulburn, or some other place.
87. Are you aware, from your own knowledge, that the municipal yards at Albury have been a success, and that they have been the means of increasing the number of stock sold there? Yes, to an enormous extent. The yards have only been erected three years, and the dues collected have paid for the cost of the yards. It is very hard that we should have to let all the stock pass through Wagga Wagga to be sold in Victoria. Most of the stock goes to Wodonga, and is sold there simply because we have not yards at Wagga Wagga.
88. Are you of opinion that the number of persons who come in to do business in Wagga Wagga on Saturdays has very much increased during the last few years? Yes; there is no doubt about that.
89. Do they come to buy and sell stock? Yes. I know my sales are increasing every week. I have only been in business in Wagga Wagga for two years, and I have a splendid auction business, as far as it goes, but I cannot put up a sufficient number of stock for want of accommodation. I have already mentioned three instances where I have refused to sell stock for want of accommodation, and in another instance Mr. George Mulholland wanted me to sell 800 head of cattle, and I applied for permission to sell them in Bolton's yard, but at the last moment he refused permission, and I had to send the cattle home again.
90. Mr. Lakeman.] Has Mr. Bolton, through the erection of his yards, established a business that would not have existed otherwise, and as he met a public want? No; simply because he will not allow other auctioneers to sell in his yards. The privilege of selling there is limited to three.
91. Mr. McCourt.] Mr. Bolton, in his evidence before the Committee, said, "I have of course a certain amount of monopoly in this respect, that the other auctioneers cannot sell in my yards without paying me, and in that regard they enjoy the same privileges as I do. At one time, when there was some little talk about the sale-yards, I made this offer to the other auctioneers: That I would put my yards under a committee of management, and take my chance of being elected a member of that committee, if they would pay me whatever fee the committee might think fair, but the objection was taken that I would then have the privilege of selling without charging for yard dues. I met that objection by saying that I would lodge any substantial cash deposit they might wish as a guarantee that I would charge the same dues as they did, and take my chance of being elected on the committee. In other words, I put every auctioneer in the district in the same position as myself. I offered to hand over my yards to a committee of management, exacting only such yard fees as their own committee might fix, but my offer was not accepted." Do you not think that was fair? That did not take place during my time. It did not come within my knowledge, and we cannot do that now.
92. Does he not seem to have acted very fairly, according to that statement? I have offered to pay him so much per head for selling cattle, but he would not accept it.
93. Are you not aware of his having made the offer stated in his evidence? I have heard something about it, but another alderman puts it in another light altogether. He says Mr. Bolton wanted the yards to be specially called "Bolton's Yards," and there was a dispute about it. The matter was not fixed up at all.
94. Are you still of opinion that Mr. Bolton is not entitled to any consideration? Yes; simply because he has not satisfied a public want. Personally, Mr. Bolton is a friend of mine, and I have nothing to say against him. He is a straightforward, fair-dealing man, but he is looking after his own interests.

- J. Jeremy.
13 Aug., 1890.
95. Mr. Lakeman.] Do you swear that you cannot come to the arrangement described by Mr. Bolton now? Yes; I asked for the use of his yards, and offered to pay him, but he declined, and so have others.
96. Mr. McCourt.] But was not that for a special purpose? Yes. I suppose he refused because we will not go into the compact to sell only in his yards. It is not fair that we should be limited to one place. It would not suit me to enter into that arrangement, because the public will not go to Bolton's yards.
97. Mr. Lakeman.] Why not? I suppose simply because they are a little bit out of town. The yards just now are in a very bad state.
98. Chairman.] Are the pastoral yards in the best situation for small lots? Yes; they are right in the middle of the town. We sell in the morning, and Bolton sells in the afternoon.
99. Mr. McCourt.] Do you sell more cattle than Bolton does? Yes; I sell seventy, eighty, or a hundred head every week.
100. Chairman.] The chief necessity is to provide yards for the sale of a large number of stock? Yes. The return for my firm for thirteen months is 479 horses, 1,771 head of cattle, and 10,000 sheep.
101. Mr. Lakeman.] Mr. Bolton, in his evidence, says:—"Is your land the best site in the borough for municipal yards? Yes; it is generally acknowledged to be so." Do you agree with that statement? No; I think it would be better to have a site near the railway. I do not think Bolton's is the best site. Bolton's yards are ankle deep in mud in wet weather.
102. Mr. McCourt.] I suppose you do not sell much more than Mr. Bolton? I cannot tell what Mr. Bolton's returns are. He can sell large lines, whereas I can only sell small lots owing to the capacity of the yard.
103. Still, sales are held at Bolton's yards? They go there, but not in large numbers.

R. B. Wilkinson, Esq., M.P., sworn, and examined:—

- R. B. Wilkinson,
Esq., M.P.
13 Aug., 1890.
104. Chairman.] Does your firm carry on business in Wagga Wagga? Yes; the firm is Wilkinson, Lavender, and Chapman.
105. Are you of opinion that it is necessary that the Municipal Council of Wagga Wagga should have authority to erect cattle sale-yards? I think it would be a very great advantage to the place if there were municipal yards there.
106. Do you know the character of existing yards? No, except that I have seen them.
107. Has it come under your notice that sufficient accommodation is not provided for the sale by auction of a large number of stock? From my own personal knowledge I cannot say, but from the reports of our manager there I think the accommodation is not sufficient at the present time, because if they had larger yards, and public yards, more stock would be induced to go there, and there would be a larger sale for stock travelling down towards Wodonga. Instead of going on as they do now to Wodonga, they would be first of all tried at Wagga Wagga.
108. Has your firm a large number of stock travelling through Wagga Wagga for sale? Yes.
109. Is Wagga Wagga situated on one of the main travelling stock routes from Queensland to the southern districts and Victoria? Most of the cattle sold at Wodonga come through Wagga Wagga from Queensland and the northern districts.
110. Is there a large number of stock in the Wagga Wagga district? Yes.
111. Are there a great many cattle on the river flats, where the country is not suitable for sheep? Yes; there are a great many paddocks about for fattening, and there are a large number of selectors. If there were public yards at Wagga Wagga people would be induced to send cattle there for sale by auction in small lots, and the cattle would be distributed by that means among the various selectors and landholders who are not able to take a big mob of cattle where they have grazing-farms along the Murrumbidgee flats.
112. Mr. McCourt.] What yards do your firm sell in? Not in any for some time. We generally sell privately. If we had yards there available for the public at all times we would often try to sell cattle by auction that we now send on to Wodonga.
113. Chairman.] Then large mobs of cattle going through the country, which are in the hands of your firm for sale, cannot be conveniently offered for sale at Wagga Wagga for want of public sale-yards? That is one of the reasons why we have never offered any there.
114. They are offered at Albury and Wodonga? Yes. We have two lots of cattle coming down now which I believe we would offer for sale at Wagga Wagga if there were municipal yards there. As it is, they will go on to Wodonga.
115. Does your firm do a large business in that district? Yes; ours is the oldest firm in the district.
116. Mr. Barnes.] Do you know the situation of Bolton's yards? Yes. I have been told by our manager that they are not convenient, and that they are not used. They would be suitable if the ground was better. They are on a flat, and they are cut up tremendously. Otherwise I should say that they are conveniently situated.
117. Do you think that sites are to be obtained within the boundaries of Wagga Wagga which would be equally as good as the existing yards? Yes.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

WILLOUGHBY AND GORDON TRAMWAY ACT AMEND-MENT BILL.

THURSDAY, 15 MAY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. BURNS, | MR. H. CLARKE.
MR. CULLEN IN THE CHAIR.

W. H. Moseley, Esq. (of the firm of W. W. Billyard, Andrews, and Moseley), appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

Gerard Phillips called in and examined:—

1. Chairman.] Where do you reside? I am Mayor of St. Leonards.
2. You have had before you a copy of a Bill to amend the Willoughby and Gordon Tramway Act of 1887? Yes.
3. Are you in a position to give us the opinion of your Council with regard to that Bill? The matter has been left in my hands. At my request it was referred to the By-laws Committee who were to have held a meeting last Tuesday, but the Council Clerk misunderstood a telephone message that I sent to him about another matter, and did not call a meeting of the By-laws Committee for that day. Then I instructed him to call a meeting of the By-laws Committee for to-day, and that was done, but after that had happened the ex-Mayor, Mr. Punch, and other members of the Committee said that they must go to the boatrace, and therefore it was impossible for a quorum to meet, but they requested me to attend this Select Committee and to give my views, in which they generally concur, in relation to this Bill.
4. In the main you believe there will be no objection on the part of your Council to the Bill? No, not at all, provided certain alterations are made which I shall have the honor to suggest directly.
5. Will you be good enough to mention such alterations? I might premise that there are certain proposed amendments to this Bill which I shall suggest entirely in the interests of the Municipality which I represent, but there are also some items in the Bill which, as a resident of the district, and a man having some knowledge of these matters, I should certainly advise the Committee to consider, for I think that possibly without the least intention on the part of the promoters of the Bill, injustices might occur, or difficulties might be thrown in the way of innocent persons in obtaining compensation. You will find when you read the Schedule of the Bill that this tramway does not go along our Municipal Council's roads, following them in a lateral direction, but crosses them at right angles, and consequently the drainage would be impeded. Therefore, it is absolutely necessary that provisions similar to those inserted in the Bill in relation to lands of private individuals which are crossed by the tramway, should be made applicable to the roads. We must take care that the Tramway Company should so arrange that the gutters shall not be stopped up and the flow of water prevented. I suggest that the words "streets or roads" should be inserted in those parts of clause 3 dealing with the liability of the company in respect of private lands through which the tram passes—that those words be added so as to cover any injury to Municipal streets. I also suggest that in the clause there should be a provision compelling the Company to restore the roads to as good a condition as they were in before being interfered with by the tramway.

G. Phillips.
15 May, 1890.

G. Phillips. 6. I presume that what you mean is that the saving clause with regard to lands crossed should also apply to streets and roads? Quite so—that is it. The features of the country there are very difficult, and on the route originally authorized the Company find great engineering difficulties in the way of making the tramway, and they therefore want to vary the direction in which it shall go. Clause 14 is a compensatory clause providing that in case of dispute between the parties, and on the matter being referred to arbitration if the arbitrators shall make an award amounting to one-fourth less than the amount the Company has offered to the claimant, in that case the claimant shall be compelled to pay all the costs of the arbitration. There the provision stops, but I say that there is just as much danger of the Company offering a great deal less than it ought to give to the persons whose property it takes, as there is danger of the person claiming asking more than the property is worth, and therefore I think that that clause should be made applicable to each party, so that if the Company offered to the claimant one fourth less than the amount the arbitrators award, the Company should then pay all the costs of the arbitration and of the award.

15 May, 1890.

7. You mean leave this as it is, but make the same provision apply to the Company as to claimants for compensation? Yes. In clause 18, I think, there should be inserted the words "or to the Municipal Council," otherwise the Company might damage the road in fifty places and not restore them. Speaking now not as a member of the Council but as one of the general public, I would suggest, in reference to clauses 20 to 25 inclusive, that some amendments are required. Those clauses relate to properties which have no ostensible owners—that is to say cases in which there is nobody in the Colony who can give a proper title to the land, or who can give a clean receipt for any amount of compensation that may be fixed. I object first of all to the appointment of a surveyor to value. Secondly, clause 21 says that the said surveyor may be appointed by two justices. I object to that. I say that the appointment should be made by a Court of Petty Sessions. Without wishing to be thought disrespectful to the magistrates as a body, of whom I myself am one, I would point out that unfortunately it does sometimes happen that people may be got who will do very discreditable things. I do not think it possible that the Company would be guilty of any fraud or act unjustly or unkindly, but it is not right that the clause should be left in such a way that there would be an opening for fraud. The valuator might have to determine the value of property belonging to persons absent from the Colony who could not defend their own rights, and I think that the person to be appointed should be a sworn valuator under the Real Property Act. Then I think the notice to be given under clauses 27 and 28 is not sufficient. It says that the notice must be left at the last known residence of the person concerned, and that should he be absent or not be discoverable the notice should be fixed on the land itself. I think the notice should be published in the Government Gazette and in the local newspapers, in the same way as under the Land for Public Purposes Acquisition Act and the Railway Act. The only other matter I have to speak about on behalf of the Council is this: We object to the commencement of the tramway being at the present terminal point of the North Shore cable tramway, which we know is at Ridge-street. Whether the Government do it or not the tramway must ultimately go along the Military Road towards the Heads and Manly, even if a private company has to do it, and probably we shall be able to form a Company if the Government does not take the work in hand, and therefore I think that the commencing point of this Company's tramway should be at Falcon-street, or not further south than Falcon-street.

8. Mr. Burns.] You have no objection on your own account or on behalf of the Council to the principles of the Bill? Not the least. We think the tramway would be a public convenience.

9. Chairman.] You believe it would be for the benefit of the district if the powers sought under this Bill were given? I do. I think the Company should be encouraged in every possible way, proper precautions being taken to guard the interests of the public and of the Municipal Council.

James Edmund Fitzgerald Coyle, called in, and examined:—

J. E. F.
Coyle.
15 May, 1890.

10. Chairman.] Where do you reside? St. Leonards.

11. You are engineer for the North Sydney Investment and Tramway Company? Yes.

12. You are aware that the Company has introduced a Bill to amend the Willoughby and Gordon Tramway Act of 1887? Yes.

13. Are you acquainted with the main provisions of the Bill? I have read it.

14. Can you give us in the first place information as to what the Company has already done under their Act? The Company has entered into contracts to the extent of, as near as I can arrive at it, £40,000; of these contracts an amount of £23,639 has been paid.

15. What do those contracts cover? The principal one is for the bridge over Long Bay.

16. How does that bridge stand at present;—how far has it been constructed? It is let in four contracts. Of the first contract about one-third is completed; that is the masonry contract. Nos. 2 and 3 contracts which were for the supply of cables and steel work are completed, and the material is on the ground. There may be some one or two cables perhaps not yet on the ground, which were landed quite recently, but practically the whole of the material is on the ground.

17. What has been done towards the construction of the tram line? About $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile of a single line has been laid down.

18. You are aware that the time within which the contracts were to be completed is nearly up? I believe it will be up in July next.

19. Could you give the Committee any explanation as to why the works are not further advanced? The contracts were let about the 13th May last year and ample time was given for the completion of the bridge before the time mentioned in the Act, but certain circumstances have occurred which have tended to throw back the construction of the work.

20. You mean circumstances which the directors could not control? Yes. The first contractor for No. 1 contract—for masonry—abandoned his contract, and four months were lost in consequence of his doing so. Immediately afterwards a contract was again let, but very unfavourable weather was met with, and there was also extreme difficulty in providing stone of a suitable quality for the towers. Both those difficulties have now been overcome, and the work is proceeding in a satisfactory manner.

21. Do you know any reason why the Company should not complete everything within the next three years, the time asked for in this present Bill? No, there is no reason why it should not be completed in much less than half that time. The only thing that keeps the work back is the bridge. As far as concerns concerns the tramway itself, seven months would be sufficient in which to construct it, but of course the bridge is the crucial part of the work, and it would be useless to lay down the tramway until such time as it could be made available for traffic.

22. The bridge is really a large undertaking? Yes, amounting, practically, to £40,000.

23. Is there anything else you wish to say to the Committee as the engineer for the Company? Nothing further, except the necessity for the alteration of the line.

24. The deviations? Yes. The first line—that is, the line for which the first bill was passed—was not available for any class of traffic except cable traction; the grades were of such a character, in fact, that it was valueless. I made a careful examination of it, and I also made the necessary deviations in order to bring the whole of the grades well within workable limits. The ruling grade of the line now is 1 in 23, which, for electric traffic, horse traffic, or steam traffic, is a fairly good grade. It is not as good as could be desired, but it is fairly good. The ruling grade of tramways here is 1 in 17, I believe; so it is better than the grade on the tramways of Sydney. Certain branches have been added to the line authorized by the original Bill, and they will give much greater accommodation to the district than would have been the case under that Bill. Altogether the present scheme is a workable one, and one which I think will be satisfactory to people generally as well as to the Company. From an engineering point of view the line will be a very good one; whereas the former line was, I might say, an unworkable line. In addition to that, the cost of the bridge would have been fully 30 per cent. more than it will be, by reason of the much wider cross-section of the site.

25. You have had considerable experience in engineering in this Colony? Not so much in this Colony as in the other colonies. I have been all through the Public Works policy, the construction of railways, in New Zealand, and different works there, from the commencement to the finishing of them.

26. I understand that at present you are preparing information for Sir John Coode in connection with the Wollongong Harbour Trust? Yes.

27. Is there anything else you wish to say? There is nothing further.

David Wilson, called in and examined:—

28. Chairman.] Where do you reside? Milson's Point.

29. You are a director of the North Sydney Investment and Tramway Company? I am.

30. Are you in a position to speak on behalf of the Company to day? Yes, I presume so.

31. You are supposed to represent the Company? Yes.

32. Your Company is possessed of some 1,000 acres of land in the parish of Willoughby? Yes.

33. And the original promoters of the Willoughby and Gordon Tramway Bill have assigned and transferred to your Company the powers under that Bill? They have.

34. Under the authority of your Act—the Willoughby and Gordon Tramway Act—you have already carried out part of the works authorised by that Act? We have.

35. What parts have you carried out? From the terminus of the Government Tramway down to within sight of Long Bay—as far as we could go before the bridge is completed.

36. You have constructed the tramway line from the terminus of the Government line to Amherst-street? Yes.

37. And your bridge over Long Bay is in course of construction? Yes.

38. You found it inexpedient to go on with the construction of the line on the grades and levels originally proposed? Yes.

39. And you are asking under this Bill for powers of deviation? Yes.

40. Do you find this absolutely necessary? Yes. I might say that to avoid some of these things, on this side we have purchased a large quantity of land; hoping to do without this Bill. We have spent perhaps £1,000 in buying land.

41. Hoping that you might secure your deviations within your own land? Yes, but we find after spending all this money that we have to come to Parliament.

42. About what date does the time allowed in your Act for the completion of your work expire? The middle of July—the 16th or 19th of July next.

43. It is of course impossible to complete the work within that time? Impossible.

44. Many of the causes of delay have been beyond your control? Yes.

45. And you find it absolutely necessary to get an extension of time? Yes.

46. With regard to the powers asked for to construct branch lines, those proposed lines will be largely within the land of the Company? Yes.

47. At the same time they will be a convenience to other owners of property and to the district generally? Yes.

48. You believe that the construction of those branch lines would also make your tramway system much more complete? Yes.

49. And of greater benefit to the district? Much greater benefit.

50. Do you happen to know of any objection by the people of the district to the granting of the powers for which you are asking? No, no objection at all. A number of residents up there are continually asking "When is the bridge to be finished; when are you going to continue the Tramway?" Of course it is impossible to continue the tramway until the bridge is finished.

51. Is there anything further you wish to add? Had the weather been seasonable we consider that the bridge would have been finished long ago. The contracts were let to first-class people. One contract was let to Johnson, of Angus & Co., at a higher price than other people who were tendering for it wanted. He was chosen as being a good man to push it along quickly. His time for its completion expired long ago. The time for the completion of all the contracts to make the bridge expired long ago. Had the construction of the bridge been carried on as rapidly as we anticipated, the tramway would have been pretty well on its way now. It is no use making the tramway without having a connecting point. Had it not been for that, as far as time goes we could have had the thing completed. The time granted originally I think was ample. In making the bridge difficulties were met with which were not anticipated. As Johnson himself said, he thought that sovereigns could do anything. He asked the men to work two shifts but the Union came in and said, "It's against the rules; there must be only one shift," which simply means doubling the time. He will lose money over it and is quite willing to do so so long as he can push the thing through. He wants to be done with it.

52. A previous witness has raised a point that has been much talked about in the district—that the Company should relinquish to the Government that part of the line between Falcon-street and Ridge-street, the present terminus of the Government Tramway. If such an amendment were put in the Bill would your directors resist it or not? They would not resist it. They can scarcely volunteer to give it away because they have pledged it, so to speak, in the shape of security for debentures but they will not resist.
53. It would not seriously affect your project? No, it would not seriously affect the project. Of course we consider that that is the most paying part of the line—we consider that that would be taking away the cream of the traffic. Thence to the bridge is where the population at present is, and that would be taking away the means of earning.
54. What is the distance between Ridge-street and Falcon-street? I think about a quarter of a mile.
55. Mr. Burns.] What is the capital of your Company? £500,000.
56. How much is paid up? £333,000.
57. Actually paid up? Yes; that is two-thirds is paid up—£333,000 and some odd shillings.
58. But you have not expended much of it yet; you have plenty of reserves available to carry out this undertaking? Yes.
59. Mr. Moseley.] You know, as a matter of fact, that the notice was published in both local papers? Yes.
60. So that the fullest publicity might be given to it? Yes.
61. Mr. Burns.] And no opposition has yet been offered? None whatever.

William Henry Moseley called in, and examined :—

62. Chairman.] Is it a fact that you specially notified the Mayor of North Willoughby of the present meeting of this Select Committee, and that we should be glad to receive any evidence he might wish to give? Yes; I did so by leaving a letter at his office.
63. You have no reason to suppose that the Council of North Willoughby is in opposition to this Bill? They approved of the original Gordon Tramway Bill, and I have every reason to believe that they equally approve of the provisions of this Bill.
64. In fact you believe that the powers asked for under this Bill, if carried out, would be for the benefit of the whole district? I do. I produce a plan of the property. [Plan produced.]
65. Does that plan show the branches as well as the main line? Yes; up as far as Long Bay.
66. The line is coloured how? Red.
67. And the branches? Red also.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MILITARY FORCES OF THE COLONY.

(REPORT FOR 1890.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

REPORT of the Major-General Commanding the Military Forces of New South Wales for the year 1889.

PERMANENT ARTILLERY.

No change has been effected in the establishment of this Corps during the year, and the actual strength on 1st January last was 497 of all ranks—or 3 below the establishment.

During the year 156 recruits were enlisted in order to bring the Corps from 422 to the full strength, and to replace men who had become non-effective. This list is large; at the same time I do not see how it is to be materially reduced, seeing the facilities with which men can leave the Service. It is made up by 29 desertions, 8 deaths, and 46 discharges, giving a total of 83, as compared with 59 of previous year.

The causes of discharge are as follows:—

Termination of limited engagement...	16
By purchase	11
Medically unfit	8
Free discharges	2
Incorrigible and worthless	1
Services no longer required	1
Misconduct	3
Inefficiency	1
Convictions by Civil power	3
Total	46

The number of Courts-Martial is identical with that of previous year, viz., 27, and an improvement has been noted in the general conduct.

A Course of Instruction was held during the year at the School of Gunnery, Middle Head, under Colonel Bingham and Major Churchward, R.A., when Lieut. Bridges, Per. Art., qualified as an Instructor in Gunnery. The system of instruction as practised by the Corps itself is not entirely satisfactory, and opportunity will be taken during the current year to assimilate it as far as possible to that of the Imperial Artillery.

The Field Battery was put through a complete course of instruction by Major Churchward, lasting from June to November inclusive, and during December 2 officers and 11 non-commissioned officers went through a course of Watkins' range finding, of whom 1 officer and 1 non-commissioned officer received certificates as instructors.

The

The Colony has lost the services of a most able officer in Colonel Bingham, who left for England in November, to take up the responsible position of an Instructor at the School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness. Major Churchward, R.A., who arrived in April, assumed his duties.

No steps have as yet been taken to secure the services of a Second Artillery Instructor, pending decision as to the action to be taken on Major-General Edwards' recommendations for re-organizing this branch of the Service. As previously reported, the interior economy of the Corps is still defective, to remedy which I directed a Board to assemble for the purpose of compiling a code of Standing Orders, which are now with the Government Printer. These, when issued, will guarantee the maintenance of a proper chain of responsibility and system of administration and training, which cannot but be productive of increased efficiency and discipline.

I inspected the Field Battery, and found the drill fair, and the Battery in a serviceable condition, although there was a diversity of horse appointments. The stables in the Agricultural Grounds are not fit for permanent use, besides being inconvenient to officers and men, and consequently the cause of much dissatisfaction, which it is to be hoped will be removed during the current year by the erection of proper stables in the Victoria Barracks.

The drill of the Garrison Batteries was fair, and in instances good, but not so thorough as it should be; and arrangements are about to be made which will improve the work in this respect.

The books, with the exception of those relating to the canteen, were properly posted. The contract for clothing was carried out in the most culpable manner, and caused such dissatisfaction that the Government decided to place future contracts with the Regimental authorities, as is the case in the Volunteer Regiments.

A considerable amount of useful and instructive work has been performed by the Corps in mounting and dismounting ordnance, consequent on changes in the armament of the batteries.

PERMANENT SUBMARINE MINERS.

The strength of the Corps was 1 officer and 21 non-commissioned officers and men, showing a reduction of 2 by transfer to Commanding Engineer's branch. 1 man has been discharged as not likely to become efficient, and 1 has deserted.

Since its formation the Corps has been principally occupied in getting the Submarine Mining Stores into working order, drill and instruction in the various duties, also doing work connected with the training of the Partially-paid Submarine Miners. The work has been much hampered from various causes, but when the accommodation in progress at Chowder Bay is completed, the chief disability will be removed, and this important branch of the service can then be maintained in a state of thorough efficiency.

The "Lilian" steamer has been found to be altogether unsuitable for a mining craft, and enquiries are being conducted in England for the purchase of a specially designed boat.

The clothing has been a source of great trouble, and the new system of supply by Corps as approved will remove the cause of dissatisfaction.

The Commanding Officer reports favourably of the conduct of the Corps.

Colonel de Wolski, R.E., succeeded Major Penrose, R.E., in supervising the training and charge of stores and the work generally connected with the Submarine Mining defence.

PERMANENT MOUNTED INFANTRY.

This Corps numbers 32 of all ranks. During the year 6 have been discharged as being worthless characters, which seems to point to the fact that in so small a body the Commanding Officer has not been too particular as to the antecedents of candidates for admission. 1 has left by purchase, and there have been 5 desertions. 1 man has been tried by Court-Martial.

This Corps drills well, but as with the Field Battery of Permanent Artillery, it is heavily handicapped by the inconvenient position of the stables, which gives rise to dissatisfaction and extra work. The books were not up to the standard required.

MEDICAL

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

During the year 240 recruits presented themselves for examination, and of this number 34 were rejected as medically unfit. Of the 206 accepted, 35 had had previous service other than in the New South Wales Military Forces, and 27 were re-engagements in the New South Wales Artillery. They were distributed as follows:—

Permanent Artillery, 188 Recruits.

Average height, 5 ft. $8\frac{5}{8}$ in.
 „ weight, 10 st. $11\frac{7}{8}$ lbs.
 „ chest, 37 in.

Permanent Mounted Infantry, 12 recruits.

Average height, 5 ft $8\frac{1}{2}$ in.

Permanent Submarine Miners, 6 recruits.

Average height, 5 ft. $8\frac{5}{12}$ in.
 „ weight, 10 st. 8 lbs.
 „ chest, 37 in.

There were 403 admissions into the Garrison Hospital during the year, from the following causes:—

Much improvement has been effected during the past year in the sanitary arrangements, especially at Victoria Barracks. The drainage under ground is now complete, and the water-closet system is supplied to the quarters of officers and men.

The Brigade Surgeon draws especial attention to a matter that is a source of danger to the general health of troops in barracks, and one that has given much cause for alarm, viz., the residence of non-commissioned officers and others on the married strength living outside barracks. In the majority of these cases the houses have no drainage and even receive the drainage from others, situate in close, ill-ventilated streets with a foul-smelling atmosphere. The only remedy against this would be to build a number of small tenements on the unoccupied land in the barrack area and at the outlying batteries. In the end this would also be a distinct saving in lodging allowance, for in a few years the buildings will have paid for themselves.

The general conduct and attention to duty by the staff of the hospital is worthy of praise. One and all have endeavoured to assist to carry out any work or duty that may have fallen on this special department.

The Brigade Surgeon urges that the time has arrived when the appointment of a second Medical Officer to the Permanent Forces is absolutely necessary. The numbers have so increased, dangerous services so multiplied, and the medical, administrative and executive work in connection with the Garrison has grown so extensive, that the Services would be benefited to a great extent by this addition.

Anticipating the establishment of a permanent branch of the Medical Staff Corps is another strong argument in this case, for no one man can do justice to all the work. A considerable sum of money is spent annually to civil practitioners, which would be saved by such an appointment.

PARTIALLY-PAID VOLUNTEERS.

The establishment on 1st January last was 4,372, as against 3,907 of previous year, the increase being chiefly caused by transfer of Cavalry and the Botany Battery Artillery from Reserves to Partially-paid branch.

At my various inspections I found the clothing, arms, and accoutrements generally in good order. The drill of Artillery, Engineers, Submarine Miners, and Infantry generally good; that of Cavalry and Mounted Infantry not so progressive, in cases, as it should have been.

The Cavalry, now organized on a better system, and with an energetic and capable Adjutant—viz., Captain McNeill, of the 4th Hussars—as also the newly-raised Regiment of Mounted Infantry, under Major Lassetter, South Staffordshire Regiment—are rapidly attaining to a creditable degree of efficiency. Both corps are well mounted, and show considerable zeal.

The Engineers have been most usefully employed, and it is intended to shortly extend their sphere of operations by means of a small field-service equipment.

The work done by the P.P. Submarine Miners has been of a more extended character than heretofore, and considering the few facilities available for thorough instruction it may be regarded as excellent.

The Medical Staff Corps has demonstrated itself to be a useful and well-trained body.

The conduct of this branch of the forces leaves little to be desired; and as for general physique, &c., it would compare most favourably with the general run of any European army.

RESERVES.

6 troops of Cavalry and 1 Battery of Artillery were transferred on the 1st of January last to the Partially-paid branch, and, with the exception of the Scottish Rifles, the Reserves now consist entirely of rifle companies. These numbered on 1st January last 85 as compared with 50 of previous year, with 3,393 active members, of whom 426 are marksmen, 755 are 1st class shots, 1,299 2nd class shots, and 167 3rd class shots.

Some

Some difficulty exists in regard to supply of arms, as most of the corps object to the part-worn Henry rifle; and although a small issue of the Martini-Henrys has been made it is insufficient to arm them. There is at present no obviating this difficulty, as it would be most impolitic to trench materially upon the reserve stock, which must be maintained. When the new magazine rifles are supplied this difficulty will be overcome. A proposition before the Government in the matter of affording additional aid to these corps, will, if conceded, remove certain causes of dissatisfaction.

CONTINUOUS TRAINING.

The field forces encamped at the National Park numbered 2,936, with 429 horses. The Volunteer Garrison Artillery and Submarine Miners encamped at South Head numbered 536. The Garrison Batteries of the Permanent Artillery did not go into camp in consequence of deficiency in tentage.

At the former camp the principal work done was the practice of the new attack formations, which fully occupied the time at disposal. At the Heads the forces underwent instruction in artillery and submarine mining matters. As usual, the conduct and discipline of both camps was very satisfactory.

MUSKETRY.

A slight improvement over last year is perceptible, and the number who went through the course was 1,922, as against 1,434 of previous year. This total is classified as follows:—

Marksmen	556
1st Class Shots	955
2nd Class Shots	674
3rd Class Shots	293

thus making the per-centages—

Marksmen	28.40
1st Class	49.69
2nd Class	35.06
3rd Class	15.19

From the foregoing tables the figure of merit is 104.14, as against 99.24 of previous year.

The best shot in the Force is Private J. Lewis, Wallsend Company, 4th Regiment Infantry, with a total of 143 points.

Best shot in 1st Regiment	...	Private J. H. McEachern	...	134 points.
„ „ „ 2nd	„	Color-Sergeant W. Cork	...	123 „
„ „ „ 3rd	„	Private J. Groat	...	140 „
„ „ „ 4th	„	Color-Sergeant Morris	...	131 „
„ „ „ Per. Sub. Miners	...	Corporal Carter	...	103 „
„ „ „ Engineers	...	Sergeant Quantock	...	130 „
„ „ „ P.P. Sub. Miners	...	Corporal Dawson	...	116 „

The 1st and 2nd Regiments have both deteriorated in shooting and attendance, whilst the 3rd and 4th Regiments have improved.

AMMUNITION AND STORES.

The large augmentation to the Force, principally by the wide-spread establishment of Reserve Rifle Companies, has largely increased the expenditure of small arm ammunition, and steps have been taken to meet such increase and keep up the reserve stock.

The ammunition supplied by Messrs. Kynock and Company has proved unreliable, and I should not recommend the Government to have further dealings with that firm, unless it is prepared to remedy the defects in a satisfactory and equitable manner.

Steps have been taken to bring the reserve of field gun ammunition up to 600 rounds per gun, as recommended by General Edwards. That required for garrison guns will shortly be somewhat in excess of reserve required.

Submarine mining stores are reported by the Commanding Engineer as being wanting in some respects, but it has not been thought desirable to complete the same until proper storage accommodation, in course of erection, is available.

Medical equipment for Field Hospitals, &c., has been received sufficient for any probable contingency.

Camp equipment for 6,000 men is now in possession.

During the past year the maintenance, repair, and issue of small arms has been assumed by the D.A.C.G. of Ordnance, who, however, reports that the facilities for carrying on the work are most inadequate.

In my last report I pointed out in detail that the present storage accommodation is very unsuitable and deficient, and militates much against the efficiency and readiness of the Department for calls which would be made upon it in prospect of war. The D.A.C.G. of Ordnance points out that under present arrangements the defence of the Colony might at any moment be crippled, and he appears to be correct. It is essential that the commercial branch should be separated from that of the military, as the work and requirements of the latter have so largely increased as to require the undivided attention of the D.A.C.G. of Ordnance.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The most important occurrence of the year was the advent of Major-General J. Bevan Edwards, C.B., at the instance of the Imperial Government, to report upon the condition of the Military Forces and Defences of New South Wales, together with propositions for the re-organization of the former. The estimates for 1890 were submitted much on the lines laid down by this officer, but the rejection of them in globo by the House of Assembly has left things as they were the previous year.

The appointment of Colonel de Wolski, R.E., as Director of Works has had a most beneficial effect in stimulating the construction of the necessary works, in spite of the great delay experienced in the transfer of this department from the control of the Colonial Architect. It is confidently assumed that by the end of the current year the Ports of Sydney, Newcastle, Botany, and Wollongong will be in a fair state of defence.

The United Service Institution was formally opened at the beginning of the year, and the following address and lectures have been delivered:—Inaugural Address by Major-General Richardson, C.B.; “The Defence of the North-western Provinces of India,” by Major MacCarthy, 2nd Battalion King’s Own Royal Lancashire Regiment; “Modern Infantry Fire,” by Lieut.-Colonel Penrose, R.E.; “Coast Defence by Breech-loading Guns on Hydro-Pneumatic Carriages,” by Colonel E. G. H. Bingham, R.A.; “The Clothing of the Soldier as Suitable to the Climate,” by Brigade Surgeon Williams, General Staff; “The Maxim Gun,” by Major-General Strange, R.A.; “Naval Attack on a Protected Harbour,” by Commander Egerton, R.N. (H.M.S. Orlando).

The Royal United Service Institution, the Military Society, Aldershot, the Royal Artillery Institution, Woolwich, the East of Scotland Tactical and War Game Society, Edinburgh; The Home District Tactical and War Game Society, London, have presented copies of their proceedings to the local Institution, and are available for perusal and instruction. Military and Naval works and periodicals are also furnished for that end.

The provision of a proper Ordnance Store and Gun Wharf—the appointment of a Secretary of Defence—the want of a suitable Rifle Range for the Headquarter Corps—provision for the retirement of Officers incapacitated for military duty—amended legislation in regard to the partially-paid branch—are matters which have not yet been dealt with.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

NAVAL FORCES OF THE COLONY.

(REPORT FOR 1889.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 May, 1890.

The Captain Commanding the Naval Forces to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 25 January, 1890.

I have the honor to inform you that I was appointed Captain Commanding the Naval Forces of the Colony on the 10th October, 1888. Prior to this date no organization existed between the different branches of these services.

After being appointed, I lost no time in carrying out the instructions of the Government by amalgamating and combining the different forces where necessary, and otherwise making such arrangements as were found expedient for cohesive and administrative purposes.

H.M.C.S. "Wolverene" was at once brought forward to be docked and recommissioned. Her guns and stores were placed on board, and the vessel was refitted and got ready in all respects to carry the pennant. This duty was performed by a working party of the Naval Brigade, who were assisted by the permanent staff of the ship. This staff is composed of only nine persons, under the charge of the chief engineer. When the vessel is taken to sea she is manned by the Sydney contingent of the Naval Brigade, with no other aid than that of the before-mentioned staff.

The torpedo boats "Acheron" and "Avernus" were also brought forward, permanent engineers and stokers were attached to them, and they were made ready in every respect for instant service. These vessels are navigated and their torpedoes are manipulated by certain officers and men of the Volunteer Naval Artillery.

The 64-pounder rifled gun and slide of the hopper barge "Neptune" has been put in order, and the vessel, when she could be spared by the Harbour and Rivers Department, to which she belongs, has been used on occasional Saturday afternoons, and also during Easter-time, for the training of the Volunteer Naval Artillery and the Newcastle Company of the Naval Brigade.

The Schwartzkopff torpedoes, together with the stores and appliances connected therewith, have been overhauled and put in readiness, so far as the limited means at our disposal will permit.

The Naval defence of the Colony at the present time may be summarized as follows, viz. :—

- 1 corvette of 16 64-pounder rifled guns.
- 1 temporary gun-boat, carrying 1 64-pounder rifled pivot gun.
- 2 second-class torpedo boats, and 40 Schwartzkopff torpedoes, which could be improvised in temporary boats on an emergency.

These defences, although for the most part obsolete, can all be said to be in fair working order.

I very much regret that the late application of the Chief Secretary to the Home Government for an ironclad ship was refused, for I feel convinced, now that the land defences of this continent are so far matured, that the object of an enemy in the absence of the Imperial squadron would be directed to blockading our ports and preying on our commerce, rather than in attempting a footing on Australian soil. A powerful cruiser, or several fast gun-boats, thus becomes a very necessary factor for the defence of the maritime interests of this Colony.

The rifles in possession of the Naval Brigade are nearly worn out. A telegraphic order was transmitted to England, to include a thousand sea-service weapons in the late stand that came out, but by some mistake all military weapons were sent. On the 25th April, 1888, I again wrote, asking that a supply of sea-service Martini-Henris might be imported; but now that the Magazine rifle is in the course of being introduced into the English service, I prefer awaiting the development of the new weapon there, in order that our old rifles may be replaced by the most improved description of sea-service weapons.

The entire cost of the Naval Defence Forces of the Colony for the year 1889 was £11,173. This provided for a permanent staff of 17 persons, the Naval Brigade, numbering 328 of all ranks, and a Volunteer Naval Artillery, composed of about 216 men.

With the view of keeping the ships, with their machinery and implements of war, in proper working order, and at the same time not allowing too great a strain to be put on, with the object of thus making them last as long as possible, it has been the practice, in addition to going to sea at Easter, to get underweigh one Saturday afternoon each month. This, in addition to other drills carried on at anchor and also on shore, has had the desired effect of keeping men and material in a reasonable state of efficiency, with a minimum amount of wear and tear.

The

The completion of the principal part of the Easter training for the year 1889 was brought to a climax by the "Wolverene," "Thetis," "Ajax," "Neptune," "Kate," "Rhea," "Carrington," "Acheron," and "Avernus" rendezvousing in Botany Bay on Monday, the 22nd of April. These vessels, most of which were improvised for the occasion with the resources at the disposal of the Government, left Botany Bay in double line and made an attack on the batteries at Sydney, about 3 p.m., that day. After passing out of range of the guns, shelter was taken in Hunter's Bay. Boats were then manned with the view of landing a force to take the Middle Heads' battery in the rear. This attempt was frustrated, and the Naval Forces were forced to retire to their ships. The whole affair was carried out satisfactorily, and without a single accident.

On the 27th of July the Naval Brigade and Volunteer Naval Artillery took part in the muster of the Colonial Forces, ordered for the inspection of Major-General Edwards, C.B. :—The following is a copy of the letter sent to me by the Major-General in relation to the bearing of the Naval contingent in the affair :—

Dear Captain Hixson, Government House, N.S.W., Sydney, 29 July, 1889.
 Will you do me the kindness to tell the officers and men of the Naval Forces how much I appreciated their very fine turn out on Saturday, and that I consider it a great personal compliment that they came in such force. I beg to congratulate you upon commanding such a body of men, worthy in every way to take their place alongside the Royal Navy. Believe me,
 Yours sincerely,
 J. BEVAN EDWARDS.

Captain F. Hixson, Commanding Naval Forces.

On the 17th August, 1889, Rear-Admiral Fairfax, C.B., the Commander-in-Chief on the Australian Station, inspected H.M.C.S. "Wolverene" and the torpedo boats "Acheron" and "Avernus." The following is a copy of the Admiral's report to His Excellency the Governor in reference thereto :—

My Lord, H.M.S. "Rapid," at Sydney, 23 August, 1889.
 In compliance with the request forwarded me by your Excellency, I went on board the "Wolverene" on Saturday, the 17th instant, and inspected the ship and the Naval Forces on board under the command of Captain Hixson. I found the ship clean and well kept, considering the few men allowed for this purpose. The engineer deserves great credit for the order the engine-room is in. The crew are clean and well dressed, composed of men in the prime of life. They are the finest body of men that I have seen on board ship. They went through their drills very creditably, and I think New South Wales has every reason to be proud of such a splendid body of men. The Naval Artillery Volunteers manned two torpedo boats. They seemed to handle their boats well, and discharged a Whitehead torpedo, which ran with great accuracy.

I have the honor to be,
 My Lord,
 Your Excellency's most obedient servant,
 H. FAIRFAX,
 Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

His Excellency the Right Hon. Lord Carrington, G.C.M.G., &c.,
 Governor and Commander-in-Chief, New South Wales.

On Thursday, November 21st, 1889, I, in company with Commander Lindeman, inspected the Newcastle Company of the Naval Brigade. There was a satisfactory muster, and officers and men acquitted themselves fairly well.

I have, &c.,
 FRANCIS HIXSON,
 Captain Commanding Naval Forces.

MEMORANDUM of agreement made between Major Taunton, D.A.Q.M.G., representing the New South Wales Government on the one part, and Wright, Heaton, & Co. (Limited) on the second part. Witnesseth that Wright, Heaton, & Co. EXTRACT from proceedings of a Board of Officers assembled at Military Staff Office, on the 14th March, 1890, by order of the Officer Commanding the Garrison, bearing date 11th March, 1890 (G.O. 45), to open, examine, and report on tenders for cartage of camp material, &c., &c.

President:—

Lieut.-Col. Eden, Permanent Staff.

Members:—

Major Bartlett (Adj't., 1st Regt.) | Capt. Sparrow (Adj't., M.I.)

THE Board having assembled pursuant to the above order, proceed to open tenders preferred for its attention in the D.A.Q.M.G. tender box. The Board appends to these proceedings three schedules of tenders, under heads of A—"Supplies," B—"Cartage," and C—"Canteens."

With regard to Schedule B, the Board considers Mr. Sutton's tender the one most calculated to produce satisfaction, and his prices are on the whole the lowest. His lump sum is hardly £3 higher than the lowest tender. A knowledge of the manner he conducted his last contract induces the Board to present an extra recommendation of this tenderer.

T. M. EDEN, Lieut.-Col.,
President.
C. F. BARTLETT, Major,
H. G. B. SPARROW, Capt.,

7. A large proportion of the business brought under the consideration of the Board has been in reference to the claims of officers for retiring allowances, consequent on their services having been dispensed with for purposes of retrenchment in various Departments of the Public Service, but especially in the Railway Department. By the rearrangement and reduction of the staff great annual savings have been made in the Departments concerned, but the result has been to transfer from Consolidated Revenue to the Superannuation Fund so heavy a charge as, in the opinion of the Actuary, to seriously jeopardise its solvency. Appendices VII and VIII contain a list of persons whose services have been so dispensed with under section 46, showing the annual saving to the Departments and the annual charge on the Superannuation Account.

8. The Board, in their previous Reports, have pointed out the necessity for certain amendments of the Act, and this necessity has become more apparent during the past year, certain appointments having been made without reference to the Board, which they are of opinion should, under the terms of section 27, have been referred to them by the Heads of the Departments in which the vacancies occurred. It was clearly the intention of the Legislature that in all cases of vacancies the rights rights of officers should be fully considered by the Board, and reported upon to the Minister, before any recommendation could be made by him to the Governor-in-Council.

Section 27 prescribes the course of procedure to be adopted:—

- 1st. When a vacancy occurs the superior officer of the Department in which such vacancy occurs shall transmit to the Board, through the Head of the Department, a report in writing, and may recommend * * * * *
- 2nd. The Head of the Department may in like manner make a report and recommendation.
- 3rd. The Board shall report to the Minister; and
- 4th. The Governor may, on the recommendation of the Minister, promote the officer thus reported,

The exercise of the Board's functions is based on the report received from the Head of the Department, but in the cases referred to it has been contended (as the Board think improperly) that it is quite at the discretion of the Head of a Department to make or withhold the report. A slight verbal alteration would remove any misconception as to the duty of the Heads of Departments under this section.

9. Other amendments of the Act are also necessary to define more clearly the right of officers to appeal to the Board in certain cases in which they may consider that their claims have not had full consideration from their superior officers. The Superannuation clauses of the Act require alteration, especially the 51st section, dealing with the claims of widows to gratuities, which should be made general, and not limited, as now, to those in "necessitous circumstances," a provision which imposes on the Board the invidious duty of deciding, in each case submitted, whether the applicant is or is not in such circumstances as to warrant a recommendation in her favor.

10. We are of opinion, although the Act requires amendment, as above stated, its provisions have tended in a marked degree towards an improved administration of the public Departments, to good discipline, and to a more efficient performance of duty on the part of the officers, as the enforcement of a higher standard of educational attainments in regard to candidates for employment has checked the admission to the Service of unqualified persons. In the reorganization of the Departments, which has been carried on during the five years the Act has been in force, special attention has also been given to this matter, and it is evident that very satisfactory results have been secured under an admittedly defective Act.

11. By the retirement, under the Superannuation clauses of the Act, of the old and infirm, vacancies have occurred which have enabled the junior officers to obtain merited promotion, and the certainty that their claims would have fair consideration by the Board has, to a large extent, removed the discontent which previously existed in some Departments.

SUPERANNUATION ACCOUNT.

12. The balance at the credit of the Civil Service Superannuation Account, a statement of which is submitted herewith, in accordance with the 62nd section of the Act, was, on 31st December, 1888, £299,597 2s. 3d. This was augmented during last year by receipts to the amount of £128,979 12s. 7d., making the total £428,576 14s. 10d. The disbursements during the year were £59,697 19s. 3d., thus leaving a balance to the credit of the Superannuation Account on 31st December, 1889, of £368,878 15s. 7d., showing an increase during the year of £69,281 13s. 4d.

13. The 54th section of the Civil Service Act, 1884, provides for a triennial investigation into the state and sufficiency of the Superannuation Account. This duty was intrusted to Mr. Richard Teece, Secretary of the Australian Mutual Provident Society, who furnished an elaborate report upon the subject, seriously impugning the solvency of the Fund. In the Appendix will be found a copy of this report, dated 29th October, 1889, and a letter by the Board, forwarded with the report to the Colonial Secretary on the 30th December last, suggesting among other things the propriety of the Government continuing to subsidise the Fund, so as to enable it to bear the undue strain to which it has been subjected by the forced retirement of so many persons who were not eligible for retirement, either by reason of age or mental or physical infirmity, many of them being in the prime of life, and some even under 31 years of age.

14. The number of officers who have retired on pensions since the Act came into operation on the 1st January, 1885, to 31st December, 1889, is 365, and the amount to which they are entitled is £49,402 7s. 3d. per annum, and during the same period gratuities amounting to £60,054 8s. 8d. have been granted to 405 recipients. This comprises the following items:—

APPENDIX I.

Richard Teece, F.I.A., to The Chairman and Directors of the Civil Service Board.

Gentlemen,

I have the honor herewith to submit my report on the valuation of the assets and liabilities of the Civil Service Superannuation Fund as at 31st December, 1887.

As this is the first occasion on which the fund has been valued, it may not be out of place, as well with a view to a proper understanding of the principles on which it has been established, as to the assistance of those who may in the future be entrusted with the work of valuation, if I prefix a few remarks of an explanatory character.

The fund is constituted under the "Civil Service Act, 1884," which came into force 1st January, 1885. Under this Act all Civil Servants, with an exception hereafter referred to, are required to pay an annual contribution of 4 per cent. of their salaries towards the maintenance of the fund, which has been further subsidized by the Government by the payment of an annual endowment of £20,000 for five years. Retirement is permitted to any Civil Servant who has served for fifteen years or upwards, and who has reached the age of sixty years, or who has become incapacitated for the performance of his duty. Retirement is not compulsory at age sixty.

The rates of superannuation allowance are :—

For 15 years of service, $\frac{1}{6}$ of the average annual salary for the 3 years preceding date of retirement.
 " 16 $\frac{1}{6}$
 and so on, increasing $\frac{1}{6}$ for each year of service up to 40, at which the maximum allowance of $\frac{2}{3}$ or $\frac{2}{3}$ of such average salary is reached. The maximum salary in respect of which contributions may be levied or superannuation allowances computed is £1,000 in the General Division and £1,200 in the Professional Division.

Those who are excepted from the operations of the Act are described in sections 7 and 8, which read as follows :—

Commissioner's Rules and Regulations for Railway Service to be continued.

- Nothing herein contained shall interfere with the rules and regulations made by the Commissioner for Railways as to the mode of admission, examination, promotion, classification, and salaries under which persons employed in the Railway Service are engaged and agree to serve, or with such rules and regulations of a similar kind with regard to any other Department except as hereinafter provided in Parts V and VI.

Increase to Salaries of Messengers, &c.

- In the case of messengers, housekeepers, letter-carriers, stampers or sorters, bailiffs, warders, matrons, nurses, attendants, boatmen, storemen, and persons employed in the Printing and Telegraph Offices, Dredge and Marine Services, and other persons occupying positions of similar class, character, or importance, who are in the receipt of annual salaries, and not of daily or monthly wages, or paid by piece-work, the Governor may order an increase of any salary in any year not exceeding ten pounds. But all such increases shall be specified in the annual Estimates.

By section 57 of the Act, however, these may elect to contribute, and thus become entitled to the benefits of the fund.

The beneficiaries under the Act may be divided into three classes :—

- Those who are entitled under Schedule B of the Constitution Act to claim a pension from the annual appropriation of £3,500 provided therein for the purpose, but who elect to abandon their claim thereunder and to contribute to the Superannuation Fund. I am informed that this annual appropriation of £3,500 is now wholly absorbed by existing pensioners, and that with a few exceptions, which may be disregarded, all others who would be entitled to a pension from such appropriation have elected to come under the provisions of the Civil Service Act.
- The exceptions mentioned in sections 7 and 8 of the Act and who may elect to come under the provisions of the Act.
- All other permanent officers of the Government.

In addition to the pension benefits, provision is made for the payment of gratuities in the cases of such as have not served for fifteen years, as follows :—

- Those whose services may be dispensed with (except for misconduct), or who, owing to mental or bodily infirmity, may be compelled to retire, one month's pay for each year of service.
- Those who, in the discharge of their duties, receive such bodily injury as may incapacitate them for further service, two months' pay for each year of service, with a minimum allowance of six months' salary.
- The widow or children under 16 years of age who may be left by the death of an officer in necessitous circumstances, a maximum allowance of six months' salary.

The whole amount at the credit of the fund is in the keeping of the Government, and is credited with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly.

It will be in the recollection of the Board that at an interview which was accorded me I suggested that the valuation should be made as at 31st December, 1888. My reasons for this were: (1) that as the 31st December, 1887, was so far distant from the date at which the results of the valuation would be made known those results would have lost much of their significance, and (2) that the rates at which retirement had taken place had fluctuated so remarkably that a valuation as at 31st December, 1887, might not afford a very accurate representation of the condition of the fund at the present time. The Board, however, was of opinion that section 54 of the Act required that the valuation should be made as at 31st December, 1887, and was consequently unable to adopt my suggestion. My investigation, however, disclosed a condition of affairs which I felt would be unexpected by the Board, and I consequently decided to make the valuation, as far as the pensions actually entered on were concerned, as at the end of both 1887 and 1888. The comparison which the result thus obtained will afford will, I feel sure, be interesting to the Board.

The progress of the fund has been fully disclosed in the three annual reports which have been issued by the Board. The Consolidated Revenue Account exhibited in Appendix A will show at a glance the operations of the fund during the period under review.

The

The numbers retiring and the amounts of the pensions entered on will be seen from the following abstract:—

	No.	Annual Pensions.
		£	s. d.
1885—Retirements	19	1,555	0 5
1886— „	43	3,633	4 3
	62	5,188	4 8
1886—Deaths	3	180	6 0
	59	5,057	18 8
1887—Retirements	120	16,538	14 11
	179	21,596	13 7
Existing 31 December, 1887	174	21,020	17 7

These figures will be found to differ somewhat from those given in the annual reports of the Board in which appear to be included only those retirements in respect of which some payment had actually been made. I have included all pensions entered on, although in some cases no payment had yet been made at 31 December, 1887.

The remarkable increase for the year 1887 requires a word of explanation. During that year the Government, in pursuance of a policy of retrenchment, dismissed a number of officers from the Public Service. Some of these were rewarded with gratuities which were paid by the Government, but 25 were allotted retiring allowances aggregating a sum of £4,282 1s. per annum, which were made a charge upon the fund. This proceeding will be dealt with later on in this report, and is only alluded to now in order to explain in some degree the abnormal increase in the retirements shown above.

My duty to the Board would have been fully discharged had I contented myself with a mere valuation of the liabilities, and the presentation of a Balance-sheet exhibiting the surplus or deficiency in the Fund. During the progress of my investigation, however, several letters from correspondents interested in the matter have appeared in the press urging a reduction in the rate of contributions deducted from the salaries of Civil Servants, while the editorial remarks of the city journals on the reports of the Board indicate that there is a prevailing opinion that the Fund is in a highly satisfactory condition. In view of these circumstances I feel that this report will cause a somewhat rude awakening, and I therefore deem it advisable to submit to the Board explanations on various points which will, I hope, enable its true meaning to be intelligently appreciated.

The Valuation.

The valuation of the liabilities of a Fund of this character is an exceedingly perplexing operation, (1) from the want of proper data on which to base the calculations, and (2) from the uncertainty of a number of the factors involved.

1. Not only are tables of the rates of retirement in various services exceedingly scarce, but such as are available disclose the fact that the experience among one body of men cannot be safely assumed as that which will obtain among another body differently circumstanced. The only safe experience for the determination of this element is that of the Civil Service itself, and of course the Board has not had time to collect and tabulate this, even if the necessary information be accessible. I think, however, that an effort should be made to obtain it.
2. In this particular Fund there are several questions involved which are not susceptible of calculation. Under the original Act the annual increases of salary were fixed according to certain classes, and it was consequently possible to fix the average retiring allowance after various periods of service. This provision was, however, subsequently repealed, and the increases are not now subject to any law. It would be mere affectation to attempt to fix these increases in the future on any assumption of my own, and I have consequently made my calculations entirely independent of them, taking the salaries as at 1st January, 1888 (with a few exceptions) as the basis of the retiring allowances. The effect of this is to underestimate the liability, because it is quite certain that increases will take place. As a set-off against this, I have assumed that all officers who serve for fifteen years, and who are now under sixty years of age, will exercise the option of retiring on attaining age sixty; this has the effect of over-estimating the liability, but not, I imagine, to a sufficient extent to counterbalance the underestimate just referred to.
3. Certain persons referred to under section 7 of the Act have the option of joining the Fund. It is probable that this option will only be availed of by those who expect to speedily derive some tangible benefit, and their selection will always be exercised against the Fund. The option is a dangerous one, and should not, I think, be permitted to continue; its value cannot be estimated, and I have included in my valuation only such as have actually joined the Fund.
4. Under the Act the widows and families of such as die in necessitous circumstances are entitled to certain gratuities. This again is an element of uncertainty, and is not susceptible of calculation; such a provision is out of place in a Superannuation Fund, and I have omitted it from consideration.

Special reference should be made to the case of female teachers under the Department of Public Instruction. It is certain that these will quit the service in much larger numbers than male officers in any department, and as they leave their contributions behind them their defection is a distinct advantage to the Fund. The unique position of these female teachers, in connection with the Fund, deserves to be specially noted. I have obtained information regarding the rate of secession ruling during several years, and have constructed a special table, by the aid of which I have made an entirely independent and separate valuation of the liability under their contracts. This has largely increased the labour of valuation, but I felt that justice demanded that these teachers should receive special treatment, and I shall indicate later on in what direction I think such treatment should tend. For the principal portions of the calculations I have used the English Life Table, No. 3; for the estimation of the liability in connection with the payment of gratuities, to such as retire before completing fifteen years of service, I have adapted tables showing the experience in this matter of a numerous body of persons in these colonies. The rate of interest is fixed by the Act at 4 per cent.

These

These explanations will show the Board that I do not pretend to have produced rigidly accurate results, but I believe the results are sufficiently accurate for all practical purposes at this stage of the Fund's existence, and there can be no doubt that they correctly indicate the direction in which the Fund is tending.

The liabilities to be valued are as follows :—

1. Pensions of £3,398 11s. 1d. per annum, secured under Schedule B of the Constitution Act, and payable from the annual grant of £3,500, provided by that Act. Under section 53 of the Civil Service Act, this annual grant enures to the benefit of the Fund after these liabilities have been discharged, it is consequently a valuable asset.
2. Pensions amounting to £21,020 17s. 7d. per annum, which have become payable to 174 officers who have retired since the Act came into operation. As I have above remarked, these figures do not agree with those given in the report of the Board, and include all pensions which had been entered on at 31st December, 1887. It is proper to include these in the valuation.
3. Prospective pensions to 8,465 officers (including 1,631 female teachers), in the service at the date of the valuation, together with gratuities to such as may not become entitled to pensions.

The assets to meet these liabilities comprise :—

1. The perpetuity of £3,500 per annum provided under the Constitution Act, and continued under the Civil Service Act.
2. The annual contributions of 4 per cent. on the salaries of officers contributing at the date of the valuation.
3. The present value of 4 per cent. per annum from date of entry to 31st December, 1884, on all salaries paid to officers in the service. The fund is entitled to claim this as an asset for the reason that under section 55 of the Act the pension to which a retiring officer becomes entitled is subject to reduction by such an annuity as the sum represented by 4 per cent. of the total salary paid to him up to 31st December, 1884, will purchase. The valuation of this asset is a very troublesome matter. It will only come into the possession of the fund in larger or smaller amounts during the next thirty or forty years, and I am unable to ascertain, from the records of the Board, what the total amount is. It is estimated by the Secretary to the Board at £750,000. I have made an estimate on an independent basis, and arrive at £461,516, as the amount about which the deductions represent at the present time. Having fixed the amount of these deductions at £461,516, I have made a careful calculation of the proportion which will probably fall into possession each year, and have taken the present value of all these sums as the worth of the asset at 31st December, 1887. There is necessarily some uncertainty about the accuracy of this item, and I recommend the Board to ascertain the total amount of these deductions before the next valuation of the fund falls to be made.
4. The two payments of £20,000 each, yet to be made by the Government.
5. The sum of £235,436 11s. 8d., being the amount at credit of the fund at 31st December, 1887.

The valuation balance sheet shown in Appendix B exhibits the condition of the fund at 31st December, 1887.

It will be convenient at this stage to compare the liabilities in respect of pensions actually entered on at 31st December 1887 and 1888 with the amounts at credit of the fund at these respective dates :—

At December 31st, 1887, the balance at credit of the fund was ...	£235,436 11 8
The liability under pensions actually entered on was	215,774 4 0*
Difference	£19,662 7 8
At 31st December, 1888, the balance had increased to	£299,597 2 3
The liability under pensions entered on was	290,315 8 0*
Difference	£9,281 14 3

These figures will give some indication of the rapidity with which the claims on the fund are accumulating. They show that notwithstanding the receipt of the £20,000 subsidy from the Government, the fund had gone to the bad to the extent of £10,380 13s. 5d. in respect of pensions entered on in one year. The figures further show that the funds in hand at 31st December, 1888, were practically only sufficient to meet the payment for pensions already granted up to that date, while the enormous mass of dormant liabilities remained to be provided for by the future contributions of the officers and the residue of the annual grant of £3,500 under the Constitution Act already referred to. When it is borne in mind that the contributions of the officers up to 31st December, 1888, had been supplemented by the payment of £80,000 out of the Consolidated Revenue, and that only one further payment of £20,000 from that source then remained to be paid, it will be at once evident to any actuary, if not to any business man, that the fund must be in an insolvent condition, although opinions may differ regarding the amount of the deficiency. Whatever uncertainty may exist regarding the proper method of valuing the liabilities attaching to pensions not yet entered on, there can be no doubt regarding the liability in respect of those already being enjoyed, and the figures I have quoted conclusively establish the fact that the fund is in an insolvent condition.

Causes of the Deficiency.

So many causes have contributed to the condition of the fund disclosed by this investigation that it would extend this report to an inordinate length if I were to deal fully with them all. In order, however, to enable the Board to intelligently appreciate the situation and to impress them with some confidence in the general accuracy of the results shown above it is absolutely necessary that I should refer to a few of them, and I shall endeavour to do so, as far as is practicable, without having recourse to any technical language.

1. The inadequacy of the contribution of 4 per cent. per annum to provide the promised benefits.

To .

* Excluding pensions under Schedule B.

To determine exactly what rate of contribution is necessary to provide pensions on the scale laid down in the Act is extremely difficult—(1) from the absence of sufficiently reliable data on which to base the calculations, and (2) owing to the uncertainty regarding the rates of increase to the salaries of the contributors. By a series of trials, however, it is possible to arrive at results which will be sufficiently near the truth to demonstrate the inadequacy of the present rates.

Dealing first with the case in which the salary is constant throughout the whole period of service, I estimate that a minimum contribution of 4 per cent. would be sufficient only in the case of an officer entering at age 25 or under. For entrants of older ages I estimate the minimum rates necessary to provide the promised benefits to be—Age 30, 5 per cent.; age 35, 6 per cent.; age 40, 7½ per cent.

Assuming an initial salary of £100, with an increase of £50 at the end of each five years of service, I estimate the necessary minimum contributions to be—Age 20, 8 per cent.; age 25, 9 per cent.; age 30, 10 per cent.; age 35, 11 per cent.; age 40, 12 per cent.

I find that the average age at entry of all the officers (excluding female teachers) in the Service at 31st December, 1887, was just under 24 years, and I conclude that the minimum rate of contribution necessary to provide the promised benefits (on the assumption of very moderate increases of salary) to be from 6 to 7 per cent. It must be borne in mind, too, that this rate will only be sufficient when it is paid and accumulated at interest from the commencement of service.

In confirmation of my opinion that the rates of contribution are inadequate, I may cite the cases of several superannuation funds which have been overtaken by insolvency:—

- (a) The British Government.—The rates of contribution to this were 2½ per cent. on all salaries of £100 and under, and 5 per cent. on all salaries above £100. The retiring allowances were on differing scales, but may be taken as ranging from ½ per cent. after ten years' service up to ⅔ per cent. after 45 years' service. The fund was found to be insolvent, and the Civil Servants were relieved of all contributions to it in the year 1857, since which date the pensions have been borne entirely by the Government.
- (b) The London and North-Western Railway.—In this case the contributions are 5 per cent., one-half of which is paid by the company. The maximum age of entry is 25, and the retiring allowances are 25 per cent. after ten years service up to 67 per cent. after forty-five years; but these allowances are based on the average salary over the whole period of service—a system which produces very different results from those based on an average of the last three years only. This fund has been in operation for thirty-five years, and the last investigation showed that if all the beneficiaries retired at 60 years of age, the fund would be insolvent.
- (c) The Railway Clearing House.—This fund, similar in its principles to that of the London and North-Western (except that entrants over 28 years of age are required to pay an increased rate, rising as high as 10 per cent.), has only been in operation for fifteen years, and is stated to be insolvent.

2. The absence of sufficient provision for the accrued liabilities assumed by the fund at the inception of the scheme. Even if it be assumed that the contribution of 4 per cent. is sufficient to provide the promised benefits, it would still be necessary that such contribution should be paid by each officer from the date of his entry into the Service; but in this fund, while the officer is entitled to rank for a pension in respect of his full period of service, the fund has only been in receipt of his contributions since the beginning of 1885; and as I have already shown, the claimants have come on to the fund with such fatal frequency that practically the entire fund, as at 31st December, 1888, has already been absorbed. Some consciousness of this condition appears to have existed in the minds of the authors of the Act, and an attempt was made to provide against the disasters which it portended in two directions, viz.:—(1) By an annual grant of £20,000 for five years, and (2) by deducting from the pension to which each retiring officer was entitled an annuity, the present value of which was equal to the sum of the 4 per cent. contributions which would have been paid from the date of entry until 1st January, 1885, had the provisions of the Act been in operation during the whole period of service. Herein, however, was involved a fated fallacy, inasmuch as no account was taken of the accumulations of interest. If it be assumed that 4 per cent. is a sufficient deduction, it is only sufficient on the condition that it is constantly improved at 4 per cent. interest. Now in many cases the interest on the back contributions would amount to more than the contributions themselves. The following table will illustrate this. A deduction of 4 per cent., payable at the beginning of the year on a salary of £100, will amount:—

In	£	s.	d.	viz., payments,	£	s.	d.	interest,	£	s.	d.
5 years to	22	10	8		20	0	0	2	10	8
10 "	49	18	10	"	40	0	0	"	9	18	10
15 "	83	6	0	"	60	0	0	"	23	6	0
20 "	123	17	6	"	80	0	0	"	43	17	6
25 "	173	5	0	"	100	0	0	"	73	5	0
30 "	233	6	3	"	120	0	0	"	113	6	3
40 "	395	6	1	"	160	0	0	"	235	6	1

As those who have already retired, as well as those who will retire for some years to come, will be entitled to pensions, subject to deductions in respect of back payments for long periods, it will be obvious that these deductions will be insufficient, even on the assumption of the adequacy of a 4 per cent. rate of contribution.

One or two illustrations of actual cases will serve to emphasize this aspect of the case.

A. J. retired in January, 1886, at the age of 60 years. His full pension was £210 9s. per annum; the 4 per cent. back contributions amounted to £336 9s., and the deduction or abatement in respect of this amount was £36 12s. per annum. Had the back contributions, however, been invested at 4 per cent. interest they would at the end of 1884 have amounted to £549 7s. 10d., the deduction corresponding to which would have been £59 15s. 3d. J. B. retired in December, 1887, also at the age of 60. His full pension was £474 11s. 8d. per annum, subject to a deduction of £61 1s. 8d. in respect of back contributions of £566 2s. 8d. Had these back contributions been invested at 4 per cent. interest they would have amounted, at the end of 1884, to £1,066 15s. 0d. the corresponding reduction in respect of which would have been £115 2s. 0d.

This

This point may be further illustrated by placing these cases in a somewhat different aspect.—

A.J.'s pension in terms of the Act (prior to deductions) is	£210	9	0
The deduction in respect of back contributions is	36	12	0
<hr/>
Whence the portion in respect of payments made is	173	17	0
Now the 4 per cent. back contributions amount to	336	9	0
The payments actually made to	12	10	8

Consequently while the pension in respect of £336 9s., and of which the fund is relieved is £36 12s., that which is imposed on the fund in respect of receipts of £12 10s. 8d. is no less than £173 17s.

J.B.'s pension in terms of the Act (prior to deduction) is	£474	11	8
The deduction in respect of back contributions is	61	1	8
<hr/>
Whence the portion in respect of payments made is	413	10	0
The back contributions amount to	566	2	8
The payments actually made to	102	0	0

Consequently while the pension in respect of £566 2s. 8d., and of which the fund is relieved, is £61 1s. 8d., that which is imposed on it in respect of receipts of £102 is £413 10s.

Of course, this demonstration is not mathematically accurate, because the pensions of those who retire are partly provided by the payments of those who die or leave the service before becoming entitled to pensions, but it is sufficiently near the truth to illustrate my argument.

The enormous dormant liability with which the fund was burdened, owing to this circumstance, was in some measure provided for by the annual grant of £20,000 for five years, but the remedy was utterly inadequate to the malady, which, of course, became further intensified by the insufficiency under any circumstances of the 4 per cent. deduction.

3. The unexpected liability in respect of pensions to officers who were neither incapacitated nor had attained the age of 60 years—

Attention has already been drawn to the abnormal number of pensioners who came on the fund in the year 1887. Twenty-five of these, drawing pensions to the amount of £4,282 1s. per annum, were placed there by the Government in order to facilitate a scheme of retrenchment. The Government appears to have imagined that by paying to the fund the amount representing the back contributions of 4 per cent. on behalf of those gentlemen it had fully provided for the extra liability which was thus imposed on the fund. I have already exposed the fallacy of this assumption; but the proceeding operated prejudicially to the fund in another direction. By making pensioners of these gentlemen in an unnatural and irregular manner the Government constituted them claimants on the fund at an earlier period than they would otherwise have become so, and deprived the fund of further contributions which would have been made to it had they remained in active service. I have not thought it necessary to compute the money value of the injury which the course pursued by the Government inflicted on the fund, but it must be a very large sum.

4. The method of computing the pensions—

The Civil Service Act provides that the scale of pensions shall be one-fourth of the average salary for the last three years of service after fifteen years, with the addition of one-sixtieth of such average for each additional year of service. The practice hitherto followed has been to compute and allow the pension for any broken portion of a year of service. I do not think the words of the Act will bear this construction; on the contrary, it appears to me that a pension can be claimed only in respect of integral years of service completed. In this connection I may add that the determination of matters such as this should be left to the Board, under the advice of its responsible officers. The present practice, under which the amounts of the pensions are determined by the Department of the Colonial Secretary, involves a divided responsibility and may tend to complications.

5. The payment of gratuities—

Under section 51 of the Act the widow or relatives of an officer who dies, not having been in receipt of a pension, who are in indigent circumstances, are entitled to a gratuity not exceeding six months' salary of such officer. This provision, as I have previously pointed out, is repugnant to the principles of a superannuation scheme, and should, in my view, find no place in the Act. It seems superfluous to add that the suggestion which is occasionally advanced that the contributions should be returned in cases where the contributors have died before entering on their pensions is one which could not be entertained.

The deficiency which has been shown to exist may be said to be somewhat alarming. I am free to admit that there are some elements of uncertainty in the calculations, and that funds of this character are very elastic; but when due allowance is made for all variations which might favourably affect the results, there must still be such a marked disparity between the assets and the liabilities as to put the question of insolvency beyond any possibility of doubt.

Note on the position of the Female Teachers.

In my report I have intimated that I went to some trouble to obtain information regarding the rate of secession ruling among female teachers employed in the Department of Public Instruction. With the aid of this information I constructed a special table, which I employed in the valuation of the liabilities under their pensions. This table gave negative values in all cases where the ages attained did not exceed 29 years. It was obvious therefore, that the deduction of 4 per cent. was sufficient to provide the pensions to all teachers entering below that age, and it becomes a question for consideration whether it is just to compel these teachers to make common cause with the great mass of the civil servants who are not so favourably situated. From the results of my investigation I deduce that if the female teachers now in the service were placed under a separate fund, and if this fund were endowed with £36,000, the future annual contributions of 4 per cent. would in all probability prove sufficient to provide the pensions prescribed by the Act. It is for the Board to consider whether such a course would be expedient.

The Remedy.

In considering what steps should be taken to place the fund in a satisfactory condition, a variety of alternatives present themselves. There are three courses, one or other or all of which may be followed:—

1. The rate of contribution may be increased.
2. The rates of pensions may be reduced.
3. The Government may rescue the fund from its present unsatisfactory condition and provide for its future stability.

The questions of expediency must not be left out of consideration in dealing with this matter.

1. The contribution of 4 per cent., at present exacted from the civil servants, is a heavy deduction, and could scarcely be increased without inflicting hardship on the contributors. It must be remembered, too, that the scheme was the act of the Government, and was not, I believe, solicited nor approved by the general body of the civil servants. Furthermore, it is the practice of the British Government, and of a large number of public companies and business houses, to provide retiring allowances for their officers without requiring any contribution for that purpose.
2. The prescribed rate of pensions is on a liberal scale, and in a general scheme of reconstruction, I think it would not be unfair if the restoration of equilibrium were assisted by a reduction in the scale. It appears to me that the fairest way to do this would be to base the amount of the pensions on the average salaries over the whole period of service, instead of those of the last three years.
3. The chief remedy, however, must come from the Government.

To carry on in the present condition would not only lead to certain disaster, but the disaster would be unequally distributed among those whom it would affect. Those who are now in receipt of pensions, and those who will become entitled to them in the near future, are and will be enjoying their advantages at the expense of the younger members of the service. I have already shown that the funds in hand at 31st December, 1888, are but little more than sufficient to provide for the claims which have already matured, and it would be a positive cruelty to go on compelling contributions from the younger members of the service, when it is quite certain that when their time to retire arrives there will be no funds wherewith to liquidate their claims. At this early stage of the existence of the fund and in the absence of accurate information regarding the total amount of the back contributions of 4 per cent., it is difficult to say what further annual revenue is necessary to ensure its stability, but I am of opinion that an additional income of at least £50,000 per annum, will be required to place the fund in a position to discharge the liabilities which it has incurred. I do not think the Government should hesitate to grant this.

It would be an assistance to the scheme if the funds were placed in the hands of the Board for investment. Under the existing conditions the Government allows interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the amount at the credit of the fund. Were the moneys in the hands of the Board, safe investments could readily be obtained to yield $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and thus give the fund an immediate increase in annual revenue of nearly £5,000, and this advantage would be a constantly increasing one.

Funds of this character are becoming generally recognized, not only by Governments, but by public companies and trading firms, and I do not think I can conclude this report more fitly than by quoting the remarks of the British Commissioners, who, in 1857, recommended the abolition of the contribution system in England. "It has not been without much anxious consideration that we have arrived at the conclusion that it is our duty to recommend the total abolition of deductions for the purpose of superannuation, without any corresponding reduction in the salaries on which such deductions have been charged. Our first impression in entering on the inquiry referred to was adverse to this arrangement. But on a careful review of all the difficulties of the case, we became satisfied that, with a view to public interests alone, we could recommend no other settlement of the question as likely to be permanent and satisfactory. We are aware that the present system of deductions has had high authorities in its favour, and at the time when it was introduced it may have been considered a convenient mode of carrying into effect the unpopular measure of a general reduction of salaries. Nevertheless, for the reasons which we have already stated, we believe it to be unsound in principle; and we think that its inherent defects have developed themselves in difficulties of administration, of which the effect has been to create a mass of anomalies and inconsistencies most injurious to the Public Service. In this, as in other similar cases, it may be found impracticable to escape from a vicious principle, and to establish a reasonable and uniform system without some temporary pecuniary sacrifice. But believing that there is no other satisfactory solution of the difficulty, being confident that the ultimate advantage of the public will be much more than a compensation for any possible temporary loss, and having regard to the importance of maintaining the character and efficiency of the Civil Service, we are of opinion that by the recommendation which we have made we shall best discharge the duty which has been assigned to us."

APPENDIX II.

Letter addressed by the Civil Service Board to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary upon the subject of the Superannuation Account (30 December, 1889).

Sir,

I have the honor, by direction of the Civil Service Board, to forward for your consideration a copy of the Actuarial Report upon the First Triennial Investigation into the state and sufficiency of the Superannuation Account, and to state that—

1. Before submitting our Annual Report for this year to His Excellency the Governor we think it desirable to bring under your notice, as the Minister charged with the administration of the Act, a matter seriously affecting the position of the Superannuation Account of the Civil Service. Under the 54th section of the "Civil Service Act of 1884," an actuarial examination of the fund is required. Mr. Hawkins who was originally appointed for this purpose having died in March, 1888, the services of Mr. Teece were secured, and he has sent us an elaborate report, the purport of which is that the fund was started on an improper basis, and that the question of its insolvency was from the first only one of time. He considers that a contribution by the Government of £50,000 per annum will be required to place the fund in a position to discharge the liabilities which it has incurred.

2. It appears to us that up to the 31st of December, 1886, the fund was practically sufficient for the purpose for which it was founded. The cause of the great difference between the state of the fund on that date and in December, 1888, is not far to seek. To 31st December, 1886, the claims upon the Superannuation Account were those only which arose from the retirements which had evidently been foreseen and provided for by the author of the measure, and the contributions approached so nearly to the actual requirements, that we think if the fund had been operated upon only to meet such requirements, the provision would have been found to be practically sufficient. In 1888, however, the Government entered upon a system of retrenchment of an exceptional character, and, in carrying out the same, burdened the Fund with payments which could not have been contemplated at the time the Act was passed.

3. In proof that the Board had apparently good ground for regarding the Fund as sufficient for the purpose named, it may here be stated that the amount to the credit of the Fund was, on 30th November, £339,123 16s. The receipts for the eleven months of the year have been—contributions £58,666 1s. 11d., interest about £13,750, and fines £69 14s. 6d., which, with £3,500 for Schedule B, amount to £75,985 16s. 5d., whilst the claims for pensions amount to £46,468 2s. 6d., leaving a very substantial balance to credit of the account. With these facts before us we find it difficult to believe that the Fund is in the deplorable condition reported by Mr. Teece.

4. The statement of the Actuary that the scheme was the act of the Government, and was not solicited nor approved of by the general body of the Civil Servants, appears to be correct. They evidently assumed, as they had a perfect right to do, that as the scheme had originated with the Government all necessary calculations had been made to justify its adoption.

5. It appears to us that the present doubt as to the provision for the superannuation of the officers of the Civil Service should not be allowed to continue, and that we are not exceeding our duty in suggesting a remedy for your consideration. It is assumed that the necessity for providing for the retirement of officers who are unable to continue in office with advantage to the State is admitted. The provisions for retirement heretofore made having from the causes mentioned been rendered inoperative, it would seem to be equitable that the Government should restore the Fund to its former condition, by the Government contributing annually to the Fund a sum sufficient to enable the retiring allowances under the Act to be met until the exceptional claims have ceased.

6. The rates of retirement which have existed for the last two years are exceptional; it cannot be expected that the Civil Service will ever again be allowed to drift into the condition which rendered the retrenchment recently effected a necessity; it will be therefore sufficient if the proposed assistance is continued until the Fund is in a position to meet all ordinary claims. The sum will no doubt, at first sight, be considered to be a large one, but, from a rough calculation, it appears to us that £25,000 per annum will be sufficient in lieu of the sum suggested by the Actuary; and when it is considered that the necessity for this payment is caused by a saving effected in the general expenditure of about £85,679 per annum, the amount now suggested does not appear to be excessive.

7. Although we never doubted that the scheme was the result of mature consideration, we thought it desirable to ascertain, approximately, in what way it was working, and in 1886 the Secretary made a series of calculations with this view, which apparently proved that it had been founded on a proper basis. These calculations are shown in the appended memorandum, from which it will be seen how nearly the actual result approaches the estimate.

8. By compelling their retirement Government have created a large body of pensioners whose average age is much below the limit of 60 years; at the same time it must be recognised that the retirement of many others has only been hastened by a year or two, and that inasmuch as they are now retired by the action of the Government they will not appear as fresh claimants on the account in the years when in the ordinary course of events they would have become chargeable on the Fund.

9. At present the pensions created by the forced retirement of officers amount to £21,934 6s. 11d. per annum, and future retirements of a similar character for 1890 may be set down at £10,000 more, or £30,000 in all, irrespective of those officers who are entitled to gratuities, which are paid by Government from special appropriations. The amount of these special appropriations to date is £29,241 10s. 9d.

10. The Government have also provided about £21,000 for payment of 4 per cent. abatement on the pensions of officers compulsorily retired, but this is only a very temporary advantage to the fund, as by reason of such payment the pensioners draw larger pensions; and, as Mr. Teece points out, the present payment of 4 per cent. on back salary is not the equivalent of what the amount would have been had the 4 per cent. been deducted year by year during the period of service and been fructifying by the yearly addition of interest.

11. It has also to be borne in mind that every officer thus removed from the Service represents an actual loss to the Fund as his contributions cease, and no one being appointed in his place the Fund suffers thereby, as well as by having to pay his pension. In ordinary retirements the officer next in seniority takes the vacant position, and the staff being thus maintained the salaries remain as before, and the contributions flow in to the Fund without diminution.

12. We submit below a scheme of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Superannuation Account, drawn up on January 1st, 1886, and extending to January 1st, 1895. It was intended only as a rough approximation, but it was based on a careful review of retirements in past years, and to some extent on the ages of officers now in the Service. Allowance was made for a few forced retirements in each year, but not for sweeping reductions of the staff which have been made.

13. Tested by the experience of the years 1885 to 1889, but eliminating the pensions which have arisen under the retrenchment chiefly in the Department of Lands, Public Instruction, and Railways, the actual results are so nearly in accord with the estimates arrived at that they seem to prove that if the forced retirements had not been carried out the Fund could have borne all usual and legitimate claims upon it. The disturbing element is the £21,934 6s. 11d. per annum now paid to officers whose services have been dispensed with, and by the abolition of whose offices the Government saving is estimated at £47,179 per annum.

14. We consider the subject of this report affects not only the individual interests of the Civil Servants, but also the general efficiency of the Civil Service; and as it can only be dealt with by the direct action of the Government, we venture to request that it may have special and early attention.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Chairman.

No. 1.

Telegram from The Acting Crown Lands Agent, Coonamble, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

9 January, 1889.

In event of vacancy occurring, respectfully apply for temporary appointment as Clerk of Petty Sessions, at a salary of £100 per annum, pending final arrangements.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 9/1/89.

The salary on Estimates of 1889 for C.P.S., Coonamble, is £220. If applicant within named were appointed the Department would save £120 per annum. This is a good arrangement, and should be approved.—W.C., 10/1/89.

The Minister's attention is drawn to the fact that the above arrangement would prevent Mr. O'Byrne's appointment to Coonamble.—A.C.F., 11/1/89. I cannot help it. Mr. O'Byrne could be sent temporarily and at once to Coonabarabran, as Mr. Edwards should be at once relieved.—W.C., 11/1/89.

No. 2.

The Crown Lands Agent, Coonamble, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Crown Lands Office, Coonamble, 2 April, 1889.

As I understand that a vacancy is now occurring through the transfer of Mr. A. T. Cochrane to Coonabarabran, I respectfully beg to apply for appointment as Clerk of Petty Sessions for the District of Coonamble, at a salary of £100 per annum, in addition to my present salary of £250 per annum received as Crown Lands Agent.

Although only recently appointed, I have been acting as Crown Lands Agent since December, 1886, and I have been in the Government Service since October, 1882. It will also be remembered that for seven weeks in April and May of 1888, during the absence on leave of Mr. Cochrane, I performed his duties in a manner which, I trust, met with your approval. I was enabled to obtain a fair estimate of the amount of work to be done in the two offices, and I feel confident, should you favourably consider this application, that I would be able to perform the duties both of Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions, in a manner satisfactory to yourself and the Under Secretary for Lands, and also to the public. I would also be able to take over from Mr. Cochrane immediate charge of the office if necessary, pending the ultimate arrangements being made for the removal of the Lands Office to the Court-house.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE WHITFIELD,

C.L.A.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 5/4/89.

If this appointment could be effected the advantages to this Department would be considerable, being a saving of £120 per annum, and allowing of immediate completion. Mr. Cochrane is badly wanted at Coonabarabran.

I approve this application, and shall be glad to know whether Lands Department approve.—A.J.G., 8/4/89.

No. 3.

G. H. Reid, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

My Dear Sir,

Wentworth Court, 4 April.

Mr. George Whitfield, C.L.A., Coonamble, is an applicant for position of C.P.S., also the two offices to be amalgamated. By such means a considerable saving could be made. Mr. Whitfield on one occasion acted as C.P.S. as well as C.L.A. during Mr. Cochrane's absence, and can do the work of both offices.

I think you will find that Mr. Whitfield bears a high character for efficiency and good conduct.

Yours, &c.,

G. H. REID.

May be acknowledged, and Mr. Reid informed matter will receive due consideration.—A.C.F., 6/4/89.

G. E. Cass, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

11 April, 1889.

I have been requested by the Municipal Council of Coonamble to strongly protest against the proposed amalgamation of the offices of Land Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions at that place, as the Council inform me it will be utterly impossible for one officer to fill both offices without causing great inconvenience and injustice to the public.

I have, &c.,

G. E. CASS.

May be acknowledged.—A.J.G., 12/4/89. Submitted. Mr. Whitfield's nomination has already been approved by Lands Department and Civil Service Board. As Mr. Cochrane's services are urgently required at Coonabarabran, the settlement of this appointment is a matter of urgency.—A.C.F., 12/4/89.

Mr. Cass may be informed that this matter has been fully dealt with by the offices being amalgamated prior to receipt of his letter.—A.J.G., 15/4/89. Prepare minutes for Executive Council for appointment of Mr. Whitfield as Clerk of Petty Sessions, &c., 18/4/89.

THE office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Coonamble having become vacant by the promotion of Mr. A. T. Cochrane, I recommend that Mr. George Whitfield, Crown Land Agent at Coonamble, (salary £250 per annum), be appointed Clerk of Petty Sessions also at that place, vice Cochrane, with salary at the rate of £100 per annum, from the 1st.

By this amalgamations of the offices of Clerk of Petty Sessions and Crown Lands Agent at Coonamble an annual saving to this Department of £120 will be effected.

No. 11.

The Council Clerk, Coonamble, to The Minister of Justice.

Sir, Municipal Council Chambers, Coonamble, 26 April, 1889.
 On 11th instant I had the honor, by direction of my Council, to forward to you the following telegram, which I now beg to confirm, viz.:—“On behalf of public this Council protests against proposed amalgamation of offices of Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions. Great inconvenience and injustice to public must result if only one officer acts.” At

At a meeting of my Council, held on Tuesday, 23rd instant, the following resolution was unanimously passed, viz.:—"That the Honorable the Minister for Justice be written to, protesting further against the amalgamation of the offices of Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions." I am therefore instructed to inform you, Sir, that it is utterly impossible for one officer to conduct both offices with any justice to either himself or the public. It often occurs that the Clerk of Petty Sessions is occupied for whole days in the Police Court writing depositions, and the business of the Lands Department must be at a standstill. Further, it has several times occurred that a Land Court was being held, at which the attendance of the Crown Lands Agent was necessary. At the same time a Police Court was being held, at which that officer would be required to take depositions. Now, Sir, as one officer could not be in both Courts at one and the same time, either the business of the Land Court must wait for his attendance or that of the Police Court, which is also important.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions here holds the position of Registrar of the District Court. Should such Court, as is quite likely, be held (say) on Thursday, which is the only day in the week the public can apply for a free selection. How can one officer attend to both these duties? Are the persons (who in this Coonamble Land District are so numerous) applying for a selection on this day, and who have to travel many miles, to be told that their applications cannot be received, as the Crown Lands Agent is engaged in the District Court?

I now think, Sir, that you will see that this proposed amalgamation of office is not to the benefit of either the Justice or Lands Department, and much less so to the public generally; and as so much inconvenience must arise, to let two officers be appointed and keep the business of the two Departments separate as formerly.

I have, &c.,

W. H. AUBREY,
Council Clerk.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 1/5/89. Resubmit with other papers when returned from Executive Council.—A.J.G., 2/5/89. Previous papers resubmitted in accordance with Minister's minute hereon of 2nd May, 1889.—A.C.F., 13/5/89. Receipt of this letter may be acknowledged, and writer informed that it is thought the duties of the amalgamated offices can be performed by the one officer, and that pending a trial it is not thought desirable to reopen the matter.—A.J.G., 13/5/89. Council Clerk, 14/5/89.

Minute of The Minister of Justice for The Executive Council.

Subject:—Appointment of Mr. George Whitfield as Registrar of the District Court at Coonamble.

Department of Justice, Sydney, 3 May, 1889.

I RECOMMEND that Mr. George Whitfield, Clerk of Petty Sessions, &c., at Coonamble, be appointed Registrar of the District Court at that place, vice Cochrane, promoted, such appointment to take effect from the 1st instant.

ALBERT J. GOULD.

His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council.

The Executive Council advise that the appointment herein recommended, be approved.—ALEX. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council. Min. 39-30, 7/5/89. Approved.—CARRINGTON, 7/5/89. Confirmed 14/5/89. Gazetted, 17/5/82.

No. 13.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, &c., Coonamble, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Coonamble, 13 May, 1889.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt on the 6th instant of your letter of the 2nd idem, No. 89-5,573, advising me of my appointment as Clerk of Petty Sessions for this district, and have to thank you for this kind expression of your confidence in my ability to perform the duties of this office, in addition to those of Crown Lands Agent, and I would again assure you that I am thoroughly confident that I can perform both duties with satisfaction to yourself and to the public.

Upon receipt of your letter above referred to, I relieved Mr. Cochrane, and took charge of the office, but as he seemed to doubt the permanency of my present occupation of the office, I sent you a telegram asking whether it was intended that I should permanently relieve him, thus enabling him to proceed to Coonabarabran upon the expiration of his leave; and not having received a reply I concluded that such was your intention, and, consequently, I still retain charge of the office, and will do so unless otherwise instructed by you.

I would respectfully point out that my appointment as Registrar of the District Court has not been made, but I have been acting as such, and performing all the necessary duties, and I trust that my appointment to that office can be made to coincide with my appointment as Clerk of Petty Sessions.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE WHITFIELD,
Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Submitted.

Mr. Whitfield has been advised by wire that his appointment as Registrar of the District Court is confirmed, and dates from 1st instant as desired, action has now been completed on papers.—A.C.F., 16/5/89.

All necessary action has now been taken in this case, and papers may be put by.—A.C.F., 18/5/89. Yes.—A.J.G., 20/5/89.

Referring to your communication of the 26th ultimo, forwarding copy of resolution of the Municipal Council of Coonamble, protesting against the amalgamation of the offices of Clerk of Petty Sessions and Crown Lands Agent at that place, I have the honor, by direction of the Minister of Justice, to inform you that it is considered that the duties of the amalgamated offices can be performed by one officer, and that, pending a trial, it is not thought desirable to reopen the matter.

The Council Clerk, Coonamble, to G. E. Cass, Esq., M.P.

Sir, Municipal Council Chambers, Coonamble, 23 June, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Council, to forward you enclosed herewith the petition of the residents of this town and district against the amalgamation of the offices of Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions, which you will please present to the Honorable the Minister of Justice, at your earliest convenience.

Although the amalgamation is now an accomplished fact, and a communication has been received by this Council from the Department of Justice that a trial would be given, it is the wish of those who signed the petition that it be presented to show that such amalgamation is not in accordance with the popular wish, and that great inconvenience must arise in the transaction of public business with these offices.

I have, &c.,
W. H. AUBREY,
Council Clerk.

[Enclosure.]

To the Honorable the Minister of Justice,—
The Petition of the Residents of Coonamble,—
HUMBLY SHOWETH :

1. That they have been informed that it is the intention of the Government to appoint the Crown Lands Agent at Coonamble to act also as Clerk of Petty Sessions there.

2. For some years past there have been both a Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions at Coonamble; and, until lately, both these officers had an assistant.

3. There is a considerable amount of work transacted in Coonamble, in both of the above-mentioned departments, so much so that at times the officers have to work at night.

4. The Municipal District of Coonamble contains about 1,400 inhabitants, and the Land Court and Police District cover about 100 square miles.

5. The revenue derived from the district for the last year from the undermentioned offices is as follows :—

Land Office.....	20,000	(About.)
District Court.....	1,700	{ This amount is exclusive of all suitors' causes and transactions.
Petty Sessions.....

6. We, your petitioners, feel confident that the positions of Crown Land Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions cannot be properly fulfilled by one person with justice to the public, for the following reasons, namely, That Thursday, being the day for selecting land, is always a busy day at the Land Office in Coonamble, and consequently on that day the Crown Lands Agent would not have time to attend to other duties; that the business of the Land Office could not be properly attended to during the time the District Court and Quarter Sessions are held in Coonamble; that the Land Board hold a Court in Coonamble once a month, and at that time the duties of the Clerk of Petty Sessions would be neglected; that the duties of Clerk of Petty Sessions and Registrar of the District Court in Coonamble are as much as one officer can attend to with justice to the public.

7. Your Petitioners respectfully draw your attention to the importance and population of this district, and submit that it would be a case of great injustice and inconvenience to the public if one person were appointed to fill the two important offices of Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions in Coonamble.

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that you will take into serious consideration the above facts, and will grant their petition by not appointing the Crown Lands Agent in Coonamble to act also as Clerk of Petty Sessions in that town.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c., &c., &c.
[Here follow 107 signatures.]

Submitted.—A.C.F., 28/6/89. This petition may be referred to Land Agent at Coonamble for report' although I do not think there are any grounds for complaint.—A.J.G., 3/7/89. The Clerk of Petty Sessions, &c., Coonamble.—T.E.M.N. (for U.S.), B.C., 4/7/89. Reported upon by letter of this date.—GEORGE WHITFIELD, C.L.A., Coonamble, 22/7/89.

No. 16.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, &c., Coonamble, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Court-house, Coonamble, 22 July, 1889.

In accordance with your B.C. instructions of the 4th instant, I have the honor to report, with reference to the petition from residents of Coonamble against amalgamation of the offices of Crown Lands Agent and Clerk of Petty Sessions, that many of the statements made therein are misleading and hardly in accordance with facts; for instance, it is more than three years since the Land Agent here had an assistant, and I have never had to work at night-time except for a week at the end of March. Thursday is not always a busy day. The average number of selections made during the past three years has been about two per week, to receive which might occupy about half-an-hour; and, further, when the Land Court is being held, my attendance is not required and my services are at the disposal of the public.

I would point out that about 75 per cent. of those who signed the petition have no knowledge whatever of the amount of work to be done, and have no business dealings with either the Land Office or the Clerk of Petty Sessions Office, and, further, the substance of the petition is to the effect that great inconvenience inconvenience will arise to the public. I can only say that since the Land Office has been removed to the Court-house there has been no public inconvenience up to the present time. As a matter of fact, the increased convenience to the public caused by the amalgamation of the offices was much appreciated by all who attended the last Land Court here.

I am also glad to be able to inform you that a very small percentage of those who signed the petition have ever transacted business with me as Land Agent.

When I applied to you for the appointment as Clerk of Petty Sessions, I felt confident, and so expressed myself, of my ability to perform the duties with satisfaction to yourself and to the public, and now, as I become more acquainted with the routine and requirements of the office, I feel more confident of my ability to do the work.

During my tenure of office as Crown Lands Agent I have always endeavoured to study the public convenience, and it was my intention to obtain when necessary, at my own expense, temporary clerical assistance; but I understand that Mr. A. B. C. Burke has been appointed as a probationer in this office, and consequently all possible grounds of complaint are now removed. I will make Mr. Burke an efficient officer, and those transacting business in either office will at all times find that the amalgamation has considerably increased the public convenience, although the fact will never be admitted by the tradespeople of the town.

I am glad to be able to state that the Secretary for Lands, under whose control I have been for nearly seven years, has confidence in my ability to perform the work of the two offices, as will be seen from the copy of a letter which I now forward for your information, and I will endeavour to prove to you in the future by my conduct of the two offices that the confidence you have bestowed upon me has not been misplaced.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE WHITFIELD,

Clerk of Petty Sessions and Crown Lands Agent.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 25/7/89.

Mr. Cass may be informed that it has been ascertained that no inconvenience has been caused by the amalgamation of the offices of Clerk of Petty Sessions and Crown Lands Agent, and moreover that the business transacted at Coonamble neither calls for nor would justify the separation of these offices.—A.J.G., 26/7/89.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

PUBLIC SERVICE INQUIRY COMMISSION.

(REPORT OF, UPON GENERAL POST OFFICE, MONEY ORDER OFFICE, AND THE ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT, WITH APPENDIX THERETO.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 12 November, 1890.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable CHARLES ROBERT, BARON CARRINGTON, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies :

YOUR LORDSHIP,—

Your Commissioners entered on their investigation in reference to the administration of the General Post Office on Wednesday, September 11th, 1889, and, in accordance with the method pursued by them in other Public Departments, they first examined the Secretary to the Post Office, and also the Superintendent of Electric Telegraph Department and the Comptroller of the Money Order Office, together with the Assistant Secretary of the Post Office and the Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs.

The examinations of these officers, together with the Annual Reports of the Postmaster-General and other returns furnished, enabled your Commissioners to form an idea of the systems under which the three branches of the Department are managed and controlled.

It was then decided to leave the consideration of the Telegraph Department and Money Order Office and take up in the first instance the investigation in detail of the various branches of the Post Office itself.

With this end in view, the Commissioners obtained the use of a room in the General Post Office, and having been furnished with a printed schedule of all the officers and employes, they called in the responsible officers in charge of each room, and examined them as to the possibility of introducing improved methods of dealing with the business of their respective rooms and of ensuring greater efficiency and economy of administration.

The staff of the Head Office of the Post Office, as shown by the schedule, numbers—Officers, 107; Letter-sorters, 30; Letter-carriers, 95; Messengers, 12; Stampers and Sorters, 41; Mail-guards, 13; Mail-boys, 36; Temporary Clerks, Temporary Sorters, Mail-cart Drivers, Porters, Cleaners, and others, 65; making up a total of 399.

It

It seemed difficult at first to understand what possible need there could be for such a large number of clerks in addition to all the letter-sorters and carriers, and when it was shown that the business of the Post Office was carried on at a loss in 1888 of £79,470, and in 1889 of £32,736, or, including the Telegraphs and Money Order Office, of £129,277 in 1888, and of £104,890 in 1889 (these figures are exclusive of interest on capital value of public buildings used by the Department), there appeared to be scope for some proposals in the direction of a more economic administration.

It was pointed out, however, by the Heads of the Department that the great cost and the large staff was a necessity arising from the rapid development of postal communication, both foreign and inland, and the multiplication of mails to Europe, America, and India, and also of the intercolonial mails, all of which are despatched with increasing frequency.

There are in the suburban and country districts 330 official and 930 non-official postmasters, and to carry the mails from place to place there are about 700 contractors, although so far as the railway extends the mails are carried by train in care of special mail guards. Some of the principal country post-offices, such as Albury, Goulburn, and Bathurst, have a staff of from 9 to 14 employes.

The business of the Head Office is distributed between 24 branches, viz. :—

	Staff.
1. Secretary and Assistant Secretary.	6
2. B. Division—Record Branch	4

THE RECORD BRANCH, B DIVISION.

Staff, 6.

Deals with 17,421 letters per annum, relating to the improvement, extension, and changes in the Postal, Telegraphic, Money Order, and Government Savings Bank services, including all appointments of officials, changes of time-tables, Parliamentary matters, ocean mail, inland mail, and other contracts, correspondence and conventions with foreign countries, the erection and repair of Government buildings used as post-offices, leasing and fitting up of premises used as post-offices. It was thought that some of the papers were recorded with too much elaboration, and that time and labour might be economised, especially in regard to Register E, which contains applications for employment. The system adopted at present is to enter in the Record Book every application, with registered number, giving in columns date of application, name, address, name of person recommending applicant, and other details. To this Record Book there is an index under the name of the applicant only. In a second book there is a classified record under the headings of clerks, letter-sorters, stampers and sorters, mail-guards and mail-boys, and also of persons applying applying for appointment in the Telegraph and Money Order Office, and for miscellaneous appointments. Rough books are also kept containing lists of applicants in each class.

The number of documents recorded in the branch in 1889 was 17,421.

Your Commissioners consider that the simplest possible registration of these applications is all that is necessary, as they can be classified and filed away till required for reference, and when action has been taken upon any application it can then have proper record as being the first step in the official history of the person appointed.

It was noted that some papers which had already been recorded in this Branch were subsequently again recorded in the Money Order Office or the Telegraph Department. The Commissioners do not think this double record is necessary.

CORRESPONDENCE BRANCH.

Staff, 4.

This Branch uses the type-writers as far as practicable in carrying out its duties. The smallness of this staff is explained by the fact that they are chiefly occupied with correspondence of an executive character, while the routine correspondence is performed in the branches dealing with the particular business. Where it can be done, correspondence is carried on by printed forms and circulars.

INLAND MAIL BRANCH.

Staff, 5.

Deals with papers in connection with mail contracts, inland and ocean services time-tables, railway extensions, postal guides, &c.

The work of issuing time-tables is a most important matter, as any error would cause confusion in delivery of mails.

The sorting and examination of time-bills entails a considerable amount of work, and fully occupies the time of the staff.

APPOINTMENT BRANCH.

Staff, 9.

The duties of the officers of this branch comprise all matters pertaining to establishment or discontinuance of Post and Receiving Offices and all changes therein, establishment, alteration or discontinuance of mail routes, appointments, dismissals, retirements, leave of absence, suspensions, resignations, alterations of salaries, allowances of all kinds, stamp vendors licenses, contracts, changes of rates of postage, office furniture, fittings, &c., besides a variety of other duties arising out of conveyance of mails. The assistance of an extra clerk is required, as the staff have to do overtime work often amounting to an extra four hours a day.

STORE BRANCH.

Staff, 4.

It is considered that the work of this Branch could easily be performed by two energetic men.

MESSENGERS.

The necessity for the large staff of Messengers has not been explained, there being 16 in all. One has been absent for several months. So far as your Commissioners see 10 messengers should be able to do all necessary work.

C AND D DIVISION.—MISSING LETTER IRREGULARITY BRANCH.

Staff, 14.

This branch deals with all complaints of every kind, whether relating to missing letters, parcels and packets or telegrams, money orders, or any other matters affecting the delivery of postal matter, and with all irregularities on the part of mail contractors, postmasters, and employes of all sorts. In dealing with these complaints many references and inquiries have to be made, and records of a special and private kind have to be kept to enable the authorities to trace missing letters and prevent peculation on the part of employes. This branch is conducted in an efficient manner.

ACCOUNT

ACCOUNT AND CASH BRANCH.

Staff, 22.

Thirteen clerks and a messenger are employed in the account branch, and this appears to your Commissioners to be too large a staff for the duties to be performed, although under the present system all have full employment. The system appears to have worked well hitherto, but your Commissioners are of opinion that it is decidedly defective, inasmuch as the books are not kept by double entry, and the accounts are not in a form which admits of their being readily balanced. A number of subsidiary ledgers are kept, but though they are called ledgers they are really journals, each one dealing with certain special accounts such as revenue stamp sales, public departments, postmasters, contractors, &c.

An examination of the principal ledger showed that many entries were made direct from documents or vouchers without being journalised.

As much of the Accountant's work originates in the Cash Branch, your Commissioners suspended their investigation in the Account Branch until they had examined the work of the Cashier and the officers of his staff. Here again they found the system defective and complicated, the Cashier being unable at once to show, by reference to his cash-book, what value of stamps he had in his safes, although he could do it from fragmentary memoranda. It was pointed out to him that each transaction of receipt and issue of stamps should be at once entered in a book to be called Stamp Treasury Book, and the balance in the safe shown after each transaction.

The Cashier stated that owing to the pressure of work in preparing cheques for quarterly payments to non-official postmasters the Stamp Stock Book had not been written up, but a roughly entered sheet was produced as the draft from which the entry would shortly be made. The memos. in the safes agreed with this sheet, but it did not appear to your Commissioners that this was a proper mode of dealing with what is virtually a cash account.

Two books are kept in the Cashier's Branch, and one in the Accountant's Branch, which contain almost the same information, detailed at great length, in triplicate, and it is proposed to slightly alter the form of the principal book and make it serve the purpose of the three now in use. In its new form it would become a journalised cash-book, and would show daily all the transactions of the Cashier's Branch, with the daily balance extended, which should agree with the Stamp Treasury Book. For the convenience of transfer from the Cashier to the Accountant there might be two of these books for use on alternate days.

Other matters in reference to the Cashier's Branch will be dealt with further on.

Your Commissioners having made themselves acquainted with the relations existing between the Cashier's Branch and the Accountant's Branch, returned to their investigation of the latter, and they now advise a radical alteration in the method of dealing with the accounts, consolidating all transactions on a proper business basis by adoption of a complete system of double entry and the use of a journal, cash-book, and ledger, which shall show a daily balanced record of all the business of the Department. This system has been fully explained to the Accountant and Cashiers. Some of the present books will be required as subsidiary registers, but others can be abridged or discontinued, and the eight ledgers now kept for postmasters' accounts can be done away with under improved regulations in reference to the issue and sale of stamps, and payment of salaries and allowances. Your Commissioners feel so strongly on this point that they recommend that the Government should at once adopt the new system indicated above, which can, in their opinion, be carried out with greater efficiency than is attained by the present mode of keeping the accounts, and with a reduction in the number of clerks. If this is approved of, the Commissioners are prepared to institute the new system under their personal supervision. There are many matters of minute detail in regard to foreign postal matters and inland mail contracts which seem to be absolutely necessary; but the docket system in reference to underpaid letters, &c., involves so much routine work, both at country post-offices and at the Head Office, to collect a revenue of about £2,000 per annum, that your Commissioners recommend its abolition, and the introduction of a "more to pay" stamp similar to that in use under the American system. These stamps should be of a distinguishing colour, and only available as a means of collecting deficient postage and fines thereon. The great bulk of letters are posted within a few minutes of the closing of the mails, and the present system of preparing two docket forms for each letter on which the postage is short throws too much responsibility on the postmaster at a specially busy time, and it is thought that many letters are passed without notice which are really underpaid. There is, therefore, a loss of revenue which it is believed would be prevented if the plan proposed were adopted. In order to induce special diligence in this matter a commission might be allowed to the postmasters. If these proposals are carried out a more efficient system will result, and the services of several clerks be liberated for duty in other branches if required.

Returning to a consideration of the Cash Branch, your Commissioners are of opinion that too much time and labour is expended in the recording of the issue and sale of stamps, so as to show the number sold of each denomination, and in keeping detailed accounts with licensed vendors. The Cashier should, of course, keep a record of the denominations and value of stamps furnished to him by the Government Printer on the requisition of the Secretary to the Post Office, and the form of Cash Book suggested will show the daily issue of each denomination of stamps, but when once issued by him to the window clerk or to the stamp sales clerk they should be treated as cash without regard to denomination of the stamps.

In the issue of stamps to postmasters at present, discrepancies often occur through the cash remittance being more or less than the value of stamps asked for, thus creating debits or credits which have to be posted to their accounts in the ledger. Regulations should be issued that remittances must be in even money, and not in fractions of a £, and that no ledger entries should in future be made to personal accounts for the mere exchange of stamps for cash, and thus dispense with the necessity for keeping the eight ledgers already referred to, to record these transactions. We also find that much time and labour are expended in preparing abstracts or synopses for the Auditor-General which are of no value. The Commission are of opinion that the present mode of drawing up the attested accounts in detail may be discontinued, and a much shorter form be adopted which will meet all the requirements of the Auditor-General.

An alteration in reference to the payments of postmasters by separate cheques would cause a large saving of time and labour, and fines should be recovered apart from their salaries.

It has been found that an arrangement at present exists between the Telegraph Department and the Money Order Office by which the former pays to the latter the salaries of a large number of officers by a single cheque, giving a schedule of the officers to be credited. The amount set down against each name is credited to the officer in his account with the Money Order Office, and a credit note is sent to him, on receipt of which he withdraws the authorized amount from the funds in his hands. This is stated to be an advantageous arrangement so far as the Money Order Office is concerned, and a great saving of labour to the Accountant's Branch of the Telegraph Department. It has been ascertained that the same arrangement could be adopted in paying the official postmasters and also many of the non-official postmasters, so that the Cashier's Branch of the Post Office could be relieved of all monthly payments to postmasters, and the quarterly payments to about 200 non-official postmasters. This would be a great reduction of work to the Cashier. The remainder of the non-official postmasters, and of the postal contractors, would have to be paid as at present.

POSTAL INSPECTORS.

In a large department like the Post Office a properly organized Inspectorial Staff is a necessity, and your Commissioners are of opinion that it is very desirable that every Inspector should be conversant with electric telegraphy so as to make a complete inspection not only of the offices and books but also of the instruments and lines. There are at present four Postal Inspectors, two of whom are qualified to carry out a full inspection. It is recommended that in future a knowledge of electrical science shall be required in the candidates for appointment as Inspectors.

MAIL

MAIL BRANCH.

Staff, 344.

This Branch includes the receipt and delivery of letters and despatch of mails, Dead Letter Office, Registry Office, Private Boxes, Stamp Sales' Office, and other matters, such as record of addresses and miscellaneous duties kindred to the above.

The business of sorting and delivering appears to be expeditiously and efficiently performed, and the personnel of the staff is said to be very satisfactory.

The chief feature in the Sorting Room was the enormous bulk of newspapers passing through the office daily, and it was stated that the carriage of them, both by inland and foreign mails, was a heavy burden on the Department, and entailed a very large annual expenditure. It is estimated that 31,200,000 newspapers are posted annually in this Colony free of postage, and making a liberal allowance for papers which would not be posted if postage were charged, it is thought that the enforcement of a postage of $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per paper would yield a revenue of probably £40,000 per annum. The imposition of such postage is recommended, with a limit as to weight, but to do this the law would require to be altered. As an illustration of how the privilege of free postage is misused, agents in the country return to the metropolitan publishing offices about 7 tons of unsold papers per week simply to balance their accounts. Publishing offices should pay a composition for the postage of their newspapers somewhat in the nature of the composition paid by the banks on the issue of bank notes. This would save a large amount of labour in the obliteration of stamps. The papers for each township or district should be addressed at the publishing offices and posted in parcels to avoid the labour of sorting the separate papers at the head office.

The Dead Letter Office is perhaps one of the most confidential departments of the Post Office, and is located in unsuitable quarters, and it is noted that the business is carried on largely by temporary clerks. A large amount of valuable property in shape of cheques, drafts, specie, and jewellery passes through this office for return to writers or senders through being misdirected or unstamped, and the amounts paid into the Treasury during the last seventeen years, for which the owners cannot be traced, are as follows:—

December, 1873	£110	9	6
July, 1882	137	16	7
December, 1886	513	10	5
Total	£761	16	6

This amount was contained in Dead Letters, i.e., letters which could not be returned to the writers or delivered to the addressees, and which were advertised as unclaimed, and then dealt with as required by the Postage Act.

The unclaimed money and property is kept in a safe, and periodically paid over to the Treasury; but though each letter and its contents and disposal are duly recorded, there is not at present any book which would show by easy reference the value of property now in the safe.

As the law at present stands considerable delay occurs in the return of letters to the senders when the addressees cannot be found. Extra work is thrown on the Department, commercial houses complain that they suffer considerable inconvenience, as their business is retarded, and there is abundant evidence that complications often arise which could not happen if, in the case of all letters between places within the Colony, they could be opened and returned to the writers as soon as it is known that the addressee cannot be found at the address given. The inclusion of such letters in the Unclaimed Letter List does not appear to serve any useful purpose, and under an amended law it is recommended that the printing of such lists be discontinued.

Your Commissioners have received ready assistance and information from the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Post Office, and have pleasure in expressing their opinion that both officers are worthy of commendation for the assiduity and intelligence with which they have conducted the business of the large and daily increasing department under their control.

MONEY ORDER OFFICE AND GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANK.

This is a sub-department under the control of the Postmaster-General, and is intimately connected with the Post Office, as all the country business is carried on by Postmasters, who are specially authorized in the chief business centres throughout the Colony to act as agents of this Department in addition to their other duties.

Immediately prior to the inspection of the Commission some alterations and rearrangements of the staff had been made consequent on the retirement of F. W. Hill, Esq., from the position of Superintendent and the appointment of A. J. Doak, Esq., to the vacancy thereby created, the salary being reduced from £860 per annum to £700, and the Department being brought in many ways more under the control of the Secretary for the Post Office.

The Money Order Office and the Government Savings Bank constitute two distinct branches, and transactions in each branch have to be separately dealt with.

The staff of the head office number 59, viz., the Superintendent and Chief Clerk, 18 Clerks in the Money Order Branch, 34 in the Savings Bank, 1 Storekeeper, and 4 Messengers. A schedule showing the names, ages, length of service, salary, and duties of each officer is appended to this report. The number of Money Order Offices in the country districts is 518, and of Savings' Banks, 372.

The country postmasters keep no individual accounts with depositors, but report all receipts to the head office, where all the personal accounts are kept, and no payments can be made, except on notice duly given and authority obtained from the head office. Payments are not limited to the office at which the deposit is made, but persons moving about the Colony can pay in at any office, and withdraw at any other office convenient to them, after reference to the head office, a convenience to the public which entails a large amount of work in the head office.

The system of accounts at first sight appeared to be peculiar and complicated, but your Commissioners made a thorough examination of the various books, and did not rest satisfied until they were convinced of the necessity for each book, and saw that the system was well adapted to properly record and check the transactions of the Department.

In its general details the English system has been closely followed with modifications and improvements which experience has shown to be desirable in view of special requirements of a local character.

Your Commissioners recommend that the allowance to the Storekeeper, J. A. Stokes, of about £40 per annum for commission on duty stamps, be disallowed.

Your Commissioners have much pleasure in reporting that, after a very careful examination of the work of the various officers, and a full investigation into the general routine and administration of the Department, they can express a hearty commendation of the ability and industry displayed by the Superintendent and his officers. The business of the Department is progressive, and the number of transactions is rapidly increasing year by year.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

Your Commissioners having completed their investigations into the administration of the Post Office and the Money Order Office, turned their attention to this Department, the third under the control of the Postmaster-General.

Though the business of the Electric Telegraph Department ramifies through all the principal centres of population throughout the Colony, and employs a large staff of operators and others in the outlying districts, it is greatly concentrated at the Head Office, where, besides the administrative officers and those required for the adjustment of accounts, for correspondence and records, there are in the operating-room at Sydney about 100 persons employed; the total staff of all classes at the Head Office being 467, and the officers in the various country offices numbering 788. Out of the latter number 225 are also officers of the Post Office.

The

The same general rule was adopted in the investigations into this Department as had been found effective elsewhere. The Head of the Department and the other superior officers were first conferred with as to what means they could suggest for the more effective and economic working of the Department, and then opportunity was afforded to any other members of the staff to submit any matters they desired to lay before your Commissioners.

A schedule of all the officers was also obtained, and is appended to this Report, which shows all necessary details of the services and duties of each.

It soon became abundantly evident that the relations between the Head of this Department and some of his responsible officers were not of a character to subserve its best interests; and as the inquiry progressed so much friction and ill-feeling became apparent that your Commissioners are forced to the conclusion that the present position of affairs should not be allowed to continue. It is impossible for any Department to maintain its effectiveness and retain the public confidence unless the officer-in-charge has ability and tact to secure the ready and cordial assistance of all the officers of his staff.

The chief administrative officers of the Telegraph Department are the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent, and your Commissioners regret to report that they have not been on friendly terms for a considerable period.

ACCOUNT BRANCH.

In this Branch there are an Accountant, five permanent clerks, and two temporary clerks. There is a vacancy at present caused by the recent retirement of Mr. Board, who was in receipt of £340 per annum. Your Commissioners have made very careful inquiry into the work performed by this officer, and recommend that the vacancy be not filled, as the Staff, as at present constituted, is, in their opinion, quite large enough for the work of the Branch, if the suggestions of the Commission be carried out.

The Accountant is allowed overtime at the rate of £5 per month for keeping telephone accounts. This should be at once discontinued, and a better disposition made of the duties of the staff, so that the work now charged for as overtime work can be done within office-hours.

The Account Branch should be relieved of the duties pertaining to appointments, promotions, and alterations of salaries, and preparation of returns relating thereto.

The duties of the Cable Clerk should be performed in the Account Branch.

The Appropriation Ledger appears to be burdened with unnecessary details. It should be kept in a more concise form, totals only being posted instead of the particulars of each individual voucher.

CASH BRANCH.

The Cashier has two clerks and a temporary clerk to assist him in his duties. The work of this Branch could be much facilitated if all remittances were sent direct to the Cashier. This would relieve the Assistant Superintendent of part of his present duty, and allow him more time for the general supervision of the internal working of the whole Department, a duty he appears well qualified to carry out, as he has shown a comprehensive knowledge of the business of the Department. The remittances should be entered direct into the cash-book, without incurring the delay of entry, as at present, in the remittance-book; and, if found necessary for use, there might be two cash-books for alternate days.

The Cash Branch should be in close contiguity to the Account Branch, of which it forms a part, to facilitate reference between them.

The Assistant Superintendent should be relieved of the duty of signing the collection-sheets, which should rather be signed by the Cashier.

CHECK

CHECK BRANCH.

This is merely a subdivision of the Account Branch, and should be immediately under the control of the Accountant.

There are at present seventeen clerks and two messengers attached to this Branch. The present system is doubtless very complete and effective, but the errors detected amount to only about £200 per annum, while the cost of the Branch is £2,936 per annum.

Under the present system of checking the Telegraphic business the staff may not be too large, but your Commissioners are satisfied that a large saving could be secured by adopting the system of prepayment of telegrams by stamps, and by substituting an occasional check, as is done in some of the other Colonies and in Europe, for the continuous check now in use.

No alteration in the system would be required so far as the country officers are concerned, except that the officer receiving the telegram for transmission would have to see that the stamps affixed were of the correct value and then obliterate them. The messages and statements would be sent to the Head Office as at present, though some of the forms might require slight alteration. Necessary regulations would of course be issued, and if these were adhered to fraud would rarely occur.

At the Head Office one or two clerks could check the messages each day as received from country offices, to see that the stamp payments were correct and the stamps obliterated.

The Accountant would have the means of checking the business of each officer, as now, if necessary; but the actual check should be limited to a test twice a month of all the business, to be done on particular days not known to the postmasters.

The course to be pursued should be as follows:—The person tendering a telegram for transmission should first affix stamps of the required value. The clerk receiving the message should see that the correct amount is affixed, cancel the stamps, and mark the consecutive number on the message, so that if any number were missing it would be readily observed. The messages would then be dealt with as at present.

CORRESPONDENCE AND RECORD BRANCH.

The Clerk in Charge of Correspondence, who, in our opinion, is an intelligent and efficient officer, should also have charge of the Records. There are five clerks and three temporary clerks in this Branch at present. The temporary clerks are not required, and their services could be dispensed with.

A register has been commenced for the record of the dates of first appointment and other details of the official history of the officers of the Telegraph Department. A competent clerk should be at once entrusted with the completion of this register, as to the want of such a record is attributed much of the discontent which has arisen from officers being promoted without due consideration being given to the claims of those with longer service.

It has come under the notice of the Commissioners that many important papers have not been recorded, though a considerable reduction of work might be secured by doing away with the present mode of recording unimportant papers, such as merely routine forms, circulars, and fines. These trifling matters are dealt with in an unnecessarily elaborate way. It is recommended that when a fine is imposed it should at once be notified verbally to the person fined, if in the Head Office, and entered into a fine-book; the operators' fine-book to be kept by the Manager, and the messengers' fine-book by the messengers' overseer. The fines to be collected in cash, and handed to the Cashier, the Accountant to be furnished with the fine-books each month. The fines appear to be imposed in a somewhat arbitrary manner, and it is recommended that a system of fines should be properly formulated, so that in all cases the fines should be uniform for the same kind of offence. This would obviate the necessity for reference to the higher officers of the Department, much time and labour would be saved, and if the fine-book were indexed, reference thereto would be much easier than to the present departmental records.

MECHANICIAN'S

MECHANICIAN'S BRANCH.

Under the control of the Mechanician there are nine employees, besides two who are denominated messengers, but who are employed in the battery-room, and an operator, who performs the duties of a battery-man. Your Commissioners note several instances in the Telegraph Department where men are appointed as messengers or operators, and then assigned duties of an entirely different character—a fertile source of discontent and disorganization.

Your Commissioners are informed that some proposals have been made for an increase of this Branch; but they recommend that no increase be made, as they do not consider it desirable to build up a large mechanical staff in connection with the Telegraph Department, and in competition with private enterprise. A small staff for repairs may be a necessary adjunct to the Department, but any other work can be better performed under contract.

The rooms used by the Mechanician's Branch are too small for the purpose, and better accommodation should be afforded. A considerable amount of space in the Mechanician's room is taken up by a number of cases, said to be the property of a private individual, not connected with the Department. Instructions should be issued for the removal of these goods.

RECEIVING BRANCH.

This Branch employs thirteen persons, two being called operators, and five messengers. A more correct designation should be given to those who are employed in clerical duties.

Part of the staff is on duty from 9 to 4; the remainder comprises the night staff.

The matter of portorage charges may be alluded to here. The present system, where portorage of telegrams is necessary, is to charge for same and account to the Treasury for the money so received, though it is really not revenue. The officer to whom the telegram is sent for delivery, and who incurs the outlay, has to submit a voucher for the amount, which must be verified by the Accountant and sent to the Treasury for payment, thus causing much delay, extra work, and great inconvenience.

Your Commissioners recommend that where portorage has to be paid by an officer, and the amount can be readily ascertained, it should be collected from the sender of the message, and remitted direct to the officer concerned. In cases of doubt as to the distance to be traversed, or where portorage may be performed by an employee of the Department, in which latter case the portorage charge becomes revenue, the money collected should be placed to a Suspense Account, in charge of the Cashier and Accountant, and the unexpended balance transferred to the Treasury at stated periods. Under such an arrangement as this the person performing the service would either receive his pay at once, or by return post after sending down his voucher to the Accountant.

THE CABLE AND EXPERIMENTAL BRANCH.

There does not appear to be any justification for making this a separate division.

Mr. Dalgarno has recently died, and the position which he filled should be abolished.

The clerks should be placed under the Accountant, and form part of his staff.

Some of the costly scientific instruments, many of which have no direct bearing on telegraphy, should be transferred to the Technical College, or some kindred institution, retaining only such instruments as are of practical departmental value.

The temporary cable-splicer now employed to look after the instruments should, if his services are necessary, be placed under the Overseer of City and Suburban Lines.

The messenger should be dispensed with.

INSPECTORS.

Your Commissioners recommend a rearrangement of this staff, and the complete transfer of the two Railway Telegraph Inspectors to the Railway Department, as the extension of telegraphic communication along the lines for purely railway purposes already precludes the possibility of more than a nominal amount of work being performed for the Telegraph Department.

The

The districts of the Telegraph Inspectors should be defined, and their duties should include the complete inspection of Postal, Money Order, and Telegraph business, as well as telegraph lines and instruments. There should be at least four Inspectors, viz.:—A. Tucker, Metropolitan and Chief Inspector; W. H. Maguire, Western District; J. Y. Nelson, North; M. H. Howard, South. Robert Rutherford to be Overseer of City and Suburban Lines. The Head-quarters of all Inspectors to be in Sydney, where their services would be available for other work.

OPERATING BRANCH.

The present accommodation for this Branch is altogether inconvenient and unsuitable, but provision of an improved character is being made, and more healthy and commodious rooms will be thereby secured.

As the number of persons employed in the operating-room is nearly 100, and the nature of their duties requires the most perfect order and attention to business, it is evident that the person in charge should be competent to maintain thorough discipline and secure the confidence and respect of his subordinates.

Your Commissioners recommend that the Manager should have direct personal control of the staff, and have his seat in the operating-room, so as to exercise a constant supervision.

The fine-book, already alluded to, should be in his personal charge, and a schedule of fines should be formulated, printed, and exhibited in the room.

Much discontent exists among the operators as to certain disabilities they consider themselves to be under in consequence of their being classified under the Rules and Regulations of the Department in such a way as to bring them under section 7 of the Civil Service Act. They state that they have been treated as mechanics, whereas their duty is essentially clerical in its nature, and that a good operator must be also a good clerk. There is some hardship in regard to the most qualified men, but it has been elicited that the operating staff has been largely recruited from the boy messengers, who enter the Service without sufficient examination to qualify them for clerical positions.

It is recommended that an alteration be made in the Rules and Regulations of the Department which will give the operators their proper status, and that the lax system which has prevailed in regard to promotions be no longer allowed to exist.

A higher standard of educational attainments should be required in the boys appointed as messengers, the only present test being that an applicant is required to be able to read addresses on envelopes and to write his name.

At eighteen years of age those boys who have not qualified themselves for promotion to the operating or clerical positions in the Department should be removed, unless they can be utilised as letter-sorters or letter-carriers.

Applicants for transfer to the positions of operators or clerks should produce the necessary proofs of educational attainments; and in the case of operators a certificate of proficiency in telegraphic or electrical knowledge of a certain standard should be required.

The present difficulties arising from defective education would thereby be gradually eliminated, and operators would be eligible for promotion outside the operating room, or in some other Branch of the Post Office, when they begin to suffer from operators' palsy, which is a well-known malady affecting the hands of those who have been engaged for long periods at heavy operating work, but who are still able to take positions in country offices where the work is not continuous.

There is an officer designated "Telegraph Instructor," but this title is a misnomer, as he has never performed the duties of an instructor. If the suggestions be carried out—that candidates should produce certificates of competence from the Technical College, or in the case of candidates in the country from the Inspectors—the position of "Telegraph Instructor" will not be necessary.

It is recommended that where officers are appointed to the combined office of Post and Telegraph Master they should be paid by one Department, and be considered, for administrative purposes, the officer of that Department.

The

The Senior Assistant Manager is apparently not sufficiently vigorous to be in charge of the operating-room, and it would be conducive to more efficient discipline if a younger and more active officer were appointed to this position, and the gentleman now occupying the position removed elsewhere.

The office of the Inquiry Clerk should be on the ground-floor, where he would be easily accessible to the public. The duties of this clerk are now largely carried out by the Receiving Staff.

DESPATCH BRANCH.

Your Commissioners note that in this Branch two appointments have been made within the year,—one man being forty years of age, and the other fifty-three years of age,—as temporary messengers' overseers. These employees are engaged in outdoor supervision of the boy messengers, but we consider that they are quite unnecessary, and should be at once dispensed with. The book-check which records the time occupied by each messenger in going out with messages and returning to the office, and the fines imposed on messengers in all cases of delay or of complaints by the public, is a sufficient safeguard against loitering; and a further incentive to expeditious delivery is offered in the result system, by which the boys are paid according to the number of telegrams delivered.

The present Despatch Room, which is below the street level, is damp, and is said to be unhealthy. Some improvements were being made in it at the time of your Commissioners' inspection, which it is hoped will render the place more habitable.

In dealing with the Operating Branch suggestions have been made as to the rules under which the boy messengers should be admitted, and subsequently dealt with as regards promotion. We would here suggest that one or more telegraph instruments should be provided in the despatch-room upon which boys desiring to qualify as operators should be allowed to practise under the supervision and instruction of the messengers' overseer. It is understood that the present overseer is not qualified to teach, and he has only been appointed to his position within the last four years, apparently without proper regard to the claims of others in the Department to whom a salary of £240 per annum would have been substantial promotion. It is necessary that the occupant of this position should have a complete disciplinary control over the messengers, and, as in the case of the operators, there should be a printed schedule of fines on view in the despatch-room. Fines, when enforced, should be at once notified to the person concerned; entry should be made in the fine-book. Fines should be paid in cash, and the cash handed to the Cashier, the fine-book being sent periodically to the Accountant. This would save work in the Record and Account Branches.

STORE BRANCH.

Inadequate provision is at present provided for telegraphic stores and material. There are two stores occupied in the city—one recently taken at a rental of £624, and another, a galvanized shed of most insecure construction, which has been leased for several years at £300 per annum. The lease of the latter premises will expire in September, 1890, and they should be vacated on expiry of the lease. The store recently leased is unsuitable and expensive, and provision should be made for bringing all the stores under one roof, and into premises where storage, delivery, and supervision could be economically and efficiently carried out. This is impossible under the present arrangement, and the new store has not sufficient capacity to hold the materials necessary.

We are informed that iron telegraph-poles and telegraph-wire to a considerable value are exposed to all weathers in an open paddock, the property of the Railway Commissioners, at or near Auburn.

Much valuable space in the new store is occupied by old, imperfect, and obsolete instruments, some of which might be sold by auction, and others, perhaps, utilised by the Mechanician.

The average value of the stock in charge of the Storekeeper is said to be about £26,000.

As

As telegraphic material is often a speciality not manufactured in the Colony, nor yet imported into it in the ordinary course of general commerce, tenders for supplies should be called for by the Agent-General wherever they can be most economically obtained. Specifications for contracts should stipulate a minimum and maximum quantity of each material, and deliveries should be so arranged as to prevent an undue pressure on the storage accommodation, and yet provide for replenishing the stock at short notice, so as to obviate the delays that sometimes occur through depending on agents and firms in this city, who may, or may not, have a sufficient stock of any required material to meet the urgent needs of the Department.

Cash deposits should be required, instead of personal bonds, on contracts, and penalties should be promptly enforced for non-performance of agreements.

ERECTION AND MAINTENANCE OF TELEGRAPH LINES.

There can be no doubt that an extravagant and, at the same time, inefficient method of dealing with the erection and repairing of lines has hitherto obtained in this Colony. Your Commissioners have given special attention to this matter, and are convinced that a more systematic arrangement is urgently needed. The persons appointed to supervise the work of the contractors are, in many cases, quite unfit for their positions. They have no qualifications whatever for the duties. They are persons temporarily employed at a daily rate, and they have therefore a direct personal interest in any delay which will prolong their tenure of office. It has been shown that the cost of supervision has borne an undue proportion to the cost of construction, varying from 20 to 40 per cent., or more.

The Overseers should be good bushmen, well-qualified, sober, and reliable men, and should be on the Permanent Staff.

It is understood that there are twenty-five men now under the Overseer of City and Suburban Lines who have been trained to perform the work of repairs and construction of lines in the city and surrounding districts, and some of them could, perhaps, be sent out as Overseers as occasion requires.

Hitherto proposed lines have not been surveyed, but two men have frequently been sent out with the contractor—one to precede the working party, and to peg the direction to be followed; while the other Overseer saw that the post-holes were dug 5 feet deep, and the posts properly erected. If for any cause the contractor was delayed, or even withdrew his men from the work, the two Overseers remained in the neighbourhood of the line and drew full pay, though no work was being done.

In future lines should be surveyed prior to tenders being called, and instead of the present extravagant and wasteful expenditure, a proper specification should be drawn up to include everything necessary to the peculiar conditions of each particular line, the Surveyor and District Inspector furnishing reports, to be used as guides in preparing the specification.

Cash deposits should be required from contractors, instead of personal bonds, and the conditions as to penalties should be sufficiently stringent to fully protect the Department from any loss or undue delay.

In many cases the post-holes might be dug and posts laid alongside, and the work inspected in sections by the nearest Station-master.

Where this cannot be done, an Inspector should make periodic visits to the line while in course of erection, and the Overseer could then bring under his notice any faults of construction which the contractor may have failed to make good on the representations of the Overseer.

Some of the Inspector's reports on lines constructed and handed over, and paid for before inspection, give abundant proof that a responsible officer should inspect the line before payment is made.

In the case of short lines the nearest Station-master could have charge of the material, and in larger contracts the contractor might be held responsible for its safe custody.

The repairing and maintenance of lines is also a matter of importance, and here again we have proof of defective and lax administration.

The

The two following cases are cited as instances, among others which have come under the notice of the Commission, in which the business of the Telegraph Department has appeared to be conducted in a lax manner:—

The Superintendent, Accountant, and Storekeeper were examined about the various premises used for storage purposes by the Department, and from them it was elicited that there are two stores in Kent-street, and that a paddock at Auburn, the property of the Railway Commissioners, is utilised for storage of iron poles and telegraph wire. Subsequently certain papers were called for by the Commission, and on perusing these it was found that there were other premises under rental of £390 per annum, of which nothing had been said by any of the above witnesses. As the name of Mr. Rutherford, the City and Suburban Overseer of Telegraph Lines appeared on the papers, he was called in and examined. When asked as to the rental he replied that it was £300 per annum. A casual scrutiny of the first report by Mr. Rutherford, as to his inspection and inquiry about the premises, revealed the fact that the amount mentioned by him as rent, viz., £300, had been altered to £390; and this he said had been done without his knowledge, and without reference of his report back to him. This report is dated 11th September, 1884, and is minuted: "Prepare minute.—E.C.C., 12/9/84," and "Minute prepared.—J.F., 12/9/84."

The minute so prepared was signed "E. C. Cracknell, 12/9/84," and a similar alteration of the rental from £300 to £390 appears in it. Witnesses who were examined could throw no light on the matter as to the alteration.

The Minister's minute is:—"The rent seems very high. Can no other place be got?—J.N., 15/9/84."

On the 19th September it was referred by Mr. Cracknell for further report, and Mr. Rutherford's report of same date concludes with these words:—"I do not think the rent is too high." But he makes no remark as to the alteration, and when examined he said he had no recollection of seeing such alteration.

On the same date (the 19th) the matter was dealt with by the Minister thus:—"On reading Mr. Rutherford's report of this date I approve of Taylor's shed and land being taken at £390."

The further minutes are:—"Draw out an agreement as a quarterly tenancy.—E.C.C., 22/9/84," and "Mr. John Taylor with agreement.—J.F., 23/10/84."

No offer in writing appears to have been made by the owner of the property, and, so far as can be ascertained, no agreement was ever signed.

Mr. Taylor was examined, and said that the previous tenants paid £403 per annum. That he could not explain the offer of the place to Mr. Rutherford at £300. His communication was by telephone from his manager at the wharf, Mr. Molan, who is since dead. Subsequently he met Mr. Cracknell in the street and reduced the price from £403 to £390, in view of having the Government as tenants.

The alteration of figures in a report sent in by an officer of the Department without special reference to him for explanation, is, in the opinion of your Commissioners, very objectionable.

The second case has reference to the leasing of stores now occupied by the Department in Kent-street.

On the 8th October, 1889, tenders were called for from persons willing to let to the Department premises within the city suitable for stores for the Electric Telegraph Department, such tenders to be furnished by 21st October.

Eleven tenders were received as per schedule with the papers. The most suitable premises offered appear to have been inspected, and there is a report, dated 13th November, 1889, from Messrs. P. B. Walker, Assistant Superintendent of the Telegraph Department, and Wyndham J. Davies, of the Post Office, in favour of leasing a store in Sussex-street from Messrs. Tate & Co., at £750, in which they state, "if these are accepted from the end-of the year the store in Kent-street would then be on our hands until next September, after which date we should be occupying the new premises at £100 per annum less rental than we are now paying for the present insufficient accommodation."

A minute of 22 October shows that the eleven tenders were sent to the Superintendent of Telegraphs, and on the same day noted by him: "Place in Schedule.—E.C.C., 22/10/89." It was returned to him the same day with the Schedule, and no further action on that minute is shown till it was marked, "Tenders declined.—W.T.G., 23/12/89."

It appears from other papers that on the 5th December Mr. Hedges, the storekeeper, inspected and reported on stores not mentioned in the Schedule, in the following terms:—"I have visited the stores in Kent-street, at the rear of Messrs. Gregory & Co.'s premises in Clarence-street, and do not think it advisable to remove to them from the premises occupied at present. The rent asked is £800 per annum, and the accommodation inferior to that afforded by Tate's store.—(Signed)—F. V. HEDGES." This report does not appear to have been submitted to the Secretary of the Post Office, or to the Postmaster-General.

No offer in writing had on that date been made of these stores, but on the following day Messrs. H. P. Gregory & Co. wrote to the Secretary of the Post Office, offering the store at £624 per annum. This letter was referred to the Superintendent of Telegraphs on 9/12/89, and he recommended the acceptance of Gregory & Co.'s offer by minute of same date.

It was then pointed out by the Secretary to the Post Office that H. P. Gregory & Co.'s name did not appear in the schedule of tenders, and several minutes passed between the Secretary of the Post Office and the Superintendent of Telegraphs, in which the former asked for explanation of the delay in dealing with the tenders. This matter does not appear to your Commissioners to have been satisfactorily explained.

Your Commissioners are of opinion that if Messrs. Tate & Co.'s store, which was duly offered under tender, and which had an area of 18,800 feet, had been taken, rather than that of Messrs. H. P. Gregory & Co. (the offer of which was entirely irregular) with an area of only 11,000 feet, and with inferior appliances, the second store in Kent-street, for which rent is paid of £300 per annum, could, on expiration of the lease, have been dispensed with.

It is now stated that it will be necessary to have another store to contain goods which Gregory's store has not capacity for, whereas in Tate & Co.'s store there would have been abundant space and greater convenience for handling all stores required for the Department.

TELEPHONE BRANCH.

The popular use of telephones is daily extending, and the Branch will soon form an important adjunct to the Telegraph Department. There are now 1,872 telephones in use in the city and suburbs and in the country. Of these 445 are in use in Public Departments of the Government, 1,393 by business firms, and 34 are connected with private dwellings. In the cases of some business firms the telephone is in almost continuous use, entailing much labour upon the switch-board attendants, while the telephones in private dwellings are seldom, comparatively, brought into requisition. It is suggested that some modification should be made in the charges, to equalise more equitably the cost to those who use their instruments very seldom and those who demand constant attention.

There appears to be the same kind of strained relations between the Manager of Telephones and the Superintendent of Telegraphs that has been referred to as existing in other Branches of the Telegraph Department.

Delays have been allowed to occur, and public interests have suffered, but it has not been easy for your Commissioners to fix the responsibility fully in the cases that have come under their notice.

Greater dispatch should be used in dealing with papers, and on receipt all communications in reference to telephones should be expeditiously recorded, and at once sent to the Manager.

Your

Your Commissioners are of opinion that Mr. Hammand is a zealous and intelligent officer, and well qualified for his position.

The supply of telephonic instruments appears to be in the hands of one firm in Sydney, and delays have occurred through their stock running out. As the demand is rapidly growing for telephonic communication, it is important that it should not be checked by any such contingency; and in calling for tenders the specification should state a minimum and maximum number, so as to obviate waiting for arrival of instruments from America or Europe.

It is suggested that a system of public automatic telephones should be provided, similar to the system in use in Manchester, where, by dropping a coin into a slot in the machine, the instrument is brought into circuit with the Exchange for a given period, which can be extended, if necessary, by the payment of another coin. The system is said to have worked well where it has been adopted under proper safeguards.

Government Departments using the Telephone Exchange should be debited with the cost of the service.

ELECTRIC LIGHT BRANCH.

This Branch, though under the control and superintendence of the head of the Telegraph Department, has nothing in common with Postal or Telegraphic business, and is not a source of revenue. It should therefore not appear as a charge against the Telegraph Department in the Estimates.

There are at present installations at Parliament House, Circular Quay, and Cowper's Wharf, and the cost incurred should be made a charge against the Departments benefited.

AMALGAMATION OF THE POST OFFICE, MONEY ORDER OFFICE, AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENTS.

Your Commissioners have carefully considered the question of the amalgamation of the Postal, Money Order, and Electric Telegraph Departments, and they find that a considerable saving can be effected by the amalgamation of these three Branches of the Service.

With the exception of eighteen offices, all the telegraph offices are now amalgamated with the post-offices in the country districts. There appears to be no reason why these eighteen should not be amalgamated in the same way. By adopting this course a very considerable annual saving of salaries can be secured.

The eighteen premises now occupied exclusively as telegraph offices are valued at £32,000. These, if vacated, could be occupied by other Branches of the Service, or let at good rentals. Recently an arrangement of this nature has been carried out at Armidale, and the officers of several Government Departments have been accommodated in the vacated premises.

In some cases slight alterations to the post-office premises may be required, in order to carry on the combined Services; but it is ascertained that generally the present premises are sufficiently commodious to accommodate both Branches. The present system of divided control creates a large amount of work and expense, which would be obviated by the complete amalgamation of the three Branches. The Secretary of the Post Office would have the whole service under his control, and might be assisted by two Assistant Secretaries (one being for postal, and the other for the telegraph duties), and the Controller of the Money Order Office.

This concentration of duties would secure a better control of the Department, and give greater facilities for promptly dealing with the departmental offices and the public, as well as providing for the strictest economy in working the establishment.

The rearrangement of offices is a matter that has engaged our earnest attention, and by combination of appointments, centred in one head, great improvement can be effected throughout the three Departments.

If this is carried out it will be necessary to abolish the offices of both the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs.

The

The duties of accountants in the three Departments should be centred in a Chief Accountant, to be assisted by sub-accountants, if necessary.

By the amalgamation of the Correspondence and Record Branches of the three Departments another large saving can be effected.

The present arrangement of stores is very extravagant. There are three storekeepers, where one could do the work without any difficulty. A combined Post and Telegraph Master has now to apply by three different requisitions, thus rendering it necessary for the storekeepers to be careful that double supplies are not sent upon the requisition of an officer through his asking for the same stores from each Department. It is proposed to put the stores under one "Head Storekeeper." A large saving would result if the proposal is carried into effect.

The general clerical duties can be provided for by the combined staff, and performed in such manner as may be necessary under the amalgamated scheme.

The operating staff would of necessity remain intact, but under the new regime many reforms might be judiciously introduced.

Under the amalgamation scheme a re-arrangement of rooms in the Head Office will be necessary, and the various officers of each particular Branch concentrated.

The present scattered, irregular, and unmethodical arrangement of the Telegraph staff renders it difficult to accurately estimate what further economy can be effected.

In the submitted scheme a large saving would be effected, but a more important consideration presents itself in the fact that it will increase the efficiency in working the Departments, add to the convenience of the public, promote economy, and save trouble in dealing with the officers by having only one head.

The proposals embodied in this scheme cannot embrace the full amount of saving which might arise annually through judicious management, because when the whole of the Departments are amalgamated many ways of saving expenditure would occur, which it might not be prudent to adopt at first.

In closing this Report your Commissioners think it desirable to again refer to the large annual deficit which results from the present working of the Departments under the control of the Postmaster-General, and while making full allowance for the circumstances under which postal communication is maintained, and telegraph lines are erected and worked, in a newly-settled and sparsely-peopled territory, they are of opinion that every effort should be made to keep down the expenditure, and to make the Departments self-supporting. It is also considered that further economy could be exercised in regard to the erection and leasing of expensive buildings for Post and Telegraph offices in too close proximity to established offices. More facilities for postage of letters by means of letter-boxes might be afforded and provision made for sale of stamps near to the letter-boxes, through licensed vendors, but the Department appears to have yielded too easily to demands for more expensive offices than the revenue derivable therefrom would appear to justify. A small postage on newspapers would go far towards bridging the gap between revenue and expenditure, and, considering how large is the cost to the Department of the sorting, carriage, and delivery of newspapers to distant parts of the Colony, it seems only fair that those who benefit by them should contribute their quota towards the revenue.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

REGISTRAR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

(REPORT ON, BY REGISTRAR-GENERAL.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 13 August, 1890.

The Registrar-General to The Principal Under Secretary.

Registrar-General's Department,

Sir,

Sydney, 30 June, 1890.

Entering upon the duties of Registrar-General on the 25th March last, I considered that a general inquiry into the discipline, organization and conduct of the business of the Department to be of the most urgent importance.

The immediate result of this investigation was most unsatisfactory and proved conclusively that the greatest laxity prevailed throughout the Department; that there was no recognized authority in the conduct of the business of the several branches; and that no disciplinary rules were in existence, or, so far as I could ascertain, had ever been issued.

The want, prolonged for many years, of any authoritative regulations was painfully evidenced, and to the absence of these must, in large measure, be attributed the irregularities of attendance, the disregard of essential authority, and the apparent ignorance or forgetfulness of the Civil Service Regulations, which undoubtedly existed at the end of March last.

I do not intend to convey that insubordination, intentional and aggressive, was rife; or that any of the officers would have overtly disobeyed or wilfully ignored any direct instruction.

On the contrary, the instructions—necessarily somewhat stringent—which were issued by me for the guidance and better discipline of the Department, on the 3rd April, have been (so far as my own observation would permit a personal supervision, and the reports of the responsible officers endorse the opinion) readily adhered to and observed by the whole of the officers.

I enclose a copy of the printed instructions referred to.

Turning to that individual branch of the Department which, from past experience, it might reasonably be supposed would demand the earliest attention, I made strict inquiry into the existing system connected with the collection, custody, checking, and disposal of the Revenue and Trust Funds of the Department.

The system in operation I found to be inefficient in itself, and unsatisfactory in its application.

Mr. W. A. Abbott, the Deputy Registrar-General of Deeds, whose duties, within the proper scope of that capacity, reasonably occupy his time, had, for a considerable period, after as well as before the defalcations occurring last year, been appointed by the Registrar-General to supervise, check, and vouch for the correctness of all collections.

This duty it was manifestly impossible he could properly perform, even under the skeleton system then in operation. I

517—A

[920 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £3 0s. 5d.]

I immediately relieved Mr. Abbott of this duty, and desired Mr. Noble, an officer of varied experience, of steadiness and good knowledge of figures, to undertake its performance.

At the same time, the method of check was entirely altered, and the personal supervision by the Acting Accountant of every document, together with the accompanying collections, guaranteed.

Provision was made that instead of the haphazard and indiscriminate passage into the registration rooms of papers and dealings, upon which fees were rightly payable, the heads of branches should not, under any circumstances whatever, permit the entry of any transaction except through the hands of the Acting Accountant.

Arrangements have been made to carry out a complete rearrangement of the management of the Crown Grants in the custody of this Department; but some time must necessarily elapse before this can be thoroughly effected, as it will demand, first, an exhaustive check of all the Grant Registers, and, subsequently, a proper adjustment with the books of the Commissioner for Stamps.

This last, judging from the results of a previous attempt, will probably prove to be a prolonged labour; but, however unsatisfactory in some respects, it will at least provide reliable data for the future, a position the Department has not as yet occupied.

An examination of the Expenditure Accounts disclosed some unsatisfactory features.

It was found that neither the deposits nor the withdrawals had been checked, and that the outstanding liabilities had not been adjusted with the credits in the Bank for many years.

After an examination, extending over a considerable period, but, by reason of press of business, not rendered fully complete, I felt justified in handing to the Treasury a cheque for £101 12s. 3d., drawn upon the General Account, and for £22 14s. 1d. upon the Advance Account, which sums—however brought into existence in the past—represented the actual surplus of assets in the Bank, when compared with the unadjusted balances due by the Department.

The requisite books, dealing in business-like manner with all collections, expenditure, check and adjustment of accounts, will be brought into operation by the 1st July proximo.

It is here assumed that it will not be considered advisable to enter further into details of accounts which come within the general scope of the preceding observations and their consequent practical action.

Coming, then, to the purely administrative work of the Department, in dealing first with the Land Titles Branch, I found, for so many years as did not admit of precise statement, that the most necessary notifications of properties under the "old" registration of deeds administration, having been brought under the operation of the Real Property Act, had not been prepared for notation against possible dealings with the same property under both holdings.

This defect, I may take permission to observe, had remained undiscovered, and so far as the requisite notations against subsequent dealings have proved, has shown that the Department has not been stultified in this respect.

The rectification of this oversight was immediately entered upon and is now being continued with all speed, the officers of each Branch being employed upon the work until half-past six o'clock every evening.

The work has well progressed, although it brings within its compass the business of transference from one distinct administration to another of all lands brought under the Real Property Act since its initiation in 1863.

The necessary notations in the Deeds Branch are proceeding, pari passu.

Several difficulties had occurred in connection with the issue of certificates of registration in the matter of trade marks.

This, it may be accepted, may often be of great moment and value to those originally registered—those desiring registration being refused or being subsequently registered may find themselves ousted by injunction or process by Equity.

While, under the Act 28 Vic. No. 9, the Registrar-General has full power to issue, upon his discretion, any certificate of registration of a trade mark, still he should come within the Court of common conscience, apart always from any censure of his departmental head for any demonstrable breach of duty, if he permit any rightly considered colourable imitation of a previously registered trade mark to issue to another.

I found that the Trade Marks Registers (most imperfectly kept in themselves) were indexed under the headings of the registered holders only.

This method of index may be at once condemned. Unquestionably the trade mark and the articles to which such mark is to be applied are the main subjects of the application, and the means to be utilized in deciding each right to registration.

This has now been remedied, and indices showing references to every article so affected by registration, and each trade mark so registered, are now available to the public, and for supervision by the Registrar-General in issuing any certificate. In this regard I do not see what further can be done.

PUBLIC COMPANIES' ACT.

Complaint has recently been made, mainly, with regard to the non-registration by Companies already registered, that they have failed to fulfil the provisions of the Act 37 Vic. No. 19.

There can be no question that they have so failed in many matters demanded by the Act that they shall register their transactions.

It has not been a question with me whether it were within my province (as matter of discretion) or laid upon my office (as a duty) to proceed against registered companies not carrying out the conditions of an Act under whose penalties they might come.

For the immediate moment I was powerless. The Registers and Indices were useless in the condition as they were presented to me. There was no connection with the incorporation of companies and their subsequent transactions, no sequence to their several changes, and no record of their present position.

There was nothing to show where and how they might have occasionally, habitually, or altogether failed in their legal obligations.

There is now prepared—though at present only in form—a Register, which, when compiled (as it shall be as speedily as possible), will, I venture to think, form a complete record of the companies so registered, from their birth or registration to their ultimate winding up (as provided for by the Act), as shall satisfy the keenest inquisition.

One question, in regard to any procedure against a registered company for default of compliance with the terms of the Act, remains.

But this, perhaps, need not be entered upon here, as I propose, with your permission, to pursue it in a separate communication.

BIRTHS, DEATHS, AND MARRIAGES.

These records were not in any way in any current arrear; but the Church Records (which the Government obtained by the courtesy of either the Incumbents or their representatives, from 1856 backwards to 1788) still remain unindexed and unbound.

This last matter I shall be called upon to make a special recommendation upon.

In regard to the custody of wills (which is ordinarily, I find, mentioned in connection with the duties of this Department), I may be permitted to state that the officers carrying out the duty (although they and the wills are located in this building) are appointed upon the staff of the Prothonotary, and have consequently been held to be not under my authority.

Upon this individual question I propose to submit a separate memorandum.

It will be observed that in dealing with the reorganization of the office, reformation—rather than revolution—has been the basis of action; and, with the sanction of the Colonial Secretary, I shall await with confidence the decision of the Government and the public as to whether the Department has not rehabilitated itself with regard to every phase of the business it is called upon to transact.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES PINHEY,
Registrar-General.

[Enclosure.]

Department of the Registrar-General.

Regulations for the guidance of the Officers and the better discipline of the Department.

The following instructions are issued with the view that the responsibilities and authority of the heads of branches may be placed upon a mutually recognized basis, and that the officers holding subordinate posts shall rightly understand their present relative position and duties. Hours

Hours of Attendance, &c.

The hours of attendance, ordinarily, shall be from 9 a.m. until 4.30 p.m., as provided for in the Civil Service Regulations.

As some of the officers reside a considerable distance from the head office, and may occasionally experience difficulty in reaching the Department at that exact hour, the head of a branch will allow a quarter of an hour's grace; but it is requested that such head of a branch, or other officer whom he may advise the Registrar-General he desires to depute to supervise the Attendance Book, will, at 9.15 a.m. on each business morning, rule off such book immediately below the name of the officer last arriving at that time.

The officers arriving later will sign their names and times of arrival below the line so drawn, and note, in the margin, the cause of detention.

The head of the branch will not fail to assure himself that all the officers under his control have thus signed the daily roll.

If he be satisfied with the explanation of a late arrival, the note "satisfactorily explained" should be attached.

In the event of an officer repeatedly failing to attend at the appointed time, it will devolve upon the head of the branch to bring his conduct under the notice of the Registrar-General.

To complete the daily entries in the Attendance Book, the names of such officers as may be absent upon medical certificate, leave granted, or other cause, should be added by the head of the branch to the signatures referred to, together with an explanatory marginal note.

The absence, without previous permission granted, of an officer for a whole day should be reported to the Registrar-General.

Three quarters of an hour—from 1 to 1.45 p.m.—is allowed for lunch, and this shall ordinarily be the time during which officers may absent themselves from duty.

Any alteration of this time—either for the convenience of the officers, or to meet the requirements of the Public Service—must have the approval of the head of the branch in the former case, and shall be at his discretion and under his direction in the latter, as he will be responsible for arranging that the Department be sufficiently represented during the hours it is legally open to the public. Any continued misuse of the lunch-time privilege should be reported.

It is to be distinctly understood that no officer is at liberty to absent himself during office hours, upon any pretext, without the permission of the head of the branch, who is authorized to grant such temporary leave during the day as, in his discretion, he may consider warranted by the circumstances submitted to him.

In the event of press or possible block of business, accumulation of arrears, or other cause, the head of the branch may require that the whole or any part of the staff under his control shall, within reasonable hours beyond the recognized official time, remain at their posts until the necessary work is disposed of.

A punctual observance of these Regulations will be taken into beneficial consideration when an officer may apply for increase or promotion; while their habitual or frequent disregard may seriously prejudice his claims, or lead to more serious consequences.

The head of the branch will deem it an essential part of his duty to report any gross infraction of the above Rules, as also any cases of officers rendering themselves incapable of properly performing their duty, showing insubordination, or displaying continued negligence.

CONDUCT OF BUSINESS.

Each head of a branch is responsible for the whole of the business transacted in his branch, and should formulate, and submit for approval, any further or subsidiary Regulations which he may consider advisable for its better conduct.

It is desired that all letters, certificates, and documents, of whatever nature, submitted for the signature of the Registrar-General, shall be countersigned or initialled, as the cases may require, by the head of the branch; excepting where the readier transaction of public business may suggest the advisability of officers entrusted with the preparation or immediate issue of certain dealings or other matters, being authorized to countersign or initial and present them direct for signature.

In these latter cases, the heads of branches are desired to submit to the Registrar-General the names of such officers, and a description of the documents which they recommend should thus be presented, it being understood that such documents shall be of a formal nature only.

It is essential, for the proper record of the transactions of the Department, that all letters and memoranda should be duly registered; that no action should be taken upon any document without the whole of the former papers in the case being attached; and that the instructions given, together with the particulars of any ensuing correspondence, should be noted upon the papers before presentation of the letters for signature.

CHARLES PINHEY,
Registrar-General.

Memorandum in connection with Report of the 30th June last upon the Registrar-General's Department.

Registrar-General's Department, Sydney, 9 August, 1890.

In the above-quoted letter several matters were necessarily dealt with in a tentative manner.

With reference to the question of the administration of the Companies Act, 37 Vic. No. 19, it was pointed out that there would be prepared a comprehensive Index Register of all transactions since the initiation of the Act.

The preparation of this register has been commenced; but as its compilation demands the classification and analysis of some 5,000 transactions, it will be some considerable time before it will be finally completed. Until

Until this be done, it is manifestly impossible that any general report upon the action of the companies in fulfilling or failing to carry out the provisions of the statute can be submitted.

So far as regards the records of births, deaths, and marriages, from 1788 to 1856, I have to state that the voluminous papers are being arranged and put in order for binding and indexing.

Within a few days I hope to be able to submit to the Colonial Secretary some recommendations for the preservation and greater usefulness of these invaluable records.

In the matter of the custody of wills, I am given to understand that the Prothonotary has made certain suggestions, having for their object the transfer of the two officers and their charge to the Supreme Court Office, to which they properly should be attached.

Under these circumstances, I have not proceeded further in the affair, in order to avoid the possible dual action, in different Departments, which might have followed.

In the report before referred to, it may be observed that I have not touched upon the question of the frauds which were committed in this Department in 1888 and 1889.

An exhaustive examination of these embezzlements and forgeries was made by the Treasury Officers.

The inquiry thoroughly sifted the whole of the transactions in any way connected with the frauds ; comprehensive and detailed reports were submitted and subjected to the strictest scrutiny.

The subsequent action taken is known.

The whole system of accounts has now been remodelled, and I therefore did not deem it necessary or advisable to refer to a matter which I considered was regarded as settled.

In conclusion, I may perhaps be allowed to submit, briefly, a few figures, which may afford some information as to the business transacted, and the number and value of the documents lodged in this Department for safe custody, registration, and public search.

Under the Real Property Act there have been deposited in this office instruments and dealings exceeding in number two hundred and fifty thousand.

The declared value of the land actually brought under the Act is £31,000,000.

During the past year the amount of consideration money represented by transfers was £3,333,000, while for the same period the value passed as secured by the mortgages was £7,256,000.

REGISTRATION OF DEEDS BRANCH.

In this Branch, representing the dealings in land held prior to the passing of the Real Property Act, and not since brought under its operation, the transactions registered in the ten years ended 31st December, 1889, showed consideration money to the value of £197,960,000.

The documents in the custody of this Branch numbered, on the 16th May last, 681,829.

To aid in the public and official searches there are, in addition, 550 books of index in use.

An average of 220 registers is added to the records of this Branch in each year.

The births, deaths, and marriages registrations in charge of the Department number 1,600,000, of which 213,000 are marriages.

In the Draftsmen's room 12,700 original plans are enrolled.

CHARLES PINHEY.

MRS. CUNYNGHAME, LATE SUPERINTENDENT OF MACQUARIE-STREET
ASYLUM FOR INFIRM AND DESTITUTE, PARRAMATTA.

REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly, appointed on 30th April 1890, "with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, Parramatta, with power to make visits of inspection to, and hold inquiries at, the said Asylum; and that, for the purpose of making such visits of inspection, the Committee have leave to sit during any adjournment of the House;" and to whom was referred on the same date—"the Progress Report from, and Minutes of Proceedings of, and Evidence taken before, together with all papers referred to, the Select Committee of the Session 1889," and before whom "Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums," and "Sarah Cunynghame, of Parramatta," had leave "to appear by Counsel or Attorney, with the right to call witnesses and adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine such witnesses as might give evidence before the Committee,"—have agreed to the following Report:—

Your Committee have examined the witnesses named in the list*, and, after very carefully considering the voluminous evidence in this case, find:—

page 13.

1. It to be their duty to report that nothing has been advanced which would justify them in recommending any change in the decision already arrived at by the Government in the case of Mrs. Cunynghame.
2. With regard to the charges of dishonesty and general untruthfulness made against Mrs. Cunynghame, your Committee are of opinion that they are not sustained.
3. Your Committee find that many of the irregularities referred to in the evidence were in a large measure due to the imperfect and exceedingly lax system that obtained for many years before Mr. Maxted's appointment, rather than to any perversity of disposition on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame.

And would, therefore, ask your Honorable House and the Government to give due consideration to her long past services, which your Committee are of opinion should merit some recognition.

J. P. HOWE,
Chairman.

Mr. Frank Farnell,	Mr. Hawthorne,
Mr. Kidd,	Mr. Nobbs.

The Chairman informed the Committee that he had received various letters, comments, and enclosures, from Mrs. Cunynghame and others which he did not propose to lay before the Committee, as he understood the inquiry to be now closed.

The Chairman further stated that he had, since last meeting, examined the documents handed in by Mr. Maxted's solicitor at the last meeting, and which were then ordered to be appended; and found them to be so mutilated and calculated to mislead the Committee, that he had decided to defer any action in the matter.

The Committee deliberated, and having examined the documents, it was resolved (on motion of Mr. Edmunds), That the documents handed in at the last meeting by Mr. Maxted's solicitor, and ordered to be appended to the report, be not printed or appended.

Draft report proposed by the Chairman, read 1° as follows:—

DRAFT REPORT.

“THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly, appointed on 30th April, 1890,—‘with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, Parramatta, with power to make visits of inspection to, and hold inquiries at, the said Asylum; and that, for the purpose of making such visits of inspection, the Committee have leave to sit during any adjournment of the House;’ and to whom was referred on the same date—‘the Progress Report from, and Minutes of Proceedings of, and Evidence taken before, together with all papers referred to, the Select Committee of Session 1889,’ and before whom ‘Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums,’ and ‘Sarah Cunynghame, of Parramatta,’ had leave ‘to appear by Counsel or Attorney, with the right to call witnesses and adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine such witnesses as might give evidence before the Committee,’—have agreed to the following Report:

“Your Committee have examined the witnesses named in the list, and after very carefully considering the voluminous evidence in this case find:—

“That Mrs. Cunynghame had, prior to her dismissal in December, 1888, been twenty years in the Public Service.

“That, in 1874, Mrs. Cunynghame, then Miss Gibson, and a nurse to the Sydney Hospital, was sent to Parramatta, to take charge of an Erysipelas Hospital which had been improvised in some tumble-down barracks there; and, owing to the great success of her management, the place was afterwards turned into a hospital for infectious diseases; this also appears to have been very satisfactorily managed by her, and afterwards the hospital was gradually transformed into an asylum for destitute old men, which was the condition of affairs at the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment as director of Government Asylums in August, 1888.

“That Mr. Maxted's predecessors, Mr. King and Mr. Rossiter, were well satisfied with Mrs. Cunynghame's management, and, indeed, speak highly of her ability and attention to duty, in which they are supported by nearly all the clergymen of various denominations in Parramatta and visitors of both sexes, who appear to have had very good opportunities of observing how the asylum was conducted.

“That Mr. Maxted shared in these good opinions of Mrs. Cunynghame until some time in September, 1888.

“That on the 14th November, 1888, Mr. Maxted sent to the Principal Under Secretary a report, in which he charged Mrs. Cunynghame with ‘harshness to inmates,’ ‘neglect of duty,’ ‘repeated disobedience of orders,’ and ‘general untruthfulness,’ upon which she was immediately suspended.

“That, on the 4th December, 1888, Mr. Maxted forwarded another report, charging Mrs. Cunynghame with ‘dishonesty.’

“That Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed on the latter report on the day upon which it was written, without being called upon to reply to it, without being aware of its existence, and without knowing its contents, which she had no opportunity of ascertaining until some months after her dismissal.

“That, under the circumstances, considering the length of her services, the exceptionally valuable nature of those services, and the position she held, Mrs. Cunynghame was entitled to an inquiry; and, therefore, her dismissal was decided upon and carried out with a precipitancy not warranted by the facts of the case, and, as far as your Committee are aware, such precipitancy is quite without precedent.

“That none of the charges made by Mr. Maxted against Mrs. Cunynghame have been sustained by the evidence.

“That the charge of ‘harshness to inmates’ is founded on very trivial matters, and the evidence brought to support it points quite the other way.

“In the cases of Burns, Bannon, Hayselder, Petersen, and others, Mrs. Cunynghame appears to have been in a difficult position, and your Committee cannot find that her action in connection with them was blameworthy. The diaries show that in every case she endeavoured to act for the best, and as those diaries were written long anterior to Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, they are all the more reliable. No harshness was manifested in these cases, and, viewing them in the worst light, they could only be construed into trifling errors of judgment. With regard to this charge of harshness, the evidence of Abbott, Hanson, Ghost, and others, called by Mr. Maxted, is that Mrs. Cunynghame was very kind to them, and the weight of evidence is against the charge.

“That the charge of ‘neglect of duty’ is not borne out in any particular, except, perhaps, that Mrs. Cunynghame did not visit the hospital wards at night; now, as two paid wardsmen had been specially appointed, on the doctor's recommendation, to look after the hospital, and as the doctor states distinctly that he does not make any complaint of neglect of the sick, this charge is not a reasonable one; on the other hand, all the witnesses have testified that Mrs. Cunynghame was always somewhere about the asylum engaged in some of her manifold duties, and some of them have said that she was more attentive attentive than ever after Mr. Maxted's appointment. Mr. Maxted himself visited very frequently, and he does not say that she was absent on any of his visits; the diaries also, including that of the dietary scale, are very fully and punctually kept, and indicate great care and diligence.

"That the charges of 'general untruthfulness' and 'disobedience of orders' depend partly upon each other, and have not been upheld; they are founded principally on the paragraph in the Herald, the case of the man Cummings, and the receipt of the stores. The paragraph alluded to contains nothing objectionable, but is laudatory of the Department of Charities in general, and of Mrs. Cunynghame's asylum in particular. In reply to an unwarrantable threat in Mr. Maxted's telegram of the 10th October, Mrs. Cunynghame said that the paragraph in question had 'emanated from the inmates.' The evidence of Hanson, who was called by Mr. Maxted, very conclusively proves this to have been the true statement of the matter. This witness says (Q. 994-5, Session 2) that it was written by 'a man named Crowley, in the dispensary, and myself,' and also that 'it originated between ourselves, more, I think, to show the outside world how we were living than anything else.' With reference to this matter, Mr. Maxted says in his official report to the Colonial Secretary, 'I had proofs in my possession that she herself dictated the paragraph to an asylum clerk, had signed it, and supplied it to a newspaper reporter.' The evidence of Hanson, quoted above, is the alleged proof of the statement thus succinctly and solemnly made. In Cummings' matter, Mrs. Cunynghame simply followed the doctor's orders in keeping Cummings at Parramatta, and as the doctor's authority was produced in the medical book, your Committee are at a loss to know why this case was brought forward. With regard to the receipt of the stores, the most competent witness is Abbott. He was called by Mr. Maxted, and he very distinctly states that, although he received the goods more often than anyone else, they were never passed or used until Mr. or Mrs. Cunynghame had examined and approved of them. This bears out substantially what Mrs. Cunynghame said. The mere fact that she was not actually at the gate on every occasion when stores arrived does not affect the truth of her statement. The varied nature of her duties would account for her absence sometimes, and this could make no difference if the goods were not used until she had passed them. Other instances of disobedience have been alleged, but as they are mostly of a frivolous nature, and it is not clear whether the orders spoken of were ever given or not, it is not necessary for your Committee to consider them.

"That there was nothing in the circumstances to justify the charge of dishonesty, as that charge is not borne out by the evidence.

"The banking of the inmates and fat moneys to Mrs. Cunynghame's private account should not have been allowed, but it appears to have begun in a very small way, and was done by the asylum clerk (Abbott) as a matter of convenience. Your Committee are also satisfied that Mrs. Cunynghame had the manager's authority for pursuing this course, and, therefore, the blame does not rest with her. Abbott testifies that he managed all these matters in connection with the inmates and fat money, and kept all the books in connection with same; also, that Mr. Maxted could have examined those books at any time. Mrs. Cunynghame's explanation of the money matters is fair and natural, and she was perfectly justified in taking the book which contained the only record of her responsibility towards the inmates in a pecuniary sense. There is no doubt that Mrs. Cunynghame endeavoured to rid herself of this responsibility, but that she did not get a fair opportunity. Mr. Maxted should have settled up with her, as he promised, immediately after her dismissal, and your Committee consider her action there was that of a perfectly honest woman. Part of this charge is that men were put on the pay-sheets as occupying positions which they really did not fill. The worst instance of this was the case of Thomas Ghost. The Director says:—(Q. 118, Session) 'There was a man named Thomas Ghost. That man, between 1886 and 1888, was put down on the pay-sheet, and paid by the Government, £19 15s. 5d. He is variously named on the pay-sheet as cook, as having charge of the reading-room, as deputy in No. 4 hospital, as gate-man, and soil-heap man, yet he states that he never held those positions, but was employed in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen during the whole of the time.' Mr. Maxted called this witness, who said 'I have been "gate-man," "deputy-wardsman" in the hospital below, and "attendant" in the yard' (Q. 3594). We quote these instances to show how frequently Mr. Maxted's own witnesses contradict him. With regard to the dead inmates' moneys, your Committee are of opinion that Mrs. Cunynghame's explanation is quite reasonable, and, as she left in the despatch-box, which came to Mr. Maxted's hands, an amount covering the sum she held on this account, there is really nothing upon which to found a charge of dishonesty. As Mrs. Cunynghame's books were in Abbott's charge, and were always open to Mr. Maxted, and he did not ask for or examine them, your Committee can only conclude that this charge was an afterthought.

"That Mr. Maxted used his position unfairly to exact a report from Dr. Violette, unfavourable to Mrs. Cunynghame, and also with the Colonial Secretary, in order to prejudice his mind against her.

"That the papers show that Mr. Maxted had prejudged Mrs. Cunynghame's case, and had appointed a new Superintendent at least a week before he was apprised of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal.

"That Mrs. Cunynghame has been hastily dismissed from a position that she filled with advantage to the State on charges which have been shown to be without foundation.

"That she has suffered great injustice, and deserves most favourable consideration at the hands of Government."

Draft report proposed by Mr. Edmunds, read 1^o as follows:—

DRAFT REPORT.

"THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly, appointed on 30th April, 1890, 'with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, Parramatta, with power to make visits of inspection to, and hold inquiries at, the said Asylum; and that, for the purpose of making such visits of inspection, the Committee have leave to sit during any adjournment of the House;' and to whom was referred on the same date—'the Progress Report from, and Minutes of Proceedings of, and Evidence taken before, together with all papers referred to, the Select Committee of the Session 1889,' and before whom 'Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums,' and 'Sarah Cunynghame, of Parramatta,' had leave 'to appear by Counsel or Attorney, with the right to call witnesses and adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine such witnesses as might give evidence before the Committee,'—have agreed to the following Report:—

"Your Committee have examined the witnesses named in the list, and, after very carefully considering the voluminous evidence in this case, find:—

"1. That in August, 1888, when Mr. Maxted became the Director of the Charitable Institutions of New South Wales, the Asylum in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, of which Mrs. Cunynghame had long been the superintendent, was in a very disorganised condition.

"2. The management for years previously had been exceedingly lax, irregular, and unsystematic.

"3. That immediately after his appointment Mr. Maxted entered upon the necessary reform of the Macquarie-street Asylum in respect of the diet, the medical comforts, the recreation, and generally the humane treatment of the inmates, and directed Mrs. Cunynghame's especial attention, amongst other things, to her duties in the supervision of the wards and the inspection of food supply.

"4. That after a few weeks it became apparent that Mrs. Cunynghame did not co-operate with the Director in effecting such reforms, but, on the contrary disobeyed his orders, neglected her duties, and relapsed into a callous and harsh behaviour towards the inmates.

"5. That Mr. Maxted, upon discovering the repetition of the grave defects of Mrs. Cunynghame's management, reported the subject to the Colonial Secretary by letter of the 14th November, 1888. Thereupon Mrs. Cunynghame was, on 23rd November, 1888, suspended and called upon to show cause why she should not be dismissed from the Service, and accordingly showed cause on 29th November, 1888. To her letter of defence Mr. Maxted replied upon the 4th December, 1888, and at the same time forwarded a further report of irregularities discovered after her suspension. On 4th December the Colonial Secretary, on receipt of Mr. Maxted's reply, advised that Mrs. Cunynghame be dismissed from the Public Service, which recommendation was, after careful consideration of her explanation of the charges made against her, carried into effect by the minute of the Executive Council of 4th December, 1888.

"6. That the several charges made by Mr. Maxted in his letter of 14th November, 1888, have been sustained by the evidence adduced before your Committee.

"7. That the harshness charged was proved by evidence relating to many inmates, the following cases being perhaps the most notable:—

"(a) Ryall's Case.—On 3rd February, 1888, James Ryall, an old man, with legs paralysed and useless, was, by Mrs. Cunynghame's order, put outside the gates of the Asylum. Mrs. Cunynghame alleged he was drunk and abusive. He remained lying on the footpath until the police, who had been sent for, arrived. The police found the old man sober and quiet; and asked Mrs. Cunynghame to take him back. She refused. He was carried away by the police, charged with vagrancy and imprisoned in Parramatta Gaol for one month.

This case, prior in date to Mr. Maxted's appointment, is extracted in order to show the prevailing inhumanity at that time.

"(b) Hazeldine's Case.—On 2nd November, 1888, Samuel Hazeldine, a very feeble old man, 67 years old, sober, and respectable, went to the Asylum for admission. Mrs. Cunynghame caused him to be put outside on the footpath, alleging that he was drunk and had no written order for admittance. He was found by the police, who, failing to get him admitted into the Asylum, had shelter found for him. Next day the Bench of Magistrates insisted upon his being admitted.

"(c) Burns' Case.—John Burns, a blind inmate, was lying on a grass plot (the Director had ordered this plot to be so used). Mrs. Cunynghame prodded him with her umbrella and ordered him off. He answered her angrily, and was by her order taken to the isolation ward, and detained there sixty-nine hours on a charge of obscene language and riotous conduct.

"(d) Stoddart's Case.—An old man, with very bad feet, ordered slippers and refused them by Mrs. Cunynghame; walked about the yard with his feet tied up in rags.

"(e) Rooney's Case.—An old man, unable to walk, refused by Mrs. Cunynghame an easy chair ordered by the doctor.

"(f) Peters' Case.—A cancer patient, asked for spectacles in order to read; spectacles not obtained for him until he complained to the Director.

"8. That the recurrence of such cases of harshness after repeated cautions against such behaviour was in itself alone a conclusive proof that Mrs. Cunynghame could no longer be safely entrusted with the administration of this charitable institution.

"9. That the evidence contains proof of the following additional facts:—

"(a) The Superintendent's visits to the hospital, which should have been made at least twice a day, were at times omitted for two and three days together.

"(b) The medical comforts of the sick were stolen by an attendant, who, after being exposed, was not detained by Mrs. Cunynghame for punishment.

"(c) The same attendant assaulted the helpless sick in their beds.

"(d) Inmates who had previously been witnesses of Mrs. Cunynghame's mismanagement were so frequently and unnecessarily brought before the visiting physician for punishment that he caused their transfer to some other institution.

"(e) Smoking by the inmates was forbidden by Mrs. Cunynghame in opposition to the Director's express instructions.

"(f) The use of the grass plats for recreation was forbidden the inmates notwithstanding express directions given her to permit such use.

"(g) Inmates were kept in Mrs. Cunynghame's constant employ, and were falsely entered on her official pay-sheets, and received payment from the Government as if employed in the service of the institution.

"(h) The refuse food, &c., of the Asylum, though always saleable, was taken by Mrs. Cunynghame without payment and used upon her private farm.

"(i) The surplus fat was sold by Mrs. Cunynghame, and the moneys so raised were placed to Mrs. Cunynghame's private account without the knowledge of any person in authority called as a witness, and remained in her hands until after her dismissal.

"(j) The moneys received by her from inmates, who afterwards died, were retained by her without Mr. Maxted's knowledge until after her dismissal.

"(k) When Mr. Maxted introduced a new dietary scale Mrs. Cunynghame said she was unable to carry it out. Afterwards she signed for publication in a newspaper a paragraph which attributed this reform to her own action.

"(l) The food supplies were received without inspection by Mrs. Cunynghame.

"(m) The medical comforts ordered by the doctor for sick patients were in many cases not given.

"10. That in consequence of the proof of these, amongst many other similar facts, your Committee consider that the dismissal of Mrs. Cunynghame was justified on all the grounds mentioned in Mr. Maxted's complaint.

"11. That a letter of 8th December, 1888, written by Mr. Maxted, appended to the evidence, was produced on behalf of Mrs. Cunynghame to support a suggestion that in urging her dismissal Mr. Maxted was improperly influenced by the desire to provide an office for the lady who became Mrs. Cunynghame's successor.

"12. That such suggestion is utterly unwarranted by fact, and is an unworthy imputation against the character of Mr. Maxted."

Motion made (Mr. O'Sullivan) and question proposed,—That the draft report of the Chairman be read 2° paragraph by paragraph.

Amendment proposed (Mr. Edmunds), to omit the words "the Chairman," and to insert the words "Mr. Edmunds" instead thereof.

The inquiry now made also shows that Mr. Maxted, on taking charge of the Government Asylums as Inspector of Charities, had the most serious difficulties to encounter when reorganising the system of management, and was therefore fully justified in the action he took in regard to Mrs. Cunynghame. Your Committee think that many of the irregularities and acts of disobedience, as shown in her personal management, are in a large measure due to the imperfect and exceedingly lax system that obtained for many years before the appointment of Mr. Maxted rather than to any perversity of disposition on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame.

“THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly, appointed on 30th April, 1890,—‘with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, Parramatta, with power to make visits of inspection to, and hold inquiries at, the said Asylum; and that, for the purpose of making such visits of inspection, the Committee have leave to sit during any adjournment of the House;’ and to whom was referred on the same date—‘the Progress Report from, and Minutes of Proceedings of, and Evidence taken before, together with all papers referred to, the Select Committee of the Session 1889,’ and before whom ‘Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums,’ and ‘Sarah Cunynghame, of Parramatta,’ had leave ‘to appear by Counsel or Attorney, with the right to call witnesses and adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine such witnesses as might give evidence before the Committee,’—have agreed to the following Report :—

“Your Committee have examined the witnesses named in the list, and, after very carefully considering the voluminous evidence in this case, find :—

- “1. It to be their duty to report that nothing has been advanced which would justify them in recommending any change in the decision already arrived at by the Government in the case of Mrs. Cunynghame.
- “2. With regard to the charges of dishonesty and general untruthfulness made against Mrs. Cunynghame, your Committee are of opinion that they are not ‘proven.’
- “3. Your Committee find that many of the irregularities referred to in the evidence were in a large measure due to the imperfect and exceedingly lax system that obtained for many years before Mr. Maxted's appointment, rather than to any perversity of disposition on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame.

“And would, therefore, ask your Honorable House and the Government to give due consideration to her long past services, which your Committee are of opinion should merit some recognition.”

And further considered.

Amendment

Amendment proposed (Mr. O'Sullivan),—To omit the word "proven" from end of paragraph 2 and insert the word "sustained."

Amendment put and agreed to.

Motion made (Mr. Crick),—That the Report, as amended, be the Report of the Committee.

Question put and passed.

Chairman to report to the House.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE CASE OF

MRS. CUNYNGHAME, LATE SUPERINTENDENT OF MACQUARIE-STREET ASYLUM FOR INFIRM AND DESTITUTE, PARRAMATTA.

TUESDAY, 13 MAY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,
MR. CRICK,MR. FRANK FARNELL,
MR. RITCHIE.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.
Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

William Monro called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Mr. Williamson.] You are a member of the New South Wales Police Force, stationed at Parramatta? Yes.
2. And I believe you were so on the 3rd February, 1888? I was.
3. Do you recollect a man named James Ryall? I do.
4. On the 3rd of February was your attention directed to the man? Yes; my attention was directed to the man by a civilian.
5. In consequence of something you heard did you go down to the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
6. What time of the day was it? As far as I can recollect it was about 6 o'clock in the evening.
7. What did you find? I found Ryall lying on the footpath at the corner of Macquarie-street and Barrack-lane; just at the corner of the asylum walls.
8. What state was he in? He was very weak, and was not able to stand or walk.
9. Was he sober? Yes.
10. Did you go to the asylum and see Mrs. Cunyngame? In the first place I questioned Ryall. I went to the asylum and sent in word, but I did not see Mrs. Cunyngame.
11. Did you see her afterwards? Sergeant McGarvy saw her afterwards.
12. Did you hear the conversation that took place? Yes; I was standing a short distance away.
13. Did Mrs. Cunyngame refuse to take the man in? Yes. McGarvy asked her, and she refused.
14. What was done with the man? We got a cab and took him to the lock-up. We locked him up for protection. The man was in a very weak state, and was not fit to go out on the following day. He was then charged with vagrancy, and sent to the Parramatta Gaol for a month.
15. And was he in the gaol hospital during the whole of that time? Yes, so I was informed.
16. At the expiration of the month what became of him? He was sent to the Liverpool Asylum.
17. Was he in such a weak state that you had to lift him into the cab? Yes, he was. He was very weak, and could not stand without assistance. It took two of us to carry him to the cab.

W. Monro.
13 May, 1890.

- W. Monro.
13 May, 1890.
18. From what you saw of the man, could he possibly have walked out of the institution? No, he could not possibly have walked out of the institution.
 19. He must have been placed where he was? Yes. He could not stand without assistance; his legs were completely paralysed and useless.
 20. He could not have walked out of the asylum? No; I am perfectly satisfied he could not.
 21. Do you recollect whether McGarvy put any questions to Mrs. Cunyngame as to how the man came there? I did not hear all the conversation between McGarvy and Mrs. Cunyngame.
 22. Did Mrs. Cunyngame say anything further than that she would not take him in? I do not think I heard the whole of the conversation. The only part of the conversation I heard was the refusal to take him in.
 23. Do you know anything about any of the other men—Hazeldean, Peterson, or Bannan? Nothing direct.
 24. Do you recollect Bannan being brought to the police station? I was not in the lock-up then.
 25. And all you know is with reference to the man Ryall? Yes.
 26. Do you remember any intimation being sent to the police station that the man was lying there? I am certain that no intimation was sent to Mr. Latimer.
 27. Mr. Bourke.] How can you be certain;—do you read Inspector Latimer's letters? Well, considering that I brought the man down to the lock-up, if Inspector Latimer had received any communication regarding him, he would have been sure to mention it.
 28. Mr. Farnell.] Did you come across this man in your ordinary patrol? Yes.
 29. Are you sure that Sergeant McGarvy did not have any instructions from Inspector Latimer? He did not have any.
 30. Was it you who informed Sergeant McGarvy? Yes. I was at a loss to know what to do with the man, he was unable to walk.

William Monro recalled and further examined :—

31. Mr. Williamson.] How long have you been in the police force at Parramatta? Over three years.
32. Previous to Mrs. Cunyngame's retirement from the Macquarie-street Asylum, how long were you stationed at Parramatta? I should think about eighteen months.
33. Was the Macquarie-street Asylum on your beat? I had no beat; I was in plain clothes going round anywhere.
34. Were you in the habit of going round that way very often? Yes; I frequently visited the asylum.
35. Did you ever refuse to assist Mrs. Cunyngame or in any way show any opposition to her? I never did.
36. Mr. Ritchie.] Did she ever ask for your assistance in any way? I believe she did on different occasions.
37. Do you remember an instance? I cannot remember any particular instance.
38. Mr. Williamson.] But you believe she has? Yes, I believe she has.
39. And it has always been attended to? Yes.
40. There has been no inclination on your part to oppose her? No.
41. You know of no quarrel between her and the police? No; I know as a matter of fact that when any of the asylums send to the police station the matter is always attended to at once.

Robert McGarvy called in, sworn, and examined :—

- R. McGarvy.
13 May, 1890.
42. Mr. Williamson.] You are a sergeant of police stationed at Parramatta? Yes.
 43. How long have you occupied that position? About seven years.
 44. Do you mean seven years prior to Mrs. Cunyngame leaving the asylum or up to the present time? Up to the present time.
 45. Do you recollect on the 2nd of November, 1888, obtaining some information regarding a man named Samuel Hazeldine, aged 67, and very feeble? Yes.
 46. Where did you see this man first of all? I saw him at the lock-up.
 47. About what time? About half-past 6 o'clock in the evening.
 48. Was he then sober? Yes, perfectly sober.
 49. Did Mr. Hugh Taylor come over and see him? I was informed by Constable Lewis that he had been to the asylum and that he had an order for admission to the asylum.
 50. You found out that he had an order? Yes, I was told so. I sent him to Mr. Taylor, who was standing at the corner, so that he might give him an order for admission to the George-street Asylum. I thought the case was not a proper one for the lock-up.
 51. Did Mr. Taylor come over? Yes; and he said he would get the man lodgings for the night.
 52. What became of the man? Mr. Taylor took him and gave him lodgings.
 53. What became of him the next day? I think that he was taken in at the Macquarie-street Asylum on the next day.
 54. Mr. Crick.] He was not locked up that night? No.
 55. Mr. Williamson.] He was a very feeble man was he not? Yes, he was a feeble man.
 56. And you swear positively that at half-past 6 the man had no appearance of being drunk? Certainly, not even the smell of it; he seemed to be a respectable man.
 57. Do you recollect Thomas Peterson being brought to the station on the 14th June, 1888? Yes.
 58. In what state was he when he was brought to the station? I did not see him when he was brought to the station.
 59. Did you see him afterwards? Yes.
 60. What state was he in then? He was sober.
 61. But was he feeble? Very feeble.
 62. And apparently in a deplorably helpless condition? Yes.
 63. Did you go with Constable Lewis down to the asylum? No, I did not; I was in the Police Court.
 64. You were at the Police Court next morning? Yes.
 65. What was done with the man next morning? Mr. Taylor sent to the asylum to know if he would be admitted, and word came back that he would not be admitted.

66. That was when he was brought before the Court? Yes. Mr. Taylor sent to the asylum again, and then an invalid chair was sent down for the man. R. McGarvy.
67. Was he then admitted? Yes. 13 May, 1890.
68. The Bench had to send a second time? Yes.
69. I believe it was a peremptory order from the Bench? Yes, Mr. Taylor said he must be admitted.
70. Or the Bench would know what proceedings to take? Yes.
71. Do you recollect, on the 3rd February, 1888, accompanying the last witness, Monro, to the asylum in regard to a person named Ryall? Yes.
72. Were you in charge of the lock-up at that time? No.
73. Not when Monro came back? I was in charge of the police at the time.
74. Was Mr. Latimer there? No; I think Mr. Latimer was away from his office.
75. Did you receive any notification or letter from Mrs. Cunynghame to the effect that she had put a man outside the asylum, and that he was on the foot-path? No.
76. Mr. Crick.] Would you open any correspondence addressed to Mr. Latimer? Yes, if I were in charge, in his absence.
77. Mr. Williamson.] You went down with Monro? Yes.
78. And what did you find? I found a man sitting on the foot-path in a helpless condition. He was not able to get up. I asked him what was the matter, and he told me he believed there was money left at the post office for him.
79. Did you afterwards tell this to Mrs. Cunynghame? No; he told me that was the reason why he wanted to get out. I asked him if I sent the constable to the post office to ascertain whether there was money there for him or not, or whether he would go back to the asylum if admitted and conduct himself, and he said yes, he would.
80. Mr. Crick.] Why did you use the words, "and conduct himself"? Because Mrs. Cunynghame had previously told me that he was noisy because he could not get out. I sent the constable to the post office, and there was no money there for him; and I then asked him if he would wish to go back, and he said, "Yes." I then went to Mrs. Cunynghame and asked her to admit him, and she said no, she would not.
81. What did she say in reference to the matter;—did she say that his only fault was that he was noisy? Yes.
82. The man wanted to get leave in order to go to the post office to find out if there was any money there for him? Yes.
83. What did you do with the man then? We had to lift him into a cab and take him to the lock-up.
84. Was he paralysed in the legs? Quite so; he could not put a foot under him.
85. Mrs. Cunynghame made no other complaint than that he was noisy? No.
86. As a matter of fact, was he brought before the Bench next morning? Yes.
87. What was done with him? He was charged with vagrancy, and got a month's imprisonment.
88. Do you know whether he was in the hospital during the whole time he was in the gaol? I was told so.
89. Do you know what became of him after his release? I heard that he went to the Liverpool Asylum.
90. Did you ask Mrs. Cunynghame more than once to admit him? No, I do not think I did.
91. Did you point out to her that the man was in a helpless condition and unfit for the lock-up? Yes; I told her that it was not a case that should go to the lock-up.
92. You pointed this out to her, and she still refused to admit the man? Yes.
93. Mrs. Cunynghame, in her evidence, has made the following statement:—
- "Have you ever had any quarrel with the police? No; I cannot say I had a quarrel exactly, but I thought they ought to give me a certain amount of help which they did not seem inclined to do."
- Is there any truth in the statement that the police were not inclined to give her any help? I am not aware that they ever refused to give her help.
94. You were sergeant, and if any complaint came in in the absence of the Inspector or Sub-inspector it would be reported to you? Yes. They were always attended to.
95. You are not aware of any inclination on the part of the police to refuse to assist Mrs. Cunynghame? Certainly not—on the contrary.
96. Mr. Bourke.] You say that the whole of the complaint of Ryall was that he could not get out to go to the post office? He said so to me.
97. And when you saw him he was not able to walk? He was not.
98. You do not know whether Inspector Latimer received a letter from Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to this man? I do not.
99. You say that at half-past 6 o'clock you saw this man Hazeldean at the lock-up? Yes.
100. I am not speaking of Ryall, but of Hazeldean? Yes.
101. And he was sober then? Yes.
102. Could you say from what you saw of him at half-past 6 whether the man was sober at half-past 3? I could not.
103. He might have been sober at half-past 3 or 4. I do not think he had been drinking at all; he did not show any signs of it.
104. But you could not say whether or not he was sober at half-past 3? No; I did not see him then.
105. Have you been much in the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes, I have been there frequently.
106. In Mrs. Cunynghame's time? Yes.
107. What is your opinion of the management of that institution? I could not say; I had nothing to do with the management.
108. But did the inmates appear to be well looked after? I did not remark about it, as I seldom went further than the office.
109. Were you there often? Not very often.
110. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame there? Yes, I saw her there.
111. Every time you went? Nearly.
112. And you say you did not take any notice of the condition of the inmates? I did not go through the asylum. I generally went there to make some inquiry or something of that sort.
113. Since the present matron has been there has any report been made by you with regard to some boys being intoxicated at the institution? Yes.
114. What was the nature of that report? That there was an entertainment there, and some boys constituted a juvenile band, and some grown up men constituted a Christy Minstrels band. 115.

- R. McGarvy. 115. Tell us something about the people who were intoxicated;—who were they? I was informed that there was drink there, and that some of the boys had been served with it.
- 13 May, 1890. 116. Mr. Williamson.] You were simply informed of this? Yes.
117. Mr. Bourke.] You made a report? I made a report, of which that was the substance.
118. Was there any complaint on the part of the police that Mrs. Cunynghame was in the habit of refusing to admit people into the institution who were brought there by the police? Yes; I think Mr. Latimer made a complaint to Mr. Maxted.
119. Do you know whether he did? I believe he did.
120. Was it a complaint of yours? No.
121. You never complained that they were refused? No.
122. I suppose that every one you have taken there since Mr. Cunynghame's time has been admitted? I have not taken any.
123. Mr. Criek.] Have any whom you have taken to the asylum been refused admission? I have never taken any at all.
124. You went down about this man Ryall did you not? Yes.
125. And you saw Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
126. Where was Monro at that time? He was standing alongside Ryall.
127. How far would that be from where you and Mrs. Cunynghame were? About 10 or 12 yards.
128. Monro could have heard the conversation then? I do not know that.
129. Do you say he could or could not; you know how you spoke? I think he could.
130. Tell us what you first said to Mrs. Cunynghame? I said, "Will you be good enough to admit this man back again? He says he will conduct himself and be quiet."
131. You knew he had been previously noisy? I was told so.
132. Who told you? I think it was Mrs. Cunynghame.
133. You see that was not the first conversation you had with her. You first asked her, I suppose, who the man was? Yes.
134. Why did she say he had gone out? She said she had got an order—
135. From whom? From Mr. King, I think.
136. Who is Mr. King? He was the manager at that time.
137. And her superior? Yes.
138. She had got an order from Mr. King; for what purpose? To discharge him, I suppose.
139. You asked her if she would readmit him? Yes.
140. Do you know whether she could have readmitted him in the face of an order from her superior for his discharge? I do not know.
141. Did you go with the man to the lock-up? No, I did not.
142. Did Mrs. Cunynghame say anything about getting a report from the doctor on the case? No, not to me.
143. Did she say she would abide by what the doctor said? No; she said nothing about the doctor.
144. Where was the man put that night? In the lock-up.
145. You were in charge of the lock-up? No, I was not.
146. Did you go to see the man again that night? I saw him.
147. At what time? I think it would be about 10 o'clock.
148. He was then in one of the ordinary cells? Yes.
149. What had he to sleep on? He had blankets.
150. Just the same as any other prisoner put in the cell? Yes.
151. Did not that strike you as rather inhuman treatment in the case of a man so bad as you state he was? We gave him all the comforts we had.
152. And he was so bad that he had to be assisted by two men? We had to lift him into the cab.
153. Did he make any complaint to the Bench next morning about his treatment? I do not remember.
154. Mr. Ritchie.] You stated a little while ago, I think, that Mrs. Cunynghame said she would not admit Ryall because he was noisy? Yes.
155. Was that in the conversation you had with her at the time you went from Ryall to her? Yes.
156. You first of all went to Ryall and then brought him to the asylum? Yes.
157. Will you relate again the conversation you had with Mrs. Cunynghame? I waited with Ryall while the constable went to the post office and made the inquiry, and then when I was satisfied that there was no money there for him I went to Mrs. Cunynghame.
158. What did you say first of all to Mrs. Cunynghame? I said, "Will you readmit this man? There is no money for him, and he says he will be very quiet and properly conduct himself." She said, "No; I cannot admit him." She said the man was troublesome and noisy, and that she had an order from Mr. King to discharge him.
159. Did she say why she got that order? No, she did not.
160. Was that all she said? Yes, I think so.
161. Chairman.] Do you know whether it was during Mr. King's time as Director of Asylums that this took place? I believe it was.
162. Before Mr. Maxted's time? Yes.
163. Mr. Bourke.] Did Ryall, of his own notion, wish to go back to the institution, or did you induce him? I did not induce him; only I asked him would he go back, and he said, yes, he would.
164. He did not ask first, you asked him to go back; is that so? Yes.

Emanuel Lewis called in, sworn, and examined:—

- E. Lewis. 165. Mr. Williamson.] You are a member of the Police Force stationed at Parramatta? I am.
- 13 May, 1890. 166. How long have you been stationed there? I have been at Parramatta about two years and eight months.
167. How long were you there previous to Mrs. Cunynghame's retirement from the Macquarie-street Asylum? I do not exactly know at what date she retired. I think I had been there about two years.
168. Do you recollect the case of a very feeble man named Samuel Hazledan? Yes, he came to the lock-up on the 2nd of November, 1888, at about 6:30 p.m.
169. You were in charge of the lock-up on that evening? Yes.

E. Lewis.

13 May, 1890.

170. Was the man sober? He was quite sober when I saw him.
171. Did he appear to have been drinking at all? He had no appearance of having been drinking, as far as I could see.
172. Did he come to the lock-up for protection? He met me at the gate of the lock-up and said, "I have come to you to give me a night's lodging." I said, "Oh." He said, "Yes, I came from Sydney in the Western train and went to the Macquarie-street Asylum. I had an order for there, and they took the order from me."
173. In consequence of what he told you, what did you do? I drew Sergeant McGarvy's attention to him.
174. What did you do then? Mr. Hugh Taylor was there. He heard part of what was said. He came up and spoke to the man, and heard what he had to say, and took him away and said he would give him a night's lodging.
175. Mr. Taylor lives almost opposite to the lock-up? Yes.
176. He lives on the eastern side of Church-street and the lock-up is on the western side? Yes.
177. And in all cases of emergency, Mr. Taylor being the nearest magistrate you send for him? We did not send for him as a magistrate; he happened to be standing in the street quite close to the lock-up at the time.
178. Do you recollect the case of a man named Peterson? Yes.
179. What do you know about his case? On the 14th June, 1888, a report was made to me at the lock-up by Hanson, an attendant at the asylum, that Peterson had absconded from the institution. Hanson told me the man was in a very delicate state of health and that the police ought to look after him. I told the constable on duty to look after him. Next day he was found by Constable Jenner in Wentworth-street in a very weak state and almost unable to walk. Jenner picked him up and, as I have been informed, took him to the Macquarie-street Asylum.
180. On the day after he was reported as having absconded from the asylum Jenner found him in Wentworth-street, and Jenner was ordered to go down to the asylum, and left apparently with that intention, and afterwards came back with this man to the lock-up? Yes.
181. What was done with Peterson then? He was locked up.
182. And was he afforded every comfort? He was, so far as was in the power of the police.
183. Did you even supply him with tea and meals? So far as it was in the power of the police we did.
184. You provided him with blankets and so forth? Yes, we made him as comfortable as possible.
185. Was he brought before the Bench next morning? He was.
186. And what was done with him? The Bench directed a constable to go to the Macquarie-street Asylum and ask the Superintendent to admit him. The constable returned and said he had been refused.
187. Who was the constable? Constable Jenner.
188. Constable Jenner came back? Yes.
189. Then another order was made by the Bench? Yes.
190. And the man subsequently left for the asylum? He was discharged from the Court and sent to the asylum in an invalid carriage.
191. Mr. Farnell.] Was this before Mr. Maxted took charge of the institution? I could not say.
192. Chairman.] You said just now that the Bench sent the constable to the asylum to ask for the admission of this man. Who constituted the Bench at that time? Mr. Hugh Taylor was the Chairman. I do not remember who else was on the Bench.
193. Mr. Crick.] You said that Mr. Hugh Taylor when he heard that Hazeldean had been refused admission to the asylum proffered him assistance? Yes.
194. Was he standing close enough to hear what Hazeldean said? Hazeldean related his story to Mr. Taylor the same as he did to me previously.
195. And then it was that Mr. Taylor said he would give him a night's lodging? Yes, he said "He is not in a fit state to be locked up in a police cell."
196. Mr. Bourke.] And the man you know was admitted into the asylum the next morning at 6 o'clock? Yes, I know he was admitted next morning.
197. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect a man named Bannan? Yes.
198. What about Bannan? One night at about 11 o'clock on either the 22nd or the 29th September, he was brought into the lock-up by Constable Miller. He was in a very weak state and was suffering, I believe, from cancer in the mouth.
199. Was he sober? He was quite sober when I saw him.
200. Mr. Ritchie.] At what time was it? About 11 o'clock at night.
201. Chairman.] You say that Bannan was brought to the lock-up? He was found in the street by the constable and brought to the lock-up. He was in such a weak state that he could not walk about the street.
202. Do you know whether Sergeant McGarvy or Constable Monro saw him at the lock-up at the time? No, neither of them saw him.
203. Mr. Crick.] What do you mean by a weak state? He was in feeble health.
204. So weak that he could not walk? He could scarcely walk.
205. Will you swear that he was not drunk? Yes, I am quite positive of it.
206. Had he any drink at all? Not so far as I could tell.
207. Mr. Williamson.] And you can tell a drunken man from a sober one? Yes.
208. When he was brought to the lock-up did you search him? Constable Miller searched him.
209. And was there found upon him a ticket of admission to the Macquarie-street Asylum? There was.
210. Mr. Farnell.] Did you see the ticket? I did.
211. Mr. Williamson.] And did you give instructions that he should be then taken down to the asylum? The Sub-Inspector gave instructions that he should be taken down.
212. During the time that you have been there you have officiated as lock-up-keeper have you not? Yes.
213. I suppose sometimes you are on duty during the day and sometimes during the night? Yes, every alternate month.
214. Have you at any time ever refused or ever been disinclined to assist Mrs. Cunynghame? Not in the slightest.
215. Mr. Farnell.] But if you were in charge of the lock-up you would not come in contact with Mrs. Cunynghame? No, I did not come into contact with her.
216. Mr. Crick.] Were you ever asked to assist her? No.

- E. Lewis. 13 May, 1890. 217. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact every person knows that if there is no policeman to be found on the beat, there is always a communication sent up to the person in charge of the lock-up, who gives instructions to some police officer to go down? That is quite right.
218. Mr. Crick.] You say you were never asked? Yes.
219. Mr. Williamson.] Did you ever receive any communication or was any communication ever handed to you by Sergeant McGarvy in reference to any particular person who had left the asylum? There have been several communications received with regard to men absconding from the institution.
220. Mr. Crick.] Where are they—have you got them? I have not got them.
221. Mr. Bourke.] You saw this man Peterson of course? Yes. I saw him.
222. Was he a perfectly sane man? No, he did not seem to be sane.
223. Do you know of your own knowledge that shortly after the time you speak of he was sent away to the lunatic asylum? I had no opportunity of knowing if he was sent from the Macquarie-street Asylum.
224. You say you do not think he was a sane man? Well, I don't think he was quite right. A report was made from the Macquarie-street Asylum that he was not fit to be at large.

Samuel Martin Jenner called in, sworn, and examined:—

- S. M. Jenner. 13 May, 1890. 225. Mr. Williamson.] You are a member of the police force, stationed at Parramatta? I was formerly stationed there, but at present I am stationed at Campbelltown.
226. How long were you stationed at Parramatta? Nearly two years. I went to Parramatta on the 11th October, 1886, and remained, I think, until August, 1888.
227. Mr. Farnell.] How long have you been in the police force? About three and a half years.
228. Mr. Williamson.] You were at Parramatta until Mrs. Cunyngame retired from the asylum, or somewhere about that time? Yes; I think so. I was not there when Mrs. Cunyngame retired.
229. Do you recollect the case of Peterson? Yes; I arrested a man once by the name of Peterson.
230. Where did you find him? In Wentworth-street.
231. What state was he in? He was helpless, could not give any account of himself, and had to be assisted wherever I took him to. I found him with his boots off, and I afterwards found his boots. He was then in the Macquarie-street Asylum uniform.
232. Was he sober? Certainly, I should think so. The man appeared very ill.
233. Was he brought before the Bench the next morning? Yes, at 10 o'clock.
234. Do you know who was on the Bench? Mr. Hugh Taylor.
235. Anybody else? There might have been; I do not remember. I know Mr. Taylor was there. I made a report on this case at the time, or shortly afterwards. If I saw the report it would refresh my memory.
236. Do you recollect being sent by the magistrates down to the asylum? Yes. At the request of Mr. Taylor, Chairman of the Bench, and Mr. Latimer, Inspector of Police, I went to the Macquarie-street Asylum and saw the matron, Mrs. Cunyngame, and she then refused to take the man back.
237. What did you say to her? I asked her if she would take the man Peterson back at the request of the Bench, and I believe she said something about who was master of the institution, she, or the police, or the magistrate? I made a report something to that effect. I asked Mrs. Cunyngame to send a man with me to explain the case, and I believe that a senior warder or someone engaged in the asylum came round to the Court.
238. When you reported the matter to the Bench were you sent back again? I could not be certain about that.
239. Did you go back the second time? I believe I went there twice.
240. Do you recollect going back a second time? I could not be certain about that.
241. Do you recollect telling Mrs. Cunyngame on the second occasion that if she did not admit Peterson the matter would be reported to the Colonial Secretary? No, I do not remember that.
242. Was he subsequently admitted? He was. Afterwards the man who came with him went back and got a wheeled chair and took him away. The police carried him out and put him in the chair. He was unable to walk into the Court or out of it.
243. Mr. Bourke.] You saw this man Peterson? Yes; I took him back to the asylum.
244. Had there been some report made to the police about the man? I believe there had.
245. And do you know that the man was at large all night the night before you arrested him—that he absconded from the institution? I believe he had been at large all night.
246. Was he a sane man? The man could not give any account of himself at all. I am unable to say what was the matter with him.
247. Do you think he was out of his mind? He was seriously ill there was no doubt about that.
248. Do you think he was out of his mind? That I could not say.
249. Do you think he was a perfectly sane man? In his condition I could not say what the man was.
250. Mr. Crick.] You said that when you arrested him he could not give any account of himself? All I knew him by was that he had a uniform.
251. What illness was he suffering from? I could not say.
252. Do you mean to tell me he could not speak? He made a rambling statement, a mixed up affair.
253. Just like a drunken man would give? The man was certainly not drunk.
254. How do you account for the rambling statement;—was he out of his mind? He appeared to be seriously ill.
255. Was he seriously ill in mind? Yes, that is what he was; his mind was affected, there was no doubt about that. He was not drunk, because we carried him into the Court. He was taken to the lock-up and carried into the Court next morning. He was worse next day.
256. Mr. Ritchie.] Whereabouts did you arrest him? In Wentworth-street, rather more than half a mile from the Macquarie-street Asylum.
257. Could he not speak distinctly so that you could understand him? No, he did not.
258. Did you see Mrs. Cunyngame in reference to Peterson? I took him to the asylum gate, and I met Mrs. Cunyngame coming out.
259. And what did Mrs. Cunyngame say to you then? She said that he had rushed the gates and that she would not take him back, that he was a disorderly man, and she wanted me to take him inside and get his own clothing and leave the uniform clothing there, which I refused to do. I told her that he was in my charge, and if she refused to take him back I should have to take him to the lock-up.

260. Mr. Crick.] He was about half a mile away from the asylum when you arrested him? It might be S. M. Jenner more—it was not less.
261. You say he was helpless;—can you tell us how he got half a mile away from the asylum? No, I could not say that. I could not tell that. I suppose being out all night might have affected him. 13 May, 1890.
262. Mr. Farnell.] You say you found him with his boots off? Yes.
263. Did he give any reason why he had taken them off? No.
264. Where did you find his boots? About 100 yards away from him. He was at the time talking to some females.
265. Mr. Crick.] He was talking to some females? He was standing there. They were sympathising with him, and had given him some bread or something of that sort.
266. Mr. Williamson.] Did you at any time ever refuse to assist Mrs. Cunynghame? Never.
267. Mr. Crick.] Did she ever ask you? I went there on one occasion in company with another constable and took away a lunatic in a cab.
268. Mr. Bourke.] What was his name? I cannot remember.
269. What time was it when you arrested Peterson—was it in the morning, in the afternoon, or at night? I think it was in the morning, some time between 10 o'clock and 2 o'clock.

Sarah Cunynghame called in, sworn, and examined:—

270. Mr. Bourke.] Are there any entries in the asylum diary with regard to the man Peterson? Yes; on the 14th June, 1888, at page 156, there is the following entry,— Mrs. S. Cunynghame. 13 May, 1890.
- “Thomas Peterson, who came in on the 8th instant, applied to the doctor to leave the institution, but as he is suffering from ‘softening of the brain,’ the request was refused. He then applied to the Superintendent, who ordered a man to look after him until the next visit of the acting manager.”
- * * * * * Referring again to Thomas Peterson, the doctor wrote against his name, “Refused permission unless taken by friends.” Again, on the 16th June, at page 157, there is the following entry:—
- “A policeman came from Court to say that Thomas Peterson, who absconded on Thursday, was arrested yesterday, and was at that time before the magistrate, to know if the Superintendent would again take him in. This was at first refused, and the head wardsman was sent to explain to the Bench under what circumstances he left. The wardsman returned, and on the magistrate saying that if not readmitted he would be sent to the George-street Asylum, the Superintendent sanctioned his readmission, subject to the acting manager’s approval, the head wardsman taking up the invalid carriage to bring him in. On his arrival the Superintendent ordered him to No. 2 hospital.”
- On the 18th June, at page 159, there is also this entry:—
- “The memo. addressed to the acting manager respecting the absconding of Thomas Peterson (see Letter-book, page 68) was returned this morning with the following remark,—Should a similar case again occur, viz., a man demanding his discharge from the institution when the doctor considers him unfit to take care of himself, he should be detained until information is given to the police, that he may be apprehended in his own interest immediately he leaves the institution.—Signed, F.A.R.”
271. The course pointed out in that letter is the one you took with regard to the man Ryall? Yes, I had always done so.
272. Mr. Ritchie.] Who made these entries in the diary? Abbott the clerk at my dictation; the initials “F.A.R.” are those of Mr. Rossiter, acting manager.
273. Mr. Bourke.] Are there any entries in the diary with regard to the man Ryall? Yes, on the 3rd February, 1887, at page 80, there is the following entry:—
- *“James Ryall, a very paralysed patient in No. 2 Hospital, took advantage of the Inspector’s visit to urge upon the Superintendent to grant his discharge, which at his, the Inspector’s suggestion, she did, and sent a note to Inspector Latimer of the police, informing him, as he is quite unable, even with the aid of crutches, of which he has a pair, to walk * * * * * The following is a copy of the letter addressed to Inspector Latimer,—Dear Sir, I hereby give you notice that James Ryall, who has been for a long time urging to leave the institution, and respecting whom you were kind enough to send a policeman to quiet, has to-day obtained the sanction of the Inspector of Public Charities to go. As he is unable to look after himself, I consider it right to inform you.—Signed, S.C., Superintendent.” This note was sent at 3 p.m., and he managed to reach the corner of Barrack-lane where he sat down and remained until between 6 and 7, when a message was sent to the Inspector of Police, and subsequently the police came. Sergeant McGarvy had an interview with the Superintendent, and demurred to taking charge of him, wanting him to be readmitted; but, to this, Ryall himself objected, and the Superintendent promised the sergeant that she would send word to Dr. Violette, and be governed by his decision. The head wardsman was sent, and the doctor sent word that on account of the trouble he had given he should not be readmitted, and a note was sent to the Inspector to that effect. When Ryall was in the hall, prior to Mr. Robison leaving, he asked him if he considered he had not made a mistake and if he considered himself safe, to the former of which queries he answered in the negative, and to the latter in the affirmative.”
274. Mr. Crick.] Do you remember how the letter was sent to Sub-Inspector Latimer? I expect it would be sent by a messenger, whoever would be handy.
275. Mr. Williamson.] Of course, the diary was entered up on the following morning? No, every evening.

Robert Ledwell Dunn called in, sworn, and examined:—

276. Mr. Williamson.] You reside at Parramatta? I do.
277. And for some time you were the contractor for the supply of meat to the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes, for many years. R. L. Dunn. 13 May, 1890.
278. Did you at any time ever purchase from Mrs. Cunynghame any fat? Not one ounce.
279. If she has sworn that you did it is perfectly untrue? Perfectly untrue. I applied to her and she refused it to me. She said she sold it all to Pritchard and got soap for the asylum in return.

280.

*NOTE.—(On revision) :—This case of Ryall’s took place on the 3rd February, 1887, whereas the hereinbefore case of Peterson occurred in the year 1888. Both cases were fully dealt with, and did not occur during Mr. Maxted’s appointment.

- R. L. Dünn. 280. Mr. Bourke.] You say that you were contractor for the supply of meat to the Macquarie-street Asylum at Parramatta? I was.
- 13 May, 1890. 281. At the time you were the contractor for the supply of this meat where was your shop? I had the meat supplied by Taylor Bros. I was the contractor but I had the meat supplied by them under written agreement.
282. Did you supply anything else besides meat to the asylum? Yes, I have done so.
283. Were you not as a matter of fact employed in Taylor Bros. shop at the time? No never.
284. Only the meat was sent from there? That is all.
285. Who received the cheques for the supply of this meat? I did from the Treasury.
286. Will you kindly tell us where you paid them in? Sometimes into the bank.
287. What bank? The Commercial Bank of Parramatta. And sometimes I went to the Bank of New South Wales and got them cashed there.
288. Will you tell us to whose credit you paid them in? They must have gone to my own credit if I paid them into the Commercial Bank, but I mostly got them cashed at the Bank of New South Wales.
289. You are quite sure that you paid them into your credit at the Commercial Bank? If I paid any in at all I paid them in to my own credit, but I generally got them cashed at the Bank of New South Wales in sovereigns.
290. Did you ever employ any men from the George-street or Macquarie-street Asylums? Yes.
291. Did you pay them wages? I did.
292. You paid them yourself? Yes.
293. Mr. Crick.] Where did you have your banking account during the time that you were contractor for the supply of meat to the Macquarie-street Asylum? At the Commercial Bank, Parramatta.
294. You say there was a written agreement between you and Taylor Brothers? Yes.
295. Who are Taylor Brothers? Mr. Taylor's two sons.
296. Which Mr. Taylor? Mr. Hugh Taylor's two sons—Spencer Taylor and Frederick Taylor.
297. Where is the written agreement of which you speak? I have it at home, I think, somewhere. I have not had any contracts for the last two years.
298. Could you produce it before the Committee? Very likely I can find it. I had a similar contract with Finlayson.
299. I am talking of the contract with Taylor Brothers; when was that entered into? Some time ago.
300. How long? I can't exactly tell.
301. Could you give us an idea as to how many years? It would be some years ago, I cannot tell exactly.
302. Who drew it up? Spencer Taylor I think. I had their prices before I tendered for the contract.
303. Are not tenders for supplies to the asylum called for annually? Yes; I believe so.
304. Did you ever enter into a fresh agreement with Taylor Brothers? Yes.
305. In writing? Yes.
306. Have you got those? I do not know. Very likely I have.
307. How many fresh agreements did you enter into with Taylor Brothers? I cannot tell you exactly.
308. Every year? No.
309. How long have you gone at a time without entering into a fresh agreement with Taylor Brothers? That I cannot tell you.
310. Two years? It may be so, or it may be more, or it may be less.
311. Did the price of meat ever vary during all this time? Yes.
312. It varied considerably I suppose? Yes; it did at times.
313. Were you carrying on any other business at Parramatta at this time? Yes.
314. What else did you do besides having a contract for the supply of meat to the asylum? I had the contract for running coaches to the steamers.
315. What else? I was acting manager for Mr. Jeanneret in connection with the Parramatta tramway for a few years.
316. Anything else? No, nothing else that I can think of.
317. How often would you get paid for the supply of meat to the asylum? Every month.
318. On an average, how much a month would you draw? I dare say I could tell you.
319. Could not you give us an idea of what it was monthly? No, I could not.
320. Was it £100? Less than that.
321. Was it £50? I cannot tell you exactly.
322. You always drew the money yourself, you say, and sometimes cashed the cheques? I did. I sometimes gave instructions to someone else to draw it.
323. To whom else would you give instructions to draw it? Sometimes to my nephew.
324. Did ever any of the Taylors draw it for you? Yes.
325. How often? Sometimes; I cannot say how often.
326. Which of them? Mr. James Taylor. It was done as a matter of convenience to me, and to save my running backwards and forwards to and from Sydney.
327. You cannot tell us how often he drew it for you? No, I cannot.
328. Were you paid by voucher in the ordinary way? Yes.
329. Had anyone a standing authority at the Treasury to receive payment of these vouchers on your behalf? Yes; Mr. James Taylor had at times. It might last perhaps for three or four months or perhaps longer. I would recall the authority sometimes and go and draw the money myself.
330. Can you give us an idea of how often that would happen? I cannot; I have no reason to remember.
331. Would not that be very seldom indeed? No, very often.
332. It was only drawn by them to save you the trouble of going to and fro? That is all.
333. And it would be paid into your bank at Parramatta whether you received the money in coin or cheques. Your bank account would within a day or so after you received this money from the Treasury show a deposit to your credit? Yes; unless I wanted to pay it away. I would not pay it into the bank if I wanted to pay the money away next day or the day afterwards.
334. Did you always during this time keep a banking account? I did.
335. On an average what profit did you make on your contract with Taylor Bros.? I cannot tell you exactly.
336. Did you ever lose? No.

337. How many of these contracts do you think you had in writing? I cannot tell you exactly.
338. Had you any transactions with Taylor Bros. besides this one contract for supplying the asylum? No other contracts that I can recollect.
339. Were you engaged by them in any other way at all? I was not engaged by them at all.
340. Did you ever go down with Mr. Hugh Taylor to the Colonial Secretary or the Under Secretary? To the Colonial Secretary, never.
341. To any Government official who is connected with this asylum? No; I have no recollection of anything of the kind.
342. Who used to fill in the tenders that were sent in for these contracts? Myself, part of them.
343. Who filled in the other part? Master Spencer Taylor.
344. One of Mr. Hugh Taylor's sons? Yes, because I had got the prices from them.
345. They knew then what you were tendering at? Yes, pretty well.
346. You say you filled in part and some of the Taylors filled in part;—which part did the Taylors fill in? I cannot recollect.
347. Mr. Ritchie.] Were the tenders drawn out in schedule form? Yes, with different prices.
348. Mr. Crick.] Who put in the prices? I did, or had them put in; I do not remember.
349. I want you to be very careful? Well, I can't remember exactly; I am not exactly certain on that point.
350. You will be able when you see these tenders to say what is your handwriting and what is not? Just so.
351. How long is it since you have had this contract for the supply of meat to the asylum? I have had contracts for supplies to the Government for thirty-five years.
352. How long is it since you left off supplying the Macquarie-street Asylum? About two years ago.
353. About the time Mrs. Cunynghame left? Somewhere about that time, I think.
354. Were you and Mr. Hugh Taylor ever together when he spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame in connection with the meat and the meat supply;—do you ever remember Mr. Hugh Taylor saying anything about the supply of this meat to Mrs. Cunynghame in your presence? I do not. Mrs. Cunynghame always wrote to me, and I went myself.
355. Do you swear that you were not simply a dummy for the Taylors in the matter of these contracts? I do. I have never been a dummy for anybody.
356. Were there any sureties required in connection with these contracts? Yes.
357. Will you tell me who your sureties were? I have had different persons at different times, and I cannot think of all the names, but amongst others were the following gentlemen:—Mr. Murray, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Hughes, and Mr. Court.
358. Do you remember when you first got the contract for this asylum? I do not remember.
359. Then you cannot say who were your sureties for the first contract? No; I have had so many different sureties that I can't remember. I would have nothing to do but ask anybody in Parramatta and I would get their names as sureties to anything, pretty well; I was never refused.
360. Did you ever carry on a butchering business yourself? Since I was eight years of age I have been butchering.
361. Where? At Parramatta. I built my own slaughter-house and killed my own cattle.
362. And are you still doing so? No.
363. When did you leave off the butchering business? About twenty-two or twenty-three years ago.
364. And long before you got the contract for this asylum? Yes, it may be for the asylum, but not for the other contracts.
365. But long before you ever had any contract with this asylum you had left off butchering on your own account? I cannot exactly remember whether it was since the asylum was established in Parramatta or not.
366. During the time you were supplying this asylum, Taylor Bros. did have their butchering plant in operation? They did.
367. They knew at what prices you were tendering to supply the asylum? Yes, I think they did.
368. You say they filled in part of the tenders, and they could sell to you and you sell to the asylum, and every time you made a profit? Yes, every time I made a profit.
369. Mr. Ritchie.] You say you have been a contractor in Parramatta for thirty-five years? Yes.
370. You were a contractor as a butcher at that late period? Yes.
371. In contracting for this asylum you received your quotations from Taylor Bros. on which to base the prices in the tenders? Not only Taylor Bros., but Finlayson and other places.
372. Was there anyone else besides Finlayson from whom you got meat? No; I have asked others, but I have never got any offer from them.
373. And you simply based the prices of your contract upon the quotations these people gave you? Yes.
374. And then you worked the contract through these men? Yes; we have differed at times. They have asked a price I knew I could not get, and we have differed at times.
375. You say you have an account in the Commercial Bank? Yes.
376. Did you not bank all the cheques you received in business into your account? No.
377. You would cash them? Yes.
378. Do you think that was good business? Well, I would want money to pay away. For instance, I would want money to pay the Taylors or Finlayson on the day after I got my cheques.
379. Do you not think it would have been better to have paid the cheques into your account and then drawn against them by your own cheques? Well, it may have been. I should have had to draw the money out next day just the same.
380. Did you ever at any time allow these cheques to fall into the hands of Taylor Bros. to be cashed for you? Not that I am aware of; I do not think so; I have no recollection.
381. Mr. Crick.] I thought I understood you to say they had a standing order to receive them? So they had—Mr. James Taylor and Mr. William Tonks.
382. Mr. Ritchie.] That was to save you the trouble of going down to the Treasury yourself? Yes. If the cheques were not ready when I called at the Treasury for them, to save running down to Sydney again I would give an order for them.
383. Was your contract carried out with satisfaction to the Superintendent of the Asylum? Yes.

R. L. Dunn.
13 May, 1890.

- R. L. Dunn. 384. Were any complaints made at any time? Yes, there were complaints; but I have got a note from Mrs. Cunynghame saying that the meat was well supplied.
- 13 May, 1890. 385. And you gave general satisfaction in an ordinary way? Yes; I always endeavoured to do so.
386. Mr. Crick.] Did Taylor Brothers ever tender against you? I do not know, I am sure.
387. Did they ever tell you they did—they knew the price of your tender? No; I do not think they ever told me they did.
388. Mr. Ritchie.] They were acting in good faith with you as a tenderer, and would not tender against you, and you were working upon their quotations? Yes; I did exactly the same thing with Finlayson.
389. Mr. Williamson.] Although Spencer Taylor and Frederick Taylor are sons of Mr. Hugh Taylor they are carrying on the business distinct altogether from him? Yes.
390. And Mr. James Taylor would go into town every morning and come back every afternoon, and he being a Government official close to the Treasury, it was for the purpose of expedition that you gave him authority to draw your cheques? Yes.
391. And Mr. Tonks, where is he employed? At the Mines Office, I think.
392. Mr. Ritchie.] He is a friend or relation of yours? He is my nephew.
393. Mr. Williamson.] You could not afford to be running down every day and losing time? No.
394. When you finished your contracts, and just prior to Mrs. Cunynghame's departure, did you receive a testimonial from that lady? I did.
395. Have you got it with you? No; I have it at home.
396. Have you seen the evidence in this case—it was published in the Argus? Yes. I forgot to mention that when I asked Mrs. Cunynghame about the fat and refuse for some pigs I had she said it would not be worth my while, for there were not two buckets of refuse a day made at the place; at the same time I knew they were feeding twenty or thirty pigs a little distance out of town.
397. Who was? Mrs. Cunynghame.
398. Asylum pigs, or her own pigs? Her own pigs. I bought them at auction afterwards. She told me there were not two buckets of waste a day, and it would not be worth my while applying to contract for it.
399. Then you knew as a matter of fact that the refuse was being sent out to her farm? Yes.
400. Where is this farm? About a quarter of a mile from the boundary on the Western Road, lying back between there and the railway.
401. Mr. Ritchie.] Do you know of your own knowledge if there are any pigs kept in connection with the asylum now? I do not think so—in fact, I feel sure there are not.
402. Mr. Williamson.] So far as you know? So far as I know. I contract for the refuse from the asylum, and I would not allow pigs to be kept there, as I purchase the stuff.
403. You purchase the stuff? Yes, which I wanted to do from Mrs. Cunynghame years ago.
404. But now, since Mr. Maxted has been Director, everybody has had to tender for it in competition, and you have been accepted as the contractor, and you receive the refuse? Yes.
405. So that as a matter of fact you would not tolerate any pigs being kept at the asylum? Of course not.
406. Mr. Ritchie.] Then you are the contractor now? Yes.
407. Mr. Bourke.] What are you paying a year? £30 for the refuse from the two asylums and the cottage homes, where there are about a dozen people. The refuse does not include either fat or bones.
408. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact I believe that there is not half the refuse now that there used to be? No.
409. Mr. Crick.] How do you know that? Before the present Director took office I had the contract for the refuse, under Mr. King's management, and I got then quite two-thirds more than I get now.
410. Are there more people in the asylum now? There are.
411. And there is less refuse than there used to be? Yes, for this reason, the present Director reduced the rations.
412. You seem to have an elaborate knowledge of the actions of the present Director—have you had any conversation with Mr. Maxted on this matter? No.
413. Mr. Williamson.] You wanted to get as much information as possible with regard to your tender? I did. I knew when I tendered that the rations were reduced, and I knew I was not going to get so much stuff.
414. You swear distinctly that you knew Mrs. Cunynghame was keeping pigs at her farm, and you bought some of the pigs? Yes; I bought them frequently.
415. Mr. Crick.] Do you swear that Mrs. Cunynghame fed twenty or thirty pigs on the refuse from this asylum? I saw it going away, and I saw the pigs being fed on it.
416. How often? Not very often; perhaps three or four times, when I was out to purchase pigs.
417. You saw this done three or four times? I saw it at the farm three or four times; but I saw refuse going away from the asylum very often. I saw the cart taking it away frequently, and men belonging to the asylum driving the cart.
418. Did you ever get any receipts from the Taylors for the various payments that you made them? Yes, I got receipts, but I do not know where they are.
419. Could you produce them to the Committee? I could not. It is two years ago since I had any contracts with them, and I did not know I should want anything of the kind.
420. You have been singularly fortunate in getting Government contracts, have you not? I don't think so.
421. You have been a Government contractor there for the last thirty years for this particular thing? It is because I can do it cheaper than anybody else.
422. You have always been lucky enough to tender under other people? I do not know how it is.
423. Mr. Ritchie.] You do not keep up an extensive establishment? No; I only recently sold the slaughter-house.
424. Mr. Crick.] Where do you keep the pigs? At Granville.
425. On whose property? My own.
426. Do you keep any pigs at Parramatta? No, none; the Act would not allow it to be done.
427. This is your own property at Granville? Yes.
428. How long have you owned it? About three or four years.
429. To whom are most of your pigs sold? Mr. Wells sells them.
430. Are not Taylor Bros. your biggest customers? They never bought a pig from me that I know of.

431. Have not pigs that have been fattened at your place been sold at Taylor's shop? None whatever, not a single one. R. L. Dunn.
432. Mr. Ritchie.] You find a better market by sending them to Sydney? A great deal better. I could not sell to Taylor Bros.; they would not give me the price I want, and I never sell retail; I sell wholesale, and send twenty or thirty pigs away at a time. 13 May, 1890.
433. Mr. Crick.] Do you ever keep any books, any trading accounts? Yes.
434. You have trade books? Yes.
435. Mr. Ritchie.] You say you never received any of this refuse from the asylum during Mrs. Cunynghame's time? Not from Macquarie-street.
436. And what opportunity had you of judging as to the quantity of refuse at that time and the quantity you now receive as contractor? Because the rations are altered.
437. Never mind about the rations. You say that there is less refuse now than formerly;—how do you know that? From the fact of the pigs I saw at the place.
438. It was by the pigs you judged? Yes, and the number of pigs I could keep on the refuse from George-street.
439. But did you ever see the refuse to be able to judge of it? Yes.
440. Going away from the asylum? Yes; I saw it taken to the farm and the pigs being fed from it.
441. Mr. Crick.] Three times? About three times.
442. Mr. Williamson.] You saw it leaving the institution a good many times? Yes.
443. Mr. Farnell.] Were you a contractor at the time you allege that Mrs. Cunynghame was sending the refuse away to feed her pigs on? Not for the refuse from Macquarie-street, but I was a contractor for the supply of meat and the refuse from George-street.
444. Mr. Bourke.] When Mrs. Cunynghame refused the refuse and said there would only be one or two buckets a day did she not say that that was in consequence of the new dietary arrangement? No.
445. Are you sure of that? Quite sure. It was long before the new dietary arrangement.
446. Did she not say it since the new dietary arrangement? I never applied since.
447. How long ago is it since you last bought pigs that you say were Mrs. Cunynghame's? It would be quite two and a half years ago.
448. You speak of the farm as Mrs. Cunynghame's farm;—are you sure it was not a man named Gould who had that farm? Gould had it afterwards.
449. Who was there when you went out? The old men from the asylum.
450. How many pigs were there? Between twenty and thirty.
451. Are you sure that when Mrs. Cunynghame had the place there were twenty or thirty pigs there? Yes; I bought three pigs from her.
452. You went out specially to see the amount of refuse, and what number of pigs she kept? Yes.
453. And you cannot go nearer than twenty or thirty? No, because there were some young pigs there. I bought three pigs from her at one time.
454. Mr. Williamson.] What did you give? I agreed to give 3d. per lb. Mr. Cunynghame refused to let me have them. I did not get them.
455. Mr. Bourke.] You say you saw the refuse leave the asylum, and saw it out at the farm? I knew the cart, and the men who were driving it.
456. Did you follow the cart out? No; I knew the men and I knew the cart.
457. Mr. Ritchie.] You saw the stuff in the cart? Yes; but I knew what there ought to be from what I got from George-street.
458. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to the vouchers for the meat, which were sent to the Treasury, who made those vouchers out? The printed form I made out myself.
459. Filling up the items. No; just giving authority to receive the cheque.
460. Were not bills furnished to the Treasury for meat supplied? No; only the regular vouchers.
461. You know all the people who are interested in this firm of Taylor Bros.? There are only two—Frederick and Spencer.
462. You say you know that Mr. Hugh Taylor is not in the business? Yes.
463. Do you know whether he is their buyer? No; he is not. I never saw him buy anything at all. I buy now a great deal for them.
464. Mr. Ritchie.] Was there no account rendered to the Superintendent prior to the voucher being filled up? No; the vouchers were filled up.
465. Who filled the vouchers up? They were filled up by the clerk of the asylum.
466. Mr. Williamson.] They were filled up by the clerk of the asylum, and then you sent them on with an authority either to pay the money into your credit at the bank or to some particular individual? Yes.
467. Mr. Crick.] You have been contracting all these years for the Government;—do you not know that the Government will pay the money into any bank you name in the voucher? Yes; but if I wanted my money on the Monday morning and did not get it until the Saturday, that would not answer my purpose.
468. Mr. Bourke.] You said that sometimes Mr. Finlayson gave you accounts of prices as well as Taylor Bros.? Yes, and he supplied the contracts for me.
469. Would they both give you those prices at the same time? No.
470. Then Finlayson gave them to you after you had finished with Taylor Bros.? Finlayson would give me his prices.
471. Was it at the same period? For the same contract.
472. They would both give you prices for the same contract? Yes, and Taylor Bros. supplied George-street and Newington and Finlayson supplied Macquarie-street for me.
473. Did you get Finlayson's prices for one set of asylums, and Taylor Brothers' prices for another? I got Finlayson's prices for the whole.
474. And Taylor Brothers' prices for the whole? Yes.
475. Finlayson supplied Macquarie-street for you—and where else? He supplied Macquarie-street alone.
476. And what institutions did Taylor Bros. supply? Newington and George-street Asylums.
477. Mr. Ritchie.] Then they did not supply Macquarie-street Asylum? Oh, yes. Finlayson only supplied it for me for one year.
478. Mr. Crick.] Tell us, if you can, the name of any other person who had a contract to supply this asylum up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame left? Mahony had a contract.

- R. L. Dunn. 479. I mean before Mrs. Cunynghame left. How long had you this contract uninterruptedly? Some years.
 13 May, 1890. 480. How many years? I cannot tell exactly.
 481. Twenty years? Oh, no.
 482. Ten? It may be so.
 483. More or less? I cannot say. I want to be correct, and I cannot say accurately.
 484. Mr. Williamson.] Was that continuously, or on and off? If I recollect aright, I lost the contract one year. I do not recollect distinctly, but it was pretty well continuous.
 485. Mr. Ritchie.] In your agreement with Taylor Brothers and Finlayson were your prices based upon a per centage that you would have for the transaction of business? Yes; that is exactly what it was.
 486. It was a percentage. Whatever they supplied they deducted a certain percentage—that was the way you contracted? Yes. I got their prices, and I tendered at a certain amount over, which paid me very well.
 487. Would that be the reason why they would make up your accounts, or did you keep a set of accounts yourself, and transact the whole of the business yourself? No; I did not. It was more a security for them for their meat that I should pay them every month, as soon as I got my cheque.
 488. Then, actually, they transacted the whole business for you? Pretty well so.
 489. And you kept no books of account against the asylum? No.
 490. You left that for them to do? Yes.
 491. And then you drew your percentage from them when the cheques were received? Yes, and paid them for their meat.
 492. Or, otherwise, you paid them a certain amount, keeping the balance to yourself? Yes.

TUESDAY, 27 MAY, 1890.

Present:—
 MR. CRICK, MR. KIDD,
 MR. RITCHIE.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Robert Ledwell Dunn recalled and further examined:—

- R. L. Dunn. 493. Mr. Williamson.] Have you been on speaking terms with Mr. Hugh Taylor for a long time? Yes, 27 May, 1890. for forty-five or fifty years.
 494. I mean lately? No, not for the last three or four months.
 495. Up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal were you on speaking terms with Mr. Taylor? Yes.
 496. After her dismissal, did Mrs. Cunynghame come to you in reference to this inquiry;—did any messenger come to your house with reference to giving evidence before the Committee? I do not remember Mrs. Cunynghame sending to me.
 497. Did Mr. Hugh Taylor either directly or indirectly have any interest whatever in your contract with the asylum when Mrs. Cunynghame was there? None whatever.
 498. On the last day you spoke about some pigs, do you know whether she was keeping any fowls or ducks there besides? Plenty.
 499. Mr. Bourke.] When was this? Three years ago.
 500. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know if she kept them after Mr. Maxted was appointed Director? Yes.
 501. Mr. Bourke.] Kept what? Ducks and fowls, any quantity of them, on the asylum premises.
 502. Mr. Crick.] Since Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes.
 503. Mr. Williamson.] And do you know how they were fed? No.
 504. Were the pigs kept at the same time? Yes.
 505. Kept out on her farm? Out on her farm.
 506. And you stated on the last day that those pigs were fed on the refuse from the asylum? Yes, I saw them being fed, and bought the pigs after they were fed.
 507. Mr. Bourke.] You said just now that Mrs. Cunynghame had some pigs at her farm after Mr. Maxted was appointed? I won't be quite so sure, I do not know the dates.
 508. Mr. Crick.] You said positively just now, in answer to my question, that it was after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I believe it was.
 509. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Maxted was appointed on the 1st August, 1888, and Mrs. Cunynghame continued at the asylum three months after this? I believe it was at the time that Mr. Maxted was appointed.
 510. Mr. Crick.] Do you swear that she had pigs there after Mr. Maxted was appointed? I will not swear exactly as to the date.
 511. Do you swear that after Mr. Maxted was appointed Mrs. Cunynghame had pigs at the farm? I believe she had.
 512. Do you swear it? No, I do not swear exactly as to the date, because I do not know the date when Mr. Maxted was appointed.
 513. Mr. Bourke.] Between the 1st August, 1888, and the 4th December in the same year? I cannot exactly remember as to dates. The only thing I know is that Mrs. Cunynghame had pigs there, about twenty or thirty, and I have bought them at a sale, and have been at her house in reference to the purchase of them.
 514. On the last day you said there was a man named Gould at the farm? I do not know any man named Gould.
 515. Do you not know that Mrs. Cunynghame let her farm? I knew she let it to somebody, but I do not know the man.
 516. Do you not know that at the time that Mrs. Cunynghame was at the asylum she had a tenant for the farm? Only from what I heard.
 517.

517. Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame had let the farm or not during Mr. Maxted's time? I R. L. Dunn. will not be sure.
518. All you know is that some time or other there were some pigs there? Some short time before; I 27 May, 1890. cannot give the date.
519. Mr. Ritchie.] You said in one part of your evidence that you bought pigs from Mrs. Cunynghame?
Yes.
520. What was the last transaction of the kind? The last transaction was when I bought three pigs from Mrs. Cunynghame herself.
521. What date? That I cannot tell you.
522. Have you no record? I have none whatever, because the pigs were never delivered to me. These three pigs were kept on the asylum premises.
523. Mr. Kidd.] Pigs and poultry had been kept there for years, I suppose? Yes.
524. Mr. Crick.] How long ago is it since you had the last transaction with Mrs. Cunynghame? I cannot say.
525. Can you tell me within a year? I think the last transaction was the purchase of those three pigs.
526. How long ago was that? I cannot tell you.
527. Was it one year, two years, or three years? It might be three or four years ago.
528. Not less than three years? I cannot say.
529. Was it less than two years? No, and not less than three years I think.
530. It is more than three years? Yes.
531. Since you had this last transaction? I think so.
532. Is that the last time that you can say of your own knowledge that Mrs. Cunynghame kept pigs in connection with the asylum—when you bought those three pigs more than three years ago? Certainly not.
533. What do you mean? I say it was not the last time that she was keeping pigs. She had been keeping pigs out at her farm.
534. Of your own knowledge you know this? Yes, because I went to buy them from her.
535. And you say the last transaction was when you purchased the three pigs? Those were the last I bought. She had them out at her farm. I went out to see them.
536. How long ago is that? I cannot tell you.
537. A year? It may be.
538. Two years? No, I should not think it was. I cannot fix the date.
539. You cannot say within a year? I have no reason to recollect.
540. Then you cannot say within a year? No, I cannot.
541. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you pay Mrs. Cunynghame for the pigs by cheque or in money? She never delivered the pigs.
542. Then the transaction was not completed? The transaction fell through. Since that time I have been out to her farm and have seen pigs there, and have gone to her house to purchase them.
543. Mr. Crick.] Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame there? I saw her at the asylum.
544. Who did you see at the farm? Three or four poor-house men.
545. What were their names? I cannot tell you.
546. Did you see anybody else there? No.
547. How did you know they were poor-house men? I knew them at the asylum.
548. Chairman.] How long ago was it when you saw these men at the farm? Over three years ago.
549. Mr. Williamson.] Who sold the last lot of pigs for Mrs. Cunynghame? Burns, the auctioneer, at Parramatta.
550. Mr. Crick.] How do you know that? I bought them from him.
551. How do you know he sold them for her? He sold them as Mrs. Cunynghame's pigs.
552. Whom did you pay? Mr. Burns, the auctioneer.
553. Mr. Bourke.] How long ago? Nearly three years ago.

Charles Warner called in, sworn, and examined:—

554. Mr. Williamson.] Are you an attendant at the Macquarie-street Asylum at the present time? Yes. C. Warner.
555. And I believe you were so from the time Mr. Maxted was appointed until the time when Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes. 27 May, 1890.
556. Do you recollect a blind man named Burns? Yes; his name was Charles Burns.
557. Do you recollect his lying on the grass? Yes.
558. And Mrs. Cunynghame going over to him? Yes. She asked him to get up. He seemed to refuse to do so, whereupon she just poked him with her umbrella and he still refused to get up. I think he got up afterwards. She called upon attendant Edgar and myself to put him in the isolation ward, which we did.
559. Previous to putting him in the isolation ward did you hold back? Yes, we hesitated a bit.
560. Mr. Kidd.] Was this before or after Mr. Maxted was appointed? After Mr. Maxted's appointment.
561. Mr. Williamson.] Why did you hesitate? We did not like to do it, in fact.
562. Did Mrs. Cunynghame say anything to you then? Yes. When she saw that we hesitated a little she told us to never mind she would protect us.
563. After she told you that you took the man to the isolation ward? Yes.
564. In hesitating you seemed to believe that the man had no right to go to the ward? Well, we were not policemen exactly.
565. Did you tell Mrs. Cunynghame that the man had no right to be taken there? No.
566. This isolation ward was a cell, was it not? It was a place partitioned off from the dormitory.
567. Of what size? About 9 feet by 6 feet, or it may be a little larger.
568. Was it in darkness? No, there was a window in one or two of them, and a lattice at the end of all of them.
569. Were the men allowed to go on the grass-plot at this time? No; the men were not allowed to go on the grass-plot when I was there.
570. What was the grass-plot used for? It was not used for anything; Mrs. Cunynghame's horses and pony used to go there occasionally.
571. Used to feed on it? Yes, in the evening. 572.

- C. Warner. 572. And also a cow? No, I never saw a cow there.
- 27 May, 1890. 573. After Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal were the men allowed to go on the grass-plot? Yes.
574. Do you recollect an inmate named Kilmair? Yes.
575. Do you know in what part of the building he was? In No. 2 hospital. He was in the yard first, but was put into No. 2 hospital afterwards.
576. Do you recollect what he was suffering from? He had ulceration of the leg when he came in.
577. Do you recollect one of the wardsmen named Drew coming to you and having some conversation with you? Yes.
578. This was after Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes.
579. While that man was there, do you know if Mrs. Cunynghame had visited him for a couple of days? I do not know whether she did or not.
580. At any rate, Drew made some complaint to you? Yes.
581. Was Drew the wardsmen in that ward? Drew was warder at No. 2 hospital, the place where Kilmair was.
582. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted coming up to the ward one day at dinner time? Yes, I think there was some altercation about potatoes.
583. Did you hear Mr. Maxted say anything to Mrs. Cunynghame? He took up a potato and said, "This won't do," intimating that the potatoes would have to be better. The potatoes were not good on that day.
584. Mr. Crick.] You say the potatoes were not good on that day? Yes.
585. Did you see them? I did.
586. And they were not good on that day? No, they were not.
587. Then was it an unusual thing for them to be like that? No.
588. They were usually very bad? Yes, they were, as a rule, very bad.
589. How long had you been there then in your present position? I think about four months.
590. Had you ever made any report of this state of things? No, I had never made any report.
591. Mr. Williamson.] Where do the potatoes come from? From the contractor.
592. Are they passed by the person in charge? Yes, they are passed by the superintendent.
593. Were you in the wards at night-time? Yes.
594. Did you ever know Mrs. Cunynghame to visit the wards at night-time? I never knew her to visit the wards at night-time.
595. And I suppose if she had been there you would have seen her? If she had been there when I was there, I would have seen her.
596. What were your hours? Sometimes until between 8 and 9 o'clock, and if there was a bad case of course we would go up oftener.
597. And I suppose if there was a bad case you would go on earlier? No, not as a rule.
598. At what time would you go on if there was a bad case? We might be up again at 7 after we had left at 6.
599. I suppose you would be constantly on the watch if there was a bad case? Certainly.
600. And you say that in no instance did you see Mrs. Cunynghame there at night-time? No; I never saw Mrs. Cunynghame in the ward at night-time.
601. And I suppose you have had some very bad cases at night-time? No; I do not think we had at that time; I do not remember any.
602. Kilmair's was a bad case? Yes, his was a bad case.
603. Did you receive any directions from anybody, or did you simply use your own discretion—you and the other wardsmen? I received directions both from Mrs. Cunynghame and the doctor.
604. Was that in the day-time? Yes; I received instructions from Mrs. Cunynghame about Kilmair.
605. Who used to go through the wards at night to see whether these cases were attended to? Nobody. We never had any night duty then after 9 o'clock. We were not supposed to go round after 9 o'clock.
606. But up to 9 o'clock? Nobody came round that I know of. We never expected anybody.
607. Up to the time of her dismissal did you observe whether Mrs. Cunynghame treated the patients kindly or harshly? I have certainly seen her very kind in some instances, and sometimes I thought differently of her.
608. Mr. Crick.] What was your general impression. Did she strike you as a cruel woman, or a naturally kind one? Not as a kind woman by any means.
609. Did she strike you as a cruel woman? Yes; I thought so at times.
610. Could you give us instances on which you found the opinion that she was a cruel woman. What occurred to make you think that. Give us each case you can think of? I could not think of any just now, except that of Burns.
611. Will you tell the Committee the worst case that ever came under your notice that made you think that Mrs. Cunynghame was a cruel woman—the very worst one you can remember? I think Burns' case is the worst I can remember.
612. What was that? Burns was ordered off the grass plot and sent to the isolation ward.
613. That is the worst case you can remember? Yes.
614. And I think you said that when Mrs. Cunynghame went up to Burns, she asked him to get up, and he refused? Yes.
615. Was it his duty to obey her? Certainly it was.
616. Then he was guilty of disobedience? Certainly he was.
617. I suppose discipline must be maintained amongst these people—is maintained, is it not? Yes; discipline must be maintained certainly.
618. And that is the very worst case you can think of, on which you found the opinion that Mrs. Cunynghame was a cruel woman? Yes.
619. Mr. Williamson.] How long did Burns remain in the isolation ward? I could not say.
620. Over a day? I do not remember.
621. Did you ever see Mrs. Cunynghame drive horses off the grass plot when they were feeding there? No.
622. Chairman.] What was the size of the isolation ward? About 9 feet by 6 feet or 8 feet.
623. Mr. Ritchie.] Were none of the patients allowed to sit on the grass lawn? No.

624. Was there any regulation prohibiting them from doing so? No, there was no placard up or anything to that effect.
625. Did Mrs. Cunynghame, or Mr. Maxted, or anyone in connection with the asylum issue any regulation prohibiting any patient from sitting on the grass? Not that I am aware of.
626. Had you ever to remove anybody else off the grass? No.
627. Is the isolation ward considered in the asylum as a kind of watchhouse or prison? No; it was just an isolation ward to put refractory patients in. That is what it seemed intended for.
628. Mr. Williamson.] Was it understood that the patients were not to use the grass plot? Yes; they were not allowed on the grass plot at all.
629. The only place they had to walk was up and down alongside the sheds? Yes; alongside the shed, and alongside the wall.
630. Mr. Bourke.] Didn't they have some back garden? No; only a few eye patients were allowed to walk round the cottage.
631. Was not the isolation ward part of one of the dormitories? Yes; it was in the dormitory.
632. Was it not one end of the dormitory partitioned off? Yes.
633. And there was an opening of 2 or 3 feet between the top of the partition and the ceiling? Yes, I think there was an opening of about 2 or 3 feet.
634. Quite enough for a big man to get over? Yes.
635. Being in the wards at night you left at 6 o'clock ordinarily to have tea I suppose? We left at 5 o'clock to have tea, and went back at 6 o'clock.
636. How long did you remain there after 6 o'clock? Not very long, but we would run up again if we had a bad patient or so.
637. You would not be there long after 6 o'clock unless you had some bad patient? No.
638. At what time would you leave off finally for the evening? At 9 o'clock.
639. Between 6 and 9 o'clock you would not ordinarily be much in the hospital? No.
640. Then you could not say for certain whether or not Mrs. Cunynghame went in there between 6 and 9 o'clock? I could not say for certain, but I never saw her there.
641. Was it ever your duty to make a report to Mrs. Cunynghame in the evening as to the state of things in the hospital? I never had occasion to do so.
642. Was there any order to the effect that you and Edgar on alternate nights were to make a report to Mrs. Cunynghame as to the state of things in the hospital? No, we never had any orders to that effect.
643. And did you never make such a report? No, I never made any report at all.
644. Mr. Kidd.] When there was a bad case did you receive instructions from the superintendent or the doctor to go to the hospital again between 6 and 9 o'clock, or did you go back of your own accord? I never had instructions from anyone.
645. Did they never suggest that you should go when there was a bad case? No.
646. You went of your own accord? Yes.
647. Did you go on duty at 6 o'clock in the morning? We went on at 6 in the morning until 6 at night, and we had orders from the doctor to stay until 9 o'clock if it was necessary. We were given to understand that we were to stop till 9 o'clock.
648. If you knew there was a bad case in the institution, it was your duty to go backwards and forwards until 9 o'clock? We were to go round again at 9 o'clock.
649. You did not go back after 9 o'clock? No.
650. Then who attended to the bad cases from 9 in the evening until 6 o'clock in the morning? Nobody.
651. You could not tell whether Mrs. Cunynghame went into the hospital between 9 o'clock in the evening and 6 o'clock in the morning? Certainly not; I was not there myself.
652. Then Mrs. Cunynghame would know that it was the duty of yourself and the other wardsmen to attend to bad cases between 6 and 9 o'clock? Yes.
653. She would know it was your duty by the doctor's instructions? I cannot say whether she would or not? I suppose she would.
654. You did not attend at the hospital between 9 o'clock in the evening and 6 in the morning? No.
655. Then Mrs. Cunynghame might have been there all night for anything you knew? She might have been there at any time between those hours and you would not have known anything about it? That might have been so.
656. You could not tell if you were not there? No.
657. And she might have gone frequently between 9 o'clock and 6 in the morning? I think I should have heard it if she had.
658. Mr. Kidd.] What season of the year was it when the potatoes were bad? I forget.
659. You say it was between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal that the complaint was made about the potatoes; therefore it might have been about November? Yes, November or October.
660. Are the potatoes generally very good about that time of the year? Certainly not.
661. Is not that about the time of year when the old potatoes go out before the new potatoes come in? Yes.
662. And is it not almost impossible to get good potatoes about that time? Yes, it is almost impossible. But the potatoes were generally bad. Sometimes they were good. I do not say they were always bad.
663. Mr. Ritchie.] Were the other supplies, such as meat and bread, of good quality? Yes, sometimes they were fairly good.
664. Only sometimes? Sometimes there were complaints about the meat.
665. Were the supplies at any time very bad? I cannot remember any instance of their being very bad.
666. Did not these matters come under your observation during the performance of your duties? Yes. I went round at meal times and if there was anything bad I took it to Mrs. Cunynghame. If there was any complaint I always went to her with it.
667. Did Mrs. Cunynghame attend herself in order to examine the supplies when they came in? I could not say who took them in.
668. Who was in the habit of receiving the supplies? I do not know whether Mrs. Cunynghame was or not. It did not come under my notice.
669. Mr. Bourke.] You say you remember Kilmail, and that he had an ulcer on his leg? Yes.
670. And that some time after Mr. Maxted was appointed Kilmail was very bad, and died in the asylum? Yes.

C. Warner.
27 May, 1890.

- C. Warner.
27 May, 1890.
671. Is it true that that man was left by you and the other wardsmen and Mrs. Cunynghame without food? No; he was not left without food. He was receiving comforts by the doctor's orders. Mrs. Cunynghame came to me and asked me to get the doctor to give him brandy instead of wine, or wine instead of brandy. I am not sure which.
672. Who used to be in the hospital during the day—both you and Drew? Yes.
673. Could a man be in a very bad state like that, and without attention for three days, and you and Drew there? Certainly not.
674. Such a thing could not happen without coming under your observation? No; and I am sure he was not neglected.
675. Then you can say of your own knowledge that it is not true that Kilmair was left by you and Drew and Edgar and Mrs. Cunynghame without food and attention for three days? Certainly it is not true.
676. And I suppose it could not have happened with all you people there? No; it could not.
677. Do you know a man named Rooney? Yes.
678. What kind of a man is he to manage in an asylum? He is very quiet from what I saw of him. I did not see much of him. He never came under my notice.
679. Do you remember just before Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended you and Edgar were out late one night, and Mrs. Cunynghame said something to you? Yes.
680. What did she say when you came back? I think it was 12 o'clock when I came back; I missed the train.
681. By whose leave were you out so late that night? I was out with no one's leave exactly, but I missed the train.
682. When Mrs. Cunynghame asked you, did you tell her that any one gave you leave to be away? No; I did not tell her that exactly. I told Mrs. Cunynghame, I think, that Edgar had told me that Mr. Maxted had given us leave to go out.
683. Did you not tell Mrs. Cunynghame that Mr. Maxted had given you leave to be away? No, I did not, because Mr. Maxted did not give me leave.
684. What you said was then that Mr. Maxted had given Edgar leave? Yes, that is what I said, and I thought I was entitled to the same. Edgar told me that Mr. Maxted had given him leave, and I thought I was entitled to leave also, and I went away. I did not intend to stay so late, but I missed the train.
685. Why did you leave the Macquarie-street Asylum? I went away on sick leave.
686. Did you go to any other asylum? After I was better I went to another asylum.
687. Were you not transferred because of a complaint against you? No.
688. Did Mrs. Brooke, the present matron, ever charge you with neglecting the patients? No.

Thomas Drew called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr.
T. Drew.
27 May, 1890.
689. Mr. Williamson.] What are you? A wardsmen at the Macquarie-street Asylum.
690. Were you there in that capacity from the date of Mr. Maxted's appointment as director until Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? I was wardsmen in No. 2 hospital during that time.
691. Were you there at night-time? Yes, always; I slept there.
692. What time did you go on duty? I was always on duty.
693. All night? Yes; and all day too.
694. And you were in charge of the ward there? Yes.
695. Would Mrs. Cunynghame at any time visit the ward at night? No.
696. Did she ever go there after dark? No.
697. The men in the hospital were simply left in your charge? Yes.
698. And was no one sent round to see that you people did your work correctly? No.
699. Prior to Mr. Maxted's appointment, used Mrs. Cunynghame to visit the ward at all in the daytime? Very rarely.
700. After Mr. Maxted was appointed, do you know whether she used to visit it or not? Yes; oftener than before.
701. Every day? No, not every day.
702. When? I have known Mrs. Cunynghame not to visit the ward for two months.
703. Mr. Bourke.] After Mr. Maxted was appointed? No; before.
704. Mr. Williamson.] How often after Mr. Maxted's appointment did Mrs. Cunynghame visit the ward? During the last two months she was there as a rule most days, but she was not there so frequently during the earlier part of Mr. Maxted's time.
705. When would she come? During the latter part of Mr. Maxted's time she would come sometimes in the morning.
706. But I mean in the first part of Mr. Maxted's time? She would never come at all.
707. Not in the day-time? No.
708. What check was there upon you men in the day-time? No check whatever. The attendants used to come round.
709. And Mr. Maxted? Yes; Mr. Maxted would occasionally come round.
710. Did you ever see Mrs. Cunynghame there attending to the patients to ascertain if they had got their correct food? When she came up she used to ask them if they had got what they wanted, and that sort of thing.
711. A few weeks prior to her dismissal? Yes.
712. Prior to that you say she never came up at all? Very seldom.
713. Do you recollect Kilmair dying? I do.
714. Was it a bad case? Well, the man had been bad for a long time.
715. Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame came up at all to see this man? Mrs. Cunynghame was up, during the time the man was there, several times; but I do not think she was up during the last two days before he died. I do not know whether she was in bed, or what was the matter, but she was not up for two days before he died.
716. So that he was actually dead before she knew about it? Yes. The man expected his daughter. He was not quite in his proper senses. His daughter did not come until about a week after he was buried. I remember the circumstance, because I was sent for at the time to go down to the office.

Mr.
T. Drew.
27 May, 1890.

717. Did Mrs. Cunynghame know that he was buried? Yes; of course she must have known that.
718. You say that for two days before his death she did not visit him? No.
719. Who reported his death to her? I did. I always reported the deaths that occurred in the ward.
720. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted coming round? Yes.
721. Did Mr. Maxted say anything to you in reference to this man? Yes; he asked me when Mrs. Cunynghame saw the man last. I said, "Mrs. Cunynghame has not been here to-day, and she was not here yesterday." That was all.
722. When Mr. Maxted obtained this information from you, did he say anything, or do anything? He went away from me then. I think he went to Warner, the attendant in that ward. He did not say anything more to me, except that he asked me what comforts the man had.
723. Was Mr. Maxted very angry? Yes; he appeared to be. He was not angry with me; I had nothing to do with it.
724. Do you know where he went to when he left the hospital? He went out.
725. Towards the office? Yes, down that way—downstairs.
726. When she did visit them, what was Mrs. Cunynghame's behaviour to these patients—was she cruel? No; never. I never saw Mrs. Cunynghame cruel to any patient.
727. At any rate, there was no supervision over you men, or over the attendants? No; of course, if anything went wrong it was my place to go and report it to Mrs. Cunynghame.
728. Was there anybody to check the supply of the food;—did Mrs. Cunynghame ever check the supply of the food? No; if any complaints were made, of course we used to go and make the complaint at the office to the clerk.
729. What I mean is, did anyone go round and see whether the wardsmen gave the patients the proper supply of food and spirits? No. During the latter part of Mr. Maxted's time the attendants served that out.
730. Was that when Mr. Maxted made the alteration? Yes.
731. Mr. Kidd.] Were you under someone else—under an attendant? Yes; in the latter part of the time, when Mr. Maxted had charge.
732. Before Mr. Maxted had charge, what was your position? Wardsman.
733. And you were under some attendant then? No.
734. You were under the doctor? Yes, more than anyone else.
735. You received most of your instructions from the doctor? I received all my instructions from the doctor and the matron.
736. It was your duty to see that no patient suffered in any way whatever while you were attending him? Yes.
737. And you are sure that you were very careful during Kilmair's illness that he got every attention that was possible under the circumstances? Yes; he had every attention.
738. Mr. Bourke] Besides you, Drew, who else was in the hospital as wardsman? There was no other wardsman there but me.
739. Were you the only man who was looking after the patients? Yes.
740. What about Warner and Edgar? I do not reckon them; they are the attendants in the institution.
741. But are they not the attendants in the hospital? Yes; Warner is attached to No. 1 hospital and No. 2 hospital.
742. They are attached specially to hospitals? Yes.
743. They are paid wardsmen? Yes.
744. And I suppose you were under them? Yes.
745. And if anything went wrong in the hospital you say it was reported at once? I should report it to Warner. This has been the practice since the attendants have had charge.
746. And then Warner, I suppose, would report it to the matron? Yes.
747. I suppose sometimes you had occasion to go to Mrs. Cunynghame when people were bad? I have often gone to Mrs. Cunynghame.
748. Did she always go back with you to the hospital? If there was anything to require her to go back she would.
749. She would go back and attend to the people if you made any report at all about them? Oh, yes.
750. She would go immediately and attend to them? Oh, yes.
751. You say that at first when Mr. Maxted was appointed Mrs. Cunynghame did not go there every day? She did not.
752. And did not go there in fact for some time? No.
753. Were you there all day long? Yes.
754. Never went away for meals? No; I had my meals in the hospital.
755. Never went out? No, unless I went for clean linen or anything of that sort.
756. Did you never go away from the hospital at all;—were you there day and night? Yes, and I was supposed to get up in the night if necessary.
757. And you never went outside the ward? No, unless I went for linen or anything of that sort.
758. Did you not have leave of absence after Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes; I had a week.
759. How long after—very soon? No; just before Mrs. Cunynghame left.
760. That would be just the time of this man's death? It was the beginning of November, I think.
761. Did you ever hear Mrs. Cunynghame give any instructions to Warner or Edgar to look after the people? Oh, yes.
762. You have often heard that? Yes; I have heard Mrs. Cunynghame tell them.
763. Did the sick people ever make any complaint to you about the supplies of food? No.
764. Or with regard to their comforts? No, not particularly.
765. As far as you could see they were well supplied with food and medical comforts? Yes.
766. And Edgar and Warner looked well after them? Yes; they used to go into the ward two or three times a day.
767. Mr. Kidd.] You slept in the ward, did you not? Yes; I was in the ward the same as a patient; I had the first bed inside the door, and no one could go in or come out without my knowing it.
768. Always? Yes.

- Mr. T. Drew.
27 May, 1890.
769. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to Kilmair, is it possible that with you and Warner and Edgar there that man could have been so neglected that for three days he received no nourishment or medical comforts? The man was not neglected.
770. He was looked after I suppose by the whole three of you? Certainly he was. He was looked after by me; I don't know about the other people.
771. Did you report to Mrs. Cunynghame that he was dying? Why, the doctor knew it as well as I did.
772. But it was not reported to Mrs. Cunynghame by you? We never used to think of reporting it to Mrs. Cunynghame if a man was dying, unless his death took place; because men were dying in the institution daily.
773. It was a daily occurrence, and you did not think it worth while to report it? No.
774. It is untrue then if it is said that this man was lying there for three days without nourishment and attendance? Of course, because no man would be allowed in a hospital like that to lie there for three days without attendance. I should be a pretty sort of wardman if I allowed such a thing as that.
775. Mr. Kidd.] If Mrs. Cunynghame had visited the institution more frequently, that would not have improved the condition of the patients in any way—they were carefully looked after, even if Mrs. Cunynghame did not visit the hospital? Yes; everything went on just the same.
776. Mr. Bourke.] You are still a wardman? Yes.
777. What pay do you get? 3d. a day.
778. Mr. Williamson.] After Mr. Maxted's appointment, and before Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, was there not a wholesale robbery of the grog and so forth? Not that I am aware of.
779. By a man named Cook? That was not in my ward. I heard all about it but it did not happen in my ward.

THURSDAY, 29 MAY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. HAWTHORNE, | MR. RITCHIE.
MR. KIDD, |

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Alfred Hanson called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. A. Hanson.
29 May, 1890.
780. Mr. Williamson.] Where are you employed at the present time? I am wardman in No. 2 ward at George-street Asylum, Parramatta.
781. After Mr. Maxted was appointed as Director, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, where were you employed? At the Macquarie-street Asylum, as head wardman.
782. In what hospital? For the whole asylum.
783. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, do you know who received the provisions? The provisions after they were brought were examined in the first place by the clerk.
784. Mr. Bourke.] How would you know who received them;—would you be there? Yes; I was in and out of the kitchen frequently. It was not my duty to receive the provisions, but I saw them come.
785. But would you be always there when they came? Not invariably.
786. But you were occasionally? I was occasionally.
787. Mr. Williamson.] How many times would you say a week? I should say six days out of seven. With regard to the meat, certainly.
788. During that time you say that the provisions were received by the clerk, Mr. Abbott, who is now deceased? Yes.
789. On any of those occasions, was Mrs. Cunynghame present? Immediately after the provisions were received Mrs. Cunynghame would come round, see the meat, and say what was to be done with it on that day.
790. When they were actually delivered at the institution? No, not when they were actually received.
791. She would come round subsequently to give directions as to how they were to be distributed or used? Yes, and if the clerk saw anything wrong with any of the provisions he would at once appeal to Mrs. Cunynghame.
792. And would call her attention to the matter? Yes; for instance, I know that on one occasion tea was taken to Mrs. Cunynghame.
793. Then it is a fact that Abbott, the clerk, did the receiving and supervision, and called Mrs. Cunynghame's attention to anything that was wrong? To anything that was not up to the mark.
794. With regard to the meat, after Mr. Maxted's appointment, and before Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed do you recollect seeing the meat brought in at times? Yes; it was generally brought in while we were at breakfast.
795. Have you seen that meat, bad or otherwise? I remember particularly on one occasion; it was a day on which we intended to have joints, and the meat that was sent in was not fit to be cut up for joints; the cook said he could not utilize it for joints, and a stew or curry was made, I forget which.
796. Mr. Kidd.] In other respects the meat appeared to be sound enough? Yes, generally.
797. Mr. Williamson.] Have you seen tobacco received at the institution? Yes; I have seen it received frequently.
798. And have you seen the clerk send it back? It was sent back, I remember, on two or three occasions.
799. By Mr. Abbott? I had received so many complaints from the men about the quality of the tobacco that I spoke about it, and a basket was put outside for those who chose to return the tobacco, and they were told that if they put their tobacco in the basket they would receive a fresh supply.
800. That was after it was served out to the men? Yes.
801. Would that be an allowance for a week? Yes; a week's allowance for the general inmates would be served out every Saturday night.

802. Do you know who put the basket out? So far as I remember the matter was brought under Mrs. Cunynghame's notice by the clerk, from whom I received orders to put the basket out for the reception of the tobacco from the men who wished to return it.

803. Are you a smoker yourself? Yes.

804. Was the tobacco bad? It was very bad, and not infrequently it was very indifferent tobacco.

805. When the men complained to you after the distribution, did you complain to Mrs. Cunynghame about the tobacco? Yes; I brought it under Mrs. Cunynghame's notice.

Mr.
A. Hanson.
29 May, 1890.

Hugh Taylor, Esq., M.L.A., called in, sworn, and examined:—

806. Mr. Williamson.] You are a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and reside at Parramatta? Yes.

807. I believe you have taken a very warm interest in the different asylums while residing there? Yes.

808. Do you recollect the case of a man named Hayzelder being brought under your notice? Yes; it was brought under my notice by a constable.

809. Will you tell us what transpired? The Constable brought Hayzelder to me, and complained that Mrs. Cunynghame had refused him admission to the asylum. I said "It is strange; for what reason?" Hayzelder said, "Mrs. Cunynghame said I was drunk." I then approached very close to the man to see if I could discover the smell of drink, and I made him walk along the gravel footpath at the Court-house, and I found the man was sober. I then said, "Well, you will have to wait until the morning"; and I gave him a shilling to pay for his bed. I asked him if he had obtained an order from Sydney, and he said he had, but they had taken it from him at the gate. I believe he obtained admission to the asylum next morning.

810. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, did you have a conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to the dietary scale? Yes.

811. Will you tell us what the conversation was? Mrs. Cunynghame informed me that Mr. Maxted intended to make very great changes in the dietary scale, and to have separate tables for the men, and she said she did not think it would work well, but would be a failure. "Well," I said, "to protect yourself, Mrs. Cunynghame, you obtain all those orders yourself from Mr. Maxted in writing, so that if there is a failure the blame will not come on your shoulders."

812. Anything further? No.

813. Did you go down to the asylum? I did, in the interest of Mrs. Cunynghame's institution, and the police.

814. Did she tell you at any time that she had drawn up a dietary scale? Never; she never mentioned it to me.

815. Did she convey to you that Mr. Maxted was the person who drew it up? Yes.

816. Did you at any time ever threaten Mrs. Cunynghame? No; never in my life.

817. Did you have a conversation with her—the last conversation? That was with reference to a feast the Committee gave, through Quong Tart. After the inmates had been well regaled during the afternoon there was a quantity of wine, plum cake, and pastry left, which Mr. Maxted had asked me if I would supply to the destitute and infirm children at the Cottage Homes. I locked this up in a room, and told them what I was going to do, and next morning, while I was having my breakfast, my son came in and said—

818. Your son said something to you? Yes.

819. What did you do? I went to the institution, and I walked through the ward to the room where I had left the wine, and pastry, and other things. I found the door open, and the pipes, tobacco, wine, cakes, and everything I had left, were all gone. I then sent for Mrs. Cunynghame. She did not come, but Mr. Cunynghame came, to whom I said, "Who had the impertinence to take these things out of this room? Everybody was well supplied yesterday, and you know perfectly well, Cunynghame, that they were intended for the children, who are not able to obtain these things for themselves." He said, "I do not know." "Well," I said, "I heard there was a ball here last night, and that the young men went into the room and got the things out." I said, "I will make it very warm for some persons who have had the impertinence to come and take this stuff away."

820. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame? I do not think I did that day. I said, "And for this gross misconduct in the stealing of these goods out of this room, I shall never put my foot into this institution again"; and I did not do so for a long while after.

821. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame afterwards? I may have seen her some time that day.

822. Did you tell her at any time that you would not darken the doors? She may have heard what I have just told you I said to Cunynghame—that I would not go into the place again on account of the gross misconduct.

823. But you did not threaten her in any way that you would remove her? No; for I may as well say now that I saved her from being dismissed on two occasions by two different Premiers.

824. Did you ever, at any time, use any influence through the Director, Mr. Maxted, against Mrs. Cunynghame? Never; but I did everything I could to assist her by speaking to Mr. Maxted on fifty different occasions.

825. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, and in consequence of some communication Mrs. Cunynghame made to you, did you ask Mr. Maxted, for God's sake, not to interfere with her, so far as defalcations were concerned? Yes; I begged and prayed of Mr. Maxted not to interfere until he had thoroughly investigated the case, and then if he found the money was not forthcoming, he should report the matter to the Colonial Secretary.

826. But you say you saved her twice from dismissal? I think I did.

827. And did she give you a letter of thanks? After I gave my evidence before the Commission that was appointed to investigate the whole of the institutions, I received a very nice letter from Mrs. Cunynghame thanking me for the evidence I had given, and the kindness I had shown by coming forward without being solicited in any way whatever.

828. Mrs. Cunynghame has sworn that if there was any complaint about the meat, you personally came round for the purpose of seeing if the contract was properly carried out and so forth? I have never spoken to Mrs. Cunynghame during the last seven years, with reference to meat in any way whatever, except to give her this advice—"Whatever rations you have to obtain for your institution, see you get the best of its kind."

H. Taylor,
Esq., M.L.A.

H. Taylor,
Esq., M.L.A.
29 May, 1890.

829. In no instance was there a desire manifested on your part that meat should be received, although it was not fit for use? None whatever.
830. Do you know the Sub-inspector of Police at Parramatta, Mr. Latimer? Yes.
831. Did you at any time go with him to the asylum in reference to the meat? I never went to the asylum in my life with Mr. Latimer, except on one occasion, and then I went in the interest of Mrs. Cunynghame and the institution. I may as well explain this. I received a letter from a gentleman living between Granville and Auburn, stating that a poor man was lying there dying, that the police had been spoken to about the matter, but no notice had been taken of it. I immediately went to the Inspector of Police, and instructed him to send the conveyance and two policemen to bring this unfortunate man to the hospital. Instead of bringing him to the hospital they took him to the Macquarie-street Asylum, and it was reported to me that the man was not placed in a bed, but put into a cell. In the course of two hours after the man was admitted he died, and I demanded that an inquest should be held, knowing full well that he had not been placed in a cell.
832. What was the name of the man who died? I cannot remember.
833. Who wrote the letter? Mr. Richards.
834. Did you go down to the asylum? I did, and I demanded that an inquest should be held, in the interests of Mrs. Cunynghame and the institution.
835. Mr. Hawthorne.] Was an inquest held? Yes. That was the only time I was ever in the institution with Mr. Latimer.
836. Mr. Williamson.] And if Mrs. Cunynghame swears that you visited the institution with Mr. Latimer, about the meat, it is untrue? Yes, it is untrue.
837. Did you attempt to have Mrs. Brooks appointed in Mrs. Cunynghame's place, or did you have an interest in that lady's appointment? I never spoke to Mrs. Brooks or set my eyes upon her until after five weeks after she was appointed to the institution, when I was introduced to her in the Colonial Secretary's Office for the first time. That was the first time I ever saw her in my life.
838. Whatever interest you took in the institution was on behalf of the old people, and not either directly or indirectly in any contract that was existing? None whatever. If she will say what she knows perfectly well, Mrs. Cunynghame will tell you that I have always taken a great interest in the institution; that I have assisted her in every possible way, and sheltered her from gross accusations which were made against her. I had a man turned out of the institution by the late Colonial Secretary, for the manner in which he behaved to her. He was brought before the Bench, and I gave him six months, under the Vagrant Act.
839. Chairman.] Under whose authority did you lock those provisions in the room in the asylum? My own authority. They were my own provisions. I took them there.
840. Had you the power to lock any provisions up in the asylum? Yes.
841. Mr. Kidd.] For the purposes of a treat? Yes.
842. Mr. Bourke.] Who gave you authority to use a room in a Government Asylum and to take the key away? I did not take the key away.
843. How did you manage to lock the door? I locked the door and gave Mr. Cunynghame the key.
844. Mr. Ritchie.] Had you authority from the Colonial Secretary, or anyone, to hold these feasts there? Yes, it was a feast given by a number of ladies and gentlemen and Mr. Quong Tart and myself.
845. Were the articles you speak of the surplus of what was used at the feast? Yes, after the men had been well regaled, and the company had left about 5 o'clock, what was in the room was left in cases and locked up.
846. Did you have any authority from the Superintendent, or from the Colonial Secretary, to hold that feast there? Yes.
847. And you took the surplus stuff that was left and locked it up in this room? It was in the room.
848. Did you see it there yourself? I did it myself.
849. You put the stuff in there? The stuff was in there; I am certain it was there.
850. You locked the door? Yes; and I gave the key to the head wardman.
851. Not to Mrs. Cunynghame? No; I do not think so.
852. Chairman.] Did you inform Mrs. Cunynghame that the provisions were there? Yes; I informed both Mr. and Mrs. Cunynghame that it was intended for distribution among the children of the Destitute Home.
853. Mr. Ritchie.] On the following day, when you went up to the asylum in consequence of something that you heard had transpired there, how did you find these things? There was nothing left, except the cases and some straw; everything was gone.
854. Mr. Hawthorne.] Did the wardmen say who had taken these provisions? No; they would not say anything.
855. Mr. Ritchie.] Then how did you get your information as to how the things had gone? From a gentleman at Parramatta, who was at the party on the night previous.
856. What proof had you that there was a party there on that night? Because the stuff was gone in the morning.
857. But what proof was there that there was a party or ball there? I heard it, and I was told by Mrs. Cunynghame that she was going to have a few friends.
858. That was a private party? Yes; it was her own arrangement and had nothing to do with me, I was invited to be present.
859. Mr. Bourke.] What was the date? I cannot say; it was the last feast we had of Quong Tart's.
860. Mr. Ritchie.] Was it between the 1st August, 1888, and November, 1889? No, it was not during the time of Mr. Maxted; it was before he was appointed.
861. Mr. Hawthorne.] Is that party to which you refer the one that took place a few months after Mr. Maxted's appointment? No; the party at which this mishap occurred was, I think, previous to Mr. Maxted's appointment.
862. Mr. Ritchie.] You said that after what occurred on the feast day you would not enter the door again? Yes; on the Sunday morning.
863. You also said that you did not enter the institution for a long time after? Not for some time afterwards.
864. You said also in your evidence that you had a conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame with reference to the dietary scale? Yes.

865. Can you now fix in your mind as to whether that was after the date of Mr. Maxted's appointment? I can explain that. After I threatened Mrs. Cunynghame, as she says, that I would not go into the place again it must have been eight or nine months after Mr. Maxted was appointed that I went to the institution in the interests of Mr. Maxted and Mrs. Cunynghame.

H. Taylor,
Esq., M.L.A.
29 May, 1890.

866. Then it was clearly before Mr. Maxted's appointment that you made the threat about not entering the institution again? I think it was.

867. Mr. Kidd.] You said that you gave evidence before the Commission in regard to this and other institutions? I did.

868. You gave evidence of a character which at least had the approval of Mrs. Cunynghame, who wrote you a very kind letter? Yes.

869. At that time the evidence you gave with regard to Mrs. Cunynghame was prompted by a knowledge of the fact that she was conducting the institution satisfactorily? So she was, as far as I could judge.

870. Was it not prior to that time that the wine and other things were taken? It was previous to that time.

871. Then by the evidence you gave as to Mrs. Cunynghame's satisfactory conduct of the institution it must be implied that you condoned any offence with regard to the wine and other things? I was asked the question when I gave my evidence, and I said I had no positive proof of it; but knowing the characters of some of the old men in the institution at that time, I was informed that the old men had broken in, and I accepted that version of the matter, not believing that Mrs. Cunynghame would attempt to steal the things.

872. You took that view and you gave such evidence before the Commission as satisfied them that you had confidence in Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the institution? Yes.

873. With regard to the man Hayzelder, to whom you gave a shilling for a night's lodging, you say you ascertained that he was not under the influence of drink? Yes.

874. You do not know, I suppose, of your own knowledge, how long it was from the time he left his ticket at the institution until you saw him in the street? He came from Sydney by the 4:30 train.

875. Mr. Bourke.] How do you know that? He did not obtain his order from the institution in Sydney until between 3 and 4 o'clock, and he told us he came by that train.

876. Mr. Kidd.] Do you know what time elapsed between the time when the man left his ticket at the institution and when you saw him in the street? I only know that he told me he came by the 4:30 train. At that time we had not speedy trains and it took an hour and ten minutes to reach Parramatta. It would take perhaps twenty minutes before this old man would arrive at the asylum. It takes some of them an hour. It has cost me over £20 for board and lodging which I have provided for old men arriving late. When Hayzelder came down to the Court-house it was not more than 10 or 20 minutes past 6.

877. Mr. Kidd.] Do you think it was possible, between the time that the man left his ticket at the institution and when your attention was drawn to him by the constable, that he could have been drunk and got sober again? No; it was impossible.

878. You do not know of your own knowledge what train he went up by? I only know what he told me.

879. He might have gone up in a morning train for anything you know? I do not think he could have gone by a morning train, because they never issue the tickets in Sydney until 2 o'clock.

880. With regard to the case that was brought under your notice where a man was found dying, you do not imply that Mrs. Cunynghame did wrong? No; it was in the interest of Mrs. Cunynghame that I had an examination held, in order to show that he was not placed in a cell.

881. Mr. Hawthorne.] What was the verdict at the inquest? Death from natural causes.

882. Mr. Bourke.] Did it come out in evidence that the man was dead when he reached the asylum? I don't think it did. He died about half-an-hour or an hour after he reached the asylum.

883. There was no suggestion that he was neglected? Oh, dear, no.

884. You do not know that Hayzelder had an order? Only from what he said.

885. What time was it when you saw him? It must have been a little after 6 o'clock.

886. You are quite sure that you never went up to the asylum yourself when any complaints were made about the meat? Not since four or five years ago, when the late manager of the institution was there, and I went on one occasion.

887. Not since then? No, I have nothing to do with the meat.

888. You gave very favourable evidence regarding the institution before the Commission three or four years ago, and up to that time you were quite satisfied? As far as I could judge.

889. Since you gave your evidence on that occasion have you had any cause to alter your opinion? Only what the old men tell me.

890. But as far as you could see yourself? I have not been in the institution much since the row.

891. You were there on the last feast day in Mrs. Cunynghame's time? Yes.

892. Was everything satisfactory on that day? I could not complain.

893. Can you tell us as to the look of the place? The place was always very tidy and very clean.

894. And the inmates then appeared to be well looked after? They did.

895. And the place well managed? As far as I could judge.

896. And the only reason you have had to change your opinion since you gave evidence before the Commission, is what you have heard from some old men? I have not altered my opinion of the institution since the time I gave evidence before the Commission; but I will say this much, that the men are better looked after, better victualled, and more comfortable and happier.

897. There is a new dietary scale? Yes.

898. Mr. Williamson.] The last feast that was given at the institution was during Mrs. Cunynghame's time? Yes; in 1888, when Mr. Maxted was there.

899. On that day, did you say to Mrs. Cunynghame, "I will never darken your doors, and will show you before long what I will do for you?" Every word of that is untrue.

900. Beginning at question 3251, Mrs. Cunynghame gave the following evidence before the Committee:—
3251. Mr. Kidd.] But what did Mr. Hugh Taylor want to come with the Inspector for? There was an anonymous communication. I do not know why he came, but I remember that there was a great rumpus about it, and I was a little bit put out.

3252. Mr. Bourke.] Was not Mr. Hugh Taylor in the habit of coming when there was any complaint about the meat? Yes, repeatedly.

Is that correct? It is false; there is no truth whatever in that statement.

901.

H. Taylor,
Esq., M.L.A.
29 May, 1890.

901. Mr. Hawthorne.] Is this correct?—
3524. Mr. Bourke.] He came to see about the meat generally, just as if he were the contractor;—is that so? Yes.
No; it is false; I never went near the institution during the last seven years with reference to meat.
902. At the last feast of the asylum, were you and Mrs. Cunynghame on friendly terms? Never better. I went to the institution to enjoy myself, and make the old people happy, and she was more than particularly kind to me on that day. She invited me into her place to have tea with some ladies and gentlemen, and said, "Well, Mr. Taylor, are you well satisfied with our proceedings to-day?" I said, "I am, Mrs. Cunynghame, everything is very nice and comfortable."
903. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you go in and have tea? No; I did not. If I had been annoyed, I would not have allowed Mrs. Taylor and my daughters to go.
904. Mr. Williamson.] At any time during Mr. Maxted's appointment did you in any way threaten Mrs. Cunynghame, or attempt to get her removed from her position? No; but I tried to have her retained in it.
905. And as a matter of fact, the only time when you spoke in a threatening manner to her or in reference to her conduct was when those goods were taken? Yes.

Alfred Hanson recalled and further examined:—

Mr.
A. Hanson.
29 May, 1890.

906. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect a man named Nimmo, who was at the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
907. Do you recollect the day after the Quong Tart feast? Yes.
908. I believe Nimmo was in No. 2 hospital? Yes.
909. Do you know what he was suffering from? I did not notice his card; but I think it was pthisis.
910. Was that man almost a perfect invalid? I did not have the opportunity of having much conversation with him.
911. Do you recollect the day after the Quong Tart feast Mrs. Cunynghame coming up when this man was in bed? Yes.
912. Did you hear her make any remark to him? Yes.
913. What did she say? The remark she made to him was that he ought to be up and earning his living, and not lying in that bed.
914. Did the man appear to be bad? He had always been in bed from the time he was ordered into the hospital.
915. I believe you assisted to put Burns into the refractory ward? Yes.
916. You know the green plot at the back of the institution? Yes.
917. Were any of the inmates allowed to go on that grass? No.
918. Had you any orders in reference to it? Yes; not to allow anybody on the grass.
919. Orders from Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
920. Although you had orders not to allow any of the inmates on the grass; were horses turned out there? Yes.
921. Mr. Ritchie.] Was any reason given why the men were not to sit on the grass? Simply that the grass used to look green and pleasant to anybody coming into the institution. It gave a nice appearance to the place, and if the men were allowed to go upon it it would spoil it.
922. Mr. Williamson.] Notwithstanding that, the horses were allowed to go upon it? I have seen the horses on it.
923. Have you seen the cow there also? Yes, the cow has been there too.
924. If anybody went on the grass, was there a penalty inflicted upon them? If a man persisted in going on he would be punished.
925. What was the punishment? Having his tobacco stopped.
926. For how long? That would be in the discretion of the Superintendent.
927. Was that part of your instructions? My instructions were to keep the men off the grass, and to report any man who persisted in going upon it.
928. Were you instructed to intimate to the men that their tobacco would be stopped if they did go on the grass? No; no man pushed it to that extent. They knew it was a recognized rule, and they kept off it.
929. Mr. Kidd.] And they never had their tobacco stopped? No.
930. Mr. Williamson.] After Mr. Maxted's appointment, at what hour in the winter-time did the men retire to their dormitories? Everybody had to retire at half-past 5.
931. Was anybody allowed to talk? About half an hour after the men had retired either Mr. Abbott, the clerk, or myself would go round to see that they were in their dormitories, and after we had made this round, and all was reported right, they were not allowed to talk.
932. That would be after 6 o'clock? It would be nearer 7, perhaps, in the summer. The men retired in the summer at 6, and in the winter at half-past 5. In the winter I would go round about half-past 6 to see that all was right, and after that they were not allowed to talk.
933. From whom did you receive those instructions? It was a rule that had always been followed by the head wardsman before I was appointed.
934. If anybody talked, did you report them? If a man persisted in talking after remonstrance the wardsman would report it to me, and make a complaint.
935. And what was the punishment? I do not know that a case was ever brought forward of a man wilfully persisting.
936. Did you tell them that your instructions were that their tobacco would be stopped? They knew very well that would be the punishment.
937. Mr. Ritchie.] Were there any cases in which the tobacco was stopped? The tobacco would be stopped if a man was found with vermin on him.
938. Were there any instances of that kind? Yes; one or two in my time.
939. Mr. Kidd.] They were too lazy to keep themselves clean? Yes; they had every opportunity of keeping themselves clean. If they did not do so I reported them, and their tobacco was stopped.
940. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know of a blind man having had his tobacco stopped for a week because there was a louse on his collar? Yes; I think there was a case of that kind, but I forget the name of the man.

941. During the latter part of Mrs. Cunynghame's management, do you know that Mr. Maxted extended the time for the men to talk? Yes; up to 8 o'clock at night.

942. Mr. Kidd.] That was part of the regulations, was it not? Not previous to Mr. Maxted's appointment.

Mr.
A. Hanson
29 May, 1890.

943. But there was a regulation that the men were to be allowed to talk after certain hours? They were not to talk after either the clerk or myself had been round to see that they were all right for the night.

944. And Mr. Maxted very kindly extended the time that they were allowed to talk? Yes.

945. Then it was a regulation? Yes.

946. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know whether, after Mr. Maxted was appointed, Mrs. Cunynghame received any supplies from the kitchen? There was always something taken in from the supply of meat to Mrs. Cunynghame's servants.

947. Chairman.] Were those servants inmates of the institution? Yes, they were all inmates.

948. Mr. Hawthorne.] Were they doing institution work? They were doing work about Mrs. Cunynghame's own house.

949. Mr. Kidd.] They were inmates of the institution? Yes; every one of them.

950. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect after Mr. Maxted's appointment, stopping a person named Phelix Cummings, who was then Mrs. Cunynghame's cook, with a joint of meat? Mr. Maxted stopped him going out of the kitchen with some meat one morning. Mr. Maxted called at the institution just after the meat had arrived, and met Cummings going out of the kitchen door with some meat in a dish, and he asked him where he was going to take it to. Cummings told him it was the meat for the matron's kitchen, and Mr. Maxted told him to put it down.

951. Did you see Mr. Maxted weigh the meat? Yes; I saw him put the meat in the scale.

952. Did you hear him make any remark at the time to this person? No; that was all I heard him say. I was serving out the porridge at the time, but I saw what took place.

953. During the first part of the time after Mr. Maxted's appointment, do you know who used to take the refuse? The tenant of Mrs. Cunynghame's orchard, I forget his name.

954. What used to be taken? On an average about, from four to five tubs a day.

955. Were they night tubs? Yes; tubs standing about 3 feet high.

956. A little in excess of five ordinary bucketsful? Yes.

957. Mr. Kidd.] That refuse could not be used up in any way for the institution? No; I should say it was only good for pigs.

958. It would not have been of any value to the institution if they had kept it and tried to make use of it? I do not see how it is possible to use it.

959. Then it was refuse? Yes, certainly.

960. Mr. Bourke.] You say that sometimes when complaints were made to you about tobacco, you carried those complaints to Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes, I took the complaints to the office.

961. And do you remember whether Mrs. Cunynghame took any action in the matter? I remember distinctly that on one occasion the men were asked to return the tobacco of which they complained, and they would have other tobacco in its place.

962. That was by Mrs. Cunynghame's orders? Certainly.

963. Do you remember a man named Hayzelder coming to the institution one afternoon? Yes, one night.

964. What time? It was after 6 o'clock. I remember that the majority of the men had gone to bed.

965. You were there, and I think helped to search him, did you not? Yes.

966. Did you find an order on him? No, though we searched his pockets for an order. The man appeared to be under the influence of drink.

967. You say he was under the influence of drink and he had no order? He had no order.

968. With regard to the man Nimmo, you say you do not know whether he was very bad or not at the time Mrs. Cunynghame spoke to him? No, I do not know the condition of the hospital patients.

969. Do you know how long it was afterwards when he left the institution? A day or two afterwards.

970. Did he appear to have recovered and to be well in health when he left? No; he was certainly not in good health.

971. Do you know whether men leave the hospital under the doctor's orders? As a rule the doctor used to discharge men from the hospital into the yard, and then, if they wanted to leave the institution, they did so of their own accord.

972. With regard to horses being on the grass, do you think horses would do the grass any injury? I do not know anything about such a matter.

973. Do you know whether people sometimes put horses on grass to keep it clipped? Yes; I know they do that.

974. Do you know of any cases where a man's tobacco was stopped for going on the grass? No; I cannot call to mind any case of the kind, because as a rule the men never transgressed the rule. They knew it was a fixed rule, and when I told any new-comer or anybody lying on the grass that they had no right there, they were very good, and removed directly.

975. You say that after you or the clerk had gone round the dormitories at half-past 6 the men were not allowed to talk? Yes.

976. Would they be allowed to talk in a low voice? That would be very much at the discretion of the wardsmen, I presume. If they were interfering with and annoying the other inmates they would be told by the wardsmen not to do so.

977. Then the order that they were not to talk was made so that they should not annoy the other inmates? Yes.

978. That is the reason for the order? Yes.

979. You remember that shortly after Mr. Maxted was appointed a man named Daniel Watsford was appointed and took charge of the library? Yes.

980. It was then that the hours were lengthened by Mr. Maxted? Yes, about that time.

981. Then the men had some facility for enjoying themselves in the evening? They could remain up, I think, till 7 o'clock. They had the time extended, at all events, by an hour or an hour and a half. Then they could stop in the library and read or play chess or dominoes.

982. Before that there was no library? No.

983. And there was no place for them to read or do anything of that kind? No; they had to retire to their dormitories.

Mr.
A. Hanson.
29 May, 1890.

984. I suppose that in the winter-time when the time arrived the men would be glad to go to their beds? Yes; a great many of them would stand about the doors of the dormitories anxious for the bell to ring.
985. You say that Mr. Maxted intercepted some meat that was going to the matron's kitchen—do you mean that was meant for the matron herself or for her servants? For the men she employed there—the servants.
986. How long were you in the place during Mrs. Cunyngame's tenure of office? Three years, I think.
987. During Mr. Maxted's tenure of office, can you say that Mrs. Cunyngame was cruel? As a general rule Mrs. Cunyngame was exceedingly kind to the patients.
988. Was Mrs. Cunyngame there every day? She was in the office at times in the day.
989. About the institution? Yes.
990. You saw her every day, I suppose, about the place somewhere? Yes, when she was in health.
991. Would Mrs. Cunyngame ever go through the institution? Of a morning she would walk round to see that the things were clean and right.
992. And Mr. Cunyngame assisted her generally? Yes.
993. Do you remember a paragraph appearing in the Sydney Morning Herald with regard to the change of diet? Yes.
994. Do you know who wrote that paragraph? Yes; a man named Crawley in the Dispensary and myself.
995. Did you do it of your own accord? Yes; it originated between ourselves, more I think to show the outside world how we were living than anything else, that we were pleased with the change that had taken place in the diet, and wished to show that we were progressing.
996. This paragraph emanated from amongst yourselves out of gratitude for the change of circumstances? Yes.
997. Mr. Williamson.] Who signed the document that you and the other man drew up? Mrs. Cunyngame.
998. And what did she do with it after she signed it? She gave it to me to take down to the papers. It was entirely at our suggestion that she did so. I believe she signed it inadvertently not thinking what she was doing.
999. After Mr. Maxted's appointment did you ever see her go through the wards at night-time? No.
1000. If she had gone through, you would have seen her? Except as regards No. 1 and No. 2 hospitals.
1001. As a matter of fact, she did not go through the other wards at night? No.
1002. Have you, at any time since Mr. Maxted's appointment, prevented her from being unkind to the patients? No; I never interfered with Mrs. Cunyngame in the orders which she gave. The instructions which she gave me I carried out. When a man was going out who wanted clothes or anything of that kind I would draw Mrs. Cunyngame's attention to him if he was a deserving man, and recommend him to her favourable consideration; but it certainly would not have become me to stand between Mrs. Cunyngame and the patients, or interfere with her.
1003. You say "As a general rule;" can you tell us of any particular cases where she had manifested unkindness? There is the case of Nimmo. I certainly could not understand Mrs. Cunyngame speaking in the way in which she did on the day after Quong Tarts feast.
1004. Mr. Ritchie.] You mean when she said he ought to be out of bed earning his living? Yes. It took me by surprise at the time, and I never could account for it.
1005. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect the man Hayzelder? Yes.
1006. Do you know if the man manifested signs of imbecility and senile decay? No; he seemed to be more under the influence of drink when he came to the institution.
1007. At what time did he come to the gate? After the bell had rung at half-past 6. It was between half-past 6 and 7 o'clock.
1008. Could you smell drink upon him? No, I cannot now recollect distinctly that I smelt drink, but so far as I could judge from the man he was certainly under the influence of drink. He seemed to be quite mazed. He could not produce his order. He said he had an order, and could not get it out of his pocket, and as he could not find it himself I searched his pockets, but I could not find the order anywhere about him.
1009. I suppose you have seen many cases where men have been suffering from senile decay and imbecility;—did he present any symptoms of that description? It might have been either one or the other. It was certainly my idea that the man had been drinking, because I remember distinctly I said to him, "You must have got the order before 4 o'clock in the day, because the office in Sydney closes at that hour, and it is now half-past 6. Where have you been in the meantime?" but he could not give me any coherent answer.
1010. Mr. Hawthorne.] He arrived at the institution at about half-past 6 o'clock, and the train left Sydney at half-past 4;—how long would it take to reach Parramatta? I suppose about an hour.
1011. That would give him an hour from the time he left the train until he reached the institution? Yes.
1012. Mr. Kidd.] If an old man presented himself saying that he had received an order for admittance unless he produced that order, or it was found upon him, you would not take him into the institution? No.
1013. And Hayzelder had no order? No; he could not find the order about him. If he ever had an order he had lost it.
1014. Mr. Williamson.] Had you not instructions to take in any deserving case without an order? No.
1015. Do you know if the matron had power to take in a person without an order? Any case that presented itself at the office for admission was immediately reported to Mrs. Cunyngame, and if the man had an order it was taken by the clerk.
1016. And if they had no orders? The clerk would report to Mrs. Cunyngame that they were there.
1017. Do you know that, as a matter of fact, on the following day an order was obtained from Sydney, a doctor's order, showing that this man was suffering from imbecility and senile decay? No; I know the man came back on the following morning. I do not know anything more about his order. I received him the following morning and took him down to the bath-room.
1018. Then, as a matter of fact, the matron had power to admit any person whom she thought was deserving? I really cannot say. I presume she had; but I have known Mrs. Cunyngame when the gate has been locked and the bath men have gone to bed to give a man the price of a night's lodging to go elsewhere and return in the morning.
1019. Mr. Ritchie.] Is it only in the case of Nimmo that you have heard anything from Mrs. Cunyngame of a harsh character towards these men? That is all; as a rule she was exceedingly kind to them.

1020. Between the time when Mr. Maxted accepted office and the time that Mrs. Cunynghame left, do you know of any other instance besides that of Nimmo where what you would consider harshness on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame was used towards any of the inmates? No; I do not know of any instance.

1021. Mr. Williamson.] What about Burns, the man who was lying on the grass? That is one case which I stated.

1022. Mr. Ritchie.] Were you one of the parties who helped to take him up? Yes; Mr. Edgar, Mr. Warner, and myself carried him to the isolation ward.

1023. Did Mrs. Cunynghame behave harshly on that occasion? No. I saw him lying on the grass, and knew it was against Mrs. Cunynghame's orders, and that if she saw him she would be annoyed, and I asked him to leave the grass. He refused to do so, and I went up immediately and told Mrs. Cunynghame that he persisted in lying on the grass after I had told him to get off, and Mrs. Cunynghame came out herself with me. She asked him to leave the grass. He refused, and then she ordered him to be taken up to the isolation ward.

1024. Mr. Hawthorne.] Were there any other grass plots that the men could have gone on besides this? There are three grass plots in the place. There is one to the right and one to the left coming in, and a small one at the lower end.

1025. Mr. Ritchie.] Did the men use any of the others besides the main plot? No.

1026. They were not allowed to go on any of the grass? No.

1027. Did you know, of your own knowledge, that the fact of the men walking upon and lying about on the grass would spoil it? No; I simply took it as an order from Mrs. Cunynghame.

1028. Mr. Hawthorne.] Did it ever strike you as being harsh, that the old men should be kept off these grass plots? Well, there was plenty of room for them. I really did not think about it at all.

1029. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know whether these grass plots were used for airing the bed-clothes of the institution? Yes; the lower grass plot was used for that purpose.

1030. Do you know whether the man Burns had been making use of insulting remarks before this? Well, he was a very discontented man. He was always throwing out remarks about the institution generally.

1031. Do you know whether he made a disturbance at meal times, or absented himself from meals just before the time he was put in the isolation room? No; I do not remember that.

1032. All you remember is, that he was generally a discontented man? Yes. I believe I served him out about half a dozen jumpers. He was always tearing his blue jumpers to pieces, and was a very discontented, disaffected man.

1033. I suppose in these asylums there are always a large number of men who are discontented, no matter what is done for them? Yes; men who are always ready to grumble at anything you may do for them.

1034. No matter how kind you are to them? Yes.

1035. Mr. Williamson.] In consequence of the men not being allowed to go on the grass plot they only had the shed? The shed and the space in front of it, which was gravelled.

1036. Do you know the width of the space in front of the shed? About 8 or 10 yards wide.

1037. Mr. Bourke.] How long is it? I suppose about 50 yards. It extends very nearly from wing to wing.

John Langhorn called in, sworn, and examined:—

1038. Mr. Williamson.] Where are you employed at the present time? At the Macquarie-street Asylum.

1039. How long have you been employed there? Two years and better.

1040. Were you employed there from the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment until Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Yes.

1041. When the meat and other provisions came in the morning, who used to receive them? Sometimes Mrs. Cunynghame, sometimes Mr. Cunynghame, and sometimes Mr. Abbott.

1042. But who chiefly? Chiefly, I think, Mr. Abbott.

1043. Will you tell us what time it used to come in the morning? Early; 6 or or half-past 6 o'clock.

1044. When would Mrs. Cunynghame see it? I could not tell you. I know the meat was never cut up until it was passed by one or the other.

1045. Passed by either Abbott, Mr. Cunynghame, or Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.

1046. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, how many times in the week would Mrs. Cunynghame pass it? Really I could not say—several times.

1047. Several times during Mr. Maxted's time? Several times a week during Mr. Maxted's time.

1048. I am talking about Mrs. Cunynghame; how many times a week would she pass it? Two or three times.

1049. Then the meat and provisions on the other occasions would be passed by Abbott or Mr. Cunynghame? Yes.

1050. I believe you were not allowed to talk in your dormitories until Mr. Maxted interfered? Yes; I believe so.

1051. After Mr. Maxted was appointed do you recollect what became of the refuse from the institution? No; I could not tell you.

1052. You were employed in the kitchen? Yes.

1053. Will you tell us where the persons in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen were supplied from? From the main kitchen.

1054. That is from the institution? Yes.

1055. Mr. Bourke.] These supplies that were taken up from the main kitchen to Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen—whom were they for? They went up into Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen.

1056. You were not in her kitchen? No.

1057. During Mr. Maxted's time do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame was cruel or unkind to you or any of the other inmates? I never knew Mrs. Cunynghame to be cruel to anybody. She always treated me with the greatest kindness.

1058. Used you to see Mrs. Cunynghame every day there? Yes, several times during the day.

1059. Mr. Williamson.] It was only in the kitchen that you saw her; you did not see her in the hospital or dormitory? No; my duty did not lead me that way, but she was several times in the kitchen during the day.

Mr.
A. Hanson.

Mr.
J. Langhorn.
29 May, 1890.

Henry Blencowe called in, sworn, and examined :—

- Mr. H. Blencowe.
29 May, 1890.
1060. Mr. Williamson.] What are you? I am a messenger at the Macquarie-street Asylum.
1061. You have been in that position I believe about five years? Yes.
1062. Did your duties keep you in front of the asylum at Macquarie-street? Yes; except when I went out on a message.
1063. At what time in the morning would you go on duty? About 6 o'clock.
1064. And you would be walking up and down in front of the building? No; I would not be always walking up and down, I would be in the front.
1065. After Mr. Maxted was appointed, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal, can you tell me who used to receive the meat and provisions? The clerk used to receive them, and they used to be kept there until Mrs. Cunyngame saw them.
1066. Do you know if between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal, she went round the hospital wards at night-time? No; I do not recollect her going round the wards at night-time.
1067. Would you know if she went round? She might go round without my knowing.
1068. Did you ever see her going round? No; I cannot say I did.
1069. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, do you know where the refuse went to? After Mrs. Cunyngame let the orchard, it used to go out to the man who took the orchard.
1070. Mr. Bourke.] Did Mr. Abbott, the clerk, receive the goods every day? Not always; sometimes Mr. Cunyngame or Mrs. Cunyngame did; but the meat generally came early, before they were up.
1071. Do you know whether, after Abbott received the meat, Mrs. Cunyngame used to see it and pass it? She used to pass it in the kitchen—either Mrs. Cunyngame or Mr. Cunyngame.
1072. After Abbott received it in the first place, she went to see whether it was all right? Yes.
1073. Mr. Williamson.] Would that be after the cart had gone away? Yes.
1074. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember a man named Hayzelder? I did not know much about the man.
1075. You were there when he came to the institution? Yes; I believe I was.
1076. And I think you assisted in searching him for an order? No; I did not search him.
1077. You were present when it was done? I do not recollect the searching of him; I just recollect his being in the office.
1078. What was your impression of him;—do you think he was drunk or sober? I should not like to say whether he was drunk or sober.
1079. I should like to ask you whether, during Mr. Maxted's time, you knew Mrs. Cunyngame to be very harsh to the inmates of the institution? Well, I have not seen her anyway harsh; sometimes she would be out of temper.
1080. But do you know of any case where she behaved very harshly to the inmates? Well, there was one case, that of the man on the grass; I thought that was rather harsh.
1081. I suppose Mrs. Cunyngame was kind to you? Yes; I never had a word with Mrs. Cunyngame all the time I was there.
1082. Mr. Williamson.] Being the messenger, your duties took you outside in the daytime? Yes.

TUESDAY, 3 JUNE, 1890.

Present:—

MR. FRANK FARNELL,

MR. HAWTHORNE,

MR. RITCHIE.

JAMES PETER HOWE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

William White called in, sworn, and examined :—

- Mr. W. White.
3 June, 1890.
1083. Mr. Williamson.] What are you? A mariner.
1084. Were you an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum from the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment as director until Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal? Yes, and I was there before Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1085. Do you recollect a blind man named Burns? Yes.
1086. I believe you were standing by when he was taken in charge by Edgar and Hanson? No, I was not.
1087. Where were you at the time? I was laying the table.
1088. At any rate, you recollect Burns being taken to the refractory cell? Yes.
1089. Was it in the afternoon or in the morning? About 2 p.m.
1090. Do you recollect the doctor coming? Yes; that occurred on Tuesday, and the doctor came on the following Friday.
1091. Do you recollect the doctor saying anything to Mrs. Cunyngame in reference to Burns? Yes; he did not mention Burns' name, but he was coming from the refractory cell at the time.
1092. What did you hear the doctor say to Mrs. Cunyngame? I was underneath the stairs, and he said to Mrs. Cunyngame "You overdid it."
1093. Can you tell us how long Burns was in the cell? From 2 p.m. on Tuesday, 2nd October, until the following Friday, at 11 a.m.
1094. Were the men allowed to go on the plot of grass? No, you would be turned off if you went on it. We could not hang a handkerchief or a towel on it but the head wardman would chuck them away into the bath-room, by Mrs. Cunyngame's orders.
1095. What was the grass plot used for? All I saw it used for was for horses, cows, and ponies, and for playing cricket.
1096. Were you allowed to speak in the wards after a certain hour in the evening? No. We went to bed at 5:30 p.m., and if we talked after that hour our tobacco would be stopped for a month.
1097. After Mr. Maxted's appointment did you ever see Mrs. Cunyngame go through the wards at night-time? Never.

1098.

1098. Did you ever see her inspect the food after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I have seen her going to the ward, but not inspecting the food.

1099. That would be in the day-time? Yes.

1100. Did she ever inspect the food of the patients when she went into the wards? She came in one day to me. I was captain of a table, and I objected to cut the meat up because it was nothing but bones. She said "Give it to me, I am used to cutting bones," and she said to Curry, "Run up to the kitchen and see if there is any more meat." Curry went, but whether he got any or not I could not say. She said, "Hanson, run up to the hospital and see if there is any meat left," and he went and came back with a dish of bones. I do not think there was much meat on them.

1101. To whom was that supplied? To the mess-room I was in.

1102. To the patients? Yes; to the inmates. It came out of the hospitals.

1103. In the day-time did Mrs. Cunynghame ever make any inspection of the bed linen? I was never in the dormitories in the day-time.

1104. Was the bed linen changed? No; the sheets might be changed, but they were only fit to cover the pillows.

1105. They were not sheets at all, then? They were like hand towels, sufficient to cover the pillow and no more.

1106. Was the bed clothing clean? I could not say. I did not have the best of eyesight. You could shoot peas through the blankets I had.

1107. On the whole, was the bed-clothing dirty? It was not clean.

1108. Do you know what became of the refuse from the asylum after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I know nothing about that.

1109. After Mr. Maxted's appointment did Mrs. Cunynghame ever speak to you in a harsh manner in reference to ruling you or anything of that kind? Yes. Something else happened before that. I went out on the 6th of August and I returned on the 21st of August, as I was taken bad with my back. On the 22nd of August, Hanson, the head wardman, came down and called for silence. He said, "Mrs. Cunynghame desired me to come and inform you that if there is any talking here after the doors are closed, she will stop your tobacco for a month. She has got the manager's consent to that effect." One man made the reply, "We are not prisoners or convicts, and we will talk until 8 o'clock." That was Dan. M'Enrick.

1110. What was the result? Next morning seven of us went to Mrs. Cunynghame's office. We told Mr. Abbott, the clerk, that we wished to see Mrs. Cunynghame. We went up at 9 o'clock, and we had to remain there until 10:50 a.m. before we could see her. When she came out she saw Dan. M'Enrick sitting on the edge of the grass by the footpath, and she said, "If you are that tired, you may go and get a form and sit on it." With that she walked in, and we followed her to the office. She said, "What is it you all want now." Dan. M'Enrick replied, "We wish to know if you will give us a copy of the rules and regulations of your asylum, so that we may know when we are breaking your rules." She said, "I have got none. Is that what you all want?" I said, "Yes, ma'm"; but Thompson said, "No, I wish to speak for myself," and Mrs. Cunynghame said, "You had better all speak for yourselves single-handed," which they did; Thomson, Burns, and myself being the three last. She said, "White, you are a bad man; you have the looks of it." "Humph; humph;" said I, "No better, no worse." "Very complimentary," says Thomson, the blind man. After I had told Mrs. Cunynghame that I would like to have a copy of her rules and regulations, and she had said she had none, she asked me if I wanted anything else, and I asked her if I might be allowed to put my pocket handkerchief and towel after it was washed on any portion of the grass in the asylum yard. "No," she said, and I said, "Am I to understand that I am to carry these things about on my person all day?" and she said, "No, there is a line for that purpose." I said to her "I am given to understand that you made a man take a shirt off the line yesterday morning," and Mrs. Cunynghame replied, "Because he was insubordinate." Mrs. Cunynghame said, "Is there anything more you want?" and I said, "No," that I would see the manager when he came.

1111. Did she say to you then that she would rule you with a rod of iron? Not then.

1112. When did she say that? I could not give the date.

1113. Was it after Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes, some time after. She was going down one forenoon to go through the shed and she happened to go in towards the bath-room. There was a man named Shannon there and a man named Carter, the bath man. Something had occurred to nettle or annoy Mrs. Cunynghame, and I heard her say, "I will rule them with an iron rod, and an iron hand to use it."

1114. Mr. Bourke.] Did she say that to you? She said it to Shannon and Carter.

1115. Did you hear it? Yes.

1116. Mr. Williamson.] After Mr. Maxted's appointment were the inmates afraid of Mrs. Cunynghame? They had cause to be.

1117. How? We were not allowed to laugh amongst ourselves under the shed. If we did so, Hanson would run down and tell us to stop it, and he would say, "You know the matron does not like it."

1118. Did not like what? Our laughing and amusing ourselves under the shed, and I suppose we were 100 yards from her establishment. It was very hard to be in an asylum where you could not laugh and joke among yourselves.

1119. Did you know two inmates named Carter and Edwards? Yes.

1120. Did you know them to have their tobacco stopped at any time? Yes.

1121. What for? There was a complaint made against Carter for having vermin on his flannel, and another complaint against him for using bad language to Mr. Rossiter. When he was taken before Mr. Rossiter he said, "As they have complained against me, it is time for me to make a complaint. I am six weeks all but two days and cannot get a pair of socks." That afternoon there were socks for everyone who wanted them.

1122. What was his tobacco stopped for? There was one louse found on his flannel.

1123. And he was blind? Yes.

1124. Do you know a man named Edwards? Yes.

1125. Did he ever have his tobacco stopped? Yes.

1126. Was he blind? He was next door to it. He could see his way about, and that was all.

1127. After Mr. Maxted's appointment do you know that men were sent up by Mrs. Cunynghame to Mr. Maxted for punishment, and that they came back unpunished? They have been sent up, but I cannot remember the men now nor the date.

Mr.
W. White.
3 June, 1890.

Mr.
W. White.
3 June, 1890.

1128. Between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal was she tyrannical and harsh? Yes. I do not know what you mean by tyrannical, but she was harsh to everyone. She would not allow us any comfort whatever, only what she could not help.

1129. Mr. Bourke.] You say that Mrs. Cunyngame was harsh? Yes; she begrudged me to breathe the very air, and her own child in my arms.

1130. Then were you in the habit of nursing Mrs. Cunyngame's children? One baby was very fond of me, and I looked upon him as my own child.

1131. Did you refuse to do work in the institution? Never.

1132. You were asked whether Mrs. Cunyngame inspected food in the institution;—I suppose you do not know anything about that, because you were not in the wards in the day-time, or in the place where the supplies of food were received? No; I can say nothing about the food received from outside; but I can speak about the food that was delivered to the inmates at meal times.

1133. You have said that you could not say whether the sheets were changed in the day-time, but you have acknowledged that they were changed? I did not say they were changed.

1134. Then what you say is, that the sheets were never changed? Only perhaps once in three weeks or a month.

1135. You spoke about a man named M'Enrick, who went with you and some others on a deputation to Mrs. Cunyngame in reference to the talking at night;—was not M'Enrick a noisy man? No.

1136. Was he a quiet man? I always found him a quiet jolly man.

1137. Do you remember his leaving the institution? Yes.

1138. Do you remember whether he was taken away by a policeman? No; he was not taken away by a policeman.

1139. How do you know? I saw him go.

1140. Was there a policeman outside? I do not know; I was inside.

1141. You do not know whether he was taken away by the police or not? I cannot say.

1142. You have said, also, that you asked Mrs. Cunyngame for a copy of the rules of her institution, so that you would know when you were breaking them? Yes.

1143. Did you not say this to Mrs. Cunyngame, "By what right, or according to what rule, do you stop us from talking at night?" No, I did not.

1144. One feature of the great distress which you underwent was that you could not hang your handkerchief and towel on the grass? That was one cause of complaint.

1145. You said you were not allowed to hang your handkerchief and towel on the grass? Yes; or even on the trees.

1146. Did not arguments on political and religious subjects take place sometimes between the men in their dormitories at night? I never heard any.

1147. Did you never argue yourself with other men at night, and loudly too, on religious and political topics? No, I did not.

1148. Do you remember a Chinaman being in the institution? I remember the Hottentot.

1149. Were you not in the habit of tormenting that man, and tripping him up—you and M'Enrick? No.

1150. Are you quite sure you never tormented that man? Certainly.

1151. And that Mrs. Cunyngame never spoke to you about it? She never spoke to me about it. The man will say that I was the best friend he ever had in the asylum.

1152. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact, did you not one day, after Mr. Maxted was appointed, protect this man from being insulted by the other inmates? Many a time I would protect the man from the remarks of different people.

1153. Mr. Bourke.] You did not trip him up or tease him? Never.

1154. Did you complain to Mr. Maxted of Dr. Violette's treatment? I think that if I made a complaint about Dr. Violette I ought to make the same complaint about Mr. Cunyngame.

1155. Did you make the complaint? I did.

1156. You made it to Mr. Maxted? I merely mentioned it to him; I gave him no particulars.

1157. Did you get any satisfaction from Mr. Maxted? I did not want any.

1158. You only made the complaint for fun, I suppose? Not for fun. It is in my head yet and in my book, both as regards Dr. Violette and Mr. Cunyngame.

1159. Did the doctor treat you well or did he treat you ill? He treated me ill, and so did Mr. Cunyngame. Dr. Violette put down "continue" to my prescriptions and Mr. Cunyngame prescribed for me.

1160. Did the clerk, Mr. Abbott, treat you badly, too? No; Mr. Abbott never treated me badly.

1161. Did you not keep a diary? I did, and I have it yet.

1162. And in that diary you kept an account of the doctor's visits, and the time he occupied in each visit? Yes.

1163. And an account generally of everything done in the institution—everything that interested you? Yes; anything I saw.

1164. Were you taken before the doctor pretty often? I was taken before the doctor on the 13th of October by Mrs. Cunyngame.

1165. What for? That I could not tell you.

1166. Were you not frequently taken before him for misconduct? Never. I never misconducted myself while I was in the place.

1167. Were you employed at the provision store in the asylum in Mrs. Cunyngame's time? No; but I was there for a short time after Mrs. Cunyngame left.

1168. You were dismissed for being drunk, I think? That is false; I resigned.

1169. Did you ever incite Burns, M'Enrick, and Shannon, to defy Mrs. Cunyngame? Never; Shannon was a cocktail, and was always on Mrs. Cunyngame's side.

1170. Do you know a man named Stirling? Yes.

1171. Have you seen him during the last eight or nine months, while this inquiry has been going on? I must have seen him.

1172. Have you had any conversation with him about this inquiry, and about the evidence you were going to give? Yes.

1173. Did he ask you what evidence you were going to give? He took it down.

1174. Why were you transferred from the George-street Asylum to the Macquarie-street Asylum? That I could not tell you. Dr. Maher took me.
1175. Was it for misconduct? Dr. Maher transferred me and twenty-five others to the Macquarie-street Asylum. He was going to make that his place of call for eye patients. There was no misconduct on my part. I bore a good character in George-street Asylum.
1176. Are you quite sure that you never refused to do any work Mrs. Cunynghame asked you to do in Macquarie-street? No; I did not.

Mr.
W. White.
3 June, 1890.

1183. At the time she told Mr. Maxted that she had been up lately, you say you had not seen her there for two or three days previously? I did not.
1184. Could she have been there without your seeing her? No. I was in bed most of the time, but I did not lie in bed in the day-time. I would always put my clothes on and sit up.

1186. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, did you see her at any time visiting the hospital at night, or know of her doing so? No.

10 June, 1890.
1203. And you have been here for some time? Going on for six years.
1204. Did the police ever manifest any disinclination to assist Mrs. Cunynghame during the time she was at the institution? On the contrary.
1205. If she has sworn that there was an inclination on the part of the police to oppose her, is that correct? It is not.
1206. I suppose you are in close proximity to the police-station at Parramatta? Yes.
1207. And if an emergency arises you are generally on the spot? Yes.
1208. Have you known the police to bring men to the institution who were drunk, and ask Mrs. Cunynghame to take them in? Never; I would not have allowed such a thing. I say without fear of contradiction that during the time I have been at Parramatta, over five and a half years, no person drunk, or under the influence of drink, has been sent here; and since Mr. Maxted has granted the concession to me of sending men whom I consider fit subjects for this institution, or the other, I have never abused it.
1209. So that there is no truth in the statement that you have sent drunken men here? Not a scintilla of truth. 1210.

Mr.
R. Latimer.

10 June, 1890.

1210. Have you ever authorized the police to watch about the place to see whether Mrs. Cunynghame took them in or not? Never.
1211. Did she ever write to you complaining of your persistent action in sending drunken men to the institution? Never.
1212. From the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment to Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, did she ever send you a letter in reference to any particular man? I have received memoranda in Peter Abbott's writing signed by Mrs. Cunynghame on several occasions.
1213. Do you recollect receiving this letter from Mrs. Cunynghame:—"Dear Sir,—I hereby give you notice, that James Ryall, who has been for a long time anxious to leave the institution, and in respect to whom you were kind enough to send the police to quiet, has to-day obtained the sanction of the Inspector of Public Charities to go. He is unable to look after himself, and I consider it right to inform you." Did you receive that letter from Mrs. Cunynghame? I do not believe I did. I have not the slightest recollection of it. Any letter I ever received from Mrs. Cunynghame was acted upon generally within five minutes after I received it.
1214. Mr. Frank Farnell.] It might have been received at your quarters while you were absent? The letters were generally sent to the Court-house.
1215. You might have been absent for a few days, and the letter might have been sent during your absence? I have never been absent for more than a day at a time since I have been at Parramatta.
1216. Mr. Williamson.] The letter being addressed to you, would anybody else take it upon himself to open it? If I were away Sergeant M'Garvy would open it.
1217. Would it be referred to you when you came back? Yes.
1218. Do you recollect the case of this man Ryall, and Sergeant M'Garvy being sent down in reference to a man who was on the footpath? Yes.
1219. Had you received any note in reference to that? I have no recollection.
1220. Did you ever receive a letter from Mrs. Cunynghame intimating to you that the man was, even with the aid of crutches, unable to walk? I cannot remember anything of it.
1221. If it had been sent to you I suppose you would have a recollection of it? I think so. Any communications received from Mrs. Cunynghame were always acted upon at once.
1222. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Do you file all your communications? No. These were memoranda written on 3 or 4 inches of paper, and as soon as the matters were attended to they were destroyed.
1223. So that, if the Committee desired you to make a search, it is possible that you would not be able to find these letters on your file? I do not think I have ever kept a letter received from Mrs. Cunynghame since I have been in Parramatta.
1224. Mr. Williamson.] You know the policemen who were called as witnesses at this inquiry the other day—Munro, M'Garvy, Lewis, and Jenner? Yes.
1225. Had they always instructions to assist Mrs. Cunynghame whenever there was any necessity? Always.
1226. And never manifested any opposition whatever? Not the slightest; I would not have allowed it.
1227. Did Mrs. Cunynghame ever make a complaint at any time with reference to opposition on the part of the police? Never. I brought this matter under the notice of Mr. Maxted with a view to my obtaining authority to send old men to this institution instead of sending them to gaol—men picked up in the streets who were not fit subjects for gaol, and who could not properly be called vagrants. We had to send such men to gaol because Mrs. Cunynghame would not take them in.
1228. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame had authority to take people into the institution who were presented by the police? I do not; but I know that Mrs. Dennis took them in from us, and that Mrs. Cunynghame refused.
1229. It was a matter of discretion, I suppose, in Mrs. Dennis' case? Yes. She might have refused her sanction, the same as Mrs. Cunynghame did, if she had thought proper to do so.
1230. Do you know if men who went to the institution generally had orders to go there? Yes.
1231. This letter was written to you by Mrs. Cunynghame:—"Dear Sir,—Since my interview with Sergeant M'Garvy I had a communication from Dr. Violette, who says that James Ryall cannot be readmitted, being so calculated to bring about a breach of discipline." Was not that letter received by you after you had seen Ryall, and found that he was an unfit person to go out of the institution? I cannot remember.
1232. Do you remember Ryall at all? I have a very faint recollection of him.
1233. Tell us what you recollect about him? I remember Sergeant M'Garvy coming down, and telling me that he had found this man on the footpath, and he came back and told me that Mrs. Cunynghame had refused to take him in, and he felt rather indignant at the treatment he received from Mrs. Cunynghame. That is about as much as I can remember of the matter.
1234. She refused to take him in? Yes.
1235. But is not this the man whom you sent Sergeant M'Garvy and someone else to take away from the institution? I do not remember sending Sergeant M'Garvy.
1236. But he went? He went.
1237. Then, as a matter of fact, you know very little about this man? I know very little about him.
1238. It is in evidence that Mrs. Cunynghame wrote to you to send for this man, and that he was put outside the gates, and some time afterwards some policemen came to take him away;—you know nothing about that I suppose? My recollection does not serve me.
1239. You did not send them? I cannot say whether I did or not.
1240. If, in your absence, a letter was received asking you to send someone to take away this man, the sergeant in charge would act on receiving it? Yes.
1241. As you did not send these men, the sergeant must have sent them? He must have done so.
1242. And I suppose he would not have sent them without some communication from somebody? I do not know, I am sure. I do not know upon what he acted. I remember his telling me of it afterwards.
1243. If somebody went there to take Ryall away they must have gone acting on someone's instructions? They might not; they might hear of it, or might drop across him themselves in the street. When I am engaged on other matters the sergeant generally attends to matters of this sort.
1244. Then, in your absence, the sergeant would attend to this, and if any letter or memorandum was sent he would receive it and open it? Yes.
1245. In that case you would know nothing about it? No, except what he told me afterwards.

1246. Mr. Williamson.] If M'Garvy has sworn that he never opened such a letter, you would be the only person to open it? Yes. With regard to the statement that the police have been in the habit of sending drunken men to the institution I desire to say that none have been sent here since I have been in Parramatta. There would be no object in doing so, because there are two men in charge of the lock-up, one for the night and one for the day, and it is immaterial to them whether there is only one drunken man in the cells or fifty.

*Mr.
R. Latimer.*
10 June, 1890.

Samuel Fox called in, sworn, and examined:—

1247. Mr. Williamson.] You are an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.

1248. How long have you been here? I first came here last July twelve months, in the beginning of the month.

Mr. S. Fox.
10 June, 1890.

1249. Were you here when Mr. Maxted was appointed, and until Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes.

1250. In what part of the institution did you sleep? In No. 5 dormitory.

1251. You were one of Dr. Maher's ophthalmic patients, sent from the George-street Asylum? Yes.

1252. When Mr. Maxted was appointed, were the patients allowed to talk at night in your dormitory? The order was that we were not allowed to talk after half-past 5 o'clock.

1253. Under what penalty? Our tobacco would be stopped. Afterwards we were allowed to talk until 8 o'clock.

1254. Did you know Mrs. Cunynghame to visit the ward at night-time? No; I do not think Mrs. Cunynghame used to visit it at night-time.

1255. You never saw her visit your ward at night-time? No; the head wardsman used to do that.

1256. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know whether any one's tobacco was stopped through talking at night? I am not sure that I do know.

1257. Was your tobacco ever stopped? No.

1258. And you cannot remember the name of any one whose tobacco was stopped? No.

1259. Do you remember if any of the men used to argue or make a noise? No; I do not think so. It was ordinary conversation one with another.

1260. Do you remember whether any of the men objected to being disturbed at night through the others talking? No; it was all in a social way. I remember one night a man coming in a bit tipsy and upsetting the ward a bit; but as a rule the conversation was orderly.

1261. But occasionally? No; I do not know of anyone having complained about too much talking. They all seemed to enjoy the liberty that was given to them to talk in a reasonable way one to the other.

1262. Were you ever told that you might talk in a low voice, but must not argue or make a noise? That might possibly have been said, and naturally so.

1263. You said there was an order that about half-past 5 o'clock, or a little later, when you went into the dormitory, you were not to speak;—can you recollect whether that order was, that you were not to speak at all, or that you were only to speak in a low voice? That was three or four nights afterwards.

1264. Tell us about that? The second or third night after we were transferred from the George-street Asylum we complained about being shut up without being allowed to speak, and Mr. Abbott, the clerk, came down, and said he had been instructed by Mrs. Cunynghame to say that we might speak to each other from our beds, but that did not mean singing out from end of the ward to the other, arguing the point, or anything of that kind.

1265. The objection then on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame was, that some of the men were in the habit of arguing? No, not arguing; ordinary conversation was not allowed.

1266. Then the order was, that you were not to argue, but that you might speak in a low voice to each other in beds next to one another? I do not understand what you mean by arguing, because two men may speak to each other without arguing.

1267. Was Mrs. Cunynghame ever unkind to you during the time she was in the institution? I never spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame but twice while she was there.

1268. Can you say, of your own knowledge, whether Mrs. Cunynghame was harsh to the men? No; I cannot say that I ever heard her say anything very harsh to anyone, except on the occasion when Charlie Burns was on the grass.

1269. You mean she did not treat him very well? Yes, that is what I mean.

1270. But you do not know of any case that you saw yourself? That is the only case that I know of.

1271. The only case you ever heard of? That I do not know; but it is the only case I know of.

1272. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know anything about a man named M'Cauley? I do not recollect the name.

George King called in, sworn, and examined:—

1273. Mr. Williamson.] You are an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum? I am.

1274. How long have you been here? Between five and six years.

1275. Were you here from the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Yes.

*Mr.
G. King.*
10 June, 1890.

1276. Have you been confined in any of the hospitals belonging to the institution for any length of time? I have been in the hospital now some eighteen months.

1277. After Mr. Maxted's appointment and up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal was Mrs. Cunynghame in the habit of visiting the hospital at night-time? I do not remember her visiting it at night.

1278. Would you have seen her if she had done so? Yes; I could not help doing so. I have good eyesight.

1279. Used she to go very often during the week in the day-time? Occasionally.

1280. Once every two or three days? Sometimes she might go for two days and perhaps miss for a day or two.

1281. Do you know the grass lawn at the back of the institution? I do.

1283.

Mr.
G. King.
10 June, 1890.

1283. You were not allowed to use the grass? No; we did not dare to put a foot on it.
1284. What was the penalty if you did? We used to be told that we would get our tobacco stopped, and for a second offence get turned out.
1285. Was the grass used by horses and cattle? Yes; horses used to be on it, and children used to play on it.
1286. And the only walk the men had was the walk along the shed? That was the only walk.
1287. There was no other place beside that unless you went to the fowl-yard and the vegetable garden? We were not allowed to go down that way at all.
1288. You have had an opportunity of seeing Mrs. Cunynghame's conduct towards the inmates;—what was her general conduct towards them? I have known Mrs. Cunynghame at certain times to speak in a sympathising way to the old men when visitors were here. She used to parade the visitors round the yard, and call us "dear old men." I think that when the visitors went out of the gate her sympathy went too.
1289. Was she harsh to the men? She was, and used to rule the place with tyranny.
1290. From what you saw she was tyrannical? She was.
1291. Mr. Bourke.] You say that Mrs. Cunynghame was tyrannical and very harsh? Yes.
1292. Was she so to you? I cannot say she was personally cruel to me.
1293. Can you give us an instance of harshness or tyranny towards anyone else? I think that is an instance when she put the poor blind man into the cell for sitting on the grass.
1294. Did you see him put into the cell? Yes; I was not a dozen yards away.
1295. What was his name? Burns.
1296. You think that was an act of great harshness and cruelty? I do.
1297. Tell us some other instances? I have seen plenty, but I have never made notes of them.
1298. Your memory not being very good, and your not having taken any notes; you do not remember any other case of great harshness besides that of Burns? I have seen plenty of it.
1299. But that is the only one you remember? I did not take any notes of them.
1300. You say that the first time a man went on the lawn his tobacco was to be stopped? Yes.
1301. Did you ever go on the lawn yourself and have your tobacco stopped? No; I knew the order was that we were not to go on the lawn, and I did not break the rule.
1302. Do you know of any man whose tobacco was stopped through going on the lawn? There were several.
1303. Tell us their names? The men have all gone away; it happened a very long time ago.
1304. I only want you to speak of anything which happened after Mr. Maxted was appointed? After Mr. Maxted was appointed I do not think that any man had his tobacco stopped.
1305. At any rate, you do not remember any man whose tobacco was stopped through going on the grass? I know there were some cases, but I cannot remember the names of the men, as it was a long time ago.
1306. Did you ever hear Mrs. Cunynghame herself tell anyone not to go on the grass? I have heard her come down the yard and tell us when the feast was on that we could go on the grass that day.
1307. Did you ever hear her tell anyone not to go on the grass? Not personally, I do not think I did.
1308. You say that for the second offence they were turned out of the institution? That was what we were threatened with.
1309. Who threatened you? The head wardman.
1310. Did you ever know of anyone who was turned out of the institution for going on the grass? No.
1311. And did you ever hear Mrs. Cunynghame say they would be turned out for going on the grass? Not herself; but I have heard orders given to that effect.
1312. As Mrs. Cunynghame was always so tyrannical, I suppose you saw a good deal of her, and that she was constantly there I suppose, that she was about the place every day hunting you fellows up? When I came to the institution first you would not see her sometimes for two or three months.
1313. After Mr. Maxted was appointed, was Mrs. Cunynghame there every day looking after you people, and tyrannising over you? In Mr. Maxted's time, she generally made it a rule to go round the ward every morning. I have seen her walk round the ward once a day in the morning.
1314. Did you see anything more of her after that? Very seldom.
1315. And how was it she exercised this great tyranny? As a rule you would not see her more than one morning in the week.
1316. During the rest of the day would you see her anywhere about the place? She might be about the place; I was down the yard at the time.
1317. When you were in the yard she might have been in the hospital? Yes.
1318. Or in the office? Yes; she might have been round here; of course I was only a few weeks in the hospital at the time Mrs. Cunynghame was here.
1319. Were you in the hospital after Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes; I suppose about four or five weeks before Mrs. Cunynghame left.
1320. You have said that Mrs. Cunynghame did not go round the hospital at night? Not at night.
1321. I suppose you slept at night sometimes, and you cannot say whether or not Mrs. Cunynghame went in while you were asleep? I do not believe she did; I never saw her.
1322. When you were asleep, do you know whether she did or not? I do not believe she came round.
1323. Mr. Ritchie.] Would you usually go to sleep at night? When I first went to the hospital I used to sit up nearly all night.
1324. If you were awake for a considerable portion of the night, could you have heard or seen Mrs. Cunynghame in the ward? I could.
1325. Mr. Williamson.] Was any fault ever found by Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to the way in which you carried out your duties? I never had one complaint, and I never committed myself all the time Mrs. Cunynghame was here.
1326. When there were no visitors present would Mrs. Cunynghame ever manifest any sympathy whatever with the inmates? No; I never saw it—not genuine sympathy.
1327. Did you ever hear her say a kind word to them? She might, in front of visitors.
1328. But when there were no visitors did you ever hear her say a kind word to them? I do not believe I ever did.
1329. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you ever hear her say an unkind word to them? When she spoke to the men she never spoke with kindness.

1330. Mr. Bourke.] Can you tell us any harsh expressions she used to the old men? I have heard her many a time, but I cannot remember now; I made no notes.
1331. Mr. Ritchie.] How do you draw your conclusion as to Mrs. Cunynghame manifesting harshness? Because I have heard it myself, but I could not tell the date when it occurred.
1332. Have you ever had any cross words with Mrs. Cunynghame? No; I never spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame not two dozen times all the time she was there.
1333. Did she ever exercise any harshness to you in ordering you about, or anything of that kind? No, because I always obeyed the rules of the institution.
1334. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Did you gather that Mrs. Cunynghame was harsh from the actual words used or from the manner in which they were spoken? I know that if she was not speaking harshly she was not speaking kindly.
1335. What would you think Mrs. Cunynghame, or anyone in her position, should do? The same as the present matron does—speak kind words, and sympathise. When the present matron goes down to the hospital, if a poor man is sick she will go to him and sympathise with him, and ask him if there is any little thing she can get, and she sends little things from her own table to him.
1336. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not Mrs. Cunynghame did that? I never saw anything of it at all.
1337. As far as you are concerned? No.
1338. She never did that to other patients? I never heard of it. I never saw anything brought into them by Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr.
G. King.
10 June, 1890.

George Cunynghame called in, sworn, and examined:—

1339. Mr. Bourke.] You are a member of the Pharmaceutical Society? Yes.
1340. And Government Dispenser for the district of Parramatta? Yes.
1341. I think you were at one time Chief Dispenser at the Sydney Hospital? Yes, for a number of years.
1342. How long have you been dispenser at Parramatta? About seven and a half years.
1343. During the time that Mrs. Cunynghame was matron of the Macquarie-street Asylum, and during Mr. Maxted's period of office, were you in the habit of assisting her? Not so much at that time. I used to be about the place.
1344. But did you assist her at all? Yes; I assisted her in every possible way.
1345. I suppose you had authority to assist Mrs. Cunynghame, and you did so? Yes; I was recognized by both Mr. Rossiter and Mr. King.
1346. Will you say what you did in the way of assisting Mrs. Cunynghame—say during Mr. Maxted's term of office? Anything that was required in the hospital wards. I was in and out.
1347. During the day? Yes.
1348. How often? Not so often after Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1349. How often did you come to the institution? I was here every day dispensing.
1350. Between what hours? I generally do a little of the work in the morning, and a little in the afternoon or evening.
1351. But I am speaking of what you used to do when Mrs. Cunynghame was here? I did the dispensing, and if any patients in the ward were sick I would go to them.
1352. In absence of the doctor, if anyone wanted attending to you would go to the hospital and look after them? They would generally refer to me.
1353. I suppose you remember a man named Burns being in the institution? Yes.
1354. Do you remember anything taking place between him and Mr. Rossiter? Yes. One evening Mr. Rossiter came here, and Burns was making a disturbance in the dormitory, and Mr. Rossiter had to go to the ward and caution him.
1355. Do you remember what sort of a man Burns was? He was always making a disturbance.
1356. When any of the inmates wanted to see the doctor who took their names? An inmate attendant, named Crawley, used generally to go round in the morning and take down the names in a book.
1357. There has been a good deal said about an isolation ward;—do you know anything about that ward? Yes.
1358. Do you know on whose authority it was instituted? On the authority of Dr. Violette, under whose supervision it was built. Dr. Violette himself went with a carpenter who was here and gave directions as to how it should be constructed.
1359. On whose authority were persons placed in that isolation ward? On the authority of Dr. Violette generally.
1360. Do you know whether tobacco was allowed in the hospital wards before Mr. Maxted was appointed? Never, except on the order of the doctor.
1361. Did Dr. Violette ever make any complaint to you about Mrs. Cunynghame's inattention to duty? No, never.
1362. After Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, did Dr. Violette ever say anything to you on the subject? I saw Dr. Violette the morning after my wife was suspended. I saw him at the gate, and I said, "Doctor, I suppose you have seen what has occurred," and he said, "I was quite surprised, Cunynghame."
1363. Mr. Ritchie.] Is that all he said? Yes; he said he was quite surprised.
1364. Mr. Bourke.] Were you in the habit of going round the institution for Mrs. Cunynghame when she was ill? Yes, at all times.
1365. After Mr. Maxted was appointed, did you assist Mrs. Cunynghame? I assisted Mrs. Cunynghame, but not as actively as before, when I used to go round every morning.
1366. Before Mr. Maxted was appointed, you were in the habit of going right through the institution every morning for Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
1367. Mr. Ritchie.] Was that part of your duty? No; I was not expected to do that.
1368. But you did it on behalf of your wife? Yes, to assist my wife.
1369. Mr. Bourke.] During your visit, did the men seem satisfied with the attention they had been in the habit of receiving from your wife? Yes. They never made any complaint to me.
1370. Never complained of any harsh treatment or harsh expressions from Mrs. Cunynghame? Never.
1371. I suppose if they had you would have brought the matter under the notice of Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I should have spoken to her.

Mr. G.
Cunynghame.
10 June, 1890.

- Mr. G. Cunynghame.
10 June, 1890.
1372. Mr. Ritchie.] Is there much alteration in the management of the institution since Mrs. Cunynghame left? I could not express an opinion, because, since my wife left, my practice has been to simply go in at the gate and do my dispensing, and leave again. I do not think I have been into the ward more than once, and then only to draw a man's tooth.
1373. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Have you ever had to dispense for men suffering from the influence of alcohol? Yes.
1374. Do you know where those men came from originally? I could not say.
1375. You do not know how they found their way into the institution? No; I only deal with the prescriptions as they come before me from the doctor.
1376. Mr. Ritchie.] And all you do now in the institution is to dispense the prescriptions? All I do at the present time, and since my wife's suspension, is to come here, do the medicines, and anything the doctor might order I should do in my capacity as dispenser;—that is to say, draw a tooth, or anything of that sort.
1377. Mr. Bourke.] I suppose that you and the hospital attendants would consider yourselves as more immediately under the doctor's orders? Yes; the doctor is the head of my department.
1378. Did you notice, after Mr. Maxted's appointment, any change in the demeanour of the paid attendants? Yes, I did.
1379. In what way? On one occasion one of the attendants insulted me grossly in the dispensary.
1380. Did you notice any change towards Mrs. Cunynghame? Well, they did not seem to work with that harmony that they should have done.
1381. The men were not so obedient, is that what you mean? Yes.
1382. Mr. Williamson.] Did you ever ask Dr. Violette to intercede with your wife, and ask her not to be so harsh with the men? Never.
1383. If Dr. Violette has sworn that I suppose it is perfectly untrue? Yes, it is perfectly untrue.
1384. I suppose you and Dr. Violette are the best of friends at the present time? Yes, we are friendly.
1385. And up to the time when Dr. Violette gave his evidence before the Committee there was no enmity between you and him? No.
1386. And this statement of his, that you asked him to ask Mrs. Cunynghame not to be so harsh with the men, is simply a fabrication on his part? I never asked him to ask Mrs. Cunynghame not to be harsh to those people.
1387. Then, if he swears that you did, it is a fabrication? It is not the truth.
1388. Do you recollect having a conversation with Mr. Maxted in the store-room? In the dispensary.
1389. Did you not ask Mr. Maxted to ask Mrs. Cunynghame not to be so hard with the men who had given evidence before the Royal Commission? I did not.
1390. You deny any conversation of that kind? Yes; I deny that. Sometimes during Mr. Maxted's time a chemist named Mr. Brackenrigg used to come here and take stock of the drugs, and he came here on one occasion for this purpose; and that was the only time I saw Mr. Maxted in the dispensary.
1391. But I am referring to the time when you spoke to him in the store-room? I never spoke to Mr. Maxted in the store-room.
1392. The store-room off the office? No; it was in the dispensary.
1393. Then, as a matter of fact, it was a fabrication also on Mr. Maxted's part when he said that you asked him to intercede with Mrs. Cunynghame, so that she should not be too hard on those who gave evidence before the Royal Commission? I never mentioned it.
1394. There was no conversation of that kind at all? No.
1395. Do you recollect having a conversation with Mr. Maxted when you told him that you would do no more quackery in the institution? I only spoke to Mr. Maxted once, and that was in the dispensary, in reference to taking stock of the drugs. I may have wished him "Good morning" on other occasions.
1396. Do you recollect having that conversation with him, when you said you would do no more quackery in the institution? I never mentioned the thing to him.
1397. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted speaking to you about your giving medicine to the patients without the doctor's orders, and asking you not to do so? No, I do not.
1398. Why did you fall off, after Mr. Maxted's appointment, in visiting the different wards in the hospital? I did not take the same active part that I did before.
1399. Why? There were the two paid wardsmen.
1400. Were they not there before? Yes.
1401. Can you give us any explanation of why you did not go to the wards after Mr. Maxted was appointed? I did not wish to go. There was an alteration in the management.
1402. Mr. Ritchie.] Did not your wife require your assistance then as much as she did previously? Under the new management I did not care about interfering.
1403. Mr. Williamson.] You say that the wardsmen were under the doctor? They are under the doctor.
1404. Do you not know, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Maxted has dismissed some of them for neglect of duty? I do not know that.
1405. Do you not know that he has dismissed officials that you say are under the doctor? I do not know that.
1406. You say that the isolation ward is under the control of the doctor;—do you recollect the case of Burns? I do.
1407. Will you tell the Committee how it was that Mrs. Cunynghame put Burns into the isolation ward before she saw the doctor? He was on the grass.
1408. Were the inmates not allowed to go on the grass? There was no order to prevent them.
1409. Were not direct orders given to the attendants, including Hanson, to the effect that the inmates were not to be allowed to go on the grass? I gave them no orders.
1410. Do you know as a matter of fact that the order existed? There was no order.
1411. Then what prevented the men from going on the grass? I cannot tell.
1412. Did you ever see any man on the grass besides Burns? I have seen men crossing the grass.
1413. Do you know what was done to them if they crossed the grass? No.
1414. Do you know as a matter of fact that a horse and a cow used to run on the grass? They used to run on the grass occasionally.
1415. If Hanson has sworn that instructions were given to prevent the men from going on the grass you are not prepared to contradict that? I do not know what orders were given.

LATE SUPERINTENDENT OF MACQUARIE-STREET ASYLUM FOR INFIRM AND DESTITUTE, PARRAMATTA.

1416. Do you know whether your wife used to go through the hospital at night-time after Mr. Maxted's appointment? No, I do not know that she used to go through the hospital wards at night-time.
1417. Do you recollect having your attention called by Mr. Maxted to a part of the report of the Royal Commission, where it states that you were a most unreliable witness, and that your services should not be retained? No; Mr. Maxted never mentioned the report to me.
1418. You have read the report? Yes.
1419. Did you see that statement in it? Yes; with regard to the statement as to my evidence being unreliable, I wish to explain that Dr. Thompson, one of the members of the Royal Commission, dwelt very much on the fact of certain death certificates having been signed with a stamp. The book was in use, and frequently there were half a dozen cards of deceased inmates in cases where certificates of death were wanted. Dr. Rolling used to come into the room very frequently. I would do it at his dictation, but always by his directions from the cards. Dr. Thompson doubted me on that point, and that is why he said I was unreliable.
1420. Mr. Bourke.] How many times did you speak to Mr. Maxted altogether between the time of his appointment and the date of your wife's dismissal? I spoke to Mr. Maxted in the dispensary, and then I went out into the office, and he shook hands and spoke to me.
1421. Are those the only two occasions on which you spoke to Mr. Maxted during the period referred to? Yes.
1422. And if he says you spoke to him on other occasions it is not true? No; it is not true.
1423. And said what has been said here to-day? No; it is a lie.
1424. Mr. Williamson.] You say you only spoke to Mr. Maxted twice—once in the dispensary, and once in the office? Those were the only occasions on which I spoke to him in the institution.
1425. Do you recollect speaking to him in the George-street Asylum? No.
1426. How do you come to say that you only spoke to him twice? I have seen Mr. Maxted frequently.
1427. I ask you if you have not spoken to him in the George-street Asylum? I might have said "Good-day."
1428. Have you not said anything more than that? Not that I am aware of.
1429. Are you prepared to swear that you have not spoken to him more than twice? Yes. I only remember the two occasions. I might have wished him "Good-day" at other times, but I had no conversation with him.
1430. You swear that? Yes.
1431. Will you swear that you did not speak to him at the George-street Asylum? I had no conversation with him.
1432. Will you swear that between the time when Mr. Maxted was appointed, and when your wife was dismissed, you did not have a conversation with Mr. Maxted in the George-street Asylum? I do not remember any conversation.
1433. Will you swear you did not? I do not remember any conversation.
1434. Are you prepared to swear that you did not speak to Mr. Maxted more than twice? I only spoke to Mr. Maxted, that I can remember, on the two occasions.
1435. Mr. Ritchie.] During the time between Mr. Maxted's appointment and your wife's dismissal, did you suspect that things were going wrong between Mr. Maxted and Mrs. Cunynghame? Well, I did not hold the same opinion of Mr. Maxted that my wife did. She was very friendly with him. I had nothing whatever to do with him.
1436. Did you not think that Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the institution was satisfactory to Mr. Maxted? I thought so.
1437. There was nothing in those two conversations which you had with Mr. Maxted that led you to believe that anything was wrong? The conversation I had in the dispensary was about the drugs and Mr. Brackenrigg.
1438. And had nothing to do with your wife's management? No.
1439. Mr. Bourke.] I suppose you yourself were not very friendly with Mr. Maxted? I never took any notice.
1440. You were not on such terms with Mr. Maxted as that you would speak with him about your wife in the way he has said here? No; I wished him good-day, and that sort of thing.
1441. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Was it ever brought to your notice that the supplies, such as meat, were of an inferior character? The meat was bad at times.
1442. Do you know whether anybody came here to interview Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to the supplies of meat? I cannot speak with confidence in the matter.
1443. Who was the contractor? Mr. Dunn.
1444. Did you ever hear any of the inmates complain of inferior food being supplied? No; there were not many complaints; sometimes you would hear a complaint from them.
1445. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect seeing a letter which was written by your wife to this effect:—"I should like to point out that immediately upon the appointment of Mr. Maxted to the position of Director of Government Asylums he appears to have made a dead set upon me"? That was no action of mine.
1446. She never told you that Mr. Maxted from the start had made a dead set against her? No; she never said so.

Francis Dyer called in, sworn, and examined:—

1447. Mr. Bourke.] You were formerly an inmate of this institution? Yes; for eight or nine years.
1448. And you were here from the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment until Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes, and afterwards.
1449. And you used to assist, I think, in the working of the institution? I held most of the situations in the institution, such as that of head wardsman before and after Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal. I had charge of the kitchen, and I worked about the yard at different occupations, such as carpentering, painting, and so forth, and did general work in the institution.
1450. Do you remember a man named Cummings being cook? I do.
1451. When he was cook in Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen, do you remember where the comforts for the hospital patients were kept? Yes; I had charge of the hospital medical comforts, such as beef tea, rice and milk, and gruel.

Mr. G.
Cunynghame.
10 June, 1890.

Mr. F. Dyer.
10 June, 1890.

- Mr. F. Dyer. 1452. Where were they cooked? In Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen by Cummings. I used to give my orders as to how many were required, and how many were knocked off.
- 10 June, 1890. 1453. Was all that kind of work done in Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen? It was for some time.
1454. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, who used to receive the stores, groceries, and butcher's meat? The clerk, Peter Abbott.
1455. Did anyone else receive them? Not while I had charge of the kitchen.
1456. After they were received by the clerk, would they be inspected by anyone? The clerk received them, and Mrs. Cunynghame or Mr. Cunynghame passed them before they were touched. The process was this:—When the meat came in the morning, the men in the kitchen would go to the cart and assist the man to bring it in. It was put on the stillyards, and I stood alongside and took the weight in the presence of the clerk, and the clerk put it down in a small red book saying, "Yes, the weight is all right." After that it was put on the table. We had our breakfast. In the meantime Mr. or Mrs. Cunynghame would come down, pass the meat, and give orders as to what we were to do with it; sometimes there were to be joints, at other times a stew.
1457. It was passed before it was used? Yes; before it was touched, after it came off the stillyards.
1458. Then none of the stores would be used in the institution until they had been passed by either Mr. or Mrs. Cunynghame? Certainly not.
1459. After Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal did the clerk Peter Abbott always receive the stores? He generally received them.
1460. Did anyone inspect them before they were used? Yes; Mrs. Brooke inspected them.
1461. Pretty well the same course was pursued as before Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Yes.
1462. Do you know any cases in which Mrs. Cunynghame was harsh with the inmates of the institution? No; I do not.
1463. You were here every day I suppose? All the time I was in the institution I was about the asylum one place and another. When I was head wardman it was my duty to go round the institution.
1464. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame here every day? Yes; unless she was sick.
1465. I suppose her sicknesses were not frequent? No.
1466. And when she was not sick she would be here on the premises? Certainly.
1467. And when she was well you would see her every day about the place? Yes; more or less.
1468. In all parts? Yes; she used to go round and inspect the wards.
1469. Would you see her doing that? Yes.
1470. And you do not know of any case of harshness? No; I do not. She might speak a bit rough when occasion required it.
1471. Were the men difficult to manage? There were three or four who were difficult.
1472. Who were they? There was a body of them who came from the George-street Asylum, and there were three or four agitators amongst them. White was one, Shannon was another, Burns was another, and M'Enrick was another. We used to call them in the yard "the agitators."
1473. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Was that the White who was examined before the Committee? It was William White, a man with bad eyes.
1474. Mr. Bourke.] You were an assistant in the institution, and you say that Mrs. Cunynghame was always here, and always about the place, and that you know of no instance of harshness? Yes.
1475. And what was her behaviour to you personally? Personally, she was always very good to the inmates.
1476. Give us your own experience? She always treated me in a straightforward manner.
1477. What was her behaviour towards you personally during Mr. Maxted's time? She treated me very well, as she treated the other inmates. I have no complaint to make about the treatment I received.
1478. After Mr. Maxted was appointed there was some change made in the diet? Yes.
1479. Did you assist Mrs. Cunynghame in bringing about that alteration? I did.
1480. Was Mrs. Cunynghame anxious to bring about this new arrangement? Yes. There were certain boxes put up in the mess-room to receive the crockery and so forth, and I worked all night with one or two others to do them.
1481. The fact is you men worked very hard to bring about this new arrangement? We did.
1482. Under Mrs. Cunynghame's supervision, and by her instructions? Yes.
1483. Mr. Williamson.] You left the institution for the purpose of commencing business for yourself, did you not? I did.
1484. And you told Mr. Maxted so? Yes.
1485. As a matter of fact you are living with Mrs. Cunynghame at the present time? I am.
1486. And you have been living with Mrs. Cunynghame ever since you left the institution? Yes.
1487. After Mrs. Cunynghame left, and you went to live with her, did you come back to the institution? I did.
1488. How long did you remain here? I remained here, I believe, from the middle of February to the 2nd of July.
1489. Did you leave here and then go back to Mrs. Cunynghame? I did. It was a pre-arrangement.
1490. What was the pre-arrangement? It was the time when Mrs. Cunynghame asked for a cook, and Mr. Maxted said she was to have a paid cook. Mrs. Cunynghame asked me if I would mind stopping another month, and I did so. In the meantime Mrs. Cunynghame got dismissed. I think it was on a Friday, the 21st or 22nd of November, 1888. I went into the office in the afternoon for my discharge, and Mrs. Brooke said I would have to see Mr. Maxted, Mr. Maxted came in the afternoon and sent for me. I was dressing to go out. He said, "You should never have been admitted into this institution." I said, "Why?" He said, "A strong healthy man like you ought to be able to get your own living." I said, "All right, Mr. Maxted," and I said, "What about my money?" He said, "You can call at the office in the morning—Saturday morning—for your money." It was a matter of 4s.; my wages were 4d. a day in the kitchen. I said, "Mr. Maxted, can I go?" and he said, "You cannot go until the morning; you will have to see the doctor first." In the morning I went before the doctor, who said, "Where are you going?" I said, "I am going to my friends, to my brother in Sydney"; and if you turn up the doctor's book of the 22nd of November you will see this entry by the doctor—"If it is true about Dyer going to his friends, let him go."
1491. How did the doctor know that if he did not get it from Mrs. Brooke or Mr. Maxted? I came back in February—about the middle of March I was sent for to take the head wardmanship.

1492. What about the pre-arrangement;—was it made between you and Mrs. Cunynghame? I was asked to go out with her. This was before the inquiry was commenced and before Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed. Mr. F. Dyer.
10 June, 1890.
1493. By whom were you asked to go out? By Mr. Cunynghame.
1494. To look after what? To look after the orchard.
1495. At the time you were leaving here did you not know you were going to Mrs. Cunynghame's? Certainly.
1496. Did you tell Mr. Maxted that you were going away for the purpose of going into partnership with a painter? I did.
1497. Had you any such intention? Yes; I intended to go into partnership with my brother.
1498. Did you not say a moment ago that when you were going out you knew you were going to Mrs. Cunynghame's? Certainly, I did; but while I was in Sydney, between November and February, living with my brother, he asked me to go down with him, and I told him I would see about it.
1499. As a matter of fact, have you not been working up the case for Mrs. Cunynghame? I have not; I have not been an agent at all for her.
1500. Have you not been trying to get witnesses for her? No.
1501. What are you doing at Mrs. Cunynghame's now? I am working as a garden labourer.
1502. If you were going into partnership with your brother, why did you leave your brother and go back to the institution? Because I took bad. I am subject to an internal complaint.
1503. Was it not pre-arranged between you and Mrs. Cunynghame that you were to come back and see how things were going on in the institution, so as to enable you to give evidence before the inquiry? No; but I was called a spy after I left.
1504. Who called you a spy? Mr. Maxted. I have witnesses to prove it.
1505. You say that after Mr. Maxted's appointment Peter Abbott was to receive the groceries? Yes.
1506. How long would it be after they were received by Peter Abbott that they would be seen by Mrs. Cunynghame? Sometimes 5 minutes; sometimes 10.
1507. As a matter of fact, were not certain things—groceries—sent in, and she never saw them at all? She did see them.
1508. Witnesses have sworn that she did not see them? I am talking about while I was in the kitchen.
1509. When were you in the kitchen? Four or five months.
1510. During the whole of the time after Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes.
1511. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted going to the kitchen after his appointment, and interfering with a man who had a large piece of meat? Yes.
1512. What did Mr. Maxted say? He spoke to me. He asked me if that was the general way that meat was taken away from the kitchen, and I said "No," which it was not.
1513. Did he weigh it? He weighed it afterwards.
1514. What did it weigh? I could not tell you exactly.
1515. Do you swear that since her appointment Mrs. Brooke has ever been absent when the goods came in? I do not say she was never absent.
1516. Did you not say a moment ago that Peter Abbott always received the goods? Certainly.
1517. When Abbott was receiving the goods was Mrs. Brooke present? Not always.
1518. Do you swear that? I do.
1519. Will you swear that she was not present on every occasion? She was not present on every occasion. I can swear that on my oath; and I was only there a matter of a week or ten days in Mrs. Brookes' time.
1520. Do you swear that during that week or ten days she did not every morning receive the goods? No, not every morning.
1521. Was Mrs. Cunynghame in the habit of visiting the wards at night-time? Not unless occasion required.
1522. When Mrs. Cunynghame went round the institution in the day-time, and spoke to all the old men, were you always with her? No, I was not.
1523. You cannot tell whether she spoke harshly or not to the old men when she went round the place? No, I cannot answer for that.
1524. You were head wardsman;—can you tell the reason why the men were prohibited from going on the grass? I do not know. There was no order to that effect.
1525. Will you swear you did not know they were prohibited from going on the grass? I will swear that I know nothing about it.
1526. Did you ever see a man on the grass? Yes.
1527. More than one? Certainly; I have been on the grass myself.
1528. You were a head wardsman—have you seen any inmates of the institution walking on the grass up to the time that Burns was put in the isolation ward? No; they were not allowed to walk on the grass.
1529. Did you see horses there? I saw a horse there.
1530. Mr. Ritchie.] You said you saw a number of men on the grass;—what were they doing? I have seen men on the grass, such as myself and the attendants. The doctor has been on the grass, and also Mr. Cunynghame.
1531. Mr. Williamson.] But we are talking about the inmates. Up to the time that Burns was put in the isolation ward, did you ever see any of the inmates on the grass? No.
1532. Will you tell me the reason why the inmates were not allowed on the grass? No; I was not superintendent.
1533. Can you give any explanation to the Committee why it was that you and the other attendants were allowed to walk on the grass and the inmates were not? No, I cannot.
1534. You told us that you had something to do with the diet;—what had you to do with it—did you wash up the dishes? No; I am not a scullery man.
1535. What had you to do with the diet? Mrs. Cunynghame came to me and said, "Don't you think so and so would be better here?" and so and so, mentioning several things such as gruel in the morning for breakfast, or a little treacle or jam in the afternoon, and I said, "Certainly, it would be a change for the men."
1536. Is that what you call having to do with the diet? I helped generally.
1537. As a matter of fact, during Mr. Maxted's time, you did whatever he directed you to do, and paid you for doing? Certainly.

- Mr. F. Dyer. 1538. Mr. Bourke.] You say Mr. Maxted told you that you were a strong healthy man, able to earn your own living, and that you ought to be ashamed to be in the institution? Yes.
 1539. You have lost one arm, have you not, and have only one hand, and that is crippled? Yes.
 1540. I suppose your work was generally to superintend the other men in bringing about the new dietary arrangements? Yes.
 1541. Mr. Williamson.] When Mr. Maxted told you that you were an able-bodied man, and ought to be ashamed of yourself for being in the institution, was that said in the presence of Mrs. Brooke? Yes.

John Horan called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. J. Horan. 1542. Mr. Bourke.] How long have you been an inmate of the Parramatta Asylum? Over three years. I was two years under Mrs. Cunyngame's charge.
 1543. You were here after Mr. Maxted was appointed in August, 1888, and until Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended? Yes.
 1544. And you used to assist sometimes in the institution when you were required? I was four months deputy wardsman in No. 1 hospital.
 1545. Mr. Williamson.] In Mr. Maxted's time? No.
 1546. Mr. Bourke.] During Mr. Maxted's time you were not doing anything? No, I was not in any of the hospital billets.
 1547. Were you in any other billet? I was working in the yard.
 1548. Then you were a good deal about the place? Yes.
 1549. You saw Mrs. Cunyngame every day? Yes; I saw her every day. She attended the hospital daily.
 1550. What was her conduct towards your men;—was she very harsh to you? No; I always heard her speak gently and kindly to every man in the building.
 1551. Do you know of any cases in which men were treated very harshly? No, I do not.
 1552. Do you know a man named White, and a man named Burns? I have seen them.
 1553. Do you know what kind of men they were? No, I do not.
 1554. Do you know the character they bore in the yard? I have not heard the men saying anything about them.
 1555. What was Mrs. Cunyngame's treatment of you personally? She treated me gently and kindly always.
 1556. Mr. Williamson.] After Mr. Maxted's appointment, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal, were not the men prohibited from going on the grass? They were.
 1557. Why? I do not know.
 1558. Do you know of any inmate having his tobacco stopped because he went on the grass? No; I do not.
 1559. Used you to see a horse and a cow on the grass? I have seen horses and cows on the grass up to this hour.
 1560. I am talking about the first part of Mr. Maxted's time. Were you not told that if you went on the grass you would get your tobacco stopped? I was never told so.
 1561. Did you ever go on the grass after Mr. Maxted's appointment? No; unless I went across it occasionally when I was going to my ward.
 1562. Mr. Bourke.] Were you ever ordered off the grass during Mrs. Cunyngame's time? No.
 1563. Mr. Ritchie.] Were you in the habit of going on the grass? No.
 1564. Then you could not be turned off? No; I had no occasion to go on the grass when I was wardsman in the hospital.
 1565. Mr. Bourke.] You see the clothes that are now hanging on the line to dry, along the yard;—can you tell us whether, in Mrs. Cunyngame's time, those clothes were dried there? No, they were not; they were dried lower down—further away from the building.
 1566. Is it not true that the whole of the yard is taken up with these lines of clothes? Yes.
 1567. And the men have nowhere else to walk now but on the grass? Yes; that is so.

TUESDAY, 8 JULY, 1890.

Present:

MR. HOWE,		MR. CRICK,
MR. FRANK FARNELL,		MR. KIDD,
	MR. RITCHIE.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

George Henry Phillips, Esq., M.D., called in, sworn, and examined:—

- G. H. Phillips, Esq., M.D. 1568. Mr. Bourke.] You are a qualified medical practitioner, residing at Parramatta? Yes.
 1569. You have been in the habit of some time, I believe, of visiting the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes, on different occasions, for upwards of seven years.
 1570. You visited the Asylum after Mr. Maxted was appointed on several occasions? Yes.
 1571. Do you remember a man named Bannan? There were two men on one day. I was called in to see one, and another man was brought in afterwards.
 1572. Do you remember those men—Bannan and M'Govern? Yes.
 1573. What kind of men were they, and what was their mental condition? They were brought to me to see with respect to their sanity. The second man, M'Govern, I declined to certify for.
 1574. What was your opinion of the first man Bannan? As far as I remember, I certified in his case.

1575. Do you think Mrs. Cunynghame was justified in calling you in to see Bannan and the other man? G. H. Phillips, Esq., M.D.
Yes.
1576. There was a reasonable doubt, you think, as to the second man's sanity? Yes.
1577. You had a fair opportunity, I suppose, of observing the working of the Macquarie-street Asylum? 8 July, 1890.
Yes.
1578. What is your opinion of Mrs. Cunynghame's treatment of the inmates during Mr. Maxted's time? I consider that her management was perfectly satisfactory.
- 1579-80. Was she kind or otherwise in her demeanour? Very kind and perfectly natural; she spoke to the patients just the same as she spoke to me.
1581. Of course you met Mrs. Cunynghame there whenever you went to see the inmates? On every occasion.
1582. Did you find her untruthful? No, certainly not.
1583. Do you remember seeing Dr. Violette and Dr. Brown at a picnic after Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? Yes.
1584. Did any conversation take place between you and Dr. Violette about Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? There was a general conversation on that subject.
1585. Did Dr. Violette express surprise at Mrs. Cunynghame being suspended? He did. He said he knew nothing whatever about it. We asked him how it was that Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, and he said, "I know nothing about it; it has nothing to do with me."
1586. That was after her suspension? Yes. Dr. Violette was asked specially about Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension. Everybody said they were surprised, Dr. Violette amongst the number, and then a question was put to Dr. Violette, did he know, and he said, "No, I know nothing at all about it. It had nothing to do with me."
1587. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Dr. Violette intimate to you that he knew that such negotiations were going on between Mr. Maxted and Mrs. Cunynghame as would lead to that lady's dismissal, or did he express any knowledge of the transactions going on between them? He led all of us—Dr. Bowman, Dr. Brown, and myself—to believe that he was perfectly ignorant of anything having taken place until he saw Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension notified.
1588. Do you remember anything else he said? No.
1589. In November, 1888, after Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension, you wrote a letter to her? Yes.
1590. When you went to visit the Asylum to see Bannan, did you see Dr. Violette's book, and did you see a memo. in that book authorizing Mrs. Cunynghame to call you in? Yes—that is, with regard to the first man.
1591. With regard to M'Govern, the second man, Mrs. Cunynghame, was there when you saw him? Yes.
1592. Was Mrs. Cunynghame anxious to get rid of that man? No.
1593. And you have never heard Mrs. Cunynghame address the inmates in a harsh manner? Not at all.
1594. Will you tell us, in a word, what is your opinion of Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the place altogether? I think her management of the institution was as good as it possibly could be.
1595. Mr. Williamson.] How often did you visit the institution between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Two or three times. I could not state the exact number.
1596. Was that shortly after Mr. Maxted's appointment, or shortly before Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? At different times. I simply went up when I was sent for to visit a patient.
1597. When you were specially sent for? Yes.
1598. On those two or three occasions, did you go through the whole of the wards? No.
1599. Then you can only speak in reference to Bannan and M'Govern? That is all at that time—I can only speak of the patients I saw.
1600. As to how the rest of the institution was managed you cannot say because you did not go through it? I have been through the institution, and have taken charge of the institution.
1601. But after Mr. Maxted's appointment, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, not having gone through the wards, you cannot say how they were managed? I have not said anything about the management of the wards during that time.
1602. Not having visited the different portions of the institution between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, how can you speak of the management? I had formed my opinion of it having had actual charge of the institution on several occasions when Dr. Rowling was medical officer.
1603. Prior to Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes.
1604. So that you virtually know nothing of the management of the institution between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? No.
1605. Mr. Orick.] Were you not there at all? I visited it only to see special patients.
1606. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact, you went in at the front door or one of the side doors and down the side way to the Hospital or Isolation Ward, or wherever these men were, and you had a look at them and went away again? Yes.
1607. Who sent for you in the case of M'Govern? In the first place, Mrs. Cunynghame asked me to see him. She said, "I have another man here whom I would like you to see."
1608. Did you look at the book? I did a week afterwards, and was shown an entry in Dr. Violette's handwriting.
1609. In M'Govern's case as well as Bannan's? Yes, I think in both cases. Mrs. Cunynghame sent a message down asking me to call when I was coming up, and she showed me the entry in the book.
1610. Did M'Govern remain in the institution? Yes.
1611. Bannan stayed there some five or six months after you saw him? I am not quite positive. I forget whether or not I certified in his case, but I remember the last of the two because of a dispute having taken place as to whether Dr. Violette wished me to see him or not.
1612. Whose case did you certify to? I forget what was the result of Bannan's case, but I distinctly remember declining to certify with regard to M'Govern, because I remarked to Mrs. Cunynghame, "I do not think this is a fit case," and she said, "No; I think we can manage him here." This is why I said just now that I knew she was not anxious to get rid of M'Govern, because she said she was sure she could manage him.

- G. H. Phillips, Esq., M.D.
8 July, 1890.
1613. Did you certify to Bannan too? I cannot remember whether I did or not. I am positive I did not certify to M'Govern, but I am not positive with regard to Bannan.
1614. Mr. Ritchie.] Were any reasons given why you were called in in place of Dr. Violette? I was not called in the place of Dr. Violette.
1615. For what reason were you called in? When Dr. Violette considers a patient unfit to be in the Asylum, either at Macquarie-street or George-street, he puts a memo. in the book to see Dr. So-and-so, and this other medical man is sent for, and if in his opinion the case is one for the Lunatic Asylum he certifies to that effect.
1616. Then you came at Dr. Violette's wish, and he certified to your coming? Yes.
1617. When you came, what part of the institution did you visit? I saw one of the men in the hall, and the other was brought into the office.
1618. Did you see them elsewhere? No, as far as I remember.
1619. On the other occasions, what part of the institution did you visit? Different parts. Sometimes I went to one ward, sometimes to another, and sometimes to the Isolation Room. On one occasion I had to take a knife away from a patient in the Isolation Asylum Ward.
1620. On the three different occasions on which you visited the Asylum during the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment you went direct to the place where the patient was? Yes; I was taken by Mrs. Cunynghame to the place.
1621. Did you visit other parts of the institution at the same time? No, not on those occasions.
1622. You have not been in the habit of doing so? Previously, but not since Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1623. Have you visited all the other similar institutions in the town? Yes.
1624. Had you many opportunities of judging as to their management? Yes, equal opportunities in each case.
1625. How did you draw your conclusions as to Mrs. Cunynghame's Asylum being managed perfectly well? I considered Mrs. Cunynghame's the best of the lot.
1626. Yet you admit that you had no opportunity of walking over the whole of the institution with a view to criticise its management? Not since Mr. Maxted was appointed. Previously to that I visited the institution for a week or a fortnight at a time.
1627. And did you make it your duty then to satisfy yourself that it was well conducted? Yes. The only place I ever disapproved of entirely was the cancer ward, in Macquarie-street, and I thought that was a disgrace to the community.
1628. Whose fault was that? It was not Mrs. Cunynghame's fault. It was the fault of the building.
1629. And not the fault of the management? No; there was nothing wrong with the management. The buildings are all overcrowded.
1630. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Do you not think the whole of the buildings are a disgrace to the country? I do; they are unfit for the purposes for which they are used.
1631. Mr. Crick.] Then Mrs. Cunynghame must have been a pretty good manager to have managed so well in so bad a building? I think she was.
1632. Mr. Ritchie.] Of course you were not aware of any conflict or any transactions between Mrs. Cunynghame and Mr. Maxted? None at all. My experience of Mrs. Cunynghame was entirely derived from the time Dr. Rowling was Medical Officer. At times Dr. Rowling's health would not be good, and he would arrange with other medical men in the town to take his work off his hands, and on some occasions I would take Macquarie-street, and on other occasions George-street, sometimes for a week, and sometimes for three or four days.
1633. So that it is very possible that much dissension might have taken place between Mr. Maxted and Mrs. Cunynghame without your knowing it? Yes; I should have no opportunity of knowing anything about it.
1634. Mr. Williamson.] Are you prepared to deny the contents of Dr. Violette's report? I distinctly deny the truth of this statement. Dr. Violette says: "I have also to complain of Mrs. Cunynghame having called in Dr. Phillips to pronounce an opinion on the inmates without my knowledge or sanction." In the case of one of the men I am positive that Dr. Violette sanctioned my seeing him. Dr. Violette goes on to say in his report: "In the case of M'Govern, she is desperately anxious to get rid of him." I say she was not. She was not at all anxious to get rid of him. She expressed her willingness to keep the man there, as she said she felt she could manage him. I do not agree with Dr. Violette in his statement that Mrs. Cunynghame is "shifty, evasive, and untruthful," because I never found her so.
1635. But you were only there three times after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I found her perfectly truthful in her statements to me. She showed me the entry in the book and said: "Here is this man, I don't know that he is very bad; I would like you to see him."
1636. Will you swear that when you were called in to see M'Govern you saw a recommendation by Dr. Violette to the effect that you should be called in? I saw a notice there that day "to see Dr. Phillips" against some man's name.
1637. Signed by whom? There was no signature to it.
1638. Will you swear that you saw any recommendation in respect to M'Govern when you visited the institution? No, not with regard to M'Govern, not on that occasion. I saw the case I was called to see by Dr. Violette—Bannan, the first man. In M'Govern's case I did not see it.
1639. Then you saw no recommendation with regard to M'Govern when you were called in? No.
1640. So that you cannot say that that portion of Dr. Violette's report is untrue which says that Mrs. Cunynghame called you in to see M'Govern without first consulting Dr. Violette? I do not say anything about M'Govern; I speak about Bannan.
1641. Do you swear even with regard to Bannan? I received a memo. that Mrs. Cunynghame wished to see Dr. Phillips for one of the men.
1642. Will you swear that you saw any recommendation when you were called in with reference to Bannan the first time you visited him? I was shown an entry by Mrs. Cunynghame, but I could not be positive whether it was the first time or the second time I visited the institution after seeing Bannan.
1643. Do you keep a diary? I keep a day-book.
1644. In that book you would have an entry of the visit to Bannan? No; I should have an entry that I visited the Asylum, but not the name of the patient.

1645. Mr. Ritchie.] Then you are not positive that you had the assent of Dr. Violette to your going to the Asylum? It was afterwards. I remember Mrs. Cunynghame sending for me afterwards, and taking me into the room and showing me the entry, but I am not positive about the first time. I remember distinctly her showing it to me afterwards.
1646. As far as you know you may have been brought there by Mrs. Cunynghame's sole authority? The notices to visit which I receive are from Mrs. Cunynghame, but they state by request of Dr. Violette.
1647. Were you in the habit of looking at the Medical Book to see that the doctor had signified his wish that you should go? No; I had never seen the book more than once or twice.
1648. But it was usual for the doctor to signify his wish by writing in the book when he wanted you to visit? Yes.
1649. Mr. Bourke.] I suppose you would take an intimation from the Superintendent as sufficient authority for you to go there? Yes.
1650. And you distinctly remember with regard to Bannan that you saw Dr. Violette's memo.? Yes, at some time I saw it.
1651. Mr. Crick.] He approved of your visit some time or other, if not beforehand, at any rate afterwards? Yes.
1652. Mr. Bourke.] He approved of your visit to Bannan? Yes.
1653. You cannot be sure about M'Govern? No, I would not like to be sure whether I saw a memo. about him or not.

G. H. Phillips,
Esq., M.D.
8 July, 1890.

Joseph William Withers, Esq., J.P., called in, sworn, and examined:—

1654. Mr. Bourke.] You are a Justice of the Peace, residing at Parramatta? Yes.
1655. You know the Macquarie-street Asylum at Parramatta? Yes; I have known it for years.
1656. And you have been in the habit of visiting it? Yes, hundreds of times.
1657. Mr. Williamson.] In Mr. Maxted's time? No, not so often in Mr. Maxted's time.
1658. Mr. Bourke.] You say you were never there after Mr. Maxted was appointed? No; I should have said I never went there after Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed. I was so much surprised at Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal that I never went near the place.
1659. Did you never visit the institution after Mr. Maxted's appointment, and before Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes; I think I did once or twice.
1660. Having visited the institution as you say, hundreds of times, you had a good opportunity of seeing how it was conducted? Yes.
1661. Were you ever called in to give your opinion about the quality of the meat? Once I was, and condemned it.
1662. When you went to the Asylum, did you go all over the place? I have been all over it—every particle of it.
1663. I suppose you went unaccompanied by Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes. I would often take friends there on Sunday afternoons.
1664. I asked you whether you had been over the institution unaccompanied by Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes. I have been through it dozens of times. I live near the institution, and I used to take visitors through it. Sometimes I would say, "Is Mrs. Cunynghame in?"; they would say, "No; she is gone out for a drive," and I would say, "Tell her I called to take some friends of mine over the institution." I used to take them over the institution, and go all round the place.
1665. I suppose as a resident of Parramatta you are rather proud of it? Yes; I used to be proud of the place.
1666. And went through amongst the people unaccompanied by Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes, dozens of times; oftener without her than with her.
1667. Did they ever make any complaint to you? No. I would go there when they were having their meals and look at them having their meals, and often talk to the old men and walk all round the ward when they were having their meals, and they never made any complaint to me. I used to ask them personally whether they had any complaints to make. They knew I was a magistrate, and if there were any complaints they could make them to me.
1668. Mr. Ritchie.] What was your object in asking these questions? Only as a matter of curiosity. I used to see them looking happy and comfortable, and I suppose I asked it to see if it was right.
1669. Had you any suspicion that things were otherwise? No; I never had any suspicion of the sort.
1670. Did anyone lead you to believe there was cause for suspicion? No; I used to take an interest in the place, and I used to think that if there was anything going wrong I would speak to Mrs. Cunynghame about it. I never dreamt of anything remiss going on or anything of the kind.
1671. You saw Mrs. Cunynghame amongst the inmates;—what was her demeanour—was it harsh? No; just the contrary.
1672. Mr. Frank Farnell.] What is your conclusion after visiting the old men—were they miserable, or were they happy? They were happy and comfortable.
1673. Mr. Bourke.] Did you ever visit the institution at night? I have been there when there has been an entertainment. On those occasions a vote of thanks to Mrs. Cunynghame was always proposed, and the old men would cheer most lustily, and seemed quite pleased and satisfied.
1674. Were you present at a feast that took place just before Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? No, I never went to a feast; I did not hold with them, as I believed it only made the men dissatisfied afterwards.
1675. Do you recollect seeing a man named Thomas Peterson in the Macquarie-street Asylum in June, 1888? I do not remember the name. There was a man who was an imbecile, and a very violent man.
1676. Do you remember what kind of a man he was? He was a most violent man.
1677. Was he sane? I should not think he was a fit man for the institution. I should think he was more fit for a lunatic asylum or a gaol, from what I knew of him.
1678. Mr. Williamson.] You did not give evidence before the Royal Commission? No.
1679. Mrs. Cunynghame did not call you to support the management of the institution on that occasion? This is the first time I have been present at an inquiry.
1680. You are a great friend of Mrs. Cunynghame's? I am not such a great friend. I am a friend of Mrs. Cunynghame's, I am glad to say.

J. W. Withers,
Esq., J.P.
8 July, 1890.

- J.W. Withers, Esq., J.P.
8 July, 1890.
1681. Mrs. Cunyngame visits your house? I suppose she has been to my place about twice in her lifetime, and I was not at home then, I think.
1682. You have taken a great interest in this case on her behalf, have you not? In what way?
1683. You have come without much hesitation to give evidence? Certainly I have come without hesitation.
1684. And you were at Parramatta on two or three occasions waiting to give evidence? I was; I was summoned to give evidence.
1685. Have you not advocated Mrs. Cunyngame's case very ardently? Why should I not, if I thought I was right?
1686. Do you know a man named M'Cauley? I do not know the men's names; I know them more by their faces.
1687. Mr. Ritchie.] You say that before Mr. Maxted's appointment you visited the institution very frequently, and that after his appointment you only visited it once or twice? Three or four times at the outside.
1688. You say now that it was three or four times? I could not say—I know it was not very often.
1689. Three or four times within fifteen weeks. What was your reason for dropping off your visitations? Because I was so disgusted—if you will have the truth—at Mrs. Cunyngame getting the sack that I would not go near the place, and I took no more interest in it.
1690. You said that before Mr. Maxted's appointment, for the last five or six years you visited the place nearly every Sunday, but that after Mr. Maxted's appointment you only visited it once or twice during Mrs. Cunyngame's superintendence? Because she was only there a short time after Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1691. Fifteen weeks after, and during that time you only visited the Asylum once or twice? Yes.
1692. I want to know the reason why you did not go there during those fifteen weeks as regularly as you did before? I do not know that I had any particular reason.
1693. Can you assign any reason? No.
1694. Do you not think it very strange that you visited the institution regularly every Sunday? I did not say I visited it every Sunday, or nearly every Sunday; I said I used to walk into the institution very often with people.
1695. You were there very often, but after Mr. Maxted's appointment you scarcely ever visited the place? Because there was such a short time, and then Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended for some time.
1696. Could you give us a reason why you did not visit it as regularly as before? That is the reason.
1697. Because she was suspended? Yes.
1698. But between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunyngame's suspension or dismissal why did you not visit as regularly as before? I could not tell you how long Mrs. Cunyngame was under suspension before she was sent away.
1699. Mr. Williamson.] Can you give us any satisfactory explanation for not going oftener to the institution after Mr. Maxted was appointed? Nothing more than what I have said.
1700. Was it not because you were opposed to Mr. Maxted and Mr. Hugh Taylor? Mr. Hugh Taylor, you know, is no friend of mine.
1701. Was not that the reason? I will say it was.
1702. Mr. Ritchie.] Is Mr. Maxted a friend of yours? Not particularly; he is no enemy of mine; but I did not care to come in contact with any of them after the way Mrs. Cunyngame was treated.
1703. Mr. Williamson.] You give that as an explanation—because Mr. Maxted was appointed, and in consequence of Mr. Hugh Taylor, you did not visit the institution after Mr. Maxted's appointment? Say yes.
1704. Were you then at enmity with Mr. Maxted before he was appointed? No.
1705. Was it because Mr. Maxted appointed your brother-in-law, Mr. Ewery, as one of the Inspectors that you were opposed to Mr. Maxted? No. I was not a friend of Mr. Ewery's, and therefore did not come into contact with Mr. Maxted.
1706. And you did not visit the institution for fear you would come in contact with him, is that it? That is about it. I never had anything against Mr. Maxted.
1707. Then when you went to the institution after Mr. Maxted's appointment you only went on one feast day? I never went to a feast at all.
1708. A concert? I think it was a concert, or nigger entertainment.
1709. That was one. Can you tell me what was going on, on the other occasions when you visited the institution? Mostly concerts in the evenings.
1710. If you only went at night-time for the purpose of seeing these entertainments, you did not go through the wards during Mr. Maxted's time? I could not positively say that I went through the wards at night in Mr. Maxted's time.
1711. Did you go through the wards or inspect the institution at night-time after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I could not say whether I did or not.
1712. As a matter of fact you did not go through, did you? I could not say whether I did or not.
1713. After Mr. Maxted's appointment, did you go round amongst the old men and ask them if they had any complaints to make? I could not say whether it was in Mr. Maxted's time or not. I know I have done it repeatedly.
1714. But confine yourself to the period after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I could not say whether I did or not.
1715. Did you at any time after Mr. Maxted's appointment go round and inspect the food the men were receiving? I think they had a supper one night.
1716. I mean their general meals—their rations? Yes.
1717. Was that at supper? No; at tea-time one Sunday.
1718. Will you swear that you inspected the rations at all after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I won't swear anything of the kind; I know I have inspected them dozens of times.
1719. Were you deputed to make an inspection of the institution? I was not; I [went there as a citizen.
1720. As a matter of friendship to Mrs. Cunyngame? As a citizen, not as a matter of friendship at all. I have a right to do it; any magistrate has a right to do it.

1721. Do you know the names of the people who gave evidence before the Commission? I do not know any of them. J.W. Withers, Esq., J.P.
1722. I suppose you have read the report? I have not.
1723. I presume you saw the Argus? I did not take any notice of it.
1724. Mr. Bourke.] You have said that you inspected the food at tea-time;—do you remember whether that was after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I think it was after Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1725. And before Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Yes. I have not been in the institution since her dismissal.
1726. But up to the time of her dismissal, did you go? Yes; I went up to within a few days before she was dismissed.
1727. Then you must have been there several times after Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes; but I did not take any particular notice.
1728. You never had any unfriendliness towards Mr. Maxted? No.
1729. Never had any quarrel with him? No.
1730. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose that having time on your hands, and taking an interest in the management of the institution, you simply went there for the purpose of taking notice as to how it was carried on? Yes; I used to take a pride in the place.
1731. You were so satisfied with Mrs. Cunynghame's management that when she was dismissed you felt that an injustice had been done to her? There is no doubt about it.
1732. And you refrained from going afterwards—that was your only reason? Yes, that was my only reason. In my estimation she was the best woman I ever saw in an institution of the kind. The men seemed to be happy and comfortable, and to like her. I never heard a word against the woman, and I was never more astounded in my life than when I heard she was dismissed.
1733. Mr. Ritchie.] You said a little while ago that you visited the place as a citizen, as a man taking an interest in the public institutions of the country, and not in personal friendship to Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I also go over the Gaol, the Lunatic Asylum, and the Poor-house.
1734. You do not visit the Macquarie-street Asylum now? No.
1735. If you visited the institution as a disinterested citizen in Mrs. Cunynghame's time, why do you not do so now; have you a prejudice against the institution? I have a prejudice against Mrs. Cunynghame being dismissed.
1736. That is the reason you will not visit? Yes.
1737. That proves to us to some extent, you will admit, that it was not altogether a public disinterestedness that caused you to visit the institution? I gave up visiting the institution because I considered that Mrs. Cunynghame was wrongfully dismissed.
1738. If you took such a deep interest in the institution in your position as a Justice of the Peace and an ordinary citizen, and visited it on purely philanthropic grounds, why did you not continue to visit it after Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? That is the reason.
1739. You say you were disgusted at the way in which Mr. Cunynghame was dismissed, but that is no reason why you should not visit the institution? I think it is a very good reason.
1740. It is the only reason you have got? It is the only reason.
1741. Do you not think that there was a greater reason why you should visit the institution after Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed;—do you not think, as a reasonable man wishing to guard the public weal, that it should have been your duty to visit the institution more frequently, and to be more keen and critical than was the case before? No; I thought perhaps they would only think I went there to criticise.
1742. What need you care about that? I did not care. I know what I thought of the place when I used to visit it. It was clean and healthy.
1743. Mr. Williamson.] Do you visit the George-street Asylum? I was there last Sunday.
1744. How often have you visited it since Mr. Maxted was appointed? I suppose about half a dozen times.
1745. Then you continue your visits to that institution? Yes.
1746. Chairman.] What is your general impression of Mrs. Cunynghame as to her character? I have always had the highest opinion of Mrs. Cunynghame's character.
1747. Do you think she is a truthful woman? I never found her anything else. I thought she was a straight, blunt woman. I have never seen the slightest deception about her.
1748. Mr. Ritchie.] From your general knowledge of Mrs. Cunynghame, would you think her a person liable at any time to neglect her duty? I have never seen it. I should not think she was.
1749. From anything you have seen of her, would you think her capable of disobeying orders from an official source, no matter how unpleasant they might be? I should not think she would.
1750. You do not think that she would be too independent in her own character to disobey an order if it were an unpleasant order, or went against her own opinion or judgment? I should not think she would do such a thing.
1751. From what you judge of her generally you think she would conform to the official orders given to her? Yes, from what I can judge generally I should think she would.
1752. Mr. Frank Farnell.] How long have you known Mrs. Cunynghame? I knew her before she went to Parramatta.
1753. And you have known her ever since and during the whole of her term of office at the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
1754. You have been at Parramatta during the whole of the time? Yes; I have been at Parramatta about twelve years.
1755. Have you ever heard any complaint made by people outside as to the way in which she managed the institution? Never a word.
1756. Mr. Ritchie.] Do the people of Parramatta know much about the management of these institutions from the outside? I do not know that there are many who take much interest in them.
1757. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Have the police ever brought cases before you as a magistrate in which inmates of the institution have been concerned? I think there was one case in which a man was brought up from the Asylum.
1758. In the evidence given by the police, have they ever made charges of neglect or maladministration against Mrs. Cunynghame? Not to my knowledge. The only police case I had was lately, in Mr. Maxted's time.

- J.W. Withers, Esq., J.P.
8 July, 1890.
1759. Mr. Williamson.] You spoke generally of the character of Mrs. Cunynghame. If she herself has admitted that for three months she never went through the hospital wards, what have you got to say to that? I cannot say anything about it.
1760. You have not come here prepared to swear as to the way she managed the institution in your absence, have you? I am not doing anything of the kind.
1761. You have not come prepared to swear as to the way she treated these men in your absence? I cannot say how she treated them in my absence; I only speak of the people as I find them.
1762. Do you know anything about the dead men's moneys received in the institution? No.
1763. Do you know anything about the inmates' moneys received in that institution? No.
1764. Do you know anything as to how the fat was disposed of? No.
1765. Do you know anything about what became of the refuse belonging to that institution? I see it going away now.
1766. But after Mr. Maxted's appointment, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, do you know what became of the refuse? No.
1767. Were you ever present in the morning when the stores were supplied to the institution by the contractor? I have seen them coming in occasionally, but not as a rule.
1768. But have you been there when they have come in of a morning after Mr. Maxted's appointment? No.

Rev. William James Günther, Archdeacon, C.E., called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Rev. W. J. Günther, C.E.
8 July, 1890.
1769. Mr. Bourke.] You have been at Parramatta for a considerable time? Since the beginning of 1868.
1770. I suppose you know the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes, very well. I have been in the habit of visiting it since 1868. It was then an institution for old men—I think they were old convicts, but there were only a few of them.
1771. But you have known the institution ever since Mrs. Cunynghame went there? Yes.
1772. Were you in the habit of visiting it during that time? For many years several times a week; during the last two or three years not so often. I have had two curates, and there has been a division of labour, so that they have been having most of the work there.
1773. Towards the latter end of Mrs. Cunynghame's administration were you in the habit of visiting the institution? I think I was there almost every week.
1774. That would be after Mr. Maxted's appointment, and three and a half months before Mrs. Cunynghame was dispensed with? I really could not be quite certain. My curates used generally to take the services, and I always met them there on the Thursday if there were any cases requiring attention.
1775. Then you went there once a week at least, up to the last? I believe so.
1776. And you had a good opportunity of seeing Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the place? At one time I was so constantly in and out that I have had a good opportunity.
1777. Mr. Kidd.] Mrs. Cunynghame having been charged with harshness to the inmates, what is your opinion in regard to that? I never heard of a single case of harshness, and I cannot think it possible it could have occurred, inasmuch as my curates, who visit regularly twice a week, report to me every week with reference to their work.
1778. With regard to the second charge against Mrs. Cunynghame—that of neglect of duty—I suppose you could not have had much knowledge of that? I could not have much knowledge of the internal working of the institution. I always saw Mrs. Cunynghame when I visited the institution, and I know my curates did also. She was always, or as a rule, in the office.
1779. With regard to the fourth charge—of general untruthfulness—have you found Mrs. Cunynghame a truthful woman? I have not found her untruthful on any occasion.
1780. And from your knowledge, do you think she was a proper person to control an institution of that character? So far as I saw her she was always attentive to her duties, and I never heard anything to the contrary from any of those who visited the institution—from my curates, the ladies who visit, or the doctors—and I have heard the doctors speak of the management as most satisfactory.
1781. You never heard anything detrimental to the character of Mrs. Cunynghame? Not in the institution, no.
1782. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember on the 27th November, 1888, writing this letter to Mrs. Cunynghame?—

Dear Mrs. Cunynghame,—

I am so sorry to hear of your suspension, and send you a line to express my sympathy with you. I have known you ever since you came to the asylum, and have always considered you attentive to your duties, and kind in your treatment of the men under your charge.

I trust your suspension will soon be removed.

Yours, &c.,
W. J. GÜNTHER.

1783. Did you write that letter to Mrs. Cunynghame? I did.
1784. There is a letter printed at page 44 of the evidence, dated 4th February, 1889, which you wrote to Mr. Maxted. In this latter letter do you mean to express the opinion that you have changed your mind as to your former letter? I adhere to both the statements in the former letter.
1785. Then this letter of the 4th February, 1889, does not mean that you have changed your opinion of Mrs. Cunynghame? No.
1786. Perhaps you will explain to the Committee how this letter came to be written, and the meaning of it? The first part is, I think, sufficiently plain, and the last part I am prepared to explain. The first part had reference to some unpleasantness at the institution which was reported to me, and I happened to meet Mr. Maxted quite accidentally in the train, and we had some discussion in regard to Mrs. Cunynghame's position. As far as I remember the two points brought forward had reference to the diet, and to certain moneys retained by Mrs. Cunynghame. What Mr. Maxted told me was that Mrs. Cunynghame had not carried out his orders with regard to the new dietary scale. I was aware of that from other sources, and spoke to her some days before about it. She gave me to understand that she had not the materials for carrying it out. The other point, so far as I remember, had reference to moneys retained belonging to the men. That I had also spoken to Mrs. Cunynghame about, and she told me she had the authority of the manager for acting as she had done.

Rev. W. J.
Günther, C.E.

8 July, 1890.

1787. When did you speak to Mrs. Cunynghame about that? It may have been a fortnight before.
1788. That was after she was suspended? Yes.
1789. That was in consequence of something you heard, I suppose, about these moneys? I heard people talking about it, and had heard it from Mr. Maxted I think. With reference to this part of my letter:—"I was satisfied that you had good reasons for speaking as you did," Mr. Maxted seemed rather hurt with me, and I did not want him for one moment to suppose that I was doubting his statement. At the same time, I knew there was the other side, and I think I did say I would try to see Mrs. Cunynghame; but I felt afterwards that it was not my business to interfere further. But the conversation occurred at an accidental meeting in a railway train, and I had no appointment with Mr. Maxted.
1790. You still adhere to the sentiments expressed in your letter of the 27th November, 1888? I do.
1791. Mr. Ritchie.] In the conversation which took place with Mr. Maxted, you say something was said with regard to the dietary scale—that Mrs. Cunynghame refused to carry out his orders? I did not say she refused to do so, but that she did not do so.
1792. And you were aware she did not do so of your own knowledge? I think she admitted to me that she did so as far as was possible, but that there were materials which she could not supply.
1793. How did you gain that information? Mr. Maxted spoke to me first when some festival was going on. I think it was Quong Tart's.
1794. Did you enter into conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame on the subject of the diet? Yes, I talked with her at least once about it.
1795. And what was the impression you got from her conversation with regard to her fulfilling her duties, as ordered by Mr. Maxted? I think she always spoke most respectfully, and seemed most willing to do what she could.
1796. But in that particular? She was most willing as far as I know.
1797. Did you arrive at the conclusion that she had not fulfilled Mr. Maxted's instructions? I think she had not carried them out altogether with regard to the dietary scale.
1798. And she admitted that? I believe so.
1799. Did she give you reasons why she admitted it? Simply because she had not all the material that was necessary to do it, so far as I remember.
1800. Were you satisfied that she was doing her best to fulfil Mr. Maxted's instructions? I always thought, not only when Mr. Maxted gave instructions, but also when others did, that she was doing the best she possibly could.
1801. Did you ever judge of her as to her obedience or disposition to carry out Mr. Maxted's instructions generally; did you see any disposition on her part to do it or not to do it? I certainly saw no disposition to refuse to do it.
1802. Mr. Williamson.] Can you tell us when your conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame about the dietary scale occurred? I really have no recollection. I think I spoke to her on more than one occasion.
1803. Two or three times? I think twice.
1804. If she was doing the best she possibly could on the first occasion, why did you speak to her on the second occasion? Probably she mentioned the matter herself. I should not have done so unless some communication had been made to me, and it was probably Mrs. Cunynghame who made it.
1805. To what effect? I really have no distinct recollection of the conversation.
1806. Did this conversation occur after you had written the letter of the 4th February, 1889, to Mr. Maxted? It was long before that; the letter was written after her dismissal.
1807. Did she ever tell you, during those conversations, that she was the person who prepared the dietary scale, or that Mr. Maxted prepared it? I think Mr. Maxted, or, probably, it was joint work.
1808. I want you to recollect what she told you. You spoke to her about carrying out Mr. Maxted's instructions with regard to the dietary scale; did she tell you it was Mr. Maxted's dietary scale? I really cannot remember whether she ever told me or not.
1809. We do not want the exact words; we want the substance of her statement? I cannot remember whether she said so or not. I believe she said it was Mr. Maxted's; but probably he consulted her, and it was joint work.
1810. She led you to believe that it was Mr. Maxted who had drawn up the dietary scale? I should be very glad to give distinct information if it were possible.
1811. So far as your memory will carry you back, did she leave you to believe that Mr. Maxted was the person who was enforcing the dietary scale—desirous of having it carried into effect? Decidedly.
1812. As for any other portion you cannot recollect? I cannot recollect. I was constantly in the institution, and having conversations on different subjects.
1813. With reference to the conversation about the inmates' moneys, will you tell us what you said to Mrs. Cunynghame? I thought it an irregular proceeding to hold the money, and, after the matter was brought under my notice, I considered it my duty to speak to Mrs. Cunynghame. I thought the proceeding a very irregular one.
1814. What reply did she make to you? That she was simply carrying out the instructions of the manager.
1815. What manager, Mr. Maxted? Mr. King's name was distinctly mentioned.
1816. But Mr. Maxted was in power then? She certainly did not tell me she was carrying out Mr. Maxted's instructions. She told me she was carrying out Mr. King's instructions—that Mr. King knew all about it, and had given authority.
1817. You had spoken to her about money before, had you not? I do not think I ever heard until Mr. Maxted was in charge that money was held in that way.
1818. As a matter of fact, you had complained to Mrs. Cunynghame? I had never complained until my attention was drawn to the fact that she was holding money.
1819. Do you recollect having complained to her about money having been sent to one inmate in particular, and that inmate not receiving it? I have some recollection of it, but it is a long time ago, I think.
1820. Do you recollect what you said to her then? I have no recollection, except that I have a faint idea that money came for some individual, and I was given to understand that the Government had retained the money; but my impression is that that was years ago.
1821. Did you state that to Mr. Maxted in the train—did you not mention that as one case to Mr. Maxted? I do not remember it.

1822.

Rev. W. J. Günther, C. E.
8 July, 1890.

1822. You will swear it did not take place? We were only a very few minutes together, and I cannot exactly recollect what really took place, but I know money was spoken of and the dietary scale.
1823. Did you, amongst other things, name a sum of 10s.—will that recall it to your mind? I have mentioned the case of a man named M'Ilvane, to whom I gave 10s., but that was in connection with the George-street Asylum.
1824. But we are talking about the Macquarie-street Asylum—while in conversation with Mr. Maxted, did you not say you knew that a sum of money had been sent to one man, and the man had not received it? I have no recollection of it.
1825. Mr. Kidd.] Is it not possible that one institution may not have been confounded with another in general conversation? I mentioned to several people that there was a man in the George-street Asylum in whom I was interested, and to whom I gave 10s. He died within a very few hours afterwards, and nobody knew anything about the money—that I mentioned.
1826. In the course of this conversation with Mr. Maxted in the train? I have no recollection of referring even to it on that occasion, but if I spoke of a sum of 10s., it was this.
1827. In the course of conversation with Mr. Maxted in the train was there anything said about complaints of bad treatment? I cannot really remember.
1828. Do you recollect anything being said about the Royal Commission? I was simply a few minutes with Mr. Maxted, and I cannot really say. We could not have talked on many subjects the few minutes we were together. I think it is quite possible there was a reference to the Royal Commission Report. Of course I looked into that.
1829. Can you say whether you have a vivid recollection of what did take place? I certainly have not a vivid recollection.
1830. So you would like your memory refreshed? If it is possible to refresh anyone's memory under the circumstances, which I doubt.
1831. Do you recollect something being said as to the disobedience of Mrs. Cunynghame? I think it quite possible.
1832. In the conversation that took place, you appeared to be under the impression that Mrs. Cunynghame was harshly dealt with? Yes; I certainly admit that.
1833. Then did Mr. Maxted explain to you certain matters relative to the affair? I think so.
1834. How long after that conversation did you write the letter of the 4th February, 1889, to Mr. Maxted? I should think a very short time—only a few days.
1835. Will you look at the two last sentences, "I have not seen Mrs. Cunynghame since you spoke to her. I was satisfied that you had good reasons for speaking as you did"; did not that have reference to the statements made by Mr. Maxted as to complaints with regard to Mrs. Cunynghame's conduct, and to disobedience, and so forth? I do not think so, except so far as it applies to diet and money.
1836. Will you swear it had not reference to what Mr. Maxted spoke to you about—namely, her disobedience and complaints, and so forth—her general management of the institution? I feel perfectly convinced that it had reference only to those two matters I have referred to—the dietary scale and the money.
1837. Mr. Kidd.] You must have felt that Mrs. Cunynghame was wrong, and Mr. Maxted was right, or you would not have expressed yourself as in those concluding words of the letter? Mr. Maxted was certainly right with regard to the dietary scale.
1838. What I mean is this—he was explaining to you his view of the question, and you seem to have been in sympathy with him with regard to something in the concluding remarks of that letter? I certainly was in sympathy with regard to the dietary scale; there is no question about it.
1839. Mr. Williamson.] And not the money, or the disobedience, and complaints? I do not think so. I think the money, probably, but not the disobedience or complaints.
1840. Why did you not say in your letter, "I am satisfied you had good reason for speaking as you did in reference to the dietary scale and the moneys"—why did you not qualify the sentence in that way? I can only explain it by saying that the letter was written very hastily, and if I had wanted to refer specially to the conversation in the train, I should have written fully. You will see that the body of the letter was written with reference to another matter altogether, and this is just a supplement. Mr. Maxted and I had often met and talked in a friendly way about the institution, and I wrote those words believing that he was somewhat annoyed and irritated with me at the position I took.
1841. Mr. Kidd.] Mr. Maxted wanted to put himself right, from his stand-point, as to his action in the matter? Yes.
1842. That was the gist of the conversation; Mr. Maxted wanted to convince you that he was right, and to impress upon you that, if you had a more liberal view with regard to Mrs. Cunynghame and her management, yet she was wrong and he was right? Certainly, that was my impression.
1843. Mr. Williamson.] You say that Mr. Maxted seemed a little annoyed with you;—that was not in consequence of Mrs. Cunynghame's case, but with regard to another matter—religious services in Macquarie-street—was it not? No; it certainly was not. It was rather with regard to the attitude I took towards Mrs. Cunynghame.
1844. Was not that the first conversation you had with Mr. Maxted in reference to Mrs. Cunynghame—the one on the 4th February, 1889? I am sure that I had several conversations with Mr. Maxted before Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended.
1845. Not about her disobedience, or the complaints, or the moneys, or anything else? On the day of Quong Tart's festival Mr. Maxted spoke to me about Mrs. Cunynghame. Certainly on that occasion.
1846. Had not the annoyance on the part of Mr. Maxted reference to the matters referred to in this part of your letter?—

4 February, 1889.

I have received your note. Will reply as soon as I have had the opportunity of seeing Mr. Darcey Irvine and Mr. Keimnis. I now write to let you know how much I regret that certain statements have got into the papers. I am in no way responsible for any of them. I knew that the matter under inquiry was talked about, and refused to give information when asked. I did, however, tell one gentleman that I had reported the matter to you, little thinking the communication would be published. Since the paragraph appeared in the Daily Telegraph I have told a pressman how unfair it was, and that if Mrs. Brooke, as it stated, knew nothing of the circumstances, that fact ought at once to be made known. I am surprised that it has not been.

I do not think so.

1847. Then what was the intention of that portion of your letter? I had received Mr. Maxted's note, and I replied to that note. The conversation I had with Mr. Maxted in reference to Mrs. Cunynghame took place prior to the 4th of February, and then this case took place at the asylum, and Mr. Maxted wrote to me about it. Rev. W. J. Günther, C.E.
8 July, 1890.

1848. Mr. Ritchie.] Have you got Mr. Maxted's note? I do not think it is at all likely.

1849. Mr. Williamson.] It had reference to certain religious services, had it not? It had reference simply to the fact that one of my curates had gone to hold service at the asylum at the appointed hour, and the man who was acting for the matron had—purely by mistake, I think—given possession of the room to the Sisters of Charity, and I was sorry, as I found the matron had nothing to do with it, that she should be blamed for it, and I at once wrote.

1850. Then the object of the letter was to ask you to contradict what had taken place with reference to the matter when you came to be aware of the whole of the circumstance? I cannot remember the letter at all.

1851. So that you cannot say whether the last part of your letter of 4th February, where you say that Mr. Maxted had good reasons for speaking as he did, had reference to disobedience or complaints? I certainly adhere to what I have said—that it had reference to the dietary scale and the money.

1852. Do you recollect another part of the conversation in which you complained that you had frequently to go to the Macquarie-street Asylum to settle violent outbreaks? I never uttered such words.

1853. Had you, as a matter of fact, ever gone to the institution to settle differences there at any time? I never remember going to settle a difference there, and I was never asked to do so.

1854. Mr. Ritchie.] You often visited the Macquarie-street Asylum after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I think I said before that I believed I went there, on an average, once a week. Whenever anyone was sick, Mrs. Cunynghame knew that if she sent for the clergy of the Church of England, they were always prepared to visit, and I was constantly sent for.

1855. Did you take the trouble of walking round the institution on those occasions? If I were sent for I should go to the particular person who sent for me.

1856. Did you not visit the institution generally, and see the condition of the old men, and their general appearance? I was constantly in the institution; my curates were constantly there, and ladies were constantly there. I have already said that.

1857. Had you any conversations with the old men while you were going through the institution? I cannot think a week passed without long conversations with some of them.

1858. With many of them? Yes, with many of them; and I went there regularly to see any who wished to see me, and after service there were always people who wanted to see me.

1859. And they were very communicative? I should think as communicative about themselves as it was possible to be.

1860. And you were on very good terms with all with whom you came in contact? Yes.

1861. Did any of them ever make any complaints to you about the management? Never of a serious character—of a trivial character.

1862. Could you enumerate any of them? I remember some men complained—and of this probably Mr. King will have a note—that they had not feather pillows.

1863. I want you to confine yourself as nearly as possible to the time between Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? I cannot remember any complaints of any kind. They used sometimes to ask for small matters, such as that to which I have referred. One man, or two men, wanted feather pillows, and I actually brought that under the notice of Mr. King—not that I thought they ought to have them, but I thought it my business to mention the matter, as they requested me to do so.

1864. What was your impression with regard to the care taken of these old men—were they well provided for, or were they neglected at all in any small matter? I had no evidence of it.

1865. You saw no indications of it? No.

1866. Did you hear any of them complain that they wanted spectacles or slippers, or anything of that sort? I have no recollection of their asking me. If they had asked me for anything I should at once have brought it under the notice of Mrs. Cunynghame; and if any complaint of a serious character were made I should have brought it under the notice of the authorities at once.

1867. But do you remember any cases of that kind? No, I do not remember thier asking for slippers or spectacles.

1868. And you believe from your knowledge of the management of the institution that Mrs. Cunynghame was attentive, and provided all things the inmates required as far as her power allowed? So far as I have any evidence.

1869. You have had a good opportunity of judging—will you give us your opinion clearly and openly, to guide the Committee to a knowledge of Mrs. Cunynghame's character from a general point of view, as to her honesty, truthfulness, and general obedience in the position she held? Of course, I had nothing to do, as I already explained, with the internal management; but I can testify without any hesitation to Mrs. Cunynghame's honesty and truthfulness.

1870. And you think she was a person of reliability to perform the duties she was responsible for? I should have thought so.

1871. Mr. Kidd.] If you had thought that Mrs. Cunynghame was not a proper person for the position she occupied, would you have conceived it to be your duty to bring the fact under the notice of the authorities; if you had seen any evidence that she was unfit for the position, would you have adopted that course? I should, certainly, without the slightest hesitation, have at once brought it under the notice of the authorities.

1872. You have visited a good many institutions of a similar character to this from time to time? I have been visiting for a great many years.

1873. Would it not be a surprise to you if there were no trivial complaints where such a large number of aged people are congregated together? I am very much surprised that there are not a great many more complaints than there are. I think, if I may be allowed to say so, that there are a large number of men in the institution for whom the Government ought to find some employment. As in Germany and other places, the institution might be almost self-supporting if the authorities ascertained what the men were capable of doing, and found them work. From the fact of their having nothing to do they very often get together and talk about matters, and imagine different things, and are, probably, the more disposed to make complaints.

- Rev. W. J. Günther, C.E.
8 July, 1890.
1874. Then your opinion with regard to the conduct of these institutions is that a great number of the inmates might be classified for some light employment which would make them self-supporting? I have always thought so. I do not think I ever go to the institution without men asking me if I can find them some light employment.
1875. Mr. Ritchie] Did Mrs. Cunynghame ever accompany you in your visits through the institution? She has often shown me people whom I have been sent for to visit—she has shown me where they were.
1876. Has she walked round the wards with you generally? I think not.
1877. Did you ever notice any harshness in her manner or disposition towards the inmates? Never, when I was with her.
1878. Did you see her manifest any degree of kindness to them? In special cases I have known her to be very kind to them, and, on the whole, I should certainly say that her treatment was certainly generous and kind.
1879. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know that in all the asylums there are only nineteen men, who after examination by two medical men, were found to be fit to do work? I did not know that. What I meant was very light work, such as is found in England under the Brabagon Pauper Employment scheme.
1880. Mr. Bourke.] In answer to Mr. Williamson, you said that you had spoken about the inmates' moneys to Mrs. Cunynghame—will you tell us when you first spoke about them? I cannot remember the date—as soon as I heard she retained them.
1881. Was it after her dismissal? After her suspension, I fancy.
1882. When did you first hear about Mrs. Cunynghame having these moneys—was it before or after her suspension? I think it was after, but I could not be certain.
1883. Do you know how you came to hear it? I rather think Mrs. Cunynghame drew my attention to it as one of the matters of complaint against her.
1884. Then you did not hear it as a complaint from any person to whom the money was due? Certainly not.
1885. You heard it probably from Mrs. Cunynghame herself? Probably.
1886. And she told you then that she had authority from Mr. King for keeping the moneys in that way? Yes, certainly.
1887. I think you said there was one inmate who complained about not receiving money that was sent to him;—do you know who that was? It was years ago. I cannot remember his name. My impression is that the money came to him as a pension, and that it was retained by the Government.
1888. Not retained by Mrs. Cunynghame? No.
1889. You say that on the day of the Quong Tart festival Mr. Maxted spoke to you about Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
1890. What was the nature of his remarks? I think he was somewhat dissatisfied with some of the arrangements.
1891. The arrangements for that particular day? I do not know; I think generally.
1892. Do you mean as regards the management of the institution, or as to the general arrangements for that particular feast? There were certainly a good many people there, and some degree of excitement in connection with it. I think it had reference to what was going on that day, and it may have had reference to the general management; but I really cannot be sure.
1893. You have said, in reply to Mr. Williamson, that you thought Mrs. Cunynghame did all she could with regard to carrying out the instructions as to the diet? I had always found her ready to do so, and from what she said I gathered that she was prepared on this occasion to carry out the instructions given by those placed over her.
1894. I think you said, in reply to Mr. Williamson, that you were satisfied with Mrs. Cunynghame, and that you adhered to your opinion formerly expressed, except as to the diet and the moneys? Decidedly; I adhere to what I said in that letter, and on the other points I wanted further evidence before I could form an opinion.
1895. Do you now think Mrs. Cunynghame was in fault with regard to the diet? I have not sufficient evidence to say.
1896. Still, as far as you could see, she did all she could with the appliances she had? I do not know what appliances she had, but her disposition was that of one who was ready to carry out the instruction.
1897. Do you remember what appliances she complained of not having? I really cannot remember.
1898. Did she complain about a stove, or insufficient materials for cooking—ovens, or anything of that kind? I think something was said about an oven, but I really cannot be sure.
1899. I suppose unless you went to visit a particular individual who was very ill, your visit would be a general one to the institution? If I went to the institution I should go generally to hold a service there on the Sunday, or the Thursday, and afterwards I would remain to see any persons who wanted to see me. But the visitation has generally been done—and certainly was done for some time before Mr. Maxted took charge—principally by the curates of the parish and the lay reader.
1900. On the other occasions you held a service? I very often did. There was the regular service, but I cannot say, without examining my diary, whether I took it or the curate took it. I should like to say with regard to my evidence that one meets such numbers of men in the institution, and as I had no idea I should be asked any questions about them, I certainly cannot give the definite information the Committee might have wished.

Rev. John Rigney, Monseigneur, called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Rev. J. Rigney.
8 July, 1890.
1901. Mr. Bourke.] You hold the position of Monseigneur in the Roman Catholic Church? Yes.
1902. You are in charge of a Catholic church at Parramatta? I was; I am not now.
1903. You were until recently? Yes; until thirteen or fourteen months ago.
1904. You know the Macquarie-street Asylum? Very well.
1905. Were you in the habit of visiting there? Yes.
1906. Frequently? Nearly every day.
1907. Up to the time that Mrs. Cunynghame left? Yes.
1908. And you were there nearly every day? Yes.
1909. Say for three or four months before Mrs. Cunynghame left, what was your opinion of the management of the institution then? There was no difference in my opinion of the management within the last three

Rev.
J. Rigney.
8 July, 1890.

three or four months and the management for seven or eight years before that. The institution seemed to me always to be conducted admirably.

1910. Was Mrs. Cunynghame there when you went? Always.

1911. I suppose you went about amongst the men? I went about amongst the men, and sometimes I held services and masses there, and also confession once a quarter regularly. I also, at different times, visited inmates, belonging to my church, in their beds and in the wards.

1912. And I suppose they talked to you in a friendly and open way? Yes.

1913. Did they ever make any complaints to you? Yes, often.

1914. Of what nature? When I investigated the complaints I found that the men were unreasonable, and that the matron was perfectly justified in any severity she imposed upon them.

1915. Did they ever complain of what you would consider harshness—I am speaking now of the three months before Mrs. Cunynghame left, and during the time that Mr. Maxted was director? I am not aware that there were any men who were refused admittance to the asylum during that period; but I know there were before, and I felt grieved for the men, because they came from Sydney to Parramatta, with orders for admission to the institution, and they were not admitted, and were therefore left in great distress outside. But I found on investigation that the men had delayed in making their application for admission until after the time prescribed by the rules for their admission, and I found, moreover, that they had the appearance of drink: so that I believe in all those cases the matron was perfectly justified in what she did.

1916. With regard to the men who were inside, do you know of any complaint of harshness on their part? No.

1917. I suppose you saw Mrs. Cunynghame going about among the inmates? Yes, frequently.

1918. Can you tell us what you saw in the institution. What was your impression as to the condition of the men—were they miserable, were they ground down, tyrannised over, and that kind of thing? Very far from it. I must say that I was in admiration of the manner in which that establishment was managed by Mrs. Cunynghame, because I am aware that the management of an institution with 700 or 800 old men in it is a very serious and very difficult matter; and if Mrs. Cunynghame had not a great deal of tact and management, and competency for her post, she could not have conducted it as well as I saw it conducted.

1919. About this time there were about 300 men in the Macquarie-street Asylum? Several times there were more than that.

1920. I suppose the men were on such terms with you that they would make complaints to you if they had any of a serious character? Those of my own denomination certainly would. I do not know as to any of the others.

1921. Was there ever a complaint of a serious character made to you about the management by the men there? There was a serious complaint once made by a man, not on his own account, but on account of one of the patients.

1922. Was that within late years? No, I daresay it was four years ago.

1923. Did you investigate it? I did, and I found that, as in all the other cases, Mrs. Cunynghame was perfectly justified in what she did.

1924. Then, as a matter of fact, it was not a serious matter at all? It was a very serious case in appearance, but in the end it was not. It was a case regarding a man's death. A man died suddenly in the hospital at night, and the case was that I had not received notice of the man's dangerous condition. It was a habit of Mrs. Cunynghame's to send me notice when any of the invalids were in danger, but in that case no notice was sent. The doctor, however, did not consider that the man was in imminent danger, and the man died during the night, as I considered, suddenly.

1925. Is that the only serious complaint? That is the only serious one I recollect.

1926. Were the Sisters in the habit of visiting there also? Yes, the Sisters of Mercy visited there frequently.

1927. Did they ever make any complaint to you? No, none at all; on the contrary, they quite agreed with me in my estimate of the management of the institution.

1928. Mr. Williamson.] After Mr. Maxted's appointment did you ever see any of the men walking on the grass plot at the back of the institution? I cannot say that I have seen them walking over the grass.

1929. Did the men ever complain to you that they were not allowed to use the grass plot? Never. I have often myself hesitated to walk across the grass, but no one ever objected to my doing so. When I saw that no one walked upon it, I did not do so.

1930. Then, as a matter of fact, you did not see the old men using it? No.

1931. You have no recollection of their complaining to you that they were not allowed to use it? They never did.

1932. Were you in the habit of going over the whole of the institution when you visited it after Mr. Maxted's appointment—would you go through every ward? I would not be quite sure as to the period after Mr. Maxted's appointment, because I had two curates who supplied my place in visiting the institutions, and I could not be quite sure that I visited it very frequently during that time.

1933. During the fifteen weeks between the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal you did not visit the institution more than three or four times? Perhaps six or seven times.

1934. Mr. Bourke.] And perhaps more? And more perhaps.

1935. Mr. Williamson.] But the probabilities are that, having two curates, and having a considerable amount of other work to perform, this work was undertaken by your curates? It was undertaken.

1936. It would take a considerable time for you to go through the whole institution? Not long.

1937. After Mr. Maxted's appointment did you ever hear any complaint about wanting spectacles or slippers, or about bad food? I think I remember one old man having asked me for spectacles, but he made no complaint to me about not being supplied with them from the institution.

1938. Did you hear any complaint about the want of slippers? No.

1939. Or of bad food? No; I knew the condition of the food very well.

1940. Did they make a complaint to you of not being allowed to talk after retiring at night? No.

Thomas Ireland called in, sworn, and examined.

Mr.
T. Ireland.
8 July, 1890.

1941. Mr. Bourke.] You were Clerk of Works for a number of years in the Parramatta Asylum? Yes.
1942. Did you have much to do at the Macquarie-street Asylum during that time? Yes, I built the Macquarie-street Asylum right out from its old dilapidated state. I made the new additions, and re-roofed the old wings.
1943. Then you were a great deal in the asylum? I was in it every week for twelve or thirteen years.
1944. Do you remember that after Mr. Maxted was appointed you had to put in a new oven? Yes, I remember that.
1945. Do you know why that was put in? I believe it was put in for the purpose of baking beef and potatoes.
1946. Do you know whether it was caused by a new arrangement as to the diet? Yes, it was something of that kind—to carry out the new arrangements about the diet.
1947. Who supervised the erection of the oven? Mrs. Cunynghame gave me instructions where to build the oven, and Mr. Maxted left a memo. for me to build it.
1948. Was Mrs. Cunynghame anxious for you to finish it, or otherwise? Mrs. Cunynghame was very anxious. As soon as I came in she rushed out of the office and said "Oh, Mr. Ireland I want to see you—will you come down to the kitchen. Mr. Maxted has been here, and we have arranged to build a brick oven to bake the meat and potatoes in."
1949. Did she hurry you on with it? Yes.
1950. And facilitated its completion in every way? Yes, and gave me assistance, by ordering some of the inmates to wheel away all the rubbish that was taken out.
1951. While you were building the oven, of course, you were in the kitchen? Yes, every day it was going on.
1952. And you could see who were there? A great part of the time. I was doing work in other asylums.
1953. But whilst you were there building the oven you were working in the kitchen? Yes.
1954. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame there? Yes.
1955. What was she doing? She used to come in and see how the dinner was getting on, or anything like that, whatever time of day it was.
1956. Did she seem anxious to arrange the new dietary scale? Well, I thought so, because Mrs. Cunynghame showed me a dietary scale some time before the oven was built, and seemed very pleased about the scale; in fact, she told me that Mr. Maxted had given instructions to have some copies of it sent to the other asylums.
1957. Some copies of the dietary scale? Yes.
1958. Did she tell you who drew up that scale? No.
1959. Do you know whether whilst you were there there was any difficulty about the meat supply? Not at that time.
1960. After Mr. Maxted was appointed, I mean? No, not that I am aware of.
1961. Were you in the office at any time after Mr. Maxted's appointment, when Dr. Violette and Mrs. Cunynghame had a conversation with reference to visiting the hospital wards at night? Yes, the clerk was there at the time. Dr. Violette walked from the dispensary, through the store, into the office, and Mrs. Cunynghame said, "Is there any occasion, doctor, for me to visit the hospital wards after tea?" He said, "Certainly not, while you have those paid men to do it." That was the remark Dr. Violette made. He said, "Certainly not, as long as you have those paid men, and see that they do it."
1962. You say the clerk was there—who was that? Peter Abbott.
1963. Do you remember building what was called an isolation ward—putting up a partition? Yes; I put the partition up in one of the wards.
1964. Do you know what that was for? I believe it was intended for refractory patients.
1965. What is the nature of that isolation ward—is it not simply a part of one of the dormitories divided from the rest by a partition? It is just half the dormitory, three parts in length, divided into three compartments, with lattice-work around the top and the bottom for ventilation.
1966. Under whose instructions did you do that? I got instructions from Dr. Violette as to the mode of building it.
1967. It was under his instructions that you built it? Yes.
1968. What was the condition of the asylum when Mrs. Cunynghame first went there? I can tell you the condition of the place when I went there, a short time after Mrs. Cunynghame. When I first went to the Macquarie-street Asylum, it was to put a roof on what is now No. 1 ward. There was no roof on either of the wings, and they wanted a place for about half a dozen inmates to cut up the wood. But the asylum grew to such an extent before I got the roof on that they wanted accommodation for a great number of men. A bad winter was coming on, and as soon as this wing was roofed and windows put in it was made into a dormitory. From that, I went right round the yard, and erected a shed and built dormitories in the wings. The walls were standing, but there were neither roofs or windows. The reveals were open. I built up the reveals, put new frames and new sashes in, and new roof, and new floor to the whole building, with the exception of Nos. 4 and 5.
1969. As a matter of fact, when you went there shortly after Mrs. Cunynghame was appointed, the whole place was a ruin? A perfect ruin.
1970. Was there any lawn there then? No.
1971. Was there any garden there? No.
1972. Were there any asphalt paths? No.
1973. Did you see those paths constructed? Yes.
1974. Do you know who did them? Inmates of the institution.
1975. Under whose supervision? Under Mrs. Cunynghame's supervision. I had nothing to do with making the paths.
1976. Did you see the lawn made? Yes.
1977. Who made that? Mrs. Cunynghame.
1978. Do you know what space the men had in front of the sheds for recreation purposes? I never measured it exactly.
1979. I mean for walking on, apart from the lawn? I suppose they had about a third of an acre.
1980. I suppose you were at the asylum off and on until the time Mrs. Cunynghame left? Yes.

1981. Was she always there when you went? Very nearly; I do not think I found Mrs. Cunynghame away more than about twice during the whole of the fourteen years.
1982. Used you to go about amongst the men and talk to them? Yes. I had power to engage any of the inmates I thought able to work, and to pay them 6d. or 1s. a day.
1983. After Mr. Maxted's time did you see any cruelty practised on any of these men? No.
1984. Did they seem unhappy, ground down or otherwise? I think I should have heard it if there had been any cruelty.
1985. Were any complaints made to you by any of them? No.
1986. What was the condition of the men as far as you could see with regard to cleanliness and care? The men seemed to be very comfortable and very clean, and to enjoy their meals. After the new dietary was started, and when the men were having a curry, or a hash, or something of that kind, I went into the mess-room, and they all seemed very pleased and contented.
1987. Mr. Williamson.] Mr. Maxted abolished your office? Yes.
1988. Can you tell me how long after his appointment that he abolished your office? I think it was somewhere about nine or ten weeks; I do not know exactly.
1989. How long before Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? I cannot say whether it was before or after—I think it was after.
1990. Did he tell you why? No; I asked Mr. Maxted, and he said he had no complaints against me.
1991. Did he tell you why? I asked him if he had any complaint against me, and he said he had nothing, that he was simply abolishing the office on account of rearranging the business of the institution.
1992. Did you then tell Mr. Maxted that you could open his eyes about Mrs. Cunynghame removing materials of the Government? Certainly not.
1993. Will you swear you did not say to him, "I can open your eyes about Mrs. Cunynghame removing materials from the Macquarie-street Asylum to her farm?" Certainly, I swear it; never was such a thing mentioned.
1994. Do you know Mr. Rossiter? Yes.
1995. Did you ever tell Mr. Rossiter you could open Mr. Maxted's eyes, and that Mrs. Cunynghame had taken materials away from the institution? Never. I only had one conversation with Mr. Maxted about Mrs. Cunynghame.
1996. Will you swear that you had no conversation with Mr. Maxted relating to Mr. King having removed materials from the institution, and Mrs. Cunynghame also? I say on my oath that I never had but one conversation with Mr. Maxted with reference to Mrs. Cunynghame, and that was going to the railway station, when he remarked that she was the right woman in the right place.
1997. Did you walk from the institution to the railway station when this conversation took place? Yes.
1998. Did Mr. Maxted speak to you in regard to the removal of materials from the place? Not a word, because the material did not belong to the Government.
1999. To whom did it belong? It belonged to me.
2000. Were you the contractor? I was the contractor in that part.
2001. Were you not paid so much per week? I was paid so much a week; but I had to find some scaffolding which was not claimed by the manager, and I was allowed to take it away.
2002. Did not that conversation arise going to the railway station? Not a word of it. It could not have done so, because it never happened.
2003. Did you not take the material away? Certainly.
2004. And you took some to Mr. King, and some to your own place? I never took any to Mr. King.
2005. What were you paid a week? £4.
2006. Any other allowance? No, except that I was to have 12s. 6d. a week travelling expenses.
2007. Did you ever sign any voucher? Yes; for everything I received.
2008. Do you recollect, in the course of the walk to the railway station, Mr. Maxted speaking to you in reference to working a vineyard with men belonging to the institution? No; Mr. Maxted never mentioned a vineyard.
2009. Mr. Frank Farnell.] What conversation did you have with Mr. Maxted on your way from the asylum to the railway station? It was about the building he purchased from Mr. Taylor, and which he was to convert into cottages for the old men. Mr. Maxted asked me to meet him, and we went and looked over the buildings, and decided to make some alterations in order to make them habitable, and then he asked me to get him out a plan of a certain number of cottages round the boundary.
2010. Mr. Williamson.] That was another time? That was the same time.
2011. That was the time after Mr. Maxted was appointed? That was the time we had the conversation about Mrs. Cunynghame.
2012. How many times did you walk to the railway station with Mr. Maxted? That was the only time.
2013. Will you swear that? Yes. I drove him up the street in my buggy. That was the only time Mr. Maxted and I were in company.
2014. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Do you remember having any other conversation with Mr. Maxted? Not of any consequence, only about the work of the place—about doing a certain job here and a certain job there.
2015. Mr. Williamson.] In the course of that conversation do you recollect Mr. Maxted complaining that men were taken out of the institution to work a vineyard? I can swear on my oath that Mr. Maxted never mentioned a vineyard of any description, either at that time or any other.
2016. Do you recollect, during the conversation, offering to send Mr. Maxted some colonial wine? I never had any wine until this last year to send.
2017. Do you recollect offering to send him some colonial wine when he spoke to you of men from the institution working your vineyard? There has never been a man from the institution for my vineyard.
2018. Do you swear that? Yes.
2019. Will you swear you did not offer to send Mr. Maxted some colonial wine? I have already sworn it. I had no colonial wine to offer Mr. Maxted, so I could not.
2020. You have been a bit prejudiced against Mr. Maxted because he abolished your office? Certainly not. I am only too sorry to have to come here to give evidence.
2021. Has Mrs. Cunynghame interviewed you on more than one occasion? Mrs. Cunynghame has seen me only twice since.
2022. And asked you to give evidence in her behalf? Well, she did ask me, but she did not see me when she came to talk to me.

Mr.
T. Ireland.
8 July, 1890.

Robert Vining Gale, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined.

- R. V. Gale, Esq.
8 July, 1890.
2023. Mr. Bourke.] You were in the habit of visiting the Macquarie-street Asylum at Parramatta? I visited it whilst Mrs. Cunyngame was there, but not since.
2024. Up to the time of Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal? Yes.
2025. Do you remember that after Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended and dismissed you were helping her in some business matters? I do.
2026. And do you remember a memo. coming from Mr. Maxted about some inmates' moneys? I do. That memo. was as follows:—"29/11/88. Will Mrs. Cunyngame be good enough to let me have the account book for which I wrote yesterday, showing the state of the inmates' account, and the total amount to their credit in the bank. This matter is important."
2027. Do you remember Mrs. Cunyngame showing you that? I do.
2028. And on receipt of that did she ask you to do anything for her? Yes, I believe she asked my advice, and I advised her to allow me to copy the sums from the book in a short statement, which I did.
2029. And it was your copy, showing the amounts due to the inmates, that Mr. Maxted received? Yes.
2030. Why was it that in making that copy that you did not put in the amount of the dead men's money? Mrs. Cunyngame gave me the book to take the items out as I thought proper myself. I was not given any particulars, and that was all the statement I thought was required.
2031. And that is why the dead inmates' moneys did not appear on that list? I suppose so.
2032. After Mrs. Cunyngame had left the institution did you, on her behalf, send a telegram to Mr. Maxted for him to take the moneys from her? Yes.
2033. Is this a copy of that telegram, dated 11th December, 1888:—"Am leaving; will you appoint time to-morrow at which matters referring to inmates' deposits may be settled"? Yes.
2034. Did you get any reply to that? I am not quite sure. I think a reply was sent that Mr. Maxted would meet Mrs. Cunyngame at a certain time; I could not say exactly what time.
2035. Do you know if Mrs. Cunyngame kept the appointment? I do.
2036. Was Mr. Maxted there? I did not see him.
2037. Did you wait for him? We did not wait very long after the time appointed.
2038. But he did not come there at any rate? No; at least I did not see him.
2039. Was any other communication made by you, on Mrs. Cunyngame's behalf, to Mr. Maxted with reference to these money matters? I think that three times an appointment was made to meet Mr. Maxted to settle these money matters, and on each occasion he did not appear.
2040. Was Mrs. Cunyngame anxious to hand over these moneys? She was very anxious. I even came to Sydney with her to meet Mr. Maxted.
2041. To hand over these moneys? Yes; to settle the matter about the moneys.
2042. Mr. Williamson.] Can you give us an explanation how it was that if the dead men's moneys and the inmates' moneys were in the one book, you left out the dead men's moneys but put in the living inmates' money? I cannot. I do not know anything about the dead men's moneys.
2043. Would you know the book if you saw it? I believe this is the book [Book marked O.]
2044. Have you seen book marked "G" before? I do not remember; it is so long ago.
2045. I presume you perused the books, in order to make out a clear account? You presume a great deal more than I did. I just took the statement as it was pointed out to me in that one book.
2046. Who pointed this statement out to you? Mrs. Cunyngame. She gave me the book, and opened it just where they were, and gave me no explanation, but said "Take those names out and the amounts."
2047. So that if she had given you the names of the dead persons too, you would have taken those out also? In all probability I should.
2048. Mr. Bourke.] It was on your advice that Mrs. Cunyngame retained that book when it was sent for, was it not? Yes.*
2049. And when it was sent for again the day after it was given up? Yes; and a receipt obtained from Mr. Green.
2050. Just as it is now? Yes; I believe it is the same now as it was then.

TUESDAY, 15 JULY, 1890.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,		MR. KIDD,
MR. FRANK FARNELL,		MR. RITCHIE.
JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as Counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as Solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Walter Brown, Esq., M.D., called in, sworn, and examined:—

- W. Brown, Esq., M.D.
15 July, 1890.
2051. Mr. Bourke.] You are a doctor of medicine? Yes.
2052. And you have been for some time I believe at Parramatta? Yes; for about thirty-two years.
2053. You were in the habit of visiting the Macquarie-street Asylum? I visited it regularly during Dr. Rowling's absence. I visited it for a month during Dr. Rowling's absence, and occasionally before that.
2054. Have you visited the institution since Dr. Rowling left? No, not officially. I have looked in to see Mrs. Cunyngame and her family in case of sickness.
2055. Apart from seeing Mrs. Cunyngame and her family, have you gone round the institution and seen the inmates? Only on the occasion of a feast or dinner to the inmates. 2056.

* NOTE (on revision):—I omitted to state, in answer to the third last question, my reason for advising Mrs. Cunyngame to retain the book. It was this, I said: "If you part with the book, which is your own private property, you will have no record to refer to when any of the inmates apply for their balances, &c." I believe these money transactions were private ones, mutually agreed upon between Mrs. Cunyngame and the newly-admitted inmates who had money about them.—R. V. GALE.

2056. After Mr. Cunynghame's suspension you wrote her a letter to this effect:—

"I have known Mrs. Cunynghame, of the Macquarie-street Asylum, for many years. I have also been in the habit of visiting the asylum, and I have reason for thinking Mrs. Cunynghame very attentive to the wants and comforts of the inmates."

W. Brown,
Esq., M.D.
15 July, 1890.

In reference to that letter, Mr. Maxted, in his evidence, question 965, is asked if he thought you were a man capable of judging, and he answered that you had not an intimate acquaintance with the institution, and were only a superficial observer,—I ask you if, during the time you were visiting the place, you went through it thoroughly? Yes; during the time I was visiting the institution for Dr. Rowling—during that month.

2057. Having visited the institution once since Mr. Maxted was appointed, have you found any reason to change the opinion expressed in that letter no? No.

2058. I suppose you went about among the inmates on that feast day? Yes.

2059. Did you hear any complaints? No.

2060. After Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, did you see Dr. Violette and have any conversation with him about her suspension? Not that I remember.

2061. Do you recollect any conversation with Dr. Violette on board a steamer? I do not recollect any conversation with Dr. Violette in which reference was made to Mrs. Cunynghame.

2062. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact, you did not visit the Macquarie-street Asylum after Mr. Maxted's appointment until Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? I do not know anything about the dates; I was present at one of the feasts.

2063. That would be somewhere about October? I do not remember the date.

2064. I presume you have some faint recollection of a change in the supervision of the asylums? I remember the fact, but not the dates.

2065. Did you visit the Macquarie-street Asylum at any time between Mr. Maxted's appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal except on the occasion of the feast? I do not remember going round.

2066. Then of course you could not say anything with regard to the management of the institution during that time? No.

2067. I believe you are connected with the Newington Asylum? Yes.

2068. So far as you can see there has been a change in the management with regard to the dietary scale and so forth? In Newington there has been.

2069. Mr. Ritchie.] What caused you to write the letter to Mrs. Cunynghame which has just been referred to? Mrs. Cunynghame wished me to express my view as to whether, during the time I was visiting the institution, I could speak as to her management and attention, and I wrote in accordance with that.

2070. It was at her request you wrote the letter? At her request, and to give information as to what I knew during the time I was attending there.

2071. As far as I can gather from your evidence, you did not attend there officially? Only for a short time during Dr. Rowling's absence.

2072. That was before Mr. Maxted's appointment? I think it was.

2073. Did you at any time give any attention to the working of the asylum? I have been in and out frequently in a private way.

2074. Since Mr. Maxted was appointed? No; I do not think so.

2075. In any of your visits to the institution, did you ever notice any indication of a harsh disposition on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame? No; I never did.

2076. Did you notice anything of the opposite? She always appeared to be very attentive to the wants and comforts of the inmates.

2077. Did she at any time ever show anything like an unkind, harsh, or cruel feeling towards the inmates? No; nothing of the sort, to my knowledge.

2078. You came principally in contact with Mrs. Cunynghame as her private medical adviser? Yes; I have gone into the institution at times during one or two of the feasts, and have gone round in that way, but only as a private individual.

2079. At any of these visits you made on feast occasions, did you see anything remarkable, or that would tend in any direction towards this inquiry? No; everything appeared to be satisfactory. The old people appeared to be very well pleased with the attention given them by all attending there.

Hugh Taylor, Esq., M.P., recalled, and further examined:—

2080. Mr. Williamson.] Will you tell me if Mr. Crick ever informed you that he was acting as Mrs. Cunynghame's attorney? Yes. In a conversation which I had with Mr. Crick previous to the Committee being appointed, he said, "Mind you, I am Mrs. Cunynghame's attorney."

2081. Mr. Ritchie.] Has he said he has ceased to act as her attorney? I have not spoken to him on the subject since.

H. Taylor,
Esq., M.P.
15 July, 1890.

Rev. Gerrard Addington D'Arcy-Irvine, called in, sworn, and examined:—

2082. Mr. Bourke.] You are stationed at Parramatta, I believe? Not now. I left Parramatta in the middle of February last.

2083. Up till the time Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed from the asylum you were in the habit of visiting it? Yes.

2084. You visited as a clergyman of the Church of England? Yes.

2085. And you were in the habit of holding Divine Service in the building? I was.

2086. How often, on an average, did you go to the institution? I am afraid I could not say accurately now, but I should think about once a week.

2087. I think there was another Anglican clergyman who visited there sometimes? Yes, Archdeacon Günther. I was curate of the parish, Archdeacon Günther was the incumbent, and we had also a lay reader, whose duty it was to regularly and systematically visit the sick there—Mr. Kemmis.

2088. I suppose that you and the other curate and Archdeacon Günther took it in turns to go to this institution? I don't know that we can say that we took it in turns. Sometimes, in regard to the services,

Rev. G. A. services, one of us would hold them two or three weeks running, and then we were occasionally there between the services, and after the services it was not an uncommon thing for the clergyman to go through the wards and see some of the patients.

D'Arcy-Irvine

15 July, 1890.

2089. Then you had a good opportunity of seeing the institution and its working? I think so.

2090. When you were there, going about amongst the inmates, did you receive any complaints from them as to the treatment they received? On one occasion only did I receive anything that could be called in the nature of a complaint.

2091. Was that a serious matter? I think not.

2092. I suppose you investigated it? I knew that the person who spoke had, before the Commission which was held some time before, said something of what he said to me. I therefore knew there were others who had had an opportunity of listening to the same individual, and whose duty it would be to investigate the matter.

2093. In going about amongst the people, were you alone or accompanied by Mrs. Cunynghame? Usually I went alone.

2094. I suppose that every time you went there you saw Mrs. Cunynghame on the premises? Usually, I think.

2095. Did you ever see Mrs. Cunynghame manifest any harshness towards the people? No, never.

2096. You saw her going about amongst them, tell us please what her manner was to them? She gave me the impression of being a capable officer.

2097. And you never saw her treat the inmates unkindly or harshly? I never saw anything of the kind.

2098. And you never had any complaint of any such thing? I never had any complaint of any such thing. I may as well say, with reference to the matter I referred to a little while ago in answer to your question, that the individual was named Rooney, and all I remember is his saying that Mrs. Cunynghame was not what she seemed to me to be.

2099. I suppose the inmates had every opportunity, while you were there, of talking freely to you? I think so.

2100. And they did? I think so. I always encouraged them to feel that, as a clergyman, they might speak freely to me.

2101. The charges against Mrs. Cunynghame are harshness and neglect of duty; you can speak as to those;—you say you saw her when you went there going about amongst the people, and you saw no harshness, nor did you hear of any? I never saw any harshness on the occasion of my visits there, nor did I hear of any. I, of course, read some of the evidence given before a Commission that was held there some time ago, and which evidence appeared in the public press.

2102. You know there was an organ obtained for the use of the inmates? I only know that they had an organ.

2103. Do you know who got that organ for them? I am not able to say.

2104. I believe some ladies in connection with your church visited the institution? Yes.

2105. Will you tell us their names? Mrs. Harris and Miss Wickham always attended to sing and play during the time Divine Service was going on, and Mrs. Harris and Miss Harper were in the habit of visiting the institution every Tuesday to read and pray with the sick; and very capable workers they both are.

2106. Did they ever make any complaints to you about the working of the institution? No; never.

2107. Mr. Williamson.] You say you visited the institution once a week; is that correct;—do I understand that is your answer? I think my answer was that I could not state accurately at this period of time, but that I thought about once a week.

2108. When you visited the institution, did you sign a book? Usually I did, but there were some occasions when, being in a hurry, I did not.

2109. When you visited the institution, how long did you stay there on an average? The services lasted about an hour, and sometimes I would stay for half an hour afterwards.

2110. Then I suppose you only visited those portions of the institution to which your attention was directed by the Superintendent? No.

2111. Did you go through the whole of the wards? Not through the whole of the wards.

2112. It was notified to you that certain persons were desirous of seeing you, and you called upon them? Sometimes; but sometimes an inmate in attendance at the service would say something to me which would result in my going to see someone else. It is a long time ago now, but my impression is that I was there about once a week.

2113. From what I can understand from you, you did not go carefully into the question of management and supervision on the part of the lady superintendent—that the half hour was chiefly occupied in paying attention to different members of your flock who were desirous of seeing you? I had nothing to do with the question of management, and did not make it my business to inquire into it; but if there had been anything grossly wrong I believe the inmates would have mentioned it to me. They felt that they could speak to me and that I should listen to them.

2114. You say you read the report of the Royal Commission? I read some portions of it.

2115. Did you, subsequent to that, ask them if they had any complaints to make? I do not remember distinctly asking if they had any complaints to make, for I supposed that if they had anything to complain of they would let me know.

2116. You said something about Rooney; do you not know that a number of others were removed from the institution shortly before Mr. Maxted came into office; did they not complain to you? No; they did not.

2117. If these men have sworn that there has been ill-treatment, as far as Mrs. Cunynghame is concerned, and want of supervision, and all that kind of thing, you are not prepared to deny their evidence? Of course I cannot; I can only say what my impression was of the place going there as I did.

2118. I presume you never visited the institution at night time unless you were specially sent for? No.

2119. Mr. Ritchie.] I suppose, when you were talking to the old men they had a great many petty complaints to make about various things? I do not remember their doing so.

2120. You do not remember any particular instance? No; except the case of Rooney, to which I have referred. He was sitting in his chair after the service. I think it was soon after the Commission sat, but as to that I cannot speak accurately now. He said, "Mrs. Cunynghame is not what she seems to you

- to be," or words to that effect. With that exception, I do not remember ever hearing anything in the way of complaint.
2121. He did not amplify his statement and explain what he meant? No. I do not think that at that time I encouraged him to do so, simply because I knew that the members of the Commission had had the same witness before them, and it was, therefore, not necessary that I should speak to him about it.
2122. You did not encourage the inmates generally to make complaints to you, did you? I think I showed them, from my general bearing, that if I could be of service to them in any way they had only to use me.
2123. Was it your general impression that they were well provided for and looked after as far as the management was concerned? It was.
2124. Did you see any symptoms of neglect at all on the part of the management? No; I never saw any symptoms of neglect.
2125. Mr. Bourke.] You say you read the report of the Royal Commission? I read portions of it.
2126. You remember, I suppose, that there were some very serious charges in that report against the management of the institution? I do not remember, at this lapse of time, what the charges were.
2127. But you remember perhaps that they were serious? I do.
2128. And, I suppose, reading that report containing those very serious charges would have the effect upon you, that you would look round the asylum when you went there to see if there was anything wrong? It would have the effect of making me go with perhaps greater attention than would otherwise have been the case.
2129. With regard to visiting the whole of the institution, I suppose you considered that the sick wards were your especial charge? I have already said that, according to the division of work in the very large parish of St. John's, at Parramatta, Archdeacon Günther had arranged with Mr. Kemmis, the lay reader, that it should be his especial business to visit the sick. I occasionally visited them, sometimes after the service, and from time to time on other occasions.
2130. What I mean is, that if you visited any part of the institution at all it would be more likely the sick wards? Yes.
2131. And I suppose that if you did not happen to go there to conduct Divine Service, either the other curate or Archdeacon Günther would go there? There were two services every week—one on Sunday and one on Thursday.
2132. Then one clergyman from your church would attend regularly twice a week—Thursdays and Sundays? I think, during the time Mrs. Cunynghame was there, it was the custom of the lay reader to take the Sunday morning service. I have taken it regularly more recently. I have been to the institution so very often from time to time during the time of Mrs. Cunynghame and Mrs. Brooke, that I cannot undertake to speak with perfect accuracy as to the frequency of my visits, but I have already said that they occurred about once a week.
2133. I only wanted to elicit the fact that there was some one connected with your church there at least twice a week? Yes. I may add that, both from Mrs. Cunynghame and Mr. Maxted, and every one else whom I met at the institution, I always received the greatest attention, kindness, and courtesy.

Rev. G. A.
D'Arcy-Irvine
15 July, 1890.

Mrs. Emma Payten called in, sworn, and examined :—

2134. Mr. Bourke.] You have been a resident of Parramatta for some time I believe? Yes.
2135. And you have been in the habit of visiting the charitable institutions there? Yes; more particularly Macquarie-street.
2136. And you visited there up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes.
2137. Were you present at a feast given by Mr. Quong Tart and some other gentlemen in October, 1888? I have been present at every feast there given by Mr. Quong Tart.
2138. Do you remember anything particular taking place on the occasion of the last feast? I do not remember anything very particular. Everything went on very nicely.
2139. Was there anything taking place amongst the inmates;—what did they do that day? They presented Mrs. Cunynghame with a basket of flowers and an address.
2140. I suppose you could judge of the feelings of the inmates on that day at any rate? Oh, yes; they all seemed very nice indeed—every one of them.
2141. You can tell us from what you saw what was the feeling manifested towards Mrs. Cunynghame by the inmates? They all expressed a very nice feeling indeed.
2142. And they presented her with an address and a basket of flowers? Yes; for her kindness.
2143. Did you see Mr. Hugh Taylor there on that day? Yes.
2144. Do you know whether he had a quarrel with anyone there? I am sure I could not say. I did not hear of any quarrel with anybody.
2145. Did you hear a conversation between Mr. Taylor and Mrs. Cunynghame on that day? No. I had the keys of the storeroom, and I was giving out the beer to the old men.
2146. Did you hear Mr. Taylor say to Mrs. Cunynghame that she wanted minding? No; I did not hear Mr. Taylor say anything to Mrs. Cunynghame. I was on the platform when the old men gave the basket of flowers and when the address was read, but Mr. Taylor was not on the platform at the time. Mr. Guy, I think, read the address for the old men, and the lady visitors collected on the platform to see it presented.
2147. On the night of the feast, did you go through the hospital wards with Mrs. Cunynghame? I did, at about 8 o'clock.
2148. What did you go there for? Mrs. Cunynghame was distributing their medical comforts, which they had not received during the day.
2149. They had not received the medical comforts in the day time because it was a feast day? Yes. The lady visitors were not aware that the doctor had said that they should have their comforts in the day time. Had this been notified to the lady visitors the patients would have had their medical comforts as well as the beer.
2150. I suppose on that day the lady members of the Committee were practically in charge? Yes; they were all about the building distributing fruit and other things.
2151. And at 8 o'clock at night you went through the building with Mrs. Cunynghame to give the men their medical comforts? It was about 8 o'clock. We went through several of the hospital wards, and particularly into the cancer ward.
- 2152.

Mrs.
E. Payten.
15 July, 1890.

Mrs.
E. Payten.
15 July, 1890.

2152. And the morning after (Sunday morning), did you go through again with Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; Mrs. Gale, a lady friend, and myself went through first, distributed some lollies, fruit, and cake, and then we went with Mrs. Cunynghame to distribute some sucking pig that had not been sufficiently cooked on the Saturday. She wanted to let them have this, and we took it round with some plum pudding.
2153. Do you remember anything taking place with regard to a man named Nimmo? Yes; I was in the ward at the time.
2154. What occurred? Mrs. Cunynghame came in with the sucking pig in her hand, and we were carrying pudding. She said, "I have brought some nice things for you men to-day. This is not Quong Tart's feast day; this is my feast day; and I have brought you some nice sucking pig." The man Nimmo stood up and said, "You can bring us as much of that as you like, and I do not think it would make any of us ill," and Mrs. Cunynghame turned round to him and said, "You are only one, Nimmo; I was not speaking to you only, I mean all of you; I hope it will not make any of you ill."
2155. What kind of a man was Nimmo? He was apparently a young man. I said to Mrs. Cunynghame at the time, although not close to him, "What is the matter with that young man; it is a pity to see him in a place like this," and Mrs. Cunynghame said to me on the door-mat as we were going out, "Well, he has got a disease, I think, they call impudence; I think it is a pity he should be here."
2156. What was his demeanour? I think he was very rude, indeed.
2157. Did he appear to be a young strong man? Yes.
2158. Since this inquiry commenced, have you been to the Macquarie-street Asylum with Mrs. Cunynghame to get some documents? Yes.
2159. Do you know whether she was able to get those documents? I do not think she got what she required.
2160. Do you remember a feast that was given two years before the one we are speaking of now, when there was some fruit and cake and other things left? There was very little left, and what was left was always distributed.
2161. But you remember a feast that was given about two years before the one you have just referred to, when what was left was locked up? Yes; I remember that some things were locked up in the store-room.
2162. Do you know whether they were taken out? They could not possibly be taken out.
2163. Do you recollect whether after the feast in 1886, when the provisions were locked up, there was a party given that night at Mrs. Cunynghame's place, or a ball? There never was a ball.
2164. Well, a party? A few lady friends and others who were there during the day, stayed until about 10 o'clock at night.
2165. They stopped to tea in the evening? Yes; just a few.
2166. Whenever anything was left after any of these feasts, what was done with it? It was always given to the old men next day.
2167. And if anything was left on the occasion of the feast in 1886, do you know whether it was distributed after? I am quite sure that it would have been distributed, because that was always done.
2168. You always took part in these feasts? Yes.
2169. And if anything was left you always distributed it amongst the inmates next day? Yes.
2170. I suppose you visited this asylum pretty often up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed? Yes; frequently.
2171. Was she always there when you went? She was always there when I went.
2172. Where would you generally find her? Frequently in the kitchen, and very often down in the yard.
2173. I suppose you had opportunities of seeing Mrs. Cunynghame among the inmates? Yes; very often.
2174. What was her manner towards the inmates—was it very harsh? No; I never in my life saw any harshness on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame.
2175. Were you ever about amongst the inmates without Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
2176. Did they ever make a complaint to you? No; never.
2177. Did you speak pretty freely with them? Yes. I have frequently been there. There was one young fellow whom I used often to talk to, and I think that if there had been anything harsh or cruel the lady visitors would have been sure to hear it.
2178. There were other ladies who went there beside you? Yes; a great number.
2179. Did you ever hear of any complaint of harshness being made to them? Never.
2180. Mr. Williamson.] From what I can understand, Mrs. Payten, you are a most intimate friend of Mrs. Cunynghame—what we generally call a bosom friend? I do not know. I like Mrs. Cunynghame very well, because I have seen so much of her kindness towards the old men.
2181. But you are in the habit of visiting there as a friend of Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I did go there as a friend of Mrs. Cunynghame.
2182. You say you recollect the feast;—do you recollect there being a little dance afterwards? Yes; there was a little dance afterwards.
2183. The young ladies and gentlemen of Parramatta, or a number of them, were invited? No; there was not a number invited—only a few who were taking part at the feast during the day as visitors—a few of the ladies; I could not tell who they were.
2184. I suppose they all had good appetites. When you reached there do you recollect the room where the refreshments were kept being opened? No; I remember Mrs. Cunynghame sending to Granger's.
2185. Do you recollect the room being opened? No. There was never anything taken for Mrs. Cunynghame's house from the old men. I have known Mrs. Cunynghame to send to Granger's for refreshments for whoever came into her own house.
2186. Do you swear that on the occasion you refer to, and the occasion Mr. Taylor has referred to, the room was not broken open and the refreshments used for the people who were at the ball, or the spree, or social, or whatever you may call it? I am sure there was nothing ever taken and nothing broken into that I ever heard of.
2187. Who locked the things up in the room? I am sure I could not tell you.
2188. And you could not tell where the refreshments came from—I mean the refreshments for the dance? Granger, the baker, would send them.

2189. But he would not send the porter or the ale? There was nothing of that kind used.
2190. Not at a social gathering? No; only tea and coffee. I never saw anything else taken into the house, except for the old men, when I have helped Mrs. Cunynghame to take it round.
2191. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Taylor with regard to the room being broken into and refreshments being taken out? No; I never spoke to Mr. Taylor on any occasion.
2192. You have given some evidence with regard to a man named Nimmo;—did you not hear Mrs. Cunynghame abuse Nimmo? No; I did not.
2193. Did she not say to him, "You ought to be out of bed"? No. She said, "You are only one Nimmo, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself to be here."
2194. Do you not know that he was ordered by the doctor to remain in bed? Well, he went away very soon afterwards.
2195. When she ordered him out? No; she never ordered him out.
2196. Did not Nimmo say, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I will leave your institution and go to Sydney and get criminal proceedings instituted against you in reference to your conduct"? He did not; not in my presence.
2197. Did not Mr. Cunynghame look at the book in your presence and see an order by the doctor that he was to remain in bed? I do not know anything about the book.
2198. Did she not admit to the man that the doctor did order him to remain in bed—that he was suffering from a disease which made it essential that he should remain in bed? No; I have told you exactly what I heard.
2199. What time of the day was it when you went round with Mrs. Cunynghame? It was between 11 and 12 o'clock on Sunday morning.
2200. Were you spending the Sunday there? No; I went there on purpose to distribute the things so that they should not spoil—I mean the sucking pig.
2201. Why could not Mrs. Cunynghame do that? Because there were so many things to be distributed, and myself and another lady friend went round to all the wards.
2202. Do you not know that a dispute and a grievance arose with regard to the vegetable garden? No; I do not.
2203. Do you not know that the men threatened to leave if the vegetables were sent out of the institution to Mrs. Cunynghame's friends? No; I know nothing at all about the vegetables.
2204. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to the party to which reference has been made, do you remember how many people were there? I could not tell you. There were not a great many—just a few.
2205. Were they mostly ladies? Yes; most of them would be ladies.
2206. And you say that it was all over at 10 o'clock? Yes.
2207. You were about the institution during the day distributing the fruits and other things brought there for the old men, and I suppose if the same things were brought in at night to be distributed amongst the visitors at Mrs. Cunynghame's private house you would have known them? Yes. Nothing was ever brought in to Mrs. Cunynghame's from the old men.
2208. As a matter of fact, whatever refreshments you had there that night did not belong to the feast? No; they came from Granger's. His man brought them on a long tray.

Mrs.
E. Payten.
15 July, 1890.

Mrs. Grace Rutter called in, sworn, and examined:—

2209. Mr. Bourke.] You are the widow of the late Dr. Rutter, formerly visiting surgeon of the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
2210. And you were in the habit of visiting the asylum up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal? Yes.
2211. On the occasions when you went to the asylum, would you go amongst the inmates yourself? Yes. If I found that Mrs. Cunynghame was not in her house I went round the institution until I found her. Sometimes I would find her in the garden, sometimes in the kitchen, and sometimes in the yard. She told me that I need not wait for her, but that I was to go where I liked to find her.
2212. Then you had a good opportunity of observing the inmates and the management of the institution? Yes.
2213. I suppose you were present on feast days? Yes.
2214. Do you remember the last feast which Quong Tart gave in October, 1888? Yes; I was there.
2215. And you saw the inmates present a basket of flowers and an address to Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
2216. I suppose you can tell the Committee what is your opinion of the feeling of the inmates on that day towards Mrs. Cunynghame? I thought they were delighted. I never heard a complaint or a word against her, and I thought they were all very delighted and very pleased with her. I am sure Mrs. Cunynghame knew nothing of the presentation, because the lady visitors who got it up told me so beforehand, and said it would be quite a surprise. The men on that occasion seemed very pleased, as they did at all times. During all the time that I have been visiting there I have never heard an unkind word said of Mrs. Cunynghame, nor have I ever heard a complaint against her. The men were in the habit of coming to Dr. Rutter at all hours, and at all times, even to our own private house, and they all spoke in the very highest terms of the kind treatment of Mrs. Cunynghame.
2217. I suppose you have seen men belonging to the institution both inside and outside? Yes.
2218. And you were in the habit of talking freely to them? Yes.
2219. Did they make any complaint to you? Never. I never heard a man complain against Mrs. Cunynghame all the years that I was visiting there, nor do I think they had any occasion to do so.
2220. We have spoken of the feast that took place in October, 1888; there was one that was given two years before that, when some of the things provided for the inmates were left;—do you know what became of those things? I recollect that in the evening Mrs. Cunynghame went to the room—her room—and Mrs. Payten and myself followed after her, and some bottles were emptied, and there was a tin—
2221. Mr. Williamson.] What kind of bottles? Bottles that contained brandy which were used by the visitors on the feast-day—by the committee and their friends.
2222. Mr. Bourke.] Were these some things left over? There was a tin containing about 1lb. or 2lb. of biscuits. Mrs. Cunynghame picked up the tin as we walked from the room. There were some children playing on the green in front of the long room who rushed up to her, and she turned the tin over for the children. That was all I saw brought out of the room.

Mrs.
G. Rutter.
15 July, 1890.

Mrs.
G. Rutter.
15 July, 1890.

2223. If anything is left from the feasts, do you know what is done with it afterwards? The men were supposed to get it, and Mrs. Cunynghame would always invite one or two ladies to help her to distribute them the next day.
2224. Did you ever help in the distribution? Yes.
2225. Can you remember whether you did so on the occasion to which I am now referring? At the last feast I do not think I did, for I could scarcely get enough to fill the dishes without going to Mrs. Cunynghame's private table.
2226. I want to know if you distributed anything after the feast that took place in 1886? No; I did not help on that occasion, but Mrs. Payten and Mrs. Gale did.
2227. I suppose you have seen a great deal of Mrs. Cunynghame for some years past? Yes, from the day she entered the institution. I was there before her time. My husband took a great interest in the institution, and we had great difficulty and trouble with the wardsmen there. I was there the day Mrs. Cunynghame entered the institution, and never left visiting it until her dismissal.
2228. And whenever you went there you found Mrs. Cunynghame engaged at her duties? Always. I do not know that I ever found her absent but once.
2229. Something has been said about Mrs. Cunynghame using Billingsgate;—I suppose you never heard any of that? I never heard her speak unkindly, or raise her voice and speak in an unladylike manner.
2230. You are a sister of Mr. Hugh Taylor, are you not? Yes.
2231. Mr. Williamson.] You say you visited the institution up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame left? Yes.
2232. Have you visited it since? No.
2233. Why? I thought Mrs. Cunynghame so unkindly and unjustly treated that I could not go again.
2234. You seemed to take an interest in the institution, and not in Mrs. Cunynghame? I did.
2235. If you took an interest in the institution and not in Mrs. Cunynghame, why could you not visit the institution after she left? Could I go when we were all being upbraided with injustice?
2236. Nobody upbraided you? Yes.
2237. What did they say about you? Not about me, but about all the visitors who were taking an interest in the institution and visiting there. If we considered that Mrs. Cunynghame had done wrong and still upheld her in it, were we not to be considered as bad?
2238. If you took an interest in the institution, why did you not visit it under Mrs. Brooke's management—she is a very nice ladylike person? That may be so; I do not know Mrs. Brooke.
2239. Why do you not visit the institution now? Simply for my own reasons.
2240. During the time you visited there, did you ever see the old men using the grass plot? I have seen them all round it.
2241. Have you ever seen them on it? No; nor do I think it was wise they should go on it. There was a small grass square kept there, and it was green and beautiful to the eyes of the old men, and there were reasons why they should not be allowed on it.
2242. Do you think they used to do the grass any harm? Yes; very great harm.
2243. Plough it up? No; they did not plough it up. When the old men went first on the grass they did what was not very pleasant, and then they were not allowed there.
2244. Did you ever see the horse on it? No.
2245. Or the cow? No; but I know that the children were allowed to lead their pony on the grass the day before it was going to be cut.
2246. I suppose you visited the asylum every day? Not every day.
2247. You were quite the right wing of the institution? No; I went there about every week.
2248. And you went there as a friend of Mrs. Cunynghame? Perhaps so.
2249. With reference to the spree, or social, which took place, do you recollect Mr. Hugh Taylor being at the feast in the day time? I do.
2250. You recollect the occasion when there was a dance? Yes; I saw a lot of cakes and things provided, and Mrs. Cunynghame explained that they were intended for a lot of young folks who had been helping her during the day, and for whom she was going to have a little amusement in the evening.
2251. Were you present in the evening? No. There was not much left from the feast.
2252. Mr. Bourke.] The reason why you left off visiting the asylum was because you, and the other friends of Mrs. Cunynghame, considered her treatment as a reflection upon you? We did. We felt it very much. We felt that if Mrs. Cunynghame had been doing anything wrong we should either have censured her or reported it. It was impossible that we could have upheld her in the serious offences she was said to have committed.
2253. You say that if any of these things had been proved you would have felt it your duty to have taken some action? Decidedly.
2254. Mr. Williamson.] Did you read the report of the Royal Commission? Some portions of it.
2255. Did you take any action then? What action was needed? No opportunity of defence was allowed. It was simply a Commission for the purpose of censuring Mrs. Cunynghame.
2256. Even when the Royal Commission furnished its report, you did not think Mrs. Cunynghame was deserving of blame? No; and in this I had my husband to uphold me. He was at the institution every day, and twice a day, and I felt that if the Royal Commission had been right he would have known it. I believed her then to be just in her actions, as I believe her to be now.
- 2257-58. Mr. Bourke.] Then the reason why you disregarded the report of the Royal Commission was because your husband, having been there once or twice a day, told you it was false? Yes; he told me to place confidence in Mrs. Cunynghame, as he was sure she did her duty.*

Frederick Augustus Rossiter, called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr.
F. A. Rossiter.
5 July, 1890.
2259. Mr. Bourke.] You are in the Public Asylums Department, I believe? I was, until last April.
2260. What position did you occupy? At the time when I left the Asylums Department I held the position of Officer-in-charge.
2261. Then you were next to Mr. Maxted? Yes.

2262.

* NOTE (on revision):—He could not have told me it was false, as he was dead some time before the Commission took place.

2262. And after Mr. King left the Department, and before Mr. Maxted was appointed, you were Acting Director? Acting Manager we termed it.

2263. The position now filled by Mr. Maxted is termed Manager? That is not quite so. Mr. Maxted holds an amalgamated position, but the position Mr. King held was that of Manager of Government Asylums, which position I filled during his absence.

2264. At any rate you were acting head of the Department? Exactly, so far as the Asylums Department was concerned.

2265. Did you send to Mrs. Cunynghame, at the Macquarie-street Asylum, the following telegram, dated the 26th July, 1888:—

If imbeciles refuse to stay in asylum, and you are unable to detain them, inform the police, and request that a constable may be sent to asylum gate to apprehend them immediately upon their discharge. Shall be in Parramatta to-morrow.

I am unable to say that I sent this. It is the kind of telegram I should have sent under the circumstances, as they seem to be shown, but I cannot say that I remember it.

2266. That telegram says that where imbeciles will not remain in the asylum, and become unmanageable, Mrs. Cunynghame is authorized to put them outside the gate, and send for the police? Yes.

2267. And if Mrs. Cunynghame did that in the case of a man named Thomas Petersen, she was justified by your orders? Certainly. I do not remember the case of Petersen; but if he were an imbecile, and she acted in accordance with those instructions, she was justified.

2268. Were there any rules and regulations for the guidance of Superintendents of these asylums when you were Acting Manager? There were no written rules.

2269. Were there any rules drawn up by any one? There were no rules drawn up which were enforced. I had some rules under consideration, and they were drafted, but none had come into force.

2270. Do you know whether a set of rules were drafted by anybody? The rules I speak of were drafted, but they had not come into force.

2271. Do you know who drafted them? I drafted them myself. There were also some matters in reference to Macquarie-street which, I think, Mrs. Cunynghame suggested.

2272. There was a set of rules drafted by Mrs. Cunynghame, at the request of the Department? There were some rules for the internal management of the institutions—some rules and regulations which the Superintendents carried out themselves, and which had been approved of by the Manager. I understood you, in your first question, to ask whether there were any general rules applying to all the institutions.

2273. You say there were none? No; except what were drawn up by the Superintendents themselves, and which were different at each institution.

2274. Were there any written rules, regulating the internal management of the separate institutions? The only rules of the sort I knew of, were those which were framed by the Superintendents of the various institutions, and approved of by the Manager. That is as to the hour of rising in the morning, and going to bed at night, and such details as that.

2275. Is it usual for the Superintendents of these institutions to avail themselves of the help of the inmates? Certainly.

2276. I mean for their private houses? In the case of Mrs. Cunynghame, the institution was formerly an erysipelas hospital where all infectious cases were taken, and Mrs. Cunynghame used to have the services of certain inmates to do household duties.

2277. In some of the asylums the Superintendents are allowed a certain amount per year for a servant or servants for their private quarters? For any servant they like to engage, they are allowed £26 or £30 a year.

2278. In some of the places? There is an allowance made at one of the institutions.

2279. And at other places it has been usual to allow the Superintendents to avail themselves of the services of any of the inmates who were willing to work? Exactly. There was no difficulty placed in the way of the Superintendents utilizing the labour of the inmates, provided they were not required for the carrying on of the institutions.

2280. You know that for a very long time Mrs. Cunynghame carried on this institution without any paid assistance whatever? Yes, without any assistance, excepting that of the paid inmates.

2281. And they got a very trifling sum indeed? Yes.

2282. She carried it on altogether without any assistance, except that of the inmates themselves? Yes, altogether.

2283. Until a very short time before Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes; some few months.

2284. Then really only for a few months during Mrs. Cunynghame's tenure of office, she had the assistance of paid officers? Yes; that is so.

2285. Do you remember a blind man named Charles Burns? I cannot say I do at the moment. There are nearly 2,000 inmates of these institutions.

2286. Do you remember a man who was in the isolation ward, and who refused to go out when you went there? Yes; I do.

2287. Do you remember his name? No, I do not; he was a very old man.

2288. At page 44 of the evidence, there is a letter addressed to you by Mr. King in these terms:—

“My dear Mr. Rossiter,

Thanks for your letter. I think you should see Mr. Walker about Mrs. Cunynghame's matter. It is quite impossible for her to continue, unless she can keep order. The people in the asylum are becoming quite insubordinate.”—

Do you remember anything about that letter? No; I do not remember the circumstances.

2289. Perhaps you can tell us whether it is any reflection on Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the asylum at that time? I do not remember anything in the nature of a complaint at all. I do not remember having made a complaint in reference to Mrs. Cunynghame's management.

2290. Do you remember anything at all about the matter? No; I do not.

2291. You see the date of the letter;—do you remember the state the institution was in at that time? I know we had a number of very insubordinate characters at Macquarie-street, and we were frequently insisting upon having the rules and regulations I have spoken of carried out, and it might have been that I had to complain about some matter or other.

2292. Was that letter written in consequence of a request by Mrs. Cunynghame for some paid assistance? I really could not tell you at this length of time.

Mr.
F. A. Rossiter.
15 July, 1890.

- Mr. 2293. Do you remember a report sent in by Mrs. Cunynghame about that time with reference to certain
F. A. Rossiter. insubordinate men? I do not.
- 15 July, 1890. 2294. You were Acting Manager then? Yes, temporarily, in Mr. King's absence.
2295. Do you recollect whether Mrs. Cunynghame made any complaint to you about certain men being insubordinate at that time? I daresay she did. I know it was a very frequent circumstance, when I was visiting the institutions, for the Superintendents to complain of various men.
2296. You do know, as a matter of fact, that there were, at times, some men there who were insubordinate? Oh, yes; that is certainly the case.
2297. And that letter must have had reference to them? As I say, I do not remember receiving this letter.
2298. Do you remember the case of an old man named Holmes, who was an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum, and whose wife died at Newington? Yes; I remember Holmes, and I remember his wife.
2299. Do you remember sending any orders for Holmes to go to Newington to visit his wife? Yes; I was in the habit of sending orders whenever the Superintendent applied for them.
2300. That was one order you sent—was it not [Paper produced]? Yes; that is quite right.
2301. That is one order for Holmes to go, and you sent other orders besides? I was in the habit of sending orders when any of the inmates wanted to go to see their wives.
2302. At Mrs. Cunynghame's request? Yes.
2303. Then if it has been said that Holmes asked to go to see his wife at Newington, and Mrs. Cunynghame would not allow him, that is not true? I cannot speak of a certain case; but I know it was the practice for Holmes to go and see his wife, as also other inmates.
2304. And that is one of the orders you yourself sent? Yes; the order says, "Forward return pass by steamer from Parramatta to Newington, for John Holmes". I may mention that in those days the Superintendents had not power to send inmates away by train or steamer. They used to have to report the matter to the head office, and we would forward them their passes.
2305. Mr. Kidd.] Has that practice been altered? Yes; the Superintendents can now send inmates from one institution to another, upon the doctor's approval.
2306. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember a feast that was given on the 15th October, 1888, by Mr. Quong Tart and some other gentlemen? I am rather hazy about dates, as it is a long time ago; but I remember that entertainments were given by Mr. Quong Tart.
2307. You were present, I suppose, on nearly all the occasions when feasts were given? Yes.
2308. Do you remember being at a feast when the inmates made a presentation of flowers and an address to Mrs. Cunynghame? I have no doubt I was there, because I used to make it a practice to go to these entertainments.
2309. You were in the Department and occupied a position next to that of Mr. Maxted, and of course it would be your duty to look into the management of the asylum when you were present, and see how it was conducted? Not when Mr. Maxted was there. After Mr. Maxted took charge I had nothing to do with the management of the institutions.
2310. But would not any officer of the Department if he were present look round? Certainly.
2311. And on that feast day, about two or three months after Mr. Maxted was appointed, how was Mrs. Cunynghame managing, according to what you saw then? Everything was going along very well, so far as I remember.
2312. And I suppose after Mr. Maxted's appointment you visited the Macquarie-street Asylum sometimes? I used to be in the habit of going there sometimes to take the musters.
2313. After Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes.
2314. Will you tell the Committee how the asylum was being managed then, as far as you could see? Well, I saw no difference whatever. I saw everything going along very well, or else I should have reported the matter.
2315. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame going about amongst the men at all? It was her custom to go about amongst them.
2316. And you saw her amongst them, I suppose, when you were there? If she had not been about I should have noticed it.
2317. Did you ever see her there amongst the men at any time since Mr. Maxted was appointed? When I went to take the muster I would only remain there a short time, and Mrs. Cunynghame on those occasions would go round with me.
2318. Were you not there at any other time except when musters were taken? I think not.
2319. When you went there amongst the men to take musters, did you ever receive any complaints from them as to treatment? I think there was an old fellow who was up stairs in the isolation ward who complained, and several others who were semi-imbeciles. It is customary for them to make all kinds of complaints. Many of these people are semi-imbeciles.
2320. Were the complaints they made of a serious character? No.
2321. Did you investigate any of their complaints? Whenever a complaint was made I investigated it in every case—unless in the case of a frivolous complaint by an imbecile.
2322. Unless you thought the case was of too trivial a nature to look into it you investigated it? Certainly.
2323. And did you ever find there was any foundation for the complaints they made? Speaking from memory, I do not remember any.
2324. I suppose you had a good opportunity of seeing whether Mrs. Cunynghame was neglectful of her duties or not? Oh, yes.
2325. And what do you think with regard to that? I think Mrs. Cunynghame had a very difficult position to fill, and she always struck me as being an able and conscientious officer.
2326. And one who attended to her duties? Yes; she was, if anything, a little impetuous; that is the only fault I had to find with her.
2327. I suppose you know that after Mr. Maxted took charge of the asylum a new system of diet was initiated? Yes.
2328. Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame carried out that system? I had no means of seeing at the time whether she carried it out or not.
2329. Were you ever there at meal time? No; not since the new diet came into force.
2330. Since Mr. Maxted's appointment, you have been in a position in the Department next to him, and you

- you are not aware of any neglect of duty on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame, nor of any harshness practised by her? When I was in the position next to Mr. Maxted I was in charge of the Sydney Office.
2331. I suppose the paper connected with any complaint of neglect of duty, or anything of that sort, would go through you? Yes.
2332. And nothing of that kind ever come to you? No.
2333. Did any letters ever reach your office making complaint from the inmates or people who had been inmates? I dare say such matters might have occurred.
2334. Do you remember any such complaints from Macquarie-street after Mr. Maxted's appointment? I really could not say whether it was after or before; but with the class of people we had in these asylums, anonymous letters used to be continually sent in about the institutions.
2335. But nothing sufficiently serious for you to remember? No.
2336. When did you first hear of Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? After she was suspended.
2337. Not until after she was suspended? No.
2338. Were you ever asked anything about her management or character before her suspension? I think I was asked my opinion about all the officers.
2339. But I mean specifically asked about Mrs. Cunynghame? I do not remember the question coming up.
2340. Then her suspension came as a surprise to you? Yes; it was.
2341. Are you aware that Mr. Maxted's last report with regard to Mrs. Cunynghame is dated 4th December, 1888, and that Mr. Critchett Walker's memo. is of the same date? No; that has not come under my cognizance.
2342. And that on the same day that Mr. Maxted's last report was written, Mr. Critchett Walker's memo. was written on it recommending Mrs. Cunynghame's dismissal, and that on the same day Sir Henry Parkes' minute approving of her dismissal was also written;—are you aware of that? I do not know that I am. I may have seen the papers.
2343. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Was it customary for the Colonial Secretary's Department to deal with other matters as expeditiously as they did with this matter? In any case where there is urgency the Colonial Secretary's Office is always ready to deal with it directly.
2344. On the same day? In any matter of urgency the Principal Under Secretary always deals with it at once.
2345. Have you ever known instances where you have submitted papers to the Colonial Secretary's Department, and where they have been dilatory in dealing with them? Never dilatory. In matters that might not be considered of any urgency, they would be dealt with in the course of business, and whenever I have had occasion to represent a matter as urgent, I have always found that the Principal Under Secretary would deal with it as an urgent matter.
2346. Mr. Bourke.] Have you ever known a case of a long report being written, a memo. written on it by the Under Secretary and also by the Premier, and its being referred to the Executive Council all on the one day—as a matter of experience in the many sub-departments? I dare say it is done; but as far as our office is concerned I do not think I have ever had any experience similar to this.
2347. During the time you were Acting Manager, did you ever have any dealing with Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to money matters? The only moneys I received from Mrs. Cunynghame were the servants' wages that were refunded.
2348. Did Mrs. Cunynghame tell you that she had some moneys belonging to the inmates? I do not remember her doing so. Of course, I knew she must have such.
2349. You knew she had moneys? Oh, yes.
2350. Was it not the custom in the Department to allow the Superintendents of these asylums to keep the money of the inmates and give it to them as they required it, in sums of 2s. 6d. or 2s. a week? Yes, up to a certain amount. I think this amount was £2. Where the sum was beyond that Mr. King used to take charge of it; but I never had anything to do with these money matters at all.
2351. Do you remember, while you were Acting Manager, Mrs. Cunynghame stating to you that she had some inmates' moneys and wanted to settle up with you? No; I do not remember her saying that.
2352. Do you remember her saying this to you: that she wanted to settle these matters, and you replied "No; wait until I am appointed, or until you have a chief." This was when you were Acting Manager before Mr. Maxted was appointed? No; I do not remember those exact words.
2353. Do you remember at any time Mrs. Cunynghame making an offer to you to settle up about the inmates' money? No; I do not remember it.
2354. Did you not have some conversation with Mr. Critchett Walker, in which it was understood that you were to have been appointed Director? I did expect to be appointed as Manager, as I was an applicant, and naturally, until I was so appointed, and had some authority to act, I should have refused to take over moneys which were perhaps partially spent and manipulated.
2355. In using the word manipulated, I suppose you do not mean that as a reflection upon Mrs. Cunynghame? No. What I mean is this: There was no petty cash in our institutions, and it was the habit of the Superintendents to use such moneys known as collections for petty cash, and then matters were straightened up at the end of the period. Well, I objected to that system, and not feeling myself authorized to take over moneys in that way, I thought I had better wait until I was duly authorized.
2356. Then, if Mrs. Cunynghame had offered you these moneys, and asked you to settle up, you would not have taken them then? No; certainly not.
2357. Will you try to recollect whether, while you were Acting Manager, Mrs. Cunynghame on any occasion said to you that she would like to settle up these inmates' moneys? I do not remember her saying so.
2358. But if she said so you would have declined? Certainly.
2359. Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame had Mr. King's authority to keep these moneys in the way she did? No, I do not. I may say I had nothing to do with these collections or moneys while Mr. King was there.
2360. But you knew it was customary for Superintendents to have inmates' moneys in the way that has been shown here? Yes.
2361. Mr. Kidd.] In fact, if you had been appointed Manager, you intended to institute a different arrangement to that which existed before? Certainly. I felt that if I took over moneys, and some one else was appointed, he might not feel satisfied with my action.

Mr.
F. A. Rossiter
15 July, 1890

- Mr. F. A. Rossiter.
15 July, 1890.
2362. That is the reason why you did not take them over? Yes. This was the course adopted in regard to all the institutions except Liverpool.
2363. Mr. Bourke.] You had so many visits to these institutions while you were acting manager that you cannot recollect exactly what took place at each? No. I do not profess to recollect everything that happened two years ago.
2364. Then it is possible that Mrs. Cunynghame did offer you these moneys? Yes; but I do not think she did offer them to me.
2365. Is it not possible that she mentioned the matter to you, and that you told her you would not take the moneys over until you were appointed? The only way in which it could have happened is this: She may have said, "Well, what about these moneys?" or something of that kind.
2366. Mr. Ritchie.] Did she ever present a statement to you? No.
2367. Then it would have been simply a conversation? If such a thing happened it would have been in the nature of a conversation.
2368. You are not sure whether a conversation took place about it? I am not sure. It is three years ago.
2369. What was the custom in other institutions with regard to these moneys? The custom was that the superintendents were supposed to incur small liabilities by the purchase in the town of fish for a sick inmate, for instance, or ice, or anything of that kind, for which they paid cash. There was no petty cash allowed them, or no fund from which to obtain this money. It was the habit in some of the institutions for the superintendent to use the money in hand for this purpose, and at the end of a certain period to adjust the account.
2370. Mr. Ritchie.] Was the ready cash used by the superintendents in this manner moneys collected from the inmates? I think it consisted of any moneys they happened to have in their hands. I do not think any of them kept any proper accounts, with the exception of Mrs. Burnside, at Liverpool.
2371. What I mean is this: Mr. Maxted, in his report, states that moneys were held by Mrs. Cunynghame to the amount of £33;—were these moneys used by the superintendents of these institutions to make such purchases as you have referred to? I do not know that they were in this case, but I know it was done in some cases.
2372. Was it the custom in some of the other institutions? Yes.
2373. Mr. Williamson.] Dead men's moneys? I do not say any particular moneys, but any moneys that might have been in hand, and that was the reason I objected to take them over.
2374. Mr. Ritchie.] Then there was a debit and credit account kept in reference to the men's deposits with the superintendent? I presume there was. I never saw it. As I have said, I had nothing to do with the moneys.
2375. Mr. Bourke.] You said you did not think the management of money matters was quite satisfactory in these asylums? I do not remember saying that.
2376. I thought you said that if you had become manager you [would have initiated a different system? Quite so.
2377. Then you did not approve of the system that was in vogue when you were there? No.
2378. Did you issue any fresh instructions regarding the keeping of money matters in the asylums? No, I did not. I may mention that the reason I did not was that as soon as ever Mr. King retired from the position I made application to be appointed acting manager, which the Colonial Secretary declined, on the ground that he was about to make the appointment in the course of a few days, and from that time out I was expecting every day that either I should be appointed, or that a manager would be appointed.
2379. How long were you acting? For ten months—that was up to August; but for some considerable period previous to that Mr. King had been ill and unable to attend to his duties, and I had been acting during that time.
2380. Mr. Frank Farnell.] Did the Colonial Secretary appoint your successor within the two or three days mentioned? No; he did not appoint him until the following August, and that was at the commencement of January. From the period between January and August I was expecting that the appointment would be made every day, and consequently I did not give any instructions.
2381. Mr. Williamson.] They did not appoint a manager at all;—as a matter of fact they were re-organizing? Yes.
2382. Mr. Bourke.] In your dealings with Mrs. Cunynghame, did you find her untruthful? Oh, no.
2383. Would you consider, from your intercourse with the asylums, that she was dishonest? No, not at all—in no way.
2384. Or neglectful? No.
2385. Or unkind? No. Of course if I had considered that such was the case it would have been my duty, and I should have immediately done so, to report the matter.
2386. Do you remember a man named Donald M'Donald getting an admission order to go to the Macquarie-street Asylum, and that an authority was written on the back of his order authorizing Mrs. Cunynghame to retain £10 that he had? No, I cannot say I do.
2387. Do you remember any man getting an order to go to the Macquarie-street Asylum, and an authority being written on his order for Mrs. Cunynghame to retain the £10? No, I do not remember it.
2388. You say you remember going to the isolation ward on one occasion, and that there was a man who had been put there several times? Yes, I remember that very well.
2389. Was the man blind, do you remember? I do not remember that he was blind. I fancy, as far as I can remember, that he had rather sore-looking eyes.
2390. Do you remember whether his name was Burns? No; I do not remember his name.
2391. Was he a troublesome man? I fancy that the man I mean was a semi-imbecile.
2392. Do you remember a young man being in the isolation ward who was sent from George-street to Macquarie-street? I remember that there were two men whom Mrs. Cunynghame brought under my notice particularly, but whether one was a young man or not I could not say at this length of time.
2393. Do you remember one man who would not go out when you requested him to do so? Yes.
2394. Do you remember his name? No; but I remember the circumstance. I thought he was a foolish old man or an imbecile, and I advised him to go out about his usual avocation.
2395. In what way did he behave? He behaved like an imbecile.

2396. As far as you saw you had no complaint to make in regard to Mrs. Cunynghame's management of the institution? Not during the time I was in charge.

Mr. F. A. Rossiter.
15 July, 1890.

2397. Mr. Williamson.] You say that the Colonial Secretary's Office did not do anything for ten months;—they did not appoint a manager again, did they? I would not say that they did not do anything for ten months, but a director was not appointed until the 1st August. The matter was under consideration all that time, I know.

2398. They amalgamated three offices, did they not? Yes.

2399. And they abolished the office of manager altogether? Yes. I mention that, owing to that, I was prevented from getting promotion.

2400. Did you ever peruse the books which Mrs. Cunynghame had in reference to the inmates' moneys and the dead men's moneys? No; I do not think I ever did.

2401. Do you recognize the books I now show you? No; I never had anything to do with these books.

2402. Were they brought under your notice? I do not remember ever having seen them before. As I have said, previous to my taking charge I had nothing whatever to do with these moneys. Mr. King kept all that matter in his own hands, and when I took charge, and found what the system was, I declined to have anything to do with them.

2403. Were you at any time ever furnished by Mrs. Cunynghame with a detailed list of the moneys she had in hand? No.

2404. Supposing she had brought you any moneys, such as dead inmates' moneys and fat moneys, would you have taken them and placed them to a suspense account, or paid them into the Treasury? If she had brought me moneys, stating that they were for certain specific items, which I had a right to accept, I should, of course, have accepted them; but as matters had gone on for some months previously, and the accounts were in a mixed-up condition, I did not care about touching them at all.

2405. What should have been done first of all with the dead inmates' moneys? What should have been done was to hand them over to the manager once a month.

2406. And what would the manager do with them? He would pay them into the Treasury.

2407. In the case of moneys belonging to deceased inmates, which, when small, are treated as Government property, would you have accepted them and paid them into the Treasury? I should certainly have accepted them if they had been submitted separately from other accounts. But what I mean to say is that I would not have accepted moneys all mixed up together, and certain payments having been made out of them.

2408. If the dead inmates' moneys had been submitted to you by themselves, together with a detailed list, you would have accepted them and paid them into the Treasury? Certainly.

2409. If Mrs. Cunynghame had tendered you the moneys realized from the sale of fat belonging to the institution, with an account of when they were paid, and so forth, would you also have received those and paid them into the Treasury? Well, the chances are that I should have said, "You had better have them all squared up at once; you had better not pay them in piecemeal."

2410. Do you ever remember Mrs. Cunynghame offering you any fat moneys? No, I do not.

2411. I suppose if she had you would have remembered it? I think so.

2412. Mrs. Cunynghame, in her evidence before the Committee, question 2157, was examined as follows:—
