INTRODUCTION

Analysis of the 1988 and 1991 New South Wales elections has to date been hindered by a lack of detailed statistical analysis of the results. This is unfortunate, as both elections produced historically significant outcomes.

Given that New South Wales has often been called a 'natural' Labor state, the 1988 result was startling, the worst Labor performance, and best Coalition result, since the Lang era of the 1930s. The Labor Party suffered massive swings in its working class heartland, losing seats like Balmain, Newcastle and Swansea for the first time this century. There was a massive rejection of Labor in rural seats, mainly due to gun law and forest protection issues, and seven non-aligned Independents were elected to the Legislative Assembly.

The 1991 election saw the re-election of the Greiner Coalition, but in the unexpected position of a lacking a clear parliamentary majority. Together with the government's loss of The Entrance by-election following a Court of Disputed Returns decision, the finely balanced Parliament became critical to the course of the government. Politically, it led to the so-called 'Metherell affair' which eventually forced the resignation of Premier Nick Greiner. Constitutionally, it also led to the introduction of fixed four year term Parliaments, part of the agreement between the Coalition and non-aligned Independents.

The lack of statistical analysis of the results has been because of the massive electoral redistributions that took place before both elections. Prior to the 1988 election, the size of the Legislative Assembly was increased from 99 to 109 electorates, reverting back to 99 electorates for the 1991 election. This publication provides, for the first time, full details of both elections, with all swings calculated compared to the previous election after taking into account the redistributions. Summary details of the 1986/87 and 1990/91 redistributions are also provided, calculated by re-assigning booth results from the previous election to the new boundaries.

Further information on the political impact of the redistributions can be found in the NSW Parliamentary Library Current Issues Background Paper "NSW Elections 1984 to 1991: A Comparative Analysis" (No. 1994/2). More detail on the 1988 and 1991 Legislative Council elections can be found in "Electing the New South Wales Legislative Council 1978 to 1995: Past Results and Future Prospects" (No. 1995/2). A third publication, "NSW Elections 1995" (Background Paper 1995/4), sets out the results of the 1995 election in the same format as this publication.

Explaining the tables

For each Legislative Assembly electorate, full detail of primary and two-party preferred votes are provided. The format for the results are summarized below.

First Count: The votes shown for each candidate are the total primary votes received. Percentage votes are calculated as a percentage of the formal vote for each electorate. Swing is calculated by subtracting the percentage vote received by a party at the previous election (adjusted for the new boundaries) from the percentage received at the current election. Where the parties contesting the district differ from the previous election, 'ghost' candidates (indicated by "...") have been included representing candidates not contesting the current election. As a result, all primary swings add to zero, subject to rounding errors.

Final Count: Represents the two-candidate preferred count after the final distribution of preferences in an electorate. All votes which did not indicate a preference to the two remaining candidates are included in the total listed as Exhausted. Two-candidate preferred percentages are calculated by dividing the two-candidate preferred vote by the votes remaining in the count, that is the formal votes minus the total exhausted votes. Two-candidate preferred swings are shown compared to the adjusted previous election results. Where the party composition of the final two candidates differ (eg Balmain in 1988), a ghost candidate appears, and three swing figures are shown.

Two-Candidate versus Two-Party Preferred results

The 1988 election was the first where a full distribution of preferences was carried out in each electorate, producing a final two-candidate preferred vote. However, in 11 electorates in 1988, and 13 in 1991, the final count included an independent or minor party candidate. For these seats, two-party preferred estimates between Labor and the Coalition have been provided in the tables summarising the two-party preferred results.

A full two-party count was not provided in 1984, so all re-calculations based on the 1986/87 redistribution use estimated two-party preferred results from 1984.

By-Elections

In re-calculating redistributions, all estimates are based upon results of the previous election. By-elections have been ignored, though a note has been made where the result of a by-election may have affected redistribution calculations.

Details of all by-elections held between 1984 and 1988 are provided on pages 42-44, and by-elections between 1991 and 1995 on pages 85-87.

Changes to Electoral Laws

Before the 1991 election, there were two significant changes to electoral laws. The first was to allow party names to appear on the ballot paper. The second was to declare informal all votes cast using only a tick or a cross. This second measure, and confusion with instructions for marking the referendum ballot paper, was responsible for the enormous rise in informal voting at the 1991 election.

Disclaimer

All results are based on information provided by the NSW State Electoral Office. However, responsibility for all calculations and omissions is taken by the author.

SUMMARY OF 1986-87 REDISTRIBUTION

The following notes summarize the status of the 109 electorates drawn by the 1986-87 Electoral Districts Commission. All estimates are based on re-allocating booth results from the 1984 election to the new electorates. By-elections have been ignored in the analysis. For further information, see "NSW Elections 1984 to 1991: A Comparative Analysis" by Antony Green, NSW Parliamentary Library Current Issues Background Paper, No 1994/2

Notes on Seats Changing Hands

Bass Hill	Classed as Labor retain. Seat was gained by Liberal Party on old boundaries at a 1987 by-election (p43), but based on 1984 result, seat was Labor held.
Camden	Notional Labor retain. Won by Liberal Party at 1984 election, but on new boundaries, seat became notional Labor.
Nthn Tablelands	Classed as National retain. Seat was gained by National Party on old boundaries at a 1987 by-election (p44). New boundaries also made seat a National Party seat based on 1984 results.
Wollongong	As the new areas added to the seat were not contested by the sitting Independent MP in 1984, seat became notional Labor following redistribution. Re-election of Independent therefore seen as a gain from Labor.

NOTES

Seats with a margin less than 6% classified as Marginal. Seats with margins between 6% and 12% classified as Safe. Seats with margins greater than 12% classified as Very Safe. All seats classified by their 1984 margin based on estimates of the redistribution. By-elections results have not been used. The two electorates held by independents, North Shore and South Coast, have been excluded from the above analysis.

NOTES

Seats with a margin less than 6% classified as Marginal. Seats with margins between 6% and 12% classified as Safe. Seats with margins greater than 12% classified as Very Safe. All seats classified by their 1988 margin based on estimates of the redistribution. By-elections results have not been used. The four electorates notionally held by independents, South Coast, Newcastle, Swansea and Wollongong, have been excluded from the above analysis.
